

IllimitableMan

ARCHIVE

www.TheRedArchive.com

ABOUT THIS ARCHIVE

Everything /u/IllimitableMan wrote across the subreddits TheRedArchive holds: 223 posts and 7,311 comments published between May 2013 and January 2021.

About /u/IllimitableMan. Most of the posts here come from /r/TheRedPill — 194 of 223 — with the rest in /r/AlreadyRed and /r/askTRP, and 1 other subreddit. The 7,311 comments come mostly from there too. Between them the posts drew 33,059 upvotes; the most upvoted is “Your struggle and pain? Women neither understand nor give muc...” (October 2015, 1,080).

About TheRedArchive. TheRedArchive is a free, public archive of the Red Pill community, built so that none of this writing can quietly disappear. It holds 1,737,515 posts and 40,041,416 comments from 45 subreddits and 58 blogs. Much of it survives nowhere else — the accounts deleted, the subreddits banned, the websites long offline. All of it is free to read, search and download, and always will be, at www.TheRedArchive.com.

Support the mission. This Red Pill archive is free — no paywall, no account — but keeping it online isn't. I pay for the servers, the storage and the bandwidth myself, so that this valuable knowledge stays online. If you want to support the mission and archive, become one of the people who help keep it online at www.TheRedArchive.com/#help.

Share this file freely, and keep a copy of your own. What sits on one server can be taken down; what sits on a thousand hard drives cannot.

Best regards,

/u/dream-hunter

Founder of TheRedArchive
August 15, 2026

39

UPVOTES

Tom Leykis - The Benefits of Marriage (A Red Pill Nuke)

25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HirqjAU-7iA>

This guy fucking kills it. Most people here know marriage is bad for a man and all but practically pointless for him, but hearing it reaffirmed from a guy who knows his shit and can eloquently articulate those candid oh so liberating red pill insights into female behaviour and how they abuse the institution of marriage doubled up with the entertainment of him "battling" the dumb blue pill women who phone up screaming "NAWALT!" using themselves as an example and taking it extremely fucking personal, is not only satisfying, but practically fucking red pill genius in action to listen to. Enjoy, it's a fucking delight to listen to. He's insanely spot on with this shit, a very red pill dude.

12
UPVOTES

If you were/are beta previously, what made you want to become Alpha?

31 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This shit has been edited out.

82

UPVOTES

"I don't need a man BUT..."

8 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=juR74OYiegY>

Just listen to this shit. It calls out feminism on many of it's contradictions.

38

UPVOTES

So where did all the good women go?

19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Let's engage in some irony, we always hear this question directed at men and good men but where the fuck did the good women go?

I mean being self-entitled, slutty and neurotically illogical (hamster) are not traits I'd want the mother of my kids to have and yet ironically so many women feel entitled to have kids because they WANT the kid. As a man I find that vile. Women having kids because they want a kid, fuck logic. Having kids should prioritise the well-being of the kid and giving it the best possible life which includes keeping the father around (something many dumb hos think is irrelevant), being a dumb broody ho shouldn't give you the right to bring life into the world, quality over quantity is my line of thought here.

Validating dark triad assholes and the short-term over strong long term providers is dumb. Alpha fucks beta bucks fucking sucks. Betas deserve respect for what they bring to the table but I don't agree with feminist culture making men sissy, weak and overly liberal and tolerant of everything, being alpha and not being dark triad is a rare combination in today's society due to this and it blows, both as a man trying to find his way and as a woman wanting a "good man" that isn't unattractive but not a complete cunt either.

Where did the good women go? The ones pre-feminism like your gran, the smart chick who believes in complementing a man, not competing with him, and treating a man as a human, a partner, not a tool to better her life. A woman that doesn't betray you at the drop of a hat, an actual partner, not a glorified child full of disneyland esque expectations and nothing but an over-rated fuck hole to offer.

If you're interested in my line of thought, by all means, please share your thoughts. I don't want to hear 20 yr old kids telling me how gaming chicks is great and going on about SMV, I'm talking serious family building shit here. Also, how the fuck is red pill women going? If that can generate some quality women I'll commit to such a woman and we'll have babies, but man, these low quality women (the majority) ain't getting shit, not money, not respect, not anything.

Is this a paradox? I'd like your interpretations

10 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Little background on me, I'd consider myself pretty unplugged, I've been on TRP for some months now. Even before I found TRP I wasn't a complete sap/beta/idiot, but there were definitely some things that needed adjusting with my LTR game and my own self-improvement track.

I realise how if a guy doesn't stay on top of his game, he will ultimately get burned by a woman. I've been to hell and back with a girl and I'm pretty far down the road to recovery, I had the "fortunate" experience of dating a "good girl" (rollos definition of a good girl: <http://therationalmale.com/2011/11/10/good-girls-do/>) who was very sweet and charming, but also happened to be a complete psychopathic sociopath.

Her bullshit is what brought me to TRP, how she moved on effortlessly and went on to use other people, men and women, to get her emotional validation despite the culmination of our association being topped off by some effortless betrayal and grade A manipulation on her part (so naturally, I said fuck this and told her to fuckoff)

Now here's a question I have and it may be tough for most people to answer with any reasonable degree of accuracy other than, conjecture, but I'm going to ask anyway because it makes me curious. Despite realising how things are with women in general, I'm naturally a kind person and quite romantic when I really like a girl, you could say I enjoy being soppy and cute and all that "eugh" shit when I really like a chick. Now don't get confused here and tell me "you haven't swallowed the pill properly blah blah blah" I have. I know how to be an asshole, almost effortlessly, I don't have my heart on my sleeve I know the philosophy and I live a lot of it in my day to day interactions, but despite knowing it's bad/beta, naturally, I like to do cute things with a girl I really like, even though I know that's the quickest way to get fucked over because the girl will lose respect and start throwing shit tests.

Is being red pill aware and still harbouring romantic tendencies a paradox? I don't think I can unplug anymore, I can improve sure, but there's no other revelations that need revealing to my psyche, I understand the BS - I know how to attract girls, confident, aloof etc, but at the end of the day, in my heart of hearts on the inside, I'm a pretty sweet person and when I like someone a lot I like to help them, this means I'm a romantic with women whom I value (I don't value most women I meet past sex so it's rare, but when I do view a girl as more, it's very possible.)

Romanticism, is it a byproduct of blue pill brainwashing, an actual personality trait or what? If you're red pill aware and know you have a capacity to be romantic, what's your take on that? Seeing as romanticism is essentially equated as being weak/beta/needy.

27

UPVOTES

From the Bottom to the Top - Owning Fear

22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CeNpVbTGBD0>

Short post:

An interview done by 50 Cent with the BBC on the subject of fear in relation to the book he collaborated on with Robert Greene, The 50th Law. I know many people will be prejudice against 50, think he's just some dumb rapper or whatever, but hear the guy out, he's wise beyond his superficial appearance, you can learn a lot from him and apply it to your own life, your career, your interactions with women, people, whatever.

Coping mechanism: 50 never knew his dad and lost his mother when he was 8 years old, whenever he goes into a situation he remembers how it felt losing his mother and goes in with the mindset that this situation can't hurt him as much as losing his mother did. Personify this mechanism and use it to help you fight your own fears/anxieties.

Abundance mentality and outcome independence are traits of fearlessness, when you are confident enough to get things done, you accept failure and move on to replace the aspect you have failed at with another attempt somewhere else (a job, a favour) or with someone else (a relationship) fearlessness essentially allows a level of persistence most people cannot achieve, because their failures convert to insecurity which can then convert to fear of said insecurity/paradigm which can lead to many different manifestations of fear at different levels of severity such as: trauma, anxiety, introversion and unconfidence.

These are things which not only hold you back but are perceived by society as being low value. Fearlessness is one of the highest states of confidence, although paranoia in small doses is good for keeping momentum and staying alert to potential threats, paranoia isn't out of insecurity but rather out of preservation - this is a vital distinction to make.

44

UPVOTES

Woman in love with a Dark Triad asshole can't change him, goes on national TV to try make it happen.

12 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NbxYPFv847M>

If you listen carefully she cohabits with him, waits on him and watches him fuck other girls in her presence. What people say here about woman rather share an alpha than have their own beta is 100% true. Have a red pill example of it right here.

If you wanna analyse and post your observations please do. I may post my analysis later on if the topic goes dry.

27

UPVOTES

You really can't make this shit up

21 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I see through the bullshit but i like other peoples opinions, this chick wants to come sleep at my house in a few days because "she's missed me" (didn't speak to her in like 8+ months.) OK. but I said to her "no girl sleeps in my bed unless i'm havin sex with them" and she goes "you're sleeping on the floor then" and I said "yeah right, you're taking the floor" anyway she wants to come over, she says she'll never cheat on her boyfriend (she has one) I said to her "why are you coming to stay at mine then?" she had no real answer just giggling what are your thoughts?

Background on the boyfriend: beta as fuck, she runs the relationship with him, shes dependent on the emotions he feeds her cuz she can get unstable. I know I'm on the receiving end of an alpha fucks beta bucks here, but I'd really like to hear thoughts on this dynamic, I kept putting her on the spot but she kept trying to be coy.

I just want opinions, don't go all superior than thou on me, I know played this well and I don't want tips, just opinions because hey what can I say, I love a good third person analysis.

More info: I shit tested her "you gonna get permission from your boyfriend to stay over?" She said "I'll tell him afterwards, I'm the boss what I say goes." I said "you won't be the boss when you come to mine" she said "maybe I'll change u, I'll train u" I said "challenge accepted but I'd like to see u try" If anyone here is with a ho who acts like that u need to dump her straight up. If u hate me rather than the ho, you're forgetting who the gatekeepers to sex are. The solution is to stop being beta and letting hos run rings on u.

OK part 1 I posted a week or so ago where I got a bunch of slack from newbies about premeditating the idea of having sex with a girl who already had a beta bf, I would link to part 1 but you can't link in this sub anymore so just search "You really can't make this shit up" if you want the preamble to this.

This post is the follow up to that. Tonights events are more fresh in my mind than last weeks, but I'll try to be as concise as possible (this all happened about a week ago, I've only just had the free time to type it up and share it though.)

So 2 days after I posted that last topic we met up in town and we went for coffee. She was nervous as hell but it was hidden under a veil of confidence which my perception was able to pierce through, she kept talking about random shit but that's how I like it, I suck at small talk and I don't value it enough as a skill to practice it, I like to keep my own frame and I'm comfortable with silence. In fact at one point I even said that to her, she wouldn't shut up and so I said "I'm comfortable with silence you know" she replied "Wait do you think I'm talking to much?" I said "Yeah you are, and I think you're nervous, and if there's gonna be silence then don't worry, I'm comfortable with that there's a nice view here" (and looked cheekily at her) - I was setting the frame that I really didn't give a shit about the conversation here and that even if we had nothing to talk about, I'd still be comfortable.

I acted very aloof, like I had better things I could be doing with my time than sit there listening to her go on (and really, this girl could talk for her country in a contest.) I'd look at my phone and smile, look to the side and outside for like 30 seconds or so, then look back at her, hold eye contact until she broke it, then go aloof again, responding to her both whilst I stared at her and other times while I wasn't. We went to sit outside because she wanted a smoke. We talked more shit about life, she started mentioning her parents and other crap I wasn't really paying attention to, I'd just smile at her and look at other girls walking past. I got bored of sitting there, despite her ability to make great conversation out of shit I don't even care about or find interesting, so I told her we were going and to bring her drink, which she did.

The "coffee date" lasted about 20-25 minutes, she wasn't shit testing much but I thought she might flake, she tried to dominate the frame somewhat before we met up, one of her texts was "you've got long legs walk quicker" I replied "aw already missing me x" her response was "maybe xx" I saw that maybe and I was like "LOL, that was too easy."

Post coffee date we went to grab some alcohol before we went back to mine, she started talking about politics (she's an academic) and got quite riled up, I didn't enter her frame with it, I didn't really care, I agreed with her shit and moved the topic on to discussing the nights plans. She doesn't live in my part of town so naturally I was leading her everywhere (which is always good for an alpha frame, take notes) she was somewhat nervous and asked "are you sure its ok if I stay at yours tonight?" I was like "it's fine, don't sweat it, I said you could so you are."

Once we bought the alcohol (we hadn't started drinking yet, I was carrying a large crate of cider) she started to show IoIs, very overt ones. "I like the smell of your perfume", "You're so tall, I like tall guys it's sexy" (I'm 6'2) to both of which I replied "I know I smell like heaven" and "Yeah, most girls do." I didn't really escalate off the IoIs at this point, because I was so confident I was going to fuck this girl I didn't feel the need to "seize the moment" I already knew it was a done deal, I mean she was sharing my bed with me that night for heavens sake.

About 10 minutes later after we finally get out of the supermarket we sat down for a bit before going back to mine and I decided to escalate from her IoIs here, I start staring into her eyes and thinking in my head "I want to fuck you" with a cheeky face, I keep doing this and she keeps breaking eye contact, this happens about 4 times, she laughs nervously and I reply with a stern "what?" she says "how you look at me... I don't know" and I reply "I like looking at you." I switched here from being aloof and nonchalant to holding eye contact steadily and waiting for her to break it, I was communicating non-verbally to her that I was going to fuck her. I was giving her the "I'm gonna fuck you eyes" and I could tell despite her coyness, she loved it.

Eventually she becomes avoidant, but not in a bad way, I can tell she's flustered as in "I've overwhelmed her" but she smiles and gets in the ride with me. On the way home we're talking (it escapes me about what now, exactly) and she says "I'm really surprised because I didn't expect to find myself so being attracted to you" I smiled and said "Well life's just full of surprises isn't it"

We got home. Went into my room. Told her "I'm putting a movie on" (lol, you know the drill, plausible deniability for her and all that good responsibility shifting shit) she was sitting so uncomfortably on the bed, it was making me cringe. Bad. I tolerated it for about 5-10 minutes, then I took the initiative. I said "come here" she moved towards me i grabbed her head and started kissing her. She was a crap kisser, she had passion I guess but she felt restrained. It was underwhelming, but whatever.

About 20 minutes later we're kissing more heavily, I still contend this girl cannot kiss to save her life, she thinks my lips are to be prodded rather than caressed, but OK. LOL. Anyway she seems to be enjoying it. She starts getting quite flustered and sexual sounding and I said to her "I'm gonna fuck the shit out of you tonight" she lapped it up, we kissed some more, neck involved etc.

Then I got some fucking weird LMR, I told her to jerk me off to get me ready for sex and she says "for some reason I feel I'll be OK having sex with you and be able to live with myself by not telling my boyfriend, but if we have foreplay, that'll feel worse and I don't think I would be able to" I say to her "that makes no sense, you're fine with me being inside you but jerking me off is a no-go? You got it back to front girl!" then I laughed at her.

She then started saying all this weird shit about her BF, how she really really wants to fuck me but she doesn't know if she'll be able to live with herself, she's never cheated on anyone before blah blah blah. I say to her "if any of this was a problem for you, you wouldn't be here in the first place, you wouldn't of agreed to come and stay with me - in my bed, and you wouldn't of lied to your BF that I had a spare room" she says "good point" but maintains she didn't come over to have sex with me or otherwise cheat on her boyfriend, I know she did, she knows she did, but hamster will not allow her to say so verbally. I think to myself "OK - there's too much talking and not enough fucking going on here."

So I start putting her hand on my dick, she resists a few times, then finally she's so into things she goes with it. I reward her "good girl" and I start playing with her nipples, I thought this girl was gonna fucking go exorcist off my bed no word of a lie her body was rising up from the sheets on foreplay alone. LMFAO. Them nipples were like red nuclear weapon launch buttons. 10 minutes later, she's taking her undies off, legs spread and my dicks going in. I say something along the lines of "you've been waiting for this all night" and start pounding her pussy against the sheets.

Afterwards we fall asleep. The next day I wanted to kick her out, but she would not fuckoff. It was kinda good, kinda bad. We end up having some pretty red pill conversation. She tells me she loves being with me, I'm really attractive, she can get lost in me and all this other shit. I know what she's doing here. I'm not stupid. Naive guys would think "this girls in love with me" I know this girls not in love with me, but it would suit her to be because she considers me an upgrade from her current BF. She's trying to branch swing here from her current BF to me.

I've analyzed her already. She's far too unstable to be my GF, she can be a mistress but not a GF, she's not GF material cuz the girls too crazy and wow, way too overt with her sluttiness. I tell her under no uncertain terms I'm not gonna be her man and even encourage her sexual plurality (which we discuss here) I say "he will put up with shit emotionally that I won't, he'll deal with your mood swings and general craziness, whereas I won't, you get out of line with me and I'll cut you off, however I'll provide the excitement that he can't" I said essentially she'll have a tough time finding all the qualities she wants from a man, in one man.

Reason being she wants an alpha, but at the same time she enjoys the comforts of a beta, she said "she needs a guy she knows she can control" but she likes me because "I make her feel a way he can't" and "actually stand up to her" it's like her feminist ideals and natural instincts are having a cognitive conflict or some shit (hence why TRP exists - LOL), it's entertaining and perverse at the same time, but in the end I decided to encourage alpha fucks beta bucks, myself as the alpha in this specific paradigm, obviously. She really wanted to branch swing to me, but I wasn't having it, no girl, you lack the value required.

So she agreed to see me in secret without telling him, and she'd come stay over at mine every week. She's telling him she's seeing a female friend every week now (who will cover for her) rather than telling him that she's coming over to ride me.

We had some very red pill convo, she's unhappy with her boyfriend. I don't really want to hear about a girls boyfriend or ex boyfriend EVER, but I had to address her concerns as she literally put it on the table she would branch swing to me "tell me you'll be with me and I'll ring him up right now and tell him it's over" I didn't want that shit and to end up lumbered with her so I basically told her to stay with him.

Anyway, to the gritty, she said he's too emotional, that whenever she shouts at him or attacks (shit tests) he apologises and gets emotional, she thinks its pathetic, its annoying to her etc etc, she said shes tired of having to sort out every little thing with him, whereas with me it's not like that. She even said "I feel like I have to mother him" and I dropped some RP on that girl and said "and what, with me it's like you're the daughter?" and she thought for a second and said "yeah, you're like a rock" - now I know this sounds too red pill to actually be true, but it is and funnily enough, this girl is massively influenced by feminism, which is what makes it all the hell more funnier.

God that sounds so fucked up. Haha. Ok. Rip it to shreds people. And please, can all the butthurt betas stop complaining I fucked a girl with a boyfriend, you sabotaged the last post with your butthurt, keep it redpill, if you're going to criticize don't white knight, I shouldn't even have to say that in TRP but read Part 1 and you'll see why I am.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5ZRflz-93JA>

Funny as fuck and yet, very red pill. Enjoy.

Nuggets of wisdom from Mr. Chappelle in the video:

- Don't undermine a woman's feelings, they're her world.
- Feminism ruined relations between men and women because women be taking too much advice from other women when it comes to men, rather than listening to men themselves. EG: Cosmo magazine, the nefarious Jezebel that gets posted up here etc.
- These same feminist magazines make women feel like shit by showing them photoshopped crap and making them feel like "they're not good enough" because the girls in the magazine depict insane levels of beauty, the insecurity that manifests fucks women up and makes the relationship shit for any guy who's seeing said woman.
- Women dress like whores and act surprised when men treat them like that, uses the analogy that if you saw a man wearing a policemen's uniform, you'd think he were a policeman, so if you're not a whore and you dress like one - don't be acting indignant when there's a case of mistaken identity.
- When women "want to talk" it's about shit they think you're doing wrong, when they're doing shit wrong they never want to talk about it and get on the defence with you - exposing a commonly perpetuated gender double standard here.

55

UPVOTES

GTA V Feminist Satire on West Coast Talk Radio - Funny as Hell

5 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8prb7OWnWr0#t=1655>

This is gold. Rockstar really went out of their way to caricature and parody the bullshit effects of third wave feminism here, enjoy! The innuendo, mockery, double entendre.. it's priceless.

121

UPVOTES

Real life example of a girl cheating on her beta bucks, "coming clean" after feeling guilty, deciding not to cheat again... and then ironically decides to come back and fuck again. Hamster gymnastics!

14 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

OK I posted a while ago about this chick I banged, I thought the sub would find it interesting because you'd get to see TWO angles, the alpha fucks angle (my POV) and the beta bucks angle. This girl tells me about her BF, generally I don't talk to girls about that kind of shit, but with this girl I do, I learn a lot about how a beta gets treated without being the beta, so I somewhat encourage it purely for the sake of validating RP philosophy from the real world and being able to add to my own experience of it without actually being in that position.

I iced the chick out for quite awhile, not picking up her phone calls, texting her back days later and etc. Anyhow last night I decide to ring her and see what's up. She shit tests the fuck out for me for ages, there's far too many shit tests to list, she tells me about other men buying her stuff, her new boss who's a multimillionaire and how she's going to dress sexy for him and all this other crap, trying to see if I'll cave or lose frame, which I don't. I'm very nonchalant and indifferent.

Eventually we get to this dialogue:

- "I told beta_boy about what happened with us"
- I said "really, you broke his heart, why?"
- she says "I just couldn't keep it to myself anymore, I felt so guilty" (validates the theory someone posted here recently that women cannot keep secrets to themselves)
- I say "how did that go down then?"
- she says "well, I changed it a little bit, I said we just kissed and that it didn't go any further than that"
- I say "well technically, you're not lying"
- and she goes "I know, right?" basically, it did go further, we fucked, but she had some LMR where she said she wasn't going to cheat on him, I acted like I didn't give a shit, quashed the LMR and then we fucked.

She's rewriting history by using her memory selectively to only reveal parts of the truth rather than the full truth, which is omission of truth, the lack of full disclosure is an indirect lie when you purposely leave out crucial information, which is what she's doing here with her beta bf.

When she told him about it, he got really angry and almost left her (her words) bare in mind this reaction is based off the trickle truth that we merely kissed and that things went no further than that, which is a lie. If you're ever on the receiving end of this and it's "just a kiss" or a "handjob" or "a blowjob" or "she just watched" don't believe her for a second, she's trickle truthing your ass.

She then threw an ultimatum at him "if you're going to leave, then leave now and don't come back" (now there's multiple reasons she threw him this ultimatum - #1 is she wants to branch swing to me even though I told her I want no exclusivity with her, she's fucking silly, she's still trying for it anyway, #2 is she wants to control the frame of her relship and keep him enthralled by suggesting shes indifferent to whether he leaves her or not, either way she wins) after that little stunt, her "i dont give a fuck attitude" towards him is successful, with his rage wearing off, he starts blaming himself, saying if he'd worked less (guy does 12 hour shifts and works like a fucking boss) and paid more attention to her then maybe she wouldn't of felt the need to go off with another guy and cheat.

He takes all the blame for it and she lets him. She even believes her own hamstering afterwards which is quite funny, she says to me "if he paid more attention to me we'd probably never have had sex" (trying to steal my power by saying I'm not attractive in and of myself, I realise what's she's doing) so I reply with "you shouldn't be left alone with me because you can't resist me." (Narcissism always works THEY EAT THAT SHIT UP.)

She tells me that me and her can't do that again (I know this is a shit test) and I say "If that's your choice then fair enough" (acting like IDGAF!) we talk some more and we're flirting back and forth over the phone, she's flirting with shit tests and I'm batting back, she loves the banter, she's giggling and getting turned on (her voice becomes increasingly sexualised and feminine in tone) then eventually she says "so what are we gonna do about this situation?" I play my asshole game, I know she wants the plausible deniability and for me to ultimately make the decision that leads to her doing something naughty so that she can blame me for it later on, but instead I say "whatever you want I don't care" she goes "Noooooooooooo tell me!" in a girly voice and I say "Haha, winding you up, come and stay at mine at the weekend, wear sexy underwear" she's like "OK, I'll message you tomorrow to arrange logistics" we flirt some more, and then say good night.

TLDR: fucks me, tells her beta bf we only kissed, he gets pissed and almost balls up, she throws an ultimatum, he falls for that BS and stays, she tells me she isn't going to fuck me again, I say "OK, that's nice" flirt with her, now she's coming back for round 2. LOL.

56

UPVOTES

Feminism is Socially Accepted Bigotry | Men and the Red Pill

20 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

39

UPVOTES

An Analysis of "The Red Pill" - Dissecting The Red Pill

27 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

97

UPVOTES

This is what happens when a woman refuses the sisterhood by calling feminism irrelevant (/r/redpillwomen)

1 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

26
UPVOTES

Being alpha doesn't necessarily mean being popular

4 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

55

UPVOTES

Red Pill Comedy

6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

32

UPVOTES

Dissecting The Red Pill (Part 2) - Q&A

10 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

4

UPVOTES

Women being red pill about sex - todays discussions

16 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

40

UPVOTES

Understanding the Dark Triad

17 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

17

UPVOTES

The Destruction of Family and Other “Liberating Legacies” we can Thank Feminist Social Engineering for

25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

10

UPVOTES

BBC News - Clare's Law Expanded to England and Wales - Women are now Allowed to Do Police Background Checks on New Boyfriends to see if he has a history of violence.

25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

21
UPVOTES

Utilising the Dark Triad – Machiavellianism

2 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

19
UPVOTES

Feminism & Women's Logic

5 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

10
UPVOTES

Feminism Helps Ethnically Displace Caucasians

9 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

19

UPVOTES

Never Outshine the Master (Machiavellianism) (LONG READ)

11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

19

UPVOTES

Italian girl 'sexually assaulted' riot cop with a kiss

16 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is too funny not to share:

<http://rt.com/news/italy-protester-kiss-police-271/>

Hilarious when the BULLSHIT sexual harassment charges are flipped on their side isn't it?

Funny because they tried to pass it off as "peaceful protesting" but she wrote on her facebook:

"No peace message... I would hang all these disgusting pigs upside down"

52
UPVOTES

Understanding Social Market Value

17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

146

UPVOTES

Respect yourself more than you respect her

21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'll post a more detailed FR in the monday thread but long story short, went out last night, place was dead, saw a cute chick smiling at me (who was with a guy, but I gave no fucks) so approached, spoke to her, guy got upset or some shit, dont know, wasnt paying attention to him, he fucked off leaving me with the chick, we had some random inane conversation, told her to stick her number in my phone... she gave me 2 fucking numbers.

Guy comes back. Introduces himself to me, we chat, I tell him his girlfriend just gave me her number after just a few minutes of conversation when she hardly knows me and he needs to look out for that shit. At the start he was being all blue pill saying shit like "why are you taking her number" as if it's not her fault, its mine. I said "look if she didn't want to give me her number, she didn't have to" but she did - she wanted to - it's her choice - and she's meant to be here with you. Don't tolerate that kind of shit. You have to be careful with women because they're constantly pulling shit like this. (Yes, I wasn't out looking for pussy, just in the joint with my boy out of boredom... distilling that redpill goodness like I'm a fucking field medic.)

Should have seen her. Starts giggling/behaving submissive while maintaining eye contact with me as I say this shit to her BF. Like she's getting moist over the truth or some shit.

How fucking beta/morally degrading is that, that you put yourself through that for what is probably a 18-22 yr old mexican HB8-9? Doesn't matter how fucking hot she is, respect yourself first. She's betraying his trust, she didn't give me a fake number or any other BS, nothing but the token resistance "I have a boyfriend" before putting her number in and I crushed that with a simple "so, who cares?" LOL. WOW. She's not even trying to blag it.

If you're the kinda guy whose frame is so weak a girl will do this to you, you've got far to go.

If you're the kinda guy who has frame but your girl is just a cunt and does shit like this anyway relegate her to the fuck-zone or tell her to get lost. Such a chick is not worthy of the emotions/time/money of a LTR. This chick was young with a good ratio of cute to sexy, but violating the guy. There was no fucking boundaries set in place for that kind of behaviour judging the weakness of his frame, and if there was, she was overstepping them anyways, making them pointless.

This whole interaction just reaffirms the reality that even if she was a quality chick (I don't really know her well enough to gauge her personal qualities from this simple interaction), if you're going to be weak she's going to betray you and look for the strongest man she can get. I'd say this one's ready to branch swing to the nearest available upgrade. That is the red pill reality of male to female relationships.

Respect yourself first and foremost, before the girl and more than the girl. Don't pedestalize the fucking pussy, I have no idea how many times this has been said, but it seems its something that can never be said enough because too many of you fucks are doing exactly that.

I felt a strange mixture of pity/anger for this guy.

13
UPVOTES

Success is Alpha, Failure is Beta

26 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

12

UPVOTES

Dark Triad - Researchers use Facebook status updates to find potential psychopaths.

27 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

37

UPVOTES

Utilising the Dark Triad – Psychopathy (VERY IN-DEPTH, LONG READ)

28 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

74

UPVOTES

Wake the Fuck Up

30 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

34

UPVOTES

20's Men – The Quest for Power, The Decade of Empire

3 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

217

UPVOTES

Long Term Inner-Game - You can't be dependent on her love and you can't share your weaknesses with her if you want to keep her, among other nuggets of wisdom (bullet pointed)

15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/01/14/mans-burden-the-feminine-conundrum/>

My newest article as usual is a long one, except this time I've gone to the trouble of summarising most of the major points for you:

- Never be dependent on a woman for her love.
- Do not convey too many significant weaknesses to a woman, for it shall instill doubt into her about your value as a man and destroy her attraction for you.
- Women don't love us in the way we love them, they love differently and thus expecting from her what she expects from you will doom you to failure.
- As soon as any of your weaknesses are made abundantly clear she will begin to feel disenchanted and this will cause her to start a process of weighing up her options.
- You will feel it is your duty to fix her emotional issues as will she, this is an unspoken agreement, however the reverse is not true (in LTRs, obviously not one night stands et al)
- Women are great at saving face and even better, believing earnestly in their own bullshit, their reality and position on things is in a constant state of flux (they're not credible.)
- Women are not bound by honour - it is a male abstraction.
- Many men underestimate the power of the feminine, that which is the allure of the submissive and fail to understand the inherent control and influence that this has upon you. They are not weak, their power is just non-tangible, ad nauseum: Men love to play this game of convincing themselves that they're in control in their relationship with a woman when in fact they are falling slowly into her grip.
- Those who think relationships are not war (due to their conflictual nature) are naive.
- You are maintaining the war and optimally do so that it balances in your favour, however victory is prohibited, for winning the battle means losing "her love", love is metaphysically a state of constant conflict, without conflict, there is no love, without conflict there is boredom, passionless.
- The beauty is in the game itself, not the outcome of the game. If you don't enjoy the game, you cannot take the lead in it. (Applies to everything, not just women.)
- She will always put herself before you.
- You are not special to her as an individual, your strength and power is what causes her to be attracted to you, nothing more, nothing less, ad nauseum: women do not love you, but the idea of what or who "you" is.
- They are incapable of loving you in the way in which you idealise, the hierarchy of sacrifice is men > women and women > children of either gender, it does not operate in reverse and your expectation that it should is futile. This is also why the idea of gender equality is perverse as the expectation of sacrifice is not and cannot be equally distributed among people regardless of their genetic identity much to the dismay of western idealism.
- You are completely disposable to women.

- Men are humanity's true romantics (sacrificial love - male is more intense than utilitarian love - female) hence man's deeper mourning for lost lovers of days gone by.
- The bottom line in all elements of life is VICTORY or FAILURE, relationships are no exception.
- Realise the limitations of womankind, accept them.
- A man is always truly alone, there is nobody "higher up" for you to depend upon, you're the end of the line, in the absence of a belief in God.
- Every man has a burden he must carry, none of you are exempt.

109
UPVOTES

Feminism Explained (Funny as Fuck)

19 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=05ro6fcj6Ek>

This shit is hilarious, an argument with a feminist in the hypothetical reality where they say what they think without the smoke and mirrors. LMFAO. Red pill as fuck.

55

UPVOTES

Play On People's Need to Believe – 48 Laws of Power/Dark Triad

29 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/01/29/play-on-peoples-need-to-believe-exemplified-and-explained/>

48 Laws of power related. As always, it's long as fuck. Grab a coffee and enjoy!

26
UPVOTES

Value Your Time to Gain Value
2 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Narcissism is the most relevant dark triad trait when it comes to creating attraction either romantically or non-romantically. "Positive Narcissism" is what allows one to game everybody around them, it is the embodiment of charisma. "Negative Narcissism" is what repels everyone around the individual exhibiting it. I'm going to write articles more at length on these subjects quite soon, however I'll tease you for now with this post and throw you some bones, bullet points. Great for those of you with the attention span of a cat preoccupied by some yarn.

Negative Narcissism:

- Weak frame/insecure/tense body language
- Low confidence - fearful
- Does not believe in themselves (inferiority complex)
- Easily offended as they value others opinion so much
- Averse to criticism (can be confrontational, but will blameshift focus away from themselves, prone to taking a victim position)
- Diffuses responsibility for mistakes
- Overly concerned with others perception of them as a matter of projection because they do not perceive themselves very well
- Despite the previous point paradoxically exhibits baseless pride due to lack of accomplishment
- Believes they are better than others but doesn't feel like they are, it's not their fault, they are perpetual victims
- Demonstrates low value
- Cares about their physical appearance, worries if it is not up to scratch

The negative narcissist is your typical single mother who's fucked up in life and is stuck in a poverty trap.

Positive Narcissism:

- Strong frame/emotionally secure/strong posture
- Overconfident - fearless
- Obsessed with their own brilliance (god complex)
- Difficult to offend as your opinion means so little to them
- Loves to confront criticism, will disregard you as inferior
- Doesn't give a fuck about others opinions as they value themselves so obsessively that external validation is a bonus not a requirement
- Diffuses responsibility for mistakes
- Very proud, previous accomplishments only validate and exacerbate said pride
- Feels entitled to the best of everything and believes they will get it.
- Demonstrates high value.
- Cares about their physical appearance, gets slightly turned on seeing a reflection of their six-pack in the mirror.

The positive narcissist is your typical high-flying boardroom C.E.O.

Occasionally there can be some cross-lap, although it's not typical. EG: a negative narcissist can feel entitled to the best things in life. Look at the bullet points and ask yourself which list you most identify with. Be truthful with yourself.

56

UPVOTES

[Re-post] Explaining the Red Pill (for all the new subscribers)

7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

/u/blazingblue16 said it in a succinct manner 3 months ago and it still applies now

This sub really needs to sticky quality answers for women or men who come here just to be like "I'm a woman!" "I'm new!" "Answer my questions since I am confused and haven't read the side bar nor took the time to think about anything presented in the side bar..."

Understanding the Red Pill (Part 1)

Article - <http://illimitablemen.com/2013/10/27/dissecting-the-red-pill/>

Understanding the Red Pill (Part 2)

Article - <http://illimitablemen.com/2013/11/10/dissecting-the-red-pill-part-2-q-and-a/>

Original Reddit Post of Part 2:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/1pw1da/i_am_somewhat_confused_about_trp_and_how_it_views/cd6o7le

If you have any further questions or contentions to make, feel free to do so here, or if you're so recently subscribed you can't post yet send me a PM and I'll get back to you. I'm sure any other endorsed contributors who drop in here will do their best to assist you too.

Best of luck everyone, we're all gonna make it.

27

UPVOTES

Stories of sadistic bitches, got any?

8 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you have, please describe her personality/mannerisms, anything that stuck out specifically about her. Any stories which demonstrate her predilection for schadenfreude (enjoying other peoples pain), etc etc.

These women are typically so mentally unhealthy and so far gone they are not even loveable people, however their insanity is intensely interesting so please, even if you need to make a throwaway do share any stories you deem relevant.

Thanks in advance.

Some of the books in my personal library of books I own or books I wish to read, lots of red pill knowledge and ideas are contained within these texts:

- 1984 (Nineteen Eighty Four) - by George Orwell - Political distillation of today's western police states delivered through a dystopic fiction tale. Revolutionary for predicting the state of Britain in 1984 when released in 1948, many of the prophecies came true.
- 48 Laws of Power - by Robert Greene - Tenets and principles of Machiavellianism, this is a MUST read. You will come back to this again and again for advice on strategy in a particular social paradigm you find yourself in.
- 50 Philosophy of Science Ideas - by Gareth Southwell - Nice little philosophy book I stumbled upon in a book shop. Very red pill, I'll screenshot the contents as there's a lot covered and I don't want to drag out this descriptive section, no section is particularly long, it is something of a brief book covering many topics, but nevertheless useful and insightful for introducing you to other topics which you may not have otherwise been aware of which you can go and research more in-depth should you wise. Good light reading on heavy topics, easy to pick up and put down. <http://i.imgur.com/k71Tc24.jpg>
- An Anatomy of Addiction: Sigmund Freud, William Halsted, and the Miracle Drug Cocaine - by Howard Markel - Looks at how high grade cocaine was the motivational driving force behind the success and discoveries of Freud and Halsted to both psychology and medicine respectively.
- Animal Farm - by George Orwell - Haven't read this, just had it recommended to me countless times.
- Art of Seduction - by Robert Greene - Psychological Female Seduction Archetypes - I haven't read much of it, I haven't been able to tolerate it thus far, I will go back to it. Everybody else rates it highly, can't personally endorse this one yet despite having shelled out the cash.
- Art of War The Ancient Classics (Capstone Classics) - by Sun Tzu - Machiavellianism Philosophy with a militaristic strategy approach
- Atlas Shrugged - by Ayn Rand - Fiction, heavy reading, meant to be very precise. Haven't read it but has come highly recommended a couple of times now.
- Mastery - by Robert Greene - Self improvement with an emphasis on the power of the persistence of focus, persistence trumps natural talent.
- Outwitting the Devil - by Napoleon Hill - Psychoanalytic self-help delivered with crude, succinct satire.
- Rational Male - by Rollo Tomassi - Sexual Strategy - Manosphere book with all the lingo you're accustomed to.
- The 33 Strategies of War - by Robert Greene - a more contemporary Art of War as retold by Greene, outside the context of Ancient China.
- The Alchemist - by Paulo Coelho - bought, not read. Fiction tale. Can be read in a day (light reading)
- The Prince - by Niccolo Machiavelli - Machiavellian satire.
- The Wealth of Nations The Economic Classic: A Selected Edition for the Contemporary Reader (Capstone Classics) - by Adam Smith - economics book on how nations acquire wealth.
- The World as Will and Representation Vol.1 - by Arthur Schopenhauer - Mind blowing philosophical work looking at the metaphysics of sexual love among other things.

- The World as Will and Representation Vol.2 - by Arthur Schopenhauer
- Zen in the Art of Archery by Eugen Herrigel - meditation for frame control and stoicism.

Have always been recommended some Friedrich Nietzsche works, but cannot remember the titles in question for the life of me, shame. He's on my to read list also.

Also check out /r/redpillbooks for more reading suggestions.

Some of the books in my personal library of books I own or books I wish to read, lots of red pill knowledge and ideas are contained within these texts:

- 1984 (Nineteen Eighty Four) - by George Orwell - Political distillation of today's western police states delivered through a dystopic fiction tale. Revolutionary for predicting the state of Britain in 1984 when released in 1948, many of the prophecies came true.
- 48 Laws of Power - by Robert Greene - Tenets and principles of Machiavellianism, this is a MUST read. You will come back to this again and again for advice on strategy in a particular social paradigm you find yourself in.
- 50 Philosophy of Science Ideas - by Gareth Southwell - Nice little philosophy book I stumbled upon in a book shop. Very red pill, I'll screenshot the contents as there's a lot covered and I don't want to drag out this descriptive section, no section is particularly long, it is something of a brief book covering many topics, but nevertheless useful and insightful for introducing you to other topics which you may not have otherwise been aware of which you can go and research more in-depth should you wise. Good light reading on heavy topics, easy to pick up and put down. <http://i.imgur.com/k71Tc24.jpg>
- An Anatomy of Addiction: Sigmund Freud, William Halsted, and the Miracle Drug Cocaine - by Howard Markel - Looks at how high grade cocaine was the motivational driving force behind the success and discoveries of Freud and Halsted to both psychology and medicine respectively.
- Animal Farm - by George Orwell - Haven't read this, just had it recommended to me countless times.
- Art of Seduction - by Robert Greene - Psychological Female Seduction Archetypes - I haven't read much of it, I haven't been able to tolerate it thus far, I will go back to it. Everybody else rates it highly, can't personally endorse this one yet despite having shelled out the cash.
- Art of War The Ancient Classics (Capstone Classics) - by Sun Tzu - Machiavellianism Philosophy with a militaristic strategy approach
- Atlas Shrugged - by Ayn Rand - Fiction, heavy reading, meant to be very precise. Haven't read it but has come highly recommended a couple of times now.
- Mastery - by Robert Greene - Self improvement with an emphasis on the power of the persistence of focus, persistence trumps natural talent.
- Outwitting the Devil - by Napoleon Hill - Psychoanalytic self-help delivered with crude, succinct satire.
- Rational Male - by Rollo Tomassi - Sexual Strategy - Manosphere book with all the lingo you're accustomed to.
- The 33 Strategies of War - by Robert Greene - a more contemporary Art of War as retold by Greene, outside the context of Ancient China.
- The Alchemist - by Paulo Coelho - bought, not read. Fiction tale. Can be read in a day (light reading)
- The Prince - by Niccolo Machiavelli - Machiavellian satire.
- The Wealth of Nations The Economic Classic: A Selected Edition for the Contemporary Reader (Capstone Classics) - by Adam Smith - economics book on how nations acquire wealth.
- The World as Will and Representation Vol.1 - by Arthur Schopenhauer - Mind blowing philosophical work looking at the metaphysics of sexual love among other things.

- The World as Will and Representation Vol.2 - by Arthur Schopenhauer
- Zen in the Art of Archery by Eugen Herrigel - meditation for frame control and stoicism.

Have always been recommended some Friedrich Nietzsche works, but cannot remember the titles in question for the life of me, shame. He's on my to read list also.

Also check out /r/redpillbooks for more reading suggestions.

21

UPVOTES

How to not give a fuck - Elliott Husle

12 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Zp-U79tlScw>

Inner-game stuff, good video about not giving a fuck, basically the jist of things is to be detached and remain objective both in the face of PRAISE and CRITICISM.

The Psychology of an intelligent Crazy Bitch aka "Lucifer's Daughter"

17 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Article link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

Summation of articles principle assertions:

- Generally they were raped/abused or otherwise corrupted early on within the developmental process, I have a loose theory there is a possibility of being biological "Lucifer's daughters" but have no frame of reference to base such a theory on and thus have not further explored it.
- They view reality through a perception of victimhood and use this to condone their immorality as acceptable "tu quoque fallacy."
- They are incredibly manipulative and proficient in deriving utility from people, often with their powers of perception finding uses for people that they themselves didn't they know they would be good for.
- They are incredibly sadistic, they enjoy causing people emotional pain and using said pain to control them.
- They are attracted to extremely weak and extremely strong people for alternating reasons, the weak for the perversity they can enage in, the strong for the utility they can provide. They tend to avoid average people for being "too boring" and lacking any unique application for her personal desire.
- They are intelligent, unintelligent crazy bitches are your run of the mill cluster B's who implode in on themselves and have breakdowns and other such shit, these bitches may feign a breakdown but are very much in control of themselves and their surroundings due to the sense and level of control they possess.
- They harness their sexuality to complement their psychological perversions, however even in old age a Lucifer's daughter can adequately exercise power, she will employ beauty privilege as a useful asset but she is not bound to it due to her machiavellian intelligence. She is good at cashing in her fertile years for maximum gain and effect.

As usual it's a long piece (you should really be prepared for that by now) so grab your coffees.

The Psychology of an intelligent Crazy Bitch aka "Lucifer's Daughter" [X-post from /r/TheRedPill]

17 February 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Article link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

Summation of articles principle assertions:

- Generally they were raped/abused or otherwise corrupted early on within the developmental process, I have a loose theory there is a possibility of being biological "Lucifer's daughters" but have no frame of reference to base such a theory on and thus have not further explored it.
- They view reality through a perception of victimhood and use this to condone their immorality as acceptable "tu quoque fallacy."
- They are incredibly manipulative and proficient in deriving utility from people, often with their powers of perception finding uses for people that they themselves didn't they know they would be good for.
- They are incredibly sadistic, they enjoy causing people emotional pain and using said pain to control them.
- They are attracted to extremely weak and extremely strong people for alternating reasons, the weak for the perversity they can enage in, the strong for the utility they can provide. They tend to avoid average people for being "too boring" and lacking any unique application for her personal desire.
- They are intelligent, unintelligent crazy bitches are your run of the mill cluster B's who implode in on themselves and have breakdowns and other such shit, these bitches may feign a breakdown but are very much in control of themselves and their surroundings due to the sense and level of control they possess.
- They harness their sexuality to complement their psychological perversions, however even in old age a Lucifer's daughter can adequately exercise power, she will employ beauty privilege as a useful asset but she is not bound to it due to her machiavellian intelligence. She is good at cashing in her fertile years for maximum gain and effect.

Feel free to ask me questions, I have no issue in explaining anything, we often think of the dark triad as merely a masculine phenomenon, however the dark triad female is merely a different flavour of the same phenomenon. In fact everytime I say dark triad here I'm using a misnomer, a Lucifer's Daughter is better described as dark tetrad for they are sadistic as fuck. I'm saying "dark triad" as most people don't know what dark tetrad is (it is the triad plus the trait of sadism.)

114
UPVOTES

Understanding the Friend Zone Scam and the Role Marriage Plays in it (Part 1)

20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

URL:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/20/understanding-the-friend-zone-scam-and-the-role-marriage-plays-in-it-part-1/>

This article is mainly aimed at new guy betas who have friendzone problems as well as guys who have found themselves in sexless marriages due to an inability to hold frame and set boundaries with their woman.

Main themes explored:

- Identifies sexless marriage as an often overlooked form of friend zone with harsher penalties in place making escape more difficult.
- Synoptically links marriage to the friend zone by exploring the concept that the friend zone can be applied retroactively to a relationship by a woman once sex has already taken place because she [the woman] has attained the ultimate security of your provisioning via the institution of marriage.
- Looks at value exchange between men and women and why women have no motivation to elevate a beta from the friend zone into relationship status "she doesn't want to ruin what you've got" more aptly translated as:
"you're giving me everything I need already so I don't need to fuck you to get what I want out of you."

Enjoy. Special thanks to /u/Archwinger and /u/Human_v2 for inspiring the blog post.

959

UPVOTES

Red Pill Antibiotic Nuke, Come and Feed

23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This post is now available off-site too.

<http://illimitablemen.com/understanding-the-red-pill/red-pill-constitution/>

This post contains a lot of generalisations which embody fundamental beliefs of the red pill philosophy, this list is extensive but not exhaustive. These are bullet points and thus there is not a case study for every point made and there is not necessarily an explanation given with each bullet point. This is because this information has been designed to be snappy and easy to absorb, not an academic dissertation on each belief and concept shared. Think of it as something of a partial codification of many different RP beliefs.

- Feminists claim they want equality but what they really want is power without responsibility. They desire both male and female privilege consolidated into one, thus upsetting the gender balance. They want the privileges of being women (privilege such as being economically provided for, getting opportunities based on their beauty and protection from physical harm by others) as well as male privilege (authority, respect for having a career, to not be judged so harshly based on appearance etc) which is neither pragmatic nor realistic, it ignores the biological basis for how the genders perceive each other in the ignorance that "everything is a social construct!" and we are mostly "the same" when quite evidently this is not the case.
- Women are irrational and inconsistent, they have a capacity for logic but it is not their modus operandi, that is to say that they must exert effort to be logical as it is not their factory setting. A logical woman is easily baited into becoming emotional; women are easy to compromise. Their decisions are based on their current emotional state rather than the abstraction of logic. It's this proclivity to change so quickly which causes them to act inconsistently and in contradiction.
- Women are machiavellian in nature, this means they are comparatively proficient at being manipulative versus the typical male. The evolutionary theoretical basis for this is due to smaller size and inferior musculature women had to learn to use men as tools rather than directly oppose them in a physical conflict (as they would undoubtedly lose in all but very few scenarios) this makes the pronunciation of their strength a propensity to be mentally rather than physically violent. Physical violence is outlawed whereas mental abuse is not, this allows women to get their way without being held accountable by a system of law. The law does not legislate interpersonal morality to this extent. Where a man's instinct is to hit, a woman's is to do a big shit in your mind instead.
- Race does not matter if you are rich. A lot of you are small-minded and stuck on the superficial, white-black-arab-indian-asian whatever, you have a certain perception of the world based upon your culture, perhaps where you live the white man is god, but know all racial barriers are overcome by power, money is power, if you're a 5' asian with a 2 inch dick that girls laugh at a 7 digit bank balance is sure to offset that. Focus less on your race and more on your success, your insecurities will get you no where. The real segregation is between rich and poor and that is even more true when it comes down to women, never forget that. Rich vs. poor is the only thing that matters in this world, white vs black, west coast vs east coast, all these other "beefs" are a minor, they are all symptoms of wealth inequality, the bottom line is wealth. Rich vs poor motherfuckers.
- Women are hypergamous they feel entitled to a superior mate. You have to be richer than her or at least equally rich, more educated than her or at least equally educated. You need to be better looking than her or at least equal looking, you need to be more popular than she is or at least equally popular. You can offset one area (LMS - looks, money, status) with another, but if you're lower in at least 2 areas just forget it.
- Buying into the last point, this is why 20% of guys are fucking 80% of the chicks, women date up, men date down and yes this has created rising social inequality since women entered the professions

- If a woman thinks she is better than you she can't respect you, if she can't respect you she can't love you. Women love men differently to the way men love women. Woman's love is based on adoration, adoration is a concentrated amount of respect. Respect is derived from power. Be powerful if you want to be loved, or you will never be loved. You will be held in contempt for being weak.
- Women rely on men to be emotionally stoic, we often call this "holding frame" you have to be mentally strong so she can lean on you, she finds that attractive. You cannot lean on her, there is a double standard, if you lean on her the relationship will fall apart, she will not be able to handle your problems and she will no longer find you attractive. You are a man. You have to be better than her, which means to be stronger than she is. This is why women get to be emotional and we have to be unreactive, we are strong and ignore our emotions so they can indulge in their emotions and enjoy the ride. They find it far more difficult to be logical than we do and thus it is our burden to be the reasonable ones.
- Always set boundaries, with everyone. Do not be a pushover. This is probably the most important bulletpoint here.
- Buying into the last point women have little sympathy for weak men, despite the fairer sex bullshit you may be accustomed to hearing a man is far more likely to assist a weak man financially or emotionally than a woman is.
- Women are more selfish than men are in matters of money and love. Man's love is expected to be sacrificial, woman's isn't.
- Women love pragmatically and have no capacity to love unconditionally for romantic partners, only their children. Men can love women unconditionally. There is a hierarchy of love: Men > Women > Children.
- Women have a pronounced gender group bias which means they typically de facto side with other women in a conflict regardless of logic or argument, women are herd like and stick together closely, they form cartels and use the power of the group to hen peck/destroy enemies.
- Women have a sexual plurality, if you are a nice guy with money you are husband material that can nail her after 12 dates and she's had so many glasses of wine she forgets how on a primal level you're not that attractive, just cute. If you are an asshole with nice muscles you're the guy who gets to nail her after 2 hours of meeting. We call this sexual plurality in rather rhythmic slang: "alpha fucks, beta bucks"
- Women do not care about male weakness and neither does society, if you are weak, depressed, small, poor, uneducated, unconfident, not powerful then nobody cares. People only care about you when you're powerful or a pretty woman. You have to pull yourself up by the bootstraps because nobody gives a fuck about you. Society will always have a safety net for women, white knights will charge in, the state will provide and etc, as a man you have no such luxury, your propensity and ability to gain power is much higher than a woman's but your ability to hit rock bottom is far more pronounced too. As men we are more extreme than women. Women are typically average and don't move much either side of the bell curve, as men we are either highly successful geniuses of repute that feminists can but scoff and be jealous of, the posterboys for their esteemed patriarchy, or the ignored voiceless poverty stricken peasant class that nobody gives a flying fuck about.
- The law prioritises female safety and well-being over logic, honour and justice. Family law has been corrupted and is now controlled by feminist ideological dogma. The constitutions equitable maxims are rewritten by modern statutes, Rollo Tomassi of Rational Male did a very relevant article on this topic here: <http://therationalmale.com/2014/01/14/the-second-set-of-books/>
- Western females (typically anglosphere and western/northern Europe) are self-entitled and come from a psychological position of thinking they're better than you are. They believe that shit despite their numerous insecurities because they have been raised to view men as instruments for their desires, they have been told they must be impressed, that a man must wine and dine her and ultimately the onus is on him to win her heart, she will obsess over her relationship status frantically and doll herself up but ultimately her part is entirely passive. She comes from a position of superiority and illogically believes she is superior to all but the most high value of men. Part of the red pill is realising her capacity for brilliance is lower than yours, which brings me on to the next point.

- Women need men more than men need women. Men generally want sex and perhaps a family so they have a genetic lineage to leave their worldly goods and knowledge to once they die (so they may live on through their offspring) however women need men for their logical minds and stoic consistency, to make her emotionally stabilised "being the rock in her storm", and also need a partner just to "feel complete." Just look at single mother households and all the older women who are single, they are miserable. These women NEED a man to be happy, men DO NOT need women to be happy, men need SEX to be happy. A bachelor is a not an unhappy guy, a bachelorette is.
- Women are depreciating assets, their major asset and unique selling point is their sexual beauty and fertility. Most of them squander their best years on "riding the cock carousel" which means fucking lots of different guys in nightclubs, having flings, being generally irresponsible and riding through life on easy mode getting ahead for no real talent, but because she's pretty and can give head. Women are born, their ability to conceive children is what makes them women.
- Men are not born they are created. Poverty, difficulty, heartache, oppression, pain - these are the things that make men out of boys. This is why you came to TRP. This is why boys come back from the military as men. Conflict and pain is what forges the masculine mindset, men cannot grow without conflict and learning from their mistakes, men need to apply their logical minds to problems which arise, elevate, and transcend their previous selves to become more powerful. Men are never born, they are always bred in the bloody fields of battle and war be it economic, mental or physical. A man is a soldier of differing kinds, a man has learnt to repress his fear so he may overcome and achieve.
- Men take more risks than women and are expected to do so, being fearful, unconfident and risk averse as a man leads to failure. You must be confrontational and risk-taking.
- Single mothers [typically] breed boys not men (without outside intervention.) Boys do little except play xbox and eat pizza with no direction in life, they have little luck with girls and end up drinking themselves to dead smoking pot in their 40s. There's more women in education than men now. Think about that shit for a second. The system has been set up against you, pull yourself up by the bootstraps.
- The red pill is about pragmatism and truth based on observation, it is not idealistic, in some ways you can say it is liberal - but it is not liberal in the idealistic pseudo academic sense your institutions have taught you to perceive it as. Liberalism has become corrupted. Liberals today censor and silence opposing opinions, I'm not talking about political parties I'm talking about ideologically left leaning people, their thoughts and ideas are based in idealism not directly measurable truth, liberalism has become the religion to pragmatism's science.
- Social market value is everything, something a low value man says which is "creepy" when said by a high value man is "flirty" or "sexy." Always be focusing on your physical appearance and make it the best that you can, this will make your life easier in all areas, not just sexually but financially too as caused by a phenomenon explored known as the halo effect
- Your value is everything you should always be improving yourself, if you're not then you cannot compete in the world and your life will be miserable, anesthetized by nothing but the introversion of the four walls you reside in kept docile by xbox, porn, pizza and some online friends. Break free of the mediocrity.
- Your diet and exercise place a certain handicap on your ability to utilise your potential. The obese and those who eat poorly (but aren't necessarily fat) are typically low energy and thus waste a lot of time unproductively as they are not in the right mental state to get anything done. You need to take care of your body so then your body will allow your mind to implement it's will onto the world. You must be physically active so that you can mentally put your plans into action. Procrastination is the slow acting poison of one who lives a sedentary lifestyle. Physically active people make things happen in other areas of their life too. Exercise is invigorating. Stop putting it off. Do it.

- Your body is the temple that houses your mind, following on from the previous point higher testosterone will help you increase your abilities and leave you feeling more energetic - lift, it will give you a rush of energy like nothing else and further increase your T creating a positive feedback cycle. Jog/do cardio - a runners high again is like a drug, you will feel awesome after a jog, your anxiety goes right down and your confidence rises. Keep it up and the effects stack and become part of your personality.

Visit <http://illimitablemen.com/> for more medicine.

Listen to <http://beigephillip.com/> and youtube "black phillip" or "patrice o neal" for more red pill goodness.

Subscribe to /r/redpillmusic for red pill music and /r/redpillbooks for red pill literature. Immerse yourself and actualise and you'll live a life you never thought was even attainable, it will be a long slog but if you focus your mind on it you will make it to that top 20%.

- Update: 05/05/2014 - Typos
- Update: 12/08/2014 - URL change to off-site constitution
- Update: 17/08/2015 - Typos

29

UPVOTES

All men with game are just good salesmen [X-post from /r/alreadyred]

23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://redditlog.com/snapshots/268657>

Some great game theory which exemplifies social dynamics using the analogy of women being consumers and men being salesmen this is detailed by depicting men as needing the skill to "make the sale" (attract) so that a woman "takes the plunge" (buys into his offer) so to speak. It's a very good analogy and emphasises how women don't really need to put a lot of effort into attracting the opposite sex whilst men do, men have to make passive improvements (physical) as well as active (game) where women only need to concentrate on passive. I won't say much more here as it's all evident within the redditlog.

4

UPVOTES

The Western Dichotomy - Idealisation vs. Pragmatism

3 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/01/the-western-dichotomy-idealisation-vs-pragmatism/>

Topic of the article is about the state of western civilization due to idealism, the main theme is critical of how diversity is embraced at the cost of solidarity.

I posted this before under a different title but I removed that topic for two main reasons:

- There were enough run-on sentences to kill an olympian on a treadmill, I was too eager to release it and not eager enough to edit my own stream of consciousness so I mistakenly published a rough albeit almost finished draft.
- We had a mini-brigade from SRD burying comments.

Enjoy and discuss.

6

UPVOTES

The Machiavellian Friend Zone - A Lesson in Leverage [Dark Triad]

6 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you consider yourself to be a righteous or moral person, this article comes with a huge trigger warning as the methodologies discussed are far from moral, consider that your first and only warning.

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/06/the-machiavellian-friend-zone-a-lesson-in-leverage/>

Excerpt from the first 2 paragraphs:

I've recently been devising a social strategy that machiavellian alphas can use to fully play to their strengths, this can be used with both sexes, however speaking as a man all the "sexual machiavellianism" within assumes you are heterosexual and is therefore written in reference to women. Readers of the red pill philosophy in general or even just this site should know about the dark triad, however the vast majority of people never reach all 3 peaks of the triad, that is to say, clinical narcissism, psychopathy and machiavellianism, in fact the neural plasticity to induce psychopathy seems far more difficult to cognitively rewire than the pathways needed to induce machiavellian and narcissistic personality traits, it seems psychopathy is far more genetic in basis whilst narcissism and machiavellianism are much more easily induced by the presence of permitting social factors.

The economy of dark secrets is a rich and lucrative one, needless to say however, like the law courts require, a machiavellian interested in the procurement of dark secrets and utilising them as leverage for either exploitation or self-preservation needs to have evidence that will convince the target's supporters that the secret is valid in order to ensure success, you should always crush your enemy totally (law 15) because in the secrets trade, if the secret cannot crush totally - it may not be able to crush at all, or at the very least, have it's effects mitigated so profusely that your ability to exercise leverage is vastly diminished.

18

UPVOTES

The Machiavellian Friend Zone - A Lesson in Leverage [Dark Triad]

6 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Finally managed to edit and finish up my piece on the Machiavellian Friend Zone.

If you consider yourself to be a righteous or moral person, this article comes with a huge trigger warning as the methodologies discussed are far from moral, consider that your first and only warning.

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/06/the-machiavellian-friend-zone-a-lesson-in-leverage/>

Excerpt from the first 2 paragraphs:

I've recently been devising a social strategy that machiavellian alphas can use to fully play to their strengths, this can be used with both sexes, however speaking as a man all the "sexual machiavellianism" within assumes you are heterosexual and is therefore written in reference to women. Readers of the red pill philosophy in general or even just this site should know about the dark triad, however the vast majority of people never reach all 3 peaks of the triad, that is to say, clinical narcissism, psychopathy and machiavellianism, in fact the neural plasticity to induce psychopathy seems far more difficult to cognitively rewire than the pathways needed to induce machiavellian and narcissistic personality traits, it seems psychopathy is far more genetic in basis whilst narcissism and machiavellianism are much more easily induced by the presence of permitting social factors.

The economy of dark secrets is a rich and lucrative one, needless to say however, like the law courts require, a machiavellian interested in the procurement of dark secrets and utilising them as leverage for either exploitation or self-preservation needs to have evidence that will convince the target's supporters that the secret is valid in order to ensure success, you should always crush your enemy totally (law 15) because in the secrets trade, if the secret cannot crush totally - it may not be able to crush at all, or at the very least, have it's effects mitigated so profusely that your ability to exercise leverage is vastly diminished.

59

UPVOTES

Why all forms of feminism are inherently damaging to the male-female social contract

7 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've seen some self-proclaimed moderate feminists trying to permeate the sub by trying to convince rpers of the good feminism can do (no, not concern trolling, merely making reference) now this is something I see other ideologies do in an attempt to defend themselves, moderate muslims will first announce they are moderate by distinguishing themselves muslims, and the radicals "islamists", once the distinction is made they use that as a shield to justify their position along the spectrum within the ideology they follow, they use this as a smoke and mirrors to deflect criticism from a component of the ideology that does apply to them by saying it doesn't apply to them and only applies to those who are on a different end of the ideological spectrum. Even if the tenet in question is a key element to the ideology as a whole such as with feminism that men and women should be treated as equals. Now like the muslim example, feminists do this too, in fact - pretty much followers of all ideology utilise this bait and switch technique to try and "fight for the merits of their chosen ideology, whilst dissuading critique of it."

Now fair enough, radical feminists are way worse than a post-feminist or sex-positive feminist or whatever subset denomination of feminism one wishes to identify with, however, in reference to reality and what men find attractive, as red pillers, I think despite some of the weaker forms of feminism offering some positives, the negatives far outweigh the positives.

Why is this? Well recently I've been reading posts about why men don't find rich women attractive, as in, they don't fall in love with them. It's all about power really. A rich powerful woman is simply not attractive to a man, a woman (especially one scorned, or who falls within that description) will rationalise this lack of attraction as "being intimidated" and unable to "handle a powerful woman" however, this isn't the case for most men, it may be for some - but that is a separate, smaller issue when present and ignores the larger problem at hand.

The main issue is men simply don't find power in women to be attractive. Men like to feel needed when they love a woman. Men like to feel they can provide for a woman. Men are inherently attracted to female vulnerability. A rough around the edges woman earning all her own money in a high powered career with a sharp tongue, to a man, is not attractive at all - if anything, she's putting herself out of the market. To a man, she seems too masculine in mannerism - masculine personalities are not attractive to men, we seek opposites - not similarities. Opposites attract, like magnetism, that shit isn't wrong.

Women who try to act like men are projecting what they find attractive in men as women and are mistaking that as a schematic for how they should be if they want to attract a high quality man. This is foolish, short-sighted, and doomed to failure. A quick google search on career women who can't find love should put to rest any uncertainty about this notion.

If you are an intelligent woman, an academic woman, your skills should by no means be wasted, however if you choose to take on too many masculine qualities, that's on you. You will make yourself unattractive by behaving too boisterously. Let me repeat it, one of the sexiest things to a man is female vulnerability it's why the whole "damsel in distress thing" works so well, men find female vulnerability attractive and they feel happy with themselves for fixing problems. Men are fixers, they like to fix shit, if you're so strong that he feels like a spare part, the relationship probably isn't going to last, furthermore if you actually become richer and mentally stronger than most of the men in the world, you're going to find yourself unattracted to the majority of men because you find male strength attractive and in relation to your own strength, most men will seem weak or only marginally stronger in comparison.

I know it may be hard for women and maybe some very deluded blue pill men to possibly understand, but it's one of the huge fundamental differences between the sexes which is obvious to a red pill man.

- Men are attracted to female vulnerability.

- Women are repulsed by male vulnerability.
- Men are repulsed by female domination.
- Women are attracted to male domination.

Obviously, these are not absolutes, they fall on a spectrum. Men don't want women incapable of anything and women don't want men who won't let them do anything, but generally speaking, a man should tilt towards domination and a woman should tilt towards vulnerability if there is going to be long lasting attraction. Through opposition, we can have complementation. Through complementation, we can have cohesion.

It really is that simple and it's for this reason any attempt to equalise the genders, to make women just as powerful or if not, more powerful than men is doomed to fail, it is why all forms of feminism no matter what sect they claim to be inherently damage the social contract between men and women, because feminism is a cultural pressure which violates what we find attractive. What we find attractive isn't logical, its hindbrain powered and feminism has been unsuccessful in making weak men sexy to women and strong women sexy to men.

Powerful women are made miserable by their own hypergamy, if you're at the top, it's hard to find someone stronger than yourself.

Just food for thought next time you're convinced some forms of feminism are OK, in terms of attraction and pair bonding, feminism is fucking terrible - all of it.

Why all forms of feminism are inherently damaging to the male-female social contract [X-post from TRP]

7 March 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I've seen some self-proclaimed moderate feminists trying to permeate the sub by trying to convince rpers of the good feminism can do (no, not concern trolling, merely making reference) now this is something I see other ideologies do in an attempt to defend themselves, moderate muslims will first announce they are moderate by distinguishing themselves muslims, and the radicals "islamists", once the distinction is made they use that as a shield to justify their position along the spectrum within the ideology they follow, they use this as a smoke and mirrors to deflect criticism from a component of the ideology that does apply to them by saying it doesn't apply to them and only applies to those who are on a different end of the ideological spectrum. Even if the tenet in question is a key element to the ideology as a whole such as with feminism that men and women should be treated as equals. Now like the muslim example, feminists do this too, in fact - pretty much followers of all ideology utilise this bait and switch technique to try and "fight for the merits of their chosen ideology, whilst dissuading critique of it."

Now fair enough, radical feminists are way worse than a post-feminist or sex-positive feminist or whatever subset denomination of feminism one wishes to identify with, however, in reference to reality and what men find attractive, as red pillers, I think despite some of the weaker forms of feminism offering some positives, the negatives far outweigh the positives.

Why is this? Well recently I've been reading posts about why men don't find rich women attractive, as in, they don't fall in love with them. It's all about power really. A rich powerful woman is simply not attractive to a man, a woman (especially one scorned, or who falls within that description) will rationalise this lack of attraction as "being intimidated" and unable to "handle a powerful woman" however, this isn't the case for most men, it may be for some - but that is a separate, smaller issue when present and ignores the larger problem at hand.

The main issue is men simply don't find power in women to be attractive. Men like to feel needed when they love a woman. Men like to feel they can provide for a woman. Men are inherently attracted to female vulnerability. A rough around the edges woman earning all her own money in a high powered career with a sharp tongue, to a man, is not attractive at all - if anything, she's putting herself out of the market. To a man, she seems too masculine in mannerism - masculine personalities are not attractive to men, we seek opposites - not similarities. Opposites attract, like magnetism, that shit isn't wrong.

Women who try to act like men are projecting what they find attractive in men as women and are mistaking that as a schematic for how they should be if they want to attract a high quality man. This is foolish, short-sighted, and doomed to failure. A quick google search on career women who can't find love should put to rest any uncertainty about this notion.

If you are an intelligent woman, an academic woman, your skills should by no means be wasted, however if you choose to take on too many masculine qualities, that's on you. You will make yourself unattractive by behaving too boisterously. Let me repeat it, one of the sexiest things to a man is female vulnerability it's why the whole "damsel in distress thing" works so well, men find female vulnerability attractive and they feel happy with themselves for fixing problems. Men are fixers, they like to fix shit, if you're so strong that he feels like a spare part, the relationship probably isn't going to last, furthermore if you actually become richer and mentally stronger than most of the men in the world, you're going to find yourself unattracted to the majority of men because you find male strength attractive and in relation to your own strength, most men will seem weak or only marginally stronger in comparison.

I know it may be hard for women and maybe some very deluded blue pill men to possibly understand, but it's one of the huge fundamental differences between the sexes which is obvious to a red pill man.

- Men are attracted to female vulnerability.

- Women are repulsed by male vulnerability.
- Men are repulsed by female domination.
- Women are attracted to male domination.

Obviously, these are not absolutes, they fall on a spectrum. Men don't want women incapable of anything and women don't want men who won't let them do anything, but generally speaking, a man should tilt towards domination and a woman should tilt towards vulnerability if there is going to be long lasting attraction. Through opposition, we can have complementation. Through complementation, we can have cohesion.

It really is that simple and it's for this reason any attempt to equalise the genders, to make women just as powerful or if not, more powerful than men is doomed to fail, it is why all forms of feminism no matter what sect they claim to be inherently damage the social contract between men and women, because feminism is a cultural pressure which violates what we find attractive. What we find attractive isn't logical, its hindbrain powered and feminism has been unsuccessful in making weak men sexy to women and strong women sexy to men.

Powerful women are made miserable by their own hypergamy, if you're at the top, it's hard to find someone stronger than yourself.

Just food for thought next time you're convinced some forms of feminism are OK, in terms of attraction and pair bonding, feminism is fucking terrible - all of it.

74

UPVOTES

How Women Argue

9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/09/how-women-argue/>

Excerpt:

The fundamental difference in what women say they want and what they actually want in practice is a product of the notion that women tend to exercise rationalisation, not reason in and of itself. Most women have extremely weak reasoning, you'll notice in arguments with them that they will try to attack the credibility of your logic to try to make themselves look better, this is the classic "I can't beat the competition so I'll try to make the competition less effective" strategy that women employ on a grand scale with ideas like fat acceptance, but applied on a micro-scale in their interactions on a one-to-one basis.

Questioning a mans logic and credibility is a way a woman essentially "brings a man down to her level of absurdity." There comes a line of questioning so invasive, so interrogative and so unreasonable, that a man, feeling like he is on the defense, will yield his logic to his sense of frustration, and then the woman who deliberately and calculatingly imposed this form of mental tyranny in her sense of outrage will then use this frustration as a weapon against the man to further reduce his credibility by pointing out quite proudly that he is in fact no more logical than she!

Women will hold you to your logic as it forces you to take responsibility for things they do not wish to, but they are bound by no such logic themselves because they have no prevailing internal dialogue that is actually based on logic, at best they tend to have segmented ideas based on emotional thought layered with rationalisation that works to present a veneer of intellectual credibility, which is later necessary for the purpose of saving face. What women are doing here is exploiting the nature of logic and the sense of duty to the truth which is inherent within it, they make you feel bad by making you feel like you violate your own sense of duty to the truth whilst simultaneously feeling no such duty themselves. This gives them an edge in verbal combat as once you are emotionally compromised within your own frame of reference, questioning your own sense of logic due to your emotionally provoked slip-up, they can then exploit this momentary weakness to dominate the agenda.

35

UPVOTES

How Women Argue

9 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/09/how-women-argue/>

Excerpt:

The fundamental difference in what women say they want and what they actually want in practice is a product of the notion that women tend to exercise rationalisation, not reason in and of itself. Most women have extremely weak reasoning, you'll notice in arguments with them that they will try to attack the credibility of your logic to try to make themselves look better, this is the classic "I can't beat the competition so I'll try to make the competition less effective" strategy that women employ on a grand scale with ideas like fat acceptance, but applied on a micro-scale in their interactions on a one-to-one basis.

Questioning a mans logic and credibility is a way a woman essentially "brings a man down to her level of absurdity." There comes a line of questioning so invasive, so interrogative and so unreasonable, that a man, feeling like he is on the defense, will yield his logic to his sense of frustration, and then the woman who deliberately and calculatingly imposed this form of mental tyranny in her sense of outrage will then use this frustration as a weapon against the man to further reduce his credibility by pointing out quite proudly that he is in fact no more logical than she!

Women will hold you to your logic as it forces you to take responsibility for things they do not wish to, but they are bound by no such logic themselves because they have no prevailing internal dialogue that is actually based on logic, at best they tend to have segmented ideas based on emotional thought layered with rationalisation that works to present a veneer of intellectual credibility, which is later necessary for the purpose of saving face. What women are doing here is exploiting the nature of logic and the sense of duty to the truth which is inherent within it, they make you feel bad by making you feel like you violate your own sense of duty to the truth whilst simultaneously feeling no such duty themselves. This gives them an edge in verbal combat as once you are emotionally compromised within your own frame of reference, questioning your own sense of logic due to your emotionally provoked slip-up, they can then exploit this momentary weakness to dominate the agenda.

In our part of the world, where monogamy is in force, to marry means to halve one's rights and to double one's duties. When the laws granted woman the same rights as man, they should also have given her a masculine power of reason. On the contrary, just as the privileges and honours which the laws decree to women surpass what Nature has meted out to them, so is there a proportional decrease in the number of women who really share these privileges; therefore the remainder are deprived of their natural rights in so far as the others have been given more than Nature accords.

For the unnatural position of privilege which the institution of monogamy, and the laws of marriage which accompany it, assign to the woman, whereby she is regarded throughout as a full equivalent of the man, which she is not by any means, cause intelligent and prudent men to reflect a great deal before they make so great a sacrifice and consent to so unfair an arrangement. Therefore, whilst among polygamous nations every woman finds maintenance, where monogamy exists the number of married women is limited, and a countless number of women who are without support remain over; those in the upper classes vegetate as useless old maids, those in the lower are reduced to very hard work of a distasteful nature, or become prostitutes, and lead a life which is as joyless as it is void of honour. But under such circumstances they become a necessity to the masculine sex; so that their position is openly recognised as a special means for protecting from seduction those other women favoured by fate either to have found husbands, or who hope to find them. In London alone there are 80,000 prostitutes. Then what are these women who have come too quickly to this most terrible end but human sacrifices on the altar of monogamy? The women here referred to and who are placed in this wretched position are the inevitable counterbalance to the European lady, with her pretensions and arrogance. Hence polygamy is a real benefit to the female sex, taking it as a whole. And, on the other hand, there is no reason why a man whose wife suffers from chronic illness, or remains barren, or has gradually become too old for him, should not take a second.

He's saying that giving women equal rights would result in less marriage in the 1800's when feminism was but a small movement. Over a hundred years later his prophecy has come true. Food for thought. Great man, check out his books.

The World as Will and Representation Vol.1 and there's a Vol.2 also.

381

UPVOTES

BBC realises men kill themselves more than women because nobody gives a fuck about them, derides a vague definition of "macho culture" and then transitions into waffle about mental health illness without making an explicit connection to feminism. LOL.

13 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Haven't posted a blue pill example in the longest time, this one was too good to resist.

Article: <http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/magazine-26543095>

There has been a significant reduction in the suicide rate among females, with the number of women taking their lives having almost halved in the past 30 years. In this same period, however, the number of men taking their lives has actually increased.

Oh deary me, seems that equality isn't going to well. One group is killing themselves less and another killing themselves more? I wonder why that could be?! Time to expose THE SUICIDE GAP! LOL. Oh wait, nobody gives a fuck, never mind.

When I was growing up, Saturday afternoons were spent with my dad going to watch Crystal Palace FC play. Never before had I seen grown men express their emotions in the way they did on the terraces. It was the first time I remember seeing a man cry in public, and probably the only time I've seen men not trying to conceal their tears.

I've been to football gamers (soccer to you yanks) they are probably one of the few large institutions in this nation (UK) where men can all act like men and gynocentrism is kicked to the curb. Nobody gives a fuck about what women think in a football stadium, men are shouting, crying, whatever - passion for the game trumps everything and it's a nice socially acceptable way for men to show emotion and get it off their chests cathartically without the social stigma that normally comes when a male decides to emote.

Society seems to like dictating how we should act as males. A magazine last week dedicated an issue to How To Be A Man, By Women. We were advised to "go out, earn some money, come back and look after the children. Men should be men."

TLDR: perform both male and female traditional roles. The fish trying to educate the fisherman on how to be fisherman yet again, haha, like women know what it takes to be men! Oh the irony. Tells you a lot about English women. Generally speaking, AVOID THEM. Few gems in the rough, but that's the same as anywhere else.

it was the fear of not living up to such expectations that led me to almost taking my own life. What stopped me was another man's understanding of how I was feeling.

Yep, men typically have way less interconnected friendship networks than women do. We need more male spaces to facilitate camaraderie, again, it shows how the invasion of women into male spaces whilst creating exclusively female spaces without a reciprocal measure for men has affected men and how they socialise. Off the top off my head, the two spaces we have left in the UK which tend to go hand in hand and act as "predominantly male spaces" are football stadiums and pubs. If you're in the construction industry then perhaps the workplace.

stop telling males to "man up", and start showing them that grown men do actually cry.

I don't like "man up" as it's often used to shame and not actually be helpful. I do not encourage crying though, stoicism all the way. Only cry to yourself, women cannot be trusted with your tears. There's enough accounts here of women freaking the fuck out when they saw their man fall to bits and then subsequently leaving him, you don't need me to tell you this shit.

However, across the UK, the most recent statistics show the number of males taking their own lives is the highest it's been since 1999, and that suicide is now the leading cause of death for men between the ages of 20 and 49. The latest figures for 2012 show that more than 4,590 males took their lives.

Seeing as women suffer from depression more than men do BUT men are killing themselves more than women, it leaves us with quite the conundrum on what deductions can be made from these findings. Might explain why you have all these miserable nagging bitches creating diatribical sound pollution everywhere they quack whilst their male counterparts are no where to be found (offed themselves!)

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/17/law-28-enter-action-with-boldness-simplified/>

These are my personal notes on Law 28 - "Enter Action with Boldness" from Robert Greene's bestselling book "The 48 Laws of Power"

Typically I go more in-depth with laws but I've flipped the script here and gone simpler to make it easier to read for those who are "wall of text averse."

Eventually every law with an exemplified essay and a simplified essay, but it is a huge undertaking and will take some time to come to complete fruition, I reveal this intention to you so that you are aware more and more dark triad material will become available on my blog.

Loosely related: I think the reason Patrice O'Neal was loved so much by so many was because he was such an audacious motherfucker except he typically didn't calibrate his audaciousness like Greene suggests, but was relentlessly audacious.

Summary excerpt:

Law 28 is about the power of audacity whilst highlighting and condemning the weakness of timidity. Timidity can be weaponized once one is already in a position of power, such as exercising authority within an institution or in the game of romance, being aesthetically desirable. One could equate audacity with confidence and timidity with a lack of confidence, audaciousness being the "10 out of 10" on a sliding scale of confidence whilst timidity in its sincere absolutism as a "1 out of 10."

Under red pill philosophy law 28 directly relates to the idea of holding frame as well as the PUA move known as "to agree and amplify." Holding frame is another way of saying "maintain your composure" to be bold, one must be capable of maintaining their boldness whilst not letting anyone else cause them to regress to timidity. The way to fight attacks upon your composure is to be even more audacious than you were to begin with, upping the ante as to say, not becoming less audacious, as by being less audacious you lend credence to the jabs of your detractors. By retreating into one's shell after a challenge to a recent display of audacity, you effectively hand victory to the would-be detractor.

36

UPVOTES

Women of Substance (High Quality RP Women) are MADE, they are NOT born.

21 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/21/women-of-substance-are-made-not-born/>

Bulletpoint summary:

- The average woman has typically little to offer of value to a man other than her body.
- Very few women will actually admit they are nothing other than a glorified excuse of a series of fuck holes, because such “dehumanisation” harms their ego.
- Having any negative opinion about woman no matter how well justified or well-reasoned it may be is automatically misogynistic in the eyes of women. You harm their egos by being as critical of their group collective as they are of men.
- You can get women to speak the truth, the delivery matters far more than the content when interacting with a woman, less straight-talk, more powertalk.
- Society downplays, justifies and otherwise ignores the weaknesses of women with cultural ignorance that mislabels objective criticism as misogyny, whilst it simultaneously and quite ironically misrepresents women in a positive light by projecting all these unsubstantiated idealistic qualities onto them, claiming that such qualities are fundamentally innate merits of the universal female identity.
- Those living in today's anglosphere and western European civilizations should typically expect very little of women, so few are worthy of anything more than a rumble in the hay simply because they haven't been raised right.
- All red pill women are trained by men, they are not magically born out of the womb, a "unicorn" is merely a high quality red pill woman raised, cultivated and overseen by men of value, integrity and intelligence. Whether that man is her father or later on, a serious boyfriend, she is trained and maintained by men to be a quality woman (unless she finds the rpw subreddit)
- Often a woman who is of quality from a young age, non-promiscuous, good-natured, talented, intelligent, humorous, not hateful of men and emotionally stable is a woman who has had a good relationship with her father.
- Good girls will turn bad in the absence of a strong male figure.
- Good women are not only made by men, but must also be maintained by men. In the absence of such leadership, women take on detrimental qualities in the name of "freedom".
- Red pill women are not "unicorns", they are women capable of curbing their instincts whilst using logic to be more desirable in an effort to secure provisioning in their old age, effectively they're investing in the long-game and have been made self-aware enough to realise that being a slut getting by on her sexuality and youth is not a gravy train that is going to last forever.

18
UPVOTES

Women of Substance (High Quality RP Women) are MADE, they are NOT born.

21 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/21/women-of-substance-are-made-not-born/>

Bulletpoint summary:

- The average woman has typically little to offer of value to a man other than her body.
- Very few women will actually admit they are nothing other than a glorified excuse of a series of fuck holes, because such “dehumanisation” harms their ego.
- Having any negative opinion about woman no matter how well justified or well-reasoned it may be is automatically misogynistic in the eyes of women. You harm their egos by being as critical of their group collective as they are of men.
- You can get women to speak the truth, the delivery matters far more than the content when interacting with a woman, less straight-talk, more powertalk.
- Society downplays, justifies and otherwise ignores the weaknesses of women with cultural ignorance that mislabels objective criticism as misogyny, whilst it simultaneously and quite ironically misrepresents women in a positive light by projecting all these unsubstantiated idealistic qualities onto them, claiming that such qualities are fundamentally innate merits of the universal female identity.
- Those living in today's anglosphere and western European civilizations should typically expect very little of women, so few are worthy of anything more than a rumble in the hay simply because they haven't been raised right.
- All red pill women are trained by men, they are not magically born out of the womb, a "unicorn" is merely a high quality red pill woman raised, cultivated and overseen by men of value, integrity and intelligence. Whether that man is her father or later on, a serious boyfriend, she is trained and maintained by men to be a quality woman (unless she finds the rpw subreddit)
- Often a woman who is of quality from a young age, non-promiscuous, good-natured, talented, intelligent, humorous, not hateful of men and emotionally stable is a woman who has had a good relationship with her father.
- Good girls will turn bad in the absence of a strong male figure.
- Good women are not only made by men, but must also be maintained by men. In the absence of such leadership, women take on detrimental qualities in the name of "freedom".
- Red pill women are not "unicorns", they are women capable of curbing their instincts whilst using logic to be more desirable in an effort to secure provisioning in their old age, effectively they're investing in the long-game and have been made self-aware enough to realise that being a slut getting by on her sexuality and youth is not a gravy train that is going to last forever.

102
UPVOTES

The Loyalty of Women in Long Term Mating Strategies - Pair Bonding and the Differences Between Men and Women in Sexual Affairs

24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I posted this on the thread about the guy who lost his wife to another man through polyamory:

My theory is that women can only pair bond to one male at a time and that is what makes them "seem like a good woman" or basically, its the pair bond that causes her to engage in a heightened display of positive qualities she does not show to others, once she has sex with another male she begins to release oxytocin and associate it with him and thus starts to form a bond with this other man. Compound this with the problem she is no longer associating oxytocin releases with her husband (as they're no longer having sex) and you have a woman who is no longer pair bonded or in love with her husband but has indeed "checked out" and is now bonding with a completely different man, despite for all appearances, being married to "her soon to be ex."

Once they branch swing or have already undergone lengthy preparations to ensure the branch swing is successful as it appears this woman is doing, the pair bond is broken. In fact the pair bond is long broken before she actually commits to the branch swing, the pair bond was destroyed the very moment she started enjoying regular sex with another man, that is not just her body enjoying such an arrangement, but her mind too.

Whilst pair bonded to you a woman is a completely different person than from when she is not pair bonded to you. The cold indifference is a stark contrast from the loving woman of perhaps a month or two prior. It's the difference between her relationship with you in a pair bonded and a non-pair bonded state. I think many, many men can relate to this behaviour from their own experiences.

Many men have noted how easily women seem to move on and how effortlessly they branch swing, even after long long relationships lasting years, they seem to have this ability to easily find meaningful relationships elsewhere, whereas a man who had a long relationship with a woman typically does not find it so easy to just replace his wife out of the blue because things got boring, add a mistress to the rotation? Sure, but he's still there for his wife and he's still willing to fuck her. Men don't just stop loving you because you don't make them tingle anymore, unlike women. Men stop loving you when you stop displaying femininity towards them.

It's as if women are programmed only to respect and respond well to the man fucking them the best, if a woman runs a harem of men she'll love whoever fucks her the best despite who her husband is meant to be. If a man runs a harem he's still capable of loving his wife despite all the side pussy he's getting, he doesn't think "oh shit this airheads pussy is so nice I'm going to leave my wife over it!" Cheating on your partner seems to affect the genders differently. I would love for them to do studies on this shit. Backup the conjecture of my observations with some science.

Also, notable comments worth adding:

As posted by /u/Evolved_Red:

Sexually-induced pheromones like oxytocin, testosterone, endorphins etc are also in need of more reference here IMO. Pair bonding is a science in itself that should be touched upon by red pill men to better understand human sexuality.

As posted by /u/Archwinger:

Never, ever underestimate the ruthlessness of a woman who's lost her attraction to you.

It goes far deeper and far colder than a woman who never liked you to begin with. A woman who was attracted to you, then you lost her attraction, feels burned, cheated, raped, used. Like you kept her from her new lover(s) for years, like you were trapping her and holding her back. It's hard, if not impossible, for her to remember what it was ever like being attracted to you, or that she ever was. In her mind, you were always a loser, and your relationship was never right. She's already rewritten history, and you're the villain, not the other men, not her. And a long-time loser like you isn't worth two seconds of her time. You wasted enough of her time already.

Never underestimate the ruthlessness of a woman who's lost her attraction to you.

As posted by /u/veggie_girl

I've said it numerous times. A man can live multiple women at once without dismay. A woman can only love one man at a time. It is directly related to our reproductive strategies. A man can impregnate multiple women at once, but a woman can only carry one man's baby. When men cheat it is all about sex and the only negative side of it is the lying. When women cheat they completely stop caring about their husband. There is a reason history has no record of female lorded harems of men.

Discuss.

791

UPVOTES

If your SMV is low, EG: you're fat, poor, unpopular or whatever then forget women/socialising/doing pointless shit for a good year 6 months to a year - just be utterly selfish forget everyone else and go do your own thing.

25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If your SMV is low, go your own way for a bit. You get horny and need a release? Jack off to porn to get your release. Chasing poon with low SMV is just a disaster waiting to happen and it sets you back, a lot. I'm all for guys "overcoming approach anxiety" and getting good at game, but I wouldn't recommend anyone practices game until they're on a solid footing in life. Game is a "a less immediate need" than making sure your mental health is good and that you're in control of your finances and have some general life direction. Without a strong sense of self as a foundation at the bottom, it's a fools errand to pursue higher levels of need like sexual satisfaction, self-satisfaction should always take priority over sexual satisfaction.

Practicing game when you're dirt poor, suffering from low self-esteem/depression/lack of confidence, don't have enough food in the fridge or whatever is retarded, you're placing a "less immediate need" higher in priority than the shit that matters. You need a good foundation to build a strong empire, if you're focusing on getting laid and getting good with women before you have any sort of stability in your life, you're lacking disposable income, your mind isn't thinking healthy/productive/positive etc then you really need to take time out to fix yourself before you start trying to go and get other people to like you. You'll find it hard to make friends, let alone get laid, if your life is a fucking state because you're a fucking state.

Make money, learn some shit, go to the gym. Too scared to go the gym because it's full of guys twenty times your size? Try to get over it. Can't get over it? Get a weight set and work out at home, use a fitness program from the internet, once you have acquired some fitness and seen some gains and got a bit of confidence you won't be so bothered about entering an actual gym. Small steps. Everyones at different stages, some low value guys have crippling social anxiety as a result of their lack of value, other guys don't find doing normal things like going out and talking to people or entering a gym and working out there a big deal, whatever, this advice is here for those who need it, it'd be pretty obnoxious to disregard common issues low value men have "because it's beta" remember most people in this sub start beta, some even omega, everyone's on a quest to become more alpha/masculine. Don't forget your roots if you're not a natural, don't scoff at the new guy if he's trying, respect that. Not just on the sub, but in real life too.

Often self-improvement means other shit has to go on hold. If you're a fat guy or an omega WoW player who aimlessly jacks off all over the hotkeys and has no direction in life, you stumbled on TRP and you message me asking me for advice on "how to incorporate TRP into your life" I would say forget bitches for about 6 months to a year and go work on yourself. You have to like yourself so other people can like you. Make sure you're in a job that doesn't have you working with people that make you want to cut your own wrists on a daily, better to lower your income and work with people you enjoy working with, rather than earn more but be stuck with thunder cunts who make you contemplate the merits of self-harming. If you have no source of income, get one. You need one. Money = freedom. More money equals more freedom.

Have direction, have projects. Focus on things. Lack of focus = failure. Myself included, I've known many people full of talent who lack the proclivity to apply themselves. You can be a brain box but if you don't feel motivated or see a point in anything then you'll just fulfill your immediate needs and end up a failure rather than build yourself into a success. Fear is relevant, fear of the unknown. Something 50 Cent says is "Those who are afraid of change stop themselves from becoming great" it's true. Potential can be wasted. Don't waste your life away. The younger you are the better, but fuck even if you're 40 - better to turn around now than turn around at 50. Once you hit 50 you only would have said "shit I've known this since 40, I should have done something then" and then compounded your own sense of frustration even further. Control the time you have left and make it valuable.

Remember, nobody gives a fuck about you except your parents (assuming your parents aren't cunts too or you're not so old that they've gone and died.) Most of your friends are more associates than they are friends, they won't give much of a fuck about you they're so busy doing their own shit the only time they think about you is when they want you for something that benefits them - need company to go drinking or some crap like that.

You're practically invisible to girls if you have low SMV so don't even bother. Don't resent them, you don't like low smv girls yourself, just become better to become noticeable. You don't even like yourself. Go give yourself a reason to like yourself. Try to do at least TWO THINGS everyday that make you a better person. Jog, read an interesting book, earn some money. Learn to be funny, surround yourself with funny people. I make it a habit to talk to people with wit/sense of humour, I watch a lot of stand up comedy. Comedy is important to me, comedy is medicine. Comedy can stop a man in pain turning insane, watch that shit. Not taking serious things seriously is a great coping mechanism for dealing with the bullshit life throws at you. Keep your mind healthy by working on yourself, use comedy as a painkiller to assist in that if you need to.

I believe a lot of guys who are really bottom of the barrel whether they're flat out undesirable or just ridiculously poor (and thus need to get money on lockdown) need to take a serious hiatus from the sexual/social game and just focus on improving their situation, their money, their inner game/sense of self. It's like sports, sometimes a player has gotta go on the bench when he's too worn out or injured. Get on the bench and fix yourself and then you can fight to live another day.

Keep at it, you can make it.

-IM

FULL article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/30/mental-models-abundance-vs-scarcity/>

Bulletpoint TLDR:

People with a scarcity mentality tend to exhibit:

- An exudence of desperation resulting in the pursuit of social dead-ends. Chase women.
- They cannot hold frame.
- Spend a lot of their time living mentally in the past. Going over and over things they cannot change.
- Have profound regrets which shake their confidence.
- Are averse to taking risks, they hold themselves back. Low T.
- Do not believe in their ability to succeed which presents itself as reticence, procrastination and a lack of confidence.
- Fear rejection from people.
- Require external validation from the group to feel content, they're insecure and lean on others.
- Ultimately perceive themselves and the world around them as lacking where it matters, happiness and opportunity.

People with an abundance mentality tend to exhibit:

- Nonchalance and indifference, sometimes they're arrogant, typically uncaring of small matters. Replace women.
- They hold frame well under pressure.
- Spend a lot of their time living mentally in the future, only coming into the present for breaks.
- Have profound ambitions which fan the flames of confidence and acts as motivation for action.
- Tend to be adrenaline junkies who get off on high risk, dangerous behaviour. High T. Are obsessively bold about succeeding.
- Expect rejection from people.
- Validate themselves through their self-improvement, as long as they keep momentum they're secure with themselves. Self-reliant.
- Ultimately perceive the world around them as rigorous, but conquerable.

If you have anything of note to add, please do.

189
UPVOTES

10 Commandments for Being a High Value Man

6 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I stumbled upon this link by happenstance and was pleasantly surprised by what I read, enjoy.

<http://romancecheater.com/the-10-commandments-of-being-high-value/>

1. Thou Shalt Not Try To Impress
2. Thou Shalt Not Chase Women
3. Thou Shalt Not Be Ruled By Women
4. Thou Shalt Not Seek Female Approval
5. Thou Shalt Not Over Value Her Looks
6. Thou Shalt Not Be a Loser
7. Thou Shalt Not Fear Women
8. Thou Shalt Not Be A Tool
9. Thou Shalt Not Be Bitter
10. Thou Shalt Not Be Desperate

91

UPVOTES

The Red Pill is Intolerant of Irrationalism and Equality

10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/10/the-red-pill-is-intolerant-of-irrationalism-and-equality/>

This post aims to explain in more formalised language the stance of the red pill as a philosophy, rather than a sexual strategy, to those who do not fully understand it. It is aimed at those who are educated but new to the red pill. It's not a particularly long piece (by my own standards) but neither is it a particularly light read. Enjoy.

Brief summation:

- The red pill is anti-egalitarian whilst being pro-meritocratic it believes in equity based upon merit, not equality based upon sanction.
- The red pill is an individualist philosophy that emphasises personal accountability and self-reliance.
- The red pill is anti-feminist because it recognises feminism is rationally incoherent.
- The red pill does not engage in "academic antagonism" or "the citation needed fallacy" such discussion is reserved for /r/PurplePillDebate

[edited.]

80

UPVOTES

Become Smarter, Stronger and More Refined

13 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/13/monk-mode/>

There's no TLDR or summary this time, read it or get your lazy ass out of here.

On a brief and relatively unimportant note, in an attempt to preempt autistic pedantry: I did not come up with the term "monk mode"

Feel free to post questions and criticisms, on the note of criticism, keep it constructive. Thanks, and enjoy my latest piece.

22

UPVOTES

Become Smarter, Stronger and More Refined

13 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/13/monk-mode/>

There's no TLDR or summary this time, read it or get your lazy ass out of here.

On a brief and relatively unimportant note, in an attempt to preempt autistic pedantry: I did not come up with the term "monk mode"

Feel free to post questions and criticisms, on the note of criticism, keep it constructive. Thanks, and enjoy my latest piece.

85
UPVOTES

| She Will Try To Make You Weak
18 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

25

UPVOTES

Robert Greene on why The Dark Triad is information that needs circulating rather than repressing as well as finding out who/what you want to be and finding your path in life.

21 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Download this:

<http://media.blubrry.com/theartofcharm/itunes.pickuppodcast.com/250RobertGreene.mp3>

Few gems from the show:

"If you're addicted to the pay cheque you won't be able to come who you want to be if you're not already in that field, maybe you have kids and responsibilities, fair enough, but the field you're in is a condition you will have to accept for the rest of your life" - Robert Greene (not verbatim)

"Mastery and power is not an intellectual pursuit, it's not a question of learning a lot of things from books, it's actually an emotional quality, the fact that you're disciplined, patient, persistent, that you love what you're doing, that you can put up with criticism, that you're tough, these are all emotional qualities that Steve Jobs or Thomas Edison or whoever you wanna look at, that's what they had" - Robert Greene

"Your most creative years ... are your 30's and maybe the first half of your 40's, if you're younger, you really wanna be keeping that in mind, you wanna be focused and use your 20's as a period for learning and accumulating skills so when you hit those 30's and your mind is still active and have a lot of energy you can now take all those things that you learned and do something really exciting, so although it's never too late, it's really better to start early." - Robert Greene

26
UPVOTES

The Power Game

22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

28

UPVOTES

The Power Game

22 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/22/the-power-game/>

Excerpt from the opening paragraph:

What should you care about? Nearly everybody gives a fuck about at least what one other person thinks, this is normal and natural behaviour, however what many of us realise is that in the game of power it is the person who bluffs best, he who seems like he gives the least fucks and is the least affected by others who is the person that often comes out on top. In essence from a Machiavellian viewpoint this is because such a person is forcing others to play the cards they are dealing, they are forcing others to be reactionary rather than independent and thus in essence set the rules of engagement.

Tldr: prioritising what you care about and understanding power dynamics.

Highly suggest you take the time to read the piece in its entirety. Discuss.

How to Apply The 48 Laws of Power (Become More Effective in Your Manipulations)

25 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/25/how-to-apply-the-48-laws-of-power/>

Meat of the article (not a TLDR by any measure):

Now in paragraph 1 talents which are fundamental to the weaponization of Machiavellianism were mentioned, so to begin:

Firstly, you need to possess an analytical mind, a mind that thinks more than it feels, it is imperative that your modus operandi utilises logic rather than emotion if you are to apply the laws of power effectively. Emotive reasoning encourages fallibility, transparency (which is anti-Machiavellian) and the exposure of one's weaknesses, women in particular find this talent incredibly difficult to master as it in essence goes against the very basis of their natures. Emotional reasoning leads to incorrect deductions and poor judgement. Emotive reasoning is inward (solipsistic) whilst logical reasoning is outward (abstract), in order to analyse one must be looking outward and comprehending the outward with as little confusion from the inward as possible, if this is achieved one can deduce with great precision.

Secondly, your mind must be mentally fit rather than lethargic, you must develop the muscle of your wit, that is to say you should understand people's words and actions on multiple levels, entendre, innuendo, puns, they are the language of subtext, if you cannot pierce the realm of subtext, you cannot hope to be a successful Machiavellian. If you cannot understand the subtleties of a person's character, you cannot hope to ever truly know and connect with them as the nature of their being in its entirety is beyond the limits of your mind's understanding. Subtext is a realm of communication all of its own, if you are blind to it, it will become your Achilles's heel and your obliviousness will reduce your overall effectiveness.

Thirdly, and this is something of an extension of the last point, articulacy, the silver tongue, you need the competency to verbally riposte with mental dexterity. This skill is incredibly important, mostly as a means of defence as to aid with deflection and pressure reversal, however, it may also be used as a tool of interrogation should that be one's proclivity. It is an especially useful skill when one is caught off guard by an ambush, that is to say, a psychological test is posed to you abruptly in full-view of an audience where there is surmounting social pressure for you to respond with an air of effortlessness or otherwise incur a social penalty. A successful Machiavellian knows how to defend themselves from Machiavellian devices as well as attack with them and thus needs to be quick off the draw.

Fourthly, you must develop emotional intelligence (this is where women make up for their weakness in point 1), this doesn't mean that you should analyse with emotion but rather that you must be capable of communicating with it, understand the relationship between emotions by learning how they invoke and relate to neighbouring emotions. Likewise to be capable of this you should have an intricate grasp of the characteristics and depth of each emotion. You need to understand the nature of each emotion itself so that this can be leveraged to influence people into predictable outcomes. Portraying the correct emotional appearance for the context at hand as well as understanding how other people's emotions form the basis of their disposition is another fundamental facet of emotional intelligence. By understanding emotion you can effectively fill another person's emotional void by making yourself the source of the emotion they lust for (law 11 - keep people dependant on you.) Understanding someone's emotional makeup is the most effective way of influencing them as it allows you to be a supplier of what they mentally crave. With enough knowledge of a particular character anyone can be a source of emotional sustenance for another regardless of the amount of physical resources they possess, this ability to be an emotional object of desire can allow for great social mobility and thus its importance is not to be underestimated. Likewise, emotional intelligence combined with an understanding of a person's interpersonal relationships can be used to identify a person's emotional weak spots and leverage those for gain should you choose to engage in a more aggressive approach.

Fifthly, you must develop the ability to cold read, that is to say, detect, comprehend and understand subtle non-verbal cues such as vocal tonality, posture/body language, eye/facial movements, choice of clothing/accessorization as well as accent and lingual register (e.g.: posh speak, Ebonics etc.) This allows you to deduce someone's state in real-time; quickly deduce the type of character they are presenting to you, as well as process feedback about how they currently feel about you. Knowing how people truly feel about you regardless of what they say as well as having the ability to make accurate generalisations about a person without having to psychologically probe them for the information is an invaluable skill. Cold-reading is undoubtedly a prerequisite on any budding Machiavellian's list of talents as it contributes to the previously mentioned importance of critical analysis, the need for a mind that can reach outward rather than one that is predisposed to imprison itself inwardly.

Sixthly is superficial charm, Machiavellianism requires constant in-field analysis and ample socialisation, every interaction you have should have meaning to it, in your conversations you should be summing a person up and collecting information on each of those you interact with so that you may come to understand the true nature of the people you deal with. Likewise in the process of doing so you may also happen upon valuable information which has the potential to grant you personal power over said people (e.g.: secrets, admissions in confidence etc.) It is so incredibly common nowadays that the average man or woman seeks to greet you with an inauthentic version of themselves, their fabled social representative, it is this form of learned defence mechanism people employ that you must overcome in order to become properly acquainted. It is thusly important that Machiavellianism is veiled with charm and/or humour, charm is the anaesthesia of suspicion, it allows you to probe deeply into the psyche of others without causing pain or suspicion, just as in the physical realm chemical sedatives allow doctors to operate on a person in much the same way. If people do not feel they can trust you, if you lack the ability to make people feel comfortable with a charming disposition, no matter how superficial that charm is, then the interrogative nature of a Machiavellian will arouse ill-feeling that can result in ostracisation. For best results one should always apply charm, charm is necessary for comfort.

These six components are that which make up the vocational toolbox required to facilitate a person's successful application of the 48 Laws of Power, reading the book and having none or perhaps only one or two of the qualities I just listed will not turn you into a competent Machiavellian as you will lack the vocational competency to effectively execute the laws of power. The book in and of itself is not enough to create a Machiavellian, but merely acts to enable the oblivious everyday man or woman to recognise when they're dealing with a Machiavellian. If you wish to become a successful Machiavellian you must achieve competency in the skills previously listed for if you do not you will be deficient in ability, crippling your effectiveness.

How to Apply The 48 Laws of Power (Become More Effective in Your Manipulations)

25 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/25/how-to-apply-the-48-laws-of-power/>

Meat of the article (not a TLDR by any measure):

Now in paragraph 1 talents which are fundamental to the weaponization of Machiavellianism were mentioned, so to begin:

Firstly, you need to possess an analytical mind, a mind that thinks more than it feels, it is imperative that your modus operandi utilises logic rather than emotion if you are to apply the laws of power effectively. Emotive reasoning encourages fallibility, transparency (which is anti-Machiavellian) and the exposure of one's weaknesses, women in particular find this talent incredibly difficult to master as it in essence goes against the very basis of their natures. Emotional reasoning leads to incorrect deductions and poor judgement. Emotive reasoning is inward (solipsistic) whilst logical reasoning is outward (abstract), in order to analyse one must be looking outward and comprehending the outward with as little confusion from the inward as possible, if this is achieved one can deduce with great precision.

Secondly, your mind must be mentally fit rather than lethargic, you must develop the muscle of your wit, that is to say you should understand people's words and actions on multiple levels, entendre, innuendo, puns, they are the language of subtext, if you cannot pierce the realm of subtext, you cannot hope to be a successful Machiavellian. If you cannot understand the subtleties of a person's character, you cannot hope to ever truly know and connect with them as the nature of their being in its entirety is beyond the limits of your mind's understanding. Subtext is a realm of communication all of its own, if you are blind to it, it will become your Achilles's heel and your obliviousness will reduce your overall effectiveness.

Thirdly, and this is something of an extension of the last point, articulacy, the silver tongue, you need the competency to verbally riposte with mental dexterity. This skill is incredibly important, mostly as a means of defence as to aid with deflection and pressure reversal, however, it may also be used as a tool of interrogation should that be one's proclivity. It is an especially useful skill when one is caught off guard by an ambush, that is to say, a psychological test is posed to you abruptly in full-view of an audience where there is surmounting social pressure for you to respond with an air of effortlessness or otherwise incur a social penalty. A successful Machiavellian knows how to defend themselves from Machiavellian devices as well as attack with them and thus needs to be quick off the draw.

Fourthly, you must develop emotional intelligence (this is where women make up for their weakness in point 1), this doesn't mean that you should analyse with emotion but rather that you must be capable of communicating with it, understand the relationship between emotions by learning how they invoke and relate to neighbouring emotions. Likewise to be capable of this you should have an intricate grasp of the characteristics and depth of each emotion. You need to understand the nature of each emotion itself so that this can be leveraged to influence people into predictable outcomes. Portraying the correct emotional appearance for the context at hand as well as understanding how other people's emotions form the basis of their disposition is another fundamental facet of emotional intelligence. By understanding emotion you can effectively fill another person's emotional void by making yourself the source of the emotion they lust for (law 11 - keep people dependant on you.) Understanding someone's emotional makeup is the most effective way of influencing them as it allows you to be a supplier of what they mentally crave. With enough knowledge of a particular character anyone can be a source of emotional sustenance for another regardless of the amount of physical resources they possess, this ability to be an emotional object of desire can allow for great social mobility and thus its importance is not to be underestimated. Likewise, emotional intelligence combined with an understanding of a person's interpersonal relationships can be used to identify a person's emotional weak spots and leverage those for gain should you choose to engage in a more aggressive approach.

Fifthly, you must develop the ability to cold read, that is to say, detect, comprehend and understand subtle non-verbal cues such as vocal tonality, posture/body language, eye/facial movements, choice of clothing/accessorization as well as accent and lingual register (e.g.: posh speak, Ebonics etc.) This allows you to deduce someone's state in real-time; quickly deduce the type of character they are presenting to you, as well as process feedback about how they currently feel about you. Knowing how people truly feel about you regardless of what they say as well as having the ability to make accurate generalisations about a person without having to psychologically probe them for the information is an invaluable skill. Cold-reading is undoubtedly a prerequisite on any budding Machiavellian's list of talents as it contributes to the previously mentioned importance of critical analysis, the need for a mind that can reach outward rather than one that is predisposed to imprison itself inwardly.

Sixthly is superficial charm, Machiavellianism requires constant in-field analysis and ample socialisation, every interaction you have should have meaning to it, in your conversations you should be summing a person up and collecting information on each of those you interact with so that you may come to understand the true nature of the people you deal with. Likewise in the process of doing so you may also happen upon valuable information which has the potential to grant you personal power over said people (e.g.: secrets, admissions in confidence etc.) It is so incredibly common nowadays that the average man or woman seeks to greet you with an inauthentic version of themselves, their fabled social representative, it is this form of learned defence mechanism people employ that you must overcome in order to become properly acquainted. It is thusly important that Machiavellianism is veiled with charm and/or humour, charm is the anaesthesia of suspicion, it allows you to probe deeply into the psyche of others without causing pain or suspicion, just as in the physical realm chemical sedatives allow doctors to operate on a person in much the same way. If people do not feel they can trust you, if you lack the ability to make people feel comfortable with a charming disposition, no matter how superficial that charm is, then the interrogative nature of a Machiavellian will arouse ill-feeling that can result in ostracisation. For best results one should always apply charm, charm is necessary for comfort.

These six components are that which make up the vocational toolbox required to facilitate a person's successful application of the 48 Laws of Power, reading the book and having none or perhaps only one or two of the qualities I just listed will not turn you into a competent Machiavellian as you will lack the vocational competency to effectively execute the laws of power. The book in and of itself is not enough to create a Machiavellian, but merely acts to enable the oblivious everyday man or woman to recognise when they're dealing with a Machiavellian. If you wish to become a successful Machiavellian you must achieve competency in the skills previously listed for if you do not you will be deficient in ability, crippling your effectiveness.

16

UPVOTES

Desire vs. Necessity, the fundamental dichotomy that all humans must confront

30 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This train of thought is relevant to self-improvement which of course is fundamental to SMV, it's not sexual strategy per se, but is a question of a nature which will directly influence everything in your life, sexual strategy of course being one of those components. Part of the red pill is realising what you're doing with your life and understanding that the direction you're heading in greatly affects who you are, your personality, your attraction to the opposite sex and where you'll eventually end up. Will your life be a success in your own eyes at the end of it? How are you measuring success? Success based upon personal happiness and recognition or success based upon financial earnings? A well balanced mixture of all 3 perhaps?

Some people have the ability to be exceptional in a multitude of areas regardless of their interests, typically they have enjoy strong mental acuity, concentration and memory and thus can regurgitate what needs to be done to hit the right grade boundaries in school or prepare the correct documentation for their office jobs. The less mentally gifted (I don't mean unintelligent, but those who are more mortal and less godlike in their absorption of knowledge) can typically only excel in what they find to be their personal calling, something they feel passion for. This is especially true of ADHD types and people with low attention spans who suffer greatly trying to concentrate on things that yield no interest to them yet can focus intensely (I believe the scientific term is known as hyperfocus?) when a particular area or subject manages to catch their interest.

The underlying dichotomy is essentially deciding whether to dedicate yourself to doing something that you love which could potentially pay the bills (but may not - an opportunity cost) or doing something that will definitely pay the bills but as a trade or vocation is a form of psychic prison, no pleasure is derived from the job/vocation/area of learning, it simple saps your spirit dry.

Ideally doing what you love will pay the bills too, but be under no illusions there are plenty of people without the freedom to do what they love but are instead trapped doing crappy assignments for subjects they dislike, meeting deadlines for companies in boring industries that they don't really give a fuck about. They're grinding pay cheques and killing their souls slowly because they're slaves to the international monetary system. They're not harmonious with who they are, they aren't happy, they may make money or have a college place on a course somewhere but they're trapped in a vocation or area of study that is not compatible with their character. They don't enjoy what they're doing. To an extent, one could say its psychological imprisonment, however, all humans are subject to the power of the monetary system we all live under and do what they have to do to survive. Sometimes bad choices are made due to a lack of foreknowledge, eg: you never knew studying IT or business would suck so much and would turn back the clock and choose something else if you could. Now it looks like you're stuck doing tech support and using Microsoft Excel for the rest of your life. You get my drift.

So now I want to present the following questions: what would you regard as being more RP in how you choose to live your life? Doing what needs to be done to make money regardless of how that makes you feel and the effect it has on your personal happiness, effectively taking a bottom line approach, sacrificing your sense of self to attain a certain standard of living? Or maximising your sense of self by following the core of who you really are and dedicating your endeavours to that?

To simplify the question: Should you dedicate yourself to your passions and take a huge risk in doing something that offers no safety and may not pay off or work a cozy 9-5 office job that pays enough but has you drinking yourself into anaesthesia at the weekends?

45

UPVOTES

"The Lost Boys" - Broken Homes, Pain, Social Retardation and Involuntary Solitude

8 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This post is inspired by /u/veggie_girl's contribution the other day, thanks for the inspiration veggie_girl.

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/05/08/the-suffering-of-the-lost-boys/>

Tldr: This piece is looking at how feminism has facilitated broken homes in becoming socially acceptable commonalities and how this has caused so many guys to become underperforming self-hating fuckups that need TRP. There's not an awful lot of a chatter about feminism, more of a focus on the personal hardships and struggling young men and later on in life, adult men, must contend with in a world where the deck is stacked against them and nobody gives a fuck. It's describing a loneliness that many boys and men feel as a result of poor parenting (single mothers and beta fathers) that is rarely ever vocalised or talked about.

It's the second date with this girl, already fucked her on the first date, I go to meet her in a bar that's 5 minutes from my house, she knew where the bar was, but not where my house was which is why we were meeting at the bar. I head into the bar and find her sat there with a guy who she has some insane rapport with, very high comfort laced with flirtation, I had planned to meet up with her in the bar briefly to come and get her and bring her back to my house as she was coming over to fuck, this wasn't meant to be a social gathering, I was coming to meet her, not her and the random guy she unannouncedly decided to bring along. I can tell instantly they have history, as in, this guy used to fuck this girl kind of history, I can spot that a mile off, it's an instinct, anyone who is remotely decent at reading people will pick up on the vibe straightaway, it's no Sherlock Holmes shit. I'm wondering something along the lines of "why the fuck have you brought some dick you used to fuck to come and meet the dick that you're currently fucking?" immediately I'm thinking she's trying to pull some power game and I'm not happy about crap because because it means she's trying to fuck with me.

They're talking about how he's ex-military and sharing stories about "the good old days" some crazy ass dark triad story about cocaine and him sealing her up in a tent and setting it on fire with her still inside it whilst they were all out on a weekend camping trip some years ago "just for fun." I'm not liking this shit at all, 1: she was meant to come alone, maybe have a quick drink and then come back to mine for the night, instead she brought an ex-bf and switched shit up without letting me know prior, 2: they're having some non-inclusive conversation about memories and other crap I cannot possibly have any input on, that's pretty anti-social shit, 3: the conversation they are having is crazy as fuck, talking about burning people in tents, drugs, guns and people he'd shot (gun ownership is illegal in England) and blah blah. I'm thinking not only did she bring an ex-boyfriend but the bitch has brought a fucking crazy ex-boyfriend, this means she's got this crazy cunt doing the big brother routine fucking vetting me/analysing me to help supplement whatever fucked up insecurities she had about me. Great. Fuck that shit. I sit there a couple of minutes and I say "I'm going to the toilet", she says "you should get a drink as well and then rejoin us" I reply "yeah" they then enquire what type of drink I'm going to have and I reply "something strong", I go for a piss. I said I'm going to the toilet because I needed a piss but also as a pretence to get the fuck out of there. No way am I confronting or qualifying to some dark triad ex-military pyromaniac drug dealer, no bitch is fucking worth that shit, they're welcome to each other. I was done with it at that point. If you pull a bait and switch on me like that and then expect me to play ball with your new paradigm, you better think again motherfucker. Her expectation was I was going to get with the program because I was getting guaranteed pussy that night. No, that's not how it works.

I walk out of the bar and leave her with her former love interest (My intuition was correct, I found out later on they had dated in the past.) Here is where shit gets poetic, she was meant to stay at my house that night (to fuck, she was a fresh plate) and she didn't live nearby, so where I lived was out of town for her and she had come into town to stay at my house that night just to fuck. She starts frantically texting me "where are you?!" and all this shit about half an hour after I hadn't returned from a seemingly extremely long stint in the bar toilet. 2 hours later shes texting "how could you, you're a piece of shit!" and other such associated crap, I also had about 20 blocked calls from her number, I didn't want to talk to the bitch so I blacklisted her number on my phone, fuck that shit. The phone's blocking the calls and I'm ignoring all her texts, I have about 8 or so texts off her.

The next day at about 9.30am when I'm at my establishment of daily business I get some essay text about how much of a dick I am, how manipulative I am, how selfish I am, how I had abandoned her, how because of my actions she had to "get a hotel at short notice" how much it had stressed her out and blah blah blah, just some silly solipsistic rant, no consideration for why what had happened, happened. I simply reply "lol you fucked up", 4pm that same day I get another essay text saying "I'm sorry for everything I said I was just upset and disappointed because I was looking forward to spending the night with you and then you just left, maybe we can work things out?" I haven't spoken to her since. She isn't worth the hassle. I'm not going to sit there and explain to her why bringing your psycho ex-boyfriend to a hook-up is a bad idea. Cut and run. Always be willing to take the L. The kind of shit I'm describing here should have all kinds of red flags going off on your radar, if there's too many red flags cut and run, the pussy isn't worth it.

Moral of the story: Don't give up your self-respect to get laid it isn't fucking worth it, if you're that horny just go home and jack-off, that level of bullshit and self-degradation isn't worth 10~ minutes inside some pussy. I don't even care if she's a 10 to you, it isn't worth it.

Moral of the story #2: Turns out she was bipolar, sticking your dick in crazy is not worth the head games or getting involved with the other psychos she knows. Psycho bitches attract psychos male and female, remember that, delinquents love to congregate and talk nonchalantly about their crazy fucked up lives because hardly anybody relates to them and their perversity so when they find another delinquent they all bounce off each other and feed into each other. If you're not about that kind of life, and most of us aren't, you don't need that noise, they will fuck with the program. These aren't functional dark triads, they're dysfunctionals, stay away from them because they will bring you down with them, they're toxic.

This happened awhile ago it's not fresh. I don't really share my FRs because I'm not invested in telling people on the internet about my real life and what happens in it, however I thought this one situation was particularly interesting and that a lot could be learnt from it, especially by the newbies and other guys who can't even see themselves turning down guaranteed pussy. In case anyone asks, no, I don't put this kind of stuff on my website, my site is far more formalised, things like field-reports don't fit with the vision I have for it, this is something of a one-off.

Misinformation held by idiots about The Dark Triad

6 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've seen numerous newbie comments in and outside of TRP that think borrowing dark triad traits or "going dark triad" means "becoming some psychopathic dysfunctional asshole", which is a misinformed assumption that's way off the mark, it's not about becoming some dysfunctional crazy lunatic, it's about neurotypical healthy individuals handpicking the useful traits, functions and techniques dark triad characters embody and applying them to help improve one's self in a controlled manner.

The great thing about "learning to be dark triad" rather than "being a natural" is you have an off switch for your behaviour, you can stop being manipulative or unsympathetic whenever you want because you calibrate these qualities to certain environments and situational needs (eg: the cutthroat corporate environment where only the DTs and their pets thrive.) So the people you're reliant upon in work-life to make a crust are the ones who you will use the DT with in order to provide for yourself and/or your family, you're not going to go home and deny your loved ones intimacy or see them as pawns to be manipulated (if you do manipulate them, you do it for their own good), likewise borrowing egoism and confidence from narcissism won't have you suffering the negatives of narcissism (why won't people appreciate I'm a god?! LIFE IS UNFAIR! GIVE ME ATTENTION!) because you're handpicking the functionally useful parts of the triad through learning/training and discarding the dysfunctional parts that most of the naturals suffer from. Funnily enough, there are some functional naturals out there (CEOs and multi millionaires rather than dysfunctionals who make up 25% of the prison population)

In fact I can't remember where I read it, it was awhile ago, but there was a survey of some kind which measured peoples morality and empathy, the working class were the least machiavellian, the middle class were slightly machiavellian, the "lower-rich" were moderately machiavellian and those who were comfortably rich, as in double digits in the millions were ruthlessly machiavellian. Enough said.

As for "giving yourself to the dark triad" it's not possible to go "full dark triad" (whatever that is, it's simply a spectrum) if you're the typical average person (so not a sociopath) without the use of some hard drugs (high purity cocaine comes to mind.) Have you ever wondered why drug dealers selling class As/schedule 1's are normally so fucking gangster? It's because they're either A: natural psychopaths or B: neurotypical people in a high stress and unsafe job so they do their own gear to maintain an edge and compete with the psychopaths on the streets.

It's funny how so many people come to realise "nice guys finish last" but won't go the full mile and think "sometimes you have to be a pretty calculating asshole just to survive in this fucked up world" (which is another pill to swallow, morality is a luxury for those who can afford it), if we concentrate on pragmatism being an asshole is a very valid strategy, if we concentrate on spiritualism and pragmatism, then one should only be an asshole when necessary. A lot of people don't realise you can calibrate this stuff with a bit of practice and tend to think you can either only be good or evil, not thinking one can be evil when necessary and when permitted (and it is safe to be so) a good, charitable person. Shades of grey, you're not either the protagonist or antagonist in your personal story, you can switch sides whenever the fuck you want, that's what the formlessness of machiavellianism embodies and is probably one of it's most useful qualities, the ability to adapt and reinvent.

Also a note on the tetrad (not the triad), the tetrad is the addition of sadism to the collection of DT traits, why we don't talk about the tetrad (sadism) is that there is literally nothing about sadism you can use to improve yourself. Sadism is always immoral too, rather than amoral, unless the person you're inflicting pain onto is a masochist, then quite perversely, what you're doing is moral as they enjoy the pain being inflicted upon them, and the person inflicting the pain enjoys inflicting it. Pretty fucked up shit beyond the interest or scope of self-improvement.

51

UPVOTES

Misinformation held by idiots about The Dark Triad [X-post from TRP]

6 June 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

I've seen numerous newbie comments in and outside of TRP that think borrowing dark triad traits or "going dark triad" means "becoming some psychopathic dysfunctional asshole", which is a misinformed assumption that's way off the mark, it's not about becoming some dysfunctional crazy lunatic, it's about neurotypical healthy individuals handpicking the useful traits, functions and techniques dark triad characters embody and applying them to help improve one's self in a controlled manner.

The great thing about "learning to be dark triad" rather than "being a natural" is you have an off switch for your behaviour, you can stop being manipulative or unsympathetic whenever you want because you calibrate these qualities to certain environments and situational needs (eg: the cutthroat corporate environment where only the DTs and their pets thrive.) So the people you're reliant upon in work-life to make a crust are the ones who you will use the DT with in order to provide for yourself and/or your family, you're not going to go home and deny your loved ones intimacy or see them as pawns to be manipulated (if you do manipulate them, you do it for their own good), likewise borrowing egoism and confidence from narcissism won't have you suffering the negatives of narcissism (why won't people appreciate I'm a god?! LIFE IS UNFAIR! GIVE ME ATTENTION!) because you're handpicking the functionally useful parts of the triad through learning/training and discarding the dysfunctional parts that most of the naturals suffer from. Funnily enough, there are some functional naturals out there (CEOs and multi millionaires rather than dysfunctionals who make up 25% of the prison population)

In fact I can't remember where I read it, it was awhile ago, but there was a survey of some kind which measured peoples morality and empathy, the working class were the least machiavellian, the middle class were slightly machiavellian, the "lower-rich" were moderately machiavellian and those who were comfortably rich, as in double digits in the millions were ruthlessly machiavellian. Enough said.

As for "giving yourself to the dark triad" it's not possible to go "full dark triad" (whatever that is, it's simply a spectrum) if you're the typical average person (so not a sociopath) without the use of some hard drugs (high purity cocaine comes to mind.) Have you ever wondered why drug dealers selling class As/schedule 1's are normally so fucking gangster? It's because they're either A: natural psychopaths or B: neurotypical people in a high stress and unsafe job so they do their own gear to maintain an edge and compete with the psychopaths on the streets.

It's funny how so many people come to realise "nice guys finish last" but won't go the full mile and think "sometimes you have to be a pretty calculating asshole just to survive in this fucked up world" (which is another pill to swallow, morality is a luxury for those who can afford it), if we concentrate on pragmatism being an asshole is a very valid strategy, if we concentrate on spiritualism and pragmatism, then one should only be an asshole when necessary. A lot of people don't realise you can calibrate this stuff with a bit of practice and tend to think you can either only be good or evil, not thinking one can be evil when necessary and when permitted (and it is safe to be so) a good, charitable person. Shades of grey, you're not either the protagonist or antagonist in your personal story, you can switch sides whenever the fuck you want, that's what the formlessness of machiavellianism embodies and is probably one of it's most useful qualities, the ability to adapt and reinvent.

Also a note on the tetrad (not the triad), the tetrad is the addition of sadism to the collection of DT traits, why we don't talk about the tetrad (sadism) is that there is literally nothing about sadism you can use to improve yourself. Sadism is always immoral too, rather than amoral, unless the person you're inflicting pain onto is a masochist, then quite perversely, what you're doing is moral as they enjoy the pain being inflicted upon them, and the person inflicting the pain enjoys inflicting it. Pretty fucked up shit beyond the interest or scope of self-improvement.

15
UPVOTES

The Collapse & The Evolution of Awareness

28 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The Collapse & The Evolution of Awareness

28 June 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

As usual, set some time aside.

Opening excerpt:

What would happen if the red pill ever became a mainstream intellectual framework? In my estimation society would either a: collapse or b: a sizeable number of redpillers would evolve into neoreactionaries as they begin to analyse the entire system and implement change at the political and legal levels. Essentially the state of affairs would devolve into all-out ideological warfare with sex-positive feminism, the prevailing hegemonic ideology in the west as it stands. Modern day contemporary feminism is but a shadowy figure of doublespeak and doublethink which stands defiant and omnipotent in what is a post-religious collection of societies, succeeding the role of religion as both moral and social arbitrator, espousing it's radicalist rhetoric through various imperative and declarative assertions in a hysterically hyperbolic manner such as: "thou shalt not rape!" , "thou may judge man, not woman" , "keeping a home is slavery!" , "you can have it all!" (if you're a woman) among other such asinine and societally dysfunctional beliefs.

Crux of the post: looks at the evolution of PUA into TRP and points to neoreaction as the logical next-step for redpillers who are "looking for more pieces of the puzzle" so to speak.

Full article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/06/28/the-collapse-the-evolution-of-awareness/>

This is a copy-paste of one of my posts at TRP I sent in response to someone. Enjoy.

Contrary to a lot of the bullshit misinformed posts in that thread about DTs, yes they may not be down for you in a fight (depends on threat assessment and current mood), yes they will lie to you, yes they are calculating but the same can be said for beta men, fuck even the average man on the street who will also possess these qualities who are not DT at all, rather than fear (the reasoning the average man will sell you out/lie to you) a DT will be disloyal for more respectable purposes, they value their own self-preservation above sacrifice for others, that is not malevolent per se, just selfish, selfishness is something we advocate here on the path to self-improvement, DT's possess this trait INNATELY.

If you've had good and bad experiences with DTs (I've been friend and foe of the sociopath) and a DT is not gaslighting you or exploiting you harmfully in any way, they probably like you, contrary to the bad rep they get and some of the crappy comments in here, DTs want friends too, they want to like people, they just don't like most people, they view them as disposable and with contempt, if a DT keeps you in their life for 10 years or whatever extended period of time, you are not disposable to them, especially if they don't keep you around for financial or sexual reasons, but for psychological ones. Psychological bonds are overvalued by DTs because they rarely form them, mainly because they don't trust or value most people, being DT is a lonely existence which is part of the reason many DTs fill the void with distractions in the form of superficial and essentially disposable, shallow relationships with people. DTs however, like normal people, will form affinities for people they become repeatedly familiar with that do not upset them or violate them in anyway.

You don't understand DTs unless you are one yourself, borderline, or have been friends with one. DTs do not value anyone more than themselves, but they do value loyalty and closeness, just due to their character they have immense difficulty forming trust/loyalty/closeness and meaningful friendships, this doesn't mean they don't want these things, it means they don't know how to get those things without giving up their identity and very few people will trust them enough (unless they are good at covering up the fact they are DT) and likewise, they will trust very few people enough in order to allow that sort of relational intimacy to flourish, and yes, I'm talking strictly platonic here.

A male DT may know a lot of people on a superficial basis and even socialize with them, but that is often as a means of self-improvement, a way to gain social capital, they see it as necessary because they are tactical in nature, but unlike the social climbing neurotypical woman, they don't take pleasure out of all the nuances of socialising, (female DTs tend to vary on whether they like to socialise or not, my experience suggests they can perform adequately, but do not necessarily enjoy it, they feel obligated to do it as a survival mechanism.) DTs part and parcel are not very sociable people, socialising usually a machiavellian chore rather than a pleasure for them (unless they are sadistic types who can mock someone) and although it is something they can succeed at (being seen with high smv people and networking) they don't really enjoy it because they despise most people they come into contact with, as well as harbouring pretty negative views of humanity as a whole.

They hardly EVER let anybody in, if a DT considers you a close friend and keeps you around for a long time, they like you, and shit, sometimes they'll even do good things for you because they know you're going to owe them for it later and they like the sense of control they have over you knowing you owe them, again that is not necessarily malevolent (although it can easily go that way if you fuck them off), but DTs are insecure people when it comes to relationships, they may be excessively confident about many things but trust isn't one of them, knowing someone owes them is like an insurance policy for a DT, they like that sense of security, having the upperhand as to speak "just incase." Funny because, non-DTs are exactly the same in this regard.

As long as you know what you're getting yourself into with a DT it's not that bad, they can be pretty cool people. I'd take a 10 year friendship with a DT guy than with a bluepill mangina anyday, shit I'd take a 10 year friendship with a DT over the average guy, they are intelligent people as long as they are on the functional end of the spectrum, if you don't walk in expecting some intimate friendship where you pour your hearts out to each other and have undying loyalty you can have a lot of fun with them, shit they will even improve your life if improving your life improves their life (eg: pay for you to come out with them because they enjoy your company vs. the average person.) A weakness of the DT is they have less options than non-DTs when it comes to meaningful friendships, if you have a meaningful friendship with one they will ascribe it more value than the average person because it is a rarer occurrence for them. If you are however, a face in the crowd, you are entirely disposable to them, DTs are very "all or nothing" type of people.

A lot of people on TRP have black and white views on the dark triad, which tells me you've never known any actual sociopaths and just go off scripted stereotypes out of movies and shit that you've read, let me say it really simply and this will sound hilarious: not all psychopathic, narcissistic, machiavellian people are the same, they have unique likes and dislikes, various different intelligence levels, very different ratios of M:N:P and some traits are more pronounced, or otherwise more dominant in their psyche than others, someone with 70 psychopathy will care about some things some of the time, whereas someone scoring 100 psychopathy is the equivalent of a man emotionally dead from the high T of steroid abuse.

There's a lot of nuance involved with a DT, DTs aren't all one and the same in personality despite their personality traits, female DTs like normal females are more impulsive prone to neurotic outbursts/betrayal than male DTs (even the functional females), a female DT is like a DT on roids, a female DT with high P has no logic except machiavellian logic (which is supercharged), at least male DTs have the capacity to reason and will listen to that reasoning in some decision making processes, they are not entirely governed by machiavellian logic, although, that does factor heavily, especially if they feel they're going out on a limb. Sometimes DTs will help you and then apply machiavellianism retroactively, but in the moment, "do a good thing because they like you." DTs can be influenced by others too, they just tend to be more psychologically aware and self-aware than the average person. You see, you can't caricature a DT because they are fucking complex.

Basically and quite hilariously you cannot generalise a DT very easily, DTs by nature are unpredictable, sometimes they will do things that seem quite benevolent, we can agree they care less about most things, are generally more negative than positive, are quite manipulative and have a form of superiority complex, but how they govern morality and what their personality is aside these traits like any other human, varies vastly. Most of the DTs I have met have been VERY different people who have fuck all morals for somethings and then are incredibly moralistic (with a self-interested spin) about specific things they feel passionate about, the thing that sticks out most is how good they are at manipulating people, DT doesn't necessarily mean unreservedly evil all of the time, but they do possess a capacity for evil should the situation demand it. Another nuance: some DTs, particularly men, are manipulative in nature, but not very intelligent with their manipulations, this is to say: they want to be manipulative but the sophistication of their manipulation is limited hence why they like the company of advisors/consultants and the like, they take immense pleasure in discussing strategy and honing strategy and sharing these discussions with people they respect enough to have such discussions.

Picture this: a dark triad person who uses their power to help people, there's a mind fuck for you. That is someone who is high mach, high N but borderline P so a 2/3 DT. There's enough nuances to write a book on this shit, but if you want to engage in reductionism so it falls down to "DTs are the boogeymen of humanity" then so be it, DTs aren't all bad, but when they're bad, yes, they're very bad, it can get intense and that intensity of relationship can be very addictive to both men and women alike, hence the attractiveness of the DT. When so many people are unequivocally boring, the intelligence and intensity of a DT can be a breath of (potentially carbon-monoxide filled) air.

As this post may suggest, DTs are full of contradiction, that is part of their charm and equally, their mystery. Rationalising DTs is like rationalising the universe, it's the astrophysics/quantum mechanics of human psychology.

Edit: typos

25

UPVOTES

Women & The Death of Femininity

20 July 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

This is my latest unpublished piece brought to you here first at AlreadyRed, I have a few self-improvement, social dynamic and dark triad pieces in the works, but I thought I'd turn my hand at some philosophy on the topic of how women are becoming removed from their femininity, please leave your criticism, thoughts and feedback before I decide whether to share this piece with a larger audience.

Update - the final piece is here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/07/20/women-the-death-of-femininity/>

Opening excerpt:

Hardened men make for attractive men, for toughness is a trait that men and women alike covet in their fellow-man, almost everybody respects a tough man (even when they dislike him) whilst hardened women make for some utterly repulsive beings that do not inspire the same kind of response in their peers, for you see it is the endurance of prolonged pain that is in its very nature a process of masculinisation.

Those who undergo pain become tougher and with toughness comes a certain masculine component, the more damaged and pain afflicted a person becomes, the more they harden and the tougher they become, this hardening is a natural response to ineptitude and disappointment, it is the catalyst for self-improvement where one's survival is contingent on such improvement and thus forth the harder a person becomes, the more masculine the sum of their spirit becomes. This would even go so far to explain why in the psychological sense women have a propensity to value the ruggedness that experience brings in men, whilst men rather prefer the inexperience of women, for such a woman is free of the contamination of bitterness and cynicism that experience would wrought upon her, effectively spoiling the inherent fragility of her femininity.

In essence the more worn and experienced a woman becomes, the less feminine she becomes, whilst a more battle-scarred and experienced man becomes more masculine in the process. It is thus I must make an observation: it does indeed appear that men become more masculine with time and sufficient hardship, whilst antithetically, women, less feminine. It is in my estimation that men do not just prefer younger women for their more nubile bodies, but additionally, for their more feminine disposition. This perhaps also goes some way in explaining the feminine obsession with maturity, for a mature woman is one of less desirability than an immature one, whilst an immature man is of markedly less desirability than a mature one. What's good for one is not good for the other and thus it is the nature of gender and by extension, biology itself to impose double standards upon the sexes.

110

UPVOTES

Women & The Death of Femininity

20 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/07/20/women-the-death-of-femininity/>

Opening excerpt:

Hardened men make for attractive men, for toughness is a trait that men and women alike covet in their fellow-man, almost everybody respects a tough man (even when they dislike him) whilst hardened women make for some utterly repulsive beings that do not inspire the same kind of response in their peers, for you see it is the endurance of prolonged pain that is in its very nature a process of masculinisation.

Those who undergo pain become tougher and with toughness comes a certain masculine component, the more damaged and pain afflicted a person becomes, the more they harden and the tougher they become, this hardening is a natural response to ineptitude and disappointment, it is the catalyst for self-improvement where one's survival is contingent on such improvement and thus forth the harder a person becomes, the more masculine the sum of their spirit becomes. This would even go so far to explain why in the psychological sense women have a propensity to value the ruggedness that experience brings in men, whilst men rather prefer the inexperience of women, for such a woman is free of the contamination of bitterness and cynicism that experience would wrought upon her, effectively spoiling the inherent fragility of her femininity.

In essence the more worn and experienced a woman becomes, the less feminine she becomes, whilst a more battle-scarred and experienced man becomes more masculine in the process. It is thus I must make an observation: it does indeed appear that men become more masculine with time and sufficient hardship, whilst antithetically, women, less feminine. It is in my estimation that men do not just prefer younger women for their more nubile bodies, but additionally, for their more feminine disposition. This perhaps also goes some way in explaining the feminine obsession with maturity, for a mature woman is one of less desirability than an immature one, whilst an immature man is of markedly less desirability than a mature one. What's good for one is not good for the other and thus it is the nature of gender and by extension, biology itself to impose double standards upon the sexes.

If you want to ask me any questions, have suggestions, requests or whatever, then feel free to ask and I shall endeavour to answer.

136

UPVOTES

[IMPORTANT] Posts that everybody new to TRP should have read.

28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

These are all my posts directed at people who basically know jack shit about TRP philosophy/disposition. If you're new (regardless of your confidence pertaining to how well you think you understand TRP) or whether you are a confused lurker, you should read these posts. If you're new you should read more than you talk, the blind leading the blind doesn't help anyone. The goal of these posts is to raise the lowest common denominator. Enjoy.

- General TRP - "Dissecting the Red Pill" -
<http://illimitablemen.com/2013/10/27/dissecting-the-red-pill/>
- General TRP - "Dissecting the Red Pill Part 2" - Previously Asked Questions - <http://illimitablemen.com/2013/11/10/dissecting-the-red-pill-part-2-q-and-a/>
- Fixations on "things being equal" and where TRP stands on "notions of equality" -
<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/10/the-red-pill-is-intolerant-of-irrationalism-and-equality/>

If you have any questions which don't appear in those posts feel free to ask here. I don't really have the time for a consuming back and forth so try to keep your question simple and likewise I will endeavour to answer briefly and succinctly.

63

UPVOTES

The Three R's: Romanticisation, Realisation & Responsibility

17 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is an extended version of my gilded post from the other day.

Full article:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/08/17/the-three-rs-romanticisation-realisation-responsibility/>

Excerpt:

The red pill community and more generally speaking the manosphere have something of a love-hate relationship with women. I don't love women as a collective, but seeing them for what they are to the bare bones I have learnt to accept them. In the rare instances they occur I can appreciate the minority of well-raised women that'll contribute positively to my life. I can see how men are idealistic romantics that need/crave a woman in their life to "have a kind of connection they can't have with another man," but by the by, women are nothing to be lauded or worshipped. Western women in general are just shitty people. Red pill men have all the reason in the world to hate women when it's made painfully clear how they operate and how much bullshit they manage to get away with. As unpopular as that notion is, it is far from unjustified. Being hateful however is merely cathartic, not constructive. Long-term catharsis is a sign that you are stuck in the bitter phase in your understanding of women, rather than progressing onward to accepting their limitations whilst simultaneously self-actualising.

Being continuously angry will not help you improve yourself. For the sake of your own mental health, you have to look past the flaws of modern women by being extremely selective with which ones you'll reward with relational commitment. Ultimately, you must employ RP strategies to hold frame and maintain dominance with women who do manage to make the grade. It is in this way that you can learn to enjoy their positive attributes whilst mitigating their negatives, and if necessary subsequently drop them like hot shit when they cross the line. Which of course many, if not almost all, will at some point.

13

UPVOTES

The Three R's: Romanticisation, Realisation & Responsibility [TRP X-Post]

17 August 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is an extended version of my gilded post on TRP from the other day.

Full article:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/08/17/the-three-rs-romanticisation-realisation-responsibility/>

Excerpt:

The red pill community and more generally speaking the manosphere have something of a love-hate relationship with women. I don't love women as a collective, but seeing them for what they are to the bare bones I have learnt to accept them. In the rare instances they occur I can appreciate the minority of well-raised women that'll contribute positively to my life. I can see how men are idealistic romantics that need/crave a woman in their life to "have a kind of connection they can't have with another man," but by the by, women are nothing to be lauded or worshipped. Western women in general are just shitty people. Red pill men have all the reason in the world to hate women when it's made painfully clear how they operate and how much bullshit they manage to get away with. As unpopular as that notion is, it is far from unjustified. Being hateful however is merely cathartic, not constructive. Long-term catharsis is a sign that you are stuck in the bitter phase in your understanding of women, rather than progressing onward to accepting their limitations whilst simultaneously self-actualising.

Being continuously angry will not help you improve yourself. For the sake of your own mental health, you have to look past the flaws of modern women by being extremely selective with which ones you'll reward with relational commitment. Ultimately, you must employ RP strategies to hold frame and maintain dominance with women who do manage to make the grade. It is in this way that you can learn to enjoy their positive attributes whilst mitigating their negatives, and if necessary subsequently drop them like hot shit when they cross the line. Which of course many, if not almost all, will at some point.

45

UPVOTES

Marriage.

18 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Could've flaired this MRA, opted for the rant flair.

A massive overhaul of the alimony system is the only way that future generations of men will even begin to consider marriage.

Women/feminists and the system they support are incredibly pragmatic. They are opportunists first and foremost. Whatever strategy enables them to acquire as many shiny things as possible is the strategy they will adopt. Whilst men will still marry, they have no incentive to change the system that's in place. In fact, they have every incentive to keep playing the game - relationship trapping men, escalating to marriage through ultimatums/dread game/guilt trips (manipulation when we do it to women to get laid, but apparently fine when they're looking to enforce commitment) and then they wait a few years to swoop in with the divorce rape and financially clean up. Generally they get a child support double whammy and fuck up the life of some poor kid whilst they're at it too. Sometimes its a conscious process in a woman, other times it isn't.

For the women and blue pills who truly believe in NAWALT it doesn't matter whether you decide to meticulously plan this shit or not. If you don't keep your oath UNTIL YOU DIE, and with your emotions as impulsive as they are, you won't, shit will hit the fan. And a gigantic ugly natural disaster-esque storm of shit it will be - a shitstorm of depressing proportions (at least for the man.) I hear some women have divorce parties nowadays, that's fucked up. As a man, no matter what a woman's intention is, the result is the same either way. Women are too fickle to be held to their word. A woman's word versus financial ruin is a high-risk, low-return investment. No amount of beauty is worth that. Not even a promise of family is worth that.

Only when hardly a soul will collectively marry the female demographic in spite of their beauty and resultingly they're left to fend for themselves will the powers that be become incentivised to make the law more favourable to men. And if/when the law does become more favourable to men it won't be to help men (as they may frame it as an act of oh so mighty benevolence or play it off as a concession won by the men's rights movement,) but rather as always it will be enacted in the interest of women. That's what feminism is - woman's advocacy. If all the feminist divorce lawyers and judges decide to make alimony laws more lenient, it's because there is a belief that firstly: they will increase the amount of money going through their hands/courthouses by changing the law, and secondly that women as a demographic will benefit from enacting such a judicial change. It will be nothing more than an elaborate ruse to encourage men to sign their balls over on the dotted line rather than avoid the institution completely. Whilst the divorce industry is profitable, this system is here to stay. When men start dropping out and divorce lawyers are going out of business we'll see a change.

Married men on here hate to hear it but marriage is farcical bullshit and you're living under nothing short of contractual slavery. Marriage is a pretence for wealth redistribution. You don't need marriage for kids, cohabitation will do just fine but to be honest you don't even need that, you can just visit/stay at her house all the time and have your own place to get away from her. In fact I would argue as much as she would hate the distance you create between yourself and her, the relationship may last longer because you have your space - a place to go no contact when she loses her shit and suddenly the dread causes her to acquire appreciation for you. What happens when you share a property and a bed? This self-entitled cunt is telling you to get out of your own bed and go sleep on the sofa. Fuck that. Being married is like having an anvil hanging off a cliff above you that follows you wherever you go, and should the wind blow in a way that pisses the woman off, that anvil will descend from the heavens upon you like the righteous wrath of god himself; only to desecrate and annihilate everything you've ever worked for and leave you a shell of your former self. Have you seen the male suicide rates caused by divorce? Fuck that shit, I like not being a suicidal alcoholic. Suits me fucking great actually.

As an aside, I've never been married. Luckily I've learnt vicariously from other men's pain to not need to make the mistakes they did in order to acquire the opinion I have. So a thank you to all the men who took one for the team.

You can tell when a man has been divorced, you can see a unique kind of pain in his eyes. A soul wrought with the most despondent of torment.

Thanks for reading. If you like my writing check out:

My blog - <http://illimitablemen.com/>

My twitter - <http://twitter.com/IllimitableMan>

74

UPVOTES

Patrice O'Neal on False Rape Allegations and Retroactive Consent Withdrawal

20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CybGo6hALVo>

I'd never heard this before, but found it today. A brilliant story which really highlights how much power a woman's tears and words have if she decides to regret fucking you after the fact. Retroactive consent withdrawal I believe it's called. Some people were saying the other day about a new cali law or some shit which allows a woman to withdraw consent after the fact. Well Patrice is dead now but if you wondered what his take would have be on it all, it's right here.

TLDR of entire video: Some chick was gangbanged by patrice and his friends when he was 16. Patrice told a guy about it and then this guy went and blackmailed the chick saying he'd tell everyone if he didn't get a blowjob. She gave the guy a blowjob (coerced sex) and then lost her shit and said that everyone raped her. Patrice then got sent to adult prison for 2 months on a technicality, even though their gangbang was consensual she was 15 and he was 16 when it happened, so they did him for statutory rape.

So I have a collection of PDFs on my laptop of various reports, studies and manosphere-created projects which are all of incredible significance to red pillers.

If you don't like reading academic writing I recommend skipping all the reports and instead just downloading both versions of the Book of the Pook. They are both different in format and contain different content. To save the files you may need to right click on the links and go to "save as" otherwise depending on your settings, Adobe will just load up the file in your browser directly from my blog. Enjoy.

A Brief Report on the Dark Triad of Personality

What it's about: "Of the offensive yet non-pathological personalities in the literature, three are especially prominent: Machiavellianism, subclinical narcissism, and subclinical psychopathy. We evaluated the recent contention that, in normal samples, this Dark Triad of constructs are one and the same. In a sample of 245 students, we measured the three constructs with standard measures and examined a variety of laboratory and self-report correlates. The measures were moderately inter-correlated, but certainly were not equivalent. Their only common Big Five correlate was disagreeableness. Subclinical psychopaths were distinguished by low neuroticism; Machiavellians, and psychopaths were low in conscientiousness; narcissism showed small positive associations with cognitive ability. Narcissists and, to a lesser extent, psychopaths exhibited self-enhancement on two objectively scored indexes. We conclude that the Dark Triad of personalities, as currently measured, are overlapping but distinct constructs."

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/a-brief-report-on-the-dark-triad-of-personality-the-university-of-british-columbia-canada.pdf>

Dual Sexual Strategy in Females – Is the Mysterious Nature of Women Explained

What it's about: "Thornhill and Gangestad try to show that women have a "dual sexual strategy," which means that they adopt different mate choice criteria and different sexual strategies in fertile and non-fertile phases of the menstrual cycle. When fertile, they try to choose a mate with "good genes", and when non-fertile, they adopt strategies to retain a male partner from whom they may obtain some material benefits. Furthermore, Thornhill and Gangestad claim that to be selective in the fertile phase of the menstrual cycle (i.e. preferring males with cues indicating high genetic quality), females should not "openly" advertise ovulation."

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/dual-sexual-strategy-in-females-e28093-is-the-mysterious-nature-of-women-explained-university-of-wroclaw-poland.pdf>

Gender and Sexual Orientation Differences in Sexual Response to Sexual Activities

What it's about: In this study, the authors investigated the hypothesis that women's sexual orientation and sexual responses in the laboratory correlate less highly than do men's because women respond primarily to the sexual activities performed by actors, whereas men respond primarily to the gender of the actors.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/gender-and-sexual-orientation-differences-in-sexual-response-to-sexual-activities-versus-gender-of-actors-in-sexual-films-university-of-toronto-canada.pdf>

Parasites and Raven Mothers - A Comparison Between German and Japanese Single Motherhood

What it's about: Having a child out of wedlock used to be associated with shame and scorn. This is mostly not the case anymore in the western world. Therefore, freed from social sanctions, single motherhood has become an additional family-choice alternative for women, along with marriage and childlessness. Yet, the institutions that influence women's decisions differ across countries.

We compare the institutional frame, in particular labor-market characteristics and family law, in Germany and Japan and, in addition, the interaction between culture and institutions. Both countries had a very traditional (one-earner) family system until the second half of the 20th century. Now we can observe that social changes that happened in Germany decades ago are happening only now in Japan. We analyze if and how the consequences in terms of family structures and fertility rates that resulted in Germany can be transferred to Japan.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/parasites-and-raven-mothers-a-comparison-between-german-and-japanese-single-motherhood.pdf>

Sex as Female Resource for Social Exchange:

What it's about: A heterosexual community can be analyzed as a marketplace in which men seek to acquire sex from women by offering other resources in exchange. Societies will therefore define gender roles as if women are sellers and men buyers of sex. Societies will endow female sexuality, but not male sexuality, with value (as in virginity, fidelity, chastity).

The sexual activities of different couples are loosely interrelated by a marketplace, instead of being fully separate or private, and each couple's decisions may be influenced by market conditions. Economic principles suggest that the price of sex will depend on supply and demand, competition among sellers, variations in product, collusion among sellers, and other factors. Research findings show gender asymmetries (reflecting the complementary economic roles) in prostitution, courtship, infidelity and divorce, female competition, the sexual revolution and changing norms, unequal status between partners, cultural suppression of female sexuality, abusive relationships, rape, and sexual attitudes.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/sex-as-female-resource-for-social-exchange-florida-state-university-usa-kathleen-d-vohs-of-university-of-british-columbia-canada.pdf>

Sexual Infidelity in a National Survey of American Women:

What it's about: The purposes of this study were (a) to estimate the annual prevalence of, and to identify the predictors of, sexual infidelity in a population-based sample of married women (N 4,884); and (b) to evaluate whether the prevalence and predictors of infidelity varied as a function of whether the assessment of infidelity was based on a face-to-face interview versus a computer-assisted self-interview. Annual prevalence of infidelity was much smaller on the basis of the face-to-face interview (1.08%) than on the computer-assisted self-interview (6.13%). Although many of the predictor variables replicated results from previous studies (e.g., demographic variables, religiosity, sexual experience), findings also indicated that childhood sexual abuse (i.e., forced sex) predicted greater probability of infidelity. Finally, the magnitude of the association with infidelity for 4 of the 9 predictor variables differed between the 2 methods for assessing infidelity. This study's findings underscore the importance of assessing infidelity with methods such as computer-assisted self-interviews that minimize the influence of social desirability and impression management.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/sexual-infidelity-in-a-national-survey-of-american-women-differences-in-prevalence-and-correlates-as-a-function-of-method-of-assessment-university-of-colorado-at-boulder-texas-am-uni.pdf>

The Book of Pook

What it's about: Many different overlapping areas of the manosphere, mostly game but there is some literature on increasing testosterone and criticism of feminism/the cultural decline.

Download: <https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/the-book-of-pook.pdf>

The Book of Pook & The Mill

What it's about: Many different overlapping areas of the manosphere, mostly game but there is some literature on increasing testosterone and criticism of feminism/the cultural decline.

Download: <https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/the-book-of-pook-and-the-mill.pdf>

An Assortment of Red Pill Reports/Studies (PDFs) [TRP X-Post]

26 August 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

So I have a collection of PDFs on my laptop of various reports, studies and manosphere-created projects which are all of incredible significance to red pillers.

If you don't like reading academic writing I recommend skipping all the reports and instead just downloading both versions of the Book of the Pook. They are both different in format and contain different content. To save the files you may need to right click on the links and go to "save as" otherwise depending on your settings, Adobe will just load up the file in your browser directly from my blog. Enjoy.

A Brief Report on the Dark Triad of Personality

What it's about: "Of the offensive yet non-pathological personalities in the literature, three are especially prominent: Machiavellianism, subclinical narcissism, and subclinical psychopathy. We evaluated the recent contention that, in normal samples, this Dark Triad of constructs are one and the same. In a sample of 245 students, we measured the three constructs with standard measures and examined a variety of laboratory and self-report correlates. The measures were moderately inter-correlated, but certainly were not equivalent. Their only common Big Five correlate was disagreeableness. Subclinical psychopaths were distinguished by low neuroticism; Machiavellians, and psychopaths were low in conscientiousness; narcissism showed small positive associations with cognitive ability. Narcissists and, to a lesser extent, psychopaths exhibited self-enhancement on two objectively scored indexes. We conclude that the Dark Triad of personalities, as currently measured, are overlapping but distinct constructs."

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/a-brief-report-on-the-dark-triad-of-personality-the-university-of-british-columbia-canada.pdf>

Dual Sexual Strategy in Females – Is the Mysterious Nature of Women Explained

What it's about: "Thornhill and Gangestad try to show that women have a "dual sexual strategy," which means that they adopt different mate choice criteria and different sexual strategies in fertile and non-fertile phases of the menstrual cycle. When fertile, they try to choose a mate with "good genes", and when non-fertile, they adopt strategies to retain a male partner from whom they may obtain some material benefits. Furthermore, Thornhill and Gangestad claim that to be selective in the fertile phase of the menstrual cycle (i.e. preferring males with cues indicating high genetic quality), females should not "openly" advertise ovulation."

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/dual-sexual-strategy-in-females-e28093-is-the-mysterious-nature-of-women-explained-university-of-wroclaw-poland.pdf>

Gender and Sexual Orientation Differences in Sexual Response to Sexual Activities

What it's about: In this study, the authors investigated the hypothesis that women's sexual orientation and sexual responses in the laboratory correlate less highly than do men's because women respond primarily to the sexual activities performed by actors, whereas men respond primarily to the gender of the actors.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/gender-and-sexual-orientation-differences-in-sexual-response-to-sexual-activities-versus-gender-of-actors-in-sexual-films-university-of-toronto-canada.pdf>

Parasites and Raven Mothers - A Comparison Between German and Japanese Single Motherhood

What it's about: Having a child out of wedlock used to be associated with shame and scorn. This is mostly not the case anymore in the western world. Therefore, freed from social sanctions, single motherhood has become an additional family-choice alternative for women, along with marriage and childlessness. Yet, the institutions that influence women's decisions differ across countries.

We compare the institutional frame, in particular labor-market characteristics and family law, in Germany and Japan and, in addition, the interaction between culture and institutions. Both countries had a very traditional (one-earner) family system until the second half of the 20th century. Now we can observe that social changes that happened in Germany decades ago are happening only now in Japan. We analyze if and how the consequences in terms of family structures and fertility rates that resulted in Germany can be transferred to Japan.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/parasites-and-raven-mothers-a-comparison-between-german-and-japanese-single-motherhood.pdf>

Sex as Female Resource for Social Exchange:

What it's about: A heterosexual community can be analyzed as a marketplace in which men seek to acquire sex from women by offering other resources in exchange. Societies will therefore define gender roles as if women are sellers and men buyers of sex. Societies will endow female sexuality, but not male sexuality, with value (as in virginity, fidelity, chastity).

The sexual activities of different couples are loosely interrelated by a marketplace, instead of being fully separate or private, and each couple's decisions may be influenced by market conditions. Economic principles suggest that the price of sex will depend on supply and demand, competition among sellers, variations in product, collusion among sellers, and other factors. Research findings show gender asymmetries (reflecting the complementary economic roles) in prostitution, courtship, infidelity and divorce, female competition, the sexual revolution and changing norms, unequal status between partners, cultural suppression of female sexuality, abusive relationships, rape, and sexual attitudes.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/sex-as-female-resource-for-social-exchange-florida-state-university-usa-kathleen-d-vohs-of-university-of-british-columbia-canada.pdf>

Sexual Infidelity in a National Survey of American Women:

What it's about: The purposes of this study were (a) to estimate the annual prevalence of, and to identify the predictors of, sexual infidelity in a population-based sample of married women (N 4,884); and (b) to evaluate whether the prevalence and predictors of infidelity varied as a function of whether the assessment of infidelity was based on a face-to-face interview versus a computer-assisted self-interview. Annual prevalence of infidelity was much smaller on the basis of the face-to-face interview (1.08%) than on the computer-assisted self-interview (6.13%). Although many of the predictor variables replicated results from previous studies (e.g., demographic variables, religiosity, sexual experience), findings also indicated that childhood sexual abuse (i.e., forced sex) predicted greater probability of infidelity. Finally, the magnitude of the association with infidelity for 4 of the 9 predictor variables differed between the 2 methods for assessing infidelity. This study's findings underscore the importance of assessing infidelity with methods such as computer-assisted self-interviews that minimize the influence of social desirability and impression management.

Download:

<https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/sexual-infidelity-in-a-national-survey-of-american-women-differences-in-prevalence-and-correlates-as-a-function-of-method-of-assessment-university-of-colorado-at-boulder-texas-am-uni.pdf>

The Book of Pook

What it's about: Many different overlapping areas of the manosphere, mostly game but there is some literature on increasing testosterone and criticism of feminism/the cultural decline.

Download: <https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/the-book-of-pook.pdf>

The Book of Pook & The Mill

What it's about: Many different overlapping areas of the manosphere, mostly game but there is some literature on increasing testosterone and criticism of feminism/the cultural decline.

Download: <https://illimitableman.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/the-book-of-pook-and-the-mill.pdf>

107
UPVOTES

Machiavellianism in Business: The difference between the self-made rich (Nouveau Riche) and poor is machiavellian aptitude (skill/competency), whilst the difference between the self-made rich and middle/working class is not just aptitude but likewise ethical constraints.

5 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Reposting my old thread here because the title was fucked in the old one and I couldn't fix it (reddit really need to allow title edits.) Not trying to avoid the downvotes I got there so if you give enough fucks feel free to reapply your downvote here, but I've added some insight gained from the previous (now deleted) topic.

In an unofficial self report of self-made multimillionaires (with a subset that have a networth of $10m+) in the $10m+ group a 98% rate of "machiavellianism" was found via the characterisation of a set of questions. (So not the best evidence in the world, but still indicative.) The results from it concluded that middle class people are the least manipulative on average. Seeing as we need money to thrive and exercise power, this suggests machiavellianism is an adaptive psychosocial trait beneficial to the individual and by extension, the continual of the species, if not an evolutionary advantage. Read the 48 Laws of Power, and in addition, my exemplified and in-depth essays on the laws which can be found here (currently 2/48, got a ways to go - haven't forgotten my commitment to machiavellian research and analysis despite my recent quietness on the topic but have been incredibly busy.)

Indeed, the survey research for my book Business Brilliant revealed enormous disparities between self-made millionaires and people with ordinary middle-class incomes when it comes to unscrupulous, "Machiavellian" behavior.

Almost 90 percent of the millionaires in the survey agree that "it's important in negotiations to exploit the weaknesses in others." The middle class? Just 24 percent. About 80 percent of the millionaires say that "coming out on top in business dealings is paramount." For the middle-class, just 31 percent agree. And a full 77 percent of millionaires say, "I do not have any problems confronting my business associates." Fewer than 13 percent of the middle class say the same. On this particular point, the multi-millionaires, those who have a net worth higher than $10 million, are nearly unanimous. More than 98 percent say they have no problem with confrontation in business.

Get the picture? The numbers suggest that what separates the super-successful from everyone else is that they play to win, exploit weakness when they find it, and defend their interests even if it requires a showdown with a partner or friend. Does this mean that the super-successful are maestros of Machiavellianism? Most super-successful people think so. Almost 78 percent admit that "being Machiavellian is essential to becoming wealthy." The middle-class, though, prefer to think the business world is a kinder, gentler place. Fewer than 17 percent say that Machiavellianism is essential to becoming wealthy.

URL: <http://www.inc.com/lewis-schiff/leadership-strategy-are-you-machiavellian-find-out.html>

Random: Once had a rich guy attempt to debate me that all I was trying to do was demonise the rich when I mentioned this in passing awhile back (manipulative in and of itself - shaming tactic, doesn't address the arguments made) when that is not the case. If you're familiar with my writings, I have the utmost respect for machiavellians, if you're rich and manipulative, don't get butthurt by what you're reading, truth is truth, this is the internet and reading this and realising it's true about yourself isn't going to ruin your contracts, contacts, reputation or anything else which you will act devilishly to protect and sustain.

Hypothesis: The difference between the richest and poorest (the underclass) is merely competence, both have similar beliefs on morality, but one is more successful into leveraging that for financial gain whilst the other isn't.

The difference between the richest and the middle/working (this self-report didn't identify working class) is not just competence, but likewise, ethics. The middle do not hold the ethics of the poorest or the richest, but they share the same lack of machiavellian competence that the poor do, owing their net worth to education rather than the manipulation of others in business.

Extra: You can probably segregate the working class, especially in the millennial generation, between working class people with a middle class education that instilled middle class values into them despite having a working class profession/net worth, and the working class who were never subjected to middle class values and thus more likely to hold values closer to that of the underclass, a belief in machiavellianism but an inability to execute it to bring them advantages. This of course further blurs the distinction in moral values in relation to machiavellianism between the middle and the bottom.

Dark Triad Psychopathy Q&A

7 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I have recently reviewed and revised my piece on psychopathy that I originally wrote 8 months ago. I've improved a lot as a writer since then and noticed it was a little rough around the edges so I've fixed up its coherency (something I need to do with a lot of my earlier work, to be honest.) I omitted some superfluous content, added some extra insight (about 150 words worth, which is fuck all in the 3,600 word scheme of things) and did a general grammar clean-up. It's not perfect, but vastly improved. If you weren't on the red pill 8 months ago, this will be new to you.

In light of this, I wish to do a follow-up article responding to your general questions about psychopathy. I notice a lot of misunderstanding, misconception and general bullshit being espoused about not only psychopathy specifically, but the dark triad in general. So instead of ignoring the occasional whining about the irrelevancy of the DT, or ignoring someone say something completely incorrect about it, it'd be easier to help people understand the dark triad by just linking them to a FAQ on the topic. So next time someone says some dumb shit or is confused you can say "read this" and link to the Q&A post.

Any questions you have about psychopathy, ask on the blog or in this topic. If you don't have any questions now, you might after reading the link at the beginning of this thread. I'm compiling questions so that I may answer them all in a blog post instead of repeating the same things to different people. Don't expect direct replies to your question in this thread, if your question is relevant/well thought out/significant it will be included in the Q&A post. The post will be as long as the number of worthwhile questions I get, so not even I know what kind of length it will be (assume long as I've already compiled a number of questions.)

I get many PMs about DT theories/behaviour and don't really have the time to carry multiple conversations on with various people and do them the justice they deserve so I figured it'd be easier to answer the multitude of questions people have on the topic in a centralised manner. Collecting all your questions here, in one place, and then compiling them into an article. For the sake of this post, please don't ask about machiavellianism or narcissism, just psychopathy. Of course if you seem like you're trolling or ask a really shit question that seems completely disconnected to the subject matter, your question won't be included.

PS: If you don't want your reddit identity/question/thoughts being in the public domain, you can ask me your question over PM. If you have PM'd me recently and are awaiting a reply, have seen this topic and think I'm ignoring you, I have something of a backlog in my inbox, some of your messages are short essays, especially the dude with his "DT FR" (great FR btw, if you're reading this.) So bear with me and I'll respond to you eventually. Thanks.

Dark Triad Psychopathy Q&A

7 September 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

I have recently reviewed and revised my piece on psychopathy that I originally wrote 8 months ago. I've improved a lot as a writer since then and noticed it was a little rough around the edges so I've fixed up its coherency (something I need to do with a lot of my earlier work, to be honest.) I omitted some superfluous content, added some extra insight (about 150 words worth, which is fuck all in the 3,600 word scheme of things) and did a general grammar clean-up. It's not perfect, but vastly improved. If you weren't on the red pill 8 months ago, this will be new to you.

In light of this, I wish to do a follow-up article responding to your general questions about psychopathy. I notice a lot of misunderstanding, misconception and general bullshit being espoused about not only psychopathy specifically, but the dark triad in general. So instead of ignoring the occasional whining about the irrelevancy of the DT, or ignoring someone say something completely incorrect about it, it'd be easier to help people understand the dark triad by just linking them to a FAQ on the topic. So next time someone says some dumb shit or is confused you can say "read this" and link to the Q&A post.

Any questions you have about psychopathy, ask on the blog or in this topic. If you don't have any questions now, you might after reading the link at the beginning of this thread. I'm compiling questions so that I may answer them all in a blog post instead of repeating the same things to different people. Don't expect direct replies to your question in this thread, if your question is relevant/well thought out/significant it will be included in the Q&A post. The post will be as long as the number of worthwhile questions I get, so not even I know what kind of length it will be (assume long as I've already compiled a number of questions.)

I get many PMs about DT theories/behaviour and don't really have the time to carry multiple conversations on with various people and do them the justice they deserve so I figured it'd be easier to answer the multitude of questions people have on the topic in a centralised manner. Collecting all your questions here, in one place, and then compiling them into an article. For the sake of this post, please don't ask about machiavellianism or narcissism, just psychopathy. Of course if you seem like you're trolling or ask a really shit question that seems completely disconnected to the subject matter, your question won't be included.

PS: If you don't want your reddit identity/question/thoughts being in the public domain, you can ask me your question over PM. If you have PM'd me recently and are awaiting a reply, have seen this topic and think I'm ignoring you, I have something of a backlog in my inbox, some of your messages are short essays, especially the dude with his "DT FR" (great FR btw, if you're reading this.) So bear with me and I'll respond to you eventually. Thanks.

19

UPVOTES

Understanding The Dark Triad - Q&A (Part 1)

11 September 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Part 1 of the Q&A has been completed and can be found here.

Background:

I initially wanted to answer all your questions in one article. However, I received so many questions worthy of a detailed response that it appears I will need to split the Q&A up into 2, 3 perhaps even 4 parts in order to do your questions the justice they deserve. If you don't see your question answered, it will likely (assuming it made the cut) follow in one of the subsequent parts.

If you haven't read them already, utilising psychopathy and utilising machiavellianism are required reading before you begin reading through this piece, so if you haven't read those articles, go and read them. Both articles outline fundamental background knowledge on nature of the dark triad archetype. Without the background knowledge one would acquire from a reading of these predecessor articles, a full capacity to appreciate the questions asked and answers given in this one cannot be assured.

Enjoy.

35

UPVOTES

Understanding The Dark Triad - Q&A (Part 1)

11 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Part 1 of the Q&A has been completed and can be found here.

Background:

I initially wanted to answer all your questions in one article. However, I received so many questions worthy of a detailed response that it appears I will need to split the Q&A up into 2, 3 perhaps even 4 parts in order to do your questions the justice they deserve. If you don't see your question answered, it will likely (assuming it made the cut) follow in one of the subsequent parts.

If you haven't read them already, utilising psychopathy and utilising machiavellianism are required reading before you begin reading through this piece, so if you haven't read those articles, go and read them. Both articles outline fundamental background knowledge on nature of the dark triad archetype. Without the background knowledge one would acquire from a reading of these predecessor articles, a full capacity to appreciate the questions asked and answers given in this one cannot be assured.

Enjoy.

72

UPVOTES

The Art of Fishing: If you want to get good at catching fish, always ask a fisherman, never a fish.

16 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you want to get good at catching fish, always ask a fisherman, never a fish. Also remember, "there's plenty more fish in the sea" is societies way of saying "don't get oneitis, have an abundance mentality."

What's better than RP wisdom? RP wisdom mixed with humour.

Tidbits on fish:

Something the fish won't tell you is that no fish has ever in the history of fishing been caught by a net fisherman only to volunteer a transfer over to the raft of the fisherman with a pole and line.

"Don't worry, gentle fisherman. If you use a pole and line enough you will eventually catch that one fish that you always wanted! You don't need to try out lots of different fish or even catch many to be a good fisherman, a real fisherman is happy when he finally happens upon that one special fish!"

All the fisherman with a pole and line are up against fishermen that swoop up schools of fish in great big nets, and because of that they're lucky if they ever catch anything (the Pareto principle aka 80/20 rule.)

Subscribe to the blog/twitter if you enjoy it and all that shit.

Also relevant. Patrice O'Neal on how a woman tries to take away your ability to catch fish:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=i92lYJvqZGs>

48

UPVOTES

You can't treat dark triad women like normal women. Lucifer's Daughter, the female predator, is oft man's opiate.

21 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The only reason normal women get away with anything is because they are inherently machiavellian, society gives them a free pass and men are programmed their entire lives to be cows (cash cows, validation cows, take your pick) they're ready and willing to be milked because they don't know any better. They're eager and willing romantic chumps who peg their own value to how well they're doing with the opposite sex. Romance being much the realm of man, as it is only male love that is inherently sacrificial, much unlike the cold pragmatism of women's.

With the Lucifer's Daughter, a sharp analytical eye, street smarts and common sense aren't enough to avoid the pain and glory she can wreak. They're the type of woman a smart man knows is bad for him, but desires anyway. They have all the charm and finesse of many a social climbing female, but their key quality is the intellectual connectivity they can tap into, all but usually absent in the plethora of drudgery that is womankind. It is for this reason most poignantly, the ability to connect non-sexually, among others, that many a man is willing to drink the poison that a Lucifer's Daughter is pissing; working in spite of his own best interest because he is seduced, mesmerised and bedazzled.

Most women can only seduce a man on the physical level, it is the man which allows himself to fall in love and projects his ideal of love onto a idiotic, vapid, intellectually asinine bag of flesh. With the Lucifer's Daughter, you have to try your hardest not to love her because she is so captivating. Even when all those red flags are glaring right in front of you. I guess you could say she is the male kryptonite in much the way your typical woman loves a bad boy, except this time the genders are switched.

It doesn't really matter how bad she is for you, because the rules of supply and demand still apply. Women like this are rare, you both know it, and she'll make you feel like you've never met, and never will again, meet a girl like that. Not only are such women destructive, but their spectacle has a tendency to inject oneitis into all the men that they meet. Seasoned players, betas, jaded old men... they all fall for a beautiful female sociopath who can banter with the best of them. You're all putty to a Lucifer's daughter and their ain't shit you can do but run the fuck away. Your cynicism won't be enough to protect you from her charms. Consider escaping her gravitational pull undamaged the best outcome. Fucking her just pulls you in deeper, and I'm not just talking physically.

Consider this a tangential addendum to my original article on the dark triad woman.

485

UPVOTES

So you want to be a man? Welcome to life on Hard mode.

23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Being a man isn't easy, it's harder than being a woman. Average men envy average women because it's easier. There is less responsibility and there are higher rewards for embracing mediocrity when you're a woman. But get it right, really learn how to become a man, indulge in your pain and use your weakness, hatred and suffering to forge the mind of a philosopher as well as the body of a gladiator and you'll transcend to a level that women can only dream of.

Men are the disposable sex, because likewise, they're the experimental one. Whilst many experiments fail, those that survive the flames of the bunsen burner yield miraculous results. Women are humanity's control group. The majority are average and unremarkable and lack the capacity to ever be anything other than average. They are rigid in their potential. Whilst they envy the heights they see great men reach, they neglect to notice the depths that many a failed man has plunged to in pursuit of his manhood. A fate they need not ever fear.

There are many reasons for why a man fails to handle/lead women. The most common is the man was raised in a feminist culture bereft of accurate knowledge about relationships and manhood. Another, perhaps more tragic is when a patriarch gets ill and loses his vitality after an accident/old age, and by the loss of authority his ailment brings about, he becomes unattractive to his woman. It doesn't really matter what the reason is, because the bottom line is that as a man you don't get to be weak.

If you're weak, you're unattractive and you lose out. You lose out in a way a woman doesn't for being weak. Female weakness is a source of power for "raising awareness," playing on the "save-a-hoe" complex of men to protect the fair maiden. Whilst male weakness on the other hand has no place in the world. None at all. Anywhere. Nobody will cherish it, and nothing will change because of it. Egalitarianism as a concept is by merit of this, not an intrinsic human disposition, but an intellectual social construct.

As a man most people won't help you for being weak, they don't sympathise with your weakness, they laugh at you and "how you could ever let yourself get like that."

As a man, they laugh at you and they enjoy ridiculing your weakness as it makes them feel powerful to know that they're not at the bottom of the food chain. They indulge in the antithesis between your weakness and their power because it feels good and it reassures their own insecurities. Your weakness is a reminder for other men what not to be, or to allow themselves to become. What not to be is the only useful function that weak men serve to others.

For man there is oft nothing but Schadenfreude and contempt for his weakness. Some will kick you down further and call it tough love, and of those saying "tough love" few will mean it, thinking it may help a weak man bounce back. Others don't mean it, they just don't care and don't want to look bad for being uncaring.

That's why "the whole macho thing" is something that women will never truly understand the purpose of, because it's not something they need to rely upon to be respected or respect themselves. They ask men to open up to the fragility of their humanity at their own peril, unaware of how self-condemning such an exercise is for man.

Unaware how quickly even the smallest iota of weakness a man indulges in can consume and transform said man into a bumbling joke.

Women don't have to be strong, or emulate strength or pretend to be strong for anything but their kids, they get to be weak and look for someone to be strong for them and they will still be respected as humans for making that choice. The women who do manage to become strong, do so to their own detriment, taking on the role of man and masculinising to achieve strength, making themselves unattractive to men in the process. Where there is compassion and sympathy for the weakness of women, there is little if any, for men. The homeless statistics reinforce this idea across humanity.

A weak woman is an unfortunate woman and she can still be attractive to men. She is unfortunate in the sense that nobody assumes her undoing is her own fault. A weak man is a failed man, unattractive to both men and women alike. A failure in that it is assumed he didn't have what it takes to succeed, there being nobody to blame but him. As I stated prior, women aren't the experimental sex, men are. And so as men we're all held personally responsible for the experiment that we call "our lives." It's all or nothing. Death or glory. Carpe diem.

70

UPVOTES

The Game of Power

5 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is a Machiavellian piece, albeit, it appeared to have been missing from the dark triad portal of Illimitable Men, an oversight which I have now corrected for.

To get you started, here is the introduction to the piece:

This piece discusses the relevance of power in comparative as well as absolutist terms. One thing I have found is, the word “power,” contains specific connotations to most people. They hear the word “power” and it conjures up an image of absolutist, concentrated power. A king, judge, dictator or some other esteemed or highly influential individual. However, these roles are merely the symbolic embodiments of a concentration of power, saturated power. Power permeates the entirety of the societal structure in subtle and not-so-subtle nuances that dominate each and every social interaction. Everyone has a place. There is a pecking order. Sometimes the contrast is oblique, other times it is resounding.

Power and popularity have an incestuous relationship; they fellate each other, reciprocally. One would argue that popularity itself is a manifestation of power, although popularity is certainly possible without power. Some would say popularity is a form of soft power that can precede hard power. Of course this begs the question “of which comes first?” and we find ourselves facing a “chicken and the egg” philosophical conundrum.

Regardless you can escape neither power nor popularity. You must learn to understand power as the social equivalent of water. You cannot avoid it. You need it. Without any power to command anything, you would have nothing. With minuscule amounts of it, you would subsist minimally. With moderate amounts, you live comfortably. With excessive amounts, you risk corrupting yourself, probably becoming narcissistic, potentially becoming sadistic.

You can read the full article here

Article contents:

- Introduction
- Bluffing
- Judgement, Self-Perception and Self-Discipline
- Silence, Saboteurs & Platforms
- Concluding Statement

Background Information:

I began editing and refining my piece "The Power Game" recently and upon completion of the overhaul opted to rename it "The Game of Power"

This is something I intend to do with a lot of my work having refined my writing ability. In fact by editing it, I began to contribute additional insight, and thus due to the addition of so much extra content almost doubled the article in its size despite very large (4 digit) omissions.

I omitted what I deemed to be thematically divergent or otherwise inferior content from the original piece, replacing it in the newer piece with more relevant and poignant information.

I do intend to re-release the originally included but now omitted information, just re-worked and further developed into a thematically congruent successor piece (a part 2.) However, in relation to the mention of part 2, I have not decided on whether or not I will definitely release it. Mainly due to perfectionism, commitments and other miscellaneous priorities. Needless to say, this originator piece has been substantially over-hauled to such an extent that even if you read the original I strongly urge you to read it in its newest incarnation as it's practically an entirely new article.

This article is a Machiavellian piece, albeit, it appeared to have been missing from the dark triad portal of Illimitable Men, an oversight which I have now corrected for.

To get you started, here is the introduction to the piece:

This piece discusses the relevance of power in comparative as well as absolutist terms. One thing I have found is, the word “power,” contains specific connotations to most people. They hear the word “power” and it conjures up an image of absolutist, concentrated power. A king, judge, dictator or some other esteemed or highly influential individual. However, these roles are merely the symbolic embodiments of a concentration of power, saturated power. Power permeates the entirety of the societal structure in subtle and not-so-subtle nuances that dominate each and every social interaction. Everyone has a place. There is a pecking order. Sometimes the contrast is oblique, other times it is resounding.

Power and popularity have an incestuous relationship; they fellate each other, reciprocally. One would argue that popularity itself is a manifestation of power, although popularity is certainly possible without power. Some would say popularity is a form of soft power that can precede hard power. Of course this begs the question “of which comes first?” and we find ourselves facing a “chicken and the egg” philosophical conundrum.

Regardless you can escape neither power nor popularity. You must learn to understand power as the social equivalent of water. You cannot avoid it. You need it. Without any power to command anything, you would have nothing. With minuscule amounts of it, you would subsist minimally. With moderate amounts, you live comfortably. With excessive amounts, you risk corrupting yourself, probably becoming narcissistic, potentially becoming sadistic.

You can read the full article here

Article contents:

- Introduction
- Bluffing
- Judgement, Self-Perception and Self-Discipline
- Silence, Saboteurs & Platforms
- Concluding Statement

Background Information:

I began editing and refining my piece "The Power Game" recently and upon completion of the overhaul opted to rename it "The Game of Power"

This is something I intend to do with a lot of my work having refined my writing ability. In fact by editing it, I began to contribute additional insight, and thus due to the addition of so much extra content almost doubled the article in its size despite very large (4 digit) omissions.

I omitted what I deemed to be thematically divergent or otherwise inferior content from the original piece, replacing it in the newer piece with more relevant and poignant information.

I do intend to re-release the originally included but now omitted information, just re-worked and further developed into a thematically congruent successor piece (a part 2.) However, in relation to the mention of part 2, I have not decided on whether or not I will definitely release it. Mainly due to perfectionism, commitments and other miscellaneous priorities. Needless to say, this originator piece has been substantially over-hauled to such an extent that even if you read the original I strongly urge you to read it in its newest incarnation as it's practically an entirely new article.

85

UPVOTES

"The Female As Enemy" - Of all the things, a red pill Amazon book review I stumbled upon.

12 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I recently read a very red pill book review on Amazon and thought I'd share the main pearls of wisdom to be gleaned from it with you guys.

Key takeaway points from the review:

- Sex is doled out bit by bit to males who are willing to commit to a long term relationship, the long-term relationship is contextualised as the male having to conform to the desire of the female at all times. This makes sense of what we know about blue pill men and women. A blue pill man has a scarcity mindset and a blue pill woman knows she can easily replace a blue pill man with another easier than he can replace her with another. This means she gets to dictate the parameters of his commitment, keeping it at the lowest price possible (to her) which translates into minimal sex benefit (for him.) Basically, these men are mined for commitment and kept on the hook with trickle sex/duty sex. Once a week, once a month, etc. As we know on TRP, attraction cannot be negotiated, only inspired. So we can further deduce these women are not in these relationships out of passion or attraction, but out of some other pragmatic need. Probably out of a mixture of financial and emotional need.
- Women have total control of the men and how the relationship will proceed. (This of blue pill society at large, sounds correct. This is not the way IT SHOULD BE, but the way that it is)
- Women want to increase the cost of sex whilst men want to lower it. (Inversely, as mentioned in the first bulletpoint, women want to reduce the cost of commitment whilst men want to increase it.) The trade is sex for commitment. Each side wants to give a minimal amount of their own commodity to ensure as much of the other's commodity as possible. Of course blue pill men don't realise their commitment has any value, and by being blue pill/beta, it's value is vitiated, so naturally they get exploited maximally by woman's duplicity.
- Women are flakey (don't follow through on their promises) and don't like men to feel like they are in control of any potential romance that could flourish. Women blow hot and cold and like to keep you in perpetual confusion.
- Women will "falsely" mate signal and then gaslight that they were never sexually interested to begin with. They just attempt to lure you into showing interest so that they can humiliate you/co-opt you. Ambiguous mate signalling is being used as a Machiavellian technique essentially. We've all seen it at some point in our lives, a woman pretending to like a guy so that she can obtain certain benefits from said guy or unduly influence him.
- "It is this ambiguity that permeates a female dominated society and gives females the control over men by keeping men in a state of neurosis due to their susception to this signalling." - I think what he's trying to get at with this quote is that men are very visual and easily manipulated by beautiful women. Especially when those attractive women pretend to find men attractive in order to control those men. In female dominated societies (feminist societies) attractive women flirting their way through life gives them the upperhand. What he means by neurosis is once a man is captivated by a woman's beauty and hot/cold signals, he will drive himself crazy and she can get him to do whatever she wants.
- Men of the western world need to get their women under control. He specifically references white men as needing to get their women under control, and I assume that is because he is implying that they are the men who have been hit over the head by the blue pill the most. Which makes sense, seeing as western countries have a white majority.
- When men give women more power over them, women grow contempt for said men.
- Women take men for granted.

- Women over 25 tend to be better manipulators due to their bitterness.

Stefan Molyneux on the history of female SMV, family and feminism

14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3Fml-7xse5U&t=4m14s>

Skipped the first 4 or so minutes because it's a caller talking about his personal problems.

Takeaways from the video (if you read this, you can basically skip the video):

- Feminism sells men a bill of goods that women "put up with them" as if they're doing men some sort of favour. They do this so that men "feel lucky" just to be with a woman and have no demands of their own.
- Women used to pretend they don't like sex to raise their value by giving men sex. Because if women admitted they like sex in the way that men do, then two people having sex would cancel each other out in terms of value exchange and thus the woman would gain nothing.
- Addendum to the previous point: men had/have to bring extra value to the relationship because by having sex they're making women do something distasteful.
- Religions banned masturbating because it would compete with and bring down the value of vagina. "You'll go to hell." "You'll go blind." etc.
- The war of the sexes is about who brings more to the table. If you can convince men that women don't really need them, want them or like them then men feel desperate. Basically Molyneux here is saying feminism has men societally in a collective state of dread by making them feel lesser than women.
- The only reason they can get away with demeaning male importance in the modern world is because of the welfare state. Everything women used to be dependent on from men is now provided to them by the government in benefits, alimony, child support etc.
- Women can indulge in assholes now because of the government safety net. In the old days if a guy wouldn't provide, she wouldn't be able to survive. Basically society used to be skewed towards beta bux, but with the advent of the welfare state post-feminism, it's become skewed towards alpha fux.
- Male responsibility to women has dissolved along with the welfare state which is why also female sexual irresponsibility has become so prevalent.
- The sexual urge should be harnessed to benefit civilization and culture.
- We used to focus the wild sexual energy of the teenage years into the foundation of family which is in turn the foundation of society.
- A woman who is worth dating will never leave you in doubt as to the value of men. She won't joke, put men down, treat men negatively, she won't roll her eyes or talk about men as boys.
- Women can talk to women in a way that men can't because men have been excluded from the discourse on gender due to the idea of "patriarchy."
- Addendum to the previous point, women need to talk to women more to encourage productive/virtuous behaviour within them. (shout out to /r/redpillwomen)
- The state is a shadow and an effect of the family.

Why People Hate The Red Pill

16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is based on a comment reply I made in a thread here answering the question

"why do people hate the red pill?"

Not wanting that post to get buried within the murky depths of Reddit for the rest of time, I have built upon it and adapted it into a far more easily locatable article. Seeing as the question posed and answer given are typical of those who are on the fence, or otherwise "not sure what all that red pill jazz is about" I've put it under the "introduction to the red pill" section of my site. Enjoy.

The newly adapted article can be found here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/16/the-feminist-thought-police/>

Opening excerpt:

Asking "why do people hate the red pill?" is like asking "why do feminists hate anti-feminists?" it is simple, we are viewed as "the opposing team." By reading red pill content you become aware of the masculine's unfiltered societal viewpoint. By agreeing with it, you accept a system of thought which undermines the gynocentric status quo of feminine primacy. Thus it is so that through mere act of association with the manosphere, devoutly feminist society deems you sinfully tainted.

The church of feminism will tolerate no blasphemous dissent, for anything that disagrees with feminism is by its own interpretation, misogynistic. By asserting the masculine viewpoint as primary, or even, a valid counterpoint to the feminist viewpoint, you are immediately identified as a misogynist. This means the rabid social justice horde that currently passes for "society" is out to hang your head on a pike merely for having a different set of beliefs. Expressions of thought incongruent with the feminist narrative are so socially unacceptable in the current time that they are deemed invalid merely by merit of being non-feminist, let alone anti-feminist. It is the job of both feminists and their enablers to prevent unfiltered masculine ideas on gender from "polluting" the mainstream consciousness. The societal hive mind therefore rationalises away anti-feminist argument as "backwardly patriarchal," meaning: irrelevant, bigoted and outdated. You will then hear, at some point among the verbal cacophony that will invariably occur that "people like you are the reason feminism exists." The reality is, the reason men even seek out the manosphere and its wealth of knowledge to begin with is because of the gross negative impact that feminism has had on them as well as those around them.

For the curious, the original comment can be found here:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2iuo5f/excuse_me_why_does_everyone_assume_you_guys_are/cl5mlse

The Feminist Thought Police

16 October 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is based on a comment reply I made in a thread answering the question

"why do people hate the red pill?"

Not wanting that post to get buried within the murky depths of Reddit for the rest of time, I have built upon it and adapted it into a far more easily locatable article. Seeing as the question posed and answer given are typical of those who are on the fence, or otherwise "not sure what all that red pill jazz is about" I've put it under the "introduction to the red pill" section of my site. Enjoy.

The newly adapted article can be found here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/16/the-feminist-thought-police/>

Opening excerpt:

Asking "why do people hate the red pill?" is like asking "why do feminists hate anti-feminists?" it is simple, we are viewed as "the opposing team." By reading red pill content you become aware of the masculine's unfiltered societal viewpoint. By agreeing with it, you accept a system of thought which undermines the gynocentric status quo of feminine primacy. Thus it is so that through mere act of association with the manosphere, devoutly feminist society deems you sinfully tainted.

The church of feminism will tolerate no blasphemous dissent, for anything that disagrees with feminism is by its own interpretation, misogynistic. By asserting the masculine viewpoint as primary, or even, a valid counterpoint to the feminist viewpoint, you are immediately identified as a misogynist. This means the rabid social justice horde that currently passes for "society" is out to hang your head on a pike merely for having a different set of beliefs. Expressions of thought incongruent with the feminist narrative are so socially unacceptable in the current time that they are deemed invalid merely by merit of being non-feminist, let alone anti-feminist. It is the job of both feminists and their enablers to prevent unfiltered masculine ideas on gender from "polluting" the mainstream consciousness. The societal hive mind therefore rationalises away anti-feminist argument as "backwardly patriarchal," meaning: irrelevant, bigoted and outdated. You will then hear, at some point among the verbal cacophony that will invariably occur that "people like you are the reason feminism exists." The reality is, the reason men even seek out the manosphere and its wealth of knowledge to begin with is because of the gross negative impact that feminism has had on them as well as those around them.

For the curious, the original comment can be found here:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2iuo5f/excuse_me_why_does_everyone_assume_you_guys_are/cl5mlse

So you've read the red pill for awhile and you're a teenager, still in your 20's or an early 30's guy chasing his youth because you got your SMV late.

You think "fuck relationships man, I'm gonna plate spin forever like I belong in a travelling circus!" Wrong.

The older you get the lonelier you get and the more sentimental you become. Your friends start fucking off and getting hitched usually around the mid 30's area, if you're still the only single guy, all their wives/girlfriends are suspicious of your bachelorhood and thus keep your once alpha and vibrant buddies on lock down whilst you're the "creepy older guy" hanging out in places where everyone's a solid 20 years younger than you. Nobody wants to be that guy. Due to social convention, at some age, at some point, you will eventually in all likelihood, want a relationship, to settle and take things a little slower. You may not be monogamous, you may still have side bitches, but you will want a relationship with a "main chick." A little slower doesn't mean a little easier either, relationships are notoriously more difficult to maintain than purely sexual liaisons.

My newest article takes an easily understood red pill male perspective on the topic of relationships and commitment.

I suppose the guys who have never been plate spinning types (find random sex empty/boring/shit) as well as older guys will take the most from this piece. Gym bros in your 20's high off T feel free to ignore and keep banging slut after slut until you get disenchanted with it.

This article is split into multiple sections:

- Sacrifice & Leadership
- Putting your own needs first
- The centre of her world
- Briffault & Value Exchange
- The Power Struggle of Value Exchange
- Women have more to gain from relationships than men do

Article: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/25/of-love-relationships/>

PS: May make "The Power Struggle of Value Exchange" it's own article in terms of machiavellian bargaining/transaction within romantic relationships, we'll see, got a lot of unreleased content and I'm a perfectionist.

Enjoy.

Understanding How a Dark Triad Psychopath Operates

2 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

An article on the limitations of psychopathy, its nuances and how it is foolish to glamourise the condition and take a simple view of it rather than learn from it. Looks intently at the world of psychopathy from the psychopaths perspective, exploring numerous concepts along the way.

If you want to jump straight ahead, here's the link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/11/01/the-psychopathic-paradigm/>

If you're unsure if this subject matter is interesting to you, I've included the first section (first 5 paragraphs) into this thread. If you read these and then decide you want to read the rest of the article, you can skip the entire first section. The second section of the article is marked by a bold heading, so just look for that. I suggest drinking a coffee or something with this one. Enjoy. Questions? Leave a comment (or PM if its personal.) If they're good enough I'll answer them.

A few things I don't mention in the article which may be answers to common questions:

- Psychopathy is genetic. It is the only facet of the dark triad which cannot be socialised.
- Machiavellianism is my favourite part of the triad, machiavellianism is an art form that can be learned. Psychopathy is my least favourite part, its by nature of what we consider to be normal and healthy, perverse. That doesn't stop it being any less fascinating, however.

Excerpt:

So it is thus I have become aware that due to my writings, some have begun to naively glamourise the nature of clinical psychopathy in the name of fearlessness, glory and the pursuit of power. The glamourisation of such perversity has ironically, never been neither my goal nor desire. Allow me to be as candid, concise and succinct as possible on my position of psychopathy's relevance to the red pill framework.

Psychopathy is held up as an exemplar of a clinical disorder which brings about personality traits that facilitate goal acquisition. It is through this lens we look at psychopathy pragmatically as merely a means to an end, a form of self-empowerment. The end is the power and prosperity that psychopathy can facilitate the actualisation of, the means is the ability to cross boundaries and enter action with boldness relatively uninhibited, devoid of either anxiety or uncertainty. These are elements of the psychopathic personality that are pragmatically efficient and thus beneficial to anybody who comes to possess such traits. They are innate characteristics of the psychopath, but they are not characteristics that need be limited to the clinical psychopath. They are qualities that we may learn to emulate, and hence this is why the word psychopathy is mentioned at all, to give an example of, and a frame of reference for, a set of qualities we hope to embody.

Bearing that in mind, my intimate dissection, exploration, analysis and overall thesis of psychopathy is to give an example of that which comes naturally to a minority, to a majority that it does not. We are effectively, cherry-picking the utilitarian aspects of psychopathy to augment the social effectiveness of the non-psychopathic. People hear the word psychopath and they get distracted by the negative connotations of the word. They begin to become lost in their imagination, rather than really read and listen to exactly what it is I am saying. If you follow my voice through what I say in my words and ignore the playfulness of your imagination, you will find what I am saying about psychopathy is markedly different from what you think about psychopathy. In essence, we study and learn from the psychopath by attempting to emulate their strengths as accurately as we can whilst leaving their weaknesses, mainly the dysfunctional parts of their condition, well alone. Luckily for you, as a student, rather than a natural psychopath, these are things you may pick and choose rather than be forced to live with. Allow me to emphasise the point in order to really nail it home once more: the goal of studying psychopathy is not to become psychopathic, but to become quasi-psychopathic.

In light of this, I find it paramount that the fine readership here are educated intimately on the internal struggle and solipsism of the natural psychopath, in effect, as an effort to de-glamourise and debunk the ill-formed and simplistic views of psychopathy that the less intelligent have, such as: “how cool it would be to be like Al Capone.” It is my observation that those who struggle with self-confidence, anxiety and other debilitating personal afflictions peer into the world of the psychopath and experience a “grass is greener” mentality.

They see a huge antithetical chasm between what they are and what they are looking at, and immediately like moths to a flame they become drawn to that which they are not, whilst despising that which they are. Such people hear of how little fucks the psychopathic personality gives, and compare it to their own emotional wreck, perceiving the psychopaths dysfunction to be a state of being superior to their own. However, such a person only sees the perks of psychopathy, not the negatives, because by merit of not being psychopathic, they do not understand everything that being psychopathic entails. They see only the best bits, the theatrics, the highlights. They are not making a like-for-like comparison, but are being mis-sold by their own ignorance what the state of psychopathy truly entails. Such cognitive distortions lead to ill-formed, misguided opinion. In light of this, I shall shine a light on psychopathic solipsism by inviting you into the world of the psychopath’s perspective.

Understanding How A Dark Triad Psychopath Operates

2 November 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

An article on the limitations of psychopathy, its nuances and how it is foolish to glamourise the condition and take a simple view of it rather than learn from it. Looks intently at the world of psychopathy from the psychopaths perspective, exploring numerous concepts along the way.

If you want to jump straight ahead, here's the link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/11/01/the-psychopathic-paradigm/>

If you're unsure if this subject matter is interesting to you, I've included the first section (first 5 paragraphs) into this thread. If you read these and then decide you want to read the rest of the article, you can skip the entire first section. The second section of the article is marked by a bold heading, so just look for that. I suggest drinking a coffee or something with this one. Enjoy. Questions? Leave a comment (or PM if its personal.) If they're good enough I'll answer them.

A few things I don't mention in the article which may be answers to common questions:

- Psychopathy is genetic. It is the only facet of the dark triad which cannot be socialised.
- Machiavellianism is my favourite part of the triad, machiavellianism is an art form that can be learned. Psychopathy is my least favourite part, its by nature of what we consider to be normal and healthy, perverse. That doesn't stop it being any less fascinating, however.

Excerpt:

So it is thus I have become aware that due to my writings, some have begun to naively glamourise the nature of clinical psychopathy in the name of fearlessness, glory and the pursuit of power. The glamourisation of such perversity has ironically, never been neither my goal nor desire. Allow me to be as candid, concise and succinct as possible on my position of psychopathy's relevance to the red pill framework.

Psychopathy is held up as an exemplar of a clinical disorder which brings about personality traits that facilitate goal acquisition. It is through this lens we look at psychopathy pragmatically as merely a means to an end, a form of self-empowerment. The end is the power and prosperity that psychopathy can facilitate the actualisation of, the means is the ability to cross boundaries and enter action with boldness relatively uninhibited, devoid of either anxiety or uncertainty. These are elements of the psychopathic personality that are pragmatically efficient and thus beneficial to anybody who comes to possess such traits. They are innate characteristics of the psychopath, but they are not characteristics that need be limited to the clinical psychopath. They are qualities that we may learn to emulate, and hence this is why the word psychopathy is mentioned at all, to give an example of, and a frame of reference for, a set of qualities we hope to embody.

Bearing that in mind, my intimate dissection, exploration, analysis and overall thesis of psychopathy is to give an example of that which comes naturally to a minority, to a majority that it does not. We are effectively, cherry-picking the utilitarian aspects of psychopathy to augment the social effectiveness of the non-psychopathic. People hear the word psychopath and they get distracted by the negative connotations of the word. They begin to become lost in their imagination, rather than really read and listen to exactly what it is I am saying. If you follow my voice through what I say in my words and ignore the playfulness of your imagination, you will find what I am saying about psychopathy is markedly different from what you think about psychopathy. In essence, we study and learn from the psychopath by attempting to emulate their strengths as accurately as we can whilst leaving their weaknesses, mainly the dysfunctional parts of their condition, well alone. Luckily for you, as a student, rather than a natural psychopath, these are things you may pick and choose rather than be forced to live with. Allow me to emphasise the point in order to really nail it home once more: the goal of studying psychopathy is not to become psychopathic, but to become quasi-psychopathic.

In light of this, I find it paramount that the fine readership here are educated intimately on the internal struggle and solipsism of the natural psychopath, in effect, as an effort to de-glamourise and debunk the ill-formed and simplistic views of psychopathy that the less intelligent have, such as: “how cool it would be to be like Al Capone.” It is my observation that those who struggle with self-confidence, anxiety and other debilitating personal afflictions peer into the world of the psychopath and experience a “grass is greener” mentality.

They see a huge antithetical chasm between what they are and what they are looking at, and immediately like moths to a flame they become drawn to that which they are not, whilst despising that which they are. Such people hear of how little fucks the psychopathic personality gives, and compare it to their own emotional wreck, perceiving the psychopaths dysfunction to be a state of being superior to their own. However, such a person only sees the perks of psychopathy, not the negatives, because by merit of not being psychopathic, they do not understand everything that being psychopathic entails. They see only the best bits, the theatrics, the highlights. They are not making a like-for-like comparison, but are being mis-sold by their own ignorance what the state of psychopathy truly entails. Such cognitive distortions lead to ill-formed, misguided opinion. In light of this, I shall shine a light on psychopathic solipsism by inviting you into the world of the psychopath’s perspective.

320

UPVOTES

NEVER EVER trust women who say/act like they are "one of the guys" and have "mostly guy friends"

3 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Was talking to a chick on here earlier, had an interesting exchange, thought it was thread worthy and there was a lesson to be learnt, so here it is:

i'm not a misogynist, one of those women who touts herself as "one of the boys" who "just can't stand the drama of women,"

Mini story incoming, I met a woman like this recently. Obviously we connect over absolutely nothing because she has no real interests or hobbies other than social drama and what is immediately happening in her life, whereas I like things like politics, philosophy, working out, stand-up, studying the dark triad, and etc.

So naturally, we engaged in phatic conversation, we were talking utter shit, and of course she gets onto the topic of her and her boyfriend. Women love to fucking relate something in the conversation back to them and their boyfriend. It's hilarious. The boyfriend is the centre of their world and if they can find an excuse to relate something back to them and their relationship, they will. Unless they have decided they want to fuck you, then all of a sudden he doesn't exist.

I don't remember how it came up, but she said she has more male friends than female friends (immediate red flag.) Gave me that speech about how she prefers men to women because they're less bitchy. This is basically womanspeak for "women see through my shit, but men are clueless idiots I can control with my sexuality, and I like being the centre of attention in a group of men." I don't trust most women by default because I understand their nature is to manipulate at your expense, but I especially distrust women who don't have many women friends, no guy worth his salt who understands social dynamics and manipulation does. If other women think you're toxic, you probably are. Women have an eye for this kind of shit naturally. Hiding among groups of men is suspicious to say the least.

She said her boyfriend gets jealous because of the fact she has so many male friends, yet she allows him to remain in this perpetual state of jealousy (again, red flag, she has the power in the relationship and is happy to have it.) She says this, and I realise she's unwittingly or not, using dread game on him. She has the audacity to defend this as being completely innocent. So I challenge her. I said to her, surely you can see his point of view though? Of course, she feigns ignorance and expects me to qualify my point. I oblige. I say "you're making him insecure by having all these guys around, he knows if he doesn't stay on top of his shit that you have all these guys lined up to replace him" of course she refuses to concede the point, typical woman.

So I tried a different tack, I appealed to her solipsism. I said "imagine if he had loads of female friends, hot, average, whatever, but almost all his friends were women, you'd feel pretty jealous and that's how he feels about all the guy friends you have." Naturally, out of pride she refuses to be honest. She says "actually I wouldn't, because I know he would never do anything like that to me, I completely trust him."

At this point I'm getting more red flags, and then I notice the small tattoo on her wrist, that isn't of a child's name, then another on the back of her neck, upperback (her hair is tied up) which is another red flag. I realise I'm talking to a manipulative power hungry slut who likes having a lot of cock near her to validate herself, and have a backup dick just in case she gets bored or needs to assert control over her main man. So I say to the manipulative slut, I say: "do you so completely trust him because he doesn't have the capacity to actually get other women, and is therefore, no threat, or simply because even though he could get other women, he wouldn't go and get other women?" I'm trying to establish firm context and pull her out of her vague ambiguity.

I already know the answer to the question but I'm giving her the option to be honest, to come clean and treat me with a bit of dignity. Of course, she's your typical woman, so naturally she opts to lie to me. She says "because I just know he wouldn't do that." There it was, cemented in my mind. There was no chance at fair discourse with this woman. It didn't surprise me in the slightest, but naturally, it caused my ego to view her with disgust for doing what most women naturally do - lie to your face out of pride.

I'd inadvertently cold read about 5 red flags from her based on our interaction and it was game over. The bitch was going to cut my hair (this was in the barbers and the dude who normally does my trim wasn't there - don't think women should be allowed to work in barbers tbh, male space and all that, but eh) and I left it at that because I didn't want her losing her shit and fucking my hair up for pushing any further. I could already see from her body language and facial cues she was containing her indignation. If the situation had been different, if she didn't have liberty to put holes in my cranium with sharp blades, I would have pushed her to her limits more. Fun, fun.

PS: bitch didn't get a tip. People who disrespect my intelligence by lying to my face aren't getting tipped. Her face as she handed me my change and I didn't say "keep it" was priceless. Gotta be careful with your lies, women are used to hiding behind them, but lie with the wrong person about the wrong thing and you expose yourself as a fraud to them.

Oh yeah, check my site out: <http://illimitablemen.com/>

Thanks for reading.

EDIT: "How do you get good at cold reading?"

A note from /u/foutight:

Dr Paul Ekman has spent his whole life studying deceit and lying and published about 7 books. One of his books, "Telling Lies" is excellent source of information on micro-expressions that can be used to ready body language.

Link: <http://www.amazon.com/Telling-Lies-Marketplace-Politics-Marriage/dp/0393337456/>

Lately we've had a number of new people in the sub who do not appear to have read the sidebar and lack basic knowledge of the fundamentals (as evidenced by numerous basic level questions that belong in /r/asktrp.) That shit isn't good. But this is. To celebrate a year of writing I'm going over my older content and polishing it up. Turning turds into trophies so to speak. First up to receive this treatment is "The Red Pill Constitution," also known as "The Red Pill Antibiotic Nuke" on the sidebar.

If you're new to the sub this is a vital read that will educate you on a numerous collection of various RP beliefs. It is extensive but not exhaustive. If you think there is anything vital I have missed that should be considered for inclusion, let me know in a comment. Will update the sidebarred version soon. Enjoy.

<http://illimitablemen.com/understanding-the-red-pill/red-pill-constitution/>

01.) - Feminists claim they want equality but their actions and reactions indicate it is power without responsibility that they strive for. They desire both male and female privileges consolidated to form a perverse type of "feminist privilege," thus upsetting the balance of power and social dynamic between the sexes. Feminists want the privileges of being women (privilege such as being economically provided for by a man, getting opportunities based on their beauty and men protecting them from physical harm regardless of their actions) as well as male privilege (authority/perceived dominance, respect for having a career, to not be judged so harshly on physical appearance etc.) These desires are neither pragmatic nor realistic, it ignores the biological basis for how the genders perceive each other in the ignorance that "everything is a social construct!" and that the sexes are "the same" when even from a cursory glance it is evident this is not the case.

02.) – Women are irrational and inconsistent, they have a capacity for logic but they are not naturally inclined to reason with it. Women must exert concentrated effort to be logical as it is not their factory setting, unlike men who are, most of the time, rational in nature. A logical woman is easily baited into becoming emotional. Regardless of her intellect women are much more likely to lose lucidity due to their hormonal composition and natural preference for emotion. It is thus by extension of this that we observe they are more easily compromised than men are. Their decisions are based on their current emotional state rather than logic. Once overwhelmed by the feeling of the moment and riding on a tidal wave of emotion, even if an awareness of what is fair and rational remains intact in the woman, she shall opt to ignore it in favour of indulging "what feels right." Ever witnessed a woman hear something reasonable and in her emotion say "I don't care!" and then crazily mutter something that makes no sense to anybody but her? This is a prime example of the feminine propensity to "reason" with emotion. Being ruled by emotion, there is thus a proclivity to change erratically and impulsively, leading women to often behave inconsistently and contradictorily in comparison to previous claims and behaviours they have made and exhibited. Watch what she does, not what she says, for women are fickle.

312

UPVOTES

Fuck Marriage

12 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm going to be blunt in saying that any man who gets married whether he thinks the woman is of quality or not is a fucking fool. Eg: George Clooney. Just because she was your unicorn princess when you married doesn't mean she won't be a scathing bitch 5,10 or even 15 years down the line. Marriage is a life long investment and you don't have a crystal ball. Women are great at the whole permanent personality switch thing. The branch swinging hypergamy upgrade thing. And the whole "switch sides because it suits me to do so thing." They also need constant maintenance. If they're not haaaaaaaaaaaaapppy then you're a shit man and they're off. Fuck the fact you have to work hard, concentrate on yourself, look after your kids and do other shit. No. A woman's responsibilities are domestic/kids and usually any part time job she has. You have kids, full time job AND THEN HER. She is probably the most mentally draining thing out of all of those things.

Women lean towards neuroticism (all bitches are crazy, some just less so than others) and thus they are incredibly temperamental. The older they get the more pronounced any latent psycho-neurotic tendency will become. Depression (post natal or otherwise), schizophrenia and all that dysfunctional bad shit which basically makes a woman a no-go as a hard option increases as she ages. Think I sound crazy? Google mental illness, it's more prevalent in women, specifically, OLDER WOMEN. They have a natural predisposition to general batshittery. Definitely worth digging deep into a prospective woman's family dirt to see what her mother, grandmother, sisters and all the rest are like. If there's any, even A SNIFF of mental illness, nope the fuck out of there. You don't want those genes in your kids, either. It's your responsibility as a man to check for all this shit. If you bring a little sadistic boy or girl into the world because your wife's X chromosomes contain dysfunctional DNA, that's on you.

Some women actually stabilise around/after menopause which is a blessing in disguise, I guess. But most women are long past fuckable once they reach that stage and any kids you had would be grown up so you would have survived the bulk part of your marriage. That's the beginning of the home stretch of your marriage, entering the early twilight years, not the hard part of having a hot young woman bear your kids and managing her swinging emotions, wants, needs, whining, hypergamy and negative social influences that hijack her personality via the hegemony of the female groupthink mentality and turn her into a cunt (EG: slutty friends, media, a bitter venomous mother-in-law etc.)

I rather risk money on the stock market than risk my family/heart/money on a legal contract with a woman who has the power to rape everything. We live in a culture where a woman's feels have more legal reach than justice, common sense and logic. I see guys hamster a lot "why marriage is necessary" it isn't. You just want it because you were inculcated to desire it. In light of that you have a very weak logical basis for "why marriage is good." Kids need two parents, not a marriage contract. Fuck marriage. Tell the bitch if she wants a man as high SMV as yourself that she accepts your terms or you will nope the fuck out. Call her bluff, if she calls yours, follow through. If she begs for you back, excellent. If not? You've just avoided playing a game of Russian roulette where your net worth, emotions and family are ripped away from you by a woman who has fallen out of love, gone crazy or just lost her shit and wants to make you pay. Because all her problems are your fault. Even if they're not.

I've had this conversation with guys before. Some guys are dumb enough to think getting rich and just paying her off is worth it for a 5-10 year marriage and then fucking up your kids when they become teenagers/pre-teens with a divorce. I think they're fucking chumps. That's just pure hopeless romanticism. It's a poor as shit strategy whichever way you cut it. Most women are not worth what they get in a divorce. They get way in excess of what can be deemed reasonable, especially if you are successful. If you don't have more power/control than her, your marriage will inevitably fail. It's not a matter of IF, but a matter of when. Exceptions are dark triad men who have learnt to manage their woman's emotions and play her like a fiddle. Doesn't sound healthy I know but at least the whole fucking thing actually lasts. Women believe that shit to be "true love" but when you word it consciously like this it's "creepy as fuck." Good luck with marriage, it's Russian roulette except 5 out of the 6 chambers have a bullet inside. Here's hoping you hit that 1/6.

Marriage takes your one card away that gives you any measure of power over a woman. Your ability to walk away. You need to be able to withdraw your commitment at any time and be able to imply that you can actionably do that via dread game without a massive nuke going off. Even your ability to affect dread is weakened once you're married. A woman is inclined to think "he won't leave, he can't afford to leave" and so she carries on acting like a cunt ruining everything you've built "BECAUSE OF HOW I FEEL!" You don't need to be chaining up your nutsack like that, don't chain your fate to a woman's emotional whims. If I was emotional, I'd probably cringe every time I hear a guy say "you need marriage to raise kids." That's dumb as fuck. The divorce will fuck them up, I've seen it happen again and again. In fact I knew a dude whose parents divorcing red pillled the shit out of him and changed his whole view of women when he saw how his own mother was. A really rough way to become red pillled, let me tell you.

Thanks for reading. Check out my blog for more articles, ramblings and other rp/male related shit:

<http://illimitablemen.com/>

Similarities between Feminism and Religion: Feminism replaces religion as a system of faith where religious belief is absent.

14 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is not my work. I saw this on another site and thought it was RP as fuck and thus worth sharing with you guys. The original source/writer can be found here:

<http://antimisandry.com/blogs/lanavor22/714-few-thoughts-feminism-religion.html>

I was whined at by some petulant feminist on another forum for comparing feminism with religion. She is a “skeptic” and a “rationalist” she told me. It is the first time I have come across a “rationalist” who also identifies as a believer in one of the most dogmatic creeds the human race has ever dreamed up. So I was thinking of the many ways in which feminism is very much like a religion.

Feminism is very much like a religion. It is based on faith not reason, and faith is generally defined as belief without reason.

Feminism believes in the concept of original sin. All males are born with the shameful stain of masculinity and must seek redemption by proving that they are “good men;” perpetually prostrating themselves before the altar of gynocentrism. Inherent guilt is something that feminism is obsessed with.

What religion would be complete without its places of worship? The feminist temples are the schools and universities where the young must go to be indoctrinated, and where those who refuse to comply or who blaspheme against the dogma are callously rooted out by the feminist inquisition.

The inquisition comes in different guises depending on the country. In the USA it is called the VAWA and it spawns witch-hunting initiatives like Title IX to guarantee itself a never ending supply of fresh fuel for the feminist stake. Like any religion, feminism revels in punishing heretics. The mobs of brainwashed followers who join in these witch-hunts revel in their own sense of righteousness, while proving to their superiors and to each other how wonderfully pure and “enlightened” they are.

Every religion also needs a devil, and feminism menaces its followers with one of the most evil and insidious satans of all. The patriarchy is an invisible but ever present evil that is constantly trying to tempt the pure of heart away from the salvation of the faith. The patriarchy is responsible for everything that’s wrong with the world, and feminism is to be thanked for all good things. The patriarchy is powerful and sends forth legions of evil minions who have apparently been waging a war against women since the dawn of time. When the righteous soldiers of the one true faith finally vanquish the patriarchy, the world will see the ushering in of a peaceful, prosperous feminist utopia. Many believe though, that it will also herald the dawn of a terrible judgement day, when the agents of the patriarchy will be required to atone for thousands of years of misogynistic sin.

Feminism regularly launches witch-hunts to demonise sceptics and frighten its own followers with an endless cast of imaginary goblins and devils. It shores up its own authority and silences critics using manufactured bogeymen like rape-culture and violence against women.

Feminism also spawns strange male cults like the “good men project.” These cults tend to be populated by self-flagellating sycophants who metaphorically whip themselves raw in order purify themselves of their vile masculinity, hoping that their penance will earn them a seat at the right hand of the Goddess when the feminist judgement day finally dawns. These men seek approval by trampling their own dignity and self-worth into the dust, but not even “good men” are guaranteed salvation. Even a “good man” must know his place in the service of gynocentrism. He must never be allowed to forget that women are the chosen people and theirs is the Promised Land.

Any male feminist or even a female one who questions any aspect of feminist doctrine is summarily denounced, excommunicated and cast into the wilderness. Even some of the most revered high-priestesses of the feminist church have been de-frocked for the crime of Apostasy.

Feminism has its own holy orders based in every country in the world. These orders might have differing agendas or specialties. Some rage against newspapers that are seen to “objectify” women. Some fight against prostitution and some “raise awareness” of misogyny in gaming culture. Notwithstanding slight differences of focus, all of these orders of the sisterhood have much in common. They all share an unshakable and largely unquestioned loyalty to the core doctrines of the feminist faith. They all share an overt contempt for objective scholarship, and they believe that mindless slogans and meaningless incantations are a good replacement for the oppressive patriarchal concepts of scientific research and critical peer review. To them science is the enemy of faith and therefore science is a tool of the patriarchy.

Feminism relies on its holy scriptures for guidance, and it has enormous mountains of these texts. They are uncannily similar to religious texts found in the Bible; badly written, deliberately vague, blatantly contradictory and often downright bizarre. They can be interpreted by feminist priestesses to mean whatever is expedient at the time; and also to condemn just about anything feminism disapproves of. Most of them were written by feminist priestesses and many of these priestesses have since been canonised by the feminist church. Feminism has a vast array of saints from 19th century suffragettes to modern “academics.”

Feminists also worship suffering and martyrdom, even when the suffering is exaggerated or simply fabricated. Victims are venerated in feminist culture, provided that is, that the crime committed against them can be blamed on the patriarchy. Victims are encouraged to wear their victimhood like a crown of thorns, and victimhood can easily win for a young woman, status as a minor celebrity among the faithful. The temptation to declare as a victim is therefore very appealing, even to those who have never been victims of anything. New “victims” emerge every day to take their place on the marble pedestals of martyrdom and enjoy their brief period of adoration by the legions of the feminist faithful.

Although feminism doesn’t have a weekly Sabbath, it does have its own holy days: International women’s day, breast cancer awareness day and a whole plethora of days, which are designed to celebrate the feminine and often to denigrate the masculine. These days are often marked by festivals or processions. The processions are often led by feminist preachers in strange costumes chanting slogans through a loud-hailer; the slogans being answered by the following congregation of the faithful with repeated incantations. The processions are often joined by “good men,” anxious to meekly demonstrate their own compliance. The ritualistic and repetitive nature of feminist chanting is a valuable tool in the arsenal of the church. The chanting creates a sense of solidarity and togetherness. It drowns out any kind of critical analysis and it allows the feminists to further brainwash themselves with their faith. It creates an atmosphere of almost ecstatic self-induced hypnosis and welds the faithful together in an exciting wave of self-righteous anger; despite the fact that most of them are never quite able to put a finger on what it is exactly that they’re angry about.

Feminism uses its own version of the religious madras to indoctrinate the young and teach them to drown out their own logical faculties through ritualised chanting. Gender studies departments remain among the few areas within modern university culture which are completely absolved from the usual scholarly requirement for objective analysis and peer review. Generations of young people are now emerging from these indoctrination centres so completely blinded by feminist mumbo jumbo that they are incapable of any kind of independent thought and deeply afraid of real life.

To add my own 0.02c on this topic:

In the absence of a religious system to dictate gender norms and values and act as an authority on how men and women should behave, feminism is inevitable. It will take over from religion in commanding a society's collective horde of female hamsters (as well as male gerbils) and perpetuate itself as the new hegemonic ideology within the collective feminine hivemind. It will be codified via institutionalisation throughout society's most prominent institutions: the workplace, education etc. You choose religion, or you choose feminism. You don't get to have neither. IMO, religion is the lesser evil vs. feminism. It'd be great not to have either, but I don't think it's ever been done. An atheist rationalist society with no feminism? I don't think the mean IQ is high enough to support such a civilization. Humanity isn't ready to rule itself purely with reason, it needs bullshit. You get rid of the patriarch in the sky telling women to be good to their husbands and instead they end up listening to fuckwit women writing magazine columns (Cosmo, HuffPost, Slate) as well as incestuous kiddy fiddlers like Lena Dunham.

No, unfortunately, we're always going to have irrational fuckwits that need set systems in place to guide them through the world. We will always need an ideology that acts to act as hamster damage control and govern the feminine hamster population, better we have an ideology that curbs those hamsters (their rationalisation, their hypergamy and etc) acting as force for good to keep them in check rather than feed them steroids and send them on off a one way ticket to BATSHIT-ville. Chanty Binx ring any bells?:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Vq1VwJHbYno>

I likewise have a piece somewhat similar in theme to this on my blog, check it out if the topic interests you:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/16/the-feminist-thought-police/>

The Different Types of Manipulator: from read it out of a book, to untamed psychopath, to actualised master.

15 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Synopsis:

A look at the different types of machiavellian, how they interact with one another as well as a brief on how machiavellianism first manifests within people.

Link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/11/15/nuance-in-manipulative-style-the-machiavellian-trifecta/>

Excerpt:

There are people who demonstrate incredibly manipulative tendencies from a young age. Be it a pronounced desire to manipulate, a natural aptitude to manipulate, or in exceptional cases, the manifestation of both qualities simultaneously. We will characterise individuals who show both or either behaviour as "naturals." The naturals fall into what I have distinguished as two distinct groups: "The Kings" and "The Generals." The remainder of the Machiavellian population are known as "The Advisers." They learn to become Machiavellian early on in life due to traumatic or otherwise life-changing events, but for all intent and purpose before the inception of said event were not naturally predisposed to Machiavellian thinking. These people are socialised Machiavellians, the Machiavellians of struggle and necessity, and it is they who make up the final archetype which completes the trifecta.

Like most things learned in childhood and to a slightly lesser extent, adolescence, there is a certain intuitive competence acquired from one's early life experiences. With all the impressionableness and raw aptitude that is embodied in the intelligence of youth the ferocity of necessity clashes with trial and error's reactive and adaptive curiosity to give rise to the birth of potential greatness: Machiavellian prowess. This is a universal premise which applies to all crafts, hobbies and arts. The younger the person, the more pronounced the effect of their exposure to an idea; for the young are infinitely more malleable than the old and unlike the old, they need not de-program and then reprogram themselves: they are a clean slate. Machiavellianism is in that respect, by no means different from any other field of study or influence. The younger an individual adopts Machiavellianism as their personal philosophy and likewise practices it as their mode of operation, the more likely one is to proficiently exercise the power of the art.

The development of Machiavellianism often coincides with the development or redevelopment of "the self." In childhood, adolescence and early adulthood this process is rather simply "the development of the self." For older folks the same formation (or replacement of) personality is preceded by de-programming (unlearning previously learned behaviours) in favour of learning what are deemed more efficient ones. This is a practice known more vaguely as metaprogramming, a process where one undergoes cognitive rewiring via psychological reconditioning. There are a number of ways this can be achieved, but that is a whole other topic unto itself reserved for another time.

The framework which begins to take hold in the mind of someone in the process of becoming Machiavellian causes them to undergo a personality shift. This shift occurs as part of the internalisation of a new and rapidly evolving mental schema. And so it follows that it is upon the back of an internalised Machiavellian framework that social skills such as profoundly accurate analysis and the charm of persuasion manifest as reflexive and natural-seeming proficiencies. In a Machiavellian they are the product of something bigger, rather than skills learnt in and of themselves for the sake of themselves. For the competent Machiavellian, they are merely symptomatic exemplifications of their Machiavellian aptitude having attained a certain degree of refinement.

Any questions you have I will endeavour to answer. Enjoy the read.

19

UPVOTES

The Different Types of Manipulator: from read it out of a book, to untamed psychopath, to actualised master.

15 November 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Synopsis:

A look at the different types of machiavellian, how they interact with one another as well as a brief on how machiavellianism first manifests within people.

Link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/11/15/nuance-in-manipulative-style-the-machiavellian-trifecta/>

Excerpt:

There are people who demonstrate incredibly manipulative tendencies from a young age. Be it a pronounced desire to manipulate, a natural aptitude to manipulate, or in exceptional cases, the manifestation of both qualities simultaneously. We will characterise individuals who show both or either behaviour as "naturals." The naturals fall into what I have distinguished as two distinct groups: "The Kings" and "The Generals." The remainder of the Machiavellian population are known as "The Advisers." They learn to become Machiavellian early on in life due to traumatic or otherwise life-changing events, but for all intent and purpose before the inception of said event were not naturally predisposed to Machiavellian thinking. These people are socialised Machiavellians, the Machiavellians of struggle and necessity, and it is they who make up the final archetype which completes the trifecta.

Like most things learned in childhood and to a slightly lesser extent, adolescence, there is a certain intuitive competence acquired from one's early life experiences. With all the impressionableness and raw aptitude that is embodied in the intelligence of youth the ferocity of necessity clashes with trial and error's reactive and adaptive curiosity to give rise to the birth of potential greatness: Machiavellian prowess. This is a universal premise which applies to all crafts, hobbies and arts. The younger the person, the more pronounced the effect of their exposure to an idea; for the young are infinitely more malleable than the old and unlike the old, they need not de-program and then reprogram themselves: they are a clean slate. Machiavellianism is in that respect, by no means different from any other field of study or influence. The younger an individual adopts Machiavellianism as their personal philosophy and likewise practices it as their mode of operation, the more likely one is to proficiently exercise the power of the art.

The development of Machiavellianism often coincides with the development or redevelopment of "the self." In childhood, adolescence and early adulthood this process is rather simply "the development of the self." For older folks the same formation (or replacement of) personality is preceded by de-programming (unlearning previously learned behaviours) in favour of learning what are deemed more efficient ones. This is a practice known more vaguely as metaprogramming, a process where one undergoes cognitive rewiring via psychological reconditioning. There are a number of ways this can be achieved, but that is a whole other topic unto itself reserved for another time.

The framework which begins to take hold in the mind of someone in the process of becoming Machiavellian causes them to undergo a personality shift. This shift occurs as part of the internalisation of a new and rapidly evolving mental schema. And so it follows that it is upon the back of an internalised Machiavellian framework that social skills such as profoundly accurate analysis and the charm of persuasion manifest as reflexive and natural-seeming proficiencies. In a Machiavellian they are the product of something bigger, rather than skills learnt in and of themselves for the sake of themselves. For the competent Machiavellian, they are merely symptomatic exemplifications of their Machiavellian aptitude having attained a certain degree of refinement.

Any questions you have I will endeavour to answer. Enjoy the read.

More relevant reading material: http://illimitablemen.com/power/

41

UPVOTES

Dark Triad/crazy women are addictive. Many RP men feel completely indifferent to typical women, yet feel intense attraction for dark triad women. You should keep a healthy distance. They will eat you alive.

19 November 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

So I saw this topic in /r/asktrp and thought it would be well worth making a topic addressing why your uncontrollable attraction for a crazy bitch is nothing but a sweet yet poisonous nectar that will lead to nowhere. If you are lucky, you can bang a crazy hot as fuck chick. Rather than answer the OP there (he sounds like a fool with no prior experience with a dark triad woman who needs to get burned to learn his lesson) I thought I'd make a general post about this phenomenon here.

Reasons men so utterly love these women:

- These women aren't boring. Most women are boring, these women are entertaining, they have a keen wit/sense of humour.
- These women play really hard to get, but always give you just enough to keep you on the hook so you keep chasing. The chase is addictive because she makes the chase fun. It's akin to a woman being alluringly naked from the other side of the room, but when you get over there to pounce on her she's fully dressed. They're great teases.
- Drawing from the last point, the flirting is addictive/intense.
- These women are smart/show creativity, lord knows many guys covet this quality in a woman, yet it is so rare. Most women are dumb as fuck and don't care. Or they care about being seen as smart, do the "I'm smart act" with their gay frames they don't even need (because they don't read enough) and spit their mumbo jumbo from their pseudo-intellectual humanities degree, but aren't actually smart. I call 'em superficially smart. They try to sell the image of being smart to buy into some kind of sophistication that they intrinsically lack.
- When you actually fuck them, the sex is off the chain. Opposite of dead starfish. You don't get away with fucking one of these girls without taking damage. Generally your back will be scratched to fuck, so will your arms. They are violent in the sack and display a completely unsubdued animal lust.

Men have their own version of "being attracted to an asshole." They're called dark triad women, or as I and a friend call them (and coined the term) "Lucifer's Daughters." These women are insanely seductive/attractive, but they're totally neurotic, unstable, uncaring and will eat you alive. They are bad for your health but you can't get enough of 'em. You enjoy the chase, the intense tension/attraction and then once you finally get them you enjoy the crazy as fuck sex. You may read this and think "that sounds great" and yeah, that's the good part. The bad part? Gas lighting (very scary shit for a guy who's never been gaslighted before, she will rewrite history, persuade you to believe her bullshit is true and play the victim.) They have no qualms with getting you sent to prison, crazy theatrics in public, incessant aggressive shit tests and yadda yadda.

These bitches cry rape, they will switch personality in front of you. They do the "sweet girl act" they act all pouty and cute and a little ditzy with their make-up done, then, the moment you let your guard down or get too comfy they hit you with shit test after shit test and then laugh in your face if you can't hold frame/handle it (note: most guys can't handle it, so these bitches think they're better than most men.) If you are a DT that seeks drama/craziness yourself, you will love these girls, in fact, you're probably the only kind of man who can "remotely tame" the batshittery of these bitches, but mere mortal men, the 99%... steer clear that sweet pussy isn't worth the poison it's laced in.

I had a lot of fun with the chick who inspired the Lucifer's daughter article, but I was lucky she didn't blow my life up. If you play with the fire, be prepared to get burned, don't go on /r/asktrp full retard "asking how to handle DT women" because guess what the answer is? You don't. You dip and duck. That's what I did. The only way to keep one of these girls is to be more fucked up in the head than they are. The only man who can keep a bitch like this in line is a DT himself. Due to what I write about, a fair number of self-confessed DTs talk to me with some measure of regularity. They think these women are wife material. That should tell you all you need to know. Crazy loves itself more crazy, they bounce off each other.

Read more about DT women

It was around a year ago today (actually a year and two days ago, but fuck it) that I self-published my first dark triad article into the manosphere. I've come a long way as a writer, blogger and thinker since then and wanted to update and adapt my entry piece on the dark triad to reflect that.

Changes from the original version:

- Added a picture at the top, people like pictures.
- Massive grammar improvements, flows better. Probably only minor things left to flesh out, far more readable than it was before anyhow.
- About 700 additional words.
- The addition of some concepts and the removal of elements I deemed retrospectively superfluous.

Updated article link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2013/11/17/understanding-the-dark-triad/>

What it's about:

It's basically my attempt to generalise, surmise and introduce someone to the concept of the dark triad who has never been acquainted with this framework and set of ideas before. If you're going to read anything on the topic and attempt to understand it, this is the most easily understood piece written in the simplest manner. I'm not saying it's simple or easy to understand at all, simply that in comparison to everything else I write on the topic, it doesn't really get any simpler than this.

Here is the opening excerpt:

The Dark Triad is an immoral trifecta of personality traits that result in immense personal power. It grants high social status, tight control over interpersonal social dynamics and elicits intense sexual attraction. It's for these reasons that many men interested in red pill philosophy likewise have an interest in the dark triad and idealise ascertaining the psychological state of "being dark triad" or at least a simulacrum of such a state.

These men see power embodied within specific personality traits and they want to know "how can I be like that?" "How can I be the successful asshole?!" The truth of the matter is that if you did not neurologically develop a dark triad personality as a child, you will never be completely dark triad in the truest sense of the classification. The dark triad is essentially not something one can be trained to become, however it can be reverse engineered and emulated. I'll elaborate on this later on in the article however first I'll outline what the dark triad actually is.

So not too far back I mentioned the dark triad is a trifecta of personality traits. To be more specific, it is composed of three "anti-social" mental schemas which work in tandem to form "the dark triad." Those comprising psychosocial mental schemas are as follows:

- Understanding Narcissism

Excessive self-love as well as ridiculously high, bordering on, or far exceeding, obnoxious self-confidence. Dark triad individuals are egotist incarnate, this component of the triad forms the superficial glazing which masks and distracts one from the murkier depths of the dark triad persona. It is this device that achieves a dark triad individual baseline social acceptance in most social situations, for people are innately drawn to those who exhibit vast self-confidence.

The narcissism is clinical, deep-rooted and intensely internalised. The individual truly believes they are superior to everybody else simply because they are who they are and they exist. This is something akin to a god complex. Naturally, this has the effect of rubbing off on other people despite being completely unsubstantiated. People assume subconsciously that someone who loves themselves that much must have a basis for their self-image and therefore wrongfully assumes such an individual is high value. Narcissists, in the absence of significant worldly success are huge proponents of the "fake it 'till you make it" mantra. Except unlike your average joe who exhausts himself with the pretence, it takes a narcissist almost no effort to maintain it, because despite the objective invalidity of their assertions they believe in their own delusions.

ADDENDUM - Notes on Narcissism:

I'm aware I haven't completed the trifecta by publishing my individualised piece on narcissism yet. As a writer and a thinker, it is the hardest part of the triad in my opinion to articulate and educate on. It is the most nuanced, and I believe there to be more than one type of narcissism. I have a number of other projects (I have 100 or so drafts at various levels of completion) and I'm taking my time in fleshing out the piece to adequately describe a broad spectrum of functional and dysfunctional narcissism. Basically, I'm a perfectionist. Wait, it will come.

27

UPVOTES

*2014 UPDATE - A General Overview of The Dark Triad

19 November 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

It was around a year ago today (actually a year and two days ago, but fuck it) that I self-published my first dark triad article into the manosphere. I've come a long way as a writer, blogger and thinker since then and wanted to update and adapt my entry piece on the dark triad to reflect that.

Changes from the original version:

- Added a picture at the top, people like pictures.
- Massive grammar improvements, flows better. Probably only minor things left to flesh out, far more readable than it was before anyhow.
- About 700 additional words.
- The addition of some concepts and the removal of elements I deemed retrospectively superfluous.

Updated article link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2013/11/17/understanding-the-dark-triad/>

What it's about:

It's basically my attempt to generalise, surmise and introduce someone to the concept of the dark triad who has never been acquainted with this framework and set of ideas before. If you're going to read anything on the topic and attempt to understand it, this is the most easily understood piece written in the simplest manner. I'm not saying it's simple or easy to understand at all, simply that in comparison to everything else I write on the topic, it doesn't really get any simpler than this.

Here is the opening excerpt:

The Dark Triad is an immoral trifecta of personality traits that result in immense personal power. It grants high social status, tight control over interpersonal social dynamics and elicits intense sexual attraction. It's for these reasons that many men interested in red pill philosophy likewise have an interest in the dark triad and idealise ascertaining the psychological state of "being dark triad" or at least a simulacrum of such a state.

These men see power embodied within specific personality traits and they want to know "how can I be like that?" "How can I be the successful asshole?!" The truth of the matter is that if you did not neurologically develop a dark triad personality as a child, you will never be completely dark triad in the truest sense of the classification. The dark triad is essentially not something one can be trained to become, however it can be reverse engineered and emulated. I'll elaborate on this later on in the article however first I'll outline what the dark triad actually is.

So not too far back I mentioned the dark triad is a trifecta of personality traits. To be more specific, it is composed of three "anti-social" mental schemas which work in tandem to form "the dark triad." Those comprising psychosocial mental schemas are as follows:

- Understanding Narcissism

Excessive self-love as well as ridiculously high, bordering on, or far exceeding, obnoxious self-confidence. Dark triad individuals are egotist incarnate, this component of the triad forms the superficial glazing which masks and distracts one from the murkier depths of the dark triad persona. It is this device that achieves a dark triad individual baseline social acceptance in most social situations, for people are innately drawn to those who exhibit vast self-confidence.

The narcissism is clinical, deep-rooted and intensely internalised. The individual truly believes they are superior to everybody else simply because they are who they are and they exist. This is something akin to a god complex. Naturally, this has the effect of rubbing off on other people despite being completely unsubstantiated. People assume subconsciously that someone who loves themselves that much must have a basis for their self-image and therefore wrongfully assumes such an individual is high value. Narcissists, in the absence of significant worldly success are huge proponents of the "fake it 'till you make it" mantra. Except unlike your average joe who exhausts himself with the pretence, it takes a narcissist almost no effort to maintain it, because despite the objective invalidity of their assertions they believe in their own delusions.

ADDENDUM - Notes on Narcissism:

I'm aware I haven't completed the trifecta by publishing my individualised piece on narcissism yet. As a writer and a thinker, it is the hardest part of the triad in my opinion to articulate and educate on. It is the most nuanced, and I believe there to be more than one type of narcissism. I have a number of other projects (I have 100 or so drafts at various levels of completion) and I'm taking my time in fleshing out the piece to adequately describe a broad spectrum of functional and dysfunctional narcissism. Basically, I'm a perfectionist. Wait, it will come.

- You hold eye contact for longer with people. (confidence)
- Your posture is better. (lifting)
- Your voice is deeper. (lifting)
- You speak more confidently, even when you're bullshitting.
- You believe in yourself.
- You will fight if necessary. You are not conflict averse.
- Unless they are part of your trusted council, people's opinions will matter less to you. Almost nothing. As an alpha you realise people will shit test you all the time, you're desensitised to that.
- You see women as passive beings in the dating game to be acquired/seduced, not same-level equalists who are negotiated into contract. Attraction is not negotiable.
- You embrace pain and use it as a power source to keep pushing you further with your goals. As long as you have your pain and the motivation that brings, nothing any other fuck can say really does a dent in your psyche. If you've been to hell and back what does it matter that some cunt thinks X about you? Whatever. People who harness pain are stronger than people who hide from it in fear. You have learnt to make pain your friend rather than your enemy.
- You don't chase women when they give you more shit than they're worth, you replace them/seek new women. You don't pedestalise pussy. You have a "I'm the prize" mentality.
- You don't indulge in time wasting drama, you get the fuck on with your shit. Drama is time rape.
- You enforce your boundaries.
- You know when to ignore people/arguments/comments/situations which are lose-lose. When someone tries to provoke you/shit test you and you lose either way, you realise not to play.
- You take more risks. You are bold.
- You don't need to go to /r/asktrp.
- You're willing to lead projects/people, you don't shy from responsibility.
- When people attack your masculinity to try and coerce you, you don't let it phaze you. You know you're masculine. Someone telling you you're a bitch because you won't go to the shop for them elicits a laugh at how pathetic their manipulation is, not a "oh boy they're right, I'm not even man enough to buy shit for them!"
- You become less tolerant to bullshit in general.
- You realise people, but women specifically, are always putting out subtle dominance tests to see how you will react. Your self-belief/frame will allow you to handle these fluidly and organically as and when they come, you don't need to read books or have preset plans to handle social situations.
- Men specifically will actually test you more than when you were beta, you will find they feel threatened/insecure by your masculinity that they lack, so they will throw more shit at you. Usually they do this passive aggressively. In a way, they are much like women. Funny how similar beta/omega men can be to women. They all characterise feminine behaviours.

- Extension of the previous point, narcissist alphas will try to AMOG you. Think of the obnoxious gym rat guys. If a guy is trying that kind of theatrical bullshit around you, he feels threatened by you. Unfortunately the brotherhood mentality does not extend too far out of the manosphere.
- You realise you're on your own in this world, your parents will die one day. Everything is down to you. You can only rely on you. People come and go, friends, women, whatever. You make yourself dependable for your needs.
- You realise when people are playing hard to get (men or women) and so you ignore them in response when they do finally decide to bother with you.
- You're quick to next people in general because you come from a place of abundance, not neediness.
- You're not lazy, you're always trying new shit to find your way in life.
- You're motivated and because you're not risk adverse, you keep failing until you find a way that works. You don't fear failure, you embrace it. You are an experience junkie, good or bad.
- When nobodies talk shit about you, you laugh instead of getting offended. Banter is not alien to you, it's a second language.
- On the flip side to the previous point when it's not meant as banter, you don't care.
- Your sense of "fairness" may cause you to feel jealous when other people have successes you don't think they rationally deserve, but you take it on the chin. You know life isn't fair. If it's a friend, you kill that initial feeling there and then and you make yourself happy for them. It's your friend, not your enemy. Jealousy is a feminine trait. They may even bring you in later. Even if they don't, who cares. You support them/be happy for them and keep on grinding. The jealousy leads nowhere productive. You're a man of efficiency.
- You take responsibility for other peoples bullshit when it makes your life easier. Sounds counterintuitive on the surface level, but if being the fall guy earns you the favour you want/earns you the trust that needs to be earned with certain people, then it could be worth it to you. You evaluate all situations strategically and take calculated risks. On the flip, you do not take the wrap when it does not benefit you.
- You get shit the fuck done. You don't let problems build up, you thwart them before they become bigger problems. You handle shit.

Some of these points overlap I realise, no need to tell me.

Check out my blog, follow etc.

I will have more self improvement based stuff on there in the future (got a whole little portal planned, which I'm excited about, kind of like a syllabus.) Likewise I am committed to quite a lot of future dark triad content.

For the alphas in progress:

RP can take a long time to actualise, if you've been here 6 months and nothing has happened yet, that's because you're still unlearning old habits. Maybe you're not lifting yet, but you've stopped doing drugs/alcohol so much and you've cut your video game time down. You're not making gains, but you're mitigating vices. You will have cheat days/relapse days, don't sweat it. Success is not linear. You have to deprogram before you can reprogram. Don't give up on yourself, keep reading and making baby steps. If there's anything I can recommend first and foremost, it's to get 7-8 hours sleep a night, get a weight lifting program on the go and eat as best as you can for the budget that you're on. The energy and focus you get from lifting will help kick start everything else. If you're too pussy shit to workout in a gym or you can't afford the monthly subscription, get a weight set and workout at home. There is no excuse not to get your lazy ass off the computer chair. Keep on keeping on gentlemen.

97

UPVOTES

Law 01 - Do Not Outshine The Master - Massively In-Depth

28 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I have massively overhauled the first piece I wrote pertaining to The 48 Laws of Power just over a year ago.

Link: Law 01 - Don't Outshine The Master In-Depth

Summary:

A thorough look at Law 1 from Robert Greene's 48 Laws of Power, exploring it in more depth citing numerous easily relatable examples and methodologies, drawing multiple parallels.

To see basic discussion of the law (ain't nobody got time for no essay!) then check out this:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2me5k6/48_days_of_power_day_1_never_outshine_the_master/

Also check us out on /r/the48lawsofpower - we made (well it was made, and I was invited to moderate) a board dedicated to discussing The 48 Laws of Power, as well as the dark triad and power/political/military strategy in general. I bet that's got a few of you shady motherfuckers skulking in the shadows perking up eh?

Opening Excerpt

Contents:

- 1.) Preamble
- 2.) Understand Your Social Surroundings
 - 2a.) The Classroom Example & Target Selection
- 3.) Popularity & Respect Carry More Authority Than Job Titles
- 4.) Successfully Outshining Masters
 - 4a.) The Michael Jackson Example
 - 4b.) The Ja Rule Example
- 5.) Accidentally Outshining
- 6.) Building Trust and Kinship: The Apprentice Method
- 7.) The Apprentice Method – Utilising Submission for Self-Gain
 - 7a.) Surmising the Apprentice Method
- 8.) The Puppeteer Method
- 9.) In Closing

Preamble:

Many have problems understanding the laws in Robert Greene's best-selling and critically acclaimed book The 48 Laws of Power. One particular criticism I have repeatedly come across is that the examples Greene gives aren't based in the contemporary. Rather it is observantly asserted they are based upon elaborate tales from times gone by, times which the reader struggles to relate to their own lives' politics. This series of blog posts will dissect each law and explain them more intricately than Greene did, taking different approaches and giving different examples of the specified law within a more contemporary social paradigm. Likewise expect to find fresh parallels drawn between the laws, additional insights as well as detailed Machiavellian methodologies. Firstly as a note of reminder: the basic mechanisms of Machiavellianism are inherently synoptic so expect to see overlap between various laws. Secondly, particular reference has been made to laws outside of this one where it has been deemed relevant throughout the essay. Now without further ado...

Understand Your Social Surroundings:

In a social group where you're new and your position is questionably unestablished, you should immediately look to determine who the leader is. If you're a strong character, show restraint and do not show more dominance than the group leader. No trying to make the leader look bad and no competing for the majority of the group's attention. If the group leader is objectively inferior in a capacity obvious for all to see, you will have to play down or otherwise conceal your natural aptitude.

Befriend the group leader, win their trust, and you'll get their approval. It is vital that out of respect and recognition of the leader's status that you quickly identify and address them. Win the leader over and you gain access to the entire group. Group leaders are the gatekeepers of social groups, their singular word holds the most value and influence within the group; it therefore stands to reason that their favour is inextricably necessary. For example, if there were a group of three attractive women, you would initiate, politely challenge and subsequently charm the bossiest one. If it were a group of frat boys, your target would be the guy that everyone most visibly looks up to and respects. If the group leader doesn't like you in spite of your sincerest efforts to win them over, you should abandon that group. Take the loss, move on, and seek greener pastures. Trying to become a part of groups where the leadership doesn't like you in spite of your efforts is rarely worth the uphill struggle. It is far better to thrive where you are accepted, than be barely and rather contemptuously tolerated where you are not.

Significant Changes:

So what's new? What are the changes between the original and the new piece? A metric fuck tonne, really. I've really grown as a writer since I originally wrote the piece and the depth to my understanding of Machiavellianism both abstractly and applied has only grown in the prior 12 months, leading to a deeper and richer essay.

- The piece has almost doubled in size. The original was around 3,200 words, the new one is circa 6,000 words (or 15 pages long.)
- It has been condensed into sections, like a mini-book. So although it's a lot longer than the original piece it's easy to find the last part you were reading after an interlude due to the frequency of the headings. You don't have to read it all at once, it should be treated as a very short book in and of itself.
- The grammar is a lot better, it flows better. I'm not actually capable of making my own work grammar perfect, but if you possess the sufficient vocabulary you should not struggle to read it.

Will you ever finish these essays?

I've been asked this a few times so just thought I'd answer it here: I hope to, however I'm probably not going to complete them all for a very long time - especially if I am to maintain this level of quality. I'm in no rush to "get them all done" either, I believe rushing this kind of shit will only lead to an inferior final product. I need to balance the topics I write about to create a more balanced blog. I know my blog is seen as a "blog about power" but I want to help men with their bitch issues and self issues too. I haven't written about red pill theory for awhile, so I want to go and do something on that now.

Law 01 - Don't Outshine The Master: In-Depth

29 November 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

I have massively overhauled the first piece I wrote pertaining to The 48 Laws of Power just over a year ago.

Link: Law 01 - Don't Outshine The Master In-Depth

Summary:

A thorough look at Law 1 from Robert Greene's 48 Laws of Power, exploring it in more depth citing numerous easily relatable examples and methodologies, drawing multiple parallels.

To see basic discussion of the law (ain't nobody got time for no essay!) then check out this:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2me5k6/48_days_of_power_day_1_never_outshine_the_master/

Also check us out on /r/the48lawsofpower - we made (well it was made, and I was invited to moderate) a board dedicated to discussing The 48 Laws of Power, as well as the dark triad and power/political/military strategy in general. I bet that's got a few of you shady motherfuckers skulking in the shadows perking up eh?

Opening Excerpt:

Contents:

- 1.) Preamble
- 2.) Understand Your Social Surroundings
 - 2a.) The Classroom Example & Target Selection
- 3.) Popularity & Respect Carry More Authority Than Job Titles
- 4.) Successfully Outshining Masters
 - 4a.) The Michael Jackson Example
 - 4b.) The Ja Rule Example
- 5.) Accidentally Outshining
- 6.) Building Trust and Kinship: The Apprentice Method
- 7.) The Apprentice Method – Utilising Submission for Self-Gain
 - 7a.) Surmising the Apprentice Method
- 8.) The Puppeteer Method
- 9.) In Closing

Preamble:

Many have problems understanding the laws in Robert Greene's best-selling and critically acclaimed book The 48 Laws of Power. One particular criticism I have repeatedly come across is that the examples Greene gives aren't based in the contemporary. Rather it is observantly asserted they are based upon elaborate tales from times gone by, times which the reader struggles to relate to their own lives' politics. This series of blog posts will dissect each law and explain them more intricately than Greene did, taking different approaches and giving different examples of the specified law within a more contemporary social paradigm. Likewise expect to find fresh parallels drawn between the laws, additional insights as well as detailed Machiavellian methodologies. Firstly as a note of reminder: the basic mechanisms of Machiavellianism are inherently synoptic so expect to see overlap between various laws. Secondly, particular reference has been made to laws outside of this one where it has been deemed relevant throughout the essay. Now without further ado...

Understand Your Social Surroundings:

In a social group where you're new and your position is questionably unestablished, you should immediately look to determine who the leader is. If you're a strong character, show restraint and do not show more dominance than the group leader. No trying to make the leader look bad and no competing for the majority of the group's attention. If the group leader is objectively inferior in a capacity obvious for all to see, you will have to play down or otherwise conceal your natural aptitude.

Befriend the group leader, win their trust, and you'll get their approval. It is vital that out of respect and recognition of the leader's status that you quickly identify and address them. Win the leader over and you gain access to the entire group. Group leaders are the gatekeepers of social groups, their singular word holds the most value and influence within the group; it therefore stands to reason that their favour is inextricably necessary. For example, if there were a group of three attractive women, you would initiate, politely challenge and subsequently charm the bossiest one. If it were a group of frat boys, your target would be the guy that everyone most visibly looks up to and respects. If the group leader doesn't like you in spite of your sincerest efforts to win them over, you should abandon that group. Take the loss, move on, and seek greener pastures. Trying to become a part of groups where the leadership doesn't like you in spite of your efforts is rarely worth the uphill struggle. It is far better to thrive where you are accepted, than be barely and rather contemptuously tolerated where you are not.

Significant Changes:

So what's new? What are the changes between the original and the new piece? A metric fuck tonne, really. I've really grown as a writer since I originally wrote the piece and the depth to my understanding of Machiavellianism both abstractly and applied has only grown in the prior 12 months, leading to a deeper and richer essay.

- The piece has almost doubled in size. The original was around 3,200 words, the new one is circa 6,000 words (or 15 pages long.)
- It has been condensed into sections, like a mini-book. So although it's a lot longer than the original piece it's easy to find the last part you were reading after an interlude due to the frequency of the headings. You don't have to read it all at once, it should be treated as a very short book in and of itself.
- The grammar is a lot better, it flows better. I'm not actually capable of making my own work grammar perfect, but if you possess the sufficient vocabulary you should not struggle to read it.

Will you ever finish these essays?

I've been asked this a few times so just thought I'd answer it here: I hope to, however I'm probably not going to complete them all for a very long time - especially if I am to maintain this level of quality. I'm in no rush to "get them all done" either, I believe rushing this kind of shit will only lead to an inferior final product. I need to balance the topics I write about to create a more balanced blog. I know my blog is seen as a "blog about power" but I want to help men with their bitch issues and self issues too. I haven't written about red pill theory for awhile, so I want to go and do something on that now.

207

UPVOTES

Being A Man Is Something You Earn Everyday

30 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This was posted on TRP in May 2013 by /u/enticingasthatmaybe. It's pure brilliance.

Humans are a fit species - a vast majority of individuals have the needed genetic makeup predefined in them to become fit / strong / etc... Meaning that most humans can improve themselves or maintain a high level of fitness.

I think the distinction between Alpha and MGTOW may come from the Alphas actually doing the experiment, and it is an experiment, of life improvement and seeing the difference it makes on their overall quality of life. Lifestyle improvement doesn't happen in a week - it doesn't happen in a month - it is a grind. Every. Fucking. Day. Day in, day out, you have to eat well | exercise | read | learn | un-learn. It can be torturous in the beginning because you see no gains and by the time you've invested a couple of weeks into improving yourself you're still depressed, bitter and lonely. Then, you add the strain of working out, running or both, detoxing from shitty foods and sodas, and broke from buying clothes - it turns into a life of being depressed, bitter, lonely, tired, headache ridden, constantly hungry and broke. You can see then why some would come to the conclusion that 'women just aren't worth it'.

However, if you make it through the grind long enough... One day you break through the barrier of 'this fucking sucks'. It takes the ability to power through the grind - the ability to look passed the hate you will receive for improving yourself, and hate you will most assuredly receive. People will hate you, they will project real and genuine hate towards you for improving yourself. They want you inferior, society needs you to remain inferior and ignorant of your own worth. Nothing frightens those around you more than a Man confident in his own value because he cannot be shamed into servitude.

It is a grind. Every. Single. Fucking. Day.

You will get yelled at by insecure Men while out running shirtless in compression shorts. But once you glance back and see the carnal look of absolute hunger on his girlfriends face, you'll smile your biggest Devil may care smile, wink at her and go about your run. So what if the hillbilly steps out and wants to fight; you're on a fucking 10 mile run - you lift for strength, not for glory. You're strong, fast, fit and agile. Fuck his stupid face up then give his girlfriend a fucking she won't forget.

Then the glorious day happens when you awaken...

You hate even the smell of soda. Putting a piece of candy in your mouth feels like someone dropped straight lemon juice on your tongue, you spit the poison out because that's what a sensible Man does when poison is in his mouth. You have intimate knowledge of how your body odor should smell and realize that if you are starting to have armpit stench it's because you fucked up and ate something deep fried, usually as a courtesy or a last resort. You buy more peanut butter, bananas and chicken breast than you buy fuel for your car. White bread tastes weird to you and you can't remember the last time you ate rice.

Women cast huge smiles at you for no reason. You get seated quickly at restaurants. Bartenders, male and female, take your drink order almost immediately when you approach a bar; no more having to flash cash to show you want to buy something. You feel eyes on you where ever you go. Which at first can be disconcerting, but then you quickly realize how few fucks you give and just bask in the attention. Hey, if they're looking they must like what they see.

You see these changes - you enjoy these changes, but you do not need these changes. You've fought your way to the top using nothing but what you've created and built on your own. Yes, the world can enjoy you now, but the world didn't make you; you did. You set the terms and conditions of that enjoyment. You no longer have to ask for anything, you issue gentle yet assertive commands and people follow them simply because you directed them to. You are a Man; the world needs you but you don't care, you don't need the world.

Begin the grind: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/13/monk-mode/>

Society has turned inward. We live in a middle time without total wars and frontiers waiting for exploration and exploitation.

3 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is a private message I received from a redpiller awhile ago where he talks about why he thinks feminism has taken hold so strongly in the west. I thought it was a brilliant analysis and asked him to create a thread (this was going back 5 months ago.) It seems he never got around to doing so, for whatever reason that may be. In light of that, I've taken it upon myself to share what he sent me with the rest of you. Emphasis is my own.

Patriarchal societies have always been built on glory, on conquest expansion and dominance. After WW2 the West rejected imperialism, and eventually large scale warfare after Vietnam. Conflict and conquest is the engine of Patriarchal society and all it's progress, just like physical exercise is the engine of male self esteem. Society has turned inward. We live in a middle time without total wars and frontiers waiting for exploration and exploitation. I see this as the primary macro condition. Give men a place of stress and risk to exact their energies towards glory and they will return home and impose order. Society needs to go lift. When it does, men will return to their natural leadership position. Western ideology doesn't do that anymore though. Nationalism is over. (Guess where it's not though? China. Funny right?)

I think our thing, whatever you want to call what TRP represents, needs to push to the new frontiers and begin true conquest anew. If we lived in a society of astronauts, where success could be found in risking life and limb for fortune in space, you think we'd still have these problems? It ain't gonna be the chicks strapping themselves to rockets to go mine the minerals and build the colonies. The only reason female astronauts exist is to fill a NASA diversity quota. I'm glad our national space program is dead. Now it can become what it should, an open frontier for private enterprise. The sexual counter revolution is going to happen, the eventual TRP end game needs to be discussed. I think we should be looking forward and outward, instead of falling into a mental retro fallacy. Patriarchy isn't built on ideology, it's built on exo-conflict. The ideology is the rationalization for the conflict. The patriarchy won't be rebuilt with the ideologies, it will be rebuilt with the new frontier.

Truly right now, we are in the age of decadence. Check out Sir John Glubb's "The Fate of Empires" if this topic interests you. Credit goes to /u/fluviant for originally introducing me to The Fate of Empires (and no, he was not the one who sent me this PM.) I've got a few "decline based" books on my "to read list" which will no doubt inspire and be the topic of future blog posts, so if you enjoy this topic, stay tuned.

377
UPVOTES

I'm sick and fucking tired of men who enable women and their "it's not my fault" bullshit victim complex

5 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This was originally a comment over in /u/bsutansalt's thread "the sexodus - why men are giving up on women and dropping out of society" but a user recommended I give the comment its own topic and I agreed with him, so fuck it, here it is:

And we'll discover that the real victims of modern feminism are, of course, women themselves, who have been left lonelier and less satisfied than they have ever been.

I find it hilarious how much of the article basically outlines how the typical woman treats the average man like a pile of fucking shit, and then concludes that in their hostile ignorant arrogance, they end up being the real victims due to loneliness.

Men always want to go to bat for women, and that shit fucks me off. It must be genetic or some shit because I see men in TRP doing that shit too "don't be mad at tuh womenz brah, u just bitter OK? I get LOADSA PUSSY, you gotta lift and man up brah, stop being bitter brah" I get fucking tired of that retarded trite dumb testosterone monkeys spit. Fucking retards who lift a bit of metal and fuck a bit of pussy who are totally ignorant to what's going on, but think they're a boss because they can get laid and are constantly high on fucking TREN and a post workout buzz. Just because you lift and get laid, doesn't mean society isn't fucked up. Their opinions on life and women are basically some retarded flow chart:

- Do you lift brah? (Yes/No) No? - If not go lift brah
- Do you get laid brah? (Yes/No?) - If not go tinder brah.

Tinder not working? You need to cut brah. Already doing both? Then there's no problem, you be trippin' brah! GYM AND TINDER FO LYFE!

See these fucking idiots think being jacked and getting laid is all you need to be fulfilled in life, and that's fucking bullshit. Men outside the manosphere could collectively go lift tomorrow and it wouldn't change the legal system, it wouldn't get rid of feminism, it wouldn't fix the fucked up education system or the shit economy and it wouldn't give men game/social awareness. It wouldn't change a sweet damn thing for the overall condition of men as outlined in this fucking article.

For some reason, there are a sub-section of men who want to go to bat for women, and the more pussy your typical man gets, the more he thinks "hey you know what, women are fine, I have great times with them, you must be the problem BRAAAAHHHH ain't nothing wrong with women BRAAAAAAAH you're the problem BRAAAAAAAH." They don't wanna explore really what the fuck is up. It's just the guys fault. It's close-minded bullshit. Fuck exploring shit, and god forbid blaming a woman, they are poor innocent wittle victimz and as a man, it's all your fault if she's a cunt! The old hypoagent-hyperagent bait and switch gets annoying (men take blame for everything, women get blamed for nothing.)

Look, if we're not blaming women FOR ANYTHING, and NOTHING IS THEIR FAULT even if they're HUGE CUNTS. Then we can't treat them as equals. We can't respect them. We must see them as inferior children (hence the sidebar post "she's the most responsible teenager in the house.")

If we treat them as equals with agency, then we have to hold them to account and stop fucking blaming men for women acting like cunts. You, you vest wearing juicing fuck, need to stop telling men they are fucking bitter because they have genuine rational grievances with bitches. You need to stop looking down on men who don't follow your self-prescribed juice/lift/tinder lifestyle, shut the fuck up gloating/going to bat for women and realise you're a fucking idiot so high on juice and pussy that your opinion amounts to jack fucking shit. You're a dumb bitch-enabling ape looking for his next orgasm, that's all you are. You may physically epitomise masculinity, but mentally you're as bad as the fucking mangina feminist David Futrelle

Please, pick a fucking side, because I'm tired of the bait-and-switch in play that is used whenever it is beneficial to serve the plight of women. Men taking the blame for shit outside their realm of control is, in my opinion, full warp speed male hamster.

Women always need the #1 spot in the victim Olympics don't they? And men and women collectively enable that bullshit mentality. Society needs to figure the fuck out whether it wants to treat women as agentless puppies that need to be fed and watered all chained up in their kitchens, or to treat them as fucking people with equal agency, which means stop going to fucking bat for them and validating their bullshit with "as the man, it's your fault she's a cunt, you should have used your super man powers to stop her being a cunt. You should have treated her in such an ALFALLLLLFA way that the very base of her nature changed and caused her to change into what you wanted her to be. SHE IS THE WAY YOU MAKE HER. If you were a real man, she wouldn't be a cunt." Because you know, the fact she has daddy issues and feminism taught her that anything with a dick is a symbolic incarnation of Satan is irrelevant, it's ALL YOUR FAULT if it don't work with these bitches. And so the masculinity shaming and blaming continues in it's epic as ever fashion.

LOOK: both MEN AND WOMEN are sick right now, in fact the whole damn society is. Women are too mentally violent and feral, the worst of their femininity is running amok. Men are too confused, passive and directionless. That's where TRP comes in, but men should only be taking responsibility for their own destinies, not blaming themselves for the inevitable theatrics that come as part of the package in dealing with your average day loony toon of a woman. I never subscribed to the "as a man, it's your fault she's a cunt IF she's a cunt mantra," and I never will. Some women are just fucking cunts, plain and simple, and you're an idiot if you think you can make poison drinkable, or tame the untameable serpent. It takes a whole fucking society to bring bitches in line, and society has failed all of us.

This whole, she's got no agency when she's playing her victim card, but she's as equal as you with as much agency as you when she needs representation and respect is fucking bullshit. The mixed messages are what really fucks shit up. And that shit really fucks up young men, men in general and the sheer prospect of an LTR for a man. It's such a head fuck that I understand why a lot of guys think "fuck this shit!" and look for escapes. I don't fucking blame 'em, they're doing what they perceive to be the rational thing, they just want to be happy. Most men are simple like that. They don't need all the head games and politics that comes with being in a relationship or even associating with women nowadays.

Anyway, intentionally vitriolic and provocative rant aside, I thought that was a really good piece. But women the real victims? Fucking please. 15-30 is a non-stop party for them. After that they either experience what young guys did, but the girl world equivalent, or they find a beta bucks, get fucked by one of the last remaining alphas this effeminate society has, and then fucking cheat on the beta and swindle him through divorce/child support etc. Which I'm sure some self-assured cunt on here will reply with "that's great for me BRAH, MORE PUSSY FOR ME BRAH!"

I hope I pissed a few people off who read this, you gym rat cunts know who the fuck you are. A man with the body of a demigod and the mind of a piss ant is a caricature of masculinity, you cunts make me sick. If you lift, you better fucking read too (its the mental equivalent of lifting) and cut out the chest puffing "everything is a man's fault" bullshit.

// End Rant

As always, check out my blog if you like my shit.

This isn't written by me, I have just copied and pasted an essay this dude wrote to me. I read the whole thing and thought maybe some of the guys here could benefit from it. Younger guys especially, take notes, LTR/Marriage game is like bitch management on steroids. Here's what he had to say:

I've never known a happily married man, and I'm a middle aged man myself. They're not going to say it in front of their mates, it takes about 3 days away from her before the truth starts to come out (such as a hunting trip, when he'll start to remember how much fun it was to be free again). After you're married and that first or second kid comes into play, when she's in her early 30s, that's when the trouble starts. She knows how miserable you are, and will pour salt into the wound at every chance. She will brow-beat you into thinking that this IS happiness, and pretty soon you'll start believing it. She has a guaranteed income from you with those two kids under her belt. It's around this time that she'll start withholding sex, like you're a trained dog. And pretty soon it will be weeks or months between those sexual encounters. Her body has gone to hell and you may not even want to touch her anymore, preferring masturbation. The worst part of being married is that she'll demand that paycheck and give you an allowance so she knows where every penny goes.

If you have a good job and she decides "WE'D BE MUCH BETTER OFF WITHOUT DAD." (Oprah's never ending mantra), then treat this next piece of advice as if it were a stack of gold bars. Here it is: She will divorce you thinking she'll get a nice fat child support and alimony paycheck from you every month. T-bone her bullshit and quit that high paying job, then take a drastically lower paying job, like working at 7-11 or as a security guard sitting on your ass all night. The judge has to let you have enough money to cover a roof over your head, food, and basic essentials. Take a job that pays just enough to cover these. If you have to get food stamps, so what, do so (it's just a debit card now, no one will know). Same with insurance, Obamacare has you covered (even if it fails to go through, there will always be public assistance of some kind).

It's either the above or get raped every payday by that cunt, as she takes all your happiness away anyway-- meaning money.

For extra money you can always start a business off the books, sell your expertise. Don't do business with banks, use check cashing places-- I use Walmart, $3.00 no matter how big the check is. Even better, offer a large discount for all-cash customers. Don't keep records of any kind except inside your head. Preferably live in another state where it would be expensive as hell to have you watched. Do all of your business out of a post office box. Go to the DMV and change your address to this post office box. If they pry for an address either tell them you're homeless or give them the address of a homeless shelter. But you MUST do all of your business out of that PO box, and receive things like your food stamp debit card there and any correspondence with public assistance. I live in a southwestern state in the USA, where if you are chronically homeless for two years they will even get you an apartment. Everything I've talked about here is from first hand experience and has worked for me for over 35 years now.

If you're young enough then maybe you'll read this before it's too late and avoid marriage and kids altogether. From experience kids are just going to grow up and hate you anyway, so why bother. The kids who are born with a silver spoon in their mouths seem to end up hating their parents the most. To them it's a clock ticking, just to get those parents buried so they can get the fortune for themselves. They, in turn end up having kids of their own who feel the same way about them.

Perhaps you see me as a bitter old man, a scoundrel, a dead beat, that may very well be the case. But if I can save one young guy from falling into this trap and actually have a happy life, it's worth it. You have to think these dark thoughts to survive in life. Not everyone is born into money and the happiness it can bring.

471

UPVOTES

My Stance On Women

10 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

A dude in another topic said:

"The natural instinct is to excel for pussy not for yourself" and I felt my response constituted a topic in and of itself:

I've noticed that many men place their self-worth on how many women they can fuck and only bother getting a career and working on themselves so they can have a family. Whilst a noble pursuit as having a genetic lineage and maintaining your family line is important, I believe many men are forming a faulty emotional foundation by "dedicating it all to women." Preserving a genetic lineage should be something you do for yourself, because you are an egotist that wants to preserve his existence in the world via his offspring once he has left the world you shouldn't be pedestalsing women because women are the centre of your universe. Women aren't worth shit next to a fully actualised man, if you're a high value man any woman in your life is lucky you even keep her around.

When I took women off the pedestal and introspected deeply and assessed my own flaws and shortcomings, I realised that in order to ever be happy and attain self-mastery that I needed to become massively selfish, stop neglecting my own needs and stop hiding from my own weaknesses. I needed to work on myself each and everyday instead of being a lazy unmotivated fuck. I needed to overcome my weaknesses so they no longer existed. And I was doing that shit all for myself, there were no women in the equation and I wasn't hoping "by doing this, I'm going to get women." I did that shit because I wanted to like myself and respect myself and be someone I could look at in the mirror and go "that's a man." A lot of guys say "you're hamstering, you do it all for women." And you know what? I think fuck them, they're projecting why they do this self improvement shit for themselves onto me. Sure I like getting laid who the fuck doesn't? But it's not the centre of my universe, my art is. Ignore the wise fucks who think they know you better than you know yourself, because they don't, especially not the random nobodies on the internet.

As men we are often trained to be too selfless for our own good, especially in matters of women. All the gents raised by single mothers got a full dose of white knight 101 from their idealistic unwittingly castrating mothers. This is why I live the self-improvement ethos to the maximum of my capability. Without that, I don't see much point in life. You stagnate, you drift along without purpose, without direction, without "a higher goal." Women, to me, are not "a higher goal." I rather be a socially clueless idiot with a gay shirt landing some shit on a comet than your average billy beta who occasionally feels like "the man of the house" when he's lifting the shopping bags for his self-entitled brat of a wife. After my last long-term relationship and then being subsequently introduced to the red pill I found "doing it all for women" to be a pointless endeavour. Just because they demand your sacrifice, like the bratty foot stomping narcissists that they are, it doesn't mean you need to concede.

Women are fickle, they are a crap foundation to build your success upon. Building your success, your skills, your reasoning for living upon the back of a woman is like building your home on top of a fault line, that shit is going to fuck up and you are going to lose everything. It is not worth the hassle. If you have a woman in your life you invite her to come and enjoy your world, you do not base your world upon her. That is chronic nuclear mistake #1.

Indulge in your own self-development, but more importantly, cautiously indulge in women sporadically. Do it on your own fucking terms. I realise some men (particularly PUAs) are addicted to the rush of female validation/having successful social interactions with women and getting lays, and yeah that is a fuck ton of fun, but if it takes up any more than say 20% of your life, you're wasting your one chance at a life on this Earth. Some guys have mummy issues and look to get their female validation fix through fucking around with women, that's not a problem for me my mother loved me growing up so I don't have to burden that kind of fucked up psychology as an adult. But if you do, try and get a handle on that shit.

When all is said and done and the dirt is dropping on your coffin, there's fuck all to show for all those relationships. You're living in the moment for a fucking relationship buzz. You're addicted to "discovering and experiencing fresh love over and over again." I rather have a fucking whiskey habit and become a multimillionaire than waste my life falling in love over and over again, getting lays over and over again. I can see the playboy lifestyle appealing to some, the whole Casanova thing, but that isn't me. I rather be that bachelor that works on his art and dedicates his life to perfecting and refining his art rather than making my art the pursuit of women (as PUAs/playboys have opted to do so.)

My art comes first. I come second to my art, my needs come second to my art and only come before it if those needs stop me from working on my art (eg: I have fallen sick and need medicine.) Thirdly comes my parents, my cousins etc. Fourthly comes any woman lucky enough to be in my life. If she doesn't like her position she can feel free to take a hike because I couldn't give a fuck. Accept me for what I am or get the fuck out is how I treat women, you can't let bitches change you. They always try to change you and make you dysfunctional, they self-sabotage the relationship by destroying you. Sometimes its intentional, sometimes its their insecurity getting the better of everything but you have to keep a keen eye on that shit. You never get to take a break with women, you always have to be on top of shit. You never get to "just love a woman," love is a pleasantry, a freedom reserved solely for women. Just like they get to cry publicly and still be respected whilst we as men do not.

For creatures so outwardly beautiful, modern women sure are ugly on a spiritual level. There is nobler, purer beauty and far more sophisticated art for a man to indulge himself in out there than the canvas of a woman's body. Fuck to scratch an itch, enjoy women momentarily and occasionally, but don't be a woman obsessionist. Keep them at a healthy distance. If a bitch infiltrates the castle walls and starts trying to get inside your head you have to find a room in the castle she cannot access. You can never give yourself completely to her because otherwise she will destroy you.

I find it difficult to respect men who are women-centric and put women ahead of everything else; I always thought being obsessed with the other gender was a female trait from as young as my teen years. I remember asking "why do girls care so much about boys?" when I was an inexperienced and naive boy at 13. Women give so many fucks about us because they are completely dependent on us to obtain their highest goals. The chanting of "I'm a strong independent woman that don't need no man!" is flat out dissociative denialism. There is no higher goal for a woman than to be a wife and a mother. If they go the career route, they miss out on that or do it poorly and regret their choices. For men, there is so much more out there. We are the kings of the abstract, our logic sets us free from the shackles of emotional neuroticism and allows us to seek pleasures from our hobbies to an extent that women can only dream of. Women envy us, but we need not be indebted to them, the paradigm is what it is. Women are something we indulge in, but we don't have to dedicate to them. A wise friend one said to me "IM, women are dream killers." He's not wrong. Don't be a fucking pussy begging idiot. You are more important than the pussy your dick needs to fuck occasionally.

Oh yeah, check my blog and thanks for reading.

Best of luck to you all on your journeys.

661

UPVOTES

Everything you need to know about shit tests

15 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Link:<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/12/14/the-shit-test-encyclopedia/>Synopsis:

I've never really seen any extensive posts on the nature of shit tests and people tend to rely on "agree and amplify" as their crutch for dealing with shit tests (which is not always a wise move) so not having written anything related to TRP theory in a while my latest piece looks at shit tests, explains them and gives some examples. Enjoy. Any questions pertaining to the article topic? Feel free to ask in the comments (here or on the blog, it doesn't matter.)

If you're relatively new to TRP and are unsure about "what a shit test is" I urge you to check this piece out in its entirety.

Excerpt:Contents:

- 1.) Introduction
- 2.) What Are Shit Tests & What Purpose Do They Serve?
- 3a.) Shit Tests & Game
- 3b.) Shit Test Passed & Shit Test Failed: An Example
- 3c.) Examples: Standard Shit Tests Women Use
- 4a.) Shit Test Variation & Severity
- 4b.) Basic Shit Tests - Frame Probing & Word Play
- 4c.) Advanced Level Shit Tests - Psychological Games
- 4d.) Nuclear Shit Tests
- 5.) Passing Shit Tests
- 6.) In Closing

Introduction:

Many in the manosphere seem to think that shit testing is a social device unique to women; whereby a form of social test is employed to determine the social fitness of a male in order to discern if he is a viable sexual option or not. Now whilst this isn't wrong per se, it is an incredibly limited and rudimentary view of shit testing. Shit tests are a basic yet vitally important part of understanding and applying the red pill philosophy to your life. Even if you don't agree with red pill philosophy per se, shit tests still affect you. As a basic social dynamic, shit tests are something so intricately unavoidable that you're going to want to be able to identify and quash them as a matter of due course. Now without further ado, let us begin.

What Are Shit Tests & What Purpose Do They Serve?:

Why are they called shit tests? Well when somebody "gives you shit" and fucks around with your head to see how you will react, what you are experiencing is typically a (series of) shit test(s). Everyone has been shit tested, gets shit tested and will continue to be shit tested; It's an unavoidable part of human interaction. We use shit tests to make value judgements about people and likewise they can be used to determine how you cope under pressure. The underlying theme behind the mechanism of shit tests is that they will always test your mettle. Hence the name is not only fitting, but likewise accurate. Shit tests don't always have to be questions, they can be blanket (but accusatory/provocative) assertions. These assertions will be designed to elicit an emotional reaction from you and push you into a state of reactivity, causing you to reveal information about yourself.

"Ok, I get that, but why not just ask me what you want to know rather than play these silly games?"

Humans have a propensity to lie and tell people what they think they want to hear. This is especially true of women and the effeminate men who emulate them; both are consensus seeking creatures who crave group approval. This goes some way to explaining why women regardless of social standing indulge in vapid social pleasantries that men of substance have neither the time nor inclination for, but I digress.

On the immediately observable surface level the majority of people are concealing their true identity. Thus in order to make accurate deductions about the personalities around us we must challenge them subtextually and draw conclusions about "what they're really like" based upon their responses. Shit tests can be blatant or they can be covert, how they manifest depends upon the intent and personality of the individual employing the test. The sum potential combination of differing shit test scenarios is so vast that I cannot possibly give an example of each and every possible outcome in this article. Therefore I shall instead bestow you with the knowledge necessary to refine your own analytical capabilities so that you may act accordingly when you find yourself being shit tested.

49

UPVOTES

Everything you need to know about shit tests

15 December 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

Link:<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/12/14/the-shit-test-encyclopedia/>Synopsis:

I've never really seen any extensive posts on the nature of shit tests and people tend to rely on "agree and amplify" as their crutch for dealing with shit tests (which is not always a wise move) so not having written anything related to TRP theory in a while my latest piece looks at shit tests, explains them and gives some examples. Enjoy. Any questions pertaining to the article topic? Feel free to ask in the comments (here or on the blog, it doesn't matter.)

If you're relatively new to TRP and are unsure about "what a shit test is" I urge you to check this piece out in its entirety.

Excerpt:Contents:

- 1.) Introduction
- 2.) What Are Shit Tests & What Purpose Do They Serve?
- 3a.) Shit Tests & Game
- 3b.) Shit Test Passed & Shit Test Failed: An Example
- 3c.) Examples: Standard Shit Tests Women Use
- 4a.) Shit Test Variation & Severity
- 4b.) Basic Shit Tests - Frame Probing & Word Play
- 4c.) Advanced Level Shit Tests - Psychological Games
- 4d.) Nuclear Shit Tests
- 5.) Passing Shit Tests
- 6.) In Closing

Introduction:

Many in the manosphere seem to think that shit testing is a social device unique to women; whereby a form of social test is employed to determine the social fitness of a male in order to discern if he is a viable sexual option or not. Now whilst this isn't wrong per se, it is an incredibly limited and rudimentary view of shit testing. Shit tests are a basic yet vitally important part of understanding and applying the red pill philosophy to your life. Even if you don't agree with red pill philosophy per se, shit tests still affect you. As a basic social dynamic, shit tests are something so intricately unavoidable that you're going to want to be able to identify and quash them as a matter of due course. Now without further ado, let us begin.

What Are Shit Tests & What Purpose Do They Serve?:

Why are they called shit tests? Well when somebody "gives you shit" and fucks around with your head to see how you will react, what you are experiencing is typically a (series of) shit test(s). Everyone has been shit tested, gets shit tested and will continue to be shit tested; It's an unavoidable part of human interaction. We use shit tests to make value judgements about people and likewise they can be used to determine how you cope under pressure. The underlying theme behind the mechanism of shit tests is that they will always test your mettle. Hence the name is not only fitting, but likewise accurate. Shit tests don't always have to be questions, they can be blanket (but accusatory/provocative) assertions. These assertions will be designed to elicit an emotional reaction from you and push you into a state of reactivity, causing you to reveal information about yourself.

"Ok, I get that, but why not just ask me what you want to know rather than play these silly games?"

Humans have a propensity to lie and tell people what they think they want to hear. This is especially true of women and the effeminate men who emulate them; both are consensus seeking creatures who crave group approval. This goes some way to explaining why women regardless of social standing indulge in vapid social pleasantries that men of substance have neither the time nor inclination for, but I digress.

On the immediately observable surface level the majority of people are concealing their true identity. Thus in order to make accurate deductions about the personalities around us we must challenge them subtextually and draw conclusions about "what they're really like" based upon their responses. Shit tests can be blatant or they can be covert, how they manifest depends upon the intent and personality of the individual employing the test. The sum potential combination of differing shit test scenarios is so vast that I cannot possibly give an example of each and every possible outcome in this article. Therefore I shall instead bestow you with the knowledge necessary to refine your own analytical capabilities so that you may act accordingly when you find yourself being shit tested.

The newest piece in my "works that need remastering" series. This is a re-write on my piece "how to become Machiavellian."

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/25/how-to-apply-the-48-laws-of-power/>

Opening Excerpt:

Contents:

- 1.) Introduction
- 2.) The Vocational Toolbox: Necessary Skill Sets
 - 2a.) Develop An Analytical Mind
 - 2b.) Master Subtextual Communication
 - 2c.) Become Eloquently Articulate
 - 2d.) Emotional Intelligence & Infiltration
 - 2e.) Cold Reading
 - 2f.) Superficial Charm
- 3.) Concluding Statements: Misapplying The Laws

Introduction:

The focus of this piece is on the application of Machiavellian ideas contained within "The 48 Laws of Power." Numerous people have communicated to me how confounding they find Robert Greene's best-selling book despite how indisputably excellent it serves as an introduction to the world of Machiavellianism. It appears there is something of a disconnect between the reader's interest in the book and their ability to utilise the lessons taught within it. If one is to derive maximum benefit from the book and see tangible improvements in their life, the book and its tenets alone are not enough to bring about the outcomes enjoyed by competent Machiavellians. Certain skills must be learnt, methodologies must be developed and a deeper understanding must be obtained.

There are talents which need to be developed by the reader that are irrespective of the book. The book does not teach the importance of qualities which aid in and are fundamental to the successful execution of Machiavellian devices. These are qualities which are necessary, not supplementary. Should one wish to successfully implement the "laws of power" into the fabric of their social interactions, they will need to master said qualities. Having knowledge of the skill sets needed to be a fully competent Machiavellian is vital. Essentially, the scope of this article is to inform the wannabe Machiavellian of the skill sets necessary to successfully apply Machiavellian strategy on a day-to-day basis.

There is much profound information to be found within the depths of The 48 Laws of Power but the book lacks methodology and application. Consider The 48 Laws of Power to be a cookbook of manipulative devices, with the laws acting as the raw ingredients quintessential to the schemes of all great power games. Robert Greene gives you the ingredients necessary to achieve power, but he doesn't giving you a working blue print (or to keep with the analogy, a recipe.) The book does not educate you on becoming Machiavellian; instead, it matter-of-factly states how certain aspects of Machiavellianism work. It is in this sense that somebody alien to the purview of power, politics and manipulation is spectacularly introduced to an otherwise unfathomably unintelligible world.

Significant Changes:

So what's new? What are the changes between the original and the new piece?

- Around 600~ additional words.
- It has been condensed into sections, like a mini-book. So although it's a lot longer than the original piece it's easy to find the last part you were reading after an interlude due to the frequency of the headings. You don't have to read it all at once, it should be treated as a very short book in and of itself.
- The grammar is a lot better, it flows better. I'm not actually capable of making my work grammar perfect, but if you possess the sufficient vocabulary you should not struggle to read it.

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/25/how-to-apply-the-48-laws-of-power/>

472

UPVOTES

Not just sexual strategy is amoral, everything is. Why? Because life has no feelings, no conscience or consciousness and gives no fucks about shit. That doesn't mean disregarding morality as a whole is a wise or even balanced thing to do.

29 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The term "sexual strategy is amoral" has itself become a blanket term for "I'll do whatever I want, fuck morals!" On a relevant tangent: life itself is amoral, we developed morality because used correctly it is beneficial not just to the "idiot who believes in it" but "the greater good" or society as a whole. That includes you, the unapologetically selfish fuck. The basis of civilization is based on morality. "Life is amoral" and therefore the implication: morality is pointless is in and of itself, naive and disingenuous. If morality wasn't a beneficial evolutionary adaptation, you can believe natural selection would have weeded it out long ago. We condemn women and their hypergamy and their lack of morality or loyalty but then those same people from this sub expect to be able to lay waste to families, fuck married women with children and say "it's her choice because she let me fuck her, I'm just getting mine."

This double standard is not sustainable AND it is incredibly hypocritical. I can't respect men who bitch about shit in other people and then behave in the exact same way. If you don't have any personal system of morality or honour, you're not someone trustworthy. If you are not trustworthy, you are not worth doing business with, you will never be a patriarch who can build up, empower and sustain his own familial legacy in his own right. One should be Machiavellian only when necessary, to preserve one's interests. When you are non-defensively violent with your manipulations, you benefit nothing but your own sadistic lust. You in actual fact put yourself at risk too - but your ego blinds you to the possibility of those you have wronged and their allies seeking revenge upon you. Some people will wait years, until you forget, to strike and destroy you. You won't even remember why your enemy is an enemy, that is an effect of the idiocy in recklessness. Someone with a more balanced view of when it is apt to be immoral, and when it isn't in this war of attrition we call life - thrive and survive far better than those of you who are reckless with total and utter abandon.

This lack of responsibility taken, when our own standards of masculinity dictate we should take responsibility for all of our actions, is anti-masculine. It is ego-rationalising bullshit used to justify unbridled hedonism (within the context of this sub.) It's a defence for "don't judge my immorality, really it's amoral because existential nihilism and science!" There are so many sluts out there free and single that fucking taken women, especially those with pre-established families seems like needless destruction partaken in only to satisfy sadistic-narcissistic urges. I say this having fucked taken women myself. I don't claim to be any better than the men saying otherwise on this sub, but unlike them I am not fucking deluded about what I have done. I know it is immoral, I just don't care what you think about it enough to call it amoral. For the record: I've fucked women with boyfriends (knowingly and unknowingly) - but not any married women. I don't mind being the alpha fucks to a woman with a beta bucks, but not if they have a family. I don't want to wreck peoples families (it is senseless and the kids don't deserve the BS, I don't need a revenge attack when they grow up either) but I will fuck a whore in a less serious LTR (eg: they aren't married, no kids involved.) That's where my personal code of morality has taken me.

It is funny how the likes of anarchists and hedonists (I consider myself an anarchist in some ways, sometimes) think moralists are naive, yet it is they who are in the greater picture, naive. "X is amoral" is a common intellectual argument from the immoral to justify their immorality. Be under no illusions. I have done immoral things. I will do immoral things. I am capable of inflicting incredible pain both psychological and physical. But I don't abuse that power. I use it to create and nourish more than I do to destroy. Where destruction is pointless, why engage in it? Destruction is easy, the real challenge lays in creation. When I use destructive means for non-survival purposes, I will call it immoral. I will own my immorality but I will not gloat about it and shove it in the face of those inferior to me. I will not insult my enemies by telling them my actions are amorally justifiable because I am too big of a bitch to face my own demons. I can do immoral things, call them immoral and still respect myself in a mirror. I don't need to lie/hamster to myself or to others, that is a great part of my strength - the truth is always on my side, people cannot weaponise it against me because when they point something out about me and expect to have weakened me with shock, I am in no shock.

Anything is amorally justifiable, even theft and murder. You're not going to go around doing that now are you? No. Why? Because it will put you in prison. But you won't get locked up for fucking people's wives, so you think you can justify the same kind of immorality due to a lack of legal sanction. Just because it is possible to justify something amorally, it doesn't mean that in the instance you commit that act it isn't immoral. Things are situationally specific. Generally speaking, if the destruction you are causing another is not necessary for your own survival - you are engaging in an immoral act. In reference to the common thread on the sub at the moment: if you fuck someone else's wife and you know she is married, you are being immoral for the sake of your own libido/ego/sadism. Saying "sexual strategy is amoral" after the fact, doesn't change that. That's just a weak rationalisation for why said immorality is OK. Hamstering. If you think I'm being moralist, I'm not. I can justify this code of morality as amoral in much the way you can justify immorality as amoral. Like the OP title says, everything is amoral if you deconstruct it far enough.

I don't want people "bro-knighting" and trying to guilt trip men here for fucking women who were up for it, but were in a relationship. At the same time I don't want those same men doing a 180 the other way saying "fucking up peoples families is fine, it's the beta's fault for not keeping her happy" and then taking no personal responsibility for the part they play in enabling her bullshit. GET SOME PERSPECTIVE AND BALANCE ACCORDINGLY. Also quit bullshitting the rest of us, face up to your immorality.

Here's more irony for you: A guy who admits to his own immorality and writes about the dark triad is the source of this perspective. Haha, fucking hell. Life sure has a sense of humour.

Edits: typos.

My latest article looks at how feminism became a dominant ideological force in the west and the motives and agendas behind its cultural institutionalisation.

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/01/02/the-cult-of-feminism-its-fabrication-of-history/>

Opening Excerpt:

Contents:

- 1.) Introduction
- 2.) The Alienation of Male Perspective & The Manosphere As Surrogate
- 3.) The Square Root of Feminism is Marxism
- 4.) Family or Career: She Can't Have Both
- 5.) Creating A Culture of Female-Federal Co-Dependence by Replacing Men with Government
- 6.) In Closing
- 7.) Relevant Reading

Introduction:

Recently I was asked this question: "The red pill subreddit seems to be a space for men who have had negative experiences to vent and further their base interests. If you agree, why do you think that is?"

My answer to this question dominates the topic of this article and has been split into sub-sections. My answers and ideas are not all-encompassing, I leave many stones unturned. This is not a thesis. This piece is a general overview that will elucidate some key points pertaining to the contemporary adoption of the feminist political movement. In places, the article is tongue-in-cheek. With that aside, onward!

The Alienation of Male Perspective & The Manosphere As Surrogate:

The majority of modern boys and men have had resoundingly negative experiences with girls and women. Modern women are effectively raised not to view men as human beings with wants or needs. Modern women are devoid of positive femininity, instead the majority are cold, narcissistic and uncaring, viewing men as nothing more than a mere means to an end. The feminist ideology outlawed male spaces by using its influence to effectively demonise them as "vehicles for oppression." An absurd and rather sexist assumption came to be accepted: "if men are excluding women from their social activities it must be because they wish to discuss how they can better oppress them!" Men don't want to gather in the absence of women because, you know, women are notorious for their nagging. It's not that men like to talk without worrying people's women's feelings are going to get hurt. No, it's definitely not that. Women are of course infallible creatures who would never drive men away to congregate in respite. It's definitely that misogynistic oppression thing instead.

With the odd sports team, construction sites and the Freemasons being the last vestiges of male space in the physical world; communities such as The Red Pill Subreddit and Roosh V Forum have stepped in to fill the masculine void that feminist ideology has imposed for the best part of a half-century. By using the power of the internet and relative anonymity, men have managed to effectively recreate and regulate spaces where male-dominated perspectives are welcome. These are spaces where logic, reason and distinctly masculine self-interest dominate over the emotional sentiment and social politics typical of the feminine.

These communities are consciously self-imposed microcosms of male mentality. They communicate thoughts and strategies conducive to rational male self-interest. They cater for not only the male viewpoint of women and society, but likewise the male sexual imperative. These communities are a manifestation of man's yearning to exercise the freedom to think and converse without the threat of censure from the feminist iron fist. These communities are all too self-aware of how the "masculine way of seeing things" is bigotedly unwelcome in mainstream society. As such, these communities ruthlessly segregate and self-regulate themselves. Unproven outsiders cannot be trusted to understand their viewpoints in an age of all permeating radical feminism. Insular in its nature, the manosphere is steadfast in kicking out feminist sympathisers who attempt to disrupt discourse and peddle rhetorical hogwash. Bearing all these things in mind, I believe the lack of tangible real world male spaces is one of the underlying social issues that led to the creation of the manosphere. However, this is merely a symptom of a far bigger problem, the breakdown of the traditional family.

Single motherhood is detrimental to both sexes, although the absence of a father in childhood is something I believe to be particularly deleterious for young boys. The statistics available out there (increased risk of drug abuse, suicide, committing a violent crime et cetera) seem to back me up on this line of thought [1] [2]. Of course, we (the manosphere) attribute the blame for the normalisation of single motherhood on the destruction of family as championed by feminism. It was feminism and its "class-warfare system" as borrowed from Marxism that led to today's sociopolitical climate. To better understand the nature of this we need to deconstruct modern history with a red pill lens. By observing feminism's adoption by society and the wider implications it has since had, we may better understand the butt fuck mess we are in now.

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/01/02/the-cult-of-feminism-its-fabrication-of-history/>

57

UPVOTES

How you feel as a man, how you communicate and boundary setting. Useful for interacting with women in general, but especially LTR game.

7 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I responded to these questions over in /r/asktrp and thought the feedback I gave warranted the attention of the wider sub. The questions were asked by a gentleman who appears to be falling in love with a plate who isn't LTR-worthy. Despite the massive faux-pas/RP tenet violated there (and be sure to go give him shit for it on his AskTRP thread - it's in my comment history) I think the principles herein are extremely useful to and important for men to bear in mind when interacting with women. Particularly women who are important to them, eg: significant others, daughters, female family members etc. Obviously women you don't give a shit about you ignore. You don't have to feed into their rabid need for attention/validation/acknowledgement. This is for the women you do give a shit about, to some degree or another.

Do women ever deserve to know if we have reasonable emotional misgivings about their behavior?

No it's just male weakness to them. They will ignore it if they're not very invested or feed you some blue pill bullshit if they are heavily invested. There's no point in ever telling a woman your problems. Communication with women ends with boundaries, expectations and logistics. Your feelings should never come into the equation. Women don't care about your feelings, only how your feelings will affect their ability to rely on you. Sinking ships get abandoned. Solution: Exercise healthy detachment, work through your feelings with good male friends. If you don't have any, use /r/asktrp until you get some.

I get that there should be boundaries in place, but keeping them in check by constantly giving them tingles seems like a better way than direct approach to problems. Is this right?

Correct. Although now and again voicing expectations is necessary. If you don't, they will employ plausible deniability "oh what, little old me had no idea!" and you don't need that bullshit. IMO, mix and match. You will get a feel for when ramming her up against a wall, lifting up her skirt and fucking her is a good idea and likewise when talking in a firm voice and walking out the door if she doesn't adhere to what you're saying is necessary. Always walk out the door/abandon/dread - speak with actions. Don't waste time having pointless arguments with women. Soft-nexting (temporary abandonment) works wonders - arguing the hamster achieves nothing - it is inane and nihilistic, don't fall into this trap like so many men do. Your instinct is to try and logic her into conformity, but women are immune to logic. You must use Machiavellian strategies instead. Get her hamster to work for you and she will reconsider her attitude towards you due to how she feels. This is the only way to reach the outcome you desire/condition behaviour. Logic is futile. Don't bother. Save it for men.

Caveat: It's good to have logic so you can back up your point. In relationships an insecure woman is right in questioning the legitimacy of a claim you make - trust should not be blind (lest it be abused) and they need reassurance. Effectively she wants to see if you are being fair/righteous in your actions and that you are not abusing your power in the relationship. However if she is trying to throw you into a qualification loop "yeah, but how is that fair?" - "OK, I get that, but I think it's wrong so tell me how..." - "Yes I know what you're saying but I disagree - you should bla bla bla because bla bla bla so don't bla bla bla" - then you just get the fuck out. Get the fuck out - don't take the bait. She is doing that thing where she wears a veneer of reason, where she SOUNDS LOGICAL but the extent of her argument and her mental stubbornness is anything BUT logical.

Sometimes people use concern/rational appearances as a way to engage your logic when they are not worthy of being treated with logic because they are operating from a place of emotion. People use "rationalism" as a guise to fuck with you. You can only make rational arguments to a person who is not overwhelmed by emotion and who is interested in hearing a sound, balanced or thought-out opinion. This is not as common as perhaps one would think.

This likewise goes for men who look to discredit you out of emotion, too. Be aware of it. Only ever justify your position a maximum of once, "for the sake of the record" - do not be backed into a corner to continually justify yourself. The more you justify, the less powerful you seem. You get thrown in a "logic/justification loop" and effectively they try to hold you hostage there and beat you over the head with your own words "but you said X, now you're doing Y!!!"

Shameless plug, check out my blog: <http://illimitablemen.com/>

380

UPVOTES

Whores & Daughters

11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is my post from /u/Whisper's thread. I thought it deserved it's own topic, so here it is.

Imagine, for a moment, what it's like to be a woman. Imagine that every dumb shit move you ever made in the past, that thing you did when you were fourteen, that time you got drunk and had beer goggles, that thing with your brother's girlfriend in the cabin... imagine that all that shit stayed with you and permanently affected how attractive you were. Remember some of the stupid shit you did before your dark enlightenment? I'll bet some of you fuckers wrote love poetry.

Women bond to men through sex. Men bond through physical and emotional sacrifice. Women are used up by sex in a way men aren't. I've always inherently known this. I find it shocking that so many women aren't privy to this. To me it seems more likely that they are, but simply don't care and think they can lie their way to where they want to be. The thing is, as you say, they never truly win, something always feels missing to them and it's because they've fucked themselves up and their ability to pair bond by riding the carousel so hard. They're chasing a sense of closeness and connection that they can no longer achieve. They have become too desensitised to men, love and sex. They are in a way, soulless, damaged, self-condemned, incapable of the kind of love that fosters happy, lasting monogamy.

And, just like you, the modern woman has had no guidance in how not to fuck up her SMV. Just like you, she has had to figure that shit out for herself. Except, unlike you, she isn't able to erase her past or make it irrelevant. She has to live with it. You get a whole lot of tries, opportunities to learn from your mistakes and fix them. She gets the test, and then the lesson, and no do-overs.

This is why women lie to you about their partner count. Once they figure out that it matters, what the fuck else are they supposed to do?

This is why little girls need a patriarch. Because they could figure shit out for themselves, they are capable of learning, but by the time they've had a chance to, it's too late.

Little girls who grow up without a strong male authority ruling the family have five to six years of non-stop party, then a lifetime of wondering what went wrong. Little girls who do, they miss the early-twenties sex party, but they have more fulfilling lives.

All valid points, however some chicks have very strict parents and still end up being whores who go off the rails. Why? The culture. The father has to work, he can't be there every minute of every day keeping her in check. And if you parent too hard? They hate you and they rebel. They do it on purpose to piss you off and exercise what they feel is their right to freedom. Then you have TV, friends, youth subcultures.. they all push women towards slutdom. Nothing short of living in a rural area can isolate a girl from all the consumerist-sex symbol hedonistic club-culture bullshit that goes on in cities. Women are herdlike, they want to fit in, they want other women to accept them. If they wont wear a higher skirt, or a lower cut top, or more evocative make-up, it can damage their rep with other girls/they can be social outcasts. Dressing plain or conservative can reduce a girl's SMV, she'll get less attention from boys - she's competing with whores, she's insecure, so what is she going to do?

IMO, on top of a patriarch dominating the house, you need religion dominating the morals of a culture to control behaviour/sexuality. I say that as somebody who isn't even religious and thinks religion is fundamentally based upon a lie/flawed premise - but has significant utility in spite of that. Being a good dad isn't enough when all your daughters friends are whores. We're at a stage where most girls are slutty, very few are not. Any man worth his shit knows every girl will say she's not a slut, and that in turn you can trust next to fuck all that comes out of a woman's mouth pertaining to her own personal rep or sexual history. They are all corrupted and hyper-sexualised, be it by companies for advertising or by each other for acceptance. Short of telling your daughter she can't have any friends, how do you stop her peers out-influencing her over you? Her friends will always influence her more than you do - there's nothing you can do about that no matter how alpha you are. It sucks.

The culture is the problem. If you are a strong, assertive, conservative father that wants to raise your daughter right and give her a solid foundation in your life - realise you have a strong decadent culture that heavily embraces dysfunction working against the exact norms you wish to instil into your daughter. Whilst you want to create a woman of wit who knows the value of chastity, monogamy and commitment who is attractive beyond her body, the culture wants your daughter to prostitute herself whenever possible to get ahead - all in the name of women's lib. Don't raise girls in the west, they will most likely grow up to be whores. Whether they hide that well and deny it, or are flagrant and actively embrace the lifestyle is the only distinction - western women for the most part are complete and utter out-and-out whores. You get the odd chick here and there who isn't, the social outcasts of girl world who are still virgins at 25 and have no friends - but they're rare. And just because you don't want your daughter to be a slut, it doesn't mean you want her to be a social outcast. You want a girl who can be socially accepted without being a whore. Where is she gonna find all these other girls who aren't whores or encouraging her to be a whore who aren't total fucking losers?

Feminists/dykes and big business wants your daughter to be a vapid man-hating whore so they can sell her a bunch of shit she doesn't need and make her tap into her inherent fluid (bisexual) sexuality so she'll whore herself out to predatory lesbians when it is necessary for her to get ahead (or she is sufficiently coerced by their head-fucking peer pressuring pseudo-liberal bullshit.) Sounds fucked up, but meditate on that for a second - because it happens. How she gets money for buying shit she doesn't even need is irrelevant (works her own ass off, or leeches from a beta) the companies wanna get their money and see their profits go up. Capitalism/economics doesn't give a shit about society or moral value systems, it's psychopathic it cares about one thing: maximizing profit at the expense of anything and everything. That's it. If profits go up, to capitalism: it's worth it. (And no, I'm not implying socialism is superior, fuck that shit.) Women work less and control more household spending than men. Post-femininity and in the age of feminism, women have been reduced from mothers and wives and people of substantive psychological worth to basic bitches with no value outside their sex.

They act on impulse and do whatever they're told. They buy shit to give themselves the immediate emotional fix they need to "feel complete" temporarily patching up the previous and continuing damage they do to themselves with this fucked up lifestyle. If you believe in a concept of a soul, you'd say they have been conditioned in a way that means they only have part of their soul. They're not quite right or fully cognitive, they live in this strange hypnotic limbo of sluttiness, buying shit they don't need "SHOES!" and getting validated. Then once nobody wants their sex it falls apart and they get on the anti-depressants (<http://www.nber.org/papers/w14969>.) Feminism sold women a fat lie, and women need men more than ever now, but they're too dumb to realise it. Instead they hate men more than ever. And as a bonus: men are more feminine than ever, so the women are really fucked with no options and nowhere to go as an alternative to being a whore, whilst the guys are off acting like faggots playing video games, getting fat and avoiding the transition from boyhood to manhood.

What women really crave is an alpha who isn't corrupted by his own power. Instead they settle for bad boys because 1: her instinct draws her to them and most women cannot distinguish between "morally healthy alpha" and "dysfunctional dark triad alpha." Yes you can be DT and healthy (I know the DT's reading this just got butthurt, but save your concerns, that's a topic for another time.) 2: they're a type of alpha more available than the "righteous patriarch archetype." This is really the type of guy an RPW wants fathering her kids/looking after her. He can be bad/tap into his inner animal, but not abusively towards her. He can punish her enough to show he isn't gonna take her shit, but he isn't gonna tear her soul apart because he's got major beef with women and humanity in general. Most "alphas" nowadays are out-and-out cunts who don't give a shit about the women they fuck. They, like the women do to themselves, fully objectify them as just a series of holes to be fucked. And who can blame these guys, really? I'm not saying it's "right" - but I understand it. Most of these women are devoid of personality, so why would you treat them like people? They are basic bitches. The whole fucking thing is fucked.

Obviously the women aren't conscious of a lot of this, they just act it all out ignorantly and keep the cycle going. Whilst society falls into the gutter in the process, because we need decent women but just like "where have all the good men gone?!" we can likewise ask "where have all the interesting non-slutty women gone?!?!". Women who give a shit about morals and principles and actually are disciplined enough not to fuck that hot guy on a spur of the moment and potentially jeopardise their entire family. Proper women of quality who despite their flaws, do their fucking best to keep them in check and don't just run feral because "YAY FREEDOM!" Respectable women who don't dress like prostitutes. Sure an ample supply of sluts sounds great to the mind in your dick, but it doesn't help civilization prosper, it won't make a good mother for your kids one day. It's not sustainable. In decadence women don't give a fuck about family until the attention and high-value cock runs out, it's all about orgasms and getting paid. Then they wonder why there's no happy ever after, completely oblivious that past behaviour has future consequences - especially when it comes to pair bonding.

If you like my writings/opinions, check out my blog to show your support. Keep lifting, eating clean and all that good shit. Now let's discuss this shit.

Narcissism: The Nuance Between Ego & Confidence

22 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So I have essentially what is probably one of the most overdue pieces of writing to still not be released in the manosphere. My dark triad piece on narcissism. Now I'm still not releasing that shit because I've got a lot on, HOWEVER I do want to share some of my insights surrounding narcissism and stimulate some discussion. What's written here is profound enough to probably end up making the final piece in some form or another when it finally does see the light of day.

Ego and confidence aren't really the same thing. Ego is a manifestation of confidence, it is the "way of behaving" that is oft symptomatic of confidence. They look similar, but there is nuance. At a glance, you can't tell the difference between the two but internally the differences are huge. That's why you can't see 'em, because the distinction cannot be made without psychological knowledge of a person. Only enough continued exposure to a person along with some analytical ability is going to allow you to deduce whether they are truly confident, or just faking it all with baseless ego.

You see a lot of ego is not coming from confidence, it's actually fake, and rather be the symptom of confidence (as we assume ego always is) it's actually being fabricated by said person as a way to "become confident." It's put out there to impress/intimidate others in order to help the person exuding the ego build confidence. That's the "fake it till you make it" mantra in action. Whilst confidence on the other hand is raw, it is an unwavering sense of self-belief, determination and conviction that you are good at X or worthy of Y. Confidence allows for humility, confidence allows one to be comfortable with one's self in the absence of external validation. Ego gets you noticed, but it can be unattractive, especially if you overdo it. In fact, too much ego turns people off to you. I see semi-successful people make this mistake all the time. Ego can seem "try hard." It can make people think "if you're that great, why do you need to keep telling everybody, it should be immediately obvious if it's true." That's where the humility of legitimate confidence is useful.

Ego and confidence are kind of like a chicken and the egg thing. Are you egotistical because you made it and believe you're the shit, or do you delude yourself you're the shit so you can seem egotistical and therefore people perceive you as confident? It's fake it till you make it vs. I made it but I'm drunk on my own power and I don't make an effort to exercise humility.

The problem with "fake it till you make it" is you become dependent on other people "noticing your fabrication and validating you for it" to actually believe in yourself. So you draw your strength from others, rather than yourself. It's a kind of dysfunctional narcissism. It's vain and it's needy. Rather than actually believe you are inherently superior, you only temporarily believe you are superior as long as others are feeding into the delusion you present to the world. I believe a lot of people are doing this shit, instead of self-investing and becoming so powerful that they feel/become superior, they instead try to hustle everyone around them with superficial charm and bullshit persona. Then when people get impressed "by their swag" or whatever you wanna call that BS, they validate the person. This shit is ridiculously common with millennials, but then millennial parents were shit and really kicked off generation feminism, so it makes sense.

I notice this a lot. Especially with women. They're egotistical as fuck (entitled/act self-important) but there's low self-esteem bubbling just beneath that. It seems counter-intuitive as fuck, but there is a logic. That kind of baseless ego is a band aid for someone who feels like they ain't worth shit. You can't be a fucking loser and honestly respect yourself. You won't think you're the shit if you don't do things that add value to your life. Most women are losers, they be faking their ego for appearance's sake. They just put on a show that "they're the shit." They delude themselves just enough to convince others "that they're cool" and then they feed off that praise and validation.

That validation slowly helps them rebuild their "actual self-esteem." By pretending to have high self-esteem and making the world think they're high status, they get the praise/recognition such a person gets (when they don't feel they deserve it BUT WANT TO feel it) and that in turns allows them to harvest the compliments/recognition from those around them to HEAL their actual self-esteem/damaged inside. It's a deceptive healing process, AND IT CAN BE HELPFUL. But it leads to a dependence on external validation, as in, you become incapable of validating yourself, you always need new people to prop up your narcissistic supply. It's the opposite of outcome independence/abundance mentality. I believe that's why social media is as prevalent and popular as it is today. Particularly with women who are herd based as it is, but as disconnected as the masses of men are becoming from society, I see them emulating this too.

I guess when your family is fucked up instead of getting your validation from them, you'll look to strangers. Narcissism is not the same thing as confidence, although narcissists can be confident OR egotistical, it depends on the narc in question. Most narcs are needy, there are a few who actually have a superiority complex that is based on the internal rather than dependent on external approval.

Anyway I have more nuance to flesh out and expound upon with these thoughts. This block of text here is by no means "complete" or "100% correct" so feel free to share your thoughts, undermine some shit, give another angle or whatever. I likewise have a few things to reconcile (because the topic area is intricate, quite deep, and there are numerous possibilities) but alas it should give you some food for thought. In fact the head fuck with narcissism is it can manifest in many different ways and they can seem quite counterintuitive/paradoxical. How can someone so damaged/internally wrecked seem so externally strong is a prevailing theme when exploring this topic.

31

UPVOTES

Red pill briefly mentioned in a MSM piece on corporate psychopathy, this time for being a "colony of dark triad devotees." Interesting characterisation, but actually a semi-decent article too.

27 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://qz.com/322430/how-to-tell-if-your-coworker-is-an-everyday-sadist/>

There's some brilliant pop-culture examples of DT characters in there. Thought Littlefinger from Games of Thrones was a really good example of a high Machiavellian/borderline psychopath combination. Obviously it won't tell you anything you don't already know about the triad if you've read my stuff on it, but it's littered with recognisable pop-culture examples of different DT traits (Walter White, Don Draper, Jordan Belfort, Frank Underwood etc.) so it's worth looking at for that alone. You can tell the writer has researched the topic she's talking about and a gentle nod towards TRP is always welcomed ;)

Not sure what the fixation/deal is with the inclusion of sadism though, it's not particularly useful for anything corporate/romantic (unless you're thinking BDSM) and seems to be more of a counter-productive psychological trait than one that amplifies an individual's effectiveness.

Give it a read and share your thoughts.

Also Gwynn, if you lurk here and are reading this, seeing as we're a board with a heavy focus on sexual strategy, this is a relevant perspective in which to likewise analyse the DT:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dark_triad#As_mating_strategy

206

UPVOTES

"Men's Rights Activists have missed the point of feminism " - Intellectually disingenuous article from The Telegraph writes a smear piece aimed at discrediting TRP and AVFM.

2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Here's the bullshit article from the MSM, you'll get some laughs reading this trite:

<https://archive.today/F7GkH>

Take a look at the Red Pill subreddit or the forums on avoiceformen.com as examples. You'll encounter high-horse self-righteousness over the vanishingly small number of false rape allegations made by women against men, set to a backdrop of nervy whining by men who claim they are unable to approach women for fear of being accused.

No Mr. Lowry. Pretty sure we tell whiners to STFU, go lift, read the 48, monk mode, mass-approach/read bang or do anything BUT WHINE. But okay.

I recommend you read the article first (although the intense banality may piss you off) in order to give my comment response its due context.

Here's my counter-response in plain-text (in case they delete it:)

Contemporary feminism is not about civil rights, humanism, or egalitarianism. It is about female supremacy and empowerment at the expense of male freedom. Maximum rights and liberty for women with minimal obligations, and minimal rights and liberty for men with maximal obligations. Men, from a legal stand point, are effectively second class citizens in the family court. The establishment is pro-feminist, which is in itself, emphatically prejudice against the rights of men. So the article writer's point about "most judges being male and therefore, sympathetic of men" just doesn't wash. It's a weak assertion and there are statistics to prove otherwise, such as outlandish divorce settlements and indiscriminate hugely inequitable custody arrangements. There are far too many radical elements within feminism that have come to permeate it's mainstream mechanism of debate, persuasion and exemplification.

Many parts of feminism have been demonstrably proved to be farcical and fictional rather than factual. EG: the pay gap (debunked - women work less hours so get paid less, they don't get paid less per hour THAT'S ILLEGAL BY LAW so could the bigoted writer of this article please refer to the "Equal Pay Act 1970.") Correlation does imply causation. That is to say, just because women earn less, it does not mean men are the cause of that. It simply means men make more money because they do more work or work in more lucrative fields, and there is nothing wrong with that. Those men deserve to be rewarded for their work. These men pay their taxes, much of those taxes going on social benefits which women benefit from (effectively siphoning money from the success of men they don't know) so really this whole line of reasoning is a joke.

Likewise, still on the topic of "the pay gap" women graduate in majors/fields that pay less on average such as psychology and social care rather than aeronautical engineering or computer science. The pay gaps are explained by women's lack of interest/capacity in higher paying/more intellectually demanding academic fields, as well as less time spent in the workplace. It is not some invisible discrimination, it is simple logic. If you are less apt to study math based subjects and instead study social-subjects that are easier and less intellectually demanding, or you work less hours, then you're going to get paid less. It's called meritocracy and market forces. The market needs more computer programmers and engineers than it needs psychologists or writers so it pays them better. It's absolutely nothing to do with glass ceilings and other feminist hogwash, all that "keep the women out!" nonsense was quashed A LONG TIME AGO. It's time to stop reasserting the same old out-of-date tropes.

Furthermore, women expect men to earn more than them anyway, and despite feminism, look down upon men who don't. So for men to be socially and sexually successful they need to be earning more money than women, most women are stressed out by being breadwinners and do not respect men who do not earn as much as they do. It's a lot of pressure for them, and men like to provide, so demonising these instincts and proclivities is counter-intuitive to the well-oiled functioning of the family unit (feminism is pro-career, anti-family anyway, so no surprise there!)

Then there is the "rape culture" bullshit, where women make up rape claims because they had sex with people and regretted it the next day due to how it may affect their social standing/reputation. Rolling stones and the UVA case in America is a great example of what purely fictional trite and hogwash the hysterics of feminist "rape culture" are, not to mention an extremely broad definition for what constitutes rape. EG: in some studies, if a man made a woman feel uncomfortable because he wasn't a good kisser and she felt awkward afterwards, the feminist nutjobs would consider it a form of sexual assault. Regret sex has been redefined as rape etc. If two drunk people can't consent because they're too inebriated to consent, the drunk woman is not considered a rapist by the feminists, but the drunk man is.

I could go on, but I'm sure any rational man who bothers to do his research gets my point by now. Feminism is a joke, and anti-feminism is a rational response to a faith-based ideology that's gotten out of control in how it dictates to people how to live their lives whilst unfairly marginalising and blaming men for problems they do not cause, further encouraging more hatred, segregation and bigotry in society, particularly among women.

To the gentleman who wrote this article, I'm a prominent voice on the red pill website you mentioned (I won't put the url into this comment lest it be used as an excuse to censor me, so just google it.) Most young men "leading the charge against feminism" are sick to death and suffering all kinds of mental issues/psychological setbacks because they were raised without fathers. They desperately seek masculine advice/role models and guidance to help them become the strong powerful men their ill-equipped single mothers could not help them become. Women lack the experience and frame of reference for educating a boy on how to be manly from a masculine perspective, and these boys/young men want to be comfortable within their masculinity without demonisation. To be put first without someone else saying "but what about the women?!" Enough with the women, the women have had more than enough attention from government, having dominated social policy, social engineering efforts and society's very cultural fabric for the past half a century.

My question to you Mr. Lowry is "what about the men?" and why is it so acceptable to simply dismiss their concerns as nothing other than idiotic trite? What is the real agenda for writing such intellectually disingenuous banality? Whenever today's young men pick up a paper or watch telly, they are depicted as buffoons or berated by delusional gender-ideologues such as yourself. Shame on you Mr. Lowry, shame on you indeed.

FYI: the legislation I reference is a UK statute, I assume the US has a similar statute within it's legal system.

240

UPVOTES

Machiavellian Thinking vs. Conventional Logic.

8 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Link:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/02/08/machiavellian-thinking-vs-conventional-logic/>

Synopsis:

Be less logical, start being more tactical. Don't justify yourself. Learn the difference between male and female Machiavellianism. Understand why intensely logical men have a harder time socialising and what they need to do to overcome that.

Excerpt:

Contents:

- 1.) Justification is a Machiavellian Fallacy
- 2.) Machiavellian Gender Differences
- 3.) The Logician's Issue
- 4.) Closing Remarks
- 5.) Relevant Reading

Justification is for the weak. In the game of power nobody respects he who justifies himself. Within a social fabric where the lowest common denominator prevails; where feelings triumph over logic, and likewise, grandiosity over humility, honesty is but a virtue bastardised. You see, it is the transparency of justification that makes it powerless. Regardless, many an intellectual man's instinctual adherence to logical authoritarianism renders him incapable of determining this. Therefore, when he is tested, questioned, scrutinised and cross-examined his immediate response is to justify himself to his haranguing attacker. Woe befalls him.

Little does he know his challenger's agenda is malicious, and their enquiry, insincere. Such a man haphazardly scrambles to explain himself by demonstrating his thought process. It is in this moment the Machiavellian knows they have won. With widening smile, such a rational yet foolish man can be gamed, intimidated, humiliated and berated. He will be kept on the defence with his own words, for it is they which will be weaponised against him. The more he speaks, the deeper his grave. As Queen Gertrude said in Shakespeare's Hamlet "The lady doth protest too much, methinks." Likewise, he who opts to prove, demonstrate and qualify himself to another with merely and solely the spoken word is perceived as dishonest, pathetic. The justification is not seen as transparent or helpful, but rather as persuasive, deceptive, false - even when it isn't.

With both the playful Machiavellian and the dimwit a sentiment is shared: the more one protests, the more their guilt is assumed. It is thought if one were not guilty then they would feel no need to justify their position. Why? Well of course because their position would "be obvious." Oh the subjective horror! To the idiot and the Machiavellian alike truth is self-evident; it is organic and therefore shows in one's actions. The need to have to say anything about an aspect of one's self, robs it of its naturalness and therefore to the devout Machiavellian, it's charismatic credibility.

Honesty destroys mystery, and with it, the attraction of curiosity. The Machiavellian hates the duplicitous more than most, and yet, respectfully appreciates only the cunning. As such, Machiavellians tend to be in a constant flux of love-hate with their peers. When you are understood, you are unattractive. When you try to help people understand you, they lose respect for you. You're making it too easy. People only value what they work for, be it wages or relationships. Of course, the rational man is often foolish in such social matters.

Additional:

I have a poll on the sidebar of my site trying to gauge the level of interest for a potential future book release. I haven't committed to a book yet, but I'm not exactly out of ideas (I have hundreds upon hundreds of drafts/notes of unreleased material.) So please register your interest I'd appreciate it.

Likewise, I have things I like to write about (predominantly, the dark triad - it's fascinating) but I want to see what's on people's minds at the moment. I have a few monk-mode related articles in rough form/incomplete, but when I get questions such as "what is branch swinging" and "explain AWALT" I start to think I'm going to have to backtrack to TRP 101 just to bring the new guys up to date (which pisses off the guys who've read TRP for years and just want me to focus on religiously writing dark triad articles.)

If you spot any typos, let me know. I've proofread and spell-checked, but shit always manages to slip through.

398

UPVOTES

To all the weak pathetic fucks who "need to see the best in women"

17 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Animals are playful, it doesn't make them sweet, noble or caring. It means they like fun. Everyone likes fun. Don't mistake feminine playfulness for moral virtue. Many men find a young playful good looking woman intoxicating and so they ignore obvious deal-breaking flaws to indulge their own emotive fantasies. Like Greene said in Art of Seduction, a lot of men want to just give into their fantasies and "let go" with a woman. Good looking playful women seem to elicit that desire, much to said man's demise. Men are the "true" romantics. A woman knows how to say all the right things when you're on the fence about her. They say all this ego-flattering shit, it's girl game. See women need no game to get laid, and they have none. Women are boring. But when they decide they want a relationship with you? All of a sudden the girl game comes out. The following is the equivalent of chat-up lines, shit you will hear women say to convince you into commitment:

"Just let me prove to you I'm not like the other women."

"No matter how hard I try I can't stop thinking about you, you're the only thing I want in this world, I've never felt like this before."

poetic corny English major bitches: "You are the light in my darkness." (yes some bitches do actually talk like this.)

"You complete me, do I complete you?"

It makes you think she's hopeless, submissive, that you're the man. That she has this big pedestal built up to worship you on, but really, the whole thing is a con. If that same bitch wouldn't walk through fire for you she can choke on her own fucking words. Anybody can say that shit and not mean it. If you mean it, prove it. Some women come on intense real quick when they like you and want you to stick around, the same chick that bellows out a fucking sonnet and starts writing you essays in the beginning is the same kind of chick who will dump your ass over nothing. They are volatile, like rocket fuel.

The thing about all this "sweetness" and female confession of "love" is it all plays to your ego. If none of it is a lie, it's true for about the 5 seconds she writes it. This is the same chick who would drop you in a heartbeat if a man better off than you showed interest and your pimp-hand wasn't made out of titanium (as in, you have some fucking A grade game or are just a dark motherfucker.)

It's why break-ups hurt and tend to fuck over average men more than they do average women. It's also why women tend to do the dumping. The girl who said all that shit to make you feel like "I want to bond with her deeply" yesterday will dump you the next week, like a fucking used up doormat she's walked all over you, and whilst you're nursing the break-up trying to work out wtf happened, how it happened and googling your way over to theredpill, she's taking selfies so betas blow up her ego on social nets and is off out to get drunk so she can find her Chad ThunderCock for the night. She'll tell him all the same shit she told you if he sticks around for a couple of days or weeks. Women fall out of love even quicker than they fall in it. Fucked up thing is she probably believes it whilst she's saying it too, shit she may even momentarily mean it, but it doesn't mean shit in the long run.

My point is this: don't give into your fantasy "for love" it's a strong one, and if you really want to indulge that fantasy, it will cost you - BIG.

Secondly: don't assign too much value to what women say, think, or what they say they think. Their words are fickle, close to absolutely worthless. Don't make judgements based on their words, trust your logic and intuition. If you're in an LTR, pretend to give a fuck about what she thinks, then do what you have to do anyway. 99.9% of the time her words are useless, always factoring in her opinion for the .1% of the time it may be useful or correct is a waste of a mental heuristic. Women, for the sake of their own egos want to feel important and included and that "you care" - so get good at seeming like she had some sort of input, when really all you did was listen to pure fluff for 5 minutes whilst doing what you were going to do anyway.

I know a lot of you weak ass pathetic "I can't go on knowing what I know about women" bitch boys want to see the best in women. But you romantic hapless little fucks need to keep swallowing your red pills and stop longing for love. Life isn't about love, it's about being a winner. Prioritising love is for losers. Men who are winners get loved because they are powerful, not because they sought it out and "gave into the fantasies aroused by a woman's manipulative devices." You have to stay in control of yourself when with a woman, don't let her take control of how you feel and see the world.

Being the fool because you're too weak and too scared not to be is the exact thing that breeds the unbrotherly sentiment in TRP: "this guy knew the score but rejected the truth, so fuck him." And at the end of the day, as much as I like to help guys get their ship in order, I won't waste time on fools - neither will most other men worth a fuck.

If you reject reality, those of us aligned with reality will not be here for you when you fuck your own life up and come crying to us. Part of being a man is accepting women are full of shit and treating them accordingly. Take that "most responsible teenager in the house" thing quite literally. She will never be your equal no matter how badly you want her to be. She will never be bound to her word. Her desires and opinions will always change more than your momentary appetite. You are the rock, the consistency, the order in her chaos - so don't let your fantasies and ideas of love allow you to be overwhelmed by her tempest of bullshit.

Shameless plug, check out my website: <http://illimitablemen.com/>

472

UPVOTES

How Men Love / Male Commitment

22 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've said this many times, and it always pisses off snowflakes and people who haven't really swallowed the red pill:

Man's love is sacrificial, women's is opportunistic. I think I've even alluded to this in the red pill constitution. Shit, I think Rollo also said something along these lines, although I came to this conclusion before reading his content. It is because our love is sacrificial, that we are romantic. It is because we can be better that all men are expected to be better although sadly, not all men will make it. (EDIT: Yep, it's points 11 and 12 in the constitution.)

Men are the romantic ones because they get so sacrificially invested in women, they commit to a point where the blinders come on and they stop seeing women for who they truly are, but rather what they wish them to be. This is how men are in love, irrational. They see them as what they want them to be because they don't want to think all their sacrifice is in vain. They have hope. They want to believe that women "are worth it." This is the power of your commitment gentlemen. It really is gold dust. Women may act like spoilt brats entitled to your love, but it's only because when you love - YOU TRULY LOVE. You provide tangible value both physically and spiritually - that is why your commitment is so powerful, that's what gives it worth, and sadly most men are entirely fucking unaware of how precious their commitment is, in fact society has got them thinking THEY'RE THE LUCKY ONES FOR GETTING THE GIRL!) It really is all fucking ass backwards.

I think even the Ancient Greeks said man's love has more depth than woman's, that men love more deeply. This is why whenever someone tells me "I'm lucky to have her" I say with the biggest shit-eating grin, right from the core: "No, you are mistaken - she is lucky to have me." It's always fun to gauge reactions in these scenarios - someone with a "red pill mentality" will understand, a blue piller will just think you're being cocky, they won't perceive the underlying thought behind that.

Your love for her transcends anything she is even capable of feeling for you. She likes to think her love for you is special and that nothing transcends that, but that's typical feminine ego. She values the intensity of her own emotions over objective reality. She is compelled to believe that because she feels strongly that her love is more precious/valuable than yours, but we don't measure love in how strongly it consumes you, but with HOW YOU BEHAVE because of what you feel. Objectively, the idea her love is more valuable than yours is patently false. All this bullshit about "owning the keys to her heart" is all egotistical feminine bullshit. Her heart isn't worth shit next to yours. Yes, as a man, her being in love with you is incredibly precious to you, but that's because you value the honeymoon phase, you value her portrayal of "youthful feminine innocence" when she is in love with you. But it is you that made all that possible, if you weren't the fucking shit, she would treat you like shit - that's how conditional their love is.

Objectively it is men that do more for women than vice versa, and they are expected to do so - and this is why these double standards seem so common in spite of all the feminist lunacy going on. Yes, there's a lot of doublethink going on, men are evil members of the patriarchy but they're also making all the sacrifices at the same time. It's so obvious, that when you put these contradictions next to each other you'd be hard-pressed to see how feminism even gained any serious legitimacy, but alas, that's what happens when cult ideologies such as third wave feminism take over all of society's core institutions. They preach until people know no better. There's an actual word for that. It's called inculcation.

This is also why the hierarchy of love is Men > Women > Children, women just can't love us in the way that we love them. This is why part of the mind fuck of the red pill for many men is that she gets to seek out daddy in a man - and has a shot at getting that, but if you seek out mummy in a girl - you're going to be sorely disappointed. The game isn't fixed like that, nature gave women the better deal on that front, she gets to have the man of her dreams, but the girl of your dreams is a unicorn - SHE DOESN'T EXIST. This all assumes of course said woman can obtain your commitment. Women without male commitment ARE DESPERATE to secure it from a man of value. The women who get that commitment are "the lucky ones," the rest become cat ladies. But at least women have a chance at getting "their knight in shining armour" aka, the high value man who commits and "loves them for them."

For men, there is no unicorn, you are always the final port of call, the love and the strength flowing downward from you throughout the family: to woman and child - good male friends are your only real refuge: not a woman (and don't make that mistake, it's a classic BP mistake to think you can entrust your insecurities/fears/secrets to your woman, you can't, and no matter how much she begs for you to open up, it's the most insidious of subconscious shit tests they pull, DO NOT DO IT IF YOU VALUE THE FUTURE OF THE RELATIONSHIP.) Consciously she wants to know, thinking it'll bring you closer. However unbeknownst to her, her lizard brain will make her think you're weak and she'll think less of you. She may even feel bad for thinking less of you, but she will and you can't undo that - so don't even bother. Women are so fucking flawed they don't even realise how flawed they are, that's why you have to listen to other men when it comes to dealing with women, and not the crap that women come out with.

You don't love a woman "based on what she can do for you" you love her because you've poured yourself, your essence, your aspirations, your time - into her. Women never love us like that, because they don't do that. We give and they take. At best, they support us enough to allow them to continue taking from us, but mark my words: relationships are a far better deal for women than they are for men, that's why they're so obsessed with them. They use us for our strength, they lean on us, they take our resources - and if they deplete us to a point of weakness: they discard us. You're no longer "man enough." Women are the biggest shit test nature ever threw at man, most men would find it easier to get to the moon than properly understand and manage a woman. Thank goodness for the collective brain power of men everywhere and with it: TRP.

Check out my blog: <http://illimitablemen.com/archives/>

For many, this post would be good enough to be blog material. For me, it isn't. I don't update much because I'm a perfectionist bastard (it could probably be considered obsessive compulsive.) Just a heads up to my fans - I'm not going anywhere.

Equality is not obtainable practicably. It's like socialism, looks great on paper, fails in practice.

Any relationship between a man and woman where it is agreed upon "you are both equal" means the woman is in control. Any sincere agreement that she is in control, is just that. Any sincere agreement that the man is in control, is just that. So you see, if a man is not in control, he is being controlled. Often, these things aren't explicitly agreed upon, but are implicitly recognised, one leads, the other follows. There is no idealistic mid-way point where you get to be best friends and consider each other "true equals." That is what is peddled, that is what is dreamt, but very few get anywhere close to such a thing, and on a grand societal scale it is highly inapplicable. In every interaction there is a dominant and a submissive. Time and time again we hear about men who started out dominant, attracting the woman, she wore him down, making him submissive, only for her to dump him to go and seek out a man who still retains his dominance. Alas, women themselves are attracted to dominance, although openly declare a love of nice guys and a desire to "be treated equal to men," contradictory lunacy.

Men need to keep their women in place. When you "make them equal" they decide they want control over not just family, but the power structures which society is built upon, and thus they go about ruining society by putting themselves before the family, and by voting for legislation based on emotion rather than fact (fear - counter-terrorism laws, greed - welfare state.)

In this way, society breaks down just to satisfy woman's emotions and cravings. Women are anti-civilization by merit of their chaotic nature. Civilization is a patriarchal construct. This is why I don't believe in equality or feminism. I don't like the idea that women are held down in society, or have less freedoms - but they have shown themselves incapable of supporting the traditional family without strict rules and consequences in place for not being good wives and mothers. A woman's fear keeps her healthy, when she thinks she can do whatever the fuck she wants, she becomes a monster. Women really are like children in the sense that, without constant discipline, they become unruly, dissatisfied, dysfunctional even. They need boundaries, but they crave power. Even within themselves, there is a conflict. A conflict between the lust for power and the urge to be looked after, to be subdued by her subjective definition of a worthy man. Alas, women must be disciplined to a degree, and not allowed to roam free with the air in their hair, otherwise they are simply too chaotic and self-destructive. In essence, women are man's responsibility, he must caretaker her for her own good, to the expenditure of his own mental energy, for if he does not, she will be dysfunctional.

Of course we're at a point where women's attitudes have become so toxic that many men no longer wish to look after women, but rather exploit the rampant dysfunctionality for quick and easy sex. In TRP some men are up to managing a woman, some aren't but want to be, others just stopped giving a fuck about women completely and are entirely content to do nothing about civilizational decline; they will let women ruin themselves as society goes down with it. Even though, after all, we need our women to be feminine and functional, not battle axe power-mad harpies addicted to cock who despise men and are incapable of loyalty. We don't need these women, the same women who have multiple divorces under their belt and must use cats, wine and anti-depressants to keep their hollow souls somewhat functioning.

Some idiots will argue single mother families are fine and dandy, but the statistics suggest otherwise, with no father and a single mother kids have a higher chance of mental illness, substance abuse, not finishing high school, poverty, incarceration etc. Obviously statistics don't record another factor pertaining to boys: boys without fathers have a higher chance of not being masculine.

Women aren't meant to lead, they're not meant to be in control of anything, they're nurturers not leaders. They do a poor job of handling responsibility, and yet none of these observed constants inhibits the female lust for power, be it because feminism imbues her with this lust for power, or because she sees an opportunity for power and it is human nature to crave such things. I believe for women, it is something of a mixture of both factors. Indeed, a "good woman" in a third world country finds the powerlessness that made her good is gone when she reaches the west. The state as well as the female hivemind in the west will "empower" her to be a cunt, to asset strip you, screw you for child support and be a whore. As such, her carnal nature will take over and she will prove to you that given the chance, given enough power to exploit, almost all women are the same, and the woman that you think "is different" probably isn't. Any modicum of decency or logic in most women is vastly obliterated by emotional and financial incentive that corruption offers her. Keep the third world women in the third world, lest you spoil them.

Subscribe to my blog if you like my posts, thanks!

469

UPVOTES

Why most of today's women aren't worthy of your commitment.

10 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you're Machiavellian and understand women you will have no problem managing female bullshit. The real problem I think is most guys find the cherry just isn't sweet enough. That's to say, although YOU COULD manage her YOU'RE JUST NOT SUFFICIENTLY INCENTIVISED TO DO SO. Most women aren't worth the extra effort, simply enough. They take more than they give. For access to a vagina you have to:

- Have her put all her worries and stress on you
- Listen to her boring, empty, vapid social observations
- Deal with her whining/being menstrual/insecure
- Deal with her crazy whenever it rears its head

And you have to deal with all that like a champ, stoically, because if you lose frame too much the relationship is fucked and she doesn't even want you anymore even though she's, to be quite blunt: an insufferable cunt. You pay so much in spirit and mental energy being in a relationship with a woman. Pussy can be had cheaper. If women have shit personalities, why do you want relationships with them? Most women have absolutely no personality that makes them worth commitment. What women don't seem to understand, flying off auto-pilot on their looks in youth, is that a hot tight body only attracts men, it doesn't keep them around. She will lose her beauty. You actually need to be mildly interesting and/or good-natured to be relationship material. So what do we do? We fuck and chuck.

Don't get me wrong, I think a lot of men would like a family - but it has to be with the right woman. Not a dim, boring, narcissistic empty shell of a human-being. Personally I rather never reproduce than put my children through the pain of being raised by a stupid, horrible, whiny self-entitled woman. I don't even care if she's good to the kids, if she's a cunt to me the kids will see that and it will affect them detrimentally. That's not how I imagine raising a family, you either DO IT RIGHT or you don't bother doing it at all.

LTRs should be mother material - most women nowadays aren't mothers because they deserve to be, but simply because they stopped taking their birth control. Too many whores are fucking dragging kids up nowadays, not raising them right - and that's why we have all the problems we do in society. Millennials are a mess because of divorce and single mothers. I don't want to put my kids through that bullshit. If she puts herself above family, she's not a woman I ever see as anything other than a hole to be used for my momentary leisure.

Not only is the reward lower, but the effort necessary is higher. So you're playing on a higher difficulty for a lower prize.

- You have to be vigilant, you can't let your guard down or give into your kindness, because she will exploit it and see you as less for "showing weakness."
- You have less sexual options than if you were single, this one woman is controlling your sexual preferences, and then she'll play games where she doesn't put out to control you. Basically, bitches weaponise your libido against you and then force you to listen to their feelings if you can't sufficiently dread/headfuck them. But if you stray to get your release then it's not her fault, it's yours, you're the evil one.
- She knows you better so she's better at head fucking you. She'll press all your buttons, say shit plates wouldn't know. Say some shit about your mother, say some shit you told her about your childhood. Whatever. Basically any fucking thing you think is sacred she's going to use against you to "test you" and also because bitches are just plain crazy and hormonal and are going to lash out at some point. She's meant to be a partner but you can't even properly open up to her without her abusing that shit. And it's not a matter of IF, it's a matter of WHEN.

- Likewise as she knows you better she's more immune to your techniques/strategies/mannerisms. She will become immune to different gambits/coping mechanisms you use like a fucking disease growing resistant to antibiotics. So you need to change your shit up or it'll all fall apart.
- You have to keep reinventing yourself and being inconsistent, or she gets bored and looks elsewhere for cock on the side. Society/her family will support her in this and she'll just rationalise you're a cunt.
- You don't really get a break. You don't get to let your guard down. Because if you do she freaks out and fucks off. Momentary vulnerability can only be superficial/aesthetic in nature. If you're LEGITIMATELY VULNERABLE she will dry up and abandon you.

So the work you put in IS IMMEASURABLE and the reward is negligible. It's a terrible investment.

When women make relationship demands, they're just being selfish. Women have nothing but benefit to gain from a relationship with a man. Associating with a man improves their life. Men lose so much spiritually from being in a relationship with the modern day woman that these women just aren't worth it. When women started saying they don't have to give a man they're committed to sex whenever he wants, but the man still has to put up with all their shit - they instantly became unworthy. Some guys could soldier on through women with shitty personalities if the sex was always there, they could overlook it - but with a lot of these bitches now not even that's a given. There's so much hard work, energy and bullshit involved in being in a relationship - and the reward just isn't there. What's it all for? Pussy? You can get that single. Love? Most these chicks aren't loveable. They aren't what we want psychologically. Thanks feminism.

Men are beings of rational self-interest. They respond well to incentives. If women were worth it, men would commit to them. They're not, so we don't. Women are pretty fucking shitty for anything other than momentary fun. Relationship-worthy women are probably .1% of the entire population because society is sick and women put career/individuality above family. I don't find career women attractive. I find family-orientated women attractive. When women stopped making an effort to be loveable to men, the only thing keeping men in love with women was their delusions. Once those delusions are stripped away, there is fuck all left. Most women aren't people you actually want as friends or people you have significant mental input with. They're just holes for fucking, or you ignore 'em. Sad it's come to that, but it is what it is.

In light of this I don't LTR up girls with any depth. What I mean is, I don't expect it to last, and I seem invested, but really I'm not. I pretend to care, but I don't give a fuck. They're all research and practice to me. I'm not actually "in love" she hasn't "got me" she has me spending time on her (which is what she wants - commitment) but I don't form the emotional attachment because they lack the qualities necessary for me to want to even attempt caring about them. When you LTR an unworthy woman, you either treat her like a practice bitch or you get taken for a ride and come out of it significantly worse.

To conclude:

Women fail a cost-benefit analysis. Dating is the habitable zone, relationships nowadays are like emigrating to Mercury, too near to the sun you're gonna get burned, living conditions are shittier than they are on Earth. You wouldn't invest in a depreciating stock, well women are the same - they are constantly depreciating in value only to increase their demands/preferences/entitlement as they age. Women do not rationally appraise their dating value. They defy the market by increasing rather than decreasing their demands as their beauty dissipates. Retardedly and quite ironically, as they get less physically attractive, they likewise become less mentally attractive.

Wanna know what a woman's maturity brings? It doesn't bring about intelligence, enlightenment or more reasonable expectations. It brings about more baggage, more unrealistic expectations and a more emphatic anti-male sentiment. THEY MAKE THEMSELVES EVEN LESS ATTRACTIVE PSYCHOLOGICALLY AS THEY AGE, WHICH IS IRONIC, BECAUSE THEY'RE ALSO LESS PHYSICALLY ATTRACTIVE. Women age like shit, both in body and in soul. If you can't buy in when she's at her peak, why are you going to buy in when she isn't?

When women are physically worth it but not mentally, they're not interested. Good luck even finding a woman who's hot, young and doesn't have the personality of a cunt.

Essentially the older a woman gets, the less desirable she gets whilst becoming more difficult and entitled. The wall is real. Some old bitches smartened up and realised being submissive/sweet/docile was the only way they'd ever get a guy to stick around. So they take dick up their wrinkly ass, cook well and work hard on behaving like less of an insufferable cunt. You know, they do yoga, try to read shit, have a personality, avoid toxic crap like sex in the city and idle gossip. Less of a simpleton, less of a bitch. Most women who are past it however choose cats and the feminist ideal of hyper-individualised dignity rather than put in the work to change themselves so an older man sees her as being even remotely worth a fuck. To the very end women are defiant. They would shame men into compliance rather than become what men want. Why would you want to invest any significant mental capital into that?

Subscribe to my blog if you like my posts, thanks!

53
UPVOTES

Illimitable Men: The Next Level

13 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

200

UPVOTES

IM's Hardest Hitting Reddit Rants

16 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In my latest blog post I announced I would keep all my reddit rants separate from my blog, a few commenters asked if I could make an archive of sorts for all my rants available. Well here it is. I have a few rants that are harder to find as they're buried in comments on old and very old threads, so like drilling to the centre of the Earth some of the more purely-distilled misogyny is harder to find, but if I find any more, I'll add it here.

Consider this a compilation of anger-phase induced unbridled testosterone-driven misogyny cut from the purest Peruvian brick the world has ever seen. Be it outrage porn for you, or a chest-thumping OORAH, prepare to get emotional.

- Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs. - TLDR: Single mothers fuck up their children and these shitty women need to be held accountable.
- AWALT - TLDR: An aggressive rendition of why "all women are like that." This one caused quite a stir in the blue & purple pill. If memory serves saying "all women are shit" really hurt some feels. Good. Suck it up.
- Fuck Marriage - TLDR: Why marriage is a bad deal for men.
- I'm sick and fucking tired of men who enable women and their "it's not my fault" bullshit victim complex - TLDR: Stop enabling female shittyness by holding them to such low moral standards that you say "you wouldn't blame a dog for shitting on a carpet, so don't be mad at a woman for being a cunt." It's like a testosterone-driven spin on why nothing is ever a woman's fault. Basically a hypoagency/hyperagency argument.
- Not just sexual strategy is amoral, everything is - TLDR: Why seeing the world through a red pill lens is not an excuse to be morally bankrupt and hamster immorality into amorality.
- So you want to be a man? Welcome to life on Hard mode. - TLDR: It's harder to be a man than a woman, don't bitch about how women have it easier, embrace the pain and become the best.
- To the weak pathetic men who need to see the best in women - TLDR: Giving men a cold hard slap for seeing femininity through rose-tinted glasses.
- Whores & Daughters - TLDR: Why it's hard to raise a daughter that won't become a whore.
- Who cares what blue pillers think? Fuck them! - TLDR: Giving a shit about the opinions of blue pill men and women is asinine.
- Why most women aren't worth committing to - TLDR: Why most contemporary western women are poor relationship material.
- You hate MGTOWs? I think PUAs are sad as fuck - TLDR: If MGTOWs are pathetic than PUAs aren't much better. FYI: I'm not a MGTOW or a PUA.

I thought I had more "vitriolic misogyny" to share, but I can't immediately find any more as it stands. Consider this an invitation to dig through my posting history and make suggestions.

Link: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/04/29/exploring-logic-emotion-part-1/>

Synopsis:

This post is somewhat esoteric and may pose difficult to grasp for many. As such, I do not expect it to be widely accessible, and have thus opted to include the most easily grasped and directly RP relevant excerpt here. For those who want to read the full piece, the link is above. Part 2 is coming soon, which will take a look at stoicism among other aspects in the relationship between logic and emotion.

Contents:

- 1.) A Crude Side by Side Comparison
- 2.) Pseudo-Logic: Rationalisation & Sophistry
- 3.) Women, Logic, Emotion & Intelligence
- 4.) In Closing

Excerpt:

3.) Women, Logic, Emotion & Intelligence

Most humans lack a basic self-awareness and sense of disciplined mastery over their emotions regardless of whether their personal preference is for logic or emotion. One could argue that man does effectively wield anger to simultaneously bolster his logical convictions, although this is of course only possible when anger remains anger, a suitable amount of reasoning faculty is present, and anger has not turned to rage.

We often view women, in spite of their education, as less intelligent than men because of their preference for emotion. One could be a genius, but if dominated by emotion, would have their sense of reason so inhibited by the dictates of emotion that such genius would be frivolously wasted, imprisoned even. Such is the observation we see with incredibly intelligent women, how can somebody so smart seem so stupid? Well indeed, a woman is still a woman, and no matter how objectively intelligent IQ tests may claim her to be in matters of logic or numerics, she still shares the emotional preferences and lizard brain of women of lesser intelligence. Indeed, her intelligence does, to an extent, make her less womanly, but it does not stop her from being a woman. One could say intelligence spoils women, for too much intelligence can detract from the very essence of what man considers feminine, whilst simultaneously making her a poor imitation of man.

So regardless of objective IQ (a flawed metric that does not measure the totality of intelligence, no less) we perceive "being logical" as synonymous with "being reasonable," whilst correlating unreasonableness with "being emotional." Of course, it is a universal truth where such truth is not dogmatically denied that women have a strong preference for emotion, whilst man, for reason. This is not to say that neither are capable of exhibiting either, but rather simply that, given a choice, women prefer to satiate their feelings whilst men prefer to make conscious, cost-benefit driven decisions. Of course, preferences do not equate to outcomes, but they heavily influence them.

If a high IQ woman is to be consistently unreasonable, this creates the perception of stupidity and indeed undermines not just her own credibility, but the metric of IQ itself. If an average IQ man is to be consistently reasonable, this instinctually conveys a sense of intelligence to our perception. Must one be good at numerics to be logical in the complete sense of the word? I suspect not.

79

UPVOTES

Ask IllimitableMan

30 April 2015 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

I don't help out here with the new guys as much as I'd like to, so leave a question related to TRP within the hour of this topic being posted (not a personal one, this isn't an AMA) and I will endeavour to answer you in the comments. If you miss the hour mark, you'll get ignored, sorry - can't spend all evening answering random questions. Also, try not to post essays.

It's easier for me to do this than manually hand pick threads. I may do this from time to time, to help guys out. We'll see. Fire away.

Edit: Question time's over now, this was fun. Until next time.

358

UPVOTES

On Anger

11 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Men don't deal well with female dominated environments because they tend to be hostile to men. Even when they aren't, men do not enjoy these environments because they are limited and boring and emphasise safety over creativity. They have to watch what they say. They have to fit in. There is no space for originality or masculinity. By definition, women wanting to create "safe spaces" is anti-masculine. Men don't do safe. Men test boundaries and constantly challenge each other. To women, that lack of security and constant one-upping is "a hostile environment." Basically men don't value how women hold court in social settings, and women don't value how men hold court in social settings.

But that isn't anger, it's a communication and social preference related to aggression.

Men's emotions are rarely validated, they just get told to suck it up. Every time someone talks shit about guys in the anger phase, I believe it's more of the same. Just invalidating male emotion. Shit most men invalidate their own anger with a bottle of whiskey. They've been taught to deny their own anger. And that ain't healthy. I won't go too deep on that right here, that's something worth blogging about independently with some more depth in the future.

People, especially women and manginas hiding behind a keyboard (people with low testosterone levels who would be useless in combat) love to talk shit about male anger from a place of elitist self-righteousness because it scares the crap out of them. If this sounds like you and there was an angry guy in front of you right now, absent a gun and the mindset to use it, you'd be the meek little thing that you are. You wouldn't dare talk.

I'm not trying to intimidate you, that is simply an axiom close to fact that will inadvertently intimidate a fragile mind. Women comment on something (male anger) from a perspective of fear and then ridicule it. They don't actually understand male anger at all, and the functional purpose it serves as being a cornerstone of masculinity.

They frame all anger as bad because that's the only time they give a shit about it. When a chick's man is angry and uses it to earn money by being aggressive in negotiation, she doesn't give a fuck. She'll even encourage it because it yields her benefit. Refer to Briffault's Law on the sidebar. She is selfish and only gives a shit about it when it damages her sensibilities because she is self-absorbed and lacks the capacity to abstract into a male point of view.

Men are great at abstracting. It is how you can raise an entire generation of men to act and think like women and hold feminine values. And then you have to try and convince them that everything is a lie and they have to start from scratch in life (which ironically, is often the source of much of the initial anger guys in TRP feel to begin with.)

Let me tell you something. A man's anger is more pure and more righteous than the average woman's tears ever will be. When men use anger to manipulate, it comes from a place of truth. It isn't a complete deception. Most women can cry on command, like a switch they flip. I trust an angry man more than a crying woman.

If guys want to be angry in TRP, to vent, or just talk some smack, good. They can't do it anywhere else. Unlike so many, I have empathy. I know how it feels to be frustrated and pissed the fuck off and just want to talk shit to some bros who will join in and talk shit with you rather than look down on you for being angry. Like it's not a legit emotion and you're just a cunt for feeling that way.

Most people aren't master stoics, and a lot of men don't want to follow that brand of "strong silent masculinity" either. They like righteous anger. They like the truthfulness, drive and the sense of power it yields. It's something you don't want to possess you - but it's an incredible force if you can learn to wield it with a degree of discipline.

I'm not in the anger phase. Haven't been for a long time, and yet I still like to post rants now and again. And every time someone will think I'm losing my mind and am right back in the anger phase because they're overly sensitive to aggressive communication. It's hilarious. I couldn't give a fuck. You just think I do because I choose to use anger to communicate sometimes. Do you need it spelt out why I fucking do that? It's because I appreciate anger, it's manly as fuck. I appreciate it's honesty. And I don't invalidate what men who are angry have to say. I don't look down on them for not being cold super-rational detached automatons. That's some psychopathic ass-shit. And every manly man I know likes to talk smack. It's part of who we are.

There's a lot of righteousness in anger. It can even be wise when it's articulated from experience. I give anger the respect it's fucking well due. The invalidation of anger is a feminine operative social convention. It is in women's interest to dismiss male anger, but it is in a man's to understand it and cultivate it. Anger is not this crazy and baseless thing you simply dismiss and invalidate. You don't talk it out like a faggot or pretend it's not there. You do something with it. Bottled up anger can drive you to insanity and suicide. Don't do that shit. Use it as a tool to build yourself up with. Anger is power.

Knowing how shit things are is half the battle. The other half is making yourself better in spite of the deck that's stacked against you. Pour your anger into something productive such as working out, reading and of course, getting money.

All the best gentlemen.

741 | The Red Pill, You & Morality

UPVOTES

18 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Edit: I hit the character limit when I submitted this post, so I'm going to edit this up a bit and add the rest of what I wanted to say into a blog post. Will edit the link in to that here when it's done.

Updated version: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/05/19/the-red-pill-you-morality/>

You can choose not to be a snake and not betray a man you respect because you are a man of principle. You can choose not to fuck another man's girl, whether he's a close friend or not because one of the principles you follow in your life is the golden rule:

"I wouldn't want a guy fucking my girl, so I won't fuck another guy's girl." Or "do unto others as they do unto you"

Moral principles aren't blue pill. Thinking that everyone has the same principles as you, and that most people don't succumb (or even value) incentive over principle, is.

Modern men who prioritize sex and utilitarianism above principles; men who prioritise incentives over an innate sense of justice we all possess don't want to hear that.

They don't want to observe another man's moral code, one that holds that man to a higher standard of behaviour than he subjects himself to. Because for the ruthless Machiavellian, the pragmatist, justice is an obstruction to his desires.

They think "Does this guy think he's better than me? Why is he trying to preach his principles like religion or something? The best way is the way that works, he's naive for having principles. Period."

These people, the "amoral bandwagon" as I call them, like to prioritise incentive over justice. These people make shit friends and business partners. Incentive cares about what you get out of it. Justice cares about "what the right thing to do is." These people violate justice because there is an incentive to do so. That doesn't make them evil in the satanic meaning of the word, but it does make them prone to immorality. These people know what they're doing will hurt others, they just don't give a shit.

"Doesn't matter, had sex."

And then without a hint of irony the same guy who said that is going to be pissed when he finds out his baby mother just sucked off some guy behind a dumpster. He wants other people to respect his dignity and not violate him, but he doesn't give a shit about violating others.

Humans are emotional people, emotional people follow principles and have certain codes of behaviour they follow.

Having one guiding policy "do whatever and fuck whoever to get what you need" is destructive. Some people are like that. There were always people like that. Fuck it, whatever. That's their choice. In some situations, we advise that. But do these people really have a moral pedestal to say "you have principles and therefore you're an idiot who doesn't get TRP?" - No. Shut up.

You can understand the game and keep your principles if you want to. Just realise that to live up to your principles, you will sacrifice incentives. If you have a particularly strong sense of justice, you will never live out RP philosophy fully.

To be honest, to fully live out TRP philosophy in your life, you'd have to be incredibly immoral. To be amoral is to be psychopathic, because amorality is neutrality, it is factual, it is devoid of human emotion. Human action is not amoral, only strategy/knowledge itself is. Do you see the disconnect there?

The world is not a fair place, sometimes you may need to be immoral to simply survive, but there's no need to glorify that shit. If it's necessary, and you're not simply indulging yourself, then so be it. But there's a difference between stealing to eat and stealing because "who's gonna stop me?" And guys who get the game but choose not to steal other people's girls, or scam people out of money in sales aren't blue pillers. They simply have stronger moral principles than you. Maybe they can afford to have those principles and survive, and you can't, it simply is what it is.

TRP is here to show you how the game works, not to tell you how to live your life. We give advice when asked, sure, but you live the way that suits you best. You own your choices.

TRP is amoral in the sense that it says "it is what it is.":

Hypergamy? It is what it is.

Branch swinging to the next best thing? It is what it is.

Alpha fucks, beta bucks? It is what it is.

Women have innate value whilst men don't? It is what it is.

You can't change these things, you can build a culture designed to subvert these things, but they're not going anywhere. The reason the west is falling apart is because we don't subjugate these things like we used to.

Peel back all the bullshit, and you see women, as well as a lot of men on this board, are immoral creatures. I don't intend that to be a value judgement, but without getting into some bullshit philosophical argument and redefining what good and bad are (been done to death and people always try to whore up my time with this nonsense) we all know what good and bad is innately.

If you violate someone else's rights because there is incentive for you (stealing, adultery etc) that's bad. Some philosophical ideas preach otherwise (Nietzsche and social darwinism comes to mind,) but these are simple redefinitions of reality from a metaphysical or scientific perspective. You are not mathematics, burying yourself in abstraction will not immunise you to human instincts.

It doesn't matter if DNA and atoms are amoral, and that you're a collection of atoms and DNA that is in an amoral competition. The combination of all those things in tandem gave you a sense of justice. You have a revenge instinct. Your sense of justice and need for revenge are the basis for all moral guiding principles. You're part of a game that is not adequately represented by maths and physics. Those things can't explain morality in a useful manner, because morality is only part logic, the rest is the intangibility of emotion.

If a guy doesn't want a life of ruthless Machiavellianism and unbridled hedonism, that's his choice. Just like MGTOW, PUA or being a patriarch with a family is a choice. None of which are "right choices" but simply "are." As long as he understands that this won't stop other people from living that kind of life, and that women are immoral, he's good. If he takes action to defend himself from people who respond only to incentives and disincentives and ignore moral principles based upon justice/injustice, then he's good.

People will always debate shit to death out of the principle of "demonstrating superiority," but most people who advocate for immoral behaviour don't even have the conviction to call what they're advocating for immoral. They know it's immoral, they know fucking someone's wife and breaking up that family is immoral. But they rather call it amoral and say "well she was going to ruin that marriage anyway." "If he was alpha enough she wouldn't be cheating on him, so he deserves it." "I have no commitment to that other guy, I don't even know him, so if his girl wants my dick, I'm going to press that." If that doesn't sound like bullshit to you, I don't know what to say.

The guy is complicit, he's an accessory to a whore's immorality, but because pussy is on offer, he doesn't care.

When you try to call that shit AMORAL, you care - a lot. You don't want people to think of you as immoral, so you try to say it's not good or bad but that it just simply "is." That family falling apart, or a relationship falling apart isn't your fault. If you give a girl dick who is in monogamy, that's always immoral, because you violated another man's rights.

In agreed monogamy, you have rights over exclusive sexual access, when those rights are breached, immorality has occurred. Now if you have some open shit going, and your girl fucks another guy, then you knew the score. You may be butthurt, but you weren't betrayed. You were complicit. Complicit like the guy who knew he was fucking a taken girl but whose horniness overrode any moral principles he may otherwise adhere to. Betrayal is the key act that evokes a need for revenge. When betrayal occurs, so does immorality.

"Bro-knighting" (a faggy term if I've ever heard one) is an issue of moral contention on this sub. It is men of different moral principles (and some without) essentially bickering what the right thing to do is when it comes to fucking a whore who is currently the sexual property of another man. I'm going to tell you now, I don't think this subreddit can tell you what the fuck to do. You have to figure that shit out for yourself.

We can present balanced arguments, we can tell you the benefits of immorality vs. the benefits of morality, and combined with your own pain and experiences you will make a choice on how you choose to live your life based upon that. Sometimes you may violate your own principles because you can't keep your instincts in check, you're fallible after all.

Telling you how to fuck someone over, as a "sexual strategy" is amoral. Actually doing that and infringing on someone else's rights and causing emotional pain? That's immoral. Every man must decide "do I want strong moral principles that I want to live by, or do I want to behave however I need to behave to get what I want?"

And neither is red or blue pill. It simply "is." All choices and strategies are amoral, it's the act itself and how it affects others which is moral or immoral. People in this community who have chosen immoral lifestyles want to sell it as amoral. But that's disingenuous face-saving bullshit.

If you're going to be immoral, own it, don't come up on the sub and act like folk with moral principles are "blue pillers" because even though they understand how fucked up the game is, they want to adhere to certain guiding moral principles in their life.

A lot of people on TRP confuse amorality with delusion. They are different things. Amorality is simply stating what works in a scientific and pragmatic manner. Delusion is believing in something that is not true.

So if you understand the game, but refuse to adapt to it - you are not blue pill, you are simply defiant, stubborn.

You know some of you are fucking your guy's girlfriends and sisters and shit. That is fucked up you know. You don't deserve a wolf pack when you're pulling moves like that.

Trust is a commodity. You need to adhere to certain moral principles whilst demanding others live up to the same moral principles to ensure that the bond of trust is not broken. People who are constantly out for themselves end up alone because there's a lack of trust on all sides. No trust = relationships fall apart.

Why do men instinctually almost have close to zero trust for women? Because we know they're immoral creatures. We know they don't give a fuck. They must be regulated. If you've read TRP you know these women will do whatever is necessary to ensure their own well-being. They don't have a higher mode of thought, they just run off biological programming and do whatever to "get theirs."

You can call that amoral if there's no malice behind it, but regardless the pain it causes across society is anything but. We used to check female behaviour with man's sense of justice posing as divinely ordained, and then impose this on society as a whole. But now men have lost control; female morality runs the show. And plenty of guys are adopting a feminine view of morality to "get ahead."

If you think morality is a wholly rational process, it isn't. Even in the intellectualism of Nietzsche's master-slave morality or Ragnar Redbeard's "Might is Right" you can sense a certain hatred and contempt for weakness that inverts traditional morality as we know it. In fact, in a perverse way, I would say it something akin to natural female morality. As it seems all but apparent that hypergamy is the basis of female morality - what enriches her is good, what doesn't, is bad. It ignores other people's need for justice and is entirely self-serving. Sound familiar? In a way one could say TRP is the female strategy applied to male interests.

Vice becomes virtue, and virtue becomes vice. Women are without honour unless they are taught and shamed into having some. They don't possess the natural sense of honour that men do, although, it would seem in this age of emasculation, more and more men are taking on female traits to "adapt" and "win."

Look at society now. That is unsuppressed female sexuality running wild. Corrupt the women and the men will follow, because when men lose control on a cultural level they individually adapt themselves to succeed in a feral mating climate. That is what happens when we say "stop locking up your daughters and confining sex to marriage, let's have a mass orgie." Sex pushes people towards immorality to get an orgasm and feel powerful. The bonds of family, and thus civilization, are destroyed; one adulterous orgasm at a time.

Neither the immoral/amoral or moral guy are really right in what they do. The immoral guy is "right" in he acquires the most incentives. The guy with strong principles is "right" in the sense he causes the least pain in the world. These aren't absolutes, you will do moral and immoral things throughout your life.

Do I think the guy who leans more towards morality is blue pill? No. He is a man of principle. Choosing to have principles regardless of reality doesn't make you blue pill. What makes you blue pill is not understanding reality and telling yourself that things that aren't real are in fact, real. The blue pill is accepting dogma over the nature of how things work.

So if you understand the game and decide you're going to be an upstanding guy, as long as you understand fully what is going on, you understand other people aren't going to play along to your tune, but DO YOU ANYWAY - then you're not deluded. You simply refuse to become immoral to be more successful. You value your principles more than financial or sexual success. That is rare, but good for you. In a success driven capitalist culture people will view you as weak for that, but it's a mature decision we all must make.

The game is fucked up, I know that better than most, and trying to normalise betrayal, deceit and double-crossing as the status quo is indicative of that. It's cultural regression.

Don't do everything TRP tells you. Honestly, pick and choose to apply what you read here. As much as dark triad theory helps one acquire incentives for instance, I don't want to create a cult of wannabe psychopaths who try to medicate their pain and poverty through ruthlessness. So check yourself on that shit. As with everything, moderation. Anything taken to it's utmost extremity is insane. We've seen that with what feminism turned into.

Alright, I'm done. Peace.

Plugs:

Support my blog: <http://illimitablemen.com/>

Support /u/GayLubeOil for LOLs: <http://twitter.com/GayLubeOil>

Support /u/redpillschool by making sure you're on the puerarchy mailing list:
<http://puerarchy.com/mailling/?p=subscribe&id=1>

110
UPVOTES

The Red Pill, You & Morality - (Full version, I hit the Reddit character limit on my original thread)

19 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

27
UPVOTES

Civilization & Feminist Dogma

29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

325

UPVOTES

Successful Men Are Warriors.

30 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"You're probably gay", "you're just some loser virgin", "you're being such a pussy", "you're weak", etc.

If you hear this kind of stuff, you're not sufficiently intimidating. A cornerstone of masculinity is the capacity to be physically/mentally intimidating. Basically, superior in power, as power is an aphrodisiac. Money is power, but it's a specific kind of outsourced power; the power to acquire resources. It isn't a form of personal power. This is why guys who are loaded but have little physical or mental prowess HAVE TO throw money at women to see any action (don't CHOOSE to out of choice, but owing to a lack of options.)

Such men are unworthy from an attraction viewpoint, they are unattractive as men. Their money makes them a temporary option to be exploited, but such men are happy to be exploited because it's the easy way to get laid; it means they don't have to change anything about themselves. It means they don't have to reject who they are to become something better, even the weak can be prideful.

Women are attracted to intimidation and fear, primarily. It makes them tingle/pine. Plenty of women are enthusiastically fucking cavemen types, but how many are fucking scholastic types for anything but a shot at their money/status/maintaining some sort of purely aesthetic reputation? The caveman will always elicit more passion, and thus more love from a woman than the super-intelligent guy who she may respect purely on a logical level (most women don't even respect logic if it doesn't aid their agenda.) At the end of the day, your intellect won't make her want to spread her legs. Your aggression will.

Intellect and money augment the mentally and physically powerful man, but they are insufficient crutches for a man without either. An intelligent warrior can get laid and command respect; a pedantic nerd can't. A rich Machiavellian can command respect, a rich idiot is the guy everyone mooches off. Why do you think Michael Jackson read the 48 laws of power? He was a rich idiot. He got rich because he had a monetisable talent, but he lacked "street smarts" which from now on, you should think of as Machiavellianism.

If you're intimidating you won't have people talking down to you (they fear your potential to seriously fuck them up too much.) Women get off to fear and want to fuck guys they're scared of. Men who can make them feel fear tell her emotional solipsism on some level "this guy is powerful" and a guy being powerful means "I find this man attractive, I'll fuck him." Why do you think so many women fuck drug dealers, thugs, and other degenerates? Because they convey power. Women don't give a shit about morals when it comes to sexuality, just power.

In tribal times only a very physically/mentally powerful man would have a lot of resources. Now as we become more intelligent and women can get resources alone, a man doesn't need to be physically or mentally powerful (meaning a propensity for violence in either capacity) to amass resources. He simply needs to be sufficiently smart to get a fairly well paying job (people who aren't mentally powerful don't tend to start their own businesses, they always work for someone else or fail when they go at it alone.) Pussies very rarely become successful entrepreneurs.

So money is power in what it can get, but it's not personal power as eg: a STEM nerd can make a fuck ton of money, but he has little Machiavellian ability, little physical mass and thus conveys no personal power. With no personal power, he cannot generate attraction (or respect outside of his respective field.) Thus to get personal power he needs to study/practice/learn to think like a Machiavellian and go lift. But how many STEM nerds do you think know this is the path to their social redemption, and are willing to take such a path? Not many, I suspect.

You must be warrior in body and in heart. Those are the type of men women fuck, and other men respect. Everything else in the reproductive/respect game is superfluous.

Machiavelli summed this up best with the following quote:

"It is better to be feared than loved, if you cannot be both."

Become a warrior, get loved later. Love does not come before power, it comes afterwards, if at all.

Here's my newest article, enjoy.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/01/the-hierarchy-of-love/>

Excerpt:

“Women don’t love, they only care for themselves.” This is a comment from a gentleman I came across recently that made me stop to give pause. After some pondering, I came up with the essay you are about to read. I must conclude that I disagree with the statement that inspired this particular piece of literature. I do suspect that the gentleman who said what he said felt it to be true with every inch of his fiber, but I do not believe the assertion to be right. Nevertheless, I am sympathetic to his sentiment, for although he is wrong, he is not entirely. It is, at least among the old guard of the red pill community, an established truth that women do not love men in the way that man wants to be loved.

The problem is contingent on not only the way in which man craves to be loved, but likewise the way in which woman is capable of loving. Man desires a sacrificial love, sacrifice implies loyalty and connection. What men want from love, and what woman’s love amounts to is fundamentally irreconcilable.

In matters of love (and not simply lust,) man is a optimistic egalitarian. He loves as he wishes to be loved. In matters of love, when man is young and oblivious to the ways of women, he is a true adherent to the golden rule. The folly of man’s nature lies in the belief that the loyalty quintessential to woman’s maternal instinct will be available within a romantic context. He believes, rather foolishly, that as his mother loved him, the idealised girlfriend could. He sees how women love their children, and upon making such an observation concludes that women are capable of great love. This is true, they are. But this is a love reserved for child, not man, and realistically it is a love that few men can ever hope to possess. As such, man has an idealisation of woman’s love, not a realisation.

Man desires that which is unattainable to him, unbeknownst that the love he desires is maternal in nature and can never be felt for him by a woman. Nature plays a cruel trick on the psychology of man. It gives him a very pure, high quality love in his childhood. It gives him a template for woman’s love that he comes to expect as standard of all women. He is taught by his mother’s love that unconditional loyalty, noble character, gentleness, sacrifice and trust are intrinsic of the feminine essence. And so as he grows from a boy into a man he comes to the rather logical conclusion that if he is “a good man,” he can expect to be loved by his lover in much the same way. His mother, well-meant but quite incorrectly likewise affirms this notion to him. This is a wicked lie, but a man whose heart is yet to be broken does not realise this. He thinks woman’s love is immutable. He knows not that her love for child is different from that of her love for him.

You can read the rest here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/01/the-hierarchy-of-love/>

(if you read all of this post, go straight to paragraph 4 in section 2.)

If you spot any typos, let me know. Thanks.

40

UPVOTES

Ask IllimitableMan - June 2015

15 June 2015 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

If you've been around awhile you'll remember I did an "Ask IM" here in May which I consider to have been quite a success. If not, here's the thread so you can gauge the level of answer I was giving to the questions presented:

https://www.reddit.com/r/asktrp/comments/34f0zr/ask_illimitableman/

After that I asked my followers on Twitter if they thought it would be a good idea for me to do a monthly mailbag. Seeing as the response both here on AskTRP and on Twitter was positive, I've decided to go ahead with it.

I'm doing this for a few reasons:

- There is demand for it.
- I want to interact more with the community on a visible level. I do a lot of essay writing, but some people may learn better from a more organic interaction, such as this. Also I have some very interesting 1-on-1 discussions from time-to-time, interactions I'm sure others could learn from had they been public. Consider this an opportunity to make that a reality.
- If this proves to be successful I will do it every month, picking the best questions over the month and publishing the mailbag to my blog on the final day of the month.

Some guidelines:

- If your question is of a personal nature, give a pseudonym, and I will refer to you by that if I publish your question with my answer.
- This isn't an AMA, it's more an "agony uncle" type deal. If you ask me personal questions I'm not going to publish any answers to them.
- I will only feature the best questions. The better/more in-depth your question, the more chance it will have of being answered. This is being published on my blog, so asking questions that can easily be answered by the red pill sidebar aren't going to get published. Think more relationship problems or scenario based problems (Asking for Machiavellian advice is fine.)
- I won't publish answers to every question I get, only the questions I hand pick as being the best ones, and as many that fit within a max 2,500 word article. I won't answer every question. It's not possible.
- If you ask a question about the dark triad I won't answer it in the mailbag, I'll reserve it for the dark triad Q&A like when I did this one. It's not the upcoming post, but part 2 is in the works.

Leave your questions here, or choose any of the methods shown here to get in touch. Remember, I won't answer your question here, if I answer it, I will answer it in a blog post at the end of the month. If other people want to answer your question in the comments here, that's fine by me.

17

UPVOTES

An easy to understand metaphorical analogy that will help you understand the differences between men and women.

17 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Here's my newest article, enjoy.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/20/morality-and-machiavellianism/>

Excerpt:

Morals are too emotional to be debated and agreed upon via consensus, rather ironically they must be imposed via a platonic noble lie such as religion. This of course is immoral in a number of ways, but nevertheless it is best characterised as deceit with an altruistic intention. It serves a “greater good,” and thus for those who value ethics or altruistic Machiavellianism, it can be reasonably justified.

Of course, religion is like any corporation or government; it can be co-opted and corrupted by those who do not wish to serve the public good by submitting to the purpose of the organisation – but who use their position to fulfil their own purposes in spite of the organisation. We call a betrayal of such systemic significance corruption. Corruption in a civilizational context is effectively the sabotage of societal infrastructure for self-gain; in spite of the fact that society is reliant upon such infrastructure, as indeed is the person exploiting it.

Very few want to be martyrs, and those up to the task would, in my cynicism, only be puppeted by those pretending to serve the public good whilst only really serving themselves. Ironically, to do good, one must be very competent in the strategies commonly employed by “evil.” If “evil” has anything going for it, it is that it does not leave anything to chance. Such a thing is so rare with “the good” that a man of strong moral convictions adept in the strategies commonly associated with “evil” is scarcely encountered. Thus it is such that very few believe in the moral Machiavellian, although such a thing is not common and the business of power is inherently dirty, it is my contention that such men exist in small numbers.

Naturally, powerful knowledge carries a certain taint. The more you understand about the realm of cunning, the more likely you are to employ such things, for power is inherently irresistible. You probably sought such knowledge due to powerlessness in the first place, and often the powerless are more neurotic than the powerful, but when the powerful know not when to stop – this is incorrect.

Whether one uses their power for altruistic or sadistic purposes effectively defines whether the Machiavellian in question is moral or immoral in character, but as sadism reinforces narcissism, it is my thought that the latter is more typical. If one has guiding principles they consider superior to their ego, they can be considered a moral Machiavellian. Nevertheless, such people must guard such principles from public view, for these principles are the individual's Achilles heel and will be exploited by those who do not share them.

You can read the rest here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/20/morality-and-machiavellianism/>

If you read all of this post, go straight to paragraph 1 in section 2.

I'm also doing a monthly mailbag from now on, in case you didn't see it, here are the details (link shows the original AskTRP thread):

<https://archive.is/G0sQS>

9

UPVOTES

Looking for your input/some suggestions

23 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I want to increase the number of RP comedy clips I archive here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/red-pill-comedy/>

I'm sure you guys know of comedians and clips that fit with RP ideas that I wouldn't have heard of. Leave your suggestions here, and I'll check them out. If they're good, I'll add them to the page.

Most recently I added this - funny as fuck, fits with Patrice's whole "women don't wanna win, they want a winner." mantra.

If you've got anything to add, let me know. Doesn't have to have video, audio only is fine. I'm always looking to improve on the site. Thanks.

Be Confident & Decisive - Notes on Law 28 "ENTER ACTION WITH BOLDNESS"

23 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Confidence has a place within Machiavellianism/The 48 Laws of Power, law 28 goes into more detail.

- Boldness makes you seem more powerful with the spectacle of its grandiosity whilst simultaneously obscuring your weaknesses. It is fundamental in illusion because it keeps people distracted, preventing them from finding your thumbscrew. The predatory are always trying to ascertain what your thumbscrew is through deep analysis; continuous spectacle is thus necessary for bogging down their analytical process with misdirection. The less intelligent they are, the easier this is.
- There is boldness in polarisation. An oft successful way to seem unique and powerful is to undermine the ways of your opponent by nonchalantly disregarding them.
- Following from the previous point, in any scenario where there are two opposing forces, reticence can be the difference between life and death. When you hesitate you give the opposition the confidence to strike, for rightfully or not they assume your uncertainty stems from fear. Confidence feeds bravado, bravado can mask your fears when aptly portrayed.
- Timidity makes you prey, even the weak will become guileful enough to try exploit you if they believe you a fool. This is a matter of opportunistic disrespect rather than sadistic hate.
- Timidity makes people awkward. Timidity is easily detected if not masked by bravado.
- In contrast, boldness can make others feel more comfortable. This is oft why unconfident men are more well-liked when intoxicated than when sober. Such a man has however briefly, become bolder.
- Boldness can be cultivated by the challenges of struggle. If you are comfortable in your life you will grow timid. Healthy paranoia is realising that comfort can be dangerous in excessive amounts. With healthy paranoia, boldness becomes natural, for one is more alert, attuned to their surroundings.
- Reluctance restricts movement whilst boldness allows room for manoeuvre. Reluctance is oft analysis paralysis, allowing the unending discourse of logic to control your thoughts. Boldness rejects logical perfectionism in favour of goal-orientated motivation. He who is bold knows how to get outside of his head.
- Unannounced boldness keeps the element of surprise on your side. Reluctance gives others a chance to think, allowing them to strategize and weigh up their options.
- Boldness can force the enemy into a state of reactivity.

The rest of the article is bullet pointed, so easy to read (don't worry, I will still write about the laws in essay form too.) If you want to see all of the bullet points (there are 40) check out the full article

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/23/notes-on-law-28-enter-action-with-boldness/>

212

UPVOTES

The Nature of Women - Alternative Title: "Understanding Hamstering"

30 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

To understand women with at least some degree of competence, one must firstly understand Machiavellianism. Once they understand Machiavellianism, they must come to understand dissociation. After understanding dissociation, the next logical step is to understand dissociation's relationship with rationalisation, for rationalisation is reason built upon fantasy. A hoax, but one that can only be identified as such once you have investigated its origin.

Most within the red pill community come to know of rationalisation before dissociation; I suspect many know not what dissociation is in spite of its relation to rationalisation. Without dissociation, the reality removing mechanism on which feminine solipsism is predicated, rationalisation lacks the conviction needed to be convincing. The most compelling of a woman's performances thus requires dissociation to masquerade as truth. If she did not believe her lies, neither would you.

If womankind did not possess an infinite capacity for dissociation, the effectiveness of her manipulations would be greatly vitiated. Such a woman would be unable to leverage her sexuality into attaining commitment once she'd had more than a few partners. Her sexuality would be utilised and disposed of like something to be consumed, as once perceived a whore, she would become her sexuality and deemed to lack essence in absence of it. All too aware of this, dissociation is women's primary coping mechanism.

If a woman cannot sell herself a false narrative, she cannot manipulate men into holding her in higher regard. Her worthiness of this bothers her not, her only concern is to obtain her ends. Although man is romantic, he does not easily trust or forgive women of dubious history. Such women are objectified in great ubiquity, for no value is seen in a whore outside the physical pleasure her flesh can offer. Some women set out to commodify themselves in this manner, we call them prostitutes.

And yet a prostitute would not be able to engage in the mental gymnastics necessary to forgive herself her promiscuity if she were chained to decision-making in a way that reason absent dissociation necessitates. In order for a woman to opportunistically capitalise on her sexuality, she must be capable of great dissociation. With dissociation, she can avoid consequences for her life choices, enabling her to convince a man she possesses an innocence and chastity she has long lacked.

A woman would get what she deserves, rather than what she wanted or needed if she could not dissociate. Luckily, nature has equipped women with an instinctual proclivity to dissociate. Women have evolved to become humanity's most competent liars, in spite of themselves, for their own sake. Rather than striving to be better than she is, womankind has become competent in pretending she need not be better because she already is what she isn't – better.

Wanna read the whole thing? Click the link and head to section 3:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/30/the-nature-of-women/>

IM's Firstly Monthly Mailbag - Post-college life, how to use Narcissism, 10 books on personal growth and why I still bother with TRP

6 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Here is the contents of my first mailbag:

- 1.) Introduction
- 2.) "Why do you bother with TRP?"
- 3.) "I don't know what to do after college."
- 4.) "How do you write about the dark triad and then write about morality?"
- 5.) "If you could recommend 10 books for personal growth, what would they be?"
- 6.) "How do I use ego productively?"
- 7.) In Closing

I'll put the answer to "why I still bother with TRP" in this thread. If you want to know about the other stuff and don't care about this, such as the books, or narcissism, then skip this excerpt and read the full mailbag:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/06/monthly-mailbag-june-2015/>

"As a TRP newbie, I'm very grateful for yet surprised by the amount of energy and time you and other TRP veterans are expending to help other people for free. I'm sure you personally have enough knowledge and discipline already to basically do whatever you want to do, so why are you choosing to spend your valuable time on TRP? Is becoming just a tiny bit more knowledgeable yourself worth the time investment, is it charity, is it a hobby, is it a "perfection in all things" philosophy, something else?"

Men are in pain. If I had the knowledge I have now when I was 15 or even 18 my life would have taken a far different direction. A lot of us had to learn the hard way so that you can learn the easy way. I remember what it's like growing up clueless and without guidance. By forming my blog, I can give the guidance I never had.

When you don't have a blog, and you care about this stuff, you know, the state of boys and men, the health of masculinity - you're better off having a blog to communicate your ideas to as many people as possible. Otherwise, you have lots of 1-on-1 conversations over private message, and the impact you have is far more localised. One article that gets 10,000 views has a greater impact on the collective than 200 individual private message consultations.

I think the red pill is a very important space for boys and men, young and old. Male spaces are lacking in real life, almost everywhere you go is dominated by a strong whiff of estrogen. Being stuck in the corporate rat race is no good for a guy, frankly, in my opinion, it's emasculating. Men aren't free to be men anymore, men must tone down their nature as not to be ostracised.

Political correctness is more a natural sensibility of the feminine than it is conducive to the masculine. Men tend to prefer communicating directly, that's when they're happiest and working at their best. Sanitised language which does not overtly offend is part of the "greet you with a smile whilst stabbing your jugular" ethic quintessential of women.

If you don't do a sport in the real world, or work on a building site, you probably don't have a place to shoot the shit. You have to be politically correct and police yourself, joking around or discussing serious topics from an exclusively male viewpoint is scarcely an option.

Not all your friends are going to be red pill, or really care about discussing the things that we as a community enjoy discussing. You may want to have a deep discussion about something, but you have friends who avoid "deep talk" and are chronic fun seekers. They're not in the mood for politics, or whatever deep thing it is you want to discuss, so where do you go? An internet forum - to meet people who have the same problem as you. The community is special in the way that it provides an outlet for masculine expression (at all levels of depth) in a time and place where such expression is taboo.

Likewise, I take great joy in writing, I love to write. There isn't really anything else for me to learn from the community, all one can do is master the implementation of the knowledge taught through practice. There comes a point where discussion is redundant but is done for the sake of itself, as well as for helping the guys who weren't there for all the prior discussions. If we don't keep the torch lit, it'll go out. Watch how quickly things dilute and fall into obscurity if all the big names just decided to up and leave - it would be tragic. TRP is a community of many built on the broad backs of the few. Plenty of guys "don't get it enough" and plenty of guys who do get it "don't give enough fucks to help anybody out."

If I wanted to disappear, lift weights and drink an unhealthy amount of whiskey (fuck, I love bourbon) I could do that. But I find writing and helping men out to be a fulfilling task - so I do that. For as long as I find such things fulfilling, I will continue to do them. TRP helped me out when I was in a tough spot, and for that it has my eternal gratitude. However, one should note that TRP isn't a magical fix-all for your problems.

TRP will give you the tools necessary to help you fix yourself, but TRP can't force you to get off your ass. Reading TRP isn't going to magically fix your life for you, it's going to tell you how to fix your life so you can do the fixing. You could read TRP for eternity, but if that's all you did, you'd continue to be the loser you were before you found TRP.

First things first: I did not write this, I am not the original author. I wish this was mine, but it isn't. No plagiarism intended, just sharing with the community.

I saw this comment buried in another thread on TRP (where the poster claims he is not the original writer.) I thought it was great and is deserving of the community's full attention. It's an extended metaphor which illustrates the depreciating nature of female SMV and how hypergamy drives women to make poor mating decisions. The short story is written in a silly sort of style (think Pook) so the pill concerning these matters is more easily digested as it's not so serious sounding.

This kind of medium (a light-hearted short story drenched in RP) works as a great way to softly introduce people to RP ideas. I may consider writing some pieces in such a manner myself in future if not purely for the artistic challenge.

~~According to Private Man, this story/comment may have originated from a poster at 4Chan. RPWs would learn/appreciate a lot from reading this too.~~

Enjoy this gem, I certainly did.

/u/Charlesthhamster wrote this, but deleted the original thread when his ex-employer found out his Reddit name. The original thread is here.

Women are all playing a game. Like a casino in Vegas, they're given chips in the form of sex and companionship to put into games and machines (men) to try to win a good relationship. A good looking girl gets chips that go from 20 to 1, and she has to start out using the 20 only ever going downward to 19, 18, 17, and so on, hoping for a big score.

But, this casino is a special, one time casino. It opens at noon, and closes at 2 a.m, forever. So, they have to collect their winnings by then or leave with nothing and be forced to fend for themselves, broke in the outside world.

Furthermore, once she hits 10 p.m. management starts taking away 2 chips every following hour, but she's not worried about that. That's not for another 10 hours.

So, she learns the rules and is so excited to get into the casino, hoping for a jackpot. She's so sure she's worthy of hitting a jackpot. It will happen for her. She's been told her entire life.

She enters the casino and sees thousands of machines ushering her over all vying for her attention. She is delighted. She's never felt so loved or validated. She immediately walks past the begging 1-5 chip machines, morbidly obese men, fat thugs, funny looking gas station attendants, 35 year old pizza delivery men, and she laughs as she passes them. The idea of her putting a 20 chip in a 1-5 is laughable, she understands this completely.

She then sees the 6-10s men, a lot of them are blue collared, some are college students on the up and up. She's more impressed by them, but she at least wants a college educated man, no she deserves one, she thinks, and she's got more than enough chips to get one.

So, she keeps going. She gets to the 11-15s, college graduates, a lot of confident young men. A lot are just starting their shitty careers, some are more alpha than others. She doesn't care for the nerds, but she finds some alpha med school student at 15 chips. He played college lacrosse too! And he's just starting med school, so he still is only 15 chips for a hot girl like her. What a bargain.

But she decides to continue, she has a few more chips than that, after all. She gets to 16-20. Fairly tall, attractive professionals. A lot of doctors, lawyers and stock brokers. They're mostly in their late 20s or early to mid 30s. They're surrounded by and turning down a bunch of girls offering lower numbers to them, but she has just enough to pull it off if she acts right now! But she sees the back of the casino. There are thousands of women gathered around these machines. "What's going on back there?" She wonders. She decides she can come back to these machines later. It's barely been three hours! So, she's still not at risk for getting any of her chips taken away.

She gets to the back and finds a ton of girls surrounding these machines. There are some movie stars, athletes, authors, millionaires and billionaires at 40 chips, who are communicating with these models and all these other girls who pass by. Then she sees some guys who cost 25-30 chips, and the price is crudely written in pencil on a paper hanging by a string around their neck.

She sees other girls handing them their 20 chip and questions why to herself briefly. She walks up to one of them and asks, "Why if you cost 25-30 are these girls handing you their 20 chip when they can never have you?"

"Price is relative," he answered. "We just priced it at what we wanted. Personally, I'm not really looking for a relationship right now, but if I met the right girl, maybe it could happen."

"Well, what do you do?" She asked.

"I'm lead singer in a band I started." He answered

She didn't question his pricing. He seemed confident he was worth that much, after all. "Do you think maybe we could have a long term relationship?" She asked.

"Anything is possible," he said. "But like I said I'm not necessarily looking for a relationship right now."

She looked past his scruffy face into his dreamy blue eyes and handed him her 20 dollar chip. He looked up at her. "Thank you," he said. "But you lose."

"What!" She yelled, as she could hardly control herself, reaching quickly and grabbing her 19 and handing it to him. "What about now!"

"Wow, thanks again for coming back for more. Unfortunately you lose again."

"Unbelievable!" The girl screamed. "Do you know what you've taken from me?"

"Yeah," he answered. "Your 20 and 19 chip. I don't want you anymore though, so don't bother giving any more chips, but my buddy over there said you're hot. He's a starving artist and he sells drugs on the side. He's worth 22, but secretly I think you can probably get him for 18."

"Is he really worth 22?" The girl asked.

"Well, a lot of people think so," he answered.

She headed over to the guy and immediately handed him her 18 chip.

"Wow, I really appreciate that," he said, "But I'm really doing my own thing right now, and there are others girls who still want to give me their chips, so I really hope you find someone else. You're a nice girl."

"Men are disgusting pigs!" The girl yelled, heading back toward the front of the casino.

She was stopped by the manager and she looked up at the clock. It was 11! She handed him her 17 and 16 chips and bolted toward the front, desperately looking for the med school lacrosse player. She found him. His sign read 17 now, though. Thank God I found you! She said as she tried to hand him her chip. "Thank you," he said. "But I can't do a relationship with you now. I'm doing my residency, and I'm getting a lot more attention from better women."

"Asshole!" She yelled as she ran even further toward the front stopped again by the manager as she coughed up her 14 and 13 chip. She scrambled to find someone, anyone.

She saw a nerdy IT guy and almost gagged, but she still approached him. He was low confidence, short, nerdy and gross and set himself at only 11. She approached really sadly and resignedly. "Will you take my chip," she said, almost crying. "Gladly!" He said.

She walked out with him and she cried, mourning all of the possibilities of good looking successful men she lost. She should have just gotten the med student or the stock brokers or lawyers, when she could. She ended up with a loser after all the possible chances. She secretly resented him and wondered if she should have taken her friend's route and not settled at all after she was denied by the med student. Maybe she could still cheat on him though.

694

UPVOTES

50 Shades of Red - Wisdom for Men About Women

17 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

50 Maxims on the nature of women and man's relationship with her. Easy-to-read and broken down, I'll share the first 10 with you here:

IM MAXIM #1: "The tougher the men around her, the softer she is. The softer the men around her, the tougher she is. The toughest woman is the fatherless woman, for the fatherless woman seeks a surrogate by whoring herself." [See here for more.]

IM MAXIM #2: "A woman never wants you to need her, only to want her. The moment your want becomes need – she no longer wants you."

IM MAXIM #3: "Women's love is admiration built upon respect. Women are drawn to men of experience and power. Man's love is respect built upon desire. Men are drawn to women of innocence and vulnerability. When a woman no longer admires, and a man no longer sacrifices, love is lost. It is a delicate balance, for respect is lost when either fails in their capacity. Man sacrifices, woman admires, that is love."

IM MAXIM #4: "Women love children how men love women."

IM MAXIM #5: "The feminine wants a guardian and the masculine wants to guard. The problem is, neither can happen without trust. The sexes have never trusted each other much, but courtesy of feminism, they have never trusted each other less."

IM MAXIM #6: "There is an immutable animosity between the sexes that serves as the conduit for all distrust. This animosity flows from the inability of the sexes to reconcile their fundamentally opposed sexual strategies. For a man's optimal sexual strategy to thrive, the woman's must suffer. For a woman's optimal sexual strategy to thrive, the man's must suffer. Each sex is determined not to suffer, and so both inflict suffering on the other in a perverse determination not to suffer themselves. This is the battle of the sexes. This is reproductive war."

IM MAXIM #7: "The sexes desire to trust one another, but they wish to actualise their sexual imperatives far more. As such, trust is predicated on the degree of one's control far more than it is any sense of blind loyalty."

IM MAXIM #8: "Women are followers, not leaders. They follow trends, status and power, not a sense of innate loyalty."

IM MAXIM #9: "The average man is ignorant and misled. His mental construct of women is far greater than anything the typical woman aspires to. This is not his fault, his biology deceives him, society lies and so the deck of deception is stacked. Nevertheless, the reality remains."

IM MAXIM #10: "You conflate her beauty with good character. These things are distinct, but mesmerised by beauty, you think they are identical."

If you want the rest:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/17/fifty-shades-of-red/>

Enjoy.

Another 50 Maxims on the nature of women and man's relationship with her. Here's the first 10:

IM MAXIM #51 – “Women are mercenary. They do whatever it takes to win. They will switch sides or outright lie to secure the man they deem their best option. That’s what you are to a woman. An option.”

IM MAXIM #52 – “Society claims a woman shown your deepest fears will appreciate “your true essence.” This is a myth, a grandiose lie. The average man naively expects a woman to treasure his vulnerability in much the way he does hers. She cannot. Presented with such a burden, a woman will plan her exit. Your vulnerability will not be tolerated. Such a man’s error is conflating his innate attraction to female vulnerability with a reciprocal attitude. There is no reciprocal attraction. Pre-sexual revolution, men knew this acutely.”

IM MAXIM #53 – “Superficial vulnerability from a position of power is attractive to women, this is what it means to “open up.” Substantive vulnerability, eg: being insecure, is not.

IM MAXIM #54 – “You think sharing your weakness demonstrates trust and love. You believe you can bond over your pain. You believe wrongly. All she sees is the repulsiveness of your weakness. She does not respect your weakness, your pain, or how difficult it was for you to share your pain with her. Women do not care. They can admire your persistence in the face of such, but not your need to express it.”

IM MAXIM #55 – “Money is makeup for men. Money on a man looks like makeup on a woman.”

IM MAXIM #56 – “Money is more important than women. Chase money, not women. You are more likely to get women chasing money than you are to get money chasing women. Without money or godlike genetics, you’re playing on hard mode. Money makes everything better, the quality of woman you can get is the epitome of such, not the exception.”

IM MAXIM #57 – “Men control an interaction by being non-reactive. Women control an interaction by being hyper-emotional.”

IM MAXIM #58 – “Women feed off excess emotion, men tire from it, with the exception of anger indulgence. Woman's emotional nature thus makes her highly histrionic. Corollary: men with cluster B personality disorders are histrionic and thrive on emotion. In this way, they are similar to women. You will see many similarities between women and dark triad men (particularly narcissists) if you look closely enough.”

IM MAXIM #59 – “Women thrive on drama, it allows them to weaponise emotion and push an agenda. Starve them of emotion, and they have nothing to fight with. A woman starved of emotion will become desperate to sustain her psychological onslaught. As such, she will attempt to pry it from the dead, exaggerating observations and manufacturing issues in order to sustain the indignance necessary to maintain her psychological assault.”

IM MAXIM #60 – “Women are psychologically violent.”

And probably my favourite one:

IM MAXIM #63 – ““Always protect the core of your essence, should you choose to let her in, never let her in completely. See yourself as a castle, let her into the castle, but do not give her the key to the heaviest door. She will notice the door is closed. She will ask you what's behind the door and if “you can let her in?” Ignore her protests and manipulations. Never open that door. Not a woman alive other than perhaps your mother is worth opening this door for. If you believe love entails “sharing everything,” you don't understand love.”

If you want the rest:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/23/fifty-shades-redder/>

Once again, enjoy!

8

UPVOTES

Ask IllimitableMan - July 2015

30 July 2015 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

You can see last month's mailbag here:

https://www.reddit.com/r/asktrp/comments/39xxkm/ask_illimitableman_june_2015/

And the chosen questions/published answers here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/06/monthly-mailbag-june-2015/>

Some guidelines:

- This isn't an AMA, it's more an "agony uncle" type deal. If you ask me personal questions I'm not going to publish any answers to them.
- I will only feature the best questions. The better/more in-depth your question, the more chance it will have of being answered. If my answer is so in-depth that it's worth its own essay, then it won't be answered (I'll just be tempted to write a separate article instead, time permitting.) This is being published on my blog, so asking questions that can easily be answered by the red pill sidebar aren't going to get published. Think more relationship problems or scenario based problems (Asking for Machiavellian advice is fine.)
- I won't publish answers to every question I get, only the questions I hand pick as being the best ones, and as many that fit within a max 2,500~ word article. I won't answer every question. It's not possible.
- If you ask a question about the dark triad I won't answer it in the mailbag, I'll reserve it for the dark triad Q&A like when I did this one. It's not the upcoming post, but part 2 is in the works.

Leave your questions here, or choose any of the methods shown here to get in touch. Remember, I won't answer your question here, if I answer it, I will answer it in a blog post at the end of the month. If other people want to answer your question in the comments here, that's fine by me.

If you get ignored, remember, it's nothing personal.

161

UPVOTES

Solipsism, Emotion & Arguments

1 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You do not argue with women when you wish for them to comprehend, comply or agree. You cannot argue against woman's feelings, only manipulate them. Argument necessitates reason, but reason is ineffectual in conflict with women. In non-political matters, where a man will yield to superior logic, a woman will not. And so man must manipulate woman's emotions in a way that makes her cooperative, or he should not engage her at all.

If a woman is so entitled or indignant that you find yourself unable to escape her compulsion to argue, you would be wise to engage her as a Machiavellian rather than a logician. Man must remember that when lured into argument with a woman, he is at battle. The dispute at hand is Machiavellian, not rational. A game, not a civilised debate. The man who believes the argument is about mutual cooperation via the discovery of truth rather than the assuagement of the involved woman's emotional state, operates on a doomed axiom. A man's desire to problem solve is fundamentally incompatible with a woman's desire for catharsis.

Men are quite wrongfully taught they should placate women's emotions, or engage in mind-numbingly futile attempts to reason with them. To do either is to forfeit power before conflict even begins. Such strategies are losing propositions. Man should neither placate nor reason with a distressed woman. But rather, he should be charming enough to keep conflict superficial. When argument cannot be avoided, he need be Machiavellian enough to belittle her. He should not under any uncertain circumstance argue back-and-forth with any degree of seriousness, for arguing against a woman's emotional state is as foolish as it is masochistic.

If conflict is unavoidable and reason impenetrable, all that is left is to assert dominance. This is man's only recourse when a woman is trying to dominate him psychologically. Once her emotions have settled, it is wise to explain your reasoning and expectations as a way of guiding the woman, should you care for her. But only outside the confines of argument, never in the heat of it. Naturally, if the woman in question is insignificant, such paternal patience is unnecessary. Aftercare is discretionary.

To read the rest, skip to section 3 here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/08/01/solipsism-emotion-arguments/>

Enjoy.

73

UPVOTES

Promiscuity & Civilization

26 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As is typical, I was browsing the forum when a gentleman's question caught my eye:

Monogamy isn't the norm in the animal kingdom, by far. So why do we so hungrily desire this form of relationship?

The questioner is, as is quite common, falling victim to the appeal to nature fallacy. The fallacy is the assumption that because something is natural, it is optimum. In this case: "promiscuity comes naturally to humans, therefore, promiscuity is a good thing." Of course, such thinking is not only fallacious but solipsistic.

It appears a given that the average mind conflates naturality to be synonymous with "good." Such thinking is used to great effect in marketing to give the word "natural" a positive connotation. Objectively the word is neither negative nor positive, merely neutral. Therefore the ubiquity of the assumption that "natural" can be equated with "good" is nothing more than a culturally programmed memetic infused into the collective consciousness. We typically associate the word "nature" and its derivative forms with health, enchanting trees and lush green lawns. But such an association is an inaccurate synonymy for "good," as cancer, manure and vomit are as equally natural – if not quite so appealing.

To briefly demonstrate the irrationality of such an idea, consider you use a computerised device to read this. Computers are incredibly useful, but they are anything but natural. So why do we use computers if they're unnatural creations that aren't the norm in the animal kingdom? Well of course because computers, like all technology, confer benefits upon human lifestyle we would not otherwise reap. The unnaturalness of computers is considered, on the whole, to be a net positive, not negative. As such, computers have become a bedrock of civilization. They do not need to be natural to enhance our quality of life. They merely need be the most efficient in performing the duties assigned to them. In this regard, monogamy and computers have a lot in common.

To read the rest, skip to section 2 here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/08/26/promiscuity-civilization/>

Enjoy.

437

UPVOTES

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Single mothers are complete and utter mother fucking subhuman scum 99.9% of the time. If she's not a widow, she's scum. The statistics for kids raised by single mothers shows all manner of dysfunction (poverty, mental illness, crime) for kids raised by single mothers, but not widows. So as far as I'm concerned widows are cool it's not their fault the dad died, they're not making bad decisions but shit happens.

But single mothers - they play the victim angle like a motherfucker and all the SJWs/politically correct bluepillers make the wild fucking assumption that it's not the woman's fault, revoking all agency or blame from the dumb silly bitch who chose to raise a kid alone. But the sheep don't see it like that, they start making all these wild accusations that the father was probably abusive or violent and that's why she raised the kid alone.

It's presumed the mother is a victim of circumstance even though 99% of the time she created the circumstances she's in not only for herself, but for her kid(s.) And it's presumed the father is an asshole, but most the time he was a horny guy begged not to use a condom and told she was on the pill when she wasn't. So she gets pregnant and keeps the kid. Sometimes these guys don't even know they have a kid until they get a child support notice out of thin air. Then the poor guy gets fucking berated for being a deadbeat when all he did was fuck a woman under the presumption it was recreational sex and that no baby would be born.

If bitches are deceiving guys into fatherhood, and then crying victim when it backfires because he refuses to defer to her deceit, tough shit for her. The only victim here as far as I'm concerned is the child. She tricked the guy she fucked, tried to force him to become a parent, and when he wouldn't, tried to ruin his reputation and extract wealth. That is some fucked up shit. But hardly anybody sees it from that perspective, do they? Naturally, bitches be crazy and society is all jumped up on the sycophancy of feminism and the woman are wonderful effect, so she's blameless and he's just a cunt. People are so single-minded and intent on blaming the father it's unbelievable. If your father is never there for you growing up, there's a good fucking chance that's your mothers fault.

But no, everyone acts like she's this marvellous creature for forcing her kid(s) to struggle for THEIR ENTIRE LIVES. And that the guy is probably some dark triad woman/kid abusing asshole.

It's total fucking bullshit. Very few men are violent or abusive, that's complete lying utter horseshit used to smear the male name and justify the child abuse that is raising kids without a father.

No, the truth is, mummy was somebody's plate/one night stand and thought it would be a wise idea to not use protection AND THEN keep the kid. Her body, her choice, right? Does this oft gloated feminist principle not fucking extend to the responsibility of giving and raising life too?

It makes me sick how everybody rallies to the aid of single mothers and exclaims how hard they have it and how everyone should feel sorry for them. Fuck that. Fuck them. They had a choice didn't they? I mean a whore has a fucking choice to take a pill, or get an implant or terminate. Or a million other things. The kid had no fucking choice to be born and go through all the dysfunction that awaits it. The kid is a total innocent and the mother, a cunt.

I reserve all my sympathy for the boys and (to some extent, the girls) who grow up fatherless and fucking despise the child-abusing fucks that single mothers are. They are total fucking scum contributing to the complete and utter degeneracy of our society morally, spiritually, socially and economically. Total fucking scum. Again, it is total bullshit that the huge amount of kids who have no father all had asshole fathers who abused the mother/kid when most men in society are complete fucking betas. That's just not plausible. This is simple female blame-shifting mixed with misandry.

I have 0% empathy for these broads. How the fuck can I when I see how they destroy their children? Only the children are blameless. Their sons are welcome on TRP and their daughters, RPW. If you are the son of a single mother, don't worry. We got you. And single mothers who for whatever reason read TRP, you're like HIV - a fucking pathogen.

EDIT: just to be clear, that 99.9% figure is exaggerated, it's not exact. It was my way of saying "the majority" - do not be so literal. Factor in some context, it's a rant after all.

Check out this less systematically scathing and offensive video by Stefan Molyneux on the topic, it has shiny graphs and shit and basically backs up all my vitriol:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=o1xf78EltKM>

People always ask me what books to get. Kind of bored with repeating myself so made a page for it. Got low SMV? Nice guy? Don't know how to get started lifting? Want to be more cunning? Want to know how to get on with other men better? These books have your ass covered:

<http://illimitablemen.com/books-for-men/>

Relevant article I wrote on the topic of single mothers when my writing was shittier:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/05/08/the-suffering-of-the-lost-boys/>

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/09/04/a-most-solipsistic-nature/>

Women conflate histrionics with characteristic depth, because to women, depth is defined by interweaving hues of diverse emotional experience and how they relate to one another rather than an abstract understanding of external stimuli. Conversely, man defines depth by struggle, knowledge and a capacity for the abstract thought necessary for critical thinking.

The masculine does not view the incessant cataloguing and processing of one's emotional history to be particularly interesting or deep. However, this propensity is an intrinsic fundamental of the solipsistic rationalisation process native to women. It is this process by which women build their self-perception. Naturally, the flaw of this process is the dominance of the catalogued emotional narrative and an absence of introspection in regard to it.

The distinction between introspection and solipsism lies in that introspection assumes the external world is the root, attempting to understand where the individual fits in relation to said world. Solipsism assumes the individual is the root, and attempts to understand how the external world fits in with relation to the self. "What I think" becomes "I think that made me feel because..." And so whilst a woman considers it enlightenment to explore every nuance of her emotional palette, men view such fixation as nothing more than infantile self-absorption.

Antithetically, what man views as immature behaviour, woman perceives as mature. To a woman there is nothing more interesting and mature than "understanding herself." Whilst man desires to understand the world, a woman desires to understand herself. When a woman declares "she needs to find herself," other than riding a train of exotic men to accomplish the task, what she means to communicate is "I'm leaving to seek nuanced emotional experiences I haven't felt before." Eliciting the further unspoken implication "...and I don't think you can provide those experiences."

By nature of solipsism, women deem the abstract obtuse and the solipsistic reasonable, whilst man, the contrary; the solipsistic obtuse and the abstract, reasonable. Within the sexual differences into what constitutes human depth, we merely scratch the surface in elucidating how distinct the psychological perceptions of men and women are.

152

UPVOTES

Educated Women & Vapidity

27 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Education neither imbues a woman with reason nor surgically eviscerates her vapidity. The educated woman is just as vapid as the uneducated, for vapidity is symptomatic of solipsism. Women's reputation for petty gossip is the most accurate cultural memetic highlighting the vapidity of the feminine.

And yet it is oft thought that an educated woman is an intellectual woman, and that by merit of such intellect, such women are not vapid. Of course, this notion falls flat on its face when we discover that education does not give the unreasonable, reason, or the unintellectual, intellect. At its best, education makes philosophers out of thinkers and artists out of drawers. The philosopher may draw, but he will never be an artist. The artist may think, but he will never be a philosopher. And so we must resign ourselves to a most immutable conclusion: education cultivates latent talent, it does not imbue absent talent.

If personal experience teaches anything, it is that although men expect educated women to be less vapid than uneducated ones, such expectation yields little but disappointment. Only in the most fortuitous of circumstances will such an expectation be fulfilled. I've known many a man to frequent the company of erudite women, some even more learned than he. And yet, a common complaint pervades – "these women are well-educated, yet somehow they lack self-awareness and appear dense." Her level of education deceptively led the man to expect greater intellect, yet in spite of her education, she disappointed the expectation.

And so to an intellectual man, the educated woman is a most curious creature. She is educated, yet comparatively dim. Who would naturally associate education with knowledge bereft of self-awareness? Or erudition devoid reason and intellectual curiosity? Aren't these very things the root of all knowledge? Indeed they are. And yet, knowledge can be passed on without such things. The fundamental hallmarks of intellectualism are necessary only for innovation, not repetition. A fast learner is not necessarily a good thinker, one need only look at the Chinese to see emulation rather than innovation; women are the proverbial Chinese.

Man's folly lies in his conflation of education with intellectualism. Intelligent men infer that education can only be obtained if one is rational, analytical, and above all, intellectually curious. As such, men wrongfully assume educated woman possess these qualities, for they think it impossible to succeed educationally without them.

Of course, this line of reasoning is false. Even the humblest of experience will quickly reveal that the majority of educated women are nothing more than adequate rote learners. Well versed in the memorisation of how complex processes work, but quite unable to reason independently of what they were taught. And so it appears dedication and memory supersede intellect in matters of educational attainment, for if they didn't, we wouldn't have the number of highly educated women that we do.

If education demanded independent thought, there would be a degree shortage, and the number of women graduating? It would plummet. There's a reason women make great accountants; accountants memorise processes to balance assets and liabilities, there is marginal innovation at best.

To read the rest, scroll down to section 2:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/09/27/educated-women-vapidity/>

1,080
UPVOTES

Your struggle and pain? Women neither understand nor give much of a fuck.

2 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Got a bunch of requests to make a comment of mine in another thread into a post, so here it is.

Some men are prone to thinking "if women could just understand, they'd work with us." No. Just no. Stop. That's wishful thinking. Women will never work with us, because what they want and what we want are similar but different. The way we think, the way we want to do things, the fact women want to constantly fight you for control whilst secretly subconsciously hoping they don't win means we're in a perpetual state of war. (war = maxim 6)

In the "men aren't taught to be attracted, women are born into it" thread the OP sounds a little purple pill. Don't get me wrong there's a lot of gold in there, but because he's trying to logic a girl there's a lot of "meet me halfway here" sentiment in his explanation and she doesn't budge a fucking inch. This is testament to the notion women see any attempt at male self-improvement that may possibly undermine their monopoly on social power as nothing but a threat to be thwarted.

Women don't want a work in progress they want a winner, the work in progress is ugly, the rage, the insecurity - all of it - bitches aren't cut out for that. TRP is like a machine shop where cars are in pieces being assembled/repainted and whatever, and bitches just be like "I don't want to see that, they're ugly, show me a shiny lambo, that car probably doesn't even start!" Women want the product with the perfect presentation and to be completely ignorant of the underlying layers that go into creating it.

TRP is a fucking hospital for fucked up guys. And guys aren't even allowed to be fucked up, are they? Society fucks men up, they try to do something about it by utilising TRP, and apparently that's a bad thing too. Everything they do is wrong. Bitches come here, pass judgement and then act like they know shit. These women are fucking clueless and their snooping enlightens them not one iota. Where we see progress and catharsis, they are just revolted and trying to get in our heads. Not so they can help us, but in some petty female attempt to outsmart our knowledge of their biology/psych (again, IM MAXIM 6.) A futile endeavour, but there you go.

They don't even try to understand "the WHY" behind TRP. They are just filled with discomfort and suspicion at the thought of men coming together to discuss women and society in the very way that they do. Women do not like the idea of male autonomy, women always want to be in the picture, having a say and influencing men. Men specialise in influencing the world whilst women specialise in influencing men, that's always the way it's been, whether it's been through feminism or using her looks/submission to charm a man into commitment (that's RPW.)

TRP is one of very few places where women have NO POWER WHATSOEVER. And they fucking hate that. No power, lots of "work in progress men" that aren't currently at a "fuckable level," unspoken societal mechanics out in the open being plainly spoken, this shit offends and fucks with them. They can't understand. They can't care. They're not in that fucking world. They're not men so they don't understand the struggle, the grind, the sweat that takes to become a man worth a fuck.

Plus there's the little double standard that's it's fine for her to artificially enhance her SMV, but if you don't "grow up that way," and instead have to consciously try to fix yourself, you're clearly a damaged tryhard rather than a natural and you belong in the beta box society has already assigned you. Women like to stereotype men as bitch boys and fuck boys and they're very black and white about that. They don't want to see any crossover, the mere concept fucks with them epically.

Truth is, women would be happier if men got their balls back and started leading again but they've been brainwashed too and just aren't cognisant of it. It's a huge mind fuck that women are constantly try to feminise men and feed them disinformation that fucks up their chances, but will eagerly fuck any guy who ignores all of that and knows what it takes to be an effective, dominant and successful man. Which is all any man here really wants to be.

The worst thing you can do is show the enemy your play book and trust them to empathise or get on board.

Women are not your friends, but neither are they your competition. They are not your equals, they are your prey. You hunt, and if you know what you're doing, you snag one. You lead the relationship, if you fuck up, there is no relationship. There is no equality and no understanding, there is simply you being a leader picking/attracting/maintaining a relationship with a woman of your choosing. That's it.

People like to think they can use TRP to get a girl and then "just be themselves" but the reality is, the "gaming" (manipulating) never stops. And women will never stop manipulating you, testing you to make sure you're strong/better than them. That's just the way it is.

You all need to accept this instead of hoping otherwise.

If women gave a remote shit about men, life from a man's viewpoint or even helping men, feminism wouldn't be a thing. Open your eyes. We're on our own with this. Woman on TRP will never empathise with us, they are just here to enhance their own manipulation. Women have an edge and they don't want men to take that away from them.

Lucky for them, even a woman knowing about TRP doesn't stop TRP working on her. It's all human behaviour. Women like what they like, they are who they are and they're attracted to what they're attracted to. But we don't need them having any meaningful presence here.

Bitches don't belong in the locker room and they know it that's why they lurk. Women having any say or presence within TRP will be the death of it, just as it was with the seduction sub, askmen, and all the other previous male spaces that women took over.

All relationships are war, yeah I know that sounds fucked up but just think about it. If it wasn't this thing you had to win and dominate, you wouldn't need TRP because bitches would work with you and not against you. Truth be told, the irony is, bitches only work with you when you're winning - which means dominating life AND them. But they will try to jostle you for power, and if you give in, you sign your own death sentence. Heed me.

*2015 UPDATE - "Lucifer's Daughter" - Introducing The Female Psychopath

12 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

Ignore the date, that's the original publication date. It was overhauled yesterday.

I have updated my article on female psychopathy to better reflect my current level of writing. I'm slowly going through this process with all my older content. Even if you read the original piece I recommend reading this again. It's a lot easier to read, flows better and is overall more coherent; a testament to the improvement in my writing over the years. Enjoy.

Dark triad women are women who possess zero negative empathy disorders; a "zero negative empathy disorder" is a term coined by autism researcher Simon Baron-Cohen of Cambridge University. It effectively means: "a lack of affective empathy" (the ability to feel what another feels as they feel it, eg: sadness) in combination with a lack of moral concern for the well-being of others. Both must be present to constitute a zero negative empathy disorder, otherwise we end up with a different classification of empathy disorder such as autism.

Zero negative empathy disorders predominantly include narcissists and psychopaths, as well as borderlines to a lesser albeit significant extent. It excludes those on the autistic spectrum who are empathy-deficient, but typically neither Machiavellian nor morality negative. This article is based upon a woman who was in my estimation a type P (psychopath) or if we are to use a clinician's term, a woman with anti-social personality disorder (ASPD).

You may see overlap in the description of women you have known diagnosed with different psychiatric disorders (bipolar, borderline, narcissistic personality disorder etc) in my descriptions of the type P here. However, such empathy deficient psychiatric disorders have marginal differences, mainly their underlying cause and the nature of their manifestation. The nature of their manifestation alluding to whether their behaviour is consistent with a personality running off a single mental schema (ASPD and NPD,) or a binary personality that follows a cyclical pattern of alternating schemas (borderline and bipolar).

People who are educated on the differences between various cluster B personality disorders will contend the last paragraph was ignorant if not controversial, but to the perception of the neurotypical person (the majority,) the outward differences manifested by cluster B personality types are superficially marginal. Case in point, going from the feedback I've had discussing female psychopathy with my readers, most men are unable to distinguish a psychopathic woman from a borderline. They think they're one and the same - but they aren't. In all fairness, the differences are marginal and one would need to get a little too close for comfort to discern such subtleties.

Nevertheless, in spite of the nuances pertaining to cause and manifestation, zero negative empathy disorders are effectively a collection of variations on psychopathy. To define psychopathic behaviour as an ASPD diagnosis rather than a lack of empathy combined with a lack of moral concern is disingenuous. Once you account for cause and manifestation, there is significant behavioural overlap between all zero negative empathy disorders.

Therefore it is prudent for the layman to term this collective group "psychopaths" and deal with them as such, for each behaves as callously and cunning as "a true psychopath" whether they have an ASPD diagnosis or not. A dark triad woman is as such, any woman with cluster B personality psychopathic inclinations, not merely a woman with an ASPD diagnosis (which is for a slew of reasons I don't want to digress into, quite rare.)

In this article I discuss the female psychopath, or as a friend and I refer to them as colloquially "a Lucifer's daughter." The term "Lucifer's daughter" was chosen to describe the cold contorted nature of the dark triad female; the choice of a religious term being to emphasise the dangerousness of such women.

Want to read the rest? Scroll to section 2.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

161

UPVOTES

Lame cliché platitude: DO IT FOR YOURSELF.

12 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Everything is sexual strategy. Even if it doesn't seem like sexual strategy, it'll be indirectly related to it whether you want it to be or not. Sex and violence are the immutable underpinnings behind all human fears and motivations. Our only real biological purpose is to reproduce, that's it. TRP recognises this.

We say "work out for you, not for bitches" because otherwise you'll stop working out when you start getting chicks. Because you'll intuit you've achieved your objective, your passion for it will decrease, thus weakening your strategy. "Workout for chicks - starts getting chicks - ok no need to workout now." But that doesn't change the fact that working out increases your reproductive fitness, thus enhancing your sexual strategy. Whether you do it for the chicks or not is irrelevant in this regard, it still has that effect. The same as getting money. Whether you do it with the intent to bed women, or because you want freedom and security, it still has the effect of opening up more women to you. Intent is relevant only to the big picture - that's securing your future.

You have to make sure you have the right motivations to ensure your strategy is always optimal rather than only as optimal as your motivation. Optimisation does not align with motivation when you only work out/get money etc for women rather than yourself. When women are your motivation, your resolve crumbles as quickly as their reliability. Women are fickle, so you're setting yourself up for failure. Optimisation only aligns with motivation when you strive for yourself rather than for women because no matter what women do, you keep working out/earning etc. And that in turn has the passive effect of maximising your strategy. You don't even have to pursue women or date but the option is there should you choose to. And it's good to know you have options, options are power.

I guess a real core of TRP is shifting the focus from women to the self - and keeping it there - because although seemingly counterintuitive, like ignoring something to obtain it, it proves the most effective strategy over the long haul.

Men have traditionally been motivated by the promise of women, or the desire to protect women they care for to go and be successful/great. But we're in a new age where such thinking will leave you vulnerable, where all it takes is a violation of the trust implicit in your self-sacrifice to find yourself crushed. When you base your reason for being and striving on any particular woman, say your wife, all it takes an enemy to destroy you is to charm your girl, not only breaking your heart but crushing your motivation to strive in the process.

When you do it for a girl you tell anyone who might have a problem with you "here is how to destroy me."

And if she gets bored with you anyway, you're destroyed.

A large part of TRP IMO is overcoming these potential vulnerabilities. When you are self-reliant, nobody can take your reason for being away from you. A lot of guys just need to learn how to love themselves. Bitches too narcissistic, men not narcissistic enough.

If somebody had told me what I'm about to tell you when I was a teenager, my life could have gone down a completely different path. Recently I received a message where I felt it necessary to reveal some of my life's struggles in order to help nail home some serious points. My response became lengthy in an effort to address the question, and resultantly, this article was born.

Question: "how do I become happy?"

Happiness is how you feel about yourself. Usually people are unhappy because they are mad at themselves (lack of discipline) or because they aren't succeeding as much (or as quickly) as they believe they should.

I've been depressed on and off numerous times in my life and the root of said misery derived from two core character flaws:

– A lack of self-discipline:

Self-discipline never came easily to me because my attention span sucked and I didn't have a strict upbringing. By being allowed to do what the hell I wanted as a kid, I formed into an adult with an ingrained lack of self-discipline. My training (or lack of it) meant I'd almost always default to the path of least resistance.

Of course parents who don't provide an orderly upbringing suck, but blaming their inadequate parenting for your faults doesn't achieve anything actionable. As an adult, you have to take responsibility for disciplining yourself.

Why is discipline so important?

Self-discipline is essential if you want to be somebody worth a fuck. If you lack it, this should be the very first thing you work on. Nothing else can fall into place without it.

There are a million and one bullshit seminars and books out there looking to make money out of your insecurities by promising to make you confident. 99.9% are nonsense. As P.T Barnum said "there's a sucker born every minute."

The truth: only you can make you confident.

Disciplined people are confident people (not necessarily egotistical) because they're proud of what they do. When you know you're putting the work in, a by-product of your efforts will be pride. Pride translates into self-confidence, confidence translates into charm, and it's an upward spiral from there on. But everything starts with discipline – everything. Discipline is the root of success as much as 3 is the root of 9. If you are not someone blessed with a natural irrational confidence, this is how you get confident.

– Being overly analytical:

I'm naturally prone to analysis paralysis because I have an analytical nature. Once you achieve a reasonable amount of self-discipline, you can catch yourself in the act of procrastination and force yourself to act.

Other than procrastinating, the other problem with being overly analytical is it allows you to see all the negatives in the world (there are many, everywhere, daily) and the sheer volume can will bog you down if you're not careful.

If you are intellectual, your analytical faculty will apply a negative filter to life because you are prone to cynicism, over-thinking, and in turn, inaction. These traits are a hotbed for depression, and depression destroys productivity. I think I just described every intelligent underachiever that ever lived – knowing so much, yet doing so little.

You can read the rest here (look for silver line going across the page, that's the point you'll want to read on from)

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/10/22/how-to-be-happy/>

223

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Antibiotic Nuke 2015 UPDATE

1 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Since the red pill antibiotic nuke was originally written the project has evolved exponentially.

So what's new? There's an entirely new essay layout and 25 different topics intricate to the red pill philosophy discussed. The essay contents are far too large to paste in their entirety here, so I will leave you with just the first section to give you an idea and you can read the rest here should you desire.

Feminism, Pity, Power & Privilege:

Feminists crave privileges which consolidate the realm of male power with that of the female. Typically they are traditionalist in ways which benefit women (men pay for dates, pressure to perform is squarely on men) but “progressive” where traditionalism would limit their power (intolerance for female promiscuity, a reluctance to trust women with leadership.)

This is achieved by glossing over the influence of feminine soft power in society (influence and charm), and comparing men and women solely in hard power (economic and political). In taking this highly one-sided approach to power, feminists play upon humanity’s propensity to take pity on women, and where the myth of female powerlessness is bought into, more power is redistributed to them.

Feminism is nothing more than a female supremacy movement posing as one of humanist egalitarianism. Feminism highlights female incompetence in areas where men excel, redefines them as injustices by blaming men for female ineptitude, and then legally mandates the promotion of women within said areas. As such, women consistently make social gains in areas where men have traditionally dominated.

All the while women continue to quietly monopolise soft power. Because social influence (the female monopoly on pity as well as beauty) is difficult to quantify, its prominence is neither stated nor factored into measures of equality. And in case you think that ridiculous, feminists factor in things as benign as the economic value of housework, so not to do the same with female beauty or vulnerability is highly disingenuous if your goal is to economically quantify elements relevant to social equality.

Where the reverse occurred, where men monopolised hard power, we experienced 50~ years of social engineering to correct for the fact. The ability to be respected in spite of glaring vulnerability is a staggering albeit scarcely spoken of social advantage women enjoy, yet it is the pivotal psychological fulcrum on which feminism owes its modern ideological dominance.

Where the pendulum has swung too far in favour of women, a successful male counter movement has failed to materialise. Not solely because, but chiefly because pity is in short supply for men. A man seeking pity is despised for his weakness rather than helped because of it, and so the very psychological mechanism which gave birth to female economic and political power is nought but a dead-end for men.

As an aside, I'm working on my book at the moment. So if you could register your intent in this poll, I'd appreciate that. Thank you for your time, I hope you all enjoy the updated article.

To go straight to the full article, click this.

Article breakdown:

- 1.) Preface
- 2.) Breakdown of the Three Core Traits
 - 2a.) Machiavellianism
 - 2b.) Narcissism & Psychopathy
- 3.) A Spectrum, Not An Absolutism
- 4.) The Difference Between Machiavellianism & The Other 2/3's of The Triad
- 5.) How Do You Become Machiavellian?
- 6.) How Do You Become Narcissistic?
- 7.) In Closing

1.) Preface:

The dark triad is often incorrectly perceived to be one specific personality type, this is wrong. The dark triad is the culmination of three distinct intersecting personality traits present in one individual. As such, 'dark triad' is a blanket term alluding to a comorbidity of psychological traits typically associated with empathy and attachment disorders, not a trait in and of itself.

I expect this to sound somewhat pedantic or obscure to the uninitiated, but nevertheless, to dispel any ignorant confusion surrounding "what the dark triad is," I feel this distinction important to emphasise.

If you have taken the test on the war and power page, you will have a crude understanding of what the dark triad entails. If you are already confused as early into the article as you are, I urge you to read the initial overview as well as the dark triad Q & A, each describes the dark triad at the simplest level I am able to communicate.

2.) Breakdown of the Three Core Traits:

Machiavellianism is the puppeteer's hand pulling the strings. Sometimes perceived but often not, it is the cunning which directs and sets the agenda. Narcissism is a heart of self-obsession and vanity which manifests as an aggressive concoction of indomitable boldness and unyielding confidence at its most extreme. Psychopathy is the enigmatic silence, the absence of inhibition, an effortless fearlessness mired in a nihilistic and amoral calm.

2a.) Machiavellianism:

Machiavellianism is perception, strategic insight, cunning and concealment. Machiavellianism like all strategy is amoral, it can be used altruistically or predatorily. The boundaries of Machiavellianism are determined by the moral code of the practitioner, Machiavellianism itself knows no boundaries, prioritising efficiency with a penchant for concealment.

At its crudest, Machiavellianism is calculated thinking applied to social strategy as a means of survival, at it's most beautiful, it is the beating heart of a studious enquiry into the art of power.

One who cannot master a Machiavellian competency will never gain power, and should power find them, it will be tasted only so briefly as to escape the bestowed. The unwily man who inherits power intuits he is quick prey, outclassed by those covetous of the trappings of a position he knows not how to defend. Vulnerable to predation, paranoid of it, unable to stop it, the unworthy man loses his power to the more competently cunning; be that a rival, or as is more typical, a beautiful woman.

Individuals only possess a position they are strategically competent enough to defend, therefore it stands to reason that regardless of the aestheticism of one's morality, individuals in positions of great power are highly Machiavellian. Power draws attack from all directions, as such where one was not sufficiently Machiavellian, power would escape them. Power respects the ruthless and despises the clumsy, it clings to the cunning and evades the obtuse.

Machiavellianism is socially maladaptive, this means it can be learned subconsciously as an effect of psychological conflict, consciously via voracious erudition, or both.

The people who read this blog will be at differing levels of competency, some will possess relatively little natural cunning and hope to teach themselves, others will possess a natural cunning they seek to better understand.

The main benefit for the incompetent is obvious, obtain competence. The main benefit for naturals lies in developing a conscious understanding of their ability. By putting words to something that is otherwise just unconscious behaviour, deeper self-understanding can be achieved leading to a greater degree of mastery. As an aside, I have it on good authority that the cunning harbour an habitual liking for the study of power.

You can read the rest of the article from section 2b onwards here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/11/18/understanding-the-dark-triad-the-second-overview/>

A lot of dudes don't understand AWALT because they haven't had many if ANY serious relationships. I'll listen to a player when it comes to hooking up, but the dude knows fuck all about female psychology beyond the attraction stage and so he's not really qualified to understand AWALT outside a seduction context.

A dude that's been in an LTR with one chick for 5 years knows more about women than a guy who's been hooking up with chicks and briefly plating for 5 years. The latter has mastered seduction, the prior actually knows more about the nature of what he's dealing with beyond the initial bedding stage because he's around for the bad and not just the good.

I find dudes who don't commit and just have short flings all the time have a very rosy-perception of women because they've got their game down enough not to face that much bullshit when it comes to getting laid, and beyond that they're not subject to any of the relationship bullshit. So they enjoy the best of what women have to offer without being subject to any of the bullshit and this gives them a hugely positive bias, as if men aren't wired to pedestalise pussy anyway. They go around thinking "hey women are great, I love fucking em and flirting with em, those dudes saying AWALT on TRP are just bitter."

Maybe some dudes are bitter, bitter doesn't mean wrong.

If you put "all" in front of anything, you're wrong, there is going to be an exception somewhere, but the exception proves the rule.

AWALT is a quick way of saying a lot in a few words:

- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time prefer emotion to logic
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time will betray you for a better option, loyal only to power
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time have very little emotional self-control
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time behave like children

No that list isn't exhaustive. And just because a chick doesn't betray you one time, or doesn't get overly emotional over nothing one time - doesn't mean she doesn't have a propensity to do this most of the time. If you literally hand pick a girl's best moments, you can disprove every fundamental of AWALT - but that's not intellectually honest nor representative. AWALT is imperfect, but it is representative.

Just because you're designed to put women on a pedestal and see them as greater than they are due to your biological imperative to fuck them, doesn't mean they aren't any of these things.

If you knew a dude who were these things, you'd hate him, cuss him out and mock him. But women get a free pass for commonly exhibiting traits we collectively hate. Why? We're literally hard-wired to give bitches a free pass and overlook their flaws. No matter how shitty women are, dudes just want to enjoy them, they JUST want to be happy, so they deny certain truths or EXEMPT one particular woman they wish to enjoy in order to facilitate this desire.

This is why people hate AWALT even if they know in their heart of hearts its absolutely fundamentally true. Instinct obscures truth when it comes to the study of women, men are overridden by idealism, lust and paternalism and feel if they accept the nature of women that they have to hate them as a result and then they won't be able to enjoy them. Not true at all, sometimes you just have to accept reality is not what you want it to be, that women are not angelic like you were taught they were, but in fact far more flawed than even you.

Then in spite of this knowledge, you have to make a commitment to your own happiness and make the best out of the flawed creatures that are women. AWALT means: hey, women possess a bunch of shitty traits we hate that vary only by degree rather than presence among women, but now you have to enjoy them in spite of this!

I know that isn't easy, I know it's hard, and I know the knowledge is painful - that's why dudes struggle with this.

But your struggle doesn't alter her nature, you can sit on reddit until you pass out debating pedantic little points in regard to AWALT, but AWALT will remain a truism that persists.

On the topic of enjoying things that are fucked up, I know my tuna is polluted with mercury because these fucking third world countries dump all their factory waste into the ocean, yet I still enjoy my tuna. Not quite the same I know, but it's an example that something can be far from perfect yet still provide happiness. Ultimately the reason dudes are resistant to AWALT is because they see it as a threat to their happiness.

The inability to grasp and ACCEPT AWALT, instead choosing to REJECT AWALT out of autistic pedanticism is no more than a sign that the person in question has to lie about the nature of women to themselves in order to like and enjoy them. They are not at the stage where they can enjoy women WHILST ACCEPTING HOW FLAWED AND FUCKED UP THEY ARE.

If you don't think women are fucked up because your perception is clouded by idealism, you're not red pill. Likewise if you think you're going to be happy without any women in your life, chances are you won't be - at least not if you're family orientated. Love 'em or hate 'em, ya need 'em - and they need you even more.

It honestly bewilders me how autistic and retarded some people are as to take the word ALWAYS, miss the forest for the trees and fucking run with it.

Any time I've popped my head in purplepilldebate for a quick minute I've seen constant bickering over this.

How hard is it to understand?

AWALT is saying "women will be women, and this is what women are like."

Sometimes you will be surprised, but you shouldn't live like you expect to be surprised, you should live being aware of the nature of the creature you're dealing with. AWALT is a heuristic, an extremely accurate one at that, you can live by it and have a great life. You don't need to be right 100% of the time to enjoy life, being right the majority of the time is just as effective. You know what is less effective? constantly convincing yourself you're in possession of a woman who is part of the negligible .01% and that these are the only women you can give yourself permission to love. This is a recipe for misery!

Sometimes a women apologises to me and admits she is wrong for something she said or did, when this happens I am pleasantly surprised but this doesn't mean "oh, looks like this woman isn't part of the 99.9% of women who won't take responsibility for anything!" because most of the time, SHE DOES blame shift. The .1% of the women are those who, in this one particular facet RARELY BLAME SHIFT. And even if a woman is part of the .1% in that one aspect, she may be part of the 99.9% in all the other aspects, such as little emotional self-control, disloyal etc.

AWALT is immutable, I think most guys simply can't and don't want to accept it, somewhere in the back of their head they want to think their unicorn is out there, that they'll find a chick who is in the .1% of all the qualities we despise in women, lock her down and not have her leave. It's fucking bullshit.

Applying The Red Pill: An Analysis

30 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/11/30/applying-the-red-pill-an-analysis/>

The red pill is not infallible, rather it is a male-centric analysis into the nature of men and women. It ignores moral considerations because morality impinges on the capacity to discover truth, but disrespect for virtuousness in pursuit of truth does not mean an unvirtuous life is being advised. It is not ruled out, but neither is it advised. It is up to you, a reader of red pill philosophy, to make that choice; the philosophy cannot make that choice for you.

Moral arguments cannot be dismissed as much as they can be rebutted, anybody can say “X is wrong” but what they really mean is “X doesn’t work for me.” I am incredibly capable of listening to entire counterarguments, I will even agree with many of an argument’s pointed critique of my views, but ultimately nine times out of ten I will still retain my stance in spite of an enhanced understanding of the opposing viewpoint. Arguments (proper debates, not Machiavellian point scoring) are a great way to learn from others, so if you enjoy listening to logic as well as learning, they’re a wholly pleasurable activity in and of themselves.

Great minds often pick holes in one another’s views, come to understand one another better, but do not change their position. To shift position, a view has to be demonstrated to be fundamentally incorrect. One’s preferences for particular kinds of conduct do not disprove a line of reasoning, they merely ignore them in favour of something intuited to be more preferable, often, that means self-serving. However, and this is important to emphasise: one man’s best move can be another man’s worst. The reason for this? Not all men have equal capabilities, and therefore, equal options conferring mutually beneficial outcomes.

This is exactly why the red pill is more a philosophy (or praxeology) than it is a movement or religion. Movements and religions confer little liberty in regard to individualist morality coexisting within their framework, they command and state in a rather absolutist manner. This provides security and well-being to the less intellectually endowed seeking comfort within reality; it allows them to feel as if they “have figured everything out” and thereby live functionally in a manner conducive to clean mental health. But naturally, to the more intellectually curious, this falls short.

This blog consists of my opinions, the matter-of-fact articulation doesn’t make any of it irrefutably infallible perfect fact.

In all things the truth lies somewhere in the middle, unless we are talking mathematics there is no “all” and there is no “never”, merely there are varying degrees of probability which measure the likelihood of a specific outcome. Generally, when we use the word “never” we mean “almost never” and by “always” we mean “almost always”, it is a by-product of ego that we often omit such clarification as we believe the fact it is ‘almost always’ or ‘almost never’ should be self-apparent. Of course, to the less knowledgeable among us, this is typically not the case.

Read the rest here, begin from section 2.

275

UPVOTES

The Suffering of the Lost Boys

9 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full article here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/05/08/the-suffering-of-the-lost-boys/>

I've just finished reworking my article on the effects of being raised by single mothers or bitch dads, enjoy!

1.) Introduction:

It is unbecoming of a man to identify as a victim, thus I never encourage men to see themselves in this way. However, a boy raised by a single mother or family with a submissive father has been deprived his birthright. These are the lost boys, the unwitting victims of poor parenting. I label them victims only in the sense they have been done a great disservice, that is not to say this cannot be overcome, but that merely a most deleterious handicap has been conferred on them.

A boy raised by a beta is not taught social dominance, or how to protect himself physically or mentally. He's not shown how to attract women, and chances are he will lack basic yet necessary life skills such as self-discipline. Like the boy of the single mother, he is forced to employ the internet as a surrogate for the father he never had. The need for young men, as well as lost boys who have grown into adult men to be "good at being a man" is dire. To any man masculinity is important, but due to paternal deprivation this need is even greater among lost boys. It is as such that in a time where there is little in the way of support for boys and men, the manosphere has manifested.

Boys need a strong paternal figure in their life, someone to teach them of, and guide them in the ways of men. More importantly, they need someone to shield them from the estrogenic tirades of a struggling mother. A young boy is not fit to adequately handle nor sufficiently cope with an adult woman's emotions, yet in the absence of a strong father this burden as "man of the house" is imposed on a young boy to his developmental detriment. A woman's emotions don't care if her boy is only 7 years old, if she's got to emote, she's going to.

So what happens when, through no fault of his own, said 7-year-old grows into a young 20-year-old who never had the strong paternal figure he needed to become the best version of himself? When due to such poor upbringing, he is clueless in the ways of men, inadequate with women, undisciplined, depression prone and mentally unbalanced? He goes onto his computer, he tells his problems to his therapist, Google, and if the "I'm feeling lucky button" works right, he ends up here.

2.) Father Hunger:

The lost boy is damaged, driven to spiritual dysfunction by excess exposure to estrogen. For a lost boy estrogenic influences are abundant to the point of toxicity, with testosterone influence but a scant repository oasis-like in its scarcity.

Whether a boy came from a single mother or a weak father, the root and core of his problems as a man are one and the same. In his formative years, he lacked a dominant albeit benevolent masculine role model to guide him. A boy needs a patriarch to teach him the ways of men, and so a woman will not do, for the condition of her existence knows not the male experience.

A woman interacts with men as a woman, a man's behaviour in relation to her is thereby measured in its response to the presence of femininity, how men behave with her is not how they behave with one another. A woman only sees what a man portrays. She does not understand the why or the how, thus she is ignorant to a man's inner-workings. Women only ever see the end product, not what it took to create.

As such, a woman may in her hubris think she understands men, but what she can never know is how to be a man among men. Because she knows not this, nor what it is like to be a man and deal with a woman, her guidance in raising a boy is merely necessary, not sufficient. Boys intuit this and men know this, but because single mothers have been catapulted atop a cultural hero pedestal, nobody dares address the elephant in the room.

Likewise a low-tier man will not do, for he is an inferior version of man, and therefore like a high school physics student holding a symposium on molecular quantum mechanics, ill-equipped to teach much of anything. Some of the boys birthed by single mothers are rescued, an alpha grandfather or uncle raises them as their own, but this is spiritual surgery to what is otherwise an avoidable problem.

The bond between father and son is sacrosanct, for boys take mental nourishment on how to be from their fathers, not their mothers. What single mothers provide their boys is a female model for how to be, and naturally this leads to feminine and broken men, not stable, competent and masculine men.

In spite of what a woman's narcissism may screech - "his father was a jerk, my boy is better off without him!", the reality is that boys want fathers and fathers want sons; it is the gynocentric cultural and legal framework which emancipates them. It is the rights of women to the detriment of men which emancipates them. It is a mother's legal entitlement to her children, where a father has no reciprocal entitlement which emancipates them.

You can read the rest here.

Full article here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/12/16/the-awalt-misconception/>

Purpose of the article: to clear up the misconceptions surrounding the AWALT heuristic.

1.) Introduction:

What is AWALT? Superficially, it's an acronym that stands for "all women are like that." Psychologically, it's a heuristic for evaluating female mating behaviours. How is a heuristic defined? Well according to "the free dictionary" it's:

"a usually speculative formulation serving as a guide in the investigation or solution of a problem"

This is exactly what AWALT is, a speculative formation serving as a guide in the investigation of female behaviour. The pseudo-intellectual takes immediate issue with the word "all", and in their grand pedanticism, immediately ceases investigating the utility of the heuristic.

AWALT does not claim that "all women are the same", this is patently false, and is as such an absurd claim to make. Rather, AWALT presupposes that women are collectively governed by a set of underlying principles which drives their behaviour. It then alludes to the principles, as well as the behaviours which result from said principles whenever they become relevant in discussion.

For example, hypergamy, solipsism, Machiavellianism and immaturity are principles which make up the AWALT umbrella. Behaviours resulting from those principles would be branch swinging, blame shifting and emotional impulsiveness, among others.

This does not mean all women act on these behavioural drivers in the same way, or that said behaviours manifest to the same degree or frequency. The degree to which, and the frequency of which AWALT traits manifest certainly differs from woman to woman, but that is all that differs, the degree and frequency of behaviour, not the type of behaviour.

So while women may be different in personality or hobby, they are still women, and therefore in matters of mating, prone to specific behaviours. For example, one woman may branch swing often, another may branch swing rarely, but both will at some point, branch swing. This is just something women do. AWALT identifies this and accepts this. AWALT broken down to the most basic level is simple acknowledgement of aspects relating to female nature, no more, no less.

When a red pill man says "women branch swing, AWALT" what does he mean? He means women don't leave relationships until they have a new one lined up. Just because one woman has had ten relationships in the past two years, and another has had two relationships in the past ten years, the difference in frequency of behaviour does not alter the underlying nature which causes the behaviour to manifest. A woman is a woman whether she is very hypergamous, or a little hypergamous, consciously Machiavellian, or subconsciously Machiavellian.

People who believe NAWALT (not all women are like that) reject the notion there is any such thing as "female nature", and that such a nature dictates women's mating behaviour. They would for example, point to a woman who has been in a relationship for the past five years and say "see, she doesn't branch swing, NAWALT!"

Not only is she the exception that proves the rule, but were she to look for another relationship, she would in all likelihood cease to be the exception. If she didn't branch swing on that one occasion, she may on another. If she never branch swings, she merely becomes the exception in regard to one aspect of AWALT. A woman consistently refuting one aspect of AWALT does not refute it in all aspects, she only refutes the aspect of the heuristic she does not represent.

A woman who refutes all aspects of AWALT is known as a unicorn, mythologically named, because such things do not exist. Just as mythology is fiction, so is the woman who refutes all aspects of AWALT. Outlier women and self-aware women who work to mitigate their nature will behaviourally refute some aspects of AWALT, but most women will refute none.

You can read the rest here.

I dislike referring to myself in the third person (corny) but I think it makes for an apt description of what I'm sharing with you guys.

These maxims are observations and deductions I've made on strategy and human behaviour in the past year. Of course it's not EVERYTHING I've recorded within that time as this is an article not a book, but it's a fairly good chunk.

I think you guys will enjoy it, especially those who struggle to read my usual denser, lengthier prose. I'll leave 25 maxims here, with a further 33 (58 total) available on my blog. Enjoy!

1. – Any and all weaknesses can be used against you, and in conflict, will be. As such, weaponise your weaknesses by making them known; hide them in plain sight. Wear your weaknesses like armour, flaunt them, and you deprive your opponents the use of ammunition that would otherwise discredit you.
2. – If weakness is speculated, deny it. If weakness is known, spin it. If it is directly observed, dismiss it. Should it look profitable, leverage it for status in the victimhood hierarchy.
3. – Justification can only exist in respectful exchanges. When you are disliked, justifications are deemed excuses, your guilt, pre-determined.
4. – Do not defend against your attackers, attack them; justification is a Machiavellian fallacy. Do not justify, stipulate. [More Here]
5. – People are like stocks, acquire assets, avoid/drop liabilities and ignore market rumours; acquire insider information wherever possible.
6. – The only difference between the toxic and the unlucky is the unlucky bring you down inadvertently, avoid both.
7. – Attacks reveal intent, defence reveals priority. You don't defend the unimportant. You don't attack allies unless it's a decoy, this simple concept can be extrapolated to any situation.
8. – The battle of the sexes is the only war where crushing the opposition isn't victory. No, a man must avoid checkmate and stalemate, he must continuously put his woman in check. This and only this is victory for both sides.
9. – Everything is war in a different set of clothing. Love, business, politics, wherever there are competing interests there is a battlefield, and wherever there is a battlefield, there is war.
10. – When things fall apart, be ready for total war.
11. – Don't insult the king in the throne room. If you must insult him, do so only amongst those you are confident share a mutual disdain. Lèse-majesté is dangerous, in this context a king is anyone you rely on socially, politically, economically etc.
12. – Lust of all kinds begets deceit, desire is good until it isn't.
13. – Machiavellianism is the art of wielding power, how it's wielded is determined by the wielder's morality or lack thereof. Don't blame the strategy, blame the soul of its employer. [Read more here.]

14. – Machiavellianism does not determine one's morals, one's morals determine the use of Machiavellianism. He who believes he is too moral for Machiavellianism is no more moral than he is an idiot.
15. – When people don't like you, their questions are attacks. Sometimes these attacks are disguised as concerns, other times they are blatant. Whenever you're asked a question, judge the legitimacy of the question. Insincere questions must be met with insincere answers, if any answer at all.
16. – Do not trust those who overwhelm you with questions. They may simply be very curious, but it is more likely they are searching for dents in your armour. The line between curiosity and interrogation is thin, and people do not wear uniforms.
17. – Doubling down on your position or ignoring the challenge usually trumps an apology.
18. – Ignore your ignorer. To ignore your ignorer is to enter a war of most silent attrition. Who will speak first when silence is golden? Whoever speaks first loses. Whoever speaks first admits they need the other more, no matter what plausible deniability they may retroactively invoke to disguise the fact.
19. – Ignoring is a non-response response; no response is a neutral response. Lots of neutral responses hint at a negative underlying sentiment, for people who like you struggle to ignore you.
20. – Where bullying fails, charm succeeds and where charm fails, bullying succeeds. One should substitute in hard power when soft power fails and vice versa.
21. – People are enticed by the allure of circumvention, operating outside the rules carries its own thrill. People feel good when they get away with things.
22. – The trick to dealing with psychopaths lies in possessing a full awareness of the conditionality of the transaction, for they are scant in sentiment.
23. – Not knowing what a psychopath wants from you is equivalent to operating within a perpetually detonating flashbang. If you cannot discern what they want, cease dealings.
24. – Being charming is the result of happiness or success, not of virtue. It is amusing that people oft fail to make this distinction, they conflate charm with virtue. As a matter of prudence, the more charming, the more dangerous.
25. – Whether you realise it or not, the powerful are always testing, always evaluating. They yield milligrams of respect only to those who consistently pass their evaluations; a fluke of success will not earn you their respect, it'll get you a glance.

FULL ARTICLE: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/12/27/machiavellian-maxims/>

Full article here, I recommend checking it out. I bought this guy's book "Muscle Up" the other day, he's great and so is his site - I discovered him through Twitter. He definitely sets himself apart from all the other fitness guys out there because he's not on that bro science bullshit, but actually reads a lot of studies and is very studious in his intellectual rigour. Got a lot of respect for this guy, definitely recommend you check out this article and then the wider blog as a whole. His supplement buying guide is also pretty awesome.

Taken from the linked article:

1. Maintenance of a lean body mass with a relatively low level of body fat is important both for health and for slowing aging. Fat tissue is not neutral, but produces inflammatory cytokines that lead to overall, generalized inflammation, which is bad.
2. While having too much fat is bad, having too little muscle may be worse. This can be seen in the fact that waist circumference is a much more accurate indicator of health than body mass index. Muscle is a highly metabolically active tissue, and contributes to glucose metabolism and insulin sensitivity.
3. We all lose muscle as we age, and most people do nothing about it. Lost muscle, if taken far enough, leads to sarcopenia, frailty, and loss of independent living in old age. Increase and maintenance of muscle mass is one of the most important health interventions around.
4. Insulin sensitivity is important for health and aging. A decrease in insulin sensitivity (an increase in insulin resistance) is often seen in aging, and is the main feature of type 2 diabetes. But it doesn't have to be this way, and attention to diet and exercise can maintain youthful levels of insulin sensitivity.
5. Weightlifting, also known as strength training and resistance training, is the best form of exercise for staying lean, maintaining and growing muscle, combating the frailty of aging, and maintaining good insulin sensitivity.
6. High intensity training (HIT), is a very effective form of exercise and can be used as an adjunct or, for some, a replacement to weightlifting.
7. Aerobic exercise, that is exercises such as running, walking, or the use of cardio machines in the gym, have health benefits, but as such they come in a distant second to weightlifting and HIT. They are very ineffective for fat loss, mainly because they don't build muscle and may in fact accelerate its loss. Distance running can actually be harmful, leading to joint injuries that sometimes necessitate surgery, and heart problems.
8. You can't outrun a bad diet. Weightlifting and HIT are the only exercises that have been shown to have a material effect on fat loss, but even here, if fat loss is the goal, attention must be paid to diet. It's extremely easy to eat more than enough calories than you exercise away. "Burning" calories through exercise is close to nonsensical. Hunger always wins.
9. If hunger always wins, then to lose fat one must choose a way of eating that dampens hunger. Low-carbohydrate diets, especially those that forbid sugar and refined carbohydrates like flour, are the best for controlling hunger.
10. The cholesterol hypothesis of heart disease is nonsense. Statins have tiny effects on mortality with the potential of large, deleterious side effects.

The other 10 principles can be found here: <http://roguehealthandfitness.com/principles-of-rogue-health/>

To go straight to the full article, click here.

1.) Introduction:

Recently I received a message from a feminist asking me some basic questions about the red pill. I figured the amount of explaining required to articulate a quality response would necessitate the writing of an essay. Here's the thing though, I don't write individualised essays; it's a poor allocation of a finite and unearnable resource: one's time.

Not only that, but I believe it would be a shame if only one fellow got to enjoy such a rich and detailed response. As such, if I find myself penning a lengthy response to someone, there's a good chance I'll just make it into an article. After all, if one person is asking these questions, others probably share similar curiosities.

Anybody curious about the red pill, or struggling to grasp it due to an inability to reconcile it with feminist or egalitarian beliefs should start here; this one's for you. I should warn you, this is one of my more lengthier posts, so you may want to go and grab a cup of coffee before you get right into the thick of things.

2.) Gender Equality is a Myth:

Question: "To you, what is the central tenet of the red pill position?"

The core of the philosophy is built on the idea that gender equality is a myth. Men are required by women to be superior in order to be attractive, women don't find equality sexy, even if they claim the contrary.

Women don't make it easy for men, most are not fully cognisant of what they want and will not tell lost boys how to be men, even if they themselves have some sort of idea of what "being a man" entails. Let's assume a magical woman exists who knows everything about being a man and is fit to educate men in the ways of manhood (humour me); the act of this woman teaching the clueless man how to be masculine would be the very thing that makes him undesirable, assuming there was some kind of physical attraction to begin with.

A man can be attracted to a woman whose femininity he is cultivating, but the reverse is not so. A woman doesn't want to cultivate a man's masculinity, she wants to find a man who's already generously endowed with it. Sure, women will try to rehabilitate bad boys due to their primal attraction to psychopathy, but a "bad boy" has masculinity even if it's of the negative type; domesticating the desirable and building up the undesirable are entirely disparate phenomena. Women will more than gladly engage in the former, but scarcely if ever the latter.

2a.) Women's Advice Damages Men:

Women's advice to men is not fit for purpose, even when they mean well, their inextricable solipsism leaves them unable to give actionable advice that will yield lasting and tangible benefit. A woman's solipsism dictates her inability to understand how she becomes attracted, to her, attraction is "mysteriously magical", and as such, a form of incomprehensible magnetism that a man either has or hasn't.

One of the reasons many women have a simultaneous disgust and intrigue for the red pill, is because among other reasons, it teaches unattractive men how to be attractive. And the mere idea that attraction is teachable implies it is mundane and mechanical, rather than mysterious and magical as a woman's fantasy prone emotions would drive her to believe.

Rather than tell clueless men they need to be dominant, put her in place and act like more of a jerk, women will oft opt for the non-confrontational bullshit approach: "be kind and understanding, listen to her problems, and she'll realise what a great guy you are!" In fact rather than help a man, a woman will often use misinformation as a filtering mechanism to benefit her own sexual strategy.

Women will tell men to be kind, sweet, supplicating and deferential, and if he's idiotic enough to take the advice, she'll reject him precisely because he did what she said. Many men have had their hearts crushed in youth because they were clueless, listened to the thoroughly unhelpful girl interpretation of what constitutes an attractive male, and ended up with nothing but rejection dressed in the clothing of compliments.

For example:

"You're so nice, you're like a brother to me - I don't want to ruin that!"

As well as condescending platitudes such as

"You're a real catch, I know there's a really great woman out there for you, you'll find her some day I just know it!"

Completely disregarding the fact that, this man doesn't want "the great women out there", but in fact desires the woman telling him to fuck off romantically in the kindest yet least helpful way possible.

Whoever thought such flattering words could harbour such condemning frustration? Who among men knew rejection could sound so god damn complimenting? These are the very phrases a man never wishes to hear from a woman, rejection is something men can process and learn from, but rejection disguised as encouragement simply fucks up a young and impressionable man's mind.

A lot of red pill men were raised by feminist women, followed feminist advice, and found nothing but misery. As soon as they discarded the notion of gender equality as an operative social model, focused on themselves and became more behaviourally dominant, their relationships with women both sexually and platonically began improving dramatically.

Read the rest here from section 2b onwards:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/01/03/instruction-for-a-polite-feminist/>

Full article here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/02/08/machiavellian-thinking-vs-conventional-logic/>

I've just finished reworking my article on the relationship between logic and Machiavellianism. An important new section (4a) on the necessity of being able to mode switch between Machiavellian and Logical thinking has been added, and a general prose clean up has been undertaken to make the piece a more pleasurable read.

1.) Justification is a Machiavellian Fallacy:

Justification is for the weak, in the game of power nobody respects he who justifies himself. Within a social fabric where the lowest common denominator prevails; where feelings triumph over logic, and likewise grandiosity over humility, honesty is but a virtue bastardised. You see, it is the transparency of justification that makes it powerless. Regardless, many an intellectual man's instinctual adherence to logical authoritarianism renders him incapable of determining this. Therefore, when he is tested, questioned, scrutinised and cross-examined, his most visceral instinct is to justify himself to his haranguing attacker; woe befalls him.

Little does he know his challenger's agenda is malicious, and their enquiry, insincere. Such a man haphazardly scrambles to explain himself by demonstrating his thought process. It is in this moment the Machiavellian knows they have won. With widening smile, such a rational yet foolish man can be gamed, intimidated, humiliated and berated. He will be kept on the defence with his own words, for it is they which will be weaponised against him. The more he speaks, the deeper his grave.

As Queen Gertrude said in Hamlet "The lady doth protest too much, methinks." Likewise, he who opts to prove, demonstrate and qualify himself with merely and solely the spoken word is perceived to be dishonest, pathetic. The justification is not seen as transparent or helpful, but rather as persuasive, deceptive, false – even when it isn't. People have a propensity to distrust that which doesn't embody an element of effortlessness.

With both the playful Machiavellian and the dimwit, a sentiment is shared; the more one protests, the more their guilt is assumed. It is thought if one were not guilty they would feel no need to justify their position. Why? Well because their position would "be obvious" of course; oh the subjective horror! To the idiot and the Machiavellian alike, truth is self-evident; it is organic and therefore shows in one's actions. The need to have to say anything about an aspect of one's self robs it of its naturalness, and therefore to the devout Machiavellian, its charismatic credibility.

Honesty destroys mystery, and with it, the attraction of curiosity. The Machiavellian hates the duplicitous more than most, and yet, respectfully appreciates only the cunning. As such, Machiavellians tend to be in a constant flux of love-hate with their peers. When you are understood, you are unattractive. When you try to help people understand you, they lose respect for you, you're making it too easy. People only value what they work for, be it wages or relationships. Of course the man of reason is oft deficient in the social realm, and therefore he does not fully comprehend the games that people play.

You can read the rest here from section 2 onwards.

66

UPVOTES

Illimitable Men in 2016 - Where I'm At & Where We're Going

8 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Meta post outlining the future of my blog for 2016, I talk about the release of my book, the dark triad forum and podcasting, as well as bring your attention to an up and coming blogger.

I rarely make meta announcements like this (the last one I did was in April 2015) but I keep getting questions about my projects and what I'm doing, so thought I'd sum it all up in one post for you.

Here's to a prosperous 2016.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/01/07/illimitable-men-in-2016-where-im-at-where-were-going/>

Tuition From Tragedy - Ben's Story

15 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Our tale starts with that of an extroverted young alpha male in a classic boy meets girl scenario. A tale so recognisable, it's a cliched trope repeated in countless movies. Boy is popular, girl falls in love with boy's popularity, so boy dates girl and quickly falls in love with her, only for girl to end up thinking he's a loser when school's over and the popularity that made him situationally attractive has evaporated.

Also note Ben's constant need to check in with his woman, this is a classic beta male trait: anti-dread. Dread is the heightening and elicitation of attraction in a woman via a combination of emotional withdrawal and an implicit or explicit demonstration of social power. For example, being seen with other attractive women or high status people whilst simultaneously dialling down the degree and frequency of emotional validation a woman is given constitutes dread.

Both alpha and dark triad men use dread as a tool to keep a woman's narcissism in check. Dread plays on a woman's jealous disposition and group status anxiety to keep her ego in check and attraction high, dread communicates to a woman's hypergamy "this man is hot". Likewise, whether a woman is aware or unaware of the dynamic at hand has no bearing on the efficacy of this social mechanism, for it is immutable.

Naturally, anti-dread is the opposite of dread. Anti-dread is the constant validation of a woman's concerns, be they pettily baseless or accurately rooted in reality. Anti-dread is the constant assuagement of a woman's ever-changing insecurity, addressing every little concern she has with servile like efficiency; it is the constant need to "make sure everything is ok" and is in general, a passive, pandering, supplicate behaviour which prioritises comfort and paranoia placation over attraction.

Where dread harnesses a woman's paranoia and discomfort to create attraction, anti-dread looks only to assuage it, making the man in question appear boring, and thus in turn, unchallenging and unattractive. Women are not attracted to men who give them an easy life, they're attracted to the jealousy of uncertainty and competition. Assuaging a woman once she teeters on the precipice of romantic uncertainty almost ensures a strong, passionate relationship.

Effectively for a woman to appreciate a man, she has to believe she can lose him. Anti-dread ensures high levels of comfort, which in turn cultivate a hubris so firm she believes her man to be incapable of leaving her. When a woman does not believe she needs to please a man in order to keep him, she cannot respect him, and thus in turn, cannot love him in the way a romantic partner should.

You can read the full article here.

258

UPVOTES

To enjoy the decline, or to start a family, that is the question

22 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The Male Perspective – A Quandary:

To enjoy the decline, or to start a family, that is the question. And of course this is a problem unique to man, particularly those conscious and critical of the paradigm we occupy, for it is not a consideration that even crosses the threshold of consciousness within the indoctrinated drone. And yet unlike the drone who knows no quandary, who idly autopilots his way into an unremarkable 5-10 year marriage that yields 2.1 children, the more enlightened man finds himself in the pivotal yet privileged position of making an informed choice about his future's course.

Such a man is free to direct his fate absent the demands of religious indoctrination or self-serving women. After all, should one of the most important decisions of a man's life be made by anyone other than the man himself? Does a man pressured and cajoled into starting a family do so on his own terms, or on the terms of those with a plan for him? With both reason of mind and heart of soul, the man free of spells and delusions can exercise his mental sovereignty by weighing up the risks and rewards of the lifestyle choices available to him, be that the life of a patriarch, or the life of a bachelor.

A self-respecting, free thinking and proud man should not be bullied into marrying, not by religion, nor by the woman manoeuvring to get a ring on her finger. A man should make this decision free of external devices and with full mental clarity, for a man should establish a serious relationship in much the way he would seek to maintain it. Therefore it stands to reason that should a man be cajoled or duped into marriage and babies, that although it may initially fill the dissimulating woman with nought but estrogenic rejoice and maternal glee, that such shadowy foundations do not bode well for said relationship's success or longevity.

A strong man does not respond to shame, he acknowledges it for the manipulative transgression that it is, disregards it as folly, and continues to forge his path absent the mechanisations of such duplicity.

The free man wonders which lifestyle choice would be in his best interest, and is he, no matter what he does, condemned to an unforgivable degree of heartache either way? If marriage leads to divorce and bachelorhood lead to childless loneliness, what is a man to do? A choice between misery or loneliness is hardly palatable.

You can read the rest here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2016/01/22/the-choice/>

164

UPVOTES

Dark Triad Theory: The Machiavellian Trifecta

28 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just finished overhauling an article of mine from 2014 titled "The Machiavellian Trifecta". It's a deep dark triad related essay and my writing (not to mention breadth of knowledge) has improved a great deal since then, so I've given this piece the love that it deserves with this remaster.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/11/15/nuance-in-manipulative-style-the-machiavellian-trifecta/>

The Birth of a Machiavellian:

Some demonstrate manipulative tendency from a young age, be it a pronounced desire to manipulate, a natural aptitude for it, or in exceptional cases, both. For the sake of classification, I characterise individuals who convey both behaviours as "naturals".

The naturals fall into what I distinguish as two subgroups: kings and generals, with the remainder of Machiavellians designated advisers. Advisers consciously learn to become Machiavellian due to trauma or hardship, but for all intent and purpose were not naturally predisposed to Machiavellian thinking. These people are socialised Machiavellians, the Machiavellians of struggle and necessity, and it is they who make up the final archetype which completes my trifecta of theorised Machiavellian subtypes.

Like most things learned in childhood and to a lesser extent, adolescence, there is a certain intuitive competence acquired from one's early life experiences. With all the impressionableness and raw aptitude embodied by the cognitive fluidity of youth, the ferocity of necessity clashes with the adaptiveness of trial to give rise to Machiavellian prowess.

This is a universal premise which applies to all crafts, hobbies and arts. The younger the person, the more pronounced the effect of their exposure to an idea; for the young are infinitely more malleable than the old, and unlike the old, need not deprogram and reprogram to learn; the young are tabula rasa, a clean slate.

Machiavellianism is in this regard, by no means different from any other field, art or influence. The younger an individual adopts Machiavellian as a philosophy and a vocation, the more likely the art is to seem instinctual rather than abstract.

The development of Machiavellianism often coincides with the redevelopment of "the self." In childhood, adolescence and early adulthood this process is rather simply "the development of the self." For older folks, the formation of personality is preceded by deprogramming (unlearning previously learned behaviours and beliefs) which are then supplanted by mental models one believes conducive to their environment.

I didn't share too large an excerpt here as this is a particularly long piece (get that coffee brewing!) but as usual, you can read the piece in its entirety here.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/02/01/the-myth-of-female-rationality-part-1/>

My latest piece is about the nature of female reason (or the absence of it). This topic is going to be a two-parter, I've designed this essay as an introductory piece for the flesh of the topic, which will arrive as a sequel essay.

The claim that woman's capacity for reason matches man's is humorous, and yet be it espoused by radical feminists or well-intentioned humanists, the "equality of reason" myth persists.

It was only the other week I observed two men debating woman's logical capacity, one man insisted women were less reasonable, whilst the other disagreed whilst conceding "all women are like that". Yet in spite of this concession, said man went to the lengthy effort of recalling instances where he had observed women exercising reason. It was as if this particular man wasn't quite willing to accept women are the less reasonable sex, which ironically is an unreasonable position in and of itself.

There is of course a discrepancy here, a gentle person can get angry and a frugal man can make a large purchase in the same way that an unreasonable person can demonstrate logic; a capacity for something does not equate to a propensity for it. The man who could not believe women are less reasonable is naive, the claim was not that women never make logical decisions, even a broken clock is right twice per day, the claim was that women are governed so strongly by emotion that their capacity and proclivity for reason is greatly vitiated, ergo, their reason is inferior to man's.

Even in the comments section of this very publication, the notion women are just as logical as men is oft dispelled, for women are quick to offend and be offended by nature of their volatile reactivity. Now of course the same principle applies to man, an angry man cannot reason too well either, but here is my contention: the average woman becomes emotional far more easily than the average man, and thus whatever reason she does possess is quickly lost when even a modicum of pressure is applied.

I believe less intelligent women are simply incapable of reasoning to any elaborate degree, whilst smarter women can only do so whilst their emotions are in check, eg: they have managed to encounter something unsettling without taking offence to it. Nevertheless, I do not believe smarter women are any less emotional than their lower IQ counterparts, but only that they have better impulse control. This is why although smart women can exercise reason, they often do so with less frequency than even the average man.

You can read the rest here.

The sequel to part 1 is here, and it's far meatier than the original. The introduction is short for this one so I've shared the excerpt for section 2. If you want to go straight to the article you can do so by clicking here.

2.) Herd Dynamics – Needily Conformist:

Women are innately Machiavellian and thus superficially concerned with “fitting in” and appearing agreeable in order to be liked enough to enjoy the fruits of the groups they occupy. There are perfectly sound evolutionary arguments for why this is so (which I will get into later) but nevertheless to begin I shall explore “the what” rather than “the why.”

A woman's most pressing concern in spite of what she says to the contrary, is how she is perceived and how this translates into whether she holds favour or not. Being liked and desired is far more important to women than it is to men, men requiring respect rather than intimate emotion validation to function.

In fact, acceptance from others is so vitally important to women that they will change an entire wardrobe, religion, sexual or political orientation in order to be and feel accepted. If you observe rates of religious conversion (from one religion to another) you will find women will convert from one religion to another more often than men.

As we say on the red pill, fickleness is a strong trait of the feminine, and it manifests in all matters of importance from apostasy to divorce. The most common reason for religious conversion is to marry a man of another religion (and thus be accepted and enjoy his economic resources) whilst the most common reason for shedding religion is to find a socially acceptable way to be promiscuous (basically denounce one's faith and become a fertility-negative atheist-feminist.)

In the UK this is native British women converting to Islam so they can have more victim credibility, as well as a politically correct reason to be feminine rather than feminist. It also serves as a way to increase the perception of their purity and respectability, as Muslim women are not reputed for promiscuity in the way that atheist and Christian women are. When one realises this, it becomes obvious why many western women embrace Islam so enthusiastically.

In the US this is Mormon and Christian girls becoming atheist via feminist support groups so they can whore it up in their prime without feeling retroactively impure. These women are almost always completely insane because they do not entirely remove their religious programming, yet in spite of this they conflict themselves by attempting to supplant the religion they were taught as a child with a fundamentally irreconcilable belief system. This, quite predictably, leads to a spiritually dysfunctional individual torn between two conflicting sets of dogma.

Nevertheless, they appear to be able to defy the religion they were raised with so long as they have a gaggle of feminist whores to cheer them on and validate their poor life decisions. Again, this is the female proclivity for groupthink and a desire to be validated overriding incisive and cogent analysis.

Women in and of themselves rarely stand for something because they have deduced it to be true and correct, but rather they believe what they do due to prolonged proximity. So they believe what their teacher believes, or what their mother believes, or what their friends believe, rather than really analyse something and see if it is true with their own minds.

No, it seems a woman's instinctual need to be accepted is so strong that she indulges conformity rather than ingenuity to scratch the irksome validation itch, and that so long as this itch is scratched, she is content enough to submit to authority and not ask questions.

FULL ARTICLE: <http://illimitablemen.com/2016/02/09/the-myth-of-female-rationality-part-2/>

Negotiation is fundamentally a dispute of disparate desires, influenced heavily by perception in the determination of what constitutes an agreement. Each party attempts to manage the perceptions of the other in order to come to an agreement both deem sufficiently equitable. Although in negotiation it is certainly the acquisition of specific objectives that underpins the reason for negotiation, perception is equally important in affecting what kind of deal, or if a deal is even struck at all.

For example, say you have two men, one named Harry and the other Bill. Harry grows an exotic grape that only he can source in the continent, his client Bill has no commodity, but has deep pockets. Money is not as rare as Harry's grapes assuming enough wineries and consumers value his grapes. This is a seller's market, so Harry can charge whatever he likes so long as his price to the customer works out cheaper than importation of the grape via freight from an overseas grower.

When Harry goes into a negotiation, he knows his buyer Bill needs his grapes more than he needs Bill's money, Bill is not his only client, and clients prefer local produce rather than waiting for things to arrive on a plane which may be damaged in transit. Harry knows if the other person cannot provide a sufficient sum of money or otherwise incentivise him, that failing to come to a deal with Bill would not harm him. In a seller's market, the pool of customers (buyers) demanding a specific quality is plentiful, whilst the pool of sellers able to provide said quality is minimal.

Conversely in a buyer's market, Harry's produce would not be worth much because he either has so many competitors he has to sell cheaply and operate at a loss (market saturation), or simply nobody is interested in what Harry's selling and thus there's no viable business operation to be had.

In our fictional scenario here, we're in a seller's market. This means Harry has tighter control over his pricing and can force the consumer to cough up higher sums without damaging his business' profitability. Harry used to sell a vine of grapes for £0.90 each to his customers, but since the local competition went out of business he hiked his prices to £1.80, selling a marginally lower volume than he used to at a more profitable operating cost.

In simpler language: Harry sells less quantity but makes more money because his price per unit has increased enough to offset the reduction in sales volume the price hike caused. If Harry's sales dropped to the point where the price per unit did not offset the reduction in volume, he'd have to decrease his prices in order to increase volume to a profitable margin. In this scenario, Harry would be experimenting with price points in order to find "the profitable zone", the perfect price where the highest price per unit is found, the precipice on which a subsequent price increase results in overpricing as indicated by a sharp decline in sales.

Harry finds his perfect price, and thus begins to make so much extra money that he can afford to keep his "grape bubble" inflated whilst still giving some of his favourite customers the old £0.90 rate. Being in a strong position, Harry is able to economically implement his prejudice into his pricing system. Friends and old clients he has favourable relationships with get the £0.90 rate, strangers get the £1.80 rate, and he is able to outright refuse to sell to those he doesn't like.

In a seller's market the buyer has the privilege of buying, the seller is not privileged to sell because demand for the seller's goods are high. Simplistically, in a seller's market the seller is the most valuable party, in a buyer's market the buyer is most valuable.

Bill on the other hand is a winemaker and desperately needs Harry's rare locally sourced organic grapes to help him make a very expensive wine. Bill was a charming Machiavellian and befriended Harry awhile back by taking him out to dinner and paying for his food, gaining favour with Harry whilst he was satiated by steak and slightly inebriated on the very wine Bill needed Harry to source grapes for. Bill was clever, figuratively as well as literally giving Harry a taste of the business he was in.

As they got along so well, Harry begun selling Bill grapes at the “friend rate” of £0.90 per vine, increasing the profitability of Bill’s winery. Bill was satisfied with himself that all those restaurant dinners and well-timed jokes had paid off. However, disaster struck. One time Harry brought his daughter along to the restaurant not realising Bill was a sexually predacious yet shredded 45-year-old pick-up artist. Harry's daughter full of daddy issues because he's a workaholic, later matches with Bill on Tinder. From here she begins enthusiastically fucking Daddy’s “totally hot and rich” business associate as a textbook act of sordid female rebellion.

Eventually she falls for Bill, but because he failed to commit to her, she in her inevitable upset tells her father of their liaisons. Upon discovery of Bill's adultery with his daughter, Harry refuses to continue selling Bill the grapes he sorely needs for his company's leading product. Bill desperate for the grapes then offers Harry £10.00 per vine, far above the inflated market value Harry usually commands, yet Harry refuses to accept. Why? Because at this point Harry is more interested in hurting Bill than in making a profit from him. The perception of the other party has become so negative that a want for destruction has become greater than a love of profit.

Moral of the story: It doesn't matter if two people want something from one another if either party disdains the other too greatly. In the absence of respect, a desperate party accepts extremely inequitable terms, or it's simply impossible to reach consensus. In the presence of hatred or a need for revenge, otherwise logical and desirable outcomes are rejected in favour of schadenfreude. Secondary lesson: do not shit where you eat, girls related to high-value business interests aren't worth the hassle they can cause, income is more important than sex.

Hope you enjoyed the story!

Looks like the full article, right? It isn't. You can find the piece in it's entirety here:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/02/15/the-art-of-negotiation/>

177
UPVOTES

NEW Dark Triad Article: Understanding Narcissism - learn about abusive personalities - also discusses sadism and psychopathy.

25 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's finally here, after hinting at it for a long time, I've finally dropped my piece on narcissism. Narcissistic psychopathy is the central focus of the article, it does not discuss EVERYTHING in relation to narcissism, but it's a pretty great introduction - one you will struggle to find in such succinct yet incisive detail anywhere else. I'll leave an excerpt to the introduction here, and as always, a link to the full article at the bottom of the thread.

1.) Introduction – Narcissistic Personality Disorder:

All people with narcissistic personality disorder are narcissists, but not all narcissists have a personality disorder. A healthy dose of narcissism is a performance-enhancer, for it improves one's effectiveness by amplifying their self-love, confidence and boldness. However, it seems to be a common misconception that the promotion of narcissism is tantamount to the promotion of narcissistic personality disorder. This is false, and nought but an ignorant layman's understanding of narcissism fallaciously manifesting as a false equivalence.

Narcissistic personality disorder is a coping mechanism developed in childhood to deal with neglect, rejection or cruelty (eg: bullying) from one's parents. Narcissistic personality disorder is superlative to the nth degree, the most extreme version of narcissism, rather than the healthy self-assured confidence that comes as a by-product of talent and achievement.

Narcissistic personality disorder (NPD) is a developmental disorder ingrained into a child by the inability of a parent to validate them, or reward their accomplishments. Everything the child does is scrutinised and rejected, the child is constantly berated and denied their basic need for love.

The child's accomplishments are typically deemed insufficient, for example if the child achieves a perfect score on an exam or comes first place in a race, this perfection is apathetically expected rather than emotionally rewarded. In a narcopath's childhood achievement was met by indifference, with anything other than exceptionalism being seized by the parent as an opportunity to degrade them. The parental approval and joy quintessential to achievement was absent, whilst degradation and indifference reigned supreme – this is the crucible in which a narcopath is forged.

This is further exacerbated when the narcopath has a sibling who is incessantly rewarded whilst they are incessantly punished, this is narcopathy on the part of the parent exercising this behaviour, an NPD strategy known as triangulation.

What sets the NPD apart from the narcissist is that the rejection caused by the parent at a young age leaves them incapable of forming pair-bonds, this inability to pair-bond from there on becomes an empathy disorder dressed in ego. The narcopath is effectively a synthetic psychopath, narcopathy is always socialised. Had their parents been good people, they would not have developed an empathy disorder, which is really no more than a coping mechanism developed by a helpless creature that the needs the resources of an abusive one.

Read from section 2 onwards by clicking here.

515
UPVOTES

Champion's Mentality - How To Stop Being A Loser & Become Epic - A spiritual successor to Monk Mode. If Monk Mode was "how to stop being a loser" this is "how to start being a winner"

29 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This article is quite long, but I've done my best to space out the paragraphs and use simpler language to communicate my message (not going to be a regular occurrence, but I think it suits this sort of piece better - I did this with "How To Be Happy" as well)

I'll leave an excerpt here, and a link to the full article at the bottom. The introduction doesn't really do the full article justice, because it gets a lot better. So I urge you to go and check that out. Thanks for reading, and have a good day!

1.) Introduction:

When I wrote monk mode, my intent was to communicate on a practical level to losers "how to stop being a loser". I used to be a loser, I personally devised and tested monk mode, and it helped me massively, so I shared my findings with others.

Now there is some controversy surrounding monk mode, mainly concerning "when one should use monk mode" and "if monk mode is being used by introverts as an excuse not to socialise". Although I will address these questions and concerns eventually, they fall outside the purview of this article.

If you are broke and have no friends, your first port of call is not to make friends. It's to get enough to discipline to master a hobby, and then flip this skill into making some money - this is monk mode. You can't focus on others when you need to build yourself up from nothing. People who aren't losers and rely on networking to do business don't understand this, but monk mode was never written with them in mind - it was written for losers.

If you lack discipline, don't have much going for yourself, and are distracted by nonsense social activities rather than building yourself, I highly recommend monk mode.

That being said, monk mode is not for everyone. Monk mode is life support for losers who need to prevent themselves from drowning in an abyss devoid of discipline, and dominated by depression. Monk mode is a route out of the gutters of hell, a long and winding path of redemption for the mediocre who've decided enough is enough.

So what's the next step after Monk Mode? Let's assume you have used monk mode, are no longer a complete loser, but still aren't killing it in life. What key ingredient are you missing, what do you need to give you that extra edge? You need a champion's mentality - this article will tell you how to get one, as well as demonstrate its attitude.

Champion mentality is about optimising your life and relationships so that you continuously win, improve and raise your value. Inevitably by merit of accomplishment and the achievement-based narcissism that accompanies it, such a lifestyle leads to a higher quality of life spiritually, socially and financially.

2.) Monk Mode Recap:

People who create are more interesting than people who don't because they apply their essence to an art form. In doing this they add value to themselves, they are more developed human-beings and thus more interesting.

People who do nothing but consume are basic people who have no real value, most of their interests (and thus what they talk about) is vicarious and based on the achievement of others. Losers live through other people, winners live through themselves; losers invest in nothing, winners don't stop investing. Winners invest in themselves before investing in others, losers are interested in everything, but have no actual value to invest.

So how does a loser stop losing? Minimise hobbies that are consumptive and acquire hobbies that are productive. It's really that simple. Switch Netflix for reading, writing or coding. I'm not going to babysit you with examples and brainstorm a 100 different hobbies that are productive so you can lazily pick one you like the sound of. Part of being a winner is doing the mental legwork. However, if you're ailed by the creative capacity of a damp towel, I will note some generalised examples to get you started: martial arts, musical instruments and languages.

Assess your life by looking at the activities you engage in. Now categorise which activities create value, and which feel good but don't really enhance your value as a person. Now cut out/reduce the things in the consumption category, and replace these activities with those that build value.

The full article can be found here.

These maxims are observations and deductions I've made on strategy and human behaviour, this piece being a continuation of the maxims I published back in December.

I think you guys will enjoy it, especially those who struggle to read my usual denser, lengthier prose. I'll leave 25 maxims here, with a further 43 (68 total) available on my blog. Enjoy!

1. – Hijacking is a special kind of Machiavellianism, for it wears the agenda of another whilst pursuing its own, like a metaphorical Russian doll, it hides an agenda within an agenda.
2. – Read between the lines, if you can deduce why somebody is asking a question and you do not like the reasoning for their question, do not deign an answer. Ignore or dismiss traps, do not fall into them.
3. – When someone attempts to undermine rather than refute you, they're the enemy.
4. – Undermining is personal, refutation isn't. Refutation communicates "I believe you're wrong due to the findings of the available evidence". Undermining communicates "I'm going to humiliate you because your opinions invoke my disdain." Refutations are logical retorts, undermining is interrelational violence. Learn to distinguish between the two, for they oft appear similar.
5. – Bending the rules is no more than the abuse of technicality to circumvent the spirit of the rule without violating its letter.
6. – Love doesn't conquer psychopathy.
7. – Only pick fights that'll yield profit; pettiness will erode your credibility, fighting on many fronts will exhaust you.
8. – The crab bucket mentality is pervasive, a jealous friend is a betrayal waiting to happen. Know when to cut the gangrenous limb, do not allow the sentimental nostalgia to sustain poisonous ties.
9. – If you are drawn into something emotionally, the odds of damaging your reputation and engaging in regrettable acts exponentially increases.
10. – Many arrogant men believe anger is the safe emotion they can display without real consequence, this belief is folly. Man should endeavour to be mindful, for this will allow him to rein in unruly emotion.
11. – He who does not control his emotions is puppeteered by them. Strict adherence to emotional data is tactical death, whilst ignoring emotion idiotic, and suppressing it tiresome. As such, emotion should be channelled, not ignored or obeyed.
12. – On national anniversaries of loss or celebration, people are at their most vulnerable. It is at times of heightened cultural emotivity that reflection takes root in the mediocre, and filled with regret, the populace is at their most manipulable.
13. – Self-deprecation builds trust, when people see even minor imperfections, they're endeared by the transparency.
14. – People are susceptible to negativity bias, if something is negative, it is more likely to be believed without rigorous investigation. Acts of virtue come with a burden of proof, acts of unvirtue do not.

15. – Appear easily provoked, then ignore those who see it as an opportunity to attack; this is good for enticing the lurking foe to reveal himself. Present an illusion of disordered vulnerability, seduce an attack, and by the time your foe realises the ruse it is too late, he has revealed himself.
16. – An effective strategist knows when to utilise counterintuitive gambits to get a better view of the battlefield. For example, if you are strong in one area, make your enemy think you are weak. If you are weak in an area, make your enemy think you are strong. If you confuse the enemy's data points, he cannot successfully analyse you. If he cannot analyse you, he cannot defeat you.
17. – Be wary the plausible deniability of jokes, "it's just a joke" is the most common phrase used to disguise a transgression. All good jokes contain truth, as such if one crosses your boundaries under the guise of humour, they are still trespassing, humour but smoke and mirrors for such trespass.
18. – He who acts boldly under the cloak of sadistic humour is not to be trusted, for humour is the jester's shield and sword.
19. – People who get caught doing something they shouldn't do not reveal the complete truth at once. they opt to reveal the least self-incriminating aspects first.
20. – The objective of trickle truth is damage control, to minimise the damage done to one's reputation when a loss of reputation is all but unavoidable.
21. – As lies compound, trust erodes, and the more difficult it becomes to lie. The more it is perceived that you lie, the better you must be at lying to successfully do so. As such, compulsive lying is tactically unsound – lie only when necessary.
22. – Trust can be earned and spent, but if you spend too much too quickly, your account with the betrayed individual is permanently closed, no matter what you do, you will always be spent.
23. – People love to be seduced, but they do not like to know how. Honesty doesn't pay when transparency compromises the beauty of the illusion that sustains you. Like any magic trick, people enjoy the perception of mystery, not what creates it.
24. – Apply seduction to romance or sales, never reveal your tricks. Give your pitch, not your essence.
25. – Effortlessness and dismissiveness foster an appearance of strength.

FULL ARTICLE: <http://illimitablemen.com/2016/03/07/machiavellian-maxims-part-2/>

URL: <http://illimitablemen.com/2016/03/16/understanding-female-psychology/>

The introduction starts by talking about differences between men and women, before moving into a richer distillation of woman's psychology. The introduction in this excerpt just sets up the main premise, so if you want to get straight to the nitty gritty I urge you to read the essay in its full glory. Thanks for reading, and have a good day!

1.) Introduction:

As I write this, I cast my mind back to a time I did not understand women. It is surreal to write on “how women work” when one so vividly remembers being a man clueless in such matters.

As a clueless man bereft of the knowledge my sanity demanded, I would ask men to explain women, I would ask women to explain women, and I would ask Google to explain women. Nobody really knew what they were talking about. The only answers I would get were gynocentric inanities mixed with general rhetorical platitudes such as “be yourself” and “be confident”.

The problem with the mainstream gynocentric viewpoint is it teaches men how to be a good slave, rather than a good master. It teaches men how to cater to women, rather than how to inspire a woman's desire to cater to them. It actively suppresses truths related to women, whilst spreading vitriolic untruth about men. At this point it seems the system would prefer men are useful but ignorant, rather than enlightened and sovereign.

Men yearn to understand women, for they wish to attract them, as well as protect themselves from womanly predations. This knowledge is essential paramount sustenance all but crucial for the preservation of man's sanity. And yet quite sadistically, this wisdom eludes most men no matter how earnestly they seek it.

Today, life changing truth is only readily available should a man happen upon a site such as this. Most men are unaware of women's true nature, and the minority who are aware dare not discuss the elephant in the room, for doing so may come at incredible cost.

2.) The Cultural Battle of the Sexes:

The number of men aware of the realities inherent to female nature continues to dwindle, whilst the cultural hysteria touting “men are evil and women can do no wrong” reigns pervasively.

Men are taught to worship women, whilst women are taught to distrust men. Men are taught to serve women, whilst women are taught to deceive men. Society believes it morally reprehensible for a man to dupe a woman, and yet bares no such disdain when the polarity is reversed, often going to extreme lengths to rationalise auditorily pleasing justifications for immoral female behaviour.

Before the emergence of red pill philosophy, no meaningful infrastructure existed to support and educate men on matters of women, and this is why what we do is crucial. We educate boys and men on matters nobody else is capable of, and support them where nobody else cares.

Culturally there is a power imbalance where the masculine has become so weak and the feminine has gotten so out of control, that she threatens to destabilise civilization's very core with a tyrannic power she is not fit to wield. The red pill (as well as this very publication) does to the extent of its reach, attempt to redress this imbalance by giving men the tools they need to exercise power and remain sovereign.

Red pill philosophy is effective, it thoroughly details female behaviour from numerous perspectives (sociological, evolutionarily and occasionally, economically) to form a rich and comprehensive philosophy.

However, having internalised much of this “forbidden knowledge” over the years, I wish to do something I do not believe has been done before: unify the red pill understanding of women into a framework that depicts the relationships between the mechanisms that embody the feminine.

When I was clueless about women, I'd have killed for an article like this, so if that sounds like you, strap yourself in because you're in for a treat. You're going to learn what many men never learn, and what many others pay in pain and poverty to merely intuit.

The full article can be found here.

50 Maxims on the nature of women and man's relationship with her. Easy-to-read and broken down, I'll share the first 10 with you here:

IM MAXIM #101 – A woman's charm comes from her happiness, a man's, from his confidence. An inconsolable woman's as unattractive as a timid man.

IM MAXIM #102 – Men must earn value, women must preserve it. It is because of this very reason a woman's age is taboo whilst a man's is not. The passage of time fares man better than woman.

IM MAXIM #103 – If you're pining for a girl, next her. You've already lost, for it is she who should be pining for you. Be the prize, not the contestant, prizes never lose, contestants often do.

IM MAXIM #104 – Women play men like Mozart played piano. Men manipulate nature, women manipulate men. Civilization is man's project, man is woman's.

IM MAXIM #105 – Narcissism is a suit well-worn by a man, but one ill-fitting on a woman. Male narcissism is attractive to women, but female narcissism is not to man. Corollary: men with dark triad mothers are attracted to narcissistic women.

IM MAXIM #106 – A man must be more narcissistic than a woman to attract her. In cultures which worship women, the average woman is more narcissistic than her male counterpart, where this occurs, great swathes of men are deemed unattractive.

IM MAXIM #107 – A difference in narcissism (female gratitude and male arrogance) is the great equaliser between the beauty of the feminine form, and the lack thereof common to men. When women are equally if not more narcissistic than men, such an equaliser vanishes. Being grandiose never hindered a man's chances of getting laid.

IM MAXIM #108 – Give a woman less attention than she wants, and she will desire it. Give her as much of it as she wants, and she will not. Women quickly devalue the attention of a man who would attend to her every whim, so be frugal; it is easy for a man to be too generous, but near impossible for him to be too frugal.

IM MAXIM #109 – In matters of women, entitlement and worthiness is a matter of false equivalence; her level of entitlement almost always exceeds what she is worth.

IM MAXIM #110 – If she can find a way to blame a man for her decisions, she will. If she can find a way to avoid guilt, she will. Oft these two intertwine, for women are allergic to responsibility and loathe to be held accountable.

If you want the rest:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/03/30/fifty-more-shades-of-red/>

Enjoy.

This is part 3 in my maxims series.

Part 2 can be found here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/23/fifty-shades-redder/>

Part 1 can be found here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/07/17/fifty-shades-of-red/>

Will there be a part 4? Never say never.

Back in 2014 I held a dark triad Q&A and answered a selection of questions posed to me on the subject matter.

Last night I finished remastering this piece (with new and additional insight) to bring it up to par with my current standard of writing. I think you'll find section 3 on "Macro Dark Triad" particularly interesting. I'll leave an excerpt for you here, and as always, you can read the entirety of the article by clicking the link at the end of the post.

“Are there any videos (movies, documentaries or anything of the sort) that you would recommend to give a more clear-cut example of Dark Triad behaviour?”

To my knowledge, few good documentaries exist on dark triad behaviour. I recommend watching prison-based documentaries, as roughly 1-in-5 prisoners is a psychopath. Naturally being a prison setting, it is likelier you will observe low IQ blue-collar psychopaths rather than white-collar high IQ psychopaths, however despite this bias in sample, you will see the occasional high IQ.

Differentiating the lower from the higher IQ is easy as higher IQ prisoners will engage in creative pursuits and use violence instrumentally, whereas lower IQ prisoners will lack creative pursuits and thus seek conflict for stimulation. It is my contention that because lower IQ prisoners lack the intellect necessary to creatively abstract, acts of violence comprise the totality of their interest.

Nailing down a higher IQ white-collar psychopath is incredibly hard as their greater impulse control means they're better able to conceal themselves, however Vice was able to base a short documentary on one.

There is an English documentary called “Psychopath Night“, which contrasted an FBI profiler's analysis with the behaviour of an imprisoned high IQ psychopath. There was likewise input from Oxford University's Kevin Dutton, a professor known for his friendship with an ex-SAS psychopath that has partnered with him on numerous psychopathy texts. These texts are useful, but not well written.

Dutton constantly attempts to normalise psychopathy as something that's “cool but slightly quirky” with an overbearing chummy tone, and it is this which detracts from the authority of his writing. It's hard to take somebody seriously who discusses the ruthlessness of negative empathy with the salivation of a hyperactive teenager, and oh boy does Dutton salivate.

Nonetheless, Dutton rewards those with the constitution to endure his blabbering should you prove either masochistic or curious enough. If one can exercise a little patience, one will find Dutton has many valuable insights. Dutton's books are not literary masterpieces to be absorbed and pleasurably savoured, but rather, verbose drudgery to be dissected for occasional nuggets of gold.

As for media examples of Psychopathic characters, there are countless, but to name a few:

- Jordan Belfort in The Wolf of Wall Street is a narcopath (an ego dominant psychopath)
- Marlo from The Wire is a psychopath. If autists were psychopaths, they'd be like Marlo.
- Omar from The Wire is a sociopath (like a psychopath, but has sympathy for his in-group.)
- Snoop from The Wire is your typical butch dyke psychopath
- Katherine from The Vampire Diaries is a more accurate portrayal of typical female psychopathy/BPD behaviour.
- Lord Varys & Petyr Baelish from Game of Thrones are Machiavellians.
- Frank Underwood from House of Cards is a depiction of the highest form of psychopath, a “General.” Unlike others on the negative empathy spectrum who blunder out of a need to indulge shortcomings (eg: violent tendencies, excess depravity, historicism etc) “Generals” have evolved beyond such indulgences. A “General” puts the requirements of the game above desire by strategising before fulfilling his urges, whereas his lower-tier counterparts prioritise their urges before the game and thus become unstuck.

A General is instrumental rather than reactive; to react to provocation or give in to pettiness is not characteristic of the General, for the General recognises the tactical pitfalls these things represent and possesses the iron will necessary to resist them. The General realises only a correct sequence of steps will get him what he wants, thus he is future-orientated where his lesser counterparts are present-orientated. If you want to learn more about the General archetype, read this article.

As the list above alludes, dark triad characters comes in many shades and varieties. Whether they are criminal, corporate, violent, cold or charismatic, one thing is universal among them: they’re cut-throat and cunning. The media is rife with different variations upon the same theme, although there is something one should be aware of when scouring the media for dark triad personalities – the characters are plausible, but their schemes aren’t.

In TV shows timing is too perfect, and so the elaborate schemes in play are so utterly contrived they’re inimitable. As such, only analyse a fictional character’s psychology, not their schemes. The schemes by merit of their fiction are ridiculous, and therefore unviable for real world emulation. When a show’s writers ensure a character always wins and can perfectly execute his plans to the nanosecond, cunning is deified to a realm of fantasy through the misrepresentation of what is humanly possible.

FULL ARTICLE: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/09/10/understanding-the-dark-triad-qa-part-1/>

384

UPVOTES

If she doesn't worship the ground you walk on and consistently bring value to your life SHE IS COMPLETELY UNWORTHY of a relationship. The thing you gotta realise about women: It doesn't matter how unworthy of your commitment they are, they'll still try HUSTLE & STRONG ARM YOU INTO IT!

16 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

LTRs suck (don't live with a woman, don't get married) because you need to be on your -A GAME- ALL THE TIME, you never get to rest, and that's fucking draining. Women are energy black holes, any energy you have for productive shit like building your business, studying, inventing something etc will be pissed away if you live with a woman, pissed away on the mediocrity of assuaging the ever manifesting insecurities of the ball of estrogen that is a woman. Shit will get petty, shit will get dramatic, and you will waste a whole lot of energy on nonsense you could be doing without.

Women don't realise why LTRs suck for men, and I suspect those that know why from reading this sub still don't give fucks because GET COMMITMENT AT ALL COSTS is a woman's mission in life. They are either ignorant to the male experience or know full well it's a shit deal for men but don't give a fuck because it benefits them.

No matter what you learn about men and women from TRP, women will never care about the male side of things. NEVER. They will always put their needs, THEIR IMPERATIVE - first. Call it solipsism, call it the feminine imperative, call it what you like - I call it reality. If feminism has proved anything it's proven that women will shit all over men if it means they get what they believe they deserve. And let me tell you something - despite the fact most women ARE NOT RELATIONSHIP MATERIAL, these women feel they deserve one and will stop at nothing to get one.

And they don't give a fuck if you don't want to give them a relationship and neither do they give a fuck if they're not worthy. THEY'LL TRY AND FORCE IT, they'll baby trap you or do some other crazy shit TO FORCE THE COMMITMENT. Think of rape for a second. You can't FORCEFULLY TAKE SEX from a woman but women have no problem FORCEFULLY EXTRACTING COMMITMENT from men.

Even an enlightened woman who knows LTRs are emotionally and cognitively taxing on a man and accepts this WON'T CARE, she'll still demand it anyway BECAUSE THIS IS HER MISSION IN LIFE - to get a man to provide for her and protect her. Just because a bitch makes 6 figures and does some martial arts class and got some feminism in her head, doesn't mean she doesn't have the girl instincts to want to rest her head on a man's chest or be held to "FEEL SAFE." Women need this shit like babies need winding, they crave it, dare I say live for it, and thus getting commitment is their life's obsession - it's a fundamental part of who they are.

Women hate bachelors because it reminds them men need women less than women need men. A woman is never happily single no matter what she tells herself or anybody, but plenty of guys out there are happily single rather than caught up in a woman's bullshit. The only reason men put up with women's total buttfuckery is because they wanna get laid, it's not like 99% of women have any redeeming aspects other than their fuckability.

Take away the fact men are horny bastards and what else does a woman bring to the table? Sweet fuck all. They're leeches. This is why when a woman stops putting out she becomes the definition of useless, the one thing she had to do, the one source of value she could provide? Now she can't even be fucked to do that (but don't worry she'll find a way to make it somehow your fault she's not doing her womanly job). All the while you have to keep being THE MAN, which means paying for her shit and enduring her emotional tirades, but them legs? They can close at any time.

A woman is a honey pot, she entices you in with sex so you can be her emotional crutch/ATM/security guard and then should the mood suit her, revises the contract later so she gives you sweet fuck all whilst you keep giving her what she wanted - THIS IS WHY MARRIAGE IS FOR SUCKERS, YOU'RE LITERALLY "LOCKED DOWN", SHE'S LOCKED YOU IN LIKE A LOW MORTGAGE RATE, GREAT FOR HER BUT YOU'RE FUCKED.

Women don't give a fuck that they're the anchors on your speed boat, holding you back, taking your time up with nonsense bullshit and bringing chaos to your life with neurotic emotivity. No, they actually expect you to be their human mood stabiliser "the rock in their storm", a very romanticised way of saying "I'm annoying and crazy as fuck so endure my tirades of bullshit and set me straight". This is what they do and who they are, they are a burden. And rather than pretend women aren't a burden because they're equal (feminism) or that "you're not a real man unless you endure the burden" (traditionalists) TRP tells you outright "women are a burden and only the best ones are worth the hassle". TRPs teaches you to be discriminant with women, rather than "feel lucky you even managed to get one" like the average chump thinks.

They are the needy sex, but they rely on you thinking they're the prize instead of you so they can complete their life's mission: babies and marriage.

You only truly internalise the adage "bitches ain't shit" when you objectively compare how much you bring to the table vs her. When you realise she's not an equal but a dependent, and by nature of being a dependent she is a responsibility (and probably a liability) - your view of women becomes very different. You cast off all illusions of equality and see them for what they are. I leave you with a parting question, no matter how much sentiment one labours for a dependent, are they inferior, equal or superior? The answer is crystal clear for those who can see past sentimentality and politically correct thinking. And such a reality need not be the product of hatred nor disgust or anything else unflattering, but rather, it may simply be what it is - the natural order.

If there's anything you take from this rant of pure misogynistic women hating bile (/s) it should be this: ALWAYS QUESTION A WOMAN'S WORTH, NEVER EVER COMMIT TO THE UNWORTHY. It is not your responsibility to fix broken women, or make unworthy women worthy - if they can't make themselves worthy, then fuck 'em, they're not worth your time. Women aren't doing charity work by fucking the bottom 80% of men, so why the fuck should you be the charity that gives a woman the relationship she doesn't deserve? Exercise extreme prejudice, they do.

I hope you enjoy my latest, thanks for reading!

EXCERPT:

Where testosterone coalesces with creativity, the engine of civilization hums on the fuel of male ambition. Civilization is man's grand project, an expression of his thought form and aspiration, and although from time to time atypical women will make spontaneous contributions, its distinctly masculine texture remains dominant.

Man has a mission beyond the scope of the home, it is merely the scale of vision and ability to actualise that differs among men. Indeed, we owe modern civilization to men who kept firm to their life's work and executed their vision, for it is women who bring us into this existence, but men who make said existence glorious. All men have missions, but it is within the provision for humanity through the development of civilization that the greats illuminate the depth and scale of said ambition.

Women are concerned with matters of people, people are women's business, reproduction with a powerful man is their life goal – they are simple. Where woman's ambitions are concrete, some may even say mundane, man's potential is infinite. This is not to say that men do not seek to reproduce, but rather that babies and hearth do not constitute success for man in the way it does for woman. A woman who achieves these goals actualises her femininity, her mission is complete, and so she rarely will she aspire for greater.

Men on the other hand do not find completion in family life, it is important to them, but it does not encompass the sum of their being. Men do not live for relationships, family and people in quite the way that women do, whilst the social fabric is the beating heart of all that matters to women, it is but a puzzle piece in a grander picture for men. Being the architects and providers of humanity, man's focus is expectedly different; the scope of his existence is wider, and so the extent he must be willing to go more extreme.

To play it safe as a woman brings success, but for a man it elicits nought but failure. A woman married with children is the epitome of feminine success, but a married man with a child is not. And even should a man not marry nor reproduce, the need for a mission is still there, for whilst a woman defines herself by her relationships, a man defines himself by his achievements.

FULL ARTICLE: <https://illimitablemen.com/2016/04/17/divergent-missions/>

326

UPVOTES

Tips for getting the most out of your time and avoiding bullshit.

27 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The intro is my philosophy on time, followed by a section on drama avoidance, and a section on selective association, finished up with instruction on how to fall in love with self-improvement. A wide scope of people should be able to appreciate this one, shit, if the blue pillers pretend I didn't write it even they might like it. I'll include an excerpt here as usual, and I hope you at least enjoy the read if you don't learn something.

EXCERPT:

An ambitious man feels like he never quite has enough time, for vision is vast and time brief. A man who lives to achieve must thus do so constantly, for considerable gaps in productivity lead to self-loathing. A man who respects time disrespects himself for wasting it, his very reason for being tied inextricably to his productivity.

If an ambitious man is productive, he is happy, if he's not, he isn't; he doesn't achieve because he wants to, but rather, because he has to. Such a man has no choice in the matter, but rather this is the way his life must be, for if his happiness were not tied to his productivity, his life would not be a life worth living.

Only a man without an appreciation for time is content to waste it, for absent ambition he is ignorant of the path forfeited. If the unambitious man could peek into the life of his productive self, he'd believe the greatness strewn in front of him were a con. Consumed by ignorance and unable to appreciate the relationship between greatness and productivity, the mundane man does not even dream dreams, let alone build them.

An actualised man bereft present or future achievement is a shadow of his former self, for achievement is addictive and ambition cruel. A man who's given up is not really a man, he doesn't feel like one and nobody sees him as one, for expectations of men are great and the achievements of such men, poor. Many struggle to optimise their time and few master the endeavour, but he who does not try or no longer tries is held in contempt by those who retain a respect for time.

To be an actualised man is not merely to have achieved, but to continue to do so; actualisation does not entail retirement, for a man's work is not done until his time's spent. Time is limited and ambition gluttonous, and so a man must separate the worthy from the unworthy, make firm choices, and live with them regardless of their retrospective efficacy.

If you want to read the rest of the article, click here and skip to paragraph 6.

NOTE 1: I've been politely and not so politely informed I have beautiful writing and shit grammar, so I'm currently looking for an editor who can find the delicate balance between correcting my mistakes, and debauching the shit out of my stylistic. If you're interested, select one of my pieces and edit a couple of paragraphs and send your edits to illimitableman [at] gmail. If I like your work, you can do the book too. Note: I'm not reputed for responding to emails quickly.

NOTE 2: Yesterday I recorded my first ever podcast with Christian McQueen, you'll get to hear my autistic neckbeardy self blabber about World of Warcraft, fedoras, and the lengths of varying garden insects, bet you can't wait.

414

UPVOTES

Another 54 Machiavellian Maxims for your reading pleasure.

1 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

These maxims are observations and deductions I've made on strategy and human behaviour, this piece being a continuation of the maxims I published back in March.

I think you guys will enjoy it, especially those who struggle to read my usual denser, lengthier prose. I'll leave 25 maxims here, with a further 29 (54 total) available on the blog. Enjoy!

You can find part 1 here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2015/12/27/machiavellian-maxims/>

And part 2 here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2016/03/07/machiavellian-maxims-part-2/>

1. – In matters of persuasion one should appeal to emotion, not reason. Where this fails, use sophistry.
2. – Logical fallacies double as effective Machiavellian power plays, for logic is antithetical to cunning.
3. – Anticipate your opponent's moves, preempting where possible and implementing contingencies where not.
4. – An intellectual more than anybody must become Machiavellian, for it is this and this alone that will save them from predacious egos. [See More Here.]
5. – Delivery is more persuasive than substance, optimise appearance and strike when the time is right, for masterful delivery can make even the mundane into magic.
6. – In matters of defection it is more effective to offer revenge than money.
7. – It is foolish to sentimentally gauge the chance of betrayal, but rather, one should assess the incentive and capacity for doing so. Offer disincentives to maximise loyalty.
8. – Your most intimate enemies will admire you, copy you and take all your advice only to use it for an agenda that undermines yours.
9. – Each personality is a puzzle in which favour can be unlocked by demonstrating the traits desired by the personality, learn a personality and complement it to influence it.
10. – Apologies are oft ineffectual, for they stir up resentment and exacerbate matters by highlighting wrongdoing. A leader should not show regret, he should ignore, deny acknowledgement, or spin a negative into a positive. To regret is to show weakness and invite belittlement.
11. – Appear unappealing to those who don't appeal to you, for it is better to be undesired than to be desired by the undesirable.
12. – To permit insolence from one is to court it from all; crush the insolent or deprive them a platform, lest you earn a reputation for timidity.
13. – The most terrible action can be bred from the best of intention. Be mindful of bad advice from the well intended, they may mean well but unintentional or not, their misinformation will destroy you.
14. – The power players have learned to harness the zealous delusions of their pawns to dress unvirtuous agendas in the clothing of nobility.
15. – Anybody who can conceive of evil can enact it.
16. – Conceal your intentions whilst ascertaining the competition's, he who has the most correct data wins; always be mindful of misinformation.

17. – Most believe one should never be ruthless (because it's evil) or that one should always be ruthless (because otherwise you're weak). Both are wrong.
18. – Provocation is an invitation to act in a way that reduce's one's power; as such, ignoring is a skill any would-be Machiavellian would do well to master.
19. – Mastery of interpersonal psychology is micro Machiavellianism, mastery of military strategy is macro Machiavellianism and business strategy is both.
20. – Transactional analysis: Every time somebody asks you a question, they want you to give them value, or they're looking to sabotage you. Be mindful of the blur between curiosity and inquisition.
21. – Strive for success but be cautious of it, for one who knows not how to handle it will be robbed of the qualities that made them great; rampant success introduces an overconfidence that diminishes reason and a complacency that destroys drive – do not be a victim of your success.
22. – The histrionic weaponises their storytelling talent on the slightest whim, for blackmail is how they obtain and chaos is how they indulge. Be wary the histrionic, for they take root and disrupt venomously like a toxin.
23. – Should you see the trifecta of: confrontation, dismissiveness and attention seeking – you have yourself a histrionic. Tread on their egg shells and succumb to aggressive sensitivity, or reject them by refusing to deign acknowledgement.
24. – Absence increases respect only when the absence is legitimate. If you ignore somebody but are observed by the ignored engaging others, you are not absent, and so elicit disrespect rather than respect. True absence is in disappearance, not observable silence.
25. – It's subtler to deprive than to inflict. Inflict to make a statement, deprive to attack with the stealth of plausible deniability.

FULL ARTICLE: <https://illimitablemen.com/2016/04/30/machiavellian-maxims-part-3/>

I went on Christian McQueen's show and we talked about power, game, and a whole host of shit.

I hope you enjoy the show as much as we enjoyed making it.

<https://realchristianmcqueen.com/2016/05/01/free-episode-46-illimitablemen-com-interview/>

Selected excerpts:

37:01: "All this drama nonsense; it's like information-porn for losers."

38:17: "I'm talking about isolating yourself from mediocrity."

42:59: (Regarding self-loathing from being unproductive) "Now you're wasting time on hating yourself for the things you didn't do."

52:46: "Women look for a father figure in a man. And they can get that! Assuming they can find a man who's not a total fucking bitch."

53:29: "They're not all equally cunty. But cuntiness is in all of them."

53:40: "The balance is to have a little bit of hate, but not to be consumed by it. A little bit of hate. Just a little bit. You can't deify them in any way."

65:39: "People can build something from nothing if they are all in that collective endeavor."

71:25: "There's always bullshit with the elite. You can't let that affect your aspirations."

72:00: "Because you gave time to the drama, you can't give time to yourself."

73:06: "You have hunters, who live for the thrill of the chase. ... The other group is the farmers ... The farmer gives less of a shit about this chase. Maybe he's an inventor or deep into some kind of intellectual shit and wants to put more time into that than chicks."

77:00: "If you're just stoic all the time, you're going to be boring. You need to give them that drama. And yet at the same time, you can't react."

EDIT This episode became Christian's most downloaded episode ever in just 4 hours! Thanks for the love.

1.) Introduction:

The 48 Laws of Power is the modern man's Machiavellian bible; based on the incisive strategic thought of prominent classical thinkers Niccolo Machiavelli and Baltasar Gracian, Robert Greene sets out to elucidate the reader on the nature of power. He explores power by dissecting its elements, explaining each element's uses, and exemplifying its manifestation through regaling historic tales of Europe's elite.

The 48 Laws of Power is so thoroughly potent in its capacity to teach cunning, that it is not only a bestseller, but likewise the most loaned book in U.S prison libraries. In some prisons the book is even banned, as such one is almost certain that if the text had been released in an earlier era, it would have ended up on the Vatican's list of forbidden texts in the same way Machiavelli's "The Prince" did.

2.) What The Book Lacks:

It's important for the aspiring Machiavellian to know what The 48 Laws of Power lacks in order to compensate for the gap in understanding they will be left with. Some of the things left unsaid in the text will be outlined within the confines of this essay, whilst others will require further reading.

The 48 Laws of Power is not a complete treatise on power. Although a detailed set of in-depth maxims, it focuses predominantly on the micro and omits near all mention of the macro. It focuses on the optimisation of personal affects to enhance social power, but does not offer strategic models or blueprints.

Realising The 48 Laws of Power was an incomplete treatise, Greene released The 33 Strategies of War. The 33 Strategies is the The 48 Law's complementary sister text, because where the 48 Laws focuses on the micro, The 33 Strategies focuses on the macro. Only once an individual has studied both texts will they possess a complete understanding of the Machiavellian world that Greene elucidates, neither book is sufficient in and of itself.

To expound on what I mean by this, The 48 Laws of Power will make you shrewder with people, but it won't help you formulate effective business strategies. Whilst the 33 Strategies of War will arm a man with the understanding necessary to engage in corporate warfare, it will do little to assist him interpersonally. As such, neither is a comprehensive education in power, but together they form a complete and unassailable treatise. Combine these texts with Machiavelli's "The Prince", and one has both the psychological tools and philosophical understanding to develop a masterful competency in cunning.

The examples used to illustrate the book's laws take place among a social class most cannot relate to in an era alien to all who live today. As such, it is necessary to transfer the elements of power represented in a classical paradigm into a contemporary one. Whilst competent abstract thinkers will have no problem doing this, the average person will find it challenging to translate some of the laws into a modern context and will as such struggle to truly understand the precepts of the text.

Greene exposes the granular building blocks of power, but that's where he stops. The book does not provide methodological instruction to help the reader implement the laws. And likewise, it does not teach the reader which law takes precedence when two contradicting laws are relevant to one's situation. It is down to the reader to work these things out for themselves, and if they cannot, they will be unable to derive the entirety of what the book has to offer.

You can read the rest by clicking here

Master Monk Mode With Modafinil

25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So you're in Monk Mode, but you find yourself regularly lacking the energy and focus you need to complete all the tasks you assign yourself. You find it hard to concentrate when reading books, and your workouts suck because you get tired quickly. What do you do about it? Other than getting your testosterone, estrogen and thyroid checked, you start taking modafinil.

Some of the most influential people throughout mankind's history have done drugs. Freud developed his psychoanalytic theory under the influence of pharmaceutical grade cocaine, Winston Churchill took nitrous oxide and Francis Crick, was supposedly (it's disputed) high on LSD when he discovered DNA. Like it or not and irrespective of stigma, sourced well and dosed correctly chemical compounds can help an individual think in new ways and perform at an elite level.

Now whilst I shan't ever be advocating the consumption of outlawed narcotics here at Illimitable Men, there are a class of substances known as nootropics that can greatly enhance a whole range of things. Effects vary from the enhancement of creativity and memory, to the alleviation of depression and fatigue.

In fact, you probably unknowingly take at least one nootropic everyday: caffeine. Caffeine is the world's most famous nootropic, relied upon and consumed by millions day in, day out. Many people will shamelessly admit to a caffeine addiction because it's socially acceptable and carries no stigma, but at its essence caffeine addiction is a biological addiction.

The main problem with caffeine is that tolerance is developed quickly. It's a diuretic (you keep needing to go to the toilet, which interrupts your productive phases) and positive effects only last for a few hours (at most) before another dose is needed, and so when caffeine wears off, the individual experiences a horrible crash. Take it for too long and you become dependent, caffeine is habit-forming.

Modafinil is one of the strongest nootropics on the market, in truth I'd say its potency puts it somewhere between a drug and a nootropic, as it's too weak to be a drug but too strong to be a nootropic. Luckily for you, the powers that be disagree with my assessment and classify modafinil as a nootropic off-label and a prescription medicine on-label. As such getting hold of the stuff is simple, and to my knowledge there is no penalty for possessing it (but this may vary by jurisdiction, so do research on the laws in your country before ordering anything.)

In the US under the controlled substances act, modafinil is categorised as a schedule IV drug, meaning to legally purchase the compound you need a prescription for narcolepsy or shift work sleep disorder, however in some instances it is given for sleep apnea. Most people cannot get a prescription from their doctor for modafinil, or even if they can, find it is cheaper to buy it online than with medical insurance. I'll tell you exactly where you can source it from a reputable supplier further in.

You can read the full article here (skip to section 2 if you've read the above)

242

UPVOTES

She Can Never Be Your Equal

26 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Men are superior to women and therefore have more responsibilities than women. Women are superior to children, and therefore have more responsibilities than children. Superiority means "leadership over" due to increased maturity and reason, it does not come with a connotation of hate.

Women do not hate children because they're superior to them in the same way that men do not hate women because they're superior to them. Although plenty of men have their hang-ups with women (just as the reverse is true.) Men are more mature than women, who are more mature than children. This is about a hierarchy of maturity, of which men are at the top. The less mature you are, the less reasonable you are. You wouldn't want an immature person in charge of you, and assuming you found someone competent, you wouldn't say you were equal to the person in charge of you.

The problem with people today is women have been told it's bad to let a man be in charge of them, and men have been told to treat women as equal partners rather than subordinate dependants they care for.

You are superior, and you have to be in order to be eligible. That's reality. For the sake of ego preservation on her part, she will want to think of herself as your "first mate" or "partner", but you're not the captain, you're the ship. Without you there is nothing, no base nor foundation. She relies on you VASTLY more than you rely on her, and any functional relationship between a man and a woman is always based on this model.

It doesn't mean she's not important, it means you're depended upon more than you depend on her. It means the distribution of burden is disproportionate in order to reflect your difference in maturity, your burden is greater because her need is greater, her need is greater because she is more immature, and by extension of being less mature, less competent.

In fact, it's dangerous for you to depend on her emotionally, but the reverse is perfectly acceptable and fine. This is the burden that comes with being at the top of the maturity hierarchy. Emotional loneliness. Accepting you cannot confide all your deepest secrets and fears, not unless you're a schmuck who wants to see your relationship fall to shit. Women are so upset they're not really equals that they're completely ignorant to the fact that not being the final person everybody depends on is a privileged position. That when push comes to shove, women want someone to lean on and someone to blame, that true equality to men is something they could never handle. Like a child who wants to stay up late and eat unlimited amounts of candy, they only see the privileges of being a man, not the burdens.

Notice how women always go on about maturity in a way men don't seem to give a fuck about? They're like the damn maturity police. This reminds me of little kids who insist they're grown-ups out of insecurity. "Women are equal to men!" touted by women is the same infantile narcissism as a child claiming "I'm not a little kid anymore!". It stems from the desire to be taken seriously by people you're less mature and capable than. This is all ego, remember you will find the truth in action rather than words, for in words they claim equality to man, but in action they demand superiority from him.

In relation to the statement "women are children", this is hyperbole, what /u/redpillschool concretely means is "women are childlike" - if they weren't, you wouldn't want them. Feminine charm comes from a certain present-orientation, feminine beauty comes from a lack of ageing.

Women play up innocence and play down their cunning because this is what makes them attractive to men. Innocence is an inherently childlike quality. Men don't try to seem innocent because it's not masculine, things that are childlike are inherently unmasculine, but they aren't unfeminine. Why? Because women are closer to children than men. Stop thinking this is some way of talking women down or some sad attempt at dehumanisation. It isn't. It's a truism regardless of whether it suits your sensibilities.

Shrewd women constantly leverage the appearance of innocence to get people to help them. Women pout, men don't. Women have strops, men don't. Women cry more than men. Women are less rational than men. In summary: women are more mature than children, but less mature than men.

You can teach a woman to behave well, but she is still a woman and so requires discipline in the same way a child does. She craves it. She will not "be good" because "she's a good woman" she will only "be good" because you convey authority, and in order to convey authority, you must be superior, superior meaning more mature and more competent. This is the natural order of things. Egalitarianism is an indoctrinated ideal, it is normal to you because you grew up brainwashed by feminist garbage, but it is not normal in nature, and it is not indicative of reality.

Women's childlike qualities are not just physical (smaller, less hair etc), but their neonatality is likewise echoed mentally. The hottest women have greater neonatal traits than uglier ones. She's not your psychological equal. You can love her, care for her, even depend on her for small things, but she's not your equal and never will be.

As Schopenhauer said, she is somewhere between a child and an adult, an adolescent perhaps. If you can't accept that, if you need to believe in the feminine ego porn that she's your equal in every which way, fine. But that doesn't mean TRP is wrong, it means you're unable to accept an aspect of reality that discomforts you.

Play On People's Need to Believe to Create a Cult-like Following - IM's notes on Law 27

30 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1.) Introduction - Summarising The Law:

Law 27 is a particularly important law, for the need to believe is a universal aspect of the human character that can be leveraged into acquiring great wealth and fame. The need to believe in the mysterious, the beautiful, and the ideal is a source of great passion and comfort, and yet it is only by exploitation of this very mechanism that influence can be achieved.

Law 27 touches upon the single aspect of the human psyche that dictates the form of all human thought and action, as well as the movement of capital that accompanies it. This is why ideology, marketing, subculture and religion all frenetically compete to influence the people with their various interpretations of reality, for those who buy into their views reward them politically and financially.

Belief and gullibility are inextricably intertwined, for gullibility finds its root in greed, escape, and the want of happiness, things which exist in all minds. All minds are suggestible, it is just that some are convinced to a greater degree and with less effort than others. The purview of this law is to exploit the aforementioned needs by building belief systems from them that will act as a funnel for personal success.

Remember, to form a cult is not to merely impress a mind, but rather, to capture it by defining the very filter with which it interprets its surrounding reality.

2.) Notes On The Law:

- A following is the cultural embodiment of an army, your most zealous followers will preserve your reputation by fighting your detractors.
- With a following in tow, the enforcement of your will becomes automated. Your followers will act as relays for your ideas, pushing your agenda and converting others to your cause. Like any good business, a successful faith outsources proselytisation to its most fervent pawns.
- People are blessed with the ability to adapt to a harsh reality, but cursed with a need to believe in delightful implausibilities.
- The allure of the unreal is the grace of transcendence, fantasy bestows escape from mediocrity, and it is in this desire gullibility finds partial form.
- Cult creation relies on a central point of worship, a person or thing that symbolises a group's shared values. Cult leaders appear to be the living personification of the ideals, norms and values that the wider group holds dear.
- In the absence of religion there is a power vacuum, the people's need to believe remains, but the cult which previously sustained the need is absent. As such, people turn to smaller and less ancient cults, swapping religion for ideology in the unending quest to understand a cold world and experience a better tomorrow.
- The gullible outsource their agency to faith, rationalising failure as fate.
- The greater your number of followers, the easier it becomes to acquire new ones; this is preselection at work.
- A sophistic charlatan is infallible to his cult, misfortunes are rationalised around him rather than attributed to him.

You can find the rest of my notes here - enjoy!

The Building Blocks of Reinvention:

Whether they're aware of it or not, everyone has an opinion on narcissism, and a value system based on a preference for its presence or absence. Some respect only the boldness of grandiosity, whereas others are repelled by the lack of grace exhibited by unadulterated id. As such, those looking to reinvent themselves are typically confused about the degree of ego they should aspire toward in the pursuit of their idealised self. Is ego good, or is it bad? This is a context dependent question, but in the grand scheme of things it is neither, rather it is a tool.

One's mental visualisation of their ideal persona changes in accordance with their life experience. The arrogant self-aware intellectual can see where arrogance has cost him, and may as such aspire to a more stoic life. Should a man's failure be associated with passivity on the other hand, he will view egotism as the answer.

It is a fallacy of instinct to believe embodiment of the egotistical opposite is a solution to the floundering personality of current. Balance is necessary in all things, and ego is no exception. To maximise one's success, you must be plural rather than singular, not the stoic OR the narcissist, but rather the stoic AND the narcissist. Many, many people disagree with this premise out of distaste, but nonetheless, its utility is incontestable.

The egotistical should practice humility, as the humble should egotism. Each is necessary and neither is sufficient, for finesse requires the ability to wield both. The ability to exercise finesse is more a product of trial-and-error than it is an innate competency, and so the area you're weak in is the one that requires the most focus. In short, do not pick a side, develop your weaker one.

You can read the rest here. (skip to section 2)

If you have any comments/questions feel free to leave them here or on the blog, either's fine.

194

UPVOTES

Wake The Fuck Up! See women for who they are, not who you want them to be.

20 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is an old TRP rant of mine from back in 2013. It's not been revised or updated, this is the rant in its original form. Removed it from TRP when I updated it and expanded the content for my blog. I then later decided I would leave rants to Reddit + Twitter and not post vitriolic/less polished material on the blog. Result: this rant became unavailable, but people have long memories and some people remembered it and wanted to send it to others. As such, I had a few requests to make it available again. I've been really busy doing other shit, but finally I've gotten around to reposting it. Enjoy!

Women who are worth commitment are rare, I can't stress this enough. Most women deserve to be old and alone because since they've been given all the freedoms in the world to do whatever they like, they've not used that power to become people who are remotely desirable, likeable or respectable to men as a collective (without holding them at politically correct gunpoint) or even themselves. Women never have a good word to say about women either, with good reason. They're selfish, deceitful cunts.

Most of them (nearly all) make no effort whatsoever to fulfil a man's wants or needs, they are totally fixated with their own needs, they bring little but expect a lot, suffice to say, they're a bad deal. They are big, over-sized, over-entitled, manipulative little children who answer to nobody, walking around on some over-inflated faux sense of self-importance whilst dispensing nothing but shit tests when you insert kindness coins, only responding well to those who are disrespectful to them as "egalitarian" as such behaviour clearly isn't.

Be careful of the women who pose as unicorns or "good girls" but have a hidden agenda. Women can pretend to be somebody that they're not for a very long time, some of them, although seeming generally impatient in mannerism can covertly be very patient in the long run if the personal reward is high enough for them, if they want to divorce you, trap you with a kid or any crap like that they will play a very long game and win your trust bit by bit with small gestures that command respect. Relationships are war.

Some of these women actually believe they're different from other women hence the chanting of "not all women are like that" - let me tell you now, for every 10 women who claims to not be like that, you might find 1 unicorn, if even that (OK let's get real, it's a lot less than 1 in 10 - unicorns - they're fucking mythical beings.)

A lot of women are so illogical and ignorant they truly believe they don't do the terrible things or have the fucked up flaws that we talk about other women doing and possessing because they simply can't see it within themselves, they lack ethereal self-awareness; however do not confuse their inability to see their flaws and thus the false confidence they exude in "righteously" proclaiming that they do not have those flaws as matter of fact. A woman can indignantly believe in her own self-righteous beliefs like religious zealots can believe in their god(s) and all the associated lore. They can have all the passion in the world and be incredibly convincing, this zest can even be overwhelming and intoxicating, but it doesn't make any of what they think or say real, as in - observable or credible. It's merely subconscious lying. They are deluded.

At the end of the day, logic is the only thing that's impartial so you must trust that above opinion or anything else. That's why we have science, it's logic demonstrated by observation and reproduction. You can be so ignorant in believing a lie as truth that you'd pass a lie detector test saying the inane crap you spew because you truly believe it, but that doesn't mean it's an objectively observable truth. All a polygraph tells you is if you yourself think you're lying, if you're lying but think you're telling the truth, the machine will say you're telling the truth.

Even with the "realist" no-bullshit rare smart seeming chicks, when you start digging into who they are as a person and start shit-testing and observing them, when you try to corroborate their answers with their actions you'll see that "the realness" goes out the window, they are totally deluded, a lot of the crap they do simply doesn't match up with what they say, they lack consistency and thus by extension, credibility, actually I'm being unfair, they are consistent in one thing - at being deluded. They are a fucking deluded group of people. DELUDED. "Oh but what about the fields full of unicorns that be Russian/eastern European/southeast Asian women?" sure they're often better looking and better educated than western women but they're still prone to the same Achilles heel, believing in self-delusion also known as "actually thinking backward rationalisation and reality are synonymous entities." Women are women. They are totally flawed by nature of their inability (or reluctance) to conceptualise the fairness of reason as an abstraction.

Unicorns are individual beings, they are outliers, they are not groups/demographics. If you want a good credible woman, go look for your outlier because society will not force inherently selfish women to be decent anymore like say the Victorians did. We had terrible women before feminism, feminism just increased the quantity and concentration of shit women in the population by removing all the controls that society had previously placed on them.

The truth is many women are in total denial about who they really are and just feed off of bullshit to make themselves feel good. They are emotional sloths; they feed on good emotions so truth be fucking damned. They won't let the truth get in the way of their personal pleasure. This is why women aren't credible or even loyal, the underlying cause of this is that they will often choose their own happiness over the needs of a relationship in the face of a serious sacrifice, the caveat is with children, most women are great to children, it's a damn shame they can't treat men with that same love and sacrifice - with the exception of unicorns, which most of you think you have met, but haven't.

The sceptical and new initiates who can't see this and question it's truth are not deep enough down the rabbit hole, you've still got a long way to go - a lot of you think you can use red pill philosophy to make yourself desirable to a woman and then go fuckoff to your masturbatory Disney fantasy "...and they lived happily ever after" because now you have the magical instructions to create attraction. Bullshit. That is nothing but you still being ignorant, still being unable to accept that women are unilaterally: self-obsessed, selfish, solipsistic users.

You are deceived by their image, their soft sounding voice, their laughter, your eyes lie to you, completely. You are deceived by your weakness, you perceive delicacy in a beautiful woman, in her small frame, from the touch of her soft skin, when in reality, in the heart, it's you who is delicate, not she. Your wish that "things weren't this way" by the hope that "it can be better" is unfounded bullshit. They are who they are. Your desires are not tangible or even provable, merely hypothetical - and if you find a methodology to make it so, then by all means, make it so and come share it with us so we can all live the dream and start turning hoes into unicorns; but until you do that (which you probably won't, this is a huge fucking hypothetical) then simply accept women for who they are, don't project onto them who you want them to be and claim its possible because you projected it and had a minor success in one brief moment, that's doing the same shit we accuse women of - hamstering/backward rationalising.

Having bullshit expectations and believing in bullshit are only going to lead you to disappointment and ruin, it's almost as if, half of you men here are setting yourselves up for failure, you're willing to risk and sacrifice for a "crack at happiness" a "crack at an idealisation" fuck that, I rather never have a crack at the bullshit fantasy we're all fed our entire lives then get raped by the realisation that that shit isn't even real. Call it jaded, call it bitter, rationalise away what I say - I'm a young guy. Never been divorced or married. No kids. Still in university, bright future ahead of me. Don't blame the baggage, blame reality, blame feminism, blame our ancestors for letting everything get this shit. Women need to be subject to standards, expectations and controls like men are but because they're not (anymore) we have absolute social anarchy now.

Look, here's an exercise for you. Next time you're with a woman you think is hot, talk to her with your eyes shut or just not looking at her (she can't even be in your peripheral vision) see how you interact with her and what you think of her words when you're not constantly bombarded by her beauty, scientists have said a hot girls face has similar effects on the male brain to cocaine. Google it if you care enough. Female beauty intoxicates males, it stops you thinking correctly. If you used nothing but logic and scientific suspicion you'd have no internal struggle in dealing with women, you'd see them clearly for what and who they are.

It would be nice if you could be a team, and with a unicorn, that's possible - but if you've not got a unicorn stop wishing the opposing military would just call a truce fire, it's like North Korea and South Korea, the best you're going to get is a 50+ year truce and a DMZ buffer and eventually it's back to war and one of you is going to lose. It's not a matter of IF it's a matter of WHEN. The "battle of the sexes" presenting itself as tongue in cheek is not tongue in cheek at all, it's real fucking shit. Get that into your head. Women only team up with you on the conditions that you're better than them and that they can use your betterment to better themselves, as soon as you're worse than them, they're dumping your ass. It's a battle. She'd use your corpse to save her own neck because she thinks she's more important than you are. That's reality.

The best way to find out if a woman is "secretly" fucking bonkers on your hunt for a unicorn is to really fuck her off (do it, on purpose) and see what tactics she starts throwing at you from her mental warfare arsenal. When she's mad she can't control herself so you'll get to see the real core of who she is. If she starts twisting things, gaslighting you, threatening you or anything like that... red flag, next the bitch she's not worth the hassle no matter how nice the hole is or how much you've come to like her. Do not ignore huge red flags like this. If she just cries, apologizes or basically doesn't do anything deeply head fucking, you're probably safe, but you need to discern what she's capable of.

The reason you want to piss her off is because when you piss them off they show their true colours beneath the makeup and the bullshit, you get to see who the real ugly spirit/soul is behind that facade, that illusion, that fake ego and that bullshit persona. Women are the masters of illusion, manipulation and fakery, you literally have to cast a fishing rod into their soul and yank it out to see who they really are, to see the core of who you're actually dealing with. You can think you know a woman for years but until you've had the most terrible of fights with her, you do not know who she is or what she's capable of, all you've got is her word but no proof "that she's not like that" so get your proof or regret it for the rest of your life when you trust the wrong woman and are thus taken to the cleaners, trapped for eternity. Test her mettle.

Read my blog

Talk smack with me about random shit on Twitter

Support my work

I ran a Twitter poll seeing how many of you could identify a jester DT subtype by asking "Is Milo Y DT?" - 49% of you answered no, which is hilariously if not sadly wrong. On the upside, more of you answered yes than answered no, and few people can probably boast of a readership that's so switched on that 51% of them can accurately detect a white collar DT. Anyhow, I digress. The article is not about Milo Y, but it pretty accurately describes  people like him . This is completely fresh and original content in the DT/RP sphere of knowledge, and I can say with unwavering confidence it's something you won't have read about before. So if you're one of the people who complains there's never any new theory and everything's a rehash, you're in for a treat. As usual, I'll include section 1 here and a link to the full article at the bottom. Enjoy!

EXCERPT:

The jester's humour can take on either an attack or defence posture, with humiliation acting as his weapon, and plausible deniability his shield. And I say 'he', for of the few jesters I have encountered, not one has been female. Likewise if I am to put my personal experiences to one side and observe the wider culture, I remain at a loss in the attempt to identify a female jester.

The wit inherent to the mechanisms of the jester are intrinsically masculine in their nature, for the jester employs a type of verbal gladiatorship of which I have little doubt is fuelled in great part by the ordination that the male must prove his fitness to the female as opposed to the inverse. As the dearly departed Christopher Hitchens stated in simpler terms, women aren't funny because they don't need to be; and such a truism does not find any particular exception within the expression of one's Machiavellian interpersonal style either.

Of course a high functioning dark triad woman is wittier than her neurotypical counterpart by effect of her reduced emotional sensitivity, but this does not lend itself to becoming the dominant function which underpins and subsequently characterises her interpersonal style. The feminine Machiavellian archetype is almost always that of the seductress, favouring the weaponisation of sex and all the attendant traits this implies, she presupposes the virginity of enemy men and the promiscuity of enemy women whilst overtly oozing innuendo and sensualism in her bid to entrance allies.

Think of a Machiavellian archetype as a flavour of cunning, all Machiavellians are cunning, but the way in which that cunning is expressed differs vastly in its style and execution. Different archetypes use different stylistic mediums to exert their influence. Be it to charm or humiliate, jesters use humour, seductresses use sexuality whereas fault finders use rules and malicious compliance. Cunning may be universal, but the asset utilised and the way in which it is personified vastly differs. The jester's power stems from a quick wit and their ability to employ said wit humouristically, for it is their ability to verbally destroy an enemy to a chorus of laughter that makes their otherwise unacceptable aggressiveness permissible.

The jester is a master of reframing perception through humour, and so of all the various styles of cunning found manifest, his persuasion goes unmatched. His ability to sway group opinion is second to none, for hilarity always brings great popularity, and seductiveness cannot target as large an audience as hilarity. Irrespective of environment, be it the royal courts of Europe or a television talk show, the jester's subtle albeit inextricable control of public perception goes indomitably unchallenged.

When people on the internet say "trolling is a skill", they unknowingly nod gently to this Machiavellian interpersonal style. To give an example of what a jester looks like, Milo Yiannopoulos epitomically embodies the form of a jester. Stylish, cunning, witty and highly narcissistic, the jester's ability to theatrically employ wit and word to persuade, entertain and humiliate is incontestable.

FULL ARTICLE: <https://illimitablemen.com/2016/09/19/dark-triad-archetypes-the-jester/>

Womanly Duplicity & Its Constituent Parts

20 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

New piece on the intrinsicity of female Machiavellianism. It's a great accompaniment in the dark triad literature to my piece Lucifer's Daughter, the main difference being that DT women are a subset of women, whereas Machiavellianism is native to them all (outlying snowflake aspie girls notwithstanding - ha!) This is an important distinction to make: almost all women are wired to be self-deceptively cunning, but very few of them are actual psychopaths. As for narcissism? That's rampant in today's women, it's a socially "maladapted" personality trait - but you didn't need me to tell you that. Enjoy!

EXCERPT:

Why are women so manipulative? Know that firstly in matters of people, manipulation is as natural to a woman as stinging is to a scorpion. Woman herself needs no education in wielding her sexual powers to exert undue influence on man, for nature has equipped man to covet her sexuality, and woman herself to abuse it. This intersexual blend of Machiavellianism is thus as automatic as it is instinctive, it is less so a product of conscious higher thinking, and more so an inevitability of the selection pressures that bred her.

From here we discover a curiously enigmatic piece of the feminine puzzle, one that leaves many a man dumbfounded in its seemingly paradoxical juxtaposition. If we are to presuppose that woman is intrinsically cunning, then how can we simultaneously assert her propensity for fantastical gullibility? If women are so manipulative, why is it that they are more susceptible to propaganda and given to believe more fervently in the supernatural, the religious, and other such unsubstantiable things? After all, the cunning are known not for their epitomisation of gullibility, but for their deficit of it. So if they are to be mutually exclusive, should one not the preclude the other? And if so, how can she be cunning if she is likewise gullible?

It is my contention that in neither man nor woman is gullibility mutually exclusive from cunning, and I shall endeavour to explain why this is hence forth.

As I alluded previously, a woman's cunning is a byproduct of her instinct, not a premeditated affair. Her ability to seduce is more nature than it is nurture, her manipulations no more than mechanisms of her biological wiring than they are conscious exertions. Her spasmodic capriciousness, penchant for blame shifting and affinity to the plausibly deniable are evolutionarily adapted survival traits, as is her propensity for rationalisation and its subsequent supplantation of her reason.

And yet the very capacity for rationalisation that makes her manipulations so powerful is the very thing which confers her gullibility in matters of the esoteric and abstract. Effectively, her ability to rationalise makes her most effective in the manipulation of people, but the very deficit of reason such rationalisation causes is what leads to her gullibility in the abstract.

As an additional factor, one must note women's unconditional loyalty to authority. She is obedient in much the way a child is, and it is this obedience which makes her prone to foolishness.

If a person of repute is to tell her something, she will evaluate the thing based on the importance of the person who told her it rather than dissect the elements of what she was told. It is in this way that lesbianic upper class women duped the common woman into working; by playing on the innate victim complex characteristic of woman's infantile narcissism, they were able to convince her that labour was a freedom women were denied rather than a burden from which they were saved. Womankind subsequently rationalised away her position of relative comfort unencumbered by the harshnesses of labour, and bought into the idea she was born into an oppressed class. As such it becomes quite clear, interpersonally she is cunning, but ideologically she is the very fool she manipulates relationally.

Be she cunning mindfully or instinctually, she is innately predisposed to a degree of cunning one way or the other.

This is not to suggest that women are incapable of consciously premeditating their manipulations for such a thing is possible if not commonplace, but rather it is testament to the baseline of duplicity present in women even when conscious effort is absent. Even then, I make this distinction only to emphasise the intrinsicity with which cunning exists in women, I by no means believe the typical woman lacks either the interest or inclination to more mindfully develop the instincts that nature bestowed her. Likewise it is in tangential relevance to this I find it important to note that women's profound interest in, and domination of academic psychology is no more than an effect of her intrinsic Machiavellian propensity.

Women who are instinctively cunning rather than mindfully cunning will often succumb to gullibility in spite of themselves. For you see, their instincts equip them solely to seduce and petition man, not to engage in the strategisation of complex, abstract mental work. Women with a flair for the strategic are either learned or dark triad and are therefore by definition outliers, the base of the female population's Machiavellian instinct scanty extends beyond the interpersonal and the intersexual.

And so when it comes to things outside of this arena, she is as naive as the dictation of her emotions and the deficit of her reason allows. Combine this deficit in logic with her evolutionary propensity to rationalise away the undesirable, and the strength of her need to believe is laid bare.

FULL ARTICLE: <https://illimitablemen.com/2016/09/14/womanly-duplicity-its-constituent-parts/>

BLOG VERSION:

<https://illimitablemen.com/2016/10/11/what-to-learn-and-how-to-learn-it-these-are-the-questions/>

Contrary to what may be impressed upon the reader by the length and intricacy of my essays, I greatly value simplification, especially when it comes to learning something. There are so many great books to read and so many interesting topics to discover, that there simply isn't enough time to absorb it all. As such, when one is voracious for knowledge they must make choices in what they learn, and then strive to absorb what they have deemed worthy of learning as quickly as they can humanly learn it.

Knowledge is not power but power potential, and rather it is the application of knowledge and not knowledge itself that constitutes power as we think of it. As such, it is in one's interest to accrue as much knowledge as possible in order to increase their power potential. Time however is as equally pressing as it is finite, if not because it is finite, and thus the net maximum potential power accumulable decreases in direct proportion to the amount of time expended on things extraneous of one's current learning objective.

To simplify this statement: the more time one spends learning any specific thing, the less time they have left on the Earth to learn other things. And those things you're not learning could be, unbeknownst to you, more conducive to your personal power than the things you have chosen to learn.

Cost-benefit analyses are our friends, but whatever we choose to learn incurs a sunk cost, and thereby it is in our interest to choose both wisely (to make the most informed decisions we're capable of in choosing what we learn) and to choose quickly (to avoid the unproductive inertia of indecision and procrastination).

Naturally, the accuracy of a choice tends to increase with the slowness with which it is decided, and thus there's an argument to be made that slower more accurate choices are superior to quicker and more sloppily made ones. Regardless, momentum is the achieving man's friend, procrastination but his foe. And so in light of this there's an even greater argument to be made: that in the pursuit of growth, it is better to simply make a decision than it is to make none at all, for even in failure there is education, whilst in stagnation there is little besides regret and the illusion of safety.

Ultimately, the goal of the most ambitious self-actualiser is to make smart learning choices in as little time as possible, whilst learning the chosen thing with maximum depth and understanding in the shortest time possible.

Most outwardly agree learning is important, fewer actually expend the effort necessary to actively learn, whilst even fewer seek to tinker with their learning methodology in order to optimise it. I of course am of the belief that in order to truly be the best that one can be, that simply doing is insufficient, doing is necessary, but more importantly one must seek to refine how they do. Learning is no exception to this need, and rather, I actually think of it to be the thing that epitomises this sentiment.

"But IM, is knowledge even important to the accumulation of power? Surely experience is superior to reading?"

There is indisputably great value to knowledge, but knowledge bereft a means of implementation is unactualised of purpose in much the way raw materials owned by nations without the means to refine them see the potential of said materials wasted.

Experience is vital in matters of the heart and the body, but it's not the be-all and end-all. Simply put, experience is overrated, for there's not enough time in this life to experience everything to the degree sufficient enough to master it. This is why we have specialisation, for it is better to be a master of one trade than a layman in all.

This is also why we compress time in the form of books, for they allow us to derive the core lessons of a thing without requiring us to invest the time necessary to fully experience it. Life is literally too short to experience everything to the degree necessary for a man to truly understand and master it, for beyond a certain level of proficiency, one falls victim to the law of diminishing returns.

The power of books lies in their ability to have us learn from those who have already invested the time to become an expert at a thing, they are almost like surrogate mentors if you will. And so in the grander picture, they are time-saving devices, although in the heat of immediacy many do not view books as such because they can take considerable time to ingest. Nonetheless, irrespective of the time it takes a man to read a particularly lengthy and intricate book, it would take him even longer to live the things the writer did in order to form a conclusion of equal authority.

By the time you become a wall street trader, a pro wrestler, or whatever it is that will teach you the lessons you want to learn, you could've read hundreds of books that would've taught you more than you would've learned from investing an equal or greater amount of time actually trying the thing for yourself.

Personal experience is inefficient because you do a lot of things that don't work in order to discover what does, whereas the success derived from the experience of others can be distilled into knowledge that saves you from making the mistakes necessary to arrive at the same conclusion.

Books that draw knowledge from a wide data pool can pattern recognise trends to derive principles, and these principles can in turn be used by the uninitiated to increase their odds of success. It is this macro approach to knowledge which allows a person to draw inferences with a level of accuracy that would be simply impossible to derive were they reliant solely on personal experience.

Take The Bell Curve for instance, the employ of statistics garnered from thousands of studies allowed this book to make conclusions with a level of accuracy beyond that which any single person is capable of achieving. How is this so? Quite simply, more data. Anyone with even a basic understanding of statistics realises that absent wilful falsification, greater sample sizes lead to more accurate findings.

People trust experience more because it can't be faked, and lord knows academics fabricate all kinds of data to support their ideological agendas, and yet irrespective of this, experience is most certainly overrated.

I'm not trying to debase the necessity of experience for it certainly has value, undoubtedly a great many thing requires experience in order to be truly understood. However, there are only so many experiences a person can have, and one's experiences are often incomplete in the sense that they're the byproducts of inability rather than achievement.

Likewise, people of greater mind can teach us things we don't notice, or struggle to articulate and consciously understand. And so reading not only saves us time, but more importantly it allows us to pierce the universe more deeply than if we were to remain unlettered. It is this quality of the book that makes it irreplaceably additive to one's time on this Earth.

This is the value of secondhand knowledge, and unlike experience, it is often undervalued owing to its indirect and vicarious nature. I think this to be incorrect, and rather that it is the unread experience junkie who is the fool rather than the individual who complements their living with the wisdom and discoveries of men greater than they.

To give an example I'm sure most of you will relate to, a divorced man knows enough about marriage to accurately forewarn younger men of the risks inherent to the endeavour. One need not actually go and get married and undergo the same pains, trials and tribulations that millions of other men have in order to validate the finding.

This would not only be extremely deleterious to one's mental health, but likewise a terrible use of their time. This notion really exemplifies how knowledge can trump experience in educating one on "what not to do", for when a person has internalised a long list of what they shouldn't be doing, the number of mistakes necessary to get where they want to go is reduced exponentially. Yes, often to find the answers on how to specifically do a thing, a person need merely repeatedly attempt a thing whilst altering their approach with each iteration. But to discover what not to do and decrease the odds of failure from the get go, this is where reading provides quite the boon.

"Ok IM, I understand reading is necessary to augment my success, but if reading is the default state of learning, how —" do I optimise my learning process to learn even quicker?"

So in the paragraphs prior I detailed my philosophy on learning, now I will detail the steps I've taken in light of it.

Effective businessmen know that in order to scale up and earn truly ludicrous sums of money they must learn to delegate. Things they became accustomed to doing when they were small should be assigned to others in order to free up their time for grander tasks. I apply this idea to learning.

If a person can reduce the time taken to learn a thing without compromising on the depth with which they understand the thing, they can gain a huge edge over the competition.

So rather than constantly read books, I look for people who have gone to the effort of fully understanding a book, plucking out its gems and explaining what they mean in a summarised manner. This way, I can profit from their time investment and learn exactly what they've learned in only a fraction of the time.

Books condense life, but summaries condense books, and thus pound for pound I believe reading or at least actively listening to summaries given by people who have already fully read a text is something that will provide me with the greatest intellectual return in the shortest amount of time. I believe very few people are doing this, and that yet this one thing alone can give a man a great edge in this game we call life.

This is the beauty of the digital age, if you know where to look, you can find time-saving services that would simply not have been possible before the advent of the internet. Podcasts are an obvious place to begin streamlining the learning process, I particularly enjoy the Tim Ferriss podcast. The only drawback with podcasts is the advertising and predominance of socialising acts as no more than fluff to the budding learner. Podcasts are as such in my view, more semi-educational easy listening than they are concentrated catalysts for self-growth.

A step-up from podcasts are audio summaries, an audio summary is a person summarising the key points of a text they've read and articulating these findings to the listener. I particularly enjoy illacertus's YouTube channel for this purpose. The advantage audio summaries have over podcasts is how the speaker directly delivers the information absent the fluff of banter or social observation you can expect from podcasts.

Finally, we have text summaries. The main reason I believe text summaries to be superior to audio summaries is because audio can play in the background, allowing you to tune them out whilst you do other things. Text on the other hand demands your full attention to be imbibed, and thus cannot fall victim to your need to check social media. It's actually quite difficult to find anyone going through the hassle of summarising books into text summaries, however I managed to find an online bookclub which is doing exactly this.

I wouldn't listen to a podcast in lieu of reading an actual book, however, if you're reading to grow rather than for self-pleasure, I highly recommend integrating audio, and particularly text summaries into your autodidactic toolkit.

If you're not improving, you're not growing and if you're not growing, you're losing. By speeding up your rate of learning, you vastly increase your chances of success. Don't hold yourself back.

18

UPVOTES

Ruminations on Double Standards

28 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There is parallel advantage and disadvantage to living as male or female, for men are by and large deemed more credible, whilst the womanly form is more coveted. As such, if you are a man the world is more likely to respect you than it is to desire or care for you; whereas if you're a woman, the world is more partial to be desiring and caring of you, than it is respecting. On some level, be it conscious or not, it would seem our fair species recognises women as dependants and men as their guardians, treating each accordingly.

Now on the surface this sounds like men get a better deal, and within the infinite remit of ideological feminism and the intrinsicity of feminine self-pity, this is certainly what much of womankind believes as she takes a perverse sense of pride in being the prima facie victim. Yet in reality, man's position comes with a burden, loneliness and difficulty of life that is as equal parts alien as it is undesirable to the feminine.

Womanly complaint makes it a common point of contention that there are matters in which by injustice of her womanliness she suffers gross disadvantage, and it is this line of thinking which serves as the foundation for feminist thought.

You can read the full article here.

92

UPVOTES

My radio appearance with Donovan Sharpe earlier this evening HEAVY RED PILL - TOO MUCH FOR MOST TO HANDLE

15 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I was on radio tonight with my man Donovan Sharpe. You can hear me on radio with him over on Soundcloud:

<https://soundcloud.com/user-794676769/live-wspecial-guest-illimitable-man>

Previous radio appearances:

With Mark Baxter:

<https://realmarkbaxter.wordpress.com/2016/12/21/the-mark-baxter-podcast-episode-2-illimitable-man/>

With Christian McQueen:

<https://amanindemandradio.podbean.com/e/episode-46-the-illimitable-man-interview/>

If you want to talk smack or give feedback.. leave a comment. Great. Will be posting a new article soon. A happy 2017 to you all. Hope all is well! Keep killing it brothers.

-IM

I hope you enjoy my latest, thanks for reading!

EXCERPT:

1. – Social causes are disguises for the predators and lifestyles for the sheep.
2. – Her first concern is her appearance, her second concern her cunning, both serve the same ends.
3. – Your response should be proportional to the perception of the threat, there's no need to launch nukes when you can get the job done with a well-aimed bullet.
4. – A leader must be mindful in exercising benevolence, for too much benevolence is perceived as weakness and fosters resentment.
5. – One is wise to openly support freedom of speech, but they should only do so for as long as such speech is not deleterious to their reputation; it is almost always an act of self folly to not censor those biting deep into their repute.
6. – Be mindful of the Streisand effect, if your detractors are persistent and resourceful, censoring will make things worse rather than better.
7. – People are bolder when they're paying and meeker when they're paid. Caveat: the latter doesn't apply to blackmail.
8. – People want to forget, not be reminded. Very powerful. Never forget this.
9. – Tu quoque is the sophist's most preferred logical fallacy, for it can justify their poor behaviour whilst simultaneously redirecting attention to the misdeeds of others.
10. – Weak and strong in matters of strategy are not effects of appearance in so much as they are a question of the tactical viability and efficacy of a plan.
11. – In financial exchange, the man paid covets payment in advance whilst the man paying seeks to pay after the fact.
12. – When people retroactively change their minds, they will blame you for their change of heart irrespective of whether it's truly your fault.
13. – "Coincidence" is the term people use to describe a chess move they don't understand.
14. – To see how ruthless life truly is, all one need do is observe the vast difference in means between people.
15. – Survival of the fittest, there is no greater truism; winners and losers, everyone takes what they can get. Nothing is owed, everything is game.
16. – Let the other man lose his cool, but be sure to keep yours, for it is the man with the most self-control that leaves victorious.
17. – The nicer the man, the more he suffers, for the world does not respect carte blanche kindness. Forget kindness, show only magnanimity – a selective kindness backed by thoughtfulness and strength.

18. – The beauty of a question is it's in your power to decide whether you're going to answer it or not.
 19. – Sell a person on a thing by making them think you're not selling anything. The moment they think you're trying to sell them, they'll behave as if they hold all the power.
 20. – This is as true of physical action as it is of agenda pushing: that which happens suddenly is noticed and reacted to, whilst that which happens gradually is not. In stealth, promote gradualness. Move too quickly and you will be discovered.
-

FULL ARTICLE: <https://illimitablemen.com/2017/01/15/machiavellian-maxims-part-4/>

525

UPVOTES

DON'T GIVE UP! - We're gonna make men great again!

25 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Finding a decent loving girl for a companion is hard as fuck if not a damn near impossibility, shit, I think in our hearts of hearts that this is what the majority of men want but are hard pressed to admit. The reason a lot of guys don't bother actively pursuing these deep kind of relationships with women and have accepted it's probably never going to happen for them is because the average girl, and by average I'm talking 99%+, are not even willing to work on improving themselves either intellectually nor domestically, and nor are they capable of submitting to a man's benevolent authority in which she looks up to and loves her man as her superior.

No, instead they're on this egotistical equalist bullshit which doesn't work and simply makes them less desirable to even be around by dismerit of the insolence and poor behaviour that results from a woman who believes herself to be equal, if not superior to her man. And hear me brothers, hear me clearly when I say that equalism is the gateway to tyranny rather than benevolent superiority when a woman and not a man inhabits the role. Such a thing serves as little other than a stepping stone on the path to dysfunction and chaos, and such a thing is hardly a sustainable way of life even if it were desirable. Equalism and its subsequent psychological androgyny are true perversions.

I am hardly fervently religious, I have no religious education nor indoctrination, however I have taken it upon myself to read parts of the bible of my own accord, and I believe religion got it right when it said women should worship men, men should not worship women.

This is not misogynistic nor oppressive as the average idiot has been misled to believe. It is the natural order of things in so much as it is the most effective model for happiness within the family unit across a society. Men love down by sacrificing, women love up by worshipping. To worship is to respect an authority, love it, and follow it - that's all it is, nothing more, nothing less. How sad is it that such wisdom has become a taboo lost to the common sense of the common man? Did God not sacrifice for his children? Does a man not sacrifice for his woman? Then why can't a woman find God in her man and worship him as is necessary in the way man was able to reward God's sacrifice for him? It seems the collapse of religion has not only lead to man's loss of faith in God, but women's subsequent loss of faith in man. The latter is absolutely decimating the emotional and moral essence of our fair society. To reframe this order as evil and oppressive is such a disingenuous inversion of healthy family values it makes me sick to even think about. I have no desire to get into religious or metaphysical philosophical discussions about whether God exists or not, all I know is faith is important, and women who do not know how to have faith by worshipping a strong man are unmarriageable.

And the so-called progressives will say "what's wrong with mutual respect?" like the absolute retards that they are. They know nothing of love. Love is not based on mutual respect. Love is based on mutual care, women care when they can respect your hardness, men care when they fall in love with your softness. An equal woman is not a soft woman, nor a desirable woman, nor a woman man wants to protect, nor a woman one is willing to endure, and thusly she is not a woman in anything but the physical sense of the word to a man.

Regardless, if you can't have all that shit, if you can't have the loving loyal chick that hasn't slutted it up and that's the shit you want, and then you furthermore realise most women are just so fucking devoid of any relational potential, average women are not going to attract you on a mental, emotional or psychological level. Merely physically. And that's where the union ends, sad as it is, for there is so much more we are capable of as a species, and yet we have had this denied us due to the toxic fruits of the feminist tree.

Women have, via feminism, in the hubristic and bigoted belief that they deserve to be equal to rather than beneath man, devalued their value as emotional entities and are increasingly seen as good for nothing more than their physical worth - a fuck - because after all, if you don't cultivate your personality, if you are not humble, if you are not soft, if you are not submissive, nor accommodating, nor pleasant beyond your immediate physical attractiveness, what is there exactly to like about you? A man doesn't want to be in a relationship with an insolent little girl who can't accept her place in the natural order and tries to foolishly compete with, rather than complement her man. By behaving as a man and trying to compete as a man, she devalues herself in the eyes of man.

Funnily enough women are there on the flipside moaning "why wont men commit to me" after they have fucked countless men for a decade if not more, and are simultaneously incapable of giving up the feminist bullshit and the constituent boyish masculinism and narcissism it has imbued them with.

We live in a very sick culture. It's not fair this is the fucking legacy our ancestors left us with their bullshit 60's/70's movement, but these are the pieces we've been left to pick up. And a lot of us are going to self-destruct trying to cope with it, but cope with it we must. Just know that, as a man, even though you are alone because the voice of a good woman is more likely to be the song of a siren than the voice of a woman who is actually pure of heart and intent, you are not alone by yourself. We are all fucked with this shit, we are all alone, men as a near universal collective share the concern that you do, that there are no good women, and it's either vapid superficial sex with narcissistic bitches, a life as a beta cuck, or a life of celibacy with no desirable mid-point in sight.

We live in trying times, tough times, hard times. But hard times make hard men and hard men make good times, so I think, you know, if we keep on doing what we're doing, we can be less shit, we'll make other men less shit, we'll all become fucking great again.. and then and only then, when we're so fucking badass the dumb bitches will forgo their programming to lock down what they perceive to be an apex male of a man.. block by block.. family by family.. we will rebuild society. HOWEVER, and this is a big however, it wont be like the society of old where betas aplenty got to have happy marriages under the guidance of god and marriage.

Not even religious people get that now because of the feminist poison. I don't want to name names because I'm a discreet man and marriage wrecking is not my thing, but I've had a so-called Christian girl talking dirty to me in the Twitter DMs some time back. As much as that gets my cock hard, it makes me fucking weep to think her husband who slaves away to give them a home has an insolent straying bitch hitting up random red pill writers on the internet. No. Any future society we rebuild will be a society of alphas with a strong pimp hand keeping their bitches in line, who are in turn, thankful they're being kept in line instead of allowed to run feral into their own soul-destroying promiscuous infertility.

I truly believe if we can make men great again, we can make women great again too. But not in the reverse order. Women are followers. They will do sweet fuck all of their own accord, and we'll have to drag them kicking and screaming out of the abyss they are oh so degenerately enchanted by.

Latest blog piece: <https://illimitablemen.com/2017/01/15/machiavellian-maxims-part-4/>

Twitter: <http://twitter.com/IllimitableMan>

Support my writing: <http://patreon.com/IllimitableMan>

Latest podcast: <https://soundcloud.com/user-794676769/live-wspecial-guest-illimitable-man>

Thank you for reading and I hope I gave you all a lot to think about. Next podcast will be on February the 4th due to all the immensely positive feedback we got on the last one we did!

195

UPVOTES

Whenever men ask me what kind of woman they should be looking for as relationship material in future I'm just gonna send them this

9 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So my latest essay is about how integral the dominant and submissive dynamic is in fostering healthy and happy relationships between men and women. This stuff seems pretty normal to me, but things being as fucked up as they are means a lot of people HAVE NO IDEA about this dynamic or know about it but misconstrue it entirely as outdated, oppressive, or some other banal crap. I'll leave you an excerpt below and a link to the full essay at the bottom. I hope you enjoy reading this as much as I enjoyed writing it. Cheers!

It hardly feels worthy of mention, because it comes as naturally to one's self as a sky of blue or a blade of green grass, yet in our age of dystopic social engineering and decadent artifice, it appears controversial that healthy romantic relationships between men and women take on a dominant-submissive dynamic.

In a culture of toxic femininity in which the feminine is made primary, the natural and healthy role of man and woman has been perverted to the extent the mere idea of man leading his woman is deemed offensive, if not at the very least backward and regressive in its stance. The intelligentsia of our time, ever unenlightened as they are, have placed their chips on the pillars of equality and obstinately refuse to re-evaluate the foolishness of their pseudo-progressiveness.

Dancing has been used ritualistically as a preliminary step to courtship since time immemorial, the dance itself serving as little more than a finessed way of ascertaining a man's ability to take charge and a woman's to follow. Now imagine if a couple were silly enough to think that neither partner should lead nor follow, owing to their shared belief that equality negates a need for hierarchy. If their roles as dance partners was not identical, they would inhabit a state of inequality. But because dancing requires a leader and a follower, and our fellow dancers do not believe in inequality, they would quite simply fail to dance! The absurdity of their beliefs would, effectively, render them incapable of dancing.

Extrapolating this to the dating market of today, much of the general dissatisfaction and unhappiness we see stems from this belief, or at the very least the incapacity for one or either sex to fulfil their roles as dominant and submissive. Be it that the man is an ineffectual and submissive "leader," or the woman is an insolent, ball-busting sham of a "follower". Neither is good relationship material for the other and neither will do, for although dominance and submission is necessary for a relationship to take place, a woman's love is based upon respect, and her inability to respect a man she has been burdened to lead will ultimately conclude in her loss of love for him.

Full essay: <https://illimitablemen.com/2017/02/05/dominance-and-submission/>

401
UPVOTES

How To Stop Feeling Tired (if you're always tired as fuck, then none of the self-improvement material in the world will be enough - get your energy levels on lock first!)

23 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Link to full article: <https://illimitablemen.com/2017/02/23/how-to-stop-feeling-tired/>

Excerpt from the introduction:

Energy optimisation is of great importance to me. I'm not naturally high energy, but I'm naturally pretty smart. And I'll tell you this. High energy guys with shit for brains will kill it more in life than low energy smart guys ever will.

Energy is king. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise. A high energy dumbass will outperform a low energy genius every time without fail. Not only will his peak in any one scenario be higher, but his ability to endure will be greater.

Without energy, you just can't get shit done.

When genius boy wants to lay back in his chair and do fuck all, dumbo the elephant wants to zoom around town completing errands.

It is energy and energy alone that underpins every single human's ability to do anything. And so there should be nothing, absolutely nothing, that is more important for you to get under control than this.

If you're not a high energy person, and you're reading this, your objective should be to change this. Firstly, identify why and how you're low energy, then engage in lifestyle changes and/or therapeutic treatments to fix the problem.

This is your true route to a better life, not binge reading self-improvement material. Self-improvement material can't give you energy, it can only tell you what to do assuming you actually have the energy to follow its advice!

Being low energy is not an acceptable state of living. It's normal to average people, because average people are accustomed to being in poor health, but if you read IM, you are obviously someone with zero interest in being average, and will do whatever it takes to win at life.

It doesn't matter how capable you think you are, how smart, how talented, how whatever. As a smart man who's had to deal with far too much fatigue throughout his life, I can tell you this:

Smart men are smarter when they're not fatigued.

Having sharp effortless focus and not having to battle brain fog not only improves your performance, but rids you of the emotional frustration that comes with brain fog.

So however smart you think you are in your constant state of tiredness? Yeah, you'd be smarter if you weren't tired all the time. If you're not a high energy person, you will never reach your potential, you will find it hard to be motivated, social and productive.

Nobody who is ambitious wants this for themselves.

It's not because you suck. It's not because you're lazy, or some other garbage where people with better physiology due to genetics or drug consumption look down on you for being less productive than them.

It's because your hormonal profile sucks. It's easy to kill it at life when your hormones rock, which is why a lot of winners are into blood panel monitoring and hormonal optimisation. If you are tired all the time, your hormones suck, and it's holding you back. Period.

A lot of people who don't achieve much and are deemed lazy, may actually be very mentally ambitious and driven.

But if they don't have the energy to act on their ambitions?

Then for all and intent and purpose the world thinks you're a loser. It doesn't care you're tired. It just wants results. Wanting to produce results isn't enough. You need to be actually able to produce them!

It doesn't matter if you're a god damn rocket ship. If you have no rocket fuel, how are you getting to Mars? You're not.

It's easy for a high energy person with good hormones to tell a low energy person with bad hormones to work harder, that they need to get out of their head, that it's their fault and theirs alone they suck and blah blah. I see egotistical chest beating fucks talking like this all the time.

Nonetheless, my objective is not to bitch for the entirety of this article – it's to help. I believe this opening rant is necessary, because if you believe you suck innately, and don't realise it's a fixable biological problem that is to blame, there's no hope for you.

Once you recognise the world is unfair, and that the reason you're sucking at life stems from subpar health, you can find a way to do something about it.

Enjoy the article, I hope it helps you improve your life.

<https://illimitablemen.com/2017/02/23/how-to-stop-feeling-tired/>

The Choice [REMASTERED] - Should you have a family, or live as a bachelor?

26 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full Article: <https://illimitablemen.com/2016/01/22/the-choice/>

So I've just finished remastering this essay. Amazing how much one can improve at writing in a year. It wasn't as terrible as some of my earlier stuff, yet I still found significant ways to improve it and wanted to share the updated version with all of you. Hope everyone is well and that you enjoy the essay. Cheers!

Excerpt:

To enjoy the decline, or to start a family, that is the question. And of course this is a problem unique to man, particularly those conscious and critical of the paradigm we occupy, for it is not a consideration that even crosses the threshold of consciousness in the archetypal drone. And yet unlike the drone who knows no quandary, who idly autopilots his way into an unremarkable five to fifteen year marriage that yields two point one children, the more enlightened man finds himself in the pivotal yet privileged position of making an informed choice about his future's course.

Such a man is free to direct his fate absent the demands of religious indoctrination or self-serving women. After all, should one of the most important decisions of a man's life be made by anyone other than the man himself? Does a man pressured and cajoled into starting a family do so on his own terms, or on the terms of those with a plan for him? With both reason of mind and heart of soul, the man free of spells and delusions can exercise his mental sovereignty by weighing up the risks and rewards of the lifestyle choices available to him, be that the life of a patriarch, or the life of a bachelor.

A self-respecting, free thinking and proud man should not be bullied into marrying, by his religion, his family, nor the woman manoeuvring to get a ring on her finger. A man should make this decision free of external devices and with full mental clarity, for a man should establish a serious relationship in much the way he would seek to maintain it. Therefore it stands to reason that should a man be cajoled or duped into marriage and babies, that although it may initially fill the dissimulating woman with nought but estrogenic rejoice and maternal glee, such shadowy foundations do not bode well for their relationship's longevity.

A strong man does not respond to shame, he acknowledges it for the manipulative transgression that it is, disregards it as folly, and continues to forge his path absent the mechanisations of such duplicity.

The free man wonders which lifestyle choice would be in his best interest, and is he, no matter what he does, condemned to an unforgivable degree of heartache either way? If marriage leads to divorce, and bachelorhood leads to childless loneliness, what is a man to do? After all, a choice between misery or loneliness hardly seems like much of a choice at all.

43

UPVOTES

So you're depressed, low energy, or anxious for no reason? Donovan and I talk a lot of smack whilst persistently discussing the benefits of Testosterone therapy!

4 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

OUR PODCAST: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-FnCNpWrbk0>

All that needs to be said was said in the title.

I don't try to nerd it up in podcasts. My aim is to be entertaining whilst dropping knowledge at random. If you feel like shit, listen to this, maybe you'll learn something, take the plunge and improve your life.

No need for a super long forum description. Just listen to the podcast. Could change your life!

Any questions? Ask in comments and I'll do my best to address them.

Cheers!

-IM

<https://illimitable.men/2017/03/09/fifty-shades-of-red-part-4/>

Maxim posts are always really popular, so I did an additional 50. 20 can be found below, the additional 30 are on the blog. Enjoy the latest series.

Being that this is part 4, you can find part 1 here, part 2 here and part 3 here

IM MAXIM #151 – If she suddenly stops wanting your attention, she’s getting attention of equal or greater value elsewhere.

IM MAXIM #152 – The older the woman, the greater her sense of urgency, the older the man, the more reluctant his urge to commit.

IM MAXIM #153 – All sensations of dread inflicted onto you by her should be responded to with equal or greater dread.

IM MAXIM #154 – To conquer a woman’s ego, frame everything she does as suspicious, call her out, neg her, dismiss her, and you will win. The beauty of this strategy is not even her awareness can diminish its efficacy, for aware or not, dominance is dominance.

IM MAXIM #155 – Preface everything she says with “right now I feel like” and you will understand her better, for she is capriciously fickle.

IM MAXIM #156 – Her intentions are byproducts of her mood, not binding statements derived from a code of honour; a change in mood will as such void all and any prior declarations of intent made by her.

IM MAXIM #157 – Women have to work hard to be likeable, men have to work hard to be fuckable.

IM MAXIM #158 – If she says she needs space, neither argue nor plead. Withdraw all attention. Disappear. The ease with which you depart will make her second guess her decision.

IM MAXIM #159 – Her need to feel safe should outweigh her infantishly narcissistic need to be in charge of things she doesn’t want to be held responsible for.

IM MAXIM #160 – It’s hard for a child to understand the existential pressures of being an adult. To a lesser degree albeit significant degree, the same is true of women with men.

IM MAXIM #161 – A woman with confidence issues can get a quality man because it’s a passive, feminine trait. Boldness is man’s burden.

IM MAXIM #162 – Behind every messed up young woman who had potential is a man who broke her heart, or a misandrist harpy whispering venom into her ears.

IM MAXIM #163 – For all her wiles and prowess in charming and deceiving others, womankind isn’t so good at decision-making. The reason she’s great at the former is the same reason she’s poor at the latter, she’s evolved to “fit in”, not to evaluate with, nor value reason.

IM MAXIM #164 – When you’re in a relationship with a woman, you must drag her up or she’ll drag you down.

IM MAXIM #165 – When women win, everyone loses, women included. They are masochists with a penchant for self-destruction and will destroy themselves as well as any who would help them – if you let them. Refer to Maxim #164

IM MAXIM #166 – Egotistical women think they’re above submissiveness because they’ve forgotten their place, but alphas seek submission, not conflict.

IM MAXIM #167 – Most young women are overly cautious with men because they are mindful of his sexual intent, yet when it comes to insidious older women who would corrupt them, they are gullible. Refer to Maxim #162

IM MAXIM #168 – Men thrive when they're in touch with reality, women thrive when they're detached from it, for the very loss of innocence which strengthens man damages woman.

IM MAXIM #169 – Despite the cultural narrative that it is men who are the cheats, women are responsible for the majority of adulterous divorce. Women have more opportunities to cheat and are less innately virtuous, thus only by mechanism of constant and ruthless discipline do they properly behave.

IM MAXIM #170 – A woman's virtue is directly proportional to the level of ruthlessness her man subjects her to. Refer to Maxim #169

<https://illimitablemen.com/2017/03/31/machiavellian-maxims-part-5/>

As usual, the first 25 maxims are here, the rest are on the blog. Enjoy!

1. – Cull the fickle, insolent, and disloyal, for even if it injures you in the short-term, it will benefit you in the long.
2. – Being likeable is a conflict avoidance strategy.
3. – When dealing with pedants, jobsworths and fault finders, use subjunctives such as “if”, “perhaps” and “maybe”, so they can’t nail you down to a position. Anything that can be misconstrued, will be, plausible deniability is thus paramount.
4. – Trust is a self-fulfilling prophecy, the less you trust the other party, the less they’ll trust you. The inverse is also true; the more you trust the other party, the likelier they’ll trust you.
5. – When people don’t like you, they look for flaws in your methods in an attempt to discredit you. Give them something non life-threatening to chew on.
6. – Faced by a lion, most will step back, not forward.
7. – Egotists will underestimate you, cowards will overestimate you.
8. – Projection: most people posit the opinion they hold of themselves as a notable exception for generality in counterargument.
9. – When you describe a man to himself in accurate yet unflattering detail, you deal a crippling blow to his psyche.
10. – The waiting game is a necessary game, as such, it is strategically optimal to outwait those who would test your patience.
11. – If power is defined as one’s ability to impose their will onto the world, then money is the commodification of power in physical form.
12. – The more words you use, the less they’ll like what you say.
13. – Misdirection: if they say a lot of words without communicating a bottom line, they’re deceiving you.
14. – War is everything. All the time, everywhere, war rages constantly. It has different forms, intensities, and appearances, but it persists perpetually, eternally.
15. – Competition is not war per se, but rather, its predicate. One can compete indirectly and without maliciousness of intent. War on the other hand is wilful violation, for it is less distant, more immediate, and manifests itself as conflict or sabotage.
16. – Frames are a war of propaganda. Do not absorb the other side’s frame, have them absorb yours. Whoever absorbs first, loses. If neither side concedes, stalemate. Caveat: satire.
17. – Intelligent energy allocation is a fundamental principle of effective strategy, for bereft energy, there is nothing.

18. – Pragmatism is king, doubly so when one is suffering.
19. – Strong ethics are oft the superficial purview of the elite and the substantive limiter of the loser.
20. – The middle class are confined to methodologically unsound moral codes, for it ensures they're neither a threat nor a factor in the game of power.
21. – The poorest and the richest tend to be the least moral, for the poor have dire need, whereas the rich possess excess power; desperation and domination alike lend themselves to immorality.
22. – The immoral rich are unvirtuous on a greater scale than the immoral poor, for they have greater means with which to impose their ethics. The immoral poor in turn justify their immorality based on the actions of the immoral rich, people they'd likely mimic given the same resources.
23. – For the rich it's easy to be moral because they can afford to be, for the poor, it's easy to be moral because there's little power to tempt them.
24. – The method necessary to win and it's associated reputation are entirely distinct entities. Method is effectiveness, reputation is perception.
25. – If you want to sell someone, lie to them. If you want to help them, hit them with the truth. A spoonful of humour helps the medicine go down.

26

UPVOTES

Ask me questions about TRT (Testosterone Replacement Therapy)

4 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

People ask me a lot of questions on this topic, but there's also a lot of hysteria, reticence, and general fear surrounding it "muh fertility" "muh apprehension of needles" "muh steroids are evil" etc.

So I decided I'll do a FAQ on TRT, one and done, and leave it there.

If you have any questions related to the topic, ask them there, and assuming they're relevant or not already answered, I'll put them into the FAQ.

To be clear: I won't be responding in this thread, selected questions will make it into the FAQ, which will be published to Illimitable Men.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2016/04/17/divergent-missions/>

I've just finished remastering this essay, I think the quality of the prose is pretty high and should make for a pleasurable read. Enjoy!

Where testosterone coalesces with creativity, the engine of civilization hums on the fuel of male ambition. Civilization is man's grand project, an expression of his thought form and aspiration, and although from time to time atypical women will make spontaneous contributions, its distinctly masculine texture remains dominant.

Man has a mission beyond the scope of the home, it is merely the scale of vision and ability to actualise that differs among men. Indeed, we owe modern civilization to men who kept firm to their life's work and executed their vision, for it is women who bring us into existence, but men who make said existence glorious. All men have missions, but it is within the provision for humanity through the development of civilization that the greats illuminate the depth and scale of said ambition.

Women are concerned with matters of people, people are women's business, reproduction with a powerful man is their life goal – they are simple. Where woman's ambitions are concrete, some may even say mundane, man's potential is infinite. This is not to say that men do not seek to reproduce, but rather that babies and hearth do not constitute success for a man in quite the way they do for a woman. A woman who achieves these goals actualises her femininity, her mission is complete, and so rarely will she aspire beyond it.

Men on the other hand do not find completion in family life, it is important to them, but it does not encompass the sum of their being. Men do not live for relationships, family and people in quite the way that women do. Whilst the social fabric is the beating heart of all that matters to women, it is but a puzzle piece in a grander picture for men. Being the architects and providers of humanity, man's focus is expectedly different; the scope of his existence is wider, and thus the extent he must be willing to go, more extreme.

To play it safe as a woman brings success, but for a man it elicits nought but failure. A woman married with children is the apotheosis of feminine success, but a married man with children is not. Even should a man not marry nor reproduce, the need for a mission persists, for whilst woman is self-defined by her relationships, man defines himself by his achievements.

This one's more about logic and how people use "show me your studies" as a thought terminating cliché, rather than sexual strategy. Hence flaired as off topic. Enjoy!

<https://illimitablemen.com/2017/05/26/critical-thinking-the-citation-needed-fallacy/>

Excerpt:

The other day, a poster left a comment disputing the value of the writings at Illimitable Men due to the lack of studies and statistical data used to support the views espoused. Now, although I do not think one needs peer-reviewed studies to put forth observations and formulate opinions in relation to them; I am most intrigued by individuals who believe the absence of scientific evidence is sufficient grounds to invalidate a premise, for this is not only lazy thinking, but presumptive.

It is lazy because it permits the individual to dismiss a thing without consciously evaluating an argument based on its individual merits, and it is presumptive because it assumes contemporary science possesses the technological sophistication requisite to test all conceivable hypotheses. The latter is matter-of-factly untrue, for science in all its grandeur and mighty empiricism is as yet incapable of piercing the realm of metaphysics, which continues to defy quantification.

Consciousness remains an enigma to science, and for as long as this remains true, philosophy will remain hegemon of all things metaphysical and thereby spiritual in nature. This is precisely why philosophy exists, for it has repeatedly endured as a form of top-down investigation into the metaphysical substrate of reality for millennia, filling a vacuum of human need that religion embodies, but does not explain.

Religion is the symbolic mythologisation of the human metaphysical spirit into a myriad of stories designed to provide guidance, whereas philosophising is an evaluative process that attempts to make sense of the human soul and its cosmic abstractions via observation and reason. Philosophy is thus, by definition, not engaged in the politics of academic credentialism, nor bound to the empirical method as a means of discovery or conclusion forming.

Scientific materialism excludes the metaphysical, and is therefore hard-pressed to explain the aspects of humanity it cannot empirically reduce to a measurement. This is why people look to philosophy and religion to lead spiritually fulfilling lives rather than science, for empiricism is soulless in that it only claims what is measurable and experimentally replicable to be true, whilst holding what isn't as untrue, or at the very least inconclusive.

1,012
UPVOTES

Young Men & The Empathy Gap - "Young male suicide rates have increased 50% since 1994."

18 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So I was reading an article on Psychology Today and was pleasantly surprised to read a rather red pill piece that was very much in line with The Suffering of the Lost Boys piece I wrote a few years back, be it that it's Psychology Today, I was expecting nothing but complete feminist tosh. But then Gad Saad and Roy Baumeister of Florida State have columns on there, so I suppose my preconception was wrong and they at least make a degree of effort to publish articles from psychologists all over the political spectrum. That aside, let's get into the analysis.

Everyone knows a young man who is struggling, either in school or afterward; "failing to launch," with emotional disturbances, in interactions with the opposite sex, or with drug use and gang activities.

He is observing the increase in boys and young men who are emotionally unstable, economically unsuccessful and incompetent with women. Low status males. The outlier here is the men who engage in gang activities, they very may well be emotionally unstable, but many have romantic and economic success. Regardless, they are all symptoms of the same thing - an absence of masculine influence in the lives of young men, an abundance of women in the education system and an epidemic of single motherhood leaving many young boys and men without any access to masculine influence. Gang activity, emotional instability, and an inability to talk to the opposite sex are byproducts of this.

In the animal kingdom, parents pass on their hunting skills to their young. The same concept can be applied to fathers and their boys. On the note of gang activity: many gang members tend to be from single mother households, and form the gang as a way of maintaining a male space to learn masculinity and climb what Peterson would call the dominance hierarchy.

Mass shootings have tripled since 2011, with the majority being carried out by young men, while young male suicide rates have increased 50 percent since 1994.

Here he tries to really emphasise the extreme degree of young male instability. Interestingly, the study he links to to support this statistic defines "young males" as aged 10-24 and the time range measurement for the occurrence of said suicides to be between 1994 and 2012. Suffice to say, at least one 10 year old boy somewhere out there found life so unbearable, he killed himself. Despicable.

Nobody sees investing in boys' development as "worth it" and as a result boys today are growing up and deciding that it is not worth it for them to invest their time and energy back into their communities. For many, virtual reality has become a safe haven, and in some instances more structured and rewarding than reality. Thus we see the emergence of terms such as hikikomori, diaosi, bamboccioni, and NEETs, along with the rise of movements such as Men Going Their Own Way (MGTOW). Who can blame them for wanting to opt out?

I think MGTOW is the outlier here. A lot of MGTOWs are divorced men who simply cannot find it within themselves to trust a woman again, and have decided to opt out. Sure, there are some young MGTOWs, but I'm not entirely sure they comprise the majority of that RP demographic. Would need to conduct a survey to see representativeness distributions by age, but he's pretty on point with the other terms. NEETs are "Not in education, employment or training" and the hikikomori is a Japanese phenomenon where people don't leave the family home and start their own lives, but stay at home most of the time in a state of extreme introverted seclusion well into their 30's.

The rotten fruits of feminism have led to boys who are poorly equipped to deal with the world as men, and as such they escape from the difficulties of life by anaesthetising themselves with video games and porn. People often attribute these things as reasons for the rise in male underachievement, however I believe this to be an inversion of cause and effect, and that these things are rather the coping mechanisms of choice for dealing with the difficulties that face the young blue pill beta male, not the cause of those difficulties. The causes are mentioned by Zimbardo in the next paragraph:

Just one out of five elementary and middle school teachers is male, and fatherlessness in America remains above 40 percent. Among boys who do have fathers, the amount of time they spend in one-on-one conversation with their dads is only a fraction of the time they spend in front of a TV or on a computer, where they see men represented as emotionless warriors, hapless dads, or losers who can't get anything right. In other words, many boys are going from male-absent home environments to male-absent school environments back to male-absent home environments where they then watch toxic male role models on a screen; this begs the question: what kind of future are they supposed to envision for themselves?

He somewhat subtly says boys and young men are failing in life, killing themselves more and engaging in more delinquent behaviour due to a lack of masculine influence in their lives, and that single motherhood has a lot to answer for in this regard.

If you're interested in reading the full article for yourself, you can read it here:

<https://www.psychologytoday.com/blog/hero/201708/young-men-and-the-empathy-gap>

You can read my take on the subject here:

<https://illimitablemen.com/2014/05/08/the-suffering-of-the-lost-boys/>

574

UPVOTES

Banned on Twitter

9 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey guys.. know I don't post here much (most of my content has been distributed via Twitter for awhile) however I have just recently been suspended from the platform.

Just want you to know you can find me on gab - <http://gab.ai/IllimitableMan> and of course the blog (yes, I will update!) - <http://illimitablemen.com/archives>

Won't bother rejoining Twitter with a new account as there's just no point as what they banned me for doesn't even line up with that they're claiming.

New content from me soon (especially now Twitter isn't there to distract me)

Thanks, and I hope everyone is well

-IM

386

UPVOTES

The Monetization of the Manosphere

27 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is something of a disgruntled critique and will likely prove to raise a few heads, cause some figures in the sphere to dislike me on a personal level, and possibly even cause a bit of controversy, yet nonetheless, I'd like to stick my neck out and state some things on my mind that bother me about the general direction the manosphere has been taking.

I suspect that being one of the oldest red pill posters, as well as a known blogger, these concerns are more likely to be heeded, noted and more seriously discussed as a community coming from me, than they would should the same sentiments be expressed by a less established member of the community.

And likewise as someone who has retained their anonymity, has not attended 21 con and who has not become part of the larger get along gang of "I'll scratch your back if you scratch mine" I have a political and economic impartiality to say things pertaining to our fair space that perhaps others do not.

Basically, I don't mind being hated for telling the truth because doing so will not harm any significant personal or economic relationships I have.

I haven't published anything to my website for approximately a year and a half now, taking something of an extended hiatus from writing and building "my brand" (I use that term loosely, because even though it's the byproduct of my mind, it's not a personal brand)

And in that time, the sphere has changed A LOT - and as far as I can tell, is being diluted down and ceased upon by people who wish to hijack the community we've built to push their own personal brands and line their pockets rather than add to the literature and provide a fair value for cash exchange.

Essentially, we're under siege from grinders, grifters, hustlers, marketers and other opportunists who view us as an undersaturated market they can tap in to and sell to.

These types take the social network we've built up through our various forums and blogs which have migrated slowly over to social networks like Twitter over the years as manosphere writers such as myself and Rollo have used it more, and are inserting themselves into that network to rinse the fuck out of the less intelligent amongst us with trite platitudes and rephrased stolen content for personal profit.

We've always had people trying to sell e-books, and even the odd PUA course for sale here and there, but for the most part, our space has remained relatively non-commercialised and has been more about supporting individual content creators who push the envelope through book purchases, donations and even merchandise (Roosh) rather than actually trying to dilute down the core message by corporatising it.

PUA was more corporatised and bullshit than TRP with the $5k per weekend bootcamps and what not, but the red pill itself has always been quite an organic community where the bulk of the value was provided for free, and the rest was provided for a modest price in a fair value exchange between creator and consumer.

At the end of the day, nobody needs to buy Rollo Tomassi's books if they don't want to because everything in his books is already on his blog. His monetisation of his work is respectful to, rather than manipulative of his followers. This is an ethical form of monetisation, as it allows people to support work they've already enjoyed for free should they so choose, and is more content rather than marketing heavy.

This is what I call a fair value exchange, because you get years worth of thinking and writing for a modest price in something you can physically hold.

Selling a course on how to improve your mindset or make money online for $293 a unit "whilst stock lasts and for a limited time only" whilst employing copywriting to aggressively push this to your twitter following is not.

This is frankly insulting people's intelligence and in all likelihood selling a subpar product that does not live up to the grand claims it makes for a quick buck.

I likewise now see 21 Convention is marketing soap claiming it will "turn you into an alpha chad due to an infusion of pheromones" - other than the immediate comedic value - is this serious? We're selling soap now? Seriously? The manosphere is selling soap? I honestly hope I'm missing out on some sort of joke or something and that this isn't a serious value proposition, but in all honesty, at face value, it appears to be a cheap cash grab.

This isn't even meant as a shot fired at 21 Con, as evidently it's helped a lot of manosphere writers, personalities and other people to network in the real world, and is predominantly an information aggregation service brought to a live speaking format.

But when we start selling soap and claiming it'll help you get girls, there's a degree of corporatisation and opportunism in that I believe to be ultimately harmful to the community, because let's face it, there's no fucking soap on this earth that's gonna get you laid and anyone who buys that shit believing it will is ultimately a gullible idiot.

Be it soap or online marketing courses, it is clear the goal here is the enrichment of the person selling the product, not the transmission of actual useful information that can uplift the dire condition of men by helping to combat the toxic effects 2 generations of divorce and single motherhood wrought by feminism has had - which is after all, why this community even exists to begin with, lest the unabashed pursuit of greed cause us to forget this.

All of this is most evident on Twitter with the plethora of random marketers, narcissistic attention seeking personalities who offer little real value, and personal branders who have popped up out of nowhere and whom have gained a foothold in our extended social network by being a mix of theatrical and consistent in posting rephrased general self-improvement advice, yet who clearly have no desire nor ability to either add or build upon the body of literature we have created, let alone actually admit they are associated with us.

Many take a great many deal of the things we say, rephrase them, claim them to be some sort of innovative and original insight, take the credit, and profit off the back of it as they incorporate knowledge freely given into a paid product.

There are a number of personal brands on Twitter whose following mainly consists of red pillers, or of whom at least got their start from the red pill, who would publicly disavow or even deny being associated with that label.

I remember being on Twitter as far back as 2013, and thus remember the manosphere space on there before personal branders, marketers and other parasites who have added little if anything to the general literature were rampant telling you to sign up for their newsletter, promising they can help make you thousands a month, whilst other uncreative types who could never write an even remotely profound long-form essay to save their lives push the same rephrased general self-improvement advice over and over again in bulletpoint check lists.

These people then have the gall to tell people who call them out "you don't like money" and "you need to stop hating on people trying to make a living" when you call them out on their bullshit, which I have done, primarily because I am an asshole, and secondarily because I am protective of a community I've played a large hand in building that I now see being opportunistically exploited.

In truth, I've made a decent sum of money from the manosphere all without actually selling my integrity and treating my followers like a bunch of idiots by peddling low quality products and services to them with aggressively manipulative marketing language.

If I wanted to read Ca$hvertising, launch a supplement, sell a course, use marketing language to aggressively push products, partner up with some affiliates and put advertising banners on my blog, it is well within my power to do so.

I don't do this, because these are consumer unfriendly practices and ultimately dilute my content.

Does this mean I don't make as much money as I could by not manipulating everybody at every available opportunity? Yes.

But it also means my brand is stronger and more trustworthy, precisely because it does not resort to these cash grabbing gimmicks.

I never actually bothered to launch or sell a product (much to the annoyance of many who still pester me to release a book - I'll do it eventually before you ask) but I've made money by giving people the option to support my work where they see fit

This has mainly taken the form of donations, patreon sponsorship and consulting services, rather than in the form of affiliate marketing, advertising, courses, and the sale of supplements and other subpar products.

I am happy with this form of monetisation, because it allows me to create the content I want to create whilst putting quality first, rather than putting money first and seeing quality as an afterthought.

I respect my followers and want to entice them into supporting good work, rather than see my followers as a flock to be fleeced who shall be taken for coin at every available opportunity.

The poetic irony to all of this of course is that I am the one who is known for more greatly exploring cunning and the dark triad within the sphere, yet when push comes to shove, am one of the few showing the most integrity in actually not exploiting my fans for cash.

I leave you with this final thought:

There's nothing wrong with making money, but there's an honourable way to go about it, and a scummy way to go about it

We, as a community, need be vigilant in maintaining an organic resilience to those who would look to exploit the social network we've built for quick profits, but whom don't give a remote flying shit about men and are ultimately just here to build up their wallets rather than build up men.

When you see this, call it out - force people to make money ethically by providing high value in return for cash, or deprive them your cash altogether.

Allowing for increasing corporatisation of the community will be ultimately what kills it, and we can't afford for that to happen.

COMMENTS

Excuse me. Why does everyone assume you guys are abusive assholes?

687 upvotes · 10 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why is there an assumption that if you understand this material that you become an abusive, misogynistic dickhead?

Because you are complicitly agreeing with a community whose very existence undermines the gynocentric status quo of feminine primacy. By asserting the masculine viewpoint as primary, or even, a valid counterpoint you automatically become a threat. The hive mind rationalises your arguments as "backwardly patriarchal" and therefore, irrelevant, bigoted and out-dated. Then it gets spun as "people like you are the reason feminism exists" when actually, the reason you looked for a place like this is exactly because of the effects feminism has had on you and those around you.

Despite the damage feminism causes to developed societies across the globe, a lot of people are personally invested in it due to their own psychiatric problems. Others are not staunch SJWs/activists and many may not even identify as feminist, but due to the institutional influence of feminism they will embody lots of feminist norms and values. Particularly, those of you with a bachelors degree or higher, have been drowned in feminist propaganda. I find the more educated people are, the further from reality they tend to be. Not because they are stupid, but because they have spent many years in an institution which pushes forth feminist norms and values, they become indoctrinated. Effectively, most of the population whether they know it or not, agrees with the idea that the genders are equal, but that we must also artificially elevate women and give them special privileges.

So what's the reasoning for this you may ask? In an attempt to be concise it's kind of like the concept of white guilt, except it's for ALL MEN. Race card does not trump GENDER card. The way institutions are biased towards women today is due to the idea that men owe women due to the supposed barbaric nature of men pre-feminism in essence, it's the construction of a "male guilt" and women getting an easy ride today is some kind of reparation for that. That's how they justify their benevolent sexism. Feminism in its current form is all about maintaining double standards stemming from traditionalism that benefit women whilst destroying the double standards from our civilizational past which benefit men. It is ultimately, the restriction and demonisation of male freedom, expression and sexuality to make way for completely unmitigated freedom of sexuality and expression for females.

Instead of helping men and women understand each other better in spite of our differences and helping us cohere into a strong, somewhat moral and productive society, feminism encourages and thrives off facilitating decadence. Using newspeak like "liberation" to define the decadence it encourages when said "liberty" is really just a positive spin on "fucking anarchy." If you know your history, feminism reared it's head in roman civilization just before it fell. There appears to be a cycle where a civilization becomes so prosperous that it can afford to entertain notions such as feminism, only for those same notions to contribute significantly to the eventual downfall of the civilization, usually by lowering the birth rate and not incentivising beta men to work hard for the tax base (you get a return to harems, rather than monogamous nuclear families like you do under traditional Christian-based monogamy.)

To these people, the feminine viewpoint must be hegemonic and they don't care how many young men, girls with daddy issues and grown men that this feminine primacy adversely effects. As far as they are concerned, the masculine viewpoint is backward, barbaric, misogynistic and unworthy of listening to. They are oafs, they are bigoted, they are close-minded and they often have a personal vested interest in maintaining the feminist false narrative, some through product of having invested so much personal time into the ideology, others due to prevailing business interests. Unfortunately the generations feminism has tainted are irreversibly tainted because once someone is indoctrinated by an ideology it's very hard for all but the most intelligent of the pack to come out of it unbrainwashed or otherwise "mentally free" or "lucid."

An example is say, old people in Germany. A lot of them will think Hitler was a great guy and still hate the English because of remembering WW2 from their childhood or whatever. They have some investment in Nazism. But if you ask a young German today what they think of Hitler and the English they'll say Hitler is bad, English are "fine" or whatever. Completely different ideas, same people. Nazism didn't get to touch the newer generations like it did those born around the, and pre-ww2 period. The same goes for feminism. Gen X and gen y (gen y = millennials) are pretty fucked when it comes to feminism, most people will be life-long invested in the idea men and women are fundamentally equal despite the reality they are not.

Feminism is very much concerned with controlling and policing speech, it's become a very Orwellian ideology since it's inception as a simple civil rights movement. The fact we try to circumvent their control of gender relations is an affront to their personal beliefs and threatens the narrative by bringing it under scrutiny, something feminism doesn't fare well under (scrutiny.) Feminism requires blind faith, like many ideologies, and is intolerant of being alerted of it's own hypocrisy, weakness, dysfunctionality and etc. Also to be clear, when I say "we try to circumvent their control of gender relations" we achieve this through indirect methods. We do this by claiming our masculinity and autonomy through hyper-independence. With independence it is difficult to be controlled. We are not a movement, we are a personal philosophy. We do not "fight for change" through political activism or a coup d'etat, we don't try to "change society to fit our needs" (the feminist model) but instead we introspect and make improvements to ourselves so that we may thrive in spite of society's support (or lack thereof.)

Feminism, like many a social ideology, is narcissistic and irrationally arrogant. It doesn't even consider it may possibly be wrong, or flawed and it will not allow itself to be undermined at any cost regardless of any negative outcomes that occur as a result of that. Of course like many ideologies which started with a rational and noble seeming ideal but morphed into faith-based cults, if you don't toe the feminist line you will be ostracised from society and people will say horrendous things about you because they don't like you. Because you are "one of them" and not "one of us." You are not a person to them. You are an "other." And as history has taught us that if you are considered "an other" (witch burnings) then you are not welcome in society.

If you tried to build a church in Saudi Arabia they'd probably chop your head off. Well being red pill in a feminist country is that equivalent. Witch hunting and doxxing galore. Which is why I never answer questions about my age or what I do for a job. It says I live in London on Twitter, that's it. 12 million people there including the metro, have fun finding me. For your own sake, don't post any personal information. Without the internet a platform such as this probably wouldn't even be possible and feminism would have absolute domination rather than a majority. Whilst the internet has been ~~great~~ effective at spreading feminism, especially to poorer countries, it's also served as a medium for fighting against it. The internet, my friend, is truly beautiful and we should all be thankful that we got to live through it's inception and see first hand just what it can do for us as a species. The internet is the best source of free information and freedom of expression to ever exist.

It is because of the internet you have the chance to read things which don't fall within the realm of "political correctness" but things which are also outside that closed stringently moderated bubble of opinion. Political correctness to me is just a code word for "views, opinions, language usage and beliefs which fall within a spectrum of pre-determined institutional acceptability." The changes to the language, calling normal people "cis" and all this shit has Orwellian undertones. Read 1984 if you haven't. And if you read it pre-red pill, read it again for additional insight.

Edit: It appears this post is popular, so shameless plug, check out my site for more.

Edit 2: Thanks for the gold.

Plate, meet my other plate.

642 upvotes · 15 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

See the total attitude re-adjustment when another bitch is in the equation? This is why I think 1 man 2 women is a good model for a household. Their jealousy of each other keeps them attracted to you. And because they hate each other more than they hate sharing you, it keeps 'em obedient like good women are. They know their place and don't try to fuck with you. When women think they monopolise you, they begin to take you for granted and treat you like shit.

As an observation, she knew that other chick was coming along to the BDSM shit so that specifically is what made her want to come along. To check out her competition and MATE GUARD you. Even though she's a plate, that doesn't mean she wants to be. Sounds like to me she wants an LTR with you (durr, when do they not?!?)

Then obviously she couldn't mate guard and seeing you with the other chick fucked with her because even though she's only a plate she loves you like a girlfriend (reading between the lines.) She feels like she's worthy of more because she's been fucking you and cooking for you for months. So yeah I can understand perfectly well why she would lose her shit. You didn't give her a chance to say how she feels or reason any of that out though, you just made her feel bad for going along with you (to mate guard you) when she knew the other bitch was gonna be there. And you pulled dread at the drop of a hat - showing you don't love the bitch enough to stick around and put up with her shit, so she's basically ignoring all her concerns and insecurities and fuckedupness just to keep you around because she is in love with you. If she didn't like you a fucking lot, she wouldn't take that shit from you. She'd recognise it for the head game that it is. She'd branch swing to the next guy. Obviously she's invested in you and doesn't have a better guy around so she's letting you keep her at a firm distance to her own mental detriment.

I can see it from both sides. Just realise plates don't last forever, all plates crash, and this Lisa bitch likes you so much she's making a whore out of herself thinking that's the way to get your love. Because she's a dumb bitch in love and shit, she'll try anal and choking on a cock if that's what it takes to get treated more seriously by you. It's fucked up because we both know that isn't gonna get her promoted. You'll just see her as even bigger fuck puppet.

Plate spinning is good, but leave 'em better than when you found 'em. If you don't LTR up the Lisa chick, make a whore out of her and then inevitably dump her back on the market when something x10 like this occurs down the track, she won't back down without a fight because she'll be at her wits end. Then you've just fucked up a chick epically and dumped her on the market dysfunctional for the rest of us to deal with. Chances are damage like that is not being undone, because no guy has the fucking patience for it. You be alpha widowin'. And the only guys who would give her enough patience are beta and therefore she doesn't respect/want them. Don't abuse your power. If a plate gets too attached like that and I don't want a relationship from her, IMO, that's a sign to drop her. For her own good. Fucking her up in the head and keeping her on the hook just to get a few more goes at the pussy ain't fair on the girl when new pussy can be had so easily. IMO, OP, you let Lisa go if she's that interchangeable with other hoes, or you LTR her up if she isn't. Don't keep forcing the spin out of libido/ego, bitches aren't planets you can't spin 'em for eternity.

The ethos is leave 'em better than when you found 'em. Only fuck bitches up in the head when they go evil on you. Let Lisa go, get new pussy. She likes you. A lot. Too much to be a plate. Stop abusing that. Get a new plate. Wrecking bitches is for sado-narcs.

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

556 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And we'll discover that the real victims of modern feminism are, of course, women themselves, who have been left lonelier and less satisfied than they have ever been.

I find it hilarious how much of the article basically outlines how the typical woman treats the average man like a pile of fucking shit, and then concludes that in their hostile ignorant arrogance, they end up being the real victims due to loneliness.

Men always want to go to bat for women, and that shit fucks me off. It must be genetic or some shit because I see men in TRP doing that shit too "don't be mad at tuh womenz brah, u just bitter OK? I get LOADSA PUSSY, you gotta lift and man up brah, stop being bitter brah" I get fucking tired of that retarded trite dumb testosterone monkeys spit. Fucking retards who lift a bit of metal and fuck a bit of pussy who are totally ignorant to what's going on, but think they're a boss because they can get laid and are constantly high on fucking TREN and a post workout buzz. Just because you lift and get laid, doesn't mean society isn't fucked up. Their opinions on life and women are basically some retarded flow chart:

- Do you lift brah? (Yes/No) No? - If not go lift brah
- Do you get laid brah? (Yes/No?) - If not go tinder brah.

Tinder not working? You need to cut brah. Already doing both? Then there's no problem, you be trippin' brah! GYM AND TINDER FO LYFE!

See these fucking idiots think being jacked and getting laid is all you need to be fulfilled in life, and that's fucking bullshit. Men outside the manosphere could collectively go lift tomorrow and it wouldn't change the legal system, it wouldn't get rid of feminism, it wouldn't fix the fucked up education system or the shit economy and it wouldn't give men game/social awareness. It wouldn't change a sweet damn thing for the overall condition of men as outlined in this fucking article.

For some reason, there are a sub-section of men who want to go to bat for women, and the more pussy your typical man gets, the more he thinks "hey you know what, women are fine, I have great times with them, you must be the problem BRAAAAHHHH ain't nothing wrong with women BRAAAAAAAH you're the problem BRAAAAAAAH." They don't wanna explore really what the fuck is up. It's just the guys fault. It's close-minded bullshit. Fuck exploring shit, and god forbid blaming a woman, they are poor innocent wittle victimz and as a man, it's all your fault if she's a cunt! The old hypoagent-hyperagent bait and switch gets annoying (men take blame for everything, women get blamed for nothing.)

Look, if we're not blaming women FOR ANYTHING, and NOTHING IS THEIR FAULT even if they're HUGE CUNTS. Then we can't treat them as equals. We can't respect them. We must see them as inferior children (hence the sidebar post "she's the most responsible teenager in the room")

If we treat them as equals with agency, then we have to hold them to account and stop fucking blaming men for women acting like cunts. You, you vest wearing juicing fuck, need to stop telling men they are fucking bitter because they have genuine rational grievances with bitches. You need to stop looking down on men who don't follow your self-prescribed juice/lift/tinder lifestyle, shut the fuck up gloating/going to bat for women and realise you're a fucking idiot so high on juice and pussy that your opinion amounts to jack fucking shit. You're a dumb bitch-enabling ape looking for his next orgasm, that's all you are. You may physically epitomise masculinity, but mentally you're as bad as the fucking mangina feminist David Futrelle

Please, pick a fucking side, because I'm tired of the bait-and-switch in play that is used whenever it is beneficial to serve the plight of women. Men taking the blame for shit outside their realm of control is, in my opinion, full warp speed male hamster.

Women always need the #1 spot in the victim Olympics don't they? And men and women collectively enable that bullshit mentality. Society needs to figure the fuck out whether it wants to treat women as agentless puppies that need to be fed and watered all chained up in their kitchens, or to treat them as fucking people with equal agency, which means stop going to fucking bat for them and validating their bullshit with "as the man, it's your fault she's a cunt, you should have used your super man powers to stop her being a cunt. You should have treated her in such an ALFALLLLFA way that the very base of her nature changed and caused her to change into what you wanted her to be. SHE IS THE WAY YOU MAKE HER. If you were a real man, she wouldn't be a cunt." Because you know, the fact she has daddy issues and feminism taught her that anything with a dick is a symbolic incarnation of Satan is irrelevant, it's ALL YOUR FAULT if it don't work with these bitches. And so the masculinity shaming and blaming continues in it's epic as ever fashion.

LOOK: both MEN AND WOMEN are sick right now, in fact the whole damn society is. Women are too mentally violent and feral, the worst of their femininity is running amok. Men are too confused, passive and directionless. That's where TRP comes in, but men should only be taking responsibility for their own destinies, not blaming themselves for the inevitable theatrics that come as part of the package in dealing with your average day loony toon of a woman. I never subscribed to the "as a man, it's your fault she's a cunt IF she's a cunt mantra," and I never will. Some women are just fucking cunts, plain and simple, and you're an idiot if you think you can make poison drinkable, or tame the untameable serpent. It takes a whole fucking society to bring bitches in line, and society has failed all of us.

This whole, she's got no agency when she's playing her victim card, but she's as equal as you with as much agency as you when she needs representation and respect is fucking bullshit. The mixed messages are what really fucks shit up. And that shit really fucks up young men, men in general and the sheer prospect of an LTR for a man. It's such a head fuck that I understand why a lot of guys think "fuck this shit!" and look for escapes. I don't fucking blame 'em, they're doing what they perceive to be the rational thing, they just want to be happy. Most men are simple like that. They don't need all the head games and politics that comes with being in a relationship or even associating with women nowadays.

Anyway, intentionally vitriolic and provocative rant aside, I thought that was a really good piece. But women the real victims? Fucking please. 15-30 is a non-stop party for them. After that they either experience what young guys did, but the girl world equivalent, or they find a beta bucks, get fucked by one of the last remaining alphas this effeminate society has, and then fucking cheat on the beta and swindle him through divorce/child support etc. Which I'm sure some self-assured cunt on here will reply with "that's great for me BRAH, MORE PUSSY FOR ME BRAH!"

Anyway, great share bsutan, really enjoyed the read.

I hope I pissed a few people off who read this, you gym rat cunts know who the fuck you are. A man with the body of a demigod and the mind of a piss ant is a caricature of masculinity, you cunts make me sick. If you lift, you better fucking read too (its the mental equivalent of lifting) and cut out the chest puffing "everything is a man's fault" bullshit.

Edit: typos and blah blah. Also, thanks for gold. Funny how rants are typically so well received despite their total lack of sophistication.

User of 4chan explains the difference between men's and women's accomplishments.

544 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Men are the experimental gender. We are the adonis geniuses inventing space flight and the retard ugly bum fucks populating prisons. We are the Chad Thundercocks and the Elliot Rodgers of humanity. The variation in MAN is significantly greater than the variation in women. There is effectively more diversity among men in terms of capacity and IQ than there is in women. Women are the control group, they tend to be similar psychologically and in capability and hang around the middle of the bell curve, whilst men populate the extremes with far more frequency. That's how so many men get noticed and likewise, so many are just completely invisible.

Women have to be "good enough" to have children/reproduce, which means they can't sink as low as men do, but neither can they reach the same heights as men. The girl version of everything is inferior, when women do anything great people think "she's trying to be a man" - it's instinctually expected that women be motherly and feminine. Some women despise this. Autists, women with high T, radical feminists and women indoctrinated to have male personal values. And the dissonance drives them crazy. Imagine being put on this Earth solely to act as an incubator/baby breeder. Effectively, that is your role. Mother nature wants you to carry on the species. You have no other purpose. And yet, unlike all the other female mammals in the animal kingdom, that isn't enough for you.

Even though instinctually it makes most women happy, being consciously aware "that's all you're here for" pisses you off when you see the male role is more diverse. You get jealous, you become ungrateful, annoyed, unsatisfied that "this is all you're worth." You point to women like Margaret Thatcher, Angela Merkel and Ayn Rand as exceptions among billions of women that "women can do anything men can." You are a woman, but you wish you were a man, and you hate men for reminding you that you're a woman and "women have a certain role." You want men to be in a fixed leader role when it comes to responsibility, but you want the trappings of power that leadership comes with. You also don't want to be in a fixed nurturer role. Already the irrationalism of your desire begins to unfold. Your desire is completely impossible, and yet you wonder why you're always so fucking miserable. You want to be able to do everything men CAN DO PLUS the feminine shit, yet you're even less well-equipped for intellectual diversity than men are. You encourage men to do feminine shit as a facade/trap, but when they take the bait you laugh at them for "not being proper men." You are hypocrites, but you don't care about that.

Women have a bottleneck on their ability to be successful and get respect for it in the world (whilst being happy) but they don't appreciate the lack of support men are subject to. Men work hard for every bit of their success. Man's success comes at a price - the responsibility of leadership, always having to fight and defend his family. Women don't sink on ships, they jump to another man's. Men go down with the ship, men build the ship - they are their ship - they don't try to latch onto another person's life to improve their own (like women do.) Women get power through association with men, and that's expected. Nobody trusts a woman without kids or a husband by a certain age. The human instinct is something is inherently wrong with her.

Why is she not fulfilling her biological destiny? Does she think she's a man? How confused is this poor soul? She has been given the apparatus to conceive children, she is her species reproductive bottleneck and yet she chooses to ignore it as if its largely unimportant. She is less equipped to do what men do, yet she tries to "break into male dominated fields" and usually does an inferior job in the process. Nevertheless, she gets promoted purely on the basis of feminist politics. This fucks over the women who truly are autistic or somehow genius because when they get there on merit everyone thinks "I bet she got in on affirmative action" and so the crab bucket that constitutes the female gender indirectly vitiates the accomplishments of the few truly remarkable women.

Women only see what they don't have, and not what they do have. They are ungrateful. Rather than be happy with the comfortable middle spot they have, they ignore all the men in the gutter and claim victimhood because their hypergamous gaze is focused solely on the men at the top. These are men who sweat and toil for every ounce of success they get, but because women only see the results and not the hard work, they don't appreciate that.

Many women resent men because they wish they could be men, but because they aren't men, have never lived as men and never endured the same hardships that men have, they don't know how hard it is to be a man (especially in today's toxic society) and only see all the perks. Then despite the lack of fathers and the anti-male feminist culture, those same guys have to put up with the likes of her berating them for their lack of masculinity, compounding the problem by damaging male ego. Hilariously in spite of all this many women have a collective "grass is greener" mentality. To the women lurking reading this shit (and I know you're here - some of you message me) - becoming a man simply swaps one set of problems for another. If you were a man, you'd have to deal with you and all your butt fuck nonsense crazy. All the pressure and expectation would be on you. You wouldn't be allowed to cry. People wouldn't respect your emotions. You'd be expected to fight. You have it cushy, you have it easy, and because of that - you don't appreciate what you've got. You're spoilt, jealous and petty.

Women need to (re)learn to love and appreciate men instead of envy them like they're some sort of competition. Our sexual strategies may conflict, but if your conscious psychology is so warlike, you will never be happy. You were built to support men, not try to be them and replace them. Men resent you when you discard your femininity and so in the process, try to divorce them of their masculinity. Stop fighting biology.

Edit: typos and thanks for the gold!

Filtering out the 80% of men: Woman from Stanford to create "Elite Tinder App"

410 upvotes · 22 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's this assortative mating shit that leads to higher social/economic inequality as well. In the old days a breadwinner man married a woman who didn't earn shit and so wealth was somewhat evenly spread, that's how the middle class was born. Men in factories, women at home. Now women are out getting degrees, and education turned more into a business rather than an academic pursuit focused on the pursuit of knowledge and thus the value of education has devalued. To make things worse, all the manufacturing went abroad (how do you think China suddenly became the #2 economy? Everyone is getting chinese kids working for 20p an hour 18 hours a day to make their toys and electronics and shit.) Don't even get me started on student loan debts.

Due to hypergamy women REFUSE to date down, but they're "educated" in their nonsense degrees so they want men equally educated or better. People gloss over the details by saying "they got a masters or a bachelors or a PHD" but, for example, I wouldn't say a Masters in Business (something a career woman would have) is equal to say a Masters in fucking Physics. No way. Physics is way harder/more prestigious. Anyhow, what happens is they only date "top tier men" and what you get is couples who are either both individually wealthy/top professionals or a couple where neither person earns much. Rather than what we had before where one person was pretty independently wealthy and supported someone who wasn't. Thus the gap between rich and poor continues to widen and the middle class continues to erode. See, men will support women, but women won't support men. Men making good money on one income and supporting women is what built the middle class. You won't see many, if any, professional women who have a non-professional husband. And when it does happen, don't expect that shit to last. Don't expect that bitch to be happy as the breadwinner. Yeah she'll like the control/power she has but that is ultimately what will ruin the relationship. She will disrespect her man for being less economically successful than her, feminism be damned it doesn't change female nature.

Globalisation hasn't helped, but feminism is the real nail in the coffin in this shit. Less jobs, lower wages in real terms, so the average man finds it harder to make a wage and have a family. Boomers had life FAR EASIER and higher standard of living with more resources to improve themselves with (<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Xn3RVYCbYU4#t=12m27s>.) They had less competition for jobs and dating. Now I know the instinctual response is "be in the top 20% then!" 1. that's easier said than done, and will take years for any young guy who gets this information young enough to make good of it, it won't "just happen." A lot of guys get overwhelmed by the reality and just succumb to depression. 2. not everyone can be in the top 20%, we're all in competition, if everyone improves then standards just go up and you don't actually reach the 20%. You end up being a well-educated, fit guy who's still poor as fuck and thus irrelevant because you don't have economic power. There will always be losers.

You have to be willing to do extreme shit to get successful these days because previous generations done fucked it up for the millennials. That's why millennials have massive narcissism issues and men are beginning to embrace fucked up ideals like the dark triad. Because "being normal and working hard" isn't enough to even have a fucking family anymore. And the majority of people aren't even born in functional families anymore so the desire to want to create one is even stronger. How ironically perverse. Your ability to create a family now is lower, but it's harder than it's ever been to do so. We're seeing a return to a two-class system and effectively "harems for guys who made it, nothing for everyone else" as an economic effect of institutionalised feminism combined with globalisation.

If you weren't born with a silver spoon in your mouth you need to be kind of a crazy cunt to get anywhere these days. Be willing to go to prison, take huge risks, fuck people over and get yours. It's sad it's come to this, I guess, but it's all part of the decline. I think it's sad your father or father's father who didn't have half your education or awareness of the world could run an entire house/car/boat on one manual labour job when guys now work their asses off, the bitches aren't interested in the average guy (only the TOP MEN) and they get paid less and cant afford the kind of independence that men of previous generations easily could. Now, without doing illegal shit, you have to be hyper intelligent or connected as fuck to make it. A lot of intelligence is wasted in the lower classes anyway as they never got a decent education. Fuck the system.

Fuck the hippie generation who left this shit pit of a legacy for today's young men and women. It fucks over women in the future who can't lock down a provider post-wall, but young men are feeling the pain RIGHT NOW. Young men also do not have the option of "locking down a provider" they can't fucking use their sexuality to leech onto someone who made it in the economy. They have to fucking make it or they're fucked AND NOBODY GIVES A FUCK ABOUT 'EM or will give 'em a leg up. Older guys who came up when shit was easier wanna hold onto that power/position/pussy and don't re-create the same opportunities they were afforded to the generation of men coming up. It's all closed-door, you're a family friend, or an autistic with 150 IQ or you're not getting hired unless you're a good looking girl who'll suck dick for wages. I don't think the vast bulk of young men out there, we're talking 16-30 have ever had it as difficult. It was monumentally easier to make it at 16-30 2,3,4,5 decades ago. Equality is bullshit and we all know it here, if it wasn't young men could date up too, but they can't. Life's a bitch. Get yours. Aggressively work for it. Or this skewed system will shit all over you and leave you with nothing. Channel your anger and become great. /rant

Edit: typos and thanks for gold.

AskReddit gives hundreds of examples on how women will hide things until after marriage

364 upvotes · 25 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Bitches ain't shit but hoes and tricks." - Snoop Dogg

See a lot of you probably heard that song back in the day and thought "this is just a black guy mouthing off some hood shit."

But No. That shit is some philosophy. Hoes (promiscuous) tricks (manipulative.) Get it? Hoes. And. Tricks. You can't trust women, they're innately duplicitous. Call it bitter, call it what you like. Reject it, kick and scream, pedestalise them hoes and try to see the best in them. Go on. You won't have the last laugh being naive. Men like me will.

I was asked to train a new female employee to do the promotion I got passed on.

360 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep, law 46 violation - <http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.co.uk/2011/05/law-46.html>

If you are a "perfect bartender" you will never become bar manager. They'll get someone who's bossy with shittier social skills to be the bar manager. Basically, be good, but not too good. Too good is barely better than too bad. People get jealous, and you will be passed up for promotion by superiors "because you're just so great on the bar earning half the wage you would as bar manager." Be "above average" but never "excellent." Sounds retarded I know, but this is human psychology we're talking about. People think "being the best" will get them all the rewards. Unless you're pioneering new technology, this is wrong.

Went out on a tinder date tonight. Bailed halfway through the first drink.

347 upvotes · 14 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think a lot of men get tired of being stoic and outwardly unfeeling to the benefit of others.

When a guy is deceived, he can let it go or he can lash out. OP lashed out, albeit, it was hardly anything terrible (like keying the bitches car) he just told her in his own words that she fucking cray if she thinks her 5 pussy, her fat folds and deceptive goofy pictures gonna get her a higher SMV man with a 50k car.

I think a lot of these bitches need putting in their place.

I, like yourself, sort of identify with "the renaissance man" ideal of masculinity, but a lot of guys don't here and I don't see anything wrong with that. Whether you're "rude" or "have class" as long as you stand up for yourself, who gives a fuck? There's nothing wrong with being mean to a bitch. In fact, I think a lot of 'em need it. If they've been pandered to their whole lives, told "Oh my you're so pretty!" (not to mention all the beta validation) we get 6's going about acting like 9's. OP is doing a service to mankind if this shit reduces her ego and aligns it more with reality. It means the next guy has less of a cunt to deal with. Perish the thought, she may realise her pussy doesn't queef gold dust.

Food for thought.

All Guns Are Loaded

342 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A lot of dudes don't understand AWALT because they haven't had many if ANY serious relationships. I'll listen to a player when it comes to hooking up, but the dude knows fuck all about female psychology beyond the attraction stage and so he's not really qualified to understand AWALT outside a seduction context.

A dude that's been in an LTR with one chick for 5 years knows more about women than a guy who's been hooking up with chicks and briefly plating for 5 years. The latter has mastered seduction, the prior actually knows more about the nature of what he's dealing with beyond the initial bedding stage because he's around for the bad and not just the good.

I find dudes who don't commit and just have short flings all the time have a very rosy-perception of women because they've got their game down enough not to face that much bullshit when it comes to getting laid, and beyond that they're not subject to any of the relationship bullshit. So they enjoy the best of what women have to offer without being subject to any of the bullshit and this gives them a hugely positive bias, as if men aren't wired to pedestallise pussy anyway. They go around thinking "hey women are great, I love fucking em and flirting with em, those dudes saying AWALT on TRP are just bitter."

Maybe some dudes are bitter, bitter doesn't mean wrong.

If you put "all" in front of anything, you're wrong, there is going to be an exception somewhere, but the exception proves the rule.

AWALT is a quick way of saying a lot in a few words:

- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time prefer emotion to logic
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time will betray you for a better option, loyal only to power
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time have very little emotional self-control
- 99.9% of women 99.9% of the time behave like children

No that list isn't exhaustive. And just because a chick doesn't betray you one time, or doesn't get overly emotional over nothing one time - doesn't mean she doesn't have a propensity to do this most of the time. If you literally hand pick a girl's best moments, you can disprove every fundamental of AWALT - but that's not intellectually honest nor representative. AWALT is imperfect, but it is representative.

Just because you're designed to put women on a pedestal and see them as greater than they are due to your biological imperative to fuck them, doesn't mean they aren't any of these things.

If you knew a dude who were these things, you'd hate him, cuss him out and mock him. But women get a free pass for commonly exhibiting traits we collectively hate. Why? We're literally hard-wired to give bitches a free pass and overlook their flaws. No matter how shitty women are, dudes just want to enjoy them, they JUST want to be happy, so they deny certain truths or EXEMPT one particular woman they wish to enjoy in order to facilitate this desire.

This is why people hate AWALT even if they know in their heart of hearts its absolutely fundamentally true. Instinct obscures truth when it comes to the study of women, men are overridden by idealism, lust and paternalism and feel if they accept the nature of women that they have to hate them as a result and then they won't be able to enjoy them. Not true at all, sometimes you just have to accept reality is not what you want it to be, that women are not angelic like you were taught they were, but in fact far more flawed than even you.

Then in spite of this knowledge, you have to make a commitment to your own happiness and make the best out of the flawed creatures that are women. AWALT means: hey, women possess a bunch of shitty traits we hate that vary only by degree rather than presence among women, but now you have to enjoy them in spite of this!

I know that isn't easy, I know it's hard, and I know the knowledge is painful - that's why dudes struggle with this. But your struggle doesn't alter her nature, you can sit on reddit until you pass out debating pedantic little points in regard to AWALT, but AWALT will remain a truism that persists.

On the topic of enjoying things that are fucked up, I know my tuna is polluted with mercury because these fucking third world countries dump all their factory waste into the ocean, yet I still enjoy my tuna. Not quite the same I know, but it's an example that something can be far from perfect yet still provide happiness. Ultimately the reason dudes are resistant to AWALT is because they see it as a threat to their happiness.

The inability to grasp and ACCEPT AWALT, instead choosing to REJECT AWALT out of autistic pedanticism is no more than a sign that the person in question has to lie about the nature of women to themselves in order to like and enjoy them. They are not at the stage where they can enjoy women WHILST ACCEPTING HOW FLAWED AND FUCKED UP THEY ARE.

If you don't think women are fucked up because your perception is clouded by idealism, you're not red pill. Likewise if you think you're going to be happy without any women in your life, chances are you won't be - at least not if you're family orientated. Love 'em or hate 'em, ya need 'em - and they need you even more.

It honestly bewilders me how autistic and retarded some people are as to take the word ALWAYS, miss the forest for the trees and fucking run with it.

Any time I've popped my head in purplepilldebate for a quick minute I've seen constant bickering over this.

How hard is it to understand?

AWALT is saying "women will be women, and this is what women are like."

Sometimes you will be surprised, but you shouldn't live like you expect to be surprised, you should live being aware of the nature of the creature you're dealing with. AWALT is a heuristic, an extremely accurate one at that, you can live by it and have a great life. You don't need to be right 100% of the time to enjoy life, being right the majority of the time is just as effective. You know what is less effective? constantly convincing yourself you're in possession of a woman who is part of the negligible .01% and that these are the only women you can give yourself permission to love. This is a recipe for misery!

Sometimes a women apologises to me and admits she is wrong for something she said or did, when this happens I am pleasantly surprised but this doesn't mean "oh, looks like this woman isn't part of the 99.9% of women who won't take responsibility for anything!" because most of the time, SHE DOES blame shift. The .1% of the women are those who, in this one particular facet RARELY BLAME SHIFT. And even if a woman is part of the .1% in that one aspect, she may be part of the 99.9% in all the other aspects, such as little emotional self-control, disloyal etc.

AWALT is immutable, I think most guys simply can't and don't want to accept it, somewhere in the back of their head they want to think their unicorn is out there, that they'll find a chick who is in the .1% of all the qualities we despise in women, lock her down and not have her leave. It's fucking bullshit.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

318 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There was an occasion when we took a bath together, I massaged her for an hour after. She said she was horny. She got dressed and drove to her FWB leaving me naked on the bed with my jaw hanging open.

Holy crap on a cracker that shit is brutal. That is fucking cold. Empathy = Zero.

There is a "new masculinity" wherein women & betas re-label traditional markers of male success as "sexist" or "divisive". It's a comforting mechanism by which losers will try to redefine failure as success and success as wrong.

313 upvotes · 7 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Seeing as we're ranting about elements of the manosphere we don't like, I'm going to rip on PUAs to counterbalance the MGTOW bashing in here.

I believe /u/demonspawn is MGTOW and he takes the bitches if and when they come. If you remember his post on "stitches" or w/e his name for her was, that was basically a typical "how a MGTOW hooks up if he's not fucking a prostitute" type deal. Unlike a regular guy, MGTOWs either have written women off completely for personal reasons (they're so damaged by a previous wife, usually divorced and have written women off completely) or they don't chase women/go out looking to pick up or whatever but will escalate if a chick shows enough IOIs and he likes her too. MGTOWs are not hunters, they are the opposite to PUAs. The PUA is an alpha personality, or at least a wannabe in training. The MGTOW is more a sigma, or sigma wannabe in training. It's the difference between pack leader and lone wolf. Now you get alpha MGTOWs and sigma PUAs, but I'm just generalising here.

IMO the younger guys in their 20's and 30's who have never been through a shitty marriage with a woman, forced to sleep in their car, had bullshit made up about them by the ex-wife, not seen their kids in years and lost nearly all their assets cannot judge the older guys who have been through all that shit (usually late 30's, 40's, 50's etc) or similar. You lack the frame of reference. It's like a virgin judging a guy with a 4 digit notch count for not hooking up with a girl. You don't know where that guy is coming from. To you it seems stupid, but that's because you're stupid enough not to understand what that other guy has lived, you're projecting the arrogance of your ignorance.

For the amount of shit MGTOWs get, I really wish people would give PUAs some shit, because I find them to be try-hard and pathetic. The whole scene. The whole lifestyle. It is pathetic, and as a business model it is dependant on naive blue pill in-confident young men in well paid jobs handing over their dollars to over-confident personalities who can speak clearly and slowly and know how to number close women. Under that criteria, I could teach fucking PUA. That's all you see on these youtube videos, they approach some women and have a BS conversation, get a number, done. They have confidence to talk to women and hold frame, that's literally all they're selling. It doesn't mean you're any good in the sack, it doesn't make you value yourself and get other people to value you based on the confidence of how you perceive yourself. IMO, that is what TRP is about and PUA often is at odds with "developing inner game until natural game flows" because it is trying to force the fuck out of everything. Put guys who should be in the light end of the pool into the fucking ocean.

The average PUA often strikes me as a man who has never had a proper LTR with a woman and had sex as a normal and regular part of their lives. Instead they treat it as some sort of procedure they have to prepare for before they do "night game" or "day game." It's really forced and inorganic and artificial. Don't get me wrong there's a lot of useful information on social dynamics in PUA, but like your criticism of MGTOWs or if we should be more accurate "false MGTOWs using the label to justify giving up on themselves" I don't like the culture around PUA and much prefer the "develop yourself to be a boss and bitches will come" ethos of TRP.

The bullshit peacocking, the bullshit summer camps, the AMOGING each other online, bragging in forums about notch counts. It's all fucking retarded. It's a culture that glorifies "the art of seduction" and "the importance of women" but pedestalises women to do it. It is female-centric where I see TRP as male-centric. IMO, if you really are fascinated by seduction, it should be because you ENJOY the process. And picking up women is A HOBBY FOR YOU. Something YOU ENJOY. Success or failure in your pick-up is irrelevant because the process itself IS FUN FOR YOU. A lot of guys aren't into PUA for that and they don't have that mindset, they're either making money off it by selling it to "AFCs" or they're into PUA because they give waaaaaaaaaaaaaay too many fucks about women and lack any real identity of their own outside their obsession of "must get laid." Any incels reading this (guys who are way too old to be virgins) get some cocaine and fuck a hooker. Honestly, it's cheaper than PUA bullshit and you will have the time of your life. Don't allow the desperation stemming from your virginity to push you to pay thousands of dollars on bootcamps when for less than a $k you can be high on charlie fucking a solid 8.

Internet dick measuring contests are oft the product of PUA type crap. I'm not saying no good can come of it for some guys, I'm saying the whole PUA culture is fucking gay as fuck, it is the polar opposite of MGTOW (who bother me less as they don't make posts all the fucking time beating their chest and posturing hoping random strange guys on the internet are gonna validate their ethos/claims to slaying pussy)

PUAs by nature of what they do, are obsessed with women to the point they are the biggest interest in his life. I rather grow my business interests or read philosophy books and talk politics with other men then chase women because I enjoy those things more than trying to get a woman to put out. Unlike player/pua types who have more fun in the company of women than being alone or in the company of men, MGTOW types prefer the company of men and find women to be too much bullshit/stress/just not worth the hassle. IMO, carpe diem and all that shit, so live your life the way that makes you happiest. Just like /u/trpsubmitter is saying don't pretend you don't give a fuck about women when you do - be honest with yourself and your lifestyle and your intentions.

Personally I'd much rather entertain a low maintenance girlfriend who puts out regularly for my sexual needs. Plate spinning and weekly night game is too much effort to be spending on women for my liking. I rather put my passions in interests into shit other than getting laid. That player lifestyle requires too much time spent on women and not enough on self-investment, IMO. I already tried that shit as a sort of "initiation into manhood" or whatever you want to call it. I wanted to prove to myself I could do that shit if I put my mind to it and once I proved to myself I could get women to fuck me on the first date as well as make out and flirt with multiple chicks in one night "I had mastered it as far as I was concerned," having those experiences was enough for me. I didn't need to make it a lifestyle I just needed to prove to myself I could fucking do it, that I was capable of it. And I did it. So now I don't give a fuck about it and I'm somewhat intolerant of people who don't shut the fuck up about it. I don't need to constantly do it to "remind myself I still got it" I'm not insecure like that. If I put my mind to it, I know I can do it again, but it's not my idea of being successful in life or even "being socially successful."

PUAs put too much emphasis on the pussy, they measure themselves on the bench mark of pussy. They define their self-worth by how much pussy they get and the yard stick they measure other men by is "how many women he's slept with." Now if a guy is a virgin, I can understand that. But who is really more experienced in sex? A guy with 100 lays in 2 years, with at most, two fucks per lay, say he averages 1.5, fucks because some women he fucks once and never again, others repeat once making it 2 lays - that's 150 sex sessions in 2 years. A guy in a relationship has one lay but say fucks his one lay every other day. That's 365 sex sessions in 2 years. The PUA thinks he more experienced with women than the LTR guy because he's fucked more variety of women, but the LTR guy has actually spent more time in pussy than the PUA. The PUA knows how to catch fish, but the LTR guy can keep one and sustainably farm it over and over. The LTR guy is also not obsessed with hunting that pussy down and constantly going through the motions of approach - push/pull - escalate - isolate - bang. He just has pussy on tap that can be accessed again and again and again with period week often being blowjob week. IMO, you got yourself some pussy, you have a few female friends you friend zone for dread in case your bitch gives you shit - and you're all set. Not about that PUA life.

Guys with low smv should all be MGTOW until they build up. If the pussy comes the pussy comes, enjoy it, but don't waste time hunting it, you got more pressing matters to attend to. No point trying your luck with women when your smv is shot to shit unless you really really have it a priority in your life to overcome rejection and get rid of approach anxiety. In that case you're basically approaching women to learn desensitization and not so much as an effort to get laid. You're using them for another purpose, but they don't realise that. They just think you're another guy looking to get laid and sure you'd take the pussy if she was hot enough and it was easy enough, but you're not gonna beg or coerce. You can go in with the intention that you're building resilience to female rejection/building up outcome independence, and that's a useful talent to have.

Btw, TRPSubmitter, how's your blog going man?

Woman wears a GoPro camera in New York city to show how much she suffers "Street Harassment" Wants you to donate money to stop these heinous acts.

311 upvotes · 28 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Unless you are Zyzz with his top off, basically ignored and invisible.

This whole thing is one hugely veiled bragsplain. GUYS GIVE ME SO MUCH ATTENTION I'M SO OPPRESSED GIVE ME MONEY! Fucking please.

The double standard, females on Twitter calling 12 year old Romeo Beckham hot

286 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It doesn't work both ways OP because women are the gatekeepers to sex whilst men are the gatekeepers to commitment.

If a man says "I wanna fuck a 12 year old girl" it is assumed he will not let her exercise her role as gatekeeper of sex, and just take it from her. So he is seen as creepy, a rapist, a pedo and blah blah.

Antithetically if a woman says "I wanna fuck a 12 year old boy" she is giving him permission to have sex with her as sexual gatekeeper, and thus it is viewed that "he is a lucky lad" and "a real stud" because women who should be out of his league by merit of being more sexually mature/developed/in demand would be willing to let him go balls deep inside of them.

Yes I know it's fucked up. Not saying it's right or condoning it or anything, but letting you know what the general psychology behind this double standard is.

Why men and women should NEVER be friends

276 upvotes · 24 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This post is good. Ignore the other guy, he missed the point.

Essentially all facets of life are more difficult for a man, and a man has a greater potential to fail without a safety net in place, and since this dynamic will never be addressed or dignified by a female friend, and the social narrative is always on her side, men and women cannot truly be friends.

Apart from loving to write, this is why I blog/help guys. Because I relate and I know on an intimate emotional level how shit it is to be an ignored powerless piece of shit that nobody gives a fuck about.

And you know what a weak, pathetic sad piece of shit guy wants more than anything when he's hurting and lost? A bit of comfort. A bit of fucking pity. A bit of appreciation for his struggle and his humanity. And he doesn't get it. He is rejected for that. For demonstrating that basic human need WE ALL have. All of us. Women practically FLAUNT FABRICATED PAIN and get cash and love for it. Young boys and men with legitimate serious issues? SWEET FUCK ALL. Why? Because even if he's a fucking failure of a man, he's still a man.

And so by being male, he is innately rejected by the people he needs most when he most needs them. This is one of the cruellest and yet simultaneously most wonderful things about being a man. But you won't see the beauty in it unless you come out of the other side. Pain is wonderful if it doesn't kill you, it's like steroids for the mind. Normal people can't fuck with you anymore, because you did your time - mentally. And it's that which separates the guys who turn their lives around from those who kill themselves, and get some fake bullshit eulogy from a bunch of fucks who were never there for him anyway talking about how loving and great he was. All bullshit. Leap, don't jump.

It's hard being a man, the deck is stacked against you, you are often misadvised, you start with sweet fuck and nobody gives a shit, but fuck it, its worth it.

Hate is the new love

276 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Great thread. The anger phase is necessary. I get tired of people bagging on newer guys for "being in the anger phase" as if that anger isn't legitimate. Sure, going full Elliot Rodger is not a place anyone wants to go, but that kid was mentally ill to start with and isn't representative of what the anger phase is for your typical guy.

Channelling your anger and hatred to better yourself and assign less value/power to the average woman - that's necessary to deprogramming and taking women off the pedestal. Especially when your whole life growing up was spent being indoctrinated to assign ridiculous amounts of value to women simply for existing.

The women (as well as feminists) are mad because they don't want men deprogramming and taking them off the pedestal. They want to retain their woman privilege. Their drinks and food paid for, attention given, their assuaging orbiters eager to fulfil her each and every whim regardless of her lack of graciousness. When betas start "becoming alpha" en-masse, women get alpha cock but the pool of beta orbiters dwindles. This prohibits them from living out their sexual plurality (alpha fucks/beta bucks) thus it is only instinctually rational for them to have a negative visceral response. To encourage beta men to stay beta, passive, complicit, downtrodden - because they directly benefit from these kind of men existing.

Women rely on pussy starved loser men to complement their sexual strategy. Women need loser men who don't understand the rules of the game so they can use them as walking wallets and emotional tampons. Men of power and social/Machiavellian competence are not as easily and readily exploitable. It is woman's instinct to exploit man for her gain. As Patrice O'Neal said "women feel like they need to get something out of their pussy." If she's fucking you and not personally benefiting from it, she feels violated, raped even. Alpha men provide tingles, hot bodies, intense orgasms and a great experience. But they won't pay her bills. Beta men cannot provide tingles, but they complement the alpha by doing what he doesn't: gift giving out the ass, taking her on vacations, being her emotional tampon and listen to her witter on about whatever passing social concerns she has. These weak men are kept on the hook by nothing other than occasional "duty sex." And she does not enjoy this sex, it is her paltry payment for what the beta provides and she resents such a man because she must endure him penetrating her whilst she is completely devoid of sexual passion for said man. Crudely, it is prostitution in terms of value exchange, albeit it is far more expensive than actual prostitution. It is social convention that gives the whole sordid ordeal an air of legitimacy.

Truly, women do not care about men's happiness. Betas in the minds of women exist to be exploited as a financial and emotional resource and women do not want to lose that resource. The red pill is a threat to the feminine imperative/sexual strategy so they will attempt to discredit and lambaste it at all costs.

What I've learned from the women in my family.

243 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are shit. AWALT. Fuckoff snowflakes, nobody cares you think you're different. Every woman thinks she's special and different and expects to be treated as such. It's all bullshit. Women are remarkably similar to each other across the board and HATE being generalised because of their narcissism. They're so similar psychologically that we can make a fucking subreddit that generalises just over half the human race with an incredible degree of accuracy and use that knowledge as a proficient weapon in helping men get the upperhand in a social system where they're systemically beaten down. The upperhand is something a man needs if he ever wants to come out unscathed with any kind of social contract with a woman. Hypergamy necessitates it. She requires your superiority to be attracted to you, that's probably the biggest joke about "equality."

Not all women are born equal, but all have a capacity for insanity and machiavellianism. Thoroughly believe all women are crazy, the extent just differs. Thoroughly believe all women are manipulative, the scale and intelligence of said manipulations just varies. Never met a bitch who wasn't crazy or manipulative. Even if it isn't always immediately observable, you can be assured underneath that exterior of upward inflexion, smilies and a face full of chemicals their lurks something far darker and more destructive. Women have an incredible predilection for mental violence to make up for their lack of physical strength. Their emotions make them impulsive and irrational, so they're bad long-term investments.

Men need to start living in bachelor pads together, library, gym, pool table. Swimming pool. No bitches living in the house. Fucking escorts and partying. It's an effective way to avoid this clusterfuck of affairs we call women/marriage/divorce/hypergamy without being lonely/sacrificing a sex life. Jealous bitches will accuse you of being gay as an effort to shame you/your friends into adhering to the traditional narrative and wifing up her or one of her friends, laugh in their faces and shame them right back for being homophobic. Lay into them for hating gays and watch them shut the fuck up as you flip their own bullshit back at them. Live your life on your own terms men don't feel like you have some fucking duty to society and these ungrateful harpies who'll never appreciate all the sweat and toil you put into making ends meat. Fuck 'em all. Society never gave a fuck about you so don't feel some disjointed loyalty to it. If you're not already lumbered with a woman, a woman's problems, and a kid, sit back, sip a JD & Coke from a cocktail straw and let it all fucking burn.

We can literally redefine transactional sex from "shit woman does to control you" to "something women are paid to do and then quickly leave because you don't want the crazy parasite trying to dig her claws into your life"

Wanna know something else pretty? Older women who are single tend to go even crazier. They're not fucking built to do this alone, yet they're designed in a way that makes you not want to put up with them. The dichotomy is perverse. I have about as much sympathy for the plight of women as a woman has respect and sympathy for her ex-husband she won't let see the kids. Hahahaha. Couldn't give a shit about woman's struggles, everyone's running around after them, men are the ones in most urgent need of help - mostly emotional support. I get too many messages from guys who want to kill themselves. It's fucked up. Thanks women/feminism.

Religion is necessary to keep women and their bullshit impulsivity/disloyalty under control but it's unpopular in the west now. Tbh, it's the lesser evil vs. feminism IMO.

I don't buy into that whole "it's always your fault" crap. Blame where blame is due, fuck hyperagency.

Women are more hassle than they're worth and the intelligent among them fucking know it but are usually too proud to admit it.

Some guys are desperate for something more meaningful with a woman, love, a proper relationship and blah blah. Fair enough, I understand that desire, but all this shit still applies. You will get fucked. It's not a question of if, but when. Most people who make it work met very young, you were her first alpha or some shit. A lot of this shit still applies you just have far better odds at working through it.

Oh yeah, another thing, any unfavourable opinion of women no matter how rooted in reality makes you a bitter misogynist, might as well embrace the label until it loses any meaning. Much how women call each other sluts and bitches to be cute. Oh you bitter misogynist you, have a soft punch in the arm.

Anyone see the "Hot Girls Wanted" Netflix porn documentary.

240 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The general gist of understanding women:

- Like to be victims as it means they don't have to take responsibility.
- Without responsibility there is no blame, and without blame there is little or no punishment, making reprehensible/undesirable behaviour optional/attractive.
- In this perverse sense, having people believe you're a victim without actually being one grants incredible freedom (which is a form of power.) You can get away with things others would be reprimanded for.
- Being a victim gets you attention, which makes you feel important. Great if you are a narcissist (most women are.) Even negative attention is better than no attention for a narcissist.
- Victims are often advocates and activists, being a victim gives you legitimacy in politics/changing how a country works through democratic process. Just look at ~~radical~~ contemporary feminism.

Now what you have to understand about all this is that it's all part of female nature, most of them don't go out of their way to calculate this. It's just what they are. Women are nature's Machiavellians, most have very little awareness. The "it's not my fault", the advocacy, the appeal for sympathy.. it's all part of female nature, female games. Think logically for a second. "Why would they evolve to act in this way?" well because natural selection must have selected for women who could be deceitful in tribal times. Women who took blame got killed/were left to starve etc.

This is all female instinct, it's part of the game they play. The women who don't do this (most aren't self-aware enough to accurately make that judgement for themselves) have this instinct subdued, they probably had a strong father/brother household and/or live rurally/culturally away from the debauchery of urban civilization. As we all know, in the west male dominated households with females cohabiting is becoming increasingly rare.

The powers that be want feminised men and masculinised women. The thing you need to know about a masculinised woman is that the balls she has grow out of the soil of female nature. Just because she becomes aggressive and controlling, doesn't mean she starts taking on male concepts like honour and responsibility. Masculine women are so in a quintessentially female (but not feminine) way.

It may take some nuance of mind to understand what I'm getting at there, so re-read if necessary.

Got slapped by a fat girl last night and got told to leave. What do?

226 upvotes · 30 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

FYI, the bouncer took her side because it makes his job easier and when you begin qualifying to them, they immediately think you're lying to them. "Tough guy alphas" (the fighter/aggressive/overly confrontational HIGH-T type alphas) do not respect men who are not alpha, they detest them and look down on them, it's partly an ego thing, but it's also because they expect all men to be fighter/warrior types and any guy who isn't a fighter/warrior personality like themselves doesn't get their respect. These type of guys only respond well to aggressive guys who show they are confident, sharp-tongued and are willing to jump into action at a seconds notice. If you don't seem a bit rough around the edges you're not a real man to them.

Never qualify to authoritarian alpha types, bald guys in uniform, ex-military types, people who fancy themselves as having a command presence and being some sort of a big shot, these guys love to shit test and generally their questions are not sincere, some of them are cool guys, but the majority are just AMOGs looking for bullshit, these guys will push your buttons because they don't give a fuck and rather than fear fighting they love a scrap, being in the job that they do this partly gives them a license to be violent without getting in trouble too. Some of them are the biggest white knights going as well, they'll BE VERY ALPHA among men, but some (not all) are total fucking supplicating idiots with women, RP with men but totally BP with the chicks. A lot of the time their questions are tests to see "how much of a man you are" when he asked you what happened if you immediately at a sped-up pace (because of adrenaline after being slapped) start describing what happened "as if you're explaining yourself after being told off" rather than telling a story because someone has enquired, he's going to think you're some pathetic fuck and out of pure dislike he will ask you to fuckoff.

If you answer his question with a question "you're asking me what happened are you?" in a challenging tone and he says "yeah someone said blah blah about you" in a responsive tone then you say in a neutral tone "OK, seeing as you're interested, I'll tell you what went down" now it's framed as you're telling him a story because he has shown interest in you and it's not you qualifying yourself to someone in a position of authority on an impulse, you've shifted the frame of the conversation by how you've responded, making him respond to what is basically a non-question with a slightly threatening demeanour rather than just start qualifying to some guy who more than likely has it in for you anyway. I know this sounds pathetic and pedantic but its a part of human psychology when it comes to hierarchies, respect and "tough guy types" shit testing other guys, if you qualify to the bouncer immediately he thinks you're a bitch, if you're too aggressive it's his job to kick you out, so you can't go full caveman and yet you can't go full bitch either you need to "hold frame" which is basically keep an air of indifference/dignity BUT not back down from a verbal challenge when presented. Look at his face a lot, speak slowly, suggest with your body language if he takes the piss you will make his job very hard but suggest in your voice you are composed, dignified and reasonable. Basically that you're not going to take any shit, but that doesn't mean you're the one who is causing shit.

If you'd passed his shit test he probably would have said "I'll keep an eye on the two of you, stay out of each other's way" in some indifferent voice, walked off and stood in the corner keeping an eye when he had fuck else to do, but instead you couldn't win his respect so he just told you get out, any pleading of "but I didn't do anything" and getting annoyed/begging for mercy over the injustice won't do anything, it makes him disrespect you more and want you out of there even more because he sees you as a bitch. These guys part and parcel aren't very logical, all their decisions work off respect, you're a non-human to them if they think you're beta, just like how women behave. Funny how similar women and security types are when it comes to respect and shit tests, all these authoritarian types are on some fucked up next level when it comes to "who and how they respect." You get these guys on your side by having them respect you, not with logic, just like how you interact with women. These command presence types are just like women and need to be gamed like women when it comes to shit tests, if you supplicate/qualify or in anyway justify yourselves to them they immediately see you as a cunt, everything needs to be done in the frame that "you are saying X to them BECAUSE THEY WANT TO KNOW" and that you're doing them a courtesy by saying X to them, not that you're jumping to their tune. It's annoying bullshit, but that's how the game works. Seen a few types like this in the manosphere who fancy themselves as command type/ball busting/challenging types who disrespect almost everyone as a status quo and only show due respect to "other tough guys like them" and people who are as rude and confrontational as they are. You never agree and amplify with these guys because they'll think you're taking the piss and being provocative which breaks rapport and escalates the interaction to violence rather than resolution, instead you shift/reframe which is basically what I was describing when you answer the question with another question and then tell the story from your frame rather than the frame he set.

Sometimes you get fat lethargic types in security as well, those guys you just joke with and they're cool with you, they don't have the giant chip on their shoulders the command presence types do.

Redpill and man as a "success object" really hitting home.

206 upvotes · 9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We can't cry in front of women.

We can't share with them our fears.

We can't share with them our disappointments or failures.

We can't express weakness in any form whatsoever.

We can't even show uncertainty or reluctance to take risk.

Even if we wanted to do these things, we cannot. It's why couples counselling does not work, communicating how you feel and why you feel it doesn't help, you simply need to take charge of shit.

Doing any of these things results in killing her attraction toward you until it eventually dies entirely and she leaves you.

Damn right we're success objects, they don't give much shit for our pain or suffering. It is even more evident now as feminism has made the average woman more narcissistically sociopathic via entitlement.

Are you a "romantic"? If so, this way please ...I have a several thousand hoops for you to jump through...

203 upvotes · 1 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Her hamster deadlifts 800lbs, that is some beautifully worded bullshit that would fool the majority of western ears. It sounds so simple and plausible, yet it is layer upon layer of bullshit subtextually, the fact the nice guy is too weak, the fact she wants to cash out the game when she can no longer get an asshole "4 years until I was ready for a relationship = I was hopping on random alpha cock for 4 years." Basically, AF/BB, without saying any of that and making nice guys feel like a prize. That's so fucking manipulative I don't know whether I admire it or disdain it. It comes so naturally to these bitches too. She must believe her own horseshit. This is why fishermen don't ask fish how to catch them.

The feminist shithole of Sweden just got the princess it deserves

202 upvotes · 14 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem with beautiful women is the power they have over men corrupts them into using that power to manipulate men at every available opportunity. As if that wasn't feminine instinct anyway, it's on steroids when it comes to a hot woman. Ugly women hate hot women because their higher value means they are able to manipulate at higher stakes with a greater success rate. Imagine having competition you can never beat due to genetics, sour grapes, right? At least as guys you can go earn more money and improve your game. Those things don't help women. Women can't become the female equivalent of Chad if their genetics are bad. But if they won that lottery, guess what? They live life on easy mode. Life isn't fair, and even when you're a winner, it's still perverse. It really is what it is.

If you had people begging to take you out, buy you expensive things, give you drugs, alcohol, and whatever, if everywhere you went you were propositioned gifts or adventure, simply for existing, you'd probably start using people and seeing people as pathetic too. Beautiful women have far too much power, it is this which makes them the bratty little monsters that you see. They are spoiled with attention and gifts, so whatever personality they may have had is ruined. Their beauty and the way it affects men ruins them. Their biggest blessing is their biggest curse. The reason a personality of any substance is so rare with such women is because they have so much power due to their looks that they never need to develop a personality. They don't need to introspect or grow an increasingly complex personality because all their needs are taken care of by others. People with complex personalities have had to develop them as a social adaptation. This is not a social adaptation such women have to make.

A hot girl is the opposite of the WoW neckbeard when it comes to social power. She just turns up and everything is given to her. As they get older, their power fades. Of course, this chick has cashed out to a prince so she can ride high for a great deal longer lifestyle wise. He's an absolute idiot for committing to a whore with such a bad track record.

Since meeting the prince in 2010 she has tried to "soften" her image,

They'll tell any lie to get the upgrade. A prince?! Yes, I'm a good girl with a clean image! Pick me! Me! Funny. Because how she alters her behaviour around the prince is the exact sort of behaviour we see with men buying her jewellery and shit. These men think she is superior, so they try to present an image they think will impress her (which, of course, is wrong, the BB approach is not how it's done.) But with the prince, she does the same thing. Pretends to be something she isn't just so she can impress him and get his status for herself. Life's funny as fuck. I have to laugh at people, honestly, I do.

A tangential closing note in case reading about this genetic jackpot winning prince-marrying bitch has fucked with your head:

It is almost visceral to hate on the lucky for how easy they have life, but really, the situation you are born into, the genetics you've got, it was completely fucking random. You had no choice in that, you didn't get to pick your parents, so for better or worse, you've got what you were given no matter how great or insignificant the essence and resources you were bestowed with were. You make the best of what you've got. Life is what it is. Hating people who entered the world with a straight royal flush in their hand whilst you didn't even get one pair doesn't make your life any better. Be careful of jealousy, it will fuck you up, don't let it fuck you up. Choose to be happy. When you see shit like this, shrug. "Eh, so what they were born with an 180 IQ, godlike aesthetics and multi-millionaire parents that actually love them and no family mental illness? I'm gonna go read this great book."

No point giving a shit about things you can't change. Destroying other people isn't going to make your life any better, or happier. Some people are just ridiculously blessed in this life, and naturally, they leverage that to the max. If you are not blessed, make your own fortune. It may drive you crazy trying to get there, literally, a few neurons and synaptic pathways may fucking fuse in your head, but if you really want to become something when you came from nothing -- I don't believe not being crazy is an option for you. It's that, or accept you're a loser. Or kill yourself. Nobody gives a shit anyway.

Beta is PISSED at me for "stealing" the girl he's been "working on" for months

202 upvotes · 22 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If it takes you months to win a girl around, you're not "working on" shit. You're wasting your time. And she'll be all too happy to exploit you. She was extracting maximum commitment whilst giving him no sex. For all intents and purposes, he was the male equivalent of a plate: a beta orbiter. She strung him along. Now he's mad he's been rejected he's taking out his frustrations on the guy she did actually want. This is what plugged in guys don't understand: women choose who they fuck. Men compete for breeding rights with women, and women pick whoever they perceive to be the best man they can get. That's hypergamy in dating. If she chose the other guy instead of you, that's not his fault. He was better than you, or at least, for some hamsterific reason, she at least thought he was. Hopefully her evaluation was lucid, but if it wasn't there's fuck all any of us can do about it. You can't negotiate attraction. You just have to get on with your shit. Of course as in all things: may the best man win.

A man presents only facts to dispute gender pay gap existence. Wins against feminist.

192 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Imagine if you went "what, your economist is female? Ok, that's bullshit then" that's what she was insinuating, except, you know, about male economists.

It baffles me how women can be so openly hostile/misandrist, yet reciprocal misogyny in kind would be absolutely socially decimated. That alone I find to be telling of just how far the pendulum has swung, culturally speaking, in favour of women. And it's not just the media. This scenario would play out just the same in the workplace or anywhere else, too.

TRP subreddit now considered a hate site by Symantec

190 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's some intensely biased conflation.

Only smart people perceive this. Your average person will not know the difference between anti-feminism, and hatred of women. Anti-feminism = against the feminist ideology and how it governs/controls women. Hatred of women = nothing to do with ideology, but simply a hate of anything with a vagina. Completely different things. Most people think anti-feminism equates to misogyny, but it doesn't. It's a neat bit of mental gymnastics though, isn't it?

On an anti-feminist slant, when it comes to Orwellian control of the language; I think feminism revealed itself grandly when it popularised the term "misogyny" but never bothered doing the same with "misandry." Many sites/apps/dictionaries to this day do not even recognise the word until you add it manually.

Edit reason: fixed typos

Woman Calls Me A Jerk! Then Proceeds To Fuck Me and Tell Me About Her Nice Guy Orbiter Who She Refused To Bang.

189 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

After telling her this she starts trying to argue that it's not true that women want jerks, and that they really like nice guys.

This is why talking about this stuff with women is really and truly pointless. There is a total disconnect between what she thinks/says she wants, and what she actually responds to. I don't even think the majority of women are lying, I flat out think they believe they want a nice guy, contrary to every sexual encounter, experience and metric which invalidates that notion.

I just received a positive reply to my traditional "I didn't rape you" text.

This is gold. Way to cover your ass. It'd be funny and somewhat fucked up if she replied "ummm, yes you did" and then called the police on you though.

Man loses job and breaks down crying when he tells his wife. She is surprised to discover that she feels disgusted by him.

185 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Basically, as a man, you never get a break. Ever. Hypergamy is ruthless in its cruel efficiency.

Crying/sharing your pain is for women and children. Or to be kept among trustworthy male friends over whiskey.

I've become too critical of girls

184 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Seeing as this has been upvoted so much, I'm going to revise, amend and put it on <http://illimitablemen.com/> as an article.

EDIT: Done! - <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/21/women-of-substance-are-made-not-born/>

The red pill does this, you realise women typically have nothing to offer other than their body. They know it because they spend all their time narcissistically trying to look good, accentuating the only real asset that they have to fly by in life.

But in words uttered by the mouth very few women will actually admit they are nothing other than a glorified excuse of a series of fuck holes, because such "dehumanisation" harms their ego, damaging the core of who they are that they've built up around themselves, the very narcissism they look to re-establish and reinforce via external social validation (cue dopamine hits from instagram filtered selfies and facebook likes and her inability to put down a smartphone) and a rigorous routine of makeup application and carefully selected clothing choices.

Patrice O'Neal demonstrated it best when he asked an entire crowd of women what they would do to keep their man if he was thinking of leaving them, most of them said they would fuck him. When asked what they would do if they had no vagina? They said blow him or let him stick it in the ass. Women objectify themselves but don't have the clarity of mind neither the narcissistic inclination to admit it, Patrice had to deceive them with a little game to get the truth out of them.

Having any negative opinion on a woman, be it well justified or well reasoned is automatically misogynistic in the eyes of women as you not only harm their egos to be as critical of their group collective as they are of men, but their addiction to emotion means they become lost in indignation and all the wrath which that calls forward, rather than to critically deduce truths from your logic, in short, they do not respect logic and truth like men do, they respect feelings above all else, and making them feel bad in a critical manner is in and of itself a misogynous act as far as a woman is concerned.

Most women are fucking disappointments in comparison to all the hopes and dreams we've ever had and were ever fed in regards to them, it's the fucking disney shit making you feel let down. Typically one should expect very little of women as so few are worthy of anything more than a fuck, even good conversation tends to be a rarity, quite many of them lack the ability to be mentally stimulating. Occasionally you may be surprised and in such a circumstance you run the risk of falling very hard for her as she stands out so prominently, however no matter her difference she is a woman like any other - she has the same needs and will run all the usual shit tests, making the same demands and etc.

For those who can be bothered and are in the right phase of their life to do so, if you want yourself a desirable woman you will have to cultivate femininity and desirability into her yourself, such is the extent of the red pill woman project. Red pill women are works in progress, being guided by a good social network and the desires of the man she has pledged to give her long term allegiance to. For those of us who have neither the time nor the inclination to practice the patience required to effectively create our own red pill woman, that shit isn't an option, and believe me when I say that all red pill women are trained by men, they are not born out of the womb, whether that man is her husband or her father, she is trained by a man.

This is why women with poor relationships with their fathers are a massive red flag. Absent fathers are a red flag. Weak fathers are better than nothing, but typically you want her to have had a father who was a patriarch, a dominant man who taught her discipline so that her base schematic of "what men should be like" is healthy and isn't formed from unhealthy feminist stereotypes and the ramblings of a bitter and romantically unsuccessful single mother, but even then that isn't always enough to ensure a quality woman as the prevailing socially engineered cultural forces around her proactively do their best to undermine the will and intent that her father's best interests have for her.

Red pill women are not unicorns, they're women capable of curbing their instincts and using logic to be more desirable in order to secure provisioning in their old age. They are women who will compromise and work with a man who is strong enough and patient enough to deal with them. Everything is a compromise with all women, whether she's a cunt, BPD, unintelligent or as high caliber as a well cultivated red pill woman.

No matter the woman, she will test your patience - this is just women full-stop. Not got a lot of patience? Women are gonna just piss you the hell off. It helps when they can offset this inherently annoying trait by bringing more than a vagina to the table, but know that an inherently irrational being is going to do nothing but antagonise the patience of someone who thinks in logic rather than the cognitive cartwheels of reactive transient emotionalism.

The biggest flattery of all to women, which only an intelligent woman will realise, is that despite the sheer frustration and pain she causes him, he still chooses to stick with her. A female's self-awareness of his sacrifice and a declaration of appreciation for that sacrifice goes a long way to help reconcile the huge fundamental differences in expectation that men and women have of each other, women being far more audaciously demanding and needy by nature of their disposition than men. It's somewhat insane how the appreciation of an irrational woman is indeed valued so intimately by the disposition of a rational man. It is true after all that we value that which is hardest to obtain, and a woman's appreciation is scarcely given in earnest.

A man presents only facts to dispute gender pay gap existence. Wins against feminist.

178 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Gotta love how around 4:40 he disarms her by charming her/making her feel special. That shit is fucking gold. She can't get that grin off her face. Then she calls it. And even though she called it out, it still worked. GOLD. LMAO.

I was asked to train a new female employee to do the promotion I got passed on.

178 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Reverse affirmative action is even funnier. Asians need higher test scores than other ethnicities to get into college because they do so well across the board. You don't hear SJWs whining about that.

An example of "Rape Culture", SJW's and the 48 Laws

170 upvotes · 23 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Milo only gets away with it because he's gay, so he has power in the victim hierarchy and can use his sexual orientation as a defence if anyone attempts to undermine him. He can't be dismissed as something -ist because he's a member of one of the victim groups that is given power in this socially engineered dystopia where the weaker or more "alternative" you are perceived, the more respected and accepted by society, hence more free speech.

Think about it, a trans muslim gay black woman can basically say whatever the hell she/it wants, and if anybody tries to dismiss her/its opinion as misogynistic, racist, homophobic, islamophobic.. doesn't matter, she/it is immune to dismissal. This is what Milo does as a gay man, he argues with logic, if someone dares to dismiss his views, he can do the same "you think what I have to say isn't true because I'm gay?" see, he can pressure flip the burden of responsibility by credibly playing the victim. A straight white man can't credibly pressure flip the burden of responsibility to prove you are a victim rather than a victimiser. And as we know, in the contemporary west perceived victim groups are royalty, perceived victimisers are scum for even daring to speak the truth.

Men are evil, women are good.

Whites are evil, blacks are good.

Christians are evil, muslims are good.

Straights are evil, gays are good.

^ This is implied by political correctness, because if you're in the "evil column" it doesn't matter how right you are, you're less PC, and therefore in a debate you lose to a person from the "good column" no matter how idiotic, unintelligent and bigoted their viewpoint is.

In one interview you've got Milo, a white man, arguing with a black woman on live Sky TV. She has two god damn victim cards in her deck there, not only is she a woman, but she can shit on white women who play the victim vs men by playing the slave angle. I've seen this shit and it's hilarious, white women going on about patriarchy, black feminists comes along and claim white women were the wives of plantation owners and therefore oppressors themselves. it's fucking hilarious. I'm just waiting for a native american woman to come along after that, saying how blacks didn't go back to africa after getting free and happily live on the land whites stole from them, so that blacks are colonialists too. The whole thing is fucking hilarious.

This whole divide and conquer shit is just ridiculous and you can't help but laugh when you identify the hierarchy of victimhood, how it all works, and how some people actually live their lives through a lens of victimhood in regard to race, gender or whatever. If Milo wasn't a faggot he'd be dismissed quicker than you can say "fabulous girlfriend!" when he was arguing with that black chick.

If you are a straight white man you have no power in the victim hierarchy as you are framed as the oppressor responsible for all the worlds ills. As such, you are dismissed easily and become the target of everyone else's hangups and hate. Generally, a psychological punching bag for women, minorities and fags to hate on. Ironically in a contemporary context this means you probably have the least civil liberties and hence are "the real victim" of social injustice, nevertheless, this irony is lost upon the indoctrinated culturally marxist masses.

Milo wouldn't be shit if he was straight, he would just be another witty white man dropping truth who could never get on TV to articulate his opinions because they'd be deemed hate speech. But because a faggot is saying it, it's not. And he knows this, that's why he makes a point of flagrantly waving around the very thing that permitted his rise in full view. I'm not saying he's not incredibly articulate, correct or intelligent - he is often these things, but in this crazy fucking society you have to be gay or have some other position in the victim hierarchy for counter-cultural views to be listened to, let alone seen as credible.

This is the crazy civilization we're living in right now, one of the reasons we say we're in decline.

Always hide your effort

169 upvotes · 19 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Make your accomplishments seem effortless" - Robert Greene

Seems that some people, out of projection and insecurity perceive your superiority as "trying hard." Case in point, I've had numerous people on TRP over the years say I'm intentionally wordy. No, not really, it's pretty natural to me. Although you never DENY the accusation (like I just did,) because then you just seem even more try hard and put yourself in an inferior position. You either sound "upset" or like you're justifying yourself. Never justify yourself. Agree and amplify works great "yeah I care too much" said in the most uncaring voice imaginable.

Back to the gym example: that's why being laconic can help mitigate perceptions of trying too hard. To be honest though, I wouldn't give a fuck about what some bitch at the gym thinks. If they called me out on trying too hard I wouldn't care, their perception wouldn't change my "I don't give a fuck" attitude. Like you said, you're at the gym to lift and get your shit done. Who cares what whatever person thinks. If they have an opinion on you and you have no opinion on them, who really gives the most shits? Fuck 'em.

When you're in a situation where people get jealous and that's dangerous for you: show false vulnerability now and again, be humble. Make up a weakness. Mediocre people are jealous people, that's the crab bucket mentality for you. A lot of people go to the gym and half ass it. Their heart ain't in it. That's what separates us from them. That's what makes them jealous. That's why this bullshit exists. People on the grind respect others on the grind. People who ain't worth shit judge everyone who is with empty criticism. If you're jealous of another, that's a sign something's wrong within yourself.

Exercised Frame Control and It Yielded Results Akin to Wizardry.

168 upvotes · 13 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ok this bitch has worse grammar than Hitler, it's barely readable and I'm confused about all manner of things reading those texts.

If she gives "complete devotion" to people she cares about, then clearly she never gave a fuck about her boyfriend she had since childhood who she casually fucked this summer. I mean if a dude who caught her as early as childhood couldn't captivate "complete devotion" then what chance does a guy have who has got her significantly older and more damaged? Saying that, she says her HS sweetheart used to abuse her, if this is the same guy and she's still going back to him and fucking him, she's alpha widowed by a DT, combined with abuse claims (real or not) she's a fuck-up. She's either a dark triad alpha widow or she's making crazy shit up to try and activate your protector instinct, either way, there's something not quite fucking right about her and its indicative that she possesses a high level of crazy.

I don't know why you feel like a Jedi because you're basically being ultimatum'd by a bitch waaaaaaaaay high on the crazy scale. Her walking out like that was what's called a nuclear shit test, testing you by performing an action to gauge your frame rather than merely words.

Advice: NEXT her or tell her "I wasn't acting, if you want to have some fun (euphemism for FWBs) that's cool, but if daddy never taught you to share, then I'm going to have to."

If she keeps frame and digs her heels insisting on exclusivity just go no contact, you may be tempted to lie about exclusivity in order to keep fucking her, but with a crazy bitch like this the potential fallout from her scorn isn't worth the risk. IMO when they keep shit testing relentlessly to try and get their own way you've just gotta next them no matter how great the pussy is. Best of luck.

Some TRP nuggets from my Russian Grandmother.

162 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Russia is as red pill as they come. Bullshit doesn't fly there, just corruption.

I am somewhat confused about TRP and how it views sex. [Serious replies only, please.]

158 upvotes · 4 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My opinions Q&A:

are TRP men anti-feminists?

Most people here are, the ones who aren't are sure keeping it quiet, feminism gets a lot of logical deconstruction and criticism here. I don't think anyone's ever made a successful case for third wave feminism. From what I can tell, most people think past civil rights it just spiralled out of control and lead to this emasculated society where the family unit lays in tatters and deeper societal problems are spawning out of that such as the massive welfare state, taxes to fund it (transfer of wealth from working men to single mothers via taxation) and everything else economic/political that comes along with it.

Are they misogynistic?

Some people are. Depends on the guy. Being disrespectful to women doesn't necessarily mean you have an insipid hatred for them. It's funny how effective being disrespectful to a woman can be in seducing them. I'd say most of us are definitely sexist, as in, we discriminate between that which is masculine and that which is feminine because we recognise them as fundamentally different, not because we have a collective hatred for everything female. There are probably individuals here who have been hurt very badly and do genuinely hate women to the core as a result of their pain, something that is often shamed as "bitter", unfortunately this is inevitable, people experience pain and they have to try work through that.

Or do they believe that men and women are on the same level

No we don't believe in gender equality. We believe a man needs to be strong to attract and maintain a successful relationship with a woman. We've noticed that when you're strong women become feminine, soft and less bitchy to you, the nicer and weaker you are the more masculine and scrappy they get. To sum up: TRP believes in traditional gender roles.

and just get frustrated with feminists who are man-hating?

We don't really take feminists seriously, we see them as deluded in their thinking and call them "bluepill."

Why is the ideal woman to have as few sexual partners as possible

Women don't need to work to get sex, sure certain men may present a challenge because they're out of her league but if shes works within her level and goes out tonight and tells a guy she wants him 9/10 guys will go off with her and fuck her. It takes no skill for a woman to get sex and therefore it does not merit any respect or admiration. Women are the gatekeepers to sex, men are quite crudely, generally up for it most of the time, specific men aside.

This means her "conquests" are not "conquests" but merely offerings, she is offering herself up to half the town, to a guy that doesn't warrant respect, but disgust it says "I'm low value because I offer the best part of myself for very little."

High value women should only be giving it up to a boyfriend, the signifiers of high value women are that they have had few relationships lasting long periods of time and minimal hook-ups, if she's constantly in and out of relationships, or constantly hitting the clubs and bars and going home with different men, she's probably emotionally unstable and not worth touching with a bargepole.

There's irony here because if the girl is low value, guys want her to give it up on the first night because to them she has no value other than a fuck, however if they're considering her for a relationship they want her to be one of the girls who doesn't do that. The difference in preference is based on the approach. If you just want to fuck a girl you don't really care if she's a slut, in fact being a slut makes it easier to have sex with her.

If you want to build a family with a woman, you don't want her to be a slut because it means you're investing all this love, time, energy and investment into her and she may squander that by basically betraying you to fuck another guy.

Whores don't make good wives, they make good lays. The problem is every whore hates the fact she is a whore, deludes herself that she isn't a whore to maintain her self-esteem, tries to hide her past because in her heart of hearts she actually knows she is a whore and then attempts to "play the wife", what happens is because she's not been monogamous much of her life and had all these great sexual experiences and adventures when she was in her 20's fucking all these different guys, she misses the excitement of that and throws the marriage away in selfishness, this can be because she's bored or because she can't resist the temptation of another man that's on her radar.

Men are the de facto gatekeepers to commitment, they choose whether they want to stick around after fucking you. Your power is in your pussy (to begin with) your ability to keep him lays in your personality traits. His power is in whether he's going to invest in you after he's fucked you.

If you don't seem like a good deal, if he doesn't enjoy your company or he finds you to be shallow or annoying then why should he keep investing in you? Because otherwise he's an asshole or because of your delicate sensibilities?

TRP teaches men to put themselves before women, much to the dismay of mainstream society - if it's not a good deal to him then you're not worth the commitment. /r/redpillwomen essentially helps women become "a good deal" after all if you want long term commitment, you've gotta work for it. It doesn't just drop out of the sky, nobody's entitled to anything "just because" but the concept of earning commitment seems lost to most women, they rely on their looks too much - then they get old and lose their looks.

but seemingly the idea of TRP started as men just trying to get laid as much as possible by using a more effective guide?

Guys love sex, a lot. Everyone knows that whether you're red pill or not, this is the nuclear missile in the arsenal of weaponry of every insecure controlling piece of crap with a vagina out there.

Game is about having success with women and it's great for everyone involved. Think about it. Most women just stand around, dressed up and looking pretty, they don't approach they don't do shit, they put no direct work in - their work is indirect, their appearance and then placing themselves in a specific venue at specific time, both things guys have to do as well.

They stand there like items in a shop window waiting to be selected, if guys don't have the balls or confidence to approach you, you'll have many a shitty night and many of the guys will feel regret the next day because they couldn't find it within themselves to chalk up the courage. She's certainly not going to risk rejection and embarrassment in front of other people, women leave that shit to the men.

A part of TRP is about helping men get over that kind of crap and to get good at talking to women, approaching, seducing, building rapport and all the rest of it. In case you hadn't noticed, gender relations are pretty strained thanks to feminism and women aren't getting "un-brainwashed" by feminism any time soon, some are damn catty/arrogant and just plain unpleasant to even approach in the street. Part of having game is having the tools to deal with that and not care when you face rejection.

Thanks to said ideology (feminism) many women are simply undatable and not relationship material, however physically many are quite bangable so they're what's crudely referred to as a "pump and dump." That's her value, she's hot enough to fuck but doesn't have the qualities needed to secure commitment. Most women get the aesthetics fine, but don't cultivate the personality traits needed to secure long term commitment from a high value man.

If you want a life long monogamy, your looks are going to die out around age 30-35 and there will be far prettier younger women around trying to catch your mans eye, so you need to possess other traits which make you seem like a good investment and set you apart from all the sluts.

I'm genuinely trying to understand.

Having an open mind is important to one's growth, although I don't really expect you to truly understand my points as they're all said from a male point of view. In fact you may have felt insulted a few times because you're not used to people talking like this to you. Good on you for trying anyway and if it's too much, you're free to just go on with your life nobody is forcing any of this on you. Take care. Bye.

"Men rarely catcall me anymore, I hate that our culture makes me miss it."

153 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"To my great shame, the thought of not being worth men's notice bothers me, even though I'm a seasoned feminist and I know better." - Jessica Valenti

Aww, your ego still not high as fuck from all that bathing in male tears? Shame.

User of 4chan explains the difference between men's and women's accomplishments.

152 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for the kind words. Interacting with, sharing with and learning from the red pill community is one of my hobbies. Sometimes I'm really active and other weeks I don't post much, but I try and do my bit. I like to give back to the place that helped me unlock my latent potential back in 2013. A male dominated space is vital and TRP serves that need. TRP was a really positive force in my life and did a lot for me in all manners of speaking. It was like having a padlock removed from my brain.

A lot of the older guys on this sub fucked off when the sub started diluting, as is inevitable when something gets popular, the old guard get disenchanted, but I stuck around to do what I can. Give back to what you take from. In fact I have probably given back more than I have taken, but I am happy to do so. There's not much more nobler than helping men in a society that doesn't give men the tools they need to help themselves. I like that idea very much so. I can help and influence a lot more people through a computer than I can in real life. I met a lot of great people in the manosphere - it's a great place.

I like helping people to a point where I can get positive feels and don't get exploited. I volunteer offline too. I want to thank /u/redpillschool for making this sub - without him none of us would be here. If somebody went in a time machine and killed RPS, ALL OF OUR LIVES would be incredibly different: probably for the worst. Fucking insane when you think about it, really. Also I must thank /u/Rollo-Tomassi because I found TRP through the comments section of his blog on a dreary day back in 2013. I remember it vividly. Those two men have done more for the collective health of masculinity than most men ever have, or ever will. Where you thank me, I owe my debt of gratitude to them.

Tumblerette fucks five guys to get her indie "game" done and gets #rekt by 4chan, namely, /pol/.

151 upvotes · 19 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

- Attention seeking unnatural in your face hair colour - check
- BMI over 30 - check
- Poor facial features/low beauty - check

Yep ticks all the boxes for a feminist. The scary thing is she looks under 30. Shit's only going to get worse.

If she has tattoos and was raised by a single mother it would really complete the stereotype that is her delusional feminist dysfunctionism.

My Old Coworker Hung Himself

150 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He didn't kill himself, she did, by abusing her power. Here's hoping someone avenges John by ruining her.

The Red Pill is even tougher to swallow for girls

149 upvotes · 30 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women shine brighter but burn out quicker.

Men start out as candles that keep getting blown out in the wind, but end up becoming the fucking sun itself (if they apply themselves rigorously enough.)

It may be harder to be a man than to be a woman in many ways, men may take the bulk of the responsibility, but I would infinitely prefer to endure the trials and tribulations of men than the mediocrity inherent of feminine kind. Clearly a lot of women agree being a woman is boring, because the craziest biggest man hating feminists always take on male qualities and become completely unattractive in the process. They have Freudian penis envy on steroids, they are totally and utterly jealous they weren't born men because they defy femininity and it's rather minor responsibilities, instead gravitating towards the masculine. These are usually your naturally high T girls/tomboy types, but feminism as an ideology mandates low T women should aspire to live their lives in much the same way. They use female herd mentality/groupthink to shame and boss low T women into high T female behaviour, essentially, more masculine behaviour.

Women's biggest philosophical conundrum is this:

Do I want to be attractive to men, or do I want to be interesting/have a career?

Because you can't have both. Sure a career woman can get a man, but not a high quality man, not a man she wants or will "be in love with." So what is more important to her? Love or money? Lifelong high quality commitment or academic/business success? The men she wants aren't interested in her. Women always think they can have the best of both "I'm a mother and a CEO!" but they can't. Career mothers breed fucked up kids and expect the father to take on a motherly role. If he won't, the kids are raised by complete strangers (the tale of every rich kid ever in the modern age.)

Most women indulge the power of their beauty in youth, then start developing an actual personality around 35 once their looks die out and they need to find alternative means to maintain their power in society. Unfortunately, anything women can do, men can do better. Their beauty is their biggest selling point, so the personality they create to make up for the loss of looks is rarely ever as developed as a man's, who has had to develop a strong personality from a very young age just to get by in the world. Women being coddled and flattered and catered to so much is really what makes them, in many ways, as weak and needy and inferior as they are. I do believe women can be a lot better/higher quality than they are, but they'd need to find RPW at a young age. Being a post-wall hag on RPW, or a reformed slut will not get you a male 9 or 10 unless you luck the fuck out. Women past the expiry date have to accept a man will take other mistresses if he is alpha and she waited post-wall (once she lost her youth) to get serious, that or she can monopolise a beta she will never truly "be in love with" (get tingles for.) Every woman wants to monopolise an alpha, but very few have the sheer quality necessary (beauty, intelligence, good disposition) to warrant alpha provider commitment (which is basically RPW endgame.)

Do I feel sorry for women? No. They get to have 15 years of bliss whilst we sweat and toil. We earn our accolades, they just get born with a vagina in a first world country. They don't give a shit about your struggles either, your sympathy will get you nothing from women but exploitation. Don't feel too sorry for them, they reap what they sow. It's easy to see women as victims, I believe as men we are instinctually inclined to perceive women as such. But they play on that and will fuck you over when it becomes apparent you're a schmuck. So OP for the sake of your own best interest, keep a lid on that shit.

President of a country in my region considers introducing "a bachelor tax"

146 upvotes · 27 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Any man rich enough to pay any serious degree of tax is rich enough to say "fuck this shit" and relocate. With cheap international travel and online banking/the internet, it's never been easier. Helps if you have location independent income too, eg: you're a trader on the stock market or have an online shop/business.

But yes, the general theme of unappreciated male necessity yet utter disposability is a recurring theme when you look at TRP/feminism and how society/government treats men and has treated men throughout the course of history. How government treats men is really a macro representation of how entitled women treat men - as people who aren't worth shit if they don't toil for others.

Basically in a nutshell: the elites want to ensure the average man is productive whilst not being too powerful. Going back 3 or 4 decades here in the UK, we had a good balance of not giving men too much power, but giving them enough freedom and wealth and legal rights to want to be productive and raise a family/hold up society.

The thing is, elites (politicians, govt and the people lobbying them) get greedy, economy changes, politics change... and this whole storm ends up with eroding the purchasing power and morale of everyday men to a point where they think "fuck this shit I'm gonna masturbate, watch porn and play online games for the rest of my life, it's fucking fun and life sucks!"

Trust me, that last quote I put in there... A LOT OF GUYS of differing ages feel like this. Especially those who are isolated (lots of guys are isolated) and don't really have much of a proper family.

You never hear about this shit from these people themselves because people are proud, guys know they are going to be disrespected, mocked, ridiculed and shit on if they talk about these things openly or make it obvious they opt for this lifestyle, but if some of the emails I get even represent a fraction of the bigger picture, I'm inclined to believe this shit is very common in the west with young disenchanting men and older divorced men alike.

On a further tangent, towards the fall of the roman empire when feminism ruled (women could own property, become lawyers etc) there was hedonism, lots of divorce and the family fell apart like we are seeing now. Men did the same shit then as they are now (history repeats itself) and what did the Romans do? Implement a bachelor tax to "encourage marriage" (more like punish men/force them to "man up" into marrying combative masculine whores who aren't worth a can of piss)

When the fuck will humanity learn.

I was asked to train a new female employee to do the promotion I got passed on.

146 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Their flawed assumption was assuming his commitment to the job was unconditional and that his skills would not attract more lucrative offers should he be open to them. They lost a skilled employee and got an inexperienced one because of affirmative action. That company just became less profitable. I know if I was a shareholder in such a company; I wouldn't be happy seeing my investment behave in this way.

A man presents only facts to dispute gender pay gap existence. Wins against feminist.

145 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That moment you realise a faggot has more game than 90% of straight men.

2xC: "TheRedPill is causing me to self-harm, as I become more depressed by what women must really think of me. "

145 upvotes · 1 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's statements like this which convince me the majority of women are devoid of any congruent rational internal narrative. You know the woman who wrote that probably honestly believes what she's saying, despite the experiences of thousands if not millions of men being contrary to that. And if you were to tell her that, she'd say she's different, and then if you could actually somehow be a fly on the wall in her life you'd find she isn't any different at all, but still somehow, devoid of logic, she really does believe she's different. She'll concede as much as "some women are like that" but not that "most women are like that" and she'll stick to her guns that what her abstraction of "that which constitutes female attraction" is what SHE PERSONALLY wants on a conscious level, whilst being completely oblivious (or, in denial of) the subconscious/primal level she operates at; which is almost entirely contrary and opposite to that abstract idea of attraction which she espouses. Abstraction loses to primitive nature each and every time. We see that when nice guys get passed up and monumental assholes are trying to fight them off with a stick.

Even as much as a woman could desperately want to find a "nice, gentle guy" attractive - she can't. Some women hate themselves for loving assholes, they are "slaves to the tingles", any guy that is dangerous and exciting they simply cannot resist in spite of his lack of "gentle feminist friendly" man qualities. Almost every feminist is a hypocritical bitch that betrays "the sisterhood," because they're all having (or have had) sex with guys who are total fucking assholes that laugh their way into her panties with a middle finger raised. These are the men who fit the feminist definition of "members of the patriarchy." They are not feminist approved and yet feminists fuck them more than anybody else. The types of men feminism approves of ideologically, "the nice guy" - the feminist approved man, he is laughed at behind his back, he is lucky to even be thrown sexual scraps. This man always feels like he's missing out and he feels shit about himself because for too long has he pegged his personal value to how much love, sex and attention he can get from women. Whilst the men feminism disapproves of? The kind of man a woman like this verbally disapproves of? Those vile abusive "misogynists?", you know, the cocky, unyielding don't give a fuck asshole? He's drowning in pussy. Most women are caught up in this cycle of bullshit, thinking they want one thing on a conscious level whilst only responding to what they want subconsciously. An asshole who'll commit to them. Simply put they lack self awareness. Then you put stock into their words and you wonder why listening to them fucks you up. They have no idea what the fuck they are talking about, the female capacity for introspection is utterly laughable. Get good at tuning out to their speech, it's like reality TV, if you listen to too much of the crap that they have to say it'll turn your brain to mush. Too much delusion.

This is why we call their conscious thinking/rationalising "the hamster," woman do mental gymnastics to "give a plausible answer to the current logical/social obstacle" but regardless of "traumatic events" or "learning from experience" (which are logical events for changes in behaviour or perceptions of things) they just change their opinions to be whatever is most beneficial to say in that moment. If they feel the pressure of the group they quickly buckle, which is why things like shaming are so effective against them and why the feminists are so pissed about slut shaming, because it works and they want, no need their sluttiness to be socially acceptable in order to truly have their cake and eat it. Feminism is beneficial at the moment so they all tow that narrative. If we were 50 years in the future and say the Mormons took over (LOL, I know) they'd all tow that narrative because "fuck logic you can't have the herd abandon you!" It's not female nature to be honest, they're too reliant on social approval to be honest, and the "truth" to a woman is not objective in the way that the "truth" is to a man. To a woman a truth is whatever the herd wants her to believe and it's because of this you can't put stock in their words. Women are very good at willing their desires into personally held subjectively solipsistic truisms. There are a real minority of women who lash out against the herd and have some individuality (such as Dr. Helen,) but these women are incredibly rare, it's not impossible it's just improbable.

I'm not religious either but according to posts I've seen on TRP in the past both the bible and the quran say the same thing (that a woman's word is worth less than a man's).. if that is true, it suggests men on some level, perhaps articulated differently to what I've just said, knew this kind of shit thousands of years ago and nothing's changed in all that time. It suggests we're re-learning old knowledge. Women are being women.

I'll end with this: ignore what they say, monitor their actions. Amused mastery works best, taking an opinion seriously actually grants it legitimacy. Granting legitimacy to opinions that are as vapid and self-serving as the herd mentality that they serve is irrational, and is something of a common faux pas among men who want to see the best in women and actually put stock in their bullshit. It's a trap that's all too easy to fall into because most women believe their own bullshit and thus are excellent at the whole indignation/persuasion routine.

KirillWasHere's (a.k.a. The Slut Whisperer) photography website is just a friendly reminder what party sluts are doing.

142 upvotes · 10 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Bear in mind, when you use this as evidence of female behaviour, that most people in these events, including Kirill himself, are drunk as well as high on cocaine or mandy. Seriously, do you believe this guy is such a sociable awesome guy all the time without a helping hand? Fuck no, sure the social game can support that level of narcissism once you demonstrate ultra high value and need it maintained, but how do you get that wild in the first place? Cocaine, Whiskey, Steroids - you name it, this guy's probably doing it. The same goes for the girls that are there. We all do dumb shit when we're drunk. I'm not excusing the bitches there, fuck no, but I am saying that people's worst desires run wild when there's booze in the veins and powder up the nose.

You're meeting an intoxicated version of them, some truths spill out, but illicit substances vastly alter your character - it's not a valid representation of what a person is normally like. Do chicks randomly get their tits out for alpha guys they just met when they're not fucked off their face? Not usually, because their inhibitions are high. Some people are so addicted to that lifestyle (the power they feel these substances bring them) that they don't want to leave party world aka the cock carousel. That's what you're seeing here, people who rather be off their face all the time because they like themselves more when they're high than they do sober. They are damaged people who aren't willing to face the world without a crutch.

These substances take them from zero to hero, from a nobody to an everybody. They think they have life worked out. Remember that movie Limitless where he's like "If I get just one more NZT, I'll conquer the world?" well that's what cocaine addicts are like, and trust me, lots of high status people are balls deep in coke addiction. A high-end venue like this is going to have tons of people high as fuck. I wonder how much cocaine residue is found around the toilet seats in their bathrooms. Sure, getting fucked can be fun, but it's not when you're trying to stay there 24/7 and leave "real you" behind in an attempt to escape from reality. A lot of these people are damaged and self-medicate with this lifestyle. They're humans trying to be Gods, but when the high wears off, they're nothing again. Remember that when you look at these pictures, you're getting snapshots of people drunk on dopamine and narcissism.

Male Bonding, Arousal Addiction, and Isolation

142 upvotes · 6 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Good post.

This is endemic as a result of the collapse of the family unit being widespread in feminist countries, more and more boys are finding themselves isolated. In the days of the nuclear family your chance at having a father to bond with and siblings/brothers was far higher and children who are sons of single parent mothers are at the most danger of social anxiety and isolation, they cannot bond with their mothers in the way that they need to, they have an absent father and no siblings and typically they are born into poverty. What are there chances in life? In terms of SMV unless they were born genetic jackpot winners and were blessed with good looks, they have the deck completely stacked against them and are born into dare I say, something of an SMV deficit with massively high risk factors for delinquency.

The ingredients for success to help them fulfill their potential are simply absent. If such young men are ever lucky enough to find TRP and take on a self-improvement mindset, immediately they are awash with regret from all the wasted time and lack of opportunity they had. All those years wasted on being an orbiter, playing games, having bad friends, being too emotionally crippled to have meaningful friendships, it's a fuckfest of delinquency which rapes the shit out of a guys chances in life. Nobody talks about it, nobody at all, because most people don't give a fuck. But it's not as rare as people would like to think. If this sounds like you or you identify with this shit, leave a comment here, it will be interesting to see how many people need TRP because they were brought up in this kind of shitty situation or similar.

Their chances at socialisation, predominantly schooling and the workplace yield little to no social reward, that is to say, because they are not high SMV nobody really wants to know them, who cares about poor guys who aren't good looking and have no popularity? Fucking nobody and yet, that describes the majority of guys who are born into poverty and single parent/low education households with no sizeable family to take care of them. How do guys like that often get attention and try to break out from the mediocrity? They sell drugs, they get involved in gangs, anything to give them money, status and sex, shit they wouldn't get if they didn't break the law. The guys who don't do that or are too scared to do that? They end up in the porn/games/internet cycle, too irrationally fearful of people that even leaving the house is a big deal, talking to people in shops is a big deal and etc. They are so used to isolation it's become their M.O.

I'd argue the dichotomy we have now is that as a low SMV male it is incredibly difficult TO NOT BE lonely, isolation is almost the status quo for males, the millennials and to a growing extent, gen X, are incredibly narcissistic, who has time for those who haven't already made it in life? Seemingly, not many people.

My advice is take up as many hobbies as you can afford/have spare time for, obviously that's the gym but there's other stuff, debating clubs, dance, martial arts, whatever it is that allows you to meet other people and have some fun whilst you're at it. Friends are like money, difficult to get when you have none, but when you have plenty of it getting more is effortless. Preselection is insane, but inversely, so is the lack of it. A lack of preselection can lead to nobody wanting to know you, I don't even mean the opposite sex, I'm talking same-sex friendships too. Most people are close-minded and judgemental, they won't even try to look past superficialities to like you, if you're not a high-flyer they're not interested.

Shit, the standards for masculinity are so high, and the infrastructure to ascertain it for many men is all but absent, it's no wonder so many boys/men are incubating themselves with porn/games/internet. If you're isolated and the struggle is getting you down, you may as well enjoy your prison. Not that I advocate that lifestyle in anyway, but simply that I can understand perfectly well why it happens. Nobody cares about these people so these people do their best to make life as bearable as possible, even if that means forgetting how much their life sucks and distracting themselves with fantasy constantly, day-in and day out.

Such is the nature of system, when the system does a shit on someone but gives them none of the information they need to see it for what it is, they delude themselves on behalf of the system to stop themselves from going insane from how shit everything is. Escapism is a form of self-preservation for people who don't know how to or simply aren't brave enough to engage in self-improvement. When you have nothing, when you have nobody, stepping into the gym and lifting some weights around strangers is a big fucking deal, it takes a lot of courage, those boys are so neglected and so anxious that it's unreal, they will actively stop themselves from pursuing self-improvement because they are perpetually scared as a result of isolation, thus perpetuating the cycle further, they become their own biggest obstacles.

TLDR: feminism fucked up society to the point where a lot of young boys grow up isolated with no role models, money, functioning family, decent friends or good chances in life. Only the apex and the most extreme of the forgotten young men will break free from their prisons and become productive citizens.

Edit: Thanks for the positive feedback (and the gold!), I will form this into a blog post seeing as it has touched the hearts of so many.

Men aren't taught how to be attractive. Women are born into it.

141 upvotes · 1 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I concur. There's a tone in this thread that "if women could just understand, they'd work with us." No. Just no. Stop. That's wishful thinking. Women will never work with us, because what they want and what we want are similar but different. The way we think, the way we want to do things, the fact women want to constantly fight you for control whilst secretly subconsciously hoping they don't win means we're in a perpetual state of war. (war = maxim 6)

Even OP sounds a little purple pill. Don't get me wrong there's a lot of gold in OP that makes sense, but because he's trying to logic a girl there's a lot of "meet me halfway here" sentiment in his explanation and she doesn't budge a fucking inch. This is testament to the notion women see any attempt at male self-improvement that may possibly undermine their monopoly on social power as nothing but a threat to be thwarted. Women don't want a work in progress they want a winner, the work in progress is ugly, the rage, the insecurity - all of it - bitches aren't cut out for that. TRP is like a machine shop where cars are in pieces being assembled/repainted and whatever, and bitches just be like "I don't want to see that, they're ugly, show me a shiny lambo, that car probably doesn't even start!" Women want the product with the perfect presentation and to be completely ignorant of the underlying layers that go into creating it.

TRP is a fucking hospital for fucked up guys. And guys aren't even allowed to be fucked up, are they? Society fucks men up, they try to do something about it by utilising TRP, and apparently that's a bad thing too. Everything they do is wrong. Bitches come here, pass judgement and then act like they know shit. These women are fucking clueless and their snooping enlightens them not one iota. Where we see progress and catharsis, they are just revolted and trying to get in our heads. Not so they can help us, but in some petty female attempt to outsmart our knowledge of their biology/psych (again, IM MAXIM 6.) A futile endeavour, but there you go.

They don't even try to understand "the WHY" behind TRP. They are just filled with discomfort and suspicion at the thought of men coming together to discuss women and society in the very way that they do. Women do not like the idea of male autonomy, women always want to be in the picture, having a say and influencing men. Men specialise in influencing the world whilst women specialise in influencing men, that's always the way it's been, whether it's been through feminism or using her looks/submission to charm a man into commitment (that's RPW.)

TRP is one of very few places where women have NO POWER WHATSOEVER. And they fucking hate that. No power, lots of "work in progress men" that aren't currently at a "fuckable level," unspoken societal mechanics out in the open being plainly spoken, this shit offends and fucks with them. They can't understand. They can't care. They're not in that fucking world. They're not men so they don't understand the struggle, the grind, the sweat that takes to become a man worth a fuck.

Plus there's the little double standard that's it's fine for her to artificially enhance her SMV, but if you don't "grow up that way," and instead have to consciously try to fix yourself, you're clearly a damaged tryhard rather than a natural and you belong in the beta box society has already assigned you. Women like to stereotype men as bitch boys and fuck boys and they're very black and white about that. They don't want to see any crossover, the mere concept fucks with them epically.

Truth is, women would be happier if men got their balls back and started leading again but they've been brainwashed too and just aren't cognisant of it. It's a huge mind fuck that women are constantly try to feminise men and feed them disinformation that fucks up their chances, but will eagerly fuck any guy who ignores all of that and knows what it takes to be an effective, dominant and successful man. Which is all any man here really wants to be.

The worst thing you can do is show the enemy your play book and trust them to empathise or get on board.

Women are not your friends, but neither are they your competition. They are not your equals, they are your prey. You hunt, and if you know what you're doing, you snag one. You lead the relationship, if you fuck up, there is no relationship. There is no equality and no understanding, there is simply you being a leader picking/attracting/maintaining a relationship with a woman of your choosing. That's it.

People like to think they can use TRP to get a girl and then "just be themselves" but the reality is, the "gaming" (manipulating) never stops. And women will never stop manipulating you, testing you to make sure you're strong/better than them. That's just the way it is.

You all need to accept this instead of hoping otherwise.

If women gave a remote shit about men, life from a man's viewpoint or even helping men, feminism wouldn't be a thing. Open your eyes. We're on our own with this. Woman on TRP will never empathise with us, they are just here to enhance their own manipulation. Women have an edge and they don't want men to take that away from them.

Lucky for them, even a woman knowing about TRP doesn't stop TRP working on her. It's all human behaviour. Women like what they like, they are who they are and they're attracted to what they're attracted to. But we don't need them having any meaningful presence here.

Bitches don't belong in the locker room and they know it that's why they lurk. Women having any say or presence within TRP will be the death of it, just as it was with the seduction sub, askmen, and all the other previous male spaces that women took over.

All relationships are war, yeah I know that sounds fucked up but just think about it. If it wasn't this thing you had to win and dominate, you wouldn't need TRP because bitches would work with you and not against you. Truth be told, the irony is, bitches only work with you when you're winning - which means dominating life AND them. But they will try to jostle you for power, and if you give in, you sign your own death sentence. Heed me.

Bookmark Our Offsite Backup

141 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I do not think we are going to be removed from reddit

Tempting fate eh? I like the cut of your jib. Fuck it, if it happens, it happens. Fuck Reddit and it's dread game.

Gentlemen, do not be this guy

140 upvotes · 12 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha this smells a lot like a girl who had it all in her 20's and hit the wall like a chain of minigun bullets. TSSSH-TSSSH-TSSSH. She doesn't look 34 at all, but kids and BB are no fun compared to being a cum slut for cash and tingles. Hence why she's back doing coke with the AF, who, as a photographer, can dread game the fuck out of her with all the other hot bitches he's flirting with.

She died of an OD. She couldn't give up the carousel life. The carousel permanently damages women. "Normal life" will always be too boring for them once they've been doing drugs and strange dick for a decade. Avoid these women like the plague, fuck and chuck, don't impregnate, don't marry.

"So it's fair to get half of his stuff?" "Yes!"

139 upvotes · 4 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TLDR: expected a woman to be reasonable, got a slap from reality, is quickly learning women are as reasonable as an early morning erection.

Man spends 5.5 years as a prisoner of war - returns home to find his wife was cheating on him. She takes his kids, house, car, pension and child support.

137 upvotes · 11 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I love this, it's exactly how women argue. This is the spin doctoring, deflecting, self-justifying victim posturing bullshit that many women execute so flawlessly when they're caught red-handed being anything less than noble.

It goes something like this:

- Deflect when accused by shifting burden of proof/blame from the accused to the accuser.
- Use these deflections as they grow in number to construct a false narrative.
- Deny any responsibility.
- Play the victim by talking about emotions, play for sympathy.
- Make the man accept your false narrative.

This is the bread and butter of a woman's survival other than her sexuality, which of course, is another option they'll leverage if they deem you more suitable to be "charmed" rather than "mentally coerced."

The difference between charm and coercion is one's pleasurable, both are however, manipulative. Soft-machiavellianism or soft power.

Soft power is a concept developed by Joseph Nye of Harvard University to describe the ability to attract and co-opt rather than coerce, use force or give money as a means of persuasion.

Note how men are inherently predisposed to the latter whilst women, the former.

She confirms TRP (Beta Bucks)

134 upvotes · 28 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"I don't know about all that... I mean I'd probably call my boyfriend and tell him we need a break for a while, while I go have fun."

She's hoping you pass this on to the mutual friend so she can go get her pussy fucking nailed by him.

(FR) went from a friendzoned orbiter to getting her as a plate.

133 upvotes · 2 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well done man. But don't let your old oneitis for this girl make you beta again and cause you to relapse. You play with fire when you start hooking up with a girl from your beta days. A part of you, that weak, pre-alpha part of you, still loves her and wants to have its happy ever after ending with her. She's not the one and you have to fight yourself on that every time you hook up/do shit with her. Whatever you do, do not make this chick your girlfriend if you don't want to psychologically relapse all the gains you've made.

The TRP Field Toolkit - Part 1: Attitude, Ego and IDGAF

132 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Nightwing has adopted the correct attitude towards how to view women and navigate social waters. One upon a time this was a common attitude in the sub, but as more and more teenage children/barely adults come in here whining, posting news threads, bitching about feminism, and posting half-baked inchoate theories about social dynamics, shit like this becomes gold dust. Of course feminism and whatever is relevant, but those kinds of post vastly outnumber these kinds of posts. We need more posts like this so TRP isn't just a bitchy whinefest of teenage angst. If you're going to moan at least post a semi-intelligent and violent rant. Whining is pitiful moaning, it's feminine. Ranting is forceful moaning, it's masculine. Don't whine, rant, that's why we have a rant flair and not a whine flair. Anyhow, I've digressed.

This attitude needs constantly restating so the new guys can adopt it, apply it to their social interactions on a daily basis and internalise it. For you rusty guys who have been in monk mode for too long, you need to reinternalise such attitudes.

Treat women like they're beneath you, because they are, and treating them as equal or superior has never got a man laid on his own terms. Your constant urge to get laid is a biological necessity oft weaponised against you, don't defy that directive for the idealistic notion that "women are human like you and thus should be treated in the same way you treat men" that's such fallacious thinking that is not only wrong (because women think very differently from men) but because it will also fail to help you satisfy your needs. You're here to win at this game we call life, not fail or get rewarded on a woman's terms and whims. I'll give you an example:

One time I was at a party I was on top of a chick on the grass, we were going to fuck but she started bossing me around. I started laughing and said "who do you think you're talking to," she started trying to reassert herself and I said "no," I got off her, walked away, and started making out with another girl within the next 5 minutes (which pissed her off to no end, she kicked me in the leg whilst I was making out with the other chick.) Now I don't expect anyone to believe my story and frankly I don't give a fuck whether you do or not, the point is that I did shit on my own terms, not the girl's. This girl was going to spread them, but she was far too bossy and wanted me to jump through hoops so I bailed on her and found a girl more to my liking. I rather make out with a girl on my own terms than get laid on a girl's. A notch isn't worth my dignity and sense of leadership as a man. Men lead, not follow. That's how it is.

When women lead and have the superior hand, nobody is happy. They will dispute this out of butthurt and ego until the cows come home, but you must ignore them. What women think doesn't matter because what they want is in a constant state of flux. They want to be men at work and women at home, so they want to be treated like men and respected like men when it comes to power, but then they want to be treated like women socially and have freedom to be weak when they want to be. They want to switch between masculinity and femininity all the time so they can have the best of both worlds as inculcated into them via feminist nonsense. Fuck that, just treat them like women. They are too emotional and inconsistent to have opinions of any lasting worth. Internalise the superiority complex, it was always necessary, but now it is even more so.

Today's women are so narcissistic that lacking such a demeanour is going to vastly diminish your sexual success. If you don't believe you're better than her, neither will she, and that means no respect or play for you. Become better on the inside via monk mode, then portray superiority in your demeanour on the outside. Be superior in both substance and style. Monk mode will make you superior in substance, but not in style. Learning these attitudes and practicing them will make you superior in style, but not in substance. Combine both for the best of both. If your SMV is already high, skip monk mode. If you are a loser, build some substance first so that you're not just hot air pretending he's the shit when he has nothing to back it (lest you become a caricature of an old school PUA,) but at the same time do not use monk mode as an excuse not to work on your social game. Unless you're a natural, social game takes constant maintenance, neglect causes rust.

To fall in love with anyone, do this

131 upvotes · 13 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Everything is manipulative to blue pillers.

You're the island, and she's the seagull.

130 upvotes · 30 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitches squawk a lot too so this makes perfect sense for an extended metaphor. This is too brilliant.

Woman hits the wall at 25, has mental breakdown: single mother with no money comes to realise no one wants to date a single mother, has vitriolic anger towards her ex who's still living a happy life and having relationships.

129 upvotes · 28 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You need a license to drive an automobile, but having a child comes with no formal checks or balances.

Let that sink in for a second.

Young doctor wonders why women are suddenly after him. Gets slaughtered by hamsters on r/askwomen. These are redpill truths in action.

129 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Doctors are awesome to me because of their education, level of commitment to their job, the work and intellect and effort it takes to get there. Money doesn't come into it. Hells, I assume most young docs have a ton of student loans to pay off.

LMFAO.

Money doesn't come in to it, never believe it when you hear that. Believe that. This is like saying "power is irrelevant." Yeah and I'm a fucking genie that shits leprechauns.

I messaged OP to check out TRP, if I can do my civic duty to save a man from becoming a whores personal piggy bank then fuck yeah I'm gonna do that. OP sounds somewhat naive but like his instincts are tingling past his social programming so there's a start.

Disturbing Social Trends Observed During Summer Vacation

126 upvotes · 23 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What you're seeing in the difference between eastern european and southern/northern european men is that masculinity is not demonised there. Being macho is more socially acceptable, and therefore, conducive to getting laid there. Machoness is also very much class based. The higher the social class, the less socially accepted acting like a cunt who doesn't give a fuck really is.

Acting/being macho in the UK (where I am) can help you situationally, but generally speaking, unless you work in a trade (plumbing, electrics etc) it won't help you network. It will turn people off to you. I guess it depends where you live as I'm in the south, in the North of the UK people are more macho. Here in the south the culture demands beta if you're going to even get paid. Macho guys will get kicked out of corporations for failing to uphold the status quo. That's why there's an undercurrent of anger and discontent with a lot of guys here. They are not free to be themselves, they're culturally imprisoned, neutered, emasculated. It's like a feminist dystopian nightmare here.

The most macho guys in the UK are guys who generally speaking can't afford a trip to a resort in Europe, eg: working class. Or they are middle class self-employed tradesmen who build houses and shit (and so could afford the trip.) You'll find most of your sample there were middle class pencil pushers, by merit of simply being able to afford to vacation. And that they compose more of the middle class than the few tradesmen we have (who, despite their income making them middle class, would largely identify as and behave as working class.)

Likewise the differences you observed between EE men being with women better looking than them and NE men being with women inferior looking than they are is due to cultural narcissism and gender ratio. In Ukraine and Russia there are more women than men. Not so in Western Europe. Men have more power in the dating markets there. Likewise in the west women are all brainwashed into thinking they are 10/10's and that men are collectively not worth shit. Single mothers are heroes and men are potential deadbeats. Such is the view of men when family collapses. In heavily Americanised cultures the implicit (but often, explicit) memetic is that men aren't worth shit and women are the very vital essence the universe is composed of.

In the west it's harder to date/get laid for the average guy because western women are not only fucked up and taught to hate men, but likewise have more distorted views of reality. Americanised culture's men still have needs, so they compete to be the best, hit the gyms, learn game, whatever. Whilst the women have to do nothing because they bluff through it with narcissism and a lower sex drive. So western women can just sit on their ass and date increasingly more attractive men without being worth a fuck absent their basic bitch vagina. Women rely on their pussy most in the west, because the power of the pussy is strongest in the west. This is likewise why you never bring an Eastern bitch to a Western country. Because she'll jump on the narcissism train and become a cunt.

In EE there are less job opportunities and more income insecurity for women, so the beta bux strategy is still more valid. Those cultures don't shit on masculinity so much, the men are more comfortable with masculinity and are likewise more likely to have had a dad/strong male role models in the family to pass on said masculinity. The women are less narcissistic (generally speaking) because the culture isn't as westernised/americanised. So those women don't go around thinking they are 10's, making them easier to attract/date. Narcissism in a woman is not attractive, it only works for men.

But what we have in the west is men who are under confident and women who are overconfident. The rules of attraction have not changed for feminism, and this dynamic leads to a really fucked up dating environment. The game is really fucking pervertedly inverted right now. In truth, to promote successful mating, it is men who must be overconfident and women who must be under confident. Hypergamy demands this. The west is experiencing the reverse of this.

Part of the reason we have to neg the shit out of women in the west to get any action is because their egos are so overblown that you need to bring them back to reality, no matter how temporarily, just to get them to see you as superior and therefore, attractive. That's why we have the emergence of Patrice O'Neal level game. You literally need balls of fucking steel absent godlike genetics in the west to get pussy. And the west is likewise far more hostile to masculinity than anywhere in Eastern Europe.

So growing up in the west to be badass is hard mode as the environment is less conducive to masculine values than the east. The west isn't completely neutered, but it is more so than anywhere else. You will still find badass guys here, but you will find a ton of pussies too. Why do you think TRP is a largely western phenomenon and didn't start in say, China? Likewise, non-westerners find it easier to clean up here because they already "got the right training" that guys missed out on here (and look to TRP for.) Most of the guys here by all comparison do not have a level of masculinity that's anywhere near as developed as EE men due to the influence of feminism. Men here are deprived of their masculinity and most men, IMO, have an absent sense of masculinity, if not an underdeveloped one.

There are a lot of dynamics behind your observations. Mostly the economic differences between northern/western Europe vs. the rest of Europe (which you alluded to briefly) as well as the amount of Americanisation each country has gone through in overinflating the feminine ego. The richer a country becomes and the less women need men to survive, the less women value men, the more entitled and unattractive they become, and the more the dating market skews in favour of women. Women are best kept gratuitous, when they are allowed too much power, they become tyrants, and the male majority misses out condemned to celibacy. If I had to fathom a guess, I'd say most western guys are in an involuntarily imposed state of celibacy. Shit's fucked up out here.

Witnessed a girl do a 360 on her marriage

124 upvotes · 26 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I watched this barely attractive woman almost throw her entire life away to some beta idiot who complimented her simply because her husband could be boring.

"A woman would rather be insulted than bored." - Patrice O'Neal

Getting touched by Females in Public.

123 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Another reason to lift, as if the increased T/productivity/mental health wasn't enough by itself:

Built-in soft dread wherever you go.

Kinda levels the playing field, because if your girl is hot then she has the same thing.

This blows my mind: Teenage girl fired over Twitter amasses support from around the world

122 upvotes · 11 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks like owner lost frame, even though he's morally/logically in the right - that's why he's getting bullshit. Also, feminism - the power of the bullshit of modern feminism.

"Think of how stupid the average person is, and realize half of them are stupider than that."

122 upvotes · 14 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hanlon's Razor comes to mind here.

"Never attribute to malice that which is adequately explained by stupidity."

"Women are just more receptive, more intuitive, and more plugged in, whereas men tend to be logical and sequential," she says. "In my work, I find that women are much more inclined to speculate about hypothetical situations."

Oh fuckoff you stupid bitch. Nice way of spinning "women believe in unsubstantiated bullshit more than men do" as "women speculate more about hypothetical situations." They are not speculating at all, they don't have a theory, they simply have "beliefs" "because." That's that. Or "beliefs because I felt something." A theory is far more than a belief, it has a chain of reasoning to fucking begin with. But yes, blue pill feminist types will spin this all as "women are more spiritually intelligent" or some other such nonsense.

Oh yes, and lift of course.

That's not optional.

Red Pill logic hits the front page, gets tons of upvotes.

121 upvotes · 4 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The thing is the SJWs see this meme and they think "you go girl, you can do better than him now!" they don't actually see the logic that you have presented here. It's good to us for a different reason than it is good to the SJW crowd.

Bonus: One of the top-rated comments is from a female who also had a man who encouraged her to lose weight, and she innocently asks OP if he was "as controlling" as her boyfriend was.

Bitches and their baggage man, I'm telling you. So much butthurt and projection. Kind of like the beta faggots that roam around this sub trying to find things to pick at and bicker over rather than use the sub for its intended purpose. To learn how to stop being a beta faggot and get your ship in shape.

Beta on TRP = guy who wants to turn his ship around

Beta faggot on TRP = sits here intellectually masturbating reading all the shit as some abstract concept but does NOTHING to change his life instead getting into petty arguments with other users, a clear conscious choice to spend time arguing online rather than doing something productive.

We need to start banning the latter and shaming them. If you see some cunt needlessly going off topic and attacking another poster, report his ass. Holier than thou pretension hasn't got a place here.

Girlfriend broke-down from consistent demolition of shit tests. Intermittently slip in some beta-ness.

119 upvotes · 18 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

it's a show of humanity.

But you can only show that humanity when they're sure you're superior to them... or your humanity is seen as weakness. Err on the side of asshole, then calibrate.

Most guys are naturally decent guys. The women force 'em to become assholes/immoral to get laid. Bet your ass if women got wet for nice guys that all of a sudden being a nice guy would be a thing.

Attraction THEN comfort. Not the other way around.

Women in Singapore are in favor of mandatory military service... but when asked if it should be independent of gender, hypocrisy ensues (X Post from r/videos)

119 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"It should be optional (for women) not compulsory like for the guys - gender equality"

And that my friends is feminism summed up, the opportunity/privilege to do anything men can do (in a quest for power) with none of the responsibility or expectation that is required from men. Feminists want male power without the responsibility or accountability attached to it, they're delusional power hungry hypergamists who have forgotten their place as men have become more tolerant and kinder/weaker to delusion, irrationality and hierarchical insubordination. Things which are all inherently harmful to a society (look at your local developed society's moral fabric decay all around you if you need proof)

Feminists want "equality" so they can fulfill hypergamy, elevate their position in society, but when asked to sacrifice for a nation or take on any responsibilities or positions which will bring her accountability into question.. she can't be fucking doing with that.

Hilarious. Men will never be obsolete because of this retarded psychology, these bitches have no integrity or logic I hope a feminist never runs a country for if she does she will condemn the entire nation to fucking ruin.

To my yank friends: Keep a close eye on Palin and H.Clinton.

Male only barber shop makes millions, causes crazy feminists to attack store with fake bloodied tampons

118 upvotes · 27 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This guy and his stores are awesome.

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/men/fashion-and-style/11254834/All-women-should-be-banned-from-barber-shops.html>[1]

I fully support having more and more male spaces like this.

I go to an arab/muslim barbershop because it is male only. He doesn't employ any women and if women come in to get a haircut he says "we don't do female hairstyles." The place is awesome, dude is red pill as fuck and we just talk shit about life/women/whatever while we're in there. Not a worry in the world that some chick will overhear get upset and cause drama because there's never any women in there. It's a really chilled, fun place.

He cuts hair well and that is what it is. He has really strong views too eg: "Women shouldn't cut men's hair, they will lie to your face and tell you they think you look nice even when you look like a joke. I don't let anybody leave the building if I think they look stupid. I never let a woman cut my hair because of that."

I always thought Barbers were supposed to be male only anyway. Hairdressers for women, barbers for men. Notice how none of us would give a fuck if we couldn't go in a woman's hairdressers - we actually want peace/to get away from women, it is THEY who hound us down and want to follow us into all our retreats. If any feminists tried that bullshit with him he'd just play the islamophobia card anyway and say "it's what his religion believes." Nowadays you have to play all these stupid political games and have a fucking victim card or two spare if you want to do things in a way that society/feminism disagrees with. Feminism is fucking pervasive, we have civil rights for all, now that shit needs to GTFO out of our lives instead of harassing us and telling us how to live. Feminism is one big circle-jerking cult where people try to shame you into living in a way that they deem fit. It also enables some of the brattiest, most counter-productive behaviour I have ever seen in women. Modern day male effeminacy and ubiquitous female hyper narcissism are both products of feminism IMO.

Edit:

Inside, customers are free to enjoy "male banter",

This is why I fucking love my barbers. We just rip the piss out of everything. Women can't handle that shit they just shriek "THAT ISN'T VERY NICE!!!" and kill the vibe. Bitches can be such buzz kills.

"Men feel more comfortable in men-only spaces," he says. "They enjoy it. There are very few places left where men are allowed to be men. Here, they feel like part of a club."

Hear, hear!! To the extent he's managed to make millions out of cutting hair. DAMN.

Use sex as a gauge of your relationships

116 upvotes · 10 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Good post.

tenants tenets.

One of our tenants is to ignore a woman's words and pay attention to her actions

Right, it's like a woman says you're an asshole and she hates you but is laughing, can't stop looking at you, puts her hand just beneath her neck and etc. "I want a nice guy" only fucks assholes. What women say isn't worth shit, I don't care how many people that assertion upsets, it's the nature of things and it is exactly what men everywhere experience when dealing with women.

Taken to the extreme, it's when a woman offers token last minute resistance and says "no" but only because she doesn't want to feel like a slut or "feel easy" as she says no, she's pulling you towards her, bites your lip/neck or any other kind of shit. Verbally: rejecting you, Physically: accepting you. According to feminists you ignore whatever she's doing to your body and listen to her words, anyone who's fucking lived know the opposite is the correct way.

You read the actions not the words, this is a maxim you can apply to any situation, sexual or not, and you will get an accurate reading of the woman in question rather than the bullshit they feed you. "I'm not mad at you" "I've been busy" "I can't wait to see you" but she texts back 10 hours later and doesn't pick up her phone? She's fucking another guy. Never listen to words, always the actions, always. Women creatures of subtext and impulse, not logic and reason.

Women who don't sleep around before their wedding have happier marriages - but men can play the field without worry, study finds.

115 upvotes · 24 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is the voice of reason. Bitter women will try to frame this as this article/study being a case of men wanting their cake and eating it too, but the reality is the opposite, that's just a projection of the feminine imperatives lust for AF/BB and how many women ride the dick train in youth only to attempt to graduate with a mother and wives degree at 35 to a man who makes bank. If women didn't get messed up from fucking half the town I'm sure it'd make life easier for everyone, however unfortunately they do.

Unlike women, man's love is not built upon sex and so having lots of sex doesn't vitiate a man's capacity to love, In my estimation it is failed LTRs and marriages that vitiate a man's ability to love, not meaningless fucks with random chicks. Men aren't depleted of their capacity to love via sex, but through being abandoned (dumped/divorced) after going all in and committing fully to a woman only for her to use up everything he has to offer mentally/financially and then dump him when she's had her fill. So to the ladies out there: avoid divorced men they are the equivalent of whores for LTR material. This is why even if you're in an LTR, as red pillers we never advise going all in with one girl and always have backup options. If you let her, a woman will destroy you and leave you with nothing and then view you with contempt for being weak. With women, it's the opposite, every dick that enters her takes a piece of her soul. When a woman's had a lot of dick she's always left thinking that's there's better dick available and that diminishes her ability to appreciate the man she's with now. The key difference between men and women is man's love is based on sacrifice whilst woman's is based on respect. A bitch finds it harder to respect a guy who isn't as masculine as men she's had before but markets himself as being financially stable. There's no respect in that, money can't buy desire, it buys co-operation, masculinity co-opts feminine desire. When a man's had a lot of pussy he knows fresh 18 year old pussy is out there but his love goes beyond eros and into agape (unconditional love), something women can't feel for men, only their children.

A woman will never love a provider the way she loved the exciting men of her youth and she will rationalise this as maturing but deep down she knows she know's she's settling and so she resents the man she's with for "taking advantage of her" in her state of diminished and ever depreciating SMV. In comparison a man will not love the woman he settles down with any less for having enjoyed a diverse buffet of pussy before her, in fact if he's fucked a lot of chicks but decided this chick is worth more then he sees something in her he didn't in the others because he's clearly not with her for the feminine USP (unique selling point) - sex PLUS he's opening up the floodgates of commitment, letting this woman have more say in his life than any other woman did. With women it's the opposite, they gave a sexier version of themselves to men who paid a lower price (less commitment), and now in their depreciation they're upping the asking price (more commitment) in desperation (they're aging and thus, less attractive.) That's the sound of the wall slamming into a bitches options at full velocity right there.

Of a course a man who has experienced a buffet of pussy becomes more risk adverse/redpilled and thus stringent with who he commits to. It is what it is. Is it fucked up? Yeah it is. It'd be great if women were like men and could love unconditionally and fuck loads of people and not become decrepit whores but then it would be great if Santa was real too.

TRP hits 20,000 subscribers and to celebrate SRS presents r/ShitTRPSays

115 upvotes · 4 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Why don't they celebrate by getting on a fucking treadmill?

Maybe once they collectively lose enough weight in all that conceit and bigotry they'll be able to pull that inflated head full of nonsense out of their once morbidly obese asses and see their pussy gets pounded by a man with a set of balls intact.

If you must insist your BMI is beneath 25 keep the date tag on the picture I'm not falling for that old trick of the "picture from 3 years ago" bullshit.

Big shout out to my cat tiddles, my gender studies lecturer bertha and her lesbian lover tabitha.

/r/MensRights bitches and moans about TRP - Thinks we support rape and hate gay people. Circlejerk ensues.

113 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hilarious we had a gay guy come in here the other night, make a great intro topic and get 300 fucking upvotes.

Of course though, we're all homophobes, who needs logic?

User in r/Askmen has a cousin who was raped resulting in his wife leaving him.

112 upvotes · 8 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah this is bang on the money. Beige phillip said a man has to spend a life building a boat so that a woman will get on it with him. But if that boat ever sinks or looks like its going to sink the woman will jump to another mans ship. The moral of the story is that whilst a man (captain) always goes down with his ship, a woman (the first mate) will always have another man's ship waiting for her. If you look like you're going to drown, all you can expect from a woman is abandonment. The conditional nature of a woman's love means she will not sacrifice for you and stand by you the way you would be expected and feel inclined to do so for her.

Life really is a bitch, a heartless one at that. Fellas, make your boat strong and have yourself a rowing boat to escape in. You have to look out for yourself as the bottom line because she won't.

A Simple Test Almost Everyone I Know Fails at (For those in a live-in arrangement)

110 upvotes · 26 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Honestly a woman like that should just be dumped. That's most of em.

I'm sitting in a Women's and Gender Studies Class RIGHT NOW

110 upvotes · 9 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This isn't even academia its pseudo-academia indoctrinating people with ideology that doesn't stand up to scrutiny. Ridiculous this shit is even taught in schools.

1000 migrants in Germany sexually assault, rob and rape women at one train station on New Year's eve. Feminists actively are trying to cover it up.

109 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Blacks already do it, red bone, yellow bone, all this shit. Basically among blacks, the darker you are, the less status, the lighter skin, the better. Especially if it's a chick. You seriously can't make this shit up. The people who go on about race the most actually have a more nuanced way to discriminate based upon one's amount of blackness. Hilarious. That's the future for EVERYONE if all of humanity is mixed into a muddled brown obscurity.

Said No Thanks to the Starfish last night

109 upvotes · 29 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Side note----I frequently am shit tested and am accused of being angry when I know I'm ice cold and in frame.

Your girl's a gaslighter, wonderful.

My wife hampers her inability to "get what she wants" with me as being an MAD and ARGUMENTATIVE person.

I couldn't be married to a bitch like that. Not submissive enough, too much of a cunt.

Arguing with a woman is Bluebeta behavior

Arguing with a woman is like discussing quantum mechanics with a dog. The dog just wants to be fed like the woman just wants her own way, she doesn't give a shit about the logical merits and demerits of an argument, just getting her own way. It's Machiavellianism and feels over logic in your arguments:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/02/08/machiavellian-thinking-vs-conventional-logic/>

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/09/how-women-argue/> (need to re-write this but you'll get the gist)

I see these accusations as a provocation. She wants me to lose temper so she has "something to work with".

You are correct, she wants you to get angry so you can be the bad guy and she can use your own emotions against you. Women love doing this - confusing cause and effect. You get angry because she's being shitty to you - but she says she's being shitty because you got angry. Then naturally it all becomes about how you got angry, so she can divert scrutiny from herself and focus all the energy/judgement on your behaviour; usually this concludes with her guilt-tripping you into making concessions. It also tells them "you care enough about them to get angry." Women are fucked up.

Said "your not turning me on. I don't want to have sex with you. Maybe some other time"

Womanese for: "You're turning me on, I want you to fuck me right now."

Don't ever whine, beg, plead, argue for sex. It will achieve nothing

The quickest way to become celibate.

Jezebel reader takes the red pill

106 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She can get an old alpha or a beta her own age. What she won't get is an alpha her age, he can get 18 year olds.

Hooked On Real Talk: Could Spending Too Much Time on TRP Limit Your Social Advancement?

106 upvotes · 27 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Some people aren't going to like what OP is saying but it's 100% bang on. You must be fluent in bullshit/power talk. Law 3. Funny you posted this now, actually, as I've been writing a draft on law 3 earlier today which discusses the same topic you touch upon here. Law 3 is probably one of the most important laws, especially when you deal and read in contraband knowledge such as TRP. It's the modern equivalent of reading about the occult in the medieval times. They burned books then and if they could burn this subreddit they would. Same shit. Every manosphere who has revealed his real identity is essentially, an idiot. Even if he is fearless, that fearlessness is nothing but the bravery of stupidity, or perhaps the product of narcissism demanding recognition.

The allure of people like Patrice O'Neal who epitomise truth is that on a level of duplicity, they're an open book. They're easily predictable and that weakens their ability to exercise their will. Patrice had limited success for the talent he had because he was chained to "real talk" and "the truth" and refused to divert from what he perceived to be the "objectively true narrative." He wouldn't bullshit people to win their favour, he wouldn't charm people by telling them what they wanted to hear. His charm was in his delivery, the medium (stand-up) and the reliance that you find the truth on some level, attractive. What you saw was what you got and if you didn't like that he didn't care. The thing is that cost him financially. I remember hearing him on O & A talk about how he had these big Hollywood cheques coming in, but because he pissed off certain people in Hollywood by calling them out on their shit, he was kicked out. You get with the program or you get out. He made a lot of dumb decisions because of pride invested in real talk.

Learn from Patrice's mistakes. Once you know the truth, use it as a luxury to be discussed between your friends who desire to co-operate rather than compete with you. With everyone else use it selectively to win trust, to disarm and as a weapon to overwhelm and crush those who threaten you. Constant dissemination of the truth outside an anonymous community such as this one is short-sighted and dim. It is incredibly stupid. You reveal everything you think and feel and believe and people can play you with that. You ostracise yourself. There's a reason we all have pseudonyms. We must count our blessings and thank the internet for its facilitation in allowing such an awakening of minds, an acquisition of "forbidden" knowledge, but at the same time do not let this knowledge go to your head and convince you that you need to go around converting everyone. You must hide in plain sight. The same people who on the internet, denounce you, attempt to find out who you really are so they can destroy your life, and hate what you represent when they know of you by your pseudonym, must be the same people who smile at you affectionately when you enter the office in the morning.

We're all living a double life. The game requires it. Don't you forget it.

Feminists unhappy with science. Create "Feminist Biology" to combat gender bias. No I'm not joking.

104 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I fucking weep for any country that actually takes this shit on board. What a waste of time and energy. Feminism needs to die already, looks like this sick, perverted ideology is not going to down without a fight. They're probably getting scared as more and more people, men and women alike, are beginning to boycott feminism.

fucking married women

103 upvotes · 24 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Some men get off on the power of knowing they're fucking someone else's princess. I know this, because such men have told me this. They're not thinking about honouring the other man's investment in his woman, or him at all, but getting a harder boner over the fact they're fucking "forbidden pussy" that wants his dick. Immoral men make pleas to pragmatism and call it amoral. We've been down this street in TRP plenty of times before.

Common arguments include: "If she's up for it and I am, that's fine, we're two consenting adults - I don't owe an obligation to a man I don't know." and "bros before hoes is for faggots, if you can get pussy, you take it."

After a whiskey or two most people's opinions change on most things anyway. I'd like to think I wouldn't do such a thing, and I wouldn't go out of my way to do it, but if I said I'm incapable of such thing I'd be lying. Fuck it, we're all flawed. If you're horny enough, you may just defy your own morals to get your sexual fix. What's the advice to give women in LTRs? "Feed him and fuck him if you don't want him to stray." As for the men who simply don't give a fuck, they don't possess morals in the conventional sense of the word to begin with. They don't have to defy shit, they just plunder without remorse and that's the animal that they are.

Immoral men make bad friends, but great allies.

Sunday TRP humor - girl requests open relationship while on vacation, boyfriend starts immediately fucking another girl, girlfriend melts down.

102 upvotes · 23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This 'something might happen' was utter bullshit.

Typical manipulative plausible deniability bullshit women use so they cannot be held accountable, opens up the options to gaslight and be pedantic to evade exposure.

My fiancée is telling me to fuck other women

102 upvotes · 27 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You can never let a woman dictate the terms of the relationship. Tell her she's to come visit you periodically so that you can go 50 shades of grey on her pussy. You don't honestly believe you can maintain intimacy and monogamy whilst both being involuntarily celibate for a year do you?

Also promising marriage within a years time when you will both be absent from each others lives the year prior is not a smart move. You need to re-strategize your position, because right now you're in the middle of a canyon and you have no idea what's on either side of you.

I'd personally identify this a shit test, she wants to see how committed you are. If she finds out you're fucking other chicks or you said you would, it'll help her feel better about when she cheats on you, or possibly, she already has and is seeking some bullshit reasons to help her come to terms with her guilt, trust me, it does not take much for a woman to hamster away her guilt for being adulterous.

I would not trust this shit with a bargepole, I can smell the bullshit emanating from this whole situation from way across the atlantic in my little english home as I'm sat here elegantly with a mug of tea.

Women are not liars

101 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Just an FYI, although the content in this book is valuable for LTR game, David Deida's shit is incredibly purple pill. He sugar coats shit and talks about women like they are these marvellous creatures. His admiration comes off as utter pedestalisation, and you will get the vibe that you should be defining yourself as a man in relation to women with all this "understand her and adapt to meet her needs" kinda bullshit. It's the kind of shitty sentiment that would make a man rage in marriage counselling. Talk about the women are wonderful effect.

This is not lying. For a man, or for anyone speaking in the masculine style, to say something that is not true is lying. But, for the feminine, truth is a thin concept compared to the thickness of her flow of feelings. The "truth" of the feminine is whatever she is really feeling, in this present moment.

Very romantic way of saying "women are fickle, constantly change their mind, should not have their word taken seriously, are Machiavellian and AWALT."

I'm not going to translate every passage here into a red pill no bullshit context, but you get my point. It's very romantic. His romanticism almost implies that women are these fucking majestic creatures and that you as a man must learn to master their oh so mysterious ways.

They aren't majestic, this sounds like it's written by a man high on oxytocin, and this subtextual pedestalisation is not good for a weak guy/nice guy who needs to get his balls back. So sure, indulge this pussy shit if you've found your place in life and want to try out an LTR, but don't indulge too much or you will become a pussy (that shit creeps up on a man, betafication, stay sharp.) Take the useful advice from it (it's good) but ignore HOW HE SAYS it, the principles are good but the metaphorical emotive sentiment is bullshit that makes it female friendly.

Let's put this another way. If you are a guy who needs to read "No More Mr Nice Guy" you are not a guy who should be reading this book. If you are a fucking asshole who can fuck girls but scares them off due to lack of comfort for an LTR, then you should be reading this shit.

Strong men have a sharp mind and a strong hand. If you read OP and thought "eh, I detect bullshit, but this sounds good" now you know why. This guy is a master of sugarcoating truth to a point that even truth sounds like bullshit.

David Deida is purple pill. Remember that.

Beware the dangers of the MMF threesome.

101 upvotes · 19 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

at OP's request, makes compliments towards Bella's figure at a friendly gettogether.

"Please show an indicator of interest towards my wife, my validation isn't enough because she doesn't respect me."

This raises Bella's spirits.

Someone other than her husband gives her tingles, so his validation has worth.

One month later, John and his LDR break up. Bella suggests to cheer him up via threesome.

He's single now and I wanted to fuck him anyway, let me spin this elaborate ruse where I make myself look like a saint for fucking my husbands best friend. No I don't want to fuck him, it's not for me, I'm a good samaritan, I'm like all women, y'know! Us women, we're incredibly caring creatures. If we see a man going through emotional trauma or sexual deprivation we're all too eager to offer our bodies to them! It's charity work, we're just so giving. We get no pleasure from this at all, we just can't bear to see men unhappy! /s Basically: "If my husband is beta and dumb enough, he'll let me cuck him. Let me see if this guy is dumb enough to believe the feel good bullshit I feed him. If he is, I can fuck his friend without having to go to the effort of hiding it or feeling guilty about it. I can avoid feeling guilt by being open."

OP tries to reject it, but she pleads that it will help her body issues and John's breakup.

Manipulating OP into giving his permission for her to be a slag. It's also a shit test. If he allows it, his marriage is over, because he's a cuck and she doesn't respect him.

While OP tends to a crying baby, Bella straddles John.

Tingles surpass motherly instinct, instead of putting her off from whoring it up because her baby's crying, she gets her effeminate faggot husband to go and play mummy.

John asks OP if this is alright - Bella answers "yes".

"What he wants doesn't matter, it's about what I want, the threesome is just a pretence so you'll fuck me. I don't respect him. He doesn't get a say. I'm just making him feel included to give my adultery some form of plausible deniability."

I see a woman here using the modern blue pill rhetoric to manipulate her man into letting her do whatever she wants. She has too much control over the relationship, so she's lost respect and drunk on her options. Like a typical mach, she leveraged her "insecurity" (if it even exists) to fuck OP's friend. This is the nature of women. These are the people you defend when you berate men for talking shit about women. You'll rationalise that with NAWALT, but as we know... AWALT.

Almost immediately after OP leaves the bedroom, the threesome turns into a twosome, at times without protection

That's what she wanted all along.

OP falls asleep in the baby's room.

He cares more about his kid than his whore wife. He is less selfish. He was probably heartbroken, and, coerced into this arrangement, being the faggot that he is that couldn't put his foot down, he couldn't bare to see his wife getting nailed by someone he considered a loyal friend. So he checked out. You don't fuck your best friends girl and I don't give a shit about the "bro-knighting" faggots on here. Fuck your libido, loyalty comes first. The value of your best friend's relationship to you should be higher than pussy, and you shouldn't need me to tell you that.

When OP wakes up, he returns to Bella and John asleep together in bed.

His stomach's churning, crimes of passion are committed out of this. OP is too much of a beta faggot to do anything though, so nobody is frightened. If that was my hypothetical wife, by the time I was done, she'd wish she was never born. I'd ruin her mentally. I mean that, truly. As for the friend? He's just following his cock, succumbing to seduction and has very little sense of moral discipline. He's too weak to roll with the big boys and be the right hand man, so I'd kick his ass out of catharsis and then tell him to fuckoff. The girl? She schemed the whole thing. The guy gets an ass kicking, the woman gets mentally ruined (think along the lines of gaslighting and bullying) until she cracks, then you tell her you love her and you're sorry - then you abandon her to be a fucking mess. That's justice. An eye for an eye may make the whole world blind, but if I take yours first, you can't even see mine.

She claims she thought OP would come back after the baby was settled.

Haha like she even gave a fuck, OP is a pussy faggot, he lets them fuck without him and then waits until his friend is gone to say anything. MMF is the worst idea in the first place anyway. MFF is fine if you know what you're doing, MMF is a breakup waiting to happen, because if she thinks the other guys better her hypergamy will compel her to branch swing. You're a man, you don't work like that, you can fuck numerous bitches without wanting to "ditch your main girl." Divorce is imminent for OP. Poor kid. Poor OP, too, I guess. But in a way I believe his failure to set boundaries and assert himself is why this happened. I'm not saying he deserves it, but he's responsible for allowing this. At least if she cheated behind his back he wouldn't have played a complicit and passive role. Part of me sympathises with OP, another part thinks OP is a ball-less faggot that needs to man up and stop being a complicit cuck.

[ArousalScience] Observations on Tinder through the eyes of an attractive female. 4 types of profile pictures that will end with you getting rejected.

100 upvotes · 17 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's as Patrice said...

"A lot of bitches are losers, they never know how to be more than their pussy, they have nothing going for them - except their pussy - so if they give you pussy, they feel like they gotta get something for it. A lot of women never learn to become more than their pussy, their pussy is all they've got."

R.I.P Patrice

Woman allegedly duped into sex now wants to pass new law prohibiting men from lying about their personal background.

100 upvotes · 2 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep. Women are inherently Machiavellian. I'm glad you get it, because so many guys point blank refuse to.

Obesity Culture

99 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

so why do women see these women as a threat?

Women operate on a crab bucket mentality. Women rather weaken the competition than strengthen themselves. Women's strategy is not to compete by becoming better, but to compete by sabotaging others so that they are relatively inferior. Men on the other hand compete by becoming better than the opponent, men seek to improve themselves rather than degrade their environment. Where women see a threat that needs neutralising, men see a standard to aspire to. Men admire examples of success, women admonish it if it makes them look bad. When women see something that makes them feel insufficient, they want to destroy it. When men see something that makes them feel insufficient, they wish to become it.

Men are told to suck it up all their lives, so they don't expect reality to conform to them, they know they must conform to reality should they want results. It is a question of delusion, insecurity and work ethic. Factor in issues of entitlement, and there you have it, the full picture.

FR: I've come to love hamsters, they are honestly the most amusing thing when it comes to women.

99 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Why give a bitch ya heart when when she rather have a purse, why give a bitch an inch when she rather have nine!" - Pequeno Wayne

"Zeeze hoooes ent loyal!" - Chris "Captain Obvious" Brown

Oh and.. "You all about her, and she all about hers. Birdman J.R. in this bitch no flamingos and I done did everything but trust these hoes"

It's sad when mainstream pop rap shit can pass itself off as mildly philosophical.

The hamster is hilarious shit it truly is. Every whore blames her current bf for her whoredom. To end with another song reference "you can't make a ho a housewife"

The sluttiest demographic? Girls who spend time with overwhelmingly male nerd crowds. Don't be discouraged.

99 upvotes · 4 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Tldr: don't trust chicks who prefer the company of men and spend the majority of their time with men, rarely it can mean she's an intellectual who only finds intellectual connection with man, usually it means she enjoys manipulating the fuck out of guys with her sexual power and doesn't like how easily other chicks see through her.

These girls are parasites that feed off their orbits like insatiable vampires.

Found a website of women admitting that TRP is true, and it's in their nature and they can't help it.

98 upvotes · 20 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are fucked up. Men fuck themselves up to get laid. We live in a fucked up world.

Philosophical conundrum for those reading this, which is the superior way for a society to conduct itself?:

- Women have choice to choose mates based on their primal instincts, the majority of men who are non-aggressive and introverted must change their entire natural personalities to become people they're not (so be aggressive and extroverted,) they must weight lift and be insensitive in order to be "organically attractive to women." This way, women will pick them based on instinctual preference.
- Women's father chooses her mate based on who the father believes to be a good match for her by logically assessing a man's qualities, eg: income, iq, wealth, whilst factoring in her personal preferences to a lesser degree (this is still common in India I believe.)

Which is best? I think both options here are fucked up, but which is more fucked up? Which is more progressive? The traditional/ancient way where fathers are the gatekeepers of their daughters, or women operating on feral instinct/sexuality without rhyme or reason, often choosing terrible men, psychopaths, criminals and the like because those men give them the biggest rush. Women are majorly attracted to evil. I said the other day to a man "a man you'd want to kill for being sick in the head is a man she'd want to fuck." Ever seen how many letters serial killers get? Women are fucked in the head.

"TRP is too nice to men, too mean to women. Waaaah!" ... the response

98 upvotes · 18 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

On purplepill, a female levied the claim that TRP is too nice to men and too mean to women -- that, in essence, we're out of balance and biased.

She's biased, she's a woman, she has a biological "automatic in-group gender bias", she lives in a feminine primary society dominated by radical feminism and she's moaning on the internet that a community of roughly 100,000 strong (much less who are active, by the way) are biased towards men? WHAT THE FUCK IS WRONG WITH THAT? ALL THINGS CONSIDERED, IT'S COUNTER-BALANCING, LADY.

Anyone who doesn't realise why the red pill is necessary has either never been fucked up by the worst of what is very ubiquitous feminine nature or is flat-out deluded and in denial about what they have experienced. Anyone who's got any experience with women knows they will betray you as soon as it becomes convenient, that they are great at showing you what you want to see, are fickle and generally speaking, full of shit. Men got trust issues with women because women, generally speaking, 99.9% of them are not trustworthy people. I'm not even going to mince words because tbh it's frankly insulting we're even giving this nonsense any attention.

Who cares what this silly bitch thinks. Arguing with these people is ridiculous. Arguing with a woman assumes she is your equal, that she operates on the same playing field of reason and morals as you do, and that it's not all just some grand manipulative game to dictate a narrative. Haha, what a joke, she doesn't even want a man who is her equal she wants someone who is superior in every way, including psychological toughness and power to be duplicitous otherwise "he's booorrrring he's not haaawwwttt." If you're reading this post, please, also read these:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/02/08/machiavellian-thinking-vs-conventional-logic/>

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/09/how-women-argue/>

Look, us guys who lived life aren't going to sit around debating with whiny neurotic pedants and autists so deep in logic they need constant attention to help them reconcile what they can't reconcile or don't want to reconcile: that women are fucked up in the head and men have to become fucked up to defend themselves/have successful relationships with women. Many men would like to be the man they want to be, instead, most become the man women want to fuck because man's flaw is sex is a biological need for him, and women fully capitalise on that as it's all they really have to distinguish themselves from men. A total mind-fucking asshole with disputable moral principles - that is what women drive men to, to satiate a biological need. All that for pussy. That's pretty fucked up.

Women are "morally flexible" and GREAT actresses. If you think women are softness and light, everything right, that it's all your fault your life is shit and it's not a combination of bad parenting + women being inherently fucked up, you are an idiot. We don't have to prove shit to anyone because we don't care what you think, don't want your validation, don't need it. Your obsession is yours, your obsession with TRP and a need to challenge it at every turn because the idea something out there undermines your personal bubble of delusional safety is unsettling enough to rustle your jimmies. Your problem is you discovered us but hate US, now you're stuck hating and asking an unending loop of pointless questions posing as intellectual enquiry to medicate your cognitive dissonance.

If you've not been hurt, betrayed, seen the worst of what women can do you will never truly swallow TRP you still live on idealisms. Women, you live on denial so you don't hate yourself when you go to sleep, you spy here to try and "work us men out who have figured some shit out about the game" but you will never really side with us, you have your own prerogative, it's against ours, women and men can't be friends, you're here to spy and refine your own game based on our teachings. Inexperienced men, women, you're all guests - we're not here to entertain your bitching, and personally I'd like to see both of you banned over and over again into digital oblivion until you finally realise your nonsensical whining bullshit isn't tolerated and never will be.

Now kindly get the fuck out.

If LTR's are TRP on Hard Mode, why are we not rising to the challenge?

97 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you're Machiavellian and understand women you will have no problem managing female bullshit. The real problem I think is most guys find the cherry just isn't sweet enough. That's to say, although YOU COULD manage her YOU'RE JUST NOT SUFFICIENTLY INCENTIVISED TO DO SO. Most women aren't worth the extra effort, simply enough. They take more than they give. For access to a vagina you have to:

- Have her put all her worries and stress on you
- Listen to her boring, empty, vapid social observations
- Deal with her whining/being menstrual/insecure
- Deal with her crazy whenever it rears its head

And you have to deal with all that like a champ, stoically, because if you lose frame too much the relationship is fucked and she doesn't even want you anymore even though she's, to be quite blunt: an insufferable cunt. You pay so much in spirit and mental energy being in a relationship with a woman. Pussy can be had cheaper. If women have shit personalities, why do you want relationships with them? Most women have absolutely no personality that makes them worth commitment. What women don't seem to understand, flying off auto-pilot on their looks in youth, is that a hot tight body only attracts men, it doesn't keep them around. She will lose her beauty. You actually need to be mildly interesting and/or good-natured to be relationship material. So what do we do? We fuck and chuck.

Don't get me wrong, I think a lot of men would like a family - but it has to be with the right woman. Not a dim, boring, narcissistic empty shell of a human-being. Personally I rather never reproduce than put my children through the pain of being raised by a stupid, horrible, whiny self-entitled woman. I don't even care if she's good to the kids, if she's a cunt to me the kids will see that and it will affect them detrimentally. That's not how I imagine raising a family, you either DO IT RIGHT or you don't bother doing it at all.

LTRs should be mother material - most women nowadays aren't mothers because they deserve to be, but simply because they stopped taking their birth control. Too many whores are fucking dragging kids up nowadays, not raising them right - and that's why we have all the problems we do in society. Millennials are a mess because of divorce and single mothers. I don't want to put my kids through that bullshit. If she puts herself above family, she's not a woman I ever see as anything other than a hole to be used for my momentary leisure.

Not only is the reward lower, but the effort necessary is higher. So you're playing on a higher difficulty for a lower prize.

- You have to be vigilant, you can't let your guard down or give into your kindness, because she will exploit it and see you as less for "showing weakness."
- You have less sexual options than if you were single, this one woman is controlling your sexual preferences, and then she'll play games where she doesn't put out to control you. Basically, bitches weaponise your libido against you and then force you to listen to their feelings if you can't sufficiently dread/headfuck them. But if you stray to get your release then it's not her fault, it's yours, you're the evil one.
- She knows you better so she's better at head fucking you. She'll press all your buttons, say shit plates wouldn't know. Say some shit about your mother, say some shit you told her about your childhood. Whatever. Basically any fucking thing you think is sacred she's going to use against you to "test you" and also because bitches are just plain crazy and hormonal and are going to lash out at some point. She's meant to be a partner but you can't even properly open up to her without her abusing that shit. And it's not a matter of IF, it's a matter of WHEN.
- Likewise as she knows you better she's more immune to your techniques/strategies/mannerisms. She will become immune to different gambits/coping mechanisms you use like a fucking disease growing resistant to antibiotics. So you need to change your shit up or it'll all fall apart.

- You have to keep reinventing yourself and being inconsistent, or she gets bored and looks elsewhere for cock on the side. Society/her family will support her in this and she'll just rationalise you're a cunt.
- You don't really get a break. You don't get to let your guard down. Because if you do she freaks out and fucks off. Momentary vulnerability can only be superficial/aesthetic in nature. If you're LEGITIMATELY VULNERABLE she will dry up and abandon you.

So the work you put in IS IMMEASURABLE and the reward is negligible. It's a terrible investment.

When women make relationship demands, they're just being selfish. Women have nothing but benefit to gain from a relationship with a man. Associating with a man improves their life. Men lose so much spiritually from being in a relationship with the modern day woman that these women just aren't worth it. When women started saying they don't have to give a man they're committed to sex whenever he wants, but the man still has to put up with all their shit - they instantly became unworthy. Some guys could soldier on through women with shitty personalities if the sex was always there, they could overlook it - but with a lot of these bitches now not even that's a given. There's so much hard work, energy and bullshit involved in being in a relationship - and the reward just isn't there. What's it all for? Pussy? You can get that single. Love? Most these chicks aren't loveable. They aren't what we want psychologically. Thanks feminism.

Men are beings of rational self-interest. They respond well to incentives. If women were worth it, men would commit to them. They're not, so we don't. Women are pretty fucking shitty for anything other than momentary fun. Relationship-worthy women are probably .1% of the entire population because society is sick and women put career/individuality above family. I don't find career women attractive. I find family-orientated women attractive. When women stopped making an effort to be loveable to men, the only thing keeping men in love with women was their delusions. Once those delusions are stripped away, there is fuck all left. Most women aren't people you actually want as friends or people you have significant mental input with. They're just holes for fucking, or you ignore 'em. Sad it's come to that, but it is what it is.

In light of this I don't LTR up girls with any depth. What I mean is, I don't expect it to last, and I seem invested, but really I'm not. I pretend to care, but I don't give a fuck. They're all research and practice to me. I'm not actually "in love" she hasn't "got me" she has me spending time on her (which is what she wants - commitment) but I don't form the emotional attachment because they lack the qualities necessary for me to want to even attempt caring about them. When you LTR an unworthy woman, you either treat her like a practice bitch or you get taken for a ride and come out of it significantly worse.

To conclude:

Women fail a cost-benefit analysis. Dating is the habitable zone, relationships nowadays are like emigrating to Mercury, too near to the sun you're gonna get burned, living conditions are shittier than they are on Earth. You wouldn't invest in a depreciating stock, well women are the same - they are constantly depreciating in value only to increase their demands/preferences/entitlement as they age. Women do not rationally appraise their dating value. They defy the market by increasing rather than decreasing their demands as their beauty dissipates. Retardedly and quite ironically, as they get less physically attractive, they likewise become less mentally attractive.

Wanna know what a woman's maturity brings? It doesn't bring about intelligence, enlightenment or more reasonable expectations. It brings about more baggage, more unrealistic expectations and a more emphatic anti-male sentiment. THEY MAKE THEMSELVES EVEN LESS ATTRACTIVE PSYCHOLOGICALLY AS THEY AGE, WHICH IS IRONIC, BECAUSE THEY'RE ALSO LESS PHYSICALLY ATTRACTIVE. Women age like shit, both in body and in soul. If you can't buy in when she's at her peak, why are you going to buy in when she isn't? When women are physically worth it but not mentally, they're not interested. Good luck even finding a woman who's hot, young and doesn't have the personality of a cunt.

Essentially the older a woman gets, the less desirable she gets whilst becoming more difficult and entitled. The wall is real. Some old bitches smartened up and realised being submissive/sweet/docile was the only way they'd ever get a guy to stick around. So they take dick up their wrinkly ass, cook well and work hard on behaving like less of an insufferable cunt. You know, they do yoga, try to read shit, have a personality, avoid toxic crap like sex in the city and idle gossip. Less of a simpleton, less of a bitch. Most women who are past it however choose cats and the feminist ideal of hyper-individualised dignity rather than put in the work to change themselves so an older man sees her as being even remotely worth a fuck. To the very end women are defiant. They rather shame men into compliance rather than become what men want. Why would you want to invest any significant mental capital into that?

Edit: typos.

Self-professed ugly girl on TwoX complains about her experience at the club--she was basically treated like a man.

97 upvotes · 25 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck being kinder, how about you make more of an effort with your appearance and get some work done? Being kinder is not how the world works love, becoming better and stronger is how you get what you want, not expecting everyone else to lower their standards. Women subs are a good circlejerk, it's just unending sympathy, validation and support no matter what she thinks, says or does.

"The Dad Bod" - Don't you fucking dare buy into it

96 upvotes · 2 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The crab bucket mentality manifests itself. Once you understand what it is, women begin to make a lot of sense in a lot of ways.

/r/TheRedPill/comments/3430fm/obesity_culture/cqqw7ko

How Men Love / Male Commitment

96 upvotes · 22 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You learnt the hard way my friend: women are allergic to male weakness, it is a fallacy of thought to think you can bond over your vulnerability with a female partner because to do so is short-lived. As you have indicated, it will come back to haunt you. Wishing you all the best, I hope your wounds heal with time and understanding. Just don't make the same mistake again. "Fool me once, shame on you, fool me twice, shame on me." - A saying from where I come from, it means "taking advantage of my naiveté was in poor form, but my inability to learn from my mistakes is far worse."

What Women Really Mean When Calling a Man an 'Asshole'

96 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If I've learnt anything from studying Machiavellianism it's to play to people's desires. Tell them what they want to hear, but be good at seeming like "you're not just telling them what they want to hear." If you're going to feed into people's fantasies, you have to seem like you profusely share your role in their fantasy. Otherwise they feel insulted. Women operate much like this. They never want full disclosure. They think they want the truth, but they can't handle the truth. They want you to feed into their fantasies, to tell them what they want to hear. They lie to themselves all the time and they want you to lie to them too. They tell themselves they want the truth, but that's also a lie, women want to live in a believable dream - that's the only thing that makes them happy. Reality doesn't. Don't expect too much affirmation from women on this, self-awareness and introspection aren't really their strong points. Even if they can accept a lot of bullshit in the world, they still want to feel special to you, and even if that's bullshit, they want to believe that bullshit. That's how the most bitter woman or even realistic RPW is no different from any other woman. They have a NEED to feel special to you. You cannot be completely honest with them. You can't show them your world as a man, they don't care, it gets in the way of their happiness. "More bullshit please, but don't let me know you're bullshitting me because that offends my dignity and sensibilities!"

They want you to make them work for your affection, because if you make it too easy, you're not attractive to them. So you have to hurt them. Then you have to justify after hurting them why you hurt them "I hurt you because I care so much about you, if I didn't care I would have ignored you, but the fact I care so much IS EXACTLY why I had to make you feel as I did - what it's like to momentarily lose control over yourself to another because of how you feel for them."

AND THAT CAN BE TOTAL BULLSHIT. It's twisted, but women want that. Will they admit it? No, most won't. Like TRP itself, women won't admit a lot of the things we know to be true here. But go and field-test it yourself and see what results you get. She will think you're "a broken soul" she will want to fix you, she will feel closer to you, she will think you're a deep person. If you'd said those things without hurting her first however, she'd just think you're a pussy. Women fall in love with men who head fuck them, despite what conventional mainstream psychology might tell you. Her words are worth very little, often nothing, her behaviours are much more telling.

They have to submit, but they don't want to submit to a loser. That momentary exclusive vulnerability is the cat nip women crave. Strong enough to defend her from the world, but she's "so special" that you "quiver sometimes" around her. You're strong, but her "specialness" overcomes that on occasion. She feels protected, but also invested in. That sentiment of "I normally don't give a shit about women but you're SO SPECIAL I just lost myself for a minute there" - that's what they want. But you have to make it sound convincing like I did further up. What I just said there is the crude principle, and delivered so poorly they will see through it. Women relate to this because it's similar to how they are. They think "he's not like other men, he's similar to me, he has emotional depth." That's effectively how you say "beta things" to women, it's what I think Mark Manson kind of knew, but said in a very clean manner. So clean in fact, it sounded like bullshit and robbed much of the meaning of the idea being explored.

You hurt her first, you make her cry, you give her that low. Then, without grovelling, you tell her why you did what you did. As you come from a place of power, because she's hurt and you're not (but you're pretending you are just enough to lash out at her,) by saying she influenced you to hurt her, but giving her that blame in a positive way (she's just so special, she overwhelmed you for a second there etc) it defies typical social convention and "bonds the two of you closer together." They call it hysterical bonding.

This is "Machiavellian seduction game." Yes, it is pretty fucked up. What isn't? Tingles need a rollercoaster to be maintained. It can't all be rose petals, bunnies and cuddles as much as most men would like just because it'd be easier, and it's more akin to how most men naturally love before they get jaded. Conditionless affection. You have to attach conditions to it for women to appreciate it, make them work for it. That makes tingles and tingles leads to appreciation.

Women have beta orbiters to adore them, and because these orbiters do so unreservedly, it means nothing to them. Women value danger and submission to an alpha above adoration. The reason Machiavellians do so well is because they know how to her appease her primitive need to follow as well as desire to feel like you won't leave her. If she's a snowflake to you, she knows she has your commitment. Women are insecure. All of them. They fear abandonment. That's why they are obsessed with your continued investment in them and continuously look for signs that it's still there. The naive man leaves no room for dread, so she gets bored. Women need a bit of dread to appreciate you, so give it to them. If you're going to do the whole strong paternal routine with 'em, they have to feel like you're invested in them. Female psychology is a fucking basket case. Women are crazy, understanding the crazy doesn't change that. You can choose to exploit it, or you can nope the fuck out when you get this deep down the rabbit hole. Your call. We can't change who they are.

TRP just kept me from losing out on $2100...

95 upvotes · 2 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The newer the guy the more fucks he gives about women.

[Mod] On the future viability of the sub...

95 upvotes · 5 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The hypothetical demise of the sub would lead to a power vacuum where various people scramble to open up their own forums hoping to cash in on the fall of TRP, effectively setting up shop over it's corpse. As such, I recommend some kind of mailing list being made available on puerarchy, that way in a worst case scenario people can be e-mailed/kept in the loop. I looked for a mailing list on puerarchy myself and couldn't find one. Knowing you can e-mail everybody when you have alternative arrangements made would assuage a lot of fears. I have close to 2,000 followers across twitter and my blog so I could get the word out to a fair number of people in whatever hypothetical apocalyptic scenario occurs, however that's a drop in the water considering we're at just beneath 96,000 members as I write this.

Anyway, good to hear from you RPS. The people are quick to scare and want assurances "TRP isn't going anywhere" if the worst were to happen. Evidence of a backup plan or a plan of action (like when there's a fire in a building: everyone head to the evacuation point outside the church on the corner!) It's also important to add this subreddit makes reddit a fair bit of cash, my comments alone have probably made reddit a couple of hundred dollars. Considering the other ECs gilded posts and the odd gild for a random member here and there and we've probably made reddit thousands of dollars in reddit gold subscriptions. There is a financial disincentive to close such an active sub where people are gilded. As long as we stop the obvious shills and trolls trying to paint a target on our back and don't harass/directly engage with other subs (TwoX being the major one that comes to mind) then everything should be fine.

Edit: typo

My gf finally pushed me into TRP

95 upvotes · 24 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She's got you pegged as a beta. She's right about chicks finding other guys attractive but that was a shit test best handled by ignoring her and immediately flirting with another girl in the local vicinity to make a point (shit test passed - soft dread.)

I'd start looking at other girls and becoming more aloof/flirting with other girls and continue to fuck her until it dries up, but that's me. She'll start throwing more sex at you when she sees other girls are into you and other girls will be into you knowing you're taken, we should call this "the pussy cycle" or some shit because it's hilariously effective how complementary dread and pre-selection are in tandem. Once a chick has you pegged as a beta its an uphill battle not worth fighting, with the next chick you can establish an alpha frame from the beginning. See this bitch as a practice bitch, learn from your mistakes, cut and run.

My ex freaks out about me fucking someone a week after our break up, turns out she fucked one of my friends only 3 days after.

95 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

TL;DR: GIRLS ARE FUCKED IN THE HEAD

Amen.

I had a similar experience. Me and my ex split-up and remained platonic friends. I was cool with it for awhile, then I wasn't cool with it and I said look, we gotta have something sexual here or I'm gonna go explore my options, this doesn't work for me blah blah blah.

She wouldn't give in, she really wanted my orbit badly but she wouldn't give me what I wanted. I liked her as a friend too, but I was too attracted to her to not feel sexual tension it was unfortunately unavoidable.

Anyway, as she wasn't interested one night she wanted to meet up (she'd moved away and was back in the area) and I turned her down to go out with some of the guys, I wanted to get laid and I knew I wouldn't get laid seeing her that night. I got laid that night with some chick at a bar.

I saw her (my ex) the next day, she was leaving the area so I wanted to say bye, she was really invasive and probing, but I didn't give much away. A week later I told her it wasn't gonna work out as platonic friends, because I was attracted to her sexually, but she was rejecting me... even though we'd probably fucked over a hundred times before. She's all like "well why should I have sex with you?" and I reply very matter of factly "well because if you won't someone else will" and she's like "yeah, like who?" and I was like "like the girl I fucked last weekend"

She went hysterical, crazy. Cried. Called me all kinds of names. I was like whoa, we're not even together, you rejected me, I'll fuck who I want. Yeah, it was that zone. She didn't want me but nobody else (in her eyes) was allowed to have me. Then we hookup again like twice, she agrees to sexualising things again (only since knowing I got it somewhere else when she wasn't willing to put out)

Then a few weeks later out of the blue she tells me she fucked this guy at the work leaving party and blamed me for it, saying I stressed her out and blah blah blah.

She was trying to make me responsible for her choice to go fuck some random guy, shift her sense of shame on to me, essentially, and I wasn't going to take responsibility for that shit. I got laid because I needed my needs fulfilled. She did it just to spite me and would you believe the way she delivered her speech, a woman scorned, it was so callous and uttered in a way designed to deliver maximum impact. She even topped it off with a "so we're equal now" and I was like HELL NO.

TLDR: Ex girlfriends will be interested in you if you start fucking other girls, but they're likely to fuck other guys in an attempt to make you "jealous", what they don't realise is whilst they see you as attractive for getting laid with another girl, you see them as cheap for getting laid with another guy.

[Mod Warning: Temp Ban Policy] Posting Shit That Belongs in /r/askTRP in the main /r/TheRedPill Subreddit

94 upvotes · 6 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In before "I got an abundant supply of throwaways in reserve and want more people to see my question than are active in AskTRP so I'll continue to ignore you and do what I want anyway because I give more shits about my trivial problems than the health of this community." Yes. That cunt. I think that's what's the source of this.

It's like that cunt who doesn't stop making threads about being an indian/asian in America trying to get blonde white girls. How many accounts has that dude gone through now? And he's persisted for like what, a year? It's fucking pathetic. Nobody even wants to have this discussion with the guy and yet he doesn't stop bringing it up OVER and OVER. Talk about fucking obsession!

Mainstream Article: 12 Signs He's Cheating... Practically a Dread Game Blueprint.

94 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We call it betafication; when your girl tries to bitch you up because she's insecure she'll lose you at your current value. Then when she sabotages you, she doesn't want you for herself anymore either. It's a glitch in hypergamy.

As if you didn't need any more proof that you should be going to the gym

94 upvotes · 29 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are full of shit.

Guys only like me for my pussy!

94 upvotes · 26 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Her: "I'm not an object."

You: "You sound disappointed, let's change that."

35 is the new 30 (NYT OP ed on hitting the wall)

94 upvotes · 14 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She does not value men, she's just scared to be alone. She shows little compassion or empathy for her past boyfriends, she somewhat sociopathically has them all organised on tapes in a container, as if they were all just social experiments she conducted.

She further comments her friends have all moved in with their boyfriends now and settled down. If she could share that huge apartment with all her friends, bet your ass she would. Subliminal psychology, check the size of the apartment versus her small stature and fear of loneliness, a single solitary person in a huge house is a projection that she doesn't want to be alone, she has all this extra space in hopes it will be filled, but physically and mentally that space right now is a fucking void.

Her ultimate problems are the fear of loneliness and the inability to appreciate/trust men.

She realises the older and uglier she gets, the harder it will be for her to manipulate men into giving up their time to her. She feels her power dwindling and she's scared.

She will suffer greatly for this. Her ways self-inflict great pain. The only man who can sort her out and make her finally appreciate someone is a manipulative motherfucker. No normal man has a chance with her, she's that fucked up.

Putting it on film and publishing it in a newspaper is just a big personal cry for help, she pretends it's some documentary but really it's her just bitching about her problems on the mainstream platform hoping someone somewhere will come and save her from herself.

Sometimes I hate my understanding of human psychology, it's burdensome.

Article about 60 year old Mel Gibson dating a 25 year old woman. Comments are full of shaming language & Red Pill GOLD!

93 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Men appreciate, women depreciate, and women cannot stand that.

Except when those men were young and overlooked with no money, no body and no friends, those very same women didn't give a fuck because they were poppin bottles at the club and jumping from Chad to Chad.

Karma's a bitch, and even if you don't believe in karma (and that's fine) the schadenfreude is sweet enough. Life's not fair. Many men have to put up with being overlooked when they're young by pretty women and they don't complain they just accept it and improve, but older women are the SMV equivalent of young men, they're overlooked and by god do they not fucking whine and let the whole world know about it.

The only reason they shame these men is because these are the men they want for themselves, but are too low SMV to get. Low SMV older women talking shit about 50 year old guys with 25 year old women are the equivalent of a skinnyfat 18 year old beta trying to convince the girl he was friend zoned by not to go off with a jacked 35 year old guy with a motorbike.

They use shaming tactics because the people they want don't want them and they can't accept it, so they lash out by attacking the people they want, or attacking the person the person they're attracted to wants. NOTE: in either scenario, it's always the man's fault, never the woman's. If a young girl likes a guy 20 years her senior, the older guy is an asshole to jealous young betas and screeching SSRI consuming harpies alike. It's never the girl's fault. But again, life's not fair, that's just the way it is.

Women are in a rush to settle and get commitment and do everything in their youth because that's their window for power, but as men, the window for power is your entire life. Where women start at the top of the mountain and slowly erode, man's life is just one big incline, assuming of course, he knows what the fuck he is doing, stays on top of his shit, and improves month in month out until he becomes a master of the god damn fucking universe.

"It Didn't Mean Anything!"

92 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman who reaches 33 and is still single is single for a reason, and 99/100 times that reason is cock carousel.

Pure. Fucking. Gold. Great post dude. Gotta tweet that shit.

[FR] First night clubbing after 8-10 months of TRP and semi-Monk mode

92 upvotes · 25 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Cool FR. You're advocating monk mode/natural game, which anyone who hangs around here much knows I'm a big advocate of. Don't try to "engineer solutions for situations" (which is the PUA approach where low T men try to find "social hacks to get girls to like them") but fix yourself and make yourself better, than you naturally become capable of "performing well in social situations." That's the TRP ethos, and the major difference between TRP and PUA. Nerds try to work out solutions for things, assuming situations/other people are the problem, when the problem is them. They think "if they better understand what they suck at, they can get better at it" but really they need to change themselves so "being confident/getting girls" is a natural, emotional competence rather than a fucking abstract theoretical science. They are divorced from their masculinity and so approach it from the outside. They need to make changes in themselves/fix themselves to become the men they want to be, which is what you did.

Basically, higher testosterone/lower body fat = more confidence/less anxiety. Things that are a big deal to most people just "become natural" for you. Take lifting out of the equation and none of this works. Lifting/the higher T is what makes men out of boys. Most men don't lift so they feel debilitating fear of rejection, high T guy is so buzzed the concept of someone saying "no" doesn't really faze him. When you're high T your fear response is toned down a lot and "you just go for it" a lot more with things. Not just girls, but any opportunity. Jobs, invites, whatever. Boldness is sexy to women, it's a law of power, it's masculine, and it becomes natural/more common in men with high testosterone. All this shit is connected. I hate the matrix metaphor I think it's gay as fuck, but lifting, testosterone, confidence, girls, acting in a way women find sexy, posture, it's all inextricably linked. Kind of like "the computer code in the matrix" or whatever.

Women like you better and you like yourself better when you're a high testosterone version of yourself. It's impossible to truly be masculine/manly whilst being low T. The physical/mental components are so intertwined. A guy who doesn't lift can read all the red pill material in the world but he won't "feel" and "act" in the right ways because he's lazy, lethargic and scared in spite of his "knowledge of how things work." Knowledge isn't enough. You need the energy to go out there, conquer shit and make your mark. If you can't apply your knowledge, you ain't worth shit. You're worse than a blue piller because ignorance isn't a defence for you. You knew what needed to be done but failed to give yourself the kick in the ass you need to become the man you want to be. If you really want to be a man and be successful, you fight for it. Nobody can hand you your manhood on a plate, you have to fight for it. Each and every day. With every dollar earned and every rep completed.

Get To The Top 20%. Lurkers and New RP Men, Your Beta Qualities Are Officially Worthless To

Today's Women

92 upvotes · 16 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I thought I gave a shit about women, you know, as people and all that shit. I originally found TRP in an attempt to understand them better, I thought I was the problem. Turns out I was, and I accepted that, and like any self-aware unplugged guy I fucking fight for my masculinity everyday by staying aware and bettering myself. But then I found that it wasn't just me that was fucked up, it was almost everyone, women are really fucked up. The state of modern women is terrible. All their worst traits have begun to fully manifest under feminism and they are going feral. Without men to domesticate/guide/lead them women become abominations. They are repulsive on the psychological and spiritual level. Physically you want to fuck them, but mentally you can't fucking stand them. They inspire nothing but annoyance.

I can only account for myself and change myself, I can't undo hypergamy or culturally engrained narcissism/feminism. So when I discovered the truth about women and started applying RP to my interactions with them and piecing everything together, I stopped giving a fuck. I stopped trying to see them as equals that I misunderstood or some other bullshit, because I realise they are not equals. They are beneath us, they are more limited, and even at their best, they are destined to follow, not lead. Despite the "second sex" position, it is possible to respect a woman if she is raised right, smart enough and etc. Unfortunately these quality women are rare. Women suck at raising women just like they do at raising men, hence all the dysfunctionality we have now from all these single mother families.

I can't respect womankind as a whole knowing what I do about them. Even when you do respect a woman because she is remarkable in some way, you will know what her true underlying nature is, you know what she's capable of, you can never fully trust a woman that isn't your mother. Most responsible teenager in the house sounds about right to me. Now the only thing I want to do is fuck and chuck because other than sex appeal, men are superior in about every way compared to women. They are better friends, more loyal, more interesting to talk to, funnier, less annoying/demanding/emotionally taxing, need I fucking go on? One day I'll go to a male friendly country where a woman can't just destroy the family at the drop of a hat and start my family there. What we have here? I'm not interested in this bullshit. Plates until I go Patriarch then I'm dropping out of the west and getting me a non-western bitch. Committing to these hyper-hypergamous vapid harpies is futile.

The position of FUCK YOU!

91 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Mind, body and soul gentleman. All too often we forget about exercising our minds, and let it be known there is a rare few that make it to fuck you without being smart.

This is why I wrote monk mode but alas all the PUA fags are hating because it's not pussy-centric. Money over bitches, bread over bed.

I want to reject the red pill.

91 upvotes · 21 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In the words of patrice: "you never ever get to just love a bitch"

Visiting Prostitutes/Escorts, and what I've learned about sex and pair bonding. TLDR; Once a hoe, always a hoe.

89 upvotes · 6 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You've got to share this story dude. Don't leave us hangin' like that.

Red Pill Example Never let people walk over you

89 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Women want the truth but they never want full disclosure." - Rollo Tomassi

How TRP helped me avoid a race traitor Asian girl.

89 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly this. Never tell a bitch how she fucked up. She won't "change" for the next guy, she'll just get better at lying. That's what bitches do, they master their Machiavellianism and get better at lying, they don't fucking change. I don't think they can.

Tale as old as time: Asian girl hops off the cock carousel and latches onto a passive Asian guy. Accidentally reveals that she only thinks of him as a provider. Shitstorm ensues.

89 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Had this discussion before. Apparently, it's not the fact they fuck white dudes, its the fact they usually exclusively fuck white dudes and then only settles for asians around the wall. Supposedly if they fucked asian dick as well as well as white dick before the wall, then it wouldn't matter they fucked white dick. I'd half believe that, and the other half of me would say "asian guys butthurt their women aint fucking em, taking it out on non-asians, particularly white guys" and I can understand that. But whites get that shit too. Except as a white you cant call a bitch a race traitor it makes you racist. I've known bitches who only fucked black dick and then come wall time they go for a white beta bux. Same shit. But white dudes ain't calling these bitches race traitors, and they are. If any race of women is betraying its genetic pool/culture, it's the white women.

But yes quite right, all the minorities perceive white women as an open season but tend to get butthurt when ANY other race starts sexing their women. Double standard. Men are territorial over pussy and tend to feel disgusted when they see a woman of their own race being romantic with a man of another race. That's why interracial couples always got given shit by people, its a deep-seated racism based in biology I believe.

If there was a victim olympics for "which race shares its countries around the world the most with other races, and thus its women" the whites would win by a metric fuck mile. Still, there are plenty of countries in the world where nearly everyone is black, brown, or yellow. Can't say the same for whites can ya? That would be racist, white countries have to let everybody into their borders. Not even the jews do that. Oh please. Hahahaha. What a fucked up world we live in. Basically, here's my point: whites do the worst job of preserving their genetics/cultural heritage by placating every other culture. Immigrant dudes are usually obsessed with banging white women because like immigrant women, they view whites as top of the racial hierarchy and they see white women as sluttier and thus easier.

The liberal white countries (basically all of them except Russia and a few eastern european nations) are trapped in this liberal politically correct white guilt bullshit, mass immigration and declining indigenous birth rates. Due to those shitty birth rates, mass hispanic immigration and miscegenation I think it's after 2040 or 2050 America will be less than 50% white anyway, google that shit up. The same trend is happening in Europe too. There is no "white only" country left in the world with a large population. Like Iceland for example is about 99% white but they only have 300,000 people there, so it's tiny. Whites are, in a way, slowly but surely dying out by diluting their cultures in the name of "diversity."

One lucky redditor is blessed to have his gf have sex with James Deen on camera

89 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

HAHAHAHAH women and their manipulations. Soooooooooooooo cute. /s

Went out on a tinder date tonight. Bailed halfway through the first drink.

88 upvotes · 14 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

OP did nothing wrong, and speaking exactly what you feel is sometimes healthy. Fuck her.

According to a lot of the sentiment shown here in this thread, Patrice O'Neal constantly lost frame and was "overly emotional" because he was never holding back anything. Patrice wasn't constantly robotically stoic, but he wasn't a bitch either.

The great thing about Patrice was, even though he was pretty verbally abusive, if you abused him back HE WOULD BE ABLE TO TAKE IT (he'd hold frame) he just wasn't "stoic" aka keeping his mouth shut all the time and being unreactive. He was only stoic to defend himself, to nullify other people's emotional violence. I guess Patrice "wasn't a true man" to a lot of the people here and yet.. that guy was confident as fuck and a slayer. Masculinity isn't this rigid thing. There are different styles and archetypes. Patrice wasn't perfect, he died in his 40's because he was a fat cunt, but his style worked well. He was an arrogant son of a bitch, negging/mockng the fuck out of women who pulled bullshit on him and got him TONS of pussy. This was his wife: <https://twitter.com/vondecarlo>

Some bitches will actually say "sorry" when you call them out. I remember an FR here ages ago where this happened, OP called the bitch out and she blew him in the car to apologise. He said something along the lines of "If you blow me I may be able to forgive you." I laughed my ass off reading that FR.

If you think "being stoic/holding frame (emotional state) and quietly leaving" is the best option, you won't get that gratitude/apology or school anyone on anything. If I were so inclined, I'd insult the bitch for wasting my time. Stop raping my time. My time is important to me, I don't have time for some bitches' bullshit silly games.

It seems like a lot of people misapply stoicism or think stoicism should be something you engage in ALL THE TIME. That you should be this robotic "no shit felt" kinda guy. Some guys do that and pull it off. That's one style. It's not my preferred style. I think constant stoicism is boring as fuck, I like to get my kicks.

I am stoic when I'm under attack, that doesn't mean I never go on the attack or entuse my attacks with emotion/rhetoric though. Putting anger/emotion into your attacks in an environment where there is no to very little penalty for doing so only amplifies your point, having a more profound effect.

Men have a right to be angry, the reason people always try to invalidate male anger with BS is because they fear male violence. In TRP it's "noooo you're losing frame, don't be maaaaaddd." They try and shame you into being a complicit pussy so that you don't intimidate them with your rage/verbal abuse/body language etc. Yet at the same time, women are being mentally violent ALL THE TIME and not a motherfucker calls them out for it. Fuck that. You wanna put a bitch in line and aggressively call her out on her shit? Be my fucking guest. None of this half measure bullshit. Aggression has it's place in society. It's this "don't be aggressive" crap that has lead to all the lack of discipline we see today. When people fear no consequences, they act like assholes. A little shit half my age and size should not have the confidence to be rude to me. Same principle applies to women. Treat 'em like children.

In a rare moment of drunken honesty, a poster in r/TwoXChromosomes admits she prefers assholes to nice guys

88 upvotes · 8 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Better off being an asshole to women. Not even they think they deserve a nice guy. If they don't think they deserve a nice guy and are too scared to confront that (as it could lead to rejection/actual self-awareness for them) then they don't deserve a nice guy. If you don't think you deserve something and don't make sure you go out and get it, or at least try to get it, then you don't deserve it. On top of that, they actually outright prefer assholes. As a wise philosopher one said "Bitches ain't shit but hoes and tricks!"

Ignore what they say and watch who they fuck. Nice guys finish last and Chad Thundercock's just starting up for round two on the cheerleading squad. I save my kindness for men. At least they can appreciate it. Women, nah.

"Treat 'em mean, keep 'em keen."

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

88 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We need some well written essays on how "unattracted women" work, whilst they're unattracted or more accurately in a "post-attraction" state they seem to become incredibly dark triad, whilst the lover she's attracted to? Probably sweet as pie to him. It's like some multiple personality shit, she's capable of congruently demonstrating two completely different sets of traits to two different people in the same phase of her life. One man's unicorn is another man's sexless battleaxe of a wife. This needs to be explored, I don't think this has ever been looked at thoroughly the entire time I've been on TRP (at least, not that I've noticed.)

Completely amazing stuff. Wife cheats on husband. But he made a clever prenup. She then says she was 'blackmailed' into cheating.

87 upvotes · 29 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women have a lot of power in saying something wasn't their fault because someone else forced them. It fascinates me how we all intrinsically believe this, and how women use this to get away with murder. It's as /u/Whisper said, women angle for pity because it works. Men don't, because it doesn't.

The MASTER KEY to Understanding Women

87 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Men are the prize, but it is women who think they're the prize. Lots of foolish men agree.

Woman is the prize that crumbles when you understand her. She can only be a prize while you pedestalise her.

Your mental abstraction of a woman is greater than who she really is. This is why a drop of hate can be useful, it redresses the innate inclination men have to romanticise women.

Need some convincing of Red Pill Truths? AskReddit- Girls of Reddit, did you ever have a guy that you wished you said yes to when he asked you out? What is the story?

87 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Probably because women give short guys a lot of shit. The rest of us are by no means exempt though.

Field report: Destroyed my Eastern European girlfriend's shit test with flying colours. Thank you TRP.

87 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Astounds me how outcome independence sends bitches into U-TURNS. They constantly contradict themselves, and then they complain men don't take them seriously - LOL. Just don't enter her frame, don't give a fuck, seem unfazed by her bullshit and she'll do what you want.

Science confirms what men and women value in a relationship

87 upvotes · 20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This perhaps unintentionally perfectly explains the slut-stud double standard as well.

Men on a biological level do not like women sleeping around due to cuckoldry, women on the other hand due to no fear of cuckoldry have no problem with it, in fact quite the opposite if he can sleep with lots of women he must have value as so many women have given it up to him in hopes to get what he has, whereas a woman who gives it up to everyone just tells a guy she cannot be trusted as his kid may not even be his and he could be lumbered with the bill for a kid that isn't his... that shit is actually legal in the U.S the "acting father" or whatever the fuck that bullshit is called.

Emotionally cheating on a woman though and she may get cut off.. makes perfect sense, as always it comes down to money and resources. Men just want a human incubator to birth their children, women want funding for a lifestyle and the incubatee. Lol. I have to put a crude comical spin on this shit, makes it better to digest for me. It's like the fucking sugar in my coffee or the ketchup on my fries. Give a fuck if its quote-mined, we need more humour up in here from time to time other than GayLubeOil and his erotic novels.

A Red Pill take on "Why is men feeling entitled to sex is being discussed while women feeling entitled to friendship is not?"

86 upvotes · 8 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women have a great capacity for using men for as much as the man will allow himself to be used for whilst granting him nothing in return. Capitalising mainly on the attraction said man feels for said woman, which she does not reciprocate. Instead of being open and honest and letting said man know she isn't interested, she exploits his attraction for personal gain. Women hamster around this shit and pretend they are legitimate platonic friends and that nothing is one-sided (a very rare arrangement) but really she just has him pegged as a bitch - he is what is known as AN ORBITER. Someone who is constantly around and available to her, a phone call away, ready on her whim to carry out whatever favour of the day the bitch in question needs. That's not friendship, that's exploitation. Especially if she expects that because "she's the woman" but wouldn't do it in return.

Women see orbiters as:

- Backup dick for when shit hits the fan with the BF. The hotter she is, the more orbiters she'll have. The #1 orbiter gets to have emotional pity sex with her when she's low and she splits with her BF. She'll either be so damaged from the break-up she'll actually downgrade to #1 orbiter as an LTR, or she'll get back with her BF tell the orbiter it's a mistake and how she never should have done it and they were better off as friends and she doesn't want the sex to ruin anything and blah blah blah. Basically a flowery version of "get back in the friend zone bitch."
- Sympathisers who will come to her aid when having problems with said BF or a female friend, an employer etc
- Validation givers/ego feeders/narcissistic supply
- Favour givers - help her move, taxi her around, buy her some food, get her a drink, do shit for her to make her life easier in general, involves you spending money on her without actually giving her money, saves her money on getting her own shit, paying for an actual taxi, buying her own food and etc.
- A way to make their BF jealous and leverage him, basically dread game. A BF whose girl has 5-10 male friends is going to be way more paranoid than a guy whose girl only has female friends. Of course if the guy voices his paranoia, she will shame him as being unreasonably paranoid, controlling and blah blah blah and that she's known these guys a long time and won't get rid of them for anybody. Basically it's manipulative bullshit.

I remember once a girl I knew was trying to get me to orbit (co-worker), but I had no interest. She asked me if I could help her carry some furniture (I'm built) from the store to her house. Her house wasn't far from the store, but it was heavy, and she had a lot of stairs to go up, as well as lots of long winding corridors until you got to her apartment (it was in a block.)

I said nothing.. gave her a funny look and she said "I can pay you" I said "how much? make it worth it" and she just dropped the conversation. You see she didn't want to give me value for helping her do something that adds value to her life, she just wanted to use me as a tool for adding value to her life. She said she'd pay me as a shit test hoping it'd activate my "kindness" and say "oh no don't worry about that, you ain't gotta pay" so then she could go go "oh really are you sure? you're so kind" and get a favour out of me, or some shit like that. It's not like we were good friends, and she's asking me to put myself out for her in a way that MY REAL FRIENDS VERY RARELY ask me to. Note my real friends are all men. Not someone abusing the label of "friend" or "acquaintance" to try and get favours out of me.

I have practically no white knight instinct in me at all and see right through these stupid games. These stupid games where they FALSELY offer to pay (be it a date, or some fuel money, or for helping them do something) and only do so for plausible deniability hoping it will entice you TO OFFER IT FOR FREE so then if you ever use it against them or realise they are taking the piss out of you they can go "WELL YOU OFFERED I DIDN'T MAKE YOU" and then they can frame you as the bad guy and convince the hamster that they're the victim and you're the one in the wrong (women need to do that to fuck with you.)

However, if you actually take them up on their offer of payment, they'll roll their eyes like "this guy doesn't get it, you weren't meant to say that, you were meant to just be a good little beta and offer me free shit" which will elicit a raised eyebrow back of "I do get this shit, and that's why I'm not fucking helping you with your shit." You see when male friends offer to pay their way it's because - THEY DON'T WANT TO TAKE THE PISS BUT NEED MY HELP. These bitches expect benefits/perks for free BECAUSE THEY'RE WOMEN HIGH ON THEIR OWN SELF-IMPORTANCE TRYING TO ENJOY THE BENEFITS OF FEMINISM AND TRADITIONALIST CHIVALRY AT THE SAME TIME. So you accept their FAKE offer of payment and they back the fuck down with a "never mind" or they pay begrudgingly, giving you a funny look or some shit like that.

Friendships with women are one-sided. 99% of the time they aren't even fucking friendships. It's her getting you to do shit on her terms that benefits her knowing the only reason you do things for her is because you think she is hot, but she won't fuck you, because she knows as soon as she fucks you once you'll expect it repeatedly and she'll lose leverage over you. These bitches are relentless, utterly manipulative and shamelessly selfish. Female sexual strategy 101 - swoon after guys out of your league and collect betas in your, slightly above your, and beneath your league as a social cushion. I'm quite sure some women actually collect betas just for all the prizes and feel good emotions.

Be careful being friends with women, especially if she's attractive/you find her attractive or you're beta with a scarcity mindset. It's not usually worth your while, and you're usually just getting pegged for a specific role in her cuddle bitch hierarchy. You can be #1 cuddle bitch that gets to spoon with her, you can be the bitch boy that goes shopping with her, you can be taxi guy, you can be starbucks + gossip guy, you can be "male perspective" guy, you can be "gay best friend" guy, you can be "I see you like a brother I'm in love with how safe you make me feel because you're tall and I love the commitment/puppy eyes you give me but I don't wanna fuck you" guy. You can be a lot of different roles that a boyfriend should provide for her, in fact you can be one of many things which are all contradictory in one guy and thus need to be spread out upon multiple guys so she can enjoy all the varying elements of "the being in a relationship experience," Except you don't get to fuck her, you don't get to go past hugging, even a kiss is too much - and if you do - she will try and shoot your shit down like you're some kind of creepy cunt whose face belongs in a paedophile mug shot. She will make you pay in shame and emotional pain for your transgression of the firm boundary she has in place.

You chronic fucking nice guys with your 1,000,000 female friends who "get on better with women than they do with men" have been fucking warned. Men may be less superficially warm and fuzzy but at least they are straight with you. They don't fuck with you like this, they don't lead you down the garden path and raise your hopes up about what your friendship means only to DENY you every time you leave your boundaries, just to shame you back into place so you continue providing them one SPECIFIC benefit. That's not a fucking friendship, it's a one-way street of exploitation that she calls a friendship to give the sordid arrangement some veneer of otherwise non-existing credibility. Obviously assuming you're not gay, there's no sexual tension, so that makes shit easier, but the why's are largely irrelevant - it is what it is.

Now alphas and men on top of their shit can turn this crap around and get women doing shit for them, they can flip the dynamic with their higher SMV, and that does happen, and again, that's not real friendship. Legit platonic two sided cross gender friendships are rare, generally speaking the chick should be UNATTRACTIVE to you. Or a hot "wing woman" you use for dread/preselection but don't fuck because you want to retain her for these roles specifically. The average guy however should just stay the fuck away, she will out-manipulate you and play you for a fool. You'll think she is your friend because you're an idiot, but you're just orbiting, waiting in a long line of other clueless men who are all hoping to fuck her one day whilst dispensing favours out the ass.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

84 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's some fucked up shit. There needs to be laws against spermjacking.

A prime example of blue pill logic. • Why women and white knights see game as coercion • Why women and white knights see gaming a girl as rape AND MORE!

84 upvotes · 14 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate blue pill logic. Just ban the idiot from the sub. I'm tired of stupid fucking idiots trying to broaden the definition of rape to make it encompass anything remotely manipulative or deviant which results in consent. Under this definition controlling a man with sex is rape because he doesn't get it on his terms. It's fucking stupid.

Is this what feminism is reduced to now? Nothing left to actually be socially indignant about so we'll fucking call everything rape? Rape cannons set to rape. Get your rape alarms set to rape o clock. Rape, rape, fucking rape. This guy looked at me, it was so rapey, OMG! I had sex with a guy and I regret it but I loved it at the time he must of raped me.

All these fucking idiots talking about rape between two consenting idiots just need to be shot. VAWA should enact that in the U.S. Any ho who blasphemously cries rape where none occurred takes a one way ticket to death row.

Now for god's sake, less of the rape bullshit. The hyperbole is getting old and it's degrading and disrespectful to people who actually do get raped, y'know, like little children, choir boys and little girls with perverse parents, people who are attacked and taken of their dignity etc. Notice I say "taken of their dignity" giving it away because you're susceptible to game doesn't magically transform your post-coital regret into rape. Sorry about that, you'll just have to live with feeling slutty.

Settling down vs the Hoe Phase - Amber Rose claims women should be going through their hoe phase in their 30's.

83 upvotes · 24 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Wait a second, don't confuse sexual peak with peak sexual appeal to men.

Sure 18-24 is peak sexual appeal to men. But I suspect a 30-39 year old woman has higher testosterone and lower estrogen than a 18-24 yr old woman. That is to say, her higher T will make her more sexually voracious despite how she is less sexually appealing. As Patrice O'Neal quipped "oh it's a shame you wanna do all your fucking in your 30's, because pussy's only worth fucking between 18 and 29."

If you haven't seen it, check out "Elephant in the Room" on YouTube, Patrice's stand-up. It's golden.

This story: glorified female virginity, 12 months relationships without sex, men found balls and broke up, "but I do want sex now, how do I get him back?"

82 upvotes · 28 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No fucking way was she going to put out the EXACT day after he dumps her, I'm calling bullshit.

No the reality is she wants to fuck him BECAUSE he dumped her, he did not [just so happen] to dump her the day [she was going to fuck him anyway] it's total bullshit, although she probably believes her own crap. Women are good at that whole self-deception thing.

Man loses job and breaks down crying when he tells his wife. She is surprised to discover that she feels disgusted by him.

81 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Right. Your inner circle should give fucks. If there's someone in your inner circle who doesn't give fucks, you need to kick 'em out. The inner circle is an exclusive club, giving fucks is a requisite for being a member.

So you want to be a man? Welcome to life on Hard mode.

81 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hahahahaha. Brilliant. Hot women just live life on auto-pilot, someone is always queuing up to provide for them. Ugly and average women have feminism, the state and nice guys. Remember that Norah Vincent woman, the butch lesbian who lived as a man for over a year? She wasn't hot, but in spite of that, losing her woman privilege eventually drove her nuts and she needed to be checked into a mental hospital after the experiment was done. Despite being a "masculine woman," she couldn't handle being treated like a man and was happy to continue living as a woman after the ordeal.

FR: "Why did you dump me?" "Because you wouldn't fuck"

81 upvotes · 16 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

See, aren't you glad we waited?"

No, but nice damage control girl.

Feminist discovers that her degrees won't help her find a job, she is in serious debt and even hotel front desk jobs reject her. Betting pool: how long until she gets married?

81 upvotes · 3 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She did "Social Justice and Peace Studies" and expected a great job? LMFAO. IN WHAT FIELD EXACTLY?! AHAHAHAHA. Too many fucking idiots going to uni nowadays.

Women have sex on the first date all the time - they just don't want you to believe so (Video Source)

80 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't really see a difference between female and narcissistic lying; constant denial, deflection and trickle truth upon proof/discovery = narcissistic behaviour. Then rationalising "why what you have been caught doing isn't all that bad" comes afterwards. It's the bread and butter of how women lie.

For example:

You saw your girl with another dude, she was hanging on his arm staring up at him googly-eyed like a schoolgirl out with her first love.

When she gets home later, not one to mince your words, you jealously ask if she's been fucking him?

Predictably she says nothing is going on, and that you're a paranoid jerk. And that if you don't trust her maybe just maybe she will go and fuck somebody else.

[She reframes you're the bad guy and tries to scare/manipulate you into not following your gut instinct by playing on your fears and insinuating that the very accusation is what is driving her away. At the same time this serves as emotional justification for the hamster, why cheating with this other guy is fine because "my boyfriend is such a jerk!"]

So you set up a trap, you go on vacation for a week but not before you set up hidden CCTV around your house.

You catch footage of her with the dude kissing at the door, you also get footage of her doing ass to mouth in your bed.

You get back from vacation and show her the gentler clip of them kissing.

Her predictable response: "He kissed me, it was just a kiss! Nothing more happened! Why won't you believe me?! We just kissed! I'm getting sick and tired of your accusations I don't need this!"

[She reframes herself as a victim yet again, emphasises how "spying on her" is wrong and completely overlooks the fact she's cheating. Will attempt to guilt trip you into feeling like a piece of shit for spying on her, the fact you "PUT CCTV IN OUR HOME TO WATCH ME!!!" becomes the main point of contention, not her indiscretion. Of course, this is simple deflection & guilt-tripping to see if she can get away with it]

You pretend to agree you're the irrational one and let it go, even though at this point you think she's a real piece of shit.

She doesn't know you have footage of her doing ass to mouth with the other guy

You say "hey honey, come and look at this" (it's video of her sucking a dick that just came out of her asshole)

She denies it's her, then when pressed and you pause it on her face she says it was just that one time you speak to Chad on Facebook, turns out he's been fucking her 3 years, but unless you had a video with a 2012 timestamp, she'll never admit it, she'll say Chad's the liar.

At this point you're going to believe Chad over your girl, because even if you don't understand exactly what is going on, your gut is telling you this girl is a lying piece of shit.

They will lie to the very end, unless you have them dead to rights with photographic/video evidence, they won't come clean unless they're in a moment of spite and tell you to hurt you.

Most men honestly don't know what they're letting themselves in for and are ill-equipped to deal with a woman's natural Machiavellianism. It's as I always say, men got the bicep, women got this profound power to perform psychological backflips and lie out the ass in a way that only a minority of men (mostly DTs) can deal with. Your bicep is illegal, this bullshit isn't. Act accordingly.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

80 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Government has to stop these scummy women from breeding. Breeding rights should not be extended to people unfit to provide care for young life. Normally I'm against any kind of tyrannical measure like that, but there is NOTHING good about allowing these women to reproduce.

EDIT: I can see how an army guy would be a great target for a bit of spermjacking baby-trapping. Skanky hoes, take notes.

Dance, Monkey, Dance: The Time Has Come For A Shift In The Mediums Of Seduction

80 upvotes · 18 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Wait for the PMs to flood in.

<http://i.imgur.com/S7zJuiU.png>

Bitch hard "at work" working out... working out how to look best for her selfie.

Yes faggots, just shower these bitches with praise and then wonder why they're all total fucking narcs. Ignore a bitch so hard she thinks you hate her. Meeting bitches online is beta/lazy game. Don't talk to a girl online you wouldn't have the game to pull in real life.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

80 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It doesn't work this way with women, giving them access to strange dick breaks the pair bond.

Important point to make when the equality brigade say "it's not fair that men can fuck other women, but we can't fuck other men!"

It's due to the unfairness that women lose their pair bond when getting other dicks but men don't from getting random vagina. Men proved that time and time again by taking mistresses and keeping happy marriages.

This is why women fear emotional cheating more than physical cheating, if a man is emotionally cheating he's more likely to abandon you. The reverse is true with women, they are more likely to abandon you if they're physically cheating rather than emotionally cheating.

TLDR: women can't be polygamous and have an LTR, men can.

Are you a "romantic"? If so, this way please ...I have a several thousand hoops for you to jump through...

78 upvotes · 1 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You raise some interesting questions, and I will attempt to answer them to the best of my ability.

Are these women actually aware of the subtext in what they are saying?

It depends on the woman in question. I think for many women the answer is no. The manipulation is instinctual rather than rationally pre-meditated. Many women live in a state of delusion, which means they spew bullshit and believe their own bullshit. They're not thinking "ha, I'll tell this sucker this shit, whilst I go and fuck 30 other dicks!" but they'll go do that anyway. Why? Feelings/biology/socialisation. Lack of self-awareness. When she lacks the self-awareness to give a fair assessment of her own needs and behaviours (women need men precisely for this reason - their logic) and you combine that with how other people can influence her and then add her biological needs to the equation (libido/comfort,) you get yourself a slut who throws out all this kind of "womanese bullshit" at weak men, but gives it up on the first date to the alpha. I mean the alpha doesn't get the full brunt of womanese, just some token LMR eg: "I'm not that kinda girl" which is easily overcome with a "time to make you that kinda girl then."

The fact she treats each kind of man completely differently seems to go over her head, she doesn't analyse it, question it or attempt to explain it. In the case such a woman does, you will get more womanese. "It just kinda happened!" blah blah blah. If she gets upset she will slip and slide and attempt to bring you down instead of justify/defend herself. Watch out for that, they do that a lot. It's ego-preservation and many women are narcissistic nowadays thanks to the culture we live in.

When women say, "I'm not ready for a relationship with a great guy", are they consciously aware of the fact that they're saying this because they want to continue riding the cock carousel while maintaining plausible deniability?

If she's your average woman, I'd say she's not aware. Because most women are stupid as shit in matters of self-awareness. However, if someone were to point all this stuff out to her, catch her when she isn't being menstrual, and none of her reputation was at stake, she'd probably agree with what you're saying. The smart chicks however, they have more self-awareness. They know what they're doing, they just don't care. Smart or dumb, women don't have morality when it comes to their feelings/pleasure or personal needs. Basically, she may have some kind of moral code (chances of that are practically ZERO if daddy wasn't there when she was growing up,) but if that moral code stops her feeling good, or getting something she wants, she won't stick by her principles - those things will go out the window. Women are controlled by, and hold themselves to their emotions - not moral principles or abstract logical/moral constructions such as honour. That's what the whole Eve eating the apple thing in the bible was a metaphor for.

So yes, aware or not of their behaviour, women ALWAYS act in their best interest (manipulatively) and hence AWALT. It is as a rationally observing man, interesting how in spite of the differing levels in self-awareness between the dumb and the smart woman that both end up behaving in ways which bring about similar conclusions. Eg: bullshitting you, AF/BB, hypergamy etc. A woman being aware of her nature does not change her nature, I've not known of a woman smart enough to know of her biological flaws who has actually transcended them, they don't transcend their flaws, extremely dominant men they partner with keep their flaws in check, and when he falls from the throne due to illness or what have you, all those flaws resurface.

Women are women and that's why we keep saying AWALT in spite of how many stubborn guys just don't get it or don't want to believe that. Men wish women were more like them. That's what NAWALT is getting at. NAWALT is saying "well no actually, my pretty baby is more logical than she is emotional - she's different from other women on a fundamentally innate level!" which is bullshit. Women are all similar as fuck psychologically. You know I've met some pretty logical women in my life, women who could logic really well - but when push came to shove, emotions would win, they'd give into it and then tell logic to fuck itself. "It just felt right!" "I had to follow my heart!" Whereas when a man loses himself to emotion, usually rage, he feels deep shame. Women don't feel shame when emotion wins, emotion feels "right" to them, logic is "something some of them can do well, but don't innately identify with." Even in smart women, the hamster will trump logic every time.

I would go so far to say that in terms of your own well-being, her level of self-awareness is completely irrelevant to how you game her and treat her. Dumb women don't get a free pass for being manipulative because "awwww I didn't realise, I didn't mean to! I'm sorry!" I don't cut the dumb bitch any more slack than the smart bitch because both can fuck me over if I'm not vigilant. Both will try to outplay me, even if one is sat there pondering holding a chess piece and the other is just running off estrogenic auto-pilot. All I know with the smart bitch is to hate fuck her harder because she's actually aware of the bullshit she pulls, and thus dominating her will be that much more enjoyable as a matter of principle.

Does a woman say these things so she can feel better about herself?

Sure there is maybe some ego assuagement involved in some cases.

Or is she actually completely unaware of the cognitive dissonance rationalizing her thoughts and emotions?

Read above, already answered.

On being "marriage material."

78 upvotes · 26 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If I was "marriage material," and marriage should include sex then why not "sex material" too?

Well you see, most marriages consist of dead bedrooms or once a week/month duty sex. That's the unspoken but implied caveat, that marriage material means you are sexually serviced beneath your actual requirements in return for providing and not because you are actually sexually desired by the woman who gives you trickle pussy.

Now a woman being marriage material on the other hand conveys a completely different meaning.

The irony in a woman telling you you're marriage material is that it's women who have to lock down men into marriage as it serves their need to attach themselves to a man and derive commitment/security from that man in the first place, so telling a man he's marriage material is kind of a way of saying "you'll be no challenge to shackle, and you'll be good enough to be useful whilst you're at it."

The ultimate under-the-radar insult in my opinion, one that often isn't even consciously meant as an insult. In a different era it was a compliment, but not in this one. Use it as an unintended barometer of your SMV. If women are calling you an asshole saying they would never want to take you home to meet their parents, you're on the right lines. Fucked up how counterintuitive dealing with women is but eh, women are where logic goes to die.

[Mod] Snark, sarcasm, and mocking...

77 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

do us all a favor and consider if the comment you're about to make truly brings value to our sub.

Probably the most important part of this post. If a post or comment doesn't add significant value, then it shouldn't be submitted. Of course I have on numerous occasions been baited into stupid arguments, nobody is perfect, but I never incite them. In fact I think the endorsed badge makes you a target for people who take general issue with TRP but hide within the sub rather than just nope the fuck out of here.

Criticising someone by attacking them doesn't count as adding value, it looks bitchy/needlessly critical/provocative and is generally, in poor taste. You add value by instructing them (with methodology) on how they can do better, not by saying "HEY GAI, U DOIN THIS SHIT ALL WRONG, U NEED TO READ A BOOK" that's not adding value, that's just bitchy BS trying to pass itself off as advice. I'm pretty sure everyone is acquainted with the concept of reading, you can't truly believe you're not being a pretentious little fuck when you say dumb asinine shit like this without going into specifics and giving the target of your opinion examples they can research.

Sometimes I think a person who approaches me on here as retarded, or other times autistic, because there seems to be a growing prevalence for someone to miss the general point to argue "it isn't always like that." It doesn't have to be about women, it can be anything, you get these people who fill the need, almost obsessively, to point out that 0.35% of the time that in fact X does occur in spite of the dominance of Y. It's like a NAWALT for non-women related things. Again, we can work that out from deduction, that adds no value. It is a fluff redundant post.

There are a growing number of faggots on the sub who try to pass off "I told him to read a book in a aggravating way" as "self-help advice" but it isn't. I've had it happen to me recently and I don't appreciate it. If you're not going to give someone the tools/resources to do something better, you're probably not helping, just undermining with unactionable criticism. We are not here to undermine each other, but help. So if you see someone needs help with something specifically, tell them how to do it - point to a resource, show them HOW THEY CAN TAKE ACTION. If you don't, your suggestion/opinion comes off as pretension, not advice. Also if you don't know how to help someone, don't make some half-assed post because you want reddit karma (the shit is worthless,) we don't need the blind leading the blind.

A little respect and thoughtfulness in how you communicate with others goes a long way. Again, I suppose that is a self improvement interpersonal skill for the real omegas and social outcasts who have almost zero social skills and don't realise they alienate people in this way. Learning to value information exchange in and of itself, and keeping it high quality, rather than arguing the pedantic fuck out of any perceived imperfection or fallibility of someone's assertion (hiding in hypothetical, attacking their spelling etc) is crucial. All this pedantic shit throws entire topics off and leads to bitch fits. Not necessary. Must stop.

GF & BF Spooning, guy fingers her, proceeds to fuck her, she quietly goes along: rape.

77 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're wasting your time. Bitches and manginas aren't reasonable people. Pretty lies or GTFO is their motto.

The Red Pill Woman in my life.

76 upvotes · 18 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Boys don't listen to their mothers. She lacks the dominance of a man to really make you feel in your gut what she is saying. That's why kids without dads have issues with boundaries (cannot exert them with anyone/girls in relationships, but exert them too far with parents.)

All you needed was a man to say the same shit as your mother for you to perceive it as legitimate "what does a woman know about what a man needs anyway?" and you would have done it. A really good father would have intimidated you/kicked your ass until you did the activities. And you would of done it out of fear. It would be for your own good, but your motivation would be "so dad doesn't kick my ass." Only when you get older would you realise why he was such a mean cunt at times.

With women, they just moan and moan and moan. And normally that moaning is not constructive/kills the mood and we learn to tune out/ignore them as a pest. Your mother's moaning was productive/wise and you filtered it as noise when it wasn't. This is the problem with single mothers, even if they're good (rare,) they can't discipline you like a man can. She knew you lacked masculinity, but as a woman she is no position to impart it onto you. Hence she was trying to get you to find it from alternative sources, eg: guys at the gym, guys at sports clubs etc.

Any woman with enough self-awareness and worldly knowledge to tell a guy "read and lift" in her own words, instinctually knows all the SMV shit and wants to see her son do well. Despite not having a father, you had one of the better single mothers. Most single mothers are bitter bitches and sabotage their sons with crappy information that does them no good in the world. Because they want to push their reconciliation of why they suck at getting a man with "what their son should be, the idealised man in her mind she could never get." Or they are repeatedly punishing you because "they see your dad in you."

As we all know, what women think is good in a man and what actually makes a successful man are completely different things. Ultimately a single mother has to decide within herself what's more important to her: her hatred for men or seeing her son do well. Naturally that is not usually a conscious logical battle in a woman's mind, but a subconscious emotional one. If the prior, she practically emotionally abuses you bringing you up on her own and then plays the victim when you call her out on her shit. If she chooses the latter, you get a mum like yours.

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

76 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh definitely. They're saying "fuck men" in youth and "having it all" (getting paid and laid with no commitment) and in exchange they're getting diddly fuck when they're post-wall. That, or a beta who doesn't even meet 1/10th of their insane expectations. Thus women are eternally unhappy, what's new eh?

Lit a fire under her ass.

76 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck it, spin tiffany and the college girl as plates. Tiffany only wants you because:

- You were the dick in a glass jar that got away. You were the backup cock and now she's lost the backup dick she's gone into "have sex to keep him around mode" basically transactive sex to try and keep you on the leash she had you on before, beware of that. Anecdote: Had the same shit happen to me long ago, she also sent me nudes.
- She is actually legitimately more attracted to you now she's seen you get with a girl who's hotter than she is. The jealousy is making her feel attracted to you.

Both girls are pieces of shit, Tiffany has just been stringing you along as a beta orbiter for the longest time and now she's thrown you some pussy to keep you around, college bitch is cheating on her boyfriend, neither are trustworthy, just have fun with them, fuck them, don't get them pregnant, enjoy it while it lasts. If Tiffany stops fucking you and she has no other social capital you can use to further yourself in life then tell her to fuckoff. I'd even condone lying to tiffany and using soft dread on her (remember that college girl?) to keep her fucking you whilst you fuck the college chick. If any other girls enter the equation then welcome to plate spinning, you're in the big boy leagues now.

All I'm going to say is try not to let it go to your head, none of these bitches give a shit about you and you're silly to think college girl "is nice" when she's cheating on her BF with you. She's nice enough to jump on your dick while her boyfriend is at home beating off. If you're careful and you go girlfriend her up that could be you one day. Real nice. Always judge them by their actions not the BS that they spew.

This is in /r/askreddit right now. Jesus fucking christ.

76 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

7) SHE is interesting, and you are interested. ACT LIKE IT!!

LMAAAAAAAAAAAAAO. What kind of bullshit is this. I'm more interesting and far more capable of talking on a diverse range of topics with exceptionally more commonality than nearly every woman I meet, as are the men I associate with. For a start: most bitches don't have hobbies outside gossiping, social relationships, children, anything involved in taking care of presentation (makeup/fashion) or sex. Yes that's SOOOOOOOO interesting, the sheer intellectual vigour of it is overwhelming my grey matter, listening to women just overwhelms me with such esotericism as they talk about incredibly complex and intricately deep subjects. By comparison I'm only interested in simplistic inane drivel that would bore any really interesting person to tears. Oh wait...

Haha, this bluepill shit is hilarious.

How Trickle Truth Works: "With you I'd have the life I've always dreamed of. But he has the condo I've always wanted, so I have to go." She left and I haven't heard from her or seen her since.

76 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Shit just works on girls, and there's nothing anyone can do about that in terms of fully eliminating that.

Which is why I can't ever trust women to be anything but a woman. If a guy has a strong frame and you spend a lot of time away from her, say he's at her workplace and you're not.. it's basically over. Women have no self-control, he'll create attraction and she'll be enthralled. Kinda why feminism putting women in the workplace again has resulted in another little talked about fucked up element - increasing sexual access to women - giving men and women access to much larger pools of the opposite sex in a new environment which ultimately creates extra opportunity for adultery. Who's she's gonna feel closer to? The guy who works with her all day or the guy she sees in the evening who's tired from work? Exactly.

Women are so unaccountable and unreliable trusting them is just futile. Yeah I realise I sound cynical or bitter or whatever but that's where the logic points. If you ever fall in love enjoy it while it lasts.

I hear some guys engaging in this futile endeavour find a lot of beneficial assistance from MMSL.

Women make terrible friends

76 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Their world is too sexualised, there's not enough character building.

I love funny chicks. I love intellectual chicks. I love chicks who are either of those things and don't feel naturally fucking adverse to just talking to me because I have a cock.

That shit is rare, but those girls are gems. Those are the girls every guy wants to fucking wife up and develops a oneitis for. It sucks, because, I know plenty of intellectual/funny guys and they get nowhere nearly close as lusted for by girls or even respected by guys for these traits, but if a chick has those traits WHOA, big deal!

Different attraction switches I guess, plus those traits are somewhat more common in men, although I would not say they are common definitively, just versus women. Hypergamy and all that shit.

Believing in male supremacy will make you more attractive to women.

75 upvotes · 20 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is wishy washy thinking and I hate seeing this shit creep in to TRP.

Look, men being superior to women does not mean men hate women or that women are useless - it means men are better than women at most things, this is down to two things: testosterone and mean IQ distribution.

In fact, HYPERGAMY DEMANDS men be superior to women, so it's a fucking good thing that men have the logic/tools to be that, because otherwise they wouldn't get laid and the species would die out.

Think for a second, honestly, just please think:

- A woman is happy when she mates with a man she thinks is better than her
- A woman is unhappy mating with a man she thinks is inferior to her

So are men superior to women on the whole? You god damn bet, they have to be!

If you're going to compare the ability and desire to raise little children with the ability and desire to build civilization and call it "equal" through the filterisation that it's "just different aspects of humanity" then I'm sorry, but you have a long, long way to go.

Men are unquestionably superior to women, there's nothing wrong with that, it doesn't mean men hate women, but it means men are the more diverse sex, have more expected of them, have more responsibility and are generally, outside the confines of family life - more active participants in the development of humanity.

The fact I need to say this and even rebut your wishy washy rationalisation on TRP worries me.

It also worries me you have 85 upvotes in 6 hours.

I'd like to think most of those are blue pillers and female lurkers who are jerking your well intended yet misguided notion, yet I fear there are plenty of purple and blue cucks in the shadows saying "hear, hear!" and "fucking anger phase teenagers!"

It's nothing to do with the anger phase, it's everything to do with reality. Not that there's ANYTHING wrong with a man expressing his discontent or disagreement in an aggressive manner. In fact, if a million Syrian refugees enter your country, it's the man who can summon and channel anger at a moment's notice who is going to save your society's bacon, not the timid cuck who believes in equality.

Anger phase is a thing, but I think weak, moderate, low-testosterone, pedantic, overly-analytical men (this is the majority of middle class western men) like to use it as a rationalisation for why something that offends them or seems extreme or unfair is untrue.

Reality really doesn't give a shit if you think something is unfair or extreme, it is what it is, and if you don't accept it you just make life harder on yourself when it disappoints you.

/rant

Anyone see the "Hot Girls Wanted" Netflix porn documentary.

75 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

When left uncontrolled

Right. Women have to be controlled. They are an inherently destructive force to civilization. Unbinding female sexuality via feminism destroys the family unit, which in turn destroys civilization. Feminism is an ideological civilization destroyer.

Plate, meet my other plate.

75 upvotes · 15 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You could have a standard economic crash that bounces back quickly or you could have what happened in '08. Except bitches don't recover from an 08 crash, they turn into Somalia.

A point about facial hair

75 upvotes · 16 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

EDIT: Can the downvoters explain why they're doing so?

They don't have a reason, they just like shitting on things.

Every man's gotta keep on top of his beard game.

Judge Pirro calls out female trying to abuse the system [X-post /r/Videos]

75 upvotes · 3 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Harassment is telling kids to pray before they eat? Holy shit. I'm glad this judge was competent enough and stoic enough to get to the bottom of things and not fall for the theatrics of water tears. This judge is a remarkable woman. Great logical faculty, admirable even.

I shudder to think though if that the woman defending hadn't have been stupid enough to write it down in her journal, would the man have ultimately received justice? Also, no jail time for defaming his reputation? No damages for libel as well?

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

75 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

My theory is that women can only pair bond to one male at a time and that is what makes them "seem like a good woman" or basically, its the pair bond that causes her to engage in a heightened display of positive qualities she does not show to others, once she has sex with another male she begins to release oxytocin and associate it with him and thus starts to form a bond with this other man. Compound this with the problem she is no longer associating oxytocin releases with her husband (as they're no longer having sex) and you have a woman who is no longer pair bonded or in love with her husband but has indeed "checked out" and is now bonding with a completely different man, despite for all appearances, being married to "her soon to be ex."

Once they branch swing or have already undergone lengthy preparations to ensure the branch swing is successful as it appears this woman is doing, the pair bond is broken. In fact the pair bond is long broken before she actually commits to the branch swing, the pair bond was destroyed the very moment she started enjoying regular sex with another man, that is not just her body enjoying such an arrangement, but her mind too.

Whilst pair bonded to you a woman is a completely different person than from when she is not pair bonded to you. The cold indifference is a stark contrast from the loving woman of perhaps a month or two prior. It's the difference between her relationship with you in a pair bonded and a non-pair bonded state. I think many, many men can relate to this behaviour from their own experiences.

Many men have noted how easily women seem to move on and how effortlessly they branch swing, even after long long relationships lasting years, they seem to have this ability to easily find meaningful relationships elsewhere, whereas a man who had a long relationship with a woman typically does not find it so easy to just replace his wife out of the blue because things got boring, add a mistress to the rotation? Sure, but he's still there for his wife and he's still willing to fuck her. Men don't just stop loving you because you don't make them tingle anymore, unlike women. Men stop loving you when you stop displaying femininity towards them.

It's as if women are programmed only to respect and respond well to the man fucking them the best, if a woman runs a harem of men she'll love whoever fucks her the best despite who her husband is meant to be. If a man runs a harem he's still capable of loving his wife despite all the side pussy he's getting, he doesn't think "oh shit this airheads pussy is so nice I'm going to leave my wife over it!" Cheating on your partner seems to affect the genders differently. I would love for them to do studies on this shit. Backup the conjecture of my observations with some science.

Need help on how to blow through "this other guy keeps hitting on me" shit test from gf

75 upvotes · 17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My game is asshole game. I'd mirror her to infuriate.

I'd say something along the lines of

"I know exactly what you mean, there was this girl the other day who would not stop flirting with me, she was really nice, hotter than you, had a masters degree, she really wanted the dick - but she made it too easy so I couldn't be assed, oh, I think I have a girlfriend at the moment as well but at the time that wasn't really on my mind."

Or...

"Maybe he was drunk or otherwise compromised if he was desperate enough to be hitting on you."

I'm pretty mean to bitches when they pull this shit. Why the fuck would you be nice? Someone on here the other day called me out for saying mean shit to girls. Why the fuck not? It works. She's being mean by pulling this bullshit. I don't care if the shit test is out of insecurity or not, if she's going to be a cunt I'm going to be a bigger cunt (and I recommend it to you too)

Anyway you don't need to be an asshole if you don't have it in you. Agree and amplify always works, which is what you did, offering to facilitate her bullshit. (As long as you weren't visibly upset when you said it)

Another example of agree and amplify: Steve sounds like a great guy, when are you going?

A personal favourite of mine is just fucking ridiculing them with logic, for example:

"You're not attracted to Steve but you're gonna go get "taken care of" by him? You must be feeling really insecure at the moment, there I was thinking I had a quality girl, but you're willing to go and settle for the guy you don't even like. Hmmm... perhaps I need to go reconsider my options."

Now make her qualify the fuck out of herself. Relationships are war and you cannot let her win.

Yeah, I'm a fucking dick to bitches who pull this shit. Goodness gracious.

Elon Musk ex-wife asked for over 1 billion dollars in divorce settlements

74 upvotes · 25 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Proof that high IQ means jack shit if you have the Machiavellian ability of a damp cloth.

The Price Of The Taking The Red Pill: A Reflection

74 upvotes · 21 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The more you scratch off the innocent-girl veneer, the more you recognize women as inherently deceptive, manipulative, and selfish.

Even in the manosphere not everyone believes this. A lot of men really want to believe, quite badly, that women are sweet, kind and gentle. Because that is the sort of woman that they're attracted to, a woman who in the age of feminism, has become a rarity. They want to make their desires a reality by projecting them onto a demographic who by majority, despite capable of seeming like that, is anything but that.

Edit: Law 27 is quite relevant to this, man's desire to believe in female innocence

3 months, 3 years, or 30 – There is no cure.

73 upvotes · 24 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck I've dealt with abandonment post-relationship, but I'm glad I've never visited that hell. Being intellectual, and having been hurt by a woman significantly before; I think the illusion/hope, it's loss, and then questioning the relationship between men and women in a depressed state of existential nihilistic cynical pessimism is worse than the pain of the loss itself.

If being dumped by "the love of your life" (at least up until that point) was Hiroshima, it wouldn't be the nuke that was the trouble, but the radiation that comes afterwards.

The harder you love, the harder you fall. Love is the drug with the worst comedown. And like all drugs, it rapes you financially. Bitch in OP has suspended empathy to secure her interests. Women are all too often insidious.

They say better to have loved and lost than never loved at all. I call bullshit. Sadly you need to get fucked up to truly realise any of this. And as fucked up as it sounds, the sooner you get fucked up, the better. Living half your life living a lie only makes it more painful, and robs you of even more potential to lead a happy, and cognisant life. It's very freeing to know everything a woman is capable of and sort of be outside it in the fact that you can simply drop her or outplay her. That no matter how you may allow yourself to fall for a woman's charms IT IS JUST CHARM YOU ARE INFATUATED WITH, there's nothing more to it than that.

Men are born blind, but women fuck us up until we question them, their nature, their motives, and then the larger world around us. Women are a stress test for men. Sink or swim my man, sink or swim.

Hillary 2016: why all men should be concerned

73 upvotes · 25 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

America wants its Margaret Thatcher. I'll tell you something about Margaret Thatcher. She fucked up real estate in this country by selling off almost all the social housing at a fraction of its worth and deregulated the fuck out of a bunch of industries. She also caused mass unemployment in the north. Mark my words, she is one of Britain's most hated prime ministers in all of history. AND SHE WAS FAR MORE REASONABLE AND INTELLIGENT THAN HILARY WILL EVER BE. If the majority of Americans are dumb enough to vote that bitch in, they fucking deserve her. Enjoy your precious democracy.

Woman tries to pull one over on her husband and take half of his money. She leaves her old ipad with him so he know's what's up and strikes first. Remember folks, always have an asset protection plan in place.

73 upvotes · 29 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He is butthurt over the fact they are divorcing and not thinking clearly, compromising his interests to his own detriment. This self-sabotage caused by falling into her frame rather than maintaining his own. Radio silence, stealth surveillance and a strong show of "I don't give a fuck" would have sufficed.

TRP Saved me, Whats next?

72 upvotes · 2 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Found out my girlfriend I was considering marrying cheated on me last night. no sex just making out, she told me about it and tried to justify it.

Hahaha, there's this thing called trickle truth. She fucked him bro.

And as much as I wanted to work past it I told her to fuck off because TRP has taught me well.

Good. Self-respect is the basis for dominance, and dominance is a key ingredient of masculinity.

I dont like relationships just for the sex, I like in depth feelings and connection, which seems to be against TRP.

In-depth feelings and connection with women are not "against TRP", it's just that most of the guys here haven't found a woman who is investable, and therefore preach the bachelor playboy mantra. FYI, an investable woman isn't a NAWALT unicorn, she's simply someone with decent enough qualities and low enough crazy that you're willing to try and build something with the bitch.

Whats a good way to approach my new situation besides the obvious working out and continuing to improve me SMV?

Dive into your hobbies (if you don't have any, get some) eventually, monetise them. Also, read books, if you don't read books that's something you should start doing. Read books that'll improve you as a man, take this situation for the blessing that it is, and become a man women fawn over and men aspire to be.

Lit a fire under her ass.

72 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's fucking hilarious I had to tweet that shit.

Guy in LTR with 29 year old "on birth control" who demands that he cum inside her. Guy doesn't want kids and continues to keep pulling out. Ask "men" promptly shames him for "not trusting her"

72 upvotes · 16 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Keep shit machiavellian and see what kinda plays she makes, ultimately in this situation, you have the ace of spades.

Observed my daughter using/abusing a Beta: She's 11

71 upvotes · 15 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

He said the mother was dark triad... well, child psychopaths do exist and there's a strong heritability factor. Not saying that's what's happening here, but it's far from outside the realm of possibility.

Pussy whipped academics like to say there's no such thing as child psychopaths, that's a lie.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

71 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Let 'em, I'll get the mods to sticky it as a huge fuck you. This viewpoint will be expressed and discussed.

TRP subreddit now considered a hate site by Symantec

71 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There you are piercing the insane amount of doublethink necessary for feminism to function as an ideological power.

If the doublethink/Orwellianism inherent to feminism interests you, you'll like this article:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/16/the-feminist-thought-police/>

If you're on a budget, don't buy a girl's food

71 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

she found out I received a promotion, she spend a full 3 hours trying to explain to me why that meant I owed her a new pair of shoes.

Entitlement + absence of logic = ensuing hilarity.

For guys who do LTR: Be selfish. Make sure she is submissive & that YOU are the special one

71 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

we all know what they need: an emotional rock/anchor that pulverizes through their emotional inconsistency for their own good. She will thank you for it with copious amounts of sex and affection/attachment.

Stoicism is sexy. Get meditating my men!

Show doesn't love you; she loves the idea of you.

Next part's been made into a more detailed blog post:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/01/14/mans-burden-the-feminine-conundrum/>

They don't love us the way we desire. They fail in every way at reciprocating love to the extent or level we've been taught to/tend to expect. As soon as your weakness is abundantly clear she will weigh up her options and when/if the opportunity presents itself to branch swing, she will replace you with another man, you're history and her abandonment of you will be backward rationalised (if she really felt for you she will even delude/convince herself to believe her own faulty rationalisation) in order to show her most favourably to all your peers as to maintain a healthy reputation which proves conducive to her continued existence.

I won't preach it too much here as it's the topic of a future blog post of mine, however, this is why women always play the victim card - one cannot regard that which they consider to be weak to be threatening which is thus why women get away with doing terrible things and shifting the punishment for the outcome of said behaviour to the man, because whether she did bad or not was irrelevant, if she can avoid shame and ultimately shift blame (do read up on the concept of hypoagency) for such behaviour by making your peers believe it was YOU who was at fault for the outcome rather than her she avoids any feelings of guilt and thus is completely free to behave and strategize in whatever way she pleases.

My men, for all their lack of logic and supposed frailty, truly, many of you do underestimate the power of the feminine, the allure of the submissive and failure to understand the inherent CONTROL and INFLUENCE that such pleasant devices have upon your manly senses to the most primitive level, pleasant they may be, devices they still are.

Men love to play this game of convincing themselves they're in control with a woman when in fact they are falling slowly into her grip, softly, like a hand slowly tightening around your neck. This doesn't happen to the plate spinners and the players, oh no, not at all - they don't become invested enough or hang around long enough to form a proper pair bond and actually let this woman infect their sense of self with her feminine wiles.. however those of you in a LTR... you are fighting a continuous battle, a battle you never win, a battle you must fight in order not to lose, a perpetual battle of attrition. Winning the battle means not loving her, love is in a constant state of conflict, without conflict, there is no love, without conflict there is boredom, passionless after the brief grace period.

She will always put herself before you, ultimately, as the bottom line. You are not special to her, your strength is, how you make her feel is - but not you - you are a vessel for fulfilling her desires in ways that she cannot and she has many desires, more than simple food on the table, pleasing aesthetics and a blowjob before one falls asleep. You are not your strength, you utilise your strength, you call upon it, you project it, you wield it - but you are not it - your feelings, your weaknesses, your concerns, your insecurities.... these are all things that you have no luxury to indulge her with. She will indulge you with hers to heal herself emotionally through catharsis and you shall not be repulsed by it, you will feel it is your duty to fix these problems as will she, this an unspoken agreement, however the reverse is not true, you have no such outlet to utilise her in such a way and still maintain attraction and thus by extension - a functional and fulfilling relationship. That's why there is no such thing as "gender equality", for such displays of weakness will do nothing but to have her view you with contempt and ultimately, disdain.

This is what we mean when we say women do not love you, but the idea of what "you" is. They are incapable of loving you. They love themselves no matter how insecure they are, and their children more than they will ever love you, even if they think they don't and say they don't because they're truly deluded and incredibly un-introspective creatures who lack much clarity of mind and self awareness, despite their own inability to realise they take you for granted and "love you" with about a million conditions attached to said "love" is such tightly conditional love really worthy of what the word entails in the most absolute sense? Till death do us part? Such utterances constantly chanted across churches everywhere are done so in complete vain for they are based on an ignorant and naive foundation and proclaim as such without any measure of validity to the contrary.

Women love "the idea" the idea of "what makes a man" basically - power. Women are attracted to power, weakness is not permitted within the powerful - that is the burden to be powerful. Embody this idea and maintain it within your character for a lifetime and that's the closest you will get to being loved in the way that you desire, in the way that a man loves a woman, or, how a woman loves her child.

Men love conditionally too, but men don't compile laundry lists for what makes the ideal woman, women however write books on what makes a man and how a man should behave, the ugly washed up thing on OKCupid deluded on her own entitlement will have a personal shopping list of requirements that a man must fulfil, her bargaining power is irrelevant - she is crazy enough and deluded enough to desire it and demand it and if you are weak enough and desperate enough you shall yield it to her whether she is objectively worthy of such, or not. The longer the list of requirements the woman in question has, the more maintenance needs to be done to maintain a "state of love" with her. Heck, bluepill world calls this shit "high maintenance" for a reason, they just don't go past the materialistic element when analysing the concept. Off topic: this is why western men love third world bitches - less expectation, higher appreciation.

This is a part of how men and women love differently, women extract from you (time, money, emotions, logic, sacrifice) and ultimately utilise you to their own gains be it through incentivising methods (sex, submissiveness, sweetness etc) or fear (won't see the kids again, will make a fraudulent rape claim, will take half your assets in divorce etc)

Those who think relationships are not war are simply naive, I understand why my words will not be popular with the majority, but then I don't assert with a desire to appeal to populism, but mere truth, in all it's forms - that's where the red pill gets its power from - setting you free from your delusions by bitchslapping you with reality. Once you get over the initial pain of realisation, you become a stronger more productive man. No pain, no gain, right? Yes these stupid little proverbs do have a lot more wisdom in them than the average listener gleans from such emphatic wordplay. Ultimately, some kick and scream more than others but you don't become a winner floating to the top on aladdin's carpet.

They (women) are fucking tyrants (for a man to deal with) due to an absence of logic and the less intelligent among womankind don't even realise how destructive their instability and brash utilitarianism of man is to all but the strongest of men, for they run on instinct, an absence of reasoning ability or preference for reason leads to nothing but instinct to take hold often described as "How I feel." This is something men have realised for thousands of years, go and read some ancient philosophy and look for the proverbs, quotations and papers on the nature of women, it's something as old as time itself. You wanna take the pill? You sure you can handle it? A lot of these newcomers are completely fucking clueless, there are many levels to the rabbit hole... it gets deeper and deeper and each time you descend into the pits of reality you're reminded of all your prior learning.

It's not the destination, but the journey. Those of you still near the beginning of your understanding, measuring success on notches rather than LTR game "oh yay i got 13 numbers and had 2 lays the past month!" don't even realise the half of it. Pyrrhic victory may taste like victory, but it is not victory. You are completely disposable to a woman, a woman will be over you in days or even weeks whilst you still mourn the loss of a multiple year relationship for months or even years. Fucking new chicks fills the void, but if you truly loved a woman it doesn't heal the scar. You could say it's a male version of being alpha widowed.

Men are the true romantics and thus you must guard your heart like a bank vault and treat your commitment like African blood diamonds, to squander it is to perform a disservice to yourself. Put up one hell of a fight and if she breaches the vault then don't let her leave, by any means necessary. If she finds a way into your heart, hold her personally accountable for enacting herself upon you as such. At no cost must you allow yourself to lose, the bottom line is VICTORY or FAILURE in all elements of life, relationships are no exception despite the hijacking of your minds clarity which oxytocin induces upon it.

Ultimately do not hate women for their limitations, to hate is to self-induce torture, misery - things that as someone who competes for power you cannot allow to possess you and divorce you from your ambitions. Realise the limitation of woman, accept them and come to terms with the fact that a man is always truly alone, there is nobody "higher up" for you to depend upon, you're the end of the line, in the absence of a belief in God. This is why we are so sentimental with our memories and the older and more experienced the bastard, the more sentimental he will be, harbouring what is essentially a chamber of moments where he didn't feel quite so alone which part of his fiber no matter how self-controlled he may be will vicariously touch upon for comfort in the darkest of times. These memories enter through the retina and ear canal, spend some short time in the brain and then continue to weigh on the heart slowly in varying measurements of weight until your dying day. Wounds heal but scars are forever. Every man has a burden he must carry, none of you are exempt, not even the psychopathic, as even a psychopath has their own feelings to contend with.

In brief moments you have companionship, the best companions are those with a sense of loyalty and honour - other men.

Radical Feminist claims all PIV sex is Rape. Prepare to facepalm. How would you answer her?

71 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you dignify crazy shit with a response you give it your power by lending your credibility to it. You turn it from a random assertion into a discourse, now you're involved, and trust me, crazy motherfuckers like to pull you into a world of shit once you're involved, random inane hatred is dangerous. Avoid crazies like the plague.

red pill conversation at a job interview

70 upvotes · 29 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Post-wall chick with two fatherless kids tagging along, spilling her guts out to the first amicable looking man that comes along? Haha fucking hell this girl's a trainwreck. I don't even think you want to plate someone that high on the crazy scale. Stay well the fuck away.

Beta is PISSED at me for "stealing" the girl he's been "working on" for months

70 upvotes · 22 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

where the fuck did my time go to..

It's never too late. Act now. Otherwise at 50 you'll be saying "if I'd started at 40, I could rest a little bit more now." The younger the better, but it's never too late. Ever. Defeat is for losers. Don't accept it for a second.

College Girl for "Equality" admits she wants Male Privilege AND Female Privilege; Female Co-worker Calls her on it.

70 upvotes · 11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"So, are you saying women have to be subservient?"

This is an insincere loaded question. The other chick had exposed her as wanting female supremacy, not equality, so she was trying to draw for her victim card by shifting the attention from her hypocrisy by stirring up fresh drama, predominantly by implying you believe women should be subservient out of seemingly nowhere. It is ad hominem disguised as a question. People often form weapons out of questions when lashing out. Notice how she points this question at you and not the woman challenging her, that should tell you a lot about her attitude towards men. She sees herself as superior. Pointing that question at the other chick would not have the same effect it would have as pointing it at you (because of the implications that men were traditionally oppressive) which is why she chose to target you with that question rather than the person (a woman) actually challenging her and calling her out on her shit.

The question in and of itself, even unanswered or deflected, puts the thought into peoples minds that you believe women should be subservient whether you said that or not and thus distracts anyone in the vicinity from thinking about how she wants to have her cake and eat it too when it comes to societal attitudes to gender, this is her way of trying to scapegoat you because she felt uncomfortable at being exposed, she wants the benefits of both genders but the responsibility of neither. She purposely frames feminine responsibility as "subservience" whilst expecting male subservience (special treatment/chivalry) for being a woman. This is the bullshit feminism has devolved into with your typical woman, they want to cherry-pick the best of masculinity and the best of femininity and form their own special status where they have MAXIMUM rights with MINIMAL responsibility, preferably none. It's very slimy and underhanded political manipulative bullshit but I'd expect nothing less from your typical feminist-indoctrinated woman. Pathetic. Any woman who thinks like that is nothing more than pump+dump material. The wall will punish her.

You guys are fooling yourselves.

69 upvotes · 25 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Being the best man you can be is minimising the chances she'll stray.. not ensuring she won't. There's nuance there. An average guy is far more likely to be cheated on. Nothing lasts forever, you won't even live in your house forever, it doesn't mean you say "hey, I'll let anyone fucking burgle my shit" - nah, you still guard that shit like you guard your bitch because that's how people are with their property, and best believe me when someone burgles a bitch you've committed to, you'll be livid. The only difference between a woman and a house is a house is burgled from the outside, women invite the burglars in.

Additionally, if you know how to lay down dark triad game on a bitch you can get more loyalty than you'd ever know. Most guys can't do that so they'll never get it. But you know those violent guys the woman will never leave no matter how crazy or fucked up the shit he does? Yeah, they have women's loyalty. Why do they have it? Women are addicted to men who put them in their place constantly, demean them and make them work for validation before finally rewarding them with an ounce of affection. This sounds fucked up because it is, women are fucked in the head. Most of you do not run your bitches like that. But they love it. It's cat nip to them. It would blow your fucking mind to see how a woman behaves when you manage her like this. But most dudes don't have the energy levels and disposition to pull this off or sustain it, so they don't get that frenetic feminine loyalty, they get a turn.

For what it's worth, dread increases the length of your turn if you're not DT and pretty much cements it if you are.

My $0.02c - opinions and shit.

Occam's STFU: Cognitive tool to calibrate how much or little to speak when in doubt

69 upvotes · 27 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm Machiavellian, but, naturally I'm a wordy motherfucker who likes to ensure people understand what the fuck I'm saying. I have a natural attention to detail and like to be specific with my words, but that doesn't necessarily mean brevity.

Seems people don't appreciate that, low attention spans and low intelligence play a big part, but I think as a general rule people want to talk more than listen and don't respect a yapper. I suspect "talking too much" shows you care too much, and people respect you more for being detached than actually giving a fuck about the topic and expressing the fucks you give by being rich and informative (educational contexts not withstanding).

Law 4 couldn't be any truer, less words = more power. Obviously assuming you're in control of what you do and don't say, and not because you have no idea what to say.

Of course if someone asks you to tell a story and you do, that's the exception, that's your caveat to be a wordy motherfucker. Stories break the rule, people love stories.

[Dead Serious] Do Kegels.

69 upvotes · 13 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That moment when her pussy all of a sudden just tightened the hell up around your dick. They do that when they want you to cum quickly, they constrict your cock so you can't hold it and unload. The battle never ends, even in the bedroom.

Hate is the new love

69 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A personality trait easily cultivated considering the abysmal quality of today's modern women.

The Hardest Job in the World

69 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sounds like you have your shit together. Hat goes off to you.

Danish woman calls out to IT nerds: Dress hotter and cut down on the lingo so we can date you

69 upvotes · 4 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Tldr: her and her friends are self entitled post wall feminists targetting it professionals to be their beta providers because they make good money but they're having trouble getting moist down south because they view the guys social mannerisms as omega.

Ignore the "other guys" shit test

68 upvotes · 8 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

and that she wanted to see how I'd react.

The same bitch who does this is the same bitch compartmentalising on the internet that shit tests do not exist, that she doesn't play mind games, and that red pillers are manipulative and immature.

Well, that sure is rich.

Problem with women is they believe in their own bullshit, that's part of their game, so arguing with them is generally quite pointless.

Saying you don't play games, is its own game. Everybody plays games, that's human nature. The only thing that changes is the level the game is being played at, not whether the game is being played at all. It is. It always is.

The Red Pill is the radical notion that women are people.

68 upvotes · 1 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists frame men as violent neanderthals blah blah blah. But women on average are far more emotionally violent. It is they and their more pronounced cunning who have used men for proxy violence like pawns throughout history. Nothing is black and white. Kids think women are wonderful and men are evil, then as you get older you begin to see the reality is something closer to the complete opposite of that.

Shit test: wife fills the cupboards with crap food

68 upvotes · 26 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women can be vindictive creatures. If they're in control of the cooking/food they will use it against you. Buy crap you hate. Refuse to cook. Try to manipulate you and guilt you by saying they do all the cooking and you "wouldn't eat" if it wasn't for them. It's all bullshit. I don't tolerate that shit. That's all a red flag. Give a woman any responsibility over anything significant and she will weaponise it to fuck with you at some point. It's just how they are. Cooking your own shit and learning to cook is all a part of independence. Cooking your own meals telling her not to do you anything and etc is soft dread. Sex under these circumstances seems like something of a reward for her shitty behaviour. Hate fuck her to assert dominance but don't keep laying the pipe if she won't make the effort to do a basic thing for the benefit of the family.

Edit: don't even get me started on the stereotypical speech of how ungrateful you are because they've cooked for you and "gone to all that effort" and you haven't ate the crap. That's another chestnut you can expect from a woman using food as a way to fuck with you. Ironically this whole thing gives law 40 - despise the free lunch an entirely new meaning from a relationship perspective.

About the debatable logic of women: meet my ex

68 upvotes · 20 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

1) She was in a 2 year relationship with me. Mostly a tragic relationship, she was one hell of a bitch. Constant shit tests every time and i was mostly beta at the time.

You were her source of validation, whatever love she had for you was fleeting, she wore the trousers, if it lasted for 2 years you either provided her money or she has majorly deep insecurities, sounds like you were "beta bucks"

2) She met this guy from the gym

So this guy invests in his physique/value. Guys go to the gym to get hot enough to score pussy. Gay guys go to the gym to get hot enough to score ass. Gyms aren't exactly social places for picking people up when using machines and doing free weights (you'll be pissed they're interrupting you) so unless it was in a class of some kind chances are he was hot enough for her not to be pissed he interrupted her regime and she lapped up the attention. If he's a pussy ninja infiltrating pilates or yoga, you know he's a player and still, she lapped it up.

3) "He is just a friend"

This is a shorter version of the much longer sentence ""he's just a friend for now but you better know I have options bitch" She's technically not lying, this is how bitches operate, they omit the truth when they can and only tell concrete lies if they absolutely have to, omission of truth is safer than a fabrication, it's less likely to be discovered by the person they're concealing truth from.

4) They constantly keep in touch (facebook, whatsapp, whatever)

So there's high interest and if I were him, I'd be flirting non-stop, she'll like my attention as she perceives me as high value so she'll flirt back. This is essentially emotional cuckoldry. Good chance he's already fucking her and is the alpha fucks.

5) Our relationship goes to crumble

Because she's comparing him to you and her solopsistic sense of entitlement tells her SHE COULD DO BETTER AND SHE DESERVES TO, when she compares the two of you she feels like she's just settling for you, whilst her hypergamy is telling her that she should be upgrading to him, whilst your relationship deteriorated she was giving you clear signs that she's getting ready to branch swing to him, if he'll have her/she can sufficiently manipulate him to take her as more than just a booty call.

6) When i point that her latest illogic argument she tried to usually build up were clearly because she wanted me out to fuck the guy, she denies it stating "you are weird, you don't respect my feelings and my friendship with him"

So you called her out on her bullshit, good move. Notice she doesn't say you're wrong, she just shames you to shut you up by ignoring your opinion (means she doesn't respect you or your opinion) and wins by making you feel guilty. If you were proficient enough in bullshit manipulation, you would also call out the shaming tactic and shame her for shaming you, and then guilt her. "Time to apologise, get on your knees." This shit is war son.

7) We break up

No doubt on her terms. You should have started on some dread game, started hanging out with other girls or at least making her think you are and then dumped her first saying "I can do better than you, bye." (that would make her WTF massively and hamster what the hell just happened as she felt so in control)

8) I am not into the friends after breaking up thing, but she clearly is. Nonetheless, i refuse and go no contact

Good, confirming what I said earlier on, you were her go to beta validator, she wants the new guys dick/gym body, she doesn't want to give the pussy to you, but she likes parts of your personality/your resources/how easy you are to control or whatever and thus she wants to keep you in her orbit. Maintain no contact. Do not enter this bitches orbit. The reason women always want to be friends and guys don't post-relationship is because as a friend you can still give her the "boyfriend feelings" you used to give her, whereas she doesn't have to give you jackshit for your commitment as being "just friends" means pussy is off the table. Women are cruel with this shit, they're giving you a raw deal. By accepting it you essentially tell her you're low value and she'll go along exploiting you psychologically and financially for all you're worth. Never be that fucking shmuck, ever. Dignity. Self-respect. Women are replaceable.

9) After a while, she reinitiates contact in a "i want to catch up with you again" fashion and i fall for it

Oh for fucksake. There I was thinking you did at least something right. Oh well, no point crying over the past. This is what happens when you have a lack of options and start to miss a bitch because you haven't replaced her with new options.

10) She tells me her latest whereabouts and that this friend guy hooked up with HER SISTER for a couple of months

LMFAO. OH SHIT. So the alphas fucked your girl and your girls sister and has an ego dwarfing the empire state right now, she's clearly run out of options so she just wants to use you until she somehow wins him back or finds another upgrade somewhere else. You're like the rental car while her usual car is in for repairs.

11) I felt relieved because all my fears of her breaking up with me because of him were unfounded with him actually banging her sister instead.

You are an idiot if you believe this. He's banged both of them. Maybe not at the same time, maybe at the same time (ewww, incest!) but regardless, I'd wager 80/20 he's banged both of them. Women will lie about not having sex, if she says she never had sex with him without you asking directly (don't ask directly) then she's definitely had sex with him.

12) She keeps going telling me how her sister broke up with the guy because "you know, he is not much of a big deal after all.."

No, the sister didn't break up with him, the sister is hamstering that she's a pump and dump, as is your ex. He's been inside both of their pulsating vaginas as he vigorously thrust his veiny manhood up in that shit!

/poeticliterature

13) Once i get that she was just friendzoning me instead of getting back in touch to fix the things between us, i tell her to fuck off and go back to nc.

It was a friend zone beta thing all along, you were just slow to realise it, you validated her when you let her get back in touch with you on her terms, now she knows she can get you interested whenever she wants your no contact has very little power.

14) After a couple of weeks, she exposes freely on the social networks that she is in a relationship with the guy.

Oh wow, that carousel sure sounds busy! Sounds like he came back. If you didn't like some of my responses before this point, know that this point confirms what I'm saying. This guys so alpha that she's morally fine to date the guy who not so long ago, was fucking her sister, and has probably been fucking other hoes too. She doesn't even care where his dicks been, even in family because his games so tight. Let me tell you now, you do not want a chick who's knowingly willing to fuck the guy who was fucking her sister, that's fucked up, it says she has little morals and can't be trusted, definitely not girlfriend/commitment material.

15) After MONTHS she contacted me again via text to tell me that she was sad because we couldn't arrange a friendship, that she missed my world and the people around me. She also cleared that that message was without any other intention. Then she said a goodbye and farewell.

This was a guilt trip to try and ensare you again, seems like she really does miss a malleable beta, most likely alpha boy is giving her little emotion or commitment and she's craving that, he's just nice to been seen out with and gives her a good fuck. When she said there was no other intention she was lying. She said goodbye because she knows goodbyes are hard and emotional and she was appealing to your emotional side to respond so she could ensnare you again. She is a sick twisted bitch. She may be doing it calculatively or it may be from her emotional brain, source of the manipulation aside, it's still manipulation.

16) I kept strong with no contact and she is still in a relationship with this guy.

Well if you're ranting about her on TRP sounds like it's really got under your skin, and if you have to "keep strong" rather than be "unaffected" or "bouncing back" then it sounds like you're suffering. You definitely don't need her in your life and you need to use this experience, your heartbreak, as a catapult for progress. Forget women for now, you need to work on you, physically, mentally, financially... all of it - time to start building value for yourself. Best of luck to you, you can do it. You're on TRP. Hit me up with any questions if you need.

How to build value? Taken from another post I made, this should help you on your way:

I realise I sound harsh but fuck it this is all truth, you need tough love son, you're lost right now.

/r/becomeaman

- Read 48 Laws of Power (need to understand the games women naturally play and get on their level or surpass it)
- Go to the gym (physical presence, self confidence)
- If you're an academic type you'll enjoy <http://therationalmale.com/> (loads of bio and psy theories on female behaviour and human mating, theories on why certain elements of game work too, as well as how they work - not overly pragmatic though)
- Start listening to <http://beigephillip.com/> (great advice on gaming women and understanding their psych, it's a podcast, will inculcate a red pill worldview until it becomes natural to you)

The hamster's on a roll: older, wealthy white women are buying male pros in the Caribbean... but it's a "holiday romance" to them

68 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists who put career before family and subsequently end up alone or divorced in their 40's can:

- Lower their standards and get with a beta
- Be alone
- new option: go to the third world and have sex with poverty stricken younger men who will tend to your hamster and stop you being lonely.

It's funny because the chicks always scorn the men who go to thailand and shit, now they're practicing it themselves ahahahahaha. I love irony!

93 year old woman answers questions about Sex. TRP personified.

67 upvotes · 14 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This has been posted numerous times, but nevertheless...

An affair is very different than a marriage because you can break it off at anytime.

Reading between the lines, dread game addiction. All tingles, no mundane shit.

2 old sluts just sat next to me at the bar and started telling me I'm cute and flirting with me. They asked where my girlfriend was, when I said "I don't date" they started going off on me saying "I'm on the wrong road" and that "I just hit it and quit it" I said

66 upvotes · 19 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Your aunt is a fucking idiot, bitch got served. She walked out because she knew there was no coming back from that. Well done.

Active & caring father teaches his sons "man lessons" and makes sure to include his daughter as well. Mother does "woman lessons" too. Women in /r/DIY explode with how OP is indirectly responsible for why their own lives are ruined.

66 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women say and do some pretty idiotic shit. And kept unchecked by reputation/what those around them think of them and in the anonymity of the internet they'll say some pretty fucking retarded shit and air out some real deep-seated hatred. In a way it's more honest. Women who are man haters in the real world like the hood rat ghetto female american stereotype WHO NOBODY likes will say it directly and obnoxiously, but most women passively hate on men by talking about how men are responsible for all their problems. Placing all blame squarely on men and just never having a positive thing to say about them. I mean for all the shit I give women I can still say good things about women. But then that's because I'm blessed with the faculty of reason. Anyhow, I digress.

The common woman is funny as fuck. She is mad that men aren't manly anymore, but she's also mad about the idea that men would try to "control her" or "think they know better" but at the end of the day, decision making and discipline are all part of being manly. You know, in Patrice's crude terms that's what he said: the male of the species always dominates and the bitch has to submit that's the natural order. Now it's on the man to prove he is strong enough to lead and the woman will test, but once authentic dominance is ascertained the woman must submit, if she doesn't shit doesn't work out, the relationship falls apart and that's one of the major problems with the women of today. They don't realise they are lucky to get commitment and have to work for it. Instead they feel entitled to it and blame anybody but themselves when they can't secure a happy relationship.

Most women today think they can cherry pick the parts of manliness they enjoy (him taking responsibility/making tough decisions/providing) and drop the parts they don't (he having more power than her, putting her in line when she's being a neurotic emotional idiot) but that's not how it works. You don't get to cherry pick masculinity, you either get the full package in a man or you get nothing. IMO, this is just fucking common proof your average woman is an irrational idiot who lacks the depth of perception to flesh out these psychological distinctions and instead will continue to wail like an infant hoping a captain-save-a-hoe will come along and fix all her problems. The high SMV knight in shining armour or mr.perfect that no woman ever fucking encountered, yet is such a popular cultural meme it has it's own mythology in girl world. The fabled Christian Grey strong and powerful enough to do what she wants on his own terms but sensitive enough not to exude the "uglier parts of masculinity." That shit doesn't exist, but women are fucking deluded for the most part.

SMV at work in real time, hilariously

66 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you think that each generation of men are becoming more feminized on purpose or just by natural causes?

That's a complex question that has more than one answer as the reasoning for man's rapidly increasing feminisation is multifaceted in nature.

The first is due to xenoestrogens, modern men come into contact more with chemicals that emulate estrogen in the body far more than their ancestors did. Xenoestrogens are synthetic chemicals that aren't estrogen, but act like estrogen in the body. The higher your "estrogen" levels the more effeminate you become, the more anxious you become and the more likely you are to have weight problems/grow man boobs/retain fat and etc. Of course in men with a genetic disposition to retain fat (endomorphs) the effect is amplified further. Xenoestrogens are in plastic bottles, they're in the non-stick material on pans, they're everywhere you can't escape them. They're all in female contraceptive pills which women take and then piss out into the sewage system. Millions of women all collectively pissing estrogen in the sewers which then goes to a water treatment plant, gets recycled, and leaves trace amounts of xenoestrogen in the water supply. So environmentally and chemically, the world is more feminine than it once was due to these chemicals which act like estrogen. This in part is why it has never been so important to lift. Men who lift are appearances aside, chemically more masculine. Their body's produce more testosterone, they're less anxious, more alert and generally healthier.

The second reason is of course related to feminism and the systemic effects its had in the various institutions of socialisation through the fabric of modern industrialised societies:

- The institutionalisation of feminism has lead to pro-female bias in all the institutions we take for granted. Boys go to school for years acting like boys only to be collectively henpecked and penalised for behaving like boys by an overwhelmingly majority demographic of female teachers that their too "boisterous" (key's in the word.) So within the school system itself due to partly how education is passed on (more emphasis on sitting still, less emphasis on practical activity) there is a pro-female bias. This creates a lot of betas who then go onto get jobs and are effectively socialised to admire/associate positive traits with femininity whilst associating negative traits with men. Some boys are really unlucky and get put on ADHD medication simply for being energetic and masculine. That's fucked up.
- Single mothers. Some are shitty, some are wonder women but it doesn't matter, women cannot teach boys to be male. They will coddle them, tell them to flee rather than fight. To tattle rather than learn to confront and deal with situations and they create dependence in boys rather than teach them independence. They teach boys to "get along" and "knuckle down" and "do as you're told" they don't teach boys to think for themselves or push back or fight or anything intrinsically masculine because their whole frame of reference for how you should behave is intrinsically feminised. Single mothers raise "nice guys" and criminals, but they don't raise well-adjusted men who are confident in their own masculinity. Of course there are exceptions, and people get widowed and blah blah blah, I know some guy raised by a single mother is going to read this and get offended (fuck your delicate sensibilities bitch, this is real talk) but single mothers are a huge problem for masculinity. Fathers have to pass on masculinity to their sons, in the way that a mother has to pass on femininity to her daughter. Single parenthood is one of the biggest factors in why the manosphere is even here. The manosphere is your surrogate father, the father you wished you had to teach you shit you need to know that nobody ever told you. I've known A LOT OF men and boys who were raised by single mothers, most feel completely out of place in the world and they can't even verbalise why the fuck they feel so poorly adjusted and out of place in modern society - but simply put: modern society isn't meant for them and doesn't give a fuck about them, it cares about the feminine imperative and treats boys and men as nothing but defective women. I don't say that lightly. I like a lot of things about femininity, but IMO, this governmental policy of encouraging single motherhood via welfare state and divorce laws (which all comes back to feminism and women getting the vote) is absolutely destroying the chances for young men.
- Adjunct to the previous point: I said mothers teach femininity to their girls and men teach masculinity to their boys. Well what feminism has done to gen Y's parents is fuck them up. So you have feminist women having kids teaching their innocent little daughters to bull-bust, mistrust men, be entitled, hateful and competitive so they masculinise their girls into younger versions of themselves - bitter, misguided feminists. The men who have accepted feminism are not in touch with their masculinity. Men "in touch with their feminine side" often have to sacrifice their masculinity to be in touch with it. You can't be simultaneously in touch with both, that's some egalitarian myth. Imagine it like the fuel gauge in a car. The closer to full your tank is the heavier the car, the closer to empty your tank is the lighter the car. If a car "is in touch with it's lighter side" it sacrifices weight. It's the same with gender. Men who get in touch with their feminine sides lose part of their masculinity to do it. It's impossible to be 100% feminine and 100% masculine at the same time, just like you cannot be hot and cold at the same time. They are EITHER/OR conditions. They cannot be both present simultaneously, that is a cognitive paradox. The extent men "get in touch with their feminine side" take that to is up to them, but they're gonna sacrifice masculinity to do it.
- Adjunct continued: All men have some femininity in them and that's fine, but these feminist/mangina/bluepill sniffing men without backbone or courage or zeal or gall or anything remotely respectable, warriorlike or fuck JUST MANLY, take it too far. They become more feminine than masculine and that's when we have problems. These men make shitty fathers they don't give their boys the chance they need in life. They don't teach them how to get girls, how to become a man, there's no rite of passage, no hunting, no emphasis on manhood. They don't tell them what role models to look up to, what arts/subjects to get into which encourage manliness, they don't teach leadership and most of all they don't teach their boys to appreciate the fact they are boys. To love the fact they are boys. To embrace the fact they are boys and to hone their manliness. These "men" are out of touch with manliness and they don't realise the importance of manliness or practice manliness. Instead, they berate them like their mothers and over emphasise the importance of femininity and being sensitive and all this other crap that will get a boy nowhere in the world when he grows into an adult. Furthermore in such a household you can add how irritable the mother will be because this effeminate bitch boy is not keeping his woman in check, and the kid effectively has two mothers. It's sad, it's abhorrent, it's fucked up and IMO, for boys, it's child abuse. Being a boy nowadays you're constantly being told how special the girls around you are. Nobody gives a fuck about the poor boys. Then you add all the feminist hysteria about men being child molesters into the mix and men WHO AREN'T a kids father don't want to get involved with kids because they don't need some child sex offence they never committed tarnishing their reputation (it kinda works like a false rape allegation - not even fucking MJ was immune to that bullshit and he was a cultural treasure.)

- Corporations, like schools, encourage femininity (compliance, submission) and punish masculinity (innovation - "do it the way we want you to do it"), rebelliousness (do as you're told or you're fired), and personal autonomy. You have no autonomy or no say. Men demand autonomy. Even in a pack, you could be the lowest value man there, but you get a say and you are listened to by the other men if they accept you and you aren't simply tagging along like a puppy. Part of the reason I personally want financial independence is so that I can self-govern and not be controlled by a pay cheque and all the emasculating bullshit that comes with that. Women don't seem to care so much. They will fit in with the programme or bullshit regime of some corporation. They don't mind being told what to do. They can play the game to offload some of their workload onto betas. They can play victim if the company is too harsh on them. So what do companies do? Give all the hard work and shitty sentiment to men because they know if they treated women that badly they'd be getting a lawsuit. It's fucked up. But workplaces unless you're in construction, sport, engineering, mechanics or some other male dominated industry IS ALWAYS a feminine space. All wage slave positions are feminised spaces. Work in a supermarket? Feminised space. Cafe? Feminised space. Bar? Feminised space. You don't get autonomy, they don't respect your masculinity, they shit on it, and if you fight for your masculinity if you say "hey, go fuck yourself cunt!" or give them problems (Even if you're not as vulgar as my last quote, but simply use logic) you will either be sacked (for being vulgar) or ignored and disregarded (if you're the logical well-meaning type of man.) The workplace is a toxic place for most men because it is an emasculating process. You can't do your job like a man, be proud of your job, be loud in your pride and command respect. No. You're just the server. You shut the fuck up like a good little bitch only the manager gets to be manly. It's disgusting. IMO, this is why more men go into entrepreneurship, online business and other self-governing ventures in numbers that women never simply will. Men RESENT BEING CONTROLLED by people they DON'T RESPECT. Resent quickly turns to hate, and hate turns to violence.

I've basically written an essay in response to you because it's a topic I feel quite strongly on (not edited for grammar, so sorry for that, but it's late here in England and I'm not going to go through it now making the necessary adjustments) I hope that gives you some of the insight you're looking for to the question that you have.

TLDR: it's by design of feminism but synthetic man-made chemicals that act like estrogen in the body which are ubiquitous in the environment are chemically aiding in the emasculation of modern man. Do I believe the chemical thing is done on purpose? No. I'm not willing to entertain some far-fetched conspiracy theory on the matter, but it simply is the current state of affairs.

The latest way to scam men into marriage

66 upvotes · 8 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are machiavellian as fuck, weaponised pregnancy, how fucking perverse. When guys question the dark triad just show them this shit.

Stop chasing happiness

66 upvotes · 15 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't watch tv.

Do not let the negativity consume you

66 upvotes · 3 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is an important message to reiterate.

Life is pretty shit by default, realising a lot of the bullshit this society is constructed from and conveys (especially in relation to women) and seeing shit for what it is makes it even shitter as you don't have the fantasy warm gooey perceptions to anaesthetise the pains of reality. Reality is a pretty shitty place but you need to understand it to be able to have the power to cultivate your own reality into what you want it to be, to make that cash money, to fuck all them hoes, to jet-set, to be well-read, to have a family, to be a multi-millionaire, whatever the fuck it is you want - rather than let the system assign you a preselected power-limiting role which curbs your civil liberty, personal power, your own perception of yourself, your ability to hold influence and a bunch of other crap - likely the role the system would ascribe to you if you would just go with the flow is a role that does not fulfill the tenacity of your ambitions.

So taking the pill can actually make life seem worse, sure it's empowering to know the truth, but not everyone can handle the weight of that truth.

The truth is power, but with power comes responsibility and the responsibility of realising how truly fucking shitty women are, how pragmatic and manipulative they are, and hilariously, how only some of them are even self-aware of their own fucked up irrational natures can take quite the toll on a man.

This is why its important to develop a coping mechanism.

I encourage you all to inject positivity into your life. Watch stand up comedy, go join a comedy club. Honestly, stand-up for the most part is red pill as fuck, you can get away with saying what you like as long as it's funny. We've all seen it with Bill Burr, Dave Chapelle and the other greats.

Building your SMV can cause growing pains and you may need to lean on things like comedy and junk activities like "playing video games" to ease the growing pains, but as long as you have direction and are still growing and seeing progress that's OK.

Eventually when your SMV is high enough it will reward dividends in and of itself.

If a problem in your life is broke, fix it.

- Overweight? Start jogging.
- Can't workout because of injury? Find workouts you can do which wont exacerbate the injury.
- Miserable fuck? Find shit that makes you laugh.
- People in your life bring you down? Get the fuck rid of them. If it's not immediately possible eg: you cant afford to move out from your crazy single parent mother then just avoid her as much as you can.
- Not got any friends? Socialise more, drink some alcohol, go to the comedy club.

- Spending too much money? Downsize.
- Can't earn enough money? Hustle. Get educated. Kiss some ass. Read 48 laws. Find an edge. Do something. Give up on yourself and the world will too.

Ironically all these problems are things which need to be solved in order to increase SMV, and once your SMV is high you will find none of these things are problems. We're all on the path and all of us are at different stages of the path in periods of life. Some of you are doing this for the first time, others of you have been burned before and are doing shit you've already done before to rebuild. Whatever.

Have a mission and fucking go for it.

Lethargic because you've got no energy? Drink water. Blueberries. One lemon in your tea a day. Make that green tea. Get at least 7.5 hours sleep per night. If you have an urgent deadline take power naps in 1.5 hour patterns (so 1.5 - 3 - 4.5 - 6 - 7.5 - 9 hours etc) as that's when your REM cycles end and that way you don't feel groggy.

Life is fucking hard and unfair and women are heartless ruthless observers of your value who will use you for basically any benefit you can provide, but then although perhaps not so competent in the art of machiavellianism as the average woman, men do the same fucking shit too.

The only reason you are mad/upset is because you were indoctrinated to believe that women are the fairer sex, that they were somehow more pure and that only big evil men do fucked up shit, that females are kind and gentle and "unicorn rainbow shitting fairies" who'll sprinkle you with motherly love and let you suckle on her bosom as she shields you from the world and your bad day slaving for the man. WRONG. Fact of the matter is if she didn't shit you out of her vagina she's got no unconditional love for you. It's tingles/cash or get the fuck out.

Stop feeling sorry for yourself, toughen the fuck up. Sometimes its tough, find a way to cope. I've listed a bunch of ways. Fix your problems. Stop finding excuses. Give yourself a slap. Feeling lazy right now? Go under the shower for 2 minutes, make sure its cold. Not freezing cold (you will get brain freeze) just quite cold. It will raise your T and make you motivated. Go on. Do it. Go. Now.

TIME article on how American schools are becoming hostile to boys

66 upvotes · 24 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Only a mother could have this level of awareness and write about it, none of the other women would want to believe it and neither would they give a fuck. The only way you can not see "boys" as the enemy is to be a mother yourself, see the pain and issues your son goes through and then, only then, is a woman capable of seeing they're not the only ones capable of being victimised, but in fact males go through shit too. Haha, quite ironic. I love how the biological motherly instinct can override the indoctrination of feminism. Good piece.

1000 migrants in Germany sexually assault, rob and rape women at one train station on New Year's eve. Feminists actively are trying to cover it up.

65 upvotes · 6 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Wherever there's no white man to blame, everyone wants to be as close in shade to white as possible. Hilarious really, isn't it.

#GiveYourMoneyToWomen hashtag on Twitter exposes feminism's final form: "Give me cash or I'll call you a misogynist"

65 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Because nice guys are boring and guys who'll treat her like shit aren't. Female logic is illogical logic.

Women's nature encourages this phenomenon, but of course, it's always a guy's fault with them. Responsibility and self-accountability? That's a foreign concept.

After the Red Pill, do you still seek commitment with women or avoid it?

65 upvotes · 12 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Pump and dump because that's all most women are worth to me.

If any woman manages to actually meet my high standards, I'd consider commitment. Keeping a mindful eye that she isn't simply "playing up to what she thinks I want her to be" only to pull the rug from right under me when she thinks she's got me. For that reason alone, I would not marry, but LTR is certainly on the cards if the woman is high quality enough. With the right materials, I would try my hand at making an RPW but I don't think most women are worth that level of time investment from me.

I just believe staying single has far too many benefits as opposed to dealing with a girlfriend and all of the shit tests and what not that follow.

Most women are a bad deal. All the emotional distress and drama they cause isn't worth the momentary sex they can give you. If every minute of pussy is matched by an hour of emotionally intense bullshit, then the return on investment simply isn't worth it. Women need to make themselves a better deal to get the commitment they have been wired to crave. Women overvalue their sex whilst not taking even a second to put themselves in our shoes and think about just how shitty it is to have to put with someone's constant whining, insecurity, uncertainty, demands and general fucking bullshit. Not to mention the entitlement and expectation that you will endure that from her because "you're the man" and "she's the woman" and so you should just "take care of her." We've got fucking porn now. Some jurisdictions have cheap hookers too. If a woman is too mentally draining why am I going to sacrifice my happiness just to fuck her? Fuck that. I appreciate my sanity too much.

I just want to share my ex-girlfriend's hamstering...

65 upvotes · 20 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

15 – Women's behaviour and personality mirrors you in a relationship.

A bitch is always a reflection of the guy that she's fucking, they don't really have set personalities. When you're with a woman, whatever she is, her love needs to attach itself to something and when she attaches that love to someone, they ultimately shape who she is. The way you treat a woman shapes who she is as a person.

More: <http://illimitablemen.com/beigephillipprinciples/>

Also, hypergamy = AWALT. She hears "harvard" "medical degree" and "wealth" and she wants to be perfect for him in order to ensnare him. She'll be whatever he wants in order to get a foot in the door. Once she manages to get a ring on her finger, the bipolar and all the rest of it will let loose and he'll find out who the real her is, by then it's too late because she can divorce his ass and get rich off it. Saying that shit, it's pretty hard to not notice if someone is bipolar, she must be pretty damn light on the spectrum to have not already raised any red flags with him, that or he's socially clueless.

Girl lets two male friends plow her, can't bear the shame of "being taken advantage of" and no longer wants to be their friend.

65 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The logic dissected for all our rationally minded men here: If there's nothing wrong with being a slut then you wouldn't care you feel like one. DUH. Fucking female "logic". LMFAO.

Dr. Phil asks: "is it ok to have sex with a drunk girl?" and gets thrown under the bus by his uppity audience.

65 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

See, ya gotta be clever. He should of asked "Is it ok to have sex with a drunk man?" then watch how dumb bitches all give their opinions and nobody gives a fuck or has an iota of outrage in the slightest.

"LJBF"..."nah, lets fuck."

65 upvotes · 10 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

On "Patriarchy today"

"Human_Isomer" got to fuck his ex who put him in the friend zone the other day after not seeing the bitch for a hot minute.

They went "for tea" and he correctly identified the shit test of "this is not a date" and escalated to "yeah we're just here for tea before I fuck you!" before the bitch got tingles and went back with him.

When they got back our sources tell us he fucked the shit out of her twice and orgasms were had all round.

When asked how "Human_Isomer" wants to proceed with this social dynamic, he told one of our correspondents "she's just gonna be a hook-up bro"

In other news Ray J released his tune "I Hit It First" reminding Kim Kardashian even though she's a slut, he fucked her before Kanye. Beware the alpha widow, looks like Kanye gets betasized!

"Patriarchy Today", telling you WTF is up.

I'm beta, and I'm angry

64 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah. It's so natural and organic to them. When I talk about innate female Machiavellianism I refer to it as "instinctual Machiavellianism." All women are manipulative, but what they do is so subconsciously organic that it is devoid of the malice one would associate with calculativeness. To be calculating is what I call to be "rationally Machiavellian" or otherwise consciously strategic. This is the type of Machiavellianism men employ (because we don't have an innate instinct for it, we have to learn it to defend ourselves.) Women can employ rational Machiavellianism too, but they tend to do so with lesser frequency. To explain this with an image: man manipulates like he's playing chess, woman manipulates with herself: her body (sex appeal) and her personality (friendliness, sweetness.) There are distinct differences in style.

Generally speaking the more fucked up the woman, the more calculativeness there is on top of her innate proclivity to manipulate men. But young fresh girls who weren't taught to calculate and actively control men from a young age by their single mothers? They don't do that. How they act and how they manipulate is an instinct, it's completely organic, it's no more malicious than a frightened snake would bite you. It's part of her survival instinct, it simply "is."

Man has to be able to distinguish between "innate female manipulation" and "calculated manipulation" when dealing with a woman. Some women employ only the prior, but growingly in this toxic culture of ours, many are beginning to employ the latter. Women who employ the latter are generally speaking, bad news - and begin to fit the descriptions as outlined here: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

Red Pill Example Never let people walk over you

64 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My husband can have absolute cold running through his veins when he wants too. It's like a light-switch he can flip at any time.

A "good psychopath." (selective utility of ruthlessness etc.)

He also has a talent for seeing through people; he sees who you are, not the mask. Everything my sister had ever felt on the inside, he yanked it out and put it in her face. Her weight issues, her relationship failures, it's like he had a bullet-pointed list behind his back.

Machiavellianism.

Looks like one of the sheeple tried to play with one of the wolves and as such, got her coat torn to shreds. Don't come with your claws out when the only thing between you and your enemy destroying you is your assumption that the enemy operates on a reluctance to act.

Talk about a crab bucket mentality; trying to sabotage her own sister! What a bitch. Come now, that's not how you behave towards your family. I'm going to assume this little girl was never taught discipline.

Girl bangs NFL star and posts it over social media

64 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Solipsism. Because she'd find a man attractive who had banged a hot/famous woman (preselection) she thinks the reverse applies (that men find women attractive who fuck high tier men) unfortunately for her, it doesn't work that way. The men of Tinder, as if they didn't already assume she was a slut, now have photographic proof she is.

It's not your looks. This sub will teach you that.

64 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Being attractive helps. But whatever happens, don't be ugly. Being ugly you have to prove yourself just to get to an average level of respect, it gives you negative points.

Being ugly or fat allows people to delegitimise you/reduce your status/viewpoints. I've read up on the halo effect and you're favoured less if you're abhorrent in any way. You don't all need to be super models but whatever happens, don't be ugly.

Modern guys tend to fall into two groups but obviously it's far more nuanced:

- Pretty boys copying the female sexual strategy trying to be as physically attractive as possible but cultivate little outside their appearance. Gym bros, guys who obsess over a sport they play and their image etc.
- Guys who don't give a fuck about their appearance because they don't think it's important at all and eat up all that it's what's on the inside that counts bullshit, dressing up in cartoon/videogame tops at 25 and don't get regular haircuts/shave/wear cologne, even shower etc.

You should look good because it makes your life easier, it will help you feel better about yourself which translates over as confidence and it will help you get a job. It will be easier to befriend people, people will automatically grant you more respect and etc. Sure all of that is possible if you're average looking but what's better, a smart guy that holds frame who is average or a smart guy who holds frame that is attractive? Being sexually attractive is a form of soft power, if you're a man you should be after all the power you can get. Being attractive never hurt anybody, being ugly did. Everything's a competition so fucking own it. If you got a really bad ticket in the genetic lottery then fuck it, you can't change the fact you're 5'1 or you have the face of a walrus, be the best looking that you can be with what you've got and dedicate yourself to other pursuits. No point fucking yourself up over shit you can't change you've got one life so carpe diem.

Girls always go to bat for the girl's club no matter how small the issue.

64 upvotes · 22 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep it's known as "in-group gender preference" or "in-group gender bias" in academic babble.

Basically women like women more than men like men on average for no reason whatsoever.

<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/15491274>

Helps explain the ubiquitous white knighting as well.

Help me understand why women are incapable of love. Yes, I've read the suggested reading.

64 upvotes · 3 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

These concepts simply aren't available in everyday regular life, especially to women.

That's why this place exists, they're not available ANYWHERE, feminism and the society it has fostered CENSORS/SILENCES any dissent which disproves or otherwise disagrees with feminism, feminists are incredibly intolerant male bashers. Feminism is bad for you and your relationships, luckily, if your description is accurate you don't sound like a woman who will have problems finding a suitable partner as you have already fostered traits and qualities which will earn a mans commitment.

[Update] My uncle took some 'man up' advice to heart. And then taught me something about arguing.

64 upvotes · 25 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I would have debated them though, justifying my decision. I said so to him. He shook his head and said that by actually arguing points with them - beyond repeating that it was none of their business - was accepting that they actually had a point. You give up ground that you can never give back.

Don't give them the privilege. Good lesson. Mans fallacy: assuming you can win women over with reason. You can't because they don't care about it.

Woman hits the wall at 25, has mental breakdown: single mother with no money comes to realise no one wants to date a single mother, has vitriolic anger towards her ex who's still living a happy life and having relationships.

63 upvotes · 28 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The child is the true victim in all of it, and I suspect many such children grew into men and found there way here because of it. The red pill community is a response to decline, fatherlessness included.

Man flees Canada after losing his kids and $1.2 million home, and being forced to pay $4000 a month to his wife. Is labeled a "deadbeat dad" by the media.

63 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Family responsibility office" what fucking Orwellian nightmare is this... reads just like newspeak.

Man receives $567K in damages after being forced to motorboat boss's breasts. That's $283K per boob.

63 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"They rejected this whole notion that you get away with it because you are a female," Griffin said. He said the jury awarded his client $200,000 more than he asked.

Good to see the /r/pussypass not being applied for once. Hurrah for justice. Although, 567k for some ugly chick putting your head between her tits and unfair dismissal? Seems like an insanely high amount of damages to award.

TIME article on how American schools are becoming hostile to boys

63 upvotes · 24 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Is she on fucking crack? Wow. We had a game called kiss chase, the girls would all run away, the boys would chase after them and then when you caught them (you'd grab them) you would kiss them. Then you gave them a headstart and they'd run away again. Girls would only play this game with boys who weren't ugly and boys they didn't have any problems with. Shit when I was a little kid girls used to lift up their skirts and put my hand there and it was all fucking innocent, we were kids and we were curious about this kind of shit. Pre-puberty it's completely innocent.

I hate when adults project bullshit like sexual harassment onto kids, they don't even have a concept of such a thing. Under these illogical definitions I raped about 10 girls when I was 8. LMFAO. Wow, ok.

UPDATE: link - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Tag_\(game\)#Kiss_chase#Kiss_chase)

We built voice modulation to mask gender in technical interviews. Here's what happened.

62 upvotes · 30 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

because its done by fucking white males

It's hilarious to me that the demography that have contributed the most to modern civilization (straight white men) have the least credibility in arguments, are the most hated and have the least free speech. Literally taking the people who gave you mathematics, philosophy, electricity, the internet, bla bla bla and saying if they conduct a study it doesn't mean shit because they're white men (racist and misandrist). We live in fucking clown world I swear.

The War on Masculinity

62 upvotes · 5 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Healthy masculinity" is none other than an Orwellian phrase for "feminised man" it would seem.

Your struggle and pain? Women neither understand nor give much of a fuck.

62 upvotes · 3 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

a man's struggle is to become a man. He starts with nothing and has everything to gain. A woman's struggle is to remain being a woman. She starts with everything and has everything to lose.

This is brilliant. I understand the theme you are getting at precisely. And you have worded it in such an eloquent manner to boot. Do you have any objections to me using this in a future piece? Definitely a piece of wisdom I think needs more eyes on it.

TRP needs to be propagated. I have lost my third friend to suicide.

62 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

God rest their souls. R.I.P

Reading TRP makes me depressed, if it's the truth then it makes me hate everyone.

62 upvotes · 10 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

All else is pity disguised as compassion.

And a man of worth doesn't want pity, he wants compassion when he's struggling emotionally. Most of the time you won't even get pity though, people just don't give a fuck about men struggling. Compassion and even pity are mostly reserved for women. Men must struggle alone, and I believe that's why male suicide rate is not only higher, but men become more successful than women, on average, too. Pain is an educator and men are subjected to a lot more of it without "medicine" (support) they have to overcome it alone.

There are higher/stronger selection pressures at work when you're a man. Women are humanity's evolutionary control group, they aren't remarkable but they're saved from hitting rock bottom too. Being a woman in society is easy, unless you get hideously fat you will be automatically accepted, you can be supported emotionally and financially by a man/family/friends. They have it made. Young women are automatically valued, have a social network just for existing, get a free pass on their behaviour, affirmative action and everything. They are artificially elevated at every level. They don't actually have to get good at anything to get rewards and recognition like men do.

Men are loved when they are successful and abandoned when they are not. Women are auto-successful in youth and get abandoned if they can't cash-out into marriage before their looks fade. Such is life. It's what makes parents a beautiful thing, they are generally speaking, the exception to this enforced "succeed or be lonely" metric in play. Of course a lot of guys hide from their failure with video games and such, and medicate themselves through an existence of failure by hiding from life in a fantasy world (eg: MMORPG's,) but that's another topic.

[48 Days of Power] Day 38 - "Think as you like but behave like others."

62 upvotes · 22 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In government buildings and other feminine dominated environments I act like a beta faggot. It's necessary to get ahead. In the clubs? Full gorilla mode. That's what this law is. You need to be able to turn your beta on and off at the drop of a hat. Being alpha everywhere 24/7 does not reap the greatest results. This links in with law 48 - be formless. Like water, fill up the volume of the social space you're in. If beta gets you the most benefits, be beta. If beta is frowned upon and in the new environment alphas get all the respect/pussy - be alpha. Alpha thrives in male dominated environments like building sites and gyms. Alpha is always respectable, but it's also scary, especially to women/betas/omegas/people with power who don't want to be overthrown etc. If you scare people with power too much, they won't help you/look at you favourably. You must play beta (law 1 - don't outshine.) I know we'd all like to be alpha all the time and thrive in that endeavour, but that's foolish miscalibration. The nail that sticks out gets hammered.

AFBB confirmed, classic Indian style.

62 upvotes · 15 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why pay for the cow when you can rent out the milk.

What these dim, pretentious bitches don't realise is that the guy is fucked off because the woman who supposedly loves him enough to want to marry him won't have sex with him. She had sex with guys who "were just flings" or unimportant but Mr. Marriage worthy hasn't even got two tits to rub together so he can get off. How's that meant to make the poor guy feel? These women are fucking clueless. If less important guys are worthy of sex, why is a more important guy not? If she won't fulfil his sexual needs, why the fuck should he put a ring on it?

Women know how much sex is important to men, but act like you're shallow for wanting it, then control you with it. They're like fucking bankers who judge you for being materialistic but then dangle a fucking loan in front of you. Then say her body her choice bla bla and manipulate the guy into doing her bidding. So many guys outside this community fall into this stupid fucking trap I mean come on it's pretty much textbook female machiavellianism. If I wrote a series of machiavellian posts about common tactics women use this one would be in there. The funny thing is, very little of it is verbal. There is a tacit imposition that if YOU'RE ROMANTICALLY ALIGNED WITH A MAN, YOU FUCK HIS BRAINS OUT. If it's "her body, her choice" then why the fuck is she shacking up with a guy she doesn't even want to fuck? Yeah, fuck logic he's just a cunt. Not her fault. NAWALT. Blah blah blah.

Guys don't have girlfriends because they appreciate the intellect, nagging and asinine ramblings of the average woman. Most women are actually pretty fucking insufferable. I've tried hard, in my life, to like women and take an interest in them. Do you know how fucking futile that is? They don't give a shit about anything beyond people and relationships minus the odd nerdy chick here and there. So guys tolerate the lack of substance common in modern women because that they want to get laid. Most women are fucking boring as shit. So if you're not fucking him, he really has no incentive whatsoever to stick around.

And then they have the audacity to say hey, guess what, I'm spending your money, I'm taking up your time, I'm putting all my shitty emotions onto you AND GUESS WHAT? I'm not gonna fuck you because it's my body and I don't want to! You know what indian dumb ass beta bucks should say? "Get the fuck outta here then."

Within martial and non-marital conjugal relationships there is a tacit expectation of sexual fulfilment. Any woman who considers herself a wife or girlfriend better realise there is a huge expectation upon her to satisfy her man's needs. If that isn't something that's important to her, she's a failure as a wife/girlfriend and she shouldn't even hold that position and all the benefits it brings. She should be single. If you're not offering it to your man, you're failing as a fucking woman and you don't deserve any relationship until you learn to respect his sexual needs. If a man isn't entitled to your sex, you're not entitled to his time, his love, his commitment or any of the other shit you're using him for. Period. I and many other rpers may not believe in equality, but we believe in equity. You want a relationship? You want time, male attention, money, comfort and all these other things.. a fuck ton of qualities. And you can't just bend over and take some dick? Shit, you may even fucking like it? What a total failure of a girlfriend/wife. I have NO RESPECT whatsoever for women who are so parasitic and useless that they won't even pleasure their men. Of course the men burden blame for not leading her properly and making her feel like she should fuck him, but there's a fine line between a man being a bad captain and a woman just taking the piss with it.

Downplaying the importance of sex, shaming your partners sexuality whilst using your sexuality to control him/secure resources/commitment etc is as evil as it gets. Of course men like me, who make rant posts like this are meant to be the misogynistic cunts. Lets overlook the fact that what these women are doing is tantamount to neglect/emotional abuse. Women who say and believe the kinda crap in OP are selfish, dim, solipsistic and one-sided. Their opinions are a projection of how they treat men. Whenever a woman gives some dumb ass opinion like this when talking about someone else's relationship take it as a red flag. The fuck nugget women in that thread are demonstrating that they place no importance on sexually satiating their partners and rationalise it off with the asinine feminist sound bite of the day "her body, her choice." Feeling smug as fuck like they strung together a bunch of words which construe the argument to end all arguments.

I'm not even in the anger phase (that ended a long time ago) and I don't even give a fuck about this shit because like Jay-Z I've got 99 problems but a bitch ain't one. But shit, once in a while it's nice to go off on an aggressive rant and really nail a point home. I don't like to talk "with big words" all the time because I realise not everyone can appreciate what the fuck is being said if you don't keep things simple. If the points made hold no credence with you because the tone is too much for you to handle and you need sugar-coating & an academic tone to accept a viewpoint you don't hold, feel free to get the fuck out.

/rant

EDIT: All questions in this post were rhetorical.

After swallowing the pill years ago, I think I've found somebody worth marrying and I need advice.

62 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Ok you'll find most people in this sub are anti-marriage. People have different reasons for that. Some of the guys here are young, some of the guys here are older and divorced, whatever, there's a lot of different men from different backgrounds/ages/stages of life here and the resounding thing is that despite those differences, most of us are pretty anti-marriage. The reason for that is because legally marriage can be very damaging to a man, he has everything economically to lose in the case of divorce, whilst she has everything to gain, hence why women have no such fears.

The divorce statistics are high. Women instigate most divorces (70%+ of them) so marriage makes little sense, it means you're giving a woman legal and economic power over you, to screw you over and no matter how great your relationship is now it's delusional to think it will always remain so. You can't see the future, shit I'm the same age as you are, but in 10 years the dynamic could be different, or even 5 years, many marriages don't last past 2-3 years.

You have to decide to yourself why you should get married. Getting married because she wants it, because she's pressuring you into it is not a good reason to get married. The thing about women is they always push for more and more commitment, always. They want to procure and monopolise your resources (mental and material) to the maximum and they do that by ensuring you're emotionally bound to them as strongly as possible, the cruel thing is once they've won your commitment, if things fuck up for whatever reason, they're more likely to move on and leave you with nothing, whereas you will try to work things through because you don't want to lose all your shit in a divorce (plus you put your faith in this woman by giving her your commitment)

What you gotta remember is, women fight for our commitment, that's their end game in securing the value we bring. They always want to escalate things, and upgrade your commitment, but like they have the say "if we have sex or not" you have the say "if we get married or not" or "if we move in together or not" etc etc. Many guys don't realise this power they have, but your commitment is precious and women aren't simply entitled to it just like we aren't entitled to sex from every woman we see, she has to work for it.

The difference between sex and commitment is sex is a behaviour that lasts for a short-term, commitment is omnipresent and is long term. She can always deny you sex when you're married and there's nothing you can do about that, however when you're married you can't deny her your commitment without coming out of the picture worse off, how is that fair? It isn't. It's a horrible injustice and that's why your commitment is far more valuable than her sex and of course she'll have non-sexual things you like about her, but essentially sex is what defines a relationship as romantic, without that you're just friends, and you don't need to enter a marriage contract to be someones friend.

In fact, I don't have the study on hand, but it's shown that married men get far less sex from their wives than men who cohabit long-term with a girlfriend. You want to know why? Back to the commitment element - men who cohabit but don't marry haven't given up all their commitment to a woman, they're not trapped - she has no leverage over him, he can walk out any time and she can't stop him, she won't be entitled to half his shit so she has to keep to her side of the bargain and fulfill his sexual desires as part of the deal, a married woman has no such incentive to fulfill her duties because essentially once she's got a ring on your finger, she's won, she owns your ass and she has all the power over you, I know it sounds nasty and I'm not trying to be a dick, but that's how fucked up the legal system is, marriage is something that massively benefits women, and the incentive of a huge payout from you should your marriage fail is a massive incentive to an aging wife who simply cannot be bothered to make your marriage work.

Ok. So you have "one-itis" (I don't particularly like this term) but if you've had a lot of girls then it's not because you're beta (you know your way around ladies) but because you deem this particular lady to be much higher quality than what you're used to.

What are her strong points? What are her weak points? How much do you trust her? 9 months is a silly short time to be thinking of marriage. I dated a high quality woman for 2 years and we didn't marry or cohabit, and in the end shit went nuclear anyways. Don't be naive in thinking a high quality woman cannot fuck up or fuck with you "that she's different from the rest" that's BS, some women are better than others but none of them are immune to female bullshit, tantrums, nagging, lying, omission of truth, whatever. You may not be experiencing it now, but trust me when I say people change. If you are ever going to marry her, you wanna be together for 5,6,7 years, if she gives you her best years and you trust her enough, you can risk it, but always be aware it's a risk and have a plan to hide your assets/money in someone elses name/on an offshore island somewhere should she ever decide it'll be nice to divorce rape you. Put your house in your fathers name, if you ever own one together, for example.

Personally, I wouldn't do more than cohabit with her and have children, cohabit to start off with, give children 2-3 more years. That way she hasn't got all your commitment, but has a lot of it, I think it's the perfect spot when you really like a chick and essentially love her. She can't divorce rape you and isn't incentivised to do so, and she'll be a better girlfriend than she would wife because she still sees in the back of her mind "marriage" as something to work towards with you, to secure what she idealises as "maximum commitment" from you. You give up all your commitment to them and they have nowhere else to escalate to essentially. Like guys are always trying to escalate sexually, chicks are always trying to escalate commitment-wise, that's the currency between the genders for bonding.

- Is she smart? - Yellow Flag if she is, smarter chicks are better head fuckers but they're also easier to connect with for men on a mental level. Green flag if she's book smart, but has low machiavellianism. Red Flag if she's stupid as fuck or has high machiavellianism (very good at socially manipulating people.)
- Can she cook well? - Green Flag if she can, Yellow flag if she can't, she'll be less likely to do things around the house and whine about it. Red Flag if she thinks it's "your job" to cook for her.
- What are her friends like? - Green Flag if they are conservative/religious/feminine/approachable/sweet, Red Flag if they like to hit the clubs/bars a lot, talk shit about men/are openly combative and dispense shit tests like a condom machine.
- What are her parents like, what's her relationship with her dad like? - Green Flag if they get on well, Yellow Flag if she grew up to a single mother, Red Flag if the father was abusive, or the single mother is feminist leaning.
- Does she read bullshit magazines like COSMO? Green Flag if not - red flag if she does, it's full of brainwashing bullshit on "how to control your man" and it makes them act weird.
- Does she watch reality tv? - Yellow flag if she does, it shows a lack of culture/refinement but watching it now and again is no big deal most people have seen something at one time or another, red flag if she's constantly watching it and won't shut the fuck up about it, it's trash TV for young, dumb, stupid people - it burns time and adds no value, more likely to gain weight etc.
- Has she had a lot of sexual partners excluding you? You said 2 guys before you - so that's a green flag, she's not a whore. Although you have to be careful, women usually downplay the number of partners they've had. I'm not trying to make you insecure, but you don't know for sure it's as low as 2 guys. How good is she in the bedroom? If she's inexperienced/unconfident or was at least when you first met, that's basically a green flag, a ho knows what they're doing. Just hope she isn't a ho pretending to not be a ho by purposely acting shit in bed (hey there's some manipulative bitches out there!) although I know for most women, that's hyper-paranoia, so no need to think like that unless she's incredibly manipulative.
- Does she shit test a lot? You've been together (9 months?) she shouldn't be shit testing the hell out of you anymore. If she is, seeing as she's not a ho, it means she's incredibly insecure. A woman's severe insecurities can ruin your life, or at least severely decrease the quality of it as drama ensues, false accusations, deception, and all that BS. Green flag if she doesn't do it much, red flag if she does it a lot, yellow if it's occasional.

More than 2 red flags and it's not marriage-worthy, no matter how much charm/beauty she has.

If she's adamant you must marry, and won't accept any less from you then you have a major problem. That's a huge red flag to me, if a woman really loves you and you outline to her you don't believe in marriage because of the legal system and she still insists on it, that's a woman who doesn't care about your concerns/reasoning but is simply selfish to fulfilling her own princess-esque desires. Don't be forced into marrying, compromise mid-way at cohabitation (and make sure you're not in a civil marriage state)

Damn I typed a lot, best of luck to you with this one, I have a few alpha friends who've all recently suddenly been locked down by higher quality women and they start to lose their edge on things. You need to stay sharp and don't let her beauty/charms/oxytocin cloud your thinking.

EDIT: typos/grammar

Completely amazing stuff. Wife cheats on husband. But he made a clever prenup. She then says she was 'blackmailed' into cheating.

61 upvotes · 29 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

she probably is pregnant

Now let's play a game of guess the father.

Roosh came across as an autistic man on Dr. Oz

61 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She couldn't think of a comeback because she's a dumb fuck, so she had to quickly pretend it never happened by activating "selective hearing" aka the hamster wheel. What you're seeing there is a dumb catty chick get her just desserts.

Breitbart publish a defense of Patriarchy

61 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In times of struggle, it is masculinity which is valued. In times of opulence, it is femininity which is valued.

NEVER EVER trust women who say/act like they are "one of the guys" and have "mostly guy friends"

61 upvotes · 3 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, pretty much any woman say a 5 or above can do this. Men can do the same shit once their SMV is high enough (let's say they reach an 8) and they have the free time to do this: friend zone harem. Get yourself a bunch of preselection by getting girls lower smv than you to orbit you.

Say you reach an 8/10. You get 7's and 6.5's orbiting you. You build a lot of comfort with girls and flirt as much as you do to be playful, don't deliberately build attraction. They won't care, they'll only be mildly attracted due to SMV and lack of game targeted at them. You're "kinda cool" but no shared intense fuck me eyes or any high octane shit like that. Do this with a number of women and then go out collectively with them, as the only man there the preselection will have them all vying for you despite your minimal attraction building game. Fuck with 'em the way they collectively fuck with our beta brothers. Throw 'em all the "we're just friends line" "I see you like a sister" blah blah blah. Keep 'em in that friend zone limbo, let her bake you cookies and shit (assuming she can use anything more than a microwave.)

Surrounded by mildly attractive women you can get some 9 on your dick with all that preselection. Not only does it make you more attractive to other women, but it makes them trust you more. Herd mentality. Other women like him, therefore I like him. Other women trust him, therefore, I trust him. Oh, and, narcissism. Great way to build up your ego.

I've learnt a lot from women, their own tactics work amazingly well against them, too. People's girlfriends hate me. Can't say I blame 'em. Gotta play dumb better around women.

Feminism Has Destroyed My Family

61 upvotes · 28 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He let it happen, he didn't cause it to happen. When you live in a toxic environment you need a hazmat suit.

A short list of rules that has helped me a lot with interactions

61 upvotes · 3 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Pre-party-pump at the gym helps confidence

As an aside I recommend getting up at the crack of dawn (4am for example) and weight training so that you can take your confidence with you throughout the day and into work. If you want "a bit of pump" doing a single set of pressups/curls/squats should do the trick, stuff easily done at home and doesn't require getting to the gym to use a barbell. If you've got a 24 hour gym near you can get in there whilst all the gym bros and yoga pant wearing attention seekers who treat the gym as more of a social club rather than a workhouse are still fast asleep, more privacy, less bullshit. Great for introverts.

self depreciating

I think you mean deprecating.

Don't be too agreeable; never say more when you can say less

Yeah don't look desperate to build rapport, this is not merely taking one conversational element, relating to it and running with it, but how you do that. I'll give you an example. I've seen guys ask chicks where they're from, they say some place in the middle of nowhere that he has absolutely no fucking idea about and then he proceeds to try and guess its location on a map and tries desperately hard to associate something with that location, it comes off as try hard and socially awkward, only relate to shit that, you know, you can actually relate to, don't try to force rapport building with shit you know little of or give little fucks for just because you want to comfort build your way into some panties and cant find anything meaningful to talk about. If a guy such as myself can see how much desperation that reeks of, a woman can, and she's probably only going to overlook that if she's sufficiently drunk. Likewise if you're high/drun, you might actually find peoples boring ass lives such as where they live and who they know to be interesting and in that case not come off socially awkward, whatever works for you.

Leave most statements short and direct without needless explanation when explanation can be inferred

Less is more, always say less than necessary, let the other person work for your contributions rather than rambling on (something I do in real life, but not on reddit where I am deliberately trying to communicate information), that way it becomes a two person tic-for-tac exchange of speaking and listening rather than you going on about your job for 20 minutes explaining the technicalities off the bat which is sure to bore the vast majority of people.

On being "marriage material."

61 upvotes · 26 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If TRP ever became a mainstream intellectual framework then society would either a: collapse or b: a sizeable number of redpillers would evolve into neoreactionaries as they begin to analyze the entire system and implement change at the political and legal levels. Essentially it would be all out war with sex-positive feminism on an ideological scale which is the prevailing hegemonic ideology in the west as it stands, the shadowy figure of doublespeak and doublethink which stands defiant and omnipotent in what is a post-religious collection of societies.

All of this leads to increased amorality/immorality (rather than a moral/honorbound culture) it increases apathy, isolation, desensitization, distrust, sociopathy among other dysfunctional and inhospitable human behaviours. The decline is not sustainable and neither is trp's "playing the system" as "the system" will eventually change/evolve/de-evolve/crash. This is not a criticism of TRP as much as it is a reality of it, we are in a constant state of flux, by the time you have your own grandkids (assuming you chose to continue your line) the things you learnt here would need to be adjusted for the environment that your grandkids find themselves in when you distill RP knowledge to them, the most basic and rudimentary maxims will hold (like Schopenhauer's 19th century german philosophy or hypergamy, however the political climate and technology will change how people interact, eg: your grandad would think "text game" is beta, would have no concept of tinder, feminism was weaker so marriage wasn't out of the window - things like that) TRP is essentially pragmatic and contemporary, if the system changes then TRP will cease to be or will change with it (proving itself as an intellectual framework that is adaptive rather than maladaptive), having its history archived on the internet in relation to the-then contemporary issues of the time.

PUA evolved into TRP through self-awareness, basically, guys "woke up" (to a limited extent) and learnt society was fucked up in ways that were previously inconceivable to them because they couldn't get laid, women seemed weird to them, they felt out of place and they seemed to get a harder time than their female counterparts, unable to place their finger on what was off. The next step from TRP is to become a neoreactionary, that is, to understand the entire culture you live in and why it is how it is, not just the behaviours people in your culture exhibit. This is to dispel all of the leftist (note I say leftist, not liberal, leftism is not liberal in the truest sense of the word.)

Unfortunately, not everyone will make the complete journey. Along the road of PUA > TRP > NEOREACTION there is an intellectual incline, that is to say the further you go along the more brain power you need to comprehend what is going on.

Pua is easier to follow than TRP, you see that with people in this sub, some of the people that come here only give a fuck about game, approaching, building comfort, building attraction, escalating, getting laid, running a harem, going on a tinder rampage. That's literally all they give a damn about and all that shit falls within the realm of PUA, although relevant, PUA ALONE is the simplest form of neoreaction and it doesn't address the problems or acknowledge them, it merely circumvents the system so you can get laid. You don't need to be on TRP to do any of that, a PUA forum will cover all of that just fine.

TRP encompasses the latter (PUA) but within a different frame, it's more individualistic and begins to look at gender politics, it's essentially a mesh of Men's Rights, PUA and Self-Improvement, although the men's rights violations or lack thereof are merely identified, not campaigned for.

Neoreaction does not encompass TRP or PUA, it is more macro in nature (looks at society as a whole) whilst TRP and PUA are more micro in nature (PUA is more micro in nature than TRP as TRP at least looks at feminism and men's rights.)

Neoreaction is more about the analysis of prevailing ideology, the development of civilization into the future (transhumanism), how civilization got to where it is, how to save civilization, what happens if we don't save it, it's an analysis of "the collapse", attempts to predict the future, looks at recent history to explain the present, etc, etc it is a thorough dispellation of leftist myths and no doubt there are some individuals who have shared conspiratorial ideas in the vein of neoreaction. EG: Banking families. Whether those conspiracies are true or not? Who knows without actual evidence, you can't generalize banking families like you can generalize a gender you interact with on a daily basis, it's different.

TRP does not venture in its discourse outside gender differences, neoreaction looks at race differences, sexual orientation, everything. Things that will not go down well on TRP when it comes to race or sexual orientation, eg: IQ difference between races, human biological diversity etc etc are things neoreaction looks at. I've read neoreaction stuff that talks about the indoctrination and normalisation of homosexuality taking it out of the DSM and making it "a lifestyle" via glamorization, how the absence of religious adherence makes such lifestyles easier to adopt and circulate, the rabbit hole goes a lot deeper than TRP. A lot of people have neither the intellect, patience or even mental will to go beyond PUA, in essence it is the need to reproduce and the failure to do that which begins to wake men up, how far they go on their journey is down to their intellectual curiosity and capacity.

If PUA is a country, then TRP is a continent and neoreaction is the planet. Although I must add that TRP evolved out of PUA, neoreaction formed independently of TRP but like TRP is highly critical of the prevailing leftist rhetoric that is being indoctrinated into students via schools via the myth of egalitarianism (of which feminism is a sub-ideology), it is far more intellectualised and far less pragmatic than TRP, however combined they cohere quite well to form a more complete understanding. Ultimately it is TRP that will give you the power to act and behave and instigate change physically whilst neoreaction will further amplify your understanding of the world, in essence, neoreaction in the metaphorical sense is a "second red pill" not everyone needs it, and if you don't care about your genetic line but simply living well whilst you have your time on this Earth then TRP is more than enough. Neoreaction isn't for everyone, not everyone is revolutionary or an intellectual and that's fine but for those that are, there are definitely dots to be connected between TRP and neoreaction.

"Immigrants are not the problem, men are. Deport all men from Sweden immediately." - Magda Rasmusson, Swedish politician of the Green Party. (Translated from Swedish)

61 upvotes · 5 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why is someone this crazy and bigoted allowed to have power? Sweden really is the Saudi Arabia of Feminism. Holy fucking shit.

Two college students (male and female) have sex. The next day the woman writes to the man: "I had a wonderful time, but I'm sorry I led you on, I'm not ready for a relationship". One year later: She files a charge of "non-consensual sexual contact" through the college disciplinary system.

61 upvotes · 17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a perfect example of what hamster logic is. Fucking hell.

TIME writer argues women should pay more for healthcare based on using more. Comment hamsters say author and free market "hate women"

61 upvotes · 23 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism is expensive, which is why none of the poor countries are feminist.

"Dating a single mom is like playing someone elses saved game."

61 upvotes · 23 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"I got 0 points for analogies on the SAT."

Haha. I'mma do that thing when I feel like I'm losing my own brain cells to make something that seems simple to me, clear - by explaining why this metaphor holds true.

Firstly, the reason dating a single mother is like playing someone else's save game is because she made some terrible serious life decisions and decided to have a child by a man who wasn't going to stick around (alpha fucks) or because she's so annoying/crazy or otherwise undesirable that the beta she had couldn't stand her and thus didn't want to stick around.

Now it's just her and a kid, in a day and age where women are very astute at eyeing up a man's earning potential and net desirability as a full package and have full power over when and how they give birth, with birth control and a multitude of contraceptive methods, a woman who's single with a kid cannot be that intelligent, she consciously decided to bring that child into the world despite unfavourable life circumstances. One exception to this conclusion is if the father of the child died due to his job or natural causes (if he's a gangster, again, bitch made a bad choice.) Saying he's an alcoholic or a deadbeat, or violent are not valid excuses because she chose that man.

Hypergamy makes women very good at judging a man's suitability for monogamy and sexually it's her body that she has full control over, thus when she fucks up and ends up a single mother she needs to take responsibility for having that extremely weak, stupidly poor judgement for conceiving rather than shifting all the blame onto the father who had no say in whether the child was born or not, she's a victim alright, a victim of her own ignorance and piss poor mate selection.

You don't have children with people who are "deadbeat" or any other label that single mothers apply to the absent fathers of their children. Thus one can only conclude that unless the father died at war or of some kind of disease, the fact she is single with a kid is poor judgement on her part, she's a dumb bitch. Dumb bitches don't make attractive LTR material, if they fuck up something huge like having a kid with a low quality man, you're inclined to think they'll fuck up other things like finances and create other problems down the track should you hypothetically commit to her.

Secondly, she'll prioritise her child over you, you play second fiddle to that kid. The sprog of another man. This is a hit to the male ego, almost, a man's sense of integrity. Resources that could be going in to his own genetic lineage would be going towards another man's lineage, and why? Because he's romantically interested in a dumb bitch who decided to give birth to a low quality man's child despite the fact he's such a "deadbeat" like she had no control to kill the fetus or take the contraceptive pill or the morning after pill or get an implant or get her tubes tied etc etc etc. No, she had full control, she took no action - it's her fault entirely here. Oh there's also the small fact "it's not your kid" which will be used against you in arguments not just from her but by the kid itself "you're not my father."

Thirdly, you're expected to invest more financial and emotional resources into the relationship due to her bad life situation. She'll be more needy and demanding of you, she'll take out her frustrations and self-perceived victim status of bringing up a child by herself on you whilst demanding more out of you because of this and then not appreciating you for it because she's stressed out perpetually due to the results of her own poor decision making.

TLDR: Single mothers have far more emotional issues and have far less to offer in a relationship because their priorities and time are monopolised by another man's kid. They are a risky investment.

Furthermore due to these issues, they demand more in terms of resources and emotional validation from you. More work for less reward. Don't date a single mother, she made her mistakes which she had full power over to thwart or otherwise control and thus she must now pay the price for her mistakes, don't rescue a damsel in distress when she's the reason she's in distress to begin with.

How the Feminine Imperative is Destroying Reddit... on Purpose

60 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a brilliant, concise and succinct post RPS. Kudos. Bravo.

So they tone police and frame it as morality, but make no mistake the end goal is to prevent discussion from happening that does not conform to the feminine imperative. Because the very discussion is a threat. Knowledge is a threat.

The irony is, hypergamy and female sexual plurality (AF/BB) is not moral in the slightest, in fact, it's ruthless utilitarianism can be damn right immoral. It's more a case of "do as I say, not as I do" with women/the feminine imperative. What's good for them, is not good for you. They police our freedom so they can enjoy theirs. They even go so far to say that clueless nice guys are immoral, as they berate and exploit such men. I mean seriously, what the fuck? How perverse can you get with that shit. Nice guys are just idiots, they are not immoral for trying to "kindness their way into sex" at all. They don't know a better strategy. It's pretty naive and innocent in my view.

You know what you'll never catch me doing? Denouncing the anger, the fringe, or any of the extreme elements of The Red Pill. You know why? Because it serves absolutely no purpose but to appease the feminine imperative. And once that sneaky little bitch gets her foot in the door, that's when the race to the bottom begins.

Word. I am of the same view. I tire of the guys who immediately invalidate something because it was said angrily. Some of the realest shit you will ever hear a man speak will be said with a tone of righteous anger. If you don't like anger, why do you like Patrice O'Neal? Exactly.

Fight feminism by doing nothing

60 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Seems these days men and women only care about women.

True. I make an effort to do the opposite (to look out for men and ignore women) because nobody else is doing it. I like to help vulnerable people when I can and the cost is negligible (generosity is an alpha trait) but I find that women are very quick to play the victim when really, they are not. Antithetically, men, out of masculine pride and a need to put on a show of strength, try to conceal their struggles even though they desperately need help and are a mess on the inside. That's why as someone in a position to help others you have to get good at reading between the lines. Don't judge books by their covers when it comes to lending a helping hand. Use a Machiavellian eye to discern those who truly need help and likewise those just playing you for a sucker eager to exploit kindness for ruthless self-gain.

The other week I saw this kid running as fast as he could panting for the bus, but the bus was pulling away. I was walking by the bus stop on the way home and saw the situation unfolding, so immediately I just aggressively banged on the doors as the driver was getting ready to leave. The driver stopped focussing on the road, stopped the bus briefly and opened the doors. This delayed the bus enough to let the kid get on, all I said to him (the look on his face was priceless) is "I got you." I could tell he wasn't used to people doing shit for him, and nice gestures from strangers are about as rare as they come in England nowadays (I blame multiculturalism, lack of religious values and a lack of a sense of community, but those are all topics for another time.) Nevertheless, that was my civic duty done for the day. For all I know that kid was trying to get to a job interview or had some place important to be. It didn't hurt me (or him) to help, so I did.

A gay man's take on the friend zone

60 upvotes · 19 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Men tend to be higher quality individuals than women as they can't scoot by on sexuality and victim cards to get everything provided for them.

Women in general are just far too entitled now and it's incredibly repulsive. Entitlement makes a chick more unattractive (obviously speaking as a straight guy) it makes you want to avoid her because if you had to stay around that level of arrogance for too long you'd want to knock the silly bitch out. There's excessive self-confidence and then there's the expectation that you're so great you don't need to do shit. Bitches cross that line from confident to narcissistic all the time.

People who don't have your back who expect you to have theirs operating that one way street shit aren't worth the crap. You have to ditch them on principle. It can suck a lot but it's the right thing to do - they don't give any fucks about you.

Great post. Welcome.

Spain - A Femminazi's Wetdream

59 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Where have all the good men gone? I want a good man, but I always want the power to fucking nuke shit too, should I get bored or just feel like it. Good men would understand this. Good men, where are you?

LOL.

Man faces 6 months in prison for disagreeing with feminist on twitter (No joke..)

59 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists are ready to threaten your livelihood the second you don't toe their line, regardless of past interactions.

Briffaults Law is real. Prime example of that right here.

She behaves as if she was beautiful. Most American women do.

59 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women fuck men up, and by fucking them up, they help them in the most perverse way possible. Your mother will fuck you up by being a massively detached bitch. If your mother was a sweetheart then she will fuck you up by setting a standard for femininity that a partner will never be able to match. Maternal love is better than girlfriend love, but women can't be your girlfriend if they give you the richer maternal love.

Your girlfriend(s) will treat you like shit if you were a beta, and that will fuck you up and bring you to TRP or if you're unlucky, askmen or some BP place. That's what happens to most guys. If your mother was a bitch and you were raised to be a detached narcissist with women, women will "love you too much" and you will never feel the same for them. So your mother fucks you up, and then the women who only want bad boys get fucked up by you and your mummy issues.

Whatever happens, you are getting fucked up by a woman somewhere, which is going to make you fuck a woman up - which is going to make her fuck up some beta somewhere - and the cycle just goes on and on. This is just the way it is. Best chances to not get fucked up are to have a decent mother and an RP alpha as fuck father who mitigates all her motherly shit and tells you that no other woman is ever going to love you like your mother does. That mum is exception to the rule, because normal bitches won't love you like mum does.

You get a weaker love than your mother taught you to expect from women as a boy - and you will never get that maternal love from a woman in a romantic context. With women, fathers teach them paternal love and they look for this experience within a romantic context. They can get it if their game is good. It's not an impossibility for a stable, healthy relationship - women getting paternal love from their boyfriend that is.

Getting maternal love from your girlfriend, on the other hand, will ruin the relationship. She can use you to replace daddy, but you can't use her to replace mummy. The game is rigged because that's just how the rules of attraction work. You can't even blame the bitch, she likes what she likes and she doesn't what she doesn't.

That is the unfairness of the hierarchy of love, women get the paternal love they're looking for without fucking the relationship up, men don't get the maternal love they want from a woman without seeming like an unattractive beta bitch. Guy wants to do cute shit with his girl in his down time? Oh look Mr. Alpha isn't slapping asses and being generally intimidating, looks like he wasn't the alpha she thought he was after all. Time to dump his ass for a guy who will be more mentally abusive and give less fucks.

Men aren't allowed to crave romance. Only women get to crave all the cute romantic shit and still be respectable to the other person in the relationship. The most ironic thing out of all of this is how men love more deeply, but only women are able to demand romance and still be respected within the relationship. How crazy is that? Those who love less have the freedom to be romantic without ruining anything. Those who love more in general (men) are loved less (by women) for being too romantic. Because even from a position of strength, done too often romance is seen as weakness, and weakness is always unattractive to women. It is truly absurd shit.

Love is for women and children, not because men don't want it - but because having it ruins men, it removes the power they need to be socially and sexually successful. And that is the difference between children, women and men. Men need power to be loved. Women and children don't, they just have to exist.

Maternal love is for children, respect and fear is the closest thing to non-maternal love that women have in a romantic context. And that shit isn't really love or romance as man imagines it. It's the weak way that women love. Not the idea that man has of how woman should love him - just the half-assed way that she does.

Cheating wife tells her lover (me) how loyal she REALLY is.

59 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Guess how I responded.

I should imagine you told that transparent parasitic bitch to go fuck herself. Better yet, you fuck her, then leave 5 dollars on the side "get yourself a coffee, my treat."

Video response to "Go Pro NCY Street Harassment" video

59 upvotes · 29 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hot women and ugly women have different sexual strategies, both are using a methodology to fulfil their own personal versions of the feminine imperative.

Hot women call this shit out because it makes them popular with guys who think "wow, not just a pretty face, maybe I'll LTR this deliciously attractive whore!"

Ugly women are like "I can't compete with these hot women" so she starts saying "unattainable beauty standards! sexual object! patriarchy!"

If you really think about it, it makes perfect sense.

My[20F] boyfriend[21M] is being poisoned by The Red Pill. Help.

59 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember guys, if you advocate manipulating women in the way women advocate manipulating men (in person and in magazines like cosmo) then it's misogyny but they're allowed to trick you into getting them pregnant, cock tease you, use sex or the implication of sex (friend zone) to exploit you/extract material benefits from you and etc. If you say anything negative about women, it's misogyny, even if it's a valid opinion. It's especially misogyny if you use vitriolic language to make your viewpoint, even if what you're saying is true, remember with blue pill folks "it's feelz before reelz!"

Or, you know, it's taking the gassed up highly-esteemed self-validating, self-fellating cult of feminine worship off the pedestal and saying "fuck that shit." Worshipping women gets you no where, you lead them. Lead is sometimes a euphemism for control, other times it means "guide and take charge", think what you want. Oh what controlling women is evil? Why isn't women controlling men evil? Oh right I forget, you're used to feminine primacy and women = PURE even when doing immoral shit, but men are always IMMORAL regardless of whether they decide they're going to make a stand and take control or not. With that kind of cultural logic, I'd rather take a stand any day, thanks.

Basically, if it's pro-female at the expense of the integrity of men, it's OK, but if it's pro-male and comes at the expense of women, it's misogyny. Fuck that shit, as far as I'm concerned women around me are not more important to me than I am, too many men put women first and look it where it gets them - fucking nowhere. The worst position you can be in is the position this guy is in, afflicted and confused, possibly mentally ill (if she isn't just gaslighting him convincing him he's ill for accepting TRP and feeding him "blue pills" and then hyping it up as mental illness - Machiavellian as fuck by the way if that's the case) as he has no time or space to find himself, every little change he makes is scrutinised and ridiculed by this woman who puts her needs over his, would she allow him to change and let him go if that's what he deduced is best for himself or does she know best? Would she seek to control him because "OMG red pill is evil" or the real reason: she likes the guy she knew, if he improved himself he may be too good for her, his personality may not complement hers any more and she doesn't want to lose the security/companionship she has with him so she will fight to stop him from changing whether that change is a good or a bad one, she doesn't even want to take the risk, she is robbing him of his agency to choose for himself.

You could argue "she's doing it for the greater good" so will she manipulate him "for the greater good" ?? Because that's exactly what we advocate here when we talk about manipulating women, doing it for "the greater good" (it improves the relationship etc.) If it's fine to manipulate people for "the greater good" then that shouldn't be a feminine exclusive privilege because then it begins to look abusive, especially and quite ironically, coming from people who claim to believe in equality but who define equality as "giving women more rights/power/cultural bias to bring them up to the level of men" when they're not even beneath men, they are legally and culturally hegemonic, this is a thoroughly feminised culture, so all they do is elevate women in a culture where women are already the dominant social force.

Fellas, keep looking out for yourselves, you have no personal responsibility to the women of society, if your mother is decent to you then be decent to her, the same goes for any family members, but don't go around kissing female ass because the cult of society fucking demands it, they gave away their right to be treated like special snowflakes a long time ago when they demanded emancipation and started demeaning men by saying they're like bicycles for fish, irrelevant. Suck it up ladies, you're on your own, enjoy your feminism, cat ladies are a real thing, yeah it's used to neg you, but think of all the women you know who are old and single.. they're generally out of shape and own a cat - that could and will be you if you don't get some lessons from /r/redpillwomen. Men: keep buying into the shit society tells you and be a depressed castrated little bitch or come and reclaim your manhood, unfortunately doing what's best for yourself means you can't kiss the ass of women and society, once upon-a-time, * shock, horror * that was considered normal, you know, standing up for yourself and not allowing shaming language such as "misogyny" dictate who and what you decide to do with your life and how.

Good luck to the guy in OP, he fucking needs it.

Got slapped by a fat girl last night and got told to leave. What do?

59 upvotes · 30 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The world's not a fair place man, I know really bright men reduced to working in the service industry because their families are broken and thus they were born absent of social capital, I also know very average and shit even a really dumb guy whose dad owned a very successful pest control company who have designer clothes, holidays, boats, expensive alcohol, and have decent partying socialite lifestyles all because their families provided. It's all about the family you're born to, people say hard work triumphs all but it doesn't, hard work is only part of the equation, hard work alone won't put you in even the top 20% because the people with power work desperately to keep you out and remain relevant. You need fearlessness and machiavellianism along with hard work to break the 20% barrier IF YOU CAME FROM NOTHING/very little assuming you're an average person and not some savant genetically gifted in finding mathematics and quantum mechanics an absolute breeze and thus glide up the system academically (in a meaningful and profitable way - which is in the hardest fields.)

Social class aside humans aren't fair either, everything is about respect, absolutely everything, if someone doesn't respect you they will shit all over you no matter how illogical that is, male, female, black, chinese, doesn't fucking matter, people will shit on you if they think you are weak, people will exploit you if they think you are weak and useful. That's humans for you, pretty fucking exploitative creatures. When you first realise that you may get all misanthropic but once you realise that's just how people survive, exploiting the weak/useful and kicking down the weak/useless you adopt a "hate the game, not the player" attitude. Here's some perspective: That guy has a shit job where he gets paid little to stand around being a physical deterrent, his value is in his attitude and his stature and that's how he makes a crust. No doubt he is dirt poor and bored as fuck most of the time. You getting slapped by some bitch gave him a cheap laugh, it's nothing personal, it just brightened up his sad and boring job/life for a few seconds. Yes it's unfair you were kicked out but that's just his impulsive hierarchical respect-based psychology going off, there was no logic or intent behind it, that's just how it went. Learn from it for next time.

Sunday TRP humor - girl requests open relationship while on vacation, boyfriend starts immediately fucking another girl, girlfriend melts down.

59 upvotes · 23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And of course he would have the same opportunity as me, he would be able to freely see girls if he chose to.

Daniel's a bit of a homebody - he goes out with his friends on occasion, but most nights he spends in our apartment playing video games or watching netflix. Given his lifestyle I wasn't overly worried he'd be hooking up with all these random girls.

Behold that manipulation right there guys. She tries to sound like she's reasonable but she knows exactly what she's doing, this is a power game and premeditated. She's in an environment to fuck and she's the girl (does the choosing, not the convincing) in the mating game whilst he's just sat at home and is a guy and therefore must work much harder to get sex. She tries to sell it as a fair deal, but if it was a fair deal she wouldn't offer it - this is an entirely one-sided deal and she tries to make it seem like she's buying into the whole equal shit but she's not, the dynamics of this situation clearly favour her rather than him, she exemplifies that by saying "I don't expect him to get with a girl anyway" whilst she parties half way across the world with a bunch of sluts and wants to be guilt-free of being a whore.

"I have debated for days whether to send this to you and potentially ruin your vacation. But you deserve to know the truth. Daniel has been seeing another woman since you left. There is no doubt that he is seeing her, she has come over most nights and I have heard them being intimate. You deserve so much better. I'm so sorry."

The old lady goes to bat for the woman's team straightaway, knowing nothing of the situation and saying this chick deserves better. That's the joke, she's the one who instigated the infidelity. Notice how quickly and unquestionably she sided with the woman? 99.9% of women do this and are like this.

I thought I could handle this open relationship arrangement. I can't. This message shattered my heart into a million pieces. This isn't what I intended at all

She could handle it if it was on her terms and she had it under control, she can't handle it because her supposedly introverted boyfriend who wouldn't get any tail is smashing the next girl and she hasn't even got herself some dick yet. She's heartbroken because essentially he violated their relationship before she did. It's hilarious I can't help but see the dissonance in the double standard here.

I regret ever taking Michelles advice and opening my stupid mouth. I dont want him to fuck other girls, i dont want to fuck other guys.

Now he's demonstrated high value by showing he can get other girls, you suddenly find him attractive again and get a little bit of respect, this is fucking dread game in full swing right here. Michelle poisoned this girls mind with bluepill bullshit and she was an idiot to put it into action. Michelle is not the kind of person I'd want any of my girlfriends hanging around with.

People arent allowed to change their minds or regret their decisions?!

You must take responsibility for your actions young girl.

How do I go about contacting him and expressing that this needs to stop NOW without coming across like a crazy hypocritical bitch?

You always want to have your cake and eat it. First it was not losing your relationship while going and fucking some strange whilst you thought he couldn't get any. Now you know he's getting some you want your cake again by reasserting your dominance over him and expecting him to just "trust you" to have enough self-discipline to not fuck anyone for the next few months. This is fucking hilarious honestly. I love the U-TURN here, the only reason you changed your mind at all was because he got another pussy, if he hadn't you'd have been a slut and had no regrets. So simple and so easy to read.

I am beyond hurt, this feels so wrong and so sick.

Because he beat you at your own game, you lose. You took a risk and it didn't pay off, you got greedy.

Tory says i should email him saying "what i said before about opening our relationship was a mistake. I havent slept with anyone here and i dont want to. Youre my parter and i dont want to compromise what we have. Please be faithful as I will be to you. I love you." Simply dont tell him about Kay's email or that i know there's another woman. Thoughts?

These bitches are just born with manipulation skills aren't they? This is all total horseshit designed just to stop him fucking this other girl because she can't handle it. Again, hilarious.

Girlfriend of 10 Years Cheats on an "Amazing Guy"

59 upvotes · 13 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My girlfriend has some very red pill views of her own. She hates feminism, accepts the differences between men and women, believes heavily in monogamy and while she is still a woman, is often able to step back and recognize when she's running on feeling rather than rationality. She's an awesome girl and I'm happy to have her in my life.

These are the best LTR material girls, she's a red pill woman essentially.

I should mention, about a year ago N's mother died and she didn't really deal with it at all, just buried down and didn't even talk about it with E much. Her dad also starting dating really fast, like within' three months of her moms death.

No excuse for cheating, but it does fuck people up and change their personalities.

About two months ago, she told me about how her friend E's girlfriend; who we'll call "N"; had made a new guy friend at her job. He had started talking to her, and had come over to their house to drop something off. This guy stayed for about two hours and chatted with N. When E found out about it (he was at work at the time) he said that it wasn't to happen again, and his girlfriend said it wouldn't.

I hear shit like this time and time again, a woman is in a solid relationship but some new guy with game, looks and charm comes around. Woman can't resist him/her feelings, fucks the guy and cheats. Women have no fucking self control at all. This shit always makes me think of islamic culture, where they don't let women spend time with men who they aren't related to by blood or married to. Everything is separated, including the workplace/libraries everything, a segregation between men and women - because essentially you can't trust a woman to override her own feelings and not cheat, you have to enforce it. It's extreme, but it works.

Eventually my girlfriend confronts N with a pre-written letter saying that if she doesn't tell E that she's still texting this guy and essentially emotionally cheating on him that she'll do it for her in exactly seven days. N tells my girlfriend that she had started talking to E about how she wasn't feeling as happy in the relationship anymore and that she didn't know where the two of them were headed. E, being madly in love with her and what would be called a beta provider by this point in the relationship buys her flowers and tries to make her feel like she did at the beginning. At this point I knew the timer on the bomb was set.

Shows your girl has morals, that's helpful although if a guy games her enough they probably won't overcome her feelings.

N tells E everything... well not everything. First it's that she's not happy in the relationship. Then after E pushes; that she made out with him one time, but immediately regretted it. Then finally, after more and more pushing that she has fucked this guy at least two times.

Hahahaha it's the infamous trickle truth. Woman words are worth little. She was just trying to save her own ass/reputation, she didn't even respect her man of 10 years enough to give him the truth. Women are inherently selfish.

These two had one of those relationships that all their friends used as a measuring stick against. Literally everybody considered them unbreakable. They were the glue that held the group together.

You all thought she was a unicorn but she wasn't. I wouldn't say she's a hoe, but she's an adulterer/disloyal.

Once E has some time to process everything that's happening (he needs to find a new place to live, and start healing) I intend on slowly introducing him to the red pill views, and eventually this sub-reddit. It will definitely be a case of baby steps.

Why has he moved out? Why has she not been kicked the fuck out seeing as she's the one cheating? TRP will be good for the guy, shit like this happens all the time and TRP has probably helped saved a lot of guys from the demons that are inside themselves. He's lucky to have someone like you show him the sub/be there for him, a lot of men have no guys of quality looking out for them.

Needless to say, I know that this sort of thing can happen to me too, and that I am now firmly red pill for good. I may not be the HVM that I want to be right now, but every day I get a little closer, and there is absolutely no way I will ever allow myself to get hurt the way my friend's been hurt. I love my girlfriend, but I know one thing for sure: You can always trust a woman to be a woman.

Yep. You can always trust a woman to be a woman. A woman is only as loyal as her options (hypergamy), this is why I don't believe in LTRs with girls higher than an 8 - they have too many options and the work needed to put in to maintain them isn't worth the high value pussy/aesthetics. Honestly you're better off leasing 8s/9s/10s and only "buying" 7-7.5s in my opinion. It's good this helped you internalise the pill and that you're able to improve yourself from this bullshit. A thin silver lining is better than none.

I ask a girl out, she rejects me. 6 months later, she asks me out. The tables turn.

58 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

But if you're available, you know my number ;)

"Please let me be your plate so that I can slowly worm my way into LTR status!"

And then after that, you get the closest thing to philosophy that women bar Rand have ever developed: "where is this going? - where do you see us a few months from now? - are you just using me for sex? I think I deserve more. I know I deserve more."

I love it when bitches get Socratic about relationship status. Have fun with that shit-mine.

When you're horny you know you're going to hit her up for a booty call if you don't lose that number. Unless of course, you get other plates.

I don't like the oneitis factor with that girl. You developed it once. It can be redeveloped.

The Red Pill, You & Morality

58 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no reason why we have to apply the same moral standard to everyone we interact with. Justice, fairness, and respect are things I try to cultivate between me and my male friends, my "honor group." It is good to have friends, and in order to cultivate a real friendship between people you need these values. But that doesn't mean you have to extend those things to the random on the street who you've never met before. There is no trust between strangers. If I'm looking to build a friendship with one, I'll treat him well so that a friendship can grow out of it.

All things considered, that is a sensible stance to take.

Father writes open letter to daughter about 50 Shades and how it is a great thing that most men today are betas.

58 upvotes · 14 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd boycott the soap on principle. I'm sure there's a company with less faggotry attached to that promotes a similar product. Vote with your wallet, it's the only way anybody listens. In fact part of the reason feminist bullshit is promoted is because women control so much consumer spending. Some companies can find a niche by catering to men and not getting involved in any of this BS.

Charles Manson's Wedding is cancelled after psychopathic plan is discovered; she was using him.

58 upvotes · 10 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The dark triad woman is infinitely more dangerous than the dark triad male in my opinion. They have the sex appeal going (soft power/desire power-play/leverage) and all the added crazy of being a woman anyway. More intense emotions = higher volatility in women. Add on the psycho components and you've got yourself a fucking basket case here.

Obligatory link to an article on the dark triad woman:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/02/17/lucifers-daughter/>

I love mainstream psychology, they're so full of shit when it comes to psychopathic women. Medicalising 'em all as victims. I've known some pretty psychopathic people in my life. Let me tell you something. If they think you see them as a victim, they play the role, exploit your kindness, and then dump you at the nearest opportunity. The higher functioning psycho bitch that inspired that article was always pretending to be ill, or that someone died or making up some bullshit to get out of her obligations. She'd do this like insecure glance at the floor and soften up her voice it was fucking hilarious. She had really convincing fake body language, so people who read body language who think "the body doesn't lie" would be convinced by her BS. She was a delight to psychoanalyse. She was just operating on a level most people can't even comprehend. All the fucking idiot people ate her bullshit up though, although she didn't even pretend to be sweet or soft like most bitches so pretty much everyone could see "SOMETHING IS REALLY OFF ABOUT THIS CHICK."

In OP, that chick was quite literally going to display a motherfucker's remains for profit. That's cold. It's all about winning with them anyway, I don't think they're capable of really actually giving a shit about anyone other than themselves. Don't get me wrong, some psychopaths can, they're not all the same. But I can spot this "sub-type" from a mile off, IMO, they're the most dangerous. Especially when they're female.

BPD women are so boring. They always get called DT. They are like the bottom feeders of the DT spectrum. When you meet a "real" psychopathic woman you'll know, it's a combination of insane intelligence, constant shit tests and incredible mental violence. They also fuck like animals. Heightened like a motherfucker, but they don't get the "ups and downs" of less functional DTs. They are always just "i don't give a fuck" psychos. I've only known one DT chick like that. The rest were all annoying ass BPDs creating fucking drama all the time. Now some psychos like drama because they can't feel shit, personally I can get my kicks in more efficient, less annoying, less time-rapey ways.

Judging the elaborateness of the scheme and the lack of an emotional component, eg: she's not faking illness to make him show affection/strengthen the commitment (typical BPD behaviour - hysterical bonding) but she actually just doesn't GIVE A FUCK, I'm more inclined to arbitrarily say she's the more higher functioning psychopath. Not sociopath, not BPD, not oh my feeeeeeeelings. Just a cold fucking psychopath, ok? Those women exist, even though everyone likes to pretend black unicorns don't - they do. I know, I've met one. Literally one. In my entire life. I've met a lot of bitches. They're outliers, they make DT men "fall in love." It's actually pretty fucked up. I keep away from 'em. They're hot as hell, but they're impossible to fuck without the apocalypse kicking off. They fail cost benefit analyses. Less rational DTs usually end up dating 'em. Violent low IQ drug dealer types, shes smarter so she can control his drug money and bla bla bla u get the idea.

Women Lack Self Control

58 upvotes · 26 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She thinks, therefore she feels

I'd say she feels (tingles,) therefore, she thinks. But that's just pedanticism on my part. Otherwise, good post.

You guys were right.

58 upvotes · 15 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"You never get to just love a bitch" - Patrice O'Neal

Red Pill Theory Weekend: Friday - Sunday (Sept 26-28)

58 upvotes · 26 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sex objects and success objects.

Women in the workplace - an allfemale distaster

58 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck them they can't do shit just don't be overt its all male by design

Beta's GF wants an open relationship to fuck his best friend. Hates it, but may allow it because her "sexuality was trapped by the conventions of our monogamous relationship."

58 upvotes · 16 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The power of the hamster is boundless

My fiancée is telling me to fuck other women

58 upvotes · 27 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Out of curiosity, how is she dictating the relationship?

She's telling him who to fuck. That's an order. It's inherently his choice as a man to decide who he fucks, not hers. She's robbing him of his agency by framing herself as the controller of his sexual habits.

Why is this bad?

Women hate to lead, they want a man who is credible who they can give up their power to and be feminine with. They like power but they hate the burden of responsibility. Women who wear the trousers end up disrespecting their man and leaving him for a man they do respect. Ask a woman, most who have been hit over the head with feminism will say they love it, but in practice they hate it - what they say and what they do don't match up.

Should a man be the one to dictate it, or should it be balanced?

There's no such thing as absolute equality in a relationship, there's always a first and a second place. A man should always be in charge in order for both parties to be happy. We use the "captain and first mate" analogy, her views are important in the relationship, but essentially the man has the final say. You have to give women what they need, not what they want - and those things aren't always the same thing. The average man is blessed with an emotional grounding and far more logical mind than is the average woman, he must use these skills to steer the relationship away from disaster. This is why men value their commitment, the burdens a man must take on to successfully navigate a relationship with a woman are intricate and numerous.

If you don't believe me, try leaving a woman to lead your relationship and see how long it lasts and/or how messy it can get.

Why Doesn't Laci Green Teach Good Blowjob?

57 upvotes · 5 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Beauty is power. Beauty in some weird niche like video game streaming where most guys have ZERO game = mega power. $20k a month to talk to betas? Fucking hell. That is... sad. Words don't describe how fucked up that is. Girls doing ass to mouth are making less. Crazy world.

Mother hopes her daughter will ride the cock carousel:"I have a daughter, and one day she's going to discover that there's a whole sea of dicks out there to go swimming in. I hope she uses protection and enjoys every second of it."

57 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No, we know there's a double standard. She'd teach him to be beta because women can't teach boys masculinity.

Don't blame women. Blame yourself.

56 upvotes · 14 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

in woman-world, it's not the person who actually fixes the problem who gets credit. It's the person who notices it and complains about it first.

This is gold, and very true. I never let people take credit for my accomplishments unless I have ascertained it is wise to do so. Your woman is never your superior, so you should not let her take credit for your accomplishments. If she is your superior, be prepared for a shitty relationship, abandonment or to be cucked/used as a wage slave. That is female nature, it's not your fault they default to that - but you are responsible for your own strength.

Women will try to take credit, albeit with less conviction, whether they had to tell you to do something or not. What's yours is "ours," what's hers is hers. Her successes are hers "she's a strong independent woman," your successes are "ours" - "you wouldn't be able to conquer the world without her to come home to, to cook and suck your cock."

Women are very good at controlling the social narrative. They are the lore keepers in family. They remember all the bullshit that happened from years and years ago, and the intricacies of specific relationships. Of course they alter what happened with their own desired narrative. It's seems to be a female instinct. The ability to define the narrative with utter conviction. They try to do this in your relationship, should you have one, too. It's not malicious, it's just their nature. You are always at war, whether you like that notion or not. That's irrelevant.

Your masculinity is always being tested, because, women are insecure and leech off a man's strength.

Women get status from their guys, part of that is, like an overbearing parent, taking credit for his accomplishments. Just like your mother will say "without my good parenting, he wouldn't be a lawyer" your wife will say the same thing "he couldn't do his high-powered job without me washing pots and pans at home." It's what women do. They take more credit than they deserve. Sure they help, but you wouldn't put the laboratory assistant who just cleans instruments on the name of a scientific paper. They are assistants, not part of the process itself.

Relevant: <http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.co.uk/2011/05/law-7-get-others-to-do-work-for-you.html>

It doesn't matter how shitty women may be on an individual level or as a collective, it's male nature to blame himself and to want to see the best in women. I believe it's genetic. Google the "women are wonderful effect." Sometimes, personally, although my "beef" isn't emphatic with women, I feel I have to counterbalance against all this "women aren't that bad, you're the one who is the problem" talk.

Yes a lot of guys are the problem, they have a role to play, but so do women. If you play your role and she doesn't play hers, your woman is a cunt. Don't beat yourself up, don't keep "if only I were more like X" just walk the fuck away or get henpecked for the rest of your life stuck with a woman you've made yourself powerless to leave (don't get married.) Hyperagency and hypoagency, look it up.

We walk a thin line between "fulfilling our duties" and "not fulfilling our duties, eliciting the worst in women and then failing to see our own faults AND JUST blaming them for our own faults." No. You must be able to see when you failed, and see whether her failure is contingent on yours, or not. As a leader, you have more responsibility in the fact that, if you lead poorly, those you direct will perform poorly. BUT YOU MUST BE AWARE OF THIS: If you lead well, and they still perform poorly, that's not your fault.

The logic: "it's never their fault, if I had led well, then their performance wouldn't have been poor - is fallacious. And I have seen this in men, particularly married men, over and over again. It's easier to blame yourself than understand what the fuck is actually going on. And most men beat themselves up to the detriment of their own mental health in that manner.

I see this trap in male thinking all the time. Everything is always your fault. It's not that, she was raised poorly and has toxic friends/family/media influence or anything like that, and no matter how well you do - she will not perform up to standard. Where the only thing you are really at fault for is for choosing a woman of such poor breeding. No, you tell yourself that you're obviously weak and it's all your fault. That your inability to be hyper-masculine is why she is the way she is. That if perhaps you were more of a controlling psychopath, she'd fall in line. But that isn't reasonable thinking. And men easily become illogical when it comes to women.

A lot of the time the male is weak. Especially nowadays. We see that. But a lot of women are just fucked up beyond belief nowadays. We see that too. So are you the one that's fucking up, was she fucked up long before you met her, or is it some combination of both? Because you can't fix a hoe. You can't save a hoe. All you can do is do your part and if she is really damaged, all she can do is improve to a certain point. You can't undo her damage, so don't fall for the damsel in distress bullshit and try to be the white knight charging in for your girl.

If you're doing your bit and she's still being a cunt, you leave. If you're in some family situation where you can't leave, then well done, you're paying the ultimate price. Lifelong misery. You have fallen into the marriage trap of third wave feminism. You have yourself permanently associated with a woman who is a pure cunt and doesn't deserve you at your best. Because best or worst she'd not treat you right, making the attribution of blame completely irrelevant.

Women are given too much power by big government and cultural memetics nowadays. You have to be tactical in your dealings with them and not let them exploit your sense of self (your masculinity) into blaming yourself for everything that goes wrong. Yes, you're a man, but you are also human. You are allowed to fuck up and you will. Just don't expect women or men who don't give a shit about you to be very forgiving of, or understanding of that. That's what your bros are for.

"The masculine gold standard" is, IMO, the reason so many men kill themselves. The expectations men place on themselves, and have placed on them overwhelm many men. And they have to bottle that shit up, because talking about it makes them "less than a man." There is some regressive thinking within traditional masculinity. You shouldn't be a pussy, but you can't sort your stress without psychological outlets. Trusted confidants (or a therapist if you don't have one,) punch bags, martial arts, contact sports, the gym, meditation - they're all your friends. If you don't have male friends you can show your vulnerability to when things are really bad, then you don't have any real friends. They're just there for the high times, like your girl.

Plate, meet my other plate.

56 upvotes · 15 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I can actually explain logically and non emotively why being destructive beyond your immediate needs is inefficient and hence, you should be less "immoral."

It's the topic of a future piece I'm doing on Machiavellian ethics. It'll either be really popular, or people will throw shit at me and say "I've gone soft" or some other crap. I don't care. I can take it. I have enough rep to handle any shit anyone throws at me and enough intelligence not to get humiliated by logic and theatrics in argument. I'm Machiavellian/smart enough to out manoeuvre most shit that comes at me. I'm putting it out (when it's ready.) Fuck everyone who thinks leaving the world in flames is OK. Yeah, just make the world shittier because you've had shit yourself. Perpetuate the cycle. That's smart, that's rational, isn't it? No it's emotional revenge bullshit.

Cry me a fucking river...

56 upvotes · 25 May 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

I'll quote myself from TRP:

Yeah. Men can be victims, anyone can be a victim, but men get shat on for being legitimately victimised, let alone professional victims. Nobody here on TRP likes a professional victim, but women can capitalise on professional victimhood as it buys into the whole damsel in distress rhetoric, manly instinct is to protect women, female instinct is to depend on men.

As a result a weak woman will get help whilst a weak man will be seen as a failure both in blue pill world and on TRP. Shit I even see other people in TRP say "men can't be victims" yes they can be victims, but there's a difference between being a victim of bad circumstances and being a professional victim/pussy who isn't willing to do anything about their crappy circumstances. I mean shit, if most of TRP wasn't the victim of some crappy situation they wouldn't even be here trying to make a difference. People are associating the word "victim" with "weak" and thus all these guys are hamstering "men can't be victims" because they don't want to be seen as weak. Being a professional victim is bad, claiming men can never be victims and denying to yourself you've ever been a victim of anything shitty is equally irrational and unhelpful.

Professional victim and victim are not the same thing. A professional victim tries to capitalise on their weakness to get power, sometimes they are not truly victims but try to present themselves as such. A victim is someone who has been adversely affected by a negative/detrimental circumstance they had little to no control over.

I think part of the reason RP guys hate seeing themselves as victims is because of male "hyperagency" or the capacity for guys to take on extra responsibility, ironically its the opposite of the female tendency to not take responsibility for things they have done, but rather the proclivity to take responsibility for things that aren't even your fault or were not under your control. This is where the male hamster takes hold, instead of seeing the situation for what it was and accepting they were powerless in the situation, they beat themselves up and go "I'm a man, I should have taken control of the situation, I'm not a victim I'm just a pussy" shit, guys in BP world are taught to beta male shame themselves and some of them still carry this facet with them, even after having been in TRP for awhile. It's fucked up. Whilst the chicks are capitalising on their victimhood when they're not even victims at all, guys who are victims refuse to see themselves as victims and go all fucking macho and in-denial, it's fucked up topsy turvy shit. Guys beating themselves the fuck-up over shit they can't change.

And to add, being macho and irrational doesn't make you red pill or alpha (I see enough of this crap, guys who talk tough and have low empathy and think that makes them some sort of authority on masculinity) these people are dumb/shallow and seem like obnoxious cunts obsessed with dominance. Men can be victims of shit as much as anyone, having a Y chromosome doesn't mean you can't get fucked by life.

The difference between a bper and a rper is what you do when life kicks you down, do you capitalise on the fact that life is fucking you up the ass and try to sell it as oppression and get society to help you out, or do you work through the pain and use your struggles to make you a better person? I opt and encourage the latter. As for all the men who say men can't be victims, you're fucking hamstering. Shut the fuck up with the machismo bollocks. I've seen strong men cry and weak mean gloat, shades of grey motherfuckers, there are no absolutes in this bitch, I assure you.

I think the only thing that disgusts me more than female apathy towards male weakness (because shit, they are programmed to find that disgusting - they really can't help it - which doesn't stop it being any more morally despicable) is male apathy towards male weakness. I mean shit, if you've overcome struggles and identify with how a guy thinks and feels and understand what the burdens are of being a man/successful man then the least you can do is help the other guys who are in a negative place. I mean if you're of the "fuck everyone else, I'm good" mindset (and plenty of motherfuckers on TRP are) then why even post on TRP? These cunts may as well fucking lurk or just stop posting at all because these types are only here for themselves without giving anything back to the community at all, better to be silently selfish than to increase the noise with bollocks because your selfishness is making you annoyed with other peoples inadequacy.

It's like every community, everyone wants to benefit but not everyone gives back, some people get on their pedestal and criticise the community that helped them become who they want to be, those who never even needed TRP shouldn't even be here, if your life is so perfect, you lift so much, earn so much and get all the pussy in the world and you have no philosophical ponderings whatsoever, fine, fuckoff, you won't be missed! Truly, we don't care! If you don't have a use for TRP anymore then go, that's your right. I'd rather people who are successful and don't want to give back because it's beneath them now or feel like they've outgrown it or however the fuck you want to describe it just fuckoff rather than waste an hour a day/week saying how much they hate TRP, and no that's not directed at OP or anyone specific, it's something I've seen in a handful of members and wanted to vent about.

TRP is not "all about you" or even "just anti-feminism" or "just self improvement" it's bigger than all that shit, I'm starting to see how few people really understand TRP, people like to nitpick little parts of TRP and say "this is what TRP should be about." Take what you want from it, different people have different needs its not one size fits all, TRP is neoreactionary on a gender-line and thus there will always be shit on it that the more hands-on less academic amongst you will find unpalatable/extreme/weird/not to your liking. Shit, even academic minds will need a break from all the theorising now and again, talking about the same thing over and over in such depth can become exasperating, that is the nature of the human psyche. Nothing wrong with that.

Back on the topic of male victimhood, sometimes this indifferent sociopathy masquerading as alpha masculinity gets fucking irritating, these cunts come on TRP and start beta shaming men for being weak. They're almost as bad as the feminists, except instead of hating masculinity they just have a god complex and see men who haven't made it as worthy of bullying/shaming. No shit they are weak, less of the shaming and more of the guidance, TRP is not a place to beta shame, its a place to help betas become alphas, I think a lot of people forget that shit, they forget what TRP is for. If you don't need TRP, GOOD. I wish people didn't need TRP but the west is fucked up so here it is, it's A REACTION to a PROBLEM.

The reason TRP exists is because plenty of boys/men are victimised and they need schooling on how not to be a bitch anymore. In order to self-improve, you need to actually legitimise their problem to begin with. Shaming is useful when someone refuses to take action to improve themselves, but not even legitimising the fact they are victims of shitty circumstances to begin with and taking this bigoted approach that "as a man you're not a victim, you're just a pussy" is some fucked up shit and I for one don't tolerate this bullshit view, it cannot be substantiated with any logic whatsoever, it is simply bigoted bollocks coming from someone who fancies themselves as a bigshot. Its one of the few aspects of traditional masculinity which was wrong, the inability to acknowledge weakness. The failure to identify or even acknowledge your weaknesses "I'm a man, I'm never a victim I just didn't take action" or "I could have done this and I didn't so it's my own fault" give me a fucking break, please, being regretful and blaming yourself and denying you're the victim of some shit out of your control is male hamster gymnastics at its finest, and its fucking annoying, and the guys who think they are the most alpha are the fucking worst for this shit.

Macho shit and masculinity are not the same. Masculinity has space for being logical and introspective, macho shit is just denialist hyper responsibility used as a coping mechanism to avoid admitting to yourself you were weak and powerless in a situation and thus, a victim. You're so narcissistic about your masculinity that you refuse to even comprehend the possibility you can be a victim. Yes, men are victims of shit all the time, sooner you accept that and incorporate it into your neocortex the better. /RANT

Woman drinks and flirts with college president, invites him to her hotel room afterwards, then cries rape because she "can't remember" why she let him in.

56 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The attempt at spin = trying to safeguard her reputation post questionable behaviour. When women stop doing this I'll think I've woken up in the twilight zone.

"Immigrants are not the problem, men are. Deport all men from Sweden immediately." - Magda Rasmusson, Swedish politician of the Green Party. (Translated from Swedish)

56 upvotes · 5 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha, "gender equal."

Human sexual dynamics are transactive, men trade their superior skills/reasoning/risk taking behaviour for woman's sexuality and everyone's happy. It's simple really, men sacrifice and risk - women pay with sex and support him in his efforts - this balance works just fine and leads to happiness and fulfillment on both sides of the coin, male and female alike.

When you forcefully take the man's gains via taxation and redistribute it to women without the need for them to give anything up for it you create a society full of entitled hypergamous brats like Sweden.. you destroy the transactive nature of sexual attraction and effectively make men unattractive to women (what does he bring her she can't ~~get for herself?~~ get given to her by the government?)

Another thing, due to man's natural infatuation with the feminine form, if you equalise everything, opportunity and outcome alike, then men find women attractive whilst women no longer find men attractive. Women want men who are better than them, superior to them, otherwise they do not find him attractive - a guy at the same level can sometimes be tolerated, usually met with hate or indifference, a guy beneath her is detested.

Basically what I'm getting at is if you make everything equal legally and economically then you actually make women inherently superior as men are biologically visually attracted to them which affects their cognition in ways which make men favour women, men simply aren't perceived this way by women based on physicality alone (unless he's an adonis genetic jackpot winner, let's be fair, they're not common), women are more commonly attracted by external factors like status and other demonstrations of superiority which in an "equalised" society become incredibly hard to ascertain thus societally destroying the agencies which allow men to become attractive to women at large, robbing them of their power or potential for power.

Someone needs to kick the feminists out of Sweden, the Vikings need a comeback gig.

How NOT to be a self help junkie

55 upvotes · 19 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think a lot of guys suffer from fear of the unknown. You don't have to leave your comfort zone to watch things on your computer or read books in your armchair. Sure, you have to put some work into focusing and understanding the content, but you don't need any courage.

COURAGE is necessary for application. One really should, over anything else, be looking to obtain outcome independence, it creates a certain simulacrum of fearlessness. The person may not be fearless per se, but because their comfort zone is so wide, because so few things faze them, they appear fearless.

A good way to be courageous is feed off anger. I know some guys who could never give up the anger that lies beneath the surface because it is exactly that which makes them effective, it is that which makes them take action.

So yes, a pound of theory is worth an ounce of action.

Women think the average guy is a HG1.8

55 upvotes · 13 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that's a Bill Maher joke. But yes, it's incredibly pertinent. It cuts right to the heart of the matter.

How Men Love / Male Commitment

55 upvotes · 22 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If she doesn't need you, she doesn't want you. Don't trust in women's whims, trust in your ability to be a boss, understand her nature better than she does and thus manage her appropriately. The west is so sick that I don't think a non-Machiavellian man can stop a woman from blowing everything up. Things are so sick here, society does none of the work (not religion, not her family) - so you as a man have to do all the work to teach her the correct values/behaviour. You have to play her emotions like a fiddle and have a fucking place where you shit in her mind just to get her to act right - to be a decent person. That's fucked up, but that's what all this feminism necessitates, you need to be able to match poison to thrive in toxicity. Or to use a better known phrase: you fight fire with fire.

Most men shouldn't even think about an LTR until they've built themselves up, and they should always keep certain barriers in place, eg: LTR without marriage, never tell her all your secrets, don't show her any vulnerability that may threaten either of your survival, it will just make her insecure and throw more and more shit tests at you as a symptom of said insecurity.

Always hold a part of yourself back, out of reach from her access. Your best bud should know more about you than your LTR. The whole "me and my partner are best friends" is the whole soul mate myth disney bullshit that polite society spews. It's all nonsense. There is equality in friendship, there is no equality in relationships.

You accept how shitty it is and think "fuck it" anyway, or you MGTOW. Patriarch game for the 35+ guys aching to create mini versions of themselves requires much caution, planning, pre-screening and meticulous execution. I'm not pro-marriage, I think it's a terrible idea due to the unacceptable risk factor, but if you're married in the Philippines they don't grant divorces (it's illegal to get divorced) so that might be something to consider. If you want a family you need to be in a conservative society. Liberal societies just breed whores who don't know how to appreciate men and they put themselves above family - bad mother/wife material. Even if you do find a needle in a haystack in the west, she is surrounded by media and other fucked up women feeding her full of feminist bullshit. That's another topic entirely anyhow. Ultimately, as men, we all have to plan quite tactically how we're going to play this shit out. I can't give you a foolproof way to "head the family you always dreamed of having" - that'd be some snake oil salesman shit, one must simply stack the deck in their favour if they're going to make the attempt. We've got our work cut out for us.

Found this RP Gem on answers.yahoo.com

55 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women reaped what they sow, now they have large amounts of men opting out, refusing marriage, or just plain jerks. They claim they weren't happy before but how can they be happy now?

Fuck women's happiness, give 'em the world and they still ain't happy. Women aren't designed to be happy. Whether you bother or not, they're not happy. They're ungrateful. Unappreciative. Disloyal. So why bother with their happiness? Fuck 'em. When you're damned if you do and damned if you don't you may as well not bother. Fuck and chuck these hoes.

FR: "Why did you dump me?" "Because you wouldn't fuck"

55 upvotes · 16 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In the words of lonely island, doesn't matter, had sex. Props to the woman for keeping the validation train coming for as long as she did without having to put out. That's impressive at 35, if she's as hot as OP said that would reflect how she's able to successfully act like she's 25 despite being 35. Luckily, all is not lost, OP made sure the next train getting run on her would be his dick. OP dumped her, and she fucked him to get him back on the hook. Classic dread game. OP just needs to make sure once she gets too comfortable with him again that the sex doesn't dry up. If it does, treat her like a depleted oil well and get your drill the fuck out of there.

Why do women get so mad when they find out I'm engaged to a foreigner?

55 upvotes · 29 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

OP is setting himself up for failure if hes going to marry a chick off the internet. I don't care how many skype sessions they've had or how many times they've said "I can't wait to meet you!" and "I miss you" long distance relationships are full of time constraints (even more so with a timezone difference) and thus they are always full of novelty and do not develop organically. With these variables in play you never get to properly know a person, you're just seeing each other through a filter, one that makes the other appear better than they really are, even dramas can be blamed on bullshit the other person can't verify and literally everything revolves around "when we're going to FINALLY meet." It's not a real relationship, it's the idea you meet the person you think you know, only to find someone in the real world who is some of the things you thought they were, but not entirely the image you had built up. The whole thing's a farce. Online romantic relationships are blue pill without exception.

I agree 100% with you, OP doesn't want to hear it but he's doing some really dumb shit here. You can't come on TRP and say you're going to marry a chick from the third world that you met on the internet and expect not to get criticised for it, that shit is blue pill as it comes, if you're going to outsource then do it right. If you want an asian chick spend time out there, it's cheap enough even for a lower wage american earner, I know a guy in England who takes 10k to Thailand every year and stays out there for months fucking a high end prostitute at £40 a day who has model looks and gives him "the girlfriend experience" he's a semi-bluepill post-divorced guy in his 50's but at least he knows what to expect, fuck I think he's even in love with this high end hooker who pretends to be his girlfriend, it's that fucked up, but at least he has control over the money and he's not been dumb enough to marry her and bring her to England. If you can't be assed to go out there then stay in your own dating market, don't let some scheming third world bitch asset strip you for a meal ticket out of her shithole country. I know OP wants to believe it will all be great and that it won't happen to him but it's that kind of ignorance that keeps people taking those blue pills, we wouldn't be the red pill if we didn't point out how fucking idealistic and delusional that is.

Furthermore:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GIwpypavI4o>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ktiQO97VJtY>

Good luck OP, lord knows you need it.

Stop being so fucking angry at women, its not helping you.

55 upvotes · 31 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitterness ain't healthy, however anger can be very healthy if channeled into self improvement.

Ex who moved away from the country and rode the carousel for months writes this long email. Sent her a one-liner reply.

55 upvotes · 28 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Man that line is fucking cold, straight out the arctic.

So I just finished having lunch with one of the biggest djs in the USA..

55 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is an anecdotal red pill example of hypergamy. Hos give it up with the snap of a finger for a guy with a lot of status like a successful national club DJ, his frame is his success, he doesn't need to set a frame by being clever or funny, his frame is his "cool social high paying job" and the status that comes from that, drugs, cool friends, whatever, and that's all the hos care about. Money and social status. Obviously if he was funny and intelligent too, that would be a trifecta that would send women crazy. Men, we are success objects.

"It Didn't Mean Anything!"

54 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The female hivemind is shaming women for going the traditional route and encouraging the cat lady route. Shit's to be expected.

NEVER get married - Fred Reed has taken the pill

54 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women need to be kept in place. When you "make them equal" they decide they want control over not just family, but the power structures which society is built upon, and thus they go about ruining society by putting themselves before the family, and legislating based on emotion rather than fact (fear - counter-terrorism laws, greed - welfare state.)

In this way, society breaks down just to satisfy woman's emotions and cravings. Women are anti-civilization by merit of their chaotic nature. Civilization is a patriarchal construct. This is why I don't believe in equality or feminism. I don't like the idea that women are held down in society, or have less freedoms - but they have shown themselves incapable of supporting the traditional family without strict rules and consequences in place for not being good wives and mothers. A woman's fear keeps her healthy, when she thinks she can do whatever the fuck she wants, she becomes a monster. Women really are like children in the sense that, without constant discipline, they become unruly, dissatisfied, dysfunctional even. They need boundaries, but they crave power. Even within themselves, there is a conflict. A conflict between the lust for power and the urge to be looked after, to be subdued by her subjective definition of a worthy man. Alas, women must be disciplined to a degree, and not allowed to roam free with the air in their hair, otherwise they are simply too chaotic and self-destructive. In essence, women are man's responsibility, he must caretaker her for own good, for if he does not, she will be dysfunctional.

Of course we're at a point where women's attitudes have become so toxic, that many men no longer wish to look after women, but merely exploit their dysfunctionality for quick and easy sex. In TRP, some men are up to this task, some aren't but want to be, others just stopped giving a fuck about women completely, and are entirely content to do nothing about civilizational decline and to let women ruin themselves as society goes down with it. After all, we need our women to be feminine and functional, not battle axe power-mad harpies addicted to cock who despise men and are incapable of loyalty, with multiple divorces under their belt who must use cats, wine and anti-depressants to keep their hollow souls somewhat functioning.

Some idiots will argue single mother families are fine and dandy, but the statistics suggest otherwise, with no father and a single mother kids have a higher chance of mental illness, substance abuse, not finishing high school, poverty, incarceration etc. Obviously statistics don't record another factor pertaining to boys: boys without fathers have a higher chance of not being masculine.

Women aren't meant to lead, they're not meant to be in control of anything, they're nurturers not leaders. They do a poor job of handling responsibility, and yet none of these facts inhibit the female lust for power, be it because feminism imbues her with this lust for power, or because she sees an opportunity for power and it is human nature to crave such things. I believe for women, it is something of a mixture of both factors. Indeed, a "good woman" in a third world country finds the powerlessness that made her good is gone when she reaches the west.

The state as well as the female hivemind in the west will "empower" her to be a cunt, to asset strip you, screw you for child support and be a whore. As such, her carnal nature will take over and she will prove to you that given the chance, all women are the same. Any modicum of decency or logic in most women is vastly obliterated by emotional and financial incentive that corruption offers her. Keep the third world women in the third world, lest you spoil them.

Being A Man Is Something You Earn Everyday

54 upvotes · 30 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Monk mode is lonelier than life itself (who would have thought?.) but there is comfort in knowing that other men have walked the same path and felt what you feel. There is a kind of respect and resonance in knowing another man has had the same experiences/feelings as you when he was in the same stage of his life. It helps remind you that, in your own time of persistence and grief, your thoughts are normal, and you're not going crazy. The temptation to give in, the difficulty of it, the weakness, the sense of dissatisfaction and "does this shit even work?" "is it worth it?" it's all there.

Gotta keep your eyes on the prize though. Work through the pain. Remember why you do what you're doing. It's too easy to get distracted, especially in this society full of noise and bullshit. There is a love for the struggle, and the best learners/monkers even indulge in the struggle and become addicted to it, being like deer in the headlights without it. For most however there is a fight with it - a fight not to give in to "the easy life." To not give in to being happy with mediocre comfortability, to keep striving for your potential because this life is your one shot and if you take the easy route, you may end up old and with regrets you can't fix or undo. There is also restless dissatisfied impatience: "when will I make it?"

This post likewise serves as a wake up call for those who have strayed from the path of giving a fuck about themselves and have given in to their own lack of self-discipline. You know, those guys with almost no social life who eat like shit and spend the majority of their free time on computer games because self-improvement makes their back ache and their body is hooked on sugar. It's hard, and being better is mega hard when you're already so low and your body is psychologically fighting against things that are good for it, but persistence is necessary.

Fear is a good motivator: You fear being that old dude with regret visible in his soul when you make eye contact, his health and energy isn't what it was, and decades of neglect have piled up too much to undo. He is not even that old, maybe in his 40's, but he speaks like an 80-something on his deathbed. He never lived life to the full, he never learnt about women properly, but he got burned like an average billy beta and still bears the scars to this day. He has chronic health problems and his counterproductive behaviours are too heavily ingrained for him to unlearn. He wouldn't listen even if you laid it out for him, he's spent a lifetime in mediocre denial, in blue pill limbo. This is your average older dude, they are the examples of what not to be to every 20 and 30 something who has already strayed from the path of self-actualisation and greatness.

Like the post says, you have to UNLEARN a lot of shit. The lower your SMV and the more sheltered your life, and the nastier the habits you've picked up; the harsher your journey will be in defying all that bullshit and trying to become something more.

There is nothing more worthwhile than sorting yourself the fuck out. The state of modern men is disgusting, monk mode should be compulsory for all.

Tangent about persistence: I spent 3 and a half hours today searching reddit for an old post of mine because I thought I had saved it to my pc as a draft for a future blog post, but hadn't. I have now tracked down that old post and saved it as a draft/foundation for an upcoming article. As small as it may be, I feel on top of the fucking world. I wanted to give up so many times, reddit is so shit at finding anything older than 3 months back, but I used some google parameters and I tracked that shit down. Victory in persistence is ridiculously rewarding, even over minor things. Imagine that amplified tenfold for major things.

Woman wins highest prize in mathematics

54 upvotes · 13 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We have a love-hate relationship with women. I mean speak for yourself but I don't love women. Seeing them for what they are I appreciate what a minority of well-raised women can contribute to my life and I can see how men are idealistic romantics that need/crave a woman in their life to "have that connection they can't have with another man", but by the by women are nothing to be lauded or worshipped. Western women in general are just shitty people. We have all the reason in the world to hate them but being hateful doesn't help you improve yourself so you have to look past it for the sake of your own mental health. You do this by being selective with your women and employing RP strategies to hold frame/maintain dominance, enjoying their positives whilst mitigating their negatives and if necessary dropping them like hot shit when they cross the line. Which many, if not almost all, will.

I think loving as in, worshipping women or even preferring them to men, despite having read a lot of TRP material is not RP at all, but really, blue pill gone full circle. It looks something like this: you were BP because you were ignorant. Then you 180'd to red pill and bitter. Then again you 180'd so now you're purple pill and wilfully ignorant because RP truths were painful. Only now you have no ignorance to blame, just the fact that reality hurts and you can't deal with the pain it causes you. To be honest I don't know what's more pathetic, a dude who never knew better or a dude who knew better but couldn't handle the truth. Not meaning to present a false dichotomy as it can certainly be more nuanced, but you get my drift, I'm not trying to get too deep with this specific idea.

Ultimately I think we're fighting our instincts. Our instincts are to romanticize women, care for them, provide for and protect them, seeking sexual favours in return to pass on our genes. Meanwhile our culture has made our instincts deadly to our own survival, exacerbated by cultural marxist indoctrination which makes us ripe pickings for women who have been trained to be less empathetic, more narcissistic and more predatory in both their view of and relation to, men. Women are manageable when their egos are kept in check (this is why negging works) but allowed to get high on "you go girl!" instant validation for the tiniest and most asinine things (such as a selfie) they become incredibly narcissistic. Combine that with man's natural predisposition to romanticize women and woman's inherent Machiavellian instinct and what we have is a disaster waiting to happen. What we have here is a culture that brainwashes men to give into their romantic instincts instead of utilising them selectively and giving into them sporadically; whilst dissecting and supplanting their masculinity to populate their psyche with feminine viewpoints. These feminine viewpoints then get mixed in with male protector/provider instinct (man's in-built masculine concept of romanticism) as to make them hard to tell apart from one another. In part, this is why guys sometimes pathetically bicker over "what being alpha is", especially in relation to women and long-term relationships which are no doubt the trickiest sphere for any man, let alone an RPer.

Feminism as institutionalised as it is in society is responsible for exacerbating female narcissism, encouraging them to monopolize and exemplify their worst traits (hypergamy/entitlement and solipsism) to scapegoat us collectively (as men) for their own material betterment. Effectively today's generation of women have been trained to hang men out to dry rather than learn to love and work with them in spite of our monumental gender differences. Part of the facilitation of this is making it so women can't love/trust/pair bond to any one single man by encouraging them to be "sex-positive" aka huge sluts. This is great if you want casual sex, but it's bad if you actually want to be in love. The more partners a woman has had the less capable of falling in love she is. A woman who's had many dicks and relationships no matter what she rationalises is near incapable of pair bonding. These women are often bitter and they feel owed something from their chain of suitors as a symptom of their latent narcissism. Resultantly they view men collectively as an arbitrary segment of the population that can be exploited for self-gain.

Where it was traditionally incentivised for women to depend on men, it has now been demonised. Instead, women now depend growingly on men indirectly via big daddy government's wealth redistribution efforts. When opting for direct dependence on men they opt for insidious methods (wilful manipulation and gold digging) rather than cohesive and functional methods (a promise of sexual loyalty and a union focused on family creation/maintenance.) We, as a species, may be naturally polygamous, but our civilization is based upon monogamy, thus we are at the impasse where we must choose what is more important to us. Hedonistic sexual freedom or family? You enjoy the decline or you endeavour to rebuild civilization one long-term relationship at a time. Most guys seem to have given up hopes of a family, others naively hang on. Some are reasonably competent in "maintaining a woman" within the long term despite all the odds stacked against them, but shit's grim.

Without a patriarchal society in place to enforce honour, our ability to love women is diminished because they have the ability to destroy us and get away with it. Due to a few core differences: their lack of logic, their lack of honour and their exceptional ability to rationalise and delude themselves that the bad things they do are necessary for their own emotional well-being and therefore "just" and perfectly acceptable (this is aided by weak logic and is an instinct that will even override women who uncannily possess strong logic), they simply do not hold themselves to account in a way that a man would. Neither does society. By making them our legal and social equals (well actually, superiors) without them being our logical and spiritual equals, we have upset the balance between leader and follower, captain and first mate, and left ourselves susceptible to the impulsivity of their emotionally driven whims. What has this done? Destabilised society, utterly. This has resulted in divorce, suicide and a whole bunch of other fucked up crazy shit that no hot chick's soft touch, sweet voice, long hair and gentle kisses is worth. For all the flak they get, the MGTOWs are the rational ones here. They're rational in pursuing their own happiness, however from an evolutionary standpoint they're irrational for effectively consenting to end their own genetic line. If there was ever a war between nature and nurture, this is it and it's socially engineered human reproductive kryptonite.

Yes we may be biologically programmed to romanticize women so that we pass on our DNA, but no, it's not rational to "love women" from a contemporary perspective. I fear men who give themselves over to irrationalism are doomed no matter what they know about women because they are willing to overlook all manner of red flags for the sake of "love." Women really are man's ultimate weakness, as distasteful as that is to acknowledge. What all men must know is this: you never get to "just fall in love with a woman" and give into the deepest romantic yearning within you. This is a privilege reserved for women. As a leader, you may not let love consume you. You must always manage her for the benefit of you both and the success of the relationship. Where she will not yield or allow you to do what needs to be done - you must walk away. This is probably one of the most bitter pills to swallow that there is. You never "just get to be in love." Ever. You don't. You don't get to be complacent.

Edited for grammar to make it easier to read and more clearly defined. Thanks for the gold.

The lost art of friendship.

54 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I concur.

I notice this at university. Everyone will backstab to DHV to the crowd. Sometimes I find myself agreeing with gossip because the assertion is true, but I never make shit up that isn't true.

Saying that it's probably more dignified to not agree with the truth publically with those of questionable nature eg: "gossipers" as this can be used to slander you and pull you into conflicts you don't need any involvement in such as mentioned in the 48 laws of power:

<http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.co.uk/2011/05/law-38-think-as-you-like-but-behave.html>

The truth ain't pretty, knowing it is enough, communicating it via gossip will do nothing to ensure trust or friendship. Entrusting someone with the truth is doing them a personal favour, you have no obligation to empower anyone. If anything you're better off confronting a potential friend on a 1 on 1 basis about something rather than the group, confiding in them personally about your opinion of their shortcoming can lead to friendship or rejection of you, but it beats betraying them to the group.

Everyone's gotta get on top of their bullshit management, I say that from experience, especially as a redpiller, with your eyes open to a lot of the crap going you're gonna find yourself getting fucking revolted a lot by the amount of BS you're forced to endure and even agree with. Again, think as you like but behave like others.

Thanks for this post, I feel like it's shit I've already known but find I sometimes forget. The more we engage in things like machiavellianism even as red pillers, the more prone we are to making school boy errors such as talking shit about people to DHV. Even out of jest, know what company you can joke in. I can be really funny and humourous whilst talking shit about someone and typically, sensitive chicks (most of them) will just get all butthurt and indignant over it resulting in drama. At work or in education if your humour is not PG grade you'll get into shit, such is the orwellian censorship we must all endure nowadays. Free speech my ass.

In fact I've observed the only way one can often be "funny to the group" is to qualify yourself as the victim first. Like there's this black guy who will always drop something race related prior to making a jab at someone else. If he wants to put a guy down he'll say something like "ah shit maybe he wants to enslave me" (victim position, qualifier) and follow with the attack "that's very shameful, he shouldn't be so stereotypically colonialist" hence this guy can get away with DLVing someone else in a socially acceptable manner.. he'll say it with an insincere voice as well so the delivery makes it all sound funny, and it IS FUNNY so he DHVs himself, but it's not sincere. The guy is not funny for the sake of being funny, he weaponises humour.

It's very manipulative, it's essentially cloak and dagger, concealing your blade with an innocuous looking sheathe. The constant dropping of the race card just makes me think he is projecting and is a fucking racist (white hater) but then I'm not exactly dumb, your average person tends to fall hook line and sinker for that crap and may even sympathise with his ploy.

Avoid people who get upset easily in peer groups you cannot escape from, do not form friendships with them, their insecurities will sabotage not just any relationship you have with them but your reputation with the entire group as they paint you passionately as the bad guy when they're upset.

That's another law too "do not offend the wrong person" -

<http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.com/2011/05/law-19-know-who-youre-dealing-with-do.html>

Feminism in action: Woman provokes guy and attacks him, when he finally fights back, she wants to take him to court for hitting a woman

54 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The fucking injustice. It's called the justice system for a reason.

Fucking feminism. Shit like this makes my blood boil. JUSTICE MUST BE SERVED.

Exeter University student named 'Britain's horniest student' - bangs 3 guys a week, gets called out in comments, and the white knights rise up

54 upvotes · 15 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Pussy privilege is a hell of a privilege

Had dinner with an engaged couple - girl is saving her virginity for marriage. Caveat: She's had sex with me 3 times.

54 upvotes · 8 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

LMFAO AT THE SUBJECT LINE!!!

Saving that non-existent virginity!!! SHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHEEEEEEEET.

Edit:

So basically OP fucked this girl 3 times without trying (alpha), shes hooked in a beta now and sold beta boy the BS that the reason she ain't fucking him is cuz shes a virgin waiting for marriage. Unless this bitch is planning on hymen reconstruction surgery she wont bleed when he finally does get around to fucking her so she'll bullshit him that not all virgins bleed and cuz hes a beta that's in love he'll eat up her bullshit.

Here's the thing, she wants the beta boy for resources/emotional validation.. but notice how she has absolutely no sexual attraction to him AT ALL. She doesn't even want to fuck beta boy, she's holding it off by lying about being a virgin, if he had sexual power over her she wouldn't even be able to resist (you can see the chemicals swim in their eyes muhfucka!) she would be straight jumping his fucking pants if he could get her moist.

Alpha fucks beta bucks... as you can see my men, bitches do not have even a shred of respect for betas, they're just to be used for money and fucking dopamine/serotonin hits.

And no, I was not surprised one fucking bit by anything I read in this article... to me it sounded like fucking textbook bitch deception.

What I heard a bunch of "proper" Thai girls say about their gay friends

53 upvotes · 3 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's simple really. Working women compete with non-working women, they both offer the same core service desired by men most, sex. The difference is that the working woman is willing to provide this service to you at very little time cost or emotional expenditure, but requires a considerable sum of money upfront. This is a threat to the non-working woman, who demands to be paid time, emotional cost AND money, albeit the way in which she is paid monetarily is less visibly transactive and manifests itself as a symptomatic consequence of dating her.

So of course the women who aren't hookers are mad at the hookers and the men who peruse them, as the hookers are lowering the price men are willing to pay financially, as well as the amount of bullshit men are willing to go through mentally in order to get laid. A man accustomed to hassle free sex from hookers is going to have a hard time putting up with womanly bullshit in order to get laid for free, thirstier men put up with more shit from women and women leverage this thirst to get everything they want. A lack of male thirst via the perusal of prostitution thus indirectly lowers the value of all other women as they will find themselves lowering their price to get a man. This runs contrary to their self-interest, which is keeping the cost of sex high in order to get as much out of their sexuality as possible.

The rent boy sells a product that doesn't affect the average woman's market, the prostitute is directly affecting her market, thus angering her.

To use an analogy, a tire shop selling jeep tires would be mad if another jeep tire shop opened next door, but wouldn't give a crap if a truck tire shop opened next door. Assuming each type of car is using a different tire, there is no direct competition as even though they sell a very similar product, they target different customers. One targets jeep owners, another truck owners. The average man isn't interested in the services a rent boy is offering, and thus the average woman does not feel threatened by a rent boy because that's not who she's in competition with.

Economically its as simple as average women being mad prostitutes lower the market value of their sexuality, and what that sexuality can get them. Prostitutes indirectly lower the market value of pussy, making it harder for average woman to get the terms and goods they want in return for granting men sexual access.

When you run a cartel that forces the market to pay ungainly sums of financial and emotional capital to utilise your service, and then a competitor opens up a cheaper and lower hassle service, you're not only going to be mad about the customers they have stolen, but also the theoretical customers they could steal and what that means for your business model.

A conversation with my son

53 upvotes · 6 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think you spun the whole "their bodies are a good physical indicator of what's on the inside thing" very well.

Fucked up straight up talk won't work, but eh.

I guess this is why all the rich get their kids privately educated. Not just for prestige, but to avoid all the nonsense drilled into kids at state school.

[FR] "Why do you hate me so much?"

53 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's low class. How you present yourself both in text and in voice suggests a lot about your socioeconomic background. You find generally that the lower the social class, the more they disdain complex language and big words, favouring slang. The higher the social class, the more they favour elaborate language, verbosity, metaphor, non-common words etc. It's how people differentiate their subcultures from one another.

Generally speaking, you should adapt your way of speaking to the company that you're with. If I'm with street guys I'm going to talk slang, if I'm with nerds I'm going to be using terminology, if I'm with prudes or snobs I'm going to be using "fancy" language and adopt an elitist attitude. Social chameleon. Be formless. Most people are stuck speaking in a specific way. You don't want to be one of those people. You may have a preference, but it's a skill set like any other - learn to master it.

A street guy talking slang at a banquet is going to get ostracised or even thrown out. A guy who doesn't know hood slang saying too many big words in the hood is going to get accused of "being a wise guy," and told he "must have taken a wrong turn because he doesn't belong" and they'll either intimidate him to leave or he'll get his ass beat. What is the problem with both of these people? Their way of talking and the attitude that comes with it isn't adapted to their environment, so the dominant culture in that environment wants to eject them. The nail that sticks out gets hammered.

Back on topic: if you're middle class and you get some hood rat talking in slang to you, or even another middle class person talk slang to you, you're going to scoff at them. It comes off cheap, but they think they're cool and urban. To her, you'd come off "stuck up" and "reserved" for using standard English. It's funny how people perceive each other via language. The lower class think their language is cooler, whilst the higher think theirs is more correct and sophisticated. You should see low class people try not to talk slang in a job interview, or a high class person talking hood to a hip-hop song, it's funny as fuck.

Practical way to show abundance.

53 upvotes · 6 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So since I have started down the Red path, I have noticed that some of the principles have been internalized. By internalized I mean that I never really tried to change that particular thing about myself, but it ended up changing naturally on it's own.

Yeah this shit isn't rocket science, "natural game" flows when you're in a positive state of mind, don't fear the world and realise the fundamental differences between men and women.

she eventually just straight up asked me if I felt it and that it "kind of sucks" that she was already in a relationship.

She got frustrated by how you weren't acting on your mutual attraction so made it obvious she was into you by putting out those branch swinging feelers. A woman in love with her man doesn't say shit like that. If you'd taken her off somewhere, she would have gone along with it. Obviously you'd have to be the one to take the lead, and if everything went to shit you would get all the blame, but she was definitely up for it. Women always force us to act, because 1: them acting dries them up. 2: they don't want to be held responsible for acting on morally questionable impulses, it could result in them being ostracised from the social group/tribe, that's why they always try to bait guys into taking action, then hamster that their involvement/passivity/agreement with your choice was "coercion" or that "it just happened."

my bro's gf eventually ends up breaking the touch barrier on her own with playful tapping on my arms and thighs with a big smile and eventually tries to grind on me....at which point I kick her away. Not about to ruin my bro's 21st. He isn't stupid and even though the alcohol is clogging his senses he still can tell his gf is strongly attracted to me and at one point even yells out to another guy in our group "HEY SHOULD I BE UNCOMFORTABLE, MY GF AND DELICIOUS KEEP LOCKING EYES".

Haha she's a hoe, he should flip that switch that stops him loving her (ok, I know most guys can't do this, but it's a useful skill to have) and tag team her with you. That's probably not going to happen, but regardless, he needs to drop her. What she did was not cool. Even worse it was on his birthday. Surprised his comment was about the glances and not the grinding. The grinding is a fucking primitive mating call "I want to fuck you, or, I'm being a cock tease that wants to arouse you to prove to myself I have power over you and get an ego boost."

I tried hitting that girl up 2 times on the second no response I deleted the number and forgot about her.

I've had a similar thing happen to me. If you don't close that night they never want to speak to you again. They feel cheap and exploited when they think about you because even though they were up for it in the moment, they're angry/frustrated it didn't go all the way. Now you're just "that guy they did some stuff with that went nowhere." They just want to forget you.

At this point he gets hyphy over text. "I beat you", "hehehe", "I won lulz", "hehehe".

What a faggot. I forget how most guys your age tend to be insecure faggots that do this needless bullshit. You get these 18-22 year olds who have known each other years. And they still do this insecure, petty, one-upmanship-bullshit. All backstabbing and bullshitting. No fucking class at all. I'd drop someone immediately for behaving like that towards me. Especially a friend of 5 years. Get better friends. What I take from this psychologically: he is a loser with a scarcity mentality and the idea of depriving someone else of something they want makes him happy because normally he's the loser not getting what he wants. Fuck that.

His entire way of texting changed after. He appreciated my encouragement, figured he would try to make a little time for us to catch up.

He's immature and insecure. And you've had your tongue in his girl's mouth and touched her up. He must be enjoyin' them sloppy seconds.

Relevant article on abundance mentality:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/03/30/mental-models-abundance-vs-scarcity/>

So you want to be a man? Welcome to life on Hard mode.

53 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a problem with women not being able to recognize or admit that it is.

That would be pride and an inferiority complex kicking in there. Women who aren't comfortable in their femininity (very many of them, thanks to the confusion caused by feminism) exude this tendency.

"The top 5 things every husband should know". Pure beta propaganda, rampant with hamstering and a couple textbook shit tests

53 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"There are probably a lot more men who want to sleep with me than women who want to sleep with you."

Bitch pulled a dread game shit test. If his SMV was high enough that never would have flown. If he was in shape he could have said "2/3 the girls on my contact list want to fuck me, the other 1/3 are family members" and then looked at that priceless sense of realisation hit her face, that she needs him more (which is the case anyway, because she's a depreciating asset sexually and blah blah.) AHAHAHA. This guy needs game. The article was pathetic.

Flair as blue pill example.

Female CEO yells 'penis' at employees, says it can't be sexual harassment because they're white men.

53 upvotes · 2 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh yeah, it is. I'm a straight white man. Non-whites, women, gays, if they are angry they will attribute negative attributes to the fact you are white/male/straight, not only is that misandrist/racist/heterophobic, but they believe they're within their rights to have such a bigoted attitude.

The double standard is fucking perverse.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

52 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Im paraphrasing here but when stan says 'well fine bring dad back and ill be happy' his mum says 'oh no stan ive still got to consider my happiness first'

I need to see this episode. If anybody can find out the title/ep number, that'd be awesome.

A note on the backup forums

52 upvotes · 6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No point taking any chances. We've probably helped more men than every other subreddit combined because we give meaningful and actionable advice. Not platitude-filled bullshit from cucks and women who'll spout nonsense like "just be yourself!"

However, because we have less than favourable views on the nature of women, that makes us a target for the politically correct, insane, culturally marxist time that we live in. TRP is just one huge thought crime to the ministry of love. Shit's doubleplusungood.

Final Warning: Keep Your Damn Morals To Yourself

52 upvotes · 21 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Simplest way to put this:

If someone thinks what you're advocating means they couldn't trust you if they knew you, then it's immoral to them.

If you are loyal to nobody, will betray when you need to, feel no empathy and you know of a guy who is just like you, you will think he is badass but you won't trust him. DTs don't trust DTs because they know themselves. To most people this lack of trust constitutes "immorality."

If someone can't trust you, you automatically become immoral to them (even if you help the environment.)

If you sound like you enjoy others pain, others rightfully assume you would enjoy their pain too, so they distrust you and then again, you're deemed immoral by that person.

Fuck ethics for a second, just go along with this basic premise: if you betray them, they think you're immoral. That's it. No elaborate codes or commandments, simply a "can they trust you?" question. No? What's that? You like fucking people's wives and they happen to be married or want to get married one day? Right, then they think you're immoral.

There's a reason these discussions are had ON THE INTERNET where you feel anonymous. Because in real life this shit would ruin your reputation. Why? Because people wouldn't trust you and that means they'd think you're immoral. Reputation is everything. And reputation is built on EXPERTISE and TRUST. If someone can't trust you, you're immoral to them. You could be the most cunning guy alive, if someone trusted you, they'd think your moral.

Sadism is deemed immoral by the vast majority. That's why when someone posts a thread saying "I fucked his wife and his sister and his mother and I laughed as he watched crying" you're wise to delete that just as much as you should delete the idiot questioning the morality of strategy (strategy is amoral - pointless to discuss it.) But when people tell stories, they don't hear strategy discussion, they hear something they relate to and they will inject their morals into that.

People can't and won't not inject their morals into stories. Even a psychopath does this, he'll think "why did he not just fuck the wife when she came over and flirted?" And then call the guy who doesn't fuck a married woman a faggot for not doing it. Most people judge you for being too sadistic, a psychopath judges you for being too altruistic (why do you care how this affects other people? It's good for you.)

If you don't delete the threads with guys talking about adultery, you will always get bro knighting. ALWAYS. Why? Because lots of people have empathy and they don't want to hear about how people who have little to no empathy will do whatever it takes to get what they want and don't give a shit about the consequences or collateral.

That will always wind people up. And if you start banning the empathic majority so the psychopathic minority can discuss optimal strategies, you're going to lose A LOT of people in the sub. I'm starting up a dark triad sub soon to discuss such things, but it's going to be private PRECISELY BECAUSE I know that kind of discussion isn't meant to be had out in the open, but with people who can cast morals to the side and speak PURELY ABOUT THE STRATEGY FOR THE SAKE OF REFINING IT. Regardless of my morals, I can do that. But this is not something most people can do, because their personality (usually religious morality) infects all their judgements.

IMO, ban the threads that sound overly sadistic and ban the threads that sound overly whiny and are all "should we really do this to people though?" and then you won't get any drama.

But when you let altruism or sadism shape any message, you're always going to have sadists call altruists ineffectual pussies, and altruists call sadists evil, demonic, or whatever. And that's a fucking shit show. That's what a lack of shared values does.

Found a website of women admitting that TRP is true, and it's in their nature and they can't help it.

52 upvotes · 20 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women's sexual preferences are anti-civilization. Men built civilization. They couldn't have built it and maintained it on psychopathy alone, you need trust within the workforce to build a civilization, fear alone isn't enough. You can not have union when there is no trust. Psychopaths are incapable of trust when they do not have leverage, there are many holes in your glib assertion. Even if YOU WERE right, you haven't managed to explain how men have become less psychopathic whilst women's preferences have remained largely the same (and thus are outdated/mismatched with the modern environment and it's supply of men.)

When a man becomes angry, whilst he feels angry, he is for all intent and purpose, temporarily psychopathic - he can kill but he will feel guilt later. A psychopath is an entirely different creature, he has no conscience and that killer instinct is not temporary. Man has honed, harnessed and channelled his anger as a source of strength for a long time.

Let's assume your opinion describes yourself (projection) think, if everyone was like you, you'd probably be dead. Who would you prey on or exploit? You would be against people like you who think similarly to you. Psychopaths are apex predators but they are also interspecies predators, meaning they hunt/prey on their own species. Humans are simply apex predators, meaning they hunt non-humans, not each other (unless conflict over resources, revenge over scarred honour etc.) Psychopaths have never been more than 2-3% of the population. Try going to prison where they are around half the population, entirely different world. Cunning is the purview of women. Strength is not synonymous with psychopathy.

You haven't shown logic, you have just asserted. Why should your opinion be worth jack shit when you don't show your reasoning? You're easy to dismiss when you feel you're above saying "why." Save that terse matter-of-fact mystique for seducing women. When among men, use less ethos and more logos. I often contend psychopaths prefer the company of women because they are more similar to them, at least, this is what my experience has taught me. Where man has some in-built moral code, honour, justice, appreciation for reason and blah blah the psychopath shares all the solipsistic narcissism of the woman. It all becomes about appearance and pride rather than communication of information and co-operation. Again, anti-civilizational by it's very nature. There are nuances within psychopathy, some make great leaders and can benefit civilization from a unique position, but I'm not going to digress into that here.

[Meta] SJWs are reportedly working with admins to develop a stricter "no harassment" policy at Reddit. We should have an action plan in place for when TRP is banned

52 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They'll probably get a pussy pass.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

52 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's always someone saying "this didn't happen" it really contributes nothing to the discussion that is of value, it's just you proclaiming your disbelief.

I wouldn't put it past a bitch to do this kinda thing, especially if she's married but NOT FUCKING YOU and fucking two other guys, seeing as we're all aware we have no way of confirming whether this actually happened or not it's a completely defunct thing to bring up.

My GF started comparing me to her friends BF

52 upvotes · 3 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

(he even carries her bag always!)

I'll do that anyway because women are physically weak although if she expects it or seems entitled I'll shit test her, make her qualify "say the magic word" and all that crap, otherwise she can carry her own fucking bags. The only persons bags I carry without questions are the matriarchs in my family. Why? Because I know they love and respect me and aren't just using me as some disposable fucking peon.

She told they still didn't have sex yet (1.5 years passed!)

LMFAO. She has the perfect beta provider... a 27 year old man who gets no sex from his long term girlfriend... birthdays have been, christmases have passed, new years parties have happened and she's still not put out? WOW. I'm fucking speechless. Especially when you consider the current mating paradigm and there are literally guys left, right and centre all around just going out, grabbing random girls, making out and fucking them within minutes-hours of meeting them.

If they broke up tomorrow it's not his non-existent sexual technique she'll be missing, it'll be his fucking credit card. I'm kinda fucking pissed a guy can be that fucking retarded, she is mercilessly exploiting him for economic benefit and giving nothing in return.. the only thing worse than being involuntary celibate is being in a fucking long term relationship with a woman and being involuntary celibate. Just because he hasn't had sex in a year and a half doesn't mean his girlfriend hasn't, she's probably got some alpha fucking her on the side fulfilling that alpha fucks beta bucks sexual plurality they're inclined to operate. Fucking sickening.

I'm thinking about what if she starts complaining like 'he buys that and you don't, he does that and you don't'. How to handle this behavior right?

Tell her you don't give a fuck about her friends boyfriend and if she wants a human credit card that she should feel free to fuckoff.

Don't be scared to stand up to her or you're being pimped by the pussy. This shit will only escalate into more attempted behaviour modification on her part if you don't stamp out the fire before it turns into flames.

Oh by the way, if your chick is late 20's (27+) be wary of her bass bashing biological clock wanting a baby and doing whatever it mercilessly takes to get it (from you, or someone else.) You generally want a quarantine zone around your dick with these chicks aka wrap up or get snipped.

The mindset of feminists/betas when it comes to self-improvement, as presented by Calvin and Hobbes

52 upvotes · 16 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I like knowing my weaknesses because it means I can work to get rid of them and hone my ineptitude into a proficiency.

Then again, my genetics blessed me with a propensity to reason objectively rather than emotively.

9 DUDES TO DO BEFORE YOU DIE. I MEAN, GET MARRIED.

52 upvotes · 29 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Those girls sound so victimised and oppressed in the comments as they congratulate each other on their whoredom and idly objectify men. Lmfao.

Introducing Married Red Pill Flair

51 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Excellent, at the end of the day it's a man's choice what he does with his life, we shouldn't disown men who are married because if anything they need our support more than anyone. LTRs are hard mode, whereas marriage is suicide mode, because your ability to affect dread is vastly handicapped by the draconian legislation that is the feminist family courts.

We wouldn't be a very good community for men if we did not warn against the pitfalls of marriage, or make men aware of the women who will try to bully, shame and guilt them into commitment. On that note, I'm reminded of a quote from a commenter from awhile back that stuck with me ever since: "Marriage is responsibility for men and a lifestyle for women"

And as much as I think it is good to support men no matter what they decide, I wish to violently decimate the hamster that plagues married blue and purple pill men.

An open letter to the aforementioned:

Do not think because you are married you are superior to "all those young'uns on TRP" you're not, in fact you're an example of what they should aspire not to become - a blue piller who found the red pill too late. A man who found TRP after wifing up an unworthy woman undeserving of the sacrifice inherent to a lifetime of male commitment.

It's good that we're reaching a lot of young guys on TRP, because we can give them the power to choose what to do with their lives. We have got to them before they can fuck it up for themselves like you have. Do not drag them into your misery. Do not encourage them to fuck up like you and call it maturity and manning up, that is disingenuous, and it robs young men of their future simply to validate your piss poor decision making.

If the young men here want to get married one day, they can do that with full knowledge of the basket case of an institution that they're entering - that's their call. If they want a kid and no marriage, to be a bachelor or even to go MGTOW - this is likewise their call.

TRP doesn't recommend marriage, but it is not our place to MANDATE how people live their lives. We may disagree vehemently, we may advise a man against such a thing, but if he insists on fucking it up for himself then fuck it up he will, and I hope he fucks it up majestically, I hope he enjoys it whilst it lasts and that the pain that will inevitably ensue from his daring naivety is worth all the brief and fleeting joy that will be replaced by the misery of divorce.

A lot of the suckers who were hauled into marriage in their BP days would have a total redo given the chance. That is to say, if they had their level of RP knowledge now and a time machine, they wouldn't be on the internet making the best of a shit situation trying to polish a turd, but rather, they'd be living life on their terms.

They'd have better vetted the bitch they settled down with. They would of done an LTR but not married. They would have gone their own way. They would be bachelor's banging hot bitches Hank Moody style; they would have done shit differently given the gift of hindsight.

But married men don't have that chance, do they? They are trapped. They are trapped in a situation I would not wish on any man, they are trapped in marriage 2.0 - feminist marriage. They are in damage control mode, doing what they can to preserve the best of an inherently corrupt institution, and they tell themselves that they are the real men, they are the noble men, that they are the men who hold up civilization on their backs arched like Atlas, because it is they who "manned up" - when really they are nothing but fools who learned the truth too late and so do what they can to make their misery tolerable.

Sure they hold up civilization, but not from a place of pride or strength, but shackled by feminist legislation from a place of weakness, kept in check by their wife's authority as mandated by the state, subsisting on nothing but a small sense of pride that "they're the real men". That's their mantra, that's what they tell themselves to cope with their relative powerlessness in their house. "I'm a real man, I did the right thing" when "the right thing" has made them miserable.

They hold the piece of shit called marriage in their hand, and they try to shine it as nice as possible. They do it because they don't want to live out of their car. They do it so they don't lose their kids. Know that they do it completely from a place of weakness. They have no other choice, because lacking the gift of red pill knowledge before they committed to such an inequitable contract, they are trapped. And making the best of a bad situation is all they've got so they have to make it work. It's like being a Jew in a gas chamber and discussing breathing techniques to make what little life you have left bearable - this is how I see these men.

A downtrodden man, a hurt man, a man with much to lose and little freedom. Not a powerful man, not a free _____ man, and not a particularly wise one. I chuckle when such a man thinks himself better than those "immature young men who know no better," for this is truly nought but an old fool assuaging the pain that haunts him. It is the tonic of unsubstantiated pride vindicating an old fool for his mistakes at the expense of his brethren wise enough not to follow him.

Modern marriage is not clever, it is quite frankly foolish given the current climate. Any reasonable man will tell you this, but the hyper-religious will try and persuade and shame you into going the traditional route absent the breed of woman and complementing legal system that accompanied it and made it viable. They cut and paste a 1950's social model whilst completely ignoring the fact there's no 1950's legal system to accompany it. They are out of touch, and they call those who don't buy into their delusion immature.

Truth be told, you didn't man up, you were duped. You were fooled into doing something that disadvantages you by linking your pride to sacrifice, and now you think you're mature for having engaged in such a terrible act of folly.

TRP is about giving men power, giving them options and letting them decide how to live for themselves. Not indoctrinating them into a tradcon narrative of "real men sacrifice themselves for women and children" - many of whom which will never appreciate a single drop of sweat or blood you have shed in the quest to "be a real man".

Women of all shades of pill will buy into your sense of honour because it serves them to do so, but they do not care for you, they are not your allies - they are just looking out for themselves. And you are so downtrodden, exploited and foolish, that rather than listen to the free men, you develop Stockholm syndrome for those who would force you to live out of your car should you put a ring on it whilst being imperfect. Open your eyes.

Why do women seem not as smart/funny/interesting as men?

51 upvotes · 1 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Good theory. And yet, even in spite of man's diversity in IQ, behaviour and creativity - men have still always reproduced less than women.

We are the test tube gender, women are the control group. The control group is always kept safe and isolated (in this case: nearly all women reproduce regardless of skill or ability.)

As men, we are subject to great experimentation. Great or abysmal, we make up the extremes of humanity. And the efficacy of our experimentation decides whether we get to reproduce or not. There are a not so small number of men out there who think they reproduced, but were actually cucked. So the number of unique fathers is probably less than we all think.

All of that because wombs and eggs are more valuable than sperm.

Post asks women how their SO reacted to their 'high' sexual partner count. The responses are priceless.

51 upvotes · 20 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

IM MAXIM #51 - Women are mercenary. They do whatever it takes. They will switch sides or outright lie to secure the man they deem to be their best option. That's what you are to a woman. An option.

"Dick is abundant and low value" Female writer ALMOST gets it.

51 upvotes · 14 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

but instead regresses and appears to think that the entire dick based economy revolves around her.

If a woman can see past her solipsism, she is in a minority of women. My ex-girlfriend could do this, but that didn't stop solipsism being her preference. Even if you find a girl who can do it, because feels, they probably won't with any frequency. As we all know, women are responsibility averse.

She actually lionises Men who craft value beyond their Dick, yet doesn't appear to have a thought about crafting value beyond her own pussy.

Because she doesn't feel she has to. Men have to be interesting/useful/powerful to get laid. Women just have to be pretty. They don't need the extra padding. Men do all this extra stuff to compensate for the rift in value between cock and pussy.

Of course some men are genetic jackpot winners and don't need to bother, those men are like women - they get laid by being naturally "pretty." But the majority of men aren't, and so do.

I am truly fascinated by a females natural ability to create an assemblage of orbiters, betas and alphas to tend to her different "needs".

51 upvotes · 10 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Guys get told their whole lives nice guy game is the way to get laid so that when bitches hit the wall, said bitches can clean up and get married (lie to men to benefit the female imperative.) All the while the guys who don't fall for the bullshit get to fuck her between now and then (and in secret during and after her marriage to the beta bux.) Being hot helps, but an ugly douchebag has way more chance of banging a bitch than a nice guy with model looks (as described by OP.)

Not just sexual strategy is amoral, everything is. Why? Because life has no feelings, no conscience or consciousness and gives no fucks about shit. That doesn't mean disregarding morality as a whole is a wise or even balanced thing to do.

51 upvotes · 29 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

100% agree with your post. I despise the hamster in a man even more than in a woman. Men at least have a capacity to be logical and clear-headed should they opt to be. Women on the other hand - not so much.

1,000,000 Subscribers but we might be dead

51 upvotes · 6 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I could be a multi millionaire in 16 years time, but I'd still do my bit in the manosphere. IMO, we're doing gods work. I'm not even religious, but this shit is important. Nobody else is doing this, nobody else helps men become masculine or gives them guidance, as feminism gets worse the rather of single motherhood is only going to amp up. TRP is a reaction to that. You have no idea how many guys are googling looking for help on how to deal with girls, how to be confident, why they feel out of place and blah blah blah but they just haven't come across TRP yet.

Once you "get it" and it all falls into place courtesy of the experiences of other men and theories shared on TRP, the least you can do is give back to the place that basically permitted you your manhood, that is, gave you the tools you need to hone what was innately possible inside you, but never had a means to hone.

I kind of see TRP like charity work for the less fortunate, as well as self-development and learning in the areas in which I currently lack. I'm a person that's hungry for knowledge and likes to share knowledge, so I could read an entire library of books relevant to men and helping them be stronger/better/smarter, I could understand all the TRP theory down to a T, have all the in-field experience with women and have my personal insights confirm others' insights, but I'd still be here, helping, because people need this shit. Those who have been here for too long take it for granted. If TRP disappeared tomorrow and you're not the man you want to be yet, say you understand some of the theory but your confidence is still shot to shit, you disagree with some things and you still have no place for "guy talk". do you think you would get there? Do you think you would become the man you want to be? The newbies worship TRP, those who have been here awhile (lurking or not) forget how important it is. Those who have seen huge improvements think they're above it and so move on, but not me.

The best example of frame holding in my life.

51 upvotes · 26 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

All women do crazy shit you won't find one who won't. It's a matter of how crazy they are not if they're crazy. I honestly believe every woman will play pregnancy mind games if it will get them commitment. It's as much a female habit as it is a red flag. I don't think women without red flags exist they're all nuts to varying manipulative degrees. She also has a lot of redeeming features. IMO you won't find much better than a high sex drive smart chick that only occasionally goes fully hormonal on you. That's an opinion not a recommendation to ltr her that's your call.

Doing it for yourself, the pervasive hamster

51 upvotes · 21 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Edit: This post is now a blog post: <http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/22/the-power-game/>

[rant] why do guys take dating/relationship advice from girls?

51 upvotes · 5 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Easy question, because the guy in question thinks a woman has the knowledge of how a man can attract a woman. Which she doesn't, because she's not a man and she's only been on the receiving end of the chase. They think she must know because she's a woman herself but that's faulty logic from the guys point of view.

A mouse doesn't know how to catch mice, it just knows how it has specifically been caught before, it's a mouse - it doesn't hunt mice, cats do. It's that kind of shit. It's stupid. You wanna get a girl? Ask a guy who has success with girls, he has experience in the chase from the guys point of view - the point of view you need to discern methodology. Women haven't got a fucking clue about getting women because they never have to do it. Asking a woman how to get a woman translates into "how would you personally like to be asked out?" and then 9/10 times that wouldn't work in practice, she feeds you some disney shit. It's fucking inane.

50 Shades Redder - More Wisdom for Men About Women

50 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Great explanation, I especially liked this part:

You've just gotta watch where your going and let your periphery vision handle the women. Can't ever focus directly on them or else you're gonna crash.

This is what I'm always saying (in sentiment, not verbatim) and yet often guys won't grasp it.

Young guys are particularly prone to saying "what's the point if not to get girls?"

I guess when you're inexperienced you have to miss the forest for the trees enough times to finally notice the forest.

Get ready to laugh: "Women's group will check Metro Vancouver nightclubs for 'harassment culture'"

50 upvotes · 6 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly. Clubs aren't for ugly people, unless they're rich as fuck or famous or something. Only high SMV people need apply. Nobody invited the hunchback of notre dame to attend the meat market.

May sound vain and superficial to you blue pillers / low smv guys, but that's the reality of shit.

Up your SMV to join in on the fun.

On a tangent: billy beta whose girl fucks off to the club without him = cuckold in the making.

"Strong and independent," what is it good for?

50 upvotes · 13 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Most women who say they are strong and independent are neither. It's all passive-aggressive man-hating posturing. The ones who actually are won't make a good partner, because they don't need you, and if they don't need you they won't love you unless you find a way to head fuck them into psychologically needing you. Women don't love out of choice, they love out of respect/admiration, which becomes a need. If she doesn't need you she don't love you, you're just an experiment.

Female columnist in The Guardian yesterday: "It's disheartening that men in their 50s seem so focused on looks [...] They are not looking at me. They are looking at women half their age."

50 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think in the future you will see a high suicide rate amongst many women because the constant validation will go from over-bearing to completely non-existent.

Nah, they will just "almost kill themselves" so then they do get some attention. Most women are too pussy shit to actually kill themselves.

What women go through after they hit the wall is what 80% of men go through until they're about 30 before they see the light at the end of the tunnel, if they aren't totally blue pill.

Nobody gives a fuck about men, including the majority of men. Nut up and shut up only goes one way.

A woman's crying? Poor woman. A man's crying? What a bitch. That sentiment is shared by both sexes. People have less sympathy for men. People care less about men. Men are disposable to everyone. Wombs are precious. An infertile woman is basically a man, and even then they get an easier time of it. Welcome to our world lady. Don't be mad the guys who were never worth a shit worked their asses off to be something in the world. They're the winners. You're a loser because you got drunk on the power of your feminine youth and thought it would last forever. These bitches really have no fucking idea at all. Easier to just blame everything on men rather than self-reflect on your poor life choices, which of course, is what the majority of women do. I know if I do badly in life then that's my fault. I don't blame the nearest woman, or an ex-girlfriend, or the women around me at present. Women would rather blame anyone other than themselves for their own shortcomings. I guess realising you're a piece of shit is difficult when you're so emotionally volatile.

Girls are fun

50 upvotes · 4 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Gotta love that hamster. This a great example of hamster gymnastics in full swing. The easiest way (for newcomers) to understand the hamster is that how a woman feels determines her opinion, irregardless of truth. EG: fat becomes cuddly and etc. When you give a woman the right feelings she puts a positive spin on everything, and likewise, if she feels shitty, she can put a negative spin on things that could be objectively admirable, eg: fit guy is a meathead, confident guy is a control freak, rich guy is materialistic and etc.

Women are great spin artists because their lack of logic leaves nothing but emotional interpretation, which in terms of rationalisation means SPIN, SPIN SPIIIIIINNN.

Now you motherfuckers know why the hamster is always seen on a wheel. They can't separate their opinions from their emotions, so bitches gotta spin things to make reality bend to facilitate how they feel.

Things have changed. Took the red pill a month ago - married with 2 kids

50 upvotes · 30 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah if dread game lives in a time machine

Actually, AWALT.

50 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a talk to her about all the stuff I do for her, and gave her a list of things I do for her without a second thought. Things that I do because I want to do them. And that I never expect her to do anything for me

That's the mistake. You both know the value you bring innately, the fact women are almost incapable of showing appreciation is what it is, fucking obnoxiously irritating, but it's not going to change.

Listing those things makes it look like you're qualifying your worth, a high value male doesn't qualify value, he provides it.

The other mistake you made is trying to deal with this bitch using logic. Bitches are fucking retarded, they give up on logic fast, they hate it, it makes their head spin, they are intellectually retarded with reason and their logic, their GOTO method of thought and problem solving is via emotional reasoning, doing things that feel good, avoiding things that feel bad and then rationalising them with faux logic after the fact "hamstering"

Reward good behaviour, punish bad behaviour. If shes insecure show her love, if she becomes more insecure despite you showing a sprinkle of beta, up the ante and punish her, if rewarding her behaviour made it worse then punish it, if she ups the ante its just a shit test and not a legitimate problem. This is the annoying thing with women, telling the difference between a legitimate grievance where she needs your support and a fucking shit test to see if you're still alpha/test your frame.

Fuck LTRs, even when you're alpha they're exasperating, you gain very little and give up a lot. /opinion

Husband finds out he is infertile, wife tells him either he lets her EX impregnate her or she walks (XPOST)

49 upvotes · 21 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I want the cuck to call her bluff and for her to walk out, to arrive at Ben's place thinking she will effortlessly branch swing to him, only for him to say "hahaha no, you can't stay here".

So with the failed branch swing and streaming tears like the histrionic cunt that she is, she goes running back to the cuck, who, recently directed to TRP and with a fresh set of balls, tells her to go fuck herself.

He should tell that bitch to go be pregnant with Ben's baby in the cold, it's what the parasitic manipulative skank deserves. It's not his baby and she wants to cuck him, so she isn't worth shit - that's the biggest red flag going, even prostitutes are worth more respect. I'm gonna call it now, she's already pregnant with Ben's baby but isn't showing, hence the sudden pressure on our protagonist cuck to "man up" or rather, cuck up.

When she tries to manipulate him with the guilt trip sympathy ploy she says "I wouldn't wish a childless marriage on anybody!", well you know what? I wouldn't wish being a cucked husband on anybody either. A woman wanting to cuck you is the biggest insult fathomable to a man's dignity and masculinity. Drop this bitch like the sack of shit that she is, may she rot and wither.

AWALT

49 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You wont see a womans real capabilities and of being a stone cold b*tch or he real abilities to completely disregard you as even being human until you've been through a breakup with a proper LTR (5years+). It is then, and pretty much only at this time that you will see how true TRP theory really is, it will absolutely implode your mind if you haven't experienced it before.

Having had a very long relationship (fits your 5+ yr criterion) with a quality woman in the past is exactly why I don't suffer from the good girl myth that makes guys think "well, I have just fucked around with bimbos.. let me try a smart bitch, then perhaps NAWALT..."

My bitch was smart, just meant stronger rationalisations in arguments, and occasional (welcomed) logic. Shit tests were the same, her nature was the same.. the intelligence changed absolutely nothing. I believe I allude to this in my piece Educated Women & Vapidity.

I know that even if a girl is top-shelf relationship material, there's a switch inside her that can flip and make her the opposite of the very woman you came to value. And that's a huge head fuck. You've spent years with a girl you think you know and have some sort of accrued loyalty with, and the minute she thinks you're a fuckhead she acts like some trashy whore from the bar. You can go through absolutely everything together, and she'll betray you in a heartbeat if she loses respect.

As soon as that happens, all her AWALT traits will dial up and you're in for a world of pain. Being alpha/desired by a woman simply dials down her worst traits, awareness of the aspects of her nature which weaken her relationships with men and disciplining herself not to show these traits further dials down the traits... but the traits are part of their nature. They never go, that's AWALT.

If your girl loses respect for you, as soon as you are aware of it, dump her. Even if you still love her, crave her and whatever - she doesn't feel the same. So just do it, dump her; it's your only winning move. Once she loses respect, there is no quest to get the respect back, guys fall into this trap of thinking they can win back favour.. they can't. No matter what you do, everything will be wrong and it's all downhill from there on. Once respect is gone women don't want to work on shit, they just want to find a way to conclude the relationship.. usually through some high-drama that's pinned on you, then they can hate you enough to dump you without feeling guilty (just in case the fact they think you're pathetic isn't enough.)

Dumping her is probably the only way you can salvage even a slither of respect, because it'll hurt her ego. Women aren't used to being dumped, they're used to doing the dumping. When a guy a chick thinks has become a loser dumps her, it fucks with her head. It implies he has better options and he isn't a loser, because he doesn't care about losing her, in fact, he's welcoming her to fuckoff.

The girl I was with for a long time and went through plenty of shit with, at the end of it all, acted like she barely knew me and had no problem going silent and moving on. This is a chick who used to very literally tell me we'd grow old together and she'd walk through fire for me. Yeah, she meant that - in that moment. This is the same chick who jumped on the carousel and branch swung fast into another LTR at the conclusion of ours. This was a high quality chick, but a chick is still a chick. AWALT applies to all women, quality does not change AWALT.

Quality means the bad shit will happen less, not that the bad shit won't happen because she's fundamentally different. She isn't. NO WOMAN IS NOT A WOMAN - these traits, behaviours and proclivities are all interconnected and universal to the nature of women, it's just the intensity and prevalence of manifestation which varies, and that's why we assert AWALT. AWALT is a very quick and glib way of saying "yeah, well that's just female nature."

A reason for women to want the dating culture to change - Sons who can't get laid

49 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Funny how beings so solipsistic can lack such a capacity to introspect. She's always immersed in her own experiences, but never actually developing a full understanding of said experiences. Why is that? Well.. let's all give a loud cheer to the one, the only: rationalisation hamster! It's pathetic.

Red Pill Example Never let people walk over you

49 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You shitlord! How dare you! She just had to get a few things off her chest and you tore her to shreds! You should know better! Shame on you, shame on you, you vile patriarchal pig!

/s

I love it when they get outraged, it's delicious. Outrage is like mayonnaise on bacon.

TIL that Barack Obama's wife once threatened to divorce him after he lost an election

49 upvotes · 2 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are sexually masochistic, that's why they have rape fantasies and fuck "invaders." All connects in with war brides theory which purports its about finding the best quality sperm and fucking invaders is a survival technique for women (so the invaders don't kill them, too.) Women's sexuality is DT as fuck, which is why DT men do so well with them. How a DT man handles a woman in the sack drives her nuts, fantasies getting fulfilled all over the shot. Women are pretty primal, and they'll never admit it but they get off on men being violent. Especially if he's "fighting for her."

Men take all the wrap but women have used proxy violence throughout history to get their way. Then fucked the victor. Women are nature's control group, used to weed out weak males in favour of stronger ones to increase the quality of the gene pool. When I say "increase quality" I don't necessarily mean intelligence either (although there's probably a correlation) merely survivability. If being dumb and violent improved your chances of survivability, bet your ass that's the direction we'd go as our women would choose to mate with guys who specifically exhibit those traits. The fact that certain races have higher average IQ than others indicates that in some parts of the world higher IQ was needed to survive (eg: the cold climate of europe with little arable land) whilst in places like Africa with abundant natural resources, and warm, fertile land, survival was easier so sexually selecting for intelligence was not as necessary. My point's getting anthropological now. On that tangent, what made it so hard to survive in southeast asia seeing as they have the highest average IQ? (other than ashkenazis.)

Monk Mode has taught me the following

49 upvotes · 17 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well done buddy. Glad to see so many putting monk mode to good use. Going to have to do some follow up monk mode articles in future I think.

Patrice O'Neal's Fisherman Analogy Paraphrased

49 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Patrice is a legend. We need an entire section/sidebar area/whatever just for the "Best of Patrice."

Club bouncer denies free entry to a girl because she's not hot - says that she has to pay the $50 cover like everyone else. Girl proceeds to throw a tantrum on r/TwoXChromosomes.

49 upvotes · 10 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She even says herself that her friend is bargin hot and it opens up doors for her all the time

No women don't leverage sexuality whatsoever to get privileges that men don't, we're all totally equal and that's why giving women more rights is important!!!! /s

A 17-year-old psychopath murdered his mother and sister. So, predictably, he now has a sizable female fanbase.

49 upvotes · 25 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep dark triad motherfuckers get pussy.

Not gonna lie, I love me a dark triad bitch.

At the same time, I wouldn't marry a dark triad bitch. Any notion of "changing a bad bitch" is pure hamster.

It's more common from female to males but it can happen in reverse too. Attractive, intelligent crazy bitches send men weak at the knees also.

AskFeminists didn't like my question, I guess... Maybe you guys wouldn't mind discussing this issue openly and honestly?

49 upvotes · 2 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Female privilege, male responsibility is the goal of feminism. Hypoagency.

If feminism cared about equality it'd fight for things that affect men too, but it doesn't. It only fights for things women are pissed off about and then occasionally claims that these things affect men too. For example, I don't see feminists going out of their way to address how bad of a deal marriage is for men, how men have no reproductive rights (her body!) hardly ever get custody, usually always have to pay alimony etc. If feminism was about gender fairness then MRA wouldn't even exist, and they won't merge because feminism despises MRA, the fact they try to stand up for mens rights has the feminazis scoffing like gleeful elitist matriarchs, defaming the MRAs and saying they're full of shit whilst they expect everybody to take "their rights and movement" seriously.

Oh and then there's the fact that many feminists are openly hateful of men (misandrist), fuck misandry isn't even in a lot of dictionaries, even though it's an actual word. Reverse a lot of their statements back at women and it'd be blatant misogyny, but there is of course a moral double standard when it comes to generalising a gender with feminists. "Men are all pigs!" "Men are violent!" "Men are rapists!" but say it in reverse and they'll call you a misogynist or you'll hear "not all women are like that!" the infamous "NAWALT."

This alone should highlight their lack of credibility or commitment to legitimate gender fairness.

I trust a feminist to imagine oppression where there is none, and then exploit the societal sympathy of victim status to grab power, to get more money, to need lower test scores, to get better representation and etc for women. They just do not care about men, some hate men, many do. It's a movement that accomplished it's original aims and is now fueled on hate to keep going, because it has no legitimate oppression to fight. It's also a great form of population control, most of Europe, USA, Canada, NZ and AUS all have below replacement birth rates and of course if the genders hate each other, they're more likely to use contraception and not start families.

It's funny because while they get more powerful as society is brainwashed into believing they're victims, they're artificially inflating their egos off facebook likes, and superficially navigating the social scene backstabbing, bitching and bullshitting to get ahead. Feminism is nothing but a hypergamous slaughterfest which will eventually consume itself. Some women are already complaining feminism has betrayed them because they "couldn't have it all" but these are usually post-wall chicks.

More on the theory of hypoagency:

<http://www.genderratic.com/p/2645/hypoagency-hypoagency-and-blaming-everything-on-men/>

Where have all the beta providers gone?

49 upvotes · 1 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Why would I marry someone who's only value was their physical attractiveness? Let alone someone who just lost their only value, because they're

- Not funny, they never developed wit/sense of humour because they had no need to

- Not smart, their ability for abstract logic/reasoning/philosophy/deep discussion is limited, they're either uninterested in it or they make it a solipsistic emotional "in my experience" kind of game, not the rich logically abstract discussion you're vying for.
- They have the responsibility of children but the rights of men, hypoagency, when it's something good happening it's her responsibility, if she regrets it or made a mistake, it wasn't actually her fault - they can't take responsibility for themselves and their actions
- Legal aspect: a contract so biased women hold all the trump cards, men are royally fucked.

I could go on, LTRs with most women are undesirable enough, marriages have the collective incentive of going up to the shop for an open pitcher of water when there's acid rain out.

Dr. Helen Smith on Where the Good Men Are, and Why They Left

49 upvotes · 17 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This book is not a research study, but a treatise, a call to action. It is pitched to men, and I hope that men will read it and come to understand what they've been feeling. But I also hope that it will help women to understand what the men in their lives are going through.

Most women do not give a flying shit about men other than what a man can do for her. That's the culture we live in. There's more to it than what she's saying, she identifies problems with men but not how they're directly related to parallels which are inculcated into the female social psyche EG: women are trained/brought up/told they can treat men however they like and that men must impress them while they hold all the decision making superpowers, this is part of what turns them into self-entitled monsters, the other part is women are given no social expectations she doesn't want, men are practically held at gunpoint "to do the right thing" with the full force of the law against them and have no say in anything to do with family.

Only is it when enough post-wall chicks never get to fulfill their stupid dreams of being a married princess they go "where did all the good men go?" it's the most retarded question ever posed, destroy masculinity in the mainstream and most males stop being masculine and self-capable, poison women to be crazy, demanding and masculine and then the little masculinity with a dick that is left walking around won't want shit all to do with you other than to use your holes to sink his dick into, given you don't make that the social equivalent of doing every single quest in Skyrim. The whole culture has been poisoned so perfectly it's almost impossible it's a mistake, how you get such venom out of civil rights I don't know, there's no justification or logical basis for the situation we have today.

Notice how the author is distinctively post wall? Women still at the peak of their power could not give a shit. Post-wall chicks only give a shit because their power has dwindled and now they're no longer high on the easy life they empathise miserably with the nostalgia their mothers/grandmothers got to experience, women from previous generations weren't left high and dry and expected to wage slave/work for the rest of their lives but had a manly man around for companionship and 24/7 dick. The chicks now get all the fun and buzz when they're young and end up with nothing when they're old. A woman's expiry date has never been so quick.

Men are never given shit, not privilege, priority, empathy, understanding, respect for their gender identity or nature, NOTHING, they have to fight for everything ruthlessly and intelligently as to not get fucked over by the state/a woman which if being a good man was ever easy (and believe me, it wasn't) being a good man now is even harder. They're a fucking hot commodity. You can either get depressed with how shit this is and "opt out" by not bothering with life or yourself beyond instant gratification or you can raise your SMV, read books, workout, enhance your body and mind, become aware and confident in yourself and thus become the commodity that women want so badly, yet is so sorely absent. Your choice. Supply and demand, the supply of high quality men is far lower than the demand, there's a fucking drought. High quality men are in a paradigm of psychological abundance despite the lack of support for them, because to become high quality to begin with you've had to overcome tremendously bad odds and grow in a hostile environment... kinda like a cactus!

Be an island unto yourself

48 upvotes · 6 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

In other words, you should be a more developed individual than she is, and have a more active and productive life than she does. She should feel privileged to be in your life, not the other way around. You should elicit her femininity, and she should mould to your preferences to please you, not the other way around.

Barring that, if she's more developed than you, you can't catch up, and you really like her, just be dominant as fuck and work on yourself and she'll fall in line.

Ideally though, you're always the more developed individual. And looking at how lazy and basic most bitches are these days, this isn't something that should be too hard to accomplish.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

48 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy fucking shit you need to keep your wife away from all these delinquent friends of hers. If my girl knew all these kinds of women, I'd be concerned how they'd influence her. We all know how easily influenced women are when they're with the sisterhood.

Loser is one of the most devastating insults you can hit a woman with.

48 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women think having emotional drama makes them deep and important. They conflate histrionics with characteristic depth. I see it as nothing but juvenile attention seeking, like a baby crying for its mother, infantile.

EDIT:

Allow me to expound on this further, it is struggle which determines the nature of an individual. People respect struggle. Everybody respects a self-made man more than a man born to a rich daddy. Both are high status, but one is more admirable in personal quality. One man defied odds, whilst the other simply obeyed them. A rich child who dies rich just didn't fuck up. You don't get points for not squandering the family fortune. A poor child who died rich hit the big time, he had to build every connection, deal with poverty, work with less resources - you name it (on a tangent this is why I find 50 Cent/Curtis Jackson really admirable.)

And so in light of this we innately admire the ever raging conquest of struggle, as we all deeply identify with the process of struggle within our own lives no matter how varied each of our lives may be. We all have struggles pertaining to our own weaknesses.

Women tend to be histrionic (99% - so let's say it's a fundamental of AWALT.) They enjoy swinging from an emotional high to an emotional low. They enjoy the validation that comes with being a "survivor" or whatever because it makes them seem powerful, like they're an underdog who overcame struggle. And you know what people who defied the odds get? Admiration, respect. This is all women want, but they want to ride out their emotions too, because they're histrionic.

So it's a 2-in-1 thing here, it's processing her emotions, because this is the fundamental modus operandi of women to "listen to their heart" and have it dictate/validate their decision-making. And secondly, to be respected for being emotional. We all innately see emotivity in the extreme, bar anger, as weakness. Sure anger is a loss of self-control, but it's anything but weak. So what do they do? Spin an underdog/victim narrative and get praised for "overcoming odds."

It's quite clever if you think about it, but I doubt they sit there planning it out. It comes intuitively to women, as do most things Machiavellian with a womanly flavour - they feel their way into it. The very nature of womankind is Machiavellian itself.

At a glance, people oft cannot tell the difference between histrionics and real struggle. But there is an easy well to tell the difference. People who wear their struggle as a badge of honour, who wear it obviously - they are the histrionics. They become identarian with their struggle and feel the need to tell everyone about it. With those who don't wear it as a badge, there's a genuinely higher chance whatever struggle they purport to have faced is real.

Trump to Megyn Kelly: I Don't Have Time For Political Correctness and Neither Does This Country. Trump spills Redpills all over the place.

48 upvotes · 7 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Well shit. If women are that emotional that you can't say ANYTHING bad about ANY woman without an angry uproar should these types of people (women) be voting at all?

No, no they shouldn't. And I think Trump realises that.

Trees.

48 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

and in doing so we build up not just a physical world, but also a social contract.

We were left with a tattered social contract and we continue to rip it up piece by piece. The decline is mostly social as technologically and economically (not accounting for debt but just raw GDP) we're stronger than ever.

Globalisation doesn't really help as humans are tribal animals and prefer people that look and sound like them (known as ingroup preference which psychopaths take to it's absolute state: hyperindividualism.) Communities used to be tight everywhere, as per tribalism. Globalisation makes your neighbour a stranger and segregates the population. This takes society from a high trust "I know everybody around here" state to a low trust "who the fuck is that over there?" state. As trust is lower, Machiavellianism outside the political class increases and even becomes a way of life. If you want to see a microcosm of this, compare rural life to city life. People are much nicer in rural locales because they're higher trust micro societies. They have a sense of geography-based tribalism.

Then feminism emancipates women from men, the women are choosing who they mate with instead of the woman's father, and so women have sex with "bad boys" (more likely to have psychopathic genes) and breed baby psychopaths because psychopaths activate attraction switches in women. If you read the statistics, out of all the psychopaths in prison most came from single mother families and have a madonna-whore complex ala Freud (which is why such people would also find TRP agreeable.)

The decline leaves us in a state of entropy until we reach collapse, rampant opportunism and psychopathic morality (self-focussed utilitarianism) prevails. Civilizational morality aka the social contract/altruism is declining as the future of civilization looks uncertain.

The only way to reason with people who don't care about the big picture is to make them see themselves as part of it. Someone who doesn't care about anyone except themselves (a psychopath or a narcissist) doesn't even care about their own kids, let alone civilisation. Simply, the child is an extension of such a person's ego, so they care about the child - but not for the sake of the child - but for the sake of themselves. The child is a tool to be used for resolving any personal issues they have with their parents vicariously via a parental role with their child. Effectively, such people (psychopaths) don't want children for the sake of children, and don't even feel altruism for their children, they simply see their children as a means to an end - it's all ego and self-interested utilitarianism.

So as you can see - it makes sense why such people wouldn't give a shit about the big picture and will effectively perpetuate hyperindividualism on the micro and anarchism on the macro via the relative anonymity of the internet.

The only way you could remotely sell a psychopath on why unfettered utilitarianism is bad is to tell him that his children won't be able to represent his legacy if society collapses because he will be forgotten. And even then he will try to deduce a way to leave a legacy without needing children to do so, he'll say something about leaving university papers or something. So then you need to hit him with the genetics angle and tap into the ego, talk about how his brilliance will be lost to humanity if not imbued into his children. And he might buy that, he may have kids, but they are more likely to be hyper-individualist due to his narcissism (if not his genes) than value civilisation over the self. So in a way, he's probably doing us all a favour if he doesn't reproduce. Effectively, a psychopath is a psychopath, they DGAF at the deepest of levels and no argument is going to change that.

What you have to learn about amoral utilitarian self-interested psychopathic morality is it has absolutely no altruism. Zero. Anything that looks like altruism is merely aesthetic in nature and probably a gambit to be used for leverage/to boost one's reputation. They don't help people for the sake of helping people, they help you only if they think it will benefit them in some way. Luckily psychopaths are only 1-2% of the population but their outlook (as agreed with by subclinicals) is essentially overrepresented on this sub. I probably haven't helped with that with my writings.

This sub and its views as dictated are a reactionary microcosm to the failings/vitation of the social contract. Official position? Rip it up more because it's fucked anyway. Get yours, fuck everyone else. Essentially, even though I do not believe Roosh's position was particularly noble, there was some half-truth in what he was saying. By not giving a shit about society and being purely focused on the individual, you simply throw petrol on the decline for some short-term happiness. Better that you speed up the decline and be happy whilst it hurtles towards entropy than slow or even reverse the decline if it affects your personal happiness, right? Enjoy the decline!

If all of the western world followed TRP tomorrow the whole house of cards would collapse - and nobody would give a shit until it affects their ability to satiate their personal greed. When it does, in line with utilitarianism, all of a sudden they'd care. The same people who were on board with the decline will not be the same people fit to rebuild civilisation to the height that it reached. Because we didn't get this far "enjoying a decline." Once such people have harems and gold, that's them - fuck everyone. Civilisation doesn't survive without altruism, national identity and community. It cannot have these things when everybody considers themselves to be their own country. Narcissism reaching critical mass is bad for everyone in the long run.

It is what it is. I'm of the opinion the decline is not reversible and short-term incentives will continue to conquer principles designed to assure long-term incentives (eg: your kid or grandkid gets a tree) - fuck, your grandkid will be lucky to have a stick let alone a tree. Is gen Y much better than the baby boomers? Nah, they're just a poorer version of them.

It is what it is. Without collective action, one is powerless to change these things, so enjoying the decline actually makes a lot of sense. And thus we come full circle.

In light of that, I tire of all this morality talk. It's just one big loop of bullshit.

Text Game: Be the Man Who Doesn't Reply

48 upvotes · 25 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Reading the 48 laws of power is a natural game enhancer because without really becoming fucked in the head, you're taking gambits out of the Machiavellian play book and applying them quite directly. The 48 Laws of Power is like a cook book full of ingredients and no methodology, it won't make a Mach out of anyone, only those who were already that way inclined for whatever reason. For the rest of you, it's just a bunch of social gambits you can use in random situations, eg: hooking up with women.

This post effectively encapsulates the law "Always say less than necessary:"

<http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.com/2011/05/law-4-always-say-less-than-necessary.html>

For chatty men who like to be specific this may prove difficult, but it's all a part of the general IDGAF + aloof mystique. Online or in person, unless you're trying to teach people something, be light on words and description - make her work for every drop of information, tease her curiosity, make fun, build sexual energy, escalate. A guy who puts everything out there and is always available is no challenge, he's boring.

Drugs and Their Effects on Your Poon Plundering Prowess

48 upvotes · 22 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Upvoted. A lot of people think "they're above drugs" and will just downvote for mentioning 'em, but they have a role to play in social interactions and vastly change how you interact and see everything. They're a big part of any thriving party scene. People who've never done any drugs are ignorant and have a holier than thou attitude towards them. Like you said, alcohol is the most socially acceptable, but probably, at least in the short term, one of the most detrimental. When you drink alcohol experiment with your poison. Certain brands of vodka give me shittier hangovers than others, for instance.

15% of women at executive level or above admit to having slept with their boss.

48 upvotes · 15 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't feel guilty as I am happy

The power of the hamster, its why some people arbitrarily label women as psychopaths.

Being above a woman in a company appeals to her hypergamy, they do it to start with to get cash and prizes, but eventually it turns into "I actually like him" because unlike her husband who she views as equal or lesser, the boss is above her and so by fucking him she feels like she's upgrading.

Woman worried that her brother is too much into /r/theredpill

48 upvotes · 7 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are weird, they want to have their cake and eat it too (AF/BB when they are young, then go to a BP when they're post-wall getting whatever alpha action they can manage to attract on the side - affairs)

But if a guy is an AF that isn't tied down to or otherwise providing for a woman they lose their shit. It's like they want all their AFs to be in relationships at least so even when other women want to fuck him they get to be "the other woman". The idea of a guy just fucking chicks left, right and centre with no commitments really fucks with the female psyche. Preselection is a bitch.

Old but excellent. Maddox has been wrecking feminists since the 90s. "26 things a perfect guy would do and other propaganda.."

48 upvotes · 10 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You wanna hold hands? Hold 'em. Hate holding hands? Don't hold 'em.

Common Courtesies: Rp or Bp

48 upvotes · 15 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

OK. Beige Phillip covered what you are asking. If you want help "getting into the red pill mindset" I earnestly recommend taking the time to listen to the podcast/radio show over at <http://beigephillip.com> - start from episode 01, it's a funny show with a lot of truth, it's no chore to listen to at all. It'll help you get into the right mindset.

I've got some of the beige phillip principles recorded on my site if you want a quick glaze over what to expect from the podcast: <http://illimitablemen.com/48lawsowomen/>

Now to address your question. If you do something because you want to do it, it's RP. If you do something because someone else tells you to or it's a power game, that's BP. The only caveat is if you are a subordinate in a company, then you have to be subservient by nature of your position, but outside that you should only do things you want to do. Assuming you are a man biologically, and not still a teenage kid that needs guidance from their parents about life. If you are still a teenager and your parents aren't dysfunctional, you should cede some decision making to them and gain your independence gradually.

It's not about the action itself that determines if it's BP or RP but the truthfulness in that action. BP is inherently idealistic and delusional, so to make an action RP you simply need to be holding yourself to the truth and understand WHY you are doing what you are doing. If you do something with an ulterior motive or agenda such as hoping being nice will lead to pussy/promotion you're being manipulative with a weak frame, BP. If you talk total shit to make a sale, you're being BP again. If you flirt with a girl and tell her you want to fuck her, you made your intentions clear - RP. Convincingly making a sale by listing the pros and cons of a product with no fluff? RP.

Now this works on the flipside too. If you care about the person who makes demands on you to report in to them and you believe they are genuinely concerned and not trying to undermine you by making you report to them, then you should agree to do so in order to alleviate their worry/concern. That's love. That person cares about you. In the examples you gave ask yourself if the person saying these things to you cares about you? If they don't, it's probably powerplay, or simply you think they don't care when they do. Those examples are something your mother would say/do.

However if it's a power game or some bullshit, then you say "Haha why the fuck would I do that?" or "No, you're OK" how you gauge your response is dependent on your relationship with the person in question, you have to analyse and discern what the social paradigm between the two of you is, there's no blanket correct answer, you have to adapt to different relationships and change your behaviour accordingly depending upon the person and the manipulation at play, if any.

Be true to yourself and you will be credible. Do things because you want to do them for yourself, not because you feel you have to do them due to social pressure. You can't be your own man if you let others dictate how you live your life. Answer to nobody but yourself, make yourself accountable by holding yourself to certain goals and objectives and take responsibility for when you both succeed and fuck up. Make yourself worthy of your own validation, find reasons to be proud of yourself and you have the trappings of what constitutes manhood, power (from self improvement) and credibility (from valuing the truth above all else and holding yourself accountable.)

Apart from improving your life with things like lifting and learning things, it has to start mentally - by having a mind of your own and not letting people boss/push you around. Learn to be stubborn and argue your point. You need gumption, a spine. However, you also need to be able to tell the difference between someone asking you to do something as a power game and someone whom is asking you to do something because they care about you. Good luck.

Where have all the beta providers gone?

48 upvotes · 1 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You do get hot girls who are intelligent, but they are normally so machiavellian that LTRing them is not safe for your mental health. They will end you unless you're a psycho/very adept high mach yourself.

Most hot girls are vapid, that is what it is. Machiavellian or vapid. Womens power, usually, comes from sexuality 99%+ of the time, which is why when they're old they become bitter or sweet old ladies, they've lost their power so their personalities are no longer corrupted by wielding that power, now they develop themselves outside the sexual and become more likeable people for it.

Ugly girls don't bother harnessing their sexual potential as they don't believe they have any. So they work on their personalities from a younger age. Surprisingly, this shit makes sense.

Hot girls with personality who won't manipulate the hell out of you? Unicorn.

Easiest way to cross become Redpill? Read your Woman's electronic communications.

48 upvotes · 4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep women are addicted to compliments from Facebook most of them have the app installed on their phone and long to hear their phone go off with a notification.

If a chick doesn't have facebook that's a massive plus as far as I'm concerned, they use that shit for the ego validation beta orbiters and girls are willing to provide, to flirt with alpha dick and use it as a massive psychological crutch to feel good.

They feel important when their phone is buzzing off to "oh u look so pretty in this pic!" and "you look cute" or "hey how u doin?" in IM from 5 of their orbiters.

Chicks without facebook = GOLD, facebook ruins lives. Your girl on her phone on facebook whilst shes with you too much isn't a good sign, it's disrespectful and it means she's all fed on e-validation, rather than being concentrated on getting her man's (your) validation.

Facebook devalues compliments/validation significantly like porn devalues female sexuality. It's not better than the real thing but it acts as a great substitute.

Women don't know what they want

47 upvotes · 5 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why women are so easily led by narcissists. They follow conviction, not logic.

How is it really like being a single male in your 30s?

47 upvotes · 17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

i'm in my early 30s and last year i was dating an 18 year old. you should have seen how furious the older women got when they found this out!

That's the sound of sweet, sweet, schadenfreude right there. Bet you got some "PEDOPHILE!" comments, among other things. If she's legal, who cares? Haters gonna hate. Jealous women past their prime do it best, hate that is, not make themselves decent relationship material.

You're quite right about women spoiling easy:

completely emotionally and psychologically fucked

Is something I'm finding with a fair amount of women in their 20's, I think it starts around the 25~ age group where you find there is a fair amount of women who have already been alpha widowed from a very serious LTR and thus are mad with men/the world. That or she's a whore that's been passed around so much she's taken on the psychological characteristic of a cum bucket, if cum buckets could talk that is.

You get 'em young or there is no real hope for anything but a casual fuck. Women spoil too easily. Not just physically, but mental too. They're fickle in pretty much every way that matters. Sucks balls.

When fucking women 28-35 always be wary about unprotected sex too. This is the infamous "BABY RABIES ZONE."

So you want to be a man? Welcome to life on Hard mode.

47 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's an incredibly beautiful poem.

Field report: Destroyed my Eastern European girlfriend's shit test with flying colours. Thank you TRP.

47 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"How would you feel if I just kissed a random guy?". I knew what was going on so I just said "I'd join you and kiss him as well".

That's a well executed agree and amplify. Keep it up you're handling it great. Being dismissive is far better than acknowledging it head-on, it seems counter intuitive to the male mind but it communicates subtextually that you're keeping frame and you're confident enough to not be bothered by random fictional bullshit she had made up rather than be so insecure that you're trying to acknowledge said bullshit with logic, which is of course, setting yourself up for torture. Women know when they're bullshitting you but they do it to see if you know they're bullshitting you, this way they test not only your social intelligence but your masculinity/sense of confidence directly. She says what she says so she can get feedback from you that will communicate what type of man you are. Are you a man on top of his shit, a masculine man, or will you supplicate to her, communicating you're unworthy of respect and by extension, her love?

We've all been there with a woman. We take it at face value (addressing what she's saying at face value and replying to it as if it is inherently legitimate) rather than seeing past the surface level of her words to see WHY she is saying what she's saying and what her intent for saying that is (usually: to gauge your confidence indirectly, get attention and etc) Women are like children in that they make shit up just to gauge what your frame/state is. They prefer to test you covertly but directly rather than be forthright. Where men tend to judge on words and actions, in the absence of charm words mean little to women and they're all about the actions and the subtext of the words. Where men operate linguistically on a surface level, women tend to operate on what those words translate into subtextually as it reveals more about that person's emotional state than surface level does. It's not so much what you said that passes the shit test, but how what you said communicates on a subtextual emotional/psychological level who you are. It says "I'm better than you, shut up" which is what she wants to hear. She wants to be reminded she's with a man who is the shit because any whiff you're not and she'll be moving on.

How women shit test is they create fictional problems based on something non-tangible, usually a negative way you supposedly made them feel or some other non-verifiable crap and they throw it at you as an accusation to see how you react women are constantly looking for a reaction, stress-testing you basically, to see how much of a man you are. This is natural to them and annoying as fuck to us (unless you grow to love it and become so competent at spinning it around you have fun with it,) but they can't help it. This is also why amused mastery works so well. By not taking a woman seriously you subconsciously and subtextually communicate to her that you are better than her, and that you have complete control over your own thoughts/state of being. By allowing her to undermine your confidence, you make yourself less attractive to a woman. Women work on this seemingly counter-intuitive premise (to a man, anyway): if he can't handle the shit I throw at him then how can he handle the shit the world will throw at him? Women are always testing your strength, they're like barometers of masculinity and if you get too weak they leave. Shit tests are really just a way for women to test your mental strength and the more she begins to trust your mental strength as a man (confidence/masculinity), the less frequent the shit tests will become. All women want is a rock, someone that makes them feel safe, someone to fight on their behalf and shelter them from the harshness of the world, and they'll exchange sex to get that.

Huffington Post on "Why Great Husbands are Being Abandoned"

47 upvotes · 14 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not even conscious. She probably thinks these all inclusive pro feminist pro gay pro islam athiest arts degree educated middle class types are actually sophisticated free thinkers due to their politically correct indoctrinated "tolerance" rather than useful idiots deluded into believing they possess sophistry. In truth, they're just following the cultural narrative, critical thinkers, very few of them are. Case in point: Sweden.

"I'm so bored, Entertain me"

47 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"You're bored because you're boring"

Yeah when they say shit like that I'm not going to turn into the court jester. Fuck that.

Non-Hamstered Explanation of Why Women Like Bad Boys

47 upvotes · 20 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can never really have him. Even if you reach a point where you officially call each other 'boyfriend' and 'girlfriend,' there is a part of you which is always on edge, unsure of what is going to happen next. The rug can be pulled out at any moment, and there is something about the unknown that can be so intoxicated. When you are always waiting, always anticipating, the moment when affection or attention or confirmation actually arrives is like a huge dose of some incredible drug.

Adrenaline from dread game.

It's unexpected, and therefore interesting. His love remains a surprise because you can't be sure of when or where it's going to come.

Dread game and scarcity creates value.

There is a definite power structure in these relationships, because you rely on his affection while he could definitely be fine without you.

Stoic detachedness and outcome independence = you seem dominant, makes her moist in the loins.

Confidence is amazing. It's like some kind of natural perfume that just radiates off of people and draws others in,

Positive energy is inherently magnetic.

It's all about tying them down and making them your own, and being overcome with frustrated passion when you're not able to

Trying to make a guy beta, if you win you hate it because it gets boring, but they love trying it anyway because its so much fun from all the drama and shit that happens as a result. It's like their built-in shit test.

Other women want him, too. You can see the look in their eyes when he talks to them with easy, detached confidence. You Preselection.

His walls will come down, his emotions will come out, and he will start answering your calls on a regular basis. Maybe it's maternal instinct, maybe it's just pure stupidity — either way, a huge part of your love is about fixing him.

Don't fucking understand this shit.

I guess the real problem is, if you ever did really teach him how to love normally, would you still want him just as much?

No because it's too easy, boring, not enough drama etc.

Long Term Inner-Game - You can't be dependent on her love and you can't share your weaknesses with her if you want to keep her, among other nuggets of wisdom (bullet pointed)

47 upvotes · 15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No pain, no gain. All part of being a man. :)

My ex freaks out about me fucking someone a week after our break up, turns out she fucked one of my friends only 3 days after.

47 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

We never spoke again.

She was an important person to me once upon a time but these kind of antics are not something I can forgive. I have boundaries and I don't give a shit how much estrogen you have, whether you're on your period or "it was in the moment" or "it all got a little much" or whatever feminine BS you will throw at me, violate me like that and I will never forgive you.

Bitches have agency, bitches should fucking use it by taking responsibility.

1000 migrants in Germany sexually assault, rob and rape women at one train station on New Year's eve. Feminists actively are trying to cover it up.

46 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly, getting rid of white people won't end racism, if anything it will just change its complexion, people will find new ways to hate and segregate regardless of how diverse (or not) the rainbow is.

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

46 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not like these bitches can cook.

The feminist shithole of Sweden just got the princess it deserves

46 upvotes · 14 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This prince marries a fucking single mother? God. These nordic princes are fucking retarded.

I finally told the girl who used me all year for school work I wouldn't help her anymore.

46 upvotes · 3 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wonder how many of these bitches get their degrees just sucking whatever cock happens to be going (professor cock / nerd boy cock etc)

I'll keep this short and sweet- Woman's definition of love...

46 upvotes · 12 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women aren't capable of loving someone who they don't look up to -- financially and in terms of power. Which is why equality in the workplace has turned into a disaster for societies across the globe. Hundreds of millions of women will be single forever because they don't really want equality in their own personal lives: They want a partner who is unequal -- and superior.

Hit the nail on the head with this. Deserves a standing ovation. Ultimately, it is their hypergamy that will make them miserable. There isn't enough "superior men" to go around, some women will lock these apex males down but the rest are doomed to cathood. That's why we say to raise your value here, once you make it you really have it made. Hypergamy will select you every time. There's no competition. Ain't hypergamy a bitch? I think the statistics for the increase of depression in women post-feminism is very telling. According to surveys, they're more miserable than men. Both genders got more depressed after feminism, but women far more so. Bitches don't know what the fuck is good for them, they're prone to fuck up without a man guiding them. Silly bitches.

Women and the Art of Lying

46 upvotes · 28 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman's word is worth half of a man's precisely because of this fundamental difference in character.

You know how we mock posters about the whole "Her husband might hurt you" observations? Yeah... about that.

46 upvotes · 10 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women: nature's defectors. Loyalty? What's that? OH? THIS GUY IS BEATING THE SHIT OUT OF THE GUY I WAS JUST FUCKING? BETTER HIT HIM TOO, DON'T WANT HIM HITTING ME!

Haha fuck, this story is too perfect. Fucking women.

The rise of the internet and future of attraction

46 upvotes · 26 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Average looking women are constantly complimented on social media, which raises their egos, and this makes it harder for most men.

Which is why getting good at delivering ego shattering negs has become part of game as game has evolved. Game will always be relevant it's just ever evolving.

In the 1940's taking a bitch out for dinner, opening doors and shit for her was good game. Now, it's talking to bitches on tinder like they are worthless because "nice guys are boring!"

Thanks feminism.

The power of "Ok"

46 upvotes · 9 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A hamster is the mechanism present in the female psyche which reconciles emotion with logic to fabricate a false interpretation of reality. Women, unlike men, are not chained in their views by the authoritarianism of logic and evidence (lessons learned from experience.) As men are to science, women are to religion (to use a metaphor.)

When it's trying to rationalise up bullshit excuses and justifications the youtube link below shows what a hamster looks like when a rational person is challenging it, if she is only deluding herself, it will go at a far slower speed.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1VuMdLm0ccU&feature=youtu.be>

It can also be characterised affectionately by a tweet I made:

"To the female hamster, reality is just one big wheel that she can spin, and stop wherever she likes, to get the interpretation that suits her [best]."

Hamstering is literally making weak logical fabrications for emotional decision making (doing something because your emotions told you to, and then coming up with bullshit logical reasons for it after the fact), as well as self-delusionary justification to absolve guilt. Usually the hamster spins when they do things that are irrational, immoral or otherwise, would cause cognitive dissonance (cause them to feel awkward about their inherent shittiness.) Alas, the hamster in the average woman spins multiple times a day in order to keep her misinformed world view intact and deceiving her, as well as attempting to do the same to those in her field of influence. When you get a group of women together, it's what's known as "hamster fest" they all bounce off each others bullshit, talk shit about people who aren't there whilst avoiding direct confrontation with one another. They manage this by trying to finish each other's sentences, feeding each other feel good bullshit and ending their own sentences with superficially vapid upward inflexions, creating an atmosphere of overly agreeable false "friendliness."

Field report: Destroyed my Eastern European girlfriend's shit test with flying colours. Thank you TRP.

46 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I too find hamsters flying at intense speed on a wheel only to be flung through the air at high velocity going WHEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE to be incredibly entertaining.

Male stripper on reddit declares he gets a blowjob from nearly every bride-to-be at bachelorette parties.

46 upvotes · 4 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Understand what a woman is and trust a woman to be a woman; to do everything in her own best interest (what makes her feel good) and to betray you to get that, whether she has to or merely because she wants to.

Now all the institutions in place meant to curb women's immoral behaviours have gone (patriarchal head of house fathers, strict abidance to religion etc) they've gone feral.

If your SMV is low, EG: you're fat, poor, unpopular or whatever then forget women/socialising/doing pointless shit for a good year 6 months to a year - just be utterly selfish forget everyone else and go do your own thing.

46 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Cocoon mode" I like that term. It's good. I'm going to use that, if you don't mind. Thanks for contributing.

Two college students (male and female) have sex. The next day the woman writes to the man: "I had a wonderful time, but I'm sorry I led you on, I'm not ready for a relationship". One year later: She files a charge of "non-consensual sexual contact" through the college disciplinary system.

46 upvotes · 17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Because it is! Holy shit.

Exeter University student named 'Britain's horniest student' - bangs 3 guys a week, gets called out in comments, and the white knights rise up

46 upvotes · 15 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Lol her employers will be asking for under the desk blow jobs

Purple Piller grows a pair, confronts his cheating wife, and plans to divorce her

46 upvotes · 24 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Trickle truth!

- Oh no, we didn't go clubbing, just to a beach party.
- Oh, my friends brought some guys back but I didn't do anything.
- Oh, whilst my friends fucked these guys behind me in the same room, I just watched TV.
- Oh, I just sucked his dick, because y'know, he paid for drinks, I swear we didn't have sex! (same girl says bitches aren't kindness machines that dispense sex... then dispenses blowjobs LOOOL)

You see you can't trust these hos, they uncover a little bit of the lie each step of the way, and only if you force them to uncover that segment. The truth is probably "I had a threesome with some random guys with my friends" but she can't admit to herself she's a ho, let alone to you.

"How can she slap?" meme captures the incentive women have to provoke and assault a man knowing they are protected by the collective white knighthood.

46 upvotes · 27 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate how the entire studio was a bunch of fucking betas white knightting that bitch.

If I saw a guy hit a girl and the girl was looking around for help first thing I'd ask is "What did she do to make him hurt her?"

In the words of Bill Burr, an asskicking doesn't just fall out of the air ladies, you're usually responsible for it. So the "there's no reason to hit a woman" line is BULLSHIT, there's plenty of fucking reasons to do it, doesn't make it a good thing, doesn't make it right, but logically, PLENTY OF REASONS FOR THAT SHIT.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AlvvCYUDHrQ>

Observed my daughter using/abusing a Beta: She's 11

45 upvotes · 15 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

And all her other little friends are vicariously getting off on seeing a girl dangle power over a boy. Bitches be Machiavellian. Virtue from power is a masculine trait, not a feminine one.

"Men's Rights Activists have missed the point of feminism " - Intellectually disingenuous article from The Telegraph writes a smear piece aimed at discrediting TRP and AVFM.

45 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It is ridiculous just how much power/influence/money there is in blogging. New media and the free flow of information is truly marvellous. If you are shit, you won't make it as a blogger. If you're not, you will flourish unhindered by corporate overlords and publishing agencies. God bless the internet and the free market.

The Red Pill is the radical notion that women are people.

45 upvotes · 1 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Black guy move is to play the race card when spinning the victim angle. When women hate you for being a man and racist minorities hate you for being white, what SJW card you gonna pull out of your ass? Diddy squat, because everyone is convinced you're the cause of their problems and that you're so evil/bad/wrong that you can't possibly be a victim, even if you are unfairly treated because everyone around you hates white men (he's racist! he's a misogynist! etc.)

May be white men running the country, but the average white man has fuck all power in the game. White man at the top and average trailer trash eminem level white man are worlds apart. White man aint got no card he can pull outta his ass that will get him support. White man better just stfu or walk away. Apologising only ever make things worse. Ever seen a white man apologise for men to women or apologise to blacks for "what them whites did in slavery?" they get fucking laughed at. It's a sick game. People hate white men so much, because they jealous, got an inferiority complex etc, but they can't be openly racist so they veil their hatred through accusations. If they black and they hate whites, they call you a racist, because they racist. If they female and they hate men, they call you a misogynist, because they're misandrists. It's fucking projection. A lot of blacks I met are some racist ass motherfuckers. Same goes for whites. Nobody got the moral high ground with that shit. You know what I find funny is how african immigrant blacks hate african americans for constantly playing the victim. Same colour, same genetics, different mentality. Them lesbians would have hated any man, esp. blacks because "he's a thug!" but white men? "patriarchy!" they ain't got love for men period.

Ah, gotta love modern day segregation. Personally I think black men and white men have more similarities between them than women of any race, but that's just me. Some people are pretty damn racist. Most of us are only slightly racist. In my opinion everyone is racist, because everyone favours their own race the most. When someone says "I'm not racist" I know them to be a fucking liar straightaway. Don't tell me you don't feel more comfortable around your own, or favour your own, everyone does. It's part of our animal instinct. To be tribal/preserve genes/be suspicious of people who look so differently from you. As long as you don't go all KKK and start hating on others/fucking them up because of that instinct, then shit's cool.

[48 Days of Power] Day 46 - Never appear too perfect.

45 upvotes · 30 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Attack yourself so that others will not feel the need to. Control the negative perceptions surrounding you by setting the frame for them. Attack yourself so when others do the blow is lessened. What they say bad about you will lose any originality or flair because you have already confessed to it and owned it. By doing that you seem like a personable, approachable kind of person. And your attackers? They'll seem petty and weak. Defend your reputation by attacking yourself inconsequentially. Allow your enemies only pyrrhic victories; to win small meaningless battles without wider implication. By being ready to insult yourself, you keep your ego in check and protect yourself from it's exploitation. Likewise you deprive your detractors of more valued wider-reaching victory, eg: reputation destruction, power siphoning, deposition etc.

Gaylube Oil's Expectation Test

45 upvotes · 8 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, lack of access to validation/attention and a more humble disposition make for a far more attractive girl. Not all this excessive unfounded superficial confidence women try to emulate because they find it attractive in men.

Has anybody been brought here and stayed by the "bad press"?

45 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Funny that. If you want a woman who doesn't know you to find you attractive get her friends to tell her how much of an asshole you are and her intrigue will get the better of her. Same principle applies here.

"You can't know someone until you fuck them"

45 upvotes · 2 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

How movingly poetic, crude, but poetic nevertheless.

Seems I owe TRP a Field Report. New Girlfriend and RP Mentality [FR]

45 upvotes · 1 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Offense is taken, not given.

This is incredibly important in the blame attribution game.

19 year old woman, who has ridden the cock carousel with 27 partners already, asks if her partner count is a deal breaker!

45 upvotes · 1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

elegant_ejaculation 205 points 3 hours ago

Honestly, most guys would not be cool with that. But let's say I don't find out until after I've become emotionally invested in you. I'll never be able to get that image out of my head; you're my sweet girl, but you've had 27 dicks inside of you. Do you have any idea what that does to a guy?

scribfuck 30 points 3 hours ago

Wow. You just broke my heart.

- Q: "Do you have any idea what that does to a guy?"
- A: "Wow. You just broke my heart."

Solipsism is a hell of a fucking drug. She gives no shit at all about the hypothetical guys feelings, just wants to be told she can land a man to pay the bills and be monogamous with her once her looks fade from aging and her ticket to all the expenses paid cock paradise expires.

Female Logic: "Why is it that I'm a bigger slut when I slept with 63 guys once or maybe twice when my boyfriend slept with his 1st girlfriend 100+ times? That's the same amount of sex!"

45 upvotes · 14 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Sex with 63 men once = no chemical bond with any of them, no emotional attachment, no loyalty

Sex with 1 man 63 times = strong chemical bond and strong emotional attachment, shows loyalty

Conclusion: You suck at monogamy and no guy will want to be monogamous with you, you're officially a whore - good for nothing but a fuck. You had the choice to be a good girl but you chose to be a whore, so stop bitching about your own choices, they're your fault, nobody else's, so woman the fuck up and take responsibility you dumb ho. Good luck locking down a beta provider, your pussy is probably so beat up Muhammad Ali would be impressed by the damage. I'll get you a cat for your birthday to prepare you for old-lady-hood.

2 old sluts just sat next to me at the bar and started telling me I'm cute and flirting with me. They asked where my girlfriend was, when I said "I don't date" they started going off on me saying "I'm on the wrong road" and that "I just hit it and quit it" I said

44 upvotes · 19 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

1) When a rapper calls women "bitches", it doesn't offend them because "they aren't talking about me" (has nothing to do with me).

Because it's not being said specifically to them, but being said via media and so it's not personal/directed at them and they can realise this.

2) But when a man doesn't want to date for LTR or has decided to not marry (other women), it's offensive to them even though it has nothing to do with them.

Because it's being said TO HER even though it's not referring TO HER, her herd mentality empathy combined with her solipsism kicks in and she gets offended as if it's being suggested "she's not good enough for a relationship"

Tell a woman "I don't believe in marriage" and she hears "I'm not worthy of marriage, because if I was, you'd believe in marriage" - it's always about them.

These are the insecure petty creatures we're dealing with.

PSA - Be cautious of your online persona

44 upvotes · 20 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Marilyn Monroe

It's funny that women look up to a suicidal orphan with borderline personality disorder.

Early 1900's RedPill philosophy that's virtually a mandatory read for Serbian men - "The Treasure of Tsar Radovan"

44 upvotes · 4 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

OP, these are brilliant, please translate as much as you can.

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

44 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hahahaha oh my that was fucking bad, so bad that it's funny.

what percentage of American woman are datable?

44 upvotes · 15 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Very few women bring anything to the relationship except her vagina.

Stay single & fuck hookers if you can't find women who elicit a more substantive psychological connection. Of course if you find a chick with a personality... by all means. LTR that bitch up.

Keep it simple - lift and approach.

44 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't care about pick up techniques, having game, keeping frame, kino or escalating. I have become much happier by just following the pursuit of pussy along a simple formula.

Well RP is more than the pursuit of pussy, you're just not at the point where you care about anything other than that (this is the impression I get by reading between the lines in your post.)

I started doing this two months ago, being a 21 year old virgin. Since I have had a one night stand and scored my current girlfriend. Granted it isn't much, but it's an improvement.

Well done. Now you won't have that weird attitude about you that most celibate men have (which drives them crazy/alienates them from others.) Just remember the world isn't all about pussy. There's a lot more to be explored and achieved. Women are like drugs you enjoy them now and again but they're not really necessary to enjoying a rich and fulfilled life. At their best, they are complementary. At their worst they're a subjugating detriment. Women are to be indulged in, not pedestalled nor the focal point of your life's endeavours.

I never really understood the appeal of all the dating techniques.

PUA is bullshit to exploit lesser men's desire for intimacy by giving them a few fish here and there without helping them make the proper internal changes needed to become kick ass and slay pussy independently of over priced seminars and bootcamps. Nothing wrong with game tips and stories though. If you can sharpen your game, why not? Everything PUA teaches you can learn without all the monetary exploitation from this subreddit, my blog and Rollo's blog etc. You won't have to pay a cent for any of that knowledge either.

Good luck on your journey.

Prostitute Game

44 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I believe they can somehow smell the other bitch on you. Like some pheromonal shit, and then their biology sends them into "provider preservation" mode and they fuck you to keep you around. I have no evidence for my theory. But that's fishy. See if this can be replicated with different men. If it can, we may have found something big.

"You have "the right to retroactively withdraw consent" from any encounters you had, at any point in the past, that no longer feel good or safe to you." (when feminists go full retard)

44 upvotes · 17 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The ridiculous warrants ridicule.

How do you respond to the "you just want sex" shit-test?

44 upvotes · 20 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Off the top of my head...

- "You're the one thinking about it." (pressure flip - should be delivered in a mocking tone)
- "Yeah but not from you, I've got standards." (asshole game - neg)
- "Isn't that what women were designed for?" (witty asshole game)
- "Captain Obvious took her vitamin C this morning" (witty asshole game)
- "You're so cute when you act like you're upset" (amused mastery)
- "Yeah, but I'm not sure if you fit the bill" (pressure flip, now qualify to me bitch)
- "Well done, you know men like sex" (indifferent aloof game)

Suit to your style. By the way, the real trick is developing your wit and coming up with shit on your own, not using canned lines given to you by other people. That's some PUA shit. TRP is about coming away from that and having the skills/independence to make this shit a part of who you are and wielding the ability to be witty/charming all by yourself. Watch stand-up comedy, join a comedy club. Learn to be funny/quick-witted, it's an attainable skill like anything. Good luck.

Red Pill Antibiotic Nuke, Come and Feed

44 upvotes · 23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, I went to university but a few years later as I didn't know this shit when I was younger. I was pretty unfocused and unmotivated in my teenage years. I had to struggle and scrape to get where I am, university didn't fall into my lap via a feminised curriculum and affirmative action for the protected class (white women.)

The other smart red pill guys I know in my life (red pill because they keep it real, none of them visit this subreddit) none of them are at university. All of them HATED the classroom environment despite all LOVING to learn and acquire knowledge, they couldn't practice the patience and detachedness and tolerance for unfairness in the educational environment like I can and they did not like the hierarchy, prevalence of female teachers and all kinds of things. They felt like they couldn't reach their potential in education, so they dropped out as they felt education "wasn't for them" and it's not really is it? Education is a fucking gynocracy nowadays. I know these guys are indicative of a subset of the population, none of these guys know each other, we're not a joint social group and yet they all demonstrate similar issues and aversions with the system, sure it's an anecdote but you can cross reference this with guys all over the internet, I'm sure.

They're all really smart guys who, if educated, would blow the average bitch/nerdy beta boy I saw at uni straight out of the water, these are some seriously wise motherfuckers with potential but due to the toxic nature of the social environment they're subjected to in education they simply want nothing to do with that noise and rather work as soon as possible to get their independence, earning enough money to set up their own start-ups rather than "tolerate the system" by being self-made men. I notice the trend, they want nothing to do with the system, they all opt to be self-made, I see that shit with red pill guys all the time, whereas bluepill guys are happy to go do a computer science degree or social science and get talked to like they have no balls day in and day out.

The education system is completely blue pill but the higher up the ladder you go the more truly wise people you meet. University is a very blue pill institution but you will meet some fucking smart motherfuckers there who like you, see through all the bullshit. Blend in, network and get your grades, its training for when you're in the bluepill corporate world until you reach such a time you can self-sustain off independent enterprise/business efforts should you be that way inclined.

How important was the internet to the inception of the red pill movement?

44 upvotes · 16 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When you need an anonymous platform to air your views, that's when you know how free society truly is.

Feminism OWNS the west. The internet has been a true, non-discriminant, non-biased platform which allows us to share our views without prejudice, fear of job loss, ostracization, public condemnation and etc.

In the real world, only very powerful men can get away with being so blatant with their red pill views. The average man is literally held hostage to their views and socially/financially exiled for speaking the truth.

We live in a society where exposing women for their shit is almost a crime unless you have the finesse, charm, wit and social value to pull it off. That's why a huge part of TRP is self improvement, it doesn't just increase your standard of life but it allows you to get away with more shit. Example in case is the sexual harassment parody where ugly men lose their job for being physical and intimate with a woman but hot men who do the same thing get a flustered lady excitedly setting up a date.

The two most powerful weapons in a man's relationship arsenal: Stepping Out, and Walking Away.

44 upvotes · 20 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

HAHAHAHAHA. Women act like cats. Love em too much and they're cunts. Ignore them and they beg for your attention.

The current state of affairs and a taste of what is to come. Single mother parenting.

43 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She's putting away his laundry for him. Why? He's 15, she should be teaching him how to be independent and self-sustaining. Not only should he be folding and putting away his own laundry, but he should be helping his mother do the laundry. Teaching the son the meaning of responsibility.

Women tend not to instruct or teach order and independence. They coddle and create codependence. Women are selfish. They don't want their babies to grow up so they smother them and make them weak. Dad's realise the importance of making a strong boy and are more inclined to teach dependence and balance this BS with a "don't rely on your mother, look, I'll show you how to do it" kind of attitude. Women lack patience and don't want their babies to fuckoff so they're more inclined to go "look, you're doing it all wrong" and just do it for you without teaching you how to do it yourself.

Then there's the weird reverse Freudian shit; a single mother without a man around the house treats her son like the man, because hey, she may not be able to get a man and she may be all alone.. but at least her son will give her the unconditional masculine love she craves, right? Let your mind implode a little over that. It's very real.

I feel bad for the kid, single motherhood fucks kids up immeasurably. It denies boys a vital source of masculinity: their father. I know some guys with single mothers who had an uncle or grandfather step in, but most are utterly alone in the world to work things out for themselves. Very few make it. I know maybe one guy who worked it all out for himself and his life was hardly a paragon of stability growing up. Most boys who fall into that category are dysfunctional. I need to clean up the prose some, but this seems fitting:

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/05/08/the-suffering-of-the-lost-boys/>

Read some of the comments from the guys there. No father = terrible. Weak beta bitch father = barely any better.

Also I have no fucking idea why you're being downvoted, I see far shittier topics hit 100+ easy. Come on guys, give this shit some visibility.

Self confessed "strong women" queue up to be spanked, slapped, and cummed on in r/sex confirming yet another red pill truth AWALT

43 upvotes · 12 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Self-awareness, not really the female strong point. Solipsism and the hamster have an incestuous relationship.

Respect is earned

43 upvotes · 2 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The part where she spends all night with this other guy talking about how they're going to fuck, making sure she has sure thing lined up before dumping her boyfriend – that's cheating, too. Just as much as fucking the guy would be.

Hypergamous branch swing upgrade. Emotional cheating setting a precedent for sexual cheating.

Once she doesn't need you any more, she doesn't need to lie to you any more.

Because she's on that fucking lease. Bitches be sneaky.

That's stuff she's telling him for his benefit to let him down easy. She doesn't benefit from that.

True but for your average guy aka beta aka clueless chump - this is a fucking ball stomping. Small potatoes to you and I is a huge fucking deal for johnny average out there. Remember TRP stacks the deck heavily in your favour, IMO, TRP = the social equivalent of insider trading.

Think about what we're asking of this girl, or of women in general, if we expect loyalty

Loyalty? Oh ma GAWD MUH TRIGGER. UhhhhHHhHhHhHhHhH these hoes ain't LOYYYY-ALLLL. Fuck sake. Chris Brown keeps possessing me spontaneously despite my lack of enthusiastic consent.

That's not a fair thing to ask of women. It's not her responsibility to stay with you on principle alone. It's your responsibility to be the kind of man who doesn't get dumped or cheated on. It's your responsibility to earn her respect, every minute of every day. If she passes on a better offer just on principle, she'll spend the rest of your soon-to-be-very-short-lived relationship resenting you, finding fault in everything about you, suddenly "realizing" how unhappy she is.

Even though I don't take too well to this kind of passive "you're the man so it's all your fault" kind of language, I have to agree with the general premise. If you CAN'T COMMAND RESPECT, or INSPIRE IT - you won't get it. With men/or women. Obviously women are more pragmatic and less honourable generally speaking, plus they're who you want to fuck - so the chances of getting burned are higher with them. Don't think a guy who doesn't respect you won't burn you either though. It's that simple. Women are relentless with this shit. Their love is entirely based on adoration stemming from respect for your superiority. That's superiority relative to her. If a better option comes along, the comparison becomes a three way (no pun intended) and if he trumps you, she'll be tempted to branch swing. If they don't respect you as being THE SHIT then they can't [truly] love you. So yes despite "fairness" (female nature isn't fucking fair, but it is what it is) this is quite right. If she's ditching your ass it doesn't mean she's not a cunt, but it means she's got better options. Bitches be pragmatic. Cut your losses and if it's your style, get revenge.

I, for one, don't want women to be loyal, principled, and honorable. That would just encourage me to get lazy.

Disagree. Women would be a lot more fucking likeable with these traits. As it stands you're on shaky ground. Her loyalty being directly chained to your power, unless you're quite the head-fucker (why do you think so many guys care about the DT) average alpha gets circumstantial loyalty. Mr "I own your mind and blow you away with 50 shades of grey style fucking" owns her body and soul, and will alpha widow her for fucking eternity, effectively making her a "toxic asset" on the dating market.

In relation to the previous paragraph: Law 41 is a fucking bitch. If you translate it into the "48 laws of TRP" law 41 (don't step into a "great" man's shoes) would be "don't date a bitch who used to fuck with a dark triad alpha" so that's your drug dealers, your murderers, your sadistic types, convicts, those really IDGAF to the core kinds of people who really aren't right in the head but had all the charm and cunning to get her enthralled. If she had a relationship with a guy like that just run for the fucking hills you will never have more of an emotional effect on her than he did. Which means over in solipsistic girl world, over in their little head of hers, you're inferior to him, you're not the "best she ever had" because "you don't make her feel as passionately as CLIVE the Cocaine Connect." You could be a billionaire ripped famous motherfucker with all the game in the world and you'd still be the fucking beta bux to her in spite of your SMV. You won't even put a dent into what that guy did to her. She's fucking spoilt. Fucked up. Deflowered mentally. Cut and run.

Women could be all these things, and you know, not wanting to starve to death, my material desires, and having intellectual passion would inspire me to NOT BE lazy. I guess you're right some guys wouldn't do shit over-sexed, but plenty of guys have passions aside from sex. Some people think the only reason we have passions is because we hope we'll get laid from having them. But I disagree. You have passion for the sake of passion. A mission for liking the fuck out of something and finding it interesting - not because you think "hey, neurology might get me laid so IMMA DO THAT!" it's not like doing gender studies, is it? Haha.

I think the constant dread of "If I'm not on top of my shit, I'm gonna lose everything" is not a strong place to be coming from. It's true, it's the nature of the game, but being aware of it AND BEING SIGNIFICANTLY INVESTED AKA MARRIED/LTR is a losers game. I understand guys want companionship, a lot of you are romantics and you're scared of being lonely as you get older - but you're losing when you give her the commitment jackpot.

You're in a perpetual war known as "a relationship" or "marriage" hoping that you can keep this war between husband and wife in a fucking limbo so she doesn't cash out into government/judicial sanctioned victory. Can't slip too much. Can't lose your job. Better not get sick for too long. Can't fail too many shit tests or catch a mother fucking break. Because what happens if you cave? Your world crumbles around you. Relationships are TRP on hard mode because IMO, in a culture where society isn't stacking the deck in the man's favour, the FICKLENESS of women pre-disposes them to cut and run on your ass. When you treat men and women as legal equals, due to how women love, you make monogamy merely possible rather than probable. They are fickle, briffaults law whoring motherfuckers. If you're not close to perfect in your game, health, money, and one other guy interested in her trumps you in most of those fields - you're fucked. Royally. On that point, don't LTR anything over a 7 if you want a crack at love, the hot bitches have too much power and you have less room for error. If you want to fuck hot girls, plate 'em.

I can definitely understand the angle I think you were getting at, which is that an over-sexed and well-fed man is a lazy man, but I think it's weak reasoning for justifying the fickleness of female nature, and even, condoning it. Female nature is pretty fucking shit. Yeah it's possible to come to terms with it, but justifying FICKLENESS as a positive or even acceptable trait is an escapade in hamstering. Realising and accepting aren't the same shit. I realise bitches are fickle, but I don't accept their fickleness. Just because I realise they are like this, I don't have to like it (Accept it.) You can love women all you like, but what you love is inherently shitty on a morbidly profound level of significance. And I can see why a guy craving to love wants to fucking reconcile his need to love with the nature of women. I get that, I do. I really do. It's so shit your love has to delude you, and I see it seep into how guys "in-love" or trying to make an LTR work, think. I'm here to cut through that impairment. As long as you realise that, but choose to love regardless, for your own sake/happiness, then cool. But let's not get shit twisted. You LTR guys mellow the fuck out and get really rose-tinted. Careful.

Gaylube Oil's Expectation Test

43 upvotes · 9 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Beta bucks:

1) emotionally available 2) honesty/loyalty 3) hard working 4) generous 5) caring 6) romantic 7) selfless

- 1) Commitment.
- 2) Commitment isn't going anywhere.
- 3) Acquires wealth (specifically secondary to being committed and loyal to her.)
- 4) That money is getting spent on her.
- 5) Amalgamation of both money and emotions being directed towards her.
- 6) Easy to control, doesn't make her feel cheap
- 7) values himself less than her.

Alpha fucks:

1) exciting 2) adventurous 3) buff/hot 4) is extroverted/has a lot of friends 5) decisive

- 1) tingles
- 2) tingles

3) tingles

4) tingles/status

5) tingles.

LOL, you can't make this shit up.

Vice just released short Documentary on Men's Rights.

43 upvotes · 5 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I saw it. Men's rights is for men who want to make the world more favourable to their struggle. TRP is for men who want to make themselves more superior so that they can better handle their struggle.

"I ask not for a lighter load, but only that my shoulders be broader"

Life should be harder for men than it is for women, for without hardship men would never build the intellect, mental fortitude, stoicism, talent and strength to propel this civilization. Women are the chaos that sharpens or destroys man, without men, if humanity were a uni-gendered species of women, everything would fall to pieces, devolving into chaos within the storms of emotion. Women are utterly dependent on men no matter their protests to the contrary and it is for this reason that the final burden will always lie with men. It is for this reason men are more extreme, that men are more disposable, "become powerful or become obsolete!" is nature's rallying war cry to men as she stringently fitness tests the collective self-development of man. Yes feminism has definitely become abhorrent, to a point that it actually undermines man's ability to be male and be respected for it by "polite" society, but equality is not the answer, equality has never been and will never be. Egalitarians are idiots, they ignore reality for idealism and romantic notion, egalitarians still live within the distorted reality that we call the blue pill.

Anti-feminism? Yes, stop this craziness which is destroying our civilization, you can throw cultural marxism/political correctness entirely into that category as well. There's a red pill for race/multiculturalism, there's a red pill for religion, there's a red pill for democracy and freedom, there's a red pill to combat all of modern western leftist thought which essentially exposes how bullshit each and every one of these things is within the context they are contemporarily presented in. It runs deep. The problem with men's rights is even though it addresses the toxicity of feminism on the macro level, on the micro level (on the level of individualism and the self, rather than societally and politically) it is something of a detrimental movement. Although it may have success politically, as the other poster pointed out "they all look like neckbeards!" so what you have is a bunch of people who realise there are systemic problems in western society with misandry and anti-masculinity becoming an abhorrent institutionalised new norm, but they fail to reflect this awareness within their own personal development in an effort to at least personally actualise self-mastery in spite of the less than favourable environment the feminist landscape has created.

This is where TRP and MR differ. Where Men's Rights places primary focus on changing society with an almost total ignorance of the self, TRP acknowledges the state of society, does not act upon it and instead goes all in with fixating on the improvement of the self in spite of the inhospitable environment. My monk mode article, in many ways, underlines the primary methodology and sentiment behind red pill thought. When one is heavily immersed in gender politics, "fighting the fight" and "whining in press conferences" they will lack the energy needed to improve themselves, depleted from emotional combat with an ideological opposite rather than focusing that energy on strengthening themselves. Rather than dealing with their personal problems, their activism will take up so much time that they will instead project even their own shortcomings onto feminism first and foremost, rather than take responsibility for themselves. A behaviour that quite ironically is something the feminists engage in, albeit they blame patriarchy rather than feminism for all their troubles, believing ever-increasing amounts of "more feminism!" to be the holy grail for all their problems. As a slight tangential poke in jest of this ideological duality, at least feminism is actually real, unlike patriarchy which is nothing but a mere unsubstantiable ideological boogeyman.

Guy raises other mans kid, starts new family when he is older and is labeled creepy old man by my community.

43 upvotes · 6 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Lonely SINGLE old women are some of the most vitriolic shit speakers in existence. The bitterness from losing their beauty and being left on the shelf is not something they ever truly get over. Essentially they have failed as women. If they didn't have kids you can amplify this effect further because you can be sure as shit they regret missing out on motherhood.

The more beautiful they were in their youths, the more vapid, pretentious and loathsome they become in their twilight years. These women are pure poison.

What happens when you drop a bunch of women on an island to fend for themselves?

43 upvotes · 8 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Because feminists socially and politically charged the word to have negative oppressive connotations. Matriarchy comes from maternal, patriarchy comes from paternal - mother and father. Etymology exposing that bullshit.

[Humor] Remember that feminist programming language satire? It has taken off...

43 upvotes · 16 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

WOW. Really? This programming parody is harassment of women? This parody harms no one, if anything, it made people chuckle. LOL. Pathetic. Kill yourselves you silly bitches. You're so privileged you try to ruin peoples livelihoods with your sensibilities. Vile, despicable human beings. BE ASHAMED, very ashamed.

A must read! "Meat Market Economics"

43 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm being downvoted to fuck as well. This entire sub is being brigaded right now since it was voted "second worst subreddit"

Honestly I don't know why that stupid voting bullshit even carries the weight or drama that it has/does.

Where Anger Leads - M3 "If a man .. worked hard and saved, got the rock, .. listened to his father about 'happy wife, happy life', listened to his mother to 'just be yourself', .. and realizes he'd been lied to.. BY EVERYBODY.. You can understand he'll be even angrier."

43 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A chick attempted to debate me yesterday and was criticising the tone, I was thinking "do you even know where you are?" people trying to sanitize TRP clearly do not understand the point of it to begin with.

A woman's first love is real?

43 upvotes · 11 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd say she's more loyal on her first love, not necessarily that she loves in a way that she can't love later on.

No baggage, no bitterness, higher naivete = more trust and fast pair bonding.

It applies to both genders. Men find it harder to pair bond when they're fucking hos all the time as well, women stop being snowflakes and start becoming notches. Everyone's being objectified and desensitised to a broken society in an attempt to build resilience to the problem, the issue in building said resilience is that you add to the cycle of pain, drawing in yet more innocent casualties. Thank a decline in religion and the rise of feminism and the sexual revolution for a denigration in family values.

Women were given too much power and now everything is in tatters. You treat beings who are inherently illogical as equal or superior to those who are logical and then absurd social practices become the norm. Women aren't cut out for wielding power. The freedom of women to do whatever the fuck they like on their own terms has cost society dearly, without guidance and structure they're self-destructive. Look at the family structure. Single mother families are the most destructive in the world and there are statistics to back this shit up.

Fuck feminism, piece of shit society destroying ideology.

When "No" is a shit test

43 upvotes · 1 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Amen. Fucking 50 shades of grey shit right here. Ho says "no" and then expects you to go ahead. LOL. "NO" is the kind of LMR you don't ignore, at the end of day she has all the power, she can say "you didn't have the balls to just give me what I want" or "I said no and you still had sex with me anyway, that's rape" (even if she enjoyed it) at the end of the day, that's some mind game shit where she has all the power, and women having power over a man like that is never good, it turns 'em evil. Fuck that shit.

Woman hits the wall at 25, has mental breakdown: single mother with no money comes to realise no one wants to date a single mother, has vitriolic anger towards her ex who's still living a happy life and having relationships.

42 upvotes · 28 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Bang on. You're describing how a good chunk of this community came to be here. In a nutshell, single mothers create lost boys. And being a lost boy is a painful, horrible childhood I wouldn't wish on anybody.

Life in your 30s as a male in the that decided not to get married or start a family.

42 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

All his married guy friends high fived him while all the women scorned him

Not because they're such moral upstanding citizens or anything. But because they're jealous they can't compete with a girl that age. Likewise, men who aren't pussy whipped agitate the fuck out of women who are in a passionless relationship with a neutered beta male. They hate what that 50 year old guy represents, but they'd all fuck him.

Ask IllimitableMan

42 upvotes · 30 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

What thoughts or techniques do you find useful in actually executing your plans?

Basically anything that helps me be healthy in both body and mind, without health, you have no SMV. If chad thundercock gets a disorder tomorrow which means he never has any energy, it doesn't matter how cute he is, he won't even have the health to fuck or make jokes.

- You need to shred your ego/escape your comfort zone to make improvements and subject yourself to new experiences that will help you grow. This will humble you and improve your SMV, but it won't make you a pussy magnet, This is substance.
- On the flip side egoless men are not attractive to women. When you're not in any kind of monk mode or self-improvement, always have an egotistical superiority yourself. Don't take women seriously, this should be your style. "How do I summon this, how do I value myself?" Well you've been reading and lifting and doing all kinds of wicked shit right? Well there's your logical reason for why you're a boss and she's not. What do you think that bitch you're attracted to does? Does she lift? Read? Meditate? No. She's just a vagina, don't pedestalise, be better and you'll believe you're better.

- Don't eat fuck loads of carbs and sugar, eat mostly fat and protein, it will make you feel good. I'm trying out intermittent fasting for the first time at the moment. It's early days so I can't really give my opinion on it, but spending 16-18 hours of your life on an empty stomach with no digestion going on and nothing but one or two coffee's/water to keep you going is strangely rejuvenating.
- Workout everyday, if you can't lift, work a different body part or get on the floor and do a few sets of pressups. Anything. If strength training is really out the window, then jog, HIIT, sprint, or whatever. Just get an endorphin spike every day. Just exercise. It'll make you a better you.
- Meditate. This is good for concentration and clarity of mind.
- Drop toxic people you may have in your life. If people don't believe in you they will hold you back. People who know you as "old you" and won't support you in being "new you" are included in this.
- Read books, especially stoic philosophy. And The 48 Laws of Power.

TLDR: read, lift, diet, meditate and believe that you're the shit for doing all that. Most people don't - ESPECIALLY women, who are lazy as fuck and entitled for the most part.

The Heart Symbol

42 upvotes · 18 March 2015 · /r/AlreadyRed

The way to a woman's heart is through her vagina. If you can't dominate her sexually, she'll never really love you. Sexless relationships are loveless, passionless relationships. You're basically friendzoned/cucked with a boyfriend/husband title when that happens.

Give your girl shit. She deserves it.

42 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I mean when a girl started to tell me she was mad because of this I would've started apologizing immediately.

Which should just cause you to up the ante of your assholishness, eg:

I just got a text message from Justin Timberlake. He said you need to cry me a river and then build a fucking bridge to get over that shit.

"OMG you're horrible!"

Hey don't shoot the messenger, Justin said it, not me. Mind you, I think he's right. You should get the fuck over it.

Do that thing where you look like you're gonna back down... then don't. It's fun. Tough love and banter = asshole game to women.

Some women can take it, even though they get amped up. Other's crumble like a ruin. The ones that attack back, they're the interesting ones. You can build up a lot of tension. We all know how that gets released...

On the absolute necessity of patriarchy for women's long term welfare.

42 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Imagine, for a moment, what it's like to be a woman. Imagine that every dumb shit move you ever made in the past, that thing you did when you were fourteen, that time you got drunk and had beer goggles, that thing with your brother's girlfriend in the cabin... imagine that all that shit stayed with you and permanently affected how attractive you were. Remember some of the stupid shit you did before your dark enlightenment? I'll bet some of you fuckers wrote love poetry.

Because women bond to a man through sex. Men bond through physical and emotional sacrifice. Women are used up by sex in a way men aren't. I've always inherently known this. I find it shocking that so many women aren't privy to this. To me it seems more likely that they are, but simply don't care and think they can lie their way to where they want to be. The thing is, as you say, they never truly win, something always feels missing to them and it's because they've fucked themselves up and their ability to pair bond by riding the carousel so hard. They're chasing a sense of closeness and connection that they can no longer achieve. They have become too desensitised to men, love and sex. They are in a way, soulless, damaged, self-condemned, incapable of the kind of love that fosters happy, lasting monogamy.

And, just like you, the modern woman has had no guidance in how not to fuck up her SMV. Just like you, she has had to figure that shit out for herself. Except, unlike you, she isn't able to erase her past or make it irrelevant. She has to live with it. You get a whole lot of tries, opportunities to learn from your mistakes and fix them. She gets the test, and then the lesson, and no do-overs.

This is why women lie to you about their partner count. Once they figure out that it matters, what the fuck else are they supposed to do?

This is why little girls need a patriarch. Because they could figure shit out for themselves, they are capable of learning, but by the time they've had a chance to, it's too late.

Little girls who grow up without a strong male authority ruling the family have five to six years of non-stop party, then a lifetime of wondering what went wrong. Little girls who do, they miss the early-twenties sex party, but they have more fulfilling lives.

All valid points, however some chicks have very strict parents and still end up being whores who go off the rails. Why? The culture. The father has to work, he can't be there every minute of every day keeping her in check. And if you parent too hard? They hate you and they rebel. They do it on purpose to piss you off and exercise what they feel is their right to freedom. Then you have TV, friends, youth subcultures.. they all push women towards slutdom. Nothing short of living in a rural area can isolate a girl from all the consumerist-sex symbol hedonistic club-culture bullshit that goes on in cities. Women are herdlike, they want to fit in, they want other women to accept them. If they won't wear a higher skirt, or a lower cut top, or more evocative make-up, it can damage their rep with other girls/they can be social outcasts. Dressing plain or conservative can reduce a girl's SMV, she'll get less attention from boys - she's competing with whores, she's insecure, so what is she going to do?

IMO, on top of a patriarch dominating the house, you need religion dominating the morals of a culture to control behaviour/sexuality. I say that as somebody who isn't even religious and thinks religion is fundamentally based upon a lie/flawed premise - but has significant utility in spite of that. Being a good dad isn't enough when all your daughters friends are whores. We're at a stage where most girls are slutty, very few are not. Any man worth his shit knows every girl will say she's not a slut, and that in turn you can trust next to fuck all that comes out of a woman's mouth pertaining to her own personal rep or sexual history. They are all corrupted and hyper-sexualised, be it by companies for advertising or by each other for acceptance. Short of telling your daughter she can't have any friends, how do you stop her peers out-influencing her over you? Her friends will always influence her more than you do - there's nothing you can do that about no matter how alpha you are. It sucks.

The culture is the problem. If you are a strong, assertive, conservative father that wants to raise your daughter right and give her a solid foundation in your life - realise you are have a strong decadent culture that heavily embraces dysfunction working against the exact norms you wish to instil into your daughter. Whilst you want to create a woman of wit who knows the value of chastity, monogamy and commitment who is attractive beyond her body, the culture wants your daughter to prostitute herself whenever possible to get ahead - all in the name of women's lib. Don't raise girls in the west, they will most likely grow up to be whores. Whether they hide that well and deny it, or are flagrant and actively embrace the lifestyle is the only distinction - western women for the most part are complete and utter out-and-out whores. You get the odd chick here and there who isn't, the social outcasts of girl world who are still virgins at 25 and have no friends - but they're rare. And just because you don't want your daughter to be a slut, it doesn't mean you want her to be a social outcast. You want a girl who can be socially accepted without being a whore. Where is she gonna find all these other girls who aren't whores or encouraging her to be a whore who aren't total fucking losers?

Feminists/dykes and big business wants your daughter to be a vapid man-hating whore so they can sell her a bunch of shit she doesn't need and make her tap into her inherent fluid (bisexual) sexuality so she'll whore herself out to predatory lesbians too when it is necessary for her to get ahead, or she is sufficiently coerced enough. Sounds fucked up, but meditate on that for a second - because it happens. How she gets money for buying shit she doesn't even need is irrelevant (works her own ass off, or leeches from a beta) the companies wanna get their money and see their profits go up. Women work less and control more household spending than men. Post-femininity and in the age of feminism, women have been reduced from mothers and wives and people of substantive psychological worth to basic bitches with no value outside their sex.

They act on impulse and do whatever they're told. They buy shit to give themselves the immediate emotional fix they need to "feel complete" temporarily patching up the previous and continuing damage they do to themselves with this fucked up lifestyle. If you believe in a concept of a soul, you'd say they have been conditioned in a way that means they only have part of their soul. They're not quite right or fully cognitive, they live in this strange hypnotic limbo of sluttiness, buying shit they don't need "SHOES!" and getting validated. Then once nobody wants their sex it falls apart and they get on the anti-depressants. Feminism sold women a fat lie, and women need men more than ever now, but they're too dumb to realise it. Instead they hate men more than ever now. And as a bonus: men are more feminine than ever, so the women are really fucked whilst the guys are off acting like faggots playing video games and getting fat.

What women really crave is an alpha who isn't corrupted by his own power. Instead they settle for bad boys because 1: her instinct draws her to them and most women cannot distinguish between "morally healthy alpha" and "dysfunctional dark triad alpha." Yes you can be DT and healthy (I know the DT's reading this just got butthurt, but save your concerns, that's for another topic.) 2: they're a type of alpha more available than the "righteous patriarch archetype." This is really the type of guy an RPW wants fathering her kids/looking after her. He can be bad/tap into his inner animal, but not abusively towards her. He can punish her enough to show he isn't gonna take her shit, but he isn't gonna tear her soul apart because he's got major beef with women and humanity in general. Most "alphas" nowadays are out-and-out cunts who don't give a shit about the women they fuck. They, like the women do to themselves, fully objectify them as just a series of holes to be fucked. And who can blame these guys, really? I'm not saying it's "right" - but I understand it. Most of these women are devoid of personality, so why would you treat them like people? They are basic bitches. The whole fucking thing is fucked.

Obviously the women aren't conscious of a lot of this, they just act it all out ignorantly and keep the cycle going. Whilst society falls into the gutter in the process, because we need decent women but just like "where have all the good men gone?!" we can likewise ask "where have all the interesting non-slutty women gone?!?" Women who give a shit about morals and principles and actually are disciplined enough not to fuck that hot guy on a spur of the moment and potentially jeopardise their entire family. Proper women of quality who despite their flaws, do their fucking best to keep them in check and don't just run feral because "YAY FREEDOM!" Respectable women who don't dress like prostitutes. Sure an ample supply of sluts sounds great to the mind in your dick, but it doesn't help civilization prosper, it won't make a good mother for your kids one day. It's not sustainable. In decadence women don't give a fuck about family until the attention and high-value cock runs out, it's all about orgasms and getting paid. Then they wonder why there's no happy ever after, completely oblivious that past behaviour has future consequences - especially when it comes to pair bonding.

lol Sweden, the cuck capital of the world, this is unbelievable. (Try not to die laughing)

42 upvotes · 26 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm only 6'2"

Bet the midgets in the sub will get an envious chuckle out of that. Only 6'2? Haha.

6'7 is like top 0.1% of height, /u/tarnsman4life is up there in giant territory, you on the other hand my friend are simply "tall."

On the point of OP: no fucking shit taller more muscular people take up more space. Who would have thought? It's called physics. Sexual dimorphism in action. Again, feminists are blind to such biological differences, obviously it's a "systematic oppressive power structure."

Honestly, the people who believe in this crazy shit are part of a very scary cult-like ideology. Funny how our detractors say the same shit about us too!

Never EVER Fill the silence!

42 upvotes · 18 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Battle of the silence, I like it. Definitely needs more research.

How an increasingly feminized economy is forcing more men into entrepreneurship

42 upvotes · 2 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

he'll learn that his boss is a psycho-path, his co-workers catty women who like to cause drama, and that any attempts at efficiency or progress are viewed as threats that threaten the status quo which constantly land him in trouble. His job duties do not match the job description.

This describes every job I've ever had. Great article.

"Why won't men die for our purses/persons?"

42 upvotes · 28 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The entitlement is so irritatingly obnoxious.

Can you imagine 18 years from now?

42 upvotes · 13 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't like what I read but I find myself agreeing with it.

Women like attention more than they like sex?

42 upvotes · 25 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women give up the sex for multiple reasons, if she's really infatuated with you she thinks it will help you stick around (for her sex) and then mentally in the meantime she can work on you to actually want her psychologically, then she can tone down the sex when she feels she doesn't need to use it to keep your interest anymore although she was using it to attain your interest to begin with. Of course this is the opposite of what most men want, they want lots and lots of sex, but that ain't how females think or work.

Women also give up the sex because they are insanely attracted to you and can't control themselves. If your game is tight, if you cruise through her shit tests and look her in the eyes a lot like you want to fuck her, you'll probably get laid purely because she cannot resist. It's animalistic. Yes, women cheat on their boyfriends over this shit and feel like terrible human beings afterwards, at least the non-sociopathic ones do, however in the moment they cannot resist that mans pure sexual power - again, another reason you never let a woman spend a lot of time with other men, if any of them know what they're doing she's going to end up fucking them whether she wants to be loyal or not.

They need attention to feed their egos, bluepill society in its man hating circles likes to bat the term "fragile male ego" but womens egos are no different to a mans, in fact I think in this society where they are coddled and catered to their egos may be even more fragile as they have to take less overt SHIT from people. I mean the average woman post-wall has her age "as a touchy subject" because age is linked to beauty and beauty is linked to self-worth by females, so that bitch will be insecure about her age because admitting it's "50" or "62" or "43" is like saying "I'm not worth much" others will tell their age and then try to get u to validate them by going on about all their accomplishments they've been able to attain due to the high number of their age, like that makes up for her lack of beauty and aging body, which to a mans visually stimulated attraction, it doesn't. Many of the younger women are full on narcissistic, self-entitled, only have things like facebook to get a top-up on feel good everyday, if that ain't egotistical I don't know what is.

At the heart of the matter, women tend to be insecure as fuck by default. They cover up all this insecurity with a strong outward facade, make-up, pure ego and a guard that never goes down (never too nice to people) they get tons of free ego from social networks like Facebook/Twitter/Dating sites and the plentiful compliments women tend to throw to each other upon arrival (female to female interactions can be such a circlejerk) "OH YOU LOOK SO NICE!" "YOU LOOK WONDERFUL TODAY!" etc etc. I honestly believe they need to hear this shit to even value themselves, it's pretty sad. Women who have their own internal value system who don't indulge in all this ubiquitous bullshit tend to behave more masculine.

To women, in my opinion, attention is like water, if they don't get any they'll get mentally ill and kill themselves. They need psychological hydration. Sex depends a lot on the individuals libido and the pills and shit they take, some can live without it, a lot can't. Some can live without it for a while. Attention is probably more important than sex to most of them, but it's context dependent. This is just my opinion, very hard to measure something like this in a scientifically quantifiable study.

Avoid Women With Horses

42 upvotes · 11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I actually cannot believe I'm seeing this. Avoid women with horses. WTF. LMFAO. Initials thoughts "you cannot be serious" then I remember this one chick I worked with, who... liked horses... and she is probably one of the craziest bitches I've had the displeasure of meeting. What kind of voodoo is this? LMFAO.

Man flees Canada after losing his kids and $1.2 million home, and being forced to pay $4000 a month to his wife. Is labeled a "deadbeat dad" by the media.

41 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Sort of puts MGTOW into perspective.

Beta is PISSED at me for "stealing" the girl he's been "working on" for months

41 upvotes · 22 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you keep your shit together mentally you'll lead a good life. Don't forget to laugh and have fun from time-to-time, too much grinding wears on the soul.

Sports team captain, ripped, good looking, glittering military career, new job as a stockbroker - STILL BLUE PILL ... dumped

41 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There literally is no time for rest.

Yeah women are relentless, you never get to "just love her." "Being in love" is a privilege reserved for women. When men "fall in love" they get dumped for being a pussy. "Falling in love" is what happens when you pair bond with a woman and passively pedestalise her because of said pair bond. Commitment without toughness comes to bite you in the ass, they push and push and push you for weakness. They "betafy" you - then as soon as you begin to soften, BAM, she's getting ready to switch team. Fucked up shit mate, yes it is. Just women running on their shit test instincts. They want you weak enough/dependent enough on them to "be loyal" but not so weak you're unattractive. You're either a "sweet boy" or "an asshole" to women and "sweet boys" get no play, just exploited. Being an asshole 90% of the time who shows momentary vulnerability tends to do the trick.

[48 Days of Power] Day 12 - "Use selective honesty and generosity to disarm your victim."

41 upvotes · 26 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll open with some brief (by my standards) insight:

Selective generosity should be used as positive reinforcement for good behaviour. I like to keep a bit of chocolate on me. If a bitch goes and makes me my coffee I'll offer her some of my chocolate and a bit of attention. If she is NOT fucking annoying or I find her genuinely pleasant, I'll give her attention/chocolate. Sounds hilarious but it's amazing what your attention and a bit of cheap chocolate can do to alter other people's behaviour, women particularly. It's completely harmless and if anyone notices it and calls you on it you say "Well you don't give people things who won't do things for you, do you?" spinny spin spin, plausible deniability and a chuckle is all it takes.

Selective generosity can also be about making people feel indebted to you. The reverse law is law 40 - "despise the free lunch." It basically plays on the Benjamin franklin effect (google it) so that people give you back more than you gave them at a later date. Like say when we first meet I insist on buying all your drinks. First impressions are strong. The next 3 times you meet me you'll probably be happy to get at least half my drinks, which will total more than what I got you the first time. Why? Because your first impression of me was I was such a generous fucking guy now it has clicked in your brain you don't mind getting me shit because "I'm the kinda guy who would do that for you." And as long as I'm not obvious about trying to get free shit out of you, you won't care (unless you're the kinda guy who is dirt poor, but then you're gonna be frugal and rarely socialise anyway.)

As a businessman who is even mildly successful you should always budget some fucking money for taking people out to lunch. Not just any people, not women, but people who you want contracts from. Always pay for their food, charm the fuck out of them, that's how you get big deals and get paid. Fuck if you cant get a direct meal you may have to do that with their right hand just so you can go and do the whole thing all over a-fucking-gain with them once the right hand "OK's you." Some businessmen are cautious like that and get people to do shit like meet potential clients on their behalf because that person is unproven and they don't wanna waste their own time vetting the guy. Take note tradesmen, you can't take the building site demeanour into the damn restaurant.

Selective honesty is a deeper topic, I wanted to keep this brief so I'm not going to say much more other than lies can borrow credibility from half-truths, trickle truth is a form of selective honesty (admitting to something less contemptible that you did while omitting the worst that you did.)

Also, if someone is suspicious of you/low trust, being really forthcoming about loads of information that cannot be weaponised against you (it's too impersonal, or you've just made it all up) is a good way to win trust.

Take notes gents. Almost finished polishing up my article on the first law, will get round to doing them all, takes a long time though. Tune in for the long haul.

Check out /r/48lawsofpower and <http://illimitablemen.com/power/> if you haven't, too.

Comparing subreddits by active users rather than subscribers

41 upvotes · 12 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In a way, men and women are enemies. Our sexual strategies are at odds (men don't have a dual mating strategy) and this is the source of most inter gender conflicts.

However, with male dominance and leadership, monogamy becomes possible for child rearing. Men have to keep their women in check, not the other way around which has become so common in the west. Women are funny. They say they believe they should be in charge but they'll also say they want a dependable guy who they don't need to mother. Take from that what you will. If a woman runs the show she can't respect you and that means ultimately she can't love you any more than you or I can love a friend.

Feminism has exacerbated gender differences/relations to a point where the sexes are quite hostile to one another. Society does not thrive under matriarchy or egalitarianism, only under patriarchy. As distasteful as that may sound intellectually, that is the reality of our instincts. Testosterone wants to conquer and compete whilst estrogen wants to nourish children.

What I've learned from the women in my family.

41 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd say you're bang on the money with this. Makes perfect fucking sense. Antediluvian people didn't have internet, most people weren't even literate, but there was much wisdom. No distractions like reality TV, computer games and celebrity gossip back then, you had less room for escapism. It seems the more we steer away from the wisdom of religious/ancient texts, the better we get at creating outlets for escape. They had little knowledge, but much wisdom. Now we live in an age where people are knowledgeable about all kinds of asinine shit, but wisdom has become scarce. The irony.

Most ancient texts tend to be religious in nature because only monks/priests/nobles were literate, and religious observance was high. It's not like now where fucking anyone can write a book.

Being Alpha gets you the top jobs - Apply TRP in all things

41 upvotes · 27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The fact that a gender studies degree exists absolutely dumbfounds me.

Girl wants to make her 20th partner count special with a nerd. But decides later to hold on fucking him.

41 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Guy fails to pass the shit tests and LMR.

She rejected him 6 times and then gave him a "hard no" which means "no I don't want to have sex with you" not a "soft no" which is "I'm going to say no in a sexy high-pitched school girl pre-orgasm voice but want you to -take me- anyway" that's not LMR, that's "I'm fucked up about the fact I've fucked 19 guys already and want to reform into a good girl by making mr beta #20 a big deal." From the jist of it she's stepping off the carousel because she's tired of feeling like the used cumbucket that she is and wants something "more meaningful" aka, to wipe the slate that is her hedonistic past clean by going LTR with a beta "nice guy" type.

No doesn't always mean no, context is everything, people are complex, people don't always say what they mean, women playing hard to get are no exception with their stupid little games "you were meant to realise I was just playing hard to get and really wanted you to fuck me!" but within this context it definitely means fucking no, that isn't LMR, that's "I don't want to fuck you right now" despite perfect logistics and the fact she's physically attracted to him, because she's going through some mid-life sex crisis and the guy's got the charm of a fucking magikarp he didn't get any that's the bottom-line. If a chick I know has a N count of 19 and isn't putting out on the first or second date I'm not interested, he should NEXT this chick.

He responds "Geez! Sorry? I was never being serious, I'll stop." I respond "Thanks, I'd appreciate it." and he says "Didn't know I was upsetting you :("

I can't stand this, the guy is a total bitch. He's not being honest about his intentions. The old "it was a joke" when the person was very serious about what they said but is now too pussy shit to deal with confrontation and thus tries to play it off as poor humour is old and transparent, you may as well come out of that Narnian closet and tell the world you're a bitch when you back down like that because it's not fooling anyone and neither man nor woman can respect a man who denies his own nature out of shame and a lack of self-respect. If you're naked with a hot 20-something girl and you tell her you don't want to fuck, EVEN IF YOU DIDN'T, do you think she'd believe you? SHIIIIIIIT.

I guess the guy was fucked up he was rejected which is why he was acting like a butthurt little bitch the next day, I mean he's naked with a bitch off Tinder (hookup app) and she's giving him a hard-no that shits pretty hard on a guy's ego and if you're an average chump with a scarcity mentality your frame is going to get fucked up from the rejection and resulting blue balls. This guy is a total bitch getting by on his looks and tinder in order to see any action, he's got zero game, is far too gentlemanly/passive and that's why, combined with her anxiety about how much of a slut she is, he's getting a hard time. If they didn't have similar hobbies and he wasn't "really attractive" (her words) he probably wouldn't have barely managed to get head.

This shit is juvenile as hell, it's a clusterfuck. Never apologise for wanting sex. If a girl does the whole "I want to get to know you thing" and you even have a modicum of game you reply "I want to get to know you too" (with a sexual tone) and escalate the conversation by being flirty. Stories like this are painful to read. I'm not a natural by any measure but people this clueless and socially crippled just irritate the fuck out of me, this guy is hopeless and needs schooling. You shouldn't be even trying to get chicks if you're not comfortable WITH YOURSELF, which quite evidently, this guy is not. Work on yourself first, get chicks later, enough idiots like this are wasting time with women when they need to look inwards rather than outwards.

Retards, Retards Everywhere. This is the world we live in.

41 upvotes · 9 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She doesn't get to live out her princess fantasy.

If she had the options she implies to have (she's beautiful and intelligent) then this wouldn't be such a crushing blow. She'd be able to replace him and get the next meal ticket for her and her bastard spawn.

It strikes me that this gentleman was perceivably to her, her last chance at love/a happy life. Now he is gone she resigns herself to a certain fate, no academic future, no man to provide, lumbered with the responsibility of "raising" a child with no escape to prosperity in sight, she feels helpless and it is this which is the epicentre of her pain, not so much "heartbreak" but more "I'm failing at life." The man was merely a means for her to live the life she wants for her and her child. In a way I sympathise, in another way I think "good, he's evaded that parasite", it's a perverse shade of grey to draw a line on, but let's call a spade a spade and really dissect this woman's psychology rather than just condemn her for being an idiot, or, like they are in that thread being the simpletons that they are, paint her as the victim and he as the oppressor.

She is a single mother with the child of another man which cripples her SMV, she may be a young mother, perhaps not, however a woman with a child from another man cannot secure any alpha with an iota of self-respect, bar someone from her childhood who remembers her before the baby perhaps. At best, she is resigned to a beta provider who she'll be unhappy with and begrudgingly settle for to serve as the meal ticket for her and her child as "needs are a must", know if she ever gets comfortable with a beta provider she'll have an affair or branch swing because the man she will look to attach herself to solve all her and her child's problems will not be one that induces tingles (alpha providers will steer well away) but it'll be a man who is only able to get a woman "as beautiful as her" because she's dug herself quite a hole and crippled herself so much that in essence, she is trading sex for a better standard of living, perhaps trying to fool herself "it can work" and that "she's in love" along the way. Women are great at self-deception, that is what makes so many of them such proficient liars. Lacking logic, in this regard, is an incredibly beneficial aspect.

If she is post-wall and a single mother, she has very little to offer a man. Her mistakes have resigned her to a life of low SMV. I take no pleasure in coming to such an assessment, as I am sure there is much despair for her to endure, as if there wasn't already enough despair circulating around the god forsaken globe.

In part, as always, feminism has a lot to answer for here. Normalising broken families, allowing/supporting women to throw their SMV off a cliff and to raise children alone without a man, not only does such a thing condemn a woman to a life of poverty if she cannot parasitically attach herself to a middle or high-earning man, but it also condemns the child to a life of equal misery and poverty on the welfare bill footed by the increasingly unwilling taxpayer.

This is a sad story and a stupid woman. I feel sorry for her kid, whenever I hear a child is being raised by a single mother, I pity the child and feel a little hatred towards the mother for her stupidity to choose to bring the child into the world under such unfavourable circumstances. Yes there are exceptions, and no, I don't wish to argue them here with the "single mothers are great IllimitableMan, I was raised by one and earn 7 figures a year and find your analysis to be wholly disingenuous!" generally speaking, single mothers are shit and the social science is there to back it.

As for the man, we don't have his side of the story so we can neither judge nor offer our opinions on his conduct.

For anyone reading this thinking about having a child, be it a man or especially, if you are a broody woman, do not bring a child into this wretched world unless you can provide it with an exemplary life. If all you can offer is to drag a child up on a mediocre salary or the welfare state rather than raise it right, then you forfeit your right to pass on your genes. Passing on genes is a privilege, not a right. If you are a loser, you don't get to pass on your genes. The number of children born to broody women who get pregnant out of nothing but instinct and in the process show a total disregard for the life their child will have to endure elicits incredible anger, this is where woman's hegemony over childbirth backfires on society and lends greatly to the rampant dysfunctionality you see around you.

"Why won't men die for our purses/persons?"

41 upvotes · 28 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nothing, all obligation is a form of oppression, even if men have complementing obligations.

Study: "Happy guys finish last". Women find happy guys significantly less sexually attractive than swaggering or brooding men

41 upvotes · 23 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I was going to say this. I value my own happiness over getting some bitches attention.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

41 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No doubt he will get screwed like most men in a divorce

Take the equity out of the house, start liquidising assets go to a casino "gamble it all" and hide that money offshore within a charitable fund. Basically you want to launder your own clean money so it can't be traced and allocated to her in the divorce.

He wants to "start gambling his money" for the next year. Whilst slowly bit by bit hiding it away outside US jurisdiction. A swiss bank account would be perfect. He should stop providing her the massages and all that other supplicative crap she derives enjoyment from and become emotionally distant just to fuck with her. Sounds like she gets the dicking from the FWB and "dick + alpha tingles" from the "lover."

He should start hitting up the clubs/drinking/smoking/doing recreational drugs and leading a social life, get himself out there and fuck some young bitches. When she inevitably points out he's more distant he can turn around and say "those are issues that she has that she needs to deal with and it needs to stop because it makes her look unattractive" (play her at her own manipulative stonewalling bullshit game of "your emotions aren't important and I'm not responsible for fucking you over despite my religious and legal oath to you")

Being a professor is a huge DHV to younger women, he can drop that line in, confirm they don't study where he teaches and he's good to go for a rumble in the hay.

Effectively he'll dread game her, she may throw pussy his way because of it, but the marriage is irreconcilable at this point, she's broken too many boundaries and will never respect him properly again. He should start selling off assets like cars and other crap, downsizing, selling it, putting it in the swiss account/trust fund or whatever arrangement he makes to hide the money and then blame it on gambling. Sure he'll look bad in the divorce and his own kids may hate him for "being a deadbeat gambler" or whatever his reputation is spun as, but at the end of the day at least that way he has money and doesn't end up living out of his car or some crap like some guys have.

How else can a wealthy person spend a lot of money and have it untraceable? If you have any better ideas than blowing it all in a casino, feel free to share 'em. He could hide the money in cash, but that's far less secure and far more likely to be stolen. Also harder to get to it when travelling. I'm not sure what divorce law is like when it comes to stocks/dividends, but he could try hiding it there too. Say keep $5k in his underwear/socks as emergency.

With all the money hidden at his disposal, he can use that to help him start a new life somewhere else. He should give up his job too and move away, this whole thing is fucked, he has to start fresh which at 45 is kinda shitty, but he fucked up by letting her have too much power in the relationship, equality is bullshit.

We all know asset division is a fucking joke. Basically the bitch will get the lot. Fuck giving her everything. Better to have everyone think you have a gambling addiction than to be poor and out on the street.

If you're smart, you don't get married, he's got to make the best of a bad situation here. Disregard your reputation, save money, start a fresh somewhere new and build up a new reputation there. He needs to destroy his empire and rebuild anew because he's got a cunt in the senate.

This is easily the most Red Pill lesson I've ever learned. So much info summed up so succinctly.

41 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Want a bitch to tell the truth? Better make her laugh first.

Women in the workplace - an allfemale distaster

41 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha, reminds me of this: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PiEOd7Ks8xk>

Fucking hilarious.

The two most powerful weapons in a man's relationship arsenal: Stepping Out, and Walking Away.

41 upvotes · 20 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminist logic: sexualise yourself so men want to fuck u, show some titty, leg etc - act indignant when men want to fuck u, but hate your shit personality.

LOL.

Femen run by Dark Triad Alpha. I can't stop giggling like a little schoolgirl

41 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a mixture of:

- Machiavellianism - Manipulative personality, use strategy and lies to control people (eg: feminist victim mentality)
- Psychopathy - Don't care about other people, quite cold inside (good at betrayal, doing immoral things)
- Narcissism - Excessive self-love (believe you're fucking god on Earth)

Women seem to flock to guys who have these traits despite how badly they are treated by it. It's like being a light to moths, that's why nice guys finish last and "jerks" get the girls.

I got into debate with a feminist who founded a feminist alliance at my university. Faced classic slut shaming and white knight anger; I've think I've learnt my lesson, but I need to let it out.

41 upvotes · 3 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

'so you think women are cheap ?'

Classic female manipulation tactic (I swear they have a genetic predisposition to be amazing at this kind of shit) where she misrepresents your position with a play on words, she knows you don't mean that but for the sake of saving face and winning the battle of social dominance she'll play dirty. Also to people listening who aren't too sharp and don't notice what she's doing, it makes you seem like the bad guy.

The Sexodus in action: millennials are having less sex.

40 upvotes · 4 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The perfect woman really is the greatest thing men ever invented.

"Feminine virtue is nothing but a convenient masculine invention." - Ninon de L'Enclos

And to quote myself from an unreleased article:

Man's most foolish visceralism is his propensity to conflate the beautiful with the virtuous, for in doing so, he invariably sees a woman for who he'd like her to be rather than for who she is. It is this flaw of instinct in which he perceives nobility as an attendant characteristic of beauty that man costs himself considerable self-detriment.

IM's Machiavellian Maxims

40 upvotes · 27 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

How does empowering us empower you?

I make money and I get to connect with people I otherwise wouldn't.

"A new book answers why it's so hard for educated women to find dates" - Hidden RP Gold

40 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Right there with you. But now we're getting into unicorn territory.

Hung out with a beta, kinda made me ill.

40 upvotes · 13 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He's so happy he has someone, he said he's ignoring the few other girls from the website that have also sent him messages wanting to get to know him.

No abundance mentality, he'll get oneitis because he puts the pussy on a pedestal. Textbook blue pill beta male. This won't last long. I don't keep beta male men as friends. They reach associate level at the very most. If you let them too close they will betray you for pussy, either by whiteknighting or getting jealous of your lifestyle and resenting you for being successful whilst being so different from them (because it forces them to look at themselves and figure out why they aren't as successful as you are - at which point the male hamster enters and they get even more pissed.) Their jealousy will drive them to hate you, beta men like this often become frenemies, especially if you're good with the ladies.

What he should be doing is keeping his options open and seeing these other chicks from eHarmony in case this girl flakes on him after feeling him out as a complete and utter pussy. Does he have money? I'm surprised she's even let him bang her to begin with, but if he has money and she's around 30~ then this would start making a whole lot of sense.

This guy doesn't have bad game, he has anti-game. Everything he said there would dry a chick up. He's going to get exploited by this woman, and he's going to welcome it and love it and should you try to intervene - he will hate you for it. He's so blue he's in the Mariana trench.

Is The Mirror trolling us? Hambeast makes false rape accusation after being caught getting doublestuffed by two soldiers

40 upvotes · 29 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"You appear to be rather enjoying that rape m'dear."

It's sickening that some women will choose to ruin a man's life rather than admit to being a slut.

Women will ruin you to save themselves. Every time.

Girl Reports Me for Inappropriate Behavior On Match.com for Getting Her Naked !

40 upvotes · 5 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There's always a way to make it the guys fault. It's an art form. Women have perfected it. It's called spin artistry and blame shifting. When men agree with the women that it was in fact their fault and not hers, we call it hyperagency. Women take responsibility for nothing, and men, for everything. Fuck logic, remember, her agency ends where her responsibilities begin.

[FR] Gone bad. NYE At college party.

40 upvotes · 1 January 2015 · /r/askTRP

She said she would let me know when shes ready for that.

She will never be ready for that. I've been where you're at. You can't reason women into an FWB. You get them there emotionally. You make them feel jealous like they're in competition for your attention, you flirt with them and escalate hard sexually. Then they succumb to desire. You cannot negotiate an FWB, that's not how it works.

Women don't think about these things. Women don't think their way into FWB, they feel their way into it, and it's up to you to induce the feelings that'll make that happen. Those feelings are namely: arousal, jealousy, admiration, intimidation. If you are able to consistently put a woman into a heightened emotional state, you are capable of having sex with her. You need but escalate.

She hit me up last night asking what I was doing this weekend, and then invited me to go out with her last night. I thought it would be basically a given that I end up with her last night

You hadn't sealed the deal and you let your ego get the better of you and make assumptions about her intent. You read the signals wrong. If you had understood women don't reason their way into lust, you wouldn't have made this fundamental error in your reasoning. Oh well, lessons learned.

She's the designated driver, and long story short we end up at her apartment alone.

Good, perfect logistics and isolation. Now you only have to escalate flirtatiously to seal the deal.

I go into her room with her, and sit on her bed with her laying in it. She knows what I'm thinking and then says ; her: "I don't think we should hook up."

She detected your ambivalence (lack of confidence) so threw out a shit test to see if you would prove yourself (and demonstrate confidence)

Me: "I don't expect anything from you."

"I'm going to fuck you until your sheets rip" would have been better. You failed the shit test but you communicated IDGAF, so rather than fail you she just reinitiates it:

H: "I don't want you to think I don't like you. You can sleep on the couch, or in my bed."

She's getting headfucky now because you're frustrating her. You're being indifferent (alpha) whilst being reluctant (beta) she's getting mixed signals. She wants you to either pass the shit test with flying colours or fail epically. Either way she wants a hard outcome, not a middle of the road "I'm not bothered" response.

M: "Its alright, Ill sleep on the couch."

Hard fail. You didn't take what you want. Yes convincing her with words would be the wrong thing to do. The better thing would be to escalate. "How do I escalate?" Put a finger over her lip say "b-b-b-b-bsssssh" - "less of that." Take control, start making out, simple. OP, your fundamental problem is you think what women say and what women want are one and the same. They aren't. She already likes you, if you kiss her, she's not going to have a problem with it. You escalate from kissing to foreplay and fucking. You don't have to talk, neither does she. You let your bodies do the talking.

So I'm thinking it was a case of LMR, but I cant figure out why,

It was a shit test to see if you can take control and thus all the blame for the hook up, or if you were going to bitch out. You bitched out.

and kissed her when she said that we shouldn't hook up.

Ah, see, he does know. We'll attribute your absolutely horrendous game to inebriation shall we? Heh.

Shes back in the area this weekend, which is why she texted me in the first place last night. Do you think I should hit her up about those plans we introduced?

DO NOT ASK ABOUT THE FWB. FOR CHRIST SAKE. LEAVE IT. LET IT DIE. DO NOT ASK. YOU WILL SEEM LIKE A PUSSY BEGGAR IF YOU ASK "WHAT ABOUT OUR FWB PLANS." OP.

Listen dude. You need to realise words don't mean shit with women. This girl is giving you more than enough chance to get it right and bang her, so she must really like you to throw you chance after chance like that. Maybe you're aesthetic as fuck, I don't know. But most mortal men do not get this many chances to bang the same girl with such sloppy game. Throw your insecurities to the side and get it done. Don't speak about being in a FWB, make her feel like she wants to be in one. SEDUCE HER. GIVE HER THE EMOTIONAL ROLLERCOASTER. THEN YOU WON'T NEED TO ASK - your next question in asktrp instead will be "how can I stop this chick from being obsessed with me?"

Best of luck.

Got slapped by a fat girl last night and got told to leave. What do?

40 upvotes · 30 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Its probably a good topic for a blog post come to think of it. My mantra is to never give in, people like that are used to people giving into them and yielding, they're not used to being challenged, they're used to doing the challenging, if you constantly bat back at them they won't know what to do. They can open strong and are overconfident/zealous, they're used to quick and easy social conflicts where they overwhelm their target with presence/shit tests in the opening volley, but because they normally win with the opening volley they're not trained for endurance mentally and they're overconfident arrogant bastards.

If you can survive the opening volley of bullshit by holding frame and fire back by keep shifting/reframing/deflecting and putting pressure on them with questions they will break, it becomes a battle of wills, "who will break first?" ironically when you call people on their shit and challenge them many won't like you, but they'll respect you to start with, and hilariously that respect can foster a fond disposition, this is how rivals become friends, you hate the bastard for months or even years and eventually you've invested so much hate and attention into that purpose, you come to admire their social skill/dignity and begin to like them. Better to be respected and hated than liked but not respected. It's also easier to build popularity on top of respect than it is to build respect on top of popularity, not all popularity is good popularity, being a useful/sweet beta that everyone exploits is not the type of popularity you want. "Yeah just ask X, he'll help you!" people take the piss with that shit.

The saying "better to be feared than loved" comes to mind, but a few masters in history have managed both simultaneously. People will do more for you when they respect you than when they like you for being pleasant/easy, now adoration is probably more powerful than fear, but that's a different severity of being liked, that's "groupie level" admiration. As for common decency, that was for a society that had social conventions, etiquette, strong economies and strong religion. In a postmodern world all of that shit is obsolete, we're in a multicultural, broken-family dog-eat-dog anarchic jungle now. The few decent kind people left are learning not to be kind through negative reinforcement because they get mentally raped for being decent people. When society only rewards negative behaviour, everyone becomes an asshole and then everyone moans that everyone else is an asshole. People do what they have to do to get by. Some people are assholes because they actually enjoy it and are naturally that way inclined, others are just trying to survive mentally and financially.

Female game is this: People will value me/respect me if they like me so I will be superficially nice to everyone

Male game is this: People will value me/respect me if they think I'm tough so I will be superficially aggressive with everyone

Society punishes male game in men, but allows either in women, so it encourages men to use female game, so you have guys begging to be liked and women acting like thundercunts to people who seem useless but using female game to social climb/get jobs and seem non-threatening & acceptable to strangers or people who are/might be higher status than them. Women are allowed to code switch between the two due to feminism, men should only use female game very sparingly. There is a trick to using male game as a man. Holding frame and being manipulative. Do not obey logic, it will betray you in manipulative conflicts. Manipulation battles are always a question of who can apply the most pressure. If you can cause the other person to feel more pressure than you do, you win, simple as that. You are interrogative of every little thing they do whilst dismissal and nonchalant of their observations, you do not entertain their observations with logic, you save logic and fair discussion for people who you actually like and are otherwise not out there to fuck with you, basically use it with friends and nobody else. You can't play fair in an unfair world. This is why I facepalm when people try to engage in fair debate with blue pillers, debating with people who don't have mutual respect is a fundamentally flawed premise, it's not a debate in the truest sense of the word but more a power game of who can show up who.

They Call It the Reverse Gender Gap: Faced with a shrinking pool of men on their level, some young women are settling and marrying “down,” but others will jump on planes for “dating excursions” to cities like New York, San Francisco and Boston where the male market is more promising.

40 upvotes · 11 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The only gender gap I care about is the gender gap between your thighs.

Stolen!

Understanding the Friend Zone Scam and the Role Marriage Plays in it (Part 1)

40 upvotes · 20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ever notice its always women telling a man what a "real man" is supposed to do or behave like?

Yeah I think the irony that they're women and have no idea what its like to live as a man and grow as one is completely lost on them, as far as their egos are concerned they're authorities on defining what constitutes masculinity. From lack of credentials alone I'm calling bullshit, how can you possibly know what it is to be a man when you've never lived as one?

"What it is to be a man" spoken by a woman translates as "What I think a man should do for me" notice how what she thinks a man should be always benefits her/other women and isn't typically beneficial to the man himself? Very telling of how so many women see men as nothing but a tool, not a person. We are success objects (to deflect their own objectification arguments back at them.)

A harsh truth: The Red Pill will only get you so far

40 upvotes · 6 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Right, coming on the sub everyday helps you get your mind right, but you have to actually take action each day as well. There are loads of things we don't have any control over, the best thing we can do for ourselves however is to take control over ourselves. Self-discipline. Deferred gratification.

You know...

- Clean your room (helps with motivation)
- Earn some money
- Exercise
- Learn something new
- Read a new book

- Go game a chick/socialise with new people and etc etc. Sitting in the sub wont improve your life, what's the point in having your eyes open if you can't or won't even make your legs move? You've got to take action. Fuck procrastination, I'm speaking from experience.

Girl lies about getting raped, her boyfriend murders 2 people and goes to jail for life.

40 upvotes · 27 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is how women operate. They use influence with men to have them harm other men she doesn't like. She gets her way without breaking law, oh the convenience. Bet a few feminists on a power trip have flicked their bean to the thought of such control. Ahahahhaah

“What Do You Do When A Girl Hits You?”

40 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. If someone hits you they deserve to be hit back. Societies special card for women that they exclusively should be immune to the repercussions of their own violence is just total bullshit. I think the comedian Bill Burr touches on this in one of his routines "an ass kicking doesn't just land out of nowhere ladies!"

Be mayor. Blow a 14 year old. Get probation. Guess the gender.

40 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Guys! Guys! Guys. It's OK. She's still the victim.

"No, I really don't think about (Frank)," she said. "I feel very bad for what happened. I don't think he's ever accepted responsibility for what he did.

See? It's OK Guys. She's the victim here because hypoagency.

Completely amazing stuff. Wife cheats on husband. But he made a clever prenup. She then says she was 'blackmailed' into cheating.

39 upvotes · 30 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. We appear hard-wired to aid weak women but shun weak men. Our instinctual expectation of the masculine is to be strong. We don't expect women to be strong. And in that, there is a strange perversity; women have a form of power they can leverage far more effectively than men - playing the victim

Men are the experimental gender because we are left to fail. Women are always brought back to baseline and bailed out whenever they fuck up too much. EG: having babies by different daddies has the state paying out the ass and punishing all those men/assuming their guilt, when, for all we know, she told every man she was on contraception when she wasn't.

Field Report -- I Just Wanted to Kiss Somebody

39 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I remember when I was 18 this chick and I made out pretty heavily, like as close to sex as you can get without fucking. I had her pinned up against a wall, tongues everywhere, hands everywhere. I realised she wasn't going to go any further and the whole thing was a huge cocktease so I pulled away and she pulled me back and carried on because it wasn't ending on her terms (women like to be in control of seduction as they can't handle rejection no matter how light AT ALL.) Shit was intense. We weren't together. Chick ignores me for a week then acts like nothing ever happened afterwards.

What happened to me back then is what is happening to OP now. OP needs to go radio silent and not make the mistake of thinking that there is now something between him and this chick. OP, you had a moment, that's all it is. This could be just a very desperate move on her part to try and get him to re-orbit. In fact if she has a AF, I suspect OP was #1 orbiter and the absence of his validation is fucking her up because she's all out of emmo-tampons.

A chick getting railed by Chad with no comfort to prop up her self-esteem is a chick who is desperate for the rest of the boyfriend experience. She's getting the good dick, now she wants OP for romance, that's how bitches compartmentalise. Every guy has a role to play in "providing the ultimate BF experience" and no SINGLE guy can provide this experience because the experience demands contradictions. EG: "he must treat me like shit and be superior, but also care about my feelings and be sensitive!" Women don't want to have to choose, they want both, hence AF/BB. OP is the emotional tampon that props up her self-esteem, so she's looking to him for validation. He is important to her, just not in the way he wants to be. Friend zone's a bitch isn't it OP?

OP should not consider this a win, he should realise this bitch is playing him. If he wants to win, he needs to show himself with other girls to activate the jealousy in this girl whilst forcing her to reach out first. Narcissistically speaking this girl will be possessive of OP (he's my validator!) so she will try to cockblock him if she sees him with a girl. Of course if OP really wants to get this girl, he has to use another chick to make her obsess more, but sexualise the obsession. That's how OP can win. He also needs to not slip-up and be a faggot whilst pulling all this off. Call me a cynic, but judging OP, it doesn't sound like he's got it in him. She gave him a small bit of intimacy and he was begging her to stay. Not a strong frame. A strong frame is "your lips taste like herpes, don't kiss me again, close the door on the way out."

Successful Men Are Warriors.

39 upvotes · 30 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Always remember women love guys that are irrationally confident

To quote myself:

This is why women are so easily led by narcissists. They follow conviction, not logic.

Hate is the new love

39 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think one thing that I've realized in the past months is the phrase "people aren't against you they are for themselves".

That's a good phrase and I like it. Unless you've specifically made an enemy of someone, it holds true, so assume it of strangers.

My mother and father get to tell everyone their son is successful and feel successful (because it is beneficial to them in those ways). But it hasn't exactly resulted in panties being thrown at me.

If they're BP, the same people who say "you don't want to get big like Arnold Schwarzenegger, it's vain!"

RP fathers ensure your sexual success from a young age. They get you into martial arts, lifting, and any charisma they have will rub off on you from exposure alone. Unfortunately most boys today do not grow up with stable alpha daddies around to show them the ropes. Instead, they must learn themselves. Some find the way and eventually get a handle on things, some rot, leading a mediocre life. Others self-destruct.

What I've learned from the women in my family.

39 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I appreciate the lack of equivocation. It's refreshing.

I only reserve powertalk for situations where it is crucial to my survival. That, or, I do not respect who I am talking to. I respect the men of the red pill, and likewise, show that by not mincing my words. It also helps I'm not stuck in a liberal environment on a day-to-day basis, that shit wears down on your psyche and nibbles at your masculinity bit-by-bit with the constant henpecking, tone policing and other bullshit you have to endure. It is passive aggressive, socially accepted and subtle enough not to result in coming under scrutiny, but by god is it effective. It's basically "behave how we want or be ostracised" which when you need money and shit, is the equivalent of holding your masculinity to ransom in a gynocratic society. Free men can say whatever the hell they want, most of us aren't free.

Men are not finding these forums by accident.

You're right they're not. There is a huge problem with how women and society treat men and men are looking for answers to combat this BS. Men find these forums in a few ways. Relationship troubles, troubles understanding women in general or they want to know how to "become players" because they're tired of relationships.

I don't even remember how I found TRP exactly. I typed something to do with women in google whilst thinking about how fucked up my ex was, found a random blog, read the comments and someone linked to TRP. Read shit, and it all made sense. Other people probably have similar stories.

Everyone who swallows TRP always says this.

39 upvotes · 6 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

don't waste your time on hos who need you to make them feel confident.

Most hos need a guy to make them feel confident past the show they put on. Anyone can put makeup on, have a few glasses of wine, maybe drugs if she's that kinda girl and act like their shit don't stink.

Past all the superficial bullshit they have fuck all knowledge of men, fuck all knowledge about much for that matter, live in their own delusional fantasy worlds but have a longing to be loved, protected and provided for by a strong fatherly figure, especially the majority that missed out on a dad and never got to experience that to begin with. Trying to replace the father they never had with a boyfriend/husband in much the same way betas expect women to love them unconditionally with loyalty like their mother does. This what women with shit upbringings do, try to fill their void with a lover that serves the parental role they never got to experience. Betas on the other hand project the expectations of their mother onto their girlfriend/wife. I read some shit awhile back on here about women without fathers losing their virginity younger and tending to date men older than girls with fathers the same age because they're looking to attach themselves to the strong kind of a man you would expect a father to traditionally be.

Single mothers are a red flag for men looking to date women or women looking to date men. Men can get past it with some TRP, the average woman though? What sort of chance does she realistically have? She'll need some RP man to sink time into her to turn her into an RPW. Is the average man even willing to do that, let alone capable of it? Nah.

Manufacturing RPWs who aren't butt ugly in a feminist culture is like trying to keep a turd polished and smelling nice in a sewer of rats, shit and piss. When you're post-wall and you've ridden the carousel it's easy to become a reformed slut and fuckoff to RPW hoping you can up your game enough to scrape something out of the beta barrel with a wrinkly eye covered in make-up hoping she can perhaps land an alpha, but are the girls we actually want to fuck doing that of their own accord? Going to RPW and schooling themselves on how to just be more than a series of holes we can masturbate with? No. You have to literally teach a bitch not to be a slut and train her up to be respectable and desirable past her pussy. They can't even do it for themselves. That's how fucked up the institutionalisation of this feminist bullshit is. Women, fucking clueless.

My gf finally pushed me into TRP

39 upvotes · 24 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You could just fuck a lot of other girls, and not have to deal with that bullshit.

Assumes OP has enough SMV to run harems or get a lot of ONS. Very few guys have the game/SMV to pull it off. It'd be arrogant to assume OP falls in the upper 20th percentile of the pareto principle when he's failing basic shit tests. Game = DT angle, SMV = accomplished mid 30's+ upper middle class alpha (basically masculine status/power projection rather than raw personality/tactics.)

The average guy getting pussy is far wiser leveraging his pre-selection to get more pussy and using the validation fucking that bitch provides to project irrational self-confidence and run a dread-preselection cycle and then ditch her once he's got backup. Preferably you always have a backup bitch anyway so losing a girl is no big deal and you don't enter drought.

If you've got a job and it's your only source of money you don't cut until you have a replacement set up. Most people aren't in a position where they can walk out their job and replace it with a new one without problems. Same goes for bitches unless you're willing to MGTOW it for a bit. If OP is in a position to cut bitches and almost instantly replace her with two new ones he wouldn't need our advice he'd know his shit and have the necessary power to enforce his will. IMO, game is tailored to the man and his situation. There's no one size fits all. If it works, it works. If he was say a late 30's well-off confident businessman that lifts I'd say ditch her tonight and get new hoes as they flock to you anyway, fuck you're playing the dating game on easy mode if that describes your situation but I doubt it describes OP's.

Got slapped by a fat girl last night and got told to leave. What do?

39 upvotes · 30 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The whale is butthurt her SMV is so low that if she were an economy North Korea would be richer than her. She's bitter nobody likes her so she's abusing the "Girls can hit guys but guys cant hit girls card" the psychology behind it is this: because she has no power in her own life due to being fat and ugly (basically a woman who is not an object of desire "feels sexy" is a woman that is majorly insecure and miserable) she's looking to assert herself in some way to make herself feel valuable (massive projection of insecurity) the way she's done that is by finding power in the most obscure way possible in order to give herself a self-esteem boost. Hilarious the only way she could do that was to abuse a feminist societal convention that female-on-male violence is OK/defense but male-on-female violence is EVIL/oppressive.

Jokes on her, she's a whale. Fuck that bitch (or rather, don't - LOLLOLOLOLOL) bitches like that you ignore or black knight (troll), they're toxic. Wrong place, wrong time my man.

10 Easy Ways to Deal With Me When I'm Being a Bitch: an article my gf tagged me in on FB. Just wanted to share with all of you and get your thoughts on it.

39 upvotes · 11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This whole article is mostly advocating amused mastery. TRP in action. I don't take women seriously anyway, makes life easier for both of us. Taking illogical people seriously = illogical in and of itself.

This weekend was basically a two-day RP seminar. Now, I can officially never go back.

39 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Different mood, different words, and unlike a man, she won't be held accountable for what she said "when she felt differently", to a woman, feeling differently is a perfect reason to renege on any commitment/promise she made, for a woman to hold true on her promise, she must feel the same way in the present as she felt when she originally made the promise, if she doesn't feel the way she felt when she originally made the promise, she will not fulfil the conditions of the promise in the absence of guilt. This is why when women have equal or superior power in marriage, marriage becomes unsafe and unsustainable for men. The burden is always on you to keep her dependant, that is the machiavellian nature of sustaining a LTR, and it is much harder to do that without being able to leverage the legal system against her when she can use it against you.

TLDR: Womens words carry no weight because their promises are as fleeting as their emotional states.

White feathers.

39 upvotes · 23 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The standard of being a "real man" is so much higher than being a "real woman."

Women by comparison to men get to go through life on easy mode.

"As a 'Red-Piller' I am sorry." or why we need to keep the language strong

39 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It gets to a point where people begin to see the gains from the red pill so much that they don't want the negative elements fucking with their progress so they start to reject the cold hard facts and rationalise those who still accept them as being "not as successful as them." It's easy to forget the bitter parts of the pill when your life begins improving and starts going well for you and on your incline of success and happiness you're somewhat mitigated temporarily in your ascent from the actual painful truths of reality. You've not been betrayed or deceived in a LTR in a while. You've not plateaued yet. You're high off your own status/wealth/social ascent and it's clouding your judgement so that you see life in a more positive way, but not in its entirety - which is what I think is happening with /u/mistonag here as he begins to see gains from TRP philosophy.

He'll be back once his success in life dips/crashes/plateaus and he gets burned by a bitch saying "you guys were right all along, I was naive!"

At the end of the day the red pill is bittersweet, it's bitter because a lot of these things are seriously saddening for most guys to internalise, such as realising women don't love the way we do, they're only as loyal as their options, they are pragmatic users, they fall out of love if you lose frame etc etc. It's sweet because if you learn to hold frame and make a success of yourself you can reap the rewards, romantically, professionally and financially.

People always shoot the messenger and sure there are probably losers here but everyone has to start somewhere, as long as the losers are actually trying to make effort with their life to improve it, buying a book and reading it, going out for a jog on a local road, approaching chicks and escalating until rejection, earning more money, dressing better, lifting, eating better and whatever then that's good. As long as you make progress of any kind you're doing OK. You don't want periods of stagnation but of course it won't be all constant hype hype hype, success is not linear there are dips to trends (eg: boom and bust).

It doesn't change how women are but TRP gives men a better shot with women, and hey you know what, as much as we talk about women it isn't all about them. It gets to a point sometimes where your self-investment is more fulfilling than anything a woman can give you. The only reason we give any fucks about women at all is because we have a libido that compels us to fuck their orifices, that's their only selling point and they know it and they milk it for everything it's fucking worth. Beyond that, many women are actually just a hindrance and an issue. A man without libido would have no need for women whatsoever except with perhaps the caveat that flirting can be a hell of a fun mind game.

As men you can be so much more than that and a lot of bitches, especially bitter feminists, are jealous of that because no matter what they do they'll never be happy and exceed your station as a man. Feminists are typically women who have given up on femininity and want to compete to be masculine whilst possessing the irrationality of a woman and vaginal privileges, it's pretty contorted toxic shit.

Young doctor wonders why women are suddenly after him. Gets slaughtered by hamsters on r/askwomen. These are redpill truths in action.

39 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly, but hamsters gonna hamst.

No one gives a shit about you.

39 upvotes · 27 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Part of accepting this reality is that you will see that there is no reason for you to set the bar low for yourself. We have been programmed to set the bar low. It will be painful for you to let go of this.

The only time a low quality bitch is getting my boxers down and riding my dick is because I'm so drunk I give no fucks she doesn't make the cut.

EDIT: Story time involving a low quality girl. I was at a party before and I'd already kissed two different chicks there. This other chick had witnessed me "get with" the other two chicks, didn't know this chick but for whatever she was aroused/jealous, couldn't tell the difference, she comes over, grabs my hand and leads me off somewhere. We're about to fuck and even though I'm drunk I notice she aint that hot, furthermore her token resistance is waaaaaaaay too high for someone who just pulled me away from another chick and now starts trying to dominate the frame with bullshit.

We were down on the grass getting heated. She was like "slow down, or I'm going" I stopped. Looked her in the face and said "HAHA. I go at whatever speed I want" got up off her, fucked off, went and found the chick I was kissing before (way hotter) and started making out with her again for about 10 minutes. Randomly in the make-out, someone kicks me in the leg. I can guess who the fuck it was. Butthurt bitch. HAHAHAA.

Otherwise, my problem is the opposite. I see so many girls who have fucking gone to town on the makeup (false flag - deep insecurity, bad at makeup etc) and many of them you talk to..... boring as fuck. Can't connect to most chicks, nothing to offer but a fuckin pussy.

It's like when I'm drunk I'm reduced to their level, except, I'm still fucking stronger/smarter. LOL. Oh boy.

What have we been programmed to do? To set the bar low for women. To not maximize our own value. The evidence is all around you.

Constantly pursue self-improvement and make the bitches qualify to you, neg em, next the ones whose dividend takes too long to pay out profit versus your investment. Pussy, it's a fucking stock baby. Play that market.

This is what happens when a woman refuses the sisterhood by calling feminism irrelevant (/r/redpillwomen)

39 upvotes · 1 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

These are the parts that stick out to me the most, they're so on point she's nothing but red pill (realistic):

Some 100 years after Emily Wilding Davison threw herself under a horse in the name of equality, isn't it perverse that those who would wish to subjugate me are the firebrand feminists who pit sister against sister, denying my view credence? How ironic, I thought, as I scrolled through my Twitter feed, that those who claim to champion women want to bully me for saying I don't believe in a cause they have bastardised. As a university-educated woman who combines a fulfilling career as a journalist and broadcaster with my role as a homemaker for my husband and four children, I have better things to do than spend my days mirthlessly lamenting the lot of women, which is what most feminists seem to do.

Indeed, what the sour Lefty Twitterati won't admit is that all the great battles on which feminism was founded have been won - including political representation, and equality in education, the workplace and other areas of public life.

What's left is an ugly vacuum occupied by those who will only let you join the sisterhood if you agree to pander to a petty hunt for signs of oppression. Look no further than the campaign by The Women's Room, who railed against the Bank of England for the lack of women on our bank notes, citing this as evidence of discrimination.

For people not from the UK, we were changing our £10 notes to have a new person on it, feminists got upset and insisted a woman (ANY NOTABLE WOMAN) be put on this banknote or otherwise "discrimination!" "misogyny!"

Reddit feminists and trp haters, this is why people hate your ideology and why anti-feminism in any format exists. I hope more women lead successful fruitful lives following the example this woman has set rather than cave into your SSRI fuelled rants and neurotic emotional manipulation. Note she has 4 kids and a husband, not a cat called hubbles, tipples and a blog dedicated to fat acceptance.

Big shout out to all the ladies in /r/redpillwomen who have to put up with this inane cacophonous babble on a daily basis, we salute you.

An army of Betas willingly submit....

39 upvotes · 30 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Stop giving them ideas, they're crazy enough.

Put-Downs: An Art You Need to Master

38 upvotes · 3 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

if she's acting like a stuck-up bitch, take the kid gloves off. They're not used to men talking down to them.

I can hear Patrice O'Neal clapping in the afterlife. Well said.

Anyone see the "Hot Girls Wanted" Netflix porn documentary.

38 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The government will arrest a violent man, and society will shame him. The government won't arrest a woman for being a whore, nor will society shame her. Not like it used to. The worst part of male nature is being managed, the worst part of female isn't.

Woman allegedly duped into sex now wants to pass new law prohibiting men from lying about their personal background.

38 upvotes · 2 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

When lying becomes so reflexive and instinctual to you, to the point you don't have to consciously put any effort into doing it, you stop noticing what you're doing and just do it. If you were born like that, you'd lack the self-awareness to analyse what you're like and know any better. I believe this to be true of women.

AskReddit gives hundreds of examples on how women will hide things until after marriage

38 upvotes · 25 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You're right but that doesn't make me wrong. Ambiguity is special!

Whores & Daughters

38 upvotes · 12 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's some thousand cock stares:

<https://heartiste.files.wordpress.com/2014/08/ga13.jpg?w=500>

<http://www.bosschicks.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/10/kim-kardashian-416x600.jpg>

You Have No Idea How Easy It Is For Good Looking Men

38 upvotes · 4 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks, money, status. Pick two and be at least a 7 in each and you can get laid. Play to your strengths in your choice of which 2 you'll work on. You can only coast by on ONE of these things if you're in the top 1% (shit, maybe 5-10%) of that category.

As men we get caught up on looks because looks are what we prioritise the most in women. Just remember women aren't funny, they aren't logical, and we don't care if they're rich or have lots of friends. The attraction switches are different. Looks are about all women have going for them, so of course we value that the most. Thinking it's the same in reverse is a projection thing.

This subreddit is focused on what WE CAN FIX/IMPROVE not what we can't. I have seen some guys facial symmetry before and they've been so ugly that shit has made me feel like a fucking model. Trust me, some fucks are real unlucky and got hit with the ugly stick. Some people just get a raw deal. Yes, some guys are aesthetic as fuck genetically, and yes they get to go through life like a hot chick, on easy mode, just cleaning up with no effort or skill. They are the genetic billionaires as the halo effect is working for them 24/7.

I've known the type. Guys who eat like shit, party like mad and have great skin/facial symmetry/low body fat. Life's a bitch. If you don't have the genes you won't be that guy. You won't be an aesthetic 1%er. Be the best you can be. Fix your teeth. Workout. Get good haircuts. Shave/dress well. Most guys doing all these things can be solid 8's. Height, your tendency to gain/lose bodyfat, eye colour (chicks love blue eyes), bone structure facial and body... you can't change any of these things and be the "male 10 who gets it easy." Some guys got a good jaw line and a pronounced adam's apple, other guys will never have either.

Having "roman god genetics" is the aesthetic equivalent of being a billionaire or the president of the united states under other SMV variables, it's an instant panty dropper because you're at the fucking APEX of that variable (looks/money/status)

10/10 aesthetics = panty dropper, bitches are shallow too

Billions, fuck, even a few million, shit even a few hundred K in cash = you can be the ugliest cunt in the world and 10's will bang you for dollar. Sure they won't fall in love with you, but they'll let you stick it in 'em.

Fame = you can be ugly and poor, but if everybody knows you and you have that popularity going on, you will slay chicks wherever you go. Imagine Justin Bieber as a bankrupt drug-worn 40 year old like that kid out of Home Alone. He'd STILL clean up because "omg it's Justin Bieber!!!"

IMO, when guys start banging on about how their mate with god genetics has it so easy, it's not a productive discussion. I'm sure he does have it easy, but what can we do about that? Life is inherently unfair. Some people are born to rich as fuck parents in first world countries AND look fucking awesome AND are smart as shit too. They're a minority, but they exist. We can't emulate these genetics or change the circumstances we were born into, we have to make best of what we've got. Some of us are really unlucky (short, balding, greying very young, weedy/hardgainer, gets fat easy, skin conditions etc) but we do what we can to look our best. Look your best that's all you can do, don't be jealous of the genetic jackpot winners. As other posters have said, their game is normally shit anyway. Game isn't just useful for getting laid, it helps you get jobs and make friends too. If they got good game too? Good for them, their superiority doesn't mean you can't get laid, it doesn't deprive you of anything. Be the best you can be and stop worrying about what other guys are doing. Jealousy is a female trait and it has no place within a healthy male mind.

I don't give a fuck about how easy god-level genetic guys have it and I don't see how it helps the community. It's just pointing out the obvious. No fucking shit they have it easy, if you told me they didn't now that'd be news.

Some TRP nuggets from my Russian Grandmother.

38 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Money talks louder than moral values. America has all the money. Therefore American cultural values pollute most of the world. Your best defence against American culture is not speaking English. For English-speaking guys: learn another language and get a bitch who doesn't speak English in her native country. If she can't speak English, she can't read slate/huffpo and all that bullshit. She'll be less subject to feminism etc.

What are some unethical/dark triad/Machiavellian life hacks you know?

38 upvotes · 30 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Cocaine alters biochemistry to make you temporarily dark triad. You need to make sure the stuff you get is of good quality though low grade cocaine does less than an energy drink. I don't recommend a drug taking lifestyle to anyone, but you're asking for a life hack and I'm telling you cocaine is the quickest shortcut to temporary DT behaviour/thinking. People high on coke get so egotistical and in love with themselves narcissistic doesn't seem like a strong enough word.

Are we as men not even supposed to talk about how easy the average woman has it in the dating world?

38 upvotes · 16 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Notice how you began the conversation with men in general. Then they shifted it towards you. This tactic seems to have worked like a charm at deflecting criticism which you threw at them (by way of their gender, which is antagonizing) and redirecting it at you, more specifically your failures.

To elaborate: which is why being a high SMV man that is ripped, charismatic and earns bank lets you get away with saying shit and receiving types of responses from woman that the average man can only fucking dream of.

Women are superficial creatures, these women did not value/respect OP enough to be truthful with him based on their responses. OP needs to raise his SMV if he wants to call women on their bullshit like this and get them to fess up.

Other than hearing a woman literally be forced to admit to the truth, there's nothing to gain from such an endeavour however, I agree with /u/rule_of_law that it isn't really worth mentioning this kind of shit to women.

Woman saves semen in her mouth after oral sex, uses it to impregnate herself.

38 upvotes · 18 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Flair this MRA.

saying she secretly kept semen after they had oral sex, then used it to get pregnant.

So she fooled a man into impregnating her via deception. She performed a sexual act with him which would not result in pregnancy and then used his genetic material to fertilise herself.

The mans reproductive rights were not considered and he did not consent for his genetic material to be used in this way, had he known it would be used in such a manner, it is safe to infer he would of copulated with her in the traditional manner - therefore we can deduce the mans intention was not to reproduce with the woman, but the woman bypassed his consent by using his sperm in a way in which he wouldn't have permitted her to use it (to make herself pregnant) after they had culminated a sexual act which was non-vaginal and thus would not have resulted in pregnancy.

These are very important distinctions that need to be made and acknowledged, by the plaintiff and the law courts.

"There's a 5-year-old child here," Mirabelli said. "Imagine how a child feels when your father says he feels emotionally damaged by your birth."

Mirabelli needs to read my previous paragraph and seize these absurd appeals to emotion, yes let's all neglect the law, morality and justice because of a 5 year olds emotions and how convenient that childs emotions are in presenting a case that would pardon the (illegal) mother.

He said he didn't find out about the child for nearly two years, when Irons filed a paternity lawsuit. DNA tests confirmed Phillips was the father, the court papers state.

So she ascertains his genetic material and uses it to impregnate herself via deception and then claims for child support from a man whom did not consent to reproduce with her. The court awards this child support application. There is an inordinately ridiculous lack of justice here. This woman should be imprisoned for fraud, more specifically a form of reproductive fraud.

Irons responded that her alleged actions weren't "truly extreme and outrageous" and that Phillips' pain wasn't bad enough to merit a lawsuit. The circuit court agreed and dismissed Phillips' lawsuit in 2003.

This vile excuse of a human being tries to diffuse responsibility for her actions (typical of her gender) by stating the deceitful theft and utilisation of sperm to non-consensually impregnate yourself is "not extreme or outrageous." If a court accepts that rhetoric as sufficient reasoning, I want to see rape decriminalised as well. The circuit court are pathetic and biased enough in favouring women to actually grant this shit. WOW. Courts are meant to be completely impartial that was a very poor ruling.

But the higher court ruled that, if Phillips' story is true, Irons "deceitfully engaged in sexual acts, which no reasonable person would expect could result in pregnancy, to use plaintiff's sperm in an unorthodox, unanticipated manner yielding extreme consequences."

It has to reach the High Court for some justice to actually take hold, so this poor man has had to wait years and be dragged through the court system just to see some iota of justice he is due for this womans despicable actions.

"She asserts that when plaintiff 'delivered' his sperm, it was a gift — an absolute and irrevocable transfer of title to property from a donor to a donee," the decision said. "There was no agreement that the original deposit would be returned upon request."

They're comparing genetic material to property law and ignoring reproductive rights, human rights and a whole other slew of shit here.

A case such as this should be taken to the highest court in the land and be used to set judicial precedent, honestly a case like this could create a landmark decision in mens reproductive rights, although the higher court is being more just than the circuit court the higher courts decision to agree this was not an act of theft by agreeing with a defense which applies to property law is shaky at best.

You could easily counter saying she engaged in fraud to ascertain "this gift" if you were going to carry on with the ridiculous notion that sperm should be treated like any non-genetic property.

I don't know what the highest court is in the US system but this needs to be appealed all the way to the top.

33 y/o woman responds to open casting call from pornstar James Deen. Betamax boyfriend, upset at first, is now her "biggest supporter."

38 upvotes · 6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

RPwomen is related but its not TRP. RPwomen is about snagging an alpha and getting him to commit as well as dispelling feminist beliefs and helping them raise their value for a LTR. Not like the girls there need to be told how to get dick, because that isn't hard - being a slut takes no skill and they can all go slut it up if they liked no problems, so the seduction part of RPwomen for sexual encounters is practically zilch, all their sex talk will be in the context of pleasing a powerful sexy man that they respect, massively different imperative and frame.

TRP does so much more and is so different. Feminism harmed men a lot more than it harmed women and you can see it in TRP with all the divorce raped guys, the guys who don't get to see their kids, the anger resultant from that, the guys who were used as beta orbiters.. all of it. These guys grew up treating women like princesses buying the BS that their nature/masculinity is bad and that women were the fairer sex when it turns out they are hypergamous non-violent tyrants who will manipulate and shift responsibility to hedonistically get anything and everything that they want.

TRP isn't for women, RPwomen is.

DON'T GIVE UP! - We're gonna make men great again!

37 upvotes · 26 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think holding women to lower standards of performance should mean we don't hold them to standards of behaviour.

I see a lot of men on here say what you've just said, and it makes me shake my head every time, because it means that you essentially allow them to act like brats and get away with it because "women just suck like that". And that becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. The more men think "well you know what, fuck it, women suck, I don't expect much from 'em" and thus do not discipline them because of it, the more of these shitty women we'll get, and lord knows we already have more than enough of them.

Holding women to a lower standard than men (which I believe to be wise, because they are fundamentally more foolish despite also being more cunning) makes sense, but this should not double as an excuse not to enforce boundaries or make rules. Women need that structure and order, and it's exactly that lack of structure and order that leads to shit like the women's march.

Look at those idiots. Most of them are single. A few of them probably have a very low tier beta male at home. They are the losers of women. The 400lb land beasts, the slutty single mothers, the lesbians and other assorted degenerate misfits that make up the quilt from which the decline has been sewn. None of these women have men leading them at home, and their hubris and narcissism thinks they don't need to be led, they believe they're above being led. Yet if they were led by an alpha at home, none of them would be crazily waving pickets in Washington in fucking vagina outfits because they would be happy at home.

These women are unhappy, I agree with that, just not for the reasons they believe they are. They think it's about some bullshit politics, when really the politics is just a proxy for how dysfunctional and shitty their lives are. People from functional and happily families don't go out and protest in stupid costumes. If they had an alpha at home, they wouldn't give the first flying fuck about politics. I can tell you that without a slither of doubt. Women are either usually too proud or too stupid to admit it, but they would most certainly not be protesting whatever fictional thing it is they're upset with now if they had an alpha male at home. A man's mission in life is whatever he makes it, a woman's is to lock down an alpha male and have kids. That's it. Careers and business are an empty vessel for women. Motherhood and marriage is their calling - so what happens when they don't have this? They do dumb shit like women's marches. They are broken women. Sex and the city rich and educated types with no kid or alpha? Still broken.

To put things another way, pretend you are a father with a son and a daughter. Just because you expect less from your daughter and will not push her so hard because she is more fragile and you see her as having less potential, it doesn't mean you should discipline her any less than your son. Too many parents make that mistake. I know this sounds harsh, but if we are to keep to the "i don't hold women to the same standards as men" theme, would this line of thinking not then also apply to the girl, for a girl is simply no more than an undeveloped woman?" If anything, you should discipline her more, because woman benefit more from discipline than do men. Yes, both boys and girls need discipline, but rebelliousness is a masculine trait and males wear it better. Little girls who weren't disciplined by daddy become rebellious whores in adulthood who want to shit all over the carpets.

I've said a lot, but my main message is this: do not conflate your lower expectations/standards of women with the lack of a need to discipline them. Women have never needed discipline more than they do now. Just go out there. Take a look. They are out of control. They are feral. A lack of discipline got us here in the first place, and doubling down on this policy will just make things worse. A woman may not thank you for disciplining her, but she'll love you for it.

Women think the average guy is a HG1.8

37 upvotes · 13 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah. He's not the only one. I can't find his video, so check Jim Jeffries version instead:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=pbvrGiL_s70

Sir Tim Hunt's claims that remarks on girls in science were 'not sexist' are backed by leaked EU report

37 upvotes · 27 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"The Nobel Prize laureate resigned from prestigious posts at University College London, the Royal Society and European Research Council (ERC) amid outrage over his remarks earlier this month."

Yet that cunt Jessica Valenti wears a top saying "I bathe in male tears" and still has a job with The Guardian. Fucking nuts.

Female Quotas For All: Recently Germany and 7 Other Countries Confirmed to Have Mandatory Political and Corporate Board Female Quotas of 30%-50%. EU Attempts to Force It On All of Europe.

37 upvotes · 10 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I've come to learn that when something doesn't go a feminist's way it's not her fault, one of the following is to blame:

- The patriarchy

- Systemic oppression (latent misogyny caused by the patriarchy)
- The nearest man she can find
- The nearest man she can find (rapist edition)
- Rape culture

Therefore, your gender studies degree will churn out something like this:

Patriarchy systemically oppresses women by teaching men to rape, thus creating a culture of rape. We need to teach men not to rape, and put women into positions of power, thus ameliorating misogyny.

They love this fucking nonsense. It's practically a mental illness at this point. To think there is a whole degree around this pseudo social science is fucking astounding. I know women are into dumb shit and have a tendency to believe in shit that is mystical with no scientific basis such as horoscopes and fortune-telling, but at least that doesn't dress itself up by trying to sound intelligent or remotely scientific.

Violence in lesbian relationships is higher than heterosexual relationships.

37 upvotes · 6 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes women are gender fluid as hell. They're all BI but go through phases of liking women more, or liking men more, depending psychologically how the women/men in their lives have treated them. You get girls who ate their friends out in college, made out and blah blah. Girls who consider themselves straight will say "we were just experimenting!" blah blah blah. But you never get straight guys "just experimenting" they're either gay, or they're not. I'm not sure why you've been downvoted to fuck. I'm sure some SJWs in another subreddit are brigading your comment because the votes reek of butthurt, visceral disagreement. Your comment is perfectly reasonable.

My Old Coworker Hung Himself

37 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I knew someone would pick at the finer points of the analogy/example to make a counterpoint. It always happens. The example is not logically perfect, it's just my way of saying "no matter how much responsibility you take, she will still fuck up, and you shouldn't blame yourself for that."

Hyperagency - men going on about how everything is their fault when shit fucks up and they should have been more manly. Taking responsibility for other people because you are capable of doing something they can't. It's like a woman who can't operate a machine. You can. She operates it when you're not around and you go "I should have been there, I should have locked the door so she couldn't use that machine, it's all my fault she burnt the damn house down!"

Hypoagency - women going on about how everything isn't their fault and the men are to blame. Not admitting they are incapable of sustaining certain responsibilities and moral behaviours out of pride/reputation and simply scapegoating other people as being the cause of their shitty behaviour when they weren't. Whereas she's complementing your masculine pride/sense of responsibility and using it to scapegoat you: "He never said not to touch the machine, I thought I needed to use the machine, if the door was locked or he'd told me what to do, I wouldn't have burnt the house down!"

Logically, it's repulsive. I understand how for practical reasons it's easier for men to just take all the blame and sort shit out. I get that. I understand it. I don't need schooling on it. Doesn't mean I have to buy into that shit or like it though. Essentially TRP says: "because women are bat shit crazy, inferior and won't take responsibility for shit - you should AS A MAN - because MEN provide/TAKE care of shit blah blah blah." Don't worry I get it, I just think the hamstering necessary to get the "most productive outcome" is fucking disgusting. You actually, as a man, convince yourself you're responsible for a woman's actions because of a behaviour YOU DID or DIDN'T do. You allow hypothetical realities that didn't happen to be adequate reasons for self-blame. Then mix that in with "duty" and "what a man does." Come the fuck on. I'm not married or in an LTR, so I don't have to deal with that basket case full of bullshit as it stands.

I understand the utility of male hyperagency - I just don't like it on matter of principle. You defy your own rationalism and put yourself through emotional turmoil/self-agony/hatred to have success with women. It's fucked up. On small issues it's not a big deal. But on big things like this, men kill themselves. This guy obviously worked very hard to see his kids, wasn't a bad guy - could of been any of you, and yet it's just a collective dismissive chorus of "it's his fault." What a bunch of bullshit. I think opinions will always be divided on this. And that's good. Shows we're not a complete echo chamber.

I am truly fascinated by a females natural ability to create an assemblage of orbiters, betas and alphas to tend to her different "needs".

37 upvotes · 11 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As men we project a lot of ourselves onto women. We want rational women because we deem ourselves rational. We think women want super hot guys because we want super hot girls. In reality, looks do count, but not as much for them as it does for us. Women LOVE super hot guys. But they can fuck butt ugly guys if the game is tight. Essentially the crux is this: male attraction is more physical, female attraction is more mental. That's why women wear make-up.

The biggest lies your mother ever told you (about the wall)

37 upvotes · 3 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

To her credit, she had a strikingly beautiful face.

Which would be far more beautiful if it's shape was less blubbery no doubt.

Society despises low-value men.

37 upvotes · 19 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, it's point 7 from the red pill constitution:

<http://illimitablemen.com/understanding-the-red-pill/red-pill-constitution/>

"You give me a neighborhood with majority single mothers, and I'll give you a s*hole neighborhood"

37 upvotes · 2 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy shit this guy is just full of fucking amazing quotes.

Don't let women make you solve their problem

37 upvotes · 1 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

one of the girl that in private was happy to receive my advices once openly discredited me by saying that my advices were complete bullshit 9 times out of 10

I would just death gaze the bitch, wait for her to get intimidated, chuckle. Turn. Exit. "Ain't getting my "advices" again, bitch."

A woman will take credit of any new idea you spoke with her.

Yeah this is a law of power, always take the credit for other people's work. Women are inherently Machiavellian. They may be rationally dumb as fucking rocks, but their manipulation game is tip-top. Why? Because it's instinctual for 'em, not conscious, they don't need logic to reach effective Machiavellian outcomes.

When a woman talk to you about her problems if she don't openly ask you for your help do the same thing that another woman would have done: invent a story in which you say that you or a person that you know got the same problem than she had and didn't know how to solve it

Yeah because women are emotional and not rational they don't actually want their bullshit solved. No. If you solve their bullshit you cut off their attention/drama/intense emotion supply. They want their problems, they love their problems, they need to have problems and be a victim to get attention, sympathy and "INTENSE FEELZ." This is only compounded by man's natural instinct to white knight and rally around a bitch (particularly if she is hot) and go "oh hunny, what's wrong, what do you need?" and turn into the biggest supplicating faggot you've ever seen. Feelings are everything to women. When you destroy their supply of feelings by fixing the problem, they hate you for it. "You weren't mean to go around trying to fix everything, you were just meant to listen!!!"

You see this is why bitches hate it when we try to fix their problems, it's not about the problem, the problem isn't really a problem if it was they'd want it fixed due to it's adverse effects. "The problem" is an excuse to harvest pity, sympathy, attention etc. An excuse to get off on drama. Women are inherently histrionic creatures, they always want some emotional bullshit to get hype off of, that's why they're obsessed with romance stories and soap operas. It's the emotional rollercoaster they're hooked on. They want high's and lows, never a flat-line, always an emotional journey with peaks and dips. You don't give them that or you refuse to validate their fabricated/concocted emotional rollercoaster? They'll hate you. "Just be there for me when I need you, god damn it! Stop trying to fix everything! Why have you always got to fix everything?!??" - the funniest most estrogenic counterintuitive batshit crazy cliché womantalk you'll ever hear.

If you are still a student never work with a girl. She will let you do all the hard job of understanding the lesson and after that she's gona have a better grade than you on the exam by only repeating what you explained to her but with a nicer scripture/voice and appearance.

Yes most women are lazy fucks and let men slave away. This is true of the workplace and education. Again it's the "let others do the work but always take the credit/reward" law of power/principle in play. Women have this down to a T, instinctually. Being forced to work with girls is shit, but in girls vs boys due to their shitty work ethic the girls usually always lose. If I HAD TO work with a girl, I'd always pick the nerdy girl, or the fat chick with low self esteem who tries to prove herself to the world by compensating for her lack of desirability with booksmarts. They have better work ethic. Never choose the conventionally pretty/narc women, 9 out of 10 times they will be cunts. If she's upper class and raised in a village? You may have a chance (knew a girl who was a solid 9 who wasn't narc, English, blonde, thin, smart etc - upper class parents, lived in a village in the middle of butt fuck nowhere but came to London for uni. Great girl. Here's hoping London never corrupted her.)

If you have any original idea, never ever speak about it to a woman, even if you believe that you can trust her.

This applies to most people to be honest, but yep.

Ask for sex is as little bit to direct and dangerous: she is able to think and tell people that you abused her if she accept. Let her make the proposal.

You never ever ask for sex, if you have to ask it implies you are not worthy. Instead what you do is tease the fuck out of her to the point she can't emotionally contain herself and wants to jump you. If she is cold/unresponsive/evasive. Stonewall her and next/soft-next her. Sometimes the dread will reel them back in. If it doesn't? Who cares. At least you don't have to put up with her shit, you can go find a chick who is more receptive to your advances. Don't let a bitch spin a web and try to hold you in it. That's the shit friend zones are made of.

Spider silk.

The Double Income No Kids Trap

37 upvotes · 27 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He doesn't have the house he can brag about and starts to envy his friends on Facebook who buy the two level suburban colonial and post pictures of their life every day. He knows he should ignore this noise, but he feels like a bum going home to his small apartment while everyone else seems to be getting ahead.

Delete Facebook. Have one for your business/brand, a personal one is unnecessary. It's a time inefficient vice. It's bad for your mental health.

He ignores hypergamy, TRP, and brushes off her time on the CC because "that was in the past and she's changed". The DINK trap is being set.

He deserves everything he has coming because he has abandoned logic, common sense and TRP due to impatience and greed.

They get married, get the big house, have sex all the time.

LOL if you get married after reading TRP you deserve everything that's coming to you (or more aptly put: everything she's going to swindle your dumb ass for.)

He thought she was on birth control, wait, she took antibiotics and it must have interfered with it.

She decided now was the time for a baby and she didn't give a shit whether he was ready to be a father or not so she "pulled an oopsie." If he dares to tell her to have an abortion, she'll get indignant, call him Satan and talk about being pro-choice. LMAO. Vasalgel can't come quick enough. If you're in this situation your bitch has you between a rock and a hard place and she doesn't give a fuck what you want. She's going to carry out the feminine imperative with or without your co-operation.

If they had based their life around a single income with her being a housewife then her being pregnant would not have been a big deal. That's the traditional family structure we associate with the 1950's. Of course, Steve didn't structure his marriage to raise a family, he structured it to conveniently leverage two incomes so he could live the high life.

This is why women having any meaningful power is dangerous. They are not consistent and they betray what they said the previous day without any notice. They betray your trust and force you into situations you never wanted to be in. Trusting a woman financially is like being a rich black man whose business partner is a devout member of the klu klux klan. You are going to get betrayed. It's not an IF, it's a when. They don't care about you, just them.

Meanwhile, the girl got what she wanted out of life. She got her big house, she got her kid, and she got a dutiful beta buck to pay for all of it. And Steve didn't even realize he was the beta buck, he thought HE was taking advantage of her and being smart. Instead he made himself a slave while inspiring the next generation to follow in his foolish footsteps.

You missed the part where she puts the kid(s) to sleep for an afternoon nap, Steve's at work and Chad McThunderCock comes over to impregnate her with baby number #3 which Steve will dutifully raise as his own. Mamma's baby, daddy's maybe. This is the kind of shit that puts men in the anger phase. Or on suicide watch.

Never ever doubt the power of "no contact"

37 upvotes · 20 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Toe-may-toe, toe-mar-toe! And yeah. I love ignoring people. Especially when they piss me off. Why validate 'em? Works great with anyone, men, women, at work, on reddit, whatever. Use liberally. Nobody's entitled to your attention. Commodify it.

Don't let the women of reddit shape your views of women in general.

37 upvotes · 13 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think this post is something of a glorified NAWALT, now I've got that out of the way:

Most women are not feminists, a lot of the women in real life you encounter think feminism is stupid

But still benefit economically from it and carry the general sentiments of it. They believe men and women are equal, they try to exploit men, they believe in double standards that benefit them, they play the victim a lot, now although these things are not intrinsically feminist, they are intrinsically female, bar the equality assertion. You don't need to be a misandrist or an armchair activist to be an annoying entitled western woman. How I see it is that feminism ruined the pool of women, that is to say, it fucked up their attitudes and perceptions of the opposite sex, so even if she isn't some tumblr armchair whale she is likely to have a poor view of men. They made it socially unacceptable for men to exercise power over women, that means to reign in their emotionally fueled shitty child-like behaviours and asinine manipulations, this is why such a developed society has regressed into social chaos because women constantly get a pass on shitty behaviour whilst male behaviour is closely monitored.

Women of reddit support fat acceptance, slut acceptance etc. The average woman TRIES to lose weight, and does not want to be called a slut.

Agreed. The fat movement crap is not a thing in England and slut shaming is as prolific as ever.

Average woman watches a Simple Pick Up video and thinks, wow these guys got balls. Woman of reddit think omg these perverted PUAS someone get them arrested for harassing these poor women.

I'll give you this one for the most part, but if he's low SMV its more likely to just be comedy for the average woman to watch, watching an "inferior man" fail at trying to get laid, that or cringey. Women are solipsist they don't tend to think "OH WOW GUYS HAVE IT SO HARD MAYBE NEXT TIME I'LL BE LESS OF A BITCH!" they just don't give a fuck.

Tangent: Anyone who thinks women have it harder in life than men I'd disagree with, they have better support networks, more rights, are more easily accepted into new social environments, they have less responsibilities and are not punished as harshly. Men are tested a lot more and have their behaviour monitored a lot more, the only positive thing about being a man is men don't get slut shamed, but then it's not even like 80% of the men are in a position in the first place to go around being cads and getting pussy left right and centre, that's the difference between being a woman (giving sex away) and being a man (having to be skilled in obtaining sex)

Being a man is tough, personally I've come to love the struggle so I'd never give up being a man for being a woman, but if I wanted life on easy mode I'd be born a woman who is minimally a 6/10 and just go through life maintaining my waistline and reputation until some man would come along and provide for my leisure and learning. Sure these women get to experience crappy emotions, we all do, but just because their life isn't a constant party doesn't mean they have a harder life than men, not by a long shot.

See feminists/women had to look really hard to find something men benefit from that they don't (women are slut shamed by other women, men don't slut shame other men, but because they're misandrist cunts they spinned it as men slut shaming women so it fits in with the oppression rhetoric) however if you want to look at all the leg-ups in life a woman gets for being a woman, you haven't got to look far at all, it seems to me the fact that a huge percentage of women have sexual power and get constant benefits for wielding that sexual power (even without putting out) is a huge fucking elephant in the room, how is not that privilege? That most women are naturally objects of desire to men whilst hypergamy means most women don't give a fuck about the average man and then you want to say women have it harder than men? Ha, what utter bullshit. They just complain louder and get their complaints validated by other women, orbiters/white knights, government, and society, whilst men suffer in silence being units of disposable labour.

A third of women who are already married secretly admit they STILL haven't found Mr Right are still absolutely insistent that they would remain faithful to their current "husband" if Mr Right came along.

37 upvotes · 20 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It serves them well to deny branch swinging is a thing. She'd have to be a fucking idiot to tarnish her reputation by admitting her husband is just a stepping stone on the way to better things.

If they get the option to upgrade, they will. Bitches aint loyal.

If you're on a budget, don't buy a girl's food

37 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah people raised by single mothers are fucked up whether they're male or female, but in the context of a female it will explain her negative traits, women learn by emulating their mothers, single mothers are bad role models for a daughter because they do not teacher the daughter what it takes to successfully keep a man around neither do they serve as good examples of femininity, if they were positive influences, they would lead happy functional lives with men themselves, instead they infect their daughters with negative traits.

Entitled? A single mother is usually entitled (unless she is a widow) the reason she is single is because she has made bad choices with men and more commonly because she believes none of the men she has met have been good enough for her. The one's that were good enough had no interest in her, effectively, she is the problem, she can neither settle for what she's worth, nor secure that which she feels she is worth (and believe me there is dissonance between what the single mother thinks she's worth and what the market of men out there deems her to be worth.)

Her mother cheated on a beta provider for her current LTR and presented her with a dynamic of constant conflict, that is an abusive upbringing, it teaches the girl that arguing and bullshit is an everyday occurrence and thus normalises the fuck out of it, so she's replicating her mum's poor decisions and bad behaviour as it's the only way she knows to interact with men. She's following the piss poor example that her mother set her, an argumentative woman is often a single woman, it's the quickest way to make a man "tired of her shit" and abandon her. Nobody wants to be near someone that is constantly the cause of problems and drama. Dramatic theatrical women do not fare well.

Smart, healthy women do not constantly argue to get their own way, its immature, there are far more successful ways for a woman to ensure she is heard and gets what she needs, I'm sure you would be far more receptive to her wants on a full belly and with drained balls. Ultimately as you have said, she has no healthy respect for boundaries or her place in the relationship and as a result she is not good wife/LTR material. She is not acknowledging the captain/first mate dynamic which is imperative to successful LTRs, you cannot have two people fighting for dominance and call yourselves a team, all teams have hierarchy and women are rarely happy in being responsible for a man, ultimately the woman must be secure enough with you and with herself to allow you to lead, if she cannot trust you to lead, the LTR is doomed to fail.

Men like to try and "fix women" but fixing a bitch like that will take a lot of cognitive reprogramming, a strong will and plenty of resources, it's rarely worth it, people from single mother households are damaged goods because the child becomes the emotional punchbag for the mother when there is no man present, likewise when the mother does have a man around and he can't pass her shit tests, the kid also becomes an emotional punchbag for a frustrated woman. Women are emotionally abusive when they are not kept in check which is why single mother households are always a huge red flag in a prospective relationship. Screen for that from the very beginning, it will lower the amount of bullshit you have to contend with.

You can't save them all my friend and you shouldn't even try.

Tits or GTFO

37 upvotes · 21 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy fucking shit with that kind of cleavage it's impossible TO NOT get attention.

The irony is truly fucking lost on this one isn't it?

Her body language and the choice of editing communicate that she is MEGA insecure. Holy shit, behold the insecurity.

This just screams "mentally unstable."

There are still quality men out there for the 30+ year-old reformed sluts, relax, ladies.

37 upvotes · 1 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitches allergic to the fucking truth when it doesn't complement their feels.

Fuck em honestly.

I'm sitting in a Women's and Gender Studies Class RIGHT NOW

37 upvotes · 9 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The word teach implies it is a skill or piece of knowledge with merit or scientific backing behind it. I prefer the words "indoctrinate" "brainwash" or a particularly juicy one... "inculcate."

Guy has read up on game and has girlfriend believe he is a player, when in fact she is the only girl he has been with.

37 upvotes · 28 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Babe, I was actually a virgin before I met you."

When I lost my virginity as a teen I told the girl I had fucked 3 girls beforehand when I was a virgin. Hilariously we were both virgins but she refused to fuck a guy who was a virgin. Remember female virginity is a DHV, male virginity is a DLV. LOL. Even as a kid I wasn't this stupid.

Girls are like money, the more you have the easier it is to get more.

[Humor] Remember that feminist programming language satire? It has taken off...

37 upvotes · 16 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is what happens when a class of people in society are subjected to no moral standards or codes of conduct, as simply any imposition on their freedom to act like unilateral assholes is framed as oppression and some imaginary patriarchy entity is mentioned, taking an immediate victim position and trying to psychologically insert guilt into the opponent, particularly if they're male, especially if they're white.

Feminism has become a parody itself. One could deduce the reason they feel threatened is that a parody does not take their insincere grievances seriously, and any transgression on the seriousness of their delusions wholly offends them, such is typical of a zealous, extremist response to rational groups who criticise them, eg: athiests who criticise islamism. Feminism parodied blurred lines, stop seeking privilege and exceptions, you are not immune to scrutiny, maybe if your ideology was a little more tightly constructed and a little less fallacious it might actually be able to stand up to scrutiny rather than simply silence/shut down opposition like we're living in a North Korean Dictatorship. Is feminism an ideological Kim Jong Un? I wonder how much third wave feminism has in common with North Korea's juche ideology? Interesting.

Feminism is like the women who follow it, an ideology that expects to be treated seriously but wants to be completely immune from scrutiny. I'm sorry, but I can respect any ideology eg: multiculturalism, feminism, islam etc which needs to be completely free from scrutiny to operate.

No scrutiny = no credibility.

Fuck feminism.

It's amazing how TRP has turned my perspective on women (more specifically, on the hamstering)

37 upvotes · 10 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It must be quite enjoyable to be female, instead of ever feeling any long lasting guilt or responsibility for anything, you diffuse the feelings you don't like by convincing yourself its someone elses fault with faulty logic, then you bitch to your friends/society/the internet about it and everyone's backs up your faulty logic because the whole charade is set up to make women feel better no matter how badly they fucked up

"Oh I just killed my husband because he works 80 hours a week and doesn't give me enough attention" internet response: "Killing him may have been going a bit far, but by not being there he neglected your needs so it makes sense you would lash out, abandoning you like that is emotional abuse and I'm sure the courts will see just how much of a victim you are here" while her husband lays dead, killed by his wife for providing for his family, she's still the victim.

Hamsters are humourous or cringe inducing, but at least you know the next time you see a hamster in action not to address it with logic.

The worst thing is working with a woman who's your boss, who fucks up her positions responsibilities and uses her hamster to blame other people, in business you'd think "logic wins" nope, the hamster is immune in a business setting too. Another reason women in the workplace = bad, shit gets reduced to feelings and subjectivity, not actual tangibility or common sense.

This /r/relationships thread brings me inner peace.

37 upvotes · 30 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

To the developing world to find a good woman.

Seriously though, western women are the least datable in the world, they feel entitled to everything and accountable for nothing. The whole psychology makes me want to cringe, hard - because being who I am, the gender I am, and where I come from - I have to work EXTREMELY HARD in order to get ANYTHING AT ALL and I'm responsible for EVERY LITTLE LAST FUCKING THING!

On the topic of single mothers (and not trying to hijack this thread by any means) As a man who's grown up with a single mother and thus led a very tough fucking life resultantly (lack of mental/financial support in ANYTHING) and essentially feeling a lot like "you raised yourself", I really feel for the kid this chicks bringing up be it a boy or a girl, but especially if it's a boy. If he doesn't find his way over to TRP and get some masculinity in his fucking life, that boys life will suck to no fucking end. Everytime I see a single mother these days, I actually feel a little sad inside. It's the sign of a society denigrating at the seams, its reasons like this that people like me (who are actually the same age as the chick posting that topic) would not date a woman like that, not that she'd date a guy like me her own age anyway unless I was some fucking millionaire/billionaire playboy who got access to inheritance when I was 21 even though my parents aren't dead yet.

In no fucking way would I wanna be that chicks beta bucks, but part of me feels a paternal responsibility to younger boys coming up through the ranks who don't have a dad, simply because - I never had a dad myself and I know just how much that fucking sucks. Honestly. Guys who had dads, no matter how much that cunt annoys you - you're all the better a man for having him, even if he was a beta. No dad at all = complete fucking darkness, sheer loss, a massive lack of direction, nobody to guide you - nothing at all. It's a mental void. Fuck, I tried to tell my mum how much it sucks, but she had to protect her ego, I can't get through to that bitch and really connect on this issue, she can't handle the truth she needs to think "she did an amazing job" and use all my accomplishments as attributions of her amazing parenting, that's how all single mothers operate their hamster to rationalise their decision not to abort you.

Boys need their fathers like oxygen and any dismissal of that is just a gross rationalisation to say the least. Being a stepfather to a bastard child is like coming third place in a 2 parent race. The kid makes this chick EXTRA NEEDY as well, financially and emotionally - because she's strained more in both facets.

She rewrites history in her head without even realizing it.

36 upvotes · 10 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The term 'gaslighting' likewise comes to mind.

Feminist at r/askhamsters feels bad about liking to be dominated. She's tried to suppress it but she just can't.

36 upvotes · 19 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hear, hear. This guy deserves a standing ovation.

"Poker with Black Widows"

36 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Good job on the womanese interpreting there. That's a fine skill you've developed.

Red Pill advice for guys who are about to be done with college and hit the "real world".

36 upvotes · 1 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My fear is that I will never have it as easy

Your thinking is all wrong my man. Don't fear difficulty, improve your capacity to handle it. If it was easier then, and you weren't very game-aware, and it's harder now - or in the future - but you are game-aware, did it really get easier or harder? You're thinking "if only I had my knowledge now, back then, I could have cleaned up." And that's flawed thinking, because you don't have a fucking time machine. You can't change that shit. That line of thought goes to fucking nowhere but self-pity, possibly anger and frustration. Cut that shit out.

It's a waste of brain cells to think of what could have been, so focus on what can be.

Red Pill Example Never let people walk over you

36 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Sounds about right. Women tend to humblebrag and then pretend that such humblebragging was necessary to set up the story for the question. The fear of rejection runs deep in the veins of women. Indeed, consensus is their primary concern.

"You had best unfuck yourself, or I will unscrew your head and shit down your neck" or "How to improve AskTRP with these few simple steps"

36 upvotes · 28 January 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't Shit Where You Eat

Don't fuck women you work with

I gave up a fine piece of ass because of this. Annoying, because I actually liked her personality too. No exceptions to this, no matter how much you like the bitch, it's never a good idea.

Sports team captain, ripped, good looking, glittering military career, new job as a stockbroker - STILL BLUE PILL ... dumped

36 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Amused mastery + give her random shit so she can play the victim should keep things ticking over smoothly. Always hold back some emotion don't let her see everything there is to you. Without that kinda game not even your smv will save you. Yeah. Women are fucked up creatures.

Active & caring father teaches his sons "man lessons" and makes sure to include his daughter as well. Mother does "woman lessons" too. Women in /r/DIY explode with how OP is indirectly responsible for why their own lives are ruined.

36 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In other words, what they want isn't really "equality" but supremacy.

And he hits it in the back of the net! They'll always protest the contrary for the sake of appearances, but anyone who isn't an idiot knows better. Women couldn't get their cake and eat it too saying "we want to lord over men and make them an inferior class of citizen!" so instead, with the laws favouring them, and the lower requirements for educational and career success they keep up the pretence "we just want to be equal to men!"

IMO, feminists are supremacist narcissists suffering from an inferiority complex. They hate men because they wish they were men (ironically due to feminism's demonisation of natural femininity) and there is no amount of legislation that can account for such mental sickness.

Short and Sweet Proof of TRP at Work

36 upvotes · 16 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The beauty of male language expression - violent metaphor galore. Love it. You should hear gamers when they lose their shit, it's hilarious. Chefs in kitchens too - wonderful.

Whores & Daughters

36 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Too many people think religion is worthless just because it is a lie.

I view atheists as reverse zealots, idiots on the opposite extreme of the spectrum to religious nuts. Religion is very necessary to ensure moral order. All the dietary crap and blind adherence to rules and rituals that make no sense in the modern age I don't agree with. But the moral system, suppression of promiscuity (necessary for monogamy/advanced civilization) and sense of community it provides are all incredibly valuable. Religion enforces these things to the net benefit of everyone.

Atheism has none of that, atheism is almost autistic and misses the forest for the trees. It concentrates mainly on the existence of God, and proving things with science. It obsesses over disproving religion rather than being a viable alternative to religion. It's more of a anti-religion movement than it is a viable ideology to live by. That's it. It misses out on all the other important roles religion has played in society and doesn't even provide alternatives with it's own ethos. IMO, modern atheism is a cult of intellectual narcissists intelligent enough to understand science but devoid of philosophical learning. They fail to acknowledge the importance of morality and the role religion played in delivering that on a macro scale. I always state I am not religious when I make pro-religious arguments, because I don't need close-minded atheists framing me as some religious idiot. I am neither atheist nor religious. I may opt in to Buddhism for the meditation and other benefits I mention earlier on in this post. It seems to be the one religion devoid of all the harmful freedom-limiting bullshit.

Modern day atheists are what you get when you teach people science divorced of philosophy. Arrogant idiots who are just as obnoxious as religious nutjobs. Both groups think they are superior and have all the answers. But both groups have it wrong and are essentially too proud to admit the holes in their ideological frameworks. As is typical of most (if not all) ideology.

Feminists think the UK is too aggressive in pursuing false rape accusations

36 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

109 women have been prosecuted in the UK in last 5 years - 98 of which have been convicted for perverting the course of justice.

A US law professor

I think their approach violates human rights

"Lisa Longstaff, from War, said: 'It's appalling that when over 90% of rapists are getting away with it and two women a week are killed by partners or ex-partners, women who report violence are being imprisoned'."

It's frightening how someone so fucking poor at reasoning can have a job in a highly logical/analytical field: law professor. Guess she got all the way there on affirmative action, because she's a fucking retard if she can in good conscience, equate "women who report violence being imprisoned" with "women being imprisoned for making false rape claims and perverting the course of justice." They are two distinct types of women, but she conflates them into one type of woman. She distracts you from the real injustice by manufacturing her own, that's the power of the hamster in full force there.

Yes, she actually cannot differentiate between women reporting real crimes (violence) and women who report fake crimes (no violence.)

Talk about some seriously fallacious conflation (here's a link: <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Conflation>.) And she's a fucking law professor? Fuckoff. She doesn't deserve her job. The world has gone mad. Academia more so. A bitch that dumb shouldn't be teaching in such a high-logic field where people have to use logic to interpret contract law and apply precedent etc. Honestly, that shit is fucking disgusting. If they let dumb cunts like this into Law nowadays I'm not surprised the profession has become saturated. I don't care if she's memorised statute for the past 200 years, her logic is shit. And I don't care how manipulative you're trying to be, you can't make such retarded statements publicly when you're in that kind of job position and not expect to be ridiculed.

I'd expect a low GPA law undergrad high on indignation to say some shit like this, not a law professor.

Woman drinks and flirts with college president, invites him to her hotel room afterwards, then cries rape because she "can't remember" why she let him in.

36 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a chick puts her nails on your knee cap in the centre and then expands all her fingers out in different directions, as if scratching gently from the centre of the knee, outwards towards the surrounding knee cap, that shit is a huge turn on for men which can cause erections, there's some kind of pleasure point there. Rationalising that as anything but an indicator of interest is, in my opinion, bullshit.

Such a clear message she sent, how did he miss it? Hand on leg= not interested. Obvious!!

She applies spin here to shirk the responsibility for her actions and save face. Women are obsessed with their reputations, probably related to the herd mentality, to be continually accepted by their social circles they'll scapegoat anybody required in order to ensure that they continue to be accepted and don't suffer from the social fallout.

Last night I got one of the best compliments a man can receive.

36 upvotes · 27 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Someone was trying to tell me this sub isn't sexist,

You were misinformed, they lied, this sub is sexist as hell. Gender differences create sexism. Whether someone wants to act on that and throw fuel on the fire so that it becomes misogyny on the other hand is their choice. It's not something I'd personally endorse, you've got limited time on this planet, no point wasting it on things that you hate. Especially on women, your time is valuable, spend it on making yourself a better person rather than wasting it frivolously on berating women because most of them act shitty.

I offer IllimitableMan, women-hater of the month

Aww you honour me with such hyperbolic dramatics.

I don't know if you see yourself as sexist

Yeah I know I'm sexist because I don't believe men and women are the same. I'm not afraid to point out womens flaws just because some well-meaning naive idiot like yourself will come along and start trying to police my speech or get me/those like me to apologise for being honest rather than keeping up the facade so that none of the delicate little flowers get their feelings hurt. The thing I'm not is a misogynist, I give all women an equal chance to be uninteresting/hyper emotional/offer little of value other than sex or otherwise somehow fuck shit up and most of them manage to pull that off just fine without a hitch. Observing such phenomenon and commenting on it is what we do, your problem is you're shooting the messenger and mistaking the messenger as the problem, when the reality is that how kids are raised, the decline of society and the single mother epidemic is the fucking problem.

Men and women alike aren't raised right anymore which is why you have men acting like pussies and women acting like manipulative brats, but of course, It's not men I have to reproduce with, so their romantic shortcomings where prevalent are completely irrelevant to how I date. It's not a contest to see who's better than who, it's calling shit out for what it is and learning how to lead the best life possible whilst bearing that in mind.

hypergamous confession from tinder

36 upvotes · 20 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Alpha fucks/beta bucks.

I follow tinderfessions on Twitter, mostly just for the laughs, I love to put a dampener on these slutty tweets with a condescending 140 character snippet of wit, but honestly I fucking question how many of these tweets are legit. Don't let tinderfessions define how you view women, I don't doubt plenty of chicks are sluts but anyone can submit this shit, we have no proof it's not made up or just trolls/guys submitting this stuff.

and like I say here: /r/TheRedPill/comments/23ibfh/guy_conducts_tinder_experiment_with_photos_of/cgxh4sf

High value men enable average women to have this attitude because they'll fuck chicks beneath their SMV just for the sake of an easy lay. Offer a man pussy on a plate and most will take it, even if she's a 6 and he's a 10.

High value men enable this bullshit, instead of keeping with the hotties and leaving the average chicks for the average guys they go fuck the average girls as well instead of leaving them to fuck within their own league and thus average girls get an entitlement complex and turn into cunts like this lucy chick, assuming its a legit tweet. They let her play out of her league and get 9 dick when she has no business up in the 9 leagues.

Getting laid is a winner takes all thing, male sexual greed knows no bounds and as a result it satisfies women's hypergamy and allows average and above average girls to fuck societies best. Unfortunately for us men, the opposite does not apply. Female 10's aren't going to fuck male 6's and 7's, whereas male 10's will fuck all the female 6s, 7s, 8s, 9s and 10s. Male sexual greed + female hypergamy + women being the gatekeepers of sex = how chicks get to fuck waaaaaay out of their league. Explains the 80/20 rule and why even most average guys don't get laid. If you're not at the top you're lucky you're some bitches beta bucks the game is so fucking skewed.

It's worse when unlike Lucy, they don't realise they're 7's but they fuck so many 9's they start believing that they themselves are 9's because the diet of dick they're accustomed to has led them down a path of narcissistic entitlement. Ah well, for the guys who aren't in the top 20% you've all got the wall to look forward to, when the alpha dick dries up and she's left with her 5, bitter and resentful that she's "settling for him" and she remembers all the alpha tinder dick she couldn't get to commit to her.

I don't quite understand.. If you actually believe that there is no one to depend on but yourself.. isn't that depressing?

36 upvotes · 30 March 2014 · </r/TheRedPill>

So many fucking manginas out there, who will throw you under the bus for a bit of female attention.

I know this type too well. They don't even have to be manginas, just a beta around a girl he wants to bang will try to show you up.

For example, you can banter well with a guy and when a girl is around he likes the tone of the banter will change, he will repeatedly try to make negative examples out of you to make him look better to her in comparison to yourself, whether you like her sexually or not is irrelevant, all it takes is for him to like her and these shenanigans will become apparent.

These are the type of guys, despite how cool they may be with you on a 1-to-1 basis that cannot be depended upon or trusted when it counts, no matter how much you may like them when "the going is easy."

I mean if they change that much because a bit of pussy is in the picture what are they going to be like in a real crisis? I hate guys like this and there's WAAAAAAAAAAY too many of them. Sure, I'm an asshole, but I'm a consistent asshole, I won't suddenly up the ante because pussy/some other person is around.

Look for inconsistencies in a man's behaviour, his worst behaviour is how he will present himself when under pressure/in a crisis.

Batten down the hatches, more TRP publicity brought to you by the White Knights, Omegas and Feminists of Reddit

36 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Irony is often lost on the indignant.

TRP seems to be working in my life although it's a work in progress. Thanks TRP!

36 upvotes · 4 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriages work when men are in control, when women are in control you despise each other or at the very best have a number of desires either sexual or non sexual unfulfilled. Natural order. Equality is a myth. A man losing control = marriage over.

Women self-sabotage by trying to be in the drivers seat or by using the notion of equality as a foot in the door to supremacy. Their supremacy doesn't work, their emotional nature creates dysfunction in their leadership. Female love is based on adoration, adoration comes from respect, it's difficult for women to respect men who are weaker or otherwise perceived as inferior to them.

Men must lead, that is both our burden and our privilege.

Red Pill Woman Marine Vet Says it Like it is

36 upvotes · 20 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The american propaganda this marine spouts is just cringe worthy. Painting the usa as this benevolent entity which just wants to help the world... what total bullshit.

America's internal sense of freedom is wage slavery and feminism induced rampant sexual promiscuity. The closest thing it has to actual freedom is a free market, you can argue the positives and negatives of all these things, someone at the top of the ladder can make a good argument for why wage slavery is good, such is the bias of vested interest.

USA would throw anyone under a bus for its own needs because it's run by an imperialist government, just unlike the old way of empire the US installs puppet dictators and controls countries via economics, UN sanctions and corporations rather than changing flags/state names etc. You could call it "covert empire."

Look at recent history and see how many nations the us invaded in the past 60 years, its a militaristic nation that invades third world countries with inferior technology/military and can't fight back so it can control their regimes. USA doesn't take territory for itself since the louisiana purchase from the French and pushing mexico down south to form what now constitutes mainland USA (with few exceptions, guam, hawaii, us virgin islands) but just creates satellite states where the gov the usa approves of does whatever usa tells it to do, effectively allowing USA to run other nations indirectly.

Usa toppled democracy in Chile and funded a two decade dictatorship, nice one CIA that's a real american value isn't it? Toppling democracy and installing dictatorship? I'm sure if half your citizens knew/cared about the shit that runs counter to the american psyche, it's value system, you'd have a shit storm to answer to.

People love to see America through a bluepill lense, even this seemingly "realistic" marine, because nationalism is such a source of american identity and americans have a tendency to feel personally attacked when you attack the atrocities their government carries out on the behalf of their interests.

I love many things about the usa, however reality is reality, where a feminist sees liberation of women in the middle east a realist sees immediately cheaper oil in the U.S and an increase in opium production in Afghanistan since american occupation.

These aren't wars they're invasions. The UK needed two world wars against developed countries which attacked its homeland/infrastructure and then to be enslaved to a us debt loan to lose its empire. (Usa controlled uk after world war 2 as the war bankrupted the nation and usa paid a loan/bought up pound sterling deposits threatening to destabilise the currency and sell off all the deposits if the UK tried to assert itself on a global scale - read up on the Suez Canal incident for a historical reference to this - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Suez_Crisis.)

The UK is probably also the US's closest ally in the world, so when they do that kind of shit to their own allies, and then enter WW2 "to help out" (to make profit) when it was nearly won anyway a crap ton of years later it tells you a lot about the real personality of that country's government. USA made huge profit off WW2 whilst Europe spiralled into poverty, but I won't digress too much on that.

As an Englishman who has to choose a world power the USA is just the lesser of other evils say in comparison to the Russian's or the Chinese because they would probably treat the English far worse than the Americans do/have, but that's only because American culture is very anglicised and was founded/inspired by the British empire to begin with, hence independence day, tea parties and all that crap. It's funny because there was a role reversal, there used to be a master servant relationship between the UK and the US colonies, now the US is the master and the UK is the servant.

I'm under no delusions about how America controls the world outside its own soil. Nato is a joke too, USA veto half the shit they don't like. Usa = the planetary silver back gorilla that tries to paint itself as a bunny.

Inside the mind of an attention whore

36 upvotes · 29 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She's addicted to the power of machiavellianism.

You can see this because she maintains control in all her interactions with these men, she is not vulnerable in any situation with any of them, none of them outmatch her manipulative ability and her confession of sadistic enjoyment is the result of her power/machiavellianism feeding her narcissism via validation (dopamine)

No doubt the source of her machiavellianist power is her beauty, one should assume she is both young and beautiful, if she were not pretty, there would be no baseline to interest these blue pill men to begin with.

People like this are one of the fundamental reasons the red pill exists. I'd say she's a dark triad woman judging her confession. She says she feels guilt, but the guilt must be minimal, it's not overwhelming as she continues in her behaviour, thus it has no power over HER to be significant, her admission of guilt is simply a ploy to evoke sympathy, to play herself as the victim in the perversity of her tyranny.

At least in the midst of anonymity, she is able to provide the truth that womankind collectively deny, they'll pretend she's an outlier, but we know better - this is far more common than the sisterhood will publicly admit, intelligent women outside the realm of academia are essentially very good manipulators abusing beauty privilege. Her prowess in deception is a power in and of itself, women like this will divorce rape, branch swing and home wreck until someone manages to pull them in and break them. She's like chernobyl, she needs a quarantine zone around her.

Once she hits the wall and the source of her power deteriorates she'll look for a beta provider.

No doubt when the carousel ride is over (fucking guys over like this from her teenage years up until her late 20's) she'll go on a deceptive trip where she endeavours to deceptively ascertain sperm from one night stands by telling the lie "I'm on the pill" and any idiot horny enough to fall for it will get a summons from CSA to appear in court 9 months later.

Oh, another thing she said that stuck out:

I appear to be a sweet, mousy, shy girl and I've discovered that I'm quite good at playing the part.

Is covered by Rollo here: <http://therationalmale.com/2011/11/10/good-girls-do/>

When she's with you and you're in BP mode and someone lays down some negative sounding truth on you, you'd reply "This girl's different" - lol, no, no she's not, they're all innately deceitful in nature, this one is disturbed to the point that beating her at her own games and attaining the iota of what one would call love is simply not worth the time or the effort. There's too many women out there and this insecure fuck up needs to fuck people up just to feel special.

It's nice when the "opposition" (if she knew of TRP, she'd probably be anti-trp and go join a sub dedicated to hating on it) actually prove your point for you.

News Flash: 1 hamster vs 9 grown up men

36 upvotes · 21 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This special ability of womens, "the hamster", it should be outlawed and made illegal... like man's natural ability, "beating the shit out of stuff."

Would definitely put us on the path to gender equality

"sorry ma'am but I'm going to have to arrest you for hamstering!"

/r/Canada learns that women know far less about politics than men and goes full hamster.

36 upvotes · 3 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Unless its something to do with women like abortion or the welfare state 99% of women could not give a fucking shit about politics. You've got a demographic of women who care about environmentally friendly shit too, generally middle class women who love animals and shit, nature-types. There's some nerdy chicks out there however who can debate a wide range of politics and not just environment/abortions/welfare state shit, but they're an exception rather than a trend.

Today was the day that Reddit almost swallowed the pill. On the front page today: Guy finds out soon-to-be fiancée is cheating and sets up an elaborate proposal to dump her.

35 upvotes · 28 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hopefully someone puts this dude onto TRP.

"It Didn't Mean Anything!"

35 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I always operated under the assumption she was a level 3 ball fondling technician? Looks like someone got their BJ cert and was promoted.

Is the Minimum Looks Threshold Higher than Ever Before?

35 upvotes · 10 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Essentially, wealth and technology has given women more options, making them pickier than ever before. It all comes back to Briffaults Law. "What can he do for me?" If you're not her best option you're not getting any. Most average bitches have a Chad or two from Tinder in their contact list now.

Jesus, women are just so open to cuckoldry it's not even funny!

35 upvotes · 14 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Fucking feminist pigs.

Feminism didn't change women, it revealed them. AWALT.

"Men's Rights Activists have missed the point of feminism " - Intellectually disingenuous article from The Telegraph writes a smear piece aimed at discrediting TRP and AVFM.

35 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Good on you. It's like TRP. Can't let women into male spaces, they will just try to sabotage shit, control the flow of discourse and redefine the group's cultural purpose to suit their own sexual strategy/personal whims.

An Actual Conversation About Marriage and Divorce Coming From the Mouths of College-Aged Women

35 upvotes · 31 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I couldn't hang around cunts like that. I got all my sjw resistance training back in my college days.

Some powerful words for those of us trying to raise our SMV

35 upvotes · 12 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Moral of the story: take care of yourself and don't get lazy or think "I've made it." It's easy to lose what you have, everything needs maintaining.

The opposite of a red flag? What makes you think a woman is worth your time?

35 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Kenjataimu

That word is fucking awesome. Thanks for introducing me to it.

A letter to the veterans: The anger phase is a transition step, but it's an important one. Stop telling people to not be angry.

35 upvotes · 27 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Be as angry as you fucking like it's the women, blue pills and other man boobs who are scared you'll be the next elliot rodger. Just because some of these effeminate fuck nuggets are scared of male aggression, it doesn't mean it can't be constructive. As long as you channel it into some monk mode or something you'll be fine. Best of luck.

How to ruin a good RedPill advice with just one BluePill pount.

35 upvotes · 4 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The golden rule. GIRLS ARE COOL, RESPECT THEM. Seriously, girls are cool, they look cool, they're cool to have around, they smell amazing, they feel nice. Everything about girls is amazing, Girls are so much better than guys, guys just sit in rooms fantasising over porn and video games. Girls make shit, and write and read, they are brilliant. Girls can make actual babies, real living human beings in their stomachs... all you can make in yours is shit Don't treat them like sex objects, don't expect sex every day, get to know them, be friendly with them... but ONLY once you've established a romance.

Pass me the fucking sick bucket.

10 Easy Ways to Deal With Me When I'm Being a Bitch: an article my gf tagged me in on FB. Just wanted to share with all of you and get your thoughts on it.

35 upvotes · 11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The blue pillers lose their shit over TRPs position on women and emotion: "she's the most responsible teenager in the house" however this chicks gone a step further and declared her emotional self-control to match that of a 3 year old's. I can't stop laughing my fucking ass off.

Do women have an emotional need to complain?

35 upvotes · 30 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"I have a vagina like two of the victims. I could have been killed. Look at me. #attentionwhore"

Tweeting it.

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

35 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

For the large part women are weak and insecure, feminism has made that worse by encouraging everyone pander to them. I respect strong women who don't think they should have a red carpet laid out in front of them wherever they go, those women are few and far between.

Guy conducts Tinder experiment with photos of model, average guy, and ugly guy. Reaffirms invisibility of bottom 90% of men.

35 upvotes · 20 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women in the mid to lower-upper range of attraction (6-8) suffer from the Dunning-Kruger effect, believing that they are more beautiful than they actually are because of positive feedback loops (eg: if people keep hitting on you and telling you you're beautiful, hot men keep sexing you, betas keep buying stuff/orbiting and etc you will believe your value is higher than it is because of social feedback)

I've been holding onto an unpublished article I've written on the phenomenon, in light of this topic I may consider publishing it soon. Part of the problem is men and how low they will stoop to get laid. Sure a male 10 can fuck a female 10, but that still takes effort, if he wants it instantly with her throwing herself at him he settles for a female 7. The fact that male 10's will fuck female 6-7's means these women get accustomed to a diet of fucking men who are 10s and due to hypergamy, like anything, once a woman sees the top she cannot go back.

We all know a female 10 wouldn't fuck guys who are 6-7's with the only exception being he was dark triad as fuck. Then again behaviourally one could argue dark triad men are 10's to women as their attraction is much more diverse than ours is. Men will fuck anything nubile with nice skin and long hair.

You need pussy in order to get pussy.

35 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That and preselection.

Just another example of why you don't wife up a whore.

35 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly, she fulfilled her feminine imperative. She got another man to pick up the slack for the mistake she made slutting it up with alpha boy. Beta boy raising alphas mans baby, women will always try to get away with this if they can, with or without the man being aware. If she thinks you're that much of a chump she'll tell the guy it's not his, if she's not sure if you're big of a chump enough, she'll hide it. This chick told her man, he must have been a real chump.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

35 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a woman has something worth saying she can do so without talking about being a woman, any truth to what she says will be self evident

EG: /u/veggie_girl

The oft abused quote "If you can't accept me at my worst, then you don't deserve me at my best"

35 upvotes · 29 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you can't accept me when I'm beta then you don't deserve me when I'm dark triad alpha.

French President's record low approval rating increases among only women after learning of his secret love affair with a popular actress.

35 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The president DHVs and tingles are felt nationally in the vaginas of french women. Hilarious. So Hilarious you can't make it up.

Helen Smith: 8 Reasons Straight Men Don't Want To Get Married

35 upvotes · 20 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism killed the west, well done feminazis.

cock carousel, punjab style!

35 upvotes · 9 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Textbook hypergamy.

- She rode the cock carousel only fucking alphas in her best years.
- Aged 26, her and her family recognise she needs a beta provider so they choose a 28 year old family friend making big money as a NYC banker.
- He marries her, giving her legal rights to his shit whilst losing his virginity to her (no previous sexual experience at 28 = massive beta, he's been sexually frustrated and incapable of getting it for years.)
- Now that guy is in such a vulnerable position he's going to get completely and utterly divorce raped. Once her pity wears off for how "nice he is" she'll clean him out, he won't live up to the imprint previous alphas have left on her.

The only reason she married him is because she and her family recognise he's a suitable provider/rich. Poor. Fucking. Guy.

If she doesn't worship the ground you walk on and consistently bring value to your life SHE IS COMPLETELY UNWORTHY of a relationship. The thing you gotta realise about women: It doesn't matter how unworthy of your commitment they are, they'll still try HUSTLE & STRONG ARM YOU INTO IT!

34 upvotes · 17 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

AND another example of excusing women from responsibility for their behaviour whilst homing in on a man's inadequacies.

She and she alone is to be blamed for her choice to subvert your judgement. If she chose to fool you, she has to own up to her behaviour.

You're not the only one that can present their biased angle as solid logic in an attempt to appear objective (when anybody with a grain of cunning can see you think men are entirely at fault - an illogical position)

Never been a fan of people who assign 100% blame to men, "it's all men's fault" - this is illogical. Sure you should own your failures, but to attribute absolutely no blame to the person who deceived you is hilarious, probably part of the definition of Stockholm Syndrome. If I had to pull a ratio out of my ass for the distribution of blame, I'd say it's around 30% the gullible party's fault and 70% the exploiter's. Why? Because malice always trumps stupidity in matters of blame attribution.

A hiring manager sure as shit does not like the person who went out of their way to fool them, and is going to disdain them for duping them rather than take on 100% of the guilt for being less than infallible. Sure they'll feel like a bit of an idiot for getting it wrong, but the person who tricked them doesn't just walk away with 0% blame or agency.

To apply your logic to everything else, if someone defrauds you it's your fault for being gullible, they've no blame for being a cunt.

People getting their houses robbed don't go "hey you know what you're totally right I should have had a better security system, you sure showed me, I'm a 100% idiot and you're the intelligent deceiver, good job!" - effectively what you're suggesting here in a different context.

You miss the forest for the trees by highlighting the blame to be attributed for gullibility, whilst omitting any blame for the person preying on said gullibility. You are providing an unbalanced account, and thus despite a good command of sophistry, your logic at its core is bullshit and needs re-evaluation.

Hagakure: The Book of the Samurai. Read this book and apply it towards TRP way of life.

34 upvotes · 10 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Had this book on my radar for awhile, can't really justify buying any more books when I haven't finished reading the ones I've got. Good suggestion, very masculine book. Supposedly it is an odd text in the sense that the perception is not only from a 16th(?) century Japanese man, but that the way of thinking is also very "eastern." I know that sounds vague, but apparently there are significant differences in how westerners and easterners think so certain observations can seem odd. This is what I've been told, I haven't read it myself so I don't know if that's an observation which is right or fair.

it is better to have some unhappiness while one is still young, for if a person does not experience some bitterness, his disposition will not settle down.

I'm happy I had my first LTR blow up in my face when I was 22 (was with her, on and off, since 16.) If it had happened at 30 or older, I do believe I'd be a much harsher degree fucked. Every guy needs to get burned YOUNG. You won't fully grasp TRP until you get your heart broken. And it needs to happen. Young guys who find TRP pre-LTR who now try to avoid getting their heart broken are only putting off the inevitable. One day, those guys will give in, they will let themselves fall in love, thinking they are smarter than that in their youth because they read TRP. They will let themselves fall for a woman, and start to betafy because they want to feel love without knowing viscerally (emotionally) just what that love costs. Inevitable heartbreak and betrayal awaits the most seasoned player. You can't avoid this. You can only delay it. So it's better to experience this shit when you're young, get it out of the way. In a fucked up way, she'll be doing you a favour. It's a negative experience you need under your belt. Think antifragility.

Love when you're young, teens is preferable so you can build yourself through your 20's. But if you don't get hurt when you're young, you'll be fucked when you're old.

At least when your high school sweetheart fucks you up you don't lose a house, car and never see your kid. Honestly, getting your heart broken toughens you up. It's cheaper when you're younger. And it's less dangerous. It's like a vaccination for female bullshit when you get older. Do you wanna get sick with oneitis when you're young so that you never develop it again? So that you can have relationships on your own terms with women rather than theirs? Or do you want to let your ego think that because you have TRP, that you are above love, that you "AIN'T NEED NO VACCINATION BRO!" and then when you're 35 you're sobbing into your hands because you caught oneitis, gave a chick too much of yourself and now she's fucked off with Chad and your 2-year-old son?

Get fucking vaccinated.

"The Dad Bod" - Don't you fucking dare buy into it

34 upvotes · 2 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The feminist feminine imperative casts a culture wide shit test yet again. Good to be on the other side laughing at this, immune, rather than caught up in the vortex of bullshit.

The Hierarchy of Women

34 upvotes · 8 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I disagree that TRP philosophy is inherently anti-marriage. Marriage is still a reasonable construct in the context of reproduction.

People will argue this to the cows come home. Basically marriage is fucked. Cohabit with a bitch, get her to accept you won't marry her, don't be forced into marriage out of pressure/manipulation. Avoid common law states. Pay the child support if/when it fucks up, at least you won't pay alimony/half your assets. This has come up many times, and there's always a conservative crowd (Texans, is that you?!) who were raised to see marriage through stained glass windows.

EG: "my parents/grandparents were together 50 years bla bla bla... so strong bla bla bla... they were so happy bla bla bla" that was called marriage 1.0. That's when women were less narcissistic, reliant on men economically and were SCORNE BY SOCIETY for divorce. That was marriage 1.0 - it died a grizzly death by the hands of feminism. Now we have marriage 2.0 where women are societally gassed up on social media/thirsty betas/pussy on a pedestal white knighting. They don't need men's money to survive (only to be more greedy) and divorce is acceptable - some even have divorce parties. Different climate mate, stop looking to the past for inspiration for marriage - we're not in the 50's we're in the here and now. The establishment has made marriage anti-masculine. Only a fool signs up for that.

Someone will now mention pre-nups, assuming you are 100% sure it can't be overturned, sure. Do that. But why take the unnecessary risk? Why do you want to be married? What changes? Save a bit on your taxes? OK. What else? Joint medical insurance? OK. What else? You believe somehow it benefits the kids? Wrong. Your bit of paper you signed means shit. It's all living in the same house that makes the difference to the kids. You being around all the time is the difference, not the signing your balls to the woman who then uses the state to hold you at gun point and divorces your ass when she's no longer HAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAPPY. And you may not even get to see your kid any more because she weaponises them against you in the divorce.

Divorce fucks kids up, mentally - really badly - it can be ugly. But in your selfishness "to be married" and achieve whatever recognition/status that means in your mind, you're willing to risk putting them through that. You will not last forever with a woman. Period. So why chain your balls to her? How does that make you feel? How will that make the kids feel? Do they deserve that heartache? You may not give a shit about a bitch tossing you out - but what about your kids who have to see you argue, who are made to hate you and poisoned against you because she's out for blood and wants half the assets?

You just moving out one day is nowhere near as ugly as a divorce battle and kids being forced to lie in court and used as weapons. You have some autonomy and ability to affect dread without being married. Without being married and a ring on her finger she doesn't think "haha, I have him now." Unless you are in high society and need marriage to be accepted into the upper echelon, your entire desire for marriage is idealistic, whimsical nonsense that makes poor sense from a strategic point of view. Yet I suspect someone will try to pick holes in my post and argue why "marriage is worth it." Such people are deluded fools with no strong counterarguments. Just idiots who believe in a dead institution, indoctrinated into religious ideals/social pressure I suspect.

It irks we have people on TRP who were raised to view marriage in such a way that no amount of RP can slap them out of how much of a bad decision that is. If you want to make dumb, poorly thought-out decisions, that's your life to fuck up - but It's not something TRP as a sub endorses.

EDIT - READ THIS SHIT:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2rkz4s/older_players_late_40s50s_up_tell_us_what_you/cnh0tgt

Plugged Back In: A dangerous psychological trap known as monk mode

34 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No. I wrote the original monk mode article. Pussy is the distraction, working on yourself is the goal. The reason you think otherwise is because you have the PUA mindset. That getting girls/laid is central to life, and everything else falls around that. I do not share that philosophy. TRP is not dominated by PUAs and PUA thinking, and it's the PUA types who think in this way. How I see it is like this, and it's simple. I wrote monk mode looking at the long game, if you really want to get laid don't even bother improving anything about yourself, be a lazy fuck, just lift and use tinder. You don't need monk mode. But one day you will wake up at 35 with an average life, and you'll want more. Banging random girls loses its appeal after awhile.

The long game is this: put about 90% of effort into yourself, 10% into women. Don't hunt women down and make it some high-priority, hook up when it's easy. Monk mode isn't about racking up your notch count, it's about being the best version of yourself. 5 years in monk mode and your SMV will be so high that you can have your pick of the women, you won't need to go out "sargin' because bitches everywhere will be coyly biting lips around you. Thriving business, healthy body, built up social circles - women will flock to you. In fact if you do monk mode right you will probably struggle to stay single for 5 years because women will keep making it very obvious they're interested. Gym + tinder is short-sighted PUA game IMO but as far as I'm concerned, women are not the ultimate goal, self-actualisation is. You have your mission, women come along for the ride. You make women your mission, and, ironically, it becomes harder to get them to stick around. You won't care about that while you're young and horny and just fucking everything hot that moves, but when you're thinking about a family and kids one day, you'll struggle with LTR game because you lack certain psychological traits.

If you are a PUA or follow that lifestyle, don't read my shit. I'm not one. I wrote monk mode to help predominantly young men from broken homes find themselves. That's who monk mode is for. I wrote it to help men in their 20's and 30's who have lost their way who are so fucked up that despite wanting pussy it's at the bottom of their list of priorities because they have much more important shit to fix. Like paying the bills. Not being homeless. Learning a marketable skill. Getting productive hobbies. Making friends. Shit like that. Monk mode is guidance for young men and a "sort me out" for older men who have become losers through complacency. Even if you are not a loser, you can use it keep yourself on track. Eyes on the prize and all that shit. If you know how to use monk mode, you will get the most out of it. It seems some people have taken the core tenets of monk mode: "improvement, introspection, isolation" and got all controversial over the isolation part. It's simple. It doesn't mean never speak to another human-being again, it means don't spend the bulk of your time hooking up in clubs and meeting with your friends in Starbucks. If your entire schedule is filled with social appointments and work, you never have time for self-improvement.

If your biggest concern in life is getting laid in the immediate future, you don't need monk mode. Install tinder on your phone, take care of your appearance, go out, get laid. Your faulty assumption is that monk mode was written to help people get laid next week or even next month, it wasn't. Not everything is about getting laid. Monk mode was written to help people actionably increase their SMV. Simple. PUAs annoy the fuck out of me, because they have a "pussy over everything mentality" but I keep a lid on it. I don't go around haranguing PUAs. I'd appreciate similarly if people who have a "pussy over everything mentality" don't tell other people how to live their lives and shame them for taking a different approach. We're all at different stages, think differently and have different outlooks. If I can tolerate the PUA hedonistic short-sighted approach to the game, you should likewise be able to tolerate a more longer-sighted approach.

Sometimes I think this high investment strategy (be the best you can be, women will flock) vs the PUA low investment strategy (look the best you can, pursue lots of women) is a fundamental difference between r-selected and k-selected sexual strategy. More here:

<http://www.koanicsoul.com/blog/a-critique-of-anonymous-conservatives-rk-selection-theory/>

Hot actress says she's not a feminist and it shows.

34 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not a feminist. Has a double-barrel surname.

What the fuck?

Random: her face has got fatter, her hair looks terrible now it's short instead of long. She's successfully married (so will probably get fatter.)

Looks like she hit the jackpot and cashed out the SMP just in time. What's her age? I'm guessing she's 28-32.

Edit: googled, she's 29. My instincts were correct.

How she was:

http://img2.wikia.nocookie.net/__cb20110218143604/prisonbreak/images/thumb/2/28/KaleyCuoco.jpg/500px-KaleyCuoco.jpg

How she is now:

<http://www.theblaze.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/12/Kaley-Cuoco-620x432.png>

Yep, looks like that wall is about to get hitting real damn hard and so Kaley's done with her carousel riding and cashing out on her last vestige of beauty. D'awww! You go girl!

Is Online Dating Destroy Prospects for Average Guys?

34 upvotes · 22 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They don't get that, and being short-sighted hypergamous status whores, they refuse to see it. They hold onto the hope they can get the unattainable guy fucking 'em so that they can likewise hold onto the other delusion that "they deserve only the best!" It's a classic flaw in negative (delusional) narcissism, a psychological category of which most modern women fall under.

That's the problem with women, it's one delusion tying into another that supports the whole sordid thing. You can't unravel one part of her hamster, because if you do, the whole thing would come apart. This will cause her to act fiercely to protect the fantasies she has convinced herself are real. In this way, many a modern woman is rather rationally unreachable due to her deranged nature (which society supports and even fosters.)

The west is toxic for both men and women, just in different, emancipated ways.

How to be more powerful.

34 upvotes · 10 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Money is not the only source of power. It's not even the best kind.

I disagree with a lot of stuff OP says. To jump off your statement here, Machiavelli's opinion is very relevant:

In addressing the question of whether it is better to be loved or feared, Machiavelli writes, "The answer is that one would like to be both the one and the other; but because it is difficult to combine them, it is far safer to be feared than loved if you cannot be both." As Machiavelli asserts, commitments made in peace are not always kept in adversity; however, commitments made in fear are kept out of fear. Yet, a prince must ensure that he is not feared to the point of hatred, which is very possible.

Love and fear are the ultimate forms of power. Saying "love doesn't exist" is bitter bullshit. Is OP saying that every man who sacrificed his life for women and children was experiencing something that didn't exist? No love, like fear, is very real. If you want to believe in it or not is another thing. But if because you are hurt by a previous encounter with love you are going to tell yourself that "love isn't real," by all definition, you are deluded. Simply put, love is very real, but for the naive bluepill young man, it isn't quite what he expects it to be. Denying its existence is no better than thinking it is the very essence of what Disney and their ilk portray. Outside of sexual arousal/Eros, love is an excess of admiration and respect. Wise people know it is folly to be in love (agape with a woman), but that doesn't make it any less real. If everyone knows the power of Eros (physical attractiveness), then they will recognise it as the form of love that women are dependent on to get by in life. Love and its cousin, charisma, are sources of immense power.

I'm 5'6" with small hands and narrow shoulders. I'm 28 and rapidly losing my hair. I don't have money to flaunt. Should I just give up?

34 upvotes · 7 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you wanna kill yourself, it's not our job to convince you that your shitty life is worth living. Is being attractive a fucking boon? Hell yeah it is. Being attractive opens up all kinds of doors and shit, but I'll say this: Women need their looks more than men do, a woman's looks have more power than a man's because it's all men give a fuck about in terms of attraction, prior to family and all that shit. Women are sex objects, and they know it (but deny it) men are success objects and they know it so they constantly seek status to get laid. Men looking good get an easier open, and are allowed to make more mistakes without being penalised so heavily. They also get to feed off the confidence from their good looks which helps with their game, but that's where the disparity ends, it's not as ruthless within men as it is within women over in girl world.

Ugly people get too caught up on the fact they're not attractive. Not everyone can have perfect facial symmetry or good skin or get gains easily or be tall or whatever. If you spend your entire life comparing yourself to people better than you, you're going to feel shitty. Compare current you, to previous you, that's the benchmark. The reason you should be goal driven is so when you're sat there in a year comparing sept 2015 you to sept 2014 you you say to yourself "yeah fuck that guy, I've come some way now. I hated being that guy, but I respect what being that guy inspired me to become." Should a fucking paralysed guy who manages to walk give up because hey, everybody else can walk no problem? Because walking is normal and his achievement doesn't mean shit in light of that? No. It's not about what the fuck you are, or where the fuck you're at, it's about where the fuck you started and how far you fucking came. The journey is fucking everything. Killing yourself is like saying "hey guys, guess what, fuck the journey I'm done because I didn't start out with a great hand!"

People who are blessed don't appreciate shit, their privilege is invisible to them because by merit of being unearned it's normal to them. Your jealousy of people superior to you doesn't help you in any shape or form, it just makes you want to give up and that's why you're a loser and thinking like a loser.

I mean shit, my genetics blessed me at 6'2 but I'm paler than the fucking vampire out of twilight and I have incurable dermatitis that randomly flares the fuck up - ON MY FACE that uses the pale canvas and makes it look like friction caused by columbians ass raping a goat. Do you know what that shit does to a guys confidence? When it's not there I have a sexy motherfucking face, good symmetry and skin that doesn't look like it's being demolished, and then that crap comes along for 3 weeks and makes me look like some kind of walking abomination.

Like you can never be as tall as me and you can only wear shoes that make you slightly taller, only putting a dent in the problem, I can never have normal skin like yours that does not fuck up and go to shit. Some lucky guy out there is tall and has perfect skin and has one up on both of us. Fuck that cunt he's lucky and he worked for neither. I've read message boards with people who have the same dermatitis I do but in much worse severity than I, and it makes them look ugly as sin. We're talking pustules, we're talking redness to the point of bleeding and oozing puss and all kinds of shit. They hate themselves. They hate leaving the house. They want to kill themselves. They have no confidence. They look in the mirror and they see an ugly fucking loser staring right back at them and they feel powerless to do anything about it. To outsiders it's "just a fucking skin condition, yeah you look ugly, but get over it it's not the end of the world" to them, inside, in their psychology, it is fucking crushing their confidence and self-worth because they look like shit, because they want to look their best but their best is so damn low due to a medical condition that its beneath even "acceptable."

Anybody who kills themselves without experiencing cocaine (can't be the cheap shit - top of the line), a proper relationship, and getting laid first is seriously missing out. And as for the sex I mean proper sex with a chick you really like, not some cum dumpster you're fucking behind a night club drunk. Drunk sex is the fucking worst, it doesn't compare to relationship sex, bitches in relationships learn what you like and you "learn each others bodies" as corny as fuck as that sounds. Have a bucket list. It may convince you life worth's living, it may not, but I seriously doubt you've experienced everything life has to offer, your shitty thoughts come from an ignorance of what's available to you with a bit of work, and if that's worth working for or not.

Famous feminist amasses unreasonable amount of credit card debt and her beta bux husband comes to save her

34 upvotes · 27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nobody wants to believe a woman with a fairly respectable job such as hers can be THAT pathetic, but unfortunately, a great deal many of them are.

I love how she gets paid to moan about her problems as she passively justifies to the sisterhood her transgression of feminism, and then calls that "an article". What does the reader learn from that? What value does that piece bring? Are there any profound insights or useful methodologies discussed? No. It's vapid empty nonsense. IMO, us manospherians write to a far higher standard than any of the usual trite these woman's publications churn out. I mean shit, if I was running a publication business I'd have to be high as a fucking kite to hire somebody as talentless and immature as that.

Being controlling is for losers!

34 upvotes · 17 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate feminism because it creates distrust between the genders and serves as a form of gender apartheid, the laws it enacts and attitudes it provokes are wholly misandrist too. It is rare to meet a balanced feminist (like Christina Hoff Summers) they tend to be fucking lunatics, like that red haired bitch with the thick specs screaming at MRAs on youtube. Feminism has become about female superiority, not gender equality, and I do not believe either thing works. Women should be treated fairly but they're not cut out for leadership, men should lead but women should get a fair say (captain/first mate dynamic.)

Most people who call themselves feminists nowadays are man haters or effeminate men who have been taught to see masculinity as this one-dimensional type of primitive neanderthal violence and thus have let the pendulum swing entirely the other way in their head. Effeminate men take on female mannerisms and identify with the feminine, rather than being true to their Y chromosome, they're effectively men brainwashed to act like women. Feminism is a sick movement that has to perpetuate a victim narrative in order to validate its own existence, feminism has become so twisted and corrupt it has to make shit up in order to keep the pay cheques coming in (broadening the definition of rape and focusing on an issue that affects the tiniest proportion of women as if it's actually an everyday occurrence seems to have been their most major attempt at trying to remain relevant.)

My favourite feminists are post feminists, they're the only feminists who realise feminism is fucking irrelevant in 2014. Continued feminism when it is no longer necessary is merely a cartel/institutionalised gynocracy which ensures the feminine viewpoint is the dominant social narrative whilst the masculine condition and viewpoint is vilified at worst, whilst ignored and deemed irrelevant at best (a far cry from anything posing as equality or egalitarianism.)

Being a woman and being a feminist aren't the same thing, I like some women and I hate most feminists. Most people here do not like feminists and as much as people say "in a strange kind of way we're pro-feminist" I'd say we're not pro-feminist at all, we're "pro-do-what-the-fuck-you-want" but we're not supporting the women's studies majors who continue to spit vitriol and assert their place as the #1 victim narrative in the victim olympics. Something that makes up so much imaginary oppression whilst doing a bait and switch to the make the largest most privileged class of human beings in human history will receive my contempt at worst, and my utter indifference at best. Fuck feminism, it is abhorrent. Looks great on paper, in practice it destabilises nations.

What is Alpha: A long post explaining the flawed mindset many of you have

34 upvotes · 8 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You do not want to look like you're trying. It makes you look beta.

Make your accomplishments seem effortless.

<http://48laws-of-power.blogspot.com/2011/05/law-30-make-your-accomplishments-seem.html>

Always comes back to the 48 laws.

A thanks to the Reddit admins.

34 upvotes · 30 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I told her to look through my post history but she refused to believe me.

Well you see this is because like the vast majority of women feminists are ruled by emotion (including the female-like indoctrinated manginas), taking logic on board would deprive her the joy of being self-righteous, indignant and self-deceivingly morally superior, your typical woman never cuts off her own emotional supply like that and even the outliers are not fond of doing it either. That's why when the evidence is there they will go "NO!" invalid citation! I'm not going to look! Anecdotal evidence! Fabrication! Or basically some form of "blasphemy!" They're like little fucking kids in many ways. Most responsible teenager in the house sounds about right. Lack of reasoning + lack of accountability = childlike. Any women who can transcend that level of bullshit? Kudos to her. It's rare, but when women show accountability and logic they get MORE RESPECT from men than men do for the same thing, it's expected from men, when a woman does it everyone's like "WOW." The inverse, men are punished more for being emotional/infantile, women aren't. Our expectations are in line with reality, even in BP world a logical thoughtful, fair woman is seen as "WOW, GUYS, A UNICORN!" whilst a man doing the same thing is "a respectable man" without any of the awe.

This is in /r/askreddit right now. Jesus fucking christ.

34 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is ridiculously fucking common it's not even funny. Me and my bro were talking about how women lack hobbies the other day. They have a tendency to take on the hobbies of the guy they attach to and have little of their own hobbies. I've known of exceptions to this, but it is exceedingly rare that a woman forms her own identity and a set of hobbies independent of following the crowd of what's in with her girlfriends eg: Kardashians or some BS, or tagging along on her man's hobbies (unless it's something like fishing, bitches hate fishing.)

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

34 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I pmed him.

Actually, AWALT.

34 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I know man, I know. You're not perfect, you're human - but bitches don't care they are relentless.

If she doesn't appreciate you just start withdrawing the things you do for her. When she starts thinking favours are obligations/entitlements and takes you for granted that's when you need to remind the bitch (with your actions, not your words) just what you bring.

Dominate her in bed, act aloof and stop doing things she takes for granted. Start mentioning other chicks/drop hints/go out get a picture taken with another girl (preferably hot) and let her see that girl. Say "oh she's just a friend"... play that fucking dread game... watch that appreciation just start to accrue.

Good luck bro.

Got asked a question, figured the class can learn from it.

34 upvotes · 25 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Heed this shit, it's golden.

My Interview with Dylan Love of Business Insider

34 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

We just hit 16k subscribers so thank you very much for the additional push Dylan. Also, get an off server forum ready. More numbers = more hate from scooby and the gang.

Chinese gf's list of requirements

33 upvotes · 23 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"Man is not bad, woman does not love"

Is this some atrociously inadequate way of saying women only love assholes?

Chinese when translated literally is always hilarious.

If she doesn't worship the ground you walk on and consistently bring value to your life SHE IS COMPLETELY UNWORTHY of a relationship. The thing you gotta realise about women: It doesn't matter how unworthy of your commitment they are, they'll still try HUSTLE & STRONG ARM YOU INTO IT!

33 upvotes · 16 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

In the best case scenario

I don't deal in ideal scenarios, I deal in probable scenarios.

women give a man companionship

So do friends and pets.

support both physical

So she'll fuck you, covered that in OP.

and mental

A woman's support is limited, you are the rock in the storm, if you fall too far she's gone. A woman's mental support is laughable, seriously. Most women freak the fuck out when their guy stops being a rock. I think you still have a romantic unrealistic view of women. Watch how quickly her capacity to cope with you having fallen off the horse erodes. This is a seriously rare quality in a woman that you're implying is typical.

their femininity.

I think that's just summing up all the stuff you said previously with a nice rhetorical bow, doesn't need its own counterpoint.

I'm not against relationships, I'm against relationships with unworthy basic bitches who comprise the majority of the female population. If you find a personable bitch, assess risk and do your thing. Still can't in good conscience recommend marriage or living together but eh, idealists will do what they will do and only learn once burned.

TRP Office: The King Is Dead, Long Live the Hamster

33 upvotes · 29 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's a more complex way of saying "sour grapes."

This is what happens when immature women lose a person who was an asset. They burn that person's reputation to the ground, burn all the bridges, and ultimately, in their Machiavellian pettiness, end up harming not just themselves, but whoever they're responsible for.

Give a woman a match and she'll find enough gasoline to burn down a skyscraper.

Ignore the "other guys" shit test

33 upvotes · 8 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She tries to make you jealous so that your jealousy shows you care. You caring = validation for her.

Women are insecure fucks who don't speak their mind directly, so they do bullshit like that instead.

The Uncanny Valley Between Alpha And Beta Males

33 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The PUA is a sheep in wolf's clothing. TRP teaches you to become a wolf.

Although TRP is apolitical it definitely changes your personal political leanings.

33 upvotes · 13 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Kind of like how Obama won for being black. Although he's not black, he's half-white (technically: a mulatto,) which is black enough for blacks, apparently. When will Americans start voting based on policies rather than fucking appearance/genetics? Good god. Here in the UK people want to vote in Boris Johnson for London mayor simply because he says the most ridiculous shit you've heard. "Oh he's soooo funny!!!" Hey guess what you dumb fucking brits, we're looking at the role of mayor NOT STAND UP COMIC. This is why democracy is complete bullshit, honestly, giving everyone the vote when the majority are retarded is a bad idea.

Went out on a tinder date tonight. Bailed halfway through the first drink.

33 upvotes · 14 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So right when you leave, take a timestamped pic of yourself getting in your car alone. Another one when you get home, alone.

The lengths men are expected to go to TO PROVE INNOCENCE because our legal system has regressed to the fucking 3rd century is ridiculous. Innocent until proven guilty? Not when snowflakes are involved!

Not just sexual strategy is amoral, everything is. Why? Because life has no feelings, no conscience or consciousness and gives no fucks about shit. That doesn't mean disregarding morality as a whole is a wise or even balanced thing to do.

33 upvotes · 29 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This assumes I am against the mods. I am not. I have a great relationship with the mods. I am simply building upon their view, not contesting it. My view is perfectly in line with the mods, read paragraph 6. You have misinterpreted my post, but I did not expect it to be easily comprehended or become a top subreddit post. I expect it to piss a few people off. I also expect some people to totally misunderstand me. I also expect some blue pillers to say I'm on crack and maybe seeing the light (too bad guys, I'm still an asshole despite my lucidity.) I also expect some people to try and attack my psyche in the comments. I expect a lot of mental violence and misconception. I am simply ranting. If some people find some value in this and gain some elucidation, then cool. That's ultimately the purpose of the thread, not a challenge of the status quo. The mods do a great job here and I support them 100%, this was written for educational purposes, not out of discontent.

Understanding How a Dark Triad Psychopath Operates

33 upvotes · 2 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Quite right. Stoicism > psychopathy.

How society rewards beta body language. Fix a lifetime of smiling and talking too much

33 upvotes · 28 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

- Say less than necessary.
- Smirk, don't smile. (I shouldn't be able to see your teeth.)
- Sit up straight, don't slouch.
- When standing, don't lean against things, stand tall, chest puffed out, arms back.
- Don't look away first once eye contact has been established. Especially with women. If it becomes a competition, have fun with it, try to throw them off with a smirk or some shit.
- If you WANT TO look away first because you don't like what you're looking at, no rapid jerky head movements, slowly move your glance away as if they were momentarily caught up in your visual sweep. The worst thing is sharing a glance with someone you had no intention of sharing one with who holds no desirability to you whatsoever (eg: a beggar, who FYI, stares at you until you feel eyes on you so that he can then catch you in an eye lock straight away and pressure you by using that to immediately ask you for free shit - annoying as fuck.)
- Breathe deeper for a deeper voice. Higher pitch voice sounds gay and looks hilarious on a built guy. I've seen/heard the jacked guy high voice combo and it very uncomfortably juxtaposes physical masculinity with a feminine sounding voice.
- If you can grow it, keep shaved stubble. 5 o'clock shadow baby.

Men of All Ages Want Women in Their Mid-20s, Study Says

33 upvotes · 27 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You've got to be shitting me. I thought 40+ strong and independent career women with a cat fetish and a sex in the city complex were where the fun is at.

"Do it for yourself": the pervasive hamster [Reminder post; /u/redpillschool]

33 upvotes · 14 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm gonna rant the opposite of OPs preaching because hey that makes shit more interesting. Not to the guys that undervalue the importance of pussy, but to the guys that overvalue the importance of pussy. I mean if we're gonna shit on one camp, fuck it, we may as well shit on the delusion of the other camp whilst we're at it because you're not towing a happy medium. All delusion-based lifestyle choice should be criticised. This is all devils advocate shit, no shots fired at OP because he has a great point, I want to use his topic as a springboard to present a critique of the opposing delusion however. The fixation with pussy like nothing else matters.

Yeah you do it for yourself. You do it for yourself in as much as that YOU want to influence OTHERS to BETTER YOUR life.

If you can fuck bitches, you get an ego boost the way a bitch gets an ego boost from attention.

See the problem with words is I or somebody else says ONE thing and you READ it as meaning another. This is why I have a knack for typing really long posts and trying to be as specific as possible. Because people have a predilection to misunderstand what you mean by interpreting even the most remote ambiguity in your sentiment as meaning something other than you intended and redefining it in their heads to mean what they personally think it meant. So say I say "do it for yourself" someone else takes that to mean "pussy ain't important/you don't need pussy" which isn't what (I personally, would mean) by saying "do it for yourself" but what I meant is "prioritise yourself before you prioritise pussy." You need to build a ship to catch fish you don't fucking go oh hey. I need a fish! Better go fucking dive in that ocean now without my ship built! And what about when you got a huge fucking ship full of fish? Do you need any more fish do you give a fuck about any more fish? If you do? Why? You got loads of fish and a big ass ship so why you so obsessed with the ocean?

I'd say TRP is very "me-centric" it's not all about getting pussy. Pussy is one huge motivator/outcome and unless you're asexual or gay you're lying about not giving a fuck about it. But tbh I don't know what's worse, the guy who gets the bulk of his identity from chatting up girls and getting laid (SINKS serious hours into hooking up) or the guy who insists he never needs to get laid/get female validation. Both are two extremes of one spectrum. You've got yourself the PUA whose mind is overpopulated with thoughts of sex and women, and another guy acting like he doesn't need it at all. Like anything, balance is the key. Someone with a science book comes along and says "yes, but, IllimitableMan, the only reason we exist is to pass our genes on" but that doesn't mean every single thing you do has to be with the sole objective and intention of getting yourself some pussy. Some guys are damaged they're taking themselves out of the race. Most MGTOWs are damaged to the point of throwing in the towel, that's their choice. You don't know the shit they've been through so don't judge 'em, unless they want a second opinion they're making the choice they think is best for their lives. Good on them. Better than being in a dead bedroom useless as fuck marriage. I bet the average MGTOW with even a bit of finance is getting more pussy than your average husband.

People earn money because they want to be comfortable and not suffer. People earn money because they want the power to control others (and yes, sex is a part of that realm of control, but not all of it.) When I get up in the morning and do my morning workout I'm not all giddy thinking (yes, now I've got a better chances with the ladies!) (CRINGE) I do it because it makes me feel good and helps push me through my day and get my shit done.

You can ultimately argue that everything comes down to sex, and if you go far enough down the route of reason you'll find that is correct from a scientific standpoint, but consciously, spiritually in your day-to-day when you're going about your shit, you're not thinking about sex non-stop like that bullshit stereotype about men thinking of sex every X number of seconds suggests. SURE there is a passive benefit of being more attractive to women both in attitude and looks.. but if you think the only reason I'm working out is for the benefit of women out there.. you're crazy. It is ONE REASON. For some guys it is THE MAIN reason. For me personally, it isn't. Self-respect is important, before anything else. If you can't respect your own body how can you respect others to respect it? Guys who were always energetic who then started lifting for lays can't imagine a guy who lifts simply because lifting has helped to stop him from being a lazy lethargic layabout. There are so many benefits to lifting that it's pretty fucking disingenuous to say "guys only lift for pussy" and I get tired of hearing this kind of bullshit. I mean if you get your ass out of your own little world and go talk to other men and hear their problems and worries and shit sex is something they want but a lot of them have a ton of crap to overcome before that and that's what their main priority is in dealing with. Their anxiety. Their poverty. Blah blah blah. This is what I'm talking about when I say build your ship before you go catch fish, or even place too many fucks on fishing. If pussy is your biggest priority/problem in your life, you're in a privileged position, you have it good. Because nothing shittier is happening in your life you can preoccupy it with the leisure activity that is fishing. Every man wants to get laid but not every man is making it the main focus of his life. And to be honest, who the fuck is anyone here to condemn a man who decides "you know what? right now pussy ain't what I need most. later."

Pussy is like call of duty. Overhyped to fuck. The less you have the more you want. Then you get it and you want it and you keep wanting it. Eventually you fuck so much pussy you don't give a fuck about pussy so much anyway. Maybe scientifically this can be explained as your body believing your genes have been successfully passed on and so your fixation with sex is diminished, I don't really know, but there is definitely a "post-pussy wipeout." Virgins can't stop thinking about it, guys with a huge notch count are like "yeah, whatever, it's just pussy."

You know if you get deep with any idea you can say people ONLY do X because of Y. Yeah humans wanna reproduce but we have to prioritise. I don't think a lot of guys on here are even in the position where chasing pussy is optimum for them. They should be doing shit for themselves (which passively makes pussy getting easier) rather than going out and chasing pussy like OMG MY GENETICS. MUST PASS ON. EVERYTHINGS GONNA REVOLVE AROUND GETTING LAYS. BETTER CULTIVATE MYSELF UNTIL PHONE IS BLOWING UP WITH TEXTS FROM PLATES SO I CAN REPLY 3 HOURS LATER USING A HEARTISTE TEMPLATE. There's fucking more to life than that. I derive pleasures from a lot of non-pussy related shit. You can argue all intellectual pursuits come back to trying to impress a mate. But does a bitch understand Schopenhauer or politics or any other crap I find interesting and fuck me because of it? Nah. In fact being too smart damages your attractiveness. We all do shit we like that damages our attractiveness because fuck it, we wanna do it, it's not all about women.

Technically if you've fucked even 1 chick, even with contraception, your body thinks you've passed your genes on. Fucked 30 girls? Your body thinks you have 30 kids out there somewhere. Fucked 2 chicks? Well done, father of two. I can understand the virgin fixation from a biological point of view (OMG MY GENES!) but once you've bust raw in a bitch that biological argument fails. You're just scratching an itch and getting off because it feels good. It feels good because you need the motivation to reproduce and you can't get rid of it, but you can enjoy that feel good without actually having to reproduce, or even fuck bitches (porn/fapping) for example.

You get my drift. PUAs and MGTOWs are the opposite sides of one continuum. Some guys admire women more than others, they're all about the flirting and the beauty and basically.. these guys are the casanovas/lotharios they REALLY LOVE women and as a result a lot of their identity, more so than most mens is placed on women and how women interact with them and how they feel about the women in their life and blah de fucking blah. They're addicted to the game that takes place before sex happens. They're women-centric. Personally I give minimal fucks about women and appreciating them and all that jazz, I think it's romantic bullshit, I'm more interested in philosophy, reading shit from men smarter than me, getting paid and blah blah blah. We've got all different priorities and feelings about women. Some men are a lot more obsessive about women than others. Yes I have a high libido but that doesn't mean I'm gonna be all women-centric about shit. Pump/dump repeat. Rub one out if getting pussy is too much hassle. Whatever. If you're like me, you don't even like most women. You find them fucking annoying. You tolerate them enough to fuck them and then you ditch them because you don't give two cunts about their femininity and the dumb cute shit they say or any of that other crap which tugs on the heartstrings of a playboy who lives for the thrill of securing the lay more than any other shit. Those guys get called sex addicts, I just think they're adrenaline junkies addicted to the tingles a guy gets before he lays a chick. Addicted to the hunt and living for the hunt.

What are you doing to increase in your SMV?

33 upvotes · 3 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

- I try to keep my T as high as possible without taking drugs (steroids.) I lift weights a minimum of four times a week, I eat a lot of broccoli (estrogen blocker, great for your skin, tasty cruciferous vegetable) and I always finish off my post workout shower by making it cold for a minute (or as long as I can handle it) before stepping out of the shower. There's a point to that, ~~cold showers are scientifically proven to raise T. Google it if you care about studies and shit.~~
- I read a lot of philosophy books (Schopenhauer, Plato/Socrates and Machiavelli at the moment, will read Nietzsche later on.) I also read general self improvement shit, Robert Greene books and two manosphere books: Body of a Spartan by Victor Pride and The Rational Male by Rollo Tomassi.
- I listen to the beige phillip podcast in the background whilst I'm travelling or doing some other shit so I can take a bit of TRP with me wherever I go. I live and breathe this shit and it's made me a happier/better person. I've been told the joe rogan show is a good podcast, as well as one called the Art of Charm (only listened to one episode) If anyone has any recommendations, then please, recommend.
- Started taking my blog seriously, I want to give back to the place that helped me so much (I've been here 16 months.) I already do that in the form of comments, but they get buried in the depths of reddit and then archived and may never see the light of day again so a lot of guys who could benefit from that information miss out. I fathomed it's better to create a blog to facilitate a more permanent public record of my insights, in order to best give them the exposure they need by helping as many people as possible.
- I want to learn another language, take up piano and start a martial art and I will do those things, but right now I've got other shit to deal with before freeing up time for leisure exercises such as that. I guess this one is one "I'm going to do" rather than one I'm "currently doing."
- I enforce my boundaries with people, I don't let people fuck with me. I can shit test, call a bluff, etc.
- I listen to a lot of stand up comedy. I'm naturally a witty guy, but I don't get to see my friends enough and banter with them so listening to stand-up helps keep my witty spirit alive and remain sharp. This, along with exercise and good music (whatever gives you a boost when you listen to it) are a great way to keep your spirits up if you ever feel down, unmotivated and etc.

Edit: crossed some shit out.

Think men are the unfaithful sex? A study shows WOMEN are the biggest cheats - they're just better at lying (read: hamstering) about it

33 upvotes · 22 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Makes one wonder doesn't it? I think woman's ease of infidelity is part of the reason they are so incredibly afraid of abandonment, that and the awareness their power is in their beauty and that said beauty is in a constant state of depreciation. With some chicks you can throw in daddy issues as well. It's an ironic projection of the fact that when deemed optimal and necessary (aka upgrading via hypergamy - hypergrading!) that she will abandon you with no fucks given in spite of the temerity of her vocalised "loyalty" to swing to higher branches up the hierarchical totem pole, and should she fall from grace (or simply the man she upgrades to kicks her back down) she'll try to win you back, convincing herself and you that she was just confused and she shouldn't have left and blah blah fucking bullshit. If you ever get spun this line by the way, no matter how convincing her diatribe, do not be swayed, do not indignify yourself to the ploy of such deception. And because part of her knows she possesses these qualities, this kind of "fluid loyalty" that can only be described accurately as fickleness, she projects that fear onto men thinking they're the same.

The problem with women and their lies is they're good at believing their own lies IN THE MOMENT and feigning the indignation of someone who is telling the truth when you disbelieve them. The rationalisation hamster works against women, but likewise it works for them too. Women are good at believing their own bullshit so they can have AF/BB or attach themselves to you until something better comes along. It's not so much psychopathy as it is wilful delusion used to manipulate "the self" effectively and thus by extension, those around her who enquire about her "self."

Women inwardly project what they find attractive in men as traits that men should find attractive in them (career/education/status) so it's not a long shot to think the same kind of projection applies to things like infidelity. I think a lot of what women think about men is a projection of what they're really like themselves.

Case in point, I'm highly Machiavellian, so I tend to always be on the lookout for Machiavellian tendencies in others, sometimes I may suspect something where there is nothing to be suspected, over-analysis but unlike a woman who is impulsive and emotional enough to act on that suspicion, I simply hold it in my psychological hand as a potential possibility of being fucked over (and if it comes to fruition without me being able to stop it prior there's minimal impact to my psyche because I was aware of the possibility.) I think women do the same kind of shit with their romantic relationships although they act on their suspicions by making accusations rather than keeping their suspicion to themselves. Women are very quick to reveal their hand via projection, thinking the projection will serve as a shield from their own illicit activity by serving as an act of misdirection. Such simple misdirection will fool the majority who know no better, but to people adept in psychology/Machiavellianism the facade will be seen for what it is: bullshit misdirection delivered via projection.

Baseless accusations of cheating = she's cheating, baseless accusations of not caring about the relationship = she doesn't care any more, women who accuse you of "being a player" probably want to ride the cock carousel because they want to fuck players at an incredible rate etc.

The only way to ensure a woman's loyalty is to make her dependent on you whilst limiting her options. It sounds cold, it sounds cruel, it's a distasteful notion wholly, but likewise it is reality. If she can do better she won't stick around.

Watching TV and noticed something.

33 upvotes · 20 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That specimen on the right is what happens when a woman becomes barren of male sexual attention her entire life, she is miserable, cold, vindictive and most of all, jealous. You know that if you happened to live as a pretty woman, blaming you for all her lack of attention, such a woman would never hire you, she'd hate your guts. You could be the nicest kindest person in the world to her and she'd still find a reason to hate you. The bitterness runs deep.

46-year-old mother of three wants a rich, tall man with a nice build.

33 upvotes · 23 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Psychoanalysis:

i am a country girl and will not change that for anyone

Someone tried to change her in the past, she changed for them (women are a reflection of the man they're fucking) he left her, she felt lost/lonely/traumatised. Abandonment issues.

i also have a son so if you do not like kids i am not for you

She feels shame, shame the son doesn't have a father to raise him (she's partly looking for a replacement father not just a replacement partner) and she's ashamed/heartbroken that her son turns so many men away who would otherwise show interest.

i am tired of men that say they want something serious to try and get in a womans pants

Men just use her, no guy finds her relationship worthy, says a lot about her as a person, when a lot of men do not want to commit to a woman, there is something wrong with that woman's personality. She is fuckable to men, but not likeable (likeable enough to commit.)

if you are going to ask me a million questions about my ex's you are not goin to get the answers if i wanted you yo know i would make a book for the whole world to know

She thinks her past is fucked up enough to warrant writing a book on the subject, but she doesn't think the natural curiosity/screening men will do when STILL CONSIDERING a woman after finding out she already has a kid warrants explanation or validation, she is ashamed of her past and wants to hide it. She thinks revealing this information to a man will scare him away but takes a "mightier than thou" approach to not divulging such information.

i am 5 ft 4 green eyes brown hair and weigh about 200

200lbs at 5 ft 4 AND female (smaller bones, high body fat %) is obese/morbidly obese. I weigh that as a 6'2 man, more muscle, lower body fat, longer/thicker bones and guess what, not obese. She's let herself go.

i am lookin for someone that does not want to hide behind the phone

I am looking for a man who "will man up" and take on the responsibility of caring for me and my ex's child.

IF YOU ARE LOOKIN FOR SOMETHING NOT SERIOUSE DO NOT WASTE MY TIME

You have to go all in straightaway, she's not willing to let you take your time on deciding whether she's worth the hassle or not, other guys have deduced she's only worth a fuck so she wants commitment and other assurances of security, including monetary, upfront.

In general she has poor literacy and spelling, she's a walking health hazard (a morbidly obese female) and she was a single mother at the age of 22, factoring in all these elements suggests a low education level and poor socioeconomic background, other than sex she has little to offer any man, and even that's debatable when she's 200lbs at 5'4.

Conclusion: Any guy with sense will avoid the fuck out of this one, porn is healthier than this walking train wreck.

She is not your shoulder to cry on - UPDATE: I slipped up

33 upvotes · 19 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can't show weakness if you do, she will lose her shit. Women are insecure as it is, that's what all the shit testing is about - assuring herself she has a strong male, it's part of the entire reason women are so difficult. Don't swallow the equality bullshit, she can show her insecurities and you won't think any less of her, if you let her in on your insecurities she'll think you're a bitch, it'll be nothing but a downward spiral from then on. Remember, as a man, there is nobody higher than yourself to turn to. Children have their parents to lean on, women have men to lean on, men have nobody to lean on (probably why in part so many men off themselves.) Just try leaning on your woman, the temptation is there, they'll even tell you they'll want you to do it (fucked up as that is) go on do it, even if she's a good woman and she loves you and helps you (many won't even do that) she'll respect you a lot less as she's "doing your job" and "all the pressure is on her", most women want to be taken care of, they don't want to do the caring unless you're their kid. This is why stoicism wins EVERY TIME, opening up is the worst thing you can do. If she's not your mother, don't do it.

Remember, support and responsibility is linear, it goes in one direction:

Men --> Women --> Children

Lifes unfair we get nobody to lean on, buckle up and deal with it, as a man you're the end of the line.... unless you believe in a god, and shit, with that kind of burden on your shoulders, I can understand why so many men are religious, it's nice to think there's someone else to take care of shit for you and that it isn't all on you, but in reality, it is. Being a man is tough, its tougher than being a kid and its tougher than being a woman, a lot is expected of you, that's why so many of us fail "to step up to the plate" especially those with a less than favourable start in life. You sink or swim.

The tide is turning? PSA shows off double standard on domestic violence.

33 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

White knights like that need a slap for perpetuating the double standard. Either everyone gets hit or nobody gets hit, saying women are special and shouldn't be hit whilst its ok to hit a man is hypocritical bullshit.

Self-Respect and Crazy Bitches

33 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I robbed her of plausible deniability with the rejection so rather than fess up she was trying to retain it by playing "the guessing game" and getting me to qualify/explain my reaction to her actions, she wanted me to explain to her what she did wrong so she could manipulate me and tell me it was all in my head. I know the game, it's what crazy bitches do, they try to gaslight you and make you think you're unreasonable for reacting badly to their unreasonableness, when anything but a bad reaction to unreasonable behaviour would be unreasonable. If someone fucks with you and you don't care they're violating you, that's not reasonable. To them it's not their fault they did what they did they so they won't focus on that, they will focus on your reaction to what they did and then try to make you feel guilty for it. I know the game I've had it before and that kind of shit really fucks with guys, those mental gymnastics aren't worth the lay, steer clear.

Every woman wants a lion & when she gets a lion, she turns him into a pussycat, at which point she looks for another lion

33 upvotes · 18 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Are those a part of shit tests?

Yeah.

To be crude and for a lack of better language women are what I'd consider perpetually biologically insecure. You keep testing men because on a primal level you're obsessed with feeling safe and you're testing him to see if he can still make you "feel safe", you wear him down and may make him a shell of his former self, but it's not out of malice, merely insecurity and a need to feel protected, out of need to "just make sure" that he's still the shit. As soon as he can no longer give you that safe feeling because your tests wore him down too much, you leave him and find a guy who can make you feel safe. You then rewrite history in your memory to say he was always a pussy and he failed in his duties to you and paint him as the bad guy so that it makes it easier for you to branch swing to the next guy without feeling bad about it or feeling any personal responsibility for it. You have to demonise him and paint yourself as the victim to allow yourself to carry on without hating yourself. As far you're concerned, it's his fault you cheated or that you lost interest, even if he did everything for you. It's always his fault. You want a man you can't change, you hate him because of what you made him.

Men aren't allowed to fall in love like women are, we can never "just love a bitch" love and emotional indulgence are reserved for the realm of women, it is their ultimate privilege and most of them are completely oblivious to the fact, if we are to indulge in the same emotions and let them grow to the intensity that women do, we will ultimately lose the girl and become unattractive to her. If a woman falls in love with you and lets her feelings go and loses a part of who she is to that, then it's fine, the relationship won't fall apart, the man won't lose attraction to her, in fact he may love her more for loving who he is, it is the ultimate form of endearment, of appreciation, all men long to feel appreciated by their significant other. If a man falls in love to the extent he becomes weak or "beta" it's game over. Women want you to fall in love with them, but not so much that you don't make them feel safe anymore. So they want to be loved, but by falling in love and allowing that to change who you are as a man you no longer remain attractive. The irrational thing about this is you cannot properly love a woman and let them all the way into your being without that love making you vulnerable. Women want that vulnerability whilst simultaneously, feel contempt for that vulnerability when it is so prominent it translates into weakness.

Women are fucked up.

EDIT:

Made an article out of this post.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/04/18/she-will-try-to-make-you-weak/>

Thanks for the gold!

Beware of the deadly "you seem so mysterious" shit test

33 upvotes · 26 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Agree and amplify.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

33 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy crap on the mother fucking crapper this woman's tenacity is fucking ludicrous!

"You never gave polyamory a chance."

Shifts responsibility from him to her, note the indifference in the assertion.

Her response was to say I let her down

She needs him to be the bad guy, she's ready to divorce but it has to seem like it's his fault. Thus it can be rationalised that it's fault they're breaking up as he let her down. She is a woman, her logic is faulty enough that she can sincerely believe he did in actual fact let her down, despite all her own transgressions. What matters to her is coming out of the divorce looking like an angel so her social networks don't abandon her, not the actual divorce itself. She knows she'll get everything anyway.

She asked me to find somewhere else to sleep tonight.

The irony, it's not like she was fucking two other guys and ignoring his sexual desires anyway, was it?

She also said the dialog sample I provided was one sided, and she had plans with her lover for a whole week.

Not acceptable, this is in actual fact, worse. If she's spending "a whole week" with another lover it sounds like she's getting ready to move on, that's more than just fucking, that's the guy she wants to have her life with now.

She says she told me and I should have remembered.

But that's OK, you know, abandoning your husband for a week to be with your love is completely OK. Why? Because honesty! The reason it's a problem is because he didn't remember her telling him that, not the actual fact she's fucking well doing that! Oh my fucking lord. What a hoop jumping mental gymnastic olympian she is, fuck me sideways.

She says my asking for sex that night was just a ploy to get her to break her planned evening with her lover. She says it was selfish of me.

This shows she prioritises her lover over her husband, she has been selfish by denying her husband's sexual needs by fulfilling her own needs with another man whilst showing his disregards, their needs are not being equally met and she hasn't helped him pick up women either. She projects her own sense of selfishness onto her man, saying he is the selfish party. She is attacking him because he is suspicious of her intentions, her attack is another red flag, rather than open up she's closing up and becoming more manipulative, she's using guilt/shaming as a tool here to make him feel bad so she can seize power and continue to do what she wants, have the best of both - him as the beta bucks and the other guy as the alpha fucks.

The irony here is that she calls him selfish when she has demonstrated the tenacity of her own selfishness for an extended period of time. This is a form of gaslighting, making you believe you're the guilty party when the other party is the one committing the moral wrongs. She normalises her behaviour and disregards criticism of it, whilst undermining his criticism of her behaviour as unfounded and using that as a foot in the door to attack his credibility and control him. This is what women do when they're fucking with you (not in the way you like, in the head) and they're very good at it, it's machiavellian as fuck but they pull it off so effortlessly and seem like they believe so much in what they're saying that they can convince a rational man to believe in irrational things through sheer manipulation.

She says she doesn't remember leaving me to meet FWB after the massage.

Even her own moral compass realises how fucked up that was, so she just flat out denies it to retain her veneer of credibility. I smell bullshit. She knows. Notice how she doesn't say "it never happened!" she says "she didn't remember" if something upsets you, you would be outraged. If you're not upset but want to seem like you are because someone's opinion carries weight with you, you at least feign your upset, especially if you're subject to the emotivity of a female set of hormones. Again, she shows total indifference here and tries to be slippery rather than give assurances. She has already checked out, she's not even bothering to try and convince the guy on an emotional level, she's just fucking with him by negging him and normalising her "all you can eat buffet of sex and money."

I'll look into divorce on Monday.

Liquidate your assets and hide them!

"Fiancee leaves me to fuck other guys for 4 years, now wants to get back together. Should I take her back?" Comments are a mixed bag.

33 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TRPs intention is to help you become a better man, fuck what the haters say about this place. We help men become better. It's helped me too.

Fuck therapy, people need TRP.

Feminists already scared of the mere concept of "sex robots"

33 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't know why they're scared as most feminist activists are either old, fat, ugly or a culmination of all three. They're basically on a spectrum of "women who men find physically repulsive"

So business as usual, that old cobweb ridden pussy isn't getting any love and tiddles is meowing for his evening snack.

How it feels to ruin a slut's Christmas.

33 upvotes · 28 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why 32 year old beta lawyers and doctors get so full of themselves, like "who's getting the chicks now, bro". What they don't realize is they are getting the leftovers.

Fucking tweeted this shit. Nice.

Some RP knowledge from the Orient

33 upvotes · 17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Regardless of culture, women are hypergamous.

Feminist Snow Removal Program Introduced in Sweden, in Which "Female" Areas Such as Bus Stops and Preschools Must Be Cleared Before "Male" Areas Such as the Roads Leading to Them

33 upvotes · 15 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Snapshot of what the fuck is going on in Sweden.

Massive, massive, muslim immigration. An inherently patriarchal culture/belief system.

Native men are being castrated to fuck by radical extremist feminism guising itself as gender equality.

Crime has gone up massively since the muslims turned up, rape, murder, riots, car burning etc.

I'm not sure if it was Sweden or Denmark, but in one of the scandinavian countries the muslims rioted when the govt wanted to cut welfare beyond the second kid, if you know anything about muslims in europe then you know on average they have about 4 kids.

Related links:

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/news/worldnews/europe/sweden/10080320/Stockholm-riots-leave-Swedens-dreams-of-perfect-society-up-in-smoke.html>

<http://europenews.dk/en/node/68129>

http://atlasshrugs2000.typepad.com/atlas_shrugs/2013/05/riots-put-swedens-muslim-open-door-immigration-policy-in-question.html

Yeah... I wouldn't want the fucks doing this shit in my country. Would you? If it was america, I can imagine you'd shoot the fuckers and/or lynch them.

Feminists DO NOT SAY SHIT about muslims raping swedish girls. Govt suppress negative press about their outrageous behaviour.

I know one Swedish chick (I live in the anglosphere, they tend not to come here as it's an economic downgrade for their lazy asses)

Who's she dating? An albanian drug dealer.

What's the future for Sweden due to the castration of the scandinavian men?

ISLAM.

Feminist/matriarchal societies are doomed to failure and to be replaced by patriarchal ones.

R.I.P Sweden. Soon you won't be known as the Saudi Arabia of Feminism, just the Saudi Arabia of Europe.

TLDR: The effects of feminism are exacerbated in Sweden due to mass muslim immigration, which shows deep contrast between idealistic western liberalism and primitive african/middle eastern traditionalism. Western idealism is set on a trajectory to lose with birth rates and all that jazz.

I blogged about the effects of feminism/multiculturalism on white caucasian ethnic displacement, bet your ass the swedes will die out at this rate as this is exactly what's going on over there.

<http://illimitableman.wordpress.com/2013/12/09/feminism-helps-ethnically-displace-caucasians/>

Beware "2nd Date Resistance" (When you fuck a girl the first night you meet, but then she plays hard to get and puts up resistance the 2nd time)

33 upvotes · 12 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You can never let your guard down with women. Even in loving LTRs. They sabotage their own relationships without realising, they have logic, but it's only relative to how they currently feel - it's not objective logic as in, logic in and of itself - it's logic based upon emotion, it's rationalisation, they have the conclusion from their emotional state and then rationalise the reasoning afterwards to fit their emotionally pre-held conclusion.

They sabotage their relationships by trying to make alpha men beta "by trying to change him" or "fix him" (to fit her ideal of what a man should be, which is always some disney shit that doesn't work in the real world)

Women will ruin your relationship if they get their way, they will try very hard to change you into something that you're not, and if successful once you're an undatable boring undersexed beta whom she cheats on for a guy who was like you when she first met you, she'll get bored, take all your shit and leave you to rot. She'll burn your ship down and jump on another mans. Beige Phillip Rule - There's always another ship waiting for a woman, men gotta rebuild from a barely functioning raft. They're like little fucking hurricanes, they don't realise what they're doing or why, they go on automatic, fuck shit up and once successful, move on to crash the next target.

This is why the sex she gives mean fuck all compared to your commitment. Not also forgetting, every woman gets a biological calling to go have a baby pre and post wall if they've not conceived already which means they will go around jumping on dick and using men as involuntary sperm donors to fulfill their biological urge (then have the fucking audacity to chase you for child support after she misleads you to impregnate her) I'd say around 27-28+ to age infinite (you have 40 and 50 year old women out there whom are bitter they have no kids) haha, yeah, look at it objectively and you see sex is like a $10 note, commitment is like the fucking bank vault full of $100's.

How Betas are made: A conversation between a father and son

33 upvotes · 28 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Shaming male sexuality to a little boy is fucked up.

The lies women tell nice guys.

32 upvotes · 5 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Her: "You and I as a couple? I don't know. I value our 'friendship'. Let's take things slow. Let's not rush anything. Maybe someday."

Also a way of making you the plan B back up boy for when she jumps off the carousel at 29 and makes you feel like you've won the jackpot. Yes, you'll actually be happy you get to fuck the leftovers that are her beat up outie pussy because the bitch has kept you thirsty for close to a decade whilst actively cock blocking any girl who shows the remotest interest in you. As a result, you've probably had hundreds of wanks as you fantasise over her from your sex deprived blue pill beta friend zone.

This is the destiny of plenty of blue pill men who think they're lucky to "finally get the girl" - you won in the end cuck, she fucked all the chads but she decided [you're the one she wants]. Y'know, she just took awhile to find herself, but now she's more mature (HAHA!) she's realised that you're the guy she wanted all along.

LMFAOOOOOO bitch game is so fucking hilariously cruel.

If you were a blue pill faggot in school/college and now in your late 20's and a chick from your past wants to "reconnect" out of nowhere, she's shopping for a schmuck to pay her bills for a couple years. Nail the shit out of that bitch, get that "I'm gonna lock him down with lots of sex" pussy then fuck her off. Play her perception of your previous betahood to your advantage then bail and leave her with nothing. She deserves it.

How women destroy the West

32 upvotes · 20 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

His prefacing of NAWALT and "not blaming women" at the beginning is extremely annoying to a red piller, albeit necessary to even be considered by the blue pill mainstream - so I understand it. Red pillers may want to skip past that minute or so because it gets good after that, but if the NAWALTING annoys you, you may close the video before it truly gets going - and that would be a shame as this video is a work of artistic brilliance. He connects many dots succinctly and ties them all up at the end.

Although not so masterful as this video, I have some articles on the subject matter which bear reading.

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/08/26/promiscuity-civilization/>

<http://illimitablemen.com/2014/10/16/civilization-feminist-dogma/>

The book he mentions of which he probably pulled some of these ideas from is worth your attention too, Sex & Culture by J.D Unwin. It's hard to get a solid copy, but plenty of PDFs are floating around.

20% Of Men Sleep With 80% Women LIE - Statistics Suggest A 'Slut' Factor

32 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

How were those statistics ascertained? Simply by asking the question? That alone would bring in bias, because men would inflate and women deflate the numbers.

Came here to say this, glad I didn't have to.

If you ask a guy his notch count he will play it up as it increases his perceived SMV whilst a woman will play it down as it decreases her perceived SMV.

Remember, male virginity (or sexual inexperience) is a NEGATIVE (he doesn't know what he's doing!) whilst female virginity (or sexual inexperience) is a POSITIVE (I can teach her how I like it!)

For these reasons alone women will LIE LIE LIE and as always, claim to be more chaste than they are. Not counting blowjobs, anal sex, or whatever.

This "slut factor" stuff is STUPID, most women are NOT sexually conservative in the west, being a SLUT is the norm. All that varies is simply which women hide the fact, and which do not.

A self-report where women are asked things is NEVER accurate or even remotely close to scientific in nature, obviously unless you're talking to hookers who don't give a fuck (and even some of them are going to lie and hamster) most sluts are going to say they're not sluts or play down their number/sluttiness/whatever.

I laugh when guys think self-reporting women is even remotely close to hard, valid, or credible science. Can't take much those juvenile, slutty, rationalising, solipsistic beings say at face value, ESPECIALLY when it's to do with sex or their reputation.

Solipsism, or Narcissism?

32 upvotes · 9 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My $0.02c:

Almost all women are narcissists, the type of narcissism simply depends on which type she manifests. Solipsism is a way of thinking inherent to women (internal), narcissism is a way of behaving that is predicated entirely on solipsism (external.) Therefore, it is only rational that narcissism be more common in women than men, for it is established women are more intrinsically solipsistic than men are. Throw in a toxic culture, social media validation, and the cock carousel and we have what we have, a culture full of narcissistic women who need to be treated like shit to even respect/desire you. Important to note: all narcissists are solipsistic, but not all solipsists are narcissistic.

If she's a vulnerable narcissist, she'll be a whiny solipsist, she can be an utter failure in life, but have the most incredible amount of unsubstantiated pride. And such women may not even seem shallow, or what have you. But the fact is women always put themselves before men unless the man has some incredibly (dark) power over her.

This is why when I hear a woman saying "I love my man and will do anything for him" and it's not just a platitude, I know that motherfucker is doing ass-to-mouth and hitting her with next level mind games to make her act right - but then he's comforting her afterwards and all she remembers is great sex and cuddles.

If she's a grandiose narcissist, she's more what you think of as a narcissist in general. Shallow, vapid, self-important. More psychopathic seeming.

Women are solipsistic, and that solipsism becomes one of two types of narcissism, for said solipsism is devoid of the reasoning necessary enough to effectively keep the narcissism in check via abstraction:

- vulnerable narcissist: - easily offended, super sensitive, actually think they are victims
- grandiose narcissist: - more violent, less sensitive

Grandiose narcissists tend not to show any empathy any of the time, much like a psychopath (IMO, on the narcissistic spectrum they are closer to a psychopath than a vulnerable narcissist)

HOWEVER vulnerable narcissists may show empathy, but as soon as their victim complex kicks in BANG - empathy goes, justified by the fact you don't deserve it as they're the victim.

I find most women I meet fall into either group of behaviour. As narcissism is a spectrum (we are all narcissistic to a degree) rather than a binary yes/no state, it therefore seems that narcissism, like solipsism is a fundamental of AWALT. It's just that the narcissism manifests differently from woman to woman.

Of course, you're going to instantly recognise grandiosity in a woman as narcissism, but can you distinguish between a vulnerable narcissist and a woman? It actually seems that the traits of vulnerable narcissism and the traits of what we consider female behaviour are near damn ubiquitously synonymous.

Most people wouldn't see victim-playing or tone policing as vulnerable narcissism, they'd see it as pure Machiavellianism. And it is that. But it's also the vulnerable narcissists go-to power play. And by god, do they believe their own bullshit.

Big Thundercock Mountain

32 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Just gonna put it out there that I didn't develop the casino metaphor, I merely found it and shared it. OP was credited when he came forward over PM.

"My mother told me"

32 upvotes · 2 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I came here to say this. Patrice lives on.

Rapper Ludacris wins custody over his daughter and receives child support from ex!

32 upvotes · 6 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Never believe a woman ~~over 28~~ who says she's on the pill. Baby Rabies is a thing.

With you all the way. Girls in their prime will try to lock down a high value guy STAT and pull an oopsie regardless of age if his value is significantly higher than hers (eg: she's working class, he's rich.) So if you're not loaded you probably don't need to worry about younger girls pulling oopsies, but if you are, or even if you just have a high status job (doctor/lawyer/judge) her eyes will fill with dollar signs and she won't want to "pass you up." As always, be vigilant gentlemen. Building SMV comes with an increased need to exercise Machiavellianism and protect what you've achieved for yourself.

My Old Coworker Hung Himself

32 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If a dog shits on the carpet it's my fault I didn't take it for a walk, but it's not my fault it's full of shit to begin with. I don't buy into the whole hyperagency thing. There's blame to go all around. Giving women no personal responsibility for anything empowers them to do whatever the hell they like with no standard of behaviour and then blame the nearest man (as they commonly do.) Did I crash my car?! It's my man's fault for buying me the car/trusting me not to drive like a lunatic/adjusting the drivers seat etc. Fuck that noise. Women need disciplining, which means, emotively, to their great pain and distress, forcing blame SQUARELY onto them. I'd discipline a kid and expect it to take responsibility, so what's with this prevailing attitude of "she's just a woman, it's not her fault." Cunt women like that make shit mothers because they do the same to their kids. Blame their kids for their mistakes, which is child abuse. No. I don't buy into it for a second.

The position of FUCK YOU!

32 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"First you get the money, then you get the power, and then you get the women."

Right on. Scarface knows his fucking shit.

Filtering out the 80% of men: Woman from Stanford to create "Elite Tinder App"

32 upvotes · 23 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I see where you're coming from but I don't see a snowballs chance in hell of feminist legislation getting repealed. As for the social anarchy, would the effeminate bitch men of today be able to stand up to all the squawking harpies losing their collective shit? I suspect not. Men aren't collectively strong enough anymore to "put women in their natural place" as it were. But what can you expect when they're all raised by single mothers and there's fucking xenoestrogens in everything? Most men are divorced of their manliness and hence not "men" in the truest meaning of the word.

Take red pill, get plate and money, female roommate asks me to move out.

32 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As a man with high or increasing SMV you cannot live with a woman without her becoming possessive. You're this woman's best option which is why she is being crazy with you. She wants you under her control but because you're not she's frustrated. "Move out" is a shit test. Pass the shit test by moving out and putting this girl into the background. Even if you plate her whilst you're living with her, because you live with her and have no space/buffer zone between you and her you're not really plating her properly. She does and WILL want more. She will be pushing for commitment and getting you to girlfriend her up. If you wanna plate her, move out and then fuck her, you need space between yourself and her craziness.

And yeah she doesn't want you to be her friend she wants you to be her boyfriend. Women are fickle, watch their actions not their words. Women also make shitty friends, as you're seeing, here. Admittedly you've fucked up a bit too in not reading the signs properly, but at least you've got the self-improvement down, so well done bro.

Every last one of you.

32 upvotes · 26 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The mods do a great job of nuking the retards. Gotta hand it to 'em.

If you are Alpha she will most likely remember you.

32 upvotes · 27 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Lol. She's alpha widowed. Law 41 - avoid stepping into a great man's shoes.

Gods be praised. A WOMAN explains the current trend on why men are opting out of marriage.

32 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm accruing quite the backlog of books. She makes a valid point about the word of a woman being worth far more than a man's. A man saying everything she said would just be written off as a misogynist and ignored/shamed. Being a woman her voice automatically gets legitimacy, they can't write her off as a misogynist so they're forced to listen.

The measure of sexual success is desire

32 upvotes · 4 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He receives just enough of a trickle of sex to think that he's on the right track, and that if he keeps it up, eventually he'll hit the jackpot and everything will be good.

Trickle down economics is bullshit, if there's anything crony capitalism and the 2008 housing bubble has taught us it's that the rich get rich and the poor get poorer. Alpha fucks harems are getting bigger, beta bucks bank accounts are getting raped more, it's a tough economy you see, economically, sexually, and everywhere where that overlap occurs. Pussy isn't gonna trickle down to the "lesser men" pussy, like money, is monopolised/horded by those at the top, and those at the bottom are starved or get the occasional scrap. Doing the same provenly unsuccessful crap over and over again isn't going to magically start working for you all of a sudden. It's not like you're in a basement of celibacy and there's a trap door above you and if you keep poking it with your cock it'll finally give way to a battalion of naked victoria's secret models that will rain down on your sex deprived body like a UN food drop in a famine-ridden african village. What do you do in this bullshit economy if there are no jobs for your skillsets? Find a niche and start your own business/service in that niche, make a name for yourself in it and start earning REAL BANK.

If you want to say fuck the system, find out how to legally avoid paying tax in your country if that's not possible find out how to at least mitigate your liability, if your govt has relationships with foreign banks forcing them to divulge your accounts and hiding money isn't possible, wait until your business is doing well enough to pay you your cut no matter where you live in the world and earn US DOLLARS whilst living in a low cost of living country, say somewhere like south america, get that first world money paid in whilst living in a second/third world country, you're getting the income you'd get back home but your liability has now moved to your new cheaper jurisdiction and thus the american taxman can't get at your money. Learn a new language in the process and live it up as a king rather than slave away in the american, english or whatever developed world ratrace it is you come from.

Anyhow I've digressed in my attempt to be analogous, back to the whole pussy side of "resources dont trickle down" topic, you're not going to get the kind of sex life you desire for yourself by continuing to meet questionably attractive women off okcupid and sustaining all your current habits, no, what you need to do is reinvent yourself into a better, more fuckable person or like /u/Archwinger says, a desirable one. Someone you like more that is stronger and sexier than who you currently are, to the point where you like yourself so much and have so much to back that up that your frame/confidence radiates out and bitches think "shit, this guy is hot." Just like a financial overhaul your social value and sex appeal needs one too. They are two sides of the same coin.

Essentially: Riches don't trickle down so you have to go and make your own wealth. Pussy doesn't trickle down for to the average men so you have to go and make yourself fuckable, likeable and desirable. It is really that simple. It's not easy, the words do it no justice, but that's what you have to do, with all the blood, sweat, tears and pain that such an endeavour is inclusive of. Not willing to do it? Well accept the mediocre life you have and resign yourself to averageness. You're not going to be a lothario or a millionaire or anything if you can't be fucked with yourself. Giving up on yourself is tantamount to spiritual suicide.

How do you do those things? Xbox? No. Partying? No. Socialising? Minimally and on the cheap. You're going to be giving up your shitty behaviours and the rut you're caught up in being the same old unsuccessful self-disappointing person that you are and instead become obsessed with being better than you are because that's the only way you escape the purgatory of poverty and pussylessness you exist in. How do you do that? Well, I've already written about that, I'm not one to repeat 2,700~ words I've previously communicated, so instead you can save me from repeating myself and give me some pageviews for the trouble and actually make a change and improve who you are with "monk mode"

Addendum: if your life is too comfortable you'll agree with shit like this/things we say in TRP, and then go back to watching game of thrones, make a sandwich, play some xbox, jerk off, read some internet, contemplate the things you read earlier feel too lethargic, go "naaaah" watch some more TV and then fall asleep. If your life is too comfortable you need to make yourself more uncomfortable or you will betray yourself and not give yourself the self-improvement that you need to overcome your more long time problems, eg: the fact that pussy is like a solar eclipse or a lunar landing for you rather than part of a healthy and varied psychosocial diet. Then there is the fact you have a crushingly low self-esteem/lack of confidence (typical in men nowadays) because you're not getting what you want out of life. If that sounds like you, welcome to the red pill, read a lot but don't stop at reading, it's the beginning but it's not enough, most of all you must fucking do something with yourself AND STOP BEING COMFORTABLE - IF YOU'RE COMFORTABLE YOU WON'T IMPROVE YOURSELF YOU'LL GET LAZY.

Are Women Good Or Evil? Hidden Cam Reveals How What You Believe, Will SEEM To Be True (+Infield)

32 upvotes · 30 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TLDR: Don't hate women even though it's easy to hate them/feel indifferent about them when you get rid of all the disney bullshit and all their flaws/weaknesses/audacity are fully exposed. Hence the MGTOW movement, they've had enough. The true nature of women is so unsettling society/feminism had to fabricate all this bullshit to pedestalize them (which I think this post is doing slightly) and over time ancient knowledge in regards to women was forgotten and replaced with sheer idealism.

You don't have to like ALL WOMEN to like ANY WOMEN. Some, no, most women in developed countries, especially feminazi english-speaking countries are just shitty fucking people, they had flaws to begin with, feminism just amplified them, under feminism women are shitty on steroids rather than just "emotionally dysfunctional", that's the reality, they love to bitch/moan and are never really satisfied regardless, but feminism in a wealthy country with a welfare state destroys the concept of "humility" and "appreciation" because women don't "need" men economically to co-operate, as big daddy government will take a mans taxes and redistribute it to the legions of single mothers and "poor wittle victimised women" out there turning appreciation into an entitlement. Even if you're not paying through a relationship, you're paying for them still (with taxes.)

Women become awesome/feminine by being brought into a strong mans frame, read the FR on here with the man and his wife, she was nothing other than a thundercunt, he laid boundaries down and held frame and she became "feminine and sweet" as you say, they're like a mirror, they're like kids who misbehave, if you don't set down boundaries and show them you won't put up with their shit they misbehave and fuck shit up to their own and your detriment. I understand what you're saying, you're trying to help, it's a nice sentiment, but there's some bullshit in there. Women are not inherently awesome, you make them awesome by giving them a chance and putting up with their crap and keeping them on the emotional straight and narrow rather than letting them devour everything with emotional anarchy. You take on the burden of their inherent neediness and they reward you with feminine behaviour, it's transactive. When you maintain that set-up long enough they stop shit testing so much and become complicit and passive, they will follow you because they respect you.

Addendum: As an englishman I find all that over the top "american" optimism that RSD tyler has to be corny as fuck. Someone that high-wire would just annoy the fuck out of me. No slight meant, being candid and honest. I'm sure he's a great guy, how he carries himself may pull in a lot of bitches because they want to jump on that energy, as a man I find that shit irritating and facetious, I doubt its legitimacy unless he's coked all the time. To counter that, he understands a lot about social dynamics and clearly isn't a stupid person, I'm just not fond of his presentation/style. Being a leader of women does not mean you can be a leader of men, I wouldn't "follow" that guy. Being that corny may work with a lot of women, but guys are going to laugh at you and do everything to bring you down because it comes across as fake. It's too much.

Self-Respect and Crazy Bitches

32 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

1: They switch a lot, they'll go from reasonable to unreasonable from depressed to happy really fast, you'll think she's cool for like 45 minutes and then all of a sudden she becomes fucking annoying or unlikeable. They get really clingy and then really detached. I noticed this shit from the first night I spent with her "something's off about this one."

2: The sex, the sex is like having sex with an animal, she was scratching my back and my arms and any part of my body she could get her hands on whilst I was fucking her, I had to hold her hands down to get her to stop scratching me and then her eyes just got bigger, she looked even more turned on and started biting my neck and shit. Fucking animal I tell you, hadn't ever had sex like that before, most bitches lay there and do nothing, she was fucking into it. It's no word of a lie, crazy bitches are passionate about their sex.

Prior to a ten day trip to Beijing I have coming up, I stumbled upon this article. Thought you chaps might find it amusing. ("western" women in china are sick of the nerds they ignored back home getting all the attention from the natives)

32 upvotes · 13 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is what feminism creates, entitled, spoilt, bitter women.

The Red Pill is Intolerant of Irrationalism and Equality

32 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

When I asked why he gave the typical hamster response "why aren't you in the military"

Tu quoque fallacy inverted, typical deflection when one does not have a solid argument to support their own line of reasoning. Instead of saying "if men are in the military, women should be too" (tu quoque used to support equality in social obligation) he inverted it to say "well if specific men aren't in the military such as yourself then why should any woman be in the military?" which is a false dichotomy that overlooks many factors. The fact you applied a few years ago yourself and was rejected is ironic, but completely irrelevant from a rational standpoint.

but was turned down due to a skin condition I was born with.

Yeah, eczema, dermatitis and related skin conditions can reduce combat effectiveness by causing you to be distracted by the itchiness that they are capable of causing.

Epic response by "CEO" of JPMorgan

32 upvotes · 20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This was posted on craigslist if I remember correctly, done the rounds here a few times now.

Real or not, the knowledge contained within is indeed golden.

TLDR: women are a depreciating asset if all they have to offer is beauty, men are an appreciating one.

The greater a woman's involvement in nonmarital romantic and sexual activity, the less likely she is to be married by age 27–30.

32 upvotes · 17 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They can't handle the fact they're the fuck-ees and not the fuckers. They don't conquer, they get conquered. Choosing to let many different dicks colonise your insides and leave a gooey gift is not a conquest of any kind. Its hilarious how feminists have managed to rationalise to themselves that constantly giving up their power to people who don't give a shit about them or commit to them is a good thing.

At around 16 - 29~ "Yes, being a colonised dick receptacle for boy next door cock, rich boy cock, old man with status cock, guitar playing boy cock, club owner cock and random drunk cock is just so fucking empowering!"

Come 30+ the same bitch is hiding her colonisation and acting like she's been a fucking independent republic the entire time that wants to be incorporated into a commonwealth with you. Baby rabies ensue and it's a scramble not to be a fucking spinster post penis induced colonial pillaging. She's used the fuck up.

Come 40+ the same bitch has an entourage of cats fulfilling the gaping void (not her cunt!) in her life. Tiddles and Mr. Meowingson being the loves of her life, cuddled up on the sofa with an inordinately large bar of chocolate consuming reality television and soap operas night in, night out. This woman still holds out that the hollywood archetypal Mr. Perfect turns the fuck up and for some crazy reason values her above all else, it's sad, it's lonely, it's pathetic and that's what being a slut in your 20's can lead to.

This is what a woman should expect when she's been fucked so much her pussy's geographical borders change more than fucking Eastern Europe's.

Vasalgel getting traction in mainstream media! Do your part and support this.

32 upvotes · 9 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Which is why im waiting to see how this gets hamstered as bad and blocked.

Why women still need husbands

32 upvotes · 25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I know what you're going to say. Where are these husbands on whom women can depend? And you're right: there are fewer men these days who seem eager to be primary breadwinners.

But ask yourself why, and I bet you know the answer.

Because they're fucking detestable, unappreciative, self-entitled, lacking femininity, unskilled, obnoxious... western women (mainly women of the anglosphere) are the fucking joke of the world followed closely by the feminist bitches in western europe and Scandinavia (at least they are better educated than anglosphere women though), as an Englishman the few times I have met an English woman of quality she has been incredibly old or she's non-English and from Eastern Europe/Southeast Asia.

These mother tongue English speaking bitches need to fucking up their game and get to work on that SMV instead of being the weak entitled little princesses that they are, their sisters abroad are showing them the fuck up. Why the fuck would I settle for an English/American/Australian/Canadian woman? No fucking way ladies, you're inferior, your application for the position of wife is being fucking outsourced. Enjoy the cats.

PS: I'm 23.

Even if she's not totally redpill I love when moxie destroys entitled forty somethings only reason a read her page

32 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's solid advice for misguided and romantically unsuccessful older women.

Lower your standards or be alone.

Seeing women all around me fit RP stereotypes..Here is this weeks batch.

32 upvotes · 20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Girl 1 - Entertaining her natural feminine sensibilities to nurture. She'll probably be a better nurse than she would be a biologist which will make her happier because she'll get more work satisfaction and it'll be more productive to society than producing a poor biologist. Fair enough to her.

Girl 2 - This girl desires above all else an alpha provider having ridden the carousel, but none of the alphas will want to provide for her because she's already been around the block. She'll ruin some betas life so she can fulfill her desire to reproduce and have shit paid for her, she'll probably cheat on him with the alpha dick she used to get from her 20's then she'll divorce rape said beta and ruin his life, as a single mother she'll get the occasional alpha dick until she's so post wall all that remains are cats and spinsterhood.

Girl 3 - Chick was corrupted by feminism, bridezilla = massive overdose of self-entitlement. This repulsed her man, so he left her. Such self-entitlement is usually indicative of a low intelligence person, or a narcissist, most TRPers know narcissism is only sexy in men to women, but not in women to men. Now she's just over the wall and stuck in low skill administration because her meal ticket fell through, if not for feminism she may have been a better girlfriend/fiance/wife and not actually repulsed the man to ditch her. Good on him, I say.

Most women are pretty average. Even the smart ones turn out to be average in their dating habits, what ya gonna do?

Also be wary of girl 3 trying to use you to get into Canada. If she thinks you can help her attain her desires, she'll try to exploit you.

Do not underestimate the scope and effect of what you write on TRP

31 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Going to a foreign country forces you into death ground (assuming you don't go live in a touristy area where everybody speaks English and caters to westerners)

- No friends
- No family
- No support network
- You can't speak the language and can't read anything
- Someone could be threatening to kill you in their language, you wouldn't know
- Authorities are corrupt as hell compared to the west, will want bribes/threaten to steal your passport etc. You have a sexy red British passport, there are third worlders who would cut out kidneys for that.

So you can't be a comfortable little westerner in a third world shit hole. You have to unlock your power to survive. Shit will turn you into a soldier. Death ground. Then you come back to the privileged west and see things with a completely different perspective, as if.. without trying to sound like a faggot, you are somewhat enlightened by your experiences. Tougher in heart and in soul.

I fully endorse nyrrp's post to anyone who reads it. Despite all of my relatives and friends thinking I'm mental for doing this,

Come on bro you know what English people are like. Anything that doesn't fit with the trends makes you "crazy" or "mental" - us English (especially southerners) have always been prudish and judgy as fuck. IMO, not a very endearing trait of the English, but eh. Fuck 'em. You go do you. The same motherfuckers who doubt your sanity will want to hear your stories.

Unfortunately, love 'em or hate 'em, family isn't always supportive.

How the Feminine Imperative is Destroying Reddit... on Purpose

31 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If anger is righteous, there is nothing wrong with it. It's a perfectly natural emotion for men to experience. Society/the feminine imperative denounces it, because a man too afraid to express his anger is effectively a declawed lion. He can then be manipulated and coerced by the imperative without defending against it, any move he has up his sleeve is "deemed invalid" and greater society doubles down on him for "being aggressive, violent, or unhinged" if he taps into his natural defences. So he has to learn to fight like a woman (Machiavellianism and mind games) or take it up the ass. It's akin to mental abuse.

This is why men are learning Machiavellianism and other socially acceptable ways to battle the feminine imperative. When the feminine imperative is in control of the social fabric, you have to fight it with its own weapons to beat it.

Physical violence and anger are outlawed. Shitting in someone's mind isn't. Civilization got half way there, but by checking physical violence and allowing mental violence to go unchecked, you have a paradigm that plays directly into the hands of the feminine imperative.

Women are Expensive, Men are Cheap - A Biological Explanation

31 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Men are subject to higher standards and greater selection pressures (and thus have a harder life) AND YET women are always the victims who get preferential treatment. As OP alludes to, this comes back to the value of the womb. Due to the cheapness of sperm the majority of men are essential but invisible, like electricity. Nobody gives a fuck about 'em until the power goes out. There is no thanks or appreciation, just expectation.

And in all things men populate both extremes of the bell curve, so men not only need the most help, but they're also fit to provide the most help. Women are all comfy in the middle, buffered by a cushion on each side, not falling into the dregs of society, but not burdened with coming up with the next revolutionary step in civilization either. And of course women will whine to have the right to do such a thing, should it tickle their fancy, but scarcely ever succeed in such a capacity. What is a "right" or "privilege" to women, the freedom to work complex jobs and invent things, was always a burden and necessity for man.

If someone is cocooned enough to be obsessed with social pleasantries, they are probably privileged. Now just ask yourself who obsesses and is more proficient in this realm, men or women? Yep, men have actual shit to be doing, so focussing on talking about things and never getting anything done whilst seeming overly friendly and approachable is not something men excel at. In fact, such a thing seems oft pretentious.

And yet again, man's brashness is seen as a negative, and the product of woman's relative comfort, her freedom to obsess with charm, a positive.

We're a fucked up species.

How engineering helped me socially.

31 upvotes · 20 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Banter keeps you sharp. Iron sharpens iron. Being around women all the time and having no guy time will fuck up your shit test game. They need to be fairly masculine guys though, bitch guys aren't secure enough with themselves to banter.

Being around nothing but women at work you always have to watch what you say, there is no freedom of speech and the constant tip-toeing will fuck with your psyche. Furthermore, if your boss is a woman and something fucks up, her "blame the nearest man" programming will still be in effect, and being the shitty leader that she is, she will probably blame you for her fuck up. She'll pretend she told you to do some shit when she didn't, so really, it's not her fault that X or Y fucked up. Lots of drama, lots of politics, not a lot of fun.

Bitches are far more political than men. That's why not even bitches like bitches. That's why bitches don't mind male dominated work environments, but masculine men hate female dominated work environments. Because a woman in a male dominated work environment knows she can leverage her beauty and manipulate the men. If you are an employer with an efficient male team, all you need to do is throw in one woman to politicise the whole thing, fuck up productivity and make it a shit fest.

The building site work environment would be considered a hostile work environment if it was a female dominated office. And it is - aesthetically. In reality, in substance, the guys mean no harm, they just want to keep morale high and let off some steam. Personally, I think it's a difference in preference between the genders. Men rather insult you to your face but mean nothing by it if you know how to take it. Women rather be nice to your face, but talk shit behind your back. People are intimidated by men, but if you hold your own you'll find the man is normally quite endearing. Men test for wit and respect wit.

People aren't intimidated by women so make the mistake of opening up, then they find she's stabbed you in the back for showing weakness. Even bitches will agree with me on this, they've had it happen to them. And it's almost always a woman or an extremely effeminate man doing this. The feminine is dramatic, it has a flair for gossip and rumours.

I think the backstabbing and office bullshit is far worse than men bantering with one another. But women and feminine men are weak, so they don't. They take offence instead of having fun with it because they are weak-minded. They want to be avoidant face-to-face and fuck with people on the down low. Cowards.

Of course, in an office environment, the feminine imperative always comes up trumps. That's politics for you FUCKING everything up. Female dominated environments are bad news. There's a place at the moment that I know would offer me some extra work if I wanted it. I know out of the team of 20 that 18 of the staff are female (most at peak SMV and so will be entitled and lazy AF,) 1 is a feminine-gay, and the last is a straight male. Fuck being an endangered species. I'll pass on that shit.

[META] Reddit rolls out first ban wave of "Harassing Subreddits"

31 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the sad thing, that our detractors are utterly convinced that we're here to torture women and that could not be further from the truth.

Projection. How many emasculate men do you think are being tortured by their women right now, blind to see what's going on? Ignorant? Blaming themselves for their own mental enslavement and psychological captivity to an unappreciative parasitic harpy? I bet the number, globally, especially in developed countries, is rather high.

[META] Reddit rolls out first ban wave of "Harassing Subreddits"

31 upvotes · 10 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Would serve as a pretext for a ban if a stitch-up was desired, but otherwise they'd see the IP addresses of such people don't match the IPs of those who post here. Basically, if there was no pretext, they'd be able to see it's not us doing whatever they're going to do, but people pretending to be us. They'd risk getting their own sub banned doing that kind of thing.

Man becomes a millionaire 20 YEARS after his divorce, ex-wife has just been awarded a cash settlement

31 upvotes · 11 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Analysis by Clive Coleman, BBC legal affairs correspondent

This is a striking ruling that underlines the fact there is no time limit for ex-spouses to apply to a court for a financial settlement following a divorce - however weak their claim may be.

Whereas there are strict time limits in other claims, such as those for breach of contract or personal injury, these claims can clearly be made decades after the divorce itself.

The judgement is also a timely reminder that divorcing couples who want protection from such claims, even if they have no money at all, should obtain an order from the court at the time of the divorce, in which they both agree that there will be no further financial claims.

That is the only way to guarantee that, if one of them goes on to make a fortune, they get to keep it.

She's mad she passed up on a guy worth £101m (don't know what that is in dollars - but a lot more than $101m) who's also been knighted by the queen.

They haven't awarded her anything yet, but they're saying there's a good chance she'll get a free house out of him. She's playing the victim angle and the fact she had to raise their son by herself. Full of bullshit. When courts entertain this, it helps nail home what we keep saying: don't get married.

Girl (18) Pressures Boyfriend into Suicide for Attention

31 upvotes · 3 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitches are sick and their bullshit spreads that sickness. A guy was speaking to me on Twitter about this, he thinks she's a dark triad woman. To be honest I'm not sure if it's a hamster on crack, a girl with a mental illness or a DT girl. Not enough info to go off. In their text message exchange he gets out of the car he was trying to kill himself in at one point and messages her "I'm out of the car I don't want to die" and she responds quickly "get back in."

I don't like to arbitrarily assign the psychopath label to people based merely on questionable behaviour. Psychopath or not, given the right circumstances we're all capable of some pretty fucked up shit. IMO, the hamster has always been a dissociative replacement for psychopathy, it's how women can engage in seemingly psychopathic behaviour without actually showing clinical markers for psychopathy. They compel themselves with almost hypnotic precision that the evil they're doing is necessary/the right thing, then get very upset when others don't buy into their hamster's forced reality/absolute insanity. The solipsism sounds very narcissistic, but what's new? Finding a woman who isn't narcissistic nowadays is bigger news than finding one who is.

A hamster's job is to make emotional/selfish/irrational decisions sound rationally and morally plausible/reasonable after the fact. It's all superficial and doesn't stand up to scrutiny, but the hamster tries to stop you digging by being emotionally abusive and attacking you for doubting her bullshit. It doesn't want to be found out because the hamster is essentially an ego-preservation/coping mechanism for a mind invested in a false narrative. It's her anchor to whatever bullshit she told herself to "make it all ok" in her mind. If you fuck with it, you will make her realise how fucked up she is, and she will hate herself/get depressed/have a breakdown without that false narrative. She doesn't want to have a breakdown and realise what a huge piece of shit she is, so she dissociates for dear life.

That's why if you seem you like disbelieve the hamster it will just point blank accuse of you abuse (how ironic), attempt to blame you for it's actions "see this is why I do these things, because you're never there when I need you!!!" (When this happens most men start wtf-ing??) or it otherwise just goes full on fucking loopy when you question it. I'd loved to have been there for this chicks bitch fit when she was discovered. Women are absolutely amazing at coming up with persuasive post hoc justifications for diabolical batshittery. It's one of their superpowers. Be very frugal in assigning value to what women say. Judge them on their actions and ignore their explanations, a woman could blow up a country and find a way to make it sound like it was for the best and wasn't really her fault at all!

Edit: thanks for the gold, it helps the sub.

Red Pill Example Never let people walk over you

31 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Have you not had the pleasure of enjoying a BLT sandwich? They're sublime! Especially when warmed or toasted!

Fight feminism by doing nothing

31 upvotes · 7 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. They must maintain the false narrative to siphon funds from the tax payers (beta bux) to pay for all the cat ladies and post-wall divorced women living off the government. She works a part time low effort job admin/service based role, if that. Then she retires and in her almighty entitlement proclaims "she worked hard for her retirement" and thus continues to live off your taxpayer money (her state pension) well into elderhood (and as we know, women live longer than men, thus the majority of pensioners are women.)

Why are these women living off the government and not happily married, provided for by their families/husbands? Why, because they listened to feminists and put career before family of course. If they'd been less selfish, more feminine and more giving, they'd have a family to look out for not only their economic needs but likewise their mental well-being in their older years. Instead, short-sightedly most modern women masculinise instead of embracing their feminine natures. So now in old age, withering, low SMV, stroking a cat named tiddles, poppin' prozac and curling up to bottles of red wine in front of an episode of Sex in the City, the modern post-wall women needs "taking care of" in her twilight years.

Young women can fuck for cash and prizes (cars, vacations, clothes, drugs?) no problem, the beta bux as boyfriend will pay for all these things! Pussy-for-prizes! Old undesirable women bitter as they are need the govt to legislate wealth redistribution from economically active and productive men toward economically unproductive women who made poor life choices, because without mandatory taxation these men would never let such parasitic elderly harpies profit from their labour. Instead of being good wives to survive economically, modern feminist women just outvote men on issues of state. The schadenfreude to be had here is that in spite of that, they still get to be miserable whilst stealing our money through taxation. The welfare state encourages a lot of dead weight, and women (as well as their bastard alpha spawn) are the biggest recipients of beta bux tax receipts.

As Stefan Molyneux said in one of his videos (not verbatim:) "the welfare state subsidises women's decisions to have babies on a whim with men who won't make good fathers/stick around (that's the alpha fucks) and so effectively it tacitly supports this behaviour."

As a general FYI, beta bucks and alpha providers are the ones who stick around to be dads to kids. You can't blame men for not sticking around to raise kids when he consented to sex, but not reproduction. The power of the rather meekly worded "oopsie" as it's known is ridiculous. No man should sacrifice his future on a woman's maternal whim.

An Actual Conversation About Marriage and Divorce Coming From the Mouths of College-Aged Women

31 upvotes · 31 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You will drop these people and move on in the future I suspect. Their only value to you is to be used for training so you can resist/tolerate when need be and "blend in" with such people. Seeing as they are the majority, this is of course a necessary skill.

The higher your value and self-perception, the less you will want to tolerate their babbling. I get rather annoyed by all manners of insufferable bullshit. Advertising (I watch very little TV though,) groups of young girls talking, beta boys acting like faggots. Men hamstering. I actively avoid ALL and ANY such behaviour. I have a limited group of friends, all red pill alphas who know their shit. They all know about this place, but were pretty unplugged before I introduced them to TRP. Time is money, and time is finite. I only have one life. I don't want to spend it listening to the insane ramblings of ideological idealists devoid of critical thinking. Whenever I'm stuck with people like this and can't escape, I adopt amused mastery and ruthlessly mock them. It's passive aggressive but it's the only socially accepted successful way of fucking with them. Amused mastery is basically "the troll approach." These people are toxic, they are losers. Once you "get your training" avoid 'em at all costs.

University is SJW central, you're in the thick of the blue there.

Active & caring father teaches his sons "man lessons" and makes sure to include his daughter as well. Mother does "woman lessons" too. Women in /r/DIY explode with how OP is indirectly responsible for why their own lives are ruined.

31 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I just assume every woman I meet has daddy issues. It's so common you're more shocked to find one who doesn't than one who does. Special thanks to the women of the world who didn't abort their ONS sperm and raised a kid on welfare. You're a fucking credit tax liability to us all.

Get To The Top 20%. Lurkers and New RP Men, Your Beta Qualities Are Officially Worthless To Today's Women

31 upvotes · 17 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

the fact that even before the babies mutate, they are most likely to be conceived by the least intelligent people, who prior to the modern social safety net, could not have afforded to feed children, if they could have even afforded to feed themselves.

And a third factor that Charlton doesn't even mention (though he or Woodley have perhaps mentioned it elsewhere) is that people are having babies at older and older ages! So we have three major effects all contributing independently to the genetic decline: 1) The least intelligent are having the most children, 2) parents of all IQ's are having kids late in life, thus increasing mutation risk, and 3) the carriers of mutations are surviving at unprecedented rates to repeat the cycle.

In another fascinating post, Charlton cites an analogy by Michael A. Woodley explaining why dysgenic evolution occurs so much more rapidly than progressive evolution. In the latter, it's like swimming upstream against the current because you're constantly being pushed back by the flow of harmful mutations, so it takes a painfully long time for IQ to increase. But in the former, all the mutations propel your momentum, so it's like rapidly skiing effortlessly down a hill. This makes perfect sense!

But here's the question. Are there other examples of this? For example, animals who are kept in captivity must see even bigger declines in the mortality of their offspring. Are there examples of these animals changing by a full standard deviation in any trait in just four or five generations? And I'm not talking about deliberate selective breeding. I'm talking massive rapid genetic changes caused only by the elimination of natural selection. You would think, if this were true, that it would be a well understood phenomenon by now.

Source: <https://brainsize.wordpress.com/2014/06/30/could-genetic-iq-really-have-declined-so-much-so-quickly/>

Interesting as fuck. Apparently we've lost a standard deviation in a hundred years.

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

31 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

and it is to the point that a man who did not at least have the knee-jerk response of protecting women would be part of a tiny minority.

I feel like such a snowflake right now. Haha, banter aside, I think you're right on the money with this:

I actually feel that there is a genetic/instinctual component to it. Add onto that the enormous amount of social conditioning to defer to women

The protector/provider instinct is being abused much to man's own undoing.

What I've learned from the women in my family.

31 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They're sadly built to push boundaries as much as possible to ensure quality mates... which makes them the worst possible mate after the wall.

It's incredible irony. They lack the self-awareness to realise that too much boundary pushing will result in pushing you out entirely. Even pre-wall a lot of the women just aren't worth the hassle beyond a certain stage in dating. Seeing as hassle FROM a woman TO a man typically builds like free radicals in the body, it's easier to just cut loose and get a new one when the bullshit levels get too high. Rinse/repeat. Getting new women and starting over all the time is annoying but it's less annoying than the demands/abuse of an LTR.

Also in light of what you're saying:

They're sadly built to push boundaries as much as possible to ensure quality mates

The truism "women are never satisfied" is aptly explained. Explains a whole lot. Why they're eternally insecure and etc. Design flaw.

How does an alpha interact with other men?

31 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Superiors: straight talk they find the honesty refreshing. You want straight talk as in candour not straight talk as in autistic.

Confrontations: agree and amplify but be funny. Or deflect/pressure flip. If that fails use force

Co workers: straight talk or power talk depending on how much you like them. Power talk is reserved for persuasion and people you don't like but need plausible deniability with. Power talk is the language of sales, don't use it on your boss if you do and he's switched on your condescension will be poorly received and you will be seen as an upstart (someone likely to outshine his superiors.)

Amogs: ignore, mock or call them on their shit. I've done all 3. Amused mastery works well here if they haven't got under your skin. Damage control amogs use is to gaslight+pressure flip by saying they were only joking your uncomfortability is unfounded and u need to chill.

Be all things to all people whilst being yourself. Handle people as the situation occurs but be congruent in who you are don't sell your identity or dignity and don't beg to be accepted. Sometimes haters are gonna hate its just the way it is.

Thunderfoot reacts to latest corp suck-up ad '#LikeaGirl'

31 upvotes · 20 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Corporations are dark triad to the core especially when they market to women, they try to win their trust and get close to them by identifying with them and saying they know where you come from and blah blah then they use that trust and sense of affinity accumulated through all the rapport building to sell them shit. They especially love to do this with products which target women's insecurity such as sanitary towels and cosmetics.

This is just yet another example of corporations exploiting women's emotional nature/hamster via marketing to sell them products and increase their profits, obviously they couldn't give a shit about women's personal issues, they're not homegrown like /r/redpillwomen. On the flip side, shit like this gets a massive thumbs up from the huge feminist lobby who will help stuff like this go viral, thus further increasing the corporations profits.

You're either in awe at how manipulative corporations are or you're disgusted they'll go to just about any depth to exploit people's insecurity for profit.

The average woman has no chance against crap like this, they're going to be swept up by the feel good bullshit, get caught in the herdlike groupthink of other women caught up in the feel good bullshit, bounce off each other validating the shit out of one another and then add to the hysteria pulling in further women via word of mouth and what you end up with amounts to a successful marketing campaign. This is why if you want to sell shit you target women, they buy the most crap and have the most vulnerable minds aka the most pronounced absence of logic/tendency to allow emotion to rule their decision making processes. FYI: not saying men don't do the same shit, but they do it less than women.

Post-wall woman is personally offended that less educated men participate in same speed dating event. More hamsters in the comment section and at worst, will find it completely repulsive and nauseating.

31 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Tells me she cares more about whoring herself up the corporate ladder and engaging in company politics than actually being a loveable, likeable, feminine partner that I'd want to protect and provide for. Having a vagina isn't enough to elicit paternal feelings in me, if you're a corporate cunt playing political games and using your sex to get ahead in life I'll see you as an adversary and completely undatable, not a potential romantic option. The cutthroat world of business destroys femininity, these women adopt masculine traits to survive in that world, I don't want a woman who can bust balls with the best of them as anything more than a platonic friend or ONS, if even that.

Now if she's in a nurturing role like a school teacher or nurse that's a turn-on, it suggests she's of a caring disposition and would make a good mother to my kids. These dumb corporate climbing whores don't understand this shit. The word woman and the word corporate combined together actively repulse me, women acting like men and men acting like women are two things that repulse me, I'm sure I'm not alone in that same sentiment. Fuck the corporate women who put career before family, they're doomed to spinsterhood and I feel no sympathy for them, in fact, quite sadistically, it feels me with glee they will be miserable, I like the idea they'll be paying out the ass in happiness for following feminism, abusing betas and having shitty judgement until their sexual capital runs out around 28-35.

In essence, the higher status the woman the more she reduces her sexual appeal and it's nothing to do with "intimidation" like their poor fragile little egos rationalise, it's difficult to be intimidated by someone who's significantly smaller than you and loses self-control easier than you do, it's simply a matter of being utterly unsexy, dominant behaviour in my hindbrain is a strongly masculine trait, dominance in a woman isn't sexy unless it's a cluster B fucking my brains out cowgirl style and shit even then you can flip her around, ha.

Ex-Wife gets half, about $4.5bn, along with daughter's custody

31 upvotes · 20 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

a husband and wife are supposed to be a team

$4.5bn for 23 years worth of cleaning and cooking has to be the most overpaid domestic servant that ever lived, pretty sure he could have employed 100 servants to do all that shit and still not even spend .1bn of his fortune. The reasoning for such a large divorce settlement is hilarious, that domestic chores equal exactly half of whatever the parent working on the market makes. Its simple really, find out what the going rate is for a cook and a cleaner and pay her 23 years salary at once, factor in inflation and any raises you may have gave. No damages should be awarded because shes the one initiating breach of contract, not him. If we say at a flat figure she's entitled to $40k a year, thats $920k for 23 years work, a far more reasonable figure, not $4.5bn lmfaao the bitch is on crack if she thinks she's getting that. He's got enough cash to kill, bribe and pay off whoever he needs to, fucking with somebody that rich is dangerous, I wish her luck because she's going to need it. This is about the biggest violation of law 1 that's humanly possible.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

31 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women like this and the lack of accountability they have to society for engaging in such behaviour is a very large part of why trp exists. It's not the only reason, but if there were a 10 commandments of sorts this one would be up there. The maxim or idea that "women can get away with murder because they're women."

Ultimately, RP philosophy would say it's not her fault. If he had been more alpha and put harsher boundaries in place, kept fucking her well and been dominant she wouldn't have strayed, and truefully, doing those things may have reduced her need to "look elsewhere" it sounds like she wasn't enjoying the sexy with her husband and so the marriage fucked up, but ultimately she is accountable for her own actions, they both bare blame, and she is coming out of this way better than he is. It's easier for women to get sex than it is for men and the courts de facto favour them in family matters.

The fact that society would once scorn and shame her for this behaviour to encourage her to sustain the family she committed herself to rather than engage in selfish behaviour or try to spruce up the sex with her husband by helping him become more alpha is the reason why TRP exists.

Men are not allowed to falter, as soon as a man is off his game, even to a slightly noticeable degree, a woman is getting ready to walk away, despite all their rhetoric of saying men are afraid of commitment, it is they who are so quick to give up on their own commitments and abandon their men in searches of greener pastures.

Women are getting away with murder and nobody bats an eyelid, they are not held accountable. Despite her being the one to break the marriage vows, the courts would give her everything. It's a justice system without justice and it's why we have this community, so that despite the perversity of fucked up occurrences such as this one we can all do our best to live well and avoid finding ourselves in similar situations.

You have to understand the game to be a player, once you're a player you improve yourself until you have power. Once you have power you can mitigate exploitation and maximise enjoyment. TRP in a nutshell - get powerful and realise women can be the undoing of your power if you allow their exploitative natures (the culmination of both their psychology and sexuality) to take hold of you.

Stood up a girl for the first time in my life.

31 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Now I see these women for the users and sponges they are.

My intention is not to undermine your confidence, but the fact you let it get that far to begin with suggests you still have a ways to go, I don't pay for bitches, let alone pay for their friends and still agree to a date. I also wouldn't have made excuses I would have flatout been like "yeah you want free dinner for you and your friends and that's a price I'm not willing to pay to fuck you, take care now sweetie!" You gotta burn a bitch in style. Sounds like she targeted you specifically and had you down as a chump, the only reason her execution failed is because she got greedy with how much she was going to rinse you for.

How Women Complicate Men's Lives....MUST WATCH

31 upvotes · 2 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Her ego demands he emotionally validate her, his indifference to whether she swung by or not is what bothered her. He answered her question with indifference but that was not satisfactory for her, she wanted him to expose his feelings by either outright rejecting her or satisfying her need to feel desired, the I don't give a fuck attitude was something she couldn't handle so she did this weird mind-game of trying to get him to care. Ironically the mind-game was what made him go from not giving a fuck to not even wanting to see her at all. Women do this shit all the time.

Blue piller accidentally, gave us more ammo on why we dislike sluts and that women are gatekeepers to sex and men are gatekeepers to commitment!

31 upvotes · 9 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I despise any and all references to the blue pill subreddit, great thread but don't give these people the attention they want.

They dedicate their time to ridiculing this forums philosophy and efforts at self-improvement by caricaturing it out of strawmans and ridiculing it "for lols." (because they're mad and care too much) All that wasted time on nothing actually constructive tells you a lot about the kind of person who actively participates there. Not the type of person you want to expend any energy on, they're losers. They're throwing their precious time away on something that rewards no net benefit whatsoever. So worthless.

Young women 'now earning more than men'

31 upvotes · 9 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly what I was thinking. Exploiting your cleavage to get ahead.

Let me think, 21 year old girl I fucked the other month said she was going to wear heels and a low crop top for her new job paying £9 an hour that she has no qualifications for, said she had to look good for the boss if she wanted to keep the job she just got. She flirted in the interview.

Chick at uni says her boss is a total pervert, she works in a bar and has her tits on show, she says the boss keeps checking her out, she's 19 he's in his 40's. She said the other day she threw drink over him multiple times for saying things she didn't like, I asked her if she got sacked (if I did that to my boss as a man, I'd be sacked) she said "no I just told him to look at my tits"

EX GF when she would go to interviews would go into what I call "maximum make-up mode" and again wear a blouse with the top 3 buttons undone, allowing you to see the sides of her tits. She'd also flirt with the interviewer assuming it was male.

Young girls like male interviewers/bosses so they can sexually manipulate them for their own gain, if the interviewer was female this wouldn't work.

Yeah young girls abuse their sexuality and then when they hit the wall they bitch about how good men have it ironically forgetting how they lived up their teens and twenties like everyday was a party.

Whatever, nothing new here, pre-wall bitches living it up.. we'll have our schadenfreude post-wall.

Young women always had it easier than young men, pre-feminism or post-feminism.

Feminism is about Population Control

31 upvotes · 29 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I read some shit on the internet ages ago saying elite jewish bankers wanted revenge for auschwitz so they essentially funded the already existing feminist movement and propelled it from "the occult" into the mainstream to reduce the caucasian gene pool. Now that is a conspiracy theory, whether it's true or not I have not enough information to accurately deduce.

Now, coincidence or conspiracy, whilst the caucasians are flooded with multiculturalism the Jews for the first time in history got a nation to call their own after World War 2 by displacing the muslim population of the previous British Mandate of Palestine and declaring it the state of Israel. The jews were meant to share Palestine with the arabs in a United Nations partition, but instead they took over most of the country and left the muslims with the gaza strip and the Palestinian territories which are tiny bits of land scattered around the borders of Israel.

The international community no longer recognises Palestine as a country post World War 2. Of course Israel is not multicultural, it's aim is to be homogeneously Jewish in religious faith. Israel is heavily funded by the US and has political lobbies in both the UK and US. Israel is also heavily suspected of having nuclear weapons and has amassed an impressive military but it has no UN sanctions imposed on it whilst simultaneously Iran gets threatened for even trying to construct a nuclear powerplant.

The funny thing about the lower birthrates in the traditionally caucasian countries is that these same countries introduce multiculturalism and mass immigration as their base population dwindles furthering the dilution of the base culture, there are people out there who truly believe there is some sort of plot to wipe out the caucasian race because there are no homogeneously white countries left, it's the only major race on the planet at the moment (not a minor race as in - inuits, aborigines etc) that cannot call one nation it's home, the ancestral homes of the caucasian ethnicity in Europe have been flooded by third world african and islamic immigration under the attempt at unifying Europe into one federal superstate like the USA, this attempt is known as the European Union or colloquially "the EU."

The UK had almost negligible immigration until 1960, now it's a multiculturalist utopia in the main cities, a quick turn around in the past 50 years. Letting Pakistan into the commonwealth and inviting muslims from rural villages who operate in a tribalistic culture to come and live and work in the UK had to be one of the most perverse measures the UK government ever implemented, an extremely bold social engineering attempt.

A now dead British parliamentarian The Right Honourable Enoch Powell who stood for the conservatives among other parties, a role model for the also now dead Right Honourable Baroness Margaret Thatcher economic policies decried the emigration of pakistani villagers from rural Pakistan into UK towns and cities, he was a Cambridge educated man with much public support and was known infamously for his anti-immigration speech "rivers of blood" to liberals he is an abomination, to nationalists and those who wanted to maintain a homogenous culture, he was a hero for having the balls to stand up and say NO.

The same site provided some graphs saying at current birth rates, caucasians would go from 36% (I think it was 36? It was quite high, my memory elludes me here) of the world in the 1950 to a lower double digit figure of around 11-12% in 2050, making them the fastest declining ethnicity and probably the second smallest major ethnicity overall. Now If these statistics are correct, I wonder if in 2050 whites would get ethnic minority privileges, or would the now ethnic majority continue to enjoy their old privileges and protection from scrutiny on the grounds of racism? That's an interesting can of worms.

Tokyo and South Korea also suffer from low birth rate and feminism, but unlike the caucasian nations have not adopted mass immigration and multiculturalism and thus maintain traditional homogenous cultures.

I love making controversial posts such as this, it will simultaneously enlighten and piss off and really test the mettle of one's social programming. I look forward to responses.

Public Oral Sex At Ohio University Blows Up On Social Media, Rape Alleged only after video released

31 upvotes · 16 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Counter-prosecute for libel.

Was the cock tower post removed?

31 upvotes · 8 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- Women are the gatekeepers to sex
- Men are the gatekeepers to commitment
- A man getting sex takes skill

- A woman getting sex takes not being ugly and telling a guy she wants him

So to answer your question: Yes, this is one of the few double standards that benefits men. Although you could argue that as men don't just get sex on their own terms whenever they want like most women can, that it's well justified. At least there's logic to it though and not just "privilege because feminism"

Can women really tell the difference?

31 upvotes · 11 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women tend to live in delusions, as do men who have gone through the feminised education system, been surrounded by women all their lives with absent dads and etc. If the woman was forced to use deductive reasoning she'd arrive at the same, or similar conclusions we do. Instead they rationalise all their choices which may seem weak or superficial as being for more "noble" or acceptable reasons but these "noble reasons" for liking a man are usually connected to an unverifiable source of reasoning. Most humans are selfish, you view relationships with men as "what you can get out of it" reason for attraction: "oh he just helps people it's so nice!" = does not compute. Gimme a break.

EG: I want a man who helps people, not for the money/status. Like you said: Why not date a male nurse then? Further rationalisation: the nurse isn't as dedicated as the surgeon because he didn't get as far.

It's fucking bullshit. She gives little fuck about the health of society, she cares about herself and her needs and she sees the surgeon as someone with more status who's better equipped to provide her the material things she desires in exchange for pussy. That's basically it. Hypergamy. Your status/wealth really factors in to your SMV.

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/06/20/smv-ratios-attachment/>

Equality is making women miserable

31 upvotes · 5 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Been summed up many times before, feminism is "special rights" for women, treating them like a minority of some kind when they're a majority. Feminism is providing opportunity to women at the expense of men, and then instilling laws which protect them from having any legal or social accountability for when they fuck up their opportunity EG: no fault divorce, if a man cheats and she divorces he can be taken to the cleaners, if a woman cheats and she divorces he's still taken to the cleaners. The system is sexist and supremacist in that it's designed to benefit one gender, and with feminist support no doubt. Feminism is overtly sexist but uses political correctness, mirrors and victim cards to justify its extremism.

Equality wouldn't work anyway as women are hypergamous (90% of UK women MARRY a man who is wealthier than them!) but modern western feminism hasn't created equality, it's created female supremacy. There is no fucking support for men. Calling it equality is a contortion of the meaning of the word. Taking power from men decade upon decade whilst empowering women is not equality. It's already obvious the hand tips in the favour of women, so when will they stop, when will this ideology just fuck off? How low does the birth rate need to become, how many criminals raised by single mothers do we need in prison? This civilization is crumbling to this bullshit and it's fucking sad, because the west (more specifically, England) is responsible for the modern industrial era, computers and by extension - this subreddit. Oh how the mighty have fallen. Feminism is great population control when you marry it up to the pill if you think about it btw.

Observed my daughter using/abusing a Beta: She's 11

30 upvotes · 15 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a far more concise explanation than my glib dismissal of academic attitudes to psychopathy. I've no disagreements. Have an upvote.

Guy finds out that his girlfriend settled for him because Chad wouldn't commit to her, gets RP advice from his (female) cousin, decides to kick his girlfriend to the curb.

30 upvotes · 30 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Lack of logic + solipsism + rationalisation hamster + fuck all experience of being a man = why getting advice from women is dumb as fuck.

This article essentially sums up why you don't take advice from women on much of anything, but especially on relationships (their favourite subject:)

<http://illimitablemen.com/2015/06/30/the-nature-of-women/>

That Ended Up Hilarious! Comedian Handles Racial Tension Perfectly: Textbook Example of Holding Frame.

30 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Submissive people who did nothing wrong get vilified and end up scapegoated, even, dare I say it, victimised. Dominant people who do everything wrong get vilified, but by refusing to apologise resist scapegoating and are near universally loved. A perverse quirk of humanity.

The fucked up thing about victim politics is that human psychological aggression constantly seeks an acceptable target. Gaslight someone they are evil or somehow in the wrong, and should they accept the label, it then becomes socially acceptable to bully/ridicule and threaten such people. This is exactly how the SJW mob operates. And note how a woman will never admit she's in the wrong. Woman know this intrinsically at the deepest most sub-conscious level, and play the victim/pity angle as a source of power in the gender war with perfection.

The Red Pill Handbook

30 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My publisher even knows about TRP, I've talked to them about it when I was considering doing a male 50 shades.

I for one would be very interested to hear how exactly that conversation went down.

My imagination tells me it went something like this:

"I wanna do a male version of 50 shades, I know it'll sell bucketloads"

"Why?"

"I'm on this forum on Reddit called the red pill, where you lift weights, spin plates and copiously debunk feminism"

"Spin plates?"

"Yeah, you know, dread game the shit out of women and get tons of pussy whilst sussing the absolute fuck out of the feminine imperative."

"Dread game? Feminine Imperative?"

"You need to read the sidebar."

Avoid 'The Shut Down' at all costs and maintain your frame.

30 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If he can't tell your mother to button it, he doesn't deserve to lead a town. That's nature's logic.

Bear Grylls the Island (keeping you guys updated)

30 upvotes · 24 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Ugly women can't use their sexuality to get what they want, so they learn to work for things the hard way in life just as most men must.

Monk mode - losing charisma. Forgetting how to flirt.

30 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You need a social hobby dude. This is what happens when you're home alone too much. Make sure you get out the house and see the world everyday, fresh air and seeing nature is important. Even if it's just for a walk. Join a sports club of some kind. Have long phone conversations. Keep them social juices flowing. You never lose the skill anyway, it just becomes latent. No need to freak out. Just make the necessary adjustments and you'll "be yourself" in no time. As for the hairdresser... why is a chick cutting your hair? I always find men do a much better job on my hair than chicks. Chicks aren't that interesting either, if you're not hitting on her she's probably going to be boring.

Like /u/ArchWinger's new thread says "don't forget to have fun." Sometimes we get so caught up in the grind we lose ourselves to it. I make it a personal thing to talk shit and watch comedy because a life full of seriousness and devoid of fun just isn't one worth living. It drives you insane. Gotta keep the humour up and the banter flowing. Best of luck OP. Time to recalibrate.

PS: if you hate sport or are so out of shape it would kill you, aside from fixing that, check out comedy clubs in your local area.

Can someone please provide some explanation or analysis over what the hell is wrong with the men in Japan, and what exactly happened to them?

30 upvotes · 28 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Unlike anything he's ever experienced or heard of. Women outnumber men in bars/clubs 2-3 to 1.

getting drinks for free from "desperate" women, he realized the situation he was in.

Dude has over 300 sex tapes to prove it to me whereas he was getting laid maybe once a month here in the states.

Never underestimate the power of supply and demand.

It sounds like Japanese women are operating on permanent dread.

Prostitute Game

30 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's like Patrice O'Neal said: "In order to get fish, a bitch needs to be able to smell fish on you."

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

30 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

At least you have taken a side. We may not agree, but I respect the fact you have a solid stance on it. Even though it's not our fault, I believe men have to just "suck it up" or otherwise shit doesn't work (LTRs.) Life isn't fair and that's all bullshit, but whatever, it is what it is. If the method works then it works. What pisses me off most is the flexibility of "she's just as reasonable as you" and then the switch to "it's not her fault, you're a faggot that needs to lift more her daddy issues aren't the problem" whenever it fucking suits. Dissonance everywhere. Too much dissonance.

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

30 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

but YOU, how do YOU fix it?

I would have to write an essay to answer that, if this question is tantamount to "how can we make it worth it to get men to reintegrate into society?"

A LOT would have to change. And at this stage, it's all intellectual masturbation. Dropping out is pragmatic, and I don't blame men for deciding "to fucking hell with it all." We're at the stage where we're all trying to carve out our own idea of happiness in effectively what is the carcass of a decaying civilization.

I'm subbed to your blog, I enjoy what you write and I am very interested to hear your thoughts on the matter.

Glad you enjoy it. I usually Reddit a rant every once in a while just to stir the pot and rustle some jimmies, but I tend not to post rants to the blog.

Other rants, if rant reading is your thing:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2ik6et/there_is_a_new_masculinity_wherein_women_betas/cl2w0ao

/r/TheRedPill/comments/2gqt8l/what_ive_learned_from_the_women_in_my_family/cklqpji

Everyone should download and read all of LaidNYC's blog posts. Link inside

30 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you don't have a mission as of yet, you have bigger problems than worrying about getting women or what women think. You don't even know what you want. Find out what you want, find out what you like, then find a way to get paid to do what you like and make a business out of it. Profit. Men who don't know what they want tend to drift along in life purposeless, don't be one of those men.

From September to October 2014 there was a job surge of 538k 90% of the jobs went to woman.

30 upvotes · 9 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Most the jobs were in the food sector which is looking for young attractive woman.

Yeah they want to use woman's sex appeal to give their business a desirable appearance. It's always been this way. Young, attractive women have an easier time finding work in bars, pubs, restaurants, fast food and anything else which involves food, and/or alcohol and socialising (think Hooters.) They have high SMV (as well as the halo effect working for them) and a hot girl brings all her orbiters when she gets a job somewhere which means more repeat custom and $$$ for the business owners. I don't know why there's a sudden spike now, I thought it was always that way. Young guys in comparison have yet to hit their stride so in terms of competing with young pretty women and older more experienced people for low skilled work, they get a hard time. Life's a bitch.

I'll give you an anecdote about my ex-girlfriend. She used to do bar work. Each bar she worked at she had old well-off guys coming in and hitting on her, buying her drinks and just generally validating the shit out of her all night. If your girl is a bar girl, it's bad for your relationship. It encourages them to be narcissistic because the customers will gas her up with compliments and chat up lines all night. One drink too many when she stays behind after closing and WHOOPS she's just fucked a charismatic senior who's had his horny old eye on her the past 6 months. Trust me, when an old dude really likes a chick he will keep visiting the joint and keep pursuing the girl until he gets it in (fuck all abundance mentality.) If she never yields, the same dude will be there flirting 3 years on, still spending his dollar at the same joint still flirting with the same bar girl. This is the kinda dude who's still hitting the spot up when the girl's left for another job asking "Where is girl's name? I liked her." It's kinda sad and simultaneously hilarious that a dude can like a chick so much based on so little. The kind of old dude I'm describing generally isn't high SMV. They have money from years of working and some savings built up, but they tend to be lonely/divorced types who frequent bars solo for the company.

Are Male Feminists Getting Laid?

30 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"I suddenly had some vivid memories of my past life as a tortoise. I think they were trigged by the Japanese food I had eaten. I recalled the family I lived with. I was able to see their faces and hear them speaking this time. They were Japanese. They had a son who looked like he was about 5 or 6. He put a lettuce leaf in front of me. This could explain why I have been questioning my ethnicity and why have I been feeling like I might be Japanese. It's because in a past life I was a Japanese tortoise! Now that I know the reason why I have felt like I may be transethnic, I am not sure if I should stop questioning my ethnicity and just identify as cisethnic or continue questioning my ethnicity as well as begin exploring the possibility that I may be tortoisekin."

This bitch is on fucking crack man.

Did any of you start out as genuinely nice guys and then become more cutthroat and aggressive? Did any of you start out as religious but lost faith?

30 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is the men who are used to being calculating/assholish with women who then bring that demeanour to me, as a man. That shit won't fly and they ostracise themselves from any favours I could potentially grant them by behaving like that. Too many assholes running their asshole game on other guys with the constant insecure dick swinging contests. Got no time for that shit. None at all. What attracts women repels other men. Men don't love cuntish personalities, only women dig that shit.

SMV at work in real time, hilariously

30 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fame is an aphrodisiac. The weirdest, awkwardest, most unattractive and feminine guy can drown in high SMV pussy if he's famous. A lot of gen Y's correlate internet fame with actual fame. Funnily enough, the line between the two is blurring and becoming ever thinner. Someone with a few million fans can probably get real life work independent of their own brand based on the fact they already have a dedicated following (eg: a movie role, a book deal, meet celebs - whatever.) 2 millions fans is 2 million attempts to sell shit to people who are engaged with that particular personality. They make a book or sell a shirt with their brand/twist applied to it at $10 a pop? That's serious bank. That, and the fact the ad money alone with those kind of numbers is astronomical. What surprises me is how people can make the dumbest shit, stick it on youtube/insta and get millions of fans. Like think about it for a second - this is apparently comedy - yet this guy has more fans/a bigger following than patrice o neal did. That's fucked up. I don't get it. How a comic genius like Patrice is so underrated, and how some kid in his early 20's is so overrated.

ELI5: The Red Pill = Value

30 upvotes · 16 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Live to make yourself happy, not other people. You're the one who has to live with yourself for the rest of your life, not them. Don't wilfully and blindly be another man's puppet.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

30 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Tell them what they should find attractive. See how far that goes.

The ultimate conversation ender: 50 shades of grey. Women love all manners of fucked up. She is in no position to judge anyone.

Men are delaying marriage to age 29, but men over 30 are more hesitant to wed

30 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're wife's friend's man is a fucking idiot. If your fiancé is delaying marriage with you because she wants to rape her previous man for alimony, that should be a massive red flag. I know I wouldn't marry a woman who was doing that to another man. It shows what she's capable of. If she's done it before she can do it again, only this time to you. Wow. Some guys are just fucking retarded.

Confidence is NOT key and wishful thinking won't turn you into an alpha.

30 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The red pill is a matrix metaphor for opening your eyes to the world, we do not claim improving yourself is easy, in fact, quite the contrary.

[Meta] What to me (long time redditor) makes this sub more legitimate than many others.

30 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP is more accepting and helpful than any groups that claim to be accepting and looking for equality.

Accepting of everything EXCEPT feminism and poor logic, the two pretty much go hand in hand but are of course, not exclusive.

We're also pretty anti-egalitarian, being a self-improvement sub we're instead pro-meritocratic, some members still hold out hope for egalitarianism, but those people are holding on to idealism and dewy eyed dreams of a better tomorrow, it goes against everything the environment teaches, we're a hierarchical species, women attach themselves to powerful men and weak men get left with nothing, that's how it is. Egalitarianism is a myth. I'm an intellectual myself, but I see things for what they are, so when a fellow intellectual starts espousing idealistic nonsense about fairness and cohesiveness and equality I cannot be assed to engage, literally, for what is the umpteenth time, in debunking this completely unsubstantiated line of mickey mouse reasoning that said person has been indoctrinated with. Through encountering many people who are indoctrinated with politically correct/feminist dogma, I've learnt to assess when my mental faculty and logic will be wasted in argument, if I assess that someone is not sufficiently open-minded or will be far too demanding of my faculty (Eg: claims they want to be convinced but is very intellectually stubborn and resistant in opening up to my line of reasoning) then I deduce the endeavour is a bad use of my time and I refrain from discourse.

Ultimately, the type of person I have just described, is the type of person who finds themselves incredibly disappointed in life. They do not live in reality, they live in a projection of fantasy of which they have convinced themselves is a tangible possibility, they overlook a hell of a lot and rationalise that which they do not overlook in order to reconcile fantasy into a form of digestible truth.

These people are what we call bluepillers. These are the people we do not tolerate sharing their views, their views lack value to us because they are based in fantasy rather than reality. The #1 rule of this sub is if you're going to talk, it better not be with bullshit. If you talk with bullshit, you will not be tolerated. Just because we have a succinct, stern posture on this, doesn't mean we're dim-witted handymen limited to speaking in "straighttalk", what it means is that we're accustomed to dealing with the truth, and the truth only, regardless of whether rhetoric is used.

Many times someone with an above average ability to argue the semantics out of something will come on here, nitpick at a crevice in an argument, and take part in what I like to refer to as "academic antagonism" by arguing possibilities, definitions and all sorts of things in order to chip away at a position. Ultimately it always concludes with the bigotry that in the absence of evidence (a scientific study which they find to be of repute) that the hypothesis must be deduced false/incorrect. When the irony to this is, science sets to either prove or disprove the hypothesis but claims no certainty until either has been achieved, these people use the absence of scientific proof to say the hypothesis must be wrong, this is a hasty generalisation, as there is no proof here to say these things are wrong. Its hilarious when bluepillers think the absence of evidence is evidence in and of itself that something is wrong by the merit of being unproven, they confuse the state of being "unproven by scientific study" as being "disproven by the absence of scientific study" this is fallacious thinking, ultimately the absence of evidence means that something has neither been proven nor disproven, however the person positing the hypothesis has a predilection or leaning in one direction or the other as a hypothesis must usually take a position to be tested (especially in social sciences.)

Much of the hypothesis here is based upon social observation, it is not completely unsubstantiated and made-up, sure it is subjective and not subject to scientific rigour, many things are not, we don't all exist in an academic bubble that is the educational establishment, it is simply elitist to deduce that if an idea does not stem from academia, that it is not credible, I see this argumentum ab auctoritate all the time from people on reddit, especially our detractors, when you corroborate many similar observations across a vast cross-section of the population from multiple cities and nations of similar culture, plausible sentiments start to overwhelmingly present themselves as ideas which demand respect regardless of whether the scientific powers that be will confirm or deny such observations by giving them validity via the academic process and the educational institutions.

What one needs to be very aware of is that, in the market of free ideas, educational establishments have become increasingly politicised, they are not the objective bastions of free thought that they claim to be, if you're not allowed to oppose an ideology in the realm of so-called intellectuals, then said establishment can hardly claim to be objective. Institutionalising feminism is like institutionalising religion, it is subjective, intellectually dishonest and inconsiderate of those who do not follow, conform or otherwise abide to said belief system.

What one must be aware of is that the institutions of education themselves are pro-feminist environments, this essentially politicises the administration of the educational environment and the social science faculty therein with ideology that holds their respective disciplines hostage to the core tenets of it's belief system rather than promoting legitimate objective scientific processes to take place. Then you must bare in mind how many professors and lecturers start to identify as being feminist and then you see a real picture starting to build up, how many of these people in fact cannot profess to be teachers in the objective sense of the manner, as they infuse their teachings with their personal values and beliefs, passing this bias off as "education" when the intellectuals among us in the truest sense of the word, those with a critical mind, are capable of piercing the veil and seeing this display of bullshit for what it really is, a farce.

Edit: grammar/typos/spacing.

Duke porn-star in her own words: "Patriarchy fears female sexuality."

30 upvotes · 22 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Patriarchy loves female sexuality, nearly all women are sexually submissive, like if you want an arbitrary percentage we'll say 99.9%.

50 shades of grey motherfuckers its a bestseller, I love the fact women en-masse went and bought that book because now when they deny the true nature of their sexuality you can just shut them the fuck up into silence by dropping the 50 shades bomb. Yes you hate to be submissive you just read the worlds most "rapey" book and get off to it sure mmmmkay. Clearly it's bought for the fact it's so well-written... no wait... I think GayLubeOil writes better literature.

Equity Private Blog: Business school hypergamy, infidelity, sluttiness.

30 upvotes · 25 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm in a business school we need to get placements and due to my RP demeanour girls have said to me straight out they'd fuck a guy to get a placement.

Women trade pussy for favours, prostitution is the oldest job in the world.

Saying "all women are prostitutes" is something of a half truth. She may not always be selling but if the price is right you can bet your ass...

Long Term Inner-Game - You can't be dependent on her love and you can't share your weaknesses with her if you want to keep her, among other nuggets of wisdom (bullet pointed)

30 upvotes · 15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We should advocate mental lifting for mental gymnastics.

Young doctor wonders why women are suddenly after him. Gets slaughtered by hamsters on r/askwomen. These are redpill truths in action.

30 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women have no physical strength and thus have biologically adapted a natural aptness for bending the truth and manipulating men as a survival method. They can then use this to make men fight each other.

The Manipulated Man by Esther Vilar is worth a read, it's a depressing read but it's fucking true. Ironical it was written by a woman, she took a lot of heat for that.

Problems with a specific girl? We've got your answer!

30 upvotes · 26 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Low quality bitches exist to be nexted

Girlfriend leaves boyfriend in public for Ferrari driver

30 upvotes · 6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She doesn't realise she's making our case for us when she does shit like that.

Here is another reason not to marry. You don't want to foot the bill for her student loan debt she got pursuing a worthless degree.

30 upvotes · 16 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriage is for rich idiots who love donating their money to hoes. If you value your money you work for then fuck that. Marriage is pro-women and anti-male, so fuck marriage.

<-- Pro family, anti-marriage.

FR: My Plate (22f) uses emotions to get me (41m) to give her "more" Bonus features: Beta Butthurt running rampant.

29 upvotes · 7 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

He dreaded her with power talk, bloody marvellous. Such innocent words for an ultimatum. And she ate that shit up. Haha!

"I'd rather you be completely content with someone else than be miserable with me."

Translates to "accept my terms or fuckoff" in straight talk

The most intolerant wins - the dominance of the stubborn minority

29 upvotes · 27 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He is evidently, although with plausible deniability (because they're crazy as fuck) referring to the growing muslim minorities in European/anglo states. And he's right. Camp of the Saints is a french novel written entirely on this principle, one of Nassim's aphorisms from Bed of Procrustes even alludes to this:

"France took Algeria hoping for a country to eat cassoulet, and instead France is now eating couscous."

Of course I don't want to make this entire thread about religion, I could give less of a fuck about discussing that here, however it does demonstrate the principle well - "the most intolerant wins."

I believe I too allude to this in my Machiavellian Thinking vs. Conventional Logic essay.

Your struggle and pain? Women neither understand nor give much of a fuck.

29 upvotes · 3 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women want to be the centre of your world, but not the pillar of your strength. Easy for naive guys to confuse this.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

29 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Even if they're not narcissistic, you're getting raised as a beta.

Narcissistic mothers are bad.

Single mothers are bad.

Narcissistic single mothers are a fucking shit storm.

Loser is one of the most devastating insults you can hit a woman with.

29 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why women like assholes. They spend all their time in a narcissistic bubble. And you come along and call her a cunt. Before you know it, she's doubting herself and admiring your boldness patrice o'neal style.

Pseudo-Feminism is trying to take over India. What do you guys think about this video posted by an Indian actress?

29 upvotes · 25 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What this means for you is that more and more girls will "experiment" around before finally settling down with a schmuck too stupid to know any better.

Meaning more and more women become narcissistic soulless bimbos who want to use you for every penny and skill you're worth, before discarding you to do the same to another idiotic man when an opportunity presents itself (and it will.) The cock carousel has a knack for making neurotic psychopaths out of otherwise perfectly good women. You ever met a warm, motherly, loving woman who rode 100+ cocks? Me neither.

The hormone that makes people not want sex rises more rapidly in women than in men as relationships progress.

29 upvotes · 7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Now imagine feeling like that all the time and not giving a fuck about sex - that's a woman in a relationship with a beta male. Of course when she sees Chad Thundercock's protruding phallus erect a tent in his tight Calvin Klein boxers, that prolactive feeling quickly goes away and is replaced by 50 shades of estrogen.

Womens need for biological children/selfishness/expiration dates

29 upvotes · 22 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Posts like this concern me greatly with how society refuses to talk about how selfish we as a species are, but how its far more acceptable for women to be so than men.

I've said this many times, and it always pisses off people who haven't really swallowed the red pill:

Man's love is sacrificial, women's is opportunistic. I think I've even eluded to this in the red pill constitution. Shit, I think Rollo also said something along these lines, although I came to this conclusion before reading his content. It is because our love is sacrificial, that we are romantic. It is because we can be better that all men are expected to be better although sadly, not all men will make it. (EDIT: Yep, it's points 11 and 12 in the constitution.)

Men are the romantic ones because they get so sacrificially invested in women, they commit to a point where the blinders come on and they stop seeing women for who they truly are, but rather what they wish them to be. This is how men are in love, irrational. They see them as what they want them to be because they don't want to think all their sacrifice is in vain. They have hope. They want to believe that women "are worth it." This is the power of your commitment gentlemen. It really is gold dust. Women may act like spoilt brats entitled to your love, but it's only because when you love - YOU TRULY LOVE. You provide tangible value both physically and spiritually - that is why your commitment is so powerful, that's what gives it worth, and sadly most men are entirely fucking unaware of how precious their commitment is, in fact society has got them thinking THEY'RE THE LUCKY ONES FOR GETTING THE GIRL!) It really is all fucking ass backwards.

I think even the Ancient Greeks said man's love has more depth than woman's, that men love more deeply. This is why whenever someone tells me "I'm lucky to have her" I say with the biggest shit-eating grin, right from the core: "No, you are mistaken - she is lucky to have me." It's always fun to gauge reactions in these scenarios - someone with a "red pill mentality" will understand, a blue piller will just think you're being cocky, they won't perceive the underlying thought behind that.

Your love for her transcends anything she is even capable of feeling for you. She likes to think her love for you is special and that nothing can beat that, but that's typical feminine ego - valuing her own emotions over objective reality. She compels herself to believe that because she feels strongly, her love is more valuable than yours, but we don't measure love in how strongly it consumes you, but more HOW YOU BEHAVE because of what you feel. Objectively, the idea her love is more valuable than yours is patently false. All this bullshit about "owning the keys to her heart" is all egotistical feminine bullshit. Her heart isn't worth shit next to yours. Yes, as a man, her being in love with you is incredibly precious to you, but that's because you value the honeymoon phaze, you value her projection of innocence when she is in love with you. But it is you that made all that possible, if you weren't the fucking shit, she would treat you like shit - that's how conditional their love is.

Objectively it is men that do more for women than vice versa, and they are expected to do so - and this is why these double standards seem so common in spite of all the feminist lunacy going on. Yes, there's a lot of doublethink going on, men are evil members of the patriarchy but they're also making all the sacrifices at the same time. It's so obvious, that when you put these contradictions next to each other you'd be hard-pressed to see how feminism even gained any serious legitimacy, but alas, that's what happens when culty ideologies such as third wave feminism take over all of society's core institutions. They preach until people know no better. There's an actual word for that. It's called inculcation.

This is also why the hierarchy of love is Men > Women > Children, women just can't love us in the way that we love them. This is why part of the mind fuck of the red pill for many men is that she gets to seek out daddy in a man - and get that, but if you seek out mummy in a girl - you're going to be sorely disappointed - the game isn't fixed like that, nature gave women the better deal on that front, she gets to have the man of her dreams, but the girl of your dreams is a unicorn - SHE DOESN'T EXIST. This all assumes of course said woman can obtain your commitment, and as OP eludes to women without male commitment ARE DESPERATE to secure it from a man of value. The women who get that commitment are "the lucky ones," the rest become cat ladies. But at least women have a chance at getting "their knight in shining armour" aka, the high value man who commits and "loves them for them."

For men, there is no unicorn, you are always the final port of call, the love and the strength flowing downward from you throughout the family: to woman and child - good male friends are your only real refuge: not a woman (and don't make that mistake, it's a classic BP mistake to think you can entrust your insecurities/fears/secrets to your woman, you can't, and no matter how much she begs for you to open up, it's the most insidious of subconscious shit tests they pull, DO NOT DO IT IF YOU VALUE THE FUTURE OF THE RELATIONSHIP.) Consciously she wants to know, thinking it'll bring you closer. However unbeknownst to her, her lizard brain will make her think you're weak and she'll think less of you. She may even feel bad for thinking less of you, but she will and you can't undo that - so don't even bother. Women are so fucking flawed they don't even realise how flawed they are, that's why you have to listen to other men when it comes to dealing with women, and not the crap that women come out with.

You don't love a woman "based on what she can do for you" you love her because you've poured yourself, your essence, your aspirations, your time - into her. Women never love us like that, because they don't do that. We give and they take. At best, they support us enough to allow them to continue taking from us, but mark my words: relationships are a far better deal for women than they are for men, that's why they're so obsessed with them. They use us for our strength, they lean on us, they take our resources - and if they deplete us to a point of weakness: they discard us. You're no longer "man enough." Women are the biggest shit test nature ever threw at man, most men would find it easier to get to the moon than properly understand and manage a woman. Thank goodness for the collective brain power of men everywhere and with it: TRP.

Filtering out the 80% of men: Woman from Stanford to create "Elite Tinder App"

29 upvotes · 23 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The app leans significantly towards fulfilling female preferences anyway. Majority of men don't give a fuck if she's educated, they just want someone innocent/sweet and attractive. This "elite" shit complements hypergamy/women's status chasing nicely. Yeah sure some guys wanna power couple it up for political reasons, but the bulk of men would happily marry down if the woman was pleasant enough.

It's women who will want this app the most as it's they who want to marry up/across and the webpage says the app has slightly more women than men on it, I won't be surprised if that trend keeps up. A lot of men who have been burned more than a few times know career women tend to be cunts. Especially those who went to top schools and shit. Fully on that "I'm an independent women I don't need no man but I want one that's better than me anyway bullshit." It's been said here before, the more a woman educates herself the smaller the pool of men she is capable of being attracted to becomes. A lot of career women end up alone, they are, after all, getting more college places, graduating more, and getting hired easier/in record numbers due to affirmative action and shit. Some even say they're graded less harshly too. I'm not sure about that. But I'm not sure all this female prosperity is organic, more like socially engineered.

The Red Pill is even tougher to swallow for girls

29 upvotes · 30 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminine beauty is effectively the gift that is it's own curse.

First woman to make Virginia Beach's SWAT department sued the department for millions of dollars.. Now the officers named in the suit are now suing the city, maintaining that the "discrimination" she faced was merely due to her inability to perform her duties.

29 upvotes · 27 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Politics doesn't give a fuck about logic if that logic threatens its ideological power base.

How is it really like being a single male in your 30s?

29 upvotes · 17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha it's funny, because these are the same women who often exclusively or primarily date older guys because "he's so much more mature"

Which is partly true, but also you have a boatload more money/confidence and come off as more masculine in general. Men age like wine, women age like milk.

Every last one of you.

29 upvotes · 26 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah bro you better not fucking drive there.

Shit test: wife fills the cupboards with crap food

29 upvotes · 26 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I said she would weaponise her responsibility, I didn't say you shouldn't give her any. By being able to cook yourself, you have a contingency plan for when she decides to abandon her responsibility, to your detriment. You always need that. A contingency plan. It is naive to think, especially with a wife with a bad track record, that she is completely dependable. You like to think the person you signed a marriage contract with is dependable, but the little information we have to go on here suggests otherwise.

A woman who refuses to read even a fucking book to benefit her family is IMO, a very shitty, lazy wife. By the sounds of it, from what I have to go on here, it sounds like your marriage is anything but captain/first mate. Your wife is outright disrespecting your authority and not in a small way. Shit tests that take the form of actions rather than words are nuclear shit tests. Verbal shit tests are normal and stem from insecurity/curiosity/boundary determination. Nuclear shit tests are just flagrant acts of disrespect.

Obviously you're trying to turn this franchise around. And good luck to you on that. You've already signed a marriage contract so I can see why the RPW/MMSL flavour of TRP would be attractive to you. You have a limited ability to affect dread so you're more likely to stick around for the kids and put up with more BS than us single unattached guys would. In this sense, you're playing in her sandbox. You chose this woman, you had kids with her, now you're stuck with her. You're trying to make the best of the situation you're in. Your hope is you can train a woman who is less than ideal into an RPW by being red pill enough and asserting yourself. The thing is there is only so much you can polish a turd. She needs to actually start making an effort herself too, RPW would be good for her. As it stands, the bitch won't even read a book. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it drink. This is red pill on the highest difficulty, marriage salvation. It doesn't get any harder than that. Marriage salvation is less than favourable because you're not in prevention mode with the pill, but treatment mode. However, you make the best of what you've got and do everything you can to make your shit work.

With this FR you show you've won a battle, now hopefully, you can win enough battles to win the war. Remember it's not all on you to be a better man, she needs to be less shitty too. Hopefully you will inspire her to do that with leading by example. Best of luck to you.

If you engage in text arguments, you already lost. How quickly I lost my frame and regained it over text. [screenshots included]

29 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You have yourself a lucifer's daughter, remedy: go GHOST on her and run for the fucking hills. DO NOT text her again, the cluster B pussy isn't worth it man. Please, read that article, realise what you're dealing with AND NEVER TALK TO HER AGAIN. She's fucking unhinged.

And to add further, don't have long conversations over text because it's negative and detrimental to your position in multiple ways.

- Shows you're not busy and you're being her time ho
- You're validating the nonsense coming out of her current ever transient emotional state

You are better than everyone else.

29 upvotes · 21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Believing that you are better than everyone else

Narcissism, egoism, extreme confidence/boldness and self-belief. Dark triad trait. You're not wrong about this. People find narcissism alluring if not sometimes obnoxious.

Roosh's Cultural Collapse Theory

29 upvotes · 21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Natives becoming marginalized in their own country.

Go to London or Birmingham in the UK, full of muslims, you got rows and rows and rows of shops with signs written in arabic. You can make a real challenge out of playing "spot the white man" in London if you stay out of central london where all the businessmen are and that's in a country known for manufacturing white people, I mean that's saxon home turf right there, shit is pretty fucked up. I mean shit when you don't have a white majority in English major cities you know it's getting pretty fucked up. If you can't find them in their own countries then where are they going to be? Declining birthrates in Europe means whites are dying out and being replaced by asian/african immigration. The muslims are the most devout of all the religions in Europe (more devout than catholics) and in England they average 3-4 kids when indigineous average 1-2 kids.

Apparently pointing out this trend makes you a racist because people don't like what they hear or the implications of what's being said, it's easier to be a bigot and just disregard the trends and attack the messenger, but that's nothing but indulging your ignorance. In reality, white countries took on feminism/anti-religion the most and it's their indigineous who are seeing the effects via population replacement. Non-white countries have not embraced atheism and feminism like white majority countries have and thus are not experiencing the problems to the degree white majority countries are. You ever seen a low birthrate multicultural developed country that wasn't originally a white majority territory? I don't see any non-white country out there replacing their populations with other ethnicities to the extent where immigrants outnumber indigineous in many parts of the country, and if trends keep up, will eventually completely replace them. South Korea and Japan almost fit the criteria, but they're not multicultural, each country is around 98% indigineous and thus homogenous despite fulfilling the criteria of being developed and having a low birth rate. Eventually though they will face the same problems, do they continue to allow their population to decline, or will they copy US/CANADA/EUROPE/AUS and start inviting in third world immigrants to keep their economy going?

I'd love to see a global birth by ethnicity trend line for the past 5 decades with projections for the next 5 decades, how I see it is that feminism and anti-religion started in the white world and that's why it's going to fuck up the white world the most. All the non-white countries should learn from this, and rather than adopt feminism/anti-religion, stay well the fuck away from it and uphold their traditions. Traditions are proven to work and can be slowly adapted, nuking established traditions with academic atheism and feminism has been a social engineering experiment that has destroyed the social fabrics of the nations it has permeated and the most-telling symptom of this is the birthrate, I mean if you're not reproducing enough then effectively you're dying out, no matter how slowly that is, your people are slowly going extinct as is their way of life. A way of life that cannot be maintained is an ineffective way of living. I don't see "white culture" as it stands, getting drunk all the time, hooking up and having no belief in god or a higher power as sustainable for civilization.

I'm not a Christian or a member of any religion for that matter, but from what I can tell pre-feminism when the white world was predominantly of different devout Christian denominations, the countries were far stronger socially and that too is reflected in the birthrates. Religion may not be logical, is often full of contradictions and may amount to nothing more than a book full of bullshit, but it serves a purpose, it's useful bullshit, for the average everyday person and the dim especially, it works, it provides structure and stability, it promotes a sense of community, it helps promote birthrate, the nuclear family and a stable, moral society. What does atheism encourage? Existential nihilism, the pursuit of resources and hedonism. What has filled the void left by the absence of religion, what makes people moral now? What encourages people to put family above everything else now and continue the species? Absolutely nothing. In the absence of a god, people see money as god. Hence careerists and the moral decay. I find it poetic the american dollar says "in god we trust" on it, like shit, yeah, you trust in that dollar bill more than anything else. What's the religion of the psyche in most white majority countries now? Some weird mix of capitalism and feminism.

TLDR: Religion is a necessary evil, cultural collapse stems from the Europe/anglosphere nations adopting low religious observance and high levels of feminism and thus "indigineous replacement", "indigineous replacement" basically means whites are declining in numbers because they don't breed enough anymore and they have to import third world immigrants to prop up their economies, the minorities who abandon their traditions follow suit too, nobody likes to say "white" because it stirs up racial tension, but their cultures are at the heart of the problem, and that's what's meant by "indigineous replacement", like I said, name a non-white majority country where the indigineous (in Europe) or white majority (in territories which were settled by white colonialists) are being replaced slowly by minorities simply because they don't breed enough anymore. There isn't one. I for one hope the rest of the world doesn't copy the examples of the worlds white civilizations with feminism/anti-religion or the entire species will just cease to breed itself into continued existence. Learn from our mistakes. Say no to atheism and feminism.

Science says: Women most attracted to arrogance, confrontative behavior, and musculature for short term relationships

29 upvotes · 16 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

love overrode everything

That's a fucking hamsterisation if I ever saw one. Meaning "he gives me so many butterflies I just don't give a fuck, I'll rationalise my poor decisions later as not being my fault."

My son just told me to "have fun dying alone"

29 upvotes · 3 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's always the parents fault. He didn't ask to be born and have a shitty mother. That isn't fair either. Typical woman quick to take the victim position, but the real victim is the little baby who will now have to fight both for his masculinity and his way in life as he grows into a man. There's a reason they were called broken families pre feminism, it doesn't work.

What to do if a guy at your girlfriends work is talking shit to her and saying inappropriate things?

29 upvotes · 5 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

to tool you and get you emotionally invested in her.

If she's not really upset by any of it but actually enjoys it then this is merely a jealousy plotline she's using on OP to fuck with him. Keep your guard up with this girl OP.

People on Reddit really do hate TRP

29 upvotes · 15 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When a woman is consistently logical, she's an outlier. I've seen/heard women be extremely logical for a long period of time and it's a true delight to witness/experience, like GirlWritesWhat on Youtube, however I don't hold all women to that standard - as it's clear women like GirlWritesWhat are outliers, I'd be constantly disappointed expecting such rationality from women collectively.

Some PHD doctorate females are also just as logical, but many are fucking idiots, sure they have the academia and the memorisation but their reasoning blows and they're just as prone to emotional as the 18 year old hottie in college. I've probably met about 10 logical women in my 23 years of life and they still have the propensity to get emotionally manipulative and lose their shit.

When a man is illogical, he's an outlier. He's either very low IQ, brainwashed or lost his faculties to rage. Not all men are logical, however I do believe their propensity to be rational is higher simply put, they're more common at each extreme of the bell curve.

Men who think with their emotions defacto have been feminised and emasculated their entire lives. They've not learnt to deal with pain, they've been taught to engage in feminine catharsis, moaning, whining, discussing, retrospecting, sharing feelings.... anything but stoicism or self-control.

Women do all that shit naturally. This is what happens when you let women raise men.. they raise humans with penises to act like humans with vaginas. Its truly fucking perverse, except it's become so normalised that masculinity is demonised instead.

There's a reason single parent households were called broken homes and children without fathers were called bastards in the old days, because that family type breeds dysfunctionality.

After her share of "good and bad relationships" a 30 year old woman is now ready to "confront her demons" and consider shorter men as an option for dating

29 upvotes · 30 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Life sucks when you're ironically unaware of your own privilege and thus perpetuate a self defeating victim mentality.

Do you hang out with other Alphas?

29 upvotes · 25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I hung out with a crew of boys who identified as alphas. They were into PUA, The Game and all it's theory and so on. They were insufferable to hang around. All they talked about was game theory and girls. They were absolutely consumed by women

These are beta PUAs, letting women be the focal point of your life is about as beta as it fucking gets. Spending $3000 on some gay bootcamp is the lamest shit in the fucking world.

I felt the whole thing was kind of pathetic.

Because it is.

So, my question to you is when you're hanging out with your mates, do you prefer if they have a different attitude towards women that you? Do you prefer hanging around guys who identify as alpha that you can chat game with?

Most people, even betas, agree with the shit I say about women when I give them the logic behind my assholeish comments. The thing is, it's a constant battle, you're constantly challenging their delusions and you have to make them use their logic rather than use their de facto rationalisation hamster so they can actually see you're right or made a valid point or whatever.

There's probably one beta whose company I truly enjoy but he's not full beta, probably a "greater beta", because he's beta in practice but mentally he's alpha (what I mean is, bad with girls, low confidence, but has a red-pill-ish filter and perception of women when it comes to understanding their nature) however despite this understanding it's not enough, he fails to apply the knowledge, he's still easily manipulated by women, his girlfriend is ugly as hell and doesn't deserve him (he could do much better, but I digress) his mother is some matriarch who castrated him his entire life even though his dad has always been around (beta father), thus he's been socialised poorly.

Hi all. I'm interested in finding out if you guys like the company of other Alphas, Betas or a mix.

My 3 closest friends are all red pill alphas. We resonate the most, we have great banter, jokes, philosophical discussion and analysis on various topics, obviously including but far from limited to our observations on women.

As for betas, they tend to be incredibly pathetic and uninteresting or incredibly annoying/try hard/passive aggressive.

For these reasons alone, I tend not to enjoy the company of betas. They always perceive me as a threat, try to challenge me and generally bring the energy down. Betas are weird, when they see the girls like you they will either try to be your friend to try and emulate some of your behaviour or they will just fucking hate you even more.

Betas bring so much negative energy to the party I just don't even have the time for them. Jealousy is an ugly outfit to bring to the ball and the manifestation of all that insecurity can just get way too much.

Beta's GF wants an open relationship to fuck his best friend. Hates it, but may allow it because her "sexuality was trapped by the conventions of our monogamous relationship."

29 upvotes · 16 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No if it's your best friend "bros before hoes" applies he should be turning that bitch down not throwing his boy away for a piece of ass

So I just finished having lunch with one of the biggest djs in the USA..

29 upvotes · 1 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Shit. When a celeb jacks your girl, there's nothing a mortal can do. That's fucking brutal. Damn man. I hope this guy got a prod into alphaing up after this shit. When she went I would of said "have fun girl!" and acted like it ain't shit, cuz hey, hos will whore, esp. when celeb dick has chosen you to be penetrated. Also for anyone reading, never buy women shit. EVER. just don't. Flirt "you should be buying me a drink", shit test passed.

31, former party girl finally ready to settle down. Comments are pure Redpill

29 upvotes · 1 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I recognised one of our own in there which may explain the amount of RP comment replies. Sporkasaurus is talking to some chick and she just shamed him for being shallow. Oh wow, it's so textbook.

Meanwhile, over in /r/relationships, some poor guy finds out that his two-year old daughter isn't his...

29 upvotes · 22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Wow that's not biased as fuck is it, giving whores the power to dictate "your right to know"

The shitpost epidemic of summer 2013

29 upvotes · 9 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What TRP is:

- A male viewpoint on intergender dynamics, both sexual and otherwise. Shit tests, observations of hypergamy etc.
- Identifies mainstream culture as overtly feminised, valuing feelings over facts and lacking masculine role models for young men.
- Focuses on value between men and women, identifies bad values in women and encourages you to become higher value through a method of self-improvement.
- Women have the luxury of being able to be sexist in public and get away with it. We, as men, don't. Our opinions are ignored. TRP lets us air our opinions openly without repercussion.
- A male viewpoint on life. Men have virtually no say in the mainstream because they're censored so heavily, political correctness is very "anti-white" and "anti-male" TRP let's you say wtf you want, people may not always agree with you - but they respect your right to be able to say what you say even if they think you're a cunt. Candidness is something that is respected profusely and embraced a great deal here. Just like it used to be in society pre-feminism and still is in places like Eastern Europe.
- Acutely aware of legal injustices in the divorce and family court system, it doesn't seek to change these things, this is NOT MEN'S RIGHTS, it acknowledges them and tells you unless there is a change, these are reasons not to marry.
- TRP is not Men's Rights it's Anti-Feminist. There's a big difference. Men's Right issues are posted to expose the injustice, but not because we're activists trying to make changes. You're being provided with tangible examples of why shit is fucked up and hence why not to let a woman convince you to marry her except in the rarest of cases eg: you find a legitimately high value woman that's quite young and head over heels for you, even then pre-nup and get video evidence she wasn't coerced.
- Anti-Feminism is a reminder that feminism is nothing but social engineering propaganda which often verges on absurdity and misandry. Feminism is essentially a large part of what the blue pill actually is. Men can have weak/inefficient behaviours but these are behaviours which feminism would actively encourage to men but not to women eg "be understanding, caring, supportive" while they tell women "don't take shit, stand up for yourself, fight!" basically it's gender role reversal.
- If you hate ubiquitous self-entitlement and narcissism in women, thank feminism. If you've noticed how combative and misandrist women can be towards men, thank feminism. If you don't like how women bullshit their way out of their mistakes and don't pay via consequences because they constantly manipulate a victimhood mentality to escape punishment for being a cunt eg: "I cheated on my boyfriend because he got depressed and it was bringing me down" and you hate how everyone rallies to her side saying he didn't deserve her, thank feminism. A big part of TRP is calling out and identifying this kind of shit. Examples are relevant, but we don't want to be saturated in them.

- TRP views relationships as trade-offs of desirable traits from each person, it measures social and sexual value, what do you have to offer her? What has she got to offer you? TRP teaches your commitment to monogamy with one girl is a commodity she values greatly and it is as powerful if not even more powerful than how you value pussy. At the end of the day, once women get past 30 they get tired of being sluts aka "having fun" and now think it's their time to lock a man down into monogamy (slang: got off the cock carousel.)

TRP gets you to question her value and warns you against committing to a woman who spent her twenties getting lots of different cock as it shows a lack of monogamy and loyalty on her part. TRP puts a lot of emphasis on pussy in and of itself as not being a sufficient reason to commit to a woman, TRP attempts to have you cognitively devalue pussy, "don't put the pussy on a pedestal", "have an abundance mentality."

- Self-discipline and boundaries - stop justifying yourself, stop being weak, stop being scared, stop caring about people who don't care about you - being a pussy is not doing shit because you're scared of it or don't believe you can do it - don't not do things that you should or need to do because you're scared, only abstain from doing something because you don't need to and likewise don't want to - that's the flip side, don't be a people pleaser, have your own frame and direction. Become wiser, be better, it takes time but you can do it, we're all on a journey and some of us had really shitty starting points be it family, economically or whatever. Ethically and morally there's a sliding scale here, and the same can be said value wise. There are some pretty high value guys here and there are some low value ones who want to be higher value, plus there are guys in the middle who need help in specific areas. Most of us are a work in progress and not caricatures of elitist self-proclaimed alpha males like our detractors would have people believe. Moral wise we have some machiavellianist dark triad assholes and we have people who are genuinely kind but don't want their kindness exploited. It's a mixed bag. Despite your default persona, TRP teaches boundary setting - set boundaries for other people and set disciplines for yourself. TRP has a very big work ethic element to it's rhetoric, work hard, play hard, get paid, get laid - live.
- TRP is a space which allows you be truthful and talk about how you perceive interactions, a field report is generally a successful/failed social interaction with 1 or multiple females, a rant is generally an unsuccessful field report blaming the girl rightly or wrongly why it fucked up or someone who's in the bitter phase of the pill and just wants to bitch to people who understand where they're at. It's a necessary part of the board. There's a rant flair for a reason. If people want to rant and have observations to share with us which caused the rant in the first place and then cathartically vent their frustrations/grievances/interpretations of shit here then I'm cool with that, people need to get shit off their chest and I do believe for some people (not everyone, some people swallow the pill easily) that the ranting part is important in order for them to adjust to the new mindset and get feedback on why they're being such fucking haters at this point in their stage "of the pill swallowing."

What TRP isn't:

- This isn't a support group for people's issues but that doesn't mean people shouldn't be allowed to bring up issues, let's not be all stoic and uncommunicative when essentially TRP IS A PLACE OF LEARNING, TRP is a male space in a paradigm where there are no physical male spaces offline so sometimes people bring in negative energy. It's normal. You can't tell people to swallow the pill and then punish them when they have trouble with it, help 'em along - the rant flair definitely has a purpose and if the bitching is part of someone's development it's necessary.
- TRP is not misogynist, it's sexist. We're sexist because we realise the huge fundamental differences between the genders whether that's biological, sociological or otherwise, but that sexism is about awareness in differences, not in hating because of those differences. Saying men and women are the same is one of the biggest lies a population was ever brainwashed to believe.

- TRP incorporates game as a way of dating women and being more confident in your dealings with them but it's not a PUA-pickup board, this is a small but relevant element of TRP, some people focus on it way too much, some people don't care about it or need to learn this skill, it varies - the info is there if you want it. Most red pills advocate a self-improvement model to getting better with women, feel better and be better - rather than acting like your beta: meek, unwilling to stand up for yourself, malleable, unconfident, directionless, the list goes on. Game can be used for ideas on how to do things with a girl (Creative ideas), or followed as gospel, it's touched upon because it's relevant to being a higher value man.

EDIT: grammar, typos, repetition etc, cut a lot of bits out because man, fucking essay

Hi I'm Mike Cernovich, author and filmmaker. Ask me anything!

28 upvotes · 3 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If money is your motivation sell skincare products to women, honestly, men are a shit market for making money from because they use more logic in their buying decisions and a lot of their power comes from their net worth. Women don't have their power tied into their net worth, they use their looks to fuck/pair with a high net worth man, so they spend more freely (usually his money) and therefore they're more frivolous/easily manipulated with emotions into buying stuff based on insecurity.

If you're passionate, then do what you're going to do anyway because you feel compelled to do it and the money will come eventually and then exponentially as a byproduct of that. But if money is your aim from day 1, TRP is a shitty market - learn sales and use your game to get chicks buying shit.

[Mod Warning: Temp Ban Policy] Posting Shit That Belongs in /r/askTRP in the main /r/TheRedPill Subreddit

28 upvotes · 6 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Guess he was seeking catharsis more than he was change.

An Endless Debate for Me: Female Friends are Useless

28 upvotes · 27 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

OK let's be real 'On Female Friendship':

Women want to be friends with men because we're better than them. More interesting, more entertaining, less crazy, less annoying - all that good shit. They also know if they're pretty that they can leverage that into favour whilst giving you nothing, so this is the scam most even moderately pretty bitches are working.

Men want to be friends with women because they are stupid and think friendship is the first stepping stone to pussy. Women profit from this false belief because you waste time, number of fucks and raw energy on a black hole that yields you nothing but bullshit in return. When you figure out that friendship is not the path to a woman's pussy, you cease to see the point in having female friends.

But even though a man's friendship is worth more than a woman's, women won't trade pussy for it because being likeable doesn't make you fuckable. Women have the opposite problem, they are fuckable, but not likeable. Men have to work to be fuckable to get laid, women have to work to be likeable to get a relationship.

But don't forget women don't give a fuck about your needs, only their own. Just like dudes will use up women sexually, women will use men up emotionally (plates vs orbiters.) A woman is all too happy to use up your time and use you to vent her emotions/be entertained all the while she gives you nothing in return. This is a bad deal because your company is higher quality and more valuable than hers. So if you hang out with women you aren't fucking, you're getting a bad deal.

Legitimate female friends, women you don't want to fuck and who are simultaneously interesting are rare because most women have no personality. Their personality is gossip, they are basic, this is most women; the epitome of boring as fuck. Most women never become more than their pussy, they aren't funny or interesting they just discuss events and people all the time. That's just the way it is. No point bemoaning it. If you want real quality friendship you look for friendship among men, which is how it should be.

If you are ever in a situation where you're stuck with women and bored out of your mind (you will be) the best way to make things interesting is just to mock the fuck out of them. The only way women become interesting is if you tease them and call them out and be generally combative. Otherwise you'll be bored as shit and asking yourself why you're with all these chicks when you'd have more fun reading the world's least interesting book.

Educated Women & Vapidity

28 upvotes · 27 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I've made similar observations. Good call.

13-Year-Old Boy Charged With Assault For Having No Game

28 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Pathetic. As kids in the playground, chasing girls down, pinning them up against things when you "caught" them and kissing them was a game. It was called KISS CHASE and practically everybody played it. You didn't get to kiss the girl unless you caught her. And the girls loved playing it. Plenty of kisses were exchanged. And no little boys got criminal records for it. It was considered a fucking normal game to play. And even then the little girls loved playing hard to get with the little boys. And in spite of how your perverse adult mind may interpret the beginning of this post, everyone was a kid. It was completely innocent in nature.

This is really sad. Feminist nonsense is out of hand. I weep for the boys coming up now, nothing the average boy/guy does will be right. This is a total overreaction. The problem with discussing these kinds of events and legislating based upon feelings is it often leads to complete injustice. The people discussing it are usually so far up the butt of feminist victim identitarianism that they have forgotten what it's like to be a kid, so much so they can't even comprehend the completely innocent nature of this behaviour. They will impose this "ewwww, rapey!" bias onto a little boys slowly blossoming sexuality, then condemn him for it.

It is fucked up to characterise a boy that young in such a predatory manner. How are these boys meant to explore their sexuality and find the assertiveness that women find innately attractive when every little risk is construed as some sort of predatory attack? Obviously as the girl wasn't into it, it ended up being a mishap rather than turning into a child's romantic relationship, and I suspect the whole awkwardness of it was punishment enough for the poor boy, let alone an official punishment.

Switch the genders (it's happened, girls dare girls too) and this wouldn't even be a big fucking deal. They would never make a big deal over a little girl going up to an older boy and kissing him. Not that I think it's a big deal when a boy does it either. But it goes to show just how much society has in it for boys and men. If I was that boy's father I'd be looking at my legal options in dealing with that schools defamatory characterisation of my son. Something that's gonna end up on Google and possibly even affect his employment prospects in the future. All because of some shit he did at 13.

Fucking pathetic. Just pathetic.

Disturbing Social Trends Observed During Summer Vacation

28 upvotes · 23 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's good grounds for dumping her IMO. It's up there with getting fat. It's not what you signed up for. You signed up for beauty, she signed up for masculinity. If you started acting like a bitch, she'd dump you. One should return that sentiment in kind. If she reneges on her side of the deal and intently debauches her beauty, the deal is off and as such she should be told to fuckoff.

Mother of 4 stands naked all day in the house, feminists love it. How would they react if a man did it?

28 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And they said Freud was the crazy one. It's all too easy to conflate genius with crazy. I believe Freud was the prior, and this woman, the latter.

Women's reality is defined by their emotional state: Emma Sulkowicz carries her mattress to graduation

28 upvotes · 20 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Aposematism - <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Aposematism>

<http://www.truthrevolt.org/sites/default/files/images/dyepit2.jpg>

Roosh came across as an autistic man on Dr. Oz

28 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That my friends, from this moment forth, shall be known as "the face of justice."

Solipsism: the feminine psyche is masturbatory.

28 upvotes · 21 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Recognizing what that state is and using it to your advantage and/or being able to stimulate and manipulate her emotional state is the cornerstone of male sexual strategy

One of the reasons men place a lot of value on being funny. Also why men tend to be funnier than women. Christopher hitchens spoke about this awhile ago.

TWOX Post about Men not Trusting Women

28 upvotes · 22 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

For me TRP is about showing that women are just as opportunistic and conniving as men can be, not any worse not any better.

This is the problem with you newcomers, you try to redefine what the red pill is to fit your own sensibilities. If you believe women are "just as bad as" men, you haven't really swallowed the red pill, you're holding on to "egalitarian" ideas, except instead of it being positive egalitarianism "both men and women make good leaders!" it's the opposite kind "men are just as manipulative as women!" If men were just as manipulative as women, not specific men, but as a general population - they wouldn't flock to the internet for tips on how to manage bitches, because they'd know how to manage bitches without vicariously learning from other men's experiences, reading fucking books and then applying these ideas in field. Most men do not naturally excel in matters of cunning, they literally have to research this shit. Manipulation comes to MOST women like farting or burping, completely naturally.

Most men really don't have a fucking clue when it comes to manipulation, among other reasons, that's why so many men bat for team women. Why do you think men have to be taught GAME? Because women are inherently good enough at manipulation to control people with it whilst very few men are, so the women run rings around the men, they don't understand the games she's playing and he gets led astray. I said it before, but I'll say it again: manipulation is breathing to women, men are so logical they practically have to be taught it like a course at college, because unless you explain manipulation in a logical way to men - they don't get it, a lot of it seems counterintuitive to them. Teaching most men Machiavellianism is like teaching an autistic about emotion and social convention, it's an entirely different fucking world to them. In reality, an autistic is just a hyper-masculinised brain, so even if you want to get scientific, it makes sense that men suck at manipulation (without some sort of formal training/research) vs. your typical woman. In a sense, Machiavellianism is female. Women invented Machiavellianism, top tier men perfected it. Now we live in the internet age you're lucky enough to find the writings of such men and imbue yourself with this skill set yourself. Most successful male manipulators were military generals, they approached Machiavellianism as a mode of warfare rather than a sexual/social strategy, anyhow, I digress.

Most men don't just pop into existence being competent at manipulation. Sure, they know a guilt trip here, or a compliment there - but it's very low level weak shit, it's hardly Machiavellian, not enough to amount to any degree of cunning that women possess. Not enough to run shit. This topic goes deep, I believe men are biologically wired to see the best in women, usually due to positive relationships with their mothers, they think they can replicate that with other women romantically (or at least desire to) but heed these words: you will never find a chick like your mother. The representative mother would have treated you way better than she ever did your father (assuming you knew him, and if you didn't the fact you had a single mother is very telling.) Women are better people to their kids than they are to their partners. I'm sure you know someone where the mother had no motherly instinct and she treated the father like a God, it's not unheard of - but it's neither common nor representative - so I'm going to pre-empt that entire line of thought by putting that out there.

A lot of game is manipulation combined with wit. If men were just as bad as women when it comes to the game, this sub wouldn't exist. You're pedestalsing women "they're not that bad." it's a newbie mistake, and even guys who have read RP for a long time make it, because they really aren't mentally prepared - or strong enough - to ENTIRELY see women bare naked, and I'm not talking in the ass and titties sense, I'm talking in the psychological/spiritual sense. No, female nature is pretty chaotic and ugly, they are predisposed towards destruction and have a greater capacity for it, because unlike you or I, there is no logic inhibiting what they do - they just do whatever they feel and as long as it feels good, they really don't give a shit.

When you paint men with the same brush you paint women in terms of cunning, you're not only wrong, but you're diluting the message. Probably because the idea of women being shitty is something you find hard to personally cope with and you want to hold onto some hope. You're not at the stage where you've accepted women are full of shit, "but so what? I can't change it, I'll beat her at her own game." If that's so, if you can't be honest with yourself about women and then handle it anyway, keep it to yourself, don't spout off equalist bollocks in here in hopes other people will validate your cognitive dissonance.

"not sure" really means "yes"

28 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Next time: "So, then let's fuck?!" should be: "I'm gonna fuck you until you pass out on my cock." Then she'll say dumb shit like "are you really?" and then you choke the bitch.. and.. you get the idea.

You weren't assertive enough. The bitch doesn't wanna be the GPS guiding your dick inside her. Reading this topic I get the impression you wrote this down more for you than for the sub, as in, you're kinda fucked off with yourself that you missed out on this. Oh well. Nevermind. We live and learn. What I'd do now is go out and be seen with other chicks who know her so it gets back to her. Don't text her or anything. You can probably make her jelly from afar if you have shared social connects. If not, time to get on Tinder because this girl thinks you're a bitch and wants you to orbit her like one of Jupiter's moons.

Machiavellian Thinking vs. Conventional Logic.

28 upvotes · 8 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

do you not often hear a voice at the back of your head suggesting that being nice and compromising will eventually get you what you want?

No. But then I was never a "nice guy" in my beta days. I never had to "deprogram my niceness." I was just misguided, socially lacking in a few significant ways and didn't have a clear path in life.

Likewise my beta days consisted of an absence of discipline, much laziness and a lack of SMV-enhancing hobbies. I didn't know enough rules of the game. I got all the poon I did in my beta days because I was tall and reasonably good looking, but I fucked up and missed a bunch of opportunities because my game was terrible and I just didn't escalate enough. Chicks would literally set-up dates for me. All I'd need to do is escalate and hold frame (and do none of the leg work getting the date!) and yet I'd still fuck up and end up with nothing. I think this is what happens to all guys of reasonable or good looks who are not game aware. They think it's normal to have that level of overt female interest but have no fucking idea or confidence what to do about any of it. The end result is the same as being an omega: you don't get laid with shit game, even if you're hot.

I may have had poor game, and my confidence wasn't where it should have been - but I was never a "nice guy." Naturally in my relationships, the bitch would "betafy me" quickly and I'd start "being the nice guy she was urging me to be" thus drying up pussy like the Sahara. That's the trap with women "be nice" "why are you so mean?" bla bla bla... and then if you actually "change" into this guy they're pressuring you to be, they hate you. Relational betafication is one huge passive and proactive shit test.

Kinda mind-blowing to think I've been on TRP for 2 years now. This shit changes lives.

To fall in love with anyone, do this

28 upvotes · 13 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Do her feet smell of flowers or cheese?

Older players (late 40s/50s & up), tell us what you would do differently if you could go back 20 years looking through the RP lens.

28 upvotes · 7 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hear, hear. This gentleman needs a beer, STAT.

"Love is forever?" LOLNOPE. Turns out that fuzzy-wuzzy "twoo wuv" feeling has an expiration date: about a single year.

28 upvotes · 29 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Click the link "points symbol" on the sidebar. Voila, all your questions answered. Read the damn sidebar. Can't say that shit enough.

[FR] First night out since taking TRP

28 upvotes · 18 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Your friends did fuck all they have no game and they are bad wingmen. If anything, the silver lining is they didn't exactly make things worse but they served no purpose. They couldn't even isolate Jess and get her to deal with her own god damn fucking puke so you could have a menage-a-trois with Ashley and Sam. Jess has puked so all the girls have to go home? Get the fuck outta here that girl was just a massive jealousy-filled cock block. Don't bring those guys out again when you want to get your dick wet they're just an extra thing that can go wrong. By all means drink with them, play video games or whatever it is you do to shoot the shit but they don't have the game to take in-field.

Sexually frustrated guy tears into his female friends for not fucking him. (x-post from /r/cringeimgs)

28 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck sake this sap had a meltdown. It's cringey as fuck to see a guy lose his shit because the blue pill beta's got a matching set of blue balls to go with his mentality/game.

Remember, bros will always be there for you, and you will always be there for them.

28 upvotes · 12 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Bros before hoes means if your friend is going through a rough patch, and on the same night a plate wants to meet up, you tell the plate to fuckoff and go meet with your bro.

You can literally fuck bitches whenever you want and bitches are easily replaceable. Good bros are not. Good bros are worth more than hoes, why pedestalize the hoes by prioritising them? You prioritise close male friends over your need to get laid because their need is more important. At least, it is if you are BROS as in BROTHERS and not merely acquaintances or "barely friends" who just use each other for company now and again. Your sex drive shouldn't be more important than looking out for people who matter to you. Obviously a good bro doesn't cock block but that's nothing to do with this, that's something else. That's not what "bros before hoes" even means. If you're a hoes before bros kinda guy, you're not a guy who's ever going to have meaningful friendships unless you get a sucker who is there for you when you need someone, but whom you don't reciprocate to. All your friendships will be pragmatic and machiavellian because you don't invest with any emotional depth into other guys.

If pussy is more important to you than looking out for close male friends, you're not "bro" material. You're a lone wolf that puts self-interest before loyalty and companionship. I wouldn't consider a guy a bro who wouldn't help me in my hour of need because he rather be high fucking some slut. Those guys ain't worth shit, sure you can have fun with them, but they don't have your back, so they're not bros. They're just fun to hang with. Too many guys are too quick to use the "bros" term when they aren't even bro quality. A bunch of guys who all lift together but don't give a fuck for one another are not bros. At best they are "lifting partners." Bros are linked by loyalty for one another, like a pack. If you don't like being loyal to other people, even if they deserve it, you're not bro material.

If I consider a guy a bro and I'm out on the town high as fuck off my face and a bro needs my help, he's at the police station or someone wants to kick the shit out of him. I come running (assuming I am in a position to help.) I don't go "haha, fuck you, I'm about to get laid" and hang up. How can I expect him to give a fuck about me when I'm not there for him? If you do that, don't expect to ever have friends you can rely on who will have your back when you need someone. That's how it works. To earn loyalty you have to demonstrate it. You can't monopolise loyalty, it has to be reciprocated to flourish. People don't want to put their neck on the line for you when you show that you only give a fuck about yourself. IMO, being jaded by women is not something you should allow to bleed into your friendships with men. Just like you eye up women for quality, you have to eye up men for quality too. Unlike women, men (although evidently, not all men) are actually capable of loyalty and honour. Honour is a male abstraction and all that shit.

The best way to understand a man's nature is to see what he says about other men. Projection. In that regard bad men, men who sell you to the devil for an extra bottle of Grey Goose out themselves without even realising. That's the thing about narcissism, it causes you to reveal flaws in your character because you believe them to be assets. If you don't believe in loyalty, sacrifice and honour, no matter how conditional, it's because you don't embody any of those qualities yourself. If a guy treats you well, treat him well back. It's not rocket science.

Absolutely brilliant - 35 PRACTICAL STEPS MEN CAN TAKE TO SUPPORT FEMINISM

28 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Replace the url in your OP with this:

<http://www.donotlink.com/b1a9>

Don't want to feed them revenue/hits

Stay away from blatant Red Pill terminology, and people will agree with you.

28 upvotes · 28 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In the third pic, that guy leftajar is an rper, I've seen him around here, funny to see him getting upvoted outside TRP but like your post says, people accept the knowledge if it's not affiliated with TRP.

I just want to share my ex-girlfriend's hamstering...

28 upvotes · 20 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

By now, my definition of a unicorn is a woman with a healthy psyche.

Feminism is making them all sick in the head so I'd say that's most definitely necessary criteria.

Batten down the hatches, more TRP publicity brought to you by the White Knights, Omegas and Feminists of Reddit

28 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Every guy in a relationship thinks they are some relationship genius, so fuck 'em.

Yet probably doesn't wear the trousers. They think being in a relationship is some sort of accolade or some shit, if I wanted to I could be in one myself, it's nothing special.

Video of Chinese women's unrealistic expectations in marriage. TRP truths abound.

28 upvotes · 3 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

One guy says something along the lines of "for the amount of money she wants I could fuck a prostitute for 20 years, a different girl each and every day, why would I want to pay that for one girl?"

Another guy at the end calls hypergamy "sad" when he realises women trade their sexuality/youth for material gain in the brief period he describes as being 20-25 which maybe it is in China, but here in the UK its more like 16-28~

The chinese are very red pill if this is anything to go by, it warms my heart.

The red pill mentioned in Ask Reddit again. Brace for subscribers.

28 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She likes to think of herself as an infinite web of possibilities, but in reality, she's just a connect the dots

Tweeting that. Magic!

Post-wall woman in r/okcupid tries to scold men that they should stop excluding older women like her in favor of younger ones, then she admits she did the same in her 20s.

28 upvotes · 22 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Gonna drop a heavy dose of red pill here...

The laugh, voice, facial expressions (big eyes, plump cheeks) and touch of the soft skin of a 7+ SMV girl between ~16 - ~28 who isn't a femicunt is enough in and of itself to make a guy fall totally and utterly in love with minimal effort on her part. It can be incredibly overwhelming. Doesn't matter if your notch count is 1 or 100, a mans ability to pair bond with a young beautiful woman doesn't fuckoff.

An older woman just does not have that same hold.. that same power over a man.

Young pretty girls are basically designed to ensare men and have him do her bidding (provide and protect) this is reality. Sometimes that reality can be a painful reality. That's why we always have to redouble our efforts to be strong and stay on top of our shit.

It's very easy to fall from grace as a man, a man who loses his status and money to a crisis can go from high smv to low smv in a year flat. You lose your money you cant afford good food and gym anymore there goes your physique too as you're stuck eating crap.

A woman loses her smv much more slowly over years upon years, nobody would see her homeless.

A man can be high smv all of his life unlike a woman, but man has to work his ass off to ensure it stays that way, lest you are one of the fortunate few to come from old money where all your ancestors did the work for you and you get to sit on inheritance, but even then money alone isn't enough, it's just one significant part of the equation.

Girl who friendzoned me nearly 10 years ago slammed into the wall and recently messaged me.

28 upvotes · 28 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a score to settle myself but unless she offers herself on a plate like yours did I'll live with it.

Why is red pill thinking so 'controversial' outside of this sub?

28 upvotes · 8 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Equality of opportunity? Yes.

Equality of outcome? No. The inferior belong where they're at, if they fail to meet a high enough standard.

This equality bullshit says the genius kid should be brought down a peg or two, whilst the retard kid is elevated way above his station. It's like some weird fucking communism.

Male bartenders will always be better than female bartenders because female bartenders always expect to be tipped well just for having boobs and a vagina. Males are more appreciative.

28 upvotes · 31 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Lol my blue pill mother today was saying how she and her female colleagues were discussing that they all prefer to have men leading the team above them because whenever they've had women in the lead position they lose their cool very easily, hard to approach, can't cope under pressure and spread negative energy to everyone. Whereas the men they've worked for have always been more approachable, don't show their stress so much and don't vent on everyone else etc.

At my mums work the guy leading the team just left and was replaced with a butch lesbian (no insults, that's an apt description) meaning the entire seniority is composed of all females to the dismay of the underlings.

I was like WHOA MY MUM be dropping that red pill.

Dove Self-Esteem Project aims to "make girls unstoppable" using "self-esteem programming" cause there is "beauty anxiety" in 8 year old girls

28 upvotes · 27 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Allow me to translate from BP into RP:

"We want to feed female narcissism with bullshit social programming so that these inculcated women buy our products and increase our share value, we don't really give a fuck about them."

They create the problem and the solution. This is actually pretty evil shit. All for profit. Think of it like a drug dealer and a crack fiend. Dove want to be feeding the narcissism and be associated with "feeling good about yourself" so that bitches keep buying their product.

Truth of the matter is, if women want self esteem, they need to take care of themselves physically and mentally, less entitlement, more challenging themselves, read, stop being complacent in comfortability and push themselves to evolve, keep out parasitic bitches from their lives who are jealous of her beauty/potential when she deviates from the feminist narrative and encourage said woman to squander her mental health on slutting up and thinking deludedly, these women need to go at life hard. Start being real. Accept bullshit for what it is. Being deluded will take them nowhere, it makes them unattractive and will ultimately lead them to being alone and bitter, like so many of their mothers are now, either divorced, alpha widowed or were just left on the shelf.

I find it fucking sickening this shit is being promoted, there's literally nothing the free market won't do to make a buck, now I'm not against the free market, but when it goes this far that companies will head fuck en masse so overtly to make a quick buck, it really shines a light on the fact that some things needs to be regulated by law, and fucking with womens heads to sell products is one of those things, this kind of social programming is the shit that will ruin them post-wall, and ruining them ruins society. This is a very overt manifestation of just what consumerism is able to do in the absence of a strong family unit, women being exploited by business in the absence of men who care about them on a personal level. Like it or not, women are our responsibility because they're not equal to men and never will be, they don't have the logic or the emotional grounding that we do.

More ladies need to head on over to /r/redpillwomen to get some understanding and better themselves. Fuck you DOVE. I hope your share price plummets.

Ppl are saying TRP is about manipulating women and tricking them... But women's magazines like Cosmopolitan, teach women every week how to lie and manipulate men all day....

28 upvotes · 16 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Cosmo and shit like that are just push and pull.

They push by feeding the feel good shit, empowerment bullshit and control a man crap. They pull away by putting impossibly hot photoshop models all over the covers and ads which make women feel insecure and bitter about their position in life. Some do nothing and just behave like cunts, others starve themselves. A healthy few go to the gym and improve their makeup regime (that's the pull backfiring there!)

Womens magazines are basically headfucking the crap out of women and making them less sane than they were to begin with.

This kind of post is probably more suited to /r/redpillwomen

Why Generation Y Yuppies Are Unhappy - AKA: Why entitlement is such a big issue.

28 upvotes · 14 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude, if you are Gen X or Gen W you are the reason Gen Y have such piss poor parenting and fuck all opportunities. You guys done fucked up good and left the youth of today with nothing. You parent like piss, then you mock the results of your piss poor parenting, blaming that gen for its lack of guidance or resources. You can't blame gen Y for fucking it up, they weren't even alive to fuck it up, they're the result of your fuck ups, and your parents fuck ups who created you and led to you fucking it up. Gen Y has to live through your mistakes and have a far lower quality of life and higher level of social inequality than you ever had to experience, while you gloat. You guys had it easy from a gen Yers perspective. I see dumbass fucks in your generation I easily outshine making ridiculous money in easy office jobs. It's fucking abhorrent. So really, who are you to judge? I can easily engage in some casual schadenfreude at how you fucks done fucked up the family unit, but then jerking off to negativity isn't gonna get us anywhere is it?

Woman in love with a Dark Triad asshole can't change him, goes on national TV to try make it happen.

28 upvotes · 13 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And he handles all the shit tests pretty perfectly, he keeps his frame through the entire thing, in front of a massive audience of strangers and television cameras.

The blue pill response is to shame a man when you disagree with his views, rather than find out why he thinks that and if it works for him. He got shamed as a chauvinist when he says it's her job to wait on him. Even the presenter agreed in the end that he was perfectly honest and open with her (he said at the beginning he set the boundaries early on) and that she should have a bit of dignity, he even calls it out when he says "i think she's on a mission to change you mate". In the end he married her, it's funny because she plays the victim by saying living with the guy "is hell" but then can't leave him because she's getting the fucking tingles. LMAO. It's pretty tragic.

Tell a Princess why she's about to hit the Wall (27F)

28 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Lmfao. Well there's still hope for her yet if she doesn't simply just disregard TRP as misogyny. Although she needs to get a fucking moving on. Send her to TRP Women!

Uncontacted Amazonian Tribe Member Gets a Girl...Goes Hunting...Girl Sleeps With His Brother

27 upvotes · 20 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Women's fickleness is a great source of male disgust, you can accept her nature all you like, but that doesn't make these traits desirable or respectable. As a result, there are two kinds of men who have a very positive attitude towards women: the ignorant, and those who have reached such a deep state of zen acceptance that they don't "hate a woman for being disloyal in the same way they don't hate a snake for biting" - they seek to avoid getting bitten by developing better strategies to handle the creature, but they are at peace with the fact they are fundamentally powerless to change such a creature's nature.

Some guys can reach that zen place, whilst others will struggle to look past the abhorrent undesirability of this nature and harbour resentment because of it. It's not our place to tell guys how to process the information, and I don't think all guys can reach the zen place - which is why the red pill is dangerous, and why people hand pick the bits they're willing to accept. Most guys just aren't mentally strong enough to accept the truth as a whole, the bullshit rationalising that "the red pill is just misogynistic and women are wonderful" is necessary in order for them to retain a semblance of sanity.

It's not conducive to a man's success with women to think "women are primed to betray me as they are innately fickle and can turn on a dime on even the slightest drop in my performance". They need the bullshit in order to not become jaded upon discovering the despicability of women's nature. They have to ignore that women are cunning as fuck and rewrite history to suit themselves, because they want a positive relationship with women and find the truth of their nature to be counterproductive to developing such a relationship.

Her cunning, AF/BB and fickleness are reproductively HELPFUL traits but fucking shitty traits in a human being - most people don't want friends who are like that, so why would you want the mother of your kids to be like that? That zen place of realistic acknowledgement divorced from disdain for what is otherwise detestable behaviour is not easily reached, and among men who are truly awake it is more the exception than it is the rule. Reconciling woman's nature with man's intrinsic desire to have positive relations with her is an epic mind fuck that all red pill men must face, because quite frankly her nature is ugly.

TRP Saved me, Whats next?

27 upvotes · 2 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Commitment isn't beta, it's committing to a shitty woman or on a woman's terms that is. Yeah, we don't live in a commitment conducive society (feminist family law), but commitment in and of itself is hardly beta. I would probably say NEVER to marriage, but not to a long-term relationship.

I think the whole "if you're not fucking and chucking chicks, you're a beta" mantra is unenlightened teenage bullshit. But hey, those dudes are free to do whatever the fuck they like just as the rest of us are free to commit to bitches we deem high quality enough (FYI: I'm single, not a beta in a relationship rationalising his situation).

Motherfuckers can get way too judgy up in here about this (not saying you are, but in general, I've seen it before)

Jezebel reader takes the red pill

27 upvotes · 25 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm a realist by nature, which most people interpret as pessimism.

Right there with you. Unbound optimism is naive. If something generally yields a predictable result and that result happens to be negative, I won't insult my intelligence and "be optimistic", when it comes to social situations my predictions/judgements are accurate 90%+ of the time.

Optimists are weak people who can't handle the harshness of reality so pretend everything is fine and will go their way.

People think if you are cynical or realistic that you are unhappy and negative. Yes it's easy to become like that, because when you are realistic you see the ugliness of the world AND THERE IS LOTS OF IT, bad has a tendency to overshadow good, but there is good too. I live in a rich country with shelter, food, internet, a ton of books and some other luxuries, I could do a lot worse.

If you are a realist and your disposition is positive it's because you're on top of all your shit, have your ass covered and don't leave anything to chance. You create your own fortune. It's not because you decided to take a huge blue pill, tell yourself everybody is great, and that the people who wrong you are exceptions rather than the rule. The optimist looks for the inherent goodness of everything, and when he or she finds it, no matter how tiny, they blow it up and hold onto it for dear life because like a child the thought that Santa Claus isn't real is just too unbearable.

A realist weighs things up more evenly, and doesn't hide in the coping mechanism of self-deception, they create their own fortune. Happiness is a choice, and it starts with self-honesty and self-discipline, the hallmarks of maturity.

I'll keep this short and sweet- Woman's definition of love...

27 upvotes · 12 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Woman's love is pragmatically parasitic, man's love is sacrificially idealistic.

Testosterone Facts

27 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

males after orgasm during copulation experience an increase in endorphins and a marked increase in oxytocin levels. This adds to the hospitable physiological environment in the female internal reproductive tract for conceiving, and later for nurturing the conceptus in the pre-embryonic stages, and stimulates feelings of love, desire, and paternal care in the male (this is the only time male oxytocin levels rival a female's).

Don't answer her questions after fucking. Some women will use your vulnerable state to get you to make promises/commit to things you normally wouldn't. They're cunning.

Went out on a tinder date tonight. Bailed halfway through the first drink.

27 upvotes · 14 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

but this sub is so full of guys in the "stoics must listen and never be heard" camp that it wasn't even worth bringing up half the time.

I ignore a lot of people here, especially newer guys, because they insert their own ideals into RP and hamster "now that's alpha, folks!" Like I said, masculinity isn't rigid, and people who are strong don't fucking worry about whether "they are being alpha or not" they stand up for what they believe in, they behave in congruence with their beliefs.

If they are smart and open-minded enough they are open to having their beliefs challenged. They don't just roll over in the heat-of-the-moment though. If they want to be quiet they'll be quiet. If they want to go on the attack, they'll attack. They have a mind of their own, they do things on their terms. They don't avoid confrontation out of fear, if they avoid confrontation it's because they believe that's the best choice, not because they're scared, and they're not bullshitting themselves with that, lying that "it's for the best to be quiet" when really they just want to be quiet because they're scared of what might happen. No, they're true to themselves, and they swallow their own fear when they have to. A man comfortable with himself is not afraid to express and unleash his power when a situation calls for it.

A bunch of conflicting behaviours can be alpha because context is a bitch. Sometimes being quiet means "you didn't speak up" in other scenarios it means "you didn't take the bait, well done." Context and nuance is everything. Shit, even if you take the bait, turn it around and make the other person feel like shit - you still win. Defensive or aggressive style, neither is wrong. Shit's a preference. Just don't be anybody's bitch and get walked on. Stand up for yourself. You're a man. That's what men do. They have principles. They have pride. When people try to step on them they say "hold the fuck up" and question what's going on. They're not "yes, yes of course" nodding agreeable motherfuckers.

It's sad when due to man's passivity, hamstered in TRP as "being stoic" that women show more balls than men. A bitches' balls should never be bigger than yours.

In a rare moment of drunken honesty, a poster in r/TwoXChromosomes admits she prefers assholes to nice guys

27 upvotes · 8 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a slice of heaven straight out of hell.

The position of FUCK YOU!

27 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I advise monk mode to anybody who isn't in the top 20% and hasn't said "fuck it, I'm MGTOW!"

Female coworkers laugh at me because my wife gave me a sponge bath for being sick.

27 upvotes · 28 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Male nurse here. I'm usually surrounded by "strong independent women" so you know what to expect.

A bunch of vapid, narcissistic, judgemental, unloving cunts.

so my wife gave me a sponge bath because I'm having chills and its a pain to get up to shower.

Sounds like a good, caring wife trying to nurse her man back to health. Makes sense, as she relies on you.

Later in work I ask my coworkers if they would do the same thing if ever their husband got sick and needed to work during the day and all of them said "no" and laugh at me.

Then they all have the relationship value (or as that guy's new post calls it RMV) of a hooker. An uncaring woman is an unattractive woman.

I wonder if they are jealous because most of them have terrible relationships with their partners or their just entitled.

Feminists taught them to act like self-entitled cunts devoid of compassion, care or love for men. They do not know how to make men happy or treat men well. They view "caring for their significant other" as weak and oppressive, not the feminine duty of a good woman. As such, their views on relationships, men and sex are distorted. They make bad partners, no man worth his shit they'd want would put up with "them and their shit" and no man they could get would be dominant enough to keep them.

That's the funny thing about feminism, it's feminised men and masculinised women, so now even if you are a dominant man, because the women aren't so feminised you need to be EVEN MORE DOMINANT than your ancestors to hold the leadership position in the relationship. All this whilst her friends and the culture around her try to poison her against men. The perverse and distasteful irony with this is that more dominance is required than ever before due to how women have masculinised and become more dominant themselves, but due to the state of society it's become harder than ever for men to be dominant. As masculinity in men is demonised, whilst masculinity in women is simply feminism. Not only that, but masculinised women aren't attractive, and a lot of guys nope the fuck out of even bothering with dominant women. They actively repulse many men. As such, the decline will continue and as the cultural marxists wanted, the family unit will continue to erode taking down civilization along with it.

There's an AskReddit going right now about how it feels to have "settled." A lot of AWALT going on in there.

27 upvotes · 22 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The female hamster is the absolute king of dissociation. Reality is whatever women feel it to be, it's not a consistent thing to them. They'll rationalise when pressed to explain logically, but absent of that they can fundamentally believe in their own falsely constructed "new reality." It seems to be a built-in coping mechanism that women come with. As a man you can't make yourself believe whatever you want just to "feel good." We don't have that superpower. Evo psych would probably say it's something to do with how women were raped commonly in our caveman times and that developing stockholm syndrome/dissociation was necessary for her survival. Fucked up, I know. But going by what we know of women... quite possible.

Always hide your effort

27 upvotes · 19 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Females can just be incredibly shallow and dumb.

Most women are shallow and dumb nowadays. The quality is low. Even women who aren't are hyper judgemental and intolerant of even the slightest imperfection or weakness in a man (in spite of their own vast imperfections/fuckups.) It is characteristic of the female disposition to be callously unforgiving toward men. In a way you or I simply would not be to someone we supposedly care about. Man's love/care is more permeating, less conditional. Women are the most pragmatic lovers, they love strength, and in the absence of strength there is nothing left for them to love. They never "love you for you" they love "what you symbolise."

Women don't feel sympathy for men beyond moral abstraction (assuming they were taught to value morality/raised to be feminine.) They don't feel "bad for you" in their gut. Anything less than "unattainable perfection" (not possible, she has to hamster it) in a man is just something for a woman to hate or mock. Blah blah blah, evolution dependent on men being good hunters, survival of the fittest blah blah. Being around women is like being in the presence of perfectionists who feel like they have an inherent right to judge you on your worthiness as a man. Nothing you do will ever be fucking enough for them. Women are eternally dissatisfied, complaining, insecure. Very few women are exception to this. The most pleasant of women I do believe have similar instincts, they are just VERY GOOD at projecting a character which seems counter to this. They "don't want to be mean" they are good-hearted even, but they have the same instincts. Shit, if they're young and dumb enough they don't even realise how harsh they are on men, it's instinct to them.

Women aren't just "not what we thought they were" they are flawed to a point of frustration. You have to become women-centric and hamster a bit to yourself to actually truly "love and appreciate" women. Many men do this, because they don't want to live in a world where they can't love or appreciate women. They value women, irrationally and instinctually to that extent. How can something so outwardly beautiful be so inwardly abhorrent?

Shit test after shit test is common with women. Women shit test on the sly in ways most men don't even notice. They don't understand the language of women: subtextually testing for dominance. Too many slip ups and you're done. When you realise all this shit you can see why things were set up in a way that gave men more power in society. It was necessary to balance out society so a large quantity of men were viable/useful/compatible with female nature. Without that paradigm (like we have now,) you become the top 20% or you MGTOW. There are no other viable options.

If most men realised this shit, they wouldn't bother with women. The effort is a lot, the reward, minimal. When you work hard as fuck to be the best and the average woman is so inferior, the whole point can seem fucking moot. That's why we say "do self-improvement for yourself, not for women." Yes you will get laid, but becoming better than women only makes them seem even less in your eyes. And ironically the whole time, they'll behave like they have a right to someone so much more superior than they - whilst denying your superiority should you ever be dumb enough to get onto that topic with them.

Obviously not EVERYBODY can be in the top 20%, if everyone knew about TRP, reaching that place would just become harder, the bar would be higher and women wouldn't change a bit. They'd just get pickier as the collective value of men improved. You'd have fatties fucking ripped guys as a commonality. It's actually fucking obscene. You know despite all that shit though I like being a man. I wouldn't wanna be a woman. I like having muscles and being clear-headed most of the time. Women are needy and parasitic and tend to lack personality. I'd hate to be like that. They are what they are, and when you realise that "the prize crumbles."

Society/men have to pedestalise the shit out of women because when you realise what women are really like, they are difficult, nigh impossible to love. Reality is a cruel bitch.

[Video] Mark Rudov really gets it. I encourage you to watch the whole thing.

27 upvotes · 27 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

God those women at the beginning of the first video are insufferable. Whoever they chain up in marriage are going to kill themselves. What fucking harpies. They're both misandrist as hell. Total man haters. How he holds frame is the bomb though. HAHAAAAHA. Worth watching just for that.

My Stance On Women

27 upvotes · 10 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The handful of women I have respect for all fit the paradigm as outlined by Roissy. 16 Commandments of Poon is golden but I haven't read it in a long time, in fact I should probably schedule it a reread.

White Knights Will Throw You And Your Plates Under the Bus

27 upvotes · 4 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You sound like a woman who needs her alpha fucks, beta bucks (AF/BB)

No personal slight meant, it is what it is. DT by any chance? I notice a lot of similarities between DT men and women in general. Feel free to PM if you don't wanna wash your laundry in public.

15% of women at executive level or above admit to having slept with their boss.

27 upvotes · 15 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Reminds me of heartiste's article on "the corporate harem"

<http://heartiste.wordpress.com/2013/11/19/the-modern-corporate-harem/>

Why you should be active in r/askTRP

27 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I should drop in there more often.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

27 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy fucking shit. I'm not even going to dissect this absurdity.

The "You're such a Nice Guy" shit test.

27 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hahahaaha so cocky its brilliant.

Ever since starting to take the pill, women interest me less and less.

27 upvotes · 9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And what you don't use grows stagnant, ha.

Ever since starting to take the pill, women interest me less and less.

27 upvotes · 9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

My law lecturer is interesting as shit, divorced, post-wall, ugly. There seems to be a correlation between beauty and intelligence.

Beautiful women tend to be the most vapid of them all, nature's got a perverted sense of humour.

Science confirms what men and women value in a relationship

27 upvotes · 20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I refer to the fact that if a mans name is on a childs birth certificate and it is later found he is not the biological father, the court will still consider him to be the father for purposes for supporting that woman and that child financially, essentially legislating and institutionalising the feminine imperative with no risk or punishment to the woman and full risk/disincentive to the man. If you spend a lot of time with a kid and are "the only father its ever known" you can also be on the hook for child support.

TLDR: don't date single mothers.

Actually, AWALT.

27 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha such asshole game, love it.

Single and Educated: China's "Leftover" women

27 upvotes · 1 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Its these situations that end up with some guy throwing himself off a balcony in a shopping mall.

Hahahah. That poor motherfucker.

Why is this sub causing so much butthurt across reddit and why is it mentioned so much all the time?

27 upvotes · 5 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A significant portion of TheRedPill believes that a woman is less valuable as a potential wife if she's slept with more men.

Yes, or more accurately: not wife material at all. Wife status is a privilege, not an entitlement. Many women find this hard to comprehend because weddings have turned into nothing but "wife-centric pageantry where the groom does nothing but stand there as it's "her" day."

this is because of the belief that a formerly promiscuous woman is more likely to cheat on her husband, right?

Yes. The theory is every time a man ejaculates up in a girls insides and she goes all gooey she releases oxytocin and pair bonds to him slightly (he does this too, but this is irrelevant to a man, he's dating her not her ex partners.)

When it's happened with 100's of different men with some repeaters in there you've built up such a desensitised resistance that sex is now "just another guy" you have numerous other men to compare his performance to but not only that, because it's happened with so many different men the underlying theory is she can't pairbond to one man permanently now. Also, emotionally, men are cringed out by the thought of a woman they're investing LOVE, TIME and MONEY into being the receptacle for countless cock over years and years to men who have invested none of these things but just used her as a fuck doll.. it's not something worthy of respect (a woman's countless sexual exploits) in fact to the average man, it denotes disgust.

A woman getting laid does not take skill or talent, it's merely a choice - therefore it is not a behaviour which requires admiration, as women are the sexual gatekeepers - they choose if sex is going to happen, inversely when a man gets laid he gets a pat on the back because it wasn't a mere choice, he had to utilise certain skill sets to get what he wanted.

We respect women who have a record of long term relationships, it shows they have the value to command commitment from a man, a woman who never has long lasting relationships doesn't have them for a reason, there's a fundamental flaw with her which stops men sticking around. To men this demonstrates she is low value because men are the gatekeepers to commitment - they choose if a relationship happens.

Don't debate the fairness of this (As you may be inclined to do so) life is not fair, feminism isn't fair to men and how men feel about women being dick receptacles is born out of a biological urgency to insist the baby she carries is his and not another mans. Cuckoldry is a real fear men have that women will never understand as she always knows the baby inside her belongs to her.

Men are not picky who they fuck, but they tend to be very picky who they want to mother their children.... hence so many women taking it into their own hands when they fail to meet a high value mans standards and thus "settling" for lower value men or sperm-jacking a high value mans genetic material and raising the kid on her own, attempting to screw him for child support and shaming a man who never consented to raising a child with her to "man up" and "take some responsibility" (for her decision to have the child without his paternal consent.)

The west is fucking messed up.

33 year old woman sperm jacks well off 28 year old guy.

27 upvotes · 29 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

and then you drop the bomb

There is a lot of talk here about self improvement but I think we often miss something important.

27 upvotes · 27 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's spirituality too. Not religion, spirituality. Self-control, enlightenment, insight. Get meditating.

"I always find myself around more guy friends than girls!"

27 upvotes · 22 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

the right guy comes along who will let them be little girls again.

Which is why the 40+ cat herders are fucking MAD. They'll never have this again. Makes them more bitter than the apple cider I'm sipping.

We can't help you

27 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP is about more than pussy.

A lot of people use TRP and as soon as they get laid they go full beta.

You really have to cognitively retrain yourselves not to put the pussy on a pedestal. It sounds generic but its true. How quickly so many guys change when a hot girl is around is so pathetic, so weak, it's like they lose all control of themselves. No frame control whatsoever. In fact a lot of guys turn into annoying fucking people when a hot chick is around. No integrity whatsoever.

I'm that guy who acts like I give no fucks about the hot girl. Sure she's attractive, sure I probably wouldn't mind fucking her, but I'm not about to give that girl my power by validating the fuck out of her.

You need to start valuing yourselves more than women. Men bring a lot more to the table than women, their value INCREASES with age (appreciating asset) a womans value DECREASES with age (depreciating asset)

Women hit 16-18 and hit the jackpot, they're young, fertile, the worlds at their feet, they go through puberty and grow some ass/titties and all of a sudden men are throwing themselves at them. Showing her attention, showering her with gifts, she's living the easy life.

The thing is, it's a temporary ride. She'll hit 30, her looks are degenerating, she's been soullessly fucking different guys for years, avoiding "the nice stable guys" you know, the ones that would treat her like a human and not a fuck object aka "completely boring" and all of a sudden come 30 her biological clock kicks in, she realises she's running out of time, if she's not had a kid she wants one and she wants to lock down a nice boring guy who makes bank to raise her kid with. The thing is, it's selfishness, and it's out of a genetic desire to procreate, not out of love/attraction. These guys comprise what you see as todays divorce statistics.

Men on the other hand are relatively powerless at the same age 16-18, the things that attract women are very rarely possessed by men at this age, a strong sense of self/masculinity/leadership, an athletic body, money/resources/has a car etc. Women your own age are dating guys far older than you (18 year old girls fucking 35 year old career men you can't possibly compete with at your age) most the guys your age are getting undersexed and lifes pretty unfair.

Then you hit your late 20's and early 30's and assuming you worked on yourself, have a career, a good body and have developed some character over the years, all of a sudden, all the chicks who ignored you when you were younger, who are now a lot more used up and washed up are "suddenly" looking to settle down and thus start showing you interest.

The ones who gave no fucks at all about you 5 years ago? The chicks who turned you down for rudimentary superficial reasons, too nice, too poor, too boring.. whatever.. now your value has gone up and hers has gone down she wants a piece. She thinks "you're worthy of her now" but the thing is, she isn't what she was, she's depreciated and you've appreciated yet she still carries around that sense of entitlement, that you're lucky she's even picking you now, despite the little fact, you know, you're match of a catch than she is nowadays. You're in your prime, her prime was 10 years ago at 20, not 30.

An RP man knows "I can do better than the bitch who passed me up" or never had the time of day for you when you weren't shit but pleads for commitment now. You know what that should make you aware of? Just how conditional her attraction/love really is, if you ever find yourself in a rough spot, this bitch will jump ship whilst you sink and go sleep in the warm cozy bed of another mans ship (read: her most trusted beta orbiter.) Pretty women always have another ship waiting for them to jump to should they need, men don't, if your ships going down (a metaphor for your life) you have to go down with it, you can't simply go and latch onto someone elses life and have every taken care of for you.

Here's where karma slaps bitches in the face, now you're in your early 30's, being the appreciating asset you are, a lot of the hot chicks who are 18-25 want to bang you. You get to pick who you fuck and for the first time in your life, you're incredibly desirable to a huge spectrum of women. Women as young as 18 and old as 40 want a piece of the prime real estate which is a high value man in his early 30's/late 20's.

Men are appreciating assets, they get more attractive with age assuming their power and resources increase.

Women are depreciating assets, they get less attractive with age as their fertility and looks fade. Sorry ladies, but men aren't turned on by your huge social circles or career the same way you find that attractive in men. Different attraction switches.

Women don't love you, they love the power you have. A powerless man = an unattractive man.

Love is one-sided, loving a woman as a man is like being a parent that loves it's child. You will have love reciprocated to you, BUT you sacrifice more, more is required of you, she will never love you in the same type of way that you love her. Which is why, if you don't dominate (Read: lead, not abuse) in the relationship, you will lose, the relationship is doomed to failure. Women cannot lead relationships and be happy about the fact. In fact they will lead said relationship to destruction. They're terrible leaders (too emotional/logic grounded in emotion not objectivity/facts.) Get used to leading women.

Peace and good luck to everyone beginning their journeys of self improvement. See ya on the other side.

EXAMPLE: Women are malleable -- they will change their beliefs to adapt

27 upvotes · 8 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Maybe that's why she's desperate to get him to sleep with her "just one more time"

Run for the hills my polish brother. Bitches be fucking crazy.

AskWomen on confidence

27 upvotes · 6 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

See we have to go deeper down the rabbit hole, I'd consider myself an introvert in some peoples company, and an extrovert in others, it really depends on the company. If I'm around people who aren't intellectuals or around people who are flat out arrogant and/or dumb/vapid etc then I'm pretty introverted. I tend to ignore those people but say its a scenario where I can't escape, I don't look to "out socially dominate" them. Talk louder. Challenge them. Try and show each other up etc. I can't be fucking doing with all that, it's a lot of fucking hassle, really and I don't feel like I need to be "the leader", saying that, I can lead, quite well and if I know the topic/area I can dominate it, but I won't engage in bullshit social games with people who want to fight for domination just so I can have a chance at it.

When I was younger I would have slanging matches with people, verbally, and it always ends in you and/or the other person getting very colourful/vile in order to "be leader" and it really fucks up the group dynamic, it leaves a sour taste and makes everyone else listening/watching feel awkward and "pick sides", so now I go the other way and don't validate things I don't like. I'm tall and broad so I have presence, and you find insecure guys pick up on that very quickly and will start throwing shit tests at you, they wanna out alpha you in their own mind because your genetics command presence on a primal level. They can be jacked/broad chiseled 6'3 guys, or they can be 5'5 indian skinny guys, it matters not - if they're insecure they will shit test you/try to show you up/act like cunts.

I can be witty, I like banter, I like throwing comebacks at people and not taking offence to rude things, but that's banter and in jest, not offhand bullshit to see "who leads the pack" or what fucking ever, I can tell the difference between the two and read the subtle nuances which distinguish between the two very well, even if said person is a cunt, doesn't really like me and is being intellectually dishonest to cover their own ass by saying "it's just a joke" in order to win the battle of social dominance, if "the joke" isn't funny chances are you weren't meant to laugh and that shit's a cover for being a dick.

Anyhow, I may have digressed somewhat. The previous type of introversion I explained is essentially not being stimulated by my surroundings, the people around me, and not really being able to connect with them. There's no fear, anxiety or otherwise emotionally crippling and inhibiting things that make me incapable of "being alpha" or "taking charge" or "leading" I just don't really connect with the company I'm with, the conversation is boring, we're on different levels - so I won't lead the interaction or fight to lead it. This is a "chosen" type of introversion, one where you do your own thing because present company is actually incredibly exhausting to entertain/talk with/connect with.

The other type of introversion which comes to mind is the one stemming in fear/lack of confidence/anxiety. You're out of your comfort zone, you don't know the place/people/subject matter and you feel you have no grounding socially. Your introversion is based on fear of looking stupid and being laughed at rather than being unable to connect with people on your level. Like a very skinny introvert just joining the gym is being introverted in that moment because of fear/lack of confidence, versus the same dude when he's surrounded by vapid women and is thinking about devising a methodology for a random theory that's popped into his head, or requires some sort of intellectual banter, or witty/jabbing banter and not idle gossip.

In the right company (if I'm surrounded by people who are either sarcastic or intellectual) as an introvert I can be very loud/vocal because I find it easy to connect with these people. We can exchange double entendre, discuss philosophy, discuss strategies, machiavellianism, whatever, there's real rapport and flow. Stick me in an office with a bunch of women/manginas and I'll be the quietest least popular dude there, unlike an extrovert introverts don't mirror/chameleon to their environments, they avoid environments they aren't compatible with and only show "outgoingness" in environments with people they can connect with.

No to be offensive to anyone, but you don't really find many stupid people who are introverts unless they have (un)diagnosed learning disorders. Stupid people are more impulsive, they get off on the challenge and experience of social interactions (dopamine) and sort of "feel their way along", introverts are more thinkers, not feelers, a lot of thinking has enhanced their wisdom/knowledge of the world and thus even if their IQ isn't sky high, you find they tend to be smarter people. Introverts are generally smarter people due to all that thinking they do. Extroverts can be at all levels of intelligence, I've known maybe one or two ENTJs (I personally fluctuate between ENTJ and INTJ and honestly don't want to hear anyone's thoughts on the validity of MBTI because it seems people just love to slaughter its validity as some sort of academic pastime) however ENTJs are pretty rare.

So sure, extroverts can be smart people but they tend not to be, you find there is a huge congregation of them at the bottom of the intellectual ladder following impulses and getting involved on a whim, it seems the dumber you are, the less you think and the more you "just do shit" - interpret this how you will, good, bad, whatever - but it's in my observations that the more simple minded, less read, less rigorous thinkers in the world have an easier job making up small talk and getting along with strangers they've had little chance to analyze/form opinions on than those whose minds who have grown more and subsequently get a bit (a lot) of disconnect when they're around those who are perceivably to start with at least, nothing like them. However, one thing I think that does remain consistent regardless of company is that extroverts tend to dive in and improvise, introverts are cautious analyzers, they like to build up information on a person before they decide how much of themselves to reveal and how they choose to socialise.

TLDR: Sarcasm can cross the chasms between differences in hobbies, demographic, social class, sociability and whatever, it really is fucking magic.

Female Solipsism: Older Married Woman asks AskMen Why Dating is Hard

27 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That post is brilliant I can hardly believe I read this in AskMen of all places.

I am Helen Smith, forensic psychologist and author of the book "Men On Strike: Why Men are Boycotting Marriage, Fatherhood, and the American Dream--and Why It Matters." AMA! : IAmA

27 upvotes · 24 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a policy of not arguing with women. I just agree and amplify sarcastically.

How women Stifle/Censor Intellectual discourse

27 upvotes · 1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I've met a couple of somewhat logical women in my life, perhaps around 3, and yes, they too result in emotional appeals to shit. It's annoying. A guy I can discuss some shit with for hours and not once will he try to shame/guilt or otherwise attack me psychologically, he'll give reasons, examples etc and only attack me if I don't acknowledge his line of reasoning as valid with an equally valid reason for why his line of reasoning is incoherent or flawed. Men can be pedantic for the sake of clarity, especially intellectual men, and I notice that non-native english speakers are even more pedantic because their mother tongues have words which English doesn't, more specific words, such as one specific word for "being deceptive in order to obtain sex" rather than that whole block of text I just typed in English to describe it, however, when women give up on logic they become petty, they'll find any little hole in what you said, an incorrect date, an incorrect usage of a word or whatever and zone in on that, essentially digressing the entire topic onto an insignificant tangent in order to "make them feel" like they're not losing the argument, but really, they've just derailed the intellectual integrity of the exchange into a nihilistic void.

Classic segment of an argument with my college sweetheart (an ex)

- Me: "you can use logic, you've done it plenty of times, so why do you refuse to use it now?"
- Her: "fuck logic, logic's overrated, logic can't solve everything!"

...I think you'll find it can. Your solipsistic emotions won't solve everything though, however. This was a woman who I'd consider far smarter than the average woman you meet out and about. Speaks for itself, really. Even more logical women have less endurance for rationality, it bores them to a point of incapability, it's almost as if they're in pain living in a paradigm when there's a lack of emotion, almost as if they need the energy of some emotion, any emotion so they can embellish like a morbidly obese man in a doughnut shop and get the fuel to thrive and activate dopamine hits in their limbic system, without it they resort to creating drama to getting those emotions. That's why ignoring them works so well, you give them nothing, no emotion, nothing good or nothing bad - they fucking hate it and they have no emotions to work with. Once you go into emotional territory when it comes to intellectual pursuits, you may as well hand her the trophy for winning. She's more interested in feeling smarter than you than she is interested in actually BEING smarter than you.

Don't think smart women with a modicum of logic are an exception (common misconception men seem to have, holding out for a non-existent unicorn) because they're not. All women are like this. Very rare I say such a thing as so concrete but I've not seen a scrap of evidence to the contrary.

"Men in 30s who do not want to date older women" (r/OkCupid)

27 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That realisation that your inherent worth is your sexual value and the thing you took for granted is dying and all of a sudden your life just got harder. I love it. Irony/karma is sweet.

The Choice [REMASTERED] - Should you have a family, or live as a bachelor?

26 upvotes · 27 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree, judicial reform and feminism falling out of favour is the key to making marriage great again.

Men hurt feelings to uphold logic. Women break logic to save feelings.

26 upvotes · 18 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"Will hurt feelings to uphold logic."

- Calling somebody who is rude and uncaring an asshole instead of telling them they're charitable and shit.
- Telling somebody they are wrong about something when they are wrong about something.
- Pointing out flaws in the reasoning or logic of an argument as to assert a more truthful or rigorously coherent viewpoint - logical reasoning.

"Will break logic to save feelings"

- Calling someone who is rude and uncaring magnanimous or kind, being sycophantic and bottom feeding.
- Not telling somebody they are wrong about something when they are wrong about something.
- Emotionally guilt-tripping or attacking the character of an arguer, as to reduce credibility and supplant reasoning with dogma. Pointing out character flaws or leveraging sympathy via victimhood to win a dispute - emotional reasoning/Machiavellian.

It's far harder to come up with examples for concepts you intuitively grasp than to understand them. Specifically outlining something you understand and teaching it to somebody else is harder than simply understanding it for yourself.

Some opinions on The Red Pill

26 upvotes · 17 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

To nail the point home more precisely: they can work, but not lead.

Show Me The Ho Facts!

26 upvotes · 28 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Female narcissism is the most detestable ugly shit to exist.

Cheating website "Ashley Madison" dumps released - prepare for an influx of new users

26 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I can just see the excuse that 5-10% of users (females) will be using: "It wasn't me! It was a fake profile".

Well a girl can't let a little thing like the truth stop her getting her way now can she?

Cenk gets put back in his place on the Young Turks

26 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If it's a "huge bummer" to be accused of rape, then it's gotta be a "huge bummer" to get raped. Imagine if a chick told you she got raped and you just glossed over it's profound relevancy by saying glibly "that's a huge bummer." She'd hate you. On the flipside? No fucks given by her. Fuckin' women.

On platitudes, imperatives, and unsolicited advice

26 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Woman told me NAWALT today when I said something about women she didn't like... AWALT confirmed!

I mock, I mock. I totally hear you. That shit gets old, quick. We don't really mind that kind of thing in the comments, because it can be relevant to the topic at hand. But a topic? No. Such things are too weak to constitute their own topic.

Guy on r/tinder spits truth about the brutal reality of dating. Welcome to female hypergamy 101.

26 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A broken clock can be right twice a day. Nevertheless, a sister isn't the same as a random woman when it comes to advice. Your sister is going to share some of your genes (50%?) with you so she's more likely to care about your interests. Even with family members, many female family members feed the guys bullshit. It is a sheer anomaly she is open with him. I find the problem with most guy's logic, such as yours, is that you believe if there is one exception to anything, then the generalisation is disproved by the exception.

But it isn't. If anything, the exception proves the need for a generalisation because it's an exception. If it were more common, the generalisation would not apply and we would not use it. If we say "Africa is hot" and you go there the one day in the year it's cold, does that mean Africa is not hot? No. It means you encountered the exception to the rule. This is the thing, the most consistent of phenomenon is not necessarily fact, but merely extremely common as to be close to fact. We call that a maxim.

Don't confuse what we perpetuate to be a maxim (a principle) as an axiom (a fact.) Essentially, what you thought was fact was just a principle (which means it can be wrong sometimes, but rarely is) and is thus safe to operate on.

Make sense? Good.

Cheating wife tells her lover (me) how loyal she REALLY is.

26 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why you don't get married. You get married, and she gets all the leverage. You lost your power to control your own commitment, she's effectively raping you for it with the threat of the law should you not comply. Marriage for men nowadays, if she is not smitten, is commitment under coercion. Of course, if you raped her for what you wanted, the law would lock you up. The whole thing is fixed. Marriage, not even once.

Feminists will tell you that women are undereducated. This is a lie and the data prove it

26 upvotes · 15 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh my god! Look at this blatant misogynistic mansplaining! Grab the pitchforks girls!

Nobel laureate says women in labs cry and distract men - sparks "outrage"

26 upvotes · 10 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Men face the opposite burden - you must appear strong even in your moments of human weakness, more responsibility, expectation and stress fall on you. Men are denied basic human vulnerability, women are identified by it, self-identify with it (when it suits) and weaponise it for gain (when it suits.) I imagine that being seen as weak when you are in fact strong is nowhere quite so troubling. In fact, it could be beneficial. The prior is arduous, the latter is an annoyance.

Women play down their strength, in fact, much of their strength is in appearing to be weak and leveraging the sympathies of others. Antithetically, men play their strength up and do not typically get the help they need because for men, even if they are weak, pride and perception makes it "important not to be seen as weak." Lots of men are blagging their strength but hurting on the inside. Women can get respect and aid by seeming vulnerable (because it's seen as feminine,) but men can't. So even when a man deserves help by the standards of conventional morality, he doesn't get it because either he puts on a good aesthetic of strength or his weakness repulses those who can help.

I believe there is more freedom in being powerful but thought of as weak (like those billionaires who dress casual) than there is in being seen as strong, but denied basic human weakness. Women are freer than us in that sense. They can play weak or strong and be accepted either way. Sure a strong woman isn't respected as much as a strong man, but she is hardly outcast. Feminism made sure of that. As for men, strength is our only option, and that comes at an emotional cost. Weak men don't get less respect than weak women, they get no respect at all. They get "HEY BITCH, LIFT WEIGHTS AND MAN THE FUCK UP." As a man, whatever emotional issues you have, you are alone. Nobody gives a shit. Perhaps the biggest privilege that comes with being female is people actually give a fuck enough about your problems to help you with them. People don't feel disgust for weak women like they do for weak men.

In light of that, I find it very hard to sympathise with a woman who is powerful but seen as weak. That's a privilege problem. Like when you can't get your Ferrari out of the drive because the Lambo is in the way.

Singaporean "escort" does AMA, spits RP truths left and right.

26 upvotes · 9 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You married a prostitute? Never make a hoe a housewife.

Ask IllimitableMan

26 upvotes · 30 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

How do you adapt your approach to inexperienced girls?

You need to show more comfort, you need to speak a lot more bullshit you don't believe to get in their pants "I believe there's a real connection between us" and "I can tell by the hue of your eyes you've seen a lot." They need all this to "go there with you" the thing is, you risk being a beta faggot who becomes an emotional tampon condemned to the friend zone, so you need to mix it up with some asshole behaviour/unavailability. It's a long game with those girls, and to be honest, they're not really worth the hassle. They will try and tell you everything about their family, their history, their feelings, all of it. And you won't get laid - FOR AGES. Sluts are better.

You're 18, you're not looking for marriage material. These kinda girls are generally attracted to and will drop panties quick for men who can pull off a patriarch/fatherly vibe "I feel so safe with you" or guys who have Chad Thundercock genetics "the amount of gushing I'm doing is pushing me past my own frigidity." Skip the frigid girls and fuck the sluts unless you want to waste countless hours as an emotional yo-yo finely calibrating between making her moist and comforting her anxiety. The problem with these girls is because of their fear, they make you tone down the very factors that make you attractive to them. Be badass, and whatever chick is interested, is interested. Abundance. Don't get caught up on any one chick you think is "so perfect and sweet and yadda yadda" that's a one way trip down blue pill lane.

Guy's wife stops putting effort into their marriage and threatens to bankrupt him if he divorces her. Guy unknowingly lays down dread game while secretly preparing for divorce. Wife is now doing everything she can to make him happy.

26 upvotes · 11 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We're rediscovering lost knowledge. Our forefathers knew a lot of this stuff, but a few generations of men have been emancipated from their fathers/traditional male role models/mentors. This has lead to a critical mass of confusion and with the advent of the Internet, a rediscovery.

"Guys never hit on me"

26 upvotes · 25 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Got a link buddy? I've probably seen it already but it would help elucidate your point.

[48 Days of Power] Day 46 - Never appear too perfect.

26 upvotes · 30 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's actually a really good parallel you've drawn there. It's funny how you can go back to things from your past and draw fresh conclusions with a completely different lens. Thanks for the video dude.

Germany to introduce legal quotas for women on company boards

26 upvotes · 26 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Prepare for the German economy to go to shit. And there the other week Merkel, we on TRP had a discussion about how pragmatic and thatcher-esque you were. All that shit is hereby rescinded. You're letting ideology destroy what Germany is known best for, that good old German efficiency. Collective Pragmatism > Ideology is the German way. Not this stupid bullshit.

How you know you're Alpha

26 upvotes · 23 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Completely agree with your points on terminological choice.

[Red Pill Theory] Why MGTOW is essential to my health (and why you should consider it)

26 upvotes · 14 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A MGTOW is the polar opposite to a PUA. As a man who strives for productivity and balance in his life, I do not really approve of either lifestyle, however I CAN understand the utility of either lifestyle, at least, temporarily. And even as a semi-permanent lifestyle, I do believe MGTOW holds more merit than the PUA life does, but that's just my opinion/bias. Yes I can give a lot of reasons for that opinion, but I don't want to digress too heavily into it.

MGTOW is really good for two types of men:

- Men who have been burned so badly by women that they can't possibly put the trauma behind them and reconcile their experiences with their expectations/reality.
- Men who fall beneath the top 20% of men and need to work on themselves to build up their SMV. By being outside of the 20% you are invisible to most desirable/sexable women by nature of your lack of power/status, and thus although getting it on with a woman is possible, the amount of time/skill needed to make it happen is ridiculous. You could be doing much better shit with your time. Better to put women on the back burner until a point where getting them is quick/easy/not time consuming.

PUA originates from a flawed premise, IMO. If you are high SMV you probably won't have approach anxiety because your SMV will give you confidence. If you are high SMV you won't need to game the shit out of women, you just need to hold frame and flirt. Punish bad behaviour, reward good behaviour, push and pull. No elaborate shit like the PUAs came up with. No following some rigid blueprint from escalation to isolation and blah blah. No canned lines or other bullshit. You see when you replace anxiety with confidence you have a man who does not need a whole fucking area of social theory to tell him how to behave with women, it naturally flows - it's natural game.

PUA teaches men how to catch a few fish, if they're lucky. TRP teaches men how to catch fish for life. MGTOWs have taken themselves out of the game completely, pursuing masculinity over women.

No matter how you choose to live your life, as long as you are happy, that's all that really matters. People bag on MGTOWs a lot but I don't have a problem with them. I can empathise with men being too hurt to consider an LTR again, living out of their cars and all that other evil shit. You do what you gotta do to find happiness. As long as you're not living in blue pill bullshit world, you're good in my book.

Monk Mode is temporary MGTOW and the majority of average guys need that shit because their SMV isn't high enough.

FR: Don't Believe in Hypergamy? Look No Further than Tinder.

26 upvotes · 13 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Yeah I'm a fucking dwarf even in muh heels." Agree and amplify bro.

Understanding How a Dark Triad Psychopath Operates

26 upvotes · 2 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fair enough. I understand your point and I agree, but it's not something that is going to change. In light of that, I suggest avoiding my posts.

"Do wives today expect too much?"

26 upvotes · 9 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's fucking sociopathic as fuck. It's not quite as bad as this but fuck me it's as close as a woman gets without being full fledged psycho. She makes you fall in love with who she thinks you want her to be, so that she can demand what she wants only to pull the rug from under your feet. I'm telling you, they're all fucking crazy, just some of them comparatively less so than others. Marriage, not even once. Maybe if a bitch can keep up that pretence for so long it becomes her personality, it would work. Try taking a big stab out of her best years, say 5 years from 20-25 or 25-30. If you get her best years and that kind of behaviour, you're onto something. Otherwise exploit her limit, 6 months of deceptively good behaviour or whatever, and then when she ultimatums your ass cash the fuck out. Fuck marriage.

Remember the brazilian girl that sold her virginity online for a documentary? (news in PT-BR, explanation in comments)

26 upvotes · 14 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The benefits of being rich are you can straighttalk without getting punished for it. Financial independence allows a person to be truer to themselves and not worry about upsetting others.

Woman writes fictional book from man's viewpoint. Writes Op-Ed decreeing men have it much easier than women. She knows this because she wrote a book and 'inhabited a man's brain'. This one is worth reading for the sheer ridiculousness of the premise.

26 upvotes · 8 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And because a woman says it, that's what makes it even more valid. If a man had lived as a woman for 18 months and came back and said "women have it easier" nobody would believe him. Funny how despite "gender equality" nobody notices the irony in how the word of a woman carries far more weight than the word of a man, even if she is a "butch lesbian woman" which is basically the closest you can be to a man in terms of psychology without biologically being one.

You know I really wouldn't be surprised the reason the majority of these transgender people are M-to-F rather than F-to-M is partly due to the level of privilege and support women receive from society versus men. To mentally more well rounded or otherwise strong men it sounds like a pathetic reason to want to switch gender, but if someone has had a terrible life and become mentally ill because of it, to the point they actually hate their own masculinity, it certainly falls within the realm of possibility that all these cultural pressures are causing young boys and men in their hopelessness to want to become women. Like the cultural marxists say, everything's a social construct, there couldn't possibly be anything biological making these boy wish they were girls, maybe it's this sick misandrist father devoid culture we live in eh?

I doubt transgender shit is an issue in places like Russia or Iran, where the feminine perspective/imperative doesn't lord over public discourse.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

26 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

What she writes is clickbait to push the feminist agenda, calling it journalism is an insult to the proper journalists out there reporting live from the frontlines, exposing corruption and shit like that.

The Dangers of Isolation: Why Men Need Other Men

26 upvotes · 7 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminisms destruction of male exclusive spaces only made this shit worse.

Use sex as a gauge of your relationships

26 upvotes · 11 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure, it applies to men too, but I definitely put more stock in what men have to say than women. I take them far more seriously, one: most of the time they're using reason and are not emotive reasoners, unless they're of seriously low intelligence (which applies to both genders) or if they're provoked to reason with anger. Women are generally emotive reasoners, they comment on appearance and pleasantries, not so much substance, they are quicker to feel/feign indignation and use it as a manipulation, giving even less credibility to their words.

Also, seeing as society will hold men to account and make them take responsibility for fucking up, there's some kind of cultural insurance. Whereas if a woman changes her mind or decides not to make good on her promises, she is free to shirk them in such a way, potentially fucking you over, and nobody will bat an eyelid.

This kinda feels like a strange NAWALT being discussed here, some women will be more reliable than some men, but I am of the opinion that as a general trend you can put far more stock in the average man's words than the average womans despite both genders housing some really shitty people.

A little line that goes a long way: "How are you going to make it up to me?"

26 upvotes · 28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"when are you making me a sandwich? It's not like you can cook"

Am I the only one that created a fake tinder account today with a picture of a model and lined up 8 chicks for a booty call TONIGHT?! That I won't actually get to do...

26 upvotes · 23 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is profound.

This is in /r/askreddit right now. Jesus fucking christ.

26 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The horse thing is an incredibly strange anomaly.

Redpill and man as a "success object" really hitting home.

26 upvotes · 9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the fundamental difference in what women say they want and what they actually want in practice is a product of the notion that women tend to exercise rationalisation, not reason in and of itself. Most women have extremely weak reasoning, you'll notice in arguments with them they will try to attack the credibility of your logic to try and make themselves look better, this is the classic "I can't beat the competition so I'll try to make the competition less effective" strategy that women employ with shit like fat acceptance and feminism (but applied on a micro-scale), thus encouraging their competition in practice or otherwise making their competition seem less effective by spinning negative behaviours with bullshit. Questioning a mans logic and credibility is a way a woman essentially "brings a man down to her level of absurdity."

A woman will also hold you to your logic, but she is bound by no such logic, because they have no prevailing internal dialogue based on logic, just emotional thinking layered with rationalisation.

They do whatever they do and then worry about making themselves look good later on, reason does not permeate the thought process beforehand, satiating the "need" caused by their current emotional state is of the paramount importance, essentially they care more about feeding their emotional state than they care about objective logic. Emotional preference beats rational preference with them every time, as much as they hate the fact this makes them seem less credible than men, and thus to some extent, inferior, this is practically a universal truth.

When you're inherently unreasonable you are prone to making mistakes, making mistakes makes you look bad - looking bad is bad for your status. This is why women are good at saving face and maintaining a reputation whilst simultaneously practicing poor reasoning ability. This is where manipulation comes into play, you'll find that, women are very good at spinning things. They'll talk to you, they'll hold you to your words and get you on the defence, constantly questioning you, but they'll ignore any criticisms directed at them. Then they use your own words against you, using underhanded and subtle spin, to make you look like an idiot. The more you put into an argument with a woman the more likely you are to lose with her because she will act most deviously in sabotaging your reputation whilst she layers hers.

To a woman, an argument is not usually an exchange of information between one person and another where despite opposition, ideas can be exchanged. To a woman, an argument is a battleground in reputation maintenance, nothing more, nothing less. This is why typically, they cannot be held as accountable and thus even remotely equal to men. This desire for plausible deniability is what creates their blame-shifting nature and makes them, happily to themselves, not only unaccountable, but to their dismay - simultaneously not credible. Women will always move the microscope from themselves and onto the man. This is how they defend themselves. They are basically incapable of standing up to scrutiny which is why they do everything in their power to remain out of the spotlight.

What they're doing is, despite their lack of intellectual integrity or logical honesty, is make themselves look more credible than you, so when it comes to saving face, they win. Women care about winning arguments, not about being right. They're very egotistical, because ego, like everything, is composed of emotions, and emotions are that much more pronounced in women than they are in men.

With so many new subscribers, viewers, and straw men flying about, lets examine some controversial terms and misconceptions

26 upvotes · 5 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Written especially for newbies about 3 or 4 influx waves ago.

- <http://illimitablemen.com/2013/10/27/dissecting-the-red-pill/>
- <http://illimitablemen.com/2013/11/10/dissecting-the-red-pill-part-2-q-and-a/>

If you have questions like "does red pill believe in gender equality" read part 2 first.

/r/AskMen thread asks what experiences men have had sleeping with older women. RedPill truths abound.

26 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

and maybe you can earn my trust back if you don't disappear again

There it is, the machiavellianism. Sounds similar to something I'd say when I'm conditioning a woman not to do things I don't want her to do or am reasserting my boundaries. Difference being I don't come off like a fucking nutter, I come off as flirty/charming and there's also the small fact that a woman controlling the relationship leads it to failure. LOL. Glad you resisted her bullshit, that line made it but abundantly obvious that she was trying to wrap you around her finger.

One lucky redditor is blessed to have his gf have sex with James Deen on camera

26 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Definitely sarcasm. If it's not, let's lynch him. Muahauahuahuahua

EDIT: definitely sarcasm

Sweden, the most feminist country of them all...

26 upvotes · 28 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Conversation between me and a swedish girl at my uni the other day:

Me: "have you ever seen a happy, masculine man in Sweden?"

Her: "....."

10 seconds later

Her: "No, I don't think I have actually."

Girlfriend of 10 Years Cheats on an "Amazing Guy"

26 upvotes · 13 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Never get married. NEVER. It's signing over your ability to leave to make some lawyers and a detestable bitch rich.

He's moving out because the place they lived together was leased to them by her father.

So the father condones his daughters actions? If that was my daughter I'd kick her out. Haha [META] I notice of late that many comments are attracting rather a lot of downvotes. Say a constructive comment near the top being +15 (+60 -45). Are we being brigaded?

26 upvotes · 8 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

AskMen has a woman moderator.

It's called ask fucking men.

Half the men there share feminist beliefs and therefore aren't really giving a mans opinion.

The correct name for AskMen is AskBetaMax because that's what their opinion amounts to.

Edit: put believes, meant beliefs.

E.U. outlaws anti-Feminism (x-post /r/mensrights)

26 upvotes · 19 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

LMAO. It's like they don't realise feminism is fucking bigoted gender discrimination. They have ethnic discrimination, religious intolerance and anti-feminism in the same section. OK so we'll make ethnic discrimination illegal, but we'll make it illegal to not support gender discrimination (feminism) by outlawing anti-feminism. Fucking WOW. The irony of this statute is astounding, anti-feminism is the one thing that sticks out there, it's not even in the same class as the other things.

Fewer Men Graduate College: Obama says it's a "Great Accomplishment."

26 upvotes · 11 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Obama, fuck you.

Mangina getting publicly shamed by his gf

26 upvotes · 6 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I got as far as 0:50. Why the fuck is this guy on his knees. WOW. Just Wow. Words can't express how fucking pathetic this is, there's lacking experience/game./power and then there's being this piece of shit excuse for a man. Just wow.

HAE been aggressively approached by engaged women?

26 upvotes · 2 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriage + no rules for violating it = a mans nightmare. Don't get married. Women are too touchy feely to be trusted without rules and punishments for bad behaviour.

I'm Afraid I Might Be More Bitter Towards Women Than I Thought...

26 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My first ONS, her boyfriend kept ringing up and she keeps saying "its my boyfriend he wants to talk" so she answers it once and it seems like they had an argument of some kind and she comes off the phone saying he's a dick.

The guy rings again 10 minutes later (bare in mind this is saturday night and she's out in town with me, my boys and her girls) and she's telling me again he's ringing as if she's asking me permission to pick it up or get my input, I get my phone out of my pocket and put it to her face and say "look, do this" bring up the turn off menu, press "turn phone off" and my phone powers down, then I say "that'll fix your problems" she talks to him again and seems a bit more distraught, afterward she keeps looking at her phone and seeming anxious so I say to her what's wrong? And she starts going on about her boyfriend. I'm not her fucking therapist so I say "see you didn't turn off your phone now he's making your night shit" (appealed to her solipsism and entitlement) boom she turns it off straightaway, heads off in a taxi with me, tells one of her girls who didn't want to come back because she wasn't DTF that she wants illimitableman makes out with me every 3 minutes, when we finally get back to my friends house she pulls my jeans down sucks my dick in my friends kitchen and then I end up fucking her upstairs.

Bet if her boyfriend ever finds out she fucked me that night she says it was his fault due to the preceding argument. I don't respect a girl who cheats on her boyfriend, I hate fucked the shit out of her face/pussy and even made her puke, which pissed her off, but I don't give a fuck, bitch is cheating on her boyfriend.

Then my ex who friendzoned me, I told her to fuck me or fuckoff. She shit tests me "well why should I fuck you?" and I say well you know that night I stood you up? When I went out with the guys I got laid so if you're not going to give it to me I'll get it somewhere else. She cried/went crazy. The following weekend I fucked her.

This was my first dose of the red pill, before that I was a really nice guy who never did shit like that and then as soon as I act like an asshole who won't take shit, I'm getting sucked off in a random kitchen one saturday and my oneitis spreads her legs for me. Women respond better to disrespect and ironically, respect you more for it. It's a fucked up world.

Sweden Considers (Legal) "Male Abortion" - Oh The Irony.

25 upvotes · 15 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Every time I read a newspaper and they swoon over the extravagant first world socialist governance that is "the nordic model" I fucking cringe.

What they don't tell you is about the Muslim ghettos, gangs, the rapes of their native women, the riots (Malmo) and all the rest of it.

Nordic countries went from land of the vikings to land of the cucks. Very sad. Iceland's no exception either. I think Roosh's bang book for Iceland is even titled (Don't) Bang Iceland.

Your struggle and pain? Women neither understand nor give much of a fuck.

25 upvotes · 2 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That shit's brutal man, lesson learnt eh.

What I Learned About Business from Dating a Supermodel

25 upvotes · 27 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Pragmatism is a bit too simple for the information to be properly understood. IMO, this writing is a piece of art.

Of course the most valuable writing arguably demonstrates theory alongside example. That oft requires mastery in the subject area. OP has observed someone do things and likened them to his upbringing. He hasn't done those things himself (used people.) The need for mastery is why it's so rare to see a piece of writing that encompasses both (theory and example/instruction.) Likewise a lot of people don't want to reveal their secrets.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

25 upvotes · 3 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

20 years? Holy shit my man. Skipping out on your family after 20 years to go fuck fresh dick is brutal. Most of these women just get knocked up after a fling or short-term relationship. Skipping out after 20 years is just simply brutal, I'm sure the divorce/separation fucked up the kids, but on the bright side they at least had both their parents together for some time. Silver linings and all that.

Argued with a Male Feminist on Facebook. This is what he said.

25 upvotes · 15 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

- 1 - You are wasting your time arguing on facebook.
- 2 - As you become more RP it is inevitable that the rift between you and the brainwashed masses will grow.
- 3 - He did you a favour. He weeded himself out. There's one less future problem for you to deal with.

You Have Low SMV If You Are Unsuccessful With Women

25 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Easiest way to get status is in the gym. Then you can have none of the things you mentioned, but if you look like Zyzz, chicks wanna bone. Your body could make you money modelling, or get you a fanbase on youtube too if you wear vests and make dumb videos. Chicks will sub because "omg he's so haaawwwt." It's the only way you can not solve all those issues and still get laid. Of course, if you go the youtube route, it will start producing status and income when it grows big, which will mean high SMV. "Omg you're the cute guy from youtube!" "Can I feel your bicep?"

I finally told the girl who used me all year for school work I wouldn't help her anymore.

25 upvotes · 3 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

see Germany, 30% of the board has to be female in 2016

Good bye meritocracy and laissez-faire.

Developed light feelings for a plate- she destroyed us in moments.

25 upvotes · 17 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

When a woman pushes for commitment it's a woman being a woman, when a man wants to lock a bitch down she'll see him as needy. She has to want you more, not the other way around, it reduces your value in her eyes. Just like a man pushing for sex is a man being a man, but a woman pushing for sex is needy. Women are the gatekeepers of sex, men are the gatekeepers of commitment. This all makes sense when you internalise that principle.

Women are counterintuitive, never forget that. You thought because she was so worried about other girls on your radar that getting upgraded would give her what she wants, but because she didn't have to work for it and you just did it of your own accord, she thinks you're catching feelings and like her more than she likes you. You're giving your commitment too easily, like a slut spreads her legs too easily. At the same time, you're getting rid of the dread responsible for her tingles - leaving her dry.

Sports team captain, ripped, good looking, glittering military career, new job as a stockbroker - STILL BLUE PILL ... dumped

25 upvotes · 26 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Speak for yourself, I wouldn't bail, if the wife was a good wife with a good disposition I wouldn't throw that away for the banging HB9 22 year old. I'd take her as a mistress, plate her and let it crash when it inevitably crashes. Only a stupid man throws away a woman with a good disposition/motherly qualities for the hot young slut. Hot young sluts are in abundance. Well-trained, decent, acquiescent women who know how to treat a man in return for his commitment and aren't so batshit crazy they won't fuck up their kids are not.

That's the difference between men and women. When a man fucks another woman it's just for sex, it's not emotional, he's not fucking for commitment or to get emotionally closer to a different woman, he's fucking for the sake of fucking. To get a sexual release. Because he seeks sexual variety and sexual gratification. It is purely a sexual exploit, he doesn't want to commit and seriously pair bond/have a relationship with the hot young slut he's fucking. Women however are different, they cannot fuck a man for very long without their emotions getting involved. Sex cannot just be sex to them (for very long) eventually commitment, emotions and the need for closeness kick in, women cannot segregate sex from love like men can. If they could, a lot less betas would be getting divorced and plates would spin a lot longer.

When your woman cheats on you with another man, it becomes emotional and deeper for her very quickly. The more she fucks a guy, the more she begins to feel attached and in love with him. That's why most plates crash, the woman wants more, the man doesn't want to give her more - and so he has to let her go because she will come with the ultimatum at some point "where is this going? I feel like you don't take me seriously - bla bla bla." That's why your girl fucking another guy is much worse news than a chick's man fucking another girl. A guy can still love his wife whilst fucking a mistress. A girl can't love her beta whilst she fucks an alpha on the side. No instead she pines for the alpha and wants to replace the beta.

The more she fucks an alpha the closer she gets to him/desires him emotionally, with nothing but his psychological defences (which she is trying to wear down) stopping her from engaging in full-on emotional intimacy with him. Eventually she feels more strongly for him than she does for the man she is cheating on and thus she leaves him as "the spark isn't there anymore." A man can have a wife and various mistresses, and still very much love his wife. A woman cannot have a husband, fuck various men and still respect her husband as "THE MAN," she will see him differently, she will love him less, if not at all. That is hypergamy. Women are very much designed to allocate all their respect to one dominant male at a time, meaning they cannot fuck on the side without falling out of love with their "main man." Whilst a man can fuck on the side without it betraying his emotions for his wife, because sex and love don't blur as easy for men. Men are better at objectifying sex as a purely physical non-spiritual act. Such a man won't see the motherly woman as any less, or respect her less. He may fuck her less, but that's about it. He won't dump her and leave her with nothing, she still has his commitment. Whereas a woman doing the same thing? It's a matter of time until she's outta there. IMO, that's the major difference between hypergamy and male promiscuity.

Male promiscuity does not inhibit a man's ability to love the woman he's committed to should he cheat, a woman's hypergamy does. The new man makes the old man seem relatively "inferior" and she feels like she's being "forced to settle" rewrites history to see the old man as a devil and then does everything in her power to monopolise the new man's commitment until she successfully wears him down, finds another suitable alpha and continues the ship-jumping process. Men can be emotionally loyal whilst being sexually non-exclusive, women cannot, IMO.

FR: Getting Subway at the mall leads to plate (your posture is fucking important, nonverbal cues, communication, frame, direct game, etc.) and a HUGE red pill moment

25 upvotes · 4 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If I could kick the shit out of my younger self with a time machine, I would.

[48 Days of Power] Day 22 - "Use the surrender tactic: transform weakness into power."

25 upvotes · 6 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This law won't go down well in TRP, but from a Machiavellian viewpoint, it is bang on. Just a heads up in case you wonder why it'll get next to fuck all upvotes. TRP takes much pride in bravery and facing challenges, this runs completely counter to that.

FR: Women are truly disgusted by Betas (and they cheat with Alphas)

25 upvotes · 30 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Keep in mind her very matter-of-fact northern European sensibility, which I found kinda funny. If you know any Danish people, you might also laugh at this.

I find this to be true of Lithuanian, Latvian and all Northeastern European women. It's also true of Polish women to an extent, mostly the older ones/high T ones (in my experience.) With EE women I always thought it was due to a lack of the bullshit known as political correctness in their culture. With the Scandinavians however I don't get it, their politics are so socialist and feminism is so rampant you'd think they'd have political correctness there and less of the terse pertinence.

One thing I do to escalate after hooking a girl is to take her to a nearby rooftop. At worst, you get escalation, making out, feeling up. At best, you get to bang her right there. I've written a field report about it before.

That's a really cool idea/smooth move. How the fuck do you always have access to a damn rooftop though? I'm assuming they find the view "romantic" and that helps swing it.

"Wait a sec...just so you know. I LOVE my boyfriend back home! I really love him."

AHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA just not enough to be monogamous. She loves the spooning and shit, that's what she loves. You know if a chick can love you but still slut it up with other guys.. I'm not sure that love is worth jack shit (from an LTR point of view) - obviously as a PUA type you love the fact women are slutty because you're a pillaging marauder not a guy "in love" locked down/committed etc. IMO, If you have a girlfriend, you're losing because of shit like this where girls like her do shit like that with guys like you. If you're not "the other guy" your girl is going to end up with "the other guy." AWALT.

Violation of the brocode?

He's not your bro you don't even know this guy. Fuck him. Bro code is for actual bros, not men in general.

Male only barber shop makes millions, causes crazy feminists to attack store with fake bloodied tampons

25 upvotes · 27 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In the UK they fucking work in them.

Guide to Avoiding Emotional Tampon

25 upvotes · 26 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oneitis is this dreaded genetic curse men get where they think they'll never get to pass their genes to such a high quality woman ever again, its like trauma of failing to secure/maintain a high quality woman causes a man to lose his collective shit/sense of reasoning and starts pedestalsing the bitch. When you fuck other women, even if they are inferior to the woman you lost, your body is like "eh, genes getting passed on, fuck it." And that is thus how the oneitis is quelled. If you get it really bad you'll need more than one woman to move on, we're talking dozens. Voice of experience here. Fucking oneitis, the bane of mankind.

Idolizing DT: A true example of Psychopathy

25 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Psychopaths are lonely people. Imagine thinking you're better than everybody else, get incredibly arrogant because you feel superior but are unable to connect with anyone and so are perpetually lonely because "nobody is on your level." You have such a low opinion of people that you cannot find value in most people. You feel no empathy and so you cannot emotionally connect with other people. You are a prisoner in your own reality. Psychos tend to abuse the fuck out of drink and drugs to try and feel normal now and again in some inane attempt to "connect with the common folk" and "feel what it's like to be close to someone." Psychopaths don't give a fuck about you, but they get pissed off with their own loneliness. I can tell you that much for certain. They are lonely motherfuckers regardless of their popularity. Functional psychos put on a really good outward display of "being on top of their shit" but they're all damaged by merit of being so different from everybody else. Psychos aren't unfeeling, they have feelings, they just care about their own feelings exclusively and are totally indifferent to other people's feelings as long as those feelings are irrelevant to their plans.

The closest thing psychopaths experience to "love" or "closeness" is a respect for skill. That is it. Psychopaths covet intelligence. They have their own curse. I don't wish it on anyone. They're incapable of loyalty so it makes them paranoid that everybody else will betray them, projection you see. They'd screw you over in your hour of need so they think everybody else will too, and ironically, because they'd do that to you, anybody who knows WHAT they are WOULD screw them over because they get the game. Only a fucking idiot is going to be loyal to someone who has NO loyalty to them (LOYALTY BEING AS RECIPROCAL AS IT IS) and psychopaths can't really tolerate idiots for long, so you see DTs suffer from a kind of "trust paradox" (topic of a future article.)

Psychopaths struggle with trust and loyalty because they are inherently (irrationally) distrustful and disloyal people. I wouldn't trust one to come and save my life unless my death would deprive said psychopath of something they value. They don't even feel attachment to their own parents so what makes you think you have a chance. That's the thing with psychopaths, everything is a game, all the time. They make bad long-term partners, and tend to be abusive in relationships. DT's are great at picking up lots of short-term pussy but they absolutely bomb in LTRs. It takes a lot of conscious effort and training on the part of a psychopath to have a family and not fuck it all up with blind rage, sadism and general disconnectedness towards their own partner/offspring.

Psychopaths only care about people in two ways: what that person can do for them (Briffault's Law) AND how much they have personally invested into one person.

The longer a psycho knows you the more they care about you because of the amount of time they have put into you. Don't mistake "care" for empathy, I mean "care" as in respect/admire but it's a type of respect absent of empathy. It's hard to explain, so I'll put it like this: say you really like your laptop but one day your laptop dies, you're mad because your laptop is broken, you're not sad because your laptop is broken. That's how psychopaths are with humans. Your death would cause them a problem and that would make them mad. They are mad your death creates a problem, not upset that you are dead. Notice the subtle nuance there, it is relevant to understanding a psycho. That's "how they care." Being as narcissistic as they are, spending lots of time on you means to them, internally, that there must be something special about you because they don't normally give people the time of day. Psychopaths are takers and they thrive on givers, they are parasitic people. There is a way to game psychopaths, if you understand them, you can predict them by baiting their self-interest and play fire-with-fire, but it's generally not really worth it and I'm not going to give any advice on that kind of shit unless you're fucking paying me to. It's pretty specialist shit, anyway I digress.

In spite of all of that, psychos are usually pretty interesting people. I don't say any of this shit to put psychos down, or project hate onto them because for someone who isn't a psycho I'm about as sympathetic as an aware person can be towards psychos. Everything I've said is declarative, it simply IS WHAT IT IS. That's the reality of it. Most people will not accept psychos knowing they are like this. I'm not one of them, I accept them as a "different kind of human" and treat them accordingly. I use them for what they're worth like they use me for what I'm worth. It sounds unappealing when I word it like that, but you can actually have a lot of fun with a psycho if they respect you. It takes a certain kind of person to be friends with a psycho though, and not all psychos are chainsaw wielding murderers, the functional ones are just "off." They are very aloof and uncaring and need constant stimulation.

If they're not actively "pretending to care" (trust me this is rare, and if they bother to even pretend they care, they must like you or be trying to convince you they're "normal") they hardly ever wish you good luck, or get well soon or any other social pleasantries that "normal people" do. They just don't show concern for your well-being. IT'S WHAT THEY DON'T SAY AND DO THAT EXPOSES THEM. PSYCHOS SUCK AT BLENDING IN BECAUSE THEY GET TIRED OF PRETENDING TO GIVE A FUCK ALL THE TIME and it's this that makes it obvious they literally have no fucking emotional attachment to you. Not even if they've been your friend for the past 20 years. The best way to expose a psychopath pretending not to be one is through a war of attrition. They will only last so long keeping up the façade before deducing the benefit from maintaining the facade outweighs the cost. Making a psychopath pretend to care is the ultimate shit test and it removes some of their autonomy, which they hate. Every way in which they like you is related to how you can make them feel in a moment, or how stimulating you are, but if you disappeared, they'd look for another version of you. When you have a psychopath in your life, you have to think differently when you deal with them in order to better relate to them.

There are far too many angry emotionally butthurt fucked up men out there who read my shit and get fucking obsessed with it thinking they can turn into this guy. You can't because you lack the genetics or an unlimited supply of cocaine. I write about the DT to help give people an edge in the game of life, there's a lot of power to be had there and you can dip in to hone your methods of psychological attack as well as defend yourself. I don't write about it so fucking idiots can project their masturbatory gangster fantasies onto it. Far too many try hards who completely misinterpret what the whole DT aspect of TRP is all about. If you weren't born a dysfunctional unfeeling person, you won't become one and you shouldn't glamorise dysfunction because even if you could get it all you'd do is trade one set of a problems for another. You'll always have to deal with your capacity for empathy like the rest of us, whilst the psychos have to deal with their unending loneliness. Life's a bitch.

I have been making lots of progress... but it now appears that I have become intimidating. Help!

25 upvotes · 9 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's freedom in realizing not everybody has to like you.

You can't ever become truly powerful or renowned without pissing off a lot of people. If you think you can be massively successful and have everyone like you, you don't understand the nature of power. When someone interacts with someone way out of their league, it reminds them of their own inadequacies, they then associate that negative feeling with you and decide they don't like you. They then become toxic to you, attempting to undermine you, sabotage you, and bring your value into question. Call it jealousy. Call it an inferiority complex. Call it whatever you like, but you will get haters for simply daring to try and stand out from the crowd. How dare you attempt to be exceptional!

Naturally, many people will grow to love you too. As Machiavelli said, it is better to be feared than loved. Ideally, one is both. Haters have their place, OP should take it as a sign of progress. Be comfortable with being the outsider OP, master humour (stand-up comedy) for interactions with the sheeple, but don't tie your identity to their herd mentality. And don't wish to regress simply due to discomfort. No man worth a fuck is staying in his comfort zone, he is constantly expanding his comfort zone. This all part of the game my men.

Article tells women to lower their standards using "Moneyball" techniques

25 upvotes · 2 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

So she favours loyalty and narcissistic supply over superiority. That's an interesting perversion of hypergamy.

She's probably alpha widowed, insecure as fuck, gone full swing from DT-Alpha to fully controllable beta play thing. The ultimate emotional and validation tampon. She'll still be out getting fucked by DTs and alpha fux on the side anyway. Plus being married does wonders for her reputation and makes her seem like a more trustworthy woman. Very calculated.

Beta is angry at "player" best friend for "stealing" his potential perfect girl, doesn't understand why she'd fall for a guy like that.

25 upvotes · 25 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hitting up a chick a bro is working on is in poor taste and a sign of disrespect.

How necessary is a good face?

25 upvotes · 13 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You have to do leg work if you're less attractive. You have to approach girls rather than have girls approach you. Girls won't whistle at you or offer you their number or anything like that, you don't get easy mode, but if you slay shit tests, hold frame, and are humorous/flirty you can close and get play. It works differently, you get less invitations to approach, flirted with less (or never) and blah blah, but that doesn't mean you can't get play. You're a man, you hunt, whether the prey is asking you to come and fuck it because it's seen you're a silverback with attractive genetic markers or whether you have to infatuate her with solid frame, sharp wit and no fucks given, you can still close and get play.

Being attractive is like having every door on the street open to you, and you can walk into whatever door you like, but if you fuck up, you're back out on the street. Chicks are more receptive to you off the bat when you are attractive, but that doesn't mean you can't go and fuck it up. The unattractive equivalent is when all those same doors are closed and you need a key just to get into anywhere. You're not hot so people don't have a reason based on observation to let you in, they need a logical reason, they need to see some status, or otherwise like you psychologically (you're funny, you're interesting etc.) For a literal example, think of how discriminant bouncers are at bars and clubs. Charisma, confidence, having your shit together and a sense of humour are the key (pun intended) for unattractive guys. Your face ain't getting any prettier. Small guys, you ain't getting any taller. Needle dicks, you're not getting hung. It is what it is. Accept it and work on what you can change instead of mourning what you can't like a little bitch.

Nobody said physical attraction didn't matter, you can make a girl who doesn't expect to like you, like you. To give a really polarised comparison, say you've got a naturally athletic guy who is really unconfident. Chick sees him, before she's spoken to him she expects to be swept off her feet, places her expectations high and is dreaming of fucking him. She talks to the guy and the more they talk the less she likes him. He has no game, he fails shit tests and blah blah. She feels let down, her expectations were high because "OMG HE'S SO HOT!" and but he doesn't get the lay because he's all effeminate, nervous and saying dumb shit. Guys like this need chicks to be drunk so all the interacting doesn't matter and his body can do all the talking. Now imagine a guy who is slightly out of shape, hasn't got well fitting clothes and blah blah, your average guy. Her expectations are low. Except this guy keeps her on her toes, dismisses her, teases her and really plays with her emotions. When she throws shit at him, he handles it unfazed like a boss. Guess who's getting the lay? Chubby mc bad fashion is. Why? She had low expectations and he surpassed them, not only that but he had masculine energy and knew how to play the game with her. That's attractive.

Of course if a guy who's swole as fuck and has the same game/confidence as the chubby guy came along, she'd be off with him and you'd be left high and dry because bitches take the best that they can get, but luckily, most guys have next to no game. Just like intelligent and beautiful women are rare, guys with good game who are ripped to fuck are rare. Most people who are smart/interesting neglect their looks, most people who are good looking neglect their brains, people try to cruise through life on ONE THING, but you should be trying to master both to get the best of both worlds. That's the kind of shit that really puts you up there, we're talking the top 1-2% of men. Try to be as attractive as you can with what you have and make your game a part of your personality (naturally flirty/witty) rather than come off as some try hard PUA and you'll get results.

People get too caught up on looks. Fit/good looking guys get butthurt when they get no play because they've got the personality of a door mouse and ugly guys act like they're condemned for eternity because they're ugly or simply average/below average. Play the hand you've got, work on improving your weaknesses, you're only as vulnerable as your weakest area. When you can't improve your weakest area any more, do your best to play it down

As for fucking tinder, there is no way for hoes to see other than from your pics if you're high status/attractive, which is why looks are so important on there. Unattractive guys should not be using fucking tinder. We know text game is shit for attraction building, texting is for logistics. I'd be interested to see whether an ugly guy who has a picture of him with a widely recognised celebrity (eg: charlie sheen/obama) on his tinder profile would get play based on that, seeing as, despite ugliness, it implies high status (he's connected to famous people.) I'm willing to bet bitches would put out thinking our ugly friend is some kind of stepping stone to better things. Someone try photoshopping themselves (convincingly) with a famous person and let us know if you get more hookups.

Edit: typos

Bill Burr on why you shouldn't be friends with females

25 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah if you're not attracted to them, they're smart, and the sexual dynamic isn't in play, they may as well be overly emotional men which hilariously makes me think of the average beta.

Fox News Advises Women To Ditch Feminism, Offers Tips To 'Keep Your Husband Happy'

25 upvotes · 7 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why the resounding red pill attitude is "fuck marriage." Why put yourself through it?

"Why I loathe feminism and how it will destroy the family"

25 upvotes · 19 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman who gets it, and unsurprisingly she is well past her prime.

All Men Are Pedophiles [x-post from /r/videos]

25 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dr. Karen Brooks, PHD and yet she still feels the need to have her top cut so low you can't help but be drawn to her breast area. Not even a fucking PHD makes her any different fellas, she's just like the rest.

I heard a girl say the most beta bux thing I've heard in my life.

25 upvotes · 30 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You've still got the pussy on a pedestal man. Strong people learn from their regrets, they don't live in the past.

Stories of sadistic bitches, got any?

25 upvotes · 8 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Agree and amplify to a point where she looks ridiculous.

I'd play it something like this:

"Yeah I was this bumbling idiot fawning all over her, but obviously she is way too good for me so she had to shut me down. I sat at home crying for about 3 months but I always seem fine at work because I'm such a bad ass. I'm glad she turned me down it wouldn't work, workplace relationships are doomed to failure. Next time some faggot she's too good for hits on her I'll laugh because I'll be like DAAAAMN that used to be me. I've learnt a lot from this, she's a great girl I hope she marries a millionaire with an 8-pack and a 7 figure salary somewhere she deserves that, no less."

Bear in mind when I talk like this I'm basically sarcastic as fuck. I mean none of that shit. You should convey the same. Don't sound serious. Amused mastery.

A harsh truth: The Red Pill will only get you so far

25 upvotes · 6 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Woman you fucked = terrorist

Child you had with her = hostage

Terrorism + hostage = ransom demands (marriage)

Marriage = huge party then dumped and ransomed with the hostage again (alimony/child support)

Bitches are fucked up.

Arthur Schopenhauer on women

25 upvotes · 31 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fucking love Schopenhauer. Upvote this shit to the heavens.

How to get a woman to go home with you... AS WRITTEN BY WOMEN. Unbelievable....

25 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

but it isn't making her otters pocket wet

LMFAO. Stolen!

R/askmen has finally gone full beta.

25 upvotes · 18 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Go away your breath stinks"

Grab her hand and pull her away. If she digs her heels in, abandon her. If she follows you and he follows too then frame him as a creepy stalker.

Not rocket science is it?

Growth rate of TheRedPill subreddit

25 upvotes · 16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We coul potentially see a huge social movement in the future

The feminist response will be fucking ridiculous in such a scenario. Prepare for world war 2 nagasaki hiroshima style hamsterbation.

Young doctor wonders why women are suddenly after him. Gets slaughtered by hamsters on r/askwomen. These are redpill truths in action.

25 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I noticed that when I read it.

I expect the woman didn't even sense the irony in her own train of thought as she proceeded to immediately contradict her own thinking.

I noticed something special about irony when it comes to women.. it's like Harry Potter's invisibility cloak, they just don't fucking realise it's there.

You've just gotta love that, it's comical in and of itself. A flawless delivery of ironic principles with a simultaneous total ignorance to it. It's gold.

Feminism, so-called Women's Studies, is not a valid academic discipline and never was.

25 upvotes · 1 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

4 years of my life to hear about how being born a white male makes me responsible for all the world's problems.

Brits invented 56% of modern tech Yanks invented 25% of modern tech.

Most were white.

81% of shit you take for granted was invented by a dude of white european ethnicity.

Hate the white dude all you want, he's responsible for many of your comforts. Fuck the bullshit academics biting on the hand that fed.

PS: colonialism was fucked up, any ethnicity would do it, whites just did it best. If you know your fucking history, caliphate, ottomans, mongol horde etc etc... almost every ethnicity has had an empire. Hating white people for their most recent dominance is just acceptable racism. Sure there's some fucked up crap in america (i'm not from there - can't relate) but a lot of is bullshit political tension and ignorance, little substance to a lot of this animosity... but hey.. humans are simple, doesn't take much to upset any of you at all.. most of you are weak. /realtalk

PPS: whites enslaved whites (english enslave irish), blacks enslaved blacks (africans on africans).. I find it funny how the white to black slave thing is a focus in the united states.. as if that was the only ethnic direction of slavery to ever happen.. how fucking ignorant. Here's the real eye-opener: it was all about money and still is. Classism is the true culprit, but all you small-minded motherfuckers carry on thinking in terms of melanin.. HAHAAH

Measure your success not by how many people agree with you, but by how many people talk about you.

25 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

On the flip side, a man who wishes to offend no one is a man who requires the permission of everyone to do anything.

A complete bitch, not someone who can call himself a man in the truest sense of the word.

Men who brag on this subreddit about being a player or being promiscuous haven't burned out yet, and will.

25 upvotes · 29 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women who are worth it are rare

I can't stress this enough, most women deserve to be old and alone because since they've been given all the freedoms in the world to do whatever they like, they've not used that power to become people who are remotely desirable, likeable or respectable to men or even themselves. Women never have a good word to say about women, with good reason. They're selfish deceitful cunts.

Most of them make no effort whatsoever to fulfil a man's wants or needs, they are totally fixated with their own needs, they bring little and expect a lot - they're a bad deal. They are big, over-sized, over-entitled, manipulative little children who answer to nobody, walking around up on some over-inflated faux sense of self-importance and dispense nothing but shit tests when you insert kindness coins, only responding well to those who are disrespectful to them, as "egalitarian" as such behaviour clearly isn't.

Be careful of the women who pose as unicorns or "good girls" but have a hidden agenda. Women can pretend to be someone they're not for a long time, some of them although always seeming impatient can subvertly be very patient in the long game if the personal reward is high enough for them, if they want to divorce you, trap you with a kid or any crap like that they will play a very long game and bit by bit win your trust with small gestures. Relationships are war.

Some of these women actually believe they're different from other women hence the chanting of "not all women are like that" - let me tell you now, for every 10 women who claims to not be like that, you might find 1 unicorn, if even that (OK let's get real, it's a lot less than 1 in 10 - they're fucking mythical.)

A lot of women are so illogical and ignorant they truly believe they don't do the terrible things/have the fucked up flaws that we talk about other women doing and having because they simply can't see it within themselves; however do not confuse their inability to see their flaws and thus the false confidence they exude in not having those flaws as fact. A woman can indignantly believe in her own self-righteous beliefs, like religious zealots believe their god and all their lore is real and that their way is the "true way", they can have all the passion in the world and be incredibly convincing, but it doesn't make what they think or say real as in - observable or credible. It's merely subconscious lying. They are deluded.

At the end of the day, logic is the only thing that's impartial so you must trust that above opinion or anything else. That's why we have science, it's logic demonstrated by observation and reproduction. You can be so ignorant that you believe a lie as truth, that you'd pass a lie detector test saying the inane crap you spew because you truly believe it, but it doesn't mean it's an objectively observable truth.

Even the realest smartest seeming chicks, when you start digging into who they are as a person and shit testing them, observing them and connecting their answers with their actions you'll see that realness goes out the window, they are totally deluded, a lot of the crap they do simply doesn't match up - they are fucking deluded people. DELUDED. "Oh but what about the fields full of unicorns that be russian/eastern european/asian women?" sure they're often better looking and better educated than western women but they're still prone to the same achilles heel, believing in self-delusion. Women are women. Unicorns are individual beings, they are outliers, they are not groups/demographics. If you want a good credible woman, go look for your outlier because society will not force inherently selfish women to be decent anymore. We had terrible women before feminism, feminism just increased the quantity and concentration of them by removing all controls society previously placed on them.

The truth is many women are in total denial about who they really are and just feed off of bullshit to make themselves feel good. They are emotional sloths, they feed on good emotions truth be fucking damned. This is why they aren't credible or even loyal, they will often choose their own happiness over the needs of a relationship, the caveat is children, most women are great to children, shame they can't treat men with that same love and sacrifice (again, with the exception of unicorns which most of you think you have met, but haven't.)

The noobs who can't see this and question that are not deep down the rabbit hole, you've got far to go - a lot of you think you can use TRP to make you desirable to a woman and then go and have a disney fantasy. That is you still being ignorant, still unable to accept that women are unilaterally self-obsessed, selfish, solopstic, using motherfuckers. You are deceived by their image, your eyes lie to you. You are deceived by your weakness, your wish that "things weren't this way" by your hope "it can be better" ... all of this is unfounded bullshit. They are who they are. Your desires are not tangible or even provable, merely hypothetical - and if you find a methodology to make it so, then by all means, make it so and come share it with us so we can all live the dream and start turning hoes into unicorns; but until you do that (which you probably won't, this is a huge fucking hypothetical) then simply accept women for who they are, don't project onto them who you want them to be and claim its possible because you projected it and had a minor success in one brief moment, that's doing the same shit we accuse women of - hamstering/backward rationalising.

Expecting and believing things that are bullshit are only going to lead you to disappointment and ruin, it's almost as if, half of you men here are settings yourselves up for failure, you're willing to risk and sacrifice for a crack at "happiness" a crack at "an idealisation" fuck that, I rather never have a crack at the bullshit fantasy we're all fed our entire lives then get raped by the realisation that shit ain't even real. Call it jaded, call it bitter, I'm a young guy. Never been divorced or married. No kids. Still in university. Don't blame the baggage, blame reality, blame feminism, blame our ancestors for letting everything get this shit. Women need to be subject to standards, expectations and controls like men are and because they're not anymore we have absolute anarchy now.

Look, here's an exercise for you. Next time you're with a woman you think is hot, talk to her with your eyes shut or just not looking at her (she can't even be in your peripheral vision) see how you interact with her and what you think of her words when you're not constantly bombarded by her beauty, scientists have said a hot girls face has similar effects on the male brain to cocaine. Google it if you care enough. Female beauty intoxicates males, it stops you thinking correctly. If you used nothing but logic and scientific suspicion you'd have no internal struggle in dealing with women, you'd see them clearly for what and who they are as a majority.

It would be nice if you could be a team, and with a unicorn, that's possible - but if you've not got a unicorn stop wishing the opposing military would just call a truce fire, it's like North Korea and South Korea the best you're going to get is a 50+ year truce and a DMZ buffer and eventually it's back to war and one of you is going to lose. It's not a matter of IF it's a matter of WHEN.

The best way to find out if a woman is secretly fucking bonkers is to really fuck her off (do it, on purpose) and see what tactics she starts throwing at you from her mental warfare arsenal. When she's mad she can't control herself so you'll get to see the real core of who she is. If she starts twisting things, gaslighting you, threatening you or anything like that... red flag, next the bitch not worth it no matter how nice the hole is. If she just cries, apologises or basically doesn't do anything deeply head fucking, you're probably safe.

NOTE: The reason you're pissing them off is because when you piss them off they show their true colours beneath the make-up and the bullshit, you get to see who the real ugly spirit/soul is behind that facade, that illusion, that fake ego and that bullshit persona. Women are the masters of illusion, manipulation and fakery, you literally have to cast a fishing rod into their soul and pull out who they really are to see who you're actually dealing with. You can think you know a woman for years but until you've had the most terrible of fights with her, you do not know who she is.

EDIT: typos

Pentagon training manual: white males have unfair advantages

25 upvotes · 2 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I couldn't read that diatribe after:

"Simply put, a healthy, white, heterosexual, Christian male receives many unearned advantages of social privilege, whereas a black, homosexual, atheist female in poor health receives many unearned disadvantages of social privilege,” reads a statement in the manual created by the Defense Equal Opportunity Management Institute (DEOMI).

The manual, which was obtained by Fox News, also instructs troops to “support the leadership of people of color. Do this consistently, but not uncritically,” the manual states.

Support the leadership of people of color? How about support the promotion of people with leadership qualities? Racist bigoted cunts. I love how you can be racist to an entire group if you base your overt racism on the fact that the group you criticise is privileged or otherwise racist themselves.

Breaking men.

25 upvotes · 4 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

See the lack of fathers nowadays is not a good fucking thing, it allows female weaknesses to manifest as socially acceptable behaviours which are detrimental to society.. like valuing ego over truth to the point where you potentially mentally damage a young child.

If I was hypothetically out with my little boy and he said a fat womans fat and she started going crazy I'd say "well he's right, you are, now move along."

God. Feminism. Fucking. Everywhere.

This is probably the most delusional post I've seen on FB...

25 upvotes · 31 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Person at the bottom said about money being more of a factor than age in those examples, respect to them for not just going along with it. Pretty red pill comment (the final comment, at the bottom)

Wife divorces husband after false rape allegation. After 24 years in prison, DNA evidence proves his innocence. Man gets $2 mill in compensation. Ex wife comes back around and sues for half. Marriage: not even once

25 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Let me get this straight...

- Wife divorces husband because some ho files a false rape allegation and the system being the system automatically takes him in and treats him as guilty WITH NO EVIDENCE
- He's convicted on "witness testimony" alone with no hard evidence for a crime he didn't even commit and spends 24 years in prison. They force him to take a guilty plea or they'll re-trial and up the prison sentence to LIFE.
- Someone does a DNA test, someone somehow can prove another man raped a chick 25 years ago, they don't go into specifics, but even though he was falsely accused, the chick was actually raped as they have conclusive evidence another man raped her, not this man. So I'll assume they found a hair/prints/semen on her or something, kept it, did a check and recently got a match on the guys identity in w/e DNA database you guys have in the states.
- The conclusive evidence forces them to release this wrongly convicted guy (the ho slept with so many guys, she can't remember which one fucking raped her, she's happy to say it's this guy 25 years ago but it was in fact another guy that raped her)
- The state pays him $2,000,000 and is depositing $11,000 a month into his bank account totalling a package worth $6,000,000.

- Now the ex-wife somehow hears or is informed he's out and he's loaded, and on the grounds she visited him and sent him things in prison, income she apparently lost after his incarceration (because apparently him going to prison means she can't work?) and the poor poor stigmatization of having an ex-husband in prison she had to endure, including the legal fees to whine in court that she lost out when they wrongfully took her husband away, amounts to a total of $153,000 which she is awarded. She is quoted as saying this:

"It's not all about the money," she said. "There's just no recognition whatsoever. Just 'sorry folks, sorry we ruined your life and took your provider and your best friend.' Nothing."

I AM FUCKING SPEECHLESS. My own life has given me trust issues with women, most are fucking toxic, but WTF? God, I can't even dissect that quoted bit. Just.. hang about and let this sink in. No sympathy he was wrongly accused, no regret she divorced an innocent man and it fell apart due to circumstances outside his control.. she gives not one fuck about that man. That rationalisation and entitlement is insane. Please, seriously, guys, let this shit sink the fuck in. I actually hope this shit is a lie, I need a fucking puff of the blue pill cigarette right now (no offence intended), this is monstrously vile.

Hypergamy > your existence.

My EX want to meet with me.

25 upvotes · 28 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Addressing EDIT2: You're being a little delusional I think. If you were truly red pill you wouldn't want to prove yourself to a girl who ditched you effortlessly before (when you self-admit, you were beta) who now reappears out of the shadows after all this time in an attempt to use you.

She doesn't care about you at all she proved that when she dropped you like a dead weight and cut you off like a tumor, this desire to see you out of the BLUE is nothing but one collective shit test where she'll attempt to use you if she can discern you have a use to her. You can't control this shit if you still have feelings for her, your old beta self will take over if you haven't quashed that shit. Why the fuck should you care what that bitch thinks about you now? Her opinions should be irrelevant to you, if you care what she thinks you're making a huge mistake meeting up with her.

However, if you want to prove to yourself you're different or have evolved since those days by "acing" the interaction with her despite your past (basically not falling for her charms, giving a shit, or trying to impress her), then that is something I can understand, but if you're still trying to prove shit to her instead of to yourself then you obviously care for her and her opinions more than you do yourself and your opinions and thus you're slipping back into blue pill ways by letting her take up your time. Stop with that shit.

Private Facebook group of women married to deployed soldiers is infiltrated, shit storm ensue.

24 upvotes · 9 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I love how whenever they get caught redhanded they instinctually play the victim as a way of justifying what they did as something noble or even necessary. You've gotta love it. They are completely shameless. You call a woman out and suddenly she was just trying to cope and you're the piece of shit for giving her a hard time over it and she's a poor wittle victim and bla bla bla. It's actually amazing to see the hamster do backflips, and even more amazing when they manage to successfully mind fuck guys like that and guys actually FEEL BAD that they're giving her shit for doing stuff she shouldn't be doing. This is the power of the hamster, when she uses it to blameshift and guilt trip you its Machiavellian as fuck.

Woman hits the wall at 25, has mental breakdown: single mother with no money comes to realise no one wants to date a single mother, has vitriolic anger towards her ex who's still living a happy life and having relationships.

24 upvotes · 28 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

What an interesting concept, is there anywhere I can read more about this? Thanks bro.

Instruction For A Polite Feminist

24 upvotes · 3 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah I think the flowchart would at the very least need some of the terms changed to appeal to a non-RP audience, eg: change hamster to rationalise. Even then, as you suggest I'd suspect the ideas wouldn't permeate.

Good point about the trade-off, I may review my wording there to more correctly illustrate the point later. Great comment, thanks for the feedback.

Feminist in "open marriage" decides that she has fallen in love with other dude: AWALT

24 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha, brilliant. This is the problem with societies that are dominated by female social values, they are too permissive, no restraints on women = social anarchy & no stable family for the majority.

A simple question to ask a woman for those not fully convinced by TRP's truth

24 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Girls live in their own worlds

The hyper-estrogenic histrionically emotional whiny solipsistic "must maintain my reputation" backstabbing bitchy world? That world? God am I glad I don't live in that cluster fuck of chaos.

Yes, every time you think "young chicks have it easier, they get free passes, free money, free opportunity, quotas, can spread their legs to get opportunities guys their age can't get" just remember this. You'll stop giving a fuck about all the step ups in life they get and even how girls get sympathy and guys don't, because you'll remember that they're all fucked up. And no matter how much you give women, they will always be fucked up. They are so perfectly flawed it is almost artistic.

Cheating wife tells her lover (me) how loyal she REALLY is.

24 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wouldn't even say that. All women are capable of the behaviour we talk of, AWALT is a spectrum that applies to all women. Different women are simply on different parts of the spectrum. A 10 AWALT is textbook TRP. A 1 AWALT is a great woman most of the time, but if you slip she will cheat on you until she can find better and then dump you.

Some women engage in primal behaviour rarely because they are well-raised, the majority are far too obviously feral. A minority seem like they are well-raised, but actually are just excellent liars - they don't get caught, and they're good at compartmentalising, so after she finishes slurping on Mr. Chad -Doesn't Count- Thundercock she's home an hour later talking about the curtains with Billy, rejecting his advances because "Decorating is more important right now, don't pressure me!"

Machiavellian to the end these bitches are.

Successful Men Are Warriors.

24 upvotes · 30 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you have any advice on practical ways to demonstrate and cultivate aggressiveness/high masculinity/intimidation without seeming like a 'meathead' as it were?

For a start, learn that people who use the term "meathead" are either

A: arrogantly ignorant

B: passive aggressive

C: a combination of both

It's a label used to put men down and stop them from working on their athletic goals. It's spawned by jealousy, fear, a hatred of the cultivated masculine form, many things. It's kind of like how "boffin" is used to put down guys who wish to pursue intellectual perfection. They are absolutist terms, a meathead apparently has no brains, and a boffin apparently has no social skills, and although this is sometimes true, it gets abused to define anyone who is very ripped or very smart. Most guys who go to the gym don't want to look like the hulk anyway, they just want to put on some mass and get jacked. They want to look human-big, not alien-big.

These terms are used in a way designed to instil self-doubt and take your power. To shame you into mediocrity. A lot of the shit people say and express is just standard crab bucket behaviour. Always encouraging you to take the safe route in life, never take any risks, always expressing doubt and dismay whenever you want to make a big change. You have to dump people like this because they are toxic as fuck and will hold you back.

In the absolutist definition of the word, a meat head is someone who is not very mentally developed, but is very physically developed. So if you are mentally developed, but now want to work on your body, you are not even a meathead. But let's say you are an idiot for a second. That you have nothing going for you except your highly developed body. If you're a meathead, the female equivalent is a sex doll. That is misogynist, yet there's nothing wrong with calling you a meathead right? Gotta love double standards. It is what it is. You do you.

Look; you can't give a fuck about the labels people are going to apply to you. People always label you because people are assholes and that's what they do. If you want to lift heavy weights/fight/do contact sports, you can do that. In fact I think doing all these things will help you break out of the "beta mindset." Doing these things forces you to take risks and raises your T, lowering the amount of fucks you give for arbitrarily applied labels from unimportant people with pointless opinions. These fucks will always be around. Everyone's got a voice but most aren't worth listening to. Find your own voice and ask it what's best for yourself. Listen to it and fuck everyone else. Even if it's wrong, you've gotta make your own mistakes. Don't be the design of another man's aspirations.

Also, I haven't read it as I never needed to, but the guys on this sub recommend reading a book called "No More Mr. Nice Guy" for guys with a "beta mentality."

No comfort- My experience treating my LTR like a plate

24 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A cold response to a cold post:

You are probably a psychopath if OP is a truthful representation of events that occurred. As in, you effortlessly felt nothing rather than simply suppressing your feelings to remain calm in light of the situation. The fact you see comfort as an inconvenience is also indicative. Neurotypical men feel impeded by always having to be detached/strong, not by having to show compassion/comfort. When the inverse is natural to you, my experience suggests that's symptomatic of behavioural psychopathy.

Being able to ignore a woman's tears is a good thing, as they are almost always fake/manipulative. You will need to dole out comfort as and when required to maintain the relationship. Treat her how you like, and when she really can't handle it, give her what she wants. Always take her to near a breaking point, then pull her back from the edge. She reaps what she sows. She deserves what she gets. If she wanted someone to give her more comfort more freely, she'd leave you for such a person.

The fact of the matter is, it is a woman's preference to be loyal and in love with a psychopath. More naive men will white knight and think that such women need protecting from the psychopath, but it is women who crave these men.

What most men don't realise here is that women are very insecure, and the seemingly cold stoicism of a psychopath's detachedness seems like a great pillar of strength to women. You are unshakeable to their influence, which reassures them of the fortitude of your mental strength. Likewise, women are somewhat masochistic, sexually and emotionally, they are masochistic. They rather have a man who drives them crazy than one who bores them. In every sense of the word. Average men are boring to women.

She gets what she deserves, you, at least until you no longer feel she deserves you. If you are a psychopath, you will get bored of her and dump her eventually. You'll look for a woman who is equally detached. And men who fall in love easily will envy you for having so much command of loyalty over a woman when for them it is they who pine, rather than her.

Feminism & Femininity: A Brief History

24 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A lengthy but compelling article.

Problem was, by the early 1990s, when those dudes were supposed to be lining up to marry the women of that cohort, a whole lot of them just didn't show. The male fear of divorce and reluctance to engage with a feminist-oriented female culture that went out of its way to humiliate and emasculate men (particularly young men), as well as cool stuff like free porn and video games, made young men take a good hard look at the Femininity that their stunted Masculinity was supposed to be attracted to . . . and they recoiled in horror.

Factually I'd argue in the early 90's neither porn nor video games were really widespread. It wasn't like every young boy or man had a super nintendo and a dirty magazine. 80's guys had an NES at best, or probably a commodore 64 or something. Most of them wouldn't have played video games. The 90's saw the rise of home entertainment games consoles, guys went from SNES in the early 90's to Dreamcast in the late 90's and the PS2 on the turn of the century.

I remember in the early 90's I was playing DOOM on the PC, which was cutting edge at the time. Computers were around £2,000 a pop then as well. That's £2,000 in 1994 money, not today's money. Call it $4,000 in 2015 US money, when billy beta today can buy himself a laptop with a fuck ton more power for $500. So back then the working class couldn't really afford computers, the tech was too new and too expensive.

If someone had cable (also a way to see porn,) or a computer back then, they were middle class at the very least. They weren't hurting for money. Poor people couldn't afford tech then like they can now, because tech just cost that much more back then. Working class people couldn't afford any of the tech that would help them see naked women. At least not in England, maybe it was cheaper and more accessible in the U.S? I can't say. Some guys may have managed to get a VHS player and a few dirty videos they hid in the closet I guess.

As for porn, internet porn wasn't really viable until the early noughties when bandwidth was fast enough and even then, you didn't have tube sites, a lot of it was just nudes because lots of people couldn't get broadband. It was all magazines (and probably some very hard to get hold of VHS's) in the 80's, up until the mid late 90's. You had to be 18 to buy them so if you were a young guy, you had to get them off your dad (assuming you had one) or an uncle or something. Otherwise you had no access to porn. It wasn't easily obtained for under 18's. Adult men would buy them from shops anxiously, and then quickly scurry out like they had just sacrificed a child to a pagan God. My point is as follows: adult men could get movies and magazines with some social stigma and some trouble. Young boys, particularly horny teenage boys, bar the benevolence of an older man, had no access to porn.

That's another unintended consequence the internet has exerted onto the sexual marketplace. Widespread porn has led to the desensitisation of the female form in modern men as through numerous sessions of masturbation it has become more and more ordinary. A 15 year old boy today has seen more variety of female bodies, tits, vaginas, ethnicities and what have you, than a 15 year old boy of any other generation has.

Kids are fucking from an even younger age now, too. Coincidence? I think not. The internet has, in this way, exacerbated the problems of what was already a fragile and ailing relationship between the masculine and the feminine by diluting sex/sex appeal via porn. I'm not against porn, one could argue it has helped as well as hindered, but it would be disingenuous not to factor in it's influence in contemporary male-female relations.

Edit: typos

No One Cares About the Plight of Men

24 upvotes · 24 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree with what you're saying, but it ain't that clear cut. You're not wrong, but it's not as simple as "be successful or don't be." Success is a choice only when you are aware of that, smart enough to work towards it, and have the right beliefs, perceptions, skills and wisdom.

A lot of young dudes have no clue what needs to be done or any motivation to do it, they are blue pill, effeminate, very detached from the world/mindset/perception of reality we take for granted. They're being set-up to fail by the system, very few are going to amount to jack shit. Most are from broken families. Some guys even when they know what's up, can't find the impetus to do shit - they've got emotional baggage, bad diet and bad friends. This society ain't good. It's toxic. It's superficial, full of fluff, and promotes bullshit at the expense of the collective good aka: society's mental health.

It got harder for men because they lack guidance/awareness/mentors/role models to base themselves on, and with that, women got more masculine/entitled/shittier. Men lack support. You know our ancestors had family helping them and brotherhood, right? Men were always expected to earn their way, but not with fucking blinkers on, or without a push in the right direction. A lot of men lack that today, I'd say most low SMV guys are pretty isolated. Even if they're not, good chance their bros are indoctrinated liberal pussies, not real men - so they learn effeminate values and see the world all skewed, what you gonna do?

It's harder for men to be successful now than it was a generation or two ago, and it's only going to get harder. There comes a point where you have to balance "shut the fuck up pussy" with "let's actually not force young guys into dropping out of society entirely because they can't even see A ROUTE to success." You have to balance tough love with actionable advice, it's gotten to the point in my opinion where young men need a fucking intervention. Society needs men not to fail, to prop the system up, but it does fuck all to promote their well-being or put them on a track to success - that's where it fails men, and itself. No, the government rather fucking ramp up immigration than admit feminism is bullshit and give it's own men a bit of power. There's a reason we call this the decline.

[Meta] SJWs are reportedly working with admins to develop a stricter "no harassment" policy at Reddit. We should have an action plan in place for when TRP is banned

24 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

All hail the second amendment! It was designed as a defence against such tyranny. Lock and load boys. The founding fathers would be disgusted.

Monk Mode has taught me the following

24 upvotes · 17 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The thing with SMV is that it is very subjective and some factors are culturally dependent. EG: Being 5'10 is disadvantageous in Holland/Norway (most men 6'0 or taller) so would be low SMV but the same is very advantageous in say China where the average man is 5'5. 5'10 is short in one culture, but tall in another as "tallness" is considered in relation to the entire population, it is not an absolute.

The same goes for wealth, if you are 18 years old and have ANY CAR you're doing good, but if you're 30 and you still drive the same shitty car when other men your age/social bracket have BMWs (or audi's or mercs or lambos or whatever) then it's not really going to add SMV. In some neighbourhoods being worth a million is a lot, in others you are the poorest guy there.

Objectively:

- Looks (muscles/height/symmetry)
- Money (amassed wealth and assets - cars, land etc)
- Status (job/popularity)
- Game (wit/humour/charm)

These are what make the total sum of your SMV. Due to the pareto principle (80/20 rule) if you are a man and you are after women under the age of 30 who is at least a 6/10 and you are beneath an 8/10 yourself, the effort needed to get women vs the quality of woman you will get is not worth the hassle. The easiest way for some men to get a woman is to be a 9-10 looks and game wise (so a poor guy with good aesthetic genes who goes to the gym and takes care of his appearance/body/clothing) whereas for men with ugly genes but high IQ, they are better off doing well in business getting exotic cars and working on social circle game. If you are ugly and unintelligent, then you are genetically pretty fucked and will always have to try harder than people with better genes. Life is unfair.

I could do a monk mode SMV type post, in fact I rather like the idea. I'll put it on the back burner.

Keep TRP to yourself

24 upvotes · 14 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't talk about TRP to anyone, but I do give people "generic wisdom" now and again (which is of course, seeping in RP)

I'm actually surprised how many people know about TRP. It is becoming a fight club type thing now, especially as it spreads, it's becoming "that elephant in the room" - "does he know about TRP?"

Don't try to convert people it's a futile and pointless endeavour. People believe what they want to believe in. The only reason people who are on TRP believe in it is because their old belief system failed them, but having practised TRP and gotten results they are convinced it is the framework/belief system for them.

If your life was great before you found TRP unless you were an extremely open-minded and rational man you would have no emotional reason to adhere to or even seriously consider the propositions laid out by TRP.

Of course in the realm of spin artistry, this means those that do not like TRP offhandedly rationalise this entire community as "bitter men who have given up on women."

I talked to a couple of my friends about TRP, hoping I could help them. Looking back now I realize how much of a mistake that is, it doesn't matter who they are, you can't trust anyone.

The friend that blabbed to your plate about you going on TRP (why are you introducing your friends to your plates?) wants to fuck your plate so he cockblocked you in typical beta fashion - white knighted and "warned her about you!" - Who's fucking team is he on? Not yours, because he wants to bang your plate. Find out as much specifics as you can about how that went down (so you can learn about the way in which they communicated for future reference) and then drop him like a ton of shit. Friends don't cockblock their bros like that. Even if it was unintentional, he is clumsy, a liability and cannot be trusted due to his incompetence.

Good Looking Loser on Confidence and Entitlement

24 upvotes · 10 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nothing's ever their fault "it just happens."

I'm sick and fucking tired of men who enable women and their "it's not my fault" bullshit victim complex

24 upvotes · 5 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No it's pretty much guaranteed to ensure butthurt here too. I do think we use it a bit more liberally though than the americans, and I believe the aussies do too. I believe in calling a spade a spade and not "a device used to shovel shit." If she's a cunt, she's a cunt.

[48 Days of Power] Day 4 - "Always say less than necessary."

24 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I should have been more clear, this is for women of interest. Not my friends.

Some guys do this with everyone, very alienating because it's very overt. It's taking "not making any commitments, no matter how small" to an extreme of "I won't even say if/when something is OK for me unless it's happening RIGHT NOW" and it just breaks down communication to a point of uselessness because you can't make any educated future assumptions about that person. This is something people need to do to make plans, if you try to make your plans invisible to friends/people you know It communicates "I don't trust you." Loudly. You don't have to blurt out all your secrets, but this stonewalling shit is basically the opposite. People who do this with everyone basically trust nobody, that's what you can pluck from the subtext.

Reality Check - Dark Triad and Monk Mode

24 upvotes · 17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you are a healthy mix of the two and learn when to apply either mentality you can maximize your affect.

This. You get it. /u/cashmunnymillionaire doesn't. He can't see the forest for the trees. Yes, glamorisation is bad, but that doesn't make the entire topic area useless/bad/pointless. In fact most men are shmucks who get played by women. If women weren't so Machiavellian then yes, maybe the dark triad would have less application to TRP theory. But as it stands, they are, so it does. Also, it's incredibly useful in business. If one is to write off the utility of Machiavellianism then I would suspect they are not very successful in life and do not know what they are talking about. If the critic is successful then I would say they are a liar which is trying to misdirect people deceitfully.

People who write off the DT tend to be holier than thou moralists who won't swallow the full pill. They want to cherry pick elements of game/strategy and live it up purple pill style. Then they come in here and interject their incorrect purple opinions as "RP" but they are not. Red pill doesn't care about your morality, neither does the DT. When I see men make moral arguments on here I can't help but laugh, you're idiots. There are the annoying kids who want to be the next scarface, and then there are the sad fucks who are too up their own asses to deviate from self-righteousness. I hate both types because both types miss the full picture and both types are extremists to their own detriment. Balance is key.

You on the other hand encapsulated in your post perfectly what the DT should be utilised for. All men should have an alter ego, a dark side, and you should be able to summon that to save your ass at a moment's notice. If that's not something a person reading this has ever had to do or even consider, then they should consider their life sheltered. Their life is so easy/privileged that they can be that ignorant and not exist in a pit of deep shit.

So apparently women are free to do porn, but men are NOT free to want nothing to do with women who do porn

24 upvotes · 21 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is part of a more general problem where women don't understand the two-way nature of the freedom of choice.

This is exactly what modern feminism has turned into. Policing what's acceptable and what's not so they can have their cake and eat it whilst a man playing the field the same way a woman does is equated with being a pig. It's fine to be a slut to them but if you're a player you're a manipulative shitlord. That bullshit ain't gonna wash.

TIL why lambos are so expensive, you learn a new language when you sit shot gun.

24 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If she was my GF, she would have been demoted to plate straight away after that.

One aspect of the problem: Beta bucks is no longer an option for most.

24 upvotes · 18 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She is what is known rather affectionately as a cunt.

Why are British girls so fat?

24 upvotes · 11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well as an Englishman not completely immersed in the typical nutritional ignorance that my brethren are I'll see if I can shine a light on this.

Part of the problem is we do not farm enough of our own crops to feed all our own people, A LOT of our food comes from other countries which means preservatives and other crap to give it a longer shelf life, not only does it change the taste of what you're eating but it makes it less nutritious from a vitamin point of view. Things like farmers markets are only enjoyed by the rare few people who live out in the countryside in a village of some kind, and if you can afford to live in a village in the UK you're almost definitely a millionaire (or your families combined net worth is and you all live together.)

The corporations have a real chokehold on what english people eat just like in america. I've eaten food from Europe and there's a lot less sugar in it and it tends to fill you up more. Eating it takes getting used to but eventually your taste buds adjust, you eat something English again and think "ugh, how much crap do they put in this?"

Simply put English fruit and veg, much of it is imported from abroad and covered in crap so it's never truly fresh. I've eaten fresh veg from a european farm and it tastes MILES better than anything sold in a supermarket. A lot of the meat doesn't have a high meat percentage. I'll give you an example with say sausages. It'll be 50% pork, lots of added saturated fat, some other chemicals I can't possibly explain, and then some water injected into it to make it look bigger (which is why when you cook an english sausage it shrinks SO MUCH) compare that to european sausage, say german or polish and the pork % is around 90%, so not only does it taste better but all that added crap isn't in there.

English food does not fill you up like european stuff which is why we're overeating whilst our european counterparts (especially in eastern europe) remain stick thin whilst eating what they want, they don't feel the need to eat as often as the English do because they have nicer higher quality food. Poland for example has tons of farms, so many that it makes a surplus, it can feed its entire country and then sell stuff to other countries.

Another factor, fruit/veg/meat is expensive here versus processed (things like birdseye in a box) and canned stuff. The cost of living is high in the UK and the wages have fallen in real terms from even as recent as 10 years ago, lower socioeconomic classes do not have the disposable income after RENT/BILLS/TAXES/COUNCIL TAX to go and spend out on decent eating.

Really its a matter of economics, the english food supply is contaminated to fuck and we're living more sedentary lives than ever before. When most of the year it's raining you tend not to go outside too, which only adds to the problem.

That's that part of the picture. Lack of self-control and gluttony will have a lot to do with it too. Poor people tend to be more out of shape than wealthy/middle class people though, they can't afford the food that's good for them.

Thank you Guys! just discovered that RedPill strategies work on Indian women as well...

24 upvotes · 10 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP Maxim Unallocated # - Always assume a woman you're interested in romantically is promiscuous and treat her as such, if she proves you wrong you can be pleasantly surprised, but NEVER assume a woman is a unicorn. She has to prove she is a unicorn through her actions over a period of time, presuming she is a unicorn because of culture/family or anything else is like power drilling the nails into your own coffin. You need evidence, not presumption. Presumption will lead to exploitation.

How I maintain frame when I'm outnumbered by women at home.

24 upvotes · 6 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nuh-Uh * waves finger around * how about you actually treat women like people? It's this kind of misogynistic attitude that created the rape apologising mansplaining patriarchal kitchen slavery. That's why feminism is so important, you should literally cut your own balls off so you don't oppress your own children you rape apologist. Hitler. /s

"Why won't men die for our purses/persons?"

24 upvotes · 28 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The answer is: cognitive dissonance

Woman drinks and flirts with college president, invites him to her hotel room afterwards, then cries rape because she "can't remember" why she let him in.

24 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah the typical young woman rather be seen as a retard than as responsible for her actions once she's deemed to have fucked up its fucking hilarious.

Inside the mind of a female CEO. Hint: much hamstering

24 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Briffault's Law is what makes women better machiavellians, they don't have to wrestle their emotions in using men disposably, it is their nature, if they're not entitled they're simply indifferent about the man once he is of no use to them any longer. They can move on very easily.

The Red Pill is Intolerant of Irrationalism and Equality

24 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women in combat roles compromises national security.

Update to the guy who had his gf cheat on him for a year...

24 upvotes · 27 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He wasn't giving her enough attention/love/showing enough vulnerability so she found a guy on the side to provide that while he was still fucking her.

Affair Forums give incite into how women rationalize and are perfectly content with cheating.

24 upvotes · 13 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can never go wrong with women just teasing them and calling them on their bullshit.

Never give in.

Why it's not useful to be angry at women - brought to you by Buddha himself

24 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Out of curiosity where is that socrates quote sourced from?

Young doctor wonders why women are suddenly after him. Gets slaughtered by hamsters on r/askwomen. These are redpill truths in action.

24 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This guy consistently drops heat I'm waiting for that endorsed badge to appear next to his name.

WTF do you do for entertainment?

24 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I can't watch movies without getting pissed off and shouting at the TV "That isn't how it works!!"

I love the Big Bang Theory, mainly for Sheldon, and the characters grew on me over the years, but seeing how much of a raging slut Penny is, how much of a cunt Bernadette is to Howard because she earns more and is hotter than him just annoys me to no end. It's so excruciatingly painful to see these guys subjected to shit but it does actually confirm what we say here. The guys are all beta providers for girls about to hit the wall in a few years and they all have lower SMV than the girls they're dating.

Leonard I kinda imagine to be like a very new redpiller walking a wonky path, sometimes getting it right, most the time getting it wrong.

Raj is completely fucking pathetic and I cringed like fuck when he was with that other socially anxious girl and despite being low smv herself she still ditched him... and he fixated and cried like a child that had lost its mother for the first time.

Funnily enough watch how Sheldon treats Amy, he's a total ass to her and she can't get over him. There's a bit of RP gold in that, even though its under the pretense that Sheldon is mentally challenged in a social aspect it works (I'd guess Sheldon is autistic or something.)

Respect yourself more than you respect her

24 upvotes · 21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The guy is like 6'2, 200 pounds. I don't know him too well but the only word I can find to describe him is 'sweet'.

The drawback here is the more biologically masculine you are, the more is socially expected from you. When you don't utilise what your ancestors gave you and act like a total bitch, people respect you even less because they think "well look at the size of him, he's got no excuse to be a pussy!"

The guy had this pitiful look on his face. I think he actually put his hand around her to stop her from walking towards me again.

Wow. No frame. No boundaries. No control over her. FUCK THAT. Don't be this guy.

Gavin McInnes Discusses Phenomenon of Men Adopting "Feminine" Speech Patterns

24 upvotes · 15 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Fucking brilliant. Gavin is my kind of guy, tells it how it is, doesn't butter it up.

Borderline regretting that I swallowed.

24 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are a huge fucking shit test because they are illogical, this means they're not very credible people as there is little consistent reasoning to their behaviours. Most women are not very self-aware, especially younger women, they live in the moment, are easily swayed/affected and jump from one emotional impulse to the next. They hate to take responsibility, they hate to admit to faults, they're so allergic to being wrong/being exposed that they will commonly emotionally lash out, at you, or whoever is close by to cover their own asses.

However, funnily enough, if you explained their illogical behaviour/decisions to them but instead of framing it as being part of their own behaviour explained it as being the actions of another woman's, they'd concur with you that this behaviour was wholly irrational, it's when you direct the truth at the woman involved that she can't handle it and thus out of mental self-preservation disassociates from reality and rejects the truth on the basis of flawed reasoning and plain stubbornness.

Feminism does not have a strong logical basis, we can all tear it to it pieces quite easily, I wrote a piece about its affect on the family and demonstrated how it messes kids up, increases crime, brings down educational attainment and a bunch of other shit... but the women/manginas don't care, you know why?

Because they're not using logic. Their entire argument/point of view is emotional in nature. "Women were always oppressed therefore feminism" "we need feminism because women are equal to men but unequal without it" (so basically inferior to men and need a government sanctioned ideology to achieve a perverse form of equality which redistributes privilege and wealth but frames it as independence) ...if you tell feminists about the inequality men experience, they bigotedly disregard it, refuse to acknowledge it or just say "well that's not as bad as getting raped" as if you can justify an inequality by saying there's a worse type of crime/inequality out there, it's horrendous logic, truly; and this silly fallacious logic has even reached the family courts, to the point where a man can be arrested for a woman's change of mind (I'll make a topic on this later, I was in court the other day and saw a man get his case sent to a higher court for seeing his child)

The fact of the matter is, men have always played dominant above women, men built this fucking planet, its institutions, its creations - all of it, if women were so great they would of played a much more active part in it too, instead they reared children and kept house - they played logistics/nurturer. Feminists argue they were held down, but if women were equal to men then how could they be held down? It was accepted that these gender roles worked the most efficiently, that's it - there's no evil "patriarchal entity" systematically enslaving womankind. Feminism ignores the achievements of man and focuses on the lack of achievements of women, blaming men for that paradigm rather than appreciating men for their continued sacrifice and dedication to improving the human condition - again, an incredibly one-sided viewpoint.

There is power with dominance, this is what a lot of the extremist feminists saw and idolised, power "but with all power comes great responsibility" there is a heck of a lot more expectation and responsibility with this power too. It's funny because even in western nations, people are brainwashed to say men and women are equal, but people always expect more/better from a man, even women themselves. People rely on men, lean on men, burden men with their emotions - and what appreciation do men get? Fuck all. They get vilified, painted as the bad guy and openly disrespected - it is a perverse society. They're like children who were spoiled too much, you give them the world and they talk shit about you because they haven't been disciplined. If you get too weak, they will leave you - their loyalty is tied directly to your power, not to you.

Example of power: you're a manager at a store, sure you can fire people/get paid more, but you also have to make sure everyone is OK, comply with regulations, everyone comes to you if there is a problem etc. Woman's inherent lack of logic makes them bad at these kinds of jobs, the best women make great support roles, there's a few outliers who can lead well, but generally they are not cut out for it. They burden their staff with their responsibilities by moaning which creates a bad image of leadership, they blame-shift, they delegate their own responsibilities, generally, to men - expecting them to pick up the slack. Women are not good with pressure, they panic and they dramatise.

I like women a lot, I do, I value their strange quality of seeming almost in the moment, almost innocent in their lack of ability to reason despite a massive capability to manipulate and inflict mental pain, however feminism corrupts their sensibilities and sells them the lie that men are inherently bad people and they should be wary of them. Women are stupid and emotional enough to believe this. Men who were brought up by women/surrounded by feminism get brainwashed by it too. It's sad. Feminism does fuck all positive for society now, it just harms the social dynamic. I see it as gender segregation, it's like when the whites and the blacks sat on different sections of the bus in slavery, now you find women sticking with women, men sticking with men and apart from when everyone is drunk and seeking sex, they barely mingle - their opinions of each other are bad, relations are strained.

Its for that reason I'd encourage you to seek out more fruitful friendships with men and focus on yourself, rather than, focus on the pursuit of attaining or impressing women. Sure you have sexual needs, none of us can help that - but placing so much of your happiness in the hands of an "idealistic woman" a type of woman who has been culled by the hands of feminism will only seek to damage you mentally and bring you great pain.

We all deserve better than this feminist bullshit, but we deal with the hand we've got and live the best way we can. That's a core tenet of the red pill message, be the best man you can be - don't give in, do not relent. You may live in the biggest feminist shit hole on planet earth but you can use that crazy Swedish welfare state to get well educated, get a good body, travel to other countries in Europe (as apart from say Norway, they are all far cheaper than Sweden)

Don't give in, your ancestors were fucking Vikings find pride in yourself through both your heritage and your potential to be better - actualise your potential, swimming in feminist ideology will just destroy you. Feminism is something you need to be aware of as it's so entrenched in western societies, but it's like a sickness and TRP is the antibiotic to get it out of your system. Acknowledge feminism, understand it, analyse its perverse nature, accept its not going anywhere - but reject its message. You can't change it so you must co-exist with it without believing it, like people of different religions do in secular countries, live side-by-side without believing each others religions - do that and you can find some semblance of happiness. Best of luck to you brother.

Bitches just simply ain't worth a ring nowadays.

24 upvotes · 2 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As a bachelor you could do whatever nigga: bang fresh 17 yr old girls. Three of them at once. Get a new bitch every week. Visit all the strip clubs. Not have worries about your partner/children. Simply put, marriage restricts your choices drastically. So if you're going to limit a man, you better be a damn enticing package.

Bang on the money. Yes. Marriage is not enticing to men anymore, you don't even need marriage to have kids.

Feminists, their dumb asses, thought women would gain the upper-hand through the sexual revolution, but they clearly didn't think shit through. They can rail against prostitution all they want, but they've inadvertently increased the supply of sex by making it more socially acceptable for women to slut it up. Women are lost children in this modern era, that's the reason they've become more depressed. But they will eventually come around, usually when they hit the wall. Either they become grumpy spinsters who start to hate men or they become humble and realize where they went wrong.

Isn't it just fucking beautiful? Schadenfreude baby!

A 19 year old woman has to go to prison for six months for false accusations as she decided to press rape charges towards a 47 year old man she had sex with after she met him at a bar

24 upvotes · 23 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Stupid bitch.

Helping a "damsel in distress" is a liability.

New Dating App Lets Men Bribe Women With Gifts To Get Dates

24 upvotes · 21 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Pussy on a pedestal? There's an app for that!

Of the 20 richest women in the world, 19 of them inherited their money from either their husband or father. The first self made rich woman rings in at #17. [x-post from r/todayilearned]

24 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Respect to #17

Do you still like women?

24 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't love or hate women, I just don't really care about them, at best they're an amusement, at worse they're a pain in the ass.

You learn in reality that women aren't your equals and don't even care about you. Compared to what you're inculcated with growing up it becomes incredibly apparent that the women of today are a massive disappointment and a mere shadow of what women pre-feminism were.

Most the men here who "love" women are in wealthy/comfortable life situations so they're in a position to build harems, plate spin, befriend women for access to other women and get lots of sex. Aside from good sex, today's women are essentially useless, the majority are unintelligent, disloyal and high maintenance. Even the exceptions prove troublesome, due to this toxic climate of misandry we live in and the shit they are fed.

If you're poor and not a genetic jackpot winner I wouldn't even bother with women until you've earned some money and gone to the gym. Women don't care about you or your struggles. Women are very superficial. They care only about what you can offer them. Women are takers.

It's easy to hate women when you realise these things, but if you want to have a happy and successful life you cannot let this hate take a place in your heart, you must accept the reality of things, however that doesn't mean you must damn well love them either, I find it incredibly perverse so many men here claim to love women despite their ugly natures/socialisation, it's quite illogical and I think some men just need to love women despite their bullshit in order to "carry on", a kind of weakness if you will. Anyhow, instead of wasting your time being a hater you concentrate on yourself and be your own man, you don't let women fuck with you the way they've been allowed to fuck with most men and finally when your life is built up enough they'll start leg spreading for you.

If you have no interest in sex, you have no real use for women because they're good for little else.

Guy fucks girl who friendzoned him, comments tell him he has mental issues.

24 upvotes · 14 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Fucking girls in the friend zone rocks. Better to not be there in the friendzone in the first place, but blue pill guys get dropped in that hell all the time and yeah, fucking a chick when she's relegated you to "not worthy of fucking status" is an absolute buzz. Kinda like taking cocaine, but sexier. Speaking from bluepill days.

"he had no right to an opinion on the subject of abortion because he was a man"

23 upvotes · 9 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

a popular young woman who had gone to an administrator to complain that what the teacher said had "triggered" her such that she felt "unsafe" and that, in any case, he had no right to an opinion on the subject of abortion because he was a man.

So gist of the story is a man hating girl with a lot of social clout effectively played the victim to get her teacher sacked. Yep, she hated him so much for his opinion, she just had to see him pay. Incredibly malicious, but you don't become queen bitch by being a nice girl.

The Caffeine Connection

23 upvotes · 29 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I've experienced what OP's saying from an overdose of caffeine (way too many espressos) but never from simply drinking coffee. If anything, drinking regular coffee before going into a social situation will boost my performance within said interaction. However overdose (say you just drank 3 espressos) will turn you into a quick mess, no frame or the rest of it, you'll morph into a hyperactive childish idiot until the effect wears off. Many people forget caffeine is a drug, and naturally, drug overdoses have undesired, unintended effects.

On the popularity of cuckold porn

23 upvotes · 14 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Especially if you're living in France.

Today was the day that Reddit almost swallowed the pill. On the front page today: Guy finds out soon-to-be fiancée is cheating and sets up an elaborate proposal to dump her.

23 upvotes · 28 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Plenty of bitches end up with cats because they are unlovable insufferable cunts. There's no happy ever after for her. So what if she gets another dude? How long will that last until she fucks that up as well? Bitch is damaged goods, cats it is then.

What you all don't understand

23 upvotes · 27 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Criticism is not hatred and Muslims have a hard time to understand it unfortunately which doesn't make discussion easy.

The main reason I cannot be bothered debating the effects of Islam in the west with muslims. It's like arguing with feminists about feminism - they don't care, both clamour to the ideology and would give it up for nothing in 99% of cases. There's a total brick wall, or should I say, stone wall? Haha.

But yes, they always dismiss your points and go into victim mode, talking about how you're racist or xenophobic or islamophobic (predictable plays) that or they dismiss your point by saying "the quran says whatever" and then you end up arguing semantic interpretations of the quran. It becomes a back and forth of you citing aggressive passages, and they citing passages which make them look good. Shit is really underwhelming. And predictable. There is almost no will among muslims to realise the incompatibility of their value system with western values. Namely, the lack of separation of church (mosque) and state (sharia) and secondly: the sub-human status of non-muslims. The second is a prime suspect in why they are so insular in what is otherwise a secular society.

Muslims are innately anti-criticism and if you breach their mental comfort zone too much, especially in real life, the threat of violence is very real. Exceptions to this are incredibly rare. It's hard to get any sense out of people who have been force fed religious dogma from a young age. I have better things to do with my time, so I don't bother.

On a note of some hilarity, my anti-atheism posts in the past have also elicited a ton of butthurt. And they're not even a religion, although they kind of behave like one, albeit in different ways.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

23 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Solid bitch management. And holding that line will do your kids/future kids a world of good.

I (beta male, 30) got told that I was subhuman trash from my 33 yo GF for not wanting to marry her after 8 months of dating

23 upvotes · 18 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women have a lower mental tolerance for stress than men do. The corporate world is very stressful. Women left the home and went into the corporate world. Even shit jobs without responsibility over others are stressful as corporations almost always run under-budget, are understaffed, and give employees far more tasks than possible to complete to the standard required within the time required. To simplify: if you don't get everything done, they bitch you didn't do everything. If you do get everything done but have to cut corners, they then bitch it wasn't done properly. This is the modern corporate rat race. Men don't like it, and women are destroyed by it as evidenced by their perpetual complaining.

Woman weren't terribly sane to begin with, give them high stress environments like the corporate world and all you elicit is the very worst. And when women at work complain it's legit complaining, not the "I want to find a way to connect with you and get attention" type of complaining that women do to try and bond with people.

Then add the fact that it's a woman's imperative to always ensure she has at least 1 man providing for her, but her stress-induced personality turns men away, and what you get is the modern woman. Perpetually stressed out, dissatisfied, and unattractive beyond the physical. Since the collapse of the family, woman have become less sane, more narcissistic, less psychologically attractive and thus more objectified. Every man that tries to save a woman from herself gets fucked up himself, so there's no point. When damage is done, it's done.

Such women only get pumped and dumped, and this makes them even more fucked in the head which makes them even more unattractive. And so the spiral of bullshit feeds itself. The family unit was a safe haven for women, with a few chores as responsibility. But feminism spun it as oppression, they (gen X women and their sycophants) bought into the BS hook, line and sinker, and now ironically... they're more "oppressed" than ever. Part of their oppression is getting mentally fucked up from taking a train of dicks and believing that this is the epitome of freedom. It's a perverse and funny game we've played. What really is freedom? The freedom to work in a high stress environment? Or the freedom to be with your kids and look after your home? Right.

And apparently it all happened to drive wages down and double tax receipts. Government supposedly funded the decline. IMO, it wasn't worth it. But that's a topic for another time.

Edit: typos

They're on your mind. How often do you really want them there?

23 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Beauty is power to women. Women accentuate everything to have power over men. The makeup/cosmetics, the tight clothes, all of it is a power play. That's before they even open their mouths to manipulate you with hamster gymnastics. If women aren't Machiavellian, nobody is.

Guy is paying $10k if you introduce him to a girl he dates for 6 months

23 upvotes · 7 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

OOOOMG I like totally loved Wedding Crashers as well oh my god we are like SOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO soul mates. I'll just spread these juicy tender thighs right now for you Ren.

Yo Ren, nobody gives a fuck what movies you like.

Nobel laureate says women in labs cry and distract men - sparks "outrage"

23 upvotes · 10 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I just tweeted that to her. Let's see what she says.

Parasitic Nesting-Mode activated: Buddy's GF starts competing with me, as soon as he buys his own place.

23 upvotes · 15 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I can only watch as she's gaining influence over him using her "worry"

False concern, I've written about this very briefly as a mechanism of Machiavellianism awhile back, I'm not sure if I'll be able to dig up the thread, let's see... okay, got it:

/r/TheRedPill/comments/1ujs0r/concern_the_choice_manipulation_of_concealed/

A few days ago, she offered him a quickie to keep him at home when I said let's hit the gym.

Yep, trying to exercise control over him via sex. Typical female strategy.

Honestly, this kind of is shit is why I heavily endorse Machiavellianism as an absolute necessity for dealing with women. Don't get mad, get even. Beat them at their own game, get better at it than them. They're predisposed to be manipulative, we're predisposed to want to see the best in them, but with enough self-awareness you can turn all that shit around.

I'll keep this short and sweet- Woman's definition of love...

23 upvotes · 12 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They are merely following their sexual agenda just like we are, whether they're aware of it or not.

Smart men control violent impulses they have. Dumb men give into it and end up in prison. Smart women attempt to control their hypergamy and recognise when it is driving them to make poor decisions. Dumb women (most) blindly follow hypergamy and ruin relationship after relationship in search of "the next big thing." It is what it is, most women really are idiots with little self-awareness just following their biological programming.

Why techno-game renders you powerless.

23 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Communication technology eliminates men's natural advantages. It equals the playing field by empowering women and demising men. Physical size, deep voices, and facial hair cannot be seen/heard through an SMS conversation. The woman's word is just as powerful as yours.

As someone who has written a lot of content for the manosphere (probably 100,000+ words on the blog alone, I haven't counted) I find sometimes someone says some shit about something I wrote and I think "why do they think that." Often there is some projection in what they're saying, other times they're just misinterpreting me. The jist of what I'm getting at is this:

If I say something and mean one thing emotionally, and you take a totally different emotion from it, that's your emotion, not mine. It's your emotion because you're reading it in your voice, but because they're my words you get confused and think that's how I feel. You misassign your sentiment to my words. You can't hear my accent, inflection or mannerisms when you read my shit. You read it all in your voice. That means if you have some high pitch voice, you hear a high pitch voice when you read my stuff. That's the thing about reading, we interject ourselves into the writing because it's our voice being used to read the words in front of us, it's not the writer's voice speaking their thoughts, it's your voice speaking their thoughts.

This may not sound like much to you, but psychologically I believe it has a huge impact. Look at these examples for a minute:

- You are an 18 year old young american man. Your voice isn't that deep. You have upwards inflections. This means when you talk, you sound like you're asking questions even when you're making statements. I write some shit. You then read what I wrote, be it an SMS or a 3,000 word article. You put all your pitch and inflection onto my words. You then, in your head, attribute certain qualities to my character based on the voice you're hearing, but those are qualities leaking from your persona which you're misguidedly appropriating to my words. You don't ACTUALLY hear me when you read me, you get my thoughts, but you don't get me, my full essence and sentiment.
- Imagine you're a chick. Some guy texts you, you're reading "hi how are you?" in this squeaky high-pitched effeminate voice instead of hearing the bass, the clarity etc. Higher T leads to deeper voices, a man's voice is a subtle sexual indicator of genetic quality. Women are receptive to it. I've had women in the past tell me I had a sexy accent or voice, and these women weren't even foreigners, they were native to England (like I am.) So I'd be better off ringing up these girls and passively seducing them with my voice to subject them to that indicator of genetic fitness rather than letting them read what I have to say. Even if I were saying something as bland as "hi, how are you?" it'd be better than texting her because I have more influence over how she feels and how I am perceived because she doesn't get to tangle up her emotional sentiment/pitch/tone of voice/accent etc with my words/thoughts.

Of course this phenomenon works in reverse, as a guy you read a girls text in a man's voice. That makes her seem more threatening than she really is. Her voice is high and squeaky and has all that "oh my gaawwwd!" inflection in it, but you're giving her your voice when you read what she writes you. You seem more feminine to her over text, and she seems more masculine to you. This is an interesting theory. I can logically see how modern communication "levels the dominance playing field in communication" because the usual subtle indicators of dominance or passiveness we give when talking are completely absent and it's left up to the reader to define them/fill the space.

Why do you think people with social anxiety have no issue with e-mails or text messages but hate answering the phone? They don't get to hear from you in their own familiar voice, instead it's a voice they're unfamiliar with, and being anxious, that startles them.

Running game in wealthier and more affluent areas.

23 upvotes · 18 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Dark triad game, insane confidence or insane aesthetics is the only way you're going to bang these high tier bitches.

By insane confidence, I mean irrational confidence. Unwavering frame, assumed, internalised psychological superiority vs the chick. You have virtually no pedestal for her, your pedestal is what you loom over her on. Think Patrice O'Neal. He constructs himself the largest pedestal and ego to ever exist. Whenever a bitch tries to rip it away, he hits back at her with double the power. When she tries to construct her own pedestal, he tears it down. You have to be psychologically dominant so she can be attracted to that superiority. Treat her like she's nothing special, and she'll value your opinion. Naturally a lot of these girls are clinically narcissistic because they have not only sexual power at their disposal, but likewise an abundance of resources. This is why asshole game works great on them, they have to stop feeling like Athena to see you as Zeus.

Every other fucker is getting ignored. Billionaire boys might get a look in for political reasons, but that's not real attraction, it's family business and incredibly overpriced pussy.

Machiavellian Thinking vs. Conventional Logic.

23 upvotes · 8 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I try to mix it up, I don't target any one specific section of the manosphere. I suppose the thing I neglect most is game, but then a lot of people here were on seddit and there are about a thousand game blogs out there, so it matters not.

My readership is divided in its interest. If I did a book or book(s) I would probably separate much of the DT content from the manosphere content. An RP book and a DT book as individual entities makes a lot of sense to me. Naturally, you could avoid the manosphere book and focus on the DT one. Of course I want to refine a lot of my theories on the DT, and recently I've had a few fresh ones, hence a DT book, in my view, is a long way off. I won't rush a DT book to make some quick money. It must be done masterfully, if at all.

My woman of one year wrote me a love letter. Very positive, very good... very telling. I have work to do.

23 upvotes · 22 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Basically, keep supplying tingles because bitches need tingles and an absence of tingles means an absence of lasting love/a relationship. If you're a "safe guy" you need to randomly "not seem so safe" create doubt, push/pull.

25 Ways To Be The Kind of Man People Respect

23 upvotes · 17 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Point 17 and 18 are wrong in my opinion.

- Revenge should be taken when necessary. Point 17 sounds like it conflicts with point 7. Retaliating to violence is the instantaneous act of revenge in the name of self-defence.
- Alphas have enemies because they inspire jealousy, lesser men want to depose them and take their place.
- Point 24 aids in respect. Weak men for example need to wear a suit more than strong men to project a sense of power. Wearing nice clothes is not necessary if you are manly enough, but it certainly helps to command respect.

Otherwise, decent list.

NEVER EVER trust women who say/act like they are "one of the guys" and have "mostly guy friends"

23 upvotes · 3 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude I can't believe you criticized this woman for 5 minutes before letting her cut your hair.

Was that really a smart move?

It's kinda like harassing the server before you get your food. Risky shit.

Russian roulette with the old clippers there. I'm a risk taker, sue me.

Feminism Has Destroyed My Family

23 upvotes · 28 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Disagree. He was born in the pond. His only fault is he didn't make it out quicker.

Self-professed ugly girl on TwoX complains about her experience at the club--she was basically treated like a man.

23 upvotes · 25 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree with you whole heartedly. That's why I said "get work done" aka cosmetic surgery. Women are basically defined by their beauty for better or for worse.

Are feminists just angry because they hate themselves?

23 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It is woman's natural predilection to be eternally discontent with her state of being. Likewise, it is in the female character to voice such discontentment, unreservedly, unabashedly, repeatedly. Specifically in eras and civilizational periods where women have entered the professions and begin to view themselves as equal to or superior to men, forgetting their place as the second sex. Firstly, attention. Women are inherently insecure and needy people, they crave the attention of others. The more they talk, the more attention they get. Secondly, drama. The female psychological need for emotional nourishment means they have a propensity to manufacture drama. Often the easiest way to do this is to say insane, disjointed, illogical things in hope that somebody will entertain your absurdity with a reply and thus give drama the precedence it needs to be born - conflict.

You see it is the masturbation of intellectualisation and the opulence of wealth which drives all to moral decadence, pessimism and discontent. When these things take hold in women, they manifest loudly and emotively as an undisciplined tirade of abuse from the collective female consciousness.

No matter the state of the civilization you live in nor the time period that you live, man has never spoken unless he felt the need to speak or was otherwise inspired to speak by a topic of great interest to him. Women, inversely, cannot stop speaking. Their need for constant discourse, communication, feedback "is everything alright?" "have I done something wrong?" is something that has incessantly annoyed man since the dawn of time. And if she is not trying to be hospitable in her enquiry, she is instead, abrasive. Their constant tangential scrutiny of the smallest and most banal details never ceases to rear its ugly ineffectual head for women feel compelled to talk, and talk, and talk. And should there be nothing worth talking about, as mentioned in the first paragraph, she shall manufacture some drama because to a woman emotional conflict is more stimulating than the void of silence.

Men speak with intent, women speak for the sake of communication.

In the age of civilization where men rule, and women understand the natural order, women fight these urges. They try well to behave. Women go to schools where they learn how not to annoy men and how to cater to and complement them (finishing school.) This is viewed as their part of the bargain should they wish a man to work the entirety of his life to provide for her well-being, give her children, guide her with his superior logic and emotional groundedness and etc. In the age of women where man is vilified, deplorable behaviour manifests tenfold and deluded on their own self-importance women try to live independently of men, failing miserably for the most part. Some find some small crevice of happiness within the perversity of lesbianism. Most suffer a string of failed relationships because whilst man welcomes her body, he cannot endure her character.

Man is falsely accused of molesting his stepdaughter when he tells his cheating wife he wants a divorce. Goes to prison because of incompetent/dishonest lawyers, even though he has proof of his innocence.

23 upvotes · 15 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Almost no possibility for her to ever be brought to justice. A few simple lies on her part and she can get out of it. It doesn't help that she is a good looking woman who plays the "victim" very well and is an expert in manipulating people. Hell, she convinced me to take her back after I caught her having her first affair. She is very good at making people want to help her out even though she is really just trying to take advantage of you."

Ah a Lucifer's Daughter. She charms rather than coerces, but when she loses control over a situation or otherwise feels scorned she flips a switch, goes nuclear and rapes your ass with the most insidious psychopathic head games known to man; all whilst playing the part of the damsel in distress perfectly to the rest of the world.

This is a uniquely feminine method of torture and social ostracisation in so much as that people want to believe women need help and are in danger when they "lay it on thick" and try to get some power out of a victim narrative, but when a man does the same thing they're more predisposed to scoff, disbelieve or call him a pussy that needs to sort out his own problems. What this means is that a woman always has more assumed credibility than a man. A woman's word is always seen as being worth more than a man's. I call this shit "damsel in distress syndrome". This social dynamic exists for two reasons: men believe because in women claiming victimhood because of their provider instinct, women believe in it because they suffer an in-group inferiority complex. These instincts easily evolve into beliefs with blue pillers/the legal system, and so when a man and woman go head-to-head (typically in divorce) in the absence of evidence, or in the presence of a legal system that wilfully rejects evidence in order to secure a conviction; the woman always comes out on top.

On the surface of her bullshit narrative, justice was done. In reality however anything but justice was done. This is how a scorned woman leverage's her machiavellianism to destroy a man; using the arm of an already corrupt and biased legal system to act as her enforcer. Utterly despicable. I shudder to think what would have happened to the poor man if his fellow inmates were privy to what he had been charged with; as they too would assume guilt in spite of his innocence. If you think this story is bad as-is, it could have been far worse.

redditor introduces his gorgeous gf to gonewild. She becomes very popular. A couple months later, she's fucking other redditors

23 upvotes · 11 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hypergamy and Briffault's Law at work here. Guy's a fucking idiot facilitating his (now) ex-gf's online sluttiness.

Woman catches 2y BF cheating on her, goes on a rage on him. The catch? She had cheated before, but apparently her cheating was justified and his isn't!

23 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Under Dexi's logic men are the insane ones for being so loyal when they are fed/sexed.

Growing up in a female/feminine-dominated household/world really fucks you up...

23 upvotes · 2 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The female definition of selfish: not putting her first.

My blonde plate said: "You like black-haired women". I said: "Yea, but if you behave, I'll continue making an exception to you."

23 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Agree + pressure flip, very interesting combo. Nicely done.

A Boy Is Born

23 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well it used to be a resting place, you could come here and have frank discussions with people and not get censored, a lot of RPer's are surrounded by bluepillers and TRP is/was a great place to come and say what you really think rather than conform to the bullshit of society on a daily basis.

In the early days most people on TRP had swallowed the pill and were on their journey of self-improvement, bitterness was minimal and was mostly divorced guys, people would sit here and shoot the shit, it was not only informative but entertaining, there was little bitterness and bitching and not many blue pill examples (and the ones that were there were good examples of relationships from /r/relationships or a personal anecdote fully dissected, not merely links to redditlog with zero or feeble analysis.) As the sub has grown and more people have attached themselves to it that aren't actually fully RP yet, there are less FRs/theory and more MRA and BP examples.

It's easier to post a BP example or MRA post, posting an FR means actually applying TRP to your life and practicing it, theorising means much of the same thing as well as building on what you already know. A lot of people posting should really just be lurking, they bring the signal down with attitude problems and a lack of knowledge.

"The countries with the lowest fertility rates tend to be those with the highest female employment rates."

23 upvotes · 8 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The whole "but Diana on Elms Road has a PhD in astrophysics, a 7 figure bank balance, 5 kids and juggles motherhood with career just fine and therefore I have disproved your generalisation" arguments get old really fast. Like that one outlier debunks an argument. People making these arguments are fucking retarded.

Catching girls mirin'

23 upvotes · 4 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can easily flip that to say that women feel entitled to an emotional investment and committed relationship from men but view men as the obstacles between them and the emotional intimacy that they seek. So they have sex as a duty just to make the man happy but ultimately they only care about being looked after and provided for (especially as they get older.)

I've had guys in their 30s tell me "dating women now is like a marriage interview".

As I have demonstrated you can apply this same asinine logic and interpretation of TRP to attack the feminine imperative, it is a retarded way for a BPer to acknowledge that women are the gatekeepers to sex whilst men are the gatekeepers to commitment. But then hey, BPers are all about purposely interpreting things in the most negative context possible to paint us all as a bunch of evil misogynists because they proclaim it. Reddit needs a boogeyman to validate SRS/feminist bullshit and TRP is the scapegoat! Guys trying to understand things and improve themselves? We can't have that! Objects! Obstacles! Misogyny! Oh lord, give it a rest you dramatic, theatrical, histrionic nutters.

Men are delaying marriage to age 29, but men over 30 are more hesitant to wed

23 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Even beta bucks are going to be scarce in the next 10-20 years.

Because all those career women obtaining more bachelors degrees than men and getting hired off the back of affirmative action are getting a majority of the cushy "I don't want to break a nail" office jobs in the professions and in government.

As a man, I hope you're good at Stem/Accounting or you're going to be outnumbered by female graduates in your field if you manage to get a job at all as it stands, and with current trends it'll become more pronounced in the future decades as the 3 female degrees for every 2 male degrees obtained becomes an even bigger education gap.

Funny how this perversity is backfiring, I for one love every second of it. Not the fact that life got harder for men academically and professionally speaking in many, many industries, but the fact that all this feminism is essentially going to slap women in the face when they find they can't "have it all" and their emulation of man, trying to become providers and have all the high powered jobs means they can't enjoy a family life and "feel special" or "be loved", one of woman's biggest fears, spinsterhood, will be a reality for the majority of these career women, especially considering that they won't marry down due to hypergamy. I wonder how far women's happiness needs to fall on those "satisfaction with life surveys" for feminism to truly come into question at a societal level? EG: "if feminism is so great, why are women getting more and more unhappy each decade?"

How much will feminism have to fail women by forcing them to emulate men in the hilarity of lesbian envy for masculinity until normal everyday women who are so far removed from extremist feminist dogma are so fucking miserable with being the breadwinners when they marry and getting left on the shelf when they don't/can't that even they start to wake up and think "fuck feminism, I should have had a family in my 20's with a guy that makes a stable wage, I'd be happier." To add, in the process, doing this would free up a job for a man who would have provided for her aka traditional gender roles (which were provenly functional, feminism has done nothing but prove itself an engine for social chaos.)

Having a career and being feminine aren't really compatible objectives. You pick one or the other. There may be a few exceptions, such as a part-time nurse or teacher, but generally it doesn't work. It's hilarious how many women (and feminist men) have such a strong rationalisation hamster when it comes to this, and can't call a spade a spade, they rather invest their belief in the perverse notion that all women can be superwomen, that they can do full-time jobs, be good at their jobs, look after their family, satisfy their men AND not sacrifice their femininity in the process. It's a fucking pipe dream, these idiots need to wake up and smell the coffee. Flexible gender roles do not work.

The Loyalty of Women in Long Term Mating Strategies - Pair Bonding and the Differences Between Men and Women in Sexual Affairs

23 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

the worst part is when your lesson is a certified RPW. And you look back with the all the answers.

You're describing me, I got lucky, my first significant LTR was with an RPW, I sort of stumbled on her not realising what I had. Not going to lie, I think I'm alpha widowed since that. We had something pretty profound, but you're right, not even an RPW is going to stick with you if you get too weak. They'll leave you in the dust, even if hurts them to do so. Women are people of pragmatism in matters of love and if you let her make you weak then inevitably, she's gone whether she's just a slut you don't care about or the best woman you ever had.

When men hit their lows and stay there too long, women leave. It's just how it is. Their loyalty/love is VERY contingent on the fact you are strong and winning at life (in contrast to them.) Women want a winner, when you stop winning they stop loving. This is why when women ask you to share your vulnerabilities and "open up" you'd be wise to write it off as nothing more than a very sly shit test to see if "you really are as strong as you say you are."

Tracy Clark-Flory inadvertently reveals what feminism really is

23 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You know that drug dealer who keeps money in his freezer and doesn't know where to put apostrophes?

Alpha fucks

You know that boy you were friends with but he was too nice and available?

Beta bucks

We're gaining steam.

23 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"the mob mentality" comes to mind.

User in r/Askmen has a cousin who was raped resulting in his wife leaving him.

23 upvotes · 8 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's a beautifully happy exception.

Has anyone noticed that if you piss women off just the right amount they'll always come back for more? (bit obvious)

23 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

People like you are what this subreddit needs. Less bullshit more realness.

Single and Educated: China's "Leftover" women

23 upvotes · 1 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No this is what happens when women have the power and freedom to do anything they like, they shake the very foundations of society with their ruthlessness. Women have a biological responsibility to the species to reproduce. Giving them too much power is upsetting the natural balance the evidence is everywhere. I don't want abused women neither do I want them empowered. Fuck female empowerment its bullshit for civilization.

Feminism Explained (Funny as Fuck)

23 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, wait, you actually have to rip his heart out and stomp on it before he learns to respect himself

Very true. Absent fathers and weak fathers can be thanked for that. Teaching men to put the pussy on a pedestal and bow down rather than look after yourself first. The education system is so gynocentric, it does not foster masculine energy or growth, the only real escape for boys is in sport.

The problem with women (not feminists) is they don't give a shit about the needs of little boys until they have one themselves (solipsism - incapable of giving a fuck when it doesn't affect them) then when they're bringing up a little boy alone they feel guilty he doesn't have a father around to show him things but they rationalise away that "they're enough for him and he doesn't need his father" when truly in her heart and in everyone else's mind we all know that's total BS and she's made a colossal fuck up of a decision trying to raise a boy in this world without a MAN to educate him in the ways of manhood.

Then of course she tries to find a surrogate father and does the whole strong independent woman routine. It's obnoxious and distasteful and everyone suffers. The innocent casualties of feminism are all the kids growing up without dads who have to deal with an emotionally unstable mother that won custody/drove the father away/didn't have an abortion after a one night stand etc.

Times have changed. The public mindset has yet to catch up: There are 4x more college scholarships available for women.

23 upvotes · 19 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Working part-time tends to have that effect. Even female doctors in the UK work less hours than male doctors.

FR: DJing a NYE party

23 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah in parties if you go talk to strangers people you were with before assume you know the other people and it DHVs massively. DJ is basically peacocking by being socially acceptably isolated up on the decks and contributing value via the music.

but she says she is tired and wants to go home

She wanted to be alone with you because of all the abundance she had with blonde, blonde guy went in too hard with his fixation and it put her off, she was tired but "tired of him" not "tired" ...women never say what the fuck they mean, conciseness and truth are allergies they suffer from.

I talk to this Latina girl for just a few minutes and she gushes about "are you really real!?! You are amazing!" and get her number Pursue her, even though you're playing aloof your FR suggests from all your choices that you fixated on "blue dress" all night. Try and get this latina out on a date get multiple plates spinning don't just go all in with blue dress or you'll end up like blonde. The shit tests never end, each and every day is a new set of shit tests with women.

The blue dress ends up on the ground, and she wants to do it all again this weekend.

Nice turn of word to say you fucked her or at least imply you saw her naked and then did nothing or just fooled around, I'll assume you fucked her.

Now even the party host is asking me to come spend the night with her at her new house

Spin it.

she gets scared in a lonely house by herself.

"I get lonely, comfort me with your dick"

I'll spare the details of the rest of the party, but basically cougar gives me her number, tells me I can call her any time

Spinny spin spin

All in all... 4 girls, but you're really into this blue dress chick - be fucking careful not to get oneitis on that honestly, spin them plates. Don't forget cougar, party host and latina. Aloof + seen with lots of women = high smv + DJ status = godly smv in the venue.

Successful night but spin plates!

Saving the Best - RationalMale on recent /r/sex post of guy finding old sex tape of wife.

23 upvotes · 11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy fucking shit. Basically alpha fucks gets the best sex, beta bucks is just used as a sustainable resource to feed her hypergamic entitlement for provisioning. Ideally if you do settle with a chick and have a family, make sure she's doing the dirty with you as much as possible. If it's boring, sporadic, perfunctory sex, you're not the alpha fucks/alpha bucks unicorn combo she falls in love with, you're the beta bucks backup.

If you've yet to read the rationalmale blog on your quest of self-actualisation, read it, if you already have - I'd definitely recommend buying Rollo's (rational males) book:

- US: <http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/1492777862/>
- UK: <http://www.amazon.co.uk/gp/product/1492777862/>

The latest anti-men Feminist tripe from Upworthy.com that you're going to see all over Facebook today.

23 upvotes · 8 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Basically if you want to keep on enjoying your day, ignore this provocative propaganda bait to debate with people like /u/beefmittens.

You will accomplish nothing.

TLDR: the posters shown on upworthy want you to white knight and look out for women who don't give a shit about you. White guys are the favourite antagonists, depicted as the predators who then turn out to save the day. Gay and lesbian predators aren't even mentioned, blah, blah, lifes unfair and full of shit. Move along, don't let this BS get under your skin, we're all about adapting to the system, not changing it.

Pro Tip: Next time you're out gaming, tell chicks you're a convicted murderer...

23 upvotes · 2 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I went home with the guy. Now you're really going to crucify me, because we had unprotected sex. I didn't want to, but he was in me before I knew he was going to be, and I decided to go with the flow, comforted, wrongly, by the fact that I'm on the pill so I wasn't worried about pregnancy. I can't explain it to you. I don't know why I did this. But I didn't tell him no. He had aggressive sex with me that I found painful, but didn't want to stop early. I guess I was a little afraid of making him angry.

I read this and my mind just went "yeah, whatever, 50 shades of grey is a best-seller cut the bullshit bitch"

So there's this new website against "revenge porn" and claims that it is a form of "cyber rape".

23 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So taking pictures of yourself nude, sending them to someone, splitting up with them/ending whatever it was u had and then them sharing your naked pictures without your permission is rape? Wow OK. Fuck logic.

Notice I used the word permission and not consent, these bastards have hijacked the language so much that if I'd used consent your minds would automatically draw the connotation to forced sex and thus actual rape, which this isn't.

Woman walks out on a man after finding out he's a virgin

23 upvotes · 14 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- "Yeah I only fuck nuns"
- "Seriously?"
- "Seriously."

Confidence my boy is everything. If she fucking pursues it you call the bitch Sherlock Holmes and tell her you don't find english men with monocles attractive BOOM.

You don't have to thank me, you're welcome. Have fun and go forth!

This is just how entitled to your money the average woman feels.

23 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Those women are proper women, pre-feminist women, not entitled little princesses. Men in the past had it good.

r/relationships is once again shocked and appalled at at a 17-year-old female dating a 25-year-old male. That dirty creeper! That poor innocent flower! The horror!

23 upvotes · 26 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If she doesn't consent to how you use your memory, it's mind rape.

There's an askreddit thread that asks which subreddits you'd get rid of. Guess what? We made the cut!

23 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh no the men are getting out of control, quickly, girls and white knights, lets all shame them into submission!

Clara, you bring out the "accuse them of misogyny" battalion whilst Sarah readies the rape accusation cannons.

"I bought myself a nice fucking ring....Because I fucking can and I am tired of not getting jewelry just because guys won't buy it for me and I am also tired of my mom shoving her $6,000 rock in my face every 50 seconds because my dad would rather waste money on her." Xpost XXChromo

23 upvotes · 7 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism is the mind fuck that women don't need men and are in fact better than men whilst being equal to men but needing protection from men (because we are genetically stronger/healthier/bigger)

The ideology has so much hypocrisy that you just can't help but laugh at how pathetic it is whilst noticing how delinquent it is that this shit is actually institutionalised. Feminism is the ultimate troll, the ideology immune to logic.

Or to actually expose it more candidly without the blasé humour,

- It denigrates masculinity by imposing feminine norms and values as "normal" and actively shaming masculine behaviour as "boisterous" and "outrageous".
- It feeds women that they are special for being female and that they are the prize despite ANYTHING, this is groundless ego validation and is where the "I'm a spoilt self-entitled brat that won't take responsibility" attitude comes from.
- It aims to make life easier for women utilising the guise of "equality", so women are equal to men when it comes to opening doors for women, such as in education and the workplace.
- But when feminism wants to close doors for men and restrict them, women become weak and victim cards are dished out in order to restrict men such as sweden's prostitution laws that it's legal for women to make money from offering their body sexually as a service, but its illegal for men to make the purchase of the service.

Feminists go through a fucking cycle of hating men and perceiving them as inferior, fearing men and perceiving them as superior and then wanting men to love them and make their life easier.. before they go fucking hate them again. It's like a perverse myriad triangle of impulsive attitude changes towards the entire male gender.

Essentially it's a revolving door ideology, when it suits them (in competition) they're definitely the stronger gender in their own minds. When they want to make their lives easier, they're equal but underperforming versus men due to "oppression" (victim card is played a bit here) so they need lots of special rights and leg ups to be better or "exceed" men. When they want to make men's lives harder and restrict male freedom/power, they're suddenly MUCH weaker and in need of protection from the evil male gender so men get punished for things like adultery whilst women do not, they play the damsel in distress or the abuse victim to get sympathy and control of a social situation be it with a social group or in a court of law, cue the fake tears with her best makeup on.

Like I said above it is the ultimate fucking troll of a political ideology, it's a fucked up joke putting a spanner in gender relations. Every woman who considers herself a feminist better enjoy the fucking cats or settling for a beta bitch she won't truly love or feel excited by because I'm pretty sure the inability to have a grounded view towards men and what they want from a man is what drives so many of these bitches fucking insane (females are much more likely to suffer from mental health conditions than males are, despite all that so-called "empowerment")

DON'T GIVE UP! - We're gonna make men great again!

22 upvotes · 26 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I guess you could call us more mature than women, but even that isn't fair because comparing women and men is like comparing apples and oranges.

Oh no it's definitely fair. They're the most responsible teenagers in the house (sidebar) - we're the ones who run shit, sacrifice, take bullets, fight off home invaders.. the dirty, hard work. They are less mature than we are, such is their nature.

Uncontacted Amazonian Tribe Member Gets a Girl...Goes Hunting...Girl Sleeps With His Brother

22 upvotes · 20 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You do realize they we're all here because their (and our) sexual strategy works?

Successfully reproducing and being a likeable/respectable person is distinct. He is judging their innate evolutionary psychology as a marker for "biological desirability", whilst you are judging their ability to reproduce instead - these are distinct variables attempting to define the same metric. He is effectively saying "their instincts that make them reproductively successful make them shitty people" your counterargument is "they're able to reproduce successfully so there's no problem with women."

Crux of it: he's saying female biology sucks because they aren't loyal, you're conflating an absence of loyalty with reproductive success and saying their biology is great because they're able to reproduce. You guys are talking past one another, get on the same page.

I'm 6'8". It's true what they say. It's gravity.

22 upvotes · 7 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I will add to that, every woman who can't reach a fucking jar of something on a top shelf will come to you, in the middle of a store, instead of someone who works there. And its usually either single mothers or older women, not the type you are looking to talk to.

Am "only" 6'2, and can confirm.

Guy finds out that his girlfriend settled for him because Chad wouldn't commit to her, gets RP advice from his (female) cousin, decides to kick his girlfriend to the curb.

22 upvotes · 30 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Every guy wants to be seen as alpha by his girl, if he isn't weak, but isn't seen as comparatively alpha by her because she's fucked the gangsters, chads and all the other hyper-masculinised naturals: she's just not worth your time.

I (beta male, 30) got told that I was subhuman trash from my 33 yo GF for not wanting to marry her after 8 months of dating

22 upvotes · 18 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And quite ironically, if you can be pushed around by a woman, you're doing anything but manning up.

Money

22 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Trump has been bankrupt 5 times, is a billionaire and is running for president. It's bullshit. Bankruptcy is a mechanism rich people use to avoid paying for things they're liable for, it doesn't mean they're actually penniless.

The reason why late 20's guy hates his job but late 20's girl loves her job

22 upvotes · 7 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, what the fuck? She sounds like a real cunt.

Gf doesn't want me to lose my belly fat, but mires men in shape.

22 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitches limit your options by pretending to support you in a way that limits your desirability. And if you are dumb enough to listen to them, they get what they want. Insidious.

Blue Pill comedian interviews women for his book about romance, mind is blown when he discovers very basic red pill truths

22 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You know why the king only moves one space in any direction on the chess board whilst the queen goes all the way across the board?

Because someone's gotta fuckoff down the shop and get me my beer.

Anyone see the "Hot Girls Wanted" Netflix porn documentary.

22 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Typically, when people ask lots of questions and have no disclosed position/input of their own, they are on the attack and just want to make you look dumb. I suspect this is what you're doing. That really, you don't have a pure desire to seriously discuss the questions you pose. Essentially, my suspicion is you are asking a chain of empty questions to put me on the defence (passive aggressive behaviour, because something beneath the surface bothers you.)

Then you can pick at the answers. And be generally undermining. I can see through that bullshit. I'm not interested in that bullshit.

If you are legitimately confused about why a sub about sexual strategy gives a shit about female behaviours, I don't know what to say to you. That's really dumb.

I will say this: some people on this sub look at the big picture, eg: what's good for society. Others only care about what is good for themselves and don't care about how it affects others, fuck society. Reading through the lines you sound like the latter, which is why you don't get (and possibly despise) the prior. Correct me if I'm wrong.

We aren't all the same. If I give a shit about society, I don't need to ask why someone who doesn't give a shit feels that way. I already have a fairly good idea.

Anyone see the "Hot Girls Wanted" Netflix porn documentary.

22 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Governments have a monopoly on force. It is legal for them to use force, it is not legal for you to use force. Well at least in the US you can stand your ground on your property. In the UK you cannot even hit a guy for robbing your home. You have to let him steal your shit or you risk being arrested for battery/assault.

Criminals/gangs/mafia often see government/police/politicians as being a more successful version of themselves.

Ask IllimitableMan

22 upvotes · 30 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

Make a mockery of it.

2 Good things:

- I am the shit
- My friends are the shit

2 bad things:

- Those poor african children
- That shit you heard on the news going on in baltimore

Don't take the exercise seriously, that's a bullshit exercise by the way. FORCING you to open up. What the fuck is wrong with your university. If they say "those aren't proper answers" and push you for your real feelings, immediately flip it on them and say you feel they're creating a hostile learning environment where you are forced to divulge inner personal information you are not comfortable sharing. "My feelings, my choice." Hopefully you don't have to go full SJW and play that card, the mockery of the nonsense is far more fun.

"TRP is too nice to men, too mean to women. Waaaah!" ... the response

22 upvotes · 18 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I can tell you're new here. Refer to the end of my post because it applies to you. Your hang ups aren't our problem. Don't want to believe in hypergamy? Bye then. Society is that way.

Admiration & Respect

22 upvotes · 8 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Once you have been identified as being in the top 10, 20% or whatever number is her target, then the seduction begins.

Or you can reduce her self-esteem to a steaming pile of shit with a tirade of negs, whilst you demonstrate impenetrable asshole narcissism. (Oh my, his confidence makes me moist!) Then when she starts being a good girl you build her back up by validating her for behaving in ways toward you that you like. Then she keeps seeking you for validation, effectively becoming a vulnerable narcissist instead of an egotistical one (read: EGO is attractive on men, not on women.)

People always forget about "dark triad game" (a term I don't really like) but yeah, bringing her down a few pegs, holding frame, escalating sexually and withdrawing attention whenever she refuses you is essentially another way to get laid without being a billionaire business tycoon with a cock made of gold.

Women's expectations aren't in line with reality because their hypergamy's running feral as defined by the feminist ideological narrative married to the consumerist modern marketing media. In the anglo world, that cute chick down the corner store thinks she deserves a CEO or lawyer, although her body is a depreciating asset and she brings little else to the table. It's our job to fix that in the women we encounter, being the oh so virtuous paragons of humanity that we are. Hahaha.

[Video] Man demonstrates that you can get away with anything if you have high (perceived) SMV.

22 upvotes · 2 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He held frame, but it was the perceived status that got him in places. I like how that bitch lies/improvises on the spot "he got an oscar for editing" hahaha fucking hell.

The Red Pill is the radical notion that women are people.

22 upvotes · 1 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You got played, many men have, such is the power of women.

The Red Pill is the radical notion that women are people.

22 upvotes · 1 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

