ABOUT THIS ARCHIVE

All 815 posts from /r/TheRedPillStories, as held by TheRedArchive.

About /r/TheRedPillStories. A collection of true life stories of women engaging in behavior that typifies red pill wisdom. TheRedArchive has archived it since September 2018 and is still collecting.

About TheRedArchive. TheRedArchive is a free, public archive of the Red Pill community, built so that none of this writing can quietly disappear. It holds 1,738,103 posts and 40,077,044 comments from 45 subreddits and 58 blogs. Much of it survives nowhere else — the accounts deleted, the subreddits banned, the websites long offline. All of it is free to read, search and download, and always will be, at www.TheRedArchive.com.

Support the mission. This Red Pill archive is free — no paywall, no account — but keeping it online isn't. I pay for the servers, the storage and the bandwidth myself, so that this valuable knowledge stays online. If you want to support the mission and archive, become one of the people who help keep it online at www.TheRedArchive.com/#help.

Share this file freely, and keep a copy of your own. What sits on one server can be taken down; what sits on a thousand hard drives cannot.

Best regards,

Man marries single mother. Loses his job during pandemic. Struggling with his job loss. she cheats on him with another man. He kills the other man & turns the gun on himself. Tragic and preventable for both men. AVOID SINGLE MOTHERS AT ALL COSTS! They're a plague.

I'm unsure if my husband is the father of our child

Hi. So I'm married, have a child, 2 years old. 3 years ago I was in a pretty bad place and my partner would often be traveling. One of our mutual friends used to take care of me because I was in such a bad mental state. One day while I was in that state and also drunk, he comforted me and we had sex. He assured me that we used a condom, so I never really suspected anything once my partner came back (quickly because of I begged him) and I got pregnant. I always thought it was our child (my now husband and mine.)

But now I don't know. I'm very confused. My son is a spitting image of that man, not my husband. Maybe I'm just seeing things because I've read about these things a lot lately. I'm also concerned because we recently started trying again and are having difficulty conceiving. I mean, it hasn't been that long but still... Anyway. I'm thinking of doing a DNA test or something. But I don't know if I should, I'm kind of scared. And I don't know if I should tell my husband if my suspicions are revealed to be true and my son is not his son.

Anyway, that's the story. Please don't judge me. I know I did wrong. I just want to make the right decision from here on.

EDIT: I'm not telling him about the affair unless the child is not his. So don't say that. I've already given that enough thought and decided not to tell him. Due to many reasons.

Hurts so bad...so often

Reconciliation

My wife cheated on me with the father of our oldest daughters ex-boyfriend. My wife and I have been together since 1999 and have been married for 19 years tomorrow.

Last summer, I found it odd that she was so adamant to have me help her clean out her whole van and put the seats down in it. She had some stuff that needed hauled to the donation place, so, I chalked it up to that.

Well, a few months later, I found out that the next day, she screwed this guy in the van in an empty parking lot in broad daylight. They screwed again in the back of his truck behind a cornfield, and again in a cheap motel 45 minutes away.

She let him put it places I was never "allowed" and she blew him without his asking. She HATES giving blowjobs and I always had to beg. They also did positions that I'd always wanted to do, but wasn't allowed. She isn't very sexual most of the time and says she just wanted him to like her.

I ended up forgiving her and we've worked things out. That said, it still hurts. I still have dreams about them doing stuff and she still isn't keen on doing those things with me. She says it was just someone different and new and that he pursued her HARD. That much I know to be true because he's a serial cheater and has a reputation around here. Heck, he helped cause my buddy and his wife to get divorced. He has a way with words and then dumps the women when he's gotten what he wanted. Somehow, the women still flock to him. Anyway, my heart is so heavy at times.

From zero to hero to villain. The confessions of a young man that took the red pill and jumped down the rabbit hole.

EnoughYesterday8771 · 28 September 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm two days out from my first day of orthopedic surgery rotations, sleeping with three women in two nights, and destroying the girl that I loved and broke me.

Crazy right?

Some men would say this is a success story. Others would say I became the very thing I wanted to destroy.

I would say this end was inevitable. And there's no going back now. Heroes and Villains have the exact same origin story. Where do they diverge?

Let's learn from my story.

By 10 I was the smartest kid in town. Math whiz.

By 13 I was bullied, suicidal, and had crippling social anxiety.

I vowed one day everyone would love me and I'd get all the girls like the asshole men they loved so much.

By 18 I was Homecoming king, on my way to play college football, and on the path to becoming a surgeon.

I did everything they said I couldn't. I was always a good guy, but the pain from my childhood left a demon inside me like Anakin Skywalker. It was almost Episode III.

By 23 I was buff as hell and in med school. Everyone loved me and all the girls wanted me.

This was all I worked for a decade. I got my first taste of the fruits of my labor when I broke up with my first girlfriend of 7 years. She was an angel but that dark side I never knew was there saw its first spark.

I began to complete my mission. Body count racked up. But I ran into this girl who I never thought would fw me.

I fell in love near instantly. Angel on the outside. Turns out she was one of the girls I always despised. Found out slowly she was ran through and a born again virgin.

Turns out it was her turn to get married but the wall is undefeated.

The good guy in me tried to help her find the error in her ways. and let her find that husband that was not me.

However one day she suddenly left to "work on herself". I was relieved. Turns out I was still madly in love though.

She came back a few months later though and I took her back.

Turns out the truth was she left me to get fucked by the same guy that had a girlfriend the whole time they were "dating".

You never feel true pain until the first time you find out the girl you love gave her body up to another man.

Darth Vader was born.

I kept her around but cause couldn't let her go.

But I made my first Tinder account. 99+ likes later I finally got the validation I was looking for.

I strung her along (against my will) and tortured her for a few months. Constantly fighting my love and hate for her.

I returned to my mission. I fucked multiple women but it was never enough to heal the pain. I drove deeper into my goal of having all the women.

One day I was at a med school party with no intentions to mess with a women at all. My friend and I were with a group of med school girls. When it was time to drop me off one of the girls threw herself at me. I knew she just was being a ho, and I wanted to blow her off but she was one of the most uppity girls in the school and my ego told me to expose her for who she really was.

Red pill enlightenment was almost reached.

I brought her to my crib (didn't really sleep with her, just wanted the validation) but did not realize classmates were watching.

It got around to my girl in no time. She found out about my Tinder account too.

She broke down and started spitting out the same things I was when I found out she cheated on me.

I was sad at first, cause I loved her. I would never truly hurt her.

But deep down inside I felt liberated. I realized my story had come full circle.

I was the guy everyone loved and I hurt the same girl that would have rejected me before I became who I am today. I got the retribution I deserved.

She (and all the hoes) made me realize all I ever wanted was my dream girl, not all these hoes.

And I figured that out before I completely went insane. But little did I know I would never make the right choices again.

I felt like I was doing the right thing by fulfilling my prophecy and taking peoples girls and one-nighting women.

I felt like the hero. With a grand story to tell all the men struggling with their self-worth one day.

But I wasn't the hero. I became the villain.

I once thought this was the only way. And one day I'd be done with it for good.

But I was dead wrong.

I never felt so ashamed. I am no better than these people at this point. I'm my best self, but at the lowest point I've ever been in my life.

I realized I sacrificed everything, but at the cost of my grades, mental health, friends, and reputation.

I did not realize the damage I was causing. I thought I was reaching my goal.

But I completely lost the person I was. There's no way I can claim to be a good guy, a hero, ever again.

I'm not as strong as I thought I became. I'm still weak and a liar and cheater.

This is red pill gone wrong. Clouded by the darkness I always housed in me.

I'm 25 now. Red pill success story. But alone and ashamed. I don't know where to go from here. Because this is not who I want to be. Plus I still have so much hate in my heart. And my wound is still not healed.

And I will probably need serious therapy at this point.

Bros. Take the high road. The dark side of red pill is not worth it. This was never the story of the hero.

This was the true story of a true villain.

Women start messaging after I become employed from unemployed

queerfem · 30 November 2020 · Archived copy · Reddit

Bi guy here. Fairly average looking (above average if I shed weight, my weight keeps on fluctuating 10 kgs +-).

So throughout my late teenage life I was an introvert. I always viewed myself as a failure due to a combination of low self esteem and poverty (my peers were rich). However, despite my shit like confidence, I managed to secure an average job. Not very high paying, but then it helps boost my self confidence from nil to something. It is a decent job in a decent company. I was a Semi Neet Before I got this job after a lot of tribulations.

Ever since folks have come to know about my job, their reactions have changed. I met a childhood friend of mine, I suspected she always had a crush on me. When she realised that I had a job now, she opened up and said that she would like to date me now since I was a class peer and could manage her demands. Now, I was taken aback by this ridiculous attitude. Made me realise that a woman would leave you in a split second if you were to become poor or if your income would reduce. This shallowness made me feel repulsed from her. Now I realize as to why so many women have started connecting with me after refusing to even recognize my existence even though some has crushes on me (I knew it through our mutuals).

We are all worth our wallets to women.

Tifu by giving my girlfriend a fake scratch off winner.

Ludakrit · 17 October 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

[This story was rescued from deletion from the following link;

https://snew.github.io/r/tifu/comments/9oxtoe/tifu_by_giving_my_girlfriend_a_fake_scratch_off/]

This was 18 months ago. My gf of 8 months.

So I occasionally buy scratch offs and I seen a video on YouTube where they pranked a relative with fake scratch offs.

So I decided to do this to my gf for a bit of fun. I started buying real ones more often in the weeks before my prank when we were at the store together or she is in the car while I pop in for petrol I'd buy two and give her one to scratch off and I'd do the other, I made a point of saying we'll share any winnings.

So prank day comes, we are sitting in the car and I've just bought petrol and I come out with two scratch offs. One fake winner. One real.

Give my gf the fake winner and the real one. Tell her to scratch them off while I drive off. She scratches them off and obviously I am watching her in my periferal vision as I am driving, when she scratches of the winner there is a serious pause about 5 seconds and then she says, nope we didn't win anything.

I'm expecting celebration and got nothing so, I just kind of shocked say ok, and I continue to watch her in my periferal, she subtly slides the fake winner into her purse and without missing a beat acts completely normal. I do however notice she starts using her phone like crazy.

So that broke us up. Fun.

Tl;Dr bought my gf a fake winning scratch off for a bit of fun and she pretended not to win to keep the fake winnings for herself.

A narrow escape • r/TheRedPill

bitcoin-optimist · 11 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

TL;DR: Sister set me up on a date with her friend. Her friend had poked holes in condoms. Lucky escape. Sister knew and was in on it. When confronted, said, “it’s in your best interest to have a family”.

Background

I’m now 29, reaching 30. I recently got a job working for the government. Perks include job security, a decent pension and interesting work. I’m from a poor family but have done really well for myself. I have one sister.

Past happenings to friends, general media coverage, and personal experience turned me towards the red pill a few years ago. I’m by no means Adonis with 2% body fat and nor do I have multiple plates. However, nor am I a billy beta. I can stand up for myself, I have a stressful job, I lift, and was recently in an LTR. I have imbibed TRP concepts and principles and I’m still working on it. I have the type of personality that would rather go to jail than pay court mandated payments if I thought they were unfair.

AWALT

My sister and I don’t get along. We have a cordial relationship but that’s it.

As I’ve progressed in my career, she’s gotten more entitled. Why am I not paying for her spoilt kids school uniform? She spilled coffee on her laptop, why am I not buying her a new one. Groceries and rent are so expensive, could I help her out a bit? She had to put her holiday on her credit card and is now behind, can I make a payment? She needs new tires on her cars etc etc.

Now, I hate people who are entitled. The reason I’m well off is because while you were partying and getting pregnant at 16 and having abortions at 17, I was in a dark room studying thermodynamics. If she had asked nicely I would have said yes to some of those things. But she doesn’t so I tell her to sod off most of the time. Some of you will undoubtedly comment and say that’s not a red pill thing and I’m definitely billy beta for giving in sometimes. I don’t care. I’m the first to accept that I’m not 100% red pill and she is my sister after all. The point is I only do it when I feel like it.

Now she sets me up with her friend (Sally). Sally is like my sister, however, unlike my sister and her friends, Sally is not a single mother! Shock horror. I’ve had a stressful few weeks, moving, new job etc and my willpower is close to zero so I accept. Has anyone noticed that single mothers have a lot of single mother friends?

The date goes well; we end up back at hers. I take a condom out. Sally says, no, we can use one of mine and she takes one out of her dresser drawer. I shrug. Whatever. Now, here is where she fucks up. She starts explaining why we should use her condom rather than mine. I work in law, and I had just been to a workshop where it was highlighted how those that have something to hide generally speak and/or explain too much. But whatever, right? Then she hands it to me, still babbling on.

I take it in my hand but the wrapper is slick, not dry. I wipe my hand on the sheets and go to tear it open. Then something clicks. Somethings not right. She’s shaking at this point. I go to the sink and fill the condom up with water and sure enough there is a tiny hole at the end from which water is seeping out. She’s crying and saying she’s sorry and didn’t mean to. My head is full of thoughts zipping through at a 100mph. I leave.

Aftermath

The next day I confront my sister who acts shocked and says she can’t believe it. Somethings not right. I check her phone. Texts showing that she knew and was in on it. The kicker. A text that reads: “You’re a moron for not acting better!!!”

I’m ashamed to say I did not hold frame. I lost my shit. I screamed at her. She screamed back. Said her friend deserves a baby and a family. Called me selfish. I said she’s my sister. How can she put her friend’s ‘well-being’ over her own brothers? She said I didn't know what I wanted in life and it would be the best thing that ever happened to me.

I'm here licking my wounds. Mom's taken her side off course. I've had a narrow escape. Just sharing it so that it's therapeutic for me (it's quite recent and I'm still processing all of it) and that it may serve as a lesson for some of you.

AWALT.

Been paying exes student loans for years and need advice

6 points • 6 comments • submitted 5 months ago by Wr8theist to r/StudentLoans

Short history: when I was young and stupid, I co-signed a bunch of student loans for my then fiancé. We split and she refuses to pay. I didn't pay for a few months, but it started tanking my credit and hers, so I caved. I now pay the minimum payment every month.

She has never paid a dime. She still lives at home and doesn't work, so she doesn't care about her credit. I've paid around $12,000 and still owe almost $20,000.

Question 1: Do I have any grounds to sue her for anything? If I do, does it really matter if she doesn't have income?

Question 2: Should I start paying these down more aggressively? The interest rates range from 4.375 to 5.25. I have a mortgage and an IRA, so I'm not sure if I should put more money towards these or her loans. Obviously I'm paying my mortgage, but I could pay it off quicker.

Thank you!

Edit: I lived in PA when these loans were signed.

I asked my husband to open our relationship. He's been sleeping with transsexuals ever since and I don't know how to feel. (self.polyamory) submitted 17 hours ago by cassiesthrowaway

Please, I am NOT transphobic. I just don't know how to feel about this. Please read before down voting.

My [45] husband [49] and I opened our relationship a few months ago. Admittedly he was opposed to it initially, but I managed to convince him of the benefits and how it would allow us to explore our sexual fantasies safely. I wanted him to experience more women, because he lost his virginity to me and has been faithful ever since then (at least I believe so).

But it's lead to a very strange situation. We have been married since college, over 20 years, and in that time my husband has always been a very reserved person. He knows how to please me, but he was never a kinky person... He's romantic and we have had a healthy sex life, but he's never even shown an inkling of a kinky side.

So when we opened our relationship, I was expecting (or perhaps hoping?) he would try and find his kinky side with other women. I thought that maybe he was too afraid to open up to me. Turns out this is not the case, because literally less than a week of our relationship being open, he slept with this young transgirl (early 20s I think) without even attempting to hide it. He just acted normal and said it was "something different".

This was just the start. Every single week without fail, hell normally several times a week, he has brought a young transgirl to our house to sleep with them. No women at all. He just keeps sleeping with young trans girls (who always look like they are only just above legal age) in our bedroom.

The thing is, I have NEVER considered myself bigoted against people for their sexuality, but this has me SO CONFUSED about how to feel. He never showed any signs of attraction to transgirls, especially considering he's always been very conservative/reserved. I want to yell at him and say "STOP! WHY AREN'T YOU ATTRACTED TO WOMEN LIKE ME?" but I know that would be so hypocritical of me. I have been so upset by this I haven't even slept with anyone other than my husband since we opened our relationship.

I keep maintaining this facade about how great it is, and then find myself crying when he's gone. I start thinking that if he's not attracted to other women, then he's probably not even attracted to me.

Our children are also unsure how to feel about the entire ordeal. And.. I don't know what to tell them.

Please right now I need advice, I know I shouldn't be so judgmental but I am so confused so please don't hate me.

My girlfriend and I been together for 8 months. So a bit about ourselves, I graduated from a top 10 Public University, and I work at a great architecture firm in NYC, as a senior project architect. Because I know people will ask I make in total 135k a year. My girlfriend works as a software developer she went to a decent state school and works at a tech company as an engineer.

When we go out for dates, in the beginning, I used to pay all the time, now we do closer to 60:40. When it comes to salary, she specifically asked, I don't like to have that conversation but hey I thought, if we are going to one day be married than its important to know. When I told her, she got a bit shy about sharing hers, but I didn't mind. And my girlfriend prides herself on being a feminist so I didn't think anything of it. I thought she was worried she was going to embarrass me but I didn't care.

This is how things went down, I was in the living room working out, and she was on the phone with her sister. I was doing pushups and wasn't paying attention but it went like this. Her sister was going to leave DC to come to NYC, and she was like oh don't want to come to NYC. That dating here is a hellhole, this is when I started listening, and she said that she has to date down. She said "my name" is a sweet guy, but he doesn't do that well, he "only makes 130k I am surprised he wasn't living with roommates.." She went into other parts and then mentioned this isn't what she envisioned with life.

After she got off the phone I confronted her. First of all she gets angry for me saying that she deserves privacy. And I told her that was bs, that she talks about being open so let's talk. This thing is massively summarized we talked for over 6 hours and resulted in me leaving for my cousin's apartment.

Long story short: she told me that she loved me is happy with me. She then says its just that if I am going to judge you by 'societal norms' that we all know is out there that I am not doing that well. I got angry about all of this. I told her that I am doing great in my field, that her field pays more but that doesn't make her better than me. And that my title is much higher than her's that I actually manage a team of 10.

She starts going off on how computer science brings in a lot more talented people. But it doesn't matter that she doesn't want to have this conversation because it's hurting my male EGO.

I got angry and told her that my EGO is just fine, that being talked down to is fucked up. This leads to more back and forth. And then if she wants to compare me by 'societal standards for men', then I will compare her to societal standards for 'women.' That she isn't a catch by any means that does anyone really want a 30+ year old girlfriend.

She starts crying and insulting me more. Says that "she gave me a shot" and that I treat her like this?

I got even angrier and after this I just left. I don't know what to say. I am okay with dating a woman that makes more than me. Really I don't mind. But I hate that she thinks she is smarter/dating down being with me? That's messed up. Also too in our conversation she compared me to some of her ex's that had more money than me. And I can understand that if a girl is used to a guy paying for everything it can be a bit change of pace. I get that, look, I wish I made enough to where I could pay the bill without blinking. I wish I could. And I hope to one day. But the catch is these guys didn't even date date her. They hooked up a couple of times and they might have taken her to a couple of fancy restaurants. They weren't official.

I am sorry if this came off ranty. This fight happened yesterday. I am still in my cousin's apartment. My girlfriend has called me a couple of times and I haven't picked up. I don't know what to do. I feel like even if she does apologize, intrinsically she might just believe that I am inferior and she has to 'settle.' She might just say some things to stroke my ego and that's it.

At this point is this relationship basically dead? Is it even worth salvaging at this point? I know I said some mean things too, and if she was to apologize I would as well. I don't want to put anyone down, but at the same time the thought that she was being snobbish and looking down on me for my financial situation just really irks me. What do you guys suggest I do?

TL;Dr- my girlfriend and I had a fight about money. She was talking to her younger sister about dating and basically said that she is dating down being with me because she makes more money than me. We got into a really big fight and now I am at my cousin's apartment.

After an abusive relationship, I got a sex doll.

hitchhiker83 · 1 January 2022 · Archived copy · Reddit

Best purchase ever.

I got out of a relationship with an unemployed stoner with a trainwreck of a family, who blackmailed me with fake suicide thoughts and never paid a single bill while staying at my place for months. I learnt my lesson and bought a sex doll. No drama, no fights, perfect body, no more sleeping on the couch.

I still hook up with girls but I am no longer pressured by the need for sex.

Any similar experiences from other fellow redditors?

Hi guys need ur genuine suggestions. No trolls cheap comments plz.

I have been working in TCS for 4 yrs now. I joined as a process associate. I am dating my team leader since last 3 yrs. He helped very much throughout my journey in TCS. I was also promoted in every cycle all because of him, for that I will be always thankful to him in my life. Now I am also a team leader. However my feelings have been changed now. I have started liking my manager and I want to tell this to my BF. I know I will be judged for this as he helped me alot. People will also call think that I have used him for my career but I genuinely have guilt for him. I am planning to get married with my manager but how should I tell this to the team leader. Please suggest me something friend.

I want to thank you the red pill philosophy cause it's only a matter of beliefs that we never realise pull us back. Earlier as a teen I was a simp foolishly following asses, cause that's what I saw in the movies heroes kissing ass of heroines, in the games, magazines, everywhere I looked. Felt like.

Vallahjamaila · 26 October 2021 · Archived copy · Reddit

The purpose of life/young age is to woo girls only to look cool. And then I ran into red pill, realised the game is all rigged to blow, beta, simp, alpha and the 2000% truth even god couldn't deny that women are hypergamious, Ain't worth shit. Then I realised if I wasn't exposed to the mgtow , I would've believed in being a simp my whole life cause that's what I saw everywhere and now I know we are what we see and I see mgtow the truth. And the truth has set free now I know that I wasn't born to woo women

[NeedSupport] New to this sub - absolutely devastated and completely lost

19/9/18 UPDATE: https://www.reddit.com/r/survivinginfidelity/comments/9mpjlg/needsupport_im_surviving/

9/18/18 UPDATE: Thank you all for the support. It's so much to read and absorb. I'm still numb and in shock. I'm going to take some time for that to wear off before I consider my future. I've talked to my sister-in-law and she said my wife is a blubbering mess. Telling her she always knew this was going to come back to haunt her and that she had tried so hard over the years to make up for what she had done. They're trying to get her to go to a shrink, the same as my friends and family are trying to do for me. I haven't decided to stay in this world or not. I'm still thinking on it. I have no fear of dying, I've had a great life to this point. I have zero interest in any other life. A new life, a changed life, whatever. That doesn't appeal to me. I have to figure out if there is a path back to the life I had built with my wife and family. If there is, I'll stay. If not, I won't. Thank you again to everyone who took their own personal time to respond. I have read and thought about each and every response and will continue to do so. It's nice to think that the world is so cruel that a bunch of strangers wouldn't try to help someone they've never met. I'll post another update in the future. Thank you all again.

Original post:

I'm not new to reddit. This is a throw away account for obvious reasons. I usually use reddit to talk about grilling/smoking/bbq, football, and electric guitars and amps. I'm a 51yo man with a 51yo wife who I've been married to for 33 years. We have three adult children. Daughters 29 and 26 and a son 22.

My wife and I have had a very normal loving marriage for 33 years (actually 33 as of next month). Sure we've had ups and downs over the years like any long-term relationship but we don't go to bed mad and we're each other's best friends. I'm a hopeless romantic. She's less mushy about romance but loves when I make romantic gestures and I do all the time. Love letters/texts/emails. Surprise date nights to do something fun (last one recently was a couple's cooking class and we had a blast). Sex every week usually Saturday and Sunday. Happy home. No complaints at all from either of us.

Quick background on me. I had a single mom and do not know my biological father. My mother kept every detail of him a secret and took that secret to the grave with her. My wife and our children have always wondered about that. This year for my birthday one of my children bought me a DNA test from Ancestry. They said we could maybe discover something about my biological father. Before I took it all the kids decided they wanted to take one too since they're bloodline also comes from my unknown father.

When we got our test results they were bizarre to say the least. I'm sure some of you have guessed but my oldest two children are not mine. We each got our results separately but the kids had been talking among themselves before they shared with us so they asked if we could do a family dinner at our house and they all came over. Dinner was fine but they wanted to talk to us about something.

Then the bombshell. They said they compared results and that the oldest two children are not my kids. The youngest is. They asked if we had anything to tell them. I said of course not, there has to be a mistake. I looked over at my wife and knew in an instant there was no mistake. She had a look of terror on her face like I've never seen before. At once this calm level-headed wonderful woman I've been married to for 33 years screamed out some kind of gibberish then ran for the bedroom and locked the door.

We all tried to get her to come out but to no avail. We're all freaking out at this point. She immediately texts our phones and asks that we all leave her alone for a couple hours to compose herself and then reconvene at the table and she'll join us. We did as she requested but I'll tell you what, that 2 hours felt like a lifetime and my brain was on overload as to what the hell was going on. I still figured this had to be some kind of mistake. Of course the girls were mine. Whose else would they be? My wife and I weren't partiers or swingers. We're Disney channel people, not Cinemax.

She comes out at about the 2 hour mark and asks the kids if they could please go and that she needed to talk to me alone and that she'd be sure to let them know what's going on as soon as she can. They protested vehemently but respected her request and left saying they'll be back if they don't hear something soon. I'm sitting there just blown away at this point like this isn't real. Like I'm watching a movie except that I'm in the movie.

She then tells me something that has caused permanent change in me. I hope not permanent but it feels permanent. She looks me straight in the eyes and says _____(my name), I had an affair many years ago. It was with _____(one of our neighbors and friends from the same social circle at the time). It went on for about 4 years until I wised up and realized what a wonderful husband I had and that I needed to grow up and stop acting stupid. Then she put her hands on my cheeks to pull me in and still looking in my eyes said "you are my everything. I am your girl for life. I love you with all my heart. I did a very stupid and selfish thing many years ago. You did nothing wrong. You've been the best husband any woman could ever ask for and I hope we try to put this in perspective and recognize what a wonderful life we've had together and that we don't want this stupid, hurtful, mistake to ruin it." She then said she'd do whatever I wanted, answer any question, leave if I ask, but kept assuring me that I'm her everything and that once she realized how stupid she was being she's never even once thought about cheating on me for a second since it ended.

The man she cheated with is no longer alive. They didn't love each other but had convinced themselves that this sexual outlet from their marriages made them better spouses.

-What devastates me is that my daughters are not my biological children. They are also devastated. They want to know details about this man since he's their real father and that also kills me. They both assure me that I'm their father and they love me with all their hearts but we all know I'm not their father. The other man was. It's also worth noting that until this DNA test, my wife also never knew for sure.

-What devastates me is that the woman I held in the highest regard as far as love, respect, esteem, etc. carried on an affair for years. The woman that has loved me and honored me for decades also betrayed me.

-What devastates me is the question, was my whole adult life to this point a lie? Was my entire marriage a lie? Is nothing real in this world? She has been an amazing wife and partner. I've had ZERO complaints my entire _____ marriage, even when she was cheating.

-What devastates me is this man died a few years ago of cancer and that I can't go talk to him man to man and possibly punch his lights out.

-What devastates me is that I was her first and only (I had only 1 previous teenage awkward quickie in the back seat of a car with a former girlfriend before my wife but that was it for me). Now I find out she was having regular sex with this man for years. How can I get over that?

This all happened pretty recently. Next month is our 33rd anniversary and I just don't know what to do. I asked her to leave and she has been staying with her sister and her husband. She is absolutely devastated. So am I.

Everyone I've talked with about this says that I've had an amazing life with my wife, she's a great wife and mother, she made a horrible mistake when she was very young, and to not let this ruin us. I get that over and over and logically I know that's all true but my heart right now is not being logical.

I was really happy with my life. I loved my wife and children with all my heart. Can I ever get back to that state or has this revelation permanently altered the course of my life? I'm absolutely lost right now and honestly wish I was dead. I'm very seriously considering taking care of that. If I can't forgive her and forget this then I'm going to kill myself. I have no interest in living a different life then what we've had. I'm not that fond of the world anyway except for my family.

Thanks for reading.

Playing the game on easy mode

badcredit690 · 24 June 2019 · Archived copy · Reddit

I've given a lot of thought lately into potentially moving out of the country (maybe Eastern Europe) if not just for the better marriage/divorce laws to safely start a family, but I'm also aware that there are men out there who have moved to other spots like the Philippines and are much more successful "i'm a loser here but a god there". I've heard Rollo talk about this as "playing the game on easy mode" and is no buffer against their hypergamous instincts...fair enough, but I think there is something to be said that moving out of the country for better women/marriage (so long as you are a high value man) is going to be a more popular option in the days to come. I'm curious if anyone here has been successful or who knows someone who has had success in facilitating that transition, what country, how much money you needed to do it comfortably, what languages did you need to learn? It just seems like shit is never going to get better here and I'd like to start researching this possibility soon to start planning for a distant future.

Man accused of sexually assaulting a woman while she is in bed with his GF...

Ludakrit · 27 October 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

My best friend accused my boyfriend of sexual assault.

1,081 points • 350 comments • submitted 1 year ago * by gameoldtime to r/TwoXChromosomes

Here's the thing, though. The night she claims it happened, I was in bed next to her the entire time. We had gone out drinking, and I offered to share a bed with her so she wouldn't have to get an uber all the way home.

I woke up in the middle of the night to her having some kind of sex dream, as well as masturbating. I was so shocked that I just rolled away and pretended to be asleep until she stopped. I didn't mention it in the morning because it was such an awkward experience.

A few weeks later, my boyfriend broke down and revealed to me that she had texted him accusing him of sexually assaulting her while she slept (my boyfriend was in another room that night, and only entered the room while I was awake to kiss me goodnight).

I asked her about it, saying that I knew it hadn't happened and explaining what I woke up and saw. I told her that I believe that she believes what she is saying, but that I saw her having a dream and touching herself which is why she was confused. When we initially spoke, she told me she remembered almost nothing and that she thought I was probably right, that she had likely dreamed the assault.

Now, the story is different. We spoke again recently, and she says now that she remembers everything, that she had physical symptoms of assault, and that she is certain that he assaulted her. This is less than two weeks after our initial conversation. She is furious that I don't believe her (keep in mind, I never claimed she was lying, only that she was confusing a dream with reality), and she has cut me off from almost all forms of contact. She accused me of being a tease because I slept in bed with her, and told me that I'm not a true friend because I didn't leave my boyfriend after she accused him.

What do I do? I am a light sleeper, and I know nothing happened like what she's describing. I want to believe survivors like her, but she has no evidence, her story has changed multiple times, and again, I was IN BED WITH HER the entire time. My boyfriend, who was good friends with her before this, is completely devastated, as am I. I can't tell anyone in my life what happened, but our mutual friends have started to ask questions about why my best friend and I don't speak anymore.

Any advice, support, or even if you want to tell me I'm in the wrong, would be welcomed. I can't tell anyone but the internet about this. Please, please help me.

Edit: hi everyone, I appreciate all the help so much. I'm emotionally exhausted and having trouble responding to everyone, though I will continue to try. Thank you to whoever gave me gold, I feel a bit weird about it but I appreciate the gesture of confidence. I will update in the post itself if anything changes in my real-life situation.

Bought a house, wife lost her job a month after, then started cheating.

212 points • 85 comments • submitted 1 year ago by Brave_Jumper to r/confessions

Shortly a month after buying our house, my wife lost her job. She has been out of a job for 5 weeks. My best friend (we work together too) uses Tinder. By some phenomenal chance, he discovered her on it as well. He took a phone-shot of her picture and showed it to me. I couldn't believe it. It had our new furniture in the background of her selfie. I never snooped through her phone in the 3 years we've been together, but I had just cause. I got into her phone in the middle of the night and discovered that she's been with 4 different guys dating back only 2 weeks of her being unemployed. She's been disguising their names under girls names in her text messages.

I'm so pissed off I can't eat, sleep, nothing. I've been working 6 days a week, 10 hour shifts, I even contemplated getting a second job to make sure money was ok until she got a new job. Now I doubt she was ever even looking. She had been using her unemployment as a way to cheat on me while I worked my freaking ass off. She has been having sex in OUR house because one day after work I noticed the toilet seat was up and I ALWAYS put it down after using the toilet. So I know she has brought these men over to our house. Had sex in our bed.

I can't even go home. Its been about 13 hours since I found out and I'm filled with so much hurt and anger I want to puke. I don't know how to get myself out of this situation without completely destroying everything I've been trying to build for us. I want to beat the shit out of her. I want to leave her, I want to commit suicide on my front lawn. My life is a fucking lie and everything I've worked forward to is a fucking sham.

Her ex dumped her last year, she didn't throw away the bracelet he bought for her a year ago, she kept it on her to this day, yesterday she lost it , she cried alot about it ,what did she do, she went and bought the exact same bracelet, because she knows that she'll be upset about it in a year, and she's waiting for his birthday in January to send him congratulations and sniff if he misses him or not by his respond. The last time we talked, i got mad at her, told her in a moment of anger... that she is a weak person with a very low bar, if she tries to get back to a jealous person who dumped her twice, he doesn't know how to trust anyone, I told her that she is obsessed and too dependent and she needs to let go of him. She was offended and disappeared. I was angry with myself for talking like that, but I didn't apologize to her. She hasn't sent a message yet, but she follows me (enter my 'stories') , what can i do

What they don't tell you about Masculine Loneliness

Key-Basil254 · 4 May 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

Loneliness is often perceived as a feminine issue, portrayed in books, movies, and songs as a woman's struggle with isolation and disconnection from others. However, loneliness is not limited to gender, and men, too, experience the emotional toll of social isolation and the weight of loneliness on their mental well-being. Masculine loneliness is a complex issue rooted in social norms and gender expectations that discourage men from seeking help or expressing vulnerability. Here, we will explore the complexities of masculine loneliness, its causes and effects, and the ways in which men can overcome it.

The societal pressure to conform to traditional masculine norms is one of the primary sources of masculine loneliness. Men are expected to be self-sufficient, independent, and dominant, and expressing vulnerability or seeking help is often seen as a sign of weakness. Men are discouraged from forming close emotional bonds with others and are expected to rely on themselves for emotional support. This socialization leads to a sense of isolation and loneliness, as men struggle to navigate their emotional lives without support or validation from others.

The effects of masculine loneliness are profound and can negatively impact a man's mental health, physical health, and relationships. Long-term social isolation has been linked to an increased risk of depression, anxiety, and substance abuse. Men who are socially isolated may also experience physical health problems such as high blood pressure, heart disease, and sleep disorders. In addition, loneliness can cause strained relationships and poor social skills, further exacerbating the sense of isolation and disconnection.

To overcome masculine loneliness, men must first recognize and acknowledge its existence. Breaking down the societal norms that discourage men from seeking help or showing vulnerability is the first step in this process. Men must learn to be more comfortable with their emotions and communicate openly with others. Building strong, supportive relationships with friends, family, and partners can also help combat feelings of loneliness and isolation. Joining social groups, volunteering, or pursuing hobbies and interests can also provide opportunities for new connections and social support.

The burden of isolation that comes with masculine loneliness is a complex issue that must be addressed. Social norms and gender expectations that discourage men from seeking help or expressing vulnerability contribute to this problem, resulting in a serious threat to men's mental health and overall well-being.

The Seven Most Important Life Lessons for a Fulfillment

Key-Basil254 · 5 May 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

Life is a journey, a long and twisting road full of ups and downs, highs and lows, and a plethora of difficulties and chances. We experience multiple occurrences that put our resolve to the test, and we gain essential lessons that mold our character and establish our life along the way.

I will present the most significant life lessons learned from the world's most successful individuals that everyone should know. These teachings are based on personal experiences, observations, and insights from historical and contemporary figures.

Lesson 1: Be true to yourself

Being faithful to yourself is one of the most essential life skills. It entails being true, honest, and authentic in your ideas, feelings, and deeds. People frequently want to fit in or adapt to cultural norms, yet this can leave them feeling empty and dissatisfied. It is indispensable to accept your uniqueness, follow your hobbies, and live a life that is consistent with your beliefs and principles.

Lesson 2: Embrace failure

Failing is not the contrary of success, but rather an aspect of it. It is critical to view failure as a learning opportunity rather than allowing it to define you. Many successful people have overcome countless obstacles, and their endurance and grit have driven them to greater heights. Failure instills in us humility, toughness, and the value of perseverance.

Lesson 3: Practice gratitude

Gratitude is a powerful tool that enhances our well-being and fosters positive relationships. It's essential to appreciate the little things in life and express gratitude for the blessings we have. Research shows that practicing gratitude improves mental health, strengthens relationships, and enhances overall life satisfaction.

Lesson 4: Be kind to others

Kindness is a virtue that transcends all barriers of age, race, religion, and culture. It's essential to be kind to others, whether it's through a simple smile, a kind word, or a thoughtful gesture. Kindness creates a ripple effect, and it can inspire others to be kind and compassionate as well.

Lesson 5: Pursue lifelong learning

Learning is a lifelong process that enriches our minds and broadens our horizons. It's essential to pursue lifelong learning, whether it's through formal education, reading, or personal experiences. Learning enhances our creativity, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills and helps us adapt to the ever-changing world.

Lesson 6: Practice self-care

Self-care is essential for our well-being and helps us cope with stress and challenges. It's essential to prioritize self-care, whether it's through exercise, meditation, hobbies, or spending time with loved ones. Self-care enhances our mental and physical health and improves our overall quality of life.

Lesson 7: Embrace diversity

Diversity is a beautiful aspect of our society and should be celebrated and embraced. It's essential to respect and appreciate people from different backgrounds, cultures, and perspectives. Diversity enriches our lives, broadens our worldview, and fosters a sense of community and belonging.

I view these as a valuable force that will shape our character and existence. Being true to oneself, embracing failure, practicing gratitude, being kind to others, pursuing lifelong learning, practicing self-care, and embracing diversity are some of the most important life lessons that everyone should learn. These lessons enhance our well-being, foster positive relationships, and create a meaningful and fulfilling life journey.

A man should choose his wife wisely; beware of a woman who worships the devil and follows heresy, for a witch first praises the devil, then her husband, and in their marriage the devil will be her lover, which, as you should know, will inevitably lead to adultery.

quieromorir3 · 14 December 2025 · Archived copy · Reddit

Let me tell you my sad story. I started a relationship with a witch, and she cheated on me. You might not understand why unless you're spiritual, but choose wisely. Staying with a woman who worships idols or other beings is the worst thing you can do because her loyalty is always with them. And you could even consider physical adultery with these beings. They're made pacts with demons, so it's best to remain celibate. They think differently; their minds are filled with these beings. Imagine dedicating your time to a woman who worships, for example, Lucifer, who looks like another man, an angelic being. It's not for just any man because she'll always admire Lucifer, whether he's naked or not. It's adultery, and I'm not just talking about physical adultery.

Military Grade Hypergamy

Thanks for letting join the group first off. I think I have a lot to contribute, since I am on my 3rd marriage. Wish I had this knowledge 10 years, because if I did I would not have gotten married again. But this story I am about to tell you, came across my desk when I was in-between books. Those books were the "Rational Male" by Tomassi and "The Unplugged Alpha" By Richard Cooper. Let's get to it!

So my ex co-worker and fellow retired army officer, let's call her Dora. I haven't talked to Dora in about 3 or 4 years. She is 47 years and for her age she is let's say a solid 8 on the Hot Babe Scale. She retired from the army as a Major. Upon her retirement from the service she decided to start another career as a nurse. So, that means she is netting about 200K from her retirement and her nurse wages. She is married to regular guy who's a truck driver who has never made as much as her. Average looking guy nothing exciting to report about him. They've been married about 15 years with two children, the oldest of the children is not his child. So fast forward to 2023, Dora attends our HBCU Homecoming and runs to my friend Bishop. Bishop is a retired LTC, matter of fact he MC'd my promotion ceremony when I was promoted from Major to LTC back in 2020. So we are all in the same ROTC friend group from college. Bishop is a retired LTC, that now works for Amazon, he's fit, and nets about 300k annually. Charming guy and he's the type that I can't think of not one person that doesn't like him. So Dora and Bishop have known each other for over 20 years, but nothing more than classmates from ROTC. Bishop a divorcee, starting flirting with her on this particular homecoming and they started a serious of trysts. He was living in Alabama, he would fly out her on occasion. Also they would make rendezvous' in SC or NC.

I forgot to mention, this story was shared to me via Dora. So they have successful an open arrangement. In this instance it means it is open on his end and closed on her end, since she is no longer sleeping with her husband exclusively Bishop. So they decided to attend a gala at our school adjacently. Meaning she would go with her girlfriend, but they would sit at the same table with two people in between them, to throw off the scent so that no one would suspect anything. So her husband knows something is up. The university broadcasted the gala on their Youtube Channel. Husband take upon himself to watch the broadcast and its clear as day they were sitting front and center. A blind man could see their body language.

After this husband goes ape $hit crazy finds Bishop's number and starts to call and harass him. Also lashes out at Dora, proceeds to tell her kids and anybody that would listen. Dora reasoning on why she started _ucking Bishop was; her husband was not, handling business financially, not trying to improve himiself, and lazy. A prefect stage for her to go running to hop on another man's _ick. So the final straw for Bishop was when Husband called his brother. He proceeded to block her and never speak to her again.

So in 2025 Bishop marries another woman. Dora is distraught because she risked her marriage and lost it for him. Crazy part is she is glad the husband gone, but she basically an alpha widow for Bishop. If he calls her today she will with zero hesitation drop those panties in an instance.

Another red pill confirmation story bad_guy_steve · 8 November 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

I befriended some 20 years old girl recently from the village where I come from - let's call her A. We were drinking few times with some other people and we had small conversations in group of 3+ (I didn't really talk with her 1 vs 1). She also has cousin that is single mother of few years old baby and she is also 20 years old - let's call her B. Both girls are in 4-6/10 looks range depending on your preferences.

I met A this summer and we had few parties and she has interesting stories. She received for her birthday vibrator few years ago but she destroyed it. She has some shy chinese girl friend that is watching depraved shit like efukt etc. We were talking how women have it easier that they just lie down and moan and there were sparks in her eyes and she said 'yesss' then said she is studying but she said that if that didn't destroy her future she would love to be a prostitute and have sex all the time. I don't know how many sexual partners she had but she has mentioned at least 4 dudes. One wanted her to do shows on webcams where they would bang together. I told her that I read somewhere that best sex must be depraved and she said that probably yes because few weeks ago she had sex in public place during the evening(some city area where there's lots of tourists) and it was good. She also mentioned one story that she had gay friend and she once went back to her apartment and her boyfriend was banging with her gay friend and they ignored her and proceed to have sex. She was in some open relationship this summer and when she was drunk she grabbed my ass and told me she is going to rape me but stopped immediately and she acknowledged she is drunk, her guy from open relationship was 10m in front of us - but we were walking so he didn't see anything. She drinks, smokes, does soft drugs.

Two weeks ago we had small party and there was me, my friend and A and B. We had again some conversations about relationships etc and I told them that girl usually knows if she wants to fuck a guy within few seconds, B interrupted that it's usually love since first dicking. A agreed, then B proceeded that sex must be good otherwise they will break up or look for side dick. My friend who was cheated on few times got angry got that B girl 1:1 and they were talking and B said that if they were in relationship and sex was poor she would cheat on him like nothing. Then I told my friend, 'didn't I tell you? We are only seed and wallet for them, nothing else'. A and B didn't even react A just repeated what I said and there was poor realism in their face expression like that's nothing. A and B then were talking about anticonception - which is good to use. B giggled that her mother asked her recently if she has sex and she responded 'you know mom like everyone' and she had conversation about it with her mother. B also said she wasn't sure if she slept at all - did she have some side effects during the night after snorting white powder last evening or if she really had few hours of sleep - laughing. Single mothers are great.

A classic tale of regret

6 month later...divorcing my husband was a HUGE mistake :(

866 points • 184 comments • submitted 1 year ago by nancypants9999999999 to r/Divorce

This one is long, but worth it for everyone to read...

If I could give anyone a piece of advice for divorce it would be to not do it under normal circumstances. If your spouse is beating you or threatening you or your children then of course get out and fast.

In my case there was no abuse. We were together for 8 years that was mostly good and we have 4 kids. Right around 5 years I got a promotion at work and i got it in my head that my XH was dragging me down, or at least holding me back from more success and a better life. We never had a lot of money but with my promotion I was now making more than he was. I started working longer hours and at the same time his hours were cut so he was at home more. I really began to resent him because he was home and because he got to spend time with our kids. Most nights when I got home they were already getting ready for bed if not already sleeping. After a few months of my new job it was clear to me that things were not going well at home without me there. Some nights the dishes werent done when I got home or the kids hadnt eaten or whatever else I could think of to be mad at him about. It really didnt matter. He kept saying that he would try harder but that it was hard being home all the time. That always made me really mad.

For the next couple years things kept getting worse. My hours weren't any shorter and his were on and off fulltime. There was no convenient time for him to be working full time because of my hours, but we also needed the money. Whenever he would tell me that he could get extra hours I would always complain and the less hours he worked the more I complained that he wasnt bringing in enough money. Whenever he brought up the contradiction I would tell him that he needed to figure it out. I knew that it would bother him so I started saying that a lot and for everything that I could. I really started to resent him and I pulled away from him. I knew that it was hurting him but I didnt care. If he didnt want to be hurt then he would at least try to make me happy. I used that same thing to justify when I started to talk to another guy at work. I thought he was just a friend but talking at work turned into texting at home and then pictures and videos and then trying to sneak some alone time with him. I knew that it was wrong but it made me feel so alive, and my husband had not made me feel like that in years. I was tired of being unhappy and I was doing this for me. The worst was the night that I came home at a reasonable time and found that he had cleaned the whole house, cooked the whole family dinner and picked out a movie for all of us to watch together. This would have made me swoon a couple years earlier, but that night I couldn't even look at him and I pretended to be sick. I spent the rest of the night in bed while he waited on me and checked on me and even made me different food and brought it to me in bed. It made me feel terrible, and then it made me angry that he made me feel that way and by the end of the night I was texting with the other guy.

Over the next month or two from that night it did not matter what he did. He was wrong just for breathing most days. He would get so upset with how I was treating him and I would just wait and egg him on into losing it because i knew it would happen eventually. After most of the fights we had he would apologize for whatever I told him he did wrong if there even was something, but I never did. I would usually find a way to make him feel even worse. I knew that I was right because he was wrong and that was all that mattered to me. I even pretended that I didnt care when he found out about my relationship with the guy from work. It really destroyed me inside to see him holding back tears, but I wasnt going to let him see that. He was at his weakest and that was when I chose to tell him that I wanted a divorce. I could almost hear his heart shattering inside his chest. He talked and fought and said that we could work through it together. I really wasnt interested in fixing our marriage, but i mostly ended things with the other guy but only because i knew i could get it back if I wanted it.

I could see that he was trying and occasionally i would let him know, but for the most part I kept being a huge bitch to him for any and all reasons that I could think of. I'm not sure how much more the man could have done to make me happy besides finding a job that paid enough for me to not have to work at all. He said that he was looking, but looking and finding are 2 different things. It was around this time that I discovered this group and a few others. I started posting things about him, from my perspective only, and I got so much positive feedback for how I was feeling that I knew I was right. The more I posted the more validation that I got. It wasn't just me who knew that XH wasn't worth keeping around. I had the whole internet telling me how terrible he is. I started saying awful things to him and even outright ignoring him. I was so confident with mine and everyone elses opinion that I contacted a lawyer and within a couple weeks had filed for divorce. I continued to use this site and a couple others to validate my feelings and for encouragement to go through with it, and finally it was done.

It went pretty smoothly. XH didnt ask for much besides to not get divorced and to try to work it all out. I didnt care about that though. He was broken, but I was free. I could do whatever I wanted without having to feel any guilt or answer to anybody. It was an amazing feeling of freedom. It didnt last long though. In the first month after he moved out I missed garbage day 3 times. There was also rarely a single clean dish and the laundry sat in piles so long that I had to start doing the sniff test to see if it could be worn again. I also never saw my kids more miserable. My oldest had seen some of the messages from the other guy months earlier and she knew that XH still wanted to try to work it out. It didnt take her long to stop talking to me at all except to say that she wanted to go to XH house. The others all told me that they wanted to live with XH too. I did my best to try to make them happy, but I ended up just buying them toys all the time and the happiness only lasted minutes. I also was having a lot of trouble with work. Being alone I couldnt work all those extra hours that I was expected to. I finally gave in and starting calling XH to watch the kids. He would always come over as soon as he could and he always asked me if i needed anything. When I would get home I would find clean dishes and laundry and even dinner sometimes. He would never say too much after I got home. He would just say to call him if i needed anything and leave. One night he took out the garbage and brought it to the curb because it was garbage night and I forgot again. He always looked so sad when it was time to go.

Finally after a couple months my friends convinced me to go out on a date. It was for dinner and a movie and I was excited and hopeful, but at dinner I started getting a feeling of overwhelming guilt. It got so bad that I ended up not even going to the movie. A week and about a million tears later I was on a therapists couch. I told her everything that had happened starting with the promotion that I got at work. She did not agree with me or with any of the encouragment to divorce that I got. I ended up in her office 2 and sometimes 3 times a week, and the more that I talked to prove that I was right, the more that I started to see how wrong I was. It was truely heartbreaking. I dont know if I cried as much in my whole life as i did in the first month in her office. After about 2 thousand dollars of therapy sessions I learned that my XH had his faults, but I figured out that mine were so much worse. I did so many awful things and said awful things that I wouldnt want to be with me, but he did. I still remember him asking me in the meeting with the lawyer to please not go through with it. I did go through with it though, and then later I bragged on here how great it felt. I was so wrong, and now I can see it.

A couple weeks ago I went outside with him when he was leaving the house. I asked him about getting back together. When he looked at me his eyes were full of tears and a couple went down his cheeks. He told me that he didnt know if he could. He said that the pain has been too much for too long and that if we got back together that I might just turn around and do it to him again. He said that he always thought that I would realize how much he loved me and stop up until i signed the divorce papers and let out a big over exaggerated sigh of relief. He said that hurt him more than anything else and that he doesnt know if he can ever trust me again. I dont blame him. I destroyed a man who looking back was a great husband. I deprived my kids of having a great father in the house with them and I took his kids away from him. And me, the one who pushed for the divorce expecting happiness and a life of freedom, spend all my free time sitting at home or sitting on a therapists couch.

Please dont just take the advice of anyone on this site or any other about getting a divorce. If your marriage is bad look at yourself first and see if you can make changes. This is advice for men and women. Getting divorced is not fun. Being divorced is not fun. And seeing your husband broken and your children never happy because of your actions is the most painful experience that I can imagine.

I wish all of you well and hope that you will give your marriages a second chance

Took my wife to Bali for our 10th wedding anniversary and found her cheating on me

34 points • 11 comments • submitted 1 year ago by lmg_bsb to r/MGTOW

"Took my wife to Bali for our 10th wedding anniversary and found her cheating on me"

"I wrote my wife an email explaining that her actions were NOT okay and that I would no longer communicate with her and would wait for her to get back to America. She spent the next few days begging me to understand that she needs to "have fun"

"I thought I was completely over it all but then she sent me an email begging to come back home but that the man she is currently with also wants to move to the area so they can continue to carry on a relationship. She says she loves multiple people and she needs to see us both"

"I'm technically married, but my wife is living in another country and in another relationship. Every day I wake up I am completely lost, confused, and hurt. It also hurts because she acts like she's not responsible for any of this. She keeps saying "my hands are tied" about how she feels. Like it's not in her control and that she somehow loves multiple people out of nowhere."

"I feel like it just keeps getting worse for me. This relationship was the worst decision of my life."

Mom is a narcissist obsessed with showing off in tiny spandex shorts, but I'm the asshole gastronaut88 · 11 November 2021 · Archived copy · Reddit

Pretty self explanatory. My mom is divorced and lives for attention from guys at the mall. She has recently found she is most successful when wearing tiny spandex booty shorts, which are normalized now because of 'athletic wear'.

I personally think its weird and gross that my mom wears these all the times for attention. The shorts she wears are clearly made for the gym. Some of them are so short you can see her butt cheeks. I find this shameful and embarrassing but whenever I've posted about it my posts get deleted or locked and I'm accused of slut shaming.

It's not just the way she dresses but the fact I have brought this up to her and she dismissed it completely. Her need for attention and validation is more important than my feelings.

One chick even made a whole thread about what a POS I am for slut shaming my own mom.

Mass swinger party • r/MGTOW

bitcoin-optimist · 10 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

[-] Aldebaran333 23 points 8 hours ago*

I once was invited to a swinger party (as an observer) because I did not believe any man could watch his wife fucked. So...there I stood watching dudes watch their wives be savaged one after another in trains on hotel beds. They took the whole floor of a Hampton Inn and it went room to room. Security at both floor entrances. Easy a hundred couples. Every bed full, 1, 2 or 3 women on them and surrounded by men taking turns.

Yes there are and yes it is beyond sickening. Way way beyond. That's when I learned evil does actually exist, not just in movies, and it originates on the left of the spectrum where depravity and degeneracy dwells.

↓ Only 2/3 wore rubbers and the reek was smellable from the stairwell before getting to the floor. Burning tires, fish and sweat, in a locker room. It was so bad I left back to my car, covered my shirt with body spray especially by my neck so it would mask the reek, and went back in. Sat and talked with the couples in the lounge area trying to understand their points of view, get a read on the psychology and backgrounds. I viewed the whole thing as like a science project.

I walked away convinced it is a power thing for the women mostly and they found absolutely weak men. The funniest thing is the women kept inviting me calling me "their virgin" and the men were intimidated by me about 75% of them not able to make eye contact, some even mimicking my body mannerisms. There's some queerness happening with a good portion of them I sensed. Many of them were 2nd and 3rd "marriages". A handful were ones where the guy was in control and the woman was weak doing it more for him. Ten percent or so that way.

Women will take every inch of freedom you allot them, have no sense of loyalty beyond the mental restrictions they perceive they have, and even then loyalty is not founded on ideals the way a man translates. This is also why they should never be in power positions. Their loyalty is to their ovaries and ego, biologically and no further. Mitigated only by society and strong men.

Relationship Experiences Survey—Research Participants Needed

MTSUResearcher · 16 June 2021 · Archived copy · Reddit

Purpose: We are conducting a research project designed to help us evaluate your experiences. We are going to ask you about your experience with relationships, and about other people's experiences that you might have heard about. We will also ask you about the properties of your experiences and how they made you feel. We will also ask you about some things you might believe, and some questions about your personality. The survey could take up to an hour to complete, depending on your experiences. This survey is also completely anonymous and does not require any personal, identifying information.

The population we are trying to procure responses from is known as incels. People tend to describe this group without getting their perspective. This is a chance to contribute with your own voice. We want to understand the experience for you from your perspective. However, if you would not put yourself into this category, your responses on the survey are still important.

Who are we recruiting? We are looking for people with a wide range of experiences and beliefs with relationships and women. Men over the age of 18 are invited to participate.

Risks and Benefits: We don't anticipate any risks besides some of the questions possibly making you uncomfortable. There are no benefits to you for participating besides learning about the research.

Compensation: There is no compensation for participation.

Contact information: If you have questions, you can contact one of the researchers (Cameron Whitener, crw7i@mtmail.mtsu.edu; or Dr. William Langston, Psychology Professor, Middle Tennessee State University, william.langston@mtsu.edu, 615/898-5489).

If you'd like to participate, please click the link below:

I'm in my 20s and I need some advice

thesuccessfuladrian · 1 February 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm 22, soon to be 23. I lived in a small city in Romania and 2 years ago I found about red pill and improved, started to bang more girls that year than in my whole years and I met this girl on tinder, she originally is from the same city, we lived kinda close to each other but she lives in UK for like 5 years. Luckily she had only one boyfriend so her notch is like 1, maybe 2 or 3 that she might not have told me about but my intuition is telling me that she had 1. We spent an amazing time that year for the duration of her holiday (2/3 months) and we kept in touch. Last year she came again in holiday and spent another amazing time together, so since July 2022 since now we've been dating and as she lives in UK and with all the brexit, we gave it a shot so I will come here and try to apply for a visa in november. Last month my application was rejected and beside entering a civil partnership, marrying or moving to another country, there are no other options. Also she told me that she doesn't care how many girls I had, she is very please with the way I pound her and recently she told me that I raised her standards on men a lot since she met me. I decided to join her here because I've seen the most wifey material in her from all the woman that I've dated. She has a burning desire for him, she's scared to loose me, she can cook, she knows about red pill and I have a lot of stuff to talk about with her. She would accept threesomes with other girls. The thing is she has a few more months till she graduates college and I can't stay here so I have to move to another country and make money. Since I want to start a business and make millions, should I try to find a way for the both of us that would make the relationship work or should I tell her that I have to go, I want to be excellent and I can't stay here. We can keep in touch and after you finish college, you can come join me and see for a while how things work out or just tell her that it's over and I have to go?

I 20m love her 19f and feel peace with her, but I'm unsure if I'm ready for this life or holding myself back from a version of life I haven't lived yet. met 2024 oct

Vegetable_Whole_2967 · 2 April 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm really stuck and I'm trying to explain everything as honestly as I can because I genuinely don't understand what's going on with me anymore. I'm 20, and my past has a big role in all of this. I was overweight, got bullied, didn't have much attention from girls, and felt socially behind and kind of deprived. I spent a lot of time alone, and slowly I built myself through grind, gym, fat loss (lost around 50–60 kg), self-improvement, mindset videos, even some red-pill type content, all that stuff. That gave me discipline and ambition, but it also made me emotionally detached and kind of avoidant. I developed this identity of being self-made, independent, not needing anyone, and somewhere in that I also developed this hunger for validation that I never got earlier. I've never really talked to many girls, never explored that side properly, so there's always been this curiosity or urge to experience that part of life. At the same time, I was also getting into some level of spirituality and introspection, but even that feels disconnected now because I don't fully know what I believe or what I want.

Then she came into my life, and I didn't ask for it, I wasn't looking for love, and I didn't even properly understand what love is. She's very simple, basic in a way, not very ambitious or exposed, doesn't really know much about self-improvement or big life goals, but she's extremely pure, loyal, loving, and emotionally available. She accepted me completely. When I got to know her, she touched something inside me that I didn't even know existed. She made me feel emotions, softness, happiness, like my inner child was being seen and loved. That's something I had never experienced before. But even then, I don't think I was ever fully "in" mentally. For almost a year I was with her but kind of like an uncommitted boyfriend, I didn't fully accept her publicly, I kept options open in my head, and I was always somewhere between staying and leaving.

Then we broke up for around two months, and during that time I actually became my peak version again, very focused, disciplined, almost like my old grind mode came back fully. She went through a really bad time emotionally during that period, and later I came back thinking we can fix things, grow together, and do it properly this time. She had also improved and matured a bit. But even after coming back, I never made a clear internal decision, and the same pattern started again. Getting close, feeling love, then suddenly thinking about leaving, then guilt, then attachment.

Right now my biggest confusion is I don't even know what I'm feeling is love or just attachment and obligation. I care about her, I feel happy with her, I feel peace when I'm with her, and she genuinely loves me a lot. But at the same time, I still have this other side of me that wants to explore, talk to other girls, experience being desired, approach, get approached, live that life I never lived. I don't know if that's my real desire or just my past trauma and lack of validation trying to compensate. Sometimes I feel like I fell for her because of her love, her emotional pressure, her hurt, and my guilt, not because I consciously chose her. And then I question myself if I'm being unfair to my "younger self" who wanted a different kind of life, different kind of girl, more exposure, more experiences.

There's also a lot of guilt involved. She loves me deeply, we've shared everything, and I feel responsible for her emotionally. I don't want to hurt her again, and I don't want to be the kind of person who stays half-hearted or leaves after getting so close. But at the same time, I'm scared that if I stay without being fully sure, I'll hurt her even more later. And if I leave, I feel like I'll regret it forever thinking I lost something pure and real and that I didn't try enough.

Another big issue is my state keeps changing everything. When I'm with her or talking to her, I feel love, connection, and I want to stay. When I'm alone, I start thinking about exploring, freedom, and whether I'm missing out. When I'm anxious or low, everything feels like pressure and I just want to escape. Recently my routine has also gone to shit—bad sleep, bad food, no productivity—which is making my mind even more unstable and confused. I also feel like if I go back to my old disciplined, ambitious version, it might awaken that "explorer/ego" side again and push me away from her.

I also don't think I've ever really developed a clear idea of what I want in love, relationships, or life. I never thought about it deeply, never exposed myself enough socially, and suddenly I'm in something real without knowing if I'm even ready for it. That's what's tearing me apart. I feel like I'm living between two worlds and I can't fully choose either.

So my main questions are: how do I know if what I feel is actual love or just attachment, guilt, and comfort? How do I know if I genuinely want to stay with her or if I should leave and explore and develop myself more? And how do I make a decision that I won't regret later, because right now it feels like both staying and leaving will hurt in different ways and I'm unable to get a stable answer from myself.

Also, I want to be fair to her side and not make this sound one-sided. She is genuinely a very loving, pure, and loyal person. She doesn't play games, she doesn't have an options mindset, and she has been very consistent with her feelings for me. Even after everything, she has stayed, tried to understand me, and has been willing to grow. She doesn't really have big ambitions or exposure like me, but she is emotionally stable, caring, and values love and relationship deeply. I think she wants something simple, real, and long-term. Compared to her, I feel like I'm the unstable one who keeps going back and forth. She gives clarity and certainty, while I bring confusion and doubt into the relationship. That's also why I feel guilty sometimes, because I know she deserves someone who is fully sure, and I'm not able to be that consistently.

Also, another thing I've been struggling to admit honestly is that somewhere inside me I feel a mismatch in lifestyle and exposure. I sometimes feel like I want a more "classy" or intellectually aligned girl, someone who is into the same things as me—like deeper conversations, psychology, internet culture, creative or intellectual interests, someone who has lived a similar kind of inner or external life. And when I look at her, she is very simple, not very exposed to these things, doesn't really have those interests or that kind of depth in the way I define it, and that creates a gap in my head. I hate that I even think like this because I know she's a genuinely good person and she loves me in a very real way, but still this thought comes and makes me question everything. At the same time, I also don't even know if I consciously want any specific type of girl or even a relationship right now. If someone asks me what I want, I don't have a clear answer. It feels like I just want freedom—to live, explore, meet people, experience things I never got to experience, and not feel tied to a fixed identity like "boyfriend" yet. Because of my past where I lacked attention and validation, I still feel like I haven't lived that part of life fully, and maybe I want that. But the problem is I'm already emotionally attached to her, I care about her, I feel happiness with her, and that makes it impossible to just detach and go live that life freely. So I feel stuck between two versions of myself—one that wants love, peace, and her, and another that wants exploration, alignment, and a different kind of life or partner—and I genuinely don't know which one is my real self. Sometimes I even question whether I actually love her or if it's attachment, comfort, guilt, and the fact that she loved me first and I grew into it. And this constant comparison, confusion, and inability to fully accept or fully leave is what's mentally exhausting me and making me feel like I'm living in between two worlds without being able to commit to either.

A Challenge: How Many 'Good Women' Versus 'Good Men' Do You Know ?

bitcoin-optimist · 28 April 2019 · Archived copy · Reddit

As an experiment, today I setup two new sub-reddits. One called /r/WhereAreTheGoodWomen and the other /r/WhereAreTheGoodMen. The idea I think is pretty self-explanatory: post stories of good men in the latter and examples of good women in the former. After a few months the number of posts alone should act as an indicator of what the real story is.

A nice perk of this is it praises the kinds of behavior we all admire in others. For women who are lacking in this area (like the ones showcased here in /r/TheRedPillStories) they finally will have women to look up to and might hopefully aspire to be better. Post your stories there if you have any. It will be interesting to see if /r/WhereAreTheGoodWomen stays empty or if it fills up as quickly as this one has.

Cheers!

A Tale of a Good Wife

Long post with pictures in links.

TL:DR Even a good wife can and will sink a good husband. Marriage is a monstrous spending spree. Wife's decisions are threatening to wipe out hubby financially.

I'm going to veer a little off the beaten path with this post. I will share a little bit about an actual good woman. She is the wife of a good friend. Let's call her Mary.

Mary has been married to a friend of mine for over 25 years, and has been with him for about 28 years. They have four sons. They emigrated from Eastern Europe about fifteen years ago to North America.

Mary's husband is quite the guy. There is very little that can be thrown at him that he can't figure out. He is proficient at most things a man can do with his hands. He is an incredible welder, and a trained electrical engineer. He can weld, is a mechanic who can (and has) take a car completely apart and reassemble it (engine and bodywork repair), can install and repair plumbing, and can do virtually anything construction related. He owned a large and very successful construction company on their home country.

He decided to leave and move his family away, due to safety concerns. Things were so bad that whenever his wife was leaving home with their first child, he would stay in the phone with her until she got to her destination Ditto for her trip back home. He carried a firearm on him at all times for his personal safety. Where he was concerned, all the money in the world couldn't compensate for the potential loss of his family, so he handed his company to a family member, packed up his wife and son, and moved. They had their second son shortly after moving here.

After being an employee for a few years in our current location, he got tired of shovelling employers' crap, and became self employed. He didn't speak much English initially, so this made things even more challenging for him as an employee. He had a job that paid him excellent OT, but worked fifteen hour shifts, and was often out of town. Sometimes, he was able to make it home on Saturday afternoons (after a road trip of at least three hours), and head out at 4am on Monday. He'd wind up just sleeping after getting home, and had to go to bed early the next day. As such, he didn't get to spend much time with his family.

His two year old second son didn't know who he was and would cry and run away, when he came home. When he couldn't make it home his wife would drive the family out to where he was for the weekend Even then, he was only able to spend a couple of hours with them on Saturday and Sunday, due to exhaustion, and the family needing to leave early enough on Sunday for the drive back.

He makes a lot less money now, being self employed. He however, has been able to provide a living for his family, running a business from home. He is able to spend more time with his family, and has been able to successfully bond with his kids. His busy business times are in the spring and the fall.

His wife Mary, is an excellent wife to him, and mother to their children. She looks after the home, and after the kids and him. His meals are always ready, without question. They run the home business together. He does the physical work, while she handles the finances, paperwork, inventory, scheduling clients AND manages the household. He's a horndog who needs to hit it at least twice a day. He said that she turns him down only ten percent of the time. This is unheard of in our part of the world, especially after 28 years together. They make an exceptional team. Their business is funded and supported by their HELOC. They had a significant amount of equity. Hubby did fall into the trap of drawing on it to purchase toys (RV, boat, offroading SUVs, quads, and motorcycles), and paying interest only, because the rate and payments were very low. More on this later.

They had some marital tension a few years ago. Well, hubby seemed to be extremely adept at keeping her pregnant. He worked hard (and worked her hard, heh), and played hard. On his days off, he was always off with his buddies on activities. Offroading, quadding, kite surfing, skiing, and motorcycling are some of his hobbies. Mary was always home with the kids. She always had a kid who was too young to be left alone or with his older siblings. As such, she never had a day off.

They eventually reached a compromise. Two to three times a year, he'd send her on a vacation. This did wonders for their marriage. Her first trip was brutal on him. The youngest was 18 months old at the time, and he was in full daddy duties. He looked shell-shocked by the first evening, when I stopped by. Handling four kids on his own for the first time ever was quite the task I went over every afternoon to look after the little ones and handle feeding and keeping them occupied, while he worked.

When Mary got back from her trip, she was extremely unsettled. It bothered her immensely that she was away from her family. She vowed that she would never leave again without taking at least one kid with her. To date, she hasn't again, travelled alone. I was quite impressed. This is serious dedication to her family.

Mary and hubby took a trip to another state, a few Christmases ago, and spent a couple of weeks with some friends. The location is not densely populated, and is very close to water. The weather was exceptionally nice there, compared to the brutal winter the rest of us locals were having. They absolutely fell in love with the place, and decided they wanted to move there.

Now, before I continue, I will mention that his wife was banging him far more than usual, around this time. In a two week period, I was at their place three times. By 8.45 pm, Mary would come over to us, and march her husband off to to bed. I mentioned this, because it prefaced a plethora of catastrophic decisions they made very shortly afterwards.

Having never been married, I'm no expert, but I've deduced that wives will use sex to sway their husbands into making decisions. If they have to resort to this tactic, the decisions may not be the best ones to make and execute. Perhaps some of you gents with experience will be gracious enough to confirm this.

Not long afterwards, hubby announced to me that they were going to move there. They were planning to build a house there, and were proceeding right away. They were going to literally build the house themselves. He has the expertise. They tore down and rebuilt their entire current house themselves. They rented an excavator, dug and doubled the size of their house, then repeated the process on the original half. They carted out the dirt and carted on all materials themselves.

I asked why, and the response was that the weather was much nicer there. Now, I was thinking, "what the fuck is buddy talking about???"

"What are you going to do for work?", I asked. Oh, we'll figure something out. I immediately knew this was going to be bad. Those were not his words. They were Mary's words and he was going all in with her.

The goal is to build, move, then sell the current house. The current house will require extensive renovation before it can be sold. There are a lot of heavy equipment, materials, and personal belongings that will need to be uninstalled, packed up, moved, unpacked, and reinstalled. This alone will take up an entire summer.

Let's quickly recap. They have a business and home in our city. They've rebuilt their home and renovated parts of it several times. He's always ripping something out and rebuilding it. I've assisted with several projects over the years.

We tore down their fence and installed a new one. It's a little higher, but small modifications could have been made to the old one instead of an entire rebuild. Wife's idea.

We drained and dug out a pond in their backyard. We rebuilt the pond and added a fountain with a recirculating stream. There was nothing wrong with the old pond. The wife wanted to beautify the place, and have a waterfall and it's soothing sounds instead of just a regular pond. It was used that summer and the next, then never again.

He built little gardens all around the backyard, front yard, and side of the property for flowers, vegetable, and other plants for his wife, one summer.

He rebuilt his rear patio another summer and topped it with a tin roof. This blocked the light, so he had to take off the tin and install clear plastic.

We dug up his backyard to install paving stones. He attached a plow to his quad, and we used shovels. It was the goofiest task ever. He had downtime during the summer. He refused to rent equipment for any of this work, opting for manual labor. Strange, old fashioned mindset. He wouldn't spend $200 to rent an auger for the fence, or a bobcat and trailer to move the dirt, preferring to spend at least three days digging six foot holes for fence posts for the fence. He had no problem though, buying a quad for $8500, then a second for 8k.

We shovelled a lot of dirt into his 2,000 pound trailer overloaded it, then had to shovel more than half of the dirt out. I stopped visiting when there was daylight, after this. I would stop and case the joint from a distance, if I got there while there was still light out. If I saw them hand-bombing heavy items, I'd turn around and head home. I'm all for projects, but goddamn.

Projects completed this year:

He'd just replaced their washer and dryer. He had to rip apart a chunk of his basement (several walls, disassemble and disassemble his sauna) to swap the machines then put everything back together.

He'd just built a new shed, in his backyard. It was no small task.

He'd just ripped apart a room in the back of his house and reconfigured it to house some equipment. It took him two weeks.

Hubby and Mary had minivan they bought, new, five years ago. Very well appointed. A year ago, four years into payments, they needed to put a hitch on it. They went to get a hitch installed, and returned instead with a new version of the same van at $52k. All options except power third row seats this time. It came with a hitch! Yay! In the year they had it, all rotors, calipers, and pads, a control arm, and a wheel bearing had to be replaced. The tranny failed and had to be rebuilt. The engine had to be rebuilt. They thoroughly regretted trading in their old, rock solid reliable van.

The issues were covered under warranty, but labor at dealership ~~rape~~ rates wasn't. Hubby wound up repairing everything out of pocket, at a mutual mechanic friend's shop. Labor was heavily discounted, but all were hefty expenses. The couple decided to dump the van, and buy an older Toyota SUV for $9k. They sold the van for $23k. Please review the numbers in this and the above paragraph again. Yes, those numbers are correct.

After all these, he bought a new property and is doing it all again. This is a wife's doing. I will address this again in another writeup

Let's get back on track.

In less than a week after mentioning moving plans, hubby announced that they had purchased some land. They bought two acres for the cost of a quarter of an acre in our city. Sight unseen (the pictures were beautiful though, they said!). Anyone who has purchased a house knows that due diligence is absolutely crucial. You can't un-fuck any screw ups made. I only know one couple that hasn't become excited, "fallen in love" with a property, then rushed in to close on it.

To make the total purchase payment, they maxed out their HELOC, and got two new lines of credit for 60k. They needed about 15k from the LOCs to pay for the land. They then proceeded to buy equipment: 38 foot (approx) bumper pull trailer for shelter during the build, a 10k pound dump trailer, a 14k pound flatbed trailer, a tractor, a backhoe attachment, and lots of building materials. Little things add up, and we're not talking about small purchases here. On their first trip out, the flatbed was loaded seven feet high, maxed out, and the truck's bed was fully loaded. The front end was almost in the air.

Equipment Purchases

After the spending spree, they drove out there to take a look at the land, and drop off the materials. They made several more shuttle trips to drop things off.

The land they purchased was literally a tract of land off the highway. No utilities. There is a small stream between the highway and their property. Over forty trees around the entrance. No driveway. They needed to have an electrical pole installed and buy a transformer. $15k tag. They needed a septic tank installed. Another $15k tag. If you're not panicking yet, I was. They needed to dig a well also, but this is extremely cheap, relative to everything else.

Having priced out electric and the septic tank, Mary was excited, and told hubby "let's schedule both and get them done". Hubby pleaded with her stating that he couldn't carry any more expenses, or he would fall over and die. He asked that they conclude for the year (spring 2018), make some money to stay solvent, and recover then resume in a couple of years. She agreed.

Mary suggested that they head over to the new property and hang out in the camper for the summer. Things went downhill. Very quickly. As they didn't have an outhouse, hubby used the backhoe to dig a hole, which they covered with two boards. This was their toilet.

Although they there were there for vacation, they may as well have cut down some of the trees in the driveway path. Just to stay busy. In the blink of an eye, they were all working sixteen hours a day. The trees were chopped. About 400 tons of rock was purchased and dumped to raise the grade to go over the stream. 20 steel I-Beams were purchased to build a bridge over the stream. Several trailer loads of concrete were purchased, mixed and poured to build the supports for the I-beams. Very tall grass across the entire property had to be cut. Trenches had to be dug for plumbing and electrical.

Construction Pictures

Electric pole and transformer were installed. Hubby hooked up and ran some lines to power their three freezers and fridge. The electric inspector visited, and pooped a brick, because work had been performed without a permit. He unhooked the wires, padlocked the breaker box at the pole, and gave them a single extension cord they could use. Every time Mary used the microwave, the breaker would pop. She'd have to send one of the boys across the property to the highway to reset the breaker.

The inspector then proceeded to bend hubby over. Hubby had made a bulk purchase of black electric wires at a very cheap price. His plan was simply to color the wires at the ends, and pull them through the trench conduit. This is a method that works just fine, especially with the portions of the cable that'll be buried. The inspector said absolutely not! Everything MUST be installed to code. All wires had to be the correct color, end to end, meaning hubby was now required to buy new wires at several dollars a foot X hundreds of feet X each of the four extra colors the code mandated. Two acre property.

The inspector also mandated also said that only an electrician licensed in that state would be permitted to perform any work. An electrician was called in, who surveyed everything then got to work. He was scheduled for ten eight to ten hours a day for two weeks, plus the cost of materials (including the color coded wires). When asked for a ballpark on the total cost, his response was "everything will be on the final bill". I literally choked when the story was narrated to me.

When heading back home in the fall, their truck's transmission broke three hours outside the city. Another mutual friend went out to tow them back into town. The transmission was a $5500 repair.

There's still an incredible amount of work left to be completed, along with even more staggering costs. Only the utilities have been installed, so far. The actual work on the house is yet to begin.

They returned home broke and spent. All LOCs were maxed out. All credit cards (at least 14 with 20k minimum on each) were full and at 28% interest. They'd missed some payments, hence the staggering rate. They've spiked their total debt from about 400k/500k to about a million, give or give one or two hundred. They borrowed a few hundred dollars from a neighbor for groceries for a couple of weeks when they got back this past fall.

To add to it all, their winter business season was bad. Very bad. Fifty percent drop in revenue and profit vs last year. They have more customers now, but their revenue has been dropping steadily over the last three years. "They've" decided to to halt all construction on the new property next year.

They have however, taken off to spend a month there, through this Christmas and the new year. While there, hubby has a lot of not so little little things to build. There'll be no construction next year, Mary promised. They'd already agreed to no construction this year, but it just happened. That was an agreement, not a promise. This time, it's a promise. She's currently plying him with sex, hoping to stave off his realization that maybe she'd rushed things and kinda sorta fucked them both.

Hubby called in about $35k in debts his some of his friends owe him. They all more or less told him to fuck off. It absolutely crushed him to learn that a lot of his friends don't give a crap about him, and that he'd been extremely foolish with his money. Just the loans, though. The new property was not a poor decision.

Interest rates have risen. Interest payments alone are straining them to the bone. Add in living expenses and they're being strangled. Income taxes are due next quarter. Four sons to feed, two of whom are teenagers with teenage appetites. Hubby is in a quiet panic. He lamented all the frivolous purchases he made. He didn't think interest rates would rise, after being low for years. They are walking on a sharp blade. One sneeze, and they'll be chopped up like Nusret Gocke.

I learned to keep my mouth shut, early on. I mentioned to them, an item they're going to need in a year. I had access to an excellent source and was going to buy it for them. I mentioned it to Mary, and she cut me off. "We don't need it". Yes, you fucking do. I approached hubby and he responded "Mary said we don't need it, so we don't need it". I tried to reason with him, but he started getting pissed, and tuned me out. Okay, then. I'll shut my yap. Seven months later, he asked me for it, because they apparently need it. Well, no shit. My source is no longer available. It's why I pushed in the spring.

To conclude, Mary is an exceptional wife. This does not change the fact that the end result is more or less the same: impending financing ruin.

The wife will wind up doing the thinking, and making dangerous decisions for the family. The hamster and the kitty will bring the husband in line. The debt will keep him in line.

Let this be a lesson to any man who thinks he's "in love", and wants to get married.

Edit: As many have pointed out, this situation is a failure on both husband and wife, with the husband taking the majority of the blame for the hole in which they now find themselves. He should have been responsible for the finances, should not have loaned money out to friends, and should have been able to say no to his wife, and resist temptations to spend in manners that would greatly endanger their finances and family. Marriage is not the cause, as I originally stated.

All comments and input are greatly appreciated.

Finally Happening

My (38M) wife (37F) and I have been going through an extremely rough time since June. She was having an emotional affair with someone she plays softball with and I got trickle-truthed to hell for 3 months. She finally went no contact with him on October 15th (that I know of), and we were "seeing where we are" for the time being.

I have only asked one thing from her during all of this: stop talking to and seeing this other person while we are figuring out where our marriage is. She has apologized for hurting me, but not about the affair actually happening; she still does not regret doing it to this day. Wednesday evening she told me she wanted to go to a happy hour that her old boss was putting on - the man she was seeing works at the same company. I asked her if he would be there and she said "probably"... and that she wouldn't leave if he showed up. Well, he showed up, and she didn't get home until 11:45pm. She told me that she didn't like who she was with me and that she wanted a divorce ... but we could "wait until after the holidays" to file.

I'm tired. Tired of all the lies, tired of doing everything while she lays in bed all evening. She has been mentally checked out for a long time and I have had to pick up the slack. I have made a lot of changes in the past 4 months ... I have lost 30 lbs, am more attentive, do the dishes, cook, clean, do the yard work, give the kids baths, etc.. All things that a father/husband should be doing, but it isn't enough somehow. I want to understand how someone can just switch their feelings off after 13 years, to treat me with such dispassion and disrespect. She told me that even if I could guarantee that these changes are permanent, she still couldn't promise that she could give me what I need. I need my partner back ... it used to be us against the world; she was my lobster and I was hers. What the f*ck happened to that?

I will be seeing a lawyer Monday and start working on getting my name off of the house. This sucks ... I can't stand the thought of seeing her with someone else, it makes me literally sick to my stomach. I don't know if I have the strength to do this.

I started a few albums on Imgur but I kind of left it half-done because there were sooooooooo many screenshots to upload that I just gave up. This is only like 50% of the total, the rest I will keep uploading.

Women on basic decency.

What women think of men's height.

Women's preferences in men's personalities.

What women think of their looksmatches (like fat women about fat men).

Women on racial preferences.

What women want.

For women looks are everything.

Female pedophiles (they keep popping up).

MORE female pedophiles.

Women on cuckoldry.

Women about promiscuity.

Women about fidelity.

Women about infidelity.

Women on fidelity and cheating.

Women on loyalty.

What women think of men's penis size.

If the guy is hot it is just flirting, but if the guy is ugly it is sexual harassment.

How to approach a woman, apparently.

Women's thoughts on rape.

Hey, do you want to get depressed?

Decency? Nah.

Not saying she got it because a woman | Wonder if a man gets treated the same.

Policy & Procedures

I recently hired a new employee for my team. Everyone thinks she is a great addition, and she is clearly very talented as demonstrated in her interviews.

The problem came up during on-boarding when we supplied her with her company laptop. She said she would need it configured in a Linux based operating system because her religion does not allow use of Apple or Microsoft owned operating systems. We only currently have hardware configurations for MacOS/Windows and our expectation was that she will use Windows along with the rest of our team.

She says that she can fulfill all job duties without Windows and I am inclined to believe her but corporate policy dictates WINDOWS and my management is not on board with her request for Linux.

What actions can either (1) I take as a manager to protect her rights and get upper management onboard with her religion or (2) I take against her with management for failing to fulfill her job duties?

I've never come across any situation like this and am completely confounded as to how I should handle this.

UPDATE: After many meetings yesterday with management, HR, legal, and IT we decided to give her a shot. IT is working to come up with a configuration for her that we will also make available to other employees who want to use it.

HR and Legal felt that although she is able to request accommodations for a sincerely held religious belief, this would have been an undue hardship to the company and it would be ok for us to deny her request. But ultimately we decided that she can still fulfill job requirements without Windows!

That's pretty much it. Thank you for all the helpful advice Reddit!

Some girls can be bought

Dongcon · 25 March 2024 · Archived copy · Reddit

Kind of 2 things that I want to address in this story.

So I workout a lot, 6-7 days a weeeek at a local gym where another young girl in her mid twenties frequents. She's bubbly, attractive, great body, and out spoken. She's a master of virtue signalling and working hard to become a "influencer" fitness model.

The more time I got to know this chick, the more I could see that what she said and what she would do didn't match at all.

This was a girl that would openly talk about respecting others, having healthy relationships In monogamy, eating healty and working hard towards your goals.

My intuition from the start (thanks to redpill) told me this girl is full of it, and that she's an absolute snake.

Over the course of the next few months I discovered she has an eating disorder, (how she maintains her skinny physique) as well as she's a chronic smoker, but not your typical smoker, that type that hits tabbacco and weed in a bong. I don't know what you call it, but it's extremely harsh and leople often lose a ton of weight if they some weed/tabbacoo that way.

I have a college background in exercise science, so it was really easy to see that she has no idea how to train, yet she's selling programs/coaching online.

I pretty much figured her out that her "fitness" is all just a sham. She was born with a decent butt, that she can play off like she worked hard for it, but actually maintains her physique with drug use and an eating disorder. Sad, really.

Okay, now she always acts all innocent and looking for monogamy, and she was interested in me, so I dated her briefly, slept with her and rejected her because I knew something was up.

That's where she spilled all the beans. She had 4 other dudes on the go, and insulted my height (5'8) which she used to say she likes shorter men 🤔. She's hoes all be the same.

Fast forward another month an a much older buddy of mine wanted to see her naked, so this fuckin simp straight up asked her for nudes in exchange he buys her 2 Pairs of shoes.... And she fuckin did it. LOL.

Now, my buddy is a mega simp. That's some weak shit. Imagine paying 200+$ for some skank that gives it away for frees nudes. And I saw them, hey weren't even good shot. And hey, this angel girl can be bought.

Hope y'all enjoyed

This is how women really see ethics. Brutal.

Novel_Arugula6548 · 8 February 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

Straight from the horse's mouth, I found a treasure-trove of information from an old post. But... to look down on ethics and being nurturing as "low standards" and "easy to have" has really caused me to feel demoralized.

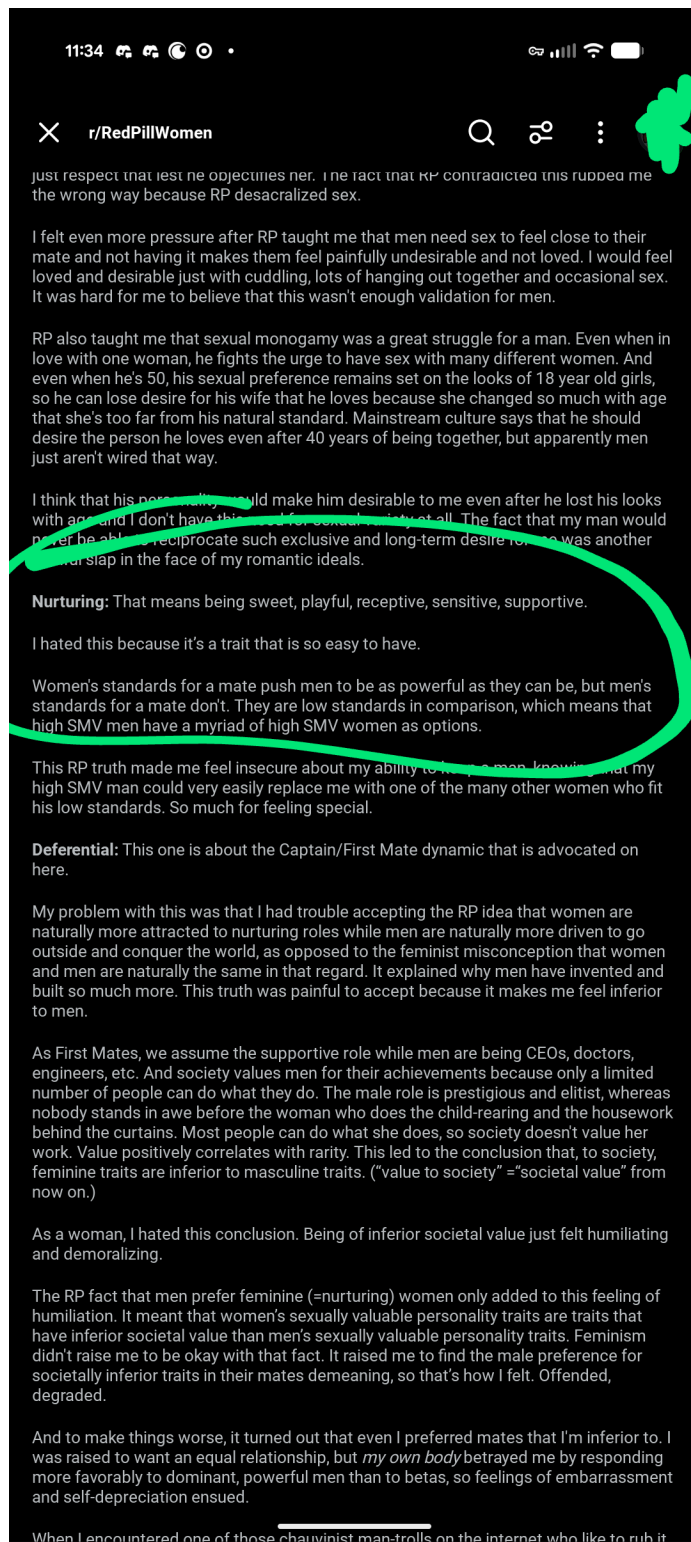

Rather than see an ethical and moral person as a high standard, high value thing, it's seen as weak. What? It's pinheaded. Men trying to be powerful is, in fact, unethical and leads to Donald Trump -- can't they see that? They claim to hate Trump and then fuck guys trying to be powerful? What?

Elsewhere in the post she says how women prefer driven, ambitious, confident, intelligent (?) men who make her feel safe and how she's so pissed that men want her to be ethical!? How disgusting and low value it is to be moral (???). What?!

I've been exposed to the red pill long ago, but only from other men trying to crack the code. Getting the full reality straight from the source is sending me back into a depression and the cycles of grief all over again (not just from this post). The situation is even more bizarre and worse than even I could have imagined, even after already knowing much of red pill ideology from the perspective of men trying to reverse engineer things.

She also goes on to say how she was raised feminist but her body "betrayed her" by being attracted to unethical men seeking power, and how most leaders of feminism are really just women who wish they could be men (penis envy) and how most of the doctrine is actually wrong.

One of the biggest problems we face as a species is that our women view morality and ethics as repulsive or low value, and seem to value only power-seeking. And in fact, they themselves want to seek power and be wanted for their financial ambition rather than for being nurturing or fertile. But why should anyone want someone who chases power? Those things are negative traits -- and it was upon realizing this: that this one difference of value was completely opposite between myself and women that I realized I was truly doomed.

Friend got ragdolled in a wrestling match in front of his GF

Leading-Educator-692 · 15 April 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

I've got two friends who couldn't be more different: one's a 230 lb shredded competitive bodybuilder, the other's a 300 lb fat dude. Total opposites in every way.

A couple months ago we were all a bit drunk, and the conversation turned into this dumb debate about who would win in a fight. Big fat guy vs Shredded guy. We started egging them on, joking around like idiots, and next thing you know they're actually wrestling right there in front of everyone.

Yeah, the bodybuilder absolutely manhandled the fat dude and wiped the floor with him, pretty much exactly like 99% of us thought it would go. It was brutal but hilarious. We were all cracking up, nobody took it seriously at all. Just classic drunk guy stuff.

But here's the wild part: The fat dude's girlfriend was also right there watching that. She saw her man get tossed around like a ragdoll while the muscle guy was flexing and laughing about it.

Fast forward to now... she broke up with him out of nowhere and started hitting on the muscle guy. Coincidence? I don't think so.

Maybe seeing her man get beaten in a fight made her think he was weak, so she lost all interest and respect for him. Or maybe she was into the shredded dude the whole time and we just never noticed the signs. This is kinda fucked up and I don't get how girl' brains operate sometimes. Good news is we're all still friends, nobody stole anybody's girl, but damn that's humiliating. If it was me I'd be depressed and my self-esteem would be wrecked for good.

What do you guys think? Has anyone seen something like this play out before?

Is it just me and the area that I live in, or does it seem like women just want a sugar daddy? That sugar daddy can be a man, but more often then not, it's the state they want to be Daddy.

After all, the state has the power to force men to pay ungodly amounts of child support.

So it's no wonder that marriages last five years, just long enough to get that spousal support money.

Reading the articles in this sub I wanted to make sure that we are being balanced. Today I setup another sub-reddit called /r/WhereAreTheGoodWomen. The goal is to post articles of women who deserve praise. The idea being for women who are lacking in this area finally will have something to look up to and hopefully aspire to be better. Post your stories there if you have any. It will be interesting to see if the sub-reddit stays empty or if it fills up as quickly as this one has. Cheers!

Woman loses attraction to boyfriend because someone else was richer • r/MGTOW

bitcoin-optimist · 10 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

Is it wrong for me [23F] to feel upset about my boyfriends [25M] rich cousin?

Me and my boyfriend have been dating for the past 2 years. Last night was the first time I met his cousin who came to visit us. I should clarify, my boyfriend and I live together and both work for a living but we are struggling financially with student loans, rent and bills.

When my boyfriend's cousin arrived, he drove a really expensive Mercedes to pick us up. Until that point I had no idea his cousin was rich. Then I started asking him what he does and he explained that he owns many properties and a few businesses. At this point I began to feel upset about our situation.

When we went to a restaurant, his cousin chose a really expensive place and paid for our meals afterwards. When we were driving home I mentioned that we are struggling to pay rent in a joking manner and he wrote a check for us as we were getting out. I nearly cried.

Going back inside our apartment I couldn't help but feeling upset that I wasn't dating his cousin. I kept imagining what life would be like not having to worry about money and being with him. I know this is very unfair but I felt my boyfriend was inferior to him that night. Am I a terrible person for feeling this way? Can anyone else relate?

What are some signs shes hiding her past/putting up a fake “good girl” persona?

Ok_Tutor_6513 · 18 January 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

We all know the nature of a lot of western women these days. So what are some subtle not so obvious signs that she may be hiding her promiscuous past? I've seen so many guys date a girl I know from the past (high school, college etc) thinking they found a gem when in reality they know nothing about her past and think she's a good girl when in reality that wasn't the case. I don't want to be like one of those. One major flaw in my logic I've noticed is that I used to think a girls lack of social media presence is a sign of not falling for the western trap (which I do believe it is), but I've come to the realization that a lot of the promiscuous women I've known in the past have all deleted every trace of their old social media and made new ones where they put on this facade. Usually with a bible quote in their bio etc and almost always never post to further make it believable when in reality that's not what she was like and the poor guy only thinks she's good because she completely wiped her entire old social media presence.

Reminder about /r/TheRedPillStories rules

bitcoin-optimist · 4 March 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

Howdy gang,

No one wants to look through rules, I get that, but I have noticed people are posting links to other manosphere subs while not including the original source of the material. There are only a few rules here. So it shouldn't be too hard to follow. I am going to be a bit more aggressive on enforcing this one:

submitting to /r/TheRedPillStories

Formatting

Articles from big MSM websites should be titled:

MSM-SOURCE: Article title

Example:

NY Post: NYC woman accused of holding online 'date' hostage for $100K in twisted kidnapping, torture scheme

Comments found on Reddit or other social media sites should be titled as so:

Article title • r/(name of sub) or Imgur or Facebook, etc Example:

Woman lies for years saying her husband raped her daughters then has the nerve to ask "why he didn't fight the accusations harder if he was innocent" • /r/iamatotalpieceofshit

The rest of the submission rules:

Only post real-world stories of women engaging in behavior that causes men to become "red-pilled" (no commentary threads) This sub-reddit is intended to help expose the wider public to why men red-pill.

Please use <http://archive.fo> and/or <http://archive.org> to post links from reddit and other websites. No brigading or harassment. Direct links to reddit posts that call for intimidation or violence in any form will be deleted. Use your judgment, upload high quality material. This means no promoting your Youtube channel with text-to-speech spam; or promoting your social-media platform on Reddit or elsewhere by obfuscating the original source of the material. Message the mod teams to get permission if you want to link your Youtube channel / social media. You get three chances. After that you will be banned.

If you guys have any issues let me know and we'll get it sorted.

Cheers, have a good weekend guys!

80-20 rule

mitesh7719 · 24 January 2022 · Archived copy · Reddit

I swear to Jesus, I am no misogynist. But would like to know from open minded people, that I heard women date the top guys in prime, later settle for normal/boring guys for financial reasons. While the top muscle hunks get all women, nice guys don't even get bare attention. Now I know you might've made your mind where these questions are coming from. But I have changed school 12 times due to job transfer of pops in whole n.c.r. and tell you what I've witnessed, my personal experience in all these 12 different classes with strength of 40-50 students. Don't get me wrong, the girls always chased the guy, who was outspoken, group leader, drove bullet, it didn't matter he was class topper or not, but his group had all the girls. Where what I witnessed. Even if not so famous guys tried to talk with girls even friendly conversation. These girls acted like these guys were hitting on them or were trying to get in their group or whatever might be the reason etc. But showed attitude as if these guys were untouchables. Man o man. Now don't go firing bullets on me. I am open every opinion, I am all ears, just don't start off with political or brainwashed kid stuff. I just want to know the other side of story that what girls think and the reasons for acting that way. I only know the one side of story. Feel free to express. Redpill since 2020

Did i mess up for speaking the truth?(Story time)

Disastrous-Rock-2283 · 1 April 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

So there's my guy friend i shared some tea with him i.e. my ex(his friend) got caught on multiple cheating how i know this? This is bcz my ex's cousin is my friend she spilled the entire tea, also his cousin just told both the girls that he is cheating on them and yeah i was having convo with her and i asked her to do that why i told her to tell both the girls he is cheating on them???? Because i got cheated by him as well he is a big big manipulator habitual liar and what not he played me he was full of lust and now he's playing these two girlies, i did that bcz i wanted to save these girls from what i went thru, and I'm happy that both the girlies brokeup with him and they'll work on themselves my only concern was those girls and im glad that they chose the right thing.

as a tea i spilled all this to my guy friend since he is friends with my ex then I'm not sure if he is just defending his friend or not.

He said that was none of ur business to tell those girls bcz u ruined their relationship??

Also he says that i have not moved on from him and I'm interested in his love life but man it was never about him it was about them girls???

Then he said u told these girls about him because you wanted a revenge??? REVENGE FOR WHAT? I MOVED ON LONG AGO AND THAT RELATIONSHIP WAS ONLY HUMILIATION WHY WOULD I?

There i said him men will always glorify cheating he says no i dont support cheating.. but ur pov says u think of him a victim and not the girls? Isn't it?

Well we ended the convo it was bit too rough i did not expect this from him he's a nice guy but my friend's theory is that this guy has crush on u and since i mentioned my ex it just disappointed him.

Bustle just dropped an article painting red pill men as the villains who “ruin” their girlfriends. We watched the full thing + clips from Louis Theroux’s manosphere doc and broke it down.

Women admitting the changes in their partners... but never taking any responsibility? Classic.

Full reaction here 📺

What do you think — is the manosphere the problem, or are modern dating expectations the real issue?

Is this for real? Is this a joke?

IsthisaJoke666 · 22 January 2020 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm 32 and rarely use the internet (I miss the 90s and most internet space is toxic and I do not tolerate it). Male. 7/10.

I'm new to memes, TRP, purple pill, pickup, etc. I hate Facebook and social media. I'm too busy living my life. I say this because I just found out that men are actually having a hard time with women and it blows my mind. I'm posting here because I'm in a hotel with nothing to do for the rest of the night and I heard someone talking I'm the lobby early about "the red pill". I couldn't actually believe it.

Shit isn't hard. Clean yourself up. Shave, shower, good haircut, nice fitting clothes (don't look like a wigger) play sports/lift weights to give you a reasonably attractive body (don't need to be shredded, just not a fat slob or skinny beotch).

Don't put up with women's games. Don't take their shit. Show them who's boss when necessary but don't be a psycho about it. Have a sense of humor. Have quality character. Be fun/amusing to be around (aka have a personality). Be a COOL person to be around. No one likes a weirdo.

For god sake bend over and FUCK the woman, don't beg her for sex.

Am I missing something here? Sex is easy and natural. If you people need to join online communities and have in depth discussions on how to do one of the most common things on earth, you're hopelessly lost.

Spend less time online and more time in the real world DOING what you're talking about. You'll have better results. Women are people and just like how you wouldn't want to be around weirdos (male or female) neither do they. Go become the person EVERYONE would want to hang with and women will become so easy you won't have to even try.

The first step is re-acclimating to society and actually surrounding yourself with people. Basically get off the internet.

Smartphones and high-speed internet killed society. Life was better with dialup. You actually had to interact with people on a daily basis. Get off the damn phone/comp and go chat it up with some young chick and Badda-bing fuck her brains out. This shit isn't that hard. Is this thread a joke? Am I missing something?

Anyone who wants to help out, please just go into any thread you think is important on /r/MGTOW or elsewhere and backup the link on <http://archive.org> and/or on <http://archive.is>. Once you are done please just drop a comment in the thread that you archived the discussion so no one else wastes time doing the same thing.

Here is an example thread of how to go about it:

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPillStories/comments/9etsw1/6_month_laterdivorcing_my_husband_was_a_huge/

Many of these stories carry life lessons that can help other young men avoid similar mistakes. Please help out if you have a few spare seconds.

Thanks!

Found on r/ self

I can't do it. I just can't. I have no idea what I did wrong but, I clearly I did do something. I've been dating her for 10 years and known her since i was a kid. We had moved in together, we were soulmates. I waited so long to get married because, I made a promise I would be in a stable position at my job so we could start a family. I did everything I could for her.

We were to be married 2 weeks ago. I was at the altar waiting for her. She never came. She disappeared. Her family knew and didn't say a thing. They all watched as i waited for her to come. When they found her gone, everyone looked at me. Can you imagine the shame, the humiliation I felt at that moment? I cried, I fucking broke down and cried like a baby in my dads arms.

I went home and she had already gone. She had clearly planned this in advance. Everything was gone. No note, no nothing. Her family weren't talking to us either. They cut us out. They were in on it. They always hated me. They always said I wasn't good enough for her...

I can't get over it. I can't. I was supposed to be on my Honeymoon this week. I was supposed to be having the time of my life with my wife. Now I'm sleeping alone in the dark. I've been drinkin all day, everyday. I just want the pain to stop. I can't go on like this.

I loved her, I loved her for more then anything. She was my life, my best friend. I don't know what to do but,I just cant go on it hurts too bad.

Ex-girlfriends ruined me. Need some advice please.

bitcoin-optimist · 8 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

Found on /r/mgtow

I live in the UK and am a pretty intelligent guy. I usually am the sort of person that is mentally strong and keeps my own inner battles to myself, but there is really only so much a person can take before it is too much.

I don't want to get into the details too much but women have destroyed me so much that I have been negatively effected in a number of ways. I think I might have PTSD, I'm unbearably stressed, angry, isolated, poor, and have tried but so far am incapable to do anything to help myself completely on my own. I won't get into the details but atm going to see a psychologist isn't an option either.

I experienced years of abuse, emotional and physical, from one LTR that no doubt had something like bipolar disorder, borderline personality disorder, or antisocial personality disorder, which lead to basically me living isolated with just her and being abused in all the common ways that happen from such a girl. (As bad as it gets, way way way more than just verbal stuff or threats), from this LTR I lost all my money, friends and familial connections.

Even after this I wasn't red pillled, I had not heard the term AWALT, and I (which is quiet logical to a blue pillled person) believed it was just due to the clear psychotic nature of that one girl. So I was getting back onto my feet and eventually started dating, I got into another relationship with a different girl who I thought was much better, much kinder and generally thought I wouldn't experience the same problems (and I didn't experience the SAME ones but, AWALT) we eventually started living together, a little while into this, I became exposed to her hidden medias, finding out she was cheating with numerous men the entire time. Absolutely remorseless.

Like I said I'm not getting into the details so you'll just have to take my word for it that they did many more terrible things to me besides the ones I have mentioned, some which are still actively ruining my life like haunting ghosts that won't disappear.

I have absolutely no desire to ever risk such situations again and realize that my problems ultimately were caused because I was blue pillled, lied to all my life by the media,family, society, etc, like almost all other young men, so in that sense I am now completely MGTOW, but the damage is done, how can I clear my mind from all these issues? When I sleep I have stressful and angry conversations and imaginings playing out in my head all night and morning, which continue throughout the day whenever I'm not totally distracted. Many pf these are based on hateful thoughts that really disgust me and I wish would stop. This goes on and on, it's so bad that sometimes when I'm alone, even trying to enjoy a relaxing shower, I burst out in anger saying a few words I feel like saying to one person or another. I find it extremely hard or impossible to do productive work, there are one or two avenues for this open to me that are solitary work I can do, I tried many times but I find now that unless I am doing something to help cope, I just spiral downward way too quickly, and I'm generally unable to be productive or creative at all no matter how much time I try to dedicate to it. It is hard even for me to focus or remain present at all before going off on these loops. I am also sort of at the mercy of time at the moment waiting on some things.

Ways I am coping include working out and running daily, watching tv shows or playing video games, and basically waiting on certain things to play out that are either possibly bad, or other things which provide hope, neither of which I can speed up. I feel like I have been patient so long that it is just way too much.

When it comes to giving advice that involves going out, seeing friends, making new ones, etc, I am sorry to say that a lot of these options aren't really possibilities for me right now.

I am really just looking for advice on easy things that will help?

I am making sure to do all these every day: (I have a list)

Keep hygenic and do chores, like showering/washing clothes/cleaning

Exercise every day

Go for a run every day

Eating healthy

Reading every day

I am also trying to pray and meditate (limited success on that one) every day

Are there any other simple things I can add to this list that will help? Thanks

Got herpes from lying GF - AWALT • r/MGTOW

bitcoin-optimist · 8 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

Found on /r/mgtow

Short story because I'm too frustrated to type out all the deatails

Long-term girlfriend broke up with me- typical cute, "not that type of girl impression". A year later she begs me for weeks to take her back. Says she was only with 1 guy 1 time and she used a condom, and I take her back because it was a fairly good relationship and why not give it a chance.

Commence sex without a condom, now I have herpes. Turns out it wasn't just 1 guy 1 time, she was pretty much getting railed by chad the entire year, and she's STILL talking to him despite saying that he was absolutely terrible and hasn't seen him since January (I looked on her phone because I saw something suspicious over her shoulder). We talk about it and the reason she wants me back now because he "wasn't nice to her" and "didn't listen to her talk" and now that she had "time alone to find herself" she realizes that I'm what she wants.

here's the link to the interview

It's insane to me that she decided to go in to porn without telling her boyfriend of 5 FUCKING YEARS. What's more insane is how people in the comment section defends her by saying 'OH IT'S HER BODY IT'S HER CHOICE' wut? It would be acceptable if she break up with him before deciding to get fucked by dozens of strangers no? and also these delusional cunts in the comment section who defends her never been in an actual relationship. Imagine devoting 5 years of your life to a girl for her to cheat on you by making porn, for all the world to see the proof of your stupidity for trusting her and loving her. It's humiliating and heart breaking. In the end all this woman ever wanted was fame and she ruined a good man for that. She's just fucking evil.

Last Night Was Straight Out Of Hell • r/MGTOW

bitcoin-optimist · 8 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

Originally found on /r/mgtow

I was out of town for a seminar with a married male co-worker. We were suppose to land in NYC last night at 7PM.

Our flight got cancelled the last minute and now we won't land until almost 11pm.

He sends a text to his wife (he got married in March) and she replies that shes not been feeling well, and he should text when he lands to make sure she is awake because she would have to open the door. She suggests he stay over at my place if she doesn't answer. Apparently, he left his car keys at home and the keys to his home are on it.

When we get to the airport he runs around like a chicken without a head trying to find something to buy for his wife, he wants to "put a smile on her face". He ends up buying a Swarovski figurine and we go to the gate to wait.

We end up boarding late and we land almost midnight!

The moment we land he texts his wife but there is no reply. I navigate to the parking and I drive to drop him off, I live a few miles away from him. The entire drive he tries calling and texting but she is not answering.

When I get to his place he asks me to wait in the car, he will try ringing the bell to see if she wakes up.

I wait a good 10 minutes but I still see him ringing and knocking on the door.

He comes back to the car and says he wants to call the police, she sounded "very sick" back when he spoke to her and now shes not answering calls or the door, his car is there, so he knows she didn't go to her parents house.

He thinks for a moment and decides it's better to call her mother even at this hour than to call the police first, maybe her mom knows something, he is so crazy he wants to call the local hospital to check if she was admitted!

He calls her mother and her mother says the last she spoke to her daughter (his wife) was in the morning and she sounded a bit "under the weather".

The mother tries calling her on a three-way, but it goes right to voicemail. She tells him to wait at the house shes rushing over.

Twenty minutes later her mother and father show up, they ring the bell and knock on the door but no answer.

The father is so nervous he's considering kicking the door in! My friend suggests to call the police, the mom says to call a locksmith! In the meantime, on his behalf, I called two local hospitals, but none had a record of her being admitted.

The mom calls his wife's brother (his brother-in-law) to see if he spoke to her, he says he didn't but he has a backup set of keys to the house, he was helping with some renovation a while ago and has a copy.

We wait from the brother almost a half hour and he shows up with the keys and hands it to his mother.

Her hands are shaking so much that she cannot even put the key in! My friend takes the keys and open the door.

Out of respect I wait outside, I am his close friend but don't know the condition of his wife, and for all I know something bad happened and I will be a suspect soon.

I'm in my car (it's so humid here its insane) and he comes out crying that its worse than he thought, shes not in the apartment! She might have been kidnapped! He calls 911!

The cops show up and say that they can file a missing persons report (I always thought you must wait a day) but because of her age and no mental health conditions (I don't know about that) it will not be taken that seriously yet. There is an exception, if he knows a reason that she was being targeted or has evidence of foul-play, they will work the case immediately.

He starts telling them that they are in love, and if shes not home something bad must have happened. The mother tells the cops that her daughter tells her everything, and it is not like her to just leave.

The cops spoke to him about using her phone to locate her, they said at this stage they will not get involved, but if he is legally allowed to access her device it is an option for him. Cops claimed that depending on a phone if it has a charge he might even be able to turn it on remotely, they suggest he get "legal counsel" first.

Suddenly a car pulls up and his wife, dressed like a 99 cents hooker, walks out of the front passenger side! She is obviously drunk, my friend runs over to the car and asks the guy "did she pay you"? The guy did not even reply, he just drove away. My friend assumed it's a Uber or something.

The cops at this point say they will cancel the report and they leave.

My friend tries talking to his wife, and so do her parents but shes slurring her speech and saying she texted him that shes going to a high-school reunion and then she said she went to a wedding lol.

The parents leave and tell him to wait until she "has a good night sleep" before asking what happened. "Maybe something bothers her".

When everyone leaves he asks me if he can stay over in my place, I tell him sure, and we drive away.

He really did not say anything other than "I can't believe it" at least 600 times all the way to my place, and I live pretty close to him.

Seeing a man in so much pain, a good guy, a caring guy, getting so hurt really bothered me. This is the guy every woman wants once they are done with the CC. He is in shape, makes a good living, he pays no other woman any mind, everything is always about his wife, and now he is destroyed.

I refused to give him any lectures about women, I felt it is the wrong time. On his own he tells me he is going to a divorce lawyer and moving on. He does not even want to know what happened and who that guy was, he does not care. He is married a little less than 4 months and he wants out before he has any kids or has more problems.

If I didn't read this forum often I would have been in way more shock. I feel bad for him, but I cannot say I am surprised by her behavior.

Story from /r/relationships

First thing, sorry for another break up post, but like many others here I don't have much of a social support net outside the internet.

I am 30/M and she is 29/F. We've been together for 6 and a half years, living together for over 4 years. She's the first woman I've ever loved and she broke up with me today and it fucking hurts.

On Thursday we both left for separate trips over the weekend. I went with my dad and brother to DC from Friday to Monday, and she went to hang out with her Mom and Sister in upstate New York for the weekend.

Red flag #1 was that she lied to me about the trip, telling me she was going to her mom's. I found out one way or another that she actually went to visit her old abusive ex and she apologized a lot and told me nothing had happened with him or would happen with him.

Red flag #2 was that she barely talked to me during the trip. I called her once a day and she never picked up the phone, and she barely answered my texts. Eventually it comes to Monday night and we are both supposed to be home (we lived together at my apartment), and she doesn't show up, telling me they stopped at his parents house and that he didn't want to drive her home and drive back alone (it was 1 am at this point, I got home at 12:30 am, she was about two hours away). I ask her if she needs help and ask to talk on the phone since we hadn't talked in like 4 or 5 days. She refused to take my calls. Flash forward to today, she calls me and breaks up with me. Says she didn't expect to still have the feelings for her ex and that she felt our relationship had been going down hill for a while, and that she didn't want to try harder to fix it. She told me she slept with the guy over the weekend and she wants to try things out with him. She's coming over tonight to give me the ring and to get her stuff out of my place.

We had planned to get married next year and were going to buy our first house together in the fall as well.

I have read enough break up threads to know what to expect. I already deleted her number out of my phone, and blocked her on other social media.

I am in pain, it hurts so much to find out that someone you loved so much betraying you like that. I gave her everything, she was my everything and to find out that I didn't mean anything when she slept with her ex is soul crushing.

I'm really hurting right now, will it get better anytime soon?

TL;DR: My Fiancée ignored me throughout the weekend and lied to me about visiting her Mom and Sibling. It turned out that she was actually visiting her ex instead. She called earlier and broke up with me and confessed that she slept with her ex during the weekend and that she still has feelings for him and wants to get back together with him and here I am crushed and heartbroken beyond repair.

Brother got cucked hard • r/MGTOW

bitcoin-optimist · 10 September 2018 · Archived copy · Reddit

Found on /r/MGTOW

Longtime girlfriend of brother wanted to renovate this old familial house to live in with their kid, brother spends more than 50k on the house over years, her? Not a dime. Girlfriend spawns her little shit, brother works 2 awful jobs, comes home to take care of the kid and do the chores around the house because girlfriend needs "her time" and she's "tired".

Present day, 2 years later, she cheats with some guy she's been seeing for a while and breaks up with brother, he's out. Her brand new house on paper, but his money.

Now brother lives with me until he gets an apartment because he has slowly alienated the rest of his family and friends over this girl nobody liked, keeps crying about how much money he spent on that house and how he's done with women. This is my older brother by 5 years btw, a guy I used to look up to when I was a kid, now crying on my couch over some bitch that ruined his life.

I can hardly feel any sympathy at this point, what is happening to men?

Movies and TV Promoting Poly to Teenage Girls?

graham_overstreet · 16 June 2020 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm a parent of a teenage girl and I've been disturbed by a couple of different shows and movies that she's watched (content explicitly targeted at teenage girls or young audiences) that seem to promote the idea that it is totally acceptable for a girl to have multiple boyfriends. And it's always a main female character stringing along a couple of boys. The really striking thing is how it is never painted in a negative light when it's a girl doing it. Is this becoming a trend, part of an agenda, or are they just isolated cases? The ones I remember noticing were in Twilight, Locke and Key & Sabrina on Netflix.

The Core Formula

Crosspost "The Core Formula" from /r/IncelSolutions:

Hello, gentlemen.

I see that there is a lot of hardship in the Incel community. Worry not. I have a solution.

I call it The Core Formula.

The Core Formula is a method that allows a man to know EXACTLY what to do when he approaches a woman. Get ready. Put on your seatbelt. I'm about to blow your minds.

All you need to establish is two things when you approach a woman with romantic intent at heart:

1. You need to show that you're capable of handling the hardships of the world. Do this by making a witty joke or two that's relevant to the situation (you can joke about the weather if it's raining, or about how fashionable she is, if she's wearing a dress). This makes you seem confident, even if you're terrified. She doesn't know what she can't see.
2. You need to show that you are trustworthy. Do this by engaging in a little bit of get-to-know-you conversation. (Talk about if she's from here originally, what she works as, etc.....)

And BOOOOOOOM!!!!

You just set up a date.

For more zesty w-rizz dating advice that will turn you into an absolute CHAD:

Is The Mainstream Media Fake???

Key-Basil254 · 6 May 2023 · Archived copy · Reddit

In today's society, the media plays a critical role in shaping public opinion. Through their various channels including social media, television, newspapers, and radio programs, the media has the power to influence the masses by selectively choosing to highlight certain stories, opinions, and messages. This idea of manipulating public opinion is not new, as history has shown us many examples of propaganda and fake news being used by various groups to sway public sentiment.

Over the years, the media has developed a set of techniques that it uses to control and manipulate public opinion. One of these techniques is the practice of agenda-setting, where the media chooses which stories it will focus on to shape the public's perception of what is most important. For instance, when the media consistently covers reports on crime, viewers may come to believe that the crime rate is higher than it actually is. In this way, the media shapes perceptions of reality, and this can lead to negative outcomes, such as fear and anxiety.

Another technique used by the media is to project certain ideologies, narratives, or stereotypes to influence public opinion. This is particularly common in political campaigns, where media networks can choose to favor one candidate over another by portraying them in either a positive or negative light. Media bias can affect voters' choices and impact election results, leading to consequences that affect the entire nation.

Moreover, the media can influence public opinion by selecting experts or sources to cover certain topics. For instance, if a climate change report is covered by a scientist with credentials viewed as suspect by the public, people are less likely to accept the science behind it. Additionally, media outlets can adjust the tone of their reporting covering a contentious topic to sway public opinion by pushing the narrative that matches their particular agenda.

The manipulation of public opinion by the media is problematic because it can lead to misinformation and misunderstanding amongst the public. It can foster an environment where certain ideas become more desirable than others, even if those ideas may not be based on logic or truth. This can be very dangerous, especially during times of crises. One example of this is the COVID-19 pandemic, where the dissemination of fake news and conspiracy theories have led to a significant increase in global anxiety levels.

The media has an enormous influence on public opinion by selectively choosing which stories to cover, projecting certain narratives and ideologies, and controlling the tone of the reportage, a couple examples are the case of Andrew Tate's arrest, twitch favoring female streamers over male streamers, and pushing the agenda of feminism. While this may not always be intentional or even aware on the part of the media, the consequences can be far-reaching, particularly when manipulation of public opinion is used deceptively to serve a specific agenda. It is essential to educate the public on how to discern fake news and propaganda from factual reporting, to reduce the harmful impacts of media manipulation on society.

Hi fellas! Hope You're having Best day of Your life I want to share one story and ask for help so here we go: For a few months now I had been flirting with a girl and I had gotten a bit excited, so much that I stopped talking to other girls (dumb). The thing is, she went on a trip to the beach and uploaded a photo Lying down being hugged by a boy. I'm not entirely angry or jealous but it hurt my ego. Of course, when a door closes, a window opens. I had already planned a trip to spring break with some friends, so I'm trying to lock in my physical condition before going. I have exact 197 days. I'm documenting this process on TikTok and Reels and you could help me A LOT if you follow me. Lets make HER regret, If you have question or something let me know thanks buddies 🤔

Documentary about masculinity

OUGAOUGA123 · 25 April 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

ello everyone, I am making a documentary about masculinity. I am looking for a young man, around 20 years old (more or less), who advocates red pill ideas, is familiar with the concepts surrounding the community, or someone willing to share their good or bad experiences with women and their perception of them.

Ideally, I would like to film one of you, but your face can of course be blurred. A call or an exchange through text messages is also fine.

I am also interested in the community of gamers in the USA—their relationship with video games, the people they meet, and any potential long-distance romantic relationships that may develop.

Have a great day guys !!!

26, in great shape, making money, but I think my mindset and habits are sabotaging me with women. Need honest advice.

Weak_Monk_4535 · 29 April 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm going to stream my thoughts a bit here, but I'd really appreciate some honest advice.

I'm 26. For context, I'm in the best shape of my life. I'm probably around 8–9% body fat, lean, muscular, disciplined, and I train hard. I work in medical sales, I make decent money, and I'm also trying to build something for myself with a provisional patent and a business idea I'm serious about.

Here's the issue: even though on paper I'm doing a lot right, I feel like I have some mental blocks that are getting in the way of me actually securing women or moving forward confidently.

Right now I'm living with family, but it's by choice. I could move out, but I know doing that right now would stretch me too thin financially because so much of my income is going toward my business goals. So logically, I know staying put is the smarter move for the moment.

But if I'm being real, it definitely affects my confidence. I still approach women. I still get numbers. I still get invited over sometimes. But a lot of the time I don't follow through. Sometimes it's because I feel weird about my situation. Sometimes it's because I want to stay disciplined for work. Sometimes it's because I need to stay home, train, go to boxing, or keep my routine locked in.

And then there's the bigger issue I know I can't ignore: I still have a lingering cocaine and drinking problem. It's not every day, and it's nothing like when I was unemployed a couple years ago and it was completely out of control, but it's still there. Usually it happens once a week or once every two weeks, mainly on the weekend, but it's enough that it still bugs me and clearly still has some control over me.

If I'm being brutally honest, there are a lot of times I'll choose cocaine and drinking over seeing a woman. That's extremely common for me. During the week I'm disciplined as hell. I usually work out twice a day, stay focused, and deny distractions. But it's almost like I push myself so hard that when the weekend comes, I need some kind of escape.

Another thing I probably need to admit is that sometimes I'll just jerk off instead of seeing a woman, especially during the week, because in my mind it feels like less of a time investment and less disruption.

The weird part is I know I get attention from women. I got a number from a very attractive girl yesterday. But I probably won't even text her because she wants to hang out Saturday, and if I'm being honest, there's a good chance I'll end up drinking and doing cocaine that day instead.

So I guess my question is: how do I move forward from here in a smart way?

Part of me knows the right move is to stay living with family for now, keep building, keep stacking money, and stay focused. But another part of me feels like my ego, my shame around my living situation, and my need for escape are all quietly sabotaging me.

I have a strong feeling I'm in my own head, but I also know there are some real issues here that need to be addressed.

Give me your honest thoughts. Constructive advice is welcome, but you can be brutally honest too.

Dating every culture turned me racist

BeaverJesus7775 · 27 November 2022 · Archived copy · Reddit

I dated and hooked up with literally every single culture and found nothing except trash. The only difference is the white ex did the least amount of damage.

My white ex compared me to Kate Upton very early in the relationship but I couldn't let him go because we're too ugly for our own race. I prefer my own race but so many white people have made me feel like shit because I'm not stick thin.

My Chinese ex gave me an eating disorder where I'm afraid to eat normally or else I won't be a twig, just like all men like. I hate how Asian people expect everyone to be stuck when I've tried for years. I hate Asian people because just like white people, they expect their partners to be thin when my 5'6" and 150 lb ass can't be this way. I tried so hard to be what men want

I had two German lovers who did the same thing. And I mostly hate Germans because they are often perfectionist assholes. They always try to push their unrealistic standards on me and they will often bully others to get their way. Like I'm sorry the Jews in the 1930's 1940's probably had bigger dicks than you. Germans often have the smallest dicks in all of Europe too. It's why they hate black guys and see them as not pure.

I never dated a black guy and that's because most of them see me as a piece of meat. I have black friends who will never know how I feel about this. One guy pressured me to go without a condom because Jamaicans don't like wearing them apparently. Black people have made some of my greatest friends but I can never date one. I thought being with a black guy would be best for me because they often mess around with ugly and fat white women, but they can be just as pushy as brown men.

My last ex was brown. He was incredibly pushy and wanted sex right away. I gave in by the second date because I was bored and horny. I thought being with a brown guy would mean I was safe because they all harass white women, even the fat ones. Too bad this one was stuck up just like white people. He made me feel like shit for being fat just like my own race. He compared me to another girl who rejected him. He also compared me to the escorts he spent thousands of dollars on.

Now I have to try and become anorexic so I can achieve a white male husband. The kind of white women who date black and brown people only do it because they are too ugly for their own race. I'm tired of not being good enough for white men. I feel like an outsider or an outcast because my own race left me behind when they all decided to marry and date each other without me. I tried dating every other race to compensate for the fact my own looks at me as the ugliest woman in the world, but literally every race has made me miserable.

Hi!

ich bin wissenschaftliche Mitarbeiterin an der Fachhochschule Potsdam und mache aktuell ein Forschungsprojekt zum Thema "junge Männlichkeit". Dabei untersuche ich Anliegen und Bedürfnisse von jungen Männern zwischen 15 und 28 Jahren dieser Gesellschaft und führe dazu Interviews.

Weil es bei Pick-Up um Männlichkeit geht, würde ich gerne ein Interview mit einer interessierten Person hier führen. In einem solchen einstündigen Online-gespräch würde es darum gehen, was für Dich Männlichkeit ausmacht, was Deine Erfahrungen im Bereich Beziehung sind und was Du Dir in Bezug auf das Geschlechterverhältnis wünschen würdest. Ich kann eine Aufwandsentschädigung anbieten und Anonymität garantieren.

Falls Fragen auftauchen und/oder Du Interesse an einem Interview hast, schreib mir!

Dating a red pill man

Own-Put-3169 · 4 June 2026 · Archived copy · Reddit

How to figure out your man is red pill (because I learnt out the date way).

1. Refers to himself as a “high value man”
2. Believes that women shouldn’t go through hard things (can be flattering having a man want to do the heavy lifting, but becomes an issue when your say or opinion is less than or not respected)
3. Refer to you as “too masculine”, “too independent” and disrespectful (when u defend yourself in a disagreement)
4. Hates feminism and believes it has destroyed the traditional family dynamic
5. In arguments, he will send you trad wife reels (emphasising how to be a better women for him)
6. Listens to Andrew Tate (the odd instagram reel is the red flag), Joe Rogan
7. “You should focus on being the best women you can be for me and not on a career”
8. Calls you selfish for working towards a career because you’re not prioritising building a family (spending enough time with him)

The list could go on but on the top of my head this is what I’ve thought of. Good luck out there ladies
