Sex does not equal love, for us.

Since women gatekeep sex (and rightly so), you tend to think of it as a deep and meaningful act of connection, to be shared only with a few (ideally one) beloved individuals. But we aren't like that.

For example, all a woman has to do to get sex from me is be pretty, be nice to me, be free of communicable diseases, and not have any incompatible sexual kinks. I've slept with women within an hour of meeting them sometimes, and forgotten their names an hour later. Once, at a wedding, I introduced myself to a fellow guest and attempted to strike up a casual conversation by asking her a few things about herself... not realizing that I had already slept with her. I didn't recognize her at all.

So, if you accept that what I am saying is true (foreign and absolutely strange as it may seem), can you now understand how "she meant nothing to me" is often the literal and unvarnished truth?

What we men gatekeep is relationships.

So, to determine who a woman has the greatest passion for, look for who she has the most, kinkiest, and earliest sex with. To know who a man is most passionate about, look at who he takes the most effort to keep around after sex.

He's not over you at all. Hookups are his way of dealing with the pain.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

9 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

This particular section of "online" is my house. Why? Because I built it. I made it what it is today.

You, in general, are welcome here, especially because this place was made to help young men like you, but being a welcome guest does not entitle you to be rude to your host, or challenge him to some sort of dick-measuring contest.

You in particular seem to suffer from the delusion that because all men are created equal, that means that all men are equal, and therefore you are the equal of any man, and your opinions have the same weight.

No.

HSP has achieved things you have not, and contributed in ways that you have not, both in this venue. Here, in this venue, your opinion is not regarded as equally valuable to his. We are not a democracy, because democracy sucks. Here, you get what you earn.

This is why the rules say that you are allowed to disagree with him and challenge his views, but you must do so in a polite and well-reasoned manner, as would be expected of any guest disputing with his host. You are in HSP's territory.

I realize that you may not be used to the concept of territory, because you were raised in a female-centric society, and it's possible you were raised entirely by women. But this is how masculine groups operate... everyone is NOT equal, and we do not share and share alike. Instead, status within the group is given to those who have contributed the most to it.

You don't have to agree that this is a good idea. Your opinion is your territory. But you do have to abide by this idea while you are here, because TRP is not your territory, it is mine. And, not to put too fine a point on it, HSP's.

How to handle a man whose ego can't deal with you knowing better than he does

9 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

He is not a "certified genius", because there is no such thing. Genius has no precise or objective definition.

People who insist on being proud of their "genius" are not popular at parties.

Why not? Well, high-quality people have multiple virtues. Having a lot of one virtue and none of any the others is worse than having no virtues at all.

Someone with great intelligence and deficient social graces is obnoxious and arrogant. Someone with great compassion and no wisdom is an SJW. Someone with great social skills and no intelligence is a fuckup. Someone with great wisdom and no compassion is a tyrant. And so on.

Unfortunately, there is very little in the way of actionable advice that I can give you. I took the journey from "obnoxious and arrogant child prodigy" to "functional adult with social skills and friends" myself, but... it was a personal journey. I had to realize that intelligence was not accomplishment, and other people saying that to me wouldn't have helped. (I think some may have tried, though not, as I recall, in so many words.)

Ultimately, intelligence is only as good as the data it acts upon, and that's not very good in those who don't have the ability or the inclination to listen.

Still, here's what I can tell you:

Intellectual potential can be a tremendous burden. Smart kids are often told, repeatedly, that they can accomplish great things, and come to believe they MUST accomplish great things. But intelligence isn't what accomplishes great things, because, while it helps, it is neither necessary nor sufficient for the sorts of things that we tend to label "great".

At best, it's only one piece of the puzzle.

Unfortunately for gifted children, instead of being taught difficult things that require many different virtues (how to run a business, how to make wooden furniture, how to write a story, how to shoot a rifle, etc), they are cloistered from responsibility with other children and given a set of toy problems to solve, all of which are specially designed to require nothing more than thinking, insight, and possibly a pencil.

So they become tremendously frustrated when they become adults, because suddenly, there are problems they can't fix with five minutes of concentration and a pencil.

And they think they are FAILING. And they try, more and more desperately, to prove to everyone around them, and themselves, that they are still the smartest person in the room.

They don't understand that those problems existed all along. They simply were sheltered from them in a form of mismanagement that amounts to child abuse.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

9 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

I don't care about what you care about. You're in my house. You spout nonsense, imma set you straight. You can "care about" that or not.

It's not going to change anything.

Let's "Steel-Man" Both Positions

9 upvotes · 7 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's a lack of trust that there will be reciprocity.

Because human females are comparatively helpless and need men to survive (this has to do with infants having giant heads, explanation in my comment history somewhere, article still pending), humans evolved with a set of matched instincts; males instinctively protect and care for females, females instinctively defer to and obey males.

This makes males instinctively reciprocal, and while females are not instinctively reciprocal, it makes them instinctively deferential, which works fine so long as men are just willing to say what they want in return.

That all works so long as both instincts are intact. Men lead and rule, women are protected and cared for.

But instincts can be suppressed, at least partially, with social conditioning. And here's what that looks like.

- A culture where the male protective instinct has been unilaterally suppressed looks a lot like islam, or at least like how we in the west imagine Saudi Arabia to look. Women are obedient to men, men treat them like cattle.
- A culture where the female submissive instinct has been unilaterally suppressed looks a lot like feminist areas of the west. Women do whatever the fuck they want, and men are blamed for any negative consequences.

The way feminist tactics have functioned is to suppress, as far as possible, women's instinct to submit, while maximally exploiting men's instinct to protect. This is why feminists are constantly whining to the "patriarchy" for more benefits and free stuff, which men are taxed to provide (for example).

TRP evolved not as direct response to feminism, but as a response to the world feminism created. What TRP does is teach men to selectively suppress their protective instinct, to help them deal with women whose submissive instincts have been suppressed. However, the reason that TRP is not directly a bright mirror of feminism is that feminism teaches women to suppress submissive impulses towards all men, all the time, under all circumstances... but TRP teaches men to suppress protective impulses only towards women who are not submissive to them.

Thus, feminism seeks a world where men are unpaid bodyguards and beasts of burden for an aristocracy of the entire female sex, while TRP creates individual men who can opt in or out of the submission-protection social structure, depending on the behaviour of the woman they are confronted with.

Gillette CEO: Losing customers over #MeToo campaign is 'price worth paying'

9 upvotes · 24 August 2019 · /r/MensRights

I can't boycott gillette, because I switched years ago to an old fashioned butterfly razor and double edged blades.

Which cost about five or six cents a piece. And give a better shave.

Don't pay for their plastic crap.

Girls who went to an alternative school?

9 upvotes · 1 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

When you get better at this, you won't have to eat from the dumpster to avoid skipping meals.

How does a girlfriend behave differently than a wife in a relationship with a man, and how can a girlfriend be of value to him without giving away too much too soon?

9 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The words "giving away too much" carry the assumption that dating is a negotiation, an economic exchange where you withhold something he wants (but you don't want to give), until he gives you something you want (but he doesn't want to give).

The other way of looking at dating is as an audition, a trial period where both people see what being with the other person is like, and thus are able to decide if they want to make that permanent.

When you are selling something, you want to withhold until you have been paid.

When you are auditioning for something, you want to show the best that you are capable of.

Since RPW is an amoral, empirical place designed for discussing what works, the only important question is "Which of these models works better for getting what you want?" But to answer that, we first have to answer the question "What do you want?"

And that is a personal question.

It boils down to what kind of relationship you want to have with the man you marry. Would you like a transactional relationship, where what he does for you is exchanged for what you do for him? Or would you like a relationship based on mutual desire for each other's happiness? Do you want to sell something, or create a bond of mutual support?

How you feel about this will imply the answer to the question of whether you wish him to marry you in the hope that you will change afterwards, or to marry you in the hope that you won't.

Empirically, from my coaching experience on both sides of the gender gap, inspiring reciprocity in a man works much better for relationship permanence, stability, and quality than trying to leverage him. The drawback to this plan, however, is that, while it's actually safer because it works better, it's quite scary to try, as it involves going "all in". Many women simply are too afraid to try this, and this is often complicated by the way that women who are fearful tend to "aim too low".

In my opinion, if a man isn't worth going "all in" for, you're probably wasting your time and yourself dating him in the first place.

Does CBD help with relieving anxiety and thus help with game?

9 upvotes · 21 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm not looking for a crutch here.

Yes, you are.

"The Believers" vs. The Empiricists

9 upvotes · 5 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

At it's heart it's the imposition of the American corporatist ideology,

You'd be clearer if you defined your terms, and even clearer if you defined what they mean to you personally.

on what is supposed to be intimate: sexual relations.

Supposed by whom? And for what reason?

What is it about the dark triad personalities that usually alpha widows most girls?

9 upvotes · 31 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Dark Triad personalities:

- Are automatically outcome independent because they are either totally incapable of love and don't give a shit about anyone but themselves, or, at best, only capable of loving someone exactly on their terms.
- Don't expect to be loved unconditionally, because they have most likely never experienced such a thing. (Parents were DT, too.)
- Always insert thoughts between emotions and actions. They strategize continuously, even when genuinely acting upon feelings.
- Have no consciences whatsoever, and always do what they think is effective rather than what they think is right.
- Are insanely courageous and overconfident.

Does this sound familiar? This is RP tactics. Of course, DT personalities include lots of other stuff that RP tactics don't, but the point is that DT personalities are automatically redpilled.

And remember that the difficult thing about taking the red pill is not learning the skillset, but accepting the premises. DT personalities are born with that acceptance built in. This allows them to quickly progress on learning the skill set.

Now, you wouldn't want to be an actual DT personality. Imagine not being able to care about other people. Imagine not being able to feel connection to anyone. Imagine not being able to love, or feel loved. You don't want that. You just need to be able to fake it enough to use its functionality.

i just don't know what i'm doing with this LTR, help me asktrp

9 upvotes · 27 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

In order to fix yourself, you need to build confidence. It is a bad idea to stay with a girl who undermines that.

Is a video a girl uploads of herself twerking on instagram a sign of a thot, or usual attention-seeking behaviour for this day and age?

9 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Is a video a girl uploads of herself twerking on instagram a sign of a thot

<https://i.imgur.com/B4yLlol.jpg>

Is this what frame is?

9 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Frame is the context and expectations inherent in the interaction.

Having frame control means that you define what the interaction is about, what the unspoken expectations are, and how it flows.

All speakers put content into a communication, but he who controls the process of the communication is controlling the "frame".

Think of it as a window that slides, exposing what is acceptable, and concealing what is not. You want to be the one moving the window.

Doing it right? Possessiveness?

9 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

This a gradual process that begins with innocuous compliance tests and ends up at the explicit understanding that she is your property/slave.

The trick is to get her in the habit of obedience. Girls look to their environment and to the important people in their lives to tell them what is "normal". You will make her obeying you and serving you into the definition of "normal" for her.

This rests on several pillars.

Pacing: Being controlling too early looks needy and therefore weak, creepy, etc. Not being controlling late in the game looks like you are afraid to make your wishes clear or demand things. Your compliance tests must start out as reasonable suggestions, or simple instructions voiced confidently ("Have a seat", "I'll pick you up at eight", etc), and gradually move towards explicit instructions for how she is expected to act.

Clarity: Your demands absolutely must be clear, understandable and easy to follow. You must spell out what she is expected to do so she doesn't have to worry about what it is you want, or whether she is pleasing you. "Dress more feminine" is horrible, but "I'll pick you up at eight, wear the black dress. You know... the one I said I liked the other day" is easy to understand.

Reward: The experience of obeying you must be rewarding overall for her, either inherently, from the result, or from praise, attention and other rewards. many girls could, theoretically, be browbeaten into submission, but this does not work forever, and only produces reluctant, robotic obedience, not eagerness to please. For example, if you are controlling her diet and exercise routines to make her shed pounds, you must point out positive changes in her body when they happen, and reward hard work with praise.

Punishment: Any disobedience, negligence, disrespect, and so on must be punished, even if only symbolically. Punishments should be social at first, using things like disapproval, withdrawal of attention, or loss of other privileges. They can gradually become explicit and more physical. However, you must be careful using physical punishments with bdsm girls... they may end up disobeying whenever they want a spanking. Find something they don't like, or hit harder and use expressions of disapproval.

Comfort: Punishments must be over when they are over, clearly explained before they happen, and administered sternly but calmly rather than angrily. Display no lingering resentment after a girl has been punished... the punishment must be a complete means of atoning for the offense. If you find yourself still angry, you didn't apply a severe enough punishment. Most importantly of all, a girl must know what expectations are and how to behave to avoid punishment... she must not be living in fear of you or "walking on eggshells". Girls can survive having their little bottoms strapped just fine... but living in perpetual fear and anxiety will damage them and they will wilt and deteriorate before your eyes.

Attraction: She must at all times remain convinced that you are awesome, amazing, one of the best catches she could possibly hope to get, and she cannot believe her luck to have the privilege of being your girl. You cannot introduce any of this if she does not look up to you.

Fucked up and told my LTR about red pill.. is this salvageable?

9 upvotes · 3 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

A woman will forgive you a hundred times for being evil before she forgives you once for being weak.

You don't fix this. You start again with another girl.

Why should I tolerate any women flaking on me/standing me up even once if there are plenty of women out there that wont do either?

9 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

There's a difference between "flake" and "reschedule".

If a girl texts me "OMG sorrrysorrrysorry I can't make it tonight I just got in a car accident, and I'm waiting for the tow truck. Can we do something next weekend? Or whenever you're free next?"

... not only are there decent odds she's telling the truth, that's also respectful. It advances my opinion of her worthiness over what it was before.

Because whether she makes it or not may be out of her control, but how she talks to me never is. Attitude is important.

Girlfriend wants more time with me - i dont

9 upvotes · 16 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

You don't want to spend time with her because she is demanding it, instead of trying to inspire it.

You need to train her properly.

I can't understand this

9 upvotes · 4 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Game rules everything.

Looks help, affluence helps, fame helps, status helps, power helps.

But none of these are necessary with game, or sufficient without it.

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

9 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The sophistication and depth of analysis, the extent of general knowledge is way higher in the average philosophy faculty member than the most educated member I've seen here.

The universe does not care who is sophisticated and deep. It cares who is correct.

And beliefs only become knowledge if they are correct.

Do you think not understanding Marx, Adorno, Nietzsche, Lacan, Bourdieu and Foucault actually helps you to better understand men and the male condition?

That is precisely what I am saying.

Marx's misunderstandings of the human condition resulted in the deaths of between 100 and 200 million people, and the oppression, slavery, and torture of untold millions more. The only useful thing we can learn from Marx is where he was wrong, and how to avoid being like him.

What you are doing in overvaluing academic philosophy is succumbing to the Narrative Fallacy. The narrative fallacy is the act of mistaking a hypothesis for a theory.

When you do science or, more broadly, when you do empiricism, what you do is generate a story that sounds reasonable, is persuasive, and explains all the observed facts. That's the hypothesis. But what you do then is make a prediction from it and test that prediction. If your hypothesis repeatedly makes accurate predictions, then, and only then, does it become a theory.

The people you are asking TRP to read are all intellectuals. What is an intellectual? An intellectual is someone whose work product is ideas. In other words, the intellectual comes up with a hypothesis, and rather than using empirical methods to test it, he uses rhetorical methods to proselytize it. Other intellectuals read, listen, and argue, and they are either persuaded or not.

But, at the end of the affair, intellectuals do not ever discover truth, because they do not test. And this would be fine... if people like you understood that the the role of the intellectual is to suggest possibilities, rather than discover truth or create understanding.

When you mistake reading the ideas of intellectuals for education or understanding, you commit the narrative fallacy... you believe that something is true because it sounds reasonable, rather than because it has withstood testing.

TRP is not very interested in intellectuals because TRP is empirical in nature. Does this idea about women better enable me to attract and influence them, or does it not? Our testing is ad-hoc, capricious, lacks control groups or any statistical rigour, but we are still better scholars of the female mind than any philosopher who ever set pen to paper because we test our ideas. It would be a step backwards for us to read Foucault, who has not been proven right, let alone Marx, who has repeatedly been proven wrong.

In fact, let's go meta on this.

You have a hypothesis that reading Marx would somehow help DudeBro McBackwardsBaseballHat. Instead of succumbing to the narrative fallacy, believing that's true because it sounds sensible, and trying to convince me of that with rhetoric... show me some evidence.

Show me some evidence that reading Marx has tangible benefits. In fact, we'll make it easy to you. Don't do Marx, he kills people. Do Foucault. Do Dirreda. Hell, do Schopenhauer if you want. Or Nietzsche. If you really want an easy one, do Locke or Marcus Aurelius. (Those I might give you.)

But I don't have cargo space for rhetoric. Show me results or quit wasting my time.

And, as a postscript, I have no interest in "competing" with your typical white (or black) middle class female academic. I don't have to. I can simply ignore her, because she doesn't actually have the capability to do anything. All she can produce is arguments, which are only significant if you voluntarily pay attention to them. Which I see no reason for doing.

Arguments are not won by arguing.

They are bypassed when you stop arguing and build something that demonstrates your point.

Exempla gratis, I made TRP.

I have objectively and indisputably helped a lot of young bros get laid, and more importantly gain control over their lives. The outcome of this particular argument between you and me doesn't matter, because after it is over, regardless of the outcome, I will still be in charge of TRP and have a readership who knows I have something useful to say, and you will still be an unknown voice crying in the wilderness.

Why? Because I built something that demonstrates my point, and you haven't (yet). I would be more than glad if you would endeavour to convince me by going and doing so.

Why does trp advise not getting involved with woman who have flamboyantly gay friends?

9 upvotes · 28 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why does trp advise

The next time I see these words, I'm smackin' ya.

WHO said it? Where, when? Read what the fuck he wrote if you wanna know why he wrote it.

Strong Curves newbie

9 upvotes · 11 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I would avoid any popular program targeted specifically at women. Such programs tend to focus on "toning", using high repetition counts of light resistance. Women find this less intimidating, and the programs sell well.

Problem is, that's a total waste of time. There's no such thing as "toning", and muscles don't become stronger, denser, or larger by moving a lot. If they did, your heart would be huge.

What muscles do is adapt to the maximum strain placed on them. That means, if you want muscle growth, you must lift a heavy thing. A really heavy thing. The heaviest thing you can lift.

But Whisper, I'm a giiiiiiiiiiirl. I want to be shapely! I don't want to get big muscles!

You just said the same thing twice. Muscles have defined shapes, and give shape to the body as a whole. Adipose (fatty) tissue just hangs there in a blob, creating a softening or blurring effect. While you need some of that, your female hormones will attend to that quite nicely, and stopping them would require conscious effort on your part. The same is true of getting big and bulky. Not going to happen without a lot of hard and conscious effort.

If you are afraid of looking like a female Olympic lifter, then you haven't been looking at them too carefully.

Wanna look like that?

Thought so.

Lift heavy.

High school nerd, please help

9 upvotes · 6 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Hey, guise, I'm a special unique snowflake! No one like me has ever read TRP before, practiced the standard shit, and transformed themselves.

Mommy always said I was special, so I need special advice and special attention.

We're not here to fondle your balls, kid.

Read the fucking sidebar.

Read every article every Vanguard ever wrote.

Lift fucking barbells.

Practice talking to girls.

The Institutional Deafness Of The Baying Mob.

9 upvotes · 3 October 2018 · /r/MensRights

No, it doesn't.

Charges can be dismissed with prosecutorial discretion alone.

What the hell version of the constitution are you reading?

what's the advice when the man doesn't want to have sex (ever)

9 upvotes · 29 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Porn is the symptom, not the disease.

There are several reasons why a man will turn to porn/masturbation when sex is available.

- He is busy, or sleepy, or tired, and basically doesn't want to have sex because he has other shit to do. He just needs to be relieved of some nagging urges ASAP.

Not relevant here.

- His partner has become unattractive to him, either through health problems, physical self-neglect, or because tension and resentment have built up.

Possible. More likely to be resentment than your looks. Have you fought more recently?

- He is experiencing regular problems with erectile function or sensitivity, and is concerned about being able to perform or get off with a partner.

This may be the case even if he denies it. Men often feel ashamed of things which are not under their conscious control at all.

- Males have an inherent attraction to variety in female partners, which our culture's monogynous customs demand they suppress. Some men struggle with this.

A key symptom of this is if he likes your looks, but the women in the porn he looks at look very, very different from you.

- His health is messing with his libido.

Sounds like the most probable cause. Go to an "anti-aging clinic" type medical practice and get full bloodwork done. Yes, they appear slightly shady. Yes, they push TRT. But they are the only docs who will work with you diagnostically on this.

Tinder girls pleading for me not to murder them when we meet up? Wtf, possible shit test?

9 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

It's a shit test.

"I'm harmless, I promise." is a fail.

"I've already done one this week, so you should be safe enough." is a pass.

Swallowed the Red Pill, dumped my LTR, Moving to Salt Lake City, I need advice.

9 upvotes · 3 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

First piece of advice: I don't want your fucking biography. Do you have a question?

Am I an "alpha-widow"? What can I do?

9 upvotes · 1 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Its worse because she admits she REJECTED his initial offer of commitment.

Entitled women think that dating is like ordering a sandwich.

I'd like that with extra lettuce, but no pickle. Oh, they gave me the wrong kind of cheese, I'm sending it back. Get it right this time, you minimum wage flunky.

What she doesn't realize is that the precise qualities that made him able to be a "player" are what made him desirable as a mate. The male population doesn't consist of Prince Charming The Commitment Guy and Snidely Whiplash The Evil Womanizer. It consists of men who haven't met any women who can hold their attention, and those who have.

Men are people. They have their own goals, their own dreams, and their own likes and dislikes. If you treat them like a custom build-your-perfect-sandwich, then any one of them that has a spine will laugh in your face.

Without some sort of redpill guidance, some women seem to have no more introspection than cats. Open a can of tuna, they come running... dat smell good. I wantz dat. Gib me dat naooow. Naaaaooww. Naaaow.

What is it about me that repels men so much?

9 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I get complements from women constantly. About my weight loss, my skin, how pretty my face is, how sweet I am.

Well, if you wanted to date women, this would be relevant.

I decided to lose weight 6 months ago and I've taken off about 43 lbs, but I feel like there's no change in the way men treat me.

And if you had weighed 100 lbs more, then you would have lost 143 lbs, and look exactly the same as you do.

And if you had weighed 200 lbs more, then you would have lost 243 lbs, and look exactly the same as you do.

And if you had weighed 300 lbs more, then you would have lost 343 lbs, and look exactly the same as you do.

It doesn't matter how much you have lost so far. It matters what you look like.

They're still rude and vile toward me even though that's not what I am projecting at them.

Spare me the sob story, and instead tell me what you consider "vile and rude".

How do I differentiate between my hypergamous tendencies and justified lack of interest in a mate?

9 upvotes · 18 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In that situation (the party), I'd usually find myself zeroing in on one guy and indeed my attraction fades away for anyone else

This is the hypergamous instinct.

It's very possible that I meet someone who could out-alpha the potential boyfriend and that I have a chance for a committed relationship from him.

This is called "branch-swinging".

But still, it isn't preferable to destroy the relationship I've built for the new one, and the literal definition of hypergamy (exclusive attraction to the top choice) would spell death

This is where becoming self-aware and knowing about hypergamy comes in.

RPW is a sexual strategy forum, not a moral judgement zone, so bitter incel-like rattling on about how branch-swinging is "wrong" is off-topic and stupid.

Instead, we focus on risks vs. rewards: a successful branch swing gets you a better mate, and an unsuccessful one typically loses what you already had. A self-aware woman who knows about hypergamy can calculate risks, and estimate rewards, and make an informed decision about whether to gamble.

She also knows that having a lot of contact, or thinking a lot about, the "greater alpha" will diminish her satisfaction with the "lesser alpha", so she is aware that how much time and attention she spends pre-calculating is part of a strategic decision. Hypergamy, like male urges such as competitiveness or sex drive, cannot be suppressed but it can be steered.

In your case, I would actually recommend you break things off instead of branch swinging. Your lack of attraction for your current mate is going to doom the relationship, and as long as he is around, the desire to get rid of him would influence your choice of men to approach, and how you approach them.

You need a clear head.

How to get into an LTR and not be emotional and beta?

9 upvotes · 17 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

By spinning plates for long enough first that self-centered DGAF behaviour is a habit for you, not a series of deliberate chess moves.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

9 upvotes · 30 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Hehehehheheh. Look at you. You're so cute and earnest. I just wanna pinch your little cheeks.

Here's a hint: let other men know what bothers you, and you'll be swimming in it.

The Red Pill Has Too Much Respect For Women

9 upvotes · 28 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Solution?

Heh.

You're still thinking of this in terms of "solving a problem" rather than "understanding the terrain".

Son, I meet a lot of people who have a solution. They have a plan. And they're super eager to explain it to me. So if I have the time, I listen, because I might learn something, if not necessarily what they had in mind to teach.

So I listen, and they tell me about how everybody should do this, and everybody should do that, and this is how it all will "fix" everything that they happen to think is wrong with the world. And after a while, I ask them... "How do you plan to get people to do all this stuff?"

And they pause. And their eyes shift up and to the right. And we all know what that means.

They don't have a plan. They have half a plan. The easy half. Anybody can tell people what to do. Anybody can come up with a story where they imagine how this will change the world the way they want it to.

What then?

Girlfriend wants strapon. Thoughts?

9 upvotes · 27 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

What the fuck is wrong with you?

Plucked from AskTRP

9 upvotes · 8 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't sweat over it.

The anger phase isn't just a thing that happens. It's something we do to these guys on purpose, something we stoke and build up to put a spine in them.

One of the major goals is make these stop doing things that girls want just because girls want them, but instead leave to the girls the responsibility to create positive incentives (not negative incentives, like "do this, or I won't have sex with you") to give them what they want.

The male protective instinct runs so deep, and these men have been conditioned so hard to think so little of themselves, that you pretty much have to light a fire like this to get them to look after their own interests, and not actively sacrifice them to those of women.

But the reason you know you're doing what's best for you, is that you didn't do it to make her happy. Hell, she didn't even ask. You just lost interest in the old deal because the new one was better.

Plucked from AskTRP

9 upvotes · 8 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This has to do with the "terrain".

At certain times in Western civilization, while sex before marriage or outside of marriage was always a lot more frequently than people let on, it was certainly socially taboo enough so that "holding out" was seen as a reasonable position by most men.

However, circumstances have changed in ways that were both inevitable and irreversible, and this created a new world where commitment was no longer an enforceable legal condition, but a psychological state.

This means that sex is a "bargaining chip" isn't really relevant anymore. Because you can bargain for a legal contract, but you can't bargain for a psychological state.

You can no more "bargain" me into feeling a desire to stay with you, than I can "bargain" you into feeling sexually attracted to me.

Theory on Threesomes ?

9 upvotes · 6 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes.

Another way of putting what I said is that there is no such thing as a side dude.

If you're in a relationship, and you sex up another dude, he's not a side dude. He's the new main dude. The old dude is now just baggage.

When does one become an orbiter?

9 upvotes · 5 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

If we leave sex aside

We don't. That's the difference right there. If you want to have sex with her, and she hasn't given you sex, and you hang around hoping she will, you're an orbiter.

If you find yourself in this position, try to escalate to sex, making it crystal clear what you are doing. If she goes for it, you are not an orbiter. If she rejects you, discontinue social contact with her.

Tears

9 upvotes · 28 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The protector instinct, like any instinct, makes a good servant and a bad master.

A man who doesn't take care of his stuff is a slovenly, undisciplined man. A man who takes care of stuff that isn't his is a tool.

How I Manage My LTR

9 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Think carefully. Are you critical of it as a tactic? Or are you morally outraged?

These are two very different kinds of opposition.

Is it worth me getting braces?

9 upvotes · 4 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

If a man suddenly comes out with something when he's angry, it's been bothering him for a long time, but he wasn't willing to hurt your feelings before.

The Great Trad Con, and How Not to Get Conned.

9 upvotes · 3 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Whenever I post one of these, I always get some men who fuss because I laughed at their dreams. To them I can only say "Don't have such ridiculous dreams".

Men can't just go along with society's plan now. There is no step-by-step path to victory for them, because society's plan is for them to lose.

Some men, when they realize this, start talking about how to fix society's plan.

They don't understand that society's plan for them isn't broken. Marginalizing them and fucking up their lives isn't some accident. It is the plan. It's the whole reason the plan was changed, then changed more, then changed again. This isn't a bug, it's a feature.

Lifting weights or boxing? Both?

9 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Don't listen to stupid advice.

Cutting a lot of weight makes adding muscle harder, while adding muscle makes cutting easier.

Bulk first, then cut.

Dumped boyfriend; feeling like the "snake" men paint women to be. So how bad should I feel?

9 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So you volunteered to get pumped and dumped.

Congratulations, you just played yourself.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

9 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Men who don't want to have kids because they're afraid of marriage and commitment are cowards.

"What's a matter, you skeeered?" stopped working on me when I hit middle school. Perhaps someday it will stop working on you.

Women Marching Against Themselves

9 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Millenials.

"I just showed up here five minutes ago, but let me give you my earnest opinion on the thing you spent years building. After all, mommy told me I was smart, and I did really well on all the aptitude tests in school, so clearly no one has ever before thought about the first thing that popped into my head!"

I don't give a crap what you think makes subs die, because you have no experience building subs from tiny to huge. I do.

I have little patience with this conversation, because I've had it before. Many many times before. You all trot in here with your earnest little faces and pipe up with this idea, and you all think you're the first one who had it.

It's like being attacked by a clone army.

Made of gerbils.

Clutching freshman philosophy textbooks.

And trying to lecture me about pedagogy.

Advice please, boyfriend cleaning too much?

9 upvotes · 28 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Let me guess... he always lived with male roommates before?

The way men share labour is that tasks are done by those who are most invested in their outcome. The man with the most exacting cleaning standards will do most of the cleaning.

He may have been the most picky about cleanliness in the household, and doing it himself gives him control over how it's done.

Men who aren't totally emasculated hate being told what to do. This may lead to him not understanding that, as a woman, you probably don't mind being told exactly how he wants things done.

Try a "tell me how you want it done, and I'll do it that way" approach.

Will I even find one?

9 upvotes · 24 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

TRP and RPW are both about sexual strategy. But the members of each group are not necessarily each other's dating pool.

In general, only the most senior and knowledgeable people from either side of the line are capable of meaningful participation on the other.

The game isn't precisely symmetric. Women have only one "win" condition (stable, high-quality LTR), and men have two (stable, high-quality LTR or bang lots of sluts).

TRP is focused on men's second win condition precisely because circumstances favor it, and because it more rapidly teaches male attractiveness skills. But TRP does teach both.

It's an open secret that most of the Vanguard members and Senior ECs are in relationships, having mostly tired of the plate-spinning thing, or simply not having time for it.

Don't go to TRP.

While the sort of men who are there might include your future husband, and indeed he might learn there how to be that man, what you see of him there would not look to you anything like the man of your dreams.

Give the whiskey time to age in the cask.

Healing from past relationships and sexual behavior, any advice?

9 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

we shouldn't judge women for how they choose to conduct their lives

Wrong.

Everyone gets judged. Men get judged. Women get judged. Small furry creatures from Alpha Centauri get judged.

Everyone has a right to form their own opinions, and speak their own minds. And that means you, yes, you, will be judged. And if you have a problem with that, then the problem you have is called entitlement.

You need to take responsibility for your past choices, and recognize the absolute right of others to use them to predict your future behaviour. And if you don't, then not only will you not inspire any trust, you won't deserve any, because those who won't take responsibility for their choices are untrustworthy.

That is the first step towards making yourself acceptable to a man.

Q4Men: would you marry/ LTR a woman who doesn't do her hair, wear makeup, or dress stylishly?

9 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I see a lot of men complaining about how women wear makeup to look good for them, but then how many men truly want a woman who is makeup free, hair styling free, etc.?

Men who complain about makeup are stupid. Women who complain about TRP are stupid.

Lying to someone's conscious mind in order to be more attractive is obnoxious. Lying to the lizard brain to be more pleasing to others is just attractive.

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

9 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Shouldn't other mods and endorsed contributors submit new content too?

We write new material when inspiration strikes.

RPS is recycling old classics so the Pacifier Brigade can learn what quality looks like.

The 237 Commandments of the Alpha Sperg

9 upvotes · 7 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"I got killer lotion and a dyson but the ladies that I completely avoid socializing with are still treating me like I'm invisible. I followed the checklist of alpha guidelines. What gives?"

You're tantalizingly close to the point.

If I throw the ball, and my dog can't find it, then pointing to it is useless... because the dog is a dog, doesn't understand the concept of "pointing", and will just sniff my finger.

Alpha spergs can't find the ball, because they are sniffing the finger. Vacuuming is sniffing the finger. Lotion is sniffing the finger. Even lifting can be sniffing the finger.

In order to find the ball, stop sniffing the finger, and follow where it is pointing. In order to move from sperg to alpha male, first stop being a sperg, and throw away the list.

Every "alpha" male is different, because he is his own man. He can learn by watching others, but never by imitating them.

Eminem?

9 upvotes · 11 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Is asking this question an alpha or a beta tell?

A woman at work starts making kissing noises when she wants you to help her... how do you tell her to shut the fuck up?

9 upvotes · 8 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

She's making dog-calling noises to summon you because you are her dog, and she wants to tell you that she knows it.

If you come wherever she calls, no matter how she calls, you are her dog.

She's a coworker, and she's under me, I have to help

And this stupid idea is your leash.

Needy Texting Instantly Destroys Attraction (Image Example)

9 upvotes · 6 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Fun fact: Seattle is the major beta supplier for the western United States, providing 73% of soyboys, 67% of cucks, and an astonishing 94% of neckbeards to all states west of the Mississippi.

Why getting a girlfriend could be the right thing to do if you never had one

9 upvotes · 18 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Normally, I would dismiss this thesis as being typical incel/mgtow bullshit. However, this time it's accompanied by a reasoned argument, instead of a self-pitying rant.

So:

However, don't you think it costs too much time and energy (our most valuable recourses) to generate and maintain pussy in order to satisfy the temporary biological need, i.e. the individual sex-drive?

"Too" much time and energy as compared to what?

In most cases, the Return of Investment (RoI) in women is fine for the majority of men. I think you are talking about this. But there are also not a few individuals which takes women as a RoI in minus.

There is a problem with applying economic concepts to pussy.

Economics is the study of allocating scarce resources which have alternative uses (you can use steel for a variety of things). Or (an equivalent definition), it is the study of how to fill demands which can be filled by variety of alternative scarce resources (you can make furniture out of a variety of materials).

But pussy has no alternative uses. Its only use, for men, is to satiate the sex drive.

And the male sex drive has no alternative fulfillments. It's chicks or nothing.

So the rules of economics don't apply.

The only question that remains is how much effort to channel into satiating the need. And the only relevant consideration for this a comparison of the pain of learning game vs the pain of involuntary celibacy.

And have you noticed that people who have experienced both always seem to choose the former?

Should we always be slightly insecure?

9 upvotes · 16 November 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

No one likes to be told they should be less secure.

However, it is important to realize that confidence can be both too low or too high, and either one is bad.

- Unconfident men are just gross.
- Men with an appropriate level of confidence are better off.
- Men who are somewhat overconfident and just a bit cocky are most attractive.
- Men who are grossly overconfident are frightening and socially retarded.
- Overconfident women are repugnant.
- Women with an appropriate level of confidence are better off.

- Women who are slightly shy or nervous are more endearing still.
- Women who have no positive self-image are infuriatingly needy.

Don't be so secure you can't look up to him. Don't be so insecure he needs to keep you from falling apart all the time.

What's your RPW opinion on casual relationship

9 upvotes · 31 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

The word "casual" is going to make most everyone here see red.

And indeed it is detrimental to your long-term happiness to have no-string-attached sex with many different men.

But what is important to realize is that, unlike sex, relationships are not a concrete "goal" that you "achieve" and then have. They are a state of mind, an emotional condition that exists in two people. They are grown by bits, and maintained over time, and outward markers are just milestones, not the journey.

Which means that the are-we-serious talk, or public acknowledgement, or any concrete representation, even marriage, is only the outward symptom of the real goal... a strong, sustainable, attachment that promotes happiness for both of you and continues to work.

So, if you are feeling serious about someone who started out as a fuckbuddy, your goal isn't to demand promises or commitment, nor to tell him you are feeling serious, nor to "find out" if he is feeling serious.

The goal is to make him feel serious. Make him want it.

So when you say...

Should I try to talk to him and see we can be more than casual partner?

... that's a bad idea. Don't have "The Talk". The talk is a demand. It's unsexy, and it's stressful, and it's wooden, and it's unnatural. It won't make him want to be with you unless he already does. And if he already does, then you already have what you want.

Instead, work on making him want it, too.

The question of "How?" is the question of how to be a "keeper", which is pretty much what this whole group is about.

Start here: https://www.forums.red/p/RedPillWomen/1033/rpw_101_cultivating_a_feminine_frame_of_mind

I hate myself because of my high n-count..advice?

9 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Might be tmi

We have to be able to talk frankly about sex to give good advice.

Sex is super important to men. Men use sex as a barometer of love. For example, if you did X with your last boyfriend, but not with him, then you loved the last one more. If you had sex with your first man three days after you met him (and then never saw him again), and made your current husband of ten years wait for three weeks... then guess who men will think you loved more? (That's right, and you will never change their minds.)

The fact that you hooked up with current boyfriend for casual sex at first wasn't a mistake... in fact, it was probably what saved your butt when he found out what your count was.

I have enough weight to lose to be extremely more attractive in a few months.

Does this mean you have, or you will?

Thanks so much for not just giving it to me straight, but also giving me a glimmer of hope.

Here's a rubric to use: if you with current boyfriend, and former fling, run into each other at a party, which man feels like a loser?

Also, some warnings:

- Just because he is okay with this now, doesn't mean it won't eat at him. Be psychologically prepared for this issue to erupt like a dormant volcano in the future.
- He might be willing to forgive, but he won't forget.
- He might start feeling like he deserves a "hall pass" to bring his count up to yours. He may especially start feeling this if he becomes unsatisfied or angry in the future.

(In the last case, both "yes" and "no" carry huge risks. Big-time danger zone here. If you can't handle "yes", make sure thing never get bad enough to give him the idea. If things are so bad that "yes" is your bid to save the relationship, make sure he thinks it's your idea, not his.)

Kayfabe

9 upvotes · 22 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

It is not clear you linked 2 pictures of Clarke.

Exactly.

I find the second picture of "Danerys Targaryen" to be one of the most visually attractive women I have ever seen, and I don't even like blondes. But that woman is just as much a fictional creation as the character in the book. Or a picture drawn by an artist. Clarke is just a slightly-attractive scaffold which that piece of art was built on.

Hollywood wants you and I to think Clarke is that creature, so that we will obsess over her, often while masturbating furiously, and buy more stuff.

Western civilization is on the decline precisely because there are too many portions of our society like that... no real talent, skill, or competence, because everyone is too busy getting ahead by fooling people and sucking each other's dicks. For a society to be truly great, or prosperous, or even stable, somewhere, somehow, someone has to actually make something which actually works.

Ltr gets kissed

9 upvotes · 17 July 2017 · /r/askTRP

1. Why are you allowing her to travel with just her girlfriends and not you? That is prime situational cheating territory right there.
2. Is she in the habit of apologizing for random shit that's not her fault? If not, why is she starting now? Is there something she hasn't told you?

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CASSIE JAYE!!!

9 upvotes · 2 May 2017 · /r/MensRights

Today I learned that, to feminists, wishing someone a happy birthday = rape.

Y'all are hilarious... please never change.

Here is the main thing about your ethnicity, if you're high SMV it works for you and if you're not, it works against you.

9 upvotes · 17 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You want beta white dudes to lose their shit seeing you steal their women. You want minority girls who often reject you to feel resentment and jealousy. That's your primary motivation for dating white girls. You even said this yourself.

Summoning /u/CrazyHorseInvincible to point this.

Beta white dudes (almost all real racists are betas) losing their shit is a powerful balm for ethnic guys who have nagging insecurities they never talk about. If they can make white dudes jealous, then they have "beaten" some white dudes, and prove to themselves that whatever race they are isn't really inferior after all.

But almost all hatred is based on fear.

TRP readers hate feminists because they're afraid they'll fuck society up for everyone.

Feminists hate us because they are afraid we will expose them as fat fugs who are trying to break the game because they suck at playing it.

Brown racists hate white people because they are afraid that they really are inferior and can't compete without a special headstart.

White racists hate brown people because they are afraid that their culture and ethnicity will be swept away by a tide of them.

/u/ShallITinder is afraid of white men. So he wants to make white men afraid of him, in order to calm that fear. To feel like he's beaten white men. Like he's won.

He needs to stop separating the world into brown and white. Brown and white doesn't matter. The world is separated into winners and losers. Losers get jealous when a white woman fucks a brown man, or vice versa.

Winners don't give a shit, because they have what they want. If I've just finished dessert, and I'm stuffed, I couldn't care less who takes the last sandwich from the buffet. That only matters to the hungry dudes.

Can we have a moratorium on "more alpha than TRP" posts too?

9 upvotes · 19 October 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Except there's no such thing as a "natural". It's just a lazy term for people who got RP information from their childhood environment, rather than explicitly from packaged information.

Worried girlfriend is cheating

9 upvotes · 13 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

Anyone who has ever cheated in a relationship, even if it was you she cheated with, shouldn't make it past FWB.

Do you even lift? Oh, you do? I couldn't tell. Tips for actually looking like you lift.

9 upvotes · 6 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Women don't care how much you can deadlift, squat, or bench.

They do care if you can pick them up and effortlessly sling them over your shoulder.

CMV: TRP is primarily designed to avoid narcissistic injury, to narcissists.

9 upvotes · 3 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your genetic lineage ends, if you only follow TRP lore.

So?

You are not a player of the game of Evolution. Genes are the players. You are a chess piece.

Guys 40 and over, how much harder is it now to get the 18-23 college aged girls compared to your 20's and 30's?

9 upvotes · 27 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

Easier.

Gentlemen...I think I found a unicorn, how is it possible? 45/M/CA I might be getting married..

9 upvotes · 6 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

I guess you just can't fix stupid.

Gaming shy/introverted women

9 upvotes · 21 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

Finding introverts in the wild can be tough, as their preferred environment is an ecosystem called "Home" where they curl up with a book, play with their cat, etc. That nerd girl over there? Underneath those glasses and frumpy clothes lurks a Sex Goddess.

Absolutely true.

Introverts are more guarded, but kinkier once you're in. They're also lower-maintenance and more affectionate and obedient.

I won't even consider extrovert girls anymore, and don't recommend them unless you are so extroverted yourself that you can't stand introverts.

15yo boy forced to pay child support after being raped by 34yo teacher [x-post /r/wtf]

9 upvotes · 19 June 2016 · /r/MensRights

But the compensation is for the child?

Who will it be paid to?

The naked truth about marriage and divorce in the 21st century [comics]

9 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

All divorced men have one thing in common.

They got married. They signed those papers of their own free will.

Don't do that.

How common are incels?

9 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's true, I just don't think "how to be more successful with women" is knowledge that's too far off the beaten path.

It is because there is so much misinformation.

The red pill wouldn't have to be a big deal if it wasn't having to paddle upstream in a river of bullshit.

How common are incels?

9 upvotes · 26 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ignorance is a choice when it is noticeable. You cannot look for something until you know it exists.

Just curious why society thinks it is OK to shame older men who have relationships with younger women?

9 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Therefore, when the average adult imagines you, a 42 year old man, with a 22 year old woman, they are thinking she's really, really, really, really stupid compared to you. Practically retarded. And hence, it's an unfair advantage.

If you look carefully at this attitude, you can see the underlying assumption that relationships are adversarial.

What the Fuck Am I Doing Wrong?

9 upvotes · 20 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Is this not a pressure flip?

It is not.

If not, what would a pressure flip have been in this case?

Her: That was so fucking gay.

You: You bring out the homosexual in me.

"I'm worried we won't have the type of sex that I deserve when I'm young." How should an older guy respond to this?

9 upvotes · 18 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

You are not ready to do that if you have to ask questions like this.

Thoughts: What is a red pill woman for you?

9 upvotes · 28 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

To me, it means a woman who gets what she wants, not by contending with a man, but by being appealing to his protective instincts.

The Final Exam

9 upvotes · 27 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the motivating factors behind this is that I've been watch for some time this emphasis on the explicit statement of relationship status, and the focus on that, rather than bonding.

I think, that, despite the spread of PUA skills stuff, the majority of sex in our society occurs in "relationships". And I use the quotes deliberately, because these "relationships" are explicitly announced, but they're not very passionate, or committed, or stable.

So what happens is that women (the ones who aren't slutty party girls) spend their twenties in a series of sort of pseudo-LTRs that last six months or a year, and then someone's unhappiness exceeds the convenience of the relationship, and it dies, not with a bang, but with a whimper. So women wash up on the windy side of thirty having never had sex outside a relationship, but still they aren't in, and have never been in, a passion, joyful, intense, loving, relationship.

When I talk to young women who feel they've screwed up their n-count, whether they are of the variety "Oh, no, it's 2, and I'm not married! My life is over!", or of the type "It's not fair! Real men shouldn't feel threatened by all those dicks I sucked in college!"... the one thing they all have in common is they had sex with men they didn't really feel that strongly about.

A woman with an N-count of 15 isn't a woman who fell madly in love 15 times with men who didn't stay because she didn't get him to change his facebook status. She's a woman who slept with Mr. Right Now, hoping that it might work out. She's had the right-now relationship sex, and the rebound sex, and the makeup sex, and the depressed-because-she's-single sex, and the I-want-attention sex.

The theory I've working with for years (seriously, I have an article from years ago defining "slut" that lays it all out) is that the big problem isn't lack of sexual boundaries, it's lack of relationship stability.

In other words, we are focusing on the "pump" part of the "pump and dump" threat, when the real damage is the "dump" part.

We know that there is something wrong with the way we deal with commitment in our society. We know this because marriages are failing left and right.

So a strategy that has "secure acknowledged commitment" as its main goal isn't good enough. Because Marriage 2.0 is the ultimate in acknowledged commitment, but still half of them fail.

So women need to explore relationship-finding strategies that don't set the ensuing relationship up to fail.

Am I interpreting Laura Doyle wrong? (Surrendered Wife; First, Kill all the Marriage Counsellors)

9 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

After reading that, I recommend reading this:

<http://www.avoiceformen.com/men/mens-issues/feminine-surrender-as-emotional-dominance/>

It's written from an MRA point of view, so some of it may be a little off the usual red pill ideas, but it talks about how submission in the absence of feedback can be a horrific form of emotional terrorism.

In any relationship I have with a woman, I am the boss. I expect obedience. But that means I have to make decisions for the whole team, which means I must make those decisions with everyone's welfare in mind.

This means she not only can communicate her thoughts, feelings, and needs, she must communicate her thoughts feelings, and needs.

Part of "Bring Your Captain Your Problem, Not Your Solution" is the idea that you must bring your man your problems, instead of holding them back.

What a good wife or girlfriend brings to her man is not silent, passive, unquestioning obedience coupled with private anxiety and suffering (for both of you), but loyalty and trust coupled with openness about your fears, needs, and desires.

"Token Resistance is Common"

9 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, has sex suddenly stopped happening?

Passion

9 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

It drives men away like nothing else.

I disagree. In fact, the reason beta male orbiters behave like beta male orbiters is because they are doing for her what is attractive to them... because they are unaware of the highly different psychology of the sexes.

Avoiding the Tradcon Trap

9 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You need a woman who challenges you, in such a way that develops you into a better person.

I'll fille that under "shit random strangers think I'm supposed to want".

Why would I need that in a woman? I like women who supply qualities I don't already have.

NEW Dark Triad Article: Understanding Narcissism - learn about abusive personalities - also discusses sadism and psychopathy.

9 upvotes · 26 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is very clear and well-written.

Unfortunately, the conventional wisdom is it's based on is wrong. In fact, it's not even wrong, it's worse.

It's untestable.

If we propose that certain people are incapable of feeling love or empathy, we have to confront the question "How do we know?".

How do we know that this person feels "empathy", which we assume is a thing, because we think we feel it? How do we know that this other person is simply faking it to get along, doing what others do in order to fit in?

I am reminded of people who once thought animals couldn't feel pain... "See how it writhes and howls as we vivisect it, these are reflex responses which imitate human expression of pain. But it can't actually feel pain because it's not sentient."

People often make rationalizations like this to escape an intolerable conclusion.

Do you really believe being called "creepy" or "rapey" has everything do to with behavior and nothing to do with appearance/voice/charisma/etc.?

9 upvotes · 22 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I disagree.

People are inauthentic all the time. Everyone lies, and there are many, many social conventions where people tell lies that everyone knows are lies, but it's perfectly okay to tell them because social convention not only accepts them, it demands them.

Inauthenticity is not something women, or men, have an inherent alarm for. In fact, people who always tell the truth quickly become social outcasts.

Disconnects between actual and stated motives are, in fact, one of the most socially acceptable lies in our society.

"What I've Learned About Dating In Silicon Valley" - female columnist has a meltdown after realizing she's surrounded by betas.

9 upvotes · 2 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So does he make a better husband? He brings something else, that's all. The stability. Yawn. The dedication. Yawn. The safe Toyota with the the synthetic oil he shopped for 4 hours last Saturday. Yawn.

You managed to think evolutionarily... for a little bit. But not all the way.

Let me help you get out of the bigger box.

Why the fuck do you think excitement is attractive? Riddle me that. In the Paleolithic era, excitement usually involves being eaten, or dying of disease. Excitement is not a survival quality.

So why does Cindy Lou Who, when she's all growed up, crave exciting garage-band Chad over boring iphone Bill?

What you have failed to realize is that Chad isn't exciting. Chad is boring as toast. What the fuck would Socrates, Alexander the Great, Ghengis Khan, Siddhārtha Gautama, Leonardo da Vinci, Joseph Stalin, or Mohandas Gandhi have to talk about with garage-band Chad?

So why do women find Chad exciting? Because he is attractive. They are genetically programmed to be excited by a man who acts confident and indifferent, even when that man is boring as wet cardboard.

You think that Chad is attractive because he is exciting? No, Chad is exciting because he is attractive.

Garage-band Chad is a loser. He fools the female mating instincts by superficially mimicking the attitude and bearing of a successful paleolithic hunter, but he is all hat and no trousers. Your typical garage-band variety Chad is struggling with the rent if he's not sleeping on some friends' couch. The point is, he gets laid anyway. It's the one thing he's good at.

Because, like the harmless mimic species that adapt the warning coloration of something that's actually venomous, he apes the body language and poise of someone who actually was a good bet back when we were chasing down antelope with sharp sticks.

Exciting is not a benefit genes select for. It's a feeling used by genes to get women to select for something else.

TBP: If TRP is manipulative, then isn't /r/Seduction more manipulative?

9 upvotes · 24 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

History lesson:

"Leave her better than you found her" was introduced when leftoids noticed /r/seduction and started calling it "manipulative".

TRP is only "much more threatening", because seddit has been successfully neutered. All the things they say about TRP now, they said about seddit then. And they would still be saying them if they weren't busy talking about TRP.

You can never be "moderate" enough to appease a feminist, because feminism is a power grab, and making you try to appease them is the weapon of choice. The only thing appeasing a feminist accomplishes is to paint yourself as an easy mark. The demands will only intensify.

I think Red Pill oversimplifies cheating. CMV

9 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Who cares why women cheat?

Men only need to know how to prevent it (maintain high attraction and excitement), and what to do if it happens (dump her immediately).

If Feminists/Blue Pillers STOPPED claiming Nice guys are actually manipulative assholes entitled to sex, maybe less people would turn to The Red Pill

9 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Feminists operate like American foreign policy.

Declare everyone evil, carpet bomb everything, but instead of finishing the job, break down halfway through, sobbing "why don't you love me?" at the people whose homes you just destroyed.

Why do people find Red Pill women to be bad?

9 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Traditional gender roles exist because they are BASED ON BIOLOGY.

Arguably so does kink.

However, I don't see the femsub variety of BDSM as kink. Because it is the mainstream. My own experience with many perfectly ordinary heterosexual women told me in advance what most people had to find out by watching Fifty Shades of Estrogen become a cultural phenomenon:

The majority of normal, psychologically healthy heterosexual women fantasize about, and get sexual excitement and pleasure from, being dominated by a powerful male.

Even the ones who aren't so psychologically healthy aren't immune.

A woman who isn't a little turned on by femsub BDSM has something wrong with her. She either:

- Hates men.
- Fears men.
- Has been trained to excessive prudishness, and thus is repelled by the idea of it being "kink".

Now, RPW subscribers are right to react with contempt to the idea that RPW is BDSM. They don't wish to be dismissed and a fetish phenomenon, and they should not be.

Because RPW isn't a variety of BDSM. BDSM is a variety of RPW.

I have the opportunity to buy a convertible Mercedes- but I have feeling that it will only attract gold diggers and make my life generally harder.

9 upvotes · 1 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

I drive a midengine Porsche. Haters gonna hate, diggers gonna dig. But so what?

You can avoid being hurt by the haters by DGAF, and avoid being hurt by the diggers by never giving money to women.

I'm not going to let someone else's pettiness prevent me from enjoying something I love. Don't you let them stop you, either.

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

9 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly.

So long as MRAs fear the "misogynist" label, they will always be led by the female voices, because only female MRAs can talk about the issues without immediately and automatically being on the defensive.

The only way to say the things that need saying is either to be a woman, or to treat the charge of "misogyny" like a shit test, and agree and amplify.

"Toxic Masculinity" is hate speech. Full stop. It pathologies maleness and attempts to link violence to men's culture. Feminists discussing "toxic masculinity" is little different than white supremacists attacking "ni* culture" and "black violence."

9 upvotes · 15 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

The examples you have chosen to critique tells me that you are precisely the sort of person who comes up with terms like "toxic masculinity".

The problem with "toxic masculinity" as a concept is neither its misuse nor the hateful motives of those who use it. The problem is that it is a judgement, by those who do not understand masculine values or the purposes behind them, of which masculine values are healthy and which are not.

Having neither an understanding of tribal masculine culture, nor an understanding of gym culture, you have chosen to create straw dummies of both which you may assail with impunity, without any real understanding, or even desire to understand, what purposes might lie behind male initiation rituals, or the act of shaming men for failing to cultivate their physical selves.

Like feminists who try to define "healthy masculinity" as opposed to "toxic masculinity", despite possessing neither an understand of male culture nor even a penis, you are positioning yourself as a judge of things you do not participate in and have not studied.

This implies a belief in your own inherent moral superiority to certain types of men, which in this case is not far removed from feminists' belief in their moral superiority to all men.

If a "Forever Alone"/"Incel" type man is unable to attract women, and TRP/PUA is manipulative garbage. How is this man supposed to get laid?

9 upvotes · 25 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Of course you can criticize specific women for specific things. I have some slight anger issues due to impatience. My boyfriend can say "you need to be more patient." That's criticism, but not misogyny. If someone says, "all women are impatient and angry."

So a negative generalization about a group is axiomatically bigotry?

Okay, if we reason from that premise, feminism is axiomatically bigotry. Because patriarchy theory is a negative generalization about a group.

Are you okay with that? Or is there to be a special exception for feminism?

Regardless of your answer, here's a further question to consider: Are all groups to be immune to all criticism? Can we not criticize Catholicism, only individual Catholics? Is it evil to say that tigers are dangerous, because it disregards the individuality of tigers? Are all nations, societies, and civilizations to be immune to criticism, because they are groups and not individuals?

A Neckbeard Manifesto - my thoughts as a neckbeard as a response to that one incel thread.

9 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And according to my ethical model, no one is under any obligation to provide such a thing.

The principle I am operating on, is that a need in X does not create an obligation in Y.

Why not?

Because needs are infinite. If I must satisfy all needs, then I have infinite obligations. I am not god. I do not have the power to give all people everything they need. Therefore I must restrict what I give.

How do I restrict what I give? Economics teaches us that we restrict demand on something by raising the price until the demand does not exceed the supply.

I raise the price on my help with (whatever) until no more people are willing to pay the price than I have hours in my day.

Why we shouldn't be encouraging teenage boys to go to the gym

9 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I understand that you say that. You might even believe it.

But it is actions, not words, that reveal our principles.

First Date W/ Tinder Girl, Called Me Out For Having Girl Stuff In Bathroom

9 upvotes · 14 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

I think my replies showed indifference

Are you high? You haven't even read the TRP sidebar, you lazy fuck. Learn shit test basics before you waste my fucking time.

Redpillers: how would you react to an ugly woman "gaming you"?

9 upvotes · 7 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I find that when discussing RP principles, one must often slowly and painfully point out the surprisingly obvious. People are either into it, or astonishingly reluctant to concede even the most obvious premise. It therefore becomes necessary to establish a baseline.

If you find pointing out that men and women are different to be patronizingly obvious (as opposed to "oh, noes, a bio-troof!" or "aha! gender essentialism!"), then we are most of the way there already.

One need simply point out that very different behaviour is attractive to men and women, on account of their very different psychology, and one is done.

Aloofness, negs, kino, dread game, and so on are all new terms. They were coined by men who were experimenting to find out what is attractive to women. These were the things that turned out to work. Now, when you ask why, what we have are some hypotheses, some explanations that seem to hold water. But we cannot prove our explanations. We can only prove our results.

But the important fact is that all of these things become things with names because they were the things that worked in seducing women. Otherwise, we would have a different set of things, with a different set of names.

When women try them on men, they are merely annoying.

There is a different set of things that women can do to attract men. These are not as well known or understood. Why? Because there isn't a large group of women actively trying to figure them out. Just as heterosexual women know little to nothing about what attracts heterosexual women, heterosexual men cannot experiment to find out what attracts heterosexual men. We instead must use observation and reasoning, which don't work nearly as well as experimentation.

Girl game isn't being developed or even retained in our culture because women take men for granted. Women are aware that it is dead easy to have sex with a man. A woman is not downright hideous can always find a man to have sex with, a woman who is average can find and have sex with a reasonably attractive man in a single evening's effort, and a woman who is actually attractive can have sex with almost any man she wants, given time.

Women misunderstand this and think it means men are readily available. But a woman who has sex with a man hasn't won anything. It may be pleasant, it may be worth the effort, it may result in a toe-curling orgasm that leaves the throat hoarse from screaming. But the ability to have sex with a man does not imply the ability to have a relationship with him.

"Girl game" is not for getting men into bed, it's for getting men to stay once you have gotten them there. The American substitute for girl game appears to be "more sex", and "an attitude of entitlement".

Thus it's not surprising that some are so clueless and lazy that, rather than do what men did and start their own groups to study what men want, they think they can take what men have developed and just use that, kind of like they did with civilization, technology, birth control pills, etc. But in this case, they need to do the legwork themselves, because what men developed for men will not work for them, and men are unable to definitively answer the question "what makes men want a relationship?" any more than women are able to answer the question "what makes women want sex?".

Redpillers: how would you react to an ugly woman "gaming you"?

9 upvotes · 7 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because, believe it or not, men and women are actually quite different.

You can do an experiment yourself to confirm this.

Get a bunch of people together, and (this is important) don't ask them if they are a man or a woman. Just separate them into two groups based which you think they are. Then ask. The accuracy of your guesses may be surprisingly high.

Next, have a seven year old child repeat your sorting task. The child will probably also perform quite well at this.

Next, perform your sorting task on a group of seven year old children. (Do not perform this step if you are male. You may be accused of being a pedophile. Turns out that police officers can also identify males with a high degree of accuracy.)

Next, have a seven year old child perform the sorting task on a group also composed of seven year old children.

In each case, the accuracy of the sort will be quite high, almost as if we lived in world where the difference between the two sexes was striking and obvious. Scientists theorize that this is due to the action of mysterious substances in the body which they have (somewhat pruriently) decided to call "whore moans". Apparently, these "whore moans" are created within the body, and the amounts of each one are vastly different in men and women.

Some radical scientists have even claimed that these "whore moans" do not confine themselves to radically reshaping the body from the neck down, and in the face, but may actually have some measurable effect on behaviour.

Debate is ongoing over whether they should be sent to reeducation camps.

Being raised by women screwed me up mentally, constantly emasculated all my life, and now extremely depressed. what to do? (Long read, please help brahs)

9 upvotes · 25 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Amputation is better than gangrene.

What exactly does it mean to not take women seriously ?

9 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, that's all.

We treat women like women treat children. Take their emotional states lightly, ignore tantrums, provide stability and leadership instead of engaging with them as peers. Don't mirror the emotional upset, deal with the underlying problem. When it's a silly thing (test), don't take it seriously. When it's a serious thing (cancer), step the fuck up, go into boss mode and deal with it.

You were put on this world to care for children. We were put on this world to care for you.

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillers themselves.

9 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yep.

How do you talk about TRP to your friends?

9 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

I've been swallowing for about 3 years now.

Take off the knee pads, brush your teeth, and take the red pill instead.

Maybe you believe this stuff, but you don't live it. And thinking, talking, and writing don't mean shit unless they lead to doing. You're a pussy, and you will continue to be a pussy until the day you become more ashamed of being one than you are afraid of making a change.

Stop hiding your opinions like a scared little bitch. If your friends' are more loyal to their SJW bullshit than they are to you, you have no friends. If you have to hide what you want to keep your girl, you have no girl.

You are attached to the pittance you have, and refuse to reach for what you want, for fear of dropping it.

Repeat after me:

He who cannot cast away a treasure at need is in chains.

TRP Men/Women what clauses would your prenup have?

9 upvotes · 28 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What the fuck is wrong with you? Are you retarded or something?

How many times do you have to be warned? How many stories do you have to see of dead bedrooms, financial rape, and men deprived of their children?

What. The. Fuck.

Guy won't commit to his plate, she gets upset and accuses him of being a misogynist. Guess who r/relationship sides with.

9 upvotes · 2 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are not vending machines where you insert kindness coins until sex falls out.

Men are not slot machines where you pull the sex lever until you win the commitment jackpot.

Do RPer's really want to see women as human or beneath them?

9 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So what's so special about TRP?

It works, that's what.

If you don't like it, just make it stop working, and it will go away.

The Red Pill is Not PUA

9 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

PUA will pay off faster than TRP.

But TRP will pay off better than PUA.

Will TRP ever grow up?

9 upvotes · 22 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I see.

You posted a moralizing sermon to TRP, which is against the rules, for which CrazyHorseInvincible banned you. You tried to ban-evade by editing your unremoved post to complain about the ban. As a result of which your post was removed.

Now you've gone forum-shopping for someone who will listen to your sermon, and accept you in the role of "elder voice teaching righteousness to angry, violent, dangerous, rapey problematic young men". But like every sermonizer ever, you're not concerned for "society". You just want control over what your audience does. So you disguise "acting how BoomFapXCX wants you to act" as "the right thing to do", with nothing other than your unsupported ipse dixit.

That's not good enough.

Because young men are not stupid, and the many older members of TRP are doubly not stupid. They know morals are a contract. I agree not to rob you IF you agree not to rob me. I agree not to murder you IF you agree not to murder me. Contracts have two or more sides.

And anyone who tries to present morals as an absolute obligation that everyone has (except we're only going to point this out to certain values of "everyone"), is trying to take advantage of others by letting one side violate the contract without losing compliance by the other.

In other words, you want me not to rob you even if you rob me. Your definition of "honour" is nothing but a leash you have fashioned for the necks of other men.

TRP doesn't advocate morality for precisely this reason... to leave men free to treat others as those others treat them, a determination which is theirs and theirs alone to make. To allow shysters like you to peddle your poison in TRP would be to betray the young men who have given us their trust.

My definition of an alpha is someone who wants to become the best version of themselves so that they can best serve the world

Romaniello, whoever the fuck that might be, falls into the typical pattern of not seeing men as people. They are not supposed to act in their own self-interest, because a good to them is not an inherent good, you see. It is only good if it improves them to serve others ("the world").

I have no cargo space for anyone who does not accept men's essential personhood.

Do people disrespect skinny people? Is lifting the only way?

9 upvotes · 22 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

When the heart goes on a recreational drug user, it's usually cocaine. When it goes on a PED user, it's usually HGH.

For Zyzz, it was probably both.

How important is sex/relationships to you?

9 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Thing is I'd rather be alone forever than a RPW.

Okay. No need to hang around here then. Off you go. Bon voyage.

Do you think there is a need to better teach men to stand up for themselves, especially in their romantic interactions with women?

9 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your opinion isn't valuable just because it's your opinion and you're a special unique snowflake.

You have to get results. You have to enlighten people, get them talking, get them thinking, improve their lives.

You haven't built a group of 120K people who have tried your stuff and found it to work. Your opinion is worth nothing because you haven't tested it. If you had, you would have been forced again and again to return to the drawing board and refine your notions of what worked and what didn't, of what was real and what wasn't. In short, you are not qualified to say whether TRP is "the best way" or "a good way" or not, because you lack the experience and practice, not just of navigating the sexual marketplace, but of teaching other men to do so.

You know that kid who's just out of college, and knows how the world should be run, because he is very smart, and he took a lot of interesting classes?

Well, that's how I see you right now. It's fine that you have ideas, but ideas without results weigh about as much as a puff of warm hydrogen.

Is TRP the best of all possible TRPs? I would be very surprised if it was. But we refine it according to results, not comments from the peanut gallery.

Rachel Dolezal

9 upvotes · 15 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What do you mean, "forced"?

They are perfectly content to sit there until the moment the latter group embarrasses the movement.

Women are children, and feminism is an act of childish rebellion. Thus it is without a sense of moderation.

Women say "KillAllMen" for the same reason that children who dislike having to go to school talk about burning it down. They both know they're just woofing.

Because women and children are never in charge, are fundamentally incapable of taking charge. Look how fast women's big power movement turned from "liberate women so they can take on positions of authority" to "petition male authority for more cookies on behalf of women".

Why is the general consensus on reddit that this subreddit is horrible and sexist?

9 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/MensRights

Because you are not dealing with honest, well-intentioned people. They do not care what the reality is. They care about the message they wish to create.

How did low SMV men (and low SMV women too, I suppose) fare during the "Free Love" of the hippie movement?

9 upvotes · 7 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Did low SMV men get any sex during the hippie movement?

Nah.

How free was "Free Love", how was it distributed, and how did it play out?

"Free Love" is "free" like "free speech", not like "free beer".

What "free" meant in this case was removing any constraints on women's ability to ride the penis train. This is good news for four in five women, and one in five men, makes very little difference for the other one woman, and it's very bad news for the other four in five men.

"Free love" is the society-wide equivalent of the "open relationship". Men buy into it because they think it means more for them, but it really means more for women and less for them.

It's eventually bad news for society, too. Why?

Because one in five men is enough to keep your women sexed, but it isn't enough to keep your men and women fed, clothed, and sheltered. Men who can't get laid drop out and stop working as hard.

"Being offended its the new American past time"

9 upvotes · 4 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What's interesting here is that, despite having a scientific background, he addresses the question, textually, like a lawyer... addressing the ethics and legality of preventing people from having children, instead of the advisability of it.

There's no inherent problem with a population taking steps to limit its growth rate if it deems that advisable.

But the specific steps the liberals have taken seem almost purpose-built to destroy First World societies. The impediments imposed to breeding have the most impact on the professional classes, while those on the public dole are being paid to breed.

Truly, these people are so short-sighted that they would set fire to the kingdom if by doing so, they could rule over the ashes that remained.

For the TRPers here, how do asexual people play into your equation?

9 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Exactly.

TRP isn't Unified Field Theory. It's not there to forge a complete and total of understand of all biology and evolution ever.

It's for understanding what generally happens.

[RP Question] How did/do you guys deal with the anger that brews during the first steps down the RP path? (with a bit of a rant)

9 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Anger is the head of steam that evolution uses when we need to charge at a wall and break it down.

It is there to motivate action. Which means that it doesn't go away until it is acted upon.

This is why feminists are perpetually angry about stupid bullshit that never even happened to them. They hear about exaggerated trumped-up "oppressions", they read about it, they go "Yeah!", feel angry, and then don't make any changes in their own lives. They do not act in the individual sense.

Anger like this can build up over time. This also happens to TRP readers who read and don't do. Anger is produced by occurrences which violate our expectations or sense of fairness. It is dissipated not by feeling it, but by feeling it and then doing something with it.

If you are angry, lift. Approach. Write. Work. Study. Practice. Tell off an entitled CC rider. Screw. Talk to other men and compare experiences.

Anger is like fat. You can't just notice it. You have to burn it.

What do you think about Roosh's criticism of TheRedPill ?

9 upvotes · 24 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

we call out the presence of anger-phasers all the time.

No. Not only no, but fuck no.

We don't want to "call out" angry men as if their anger were some sort of mistake. When I coined the phrase, "anger phase", my intent was quite the opposite.

When I see an angry young man, I want to acknowledge his grievances, help him understand his situation, and teach him to use his anger to help himself.

I thought the whole point of RP was to stop worshipping pussy

9 upvotes · 23 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, dear. Did the facts get in the way of your nice neat story?

Nevermind, say "narcissists" a lot! Maybe people won't notice!

Is abortion wrong?

9 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Wrong" is a word people made up. It means whatever we decide it means.

Moral codes are a social agreement we decide upon, not a feature of the universe we discover.

There is absolutely no point in arguing about whether abortion "is" "wrong". What we must discuss is do we wish to forbid it, and why.

Fork Use 102: Building Muscle

9 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Wanna see what steroid users look like? Do an image search for "natural bodybuilder". Wanna see what dairy eaters look like? Do a search for "vegan bodybuilder".

Everyone lies.

No one tolerates TRP because TRP is intolerant to everyone else

9 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I neither need nor desire your approval.

Girl attacks guy, gets a surprise, tries to rationalize why she should get treated differently than anybody else.

9 upvotes · 11 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The second principle of self-defense, after "don't be an idiot" is "don't stand next to someone who's being an idiot".

You don't involve yourself in someone's else's drama, because there is no win condition. The best possible outcome you can get is for nothing bad to happen to you.

Which is exactly what you get if you ignore them and walk on by.

Do you believe women should be lead by men?

9 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nobody should be led by anyone

Hear the words you have spoken. Weigh them consider them.

Do you wish to stand by them?

The Red Pill in Context

9 upvotes · 21 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't quite get it yet.

All the exaggeration and statements that are easily misunderstood and taken out of context aren't a bug... they are a feature.

We're doing this on purpose.

Now, my young apprentice, why do you suppose that might be? What's our motive?

Replacing "Cis/het/white/male" with "Jew" in SJW posts

9 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Your logical fallacy is: Fallacy of Composition.

- No one brought you here.
- The people you are talking about did not bring anyone here.

Questioning the wisdom of remaining red pill

9 upvotes · 20 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Bro, do you even Redpill 101?

Move over Saudi Arabia, apparently Canada is more oppressive than you. From the front page of the most popular newspaper in Vancouver.

9 upvotes · 18 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

I just find it odd that the fewer problems women have, the more benefits they see, the more toxic they become.

Why is that odd?

Women's basic power is social. They get resources by convincing others to give them those resources. The more they can sell the narrative that they are entitled to those resources, that they have been unfairly deprived, that they actually get less, the more resources they will be able to get.

This is all just a resource grab. They want more cookies. They have always wanted more cookies. In the past, men had power, and could say "Okay, you can have this many cookies, but no more." But now men have stopped wielding the power they naturally get from making, running, and maintaining civilization, and have just started giving more and more things to women, in the hopes of avoiding character assassination, receiving affection, or just because the government is taking those things away from them by force to give to women.

It's like there is still some sort of naive hope that they can satiate women's greed. You can't. That greed is infinite. They are not self-limiting. If no one draws a line in the sand for them, they will run amok. You cannot reason with them, and you cannot engage in a PR struggle with them, because men have as little chance against a woman in a public sympathy contest as women have against a man in a fist fight.

It's up to us, to men, to say, "enough". We still build all the things, fix all the things, maintain all the things, invent all the things. Any power women have, they have through us. We just have to stop being such fucking tools.

UK: A growing online campaign aims to stop people reading books by white male authors. It is part of a worrying wider trend

9 upvotes · 15 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Why is it that leftoids are doubling down on stupid at the precise moment that the rest of the world is getting fed up with their shit?

Do they have no notion of strategy? Or are they just a bunch of children who love attention, and cannot see the consequences of their actions beyond the immediate?

American Men Are Wising Up

9 upvotes · 10 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Not quite my point. If a woman is asking my opinion about marriage, then she's the sort of woman I want to next. She's looking for "beta pays", not "alpha fucks".

Furthermore, if she asks that question right away, she most likely doesn't have a good relationship work ethic. It's like walking into a martial arts school and asking on the first day "how long it takes to get a black belt". It shows focus on getting, instead of earning.

If she wants to earn my emotional investment, she doesn't care about documents and promises and "commitments". If she cares about those things, she's looking to lock me down instead of keep me invested.

First "Plus Sized" model to be featured in Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue

9 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, some people like to throw up after their workout.

On the absolute necessity of patriarchy for women's long term welfare.

9 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In order to speak and write more clearly, try picking out the thesis, the central point, you wish to support before you start writing or speaking.

That way, you won't come off as rambling and incoherent, and possibly inebriated.

Why PPD, while sometimes diverting, is ultimately useless.

9 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

however, when i see a lot of people complaining about their slice of the pie when most people aren't even invited to the table, it seems petty to me.

That's an interesting analogy, although I'm not really sure who are the complainers, who the people without a seat at the table, and what, indeed, the pie is in this metaphor.

However, the one thing that troubles me about "pie" metaphors is that they do tend to assume that this "pie" just sort of comes from nowhere, that there is a fixed amount, and that the fairest thing you can do, therefore, is share it equally.

That's kind of like the BP viewpoint I talked about above, which discusses what people "should" do in terms of moral behaviour, instead of goals.

You see, when BP thinkers talk about dividing up a pie, they tend to say "well, we have this pie. And no one is worth more than anyone else, so we all deserve an equal share, because that is fairest".

When RP thinkers look at the same pie, they tend to say something like "Look, we like pie. We want to maximize the amount of pie we get. But somebody has to bake these pies. So we need to incentivize baking behaviours. In order to maximize pie. Let us reward those who do more baking with more pie."

Once again, BP tends to see problems as ethical questions, and RP tends to see problems as engineering challenges.

So my immediate reaction (although I can't stand by it too strongly because I still don't quite understand your metaphor) is that it really doesn't matter if someone else gets less. What matters is that people who produce that which we want, get rewarded. Otherwise, they'll stop.

I believe this is why less men are going to college, why less men are pursuing career success, why there are all these news articles asking about why modern young men are potsmoking, xbox-playing slackers.

It's because hustling to get ahead no longer gets a man a pretty wife. Men don't want money and status for their own sake. They want money and status for mating privileges. And if you don't reward status with enhanced mating privileges, then a lot of men are spend their time doing something else.

Like practicing their seduction skills.

Enough's Enough "Asian Men Have it Hardest/Race Traitors threads" = Instaban. Man the fuck up pussy.

9 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before, I'll say it again.

Asian women owe no loyalty to the "Asian race", because they did not have a choice about joining it.

We can talk about how it's harder for Asian men and how to deal with that, but Asian women don't owe you shit just because you're genetically similar.

No one owes you shit unless and until they receive something from you that puts them in your debt.

Stupid whore fucks her way through college, marries a virgin indian man while hiding her sexual history. Her husband finds her sex tapes. And boom goes the dynamite(xpost - /r/twoxchromosomes)

9 upvotes · 1 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a vindication thing.

In other words, "You see now why we refuse to act like 'nice guys'? Because nice guys get treated like this shit right here."

I caught my girlfriend of 2 years cheating on me, so I converted her into a plate, am I fucking up?

9 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He who cannot cast away a treasure at need is in chains.

The only way men can survive in relationships is by being willing to walk away from them at any time. Society will not enforce anything we get out of relationships, so we must enforce it ourselves by withholding.

Every woman is replaceable. If we always remember that, they will have to please us. If we don't, then they won't.

The Death of Adults

9 upvotes · 13 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude, you didn't read the sidebar. Did you wander in from /r/tradcon by mistake?

We are not here to prevent the collapse of Western Civilization. That would be diving on a grenade to protect a bunch of baby-boomer manlets, aging crabby feminists, and self-involved party girls from themselves.

We are here to survive it.

Feminist interviewer asks Bill Blurr a leading question; "Can women be funny" - Blurr nails it

9 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

Look at her nodding like one of those drinking-bird toys, coupled with that poleaxed look in her eyes.

It's gradually dawning on her that she just got owned, hard, but she's trying to pretend that they are having a polite conversation, instead of her getting a public spanking after having attempted to dominate him with social bullying.

The difference between a happy and fulfilling Red Pill relationship and an emotionally abusive one.

9 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well said, but you don't need to say it. In fact, there's no point. Haters gonna hate.

However, you got one thing wrong:

Abusive men use their power only for personal satisfaction with zero regards for their SO.

Abusers of both sexes seek control out of fear of abandonment. There's a pattern to it.

1. Fear of abandonment.
2. Attempts at control, usually through violence or fear.
3. This drives the target to emotionally withdraw (or even physically withdraw).
4. Which induces a panicked period of "courtship" to try to persuade the target to stay.

5. Which increases fear of abandonment, repeating the cycle at increased intensity.

The distinction between a dominant relationship partner, and an abuser is not just how they act, it's why they act. The abuser doesn't want control. It's a burden they can barely handle. They seize it merely out of fear. Even if they aren't violent at first, the cycle escalates to violence, because it's a positive feedback loop.

Complaining about women is not progress.

9 upvotes · 13 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

On the whole though, I agree with you, I think a safe space is needed. Though I hate using the word safe space.

"Safe space" is usually used to mean "space where you are safe from criticism".

What I think you are saying we need is a "free space". Meaning a space where we will not be prevented from saying what we have to say, even if it is angry or critical.

Weddings Are Not Expensive. Whims Are.

9 upvotes · 25 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Weddings are not expensive. The divorces that follow them are.

Do you have sympathy for the guys on r/foreveralone? Are they hopeless omegas or do they have the potential to be great?

9 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hopeless? No. They are descended from many generations of men who successfully bred.

But they need to take the first step to help themselves.

Women can be shitty too

9 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Feminists/TBP can usually be persuaded to admit that there might, in the abstract, somewhere in the world, be such a thing as a forest.

But showing them an actual tree is futile.

bitching about "men" (one half of the planet) makes you a sexist asshole. As far as I know, that is the default feminist opinion.

Feminism consists more or less entirely of a hundred-year non-stop session of bitching about men, so no, not so much.

Those who refused to stop saying the occasional positive thing about men, or committed the worse offense of displaying sympathy for them (Christina Hoff Sommers, Camille Paglia) were cast out of the sisterhood.

Forbes Article- Don't Marry Career Women

9 upvotes · 7 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Lots of social and professional circles will freeze a man out for not being married as he gets well into his 30s.

Can you specify? I certainly have not encountered this.

How much is too much?

9 upvotes · 2 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Please familiarize yourself with some of the principles of modern (as opposed to postmodern) discourse.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Principle_of_humanity

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Principle_of_charity

Once you understand those, it may become clear how you have repeatedly failed to apply them. Whether you did so wilfully or through ignorance does not signify, as the result was the same.

You're approaching TRP ideas from the presumption that we are all looneytunes, and that your task is to prove it to us. You should be approaching us with the idea that we have a set of internally consistent ideas which make might make sense to people when they hear them, but aren't actually correct... and that your task is to convince us of that inaccuracy.

Let me give you an example.

Let us suppose that an ordained minister and a ranting homeless man with a history of schizophrenic diagnoses and institutionalization both tell you "I preach because that is what god wants."

Now, since we tend to assume the homeless dude is insane, we interpret his statement to mean "I hear voices". And since we tend to assume the minister is sane, we interpret the same statement from him to mean "I believe there is a god, and my best educated guess at what he wants for me is that I preach". Now, the minister is wrong, in that there is no god, and therefore god cannot want anything... but this is something about which a well-structured debate can be had.

If we engage the minister by saying "Those voices you hear aren't real. Take this chlorpromazine", then we're not debating him on what he is actually saying, on, frankly, we're being an ass.

What you do is the equivalent of going into r/christianity, telling them the voices they hear aren't real, and recommending psychiatric help. And they would ban you in short order, as well they should.

On the implications of powertalk and other language categories.

9 upvotes · 23 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

http://www.reddit.com/r/AlreadyRed/comments/1zso5x/spergs_cynics_and_manipulators_how_powertalk/

The healthiest societies are made of spergs, but being a sperg isn't healthiest for the individual.

Official Army survey shows that hardly any women soldiers want combat jobs and both genders do NOT want to lower physical standards; Doesn't stop the Pentagon from doing it anyway.

9 upvotes · 27 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is not about combat effectiveness, nor is it even about some abstract notion of fairness. This is about the Obama administration scoring political points with its core constituency.

I am a Heterosexual Woman AMA

9 upvotes · 26 February 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And now you have explained to us exactly why you are unqualified to give pickup advice to heterosexual men.

Because you don't even want to pick up women, much less have any practice doing it.

But, of course, what you're saying overall in this thread is "I am a woman! Doesn't that count for something?"

No, it really doesn't. Because of the difference between reported and observed preferences and behaviour. Every serious scientist doing behavioural research knows that if you ask people what they do, they don't tell you the real story, and if you ask them what they want, they think that know, but they don't.

Observed behaviour always differs from self-reported behaviour.

TBP chick hates RP guys but spends her birthday being treated like shit by one who also cheated on her. The irony is sublime.

9 upvotes · 20 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude.

The Five Stages of Red Pill, and how to read r/TRP textposts.

9 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Angry != dick.

That's one of my major points. Anger is a stage people have to get through. We wouldn't try to shut down sadness, or puzzlement, or happiness, or boredom. Why shut down anger?

Chicks try to shut down male anger because they're scared of it. Well, I'm not. Let guys be angry. I might inform them, for their own benefit, that this anger is limited and they'll eventually come out of it. But why be the anger police? Leave that style of doing things to SRS.

Women aren't ALWAYS unaware of their sexual instincts.

9 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Lets not be so quick to blame women for perpetuating the 'i just want a nice funny guy' stereotype....the price they pay for trying to be honest is being labelled a bitch by men and women alike.

Mostly by "nice funny guys" who cherish their illusions. The hamster knows no sex.

Women do not give a shit about your problems!

9 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi, welcome. Try not to troll, or you'll be banned.

What you see hear is men who have had to deal with the very real truth that if they show weakness, the women in their lives will be attracted to them less, and love them less.

They are dealing with that.

If you, personally, have a problem with the way they deal with that, then perhaps you should advance an alternate suggestion which actually works. Please do not let the fact that no man in recorded history has come up with a working alternate solution dissuade you from trying.

Does The Manosphere Really Want A Solution?

9 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, pretty much.

Putting effort into "saving" our culture from the feminists is wasted effort, because any time, care, money, etc, we put in will just get given to them by the state.

We need to prosper by checking out, and keeping for ourselves what we earn, reserving our efforts for our own lives and our own projects.

We don't even have to burn Rome. They'll light it on fire themselves. All we have to do is refuse to form a bucket brigade. Let them be queens of the ashes.

The red pill mentioned in Ask Reddit again. Brace for subscribers.

9 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Besides, why does nobody ever discusses about /r/RedPillWomen[1] in these kind of discussions? Is it because women are "allowed" to think how they want, but men aren't, again?

It's because the narrative they use to dismiss our ideas is "they {treat/want to treat} women horribly". If some women acknowledge that they like how we advocate treating women, it runs against the whole narrative.

So they use a three-layer defense.

1. Don't talk about RPW.
2. If someone brings up RPW, and we can't avoid talking about it, allege that all the posters are men pretending to be women.
3. If someone shows convincing proof, or strong evidence, or even makes a convincing argument, that any given RPW poster is a woman, argue that she is a psychologically broken and maladjusted woman who cannot be relied upon to properly decide what she wants.

The problem with item #3 is that it runs against the feminist standard procedure of "always listen to the woman, always trust the woman, always believe the woman, never say anything negative about the woman, never act in any way like the woman is a fallible human being instead of a perfect angel".

So that's the weakest layer and they know that. That's the first two layers are so vigorously defended.

Correct way to deal with a woman being aggressive with you around knights?

9 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't hang around nasty drunk bitches.

Much of self-defense, on any level from the physical to the social, has to do with choosing environments where good things, rather than bad things, are likely to happen to you.

so what about women who defy stereotypes

9 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Maybe I wasn't clear, I think stereotypes are silly and lazy.

I think you just won some sort of prize for unconscious irony.

All stereotypes? Every single one of them? Or just generally most? Shall I find a single example of a stereotypes that isn't silly and lazy, and then claim to have disproved your statement?

You see, what you call a "stereotype" is really just a word to put negative spin on a generalization. And a generalization is something we cannot do without.

The whole reason human beings are able to do abstract thinking at all is that we classify things. We recognize similarities between things and sort them into categories. Each of these categories is a generalization, or, if you will, a stereotype.

The only reason you and I are able to have a conversation at all is that we are able to make certain fairly safe assumptions about each other, starting with "massive object moving in one direction through time", continuing with "carbon-based lifeform", through "human with one of two well-defined sexes", "speaking english", and so on.

All of these are stereotypes.

So your philosophy of "stereotypes are bad" is so foolish that even you are unable to live by it. You simply haven't been made aware of the ways in which you don't. Your ideas about how many legs a cat has is a stereotype. Your ideas about there being such a thing as a "red piller", and what ideas such a person might have, is a stereotype.

So, when we evaluate a generalization, it is insufficient to call it a generalization, and then strut around triumphantly, brandishing this accusation on high, as if it were the football you had scored the winning touchdown of the superbowl with. Of course it's a generalization. What else would it be?

To evaluate a generalization, you need to talk about whether or not it is useful.

And when you have read this wikipedia article, you might just be ready to do that.

Pathetic creepy men apologise on behalf of our gender. Comedy gold. Repost from r/cringe.

9 upvotes · 19 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No one else has the cause or indeed the right to apologize on my behalf.

TIL: According to NOW, Hitler was a Men's Rights Activist

9 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

Hitler was a vegetarian, therefore vegetarians are Hitler.

Makes sense to me.

When plates try to "break away"

9 upvotes · 1 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Call her bluff. If it's not a bluff, get another plate.

White Women's Marriage Rates Dropping Much Faster Than Men's

9 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Both of you please look into ending this pointless discussion.

Lesbian couples twice as likely as gay men to end civil partnership

9 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They find a gay male couple that's getting divorced, and force them to buy both women a house.

Hilarious Article: Datings Tips for the Male Feminist

9 upvotes · 29 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"How to Understand What I Think Women are Like", by A Woman who Understand Neither Women nor Men.

This is actually one of the calmer and more reasonable-sounding feminist rants I've seen...but it's only the tone that's reasonable. Not the content.

The content is the same women-are-made-of-rights-and-men-are-made-of-responsibilities talk that's usual for these people.

[BP Example] I have no words...

9 upvotes · 25 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

What I find interesting is that she doesn't want to be compared to other women, criticized for her appearance, or called "big" even by men who like that very thing...

... she has no problem posting this:

http://4.bp.blogspot.com/-e2hcx1HNRa0/UV3ELnm_7hI/AAAAAAAAAqo/oPP2bsxoj8o/s1600/007NOR_Marlon_Wayans_007_Norbit.jpg

As a target for scorn.

What's the message, here? That only men, not women, should be judged for their physical appearance?

Subjecting women and men to same UK Police Fitness Test is 'sexist'

9 upvotes · 9 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Brotherhood is sexist. So is adversity.

The Thrill Is Gone – Modern Men Less Likely To Take Risks Than Their Fathers Were

9 upvotes · 2 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed. And this may be exhausting their finite supply of risk-tolerance.

Competing with women in the workplace, and dealing, careerwise, with a less stable and robust economy may be all the stress and uncertainty a modern young man can tolerate. If you're busting your ass in the workplace, or laid off and having to find a new job every couple of years, skydiving might be less appealing.

5 Kids, 4 Dads in Uniform: What Am I Doing Wrong? | Military.com

9 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Everything is great when I first meet a man. We have a great time together, and I think we have a great connection too. But soon after something happens, and they leave me

That "something" is you getting pregnant without consulting them about it.

Why there cannot be equality

9 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/askTRP

That's one way to look at it.

Another one is to ask the question:

"What the hell does equality mean, anyway?"

- Does it mean everyone should treat everyone else the same?

Ridiculous. People aren't interchangeable.

- Does it mean we all treat everyone equally well?

Also ridiculous. What is a unit of good treatment? How do we measure it? If we can't measure or compare two things, we can't make them equal.

- Does it mean everyone has equal power?

Same problem. How do we measure power? How do we compare it?

- Does it mean the law treats everyone the same?

Fine... but people are different. Men and women are different. Can't treat them the same because you have to legislate about, say, for example, reproductive issues.

- Does it mean that everyone has equal protection of the law?

Sure could, but equal protection of an unequal law isn't equal.

So what possible definition of equality between men and women can possibly exist?

Answer is, none. We just have to try to use our judgement about, not what is equal, but what is fair.

TRP. feminism and slut-shaming

9 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't quite understand.

One of TRP's essential functions is a support group for helping each other to harden our hearts.

In a society where women have worked hard to kill off every nurturing, supportive, or submissive impulse or habit they have towards men, we must follow suit, suppressing our protective, affectionate, and loving impulses towards women.

Why? Because women, influenced by feminism, have done their best to stamp out any respect for the masculine. If men were still regarded as the leader, pillars, and architects of civilization, if we still respected, then gestures of warmth from us would look magnanimous. But in our current culture, they just appear weak and desperate.

The more women stamp out the last vestiges of male preeminence in society, the scarcer strong, self-confident men become, the more desperate women are to find one, and the faster kind and loving behaviour dries up vaginas.

A hundred years ago, if a man was chivalrous and solicitous and kind to a woman, she might have thought "he must like me". Act so today, and she thinks "he must be desperate. What a loser."

So we cannot just stop at quashing any timidity in approaching women. We have to stomp on our male protectiveness, our affectionate impulses, as well. Because it just gets interpreted as timidity.

So we need to give each other constant reminders of what we are up against, lest we go soft.

The Archetypal Modern Woman

9 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A prostitution metaphor, is that really necessary?

You're new here, aren't you?

Okay, let's cover a little basic terminology:

Sexual Market Value (SMV): The degree to which someone has attractive qualities (physical, behavioural, whatever) that make them desirable and in demand as a sexual and/or relationship partner. Sometimes separated into SMV and RMV (relationship market value).

Sexual Market Price: The degree to which one partner or the other must balance (presumably unequal) SMVs by giving (or demanding) additional enticements to seal the deal. This can be anything from literal money to expensive gestures such as jewelry to concessions within the relationship.

Slut: A woman whose SMV consists mostly of easy sexual availability. This results in a modest SMV coupled with a very, very low RMV. Men will have sex with sluts, but not commit to them. You can read more about sluts here.

Now, if you read that link (go read it), you understand that it is not sleeping around that defines the slut. It is low RMV, coupled with an unrealistic expectation for high SMV partners, which causes promiscuous behaviour. Riding the cock train is the symptom, not the disease.

So, given these terms, it becomes very easy to describe this woman's situation.

She has a history of slutty behaviour with men of a higher SMV than her. But, as she ages, her SMV steadily lowers. Instead of confronting the realities of the situation, she concludes that her SMP was too low, and she was "just giving it away". She raises her SMP, which results in a drastic drop in the SMV of her partners. She rationalizes this as changed tastes.

She married someone who she turned her nose up at before, and not because she gained wisdom, but because she had to lower her standards.

So, now you're wondering, why all the schadenfreude? Why do your humble expositors here at TRP dislike this woman? Isn't she just adapting to market conditions?

Well, the problem is that she is

1. Harming herself and blaming it on others.
2. Harming men who get involved with her.
3. Preventing others from avoiding her fate by attempting to cover up the realities of the sexual marketplace.

We see her suffering as poetic justice, because the egocentricity that blinds her to the forces at play here causes harm to other people who have made no such tactical blunders.

This is for you young guys on TRP. Your college major should be based on what is going to give you job security, not on what feels good or seems interesting. If your major isn't based on a sober appraisal of supply and demand in the job market, get a new major. Now.

9 upvotes · 15 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Every man knows deep down that if he isn't successful, no one's gonna love him. That's just how it works.

You don't have to do your favorite thing in the universe for a living to be happy. Just pick something you don't hate, that other people will need you for.

AskWomen thread where srs use multiple accounts to circlejerk about dating TRP men.

9 upvotes · 12 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Most red pill men don't want to see women suffer unnecessarily.

Fixed that for you.

Fixing their bad behaviour is going to involve a certain amount of pain, which most of us desire for the result, not the schadenfreude.

"Don't Marry Any Woman Over 25": Remember, no matter what she looks like, she wasted her prettier years on other men.

9 upvotes · 7 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I understand that.

However, I don't think you quite understand where you have wandered into. This is a group for discussing sexual realpolitik. One of the basic ideas we've started by admitting is that men and women are just plain different, and this means they not only are treated differently, but that it makes sense for them to be treated differently.

Which means that taking any statement and reversing the genders isn't always going to make a lot of sense.

Specifically, in this case, men are attracted to youth, beauty, femininity, and genetic markers of fertility. These things fade rapidly with age.

Women are attracted to status, power, confidence, and so forth. These things do not fade with age.

Marrying an older woman is a bad deal, marrying an older man is not.

Why do you think women need to take the Red Pill?

9 upvotes · 15 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

They don't. They can have sex with all the guys with game all through their twenties, and then on their thirtieth birthday, a self-made millionaire who is lean and muscular, over six feet tall, confident, charming, handsome, and well dressed... will get down on one knee and

No, sorry, couldn't finish.

Women don't generally see the need for the red pill until it's too late, and taking it will only give them advice like "shouldn't have done that".

Excuse me, I am off to go buy stock in some cat food companies.

"Men grow up at 43 - 11 years later than women"

9 upvotes · 13 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If you define masculinity as immaturity, then you won't find men mature until testosterone levels start to drop.

Any thoughts on GirlWritesWhat?

9 upvotes · 28 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I like her a lot.

She's an "equalist", and we disagree on that, because I don't even know how one is supposed to define equality between two groups that have totally different needs, but overall, she seems to really get what it's like for dudes these days.

Sure, she gets extra attention for being a woman saying these things, but it does also lend her arguments extra weight in the blue pill world. Overall, I approve.

This was posted in Seddit.

9 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If these guys would just remember "never take a woman's seduction advice" they'd sidestep this whole mess.

People don't tell the truth with what they say. They tell it with what they do.

Advice for young women in the 21st century

9 upvotes · 14 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is not red pill.

It's just traditional conservatism.

TradCons are feminist's old faux foes, a matched set of Tweedledumb and TweedleDumber who pretend to be enemies, but are really just arguing about what's the best way to protect women at the expense of men (their shared goal).

TradCons are now experiencing a resurgence in enthusiasm because feminism is visibly failing, and they cannot (or will not) grasp the idea that they are not the only alternative.

Just because Tweedledumber is dumber, doesn't mean that Tweedledumb isn't dumb.

There are some well-respected participants in this very forum who imagine that they are taking the red pill because they are embracing conservative family values. But all they have done is exchange one flavour of blue pill for another.

Red pills are for waking up from cultural propaganda and wishful thinking, and seeing the world according to evidence. They are not for putting yourself to sleep in a new way. If it puts you to sleep in a new way, it's not a red pill.

Why should young women keep their legs closed? So we can go back to using sexual scarcity to pressure men into marriages they would be free of, if only they could get laid?

No. Feminism destroyed marriage, and I say let it stay dead. Why is marriage worth saving? What good is it? And why should we, as men, care if it dies out for good?

The ever-sensitive women of "The View" mock Lance Armstrong's testicle size, apparently not realizing he only has one ball because of cancer

9 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Logic error.

Are we supposed to rewrite books now too? " The Hobbit: Why Are There No Women in Tolkien's World? "

9 upvotes · 1 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

I demand that the works of Jane Austen be rewritten to include more strong male characters!

Atlantic author asks "Let's Give Chivalry Another Chance". Why? "because it flatters women and leads to their preferential treatment"

9 upvotes · 10 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

I won't admit chivalry is dead... because I haven't finished kicking it yet.

Why are we running? (repost from r/funny)

9 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

What interesting is that black men think they get treated this way because they are black, but white men know that they're being treated like this because they are men.

Man asks do I know you. Says No I dont. Walks away. Files police report

9 upvotes · 26 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, you were taught. You just don't remember it that way, because no one sat you down and explained it to you.

Instead, they taught you by having expectations of you, and expressing disapproval when you failed to meet them.

But now, having any expectation of a woman is restricting her freedom, and expressing disapproval of a woman is misogyny. So of course they run wild. Of course they act like spoiled children. Because we would, too, if no one had ever drawn boundaries for us.

Why I am MRA at 18, and Why I believe we need to take aggressive (non-violent) action against feminism

9 upvotes · 1 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

I hate to use the 'no true Scotsman' fallacy

Then don't.

We're having an MGTOW debate over at /r/LadyMRAs and we'd appreciate various POVs from /r/MensRights.

9 upvotes · 21 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Factory was asked for his input and he gave it and in return all he got were attacks on his character and shaming tactics. Same shaming tactics used by feminists everywhere. Now you're suggesting that he was insensitive for mentioning the respect and trust issues which are at the core of MGTOW.

I think you're confused. Reread Typhon's comment. That's the very point that she was making... that he shouldn't have to make a case for his feelings before he can have them, or prove he's not a misogynist, or anything like that.

Men Going Their Own Way - YouTube (Addressing budding radicalism in the MRM)

9 upvotes · 5 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

His argument is fundamentally flawed.

He says that advocating avoidance of relationships with women is equivalent to stating that women have done nothing but take advantage of men throughout history.

This is absurd.

It is simply a statement that, under current circumstances, the drawbacks of relationships with women outweigh the benefits.

"In Defense of Men: When did it become OK for women to be sexist?" An article by Kate Bartolotta

9 upvotes · 2 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Other women sometimes act like it. Can't tell you how many times I've seen women do the lemon-faced tsk tsk dance over some other woman "running around with her boobs out" because she's wearing nothing but sport gear.

A lot of the time, this varies by breast size. A level of clothedness that women consider perfectly modest on a b-cup will be labeled "slutty" on one carrying a pair of double ds.

And yes, the latter's breasts are more obvious. But so what? Are we gonna tell her "No sports bras for you! Put on this baggy t-shirt and sweat until you faint, because other women have deemed your breasts too obvious!" ?

This kinda thing annoys me... I'm dating a woman who is an E cup, and, at 4'11 tall, they're really obvious. And I can tell you both from observation and from what she tells me, that the problem isn't unwanted male attention... it's unwarranted female disapproval.

You see, male unwanted attention is kept down by a great deal of disapproval. Sure, there's the occasional socially impaired jackass, but it's rare, and it's counterbalanced by a certain amount of more smooth and socially skilled attention that flatters rather than insults. (As she'd say, "not all stares are unwelcome... it matter how they stare".)

But females... man, they get nasty. Talking about her "hanging out", using the word "slut"... just for displaying a proportion of cleavage that would be considered "relatively modest" on a less endowed woman. I don't know whether it's really simple envy, or that they can't stand any woman being viewed as a sexual object even when that objectification is flattering and appreciated... but I have seen a level of cattiness that I would not believe if someone had told me about it second hand.

This is one small example of a way that women are indeed oppressed... by other women. And it ain't some Patriarchy making them do it, either. It's the Sisterhood.

Barnes and Noble tell a 73-year-old patron that men can't be by themselves in the children's area.

9 upvotes · 5 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Pointing out that you are being an asshole on purpose does not make you any less of an asshole.

As some one with pretty low self-esteem. How do I know what girls are " in my league "

9 upvotes · 12 April 2012 · /r/seduction

All of them.

Next question.

Rejected wife makes false rape claim against her husband. His mobile phone video footage proves it was consensual.

9 upvotes · 7 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is the true nature of everyone.

People everywhere, or both sexes, are selfish jerks. This is not the problem.

The problem is that society is not willing to believe that women can be selfish jerks, and so the law will not protect us against selfish jerks of the female variety unless we actually have video.

"I'm a woman, not an object!" Now look how sexy I am!

9 upvotes · 3 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Oh, yes, I'm sure your concern that we stay on-topic is entirely sincere.

Why do you even come here?

I am a feminist and I really want to understand the philosophies of Men's Rights. Can anyone help me out?

9 upvotes · 30 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Alright, well, I have to repeat this a lot, but it's worth hearing.

To understand how the MRM and feminism are not at all similar, what we need to focus on is the suffix "ism" at the end of the latter.

"-ism" generally implies a philosophy or belief system, and that precisely what feminism is. It's not just the advocacy itself... it is also the ideological framework that is used to justify that advocacy. The problem is that this ideological framework is inherently anti-male, in fact, it is openly so. And this informs the advocacy actions of those who subscribe to it, causing those actions to frequently be anti-male as well.

Example:

If Intimate Partner Violence is understood simply as a psychological problem present in individuals or family units, then the legal system and the mental health system can deal with them on a case by case basis, as problems suffered by individuals.

But if IPV is understood or interpreted through the lens of feminist "Patriarchy" theory, it is understood as the expression of a system of male dominance and exploitation of females. Therefore, any case where the victim is male must either be ignored, explained away as a rare anomaly, or blamed on the victim, or on males in general somehow.

This leads to many, many, actual men, real people with feelings and inner lives, being hurt and denied help or even compassion... in order to safeguard an ideological system. This ideological system preserves and spreads itself at the expense of men.

So you are essentially asking me why I am hostile to a belief system which is hostile to me personally, hostile to men in general, and unsupported by scientific evidence.

What's to like?

Genuine question from a woman against misandry

9 upvotes · 26 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

So, how would you recommend that women like me identify? If the word "feminist" embodies all sorts of nasty sexism, what should women who hate all forms of sexism but want to embody a female-positive (as opposed to female-negative, not as opposed to male-positive) attitude?

I'm not at all sure I understand why you feel the need for a label.

You're a person. You have opinions. They are either sensible or not, regardless of whether anyone else shares them.

Don't reply to trolls

9 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Indeed. Here's a piece of a thread from r/fitness, of all places:

http://www.reddit.com/r/Fitness/comments/pr5ph/commiserations_silverhydra/c3rkwl6

Do you believe that pick-up is immoral? Read this.

9 upvotes · 13 February 2012 · /r/seduction

Stop asking this question.

The burden of proof is on people who say seduction is immoral. Not the reverse. We are creating problems for ourselves by bending over backwards trying to appease people who will not be appeased.

"A runaway slave is the worst kind of slave - one that absolutely refuses to serve his massa. My reasons were simple... if the state forces me not to be a father than I will not pretend to be one. I will certainly not pay 75% of my take home pay to someone who hates me"

9 upvotes · 5 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

get your mother-fucking self snipped

Have you ever gotten "snipped"? I have. You have no idea what the fuck you are talking about.

It's fucking surgery. It's invasive, not cheap, it's irreversible (making it a decision not just to not have children now, but to not have them ever), and worst of all, it doesn't always work.

It sucks as a birth control option. We need to do better than that for men.

Apparently in Vermont, the penalty for kidnapping, imprisoning, drugging, and raping two children is only three years in prison...assuming that your female and your victims are male.

9 upvotes · 24 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Check your privilege! Clearly, you have no right to judge this person, because you have a penis and have therefore lived an easier life.

If you were in her shoes, you'd be kidnapping and raping people, too. Society made her do it. And still, she "will be supervised by the state of Vermont for the rest of her life"!

Obviously, this harsh penalty was imposed because she is a woman, and thus the Patriarchy decided to make an example of her to keep all women everywhere subjugated and living in fear.

A man would have just made the secret Patriarchy hand-signal at the judge and been let off with a disapproving look and a warning not to do it again.

[FR] God Mode Unlocked: Beating the 10 year friendzone

9 upvotes · 14 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Traditionally, a black and white checkered flag marks the finish line at the end of a race.

Florida judge sentenced a 26-yr-old with no criminal record, to life in prison for possessing child pornography: "Had Mr. Vilca actually molested a child," The NYTimes notes, "he might well have received a lighter sentence."

9 upvotes · 10 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Feminists claiming "r/mr is in favour of child pornography!!!" in 3... 2...

"Feminism is the radical notion that men should do whatever women say, so that women can do whatever the hell they want." - No Man's Land by Jack Donovan

9 upvotes · 10 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

God

Objection. Argument assumes facts not in evidence.

Are you all incredibly angry, delusional, hateful, depressed, violently upset, hate your wife (or hate women because you don't have one), support rape with false statistics, ... or is there some kind of smear campaign against r/mensrights?

9 upvotes · 2 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Insightful as usual.

But it should be added that no political movement ever seems to be willing to succeed itself out of existence. The feminist movement has come from the fringes and become the establishment, utterly dominating our national discourse.

And like many revolutions that achieve dominance, it is then left in the awkward position of having to find something left for it to do, in order to justify its continued existence. There are certain people out there who must find injustices, or things they can interpret as justice, in order to have something to fight against.

While the things they are focusing on are often small enough that they don't do any serious damage, sometimes they are.

But even worse than that, focus on these issues must be coupled with a message that women are oppressed, and that men are oppressors, and that's all they are. The problem here isn't just the elimination of injustices that don't exist, or aren't injustices, it's the total opposition to the idea that men might also face injustices, or have unmet needs.

Those who wish to continue to be feminists are forced to fight for a world where men cannot legitimately be objects of the feeling of compassion or sympathy.

Many of the obstacles and hardships that men face have little to do with feminism or even with women in general. But still we face opposition to the very notion that anything a man might have could possibly be a right that must be protected, as opposed to a "privilege" that must be taken away.

[For Newbies] Nice Guy Syndrome: What it is and why you should kill it with fire [LONG]

9 upvotes · 24 October 2011 · /r/seduction

- 3.6 Realize that you can, and should, be desired, not just tolerated. Hanging around someone who doesn't appreciate you, hoping to change her mind, is not only unfair to her, it's also unfair to you.

An adult plies children - two aged 14, one 12 another 15 - with alcohol and has sex with them, then walks. Guess their sex?

9 upvotes · 19 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

More to the point, guess the sex of the adult.

4 reasons why its bad to have a penis

9 upvotes · 17 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

If I ever get jumped (by a guy) my plan would be to kick the fucker in the balls as hard as possible

While the testicles are not a bad target to hit, this sort of thing is not really a plan at all, and betrays a vast level of naivete about how combat actually works.

It's a bit like saying "I plan to win the race by running faster than the other guy", or "I plan to play the flute by blowing into one end and moving my fingers over these holes here".

It's not really a plan at all, just a description of a desired outcome.

You might as well say "I plan to hit him on the point of the chin so hard that he's knocked out cold". But you only have tactics when you explain exactly how you're going to do that.

Telling a woman to kick a man in the testicles isn't helpful advice, because without some instruction in how to successfully do that, she's not going to be able to. And then she'll find herself standing in front of someone vastly superior in strength, agility, and speed, trying to do something that isn't working.

People have lots of "off switches". None of them, testicles included, are easy to effectively hit.

Dad Faces Charges After Family Bike Ride. Your children do not belong to you - you are merely a caretaker whose permissions can be revoked at the government's whim.

9 upvotes · 5 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Your children do not belong to you

Damn right they don't. They belong to themselves. You just have the responsibility to care for them.

While this story is ridiculous, I fully support taking children away from adults who try to treat children as if they were owned, e.g., trying to have them circumcised.

Epic rejection by text message. What the heck happened?

9 upvotes · 15 August 2011 · /r/seduction

This is not entirely uncommon.

Feminist ideologues have taught women that being submissive is Not Okay. Submissive women tend to listen to others. Thus, they sometimes end up being submissive to the ideology that being a submissive woman is Not Okay.

You still don't want any part of that. You want a submissive woman who can take some responsibility and say "yes, spank me, call me dirty names, pull my hair, I love it", not one that pretends to be something she's not, and sits back expecting you to figure it out.

Hot Enough + treats you decently > Smoking Hot + selfish & crazy

News Alert: A PHD in gender studies pays as much as a masters in computer science. Women everywhere shocked and appalled.

9 upvotes · 11 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

If a PhD in "gender studies" really made as much as a master's in CS, then I would be shocked and appalled.

Cinderella Singletons. The term describes women who are on the road to becoming modern-day Cinderellas because they opt out of financial planning, in the hope that some man, some day, will arrive and bail them out.

9 upvotes · 8 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

'Women get bewildered by the array of choices,' says Professor Pine. 'Many of us find money issues boring. Financial literature is written by men for men, it's full of jargon and women are put off by it.'

WTF? Seriously, WTF?

Are women adults, or not? Since when do we make these kinds of excuses for adults being irresponsible?

You know Rebecca Watson, who equated being politely invited to coffee with rape? Well, (surprise of surprises) She LIED to cover her tracks...

9 upvotes · 5 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's not important in and of itself, but as an indicator for just what kinds of attitudes about men are commonplace and acceptable.

Overheard in the men's room- I think this is a perfect example of feminists trying to police men and male spaces.

9 upvotes · 20 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

But if it were two women talking about some muscular young guy being "hung like a rhino", then it would be empowering and liberated and we would all need to pitch in to protect them from "slut-shaming".

[FR] Girls teach me how to push-pull, body rocking, kino, all pickup tactics they're aware of. It ends up working on them, as they're teaching me.

9 upvotes · 9 July 2011 · /r/seduction

One thing I am fond of saying is that

"Only a neurotic woman wants a therapist. A healthy woman wants a playmate."

(So don't be sincere, compassionate, and supportive. Be upbeat, fun, and adventurous.)

Front Page of CNN: "Still, let me just say this to Mr. Strauss-Kahn or other horny men who think a quickie with someone they don't know at all seems like a good idea..."

9 upvotes · 3 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

<http://khadgaray.blogspot.com/2009/02/when-man-rapes-woman-it-is-against-law.html>

The "Feminization" of Mental Health: "Today the takeover is almost complete.

9 upvotes · 22 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

find religion rather than go to therapy

Then he'd have two problems.

Imagine if this was the other way around

8 upvotes · 24 May 2022 · /r/PussyPassDenied

If that were true, you would be telling this random person. Not us.

You're not mad at her for hating all men for being men. You're mad at her for embarrassing you by saying the quiet part out loud.

Your husband comes before your children. Almost always.

8 upvotes · 3 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Nobody 'becomes' a narcissist without either a predilection to being one, or serious pressure and encouragement in that direction (i.e. fan/media pressure on actors/athletes, etc.)

Yes, in fact praise doesn't create narcissists at all.

Narcissists seek praise and admiration because they were not given love and don't know how to get it.

Actors and athletes don't become narcissists because they are given admiration. They were already narcissists, and they became actors or athletes as a way of seeking admiration.

The reason they never stop seeking admiration is that their real need is for love, and admiration never fills the hole for long.

Patience with different love languages aka 'the STFU rule in practice'

8 upvotes · 26 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Affirm the shit out of her! He even used our own jargon on us (yaaaaaaaaaaaaas [?])! And then he basically pat us all on the head, told us to "go get'em ladies", and validated that what we are doing is right and effective and special. And suddenly, this TRP guy, who has written stuff that would definitely cause some pearls to be clutched and understandable outrage to be had (even if there's a bitter truth to it that can be useful to us), is suddenly welcomed into our community with open arms (or at least with free-flowing upvotes). Because understanding LLs helped him understand how to communicate with a community of women in a way that would make us want to hear HIM out. As women, we can also use our understanding of LLs in the same way to gain trust, build bonds, and communicate productively with our men.

This is how and why the redpill stuff actually works. Because it's a trick played on the hindbrain, not the conscious mind. It "tricks" the part of our brain that we don't experience as "us", so not only does it not bother us, it works even when we are fully aware of it.

How do you deal with girls who KNOW about redpill and try to make you admit to it and humiliate you because of it?

8 upvotes · 25 March 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Why are you wasting your time interacting with girls who actively try to humiliate you?

What do you guys think?

8 upvotes · 17 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

lot of men use introversion as an excuse to be anti social weirdos and/or as an excuse not to approach women and so actually aren't introverted but instead lame and ghey spergs who have decided to go pussyless by building their own prison.

Yes.

Real introverts like socializing just fine. They just do it differently.

Go to a party. If you talk to large groups all night, and are energized and bouncy even after the party is over, you're an extrovert. If you talk to people until you find an interesting one, and separate off into a one on one conversation, repeat, and then go home tired and sleepy, you're an introvert.

If you feel shy and awkward and just want to go home, you have a mental health problem.

If you were playing a game where you could choose your characters stats, and you had the choice between extrovert and introvert, you should always pick extrovert if you cared about getting laid as a guy.

Yes. And if you wanted to be happy in your life overall, you should pick introvert.

Bare minimum imo is man should be more extroverted/outgoing than his woman.

Nope. So long as she sees him as the dominant partner, it doesn't matter at all.

He wants me to live in a trailer. With my newborn baby. I'm struggling with accepting this idea, or considering it. But if I don't, for us to make any money we'll be seperated.

8 upvotes · 10 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I feel like I got pregnant at the wrong time.

"I have just jumped out of an airplane without a parachute. What do you recommend I do now?"

Someone calls a woman cheating "sexual freedom" and says you must be right winged if you don't respect that

8 upvotes · 16 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

So, anyone with two wives is a gigachad?

FDS celebrating the decline of men's health. Seriously, are the people in that sub okay?

8 upvotes · 14 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

The struggle for men's rights cannot take the form or imitate the actions of the feminist movement. Men and women are different, and are treated and perceived differently, and the same tactics cannot be used by both.

The great fallacy of the Warren Farrel, Paul Elam, AVFM version of the men's rights movement is the belief that if men do what feminists did, they can get what feminists got.

This is dead wrong.

The feminist movement gained power by pointing out (largely fictitious) injustices suffered by the female sex, and appealing to sympathies of men in power and the population in general.

This will not, cannot, work for men, because it works by exploiting the deep and instinctive protectiveness the human species has for women, and for women alone.

The "men's rights movement" is, and always has been, an abject failure, because it appeals for sympathy which humans are genetically hardwired to withhold from men, and reserve for women alone.

This is why the most powerful, and the only successful (even if modestly so) voices among the men's rights movement belong to women aligned with that cause (/u/girlwriteswhat, etc).

If men are to achieve any structural respect for our human rights, not merely as human beings but as men, our strategy must be entirely different.

Men have a different relationship to civilization than women do. Civilization at large regards that which is good for women as an end, a goal which is desirable in and of itself. However, it regards that which is good for men as, if not a detriment, at most a means to some other end, such as the benefit of women.

Thus it is that women are net extractors of value from civilization, while men are net contributors to civilization. This is, of course, inherently exploitative, but it also places us in a position of power. In order to coerce civilization into respecting our rights, without the need for sympathy that we do not and will never receive, we only need to withhold that which civilization depends upon from us... our work, our value, our risk, our self-sacrifice.

Civilization depends upon these things, and cannot survive without them.

Every woman who ever posted in FDS about how useless men are was, at that very moment, and for all her life, entirely dependent upon men to keep her from starving, freezing, or dying of disease or thirst, or a dozen other natural causes.

Such women are unaware of this need they have for men, because men have been so generous about providing their value, that these girls no longer realize that it all comes from men... they simply consider the benefits of civilization, technology, and free market capitalism to be a form of mana that rains down from heaven, and can always be relied upon.

Any successful men's rights movement, therefore, must begin by ceasing to address women at all, by not attempting to speak to them or persuade them of anything. It must focus entirely upon developing certain qualities within men. Specifically, it must develop solidarity, pride, and a sense of their own value.

Men with these things will collectively refuse to provide labour, value, and protection to women, groups, or entire civilizations that fail to respect men's rights. These people will then have no choice but to capitulate.

Where does TRP come into this?

Simple. TRP takes a form of guidance for men in how to avoid being exploited by means of their sex drive, or their desire for love. It teaches them to get sex without offering anything in exchange but sex, and how to get affection without offering anything in exchange but affection.

This is true equality, and anyone who interprets it as anything else is simply letting slip the mask that hides their misandry from the world.

Women are not entitled to men's affection, protection, or wealth merely by reason of having engaged in sexual intercourse with them. Having sex with a man does not entitle a woman to a damn thing beyond what he receives from the exchange... a reasonable (not excessive) effort to give one's partner an orgasm.

That's it.

In order to reach this state of equality, a man must develop the self-respect to regard his own value as at least equal to a woman, and refuse to engage in the customary practice of incentivizing sex by sweetening the deal with extra effort or resources.

While this development actually tends to increase a man's sexual success, it can only be attained by being willing to sacrifice sexual opportunities that come at the price of one's dignity, pride, or reputation, or self-respect.

To have his rights respected, a man must be willing to go home alone and jerk off, rather than court a woman who insults or disrespects him. To have his rights respected, a man must be willing to quit his job and be unemployed, rather than work for someone who disrespects or micromanages him. To have his rights respected, a man must be willing to cease following society's plan for men when society no longer includes men's health, prosperity, and happiness in its plans.

Sometimes good men give bad gifts.

8 upvotes · 29 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't sweat it too much. Here's something I learned from eleven years of running TRP: you cannot help someone without their active cooperation.

There's enough work to do right here, with people who have already decided they want and value your advice, that you have no reason to waste time regretting the woes of those you don't appreciate the value of what you have to offer.

I am a plate

8 upvotes · 24 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"The Talk" is socially retarded. Do not go about expressing your desires this way.

Is it really better to be red pilld?

8 upvotes · 26 November 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Society was structured in a way that men did not have to be red pilld.

Wrong.

Society was structured in such a way that men were red pilld.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

8 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey, anything that makes the chaff self-identify is a win.

I don't think it's worthwhile investing much effort in NPCs who are so used to being told what to think that they don't know when they being told how to think.

Why do men push the Older Man/Younger woman dynamic?

8 upvotes · 11 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

younger women are more attractive, but most of them are shallow vacant people. If you want spend your time filming stupid dance Tik Toks of your 18 y/o gf, be my guest.

Clearly the superior option for me is to date women of exactly your age, and spend my time proofreading spiteful reddit posts about how anyone younger than you is "shallow" and "vacant".

One logical question, and they melt like a block of cheese in an oven ?

8 upvotes · 11 September 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Frame control failure.

She didn't want to answer the question, so she tried to change the subject to whether he was angry or not.

By saying he was not angry, he allowed this.

The appropriate response is "We're not discussing my feelings right now. Are you going to answer the question, or not?"

Getting sucked into RedPill content distorts your perception of reality

8 upvotes · 18 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

RedPill content creators HAVE to sell something to make money. They sell an image, or they sell their particular spin on Red Pill ideas.

No, I don't. I write flight control software to make money. I write content because I find it rewarding.

If I tried to make a living off RedPill content, that would be a huge pay cut. Yeah, let's sell information, once, to a bunch of broke young dudes. Great business plan.

Kevin Samuels, Rich Cooper, Donovan Sharpe, Fresh and Fit.

Who?

RIP itiswr1tten

8 upvotes · 18 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

That which is asserted without evidence can be dismissed without evidence.

Women should plan for a future without a partner.

8 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Or, in the more complete view, a positive feedback loop.

Following the advice of 99% of people will get you the same mediocre results as the 99%. Lift LIGHT weights, if you want to look good.

8 upvotes · 6 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The cut-but-weak vs. strong-but-lardbucket debate rages eternal.

As usual for these kinds of debates, the answer is different for each person, and lies somewhere in the middle.

Some people need to lose their damn manorexia and eat some fucking rice so they can grow and stop being weak.

Others need to stop bullshitting themselves that soda is okay because they do benchpress, and start doing keto and IF.

That's true on the lifting side, too. 5x5 doesn't work forever, and eventually you have to specialize for your goal. There is no such thing as "fitness" without being "fitness FOR {X}".

Personally, I think that, while OP could probably stand to do a bulk phase, and lift heavier, most people here who are saying this with great vindictiveness and anger, are doing so because they are sensitive about being too fat, and are too change-averse to admit that and start fasting.

Point is, he fucking did something. He saw something he didn't like about himself, imagined it being different, made a plan to get from point A to point B, and fucking executed it.

Crying about how you don't like point B is just petty. It's his goddamned body. If being really cut is more meaningful to him than the amount of weight on the bar, so be it. If someone wants to be Eddie Hall, instead, cool.

Point is that people crying about one or the other are usually rocking a couch and a beer.

The Endgame - Why you lift, study, and make money.

8 upvotes · 6 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The guy who has a bucket load of money? He doesn't walk up to a woman and thinks "man I better get this secured and done with fast because I have work at 6am tomorrow". He doesn't have a single moment of hesitation to buy the woman as many drinks as she wants because it straight up doesn't even vibrate his wallet.

WTF is this weak shit?

You don't buy women stuff before they suck your dick. Doesn't matter how much money you have. You don't do it because you are the prize.

Prizes don't bribe people with other prizes.

An Upton Sinclair quote for the Manosphere

8 upvotes · 20 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Imagine watching a video of some random dude rehashing content you wrote pretending it's his own and without ever interacting with you or the community here.

I don't have to. Welcome to my world. If you keep writing, eventually they'll do it to you, too.

It's funny that other dudes made more off repackaging my writing than I ever did coming up with it, but here's the thing... marketing is its own hustle. If I tried to monetize this shit, I'd have to do all sorts of things not related to coming up with it... all to end up making less than I do now.

This way, I get to do just the fun parts, and if anyone challenges me to "prove myself" (by doxxing myself), I can just say "nah, I don't need you to believe me".

Selling get-laid advice to broke twenty-somethings is no way to get rich. If I wanted to turn social manipulation knowledge into money, I'd start a church. There's no better instrument for robbery than Jesus.

Anthony dream Johnson is some narc hot head who doesn't know how to get on with the community, his customers nor his collaborators.

Now, there was a character. He came waltzing into RPW, trying to tell the 'little ladies' all about how to run their lives, in just about the most patronizing way you can imagine, and of course they spurned him as they would a rapid dog.

Pretty ironic that a guy whose whose product is teaching other men how to get laid can't even get a bunch of women to tolerate his presence even when they explicitly identify as submissive.

He wore out his welcome super quick.

Maybe this is what the grift does to you or maybe the grift attracts only a certain type of person.

I think it's the latter. People are "all 'bout dat hussle" are that way because they don't have anything else to be about. You know the kind I'm talking about. Expensive sunglasses and cheap, off-the-rack suit. Fancy sports car (on a ruinous lease) and shabby apartment. Lots of business plans consisting of stories he tells himself about how other people are going to give him money. Doesn't add any value, but thinks no one will notice because of course he's the only smart person in the world. Idolizes grifters and hustlers who got lucky and became super-wealthy, doesn't understand the concept of survivorship bias. Loves to namedrop Nietzsche and Hegel, hasn't read any Brooks or Taleb. Proud of his collection of selfies with D-list celebrities.

Guys who are motivated by "I don't want to be/look like/feel like a loser." instead of "what is the best move I can make right now with the tools I have?"

These guys are everywhere. They're like ants. Anytime anything gets popular, they smell a payday. But no one serious wants anything to do with them, because they don't add any value. They just exist by the grace of the fact that some people are too stupid or too trusting to notice that.

I kick them out of here, not because I have any great passion for saving idiots from their natural predator, but because I find NPCs depressing.

CMV: Red pill is just mostly scammers who are trying to take advantage of down on luck men

8 upvotes · 4 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They are labeled on TRP for your convenience. Look for labels that say "Endorsed Contributor", and especially ones that say "Vanguard". The later are group founders, although only a few are still active.

I think what you're doing is looking at youtube channels with "red pill" somewhere in the name.

There's a fair number of dudes who go over our stuff looking for usable sound bites, then cycle then into the Sponsor Internet Personality ecosystem. Anthony Johnson, and his "21 convention"... those sorts of characters. We kicked him off TRP for trying to monetize the community without contributing to it.

So, if you're talking about "red pill", the concept, I suppose you can include those guys, but I'm not responsible for, or interested in, what they have to say.

And I'm not selling anything. I have career skills, capital investments, and my own company which does something completely unrelated to the mating game. I don't need to shake down young broke dudes for their scarce dollars. I only do this because I'm compulsively pedagogical... when I have an insight, I need someone to explain it to, or I'll start buttonholing strangers in line at the grocery store.

Furthermore, before you start asking me for whatever the fuck you mean by "receipts", know this: I'm not "popping bottles and banging models" anymore. I'm far too old, rich, wise, and happy to center my life around chasing the next dopamine hit. I'm teaching younger and less informed men how to achieve control over their own sex lives.

Frankly, your criticism of TRP reads like you never actually sit down and read it. You named a bunch of guys who I literally never heard of until you mentioned them, and I couldn't sit through a single one of their videos because they were entirely content-free.

The "are you for real?" problem, you see, is one that only pops up if you are selling something. If you're selling something, you need people to believe in you, so you have to "prove yourself". I have the luxury of not caring if you believe in me or not, because my insights are free. I give them away so that they will stop hammering at the walls of my braincase, not so that people will pay me.

Looks like my boyfriend is RP and I don't know what to do

8 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Women tend to present a ready-made solution to their problem... it's what they would want: clear expectations and a simple request.

But men don't like to be told what to do.

So instead, tell him what difficulty you are experiencing. This allows him to figure out a way to reconcile both your needs, and gives you an opportunity to observe his leadership skills at work and see if they are up to snuff.

Do girls deep down love being in a harem?

8 upvotes · 17 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Dunno. I'll ask my harem.

For clarification I'm talking about an actual harem where a man marries or lives with 5+ wives or girlfriends.

Oh, okay. Nevermind.

I want to have a kid, I'm 23 already, but how can you be a young mother nowadays?

8 upvotes · 16 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, I see a lot of guys talking it on red pill forums, about how we should become mom's while we are still young and devote to a husband while we are still young, and gosh how I wish I could do it, but you don't find young guys that can provide for themselves

Just because you are a young girl doesn't mean you need to seek out a young guy. Men under 30 are less likely to have the funds and inclination to start a family.

How to get my man in the mood

8 upvotes · 2 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

How can I be sexier and really please my man?

Emphasis added, because it's the answer to your question. You're going to have to learn what he likes.

I just got out of an abusive relationship, what should I do?

8 upvotes · 20 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men you date are not therapists (and even if they are, they don't go on dates to do more work). What you need to do to heal, you need to do on your own, not get in touch with other men and expect them to carry your baggage.

"Ugh, women don't like you because you whine too much. Stop complaining and just play the hand you were dealt."

8 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your choices are:

1. Play your hand as best you are able.
2. Fuss.

... which do you think is going to get you better results?

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

8 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Duh.

Don't confuse "watching two dudes go at it does nothing for me", which just means you aren't into dudes, with "kill all the faggots"... which serves the female imperative.

The fear of being gay, or of being seen as gay, exists because western men have been conditioned to police each other against gayness... for the sole benefit of women.

And now the commie globalists are trying to piss off the tradcons by demanding that you throw parades to celebrate gays. But they serve the feminine imperative, too... they just have a different idea of what benefits women.

The only rebellious thing you can do is not give a shit either way.

Why do men say they prefer experienced women IRL and not so much online?

8 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Remember that sexual history affects relationship value, not sex value. Men are perfectly willing to fuck the town bicycle, we just don't want to marry her.

So, in light of this, consider how younger men (teens and early twenties) are going to behave:

- They care less about relationship value, because they are looking for sex. To them a relationship is often just a way to get regular sex.
- They are less experienced at getting to sex, and less confident, so an "easy" girl has more appeal to them.
- At some point in the recent past (depending on culture), they were surrounded by virgins, who remained virgins by turning down men like them.

In short, young men care a lot less about relationships and more about sex, so sluttiness is less of a deal-breaker.

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

8 upvotes · 4 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

In the mid 2000's we would at least get a coherent counterargument to our ideas. But years of affirmative action and diversity seminars have eroded the ability of academics to defend the ideology of the establishment.

Not the ability (although that has eroded as well), but the need.

The goal of postmodern discourse isn't to discredit the dissent, but the dissenter. When an ideological monoculture has developed a certain amount of hegemony, it develops snarl words for anyone who dares disagree, which it employs in place of arguments: "toxic", "privileged", "racist", "sexist", "counterrevolutionary", "degenerate", "heretic".

This is not merely due to incapability, but due to the realization that the argument itself is only necessitated by the presence of a mass of skeptical observers. When sufficient ideological homogeneity has been achieved, you not only don't need to argue, but it is counterproductive to do so, because it wastes effort and legitimizes those you wish to discredit.

Saul Alinsky advised his fellow communists to personalize their targets, attacking individuals rather institutions because individuals bleed more easily. The same is doubly true of attacking individuals rather than ideas (since ideas are bulletproof). One of the chief advantages of the struggle session is that it not only makes a public example of the heretic, it often terrifies those who privately agree with him into publicly denouncing him.

Make no mistake... they are not operating like this due to inability to take the high road, but because they no longer see any need to.

Narcissist ex boyfriend using me as a bait for making his wife jealous, blocking my feminine journey, making me crazy. Should I involve my parents in this matter??

8 upvotes · 13 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Then, as I already knew, this is not really about advice at all. You already know what the sensible thing to do is. You just aren't willing to do it.

My confidence is fake

8 upvotes · 5 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Lemme guess: You were educated in the United States public education system.

... in other words, in a loser factory where everything is a test designed for you to pass, every failure is because of things you could control, and every grade is based on avoiding failure as much as possible.

So now, any time you come out of any interaction without getting what you wanted, you feel like you must not have been "good enough".

Wrong mindset.

If you do not hear "NO" a lot, you aren't asking for enough.

If you do not fail a lot, you are not trying hard enough shit.

If you never drop one on the bars, you aren't lifting heavy enough.

The world doesn't care how much or how frequently you fail. It only cares how spectacularly you succeed.

What's with super jacked guys and their below average gfs?

8 upvotes · 22 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Being jacked is a force multiplier on game.

Game is not a force multiplier on being jacked.

Why do you think masculinity is under attack by the mainstream?

8 upvotes · 22 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's very simple.

There are only two ideologies:

Collectivism: "Everyone must follow my plan."

Libertarianism: "Mind your own fucking business."

And the most libertarian demographic on earth is heterosexual white males. Doesn't matter why this is. We could speculate all day about that and end up none the wiser. It only matters that observationally, it is so.

Collectivists want to rule everyone. It doesn't matter if they are communists, or globalism socialists, or nationalist socialists, or Jesus freaks, or whatever. In fact, people often switch from one to the other as they age, because what they really want is to enslave you.

Naturally, to make that happen, they must reduce the sociopolitical power of white heterosexual males in general, whether by disenfranchising, or by brainwashing them with collectivist ideology. It matters not. That's why the white males of the ruling class are frequently the most anti-white male of all. They know that other white males will resist their rulership, so they jump on the male-bashing train with both feet.

There's just one problem with that strategy. Our civilization is utterly dependent on white males, not just their labour, but their creativity and energy, to survive, much less thrive.

But never make the mistake of assuming that authoritarian political elites are one iota smarter than the average bear. They aren't. They're just meaner, greedier, and better positioned.

LTR says I treat her like she's replaceable. How to handle this comfort test?

8 upvotes · 19 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

"Of course I could replace you. Whether I want to or not depends on you."

What the fuck is purpose? How do you know if you have a purpose?

8 upvotes · 19 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Will "grinding on my purpose" ensure pussy supply?

No. It's what you do when you have pussy supply. Take care of basic needs first, because only then will you be able to figure out who you are.

Men of scarcity are all the same. Men of abundance become different.

How to get over revenge fantasies?

8 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

One of the fundamentals we teach here is what some people call "fake it until you make it".

But this is actually not the best name. Because what's really going on is that, while mainstream society thinks that you change your behaviour by changing your thoughts, we think that you can change your thoughts by changing your behaviour.

Behave as if you were already the person you want to be. Don't wanna be dependent on the approval of others? Act as if you weren't.

Is cohabitation bad in ALL situations?

8 upvotes · 7 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Is cohabitation bad in ALL situations?

No.

Anthony Cumia — Red Pill rant about "love"

8 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

All love is conditional. Conditions are reasons. If we love with no conditions, then we love for no reason, and humans don't work like that.

The difference between the love that blue pill men idealize and the love that red pill men experience is that the latter is coupled with understanding. I don't love FunSize and FanGirl because I somehow imagine them to be perfect. They are made out of the same selfish goo as I am, and as you are, and as the rest of humanity is.

But they are good to me. They obey me, treat me with respect, and try very hard, not just at my instruction, but on their own, to make me happy. This motivates me to want to reward them.

Ultimately, what TRP found, when we set out to look fearlessly and unapologetically at how men and women actually are, we found that stereotypes exists for reasons, sex roles make both sexes happy, and that human mating is fairly simple if you know what to do and haven't been misled by idealists who want humans to be something other than they are.

FunSize is slightly over 30 years old now (she was 21 when we met), has an IQ higher than 90+% percent of the men reading this, has an advanced degree in mathematics, and is a lethal rifle shot at 600 yards. But she still sleeps with a stuffed red panda, calls me "daddy" a lot, and talks a lot of silly nonsense (all lovers have their own private languages).

Why? Because she's doing it on purpose. Because she knows that acting like a little girl is appealing, not off-putting, and being treated like a little girl is an expression of love and approval, not a patronizing insult as feminists would have you believe.

("You're treating her like a child!!!"...."So? Do YOU mistreat children?")

FunSize is almost universally adored and welcomed into male spaces, because she knows better than to try to act like a man. She's unapologetically feminine in the best way.

And when I give advice on RPW, and women listen, I see more of that... I see women acting the way I like it when they act. And of course I like them for that, because, like women, I am also a creature of instinct with buttons that can be pushed.

For example, one woman, in responding to a man who had been presumptuous with because he thought he was "red pill" (and didn't get it), said to him "I only defer to three men: my husband, my boss at work, and Whisper". (I know you're reading this, S. I love you, too.)

Imagine, for a moment, some woman saying the equivalent about you. Being a man, you know how it feels to desire that respect above all things, and (if you've been practicing what we teach here for a while) you also know what a euphoric feeling it is to get it. When a woman learns to push those buttons, just as you have learned to push hers, you may discover that you were never fooling women or manipulating them at all. You were just doing stuff that made them feel good, and excited, and they liked that. And when a woman learns to do that to you, you won't be "fooled" or "manipulated", you'll just like it and want more.

Yes, of course we point out the evil women are capable of. And, yes, we want you mad at them. And yes, we turn you into a misogynist... to start with. Because anger motivates action. Once you knock them off that pedestal, and rediscover your fucking balls, and stop groveling at them (which they find disgusting), then you can rediscover them as they actually are, without some sort of fake and stupid demand that they be angels of virtue.

If you walk this path far enough, you will lose your anger at women, because it's impossible to be mad at someone who treats you exactly how you want to be treated.

TRP's end game doesn't always look like a relationship, because not every man is into that. But it does seem like seeing women as adorable and often beloved children, not annoying brats or dangerous foes.

How to NOT argue with feminists.

8 upvotes · 12 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Sincerity will only get you so far. I realize you're new to all this, but you're going to have to realize that people don't just take in what you tell them, and it's not even as simple as whether they believe you or they don't.

For whatever reason, people are hardwired to resist changing their view of the world, so when they hear something, they would much rather interpret it in such a way that they can accommodate it (fit into their existing picture of the world), rather than in such a way that they would have to assimilate it (change their worldview so it fits).

Now, the major message here is that feminism is an worldview based on frustrated submissive urges, as illustrated by a story of how I was able to use this knowledge to make a feminist behave submissively (by providing an avenue for those urges).

But if someone hears this information from a standpoint of believing that feminism is a dangerous ideological cancer that has wrecked the world, then believing it would require a great deal of readjustment. So they will find some way to say it didn't happen.

You're not up against disbelief. You're up against the desire to disbelieve. So your eyewitness account isn't going to carry any weight, because it doesn't change that desire.

Why this total disregard for boys and their right to genital integrity? Infant boy lost his penis head during circumcision, but apparently its no big deal because they created a fake penis out from his scrotum and he can urinate just fine. Wtf?

8 upvotes · 23 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

It feels a whole lot better to have sex with intact men.

And, more to the point, sex feels better to intact men.

How do you handle traits in your SO that feel too alpha?

8 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You are correct, but you've missed the interesting question here, which is... why is /u/LadyHelvetica so upset about being told a simple and obvious fact?

She clearly doesn't understand her own motivations, which is not uncommon, but there's something there that's specific to her.

In my experience, the best thing to do is sleep on it. Fresh insights cannot occur without the emotional distance needed to think clearly.

Top toxic Female Dating Strategist inadvertently explains how they lose their pair bonding ability after riding the carousel.

8 upvotes · 26 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think the concept you are looking for is "fear". Most hatred people feel is directed towards that which they fear. And one of the ways that people try to deal with fear is by trying to control what they are afraid of.

The human race is wired together by the coupling of a male instinct to protect and care for women with a female instinct to defer to and obey men.

Now imagine you are a man who doesn't know of or believe in the female instinct to submit to you, but you know, because you can feel, that you are instinctively wired to be sympathetic and protective towards them, even at your own expense. And imagine that everyone else values them more and is more sympathetic to them, too.

Would you not be afraid of being manipulated and exploited?

Then imagine you are a woman who doesn't know of or believe in the male instinct to protect and care for you, but you know, because you can feel, that you are instinctively wired to follow male leadership, valuing their opinions and choices even over your own. And imagine that they are also so much stronger, faster, and tougher than you that they might as well be a leopard or a gorilla by comparison.

Would you not be afraid of being taken advantage or, abused, and hurt?

Women who like and trust men are women who believe men will look out for their interests, protect them, take care of them. They have no problem acting submissive because they feel safe doing so. Women who hate men are the ones who fear them, because they believe men won't look out for their interests, and will just use their superior strength and power to take what they want with no regard for her.

This is why women can simultaneously hate men and date men. They fear men, and they are trying to control the thing they fear so it won't harm them. What they don't realize is that evolution has already solved this problem for them. Men come pre-equipped from the factory with safeguards to prevent them from harming women... but these safeguards can fail, and one of the most potent ways of weakening them is for the woman to act controlling or hateful towards men.

That's why RPW teaches submissive behaviour... because when dealing with men, an appearance of weakness and vulnerability is actually a position of strength and safety. It activates an advocate that lives inside a man's head, already past all his defenses. This is far more effective than trying to win a ruthlessness, determination, and toughness contest with the sex that is built for precisely that.

Perpetual red pill rage: are some men better off MGTOW forever?

8 upvotes · 21 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

And it's impossible to stay mad at people who are nice to you all the time.

I (Chinese, 23F) need some help at becoming more independent

8 upvotes · 18 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

remember that I felt slightly guilty, but I couldn't resist him. From then on he spent more time with me; but he started to treat me roughly. He was always so caustic and so sarcastic, and he even told me TO MY FACE that he sometimes became aroused at seeing my cry. And the weird thing is, I started to WANT this, to WANT the denigrations and verbal abuse he threw during our sessions. I only ever told one other friend about this (obviously she told me its a FUCKING RED FLAG and our relationship could turn out abusive), but I never seriously considered ending our relationship from that point on.

BDSM dominant types of men are frequently aroused by distress signs. And BDSM submissive types frequently crave the treatment that causes it. The latter may be you, but the former is definitely him.

But that does not mean your relationship is a happy or healthy one. Just because lots of people enjoy mean kinks, and you may be one of them doesn't mean he is qualified to do them in such a way that preserves your physical and mental health. Inexperienced "doms" are dangerous, especially if they don't know about all the literature that's out there on this stuff.

Edit: I do know that that's how people would see it - but maybe I can take this chance to clarify: I really do want to live with him forever. These past 2 years, he has really changed into a better person. But this does seem like an excuse unless I give real instances when he has made me feel as though he loves me:

He listens to me even if I go on for 1-2 hours about my insecurities. He really does listen. If we are not together, he writes long messages to help me through my problems (things like not getting along with the boss at my internship, not being able to get along with project groupmates etc etc). If we are together, he analyses the situation in excruciating detail and suggests to me what I could do.

Definitely a BDSM dominant type. At their best, such men are excellent caretakers for the women they rule over. But, as I said before, this requires knowledge and skill, usually gained through experience.

Your problems are severalfold:

- He's inexperienced, and thus has a higher likelihood of harming you while he's figuring out how to express his desires in a sustainable way.
- He's not in touch with any of the resources and information that are out there about that sort of thing.
- You don't know, and you can't easily figure out, if you are into this sort of thing yourself.

You both live in a sexually repressed society, and you both may be trying to force the other person to be the sort of person you want to be with, rather than finding the sort of person who can actually do that for you.

What is your sex life like now?

Do you believe Jennifer Lopez's statement that men are useless before 33?

8 upvotes · 2 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why would anyone want to be useful to Jennifer Lopez?

Using Your Cash To Maximize Muscle Mass

8 upvotes · 7 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

There. Actionable.

Much better.

Meeting a married man?

8 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is a very bad idea.

And when I say that, let me make it crystal clear who I am. Who this is that's saying it.

I am a cad. I am precisely the sort of man who does stuff like this. I have seduced a lot of women, a fair number of them married. I helped found an entire "Red Pill" group devoted to teaching men how to seduce naive young women like you. I have cheated in every long term relationship I've ever been in, usually openly. I have two girlfriends right now, both of whom live with me, and I'm into all sorts of kinky stuff that would probably horrify you. I've "ruined" a lot of good little Christian girls, and enjoyed every moment. I'm not the slightest bit ashamed, because I have the morals of a cat.

And I am telling you don't do this.

Think about it:

- You absolutely are attracted to him. That's why you are even thinking about this.
- You totally will sleep with him if you continue to see him.
- Unless his wife is really unusual, and willing to share (not fucking likely), and you're okay with that (even less fucking likely), then that can only end one of two ways.
- Either you are a fling, and waste pieces of your life having sex with a man you can never keep.
- Or you split up his marriage, and now have to deal with two stepchildren who might hate you, an ex-wife who will hate you, and a whole lot of baggage.

If you have a thing for older men, that's fine. There are single dudes in their 40s. There are divorced men in their 40s. There are widowers. Dating a man a decade or two older than you is just fine.

But a married man, with kids... bad idea. (If his relationship is over for its own reasons, let him deal with that first. Then you can date him if you want. Then it's not on you.)

One Way Open-Relationship: LTR's Idea

8 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

I prefer my relationship with FunSize and FanGirl (with perhaps some attention from groupie girls, like Outback, here and there) to spinning plates... but I had to spin plates before I was ready to handle multiple relationships.

A rule of thumb some people use is 30/30: "don't get into a serious relationship until you have fucked at least 30 women, and are at least 30 years old".

I don't agree precisely, but it expresses a sentiment that should be taken to heart. Remember that getting and keeping a relationship is her responsibility, not yours.

I Know I'm trapped in the friendzon with no way out but I dont have anyone in my life to vent these feelings to...

8 upvotes · 22 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

You're not "trapped" in the friendzone, idiot. You can walk right out of it.

Fix this mess

8 upvotes · 19 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

You are an addict.

Fiance want new boobs, i will be shit tested, need advice

8 upvotes · 11 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

<https://imgur.com/B4yLlol>

Why is it that all around the world throughout history, women have always been disregarded as below men?

8 upvotes · 11 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Because humans are so very smart, and this has a tremendous biological cost. You have to start building that giant brain early, which means you have to deliver something with a giant head... and you have to deliver it prematurely, because if you left a human in the womb for the ideal amount of time, you couldn't get it out.

Newborn horses can walk in a few hours. Newborn humans can't support their own heads.

Every aspect of the structure of a woman's body, and her instinctive behaviour, has been "designed" around the strain of having genius babies. Tremendous biological sacrifices have been made to make this possible. And it flows over into men, as well... because they now have to be adapted to do the things women can't or won't, because of the babies.

Humans are a race which has been twisted by hyperspecialization. It's been a successful experiment, we rule the fucking planet, but sometimes we fail to recognize and account for the cost.

Ex LTR wants to know why I nexted her

8 upvotes · 5 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Apply Briffault's Law in your own life. If it's over, there is no benefit to you in having a long conversation about how or why.

Women like these conversations, but you giving them a post-breakup conversation makes as little sense as them giving you a post-breakup blowjob. It benefits only one of two people.

The moment it's over, you say, "Okay", and you go.

The Power of the Pussy by Kara King

8 upvotes · 2 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

My perception of men changed after working as a stripper as a university student.

So you're not exactly a catch.

Some guys offered me £1,000s to sleep with them.

And you interacted with thirsty dudes who weren't exactly catches either.

Men are bestial and driven by their libidos and they can easily be manipulated.

Are you familiar with the term "selection bias"? You only saw the ones who were this way. Others stayed away from you.

Most guys I have dated have always been too clingy. I have never, ever had a problem with getting guys to commit.

Thirsty.

It's me who usually ends the relationship - with a single exception.

Like most other women, you are unable to be enthusiastic about low-value men.

I have had ex-boyfriends park outside my house all night, turn up to my university lectures even though they're not on my course, bombard me with emails/texts, etc.

And it didn't make you feel all that validated, did it? Of course not, not in the long run. Because a man's attention has value in proportion to how much value HE has. A low-value man's attention is worth almost nothing.

Some men pay whores to have sex with them, and some men pay whores to go away afterwards... so whores can get exposed to both low and high value men. But men pay strippers for one thing, and one thing only... to pretend to like them.

Men who women actually like, never pay strippers. Strippers almost never get a chance to see those men at all.

That's the reason you are advocating what is basically a strategy for bottom-feeding. Since you don't get high-quality attention from high-quality men, you are trying to make up for it with quantity... by manipulating weak men into jumping through more and more flaming hoops, you are essentially trying to make up for the low value of their approval by extracting lots of it.

But there's a reason that doesn't work too well... because, with each act of elaborate supplication you see him make, your own instinctive estimation of his value lowers. That means that you end up taking ever more and more of a drug that gets weaker and weaker as you take it.

You're stuck in loop.

I could tell you how to get unstuck... but you'd first have to admit to yourself that you were. I'm not so sure you're brave enough to do that.

Question for guys who are into rough sex/dominance/sadism: do you do it because you like it, or just to please women?

8 upvotes · 20 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you do what you like, you wind up with chicks who like what you like.

If you do what chicks like, you wind up with chicks who like what you do.

The female equivalent to all men thinking they are above average

8 upvotes · 23 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Almost all men think they are above average. Almost all women think they deserve above average.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

8 upvotes · 20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed.

Any TRP advice is forever being met with "not all women are into that!" by the hecklers in the cheap seats. But, even if that were true... so what? You treat girls like the girls you are looking for would want to be treated.

The ones who nope the fuck out, fine. Just saves you some trouble.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

8 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's written for angry teenagers.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

8 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We actually don't care how we are viewed from the outside.

How to tell my SO she's gaining weight?

8 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

"You've let yourself get fat."

Why do women deserve to be treated badly after making 'mistakes'?

8 upvotes · 27 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This attitude that refusing to date a women is "mistreating" her is certainly a very flattering attitude about men.

Still more flattering is the attitude that men are omnipotent gods with great cosmic power who can bring justice to the world and make sure that their lowly female worshipers all get exactly what they deserve, instead of mere mortals who have their own lives to look after.

Truly feminism is the ultimate in submissive philosophies... every time it wants something, it grovels at the feet of the patriarchy, appealing for rescue.

3 simple steps to keep him smitten forever!

8 upvotes · 17 December 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you don't like quality of the free advice, then be the change you wish to see in the world, and post better.

One of the reasons that RPW articles are often basic instead of advanced is that, in general:

- Men generally understand women a hell of a lot better than women understand men.
- Most of our teaching efforts are expended in simply getting women to realize the novel idea that what men want might be important.
- Most of the rest of our teaching efforts are expended in dispelling stupid myths about what men supposedly want, which survive because many women like to give advice about subjects they are ignorant of.

In other words, TRP has progressed to Advanced Flying Lotus Kungfu: Harnessing Your Chi to Run Up Walls, while RPW is stuck at "How Hold Fighting Stick?".

This is not actually a problem, however, because the lesson that most needs teaching is always the one that the student most needs to learn.

The limits of our philosophy

8 upvotes · 10 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

8 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So, in other words, you have nothing.

No evidence that reading Derrida is more useful than reading Star Wars fan fiction. Just a torrent of rhetoric about why I "should" believe you. And if I choose to ignore you, there's nothing you can do.

That which does not function without faith is a religion. Which is what you, son, are practicing.

My Mother wants me to be a Sugar Baby

8 upvotes · 30 November 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

My Mother wants me to be a ~~Sugar Baby~~ Whore.

Fixed that for you.

Any positive LTR stories?

8 upvotes · 26 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

Ignore the sophomores and listen to what the professors are saying.

People who follow my writings know a detail here and there about FunSize, who has been with me quite a while now, and Kitten, who is working on her jealousy problems and might work out.

Girl asking for money after realizing I am fucking other girls.

8 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

I don't teach guys how to fuck other men.

Three academics just proved the nonsense of Gender Studies that led to our quarantine

8 upvotes · 3 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for spotting this, but there's something here that's dead wrong.

These academics, and you, when you talk about them, are careful to point out that they are left-leaning. To casual observation and thinking, it may seem to make their case stronger... after all, it defends them from counter-accusations of political bias.

But would right-wing thinkers have somehow produced a more undetectable grade of nonsense? Would this have somehow been unfair?

The facts are the facts.

- Some authors intentionally wrote nonsense papers.
- Other academics accepted them as genuine scholarship.
- These individuals therefore demonstrate that they cannot tell the difference between scholarship in their field, and satire of their field.
- If the keepers of the journals can't tell the difference, who can?
- If a difference cannot be told, there is none.

These researchers, in pointing out that they are left-wing, and you, in echoing this point, are simply revealing how much your own thought processes have been influenced by the postmodernist idea that who is speaking matters along with what is being said.

Truth is true, and falsity false, regardless of who speaks it. While the expertise of the speaker does matter in deciding who is likely to be speaking the truth, the identity, opinions, and even biases of the speaker are irrelevant when the content can be tested.

And any content that cannot be tested has no business being regarded as scholarship rather than fruitless speculation.

How Many Women?

8 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Cut the poor lad a break. He thinks ancient Greece and Rome were monogynous, so his struggle is clearly tough enough already.

"If you hurt her I'll hurt you" - trope, how to handle?

8 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

- "I think I already did... do spankings count?"
- "I'll eventually break her heart, so why don't you just go for it right now?"
- {Smile} "I'm sure your motives are entirely noble and pure."

Do I text him?

8 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I know that if a man is interested he will pursue you no matter what. Right?

And how do "know" that?

Because your bestie told you after three mimosas?

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

8 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Hahaha that last line cracked me up. Some guys do! You'd be surprised.

I was indeed thinking that as I wrote it. But if you were into those kinda guys, we wouldn't be having this conversation.

If a woman can't find the sort of man she wants, it's almost never a case of just not running into him. There are all different sorts of men pretty much anywhere. It's almost always that she has some way of presenting herself that makes him not want to be found.

The trick is to interact with men as people, instead of as a set of political positions. What you're going for here is building rapport and trust, not winning an argument. That's what I mean about listening to conservatives. It's not just, or even primarily about, hearing our reasons for having the political positions we do. It's about understanding our lives, personal experiences, and values... because those are where everyone's political views come from.

And, yes, this kinda is something you have to work with to get what you want, because guys with high testosterone just don't have pictures of Che Guevara on their tshirts. We tend to have the Gadsden flag instead.

When you understand how someone lives their life, what's important to them, why it's important to them, hopes, dreams, aspirations, all that deeply personal and individual stuff, not only will their political beliefs make sense to you (even if you still don't agree), but they will be so much less important to you than the other things you now know about them. So, listening and being receptive is good, but what even more important is what you listen about.

Why is it in the eyes of a beta, that the alphas or guys that get the girls are assholes?

8 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Here's how the thought process would be described if people were honest with themselves:

1. I feel bad when I see him.
2. He made me feel bad.
3. He is an asshole.

Why do so many men still follow the red pill philosophy when there are so many women against that kind of thinking?

8 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Bro, if you listen to what women say, instead of watching what they do, they will forever be a mystery to you.

If women want men to stop doing redpill shit, all they need to do is stop fucking guys who do redpill shit, and start fucking neckbeards, niceguys, and white knights.

Field Report: I tried using the Bad Excuse!

8 upvotes · 28 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Before, I could barely make eye contact with men even when they talked to me first. Then I would question why I couldn't get anyone interested in me even though I thought I was reasonably attractive. I thought maybe I actually have a low SMV; maybe I smelled funny; maybe there was just a negative energy about me. After today, it was clear that it really is all about the way you carry yourself and how you put yourself out there.

+1 (/u/LuckyLittleStar)

Going to write an article expanding on this.

Accepting TRP Will Make You Unhappy: Your Choice if That's Permanent

8 upvotes · 25 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Stage 4, depression.

The Manual. Do you agree with it ?

8 upvotes · 12 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

I think I have detected sperg-like typing.

Stop looking for someone to tell you what to think, and start learning how to think.

Unpopular opinion: all this strategy talk and tactic advice might change what you do, but it will not change who you are

8 upvotes · 5 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no who you are.

There is only what you do.

How to be more sexual and "slutty" with my man?

8 upvotes · 3 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

With the discovery of RPW i became much more feminine, softer, less promiscuous and much more submissive, but he says he hates that about me. I used to be very flirty, confident and would give off a very sexual vibe before getting into an LTR with him.

"Wanton slut" and "demure lady" are not things for you to be. They are behaviours. They are tools in your toolbox.

"Slut", in particular, is a word that many women have a complex relationship with, because it has several different meanings, some very negative, others not so much.

When men say they don't want to commit to a "slut", they mean a woman who is disloyal and will cheat on them. They emphatically do not mean a sexually eager or adventurous woman.

What you do, and who you do it with, are totally different things.

This is why your this:

I used to be very flirty, confident and would give off a very sexual vibe before getting into an LTR with him. But as we got more and more serious, i started controlling all of that to be respectful in front of his friends, family, out in public, etc.

... is deeply confused behaviour, not respectful behaviour.

Being a good mate and companion does not mean shutting down your sexuality. It means directing it towards your chosen man.

I'll finish with a story of something a college girlfriend said once that has stuck with me to this day:

In a childish, early-twentysomething argument (I even forget what it was about), some other girl let loose with a torrent of abuse, finishing by saying that her breath "smells like cock all the time".

She arched an eyebrow, and said, with perfect calm: "Yes, dear, but my breath..." {and here she slid up next to me on the couch and wrapped an arm around me} "... always smells like the same cock."

Point, set, match, and a smile on my face.

Is there a way back?

8 upvotes · 26 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

<https://i.imgur.com/6icZ3.png>

How to get married, have kids or both at 21?

8 upvotes · 26 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Believe it or not, men are just as intelligent, on average, as you are, and will notice if you try to play them.

What causes men to be romantics and women to be realists? and why does it seem like the opposite?

8 upvotes · 16 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

People get good at what they have to be good at to survive and prosper.

Men are good at creating things. Women are good at manipulating men.

I'm 14 and a homeschool student but I have the option of attending high school for grades 9-12 or attending community college and transferring to my local university. The latter would put me on track to graduate at 19 (updates and important details in comment)

8 upvotes · 11 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Public compulsory education is a loser factory.

They teach you to respect authority, follow other people's plans for you, learn academic subjects but not life skills, get an A by avoiding mistakes (risk-averse), sit quietly, raise your hand before speaking, wait your turn. Loser skills.

Plenty of brilliant people pretended what they had to pretend, and got through it okay, but anyone who actually liked it is a sheep in sheep's clothing.

How do you sustain a mutually awesome sex life?

8 upvotes · 7 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

When he wants to have sex, the way he kisses me changes, and I know what's impending. I clam up. And I get annoyed. My brain starts up with "He wants something from me, isn't trying to create much of an intimate setting here, I'm just going to disappoint him and feel guilty"

Overthinking.

That little LED light on the turned-off television isn't the reason you can't sleep... it's just a thing you're focusing on because you have insomnia.

How does my story fit into TRP

8 upvotes · 4 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

So, basically I have this thing going on with a girl from HS.

I just realized how different men and women are. (Best vs. Most)

8 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is redpill 101.

Sperm is cheap, eggs are expensive. Everything can be derived from this.

How to have sex with my oneitis

8 upvotes · 20 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

I can spot a man with oneitis just from word count.

LTR went out last night, still isn't back. Instant hard next?

8 upvotes · 7 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

Doesn't matter if she cheated or not. She will. She doesn't respect you, and she's not afraid of angering or disappointing you.

You should not be living with any girl who would not be sobbing with terror at the idea of doing something that would make you dump her.

If you can't inspire that in a woman, don't live with one, and don't invest in one. Fuck em until it gets stale, and move on.

It's not 1950 anymore. Strange dick is easy to ride, they aren't ashamed of it like they used to be, and other women will cover for them instead of ruining their reputation.

Be ruthless.

Thoughts on shares like this?

8 upvotes · 3 April 2018 · /r/MensRights

If you teach boys that "girls are not sexual objects" and that they are wrong to be distracted by scantily clad girls, you teach them that their sexual drive is bad, unwelcome, and something to be ashamed of.

But you don't give a crap because they are boys, and unlike with girls, you have no instinctive drive to value or protect them.

So years later, they make a reddit group called TheRedPill to undo the damage you did. Now you give a crap, because they're doing something you don't like, but it's too late, because they are no longer listening to you, having realized years ago that you do not have their best interests at heart.

How I Manage My LTR

8 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course he does.

The way to snoop on a girl's phone is to pick it up right in front of her and start looking through it.

If she objects to this, then you need to build more dominance in the relationship.

Families and Children

8 upvotes · 6 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah, fuck them.

I'm not a champion for Team Man, I'm an arms dealer.

That's why I tell men "Don't get married, dumbass", and women "Here's how to talk a dumbass into marrying you"... because I don't give a shit what happens to dumbasses who ignore my advice.

This is true for men in general. There is no male solidarity. I will happily steal your girl. Hell, my girl will happily steal your girl (while I'm eating your lunch out of the fridge) and bring her to me for a threesome.

Bros before hoes, of course, but just having a penis does not make someone my bro. My bros are the guys I can call at 3am to help me bury a dead hooker in a shallow grave in the Arizona desert.

Hypothetically speaking.

Families and Children

8 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is all well reasoned. Not only do I not disagree, I can't even think of anything that needs to be added.

Having kids is awesome. No one will ever love you the way they do.

I've thought about writing a followup article on the level of "Okay, since we've discussed how family has been redefined, and the risks that implies, if you're determined to do it, here's how".

But I don't think I can, because I just don't understand the urge that these men have. I could give them useful knowledge on how to control a woman in an LTR, but I would have no understanding of their basic motivation for creating bacon golems, and I suspect the whole thing would fall flat.

Did you love them once you met them? Or did you want them before you had them?

Families and Children

8 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This post is incredibly defeatist.

It is what it is.

You wanna take the risk, take the risk. I never told you not to.

But man up and stop throwing a tantrum because someone told you something you wish wasn't true.

How to stop being so "boy obsessed"?

8 upvotes · 27 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is not altogether uncommon.

The important thing is understand the distinction between wanting to be "in love" and loving someone. There are a lot of young women out there who are focused on being in a relationship, and the actual man involved is sort of an afterthought.

If you're fantasizing about your wedding more than your life afterwards, this is you.

Believe it or not, this makes you a crappy relationship partner, because men tend to prefer being loved to being appreciated solely as a source of attention and validation. What you describe as "clinging" is not just inappropriate closeness, but constant attempts to control... in order to make his behaviour in the relationship live up to your fantasy ideal.

The purpose of all of this is to make you feel special, desirable, loved... successful. It's the female equivalent of that man who has to "bang" as many "hot chicks" as possible, even if the sex is lousy, and the party circuit sucks after a while... because he wants to look and feel successful, even if he's not enjoying himself.

It's wanting to be loved so perfectly that you "beat" all the other girls, because the hottest guy bought you the biggest shiny rock.

You don't hate yourself because you act like this. You act like this because you hate yourself. And you want a man to make that go away, with endless expressions of desire and adoration.

But how much a man loves you is not a measure of how amazing you are. It is a measure of how well you treat him. And you can mistreat a man and make him hate you with constant demands to make you feel like you're amazing.

It is women who want to be treated "well enough" by someone amazing. Men aren't like you. They want to be treated amazing by someone "good enough".

You will never find the love you seek until you learn to focus on someone else instead of yourself.

Cancer

8 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The learning of any subject naturally proceeds from the specific to the general.

First you learn very specific stuff, by rote. Then you learn the principles behind it. Then you generate your own specific material.

TRP tactics are devastating to communities. A Gynocentric Sexual Marketplace is necessary to maintain a functioning society.

8 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women have only one win state in the sexual marketplace... a stable LTR.

Men have two... either to be a Patriarch (be the respected head of a family), or a Libertine (bang a lot of different women).

Which one most men will favour depends on which one is most heavily rewarded by society. If Patriarchs are respected, admired, and obeyed, men will want to be Patriarchs. If they are held in contempt and exploited as work horses and cash machines, men will want to be Libertines instead.

The moment society got on board with feminism's rallying cry of "Smash the Patriarchy!", it was, in effect, demanding more Libertines.

TRP is an effect of this, not a cause. It focuses on Libertine game because under current conditions, only a sucker would want to be a husband and father now. It's just not a good enough deal anymore.

Does this destroy society? Of course it does. The building block of society is the nuclear family.

But so far all we are seeing done about this is a lot of whining about how men refuse to dive on a grenade for people who don't respect them. There is no push to eliminate welfare payments, roll back feminism, or restore fathers' rights.

Without incentives, men are not going to play ball.

Men are rational creatures. You are going to get from them the kind of behaviour you reward.

I don't know how to tell guys I want a serious relationship

8 upvotes · 1 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The key to getting what you want isn't "asking for it". It's earning it.

Telling men you want a serious relationship means nothing. It means less than nothing. Men are not sandwiches. You don't just order one up with the stuff you want on it.

What you have to do is make him want a serious relationship.

Coming out of the gate right up from, as the same woman you always were, with "serious relationship or no deal" is just going to wind you up alone. Because men aren't stupid. Raising the price doesn't raise the quality.

Women Marching Against Themselves

8 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Your idea was proposed before you were ever here.

Your idea was tried before you were ever here.

Your idea failed catastrophically before you were ever here.

Your idea has now been discarded, and will not be resurrected to please you, because you have zero stake in this group.

Clear?

Men who are against marriage. Would you marry a woman who was richer than you?

8 upvotes · 24 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Don't be silly. Family courts don't screw you because you have more money. They screw you because you're a man.

Healing from past relationships and sexual behavior, any advice?

8 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Most women who self-identify as feminists do not actually hate or resent men. They are simply unaware that the philosophy they thought was benign was written by those who did.

In environments where everyone agrees with something, it can be awfully hard to think it through, and ask what is actually happening. We seldom question basic assumptions.

Some people, probably a lot of different people, probably at college, told you that for the entirety of human history up until the mid-1960s or so, women were "pressured" into being wives and mothers, instead of, say, having sex with about a dozen different men before the age of 21, terminating an unplanned pregnancy, getting a bunch of tattoos, etc. And they spoke of marriage and children with a fair amount of contempt, as if it were slavery.

So you listened. And you thought "yeah, women shouldn't be pressured!"

It didn't occur to you that what you had just listened to was also pressure.

So you went out and had sex with a dozen different men before the age of 21. And now, here you are, single and worried that men don't want a girl who has ridden a dozen different cocks in the first three years of her adult life.

Which is perfectly correct, because men are capable of subtracting 18 from 21 and getting 3, then dividing 12 by 3 and getting 4, then dividing 365 by 4 and getting 91.25, which is the number of days, based on your past behaviour, which they can expect you to wait before going and finding some strange dick.

The drawback to freedom of choice is that other people have it, too. And much as feminism collectively wishes it were not so, that includes men. What choices do you suppose they might make, based on the information above?

So, instead of following one set of advice, you followed another. You were still being obedient. You were still making the choices someone else told you you should make. The difference was, that advice came from a philosophy that cared only for abstract political principles, not for you.

And we know it didn't work out for you, because here you are, asking the anti-feminists for advice.

So, there are three things you need to do to make the best of your situation:

1. Renounce feminism. You don't have to do this publicly (nobody cares), but you have to admit to yourself that following its advice was bad for you. Otherwise you will continue to make bad choices.
2. Hear and accept a whole lot of bad news about what you can expect from the future. Accept responsibility for making the choices that put you here.
3. Do a lot of work on yourself to make the best of a bad hand of cards.

We can discuss the second two steps if you are capable of the first.

Girl wants to "talk more" before date. How to proceed?

8 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

If she doesn't want to meet you in person, you are auditioning for the role of orbiter, not stud.

Does anyone believe we can change/alter female beauty standards in any possible way with the right conditioning?

8 upvotes · 17 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

fairly obvious

This is BluePillse for "I have no evidence for this, but I'm hoping confident assertion will be enough."

The 237 Commandments of the Alpha Sperg

8 upvotes · 7 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course you were depressed. Depression is feeling bad because your life sucks and you don't have what you want.

So you cured your depression by making your life not suck.

But depression isn't Depression™.

Depression™ is a way that someone came up with of interpreting depression so they could sell pills to sad people (whose money is as good as anyone else's).

But you know far better than the pill-pushers how to cure Depression™, because you went and did it by treating it the same as just plain old depression, which is exactly what it is.

People who want everyone to understand that they have Depression™, not just depression, are trying to dodge responsibility. But as you know, the cure for depression is to do the opposite.

When a Girl Tells You Whats Wrong

8 upvotes · 29 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

In general, don't ask what's wrong.

If you do, and she says "nothing", don't pry, even if she wants you to. Just take it literally. And if she mopes and sucks all the fun out of the interaction, go somewhere else and do something fun.

If you do, and she tells you, unless it's serious shit like her parents dying in a plane crash, tease her for being silly and fussing about trivial things.

Above all, do not take her mood swings seriously. Do not try to comfort her or cheer her up. Instead, be unfazed yourself.

Why am I afraid to escalate?

8 upvotes · 23 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

You are afraid.

Your instincts evolved under conditions of much greater mate scarcity than those that exist today. This is why abundance mentality is something you must consciously work to build.

When you first start escalating aggressively, you will be rejected. Not might. Will. This is because you have no experience.

Those first few rejections are an experience you must have, not because you need practice at escalating (although you do), but because you need to stop fearing rejection.

In fact, for those of you who are high-status, handsome, ripped and huge, whatever before you discovered TRP... if you don't get rejected much, go out and get rejected on purpose.

Because a high success rate isn't nearly as needful a thing as not fearing rejection.

Revised.... Ex wife reaching out, AWALT

8 upvotes · 23 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Interesting how the author had to say this:

BTW, if you want to understand the mystery of women's addiction to shoes, here's my take: shoes are the article of clothing that represent possibility. Each shoe is a different look, a different character, and she can select "who" she wants to be that day. You might not notice the difference, but she feels it. This is not borderline-- it's normal, but it's normal because the shoe changes and the rest of her doesn't.

... order to back away from the near-inescapable conclusion that that every woman is pretty much borderline, because that would be "misogynistic".

Also not touched on is the equally suggested conclusion that, to the degree that femininity resembles borderline personality disorder, masculinity resembles narcissistic personality disorder.

Western Men Have Been Castrated

8 upvotes · 22 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why Muslims immigrants rape.

They have no seduction skills at all. Their only contexts for dealing with women are Islamic marriage rules, where the woman must submit sexually regardless of her wishes, or being totally isolated from them.

They have never had the need or the opportunity to understand female psychology or desires.

yay or nay to earrings?

8 upvotes · 15 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

Make sure they match your purse and heels.

New Mod - RedGoldSaint

8 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Sperg-like typing detected.

I hate myself because of my high n-count..advice?

8 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

You are welcome.

Don't hesitate to post other questions if you hit future snags.

"The One."

8 upvotes · 27 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

It is wise to focus less on finding "the One", and more on being "the One".

Let's talk prenups.

8 upvotes · 20 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Prenups are useful... because family courts love a good laugh.

In all seriousness, family courts have torn up these agreements for all kinds of reasons, including feeling that it was "unfair", or that it was "signed under duress" (and, yes, duress can include "he wouldn't have married me if I didn't sign").

It's important to understand that marriage is no longer a contract.

Contracts have:

- Terms
- Consent
- Enforcement

... modern marriage has none of these things. The terms are undefined (only to be decided by a court if and when the union is dissolved), they don't have consent (because you can't consent if you don't know what you are consenting to), and they don't have enforcement (because undefined terms cannot be enforced).

Now, the prenup is an attempt by couples to take back control of their marriage from the state, by explicitly defining terms and making a contract. Problem is, it requires the assent of the state to do so, and the state has already decided it doesn't want marriage to be a contract.

So you can try it, but don't expect miracles.

I want to be the best wife I can be.

8 upvotes · 9 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Women want to be treated well enough by someone awesome.

Men want to be treated awesome by someone good enough.

Plan accordingly.

MGTOW are simply incels who celebrate the fact they can't get any pussy rather than feel down about it

8 upvotes · 30 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

You can generalize all of anything.

Spergs obsess on details, and being 100% correct all the time.

Others understand that generalities are useful, and get shit done.

Fuck All This Self-Promotion

8 upvotes · 29 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Donation links aren't for feeding me. They are for starving Reddit.

Frankly, I haven't had anything useful to say on TRP in quite some time, and I don't think I will. The Eternal September has come, not in the form of groveling numales watering down the message (the threat we were afraid of), but in a wave of lazy autists who, when you point at the moon, will immediately start an argument about your finger.

Autists who haven't read the sidebar. Autists who whine for step by step instructions when offered the education they need in order to write their own game plan. Autists who think posting redpill platitudes in alphabet soup order is the fast track to a shiny EC badge and a handjob from the mods. Autists who think it's someone else's job not only to spoon feed them for free, but to convince them the medicine will help. Autists who cry about a tip jar.

TRP has more traffic, by many orders of magnitude, than asktrp, and why? Autists so in love with the sound of their own voice that they will type, type, type just to see themselves in print, but never do what would actually make their lives better... asking for advice, and then listening to it.

I didn't write my thoughts for a few $1 tips. Jesus fuck, if counted what I bill out at by the hour, some of that shit would have to have earned thousands of dollars just to break even.

I did it for the satisfaction of knowing that I'd helped some misled dude rediscover his balls.

Well, the joy is gone. Because for every young man who reads this shit, then goes out to lift iron, disrespect sluts, and get his dick wet, there's ten fucking spergs who wanna sit around on TRP and argue about what the "truly alpha" thing to do is in situations they haven't experienced in years, or whether GLO "should" sell tshirts or something.

And that's okay, because I have what I want. The message is out there. It has been said, loud, clear, and repeatedly, that women love and desire the precise type of man they complain the most about... that they love what they say they hate, hate what they say they want, despise those who worship them, and worship those who hold them in amused contempt. The idea has been set free, and men who actually want to do some work, achieve something, and feel some pride can take and do just that. They will not be inhibited in the slightest by spergs sitting around here jerking off to internet arguments.

Girl I started messaging with few days ago asks "do you like me?" What the fuck do I say

8 upvotes · 9 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

"Depends what you're wearing. "

I can only have sex with damaged women?

8 upvotes · 4 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

Why do think that only broken women could ever desperately want you?

Fix your head.

Are all men on The Red Pill only looking to get laid?

8 upvotes · 14 April 2017 · /r/askTRP

I can see that TRP is, as a whole, more about self-improvement in general than just women.

No. No, not really.

It's not about abstract or general "self-improvement", but about improving the specific traits that make men attractive to women, so that men can have more sexual options and power.

I guess just in terms of relationships/women, is getting married/long-term dating apart of the 'getting your shit together'? Whereas getting laid is just a fulfilling success up until that point? Or is it relative to each male?

Every man has his own sexual goals. TRP is here to help men achieve them, not choose them.

But we do have some advice about relationships.

Men have to treat relationships the way you treat sex.

Of course you want sex. You love sex. But you also have to be the gatekeeper of sex. Otherwise, you'd end up having sex with a lot of unworthy men. Well, similarly, many men want relationships. But they also have to serve as the gatekeepers of intimacy and investment, and turn away unworthy women.

So we don't teach men how to "get" a relationship. That's not hard for men, in the same way that you can get laid any time you want (if you can't, I'm sorry, but that means you're ugly). We teach men how to get to sex, and then how to filter those women for the relationship-worthy ones.

HELP! I Got Off the Cock Carousel too Early!

8 upvotes · 8 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

There's no percentage in arguing about whose "fault" it is. Doesn't matter.

The point is, avoid his fate.

This might be totally normal for you guys, but it still baffles me

8 upvotes · 12 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem she is that a discrepancy in their SMV will disadvantage her by giving him more options.

Improving your SMV is one variety of dread game.

LTR wants to try celibacy for a month as a way to "grow closer"

8 upvotes · 7 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

You're a special kind of dumb, aren't you?

Man write a well-reasoned opinion piece about not dating feminists. Predictably, every single comment is "you're so fat and ugly nobody would date you anyway". So only handsome men get an opinion?

8 upvotes · 11 September 2016 · /r/MensRights

Men's rights guys don't demand that women be attracted to them.

It's people job to be attractive, not everyone else's to be attracted.

Q4BPMen: What would you do if your wife or SO stopped having sex with you?

8 upvotes · 17 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Sex lives in marriages don't deteriorate because of poor sex. The sex deteriorates because life gets in the way.

No.

Life gets in the way because sexual attraction has waned. The whole evolutionary "purpose" of sexual attraction is to make people have sex, despite "life" getting in the way.

When sexual attraction is strong, people will lose sleep, spend money, risk their health, risk social censure, risk prison time, and make any sacrifice to have sex with the object of attraction. When it is weaker, things can get in the way, and when it's weak enough, almost anything can get in the way.

Article from Journal of Evolution and Human Behavior: Men pay far more for younger prostitutes. How does this fit into the RP vs BP paradigm? (banned from sugar subreddit)

8 upvotes · 2 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Taking great comfort appears to have been your goal in this conversation. Which is why you fail to understand what's going on.

Some people look a thing and ask "What's going on?". Others ask "How do I feel about this?". The later question is generally incompatible with study.

Blue Pill Insanity: "Seducing Mr Perfect" a korean romantic comedy + why women are unhappy.

8 upvotes · 27 July 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is a common trope in women's wish-fulfillment fantasy fiction. Romantic success falls from the sky and lands on a woman who has done absolutely nothing to make it happen.

Since women are not the ones who actively pursue sex, but rather wait to be approached, many think that nothing is up to them, and there's nothing they have to do, because there is nothing they can do.

Not so.

Simply put, a better quality of bait attracts a better quality of fish.

CMV: Feminists, Bluepillers, etc. all truly despise incels and wish for their extermination

8 upvotes · 28 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Absolutely not.

They don't have anything that bears that much resemblance to a coherent plan.

- Women want incels to go away (from their location). They just don't want to see, hear, or interact with them.
- Female feminists want that, too, except with the added codicil that they are willing to actively harm them to make that happen.
- Male feminists want to give female feminists whatever they want, without limit or question.
- Bluepillers want to believe in a just universe, which requires them to believe that incels morally deserve the above conditions.

Admitting that incel men are weak rather than evil requires one to discard belief in a just universe, which most people find too threatening, because if horrible things can happen to nice people, then they cannot protect themselves from horrible things by being nice.

[Mod] Wanted:Dead or Alive! Posts and comments that "make RPW a plate school." Reward!

8 upvotes · 28 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I understand that trepidation... lots of people know that impulsive riding the cock train is very bad for women later in life, and the immediate impulse is, of course, to say "just stop that".

The problem is that women ain't gonna. And men wouldn't go for it if they did.

Making women practice true monogamy (one partner per lifetime) requires an entire society working together to channel them toward that goal. In particular, you need certain things:

- Vigorous slut-shaming, not just on the part of a fringe internet group, but from all directions in women's lives.
- Young age of marriage for women, to a point that most modern Americans would find shocking (14-18).
- Unambiguously patriarchal families (to raise girls willing to do the first two).

If this sounds familiar, I talked about it in my writing about "Who killed marriage?".

We don't have these things as a society, and we can't get them without restructuring society. So what we have is not true monogamy (one partner per lifetime), but serial monogamy (one partner at a time).

So the question of "What is RPW strategy?" becomes "Given that we have serial monogamy, how can a woman maximize her long-term happiness?".

The thing about serial monogamy is that it exists on a continuum between "almost-monogamy" (never to almost never switch partners) to "hookup culture" (each sexual encounter is a "relationship" lasting one night). The instant you have sex, you're riding the cock train. The trick is to successfully stick with one as soon as possible. RPW strategy has to focus on that if it is to be realistic, because trying to resurrect the culture of the past doesn't work.

If people aren't realistic about that, what happens is you get an RPW sub that's full of married women who drive off all the unmarried ones:

"I'm married, and therefore an honest woman (nevermind that my N-count isn't one, that all the men's fault, those cads), and so I can signal virtue to everyone around me by calling all the unmarried women whores and sluts for having sex with men they are trying to keep."

Such a sub tends to be full of great advice for married women, and women in stable LTRs, about how to make the best of what they already have, but actually single women aren't really all that welcome, and don't get much help.

Another Poor Bastard Finds Out His Wife Was a Whore For Everyone But Him

8 upvotes · 27 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Lemme guess... she's a good mother to her son (by her scumbag ex who abused her... you know because she told you all about it), so she'll be a great mother to your kids!

And you just bought the ring, and you're soooo excited to get down on one knee and ask her.

Who killed Marriage 1.0? (Trigger warning: dry theory)

8 upvotes · 13 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Globalists/the left/the powers that be are plotting to destroy civilisation. And the first step is to destroy marriage.

That's precisely what I was trying to step away from. I disapprove of globalists/oligarchs/socialists/the left, but it's infantile to pretend that they sprung up out of nowhere, for no reason.

Lots of folks on TRP want to use them as nothing more than an Emmanuel Goldstein for our own 20 Minutes of Hate, but they are an effect, not a cause.

Does TRP make any other woman feel depressed?

8 upvotes · 8 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you are mentally ill, then maybe you should avoid things which upset you and for which you are not the intended audience.

What's your opinion on asexuals? Did you know there is a spectrum of asexual identities?

8 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The politics of identity have metastasized so far that every tiny little tendency becomes an entire group with an agenda and a badge.

I like short women. Quick, what's my label? Where do I go on tumblr to unite with my short-women-loving ~~brothers~~ non gender specific siblings against the evils of liking tall women?

I'm so lost without a label! Won't someone please tell me who I am?

Derek Fisher has to pay $1.3 million dollars a year to his divorced wife. I guess that's fair, huh?

8 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

"Wife and mother" is not a difficult job. If you're so bad at it that you get fired after 11 years experience, then why should you get a golden parachute?

What the Fuck Am I Doing Wrong?

8 upvotes · 20 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

"I like your hair, and I like your eyes, but I (think) you'd look better around my arms - by my side,"

Weaksauce. Thirsty. Afraid to go sexual.

"You're fucking gay. You need a man like me to compliment you."

Butthurt. Defensive. Didn't agree and amplify.

How to deal with the girls in my university who tend to ask me for help or for complete work?

8 upvotes · 12 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Just keep saying you will do it, don't do it, and run her up to the deadline.

Then when she sputters that you made her fail the assignment, you say:

"No, you made you fail. Now, what lesson have we learned?"

Say it like you're correcting a child. Because you are.

Punishment

8 upvotes · 29 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

We made plans on Wednesday but she texted me yesterday saying that she needed to cancel. Asked to reschedule for Saturday or Sunday.

If a woman asks to reschedule and suggests a time right away, it means interest is high, she wants to see you, but she actually can't make it.

I texted her back saying it was going to cost her (without saying what exactly), and Sunday night.

This is good flirtation.

Don't actually punish her, because she has done nothing to disrespect you, and you'd just look like a butthurt sperg.

But do impose a token, flirtatious "punishment". This will build attraction. Impose some task on her, make her pay for whatever, or give her a token "spanking", or something like that.

Q4Feminists: What feminist writings do you wish that RPer would read?

8 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

in an academic context, it becomes "scholarship"

No, it does not.

It becomes a form of cargo-cult scholarship, which apes the superficial form of science, but draws upon none of its essential elements (objectivity, empiricism, testing claims, duplication of results, modern discourse).

Feminism, at its core, is a set of opinions, opinions about what "should" happen, and what people "should" do. There are some assertions of "fact", but these are untested even in the rare occasions when they are not actually untestable.

This is not science, and it is not even scholarship. It's editorialization.

Now, that would be fine in itself. Punditry has its place, and pundits can serve a useful purpose. But the pundit must never be mistaken for a scholar, nor the scholar for a pundit. Otherwise, one pollutes both punditry and scholarship.

Why we need to take men's cries for help seriously

8 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It doesn't matter whether we need to.

We won't. Human beings are not wired to feel sympathy for male strangers, only female ones.

How to deal with the fact that my SMV will decrease so soon?

8 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're overthinking this. You heard strong language about "the wall" and are panicking.

That language was intended to shock women who aren't exercising, aren't caring for themselves, and aren't pursuing strong relationships out of their complacency.

What you need is not to panic, but to practice good self-care, and talk to the other women here about how to get more opportunities to collide with high-quality men.

Passion

8 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Having sex with someone else's husband is actually a terrible idea for any woman who wants commitment. In fact, there are few worse strategies.

That's kind of the point. Examples of things women wouldn't normally do.

Concern about SO drinking

8 upvotes · 31 March 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

This does sound like an issue.

However, men react badly to being leveraged or strong-armed. If you tell them what to do, they won't do it. If you nag them into it, they will resent you and give, at most, a half-hearted effort.

Makes the problem sound intractable, doesn't it?

But there's a way out. And that is the magic principle of Bring your man your problem, not your solution.

You don't tell him

"I want you to stop drinking."

That's bringing him your solution. That's telling him what to do.

You tell him:

"I am afraid you will drink yourself into an early grave and leave me all alone. I am afraid you will wrap your car around a tree and leave me all alone. I am afraid you will turn into a full-blown alcoholic and I won't be able to really connect with you anymore. I'm afraid you will drink more often and it'll kill off our sex life... it's already stopped us a lot."

This way, you're not strong-arming him or telling him what to do. You're not being adversarial. You're asking for his help, and reminding him that he is important to you.

You follow this up by refusing to tell him what to do. Even if he asks "what do you want?", you answer something like "I don't know, I'm just scared".

To you, this may seem incredibly selfish. Asking for something and not even telling the other person what it is? Just "figure it out"? Sounds awful, right?

But men are wired differently. What he hears isn't

"Figure out this problem and solve it for me."

What he hears is:

"I admire and trust you. I believe you'll come up with the right solution, and I know you're competent enough to do so. I just needed to tell you how I felt, so you could have all the information you needed to make a decision and a plan."

He may very well come up with the same solution you would have. But this time it's his idea, and he feels loved and admired, instead of nagged.

Being a violent misogynist will get you more sex than being a pacifist feminist.

8 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your view is slightly wrong.

Being a violent misogynist will not get you more sex than being a pacifist feminist.

It will get you more and better sex.

Terpers who think Trump is a real alpha male, do you agree with his sexist quotes?

8 upvotes · 17 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

She didn't become a politician. She fucked one.

She literally screwed her way to the top and everyone knows it. They just accept this as a given because it happens all the time.

Yes, she has been a senator, and secretary of state, but how did those happen? Because she fucked Bill Clinton, that's how.

Sure, people will argue that she was instrumental in his success, but what concrete evidence do they have of this? Their argument is usually "you can't prove she didn't".

Hillary Clinton is a ho. Now, she's quite clever at being a ho, because she managed to get a high price despite being such an ugly unfeminine battleaxe that her husband was willing to bang the fat intern. (How far we have fallen... JFK was banging Marilyn Monroe.)

Many women who consider themselves "self-made women" got their start in success by fucking the right man.

maybe the progressive alienation between men and women isn't that bad if sexbots will be a thing

8 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Sexbots aren't going to be a thing until human-level AI is a thing.

And when that happens, the world will change so much and so fast that it will no longer be recognizable.

I Can't Believe Its Not Alpha

8 upvotes · 12 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Is there any way to practice martial arts safely?

Not safely from all harm.

But there are ways to avoid ending up like Ali. The first is inherent... you ain't fighting Joe Frazier. The second is to be aware that catching the occasional punch isn't going to make you stupid. The brain, like any other organ, can heal.

The problem is repeated trauma, over a long period of time, without adequate healing time in between.

When I was teaching, this is what I did.

If you are knocked down or insensible by a punch to the head, sparring is over for the night, and for a month. Yes, you're tough enough to continue. But that's the danger. Your brain doesn't care how macho you are. It's bruised if it's bruised, and it heals how it heals.

Shit testing isn't learned; it's an inherent female tactic

8 upvotes · 22 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/EpicLevelCheater, please add a flair point for this.

Female prison guard rapes male inmate and the "legalization" of the rape of men by women.

8 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

It's my understanding that the legal reasoning behind forcing men raped as minors to pay child support to their rapists is that the sex was "consensual".

No, the reasoning is that it's a right of the child, who is innocent of any wrongdoing.

This reasoning is promptly forgotten if mother wants to kill the child, however.

Hung in the guy's dorm. Am I reading too much into this or is it really sexist?

8 upvotes · 12 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

It says that you are either part of the problem, or you are unpaid bodyguard. You are never the person with the problem, or just some random dude who has nothing to do with the problem in any capacity.

I need help. Seriously.

8 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3ip7vv/beating_infatuation_the_most_common_form_of/

At a bar, best response to "Buy me a drink."

8 upvotes · 26 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Not effective. Uses rational argument, sounds slightly bitter.

How do you identify when to next a girl and how to go about it without animosity?

8 upvotes · 22 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Animosity towards women you are nexting comes from scarcity mentality.

If someone gave you a million dollars, and then took it back, you would be somewhat put out. If they gave you two cents and then took it back, you'd be puzzled as to why they bothered in the first place.

If you value a woman like a million dollars, you're going to be devastated when something goes wrong. If you value her like two cents, you'll next her the moment it's no longer fun, and not care.

If you are bitter, you value women too much. Read more misogynistic rants to get them off that pedestal.

How do I quit my addiction to Tinder?

8 upvotes · 20 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Being not horny enough makes you unmotivated, but being too horny makes you thirsty.

So you need to calibrate how often you rub one out.

NoFap are basically a bunch of idiots who can't understand the concept of

"not enough" < "the right amount" < "too much"

... and so they decide something is either bad or good, if it's the former, you should never do it, ever.

You have problems with being thirsty, so you need to take the edge off.

how should handle my mom beating my sister?

8 upvotes · 18 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Do not mess around with this one.

There is a difference between physical discipline and abuse, and based on what you have said, and what you clearly think, this is the later.

If an 11-year old girl misbehaves, you sit her down, calmly explain to her what she did wrong, tell her that you are going to spank her, then do it. No rage, just action and consequences, making sure she knows what is expected of her.

If you fly off the handle and hit her because you're mad, that's abuse.

The major damage from abuse comes not in the form of pain, but of living in fear all the time.

If she is important to you, then you should put a stop to it.

I'm in a quasi-open relationship. Many RP truths inside.

8 upvotes · 13 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm allowed to bang other women. She's not allowed to bang other men.

This is called "a relationship". There is no other kind.

This is what feminism is and has always been, right back to the birth of the suffrage movement

8 upvotes · 12 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You repeat these talking points as if no one had ever heard them before.

You are like one of those American tourists who are convinced that people in foreign countries speak English if you speak it loudly and slowly enough.

Well, let me speak loudly and slowly to you.

We. Have. A. Different. Opinion.

Just pause for a moment and let that sink in.

Do men want to be liberated from their traditional gender roles?

8 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Spergs are overly honest. They like to move everything into literal discourse, because they have trouble reading implications and non-literal communication.

They struggle with an almost irresistible desire to get others to talk literally to them, so that they can understand better.

The first step to recovery is acceptance that, while this mode of communication may be ideal for them, non-spergs will never be willing to join them there, and will only think they are defective if they try to move the conversation there.

They must realize that, however much they suck at the game of guess-what-I-mean, it is the game humans play, and they must learn it.

/u/Xemnas81 is not revealing his inner fears and insecurities because they are so overwhelming they have overflowed the filters... he is revealing them because he has no filters, and he is still clinging to the childish dream of getting others to allow him to go along and get along without them. Instead of growing up and constructing some.

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

8 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's okay, all alphas have their weak moments.

I wouldn't know. I'm actually a neutered labrador retriever that has learn to type with my nose. The internet is an awesome thing.

Or maybe I'm actually a cupcake. Wouldn't that be cool? I'd be moist and delicious. But how would a cupcake type?

Anyway, since you seem to be having a little trouble with this whole idea of honest question vs. shit test, I'll give you a hint. Which you will promptly ignore, but hey, the audience might benefit from this.

An honest question is one where you're not trying to elicit a particular answer.

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

8 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So feeling violated is necessary for rape?

If someone doesn't feel violated, they were not raped?

Single mom

8 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Is marrying a single mom an absolute non-starter, in all cases?

What the fuck is wrong with you?

Girlfriend of two years says she only loves me as a friend

8 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

How a woman feels right now changes the past and future for her.

If she doesn't love you now, she believes she never did. If she loves you right now, she believes she always will.

If you turn her on, you're a stud with a huge dick. If you don't, you're a chump, and you penis is tiny. If you're eleven inches long, they are eleven tiny inches.

Only halo effect and reverse halo effect matter.

Where the hell did my sex-drive go?

8 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

I mean this literally.

You have a literal health problem, which is literally driving your testosterone down. This is literally making you depressed and anxious and unable to think straight.

You literally need medical help.

A 1/2 ml injection twice a week is all that is needed to set you right. Within two to three weeks of starting you will feel as if a vast dark weight has been lifted from your shoulders.

Why are women OBSESSED with telling me that I'm old?

8 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

If a man tells you something, it's what he believes. If a woman tells you something, it's what she wants you to believe.

Would your rather..?

8 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When someone views me as parts instead of as a human being I feel lesser, I feel unworthy of being seen as a human being.

So when someone views you as a means to an end, instead of contemplating your personhood in a non-desiring way, you feel inferior.

Does this happen with all kinds of being viewed as a means to an end, or just sex? For example, when your employer asks you to do something, then pays you for doing it, do you feel inferior?

catcalling and similar behavior represents to me a 1-2-3 punch of fear, anger, horror and shame

So it resonates with an internal fear that you actually aren't good for anything but providing sexual pleasure.

Which raises two pertinent questions. Where "does this fear come from", and "why would it be horrifying even if it were mostly true".

The answer to the second is that feminists have devalued the feminine by casting it in the most demeaning terms they could think of... "baby machine", "domestic slave", "sex toy". They coveted masculinity, so they had to pretend that feminine roles were demeaning, and not worthy of praise or value. Younger feminists have absorbed this idea so thoroughly that they never think to question it.

The answer to the first lies in fact that women aren't very good at being men. Feminism, while it only sees women as people, also only sees masculine virtues as virtues, and masculine accomplishments as accomplishments.

But women aren't as good at being men as men are. So they walk around feeling inferior to men, because their measuring stick for personal worth is male-calibrated.

This leads to them needing constant praise for their extremely modest career accomplishments (because they are in doubt about these abilities), while shunning all praise for attractiveness or femininity (because they believe this has no value).

CMV: Women Highly Overrate their own Upper Body Strength

8 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Which is why its silly that TRP's way to avoid rape is "lift bro."

Coming now to a comment near you, shit no respected TRP writer ever said.

Women should lift... because it keeps them healthy and makes them pretty. But a woman who lifts will not be able to rival even a sedentary man in physical strength.

The way to avoid rape is take steps to reduce your odds of ever getting into that physical struggle in the first place. The earlier you detect and deal with the threat, the less force you need to use.

"Divorce rape" is the most insensitive, misogynistic phrase ever uttered

8 upvotes · 12 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It impossible for a female to divorce me. I will never get married.

Would you rather be raped, or never see your children again?

"Divorce rape" is the most insensitive, misogynistic phrase ever uttered

8 upvotes · 12 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When a man rapes a woman, it is against the law.

When a woman rapes a man, the law is the instrument she uses.

AMA - Milo Yiannopoulos - Thursday, Dec 10th, 5pm London time, (12pm EST) on TRP

8 upvotes · 5 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's no coincidence.

Our biggest external advocates are a bisexual woman and a gay man, because if they weren't a bisexual woman and a gay man, they would be us, getting all that lovely hateraid right along with the rest of us.

/u/girlwriteswhat is shielded from criticism by her vagina. Milo is shielded by his metaphorical limp wrist. We all say the same sorts of things they do. We can be dismissed as bigots spewing "hate speech". They can't.

The trick is to let that work for us. Let it train us not to care about it. Better yet, let it train us to crave the disapproval of cowards and idiots as the sincerest possible flattery they are capable of.

Bask in the hatred. And one day, you will discover that most of the men capable of doing anything useful are standing on our side of the great divide.

Please Read!

8 upvotes · 4 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think I'm any better than you.

That's not your malfunction. Your malfunction is that you think you're going to come along and tell 140,000 people something that none of them has thought of in three years. In your two minutes of typing.

Because you offer a unique female perspective or something.

Well, you're not special. Everything you said, we've all heard before. You're just another chick having an emotional reaction, and thinking it's the first time anyone in the world has thought this.

You mistake the intensity of your reaction for some sort of authenticity or meaning.

Listen, sweetie. I don't hate you. Your naivety is kind of cute.

But you don't really know what you're talking about. Pain isn't avoided by holding hands and singing kumbaya. Pain is avoided by making wise decisions, and that's what men are here to learn. So I'm afraid I have to remove your post.

Because well-intentioned as you are, this is a place for grownup talk, and you're just not ready to contribute to that. Which means you are getting in the way.

CMV: AWALT is sexist

8 upvotes · 4 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So what?

Women like sexists better than egalitarians.

If you don't like that, you're welcome to have a word with them. Let us know how that goes.

You are Not a Special Fucking Snowflake.

8 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

The first quote is talking about pickup. The second is talking about weightlifting.

You idiot.

Janet Bloomfield has an important message for women on IMD -- and no, this isn't a joke

8 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/MensRights

No need to drop hints. We all pretty much guessed you do your part.

The phenomenon which puzzles me is how some women think this is something other women should be ashamed of doing. The moment I noticed this disconnect was in college, when some vicious cunt took it into her head to target my girlfriend with a torrent of profanity which finished with the term "cock-breath".

She smiled sweetly, and said, "Aw honey, you're right. But the difference between you and me " ... and here she cuddled up against me ... " is that my breath always smells like the same cock."

I don't think I've ever laughed so hard.

Really, feminists don't like the idea of any woman giving head because performing oral sex does have submissive implications. But they also don't want to deal with the fact that this is one of the reasons why so many women like it.

Question for redpillers: Why do some of you have such a problem with slutty women?

8 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't.

Slutty women are not morally bad. They are unworthy of commitment. When they try to demand commitment they are unworthy of, from men they do not deserve, they excite my contempt.

Outliers are the majority.

8 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

De gustibus non est disputandum.

Which implies the question of why exactly you are complaining. The lie is given to your objection by the mere fact that you have raised it at all.

Outliers are the majority.

8 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You pulled a number out of your ass. I pulled a number out of my ass. You wanna sit and pointlessly compare ass-numbers, or make your case?

I like being masculine. I like acting dominant. That's what I do.

If some women ain't into that, all they have to do is not pursue me. I'm the easiest man in the world to get rid of. I nexted a girl a couple of weeks ago for just for trying to have the where-is-this-going conversation with me. Other ways to get rid of me include getting fat, having your lip pierced, acting rude, smoking, etc, etc, etc.

Sure, there are outliers. I don't want 'em.

SJW's posted this all over my college campus today

8 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/MensRights

McCarthy was both right and wrong. The Soviets were, it turns out, actually working with like-minded Americans to undermine American values and morale. We learned this straight out of the horse's mouth after the collapse of the Soviet Union.

However, his brain-dead authoritarian tactics did as almost as much to help the Soviets as their own efforts. Propaganda is to be answered with counter-propaganda, or mockery and laughter, or other social tactics. Public, grossly disproportionate lynchings of anyone you vaguely suspect just brings your cause into disrepute, and creates sympathy for your victims... even the ones who really are guilty.

TRP victim blames men.

8 upvotes · 12 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your problem is that you have confused responsibility and culpability.

TRP holds men responsible, not culpable.

Girl gives strong signals she wants to cheat with me but starts crying after she gets her orgasm?

8 upvotes · 9 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

This is easy to understand.

Women's thought processes are strongly influenced by their emotional state. When she was sexually aroused, she was able to suppress or rationalize away guilt at what she was doing. But when was sexually satisfied, all the guilt came crashing in at once.

New to sub. Saw something on r/TheRedPill that concerned me.

8 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So you want my respect/admiration, and you deem it demeaning if I withhold that.

Okay, inspire it.

Demanding my admiration will not make me admire you any more than demanding my love would make me love. Admiration, like love, is not a conscious decision and cannot be negotiated.

Impress me with your maturity, and I will come to see you differently. Or don't, and I won't.

Mike Rowe Responds to the NYT Modern Man article

8 upvotes · 20 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A real man does not need a list of rules to tell him how to be Real Man™. He learns the principles of masculinity when he is young, from older men, and then adapts them to his life and his mission. Then, when he is old, he teaches them to other, younger men.

That is all.

The AF-BB dichotomy is a very flawed concept.

8 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, am I missing something in my interpretation of this

Yes.

Girlfriend made me sleep in the car instead of her room. Need some TRP advice.

8 upvotes · 14 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

She said she doesn't want me in the room. Funny, she has tons of other guys over for her one-night stands.

...

her one-night stands

...

her one-night stands

You are not her boyfriend. You are her errand boy. You are the textbook example of how "nice guys" get exploited.

Women do not repay. They do not treat you well because you treat them well. They treat you well because they respect you. This woman does not respect you, and you've let that go so far that it's probably impossible that she ever will.

The more you try hard to make her happy, the more she will think you are weak, and the more she will treat you like a doormat.

You must walk away. Go no contact, never speak to her again, and get on with your life. Don't try to win her respect. It isn't worth your time... you are in a chessgame where you are down two knights and a rook. Don't bother dragging it out. Resign, walk away from the table, and do better next game.

Army stats show that women are injured twice as often as men in combat training

8 upvotes · 28 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Non combatant with no military experience detected.

TRP is not a cult. I know what they are now more than ever, and TRP isn't it. Toxic Religion is.

8 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The accusation of "cult-like" behaviour can be leveled at anything and anyone.

Viewed from outside, any society or nation is "cult-like". It takes in people who are too young to think critically, indoctrinates them in its beliefs and values via repetition, tries to cut them off from contact with anyone who doesn't share those values, uses social shaming, ostracism, and even violence to force them to act according to its desires, influences every aspect of their lives.

So, if we can call the United States a "cult", we can call anything a cult.

The people who accuse TRP of being a cult don't even believe it themselves. They just hate it, and are trying different accusations until they find one that sticks.

Science Fiction writer attacks the work of peers for a decade, "sees the light", apologises for her ways after being called on it. Holding frame is not just a rationalisation for men seeking casual sex.

8 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is a perfect example of holding frame as I understand it.

You don't understand the term. Back to red pill school with you:

Frame: Process of interaction with another person. Topic and manner of conversation. Behaviour that is visible to others.

Frame Control: Deliberate selection of, or influence over Frame.

Holding Frame: Resisting an attempt to alter or disrupt the Frame, usually by making an accusation, attempting to change to subject, or otherwise disrupting the flow of communication.

The dominant participant in any conversation is not the person who talks the most or the least, but the person who controls the Frame.

Criticisms of the side-bar texts from educated Bluepillers. Exhibit A: Rational Male

8 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

She isn't my intended audience, others are watching these conversations.

Women tend to regard any benefit they get from living in civilization as just being "the way the universe works". This is why they fail to understand the notion of why they should have any responsibilities at all.

This causes civilization to move in cycles.

1. Men with guns and shovels build a civilization.
2. Peace, prosperity and leisure become available.
3. Women become used to peace, prosperity and leisure, and take it for granted.
4. Women cease to be grateful, loving or respectful to men with guns and shovels.
5. Men set down their guns and shovels.
6. Prosperity gradually is consumed, and civilization collapses or declines.
7. Cold, hungry, frightened women suddenly appreciate men with guns and shovels.
8. Men pick up their guns and shovels.
9. Goto 1.

We are currently in stage 5-6. Men need to understand that. There's no breaking the cycle. In order to break the cycle, women would have to be able to reason abstractly enough to see that men with guns and shovels are keeping them alive even when they are living in conditions of peace, prosperity and leisure.

This is against the nature of women.

Thus the cycle cannot be broken. The only hope humans have is to make stages 5-7 as quick as possible. This means that when we reach stage 5, the best thing you can do is get men to set down their guns and shovels as quickly and universally as you can.

Women don't understand what men are for if they have never been cold, hungry, or afraid, and nothing we say with words is going to make them able to imagine that. Thus it completely pointless to try to persuade women not to take men for granted.

However, it does make sense to talk to them about this, so long as other men are watching. Why? Because you can steer the conversation so that those men realize that women take them completely for granted, and will never stop taking them for granted until they are unavailable. This accelerates the rate at which men make themselves unavailable (set down their guns and shovels), and gets the decline/collapse phase done with a minimum of pain.

What is something that makes you different from most other Redpillers?

8 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

See, now you're learning to talk like us.

Take up your Jedi weapon. Strike me down with all your hatred... and your journey to the dark side will be complete.

Emma Sulkowicz's "porn collection" included as evidence in Nungesser lawsuit. Parties "prepared to explore" a settlement ahead of trial

8 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

Anyone wanna bet on how much rape fetish stuff it includes?

question to RP: do you believe the women that post here?

8 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

they ask out guys all the time

Perception: She has asked guys out plenty of times.

Reality: Once, she, a nerdy girl of average looks, has invited a man way out of her league on a date. He said no, he has a girlfriend. Several times, she has stood near a man and dropped plausibly deniable hints until he asked her out. Once, she asked a less attractive man out because she was bored and lonely, and it never really went much of anywhere because she wasn't really attracted to him.

How reality mutates into perception: She remembers plenty of interactions where she felt like she initiated. She doesn't stop to think that every lasting relationship she ever had began with the man making the first overt move.

that they pay for dates

Perception: She carries her fair share of the cost of dating.

Reality: On most dates, she simply waits and says nothing until he reaches for the bill. Sometimes she has made a token mumble about splitting it, when she knows he'll make at least one polite demurral, which she can then take at face value. If he takes her up on it, there is no second date. In LTRs, she sometimes takes turns paying, but always makes sure it's the cheap place when it's her turn. If by chance or mistake, it isn't, then she asks if he minds paying out of sequence, because she's kinda stretched this month, and it's an expensive place. He always is the one with plenty, because she only dates men who make more than her.

How reality mutates into perception: It's not her fault he reached for the check first, offered to pay, or declined to split a check. He did it of his own volition. Therefore, she was willing to pay. Therefore, she shouldn't be denied credit for having paid her way, because she was willing to. Therefore, she paid her half.

that they always admit they're wrong

Perception: She has often apologized.

Reality: She has often lost arguments or debates, and been forced to apologize or appear totally unreasonable and possibly lose friends or lovers. She has never decided on her own to apologize.

How reality mutates into perception: Apologizing is admitting you're wrong, right? She remembers lots of times when she apologized. Therefore, she always admits it when she was in the wrong.

they suffer night and day from sexual harassment

Perception: She is often having unwelcome sexual attention forced on her by insensitive males.

Reality: Not all the men who make passes at her, compliment her, or let their eyes linger on her exposed cleavage are attractive, and not all of them are socially savy enough to take a hint. And once, a drunken guy groped her in a bar full of drunken people groping each other. During spring break. In Cancun.

How reality mutates into perception: She has experienced unwelcome sexual attention a lot, and not been sure how to make it stop without explicitly saying "stop, this is unwelcome, go away". Expecting her to do that is unreasonable, because it would make her look bad and mean. Why can't men just only hit on her when she wants them to? Is that so unreasonable? She just wants to feel safe from embarrassment or feeling violated all the time. Hey, wait a minute, if she feels unsafe that must mean she's being threatened with violence! That's unacceptable, and street harassment is a serious problem.

Bonus round!!!

Perception: She was raped.

Reality: The male friend she had been cuddling all evening and was now sleeping next to on the couch put his hand inside her shirt. She was kind of attracted to him (hence all the cuddling), but she also had a long-distance boyfriend in Toronto, and felt kinda bad about this, so she mumbled, "Hey, I have a boyfriend", but he persisted, and she didn't want to disappoint him or make him lose interest, so she kinda went along with it.

How reality mutates into perception: Sex wasn't her idea, she feels bad and guilty about what happened, and she did put up some resistance, which didn't make him back off and stop. She just let it happen because she was afraid (of his disappointment or disapproval). Therefore she didn't want to have sex, said no and was ignored, and only did because she was afraid. Therefore she was raped.

Perception: She likes nice, gentle, considerate men.

Reality: She likes it when a strong, self-assured, sexy man she is already panty-soakingly attracted to finally rewards her compliant behaviour with some petting.

How reality mutates into perception: He did something nice for her, and she really liked that. Therefore gentlemanly behaviour turns her on.

I fucked up with a really hot girl...Disect my TEXT GAME

8 upvotes · 12 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I thought this was a conversation between two women.

1. Never use smileys.
2. Never complain.
3. Never explain unless you are teaching.

TRP: specific examples of orthodox/canon RP theory changing or evolving?

8 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is a good question. But change in TRP has happened a little differently than you think.

The goal in modern (as opposed to postmodern) discourse is for the truth to emerge from the consensus of many conversations over time. TRP is all about modern discourse. Thus, asking to be pointed to an example of where TRP changed direction is like asking where a glacier turned left.

The movement happens, but it happens gradually and emergently.

Let me talk you through the history of TRP.

- First there was /r/seduction, called "seddit" for short. It was about how to pick up chicks. That's it that's all.
- And seddit did field research, and reported to each other on what worked and what didn't.
- Now, because human sexuality is cutthroat and raw and real and immediate and Machiavellian and ugly, some of the things sedditors found out were pretty shocking and "offensive" to those reading them, especially women.
- The seddit mods were afraid of the community being seen as "anti-woman", so they began removing such things.
- Seddit became ineffective as a source of useful pickup advice.
- /u/pk_atheist and /u/redpillschool founded an alternative seddit, which would not self-censor and thus remain effective. They called it /r/TheRedPill . So TRP was originally a pickup group.
- Soon after, a group of thinkers collected there, characterized by being willing to speak truths that were ugly and unpopular. Some of them cared about seduction, some of them merely wanted a place where they could speak their thoughts without being lynched for saying something unpleasant. These are the people with the "Vanguard" flair, the first ECs... /u/illimitableman, /u/whisper, /u/humansockpuppet, and so on.
- Gradually, as we continued talking about human sexuality, and what worked and what didn't, we came to the conclusion that there was a lot more that needed uncensored discussion than just how to throw a neg.
- TRP began to shift away from being a pickup group, towards being about human sexuality and how it worked.
- As the discussion evolved, we collected more thinkers and writers with different individual styles, and together with the vanguard ECs, they began to attract an audience of young men who not only wanted pussy, but were tired of being hemmed in by other people's delicate feelings.
- And another shift began, this time towards an uncensored discussion of masculinity and how to personally survive and prosper in a society hostile to men.
- TRP has grown as the older "teacher" contributors have discovered and better understood the needs of our younger audience.

I have frowned upon the Red Pill before. I yield. I need help.

8 upvotes · 5 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

You are an orbiter.

The Thread on "Imagine if you found out your SO used a Guide" bears out RP truths.

8 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I do not want to become alpha, the whole thing is fucking cringe. It is like aspiring to be a skunk whisperer so you can bask in the fetid airs of abuse for the rest of your life. Just stay the fuck away from me

You're supposed to be angry right now. The anger phase is good for you.

But when that anger fades, you'll realize that being good with women isn't being good with bad people. It's being good to children. The reason you are angry at women is because you expected them to be mature and responsible, and they failed to live up to that. Well, that's a flawed expectation. Women aren't mature and responsible. They require male guidance.

Want to test this? All you have to do is say what I just said. An adult, being called a child, will say "Okay, I have to earn your trust.", and proceed to take steps to demonstrate maturity. A child will fuss that you're a meanie "Mommieeee... he said I was immature!".

A question for the blue pillers

8 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So if I decide a human being is a dickhead, then I do not owe them kindness?

r/TheBluePill is not just "anti-TRP", it is committed to an ideology of feminism and radical social justice.

8 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How coincidental, try posting in TRP that you don't lift. Heck try posting in PPD to RPer that you don't lift.

We'll tell you that you are making a mistake. How is this equivalent?

Revenge Porn and why TRP is so unappealing to most people

8 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's why they are the students, and I am the teacher.

They still crave acceptance by their society, because they haven't succeeded in killing their desire for it. But killing their desire for it is precisely what they need to do to survive and thrive.

Because our culture is so sick that a man cannot purchase its approval except at the cost of his dreams.

That's why the outrage of you and OP means nothing to me. I care nothing to how hurt your feelings are, or how much I scare you, or how crazy I sound to you. I know all these things, I just don't care. Because people like you have demonstrated throughout my life that you care nothing for me.

So before I started caring about your feelings, you would have to prove to me that you cared about mine. Which you won't, because you don't. I'm okay with that. I do not require your admiration or your sympathy or your help or your approval or your desire. I need you like a bicycle needs a fish.

But I am watching you... with amusement. You are weeping to behold the world you created. The feminist takeover of our cultural zeitgeist has produced a species of male so beaten down and timid that anything I do which shows masculine boldness makes women thirst for me... regardless of how "rapey" you find it. You people thought you could play social engineer, and restructure society any way you wanted, until you had something that was "fair". The concept of blowback never even occurred to you. Well, I'm the evil you created, the monster you made. Are you proud of your handiwork?

Are video games a good hobby?

8 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you think video games are bad?

Nah, they're the symptom, not the disease.

Some men overuse porn and video games to numb the pain of living in a culture that despises them, and of having nothing to look forward to.

But the escape isn't the problem, it's what they're escaping from.

Are women invading a "male space" when they get into them?

Yes.

Video games are by men, for men. Women are welcome to play, but they're not welcome to demand changes to accommodate them. They want more female-centric games, they can put together a team of chick developers and make them.

Men Not "Figuring It Out For Themselves"

8 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

- First they ignore you. (Red pill? What's that?)
- Then they laugh at you. (Look at those bitter virgin neckbeards.)
- Then they hate you. (OMG misogyny!)
- Then they fight you. (Women are individuals! Treat them like people! Your tricks don't work!)
- Then you win. (Hey, look, it does work.)
- Then they pretend it was their idea all along. (Why are you so angry? It took you this long to figure out that women like muscles and cockiness? What are you... stupid?)

Innocence and Toughness

8 upvotes · 22 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Why wouldn't she think you're something special?

For the same reason she didn't think the last 49 men were.

Or maybe they were all special. Except that when everyone is special, then no one is.

If she's very sexual, she's likely to enjoy having sex with you, and not just for stimulation's sake.

You give no particular reason why this should be true. And from what I've seen, it isn't.

Some people feel most intimately attached to others when having sex with them, and they'll cherish every relationship so long as the intimacy is maintained. Promiscuous women don't pretend to enjoy sex or something.

You have a very idealized view of sluts. Almost as if they were some sort of saintly noble creature who suffered from having too much love to give. I cannot prove that such a person is impossible, but I assure you that the reality is far different.

Toys have nothing on men

Please tell this to feminists. They have been assuring the young men of recent generations of the precise opposite for decades. After being told how dispensable and unnecessary they were, many of them wound up here, reading the words of men like me.

and older women are not so much emotionally stunted as they are less naive.

You've chosen the words of this sentence carefully to make these two things seem different. My entire point is that they are not. What you call "lack of naivety" is precisely the loss of the ability to admire a man, to be fascinated by him, to see him as the only man in the world for her.

For this reason, younger women might be more attractive to men, but it becomes a liability if they meet men of poor character.

Indeed. Which is why patriarchies take steps to protect them from such men, instead of ridding the world of such women. Because the absence of such women creates men of "poor character", cads like me who seduce and abandon.

Why are they tarnishing the innocence of younger women in the first place? Shouldn't they be impregnating and committing to them instead?

Because they themselves have been damaged by too many sluts, and too little respect. By being told that a woman needs them like a fish needs a bicycle. By being told that they are perverts and pedophiles for lusting after 15 year old girls (who have developed bodies, and precisely the innocence I spoke of). By seeing fathers turned into figures of contempt and ridicule in popular media for as long as they have been alive. By seeing their own fathers deprived of their families, their homes, and their lives' work in "no-fault" divorces. By being told that dick is cheap and easy to come by.

We have made marriage and into responsibility without rights, and fathers into a laughingstock instead of figures of respect.

And now you complain that men are unwilling to be husbands and fathers?

Italian hedge fund manager: 'Never, ever marry an American woman'

8 upvotes · 17 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Religion doesn't really contain doctrine at all.

All it does is reinforce what social values you have. Social mores change, they reinterpret shit to mean whatever they want.

How important is sex/relationships to you?

8 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I am an Evil Red Pillar who thrives on conflict, so yes. Also gives me ideas for my writing.

I get it, though. We're fascinating. If only we weren't so... mean...

Escort tells me I'm too young. There's literal money involved and she rejects me. I feel like this is a worse form of rejection as opposed to a normal chick.

8 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

You've fallen into the "PUA trap".

If you make how many women like you the measure of your success or masculinity, you will end up as an effeminate nightclub dweller in a fuzzy top hat, obsessed with autistically examining every little social interaction to improve your "game".

You met a whore whose definition of "dominant" and "high value" included "older".

Smash the Pills.

8 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The difference between intelligence and pseudointellectualism is the difference between insight and opinion.

A real thinker opens his mouth and tells you something that you hadn't thought of before, which makes you see the facts in a new light. He may be right or wrong, but the listener is changed by what he says.

A pseudointellectual open his mouth and tells what he thinks, but the only thing that tells you is what his opinion is. His speech is the intellectual equivalent of voting. He's simply making checkmarks on a ballot box, not adding anything to the conversation.

The problem with the modern university is that they are a hugbox that churns out pseudointellectuals. Spoiled, narcissistic millennials, raised on a steady diet of assurances that they were special just because of who they are, are conveyor-belted through a set of "breadth requirements" where every 23 year old grad student who has a never had a real job gets his ten weeks to rant at them about whatever the political topic du jure is, carefully selected by an aging Marxist who managed to make the tenure track by sounding like all the other aging Marxists. Sheltered from any real disagreement or intellectual challenge by "speech codes" and "safe spaces", the student emerges firmly believing that his opinion is important merely because it is his opinion, not because it is insightful, or useful, or transformative in any way.

The profession of the thinker, the critic, the commentator, and the gadfly is critically important to a healthy society once it becomes advanced. But right now it is unfilled precisely because the space is being occupied by special snowflakes that aren't doing the job.

Is this unhealthy?

8 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Are you sad when you look at it?

Or are you angry?

Be angry. Let the hate flow through you. Let it fill you up. Let it make you strong. Carry it with you like a weapon against your own weakness.

And one day, you will look at that picture and discover that you no longer give a fuck.

"Man in 'Star Wars' storm trooper costume arrested outside school"

8 upvotes · 6 June 2015 · /r/MensRights

open carry idiots

Found the liberal.

"Being offended its the new American past time"

8 upvotes · 4 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

who's supporting thus round of generational rot?

The last round of generational rot. Subversion of your enemy's children is the gift that keeps on giving.

SJWs are simply millennials who have learned that they can exploit the twisted values of the hippies (who are now in power) for attention and personal gain. The difference between hippies and SJWs is that the hippies believe their own bullshit. SJWs are completely disingenuous.

What are your thoughts about the 'casting couch'?

8 upvotes · 1 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely. If they weren't useful as objects of sexual desire, they wouldn't be there at all.

If a woman wants to be on MTV without being displayed as an object of sexual desire, let her learn to play the guitar like Yngwie Malmsteen or Eddie Van Halen.

But they don't do this. Because it's easier to shake their ass. They take the easy route because it is available to them. Men don't, because it isn't.

A question for the females. what do you find attractive in a man?

8 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm a Labrador Retriever who has learned to type with his nose.

"On men, women and r/TheRedPill"

8 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

I don't think I ever didn't acknowledge men's tendency to throw other men under the bus like that. You "bad misogynistic man over there."

To the contrary, you pointed it out with great precision. It was one of your main points.

But you might be a little optimistic about our collective ability to get people to behave differently, vis:

What I was getting at is that if I can have a meta-awareness of my female side and how it can fuck me over if I let it, and then choose not to let it, then men can certainly do the same. Particularly men who purport to be enlightened to what's actually going on, instinctually.

Consider how many women, like you, have gained this meta-awareness, as compared to how many women there are. Now consider those numbers in the light of how many men we might reasonably expect to stop stomping on each other's fingers in an effort to climb the "pussy pedestal".

In other words, as long as MRAs believe they can accomplish their goals by appealing to women, they will attempt to distance themselves from TRP, both in order to gain credibility, and to convince themselves that they deserve that credibility. Codes Red, Green, Orange, Purple, Brown, and Black.

Now, on the other side of the fence, I see a lot of the younger, angrier members of the TRP discussion attempting to purchase some "street cred" (not with women, of course, but with other men and themselves) by calling MRAs a bunch of crybabies. Codes Yellow, Blue, Lavender, and Gray .

Now, I tend to agree with TRP that the MRA tactic of appealing to women's sympathies is a non-starter, and a huge strategic mistake, but I believe it springs, not from cowardice, but from misguided optimism. It's an attitude that people are basically reasonable, and will listen to reason if you use enough of it. To which I can only say "Have you read any history books?"

I don't think agreement or unification is possible. And while I would like to see both groups succeed, it feels to me like I can do more good by addressing myself to young men who are lost and angry and frustrated and hurt, and giving them some guidance on what they can do, right now, so their lives don't suck so much.

And I have to say to them "You have to pick up a rifle and defend your ranch. Because the cavalry isn't coming. No one is going to save you but you." And that's a bitter pill to swallow. Sometimes these guys have to get angrier before things can get better for them.

I think that any strategy for getting the two groups to waste less time and effort saying nonproductive things about each other is going to have to part of a much longer discussion. It's not as simple as telling people not to behave like chimps, because, first of all, people are chimps, and secondly, there's not only a difference in methods, but in goals.

One thing worth noticing is that there is some difference in individual attitudes on both sides. When you showed up in TRP, you were greeted with the same sort of love and respect that is commanded by elder TRP figures like /u/redpillschool, /u/Archwinger, and so forth.

Angry young men, with their talent and capacity for violence, create so much fear, and that makes people want to use harsh measures and direct opposition to protect themselves. But it seems apparent, from the very different treatment you, as well as others like /u/FleetingWish, get from these men is that often the best self defense against male anger is a little understanding and kindness.

I think perhaps if more MRAs were able to look redpill anger, and, instead of saying "stop that, you evil misogynist", instead say "see what extremes your indifference and scorn have driven the next generation of men to?", then they might be surprised at how able those same men would be to accept that.

Women "never" lie about rape: Models claim of rape falls apart with investigation, DNA tested aborted material turns out to be from another father. Good news: Victim planning to sue false accuser.

8 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

Wow. Amazing volume of mattress-carriers popping up lately.

Women are more emotionally mature than men

8 upvotes · 23 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, sweetie, that's nice. Very well thought out. You proved it.

Run along and play now.

Can you explain the "anger phase" ?

8 upvotes · 7 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Lucky you, you get a response from the original author.

The anger is triggered not by the nature of women, but the way men are

- Lied to about the nature of women.
- Bullied and shamed into not talking about the nature of women.
- Bullied and shamed into not acting properly in response to the nature of women.

If we left men alone to teach their sons what you really need to do in order to be loved by women, few or no men would grow up angry about it.

But, we, as a culture, decided to stop doing that.

So the experience young men have is one of taking a history class, walking into the final exam, and being handed a math test. Of course they are angry. Not because they hate math, but because they were given the wrong study materials.

Especially when they find out that this trick was played on purpose, in order to make them fail.

Small Dog Syndrome

8 upvotes · 3 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed. Being a "natural alpha" doesn't count for shit. It just means you have a personality that happens to tend to do a few things right.

There's always that one thing you don't do right, waiting to trip you up.

The Origins of Circumcision?

8 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

He is the guy who got modern Americans to circumcise their boys.

And it matters much more than female circumcision, because it's much more prevalent, certainly in our culture (which is what we have control over), and probably overall.

So I'm done hearing about female circumcision. You don't know any circumcised women. I know plenty of circumcised men.

Cults, Internet Marketers, and The Red Pill

8 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The cultural zeitgeist is just raising pigeonholing strategies up the flagpole to see who salutes.

The "extreme right-wing racist" thing didn't work. The "autistic neckbeard" thing didn't work.

So now what's being tried is "autistic bodybuilders", "marketing scam", and "cult".

This is an attack strategy from some quarters, but from from others, it's simply a desire not to have to understand a new thing. People always want a new thing to be some variation on an old thing, because this makes it easier to understand. An example would be the way clueless old people call the internet things like an "information superhighway" or "a series of tubes". They don't like situations where analogies don't fit.

The red pill is a new thing, not because we are the first generation of men enough to invent it, but because we are the first generation of men disenfranchised enough to need it, necessity being the mother of invention.

BP: Given the choice between having romantic relations with someone IRL who browses r/TheRedPill or r/foreveralone, who would you choose?

8 upvotes · 17 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, certainly. It's a horrible thing for me to say, and I am a horrible person for saying it.

And the psychology professor I learned it from, years before TRP or even reddit existed, he was a horrible person for saying it, too.

And all the test subjects in the experiments he referred to were horrible people for displaying this phenomenon.

Good people don't ever lie to experimenters, and always have perfect self-understanding, and can always perfectly predict their own behaviour in any situation.

Therefore, if we say someone's self-report data is inaccurate, we are saying they are bad people, which is offensive. And caring more about being right than being nice also makes you a horrible person.

We ought not to listen to scientists. They are horrible people. And they can keep their "technology" and their "civilization", because they make them by saying things that make us all sad.

(Part of) why "The Red Pill" is so off-putting to non Red Pill people

8 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Being off-putting to you is not a bug. It's a feature.

Why are there no progress posts on TRP?

8 upvotes · 18 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I mean people on trp always say the sub helped them, but I've never actually seen a redditor be transformed by the trp.

And why exactly do I give a fuck what you've seen?

TRP isn't for you. I neither need nor want your approval.

Imagine me as a skinny maladjusted teenager if it helps you sleep better at night. While simultaneously imagining me to be a fat washed-up neckbeard. And too socially awkward to leave my parent's basement while simultaneously a oppressive, privileged patriarch. And unable to talk to girls without a cheat sheet while simultaneously a ruthless seducer and borderline rapist capable of near mind-control levels of manipulation.

Hey, anything that supports the narrative, right?

Only 3% Of American Singles Are Worth Dating

8 upvotes · 15 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Does it seem to you that women are remarkably impatient when it comes to watching for signs that a man is a rising commodity?

No, actually.

In fact, my experience (which may not be typical) is the opposite. Women I've encountered were much more forgiving of lack of social dominance, etc, when I was young.

When I was 20 years old, and living in a college dorm, women didn't much care that I didn't own a car. Now that I am just past 40, if I didn't own a car, women would think I was a loser.

I think this depends, not on the age of the woman, but on the age of the man. A man can get by on confidence when he's young, because women will see him as someone who will achieve status. But when he's older, he better have done so. If an older man has done well, he's generally more attractive than a young man, because he is a proven commodity rather than just a promising one. But if he hasn't done well, he far less attractive.

Proven > Promising > Untested > Failed is the male attractiveness hierarchy, I think.

Was "taught not to rape" in sociology class today (rant)

8 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No, they have a short history of that. Before 1945 or so, antisemitism was not only a real thing, but pretty much policy wherever you went in Europe.

You wouldn't know it to look at Israel now, of course. Now they're obsessed with creating a racially and culturally pure state, by whatever violence or skullduggery is necessary.

That's the worst thing about bullies... they tend to make their victims into copies of themselves. One wonders who the Palestinian Arabs will be putting in concentration camps fifty years from now.

User of 4chan explains the difference between men's and women's accomplishments.

8 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Being a woman is bowling with the bumpers. Unless you directly toss the ball in the gutters you can't completely fail. If however, you toss a really great strike, it was still valued less because the bumpers are up

I don't think so.

I think it's more like learning to bowl when everyone praises and celebrates you just for releasing the ball. Why would you ever put in the time and effort to throw a strike, if there were no additional reward?

Necessity is the mother of invention. We, as a culture, have robbed women of the ability to invent by depriving them of necessity. We have made them weak with our coddling.

CMV: I don't believe rape cases at universities and colleges should be handled by the institution. It's a crime and needs to be handled by the local authorities. Why should a school get involved when dealing with adults committing crimes?

8 upvotes · 24 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's important to draw a distinction here.

Campus police are real police. However, campus police departments do not typically have detectives or other full-time trained investigators.

And campus tribunals are not real courts.

It's okay for campus police to respond to a rape complaint and take an initial report. But at that point, the campus police need to hand off to a local police department's investigation division.

And it's okay for colleges to kick out students convicted of rape. But the universities need to defer to the decision of the court, not have their own tribunals. Depriving students of access to civil rights (in this case, access to public education) without a criminal conviction is a violation of substantive due process.

Now, if the university is a private, rather than a public, university, access to it is not a civil right. However, the federal government may not require or inspire any institution to do anything that it cannot legally do itself, since the constitution is binding upon congress and of its agents (which is why it is binding upon the whole machinery of state, and not merely congress).

Why you should fuck an escort, at least once.

8 upvotes · 11 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hold on. Think a minute.

Game is not the measure of a man. Female approval is not the measure of a man.

Pussy is just a commodity that men need (because we are hardwired to crave it). So "should you use a whore" is simple cost-benefit analysis problem.

(How long does it take you to get a woman into bed * how much do you make an hour) + how much money do you spend to get a woman in bed - how much does a whore cost. If that number is greater than zero, whores make financial sense.

Overall, if you are a professional, with a salable professional skill, whores are almost always cheaper than game. Guys with money should only run game if they want to find a girlfriend.

Where do you find women that are Red Pill Man worthy?

8 upvotes · 1 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't. You let them find you.

They'll be the ones you find yourself not wanting to dump after pumping.

This is the alternative to RedPill: After wedding ceremony, wife says she can't have sex anymore.

8 upvotes · 13 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is stupidly simple, people.

NEVER promise a woman monogamy. Not ever. You don't have to bang other women if you're not interested, but NEVER make that promise.

It's like telling her you're low-value and have no options.

Transgenderism is a psychiatric disorder: its sufferers need therapy, not surgery

8 upvotes · 17 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Transgenderism is a difference in neurology.

So is schizophrenia.

It has been proven in peer reviewed studies that Trans people have a different brain structure to non trans people, and that this is likely set in the womb, or is even genetic.

This is also true. But it's also true of autism, as well.

If it were merely a psych disorder,

What's "mere" about a psych disorder?

then things like "conversion therapy" would work

My understanding is that they don't.

Trans people show behaviors pretty much from toddler onwards, so it isn't something that is learned. This is almost entirely "nature", as opposed to nurture,

So is Tay-Sach's disease, Huntington's chorea, Alzheimer's, and so on.

Suddenly personal freedom goes out the window when it comes to this sort of shit.

We, as a society, tend not to trust mentally ill people to know what's good for them.

Should we revisit that decision in light of libertarian principles? That's another debate. But there's no fundamental difference between refusing to castrate men with sexual identity disorder, and institutionalizing schizophrenics. They are the same fundamental violation of hard-line libertarian principles.

Thing is, it's you, not me, who told me I was a hard-line libertarian. It's news to me. Should I have special pronouns?

Feminists throw Joss Whedon under the bus: Beloved creator of Buffy and Firefly is, apparently secretly a dude.

8 upvotes · 11 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism always eventually turns on even the most compliant and submissive of male "allies".

That's because feminism is a simple equation. "Construing an injustice" == "power". The more "injustice" they can find, the more power they have. In fact, feminists are more inclined to pick on "allies" than us horrible, horrible misogynists. Why? Because the only weapon they have is whining, and that doesn't work on us.

So, the more they use their weapon, the more power they have, and the more vulnerable their target of choice, the more power they have.

Being an "ally" is therefore the best way to maximize your expectation of being targeted by feminist criticism. This is why feminists attack the tech community non-stop, and keep their pie-holes shut about Saudi Arabia.

Of course, feminism would be doom the moment a large portion of men woke up to the fact that it's more dangerous to be feminism's friend than its enemy.

WHO suicide study shows men commit suicide at 1.9x the rate of women globally, 3.5x in high income nations

8 upvotes · 4 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

"Women are the real victims" in 3... 2...

"Ladies, if your SO asked for a paternity test, what would your reaction be?"

8 upvotes · 19 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's the crown jewel of female narcissism:

I agree it is traumatizing for the man who does end up in that situation, but, for me, the necessary cost of such a program would necessitate that there be a guiding social reason that is applicable to the society as a whole. Currently, I don't have the data to know if that is the case or not, but I would be wary of beginning such a program without having all of the data available.

In other words, a problem for men is not a problem until it creates a problem for someone else who isn't just a man.

Were women property?

8 upvotes · 18 August 2014 · /r/MensRights

Property can be bought and sold. Debate over.

Older brother concerned about younger sister becoming slutty. Top comment? "mind your own business" (r/askmen)

8 upvotes · 4 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sigh.

You make me tired. Can you people not read? Do you not use the search function? Or do you not actually want an answer, just a talking point?

Look, women are the gatekeepers of sex, and men are the gatekeepers of relationships. That means that getting to sex is men's responsibility, and getting to a relationship is women's responsibility.

That means that it's a man's fault if he gets "friendzoned", and it's a woman's fault if she get "pumped and dumped". Just as women want to meet a man who can make her want to sex him vigorously, men want to meet a woman who can make him want to stay with her.

But just as it is out of women's hands whether a man is sexy or not, it is out of men's hands whether women are keepers or not. And just as women will settle for having orbiters (guys in the friendzone) if there are no sexy men available, men will settle for a succession of sluts if there are no keepers.

The mainstream may not yet accept our answers... but they are starting to ask our questions.

8 upvotes · 30 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"people should like me for who I am"

To me, hearing that means they haven't given up on the fantasy of unconditional love. On some level, they don't want to change to earn or inspire love, because then if that works, that will mean they weren't loveable before. It will mean that the love they received was and is conditional.

But all love is conditional, whether it is the love of a man, of a woman, or even of your dear old mum.

When people can accept that, then they can move forward. Until then, they are actively fighting to not change.

"Open Letter to Bearded Hipsters" being shared by girls on my Facebook

8 upvotes · 27 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

This exactly what you asked for, ladies, when you decided there was a patriarchy and you wanted to smash it.

Or, in your case, what your mothers asked for. Either way, if you want Mankly McHardon back, then grow your hair long, swap your pants for a skirt, lose some weight, and start acting feminine and submissive.

Most men really would prefer that, you know. They'll man up when you man down.

Guy is furious to discover his wife got hammered and entered a wet t-shirt contest. Wife gives ZERO fucks and the white knights of r/relationships reluctantly side with the guy. But when her career is suddenly in jeopardy over it, their noble hearts swell with sympathy and it's off to the rescue.

8 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Man, I can't even imagine what my boss would do if I sat at my desk and cried for four hours over anything short of a close family member dying.

Here's what would happen if a man cried like that at work, even over the death of a family member.

- His boss and coworkers would uncomfortably feign sympathy for a few minutes.
- Then he'd be sent home, under the guise of compassion, but really just to get him the hell out of there and stop making everyone uncomfortable.
- He'd better find a new job, because no one there would ever take him seriously again.

If you have a penis, NEVER cry where anyone can see or hear you. It will never bring you positive results. If you have to, then go somewhere where you can be alone. Better yet, don't. Learn to suppress it. If you are male, suppressing tears is never a mistake.

Do blue pillers think sex is magic?

8 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If only there were some sort of subreddit that taught men how to say the right things to be attractive.

Spergs, Cynics, and Manipulators: How PowerTalk impacts the lifecycle of cultures.

8 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

I see this happen on a smaller scale with businesses. They start out as a sperg-heavy startup. The startup flourishes and makes money. That excess of money attracts manipulators, who are usually the managers and CEOs. Eventually the ratio of manipulators to spergs becomes too high and the company ceases to be profitable. The environment is no longer as meritocratic as it used to be. The spergs see that their effort is unrewarded and they turn into cynics. The more skilled spergs migrate into more sperg-heavy environments of other companies or startups. Manipulators form alliances and attack the spergs. As the company collapses the manipulators try to outdo each other to loot it dry.

Yeah, pretty much. Except manipulators don't attack spergs... they parasitize them.

This is another unstable situation... Too many manipulators parasitizing too few spergs will destroy them or drive them off, so it is in the interest of all manipulators in general to limit their drain to sustainable levels. But this will not happen, because it is not in the interest of any individual manipulator to limit himself thus, unless there are no other manipulators in the environment.

If he doesn't suck them dry, another vampire will beat him to it, you see.

It would be in the interest of manipulators to limit their theft from spergs and "farm" them, rather than draining them dry and moving on, but this will never happen, because manipulators are incapable of collective action for the greater good. Only spergs can make personal sacrifices for group goals.

This is why only the innocent societies prosper. Innocent societies are composed of a lot of spergs, and a few cynics. The cynics are lazy non-producers compared to the spergs, but the spergs will tolerate a certain number of them because they protect society from manipulators.

The tipping point where a society loses its innocence and is doomed are three things that occur together:

- Manipulators start getting the spergs to lynch cynics instead of manipulators.
- Cynics start aspiring to be manipulators, or to escape from manipulators, instead of to get them lynched by the spergs.
- Large numbers of manipulators start turning spergs into cynics.

Does TRP truly believe that "women are like children"?

8 upvotes · 4 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is no evidence that suggests grown women have the same mental capacities of teenagers.

There's no such thing as "the mental capacity of a teenager".

A teenager is someone with the mental capacity of an adult, but who lacks an adult's emotional control. Teenagers think and reason just as well as older people. But they are unable to control their emotional state, or to prevent it from overriding their mental processes.

Comparing women to teenagers is not an aspersion cast upon their intelligence. It is an aspersion cast upon their maturity, meaning their ability to control their emotions and maintain a separation between their feelings and their thoughts.

Who said women can't write comedy? Ah well, maybe it isn't intentional.

8 upvotes · 3 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You missed a beautiful opportunity to post the whole thing in all its comedic, self-centered, clueless glory:

Tagline Witty, tipsy, and giddy at any given moment in time.

Introduction Alexandra Andersen is a romance author, online editor, and founder of Wine & Drama. Alexandra is an avid traveler and spends her time drinking coffee and wine in between writing. It is her firm belief that the universe expands to allow you to realize your inner most dreams and desires.

She believes you can get everything you want and deserve out of life. You deserve love. You deserve happiness. But, most of all you deserve a good life. Be passionate always. Your life is truly what you choose to make it.

She plans on moving one day to a little cottage in the English countryside. Where she can write in peace and finally meet a horseback riding, whisky drinking, foxhunting Darcy-esque Lord to shack up with. For now, she'll settle for sushi, pedicures, small unruly children, crème brulee, and Malbec wine.

Bragging rights Wine lover, creator of slightly demented people & worlds, and online genius.

27-year-old fair maiden named "boozemunkee" is mystified why she can't find a man who wants more than sex and to settle down with her. r/relationships dons their white armor and rides to the rescue.

8 upvotes · 18 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Good. It's actually good news when a problem you have is your fault. Because that means you can do something about it.

Confronting this is going to hurt. But it will actually help you, instead of just helping you feel better for a little while.

NAWALT: The last pieces of BP

8 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's contradictory. TRP teaches us that in no way can be true, in which case, leaves two possible conclusions. TRP is wrong, or you are wrong.

False dichotomy. Things aren't always 100% right or 100% wrong.

Rather, each statement has a degree of accuracy. TRP principles are generalizations, which mean they are mostly right. Which makes them useful, but not necessarily universal.

Everyone who is seriously talking about this stuff knows this. They know perfectly well how and when to apply generalizations to specific situations.

Then, along comes you, attempting to score some man points by being "more red pill than thou". Well, sorry to interrupt your ego moment with my nasty logic stuff, but telling us a less nuanced version of shit we already know isn't going to make us think you're hardcore.

The way American/Foreign women fuck reflects the way that they think.

8 upvotes · 9 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is also a good primer on alpha body language and mannerisms.

Slouched, relaxed posture, slow speech, pauses, wide arms taking up space, knees wide in a comfortable, undefensive posture, unapologetically graphic... on the video talking like it's just him and you. No effort to make a presentation. Just being comfortable in his own skin.

Women aren't ALWAYS unaware of their sexual instincts.

8 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep. When you're sick, you don't need a great guy, you need a doctor. When you're hungry, you don't need a great guy, you need a chef. When your roof is leaking, you don't need a great guy, you need a carpenter.

Women do not give a shit about your problems!

8 upvotes · 31 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, women are inherently selfish. This is because humans are inherently selfish.

Both men and women avoid that which is instinctively repulsive to them. For women, it's weakness. For men, it's ugliness.

Protesting this is both futile and kinda silly.

Women do not give a shit about your problems!

8 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I am not trying to troll, how do I come across that way?

Like this:

Good lord this sub is making me fearful for the future of humans

What you're doing here is something called "pearl-clutching". This means the act of stating or even exaggerating your own fear of something in order to make it appear dangerous, unsafe, or morally "bad".

If I am afraid of rhinoceroses, that doesn't make them bad, evil, or even dangerous. It simply means that I feel a certain way.

And, more to the point, your negative emotional reaction to what you read here is your neurosis, not ours. The fact that you are fearful implies absolutely nothing about the correctness, or the advisability, of what we have to say.

Women and men treat their partners crappily all the time.

That's a value judgement. By saying "crappily", you're saying "women shouldn't be repelled by men showing weakness", and you're implying "women who are repelled by men showing weakness are bad people".

But if it then comes to light that women are generally repelled by men showing weakness (and pretty much every man over the age of 14 knows this to be true), then the combination of these two things implies "women are bad people".

You're forgetting that the first of these two ideas came from you. Not anyone else here. Your message is essentially "oh, gods, how can you say that women are repelled by men showing weakness? You're saying that they are horrible people!". But you're the one saying that. Women are instinctively repelled by weak men. It's built in. Saying that they are horrible for that is like saying that rats are horrible for gnawing things, or birds are horrible for singing.

You made the moral judgement, here. To us, it's just a thing.

This sub is a discussion group centred around exploring what male and female instinctive behaviours actually are, divorced from any sort of idealistic moral judgement.

Men like hourglass figures, youthful skin, and high-pitched voices. Women like social dominance and confidence. Selfish men are more attractive to women. Promiscuity makes men more attractive and women less so. Women love children, men love their children.

And so on.

If you want to stay and talk, you don't have to agree. But you do have to stop casting moral aspersions on people here for discussing or believing these ideas. Because moral judgements get in the way of factual inquiries.

so what about women who defy stereotypes

8 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

so what about women who defy stereotypes?

What about them?

There's a reason that they are defying the stereotype instead of defining the stereotype.

You cannot disprove the statement "X is generally Y" by finding one single X that isn't Y. You have to count. You know, with, like... numbers.

The documentary that made Scandinavians cut all funds to its gender studies institute

8 upvotes · 22 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Just think of it as evolution in action.

I acknowledge Feminist BS exists.

8 upvotes · 12 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

Inventing something doesn't mean "speculating about a thing that might work". It means producing a working prototype.

The Essential Difference Between Blue and Red Pill Mating Advice.

8 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The way I like to put it is that the definition of an adult is "someone who realizes the universe is not one vast entity that exists to interact with you, but a huge set of disconnected entities that have as little to do with each other as any of them does with you".

This is why some people speak of fairness only to the specific people who are being unfair (they are adults), and others demand the taxpayer compensate them for what some other part of the universe did (they are children).

"TRP is pointless because I don't follow a single thing they say in that subreddit and still get laid"

8 upvotes · 27 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Your sailboat is useless because I can swim."

MRA's, please don't do this! What other groups within MRA do you think give us a bad name?

8 upvotes · 4 November 2013 · /r/MensRights

Concern trolls.

TRP: One Question, One Answer: Extrapolate.

8 upvotes · 13 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Still trying to run game, eh? Your audience is male, not female. Plan accordingly.

Girl asks facebook group for a "fake boyfriend" to bring at an elegant evening with her social group. I ask her "Hey, why don't just go by yourself? What's the big deal?" , rage, white knighting and hamstering ensue

8 upvotes · 25 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Crazier idea: you could have realized that this post affected you in no way, and kept your mouth shut.

Hey, it was your idea to begin with. Practice what you preach.

Western idiot is blinded by her hypergamy/western ideals and pays the price.

8 upvotes · 23 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

To a certain extent this read to me like old war propaganda :

"Those heathens from North Malden are uncivilized! They have Strange and Bizarre Customs! They eat Vile and Stinking Foreign Food! They are Strange and Inscrutable! And they Rape our Decent Womenfolk! Also, they are Brown in Colour!"

When rape charges are dropped, it's not appropriate to call the accuser 'the victim'

8 upvotes · 17 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Often, when there is a rape charge, the question is not who the sex was with, but whether the sex was rape.

"Chinese people often think males should be higher in a relationship in every sense, including height, age, education and salary," "A-grade men marry B-grade women, B-grade men marry C-grade women and C-grade men marry D-grade women. Only A-grade women and D-grade men can't find partners."

8 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

It's called hypergamy.

Women are only content, long-term, with a man they regard as superior to them in power or status. In traditional cultures, where men were regarded as socially superior, this was easy to satisfy.

Now, not so much.

That's why we can't have equality. Because women don't want it, and won't do what they would have to do to get it.

The Keys of Being An Alpha

8 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Integrity.

This means having a set of principles that you behave according to, and the courage to stick to them. It doesn't matter what those principles are. A man who sacrifices his health, welfare, and his very life for his family is showing integrity, but so is the man who refuses to lift a finger to assist the bastard he didn't want and its mother who didn't give him a choice. They have different sets of principles, but they're both sticking to them.

This means that the only invariant characteristic is not being swayed by the opinions of others, either externally in the form of shame, or internalized in the form of guilt. He acts as it seems right to him, rather than being a slave to the opinions of others.

This makes him a leader whether others follow him or not, or whether they even desire to. Because he refuses to led. He breaks his own trail, even if the only man walking it is himself. He doesn't have to be successful in the eyes of others, because success is success at a goal, and he chooses his own goals, without reference to what others think is important.

How do I make someone see that being submissive isn't a bad thing?

8 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

http://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/1jv82n/the_difference_between_submissive_and_obedient/

Have I become too intimidating?

8 upvotes · 18 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

It has come to my attention that I may be too intimidating of a person to date.

First of all, what's very unattractive to men is insulting them. To say that men are "intimidated" if they don't want to date you is suggesting that they are fearful or timid. As you must know from being in the military, that's the worst possible insult to a man.

How attractive would I be if I suggested that any woman who wasn't attracted to me was "a giant slut"? Not very? Right.

Well, that's what you're doing.

Men aren't afraid of a woman who is unmasculine. They uninterested in a woman who's unmasculine.

They don't want a woman who competes with them, not because they are afraid of losing, but because they don't want an SO that competes with them.

They're already tough, already competitive, already masculine. What do you have to offer that they do not have for themselves?

You're not scary. You're just unattractive.

What can I do in the meantime considering I wasted most of my good years backpacking in the sand? How can I fix it?

You can't fix it.

The past cannot be changed. You can only change who you are in the future. There are plenty of resources here on learning how to be feminine.

Near-wall age reformed carousel rider finds beta to take care of her. Comments are painful to read.

8 upvotes · 15 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The hamster is a powerful thing.

Women who settle for what their reduced SMV will bring in will convince themselves that their tastes have matured. But they'll never feel the passion for their nice, stable Mr. Responsible that they did for the gangster, varsity football star, or wealthy arrogant cad whose cock they sucked (mostly sans reciprocation) in high school, for a couple of months or weeks before he found a blonde he preferred.

Women who don't adjust to their reduced SMV will convince themselves that no man was good enough for them, men are all losers, and only Tiddles and Mr. Flufftail really understand them. Tiddles and Mr. Flufftail, are, of course, actually small unsentimental carnivores who would very sensibly devour her corpse before it got cold.

I was thinking that I'm learning TRP too late and for nothing since I'm 30 (what so now that I'm changing women want the traits I've had all life?) but the last part gave me hope.

No, no, no. You're a man. There is no wall for you, because no one values you for your looks anyway. Stay reasonably fit, don't get married, learn how to talk to women and you are fine.

Just don't bother with the ones over 30, eh?

[Hamster Science] Feminist study claims that the belief that men should be dominant in sexual/social relationships actually "hurts men" because they will become "less likely to feel confident in sexual situations" due to the fact that they didn't choose to take female condoms when offered

8 upvotes · 15 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I was a psych major at one point, before eventually graduating with a degree in engineering.

Most psychological experiments are performed on undergraduate psychology students, who are incentivized by one of three methods:

Extra course credit (Least common.)

Small amount of money.

Required to participate as a condition of passing courses.

Yes, you read that last one right.

Women Aren't Attracted To Men

8 upvotes · 9 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So a woman's body is part of her, but a man's status, confidence, power and self-image are not part of him?

No.

This isn't the pill. But it is a good example of a man who is ready to take that pill.

I always hated the "False Equivalency" comic.

8 upvotes · 4 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

In a way. But the problem is that one of those training wheels is shorter than the other.

There's some value there, but it's not consistent. There's no consensus emerging. TRP can't decide if it's a forum on male-female sexual dynamics, a pickup forum, an attempt to repackage traditional sex roles, or an attempt to reinvent them in a modern light.

Case in point: I was banned from TRP was advocating atheism by one mod, while the founding mod is an atheist.

Some people there think it's all about pickup and maintaining a "soft harem" of several different female sex partners, while others think that everyone else there is supposed to get in line with their crusade to revive chastity until marriage, and lifelong monogamy afterwards. Also Jesus.

Which would be fine, if it were a forum, which it was for a while. But then the mods, got all kick-happy, SRS-style. Not just me. Anyone they perceive as "disrespecting" any one of them.

Siege mentality has set in, and that's the death of any open forum.

Domestic Discipline

8 upvotes · 31 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

I was under the impression that taking it outside the bedroom was pretty rare? Do you have more information on how common it is?

I don't have statistics, but in my personal experience with a good many submissive women, there are three dynamics:

- The "bedroom-only" submissive. Wants to be spanked during sexytimes, doesn't like males having power over her when she has her clothes on. Rarest.
- The slave. Wants to be the property of her man, to trust and obey him absolutely in everything. Uncommon, but less rare than the first type.

- The subservient woman. Somewhere in between these two. Turned on by BDSM during sexytimes, finds emotional satisfaction from the dominance of trusted male authority outside the bedroom. Has limits to what she will comply with, and needs to be able to trust before obeying, but craves fulfillment of those conditions, because that dynamic makes her truly happy. Most common.

The reason most people think that moving it outside the bedroom is rare is that only the second category is publicized as such. But a woman doesn't have to wear a locking collar to enjoy giving up some power in her daily life.

The third category is a sort of silent majority of submissive women, kept silent by the public shame inflicted by feminists and feminist-influenced culture should they dare to speak out. The first category escapes this shaming by having an easier time staying in the closet, and because they are at least marginally acceptable to all but the most extreme of feminists should they choose to out themselves. The second category, while they certainly dare not out themselves to their families or professional colleagues, are generally far beyond caring what feminists think.

It is the third category of submissive woman who is hit hardest by the taboo against female submission in relationships. She is hit even harder than the sort of men whose attention she craves, for while we are certainly subject to character assassination, slander, and aspersions that we are "misogynists", "sociopaths", or "sick perverts" one short step from serial murder, our dominant preferences at least allow us to feel comfortable ignoring a great deal of ignorant hate.

A submissive woman, by her very nature, is keenly inclined to suffer (and not in a fun, sexy way) when criticized by the public (or loudmouthed feminist talking heads) for being who she is. And yet being submissive is no more a choice for her than being heterosexual (or not). The more submissive she is, the more she suffers from being held unacceptable by the "matriarchy".

This category includes, in my experience, a great many women, perhaps even a majority. Those who doubt me should go read a romance novel.

Too concrete, too literal, take a step back.

8 upvotes · 31 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Only if you're not paying attention. Tempest, for example, is a career woman. So is Dana. Even those of us that aren't, like me, are far from Ann Romneys.

Indeed.

To select the most blatant example for illustrative purposes, FleetingWish, one of the most ardent swallowers and pushers of the red pill, is a woman who has no intention of having children, isn't married, doesn't plan on getting married, and has a degree in mathematics and a career as an actuary.

Does this make her a big fat hypocrite?

No. Because the truth she is embracing isn't "you must get married, because... uh, that's how we always used to do it". That's not the red pill. That's just traditionalism reinvented, following along with others with no understanding of why.

The red pill begins with, and is composed of, understanding. The truth and understanding she embraces is that it is relationships, not achievements, that fulfill her. So she prioritizes relationships over her career.

Why does she refuse to marry? Because the man she loves refuses to accept Marriage 2.0. (Is there any woman here who blames him?) If she were to leave him and seek out another man who would marry her, then she would be treating marriage as an achievement to check off her list, rather than a relationship with someone she loves.

She has given up resume-building in favour of connection-building.

So why does she work? ~~Why does Dana work?~~ { Apparently, she doesn't, much. Because she doesn't have to. Which just supports the point I am about to make } Why does Tempest work? And why is Ann Romney emphatically NOT a career woman in any paid sense of the word?

Well, money, that's why. Women need money to live, so they work if they have to. Ann Romney is not working for money because she doesn't have to. She is independently wealthy. (Independently is the sense that she doesn't need a job.)

But notice how women who are independently stop working when they become so. Men who are independently wealthy keep working, and try to amass huge financial empires as a way of keeping score. Only when they have succeeded so thoroughly that their prestige could in no way be advanced by more wealth, do they switch tactics and try to gain yet further prestige by giving most of it to charity (Bill Gates, Warren Buffet, etc.).

Women work to survive and live in comfort. Men work to survive and have something to be proud of.

Once upon a time, women didn't have to work to survive. Their husbands would take care of that. A single professional-class income was all that was required to support a family of a husband, wife, and a few children, in a professional-class lifestyle. This changed when feminists demanded entry into the labour pool for all women, whether they wanted it or not. There were, after all, no real barriers to entry. No laws. No exclusions. All that was required was to shame women into going to universities and getting jobs.

With the supply of the professional labour increasing, but with no new source of demand for goods and services (because no new consumers entered the demand market), the real price of professional labour dropped sharply. Now it is possible for a single person to live a professional lifestyle on a single professional income, or for a family to live a professional lifestyle on two professional incomes, but the housewife is a dying breed... because even among those men willing to enter Marriage 2.0, who can afford one? Even those families wherein the husband's income is high enough to support everyone himself, the standard of living would still take a considerable hit from doing so. Only among the rich, not the merely well-off, can the absence of the wife's income be absorbed without pain.

Thus it is that feminists took an option which once belonged to all women not of the meanest fortunes, and reserved it for the richest of women, all in the name of making it slightly less awkward for white middle class women with liberal arts degrees to push papers in an office all day if they chose.

Ann Romney is Ann Romney because she can be. The rest of womankind isn't so lucky.

On some level she may even understand this:

"Look, I don't even consider myself wealthy, which is an interesting thing, it can be here today and gone tomorrow. And how I measure riches is by the friends I have and the loved ones that I have and the people that I care about in my life."

This sounds a lot like what I just said: women are fulfilled by relationships, not achievements. To have a wealthy husband is not as much to score big "got the best guy" points, as it is to free a woman from having to do the unfulfilling and necessary, replacing it with the rewarding and natural.

Modest woman trying to improve herself gets shamed by boombalatti for disgracing feminism (crosspost r/fatpeoplestories)

8 upvotes · 4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Haven't you heard? Feminism is like magic pixie dust. If it doesn't solve every problem, you're just not using enough!

In which fat girls lament that they are invisible, and then the pretty girls chime in to say they're not taken seriously.

8 upvotes · 17 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I especially love this one.

Can you imagine the outrage if a beta male implied that he was entitled to female attention like this?

Finding Fat Women Attractive Requires a Male to be Stressed Out

8 upvotes · 27 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The author is trying to spin this as good news for hamplanets, but it isn't.

The "heavier women" that guys sometimes like are these women, not these.

Train a society of men that the only acceptable option is to be "the nice guy". But.. If they notice that it works against them in dating that must mean they only want sex. So berate and chastise them

8 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

I think most women generally assume that character and virtue is reflected in behavior.

You're inverting a syllogism. All bugs are insects, not all insects are bugs.

All character and virtue affects behaviour, not all behaviour is affected by character and virtue.

If one spends some time reading r/seduction, and learning what attracts women, one learns that it is a very simple set of behaviours, almost algorithmically in its predictability. So much so that an experienced "pickup artist" can describe seducing a woman almost entirely in known acronyms and tech-lingo, a sort of shorthand that reveals how simple these behaviours really are.

Now, a lot of people, especially cultural Marxists, as well as ordinary women, react to this type of "pick up women" guides with great revulsion. They are offended by the idea that someone thinks women are so simple and mechanical.

But this stuff works. And that's what's really offensive to these people. Being stripped of the illusion that women are sophisticated creatures of nobility and discernment who fall in love with the quality of a man's soul.

You see, men experience ourselves as creatures of instinct every day. We know we prefer this and this to that or that.

And many women are quite happy to agree that men are pigs. What people don't like finding out is that women are pigs as well. That a certain type of sociopathic charm will moisten and remove panties with astonishing consistency and rapidity, in a way that kindness, consideration, respect, and trustworthiness never will.

So the despicable act here is not that women like charming cads. Until I stop liking pretty bimbos, I have no moral grounds to complain. The despicable part is lying about this basic truth, and hurting countless men (and women) in the process, just so some people can engage in self-congratulatory ego masturbation.

Fatter, Wimpier, More Pathetic

8 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Meh, less rant, more analysis.

Richard Dawkins on Feminism Invading Science

8 upvotes · 20 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Postmodernism is the blithering of an idiot who speaks, not only despite having nothing worthwhile to say, but precisely because she resents the fact that others do.

This was posted in Seddit.

8 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Doublethink: the ability to sustain two contradictory ideas by not thinking about both of them at once.

Tupac drops some red pill wisdom

8 upvotes · 3 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

One of my favourite phrases is "If you kick a nice dog enough times, you'll have a mean dog on your hands". This sub is full of mean dogs.

Indeed.

But the next step is to become a smart dog.

A smart dog knows when to be friendly and when to be mean and when to be neither. A smart dog isn't "nice" or "mean", because "nice" or "mean" aren't things he is, just things he knows how to do.

A smart dog makes sure everyone understands that he is capable of biting, but only bites people who need it. A smart dog can be nice, but only is nice to those who are nice to him first, not to everyone in the hopes that they might be nice back.

Study shows that both men and women look down on prospective partners for too many sexual encounters. "Slut-shaming" not restricted to women only.

8 upvotes · 10 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

If you want to see an example of the slut-shaming of males, look no further than what people say about PUAs... some of it right here on this subreddit.

Edit: Free examples below this line:

"Men should be offended" (x-post from r/feminisms) I whole-heartedly agree.

8 upvotes · 4 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is insightful, but I don't actually agree. Because I think that even rapists are not rapists by nature.

Rapists are not born, they are made.

"To learn who rules over you, simply find out who you are not allowed to criticize." ~Voltaire

8 upvotes · 19 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

And the chauffeur is totally the most important person in a car.

What makes Jews so special?

8 upvotes · 7 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Good point.

We don't allow muslims to mutilate little girls "because their religion requires it".

Common law husband forced to give $25000 per month to ex partner, $5100 is for pets he bought her. $10000 just wasn't enough, so she asked for $95000.

8 upvotes · 2 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, plus she couldn't possibly be expected to give up a "lavish lifestyle" just because she broke up with the guy who gave it to her. That would be unfair.

To /r/feminism: here's what's wrong with reddit

8 upvotes · 29 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Indeed.

Because the people writing "nigger" all over 4chan are joking. This... person... is actually serious.

Disturbing thought.

Feminists attack and misrepresent Mens Rights Movement (Fathers4Justice, National Coalition for Men, A Voice for Men, RegisterHer)

8 upvotes · 21 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

No argument here. Any time you discriminate against a group, the greatest hurt is inflicted upon its most marginalized members.

"that what a man looks like?"

8 upvotes · 13 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

cisgender men

Please don't come in here using pejorative terms. We are against bigotry.

An anomaly: has bed talk after an f-close ever turn you off so much that you want to stop dating for a few weeks?

8 upvotes · 16 April 2012 · /r/seduction

but after hearing about all the retarded waste-of-carbon betas that abused her in the past

I am usually suspicious of anyone who has many, many stories of horrible people who have abused them.

Everyone has run into one or two psychopaths in their lives. But if everyone they ever knew is being run down as a terrible unfair awful person, it starts to occur to me that only common element in all these stories is... themselves.

"...as long as no men in your life have made Men's Rights Activism a part of their identity, it's not something you have to fear." | Dear Coquette

8 upvotes · 10 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Isn't it interesting how the backlash against the MRM is so much more immediate, vehement, and hateful than the backlash against feminism that they suppose us to be?

Why is consent always framed into a feminist narrative as being something a woman gives to a man allowing him to do sex to her?

8 upvotes · 7 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because gender is a construct except when it isn't.

What if women don't need guys any more, and guys don't care? [Rebuttal to article]

8 upvotes · 29 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Unless, of course, they didn't have to. Feminism not only released women from the shackles of social expectations, it may inadvertently have released men as well. Think about it.

"Oops, we accidentally liberated men a little bit! Quick, someone fix it!"

39 year old woman jailed for 40 years for sex with minor.

8 upvotes · 18 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Ludicrous. People get less than that for murder.

To straight, male MRAs in relationships: Has your stance on men's rights had any impact on your relationship? How does your wife/girlfriend view your opinions?

8 upvotes · 13 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

if your goals are equality

Not really relevant, but I'm not really sure I like that word. Too often, "equality", which was meant to mean "equality before the law", gets boiled down to "treat everyone the same".

I prefer the word "fairness", which acknowledges that people may have the same level of humanity and worthiness as ends rather than means, but they are still different, have different needs and wants, and thus may require somewhat different treatment.

I wandered in here today and I'm a little hurt.

8 upvotes · 10 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Well, let me explain.

This is typical of our experiences in speaking to feminists, especially online. When we say something (or someone says something men's rights oriented) in a forum they control, there are a few remarks about "misogyny" and "privilege", followed by censorship and possibly a ban.

When we disagree with them in a forum we control, there are the same remarks about misogyny and privilege, followed by either a quick retreat, or by endless remarks about "neckbeards who can't get laid".

That's why I view you as just a little bit naive in starting this topic. Because our experience of feminism, and our opposition to it, isn't about fedfems saying hateful things about men. It's about mainstream feminists, and their complete monopoly on gender policy, coupled with their complete unwillingness to acknowledge, or even listen to, our concerns.

When we do speak up, people quickly try to change the subject to whether or not you are a misogynist, or a rape apologist, or a neckbeard, or a beater of women.

It isn't what the radfems are saying. It's the lack of listening by mainstream feminists. And the people who listen to them.

It's time to give credit where it's due, /r/mensrights.

8 upvotes · 24 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Precisely.

One of the advantages of being a man is that we are raised in such a way that we are used to criticism.

This is why I don't support calls for the complete elimination of the notion of "standards of manliness" or calls to "man up"; because some of these standards are actually good for us.

An upcoming pro Male Genital Mutilation documentary we should be aware about.

8 upvotes · 22 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

How dare we restrict their religious freedom to cut pieces off babies?

I Have Female Privilege.

8 upvotes · 21 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Hey, hold on a minute.

Anybody else notice that this article is hosted on that beta-male, feminist-appeasing quisling site "Good Men Project"?

What the fuck is it doing there?

Is this an indicator that, after the recent drama, they may be starting to wake up to the fact that there is no appeasing a feminist, and that supremacy movements will accept nothing short of total unconditional surrender?

Could it be that feminist hate has managed to become visible even those gutless and eternally persistent stiletto-heel-lickers?

Stay tuned, folks.

If You Don't Believe Feminism is a Hate Movement, You Should.

8 upvotes · 16 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Why are you telling us?

Tell them.

If your post is getting downvoted on r/mensrights, it's probably because of the feminist downvote brigade in r/shitredditsays. They complain that we trespass in their "safe space," all the while mindlessly downvoting every legitimate point that we make.

8 upvotes · 14 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's essentially a bunch of losers who fell for the liberal arts pyramid scheme in college

Good point.

Higher education (except for certain specialized fields such as engineering, medicine, and some hard sciences) has become a pyramid scheme, where students are lured in with the promise of lucrative, or at least stable, careers, then graduate to find that the only career a liberal arts, art history, english, or gender studies major is actually prepared for is teaching that subject.

So a lucky few move to the top of the pyramid, and the others find themselves a lot poorer than they expected.

But, having been steeped in liberal ideology (which is not always wrong, but certainly wrong about this), and having of course the natural tendency to blame others rather than themselves, they blame this on economic injustices in society (of which there are lots... but this is not one of them), rather than the fact that they spent a lot of time and money learning things that no one will pay them for, because no one wants or needs them done.

They could, of course, blame the injustice of allowing hucksters to scam 18 year old kids fresh out of high school into borrowing huge amounts of "student" loans, and just giving it to them. The fact that these hucksters run respected universities rather than used car lots makes them more difficult to spot, but they are hucksters nonetheless.

They could blame the leaders of society, who like to pretend that education is the universal high road to a better life (they like to do this so they have an excuse for running a society where hard work and responsible spending isn't enough to get you ahead).

These would be justified complaints. But making either one would involve admitting a mistake. Which is something that people who have set themselves up as having all the answers just cannot do.

So scapegoats have to be found. Men. Straight people. White people. Rich people. Straight white rich men. Whoever. If only they would pay more (they use the words "fair share" to avoid the word "more") taxes, which the government would then give to them, or others like them, or both.

But they fail to see that the true injustice is that they have been placed in a position where they can't earn that money for themselves, not that someone hasn't given it to them. They have been tricked out of majoring electrical engineering. They take for granted that medical bills will cost so much that you need insurance. They just accept that there will be single mothers to need subsidies. They bat not an eyelash at the notion that more than 50% of their income goes to rent.

I don't think "loser" is quite the best term for someone who got scammed at 18, but many of them are doubling down on that scam, and that's not the best idea out there.

California man whose ex-wife poured boiling water over him and then clubbed him with a baseball bat died Friday.

8 upvotes · 10 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

What's the over/under on "six months, with court-ordered counseling after"?

4 reasons why its bad to have a penis

8 upvotes · 17 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

most women's self-defence instructors will tell you to aim 90% of your attacks at a man's testicles and the other 10% at his eyes and testicles.

Actual martial arts teacher here, who can actually teach people how to survive a real attack.

Don't do this. You will not come well out of it.

This perspective is from a female friend's blog; all the more reason to say, "Fuck AA."

8 upvotes · 6 October 2011 · /r/seduction

This is a bad article.

It's not badly written. But it's bad. It's bad because it uses rhetoric to argue against the evidence.

r/seduction: 32,065 readers r/fpua: 50 readers

When try to prove something by theorizing instead of looking at the evidence, you get a sort of "truthiness"... something sounds plausible, is internally consistent, but has no relation to what's actually going on.

Now, we don't know, without more evidence, if men express more desire for sex because they have a higher sex drive (natural scarcity of female sexuality), or because they just have less control over sex (artificial scarcity of female sexuality), but the fact is that they do.

So if women are sexually frustrated occasionally, and some of them might be, then it's just not as big a problem for them... because they're not driving themselves crazy, or spending thousands of dollars on seminars, or reading subreddit devoted to, trying to do something about it.

The fact it, any unmarried woman who doesn't have problems with her appearance, and is sufficiently pleasant company to have some male friends, can get laid when she wants simply by quietly propositioning them until one says yes.

The reason that these women do still experience sexual frustration is that they are unwilling to do this.

How ugly can misandry get? From the site Patriarchy Watch : "If you're a heterosexual RadFem, you have to face the fact that you're kind of into bestiality. One of the conundrums for us heterosexual Radfems is our sexual attraction to our oppressor."

8 upvotes · 5 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

So if a woman is awful, it must be because a man traumatized her?

Trans Disclosure(Post-Op)[MTF, in this case]

8 upvotes · 26 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Okay, you could be asking for my definition of a woman, and I could answer that, or for HouseIsLife's, and he could answer.

But I think it's more important to point out that humans made up the word "woman" to describe a cluster of real-world phenomena. It's therefore a matter of opinion what set of these is defining.

Now, it's obvious from condescending remarks like "precious heterosexuality" that you view our opinions with a good deal of contempt. (Which does raise the question of why we should extend yours any respect in turn, but that's another issue.)

But the difference between a person with a strong opinion (healthy), and a person who is a lying, manipulative sociopath (not healthy) is do they allow person X's opinion to run person X's life? Obviously, person X's opinion cannot be allowed to run person Y's life. It doesn't make sense for some random fundamentalist to tell two gay men they can't get married, or for parents to cut off bits of their kids' genitals (as opposed to their own).

But when you start deciding that other people need to justify their life decisions to you before they can be allowed to live their lives according to them... well, then you're at the very least a zealot, and bordering on megalomania. Somewhat like those obnoxious people who hang about college campuses with big signs, telling everyone they are going to hell (except that those people cannot actually force or trick you into praying).

A sincere no does indeed mean no, even if you have deprived someone, through trickery, of the opportunity to say it. If I hypnotize a woman into believing I am her husband, and have sex with her, I'm a rapist even if she never finds out.

And we could have a philosophical argument all day about whether a very good forgery of Da Vinci's Lady with an Ermine actually IS "real" or not, and some people might indeed be just as happy with the replica. But try to sell it to a collector without disclosing that it is, indeed, a forgery, and you're going to upset some people. And possibly go to prison, because most people understand that deception is unethical, so they passed some laws about things like that.

Bottom line: Consent must be informed consent. And no one has to justify their taste in sexual partners to anyone else.

6 out of 10 Welsh men who take a Paternity test turn out not to be the biological father

8 upvotes · 19 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

More science books, less tv.

Colleges expand definitions of sexual misconduct to punish consensual sex

8 upvotes · 9 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

So what, he said, "Come onnnnn!" one too many times, and instead of putting her damn foot down and saying no, breaking off the date, telling him to stuff it, or saying, "Look. I'm not having sex with you tonight, so let's just chill and watch a movie or something instead," she was too fragile to withstand the hurricane force of his "nagging" and let herself be talked into consenting?

Since when have women become such delicate flowers that they can't be expected to stick to the word "no" in the face of some nagging? Oh dear, poor bunny, we can't expect her to resist nagging.

I think I love you.

(Oh, noes! What haz I sed?? I r a rapest nnao!)

Colleges expand definitions of sexual misconduct to punish consensual sex

8 upvotes · 9 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

You're being downvoted because there's no clearcut distinction between "nag", "persuade", and "seduce".

Even Dan Savage thinks Hugo Schwyzer is completely insane

8 upvotes · 22 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Hey, if you can "pray the gay away", maybe you can pray yourself gay.

Someone in r/seduction wakes the fuck up. These two subreddits need to talk.

8 upvotes · 25 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

so the mod of a subreddit all about superficiality, casual sex, seduction and manipulation somehow thinks he/she has the moral highground over a subreddit about the rights of a particular population subgroup?

That perception of r/seduction is just as inaccurate as his perception of r/mensrights.

r/seduction is about how to be more attractive and develop social skills.

Woman tries to date women... lol

8 upvotes · 6 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

The trick is to get yourself a FWB or two, then with the whole sex thing covered, just wait however long it takes for a sane one to come along.

This is typically on the order of years to decades.

"You look like someone I know." What should I have said?

8 upvotes · 9 May 2011 · /r/seduction

{Big grin} "Well, he must be incredibly good-looking, then."

Feminist says women abusing men isn't as bad as men abusing women

7 upvotes · 6 April 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Yes in normal sense when woman slaps a man it doesn't leave as much as damage as when man slaps a woman.

You have no evidence of this.

A slap leaves NO physical damage. It leaves psychological damage.

Ten years a RPW, hit the wall with no loving marriage in sight. Trying to figure out why?

7 upvotes · 29 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I suspect there's a "live duck" moment somewhere in here.

Shower thoughts: being water

7 upvotes · 12 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think that there is a strong push to only trust yourself and do it all for yourself... However, what I was specifically considering this morning was adapting to a leaders vision (or desired lifestyle). When there is no place for the group there is no need to adapt to it. When the expectation is that we all stand on our own, being submissive is a detriment.

Ah, so what you are focusing on is the cultural emphasis on "leadership".

The early 21st century western model of leadership is to achieve a position where one has the power to allocate the resources of an enterprise, then to allocate as many resources as possible to oneself and one's peers, while deeply resenting the necessity to leave behind enough resources make the enterprise actually run, or, more frequently, limp.

This sort of leadership model can typically be spotted in individuals by listening for the characteristic statements that they make, such as:

- "People don't want to work any more."
- "Millennials are entitled and spoiled."
- "I was born after the end of World War 2 and before 1965."

In an environment led by this sort of individual, there is absolutely no point in learning to be a good follower, because their definition of a good follower is the same as their definition of good toilet paper: soft, pliable, resilient, absorbent, and disposable.

It is not by coincidence that they use these two categories of article in much the same fashion.

In other words, to put it simply: Hippies are the worst possible people, and they ruin everything.

Which brings us to capitalism and individualism. People who are much younger than these individuals tend to not remember a world before them. So, confronting the damage done by these upholstered parasites, they tend to shake their fist at the sky screaming "curse you, capitalism!", when they really should be screaming "curse you, grandad!", because capitalism got on just fine before these characters finally got to be in charge (usually for no better reason than everyone older than them dying or retiring).

In other words, no one wants to be a follower nowadays, not because we are individualistic, but because our leaders and institutions are so universally corrupt and useless that trusting them is suicide.

The only safe place on the pyramid to stand is at the top.

Which makes the modern marriage somewhat of an anachronism.

I've been perfectly clear in the past, but I'll say it again... marriage is obsolete, having been ruined both by technological progress and scavengers looting its corpse.

Does that mean women shouldn't get married, or be good followers in their marriages? Of course not.

Men shouldn't get married. Women should do everything they can to find a man who is both a good leader and who hasn't listened to my advice in the last sentence. Then they should grab on with both hands and try to ride the last train out of Clusterfuckistan. And being a good follower is not just a way, but the way, to do that.

But you can't expect western culture, in general, to glorify followers anymore, because the modern role of a follower is most closely analogous to the aforementioned toilet paper, or perhaps less graphically to food, both being equally disposable ends of the same process of unilateral consumption.

Found this on tiktok

7 upvotes · 11 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

How does it feel to be this predictable?

Scottish feminist wants to scrap jury trials for rape cases. This man would have been in prison had it not been for a jury which demonstrates why she's an absolute imbecile.

7 upvotes · 25 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Since when did the Scots turn from warriors into a bunch of giant pussies?

[CMV] Men are not getting sex because they participate in normie culture

7 upvotes · 23 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You are incorrect because you don't go far enough. This phenomenon is not unique to sex.

The goal of mainstream modern western culture is to extract the maximum amount of work from heterosexual men under 40 while allowing them to keep as little as possible of the value they create.

The reason our civilization is in decline is that this process has become so refined that young men are simply checking out. The juice isn't worth the squeeze to them.

Men who plan to marry in their 40s are ruining the dating market

7 upvotes · 16 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ruining for themselves?

Or ruining it for you?

Women who HAVE in fact dated or married a Red Pill Man, good experience/relationship or negative?

7 upvotes · 12 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Red Pill Men and Red Pill Women are different. They have many overlaps, but there are some ideas they do not agree on.

Not quite.

TRP and RPW are working from the same set of facts about how human beings are, but they're getting different tactics from those facts, because they have different goals.

With one notable exception that insiders will already be aware of, TRP and RPW are not necessarily each other's dating pool, and their definitions of success look quite different. Nonetheless, the two groups actually get along pretty well, mostly because they are advised to avoid the other group until they are pretty advanced in their personal growth.

In fact, contact with the other group is a very good test of this personal growth. A woman from RPW is quite advanced in her development if she can read TRP without becoming sad, angry, or offended. A man from TRP is quite advanced if he can participate in RPW, comment, and have women there trust and believe in him.

How can men fix online dating? Issues from a woman's point of view

7 upvotes · 10 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Also the projection... "you are being mean to me (by not acting as my unpaid servant), you'll never get laid with that attitude". As if every single woman in the universe were as mean-spirited, entitled, and demanding as she is.

That's why she noped out when I told her that I was in my late forties and have two far younger girlfriends. The idea that a man who isn't a doormat might still be loved by women undermines her whole approach of "I have a vagina, cater to me".

Such women simply cannot confront the fact that vaginas are pretty much interchangeable, so men with value do not prize women for their vaginas. We prize women for their femininity, their empathy, their kindness, their consideration, their enthusiasm, their ability to make us laugh, and support our ambitions, and believe in us, and share our dreams.

Women like that are the ones we keep.

If she is hearing "hey bb u want sum fuk" on Tinder a lot, then it's because she is not that kind of woman.

Of course, the solution is to get on RPW and learn to be that woman. But it's really rare for women to do that because most of the women who need that advice believe that if they show any gentleness or kindness they will simply be exploited.

That's the fear that drove them to this kind of nastiness in the first place. I don't know of a good solution to this.

Lesbians, what's your take on FDS?

7 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Many men are unsuccessful in dating women precisely because they are displaying far too much empathy. Heterosexual women do not find empathy attractive.

Proof that this sub is mostly red-pillers and not truly a purple pill debate?

7 upvotes · 12 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's not proof.

Reading $\neq$ practicing or believing.

Lack of reading $\neq$ lack of practice or belief.

How do you answer, "what do you bring to the table?"

7 upvotes · 13 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's good that you recognize that men are gods, our voiced opinions are divine law, and that anything we express disapproval of, we are actually forbidding you to do.

But sometimes, before forbidding something and changing the laws of physics so that it is actually impossible, we like to gather information from you mere mortal female types.

So we ask questions.

QFW: Does penis size is taken into account for judging a man to be HVM or not?

7 upvotes · 10 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So it's time men started giving you an honest one. Yes, we notice. Yes, it matters. Yes, we will dump you if you get too fat.

This is what modern feminism and modern women refuse to admit when they say it is ok to have sex with anybody you liked. Women, they are destorying you. These comments also dropped truth bombs

7 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

People can, may, and should say what they want to say.

No one is forcing you, or even trying to force you, to listen.

Should I be concerned if a man doesn't think sex has to be deep / emotional?

7 upvotes · 5 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you're disappointed to learn that men and women are different, I have bad news for you.

Would customizable robots, indistinguishable from humans, solve everyone's problems here?

7 upvotes · 18 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Being able to create a human-equivalent being that wanted to exist only to serve others would certainly solve everyone's sex problems. But it would also solve so many other problems that this would be trivial.

You're proposing the technological singularity in order to fix something comparatively trivial.

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

7 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When you were confronted with an answer to your specific question, your response was... rather uninspiring.

Struggling with the sexual aspect of my relationship - feel like a man eater.

7 upvotes · 16 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, the first thing you need to go is understand the real need that is going unmet. Is it physical and hormonal desire for sex? Is it the need to feel desirable? The need to feel loved?

Next, you need to understand each others' point of view. He needs to know what sex means to you, couched in non-judgmental language. And you need to understand that for men, sex is a performance.

You may not know this, but most mammal species have a bony mass in their penis that aids in fast, reliable erectile function. Even other great apes have this, but humans do not. This means that a complex mechanism of hormonal cues, neurological signals, and blood inflation must work to achieve an erection. If any part of this system, from his blood vessels to his mood, isn't quite working, or into this, then that erection will be only semirigid at most if not completely absent.

That means that if you are going to indulge someone, and have sex when you are not sure you are into it, all you have to be is lie there, and maybe avail yourself of some external lubrication.

He, however, has to find some way to "get his head in the game", and this becomes more difficult the more he tries to do it... because he is now associating sex with performance anxiety.

This all is compounded by the false idea that a limp dick means "you are not a real man" or "you watch too much porn", rather than the actual meaning, which is "hey, bro, you're not into this". So beware, not only of creating too much pressure, but of causing him to pressure himself.

Lastly, you should absolutely get bloodwork done to see what your biochemical and hormonal health is like. Not just him... you, too. Both because it is generally a good idea and so that you are not stigmatizing him as "the problem".

I'm Pregnant and Struggling with Telling my Mother

7 upvotes · 15 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why would you tell them anything? Why would you even speak to them?

Here's a calculator for women to find how many men fit their criteria, and the results are not good

7 upvotes · 11 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Our food industry is owned by several large conglomerates, who are poisoning us with sugar and processed starch while telling us it's our fault we're fat because "a calorie is a calorie".

If you tell most Americans this, they will get mad at you, and angrily agree with the people poisoning them, because they don't want to give up their sugar addiction.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

7 upvotes · 24 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/humansockpuppet

Let's make this happen.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

7 upvotes · 23 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

When the guys on seddit started saying "leave her better than you found her", I knew that no matter how easily and gracefully they put themselves out there risking rejection, they were still cowards.

They knew damn well that they didn't care about these women's welfare... and that it wasn't their responsibility. We are not baby-sitters, or bodyguards, or therapists, for random women at large.

Women can take care of themselves, and choose what they want out of life. If they don't always do a very good job of it, that's on them. No one is forcing them to jump on a bunch of strange dick, only offering the opportunity.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

7 upvotes · 23 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

What puzzles me about people who accuse others of "not lifting" is that they must somehow think that lifting is hard.

That's bizarre. It's the easiest male responsibility. All you have to do is get a handle, some heavy things, attach the heavy things to the handle, then get under the handle and push it up, then over the handle and pull it up.

Monkeys could figure this out.

RIP itiswr1tten

7 upvotes · 18 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Have you personally experienced the thing you are trying to tell us about?

Society hates you and everyone like you

7 upvotes · 13 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

"Society" will not save you. It is not there to help you. It is not your incubator.

You can jerk off to Marx or Evola all you like, whichever suits your utopian vision, but ultimately you have to face the fact that what you want out of that is someone else to do your job for you.

And no one but your mommy and daddy actually give a shit about making your individual life better.

That's on you.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

7 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Good. I don't think there's really anything to be defensive about, here, in fact. I don't get the feeling he's telling you he's dissatisfied at all... it's more like he's just trying to tell you what would be even nicer.

And here these other women were telling you he's a gaslighting abuser... sigh. Women are so protective of other women that they will even put that ahead of fucking listening to them first.

But his communication skills do need some serious fucking work.

Backing off and letting my husband pursue me?

7 upvotes · 3 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Stop asking me how to implement your solution, and tell me what your problem is.

I hate being grouped into an all-encompassing definitive. I am completely capable of knowing when my rights are in threat of infringement. Do these type of women just think men are stupid?

7 upvotes · 2 June 2021 · /r/MensRights

men don't even entertain the thought that someone would not allow him to use his own hard earned money

Allow me to introduce you to a concept called "taxes".

I'm new to the term Red pill.

7 upvotes · 7 May 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Red pill is used as a general metaphor for truths that go against cultural consensus, and "taking the red pill" is a metaphor for making life decisions according to these truths, rather than the cultural consensus.

The existence of all red pill ideology highlights one big issue: Why do we tell people looks/money/personality type doesn't matter when it does?

7 upvotes · 26 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Exactly. And the reason, the only reason, that all of this makes you angry or sad is that you are comparing the real world to the ideal world that exists only in your head.

It's not the reality that's hurting you. It's the illusion. When you let go of the illusion, the pain will stop. Then you can focus on improving your situation, without the expectation that things should be easy, or perfect.

Any opinions?

7 upvotes · 13 April 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

The amusing part about it is that it doesn't actually say which is which, yet people's own brains fill that right in.
I wonder why?

Toxic masculinity is because of men who are too feminine apparently but they say not masculine enough

7 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Our society is suffering from a shortage of real masculinity & it brings great harm to women and children

And here the tradcons tip their hand... they don't see us as people whose welfare is an end unto itself. They just see us as a means to serving women and children.

Make no mistake, just because feminism is your enemy, and tradconism is feminism's enemy, doesn't mean tradconism is your friend. They are just fighting over who has a better plan for exploiting you.

Bad Redpill arguments against promiscuousness of women

7 upvotes · 5 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yep. Game over, we have a winner.

Female promiscuity isn't a cause of relationship unsuitability. It's a trailing indicator.

Body Acceptance/HAES is a female on female psyop

7 upvotes · 5 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not svelte sexy chicks pushing HAES. It's landwhales.

BluePillars, what makes you still believe the bluepill? Have you gone from red/purple pill to blue pill?

7 upvotes · 2 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It means that a person has their own desires and ideals and should strive to meet them

This is why TRP and TBP end up talking at cross purposes.

TRP concerns itself with what is, and only alleges hypothetical imperatives. TBP concerns itself with what "should be", and alleges categorical imperatives.

And since you can't get "ought" from "is", or "is" from "ought", the two discourses end up being completely orthogonal.

To put it in simpler terms, we don't actually care what you think we should do.

The former makes it easier to find someone you're compatible with Compatibility is a particular shibboleth of the blue pill. The theory is that people fit together like puzzle pieces, and that therefore the best mating strategy possible is to randomly try different people until you find one that "clicks".

And then of course, if someone is not "being themselves", then it's difficult to find someone "compatible" with the "real self".

This, of course, is a contraction in terms. I cannot be unlike myself. What does that even mean? I am, by definition, like myself. The basic premise the $A = A$ is as true of humans as it is of numbers.

The red pill model doesn't really use "compatibility" as a monolithic concept. It's so vague as to be tautological:

"How do you make a relationship work?"

"Have it with someone compatible."

"How do you know who is compatible?"

"If your relationship works."

These ideas aren't just wrong, they are meaningless.

{ The rest of what you wrote is just a reiterated assertion of the idea that people have a fixed essential nature that is not merely consistent over time, but actually immutable. }

Yes, if you think that people not only don't change, but actually can't change, then the idea of self-improvement would of course be nonsensical.

Of course, then you end up saying silly things like "That is not the Ship of Theseus. It is merely an indistinguishable copy of the Ship of Theseus which behaves exactly like it in every respect and cannot be told apart from it by any possible test."

And at that point, you might as well start arguing about how many angels can dance on the head of a pin.

RedPillars, what would you say was your "RedPill moment?"

7 upvotes · 25 March 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And that's why the spergy girls tend to have better outcomes.

They have to think about using the tools, so they naturally start to think about what to use the tools for.

What else have we being lied to about?

7 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

That is not an argument. And it's important to understand why not.

The beliefs of intelligent people are often taken for truth, because people operate on the assumption that being smart makes you right.

It does not.

There is only one known path to truth, and it's called empiricism. That's a fancy word for "go and look at it".

Smart people are as prone to self-deception as anyone else... in fact, their self-deceptions are more dangerous, because they are more plausible, and people find them more convincing.

There are only two ways in which smart people could be more likely to be right:

1. If the universe could be figured out with pure reason, without the need for testing. It can't.
2. Smart people are more likely to figure out that the universe can't be figured out with pure reason, and thus more likely to start doing empiricism instead.

So, tell me, what is an empirical result of god existing? What kind of test can you do to see if god exists? What condition can we look for that would only be true if god exists?

An allegation that cannot be tested not only cannot be true... it cannot even be false. It is simply nonsense.

The very concept of god is syntactically correct, but semantically meaningless. It cannot possibly be true, not only in this universe, but in any universe we can discuss, because the word truth really means "predictive power". That which cannot be tested has no predictive power, and hence no truth.

Or, you could try a stricter definition of god... one that has observable consequences, and can be falsified. If you wish to discuss that, I will happily specify controlled conditions under which you may perform the Test of Elijah, and we'll see what happens.

What are you looking to find when you read here? What is PRW? Maybe it's time to reassess what this sub is about.

7 upvotes · 5 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Glad it's working out for you.

As for bias, we have a little trick there. We keep out any man who isn't already very successful with women in his own life. Such men have, by definition, received a lot of love and positive attention from women, so whatever resentment they might have ever felt is a thing of the distant past.

In TRP, we deliberately stoke that "incel resentment", in order to get men to develop a spine, value themselves, and stop pedestalizing women. But the trick we play on them, the part that we don't tell them, is that these negative messages about women are a temporary crutch to get them past their old, bad habits... and that once women start responding to their attentions, and even start chasing them, a lot of that anger fades real quick.

If you were to go and read TRP (which I do not for a moment recommend), you'd see some real, raw anger there, and it's legitimate. These men really have been given the short end of the stick. And it takes a while for them to realize that the proper target for that anger isn't women (who are just acting according to their nature in the same way men do), but the people who misled them about what the nature of women is.

In reality, those women have been misled, too. They've been told that men and women are equal, that men and women are both just people, and thus essentially the same underneath. That if you just treat others how you would want to be treated, you'll be okay.

None of that is true, of course. Humans have a huuuuuge amount of "sexual dimorphism", and the sexes behave and think very differently. This doesn't doom us to misunderstandings, however. We can learn how the other thinks, and what they want.

But first we have to dispense with the lie that we think alike.

PLATE CAME BACK after I nexted her

7 upvotes · 5 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

This is your first real dose of the intense female adoration can can happen from red pill techniques well applied.

Tastes really good, doesn't it?

Don't get too hung up on what you are "supposed" to do, and stop worrying about what you "look like".

Remember, your goal isn't to avoid emotional investment (especially not hers in you), but to keep yourself unconstrained by her expectations.

If she's willing to interact on your terms, and be a good, obedient girl, there's no reason why you can't let her. Just make it clear that you're in charge, with regular compliance tests. Remember that a woman who truly loves a man is happier as his slave than as his equal.

Girls are pets. Treat them like pets, and pet them when they obey.

Threatened with violence at the gym, did I lose frame or stand my ground?

7 upvotes · 4 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

What's your favorite flavour of boot polish?

Thanks for stating the obvious.

7 upvotes · 21 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

What's my sign?

"Sanders for President"

This Article Will Infuriate You

7 upvotes · 5 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Well, we could go waaaaaaaaaaaaay deeper down the biochem rabbit hole, as some people have in the comments. But I'm trying to write the simplest thing that makes people understand enough to follow.

And we really don't need to study biochemistry and talk about the mitochondria in the liver releasing citrate from fructose metabolism to understand how to eat right, because our ancestors ate right, and they didn't have digital scales, nutritional labeling, or even understand the concept of a "calorie" at all.

We don't need to know how to bring our bodies into energy balance, because our bodies are evolved to do that themselves. As an engineer, I wouldn't dream of designing anything that processes fuel into energy without a full PID negative feedback loop, because it would blow up. Well, our bodies have not only one, but several.

So all we have to do is know how not to fuck them up by introducing something they weren't designed to handle. That's enough to keep us healthy. (Although we have to do a little more to become healthy again if we didn't do that, and are now sick.)

So, what are the things that the human metabolic control loops weren't designed to handle?

Rebuilt food. A lot of people call this "processed food", but everything is a process, and certain processes we do on food produce something that's healthy (like microbes turning milk into cheese). Rebuilt food is natural food that has been chemically broken down into its component parts and reassembled and combined into something else.

Some humans have been eating tapioca root for thousands upon thousands of years, but when you break it down into "modified tapioca starch", and then put that into something else with other ingredients, then you're separating things the metabolism expects to encounter together, and putting those things with other things it doesn't expect to encounter at the same time.

When you take the protein and lipids out of something, and render it into pure starch, you've removed a lot of what triggers satiety (your body saying "stop, we've had enough food"). Then when you break it down and modify it more, it gets absorbed faster, and sends insulin levels higher quicker, at the same time you are eating more of it because there's no protein or fat.

The less likely your ancestors would have recognized it, the less likely it is that you should eat it. The further back in time you can go and have your ancestors still recognize it, the more likely you should eat it.

Constant food flow. This is the big one. Our ancestors didn't have refrigerators, sodium benzoate, and mini-marts. In order to eat food, they frequently had to catch it, or at least cook it. This took time. Even as we learned to store food, it still had to be prepared from a storage state into a consumption state. Which caused us to eat discrete meals at certain periods of the day and not eat anything in between.

If you want to know what this produces, do a google image search for "1960s". Look at the photos of crowds of people. Play "spot the fatty". You're not going to find them. Because they ate meals once in a while, instead of "snacks" constantly, their insulin had a chance to go low... essentially, this was like the short version of intermittent fasting, which is enough to keep you metabolically healthy if you are not already metabolically sick.

Fructose/sucrose and alcohol. These really fall under the category of "rebuilt food", but they are so bad that I wish to call them out separately. These not only turn directly into fat, they turn into fat in the worst places (your liver and pancreas), alter your metabolism so you eat more, and alter your metabolism so what you eat turns into fat more. These two substances are essentially the same and they are both straight up poison. Not only poison, but addictive poison.

So, how to eat to stay healthy? Eat like people ate before processed food and microwaves.

1. Cook food out of real ingredients.
2. Eat it in big lumps at mealtimes, and nothing in between.
3. Use sugar and alcohol sparingly.

That's the "early 20th century diet", and it's enough to keep you healthy without having to count calories or ever leave the table still hungry.

But if you need to get healthy, instead of just stay healthy, because you're already sick, then you need to exaggerate those three things:

1. Instead of just using real ingredients, use real ones that avoid combining high insulin with high carbs: potatoes, white rice, brown bread, etc. These are fine for healthy people, but less so for sick ones.
2. Make the periods between meals longer, by doing time-restricted eating, or real all-day or multi-day fasts. The fatter you are, the longer you should fast. With proper micronutrient supplementation, really obese people can go for months without eating and be fine.
3. Don't eat table sugar at all. Don't drink alcohol at all.

This is the "fix your diabetes type 2 and stop injecting insulin diet".

The third type of diet is for maximized gainz.

That's when you should get into the science, and fine-tune what you are eating for what you want to do, and it's beyond the scope of this comment. The thing to remember here is that insulin isn't bad for you. Like everything else that your body needs, there is such a thing as too little, and such a thing as too much.

High insulin helps support muscle development... that's why bodybuilders dose the stuff. Having your insulin go high sometimes is part of a healthy eating cycle. You're supposed to get a little bit fatter on a regular basis. You're just supposed also have your insulin go low, and get a little bit thinner, on a regular basis, too.

For gaining muscle, you can optimize by learning how to cycle your individual body back and forth on the timescale that works best for you. Sound familiar?

Yeah, it's just a fancy way of saying "bulk and cut".

Showing vulnerability or need as a self sufficient woman

7 upvotes · 8 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is not about your "need" for help or someone else's ability to help you. Nor is it, therefore about you "feigning helplessness".

It is about you creating or using a situation where you can assess his concern for your wellbeing.

A man who demonstrates concern about you getting cold and wet does not think you will melt like the Wicked Witch of the West. You being grateful for his concern does not mean you think he is your servant who is obligated to sacrifice his comfort for yours.

If either of you approached this kind of interaction with a prickly disposition:

- "Why does this bitch think her comfort is more important than mine?"
- "I am a strong independent woman! I would never show weakness! I am not weak! Hear me roar!"

... or an entitled one:

- "Yes, it is right and proper that the male servant-thing make sure I am never uncomfortable! Else he would be no true gentleman!"
- "Hah! She owes me one now!"

... then you would be revealing yourselves as a unpleasant person to be around... the sort of person who makes their own baggage more important than someone else's human experience.

But you didn't. He just showed concern about your comfort, and you showed gratitude. You were nice to each other without some sort of thin-skinned principle getting in the way.

Felt good, didn't it?

There is nothing underhanded or demeaning about allowing a man to help you with some heavy lifting, even if you don't need it. And there is nothing underhanded or demeaning about him allowing you to make him soup when he is sick, even if he could survive on his own.

People can still take care of others' quality of life when we don't need each other for survival.

Moids mad

7 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because it's a trailing indicator of low relationship value, and poor judgement.

Her Friends, Your Enemies

7 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Generally, if a girl has few to no female friends, that's either a very bad, or a very good, sign.

Because either she is such an awful cunt that other girls can't stand her, or the standard behaviour of modern first-world women meets her definition of "awful cunt".

Similarly, if lots of men like her, that's also either a very bad or a very good sign. Either she's dangling sexuality like bait, and loves to juggle orbiters for attention, or she's just plain considerate of men's perspective, even when her society doesn't require her to be or even teach her how.

But the nice thing about things that are either very good or very bad is that if you know what you are looking for, it's often not that hard to tell the difference.

"FDS has ruined my life" finally a confession. But still don't want to abandon this crazy ideology.

7 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Means the fine upstanding twentysomethings of reddit's staff, with their great insight into the human condition, have deemed certain reading material to be offensive and dangerous.

So, having read it, they have determined that you shouldn't be reading it, because it might be harmful to you, given that you lack their wisdom, mental strength, and inherent goodness.

Aren't you lucky that they are looking out for you and protecting you from evil thoughts?

Divorced and Christian and facing those "Christian men will see divorce as a black mark" feels.

7 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't even have a point. You're just angry.

I made a group for you to be angry in. It's called /r/TheRedPill. Go be angry in it.

This group, I made for a different purpose. Bye now.

How do you come to terms with men's' lack of mental monogamy?

7 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Reasonable" or not doesn't enter into it. Neither do notions of what "should" happen or how men "should" be.

If you want to have a relationship with a man who might experience sexual desire for another women, but does not act on it, there is some number of men who will agree to that.

If you want to have a relationship with a man who might experience sexual desire for another women, but pretends he does not in, in a manner convincing enough to fool you, there is some number of men who can do that.

If you want to have a relationship with a man who only feels sexual desire for you and you alone, there is some number of men with whom that can happen. It is possible that this number is zero.

After we understand that there are these three numbers, it simply becomes a matter of thinking about math. I know math isn't fun, but sometimes we are forced to think about it anyway.

How big are these three numbers? How big do they become when you add in all the other stuff you want? How big do they become when you consider what men want vs what you have to offer?

What you are really saying is not "men shouldn't look at porn". It's "I, personally, want a man who doesn't."

That's fine, just as it's fine for a man to be disinterested in women who read or watch romances. People can put anything on their wish list that they want to, but it's a good idea for them to understand the consequences of each item.

Is not having social media ruining my life ?

7 upvotes · 14 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm afraid that I won't get likes

<https://i.imgur.com/B4yLlol.jpg>

Any tips on being more dominant in the bedroom, and giving PIV orgasms?

7 upvotes · 27 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

In my experience, 0% of woman cannot come through PIV sex.

The organ of female sexual excitement is the brain. Get inside her head, and she'll go off from a suggestion and a stiff breeze.

Boundaries vs rules for an LTR

7 upvotes · 13 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Anyone who tells you that you cannot control women is telling you that he cannot control women.

Turns out some people are raging dumbshits.

7 upvotes · 12 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Never underestimate the power of people at the peak of the bell curve to miss the point.

I wrote a post about how lifting and general education aren't enough, you need specific domain knowledge... and a whole pack of retards started crying about how I am against lifting and books.

Just write those people off. Certain concepts are like an intellectual roller coaster... you must be THIS tall to ride. I can teach people a lot of things, but I haven't found any way to make people smarter, or to teach reading comprehension through the medium of text.

I don't expect much traction when I talk about the meaning of the word "truth", or the deep structure of the brain, of course, that's just for the few people who have the time and marbles. But if you're writing something simple, and it's reasonably clear, there's always going to be some folks who still aren't tall enough to ride. My advice is not to sweat it. There's enough people who can follow along to still occupy every moment of time you have the motivation to give to this stuff.

Is my dealbreaker justified?

7 upvotes · 18 July 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's the wrong question. It's not about what it is "justified", or morally right. It's about what you can and can't live with.

Pretending that what you want is a moral imperative comes off as bitchy, entitled behaviour. But if you take responsibility for just wanting it, you can look for it without alienating others, and that's fine.

What do you when a girl identifies red pill behavior and calls you manipulative/abusive/narcissistic?

7 upvotes · 14 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Tell her, with an absolutely straight face and serious demeanor, that you have considered her words, she is absolutely correct, and you can't be in a relationship with her or anyone right now, for their own protection.

She will either let you break up with her (in which case you dodged a bullet), or she will back water so fast you can hear the splash, and you will forever have the upper hand.

Muscle Men, Intellectuals, and the Perpetual Student

7 upvotes · 10 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

People get in the habit of looking for hidden messages in my writing. I don't know why. Maybe they grew reading "Catcher in the Rye" in public school English class, where the snow symbolized purity or some stupid shit like that, so they think smart people like to play games with layers of meaning.

But the goal of good writing is to communicate a message as clearly as possible, and unless that message is "look how smart I am, everyone!", then hidden meanings don't serve that purpose.

I meant what I said: Possessing relevant specific how-know is more important to success, at any task, than great effort, or a being generally educated.

The conclusion is clear: When you want to do something, don't assume you will succeed because you lift and read a lot. You need to learn about that specific thing. Go out and seek that knowledge.

Now, I have future plans for this train of thought, that involve talking about Cicero, the modern university, the job market, and public education... but that's for another day. What's important is that "just lift" and "just read Nietzsche/Aurelius/Hegel" are inadequate, even when they are combined into "just lift and read Nietzsche/Aurelius/Hegel". Both of those things existed in the universe before TRP, and young men still needed TRP because they lacked specific knowledge about seduction.

Your job doesn't stop with lifting, self-discipline, education, self-refinement, etc. Because if you have all those things, you'll still fail at any unfamiliar task. That's why I don't tell people to "just lift". It's not good enough. Young men aren't languishing in despair because this generation somehow (despite similar genetics) magically lacks courage or intelligence or both... they fail because they don't understand the world and thus their efforts are misdirected.

If I get married, how can I maintain control if I have a wife that works too.

7 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

"If I hit myself in the balls with this hammer, how do I avoid having bruised balls?"

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

7 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

I have different advice... I don't recommend marrying at all. It gets you nothing you didn't have already, while greatly diminishing your power to kick her to the curb should things go wrong.

I'm successful/get laid lots by being nice. I'm literally just kind to girls, honest and straightforward. Then I bang, and move on. Is this allowed? What am I missing out on with this approach?

7 upvotes · 24 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

This is mostly because I haven't frequented this sub for a while, but just had a scroll and I'm reading lots of 'never call a girl this', 'never say she's sexy', 'never compliment', 'be a jerk'.

One of the limitations of reddit is that, if you imagine TRP as a university, the reddit format makes it difficult to distinguish between the professors and the freshman at the back of the class.

That's why we came up with the EC tag system. To help you distinguish who knows what the fuck he is talking about, and who is in the process of learning.

We designed TRP around the realization that awakening happens in stages. Aspects of the process are designed to elicit each stage in order.

So, if your understanding is as advanced as you claim, demonstrate that for me. Tell me what the misogyny is for. Tell me what purpose it serves. Guess what I was thinking when I set it up that way.

How Stripping Sparked my Conversion From BluePill to Redpill

7 upvotes · 20 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

When you say "if you want to find a good boyfriend, don't work in a strip club", it's tactical advice. No moral values are imposed on a listener.

When you bringing long-term happiness and even more, some damage that can't be undone, it's "forbidden fruit" that you're talking about. It's fine to have a conversation about morals, but no need to pretend that it's just a toolbox.

This is what we call "response to tone". I can't control how what I say makes you feel, so if you respond to that, you are essentially having a conversation with yourself.

However:

I find this the biggest contradiction in TRP (or RPW) ideology. You're still trying to reinvent morals, just making it sound a bit more scientific.

People invented moral systems for a variety of purposes, but that doesn't mean they are the best tool for our purposes.

Morals work by what's called a "categorical imperative", a thing you "must" do no matter what.

Tactical advice works by a "hypothetical imperative", a thing you "must" do because, but only because, you have a certain goal.

Trafficking in categorical imperatives is against the rules here, because no one can show them to exist, no one can agree on what they are, and no one who trafficks in them feels any duty to justify them by connecting them to good outcomes.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

7 upvotes · 7 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

What an entirely predictable disappointment; that old shibboleth, "degeneracy", which so many people are dead set against, but utterly unable to define.

When questioned, it usually comes out that they cannot distinguish between categorical and hypothetical imperatives, and thus they want everything to be a rule enforced by people with clubs, seeking to legislate people better than they are.

But the human race is not perfectible. You can't make people smarter by giving them books to read, because reading books doesn't make people smarter... it's only what people often like to do if they already happen to be smart. The intellectual's wine and philosophy are not categorically different than the simpleton's beer and football... they are both simply nostrums against tedium.

People who don't understand this tend to construct elaborate cargo-cult schemes for the betterment of humanity, and end up holding the bag when Jon Frumm doesn't arrive.

shouldn't people be held to a masculinity standard?

Held by whom? And for what purpose? And held how?

Here you are, arguing endlessly about what people "should" do, and how to make them do it, unable to distinguish between the Liberal and the Anarch, because you're convinced that with the right collection of blandishments, incentives, philosophical ink clouds, laws, and possibly truncheon beatings, you can save people from themselves.

So let me make simpler for you: You can't fix stupid. You can't turn stupid into smart, and you can't construct such an elaborate set of "thou shalts" and "thou shalt nots" that it can pass a Turing test and guide stupid people through life.

That's why I am content to supply dudes with ideas for personal well-being and nothing more. Because the point behind the parable of the sower isn't hard to understand, and I'm quite willing to write losers off rather than sacrifice myself or anyone else who gets it in futile crusade to change all of society into an incubator for retards.

So when you say:

Shouldn't people be held to a masculinity standard?

My answer is that "should" just means "I want". And no, I don't want to run around "holding" a bunch of soyboys to a masculinity standard. I don't want to invest my time in them. They are a writeoff. You can't fix stupid.

I want to associate with those who hold themselves to a masculinity standard, and watch the others self destruct, preferably from a great distance, while I eat popcorn and crack jokes.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

7 upvotes · 7 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

People can go on all day about whether something is praxeology, ideology, or a fried egg, then look things up in the dictionary and argue about wording like a bunch of autists playing tabletop wargames.

Quibbling about the language used to describe things doesn't change what is actually going on.

TRP differs from political or social movements because it lacks an agenda beyond the personal. If I want to get laid more, be more respected, earn more money, have better self-control, etc, then maybe some of the lessons here might help me.

If I want to reshape society so that workers control the means of production, so that my nation is racially pure, so that prostitution is legal, or so that asparagus has the right to vote... then I'm probably on my own, at least with respect to TRP.

Since I have quite accidentally become something of a focus for this kind of thinking, I am periodically targeted for breathless explanations of how everything "should" be, and what we all "should" do to make it that way. But TRP is not a manifesto for social change, and its readers are not anyone's personal army. Not even mine.

Everybody's got a half a plan for how to make "things" "better". They know exactly what they want to do with the whole of human civilization, and zero idea of how to persuade anyone to go along with that. Or perhaps their idea is "harangue them a lot", which I suppose can be described as an idea, if not a very wise or original one. What all these crusaders, regardless of what they want, never seem to realize is that they cannot really point to any qualitative difference between them, and previous idealists who have tried on this shit and wound up on a mountain of corpses, if not in a mountain of corpses.

TRP was never intended to be another rehashing of that nonsense, but instead as a toolkit and discussion group for people who wanted to save, not the world, but simply their own ass. This is why discussions of the way things "should" be is off-limits here. You can't save the world, because no one can agree what a saved world would look like, and the world hasn't asked you to save it, or even decided it needs saving.

My general advice to those who think that TRP is a movement, ideology, or crusade is that they cannot control the universe, so they would be better served by controlling their universe.

"You smell like my dad". Then leaves a puddle on the bed. Is this a red flag?

7 upvotes · 11 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Every girl has daddy issues.

The ones with bad fathers have issues about that.

The ones with absent fathers have issues about that.

And the ones with good fathers have issues about that.

Why does it matter that women can get a higher N-count than men easily? Why are men salty about it?

7 upvotes · 28 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They aren't.

They're salty about being expected to commit to sluts.

What they need to do is stop fussing, and just laugh and refuse.

Can someone help me break down this Tinder interaction? Girl literally tells me that she really isn't attracted to me and a few hours later we are hooking up?

7 upvotes · 10 January 2020 · /r/askTRP

You passed a shit test and got laid.

Don't listen to women, watch what they do.

LTR wants to bring a girl in the bedroom

7 upvotes · 29 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

Wrong.

How really to STFU (with examples!)

7 upvotes · 17 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I know we often don't mean to imply these things, but men often hear it anyway. Men and women generally view respect very differently. For example, I can question a girl friend's actions 20 times (would that diet really work? Why are you going for it?) and she'd still feel like I respect her. Men aren't the same.

Girls tell each other what to do, and push each other around, and it's all good. Among men, this is a mortal insult.

Well written in general.

+1

/u/LuckyLittleStar

How to avoid becoming an alpha widow?

7 upvotes · 3 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Many women think that they need to be confident because "confidence is sexy". Not true. Women find confident men sexy. Not so much the reverse.

However, while most women in modern society have pathologically high confidence, it is also possible to sabotage yourself with confidence that's too low. This can cause women to:

1. Fail to pursue men whom they desire.
2. Reject men who they believe are out of their league.
3. Assume that a man only wants them for sex the moment they find out he wants them for sex.
4. Sabotage a budding relationship by demanding elaborate and constant demonstrations of investment.

Don't do that.

Understand that while women want to be treated good enough by someone awesome, men just want to be treated awesome by someone good enough, and can be kept happy by a simple combination of personal grooming, respect, affection, and fellatio, all of which are well within the power of almost any woman alive.

I (Chinese, 23F) need some help at becoming more independent

7 upvotes · 18 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

About the actual acts, when we are especially caught up in the moment, he usually acts like he wants to hurt me, but in actuality he's really afraid i think to leave marks, and always checks my body afterward. The first few times he tried getting rough I didn't really know what to think, and although I had some marks i didn't really care to stop him. While he is somewhat rougher now, i rarely have any marks. The only thing is that he's extremely heavy and muscular (abit too much) and so hurts me abit too much when he presses down on me (I haven't told him this) or carries me up.

Afterward we always just hug each other and he listens to me talk (he NEVER really says anything afterward).

Okay, first off, you're not sick or crazy, and neither is he. There are lots of decent, upright, sane men who like to play rough in the bedroom, and there are lots of healthy, sane women who like to be played rough with. What you're doing is not only okay, it's actually pretty common.

What may be a problem is that you guys just sort of figured this out on your own, and haven't talked to anyone else who's like this, or read anything they've written. That can mean that he doesn't have guidance on how to do this safely, and you don't have guidance on how to express your needs, and you both can suffer psychological trauma from thinking that what you are doing is "shameful" or "abnormal".

If you like, I can PM you the reddit usernames of some women you can talk to who are experienced with all of this, and can help you sort it out.

Is being a mother one of the most gratifying things for a woman?

7 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, it is.

No, it isn't.

The more I study the issue, listen to different people's opinions, and watch their behaviour, the more sure I become of a single conclusion about kids:

The urge to have and raise children is a basic drive that is either present or absent in individual people.

If you want kids, then you want to have kids in order to have kids, not for any other reason. And if you don't have that basic drive, you will never be able to derive the slightest enjoyment from being a parent.

TRP Men after break-up go back to spinning plates, what should I, as a woman, do?

7 upvotes · 28 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah, in fact, I can usefully expand upon this.

I've been with "FunSize" (she's 4'11) for eight years. Throughout our relationship, women (many of them on here), have prognosticated that I will leave her, because I have the occasional romp with other girls. By saying this, they reveal that they don't understand men at all, no matter how "red pill'd" they think they are.

There's a story that explains this. When we first became involved, she met most of my female friends, who were, almost to a woman, very catty to her. Being a kind and gentle soul she is, she didn't quite understand why. I explained that I had slept with almost all of them, at one point or another, but none had ever gotten past "hookup" to "girlfriend".

They were envious.

Think about that a moment. If a man met six dudes who had casual hookups with his girlfriend, would they be consumed with envy. No, he would feel like the loser. But these girls were all mad at FunSize because she got the trophy they had all been reaching for.

Who a dude fucks is meaningless in terms of emotional investment.

Eggs are expensive, sperm is cheap. That's why men and women act the way they do. Men are profligate with our sperm because it costs us nothing and means nothing to us. We can always make more.

It also explains why society treats men and women differently. You are containers full of a limited supply of valuable eggs, we are inexhaustible factories for cheap sperm. So society protects and cares for you, but restricts your freedom in so doing... while we are free to do what we want, because we are disposable, and no one has to give a shit if we land in trouble.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

7 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

I've known him personally for about 15 years. We created this forum together.

You're going to take a little break from our forum now. Bye.

Plate is seemingly telling people we're "almost official", even though i've made no such notion. How to handle?

7 upvotes · 21 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

Females inhabit a social universe. The constraints and obstacles they are concerned about in their daily lives are composed far less of physical conditions, and far more of the attitudes and beliefs of others, than is true for males.

Thus, when they seeking to manipulate reality, their first impulse (sometimes appropriate, sometimes not) is to not to change the state of physical stuff around them, but to convince someone of something.

This woman is trying to create emotional commitment on your part, by attempting to convince others that it exists. Which, of course, is magical thinking, but it is a particular type of magical thinking that women are prone to.

If she were, instead, to try to convince you to feel emotional investment, that would be entirely sensible.

Fitness: a single 12 kg (26 lb) kettlebell is your friend

7 upvotes · 15 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

So I was recently reading a study that showed very little difference in muscle growth between low rep, high weight exercise and high rep, low weight exercise.

I don't know what you read, but modern strength athletes know this to be objectively not true.

Muscles adapt to the maximal load placed upon them, not the total volume of work. While a certain volume of work is necessary to induce a response at all, once that threshold is reached, results are all about heavy resistance.

Now, a common question people ask upon learning this is "then how come I am getting stronger from rowing/jazzercise/cardio kickboxing/my pink rubber covered dumbbell?". The answer is that when you are a weak, completely untrained novice, anything will produce some adaptive response. That's right, if you are a complete beginner, riding a bicycle will improve your strength on bench press.

Of course, this doesn't work as well, or as quickly, and it rapidly stops working.

While the fine details will be argued about forever, the basics of the single, uncontroversially best way to build strength are known, and they are very simple: Five reps of lifting a heavy barbell with a compound movement, repeated over several sets.

Starting Strength. Stronglifts 5x5. Madcow (which I especially recommend for women). There are a couple of others. This is not rocket science. It is very simple to understand.

The problem is that most women are afraid of barbells. The trick to overcoming this fear is understand that barbells can be loaded with any weight you need. Just because I, and other dumpster-sized men like me, load on enough plates to bend the bar, that doesn't mean there is not such a thing as a twenty-five pound barbell, if that's what is "heavy" for you.

Strength training is not just for dumpster-sized men. It is for everyone who old enough to be taught the correct movement, and basically healthy enough to go through that range of motion. Seven year olds can do strength training. Eighty year olds can do strength training.

And so can you.

How does a girlfriend behave differently than a wife in a relationship with a man, and how can a girlfriend be of value to him without giving away too much too soon?

7 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's a good question.

The answer lies in an understanding of how the male and female mindsets differ.

TRP has always been a work in progress, and one of the principles we latched onto early on is something called "Briffault's Law". Goes like this:

"the female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from future association with the male, no such association takes place."

... this, of course, represents an accurate understanding of female behaviour, but, since we were studying seduction of women, and not forming some comprehensive theory of human sexuality, it doesn't say anything at all about male behaviour. Now, having studied the female side more in the years since, I can reformulate Briffault's Law into a more complete statement, Whisper's Law of Commitment:

"A woman's commitment to a relationship is determined by the future benefit she hopes to derive from it. A man's commitment to a relationship is determined by the amount of benefit he has already experienced from it."

Thus, a woman who doesn't understand men very well will assume their commitment works like hers does, and it will make sense to her to withhold some benefits from him so that he will commit more in the hopes of securing them. But that's the exact opposite of how men work. Men predict the future by looking at the past. When you use a sales model, withholding benefits until he has paid, he doesn't see it by a sales metaphor. Instead, he begins to see you as a withholding sort of person, rather than a giving sort of person. This does not inspire emotional investment.

Men are actually wise to do this. Anyone can promise to be a good wife once she has a ring on her finger. Talk is cheap. Actually doing what she would do as a wife demonstrates both the inclination and the ability to follow through. A woman who acts like a good wife while she's a girlfriend is proving to him that she can do what she says she can.

"But why would he buy the cow if he can get the milk for free?" is the common objection here. Note how it comes back to that same use of a transaction metaphor ("buy", "free", etc). Any economic metaphor is going to fail to model how men do relationships. Men are reciprocal. They have a protective instinct towards women, and an inherent urge to take care of them, and the better a woman treats him, the stronger this urge becomes. A man marries a woman who has already acted like a good wife because he has the urge to reward her for doing so. When people speak of buying a cow as a marriage metaphor, it doesn't work because cows always cost something. A man's cost in marrying is the risk that his woman won't be a good wife. The more she proves she will, the less that "cost" exists at all.

So what does this mean for you?

It means that if you have a man is not mentally ill, feral, or depraved, the more pleasant you make the experience of being with you, the more likely he is to act on his own to make that experience permanent.

[23/F] I think my boyfriend (19/m) might be cheating, but am i just jumping to conclusions?

7 upvotes · 9 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's not bizarre. That's pretty much mainstream. You think Fifty Shades of Grey sold millions of copies to men?

However, what matters in this case is that you're not into it.

Playing by the new books

7 upvotes · 25 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't fall into the trap of scapegoating complex socioeconomic problems onto women, like a bitter out of touch alcoholic.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that a substrate must be an actor. The agar gel in a petri dish doesn't know a damn thing about bacteria, but it can still grow a hell of a lot of them.

Women are a substrate for social change because they are inherently submissive, and, if a man isn't leading them, they will all imitate each other. This causes social fads to spread through the female population with incredible alacrity and totality.

Changes in the economic landscape are ultimately driven by human behaviour, even as further human behaviour is driven by these changes.

What're your experiences with gay guys?

7 upvotes · 17 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

None. Why bother?

Plates want commitment

7 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Plates want commitment.

Orbiters want sex.

It's good to want things. But you don't get shit unless you earn it.

If your girl cheats then it's your fault

7 upvotes · 3 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

If your girl cheats, it's your fault because you weren't attractive enough to beat the other guy.

Don't apologize. Next the fuck out of her. Improve yourself. Be more attractive to the next one.

Deal with shame of being a blue pill in the past

7 upvotes · 31 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

By doing better in the future.

As a male, your past doesn't matter. It only matters how awesome you are right now. Briffault's Law works both ways.

35 year old virgin

7 upvotes · 14 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

What have you done on your own to improve your situation?

My theorie about how to avoid Divorce: "Have at least 3 children" Why? Because she will subconsciously know she will never be able to handle that many children on her own. (+ a Statistic)

7 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's how to avoid divorce: don't get married, dumbass.

My friends think it's weird that I want a "submissive" partner. How can I explain it to them?

7 upvotes · 24 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't. You like what you like.

Fat obese fuck in my class gets more attention from the females than me. What is going on?

7 upvotes · 23 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Male attractiveness is almost entirely behavioural.

Game is King, and King Game rules alone.

We're Right and You're Wrong

7 upvotes · 19 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

This is just free will vs. determinism, though. I assume free will exists to a certain extent because of my internal experience deciding things, but this could be cognitive smoke and mirrors hiding an inevitable process and reaction.

Free will vs. determinism is not only beyond the scope of TRP, it's beyond the scope of anything. It's an unanswerable question, because you cannot devise a test that would discern between the two.

Fortunately, it's also a question we don't need to answer. If someone acts in a way we find obnoxious, the question is not "is it their fault?" but "how likely are they to repeat the behaviour?".

Walking away from a man who's not ready to stop spinning plates

7 upvotes · 6 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You have to earn and maintain commitment from them. Straight up asking for it invites him to deflect, or agree for the sake of being agreeable, especially in your situation. If a man wants to give you his commitment, trust me, you'll know.

Precisely. You cannot negotiate a man into desire for commitment, marriage, children, whatever, any more than he can negotiate you into a desire for sex. These things must be inspired.

If you're asking if it's possible for a man to choose one woman over his plates, it absolutely is, but RPW doesn't recommend this strategy. There's too many variables at play and you also put your mental and physical health at risk. 9 out of 10 times you'll probably lose. You have to be at the top of your game and you have to be flawless... and from someone who started as a plate, it's not fun, I don't recommend it, and I would never ever ever ever ever ever ever ever do it again. (It was worth it though.)

Bit of an oversimplification, there.

Working your way up from plate is a high-risk, high-reward strategy (high reward because it gives access to more desirable men). So, whether it's "recommended" or not depends on your level of girl game. Unsurprisingly, many of RPW's EC worked their way up from plate status... it's no coincidence that girls who can do that are the same ones who consistently give good advice to others.

Also, it's worth bearing in mind that starting at plate status may not be completely voluntary. Some men are gonna make you lose control of yourself and not stick to the plan. That's what "attractive" means. And once you've slept with him, there is no good reason to bail rather than try to work your way up, however long the odds.

Just be willing to realize when you have failed, accept the damage done, and bail out.

If you don't have the kind of game that might allow you to work your way up from plate, then stay the hell away from any man attractive enough to spin them. I don't mean just don't date them. I mean don't interact with them. Don't talk to them. Avoid temptation. Know your limits, and don't get close to the fire until you have the skills not to get burned.

Age Gap Red Flags

7 upvotes · 28 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The idea is that "high-value" and "going to be very attractive to you" are not all that distinct.

Cursing. How much is okay?

7 upvotes · 27 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The best time to get rid of a bad habit is yesterday.

The next best time is right now.

Meant as a compliment, I think most feminists would be screaming about how toxic this is.

7 upvotes · 25 March 2019 · /r/MensRights

{fedora intensifies}

Does his questionable taste in past partners bother you?

7 upvotes · 6 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

/u/butterflyhalo, you're really not going to like hearing this, but, believe it or not, male attractiveness and confidence are not a matter of genetic destiny, and your feelings of attraction, or lack thereof, are not a finely-tuned oracle which taps into cosmic wisdom.

There is no deep, authentic, twwwwwooooo male quality that you are sniffing out here. Men are the sum of their behaviour. And who they are right now is the sum of their current behaviour.

All you know is that four and a half years ago, he didn't aim as high as he can now.

This may upset you to learn, but every single man in the universe (yes, even me) emerged from the womb naked, covered in goo, and screaming like a bitch. What matters is what we have become since then.

Don't worry, though. I suffered the same disturbing moment when I realized that girls didn't actually fart perfume. I believe I was five years old at the time.

The "I love you"

7 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I eagerly await the field report detailing the results of you testing this theory in the field. Or perhaps you would like to just supply some testimonials from men whom your advice has helped.

A Story of Dread: The Red Pill Action Plan | Rian Stone | Free to the World

7 upvotes · 23 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Sooner or later, someone is going to come along and tell you about how you urgently need to stick your head in this bucket...

Discussing dress sense with Ltr in general for relationships

7 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Girls who ask you what they should wear are telling you they'd like you to be more controlling.

What you do with that is up to you.

RPW does not mean we are playthings for men.

7 upvotes · 20 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm naturally submissive/too much so with everyone. Finding the right one has actually helped me be less of a pushover, because letting go with him means I have enough reserves to put up better boundaries with others.

This is very common for women with strong submissive urges, especially sexual ones. When there's no man in the role of "captain", it's sometimes difficult for them not to give too much free rein to those desires inappropriate situations, especially when "standing up for yourself" would require you to act against your nature.

But when you have someone who actually commands your obedience, it's much easier to control with others, because obedience to randos would be disloyal and disrespectful. You're not just standing up for yourself, you're standing up for him.

'Lady' by Roosh V - Opinions?

7 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

He even mentions the captain/first mate dynamic, which I found interesting.

Where do you think he got that idea?

Yeah, pretty much.

'Lady' by Roosh V - Opinions?

7 upvotes · 18 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Most women in this sub would agree that being a PUA contradicts the lifestyle we believe in.

Who's "we"? If you read the sidebar, you will notice that RPW does not endorse a moral stance or a lifestyle. It is united by techniques, not beliefs.

Judging by your beliefs, we both have very very different views on the subject that I rather not go back and forth arguing about it.

No, that's not the point here. The point is that blanket criticism of male TRP techniques and goals is strictly off-limits. I'm assessing you to see if you understand how to avoid that.

If you think it's good thing, kudos to you, yet you don't see me commenting in r/theredpill trying to change your mind on the subject.

You're right, I don't. And I do not require you to change your mind, just to keep your moral imperatives to yourself.

Couldn't F close, want to know why specifically

7 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Really want her as a plate

That doesn't matter unless she really wants your dick.

If you do a freeze out and she lets you go, then it's on to the next one. Because what she wanted was an ego boost, not sex.

The freeze out works on girls who are conflicted. They are into it but don't wanna be a slut, or have that stupid delusion that girls have that you'll like them better if they make you wait.

(Like, yeah, sure, men loooooove being treated like your dog balancing a biscuit on its nose 'til you say "go".)

Freeze out works in two ways... first, it makes you more attractive by displaying indifference. Second, it makes her anxious about keeping you, and if she's serious enough about you, she'll put out to make that happen.

If a well-played freeze out doesn't work, nothing short of rape would have.

That means move on. Remember that girls are replaceable and time is not. Every moment you spend chasing a girl who won't put out is a moment you could have been getting laid, or productively working towards it with someone who actually feels real desire for you.

Ex texted me apologizing

7 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

my ex who I was with for 2 years dumped me for a guy she had just started working with at her new job.

No response.

If a woman has a choice between you and another man, and chooses him, you are not The Guy. You are the Small Emergency Backup Guy.

She calls the Small Emergency Backup Guy when The Guy doesn't work out.

Do you want to be the Small Emergency Backup Guy?

You will never truly be a master of pussy until you are willing to go home and jerk off rather than have pussy that's not on your terms.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

7 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

how can I, as a girl who is aware of TRP and just wants to enjoy and fuck without drama, make it easier for ya'll?

If you're looking for how to build a good LTR, RedPillWomen is probably your best resource, although the percentage of users who are actually qualified to give advice is much smaller than here.

If you're just looking for good, trouble-free hookups, it's not really that hard. Just avoid thirsty guys who will cling.

Two: how do you feel about girls knowing/learning/reading TRP?

Several of my girls read everything I write on this account. S'no problem. TRP is like makeup... it works even when people know you're wearing it.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

7 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Probably nothing.

By all means read if you find it interesting, but I would be quite surprised if any of this material had any relevance for homosexuals.

We made an "altTRP" for gay guys, once, as an experiment, but it fizzled, because gay guys don't need one. Picking up men, apparently, is as easy as falling off a log.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

7 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, I don't think there's a desk out there that could fit 5.

How do I Stop Feeling Betrayed?

7 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

You only be betrayed by someone you trust.

Why You Cannot be Alpha in a Monogamous LTR

7 upvotes · 6 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As Rollo himself seems to admit, a man in a monogamous LTR is a lesser Alpha, although I think that is being too generous. The moment a man commits himself to monogamy, he ceases to be Alpha. He may continue to display Alpha traits, but he is no longer Alpha - much like a dead body continues to look human for a time, without actually being human. Of course, if the man cheats or leaves the relationship, he may return to a state of Alphaness - much like water can transition between various states of bzzzzt Alpha Alpha Alpha must be Alpha Alpha Alpha... i/o errrrreeeorrrr!!!!11111!!!

If you throw a ball, and a dog can't find it, it's no good pointing at where it landed, because a dog doesn't understand the concept of "pointing". It just comes up and sniffs your finger.

You are not a dog.

Stop sniffing my finger.

When to expect a proposal?

7 upvotes · 26 December 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

When is it acceptable for a woman to expect a marriage proposal during the courting period?

When she inspires one.

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

7 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's fine. I have no desire to be taken seriously by academia, because academia is not worth taking seriously. The sole claim to intellectual authority of the humanities and certain social sciences is the acceptance they have been granted by others, rather than their ability to predict or produce results.

No matter how thin you slice it, it's still baloney.

I'm a pathological liar, and probably a complete psychopath. Made some changes but need tough love and advice

7 upvotes · 5 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

You're not a psychopath. Psychopaths are born, not made. And they don't feel ashamed of being psychopaths... if anything, they are proud of it, because they generally see empathy as a weakness. However, they know perfectly well that others consider them to be monsters, and thus would almost never voluntarily fess up.

If anything, you may be a sociopath instead. Sociopaths are made, not born. Unlike psychopaths, they possess the normal sort of mirror-neuron development that allows humans to have empathy and feel each other's feelings... but the normal function of these have been partially suppressed by trauma or other environmental influences.

Also a possibility is narcissistic personality disorder, which means, in a nutshell, that you suffer from the delusion that you are inherently unlovable, and therefore you have taken great pains to construct a false public persona that you believe can be loved.

If you are telling the truth, which is by no means guaranteed, then it sounds like your early upbringing functioned as a sort of Skinner Box to teach you dishonest behaviour. While mainstream psychology would focus on "curing" you, TRP psychology would take the approach of freeing you from the compulsion to act manipulatively.

In other words, you want manipulative lying to be a tool in your toolbox, not a compulsive behaviour that you engage in whether it helps you or harms you. A fundamental premise of TRP is that how people "are" is best described not an immutable "personality", but as a collection of habits... we are what we repeatedly do.

To be different, do different.

- Identify situations where honesty will benefit you instead of hurting you. Practice telling the truth in those situations. Focus mentally on the benefit you hope to gain.
- Start small.
- Try practicing telling the truth on strangers you will never see again. This may reduce your fear of honesty.
- Remember that the problem is not your ability to lie... lying is useful. It is your compulsion to lie when it is NOT useful that is hurting you.

Jordan peterson

7 upvotes · 2 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

The question is perfectly simple, though.

Who do men exist for?

Feminism says "women". Tradcon says "women and children".

TRP says "themselves".

the meaning behind "Broken goods"

7 upvotes · 4 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

A god-tier man (such as yourself) would love any woman's innate malleability, while mere-mortal men are going to be angry that any earned status is never permanent.

You are correct, of course.

One of our greatest struggles as teachers is to effect a certain transformation in our students, a change from asking the incorrect question...

"How do I get a girl?" (And then return to my man-cave to play World of Nerdcraft some more.)

... to the correct one ...

"How do I become the sort of man whom girls desire?" (For then, while no individual success can ever be guaranteed, eventual and frequent success is inevitable.)

The notion of consent serves several purposes, both in western culture and western jurisprudence.

- It avoids any danger of confronting the reality that we are punishing men for having sex while unattractive. The notion of sex-worthiness is deeply ingrained not only in the female psyche, but in that of both sexes. Our real repugnance for rape comes not from any philosophical disapproval of the violation of autonomy (we do that gleefully on a regular basis), but from an ingrained disgust for the act of polluting high-quality eggs with low-quality sperm. This is why our repugnance at rape is directly proportional to the degree that the woman's SMV exceeds the rapist's.
- It avoids contradicting our philosophical notions of individual rights and dignity with the uncomfortable admission that half of humanity is a genetically programmed slave race which lacks the capacity, to say nothing of the desire, for freedom and individual rights.
- It creates the illusion of continuity with the original definition of "rape"... the crime of having sex with a woman without the permission of her male guardian, and/or without making provision to support her during and after pregnancy. This is why the old testament of the bible demands that women marry their rapists. It is not a demand upon the woman at all, but a demand upon the rapist, which is the reason for the additional stipulation that he may not ever divorce her or set her aside.
- It allows the governing bodies of a society to exert partial control over the two most powerful combined motivating forces of human history... the male sex drive as a motivating factor, and female sexual availability as a goal for that drive. Whoever can dictate the channels along which one is allowed to flow to the other, can insert a metaphorical waterwheel between the two, and drive whatever social or personal goal they desire. This serves agendas ranging from the De Beers diamond cartel to the left-wing political establishment.

Is love possible? Do non-used up girls exist?

7 upvotes · 30 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/781>

Should I wait ?

7 upvotes · 6 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

After 25, I'd text something like "Made other plans.", leave, and soft next.

FR Update: Newbie here, I guess I'm a plate. How how do we turn this around?

7 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I know it's not the RPW way

It is. So is any other arrangement.

Because the RPW way isn't about about where you start, it's about how you get where you want to go. It is far better to start as a plate, and do things right, than to come to your marriage bed a virgin, and do things wrong.

A verbal commitment is not a relationship. A relationship is the bond between people.

I consider the time I spent advising you to be well invested. Good job.

Is a girl actively seducing you is a red flag ?

7 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

No.

I'm dating a bitch with a BF. She lied to me about it.

7 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

I don't want her to feel the taste of my distress about the situation.

Wrong.

Once you ghost someone, you don't give a shit how she feels. Otherwise, she is living rent-free in your head.

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

7 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah.

One of the key parts of empathy is being able to realize how you sound to others.

I think maybe there are certain people who are like you, and agree with a lot of the things you think, and so when you say something, you know what it will sound like to them. But perhaps there are others where this is not so true.

And the second group seems to include the men that you want to be able to attract.

What I noticed about our interactions thus far is that the moment I said something you didn't agree with, you immediately felt the urge to prove me wrong, to the point where you were unable to resist arguing, even though you knew it was beside the point and probably would turn out badly.

The issue isn't what your political views are. It's that they rule you so much that they leap to the front of the queue, shoving out of the way the kind of rapport-building personal responses that you know are more appropriate to the kind of rapport you want to build. This can be a turn off even to men who agree with you, because I promise you no man ever wanted to lie around in bed on a late sunday morning with a pretty girl... and talk about the struggle of the urban proletariat.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

7 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Examine the possibility that he means it.

Some people like to read Linus Torvalds flame emails in much the same sense that they like to wear shirts that say things like "Go away or I will replace you with a very small shell script".

Both of them can feel like a great vindication against the unwashed hordes of "nontechnical" bogon-emitters who are just too dumb to understand the innate superiority of hacker culture and technical tools.

But after a certain amount of red pills, and a certain amount of success with women, people tend to throw those tshirts away, and wear something else... because that kind of fear-based aggression no longer represents who they are.

Social skills, ultimately, represent not "being nice", or even "doing what others expect", but being able to control how you appear to others. The goal of developing them isn't to replace habitually presenting yourself like this with habitually presenting yourself like that... it's having the ability to choose how you present yourself in any given situation.

People often come to TRP very obsessed with their "personalty", focusing on who they "are" now, and who they "want to be", and don't want to be. One of the major challenges I must overcome to get them to develop is to get them to focus instead on their skills and what they can do.

Think of them as tools in a toolbox.

When you have something that you are, then wherever you go, you still are that thing, and you act in the same way. And in some places, it's helpful, and you can function, and in others, it isn't, and you can't. If you have something you can do, then you can choose to use it or not. And if you have a lot of things you can do, then you are able to respond to many situations in a way that will get you what you want.

TRP is about being effective, and being effective about being both flexible and in control. Flexibility means that you are able to act in lots of different ways, and in control means that which of those ways you select is controlled by your goals and not those of others.

Red Pill Women Sub is Blu Pill

7 upvotes · 14 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely.

The truth is a means to an end, not an end in itself. It's being used there for women to get what they want.

Just like we do here.

Is your bf more popular and accomplished than you?

7 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In this case, she clearly has too little.

Possibly.

However, the problem with describing it in these terms is that it goes nowhere and doesn't suggest any course of action.

"She needs to feel better about herself!"

... And ?

Furthermore, while I do agree that society denigrates female virtues, and she likely is feeling insecure because she doesn't realize the value she already brings, there is no harm in a woman improving herself to be more intelligent or charismatic if she feels she's significantly lacking in those departments.

She's comparing herself to him in these categories. That's a problem. Not only because he exceeds her in them, but because she is attracted to him precisely for that reason. She can't compete with him because she deliberately selected someone she couldn't compete with, and she likes it that way.

Except now she also feels bad because she has this lingering attitude that she's supposed to be his "equal". Well, men and women aren't supposed to be equal. They are supposed to be too different to compare.

If you want to stay safe don't interact men at all.

7 upvotes · 9 September 2018 · /r/MensRights

Precisely. Humans do not have a convenient built-in "off" switch.

There is a reason why "anesthesiologist" is a job, and not a pill.

Instant Gratification

7 upvotes · 5 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

He's dead wrong, his research was crap, he didn't know you need to do an ANOVA both ways, and he is the author of the obesity epidemic, which has cost numerous lives and led to untold human suffering and misery.

Remember the "food pyramid"? Remember how the federal government and the school system told us we should be eating less fat and stuffing our faces with carbohydrates instead?

This guy.

Have a look around you now, and notice just how many fat chicks there are.

This guy.

Go to the grocery store and start reading labels. Look for sugar in things. Inappropriate things. Like sausages. And soup.

This fucking guy.

Read some internet news about the US healthcare system and how costs are skyrocketing. Read rants by economically illiterate socialists about we need single-payer yesterday.

Yeah, you guessed it... this guy.

If you want to know more about this, other names to look for are John Yudkin, and Robert Lustig.

How do I become "alpha" despite being an innate introvert?

7 upvotes · 3 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

You don't know what an introvert is.

This is not introversion. This is fear of social encounters brought on by poor social skills.

Jordan Peterson can't handle the truth.

7 upvotes · 28 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. Tradcon is sexual communism. It isn't as unworkable as economic communism, but like the economic kind, it only works when everyone is a good communist. It can't lure people to the proper behaviour with individual benefits. Instead, it needs to use fear of punishment to force people to follow a set of rules.

This makes it inherently autocratic. And so tradcon communities, like all autocratic communities, are brittle because they have no way to adapt to changing terrain.

When individual people are able to deviate, then populations effectively explore different kinds of adaptations to changing circumstances. Autocratic societies can't do that, because exploration is ruthlessly rooted out and punished.

This is why evil white imperialist eurocentric civilization colonized and destroyed all those beautiful traditional native brown people cultures, instead of the reverse.

Because libertarian societies explore many different possibilities to find what works, and become stronger. And authoritarian societies stay weak because they murder their best thinkers for failing to beat drums at the rising of Nomo, as their ancestors did.

Jordan Peterson can't handle the truth.

7 upvotes · 28 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a thoughtful question, but it's not well-formed in the sense that it cannot be answered. You're comparing two things that don't really have an axis of comparison.

Tradcon is a set of categorical imperatives (fancy Kantian term for "should because it's moral"). TRP is a set of observations, coupled with hypothetical imperatives (fancy Kantian word for "should if your goal is to...").

Thus, TRP is beneficial if you have any of the goals it talks about how to address. It is useless to celibate priests, lesbians, dogs, and Limited Liability Corporations.

Tradcon isn't beneficial to the person practicing it. It's for making that person beneficial to certain others, usually ones in big hats who claim to have a direct line to the gods.

From Plate to Wife

7 upvotes · 25 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Every time a woman asks for advice on how to go from FWB to commitment, we tell her "You are a plate, he isn't interested, move on and date with intent." It's not bad advice.

Yes, it is.

She has already slept with him. The n-count is already increased. Moving on to a new man will increase it again, while turning this one into an LTR will not.

Remember that, just as women like sex, despite having to gatekeep it, men like LTRs, despite having to gatekeep them. If he isn't promoting you on his own, then that means that you are better for him as a plate or FWB than an LTR, which means emotional investment in you is a net negative.

We all know that one thirty- or forty-something woman who is alone after a decade or two dumping men "because they wouldn't commit".

Commitment is your responsibility, not his. It's sometimes good to walk away from a mountain that you think is too steep for you to climb.

But if you never take a risk, you auto-fail.

Discuss: Settling

7 upvotes · 10 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This lays it out really well, can someone put it in the sidebar?

I might flesh it out a little more, turn it into an article.

If you eliminate the first two categories of men (because they are no-goes) what do you think the proportional split is between these two. Are you more likely to run into the sex before commitment type or the waits to commit type?

I don't think you fully understood. The same man can fall into different categories for different women. Pretty much for any given man, there are women he would be willing to develop a relationship with, women he will have sex with but nothing else, and women he wouldn't touch with someone else's ten foot pole.

Women give sex, and men give relationships, and when both are on the table, whoever "gives it up" first is accepting status as the subordinate partner, and assuming some risks. This is generally done in exchange for access to a better quality of mate than would otherwise be available.

While going for category #4 men is a viable strategy, and it certainly shouldn't be off the table, I tend to highly recommend a category #3 based strategy, for a number of reasons.

- Our culture is changing. Pre-marital sex become acceptable, then normal, then pre-commitment sex became acceptable, and now it is becoming normal. As this happens, the "cost" of playing it safe becomes gradually higher and higher, as the most desirable men of the fourth category start to leak into the third.
- Many women, especially those new to RPW stuff, generally don't understand the concept of post-commitment risk. They tend to view being publicly acknowledged by the man as his mate as being some sort of "finish line" after which they have "won" and are safe, rather than simply a new phase of the game where a lot of the risks are only cosmetically different. Commitment is an emotional state, not a magic golden key.
- As I said before, whoever "gives it up" first is the subordinate partner, but has more opportunity to "punch above their weight class". Since men want to be treated awesome by someone good enough, and women want to be treated good enough by someone awesome, both male and female relationship happiness is increased if the man gets to "keep the upper hand" and the women gets to "punch above her weight class" a bit.
- A basic red pill principle (inherited from pre-TRP reddit) is we do not judge the terrain. In this case, the cultural environment. Handwringing over whether increased sexual permissiveness is "bad for women" is completely beside the point. RPW is advice for individuals, and individuals cannot use "let's change the culture" as a strategy. If you have to cross some terrain, and it's full of hills, you have start climbing. It doesn't matter that you would prefer a nice flat, paved sidewalk. The terrain is the terrain, and refusal to adapt to it is never useful.

Should you even bother with girls while getting ur s* together?

7 upvotes · 5 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

Not because you expect to have great success, but for practice.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

7 upvotes · 30 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not your fucking student

Of course not. Being a student requires the capacity to learn.

You thoughts on "The case for settling for Mr.Good Enough"

7 upvotes · 16 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There has to be some degree of balance.

Aiming too high leaves you an alpha widow.

Aiming too low leaves you in a relationship you don't want with a man you cannot be passionate about. (And he will see this, and resent it, and take it out on you.)

Feminist Bookstore Closes From Lack of Sales, Blames White Men

7 upvotes · 13 June 2018 · /r/MensRights

Look how well some people have done off the media hating them and making fun of them 24/7.

What's behind the shaming of "nice guys", "incels", "chuds", "neckbeards", "manchildren"...?

7 upvotes · 11 June 2018 · /r/MensRights

Feminists reserve their most vehement hatred for unmasculine men because damn near everything feminists do is a visceral emotional reaction, disguised with a rationalization.

Unmasculine men are viscerally repugnant to women. Their mere presence makes women feel disgust, and contempt, and discomfort, and other negative emotions.

Feminine women simply avoid such men.

Feminist women, however, rationalize that someone who makes them feel bad must be bad. After all, if they didn't believe that their feelings were the moral compass of the universe, they wouldn't be feminists.

So they experience their visceral disgust as moral outrage.

Redpillers excoriate unmasculine men in a last-ditch effort to make them confront their own shame at what they have become, and push them into taking responsibility for their lives and putting in some effort. The success rate is not good, but some spectacular successes have been achieved.

Second date pre- sex monog ultimatum?

7 upvotes · 11 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

She lacks basic social skills.

Go ahead and smash, but plate only. If she holds out for a promise, make it.

Then dump her a week later and tell her the sex was no good.

Why do I feel like women are terrible pieces of shit?

7 upvotes · 11 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

That's because our culture seems to have decided that the task of teaching them to be men should be assigned to women.

Why does an interest in firearms trigger a reflexive ostracism from most people?

7 upvotes · 4 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do yourself a favour.

Go pull up your favorite search engine, type in the words "asymmetric warfare", and start reading.

It may prevent you from embarrassing yourself in the future.

Innate personality vs TRP

7 upvotes · 13 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

You are what you repeatedly do.

Your thoughts do not drive your actions. Your actions drive your thoughts.

Back to the basics - women are the gatekeepers of sex.

7 upvotes · 23 April 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The thing to remember is that withholding sex isn't game, it's capitalization.

Game is what increases your leverage. You can capitalize on that to withhold sex if you want, but first you have to have it. A girl with no game withholding sex is like a neckbeard incel withholding commitment... no one asked him for any.

Until you differentiate yourself, you are just another vagina in a world full of them. The only men a vagina alone gives you leverage over is the ones to whom vagina is scarce. Do you want anything to do with those men? Didn't think so.

RPW wasn't founded to teach you what to do with your sexual power. It was created to teach you how to get it in the first place. Look, everyone gets it. Talking about how to use leverage is fun. It makes you feel powerful, and desirable, and special.

But without seriously studying how to actually be desirable and special, and then seriously working to make that happen, the rest is just mental masturbation.

Still Wanna Get Married?

7 upvotes · 31 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

The Art of Getting Things... Without Demanding Them

7 upvotes · 13 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Weird trick for getting alpha dudebros to buy you prezzies! Hallmark hates it!

How I Manage My LTR

7 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It appears I've broached the subject by saying that it shouldn't be broached. I may have to go ahead and write about this just to prevent these dudes from damaging themselves by snow leopard hunting.

Families and Children

7 upvotes · 6 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's why I've started using metaphors about snow leopards. Unlike unicorns, the snow leopard is an animal that actually exists... but it's so rare that it makes no sense to hunt for them.

Un-sex-worthy as most modern men are, the supply of sex-worthy men far outstrips the supply of relationship-worthy women, roughly in proportion to the numerical differences between TRP and RPW.

So even when a man is high-quality, and can catch a "snow leopard", odds are she's already in a relationship with another sex-worthy dude.

That's why I don't teach relationship game to men, only to women. Because women have some need of it, and men don't.

They need to learn to spin plates, because plates are what they are going to meet.

Can't turn a ho into a housewife, hoes don't act right.

Redpill book recommendations for 17 year old girl?

7 upvotes · 26 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It depends on your goals.

If it was merely a matter of finding a marriage-ready man when you're 18-20 or so, then I would say early 30s, or even late 20s. But if, as you say, you have a thing for older men, there's nothing wrong with pushing it further. Now, men who are in their 40s and have never married might not be interested in ever marrying, so you find one there you like, then do a little reconnaissance before diving in with both feet.

Also watch out for divorced men. This is not a disqualifier in all cases, but if there were kids, then the ex will always be in his life, and that can be very, very bad.

Stay the hell away from married men, of course. No, he won't leave his wife for you. And even if he did, how trustworthy would he be with a track record like that?

Now, some people might tell you that age-gapped relationships fail more often. They are indirectly quoting a couple of flawed studies which didn't make a distinction of which sex was older. If you separate by sex, you find that marriages with significantly older male partners are more stable, and this effect is still greater if neither has been married before.

So, late 20s possibly, 30s definitely, 40s if you see one you really want. But bear in mind that you're picking a person, not an age range. The way you target older men isn't to have a "target range", it is to be around older men rather than younger ones, so that when you meet that man who knocks your socks off, he's at a point in his life where he's ready for what you want.

Redpill book recommendations for 17 year old girl?

7 upvotes · 26 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I have some very bad news for you. Being married young isn't simply a matter of choice. Technology is slowly killing marriage (article written for men, but useful), because the age at which people can afford to get married is getting later and later.

Pretty much the only way to deal with this is to focus exclusively on older men. Men in their twenties simply aren't going to be ready to settle down, or able to financially afford to.

Since you aren't going to bump into a lot of older men in your day to day life at age 18, you're going to have to make a conscious effort to find places where they are, and spend time there. You also would have to find subtle ways to make it clear that you are open to being pursued by someone 10+ years older.

This might sound strange to you, even creepy, but trying to date a 20 year old man and then persuade him to be ready for marriage would be a doomed enterprise from the start.

You'll have a much easier time with a man in his 30s or even 40s, because:

- He has probably gotten hookup culture out of his system.
- He was raised in an era when marriage wasn't quite so damaged as an institution.
- You appear very young, fresh, pretty, and desirable compared to women his age.

- He can support a wife and kids.
- Dating or marrying someone much younger than him elevates him in his own eyes and those of his peers.

How do I not hate myself for being female?

7 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You've been reading TRP, haven't you?

Not a good idea.

While the red pill is about truth, it is about teaching truth rather than merely describing it. Thus, the world and how to deal with it must be presented in different ways to men and women.

This is not surprising, given that one of our basics precepts is that men and women are very different.

So when you read something designed to instruct men, it will not be meaningful to you.

In this fashion:

What gets said to men:

Most women have rape fantasies

What you hear:

Women want to be raped

What men hear:

Stop being so gentle and hesitant, and pick her up and throw her on the bed already

Any recommendations for a full body workout that I can do 3x a week?

7 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Besides StrongLifts and Starting Strength! I did StrongLifts for a while and I just got bored of it. Good thing is though I can stronger! But I didn't gain any visible gains.

So let me get this straight.

You did a compound lifting program. You got stronger. But it was too "boring" for you.

Right?

Okay, here's two alternatives for you:

1. Every day, balance on a Bosu™ ball on one foot, while holding a ShakeWeight™ in each hand and barking like a seal. Do this for thirty minutes, switching feet every two minutes.
2. Clean the sand out of your vagina and go do Starting Strength.

My girlfriend just admitted to me that she wants me to basically rape her when she is sleeping because it turns her on, what does this mean about her?

7 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Femsub bdsm is mainstream.

Girl doesn't initiate texts out of fear of bothering me

7 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

And your problem is... what now?

Submissive women do not initiate stuff. They wait for Master's instructions.

Learn to lead.

What's your go to line when a girl calls you an asshole?

7 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Yep.

Plates met and found out about me, how to proceed?

7 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do nothing. Act like nothing happened.

Never act like monogamy is the default assumption. Make them ask for it.

Then tell them no. If they leave, they leave.

Girls who don't shave their armpits - What does this mean?

7 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

What does it matter? Who cares why they do it?

If a woman repulses you, stay away from her and go find one who doesn't.

Came to RPW for a lol... Except I kind of agree with a lot of it. I have some newbie Qs!

7 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Also, kind of related, how do you go about sex when you are not in the mood?

Having sex requires the appropriate arousal responses from your nervous system. Performing oral sex does not.

Why PUA's are bullshit

7 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Eyeball

Gosh, I'm sure glad you totally got the point of what I was doing!

Because I was totally trying to provide an example of Alpha™ behaviour you should imitate! Following teachers is old and busted! Denouncing them is the new hotness! Be sure to call your audience losers and soy boys and nerds a lot, for extra points!

Teachers teach what they teach. They can tell you how to do what they do. They can't tell you who to be. Because only you know what you want.

Blue Pill Peterson

7 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Correct.

It doesn't matter how much intelligence there is, if the intelligence isn't calling the shots.

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

7 upvotes · 5 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Shhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh!

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

7 upvotes · 4 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Shhhh... be vewy vewy quiet. I'm hunting wabbits.

Question about masturbation vs sex

7 upvotes · 3 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do hormonal levels in the male body really respond differently to sex vs. masturbation?

Testosterone, no. Oxytocin, yes.

Some people on TRP are idiots, that's all. That's why TRP is not a democracy. So the Moron Majority doesn't end up successfully selling their stupid theories.

If you are so worried about your T levels that you are fucking timing your orgasms, then just fucking inject the stuff.

Blue Pill/feminism has failed in it's response to broken lost men who need a father figure - hence Cernovich, J Petersen ETC

7 upvotes · 31 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

feminism has failed in it's response to broken lost men who need a father figure

No, it hasn't. It has succeeded spectacularly, because its mission all along was to create them. The destruction of the nuclear family via removal of the father was an essential part of the plan.

CMV: Red pill men don't want traditional wives because they don't want to be traditional husbands.

7 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If red pill men were offered a Marriage 1.0 woman tomorrow

Who knows what they would do? They've never seen one. Modern tradcon women sure aren't it.

New Mod: /u/halitenina

7 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks CHI, and welcome Halitenina.

Hope you enjoy our little party.

Will I even find one?

7 upvotes · 25 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm just so curious of how men really feel and think. I find them complex, I want to understand men. And understand their needs.

Understandable.

RPW is pretty much based on the realization that women are much more submissive, and much happier being that way, than our culture makes them out to be.

And when you actually want to focus your life on making someone happy, even a hypothetical future someone, of course you can't help but try to figure out how they're going to tick.

But if you go there in particular, you're seeing a particular aspect of young men's inner lives.

You see, it is very natural for men to want the kind of devotion you say you want to offer. And in much the same way that you have told it's not okay, and not provided by our culture with path to it, neither have they.

And while this makes you scared and high-strung and nervous, because you are who you are, it also makes these young men angry and aggressive, because they are who they are.

TRP was built, by a bunch of older men, to take that anger, harness it for energy, and turn into it into confidence, mastery, and control.

Now, I know you want men to have that, and it's nice to believe that your man always had that, but you're going to have to be flexible enough to allow him to have needed a few years to develop and build it.

And that process is just not going to look as nice as the finished product. Men are not born strong. They emerge naked and squalling just like everyone else. What strength they are born with exists in potential, and requires time to find its expression.

You don't want to be barged in on while you're putting on your makeup, or sweating in the gym trying to lose those last stubborn five pounds. You want to put yourself together, and be able to walk out and present the best version of you when it's time.

Grant them the same courtesy.

A Beta's wants to let me bang his girl (texts included)

7 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Field reports are raw data. You are supposed to figure what you can learn from them.

Advice needed, please.

7 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

BCPs tamper with hormones, which are mood-changers, especially for women.

The dangerous bit is that everyone responds differently. Some women have their emotional stability fixed by BCPs. Others have it broken.

BCPs should be used with caution, and starting with a short trial period.

Meditate. Estrogen supplements. A vegan diet. Penis chastity.

7 upvotes · 20 January 2018 · /r/MensRights

Oh, look. They accidentally admitted that a vegan diet is feminizing.

Is someone "broken" if they don't associate "sex with love"?

7 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not about enjoyment. It's about partner selection.

Women who select partners for they are not emotionally invested in are very bad emotional investments for men.

I don't see why this is a problem for you. If you prefer to have sex with men you don't love, why would it offend you that they don't love you either?

I want to be less biased, what do you think is best for any woman (not just RPW) emotionally to do regarding sex?

7 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

We exist in a post-feminist world.

Feminists sought to destroy marriage and the nuclear family because they were so deeply invested in their own rhetoric that they imagined marriage was an institution that exploited them.

The reality was that marriage existed primarily for the benefit of women, and merely contained a moderate number of concessions to male desires, to make it palatable to them.

Marriage as an institution is now dying, both because the gratification of male sexual desire is no longer tied to it, because the concessions in it to male needs have been legally removed, and because it was doomed by technology to begin with.

This leaves us in a world with a number of new realities, all of which are bad news for women, but which must be dealt with rather than ignored.

- Men's sexual expectations have vastly increased as they have become accustomed to greater availability, and variety.
- Sex is no longer a post-condition for marriage or cementing an LTR. It is instead part of the cementing process.
- Any woman who treats it as a post-condition, withholding sexual intimacy until promises are made, not only places herself at a considerable disadvantage in the competition for the most desirable men, but also at a considerable risk for receiving meaningless promises.
- Men still expect fidelity from women and always will. Male sexual jealousy over women who they invest in is inherent and immutable.
- Men's expectations of fidelity are, to a certain extent, retroactive. Yes, this makes no sense. But this behaviour is instinctive and will not change. Men may be constrained to accept a woman's sexual past, but they will never be completely okay with it.
- Pornography, and its easy availability, increases competition still further... it may be no substitute for good sex, or a considerate partner, but it is vastly superior to bad sex with an inconsiderate partner.

What this all combines to form is a world where today's single woman is worse off in every way than her grandmother was.

- She has to give more, and can expect to get less.
- She does not even have the comfort of thinking she has brought this on herself. She didn't. Other women did.
- Men will not intervene to save her, or put things back the way they were.
- There are very few resources available that will even tell her this when she is young enough to use the information to her best advantage.

However, the options, when dealt a miserly hand by fate, are to either do the best you can, or lie down and die. There is little point bemoaning this cruel reality, because the damage is already done.

The guidelines for a woman to play this bad hand of cards as best she can would probably be as follows:

- Never engage in purely recreational sex. While doing so is not in any way immoral or unhealthy, it makes men want you less. Forever.
- Avoid withholding sex to extract things such as commitment. Boycotts only work when everyone plays along. A man will resent you expecting more from him than other women, and giving less than other men get.
- Only have sex with men you want commitment from, and think you have a realistic chance of inspiring them to want that, too. Other men, however attractive, must be avoided altogether to reduce temptation.

- Accept that this means you bear vastly increased risk as compared to your grandmother, and do not expect men to fix this for you, or protect you from it. They did not create this problem. It is not their fault, or their responsibility.
- Accept responsibility for making men want to stay with you, and commit to you.
- Adopt an "all-in or all-out" strategy. You are either doing everything you can to make a man happy with you, and want you to stay, or you are not dating him or engaging in any activity that creates the least sexual tension.

TL;DR: It sucks to be a single woman now. No one but you can save you. Better work on your girl game.

Moving In Together

7 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's a trope here that you will probably hear suggested to you: "No cohabitation without marriage".

Unfortunately, it's not really sophisticated enough to capture the important ideas, as many couples are foregoing marriage altogether these days, and marriage isn't the only important issue that needs to be settled.

Better advice would be: Make sure both your expectations match regarding marriage, children, and finances before living together.

LTRd celebrity girl, how to not slip into old habits

7 upvotes · 12 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

You're not strong inside yet.

What you have, at best, is situational value.

If you were strong inside, you would not have replied to this comment, because the wolf does not concern himself with the opinions of sheep.

The Creep - Part 3

7 upvotes · 27 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think it's directly about money. Money is the symptom.

The disease is authoritarianism. The desire to control everything, put everything in its place, make it conform to expectations and follow a predictable structure.

Once people get the idea that every bad thing can be prevented by having the correct rule, the correct plan, the correct structure, they go mad structuring everything. And when life's little misfortunes still keep happening, they tinker endlessly with the rules, thinking that this wouldn't have happened if they got them right.

Never imagining that rules can create problems as they solve them.

Man plays with children... one time in many, he's a pedo. But it happens once. So put them in daycare instead, make all daycare workers get background checks. Problem solved. But now young children have no adult male contact, because adult men don't want to make careers of working in daycare. This effects every child... problem created worse than problem solved.

Child plays outside, gets hurt one time in many. But it happens once. So put them in after school center. Now children don't have unstructured, unsupervised time. Grow up with no initiative, never spent time alone. Problem created worse than problem solved.

Man chats up woman at work, one time in many, he's unattractive and won't take no for an answer. So forbid workplace flirtation, confine flirtation to nightclubs where women go deliberately to be hit on. Now whole incidental mating dance of culture is disrupted. Problem created worse than problem solved.

The money isn't the motivator, it's a measure of the motivation. Nightclub owners aren't demanding stricter "sexual harassment" policies. Women are. And then they are demanding nightclubs so they can go and be hit on again.

People's lives are being sold back to them in pieces because they created a financial opportunity by dismantling them on their own.

I hate myself because of my high n-count..advice?

7 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

It just hurts that, even if we do get married, I'm going to have this dark insecurity looming over me for the rest of my fucking life.

You do a little work every day to fade it into the past.

How the fuck am I supposed to live like this?

One day at a time, same as the rest of us.

I hate myself because of my high n-count..advice?

7 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah..about that..my captain got kind of upset because an old fling was hitting on me and I didn't tell him to back off immediately because of my meek and unassuming nature..but nonetheless, I think that's a great rubric to employ.

Absolutely.

- Be prepared for jealousy.
- Do his mate-guarding for him, and do it vigorously.
- Always be signaling to him and other men that you are taken, and prefer him to anyone else.
- Always be signaling to him and other men that he gets the best effort you have.

Feminism as a society-wide shit test - Why the places with the nicest guys have the angriest feminists

7 upvotes · 22 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Women have a submissive nature.

This doesn't mean that they all want to be spanked and called a dirty slut. What it means that they would rather be told what to do than have to decide for themselves.

Women experience clear expectations for their behaviour as a relief rather than a burden.

In an environment full of patriarchal males, the strong expectations of those males set the norm... and women are perfectly happy obeying so long as the specific expectations are not in themselves overwhelmingly painful and horrific. Women don't care about abstractions like "freedom". They care about concrete things like safety and comfort. They are perfectly happy being slaves so long as they are generally safe and comfortable, and things are fun once in a while.

In an environment with meek males, women have no set of male expectations to conform to, so they don't know what to do, and very quickly they start looking at other women to see what they are doing, and follow along.

But all of those other women are looking around them in the same way. This means that an imitated behaviour can spread like wildfire, becoming more and more exaggerated as it spreads and loops back on itself.

One thing women frequently do is try to get what they want from a man by accusing him of being a big meanie.

When this particular behaviour spreads out of control through an entire population, we call it "feminism".

Having a few slut friends have shown me how women can experience the entire spectrum of dating (simultaneously with multiple men), with complete control, frame and ease.

7 upvotes · 20 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Depending on how wet you made her you have literally "unlocked" that version of your girl, and not even on her deathbed (or without hard proof) you will never know what version of your girl you received.

Well reasoned article, but this isn't quite true.

#2-5 will not know which version they got. #1 does.

It's very simple.

Does she do what you say, when you say it? If you are going out to the restaurant, does she wear the BIG butt plug under her dress just because you said she had to? If you can have whatever you want, you are man #1.

If she "doesn't do that for anyone", then you are man #2-5, and you can never know if she doesn't have a #1, or if he threw a fuck into her last night.

This is why obedience is an absolute necessity before promoting to LTR. Women will always obey the hottest man they think they can get. If she doesn't obey you, you are not him, and she'll always have an eye out of opportunities to trade up.

Can't bring girlfriend to orgasm

7 upvotes · 29 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

You are certainly getting some shit advice from losers who are terrible in bed.

Here's what you need to know:

1. It is not your masculine duty to make her come every time. You are having sex for you.
2. It is, however, important to be able to make her orgasm when you choose, because training girls requires both the stick and the carrot.
3. All the physical technique advice you are getting isn't worth shit. Physical technique is nothing. Mental state is everything. Excite her brain, and she can come from 30 seconds of nipple play, or a stiff breeze.
4. To make a girl come hard, you must control her mindset, and put her in an excited state.
5. To control her mental state, you must understand it. This means you must know what excites her. And you must know it without asking her, because asking her is useless... she doesn't know. Girls don't know what they like in bed until it happens to them.
6. That means you have to infer her sexual tastes from her behaviour and character.

What kind of wrist watch should I get to project a persona of alpha maleness?

7 upvotes · 11 June 2017 · /r/askTRP

Make sure it matches your purse and heels.

Why is the TRP politically right leaning?

7 upvotes · 19 March 2017 · /r/askTRP

NACALT?

Fuck that shit. TRP is about taking responsibility for yourself, and teaching others to do the same. You can't live those values while advocating collectivist totalitarian bullshit.

Why we tell you not to cohabitate with a woman you aren't married to.

7 upvotes · 15 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Who's "we"? Do you have a mouse in your pocket?

This should be read as an opion piece.

Is silence the best revenge?

7 upvotes · 5 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

Who gives a shit about revenge?

Be silent because you are busy being awesome.

"Men are just intimidated by you"

7 upvotes · 29 November 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It raises the price without raising the value.

A woman wants a man who she deems superior to her in education and intelligence. The more education and intelligence a woman has, the harder she is to impress (and the more effort it takes).

But that education and intelligence brings absolutely no value to her side of the table, because it doesn't provide anything a man wants out of a relationship.

The only intelligence that is useful to him in his woman is "not so dumb that she's annoying". (Although, if he is very intelligent, this bar can be quite high indeed.)

That's why a man is always better off dating the dumbest woman whose company he can enjoy... while a woman will (all other things being equal) want the smartest man who will accept her.

Top universities develop programs meant "to purge toxic masculinity". "Many college students...believe that masculinity is the root cause of sexual violence, body shaming, and terrorism". "The programs...set up safe spaces for male students to contemplate the toxicity of their manliness".

7 upvotes · 15 November 2016 · /r/MensRights

Organized self-criticism sessions are used by cults and communist regimes to break down their victims' self-image and independent identity, making them susceptible to control.

This is Why I Think Lifting is Pointless for Most Guys

7 upvotes · 21 September 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Find out.

Your whiny, self-pitying tone makes me suspect the problem lies there.

This is Why I Think Lifting is Pointless for Most Guys

7 upvotes · 21 September 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What are your total and free serum testosterone levels?

This is Why I Think Lifting is Pointless for Most Guys

7 upvotes · 21 September 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I haven't got into things in that depth because I don't think it's achievable for me.

I've tried lifting weights in the past and I gained nothing.

What program were you running then?

The Hamster Codex, part 1 - "Help, my boyfriend got assfucked by another guy and now I don't like him anymore!"

7 upvotes · 15 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Unless you were a woman, in which case you were a-ok.

That's the point. Most traditional cultures don't abhor men, or women. But they react with instinctive loathing to a man taking the role of a woman, or vice versa.

I keep abandoning redpill then come back a mess again. Neverending cycle. Pls Help.

7 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

Stop LTRing women who haven't worked for it. Your commitment is the prize. Don't just give it away for sex. Make them earn it.

The MGTOW Manifesto: Our Demands For Ending the Marriage Strike

7 upvotes · 4 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

No, no, no.

That's not how you negotiate with a woman.

You don't present them with a list of demands, like some overinvested sperg telling his fat girlfriend she "needs to respect him more". That just advertises your involvement and investment. So long as you will stay invested, women do not give a fuck if you are happy.

The only way to make women care about your happiness is to withdraw your investment.

- Don't tell women how to save marriage.
- Don't tell women you want to save marriage.
- Don't demonstrate any interest in marriage.
- Don't get married.
- Fuck sluts, shoot steroids, and spend your paychecks on yourself.
- Tell other men not to get married.
- Watch the world burn, and laugh from atop your giant pile of hookers and blow.

Why? Because it's fun.

And because women will never meet you halfway. Give them an inch, and they will never budge again. If you act like you want to save marriage, they will ask you what you plan to give them in return for letting you do so.

If you act like you couldn't care less, and keep up that act until you actually couldn't care less, then there won't be enough husbands to go around, and so many adorable kitties will have loving homes they would not have had.

Look at those eyes. LOOK AT THEM. How could you condemn them to the pound, you HEARTLESS MONSTER?

Think of the kitties!

Also, in one or two generations, women might decide that they have to save marriage, and start actually doing something about the mess it's in.

HAHAHHAAHAAHAAHHAHHAHAHAH No. Had you going there, didn't I? Of course women won't do that. Women will wait until we are a third world shithole and then scratch each other's eyes out for the privilege of fellating the leader of the most vicious gang of thugs. But that won't happen before I'm dead, so I don't care. You fuckers are on your own. Good luck out there.

Who killed Marriage 1.0? (Trigger warning: dry theory)

7 upvotes · 15 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/4nsl0r/who_killed_marriage_10_trigger_warning_dry_theory/d46ojdw

I'm not really sure what the ratio of left out men to dead men was in those 16 out of 17. But what you say stands, because I don't believe they were all dead.

What we do know is that polygyny doesn't just indulge rich and successful men. It also protects women from having a low status husband.

We all know women would rather share Chad than have Brad or Thad all to themselves. Women in this society will deny that, but that's only because they don't want the idea of sharing to get out there... it kills their ambition of having Chad all to themselves. They still maintain this fantasy that their prince will come.

Their prince, of course, is busy banging a prettier girl. Or three.

Polygyny fixes this problem, because if Chad is one man in five, then if every Chad has five wives, every woman will be married to a Chad. And even if it doesn't go that far, and Chads have an average of 2.5 wives (because why would he marry an unattractive woman?), then even unattractive women get to marry Brad instead of Thad.

However good this is for women and possibly also Chad, it's only stable if there is a very high male mortality rate, or in a slave state, where Thad is a slave, and Brad must compete with slave labour, and doesn't dare slack or complain, lest he starve.

If Brad and Thad are free to sit on the couch smoking weed and playing console games, jerk off to internet porn, and work part-time to pay the rent and buy groceries and weed, then that's all you'll get from them in a polygynous culture. And there are not enough Chads to drive an economy at most technological levels.

Johnny Depp's marriage will have cost him 45k a day, just from the divorce settlement...

7 upvotes · 7 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely. Women do not have a problem with rape qua rape.

They don't actually have a need, on principle, to control their own sexuality. They are fine with someone else seizing control of it, so long as what they do with that control isn't things they don't like.

The reason women talking about rape as a very bad thing is that most rapists ain't sexy. Jason Momoa is not a rapist. We know that despite knowing nothing else about him, because it's transparently obvious that this dude doesn't have to rape anyone. Maybe not every woman is into him, but in any room with a fair number of women, at least one of them is going to be giving him the doggie dinner bowl look. The only way that dude has ever "raped" anyone is if someone had a fetish, and made a request.

Sexy men don't have to rape, except in the fun-kinky-sex sense of the word.

So women do think rape is bad... but not on principle. They think it's bad because the wrong men are doing it.

How common are incels?

7 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, the economic playing field is not level. This is not evidence that the sexual playing field is not level.

However, I do not think that the sexual playing field is level, either.

But... so what?

You draw to the hand you're dealt. Because no matter how poor that hand is, your only options are "work to improve" or "don't". You cannot change the game.

Are there men out there so disadvantaged in life that TRP cannot make them into a pussy whisperer? Probably. But some help is better than no help. And if tomorrow I find a way to help more, then the day after tomorrow I will be writing about it on TRP.

March of the Freak Parade

7 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You say that but look at ethnically and culturally homogeneous Muslim/African countries and compare them to Nordic and Scandinavian ones. Nobody's culturally enriching Zimbabwe, Turkey or other shit holes because they are neither a threat to the globalist agenda since they can't stand on their own two feet nor would anyone sane ever move there.

Exactly my point. Racially homogeneous cultures can't get jack shit done unless they are internally trusting and cooperative. Racially diverse cultures that are internally trusting and cooperative do prosper.

So, conclusion: racial homogeneity is probably only important as a source of cultural homogeneity. And cultural homogeneity is necessary, but not sufficient, for a high-trust society.

These are the two common ways, but death from lack of immigration in advanced, ethnically homogeneous countries doesn't occur from leaving wealth, advances & culture on the table via lack of immigration - Japan is a good example.

What? Are you serious? Japan has imported more ideas from the West than any other country has. The West kicked their ass until they started doing so. Lesson learned.

Virtually every indigenously Nordic, Scandinavian or Anglo-Saxon country is being decimated by immigration.

Yep. This is the Eternal September Effect in action.

It is suicide to take in immigrants faster than you can make them "go native" and adapt the mores and practices of your culture.

Borders should stay closed, it's why they're called "borders". Select programs to pluck the wealthy (see Finland's net $$$ requirements) or PhD educated are a competitive advantage.

It is also suicide to take in no immigrants or foreign ideas, but that's not a discussion worth having right now, because having it would be like running about with fire extinguishers in the middle of a flood.

Reddit's new 'Trust and Safety Team' just quarantined the r / european subreddit

7 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I implore the users of this sub-reddit to check the comments in any thread there. They have many subscribers that genuinely argue that the Nazi party was doing good in gassing jewish people. Many of the posts are outright racist.

Yes. So what?

It's a measure of just how political orthodoxy has poisoned modern thinking, that you believe "These guys are straight-up racist" is an argument for shutting down a forum.

Yeah, they're straight-up racist. There was one asshole who got banned from here, subsequently found out that one of our mods is black, and posted a rant there about how the eeeeevil "nigger" banned him. Repugnant as both you and I find this... so what?

When you use your personal distaste for someone's words as an excuse to silence him, you cross a line. And on one side of that line is the freedom of thought and expression that made Western culture great. On the other side of that line is the tribal monoculture of third-world shitholes everywhere.

If you want to grow and prosper and learn, subreddits are okay, segregation of topics is okay, but quarantining and utter silencing is not. It doesn't work. No one is smart enough to know what topics "should not" ever be discussed, or what things "should not" ever be said.

How can you claim there's no glass ceiling with posts like this on Red Pill?

7 upvotes · 12 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why do you care?

If feminism were really about equality, self-reliance, and independence, then you would not need us to promote you. You wouldn't need us to hire you.

You would make your own companies, and since you can do everything we can do, backwards and in heels, for 73 cents on the dollar, you could put us all out of business, and we'd have to marry you and stay home and raise the children.

So get going. Prove him wrong. Set the world on fire.

Don't be mad, nigga. Be motivated.

"but... come on guys, shape up! YOU have to save Europe." Former Swedish feminist now demands men save Sweden from the ravages caused by the philosophy she's only recently disavowed.

7 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The words of old women are wind. They have nothing we want.

Until the young women start sucking for forgiveness, we ain't gonna do shit.

How do you produce when you keep encountering failure?

7 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Ahah. Now we are getting somewhere. You are depressed, and have persistent negative self-talk... you have enemies in your own head, telling you that you are a loser. And /u/illimitableman's writing is actually exacerbating this, because when he goes on about not being a loser, and what losers do, you mentally say, "that's me", and beat yourself up over it.

The first thing to understand is the difference between pleasure and happiness. Pleasure is anything you do that feels good right then, but stops when you stop doing the thing. Happiness is the feeling of being content with your life, because your feelings about what you have already done are good.

Pleasure is momentary bliss. Happiness is a lasting feeling of accomplishment or connection.

When you lift, study, and practice your music, you are striving for a feeling of accomplishment. But that feeling is slow to materialize, because significant accomplishments are, by their very nature, hard and time consuming. In the meantime, you beat yourself up mentally, until the pain becomes enough that you have to seek out pleasure (games, weed, etc) in order to anesthetize yourself. Then, once the immediate pleasure fades, you beat yourself up more for having done so. Lather, rinse, repeat.

What you need to realize right now is that you do not yet have the emotional capital to wait for long terms goals in order to feel good. Instead, you need to build good habits by setting and achieving short-term goals. This creates the proper habit.

If you try to "become huge and ripped", you're waiting 2-4 years for your reward. If you try to "add 5 lbs to your squat", you're waiting a much shorter period of time.

Use pleasure not as anesthesia for pain, but as something you have permission to do once you have accomplished your daily productive goals.

Did you lift today? Did you practice? Did you approach at least one woman? Did you do your studying? Okay, relax with games until bedtime. The discipline you need is not the kind that does nothing but work out until you puke, but the kind that does your workout every time, and doesn't skip.

Every day: "I did what I needed to do. I crossed off everything on the list. I'm on the path. Now I can chill for a bit." That's how you keep going.

What would a RPW do to feel empowered?

7 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

The purpose of power is getting what you want or need.

A man gets what he wants by acquiring skill or status, and exerting power on his own behalf.

A feminist gets what she wants by pretending to be tough and competent, competing and failing, then demanding the trophy anyway, on pain of being called sexist.

A feminine woman gets what she wants by being popular and well-liked, so that others will exert power on her behalf.

For women, social influence is power.

[FR] My first week of TRP

7 upvotes · 1 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It has value to a very specific someone.

Newcomers. If all the field reports we have are /u/humansockpuppet pulling a threesome with two bridesmaids after a wedding, then the new blood is going to tune out.

I place my official Vanguard stamp of approval on OP, not because he's beautiful on the inside (he's probably made of the same selfish goo as everyone else), but because he just gave an excellent illustration of how to get started.

Jodie Foster tired of 'the woman thing': There's no 'big plot to keep women down' - "It would be nice to be able to have a more complex conversation and to be able to look at it more than just a quota or numbers."

7 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/MensRights

Jodie Foster thinks being shot at is a privilege.

A Note on Plates

7 upvotes · 19 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Good question.

Men's and women's advice needs to be different. Men and women are different, and need to do different things to be attractive.

One of the key elements of women's attractiveness, which becoming scarcer and scarcer, and thus more and more attractive, is empathy and compassion.

So, when a woman is presented with a man who says:

I've had a healthy portion of bullshit, anger, betrayal and hate towards women from relationships. Been going solo for over a year now. I don't like most women and I am tired of all the shit that comes with trying to talk to women and get dates, sex, etc.

She has a variety of possible response attitudes.

The first one is being tough, and standing up for herself, like this:

How DARE you say that? Your attitude of blaming all women for the actions of a few is DISGUSTING, and is just a threadbare excuse to justify the CONTEMPTIBLE behaviour of plate-spinning, which harms women to gratify your BASE INSTINCTS. Die in a fire.

The second is being fearful, and protecting herself, like this:

Clearly, this man is DAMAGED. His untrusting attitude is not something I should have to deal with. I'm going to have nothing to do with him, because I DESERVE a good man. He should just go away and not bother decent women like me with his unworthy presence.

The third, which doesn't exist, is being a blue pill straw RPW, and doing whatever strangers want of her, like this:

Clearly, women are awful, and I am awful. Let me immediately commit myself to the first angry dude that comes along. As soon as I get done hitting myself in the face with a brick.

The fourth, which is very rare, is being empathetic and trying to understand others, like this:

Wow. Is it really that bad out there? I have a little trouble understanding what experiences you're talking about, because I have really seen this sort of thing. I don't think I do it. I certainly HOPE I don't. Can you tell me maybe some of the specific stuff that made you feel this way?

So what results do these women get:

- The first woman just picked an argument with a man. She's having a toughness contest with people who are designed to be tough from the ground up. Not going to get anywhere with that, even if she wins. Because if she wins, she looks like a tough bitch. This does not make people like her.
- The second woman avoids men. While not every man is as untrusting as the man in our example, many, indeed most, of today's men are not so trusting. The marriage strike is a thing. Your 20% is huge. It represents a much larger portion of young people not getting married. She will avoid many men, and she will, in effect, say to others "prove yourself to me", making them feel less cared about... "wait, women sabotaged the marriage contract, women made men commitment-phobic, and now you want me to prove myself to you?" Men attractive enough to spin plates will prefer spinning plates to her.
- The third woman just sits there as a fictional idea in the minds of TBP.
- The fourth women engages with this man, and treats him as valuable, important person, rather than a "damaged" write-off. She focuses on his emotional state, instead of vigorously defending her own.

So, who do you think is not only more attractive, but also more liked, valued, and respected, not only by the man in question (who may or may not be a good catch after all), but by every man watching? And soon, by all the men in her life, because attitudes are habit-forming?

I recommend empathy, compassion, femininity, warmth, displays of a submissive attitude, etc, because they are a woman's most powerful tools for getting what she wants.

Why fight men, and lose, or avoid men, and get little, when, for the price of kindness, which is free, men will treat you far better than you could ever win with an argument.

TL;DR:

Do not immediately get naked and sweaty with /u/ThePifManGiveth . But DO treat him as if he were a valuable, important, worthwhile human being who deserves your time, care, and attention. Because that builds the habits that will make men want a relationship with you, instead of just reluctantly giving you one.

[Discussion] This Dr. Nerdlove blog seemed to critically distill the ideas of TRP. Responses or refutations?

7 upvotes · 16 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

We are the competition. We give our product away for free. Our product works.

What did you think he was going to say?

Am I interpreting Laura Doyle wrong? (Surrendered Wife; First, Kill all the Marriage Counsellors)

7 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Never correct him. Never offer advice. If he drops the ball on something, never pick it up. Never allow yourself to even know how your finances are.

Seriously?

No wonder her husband struck me as such a non-entity. He's drained from being shackled to an all-consuming waif.

Now, I love being the dominant partner. I get off on it emotionally. Being in charge, having the final say, being the leader, the boss, the king... It makes me feel loved and trusted and appreciated.

But where's the joy in being the leader of an inert blob of jello who has no opinions, no thoughts, no feelings, and nothing to say? It would be like owning one of those creepy sex dolls.

Dominance and submission in a male/female relationship creates attraction and excitement. The man feels important and admired. The woman feels cherished, loved, and protected. It's that emotional feedback, that deliberate intensifying of the male/female stereotypes, that feeds and builds that excitement.

Unless she's communicating to him, that can't happen.

This kind of thing isn't submission at all. It's a special kind of dominance... the same sort of newborn baby has over its parents: absolute fragility coupled with no feedback whatsoever. And any new parent will tell you how exhausting it all is.

But newborns grow, and learn how to communicate their needs. They move from crying to saying " 'nana! " to "mommy, I'm hungry " to standing in front of the refrigerator with the door open saying "hey, are we out of mayo?"

These devouring waifs never grow up.

Need advice about crush I can't get off my mind

7 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Do it for yourself" is meaningless feel-good non-advice.

It's very good for making you, the advisor, sound like a wise and good person, but it really doesn't contain anything she can act on, or anything that will help her.

We call this kind of talk "virtue signaling". It signals virtue, rather than actually containing any.

In this particular case, it's nonsensical, because it boils down to "Don't want this thing, want this other thing". Have you tried that yourself? Let us know how it goes.

It does not make a lick of difference if it's the thought of one particular man, who made her heart flutter, that makes her do what she needs to do. What matters is that she does it. It will help her with him, or with some other man. Doesn't matter which.

Our thoughts are nothing. No one else can see them, and they effect nothing... until and unless they motivate an action.

It is our actions that define us.

Anybody feel like ripping me a new asshole?

7 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

You cannot successfully enact redpill strategy until your pride is stronger than your lust. Until then, you will be controllable with the promise of pussy.

You have to stop fucking her. Even if she wants it, even if you know you could get it, even if you have no other options. Turn her down flat.

Keep doing this. Watch the power dynamic shift.

Then find another woman.

Swedish Feminist Loses Her Job Because Of Her Man-Hating Facebook Videos

7 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/MensRights

This is not about whether she can be fired "for her opinions". It's about whether she can be relied upon not to cause trouble.

If I find out after three years that someone who works for me is a bit of racist, and I'm puzzled to hear it, because he always interacts perfect fine with that one black guy who works in the adjacent office, then I don't give a crap.

If I find this out after three shifts, that she hates men, then she's fired. Because if she can't hide it from me, then she can't hide it from others.

Actually, I never would have hired her in the first place, because one look at her face tells me this a high-drama person who is likely to cause trouble.

Passion

7 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

But being "all in" without commitment is a surefire way to get, as I've seen on TRP, "pumped and dumped" (I feel dirty saying that).

It carries some of that risk. But the opposite approach has risks as well... putting the brakes on carries the risk of making a man think "she's just not that into me".

And if he thinks that, he doesn't always dump you right away. Sometimes he does, but sometimes he perseveres until he gets to sex, but then is less invested in you afterwards. Which leads to being dumped.

Also, maybe this is just my own perspective, but I don't think a woman's passion necessarily declines with the more partners she has. Because we have that "light switch effect", when the switch is on, its on.

In my experience (I'm a man who has had a lot of partners), women with lower counts seem to flip that light switch on more readily, more brightly, and it's less easy for them to turn it back off again.

Also, keep in mind that what's important is not exactly how true this is (totally, somewhat, slightly, etc), but how much men believe it to be true. (A lot.)

Because this is about how into him he thinks you are. If he's your first, and you tell him you want him to be your last, he'll believe you, right off the bat. If he's your fifth, he won't believe you when you say it, but if your actions bear it out, consistently, over time, you can convince him. If he's your twentieth, he's going to think, "Yeah, right, girl, suuuuuuuure. How many other men have you said that to?"

But this was a good read, I'm looking forward to part two.

I'll discuss ways to mitigate risk when going "all in", how to maximize your appearance of being "all in", and how to avoid going "all in" in the wrong situation and setting yourself up for failure.

Q4Men: How many of you engage in risky sex?

7 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

All sex is risky. You never know who's going to be the next mattress carrier.

Who/what are Red Pill women?

7 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

This is a bit extreme. You're asking women to be completely selfless.

Yes, I am. I'm teaching male sexual strategy, remember?

It's a lot safer for women to be selfless than men, though. Men have a protective instinct towards women, and women do not have one towards men.

Selfless women are loved and cared for by men. Selfless men are used as doormats by women.

This is why male dominance is better than female dominance or "equality" (which always, in practice, turns into female dominance).

Q4All: Is your relationship PC? Would reddit liberals tell your partner to dump you if he/she wrote a summary of you?

7 upvotes · 22 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

if your partner made a post to /r/relationships outlining the most un-PC or unflattering aspects of you, would they tell him/her to dump you too?

I think that anyone who can't answer this question with a "yes", doesn't have a healthy relationship.

Is misogyny in TRP even debatable anymore?

7 upvotes · 21 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why should I care?

What, exactly, is so bad about misogyny?

Personally, I don't like dogs. Or cucumbers. Or Arizona. So what?

Having sex problems - slowly destroying my relationships with women. Investigating further, but what can I do in the meantime for damage control, a temporary fix?

7 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

380 is low. Physician is defective. Replace physician.

Why idolize men who essentially pay for women's company? Wouldn't it make more sense to idolize men who get a lot of female attention WITHOUT being rich?

7 upvotes · 17 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

paying for pussy

Meh, do a price/feature comparison, just like every smart buyer.

If you have lots of time and no money, like your typical 22 year old TRP yogymbro, you spend time to get pussy.

If you have lot of money and no time, like your typical high roller, you rent it for a while and get on with your day.

Worrying about whether taking the easy route makes you "look" beta is too many fucks given. I guarantee your typical pussy-renting high roller is losing absolutely no sleep at all over whether strangers think he's a loser.

However, this strategy breaks down if you want an LTR. You absolutely cannot substitute money for time to get that kind of pussy, because you will get screwed.

[CMV]: Hypergamy isn't the reason relationships fail, it's orgasms

7 upvotes · 15 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is brain chemistry at work here. At the point of orgasm, a massive amount of dopamine is released. Along with prolactin. Prolactin is an inhibitor of oxytocin. Oxytocin, if you're unaware, is what's called the "love hormone".

Look, he thinks hormones only do one thing each.

Isn't that cute? It's like "baby's first endocrinology lesson".

The Dark Rule: How To Fuck Someone Over In Business

7 upvotes · 10 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Everyone knows you need to diversify your investments. But not every one realizes that this applies to any source of income, including customers.

You're a lot better off having hordes of tiny accounts than one giant one.

Yahoo sued over male discrimination

7 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Awhile back, Yahoo made me an offer. It was a good offer, so I asked about project details, nodded and smiled as this person talked about their strategy, then said "no thanks", and shorted the fuck out of their stock.

What is asktrp's opinion on masturbation as a tool to calm oneself or suppress libido?

7 upvotes · 27 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Moderation.

It is bad to let the fire burn so low that you are unmotivated. It is bad to let it burn so high that you come off as thirsty or desperate.

The wildly distorted truth behind the broscience about "masturbation lowers testosterone" is that, about seven days after your most recent ejaculation, testosterone levels do rise somewhat. But that's any ejaculation, not just masturbation. So the only way to benefit from this is to have sex less frequently than every seven days.

And if you're going to do that, what's the point in having high testosterone?

/r/NoFap are feminist dupes. Why? Because the whole thing is based on "Your Brain on Porn"... which is a body of work invented by a married couple, two neuroscientists with heavy feminist sympathies. Ten minutes with google would be adequate to find just some of the craziness they have come out with. (Certain sexual positions being "oppressive", etc.)

Masturbation isn't bad for you, except insofar as too much of anything is bad for you. The dose determines the poison.

UK Police now requiring men to inform them BEFORE having sex or face jailtime. Thoughts?

7 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't think even any BPers are going to try to defend this one, except possibly the crazies like PetticoatRuled, or ThalesToAristotle.

How do I quit my addiction to Tinder?

7 upvotes · 19 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

I've been participating in NoFap for almost a month

There's your problem.

How does not wanting to date a rape victim make someone an asshole?

7 upvotes · 17 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Let's just make one thing clear. These people don't give a fuck about the actual experience of rape victims.

If they did, they would also care about rape when brown people did it, and they would also care about the victims of other types of traumatic violent crime.

They do neither.

Because rape, to them, isn't a thing. It's an idea. An Emanuel Goldstein they can throw up on the screen when it's time for the Fifteen Minutes of Hate. An abstract concept they can use to ideologically bludgeon the people least likely to rape... middle to upper class white men living in first-world countries.

That's why SJWs don't care about brown people committing rape... not because they are afraid of brown men (they are too sheltered to fear anyone), and not because they wish to appear culturally sensitive, but because brown men, especially refugees, don't really have any power to take away.

Crying about rape is simply a power grab for the ideological left, used to intimidate and weaken men who would otherwise have the most power.

They are not about to start admitting that the men with the most power are the least likely to commit rape, and marginalized people are the most likely to do so. They cannot admit this, because it would remove the usefulness of their ideological weapon.

So answer no questions about rape until and unless someone can convince you to your satisfaction that they are talking about actual rape, the extremely rare violent crime, not "rape" the sociopolitical strawman.

Chat with a flaky 9.. Help me analyze it?

7 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Her: "What's up with these delays?" (did I hurt her ego?)

Me (taking the stoic route): "Just living my life.."

Good. Vague is good.

Her: "I guess taking a moment to answer is too hard."

Me: "It is when I get unclear vibes"

Bad. Defensive is bad.

Better:

Me: Yep. GTG. Ninjas.

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

7 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So was there a point in human language development when one day the absence of a "yes" wasn't rape, and the next day it was?

[CMV] RP is Anti-Feminist Activism

7 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What adversaries?

And... wrong question.

Feminism isn't something you stop. Declaring war on feminism is like declaring a "War on Terrorism". It's a tactic, not an adversary. You can't win because you haven't defined a win condition.

Terrorism is just a tactic:

1. Have explosives and want something.
2. Make demands.
3. Blow up civilians until it's cheaper to give in to your demands than stop you.
4. Profit.

Feminism is just a tactic:

1. Be female and want something.
2. Make demands.
3. Construct narratives framing the lack of whatever it is you want as victimization of women.
4. Beta males give you what you want in the hopes of winning approval.
5. Profit.

You don't wipe it out. You just learn the countermoves.

There aren't enough "blue pill" "progressive" (etc) women, thus you end up with disgruntled men and inceldom and "red pill" manosphere

7 upvotes · 24 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ah, the old trickle-down-sexonomics argument.

"Please, don't be chauvinists, guys! I know you aren't getting laid down because we're busying banging chauvinists, but that's just because there aren't enough sluts! If you just stay strong and don't judge us, then someday there will be sluts enough that you'll get laid by someone (just not me)!"

Question for All Pills: How would you feel about a government composed solely of women?

7 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

OOoooh! I love standup comedy!

How do you stop being annoyed by the perceptions of The Red Pill everywhere else on Reddit?

7 upvotes · 14 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

You're thinking:

upvotes - downvotes = approval

I'm thinking:

upvotes + downvotes = attention

CMV: AWALT is sexist

7 upvotes · 4 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

my concern is whether it's true, not whether it's sexist.

Aaaaaaaaaand you just took the red pill.

Equality: You're Doing it Wrong.

7 upvotes · 1 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

And at the end, the person you went through all that effort to save and protect decides to murder you.

Come to think of it, it's a perfect metaphor for being an SJW "ally".

Red Pillers, why are you trying to make it seem like we "misunderstand" responsible teenager theory?

7 upvotes · 30 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Fallacy of equivocation.

"Maturity" in the FMRI study means "connectivity development".

"Maturity" in the TRP article means "wisdom, responsibility, and accountability".

I want to break up with a girl, but I need her to know its her fault (shes really good at doing that spin it on me thing).

7 upvotes · 29 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

You don't need her to know anything.

That's what "breaking up" means. You no longer care what she thinks. She is dead to you. It doesn't matter how she reacts because that reaction no longer effects your life.

Does Redpill define greatness in negative terms too much

7 upvotes · 19 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, we absolutely do.

TRP defines greatness negatively for the same reason ER physicians define "health" negatively... most of the people who come through the door are bleeding, because if they weren't, they would come to the ER in the first place.

Once we fix the:

- Hanging out with losers
- Using porn and weed as an escape rather than fixing your life

- Ingratiating, supplicating social habits
- pussy worship/begging

... and so on, then, and only then can we talk to you about how to be great.

When you've just had your first heart attack at 25 because you drink 2 liters of soda a day, and are 100 lbs overweight, then your cardiologist is going to sound like a priest.

Once the wreckage is cleared, and the foundation is laid, we can build again. Although that building is always going to be less talked about, because there is less formula to greatness.

Every great man is great in his own individual way. It's losers who all look the same.

Unfulfilled by Sleeping Around?

7 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

A man never truly knows who he is until he has abundance.

Sex is necessary for a man to be fulfilled, but not sufficient. If you had spent the whole of your childhood one meal away from starvation, all your dreams and ambitions would have been of food.

And then later, as an adult with resources, you would have asked "I have enough to eat, why I am not completely happy?". Because you uncovered the other desires that your starvation was masking.

Now you must understand those desires in order to fulfill them. What is it you want NOW?

[serious] I'm a woman looking for a LTR, and I'm honestly wondering if a Red Pill guy is what I'm looking for.

7 upvotes · 4 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

Is a red pill guy what I'm looking for?

Perhaps. But are you what a red pill man is looking for? What is it that you have to offer?

Why can't RPer's do more to improve society as they see fit?

7 upvotes · 2 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

May I ask why don't the RPer's band together and protest against this and stand up for the traditional family?

Because we are not traditionalists.

- Leftoids tell men to act feminine, apologize for existing, and give all their money to the state, so the state can give it to women.
- Tradcons tell men to man up and give their money, time, labour, and care directly to women, because chivalry or something.
- TRP tells men to live for themselves, and give nothing to women without a fair price attached.

For a man, the only functional difference between an SJW and a tradcon is that the first wants to stab you in the face, and the second wants to stab you in the back while pretending to hug you.

"Fixing the system" is just more self-sacrifice. What we need is not more male self-sacrifice, but a whole lot less.

She loves me, he lost frame, I banged her after I saw someone go from beta to omega right before my eyes.

7 upvotes · 22 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There are certain kinds of "what would you do if?" questions where the only good answer is "don't get in that situation in the first place".

Never be in a relationship with a girl whose second choice you are.

If you suddenly find out that's the case, dump her on the spot.

Do you think financial abortion is a realistic solution?

7 upvotes · 13 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Then we can outlaw abortions, because women who don't want to be pregnant can just abstain from sex. Problem solved.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

7 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Fuck everything that wants something from me, but offers nothing to me.

You want my labour? Work for me.

You want my concern? Care about me.

You want me to fight for you? Fight for me.

You want me to empathize with you? Empathize with me.

Nothing is free in this life, son. You get what you give. Feminism can either learn that lesson, and start asking what responsibilities come with those rights it wants, or it can keep doing what it's doing, and alienating more men.

The only trick you have right now is to morally disapprove of people, and hint that you might stop if they do exactly what you say. But that stops working the moment people realize that your evil little cult is an evil little cult, and that being morally condemned by you is a badge of honour.

Vent: Party days are good, SMV is high and better than ever, but I deeply miss movie nights

7 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You want an LTR.

That's fine. It's good. Don't think that you have to spin plates. Just because a lot of men are in LTR because can't spin plates, doesn't mean you shouldn't have an LTR if you really want one.

Pick out a girl with her own place, or get your room a little better set up. If you can ONS easily, then you can have your pick of LTRs.

Infatuation is not the only form of Oneitis.

7 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I guess I'm just asking how this all fits into the Red Pill. Most responses will just be "lol ur beta", I'm not sure if I fit into this community anymore because I'm in a LTR.

I am in an LTR. /u/Archwinger is married.

The dynamics are basically the same. You just have to keep it in your fucking mind that the dynamics are basically the same. You don't ever get to stop running game. When you stop running game, that is when she starts drifting towards the gravitational field of Planet Thundercock.

You see, your girl doesn't love you the way your mom loved you. Your mother loved you because you are her son, and she's programmed to love you. You didn't have to do anything to get that love.

But that's how women love children, not how they love men. They love men for the way they experience those men, and the way those men make them feel. If you stop being attractive to her, she will stop loving you. If you stop doing the things that make you attractive to her, you will stop being attractive to her. And Chad is always there. He doesn't even have to be better than you. He just has to push the buttons.

Women are by nature, followers, because they follow their feelings, in sort of tropism which allows anyone who can influence what they feel to have a great deal of control over them. This means you can't just get the woman, put the woman on the shelf alongside your console videogames and your books and your bowling trophy, and go back to being who you were. Women require maintenance.

You must continue to push/pull, apply soft dread, recognize and pass shit tests, be outcome independent, have abundance mentality, lead and initiate, demonstrate high value, and so forth. Your task becomes easier because she has already accepted you, but it still is work that has to be done.

If you aren't gaming your girl, someone else will.

CMV it is impossible to conclude that any TRP tenant is wrong by misusing it.

7 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Find me a post by /u/Whisper ... telling RP'ers how much he hates women. I'll wait.

Examples abound, and you have seen them.

Ooooh, this should be good. Hold up, lemme get some popcorn.

This whole conversation is silly. TBP doesn't actually think TRP readers hate women. It doesn't even care if they do. It just wants to shut them up, and this accusation is one that they think will stick.

Frankly, as a problem, men hating women is so low ranking it isn't even worth talking about. What would a man who hated women do, anyway? Say unpleasant things to them? On the internet? Oh, my ears and whiskers, what a crisis!

It's just a form of control. Create a school of political orthodoxy, add some categories of thoughtcrime, call people heretics if they disagree, and you have a weapon to use against anyone who threatens your political agenda.

Well, I don't buy it. A person's moral worth consists of the sum of their actions, not of their thoughts. A racist, sexist transplant surgeon who saves lives is a morally better person than a "progressive" firebrand who is rude to everyone around her. "Misogynist", "racist", "homophobe", "sexist", are all stupid words made up to describe stupid, useless concepts that don't make a lick of difference. What's the word for a person who hates cats? What's the word for a person who can't stand left-handed people?

I don't care who hates women any more than I care who hates cheese, or who dyes their hair purple. It's just a political orthodoxy test administered by useless drama addicts to anyone they can gull into taking it.

CMV: There is no alternative to r/theredpill or PUA.

7 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

it looks like /u/whisper said that a feminist will call something misogynistic for being the thing that entices her to have sex (willingly...). We'll call it the apple or the snake rather than Eve feeling hunger.

Well put.

In general, people always look for causes behind behaviour they want to excuse, and stop looking for causes when they reach a behaviour they want to blame. Thus, if Eve eats the apple, the feminists don't wish to blame Eve, so they look past her behaviour at the things that influenced it, and blame the snake. But they don't look for causes for the snake's behaviour.

Sex is an act between at least two people. Thus, control over sex is always distributed between those people. And just how it is distributed depends upon the social environment.

Well, one of the long term unacknowledged goals of feminism has been to move as much of the control over sex as possible to the woman, and as much responsibility for sex as possible to the man.

The technique by which it does this is to focus, in isolation, on an area where a man, rather than a woman, has power over sex, then call it misogyny and oppression. Also, it focuses in isolation on an area where the woman, not the man, bears responsibility for sex or its consequences, then calls it, again, oppression and misogyny. Creating the impression of "woman as puppet", as a thing with no agency, buffeted this way and that by external forces, is simply a side effect of this technique.

The Red Pill was created as a male response to this. Men were becoming unhappy because they had gone from having about 50% control over sex to near zero. This materially worsened their sex lives even for the top 10% most attractive men who were getting the vast majority of sex. So a group of about 20 men (/u/pk_atheist, /u/redpillschool, /u/illimitableman, /u/humansockpuppet, me, and so forth) got together, studied PUA material, tried stuff, exchanged ideas, and started coming up with models of human mating behaviour and testing them in the field.

And it worked.

Some men began to take back some control over the sexual act, over when, where, how, and what.

This was in direct opposition to the feminist goal above. Yes, it was creating sexier men, but it was creating those sexy men for women in general, not feminists. Feminists didn't have sexual access to those men, because those men had a choice about who they wanted to sleep with. It wasn't "fat , bitchy feminist or celibacy" anymore. It was "which girl do I want to spend my time and effort on?"

Since feminists are, on average, less sexually attractive than female non-feminists, a tradeoff that increases male control over sex, but also increases male sexual attractiveness does absolutely nothing for them. In fact, it hurts them, because, the majority of them being kind of ugly, they get the best sexual satisfaction not by being enticing, but by inducing scarcity.

This is why feminists don't like TRP. It has absolutely nothing to do with the way we talk about women. MGTOW communities and incels say the same stuff about women we do. And more vehemently. Difference is, MGTOW and incels have little to no power over sex, so they are not a threat to feminists. Thus, they do not appear on feminist radar.

We, however, are imbuing men with power over sex by making them more attractive. This is bad for feminists, and good for women in general. In fact, the more non- or anti-feminist a woman is, the less she wants power over sex, and the more she would rather have a sexually attractive man instead.

Thus, the less feminist a woman is, the more the existence of TRP benefits her. And the more feminist she is, the more it hurts her.

This is why feminists call TRP "misogynist". Not because it hurts women, but because it hurts them. And that's why they refuse to suggest an alternative that works. Because any alternative that worked would hurt them just as much, merely by working.

How to respond to this text from ex

7 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

"Ex" == "stranger whose name you know".

You don't know her. She is not part of your life. You are not involved or connected in any way. There are no bridges to burn.

What are some fun things/experiences I can do with my LTR?

7 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

You are not a juggler or a clown.

It is not your job to entertain her. If you focus on trying to keep her interested, you are telling yourself that you are worth less than her.

Don't entertain her. Entertain yourself. Do the things you want to do. And let her come along if she wants.

If there's something she wants to do, she can suggest it.

Criticisms of the side-bar texts from educated Bluepillers. Exhibit A: Rational Male

7 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why exactly do you think women (or anybody) have a duty towards society ?

Duties are social contracts. Women have precisely the degree of duty to society that it has to them.

What type of women do Redpill tactics work on?

7 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

$2+2 = 5$

$4 = 5$

$4 - 3 = 5 - 3$

$1 = 2$

Construct the set that contains me and the Pope.

It has 2 elements.

$2 = 1$

It has one element.

I am the Pope, QED.

Point is, literally anything can be derived from a contradiction. All false universes are equivalent.

Which means anything derived from an undischarged premise is useless.

Q4BP: Sympathy for Sluts and Ugly Girls?

7 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You said:

It also took them having to go for perhaps different types of guys than the ones they were used to, but they didn't want to do that, so they kept spreading their legs and hoping this time it would work.

... which was exactly correct.

The phrase I used may help women to understand why this doesn't work.

Just as kindness creates neither the desire for sex, nor the obligation of sex, in women, so does sex create neither the desire for intimacy, nor the obligation for intimacy, in men.

Women want sex with attractive men, and no amount of kindness can be substituted for attractiveness. Men want intimacy with warm and caring women, and no amount of sexual pleasure can be substituted for caring and warmth.

Are red pillers deluded to think that born betas can raise their SMV enough to have lots of casual sex with reasonably good looking women?

7 upvotes · 11 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everyone who is alive is descended from a long line of men who successfully reproduced.

Most "betas" are not genetic failures who should hope to overcome their shortcomings, but genetic successes who have been programmed to fail with bad social conditioning and toxic philosophies.

TRP is about deprogramming these.

Study showing same behaviour more likely to be seen as psychologically abusive if done by a man than if done by a woman. Implications? Interpretations?

7 upvotes · 25 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Equality is a goal but it hasn't been achieved yet.

The problem with statements like this is not just that equality is impossible (given that men and women are vastly and fundamentally different), but that it is ill-defined, impossibly vague.

What does "equality" mean?

Not vaguely. Precisely. What does it look like? How do we know when we have arrived?

Already men's lives have been made so unhappy that they have been forced to harness their anger and stop caring what women think. And women still think we haven't gotten there yet. Your "equality" has started a war. And it's only going to get worse. Because women are just going to keep trying to paint men as evil for daring to do something different, and men do not have the option of backing down... because they had to do something, and women didn't have any idea what was going on, and wouldn't sit still to hear it.

It's not just TRP and TBP. We are symptoms of larger cultural forces at work. Men who have never heard of TRP, and never will, are getting fed up in their own way.

The last wedding I was at, all the young bachelors hid, literally hid at the back of the crowd, when it was time for the garter toss. They knew it was just a meaningless superstition. But they didn't want it. They didn't want to get married. And they didn't want to pretend.

Men are fed up. And saying "we haven't achieved equality yet" isn't good enough, because things aren't getting better. They are getting worse. Because the plan isn't good enough. It doesn't work. And you don't have to agree with me about what would work to see that, because twenty or thirty years ago, this conversation, this entire subreddit, would have been laughable.

I'm old enough to have seen the change. Things aren't getting better, they are getting worse.

Interesting study finds more skilled male gamers are more positive towards women, less skilled male gamers are more negative towards women

7 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you actually know what "inverting a syllogism" means?

How do I be direct without sounding forceful

7 upvotes · 20 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

That worry is your main enemy.

Your problem isn't the danger of being too pushy, it's the danger of not being pushy enough. Your moment of satori will come when you do something that you think is far beyond the pale, something that makes think you sound like a horrible asshole... and she melts like butter.

This is the future you chose male feminists - stay at home dad is cuckold and terms it as enlightenment.

7 upvotes · 17 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks like you just discovered the TRP subreddit, and are writing a number of comments devoted to disagreeing with much of the basic theory.

Problem is, you're not supporting those disagreements with anything other than "because I said so". We've been field testing this stuff for years.

If you have evidence to share, share it. Otherwise, vent your wounded feelings elsewhere.

So do male feminists actually get much sex out of it?

7 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's probably more accurate to say, "nonthreatening male" - it's also more inline with the rest of your point.

I bring this up because femininity is not simply the absence of masculinity. These guys (like the one in the pic you posted) aren't masculine, that's certainly true, but that doesn't make them feminine. It makes them "safe"

"Safe males" (feminist or not) get social access. They get to be best buddies. But being safe/asexual/nonthreatening isn't attractive, so they're not getting sex.

Because "safe" men aren't safe. Women instinctively know that a man who can't stand up to her can't stand up for her.

Concrete Steps to Ending the Male Gender Role

7 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Only one step is needed.

If women stop lusting after manly men, and start desiring effeminate men, everything else will take care of itself.

How would you fix female privilege coming from extensive white knighting?

7 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Fuck equality.

The equality ship sailed decades ago. I'm not interested in equality. I'm interested in women doing what the fuck the patriarchy tells them. They had their shot at an egalitarian society, and they blew it.

Now I'm gonna do it my way.

I will be 24 years old this week and I have lower testosterone than an average 85 year old with type 2 diabetes. Doctors claim 'normal'...

7 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

You have an illness. Doctors are denying the medicine you need, because you are male.

Go buy the medicine you need on the black market.

Do Red Pillers prefer girls who have had less sexual partners because they're afraid they won't be able to satisfy girls who have had more?

7 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are objects.

Revenge Porn laws only serve to protect women from the consequences of their bad decisions, reminding us once again that women have no agency and should be treated like children.

7 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Having sex and creating kids falls under biological repercussions which are often times unavoidable.

Not in this culture. Women have the inalienable right to choose, remember?

Therefore, if she takes my sperm, and makes a child, she chose to do so.

Revenge Porn laws only serve to protect women from the consequences of their bad decisions, reminding us once again that women have no agency and should be treated like children.

7 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And when you consent to having a picture taken, you consent to the possibility, no matter how small, that it winds up on the internet.

Revenge Porn laws only serve to protect women from the consequences of their bad decisions, reminding us once again that women have no agency and should be treated like children.

7 upvotes · 22 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't consent to having a child. Getting pregnant with my sperm is therefore a crime.

It's not anger. It's not hate. It's pain.

7 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Duh. I told you.

They are hardwired to be compassionate to women and young children, but not to men.

This is fine, it's part of the species. Even redpillers are wired this way. But these people have not made the mental effort necessary to see and become aware of their hardwiring. Therefore, they come up with a high-level rationalization for it instead (We call this "the Hamster".)

Here's how it works.

They look at a woman suffering, and they feel compassion, because she is a woman. They therefore think this is a serious problem because they feel pity, but they believe they feel pity because it's a serious problem.

They look at a man suffering, and feel no compassion, because he is a man. They therefore think this is a trivial problem because they feel no pity, but they believe they feel no pity because it's a trivial problem.

These are people who are literally, actually more worried about "street harrassment" than homeless veterans. Not because they are specially bad people, but because they lack the rare gift of turning the brain's perception on the brain itself, which would allow them to see this built-in bias.

That's why we cannot have this conversation in any productive fashion. That's why PPD is useless. Because only people who with the brainpower to perform this mental trick are qualified to have the discussion. Anything anyone else says is just the squeaking of an unvoiled hamster wheel. You can't teach them this stuff, you can't make them aware of it, because they are without the capacity for objectivity and introspection.

If you try to teach a pig to sing, you only waste your time and annoy the pig.

Suicidal lonely guy is frustrated by women, reaches out for help. R/AskMen decides the REAL problem is that he's a shitlord misogynist!

7 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

One problem is that he generally shows disrespect around the house. This I am addressing step by step by building in minor consequences. I used to attribute the mistakes to stress or other things. Now I've concluded they are intentional disrespect, and furthermore, school is about over for this year so I don't have to worry about stress at home from dealing with this bleeding over into problems at school.

Do you mean disrespect, or insubordination? Because these are two different things with two different causes.

In other words, is he violating the social mores for how one human is expected to treat another, or the social mores for how a child is supposed to treat a parent?

There are other family members doing things too, but I don't want to be more specific here.

You may PM me if you like. (Might take a little while to respond, have a backlog.)

Should bystanders try to interfere and stop what they believe to be an ongoing sexual assault or rape?

7 upvotes · 8 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ayn Rand (having drawn her loathing for collectivist systems from her experiences in the Soviet Union), obliquely references this sort of legal structure in Anthem, when International 4-8818 objects to Equality 7-2521's exploration of an ancient ruin by saying that there is no law permitting it.

In government systems based systems based on libertarian/free market/minimal state ideas, the law is a blacklist (a list of forbidden actions). As systems become more collectivist, the law moves towards becoming a whitelist (a list of permitted actions, where all others are forbidden), by way of the inclusion of legal mandates (actions that must be taken), which gradually eclipse the blacklist in importance.

For example, the obligation to not have sex with someone who is clearly and sincerely resisting (negative obligation, blacklist) becomes the obligation to stop sex if someone's consent is in doubt (positive obligation), and thence to the legality of sex only when an official "consent procedure" is followed (whitelist).

Whitelist law systems are colloquially known as "totalitarian" systems. In these systems, the state has total control of all aspects of life, and individuals are only permitted to do that which the state has sanctioned.

Another example of this can be seen when leftists argue that private ownership of firearms has "no legitimate purpose". In other words, the state has no interest in permitting it.

Blue Pill refuses to recognize the monster they created.

7 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Next, TRP. Why, oh why, did this blight on the internet appear? It's because our president is a feminist, right? Because the patriarchy is feeling pushed into a corner, huh?

Try again. TRP exists as a reaction to a toxic culture created by Tumblr feminists, aforementioned social justice warriors, and legitimate man haters who allowed their crazy ideas to go viral in recent years. I saw TRP coming back in 2010 when the "ironic" hashtags like #KillAllMen started being used. I knew things were going to get ugly, and they did get ugly.

I disagree.

SJWs aren't the cause of TRP. Instead, they are two effects that share the same cause. The seeds of TRP were sown back in the end of the last century, not the beginning of this one.

You are correct that TRP is a response to our society's contempt for men and masculinity, but that didn't start with SJWs and tumblr feminists, and they are not the primary driving force behind it. They are simply attention-whoring millennials cashing in on damage wrought by deeper and more insidious forces.

The real problem isn't these clowns on Tumblr posting "kill all men". It's "mainstream" feminists, and people who don't even consider themselves feminist, but have still been infected with their attitudes. Men don't really care about some clowns on the internet. That's just outrage porn. Men care that they grew up without their fathers because "mainstream" feminists championed no-fault divorce, that they can't have wives and children who love and respect them, because feminists tore apart social support for the nuclear family brick by brick, that they can't have loyal girlfriends because feminists championed absolute and unlimited sexual freedom for women, regardless of the cost to anyone else.

Men are turning away, not because someone said something stupid, but because they are staring into the abyss that has replaced their dreams. By the mid-nineties if not earlier, Tumblr feminists and SJWs and PUAs and MRAs and TRP had all become inevitable.

You are right that the tree is rotting, and that TRP exists as a response to that. But you see only the rot on the bark at the surface. It is the roots and heartwood you need to worry about.

Why ARE so many women teachers seducing boy pupils? All child abuse has to be viewed in the same way and treated as a crime even if it's committed by a pretty 24-year-old female teacher.

7 upvotes · 4 June 2015 · /r/MensRights

The problem is not that our society thinks that teenage boys are often enthusiastic participants in sex with older people.

That's absolutely true.

The problem is that it thinks teenage girls never are.

Thus, it displays nuanced thinking when dealing with the first situation, and conducts legally-sanctioned lynching when confronted with the second.

Women abuse the fact that divorce laws benefit them.

7 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In aggregate, women's net worth stays around the same after divorce. Men's drops sharply.

Women abuse the fact that divorce laws benefit them.

7 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because family courts like to throw them out.

CMV: Trans People Legitimize Gender Essentialism

7 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They are miserable because some of the mechanisms that are supposed to make people into either a healthy, masculine man, or a healthy, feminine woman... didn't work properly.

Often they think that changing their body through hormones, etc., will help. Usually they come to this conclusion out desperation and wishful thinking. Research shows it not to be so.

What people call "transsexualism" (trans implying moving from one to the other), I think of as "intersexualism" (implying an embryo got some developmental bits from the program for building one sex, and some from the program for building the other).

Whether this causes problems or not depends on what bits they get.

I've known plenty of women who got female bodies, all the bits in their brain that made them think of themselves as female, all the bits that told them to mate with males according to this set of instincts... BUT they also got the male bits with a program for mating with women. What you've got there is a perfectly happy "bisexual".

But when other bits get twisted, things are worse.

RPW are you comfortable discussing sex and sexuality? BPW are you?

7 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

as i understand it (OP is free to correct me), this thread was just meant to be a safe space to discuss things openly Arrogant and presumptuous again.

A "safe space" implies safe from. Safe from who? These women's husbands and partners? You know, the people they normally talk about their sex lives with?

Or it is "safe" from men in general, strange men? As opposed to strange women, whom they are apparently supposed to trust and open to automatically and immediately, because vagina. This is how feminism works... it attempts to drive a wedge in between men and women not only pretending all men are the enemy, but by pretending all women are sisters.

Trust doesn't operate that way.

Demands for unearned intimacy are OP's choice of weapons to use in this case on RPW to attempt to establish psychological dominance. If any are so foolish as to reveal information, she (he?) can probe for insecurities and vulnerabilities in the guise of attempting to "help", or "understand".

Strangers who want you to bare your soul are not your friends. Those who truly wish to establish trust will lead by making themselves vulnerable first.

How do guys in their 30s who are in the USA meet attractive/desirable women?

7 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/askTRP

By meeting women in their 20s.

Any desirable woman in her 30s is going to be married or in an LTR. If other men didn't want her, you shouldn't either.

Is AWALT totally useless?

7 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They hate a lot of things. And a lot of people.

Do you believe women are less valuable than men?

7 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What is the unit of the value you are asking about? Dollars?

If so, how would I go about measuring the value of a person? By selling them, perhaps?

If you want more ammunition, you're going to have to dig a little deeper.

Women's reality is defined by their emotional state: Emma Sulkowicz carries her mattress to graduation

7 upvotes · 20 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Isn't it just too good to be true that this girl's name is "Sulkowicz"?

Man got raped, after this his girlfriend not attracted to him anymore, he doesn't go to police or counseling, says he's fine, but he is not. Is it embarrassing for men to seek help? Why?

7 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

If your girlfriend can't support you after you've been raped, then she isn't worth being your girlfriend.

Attraction cannot be negotiated.

Eating 101: Fork use for Dummies

7 upvotes · 7 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

okay so it has a mental difference, aka insulin makes you want to eat more, but your body still stores 2,000 cals of carbs the same way no matter where it comes from right?

Wrong.

"Calorie" is actually a "kilocalorie" which is a unit of energy. What you are trying to reduce is mass of adipose (fatty) tissue. Mass is measured in kilograms, which, needless to say, is not a unit of energy.

People get confused about this because adipose mass has a pretty standard energy density, in kcal/kg. That means the five pounds of fat contains the same amount of energy as five different pounds of fat. And that if you burn X amount of calories from stored fat, you remove Y amount of fat mass, every time.

But this equivalence only works for losing fat, not for gaining it.

Why? Because the form in which the energy is taken in determines how the body stores in fat, burns in activity, burns in the absorption process itself, or never absorbs at all.

Let me give a retarded example so it's easy to understand.

Let's suppose you swallow a bunch of fully charged 9 volt batteries. They contain a certain amount of energy. We could convert that amount into "calories", and according to calorie-counter logic, tell you how much fat you should gain from the batteries, or how many miles you will have to run to burn the batteries off. But any idiot can tell you these actual numbers are zero, and zero, because you can't absorb energy from batteries. Your body doesn't work like that.

2000 calories' worth of ice cream vs. 2000 of potatoes vs 2000 of steak vs 2000 of celery are all totally different. And to predict what each one will do, you have to understand not only exactly what chemicals are in each, but what bodies do with them in general, and what state your body specifically is in.

Yes, it is impossible to not lose weight if you calorie restrict. The laws of thermodynamics apply to humans just like any other system.

But calorie restricting makes you lose energy, not fat specifically. When you slash the body's overall energy budget, it has to make cuts. Muscle is more energy-expensive than fat, and while your body will not rid you of it altogether, it will certainly make cuts in both areas. Which means that if you have worked hard to put on extra muscle mass, calorie restricted diets will endanger that hard-won progress.

The biggest misconception about TRP that I see on here is that it's aggressive rather than defensive.

7 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What about them?

The Five Stages of Red Pill, and how to read r/TRP textposts

7 upvotes · 22 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is also relevant to responding to TRP, not just reading it.

Posts don't appear out of the void. Behind each post is a man choosing (very deliberately) to share a part of himself with this community. He trusts us with his emotions and is willing to entertain feedback. That means you may be able to help him by:

Diagnosing his stage - What can you deduce about his thought process from the content of the post and his subcommunications (language, etc.)?

Diagnosing his needs - Does he just need a place to vent and receive sympathy, or is he ready to move to the next stage?

Determining what you can offer - Can you reaffirm that his emotions are valid to give him support (if necessary)? Do you have experience or insight that can help him develop as a person?

TRP is not just a place to learn. It's also a place to help.

♂

TRP exists because masculinity is devalued in our culture. Women have, deliberately or not, gotten us to turn on each other crab-bucket style. TRP is us pulling together to help each other survive.

The Alpha Female? Dating a girl who considers herself an "alpha female"

7 upvotes · 7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What an astonishing collection of horseshit. Someone please re-flair this one to "blue pill example".

There's no such thing as an "alpha female". That's just some shit bitchy or entitled women invent so they can feel like they're awesome leaders, too.

But to be a leader, you have to take risks, live with criticism, and take responsibility not just for yourself but for others.

Women don't do that shit. When the shit hits the fan, they find a man to hide behind... because that's, genetically, what they are supposed to do. Women are the gene pool's safe investment. A woman who takes the kind of risks a leader takes is a defective woman.

Women like this one kid themselves they're movers and shakers, but at their best, they are merely married to them. Usually, they just get to hang out with them because they take off their clothes for money.

Pretending you're an alpha because you're sleeping with one is like pretending you're a senator because you serve them breakfast.

Replacing "Cis/het/white/male" with "Jew" in SJW posts

7 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

You don't understand what the fallacy of composition is, do you?

The Origins of Circumcision?

7 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Forefather of modern circumcision. His goal was to suppress sexual desire in men.

The Origins of Circumcision?

7 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Male and female circumcision isn't really comparable as female circumcision is done to suppress sexual desire in women.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/John_Harvey_Kellogg

Move over Saudi Arabia, apparently Canada is more oppressive than you. From the front page of the most popular newspaper in Vancouver.

7 upvotes · 18 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Societies start out pragmatic, and they work hard and become wealthier until most men are able to set down their guns and shovels and start indulging the whims of their women.

This then destroys the prosperity and stability of the society, a total or partial collapse occurs, and the men must pick up their guns and shovels again.

"Taking the red pill" means to understand that society is sexist but deciding to exploit that instead of changing it.

7 upvotes · 3 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Another way to put it would be "don't try to stop an avalanche with your face".

Feminism is the dominant paradigm. Feminists may not agree with this because they think they have not gone far enough, that their dominance isn't total enough, but it is feminism that is driving change.

So why cannot men do the same thing?

Because of the inherent differences between women and men.

You see, feminism is an inherently submissive philosophy. Its basic modus for change is to construe something as unfair, and appeal to the sympathy of those with the power to make changes. It depends upon the "patriarchy" even as it claims to wish to dismantle it.

Doubt me?

- Well, why do feminists want to force men to hire more women, instead of motivating women to start their own companies and hiring women?
- Why do feminists want to "teach men not to rape", instead of teaching women how to protect themselves from rapists?
- Why do feminists want Title IX instead of building their own institutions?
- Why do they want VAWA instead of across-the-board enforcement of preexisting laws against assault and such?

I could go on for some time. Point is, the basic feminist power tactic is the appeal to sympathy.

That works very well for women. It does not work for men. This is not due to feminism itself, or culture in any form. It is inherent within the human genome. Humans, both male and female, come pre-wired to see women as inherently valuable, and men as having only the value they achieve.

Men can't do what women did, because it won't work for them.

Fortunately for men, they still have power that they aren't using. That power is the power inherent in the fact the men, not women, create and sustain civilization. Everything from roads to cellphones to electric power to food to police to shoe leather is provided by men.

Men cannot be empowered by appeals for fairness. But they can go on strike.

That's what Redpillers are. We are men on strike. We work only for our own benefit. We give women neither marriage, nor children, nor money.

CMV: The Red Pill's views on feminism is outdated.

7 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A lot of the feminist views expressed through the mouths of RP seem to be rooted in readings that were popular in second-wave feminism.

The word "seems" means "looks to me".

Their criticisms of radfems and these 30+ year-old writings are shared by mainstream modern feminist literature.

Most of these guys are less than forty years old. Do you perhaps think that they were consuming feminist literature at the age of six, and are now responding to it after 30 years of pondering?

Arguably many feminists today want to eliminate gender roles and stereotypes that TRP men feel disadvantage them.

Wow, we're pretty far down the rabbit hole, here, Alice.

Feminists do like to claim that their eventual victory will solve men's problems by "eliminating roles and stereotypes", but they always seem to want to decide which ones are harmful to us. And I have yet to meet any man who doesn't self-identify as a feminist who think that these stereotypes are our real problem.

Women don't get to decide what men's problems are. We will decide what our problems are.

Women don't get to decide how our problems should be fixed. We will decide how our problems should be fixed.

Women are learning TRP - and monetizing it. Also - suggestion to introduce TRP. Its a woman saying it.

7 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you find some sort of parrot fish, you can teach it to recite fisherman's terminology. But why wouldn't you just learn from the fisherman instead?

Fortunately, if you look at her other videos, it's mostly grooming tips for women. Which she does seem to be at least somewhat qualified to talk about.

Why PPD, while sometimes diverting, is ultimately useless.

7 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I suppose that really depends what you think is important.

I tend to think that the male sex drive is one of the fundamental forces that shapes the economy. Men do what they believe will get them mating privileges, and this leads to things like, say, the Roman Empire.

One tenet of /r/theredpill is the pursuit of sexual reward motivates men to do great achieve great things which advanced civilization to its current state. Do you believe women can advance civilizatio

7 upvotes · 11 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No. Because women don't need to. Women are virtually guaranteed mating success. (80% of history's women had surviving descendents, compared to 40% of men.)

This why women don't do math, science, engineering, so forth. Not because they can't. But because they don't need to. Women don't advance civilization, because the rewards men get for advancing civilization, women already have for being women.

Think about it this way. Remember some of your university maths classes? What if someone came up to you in the middle of a differential equations exam, and told you that you could set it down, walk away, never take this test or another like it again, in fact, that someone else would pay your way through life, that you could have a job or not and no one would give you shit either way, and all you had to do was find a significant other that you liked, and have a bunch of kids you wanted anyway?

How many guys would have stayed in that room, if they were told that and believed it?

Women aren't just told that. They know it in every fiber of their being.

It is necessity, not the desire for self-esteem, that drives great accomplishment.

/u/whisper on why debate is pointless

7 upvotes · 7 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

how do RPer's reconcile non-prescriptive with AWALT?

This question made me just a little sad, because I realized you didn't really get anything I said.

Who is the intended audience for AWALT? Who is this admonition for?

It's for men, that's who. It's a reminder not to trust, not to succumb to the desire to believe that this woman, this one right here that we've met and grown to love, can be relied upon to deal straightforwardly and honorably with us. It is a reminder that women do not feel a sense of responsibility towards men, that they have been raised in a leftist culture that constantly assures them that men are the privileged caste, and that nothing they can do to a man can ever harm him through his armor of privilege, that anything she takes from him, or any advantage she takes of him is simply reparations upon some sort of debt that all men owe to all women.

She has been trained from childhood in rationalizing anything she wants, because is her home society's favorite sport, and it has even been practiced on her behalf a good bit of the time, too.

AWALT is a reminder to all men that women not only can turn on them at any moment, they have been incentivized to do so.

AWALT means "you would be well advised to regard any woman around you as like that, because it's common, so common as to be arguably universal, and you never see it until it's already happening".

It is tactical advice to men who want a certain result. It says "this is where the rocks are, steer your ship clear of them".

It is not morally prescriptive... there is no moral obligation not to trust women. Not trusting women is simply a recipe for survival, which, like any tactical advice, is descriptive in nature.

I've Been Rejected 335 Times.

7 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

too much ass-kissing can turn you into Prince Joffrey; too much getting your ass kicked can turn you into Samwell Tarly.

♂

Precisely. Development occurs at the zone when you have effective feedback. All positive teaches you nothing. All negative teaches you to give up. A test that everyone passes is useless, and so is a test that everyone fails.

This is why young American men are rubbish at pickup. Because American women are one of the hardest tests out there ... selfish, spoiled, entitled. And they are the exam at the third week of a course that isn't even too basic, but actually dead wrong.

American men can't learn from practicing on American women because 100% failure teaches nothing. They have to have the advanced course, which no one will offer them because it is "misogynistic".

BP/Feminists: Feminist attitudes towards foreign women; issues of race/class

7 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In my experience, a feminist is someone who

- Thinks that raising children is beneath women's dignity, so they should have "careers" and pay some other woman to do this undignified task.
- Thinks that we need more women in science and engineering, but she has personally chosen to major in women's studies because we need people to point out how we need more women in science and engineering.
- Thinks that sexism and rampant misogyny are keeping women out of science and engineering, but she personally majored in women's studies because she hated math classes.
- Thinks that women deserve recognition and respect as full and equal partners in economic growth and technological advancement, but the lack of this is why she doesn't have a job right now.
- Thinks that women should never have to be financially dependent on a man, but she's on public assistance right now, and living rent-free with her boyfriend, because it's hard to find that first job with her new women's studies degree.

In other words, feminists talk their values. They do not live their values.

RSD Julien gets schooled by CNN

7 upvotes · 17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Alpha and beta are something you do, not something you are.

This means we can think of beta-ing out as being somewhat akin to falling off of a horse. Which means your statement can be understood in terms of the statement: "Even the best riders can fall off of a horse".

...which is absolutely true.

You practice horse-riding to be less likely to fall, but you still have to pay attention, not take things for granted, and not stop applying what you know.

Alpha and beta live in all of us. We have to cultivate good habits and always live with courage, not just tell ourselves we "are alpha" because have social status, and can talk girls into bed.

Are feminists just angry because they hate themselves?

7 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Absolutely true.

However, this doesn't mean that feminists are just faking anger. They actually are angry. Why?

Because hamster.

If being angry gets them shinies, then being angry is good. If being angry is good, then they must have legitimate cause for anger. If their anger has a legitimate cause, then women everywhere must be oppressed.

They genuinely believe that there is a "rape culture", and that the risk of rape is a real, statistically significant thing for the average woman. They genuinely believe that catcalling, and not having people take your sociology degree seriously, is one of the worst things that happens to anyone in this society.

We must remember that women's reality is defined and delimited by the opinions and actions of other people. They don't have to deal with many aspects of physical reality, and its immunity to persuasion, because men do that for them, and insulate them from it.

To many women, life is like a child's game of make-believe. Truth is whatever you can convince other people of.

Therefore, the best way to cure women of feminist-induced nonsense is not to show her that it isn't true, but to convince her that no one else believes it.

Dumpster impresses all with her ability to "have relationships"

7 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman who is successful in relationships hasn't had a lot of them over 9 years. That's failure.

Success is having one that has lasted nine years and is still going.

Fertility math? Most women flunk, survey finds

7 upvotes · 17 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hamster vs Reality.

Round one! FIGHT!

What profession has the highest status?

7 upvotes · 8 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Status is situational.

A surgeon is a god when he's in the OR, and a loser in the nightclub.

A software developer for a video game company is a god on the internet, and a loser on the basketball court.

And so on.

Black lesbian feminist calls out mainstream feminism on it's selfish agenda

7 upvotes · 14 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"What does it mean to me, a permanently angry brown dyke, when mainstream feminism fights for the right to be 'sexy' and unthreatening to men and urges us to quell our fury? It persuades us to be passive, pale dolls and to dress our struggle for liberation in quiet positivity, suspenders and sex tips. Black women, such as myself, don't have the luxury of the pacifism and politeness found in today's white feminism. We must use violence, both physically and in the vehemence of our words, because we are more desperate."

What the fuck is this crap doing on my TRP?

All this is is a black woman calling out the white women for being too civilized and not hating men enough.

It's just as selfish, solipsistic, and self-centered as white feminism, just with a different self and a different center.

I am in a feminist class in college and these are from Tough Guise 2, a film by Jonathan Katz.

7 upvotes · 30 May 2014 · /r/MensRights

1. Believe that only men commit violence.
2. Arrest, try, and convict mostly men for violence.
3. Collect violence statistics from criminal justice system.
4. Confirm own bias.
5. ?????
6. Profit.

Don't touch a woman? The unintended consequences of Feminism and tech culture.

7 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Did you need someone to help you like a fish needs a bicycle, dear?

Maybe some other strong, independent woman will help you out.

Stunning Hipocrisy from Facebook Feminist. 74% of women were saved on the Titanic, 20% of men were.

7 upvotes · 7 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Yes, it must have been so hard to be a rich pretty white woman.

Surprise, Surprise... MEN Convicted of Domestic Violence Lose Right to Posses Firearms.

7 upvotes · 27 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

To expand on it a little, much of the Constitution and Bill of Rights can be understood in the context of multiple layers of protection against the police being used to institute tyranny.

The first layer is representative government. Laws cannot be passed except by approval of those chosen by the popular vote.

The second layer is the Bill of Rights. There are certain personal liberties the laws are not allowed to infringe.

If that fails, the third layer is jury trial. Even if bad laws get passed, you can't be punished for breaking them unless a randomly selected group of your neighbours think you should be.

If that fails, the fourth layer is an armed population. The police cannot drag you away in the night unless your neighbours let them, because the whole community is armed.

Thus, the second amendment is not a single, historical, less important right. It's not about hunting or self-defence or even dignity and freedom. It's about having rights at all. It's the foundation of the whole business. The whole design of American government relies on the fact that we are all supposed to have guns in our houses.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

7 upvotes · 26 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We probably had no outright reason to ban soulcake

What?

Are you serious? The author of such hits as:

"Is the Redpills anti-democratic streak defensible?"

Does TRP believe that straight men choose heterosexuality because they are too ugly to be gay?

Perhaps more to the point, a so-called self-help group that hangs around talking about killing judges is worthless at best.

Will the RedPill revolution be violent?

Can women empathize? An anecdote of how TRP misuses anecdotes.

... the master of the smear campaign and the leading question?

In any reasonably neutral debate sub, soulcakeduck would have been shown the door.

Girl said blatantly that if I wanted to date her I had to pay for everything. Otherwise we are through.

7 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/askTRP

It's the same as saying women aren't a machine that you put niceness into and get out sex.

I like to put it like this:

- Women aren't vending machines that you insert kindness coins into and get sex out.
- And men aren't slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the commitment jackpot.

Or, in this case, money.

Whenever a woman tries to use sex to extract money from me, I help myself resist by using this little mental analysis:

- Figure out much money she expects me to spend on her per month. Call this A.
- Figure out how much time she expects me to spend with her doing things other than having sex.
- Multiply this by my hour rate of pay when I work, and call the result B.
- Figure out how many sex acts this results in, and call the count C.
- Add A and B, and divide the result by C. This gives her price per sex act. I call this the Prostitute Equivalent Rate, or PER.
- Now, once you know her PER, go looking through posted ads of actual prostitutes. Look for ones who perform the same acts that she will.
- Compare the prostitutes with same PER as her, who will do the same things, to her. Are they prettier?

Usually, a woman who actively and blatantly tries to extract money with sex has a very high PER compared to actual prostitutes. Seeing the competition is often enough to cure you of temptation.

If it isn't, reflect that the competing prostitutes offer certainty, upfront pricing, extremely low risk of the baby trap, false rape accusations, drama, etc.

If you are still tempted, pay the PER and actually see one of the whores. Then ask yourself if the overall appearance wasn't more pleasant.

In short, if a woman is selling sex, then comparison shop.

I...don't believe this.

7 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

One of feminism's unspoken principles is that masculinity is a disease which needs curing. GMP is just a little more accidentally honest about this than most.

Batten down the hatches, more TRP publicity brought to you by the White Knights, Omegas and Feminists of Reddit

7 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Numbers are sexist.

Spergs, Cynics, and Manipulators: How PowerTalk impacts the lifecycle of cultures.

7 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

In reality, everyone is a mix of all three, in different proportions.

If you were completely a manipulator through and through, you would be doing everything you could to discredit my model, because talking about it threatens to turn more of your valuable supply of spergs into cynics, who are much harder to exploit, and pretending as hard as you could to be a sperg, because the last thing a manipulator would ever do is admit to being one.

Generally, only cynics call themselves what they are. Spergs do not know they are spergs. And manipulators know they are manipulators, but never admit it. They need to pass for spergs so that real spergs will trust them.

All three, however, are flawed and self-destructive.

- Spergs are prey for manipulators because of their overtrusting, naive approach to life.
- Cynics know they would be better off becoming manipulators, but they can't.
- Manipulators destroy the very things they depend on for survival.

A girl's Facebook status. It said

7 upvotes · 5 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why is it painful to read? You know that she will be sucking off an unemployed heroin addict sometime next month.

This is no more painful to read than it is painful to hear a little girl clumping up and down in her mother's high heels and declaring that she is a "magic fairy princess". She still has dirt on her face and one shoe untied, and no magic powers at all.

What's painful... in fact, agonizing, is seeing young men take this at face value and thinking they need to do as she says.

But it is those young men we need to reach. Not her. Her you just pat on the head and say "That's nice, sweetie. Run along, now."

8 Reasons Men Don't Want to Marry

7 upvotes · 21 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's Helen Smith. Seeing her act as a friend and ally to men is not surprising. The Huffington Post publishing her... now that is surprising.

Is height important in matters of the heart? New study says yes - "13.5 percent of the men wanted to date only women shorter than they are. In contrast, nearly half of the women – 48.9 percent – want

7 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

And the other half were lying.

Let's talk about implied social contracts, rules, obligations, responsibilities, and duties.

7 upvotes · 10 February 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

The single biggest thing that modern society is doing to shoot itself in the foot is the way that it fails to differentiate between the psychopath and the good warrior.

Sociopaths don't lack the capacity for loyalty or friendship or group investment. What distinguishes them is disinhibited behaviour, and diminished empathy and remorse.

This is what causes most people to fear sociopaths, because they imagine that someone without a conscience will do anything.

But they're wrong. Because they think it's their conscience that stops them from engaging in antisocial behaviour. But that's not true. The only thing the conscience drives is the rationalization hamster. What actually keeps us from murdering each other is, in descending order of importance, social pressure, self-interest, and fear of retribution.

Our view of sociopaths is skewed because we only identify and study the ones who have come to our attention as sociopaths. Which typically means the ones we find in prison.

You're all fucking naturals

7 upvotes · 8 February 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Yeah. Female science professors, Olympians, inventors, and successful entrepreneurs might get my respect. If you're just pretty, you're pretty much interchangeable with every other pretty girl out there.

"Want to Avoid A Dead Bedroom? Marry a Slut!" - slut tries to break down the Wall with fear tactics

7 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Slut" and "sexually adventurous" are not the same thing.

"Slut" means "switches male partners frequently". "Sexually adventurous" means "switches techniques frequently".

"If you let them, all girls will become sluts."

7 upvotes · 28 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the key things to watch is if a woman tells you about the other guys that hit on her.

If she does, then she's committed to you... at least for now. If she doesn't, then she is at least looking for an exit strategy to keep on hand.

Hostility to Submissive women. Is it acceptable?

7 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't think it's about the relationship itself, but more about the reasons why you would be submissive

And there we see your intolerance. We only look for reasons when we disapprove of something.

When was the last time you checked if a woman had the "right reasons" for not being submissive? No, you only check to make sure nothing's "wrong" when someone's not doing what you think they are "supposed" to.

And who appointed you judge of people's reasons anyway? You have neither the cause nor the right nor the expertise to say if someone's reasons for being submissive are "good" or not. That's up to her.

RP states that women should be lead because they aren't as capable, so I oppose that.

Are you RP? No? Then don't tell other people what they believe.

A Tale of Two Women

7 upvotes · 10 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You just talked to me for an hour about all the ways I'm not going to get to have sex with you.

Amusing.

Some people will demand that everything they say be parsed without any reference to its tone and implication. They only hold themselves responsible for the content of what they literally said. Of course, humans don't actually work that way.

Furthermore, many people who do this will be highly responsive to the context and tone of what is said to them.

There is a hilarious hamster-fest going on in Askhamsters right now about how women in their 30s are so desireable and men who do not find them attractive are immature boys with no clue what is sexy.

7 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, there's no shame in banging the fat chick. We've ALL banged the fat chick once in a while. It's not like banging fat chicks prevents you from banging hot ones. Semen is not in short supply.

What you don't do is relationship them. That's the shameful thing. Doing that means you are either so beaten down personally that you can't do better, or that you are so beaten down intellectually that you truly thinks men's preferences and desires shouldn't matter... or that your society contains nothing but fat chicks.

Feminists can't help but drool over stay at home mormon mommies

7 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think it's that conscious.

I think it's more that they are fascinated by masculine ideals in general, more than they think they should be, more than they feel comfortable with. Dominant men make them wet, and they feel guilty and ashamed about that, because they've been taught that this is "wrong".

So they decry such things loudly, hoping to assuage their guilt and shame at being attracted to "sexist frat-boy jerks", hoping to convince themselves and others like them that they're good feminists. What they don't realize is that most of the sisterhood is hiding the same secret shame.

I want my wife to be a stay at home mom. Is this wrong according to TBP

7 upvotes · 2 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

when someone determines that this sort of relationship is what all women really want, deep down, and that any woman who says otherwise is mistaken or crazy.

However, that's not the TRP position. The TRP consensus is more like "Most women, if we look at the choices they end up making and being happy with, would rather put a higher priority on their relationships and personal lives than their careers."

Where the red pill criticism comes in is when some people run about insisting the when women end up doing this, it's because they've been brainwashed by a lack of strong female role models for engineers or something.

It's like they favour the abstract idea of women making choices to live the life that makes them happy, but when they are confronted with the actual choices women make, they start looking for the hidden sexist Svengalis who are robbing little girls of their childhood dreams of being childless lawyers working 80 hours a week.

I don't know if this is the right sub, but I can't handle the role I've been put into.

7 upvotes · 5 November 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

im really starting to think a high iq is the worst thing that could happen to a woman besides being disfigured in some way

No, it isn't. It isn't even a negative. Hell, it's a good thing, just not the most important good thing.

The reason you're seeing all these horrible, nasty, cold, rude, selfish women going on about their high IQs is that the wonderful, nice, warm, friendly, unselfish women who have high IQs don't go on and on about it.

I've met a fair number of warm, feminine, wonderful women who I gradually realized were also very smart. The reason I didn't notice at first is that, in our culture, warmth and femininity are so rare that it takes awhile to notice anything else.

It's like talking to someone wearing a bunny suit. It takes a long time before you notice the color of their eyes.

Sex education teacher is charged with raping 14-year-old student and sending 'topless and naked' photos to his cell phone. If convicted, she faces a minimum of 10 years in prison

7 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

This is stupid. 10 years for sex with a consenting teenager?

Look, I get that women should get the same sentences as men for the same crimes. But 10 years for sex with a consenting teenage girl would be ridiculous, too.

Things need to be made equal, not by increasing the slap-on-the-wrist penalties that women have been getting, but by reducing men's penalties to that level. Because if there is ever a bullshit crime that deserves a slap on the wrist, it's this nonsense.

Women need to realize the Imaginary Disney Boyfriend is impossible

7 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She's this girl who reads fantasy romance novels all day and has developed a superiority complex to the point where everyone in town thinks she's quite odd.

Yeah, that part kinda stuck out at me. She's supposed to be this good, wonderful, sweet person, but her opening number is all her singing about how she is too good for this hick town and everyone in it.

It's like the modern woman is so accustomed to her own narcissism and that of other women that she no longer sees it as a negative trait in anyone female. It's just "normal", even admirable.

The Archetypal Modern Woman

7 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, I read the post you pointed out, and I get it. The line can be blurry between women who want material things and the women who want concessions in a relationship, but I tend to recognize these gambits and avoid any woman who wants these things.

Well, you're starting to understand, but see, everyone wants concessions in a relationship, whether it's taking out the trash, or a permanent "hall pass".

The relative market values of the two people determine how much effort each one has to put in. There's nothing wrong with having a price. Everyone does. But people make problems for themselves and others when they are unaware of how this equation works, and they set their "price" too high, or too low.

So that brings up the point, is she really causing harm here? If she makes herself clear in what she wants out of a relationship, for example only sexual fling, or a longer term relationship, then the man knows what he is getting into. He should recognize the signs.

Men are not averse to flings. A man will have sex with a slut... once. Then he won't return her phone calls. That's because sexual availability is all she has to offer. She's not an attractive relationship prospect.

He's okay with that. If he wasn't, he wouldn't have slept with her. But SHE isn't okay with that.

I mean, you might be taking her at face value when she says she was just looking for hookup sex at the time, but her own body should have told you she was lying, both to others and herself. Happy, fulfilled women do not have to fake orgasms.

So what's really going on here?

Well, men like hookup sex more than women do. Like, a lot more. So there's more demand for female hookup partners than male ones. This means that a woman can "punch above her weight class" for years, so long as she's having hookups, FWB arrangements, or short, until-he-gets-bored relationships. But because she doesn't understand the sexual dynamics I am explaining to you now, this causes her to overestimate her own sexual market value.

Let's say this woman is about a 5.5 on a scale of 10 (that's where I'd put her, anyway). She can routinely hook up with 7s, 8s, and even some 9s, when she's young. But since she doesn't understand that there is a difference between the hookup market, and the LTR market, she now thinks she's an 8.

And she wonders why none of these hookups ever turns into a relationship. Well, it's because her only real appeal to these guys is easy sex. That's why they are going with a 5.5 at all. And remember, a woman whose main allure is sexual availability is our working definition of the word "slut". You see, if she was an 8, one of these hookups would quickly turn into a relationship... and then she wouldn't be hooking up anymore.

As she gets older, and becomes more aware that hookups aren't fulfilling to the female soul, she blames the wrong culprit. She thinks "oh, I gave it up too easy". But that's not the problem. It's not that she gave it up too easy. It's that she tried to punch above her weight class, and had to give it up easy to go there at all. She thinks "I need to raise the price". But the problem wasn't "price too low". It was "value too low".

At this point, you might say "Well, I understand all this, but what's the problem now? She married Steve, who presumably is also a 5-6. And she's not having to put out on the first date anymore, to sweeten the deal. Isn't this what you said she should do in the first place?"

And my answer would be "Yes, exactly. It's what she should have done in the first place." As in, not later when she's 30.

You see, if she is a 5.5, and he is a 5.5, she should have dated him when she met him, at 24, or whatever. Instead, she gave 5 or 6 of the most important years of their prospective relationship, the years when she was most beautiful, the years when she was most energetic, the years when she was most fertile (they do, after all, plan on children), the years when she was most full of life and wonder, the years when she was still growing up and could have grown together with him... she gave those to lawyers and porn stars and whatnot.

He gets to miss out on all the fun of those years, while she has it with guys who won't remember her name. And you can bet he's not having five years of fun hookup sex... that's reserved for the most attractive guys, the 7-10s, who are tagging a lot of 5s and 6s with no strings... because all the girls are doing what she's doing. He misses those years, and if he's lucky and resilient, that's all he misses. If he's not, the experience might break his confidence permanently.

But that's just the beginning. She's also got good odds of ruining their future relationship. Because Steve is the least attractive man she's ever slept with. Or close to it. She's never before had to sink so low as to get in bed with someone whose SMV was merely equal to hers. How well do you think that's going to turn out?

At this point, you might say "Well, I understand all this, but why on earth are you complaining? If I were to stalk your reddit account a bit, I'd very quickly learn that you are one of these guys who gets the no-strings sex. You have a harem, for pity's sake. You 'don't do' monogamy. Aren't you a member of the only group that's actually coming out ahead?"

Well, yes, but... no. Because in a world where women can punch above their weight, the overall perceived value of men goes down. When every woman out there thinks she's worthy of superman, you gotta always have your game face on. And then, what you get is, well... hookups. Because women think relationships happen by magic (they call it "chemistry"), as opposed to making a choice, and putting in an effort.

Not to mention that there's not a lot of female 8s, 9s, and 10s left. Why would there be, if she can let herself go and still get hookup sex with hot guys? Being a sexy guy these days is like being the richest man in the favela... you may be on top of the heap of garbage, but it's still a heap of garbage, and not a very nice thing to be on top of.

Women like this hurt themselves, they hurt their eventual husbands, and they hurt all of us. Whatever nasty thing we say, they deserve.

Marriage fail, I need help.

7 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

But if he were cheating on me I wouldn't want to know the details, why does he?

It doesn't matter what you would want. He wants what he wants, and you have lost any privilege you might have had to judge those wants.

Australian cities to introduce women only taxis.

7 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

women reported feeling unsafe in taxis

Threat narrative.

"I feel unsafe, therefore you must protect me."

Well, I am terrified of the earth being invaded by giant mutant star goats, therefore a demand a military space program right now.

Red Pill philosophy feels a bit hopeless to me...thoughts?

7 upvotes · 17 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yep. Got into a debate with one of the mods about religion, and whether it was a realistic, "red pill" sort of idea or not. After going on about fedoras and neckbeards for a while, he banned me.

The notification included the word "heathen".

Feminists want the "best game of the year" GTA5 to have a female protagonist instead of a male...

7 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

And I want women to make that game instead of men.

Female cyclists start a petition to be included in Tour de France. There would have to be different start and finish lines for men and women, or streets would have to be closed for hours till women would pass.

7 upvotes · 13 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

At risk of sounding like a rationalizing feminist, that doesn't necessarily mean that men are better at it. It might mean that more men are interested in it. If 100 men get into shooting for every women who does, then we can expect that the top shooters will more likely be men.

However, men could very well just be better at it. After all it's pretty clear our brains are better at spatial visualization and orientation. I don't know for sure.

But IF women are as good as men at any physical competition, then it's most likely to be shooting.

so many things to address...the decline of /r/theredpill, a man's obligation to "train" a woman to be red pill, and other thoughts.

7 upvotes · 7 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Having recently been banned from TRP for not loving the jesus, I can say that the mods have been very good at keeping out feminist trolls, but that the line between "disagree", and "troll" has started to blur.

Really, people who are interested in "red pill" ideas run the gamut from seddit/PUA types who just want to get laid by lots of different women, to religious fundamentalists who want a return to the theocratic societies of the past, to extreme skeptics like myself who want to deal with the realities of the sexual marketplace unhindered by dogma, to women who just want to be feminine without being shamed for it (and not get pumped and dumped).

We are a very diverse group of people who have very different ideas about what's real. And it's easy to tell ourselves we just want to keep the yokels out. But it's also easy to succumb to the temptation to see anyone with different ideas, or with the one idea we don't like, as one of those idiots who needs banning.

That's not the answer, because that answer ends up with a bunch of small, fragmented echo chambers, where anyone who doesn't agree with that group's mod gets punted, until they end up in an echo chamber all their own.

Echo chambers teach you nothing. Neither do they test and strengthen your arguments. A "red pill" discussion group needs to be unified by topic (realities of the sexual marketplace), not opinion on that topic.

If you don't like the version of TRP that "PUA douchebags" like me endorse, the solution isn't to ban us, nor is it to ban yourself by going somewhere else. The solution is to argue your case.

We could argue it right here, if you like. I would love to do that. We'd both learn something.

Here's the gauntlet:

isn't it a red pill man's obligation to not contribute to the racking up of a woman's count?

I have no problem disapproving of women with a high count, even as I make efforts to increase women's count, because I believe that a high count is a symptom, not a cause, of low relationship market value. Thus, I am not scorning these women for having a high count, but for having the low relationship value which got them that high count.

Ask me to explain. Go on.

Spanish Gender Stalinism – Part II Nearly 80% of complaints are for offences related to Article 153 of the criminal code: causing mental suffering, or mistreatment without causing physical injury. A s

7 upvotes · 27 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, Stalin would never come up with something this silly.

feminist creates "mansplaining 101" guide, says men need to use their privilege to help feminism

7 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Are harpoons that inaccurate?

30 Is Not The New 20

7 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It is for men. Unless we stop exercising, the slight physical deterioration we undergo has no chance of offsetting what we gain in confidence, status, sophistication, and poise.

We can make our mistakes in our 20s, learn from them, and do better, if we avoid the major mistakes of getting married, or having a kid.

average joe earnestly tries and fails to understand feminist logic

7 upvotes · 8 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

the sense of entitlement that makes some men think they have a right to comment on women's appearance, and which leads to the entitlement that is rape

Do they not understand that men do have a right to comment on women's appearance?

People have a right to comment on anything they please.

(Oh, wait, these are feminists. It's the notion of men being people which they have trouble with.)

What I discovered after two weeks in America...

7 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As usual, interesting stuff.

But perhaps you can clear up something for me. I never even considered Japan as a stomping ground, because while the women may be undeniably attractive, I am given to understand that they just... lie there. (I believe the term is "maguro".)

As a guy with a bit of a slow trigger, I need some enthusiasm and skill on the part of my partner, or all is for naught. What's the point in hitting a 9-10 if she can't get you off?

Is this true? Is this a thing? How prevalent is it?

3 boys killed in S.A. paramilitary "man up" camp. Starved, burned, strangled, dehydrated, dead. An MR issue if I ever heard one.

7 upvotes · 30 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

Only if you accept the premise that men aren't, and aren't supposed to be, in charge.

There's a reason why traditional culture put men in charge of society. It's not "because patriarchy boo hiss". It's because you own what you build.

"Manning up" and taking responsibility is empowering in a society where power and responsibility go together. It's only in a society that mandates that women get at least 50% of everything, when they don't build 50% of everything, that "manning up" becomes "beast of burdening up".

"Men's Rights & Feminism At UofT- We Must Admit There Are Bigots On Both Sides..."

7 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

Ah, yes, the "everyone is guilty" defense.

Pretend that because many people have done what you did, it doesn't matter because everyone does it. Well, not everyone does it in equal portion.

- Feminist bigots are more numerous.
- Feminist bigots are more bigoted.
- Feminist bigots are given more attention, defense, and support by other feminists.
- Feminist bigots have more access to a mainstream audience.

Reframing Christian marriage

7 upvotes · 10 April 2013 · /r/askTRP

You have to ask though, is the blue pill infecting the church

It's painful to say this to you, and painful to hear it, but the red pill is about harsh truths.

The church isn't "infected" with the blue pill. The church IS the blue pill. Always has been.

Think about, man. I mean really think. The church is an organization that tells you there's an invisible power that created the universe, and it wants you to do what they say.

How's that scan?

Go look at pictures of the Vatican. I mean, really look. Looks expensive, doesn't it?

Hose or Marshmallows?

7 upvotes · 6 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi, welcome to reddit.

It may take a little time to get used to the local mores. Around here, accusations about the person who made a statement (misogynist, communist, witch, heretic, etc) don't really carry much weight if the goal is to refute the statement.

Try to focus on what the person said, rather than who you think the person is, and your arguments might be taken a little more seriously.

Why SRS became a Feminist sanctuary

7 upvotes · 31 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

Let us not forget that another factor is the way feminism tends to hitch itself to popular causes, and gradually devour them from within.

[Mod] Almost 3,000 Users and a message from the moderator

7 upvotes · 30 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

True. But it's not always just bitterness that makes men new to the red pill say nasty things about women. It's also a certain heady joy in being finally able to criticize that which has previously been not only a sacred cow, but a sacred cow that no one could admit was a sacred cow.

Eventually we calm down and focus on the things about women that are true (less mature, less ambitious, more naturally submissive), and stop saying the things that aren't (horrible, vampiric bitches with no redeeming value).

UPDATE 2: Girlfriend stopped taking the pill without telling me, and is now pregnant. Says she wants to keep it. I'm extremely scared.

7 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

Yes, precisely.

Briffault's Law

7 upvotes · 20 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is just a specific case of the definition of a relationship.

A relationship is an ongoing or repeated interaction with continuous mutual benefit.

This was posted in Seddit.

7 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Are there any girls complaining that their boyfriends are 'too alpha'? Nope.

Yes, actually, there are. But you notice they aren't leaving their boyfriends for being too alpha.

[Mod] Posting Rules Update 2013

7 upvotes · 12 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

New submissions must be related to sexual strategy, events that affect sexual strategy, theories about sexual strategy, or stories confirming (or challenging) current theories of sexual strategy.

I understand your reasoning behind this, and while /r/RP originally spring from the bluepillization of seddit, I think the way that RP has been drifting in the direction of including /r/mensrights type material... is not without value.

I think most of us can agree that our society's lifeplan instructions for men are bad for men in more respects than just ineffective sexual strategy. I think that we can agree that our culture is also pushing blue pills that make you broke, land you in careers that aren't good for you, send you off to die fighting for the agendas of special interests with political clout, and mess up your life in lots of other ways.

While I think RP's focus should remain one of personal survival in a blue pill world, rather than on "fixing society" (there are other venues to talk about that), personal survival goes far beyond "getting laid".

Well put.

7 upvotes · 12 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

...end child support? just an honest question here: wouldn't most men want to partake in and/or feel obligated to financially support their own child(ren)?

How about men who didn't get a choice as to whether to make them or not, who never had a chance to see them and develop a relationship, and who never had any say in how they were raised?

If you could sum up everything you have learned here in one sentence what would it be?

7 upvotes · 9 March 2013 · /r/seduction

The only people who appreciate a doormat are the ones with muddy boots they want to wipe.

Refried victim complex

7 upvotes · 14 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's pretty much most of these rolled into one comment.

The basic message here is "I've got mine, and if you had yours, you wouldn't be complaining", with the implied message that a man is either silent or he is a loser.

This is based on assumption that men can never and should never support each other.

What if I've got mine, but I happen to care about other men who don't? What if I am strong, but I care about other men who may not be as strong?

What if the world doesn't begin and end with me?

Personally, I'm going to keep dealing with the world as it is AND pointing out ways in which that world is stupid. The doing the second without the first is the act of a whiny victim complex. Doing the first without the second is the act of a sucker martyr complex.

Away with your false dichotomies, sir.

Alberta Student newspaper - "MRAs misunderstand feminism"

7 upvotes · 25 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

I dare you do explain otherwise.

Was the holocaust worse than the destruction of Alderaan by the Death Star?

We do male circumcision. An actual mutilation we do is worse than a theoretical one we don't.

QED.

Dear Modern Feminists: So This Is What You're Saying?

7 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

I don't know who Maria Maltseva is, but I want to give her a big hug.

4chan gets it right and femist erasure of male issue.

7 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

The men who actually make video games are not just random joes.

Hi, my name is Whisper. I'm a software engineer. I wrote a 3D game engine over the course of a couple of weeks, by myself, for fun. If I were to license the Unreal engine instead of writing my own (which is free apart from royalties on sales above 50k), hook up with a friend or two who can do 3D modeling and texture art, and spend a year working very hard, I could produce a solid game which would be fun and sell well.

I am smart and skilled, but by no means unique.

If I don't see any groups of three or four women emerging to do just that, there are only a few possible reasons.

1. Women are too stupid.
2. Women are too lazy.
3. The Patriarchy is sending hit squads around to kill any woman who dares to learn to program.
4. Women in general do not care that video games aren't geared to them, and they have other pastimes that they are quite happy with, thank you oh so very much. The few women who do play video games like the ones that men make just fine. The only people unhappy with the status quo are a few pundits manufacturing controversy where none exists.

Why do feminists and mens rights activists so frequently represent each other according to their most extreme elements?

7 upvotes · 29 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

As far as I understand mens rights activists are in favor of a system that protects women against rape

Yes, but as people, not as women especially. And not at the expense of the rights of the accused to due process.

are in favor of equal pay

No. Of equal opportunities. Pay is an outcome determined by the market, and neither can nor should be made equal.

are in favor of equal portrayal of genders in popular culture

I don't know what this means. It's probably too vague to have a meaning.

are in favor of equal representation in leadership roles.

No. Leadership roles are an outcome. Equality of opportunities, not of outcomes.

As far as I understand feminists are in favor of paternity

Not that I have noticed.

a just system of rape prosecution

You must be joking.

male emotional counseling

What do you mean?

male body autonomy

Now you're definitely joking, but it's no longer funny.

and legal and social equality

Too vague to have an exact meaning.

On my campus, a mass e-mail was sent out urging everyone to be careful due to the reports of two women who were left 'shaken' after two men walked behind them in the same direction for a bit.

7 upvotes · 22 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

"Walking while male."

New reality show called "Bad Boyfriends Club" where boyfriends get electric shocks when they misbehave. Absolutely unacceptable.

7 upvotes · 21 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

that is not enforced legally at all

What's enforced legally is not the problem. Laws do not drive attitudes... they are driven by them.

"To learn who rules over you, simply find out who you are not allowed to criticize." ~Voltaire

7 upvotes · 19 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Asking certain questions, such as whether higher IQ scores imply genetic predisposition to higher intelligence, is verboten.

It's a fair question, and should be askable without character assassination. But the answer is still no.

Just as equality of opportunities does not imply equality of outcomes, inequality of outcomes does not imply inequality of predispositions.

Contrapositive.

Video games and Male Gaze - are we men or boys?

7 upvotes · 6 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

You know what the cure for bullshit is?

Empiricism.

Show me some research on what type of female character female gamers prefer to play as. And see.

Do the same for males.

Then you're allowed to talk. Until then, you're just blowing smoke.

Because there are two layers to human behaviour. What people do, which usually reflects the realities of our actual situation. And what people say, which is idealistic bullshit.

So when you say that no one wants video game characters to be idealized, but all of them always seem to be idealized...

Pure insanity. Swedish feminists want to ban peeing while standing up.

7 upvotes · 14 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is actually your second comment in /r/MensRights. Your history looks like mostly /r/sweden with some 2xc thrown in.

STUDY: "Are Feminists Man Haters?"

7 upvotes · 28 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Oooh! A self-report study! How meaningful.

Also, I am a billionaire with an IQ of 203, and a 14 inch penis.

Jezebel: Punch Annoying Frat Boys

7 upvotes · 7 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Nowhere in your blithering, incoherent, unpunctuated rant could I unearth anything resembling a point.

Please sober up before commenting.

I think I broke my brain with rage...

7 upvotes · 6 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

And I think it's time we dialed down all the calls to "dial down the rhetoric".

Angry people use violent language all the time. When it's a woman, no one has a problem. When it's a man defending women, no one has a problem. But when it's a man defending men, all of a sudden it's a serious threat and everyone loses their minds.

It's just pearl-clutching, or, in some cases, the appeasement of pearl-clutchers.

Hey MRAs, I just thought you should know that SRS and SomethingAwful are about to redditbomb you in an attempt to have you shut down.

7 upvotes · 19 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Flooded the frontpage with satire posts about how atheists were "so brave". Basically to imply that they're drama queens and not really an oppressed minority (evidently they don't live south of the Mason-Dixon line).

Any /r/atheism reader who doesn't read reddit daily would have missed it altogether, which is pretty much what you'd expect since /r/atheism alone is orders of magnitude bigger (more populated) than all of SA put together.

They're basically what 4chan/b/ would be if it took itself seriously.

TIL: Southern Poverty Law Center thinks R/mensrights is a burgeoning hate group.

7 upvotes · 9 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Scare quotes galore from the "concerned citizens" at the "Southern Poverty Law Center".

A Word On "Offending" People...

7 upvotes · 5 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

I am however offended by how hateful you (as a group) are. I have never in my life felt more unwelcome in a place to discuss the advancement of a people groups rights. I honestly have been horribly offended here.

See, that's the problem. You have somehow gotten the idea in your head (perhaps by being surrounded by others with the same idea) that how you feel is not your responsibility, but that of the person you are listening to.

No one can make you feel anything.

And frankly, I cannot interpret this pattern of ignoring our busloads of facts to respond with vague allegations about our tone, as anything but a tactic.

"We're going to ignore your legitimate complaints and talk about how you didn't ask nicely enough. Jump through this hoop. Balance this biscuit on your nose until we give the signal. Then when we are satisfied that you are inoffensive enough, then we can talk about how male suicides are twenty times more common. Well, if we feel like it."

So why should I appease you? Clearly, you just want me to shut up.

But well-behaved men seldom change history.

With lots of differing advice here on Seddit, there's at least one solid gold fact

7 upvotes · 5 March 2012 · /r/seduction

I like to put it this way: the more times you throw the dice, the more chances you have to win.

Hey seddit, I am an AFC single mom magnet. Anyone else gone through the same?

7 upvotes · 29 February 2012 · /r/seduction

Single mothers actually seek out beta males. They're not lowering their standards... they are targeting men who will be more likely to support someone else's progeny.

Is it wrong to do circumcisions?

7 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Thanks for writing all that, GWW. But let me save you some trouble in the future... just link them to this:

http://www.liveleak.com/view?i=b44_1310085866

WARNING: Cannot unsee.

To straight, male MRAs in relationships: Has your stance on men's rights had any impact on your relationship? How does your wife/girlfriend view your opinions?

7 upvotes · 13 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

I have multiple regular sexual partners, so I don't know if "wife/girlfriend" really applies, but all of them tend to see eye to eye with me on most men's rights issues.

The case for most of our positions is pretty persuasive if the listener can get past the twin stereotypes of "this guy must be a conservative reactionary stuck in the past", and "this guy must be a bitter, paranoid misogynist".

I find there's a lot of anti-feminist women out there... not reactionary Jesus-freaks, but independent, self-willed women who realize they owe their independence to technology rather than ideologues, who don't want special protections written into law for them, who see special kid-glove treatment for women as a "tyranny of low expectations", and who see men as human beings.

Talk to such a woman, and it's not hard to get the idea through that forced circumcision is a bad thing, that fighting in wars is not a privilege, and that perhaps we, too, deserve the right to choose whether we want to be parents.

Why are atheists so religious? PZ Myers and the religion of feminism

7 upvotes · 7 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Let's be clear here: You are a fucking moron.

Or, rather, you have turned off your brain, and deliberately meandered into moronhood, for the purpose of making vacuous arguments that you wish made sense.

You have, in fact, objected to the way that r/atheism is filled with atheists. To the fact that some atheists post ragecomics and image links rather than meaningful content... like, you know, the rest of fucking reddit.

And you somehow conclude from this that they must be wrong about the nonexistence of god.

I don't know what to say. It's a total nonsequitur. I am unable to fathom the confusion of mind necessary to produce such a conclusion. It's the Chewbacca Defense in reverse.

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

7 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

That's cute... do they have a special call? Or do they blow a whistle that only you can hear?

New: You're too old for me.

What the f just happened?

7 upvotes · 21 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Oh, gods and stray animals, how I envy you...

/has celiac disease.

NAFALT!!!!1!!!1

7 upvotes · 20 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

The biggest problem with NAFALT is that people who say it don't say it to the Feminists they Aren't Like, but only to the people who criticize them.

Doing Women Wrong?

7 upvotes · 13 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

If a man dressed as a woman is "offensive", then a woman dressed as a man is... what?

One of the most sexist bigoted articles I've read in awhile "There are four refuges left for men who cling to male hegemony and stereotyped masculinity. They are: the National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun culture; the military; the Christian right; and pornography."

7 upvotes · 4 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

I am irritated by the "cis" term, as in "cisgendered". I refuse to use that term. It's a deliberate attempt by "homosexuals" to "other" "heterosexuals".

I consider it a bigoted slur, like calling a black man "nigger". It's a term that was invented by people of another group, to describe his group, more or less solely for the purpose of saying negative things about them.

Feminism and the Disposable Male

7 upvotes · 29 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Thanks, but this is a well-known repeat. GirlWritesWhat is one of our regulars around here, and we love her for her fine writing style and ability to put a female face on our concerns.

Relevant (x-post from f7u12)

7 upvotes · 26 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

It has to do with something more fundamental than rights.

The reason people have rights, the reason people acknowledge others as having certain things that they must be permitted to have by virtue of their very existence... is that they are acknowledged as individuals with worth.

This kind of thing is an illustration of the core of the problem. Men are seen as worthless. Only a threat. Only a burden. Only a liability.

The reason men must struggle for their rights at all is systemic misandry. This is an illustration of that misandry.

"Your penis that you as a man are in control of is not in anyway like a strap-on. It is a weapon of war, pregnancy and rape. "

7 upvotes · 12 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

My penis is a weapon of war?

I mean, yes, it's pretty large and powerful... but that's compared to other penises. If I actually wanted to damage someone, it is not the part of my body I would choose to employ.

In all seriousness, a lot of the radical feminist community seems marked by its tendency to mistake the metaphorical for the literal.

Gentlemen (and ladies), creep-shaming at its finest.

7 upvotes · 24 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Perhaps I'm just a little bit slow this morning, but I'm not sure I can understand exactly what actions you are talking about.

"Making women feel uncomfortable" isn't really an action. It's a feeling, in someone else. Possibly it's a result. But I don't know how to make someone have feelings. That kind of depends on them.

One can really only treat with someone based on their behaviour, not how someone they have no control over chose to perceive it. If someone is sharpening an axe and muttering about needing more fingers, yeah, okay, that's an issue that someone needs to confront. If they are simply standing there being visibly male, and that makes people uncomfortable, then those people are bigots and there is no pleasing them.

We Are the 99%, Too: Creating a Feminist Space Within Occupy Wall Street

7 upvotes · 17 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Are you being sarcastic? Because if you aren't, I almost cannot believe you said something that dumb. It's like you want to deliberately confirm everything I just said.

I can only guess that you have spent so much time around people who agree with all these silly things you say, that you have fallen under the impression that they are obvious and every one must agree with you if they're not blinded by "privilege".

I wonder if you can actually read and consider it when I write that not everyone who understands what you mean agrees with you.

I get all of your arguments about privilege. I used to be the one making them. Gradually I realized that they were flawed.

Female-Only Hotel Floors Make A Comeback: How is this legal?

7 upvotes · 15 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Yeeep, ah reckon' ah kin understand. Sometimes ah jest dun feel laahk havin' them coloreds aroun'.

Q: How do you criticize a marginalized person? A: You can't. Ever.

7 upvotes · 15 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Unpack the words "marginalized" and "privilege". They carry a host assumptions that people outside your ideological circle do not stipulate.

Frankly, when I say something, and you immediately start examining where I come from in life, it's disrespectful. Not to mention ad hominem.

A statement stands or falls based on its content, not on who said it.

Serious question for the men in mensrights: Do you guys make a distinction between "women" and "feminists?"

7 upvotes · 24 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Not quite. It's the "a woman as a whole" idea. A woman can embrace one set of values or another as she wishes, but we, as men, will expect her to be consistent about which set she chooses.

We all have encountered entirely too many women who were feminists precisely up until the point that they needed something.

A fun little AMOG trick I've figured out

7 upvotes · 22 August 2011 · /r/seduction

Bad idea.

Only works on people who are easily intimidated, and have silly meaningless pieces of peacock-wear.

Basically, people who are already no competition.

Some of the bad things that can happen if you try this:

- You get your ass kicked for invading someone's personal space. Both of you get thrown out of the bar, and the police laugh off your complaint after asking that vital question "Did you touch him?".
- You don't get your ass kicked, but you still look like a dick because your obvious lack of respect for people's personal space. You don't get laid.
- He starts telling the story about how they are his grandfather's dog tags from WWII, which he found in the attic with a bunch of his old letters home to his family, and his medals. Girls cluster around him attentively, panties slightly moist.
- And so on.

A boss does not lose his cool.

A boss does not pick on people weaker than himself. An alpha kicks up and kisses down. Someone who kisses up and kicks down is called a "bully".

Men and Women, Then and Now | Riding the Tiger.org

7 upvotes · 16 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

I'll say it again. Traditionalism is NOT advocacy for men's rights. It is the replacement of the new enslavement with the old.

My colleagues and I are pleased to bring you this website as part of our continuing struggle against the modern world, and hope that your visit to our website is both enjoyable and informative.

"Shift the paradigm - something should have to prove it's not misogynist"... And feminists claim they don't believe in guilty until proven innocent.

7 upvotes · 14 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

So, by posting here in our community, you are giving us carte blanche to label any statement you make as "misandrist", and to require you to prove it's not.

Oh, and the standard of proof is whatever we decide it is.

Rookie mistake #28: long online messages.

7 upvotes · 30 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Yep.

Think of a girl reading online messages as a redditor. Short attention span, ridiculous level of abundance mentality. Wants the main idea NOW, doesn't want to invest two minutes reading.

Anything more than a couple of sentences will get you tl;dr.

The Post-feminism Man (2010)

7 upvotes · 9 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Why is it that so many anti-feminists have to be anti-sex as well?

Don't you guys get it?

Sluts are a good thing. Because a slut is not a whore. A whore uses sexuality to extract resources. But a slut has only two prices for sex, "unavailable" or "free". She has integrity. She does it for the joy of it, not for some ulterior motive. If she doesn't want to, she can't be bought. If she does want to, she doesn't try to extract anything from you. She values you as a source of pleasure, not a resource cache, or ego prop.

Jealousy over how many other guys she's had is a stupid, beta-male emotion. What, you can't take it that you're not the only one? Why not? If she doesn't prefer you over any of them, then you deserve someone who does. Plenty of women out there.

People with these weird hangups need to realize that women are a commodity, not some sort of special prize.

Strauss-Kahn; "It's rape if she says it is..." comment thread downvoted into oblivion on 2XC, OP starts her own subreddit; r/anarchafeminism.

7 upvotes · 3 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

You must have girly stubble. Mine just laughs at active volcanoes.

I shave by glaring at my stubble in the mirror, and telling it that it has thirty seconds to clear out.

Police release video of boy, 7, pulled over after driving 50 m.p.h.: Barefoot and still in pajamas, the 7-year-old boy stood on the side of a Caseville road on Monday morning, crying and begging to see his dad.

7 upvotes · 21 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

And, if you read the article carefully, you learn...

The mother and boy immediately went to the county's department of human services.

... that he still didn't get to see his father.

Crosspost from TIL: Testosterone Increases by 45.7% in Men When They Don't Masturbate for 7 Days

7 upvotes · 21 June 2011 · /r/seduction

It doesn't say "masturbate". It says "ejaculate".

That's right, folks, you can raise your testosterone levels by not getting laid. For a week. (Any less doesn't work.)

Any takers?

Perhaps we should just stick to lifting weights and getting enough sleep.

What do I do with a girl when I'm broke?

7 upvotes · 18 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Exactly. Remember that women do not choose mates with their rational minds, and when their instincts evolved, there was no such thing as money.

Money is just a symbol. Find some other symbol of what it is a symbol of, and then rock on, broke college dude!

This is where "AFCs" come from.

7 upvotes · 17 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Why does it have to be a battle between the sexes?

I don't think it has to be. But our culture's clumsy attempts at social engineering of the mating process has often reduced it to this.

I dislike the fact that so many come into pickup out of some sort of hatred towards women.

You may dislike it, but you see a phenomenon, and it's better to understand it than to just hope it will go away.

To understand, it's important to realize that anger != hatred. They are two very distinct feelings.

So what is all the anger about? Well, we already understand this. Think of the term AFC. What does the F stand for? Frustrated. Frustration == anger.

So why are these angry men angry? Not because they can't "get women" or even because they can't control their sex lives. The below-average ones, the people with social phobias, they aren't angry. They realize that their social inability is their problem.

No, the angry ones are the ones with average or above average social skills. They know their abilities are not the problem. They believe that their problem has been imposed on them from outside... and they are right.

The normal, healthy man wants to act like PUAs tell him he ought. He knows this already. He was born knowing it. It is natural to him. He wishes to approach women assertively, to be straightforward about his desire for sex, to act as a person of value, rather than a supplicant.

But he has been told that this is what he must not do. The fear, the sometimes crippling, all-encompassing fear, he experiences is not of "not getting the girl"... because he already doesn't have the girl. How scared could he be of that?

It is fear of social censure, of humiliation, of reprisals for being the "bad" man, which is precisely what feminism teaches of the man who is natural and uninhibited. Seddit doesn't hate women... but the women's movement certainly hates seddit, and everything seddit stands for.

The "AFC" is frustrated and angry because he has been constrained from birth against what would otherwise come naturally to him, because he has been asked to play the mating game, not with a lousy hand, but with no cards at all. He feels shame at being aggressive, because he has been taught that it is wrong, and he feels shame at not being aggressive, because he knows it instinctively that it is a failure of manhood.

In short, he is not defective, or weak, by nature. He is not a coward. He has, instead, been misled. By a philosophy that cares nothing for him, and by the hubris of academics who thought they could reorder the world and do a better job of it, and by an entire generation who listened to them. And it has gotten worse. I'm less long in the tooth than some, but I am old enough to tell you that the AFCs of 25 years ago were much less frustrated, and much less chump, than those of today. Things were not always thus.

When you place someone in a situation where he has no power, he fears and resents those who do, especially when they wield it against him. Empower him, and that resentment will fade.

The men'srights subreddit represents awareness of the problem, without possession of the solution. Seddit represents, in some ways, the solution without knowledge or understanding of the problem.

LTR and orbiters, where to draw the line.

7 upvotes · 10 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Alphas don't get jealous. (Or, rather, you are an alpha to the extent that you don't get jealous.)

Jealousy is an emotion of beta males, because alphas don't need exclusive access to any woman. They know that women will prefer them to others anyway, and that if they don't, well, there's always another woman.

It sounds like she is trying to (and habitually tries to) keep the upper hand in the relationship by flirting with other guys and trying to make you jealous. Don't play into it. It's not an alpha move to be led around by the nose.

In fact, you might want to trump her with some jiu-jitsu, here (when pulled, push, when pushed, pull). Ask her if she'd like to take some time off from your relationship, a couple of months or so, so she can bang him, and you can play the field while she's doing it. Make it sound as if you have some "field" lined up. Even better if that's true. If she doesn't truly want out, she'll back water so fast you'll be able to hear the splash.

The goal of seduction skills isn't "getting laid a lot" or "getting laid by a lot of different women", it's "having power over our sex lives". She's attempting to seize power over your sex life, here. What's important is not whether you hold on to her or not, but that you do not let her have that power.

As the mod of mensrights, I openly argue for the rights of anyone 'who presently has, used to have, or desires to have a penis.'

7 upvotes · 9 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

This might be a good place to introduce you to your enemy.

If you seriously think that I must hate anyone I don't want to have sex with, then I am insulted.

Anyway, you want me to tell you about the worst days of my life as a prelude to telling me that you will never go to bed with me, regardless of any love that might exist between us, regardless of my femininity, regardless of the fact that this all happened before I was born?

If you don't respect my right to have my own preferences, strange as they may be to you, how can you possibly say that you "love" me?

You believe that you have been a woman all along. That's fine. I might not share this view. And since this is a semantic argument, and hence a subjective one, neither is going to convince the other.

I find it very difficult to have sympathy for you.

How about "respect"? How about "basic courtesy"? I am calling you out on your groundless "feelings" canard. I will not allow you to claim a privilege you would deny to others... the privilege of defining one's own identity without the need to justify it to others.

Should a 'Trans-girl' let you know that she used to be a man before sex? Not according to the folk of /r/transphobiaproject.

7 upvotes · 8 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Any "emotional harm" done to men upon finding out they're with a trans-woman is OF THEIR OWN MAKING.

By this rationale, any emotional harm done to a woman by being raped is of HER OWN MAKING, because it's "all in her head".

But no sane person would say that, and no sane person would say what you're saying, either. And in, in fact, no sane person has.

Your husband comes before your children. Almost always.

6 upvotes · 3 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

He has a school project due tomorrow that he didn't get supplies or do any research for. Now he has to scramble to get it done, and he needs her help and to spend the entire night working on it!

"Your lack of planning does not constitute my emergency."

"Let's Start Charging Men to Have Babies"; Absolutely atrocious article dehumanizes, antagonizes, & degrades men (TW: Misandry/Sexism)

6 upvotes · 6 April 2022 · /r/MensRights

Wait a few years, they'll have reinvented the traditional family.

Ten years a RPW, hit the wall with no loving marriage in sight. Trying to figure out why?

6 upvotes · 29 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://old.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/b708vd/always_be_sure_to_tie_a_live_duck_to_your_right/

Shower thoughts: being water

6 upvotes · 12 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Ironically that's usually the self proclaimed misogynists. Those are the men that will call me out if I say something stupid or uninformed and I count my husband among them.

Reading this just made me have a tangentially related idea.

I've noticed for some time that men are called "misogynists" if we do not treat women as if they were fragile statues made of porcelain, from which all goodness and light emerge. After a while, most men who know, or can learn, how to pass a shit test, will, rather than argue, simply say "yup, I'm a misogynist".

When I read your comment, a thought hit me.

Wait, a minute, I said... this is actually true, but only in the physical sense.

Physically, women really are fragile, and physically, every good thing about the human race has to emerge from a woman. Literally.

That's why the protective instinct towards women exists... to prevent men from using our superior physical capabilities to harm women.

However, on the social and intellectual planes, women are not fragile. You are just as capable of defending your reputations and ideas as men are. In fact, probably more so, given the existence of the protective instinct which tends to make people more sympathetic to what you say.

But men are called "misogynists" for verbally criticizing or disagreeing with women, precisely because a great many human beings are unaware that instinct and cannot examine it, and thus they are controlled by it without knowing this is happening.

So, when /u/rosiemagyver sees me critique your idea, her instincts kick in, instincts which are crude, and primitive, and unable to distinguish between physical and intellectual opposition. Some piece of her brainstem is interpreting disagreement with you as a physical attack.

People whose instincts are their masters, rather than their servants, are dangerous to hang around, because they are growth-stunting.

Little boys are built for physical opposition, so they need it to grow. They must be allowed to rough-house and play-fight with other little boys.

Little girls are not built for physical opposition, so, if you throw them into the wrestling matches of little boys, then they don't grow or learn anything... they simply suffer. This is abuse.

But little girls are built, like every other human being, for social and intellectual contention. So they must be allowed to face social criticism and challenges to their ideas.

If they do not, they will grow up to the social equivalent of the fat whiny guy who sits on the couch all day and won't exercise. They will damsel, attempt to cluster up in "team woman", or cry "misogyny!" for defense whenever they are disagreed with or socially criticized.

They are shying away from contests they should be equal to, because they were raised in an unhealthy, overprotective fashion.

What are your thoughts on this one-sided ad?

6 upvotes · 5 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Allegations without any supporting evidence must be supported by positive polygraph test.

Polygraph tests are a tool for fabricating false evidence.

FDS is now going after non-feminist woman, nothing special here.

6 upvotes · 3 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

The FDS end game is cut themselves off from all relationships except with cats, who can't run away because they don't have thumbs and can't operate doorknobs.

A feminist told me to kill myself

6 upvotes · 14 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Feminism has always been an attempt by certain women to flip the table because they don't like their hand of cards. They hate certain other women even more than they hate men.

How can men fix online dating? Issues from a woman's point of view

6 upvotes · 9 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why would we care about fixing online dating for you?

You're a strong, independent, liberated woman. Fix it yourself.

I am a plate

6 upvotes · 24 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

He also may be trying to test if she's potentially okay with a polygynous relationship.

"I Love You" but i don't love myself.

6 upvotes · 22 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

you can't love others unless you love yourself first

This is a Hallmark-level platitude, not really true, but also not really false, because it simply isn't meaningful enough to be true or false. It's just a noise people make because they think it will make them sound compassionate and wise.

If you struggle with being able to express affection, because you feel like you're not "good enough", then here's a tool for you, something for you to put in your toolbox and take out when you need it:

It does not matter if you are worthy. It only matters if you are wanted.

Whether he wants you or not is his decision. It's not for you to tell him what he should or shouldn't like. And that means it's not for you to decide, for him, that he "shouldn't" like you. That's not your call to make. You only get to decide how you feel about him.

And if you decide you won't approach him, because you're not "good enough", then you are cheating him of the opportunity to decide for himself whether you're "good enough" for him.

That's not considerate... it's the opposite.

It does not matter if you are worthy. It only matters if you are wanted.

What are the lesser known struggle dating as a woman?

6 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Has this been your personal experience?

You've labeled yourself as aged 16, so I'm having trouble imaging that men see you as a potential trophy wife, or that anyone sees you as a dishwasher besides your parents. And if you're already being treated as an "advanced fleshlight", well... let's just say I hope you are not.

So, I guess I'm wondering if this is your actual experience of dating, or is this what someone has told you the dangers of dating are?

A whole what??? ?

6 upvotes · 8 December 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

If the goal is to stop wanting to date, why isn't it called FNDS?

More suicide exist in men not because they don't ask for help, but because not enough help exists.

6 upvotes · 29 November 2021 · /r/MensRights

Men don't ask for help because they know perfectly well they won't get it.

6 upvotes · 3 October 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Just replace the first "OK" with "no", and the problem is solved.

Day 1 cold approach | got a number!

6 upvotes · 9 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, first off, anyone who is serious about lifting, and can afford gym membership, can afford a set of barbells and the wood for a DIY squat rack. Therefore, his gym is his garage. Going to a gym is okay, being dependent on a gym is stupid.

Secondly, be attractive, don't be unattractive. A woman who thinks you are attractive may still turn you down, but she won't complain about you.

Third, be a man of abundance. If a woman isn't into you, you won't persist if you have plenty of other women available. And if you don't, you can fake it until you make it, and act as if you do, which will eventually create that reality. Avoid thirst, and the appearance of it, at all costs.

Fourth, never listen to women. They will tell you not to approach them at school, at the gym, at work, walking down the street, at bars and clubs, the list is endless. But they are not actually telling you where they don't want to be approached. They are telling you who they don't want to have approach them... which is "anyone who has to ask where to approach women".

The men they want to have approach them at the gym are men who ignore "don't approach me at the gym", and approach them at the gym in a way that doesn't bother them.

Women won't tell you what they want, because they don't know.

Women don't know what they want, because they hate introspection, and don't want to do it.

Women want you to figure out what they want and then offer it to them without them having tell you, or even ever know what it is.

What does that sound like?

If you answered "a baby", you are right. Babies don't tell you what they want. They just cry, and then you're supposed to figure it out.

My Insane 1 Year Muscle Building Journey With Steroids

6 upvotes · 4 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I think we differ in our normative views of the solutions, but not in our perception of the problems.

The way I would describe the situation we face is this:

The overwhelming majority of the institutions of our society have failed in their missions, not through weakness or incompetence, but through malfeasance and dereliction of duty.

In most cases, the mission has shifted from abolition of the problem the institution was designed to deal with, to profiting off the continuation of that problem.

Our medical community, for example, has discovered that it is a lot more profitable to provide symptomatic relief for chronic and progressive diseases, than it is create and maintain a civilization of healthy individuals. So care is reserved for the sick, and no attention is paid to preventing people from becoming so.

It is more profitable, and appealing to public image, to engage in titanic struggle with an unbeatable monster, and slowly lose, than it is to step on that monster and crush it in the eggshell.

My Insane 1 Year Muscle Building Journey With Steroids

6 upvotes · 4 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

You're not prone to understatement, but this time you did. Our entire society, medical caste, and zeitgeist cannot be trusted on the topic of what is and isn't healthy to put into your body.

We are in the midst of the greatest mass poisoning in recorded history which is being carried out with the full consent and active cooperation of the medical industry and the FDA.

Not only that, it is now fashionable to give meth/speed to little boys because being masculine is considered a pathology.

It is easier to get a $1.5K MRI, or $5K colonoscopy, done than to get a family care doctor to make house call or even spend a full hour talking to a patient.

The medical industry of the west has joined its other institutions in tearing down what previous generations have built, and selling it for cash.

How to get over the fact that your guy has casually hooked up with other people before you?

6 upvotes · 27 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

What exactly is there to get over?

You are projecting. Because sex is an act of deep meaning and intimacy for you, you assume it is that way for him. It's not. Men are different.

Tattoo this on your forehead, backwards so you can read it in the mirror:

Eggs are expensive, sperm is cheap.

Men are simply not going to be as careful with their cheap and renewable sperm as you are with your limited and irreplaceable eggs. Why? Because our sperm is cheap and inexhaustible.

We are huge sluts. Every last one of us. We'll fuck any woman who isn't ugly, bitchy, crazy, or clearly diseased. We'll fuck women we don't even like. We'll fuck women who are less attractive to us than our mates. The only things that ever stop us are cultural/moral/religious indoctrination, lack of opportunity, or consideration for the feelings of our mates.

Yes, that includes your darling hunny bear. No, he is not different. The only reason he is keeping his dick in his pants is because it would upset you. Sex means nothing to us except pleasure and validation. It's as intimate as drinking coffee. We require a greater emotional bond to help someone move out of her apartment than we do to have sex with her.

Have I been sufficiently vehement to make you understand this? Because, if not, I can keep going.

An angry feminist lectures a man who doesn't care. It gets funnier every time you watch it.

6 upvotes · 24 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists raising kids to have such thin skin and to think that they're entitled to have everyone cater to their feelings.

You have touched upon it exactly.

Wanting to be compassionate is a virtue. But any virtue, if it is practiced by itself, without other virtues, becomes a vice. A civilization cannot function if it believes that rights come from needs... because needs are infinite and resources are not. Similarly, a person cannot function if they believe rights come from needs, because this effectively makes them into a baby bird, permanently sitting with its head upraised and beak open, twittering demands to be fed.

Report this shit post fam! Don't let such insanely huge pages sell this toxic feministic bullshit!

6 upvotes · 19 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Men are not repair shops for broken women.

CMV: Michael's Story proves all the negative stereotypes people have about TRPers

6 upvotes · 16 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So you agree with TRP that women like game.

CMV: Michael's Story proves all the negative stereotypes people have about TRPers

6 upvotes · 16 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why exactly is this story required reading for TRP?

Because it demonstrates that what women want, and what they say they want, are two different things. And that therefore you must observe what women do, rather than ask them what they want.

You seem to think that TRP's founders (e.g. me) believe that Michael "should" have gotten laid a lot, or found a wife, or whatever. This reveals that you haven't a clue what TRP is about, because you don't understand literally the first thing about it.

The first thing about TRP, the reason we made it in the first place, is to have a zone where strategy could be discussed without moralizing. If you were to say "Women should have wanted Michael" on TRP, and my hand-picked mod team noticed it, it would be removed with the comment: "No moralizing".

So there is no point in answering you point by point, because all your points derive from your misunderstanding, and are therefore irrelevant.

A Typical Conversation with a Feminist

6 upvotes · 10 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Fair enough.

My term for them is "skip-me girls".

Is becoming a "traditional woman" lowering your social status?

6 upvotes · 7 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Your social status with whom? And does their opinion matter?

Do I need to submit more? Or are my concerns more than just paranoia?

6 upvotes · 5 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

.

Do you recommend living with your boyfriend or fiancée before getting married ?

6 upvotes · 2 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Many answers recommend against it because you "will become a forever girlfriend". Anyone who writes that fundamentally doesn't understand men yet.

Being a wife is different than being a forever girlfriend to women. To men, it isn't. Withholding something to have a bargaining position makes sense to women. To men, it doesn't.

Men do not give so that they will receive, or in anticipation of receiving. That's Briffault's Law, and it doesn't describe male behaviour. Men are reciprocal. They give because they have received.

Men don't get married because they think or hope it will change something. They get married because they hope it will change nothing.

To be a wife, act like a wife.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

6 upvotes · 23 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Women covet the products of male creativity, energy, and innovation... but many of them resent the process itself, and will try to halt it with zero awareness that everything they want out of life depends upon it.

The simplest course of action is to exclude women like this from your life, either before or after depositing a load of inexhaustibly replaceable sperm inside them.

Can you guys expand on the idea of frame?

6 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

https://old.reddit.com/r/asktrp/comments/o5ck0g/can_you_guys_expand_on_the_idea_of_frame/h2neoqm/

My wife, 46 years old, of 17 years is having a virtual affair with her first love from 30 years ago. Do I blame myself?

6 upvotes · 20 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

Say nothing.

Document everything.

Consult an attorney NOW.

RIP itiswr1tten

6 upvotes · 18 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Out of curiosity, how old are you?

What is "red pill"?

6 upvotes · 15 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You are correct, and this allows us to ask and answer the next obvious question: Why?

Why do they do this? Why are there blue pillers at all?

After all, if empiricism helps us understand the universe, and understanding the universe empowers us, then there are powerful incentives for empiricism. For anti-empiricism to exist, there must be some counterbalancing anti-empirical incentive.

The answer lies in the observation that there are no blue-pillled animals. Bower birds, chimpanzees, and lobsters do not court "wrong" or conduct ineffective mating rituals. Unawareness of the mating instincts of one's own species is a phenomenon that is unique to humanity.

This means that whatever makes some humans unaware of their species' mating instincts must also be unique to humans.

It's the protective instinct.

Researchers have shown, again and again, in results that are never effectively disputed, but always effectively ignored, that humans both male and female are more sympathetic and protective towards female strangers than male ones... by a vast margin.

The red pill already has a theoretical model for why this is so, but regardless of "why", the effect is the same.

People who are ruled by their protective instincts cannot abide hearing negative characterizations of women.

But in order to empirically investigate something, you must be willing to say what you see. No objectivity, no empiricism. Blue pillers effectively admit this in their use of language: we "objectify" women, they say. This is tantamount to an admission that speaking of women as objects, being objective about them, offends their sensibilities.

The distinguishing feature of a blue piller is not that he is less intelligent than his counterpart (I suspect that he is not), but that his intellectual capacity simply doesn't matter... it is not being used to observe the universe and learn. Instead, it is being used to rationalize the position that instinct demands that he hold.

This is why there is absolutely no point in reasoning with a blue piller, other than "entertainment value". Because you are talking to a reflex, not a person, and reflexes cannot be reasoned with.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

6 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I was just so upset for her.

Exactly.

Empathy, like everything else, is good in moderate amounts, but if there's too much, it can get in the way of other stuff. Many readers simply dismissed what she had to say about her relationship being generally good... they felt for her so strongly that they didn't listen to her or give her credit for the ability to know if her relationship was good or not.

They treated a married woman like an idiot child.

We're not automatically doing someone a favour by feeling sorry for them... it's only helpful if that is what they need.

So, sometimes, a slow count of ten is a good thing.

CMV: Men are still expected to honor societal contracts while women are taught full hedonism

6 upvotes · 5 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, so what you should understand here (and by "should", I mean for your own good) is that, because women have embraced full hedonism, you are completely free to ignore all these expectations.

The only material way that women can retaliate against you would be to withhold what they contribute... but they've already done that. What are they going to do, withhold it twice?

The reason that you are being barraged with appeals to guilt, honor, and shame (which is the phenomenon you are pointing out here) is that this is all they have left to influence you with.

So you can keep telling women to "stop that", and they will ignore you, because they have no sense of responsibility or fair play left... or you can learn to ignore that shit. Because absolutely nothing bad will happen to you if you do.

Why do men react so shrilly to "OnlyFans" but don't seem to have an issue with porn, strip clubs, sex phone operators, cam girls on porn sites...?

6 upvotes · 5 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So what is it that puzzles you? The fact that two men disagreed with each other?

Should I demote my LTR back to plate or am I overthinking this?

6 upvotes · 2 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

Agreed last week to make one of 4 plates my exclusive LTR.

She is an absolute smoke show and I guarantee she gets guys in her DMs all day but this just seems like blatant disrespect and potentially like she's doing things with this guy after she was the one to bring up the exclusivity talk.

Go to the back of the class.

This is degeneracy at it's peak

6 upvotes · 2 June 2021 · /r/MensRights

The phrase "emotional labour" is only used by those who don't do any.

Straight men will not spend a significant amount of time/are not close friends with a straight woman in whom they are not sexually or romantically interested.

6 upvotes · 25 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men invest effort in anyone, regardless of sex, who makes that experience rewarding.

What you are noticing is not that men don't want friends who happen to be women, but that women are generally bad friends to have.

If you do something for a man today, he tends to believe he owes you something, and he will try to do something for you tomorrow.

If you do something for a woman today, she tends to believe you now owe her that thing, and she is entitled to it again tomorrow.

Women aren't generally worth befriending unless you are sleeping with them, because they only make an effort for men they are sexually attracted to.

What to do when someone tries to steal your girl?

6 upvotes · 6 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Watch what she does.

A good mate will mate guard herself, and wants nothing to do with other men who hit on her.

Katie is at it again with this time saying that Men being nice and holding the door open for a women is sexiest

6 upvotes · 3 May 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

When I see a woman coming, I hold the door closed, so she can fight with me to get inside, and know that she has truly earned it.

She wants to bring an ugly friend over

6 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

You seem to be under the impression that we care about our "rep".

Why would we? TRP is here to talk about real shit, not win popularity contests. /u/RelativeWear0 feels disgusted by fat women, so he says so.

When we created TRP, we did so with the explicit goal of not policing for politeness. And we don't. This creates honest and productive discussions. The only drawback is that we occasionally get people like you whining that we aren't "nice".

I'm curious what purpose you think being nice would serve. What good would it do? Who would benefit?

Discussing relationship deal breakers and the adult entertainment industry

6 upvotes · 1 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Happy to be of help. It's very important to me that this group be available for any woman who needs advice, rather than simply shaming any woman who hasn't stuck to a certain set of rules in the past.

TradCon is RPW but RPW is not TradCon

6 upvotes · 28 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Marriage is not a form of commitment at all.

Marriage is a legal status. Commitment is a motivational state.

Do you guys lose interest in easy girls?

6 upvotes · 25 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

You may have the causal relationship backwards.

They are easy, and you lose interest in them, but this does not mean that you lose interest in them because they are easy.

They may very well be easy because they are the sort of girl you lose interest in.

it feels like I got the prize and the game is over

Precisely. A woman whose only appeal is the ability to sate your sexual needs has no appeal at all once your sexual needs have been sated.

They would not improve their appeal by spending more time playing hard to get, but by spending less time playing hard to want.

What else have we being lied to about?

6 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Science is a method whereby you examine evidence.

Nowdays, if you ask to see the evidence, instead of taking it on faith, they call you anti-science.

A demand for faith is the calling card of the charlatan.

What else have we being lied to about?

6 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

You seem to find this very upsetting that I like science as science instead of science as religion.

Evidence, motherfucker. Do you have any?

What else have we being lied to about?

6 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Do you mean this:

Only a small portion of the human race is effectively sentient...

?

Not talking about ethnicity (in this case). Only a small portion of the human species is effectively sentient.

If you "can't help who you're attracted to", then the opposite gender also can't help who they're attracted to either.

6 upvotes · 19 March 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The comment perfectly explains why "lonely guys" and a certain I word doesn't get sympathy.

Incorrect. Lonely guys don't get sympathy because they are guys.

The human species is hardwired to be protective of women, not men. This is because human females are extraordinarily helpless and in need of constant care and protection from birth to death.

All of these rationalizations about how incels don't get sympathy because they are terrible people are just that... rationalizations. Oh, they may indeed be terrible people, but if they were terrible and female, people would be sympathetic anyway.

It's not that men are getting the short end of the stick. No. That's the norm. There is instead a special long end of the stick that is reserved only for women.

How not to be fat.

6 upvotes · 18 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Absolutely. People, in general, do not need to avoid carbohydrates, or fast, in order to be healthy. These are techniques for correcting a sick metabolism, and they are totally unnecessary if you never fuck up your metabolism in the first place.

One example of this is China. Chinese people ate huge amounts of white rice for hundreds of generations, and they were fine. But now China has an 11% type 2 diabetes prevalence (even greater than the 8% rate in the US).

What happened? Refined sugar.

When Chinese people damaged their metabolic mechanisms with 5-carbon sugar (fructose), now the white rice, which was perfectly fine before, became unhealthy for them. This explains the 3% difference... because Americans are eating the sugar, but not the rice.

I am completely lost financially. Looking for advice.

6 upvotes · 18 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

I am still not convinced that living frugally is what will propel you to prosperity once you are making more than 60-70k a year.

I can make my coffee at home instead of buying Starbucks and save three dollars. Then I can pay someone $12,000 to fix my central air conditioning.

You are a highly skilled professional that comes from a family of rich Jews, and have lotsa millionaires in your social circle. Of course spending extra time to save a few bucks doesn't make sense for you.

Wealth building follows a geometric curve... the more resources you have, the more things you can do with those resources to secure more resources. So you can trade money to save valuable time that you can use to make more money, while broke motherfuckers gotta trade away their time for small amounts of money.

The real reason that the rich get richer is that they don't have to run to stand still. This frees them up for running to get ahead.

Time in the market trumps all.

Yes, exactly. Not just time in the market, but also time in the market. Can't start a company if you need a salary to eat.

Women aren't accountable because men don't care

6 upvotes · 16 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Not who.

What.

What is it you want them to like about you?

What have you got that's likable?

How not to be fat.

6 upvotes · 14 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

1. The availability of fastfood
2. busy schedules (with both partners working, kids, and hobbies, good cooking gets put in 2nd place)?
3. Eating alone.

Yeah, pretty much.

The two culprits, on a biochemical level, are frequent eating, and processed food.

And what you are pointing out here is some of the social-level culprits that cause people to eat processed food, and to eat frequently.

I would also add a few more to the list:

1. Feminism has caused cooking for the family to go out of fashion.
2. Sugar is addictive. The more they put in a food, the more of that food we buy.
3. Corn subsidies have drastically lowered the price of sugar and other processed food.
4. Food companies are actively promoting the myth that a calorie is just calorie, and your body treats them all the same.

... and so forth.

If people simply ate real food again, and ate it at mealtimes again, the obesity problem, and the healthcare crisis, would be solved. More radical solutions like fasting are only really needed for people whose metabolic health is already damaged.

I've slept with 13 men in my life time. I'm only 25. Whenever I think about it, I feel suicidal.

6 upvotes · 10 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Indeed.

The reason men shun promiscuous women is that the poor mental health that made them promiscuous in the first place is damaging to relationships. Past behaviour predicts future behaviour. N-count is the symptom, not the disease.

/u/vjqqq, your future focus should be on making sure you don't act crazy to men in your future, even though the men in your past acted crazy to you.

https://old.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/j3mlf4/so_what_if_youve_had_a_lot_of_partners/

Dentist told me to consider braces at the age of 35. Not confident about it.

6 upvotes · 9 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Are you not worth investing in? Do you have something better to do with your money?

Get a second opinion on the price, though.

Learning about the male protective instinct from my brother

6 upvotes · 7 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

+1

Does the gap in our sex experience make any difference?

6 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's generally good in sexual relationships for the male to be the more experienced one. This means he can teach and guide.

Which is an excellent opportunity for you to see how good a leader he is. If he just has demands of you about what he wants, which are unfamiliar and scary, that's bad... bail. But if he is able to be calm and confident, put you at ease, please you and teach you, step by step, how to please him... that's a very good sign.

Don't expect him to be able to magically make you not nervous, but do expect him to be able to handle you being nervous.

And if you are nervous... lube. Plenty of lube. Just trust me on this one.

Does the gap in our sex experience make any difference?

6 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

When you trust someone during an experience that's scary, and your trust in them is validated, and you have a good time, it's a very significant emotional experience. It's an intense bonding moment. It's like communicating in a language that's not spoken, but emotional. "I'm going to put my faith in you, I'm scared, please guide me through this." It's an honor to have someone be that vulnerable with you. And then you take care of them when they're vulnerable. And that creates an intimate bond.

+1

/u/luckylittlestar /u/pearlsandstilettos

This Article Will Infuriate You

6 upvotes · 5 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the core statement of fat cells releasing glucose into the bloodstream is wrong

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Gluconeogenesis>

You are correct about fat metabolism also occurring via its own pathway.

Threesomes are mostly silly and definitely overrated

6 upvotes · 2 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

True enough.

The way I would put it is that threesomes are not going to be good sex just because there are two girls. But if the sex would be good with either girl, then it probably will be even better with both.

Exactly how mainstream are Red Pill concepts? Just saw a 2xchromosomes post about a girl's experience with Trp hit the front page.

6 upvotes · 25 January 2021 · /r/askTRP

Ignore what women say. Watch what they do.

LTR invited millionaire male friend over for drinks

6 upvotes · 23 January 2021 · /r/askTRP

You already know. You just don't want to admit to yourself what you know.

It's not important whether she already cheated on you or not. She will. Girls don't do this if you are their number one choice.

Dafuq this supposed to mean sometimes, I just can't comprehend the other side

6 upvotes · 9 January 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I don't think with her attitude that it will happen.

Yes, that the core problem. Comfort-seeking and solution-seeking are often in conflict.

I'm one of the founders of r/theredpill, a group that has some superficial similarities to FDS. It's certainly not taboo to make negative generalizations about women there.

But the key difference is that it's solution-focused. Which means, blame yourself. Even if women are being horrible, blame yourself for not controlling them, or not avoiding the bitchy ones. Find the part that's your fault, and find the part you can control, change, and fix.

You cannot improve your weaknesses if you are unwilling to admit them to yourself.

Schrodinger's cat is cooming in its grave #2

6 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, I'd say that we can expect her to continue to say stupid things about men, because it's worked out pretty well for her. Who it hasn't worked out well for it the people who were dumb enough to listen.

There are plenty of good reasons to tell lies, but never any good reasons to believe them.

I'm genuinely worried for some of you, some of y'all need help

6 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

talk of being attracted to teenagers

Virtue-signalling horseshit. You can't reliably tell the difference between photos of 17 year olds and photos of 20 year olds.

How to deal with anxiety of dating HVM

6 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Let me start by saying you're only as high value as you view yourself.

Totally wrong.

Value in a relationship is what you bring to the party that your partner experiences as a benefit. There is nothing that prevents your partner from valuing something about you that you do not.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

6 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

This is why I am always dunking on tradconism in half the articles I write.

I believe that it's a bigger danger to young dudes than feminism. Not because it hates them more, but because it's harder to spot as an enemy.

A lot of the younger guys see feminism and its parent, cultural marxism, as the author of most all their problems, and they see tradconism fighting cultural marxism. So they think "the enemy of my enemy is my friend".

But that's wrong. The enemy of your enemy is your enemy's enemy, nothing more.

In truth, tradconism and cultural marxism are not fighting against or for you, but over you.

You, Mr. Young White Male, are the most powerful wealth-building engine in the known universe... you're young, vigorous, brave, and hard-working, but you're also creative and smart. It's the work of people like you, lumped together, that builds civilizations and empires.

Tradconism and neo-marxism are fighting over the right to exploit you for gain. And they are both trying to dupe you into becoming involved in that fight, by trying to browbeat or persuade you with arguments about the way the world "should" be.

Neo-marxism wants to harangue you about "justice" for the "underrepresented" (which never seems to include you, no matter how little representation you end up having). Jordan Peterson wants to have a "discussion" about the "relationship between responsibility and meaning" (by which he always means your responsibilities to others, never others' responsibilities to you).

Are you starting to notice that in all of this, no who wants your allegiance seems to be willing to pay you in anything other than moral lectures and promises?

Both of which cost them absolutely nothing to give?

"FDS has ruined my life" finally a confession. But still don't want to abandon this crazy ideology.

6 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Nah, you'll be fine. I founded the thing, and I'm still here.

Boyfriend can't fall asleep in bed next to me and wants separate bedrooms

6 upvotes · 22 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Not. Every. Thing. Is. About. You.

The man just wants his sleep.

Christ.

Incel, Feminism and FDS megathread

6 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

These women, while socially obnoxious, are in some sense victims of our culture.

Here and now, it is socially unacceptable to criticize women in any way, either individually or collectively.

Sources of this criticism exist (TRP, etc), but they are shunted away from the mainstream and not a part of the national discourse in any overt way.

Hell, Hollywood can't even make a decent female character, because it can no longer show a woman who struggles with anything, isn't good enough at anything, or indeed has any room for self-improvement.

The effect of all this is not to convince us all that women are wonderful (because we are not stupid and can see that they are made of the same selfish goo as the rest of us), nor is it to convince women that they are wonderful and should be filled with self-confidence (because they are not stupid either, and can see themselves failing at all sorts of things, including, in the case of FDS, attracting male love).

No, what the Big Lie that Women Are Wonderful has actually done is make women believe in the impossibility of self-improvement.

Why? Because every female protagonist in all the fiction that she watches or reads is immediately at the peak of her powers, and every female success story who hits the news is touted as an inherently amazing and flawless example of how glorious women are. A young girl growing up in this era and culture has very literally zero female role models, fictional or actual, who suck at something and then improve.

If a person goes through their entire life without being criticized or having any difficult tasks, they will be ruined. And when this happens to an entire group, well, guess what?

When a woman believes that her attractiveness is fixed at birth by genetics, unattractive women are going to do what people always do when they believe themselves helpless: complain a lot and take no action. This is FDS in a nutshell.

Fucked an ugly chick and am pretty disappointed in myself

6 upvotes · 20 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

So what?

The women you have fucked don't somehow rub off on you. The only ramifications of fucking an unattractive woman is that you're not going to be as turned on and enjoy yourself as much.

Girlfriend made fun of me to another guy at work on the phone for the second time and told me about it... shit test?

6 upvotes · 18 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

I'm color blind, and she said to her coworker on the phone (we all work together) after he made a mistake: "wait James, please don't tell me you are color blind too, I already have once of those hahaha"

"I already have one of those"

She just spoke of him as a replacement or alternative for you. Get rid of her. It's over.

Has "playing hard to get" ever worked for you?

6 upvotes · 17 November 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's great for attracting women.

Best friend owns exotic cars, lending me one while out of town, how to capitalize?

6 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

Precisely. I don't own a Porsche to get pussy. It wouldn't get me laid if I didn't already know how to get laid.

I have because I like to drive it.

Great weekend away with a girl, but I'm sick to my stomach

6 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

I flew out to her part of the world but she booked a the first few nights, bought a bunch of sexy lingerie, held my hand and grabbed my arm everywhere we went, and did anything I wanted in bed.

All this stuff is physical and sexual.

One of the major points of the Bitch Management Hierarchy is that your emotional investment is a reward for non-sexual benefits she provides to you. Never let a bitch fuck her way to commitment. You are not a slot machine where she pull the sex handle until she wins the relationship jackpot.

Is she fun to be with? Does she show real concern for your welfare? Does she do things of her own accord just to make you happy? Does she notice when you're having a bad day? Does she try to do something about it? Is she a good listener? Does she make you laugh? Does she criticize you, or does she build you up? Is she thoughtful? Is she obedient? Does she come to you with demands, or just tell you what's bugging her, and let you decide what to do?

Great weekend away with a girl, but I'm sick to my stomach

6 upvotes · 2 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

You feel sick on learning that she's a slut because you emotionally invested in her.

You emotionally invested in a woman based on what you saw of her, rather than what she did for you.

I'm worried that my earning potential/ambitious career is too 'masculine' and off-putting to men?

6 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's not your job that's the problem.

If none of the men who are attracted to you are attractive to you, then you have false ideas about how attractive you are.

There are plenty of attractive men out there, but they are not swiping right on you because they have options they like better.

Narcissist ex boyfriend using me as a bait for making his wife jealous, blocking my feminine journey, making me crazy. Should I involve my parents in this matter??

6 upvotes · 13 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why are you still in contact with him at all? What do you stand to gain by talking to him?

New Rule: "Leave Him" is never the 1st option.

6 upvotes · 19 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Hmmmm.

It wasn't just about women not being willing to put themselves out there and write... it was more about how the ones most qualified to do so lacked confidence that they had anything to say, or interest in saying it. While, simultaneously, there was no shortage of women with far too much confidence all too willing to jump into the gap with either the left-wing refrain of "kill all men", or the right wing one of "distrust all men".

In broader strokes, I think you're being a little black-and-white with this rule (there is such a thing as a straight up hopeless case), but I understand your frustration. I poked my nose in the other day and witnessed heavily upvoted comments telling a woman to divorce her husband because he used the word "flab" and hurt her feelings.

Seriously. That's not a made up example. That happened.

Everyone making comments like that, and everyone upvoting them, is selfish. They're willing to see a family destroyed just so they can vent their feelings of proxy outrage.

The cold hard truth is that relationships are more valuable to women than to men. So advising a woman to leave one is much graver than giving the same advice to a man.

Here's what I recommend:

- Make a special sidebar post called the "Seek Professional Help List". Populate it with items like physical violence, drug addiction, etc. When one of these weighty issues heaves into view, spam OP with links to that list. Internet strangers, however wise or well-intentioned, are not a position to provide the kind of support or direct intervention that situations like that require.
- If it's not on the list, commenters shouldn't be advising breakup of serious LTRs without having some other options to try first. If you're not willing to put in enough thought and effort to really talk to a person before saying "dump him" or "divorce him", then you're not paying enough attention to give advice.
- Just ban people who complain without trying to help, already. This kind of stuff is difficult enough without rampant negativity. In every group, male or female, there always seem to be those who delight in squabbling and trying to denigrate others, rather than seeking to work with them towards a solution. While some of those people can be taught to act better, the low success rate, and the time it takes, simply don't justify putting in the work. There's enough to be done with people who get it.

Ultimately, it's /u/redpillschool's ball and he calls the play, because he cared enough to create this place for people to benefit from.

Women don't respond well to being "called out" in the same way men do, but there has to be some way (that doesn't require the investment of hours or days of talk) to quash toxic advice.

Childfree friend is mad at me. Was I wrong?

6 upvotes · 16 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Oooh. Ironic.

I met a psychopath

6 upvotes · 5 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Not a psychopath. Not controlled enough. Too emotional.

Borderline maybe.

Very kinky - when to express this?

6 upvotes · 31 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Early. Sexual incompatibility cannot be worked around.

When shes asks do i look good ?

6 upvotes · 30 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

A girl who asks for your opinion on her face and body is submitting to you, placing you in the role of judge.

Toy with her a little, give a compliance test, then a little reward:

"Hmmm.... (long pause) ... give us a twirl (gesturing)."

(If she balks, coax her like you would a skittish horse.)

When she does:

"Hmm.... (long pause)... yeah, you'll do."

If she affects to offend, but in a playful, joking, manner, then you did it right.

Does anyone here feel like a sociopath? This is not a diss on the red pill. Trp has changed my life.

6 upvotes · 18 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Secondly, I think I am now subconsciously manipulating girls I'm dealing with. Even though this manipulation isn't super intense or super cold hearted, I just know what to say/text and when to say it to get a girl to do what I want.

This is how women think about you. All. The. Time.

They are simply thinking about what they want from you and how to get it. And they do not consider themselves "sociopathic" for doing so, because looking out for you is your job, not theirs.

This attitude is entirely healthy. I suggest adopting a congruent one.

I found Women who was Match maker. She quit because she could not handle female clients.

6 upvotes · 18 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Isn't one of the redpill philosophies to never get married?

Redpill isn't a philosophy, it's tactical advice.

I teach men to never sign those papers, because it's not in their best interest. I teach you how to get men to ignore me. Why? Because I'm a jerk, that's why.

Also, don't believe that all men are angels and will settle down if they find the "right" woman.

No men are angels. Be grateful for that, unless you enjoy harp music and no sex.

You get the behaviour you incentivize.

This is potentially dangerous advice bc some poor young woman could be reading this thinking she can transform a Peter Pan syndrome plate spinner just through being the perfect woman.

Blaming men for not getting what you want is a non-starter, because it's not actionable advice.

I don't advise men on how to "vet" women for "sex-readiness". I tell them how to become sexually attractive to women.

Similarly, I don't tell women how to "identify relationship-ready men". Because that's not how men work.

Turns out some people are raging dumbshits.

6 upvotes · 12 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a certain type of person (again, peak of the bell curve) who is prone to cargo cult thinking.

They might see smart people playing chess and arguing philosophy, and think that if they do these things, they will become smart, without understanding that being smart is what makes these people like chess and philosophy, not the reverse.

They might see men who are successful with women doing certain things and try to imitate their behaviour, without understanding which parts cause success with women and which parts are caused by success with women.

A lot of men here want a concise set of instructions for how to be X type of man, and it can be very hard to get them to see that X type of man is the kind of man that doesn't ask for instructions. It's a little bit zen-like in that we have to use koans and shit, because there's NO WAY TO EXPLAIN IT LITERALLY.

If you point at the moon, your dog is not going to look at the moon, he's going to sniff your finger.

Why the fuck isn't a clean diet one of the core principles of TRP?

6 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

needs to be at the forefront of our collective mission to save helpless comrades from their own mind.

That's not my mission. And that's not what u/redpillschool, and u/humansockpuppet, and /u/bsultansalt, and u/archwinger, and I, and the rest of us, built TRP for.

You can't save people from themselves. You can only give them the tools to save themselves.

Not only does this not imply women are being left behind, but their omission of men demonstrates the opposite. All these points are equally true form men. They may as well also conclude eating lunch is a female thing. Favorite tool of feminist stats: no control groups.

6 upvotes · 6 August 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Giant asteroid to collide with earth, wiping out all life: women, people of colour most affected.

"Sacrificing" her career

6 upvotes · 28 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's not about "society". If we say "society" over and over again, we create the real risk of men listening, and believing that it somehow could be some other way.

Human beings are programmed to be sympathetic to women and not men.. Every society, to varying degrees, is slave to this instinct, since those with a capacity for self-reflection are always in the minority.

There is no political solution to human instincts you don't happen to like. There is only the personal solution of individual men learning how to thrive without public sympathy.

How widespread is the notion of shaming women and girls for their femininity?

6 upvotes · 27 July 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Remember the tactics of the new left: DARVO. Deny, Attack, Reverse Victim and Offender.

Feminism accuses everyone else of being hostile to and contemptuous of women, but this is simply a Denial of its own misogyny, Attacking others by accusing them of the same, and Reversing the Victim and Offender roles by the same method.

The long standing notion of "femininity" involves being kind, empathetic, open, vulnerable, and submissive. But when anyone expects women to be this way, or acknowledges that they are this way, feminists accuse that person of being a misogynist.

And few people notice that this accusation is based upon the entirely unsupported assumption that a kind, empathetic, open, vulnerable and submissive person is a somehow a lesser being.

In the words of feminism's Lunatic-in-Chief, Simone de Beauvoir:

"When women act like women, they are accused of being inferior. When women act like human beings, they are accused of behaving like men."

... she saw feminine behaviour as "inferior", and masculine behaviour as "acting like a human being". She, and others like her, hated men, but coveted masculinity.

But don't men also regard feminine behaviour as inferior? Or at least as a worse way to act? Of course they do. They are supposed to. If they didn't, they wouldn't act masculine instead. But by the same token, women are supposed to regard masculine behaviour as less desirable, so that they will engage in feminine behaviour instead.

Feminists say, and sometimes even believe, that they are advocating for women, but they do so through a total rejection of female-centric values.

It's easy to realize this when you listen to their basic slogans... first, they were about "liberating" women. Then the language changed to "empowering" women. But feminine women only crave freedom when those with power over them are oppressing them instead of caring for them. And feminine women crave intimacy and community, not power and status. Claiming that women need to be "empowered" and "liberated", as opposed to valued, appreciated, and cared for is a total rejection of any sort of female-centric yardstick for measuring happiness and welfare, and its replacement with a masculine one instead.

So they ran about trying to "help" women by giving them a bunch of shit they hadn't asked for and don't want. And this is where the shaming comes in, because when women didn't want those things, they had to discredit those women, because the only alternative was to change their entire worldview and give up their crusade.

Toxic masculinity on display, boy saves his sister from being mauled by a dog

6 upvotes · 15 July 2020 · /r/MensRights

Don't you realize that the evil pre-rapist was making the condescending and deeply problematic assumption the little ~~girl~~ ~~woman~~ womyn wasn't perfectly capable of fighting off the pitbull by herself?

How can I deal with post nut regret?

6 upvotes · 31 May 2020 · /r/askTRP

This is simply a normal indication that the chicks you are banging are not LTR material. LTR material chicks are the ones who are nice to be around even when you are not horny.

What are some unwritten rules you follow in your home for the sake of your SO?

6 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm new to this subreddit and as a 20 y/o woman in a serious relationship I'm curious about RPW ideals, but I find it hard to agree with number 5 on your list.

No one asked you to.

You're not being told what to do, you're being told what she does. Are you going to argue that she doesn't?

The purpose of TRP/RPW isn't to give you a list of instructions for how to navigate your life, because such a list of instructions would have to so filled with if/thens and so complex, that it would actually be a sentient being.

No, TRP/RPW is here to give you enough examples that you can figure out for yourself the underlying principles (which do not lend themselves well to language).

Instead of asking yourself whether or not you "should" do as she does, try asking yourself why she does what she does, what effect it has, and what you can take from that.

My only sexual experience is with escorts, How do I change this?

6 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Confidence doesn't magically accumulate over time. You have to start talking to girls.

what are Easy hobbies that impress men and are not basic?

6 upvotes · 8 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Hobbies don't impress men.

1. Be as pretty as you can.
2. Be as nice as you can.
3. Be as approachable as you can.

Girl I've been dating complained that I don't tell her "I like her /care about her" enough.

6 upvotes · 3 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

This is an LTR red flag. It's not your job to make yourself like her, it's her job to make you like her.

Imagine how it would go if you complained to her that she wasn't sexually attracted to you enough.

these hoes really gonna abstain from sex for 2 months?

6 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Hoes can go without sex for a long time if they are getting InstaFaceTwit "likes".

Why is an opinionated woman a thing of repulsion?

6 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're welcome.

(And if you were watching carefully, you might have noticed I was giving you an example: "Do what I say, AND people will like you better.")

Your keen desire for justice does you credit, but remember that not everyone's definition of justice is exactly the same... so "should" actually means I want.

Which is fine. It's okay to want things. But to get others to want the same things, we have to give a reason, and an AND reason is always better than an OR reason, because people help you with enthusiasm, not reluctance.

Will men who "spin plates" move to polygamy once it becomes legalized?

6 upvotes · 22 March 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Exactly. The only thing that will make men interested in marriage again is changing marriage so there's something in it for them.

"You smell like my dad". Then leaves a puddle on the bed. Is this a red flag?

6 upvotes · 11 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Shut up until you find something worth saying.

Living together before marriage- is it a good thing? Why or why not?

6 upvotes · 27 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, I'd just hope you buckle up not out of fear, but out of a willingness to continue living

Anyone who doesn't see these two things as essentially the same has become confused about the difference between fear and cowardice.

Anger is your friend. It exists to tell you when you are unhappy with how you are being treated, and to help you find the motivation and energy to make a change.

In the same way, fear is your friend. It exists to tell you when you are in danger, and help you react appropriately.

Anger, or fear, only become pathological when they occur at inappropriate times, or in such intensity that you cannot react rationally. It is possible both to be too afraid of something, and to not be afraid enough of something. To understand how afraid of something someone should be, you need to understand something like what mathematicians call "expected value". In abstract, it's the likelihood of something occurring, times the cost if it does. Then you add this value from all the different possible outcomes together.

We don't wear our seatbelts because the likelihood of an accident is high. We do so because the expected value of wearing a seatbelt is greater than the expected value of going without.

If the expected value is negative, something is to be feared. And the expected value of marriage, as compared to cohabitation without marriage, can only be negative. Why? Because the modern legal version of marriage imbues the man with no rights or privileges whatsoever, only responsibilities and costs. Marriage cannot be a sensible move for a man unless it offers him something.

Can a woman ever make a man not desire other women?

6 upvotes · 27 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

For a lot of women, once we fall for a man, no other man exists. They're all beneath him in our eyes so we can't imagine desiring them.

We call this "hypergamy": a woman is only capable of feeling attracted to the man she is most attracted to at any given moment.

Could this ever be the case for men? Being naturally polygamous, it seems unlikely for a man to ever just want one woman no matter how great or gorgeous she is. Can this ever be the case?

Men are not hypergamous, so the literal answer to your question is no. However, men can be incentivized not to act on their desires.

If a woman shares her sexual history with a partner and it causes the partner to leave, then it's not a partner you want

6 upvotes · 26 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You are giving men far too much credit for altruism.

Men don't leave because they aren't what that woman wants. They leave because that woman isn't what they want.

A buddy has an interesting take on prostitution

6 upvotes · 30 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

I've said this before... cost/benefit analysis.

Rich attractive men don't pay whores to have sex with them... they pay whores to have sex with them and then go away afterwards.

Think about it this way. What is your time worth? And how much time do you have to spend on a woman per sex act (before and after)?

That's the cost of "free" sex. If a whore costs less, then a whore costs less. Going with a pro isn't a "cop out" or "cheating" because seduction isn't a game. It's what you do to get laid.

How big can you really get without using steroids and is it worth it?

6 upvotes · 23 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm about your height, and I weigh in at about 225-230. People keep telling me I look like a freak beast, and I know they're right, but I don't feel huge... and neither will you.

Why? Because it comes on slowly. The size you are will always feel... normal. Average sized. The proper size for a person to be. You'll never feel big. But other people will see you that way.

We get used to stuff. One of my girlfriends is pixie-sized, and somehow that doesn't seem small, just right-sized for her. Ditto for the other, who is somewhat amazonian, and nearly as tall as I am.

Point is, just lift. Just eat right. Just sleep a lot. Don't worry so much about the destination, and learn to take pleasure in the sense of accomplishment you get from adding 3 pounds to the bar that you couldn't lift last week. The other day I took delivery of my fancy new trap bar, and discovered in the fine print that its rated load limit is less than my deadlift max by a fair amount. Oh, well. Guess I'll abuse it til it breaks.

Be disciplined, be consistent, be patient. Don't take foolish risks and hurt yourself so you can't train. Just do your program and let the progress stack up.

Perpetual red pill rage: are some men better off MGTOW forever?

6 upvotes · 21 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Whether the juice is worth the squeeze depends not only on the juice, but on how good you are at squeezing.

Shrooms shut off all the noise. You feel like you're radiating out presence. Is this the goal of frame?

6 upvotes · 2 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

No.

Frame is the context, flow, and topic of an interaction. It doesn't have a goal.

The goal of frame control is to control the frame, and thus control how it effects others.

The goal of using psychoactive drugs is to stimulate yourself.

Women have the best of both worlds - they are treated on par with men (because of feminism/equal rights), but they can still revert to acting like a woman (being vulnerable, submissive, a victim, no responsibility, the man taking charge)

6 upvotes · 20 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The push for equality didn't make it past the moment the name was chosen.

Not surprising. Feminism isn't an ideology at all. It's a tactic.

1. Decide on something you want.
2. Convoluted a convoluted argument that you not getting it is harmful to women.
3. Cry to Daddy Patriarchy that it's unfair until the male protective instinct kicks in.

4. Get it handed to you.

5. Go to #1.

Ironically, feminism is a male-centric and submissive outlook. It teaches women to get what they want from male authority figures by appealing to them.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would teach women to protect themselves, not whine to Daddy Patriarchy about rape.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would tell women to start their own companies, not whine to Daddy Patriarchy about a wage gap.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would tell women to create their own clubs and organizations, not whine to Daddy Patriarchy for inclusion.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would teach women to succeed and not care what men think, not whine to Daddy Patriarchy about sexism.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would teach women to live their lives independently, not whine to Daddy Patriarchy about standards and expectations.

If feminism was about empowerment, it would target all its instructions at women, and make no demands whatsoever of men, because it would be teaching women to need nothing from them.

But women can never be empowered, and will always be slaves, because they are hardwired to be slaves. They are not capable of being free, because if you free a woman, she will simply look around for someone to tell her what to do and who to be. Even their idea of rebellion ended up being "get men to take care of us more".

A woman needs liberation like a bicycle needs a fish.

About to leave my husband for the new man

6 upvotes · 17 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is hypergamy at work.

I've often pointed out that women, when looking for a mate, are charting a course between Scylla and Charybdis... choose a man who's too desirable, and you risk failing to hold his attention amidst the competition, but choose one who is not desirable enough, and you risk becoming dissatisfied and cheating on him.

As a serial homewrecker myself, one of the things I have noticed time and time again is that the women who cheat with me always, always, always have deep problems with their marriages already.

And so I am reading what you are NOT saying. You do NOT say anything about how crazy you were about your husband when you first met him. You do not talk about how you used to love him.

I suspect you married a man who was... convenient. Stable. Easy to get. Seemed nice enough. He would do fine. That you may have loved him, but you were never in love with him. Go on. Tell me I'm wrong.

You didn't screw up now, you screwed up 8 years ago. And the longer you let a problem lie, the more difficult is to fix.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

6 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

Eight going on nine. The other one is more recent.

Whoever thinks that AWALT means all women act the same is not reading carefully. It means all women are like "that".

Like what?

Like every other woman.

Every woman out there contain the recipe for every behaviour that is characteristic of women. Which ones they express depends upon their surroundings, both past and present. Water takes the shape of the container you pour it into.

This means the men of every society get precisely the women they deserve. (Or perhaps the women their fathers deserved.) Women's behaviour is entirely determined by men's behaviour. Feminism is men's fault. The cock carousel is men's fault. Spoiled fussbudget women? Men's fault.

Our great (x?) grandfathers were weak and foolish enough to let them vote. Our grandfathers let them play career. Our fathers let them dismantle the nuclear family. Our generation let them get away with acting like spoiled rotten brats.

None of this is their fault. None of it. Unsupervised children cause trouble. That's their nature. When you understand that ALL women are like that, you realize that it's not women's fault, because if it's ALL of them, then that is the nature of women, and what sense does it make to blame someone for their nature?

So women can be loyal if you inspire that in them. They are whatever you train them to be. And if you neglect their training, then you are just training them to be something you probably won't like.

Let's "Steel-Man" Both Positions

6 upvotes · 7 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A women who has sex without commitment is equivalent to a man who commits without receiving sex. This is why the slurs "whore" and "cuck" so clearly articulate the worst qualities of each sex. In both cases, you are a door mat. You are giving yourself freely while demanding nothing in return.

Well put. I would point this if it were said on TRP.

Wtf are all the labels that girls are using on dating apps nowadays?

6 upvotes · 5 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you worry about what women mean, you paying attention to what women say.

Ignore what they say, watch what they do.

Should /r/TheRedPill be banned? Looks like Reddit admin think so...

6 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You really aren't that good at shit testing, you know that? Am I now supposed to fall all over myself trying to convince you how important I am?

I don't care.

As for reddit, it is sufficient to observe that steering wheels don't teach you how to drive, and that if I buy a horse for three billion dollars, it doesn't magically become a three billion dollar horse, it simply becomes a horse that some dude was foolish enough to pay three billion dollars for.

Reddit doesn't know how to monetize its audience, because is audience is largely anonymous. Facebook is valuable because it knows a lot about its product. Reddit doesn't, and it isn't. Trying to cultivate a safe disneyland image to court advertisers isn't going to help. Neither would going the opposite way. There may not be a good way to run an anonymous BBS at a profit unless you have an actual product to sell.

Reddit doesn't actual create anything, and the market abhors a middleman.

50-50: Using The Red Pill to try to accomplish Blue Pill goals

6 upvotes · 24 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

A man who says that relationships are impossible, and hookups are what women are for, is a man who has learned how to attract women, but not how to control them.

Redpilling the Redpill: Attractiveness is all that matters

6 upvotes · 15 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, you went on one date, got rejected, and decided you were rejected because of your looks, and that therefore looks are all that matter.

Then you decided you were going to come "teach" all of us the "truth".

Riiiiiiight.

Scoring some wife points

6 upvotes · 10 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I met a new female employee who is objectively hotter than I am... Instead, I just enjoyed meeting her & noted why I thought she was hotter... I could then decide to:

+1

One of the most difficult lessons to absorb for both men and women is how to make envy into a productive emotion by trying to imitate instead of stab.

/u/pearlsandstilettos

Why do Red Pillers fetishize traditional masculinity?

6 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Of course they would.

Societies, or at least the parts of them that aren't young men, directly benefit from the labour, sacrifice, risk taking, and even death, of young men. Empires are built with the corpses of boys. So naturally any plan that young men come up with for getting laid that doesn't involve labour and sacrifice is going to make tradcons upset.

And that's precisely what the red pill strategy is. Don't be hardworking provider. Don't be a soldier risking your life just to look manly. Be a cad instead of a hero. Live for yourself, for your benefit, in a fashion that shows masculinity, and allow that to draw women to you.

In the broadest possible sense, feminism and tradconism differ only by their methods, not by their goals. They both seek the best way to use men as an instrumentality to serve female needs and desires as an end. The differences are only cosmetic, and amount to tradconism patting you on the head while it exploits you, where feminism chooses to spit on you instead.

We wrote TRP to be a way for man to treat their needs and desires as an end unto themselves, and themselves as people who can seek their own benefit, not merely be the means to someone else's.

To live as a full-fledged human being in his own right, a man must learn to resist appeals to guilt, honor, or shame.

Which, If any, parts of TRP do you consider to be morally wrong or using the wrong tone, yet factually correct or efficient?

6 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everything ends. The universe will eventually wind down into homogeneous entropic chaos, and there will be no life or meaning ever again.

All happiness, all love, all pleasure, and all life are temporary.

Enjoy them while you can.

Which, If any, parts of TRP do you consider to be morally wrong or using the wrong tone, yet factually correct or efficient?

6 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't teach pushing through. Not because it's "wrong", but because it doesn't work. The canonical redpill way to deal with LMR is the exact opposite of pushing through.

It's called the "freeze-out".

If she tries to put the brakes on a little bit, you put them on more. Without showing the slightest hint of bitterness or disappointment, you withdraw further than she did. Put your shirt back on. Roll over on the bed away from her. Start playing with your phone. Perhaps even start gathering your stuff and make as if to leave.

Empirically, this works. (The explanation as to why is lengthy.) Pushing through usually doesn't. It just raises the defenses further.

The Wrong Girl

6 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't find gossipy personal vendettas to be particular masculine. Nor do I find appeals to democracy (as opposed to rule by those who have shown investment and merit) to be particularly masculine, either.

Let's be 100% clear and concrete: You want Rollo banned. In order for this to happen, you have to convince RPS and/or me. You have been unable to convince RPS, and you never even tried talking directly to me.

Instead, you have chosen to argue, I am not sure exactly to whom, that this some matter of deep principle, and that TRP is no longer running according to masculine principles if you don't get your way. This, of course, is an undischarged premise. It is simply taking what you tried to persuade RPS of (and failed), and using it as a premise of your next argument.

But the obstacle between you and your goal remains the same. If you want Rollo banned, you must persuade those who can make that happen that it is in our best interests to do so. It is your responsibility to persuade, not ours to be persuaded, because you are the one who wants something, not me.

I'm still listening (although my patience is not infinite), but thus far you haven't presented me with an argument, only aspersions that if I don't give you what you want, I (and everyone else in this space) are girly-men or something.

Well, that form of argument didn't work on me when feminists tried it (give us free cookies or you are a bad mans), so why would you expect it to work now? I am rather taken aback by your low opinion of my perspicacity.

The Wrong Girl

6 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Some overlap, yes. The same? Absolutely not.

Men and girls may hear the same environmental noise, but they listen in different ways, because their brains are fundamentally different.

I invite anyone who thinks I am incorrect about this to take any article he has written on TRP, post it verbatim on RPW, and see what happens. (And that is a best-case scenario, because it is the most sympathetic female audience you will ever find for this stuff.)

Reaching a female audience, however, is somewhat beside the point. Girls are the substrate of the sexual marketplace, not the actors within it. Anything they do, and any way they are, is a response to what men have done, or failed to do. I am the only TRP writer who writes advice material for women in any significant capacity, and for good reason... because it doesn't fucking matter. It effects almost no one, and changes almost nothing. (And I am doing it only because I enjoy the process.)

There is no female infosphere. Women who take the red pill do not help others. They secure the affections of a desirable man, then they fuck off out of the sexual marketplace, and don't talk about it, because they don't give a shit about other women, and building things is not diverting or satisfying to them.

Speaking to a female audience builds nothing beyond the lives of the individual women listening, and most of them are too busy fussing about their feelings or some other nonsense to even understand the message.

To be an effective writer in the redpill sense, all you have to do is have something useful to say, and be able to transmit those ideas to a male audience, because they are the only ones who make a damn bit of difference.

So whenever I appoint an EC, I ask myself two questions. Is he speaking valuable information? Is he understandable to those who wish to learn and improve themselves? Anything else is just background noise.

Anybody else demote plates who hate cum?

6 upvotes · 14 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why be so specific?

If a girl isn't fun to be with, for whatever reason, don't devote more time to her.

Woman wants to open marriage to "explore her sexuality", then gets mad if husband gets laid.

6 upvotes · 5 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What is this equality bullshit?

I fuck other women when I chose. Both my LTRs are not allowed to fuck other men.

Any questions?

How do you maintain a LTR without oneitis?

6 upvotes · 3 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

u cant

Wrong.

Love is not oneitis. Oneitis is the belief that a particular girl is special and cannot be substituted for or replaced, that she is the only one for you. Spinning plates helps you realize that there are plenty of women out there, and that many of them would do perfectly well for a relationship... if you train them properly.

You can absolutely, by all means bond with a girl without developing oneitis for her. I've been with FunSize for almost eight years. Of course I love her. But I haven't lost attraction to other girls, or interest in them (lucky for FanGirl).

Some girls are worth emotionally investing in, and being able to love someone feels very good indeed, if you've picked a worthy girl and trained her right. Sure, you could be an anger phase dude spinning plates, forever, but you really wouldn't want to. It's more fun this way.

If FunSize got hit by a bus, or developed cancer, or whatever, and she was just... gone, of course I'd grieve. I'd be scarred inside, permanently. I accept that. But I'd replace her eventually, with another awesome girl who, while she would not be the same, would still be as good.

TRP was never a recipe for how to become dead inside. It's for not being a weakling who women will exploit rather than adore.

What's the deal with fat chicks becoming aggressive and declaring their interest pretty fast? I almost got raped one time.

6 upvotes · 29 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Never let the girls decide who you're going home with.

Should I insist? Is chasing unattractive?

6 upvotes · 27 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You are confusing what you like with what works.

Why do I keep choosing to ignore red flags?

6 upvotes · 25 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Precisely. Many women seem to think that they are supposed to get something just because they want it. But raising the price doesn't raise the value.

/u/SaintPatrice isn't any more valuable now as a sexual partner or a relationship partner than she was when she was ~~hooking~~ slutting it up. She has merely raised her expectations, not what she has to offer.

Men don't want to give commitment in exchange for what others got by swiping right and buying four drinks.

If a woman has a promiscuous past, the only thing she can do to mitigate (not erase) it is to become much more attractive and desirable as a partner in every way, to the extent that the woman seeking a relationship isn't really recognizable as her former self at all.

Losing twenty pounds isn't anywhere near enough, and working on her career doesn't effect desirability at all.

/u/SaintPatrice needs to realize that just as every woman is a same night lay for a desirable enough man, every man is ready to commit to a desirable enough woman. Which means that if men aren't interested in committing to you, it's because they are out of your league.

My ltr wants to watch me with another girl

6 upvotes · 13 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Anyone who says this is necessarily a trap is a novice.

Girls will do and enjoy seriously kinky shit with men they are enthralled with.

Girls who like to watch their man with other girls often have a humiliation fetish. Try verbally degrading her during sex. If she goes wild, you pretty much know why she asked for this.

Then you can go for it, and do humiliating stuff to her as part of the action, such as making her service the other girl orally.

Bear in mind that the best tool for girls who are into humiliation is your voice. Learn to use it well.

Ended a 7 year LTR and went ghost because she went crazy, and her friend reached out

6 upvotes · 3 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Ignore what women say.

Watch what they do. They are all talking about you. They are all thinking about you.

Don't waste time talking or thinking about them.

What's the deal with cold showers? Does it do anything?

6 upvotes · 30 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

if not anything else, cold showers train you to go through shit you really dont like which is definitley useful.

Or you could just be a real man and stab yourself in the eye with a fork.

Don't be a dimwit. Just because progress is painful doesn't mean pain is progress.

I failed! LTR asks for permission to "have a coffee" with a fuckbuddy she used to date before. I didn't react well, how can I save this?

6 upvotes · 27 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Without better information on the relationship, it's hard to say, but in general, unless you have established good Control Game in the relationship, and could tell her "No, you're not doing that." and get a clear "Yes, {Daddy | Master | Sir | etc }" in response, here's a good way to deal with a girl who asks permission to do something that is a deal-breaker.

Act like you have misunderstood, and think she is breaking up with you. Be nonchalant about it, display not the slightest hint of rancor, tell her it's been fun, remind her not to forget her toothbrush from the bathroom.

Then, when she backs up and tries to explain, eventually "get it", and explain your misunderstanding... she was going to go and do something that only single people do, etc.

Eventually she will get to "So you're saying if I did this, you'd break up with me?", to which you answer: "Nah, you'd be breaking up with me."

But the important question is: Why would a girl act like this?

It's not as simple as the novices in the cheap seats here are saying. She's not "planning to cheat on him". Why not? Because girls who plan to cheat or branch swing don't ask permission to see the new dude. They write to him in secret, buy burner phones to call him in secret, meet with him in secret, and make up elaborate stories to explain away the rough-sex bruises.

But she's asking permission to do something grossly disrespectful.

Could it be that she doesn't know it's grossly disrespectful? Could she simply not know how to act? No, that doesn't scan, either. If she had no clue it might be disrespectful, then she would perhaps mention, but she wouldn't ask permission.

No, girls know that meeting with exes carries some weight. Meeting up with an ex of any sort without her man's specific permission is obviously gross disrespect.

My suspicion is that he has waited too long to institute Control Game, and she is shit testing him to see if he will eventually step up and take command.

How to spot time wasters ?

6 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you're not getting either blown out or encouraged, then you are not escalating enough. At every point, her body language needs to be saying "yes" or "no". If it isn't, then your actions have not implied anything.

What does it mean if a chick asks if you have a girl?

6 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

"What do you mean, 'a' girl?" is a good banter response.

What the fuck is the Purple Pill Debate?

6 upvotes · 21 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

A pointless quivering blob of jelly that occasionally does amusing things if you poke it with a stick.

"Oooo dominant, I love it" Good thing?

6 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

No.

But I have no plans to get rid of her ever unless she really screws up in some totally unexpected fashion.

Getting monkey branched to feels kinda gross

6 upvotes · 11 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

No, you're not homosexual. You just haven't purged yourself of the weakness of externally imposed morality.

Girls gonna branch swing. ALL girls. A.W.A.L.T.

Stop being disgusted. It has nothing to do with their character. Attraction is instinctive. Girls will want to branch to you anytime you are attainable and hotter than their bf/husband, and want to branch away from you anytime someone is attainable and hotter than you.

The idea that "if she'll cheat with you, she'll cheat on you" (something I used to think, myself) is an intermediate RP perspective. When you become a master, you will realize that ALL women are like that. They will all cheat with you or on you... it just depends on you.

Don't wanna get cheated on? Have tight game.

The Red Pill changed one of my endgame goals: Marriage. Yet, there are times when I romanticize about that Blue Pill life. What methods have helped you move on from your deeply ingrained Blue Pill mindset?

6 upvotes · 8 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Remember that the Red Pill catalogues tactics, not a lifestyle.

These tactics make women adore you. What you do with that adoration is entirely up to you.

I have lived with my LTR for many years, spin plates on the side when I feel like it, and am now in the process of promoting a second LTR who looks as if she is going to prove worthy, with a little polishing. She might get to move in with us if things work out.

So if you thought the ability to consistently pull chicks from nightclubs was the endgame, you were sadly mistaken. Did you think you couldn't have love? Of course you can. You just have to practice your game and improve yourself, until women start seeing you as a god.

Then they will not only go along with any type of lifestyle you want, but be deliriously happy to be included in it.

There is nothing in the Blue Pill fantasy that you can't make attainable with Red Pill reality and a metric fuckton of hard work.

Game of Thrones is going downhill because the writers are male

6 upvotes · 8 May 2019 · /r/MensRights

Published source material. The eighth season is a train wreck because they are in such unexplored territory that even the author is unable to guide them.

Girlfriend says "it sucks" that I'm not the jealous type how do I proceed?

6 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

"Heh, jealousy makes you feel loved? Makes sense, but to be possessive about you, I'd have to own you. Earn your collar first."

What is the secret of ugly or broke men that get laid?

6 upvotes · 27 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Are still hanging around whining instead of facing your fears?

How would you rather have spent today? In bed with two girls, or finding an excuse why it isn't your fault you didn't?

The Intellectual Yet Idiot

6 upvotes · 5 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

This is simply my article on Scienceism in Taleb-speak.

As an additional observation, the reason that rednecks are so frequently right, and academic experts so frequently wrong is that there is a hierarchy of knowledge, in order of usefulness:

1. Specific experience about the exact problem under discussion.
2. Specific experience with other very similar problems in the same field.
3. Specific experience with analogous problems.
4. General expertise about the field of the problem.
5. Being highly intelligent.
6. Being highly educated in some other field.
7. Having a degree from an Ivy League school that naive people still think admits students based on merit.
8. Sounding intelligent by reading a teleprompter well like Barrack Obama.

The split between rednecks who get shit done, and academics who come up with grandiose theories and break stuff, generally happens around #4.

This is, for example, why the newly-formed Soviet Union decided to teach the peasants how to grow food. After all, they were educated men with fancy degrees, and the peasants were just a bunch of yokels who could barely read and hadn't done anything for generations except... grow food.

Always Be Sure to Tie a Live Duck to Your Right Ankle.

6 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Am I going to have to apologize to everyone to whom I inadvertently gave a duck-bondage fetish?

Gf teary-eyed/crying after or during sex

6 upvotes · 27 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

For men, sex is primary about relieving desire, and secondarily about pleasure. That's more or less it. We'll pretty much fuck any woman who is attractive, nice to us, not crazy, and not carrying strange diseases.

For women, sex requires, invokes, and increases emotional attachment. A woman who loves you, loves you most after sex.

If she's literally weeping with joy after sex, then she has pretty fucking strong feelings for you all the time. It's the expression that's being set off by the sex.

Is there a female equivalent of wife goggles?

6 upvotes · 20 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Male attractiveness is mostly behavioural.

He's probably hotter to you because you have more familiarity with his level of confidence and competence, but older men with good behavioural qualities are attractive even to young hot women.

Familiarity tends to amplify a man's attractiveness state... a hot dude you know very well is hotter, a not-hot dude you know very well is even less hot.

The same thing is true of age.

I'm autistic and I think I might have fucked up.

6 upvotes · 13 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

You went from 0 to 100 right away.

Since she is used to you acting like an orbiter, and a beta, nonsexual being, sexual innuendo on your part doesn't change that impression, it just comes off as creepy.

You're going to have start fresh with another girl or three.

Being on the spectrum doesn't change what you have to do, it just means you have to spend more time trying to learn, and fail more before you get it right.

Make your peace with that.

Discussion: Do you want children? What is the best way to have children?

6 upvotes · 5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you want children?

No.

What is the best way to have children?

No idea. Don't really care.

I find it so difficult to make a man fall in love with me.....because I can not control my sexual urges.

6 upvotes · 2 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm going to reject this girl because she didn't make me wait long enough for sex.

.... Said no man. Ever.

My boyfriend (19/m) and i have only been together about 2 months, and he's already suggesting we sleep together, would it be prudish of me if i said no?

6 upvotes · 1 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you're not ready to be intimate after two months, you never will be, because you're not that into him.

Stop wasting your time and his. If you don't desire him, you shouldn't be dating him.

Is it deception to get my scars removed?

6 upvotes · 28 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why would improving your appearance be deceptive? There's no lie here, if you remove the scars, your appearance actually will be improved.

I would recommend being verbally honest about your past, of course.

Disgusted by Tinder sluts?

6 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I went to Hoes-R-Us, and all I found there was hoes! I'm so disgusted! How does this happen?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

6 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Because I tested it before I wrote it, and then I tested it again by hearing the results achieved by those who learned from me.

The TRP that you see written on the internet is less than half the actual phenomenon. The majority of takes place in the experiences of individual students when they test all this stuff in the field. This part is not accessible to anyone who isn't trying it (and thus, it's not accessible to women at all).

This is why I don't really spend much time justifying or "proving" TRP to non-participatory observers anymore. I don't really care if they believe me or not. They don't have any skin in the game. So I tend to ignore them or toss out flippant answers, toy with them, and chuckle as they rage at my refusal to engage in whatever debate they were expecting.

Because ultimately, they are not my intended audience, and, moreover, they never CAN get it, because they're never going to go out and do it. They're never going to understand what it looks and feels like put into practice.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

6 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I suspect it's mostly about not caring. TRP teaches how not to give fucks, and how a flippant answer is often better for the speaker in the long run than the most well-reasoned argument.

PPD is really nothing but a flea in the tail of the TRP bear. Nothing serious is happening there, so there's very little reason not to screw around.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

6 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

And what should be done (if anything) to resolve any issues?

You're trying to fit TRP into the same sort of mental space that feminism occupies.

TRP isn't a movement for social change. We do not judge "society" as bad or good, or have a plan for what we want to transform it into. Instead, we choose to regard it as the terrain... it's there, it is what it is, and we plan accordingly.

What we do here is teach men to navigate that terrain, for their own purposes.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

6 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Or both.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

6 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that the TRP crowd probably is more handsome than average, overall. But not for the reason you think.

You see, the foundation of what we call "game" is building unshakeable confidence. It's not that ugly men cannot make this journey... but they often fail to start because they believe they cannot succeed.

What might be more instructive than looking for ugly men who have amazing game and get laid a lot (which would require doxxing a lot of TRP), would be to look for handsome men who have no game (these guys can be found anywhere). There are some jaw-dropping dudes out there who simply cannot seal the deal.

I myself have been relatively blessed in this respect (a picture of me on FunSize's desk at work once drew a crowd of other girls commenting that "your boyfriend looks like a movie star"). However, prior to learning some real game, it actually didn't do me much good.

You see, when you are a gorgeous woman, men will come up and hit on you. When you are a gorgeous man, girls will hang around and wait for you to hit on them. Men offer things to beautiful women. Women want things from handsome men.

As a teenager, I was subjected to an amazing amount of mysterious tantrums that I only understood many years later. Girls did not simply fall into my lap.

Physically handsome guys. Do you notice girls are more friendly/assertive to your less attractive friends than you? Or do they throw themselves at you like people would think?

6 upvotes · 10 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Good looks are only a force multiplier on game. If you have no game, then zero times anything is zero.

If high N count is bad for a women, then why do all these high SMV rappers end up LTR/marrying high N count women?

6 upvotes · 28 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because low-count women don't hang out with rappers.

There's a certain tendency among high-status men who bang lots of groupies who eventually wife up the hottest of the town bicycles (Kanye West, etc), often with a side order of "celebrity/status symbol" Why?

Because if you are banging groupies all the time, monogamous virgins don't exist to you.

It's not that a rapper couldn't, theoretically, pull one. But it would require him to go find one, and then seduce her, which is certainly not impossible, but it's a bit like going foraging when you have a full fridge downstairs. After a while of this, you just get used to hoes.

Remember that rappers typically aren't full-fledged red pill guys. They are only Chad; which means they have abundance mentality, and indifference game, but they don't truly, consciously understand the dynamics of what is going on. So they don't think "Oh, I have the urge to settle down with someone now, but you can't turn a hoe into a housewife, so I'm going to go outside my social circle, and start cold-approaching Catholic university girls who don't like rap."

Personally, I think a lot of rappers could totally pull that off, albeit with a lot more work than they are used to. But it doesn't occur to them to try.

6"2 roided chad called me nigger behind my back don't think he would have a problem doing it again either. What to do in future if it happens again?

6 upvotes · 27 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Yeah, and trp.red.

Is it easy to 50 year old women to have sex on online dating apps?

6 upvotes · 20 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't know, don't care.

Hypergamy is Monogamy

6 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If this is true, hasn't the concept of marriage been dead since it's conception? I read somewhere (might have been you, Whisper, iirc) that someone was trying to reconcile women's behaviour by saying that traditional society's set-up had it right.

I don't think it was me. Of all the TRP names, I think /u/HumanSockPuppet and I are tied for "most anti-Tradcon".

Still, it's an interesting question, and worth asking. I think society's setup worked well enough... until it didn't. I believe it was technological and economic changes that killed marriage, and feminism is a symptom, not a cause, of that death.

To understand why marriages could often survive hypergamy in the old world, Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, or something like it, becomes important... not for what Maslow thought the specific needs were, which are debatable, but for the realization that needs exist in a hierarchy, which is not.

If a woman is going to starve or freeze to death, or be ostracized by the community, the moment she is disloyal, then she will be obedient or at least very circumspect, regardless of her desire for a breath of fresh Chad, because survival and safety are more fundamental than the need for Chad.

In the modern world, this no longer holds true.

This is one of the reasons why I am anti-tradcon. Not merely because I don't believe the death of marriage can be reversed, but also because I don't think it was ever all that fun. It was merely held together under pressure by the threat of death or ruin.

In the future, the distinction between LTR and marriage will further vanish regardless of who wins the culture war (although if the SJWs win, we'll eventually revert to the preindustrial era, and tradconism may make a comeback).

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

6 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So, having utterly failed to establish the utility of philosophy (worry not, no one else ever succeeded either), you seek to justify it on aesthetic grounds.

But you run into the same problem of subjectivity. My pragmatism may be ugly to you. But it isn't ugly to me. Any alleged ugliness is therefore your problem, not mine. And this is, in fact, where our values differ further still, because if it was ugly, I wouldn't care. It is accurate, and it empowers me.

The reason that you are so insistent that philosophy is useful, or beautiful, or otherwise, somehow, important, is that somewhere down inside you, in the places you don't talk about with your college friends, you know that I am right.

That philosophy is just a game whose only real purpose is to stimulate idle brains and stave off boredom. See, I'm okay with that. Everyone likes a good wank, including the prefrontal cortex. Some people like to write erotic Harry Potter fan fiction, some people like to argue about what truth is, or LARP as communist revolutionaries without actually picking up an AK-74 and possibly getting shot or thrown from a helicopter.

But philosophers are notoriously insecure about their enjoyment of a good wank, so they come up with all sorts of fatuous reasons why philosophy is "important". Having dismissed "utility" and "aesthetics", we now move on to "understanding", viz:

working out why fucking heaps of chicks is worth it is a bit more difficult (and perhaps raises questions you don't want to answer)

Of course, the thing here that philosophers don't want to face is that this question isn't difficult at all. It's dead easy. It's so easy it was asked and answered long ago, and we don't talk about the answer because it's boring. The only people who find this question difficult are the ones who find that answer upsetting, and are casting about desperately for another plausible answer to put in its place.

Well, sorry, you're a rat in a Skinner box pressing a lever just like the rest of us. Philosophy may be your means of objecting to that, but it's not your reason for objecting to that. The reason is that your ego demands a more central role in the universe. Too bad for you.

This is also why you assume that anyone who doesn't care about philosophy must be dumb. Because you can't conceive of a being that simply accepts being an upgraded ape, and so you assume anyone whose ego does not demand more is simply too dumb to understand the question.

Sorry, but your search for meaning has nothing to do with your intellect and everything to do with your emotional needs.

Get your Balls back

6 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

a woman who's dying for a breath of fresh Chad anyways

That got a laugh.

How to avoid being a TRP NPC

6 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

By the very act of sharing a meme you are reproducing a collective thought or expression; becoming an NPC yourself in a sea of NPC memers.

You're not generalizing enough. All ideas are memes. The concept of a meme is, in and of itself a meme.

Use what is useful. Discard what is not.

LTR keeps bringing up other guys hitting on her

6 upvotes · 5 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

- Playing hard to get.
- Withholding sex for leverage.
- Courting by demonstrating value instead of investment.
- Boasting.
- "Confidence is sexy."
- Pretending to be unavailable.
- Tough girl acts in general.
- Career building.

Unaware of the privilege of being attractive

6 upvotes · 3 December 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Am I even an interesting person?

If your writing is anything to go on, no.

New GF texting a guy she met at the club

6 upvotes · 23 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why the fuck are you in an LTR with a girl who would even consider going to nightclub without you?

Because you are a fucking loser who will tolerate disrespect to get pussy. Stop that.

Master-post for combating feminist propaganda

6 upvotes · 21 November 2018 · /r/MensRights

Ooooh, great. A tool for reasoning with feminists. That'll be really useful.

Girlfriend won't sleep in the same bed as me

6 upvotes · 18 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

They don't actually have cooties, you know.

Should you make a fake tinder to see how a girl's life is first hand?

6 upvotes · 11 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

10/10 for application of classic "agree and amplify" technique.

Minus several million for lack of understanding of what is and isn't a shit test.

Is that unacceptable or it is just me?

6 upvotes · 28 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

I'm a huge supporter of freedom, my LTR is free to do whatever the fuck she wants

Idiot.

You can't "free" a woman. They don't do freedom. When you give them freedom, they look around for someone to tell them what to do, or for a group of other women to imitate.

She doesn't respect you. She sees you and your stupid equalitarianism as weak. She's right.

Do women want to do shit tests?

6 upvotes · 22 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Incorrect. Shit testing is necessary, natural, unconscious, and automatic.

Bad case of Oneitis

6 upvotes · 14 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Title: "Bad Case of Oneitis"

Text: "A bunch of shit Whisper didn't read 'cause it's irrelevant."

Response:

Go fuck at least ten other women and see if you still think she's special.

Am I doing this red pill thing right?

6 upvotes · 14 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

You screwed it up from the first response. Or, rather, the first three rapid-fire responses. You look thirsty as fuck.

Responses that would have been good:

"Who are you?"

"Tiffany?" (assuming her name is something else)

"?"

"K, go ahead"

Strong Curves newbie

6 upvotes · 12 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Most of it is actually on point, but there is a critical problem here:

Considering that 69% of Americans are either overweight or obese, most women should be more concerned with losing weight and fat rather than packing on muscle.

Packing on muscle is the single most effective way to cut fat.

If you have basic "fat-girl repair" to do (and most western women do), then worrying about being "too bulked" should be the furthest thing from your mind. For any girl willing to calorie-restrict, muscular overbulking is easily reversible to the rare and mild extent that it even happens in the first place.

Your typical fat girl should be doing this:

1. Run a men's or unisex strength program with progressive overload, focusing on packing on lean mass, with moderate caloric intake... until strong.
2. Calorie restrict more intensely, while running the same program, accepting the resulting slower progression... until lean.
3. Calorie restrict more with lighter lifts to reverse any overbulking... until slim.

4. Run a tiny caloric surplus while running a girl-specific muscle sculpting program... until shapely.

Strong Curves newbie

6 upvotes · 11 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Never said I was afraid of lifting heavy, I even said I know my main focus is lifting heavy. Nor did I say anything about getting "toned."

Nah, course not, you just get to be my excuse to debunk common myths. Thanks for being such a good sport.

I would recommend doing Stronglifts until you lay down a base of lean muscle mass, and understand what lifting is about and how to do it.

A program like Strong Curves (and I'll have more specific comments when I am finished reading the progression in detail), which focuses on sculpting specific bits with targeted exercises, is best pursued later on, I think.

Infamous N-Count

6 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

I have been in a 6 month LTR with an attentive, attractive and successful girl now for 6 months. How do I stomach her N-count of 17-20 since starting out in highschool at age 15?

Plate only. If she says it's 20, it's 50.

I have a 30s N count myself

No, you don't.

You don't have an N-count. Men don't have N-counts. Men are never virgins. That shit is meaningless for men. Men's sexual history doesn't matter.

Is it even worth it to try and find a girlfriend with a more conservative N count these days, because once they go to college it seems borderline impossible.

Back to class with you.

You don't find girlfriends, you find sex. Girlfriends find you.

How much does martial arts actually factor into self-confidence/frame?

6 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you have to stop lifting to learn martial arts, you are either lifting wrong (cut out the stupid isolation work, do big compound lifts then go the fuck home), or trying to start both at once (start one, then the other).

Once upon a time

6 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This comment is not relevant to her situation, because we are clearly not dealing with unilateral abuse.

Believe it or not, most relationship violence is reciprocal. Ass kickings do not simply fall out of the sky.

The best way to make a man stop hitting you is to stop hitting him.

Why is it a woman's fault if she's alpha widowed?

6 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're a bad relationship prospect because, metaphorically speaking, there is simply no room in your heart for the next man.

More concretely speaking, you probably can't shut up about the guy, and it's probably super annoying. Healthy girls are looking for a playmate, not a therapist. You simply cannot give to a man the kind of devotion that he wants from his woman, because you have reserved it all for your ex. This is even true if you are giving to him in the form of hatred, because that, too, is a measure of how much you care.

In other words, I wouldn't date you, because you wouldn't be able to love me. You can't love another man right now. The brain doesn't know the difference between fantasy and reality, so every time you fantasize being back with him, your brain generates bonding chemicals just as if he were still in your life.

I truly don't know of a systematic cure for this. But if you're going to be able to help yourself, you need to be able to understand what is actually going on.

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

6 upvotes · 29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

forums.red

She's just your Girlfriend, she's not your Siamese twin. She's not your partner on a mission to Mars. She doesn't control your oxygen supply. (How to do a LTR.)

6 upvotes · 26 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The irony! I wrote this up months ago and just sat on it, because YOU said you were writing up an intensive LTR guide.

Guilty as charged. My to-do list is very, very long. I swear if I could figure out how to make a real living off this shit (not just a cheesy Patreonesque bitcoin tip jar that people still complained about), I could turn it into a full time job... I have that much half-finished material, idea outlines, etc. I could fill several books.

At least twice as much as I ever do here is spilled in disorganized rants for an audience of no one but FunSize, or Kitten, or FanGirl, or given as advice to individual people in PMs. Having the ideas doesn't take the time and energy, it's cleaning them up and making them presentable.

So anything you throw out there makes my not-a-job easier, because I can concentrate on the bits others haven't covered, and just hit what really needs to be hit, rather than everything that ever popped in to my head.

How do you reward your LTR's good behavior ?

6 upvotes · 24 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

The same way you would reward a dog. Praise, attention, affection.

Dating preferences and internalized racism

6 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Internalized racism is a stupid concept.

Date who you want.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

6 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Both.

That's the whole point of this conversation: smart people do not always have good self-control, or a good sense of how they appear to others.

Linus Torvalds is a very smart man, who has historically displayed poor self-control and social skills. He has actually earned somewhat more of my respect with this move, on account of the fact that he has articulated this, and thus moved from unconscious incompetence to a state of conscious incompetence, which is that difficult first step that allows learning.

Men will be men?

6 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I definitely don't want an argument with him. I was genuinely wondering if I was out of line to not like it, if I was being unfair.

This question comes from the "Everything is Everyone's Affair" school of thought. It's not important whether it's out of line or not. What matters to you here is that it upsets you. That emotional state exists whether or not a bunch of internet randos think his actions are fair or unfair.

Your emotional reaction to this is the actual problem you have. So that's the problem you want to address. Trying to address this as a moral question is irrelevant, distracting, and a useless source of unnecessary controversy.

I appreciate the info as far as differences in men / women - it's very true. He is not interested in discussing the moral appropriateness of things.

Yep.

The problems created for me personally would be:

- The people who heard him say this - including the woman - are mutual acquaintances, and will lose respect for me / him / the relationship and assume he is not being faithful
- He knows from the past that I'm not comfortable with him flirting with attractive women - so I feel he doesn't take me seriously, or just doesn't care
- He has a history of infidelity, and though I know he isn't cheating now, I worry about past patterns resurfacing if he continues leaving doors open by letting women know that he is attracted to them

The way to approach emotional problems with a man is to own them as personal problems while articulating them... in other words "I am afraid of..." rather than "it is wrong to...". Trying to tell him what's right and wrong comes off as an attempt at dominance. You want to sound like you are asking for help, instead.

So :

The people who heard him say this - including the woman - are mutual acquaintances, and will lose respect for me / him / the relationship and assume he is not being faithful

"I am afraid that people who overhear this will assume you are cheating on me, and that if they do, they will think I can't keep you interested in me, because I'm no good."

He knows from the past that I'm not comfortable with him flirting with attractive women - so I feel he doesn't take me seriously, or just doesn't care

Beware of the construction "You knew this would upset me, and you did it anyway, therefore you don't care about me." It places you in a position where you can control him absolutely by saying "X would upset me" and then simply expecting him not to do it, regardless of what other factors are in play.

"We've talked before about how I feel fear of abandonment when you flirt with other women. I'm afraid that this will keep happening, and I'll keep feeling this way."

He has a history of infidelity, and though I know he isn't cheating now, I worry about past patterns resurfacing if he continues leaving doors open by letting women know that he is attracted to them

"I'm afraid you're going to sleep with someone else again, and that scares me because I think it means you'll end up leaving me."

Notice how I have chosen to reword each of these to emphasize the emotion of FEAR. Just as one of the easiest ways to anger a man is to imply you have the right to control him, one of the easiest ways to invoke protectiveness is to be open about what you are afraid of.

Because, honestly, all of these ARE based on fear. Jealousy is a FEAR emotion. Don't let fear make you aggressive or controlling... this will drive him away and make him more likely to cheat. Instead, be vulnerable and openly articulate that fear to him.

Men will be men?

6 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes.

Men would consider what they say to be none of your business unless they said it to you.

If you were a woman, how would you live your life? Or, how would you instruct a daughter to live?

6 upvotes · 14 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"But it was pointless, it was stupid; he thought about thoughtless things. If I were a seabird . . . but how could you be a seabird? If you were a seabird your brain would be tiny and stupid and you would love half-rotted fish guts and tweaking the eyes out of little grazing animals; you would know no poetry and you could never appreciate flying as fully as the human on the ground yearning to be you. If you wanted to be a seabird you deserved to be one."

— Iain M. Banks, Use of Weapons

Made a bet that i would fuck and the girl found out

6 upvotes · 8 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Thanks."

Distrust that Particular Flavour

6 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Yet no one on this subreddit would frame them as a scam.

Wrong.

Buddhism is a scam.

GF 18 Won't Give Me Head

6 upvotes · 8 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

You LTRed too early.

Anything she won't do before you LTR her, she won't do afterwards.

Jordan Peterson, Fallacies, and the Tragic State of this Sub

6 upvotes · 1 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

When someone decides to "call me out" in a burst of drama, I like to consider the source. After all, if we are unwilling to listen to any criticism, we can never learn again... but if we stop to listen to it all, we are giving our precious time away to internet retards.

So, I asked myself, what is OP's level of understanding of what TRP is about? How deeply has he understood what TRP teaches? Is this coming from a place of understanding, or is it a reaction to a first impression?

Well, here OP is, in his own words:

Asking girls on dates feels kind of pathetic. I feel like I'm investing too much of my time to go out and treat her with coffee, or take her on a walk, or get a drink with her. I know you can build rapport and comfort in these types of venues, but it just feels so pathetic.

Seems more direct and assertive to just asking them to "chill" or "come over to my place" and fuck.

Should you treat different girls differently? Ones you'd considering LTR'ing you ask on dates, and those as just plates you ask to hook up directly?

TL;DR — I feel like going on "dates" is high-investment, unnecessary, and overly needy. Is it better to just ask to chill at my place or her place, and just call them over directly?

Meh, not a bad beginner question. Unfortunately, I really don't think this level of understanding qualifies him for analysis of TRP as a whole, or what its direction should or shouldn't be.

So, let's answer the more valuable post:

/u/nietzschethegreat, the answer to your question is :

There's isn't a readily discernible difference, at the beginning, between "plate" and "considering an LTR"... remember that getting to relationship is her job, not yours. Your initial goal, therefore, isn't to treat this or that girl differently, it's to get to sex as quickly and cheaply as possible. THEN you decide if you want to promote, or not, depending on her behaviour. But every girl enters the ladder at the bottom.

So, "netflix and chill" if you can, date if she's not going to go for that, and you still feel like going for it. Those options, and a whole lot of others, and just tools in your toolbox. You select what tools to use depending on the girl and the circumstances.

Jordan Peterson can't handle the truth.

6 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Jordan Peterson is such an awesome source of material. I am able to articulate so many fresh insights just by pointing out where he is wrong.

It may be time again for me to issue the whole Tradcon movement yet another public beating.

LTR letting me cheat to continue relationship

6 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

She did cry a bit, but I'd hug her and tell her that it's fine and she'd calm down and explain that she understood that I have needs that need to be met and that she'll try harder to relax.

Okay, there's a number of obstacles here, and you're going to need to be proactive about them.

Female jealousy is not inherent the way male jealousy is, but it can be very strong because it is a combination of some heavily-reinforced cultural attitudes. You need to have an answer for all of them.

- Fear of abandonment

- Women cheat all the time, but they are emotionally monogamous... most of them can generally only harbour romantic attachment to one man at a time.
- Sex tends to create emotional attachment in women.
- Female solipsism causes women to think that these two things are true of men as well.

Thus, she thinks if you have sex with other women, you will be become attached to them (rarely true), and that if you become attached to them, this will cause you to stop caring for her (almost never true). You will need ways to counter this fear.

- Public shame

- Other women HATE HATE HATE women in polygynous relationships for the same reason that slave owners hate abolitionists... they do not want a captive population being exposed to the idea of other options.
- They will vigorously push the narrative that she is a low-value woman, with low self-esteem, who must be desperate, because she stays with a man who "mistreats" her.
- They will focus their attacks on her, not you, because they have nothing to threaten you with... it is her reputation they will attempt to destroy.

Thus, being in this situation opens her reputation up to attack. You will need ways to protect her from this form of bullying.

- Script disruption

- Women measure their success in life by its resemblance to the end of a romantic fairytale, such as Disney movies.
- There are no Disney stories about King Solomon's horde of wives.
- This can cause persistent beliefs that she has failed at life, especially if she is being bullied by other women.

You will also need ways to counter this kind of negative self-talk.

This will require great skill, and you will probably not be successful with every girl you try it on, even if your game is razor-sharp. But if and when you consistently counter these three forces, you can not only suppress jealousy but actually cure it permanently.

How to tell difference between girls at bar

6 upvotes · 25 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

The difference between the two is whether or not you have made them want your dick.

Getting to sex is your job, dude.

It works...! Just got engaged to the perfect man for me.

6 upvotes · 22 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

One thing that feeds into this is the notion of "compatibility", that shibboleth of modern romantic advice.

While it is clear that some people get along better than others, "compatibility" has been inflated from this simple idea into the ridiculous notion that a good match for you is someone whose natural, spontaneous behaviour is going to be just exactly what you like.

Which in turn, means discarding the notion of responsibilities in a relationship... if my partner didn't like anything at all that I did, or failed to do, it wasn't my fault, we just weren't compatible. This has created a whole species of womanhood whose idea of having a relationship is showing up, occasionally getting naked and sweaty with him, and otherwise doing exactly whatever the fuck she feels like at every moment.

That's why RPW is baby-talk compared to TRP, never moving beyond the most basic of theory. Because men show up to TRP with the idea that they don't know what to do, which implies they already understand that they have to do something.

RPW is forced to spend most of its time and effort explaining that very thing.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

6 upvotes · 30 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I was looking forward to a good discussion where you try to defend Nazis

That's because you haven't learned what I am trying to teach.

You're paying so much attention to the content of the conversation, that you're missing the process of the conversation, which contains the actual message.

If you go through life unable to understand process communication, then you're going to have a very rough and unhappy life, because you will be unable to hear 75% of what other humans are saying.

My relationship lasts an average of 3 months, what am I doing wrong?

6 upvotes · 26 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The first part is to understand that you have some responsibilities, that you have to bring something to the table.

Believe or not, many women have trouble with this. Our culture constantly hoses women's psyches down with a stream of concentrated lies: "Every girl is special" "You are wonderful just the way you are" "Believe in your dreams" "Mr. Right will love you just for you, and if he doesn't, he's not Mr. Right" "Don't settle for less than you deserve"

... and so on.

As a consequence, there are many women running around out there thinking that they don't have to put conscious effort into self-improvement in general, or into pleasing whoever they are with. They think all they have to do is show up. Their mere presence is supposed to be a gift, and all they need to focus on is to make sure they demand enough in return and "don't sell themselves short", when, in fact, they do not have anything to sell.

You think you're past that hurdle, but you're not.

You see, you talk about being convinced that you "don't deserve love or commitment", and how this was a horrible act of emotional abuse. On the contrary, it is the absolute baseline truth.

You do not deserve love or commitment. No one does.

Imagine this: If I were forced to live in the same house with you for a year, what actions could you possibly take that would make me morally obligated to love you?

Love cannot be earned, owed, or deserved. It must be inspired.

Right now, you do not have the ability, skills, or know-how to inspire love, so you are using sex to hold onto men, which only works for a while. In, fact, since you are fat, somewhat entitled, and carrying what looks like a lot of emotional baggage, availability of sex was most likely the only thing that drew you to them in the first place, and without that military ratio working in your favour, you'd probably even get passed over for that a lot.

Men are not committing to you because you are not a good enough deal. Withholding sex will not fix this, because that makes the deal still worse.

If you want commitment, you have two choices for getting it:

- Lower your standards, and get it from a man who truly has no other options.
- Stop dating or having sex while you focus on not being so fat, entitled, and burdened by emotional baggage. (I promise you that what the last man did to you is not the next man's fault, or problem.)

If a woman cannot get a relationship she is happy with, it is 100% her fault. Always. This is the realization that will empower you to change what you need to change.

Monk mode time.

On the Importance of this Sub

6 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This sub is completely unimportant, and its only value is "entertainment".

TRP concerns itself solely with facts and hypothetical imperatives. TBP concerns itself solely with categorical imperatives. So not only can a debate between the two never be resolved, a debate between the two cannot even happen in the first place.

You can't get ought from is.

You can't get is from ought.

Can't cum with condom?

6 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Officially, the government specifies standards for condom specs, and what is allowed, and above a certain size, there's no spec.

Problem is, about one in twenty men (5%) are bigger than that. That's the same percentage of women who are over a D cup in bra size.

Can you imagine if the government were to outlaw E cup and above? There would be a national outcry, with accusations of "misogyny" flying everywhere. There would be a "save the titties" campaign, with flyers and memes and a website. There would be marches in the streets. Major Hollywood actors would make political spot ads about this on youtube. Politicians would fight tooth and nail to look more horrified by this than the next guy.

But not giving a shit about men's problems is hardwired into the human species. You can't even get men to care about other men's problems. The only way you could get men to vote this issue is if you could somehow angle it so that by not supporting it, they'd be publicly acknowledging that they didn't belong to that 5%.

When I was 15 years old, I had no idea. I thought there was something wrong with my dick until the day a condom broke on me, and suddenly everything worked fine.

Now I refuse to wear them. If she doesn't wanna go bareback, it's going in her mouth. There's no point to sex if I try to use one.

Now, my main girl is built like a pixie, so that has problems of its own, but at least it works.

Is it possible to get laid a lot while living with parents?

6 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Logistics is king.

You must have logistics sorted before trying to run game. Have a place where you can be alone, and a way to smoothly get her there, or you're finished before you start, unless your game is god-tier (hint: it's not).

How to explain bite marks

6 upvotes · 13 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Apparently I taste good."

My relationship isn't going too well... I hate how beta he is.

6 upvotes · 7 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

1. Attraction is not a choice and cannot be negotiated.
2. Women would much rather be treated okay by someone awesome than awesome by someone okay.

Did any women who formerly reject you react to your change?

6 upvotes · 4 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why on earth do you still have any idea what women who rejected you think of you?

Why are you still spending time with them?

They are just as useless to you as you are to them. Move on.

Joining a frat worth it?

6 upvotes · 3 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

Tears

6 upvotes · 28 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Duh.

Innate personality vs TRP

6 upvotes · 13 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

What the fuck is an "innate personality"?

Is that some shit that happens inside you that is ruining your chances with all these telepathic women?

Thoughts don't define you. Actions define you. You are what you repeatedly do.

Nofap = better gains?

6 upvotes · 12 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

No. Masturbation, sex, doesn't mater. What increases testosterone is not ejaculating at all.

If you're willing to go to those lengths, just put a needle in your thigh instead.

Back to the basics - gynocentrism.

6 upvotes · 10 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/4i219p/rule_6a/

On Freedom of Speech

6 upvotes · 23 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah, in TRP we'll run ads for barbell equipment, guns, car parts, power tools, and condoms.

The obsession with fat women

6 upvotes · 21 March 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Very good insights, but you left out the big one: fat women aren't just stuffing their faces... they are stuffing their faces and then demanding that men find them attractive anyway.

This, of course, is impossible. Neither attraction nor commitment is voluntary, and neither can be negotiated.

Men are therefore confronted with an unattractive person who is literally demanding the impossible.

Is anyone surprised that they react with contempt?

How do I recognize and effectively deal with butthurt feelings?

6 upvotes · 16 March 2018 · /r/askTRP

When you are having a petty, insecure emotional reaction, the most important thing to do is nothing.

The reason that insecure people are detectable is that they are always trying to do stuff intended to make them feel better, instead of to effect a change in the world.

So what you do, when you spot the impulse is hold it in. Keep your mouth shut, and your hands still, and just fucking hold the line. Even if you feel like you're dying inside. Just keep that inside on the inside until it fades.

Then get back to working on yourself.

How I Manage My LTR

6 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

They're the same.

Remember that what men want from girls isn't commitment or an acknowledged relationship but urgent desire.

A girl who urgently desires you will neither leave nor cheat. A girl who ceases to do so will do one of these, and just which one is ultimately unimportant, because the outcome is the same the moment you find out.

Families and Children

6 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Realize that "your actual kid that you have bonded with" and "your hypothetical kid that you haven't actually sired" weigh very differently on the scales.

Is it worth me getting braces?

6 upvotes · 4 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

My previous boyfriends and friends have not said anything about my teeth in the past, however after I broke up with my first boyfriend he told me to 'fix my teeth' and my second boyfriend brought up had I ever considered getting braces but nothing more than this.

When men complain out loud about something, they are not kidding around.

Submissive Behaviour as Strategy

6 upvotes · 1 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're welcome.

I'm very sorry if I'm being obnoxious for asking my questions in your thread here, as this was the only opportunity I've found to ask.

You're right that there simply isn't a place for it.

Every once in a while we get curious women wandering into TRP, and, with no particular ill intent, trying to ask these kinds of exploratory questions. I have to ban them, usually with a nudge in this direction, because that's not what TRP is for.

These girls run the gamut from selfish attention whore, to genuinely sweet and submissive, but they're all bad for the mission, and the second group is more so. We don't want these guys dreaming about a feminine, sweet, supportive partner, because it's precisely that dream, that false hope, we are trying to crush. It's that dream that got them chewed up and spat out in the first place. We need to get them to stop desiring love and companionship and start dreaming about conquest and slaying truckloads of pussy.

It doesn't matter which one they would actually prefer, because even if they run across an opportunity for the first, in this environment they need to be the kind of man who can do the second to receive it.

The truth of it is that most of these men will never be loved. That's because the girls of their culture are not capable of love for any creature other than themselves. So we teach them a strategy that doesn't depend on love, and has alternate compensations (like being viewed with unabiding lust by many different girls).

"There are no unicorns", "She's not yours, it's just your turn", "All women are like that", "Briffault's Law", etc. These don't just prepare men for the reality that they are living in, they help men realize that women not shaped by a patriarchy are not commitment-worthy, because without male leadership, girls don't grow up expecting to have to do anything. The only value they offer to a man are what beneficial results there are from their natural behaviour. This pretty much amounts to sex and looking cute.

Those few girls who are commitment-worthy tend to come from the few small pockets of patriarchy (usually the size of one immediate family) which our society has not yet succeeded in eradicating. There's no real need to teach men what to do about them, because the men who already know what to do with a girl like that outnumber those girls by about ten to one at least, possibly more.

In another generation or two, these pockets will be gone.

There aren't enough of them to run into each other and form social groups.

We kind of did, but that was before "50 Shades" became a thing lol :(

Oh, that.

That's always been a majority taste. It's just out of the closet now.

Losing our sex life

6 upvotes · 25 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Chronic lack of sleep causes overproduction of the stress hormone cortisol. Excessive cortisol production competes with production of testosterone and estrogen, both of which control sex drive and sexual response in men and women both.

In other words, you live in some shithole like NYC or San Francisco. Go somewhere where you can afford to simultaneously live and live.

Caught husband doing drugs

6 upvotes · 24 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I hold onto his vials and lock them away

You're joking, right?

How can you be married and have so little insight into the male mind? This is just about the worst kind of emasculating, demeaning thing you could suggest.

That's my compromise

https://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/4i8ukh/bring_your_captain_your_problem_not_your_solution/

CMV: Much of TRP has some of the most beta mindsets and have underlying flaws in their "self improvement" tactics.

6 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Wow, that sounds almost like something one of the founders of TRP might say.

But, hey, writing is easier than reading, right?

The Talk is Socially Retarded, Don't Do It.

6 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Or, as one of my old professors used to put it: "Your lack of planning does not constitute my emergency".

Did you ever hurt a girl? Not physically, but emotionally.

6 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do you think girls feel any remorse about hurting you?

How do I make friends, I like to be a lone wolf but..

6 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Some quick facts about me.

Skip this beta shit. I don't care about you.

I need help to understand how I can make friends with everyone in my class and then use that to gain more friends.

Talk to people. Pretend you're interested in what they have to say, even though you're not. Get them talking about themselves and listen.

Eventually you will be able to do it sincerely sometimes.

Is there any right way to "ask a guy out"?

6 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/7ad6eb/approaching_men_the_art_of_the_bad_excuse/

I'm attracting men in better shape than me and not sure how to proceed

6 upvotes · 13 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is fair enough.

Do not misinterpret me. There is nothing morally wrong with you being a slut. In fact, there is no reason for you to even find the term insulting if that is what you have chosen to be.

Sluts are in no way bad people. They are simply bad investments for men. And this need not matter to you if you never want a man to invest.

However, the reason RPW avoids recommending or even discussing this pattern of behaviour is that not only do most women not want this, those who do when they are under 25 often find themselves wanting something very different ten years later, when it is too late. The past cannot be undone.

I've laid down with a great many sluts, and liked it, and them, just fine. But when it comes time to pick a girlfriend, no. Just no.

So, since this is already the path you are committed to, there's little point, and certainly no incentive, to try to talk you out of it. But if you find yourself having regrets ten years from now, or want a boyfriend or husband and can't get one, or find yourself replaced even for sex by younger models, do have the good grace to remember this conversation and not blame others for the results of your actions.

Other than that, I sincerely hope you have a lot of fun.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

6 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't be scared to prescribe to an idea or way of life that wasn't your own original idea. Be humble and understand there are greater minds in the world besides your own. The man, even the genius, who holds his own opinions at the expense of all others will end up holding a handful of dust.

This is a very poetic way of presenting the logical fallacy called "argument from ignorance".

Essentially, "you don't know everything, and you can't prove their creation myths false, so accept the cultural rules of a bunch of bronze age sheep herders".

No thanks. Admission that one is not omniscient is not equivalent to the surrender of one's capacity for critical thinking.

Bottom Barrel Women Exist and Have it 10x Worse than Male Incels.

6 upvotes · 7 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The women who write and fall in love with men in prison. The women who stay in relationships while the guy beats them and their kids half to death. The women who protect and enable pedophiles so they won't be alone. The "ride or die" women who take criminal charges to protect their men... The women who voluntarily become a man's 4th and 5th baby mama. The woman holding the family together while their husband battles a drug or alcohol addiction. The women giving their life savings away to a Nigerian Prince (catfish). The women who stay in church praying over husbands who cheat on them night and day and never come home.

Heh. You think that women are doing this stuff because they are bottom of the barrel women who have to?

Nah.

Ordinary women do this. Hot chicks do this. Women with a plethora of options reject perfectly decent, if boring, men to do this.

Women adore psychopaths.

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

6 upvotes · 5 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not sure if you understood me completely, or just stumbled into the point.

CMV: A lot of the anger from the manosphere is a result of women complaining even though they are in a heavily advantageous position.

6 upvotes · 1 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So stop trying to appeal to women's better nature, dude. Stop trying to explain things to them. They understand already. They just don't care. The victim card is their strongest card. What the hell kind of crazy makes you think you can talk them out of playing it?

Do not try to negotiate a peace.

Win. Then you can dictate terms.

Blue Pill/feminism has failed in it's response to broken lost men who need a father figure - hence Cernovich, J Petersen ETC

6 upvotes · 31 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, they are still working on that.

The scheme is that the new family unit will consist of a mother and her children, with men living their adult lives alone, and funding all women through tax-based wealth redistribution.

They haven't spotted the problems, and are still trying to make it work.

Where is "Me too" for Feminists importing poor underage "boy toy" migrants in order to fuck them?

6 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's easy to think you have a plan. Every idiot thinks he has a plan.

But then you ask that guy how he plans to get people to go along with the plan.

And he says "Duuuuuuuuh, I dunno...". And then you realize he has half a plan.

The easy half.

Redpillers: What's your take on the idea of vulnerability as a strength?

6 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Stupid ambiguous word.

Lack of defensiveness is strong. Display of fear is weak.

Healing from past relationships and sexual behavior, any advice?

6 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, I'm not going to lie - I got a little upset reading this at first because you very much called me out on my bullshit.

It's not your bullshit.

It's feminist bullshit. It's a bill of goods that was sold to you by a bunch of people who cared very much about the way they thought the world should be and gave zero fucks about what would happen to you if you lived by their ideals.

But you're right. I never envisioned that my life would turn out the way that it has.

They told you "Women should be able to fuck whoever they want!".

And you said "Yeah!".

They told you "Women can do anything men can do, except backwards and in heels!"

And you said "Yeah!".

They told "Never let any man tell you what to do!"

And you said "Yeah!"

And then you went out and fucked whoever you wanted, and acted like a man, and never paid attention to what men wanted, just like they told you to.

And your feminist professors patted you on the head, and said "Good ~~girl~~ strong and independent womyn!", and they moved on to the next young and impressionable 18 year old.

Where are they now? Where are they now that you have discovered you want a man instead of just a penis? Where are they now that you have discovered that men don't want girls who fuck whoever they want, act like men, and don't care what they say, want, or feel?

Oh, they might pop in to call those men "sexist", and fuck right off again, but are they going to make sure there is someone there to love you?

Nah, you're on your own, now. They never cared if you were happy or miserable, if you prospered or floundered, if you were loved or hated. They only cared if you embraced their weird cult.

Shoulda listened to grandma instead. But it just felt so good to denounce grandma as a foolish slave, hugging her chains, afraid to Smash the Patriarchy™.

Western women are not oppressed. Western women were never oppressed. The "patriarchy" always existed primarily to protect women.

The feminist generation wasn't the first generation smart and brave enough to break the chains... they were the first generation dumb and self-centered enough to mistake their privileges for bondage.

Not having to work for a living is a privilege. Not having to go fight wars is a privilege. Being able to stay with your children instead of going to an office or factory every day is a privilege. Having men treat you like a child is a privilege (because children are loved, cherished, and protected). "Benevolent sexism" is a privilege. Being "objectified" (instead of having to pursue men) is a privilege. Being valued for your body (instead of being not valued for your body, like a man) is a privilege.

I've kind of just been bumbling around during my adult life, doing things I'm not proud of, and I'm willing to make a change.

That all being said, what advice do you have for me? Where should I go from here? I've made a conscious effort to work out more, drink less, and take better care of my body, which has been incredibly hard but rewarding. I know the hardest part by far is going to be healing from my past, and I just am not entirely sure how to do that.

Okay, step one: Realize that feminism is a lie, everything it told you was a lie, and nothing it told you to do was good for you.

That's why I keep talking about this, instead of moving on to practical advice yet. Because the right strategy for you will require a rejection of all of that. It will require you to do the precise things feminism told you were servile and demeaning. It will require you to accept the opposite of everything feminism taught you about men and women and love and sex.

In order to be able to deal with that, you need to understand that feminism didn't just fail to fix your problem.

It didn't just create your problem.

It was your problem all along.

Once you see this, we can talk about:

- What the reality of your situation is.
- How to make the most of it.

Hi I'm new here

6 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Sounds like you are very good at using your irrational fears to control his life.

Be sure to have a good emotional support network in place for when he gets tired of walking on eggshells and your marriage begins to unravel.

feminine global shit test.

6 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

damn if muslims need the red pill then shit is really bad

Of course muslims need the red pill.

Muslims from many muslim countries have no game at all, because women are kept away from them unless they marry her, catch her unprotected and rape her, or visit a prostitute (which do actually exist in some parts of the muslim world).

They only experience women as chattel who must submit to their desires, pros who are paid, prey who can be physically forced, or carefully guarded treasure who they have no chance to seduce.

Even the Saudi upper crust have no game, because they are so rich that it makes no sense not to buy their women.

In any society where women have rights, and must be talked into bed, they're helpless. This is why illegals from southwest asian shitholes create rape epidemics whenever they are let in. To these men, any woman who will have a conversation is clearly asking for it, and they have no real ability to seduce.

Girl says you missed your opportunity

6 upvotes · 20 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

Never underestimate the power of a bored-sounding "Okay."

Should Trump step down from the presidency for the allegations of sexual assault against him?

6 upvotes · 18 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The left isn't really all that keen on democracy.

Is it too late to secure a real commitment from my boyfriend?

6 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes. This speaks to a really thorny philosophical problem in RPW strategy.

Since marriage is defined by laws, and the laws have changed a lot over the past 80 years or so, women are left in one of two states:

- Living with him without the benefit of marriage, which gives him all the benefits and none of the legal obligations.
- Expecting him to marry you first, thereby entering into a state which gives him all of the legal obligations and you none of them at all.

It's a completely black-or-white choice. Bad deal for women, or bad deal for men. There's no compromise state.

Of course, this only matters if the partnership fails, but of course, it could... and the very act of asking him to sign the papers is acknowledging the possibility that it might.

Now, it would seem that a woman's best strategy is to push for marriage, and reduce her risk. But there are drawbacks to that, because men understand this tradeoff, too, and know that you insisted on him shouldering the majority of the risk, which of course is going to affect how he sees you.

So women are left with two choices, and both are bad.

The only thing to do is mitigate the badness of these choices by reaching an understanding rather than either person insisting on getting their way (even if they can browbeat the other into compliance).

So, I prefer to rephrase "No cohabitation without marriage" into "Before moving in, make sure you have matching expectations about marriage, finances, and children."

This is a bit more general. Because different couples can reach different accommodations, but not reaching one is never a good idea.

Q4All: Why do so many men have such low self esteem about their looks or personality and what can we do to fix this?

6 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Tried what out, exactly?

Whose last name should children inherit?

6 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everyone disappears.

Describe your great-grandfather. What did he like to do for fun? What was important to him? What was his favorite food? Any personal details at all.

Go ahead, I'll wait.

Think kids are your ticket to immortality? Think again.

Your kids are 1/2 you. Your grandkids, 1/4. Then, 1/8, 1/16, 1/32. Wait enough generations, and your descendants have nothing to do with you at all... everything that makes you yourself has been diluted so much that you might well believe in homeopathy.

There is no ticket to immortality. You will die, and then everyone who remembers you will die, and then everyone who knows your name will die, and you won't be able to care, because you will be dead. And you won't be in heaven getting a handjob from Jesus, because that's a myth, too.

All you have is now.

Act accordingly.

is my gf a whore ? Or do I need to treat her better?

6 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

So, my girl lives with her ex

You're a special kind of stupid, aren't you?

I'm [26F] in a LTR with a (probably) RP'd guy [33M]

6 upvotes · 6 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

Yes, left-wingers tend to make throwaway accounts to harass them.

You'll have to build up some karma on whatever account you want to use, or message the mods to get your stuff manually approved.

But this is not the place for you to get good advice. This is where young men learn how to make women lust after them. Not at all the same thing.

Help, my mom is dating an inmate.

6 upvotes · 11 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Cat is cat. Nothing can do.

Apparently to Vice news talking about men's rights is comparable to white supremacy and the Nazi's

6 upvotes · 2 December 2017 · /r/MensRights

The question is is it possible to convince a feminist that men are not her enemies.

Demonstrate that this is possible by going and doing that. Let me know how that turns out for you.

Apparently to Vice news talking about men's rights is comparable to white supremacy and the Nazi's

6 upvotes · 2 December 2017 · /r/MensRights

Precisely.

It's called a "shit test". Someone gives you some shit to see what they can get away with. To see how you deal with it. To see how strong or weak you are. To see if your "frame" is strong or malleable.

To attempt to qualify or justify yourself to them is failure.

To throw others under a bus in the attempt to appease them is double-layer failure, with failure frosting and loser sprinkles on top.

All your foes have to do then is repeat this demand... because the far end of the "moderates" are now the new "extremists". And each time they demand it, capitulation will happen more easily, because those who would have strengthened your spine are now gone.

To pass a shit test, you must do one, and only one thing: Visibly not care. Doesn't matter how. Laugh. Agree and amplify. Ignore and stay on message. Pressure flip. Whatever.

Never, never, never, defend yourself directly or make concessions.

Ignore the Peanut Gallery

6 upvotes · 16 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I never agreed with Plato's metaphor of the ship of state.

The state isn't a ship. It's not going anywhere, it doesn't have a mission, and it doesn't need steering. It needs a few small maintenance tasks taken care of, and other shit left alone.

Free markets and the emergent behaviour of populations handle shit far better than "experts".

TRP isn't a ship, either. Or a nation. It's just a product in a marketplace of ideas. That's why we can be as autocratic as we want or think is a good idea. Because no one has to agree. No one has to come here. There is no Berlin Wall keeping people in. No exit fee.

And no barriers whatsoever to starting an alternative.

The real votes that matter are those cast with the feet, or the wallet, from among a plethora of alternatives.

Not arrow-clicky zero-cost bullshit.

Went on college road trip with a girl who likes me, treated her like complete garbage, had sex with a different girl in our hotel room, then had sex with the girl who likes me the next day after

6 upvotes · 13 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The title says it all.

You must treat women like trash. You don't have a choice. Their responses demand it.

- Treat a man like a god, and he thinks, "She must love me, I kinda like her, too."
- Treat a man like trash, and he thinks "She must hate me, I'm outa here. "
- Treat a woman like a goddess, and she thinks, "He must be a loser, I'm outa here."
- Treat a woman like trash, and she thinks "He must be a god, because he's used to getting away with this. I must have him."

Treating the Red Pill as a new way of being a follower.

6 upvotes · 4 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Fakes are easy to spot. They always seek validation and defend their posts to the death.

Men of merit don't have that urge to argue with heckling trolls.

+1

The wolf does not concern himself with the opinions of sheep.

LTR Trickle Truthed me about cheating

6 upvotes · 24 October 2017 · /r/askTRP

Do you think she told you this just because?

She is testing your attitude about cheating. To see if you will forgive her when she does it.

Not if.

What does it even mean when TRP claims to be "amoral"?

6 upvotes · 23 October 2017 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TRP is a non-moral discussion group. It means we discuss sexual strategy without considering moral standpoints.

We ask the question "Without considering what is right or wrong, what works?"

Then the question "What do I think is right or wrong?" is left up to each individual reader and his conscience, religion, culture, or whatever source he gets his values from.

Please help me decide if I am being overly sensitive...

6 upvotes · 22 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the importance things to understand is that weakness is to men as cruelty is to women. A woman can show weakness, but she cannot stand to look cruel. A man can be seen as a jerk, but he cannot stand to show weakness.

How would you feel if someone said to you: "You seem really bad-tempered today. What's up?"

While that question is an attempt to show concern, it would feel to you like an accusation of being nasty, which you would dislike, because this is a very unfeminine quality.

So when you say "What's bothering you?", you are creating an implication of weakness, which would hit him like an implication of nastiness would hit you.

Further, you are creating a request that he show weakness by venting or complaining, which not only is unacceptable for men, but also something that he knows would lessen your attraction to him.

Perhaps instead of trying to pick his brain, you could wordlessly demonstrate caring with a hug or gentle backscratch.

Single & pregnant

6 upvotes · 20 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's impossible to know from a few sentences whether your relationship is salvageable.

However, here's what happens if it isn't.

You're not good enough, you're not smart enough, and people don't like you.

6 upvotes · 29 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

They're not hostile to TRP. They think they are practicing its principles. They even think they are helping when they write something.

But what they are looking for is way to become successful, popular, and attractive without making the really, really painful admission to themselves that they are spergs (figuratively or literally), and they need to totally change and relearn their approach to social interactions.

A lot of people on here try to help with that. /u/gaylubeoil has many koan-like tricks to break people out of sperg thinking, and is one of the best anti-sperg writers that I know, but I suspect that even his success rate is depressingly low, because anything, anything can be passed through an overliteral filter and rendered into irrelevant nonsense.

You just cannot reach these people until they realize for themselves that language is not literal, and if that's hard for them, that is their problem, not anyone else's.

You're not good enough, you're not smart enough, and people don't like you.

6 upvotes · 29 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

He is simply unable to grasp nuance.

Spergs have trouble with context. They tend to respond solely to what was literally said, in a vacuum, rather than to what is a reasonable interpretation of intent, given the speaker and the context.

This is because they have trouble judging speakers, and contexts. So, often, as a form of ego defense, they refuse to acknowledge that these things matter, instead of simply accepting that they are bad at reading them (and working to get better).

You cannot teach someone like this, because he does not understand how human communication works. He will forever be tangled in irrelevancies and details and endless quibbling, until the day he says to himself, "Hey, maybe the rest of the world isn't talking wrong. Maybe I just suck at understanding what it means."

Drowning in a sea of bad lifting advice

6 upvotes · 18 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

Most bad lifting advice comes in the form of the over-specific. People wish to seem knowledgeable, so they repeat what someone told them, or what worked for them, or what didn't work for them, but they believe in it anyway.

Good lifting practices consist of two things:

1. A common set of core practices that work for everyone.
2. All that little refinements that you develop by yourself, for yourself, as you gain experience with what your body responds to.

I'll give you the first in a nutshell:

1. Do a program based on compound lifts, with low repetitions and high weight...close to the maximum you can handle. There are plenty of popular ones (Starting Strength, Stronglifts 5x5, 5/3/1, etc.). All of the well-known ones are pretty good, and will do you just fine.
2. Get a lot of sleep and recovery.
3. Eat a lot of healthy food, and make sure you get plenty of protein. That means meat.
4. Be consistent with your workouts. The discipline that helps you is not the kind that makes you work out like a beast until you puke on the floor, but the kind that makes you do your workout every scheduled day like clockwork for years on end.

That's it. By the time you need more advice than that, you will have enough experience to be able to find it, and know the good advice from the bad.

A Theory On "Vibe"

6 upvotes · 3 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

- The first man isn't trying.
- The second man is working, often hard, but also often at the wrong things, because he has uncritically accepted strategic and tactical advice from wherever.
- The third man systematically tests the advice he receives, regarding it as unreliable until it has a track record of working for him. Thus, he is not only actively working to achieve his goals, but actively working to know how to achieve his goals.
- The fourth man has both processes running in his life. He has immediate goals that he has already learned how to work towards (and is doing so), and distant goals that he doesn't know how to work towards yet, but he is working on learning that. His distant goals regularly turn into immediate goals as he learns, and his immediate goals regularly turn into achievements as he works.

In terms of muscle mass, would this be considered really buff (relative to most women in their 20s), and do you think its common for guys to get intimidated by a girl with this physique?

6 upvotes · 29 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

Close. Misogynist cardinal.

So what brings you here, my child? Are you in need of Brodin's guidance?

Girl says she doesn't kiss on the first date. Good sign or Red Flag?

6 upvotes · 29 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

Stop listening to what women say, and start watching what they do.

How do you reject sex when you actually don't want it?

6 upvotes · 18 July 2017 · /r/askTRP

You're not clear on the concept.

You think turning her down for sex will make her lose interest?

How do I differentiate friendliness with sexual interest with foreign girls?

6 upvotes · 28 June 2017 · /r/askTRP

Assume interest. Make moves. If not interested, replace girl and repeat.

I want this open marriage to stop

6 upvotes · 11 May 2017 · /r/askTRP

It's over, dude. You fucked up.

You can cheat on your woman, but never let your woman cheat on you.

Because she can stay attracted to you if you lie, cheat, and play the bad boy. But once she has you to come home to, and bangs someone else instead, it's over. The bloom is off the rose. The relationship will never be the same again.

There is a double standard, and it exists because women have chosen to create it with their behaviour.

A woman can stay committed to a cheater, but she can never stay committed as a cheater. Because when a woman fucks another man, its because he is more attractive, or her attraction for her man has diminished.

Men, on the other hand, will fuck a woman who's fatter than their girlfriend and not as nice, just because it's been a while and they want some variety. Then they will promptly lose all interest whatsoever in that girl, because their woman is better in every way.

So, in your next relationship, cheat on your woman if you can get away with it, don't if you can't, whatever.

But never give a woman a hall pass.

The pre-fuck conversation is one big autism screening test

6 upvotes · 16 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Meh, why should women be allowed to vote, anyway?

Worried girlfriend is cheating

6 upvotes · 13 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

That's not cheating.

But being "in an open relationship" also disqualifies a woman from future LTR status.

Restarting after sex

6 upvotes · 11 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

You've pedestalized sex. You believe it's the big goal of TRP. Thus, the actual act is a bit of a letdown, because its big payoff is nothing but a five second orgasm, and temporary relief from the tyranny of sexual desire.

The goal isn't sex, it's control of your sex life. It's the ability to get sex when you decide you want it.

Don't confuse pleasure with happiness.

Traditional masculine behaviour is overtly punished and covertly rewarded in North America.

6 upvotes · 11 October 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TRP focuses more on how it pertains to women.

That does not, however, in any preclude it from pertaining to men. Men are also instinctively wired to respond more positively to masculine comrades.

This is Why I Think Lifting is Pointless for Most Guys

6 upvotes · 21 September 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What program are you running?

'We don't hate women' wtf is all this then?

6 upvotes · 2 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I started following you clowns a couple years ago and some of the shit you spit is right, and makes sense. However, some of the shit I see on the sub is straight scary.

This is why one shouldn't feed stray animals.

And yet you still read. Does that tell you anything?

What can I do as a young guy to compete with established older guys?

6 upvotes · 8 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

You can't compete with older men for girls who like older men. But there are lots of girls who think older men with fresh young girls is "gross".

You have plenty of targets. Don't sweat the competition. Just work hard and become awesome.

Alright. I'm a beta fuck. I'm here to atone for my sins and get some help.

6 upvotes · 24 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

RemindMe! 8 weeks "See if Tutankhansetamun has made something of himself, or is still a useless fucking boot."

CMV: Female incels have it worse than male incels

6 upvotes · 23 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And what will you do when you discover that human beings have the same instincts everywhere?

To get the kind of man you want to get, be the kind of woman who typically gets that man.

TRP isn't a good community for happy successful guys

6 upvotes · 22 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

If I spent all day talking about how great Funsized is, and how awesome she treats me, I would not only be gloating... I would also be teaching the wrong lesson.

In order to get a relationship like that, men who are coming from a place of valuing themselves too little need a healthy dose of "bitches ain't shit", and then two or five doses more.

If successful RP men talk about their healthy relationships and awesome girlfriends, then the students are going LTR up the first trashy ho they have a ONS with, because they hamstered themselves into thinking she's a unicorn.

Unicorns are not found. They are built from quality materials by strong and wise leadership.

My Experience With Prostitution (Obese Virgin)

6 upvotes · 11 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I highly recommend prostitutes for any man who is objectively, really, unattractive.

Why?

Because being unattractive can be a vicious cycle... you're unattractive, so you're unconfident, so you're unattractive, so you're inexperienced, so you're unconfident... etc.

Spending money on gorgeous whores can break the mental part of that cycle. It's impossible to be intimidated by that decently attractive 7.5 on campus when you've banged a different 9 every week for a month. When you have it ingrained in your soul that you can have a beautiful girl for $200-300 (or an acceptable one for $100-150), you'll never be tongue-tied or over-eager again.

And you'll never get tooled. If 250 is the price of pussy, then 250 is the price of pussy. Any woman who wants you to buy her a ring is just gonna get laughed at.

I also recommend prostitutes for very wealthy men, since they charge a flat fee, and dates/LTRs tend to try to gold-dig for a percentage.

Why are people so threatened by TRP? (Seriously)

6 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Today's culture depends on men not noticing that there aren't any rewards for all this shit they are expected to do.

We tell men what's going on. Gotta discredit us quick.

Lifting on a Budget of $0.00 - A Guide for the Complete Failure

6 upvotes · 20 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Have you seen how much sugar is in milk? No? Look at the label. Yeah, you don't need 2 gallons of that, Señor Roly Poly.

Do you seriously not know the difference between lactose and sucrose?

Better stick to lifting advice, there, Doctor Remedial BioChemistry.

Rental Cars: It's not your car. It's just your turn driving it.

6 upvotes · 19 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Prior to the raise of no fault divorce, marriage used to be closer to the concept of ownership. Now marriage is much more like a bad lease.

Marriage is being owned by the car.

The Cycle Of Female Inclusivity (Courtesy Of MGTOW Reddit)

6 upvotes · 14 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Or...

Step Six: We demand you include us in your space.

Feminist friends; what do?

6 upvotes · 11 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Do not argue with these people. It's a loss of frame. You are getting sucked into the conversation she wants to have.

Think about it... if you "win" this debate, what's the prize?

50% is a Failing Grade.

6 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

u/NeoReactionsafe and others suggest that the comparison between divorced and unmarried is a distinction without a difference once kids are involved.

I agree that having kids with non-wife LTR is also a highly disadvantageous position as well, because "child support" is really just backdoor alimony.

I don't agree that it's as bad, but it's bad.

However, when the courts and the laws are stacked against you, you have four options

1. Capitulation.
2. Expatriation.
3. Revolution.
4. Go on strike.

Marriage and kids is #1. #2 is moving to a traditionalist nation and finding a wife there. #3 is not viable because it's way too early, not enough people are upset enough. Childfree and no marriage is #4.

I recommend #4, because it causes a lot less pain than #1. If #4 is too painful for some guy because he really wants kids, I recommend #2. Under no circumstances do I recommend #1.

If you wish to recommend #1, then make your argument. Just don't use shaming tactics to do it. Tell men how it's good for them. I realize that's an impossible task, but you chose it for yourself, not I.

MRP and the ProMarriage Stance- Can Someone Explain the Schism in relation to TRP?

6 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is why we say your sub is full of children.

I certainly hope it's full of children. The earlier I can get to a kid with advice intended to benefit him, rather than others at his expense, the happier his life is going to be.

One of the basic problems that our society suffers from is the chain of masculine tradition is broken. Young men no longer have strong, successful elder males to teach them how to prosper. So, faced with this sort of teachable moment, what have you done?

Isolated yourselves? Treated the word "child" as an insult instead of a stage of life? Become defensive about your personal circumstances, good or bad?

There's a reason why the 20somethings of TRP don't respect you. Because you haven't offered them any elder wisdom. You implicitly claim it exists when you call them "children", but referring to its existence and sharing it are two very different things.

Neither RPS, nor I, nor the mod team, nor the other Vanguard, can force the population of TRP to respect you. The mods can remove the most vindictive of comments, but that's not going to fix the core problem, the one you are really upset about.... the problem that these young men see you as a chump with his foot in a bear trap, and not a wise tribal elder.

(Which of these is the case, I cannot say, and would not if I could.)

If you desire their respect, you're not going to get it by talking about how they are rubbish. They've had their fill of that from feminists, and TBP, and their culture at large. It's not going to work on them, because they have become desensitized to it.

Instead, perhaps you could try something that young men have not experienced a surfeit of. Caring. Guidance. Help.

Sure, you don't have to. You can take marriage as a given, and trade in advice to, from, and for married men. But then the young warriors of the tribe are not going to regard you as the elder council, because you have nothing to say to them. Respect is not a "gimmie".

I actually do not know what your attitude on the advisability of marriage is, because you have spent so little time talking to anyone who isn't married. The first time I became aware of your existence was when you showed up calling calling all these young bros "children". That's probably the first they've heard of you, too. What on earth did you expect?

The Final Exam

6 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

/u/Whisper, would you agree with that caveat to your advice, or not?

I'd take it a step further.

A man is a bad choice if a woman is not passionate about him. But there are plenty of men a woman might be passionate about who are very bad choices.

These men are best to avoid before developing attraction to them. In fact, before even meeting them. That's one of the reasons why venue selection is important.

If we take it as given that estrogen produces emotional volatility, precisely the sort of volatility that TRP talks about using for seduction, then a good plan isn't "clench your teeth and have self-control", it's "avoid dangerous temptations"

Plans that require a high degree of self-control are somewhat akin to abstinence-only sex education. They work if people follow them.... but they don't. (Abstinence-only sex education is statistically known not to work).

But these plans appear sound, because any time they don't work, we blame the person, not the plan.

"Oh, you were slightly drunk, and wildly attracted, and you had sex on the with someone off Tindr the first time you met in person? You slut! Why didn't you follow the plan, and wait for X number of dates, then get him to change his facebook status, then coolly and calmly decide if it's sex time?"

The plan didn't protect her against temptation, but when she succumbed, we don't call the plan out for that.

A better plan is Don't use Tindr. Use your social circle instead. That way, when you succumb to temptation, it won't be with some random, but with someone more appropriate, who you have a better chance of making things stick with.

Wisdom means knowing you are fallible.

My LTR is a whore

6 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

Read my article on the TradCon Trap. Read the Bitch Management Hierarchy.

TradCon women are women. They are not different than any other woman.

Not all women end up as sluts and whores, but a TradCon background does not make them one iota less likely to do so. Not one percent, not half a percent, not a quarter of a percent. Nothing.

Do not ever allow a woman to get trust from you by any other means than earning it over time.

And dump that fucking hoebag.

Foster family who had child for three weeks angry because real father wanted his daughter

6 upvotes · 27 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

Wow. Someone should ask them what the secret to their incredible longevity is. Most of us don't make it to 100.

Donald Trump, and how his political Chad game works.

6 upvotes · 25 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nor is he really a true conservative.

There's no such thing as a true conservative.

Conservatism is an alliance, nothing more, of people who are opposed to socialism. That's why you get libertarians and religious fundamentalists in the same party.

That's why Republicans are called the "party of no ideas". Because they aren't organized that way. They are "party of stopping the really horrible ideas".

Doesn't the fact that she re-initiates after you ghost go against Briffault's Law?

6 upvotes · 21 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Precisely.

Briffault's Law is useful for reminding us that women are kept loyal by present or potential future benefit, never by past benefit.

Please help me. I can't sleep or eat. I need to make some decisive power moves ASAP or I'll crumble.

6 upvotes · 21 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

My GF of 1 year cheated ... I gave her another chance.

Don't do that.

Why are (some) men so concerned with who and how many men an adult woman sleeps with?

6 upvotes · 2 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And why are you so concerned with what they are concerned about?

Look, you live in a society where people are allowed to say what they think. That's the price of living in a society where you are allowed to say what you think.

If you say whatever you think, then fuss about other people having the same freedom, I'm not going to take you seriously.

CMV: Inexperienced guys should NOT be going for the hot blondes

6 upvotes · 29 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have seen a lot of posts here about scenarios like "How can the average Indian/Asian guy score a hot blonde girl?".

That's the Indian Race Troll. As far as we can tell, it's one guy, a tiresome obsessive with a fetish, who keeps making new accounts every time he gets banned by people sick of his whiny bullshit.

Is it possible to say something negative about women without being misogynist?

6 upvotes · 15 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It may be true that Black people are more likely to commit violent crimes, but saying, "Black people are violent" implies that the reason Black people commit more violent crimes is simply because they are Black.

No, it doesn't. Nowhere does the word "because" appear in any of those statements. If that's what you hear when someone makes those statements, then the assumption is in you, not the statements.

Americans blacks are more violent. That's correlation. Correlation tells you there is a causal relationship, but it doesn't tell you what that relationship is.

You don't get to issue a ban on inductive reasoning just because you have some problems with your critical thinking process.

"Women don't give a fuck about your feelings [...] only how you make her feel." Is the Red Pill damaging to men's mental and emotional health?

6 upvotes · 15 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3dwokl/and_dont_listen_to_me_like_a_sperg_either/

How can you criticize women for not bringing anything other than looks to the table, and in the same breath say that even if women did have good jobs, interests and personalities, you wouldn't care because looks are all that matters?

6 upvotes · 11 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<https://imgflip.com/i/z10z2>

TRP inspired answer to a girl's diss

6 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Why the hell are you wasting time on FB?

Can bitches get attention over FB? Yes.

Can bitches suck your dick over FB? No.

Apparently treating men like children is actual sexist towards women!

6 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

Don't be a husband. Problem solved.

How to deal with LTR who threaten to suicide?

6 upvotes · 3 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Exit relationship immediately and go non-contact.

This is widely considered abusive behaviour, and, for once, I agree.

<http://www.avoiceformen.com/men/mens-issues/feminine-surrender-as-emotional-dominance/>

Feminists go apeshit over Roosh's meetups

6 upvotes · 2 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

but does he have to throw us under the bus now?

Don't worry about it, he can't throw us anywhere. He doesn't even lift.

Trolls, concern trolls, and the way we weed you out.

6 upvotes · 29 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

One important lesson for the audience here is expecting status not to matter is the attitude of a clueless sperg. Of course status matters. Status always matters. We teach that principle here. We teach social realpolitik. So why would anyone who has learned this expect ECs and newcomers to have an equal voice?

Stop expecting things to be fair and unbiased, because they never are. Learn how to exist in the real world.

How do I express my anger safely?

6 upvotes · 22 January 2016 · /r/askTRP talk it out. Write it down. Breath. Explain how you feel

This is not BS. It's missing one vital component.

Explain it to someone who doesn't think you are insane.

What are you angry about?

Great debunking of the 1 in 3 men would rape study

6 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

could not be used to predict future behavior, as it is impossible to consider every potential condition a human being might be placed under. This means for one that some of the "not at alls" might indeed rape if placed in a situation outside of their imagining (such as guerrilla warfare). It also means that some of the "very likelies" may well not engage in behavior they themselves believe they would, when a given opportunity presents itself.

This is why I regard any study that involves self-report or a questionnaire as a waste of good paper. People are universally terrible at predicting their own behaviour, and even when they know what they would do, they lie about it.

Psychology and sociology are rife with self-report studies, because they are easy to do, and actually observing human behaviour is expensive and difficult. But all that achieves is multiply the amount of wrong data out there.

I am reminded of the story of the drunk searching for his lost car keys under a street lamp. He dropped them two streets down, but "the light is better over here".

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

6 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<http://lmgty.com/?q=yes+means+yes+law>

"My GF got off the pill without telling me and now she's pregnant" [X-post from sweden-subreddit]

6 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

That sounds like a sotto voce moral argument. Not allowed here, bud.

The 20 Principles of Rogue Health

6 upvotes · 31 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If hunger always wins, then to lose fat one must choose a way of eating that dampens hunger. Low-carbohydrate diets, especially those that forbid sugar and refined carbohydrates like flour, are the best for controlling hunger

Additional reading for those who haven't seen it:

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/353buo/eating_101_fork_use_for_dummies/

The ex wants full custody in exchange for...

6 upvotes · 28 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

Never sign an agreement with someone who has a lawyer, unless you have a lawyer.

What do you think about the quote "dick is abundant & low value"?

6 upvotes · 27 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I agree with it.

Dick is indeed abundant and low value. But women think this means men are abundant and low value, because they don't realize that, unlike most of them, men are not composed of genitals as their most highly valuable part.

Without men, if you flip a light switch, nothing happens.

Without men, you have no food to eat.

Without men, you cannot fill your car with gasoline to drive it from here to there.

Without men, you cannot access the internet to read or write words here.

Without men, if you turn on the faucet, nothing happens.

I do not need to continue making this list. Anyone could make this list. Anyone could make this list all day. The limit of the size of this list is not the amount of items to go on it, but the patience and time required to write them down.

Dick isn't what men do for you. It's what you do for them, to keep all those things happening. Dick isn't a value center, it's a cost center. But what it pays for is civilization. Men invented civilization to get their dicks sucked.

And when women stop sucking those abundant, low-value dicks, it starts slowly going away.

How the fuck do you keep a woman loyal?

6 upvotes · 26 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Precisely. /u/epiclevelcheater, please point this dude here and on the main.

If she cheats with you, she will cheat on you.

#If I were a boy - I'd be able to make choices about my own body

6 upvotes · 26 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

Should also include a photo of a selective service registration card.

Woman Causes Accident, Puts Children In Danger, And It's All My Fault - AWALT

6 upvotes · 21 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Typical /r/iamverysmart sort of response.

Always ascribe the simplest and most ignorant sort of position to anyone you disagree with. After all, the goal isn't to convince people of your position... it's to convince people that you are very smart.

Look, I gave you the benefit of the doubt and read your comment history to see what your actual position was (because that sure wasn't apparent from this little tantrum). Seems to me like you get butthurt every time someone criticizes Southwest Asia or Islam. Any time someone levels an accusation at either, you either genuinely believe they think all Muslims are Jihadi suicide bombers (in which case you are an idiot), or you pretend to believe that because it's the easiest strawman to attack (in which case you are the sort of hopeless loser who joins MENSA... obsessed with being smart rather than with getting results, or even being correct).

If I thought you were capable of sticking to the basic rules of modern discourse in debate, I'd talk a little bit about what I think constitutes a sensible immigration policy. But there's little point in doing that with someone who's busy yelling at you that you are a fish.

Grow up, and we can talk.

Do Female Incels have it the Worst?

6 upvotes · 19 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't call them anything. I cannot see them.

80/20 Rule

6 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And I asked how you plan to incentivize it.

If you want someone to behave in a way that runs counter to their interests, you must provide a motivation.

Women "punch above their weight class" in the attractiveness of their hookup-sex partners because they can.

Men "punch above their weight class" in the chastity of their relationship partners because they can.

You want the latter, and only the latter, to stop. But the only incentive you offer is "I will stop calling you hypocritical for that specific thing". That's really not much of an incentive. I don't suffer the slightest inconvenience from you calling me a hypocrite.

I do not sign moral contracts which see me as nothing but a means for other people's happiness.

80/20 Rule

6 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That does not explain how you plan to incentivize that.

80/20 Rule

6 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So your view is that it's okay to hold someone else to an attractiveness standard to which you do not conform, but not okay to hold someone else to a chastity standard to which you do not conform.

How do you plan to incentivize that?

Are the real misogynists more successful with women than the accused misogynists?

6 upvotes · 14 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They're happy saying shit like "Sluts aren't bad girlfriends" because they've never talked to a slut

People who argue against slut shaming usually tend to operate that thought against some idealized version of a slut.

She is an entirely fictitious happy, loving, outgoing creature who just loves sex, has few personal boundaries, and is just overflowing with love and the desire to make other people happy by sharing sexual pleasure with them.

Sluts ain't like that. I won't say that such women don't exist (I've actually met one or two), but they are such a vanishingly small minority that they don't really belong in a discussion of slut shaming.

"Divorce rape" is the most insensitive, misogynistic phrase ever uttered

6 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

i don't have children so i can't really answer that with any certainty.

That answer is good enough to establish the point I am making. Traumas cannot easily be compared.

Some people would rather be raped than lose the business they spent 20 years building. Others would rather build another business. Some people would rather be raped than lose their children. Others don't really care that much about their children. Some people don't have much to lose, other people have a great deal that they went to great effort and sacrifice to get. Some people would be scarred beyond repair by a forcible invasion of their bodies by someone they didn't know, others have sex with strangers for money all the time, and the major difference would be not getting paid.

It's not easy to sort this all out. Certainly most men have no idea what it's like to live with the fear of rape... just as most women have no idea what it's like to live with the knowledge that the full power of the state can be used to deprive you of everything you have, your possessions, your children, your future, your freedom, just because a woman told them to, for whatever reason she liked.

The major difference, as I see it, between sexual rape and divorce rape, is that in the former, society and the state try to stop the rapist.

Why do Red Pillers have a problem with female nature?

6 upvotes · 11 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Also, the whole thing about women being children. Some people here don't understand why TBP has a problem with women being called children, because children are so awesome and innocent afterall.

Exactly.

I don't want a woman who is adult, mature, tough, and independent. I don't want a woman who isn't "the most responsible teenager in the house".

I want a woman who's a big kid at heart. Who bounces around with youthful enthusiasm, cries at sad movies, sleeps with a teddy bear, and makes involuntary high-pitched noises whenever she sees a kitten.

I don't need a relationship with another badass. I have all those qualities already. I don't have any use for a "strong black woman who don't need no man", because she doesn't have anything to offer that I don't already have in myself.

Don't you get it yet? This is fucking adorable.

The part that gets men mad is when someone tries to strong-arm them into treating these fun little bundles of play and happiness as if they were wise, sage adults. You're not. You're evolved to be childish, because you're supposed to take care of the children.

My job is to punch grizzly bears in the face. And after a hard day of punching grizzly bears in the face, I do not want to cuddle up to someone who looks like a grizzly bear, or acts like one.

If there is such a thing as "toxic masculinity" then surely there another side to the coin, "toxic femininity" how would blue pillers define it and what are some examples?

6 upvotes · 30 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, masculinity becomes toxic masculinity when it hurts women.

And femininity becomes toxic femininity when it hurts women.

Seems like your definition of "toxic" is "hurts women".

RPwomen observation

6 upvotes · 26 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

RPWs are mostly tradcons who want to hitch their wagon to the TRP movement's horse.

They use the word "red pill", but what they actually endorse amounts to the 1950s.

Why do TRPillers make rape fantasies such a big deal?

6 upvotes · 22 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, "want to be raped" is an oxymoron.

No, it's not. People make this mistake.

Rape isn't "unwanted sex". It's sex that hasn't been consented to. A whore may be having an off day, and would rather be home sleeping, but she's not being raped.

Women who have rape fantasies are fantasizing about having good, pleasurable sex forced upon them by an attractive man. And the notion of not having a choice is part of what makes the fantasy exciting for them.

No woman wants to have sex with an unattractive man. A great many women want to have non-consensual sex... almost any experience, sexual or not, can be non-consensual, and the lack of consent does not render every experience the same.

This confusion between desire and consent is the reason many women find their own rape fantasies confusing... how can they possibly "want what they do not want"? Well, no one wants what they do not want. But many people want not to make certain choices, or have power over certain things.

The rape fantasy, for women, has several different kinds of appeal.

- Being with an extremely powerful and dominant man, so much so that he simply takes what he wants.
- Being so desirable that a man is unable to control his desire for her, and simply takes her.
- Not having to take responsibility for sex.

An illustrative example of this I once ran across was a young lady who came from a fundamentalist religious background. At the age of twelve, she heard a news story about a dentist sent to prison because he had raped a teenage girl when she was under anesthesia. She was enormously turned on by this, and set out to seduce her dentist. (Years later, she regaled me with stories of things she has tried, all of which seem to have gone right over the fellow's head.)

Why would she do this? Well, she was pubescent and horny as hell. And she had been taught this was a horrible sin. But if someone raped her, now... it wouldn't be her fault, now, would it?

CMV: TBPillars do think that the way someone expresses themselves can invalidate what they're saying.

6 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

My problem is that the extreme exaggeration for effect and hyperbole make it more difficult to have an actual discussion.

You're looking for what we call "modern discourse", as opposed to "postmodern discourse".

<http://www.avoicformen.com/miscellaneous/contrasting-modern-and-post-modern-discourse/>

The problem with modern discourse is that it is a cooperative process. Two or more people can only engage in modern discourse if both of them agree to do so, and know how to do so.

Postmodern discourse, by contrast, is combative. If any party to a discussion chooses to engage in postmodern discourse, then all parties to the discussion are constrained to do so, unless they, alternatively, band together to eject this malicious person from the discussion.

One of the first lessons I attempt to teach the young brothers is to be aware of this, and to never engage in modern discourse unless the room can first be cleared of postmodernists.

So, if you wish to engage in a modernist discourse about sexual issues, you must agree to the same principle. One cannot simultaneously construct rational arguments (modern discourse) and pass shit tests (postmodern discourse). So if you want to have this discussion, you have to have it in the proper context... that is to say, within a group of people who agree to talk about ideas, not people, to search for truth, not moral ascendancy.

Ask me on PPD if I think women should be allowed to vote, and I'll tell you I think they should be bought and sold like cattle. Because that's how you pass shit test. (And make no mistake. Everything on PPD is a shit test. No one comes here to have their mind made up. They make up their minds, and then come here to speak, not listen.)

Ask the same question of me when we're sitting in my living room hoisting a couple of beers and watching the game, and you'll get a far more detailed and nuanced answer if you have proven to me that you are a rational modernist who actually cares to know what I think.

CMV: TBPillars do think that the way someone expresses themselves can invalidate what they're saying.

6 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If, hypothetically, there was a vocal, social influential group of black people who made a practice of actively shutting down any criticism of black culture or of any black person in their clique with accusations of "racism"...

How long do you think it would be before a group formed of the people least susceptible to social intimidation differentiated itself?

What might those sort of people say about blacks, and race? Would they be interested in making their message "palatable" to the very bullies they were defined by their opposition to?

"Too bad you're a Taurus, because my last boyfriend was one and it was terrible and abusive". What to say to this?

6 upvotes · 8 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

I replied with something like "Well, it depends on his venus, not all people are alike.

That's D&D (Disagree and Defend), the classic way to fail a shit test.

You need to A&A (Agree and Amplify).

"Oh, I'm terrible and abusive, too. I'm just sexier about it."

How do I overcome shyness?

6 upvotes · 30 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3qw3t6/ask_whisper_the_fear_and_shame_loop/

16 Days Left in the KickStarter for "The Red Pill". Let's show we can take part in some actual activism and not just post stuff in here, which, while advocacy is important, so is taking action such as this.

6 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

There's also a human instinct to give preferential treatment to people who physically resemble ourselves. The "us vs them" mentality is hardwired into humans.

If that was what I was talking about, then women would display a preference for women, and men would display a preference for men. When we look at the study results, women display a preference for women, and men display a preference for women. This is why what you call "activism" cannot succeed. The civil rights movement got somewhere because of black solidarity. If black people instinctively favoured white people over other black people, what do you think would have happened?

There is no male solidarity. Our society was doomed the moment women got the vote, because men vote for what they think is good for society, and women vote for what they think is good for women.

What you call "activism" means "appeals to fairness". Men respond to appeals for fairness to women, because men are hardwired to be protective of women. Women are not hardwired to be protective of men, because, evolutionarily, it's men who do the protecting. Women are only protective of children and other women.

A man who appeals to a woman for fairness does nothing but excite her contempt.

Does this mean that men can never better their position? No, it does not. It only means that your brand of activism doesn't work.

Men must use the advantages we do have. We do not have solidarity, or a protective instinct in others, but what we do have is an economic advantage. Men, by default, own everything, because we build everything, invent everything, repair everything, design everything.

Women just showed up and demanded "their" share in the name of "fairness". But, as I just explained, fairness is just an appeal to protective instinct.

What we teach, at TRP, is how to resist appeals to that protective instinct. The goal is to give women only what they earn from us. When great numbers of men become resistant to the female appeal to give them "their fair share" of all the shit we built, then they have two choices: build their own shit, or treat us how we want to be treated.

And let's face it, it's gonna be choice number two. Because you know as well as I do, even if you won't say it, that women aren't going to pick up a gun or a shovel. That women don't do math because women don't like doing math, and they can get away with not doing it. That women don't do much of anything, because they don't have impress anyone in order to get laid.

"Hey, dudes, stop giving women free shit" is a fight we can win, because individual victories count. It's something a man can do in his own life to make things better.

Getting women to sympathize with male struggles is never going to happen, because "man" is to "woman" as "woman" is to "child".

[Mod] Spam policy and the shameless self promotion issue

6 upvotes · 9 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Publicity is definitely good. If we don't make our presence known, we won't reach the men who need our help.

And we all know that negative publicity from SJWs is the best kind for us, because it recommends to anyone they hate. Which is our target audience.

With the exception of the last example (never debate someone in a theatre they control), all of that sounds useful and fun.

What I am against is trying to organize a plan to change society. Because that's bad tactics, MRA style, and that leads nowhere.

Why do i get intimidated by pretty girls?

6 upvotes · 9 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

Because you think pretty is worth something.

how to respond to this text?

6 upvotes · 7 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

"All the time we shared, all those moments, and you don't remember me?!"

Mistake: Approaching when pushed away. Never seem more eager than she is.

Jk

No. No. No. Fuck no. What the fuck are you, a twelve year old girl? Never type "Jk". Never type ":". Cut that shit out.

we met briefly outside _____. How are you?"

Bland.

- "Well, now you have to guess, or no more texts for you."
- "Alfonso gave me your number."
- "On top of the Eiffel Tower. We didn't talk long. I was falling past at the time."
- "In $(number) minutes, at $(location)."

Just whatever weird bullshit pops into your head. When in doubt, never give a bitch a straight answer.

Is it needy when you want to read your LTR's messages? Even when you suspect something ?

6 upvotes · 25 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

Lots of red flags here. You know what's going on. She has either cheated on you or is making plans to.

You need to get out now.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

6 upvotes · 24 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<http://www.eduardosuastegui.com/wp-content/uploads/2015/07/non-sequitur.jpg>

Who said anything about what women did a thousand years ago? Is that pizza of yours a thousand years old? If so, I'm glad I didn't eat any.

Additionally, "woman" and "feminist" are not synonyms. Women have done many things throughout history (mostly domestic tasks and child bearing, but those are useful). Feminists have done jack shit except demand more pizza.

Do you dispute the notion that men do the farming? The truck driving? The livestock raising and butchering? The drilling for natural gas? The laying of pipes? The design and manufacture of appliances? Do you think that those men were somehow inspired to do this by feminism?

That's the point of this analogy. (I cannot believe I am having to explain this to you, but I suppose there is no obtuseness like that of a man who does not want to understand.) Feminism *demand*s support from men in general, because feminists, on their own, have nothing... because they produce nothing. So they need men. Men like me (and billions of others like me), who actually make useful shit.

That's the reason that men, in the past, owned everything. Because they fucking built it. When feminists want things, they have a choice. They can build something themselves, or they can ask men for. And they clearly have chosen.

Anyway, feminism clearly wants my support. In the form of money, time, votes, and so on. It has asked often enough.

So I ask what it plans to do for me in return. So far the answer has been a resounding "WE OWE YOU NOTHING, CISHETDUDEBRO SCUM!". So my answer is, well, include me out.

But of course, it goes further than that. Feminism doesn't just offer nothing to men, it fucks things up for men. Not because it is targeting them precisely, but because it is out to grab as much power, and as much "pizza", as possible, and anything that happens to men as a result is considered an acceptable level of collateral damage. Blame-shifting exercises like "the patriarchy hurts men too" are used by feminism to avoid taking responsibility for the damage it has caused.

TRP pretty much exists to clean up the messes feminism created in the lives of ordinary men.

Which means I am basically a trauma surgeon who spends a good part of every week digging your stray bullets out of innocent bystanders. And you wonder why I have so few nice things to say about you folks?

Why we shouldn't be encouraging teenage boys to go to the gym

6 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If they are talking to other men, sure. If they're talking to feminists, they are wasting their breath.

It is a waste of time to appeal to reason or empathy when speaking to a feminist, because if they had those things, they wouldn't be feminists. In fact, those few feminists who insisted on having them got excommunicated from the movement (Camille Paglia, Christina Hoff Summers).

If you expect to have an honest debate with feminists, you're going in at a huge handicap, because what you see as a debate (which follows the principles of intellectual honesty), they see as a fight (in which the only rule is "win by any means necessary").

It makes no sense to "prove" to them that feminism isn't really about gender equality, because they already know that. It's just something they say to deflect criticism. If you were to prove it beyond the shadow of a doubt, what do you think would go through their heads?

It sure wouldn't be "oh, shit, we have to change" or "oh, shit, we have to stop being feminists". It would be "Oh, shit, we need a new excuse".

The current new one is "feminism is for helping women, not for helping you".

https://np.reddit.com/r/PurplePillDebate/comments/3m0tt3/if_feminism_is_about_equality_why_have_feminists

/cvb0qpy

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

6 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If a man cannot get laid, nothing else matters to him.

Snivel all you want, ladies, about how unfair this is (but only about how unfair it is to you, never him). It's the way men evolved. No one has a choice about this. Not men, not women, not all of us together.

The human male sex drive is the single most powerful force that living beings possess. It built civilization. It raised countless empires and crushed them, too. It invented everything. If it were up to the women, we would still be living in grass huts. Everything we have that isn't picked up off the ground or chipped out of stone exists because a dude wanted to get laid.

A man has other desires and ambitions, but he only notices them when his basic sexual needs are fulfilled. Only the needs to breathe, drink, and eat are more basic, more driving.

If you cannot or will not help an incel get laid, you are useless to him, and you mean nothing to him. Make all noises you want about how he, or life, "shouldn't" be this way.... they are meaningless. Life is this way. Deal with it as it is, or shut up and get out of the way of the rest of us who are trying to have an adult conversation.

I don't read TRP to get laid. I write TRP to help incels get laid. Why? Because my sexual needs are fulfilled, and I have noticed my other desires and ambitions.

I want to help you. It will require a LOT of work on your part, because I can only do so much for you. The rest you have to do yourself. If you want what you never had before, you have to do what you never did before. But if you read TRP long enough to pick out the sense between the words, and then go put those principles into practice, you will fail a lot, but you will eventually succeed.

It'll suck for a long time before it gets better. That's not great, but it's a much better deal than the feminists offer. Because their deal is "shut up and give us stuff".

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

6 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not free.

Men ploughed the fields, sowed the wheat, and harvested it. They raised the cattle, and milked them, and made the cheese. They grew the tomatoes and the spices. They raised the pig and made the sausage.

They ground the flour. They drove the trucks that brought all these things to market. They kneaded the dough, and baked the whole thing in the oven that they designed and manufactured, burning the natural gas they drilled out of the earth and piped to the kitchen.

Feminists just showed up and demanded free pizza.

So don't call us when you run out.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

6 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If feminism doesn't care about men, I don't care about feminism.

Why we shouldn't be encouraging teenage boys to go to the gym

6 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, I wouldn't.

Because it's not for women to decide what those problems are, or how to solve them.

We will tell you what they are. And we will tell you how we decided to solve them.

Not your territory, not your business. Sit down and shut up.

Was this fiance entitled to know about AFBB?

6 upvotes · 22 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If these details are totally unimportant and shouldn't matter to anyone... why do people go to such lengths to hide them, and get so upset when they are revealed?

Tinder, did I do too much?

6 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't overanalyze this shit.

Judging by the pictures she took, you're talking to a slut. Sluts get attention hurled at them from all angles. They can disappear at any time for reasons that have nothing to do with you.

The solution is to set them at no value. They are interchangeable, and another will be along shortly. Regard every message you send as potentially the last. If she doesn't answer, shrug and find another one.

Does the RP man negotiate sex? And how about being a gentleman?

6 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

mentioned she only has sex with someone she's got some kind of potential future with, that it's more enjoyable when there's also an emotional connection bla bla.

I had initially bit, saying I never commit to a girl before even sleeping with her, and as the conversation started heading in that direction, I realized I was probably failing some kind of shit test and changed topics.

There's your problem.

You are still treating women like people and like adults. This is the behaviour they say they want, so many are fooled, but, in practice, they will treat you much better if you don't.

You are treating women like adults by taking what they say at face value. Don't do that.

- When an adult (i.e. male over about 16 or so) says something, it is because he has thought about it and come to a decision. That decision might be changed by new information, but it is considered and consistent across emotional states.
- When a child (i.e. male under 16 or so, or woman of any age) says something, it is consistent with her emotional state right now. But it can and will change the moment her emotional state changes.

A girl telling you she "doesn't have sex except in a committed relationship" is no more significant than a four year old boy telling mommy he "hates her" because she makes him turn off his video game and go to bed. Sure, he hates her right now, but that's going to last for five minutes and she knows it. So what does mommy do? Does she burst into tears? Surely that would be a sane response if her four year old son actually permanently hated her. Probably the only sane response. Of course she doesn't. She ignores it. She doesn't take it seriously. "Hate me all you want, but it's bedtime, and you are going to bed.", she says. She knows it will be forgotten when she wakes up.

That's how you need to deal with women. What they say about their motivations, plans, decisions, and attitudes is usually true... but only at the moment they say it. Remember that when they say something you don't want to hear.

Don't try to negotiate and change it right then. Just brush it off with something non-committal and then change her emotional state or wait for it to change. (If you are really advanced, you can just brush it aside by contradicting and changing her emotional state instantly. But that's graduate-level.)

If a girl says "I never have sex on the first date.", don't argue with her. It's not a policy. Nothing a woman says is, women have no policies.

1. Just say "Well, let's just see what happens".
2. She won't argue with that. There's nothing to argue with. She thinks that sex is not happening, because she thinks she'll still feel that way in two hours.
3. Then use game skills to change her emotional state to a more receptive.
4. When you see it working, initiate foreplay.
5. Now what she said doesn't matter. It's ancient history, because her emotional state has changed. She can barely remember having said it. She might even deny having said it.

Like consent, lack of consent can change at any time.

Stop taking what girls say so seriously. Words aren't serious in girl-world, only feelings are.

CMV it is impossible to conclude that any TRP tenant is wrong by misusing it.

6 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I dont think I can convince someone who is happy to be a shitty person that they shouldn't be a shitty person.

You haven't even gotten to that point yet. You haven't convinced me that someone is evil based on their thoughts rather than their actions. You saying "X is a shitty person" is just you making noises with your mouth, until and unless you can make an argument to support your assertion.

You're just plain wrong on this one. To put it in stark, easy to understand terms for you, the SS were evil not because they hated Jews, but because they gassed them. To believe otherwise is to believe that gassing Jews would somehow be one iota less evil if one did not simultaneously hate them. It is to say that the self-promoting opportunist murderer is somehow less wicked than the true believer.

It is self-evidently nonsense under any sane and functional system of moral reasoning.

There is no such thing as thoughtcrime. There is no such thing as opinioncrime. I am not interested in your supported personal opinion of anyone else's moral worth, because I think your own moral worth is at the very least unproven, and most likely highly suspect.

Have Slut Walks got it all right?

6 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are completely convinced they can change reality any time they want, using words alone.

This is because the reality women inhabit is social in nature. Their environment consists largely of other people. They are more insulated from the more basic physical reality than men are, because they have a society full of men to handle the physical tasks (driving trucks, building houses, fixing pipes), or tasks constrained by immutable laws (writing software, performing surgery, designing bridges).

This means that "reality", to most women, isn't the thing men call "reality". It's more like "consensus". This consensus reality actually can be changed with words alone, because it consists entirely of other people's opinions.

Where they go wrong is simply in failing to realize when they demand a change to the social reality which is so radical that it is incompatible with dealing with physical reality. That's when the others (largely men) who must deal with physical reality start to push back, because they have no choice at all.

Physical reality cannot be changed to accommodate women's desires, and when the gap becomes too large for men to span, they have no choice but to push back.

TRP is not a cult. I know what they are now more than ever, and TRP isn't it. Toxic Religion is.

6 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, consider it from their point of view.

Here are their initial premises:

- The state of their mind and beliefs (faith) determines their moral worth, not their actions.
- There is a powerful evil spirit constantly trying to undermine their faith.
- If their faith is weak or undermined at the moment of their death, then the mighty wizard who created the universe will have them waterboarded for eternity.

If you believe these things, then it's pretty easy to reach the conclusion that absolutely anything besides their church which influences their mind in any way is, at the very least, a danger that renders them vulnerable to evil (followed by eternal waterboarding), if not an actual plan by the agents of evil.

You see, this is why I actually have a lot more respect for loony religious fundamentalists that I do for Christian moderates. Because the loony fundamentalists are actually following through on the implications of their stupid beliefs. They believe retarded stuff, but at least they have the courage to face the implications.

Christian moderates believe the same loony retarded stuff, they just hamster it all away because they are too cowardly to face the implications.

If you believe the bible, then you believe that you live in a universe hand-crafted by a homicidal manic with the emotional stability of a 3 year old.

Fundamentalists say: Okay, then we better do as he says, so we don't get eternally waterboarded.

Moderates say: Yeah, but, uh... I want to believe he's nice, so we're just going to ignore all the old testament stuff and sit around talking about John 3:16.

TRP is not a cult. I know what they are now more than ever, and TRP isn't it. Toxic Religion is.

6 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If that is your attitude about Christianity then you are not really a Christian.

What if it is his attitude about Scotsmen?

TRP's hatred of mentally ill women - er why?

6 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So now I "hate" every woman I don't want to have sex with?

Am I too young to be reading The Red Pill?

6 upvotes · 21 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

You're angry because you want things to be other than as they are. You want women to be honorable and trustworthy.

TRP deliberately focuses on the worst that women are capable of. This is to knock them off the "pedestal" in your mind. Once you stop idealizing women, you will realize that you can deal with women as they actually are, and that don't need to be honorable and trustworthy to be fun, loveable, and enjoyable.

Women can be a great source of happiness in your life, but only once you stop idealizing them.

What is the closest pill to pussy?

6 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3dalxv/dont_talk_to_me_like_a_bitch/

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillers themselves.

6 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Haven't worked out the details, yet. But since we're such an evil, hatey cult, you can be sure it will be some horrible nefarious plot, worthy of evil geniuses such as ourselves.

Possibly we can work in some techniques for destroying the ozone layer and making cute baby rabbits cry.

When to tell her that I love her (LTR) ?

6 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Holy shit, that's some serious oneitis. Dr. Whisper recommends a supplemental course of red pills with extra misogyny.

Something I've noticed about feminism and TRP

6 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Is does not imply ought.

Nothing implies ought. Ought can never be inferred.

Ought is just a coward's way to say "I want" without taking responsibility.

What type of women do Redpill tactics work on?

6 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is no meaningful answer. Anything follows from a false premise. If two plus two is five, then I am the Pope.

Some Red Pillers suggest cutting out video games and other forms of entertainment. Do or do not?

6 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

TRP is instructions for living a happy life.

Not instructions for being some sort of Pickup Sperg who does nothing but lift weights and hang out in nightclubs.

I play video games myself, because I like them, and if some woman objects that they don't make her wet, well, not everything in my life has her vagina as a goal. And if some young hothead thinks I'm not "monk mode" enough, I care even less, because don't bother shit testing me unless you're gonna put on a skirt and some makeup, pal.

Here's your rule of thumb for entertainments.

- If they live in the hours you need to rest and relax, that's good.
- If they start consuming the hours you need to get shit done, that's bad.
- If you go to them because they are fun and give you pleasure, that's good.
- If you go to them because are avoiding your painful or boring life, that's bad.

Do everything you do with vigour and intensity. If you're going to play video games, only play the ones you really love, and start missing if you don't have time to play them. Play the ones that are difficult and give you a sense of accomplishment when you win. Play the ones that make you compete with against other players with all their human cunning and skill.

It's your life. You are responsible for it. You decide what's important to you.

Me, I like Planetside2. Leading a platoon of fifty other men in a combined-arms operation on a virtual battlefield is pretty fucking awesome. Hasn't stopped me from getting as many blowjobs as I have time in the day for, either.

Girl is a selfish lover

6 upvotes · 13 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Start refusing sex. If she asks why, tell her she is no good in bed.

Women don't respond to appeals to fairness from men. Why not? Because appealing to fairness is a submissive act. It places someone else in the position of determining and administering justice... which makes that person dominant. Any time to argue that a woman "should" do something, because it's "fair", you are placing yourself in a submissive role.

And women feel no obligation to be fair to be submissive men, because submissive men aren't attractive, and women see men as people, but they do not see unattractive men as people.

Thus, any appeal to a woman for fairness ensures that you will not receive it.

Instead of appealing to fairness (and thus letting her judge you), you must judge her instead (by judging that she is no good in bed), thereby placing yourself in the dominant role. Then you will be more attractive to her, and she will then have some reason to want to please you.

Telling a woman she is bad in bed is devastating to her self-esteem, if she believes you (this is why you have to refuse sex). Most women (the ones who aren't really fat, or actually ugly) have grown up in a constant state of knowing that many, if not most, men around them would like to have sex with them, given the opportunity. Thus, they think that they are good in bed, because all they have to do to be good in bed is show and look okay.

If you tell a woman she is bad in bed, she feels unattractive on the level that men do. But men are used to it. To her, it's unbearable.

When you do this, one of two things will happen. Either she'll next you (in which case you dodged a bullet), or she'll try to convince you otherwise, possibly call you selfish.

Do not argue with her. Do not give her a list of reasons and examples. Do not support your case. Do not be drawn into a debate with her.

Just say you're not into it. No means no. If you stick and hold frame firmly enough, she will start asking what you want. Now let her stew a little bit. You'll have to be the judge or whether this should be ten minutes, or overnight, or two weeks. Eventually let her talk you into "giving her another chance".

Now you're in a sex act where she's there to please you. Have her do exactly what you want, and give her detailed instructions and feedback. Give her nothing. Only touch her in ways that turn YOU on. Under no circumstances give her an orgasm. She had her turn. Now it's yours.

If she gets you off good and hard, tell her that was "a little better". If she didn't do so well, tell her so and don't mince words. But do not reciprocate even if she gives you the orgasm of the gods.

Repeat this the next few times you have sex. Eventually, when she asks humbly and contritely to have her turn again, you can let her. But make beg first. And from now on, you have a strict policy of "u/Im_not_lonely comes first". Always.

Why are the elite, smartest college students having the least sex?

6 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Frankly, I become suspicious whenever I hear the word "intellectual".

It's the self-description of choice for the do-nothing thinker, the man proud not of his accomplishments, but his supposed capabilities. Such people have a tendency to sit about devising new ways to prove how awesomely smart he is.

This is the tragedy of a powerful intellect entirely consumed in service to a weak and fragile self-image, rather than to its natural masters, ambition and creativity.

Effective people realize that intelligence is merely a means, not an end. Intelligence only matters because it can do things, and if you do not use your intelligence to achieve real-world results, you might as well be retarded for all the difference it makes. If you are using your intelligence to devise elaborate IQ tests to give other idle intellectuals, or justifications for letting Chad (and Brad, and Thad) plow your wife, or postmodernist deconstructions of physics textbooks, then what good are you to yourself, much less anyone else?

One of the most horrible, culturally suicidal things we do in the modern West is turn our smart children into nerds: psychologically broken isolates who prize useless knowledge, and feed their titanic mental capabilities with nothing more useful than games and toys.

Study showing same behaviour more likely to be seen as psychologically abusive if done by a man than if done by a woman. Implications? Interpretations?

6 upvotes · 26 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'd love it if there was serious, widespread action to address men's issues in mainstream society that meant no one ever felt the need turn to TRP or the MRM.

TRP and the MRM are those things you wish existed. You think of them as extremist because you have been taught to. If the moderate alternative you are imagining sprang into existence, then it would immediately be painted as extremist, and people like you would begin speaking wistfully of a moderate alternative to it.

This already happened. The MRAs are the moderates.

Feminist Author Demands that Men Pay Her for Being Their Friend

6 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

Shrug.

No, thanks. Lots of women want to be my friend. All I have to do for them in return is have sex with them. Since I kinda like that, too, I'll do that instead of paying.

A contention to "Lift": Fight.

6 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Anyone who thinks that "You must lift" means "you must go to the gym and do deadlifts and squats" is a sperg.

You must build muscle mass with resistance exercise. Lifting is one of the best ways to do that... pitting your muscles against the earth's pull on iron plates. But if you want to go practice Brazilian jiu-jitsu, and pit your muscles against some other man's muscles, fine. If you want to get really into bodyweight exercises, and pit your muscles against the pull of the earth on you, fine.

So long as you are getting strong. Muscle mass is the sine qua non of male fitness. It's good to add cardio, it's good to add agility, it's good to add fighting skills.

I also box. I do BJJ. I've been training in traditional karate for over two decades. I would never consider these unimportant; I've beaten stronger men in sparring and rolling, and I've lost to weaker ones with more experience.

But if you don't do something that isn't your sport, in order to improve your performance in that sport, then you are a hobbyist, not an athlete.

Marriage??

6 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

In the last couple of years, I could have pushed for sex and I think she would have complied, including getting treatment. This has probably been true for a couple of years. For some reason, likely my beta behavior, I wanted her to make that one last decision herself but based on what I understand that was a really, really stupid mistake on my part.

This is the part where you are the one being selfish.

They have had it explained to you, time and time again, that women are not leaders, and that women are not self-sacrificing. You accept that explanation, or else you would not be here. But you are holding out for her to take the initiative in making a sacrifice for your happiness just this once because you really want it.

That is just dumb.

Women don't do that. What they do is obey men they respect. If you want her to make any sacrifice for you, you must get her in an obedient frame, and then tell her to do it. If you have enough cred, you can get a woman to have your name tattooed on her ass if you tell her to. What a woman will do for you without being told is limited to making you breakfast, or maybe getting you a nice gift on your birthday.

You must be in charge of the relationship. Abandon any dreams you have of her sharing the initiative. But you can make her share the effort, if you are in charge and tell her what to do. A woman in an obedient frame will work her butt off, and love you for making her do it. Expect her to take initiative or responsibility, and she'll hate you.

A woman would rather have three tons of work than three grams of responsibility. You must make this your new motto. Respect the realities of the situation by keeping the responsibility for yourself, and giving her more than half the work, enough so that you no longer resent having to carry the responsibility yourself.

She took no responsibility for your sexual pleasure or satisfaction. But if you, as I now see, also didn't take that responsibility and tell her what to do, then that was your failing also.

Women are capable of loving men, but every woman hates responsibility more than she loves any man. This means you can only be loved by a woman if you do not make responsibility a condition of loving you.

What you demand from her is one single, simple thing. But it is one single, simple thing she cannot do. Cross it off your wish list, and replace it with a whole bunch of stuff that she can do.

In fact, since I am such a bro, I'll write it for you:

- She gets treatment for vaginismus.
- In the meantime, her mouth is now your sex toy. She performs oral sex on you on command, anytime, anywhere, regardless of whether she's horny or not.
- If she's prudish about this, she gets over it. Not after a while. Not "taking some time to get used to it." She gets used to doing it by doing it.
- If she doesn't know how, there's an entire internet full of porn waiting to teach her.
- The word "No" is no longer in her vocabulary. If you say it, she does it. In and out of bed.
- She's not allowed to masturbate. You get her off. Only. When you decide to.
- If she can't have PIV sex (vaginismus), then you get yourself a Wahl Coil vibrator (google it) or Hitachi Magic Wand, and use that on her. When you decide to. And not every time she blows you. She doesn't get her turn, she gets release when you think she's earned it.

I was cursed by a feminist bring-up. But about 5 years ago I started to take most decision making into my own hands, primarily because of the results I was seeing. For the last few years, I have been making the major decisions; I explain them to her and usually manage to convince her. When she doesn't agree, I do it my way anyway.

If you take charge, you might save your marriage. It's up to you to decide if you want to.

But this "she won't take the initiative" stuff is you hamstering. It's an excuse. Of course she won't. No other woman will, either. They don't do that. If you don't want to save your marriage, if your anger is too deep, fine. But admit that. Don't pretend that there was nothing you could do.

So you have a choice to make. Start treating your wife like a slave (using the threat of divorce if necessary), or divorce her.

The former sounds horrible to most ears, but remember that everything you know is wrong. If she has her tasks spelled out to her exactly, then she just may relax. Do not be surprised if she starts to get off on you having this much control. From her perspective, she no longer has to feel bad for not doing something she simply can't force herself to. She just has a concrete to-do list.

If you can't forgive her, that's fine. Get divorced. But you have this option.

And make no mistake. You will never meet a woman who will take half the responsibility. They don't exist.

Question for men: would you rather date a formerly promiscuous woman who makes your heart skip and butterflies flutter in your stomach, or the virgin who you feel nothing for?

6 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Would you rather eat a bowl of dogshit that made your mouth water, or a nice juicy steak you didn't want?

A history of why men are unable to say no to women and set healthy bounds

6 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He's also dogged the PUA community quite a bit.

That was my first encounter with him. He wrote some big long rant calling PUAs a bunch of manchildren who were overcomplicating the business of getting laid (just hang around them and don't smell bad and something will happen, was his basic message), and were selfish because they weren't fighting for the rights of all men like him.

So I wrote a long reddit comment and emailed him a link, basically to the tune of:

- You are a member of the generation that fucked things up for these boys in the first place.
- You have offered them no solutions to their immediate problems.
- Nor do you even understand their immediate problems; you are out of the dating game for some time and you have no idea what it's like out there.
- Yet you presume to criticize the solution they invented on their own, without the guidance your generation abdicated its responsibility to provide.
- Lead, follow, or get your ass out of the way.

I never got a response, but he published a retraction repeating some of my points and saying he wasn't going to talk about PUAs anymore.

Basically, his heart's in the right place, but his head is stuffed with baby boomer arrogance and incapacity to understand the viewpoints of others. I don't really think that much of him, because he burned a lot of trust there. Can't rely on him not to pull that shit again.

This is the future you chose male feminists - stay at home dad is cucked and terms it as enlightenment.

6 upvotes · 17 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So your argument basically is "you backing up your opinions with personal experiences is invalid, because we have been backing up ours with our own experiences".

You wandered into a conversation years in progress, disagreed with premises we discharged long ago, and now you want us all to stop and start at the beginning so you can catch up and don't have to read the sidebar?

No.

I actually agree with a lot of red pill, in the sense that I think modern feminism has been harmful to both genders, promiscuity is ruining people's ability to bond and build strong families, and people (both men AND women, maybe especially women) need to develop more of a drive for self-improvement and for effort if they want functioning relationships, because yes, a person can love you for you, but if you are just an empty shell, no aspirations, no interests, no nothing, what's there to love?

This is true. All love is conditional, because every reason is a condition.

But how is that relevant to the question of male vs. female sexual fidelity? You only touch peripherally on the question when you say promiscuity is ruining people's ability to bond and build strong families

... but you used the wrong word. You said "people", implying all people.

Let me fix it for you:

promiscuity is ruining women's ability to bond and build strong families

There, that's better. Men and women don't work the same way.

Remember that the original definition of a family was "a man, his wives, and their children". While our culture did introduce monogyny later, it did so for other reasons than "families are unstable because men cannot bond". Polygynous families bond just fine, we know that because it happened. And we are now seeing that polyandry does not produce the same stability.

question to both pills, do men experience hybristophilia the way women do?

6 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Just as the word "sociopath" was invented to pathologize the warrior personality.

Don't Talk to Me Like a Bitch.

6 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In think it's best if you calibrate that. Your desire not to be a hypocrite, and to extend to others the same understanding you would like for yourself, speaks well of your character, but remember that what people want and what people need are often two very different things.

Noh Wang wants to be comforted and told it's all right, mommy loves him just the way he is. He wants that because it will soothe his immediate emotional pain. But if you give him that, what have you done? You've rewarded him for using an ineffective strategy that will hurt him in the long run.

Comforting men doesn't really work. They still feel awful, because deep down they know they are not being proper men. They don't want sympathy. They want respect.

The way a man actually feels better to get a small victory under his belt. Then he can take that energy and hope and go on to get a slightly bigger one. And eventually he can become a man he is proud to be. But his involves going way out of his comfort zone.

My role as a mentor here is like that of a surgeon. Most surgeons are narcissistic sociopaths. They have to be. Because a decent human being, like you, sees someone else in pain, and wants to give them morphine and comforting words, to stop the pain. It's only a Dark Triad "monster" who can bear to cut into that person with a knife instead... even if, intellectually, both men know that this is what needs to be done.

If you wish to be the kind of man who does what needs to be done, and actually fixes shit that's gone wrong, then you must cultivate the ability to (temporarily) shut off your empathy when it is counterproductive. And you must cultivate the wisdom to know when that is.

First post syndrome

6 upvotes · 14 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3dalxv/dont_talk_to_me_like_a_bitch/

The Revenge Of The Lost Boys

6 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I always get a good laugh out of these articles written by older men (especially baby boomers), asking "What's wrong with young men?", when the transparently clear answer is "Your generation raised them, that's what".

Here, however, I am at a loss for a solution, because the answer lies in some kind of long-term restoration of social order among young men. I don't know how to do that

Of course you don't, idiot, because you're the problem.

Older men can no longer mentor younger men in any meaningful numbers.

What you mean is that you can't, because you're a conservative, and conservatives are clueless. You know that social order gives everyone a little something to live for, but you are such a bunch of fucking white knights that you cannot bear to sell your product in any other terms than male duty. Even now, you endlessly harangue young men to "man up" and "grow up" and shoulder burdens that you call "adulthood" but you have failed to lift one finger to preserve or provide any incentive to do so.

No one is listening to you anymore. Your political ideology is so bankrupt of leadership that here you are having a good long public cry about how you don't know what to do and have no ideas. Is this what you call "adulthood"? Why should we listen to you?

The western world now seems to be divided into:

- Liberals, the faction of really terrible poisonous ideas.
- Conservatives, the faction of no ideas at all.

If you can't lead, shut up and follow.

Media Needs to Understand This

6 upvotes · 9 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

Really, they could be pointing to us in a much more productive fashion.

Instead of "We're not evil, the evil guys are over there.", they could say "Deal with us, because if you don't deal with us, you get those guys over there."

Which is absolutely correct. The core issue here isn't this legal or that social problem. It's the misandry bubble. If there had been MRAs 30 years ago, and they were taken seriously, TRP would not exist, because the need for it wouldn't be there.

TRP was created PKA and RPS as alternative to seddit, because seddit was being policed to remove any comments or posts which might upset a woman who read them. This meant removing all the advice that actually worked, because human sexuality is raw and greedy and ugly and Machiavellian, and the truth about it is always going to hurt feelings.

But why was it being policed this way? Misandry bubble. The core lack of respect for men. The increasing woman-centricity of our culture. This was why the men themselves who ran seddit were so terrified of being seen as anti-woman that they gutted their own subreddit, abandoned their own mission.

And once TRP existed, a bunch of us (the "Vanguard" founders) rapidly came along, began talking about the real issues, and a consensus emerged that the problem was deeper than just lack of info about seduction techniques. Hence the term misandry bubble.

This same pattern repeats itself now with /r/MensRights . MRAs are so terrified of being seen as anti-woman that they will do things like disavow TRP loudly and repeatedly.

Take a hint, guys. It won't work. Accusations of being anti-woman are just a tool they use to back you into a corner. They will paint with that brush whatever it suits their purpose to kill. The only way to win is not to care about being seen that way.

That's what TRP is. It's the male space that doesn't care about being seen as anti-woman. That's why the young men are flocking to us and not you. Because we won't throw them under a bus to appease an enemy.

[FR] I hit stage 4. It's the worst stage so far.

6 upvotes · 6 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As you climb the mountain, there will be switchbacks in the road, and the fourth is the most painful; it shortest climb, but the hardest. It tears the breath from your lungs.

Here is where your illusions have died, but not your dream.

But like the hero of some folk tale, you must sacrifice everything to reach the peak. It is the dream you carry that holds you back, that slows you down, that burdens you. Set it down. It is a stupid dream.

The love you imagine does not exist, and it never did. You don't need it and you don't even want it. There are no soulmates. No one is perfect for you. You will never just fit with anyone, like puzzle pieces made at birth in corresponding shapes.

The love of a man for a woman is the love a sculptor puts into the marble he shapes, it is the love of a man for the dog he raised from a pup. Yes, the marble, or the dog, could have been shaped by the hands of any man. But he is the one who did. Your dream is stupid. It is the dream of being so special that she could never have loved anyone else. That there could be only you, or no one. No one is that special. No one needs to be.

It is not the nature of women, but the stupidity of your dream, that burdens you.

Kill your dream, and be free.

Do RPer's really want to see women as human or beneath them?

6 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed.

So has women's preference for men who hate women.

A question for the blue pillers

6 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, so your rules are:

Human A owes human B kindness unless:

- Human B harms human A
- Human A decides human B is a bad person.

?

In other words, we do not owe people kindness if they harm us, or if we think they are bad people?

r/TheBluePill is not just "anti-TRP", it is committed to an ideology of feminism and radical social justice.

6 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not doing any form of strength exercise is to sexual attractiveness what not keeping track of your expenses is to wealth.

Going to TRP, and saying "I don't exercise, and I don't plan to" is about like going to /r/personalfinance, and saying you have no intention of balancing your checkbook or making a financial plan.

What, exactly, would you expect them to say? "Oh, let's work out an alternate strategy for you that doesn't involve any arithmetic"?

Fitness is the sine qua non of sexual attractiveness.

Why I dislike the term "SJW", as a redpiller

6 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What you are describing is just Motte and Bailey feminism.

Can we discuss about female solipsism ?

6 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I always thought that solipsism means being "self-centered" or "selfish".

No, it means, in this context, that women have great difficulty conceiving of other minds, especially male minds, being different from their own.

Example: Women have difficulty conceiving of being without sex as a real problem for men, because a woman can almost always get sex by lowering her standards a bit. Therefore most if not all female celibacy is partially voluntary. Because of female solipsism, women tend to assume that this is true of men, too, and thus to believe that involuntary celibacy isn't a real thing, or isn't that much of a problem if it is.

Thus, women tend to assume that others want what they would want, do what they would do, feel how they would feel.

Is it possible to change a woman's impression of you?

6 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Why would you? Start with a fresh woman. It's easier.

If you want her more than other women because of your history, you have oneitis.

"Why aren't your married with kids on the way?"

6 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

"Whoa, whoa, whoa, way too early there. At least wait until we've fucked to start proposing."

Do you think there is a need to better teach men to stand up for themselves, especially in their romantic interactions with women?

6 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I (as a non-RPer) strongly believe that there's a need for this, although I don't think that TRP is the best way to satisfy the need (for various reasons that I won't get into at the moment).

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, who comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who neither know victory nor defeat."

Political Compass Poll

6 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

This post is against subreddit rules. No polls without prior mod approval.

I suggest you remove it before you get banned.

UN Women are endorsing anti-male discrimination

6 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/MensRights

thousands of years of oppression

Wow. Those are some very long-lived men. What's their secret?

Men, even TRP men, love women very much.

6 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stage four is depression. Your despair is not any more bottomless than your anger was.

Here's a little something for you, to help you get through.

- Women are not some sort of honorless, broken, malformed human being that falls apart and misbehaves unless constantly managed.
- Women are a perfectly functional sort of creature which is designed (evolved) to need leadership.

Did I just say the same thing twice? Almost, but the difference is your attitude. If you stop viewing the need for leadership as a defect, the problem goes away. Women need male leadership like they need oxygen, food, or shelter.

The reason you find this unpalatable is that you have absorbed a basic-level leftist misconception, the one that most other leftist misconceptions are based on.

"Power/Hierarchy => Exploitation".

This is a lie.

And this lie has caused leftists to try to build a society where no one has power over anyone else, where everyone's power is absolutely "equal". Which of course leads to disaster, because it's impossible, and even to the extent it can be achieved, it ruins working social mechanisms.

Women are supposed to be led and ruled by men. This is built into human biology. This is why we have a powerful protective instinct towards them in the first place. It evolved for a purpose, and that purpose was to prevent men from hurting women because we had power over them. If that power wasn't part of the natural, healthy human social system, we wouldn't need to have that.

Once you accept that 'The Patriarchy' is good, right, and natural, and not a system of exploitation at all, your despair at what you have to do to get women's love and desire will go away, because you'll realize that it's what you're supposed to do.

This is not to say that today's women aren't broken. Of course they are. They grew up without a patriarchy.

I am doing great weightlifting and eating like a beast. However, I hate my fucking STEM degree and I dread studying it. I have a Midterm soon too, and I don't have access to Adderall right now. Does anyone have any advice?

6 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Here your fucking motivation, jerkwad.

I make more in a day than you do in a week. I don't look for jobs. Jobs look for me. When I want a new job, I post one resume online, and recruiters email me for the next six months. They are not allowed to call unless I tell them by email they can. Any recruiter who calls me without permission gets blocked. The first question I ask _____ when contacted is "what's your salary range?". If I don't like the answer, no thanks, bye. I reject jobs for all kind of reasons. If I don't like everything about you, forget it.

I could talk about money, but money isn't exotic cars and flashy jewelry. That's for professional athletes and other varieties of children. That's just being rich. You don't want to be rich. Rich people get paid a lot of money, spend it on stupid shit, and then repeat the process.

You want to be wealthy. Wealth is money that earns money. Wealth is having an income that doesn't require you to be anyone's monkey. Wealth is freedom... the freedom to not work, or the freedom to work the way you want. Wealth is when the question "What work will I do?" stops meaning "How will I pay the rent?" and starts meaning "What do I want to create in this world?"

Yeah, money doesn't get you girls, but do you think girls are all you need? Good luck with that.

A job isn't wealth. You're never wealthy by having a job. To be wealthy you need capital, and you need to know how to make that capital work for you. Being an entrepreneur isn't wealth. You don't wanna be one of these early-twenties douchebags who thinks some business cards, some fast patter, and a firm handshake is gonna make them rich when they don't add any value. If you don't have resources, either in the form of a valuable skill, or capital, you're nothing, and real business owners will laugh at you.

Wanna be wealthy? You need to build that seed. Put together that fuck-you money. Because you sure as fuck didn't inherit it. Which means you need a rare and valuable skill.

You think you're gonna get paid for lifting heavy shit? Don't be stupid. A twenty-five dollar floor jack can outlift you. Women will love you, yes, but women are slaves to their instincts. Money comes from people giving a fuck about what you can do.

And that means you need to learn something that sucks to learn. Why? Because if learning it doesn't suck, then it's not gonna be a rare skill, is it?

Or don't. Because, hey someone's gotta wash my Porsche, right?

I rejected a super hot woman. It felt good. Was I too harsh?

6 upvotes · 8 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Success comes when you stop regarding women as opportunities and start regarding them as a commodity. Others here are chiding you for burning a bridge, for closing a door you didn't have to.

But you don't need to play every hand to win at poker. The limited commodity is not cards but money. If your hand is lousy, don't waste your valuable time. Spend it elsewhere.

How come TRP is inherently anti-free speech?

6 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

My contribution to that discussion was that I didn't think the slang was merited.

And you said that because you hadn't absorbed the lesson yet. You see, this idea that everyone's voice is equal is part of the blue pill.

And that was the idea you were expressing when you came into someone's castle that they built stone by stone, while fending off the Gaelic horde every night, and told them that they were stupid to put the courtyard there.

We don't police people for saying words like "faggot", for reasons that you hadn't been there long enough to know. And the polite thing to do would have been to respect the local mores and not argue about them until you learned what they were and why they were there.

This is what we mean when we talk about "progressive speech codes". You literally thought you could walk into a new community and start criticizing how the regulars talk. Not because you're some sort of SJW or leftoid authoritarian, but because you have lived for so long under the rule of left-wing authoritarians that you thought this was normal, acceptable behaviour.

Deprogramming these kind of sick, deviant values is what TRP is all about. And until you can understand how what you did was totally unacceptable to any sane person, then you do need to be kept silent so your misinformation doesn't harm other novices.

When a woman tells you she used to be crazy, does she want you to act on it?

6 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

I work with a woman who is "married" (not legally but emotionally, they are...right) and with a child.

Stop right there.

Male comedians make everyone laugh, female comedians only make women laugh.

6 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"I can catch a dick whenever I want"

Okay, but can you keep one?

What Tool Do You Need?

6 upvotes · 1 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Bitches crave drama.

You notice how the romantic comedy (basically bitch porn) always ends when the conflicts are resolved and the couple gets together? That's because stable, happy relationships are boring to bitches. Men, on the other hand, love stable happy relationships because we get our drama elsewhere (mostly by competing with other men). But a stable happy relationship won't stay stable and happy if the bitch is bored.

If you don't create drama in the relationship, she will.

That's why you have to be just a bit unpredictable. She shouldn't know what you're thinking, or what you're going to do. She shouldn't know whether to expect demands, cuddling, or absolute indifference. Relationships are the focus of women's instincts, just as hunting, fighting, and exploring are for men. (That's why men like video games where we shoot enemies in the face.) If you are too predictable or undemanding, you are making the game too easy for her and she will get bored.

You must constantly maintain a balance between demand and reward to challenge, and be unpredictable to keep her interest.

This is why bitches love men who treat them like trash and hit them. Because when when they aren't hitting, they're courting to make up for the hitting. This becomes the great challenge... keeping your ex-con boyfriend in "sweet mode" and out of "fist mode" as much as possible. The more they run themselves ragged doing that, the greater and sweeter the victory is when they succeed.

Understanding the Alpha/Beta Dichotomy

6 upvotes · 1 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

when he said that working out doesnt get you laid

Even if that were true, so what?

If that's the only reason why someone would ever lift, then he clearly just doesn't fucking get it.

RPW are you comfortable discussing sex and sexuality? BPW are you?

6 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No.

You are a bully, and I'm calling you out on it. You don't get to waltz in here, cordon off a piece of a public space you have no claim to, and pick on people in it with no interference.

What do you think about Roosh's criticism of TheRedPill ?

6 upvotes · 24 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The difference between TRP and "neomascularity" or "neoconservativism" or "neo-punk-androcentricism-with-a-twist-of-lime" is that TRP is not a crusade. It's a discussion group.

Now, this discussion group has a consensus, but that consensus evolves and changes over time. This why people have such trouble trying to characterize "TRP the ideology". Because there isn't one. There's no core tenets of faith, no manifesto.

It's just a bunch of guys talking about how to achieve their goals, within the context of a society that doesn't support or care about those goals.

Now, I may be one of the "founders", but that just means I started talking first, before there was a TRP to talk in. I never penned a manifesto that everyone signed, and no one else did either. We just got together and found we had a lot in common.

That's why its impossible to replace TRP or defeat it or control it. Because it has no real structure. No goals. No crusade. No end game. We are directionless not because we lack direction, but because direction is something individual men among us must choose for themselves.

Do you believe women are less valuable than men?

6 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate is what women are capable of just as valuable as what men are capable of?

Valuable to whom?

Value, you see, is situational. The value of anything to me depends on my needs at the moment. When I'm famished, a woman is less valuable to me than a sandwich. When I've broken three ribs, a woman is less valuable to me than a physician.

in my opinion this is offensive

I don't care. If you don't like the way something makes you feel, that's your problem. No one else has to be involved.

it suggests women -naturally and biologically are less valuable than men

You don't really seem to have thought deeply about the concept of value. It's based on need or usefulness. We value things we have a use for. What we have a use for depends on who we are and what situation we are in.

TheBluePill is as hateful as TheRedPill

6 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They meant it as an insult, but "clown" is precisely what GLO is.

Comedians, science fiction writers, and jesters dressed in motley are allowed to tell the truth without being lynched.

In the courts of ages past, the Fool was an important and necessary man because he had, in the words of Samuel Pepys "the power to mock and revile even the most prominent without penalty".

RedPillers : What should a woman do if her husband doesn't want to have sex with her ?

6 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I am very sorry your feelings were hurt by this advice given to someone other than you, for the purpose of getting results that you do not personally want.

Perhaps you could avoid future trauma by readjusting your expectations of the degree to which conversations that don't involve you will be centered around your emotional needs.

Fork Use 102: Building Muscle

6 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't attempt to instruct others about shit you don't know.

Administration of drugs with a needle happens in three totally different ways:

- intravenous: fast release, water based
- subcutaneous: slow release, water based
- intramuscular: slow release, oil based

You are confusing the intravenous drug administration of heroin users with the intramuscular hormone administration of AAS users.

Now, I could go on all day about how pills are far riskier, and how injection dynamics work, but frankly, you're newb and haven't earned my time.

So tell me this, if AAS are so dangerous, where are the bodies? Name me ten bodybuilders who died of AAS use. Not of heart failure from HGH. Not of insulin or clen or DNP. Not Zyzz dying of too much cocaine. But anabolic steroids.

Fork Use 102: Building Muscle

6 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stop trying to disguise your fear of the unknown as some sort of monkish superiority of discipline.

Discipline is not some retarded algorithm for choosing the longer path to your goal. It is the effort that walks the shortest path as hard and fast as possible.

And read the article again, because it's obvious that you didn't understand. Muscle growth rests on a number of pillars, none of which can be substituted for any other:

- Calories
- Protein
- Hormones

- Sleep (not covered in the article because it's about food intake)
- Overload

Substituting more "overload" for "hormones" is just as retarded as trying to substitute calories for sleep, or protein for lifting.

Muscle is something your body manufactures through a process. For this process to work, all factors must be present. The factor that is the least present is the limiting factor.

Why is Feminism considered to be about equality?

6 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Go to r/askfeminists

... aaaaand get banned.

Can excessive gaming and porn lead to a 'crisis of masculinity'? From BBC radio!

6 upvotes · 7 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

No, a crisis of masculinity leads to gaming and porn.

"The Dad Bod" - Don't you fucking dare buy into it

6 upvotes · 3 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You notice that none of those statements talk about how it is actually attractive. Just reasons why it's okay to be less attractive.

There are two tracks to the female mating strategy. Both are good for women. Only one is good for you.

Question for both pills - Why so little sympathy for bottom-of-the-barrel men?

6 upvotes · 1 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because human beings are hardwired to be unsympathetic to men who do not show signs of genetic fitness.

Red pill 101.

How BP friends can turn on you, and how easy it is for them to throw you under the bus.

6 upvotes · 26 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It is impossible to be friends with a coward.

Cowards have no loyalty. They are loyal to whoever bullied them last.

I Think I'm Going to Leave my Wife...

6 upvotes · 17 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

Im 22, my wife is 23

Bad.

and we have a son who is a year and a half.

Worse.

I've known my wife since I was 16, when we started dating, and she is the only person I have been with Even worse.

I am not her first boyfriend, nor was she a virgin when I met her and she is a constant guy magnet and an unhelpable flirt.

Terrible.

Train wreck.

This flirtation has become a rather big issue for our marriage (which began in our second year of being together), and I have caught her numerous times flirting online with guys and sending them nudes and professing deep love while spouting my neglect of her.

Divorce time.

Do it now while you are still young and broke, and she can't get much from you.

In the future:

- Never LTR a woman older than you.
- Never LTR a woman with more sexual experience than you.
- Never LTR a woman who flirts with other guys.
- Never LTR a woman who sends anyone nudes.
- Never marry any woman, period.

I am tired of people lying to me, stating red pill truths but somehow hamstering that the sub itself is horrendous.

6 upvotes · 13 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

I don't fully trust you but at least you have answers.

You don't have to trust me. Because I'm not going to give you answers. You don't need answers. You already have the answers you seek.

What you need to know that your anger is legitimate. That your gut feelings are right. That you are not alone.

You feel lost and angry because you have been worked against your own nature. Told that every basic impulse you had was wrong. Thrust into a maze of expectations where you had to scrutinize every move you made before you made it, lest it make the world momentarily uncomfortable for someone else.

The instincts you have, you have for a reason. Your nature is not evil and unhealthy. It is basically sound.

I would not ask you to trust me. I would ask you to trust you.

How would you live your life if you were never afraid?

Practice somewhere else.

6 upvotes · 7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wouldn't have a problem with someone quoting this with "a lot" instead of "most".

However, the most successful people are the ones who try the hardest things again and again until they succeed at something spectacularly difficult.

20% may be the failure rate that the average person can absorb, but the more we can handle, the more difficult the obstacles we can throw ourselves at.

Men are more likely to engage in idiotic risk-taking behavior

6 upvotes · 2 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Hindsight is 20/20.

We call risks "idiotic" when someone has gotten hurt, and "brave", "interesting" or "cool" when things go as planned.

Try becoming a real man rather than pretending to be one.

6 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You need to lurk more, FNG.

One of the basic principles that someone has yet to teach you is that you have no real inner self. You are what you are doing at that moment. The moment you are doing an awesome thing, you are an awesome guy. The moment you do something that sucks, you suck.

What we call "personality" is really nothing but a collection of habits.

If you wait to become awesome before acting awesome, you will wait forever, in the same way that you will wait forever if you wait to become strong before lifting.

BP: Given the choice between having romantic relations with someone IRL who browses r/TheRedPill or r/foreveralone, who would you choose?

6 upvotes · 17 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, I wouldn't want to fight weak straw men. I wouldn't get a workout.

Perhaps you would like to explain your position better? This would help you to avoid being misinterpreted.

It occurs to me belatedly that perhaps you were actually agreeing with me. Or not. It's kind of ambiguous.

The most important two videos you will ever watch.

6 upvotes · 16 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Or for example, the rice noodles I buy: Ingredients list: Rice. Thats it. Ok, that gets the all clear.

Actually, you may be doing yourself a disservice there. Carbohydrates seem to be bad for our metabolism in direct proportion to how quickly we absorb them.

So, yes, fructose is the great evil, followed by other kinds of simple sugars. But even complex carbs may not be harm-free, especially when eaten as a diet staple. The third video, provided by /u/jakethesnake76, goes into some (not as much, but still good) detail on this.

Feminists around the world are in mourning today as r/TheRedPill fails to make "most toxic" subreddit list

6 upvotes · 15 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No.

Winners do not waste their valuable time watching losers lose. They are too busy working to win some more.

Prove SRS wrong by doing the opposite of what they say, and succeeding in life by doing that.

English footballer arrested for having sex with an underage girl.

6 upvotes · 3 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I doubt she did it to get him in trouble.

You're most likely right. She wanted to, she consented, she probably initiated, she understood the consequences to her.

What she didn't understand was the consequences to him. She'd probably rather he didn't get in trouble, although I doubt she'll have the courage to actively stand up for him when surrounded by angry adults. Few teenagers would.

Why do women hold out (typically beta but not always) men in long term relationships sexually?

6 upvotes · 24 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And I've noticed first hand that changing A does effect B.

No, you haven't. You've noticed that B and A changed together. Establishing whether changing A is what causes B to change requires a control group, and trials with different women. You aren't in a position to run those, even informally. But guys who do pickup are.

What would the C factor be?

We call it "girl game", but it's probably best summarized as RMV (relationship market value) as opposed to SMV (sexual market value).

In other words, girls who are keepers don't have to give it up as early. But it doesn't work in reverse... giving it up less early doesn't transform you into a keeper.

Why do women hold out (typically beta but not always) men in long term relationships sexually?

6 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because sadly when you give sex too early the man often loses respect for the woman and leaves.

I think you really mean this, but it's a frequent misconception.

Women see (and experience) the phenomenon of women who get to sex quickly and easily getting dumped quickly and easily, and they conclude A causes B.

What's actually going on is that C causes A and B. This means that A and B are correlated, but changing A doesn't change B.

Do BPers unknowingly measure men by the same scale as TRPers?

6 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Redpill argues that what you call "toxic masculinity" is "just the way things are."

Indeed.

We also agree that a lot of "the way things are" isn't particularly nice. It's just that that's kind of irrelevant because neither you nor I nor anybody can make that go away.

I didn't make the world, and you didn't either. We just have to live in it. We can't make the world just. We don't have that power. All we can do is see it as it is and get by.

Ironically, if "gender essentialism" wasn't the absolutely honest truth, it would easy for women everywhere to make the red pill go the fuck away. Just stop lusting after roguish cads, sociopathic narcissists, and tattooed bad-boy adventurers. Lust after accountants instead.

The flow of the stream is shaped by the curve of the hill.

Long-Term Relationship Game Theory: A Beginner's Guide to Managing Your Bitches

6 upvotes · 17 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We live in an information age, where women's ability to multitask and read emotions is often an advantage.

No one can multitask. Brains don't work that way.

What people can do is rapidly task switch. Which is why people think women are better at it. Really what's going on is that they are doing simpler tasks, and more familiar ones.

First "Plus Sized" model to be featured in Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue

6 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Can't blame you. She's obviously pretty, and even though I am totally turned off by her sheer size, I still find her aesthetically pleasing.

Like a nice piece of art, or architecture, or a well laid-out garden. Pleasant to look at, but doesn't give me an erection.

Found in my girlfriend's dorm

6 upvotes · 27 January 2015 · /r/MensRights

If you:

- Are automatically considered a "real" member of the sex you were born into without having to earn that status through performance
- Have less than half the risk of being murdered or assaulted, compared to members of the opposite sex
- Can display visible signs of emotional upset without damaging your reputation
- Can complain about personal problems and be greeted with sympathy instead of scorn
- Receive preferential treatment from the law enforcement and criminal justice systems
- Are the first to be rescued from life-threatening disasters
- Bear no responsibility for approaching members of the opposite sex or initiating relationships

- Can receive financial assistance for college without registering for selective service, and cannot be sent into combat against your will, even in times of war
- Can choose whether or not you wish to be a parent
- Can be unemployed or even choose not to have a career without damaging your reputation
- Can receive financial assistance from the government if you fall on hard times
- Can expect to live about 10 years longer than others
- Do not have parts of your body severed without your consent just after you are born

... you have female privilege.

If you haven't already, get rid of sugar, Gentleman.

6 upvotes · 6 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

What TRP isn't talking about: how to achieve true success

6 upvotes · 28 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, good.

I hadn't been subjected to this sophomoric bullshit in almost three weeks. I was starting to miss it.

Look, retard, you may think the ol' "man up rant" maneuver is going to get you some inexpensive street cred around here, but it's not impressing me.

Anyone can call anyone else a pussy. Especially when they don't have to look that guy in the eye.

If you want to impress anyone, try thinking better.

For example, realize that "evolutionary success" means your genetic pattern succeeding. Not you. You are not your genes. You are the organism that came from them. And if you wanna throw away everything you are, everything you could ever be, to help something that isn't even alive make copies of itself, then knock yourself out.

But don't try to recruit me to your mad quest, Sir Knight. Because unlike you, I have my own agenda.

How come TRP is Machiavellian but RPW is altruistic?

6 upvotes · 22 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Er, no. Alpha fucks/Beta pays is a suboptimal strategy for female happiness, which women fall into if they do not understand sexual dynamics and believe they can "have it all".

RPW are just as selfish in their motivations as TRP, TBP, or, in fact, the rest of humankind.

They simply understand that they will rewarded for behaviours which appear altruistic, because they are female. And TRP readers understand that they will be punished for behaviours which appear altruistic, because they are male.

What is with redpill guys hating on tattoos?

6 upvotes · 7 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How does desiring to get a picture permanently inked to your body correlate with promiscuity?

We know that it is through observation. Therefore it exists whether we can explain it or not.

The more tattoos, the more cocks.

But, speaking personally, tattoos aren't just a sign that many penises have been here before me... they are also something I don't want, in and of itself.

I don't want to find myself a woman who is 30 years old, has a career, a house, two dogs, a set of old friends who take priority over any man in her life, a child from a previous marriage, some stories about that time their car broke down coming back from Vegas, and some tattoos of mottoes that are meaningful to her, one of the face of her aunt who died of breast cancer, and an ankle butterfly she thought was cute and unique when she was 17.

What do all these things have in common?

They are history. They are the story we were supposed to write together. They are the years we were supposed to spend growing closer. A woman like this has penciled in every area of her life except a small space label "man here". I would never be more than a fashion accessory to her... and why would I do that for someone who has spent the most attractive years of her life on someone else, or more likely, a long series of "someone else", who had her for the price of a few minutes of conversation and some alcohol, because she was "finding herself" and "needed" to "just be free and have fun right now"?

Self Improvement and Motivations

6 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"X is an asshole" is just another way of saying "I dislike X", in the same way that saying "Spearmint tastes awful" is another way of saying "I dislike the taste of spearmint".

So, "I dislike X because X is an asshole"... means "I dislike X because I dislike X".

I cannot see why I should possibly be bothered to pay attention to Natalie if she is so poor at explaining herself.

Generic double standard question about AFBB

6 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You have mistaken TRP for a prescriptive philosophy rather than a descriptive one.

A prescriptive school of thought talks about what should be. Feminism is an example of a prescriptive philosophy. It is primarily concerned with what men and women "should" do.

A descriptive school of thought talks about what is. Psychology is a descriptive philosophy. It is concerned with how people actually behave.

Women who fuck alphas and marry betas are pursuing an ineffective happiness strategy. They are choosing to select as a permanent mate someone less attractive than they have previously experienced. This will result in long-term dissatisfaction.

If we compare men to cars (because, remember, kids, comparing people to inanimate objects is only objectifying if those people are female!), then a woman who does this is renting a Lamborghini Aventador, Aston Martin DB9, Porsche Carrera GT, and Bentley Continental GT, all on successive weekends, before buying a Saturn, because that's all she can actually afford.

She's shooting herself in the foot in two ways. First, by experiencing things she cannot actually keep, she sets her expectations higher. She will have "champagne tastes and a beer budget", as they say. Second, she is squandering money renting expensive cars that she should (for happiness purposes) be spending on buying a slightly nicer one.

You see, women are most attractive when they are young. That's when they should be looking for a permanent mate, because that's when they are going to get the best deal.

In other words, don't waste your youth and beauty on men you cannot keep. You don't have to marry a man if things don't work out between you, but don't fuck guys who are out of your league... because they won't stay with you. If you're a 7, and you're 18 years old, you can marry a 7, or you can hook up with a series of 9s, because guys like variety and NSA sex. But after 12 years of hookups with 9s, you won't be able to marry a 7. You get a 4 instead.

So, 12 years of 8s and 9s, then 30 - 40 years of a 4? Or 50+ years of a 7? You do the math.

Breaking up a serious relationship (divorce, etc) is almost never a good idea for a woman, because each time she enters the dating market, her selection of partners gets worse.

Text Game Cheat Sheet [r/trpgame repost]

6 upvotes · 23 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, god why does the astronomy subreddit have to talk about stars all the time?

Why can't we have a bunny-picture thread?

Discussion: Women's love is inferior to men's love

6 upvotes · 19 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Inferior" means one of two things:

- Morally inferior.
- Inferior for a particular purpose.

Saying that something is morally inferior is fatuous. It's just another way of saying "should", which is another way of saying "I want". Anyone can want things.

If you are saying that female love is morally inferior, then you have said something so silly that it's not even wrong.

If you are saying that female love is inferior for a particular purpose... then what purpose is that?

Shocker: Women have stronger orgasms with rich hot guys

6 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In other news, men have stronger orgasms with pretty feminine women.

SJWs bullied scientist Matt Taylor to tears. He apologized for "offending" people by his shirt. I am out of words.

6 upvotes · 15 November 2014 · /r/MensRights

But the shirt has divided opinion, with many women in the science community accusing Dr Taylor of sexism.

Some critics have accused Sarah Knapton of bugging ducks on the Sabbath, a charge she has yet to deny.

SJWs bullied scientist Matt Taylor to tears. He apologized for "offending" people by his shirt. I am out of words.

6 upvotes · 15 November 2014 · /r/MensRights

You poor, stupid man.

NEVER apologize to an SJW. It's like bleeding in the shark tank.

The Crown Prosecution Service ('CPS') claims it doesn't know how many women it's prosecuted for paternity fraud

6 upvotes · 6 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

Zero is, in fact, a number.

Emma Watson called out in the New York Post

6 upvotes · 30 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

That's why one must always pay attention to the process of a message before its content. People can lie with their words, but their actions always tell the truth.

Feminists wanted to involve men in their plans. But what is the process whereby they tried to do that? They got a young woman to get up in front of the UN and tell us that our biggest problem was "having to be masculine". (This same woman is dating her school's extremely masculine star rugby player.)

HeforShe is intended to be a movement of men, but led by women. And not just women, but feminist women. That's the message the process sends. Women will tell you what masculinity is to be, and feminists will tell you what you must do about that.

Is there anyone here who still thinks feminists have your best interests at heart?

The "nice guy" debate: Heroes vs Antiheroes

6 upvotes · 21 September 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And in a debate, the harshness must be explained.

No, not really. Because TRP is not a sales pitch, /r/TheRedPill is not a debate sub, and we are not recruiting.

When people clutch their pearls and threaten to faint over the "harshness" of the language in /r/TheRedPill, what they are doing is the metaphorical equivalent of walking into a boxing gym in Echo Park, and demanding that a bunch of young Mexicans in shorts and 16 ounce gloves immediately stop what they are doing, and "justify" their action of punching each other in the face.

The boxers are minding their own business, doing their own thing in the space they pay rent on. The only reason the doors aren't locked is that sometimes people wander in, like what they see, and decide this would be a good way to get in shape.

The reason you expect TRP to try to "debate" and try to "convince" you is that you're putting it in a category with ideologies... things like feminism, socialism, etc.

But these things are universally prescriptive ideologies. That means they are ideas about what everyone should do.

TRP is not prescriptive at all. It doesn't deal with "ought", only with "is". It gives advice, but not moral advice, only practical advice. "Do this if you want that result."

so for one example, the trolls will pick up on and scoff at your last line, "hate me for being and Acting male", while the open-minded people will really wonder and wait for you to educate them on why you say that. I myself wish you'd expand on that.

A classic example of being hated on for being or acting male would be when you create a male club, for doing male things in a male way. And some woman wanders in there, doesn't like what she sees, and demands changes or explanation.

This woman probably doesn't understand that she views male social customs as bad, threatening, harsh, and dangerous for the reason that she lives in a society where women utterly control the social mores. Thus, "harsh" is bad, but any number of feel-good untruths is perfectly okay. Her definition of "behaving properly" for either sex is the same as the definition of proper behaviour that women have among themselves.

Thus, possibly without realizing it, she has come to think of men as if they were a sort of defective woman.

She cannot conceive of a situation and a social culture where harshness could be a virtue, because her whole socialization has been geared towards avoiding conflict. She never asks herself if conflict is actually a bad thing, because that assumption is the basis of everything she has been taught, and, while no evidence has been provided for it, it's been repeated so often to her, by so many different people, that she never stopped and noticed that they weren't backing that assertion up with anything.

Thus, when she sees conflict, she wonders what defect has produced it, and how it might be corrected. She assumes that everyone's behaviour is everyone else's business, because that is the way women do things, and thus she thinks it's the way people do things, because male social culture has been pushed so far out of the public eye that it is invisible to her.

And, of course, she is offered no explanation, because in even asking for justification, she has violated male social rules which she hasn't bothered to learn.

She is trying to play the role of the Great White Father rescuing the darkies from their ignorance, rather than that of the anthropologist sitting cross-legged on the woven grass and learning the legend of the Bull God and the River of Stars.

This is how I see both gender movements. Thoughts?

6 upvotes · 15 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

and redpillers are saying it is like that and it should be.

We can speak for ourselves, thanks.

We are saying "it is like that, and the universe doesn't care about 'should'".

You mistake us for a prescriptive ideology. We're just a bunch of dudes and chicks who are tired of being told that we're bad people if we don't agree that $2 + 2 = 5$, or should equal 5.

LTR / married men: Don't ever be that "separate bedrooms" guy...

6 upvotes · 13 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A king doesn't sleep in his harem. He fucks and leaves.

Husband and wife both had sex with 15 year old girl; his bond set at $25,000, her bond set at $5,000

6 upvotes · 14 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

- 15 years old is not a child in any sense but the legal. And sexual instincts do not take their cues from from the opinions of a bunch of septuagenarian politicians.
- You have selection bias. Whatever 15 year olds you worked with were rape victims, and rape is traumatic no matter what age you are. If they weren't rape victims, if they weren't traumatized, they would never have come to your attention.
- You therefore have no idea how many post-pubescent teens are engaging in and enjoying sex. To pretend that they are all traumatized is silly.

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

6 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The sensations of

- "Being morally outraged"
- "Having your bubble of self-righteous ignorance disrupted"

... are indistinguishable to the person experiencing them. Therefore, people can't really tell which one they are experiencing.

Religious fundamentalists feel "morally outraged" at homosexuals. Homosexuals feel "morally outraged" at religious fundamentalists. Neither sensation is evidence of anything.

Complaining about women is not progress.

6 upvotes · 12 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You raise a good point.

TRP is supposed to about how to go from butthurt neckbeard to self-actualized man. If we are too hostile to their neckbeards, or their butthurt, we fail to reach them with the help we offer. If we are too tolerant, then we enable them to wallow in self-pity and blame-shifting, and do not force them to confront their own shortcomings.

Red and Blue Pill Decision: A Pictorial Case Study in Female Preference

6 upvotes · 2 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, no, no, you don't understand. This is all the fault of eeeeeeeevil male marketing directors who just think women like dominance and muscles!

War against boys. Are the ADHD drugs unsafe?

6 upvotes · 21 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Gee, I don't know. Is giving little boys methamphetamine bad? Let's ponder this for a while.

Really? Number 1?

6 upvotes · 20 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

It might interest you to know that I actually LIKE TRP. I don't comment there very much, but I do like that they are not concerned with appearances or other people's feelings. Do they get everything right? Probably not. But at least they're willing to speak plainly and give voice to taboo topics.

As a longtime participant and "endorsed contributor", I think I can speak on TRP's behalf to some extent.

We overgeneralize on purpose. This is because we are speaking to and in a culture where speaking about the general behaviour and psychology of men and women as biologically distinct groups is a taboo subject.

Yes, exceptions exist. But to talk about them in the current social environment, or to preface every generalization with that statement as a disclaimer, is to run about with fire extinguishers during flood season in Bangladesh.

We simply assume that our audience has basic common sense, and leave it at that.

"Nice Guy" saves "Innocent Woman" from getting raped "Total Creep"... All he had to do was take one step...

6 upvotes · 18 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is satire, right?

Because Father's aren't a part of children's lives. /s

6 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

http://youtu.be/rwPg2oarG_c?t=32s

- Don't need a degree or any sort of education
- Can't be fired.
- Never have a performance review.
- No concrete goals or performance standards.
- Answerable to no one.
- Can get hired by accident.

Found this on my Facebook this morning.

6 upvotes · 6 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Yes, because we all know it's the men who really really really want babies.

Riiiiiiight.

Video by /u/AellaGirl - "A boy finds himself in the world wanting, not being wanted. A boy has immediate knowledge that women have power."

6 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

When men retreat from competition, will women fully step in to fill the spaces left? I don't think so. And that's a problem for everyone.

Yes, it is.

But humans of both sexes are hardwired to be sympathetic to women, not men. This means that the men's rights movement is doomed to failure if it proceeds by imitating feminism, i.e. by pointing out injustices to men and trying to get people to care about that.

In other words, complaining ain't gonna get us nowhere. No large population is ever going to care enough about men as a group to let our appeals for sympathy inconvenience women in a significant way. If we proceed in this fashion, men's rights will always end where women's wants begin.

Complaining works for women. What we must do is go on strike.

And as you point out, women will not step up to replace us. I agree with that. Women are biologically hardwired to be unwilling to do so.

This means that, if men go on strike, one of two things will happen:

- Society will collapse.
- Women will end the strike by making concessions.

That's the only way that what you describe as a "problem for everyone" is going to get fixed. Because women don't care about men's problems until those problems become problems for women as well. And men don't care about other men's problems until those problems become problems for them personally, or for women.

In short, we have to make your "problem for everyone" worse, not better. And men can live with that, because things are bad for us already.

Feminist Porn Star Belle Knox: 'Every Single Day Like A Nightmare' but quit porn?.... naah.

6 upvotes · 21 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If people followed me yelling "You're the software engineer!" I would think they were kind of strange, but essentially correct.

Resolved: Red Pill Isn't About Left or Right

6 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Liberalism IS the antithesis of the red pill.

So is conservatism.

Liberalism wants to let women run wild and do whatever they want while men pick up the bill.

Conservatism wants men to dive on every grenade that can be found so women can be safe and protected.

A plague over both their houses.

Stop Eating Like a Bitch

6 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Lift" is good advice for ANY problem except "I am sick/injured and can't lift".

Then the answer is "See a doctor".

Why do you identify as Blue Pill?

6 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The Secret called, they want their philosophy back.

Thought-terminating cliché.

Look, gender, and for that matter general inequality is a massively complicated topic ...

This is the standard blue-pill line, and it's pretty much the same thought-terminating cliché.

It boils down to the statement "I reject your general description of a phenomenon on the grounds of being too general, and not having enough descriptive power... and insist you substitute total lack of description which has no descriptive power at all."

Christians try this one on me, too: "You can't explain exactly how life came about, therefore Jesus."

Another example of the Red Pill leaking into mainstream: '18 hilariously terrible sex tips that all men should ignore'. This Salon article has basically 3 sources: 'Men's Health', Roosh, and Chateau Heartiste'.

6 upvotes · 3 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Here is what the article author looks like.

Bonus: her youtube user name is lezbianna.

27-year-old fair maiden named "boozemunkee" is mystified why she can't find a man who wants more than sex and to settle down with her. r/relationships dons their white armor and rides to the rescue.

6 upvotes · 18 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I just never knew that there was data showing people with tattoos are anti-commitment.

It's a little more nuanced than that. Let me cut and paste from a comment I made elsewhere:

"Men don't want to be an accessory that you pick out when you're 30 and have the career, the house, and the pets all picked out, and you've already had your adventures, scars, and stories.

"Instead, we want to go through life's adventures with you. We want to be young and wild together. Everything personality-forming you do without me is one less adventure I get to share.

"I'd rather you didn't have scars unless I can tell the story to our friends of how the car spun off that icy road. I'd rather you didn't have tattoos unless we picked them out together and I held your hand while you winced under the needle. The more of you that's formed, complete, set in concrete by the time I meet you, the less I get to be part of that process.

"Being part of that process is something men desire. Now, I know that may not make a lot of sense to you, since many or most women like a man with scars and stories. But men are different.

You see, it's not about "Oh, my ears and whiskers! You have tattoos! The horror! The horror!".

It's more like "She looks kinda jaded. I'm getting the sense that she's been through a lot of guys. If she's not still with them, then either they didn't want to keep her, or she didn't want to keep them. Either one is a warning sign."

Read this. It's an explanation of the real mechanisms by which a woman's sex and relationship history affect men's willingness to enter a relationship with her.

What you need to understand is that men are people, with our own needs and priorities and happiness to pursue. We weren't placed on this earth to ignore our own needs in order self-sacrificingly make sure you get the fairest of fair deals from life.

If we are avoiding serious commitments to you, then, instead of just calling us selfish and railing at us, you might want to look at the ways that you might actually be a bad bargain for us, and, if possible, work to change that. One of the biggest hesitations I, personally, would have about getting into a relationship with you is the way that you haven't really shown any effort to empathize with men or see things from our point of view.

The Huffington Post Accidentally Red Pill. Please Check Outside Your Window for Pigs on the Wing.

6 upvotes · 7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I wonder what these people would say if asked when divorce became legal, or to cite the law that made it illegal.

The Five Stages of Red Pill, and how to read r/TRP textposts.

6 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I take issue with the oft-cited "5 stages." You seem to think they are linear.

RTFA:

And, as in grieving, the progress through is seldom linear, smooth, uniform, and one-directional.

I think we're done here.

Equality begins at the toilet seat. If its up and you want it down, put it down. If its down and you want it up, put it up. I can't tell the future, so idk how it should be positioned for the next occ

6 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

And who the hell doesn't look at something before sitting down on it?

Hamsters are off the rails. Porn star relationship problems galore. Monogamy = having a partner and sucking extra dick on the side. & MORE

6 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Can't turn a hoe into a housewife, hoes don't act right.

The thing that confuses blue pill types about this is that typically a woman like this looks desirable. Pretty, fit, friendly, feminine.

Despite the metaphor of the "stretched out vagina", it isn't women's physical selves that are spoiled by the cock train. And it isn't their social selves, either. They can still be nice women.

What it ruins is their ability to take a relationship seriously and be loyal.

After having a job fucking nodding acquaintances on camera for money, this girl doesn't take sex seriously. How could she? It's her professional job. It's her routine.

Of course she's going to think of it as "no big deal" to give some friend's husband a blowjob. She's done enough of them, to guys she doesn't have feelings for. She's divorced sex from love, and she can't undo that.

Now, as a man, I don't hate women like that. I don't even object to having sex with them. But I don't want a relationship with one, because they have removed their ability to do things that I want out of a relationship, like ability to emotionally bond, the ability to take sex seriously, the ability to keep sex as a private shared secret which excludes others, the ability to give me something which is reserved for me alone, etc.

There's no way I could date a porn star and not feel like a chump, because if I do, I bought the horse that everyone else rode for free. Or, in her case, even got paid to ride.

"My wife's male best friend has moved in with us – and he won't leave"

6 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I am 99% convinced that there is nothing going on between them

Something is going on between them.

If it wasn't, he wouldn't be asking himself the question at all.

Say what you will about RSD Tyler, he's bang on the red pill theory. I reckon he secretly visits /r/redpill. Video for newbies to help you understand.

6 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He doesn't teach his clients game. He runs game on them.

Girlwriteswhat, gateway drug to the redpill

6 upvotes · 15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Girls were more likely to report that personal disclosure made them feel cared for and understood. Boys, overall, found it to be a tedious waste of time — and “weird.” Contrary to what we learn from Newsom’s film, boys did not find personal disclosure embarrassing or unmasculine. According to the study’s author, Amanda Rose: “Boys’ responses suggest they just don’t see talking about problems to be a particularly useful activity”

Complete unsurprising. Both boys and girls are being sensible here.

Personal disclosure of problems gets girls attention, sympathy, and help. It gets boys none of these things. (Because of the Fundamental Premise.)

So they're each doing what works.

I used to enjoy reading the movie reviews on Badass Digest until I saw that I was "prebanned."

6 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

Who said anything about race before you brought it up?

I said that anyone who believes in any kind of magic is a loser.

Opening paragraph from Mike Tyson's autobiography "Undisputed Truth". Hypergamy at its finest. After being convicted of rape Tyson spends the month and a half before his sentencing fending off women who want to sleep with him.

6 upvotes · 9 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah.

Who was it again that said "I don't pay whores to have sex with me. I pay them go away afterwards."?

Microrape

6 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Picorape:

Presenting a heteronormative appearance characterized by toxic masculinity, which damages the emotional wellbeing of womyn by creating anxiety over the possible threat of nanorape, microrape, rape, and/or picorape.

The act of picorape is committed by being Schrodinger's Rapist.

How Jezebel has perverted feminism

6 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

How Jezebel has removed the veil from feminism.

FTFY

How do I know if I'm dealing with a player?

6 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Bzzzzzzzzzzzzt. Sorry, wrong answer. In fact, wrong question.

You're asking yourself the wrong questions about this situation because you don't understand men at all.

Second he does a couple things that make me think he's really only interested in sex.

A man does not know if he wants a relationship with you until he has had sex with you.

In fact, a man who says he wants a relationship with you before he's done that isn't a man who wants a relationship with you at all. He just a man who wants a relationship. Usually because women who will have sex with him are rare enough that he wants to hold onto whichever one he gets, no matter what she turns out to be like.

For men, a relationship is not a promise, a ceremony, or a state. It's the process of deciding, every day, that he rather see you than go pick up a stranger.

I really really want this guy to be relationship material.

Wrong again.

Women are the gatekeepers of sex. Men are the gatekeepers of relationships. That means getting to sex is the man's responsibility, but turning that sex into a long term thing is yours.

Men aren't "relationship material". You are. For every man, there is some woman he will want to stay with, and some woman he won't.

Your job is be one and not the other.

What's the RPW way of looking at/dealing with all this?

Read and understand:

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1n149v/is_the_number_of_guys_a_girl_has_been_with_really/cceqjh y

http://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/1j0n7t/the_slut_and_how_not_to_be_one/

... and realize that you get relationships by making a man want one, not by withholding sex.

Using sex as bait is a slut trick, and if you do it, that's what you are.

What is a man?

6 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

<http://www.the-spearhead.com/2009/09/29/the-secret-of-life-shut-up-and-shovel-the-fuckin-gravel/>

Red Pill subscribers: What exactly does taking The Red Pill mean to you?

6 upvotes · 6 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You seem a little confused. I specifically said that the appeal of TRP was that it was free of censorship (including self-censorship). When you point out that nobody censors[sic] redpill

... that's kind of the point.

The right to speak freely does not include freedom from criticism, disagreement, or even laughter. But it does include freedom from retaliation.

Is there mob censorship of red pill ideas in our society? Hell, yes, just ask Larry Summers. Dude lost his job. Just ask the TRPers who have been doxxed, or targeted for doxxing, or for doxxing followed by physical retaliation.

Do you think I don't get death threats? I mean, I may not wave about like some sort of victim card, but I've had some.

Do think I haven't gotten banned from other subs for linking to TRP, or discussing ideas from there? Hell, I've been banned from subs I never posted in, because someone cruised TRP looking for usernames to ban.

Disagreement, laughter, and insults aren't censorship. Threats, bans, and retaliation are.

The whole point of TRP is that allows us to talk in peace without that nonsense. In fact, TRP in a certain sense makes this sub a bit redundant, because polite disagreement is welcomed there. You'll get downvotes, but you won't be banned.

Red Pill subscribers: What exactly does taking The Red Pill mean to you?

6 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It doesn't sound like a lot of people have successfully made it past the infatuation stage of love.

And here is the difference between our worldviews.

You see infatuation (4), and connection (3), as different stages of the same thing, and thus are at a loss for how to explain how one so frequently fails to develop into the other.

I, on the other hand, think that infatuation (4), and connection (3), are two entirely separate and distinct processes in the brain.

That's why you can love your child or your dog without ever being infatuated with them (errrr... I hope). It's also why some relationships (quite a few, actually) fizzle when the infatuation wears off. Others, of course, do last, because spending time around the other while stuck together by the infatuated state has given psychological and emotional investment, trust, etc. some time to occur.

Infatuation is very simple, really. It's an endorphin response to another's presence. This is why new lovers look stoned in each others' presence. They are. It's why they get acute discomfort when separated, even for short periods of time. Withdrawal.

Being in love is heroin. And I don't mean metaphorically. Chemically, it's almost the same thing.

Over time, the process of tolerance gradually reduces the drip feed (not smoothly, of course, but with a gradual reducing trend). The effect of this is to wean them off their drugs without ever really inducing withdrawal symptoms. My guess (and this part is only a guess) is that this takes about the same timespan as it takes from conception of an infant until that infant learns to walk (with a pretty large standard deviation).

Once this is over, the people in question have either developed some sort of social glue to stick them together, or they haven't, they get bored, and they break up.

The social glue is what we call "loving" someone. It can span the gamut from trust to familiarity to mutual benefit to reciprocal obligation to social roles. Whatever. I won't attempt to encapsulate it in one model, because it's not one thing.

So love is different from "being in love". And both of these are different from physical attraction. And people get burned by not understanding this.

Red Pill subscribers: What exactly does taking The Red Pill mean to you?

6 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, but that's because you, personally, disagree with those things that are being said, and agree with the mainstream consensus they fly in the face of.

This disagreement is grounds for debate. We disagree, we debate, we present evidence, etc.

But the reason that TRP exists is that there's a difference between debate and censorship, and certain ideas are greeted with the latter, not the former... so they aggregate in a place where the censorship doesn't happen. That's TRP. As I said, the reason every single thing in TRP offends blue pill type people is that if it didn't, it wouldn't have to be there... it could be in other places on reddit. TRP is defined by the unpopularity of its ideas.

Similarly, TBP is defined by its hatred for TRP. There is no single person there that doesn't hate TRP and everything it stands for, because if they didn't, they wouldn't be there. So TRP is defined as a collection of ideas which are debatable but socially banned from debate, and TBP is defined as a collection of people who hate those ideas.

So of course it seems that way to you. That's why we're all here in the first place.

Red Pill Acronyms

6 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

NSBM – No Sex Before Monogamy

Also NRBS - No Relationship Before Sex

Discussion on RPW IRC: Alpha vs. Thug

6 upvotes · 1 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Thug" vs "good" and "alpha" vs "beta" are two separate axes.

Thug behaviour is that which breaks the social rules, while "good" behaviour is that which conforms to them. Alpha behaviour is playing to win, while beta behaviour is playing to appease the winners.

This leads us to the conclusion that whether an alpha male is a "thug" or a "good man" depends not on who he is, but on where he is.

That's because the winning strategy is different depending on whether or not the game is rigged. If you have a decent hand, the best strategy is to play. If you haven't even been allowed to have any cards, the best strategy is to overturn the table and try to grab the chips. Betas will appease no matter what. But alphas will play to win, which means they will play by the rules if that helps them win, and break the rules if cheating is the only way they could possibly win.

Dominant rich white businessmen and thuggish poor black gangstas are actually the same sort of person. The difference is that a smile and handshake is an effective weapon for one, but not the other.

I posed a question to r/askfeminists about how men 'should' go about getting laid and got mixed answers. I'm wondering what /r/TRP thinks

6 upvotes · 29 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Everything is supposed to be for their benefit. Anything that isn't is oppression.

Man Finds Sex Video of Sexually Reserved Wife Getting Gang-Banged from her College Days. /r/Sex predictably sides with the wife and tries to shame him for wanting to leave her and for resenting her for giving them the sex he never had.

6 upvotes · 25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If in this day and age guys don't put their fiancée through a serious vetting process (which includes a background check) they have a considerable chance to get the shaft later.

Why have a fiancée at all?

I mean, marriage may once have been customary, but name one benefit for men, which is available through marriage, but not through a non-marriage LTR.

This story will make you cringe. Guaranteed.

6 upvotes · 24 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I tire of all these blue pill examples.

Not of you guys posting them, but of there being so many for you to post.

How TRP misidentifies the cause of "reproductive inequality." Also, transgender people are not a "feminist fantasy" or semantic trick.

6 upvotes · 23 November 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I suspect that if I said men who don't want to be parents had to get a tattoo on their forehead you'd still object because the real objection here is men having rights.

And that's the real kicker.

People who argue this don't realize that they think like this, because the attitude is implicit in the tradeoffs they want to make.

- Abortion is "woman shouldn't have to be pregnant if she doesn't want to" vs. "child shouldn't be killed"
- Child support and paternity suits are "man shouldn't have to be a parent if he doesn't want to be" vs. "child should be financially supported by a parent".

By choosing the woman over the child in the first case, and the child over the man in the second, they create a hierarchy of rights.

Woman > Child > Man.

They think don't object to the notion that men might have some rights, but they object whenever those rights in any way negatively impact a woman or a child. And they don't think about the fact that having a "right" only so long as it doesn't inconvenience others isn't having a right at all.

It's like having the right to free speech only so long as no one objects to what you say.

How often do you get "stabbed in the back" by other men? (Cashier wants to make man pay for his girlfriend's food)

6 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Are men often met with the expectation that they ought to do something for a girl (just because she's a girl) by other men?

Yep. This is what we call "white knighting". A white knight isn't just Captain SaveAHo, who will burn his time and resources getting a woman out of a problem she created herself, and do so because she's a woman.

A white knight is someone who will fight other men (metaphorically or even literally) on a woman's behalf just because she is a woman.

One commonality between TRP and SJ

6 upvotes · 14 November 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everyone believes they see the world clearly. It's impossible to "believe that you are wrong". The very idea is a logical paradox.

What "red pill" types and SJWs do indeed have in common is that their ideas about the world are not mainstream.

But if you call this "narcissistic", then you are essentially saying that disagreement with a majority is inherently pathological. Are you really prepared to make this assertion?

My Feminist Wedding: Or, How Feminism No Longer Applies When I Have to Make a Sacrifice

6 upvotes · 27 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, it's this girl again. She's comedy gold.

Enabling stay-at-home Moms. Take a guess what happens to this guy.

6 upvotes · 12 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's no point arguing about whether being a mother is difficult or not.

It doesn't matter if you are "busy". It doesn't matter if what you do is "hard". All that matters is whether a job is something that needs doing.

I sit around on my ass on reddit a lot of the day. Am I "working hard"? Is my job "busy" or "stressful"? Yes, no, perhaps. Who cares? Sophisticated software gets written, and complex problems get solved. The only thing that matters is that software is needful. We need it.

Well, child care is needful, too.

Woman hits wall at 100000 km/h and doesn't know what to do.

6 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

From the very first comment:

There are things which may not make you a bad person, but may make you a bad partner.

That's TRP's message in a nutshell. Attractiveness and virtue are not the same. Quit expecting people to be attracted to you because you are a "nice guy" or a "strong and independent woman".

Heather Koon, Daycare worker, accused of raping infants. In cases of daycare molestation, more than 60% of children who were molested, were molested by women.

6 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

so you are right that men still do the majority of child molestation

I don't think we get to say that. We only get to say that men do the majority of detected child molestation.

That doesn't mean they do the majority unless we can show that the detection process is unbiased. Which I suspect may not be the case.

I go to UC Santa Cruz and they have a confessions page on facebook. Figured I'd anonymously look for other MRAs in the school there....I am not entirely surprised by the response.

6 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

There isn't really much of a point talking about politics with college kids yet. Most of them haven't had the kinds of experiences that are necessary to inform a political opinion, because they have not experienced how the political process impacts individual lives.

When I was a child, I was a leftoid, and thought it was because their arguments made more sense. But really it was because I was the child of leftoids, growing up in a community of conservative authoritarian bigots, and I hated authoritarianism, and smugness. When I grew up, I started encountering smug authoritarian liberal bigots, and came to understand that authoritarianism and bigot were not exclusive to either wing.

At the same time, I got a job and became an adult, and was directly affected by laws in a way that children are not. I came to understand that political actions need to be understood not merely in the context of some abstract notion of fairness, but the context of their concrete, specific results.

Lesbian couples twice as likely as gay men to end civil partnership

6 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What does a lesbian bring to a second date?

A U-haul.

(Joke told to me by lesbian.)

TIL millions of Nazi women who were complicit murderers got off the hook: "Their defense was often to play the helpless woman card and blame the men."

6 upvotes · 26 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Oh, dear. Maybe I should stop mansplaining, shave my neckbeard, get rid of my red fedora, move out of my parent's basement, stop contributing to rape culture and the patriarchy, check my male privilege, my white privilege, and my cisprivilege, learn to control my male gaze, stop engaging in male violence, and just generally stop being an oppressor and a rapist.

Because mudslinging never got feminism anywhere, and it's always the calmest, most considerate debater who wins in the forum of public opinion.

Right? Of course that's right.

I dumped my (seemingly) perfect boyfriend so I could sleep with other people : (X-post from self) An example of hypergamy

6 upvotes · 7 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

From the comments:

1: Denial - "There's no WAY this shit works!" "These guys are losers and womanizers."

2: Anger - "FUCK ALL WOMEN EVER MADE! I HATE THEM ALL! HOW DARE THEY PLAY THIS GAME AND MANIPULATE ME LIKE THIS MY ENTIRE LIFE!"

3: Curiosity - "Well ok, I haven't been with a woman in a while, and I'm open to trying parts of it, let's see if this shit really works. Let's see if I can turn the tables and play MY game instead of hers..."

4: Acceptance - "This woman is giving me access to all 3 holes and complete dominance by the 3rd date. WHY DIDN'T I TRY THIS BEFORE?!"

The four stages of red pill.

I think she's a bit insecure...

6 upvotes · 27 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Is it just me, or is doing all these bizarre things "for charity" kind of sick? If you're going to give money to charity, just give money to charity; don't do it as some sort of freakish hazing ritual where you make some random dude run 50 miles in a chicken suit, or wear a dress, or eat a handful of spiders.

Because that's just weird, and it makes you look like a bit of a sadist.

Becoming a better man: be a realist, not an idealist

6 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

With power reversing women should be willing to marry down but they are not. Women still, just as before, only want a man of higher class and value than them.

This is the real meaning of hypergamy. It doesn't mean that women will only mate with the top dog of the tribe. It means that women want men who are superior in status to other men, but what they need to maintain attraction is a man who is superior in status to them.

This was dead easy in a male-led society. Men were regarded as women's superiors, and thus women could be content with most of the men who were available in their socioeconomic class. Choosing a husband was an important choice, but not a hard one, because there were lots of good choices.

But the more women are regarded as equals to men (and even, in the west, as superior), the harder and harder it is for a woman to find a man she regards as her superior. Oh, there are still men she looks up to, but they are billionaires and rock stars, and they ain't gonna mate with her.

This is why we can't have equality. Because it gets in the way of women's happiness. That's why they are not stepping up and joining STEM careers and whatnot.

Ashton Kutcher: When your a fetish object no one can hear you scream

6 upvotes · 16 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

These are twenty year old women and they cant see the man all they can see is his status.

This is why men are so unreceptive to women complaining about being "objectified".

We don't know what being "objectified" feels like for the same reason that fish don't know what it's like to be wet.

TV Star Jon Cryer Must Pay Child Support for Son in His Custody, due to ex-wife not having any other income.

6 upvotes · 14 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

At last we dispense with the fiction that "child" support is for the child.

Red pill ladies, help! Is my boyfriend wasting my time?

6 upvotes · 14 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Well, no. Marriage 2.0, with its "no-fault" divorce is only binding on him, not you. A contract with only one side enforced is not a contract.

It sounds like this guy isn't objecting to marrying her, or even to marrying someone. He's objecting to Marriage 2.0. Can you blame him?

Once a man realizes what Marriage 2.0 is, he'd have to be crazy, stupid, or beta/omega/low option/desperate to enter into one.

It's simply not fair to regard a man as a time-waster because he refuses to enter into a contract like that.

Always keep the Red Pill fresh in your minds! You never know when the things you learn/comment/read will become instantly useful...

6 upvotes · 11 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My answer to "are you hooking up with other girls?" is always "yes", delivered deadpan and casual.

Followed by, "oh, did you think we were exclusive?" if she demurs.

Marriage fail, I need help.

6 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

This doesn't surprise me. I suspect that you might have cheated in the first place because you saw him as weak and were not able to respect him, being used to a culture where the men are much more in charge.

What you need to understand about American men is that they are not weak, they are decent. They've been taught that it's wrong for a man to rule over his wife in marriage, that everything must be "equal". They've been raised to think that they are naturally bad, and women are naturally good. They get taught a whole bunch of silly things when they are very young.

It's hard to shake that off. But he can. He's learning in the right place.

Cheating on him was the wrong thing to do about your lack of attraction. But that lack of attraction is still a real problem that needs to be addressed. If you're going to be able to love and respect him, he needs to be someone you can see as manly and worthy of that love and respect. Which probably means stepping up and taking charge.

You're the one who wronged him. But you have both failed each other and let each other down. He, as well as you, has some work to do.

I had to take a sexual assault web course, there were no male victim senarios

6 upvotes · 30 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

I've put my arm around a number of women, before.

Rapist!

A couple of them didn't like it and made it clear, either by physically moving my arm, or telling me to remove it.

Super rapist!

The others thought it well to snuggle in a little.

You clearly used SUPER CREEPY PUA MANIPULATION TACTICS like "being attractive", "reading body language", and "making your intentions clear". This is rape as well.

Struggles of an ex-slut, looking for some guidance

6 upvotes · 28 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

A slut isn't defined by being sexually available. She is defined by bringing no value to a relationship beyond sexual availability.

Read this: http://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/1j0n7t/the_slut_and_how_not_to_be_one/

Then work on increasing your relationship value.

Men can forgive your sexual history much more easily, if it was the sexual history of You 1.0 (emotionally detached, attention whoring, self-centered), and you are now You 2.0 (emotionally attached, a good relationship partner, concerned with his needs, available only to him). But if you only difference between You 1.0 and You 2.0 is that you're less sexually available to anyone including him... that's not going to fly.

A slutty man and I began seeing each other on and off a bit over a year ago. We continued slutting around with other sluts while getting to know one another Nope. Men aren't sluts. A male who has a long history of different sexual partners is high-value, not low. The male equivalent of the slut is Captain Friendzone, not Players and Sleazy Pickup Guys.

His history indicates high value, yours indicates low value. That's his problem. And if you don't want him to leave you, make it yours.

The thing to do is raise your value.

Red Pill philosophy feels a bit hopeless to me...thoughts?

6 upvotes · 17 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Feminism, ultimately, is submissive in nature... because it asks for things, rather than exhorting women to build those things themselves.

It asks that we hire women... instead of telling women to start their own companies.

It asks that men stop rape... instead of telling women to protect themselves from psychos.

It asks for taxpayer handouts instead of telling women to rely on themselves.

It asks men with guns to make other men pay child support... instead of asking women to take sole responsibility for the child they had the sole choice to bear.

It asks men to pass laws to make the world fair... instead of preparing women to live in the real world, which is inherently unfair.

It asks that men be accepting of, and even attracted to, fat women... instead of telling women to take responsibility for their eating and activity levels.

If feminism were truly about female empowerment instead of female entitlement, it would not require men to cooperate or even notice.

Why do you think women need to take the Red Pill?

6 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

All right, all three then.

Women taking the red pill is good for society because:

- It makes it more likely for children to grow up raised by two parents.
- It makes men work harder at their careers because there is some reward for that.
- It makes women waste less resources getting nonsense humanities degrees, and keeps them off taxpayer-funded welfare programs.

Women taking the red pill is good for women because:

- It allows them to have fulfilling relationships throughout their lives, instead of a single decade of fun, followed by cats.
- It restores the general confidence and the social value of men, making the average man more attractive, and making attractive men more plentiful.
- It allows them to better avoid the pitfalls of the sexual marketplace, such as heartbreak, pump-and-dumps, and tempid, unfulfilling relationships.
- It allows them to focus on what makes women happy (fulfilling relationships with men, their children, relatives, and friends), rather than on what doesn't (their "career" as a secretary).

Women taking the red pill is good for me because:

- It restores respect and admiration for men, reducing the background level of misandry in the culture I live in.
- It affects the political environment, creating pushback against taking my money for programs like WIC and Title IX.
- It reduces the number of fat, dumpy women who don't care what I want.
- It creates a greater supply of women who have something to offer me beyond sexual availability, reducing my need to engage in pump-and-dump behaviour, and allowing me to have actual relationships.

Saw a thread on r/theredpill, and it got me thinking about certain alpha males that are not appropriate to date. Can you give your opinion on this?

6 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Alphaness is about what women are attracted to, not what choices they make.

Some women can resist cheesecake, and some can't.

why it's mean to turn your wife down for sex: "See, women take it personally."

6 upvotes · 1 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

It's men not being interested in sex on someone else's terms.

"Even if I did have a bf, he was a famous celebrity and it was intensely sexual and hot"

6 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course.

But this is the fantasy she had. That tells us something, too.

Please don't feed the (Manhood Academy) trolls.

6 upvotes · 4 June 2013 · /r/MensRights

Still waiting for you to tell me one amazing thing that will enlighten me.

Whats your view on Ayn Rand?

6 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate her because of her odious personality, hypocrisy, unfair debating tactics, and horrible writing.

Just because I agree with her on many abstract points doesn't make her any less of a horrible obnoxious bitch.

Odds are that this subreddit is undergoing this as well. So much for Reddit being a site for discussion and debate.

6 upvotes · 17 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I must admit that I feel a certain obligation to consider racist arguments now that I've taken the red pill and am trying to focus on looking at the evidence, not wishful thinking.

I still think that racists are wrong, but I have to dismiss them with evidence and reasoning, not automatic contempt.

AskWomen finally notices people talking about the hamster. Contributor makes whole thread devoted to hamsterizing how there is no hamster.

6 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In think the cause here is that we live in a society where no one ever calls them on this behaviour because either they want to get laid, or it's a "career-limiting" move.

The trick for us is to pick the right moment to stand up and say the Emperor has no clothes, women are fallible and not morally superior at all, and they need to start behaving like adults.

AskWomen finally notices people talking about the hamster. Contributor makes whole thread devoted to hamsterizing how there is no hamster.

6 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

NP link so that we don't disruption their discussion.

Are lesbians welcome here? I've found I go through similar things with women to the guys here.

6 upvotes · 5 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Well... if the cultural marxists are right, and we're all a bunch of misogynists, then we should hate you.

Pull up a chair, pour yourself a single-malt. And laugh at them.

Bro-Choice...?

6 upvotes · 23 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

I am not interested in more reproductive choice for anyone who doesn't support my right to reproductive choice.

4 Rules for Relationships

6 upvotes · 11 March 2013 · /r/seduction

As a woman

This doesn't buy your opinion any special weight.

the type of girls you are talking about are too immature

I suggest you tell other women that, not him. If the majority of women are "too immature", that's hardly his fault or his responsibility, now, is it?

if you constantly feel the need to "check" your girlfriend, obviously you don't trust her Trust is inspired, not demanded. Acting offended when you are not trusted is the act of a sociopathic con artist. Honest adults work to inspire trust, rather than whining when it isn't just handed to them.

and this is dangerously close to establishing a parent/child sort of relationship, which I'm sure works for some, but not for a self respecting, opinionated girl.

You know we call someone who is "self-respecting and opinionated" without being being mature and courteous? Children.

Act like a child, get treated like a child.

(Actually, I must apologize to children everywhere for how I put that. Most children are far more courteous and considerate of others than the average "self-respecting and opinionated girl".)

If any guy "checked" me by telling me to get out of their car, I'd say "fuck off" and walk. I have dignity.

Don't tell me, show me. This tantrum isn't helping.

In fact, I'm at a loss to see what your ostensible point is. Your real point, of course, is that you can't stand the idea of a man having to manage a woman's behaviour, because the idea that any woman might not be an adult enough to check herself scares you.

I think we can all see why that is.

I convinced a friend not to get married today.

6 upvotes · 26 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

I'm confused.

Your objection seems to be to the act of comparing what people bring to the table. You call this "objectification".

Look, you can invent all the terms you want, but at the end of the day, a marriage is a partnership, and an important life-changing decision. Telling men they are not allowed to dispassionately weigh the pros and cons is incredibly selfish and sexist.

See, that's the problem with feminist-coined terms like "objectification". They take a whole of bunch assumptions (which we don't share) and editorial rhetoric (which we don't agree with), and refer to them all with a single word, which listeners are expected to go along with.

I will accept no argument that includes the term "objectification" unless the writer has done her homework and read Abraham Maslow's "Toward a Psychology of Being".

The Red Pill for Women

6 upvotes · 11 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Interestingly put together.

But there's a distinction that needs to be drawn here. The Red Pill is knowledge... it doesn't imply any one particular set of actions.

So while I agree about preferring the man in charge (#8), and I think that this is, to some extent, the natural inclination of both men and women, not everyone is like that, nor do they have to be to take the Red Pill. I don't think that we can lump choices like that in as part of the Red Pill per se.

So, I would say that the Red Pill for women constitutes:

1. Awareness that there are inherent differences between men and women. Not just physical ones, but behavioural and social ones.
2. Awareness that there is such a thing as a sexual marketplace, and that people are commodities on that sexual market, each with a specific value.
3. Awareness that choices have consequences, and that women can follow many different paths, but they must choose. They cannot follow all of them.
4. Awareness that men are generally the leaders, innovators, and risk-takers, and that many or most women will gravitate towards submissive, follower, or support roles if left to their own devices. If a woman chooses to do otherwise, that path is open to her, but she must expect to forfeit some of the special protection and consideration that women receive, and to have to prove her abilities, if she does so.

Ontario Superior Court Justice Susan Greer orders CEO of Maple Leaf Foods to pay ex-wife $175,000 per month in "spousal support"...despite contract saying he would not have to.

6 upvotes · 14 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

The constant principle behind family court decisions, and marriage and reproductive law, seems to be:

"Women are protected from bad consequences under all outcomes."

Get pregnant? Have an abortion, it's your choice. Want to keep it? The father will pay, it's not his choice. Or somebody who's not actually the father, but thinks he is. You know, whatever works best for ~~you~~ er... "the child".

Marriage doesn't work out? That's okay. We'll make him pay you what he think he would have given you if it had. But you don't have to continue fulfilling your marital responsibilities, assuming you had any in the first place. Also, you get the kids unless you don't want them.

4chan gets it right and femist erasure of male issue.

6 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

There actually are some female software engineers, designers, and technical artists making games.

Not a lot, but a few. But what they do is make games. Not bitch at an entire industry for not revolving around them.

I have a permanent "hall pass". With this in mind, I've been having difficulty approaching women because of it. What do you guys think?

6 upvotes · 19 November 2012 · /r/seduction

Non-monogamous man here.

You're telling too early.

Telling too early drives them off. Telling too late is deception. You need to tell them at a time when they're invested enough to be willing to hear you out, and consider the unfamiliar a possibility, but not wait so long that they feel like they've been deceived.

It's just something you need to practice judging.

[NSFW] Banner image of the feminist protest group, "Femen". No, they don't hate men at all.

6 upvotes · 19 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Gay privilege: Having a relationship with someone who really understands you.

Enjoy it, brother. Glad to see someone gets to.

And there we have it.

6 upvotes · 28 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

It would behoove us all to actually read through a thread and not choose, out of context, a comment we'd like to reply to.

It would behoove you not to assume that if I don't agree, it must be because I haven't read, or don't understand.

I am not criticizing the MRM for not dealing with women's rights. I'm calling out the hypocrisy of doing so and then blaming women/WR for looking first at women's rights.

I thought the difference was so obvious that I didn't have to say it.

- If I have a cat show that doesn't have categories for dogs, that's fine.
- If I have a pet show that has categories for dogs and for cats, that fine.
- If I have a dog show that calls itself a dog show, has no categories for cats, but claims to be for all pets, and tries to stop anyone from having a cat show because the dog show is "is for all pets"... not fine.

The problem isn't that feminism is about and for women. The problem is that it claims to represent us, too. But doesn't actually do so.

We call them out not because we expect them to deal with men's rights, but because they are lying and saying they do. (In order to stop us from dealing with men's rights, if they can.)

PUAs, what sorts of questions do you ask to quickly screen for specific traits in women?

6 upvotes · 23 October 2012 · /r/seduction

I don't settle important questions by asking. Asking a question is just a good way to hear a lie.

People tell the truth with their behaviour.

A handy quotation by Noam Chomsky for those who call you a misogynist for speaking out for the issues of men

6 upvotes · 9 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

I don't see it.

It's a perfectly valid observation. The left supports feminism. If you wish to debate the point, go ahead, but it's hardly a hateful insult.

"Men are basically unevolved dogs", "the Y chromosome is broken", "men are just testosterone damaged versions of women", "all humans are born female". This is the kind of hateful bigotry currently infecting the skeptic movement.

6 upvotes · 5 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Rather proclaim it, Westmoreland, through my host,
That he which hath no stomach to this fight,
Let him depart; his passport shall be made
And crowns for convoy put into his purse:
We would not die in that man's company
That fears his fellowship to die with us.

Give a girl some tips: What's a better way to tell my girlfriends "Don't make guys feel creepy for no reason"

6 upvotes · 29 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Discard the word creepy.

Creepy is not a thing you can be. Creepy is actually a feeling women have, but they mistake it for a trait of a person.

What creepy means is "I find this person unattractive, and I'm not sure he'll go away".

how i found r/mensrights:

6 upvotes · 20 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Incredulity is not an argument. Outrage is not evidence. Disgust is not logic. Anger is not rhetoric.

The fact that you think something is "common sense" and "obvious" merely means you never bothered to examine it.

If there's something you think is obvious, but when asked to defend the proposition, you're at a loss...

... well, maybe that's indicative of a gap in your thinking.

So the Reddit PC police think I deserve scorn for thinking rape jokes can be funny. I'm a rape victim.

6 upvotes · 13 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, you don't understand. You aren't a rape victim. Rape is non-consensual sex plus privilege, remember?

You are male, therefore privileged, therefore what you experienced wasn't rape.

Since what you experienced wasn't rape, you aren't a rape victim.

Since you aren't a rape victim, you have no understanding whatsoever of what ~~female~~ real rape victims go through.

Oh, and your babysitter? Wasn't her fault. The Patriarchy made her do it.

So the Reddit PC police think I deserve scorn for thinking rape jokes can be funny. I'm a rape victim.

6 upvotes · 13 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

I was raped when I was 5... I'm a man...My rapist was a female.

Oh, so it wasn't rape. Only women can be raped. Only men can be rapists. Because...ummmm... Patriarchy... and stuff.

Oh, wait, no I've got it! Rape isn't just non-consensual sex. It's non-consensual sex plus privilege! Therefore you weren't raped, because that babysitter was a woman, and therefore not privileged, and you, as a five-year-old boy, had male privilege.

There, that's a ~~good~~ excuse the real reason.

Any advice on how to look more masculine (photo)?

6 upvotes · 7 July 2012 · /r/seduction

Barbells, whey protein, we're done here.

Dear Feminism: Stop Fucking Shit Up | Frivology

6 upvotes · 6 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

This.

And they can stop telling men like me that we're evil because we enjoy doing rape-y domination-y things to women like you.

Mens rights isn't a liberal movement, its not a conservative movement, its not a libertarian movement. I'm getting pretty tired of people around here trying to hijack mens rights to push other agendas.

6 upvotes · 6 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Liberalism and conservatism both represent distinct enemies of men's rights... feminists and tradcons, respectively.

Currently, feminists are the more dangerous enemy. But we must remain vigilant against both.

"We're White, We're Male, and We Suck!" - Taki's Magazine

6 upvotes · 21 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

... aren't actually saying they are more sympathetic or sensitive than me... they just hate themselves and wait for cookies.

Of course.

One has to remember that feminism functions by collective guilt. No collective guilt, no feminism.

If a white male could be a virtuous and moral person, and not guilty of oppression, purely on his own merits, then this state would be available to every white male... and any white male could argue that he was a good person.

Feminists counter this by arguing, in effect, that no white male can be a good person. These statements are not declarations of personal virtue; they are declarations of fealty to feminism.

This works in the same way that christianity does, and for the same reasons.

If christians believed in salvation through merit, they would have to behave better than others. And they would have to confront the obvious fact that christians don't, as a group, behave better than anyone else.

So they came up with "salvation through faith". This replaces the entire definition of virtue with "faith", which is effectively fealty to christianity. It doesn't matter how you behave, because everyone is a "sinner", and is forgiven not if they are good enough, but if they are christian enough.

In the same way, the only sort of moral yardstick feminists have is fealty to feminism. Someone who espouses feminism is meritorious (although no male can ever be more meritorious than a female), someone who opposes it is vile, no matter what else they've done (or not done) in their lives.

Fealty (essentially docility and self-abnegation) is the only virtue males can have, in the feminist model. These weak men are opting to declare that they have it, rather than oppose feminism and be criticized.

Marriage Strike Future: Pervasive Thuggery In The Apocalyptic West

6 upvotes · 17 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Sure. But the word missing from the triune of "Eat, Pray, Love" was "Work".

The way that marriage has turned into male slavery is a reflection of female unwillingness to shoulder new responsibilities and risks along with new rights and privileges.

The massive inequality of divorce proceedings, and the unilateral risks of marriage, come about because women demanded to be protected from risk and misfortune by the government. The law, and the courts, and our customs, have become what they have become because both feminism and traditionalism leverage and serve the same instinctive drive to protect women at all costs.

The reason that prominent feminist do indeed lead amazingly traditional lives is that traditionalism and feminism are almost the same thing, and certainly share the same basic goal... to ensure that nothing bad ever happens to women. No matter how many bad things happen to men in the course of achieving that goal.

But men are the ones who build and sustain civilization. If you take no care of them, if you allow them to keep none, or too few, of the fruits of their labours, then they will opt out... or simply collapse, having been sucked down to dry husks.

Then there will be no more cookies for anyone. No eating, praying, and loving. Just the struggle to survive in a society that has collapsed back to the level of the third world.

We can all see it happening. We all know we live in a society in decline. But only some of us know why.

Experts Say Moms Like Tonya Thomas Who Kill Their Kids Are Often Driven by Love. "It's a murder out of love rather than a murder out of hate," he said of how the killer mom might be thinking about what's happening. "It becomes an extended suicide." Ought to have posted on WTF

6 upvotes · 17 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

And yet men who kill their families and then themselves are described by these same sorts of "professionals" as "family annihilators", narcissistic individuals who are unable to perceive their families are unique people rather than extensions of themselves.

Yes, it's intended as an extended suicide in both cases. But when a woman does it, everyone's talking about love. When a man does it, they call it narcissism.

I Feel Like Seddit Sometimes GIVE Me Social Anxiety

6 upvotes · 11 May 2012 · /r/seduction

Set smaller goals.

You're anxious because you feel like you need to do something you think you can't. Start with something you think you can.

For acute anxiety, I usually advise guys to go have a totally nonsexual conversation with a young woman. Don't f-close, k-close, anything-close. Just start a conversation, talk, go your separate ways.

Just do one. In the grocery store or something. Then, when you can do that comfortably, say something a little flirtatious to the next one you talk to. Don't try to go anywhere with it. Just resolve to say it, and go do it.

Every step should make you a bit nervous. But if any step paralyzes you with fear, that step is too big. Break it into smaller steps.

This is the moment I realized something was seriously wrong with the way society treats us males. Do you have similar stories?

6 upvotes · 9 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Thou shall not speak about the Laws.

If the provider of thy nookie, or thy brother's nookie, waxeth full crazy, thou shalt not blame the victim.

Thou shall not get married ~~without a prenup~~.

Thou shall respect thy manhood.
 Thou shall not put women on a pedestal.
 Thou shall not believe lies about thy brothers.
 Thou shall value thine own life.
 Thou shall value thine own time.
 Thou shall value thine own property.
 Thou shall not give away these for acceptance.

FTFY

Kacy Wilson, 28, rapes boy. Charged with "unlawful sexual activity." Article jokes about rape.

6 upvotes · 8 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Red pills tend to clash with obsolete parts of the genetic programming. There's no reason anymore why we should be outraged at the thought of strange males fertilizing females of our tribe, or applaud young males of our tribe for fertilizing strange females.

But there's no reasoning with a gene.

My version of the red pill endorses birth control, decoupling sex from reproduction in our minds, and endorses sexual permissiveness. If everyone is fucking whoever, a lot of these instincts have nothing to latch onto. If a deliberate act of resuming fertility is required to have children, then involuntary parenthood goes away. If women are not taught to act as sexual gatekeepers, then men's sex drive cannot be exploited to extract violence, labour, and sacrifice for the good of others.

I don't endorse draconian punishments of female adults who fuck consenting teenagers. But there needs to be a single standard, so we need to stop throwing the book at male adults who do likewise. The only relevant question is not gender, but consent.

PR Man slams male critics of circumcision saying they never "paid serious attention to women's genitalia"

6 upvotes · 7 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

I pay serious attention to women's genitalia all the time. In return, I expect serious attention to mine.

This principle works in all sorts of contexts.

If we want to be taken seriously, we need to start banning accounts that are clearly misogynistic.

6 upvotes · 30 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Who is this "we", oh redditor for three months? Oh poster of one, single previous comment in r/mensrights before this?

Men not marrying? How deep does "the problem" go?

6 upvotes · 22 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

What problem?

Feminism's latest triumph: Boys are afraid of girls.

6 upvotes · 15 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Women's trouble finding husbands is only part of the problem: Men who aren't interested in marriage also have less incentive to be productive workers or responsible fathers.

Oh, no! The draft horses are no longer pulling the plough, because we took away too many carrots! Quick, somebody get them living and dying in harness again!

Fuck the wall street journal. We are not appliances. We are human beings.

A Feminazi writes- Why "Creep Shaming" Is Total BS

6 upvotes · 14 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

How dare you equate nazis with genocidal murdering? That is a small fraction of nazis, which don't represent the movement as a whole! The fact that you're paying any attention to them at all mean you must really hate and fear all German people, you awful racist!

When you look at all the progress that nazism has made in opposing the historical oppression faced by Germans, and at triumphs such as the passing of Violence Against Aryans Act (VAAA), you must admit that nazism as a whole is a force for progress, and is really about racial equality for everyone.

Only hateful neckbeards would oppose it.

I think I broke my brain with rage...

6 upvotes · 5 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Is that really your first reaction to that statement?

Or are you just pearl-clutching to shut him up?

It seems like you folks want equality more than the feminists do. At work, home, school, court, etc. So, why do "MRA" people get called misogynist all the time?

6 upvotes · 16 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because these accusations are in bad faith.

They don't really know if we hate women, and they don't care. Misogyny is simply a word they use about anyone who doesn't publicly declare fealty to the feminist cause.

You are either with them, or against them, and if you're against them, you must hate women, since they have unilaterally declared that they represent all women everywhere. Never mind that no one ever asked those women what they wanted.

TIL: Southern Poverty Law Center thinks R/mensrights is a burgeoning hate group.

6 upvotes · 9 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

The simplest explanation, per Occam's Razor, is that which posits the least new or unknown entities.

Sockpuppet accounts acting as agents provocateur are not a hypothesis here, but very much in evidence.

One has to wonder what the hell they are so afraid of. That some men will get together on the internet and dislike women, as a group? Who would care about that? What difference would it make?

No, they are scared because we are pointing out that the empress has no clothes. That's why they keep screaming "misogynist", which would be irrelevant even if it were true.

Google? Why so sexist?

6 upvotes · 5 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

It's a Bayesian algorithm. It has nothing to do with what google believes, and everything to do with what the webosphere in general believes.

Do Men in Power Advocate for Men? | GendErratic

6 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Excellent illustrative example... lions have highly divergent gender roles, and both have drawbacks.

However, it's not quite true that lionesses do all the hunting. Lionesses are lighter, and they are faster runners. They run down fast game, which is the preferred prey of lions.

But during the dry season, much of the standard fast prey (zebra, antelope, etc) is unavailable or scarcer. To make ends meat (couldn't resist, sorry), lions must hunt cape buffalo and other massive game (sometimes even elephants!). This is when it serves the lions' purpose to have another form of lion that cannot run as fast, but is huge and brutally strong.

The lion species leverages sexual dimorphism in order to have two different types of hunters available to it.

I realize that's somewhat beside your point... but it's an interesting extension of your metaphor that the male lions are contributing a lot more than one first realizes... not because they do half the hunting, but because they are necessary for the most survival-critical type of hunting.

Is it wrong to do circumcisions?

6 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

is it wrong for me to participate in this?

The fact that you asked the question means you already know the answer.

The real question is, are you going to take the path of least resistance? Or are you going to do the right thing?

A woman responds really well to TheAmazingAtheist's "It's Only Sexist When Men Do It". This is how all men and women should be.

6 upvotes · 15 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is only a problem worth sighing over for those who are incapable of simultaneously appreciating both her ideas and her breasts.

And, in any case, she dresses that way for a reason. She appears to be an exhibitionist of a sort, although it's a bit more complex than that, perhaps.

Whatever her reasons, the exposure is deliberate, the intent is for you to look, and even if it wasn't, your eyes and brain belong to you, just as her breasts belong to her.

I wandered in here today and I'm a little hurt.

6 upvotes · 11 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

seems like a knee-jerk reaction in this community--you use "feminism" like the 1950s used "communism"

Are there any points of similarity in your fatuous analogy beyond "regard it as an enemy", and "use the word a lot"?

Perhaps people who have seen the effects of feminism, understand its arguments, and have lived in a society where it dictates policy might just perhaps be qualified to judge it...

... in much the same way that soviet expatriates might be entitled to their distaste for communism.

2XC is supposed to be a space for women

And 2XC has become the other half of this dialogue precisely because feminist subreddits are so ban-happy that the conversation never gets started.

When feminists come in here, we talk to them. We go to their spaces, we get banned.

2XC isn't supposed to be a counterpart to /mensrights. But /feminisms doesn't engage us in dialogue. They create /SRS instead. So there's no point in talking to feminists. We have to talk to women, which are the canonical inhabitants of 2XC.

Even the concern troll who started this topic acknowledged, by crossposting to 2XC instead of /feminisms, that the feminists aren't listening, aren't interested in dialogue, and won't be until we wield enough power to force a place at the table for ourselves.

A woman posting "Women have it way worse than you guys" in a male rape thread here would be downvoted to oblivion, and rightly so. TwoXChromosomes is doing the same thing.

Can you actually not understand the difference between "downvote" and "delete/ban"? Or are you just pretending?

"Men are boorish and lazy. Why won't they marry us?"

6 upvotes · 7 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

People prefer a partner who have not slept with a lot of people. That isn't a gendered thing - it is simply a human thing.

Not necessarily. In fact, I prefer experienced partners who have well-developed sexual skills. And many, many people out there don't care either way.

However, your original statement:

slept around until they weren't wanted anymore is in no way invalid... because there are a lot of aging women out there who were perfectly content to ride the cock-train until they were no longer attractive enough to get lots of attention that way. Then suddenly they want to settle down and have exclusive access to one guy... but he had better be a high-value guy, the same sort of alpha-appearing male that they have been doinking, commitment-free, for the last decade.

This is a symptom of poor character, selfishness, and bad decision-making skills. It is these, not a long sexual history, which are unattractive.

There's nothing wrong with riding the cock-train. As a multi-decade rider of the pussy-train, I can hardly object. But when a woman invites me to step off the pussy-train and settle down with her, one of the things I must consider is the question could she continue to ride?

A woman who is still capable of riding the cock-train, who still has the youth and attractiveness and whatever other values that can get her hookups with alpha guys, is someone whose decision to step off is based on a sincere desire to do so. This is either good planning, or committed emotional attachment to the guy she wants to step off with.

A woman whose ability to ride the cock-train is fading doesn't get points for wanting to step off. Her motives are in doubt. Why would any man commit to such a person?

The reason I make this distinction is that a 35 year old virgin is just as bad a matrimonial choice as a 35 year old ex-slut. A 35 year old virgin does indeed have to be someone who's interested in commitment, but she is also someone who has, in 14-17 years of examining prospective mates, never deemed a single one of them to be sex-worthy.

The "I've Got a Golden Vagina" traditionalist woman is in no way a better option than the "I'm Tired of Cock, Now Treat Me Like a Virgin Princess" feminist.

What really matters is how she treats others before she loses her value and has to be nice.

The Super Bowl always draws traffickers and they bring the product line because there are a lot of men that are used to buying commercial sex around these events

6 upvotes · 4 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Feminists can't grasp the idea that women might choose to be prostitutes of their own free will.

Sigh. We need to have a talk.

6 upvotes · 26 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

What happened to her was not a good thing by any means.

Was the boy she slept with in the wrong? Probably not, he was just as drunk, and probably had just as vague an idea of what happened the next morning.

Would I stand in his defense at a rape trial? Absolutely, without hesitation.

We cannot make this girl take more responsibility than she actually deserves. She said yes, and she is responsible for that action.

I'm finding it funny that you restate almost every point that I made, but simultaneously imply that I am a dick for making them in the first place.

I have only two points to make:

1. This wasn't rape.
2. If she doesn't want this to happen again, she needs to take responsibility for her actions and stop blaming others.

That's it.

And I stand by those two statements and refuse to apologize for them. And I can absorb an infinite amount of hate mail for doing so, because the damage it does to me is zero.

You wanna talk to me about strategy? Fine. When you're done, I'll talk to you about integrity. About the quality of not being afraid to tell the truth, even if SRS trolls are gonna say really hurtful (sob!) things about us.

The way movements get results isn't to catch more flies with honey... because who the hell wants to catch flies? It's to steer the frame of the discourse by numbers and vehemence.

I don't think you intend to be a concern troll, but you effectively are one, because you're doing the same thing.

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

6 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Oh, really? I was... until my operation, that is.

New: You're really arrogant.

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

6 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Wait, should I be? Are you fun?

New: I'm saving it for marriage.

Apparently men can be trained like a dog?

6 upvotes · 17 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Indeed.

Mating, like most things, is a market, and individuals of equal value tend to end up paired off with each other.

Those who are constantly bitching about their mate's shortcomings, therefore, are usually suffering from delusions about their own desirability as a mate. They think they "deserve better"... but the market has spoken, and they do not.

Interfaith Voices podcast: Why Men Hate Going to Church

6 upvotes · 13 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

I don't care too much about this, since religion is a disease, but I found it most amusing that right after the guest talked about how men don't like aggressive solicitations for donations, they interrupted the show to beg for money.

Oh, and that nonsense about how churchgoing benefits society. That was funny.

Elam vs Frost: Round 4

6 upvotes · 3 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Interesting, but I feel that this debate is getting bogged down in the details.

There's really only a couple of things that need to be said about both areas.

1. MRM has utterly failed to address the question of what young men should do about their sexual needs in an increasingly hostile environment. **

Many of the older, wiser heads who are the MRM's most eloquent voices are, like Elam, are "almost 10 years into a relationship with a woman". They have not the slightest clue how difficult things have gotten for young men, and just how much control women have over the sexual marketplace.

To characterize these young men as shallow from a position of having secured one's sexual future during the much more man-friendly environment of decades ago, is, in the words of Shakespeare, jesting at scars when you never felt a wound.

These young men deserve your compassion, Mr. Elam, not your scorn. They are not internet celebrities. They do not possess the confidence and self-assurance of an older man, of a polished speaker with an established audience. They need some assistance in dealing with a playing field that is tilted against them. And you have contemptuously offered them facetious advice about showering, sounding for all the world like those feminists who characterize MRAs as "neckbeards".

In fact, MRA scorn for pickup plays right into the hands of misandrists when it plays that tired old feminist violin of "Male sexual desire is a cheap, shallow, tawdry pursuit, unworthy of any serious adult's time and effort". If sex is important to men, especially young men, and we are to male priorities as much as female ones, then we must make the quality of men's sex lives a men's rights issue.

Otherwise we are simply echoing the feminist desire that sexual pleasure be the sole prerogative of the "liberated" young women, both to possess and to dole out, grudgingly and occasionally, to subservient orbiters males, when they have been a good little doggie.

2. The pickup movement has utterly failed at introspection and self-awareness, and is consequently denying the central fact of its existence... that its basic nature is submission to women.

First, it is submission to women in that it seeks to find what women most desire and to shape oneself into that, to transform oneself according to the goals of another rather than oneself.

Second, it regards those to fail to secure the admiration of women as contemptible ("AFCs", or "chodes"), and thus it willingly stipulates that the approval of women is a measure of one's value as a man.

Pickup fails to offer any longterm, systemic solution to the problem that gave birth to it. And indeed, why concern yourself with vaccination when you can sell a nostrum for hundreds to thousands of dollars (and if it doesn't work, that's the patient's fault...)?

In the long run, pickup benefits individual men, but it also poisons the well by simply raising the number of hoops that men must jump through to get laid.

The so-called "alpha" male of pickup is a paper tiger who substitutes the appearance of leadership for actual power over his own destiny. If the future of masculinity is nothing more than the cultivation of pleasing social graces by effeminate little weirdos in fuzzy tophats and black nail polish, then include me out.

I mean, yes, I know, it works. But who wants to live in a world where you have to do that?

The question that both these groups must confront together is "How are we to counter our society's newfound contempt for men and masculinity?"... because this is what lies at the source of both young men's inability to get laid, and older men's inability to see their children without a court's permission.

As men with a common interest, we must join forces to demand the respect which we earn every day, but is still withheld from us. And together we can find ways to do that.

Are you all incredibly angry, delusional, hateful, depressed, violently upset, hate your wife (or hate women because you don't have one), support rape with false statistics, ... or is there some kind of smear campaign against r/mensrights?

6 upvotes · 3 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Part Two: A personal reply

When we talk about motivations, we talk about feelings. And each of us can only talk about our own.

Am I a "misogynistic neckbeard who can't get laid"? Well, the easy answer would be, "No, I get a lot of very good sex with no strings attached". But that's too simple. There's more to the question than that.

If I am personally angry about anything, it's that as a man, I have been deprived not of sex, but of respect, of dignity, of even perhaps admiration.

I know how to "run game", and I have and do, on occasion. I have "friends with benefits" and don't have to "run game" all the time. I am extremely fit, moderately financially successful, reasonably good-looking, and would not be considered a failure except if compared to Nobel laureates or Olympic athletes, or other phenomenal successes.

But, yes, strange as it may seem, I am still personally angry on behalf of myself as well on behalf of men not so fortunate as I.

I am angry that women (and indeed men) are being systematically taught to regard us as less desirable, less worthy, less important, less good, less mature, less virtuous and in short, less admirable in almost every significant way, than women are.

I have opted out of the dating game to a great degree, not because of failure to secure sex, but because I cannot have a real, adult, loving relationship with someone who has been conditioned to regard me as an inferior. I come to resent the expectations that I meet someone more than halfway. I find them demeaning... and who but a masochist could love someone who thinks so little of them?

I do not think it is unreasonable to hold out for love and respect, and to refuse to settle for that which does not include love and respect. This is why I am Going My Own Way. Not because I cannot successfully pursue (or indeed have not), but because I am unwilling to tolerate the hurt of being regarded as the lesser partner who must.

So, yes, there is something personal in this. I would be a liar if I claimed to have no feelings. And it is those feelings that have opened my eyes to the injustices that other men face which I personally have not (willing fathers deprived of their children, unwilling fathers deprived of their right to choose, men facing an imbalanced justice system, men falsely accused of rape).

But that anger is not the anger of a man who loses and stomps off the field. It is the anger of a man who refuses to play when he sees that the field is chalked upon the side of a steep hill.

The HPV vaccine is now approved for men 26 and under.

6 upvotes · 28 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

No, it does not.

I cannot prove that aspirin is not harmful. I cannot prove that water is not harmful. I cannot prove that gravity will continue to work tomorrow. I cannot prove that you are not a unicorn.

What medical research can do is give potential problems ample opportunity to manifest themselves, and then note that they have failed to do so.

Slut Walk participant pissed that newspaper had the audacity to run her photo

6 upvotes · 28 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Ya know, it is not a crime for men and boys to look, or, heaven forbid, even to have an involuntary erection when they do.

...yet.

Paul, take Jenna off Register-her.com

6 upvotes · 25 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Holy shit, Aerik actually raises a valid point. Let me check my window for pigs on the wing.

However, we're not the police, here. We are not holding someone responsible for any kind of crime, thought or otherwise. All we have taken up is the power to embarrass.

And embarrassment is the one sanction that can ethically be employed against noxious opinions. To jail (for example) a racist for spewing hateful garbage is a very bad idea. But to shame one into silence by publicizing just what it is they think is entirely appropriate.

We Are the 99%, Too: Creating a Feminist Space Within Occupy Wall Street

6 upvotes · 16 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

The point is that even within progressive causes, straight white men have a privilege that doesn't give a voice to women and people of color.

And this belief is why you lose people like me.

You see, I was a liberal once. From childhood. Ardently. I marched, I signed, I volunteered, I believed.

And around my mid-twenties, I noticed something.

I noticed that I, and people like me, were always the audience and never the speaker. That we didn't exist as individuals, but as occupiers of certain contexts.

We were:

1. Sources of tax dollars to spend upon liberal causes. (And we could always spare more.)
2. Oppressors.
3. Ignorant individuals to be educated and made sensitive to the cultural and political contexts and struggles of others. (It was taken for granted that we were already culturally understood, and had no struggles to speak of.)

My fellow liberals were always concerned about me rather than for me, always wanted me to listen rather than speak, learn rather than teach, follow rather than lead, obey rather than decide.

If someone who looked like me dared to voice a complaint, there were mocking comments about "Won't someone think of the POOR white heterosexual menz!"...

... the notion that I might ever have a problem or deserve compassion was literally a joke to these people, because I didn't exist for them as an individual. Only as a demographic. No matter who I was or what I did as a person, I was defined to them as a combination of race, gender, and sexual preference, and my combination was the enemy.

That liberals who looked like me were nothing but useful idiots, supporters who never received a single thing for their support.

And it was at that moment that I realized how intellectually and morally bankrupt liberalism truly was. Because to define someone as simply a combination of their "gender, class, race and history" is to deny their individuality, their unique story, everything that makes them a person.

It is to reduce them to nothing but the darkness that comes before them.

So I'm not playing that game anymore. Not letting you use the word privilege as an insult. Not letting you treat me like some kind of special wicked ATM that you're morally obligated to spit on as you withdraw money from it.

Don't tell me I have "privilege", because you don't know me. You don't know what I have. You don't know a thing about me.

And you don't know a thing about anyone else, either. And you won't until you realize that people are distinct individuals, each with their story, to which you must listen before you can presume to know them.

Gawker mocks r/MensRights

6 upvotes · 28 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

First they ignore you, then laugh at you, then hate you. Then they fight you, then you win.

Women in Saudi Arabia to vote and run in elections.

6 upvotes · 26 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Feminism has its place.

That place is Saudi Arabia.

Ask MR: My lesbian friend is having a women's only wedding ceremony (all guests are female). Should this annoy me?

6 upvotes · 26 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Not sure if troll or just totally lacking in self-awareness...

Anger is not Hatred

6 upvotes · 14 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

a hand puppet in a popcorn flick once said

Fixed that for you.

Fear exists for a reason. It tells you when you are in danger.

Anger exists for a reason. It tells you when you need to deter a threat.

Crazy woman, stabs NFL player, doesn't get charged...SO fucking sick of this shit. The woman should be locked up, it's assault with a deadly weapon.

6 upvotes · 12 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Aren't you kind of playing into that tendency that our culture has, that when a woman does something bad to a man, we tend assume or look for some reason why he deserved it?

We have no evidence and not even an assertion that he did anything to her, violent or otherwise.

Assuming he did is assuming in a vacuum. We have no more reason to accuse him than we do Weird Al Yankovic, Barrack Obama, Michael Phelps, or Jack Black.

The man who raised me is not my father, but a man led astray by my mother.

6 upvotes · 31 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Not sure if serious.

Three days to get a blood test back? Agreeing to take one based on blood type? A parent not already knowing blood type (it goes on the birth certificate)?

Except I can't see what would be gained from trolling, here.

Maybe someone is hoping to convince us that biological parenthood doesn't matter, and we should be happy to raise someone else's children.

Except that's stupid, because it's not the point. Lots of people happily and knowingly raise someone else's children. It's called adoption. It's a choice some people make.

Choice.

Do you get it now?

a long thread of people criticizing seddit on reddit

6 upvotes · 18 July 2011 · /r/seduction

ThrowawayPUA is a sensitive soul. Be gentle with him.

Why are women so against being seen as "sluts"?

6 upvotes · 14 July 2011 · /r/seduction

The problem with this kind of "evolutionary psychology" is not just that it's a post-hoc hypothesis, and thus unscientific, but also that it requires unwarranted assumptions about the conditions under which humans evolved.

We have no evidence that protohumans were dissimilar to any other homonid by being monogamous, or by having males closely involved in child-rearing.

Why are women so against being seen as "sluts"?

6 upvotes · 14 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Yes, exactly. As men, we need to not only avoid criticizing sluts, but to actively defend them.

Why are women so against being seen as "sluts"?

6 upvotes · 14 July 2011 · /r/seduction

A lock that opens because it isn't locked is not a shitty lock. It's just an unlocked lock.

A lock is only shitty if it's easy to open when it's locked.

Thank you...

6 upvotes · 7 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Now, off to build a pedestal for this girl, develop a crippling case of oneitis, and wallow for another year or so...

Heheheh.

Seriously, though, love is not oneitis. In fact, oneitis is not love.

Love is want. Oneitis is need. You can't really love someone you have oneitis for, since you will only see them through the lens of your own deficiency.

I am thinking about wearing a wedding ring to the next company I work for to help further my career.

6 upvotes · 7 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Let us not be like feminists, and fall into the trap of assuming that inequality of outcomes means inequality of opportunities.

Tips for seducing a dude that just doesn't get it?

6 upvotes · 1 July 2011 · /r/seduction

You asked the wrong question. I gave you an answer that would actually help.

Did you even read my response? Or the pickup for women subbreddit I pointed you to? Or the tactics post I linked you to?

I'm helping you. And you are fussing.

Tips for seducing a dude that just doesn't get it?

6 upvotes · 1 July 2011 · /r/seduction

First of all, visit r/fpua.

Read my post on how to "boost" guys:

http://www.reddit.com/r/fPUA/comments/i6kwd/an_fpua_equivalent_to_the_neg/

Second, realize that (and is earth-shattering), you can make a move even though you have girl parts. Wow. Seriously.

Most girls think that being direct means "drop a bigger and more obvious hint, and wait for him to go into seduction mode".

But since you're the one who decided she wants something to happen, you don't get to say "How can I get him to make a move?", because you're asking how you can control him. You can't. And it's disrespectful to try.

Instead, do what you want to do, let him react how he wants to react. Set up an moment, and kiss him. If he kisses back, you're good. If not, he's not into you. Simple as that.

You have to take a risk sometimes. This is 2011. You have all the rights of a man. That means you get the responsibilities, too. You want something, take a risk and go get it, don't just sit around asking how to get someone to drop it in your lap.

Western Culture loves to sexualize positive male emotion. Case in point: "Bromance"

6 upvotes · 1 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's almost like an effort to discourage it. "If you're close with another dude, you must be gay".

Which is, of course, the lamest of insults if you think about it, because it's only an insult if it's not true.

Someone in r/seduction wakes the fuck up. These two subreddits need to talk.

6 upvotes · 25 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

No, certainly not.

I think, however, that he is afraid that if r/mensrights and r/seduction start cross-pollinating, this will be ammunition for those who call redditors "misogynists".

Me, I don't think it's a very good idea to react to what others might say about you.

But there's no point in arguing with someone who deletes before discussing.

[FR] yes, sounds like bragging. fuck the haters. f closes thursday and friday.

6 upvotes · 20 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Bragging is only a douche move when you cut others down with it. You are trying to inspire others so that they, too, can have what you have.

So brag it up.

Good way to DHV when asked "What do you do?"

6 upvotes · 20 May 2011 · /r/seduction

You are DLVing not because you said computers, but because you're not passionate about it.

To DHV about anything, you must be proud of it, and have passion that comes through in what you say.

I am a software engineer, and I love it. And because I love it, I can DHV all day with it.

"It's like being a wizard, you speak the secret language of the engines that run the world."

"It's like having the ultimate set of legos."

"It's intensely frustrating... and then, you find what you did wrong, and it works, and the heavens open up with angels singing. Nothing better than that moment. Well, maybe one thing. But it's close."

Instant doggie dinner bowl look. Not because of what I'm saying. But because I believe it. And I don't care who disagrees. Or thinks I'm a nerd. I love it when someone calls me a nerd in the middle of that. Because I can laugh and ask what they do to change the world. And they just wilt, and I've DHVed even more.

Get some passion. Find something you're passionate about. Talk about it.

Feeling disillusioned with Seduction

6 upvotes · 18 May 2011 · /r/seduction

As I've said before, this stuff isn't complicated, and it isn't really about seduction. It's about detox from feminism.

Think about it. How long would a species survive if the males didn't instinctively know how to attract the females?

The problem ain't that we don't know this shit. The problem is that, raised in the world feminism built, we've been conditioned to avoid doing the right thing (being aggressive, straightforwardly showing interest in sex, sticking up for ourselves, acting dominant over women, attracting by displays of power, status, and value rather than by targeted niceness, etc.).

That's why hitting on women is such a miserable experience until you break out of that frame. Because men are in an impossible bind, left with a choice over shame at being weak or shame at being evil.

Once you undo the feminist programming of "instinctive masculine behaviour is evil and you're a bad person if you do it", then this stuff becomes possible... but it still is hard, and people fill this gap with techniques.

Once you undo the second feminist poison of " "instinctive masculine behaviour is hostile and people will hate you if you do it", then it becomes easy, barely even a skill at all.

Sounds like you've taken that second step, and I congratulate you. Rocks to be you.

But reflect that not everyone had the same upbringing as you. They may have been poisoned more deeply, and the detox process may be longer and more painful.

Twelve year old girl falsely accuses teacher of molesting her. Teacher found innocent and cleared of all charges. Still suffering from false molestation allegations

6 upvotes · 15 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

I don't believe the US court system makes a distinction between not-guilty and innocent.

American here. This is correct. It is this way because everyone is considered innocent until guilt is proven "beyond a reasonable doubt".

In practice, this principle has frayed a bit.

[FR] - Helped an AFC K-close with just a few pointers

6 upvotes · 14 May 2011 · /r/seduction

When I taught karate, I used to say to my students that the true measure of me was not how much ass I could kick... (pause for them to think I'm gonna to produce dumbass PC Miyagi statement about peace)... but how much ass they could kick.

You, sir, have moved to the next level. Not to mention that it can only help your confidence and game.

[fr] failed Kclose

6 upvotes · 13 May 2011 · /r/seduction

then she said ok i really got to go now and i said the do you want to kiss me line.

In womanspeak, you just asked her "Are you a slut?".

If you make her take responsibility for what she's doing, then she'll most likely bow out unless she's super wet for you. If you let her make the excuse to herself that she's just going along with what you started, your chances are better.

This was coming off the heels of your first mistake:

some guy came up to me and started asking me technical questions in front of her while she was just standing there listening. after a few mins the conversation ended with the guy and she said she was going to leave and said something along the lines of ill let you geek out with the other guys im going home.

This was a shit test, and you failed.

She was sulking about you paying attention to them and not her. I would have said something like:

{Big grin, cocky tone} "Sit your ass down." {more normal voice} "I'll be done here in a moment or two."

This reassures that she'll have your full attention again, while showing her that she cannot push you about.

Imagine if this was the other way around

5 upvotes · 24 May 2022 · /r/PussyPassDenied

Wasn't it modeled on PatriarchyPhone™?

How can I get more in touch with my sensuality? Struggling with a low libido and I'm concerned it may cost me my relationship.

5 upvotes · 13 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

What's missing in all of this is the part where you talk about how he feels about it.

I suspect that's because you have no idea... because you haven't asked.

Reported for Hate Speech. Does this look like hate speech to you?

5 upvotes · 16 April 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

"I don't want men around me."

"Okay, I'll stay away from you."

"No, not like that, you sexist!"

Shower thoughts: being water

5 upvotes · 12 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I just wish sometimes you men would just let us close the door and think the way we think

Okay, better, but you still haven't reached the minimum threshold of courtesy.

First of all, being offended on someone else's behalf is not a virtue. It speaks over them, selects their response for them, and is generally engaged in for the purpose of virtue signalling rather than virtue practicing.

/u/girlwithasidecar is perfectly capable of deciding for herself how she feels about my comment.

Secondly, pretending that you are "not allowed to think" because someone else expressed a contrary opinion is classic damseling, and one of few thing more irritating than damseling is damseling by proxy. /u/girlwithasidecar is perfectly capable of deciding for herself what she thinks, whether or not I disagree.

Thirdly, if you want to close the door, you're going to find that this puts you in a closed room with me. Why? Because I built the damn room in first place.

Imagine, if you will, for a moment, that you co-founded a forum for men to discuss sexual strategy from a certain perspective. Then imagine that you laboured for years to make it a place full of valuable and useful content for men.

Then imagine that women keep showing up, asking "what about me?", "where do I get to ask questions?", as if they were somehow entitled to their "fair share" of what they expended zero effort to create.

Then imagine that that you decide to throw them a bone, and you and one of the other founders work out a scheme to set up another forum just for women, then appoint a bunch of female mods, and still stick around putting in effort to make sure it runs smoothly and doesn't develop hitches.

Then, after eight years of this, some woman with fourteen total comments, the first of which is only six months old, and zero posts contributed, decides to ask you what you are doing here as if you had just barged in drunk and stark naked except for a Viking helmet and some socks.

Might that not explain the slightly irritated tone of this response?

You do not have part ownership in this place by virtue of having lady parts. Yes, it is here to help people like you. But it is not here for you to suddenly decide you are the bouncer whose job is to show people to the door.

If you don't like the fact that I am male, and I am here, you are welcome to hit the report button. In fact, please do, because the mods love a good laugh.

Fundamentally believing grown women biologically think like teenagers is sexist

5 upvotes · 6 March 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Of course it's sexist. I am sexist. You are sexist. We are all sexist. Because nature is sexist.

Someone calls a woman cheating “sexual freedom” and says you must be right winged if you don’t respect that

5 upvotes · 16 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Yeah, the difference between cuckold and cuckold fetish is the same as the difference between rape and rape fetish.

Should I wait for marriage or strive to be taken more seriously

5 upvotes · 31 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Lifelong commitment TO someone is a big choice. Lifelong commitment FROM someone is a big ask.

In order to make that big choice well, you need to understand what and who it is you are choosing, and to make that choice wisely.

In order to be able to ask that much from someone, you need to be able to convince others that you have the ability to stick by a commitment you have made.

So what are doing, in your life, right now, to make yourself ready to choose a husband, and to make a husband ready to choose you?

Sometimes good men give bad gifts.

5 upvotes · 29 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's called a "covert contract", and it's a recipe for disappointment. Basically what you do is decide you have an agreement with someone, and they have an obligation based on that... but you don't tell them what you think they're supposed to do. You just expect them to do it.

It's really nice when other people can guess what we want, but that's the exception, not the rule. It's a feat of interpretation and guesswork, and no one is going to have a very high batting average.

One of my girlfriends is a lot better at reading me than the other is. I have two choices about this... I can either be happy that one of them is so good at this, or be a petulant toddler, and throw tantrums that everyone I have a relationship with can't read my mind all the time.

Guess which mindset will make me more happy overall.

Women who HAVE in fact dated or married a Red Pill Man, good experience/relationship or negative?

5 upvotes · 12 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not quite.

The practices of tradwives are governed by the traditional rules of society, usually transmitted through religion.

The practices of red pill women are governed by understanding men's instincts and what they respond to.

Tradwives are taught to do what they do as a matter of duty.

Red pill women adopt their practices out of self-interest. Yes, they treat men well, but RPW material doesn't teach that this is their duty or their moral obligation... it is simply the thing that men really respond to and reciprocate.

Some of the behaviours are superficially similar, but the mindset and philosophy is quite different.

It's possible to be a red pill woman while having a high-flying career, while not having or even wanting children, while being unmarried or even single, while being kinky and profoundly sexual, while being in a nontraditional family.

Being a red pill woman is about how you behave, every day. How you treat the men around you. How you understand them, and relate to their masculine instincts and nature.

Have you been able to trust women since discovering the red pill? If so, how and if not, why not?

5 upvotes · 11 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The onus isn't on me to make myself trust women. The onus is on women to inspire my trust, or not.

Some have, some haven't.

How can men fix online dating? Issues from a woman's point of view

5 upvotes · 10 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's why she's spending her Sunday evening on Reddit complaining about online dating, instead of with her husband.

If you are surrounded by trash, examine the possibility that you are in the garbage can.

If you keep winding up in garbage cans, examine the possibility that you are trash.

How can men fix online dating? Issues from a woman's point of view

5 upvotes · 9 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because it affects you also, as women will simply leave the apps and dating altogether.

That doesn't affect me. I'm a relationship with two girls that looks to be permanent, and am not looking to add a third unless someone really special happens along. I'm also closer to fifty than forty, so online dating ain't gonna really be my thing regardless.

As for women leaving dating apps, that always happens.

The people who run dating apps are incentivized to keep people using them forever, because clicks make money. Grindr was profitable because gay men wanting to keep using the app forever, for hookup sex.

But women don't want hookup sex, they want relationships. So they either succeed, and exit the online dating ecosystem, or fail over and over, get discouraged, and... exit the online dating ecosystem.

The same thing happens with men who want relationships. This leaves the ecosystem clogged with undateables of both sexes.

Try thinking of it this way... if you're surrounded by trash, you're probably in the garbage can. Instead of whining for men to empty the trash for you, why not leave the garbage can, and go somewhere else?

In fact, I believe people should be about[able?] to rely on each other to not be abusive or nasty.

And I think Amazon should stop selling Chinese products until the Chinese Communist Party cuts out all the genocide and slavery.

And eleven year old girls think Daddy should buy them a pony.

If you keep expecting men to fix your problems, when you provide no incentive for us to do so, you're just going to be perpetually disappointed, and hang around on reddit, whining, instead of being in a relationship, getting married, maybe having kids if you want them.

Men are no longer the leaders of civilization, so we are no longer responsible for its welfare. Fix your own problems.

Dr. Phil tells abuse victim that he isn't allowed to defend himself from his abuser and the audience cheers

5 upvotes · 29 December 2021 · /r/MensRights

Do not turn your back on someone who is attacking you.

Based on my experience women don't seem to value "intelligence" as an attractive trait

5 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women aren't impressed with abstract, intellectual, self-regarding, pompous intelligence that reads Lacan, joins MENSA, and sits around patting itself on the back.

Women are impressed with the ability to apply intelligence and get practical shit done.

I feel like Vice just said the quiet part out loud

5 upvotes · 21 December 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I was alive in the seventies, before feminists realized this needed to be the quiet part.

Feminism has always been about destroying the nuclear family. Any self-professed feminist who says differently is either lying or, more likely, is a useful idiot being manipulated by those who know.

FDS are "pick me" women

5 upvotes · 20 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you don't want to be misunderstood, try communicating better.

"Gee, somebody thought I was an FDS reader when I showed up in a thread about FDS and used their talking points and terminology! How deeply offensive! Why didn't he stalk my entire posting history to find out the story of my life instead?"

You could, for example, try saying "doormat" instead of "pickme", which is the normal-person metaphor that's been around for decades.

Of course, you'd still be wrong. Doormats are doormats because it's their best strategy. Aside from a few humiliation fetishists like your cherrypicked example, doormats are generally people who have so little to offer that that cannot afford to have much in the way of standards... and they have decided that they'd rather have a bad relationship than none at all.

You don't magically get better partners or better treatment just by demanding that. You have to deserve it, and then it comes to you, often even if you don't demand it, or don't think you deserve it.

The great secret of men, upon which RPW is based, is that most men are reciprocal. They treat you according to how you treat them. So while there are certainly corner cases where the opposite is true, most of the time women in this culture are hurting themselves by being too assertive, and they would get better life outcomes if they added about 10-15% more "doormat" to the mix.

/u/sunshinesundress touches on this point in what she wrote. If there is a cute guy at the office that you like, and (after flirting a bit to see if he's receptive), you bake him some cookies, then, sure, FDS would call you a "pickme", and make dire predictions about how you will end up barefoot, serially pregnant and chained to the stove, but what you actually get is a chance to see how he reacts to spontaneous gestures of caring, for the low price of an hour and a half spent baking, and eight dollars worth of ingredients.

Read pretty much any romance novel ever. The idealized men who star in this "girl porn" aren't simps. They are dangerous, savage monsters, and sometimes they even treat the protagonist cruelly... at the beginning. But they always thaw out for her (and often only for her) in response to her femininity.

There's a reason this is the formula. Girls do not, in the core of their souls, want nice, meek guys who can be tamed by their modern western feminist #girlboss assertiveness. They want dangerous, tough, ruthless guys who they can tame with femininity, empathy, and love.

This actually makes sense, because while the end result is similar in that they are well treated, the difference is that he is tame only to her, while retaining the ruthlessness that made him attractive. And that ruthlessness stands ready to be weaponized against anyone who threatens the relationship.

Nice guys, by contrast, are easy to get good treatment from, but they are not trustworthy, because they are loyal to whoever bullied them last.

TRP or FDS: Which side deals in absolutes more often and has the most bitter followers?

5 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<https://subredditstats.com/subreddit-user-overlaps/femaledatingstrategy>

FDS users are

- 2.03 times more likely to be subscribed to r/datingoverthirty than they are to r/femalefashionadvice.
- 2.82 times more likely to be subscribed to r/datingoverforty than to r/makeupaddiction.
- 1.5 times more likely to be subscribed to r/witchesvspatriarchy than to r/xxfitness.
- 3.8 times more likely to be subscribed to r/survivinginfidelity than to r/loseit.

- Slightly more likely to be subscribed to /r/antiwork than to /r/homeowners.

Draw your own conclusions.

Lesbians, what's your take on FDS?

5 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

.

A practical guide to self discipline by a former army ranger

5 upvotes · 13 October 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Beta males love the idea of self-discipline because they don't like to make choices and take responsibility for them. They want a life where success is a function of exerting effort to follow a set of clear and easily available instructions, rather than a function of correct strategy selection.

Beta males who have attained success will thus often advise people to hone their "self-discipline" by performing useless nonproductive conformity tasks, such as making your bed, or getting up at 4am.

It is certainly possible to achieve great success as a beta male... in fact, civilization requires it, because very few people have any significant capacity to think and plan, and those thoughts and plans require much work to carry out, work done at the behest of someone else.

However, success can only be achieved through conformity when the institutions endorsing those conformist strategies have the objective of forming sustainable relationships, of mutual benefit, with their conformist servants.

An alternate strategy, for the thinkers and planners who effectively control those institutions, is to be parasitical upon those conformists instead.

The benefit of this strategy is that it is even more profitable. The drawback is that the relationship is not sustainable, because the conformists either wise up, and reject the parasites, or do not, and are eventually so drained that they can no longer meaningfully be exploited, having nothing left to give.

However, how long the parasitical relationship can be sustained varies, mostly as a function of how wealthy the society is, and how much trust its institutions have built up. When the level of wealth, and the level of institutional trust, have become so high that the parasitical relationship can be sustained for longer than a single human lifespan, thinkers and planners often have little to no incentive to refrain from parasitism.

This leads to one (or several) generations of parasitism, followed by collapse.

Professor: Fewer Men Going to College Will Lead to a 'Mating Crisis'

5 upvotes · 12 October 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Well written as usual, Vas. Gets right to the point, and makes it crystal clear.

However, there is one small point I'd like to unpack further.

-Avoid going into debt unless you have a clear path to prosperity.

While you are literally correct here, "clear path to prosperity" is somewhat ambiguous, and there's a risk that some of the young bros will misunderstand. So, let's add some further detail:

Debt is not inherently bad. One of the major differences between the rich and the poor is that the rich understand how to leverage debt. Borrowing money can allow you to get rich(er) if you do it the proper way.

The principle here is "only borrow money to buy an appreciating asset". Typical appreciating assets would be real estate, a career-specific education, a business, or some other investment vehicle".

But it's not quite as simple as that. A casual reading of this principle would make you think "don't finance a car, buy it with cash". Yessssss, but what if you took the loan instead of paying cash, and put the money you would have spent into a diversified stock index fund?

It's not hard to realize 15% from a good mix of unmanaged funds. Savy investors who take a more active role can get 20%. If you have decent credit, an auto loan is less than 5%. So not only are you pocketing 10-15% over the life of the loan, the money you earn is right where it already belongs... earning more money.

This is the sort of thing that "clear path to prosperity" actually means. It should not be understood as a call to avoid debt, but instead to understand it, and to use it in a clear-eyed, enlightened fashion.

A practical guide to self discipline by a former army ranger

5 upvotes · 27 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

- Beta males love to be hazed so they can feel elite when they are finally given acceptance by daddy.
- Beta males love to be taught the "correct" way to do trivial, and sometimes unnecessary, tasks, so they can have pride without needing accomplishment.
- Beta males love to be judged and evaluated by authority figures because their primary source of self-worth is pleasing those in authority over them.
- Beta males love top-down structures that impose obedience and harsh conditions on them so they can become "tough" enough to still appear masculine even when they are slaves.
- Beta males love the idea of "discipline" because it is what allows them to do pointless, goalless busywork to please their superiors.
- Beta males love to polish boots, make beds, clean things with toothbrushes, iron socks, and do other things that don't need to be done, because a beta male aspires for the approval of others, rather than to find or build something of real utility and value.
- Beta males love credentialism and organizations that issue diplomas, tags, patches, titles, and medals, because this allows them to gain the approval of others without taking the creative risks involved in building something of real value.
- Beta males love motivational fluff pieces and lectures on discipline because their goals are far too pointless to be inherently motivating.
- Beta males hate the idea of bullet point lists, summaries, and shortcut techniques because they fetishize effort and work ethic, rather than achieving maximum results with minimum effort and moving on to accomplish something else worth doing.
- Beta males prioritize hard work over domain-specific knowledge, and end up wasting a lot of time and effort doing the wrong thing that doesn't get them what they want.

down for this, anyone?

5 upvotes · 23 September 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Why is it that I seem to hear feminists taking so many more pains to escape blame for man-haters than they do to correct them?

You're not sorry they think that. You're just sorry they said it out loud.

Did I have sex too soon?

5 upvotes · 6 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"I really enjoy spending time with her, and she seems to care about me and what I want, but I'm going to dump her because she had sex with me too early"

- No man ever

Women are justified in being reluctant to give men compliments.

5 upvotes · 4 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Sounds fairly reasonable. We have a deal then.

I won't complain about women not giving men compliments, and women won't complain about men not giving them commitment.

I don't understand why he left

5 upvotes · 3 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"I'm not looking for a one night stand" is easily translated by men as "I have had a lot of one night stands, and have been disappointed by the results. I now want more from you than the previous double-digit number of guys, but I won't offer you anything more than I offered them."

Girls who are actually not into one night stands will just say "no thanks" to sex if they're not really feeling it... and that is boundary enough.

Explains everything...

5 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

The basic problem with CS Lewis is the curious flexibility of his knees.

Tradcon writers tend to be stunningly solipsistic when talking about atheists and free men. They assume that because they feel the need for something to worship, everyone must... so they talk about "god-shaped holes in the heart" and people "worshipping themselves".

This is convenient for them because it so vague it could mean anything, and thus can never be disproven. Thus, having satisfied themselves with this little airy bit of handwaving, they can move on to doing whatever it is they truly want to do, such as writing novels where everyone who disagrees with them is ugly, stupid, evil, and wrong.

Do other women fell less than to a man

5 upvotes · 26 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so you don't have an MOS, because you're not enlisted yet. You're a boot.

Your accomplishments in the military so far amount to signing your name on a piece of paper, filling out a bunch of forms, and possibly doing some PT.

And yet, "I am in the military" is what you said to /u/humansockpuppet when he speculated that perhaps you did not covet accomplishments, but the respect they bring:

Unless, perhaps, it's not the achievements of men that you envy, but the attention they get for it.

You have just shown him to be correct. You attempted to gain the respect without having done the work, pretending that there is some common thread between the tasks HSP speaks of:

Lay down your nail polish and your maternity magazines and pick up an AR-15 and a plate carrier, do battle in the dirt and mud and rain, and then tell me about your "daily pain and mental struggle".

and what you have done:

I'm reserves you just do drills. My boot camp starts in January.

You crave the adulation that is given to males who accomplish the difficult, the dangerous, the useful, the rare and impressive.

But the route to that adulation has always been open to you. You just have to do the same sort of things those men did.

You covet the rewards of masculine success, but not its requirements.

There is no 100% PC Way of Approaching Women Without Risking to Appear CREEPY

5 upvotes · 24 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not our job to make sure women feel safe. We cannot control their feelings.

Everyone's feelings are valid (unless you're a man who was just rejected by a woman) [vent]

5 upvotes · 24 August 2021 · /r/MenSupportMen

It could also be just a reaction to a single rejection, but it was a very important rejection from a very important person.

Yes, that can happen when men don't hear "yes" a lot also. They start to view opportunities as precious, and emotionally invest in them too much, too early.

All women are unique, but no woman is irreplaceable. Both of my girlfriends are great to me, worship the ground I walk on, etc, and I love them, but they are very different girls. And what that tells me is that I could be happy in a relationship with any of a great variety of women.

There is no one special soul mate, just a very large number of acceptable choices. Part of learning how to be okay with no, and how to get to yes, is internalizing that so we aren't too desperate for the approval of any one girl.

Like, what can we change in society so that women say "yes" more often?

We can't change society. But we don't have to. We can solve this problem in our individual lives by learning what makes women say "yes".

Maybe women would be more open to saying "yes" if they knew that most men aren't just primitive apes who want only sex ...? Then they could probably feel more safe saying "yes".

See, this is an example. You've been told a lot that women would like you to be "less" sexual, because your sexuality is "threatening" and they need to feel "safe". Some of the people telling you this are women themselves.

So you act on that, and here you are, trying to deal with the pain of rejection. But if you look at the men that women give themselves to, these men are not asexual, or "safe".

Women aren't necessarily going to tell you the truth about what they like. They have no incentive to do so, and even if they did, they wouldn't necessarily have a clear idea what it is. This is why it's important to pay far more attention to watching what women do, rather than listening to what they say about themselves.

How to handle your boyfriend following women on Instagram?

5 upvotes · 19 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, this is often very foreign to women.

We had a woman come in here not too long ago, practically in tears because she had found her husband masturbating to porn of other women in the middle of night when she was sleeping.

No one had ever told her that the male sex drive is like the female menstrual cycle, only a lot less predictable. A man can wake up in the middle of the night, suddenly far too sexually aroused to sleep.

He doesn't want to wake someone else up for sex. He doesn't even want sex. He wants to sleep. But his parasympathetic nervous system has other ideas, and he's NOT going to be allowed to get on with his day until he does something about it.

Imagine what your life would be like if menstruating was regarded as a character flaw.

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

5 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your Patriarchy says it protects women.

I am not "the Patriarchy". I am a patriarch.

The question here is, why is it not doing so?

Because it doesn't exist and never did.

If you say it shouldn't, then you can stop complaining about women always getting protected by men.

Hi, I'm Whisper.

You seem to have me confused with someone else, or a group of other people.

I am one of a small group of people who founded the "red pill". I don't complain about female behaviour. I analyze it and tell men how to control it. You can read some ideas about how protectiveness and submission interact in this thing I wrote.

Once you have read and understood that, I will happily teach you about the sexual dynamics of what happened in Afghanistan. I love explaining things.

If you say it should, explain why it didn't happen here.

Because it doesn't exist and never did.

Might be the only group in history that can simultaneously be so oppressed by a society while also being so offended and surprised they have to pay for their own food.

5 upvotes · 14 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

To the privileged, equality feels like oppression.

[CMV] The Manosphere Consistently Gives Terrible Nutritional Advice and It's Hurting Men in the Long Term

5 upvotes · 12 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Don't recall ever having asked you to take anything from anyone.

How do I become a red pill women?

5 upvotes · 2 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

How do I become a red pill women?

Split and divide yourself into two individuals, like an amoeba.

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

5 upvotes · 26 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

i don't have much weight to lose (10-15lbs maybe at 5'9), but have been found to have the beginnings of fatty liver and insulin resistance. my doctor told me to cut out saturated fats and if that doesn't reverse things he'll look at medication.

Replace your physician. Saturated fat does not cause fatty liver and insulin resistance.

after doing some of my own reading i've fallen on low-carb intermittent fasting

I agree that this is a wise approach.

i've spent a couple of weeks fasting from 8pm until 2pm and staying below about 20g of carbs a day.

So, 18/6 with a keto diet. That's certainly workable, but I would also experiment with multi-day fasts, which might allow you to relax the carbohydrate restrictions a bit.

You should be getting regular bloodwork to monitor your fasting insulin levels, and AST/ALT levels. The latter, including the ratio, will get you some visibility into how your liver is doing.

do you think this kind of 18 hour a day fasting is enough to put things in motion, or should i be trying to do longer fasts? i have a mentally taxing job and find it difficult to focus after 2pm or so if i haven't eaten, so haven't pushed it further yet.

Fasting is something your body adapts to. If you haven't fasted a lot, and you've been eating a lot of carbohydrate (especially the heavily processed kind) for years, your liver hasn't been doing much (or any) "gluconeogenesis" ... the process of turning fatty acids into glucose.

Now, if you are in ketosis, your muscles and whatnot can burn fatty acids just fine... they don't need glucose. But your brain does.

So sometimes, when you first start fasting, your liver is a bit "out of shape" in this respect, and has trouble keeping up with your brain. This results in headaches, brain fog, inability to focus, and so on.

Here's what you can do about this:

- Start with 18/6, and gradually introduce longer fasts as your liver adapts.
- Remember that you are not short of food, you are short of glucose. So you don't need a full meal, just a small amount of that specific substance. Glucose tablets are available, or you can mix a little "dextrose" (basically the same thing) in water and drink. You only need a very small amount.
- Time your eating window so it's right before you need to do thinking work.

you say to avoid processed food - what's the reasoning behind that? are processed foods ok if they don't contain fructose?

Metabolic syndrome is all about the insulin system being out of balance.

Processed food is food that has been stripped out of its original matrix and reconstituted. This reduces complex carbohydrates to simple ones, removes fiber, and just generally causes sugar to hit your bloodstream faster.

Fructose is the worst type of processed food, but pretty much all of them are bad. My rule of thumb is that if the people of ancient Egypt or Rome or other contemporary civilizations wouldn't have recognized it as food, you probably shouldn't eat it.

my vice at the moment is a coke zero around the time i'd have lunch.

The problem with artificial sweeteners is that even in the absence of any caloric sugar, the flavour itself will cause the brain to signal the pancreas to begin releasing insulin. And you'll not only have elevated insulin, you'll eat more.

You called it a vice for a reason... you already know it's bad for you. You are just hoping there is something that can give your fix and be okay. There isn't.

i'll also have an artificially sweetened low carb protein bar

No, no, no, no.

That is a cookie. You are eating cookies. You are eating cookies made by the people who poisoned you in the first place, which they pinkie-swear aren't poison this time, honest, bro, just please give us another chance.

Don't you get it yet? Their whole business model is to sell you things that are addictive. Starbucks made billions when they realized they could convince fat white girls that milkshakes are "coffee". This is the same thing.

That is not food. That is drugs. They are dealers. You are a junkie. You got addicted because everyone you trusted, including the government and the medical profession, told you those drugs were food.

They are not. Stop eating them. Eat food.

They don't care if you die. They are making new addicts faster than the old ones die of heart disease and type 2 diabetes. The food industry can sell processed food forever if you let them. The medical industry makes far more money from treating chronic diseases that patients eventually die from, than they do from curing people.

The grocery store is not your friend. Cargill, Archer Daniels Midland, and PepsiCo are not your friends. Your doctor is not your friend. They all have incentives that differ from your best interests. You must manage them, instead of trusting them.

Why They Hate You

5 upvotes · 26 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

There is always a small percentage of loud and useful idiots.

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

5 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, exactly. If you reduce portion sizes, but still eat frequently, your insulin will stay high, because your blood glucose stays elevated.

This makes your fat cells unable to release fatty acids into your bloodstream.

If your cells can't release fat, your body can't burn it. If your body can't burn it, you can't lose weight. It doesn't matter if you run a caloric deficit, because your body can't get at those fat stores. So it has to economize by slowing down your metabolic rate, decreasing your activity level, and turning up the hunger.

This is why calorie-restricting diets fail. Here's an experiment you can try... not to lose weight, but to find out more about your body.

Try not eating for two days.

What you probably expect will happen is that you will just get hungrier and hungrier, until you eventually give in.

Here's what you might actually experience. At first, you will become very hungry indeed. You may get a headache or feel irritable as your blood glucose drops low (your brain feeds on glucose). But if you tell yourself it will pass, and stick with it... the hunger will go away.

Why? Because as your insulin level drops, the body will be able to start unpacking some of those fat cells that you have been carrying around for so long. Your liver will take those fatty acids and turn them into glucose (blood sugar) to feed your brain.

Then you won't be hungry anymore... because you will actually have eaten something. The only difference is that it will be something stored in your body, instead of something you put in your mouth.

Fasting works because it is something your body is evolved to do. You are supposed to go through times of abundance and times of scarcity. You are supposed to put on five to ten pounds during the rainy season and melt them off in the dry season.

Skipping meals is healthy. It's not something you need to do if you are in shape, but it's harmless, it doesn't hurt at all that much, and if you are already fat, it's a key cornerstone of the way back.

I recommend that people also cut out sugar, cut out processed food, eat plenty of fiber, and avoid carbohydrates. These things enhance positive results from fasting. But without fasting, they typically will not be enough.

Can you try that? Just two days with no food. Not to see if you lose weight (you won't lose a noticeable amount in that short a time), but to see if you can be comfortable doing that.

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

5 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://old.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/m34yr5/how_not_to_be_fat/

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

5 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Our bodies do not realise we live in a world where food is everywhere, and that we don't have to keep fat stores in case of times of starvation.

This is why you are "diet cycling". Because you believe this. You are attempting to lose fat by eating in such a way as to reduce "calories", in the belief that it is "calories" that make you fat.

This doesn't work, because calories don't make you fat. The people of the mid twentieth century had just as many "calories" available to them as we do, and they were not driven to overconsume by evolutionary programming. There is no such programming. Your is body is evolved to maintain a healthy fat composition.

The reason you are fat is that a specific set of biochemical processes have disrupted and broken that mechanism.

In other words, you have been poisoned. Not only have you been poisoned, you have taught that it's your fault you're fat, by the very people who poisoned you, so that they can avoid bearing the responsibility for having poisoned you.

Its frankly exhausting. I have wasted years hating myself because of my weight.

Exactly. You believed it was your fault. It is not your fault. It is not even partially your fault. It is not one infinitesimal iota your fault.

The only thing you did wrong was to be too trusting.

A bunch of people sold you toxic and addictive substances under the guise of food. You trusted them. You are no more to blame than you would be for becoming a junkie if someone was slipping heroin in your tea for several decades.

The should not feel guilty. But you also should not feel accepting or resigned. You should be mad as hell. All the pain you have suffered was inflicted on you so someone could make a buck. The food companies knew this in precisely the same way that tobacco companies knew cigarettes cause cancer, years before they were forced to publicly admit it.

Besides sex - HOW do men need women?

5 upvotes · 8 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

We don't.

We want them.

Can you guys expand on the idea of frame?

5 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

Nope.

How do I (F20) tell my boyfriend (M25) that I would like him to cover the expenses during a date?

5 upvotes · 16 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Not really.

...

It was very embarrassing for me to admit that I had been seeing a man who was letting me pay for myself and it definitely hurt my self esteem because it feels like my boyfriend was insinuating that I'm not worth his generosity.

Furthermore, besides the shame and embarrassment (not of him, but for not clarifying this with him before getting into this relationship which reflects poorly on me), my friends and family would oppose this relationship if they found out he lets me pay.

I want to be a SAHM in a few years and it made me second guess my choice because one of the traits that make a good husband is financial generosity in my opinion.

And you are dating an unemployed student your own age? That's a non-starter.

I'd give the whole relationship about 9 months. 6 for him to graduate, 3 for you to fight about money and destroy the relationship while he's looking for a job.

I just can't think of a way to bring this up casually and light heartedly. Im willing to negotiate with him and compromise, as I really do like this man.

What was it that made you come here first?

all men are trash???????

5 upvotes · 14 June 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

It would be interesting to see how long even the most zealous of radfems could go without using something invented for her by a man, then built for her by men, and transported for her to where she bought it by men.

Extremely fucked up situation with roommate. Advice needed.

5 upvotes · 11 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

This is not a you problem. You do not have to get involved. There is no "win condition" for you if you do get involved.

Stay out, do not form an opinion.

On the down low, start looking for somewhere else to live. Drama has a splash zone.

FDS being as large as it is shows how out of touch some women are and that doesn't help get women results.

5 upvotes · 10 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everyone here has at least heard of FDS and what's its goal is, to help women attract high value men

No, that is not its goal.

Its goal to soothe women's emotional pain at their lack of romantic success by shifting blame for it to anyone other than themselves. It's a massive ball of "cope".

Want to see for yourself?

Go look at the top ten posts there on any given day. How many of them contain any "strategy"? How many contain any actionable advice at all? How many contain a new piece of advice that hasn't been heard before? How many of them explain male psychology in such a way as to provide new and useful insights?

As a control group, perform the same experiment on TRP.

You will notice that the only thing that both have in common is saying unflattering things about the opposite sex. Beyond that, one treats that unflattering picture as the terrain one must navigate and succeed in... while the other wallows in self-pity.

FDS seems to be a misandrist support group for women that have been hurt by a man before or grew bitter from not getting much attention.

Yeah, pretty much.

Marketing it as a space that is beneficial to women is doing more harm than good.

One thing I have learned from running TRP for however many years it's been is that you cannot help someone without not only their permission, but their active cooperation.

The greatest hurdle in self-help is not doing what you need to do (which is easy), or even knowing what you need to do (which is hard), but knowing that you are the one that has to fix any problem you have, even if you didn't cause it.

People who fail at the that first hurdle are never going to improve, and because of that, they will always be with us, and because of that, they will always find or create places to congregate in and be failures together.

What is the best way to ease a date into me eating a special/restrictive diet?

5 upvotes · 9 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

For example, after a few dates of hiking or hanging out, the idea of a dinner/food date comes up. Or after hanging out for a while, he'll be hungry and want food. If I just sit across from him not eating, it'll be weird. Also I may be hungry too. He also may not want me to pick all of the restaurants.

Oh, dear... I hadn't thought of that. You might have to communicate clearly with each other, and accommodate each others' needs. You might have to work together as a team to overcome logistical problems.

Since normal relationships clearly never require this, this is totally irrelevant to you finding out whether a man would be a good partner.

Well, in that case, I recommend you hide this as long as possible, and hope he gets so attached to you that he reluctantly puts up with this hardship. Deception is the basis of every good relationship.

Whatever you do, don't tell men up front about this, in a non-confrontational, undemanding manner, and focus on getting to know the men who are cheerful about dealing with it, or letting you do so. They are clearly lying and waiting on ambush you with years of resentment. Men love being married to women who are nothing but a big inconvenience to them.

Or, wait... maybe... just maybe... you are being kind of silly and allowing your anxieties to colour your expectations of other people.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

5 upvotes · 9 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

So advice given to a woman on how to maintain her marriage is failing spectacularly as one of TRPs greats has losing battle after losing battle (as time goes on) trying to "reason" (argue) with young women online.

I can see why you can't get laid.

Because the one defining trait of men who can get laid is that they are persistent and not discouraged by failure. The occasional success looms larger in their minds than the failures in between.

For you, the reverse is true. This is why you looked at an interaction where I not only figured out this woman's issue, and got her to realize it, but then got another woman to spontaneously call herself out on being too emotionally involved to help... and still saw "failure" because a third one is fussing.

If your brain requires 100% positive feedback to prevent you from giving up in despair, then you are never going to be attractive to women, because women aren't into Eeyore. They like, instead, the sort of man who would be useful in a zombie apocalypse... and such men do not cry themselves to sleep at night if one woman is stubborn, obnoxious, or unreasonable.

You are a help resistant complainer.

Now get off RPW, because it's for helping women, not you.

Does it get better?

5 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

It gets better if you make it get better.

"If he really wanted me, he would approach me" Do y'all really believe this ?

5 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

To my regular readers:

Check this girl out. Look at her speculating about what men would do if they felt this or that, which she by implication wants them to feel... then she reveals that she went for a man who did the opposite.

Never try to understand women by listening to what they say... instead, you must watch what they do.

Backing off and letting my husband pursue me?

5 upvotes · 4 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You have problems you can't fuck your way out of.

And no man is going to initiate sex with, or enjoy sex with, a woman for whom he has deep seated anger and distrust.

Stop fiddling with the sex knob and fix your relationship.

My ex wants me to do certain things in order for me to see him more often

5 upvotes · 3 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so here's the advice I would give to a man in his situation:

"If this girl dumped you, and now she wants you back, she wants you back because option one didn't work out. Do not commit to her. You do not want to live your life as someone's second choice. Plate only."

But what he is doing isn't following my advice.

He is seeing if he can get you to do things you find degrading, precisely because he wants to resuscitate the relationship. You see, he knows something about women that all men know and almost all women don't. Women are at their easiest, and their kinkiest, and their most sexually enthusiastic, with the man who they desire above all others.

He doubts that he is that man, and he wants you to prove it to him.

Should you?

No.

Why not?

Because he is not that man. His suspicions are right. He is your second choice... or lower.

How do I know that?

Because you are here asking that question instead of lapping at this taint right now. If you were really all-in with him, having freaky amateur-porn-film sex with him would be fun and exciting, not something you suffer through because you don't want to be alone.

So you need to save that shit for a man you actually love.

And you need to stop wasting his time so he can find a girl who actually loves him.

Laura Bretan and the Vanishing Virgin

5 upvotes · 22 May 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Young men have no romantic goals - only sexual ones.

Well put. +1 for that.

It's very, very true. The young men of TRP confide in me, and while there are still some who want to be loved, romantic fantasies on their part are becoming increasingly less and less common.

Why? Because there's nothing left in romance for them to want. The modern notion of a pair-bonded relationship, as told through our culture's fiction and public discourse, increasingly has nothing for them but an ever-expanding list of responsibilities and hazards.

They see relationships as a trap. And I cannot blame them, because while I have seen relationships be a real source of happiness and life contentment, that goal simply cannot be had except with a sort of partner who is increasingly not to be found in their age group.

They don't include this sort of relationship in their ambitions, because not only is it not available to them, it's so rare for them that they haven't even seen it to imagine it exists.

Happiness is beyond their reach, and pleasure is all they can aspire to. Getting their dicks sucked on the regular is the pinnacle of their notion of a happy love life. I can tell them about having a good relationship, but the only way I can teach them to have that to attain such total psychological dominance in the relationship that she gets her values and morals solely from him. Then, and only then, will the twentysomething girls of today have any care or consideration for her relationship responsibilities, or even the idea that she might have such a thing.

That's why I tell them there are no "unicorns", so don't hunt them. A "unicorn" being a metaphor for a woman who already knows how to treat a man well in a relationship, and is willing to do so.

And that's why I teach them not to go looking for "snow leopards", because they are so rare that they exist, but there's no point in deliberately trying to find one, only in being able to spot one if you run across it. A "snow leopard" being a metaphor for a girl who hasn't been psychologically ruined and is still able to be developed into someone relationship-worthy.

So I teach them to "spin plates", and maybe some girls will be able to persuade them to want more.

But they can't pin their ambitions on having good fortune. They have to focus their aspirations on things that are under their control.

I hate having to ignore.

5 upvotes · 20 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Once a woman starts voluntarily and deliberately treating you with disrespect, it's a lot harder to fix her attitude than it is to find another woman.

I don't generally recommend relationship resuscitation unless you are married and have kids.

Looks plays a massive role in men's value in women. How can I work on this when I'm average-looking? I am also not a very agreeable girl.

5 upvotes · 6 May 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Have I told you lately how proud I am of you?

if every girl is a whore, who am i going to start a family with? a whore?

5 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Why do you want to get married?

What's in it for you?

What to say to teen girls cold approaching ?

5 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

If teen girls are cold approaching you, the best response is probably "Yeah, okay.".

I (18M) have tremendous performance anxiety.

5 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Your girlfriend is a lousy lay.

She's letting you take responsibility not only for her arousal and pleasure, but your own as well. Nobody can stay hard while unilaterally shouldering a boatload of responsibility.

You need to clearly have the expectation that she is to be an active participant. Next time she says she is "good" with not doing a thing for you, do a freezeout. You know how to do a freezeout, right?

"With most women I need to make them think that THEY have won me over." How true is this for you guys and how do you internalise this mindset?

5 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Here's how this works:

1. You are a sexual being who likes sex, and is not going to try to hide that.
2. You are not, however, in need of her in particular, because there are lots of women out there who will do just fine.

CMV: Red pill is just mostly scammers who are trying to take advantage of down on luck men

5 upvotes · 4 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You don't even know who TRP's major contributors ARE. I've only ever heard of one of those guys.

Intimidating? The most common backhanded comment I receive from women and men.

5 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Intimidating" is a verbal device used by women to get out of a tough social situation.

You see, it is socially unacceptable for women to be "mean" in the same way that it is socially unacceptable for men to be "weak". So in the same way that men will lie in order to avoid looking weak, women will lie in order to avoid looking mean.

So, they are faced with a situation where they have to tell you that you repel men, or tell you why you repel men, without saying anything about you that could be construed as negative.

So they make up this little story about how you are so awesome that men are scared away.

Of course, this does you no favours, because no one can grow and improve without first becoming aware of her shortcomings. But women aren't going to tell you, because that would involve exposing themselves to possible negative consequences for being mean.

Well, you're in luck. I'm not a woman, and I don't have the slightest problem looking like the bad guy.

If women tell you you "intimidate" men, there is almost certainly something about your personality that men find repellent. I don't know what that is, because I don't know you, but I know it's there, because that is the only way this ends up happening.

What else have we being lied to about?

5 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Okay, so first before I can answer that, we gotta do some semantics. Here's what wikipedia has to say about "sentience":

Sentience is the capacity to be aware of feelings and sensations.[1] The word was first coined by philosophers in the 1630s for the concept of an ability to feel, derived from Latin sentientem (a feeling),[2] to distinguish it from the ability to think (reason).[citation needed] In modern Western philosophy, sentience is the ability to experience sensations. In different Asian religions, the word 'sentience' has been used to translate a variety of concepts. In science fiction, the word 'sentience' is sometimes used interchangeably with 'sapience', 'self-awareness', or 'consciousness'.[3]

Now, these are all interrelated concepts, but what I mean when I say "fully sentient" is "having full awareness of oneself, one's thoughts, one's beliefs, and one's motivations".

In other words, a plant is not aware of its own existence, a cat is aware of its own existence but doesn't think to ask why it does what it does, a human does ask this question. But most humans don't know the answer, even when they think they do.

A fully sentient organism is one that is able to engage in introspection and investigate its own beliefs and motivations, rather than assuming that nothing about itself is unknown, and all of its rationalizations are true.

Let me give you a few examples:

.1. Some people think masks work because they are Marxists and like the idea of a central authority dictating a cooperative response to a crisis. Others think masks don't work because they are tradcons and don't like non-theocratic central authorities. Others think they don't work because they are libertarians and don't like being told what to do.

But other can notice a distinction between what they want and what they think is true. And they ask themselves "what do I actually know about this?" or questions like "would I go into an ebola-infected area with nothing but a piece of cloth over my nose and mouth?".

What the last group is doing here is introspecting. Asking questions about themselves, and trying to find the answers, rather than not bothering, or assuming they already know.

.2. FanGirl is a huge bicycling nerd. Like, full-on with the lycra clothes and the carbon fiber gear and whatnot. When she moved in with me, I wanted nothing to do with riding a goddamned bike instead of a motorcycle or my Porsche.

But she wanted me to go riding with her. And, since she is smart, she did something smart. She didn't nag me about it. And she didn't talk up the merits of bicycles over cars.

Instead, she presented it as an alternative to walking. She realized that I hate being restricted or limited, especially to suit the demands or priorities of other people. And that I was sick of dumb commie hippies nagging us to give up our cars because some dude with a private jet told us that we have to stop burning fuel.

Bicycles, however, are enablers when you compare them to walking. And this prompted me to examine my own beliefs and realize I didn't hate bicycles, I hated left-wing authoritarians. And since I didn't have to do what they told be in order to ride one, I bought a class 3 electric assist model, and I can now go for a stroll at 28 miles per hour. So she's happy, I'm happy, she taught FunSize to ride one as well, we're all good.

This is awareness of the self (and others) as a complex system of systems, in that motivations and beliefs can exist in multiple layers.

I wrote an article a while back on the persuasive implications of how the human mind is not a single entity, but several. It got very little mass attention, partially because most human beings lack the inclination or capability to contemplate the possible intricacies of their own brain. They are only aware of the small portion of it that is automatically self-noticing, and that is what they think of as "themselves".

This is only partial sentence at best.

Would you stay friends with your friend if he decided to transition to female?

5 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Law #10: Infection: Avoid the Unhappy and the Unlucky

People who are perpetually miserable spread misery like an infection, and they'll drown you in it. Avoid these people like the plague. Conversely, if you associate with happy people, you'll share in the good fortune they attract and spread. Seek them out. Infection: Avoid the unhappy and the unlucky.

How not to be fat.

5 upvotes · 16 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

don't worry

I never do.

Questioning morality of cold approach

5 upvotes · 15 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

We don't discuss morality here, because moral decisions are up to the individual to make. You must decide what you think is right and wrong.

With that in mind, realize that, most of the times you think something is "wrong", you did not decide that for yourself. You feel that way because someone told you that, often repeatedly and when you were too young to question or critique that statement.

Ask yourself very careful who those "moral" principles are actually intended to benefit.

How not to be fat.

5 upvotes · 14 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

it takes 4 days to enter ketosis

Incorrect. You are referring to informational sources referencing a ketogenic diet (where you are eating regularly, and consume some nonzero amount of carbohydrates), rather than than resources referencing fasting.

The body has a certain number of resources it can tap for energy. It does not, however, have a stopwatch. Nor has it read the webpage you did, which says it should take "2-4" days to enter ketosis.

It cannot, therefore, consult a stopwatch, and say to itself, "well, I'm out of glycogen, but healthline dot com said I'm not allowed unpack stored triglycerides for another 72 hours, so I guess I'll just die."

Fatty acid metabolism must begin when glucose is not available. When local glycogen in muscle cells, and glycogen stored in the liver, are depleted, there's no more glucose.

But what about gluconeogenesis? Well, gluconeogenesis IS fatty acid metabolism... because fatty acids are the raw material the liver uses. No fatty acids, no gluconeogenesis. Fatty acid availability is the difference between fasting and starvation.

This kind of misinformation is a good example of why it is unhelpful to say to yourself, "I don't like this idea that someone wrote. Let me do a web search to see what I can find that contradicts it." ... instead of "Here is everything we know about this subject, what conclusions does this data support?".

CorporateLand: The Importance of Having a Patron

5 upvotes · 12 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that people become petty when they are under stress. So, in some ways, how petty an environment is depends upon the amount of pressure.

It is always good to remember that emotional maturity can evaporate fast when a person or organization is threatened.

How do you stay strong?

5 upvotes · 26 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

How do you be brave when the person you love is really sick?

What you do is you have a plan... you get the best team available, you find out what you need to do and you act on it, every day. Fear is easier to push through when you have a plan.

Don't drive yourself crazy chasing down every cancer diet or fad treatment out there. There's no silver bullet, and curing cancer is not your job. Your job is only to keep him, and yourself, strong and hopeful and still alive and fighting.

I can't promise you this will end well... nothing in life is guaranteed. But things are better now. As a child of the 80s, when I heard the word "cancer", I had visions of surgery and chemotherapy, of watching the woman I love wither into a bald and frail stick figure and die by stages in front of me. But it's not 1985 anymore. We have more and better weapons in this fight.

You white-knuckle it through the surgeries. You count the hours before each lab report comes back. You yell on the phone at people who probably don't deserve it. You discard all of life's little worries, wondering how you could ever have thought they mattered. You hold her hand until they come to take her away for surgery, and you breezily wish her luck, and tell her you love her, because you need her to hear it, but you never, never let on that you're thinking you might not see her again, even though that makes no goddamned sense because nobody dies on the table.

You go through this once, or over and over again. But one day you're sitting in someone's exam room, and he tells you the scan came back clean, and you're squeezing her hand way too hard and it hurts her, but you don't care and she doesn't care, because nothing will ever hurt again, and you will never be afraid of anything ever again.

And you go home and you watch The Fault in Our Stars without realizing when you put it on what it's about and when you get to the end you both cry like children, wrapped around each other on couch... not because it's sad, not because some fictional character is dead, not because some script writer somehow knows jack shit about what cancer is actually like, but because it's over, it's finally fucking over, and you can let it all out.

It's not over all at once, of course... it's never truly over, and we never use the word "cured". But the odds get better and better, and one day someone tells you that the scans can go to once a year now, and you start making plans again, and you go on vacation to Yosemite and you summit Half-Dome together, and even when she gives out from exhaustion and you have to half-carry her the last mile downhill in the dark, it doesn't matter how tired you are and how much that hurts, because she's there for you to carry and so nothing could possibly hurt much.

And then the scans go from once a year to stopped, and she's learning the piano, and spraining her ankle in gymnastics, and going with you to compete in precision rifle matches, and you're finally not thinking about it any more.

I can't promise you our outcome. I can't promise you your story won't have a darker turn. I don't know.

But I can promise you there are people walking around there who have been through this and are out the other side and they are alive. Cancer is hard, but it is not impossible.

Hold fast.

What turns a girl to feminism/lgbt?

5 upvotes · 12 February 2021 · /r/askTRP

I cannot explain the behaviour of someone I can't observe. I am a scientist, not a magician.

But that's okay, because you are asking the wrong question. The question you should be asking is "do I have to associate with those women?".

The answer is "no".

This Article Will Infuriate You

5 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the whole point.

You're making the same mistake that people made when they invented calorie restricted diets... that's the assumption that energy consumption is an independent variable, and can be held constant.

It's a dependent variable, and it can't.

If you eat less, you must either burn less, or unpack the deficit from storage. But if you eat too frequently, you can't unpack enough from storage, so you burn less.

When your insulin is high, your adipose cells are competing with your muscle cells in a game of hungry hungry hippos to see who can suck the glucose out of your blood faster. When your insulin is lower, your muscle cells are still taking up, but now your adipose cells are releasing.

So if your insulin never goes low enough, you not only can't get the energy out of the adipose cells, you can't even burn everything you eat, because your adipose cells are being told to grab all they can. So, faced with a fuel shortage, your body has no choice but to lower the basal metabolic rate. If it didn't, you would go into hypoglycemic shock and die.

THAT is how raising insulin and lowering calories can lead to more fat. The laws of thermodynamics aren't being violated. Energy isn't being created out of nothing. The equation is balanced.

CICO is based on the mistaken belief that your fat cells are polite and submissive and always wait until your muscles are totally finished eating, then dine on whatever table scraps are left.

This Article Will Infuriate You

5 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

It doesn't. That's the whole point of that sentence.

Feminists after posting this: yOu gO GiRl, sLay QueEN

5 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

She'd be great on a team, and I highly recommend that anyone who is competing with me should hire her right away.

Women's filtering methods are far more effective at eliminating HVM than LVM

5 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, so it's the male equivalent of "I'm looking for a man, not a boy", or "looking for a gentleman".

How do I show him I'm not a pick me type of woman?

5 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't get from sex to a relationship with more sexiness. It certainly doesn't hurt you, but the women that men choose for relationships are the ones who are also fun to be with when your clothes are still on.

The reason most women are indirect with rejections...is that we are afraid of retaliation.

5 upvotes · 11 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed.

They are not afraid of retaliation. They are trying to avoid appearing cruel, which is just as shameful among women as appearing weak is among men.

The manosphere totally misinterprets female attraction.

5 upvotes · 9 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think the only way I could really make it at all understandable is to talk about how we got here.

Back in the paleolithic era, a bunch of us hung out in r/seduction, which wasn't really anything like modern TRP... it was old, primitive, PUA stuff. Pick up lines, how to dress, how to act in the moment, that kind of thing. Mystery, RooshV, RealSocialDynamics, that kind of material.

But what started happening is that it started drawing a lot of attention from women, who began to post, comment, morally criticize, etc. And then the male protective instinct kicked in, and a lot of the people there started changing their tone. "Don't use negs", "leave her better off than you found her", that sort of thing.

Well, some of us saw that you can either discuss what you see frankly, or avoid giving offense, but not both. So we made another sub.

And the whole idea there was that we were going to keep trying stuff, and talking truthfully about what we found, and not be responsive to non-participants not liking what we saw.

We were going to go down the rabbit hole and see how deep it really went.

And once we really got rolling, we spent the next few years in a constant state of shock. It was like having cheat codes for the universe. And the more "misogynist" we got, the more women adored us. I could say we got away with some incredible shit, but we didn't "get away with" it... they loved it. I could tell you some stories where you would flat out call me a liar. Hell, 25 year old me would have called me a liar, too.

Eventually we got used to it, and it became second nature. Then it started become understandable as we began to be able to connect the dots and construct coherent hypotheses that strung all this stuff together.

And that's where we are. And, while almost no one is retarded enough to still argue that this stuff doesn't work (that ship sailed about four or five years ago), there are plenty of people who have never personally experience that "Holy shit, WTF, they LIKE this?" moment, so they're still rolling their eyes at some of the more surprising bits.

The manosphere totally misinterprets female attraction.

5 upvotes · 9 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

The only way to have an accurate picture of what TRP thinks is to read TRP. Which most people don't do, because we have deliberately designed TRP in such a way as to make this an uncomfortable process if you not male and actively interested in this stuff.

Additionally, you can't fully understand the material without trying it, which puts complete understanding beyond the reach of anyone who isn't male and heterosexual.

If I needed a marriage asap, How should I act around my new class?

5 upvotes · 9 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

What you want to do with your life is one thing. Who you want to do it with is another.

While no one here is going to argue with your goals, and you certainly seem pretty clear on them, choosing a husband (and getting your choice to choose you) is a very important decision, which you would be well advised to take your time making.

I can't say much about what to choose, or even what behaviour to look at, because you haven't told us anything about yourself, but one piece of advice that I can give is, if you wish to get married sooner rather than later, ignore men of your own age, and focus on men older than you.

Late-teens and early-twenties men, regardless of their quality or character, simply aren't ready to get married. Not ready emotionally, not ready financially, and not inclined to anyway. In addition, since their character is not fully formed yet, you can't tell if such men would make good husbands.

Late twenties to early thirties is a good target zone, although you can go older if you find such men attractive.

But you're going to need to have a clear idea, not of exactly what you want, but of what is important to you in a relationship. We can only help you with that if you talk about yourself more.

I'm genuinely worried for some of you, some of y'all need help

5 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Feminism legitimized hating an entire sex for the worst actions of its members that can possibly be cherry-picked from all of history.

Thing is, if you throw something up in the air, it's eventually going to come back down and hit something. And now, not just feminists, but all women, are being hit by the backlash.

Fortunately, for women who aren't feminists, there's an easy way out.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

5 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's interesting that this is the first thing that leaps to your mind.

Examine, for a moment, the possibility that there's a reason you think of "anarchy" when you ponder the idea of unconstrained male sexual desire. And that's because what you are used to the structure of society, the very notion of order, being synonymous with constraint on male sexual priorities... but not female ones.

Every society has a preferred sex, and it has nothing to do with the sex of the people in charge of running it on a day to day basis. The preferred sex of a society is the sex whose values and priorities are held to be the example of moral virtue and civic order.

We are raised to think of an orderly, stable, healthy society as being composed of lifelong, monogamous, sexually faithful, stable, and harmonious relationships. This is a recipe for maximizing female happiness, and it is our society's traditional recipe precisely because female happiness is our culture's model of a moral ideal.

This is not synonymous with women being in day to day control of our society, nor is it intended to say that every woman necessarily wants a tradcon long-term marriage. What it means instead, is that female happiness is our culture's measure of how moral, upright, and orderly our society is.

And it has been so for many centuries, even in times when our culture now claims that women were "oppressed".

In fact, claims that women were "oppressed" is simply a contention in the argument between neomarxism and tradconism, where tradconism argues that the old order must be preserved because it cares for, provides for, and protects women, while neomarxism argues that the old order must be abolished because it fails to liberate and empower women.

You see? This an argument over how society "should" be structured in order to best serve women. The idea that society might want to have any other priority is never called into discussion.

So, what would a society that valued male priorities look like? Well, crack a history book. There have been male-oriented societies in the past, not all of them, but many.

Since there are no moral laws encoded into the universe, there is no one "right" way to arrange a society. But some work better than others.

My goal in helping to build TRP, and continuing to run it, is not to defeat feminism, or to reorder society into something that serves you. Any crusade to do that is going to serve the leaders of that crusade, not its foot soldiers.

Instead, my goal is to get you to keep your eye on the ball.

Interviews - Who do you want to see next?

5 upvotes · 25 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, if /u/RealJoeDee pings me, we can set something up.

Is a man manly by himself?

5 upvotes · 22 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

What exactly is it that you want help with, here?

If you're just here to dunk on men who like compliments, while assuring us all that the men you date are too cool to like compliments (we didn't ask), then we have to wonder why you care.

The End of Democracy Part 2: The Next Great War

5 upvotes · 17 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Very thoughtful, but OP is a military historian, not an engineer, and therefore he thinks active-intercept ballistic defense systems can work.

They don't.

Modern navies have only two types of craft: submarines and targets.

Divorced and Christian and facing those "Christian men will see divorce as a black mark" feels.

5 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men will pass us up for various reasons that we cannot change, and that is fine. They are entitled to their preferences as much as we are; even if it does hurt our feelings. With that, we should ask ourselves what is the best option for us in where we stand so we won't set ourselves up to get hurt

+1

/u/LuckyLittleStar

How to tell a girl you don't do social media because it's for losers, without it coming across as a direct insult?

5 upvotes · 1 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Stop being afraid of coming across as a preachy, pretentious asshole.

"What? You hanging out with another bitch?"

5 upvotes · 13 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

TRP isn't simply about "sex, happening to you". Without you having control over it, sex isn't all that fun.

This woman sounds insanely insecure, jealous, and controlling, and you appear to be enabling that by trying to comfort her and engage with her insane expectations, instead of laughing at them.

If you reward possessive and controlling behaviour, you're going to get more of it.

If a woman accuses you of cheating on her, immediately agree that you are. If she accuses you of not caring about her, and just using her for sex, immediately say that you also want her to make you a sandwich.

The point here isn't to be a stereotypical douchebag (although that doesn't hurt), it's to refuse to play that game.

(Endgame) The Lost Boys

5 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Re-erect a tradcuck society so I can touch a pussy a couple times a week while working myself to an early death for someone else?

You know what I like about you?

You can take my full page of carefully reasoned arguments, and turn it into a single sentence that makes it super easy to understand.

Awesome.

this is just dumb

5 upvotes · 31 October 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

So, call me a sexist.

And?

Lmao they really need a reality check, these 300 pound elephants.

5 upvotes · 27 October 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Then there are plenty of other women who are pretty and DON'T have ugly attitudes, so why should we take the slightest notice?

How do you come to terms with men's' lack of mental monogamy?

5 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you feel hurt and confused by the basic nature of men, then there are several paths open to you:

1. Continue to feel hurt and confused.
2. Avoid men.
3. Come to terms with the basic nature of men.
4. Enter a relationship with a man who is able to convincingly lie about his basic nature.

Are women capable of loving men?

5 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

They say women can't truly love a man because of hypergamy

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/848>

The best post in r/Feminism. I think i dont need to explain.

5 upvotes · 24 October 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Okay, I'm a sexist.

And?

How do you girls deal with it?

5 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't want to be the hot pink man with a pretty dress on.

Understandable.

Feminism seems to have the self-contradictory goal of hating men while coveting masculinity.

I would recommend keeping some perspective. While femininity is loudly criticized by women who lack it, it is quietly appreciated by men everywhere. If you treat most modern men with a touch of simple feminine empathy, warmth, and compassion, they will think the world of you.

I would also recommend choosing who you associate with. Keep company with those who appreciate feminine virtue, not those who wish to stamp it out. You will always be exposed to a certain amount of static from film and television, but how much do you really care what Hollywood thinks, compared to what your friends think?

Lastly, remember that people's opinion of you is only as valuable as their understanding of you. The poor opinions of strangers who have never met you and have no idea what you are about... these are worthless.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

5 upvotes · 2 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Internet eyeballs are non-captive, and notoriously fickle. Digg looked like an invincible colossus until the moment the dam broke.

In summary, /u/spez is not so much an asshole as he is someone whose job and livelihood depend on pretending not to know something. If you ever wanna see someone lie, cheat, and steal, place yourself between them and the bottom of Maslow's hierarchy of needs.

The fact that he's paid not to understand is that secrets are priceless, but eyeballs are low-value. This is why Google can afford to buy a small European country, and Facebook can give Oculus billions of dollars that they are never going to see again, but reddit is desperately trying to flog shiny little icons to casual readers.

Because Google and Facebook know your secrets, and can sell them. Reddit doesn't, and can't.

At a certain point, reddit made the decision to get big before it figured out it was going to feed itself when it got there. Now, people are noticing that reddit is getting sleazier and sleazier, and wondering what the hell happened to the idealistic founders who wanted reddit to be precisely a "bastion of free speech".

Well, Swartzly died a hero, and Huffman and Ohanian lived long enough to turn into villains. "Sleazy" is just what people do when they are desperate, and the same is true of organizations such as reddit. So sleazeball moves like selling out to China, the DNC, and anyone else dumb enough to pay money for non-captive eyeballs is... well, not exactly a good move, but the only move they have.

Metaphorically, the DNC is the rich asshole who does not have the personality to actually make women like him, so he has to pay for sex, while reddit is just the heroin-addicted seventeen year old who has to sell her body because it's the only valuable thing she has.

Do you think there's little competition when it comes to dating?

5 upvotes · 26 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

"You have to be Chad" is an excuse men make because they are afraid to talk to girls.

How to respond to bullies?

5 upvotes · 7 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Bullies often have talents or strengths, but what defines them is their need. Many people are aggressive to get what they want, but a bully is aggressive in order to adjust their own emotional state.

They need you to hurt in order to feel okay themselves.

But that means they need something from you, while you need nothing from them. That places you in a position of power. To win, they need you to do something. To win, all you have to do is nothing.

This can, of course, be easier said than done, but a good first step is to know you have that power. When you're dealing with someone who is trying to make you feel bad, you are dealing with someone struggling with their own feelings of inadequacy. So it is that you have a powerful ally who lives inside their skull.

Bullies are being bullied inside their own heads.

So, what you can learn to do is play to those feelings of inadequacy. Not by trying to bully back, but by helping them bully themselves... if they need you to hurt to feel better, then the less you hurt, the worse they will feel, until eventually they seek more vulnerable targets.

If they get physical, of course, you must destroy them, but if they confine themselves to saying words, it's more effectively to laugh them off.

Sometimes, every once in a while, you can cure one, but that requires their cooperation, and frankly, some people are pretty far gone.

Overcoming shame of being a virgin

5 upvotes · 4 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

There's nothing I can say to you that would be a substitute for toughening life experiences. You have to go out and have them.

Don't wait until you feel better to act. You will never feel better unless you act first.

So fake it. Go and do something you're scared to do. And while you're doing it, pretend you're not dying inside. Just keep it off your face and do it anyway.

Most of the things you could possibly try aren't actually dangerous, and are nothing to be scared of, but me telling you that is worthless. You aren't going to believe me. You're never going to believe me until you feel it.

And you're never going to feel it until you act.

"Sacrificing" her career

5 upvotes · 31 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

people who don't submit themselves

Submissive people look to others for standards, the rest of us set our own standards.

What you're lashing out with here is everything you are afraid of being. The idea of being free, instead of a repository of other people's ideas, fills you with terror, because you think you would rot from the inside without a set of rules to keep you on the straight and narrow.

You accuse me of not lifting, because you are afraid you would stop lifting if you stopped seeking approval from others.

You accuse me of not caring about ideas, because you think you would have no ideas if you stopped filling your head with the ideas of others.

You accuse me of not caring about philosophy, because you feel incapable of generating your own personal philosophy, and so you feel a need to get your philosophy from the writing of others.

The reason I wasn't very responsive to all those attention-seeking PMs you sent me over the years wasn't personal. It was that I was always concerned about your need for attention and approval. I was hoping you would grow out of that, decide who you, personally, were... and become more centered.

When you talked about betas who wanted a "daddy" to yell at them and tell them to clean their room, I always wondered when you would realize you were doing the same thing. As the priest is to the congregation, so the bible is to the priest.

You really don't need all this stuff you've tried to set between you and responsibility for defining your own life. You think you do, but you don't. Being responsible to yourself instead of others isn't going to instantly transform you into an "unathletic dork". If you're dissatisfied with what you achieve, set different standards and do it again.

It's like you think that philosophies and religions and all of the various -isms that people find so comforting were created by special magic people who alone were wise enough to tell you how to live. Nah. They were just dudes without the necessary chutzpah to tell others who to be, and the necessary charisma to persuade them.

Ultimately, we're all responsible for ourselves, because even submissive people bear the responsibility for their choice of who to submit to.

"Sacrificing" her career

5 upvotes · 29 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Was this double negative unintentional?

Reread it a couple times, it'll make sense.

All civilization and rational thinking is in the pursuit of regulating our lizard brains aka our instincts.

Nah, it's people trying to regulate someone else's lizard brains to their personal advantage. Empires are built upon the deaths of boys who wanted applause, a few acres of rich farmland, and a pretty wife.

I'm not seeing a point here.

The point is that the only difference between us and neolithic peasants whacking at the dirt with a stick is that we know more things about the square of the hypotenuse, and that enabled us to build air conditioners. The vast majority of people are slaves to the same instincts that our plains ape ancestors had, and our great big society thing just gives them new ways to express that.

TRP seems to attract a lot of folks who think that "society" has somehow "gone wrong", and that they wouldn't need to lift, learn game, pass shit tests, develop valuable skills, etc... if the "system" weren't somehow "broken". They think of society as a machine whose job it is to help them with their lives.

It isn't. It's just the emergent result we get from a lot of people pursuing their own goals. It's the terrain that you have to learn to navigate.

Consider how TRP works. At the very beginning, I could have decided I was going to try to "fix" women, so that men could get laid and be happy. I didn't, because I knew that was futile. Women had no incentive to rearrange themselves to solve someone else's problem.

Instead, my friends and I started investigating how women worked, so that men could change their own behaviour in order to get laid. That worked.

Now there are people who want to "fix" society so it will solve their problems for them and they don't have to work so hard. But society is even less inclined to "fix" itself for your benefit than women are, because it doesn't actually have thoughts, or plans, or anything. It just emerges out of what individual people do.

There's no mind, no intelligence there that you can have a dialogue with. You might as well argue with an ant colony.

If you want better results in your life, empower yourself.

"Sacrificing" her career

5 upvotes · 29 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

You believe that problems exist because of the lack of the political will to solve them. I believe that unhappiness exists because thermodynamics is a cold heartless bitch and she doesn't like either of us.

There have been a lot of folks in history who thought that things would be just right if only everyone would act "properly". That paradise would attain if we just did the right things with what we had, and therefore all our woes can be solved by influencing the behavior of people. Kind of thing reminds me of that joke about the drunk looking for his lost car keys under a street lamp. He dropped them two blocks down, but the light is better over here.

Anyone with two wits to rub together realizes that there is such a thing as progress. We were plains apes, we learned to bang the rocks together, and now we are not.

But that progress was never political, philosophical, or ideological. It was empirical and technological. The best the political process can do is to not get in the way. There isn't a right answer, but there are lots of wrong ones.

So, yes, there is no alternative... until there is.

It isn't solidarity that empowers. It is relevant knowledge.

In this case, the relevant knowledge is "humans are hardwired to be sympathetic to female strangers, and not male strangers". When you understand that, you can stop crying about how society doesn't wuv you, and trying to punish it for being a bad daddy that won't buy you a pony. And you can start asking relevant questions like "How do I personally get people to give me shiny things even if they don't feel any sympathy for me?"

Muscle Men, Intellectuals, and the Perpetual Student

5 upvotes · 13 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Writing is something I struggle with. Everyone does, and if they don't, they suck at it.

Taking a set of ideas from your own head and figuring out how to fit it in someone else's is so very hard. Often even the brightest minds are cryptic when they don't mean to be, and so mediocre minds see this, think being cryptic makes you look bright, and so they resolve to be as cryptic as possible.

And sometimes it's hard to tell the difference.

I've learned to adopt an attitude of serenity. When I say "your needs do not end at lifting" and someone says "you must not even lift!"... I write them off as a moron and move on. Because communicating clearly is hard enough when someone wants to understand... there's no point in wasting time on those who don't make an effort.

When I write, here's what I try to keep in mind.

- A reader's attention is a gift. You have to deserve it. If he doesn't get something out your writing, you have failed.
- You're always going to fail. No piece of your writing will reach everyone. Not everyone is reachable. Concentrate on reaching someone.
- Stick to a clear idea. Everything you write must either explain it to others, or persuade others of it.
- Stick to one clear idea. Only the rarest and most brilliant minds can handle learning more than one new thing at once.
- Be prepared to fail multiple times before you figure out how to make others understand. If people always get it in vast numbers, you probably aren't telling them anything they don't already believe and understand.
- Talk about your ideas to others before you publish. You may understand your idea very well, but you don't understand very well how others are going to perceive your words. Talk, see what confuses others, see what helps them get it. Then write.

Would it be okay to get a girlfriend a gift once in a while out of the blue ?

5 upvotes · 1 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Nah, I just have two LTRs and the occasional plate.

Mia Khalifa Wants Her Videos Removed

5 upvotes · 29 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I recommend avoiding women who want to be considered adults, and to be able to make adult choices, but also want to avoid responsibility for the consequences of those choices.

A good litmus test for these women (assuming you are considering her as something other than a fucktoy, in which case you don't care) is to see what she says about cases like this.

In reality, all of everyone's visible behaviour is judged, unceasingly, by everyone else. You cannot prevent them from doing so without mind control powers.

Just a random redditor trying to denounce the severity of MGM

5 upvotes · 5 June 2020 · /r/MensRights

Apparently, some people think that removing someone's skin without anesthesia isn't "barbaric".

A Man's Worst Enemy

5 upvotes · 10 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

For those who would like less motivational fluff and more analysis, try this.

How would a RP decline sex from a woman?

5 upvotes · 8 May 2020 · /r/askTRP

"Nah."

Brother tried to kill himself today

5 upvotes · 30 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

The single hardest lesson I've learned from helping to found TRP, and from running it for years, is that you cannot help anyone without their active cooperation.

There is nothing I can say to help a man, for example, who can't get laid but thinks my teachings are poison. He's not going to listen, and if I somehow could persuade him to, he would feel he was doing me a favour by listening, instead of me doing him a favour by advising.

There are enough men who come to me asking for my help, and helping them is hard enough, to occupy all the time I care to devote to this project.

The same is true of your brother. You can't help him without his permission. The fact that he's your brother doesn't magically change that, because it's not causing him to give you that permission.

Of course you're going to try. I can't talk you out of that. But when you inevitably fail, and you will, try to remember this conversation.

It's not your fault.

You had no power to stop this.

Your options were all dead ends.

Narcissistic Personality Disorder Tells

5 upvotes · 30 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not going to be polite to you if you come into my house and shit on the floor.

I created TRP with the intention that it would be helpful to people, but being a source of good information they could base their actions on. When you come in here and post nonsense based on wishful thinking, it interferes with that mission.

TRP does not follow the social rules of 21st century semi-bolshevik snowflake America, where every stupid thing that comes out of someone's mouth has to be treated with "respect" because their opinion "matters".

Not only do you have no evidence whatsoever that dogs can smell human emotion, you have no evidence that human emotion even causes us to emit anything that could theoretically be smelled by anything at all.

Lemme tell ya a story. From the ages of about 22 to 40, I owned a cat named Taliesin (Tal-LIE-ess-in). Here he is making the face that posts like yours cause me to make.

Every time a girl came to our home, if he let her pet him, she would probably end up sleeping with me. If he sat in her lap, it was definite. His track record was 100%. If he liked her, I did. If he didn't like her, neither did I.

Did I then assume that my cat had magic powers to assess female character?

Of course not. The only thing it means is that Whisper likes shy, introverted, nerdy girls who are good with cats better than more typical archetypes of beauty. (And, yes, I've been subjected to a lot of spergy rants about Japanese cartoons, video games, or Terry fucking Pratchett. It's just the price I pay for liking what I like.)

It has nothing to do with the damn cat, and everything to do with my taste in women. I'm an introvert, and, surprise, surprise, so was the animal I got along with.

TRP is not a place to jump to conclusions because you like the conclusions. You like dogs. I get it. But that doesn't mean they have magic powers.

Why do betas do this?

5 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Well trained women mate guard themselves. If she's doing that, don't intervene unless someone tries to strongarm her. If she isn't, you need better control game.

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

5 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

How about we compromise on two trannys?

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

5 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

No worries.

But the problem with internet sarcasm is that can't create a parody so silly that some dumbass out there doesn't actually believe it.

You wouldn't believe some of the PMs I get.

Crafting the perfect marriage

5 upvotes · 25 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

That's cool, I'm not going to tell you how to run your life.

But do be aware of what's possible. I live with my two girlfriends. And while the pandemic has put a temporary stop to me sampling life's infinite variety outside of that, they don't fuss under normal circumstances when I do.

Male jealousy is hardwired in, but female jealousy is cultural, and can be trained out.

I'm successful/get laid lots by being nice. I'm literally just kind to girls, honest and straightforward. Then I bang, and move on. Is this allowed? What am I missing out on with this approach?

5 upvotes · 24 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

my understanding isn't advanced and I didn't claim it was True. You only repeated an idea, mostly by implication, that I've been batting back across the net for six fucking years: "Why can't you be nicer? Why can't you just lay out your how-to knowledge without all the misogyny?"

It's not a bizarre question, when it comes from a place of unfamiliarity. Still, it gets tiresome to deal with over and over again.

So, once again, here it is. I teach young men who come here to be angry. I remind them that bitches ain't shit. Yet the bitches over at RPW love me. And my personal bitches read every word I write here, and they love me, too.

So what the fuck, right?

Female-bashing is the secret sauce that makes this place work. I tell you this not based on some theory I dreamed up which seems to make sense to me, but based on my experience coaching literally thousands of men and seeing them go from incel to Lothario. If I don't induce or at least stoke the anger phase, it doesn't work.

Several times, sensitive souls have tried to make "TRP without all the misogyny" and failed miserably to produce any results at all.

So... why?

Well, let's start by taking a step back and looking at what we are talking about. If I asked you why humans have the capacity to be angry, what would you say? What do you think anger evolved for?

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

5 upvotes · 10 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Okay, I see. You're not reading. You're only skimming looking for things to refute.

Otherwise you could never have gotten

Next you make the horrendous logic leap of calling me racist for mentioning America's demographic decline. Guess that makes China Russia and Iran all racist. Das Racist!

... from an explicit refusal to use, and denunciation of, that particular memetic weapon.

That's why none of your points are germane. Because you have no idea who is it you're talking to, and you never have. You can't sit still, be calm, or ask questions for long enough to figure out what I believe, or who I am.

So I'm going to forget the semantics and the rhetoric, and break down the power structure of this interaction for you.

- You want me to do something, and believe something.
- I am not particularly inclined to do it.
- I don't need or desire any particular behaviour from you.

Therefore, for you to get what you want, you need my active cooperation.

But for me to get what I want, all I have to do is... nothing.

So, what does one do in a situation like that? Well, postmodern discourse doesn't work. That's why you're getting nowhere. Modern discourse is better, but still not very effective or relevant. The tools to apply are persuasion and incentivization.

To wit, if you want something from someone, you talk them into agreeing with you, or you bribe them.

Persuasion requires the ability to speak in the language, and to the priorities, of the target, not the expectation that the target will simply adapt himself to how the speaker wishes to speak.

Why am I telling you this?

Because I can see your frustration radiating in waves from my computer screen. You've gone through this same sort of argument with pretty much every single active EC in the past six months or thereabouts, and you have seldom to never gotten satisfaction.

There's something you want, but others won't go along with you, and every interaction turns into an argument where you tell them how stupid and shortsighted they are.

Your standard speaking style works great with betas when you are telling them to lift, because betas love to be berated. They want a daddy to tell them what their values are. Expose them to their own insecurities, project an image of strong character, and they will adopt you as a surrogate father, and do what you say in an effort to gain your approval. Works great. I do it myself, when I see I am dealing with betas.

But those with their own fully realized set of values, who know who they are, have their own fire of imagination and initiative, who don't need your proffered distant-but-attainable approval... they just look at all this and go...

"Meh."

... and you end up with no allies other than beta approval-seekers.

Somewhere in this, your latest obsession (they tend to last about six to eighteen months, I've noticed) there might be something useful, or at least entertaining, but you just don't have any idea how to fit it into anyone else's head, because to a man who has only a hammer, every problem looks like a nail.

You've periodically expressed puzzlement as to what I'm on about. What is my "problem with books", etc, etc.

That's the problem you're running up against here. If you can't understand other people, if you can't figure them out, or ask them questions and sit still for the answers, you will never have any idea of how to persuade them of anything.

And hence you will have no allies, only sycophants and foes.

Is cohabitation bad in ALL situations?

5 upvotes · 7 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Nah.

Complimented a girl and she blocked me.

5 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

what did I do wrong?

You continued to think about her after she blocked you.

Do you let your plates have other guys?

5 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's very simple. Don't act butthurt or jealous, but make sure they understand that if they fuck another dude, it's over.

How to do that? Well, treat any intimacy with another dude as her breaking it off. Tell her farewell, tell her it was fun while it lasted, tell her you wish her all the best. Do your absolute best to present the appearance that you mean it... NO sly little backhanded remarks.

If she expresses surprise that you're breaking it off, act confused. No, she is the one who broke it off. By kissing that guy the other night, or giving him her number, or whatever.

If she tells you it's not "fair", because you fuck other women, just shrug and say okay, then you're not a fair guy.

Remember, women look to others to see what is normal, acceptable behaviour. You must act entitled, not "fair".

Anger phase not ending with ex

5 upvotes · 25 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Threatening suicide is considered a form of abuse. Of course, no one would give a shit, because you have man parts, but rest assured this girl is 100% trash.

People who are in suicidal despair don't threaten to kill themselves. They fucking do it. If a bitch threatens to kill herself, she is 100% trying to control you with guilt and shame.

The only way a man can navigate modern society with his mental and physical health intact is to be utterly immune to appeals to guilt, honour, or shame.

Did I lose frame by saying this?

5 upvotes · 25 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

So you already know what's wrong and what you need to do.

So what the fuck are you doing here jawing?

Just realized something.

5 upvotes · 15 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Walking was awkward when you first learned to do it.

How to deal with a girl who says "are you always this quiet ? "

5 upvotes · 9 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Just nod.

Women approach Chad; for him they don't need to be seduced

5 upvotes · 26 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Highly attractive men don't do a lot of work to seduce any one particular girl. We do a lot of work to become, and remain, highly attractive men.

A much older yet influential critique of TRP on a different sub. Thoughts?

5 upvotes · 25 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

As far as I understand TRP,

You don't.

How often do you think about how your physical appearance helped you?

5 upvotes · 18 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

The red pill isn't for magically getting perfect results no matter who you are.

It's for enabling you to make the best play you can with the cards you are dealt.

Do you think it's better to be a pleasant, sweet, and nice woman who's 6'7 and disfigured, or a naggy shrew who's 6'7 and disfigured?

33 year old former feminist. Am I screwed?

5 upvotes · 6 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I cheated on my then-boyfriend because he was submissive in the bedroom and refused to perform the sexual acts I was curious about. Worst, he was whining day in and out about me earning more than him yet did not bother to do anything to change his situation. I had to CONSTANTLY reassure him and make plans for him

Common pattern. Submissive woman with man who refuses to take the lead. The best move in this situation is, of course, to leave the relationship... but submissive women have an exaggerated sense of duty.

Then I discovered this forum which teaches women on how to be more submissive. Naturally, I was inclined to pay attention to and believe the general opinion of the group here.

Unfortunately, that's not really how this works. If this were a university, most of the women would be incoming freshmen students.

And there's a difference between male and female group dynamics. Contrary to popular belief, men are not "hierarchical"... but they do not believe in a mythical beast called "equality". When a man shows up somewhere looking for advice, guidance, or education, he sees himself as a novice or a newbie. He doesn't think his opinions are informed enough to be useful to others, so most of what he says will be questions, efforts to educate himself. And if he does try to give advice, other men will tell him, "shut the fuck up, rookie"... and he will.

Girls aren't like this. They approach a group with the idea that everyone is equal, and everyone's opinion, informed or not, matters. A girl who showed up one day looking for advice on how to get her boyfriend to propose will turn around and give advice to another girl with the very same question, not five minutes later, and see no irony in this whatsoever. A woman thinks her opinion is unique and valuable just because it's hers. And if she is told to "shut the fuck up, rookie", or even "You're not experienced enough to give counsel, dear", she will often rage or cry, because others are "being mean" to her.

Which brings us to you, tripping in here radiating submissiveness so strongly that you might as well be wearing a sign saying "please spank me".

Now, that's great for you in general, because it's exactly the sort of thing men want, and by "men", I mean "exactly the sort of man you want". But in here, it's getting you in trouble. Because when some little bird who got here yesterday chirps up with her opinion (oh, so important just because it's hers), you don't realize that she is nineteen years old and educated by Disney. You assume she is Mrs. Authority Figure.

Like the Red Queen running to stand still, I spend most of my time here trying to dispel the bad ideas that women brought with them when they showed up. Examples:

- "Confidence is sexy"
- "Men love to chase"
- "If I have sex with him too soon, too easily, or too enthusiastically, he will think I am a slut"
- "Men who have had lots of sexual partners are not ready for commitment"
- "High value men will always { want children | love Jesus | be monogamous | wear a tie to work | tie a duck to his right ankle }"

... you get the idea.

That aside, the consensus is women my age should cast a wide net.

Is that quacking I hear?

Bad idea. The way to save time is discard unsuitable men as fast as possible, ideally before you ever get naked with him.

Here's your checklist so far:

- Shows any sign of wanting, liking, or even tolerating children... Bye.
- Doesn't immediately show signs of taking the helm and leading... Vapour trail.
- Make a subtle joke about what you call "the sexual acts I was curious about" (yes, I know exactly what they are). No positive, but socially graceful, reaction? Exit /u/minvegS, stage left.

What you need to do is add to this list (I'm sure you have more preferences than "childfree, dominant, and kinky"), then you can work on "where are men like that likely to be?"

33 year old former feminist. Am I screwed?

5 upvotes · 5 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I need an attachment that lets me reach through the screen and slap you.

Why do you do this to yourself?

You spend the first few paragraphs trying to show me how high-value and able to compete with twentysomethings you are, and you are articulate and clearly at least somewhat intelligent.

And then you write stupid crap like this:

However, we often hear that high value men eventually want kids.

...

posters here generally say they are bad to get involved with.

It's frustrating trying to teach intelligent, thoughtful women who channel their submissive tendencies, not into their relationships, but into listening to whatever stupid shit other women say. Has it seriously not occurred to you that a computer, however powerful and sophisticated, cannot reach any conclusion that is more accurate than the raw data you give it to analyze, or more sophisticated than the person who programmed it?

When you listen to dumb people, you become effectively as dumb as they are.

"High value men eventually want kids"

Did you ever think to question this? Did you ever say to yourself, wait, is that really true? And what does "high value" mean, anyway?

Well, when women are talking, "high value" means "what I value highly". Given how self-centered most of them are, how could it be otherwise? They say that high value men want kids... because they want kids. And to them, any man who won't give them children isn't "high value".

Can you see it, now? You have been taking mate selection advice from women who have completely different goals than you. They may not be smart enough to realize that different people want different things, but you don't have to follow suit. Yes, women, including you, are submissive, and tend to listen to, believe, and obey what you are told, but that does not mean that you cannot exercise a little care in choosing who to submit to. A random collection of other women's "folk wisdom" is not a good choice, because they don't know much of anything, and they have no skin in the game. They are just watching your life. You are the one who has to live it.

Before you can find a high value man, you must have some understanding of what high value means to you. This is not so much a process of decision as a process of discovery. You already have preferences and desires, you simply need to understand what they are. This doesn't mean sitting in your bedroom with a blank notepad, cogitating about male ideals. What it means is understanding the choices you made in the past, and what appealed to you about them. For example, the man you cheated with is an excellent example of the sort of man you like, because he was attractive enough to you to get you to cheat. If you understand you liked about him, then you know more about at least one of the sorts of things you are looking for.

One important thing you know is that you don't want children. Since this is the case, why in the hell would you consider men who already have them? That's just dumb. Already you are compromising what you want for what you think you can have or what think is available.

And why are you dating men in their mid twenties? Again, with the silliness. A man in his mid twenties not only can lie about whether he wants children, but doesn't even know whether he is lying or not. A man in his twenties who says he doesn't want children might, might not, might not even know. An attractive man who is older than, say, 35 or so, and financially stable, who says he doesn't want children, is telling the truth... because if he wanted any, he would already have some.

The marriage shit test

5 upvotes · 3 January 2020 · /r/askTRP

She's not submissive.

Is there hope for me?

5 upvotes · 27 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

There have been a lot of false starts, mostly with men who have been interested but only in one thing.

The only common factor in all of your bad relationships is you.

If you have a problem with men's sex drive, and think that wanting your body means they don't appreciate you, then of course you are never going to feel loved.

female dating advice is repackaged redpill?

5 upvotes · 25 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

Do you not believe there are at least a million ghetto trash women in the world?

Is it normal to hate to live with a woman 24/24 in the same apartment ?

5 upvotes · 14 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

You are an introvert. You want your alone time.

I am an introvert and I live with my two LTRs, one introvert, one extrovert. We all have separate rooms so I can sleep alone. This can be made to work just fine.

If RP Became Mainstream, How Would It Affect Female Dating Practices?

5 upvotes · 14 November 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's irrelevant.

What relevant is whether it's true or not:

It's been clarified and established heavily that

False.

men only care about sex,

False.

and will lie, cheat, steal, neg and dread you to get it.

True.

Anyone else feel like you can't start a family because your's was bad?

5 upvotes · 20 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The resenting children part is evil.

No.

No, no, no, no.

Do NOT fall for that leftwing, postmodernist, millennial bullshit idea that morality is measured by attitudes, feelings, and beliefs. Morals are standards for what you do. How you act. Not what you say or think or feel.

It doesn't matter in the least if you resent children. What matters is how you treat them. If you cannot bear to be nice to them, avoid them altogether.

Why must females be this way?

5 upvotes · 18 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you want me to look at you above the neck, show me evidence that something interesting is happening up there.

why date if I can just have an arranged marriage?

5 upvotes · 7 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Arranged marriages generally work well under the following conditions:

1. The duties of a husband, and those of a wife, are clearly defined within the culture.
2. Those duties are defined with a good understanding of male and female mating instincts, in such a way that each will appeal to the opposite sex.
3. Those responsible for arranging marriages have both the motivation and the competence to prioritize building a strong relationship over other goals upon which a spouse might be selected.

What should men's strategy be with women, once they are fully red pillled and aware of female sexual strategy?

5 upvotes · 2 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Whatever they want.

"Should" just means "I want". Everyone must choose their own goals. TRP just tells people who happen to have certain goals how to achieve them.

Thoughts on r/theredpill closing?

5 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

As a platform it still has no obligation to uphold free speech.

Who said anything about obligation? Who said "I demand that a rifle bearing mob (state-sponsored or not) descend on reddit and seize the servers?"

I have, for example, no obligation to refrain from calling your mother a whore. But if I did so, you might object that it was quite unfair, seeing as I (presumably) never met the woman, and have no idea what she does or doesn't do for money.

If I responded by saying that I owned the sign I wrote it on, and therefore could write anything I wanted on it, this would be a complete non-sequitur, because it would in no way contradict anything you had just said.

Why do women love psychopaths?

5 upvotes · 28 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Source, psychology major

<https://i.kym-cdn.com/entries/icons/original/000/007/508/neildegrasse.jpg>

Seeing a girl who said I Love You. Will saying it back make her run away?

5 upvotes · 29 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

The abstract goal of TRP is to make you respect yourself... Not turn you into a sperg.

Of course it's not off limits to say things like that. Just be sparing with validation, and make her earn it first.

Waiting Until Marriage

5 upvotes · 22 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/918>

Are there any RPW rules which you don't "follow" or cannot accept for you?

5 upvotes · 30 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Wait, not living together prior to marriage is a rule?

Nope.

Anyone notice most that most Chad's/alphas tend to be very positive people rather than dark triad?

5 upvotes · 30 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Whatever gave you the impression that positive and dark triad are opposites?

The Wrong Girl

5 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Then why did you choose to raise meta issues in the place with all the air horns?

You know perfectly well where and how we talk about things like this. You call this "public debate", but it's postmodern discourse and it generates more heat than light. And if you don't already realize that, then I am disappointed in you.

I've always tried to provide air cover for you, but you are making that an increasingly difficult and embarrassing position to be in. You want someone silenced utterly, and you complain that your demands for this are being removed selectively. You were given special tools to provide you access to my ears and those of the mods I appointed. A special report button. A special discussion channel.

And when you spoke in the latter, you got most of what you wanted, because people, especially me, saw things the same way. But not 100%. Because you couldn't convince the rest of us of that last little bit. And now you're trying to argue it here, as if a change of venue would make your arguments more convincing. It doesn't.

You were heard. I heard you. I'm still listening (in the proper place) if you wanna talk more. But I don't have to give you your way unless you can convince me.

Women don't want commitment from you. They only want everything that comes with it. The only thing women are committed and loyal to is the game.

5 upvotes · 26 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Aww, the anger phase is so cute.

Remember how angry you were when you couldn't figure out how to inspire loyalty in women?

Group Therapy is an open space to help everyone

5 upvotes · 26 July 2019 · /r/MensRights

What makes you think the therapist wasn't part of that?

Chad, Dylan, and the Myth of "the Bad Man"

5 upvotes · 25 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's a reason why TRP and RPW are morality-free zones... not to shield subjects from moral judgments, but to shield readers from becoming sidetracked into moral analysis.

When we judge others as bad or good, we lose the opportunity to think about what we can do to deal with them as they are, because now we have become distracted by idle fantasies about what we want them to do differently.

"Should" is just a one-word synonym for "I want".

That is why I never say sluts are "bad" or not. Doesn't matter if they are bad. They are simply bad for men who want relationships.

And Dylan is bad for marriage-minded women who want to keep their sexual histories relatively unmarked for the sake of their future husbands. In fact, he's worse for them than Chad, because Chad will commit to a woman with enough game. Dylan largely won't.

Female manager at my job is EXTREMELY fucking anal.. how to deal with it?

5 upvotes · 19 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't be a dumbass. The solution is staring you in the face.

Quit drinking, quit smoking. That's $5200 dollars a year right there.

Then you think you can't find ways to trim thirty dollars out of your weekly budget? Of course you can. Buy one of these. Cook every meal you eat. Get your clothes from the goodwill store.

If you want something, you do what's necessary to go get it.

How and When to Pick between 2 Guys

5 upvotes · 16 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

If the answer isn't immediately clear, it's "neither".

[23/F] I think my boyfriend (19/m) might be cheating, but am i just jumping to conclusions?

5 upvotes · 9 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is probably what he needs to be doing.

It's clear that you don't like him very much, and are only with him to be with someone. That's not good for you or him. Many of the other commenters (who are not nearly experienced enough to be giving advice, that's why you're seeing a lot of removed comments) are focusing on whether or not he is an icky person, or whether he is having sex with your mother.

These things don't matter.

What matters is that you had sex with someone you weren't head over heels in love with. Don't do that.

Your goal is to get to a permanent relationship that you love, with as little sexual history outside that relationship as possible. That's why I teach that the answer to "Would you like to have sex?" needs to be either "Hell, yes... PLEASE!" or "No."

If a man doesn't drive you wild to the point where you can't say no to him, and you feel lucky to have the opportunity to say yes, then don't have sex with him. Period. Like, ever.

How do you manage to work 5 days a week

5 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

By having a job that doesn't suck.

LTR shit-testing me about doing chores "Do xyz for me, slave"

5 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

The question is not what to say in response, but why you would ever LTR someone who would say such a thing in the first place.

How to best deal with a feminist (future) mother-in-law

5 upvotes · 16 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The fear of looking mean or nasty is often an impediment for women, just as the fear of looking weak is often an impediment for men. But the primary goal here is to get what one wants, not worry obsessively about one's self-image.

When a nineteen year old girl is being patronized by a hostile older woman, a touch of sternness is precisely what is warranted. It may indeed offend. It will also, in the long run, get results and respect. Making nice will NOT work.

Am I correct in assuming in order to fuck you never bring it up, it's simply taking her from place to place?

5 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Escalate into a sexual frame.

Mentioning sex out of the blue is generally bad, getting her talking about it is generally good.

Start with humorous innuendo. Synchronize with your other escalations. Get her talking and thinking about sex in general as a gateway to the idea of sex with you specifically.

How long should I wait to give it LTR status?

5 upvotes · 24 May 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I just came out of a Phase where I needed lots of Casual Sex.

Congratulations, you are now the Casual Sex Girl.

Men are not slot machines where you pull the Sex Handle until you win the Commitment Jackpot.

for those of you with a GF/LTR. how did yall get tell your other plates you were about to be committed?

5 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why would I do that?

It's not a plate's business who else I fuck.

Amusedly Agree And Absurdly Amplify vs Self Deprecation

5 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Both of them will probably read this at some point... they know exactly who "Whisper" is, and usually read my stuff.

I don't hide things from them. I think it would be a combination of cowardice and bad game to do so; cowardice because hiding relevant information is always fear of what someone will think, say, or do; bad game because if you can't get women to desire you as you are, then improve yourself until you can.

Red Pill tactics aren't deception, they aren't a way of "tricking" women into bed with you.

You have to fake it a little bit, put your best foot forward, at first, yes, but the thing is: It doesn't matter who we are inside... others experience us through our actions, and thus it is our actions that define us.

We do not act rightly because we have excellence and virtue; instead, we have excellence and virtue because we have habitually acted rightly. We become what we repeatedly do, in the process of pretending we are the person we would like to be.

Faking it, if done with action, rather than words, is transformative... we become what we pretend to be.

Let's talk about mean girls.

5 upvotes · 21 May 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I never understood the difference in men's interaction with other men when compared to women's interaction with other women until I started lurking on the RP. The comments I would read that men said to each other horrified me. Then it dawned on me that no one seemed to take offense. I finally figured out that the most abusive comments were not as detrimental as some of the veiled attempts to help on the RPW.

You've started to understand men in new ways.

Harshness is a part of how we deal with each other. It's normal. It's how we train each other to be tough, which can be difficult to understand, because we have to be, and you don't.

I was around at the time of the original mod team and I will agree that the attitude of this sub has become much more receptive to the varied lifestyles of the women who read here.

Yes, that was a problem. Worse yet was the advice given for the purpose of making the speaker look virtuous, rather than improving the lot of the listener. "Fuck you, I met my husband in 1963, when men would marry a woman they hadn't slept with, and you're just a slut" is not helpful, it's just chest-thumping macho.

The time for harshness in RPW is to make another woman realize she screwed up... not when she already knows that and is asking for help. If Missy has ridden the Penis Train for ten years, or on the flip side, has remained for ten years with a man she couldn't respect or love, then of course I'm going to be full of bad news... but why shouldn't people try to make themselves and their lives better, even if damage has been done?

We don't get another chance at life. We can't sit this hand out and wait for another deal.

Went out last night...couldn't approach a single chick.

5 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't expect to succeed. Don't need to succeed. Failure is what you get in practice before you get success.

Just exchange a few words. The rest can come later. You're going to be afraid. Do it anyway. If you wait to not be afraid, you will be afraid your whole life, because the fear never goes away until you learn and realize that you can actually do this.

“Oooo dominant, I love it” Good thing?

5 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Say something useful or shut up.

Is this narcissism?

5 upvotes · 8 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Who gives a shit what you call it?

Does it work for you?

Doing it right? Possessiveness?

5 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Most of what it takes is being willing to demand that much obedience, coupled with the ability to keep them in your frame and really wanting wanting to please you.

Keep in mind that FunSize has been with me for years... this kind of training takes time. I'm still working with FanGirl on the basics; she is sweet and eager to please, but new girls take time to learn properly, and to trust you all the way so they can submit absolutely.

But, as I said, most men are held back by lack of understanding of women, which makes them afraid to be that controlling. They need to read Fifty Shades of Grey, and perhaps some romance novels, and understand that women touch themselves to this stuff. Women do not value freedom or dignity for itself... they want to be slaves. However, they want to be safe, valued, and happy slaves, so simply a demand, from some random asshole, that they fall to their knees... doesn't work. One has to build that trust and enthusiasm over time with correct action.

Low frustration tolerance when feeling annoyed

5 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is almost nothing so unattractive to a girl as a man who can't control his own stress levels.

Think about it this way. Compared to them, we are as strong, fast, and deadly as wild animals. We can easily kill them with our bare hands and there isn't a thing they can do about it without a firearm or equivalent force multiplier.

So, do you think our ability to control our own behaviour might just be a tiny bit important to them?

A man who becomes overwhelmed by stress and cries, whines, or needs comfort is a weak man... he cannot protect her from other men, and she will quickly become attracted to a stronger man who can.

A man who becomes overwhelmed by stress and rages is more sexy, but he is also dangerous to her, and her level of attraction will be limited by her tolerance for fear.

Any kind of compulsive behaviour under external stressors betrays some degree of lack of confidence... because no one is overwhelmed when he believes "I can handle this". The long-term solution to being stress prone is to seek self-improvement, survive challenges, accomplish awesome shit, and learn to believe in yourself through sheer force of evidence.

In the shorter term, there are some habits of thought that can serve the same purpose to some degree. Worried about something? Instead of focusing on your emotional state, think about plans to solve the problem... how will you confront this challenge with the resources you have. Effective people focus on the solution, rather than the problem or how they feel about it.

AWALT or AWACapableOfThat?

5 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

All women contain the potential for all characteristic female behaviours. Which they express with you depends on you.

Doing it right? Possessiveness?

5 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You weren't sexy because you were possessive, you were sexy because you were dominant, and unrattled.

Mate guard or don't, that's circumstantial. Sometimes one is attractive, sometimes the other.

My beliefs are stopping me

5 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

I want to find an unicorn and settle with her

There are no unicorns, stupid. Ideal girls are trained, not found.

I want a 100% traditional woman with deep family values who is highly intellectual being a business woman .
I want her to be at top business position as me .

You have no idea what you want. None of this shit is important to you.

Because none of these things are something she does. What do you want her to do?

What do you speak about with your plates?

5 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you're spending significant social time with them outside the seduction process, they are FWBs, not plates. _____

Article: Where Are the Socially Conservative Women in This Fight?

5 upvotes · 29 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

What fight? There's no fight.

Instead, there is only one simple and bitter red pill:

This war was fought and lost before you were out of diapers, and any reversal will not come until you are too old and grey to be affected by it. You will live the rest of your life in Upside Down Clown World.

The red pill network is here to help you learn to survive that. Do not expect rescue by timely and positive societal change. You have to take care of yourself.

Contemplating breaking up with LTR

5 upvotes · 24 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Keffir has cut through all the verbiage here to get to the heart of the matter. Your attention is a reward, not medicine. A healthy girl wants a playmate, not a therapist.

This much neediness on the part of a submissive girl bespeaks not so much a broken person, necessarily, as something wrong with the dynamic. You are supposed to lead, but she is leading from below.

Instead of indulging her, you need to step up your dom game and train her. Read this and this and this.

If she really is that submissive, she may be retrainable, but you need to specify and enforce expected behaviour, not simply respond to what she is doing.

California woman fired after targeting man wearing MAGA hat

5 upvotes · 14 April 2019 · /r/PussyPassDenied

MAGA hats are a litmus test for hateful people.

Aren't a lot of the guys here just as bad as the thots they don't like?

5 upvotes · 7 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Bad?

Who said thots were bad?

How to get over LTR quicker?

5 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

There's no "on a break". If she wants a break, give her the rest of her life. Then go live yours.

How do I start loving myself?

5 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

First of all, you spit out this blue pill crap about "loving yourself", and buying love with shows of affection (works for women, won't work for you), and you go accomplish something.

Don't love yourself.

Be proud of yourself.

Why is Jordan Peterson looked down by TRPs?

5 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Tradcons do not give a shit about your welfare, your quality of life, or your very existence. They are just fighting with feminists over who gets to hold your leash.

Women need to do stuff which GIVES them energy and men need to do stuff which RELEASES energy - Agree?

5 upvotes · 2 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

the drive to excel is largely subconscious

This in no way contradicts what I have to say here. Men not only know they must excel, they also are descended from a long line of men who did excel, and the latter is probably the more important factor.

This is why men's drive for excellence is being channeled into virtual worlds, their drives anesthetized with fictions of adventures they will never be allowed to have. Because when it's instinctive, it must find an outlet, and the midbrain is easier to fool than the fore-.

A recent article on TRP pointed out that barely any women even have hobbies, and those who do, often acquired them from a man they are or were involved with.

This is yet another example of how pretty much everything TRP ever concluded can be derived from that 87%/34% disparity. Men are ambitious because they must be, and they are instinctively ambitious because they descended from men who successfully were. Women are lotus eaters because they can be.

Why is this so prevalent in humans alone? Why is the disparity between the sexes so much less in almost every other species? WHY the 87%/34%?

Because humans are so very smart, and this has a tremendous biological cost. You have to start building that giant brain early, which means you have to deliver something with a giant head... and you have to deliver it prematurely, because if you left a human in the womb for the ideal amount of time, you couldn't get it out.

Newborn horses can walk in a few hours. Newborn humans can't support their own heads.

Every aspect of the structure of a woman's body, and her instinctive behaviour, has been "designed" around the strain of having genius babies. Tremendous biological sacrifices have been made to make this possible. And it flows over into men, as well... because they now have to be adapted to do the things women can't or won't, because of the babies.

Humans are a race which has been twisted by hyperspecialization. It's been a successful experiment, we rule the fucking planet, but sometimes we fail to recognize and account for the cost.

"Are you fucking anyone else?"

5 upvotes · 1 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Today?

Lie about rape . . . GET 10 YEARS

5 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/PussyPassDenied

If she were smaller, her story would be more believable.

Can't play pool with a rope for a cue.

So she finally cheated [LTR]

5 upvotes · 27 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

I feel like shit

You will. Just don't show it.

Act indifferent, go no contact, immediately get yourself out there again. Next time, don't be monogamous.

Submissive behaviour

5 upvotes · 13 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Bossiness is a matter of what your tone is rather than what your "ask" is. Men hate being given "orders" by anyone they haven't voluntarily accepted as their leader. Women tend to struggle to understand this, because allowing oneself to be dominated isn't a shameful act of weakness in female social culture.

With men, it is all about respect, territory, and dignity. It's not what you want, it's how you address him. Treat a man with respect, and most of them will sacrifice quite a lot for you. Try to command or demand the smallest favour, however, and you are in effect challenging him to a fight.

I can't observe you in action, of course, but every woman I have ever met who uses the terminology you do ("I know what I want"... "intimidate men"... "not afraid to"...) has the same problem: Small Dog Syndrome.

Small dogs often think they are dominant because no one disciplines them when they growl or bark at people.

People don't find it threatening, because the dog is tiny, and it's either cute, or there's a social stigma attached to smacking the small dog with a rolled-up newspaper, etc... so they don't put a stop to the behaviour. The small dog doesn't, however, know that it's small dog. So it thinks it's a badass that can growl at anyone and get away with it.

The result is one of these obnoxious little rat-dogs that won't stop yapping at people and trying to bite their ankles. Because it weighs three pounds, it gets away with shit that it would never be allowed to do if people took it seriously.

So, I'd take a long hard look in the mirror and ask yourself if this is you. Is your tough grrrrl persona just plain annoying? Are you speaking to men in a manner that would get you punched in the mouth or told to fuck off if you were male?

Is there a female equivalent of TRP?

5 upvotes · 4 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

It's difficult to get women to actually do work. TRP has a lot of students studying "Advanced Flying Lotus Wall Running Chi Technique", and RPW is mostly stuck at "Kung Fu 101A: How Hold Fighting Stick".

It's better than nothing, but mostly, women are red pillled by their men.

Why do we feel jealousy if it's not evolutionarily beneficial according to TRP?

5 upvotes · 1 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

What about jealousy? The TRP response is that this makes you unattractive and you should not appear jealous.

And you will believe all sorts of retarded shit if you spend the lecture listening to the freshmen in the back row instead of the professor.

Jealousy and mate guarding are neither attractive nor unattractive, neither alpha nor beta.

Fear and anxiety are beta, dominance and control are alpha. Think deeply on this, and you will understand when and how to be jealous and mate guard, and when not.

Hint: stop thinking "Is this thing I do bad or good?". Start thinking "What message am I sending when I do this thing this way?"

Girl says she's seeing someone

5 upvotes · 27 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

No girl who is committed the person she's with is going to flirt with other men or visit them socially one on one.

This is a beta barricade, designed to scare off low-confidence men.

RPW does not mean we are playthings for men.

5 upvotes · 24 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

So manipulating men is ok? So you think most men find that an attractive quality in a women? Do you think most men would trust a woman that manipulates them?

Understand that "manipulate" is a snarl word. It implies that not only that you are influencing someone, but that you are influencing them to their detriment. Influencing men (or "manipulating" them) is only as bad or good as the outcome.

Do you wear makeup? Well, you must know that this is, in a certain sense, "lying". You are fooling my instincts into thinking you are younger, healthier, and more sexually aroused than you actually are.

But do I like makeup? Of course I do. The part of me that is being fooled is not something I experience as my conscious mind, and the effect of fooling it is pleasurable to me... I like the way you look when you subtly enhance.

I know you are "manipulating" my instincts. But since I enjoy the effects, I do not resent it, or act to stop it.

The use of femininity to influence men's instincts, attitudes, or feelings towards you is not abusive unless you make it so.

Discussing dress sense with Ltr in general for relationships

5 upvotes · 22 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Men who tell a woman not to dress so revealingly are show insecure mate guarding. Men who tell women that Daddy likes this dress better than that one...

I'm having some sort of existential crisis regarding women. Last LTR crossed the line, and just had a married chick I know that just had a baby tell me she wants me to fuck her while her husband is gone. Need to get some shit off my chest.

5 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I also however want you to consider this. Do you get angry at gravity for not being able to flap your wings and fly? Do you get mad when you try to talk to trees and they don't answer? Are you frustrated that time is linear and that you're living today, not yesterday?

+1

/u/EpicLevelCheater /u/Halitenina

RPW does not mean we are playthings for men.

5 upvotes · 20 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm not going to pass judgement on any conversation I'm not privy to the contents of.

Would you say that it's reasonable to expect RPW to afford submission to men they don't even know?

It's important to think about what we mean by "submission" and "submissive".

There's a scale from "speaking to men in a humble, feminine, deferential manner" to "slavish obedience to every command". The former is simply the most gentle and most effective way to "manipulate" men into liking you and being nice to you. The latter is obvious not something you're going to do for anyone but your trusted mate.

In other words:

Do: use slightly submissive attitudes and mannerisms to get men to like you and give you what you want.

Don't: obey just any dude.

'Lady' by Roosh V - Opinions?

5 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You describe yourself as a libertarian. That means, presumably, that you set some value upon property rights.

You are on someone else's property. You have been informed what the ground rules are.

Any questions?

'Lady' by Roosh V - Opinions?

5 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Too much for whom?

Just like women, men can be expected to act in ways that serve their own interests. They were not put on earth to further your ends.

If you want them to do something different than what they are doing, it is up to you to make it in their best interests to do so.

My ex added me back on Snapchat after a horrible brake up??

5 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

It's easier to start with a new girl than to get out of the red with an old one.

The "All your other girls" shit test

5 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Who cares if she's lying or not? You want her to do something, have her do it.

Why do women always resort to sex / their vaginas as insults to men?

5 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why do you care what a tattooed cow thinks? Nobody's opinion should matter to you unless they can add value to your life.

Everyone needs approval from someone, but vest your need for approval in people who like you, not people who hate you.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

5 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

have a competitive advantage

That's scarcity mentality, son. Plenty of chicks to go around.

Single Mum 'Can't Find Boyfriend Due To Sex Toy Addiction'

5 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Furthermore, when a man gets himself one of those things, and uses it on girls, he gets a very fast object lesson in how the primary center of female sexual arousal is the brain.

A vibrating machine can pull the trigger, but it can't get inside her head, turn her on, drive her wild. And if you can't give her orgasms, then the lack of a thirty-cycle setting is not your problem. Women can orgasm from a stiff breeze when they are with a man they look up to, respect, worship.

A woman who is obsessed with vibrators is a woman who has lost the ability to be enthralled with a man.

Pyscho ex-plate sent a letter to my house. Help.

5 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Do NOT listen to this asshat. He has been given a helicopter ride by dial-a-mod.

Crazy bitches are crazy bitches. You triggered the crazy. You did not cause the crazy.

Do not engage with crazy bitches. Her power to hurt you is limited to what you allow by being scared. Ghost the fuck out of her. She is trying to get you communicating again, because that's where her power lies. Do not play her game.

Save every scrap of paper and every message she sends you. Tell everyone who asks what a crazy bitch she is, and show them the evidence.

If she proves troublesome, or just for extra lulz, get a restraining order. Bitches think of Daddy Patriarchy as their personal army, and so it's extra sweet to use it against them.

When you're in an LTR and you break up with her, she brings out the 'suicide' card. What will you do?

5 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

You go non-contact.

Suicide threats are a form of abuse. They are absolutely an attempt to dominate and control you by someone who is willing to traumatize you in order to get that control.

If she kills herself, that's evolution in action.

6"2 roided chad called me nigger behind my back don't think he would have a problem doing it again either. What to do in future if it happens again?

5 upvotes · 28 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Well, it's certainly worth thinking about.

I believe that people have wasted far too much time arguing uselessly about what is or isn't racist, and whether or how "immoral" it is... a subjective, and therefore unanswerable, question.

What's important about beliefs about race is whether they are correct, or incorrect.

If blacks really are a bunch of subhuman undeveloped ape-monsters, then those who refuse to associate with them will prosper more than those who do.

And if whites really are a bunch of soulless insatiable murderous oppressors, then those who refuse to associate with them will... etc etc etc.

Most endless controversies can be resolved by realizing there is no "should". There is only "is", and "I want"... and every meaningful action is about getting from the state of the first to the state of the second.

If your female mates make a point of telling you you're attractive, does it actually indicate that you're attractive to women in general?

5 upvotes · 27 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

No.

Ignore what women say. Watch what they do.

If a girl finds you attractive, she will wrap her mouth around your dick, not just use it to make sounds.

So love is fake?

5 upvotes · 22 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is a book project in the works, but it won't just be a compilation of articles. It will be a comprehensive work.

I have lined up a psychologist with academic credentials who wishes to collaborate. But there's some logistical stuff that needs clearing before we can start.

Replying "Why am I with you"

5 upvotes · 21 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Should I just say cause I'm too irresistible which sounds a bit self praising and boasting in a creepy way

That depends on your delivery, son.

Male sex robots are coming soon

5 upvotes · 16 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They've been here a while. They're called "vibrators".

Complete loss of Interest

5 upvotes · 4 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Wrong question.

Who cares? On to the next one.

How To Generate Interesting Conversations Out Of Thin Air (And Never Run Out Of Things To Say Again)

5 upvotes · 13 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Not bad.

But don't worry about running out of material. Make her worry about running out of material.

How to avoid being a TRP NPC

5 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

No idea is original. We are all a mixtape of ideas previously read or heard from others. What makes us original is how we implement said idea.

+1

How to avoid being a TRP NPC

5 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So, OP, you're telling these guys they shouldn't just blindly repeat what ECs say and that they need to think for themselves?

Cool deal.

Fucking commies

5 upvotes · 5 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I am not that why is all of this happening, "this" being the rage because of manosphere vultures. I think that mostly, people like me are the vultures. I don't comment or post. Especially post. I don't think I have anything to offer, apart from one or two good stories. And I don't post because I don't personally believe it would help anyone at this point.

You're also not trying to cash in by selling snake oil.

You're supposed to be able to listen and learn. That's what we made TRP for. Eventually, you will absorb this stuff, master it, and have something to teach. Or you'll just quit reading on move on. That's okay, too. We only need so many more teachers, and if that's not your thing, so be it.

There is simply no reason to complain about smart people taking advantage of stupid people who will buy worthless stuff

Yes, there is. For me.

TRP is my brand. I spent my time, my care, my effort, my blood, sweat and tears developing it. This forum is my work. The trust that you, and people like you, have in it is part of the value I built. And I like to think I did that my playing straight with you. By never misleading you. By treating you like a student to be taught instead of a sheep to be sheared.

And if I ever try to go pro, and make money off you, which I do not rule out, it will be by providing something I believe is of real value to you.

Not because anything else would be "wrong", but because anything else kills the thing I worked to bring to life.

So I'm not going to let someone else cheapen my brand. /u/Rian_Stone is welcome to make money as a speaker, and /u/GayLubeOil is welcome to make money as a coach, and both are welcome to use this place as a portal to lead business there. Because they will not embarrass me or diminish my brand.

Sellers of fake shit can fuck right off. Hock your homopathic remedies somewhere else.

My objection to the vultures is not moralistic or communistic, but purely anarcho-capitalist in nature, because I, and as a matter of fact TRP, are purely anarcho-capitalist in nature.

Fucking commies

5 upvotes · 4 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Communism is fucking stupid. People are supposed to be greedy and self-interested. This is good. Anyone who wants to try to make people good using force can fuck right off out of here. So can anybody who tells people not to monetize because it's "wrong".

And so can jackasses trying to sell magic soap to idiots. The whole concept of free markets and capitalism means that we own what we make. Well, /u/redpillschool, /u/humansockpuppet, and I (along with a buncha other dudes who don't come around no more) made TRP, so we fucking own it.

That means I get to say who can sell stuff here... and I'm going to make sure it's not stupid huckster shit. Not because "oh, that's wrong" (no stupid moralizing), or because making a profit is "bad" (no stupid fucking communism), but because I fucking said so, and it's my sandbox.

So good shit, yes, magic soap, no. Final word.

Jordan peterson

5 upvotes · 2 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/7v4afp/jordan_peterson_is_not_your_friend/

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/7w1p2a/on_unplugging_all_the_way_you_need_to_chew_before/

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/81ibm3/the_great_trad_con_and_how_not_to_get_conned/

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/8zphoi/you_dont_need_a_wife_just_a_blowjob/

Why do a lot of the top Red Pillers hate Jordan Peterson?

5 upvotes · 20 October 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed. TRP wants men to live for themselves, tradcons want them to dive on a grenade for the benefit of women and future generations.

How to act if she denies me a kiss?

5 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you isolate, try to kiss, and get the cheek turn, next her.

Might not be her, might be you screwed up, but it doesn't matter. Turning shit around once you have screwed up is advanced TRP, and often not worth it anyway. Start with a fresh one.

Be prepared to throw a lot away in practice.

And you should always be getting rejected by some of your targets for escalating too early. If you're not, then you're consistently escalating too slow, and need to be more aggressive.

Lose your fear of looking creepy. If you don't look creepy to the ones who aren't into you, then you're not being properly bold enough for the ones who are. Remember that this is a numbers game... the rabbit has to be faster every time, the fox only has to be faster once in a while.

"I heard you're a man whore" shit test, anyone overcome this reputation with a hesitant girl?

5 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Wait, I can get paid for this?"

Dead Bedroom Marriage

5 upvotes · 5 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Not really.

Association between the sexes is voluntary. The core notion here is that we get the behaviour we want from the opposite sex by motivating it, not demanding it.

Ultimately, you lack the power to force men to do anything. Your wisest course of action, then is to make them want you to be happy.

The best way to start is to abandon the idea that you are owed something.

Too lazy to workout at 100% effort at the gym

5 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Not enough fat.

Not enough calories.

Probably not enough sleep, too.

GF out of town for work and not texting.

5 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

<https://media.giphy.com/media/Vzps1SR7IWipe/giphy.gif>

How Many Women?

5 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Now I want to EC a Mexican just so we can give him this flair.

Am I Even RedPilled?

5 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Holy shit. Ignore all that... I had you confused with someone else.

I just went and checked this out. Apparently, you got into it with the female mod team at RPW, and then one of the male TRP mods (who are also RPW mods) showed up to check out what was going on.

I believe you called him "honey", said he was "a little sjw deep down", and told him that he didn't know what the red pill was about. His main account is a Vanguard (I won't say which one.)

So, ya'll done fukt up, yeah.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

5 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We take it as a given that anyone in this position has advancing that field or area of knowledge as a significant personal goal... otherwise they wouldn't be in that position.

In other words, we can take it for granted that I care about TRP, and making it a useful resource for those who can benefit from it, just as we can take it for granted that Linus cares about Linux.

Since Linus has unique or near unique expertise, the best way for him to do that is to disseminate that knowledge to others... instead of writing code, his job is to write kernel developers, because this will result in more and better code being written overall.

Men will be men?

5 upvotes · 16 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is a matter of semantics

No. Words have meanings.

Men will be men?

5 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so instead of inadvertently challenging him to a duel for the throne, let's talk about a more peaceable and constructive way to deal with this.

Bring the Captain your problem, not your solution.

So, nevermind if it's "acceptable" or not. That does not signify. What problem(s) did it create for you, personally? Can you articulate them?

Girls tell me I'm not a "gentleman", "sweet" or "nice". How should I respond?

5 upvotes · 10 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Took you long enough to notice."

Q4ALL: Putting aside pill affiliation, what is your elevator-pitch with your 3 key takeaways of actionable advice for a non-spergy man who already lifts/grooms/dresses well?

5 upvotes · 9 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

[Closed caption for the hard of thinking]:

All the information you need in order to do whatever you need to do is available to you... if you look hard enough. Be an active learner and seek out what you need, instead of sitting in your nest and chirping with your mouth open, waiting to be fed.

This can't possibly be the right way to go about approaching...

5 upvotes · 6 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

I literally walk around until I find a girl to speak to, and I then approach her. Talk for 5 - 10 minutes, get number. So far in the last week I am 4/6 on getting a number, but the time I have put into this is literally 6 hours of walking around!

As a beginner, if you are getting numbers, you are doing it correctly enough to be able to practice and learn. Keep practicing. You're going to suck at this for a while.

I am on Day 13 of no fap and not sure what to do.

I am not responsible for making snake oil work.

I know people say "get involved and they will come"

Who are these people saying dumb stuff? They will come when you no longer suck.

but I haven't masturbated in two weeks. I can't give it too much time lol.

So rub one out and practice at a pace you can sustain.

I'm [27F] a live-in girlfriend to my boyfriend [29M] of three years. Am I making a mistake?

5 upvotes · 5 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah.

The "You Go, Girl!" crowd loves the idea of ultimatums, because the abstract idea of women "demanding what they are worth" appeals to their infantile egos.

Well, RPW has its own "You Go, Girl!" crowd, who think that they know what this is about because they want commitment and babies from men instead of hookups and free drugs. These girls will tell you (and most likely have) that it doesn't particularly matter what the source of his reluctance is... you should simply spur him over that obstacle as if he were a balky horse.

I suppose it might work okay if your man has brain damage leading to permanent anterograde amnesia. Otherwise, men tend to remember being badgered into giving things, and this affects their future attitude. That's not a good look on someone you want a long term relationship with.

Instead, when a man doesn't want to give you something you want, the way forward is to identify and remove the source of the reluctance.

how to hold frame when she starts crying / complaining about her day

5 upvotes · 24 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

<https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/8mjrxx/tears/>

Seeking harsh truth about a girl

5 upvotes · 21 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

You invested where you don't have leverage. And now you can't get leverage because you're invested. Learn from your mistakes and move on.

How do you react to "Who Hurt You?", "You Are Bitter." etc?

5 upvotes · 17 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Who hurt you?"

Eddie Murphy.

"Why are you so bitter?"

Because sugar is fattening.

Crushing shit tests is super easy. Literally any response that doesn't take the question seriously will do just fine, even if it's total nonsense.

General advice needed

5 upvotes · 23 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Race whiner.

Your lack of success has nothing to do with other people, and everything to do with you.

The Manual. Do you agree with it ?

5 upvotes · 13 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Welcome.

For anyone else reading:

Notice how he didn't even need to ask the question, once he knew the proper question to ask, because the answer was obvious: go out and try it, and see what works better for you.

Every printed word on TRP is just here to give you ideas about what to try.

Sleeping my life away

5 upvotes · 27 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Have your cortisol and thyroid levels checked.

My relationship lasts an average of 3 months, what am I doing wrong?

5 upvotes · 26 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

But having to persuade people sounds like responsibility! Aren't people just supposed to come along and give us what we want?

How good are you at recognizing fake orgasms?

5 upvotes · 21 June 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I can always tell when I have an orgasm.

A Beginners Guide To Using Steroids Safely

5 upvotes · 21 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Wasn't the main thing supposed to be to become better in all areas of life?

Well, since I'm one of about ten dudes who put this group together in the first place, I think I know what it's "supposed to be about".

And if you're not willing to at least consider steroid use, then you haven't quite understood what that is. I'll try to help you with that.

The idea of a "red pill" is a metaphor from a film I didn't particularly like. It refers to a choice between what is there, and what others desire you to see.

To "take the red pill", then, is to reject what you have been told in favour of what you can see. To reject scienceism in favour of the scientific method. To reject accepting the opinions of others in favour of forming your own. To reject a well worn path in favour of a straight line towards your destination. To reject being educated in what to think, in favour of of studying how to think.

You know nothing of anabolic steroids besides the fact that others don't want you to take them, most notably a bunch of septuagenarian lawyers who managed to win a popularity contest in front of a bored and indifferent audience.

This is the blue pill. You have swallowed the reality that others have have invented for you to live in.

What is the red pill, then? Is it for you to take them?

No, not quite, although it might be. It is for you to gather knowledge for yourself, rather than listen to any one voice. It is for you to learn, and then judge, not only for yourself, but according to your goals.

Had you done this, you would have been able to back up your opinion about them with specific data, and with reasoning about how they work, and how that might affect people, and what the pros and cons were. But you didn't study. You didn't pursue and gather information.

You simply formed an opinion based on whatever vague rumors you heard, not understanding that information that seeks you is far less reliable than information that you seek.

Consequently, your opinion carries all the weight of a puff of warm hydrogen.

If you want your opinion to be taken seriously when you speak it, take it seriously yourself in the act of forming it.

Can't cum with condom?

5 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Are you kinda on the well-endowed side? They feel a bit tight?

The US government outlawed condoms over a certain size.

Thai girl can't kiss, she's bad at it. Haven't had sex, I like her tho, what do?

5 upvotes · 18 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Teach her.

No bjs unless I go down on her too?

5 upvotes · 18 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you were doing this on your own, because you wanted her happy, that would be fine.

But now she's ruined it. You can't do this, not because you can't go down, but because you can't give in. You cannot allow sex to be something she gives you as a favour or reward. You are not a dog, you do not fetch sticks for biscuits.

Stop performing oral sex altogether, stop initiating sex, stop seeing her as often, present the appearance of losing interest, apply dread game.

Feminist Bookstore Closes From Lack of Sales, Blames White Men

5 upvotes · 13 June 2018 · /r/MensRights

Having business sense is capitalist and therefore evil.

Why does an interest in firearms trigger a reflexive ostracism from most people?

5 upvotes · 5 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Then you teach them to shoot, and they just melt into a little puddle right there on the firing line.

Badly alpha widowed. What can I do?

5 upvotes · 30 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why would I do that?

Tears

5 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

As you are, I once was.

The trick here is that practice hiding emotions is practice controlling them. If you pretend long enough and well enough that shit doesn't bother you, it actually won't.

Expression of an emotion and experience of an emotion are not two totally separate things. Feel happy, and you'll tend to smile... but also if you smile, you'll tend to feel happier.

Emotional repression behaves in some ways analogously to physical strength. Try to lift something too heavy, you'll just hurt yourself. Never lift anything heavy, you'll never get stronger. Lift things that are just a bit too heavy for you, and pretty soon you'll be able to lift heavier things.

Innate personality vs TRP

5 upvotes · 13 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

You aren't afraid of rejection.

Rejection has literally zero consequences. You are afraid of how you will feel when you get rejected. You will feel bad because it will confirm your fears that you are a loser, that your essential inner nature is "loser".

You are wrong. You have no essential inner nature.

Your thoughts and feelings are simply a result of your habitual actions and the situations you find yourself in. You feel like a loser because you act like a loser, not the other way around.

You will never succeed in changing your actions by changing your thoughts. Try it the other way.

What do you think about tattoos on girls?

5 upvotes · 5 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

Nailed it. A visible tattoo is nothing but a fedora you wear on your skin.

People do not become unique and interesting by virtue of doing things in order to stand out, especially not the things that everyone else is doing to stand out. A boring 20something chick with a wolf tattoo is still a boring 20something chick.

Truly becoming interesting and cool is hard. You have to have unique insights, or make something creative, or master a difficult skill, or go out and accomplish something noteworthy.

The Red Pill vs. the Black Pill

5 upvotes · 2 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The way this discussion is evolving lends itself so much to tribalism, that the question must be asked, are we simply protecting our own butts?

My thesis is that we're dealing with a crowd who was thoughtful enough to show themselves the light.

There's no "we". TRP is a forum for strategy discussion. There's no movement, no membership card, and no philosophy. I'm not trying to launch a crusade, or discover the "truth" (whatever that word might mean). I'm telling dudes how to get laid.

This isn't a debate about what's real. It's a choice between "trying to get laid" and "not trying".

Wanna try? Here's the tools. Don't wanna try? Fine, off you go.

The 2/3s Rule

5 upvotes · 23 April 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So you saw something you didn't like, while reading something that wasn't written for you, and you came in here to tell us all how upset it made you.

Okay.

What is it you want?

Indifference and Control: Why You Don't Wanna Be Chad

5 upvotes · 21 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Does our power still come from our willingness to next someone if they aren't meeting our needs

Yes.

The more you are invested, the less imminent this threat becomes... but the more she is invested, the more dire that threat is.

I'll talk about how to play control game in my next article. Stay tuned.

Q4ALL: who is responsible for other partner's satisfaction/orgasm? Men? Women? Both?

5 upvotes · 16 March 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A psychologically healthy woman can be brought to full satisfaction with very little requirement for patience, stamina, or even skill. If she has the proper mental attitude about the man she's with, she can practically come from a stiff breeze.

Feminists are super enthusiastic about vibrators, and think sex is complicated shit, because their unhealthy attitudes have killed their sexual responsiveness.

Which also explains why they are constantly unhappy and complaining about stuff.

The Art of Getting Things... Without Demanding Them

5 upvotes · 13 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

"For what?" doesn't mean "I don't see anything for you to thank me for, stop that"

It means "Explain what it is that I did that you are grateful for, how you experienced it, why it was meaningful to you, etc, so I can understand you".

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

5 upvotes · 9 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It involves a certain amount of management, yes.

Families and Children

5 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why Family 3.0 won't work. Because men will retaliate by becoming deadbeats, working just enough to survive, and spending the rest of their time at play.

But that's a subject for another article.

Alphas Only Marry Alphas.

5 upvotes · 25 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There are no female alphas.

Feel like we are exclusive too soon: what to do?

5 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/7zaana/the_talk_is_socially_retarded_do_not_tolerate_it/

No Means No Works When Women Back It Up and Refuse To Entertain Further Negotiation

5 upvotes · 22 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women have both "soft" and "hard" NO responses.

A hard no is intended to get a man to stop that. A soft no is intended to get a man to slow down. Or to test his resolve. Or work harder to persuade her. Or just to prevent her from looking or feeling like a Super Whore from the Galactic Whore Squad.

People can say that "soft no" is risky and inadvisable all they want. Doesn't matter. Women ain't going to stop using it.

And people can say all they want that men should treat a soft no as a hard one, to be on the safe side. Doesn't matter. Men ain't gonna do that.

The word "creepy" really just means "I am afraid that this man is unable or unwilling to discern a hard no, and will treat it as a soft one".

Both you and /u/LewisCross are proposing fundamental changes to male or female sexual behaviour that just ain't gonna happen. The only change that can realistically be expected to actually happen is for men to learn better skills at distinguishing "no" from "no".

Predictors for infidelity and divorce

5 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The FSU research team followed 233 newly married couples for up to 3 1/2 years and documented intimate details about their relationships, including marital satisfaction, long-term commitment, whether they had engaged in infidelity and if they were still together.

What do you all want to bet that the means of detecting said infidelity was "self-report"?

Things Women like about Trump

5 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Hmmmm... some dude called "Marxist00" thinks cash is the most important thing, and that girls are all low-key prostitutes.

Nah, this ain't gonna turn into a train wreck.

Women tell me I come across as too serious?

5 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why the fuck are listening to what women say?

I'm attracting men in better shape than me and not sure how to proceed

5 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's also important to have a complete story.

Women tend to loooooooooove hearing advice that they should "secure commitment" before permitting sexual contact, because it makes them feel like there is a "safety strategy" that they can use with zero risk. It's flattering to believe that you have leverage and control... but often you don't.

This is, of course, false, because a woman can never know for certain whether she has secured commitment... because commitment is not a formalized condition, it is a state of mind within the man's brain meat. Even marriage is no guarantee.

So, the risks described of "punching above your weight class" are real, but "failing to punch high enough" carries its own set of risks, the greatest of which is being in a relationship with a man whom you can no longer see as superior to you. This inevitably leads to the death of any happiness you might have in the relationship.

A woman who punches too high can fail to win the prize. A woman who punches too low wins a crappy prize that won't feel like "winning". This leads to cheating, AF/BB, divorce, and breaking out in chronic cats.

There is NO risk-free sexual strategy available to women.

Does Unicorn exist? is there a NWALT? How to be a unicorn?

5 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I would recommend asking this question on /r/RedPillWomen .

TRP itself is not written with you as the intended audience, and neither the content, nor the presentation, nor the tone, are calibrated to be useful advice on what you should do.

They are instead for men who are playing the numbers game among a large population of women. For you to try to work backwards from that and re-engineer the sort of advice you should be receiving is a lot of extra effort, when there are women available who can explain it to you in a way that is intended for who you are, and what your goals are.

Plate says "I have to stop seeing you because I have feelings for you" Over text. What do now?

5 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

No one gives a shit how it sounds to you.

What matters is how it sounds to a woman.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

5 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Christianity is also a crippled religion.

It maintained some degree of social order, but has done so at the expense of holding the west back at every turn. Recall that the west has tried theocracy before. We now call this era "The Dark Ages".

Even if that were not so, we have to confront the fact that the death of Christianity represents a failure in and of itself. Feminism, Marxism, and humanism did not simply arise out of nowhere, stronger than Christianity, to slay it. They did not in fact slay it at all... they are simply the vultures which feast on its corpse.

Christianity was killed by science. One of the weaknesses of religion as a unifying force is that by its very nature it insists on its own infallibility (truths come from god, etc). Thus, as human knowledge advances, it tends to call itself into question a lot.

I don't just mean silly stuff like lightning or the geocentric model of the solar system, but more fundamental stuff as well. What can Christianity, which relies upon the concept of the soul as the seat of the self, do about advances in neuroscience?

Some Christians are trying to get their religion out of the science game, stop fighting basic facts about evolution and the age of the earth, etc, but the material brain is a real problem. Can't take the soul out without killing the whole paradigm, and religion can't work as social glue is it can't coexist with science, because science and engineering are strong enough to kick the ass of absolutely any other force in society, so long as it has an educated population to work with.

Think about it. Technology is the one god that really does answer prayers, perform miracles, and reveal eternal truth. You can't compete with that. If you expect to survive, you have to coexist, and most religions can't do that.

It is science and technology (free thought), capitalism (free markets), and the marketplace of ideas (free speech and expression) that made the west great, not Christianity. In its modern form, Christianity is basically a benign religion that can coexist with civilization, but it isn't strong enough to save it from poisons like Marxism, globalism, multiculturalism, humanism, feminism, etc.

The one weakness that technology has is that, in order to perform its miracles, it requires an educated population with the freedom to think and speak as they see. Marxism, humanism, egalitarianism, multiculturalism, feminism, etc, act to poison science by suppressing the education of the young, and freedom of thought for all.

If we were to save western civilization, it would be by rallying around our computers and spectroscopes, not the cross.

Why PUA's are bullshit

5 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I liked "stop asking retarded questions", but this one just seems a little off to me. I always saw PUA coach guys as something like tennis coaches or piano teachers... reliable for what they got to offer, but not offering a life path.

Unlike Jordan Peterson, I don't see RSD telling people who to be, just how to pull chicks.

Now, I grant you, there are some people who make it their life's mission to fuck as many different hot chicks as possible, but that's coming from them.

The only real problem I have with the PUA-specific guys is that they haven't moved on from technical game to including more aspects of inner game, and so TRP has surpassed them. I think most of the reason for that is that inner game isn't something you can teach in a seminar, because it involves self-motivated lifestyle transformations. That's a long-term project that can go in a lesson plan.

Still, there's nothing to preclude us from sampling PUA technical game where it suits us.

On a personal note, I'm not a big fan of amassing super high notch counts, either. Rotating your harem more slowly allows you to teach girls what you like in bed.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

5 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The majority of popular ideologies e.g. islam or christianity exist because they once worked in the real world.

If religion has one consistent trait over time, it is an inability to adapt to changing technological conditions.

Following an ideology isn't necessarily a bad decision.

Bad for whom?

It's great for the guy in the big hat who gets to tell people that god wants more cookies. For some other people, not so much.

There are many good reasons to distribute blue pills. There are none for swallowing them.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

5 upvotes · 9 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Real research is almost always connected to something that someone expects to earn money off of, because research costs money.

So obviously there is a great deal of research into what makes people buy things, and almost none into how to cure neurotics, because when you cure neurotics, they stop paying you.

Clinical psychology's basic business model requires that it seem like it would work, but that it actually not work very well at all. Which is precisely what you find if you look at its degree of social acceptance vs its actual cure rate.

Free markets are by definition the best way of accomplishing any incentivized goal, but tying financial incentives to intangible goals is a human responsibility, not an automatic result of a free market.

This is why your pet gets better and cheaper health care than you do.

Bottom Barrel Women Exist and Have it 10x Worse than Male Incels.

5 upvotes · 7 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We like to call it "outsourcing".

Advise

5 upvotes · 7 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I struggle with this. One example: He says I made him turn to other women. I feel like he is blaming me for his actions. His emotional pain, his mental and physical response to me, those are my fault, but his actions are his own.

He is trying to salvage his life. He wants to be with a woman who loves him, a woman who he can love, a woman who he can trust.

Marriage vows are a contract. You broke the contract. Now you want him to keep upholding just his end? Because you pinkie-swear you're different inside now?

That would be some bullshit even if it were true.

But it's not. I can tell that from this conversation. You have not shown me one iota of real evidence that you care about his happiness except where it effects yours.

I have told him all the details, he feels there is more, but no, I have told him everything I remember. There are huge gaps in my memory most like from drugs, how long ago it was, spending years trying to bury it, and my lack of care at the time. So this is also a point of contention.

Soooo... you lied to him for years, and now you're upset because he thinks you might be... lying?

Whatever it takes involves watching him be with other another women and being a "happy and supportive" participant.

I am supposed to be shocked and wring my hands, and say "Oh, you poor dear, that's horrible!?" Stop playing the victim card. This is not the conservative-churchy-women group. This is the no-bullshit-strategy-for-women group.

While my husband (and possibly you) may point out the hypocrisy that I was the cheater and now I want monogamy, I say: I am not the same person I was 8 years ago, people change. I get holding me to my actions, but expecting me to want the same things as I did 8 years ago...

WTF?

It's hard for me to believe I am having to explain this.

He married a woman whom he thought was into:

1. Him.
2. Threesomes with other women and him.

Then, after you married him and had two kids with him, well and truly locking him down, you revealed that you weren't all that into:

1. Him.
2. Threesomes with other women and him.

And you want him to just go along with that because you've "changed".

He wants the deal he signed up for.

I have already jumped through some hoops doing whatever it takes, and every time he finds a way to reduce it to being meaningless.

Because it is meaningless.

He wants some evidence that you care about his happiness. You begrudge him every concession you make.

Of course he doesn't believe that you love him. Hell, I don't believe that you love him. You say the words, but then you keep talking about what you want, how you feel, and what would make you happy.

You seem to think that men were just put on this earth to give you stuff. That you just say what you want, and they are just supposed to give it to you. And you're just supposed to decide what, if anything, you are going to do in return.

You want some different kind of marriage now, and you're willing to do exactly this, this, and this, which you think he should want. When exactly did he agree to be your prison bitch?

And women wonder why men don't want to get married. Jesus fucking Christ...

Advise

5 upvotes · 6 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Both men and women instinctively protect and favour women over men. That's why we are seeing a lot of comments about how "mean" he is being. On the bright side, the mods are doing a good job and those comments are vanishing quickly.

In this group, we do not talk about things from the standpoint of right and wrong, so I won't tell you how bad what you did was. I will, however, explain how things look from his point of view, and why he is angry.

And there's not going to be a whole lot of difference.

You are, of course, the very definition of a dependapotamus. And you cheated on him.

But those are the least of your offenses. The worst thing you did to him was marry him when you didn't love him, for your own personal gain. In doing so, you cheated him of any chance he might have had to have a wife who loves and respects him, and is worthy of his love and care. He cannot even walk away and try again, because now he has kids.

You took from him something you can never give back. Couple that with your subsequent behaviour and his fury becomes completely understandable, and it is not for me, or you, or anyone else, to say its is "disproportionate", or tell him how angry he "should" be.

So now you have two choices:

- Decide you can't deal with that, and that you are going to add being a bad mother to being a bad wife, and leave him.
- Dedicate your life to earning his forgiveness.

The first is easy. Let's talk about the second. Any of you ladies who are easily shocked or offended should quit reading here. Grownup talk time.

Forget about love. Especially forget about monogamy. You are going to have a hard enough time getting him to forgive you even if you don't try adding additional demands for more stuff you want to the mix. From this moment on, you need to be completely 100% focused on earning forgiveness.

Step #1: Apologize.

Apology doesn't just mean mouthing the ritual words "I am sorry" or saying that "mistakes were made", and then moving on. It means a complete expression of your understanding that:

1. This {articulate fully, in your own words} is exactly what you did.
2. It was wrong.
3. You, and you alone, are to blame for your actions.
4. His anger is justified.

You must not only say those things, but believe them. If you don't, divorce him and move out

Step #2: Articulate your desire for a solution, and your willingness to do whatever it takes.

This is important. You must have him understand that you are voluntarily working to earn his forgiveness, not doing what he wants resentfully to avoid having him kick you to the curb. Anything he "forces" you to do won't gain you any trust, because it doesn't show contrition or a willingness to change.

Whatever you are doing to earn his forgiveness and renewed trust, you must explicitly and articulately commit to.

Step #3: {to be continued}.

Observation about girls and lifting

5 upvotes · 4 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

You must sleep. Your physical body does what it does, and is not able to consider excuses.

Pro athletes tend to sleep about 10 hours. Think they're lazy?

Lifting heavy does not grow muscles. It stimulates muscle growth. In order to grow muscles, you need recovery conditions where you can respond to that stimulus. The more the better.

Are her thrills coming from cheating on me ?

5 upvotes · 3 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

23 days ago i broke up with an LTR while catching her branch swinging.

So why the fuck are you wasting our time with this? Ghost her and move the fuck on.

Moral dilemma ...I'm a virgin but also want to be good in bed for this guy I started dating.... he doesn't know obviously that I'm a virgin

5 upvotes · 1 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

But also, I feel like that's horrible of me to think I should just go meaninglessly practice on another guy in order to be good enough and confident in bed before I do it with him.

Do NOT do this.

Instead, show up as a virgin to the bed of the man you love, and bring with you the following:

- Complete disclosure in advance about your lack of experience.

- Complete willingness to be open and very explicit about your sexual thoughts and fantasies.
- A teachable attitude.
- Willingness to follow his lead and do as he says.
- Adventurousness and willingness to try kinky things he likes and see if you like them.
- Patience, and the knowledge that even if the first time isn't spectacular, your sex life together eventually will be.
- A small bottle of water-based personal lubricant. (Trust me on this. Even if he makes you wet as the Amazonian rainforest, virgins can really use a little help here.)

It will be far more meaningful to him to be your first than that you be skilled at physical manipulation right out of the gate. He'll teach you.

Human evolution wouldn't make sense if TRP is correct.

5 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Evolution doesn't have a pinnacle, a plan, or a direction. It chases whatever the totality of current local conditions favour.

Healing from past relationships and sexual behavior, any advice?

5 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

you don't seem keen on giving me advice until I've denounced feminism (which, shocker, will take longer than a day)

Not denounced. Understood and been able to articulate the case against. Anti-feminist advice cannot be evaluated in a feminist paradigm.

The critical bit is to be able to consider alternative world views from their own perspective. Many women insist on "I am a feminist" because they see feminism as the sole form of advocacy for women's interests, and being anything else would feel like a betrayal.

The need isn't to ritually denounce feminism as evil (that'll take a while), but to acknowledge the existence of other forms of feminine strategy, which involves contradiction of one of feminism's key claims (to wit, sole ownership of female rights and interests).

Feminism, like other religions, claims sole possession of the truth. You needn't commit overt apostasy. But you must privately consider the heretical.

{My advice}

This was intended as general advice for women. It's not bad for you, but you need special tactics for dealing with past mistakes.

This:

https://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/79f2zv/i_hate_myself_because_of_my_high_ncountadvice/dp2sfc6/

... is advice for a high n-count woman IN a relationship. Also good to know. But your problem is more difficult still.

You need to find a relationship.

To start with, I know you understand that men don't want to commit to promiscuous women, but do you know why? That's important to knowing what to do.

Is someone "broken" if they don't associate "sex with love"?

5 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A girl is a bad relationship choice if she doesn't reserve sex for men she has feelings for. I don't care about the rest.

Have you noticed a rise in women claiming men are "on the spectrum"?

5 upvotes · 16 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

What women say is always irrelevant.

The Humiliation of Aziz Ansari

5 upvotes · 16 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I thought it would take a little longer for the hit squad of privileged young white women to open fire on brown-skinned men. I had assumed that on the basis of intersectionality and all that, they'd stay laser focused on college-educated white men for another few months.

This gives away the game right here.

All of this isn't about sex at all. It's a political weapon against heterosexual white males, and the left is trying to put the brakes on it the moment it starts showing signs of splash damage.

Along with blacks and Palestinians, the left has adopted sexual accusers as mascots, and, as with the previous two groups, the actual welfare of the mascots is beside the point.

No, the point is to remove collective political power from heterosexual white males.

Why?

Because heterosexual white males are libertarian, independent, and difficult to rule, and the left's agenda is the expansion of the state into every aspect of life.

Why?

The German Nazis and the Russian Communists came very close to us in their methods, but they never had the courage to recognize their own motives. They pretended, perhaps they even believed, that they had seized power unwillingly and for a limited time, and that just around the corner there lay a paradise where human beings would be free and equal. We are not like that. We know what no one ever seizes power with the intention of relinquishing it. Power is not a means; it is an end. One does not establish a dictatorship in order to safeguard a revolution; one makes the revolution in order to establish the dictatorship. The object of persecution is persecution. The object of torture is torture. The object of power is power. Now you begin to understand me.

What if there were an ACTUAL Gender War?

5 upvotes · 15 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ultimately, women have whatever power men let them have. If all men wanted women to be slaves, then slaves all women would be.

Any other notion of how this goes down is just femdom masturbation fantasy, which I suppose is fine if that's your thing, but do it in private and wash your hands afterwards.

Is it too late to secure a real commitment from my boyfriend?

5 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Relationships are not double entry bookkeeping, and RPW does not advocate femininity as some sort of reciprocal obligation.

RPW advocates femininity because it is the most effective strategy for dealing with men.

OP needs to approach this problem using feminine methods, not to fill her Feminine Behaviour Quota™, but because this will get the most positive response from her partner.

How to handle a bitchy boss with grace?

5 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This entire post is nothing but damseling. Shall we fan your fevered brow, fetch the smelling salts, loosen your corset, and rush to reassure you that you are a perfect angel who is being unjustly persecuted by the eeeeevil jealous old feminist hag?

Step number one for dealing with pettiness...

Don't.

Do.

It.

You are telling us about how sweet you are, but the way you are telling us gives us a very different story. Which leads me to believe that this was a pettiness contest between two petty women, one who had power, and one who did not.

The path to gracefully getting along with other women begins with humility. So tell me about something other than how wonderful, gorgeous, popular, and special you are, or how badly and unjustly you have been mistreated.

Can being a player can make you a "misogynist"?

5 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your mistake was most likely that you treated your wife like a full and equal partner, instead of a subordinate responsible for meeting your demands.

Women are water, they adapt to the shape of the container they are in. Without a container, they are nothing but a puddle on the floor.

Did my wife cheat on me? If so where to go from here

5 upvotes · 2 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Here's some dick pics. Please return my vacuum cleaner."

Idiot.

Of course she cheated on you.

If an ex contacts your woman, and she doesn't immediately tell you about it, she either cheated on you, or will do so soon.

What is the appeal of red pill to women who are fat or older?

5 upvotes · 26 December 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

The red pill is a metaphor for choosing to believe unpleasant truths over pretty lies.

Reality is hateful towards unattractive women. TRP simply reports upon this reality.

You do not have the option to make reality go away by not accepting it. You can either accept it and make your best play with the cards in your hand, or not accept it and wonder forever why things aren't going your way.

Either way, TRP has no need to "appeal" to you. This group is here for those who accept the basic idea to work toward their goals. We are not selling anything, we do not care if you agree, or don't. The only consequences will be to you.

What about men with mommy issues ?

5 upvotes · 26 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Who cares?

Not trying to pick up men.

Can one be a liberal and still be Alpha? Are they mutually exclusive?

5 upvotes · 20 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

economic equality

Everyone is responsible for themselves.

If you understand that, you stop being a liberal.

If you don't, you don't understand TRP.

How to add positivity to high value male life.

5 upvotes · 14 December 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Since we have such a big age gap he has lived his life and knows a lot more than I , what I'm wondering is how I add more value into his life?

You need to start by understanding that what adds value to your life in a male partner is emphatically not what adds value to his life, in a female partner.

He doesn't need someone who provides all the things he brings to the table (dominance, experience, worldliness, knowledge, wisdom). If that was what he wanted, he could simply talk to himself, and masturbate while looking in the mirror.

The things that you can provide, you may not immediately notice, or think to be of value, because they wouldn't be of value to you.

To him, they are.

What are they? Well, start with the things he had to give up to get what he provides.

If he brings leadership and dominance, you bring submissiveness and respect.

If he brings experience, you bring a innocence and playfulness.

If he brings worldliness, you bring enthusiasm and joy.

If he brings knowledge, you bring an eager and appreciative audience.

You get the idea. The recipe for a good relationship is:

1. Mutual attraction.
2. Similar values.
3. Opposite virtues.

Every time he supplies a virtue, you supply the virtue that is its opposite.

How do you know when you're good enough for a chick?

5 upvotes · 12 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

stats: 20/M 6ft 150 lb, 13% bf estimate bench: 115 squat: 210 deadlift: 185

Anorexia.

You have no excuse walking around with such low BF while being so weak. You won't get strong if you don't eat.

"You are sooooo not my type!!!

5 upvotes · 18 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Men care about looks and sex, so faggots can always get attention from other faggots unless they are out of shape.

This is why faggots have zero useful insights to offer straight dudes on how to get laid by women, despite the fact that some faggots will have a lot of women who are massively attracted to them, due to the combination of obsessive care of their personal appearance, and the zero fucks they give about female attention.

Faggots can't teach men game because they don't know any, and they can't learn any from men, because they don't need any.

Faggots can't teach men how to emulate their indifference to women, because it's not a studied indifference, it's just homosexuality.

Ignore the Peanut Gallery

5 upvotes · 15 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

It's almost as if I deliberately word it so that such a thing will usually happen.

New to RPW! Advice for young disabled women please!

5 upvotes · 12 November 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Precisely, and you probably still have no idea what you said that was wrong.

That's where "understanding men" comes into play.

In this case, it was the word "intimidated".

Men are not afraid of you, and suggesting that they are is an insult. The whole "I'm intimidating" trope blames men for not wanting you, as if they don't because they are inadequately courageous, as opposed to you being inadequately desirable.

(In fact, suggesting that a man is timid or cowardly is one of the worst insults between males, and they don't much like it coming from females, either.)

This, however, is just an example of the larger issue. As I've mentioned elsewhere, people don't give you good social feedback because they are constrained to be nice to the poor little crippled girl. Thus, we end up with stuff like this where you say off-putting shit all the time, like "I intimidate men", and "high school boys are stupid", and you don't even know you're saying anything off-putting.

Why do so many military guy get cheated on?

5 upvotes · 2 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

That's the key point. They look alpha as fuck.

But only to the casual observer.

When some chick is banging an O311, she thinks he's an alpha god because he's physically fit, carries a rifle as a job, and can fight things.

But when she marries him, and hence becomes involved in his life, she discovers to her shock and dismay that he is someone's bitch.

He has low social status, and he goes where he is sent, and does what he is told, for shit pay.

And around the same she figures this out, he is absent for months at a time.

You do the math.

QForRPMen: what is supposed to happen if people start to care about or understand the male "problems" in the sexual marketplace?

5 upvotes · 29 October 2017 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They won't.

Human beings are hardwired to be vastly more sympathetic to women than men. This is not some new, bad development. It is a constant of the human condition, and anyone who's upset about it still has some learning to do.

The point of TRP isn't to try to get society to notice and care. That windmill is for MRAs to tilt at.

The point of TRP is to get individual men to take their own side. Not women's. Not society's. Not god's. Not {insert cause du jour}'s.

Boys Scouts of America will be allowing Girls to join in 2019

5 upvotes · 13 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

As young as you think your kids can handle a rifle under adult supervision.

How to be good in the bedroom without much experience?

5 upvotes · 9 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't get written off as "bad in bed" because you don't already know how to please him.

You get written off as bad in bed because you are unwilling to learn when he teaches you what he likes.

Every single girl I have ever had sex with, I had to teach her what I wanted. Men not only accept this, we prefer it that way. That way we get to specify what we want, instead of casting about randomly for girls just happen to already do things the way we like them.

There are only two kinds of girls who were "bad in bed". The ones that were too lazy to make an effort, and the ones too prudish to do that. Or that. Or the other thing.

It's absolutely okay to be visibly nervous, have no idea what to do, and have to ask him for directions... so long as he likes you and thinks you are sexy, he'll get you where you need to go.

How to stop being an Omega Incel?

5 upvotes · 7 October 2017 · /r/askTRP

Go lift weights.

Is a sordid sexual history always a deal breaker?

5 upvotes · 5 October 2017 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

Tinder game : what do I say

5 upvotes · 29 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

There are plenty of good things to say.

The important thing to remember is that it's the process, not the content that matters.

Asking her "get to know you" questions is a process that apes the job interview. Not sexy. You would be testing for "compatibility" (a commitment value) rather than building attraction (a sex value).

If you explore commitment values before exploring sex values, then you are engaging in a process that advertises that your value is low... because you are giving in the hopes of getting, rather than letting her do that.

Don't ask her what she likes about herself, don't ask her what dreams and ambitions are. Ask her if she likes it in the ass.

If she protests about you implying she is slutty, do a pressure flip and laugh at her for being "very judgemental about other women" (who might, for instance, like it in the ass).

If you keep up that kind of pressure, she'll do one of several things:

1. Start responding to the level of self-assurance you are displaying.
2. Reject you because your efforts were uncalibrated and came off as thirsty.
3. Reject you because her social environment or background requires her to make you work for sex.

In the first case, you're good. In the second, you're getting practice doing the right thing. On to the next one.

In the third case, you are dealing with a woman who refuses to acknowledge the realities of the modern sexual marketplace. She's still going to try to be Scarlet O'Hara, fanning herself and being evah so SHOCKED that you would suggest which a thing... while her competition is posting nudes.

Iron Rule of Tomassi #3

With any woman who makes you wait for sex, or by her actions implies she is making you wait for sex; the sex is NEVER worth the wait.

Can a redpilled man be a leftist

5 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

No. But he can pretend to be one for reasons of expediency.

How can I be an attractive alpha if I'm naturally kind hearted and funny? Must I trade in who I am and put on a mask?

5 upvotes · 12 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

There is no "who you are". There is only what you do.

Why is TwoXChromosomes a default subreddit whereas theres no default subreddit XYChromosomes?

5 upvotes · 29 August 2017 · /r/MensRights

On a daily basis women go through more shit, and seek more advice/outlets because of it, than men do.

How did you measure?

"you have to be broken somehow"

5 upvotes · 5 July 2017 · /r/askTRP

Shit test.

Your response neither great nor awful. Agree and amplify would have been better.

"Do all the corpses in my basement count?"

"Broken? But... I almost never need to wear the chicken suit anymore, even if I have a panic attack!"

"I suppose now is NOT a good time to tell you I'm a robot being piloted by tiny alien sociologists? Oops."

Went from super nice guy beta to confident, idgaf, calm, but still nice and positive energy, female colleagues suddenly talk shit about me

5 upvotes · 9 June 2017 · /r/askTRP

Before, they didn't talk about you at all.

Woman mowed down cyclist after he criticised her for using phone at wheel - Equality means 3 years behind bars.

5 upvotes · 11 May 2017 · /r/MensRights

Spoken like someone who is determined to make of himself a helpless victim.

Take change of your life. Instead of whining about how women are unworthy of your love, make start in a state of unworthiness and prove their worth to you.

If necessary, train them.

You're a man. Act like one.

If You Don't Like Her Past Then Leave

5 upvotes · 27 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

This is obvious.

What else could you do? The past, by definition, cannot be changed.

Can't eat, Can't Sleep, Can't focus, Can't operate.

5 upvotes · 7 March 2017 · /r/askTRP

If she cheated with you, she'll eventually cheat on you.

Looks like eventually is now. On to the next one.

Sex with plate who is a potential ltr.

5 upvotes · 7 February 2017 · /r/askTRP

"Don't worry, I'll give you another chance."

What is the best way to get better at fluff talk?

5 upvotes · 6 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

Stop trying to say interesting things.

People don't talk to exchange information. They talk to establish rapport. That's what "small talk" is.

Stop thinking you need to make a sales pitch for yourself every time you open your mouth. Act as though you had already made the sale.

"Men are just intimidated by you"

5 upvotes · 29 November 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Supermodel" is just a word for a model who has succeeded in making herself into a brand name.

And how do they make their money? Selling clothing, made by gay fashion designers, to women. Nowhere does this process directly involve heterosexual men.

Ask your standard heterosexual man to name five runway fashion models.

Then ask him to name five porn actresses.

Count how many men are unable to do one. Count how many are unable to do the other.

Any questions?

"Men are just intimidated by you"

5 upvotes · 29 November 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

People who say nice things to you to are not your friends or allies. Saying nice things might make you feel good, but its purpose is to make them look virtuous... and it's cost-free.

Your friends and allies are people who actually help you. By saying the not-nice things that you need to hear.

One of my best plates hit me with this

5 upvotes · 28 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

Just grin and say "You feel however you wanna feel, kitten.", then go back to what you were doing.

TRP truths destroyed the concept of love for me, I have yet to recover after 4 years, how to cure this empty feeling

5 upvotes · 13 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

Read this.

Cats - Pets for females or males too?

5 upvotes · 30 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

The only proper pet for men is women.

Just experienced a firsthand dose of TRP...Unicorns do not exist.

5 upvotes · 13 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Very simple, just don't care. They don't say it because they think it. They say it in order to get you to pay. If you don't care, they won't say it.

Two (relatively) easy ways we can take back control of the sexual marketplace.

5 upvotes · 3 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Who's this "we"?

I am doing just fine. Read my articles, and those of /u/humansockpuppet, u/gaylubeoil, and /u/archwinger, and put them into practice, and you will do fine too.

Then what the fuck do you care about a bunch of people too lazy to do the same?

How to fuck a HB10

5 upvotes · 14 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

A word I like to use is "decorative". Women will fish for "beautiful" as praise, and thirsty betas will give it to them and make them feel like being pretty makes them better than others, and more to be respected.

But if you call a very pretty woman "not all that", you'll come off like that "sharp elbows" meme, and by trying to deny that a clearly beautiful woman is beautiful, you'll be saying that beauty is important, and that she can't be cut down to size if she's beautiful.

So if a woman who actually is beautiful fishes, I'll pressure flip, break frame, whatever, but when there's actually a time and place to say it, I just agree that, yeah, sure, she's decorative.

That acknowledges the obvious fact, but also puts it in the proper perspective. A woman who gets her self esteem from her beauty is valuing herself for being pleasing to others... a submissive position.

I feel offended by my coworker offering to set me up with one of her ugly friends, any advice?

5 upvotes · 29 August 2016 · /r/askTRP

Does my coworker think my SMV is low or is she just trying to get something for her friend more than she cares about who she asks?

Stop taking women so seriously. Treat them like children, and regard anything they say as coming from a child.

If the five-year-old daughter of a fat train wreck of a tattooed single mom said to you "You and mommy should get married."... would you be offended?

Of course not. She's just a little girl who wants a daddy, and for mommy to have a handsome husband and be happy. She doesn't think about your welfare or your feelings, because she's five years old.

Women are like that, too. We are the adults to them. They never worry about our welfare, because on some unconscious level, they see us as invulnerable. A five year old doesn't worry about if daddy is going to be sad, or get hurt, because daddy is daddy, and daddy is big and strong and can beat up superman.

Whatever you want from women, you have to demand from them as a condition of your attention. Never wait for them to spontaneously consider your needs.

If AWALT is true, why isn't #YesAllMen?

5 upvotes · 23 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It is.

We are all bigots. And we're bigots not out of ignorance or some sort of vague fear, but because we took a long hard look at the world, saw that a certain brand of bigot gets better results and better treatment, and decided to be that brand of bigot.

And after being that brand of bigot for a while, we saw that the brand of bigotry we were adopting for utilitarian reasons was frequently accurate in fact as well... more often than not.

So, yeah, we're bigots. You want the moral high ground? You can have it. There's no grass up there.

What character traits do men like in women for a relationship?

5 upvotes · 23 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If everyone had them, they wouldn't be virtues.

How to Not Get Mad When He Doesn't Want To Spend All His Time With You

5 upvotes · 19 August 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

The first thing to do is ask yourself why you want more time.

Insecurity about attachment? Feeling like this automatically means a strong relationship? Loneliness? You're an extrovert and he's an introvert? Doubts because he looks like he wants to be somewhere else?

Bring your captain your problem, not your solution.

I want your time is your solution. What you need to do is figure out just what problem it is you are trying to solve with that.

Article from Journal of Evolution and Human Behavior: Men pay far more for younger prostitutes. How does this fit into the RP vs BP paradigm? (banned from sugar subreddit)

5 upvotes · 2 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

... and yet so far away.

Avoiding calluses from lifting?

5 upvotes · 22 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

So I already wear leather palmed lifting gloves.

Good idea. Just make sure they match your purse and heels.

Women against feminism

5 upvotes · 19 July 2016 · /r/MensRights

Exactly. Hot chicks don't need feminism. In fact, it hurts them.

Feminism is an attempt to use the state to legislate away the realities of the sexual marketplace. Is it any surprise that this was invented by ugly women?

It's like someone who got dealt a bad hand trying to flip the table.

Girlfriend drunk texts "friend" to come meet for a cuddle...

5 upvotes · 19 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

A couple of my friends have said to leave her but it's not just as simple as that.

You are stupid. A special kind of stupid.

The kind of stupid you get when you don't even have the excuse of being actually stupid, but are talking yourself into being stupid because you are a coward.

You're afraid to leave her. That's why it's not simple for you.

The Power of "The Makeover"

5 upvotes · 14 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What I do not understand is the seeming lack of any introspection these guys have. Look in the mirror. Look at the guys who are getting the chicks. Look in the mirror again. Compare.

Your question, then, is "why does anyone need TRP?"

Well, since I came up with it to enlighten others (rather than coming upon it to be enlightened myself), I can't tell you why I needed it, because I didn't.

However, think in terms of a timeline.

- Everyone starts as a child, and children believe what they are told. And people tell children what sounds nice, not what's true. So everyone starts out believing lies.
- As they become adults, everyone starts experiencing reality directly, and receiving data that contradicts these lies, at the same time that they are still being told the lies.
- Eventually, people learn if they live long enough.
- So there is a period of believing lies, a period of amassing contradictory information, and a point at which the lies shatter under the weight of evidence.

TRP serves to accelerate that process by presenting the truth for consideration as an alternative model to the lies.

And for every man, there is some point in his life at which this would be useful, unless he had a truly great father who told him the truth to begin with. In which case, his father was simply acting as an equivalent to TRP.

My friend (Alpha) is asking me (Beta) to be his best man at his wedding, and I'm jealous.

5 upvotes · 8 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

The inferior man sees another's success, and wishes to stab.

The superior man sees another's success, and wishes to learn.

You can now, at this moment, choose which one you are going to be today.

Can I attract a man with SMV while dressing goth?

5 upvotes · 8 July 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

. It also seems that neon hair is frowned upon in the RP community. Are even pastel pinks, purples and blues out?

It's frowned on not because of how it looks but what it means.

It's the traditional uniform of really horrible bitches. Basically, the female equivalent of wearing a fedora.

Now, can certain women get away with it? Yes, in the same sense that a man can wear a fedora if he's clean-shaven, pairing it with a double-breasted suit and shiny wingtips, and he's on his way to a swing dance.

But if you pair your pastel hair with weird clothes, a face full of shrapnel, and a bunch of shitty random tattoos, then you're not "different and quirky and cool"... you're the same as a guy in a fedora, cargo shorts, a ponytail, and sandals with socks. Basically, a giant loser. The point here is that while different looks look good on different women, psychologically healthy people dress and style themselves to please the opposite sex, not for shock value.

Does this mean that dyed hair is off-limits? No... if it's part of package that works and is calculated for attractiveness, not shock value or drawing the attention of a crowd of onlookers.

From a man's point of view, a woman who wants to please his eyes is a good relationship prospect, while a woman who wants a lot of attention from a lot of different men is a poor one.

Teenage girl who wants to take the red pill!

5 upvotes · 30 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Well, the girls can advise you about how to be more feminine a lot better than I can, but let's also talk a bit about your goals.

I want to get married before 25 and have kids

I agree that is a good goal that is conducive to your long-term happiness (and it probably would be for most women, in fact). In fact, I generally recommend that women try to find their one, single, lifetime mate (husband or what have you), as early in life as possible.

However, since this unusual for our culture, and others' expectations do have an effect on you, you're going to have to keep that goal in mind, and pursue it slightly differently than most people pursue theirs.

Two initial questions:

1. Are you a virgin? (This matters to men when commitment enters the picture.) If not, how many?
2. Are you interested in a husband your own age, or open to someone quite a bit older? (This matters because most men your age are not even remotely ready to settle down.)

[Mod] Wanted:Dead or Alive! Posts and comments that "make RPW a plate school." Reward!

5 upvotes · 26 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Exactly. Anyone who claims non-marital sex = plate... doesn't know what a plate is.

Plates are booty calls. Once you do so much as hang out for the enjoyment of it, rather than just for the sex at the end, she's progressed beyond "plate".

Alright. I'm a beta fuck. I'm here to atone for my sins and get some help.

5 upvotes · 24 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

Part of me thinks that keeping her around is just stupid as hell,

Stop right there. You're finished. You know what you need to do.

but the other part feels that if I kept her around while exercising red pill, it'd be the ultimate red pill victory in my life.

It's called "oneitis". It's where you make excuses to yourself to continue to see a girl who holds you in contempt.

I've already started exercising and stopped eating like shit, and as contradictory as it sounds, I'm pretty red pill (even before I knew what it was) with everyone but this girl.

And you're still asking what to do?

Dumbass. I'm wasting my fucking time talking to you. You won't take my advice, because you're a pussy. You'll make some lame-ass excuse to yourself about how you can turn this thing around, and how you're just doing it for the practice, because you are too much of a coward to face how badly you fucked up.

My time spent typing this is wasted, just like the oxygen you breathe is wasted. Because you're going to cave, you dickless waste of skin.

GTFO my TRP.

Feminists don't challenge radical Islam because real misogynists are terrifying

5 upvotes · 21 June 2016 · /r/MensRights

Social Justice Warriors are anti-social, don't care about justice, and lack the courage to fight for anything.

Feminists don't care about misogyny.

What these two groups of people really are is people who:

- Want power.
- Are too much of a loser to get it on their own.
- Have discovered they can manipulate people by inventing fictional evil to accuse them of.

There's no point arguing with them about the issues, because they don't care about the issues. The issues are invented to serve the real agenda. Which is "gimme dat" and "pay attention to meeeeeeeee".

Feminism/SJWism/leftism is just a power grab. So of course it's only used against white men. White men are ones with the power they want to grab.

There's no point calling the muzzies "misogynist". Because they don't care. They cannot be whined into compliance. The weapon is useless against them. And it's the only weapon the left has, because it's the only one they are willing to use.

Do men and women even have common mutual interests?

5 upvotes · 20 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How the hell do you start dating someone you don't have mutual interests with?

This is the fundamental disagreement between the red and blue pills.

The red pill thinks that relationships are based on attraction and emotional investment.

The blue pill thinks they are based on compatibility and similarity.

For this reason, TRP sees relationship-seeking as improving one's attractive and seeking the most attractive partner, and TBP sees relationship-seeking as a puzzle piece wandering the world looking for a fit.

This is why TRP believes in self-improvement for best results, while TBP believes active self-improvement efforts are dishonest and counterproductive (because they hide the "true shape" of the puzzle piece).

What are genuine psychopath traits and are they useful?

5 upvotes · 20 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Then I began to hear conjecture that many of the world's most successful CEO's, businesspeople and politicians were themselves psychopaths and this shocked me, I simply dismissed it as lefty nonsense designed to create a narrative of the wealthy and powerful as evil people, much like lizardman conspiracy theories but slightly less far-fetched.

That's because you are used to thinking "psychopath = evil twisted deviant who does horrible things".

No. Most psychopaths are not serial murderers.

A psychopath is simply someone with

- Diminished or absent capacity for empathy.
- Diminished or absent capacity for remorse.
- Disinhibited or bold behaviour patterns.

To this, the DSM adds "a pattern of antisocial behaviour", but that is circular reasoning:

"Psychopaths are antisocial because the guys exactly like this who aren't antisocial... well, we just don't call them psychopaths. Or True Scotsmen."

There are plenty of psychopaths out there functioning in neutral or prosocial roles. Steve Jobs was absolutely a psychopath. A majority of the surgeons I have met are psychopaths. And so on, and so on, and so on.

Psychopathy is necessary for certain kinds of antisocial behaviours, but it is not sufficient for any kind of antisocial behaviour.

Advice needed: Boyfriend won't marry me. How should I deal with this?

5 upvotes · 8 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

What you want:

I have to admit that I feel "unclaimed... the declaration and public display actually does mean a lot to me.

This is your problem. Getting married is your solution.

Remember what we say about problems?

Bring your captain your problem, not your solution.

Instead of agonizing because he won't give you a certain specific gesture of commitment and acknowledgement, bring him your real problem, and include him in the process of finding a solution. You're supposed to be a team, remember?

You want acknowledgement. He wants to avoid legally making himself your subordinate. Surely there are ways to get the first without the second. If you demand the second to get the first, you are seizing the helm from the captain. That doesn't suddenly become a good idea just because you really, really, really want this one thing.

If you are willing to ignore this opinions, views, needs and priorities because you feel intensely about this, and he goes along with that, then "I feel strongly" becomes a trump card in your relationship. Who is captain then?

Yes, a wedding is a fun princess party for you, and that public acknowledgement does indeed raise your status among women. But if you don't trust that he is being honest and level-headed when he says the cost to him is astronomical, then why did you pick someone as captain that you don't trust?

You need to bring him the problem. Talk about your feelings and desires. Not about weddings, or legalities, but how you feel. If he is a good leader, he will be able to help you without sacrificing his principles or his needs.

Q4RP: What are (if any) some things in TRP that you disagree with or aren't quite on board with?

5 upvotes · 2 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What does tech have to do with it? You work because you need money to live. Literally, if you stop working you will run out of money for food and drink and die.

Don't be silly. Having a thriving civilization doesn't depend on people doing what they are told. It depends on them doing more than that.

The desire for survival doesn't build civilization. Ambition does. And without the possibility of real rewards, there is no ambition.

Monogamy works fine. Polygyny works fine. Serial monogamy (she was never yours, it's just your turn) is not so great. Hookup culture doesn't work at all. And polyandry is so broken it's almost never lasted long enough to look at.

A male's dating blog, vs. a woman's dating blog.

5 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The combination of online dating, feminism, and PUA/RP has created a deeply unsatisfying romantic landscape.

You're confusing correlation with causality.

You don't have any clear evidence of which of these things are causes of the sexual apocalypse, and which are effects of it.

Lifting on a Budget of $0.00 - A Guide for the Complete Failure

5 upvotes · 20 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The glycemic load of lactose, and milk in general is quite low.

Like sucrose, it is a disaccharide, but where sucrose is glucose+fructose, lactose is glucose+galactose.

Fructose is the one you really have to watch out for.

The Divorce Revolution Has Bred An Army Of Woman Haters

5 upvotes · 19 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

And here is your author.

#MaybeHeDoesntHitYou a trending topic, shows how in for it we really are

5 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he hasn't asked you to marry him.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he dates other girls.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he won't let you move in with him.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he doesn't agree to have babies with you.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he won't move in with you.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he won't pay your rent.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he didn't get you anything on valentine's day.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he wants sex every single month.
- MaybeHeDoesntHitYou, but he broke up with you.
- Hey, where have all the men gone?

MRP and the ProMarriage Stance- Can Someone Explain the Schism in relation to TRP?

5 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't disapprove of him. I've never heard of him. His message isn't reaching the young men of TRP. And the disconnect is... they're not going to look for it. Why would they? I think what a lot of 40ish married guys don't quite understand is that the 20somethings of TRP aren't looking for ways to save marriage. They're not going to go looking for advice as to how to make this work.

Because "making this work" isn't a goal they have. They don't see anything in marriage that they think is worth saving. They see it as a bread, cheese, and shit sandwich without the bread and cheese. So any conversation about "how to save marriage" has to come after "should we save marriage".

And that's the question the 40-50s are refusing to, or unable to, meaningfully answer. They can explain how it's good for women. They can explain how it's good for kids. They can explain how it's good for society. But when these young guys say, "what's in it for me?", there's a whole lot of hand-waving, foot-shuffling, and throat-clearing, but no clear answer, except from the people whose answer is "we will stop calling you bad, irresponsible children".

You bring up the issue of children. That is indeed full of pitfalls for men. But I haven't seen one shred of evidence that marriage provides any meaningful protection. Sure, child support is just alimony by a different name. Sure, if you're not married to the mother, she can take your kids away at any point. But the same is true in marriage.

In fact, Marriage 2.0 provides no meaningful legal protection of any kind for men. Any rights they have (few enough of those) come through being the father of the child, not the husband of the mother.

A lot of these young guys look at this, and they just aren't interested in having kids. Men love their children when they have them, but they don't get baby rabies with the same frequency or intensity that women do.

Just like marriage, any conversation about "how do we save fatherhood" has to be preceded by a conversation about "why should we save fatherhood". We can explain how that's good for women, good for kids, good for society, good for the human race. But what we haven't seen is any sort of clear, concise explanation to these young men of why it is good for them.

That's what both of these conversations have to start with. The "here's what you get out of this".

How do you produce when you keep encountering failure?

5 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

If you don't fail most of the time, you aren't trying hard enough things.

It does not matter how often you fail, the only thing that matters is how spectacularly you eventually succeed.

The biggest problem with public education is that it grades on how well you avoid failure. An A in class means, not that you did anything spectacular or awesome, but that you avoided mistakes.

This means that bright young people who get As in public school often emerge into the world with a crippling fear of failure. But failures are learning opportunities. They are feedback. And they are inevitable when trying something difficult.

The most important trait a person can have in order to be successful is the ability to fail and keep going without curling into a ball of discouraged humiliation.

If you fear failure, desensitize yourself to it... by failing.

MRP and the ProMarriage Stance- Can Someone Explain the Schism in relation to TRP?

5 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The young warriors always run the tribe. They are the engine. The thing that makes the tribe run.

If you wish to steer a large group of young men, you don't do it by playing the authoritarian. That might work with nine year olds playing with dolls and stick horses, but not late teenage braves with bows and spears. Not with the guys who do your hunting and fighting.

Of course they run the show. Because they follow voluntarily. They vote with their feet.

There seems to be some fundamental misconception among baby boomers about how to do this "leading" thing. When you lead, it isn't about getting people to do what they are told. It's about getting people to do more than what they are told. That means embracing goals, not following instructions. And to get people to embrace goals, they have to understand how those goals have something in it for them.

So, yes, we could remove every comment and post, including some of my own, that criticized marriage as an undesirable state. But that's not leadership. That's not motivating people. And we're not going to do that, because not only is it not what I want, it's not what you want, either.

You don't want people not allowed to criticize you. You want them to not want to do so. Which makes me puzzled about your approach to this. If you think marriage is a good idea, why not tell them what's so good about it? Surely, if they are children, and you are adept at parenting, you can guide them.

Or perhaps they are not children. Perhaps they are young men who are vehement not because they lack understanding, but because they are full of passion and energy, as young men are. Perhaps they are just a bit accustomed to people trying to pull a fast one on them (it certainly happens a lot), and aren't going to listen to or respect anyone who doesn't treat them with some respect.

I don't really understand what your problem is. You seem to be complaining that the young men of TRP don't like marriage. But you seem unwilling to do the footwork needed to change their attitude.

Why hasn't TRP been banned yet?

5 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I suspect that the intentionally outrageous approach pushes them even more towards feminism too, because if "women are shit; they are, by their nature, unable to feel empathy, etc." is seen as the alternative to feminism then plenty of men will not want to leave feminism.

It's possible, but I wasn't going to get to those men anyway. I can't help /u/ThalesToAristotle (assuming he wasn't a troll account, or just lying about some details to stir shit up)... but there's a lot of men out there who are ready to take the plunge.

Curiously enough, what I found was that in order to reach young men, I had to resonate with their feelings, and I had to use precisely the kind of talk you object to.

It seems that when you say something moderate to a young millennial, they nod, but they do the same things. If you scream something hyperbolic at them, at the top of your lungs, they say "I don't agree with that, but I have started {moderate thing}, and it's working great!"

These dudes have been emasculated, metaphorically speaking, since birth. Some of them never had anything resembling a father.

I can't quote the PMs I get, obviously, but what strikes me about them is how much metaphorical force it takes to get some guys to stand up for themselves at all. Getting one particular college kid to finally hang up the phone on his narcissistic mother was a hard-fought step, and a major victory.

So, yes, TRP and TBP are symbiotes, and yes, they radicalize each other. But... so what? TRP is working. It's reaching the men it's supposed to reach.

Q4RP: What do you think about gay people?

5 upvotes · 1 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Since red pillers tend to be more ~~conservative~~ individualist this might be an ~~interesting~~ really pointless question.

Would the expansion and/or strengthening of Covenant Marriage be a good thing?

5 upvotes · 29 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The reason I will not marry, and will tell any other man who will listen not to marry, is that modern marriage has three parties: the man, the woman, and the state.

It is a very bad idea for men to marry the state.

Why?

Because the state has absolute power in the relationship, and has shown itself to be completely indifferent to men's interests.

I believe it was Camille11325 who once tried to convince me that I was against marriage because I had never met a "truly feminine" woman... who presumably would be worthy of that much trust. My objection at the time was "anyone who wants a gun to point at your head is not your friend, even if they pinkie-swear not to pull the trigger".

But more saliently, even if men were presented with the hypothetical perfect woman, that's not a fix, because the woman isn't the problem. The state is the problem.

I've written about this before. The state can, will, and has retroactively changed people marriage contracts to mean anything it wants.

So, no, I am not open to covenant marriage, or contract marriage, or anything else that carries the name "marriage", because once I do anything that uses that term, I become a subject of the family court, an entity whose outrageous behaviour so well known that I need not catalogue it here. No contract can protect you from a biased, malicious court, because a contract is nothing more than instructions to a court. If it is free to ignore them, and happy to frequently do so, contracts are meaningless.

There is only one way for men to stay free of this. It is to never enter into any agreement labeled "marriage" (until and unless our society undergoes a radical transformation, riots, and hangs all the family court judges and state social workers from the nearest lamppost).

It's not the relationship that's the problem. It's the law.

Asian American girl got offended that I asked where was she from. What would you have answered?

5 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

This is a very good example of the misapplication of TRP technique. He gave her a compliance test without first establishing rapport.

Compliance tests imply that a man is higher value (since he can impose a test), and establish dominance (since he is being obeyed), but holding up hoops for a stranger to jump through is... ambitious. Dominance is the ability to inspire compliance, not just the habit of demanding it.

If he wanted to use this as a compliance test, he should have led with something to get her invested in proving herself to him, then imposed his test once he had the hook in.

The Final Exam

5 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Whisper, you seem to be obsessed with convincing RPW to sleep around more, and I'm beginning to doubt your motives.

You've interpreted an article saying "sleep around less" as "sleeping around more", and I'm beginning to doubt your reading comprehension.

The whole thing is a long list of "don't sleep with him if". Look, let me help you out by breaking it into smaller pieces.

Imagine a young girl of about 20, and three groups of men. A, B, C.

- C are the men she is not interested in. (Large group.)
- B are the men she has some interest in, but is capable of controlling herself with, saying "not yet" to, etc. (Smaller group.)
- A are the ones who make her forget all her resolve to say that. The ones she can't say no to. (Tiny group.)

Obviously, C is right out. Equally obviously, A is in. Otherwise, they wouldn't be part of group A.

The question is about B. "Don't have sex until after X dates", or "don't have sex until you're in a relationship" is a strategy for having sex with group B.

I'm recommending: don't have sex with group B at all. Reject more, reject early, reject often. Focus all time and energy on keeping someone from group A.

You think I'm saying "turn 'not yet' into yes". I'm saying "turn 'not yet' into not ever".

The Final Exam

5 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

#1. Don't have sex unless you think he's captain material.

#5. Before putting yourself in a situation to potentially have sex i.e. alone at his place Netflixing with drinks, make sure you're ready to.

This is a good rule, but I was talking a little more about emotional state.

Basically, #1 and #5, taken together, can be rephrased as:

"Maybe" => Never.

"Not yet" => Never.

"Later" => Never.

"Meh, okay" => Never.

"OMG yesplease" => Yes.

If a woman wants to keep her n-count low, the way to do that isn't "hold out for a promise", it's "immediately and permanently reject any man you're capable of holding out on".

Those n-count increases are precious to her, and it's a bad mistake to waste one on a man she is capable of being calm, reserved, and calculating with. Only the ones who inspire wild passion should make the grade.

If he doesn't drive her wild, he's not good Captain material for her, no matter what his other qualities might be.

Yahoo: a shining example of female leadership running a company into the ground.

5 upvotes · 25 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I actually did think of Maggie Thatcher. But not being British, I didn't get a good, in-context look at her career. I'm pretty sure she didn't ride a dick to power, though.

I see women who can handle authority a lot like I see sentient alien life. The sheer magnitude of the odds tells me that some examples must exist somewhere, but it's gotta pretty fucking unusual because you can look at vast swathes of the universe and not see any.

And most of the people who say they have seen it appear to be delusional loons.

Are fwb by default plates? Or should they be treated differently?

5 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

A plate is a woman you only see for sex.

An FWB is a woman you're having sex with who is also fun to be around with your clothes on.

A Note on Plates

5 upvotes · 17 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think many women are focusing too much on out-loud verbal acknowledgement, and not enough on real emotional investment.

The trick isn't to get a man to make promises. Men will say anything to get laid.

The trick is to make him actually want a relationship, in the same way that TRP works on making women actually want sex.

A Note on Plates

5 upvotes · 17 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Although I do feel sympathetic towards you for a lot of what you wrote, this should only be read by RPW as a case-study, NOT advice.

I don't think one should expect anything else. He's not going to have a game plan all mapped out for you. He's telling you what his experience is like.

What's interesting to me, however, is that you view the observation that he is jaded and distrustful as being his problem. As if there were an infinite supply of cheerful, trusting, old-fashioned gentlemen out there, waiting to drop to one knee and pop the question.

What we are dealing with today is a marriage strike. Men are refusing to get married, either on purpose, with forethought, or simply out of disinclination. And that hurts women a hell of a lot more than it hurts men.

So, "the mental state of a man who spins plates" means awful lot. Because "the mental state of a man who spins plates" is what single women have to learn to deal with if they want to get married.

Your suggestion seems to amount to "replace man". Which is a natural reflexive response, because humans instinctively regard men as disposable. But if that were a solution, then the overall rate of marriage wouldn't be plummeting.

Problem is, there's nothing to replace untrusting, once-bitten-twice-shy men with. They're all like that.

So, the question is not "is working my way up from plate a viable strategy or not?", it's "how do women regain men's trust?"

Because men can't be forced to get married, and withholding sex isn't going to work when there's plenty to be had elsewhere.

A Note on Plates

5 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

The question is not if you are a plate, but how long.

Sex takes about 5 minutes to two hours, building a relationship takes time. The question isn't the whether you are ever a plate... that's unavoidable. Even if he wants a relationship as badly as you do, it takes time to build.

Until then, you are someone he's had sex with, but hasn't emotionally invested in.

And all the promises in the world mean nothing. If he tells you he loves you before he ever gets your bra off, that means nothing. Because words are wind. Anyone can say anything. You can get all the promises in the world, and be dumped the next week, and he'll be over you by the following one.

So, at risk of arguing semantics, "plate" isn't a status you avoid altogether. It's a danger zone you get out of as quickly and irreversibly as you can.

Now, deliberately staying a plate, well, that's insane. Women who do that are working against their own long-term happiness, and it doesn't make any sense to discuss that here, any more than it makes sense to discuss tactics for how to shoot yourself in the foot.

My LTR is a whore

5 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

I can't find them.

You didn't try. They are literally the top results on google.

Lazy.

Passion

5 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Clingy and needy doesn't mean "too passionate". It means "too demanding".

Demanding = passionate + selfish.

Selfish is unattractive to men.

This is why TBP mocks TRP.

5 upvotes · 31 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you care about the harm you're causing?

[citation needed]

Enjoying sex with condoms?

5 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

You may be too big for condoms. About 1 in 20 men is too large for the largest size of condom that's legal in the US.

When I first had PIV sex at 17, I could only compare it to receiving blowjobs, etc, which I had done for quite some time. I thought it was horrible. I usually couldn't get off.

I didn't realize that it was the condom squeezing me so hard I was going numb.

I usually had to just pound away until I got her off, then take it off and have her finish me with her mouth.

Women who didn't want semen in their mouths were off my radar by sheer necessity.

This went on until one day my then-girlfriend and I were out of condoms. All the drugstores were closed, so I got one from the vending machine in the dorm restroom. This means it was regular size, not "large". Oddly enough, it didn't feel all that much smaller (and I didn't yet know why). Around the third thrust, suddenly it felt really good and I had no trouble getting off. When I pulled out, I discovered that I had shredded the condom and was now wearing a shred of latex around the base of my cock.

It was then that I looked into it, discovered what sizes were available in the US, and had a look at dick size surveys. 1 in 20.

That's as if any bra size over D were illegal. Can you imagine the outrage?

I can't really enjoy plate sex.

5 upvotes · 27 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

I'm considering dropping these girls and finding one decent LTR material because that's what I would honestly enjoy the most.

So do it.

A Little Mistake That Cost My Best Friend 5 Years of His Life.

5 upvotes · 25 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is important to understand.

Cool people aren't cool because they do cool things. They're cool because they do what the fuck they want, and the things they do are cool because they do them with zero apology or shame.

If you just got here, and you do nothing but stay in your cave playing world of warcraft, the problem isn't that you like a video game. It's that you don't do anything else, and that you're probably doing just that because there are lots of things you wish you could do, but are afraid to.

Don't give up the things you enjoy. Just make room for the things you've never tried.

RP men: what do you have to offer?

5 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The finest quality handcrafted manipulation, exploitation, and misogyny.

CMV: People believe what they want to believe.

5 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Common goals

To get laid.

and ambitions

Also to get laid.

This is why women don't build jack shit. Why would they? They can catch a dick anytime they want... and building things isn't going to help them hold onto one.

Everything humans do is traceable, either directly or indirectly, to survival and reproduction.

NEW Dark Triad Article: Understanding Narcissism - learn about abusive personalities - also discusses sadism and psychopathy.

5 upvotes · 26 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

When a group identifies with dysfunctional ideas and adopts these patterns of thinking then they reinforce each other. Dissenters leave or are ostracised.

Let's rewrite that:

When a group identifies with ~~dysfunctional~~ ideas and adopts these patterns of thinking then they reinforce each other. Dissenters leave or are ostracised.

There we go. This describes everything from TRP to christianity to the United States.

Once a successful culture is established it assumes an independent momentum and spreads rapidly. Its acquires a legitimacy and an unquestioned and self evident correctness, which few dare challenge.

Exactly. The only difference between "cult" and "religion", between "evil" and "acceptable", between "psychopath" and "normal" is popular acceptance of behaviour.

Treason never prospers. What's the reason? If it prospers, none dare call it treason.

Every group's measure of psychological health has always been behaviour towards ingroup members. Behaviour towards outgroups is not considered... and just who is the outgroup depends on the context.

Consider:

- Cutting off a person's testicles to prevent behaviour you don't want is "insane" if done to men, and "sane" if done to dogs.
- Cutting off part of an infant's genitals is "insane" if done to girls, and "sane" if done to boys.
- Slavery is "insane" if done to the general population, and "sane" if done to "criminals", no matter what the actual thing they did or didn't do was.
- Killing and eating a human is "insane". Killing and eating any other animal is "sane", unless it's a pet, then it's "insane".
- Suicide bombing is "insane", drone strikes are "sane".
- Wiping out people of a particular ethnicity is genocide and "insane", wiping out an actual species is "sane".

I could go on all day like this. The point is not whether any of this is "actually" "right" or "wrong". The point is that acts are never considered psychopathic in and of themselves, but only depending on the target.

Unlike varieties of "mental illness" like schizophrenia or bipolar disorder (which are defined by inability to function effectively in the physical universe), personality disorders are defined by the distaste of others... and what is distasteful to others depends upon culture.

The inescapable conclusion is that someone can be insane in one culture and sane in another.

What we call psychopathy is merely a higher level of ruthlessness than our culture tolerates. What we call narcissism is merely a higher level of attention-seeking than we tolerate. And what level of these things we tolerate depends both on who we are, and who is expressing the behaviour.

The only objectively insane people are those whose behaviour prevents them from interacting effectively with their physical surroundings. For all other cases, mental health is a value judgement. It is morality by a different name.

I hate my great life. What the hell is wrong with me!? Is it that I'm lazy? Or maybe I just don't care... (like that famous quote/meme from the movie Office Space).

5 upvotes · 25 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

I hate my great life. What the hell is wrong with me!? Is it that I'm lazy? Or maybe I just don't care... (like that famous quote/meme from the movie Office Space).

5 upvotes · 24 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

All of this boils down to "I feel like shit and I don't know why".

That's not a lot to go on, but usually if people are depressed, they have something to be depressed about.

If they don't, if their brain just keeps finding things to be depressed about, then something is biologically wrong.

What was your last measured level of total and free serum testosterone?

RPers, are there aspects of TRP you would like to see change? Feminists, are there aspects of feminism you'd like to see change?

5 upvotes · 13 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I want to exclude a certain type of person.

Being Alpha vs. Being an Overcompensating Dick

5 upvotes · 11 February 2016 · /r/MarriedRedPill

One sees a lot of this both from BP types and RPW.

The goal of the "real alpha" trope is not so much to beta-ize men as it is ego defense. Since women derive their value from the men they are with (they don't want to win, they want a winner), they hate hate hate the idea that they might not be wonderful judges of character, or that 'gina tingles might not correspond to any real real measure of worth (genetic, moral, whatever).

The idea that the tingle compass might lead them astray is terrifying to them, since they are slaves to it.

Men, on the other hand, are completely used to this idea already... they know perfectly well that they can get monster erections for such terrible and poisonous females that they would be better off sticking their dick in a bear trap.

FR - "I accidentally slept with a guy"

5 upvotes · 6 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

There is a word for accidentally sleeping with someone. It's called "forcible rape".

Did he pin you down with his body, pry your legs apart as you screamed for help, and then force his penis into you?

No?

Then you didn't "accidentally have sex with him".

Is there any shred of validity to the whole "legal rape" accusation against ROK?

5 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Who cares?

You are falling the leftoid trap of evaluating people's morality by what they say or think, not what they do.

Is it wrong for a woman to expect a man to be nice to her if she has sex with him?

5 upvotes · 2 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are not vending machines into which you insert kindness coins until sex falls out.

Men are not vending machines into which you insert sex coins until kindness falls out.

Are steroids worth it?

5 upvotes · 1 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Depends on your goals and your level of willingness to do your homework.

Don't listen to anyone about them who isn't:

- A user or former user.
- An endocrinologist or other physician who has administered them to a lot of patients or research subjects.

Flashback Post #4: SHIT TESTS

5 upvotes · 26 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not just about how you deal with them.

It's about changing your own mind. When you truly see women as a variety of human with an adult body and the mind of a grade school child, you will start to just automatically know how to deal with them correctly.

And the hilarious part is that they will like you better.

If you say "treat them like children", women hate that. But when you actually do that, they love it... so long as you don't describe it that way to them.

That, too, is like dealing with children.

UK Police now requiring men to inform them BEFORE having sex or face jailtime. Thoughts?

5 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Pedanticism has its place and it isn't here.

Particularly since this is not a debate about whether something is law, it's a debate about whether that law is acceptable or outrageous.

Of course it's the law. The UK has no Bill of Rights. Any act of Parliament is law. Parliament could pass the "Behead All the Jews Act". They could pass the "Queen Must Wear a Live Duck Strapped to Her Head Act". They can legally do anything they agree on, no matter how vile or ridiculous.

One of the occupational hazards of the bar is precisely this kind of pedantry in cases where the desirability of a law is being argued. Attorneys are used to the idea that justice and law have little to do with each other, and thus the notion of justice is irrelevant when one is in court.

But we are not in court now, are we? We speak as members of a society, a culture, a civilization.

If a society declares that possible harm to a hypothetical woman is more important than a man's civil rights, quality of life for men will diminish. If society declares that it does not care about that, men will become alienated from that society. If society does not care about that, then you get groups like TRP forming.

If you want to see what happens next, just wait ten years. It'll be a fun and exciting ride.

UK Police now requiring men to inform them BEFORE having sex or face jailtime. Thoughts?

5 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you don't support civil liberties for everyone, then you don't support civil liberties for anyone.

If there is any label that can be used to take away someone's civil rights without due process, then you have no civil rights at all, because any label can be pasted on anyone.

Pedophile. Terrorist. Communist. Anarchist. Witch.

Pick your century, pick your poison. The politicians will always do the same thing... create a fake cardboard bogeyman out of some vanishingly small, or actually nonexistent, category of maledictor, and then use the public's exaggerated fear of that to tighten their grip on everyone.

Because anyone could possibly be a pedophile-terrorist-communist-anarchist-witch. We have to make sure. We're only doing this for your protection.

Trust us.

RP: what advice would you give to a woman who gets taken for granted?

5 upvotes · 22 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Hello, I see you are a Chinese restaurant. Tell me, how would you make the perfect taco?

Why should men be sex positive?

5 upvotes · 21 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

20% is 1 in 5, dude.

That's not difficult, since most young men aren't even trying to improve themselves.

Get busy living, or get busy dying.

Can't tell if women are too sensitive or I've become a total uncaring dick

5 upvotes · 12 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

It is better to be hated by 95% of women and adored by 5% than tolerated by 100% of women.

[Redpill Request] Tips for when you get into a street fight/physical altercation.

5 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

No bullet pointed list is going to help you. When you get in a fight, you will not think or plan. You will react how you are trained to react.

If you are not trained, you will flail like a spastic.

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

5 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When you're talking to a teenager, expect the kind of rhetorical traps a teenager would set to catch other teenagers.

Dialectic isn't really taught as part of public or informal education anymore, so, to them, "rational" is a just a praise word they apply to stuff they agree with and "irrational" is just a blame word they apply to things they don't.

So there's a lot of people there who do not understand the notion of any other sort of debate than the attempt to play "gotcha". They troll not because they want to, or even because they must, but because they do not understand that any other possibility exists.

There's no profit in engaging these people. It's like playing chess with a pigeon. They don't understand how the pieces move, or even the concept of a game. A pigeon playing chess doesn't know when it has lost.

In order to teach someone, you first have someone who has, unaided arrived at the idea that hey, maybe there is something here I don't understand, and, hey, I want to understand it.

Rational discourse is two scientists arguing over whether this piece of data means this thing or that thing.

Troll discourse is two high school kids trying to humiliate each other with carefully-crafted mockery and insults.

The reason the first can get off the ground and go somewhere is that the first pair have shared goals. They both want to know what the truth is. The second pair don't.

So what distinguishes rational (also called "modern") discourse is that is, at its core, a cooperative process. Troll (also called "postmodern") discourse is just two people trying to hurt each other's feels or humiliate them in front of some audience or other.

It's pointless.

So, when someone asks you a pointless question, give them a pointless answer. Treat it like a shit test. Or just say whatever crazy nonsense pops into your head, for the lulz.

Drives them mad.

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

5 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm not looking for a consensus with bluepillers. That's not going to happen.

You cannot reason someone out of any idea they didn't reason themselves into. When you're talking to a person like that, the goal of debate isn't to convince them or compromise with them. It's to make the unreason in their ideas obvious, so that people who are watching can see it.

What we are doing here is exposing the contradictions in the way they define (or fail to define) rape, and the way they use that as a weapon.

The basic trick here is that they take a word like "rape", and define it one sense (jumping out of the bushes and dragging a stranger into your van at gunpoint) when they want to talk about how it should be punished. Then talk about it in very broad sense (anything that can be construed as slightly pushy which leads to sex), when they want to talk about who should be punished for it. Or what it is.

An Englishman named Eric Blair (better known to the world as George Orwell) coined the term "doublethink" to describe the technique of sustaining two contradictory ideas by not thinking about both at the same time. This process is analogous.

They don't say "A man who has sex with a woman who doesn't say 'yes' out loud should be imprisoned for 25 to life" because that sounds ridiculous.

They say "A rapist should be imprisoned for 25 to life."

Then they say "Not obtaining affirmative consent is rape."

Now you see the trick.

$a = c$ sounds ludicrous. But if they can get you accept " $a=B$ " and " $b=c$ ", then you might not notice that "B" and "b" aren't quite the same.

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

5 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So would not agree with the entire thread in TBP alleging that I am a rape victim who is in denial, I guess.

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

5 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's hilarious.

Vegans are like feminists in a certain way. They mentally separate everything into two categories, oppressor and oppressed, and believe that the oppressed have only rights, and the oppressors only obligations.

Thus, we (oppressors) have the obligation to feed, care for, and protect horses (oppressed) without any incentive of receiving labour from them.

And thus, men (oppressors) have the obligation to create and maintain an entire civilization to feed, care for and protect women and children (oppressed) without being owed one single thing in return.

It's easy enough to refute this.

Open the front door, and let the cat out. The cat will either stare at you, wondering why you are standing there with the door open instead going to the refrigerator and getting it some ham, or it will wander out, and come back in a few hours, miaowing to be fed.

Can you take a "Red Pill" concept and explain it in such a way that bluepillers might agree?

5 upvotes · 5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Seems like TRP has its own vocabulary that makes it hard for newcomers to feel comfortable.

That's one of the things it is for.

[CMV] RP is Anti-Feminist Activism

5 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Those fuck-ass machines have taken over the gyms just like feminism has taken over the relationship landscape. I have to listen to Katy Perry and Taylor Swift blaring on the speakers and weave my way through this minefield of scrawny dudes, fat dudes, and chicks using all of these machines to wait my turn for the two rusty squat racks tucked in the corner. I dream of an older time when gyms weren't like this - more serious guys in there, more serious equipment in there.

Do what I did.

Buy squat rack. Put in home.

"My GF got off the pill without telling me and now she's pregnant" [X-post from sweden-subreddit]

5 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Not having a belly full of grenade shrapnel is better than the alternative.

Black Women Lack Femininity

5 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you feel that black women are the least feminine?

Yes.

I tend to avoid black women for this reason. There are some exceptions, but they are simply not common enough to make it worth my time to look for them.

Anti-game

5 upvotes · 26 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why not just be yourself

Because anything I do is by definition being myself.

I am being myself.

Why is "red pill" not simply called seduction?

5 upvotes · 24 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

History lesson time.

/r/TheRedPill came from /r/seduction.

What happened was that people started noticing /r/seduction, and began accusing them of mysoggyknee. The mods and most of the contributors caved and started trying to make changes to make the subreddit more palatable to someone who wasn't their audience.

They failed the collective shit test.

And, of course, this rendered their advice useless.

So /u/pk_atheist and /u/redpillschool started a new subreddit, with the goal that it would never, never, "tone down the message" or yield to public pressure.

"Most girls don't say no either. They think you're a good guy, and should pick up on the hints, they don't want to have to say "no" and admit to themselves what's happening."

5 upvotes · 23 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I wouldn't take any bets that the writer of the reddit post, and the writer of the slate article, are not actually the same person.

Do women ever fuck orbiter's?

5 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Sometimes. Very rarely.

Sometimes they are lonely, sometimes they are trying to make Chad jealous (lotsa luck). Sometimes they are just trying to keep their fish hooked.

But it's never worth it. Because they are not passionate about orbiters. Starfish pity sex.

Regarding what women feel they're "allowed" to do

5 upvotes · 19 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because women are inherently submissive, they tend to view the disapproval of others as an ironclad boundary restraining their behaviour.

They don't realize that men, not being inherently submissive, will often confront the same level of pressure with a shrug and the conclusion that you cannot please everyone.

Why is nudity illegal if it's so harmless???

5 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The people saying the first thing, and the people saying the second, are not the same people.

80/20 Rule

5 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

the first is not hypocrisy, because beauty is subjective.

Height is also not subjective. Is it hypocrisy for a woman to insist her partner be over 5'10, when she herself is under 5'10?

Penis possession is not subjective. Is it hypocrisy for a woman to insist her partner have a penis, when she herself does not have a penis?

Body fat percentage is not subjective. Is it hypocrisy for a woman to insist her partner be under 20% bodyfat, when she herself is not?

My morality is not open for negotiations

Then why are you still talking?

CMV: When Red Pillers show their true beta side some months into the relationship and get dumped the problem isn't that they are beta, the problem is that they got into the relationship under false premises.

5 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

their true beta side

Just be yourself

Your view is "Alphas are born, not made. I am upset that men are not born attractive are becoming that way. Just accept your fate."

And how do you plan to incentivize that?

Why isn't TRP doing anything about this "Matt Forney" guy?

5 upvotes · 7 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We're not a movement, and we like radicals just fine.

Can a plate spend the night?

5 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

That depends entirely on whether you want her to.

I work in hospital filled with mainly females. I am often talked about/topic of gossip. The gossip isn't negative, I am just annoyed that women are being nosy in my personal life while I do not care about their personal lives and wish they'd do the same. Why is this happening? It irritates me...

5 upvotes · 23 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

Ask yourself what Ernest Hemingway, Bruce Lee, Arnold Swartzenegger, Erik the Red, or Subotai would do. Would they care about a bunch of hens clucking? Would they even bother to find out what was being said? No.

Outliers are the majority.

5 upvotes · 18 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So what?

What do those 7.5% outliers have to offer me that feminine women don't? Is there anything they, and they alone, have, that I would want?

The moment when sexual misconduct leaflet is sexually discriminatory! (no resources for men?)

5 upvotes · 14 November 2015 · /r/MensRights

And you're surprised by this?

Don't be a fool. That's all the "sexual misconduct" thing ever was. A power play. Up with women, down with men. What you call "sexism" isn't some kind of ironic antithesis of the point. It is the point.

Stop expecting these people to be anything but ruthlessly machiavellian. Stop taking them at their word. Stop trying to reason with them. They are not hypocrites, they are simply liars.

All you accomplish by pointing out their inconsistencies is to tell them that the gig isn't up. That you aren't on to them yet. Because you still think that they are not doing this on purpose.

How much time and effort does it take to run your household?

5 upvotes · 14 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I wondered if anyone here knew how long it took to keep a home to a standard of respectable cleanliness?

Couple hours a week, tops.

Oh, sure, some can spend a lot more. They can choose to hand wash dishes instead of loading the dishwasher. They can scrub the kitchen floor with a toothbrush. And they can pretend their borderline OCD is some sort of necessity.

And some men will spend every weekend in the garage fiddling with their cars.

Here's how you distinguish between a "necessary task" and a hobby or obsession... state what would happen if you spent half the time on it that you currently spend.

If you show up to your job 20 hours a week, you'll be fired and have no money. If you clean 20 hours a week, your home will be spotless, and you'll be regarded as an eccentric.

The Hypocrisy of Kevin Powell

5 upvotes · 10 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah. The bible is the articulation of some parts of Western morality and ethics.

Let's really look at the Ten Commandments:

I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slavery. You shall have no other gods before me.

You must worship the god of the Jews, and no other god.

You shall not make for yourself a carved image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth.

Right, no carved images.

You shall not take the name of the LORD your God in vain, for the LORD will not hold him guiltless who takes his name in vain.

No taking the name in vain. Whatever that might mean.

Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor, and do all your work, but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. On it you shall not do any work, you, or your son, or your daughter, your male servant, or your female servant, or your livestock, or the sojourner who is within your gates. For in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that is in them, and rested on the seventh day. Therefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

No doing work on Sunday.

Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long in the land that the LORD your God is giving you.

Respect your parents.

You shall not murder.

Don't murder.

You shall not commit adultery.

Don't fuck other people's wives.

You shall not steal.

Don't take people's stuff.

You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.

Don't slander people.

You shall not covet your neighbor's house. You shall not covet your neighbor's wife or his male servant, or his female servant, or his ox, or his ass, or anything that is your neighbor's.

Don't want what your neighbor has.

So, in the matches-western-ethics column, we have:

- Don't murder.
- Don't steal.
- Don't slander people.
- Respect your parents.

In the doesn't-match column, we have:

- Don't make statues.
- Don't work on Sunday.
- Must be Jewish.
- Don't fuck other men's wives.

In makes-no-sense-at-all column, we have:

- No thinking envious thoughts.

In the what-the-fuck-does-that-even-mean column:

- No taking the name in vain.

So far, "Ten Commandments" matches "Western morality" on about a four out of ten, maybe five if you give them the wife-fucking thing.

And even in those, the bible can't be regarded as the "foundation" of those principles of ethics. Did no one have any idea that murder and stealing were off-limits before the Jews came along? Did non-Jewish cultures have no rules whatsoever about respecting and obeying your parents?

Nah.

Religion, like feminism, likes to take credit for a whole bunch of shit it didn't invent. Gotta keep the Betas obedient somehow. Tell 'em you're the only bulwark between them and chaos. That'll work.

48 Laws of Power talks a lot about your enemies. Define enemies.

5 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

Your enemy is anyone who is acting to hurt you... whether they mean to or not.

Canada's feminist Prime Minister Justin Trudeau targets GamerGate in anti-misogyny call to action

5 upvotes · 23 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

Hmmmm. Obviously, he doesn't even lift.

Sometimes she doesn't "feel like sucking" my dick.

5 upvotes · 22 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

You're coming off like a sperg, here.

Getting obedience from women isn't "giving orders and magically being obeyed because you have a penis".

Obedience is what you get after you lay the groundwork properly and get them trusting and respecting you. If you tell her to do something, and she freezes, it's because she doesn't know what the hell else to do. She won't obey you because she doesn't trust you, and she won't tell you what's going on in her head because she's afraid of how you might react.

I suppose you could get obedience from women by yelling or giving them the silent treatment every time they balk. But that would be shitty obedience, because they'd do only what you told them to.

The proper way to get obedience is to lay the groundwork and make her want to please you. Do your job properly, and a woman doesn't just submit to you... she does so joyfully and eagerly.

If she's quiet and sulky and scared to talk about what's up with her, then you are failing as a leader.

Question for MODs, ECs and other guys on top of their shit: why do you help us?

5 upvotes · 16 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

You look like men that have your shit together and are very busy living awesome fulfilling lives. Why do you spend your precious time helping us?

Because it's gratifying.

As I've gotten older, I've gradually, through planning, patience, and work, gotten the things that I spent my younger days yearning for. And I've discovered something.

No one ever truly knows who he is until he has abundance. All starving men want one thing... food. All thirsty men want one thing... water. When you are in a position of deficiency, your desires are defined by your circumstances, and your satisfaction is defined by fulfilling those needs.

But when you start having things, your positive motivations begin to emerge.

Men like Bill Gates and Warren Buffet became rich, then started giving away a fortune to charity, because they could achieve no additional happiness by getting more money. So they sought further happiness by pursuing the feeling of "I have made the world better, and people respect and appreciate me for it".

When I was no longer worried about how to get laid, how to get paid, or how to get respect, I found out what I enjoyed. I like mentoring others. I like being the kind of man for younger men that I wish I had for me, when I was young. It gives additional meaning to the struggle I went through in realizing all this stuff, back when there was no TRP and I was posting proto-red-pill rants on the main subreddit, and before that, when there was no reddit, and before that, when there was no internet.

There is so much wasted potential out there, men who could be so much better than they are, and are held back not by laziness, or by inability, but for the want of a little guidance, a little direction, a little encouragement.

Getting fanmail embarrassed me at first, because I didn't feel like I was doing all that much, just spending a few hours a week anonymously writing out my thoughts. But I gradually realized that there was a sea of neglected young men out there, for whom even the most casual effort I made to give them real guidance was more than they had ever received, even from their own parents.

A Neckbeard Manifesto - my thoughts as a neckbeard as a response to that one incel thread.

5 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's entirely possible. When was the last time you had your testosterone levels checked?

Why we shouldn't be encouraging teenage boys to go to the gym

5 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Are you some sort of autistic robot?

"Men" are not a hivemind. I am not going to agree with what any man has said ever.

Other men have criticized feminism for claiming to be an equality movement, but doing nothing to help men. They naively think feminism might ever help men, might be transformed into some kind of "gender equal rights" movement.

I'm not that stupid. Feminism is a thinly disguised power grab, and its "help", if offered, will always be a poison pill.

If any individual woman wants to help with male problems, she can start by listening to men, instead of talking at them.

Question: Is TRP filled with a bunch of beta nerds trying to live an "alpha" lifestyle?

5 upvotes · 22 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So your argument really isn't statistical at all. It's just incredulity dressed up in some bogus statistical calculations based on faulty premises.

You should have just gone with the incredulity, and not tried to front. The incredulity is an honest reaction, and we can talk about that. You don't have to try to dress it up with stuff to make it sound impressive, because you're not going to fool me.

And you don't need to fool me. Remember that I have stood where you stand now. Granted, I'm one of the "Vanguard Label" guys, so I wrote this information to TRP, rather than learning it from TRP, but there was still a time when I didn't yet know all of it. There was still a time when some of the things in those field reports would have seemed as ridiculous to me as they do to you.

But, as we developed this stuff and started applying it in our lives, crazy shit, unbelievable shit, started happening to us. The experience was like having cheat codes for reality. I sympathize with your disbelief in this stuff, because I wouldn't have believed it either.

In reality, it's not that all the field reports are lies or that we are just a collection of super awesome studly dudes. No, the truth is that being so attractive that crazy shit happens is much easier than anyone thought. The reason men think it's so hard is that they have been taught the wrong strategy. And it's very, very hard for them to realize that, because the process doesn't give feedback.

Women do not tell you why they're not into you. They mostly don't know that themselves.

So it's only when you reach what AI programmers and mathematicians would call a "zone of local optimization" (somewhat related to the concept of a zone of proximal development), that you can progress by trying stuff. What I mean here is that until you have enough technique to hit the target sometimes, you can't learn without help. We learn by repeating what we did when we get success. But if success is too rare and too random to be replicated, then that learning is impossible.

If you don't know how to hold the bow, you cannot practice hitting the target. And if you not only have no one to teach you how to hold a bow, but actually a whole lot of people telling you stuff that doesn't work... well, tales of people making trick shots are just going to be unbelievable.

I do wish novices would write more field reports. I feel they keep silent because they feel as if their newb successes are not relevant. But they are. And I and the rest of the leadership are working on ways to encourage them to write field reports, so that other beginners can be exposed to what they can expect to shoot for in their own immediate future.

In the meantime, what you can do in order to see a more balanced picture of what the whole process looks like (and not just the endgame), is to go and read /r/asktrp. There are some real novices asking questions there, and some intermediate players as well... teenage boys trying to get that first kiss, and collegiate players trying to get that first threesome.

Most of what we teach men in how to hold the bow, so they can hit the target sometimes. Then they will know enough to practice their archery on their own.

Question: Is TRP filled with a bunch of beta nerds trying to live an "alpha" lifestyle?

5 upvotes · 22 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You fail at statistics.

- You tried to apply general population stats to a non-random, self-selected set.

By your reasoning, only 5% of the women who read /r/bigboobproblems are a D cup or larger.

- You made the assumption that multiple traits were uncorrelated when calculating intersection probability.

By your reasoning, half of NBA players weigh under 180 lbs.

This does nothing but support my impression that MBA programs are simply an extended version of the liberal arts BA ... a hollow degree for retards who cannot do math, physical science, or formal logic. Please read this:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bayes%27_theorem

CMV: r/TheRedPill has become ridiculously extreme

5 upvotes · 16 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Again, is TRP immune to criticism?

Immune to criticism, no. But not answerable to you.

You can say anything you want, but the act of speaking implies you would like me to care. I will not do that, I will not value your opinion, until you can demonstrate that you are speaking in good faith.

Why must you prove this? Because most of you aren't.

I can tell the difference between someone who's looking for understanding and someone who's looking for ammunition. And the vast majority of TRP's detractors are the latter. Thus, until you can demonstrate you are one of the former, I will assume you are the latter, and treat your criticism as a shit test.

Call me a misogynist, and I'll say six misogynistic things you can quote me on. But you'll never be sure if I believe them, or if I am agreeing and amplifying to wind you up.

It's sad that we've come to this, but y'all didn't listen to the MRAs, so you got us.

Do incels really exist?

5 upvotes · 14 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not only do they exist, most of them are neither fat nor repulsive.

You are obviously a woman, because every man knows the answer to this question.

Any good response to "are you seeing someone" or "do you have a girlfriend"? If my intentions are NOT to get boyfriend-zoned.

5 upvotes · 14 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

Just smile and say "It's complicated".

Does TBP really believe that ALL of the guys on TRP NEVER get girls, EVER?

5 upvotes · 9 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you put a comment on TRP saying, "hey, maybe you should compliment your girlfriend at least once every day to let her know that she's important to you", where do think that would get downvoted to??

I don't have to speculate.

One of the basic TRP rules of thumb is "praise girls for something they did, not something they are".

40+ TRP'ers, squatting and body fat %

5 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

TRT can be simulated with juice if you cannot find a sympathetic physician. (Frankly, 90% of physicians are worthless if you aren't currently experiencing a life-threatening illness.)

Just get your bloodwork done regularly, know how to read it, and dose T-prop or T-cyp to about 1200-1500.

Track cholesterol, cortisol, thyroid, CBC, test total and free, estradiol, CRP, and so on.

How to deal with hot girls that are really shy and have bad conversational skills?

5 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

You may be dealing with someone who is more submissive than you are used to.

Submissive girls are actually somewhat more guarded than others because they know they will be far more vulnerable when they actually do begin to trust and open up.

These are actually my favorite kind. Here's how I game them; firmer and gentler at the same time. Firmer in the sense that you:

- lead more
- apply more compliance tests
- be more direct about your intentions
- take the conversational spotlight more

Gentler in the sense that you:

- play less aloof
- more overtly reward submission to a compliance test
- use praise or encouragement more (so long as you can do it from a position of strength and abundance).
- watch her carefully to make sure she is okay (because she will defend herself from you less)

A submissive girl doesn't like responsibility, and she is usually all too willing to accept a subordinate position to you in order to avoid it. You will have to do most of the talking at first, but she will be happy to be an engaged, appreciative audience.

Once you get her in bed, pin her wrists. If she immediately gets excited, gradually introduce spanking, handcuffs, whips, etc.

You see many male-to-female sex changes but relatively few female-to-male sex changes. Why do you think that is?

5 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/MensRights

repeatedly redefined "normal" regarding sperm counts so as to prevent the majority of men being considered "abnormal"

Ditto for testosterone counts. Steadily falling, and the medical community keeps redefining normal.

From personal experience:

I never thought of this in any context but the abstract until I started using steroids. My T levels on a pre-use test were twice average, and when geared up they are about 5 times greater. By contrasting the two states and extrapolating, I was able to truly understand, in a visceral sense, what this is doing to the male population... I began to see how my attitudes and personality had been a product of my (abnormal) healthy testosterone levels, how supplementing extra testosterone affected them, how I felt when I screwed up injection timing and was low.

And I began to understand why most modern men around me seem emasculated. Because they are. Not metaphorically. Literally.

When you're in a relationship, does it bother you to think about all the girls you're missing out of fucking?

5 upvotes · 30 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

No, because most of them are crap. Even if they are pretty, they're still crap. Narcissistic, selfish, vapid, entitled, boring. If I meet one that's an exception, I fuck her. Then I tell my LTR about it.

But that's beside the point. If being in a relationship with a woman makes you feel like you are "missing out", then what are you doing in a relationship with that woman?

Look, you have a choice to make. Be single, or be in a relationship. If you're single, fuck who you want. If you want a relationship, pick girls who don't make you regret it.

For me, that means not insisting on exclusivity. That's not so much about lack of variety for me (I'd rather fuck my girl than the vast majority of girls) as it is about not being told I "can't" do something. I make the rules.

If you want that, find a girl who will agree to it. If you can't, raise your SMV until you can. If you're badass enough, girls will be willing to share you rather than do without.

When women are asking for validation, in which situations should you validate them?

5 upvotes · 22 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Validation is a reward.

You don't give a dog a biscuit in the hopes that it will do a trick for you. You make it do a trick to earn a biscuit.

RP: Individual Women?

5 upvotes · 21 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A lot less than it tells me about women in general.

TRP generalizations work like statistics. They don't tell you the details of what one experience will be like, they tell you what the aggregate of lot of experiences will be like.

This is not very useful to women, because they have one woman to evaluate (themselves). It is very useful to men, because they have lots of women to evaluate (all their potential mates and sexual partners).

What if all men followed the Red Pill Ideal: Attractive, fun, strong & healthy, not push overs, what would society look like?

5 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, we're cooperative with each other. Just not with you.

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillers themselves.

5 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you even have a point? Some sort of thesis?

You make a characterization, and you expect me to take you seriously instead of giving you a richly deserved mocking?

I am condescending to people like you because I cannot be otherwise. It's not merely irresistible but actually inescapable, because you say things that are simply not possible to take seriously. There is literally nothing I can say that makes response to tone look like a coherent argument, or you like an adult.

I don't know how you can possibly expect me to debate you. I cannot debate you for the same reason I cannot play chess with a pigeon. It doesn't understand the rules, it doesn't know how the pieces move, it doesn't even understand the concept of a game. It just struts about on the board making random noises and shitting on things. There is nothing I can do to make a pigeon look like a chessplayer. I cannot even beat a pigeon at chess, because it doesn't even understand the game well enough to successfully lose.

What the hell is your thesis? What are your premises? What you are you trying to convince me of, and how are you trying to make a case for it?

What on earth has happened to educational system in the last few decades? It was never good, but at least when I went through it people emerged understanding the idea that when you write something, you to have:

- A point you are trying to make.
- Some sort of argument to support that point.

Until you have that, I can't (literally am not able to) take you seriously. All I can do is either laugh, or ignore you.

What type of women do Redpill tactics work on?

5 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yep, all you have to do is post a logical fallacy. Which is something I can generally count on you for.

What type of women do Redpill tactics work on?

5 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<https://i.imgur.com/0zC7gQw.jpg>

Q4BP: Sympathy for Sluts and Ugly Girls?

5 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It also took them having to go for perhaps different types of guys than the ones they were used to, but they didn't want to do that, so they kept spreading their legs and hoping this time it would work.

Women are not vending machines where you insert kindness coins until sex falls out...

... and men are not slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the intimacy prize.

Excessive promiscuity often has a negative effect on a man's ability to commit

5 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed. I explicitly endorse certain double standards. This is because men and women are different, and have different needs.

The primary duty everyone has in a relationship is to stay attractive to the other person. This is what keeps relationships alive and healthy.

Now, "attractive" is a complex mix, but the important thing is, it's different for men and women. Which means that male and female relationship duties are different. I'll give you some examples:

- A girl can cry to her man anytime she needs to. This is because tears do not render a girl one iota less attractive (apart from the temporary red-eyes-and-runny-makeup sense).
- A man cannot cry to his girl, more or less ever. This is because tears shatter his image of being strong and reliable, which she needs in order to feel attracted to him.
- A girl cannot cheat on her man, ever. Male sexual jealousy is inherent and ingrained, and a woman becomes much less attractive when he knows someone else's cock was in her last Thursday.
- A man can fuck other women, because infuriating as it may be, it leaves him just as attractive, if not more so. It simply constitutes proof that other women find him attractive.

Monogyny is a cultural phenomenon. Monandry is inherent. This is why there are so many polygynous cultures which have been very successful, but scarcely ever the reverse.

Do some redpillers underestimate how much of their world-view bluepillers disagree with? If so, why?

5 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I run into three categories of TRP haters.

- Those who hate it on the grounds that it clashes with their personal notion of morality.
- Those who think it's all bullshit that doesn't work and all the field reports are lies.
- Those who understand it so poorly, and write so incoherently, that I am unable to understand what point they are trying to make, or what they even think they are talking about.

Over time, the 3rd category has remained constant in numbers. The second has decreased, and the first has increased.

We used to get a hell of a lot more *"Women like being treated like peeeeeeeeeeepeople!" and "That only works on club sluts!" (who evidently aren't people?).

Now we get a lot more "Of course it works! It works because it's eviiiiiiil brainwashing and abuse!".

This, of course, represents a fallback position. With 120K subscribers, and all the chorus of younger men screaming "Thankyouthankyouthankyou! I was a kissless virgin and women like me now!"... it's no longer feasible to claim this stuff is a myth. I get fanmail now. It's amazing how easy it is to earn young men's gratitude... because no one else but us has ever cared about them enough about to risk looking the villain in order to help them out.

They can't really pretend that what we're doing is stupid anymore, so they have to claim that it's evil.

But as we reach more and more men, that fallback position will crumble. You cannot, after all, argue that all men are evil, and expect people not to laugh. That's why "feminist" is increasingly becoming a dirty word.

The real objection to TRP, of course, is not that it treats women as they aren't people, but that it treats men like they are.

Emma Watson Accuses Fashion World Of 'Racism' & 'Sexism' against Women when they make 148.8% more than Men in the Modeling Industry

5 upvotes · 11 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Why exactly would I care about the opinions of a twentysomething whose greatest accomplishment in life is getting paid a lot of money to pretend to be a wizard?

Can you laugh at sexism?

5 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I like that Magua quote.

I see Magua as a man who comes from a society where men have responsibilities, and women have responsibilities. Where men can be lazy, and women can be lazy, because they both have things they have to do. Magua is puzzled and annoyed because he is confronting a gynocentric society where women have few or no responsibilities, and men are their servants.

In context, he has just been told to prioritize women's comfort above the mission. He sees the white men as they are... afraid of women's disapproval to the point where they will sacrifice everything else not just to preserve women's lives, but even for women's comfort or convenience.

Magua develops contempt for these white men because they are foolishly unable to adapt to the different situation they find themselves in. Magua knows the rules of the wilderness very well, but they will not listen to him, because they are unable to discard the rules of the city, or even to grasp that the city and the wilderness have different rules.

Michelle Langley on Infidelity

5 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh I believe feminism helps men!

I'm sure you do, in sort of an abstract ideological way. Let me guess... "Abolishing gender roles will remove the ones that disadvantage men, especially marginalized men".

Heard it before, not impressed.

A movement invented by women, populated by women, and led by women doesn't get to unilaterally decide what's best for men.

I think red pillers are most upset about what constitutes as rape by law nowadays and hate feminism for it.

By this apparent non-sequitur, I assume you actually mean that that quote about "not benefiting my penis" was actually supposed to be about objecting to the expanded definition of rape.

That's the most articulate possible interpretation I can make of this word salad, and it's still flawed.

The problem is that objecting to the criminalization of the average sex act isn't just "doesn't benefit my penis". It's "any random mattress carrier can send any man to prison by having sex with him". It amounts to a blank-check bill of attainder that any woman can issue against any man she can persuade to have sex with her under the most innocuous of circumstances. You're damn right we're not gonna go for that.

Reddit Front Page: Ronda Rousey on "Do Nothing Bitches"

5 upvotes · 3 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And this is why Ronda Rousey can run about pretending to be some special magic woman who can fight men.

Because she (and her marketing team) knows that contest will not happen.

It can't be allowed to happen, because it destroys the narrative.

Why should a high-value man ever enter a LTR?

5 upvotes · 2 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Instead of asking what women have to offer, ask yourself what you want. Then simply refuse to LTR women who do not offer those things. Whether you have any options who do, will determine whether or not you should have one.

Fitness Motivator Goes in on obese people; mixed reactions follow.

5 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wrote this up months ago

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/353buo/eating_101_fork_use_for_dummies/

... and idiots are still babbling about conservation of energy.

Fitness Motivator Goes in on obese people; mixed reactions follow.

5 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stop endangering the newbies by spreading misinformation.

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/353buo/eating_101_fork_use_for_dummies/

- Adipose tissue is not made out of "energy".
- Food uptake is not an independent variable.
- Activity level is no an independent variable either.
- Thermodynamics applies everywhere, but it is not relevant to every issue.

why do mother's (and other female relatives) betafy their sons?

5 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

Because they don't know shit, and they don't think about the consequences of their actions. Only a woman's current emotional state is real to her.

And if you let children do whatever they want, they'll eat cake for every meal.

Question for men: would you rather date a formerly promiscuous woman who makes your heart skip and butterflies flutter in your stomach, or the virgin who you feel nothing for?

5 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The point is "having feelings for a woman" and "woman is a slut" are not independent.

They affect each other. You can't separate them.

How do I be direct without sounding forceful

5 upvotes · 20 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

Why would you want to not sound forceful?

Has TBP actually read the ENTIRE sidebar on TRP?

5 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Sexual strategy is amoral"

5 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Just hope that you don't end up like Lance Armstrong.

Wealthy, successful, and famous?

getting a male partner

5 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They will likely create robots and machines to do all the hard stuff

"They"?

By which you mean "men". Because which part of an industrial robot do you know how to build?

So basically what you are saying is "Men should, like, make a whole bunch of robots that do all the work, and then just, like, give them to us. So we can be independent of men. And stuff."

Well, good luck with that.

What are the effects of women and men not fulfilling their original gender roles.

5 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<https://i.imgur.com/U7Ghu2sh.jpg>

getting a male partner

5 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not like men and women will live in completely different societies , they will still use each other's services

Ah, I see your confusion. You think wealth is just produced by this thing called "the economy", which is a cloud consisting of all people equally.

The economy is male labour. If men didn't just give stuff to women for being women, women would barely have any stuff.

What female "services" do I use? Bringing me food in a restaurant? Mopping the floor? What is it besides sex and kids that you're good for?

First date post RP. I'd really appreciate feedback.

5 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Upon starting to make out, she said, "I don't want you to think that what happened last time will always happen." Thinking this was a shit test I said, "that's ok, I'll still have my fun."

Mistake.

This was ASD. She spent the previous three nights worrying about whether or not she was a whore because she sucked dick on the first date.

So she tried to dial it back so she wouldn't feel bad.

When you said

that's ok, I'll still have my fun.

You submitted to her frame. Now she feels worse.

Because not only did she suck a man's dick the same night she met him, he turned out to not even be a special magic man who casts a spell of attraction wherever he goes, but just an ordinary shlub.

So what should you have said?

"Oh, you mean the cocksucking?" (Get it right out in the open. Never let a girl euphemism her way around the subject of sex.)

Relaxed smile.

"Meh. Whatever happens, happens."

or

"Usually does. We'll see."

Doesn't matter what you say here, as much as how you say it. Give the impression that:

- She's not setting a ground rule. She's making a prediction.
- Her prediction is probably wrong, but it's kinda cute.
- You're not worried.
- You give zero fucks.

It's not anger. It's not hate. It's pain.

5 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have no interest in relationships.

So why are you here?

To make a point, I will try to translate NON-RP advice into RP lingo, and RP advice into NON-RP lingo.

5 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Shhh.

Don't give away the game. RP lingo is supposed to be offensive. We want it to be offensive. I sometimes edit my writing after finishing to make sure it's offensive enough.

Offensiveness is TRP's immune system against weak, limpwristed, emotionally fragile postmodernist faggots.

CMV RPW are hypocrites and I'm not a troll for calling them out

5 upvotes · 6 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Look at the votes on this sub.

Bluepill opinions don't get downvoted into negatives. Redpill opinions don't get downvoted into negatives.

You know who gets downvoted into negatives? You, that's who.

I spotted you for a bully early on, that special kind of bully who looks for weak targets and shies away in fear from anyone who hits back. But it looks like others are not far behind me. This happens to you a lot, doesn't it?

You strike me as one of those garden-variety sociopaths who aren't smart or patient enough to be real predators, and aren't disciplined or wise enough to be valuable leaders or warriors. Too unempathetic to earn inspire love, too greedy and shortsighted to form lasting alliances with others, such people bounce from social circle to social circle, always with a story of how the last group was a big bunch of stupid jerks, and they're the victim.

Basically, everyone is downvoting you because you suck. And if you go somewhere else, you will still suck there, unless you wise up and learn from experience.

Here's your lesson for the day: If you want people to accept or even tolerate you, you must be either likeable or useful. Choose one, get good at it.

how would you want your prenup to read. (consider it a non marriage reproductive contract)

5 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm sorry, but you're not quite receiving the message.

A contract is a piece of paper. What matters is what a judge will decide (and if men with guns will enforce that decision).

You cannot control a judge with a piece of paper, when he has unbridled legal and social power to disregard it. That piece of paper is just one more thing you say to a system that's designed to ignore anything you say.

Family court is not there to enforce contracts. It is there to enforce society's social expectations, which are:

- Shut up.
- Pay money.
- No, more money than that.
- You are always the perpetrator.
- She is always the victim.
- The children are hers when it's time to make decisions about their upbringing or lives.
- The children are yours when it's time to pay for their stuff.
- The money is the children's when it's time to legally justify you paying it.
- The money is hers when it's time to decide how it will be spent.
- Fuck you.

The only way to beat this game is not to play.

Do. Not. Fucking. Put. A. Ring. On. It. Under. Any. Circumstances.

How come TRP is inherently anti-free speech?

5 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Come on, dude. Bit of a hyperbole there. Killing puppies is totally unacceptable to a sane person. I don't think my comment was a crime against humanity.

Except killing pigs is perfectly acceptable. Why? They are much the same in terms of sentience.

You see?

When I said that what you did was not sane, I was not calling you, personally, out as a madman. I was telling you that you come from a culture of madmen, and you were repeating the madness that you had been taught.

You can't figure out what is sane and what isn't, because your measuring stick for "sanity" is bent.

What TRP tries to teach men to do is look at the measuring stick. Step outside the values you have been taught, and examine them from the outside.

That is a very difficult mental transition to make. But it changes everything. This why we describe "taking the red pill" as a sort of awakening moment. Suddenly you see the world in a different light. It's what Buddhists might call "Satori".

I can tell you haven't had this moment yet. Because you say:

I am in great shape, I have a career in finance, I've just always had natural success with women, I applied a lot of RP principles to my life before I even knew what they were.

Precisely. You may have the trappings of success, but that has actually made it harder for you to wake the fuck up. Until you learn to examine your own values, and think about your own thoughts, until you learn to question the default values you were brought up with, you will not only be unready to contribute, you will be a danger to others trying to make this transition.

It wasn't what you said that got you banned. It was what we learned about you on account of what you said. Someone who has "taken the red pill" understands why we say "faggot".

Anytime you want to get unbanned, ~~snatch the stone from my hand~~ PM me and tell me why we let people say things like "faggot" and call women "bitches". If you show you understand, I'll make that happen. But you won't be able to yet, because you don't.

Calling Bruce Jenner a Woman Is an Insult to Women (And Men)

5 upvotes · 3 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't want men who don't want to be men walking around. Let him be a woman.

I can't let him be a woman, any more than I can let him be a dragon, the Berlin wall, or the colour orange. I can't let him be the planet Mercury, a musical note (middle 'C'), or the king of the Andromeda galaxy.

It is not within my power, or anyone else's, to make him into any of those things.

Calling Bruce Jenner a Woman Is an Insult to Women (And Men)

5 upvotes · 3 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Just because the justifications given in the book are a bunch of nonsense about invisible sky wizards doesn't mean that the actual instructions are never sound.

<https://yourlogicalfallacyis.com/the-fallacy-fallacy>

There is some overlap between RP advice for a healthy society, and religious law. This is not surprising. What religion really is, is the enforcement mechanism for a culture's social mores.

Awakened men would be well advised to treat any holy book as a source of raw ideas to consider, not pre-vetted sound advice.

Calling Bruce Jenner a Woman Is an Insult to Women (And Men)

5 upvotes · 3 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The idea that everyone should bow down to his mental illness and call him a woman is a triumph of feelings over logic.

Precisely. This is what /u/humansockpuppet calls a "collaborative lie". A lie that people not only tell themselves, not only tell others, but a lie that they demand that others participate in and help them tell.

You cannot turn a man into a woman. Maybe someday we will have the technology, but today we do not. Have whatever you want done to yourself, but don't expect me to participate in your delusion.

Is Blue Pill advice really bad ?

5 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Let's see.

On the one hand, we have a set of principles laid out for me by other men, men experienced in attracting women, which have worked for me quite a few times.

On the other, we have advice that didn't work for me when I was young, as reinterpreted by a self-described asexual woman, someone who isn't a man, has never seduced a woman while being a man, who has no interest in women, who isn't even interested in attracting anyone.

I'm not sure whether to laugh at the ridiculousness of it all, or to be sad for you in your obvious cluelessness, and wonder how you managed to survive childhood without sticking a fork in a light socket, or wandering off a cliff.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rKMMCPeiQoc>

New, learning how to become a man... no, REALLY.

5 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/askTRP

You're not going to like this one.

So you think you want to be a man. The truth is, you can't. You're not one, and the technology doesn't exist to make you one. That's no one's fault, not even the Romans.

What you have is choices from among your available options.

- You can attempt to to modify yourself, with drugs and hormones and surgery, into some sort of hybrid resembling what you think you want to be. But be aware that you won't be a man, and that you'll be seen as a freak, and that, most importantly of all, many medical institutions have stopped performing this kind of work because it doesn't help patient outcomes. In other words, people who think they will be happy as a facsimile of the opposite sex... usually won't.
- You attempt to modify yourself with hormones to be more comfortable as a woman. I don't know if this works or not.
- You can attempt to find some peace as a butch gay woman. I don't know if this works or not, either.

Unpleasant truth: The red pill is not a cure-all. It's not a religion, with miracles and magic and friendly supernatural beings that can solve every problem. It can't cure HIV, it can't stop the heat death of the universe, it has no answer for the drought in California, and it can't fix whatever developmental glitch happened with you when you were in the womb.

There probably aren't any answers to this problem that you would actually like. What you want doesn't exist yet, and it may never.

You might just be left with choosing the options you hate the least.

Karen Straughan (Girlwriteswhat) succinctly discusses that men don't hate women, and defends TRP. Good read!

5 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In any group with non-mainstream political or social views, it's always easy to score points by accusing others (especially the relative moderates) of "going soft" or "selling out". Since moderates have no easy defense against this, such groups tend to "extremify" over time.

I can't help but wonder if you're going that route here.

Why would you be concerned if MRAs in general, or Karen specifically, public disavows us at some later date? One of the basic things we are about here is not caring what the mainstream thinks. If AVfM takes out a Superbowl TV spot specifically to make an announcement about how Whisper is a dangerous problematic triggering rapey misogynist, it won't make me blot one word.

On the flip side, I won't let the fact that Karen is female, or has a very different strategy for tackling the problems we agree are there, or disagrees with me about many things, stop me from being welcoming to someone who has made me feel like I want to be.

I understand where you're coming from. Sometimes men need to be very vigilant about standing up to women, because it's not easy to be angry at women or hate them. We are hardwired to love and protect them. Being the misogynist civilization needs right now takes some effort.

But fear of going soft is just another kind of fear.

The hope the MRM offers is a false hope. We need to make TRP aware of that, yes. But the MRM doesn't know that. They think they can win this fight. I'm not going to spit on them for being wrong, or treat them with the contempt I would reserve for an enemy. I'm just going to keep telling the truth.

Is AWALT totally useless?

5 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

However, the redpill specializes in sexual strategy for heterosexual men so we apply it to just women.

Not only that, unawakened heterosexual men are specially vulnerable to women who will fuck them over.

This is absolute Gold: Maggie Gyllenhaal gets introduced to the wall by Hollywood producer. Reddit SJWs and middle-aged women go ape shit in the comment section

5 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's almost as if these women were never really great actresses to begin with, and just got some kind of temporary career boost from being young and hot.

Evidence of plot by 13 girls to frame boy as serial rapist: "this is going to be so much fun", "we should sacrifice him to Satan". He has been in prison for one year now

5 upvotes · 20 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

This is quite an idiotic way to look at it, if I may say so without meaning any offence.

S'alright, I'm male. You can insult me without "looking bad" or "hurting the movement".

Being insulting and foul-mouthed does not impress anyone - it plays into the hands of all your detractors, and that is true whatever your cause is. Being sensible and intelligent in your discourse, on the other hand, frightens and puts your opponent in a much harder situation, because your discourse appeals to an outside listener.

All of this is sound reasoning... based upon a faulty premise.

Your faulty premise is in the word appeals. You are assuming that victory for the MRM is to be won by appeals to the sympathy of outsiders. Appealing to the sympathy of Big Daddy Patriarchy worked for the women's movement, right?

Well, yes... because they are women. Human beings are hardwired to sympathize with women, even unfamiliar women, even the idea of a woman as an abstraction. So long as your detractors are primarily women, you will never win public sympathy, and always be considered a bit of a joke. You have as little chance against a woman in a public sympathy contest as she has against you in fight.

Be as reasonable, well-spoken, mild, polite, and noncontroversial as you can, and they'll call you weak and a crybaby instead of dangerous, and the audience will still sympathize with them. Because vagina. And because no one respects a weak man.

No, winning hearts and minds is not the route to victory, because women will always be better at winning hearts, and feminists have turned off their minds. The way for the MRM to win is to swell its ranks to the point where it cannot be ignored. In truth, men can take power back anytime we set aside our weak, craven indulgence of silly women and act together.

Why?

Because we make everything, and we maintain everything, and we feed everyone, and we keep the lights on. Without us, women (feminists included) freeze or starve to death within a couple of weeks.

Women can get results by crying to Daddy. We have to get results by going on strike.

I've tried to understand the TRP perspective but there seem to be some falacies. Correct me if I'm wrong.

5 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This doesn't so much appear to an attempt to understand as a series of thinly veiled arguments. You certainly haven't read the many articles I have written on precisely these subjects.

Do you believe women should be lead by men?

5 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes.

Alpha females

5 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do they exist?

No.

The terms "alpha" and "beta" as used in a technical sense by TRP, mean:

Alpha: Behaviour that earns mating privileges, or a man who habitually engages in such behaviour.

Beta: Behaviour that fails to earn or loses mating privileges, or a man who habitually engages in such behaviour.

Now, why do we make this distinction? Because we have observed that almost all women, but a minority of men, have what we would call "mating privileges". Genetic research confirms this, showing that almost 90% of all the women who ever lived had descendants, while only about a third of men did.

This means that there is no such thing as an "alpha" female, because all women need to do to be attractive enough to have descendants is not have some defect that makes them horrifically unattractive. The alpha-to-beta scale is irrelevant with regard to women.

Now, a female can act like an alpha male (usually in a highly sheltered society where subordinate males exist to protect her, and conflict is limited to high abstracted and ritualized forms), but this is irrelevant because it has no positive impact whatsoever on her value as a mate. This behaviour is therefore at best an optional hobby for women.

For men, it's their job in life.

Women don't know what they want

5 upvotes · 5 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's not really very specific.

Do you mean :

- "I have seen research that shows better {amino acid ratios | bioavailability | other good things} in red meat."
- "In my experience as a lifter, red meat helps me much more than fish or turkey".
- "In my experience as a personal trainer, red meat helps my clients much more than chicken, etc."

Personally, I think bioavailable protein is bioavailable protein, and red meat is better simply because it comes prepackaged with fat calories which make that protein into a surplus, so it can be used for building materials.

Modern sexism in a nutshell.

5 upvotes · 5 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

Joss Whedon is a closet sexual submissive. Watch a selection of his stuff and you'll see what I mean.

Another "open" relationship that devolves into stabbing by jealous wife when BB regain his senses. Pussy pass galore.

5 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There is only one kind of acceptable "open" relationship, and that is the male-only hall pass.

Why?

Because women are still attracted to a cheating man. Angry, yes, but attracted. Men are repulsed by a cheating woman, unless they are so defective as to have a cuckold fetish.

Again, why?

Because this is hard wired into human beings.

Again, why?

Because there is no such thing as maternity fraud, barring the occasional hospital mixup. Women always get that 100% certainty that the child they are pouring their love and resources into carries their genes.

Men have no such guarantee. So they must mate-guard the fuck out of their women. Unless she is a ho and gets no investment from him anyway.

Female mate-guarding is not a thing. Female enforcement of male fidelity is not mate-guarding, it's a power grab.

The only sexual fidelity you should ever give a woman is the opportunity to make you lose interest in her competition.

Woman gets rejected for a job because she wore a t-shirt and was late, complains that it's sexism

5 upvotes · 17 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

This is why, when I choose not to hire a candidate, I never tell them why.

Oh, I'd love to give feedback... but in a socialist political environment, power is wielded by those who can tell the best sob story. So all I would be doing is giving people ammunition to sue me on some trumped up bullshit.

In truth, hiring decisions based on an interview are extremely subjective, and there's no way around that. We are leveraging our evolved-in mechanisms for judging other people by very subtle social cues. There's no way anyone can say for certain that they "should have" been hired based on an interview.

When I interview, I'm not just looking for programming skills. I need someone who can work and be productive in my existing team, and not disrupt it. That means everything about their social presentation is totally on the table, and that's different for men and women.

In men, I have to watch out for things like belligerence, extreme shyness, or an alpha male personality which isn't coupled with patience and a thick skin. In women, I have to watch out for attention-whores and victim-card players.

Judging by this article, this woman is both, and I'd say the guy dodged a bullet when he picked up on that.

But, being a typical software engineer, he lacked a normal, healthy level of Machiavellianism and was inappropriately honest, saying things that you can only say anonymously (in the way that I am doing right now).

The ONLY reason you ever give someone why you didn't hire them is that you were "Impressed with their qualifications, but there was another candidate who was a slightly better fit, and we only had budget for one new hire."

That's the best lie to tell, because no one can call you out on it. It's plausible because very often it's the truth, and it's almost impossible to tell when it's not. Even if they found out you didn't hire anyone, what could they do... sue you for lying? There's no tort there.

Don't tell people shit about you or your life that they don't need to know. Especially not a woman who gives off even the faintest odor of victim-card player.

The stronger you are, the less anyone cares about you

5 upvotes · 16 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So what is Craig's reward for his complete inability to take any personal responsibility for his choices, his actions and therefore his life? The endless admiration of an entire room full of people waxing lyrical about his "courage" and "strength".

Weak-minded people like people who are weaker than them, because seeing and hearing those people makes them feel good about themselves.

Strong-minded people like people who are stronger than them, because seeing and hearing those people inspires them to improve themselves.

If you wish to improve yourself, hang around people you envy, and teach yourself to respect and learn from them instead.

If you wish to stagnate, hang around people you pity, and mentally masturbate about how much better than them you are.

Married 1 week and put on solitary.

5 upvotes · 15 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

You are exaggerating.

Many drugs of addiction cause serious health problems. In addition, drug abuse can cause addicts to ruin themselves socially and financially, sometimes physically (lack of drugs doesn't cause you to wrap your car around a tree).

However, your basic point, that many of the problems of addiction are actually caused by prohibition, is sound.

The Era of Pity

5 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You are not fat because you have a chronic knee injury. You are fat because you eat too much and don't work out.

Correction: You are fat and don't work out because you eat the wrong things.

More meat. Less bread and sugar.

CMV: Men who wish to, but fail to get laid, or hook-up in their high school/college years are mentally damaged.

5 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not the lack of sex, itself, that leads to damaged men. It's the lack of validation.

This bears repeating. Men in prison, on ships, or in other isolated situations where there are no women do just fine. This is not so of men who are surrounded by women who won't fuck them, especially when those women are enthusiastically fucking other men.

Or, as Jay-Z put it:

Rap critics that say he's "Money Cash Hoes"
I'm from the hood, stupid... what type of facts are those?
If you grew up with holes in your zapatos
You'd celebrate the minute you was havin' dough
I'm like, fuck, critics, you can kiss my whole asshole
If you don't like my lyrics you can press fast forward

[x-post /r/quityourbullshit] Sarah Silverman called out by comedy club owner for lying about gender pay discrimination

5 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

MRAs and TRP readers tend to agree on what the problems are, but disagree about the best solution. TBP doesn't see any problem except that MRAs and TRP readers exist.

Sometimes women's false accusations of rape are just a "mistake" and the women are in "desperate need of help".

5 upvotes · 8 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

Because feminism is, and has always been about whatever narrative gives women the most power, options, and free cookies, regardless of circumstances.

Quick recommendations for building an aesthetic male body

5 upvotes · 7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The US is ruled by a small group of wealthy septuagenarian legislators and their wealthier (and often older) contributors. They are voted into office by the fine folks of the AARP, the most powerful and sinister political lobby in the nation, influencing the largest and most politically unified bloc of voters.

To understand what is illegal in the US, just use one rule of thumb... "Does it scare a 70 year old?".

Marijuana: Does it scare a 70 year old? Yes. Illegal.

Anabolic steroids: Does it scare a 70 year old? Yes. Illegal.

Wine: Does it scare a 70 year old? No. Legal.

Firearms: Does it scare a 70 year old? Sometimes. Still legal, but tightly restricted, and wound about with bureaucracy.

So, yes, anabolics are illegal. Sometimes you can get a sketchy doc to prescribe you a little Test-C, but anything else, you're committing a crime. The courts think it's bullshit, the cops think it's bullshit (especially since a lot of them are on gear themselves), but if you come to their attention in a way they can't ignore, they'll certainly fuck you hard rather than risk their careers.

So men have to resort to underground labs, and hope what they get is clean, correctly dosed, and reliable. It's the male equivalent of back alleys and coat hangers, but lawmakers don't give a fuck because it's just men.

But we do it anyway, because black market steroids are better than no steroids at all.

Small Dog Syndrome

5 upvotes · 3 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They also wash my dishes.

The Origins of Circumcision?

5 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, I get that. The problem is your choice of focus.

Which is a worse problem, young people being thrown in prison for victimless "crimes" like smoking marijuana, or millionaires being killed by lightning?

If I ask this question, and you answer that being killed by lightning is worse than being thrown in prison, I will suspect you are being disingenuous.

We have already done everything we, as a society, can do about female circumcision. About male circumcision, well, we haven't even bothered to stop doing it.

Try becoming a real man rather than pretending to be one.

5 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd like a little bit more specifics on that.

I got this very idea of "personality = habits" by talking to cognitive science and neuroscience professors while studying neural nets from an AI perspective. I ended getting exposed to a fair amount of the cognitive psychology end as well.

The idea comes from a really interesting psychology prof who was very keen on the idea that the popular concept of "personality" was a bad notion, because it is highly misleading to the layman. His research showed that behaviour and even perception were much more context-dependent, and much more mutable, than people think.

Being happy makes you smile. But we also know, from solid research, that smiling makes you happy. Most relationships between internal state and external behaviour are causal in both directions.

Anyway, I tend to agree with how Kurt Vonnegut put it in Mother Night:

We are what we pretend to be, so we must be careful about what we pretend to be.

Although I would make that:

We become what we pretend to be, so we must be careful about what we pretend to be.

... hence my use of the term habit.

From a philosophical standpoint, all that matters is our appearance and behaviour. That is the only thing others experience of us. Therefore we change the only self that matters when we change our behaviour.

At first, this does indeed appear "fake", because it is unpracticed and inconsistent. But a "natural" action is nothing but an unnatural action we have practiced enough times. Human beings have to learn everything, including walking and talking.

What the BP circus calls "being genuine" is nothing more than continuing your current habits. This is, of course, anathema to any strategy of self-improvement.

I was wrong to talk of 'feminisation' (of males) - it's worse than that

5 upvotes · 19 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Decades ago you could slap your secretary on the ass and tell her to get you a cup of coffee and she would get you a cup of coffee.

[citation needed]

BP: Given the choice between having romantic relations with someone IRL who browses r/TheRedPill or r/foreveralone, who would you choose?

5 upvotes · 17 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, I see. You were constructing your own straw man. Well, by all means, continue.

Or try overreaching slightly less.

If I am an advertiser, and I am questioning a focus group which you are part of, and you say that what you read the most is translations of great classic literature from other cultures, that is unreliable.

Why?

Because if I look in your home, I might find mostly trashy romance novels, because you were lying out of embarrassment.

Or I might find mostly tech manuals, because you thought only about what you like to read, and didn't realize that most of your reading is done for work.

Either way, I can't take your word for it.

Why does this concept anger and frighten you so?

The most important two videos you will ever watch.

5 upvotes · 16 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, and in a corporate leadership setting, where getting other people's buy-in is critical, this would be the wrong tone to take.

But this is TRP.

Is TRP recruiting? No, we are anti-recruiting. We are creating a deliberately uncomfortable atmosphere to drive away people who are unready or unwilling to embrace ugly truths.

If I have to spoon-feed someone, or beg them to listen, then they are not ready to hear. Many of the best lessons of my life came packaged with humiliation or pain. If people cannot laugh off being cussed a little in something that's not even addressed to them personally, how the hell are they going to swallow bitter truths?

How the hell are they going to pass a shit test? Did everyone suddenly forget how to agree and amplify in here?

And these guys call themselves men. Pathetic. Learn to do better, y'all.

Study: Excessive pregnancy weight gain linked to obesity in children

5 upvotes · 15 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Watch these two videos:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ceFyF9px20Y>

... obesity is due to damage to the natural feedback mechanisms that keep us at a healthy weight.

When a woman becomes fat during pregnancy, she is damaging the feedback mechanisms of the fetus even before it is born.

Marriage: Red Pill on Hard Mode

5 upvotes · 11 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So, there you have it: Dark-Ulfberht's 8 Laws of Marriage. Maybe they're not as good as TRP's go-to, "Don't Get Married."

Getting married, under current laws, is a weak-ass bitch move. Do not get married, ever.

However, we all made weak-ass bitch moves before our dark enlightenment. And the consequences thereof do not necessarily go away just because we woke the fuck up.

If one of your particular weak-ass bitch moves was putting a ring on it, then that's the reality you have to deal with. And {RP / sexual realism } can help you deal with it. These suggestions are not bad.

But, I know damn well some of you want a family, and despite all its disincentives, marriage remains perhaps the least of all evils for building one.

This bit has its head firmly stuck in the sand.

You cannot have children. You are a man. You do not have a uterus. And under the current legal climate, there is no such thing as "your children". There is only "children you are obligated to bankroll". And "children that their mother allows you to associate with, to the extent that she chooses, at the times she chooses".

You are not and cannot be a parent. You are a sperm source. That's it. Get used to it.

And getting married will not change that. The only rights marriage gives you are the ones she thinks you have, for as long as she thinks you have them. So if you get married, you are giving her something real, enforceable, and irrevocable, in the hopes that the rule of reciprocity will somehow magically start working on women.

Because yooooooooooooour special unicorn is ssssssssssssoooooooooo different. All Other Women Are Like That, right?

Wake the fuck up.

GASP An Internet Article That Actually Values Nice Guys?

5 upvotes · 6 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

toxic masculinity

Could you please give us a definition and example of toxic femininity?

Thank you.

On the "friendzone" (internet edition) and the "girlfriendzone".

5 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The friendzone is a real thing, but it's super easy to get out of.

Just don't see that person anymore.

Spend your time with someone who wants from you the same sort of relationship you want from them.

CMV: (Most) Women want to be raped (or, as they call it, "ravished") by an attractive man.

5 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In a fantasy you control all elements.

You are in control. Control is everything.

No. Fantasies are about getting what you want. These women are clearly fantasizing about not being in control, but having the things they want just happen to them.

Why do women hold out (typically beta but not always) men in long term relationships sexually?

5 upvotes · 25 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm very playful and accommodating, but I'm probably lacking in cheerfulness and femininity.

Cheerfulness is important for a couple of reasons.

First of all, men are genetically programmed to protect women, so a moody, miserable, or crying woman is essentially pulling the fire alarm. That's fine if there actually is a fire, but if not, then she's making herself annoying to be around, like the boy who cried wolf. Recall that, genetically, men are warriors and hunters. We are for dealing with big projects and major crises. Cheerfulness, then, in this sense, means a woman who only shares her major troubles with me. If your mother just died, I want to hear about it. But a woman who tells us all her small anxieties, or what that slut Nancy said about her, in front of everybody, and how that really hurt her feelings... that's a woman who annoying to be around.

Secondly, women tend to be happier around men they are passionate about. If you are often moody or complaining frequently around a man, he begins to suspect that your interest in him is more calculation than passion, that he is the guy you tell your dirty little secrets to, not the man who is your dirty little secret. And no man wants that.

Third, I don't like hanging out with people who are downers. It's that simple. Moods are contagious.

Fourth, nothing is sexier than bouncy girlish enthusiasm.

What kind of behaviors would you consider feminine and appreciate when you're hanging out with a girl? I seriously have no idea what being feminine means aside from wearing a dress and acting ditsy.

That's very sad. The previous generation of women has failed you.

If you were to look on Wikipedia, it would say:

While the defining characteristics of femininity are not universally identical, some patterns exist: gentleness, empathy, sensitivity, caring, sweetness, compassion, tolerance, nurturance, deference, and succorance are traits that have traditionally been cited as feminine.

Which is not a bad start, but then it takes a sharp turn into gender denialist land with:

sexual objectification... queer theorists and other postmodernists ... argue that the definition of femininity is the result of how females must behave in order to maintain a patriarchal social system ... Julia Serano's transfeminist critique blah blah blah

... so I wouldn't bother reading further.

So what does "gentleness, empathy, sensitivity, caring, sweetness, compassion, tolerance, nurturance, deference, and succorance" actually mean?

Well, let's put it like this:

All day long, I engage in power struggles with other men, either by competing with them directly, or in working with them on a team where I must pull my weight every day, or be cut as dead weight. I have to deal with harsh and unforgiving realities. As an engineer, the constraints of my goals are the laws of physics, not the flexible expectations of other people. I cannot "coast" and let others carry me, not even for a single day. I have to lead others, and sometimes I have to fire people.

Other masculine jobs, like police officer, firefighter, truck driver, surgeon, stockbroker, and so on have similar stresses. Men take on careers like these because, as I said, genetically we are warriors and hunters.

Now, ask yourself, who am I going to want to be with in the moments when I unwind? Imagine that girl for a moment. Close your eyes if it helps.

- She's probably very empathetic, and knows when I am stressed and need a hug and a neck massage, and also when I'm energetic and she should grab her coat, because we're going out on some spontaneous adventure.
- She not only knows how I feel, she cares how I feel. This is a no-brainer. Who the hell wants to be with someone who doesn't care how they feel?

Is this "gentleness, empathy, sensitivity, caring, sweetness, compassion, tolerance, nurturance, deference, and succorance" stuff starting to make sense? Just as I am descended from hunters and warriors, and my job is to sustain life, and deal with crises, you are descended from caretakers and nurturers, and your job is the little things that make life worth living. That's the bargain men and women make, and when one side stops living up to it, the other soon will.

But when both sides live up to it, they feel gratitude and love for each other. That's how strong relationships are formed. Craving for the natural traits and behaviours of the opposite sex is built-in, instinctive... women pine for masculine men even if they have lived their whole lives surrounded by metrosexuals, men treat competitive, tough, aggressive, selfish women with contempt and anger even if they have never known soft, caring, feminine ones.

Perhaps I could tell you the story of the only woman I ever wanted to marry.

Is the pursuit of 9's and 10's for an LTR is a horribly bad idea?

5 upvotes · 25 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Pursuit of any woman for an LTR is a horribly bad idea. It's the male equivalent of having a one-night stand. You're giving away that which you are the gatekeeper of, right off the bat, to someone whose worthiness is unproven.

The proper way to establish an LTR is to promote a plate whose actions have inspired emotional investment.

On the absolute necessity of patriarchy for women's long term welfare.

5 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

How about matriarchy instead?

A very interesting question.

Empirically, we have reason to suspect this wouldn't work. The evidence for this is that so few cultures are matriarchal, and none of them are particularly dominant, economically sound, or technologically innovative. If matriarchy worked, you would expect to see some more of them.

even if we buy the thesis that she is incapable of doing so

0/10 F-. See me after class.

Go back and read the article. The thesis is not women suffer in the long term if they are allowed to learn from their own mistakes instead of being taught, because those mistakes permanently impact their SMV.

What sort of drugs led you to interpret that as "women are incapable of figuring out what's in their best interest", I cannot imagine.

Why PPD, while sometimes diverting, is ultimately useless.

5 upvotes · 25 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

As for my metaphor, I'm saying that when men complain about marriage rape, while I agree losing most your shit and you children is horrible, I still don't see them dying of starvation in a mud hut.

How is that important?

The logical conclusion of this argument is that there one single most wretched individual in the world, and he is the only one allowed to complain, or to strive to better his lot in life. This is ridiculous. The fact that someone else has it worse is a non-sequitur.

Think of it this way. If I stab you in the stomach with a box cutter, and you are bleeding profusely, then you have a problem.

If I stab the guy next to you twice, or three times, or fifty-seven times, does that do anything to fix your problem? Does that make it one iota more bearable? No, it does not.

I don't see many western problems as that big of an issue and easily solvable, but are not due to human emotion and an unwillingness to bend.

Foolish and naive. Knowing what to do is only half the solution. Getting people to do it is the other half, and usually the more difficult one. People have a lot less control over their behaviour than most people think.

And I son't exactly care about those not getting enough of said pie because the physical world is a harsh place and luck has everything to do with your lot in life.

You don't care because you've given up hope. You feel like you have no chance at a pretty and feminine wife, a stable job with enough money to raise a family on one income, two or three children who respect and obey you, and a close-knit community with friends and acquaintances who treated you with courtesy.

You don't feel like you are entitled to any of those things. If you were born in an another era, you would have. Not entitled to just get them, but entitled to chance to work hard and earn them. And if you did have that fair shot at those things, you'd be out there now, busting your tail to reach that goal.

THAT is why I say the male sex drive (along with, yes, the male urge to dominate or lead) is the engine that drives both the economy, and civilization. Men want high-quality mates for long-term relationships. Men want families and children, in societies where fathers are the respected head of the household, rather than a figure of derision.

You have given up on busting your tail to afford and support a family, because society was restructured to remove the rewards. Some very broken people looked at the rewards men got in exchange for their responsibilities, and called them "male privilege". Then they persuaded our society to remove them. It never occurred to these people that this was what motivated men to keep the power running, and the grocery stores stocked with food. That, to them, was just background stuff that happened automatically, because you had "an economy", which is their word for "somebody else does the dirty jobs, because I am doing the important work of complaining about the Patriarchy".

So the rewards of fatherhood vanished, but the expectations remained. Is it any wonder you don't want the job now? You're not lazy. You're sensible.

I don't want the job either, not under these conditions. Fuck that. I'm going to bang sluts, get high, keep my money, buy expensive toys, and not have or raise children, not bankroll anyone, not contribute to my community or my society.

Because "my" community and "my" society aren't mine. They never were. They see me as an ATM. A special, wicked kind of ATM that they insult as they withdraw money from, because it's "privileged" and "greedy" for not giving them more.

My society does not give a fuck about one thing I want or one problem I have. Certain companies won't pay for women's birth control pills? Everyone loses their shit.

I want a job? I better figure out myself how to make that happen.

I want to get laid? The only thing my culture cares about is to make sure I am not "pressuring" or "coercing" anyone. Actually making that happen? That's my responsibility, and figuring out what I need to do is my responsibility, and when I figure out what I need to do, I'd better not say openly what it is, if that description hurts the feelings of real person.

Our society doesn't consider anything a problem until it starts hurting women. We have a metric fuckton of young men in their twenties living lives of involuntary celibacy, and our culture doesn't consider that a problem until they start reading something like TRP, and then it's a problem because, and only because, they say mean about women and hurt their feelings. We have a metric fuckton of older men in their thirties and forties, paying to support children they have been cut off from, and that's not a problem for our society until they stop paying, often because they no longer can, and then it's a problem because they are "deadbeat dads", and we need to hold them upside down and shake vigorously with a basket underneath them.

Some people need to figure out that if you give nothing to men, you get nothing from them.

That is why TRP exists. Our society has abandoned men, so we are starting to form our own social structures, our own communities, our own support networks. And we are loyal to the communities that support us, not the ones that just try to use us and cast us aside.

Now, if you tell certain people, most likely the SJW/feminist/BP crowd that, they say "oh, you're being overdramatic", "you have all this male privilege", "you have it good, because you live in America and aren't worried about where your next meal is coming from". (These are the same people who think overhearing a joke about dongles is a grave injustice that requires immediate action.)

But this is, ultimately, an excuse. They want to worry about men, never for men. Why?

Because men are the economic powerhouse. Men build things. Men produce wealth. If they admit men have problems, not just as people, not just as black men, gay men, or poor men, but as men, then there is a limit. They have to stop squeezing. They have to limit their demands. And their real goal is extract the maximum amount with a minimum of effort. Socialism, feminism, "social justice", arguments about fairness... it's all just a power play. They want more cookies. That's all.

The non-bakers want more pie. And the best way to do that is to gaslight the bakers. Make them feel inadequate. Guilty. Tell them they have "pie-baking privilege", and they better give away all the pie to cleanse themselves of this sin.

That is the real source of the rage against TRP. It supports men. Makes them stop feeling guilty. Makes them hard to control. Makes them not only want things for themselves, but feel like they can get them.

Q & A on basic TRP premise. Everyone welcome to chime in.

5 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm saying that TRP readers talking about "alpha" and "beta" doesn't mean they are any more prone to black and white thinking than people who talk about short and tall. It's a linguistic convenience to invoke a well-understood concept ... and folks like you, when you pretend otherwise, are usually being disingenuous.

Your second question is more interesting.

Willing to compromise on both sides?

5 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You miss the point of TRP.

TRP exists because people are not honest about their own sexual natures, for two reasons:

- They think being honest about their own sexual nature will damage their reputations.

- They are unaware of their sexual nature to begin with, and thus cannot be honest about it.

This has two implications.

- I cannot just believe you when you say "I am like this, and like this, and like that." Could be true. Could be a lie. Could be total ignorance of your own sexual desires. I must regard your sexual nature as unknown until I have a chance to observe your behaviour, not just hear what you say.
- I cannot just go and interact with women who are like X, and not women who are like Y, because no woman will tell you honestly which one she is. She might be telling the truth. She might be lying. She might not know. Therefore I must interact with the women who are in front of me, and observe their behaviour, until I find out what they really do.

And I have met this woman far too often to trust what you or any other self-described BP woman says about herself.

That's how TRP interacts with my life. Now let's talk about how it interacts with yours. You really seem quite insecure about being happy with BP. Because it upsets you that some men say AWALT in their own damn semi-private subreddit. No one forced you to go there and read.

If you can't stand to hear something said constantly to you, it might just be an obnoxious thing. But if you cannot stand for anyone to say a certain thing anywhere, then you are afraid of that thing.

Objectification is a term Feminists created to demonize male sexuality.

5 upvotes · 5 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why do you facepalm about Marx? He discussed the objectification of people in the labor market (I believe it's his theory of alienation, but someone correct me on that if I'm wrong...). Not really going into the merits of his arguments, just wanted to point out that philosophers have been talking about objectification of people (usually the common man for use as a tool or expendable force for war or labor or something like that) long before the feminist movement picked it up.

Well, feminism pretty much is Marxism applied to the sexes, with women cast in the role of the proletariat and men cast in the role of the bourgeoisie. So that's hardly surprising.

Problem is Marxism got objectification wrong. Objectification is even the wrong word for the phenomenon.

To understand correctly what we are talking about, we need to consult the person who got it right: Abraham Maslow. In Toward a Psychology of Being, he describes the phenomenon of Deficiency-Cognition as opposed to Being-Cognition.

Deficiency-Cognition is what Marx and his ilk mislabeled as "objectification". It is the phenomenon of evaluating an object in the environment (living or not) for its merits as a means to fulfill a current need (psychological or physical). Its counterpart, Being-Cognition, is the act of observing features about an object (living or not), without prioritizing one over the other, because it meets no current needs, or there are no current needs.

While this describes the same phenomenon, it corrects a number of things Marx got dangerously wrong.

- Marx thought objectification was a moral evil, caused by greed. Maslow realized that D-Cognition was a natural and necessary process.
- Marx thought being objectified was ipso facto harmful. Maslow realized that it was sometimes neutral, and sometimes vitally necessary (someone who never viewed by anyone else as a means to an end is a person with no job, no sexual partners, and no home).

- Marx thought of objectification as an act solely performed by members of a privileged class upon members of an unprivileged one. Maslow realized that all sort of person view other people, and things, as a means to an end, all the time. We would be unable to get through a single day without doing this.

I cannot order food at a restaurant without viewing the waitress as a means to an end. I cannot eat the food without viewing it as a means to an end. I cannot pay for the food without the waitress viewing me as a means to an end. I cannot earn money to pay for the food without viewing my fellow employees, or my customers, as a means to an end.

In calling out the quasi-fictional "objectification of women", feminism follows its characteristic paradigm of:

- Noticing a part of life that is occasionally detrimental or inconvenient.
- Pretending it is a special evil solely experienced by women.
- Demanding that Daddy Patriarchy, usually in the form of the government, rescue the helpless women from this evil.

The opposite of a red flag? What makes you think a woman is worth your time?

5 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

- Works at being pretty. Notice I didn't say "is pretty". I said "works at it". That's putting an effort into being pleasing to others, instead of asking why they like that, and complaining that they shouldn't.
- No tattoos, or non-ear piercings, unless they part of/symbolic of an existing relationship. Body modification is a cry for attention. Worthwhile women get attention the old-fashioned way... by earning it.
- Cell phone stays in purse when she's talking to someone. For a worthwhile woman, a cell phone is a convenient way to find things and arrange appointments, not an attention-tit. And definitely not a means to snub someone who is physically present. Yes, some people are boring. But a worthwhile woman deals with that by steering the conversation to bring out what's interesting about them, or if that fails, avoiding them. Not by being rude.
- Polite and empathetic. A worthwhile woman is genuinely interested in the feelings of others, shows her value by trying to make other people happy, and reaps what she sows when others want to her make happy in return.
- Does not gossip or engage in character assassination. When she encounters those whose actions she disapproves of, she expresses her disagreement straightforwardly and politely, always making clear that her opinions are opinions, not moral laws. She never calls others defective or evil for having alternate points of view, and she never spreads rumors about people... even if they are true.
- Feels gratitude for those who make sacrifices for her. If she sees a sign on the road saying "Slow down - Men Working", she is less likely to complain about the sign being "sexist", and more likely to notice that the people in the high-visibility jackets are, in fact, all men... and to appreciate that they do it so she doesn't have to.
- Strikes a balance between modesty and sexual generosity. She doesn't hop on every penis that comes along just because that feels good, and then expect men to commit to her despite her history. But neither does she use sex as a bargaining point, extracting elaborate promises and shows of fidelity, or using sex as a sort of dog treat to attempt to make men do tricks. She realizes that whether a man commits to her or not is dependent on her desirability as a partner, and that "saving it for marriage" or "no sex before commitment" is just an excuse for having bad girl game, or an attempt to avoid the need for girl game at all.

I've Been Rejected 335 Times.

5 upvotes · 2 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The advanced course is r/theredpill. The basic course is "dress well, have life goals and interests, be direct, smell good, have conversational skills". The fucked up sabotage course is "do nice things for her, tell her how you feel, buy her flowers, shower her with compliments, show her she's important to you".

What American men get is a mix of the basic course and the fucked up sabotage course. But they can't improve, because American women are spoiled and entitled, and even the ones who aren't... they have to shit test ruthlessly, because they are surrounded by guys with no game, so more and more aggressive filtering is required to weed out the ones who are.

lol Sweden, the cuck capital of the world, this is unbelievable. (Try not to die laughing)

5 upvotes · 27 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think you're a little mistaken there ... it isn't a nation of vikings that has turned into this. You see, the vikings left. These are the people who stayed home.

Basically, the shallow end of the Swedish gene pool.

Discussion: Women's love is inferior to men's love

5 upvotes · 20 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

He's talking about equal love and support I suppose.

Duh.

Look, don't give yourself airs. You can love a woman when she shows weakness because strength isn't what's attractive to you in the first place.

You need another red pill, I think. Here it is:

Yes, women are mean, nasty, conniving, hypocritical, mercenary beasts. So are we. Women will swear to love you forever, and then leave you the instant your business fails. And we will leave women the moment we see how badly the truck accident scarred up her face.

ALL love is conditional, and usually temporary. All noble promises and high ideals are masks of words worn by rutting animals.

We are apes.

You have seen through the women's facade of nobility. Now see through your own.

I struggle to see the point of female friends you aren't sleeping with

5 upvotes · 11 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's only two kinds of girl I am willing to be friends with: ugly ones, and ones that are banging my friends.

The ones that are banging my friends, I won't touch, because they belong to someone I don't want to steal from. The ugly ones I keep around not just because I don't want to sleep with them, but more importantly because being an ugly girl is like being a man... you have to work.

A girl who has spent her whole life being ugly... has actually had to work. Has actually had to be nice to people. Has actually had to give when she receives.

Why you should fuck an escort, at least once.

5 upvotes · 11 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Pussy isn't valueless. We're programmed to want it, so it has value. Like everything else people want.

That's not pedestalizing. Pedestalizing is when you lose sight of the fact that pussy is interchangeable, and thus it is a commodity. One pussy too expensive? Go get another.

Sure, you can get pussy for free... if your time is worthless. But time spent running game could be time spent lifting weights. Working. Sleeping. Relaxing. Doing things that are pleasurable in and of themselves, not talking to some boring twentysomething who thinks she's edgy because she has an ankle tattoo.

Now, every man should be able to run game, because sooner or later he's gonna want a girlfriend or three. But a lot of game is outcome independence and not looking thirsty. If you're experienced with buying pussy on the cheap, that helps a good deal.

Shit test: wife fills the cupboards with crap food

5 upvotes · 26 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You are a good father. Well done.

Vladimir Putin on Hillary Clinton: 'It's better not to argue with women'

5 upvotes · 25 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Obama seriously thinks women are smart and that Feminism deserves to rule the world.

No one knows what Barrack Obama seriously thinks. Possibly not even Barrack Obama.

But it doesn't matter what believes, because everything he says and does is an expression of calculation, not sincerity. The only thing that you learn from watching Barrack Obama do or say a thing is that he thought it would be good for Barrack Obama.

He supports feminism because it looks to be the strongest horse he can hitch his cart to. It doesn't really matter to him what that does to other men, because those other men are not Barrack Obama.

Vladimir Putin wants Russia to be great and powerful. Barrack Obama wants Barrack Obama to be great and powerful. Such men would set fire to the world if they could be king of the ashes.

Death threat against most men in /r/mensrights: "I fing hate all of you. You make me want to murder every man that thinks this shit is okay."

5 upvotes · 24 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

Fuck off fishy. No bicycles for you.

Well put. We need to start quoting the fish-bicycle thing anytime a feminist wants something from men.

Workplace gender equality

5 upvotes · 22 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

All animals are equal. Some are more equal than others.

The "nice guy" debate: Heroes vs Antiheroes

5 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because this generally isn't a very productive place.

A "debate" is a rhetorical exercise whose purpose is to illuminate truth. But most bluepillers aren't talking about truth. They're talking about morality.

Their basic argument is "people who read RP do not conform to this set of acceptable and unacceptable thoughts and behaviour that I have constructed in my head". You can demonstrate to them that RP principles describe general occurrences in reality, but they don't care about that.

They only care if it's "moral", and no one else has any access to their internal mental definition of "moral", so there's nothing to talk about.

You even get some people who admit that all this stuff is basically true, but they are turned off by all the "misogyny". Which basically means that they fear male anger or disapproval so much that they cannot even accept men being angry in their own private space which they constructed for that purpose.

It's one thing to be worried if men just lose control whenever, wherever. But these people can't even accept a man going into his own closet, shutting the door, and being angry there. This boils down to some serious dude-hatin'. Basically, these are people who see men as so violent, brutal, animalistic and uncivilized that they can't ever be allowed to be anything but calm, lest they grab Fay Wray and climb the Empire State Building.

There's no talking to people like that, because they don't object to what you say, but who you are. You might as well be a black guy trying to "engage" with the people on stormfront. In either case, they're not assuming you're a reasonable human being... they're just looking for signs of the hateful nature they assume is there. Stormfronters call it "chimping out". Blue pillers call it "misogyny". Same principle. They're convinced it's there, and they see it in whatever you say.

I don't really find it rewarding to waste my time talking to people who hate me for being and acting male.

Blue Pill saved my life!

5 upvotes · 14 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If all of the stupid shit that 16 year olds and basement dwellers posted/upvoted wasn't at the top for so long

Unlike TBP and other cultural Marxists, however, we try to educate them instead of simply writing them off.

Gold-digger and cheating fiancée confesses days before the wedding. Guy asks r/relationships for advice...

5 upvotes · 26 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

OMG YOU JUST MADE AN ANALOGY BETWEEN A RELATIONSHIP AND AN INANIMATE OBJECT! OBJECTIFYING WOMEN! OBJECTIFYING WOMEN! MISOGYNY! LITERALLY RAPE!

A List of pure Beta Bollocks

5 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You teach them to care about things beyond Justin Beiber. And pretty soon they stop caring about Justin Beiber.

Adulthood isn't an inevitable process that happens with time. It's a training process that happens with exposure. The appeal of younger women is that you can teach them good habits before they have a chance to learn bad ones.

In reality, we'd all rather train a 19 year old to be a keeper, than pump and dump a long series of 26 year olds. Pumping and dumping unfixable women, or women not worth fixing, is a consolation prize. Not a bad one compared to the alternatives, but definitely not the ideal.

Just because someone is young, however, does not, in our current cultural climate, make her trainable.

The Many Fabricated Enemies of Feminists

5 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

pretend there's such a thing as left wing authoritarianism

You have a telephone call from the the 20th century Soviet Union. Would you like to take it here, or shall I forward it to your office?

Female teacher claims she is victim for having sex with underage male student.

5 upvotes · 6 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

You notice how, instead of a mugshot, we get full-length shots of her dressed for court, carefully selected to show that she is slender and pretty?

If something were calculated to make us say "he must have wanted it", then it could scarcely have been done better.

Maybe he did.

But if we can say it, then we have to be able to say that sometimes 16 year old girls also "wanted it".

Can you imagine news outlets doing beefcake shots of a hunky young teacher who slept with a 16 year old girl?

Nah, they'd give us just the mugshot and use the word "rape".

Do the "ethical lines" women draw piss you off?

5 upvotes · 2 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Comments like these are like a dogwhistle that only unconfident men can hear.

Since unconfident men are unattractive to women, what this really mean is "Stop checking me out if you're unattractive", and so on.

@TRP: Do Fat Women Complain About Rape More, And What Does That Have To Do With TRP?

5 upvotes · 29 May 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Im not trying to comprehensively detail the mentality of all rapists ever

Oh, sorry. When you said:

Rapists generally don't give a fuck how physically attractive their victims are

... I assumed you meant

"Rapists generally don't give a fuck how physically attractive their victims are."

not

"Some people are easier targets than others."

@TRP: Do Fat Women Complain About Rape More, And What Does That Have To Do With TRP?

5 upvotes · 28 May 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Rapists generally don't give a fuck how physically attractive their victims are, old people get raped.

You're concatenating the ideas of "desirable target" and "easy target".

Serial murderers often target prostitutes. Does that mean they all have a strong urge to kill prostitutes in particular? No. They're just easier to kill, and it's easier to cover up afterwards.

Guy finds his girlfriend in bed with a stranger. She sends him an email explaining her justification for cheating.

5 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you beat her?

No, that doesn't fix anything.

do you beat the guy?

No, he did you a favour. He showed you that you were dating an unreliable person.

Do you just tell her to fuck off ? Do you tell her she is a slut & don't contact me again you lying whore?

That's about right.

But better yet is to say nothing. Just fuck off yourself.

You are DONE with her. There's no point in saying anything to her at all, because she is now OUT OF YOUR LIFE. It doesn't matter if you "get revenge", or what you say to her, or how she feels, because her life is not going to affect yours in any way, shape or form from this moment forward.

Saying something angry or denunciatory, or administering an ass-beating, shows you still care how she feels or what she thinks, which is precisely what you are trying not to do.

Why is TRP so anti-education?

5 upvotes · 12 April 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Us: That giant hat you are wearing does nothing for your appearance.

You: Why do you hate hats?

I had a realization today: MRA and TRP understand the same concepts, but MRA are the Jedi's and TRP is the Dark Side

5 upvotes · 30 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Not to mention the need to find a justification for slavery to give to other white people.

The reason all the American slaves were black had nothing to do with racism. It was just that European law was in a curious place where slavery wasn't banned outright... but there was no legal route to enslave anyone. Which meant that slaves couldn't be made, only imported. And there was one available place in the world where slavery was a common practice... Africa.

All those slaves traded by white men were originally sold to a white man by another black man. But once they reached America, the only blacks there were slaves, and the only slaves there were black. So it was only too easy to invent stories about racial inferiority once the practice of slavery was called into question.

Maybe we should stop hiring feminists?

5 upvotes · 23 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I couldn't hire her either. She's a web designer with some light programming. Her degree is in english and creative writing.

<http://www.linkedin.com/pub/julie-ann-horvath/1a/755/289>

I hire software engineers. With CS degrees.

Help me understand

5 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

{forking conversation}

Nobody on RP wants advice from women about how to attract women. This is because they have no experience being a man and trying to attract a woman.

This seems to ignore the fact that women, by virtue of being women, probably know women fairly well.

We don't ignore it, we reject it because it isn't a fact.

Introspective self-awareness is much harder than empirical observation. This is well-known to anyone doing serious social science research... self-report data is considered unreliable to the point of being laughable. That phenomenon doesn't suddenly change when we start talking about sex.

In fact, to illustrate just how unaware humans are about the motivations for their own behaviour, I like to tell a little neuroscience story.

It comes from a case study on a patient who had been cured of severe epilepsy (not certain which kind) by severing the corpus callosum... the network of nerve fibers running between the two hemispheres of the brain. Patients in this condition have greatly reduced communication between the right and left brains.

Anyway, the story is of a test being run where messages were displayed in only the right visual field (thus making the information only available to the left brain hemisphere) or only the left (right brain only).

Upon seeing the sentence, "Stand up, please", in her left visual field (thus only available to the right brain hemisphere), the patient promptly stood up. But when asked out loud why she had just stood up, she said that she was going to the other room to get her sweater, because it was cold in the exam room.

Her left brain, having no access to the real reason why she stood up, made up a theory, and she promptly experienced it as truth and believed it. She wasn't "lying" in the sense that she set out to deceive anyone. The conscious portions of her brain had simply created and bought a theory about the unconscious portions of her brain which happened to be wrong.

She didn't understand her own behaviour.

So, TRP participants, and theorists, working from an awareness that people do not understand their own behaviour, adopt the alternative methodology called the "scientific method", which is based on an external observer, not introspection. While TRP cannot couple the scientific method with statistical methods used by most modern scientists (randomly selected groups, controls, statistical analysis, etc), empiricism is certainly better than any known alternative.

A man who has seduced many women knows much more about what attracts women than women do, just as a fisherman knows more than fish do about how to catch a fish.

I've become too critical of girls

5 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1x0gln/the_five_stages_of_red_pill_and_how_to_read_rtrp/

5 Things Women Need To Do In Their 20's (Or Else The Suffragists Died For Nothing)

5 upvotes · 16 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This reminds me of that physics professor who showed that postmodernism was nonsense, by making up a nonsense paper, submitting it to a postmodernist journal, and not only getting it accepted, but being invited to speak at a conference.

Spergs, Cynics, and Manipulators: How PowerTalk impacts the lifecycle of cultures.

5 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Testing:

- What spergs like to do is hang out and build things with other spergs.
- What cynics like to do is translate powertalk into straighttalk, in order to shock spergs into becoming cynics.
- What manipulators like to do is exploit spergs for fun and profit.

...

- Spergs fear being ostracised by other spergs.
- Cynics fear being screwed by manipulators, or lynched by spergs at the instigation of manipulators.
- Manipulators fear screwed by other manipulators, or lynched by spergs at the instigation of cynics.

What to expect if your son is falsely accused of Sexual Misconduct

5 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

Expect a long road of healing. Your son will need a lot of support. You will need a lot of support. My suggestion is to hire a good therapist outside of the university as soon as your son is accused. Your son will face loneliness, depression, anxiety, post traumatic stress. The toll on your son's health, physical and mental, will be great. Expect physical sickness due to the body's stress induced suppression of his immune system. Expect this need for healing to last a long time. Your family is forever changed. Your son will never be the same. I've been told that healing does happen, but in our case we are still in the process.

Funny, that sounds a lot like being raped.

TBP chick hates RP guys but spends her birthday being treated like shit by one who also cheated on her. The irony is sublime.

5 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The path of the stream is shaped by the curve of the hill.

You're mistaken about Jews and banking, though. 1000 years is a blip in genetic time. Not enough for natural selection. What you're witnessing is cultural selection (which is very much in force). The Jews developed a tradition of respect for intellectual pursuits, cleverness, and business acumen.

Interestingly enough, this has even eroded the "women vs STEM" phenomenon in the Ashkenazi Jewish community. Non-Jewish white women tend to avoid STEM like the plague. In my experience, if you encounter a woman in STEM who isn't obviously from a non-western culture (Asia, the Middle East, etc), then there's pretty good odds she's Jewish.

Your typical Euro-descended woman doesn't feel like she should have to do math if it's hard. Jewish girls do.

"If subreddits had 'honest slogans' based on their community, what would they be?" - AskReddit promotes TRP again

5 upvotes · 14 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The conversations about us in other subs get longer and longer.

The Overton window is moving.

And Whisper is chortling with glee.

NAWALT: The last pieces of BP

5 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Absolutely.

I have no interest in saying "this is only a generalization" every goddamn time I open my mouth. That's simply supposed to be understood. If I say "cats have four legs", no one is an imbecile enough to think I mean that a cat can never be injured and lose a limb. If they say "dude, that's just a generalization", they're being disingenuous.

However, since the stuff we learn and discuss here is indeed a generalization, while we may not have to waste our breath on disclaimers, we do have to keep that in mind when trying to apply it.

All, or almost all, women are hypergamous. But they are so to varying degrees. Some are so hypergamous that you cannot tame them... they will fuck whoever appears dominant at the moment if you so much as leave the room. Others are less so.

Everyone, both men and women, will cheat eventually if their partner fails to keep attraction high. The question is how long this takes.

Some women will cheat the instant someone makes her tingle. Others will cheat after two years of you losing your career, your confidence, and your energy.

Some men will cheat the instant they meet someone with bigger tits. Others will cheat six months after you gain thirty pounds.

Now, male cheating is not as damaging as female cheating, so any number of double standards should definitely apply, but that's not the point. The point is that each sexual instinct we identify here is one among many inputs to behaviour. Only when the nature and weight of each input is considered can we have any idea what the behaviour will be like.

The reason we go on about hypergamy is not because it's the only thing driving women. It's because almost no one outside TRP admits that it exists, which makes it the thing that needs talking about.

The Huffington Post Accidentally Red Pill. Please Check Outside Your Window for Pigs on the Wing.

5 upvotes · 7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oops. The practice of not using direct links makes it difficult to spot duplicates. That's why I usually prefer to link directly where it isn't against the rules.

Hostility to Submissive women. Is it acceptable?

5 upvotes · 21 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think what's going on is that leftoids have been making every single one of their opinions into a cultural crusade for so long, that they fail to recognize that any statement might be anything other than a cultural crusade.

That's how, "human sexual relationships work better when the women assumes a submissive role with her mate" becomes, in their minds "Women aren't people! Let's start buying and selling them like cattle!".

They literally cannot wrap their minds around the idea that "people should do X", doesn't lead to the next step of "let's force everyone to do X". This is because to them, the word "should" means "moral imperative", whereas to everyone else, it means "sound workable idea".

Quick Responses to the Bestof/Cringe Criticism

5 upvotes · 17 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Never engage with critics. It is a waste of your time.

Win the argument by being awesome and moving the Overton window, not by giving a bunch of tiresome haters more attention than they deserve.

23 Things to Do Instead of Getting Engaged Before You're 23

5 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen

And 25 would be "When that doesn't work, write an article listing all those things as things you should have done, rather than just things you stupidly did."

Men not marrying? How deep does "the problem" go?

5 upvotes · 1 January 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen

The consequence of a man not marrying is no one to grow old with.

Except that the one of the reasons men, like me, are making this choice more and more, is that, with the skyrocketing divorce rate, marriage no longer guarantees or even promises that a man will indeed have someone to grow old with.

He might very well (51% chance) grow old with no one but a massive monthly bill to keep him company.

Why would women who have good jobs care about a man's ability to provide? Can't all the issues with women outlined in this subreddit be circumvented by dating women who are financial stable?

5 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

People don't select mates based on "compatibility". They select mates based on attraction.

If a man is poorer than they are, or of low status compared to them, women will not be attracted to him. It doesn't matter how "compatible" he is with any one of them, because they're not going to hang around him low enough to find out whether he's "compatible", nor will they particularly care if they happen to find out.

Women don't choose mates with logic, but with instinct. So the best way to become invisible to women is to put on a high-visibility jacket.

A low-status or socially subordinate man is the male equivalent of a fat woman. She might be someone he really gets along with, but without attraction, it's not going to happen.

Girl violently & emotionally abuses her husband then blogs about her "pretend suicide" for sympathy. Her hamster identifies her problems but then convinces herself they're not "who she really is".

5 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Umm, what you do "in the moment" IS who you really are.

This is an essential truth, the of the basic red pills.

You are what you do. Nothing else matters.

I don't care who you are inside, or even know if "inside" exists or not. It's who you are outside that's important.

Some hilarious straw-man arguments about TRP

5 upvotes · 20 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Fallacy of composition.

For each one of those things, you could probably find someone posting here who believes it (or, at least, a less hyperbolic version of it).

But these would be distinct people. TRP is not a movement. It's a discussion group. We don't all believe the same thing.

There's no such thing as an Alpha or a Beta male.

5 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, of course. It's verbal shorthand. We call people "betas" because no one wants to type "man who has acquired the habit of acting in a beta manner" every damn time.

I took it upon myself to point this out for the record, however. Because I sick of all people constructing TRP strawmen around it.

I'm not going to lie - as a female, I'm afraid to ask this question for fear of being flamed and vehemently downvoted. Have any of you ever watched the documentary "Miss Representation" in full? If so, what did you think of the topics presented?

5 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not really interested. Feminists have done all the talking and none of the listening for so long that I already know all their talking points.

The Difference Between Dominance and Abuse

5 upvotes · 11 October 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

What margerym said is a good start, but the thing to understand is that "a BDSM context" isn't as clear-cut and sharply bounded as most people think.

The defining drive of BDSM is that it's a sexual/relationship interaction where the participants are pleased/aroused/excited/fulfilled by one partner having power over the other.

That covers a whole of ground, as you might well imagine, including people who wouldn't really say they were into BDSM. Women who like to be "taken" roughly and forcibly? "Taken in Hand" relationships? "Christian Domestic Discipline"? College couples "experimenting" with blindfolds and fur-lined handcuffs? "Traditional" relationships? BDSM.

If you look at it that way, some degree of this is the norm. Most women are at least slightly submissive, especially in the bedroom.

Which means there are a lot of relationships out there where the man is implicitly, or even explicitly, in charge. In some of those, he makes the rules to the extent that he is enforcing them with spankings. Lots of people are very happy that way.

Feminism Is Causing The Depression Epidemic

5 upvotes · 11 October 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

it would be interesting to see an honest accounting of how many women who post here or sympathize take any type of psych meds or drugs

I know one woman with red pill values who takes anti-depressants. She is, unsurprisingly enough, disabled in a way that makes her unable to have children.

i still cant get a handle on what cis- means, its like its eluding me

It's what they call people who don't have surgery in an attempt to become a member of the opposite sex. By assigning a word to it, they try to make normality seem abnormal, or like simply an equal option from a list, instead of like what it is, a default.

When someone else does this sort of thing to them, they call it "othering". When they do it to someone, they call it "social progress".

does your gf post here?

You're most likely familiar with her. She's pretty high on TPB's enemy list.

Feminism Is Causing The Depression Epidemic

5 upvotes · 11 October 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's hilarious to listen to these reddit feminists stalk my girl after each of her posts on RPW and talk about how horribly oppressed she is, and how sad and "crushed" her submissive ideas made them... when half of them are on anti-depressants, the other half are constantly writing tirades about how they hate cispeople, or this or that "shitlord" made them sooooo angry, and meanwhile, she sings to herself in the shower, bounces up and down on her toes, and her orgasms last for 15-30 minutes.

Our biological imperatives are not enforced with "pressure" or laws or upbringing or "oppression". They are enforced from within, with happiness, or lack thereof.

EXAMPLE: Women are malleable -- they will change their beliefs to adapt

5 upvotes · 8 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A different way of seeing the same phenomenon is to say that men and women have different priorities.

Women are naturally inclined to prioritize relationships, rather than what we would call "values". To many, but not all, women, particular people in their lives are their values.

This guy is trying to cut her loose because he thinks that she is going to prioritize having the kind of relationship she wants over having a relationship with him. She is begging him to stay because she thinks the opposite.

Only the test of time would tell who was right.

DailyBeast: College women have self esteem problems caused by male privilege.

5 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Why is the average woman doing so badly compared to the top 5% of men? Oppression!

Western idiot is blinded by her hypergamy/western ideals and pays the price.

5 upvotes · 23 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I thought paleo excluded dairy?

"should Feminism and Gaming mix?" ALL OF MY NO!!!

5 upvotes · 2 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Making video games requires skill.

It also helps to have majored in computer science, instead of women's studies or some shit like that.

How Do Young Marriage-Minded Girls Meet a Potential Husband?

5 upvotes · 27 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

most men just want to party/hook up in our age group.

Go outside your age group.

Men from 30 - 45 are much more likely to be ready to get married, much more likely to be financially secure enough to be able to start a household with you, and much calmer, more mature, better in bed, and so on, and so on, and so on.

And they would certainly rather have a younger wife than a divorcee their own age.

Women need to realize the Imaginary Disney Boyfriend is impossible

5 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Gaston was too try-hard. All that boasting, and pursuing a woman who wasn't into him.

He should have ignored her for a while and had threesomes with some of those groupies. Then she would have gone through the stages of

- nonplussed but grateful that he was leaving her alone.
- slightly chagrined that he didn't seem interested anymore.
- missing the attention
- thinking he wasn't so bad after all.
- being jealous
- waging a full-scale campaign to get him back.

He was demanding and pushy when he should have been demanding and aloof.

Divorce Rates: Just 1 Reason Why Women Should Have Never Been Allowed to Vote

5 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I was, for precisely this. The notification message included the word "heathen", used unironically. At the time, I was an endorsed contributor, and author of some of the sidebar material.

He pretty much went full retard.

This is fucking brutal to read. A MGHOW screwing up every which way.

5 upvotes · 18 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

tl;dr

Taken from a "relationship memes" page. Some might find it humorous but regardless it sends the wrong message.

5 upvotes · 18 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

I think that your statement that it "sends the wrong message" also sends the wrong message.

To object to the statement "women follow their hearts, men follow their dicks" is to imply that following the heart is better, wiser, nobler, or more mature than following the dick. Which is the real anti-male attitude.

In truth, men's dicks are wiser than women's hearts, because the penis is a barometer of female genetic fitness, whereas a woman's heart is a barometer of what other clueless people have taught her about what she's supposed to like.

Feminist notices that female characters are depicted as perfect and able to beat up men in fiction, blames this on misogyny, co-opts masculism poem at the end

5 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

It seems that the best way to make women unhappy is to give them exactly what they ask for.

So I guess all the "nerd" bashing of boys I've heard throughout my life (both real and in the media) is just a hallucination

5 upvotes · 7 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

Likewise when they go home and kill themselves at rates 5x higher than teenage girls due to the teasing this is actually an example of oppression against women because [insane patriarchal conspiracy theory with veiled accusations of misogyny against anyone who disagrees].

No, wait, let me. I'm keen to have a crack at this one.

Lemmee see, um.... Okay, I've got it.

"Women have always been the primary victims of male suicide. Women lose their husbands, their fathers, their sons, their brothers. Women often are deprived of the support and companion ship of the men in their lives. Women are often left with the responsibility, alone, of raising the children."

How was that?

Marriage fail, I need help.

5 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, first of all, be sure you are embarking on this path out of a desire to keep him, not out of guilt or remorse. Guilt or remorse alone will not see you through. While that may seem like compounding your offense, in the long run, if you cannot treat him right, it's better to let him go find someone who can.

Second, the first step in submission is honesty. Now, you're not used to this, and that's why you're asking me whether to go slowly or quickly... either one is hiding information from him. You see, you're so used to not sharing information that it didn't even occur to you to tell him exactly what you did in creating this thread, and show it to him.

That's what you need to do. Start being open about your thought processes. Show him this thread, tell him you created it, and tell him you have decided that you are willing to do whatever it takes to keep him, that whatever he wants you to do to prove yourself to him, you will do that thing.

That kind of transparency is just as important as obedience. There's two important elements of transparency, which are privileges as well as obligations. As a submissive partner, you are allowed to share your feelings honestly, and you are allowed to ask for what you want, with the understanding that it is completely his decision whether to grant your request or not.

For example, if he wants sex and you're tired and sore, you might tell him that you are tired and sore, and ask if you can just give him oral sex instead. Then it's his decision. But you are allowed to ask.

Third, he's not going to be used to being in charge, so he's not going to come out with a list of everything he wants right away. He may be reluctant to trust that you are really ready to go to any lengths to make the relationship work. His demands at first may be mild, things that he feels "he can get away with", and only become the things he really wants when he starts to realize you're serious about this.

It may help to suggest things. Ask if he wants a domestic discipline marriage where he spans or physically punishes you if you do not obey him. Tell him you will service his sexual needs on command, without the need for reciprocation unless he feels like it. Ask if he wants another woman "on the side", just once or whenever he chooses.

He might not be interested in some of those, you might get off easier than that. But suggesting those will tell him you're serious. And if you stick to the plan, he might come to believe you. When that happens, the trust will start to rebuild.

Another good one from Sunshine Mary, "Service with a smile"

5 upvotes · 21 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

The thing I miss most about being married, besides sex, is serving a man. I love my kids, but they will never appreciate the service I give them the way that a man does. And it doesn't satisfy me in the same way.

There is such honor and joy in being a comfort to a man who has worked hard all day. Looking good, making him a delicious meal, getting him a drink before he asks for one, and listening to his problems before spewing your own. How on earth we came to a place where it is considered degrading is beyond comprehension.

Just reading this made me happy.

It has been so ground into women that there is no honour, only shame, in being submissive. So when this article, or others like it, talk about "serving a man", it sounds like crazy talk to the modern feminist woman. She simply dismisses it as religious nutjobbery.

But she doesn't realize that the reason she think submission is weak is that she has been taught to see men as the enemy. As nothing but a dangerous force that exploits, takes away, and harms unless it is tamed, controlled, and ruled.

Of course submission to an actual enemy is vile, contemptible weakness. But men are not women's enemy (despite feminism's best efforts to alienate us).

We repay service with gratitude and love. Or, nowadays, we wish we could. But there's not a lot of it about.

Before being introduced to the Red Pill, I used to enjoy feminist sites like xoJane, The Frisky, etc. Now, they make me a little sick.

5 upvotes · 19 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Eventually all chick sites revert to Team Woman.

Wow. That's it in a nutshell. It just seems like everywhere I look, I see men saying "I'm sympathetic to other men's needs, but we do still need to be fair and evenhanded."... and women cheering "Go Team Woman! Beat those men! Take everything you can grab!"

The One Thing "Don't Be That Girl" Got Right

5 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

If a female acquiesces to a forceful advance after a short period of meek resistance, endures an encounter with inner revulsion that has little or no outward sign, this can unquestionably be rape

Interesting attitude, let's make it clear by removing some filler.

If a female acquiesces...this can unquestionably be rape

Did you really just say that, Graham Templeton? Really?

so many things to address...the decline of /r/theredpill, a man's obligation to "train" a woman to be red pill, and other thoughts.

5 upvotes · 11 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Couldn't it be argued that these aren't mutually exclusive? That the death of girl game came about when sex-restrictive social rules were done away with leaving women to view girl game as nothing more than myth perpetuated by a select few to keep them in line?

That and the total loss of respect for men in general meant that being attractive and pleasing to men was "lowering yourself".

Did sex-restrictive social rules not just essentially tell women what it was to have game and hold them to that?

No, they didn't. They told women to keep their legs firmly shut until marriage. If you think men like this, then you don't understand men very well at all. We hate it. We love sex, and we don't want to sign contracts to get it.

But before reliable contraceptives, it was necessary to tell women that. And women understood it.

After all, it's reasonable to expect women to be chaste if they are doing so to avoid unwanted pregnancy and its life-ruining effects. But it is not reasonable to expect them to be chaste when a little pill can remove that risk.

In short, contraceptives are a game-changer. The old sex-restrictive rules were made neither for the pleasure of men nor of women, but for necessity's sake. Now that this necessity has been removed, we cannot expect people to live their lives according to the rules dreamed up by a bunch of bronze-age sheep-herders. (Go on, ban me. I dare you.)

The red pill, if it is to give us any useful insight, any lasting self-help, has to be based on sexual realpolitik, not old rules made by people taking a different variety of blue pill.

Girl game is about making relationships worthwhile and desirable for men. Bronze-age sheep herder rules were about sticking families together to economic survival, whether they were desirable for the participants or not.

Slapped with his own crap logic. (r/gaming)

5 upvotes · 7 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

As Richard Dawkins put it: "I don't dress women! They dress themselves!"

"You could be here" Beta-Baiting at it's worst...

5 upvotes · 22 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks like not so much beta-baiting, as single-mom desperation.

I Need Feminism Because...

5 upvotes · 24 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, damn us and our lack of telepathic powers. If only there were some way you could communicate by making noises with your mouth.

Guy puts wife through med school and does all the child rearing. Wife cheats on him. She blames him and he buys it.

5 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

1-4, inclusive.

Guy puts wife through med school and does all the child rearing. Wife cheats on him. She blames him and he buys it.

5 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

2

Whats your view on Ayn Rand?

5 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The first thing I read by her was "Anthem". It was basically a giant strawman argument from start to finish. I was fourteen years old at the time, and didn't know the word "strawman" at the time. But I could spot intellectual dishonesty when I saw it.

The problem with using fiction to make a case for something is that you can make the opposition say, or even do, whatever you want.

So fuck Ayn Rand. And fuck China Miéville, too.

"i know a guy who was a virgin until he got married, to a stripper with two kids. He's probably the only non-hypocrite i know."

5 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to. Or don't fuck any of it, if you don't want to. Fuck women. Fuck men. Fuck no one. Point is, you get to fuck what you like, when you like, and your worth is not determined by some golden ratio of extreme boner tantalization vs. minimal boner touching. BONERS ARE NOT THE BOSS OF YOU. You are the boss of you.

And if you don't care what boners want, that's fine. But if you don't care what boners want, then boners have no call to care what YOU want.

And YOU just spent a page crying about how boners might not care what you want.

Twitter's latest unfunny trend: #killallmen

5 upvotes · 8 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

feminism secretly wants to be as mean, violent and oppressive as the worst elements of misogyny

What does she mean "secretly"? When did this become a secret?

[Mod] State Of The Subreddit May 2013

5 upvotes · 4 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Interesting way to put it.

In fact, instead of calling all these things rape, it is the concept you brought up, enslavement, that allows us to compare and contrast.

Because what is rape but temporary sex enslavement?

Rape is enslavement for sex. Paternity fraud and involuntary male parenthood are enslavement for money. Conscription is enslavement for death.

Feminist fakes her own rape threat, caught.

5 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Considering everyone knows (and should know) this already. Most people rape for violence (EG: Control). Sex is barely part of it. Do you not understand this?

I see. You have been living in an echo chamber. This nonsense, through repetition, has been elevated in your estimation to where you think it is a known fact. And you assume that anyone who doesn't agree must not have heard it before.

Well, I have heard it before. I understand the contention. But it's ridiculous.

It's not even wrong. To rise to the level of being wrong, it would have to present some sort of coherent, testable hypothesis.

What testable predictions does your hypothesis make? What research has been done to test those predictions?

Feminist fakes her own rape threat, caught.

5 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Rapists are in it for the violence, not for the sex.

Look at what you just typed.

Look at it.

What strange echo chamber of bullshit have you been living in that you could type such a thing and expect to be taken seriously?

How TRP handles girlfriends demanding to go on dates with their male friends?

5 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What is the best way to handle this kind of scenario?

It varies depending on the person and situation.

My approach is that I'm not that possessive. To my mind, too much jealousy sends a message to a woman that she is irreplaceable. It also sends a message that I'm afraid that I am replaceable. I don't want her sheltered from any possible temptation to cheat. I want her to resist any temptation to cheat because she knows she'll never be able to get another guy like me, while I will be with someone just as good next week.

I kind of think that jealousy is beta-program behaviour. I must keep other men away from the women because women are a scarce and precious resource. Nah. To my mind, a woman fails to give satisfaction, go get another woman.

If the idea of you dumping her doesn't fill her with dread, then step up your game until it does. Then she'll fight off other men tooth and nail, no effort required on your part at all.

Richard Dawkins on Feminism Invading Science

5 upvotes · 21 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As far as I know, this was a characterization forwarded by a single person, on the very fringe of postmodernism

And was this person immediately laughed off the stage, in disgrace, before publication?

Richard Dawkins on Feminism Invading Science

5 upvotes · 21 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the most annoying habits of the allied postmodernist, deconstructionist, poststructuralist, and academic marxist movements is their characteristic assumption that anyone who disagrees with them must simply be too dimwitted or uninformed to have any idea what they are talking about.

Now, this assumption is sometimes a disingenuous rhetorical device used to silence criticism, and sometimes a honest, if muttonheaded, lack of the necessary mental flexibility to imagine that someone might possibly interpret the same data quite differently.

I don't know which is the case with you.

Regarding postmodernism, I tend to regard it as a self-swallowing movement, because its conclusions and theses, insofar as it has a unifying set of them, are just as vulnerable to its deconstructive techniques as anything else.

Or, to look at another way, I tend to agree with R. Scott Bakker's contention that postmodernists regard consumers of traditional culture as slave kissing the boot that kicks them, while ignoring the fact that they themselves are nothing but another boot.

Or, to look at it still another way, relativism and constructionism are awfully convenient for those who don't know anything and can't prove anything, since it allows them to argue that no one else does, or can, either.

Now, if you want me to talk about what "truth" really means (and yes, there is such a thing), or humanity's various miserable failures in attempting to get "ought" from "is", those are conversations we could have.

But before we can have any conversation at all, you're going to have to go learn this principle, and also this one, and see if they can't provide you with some insight into the difference between ignorance and opposition, or between education and debate.

(Because as it is, arguing with a postmodernist, or any of the sweepings of the academic humanities, is a bit like playing chess with a pigeon.)

[science] Marriage will make you fat, good marriage will make you fatter: "own and partner satisfaction were positively associated with changes in weight ... Spouses who were less satisfied than usual or had partners who were less satisfied than usual were ... less likely to gain weight."

5 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

People get lazy when their mates have no other options. Then both parties lose SMV and not only are unable to see other available options, but also hamsterize by describing relationship as more satisfying.

List of RedPill movies

5 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't agree.

I mean, Tyler Durden has some good lines, but remember that the whole point of the movie is that Tyler Durden is a form of insanity that he must rid himself of in order to be worthy of the woman.

Can we put together a list of potential red and green flags when meeting/dating women?

5 upvotes · 20 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Red:

Cannot cook: This is a basic life skill. It is not optional. Those cannot prepare food are displaying an infantile level of dependence on others.

Proud of inability to cook: "Look at me! Tee hee! I can't even boil pasta! Isn't it cute?"

Smoker: This isn't 1947. We know it kills you. If she is unable to avoid such an obvious obnoxious and self-destructive habit, well, how is she at avoiding more subtle ones?

No makeup/hair messy/jeans + sweatshirt: Makes little or no effort to be attractive when dealing with the opposite sex, may be taking their attraction and attention for granted. Bad sign.

Belligerent with males: There's nothing wrong with being a tomboy and roughhousing with men. Athletic, active girls are healthy, low-maintenance, and fun. But if she threatens to get physical with men when angry, she has delusions about her capabilities. And probably expects men to help sustain those delusions.

Humanities degree: Sign of someone who expects credit for having a degree, but doesn't want to do any actual work.

Gossip magazines/tabloids/following the lives of celebrities: Feeding your need for excitement vicariously, rather than by creating excitement in her own life.

The phrase "real man": sign of trying to get wants by using shame, instead of by asking for them, and offering something in return.

Soft drinks/soda: A little now and then is okay, but sugar water addicts get fat.

Trained for a career, but didn't actually enter it, or didn't stay in it long: sign of someone who wants credit for accomplishments, but would rather not do work.

Masculine digit ratio

Tries to place forearm in front of yours, rather than behind, when holding hands: This is the "leading position".

Leaves bloody tampons/pads in plain sight in your bathroom trashcan, rather than wrapping them: Messy, inconsiderate, little or no regard for staying attractive once sexual relationship is established.

Tactical crying

Expects to get her way because she is upset.

Religious: Religion is the ultimate blue pill, a tool used to motivate behaviour with superstition rather than incentives.

Romance novels.

Doesn't have any male friends.

Green:

Bargaining/persuasive language when she wants something: Understands reciprocity. Less chance of manipulative behaviour.

Takes criticism calmly, even if she disagrees.

Takes disagreement calmly.

Porn: as opposed to romance novels. Able to admit to, confront and take responsibility for own sexual tastes and desires.

Doesn't have many female friends: no common ground with the majority of modern US women

Men Shun Match.com Events For Older Women

5 upvotes · 26 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure it could. Sometimes that's part of the job description.

Why Are American Men So Dumb?

5 upvotes · 6 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

Exactly. When you punish intelligent, goal-oriented behaviour, smart people will very quickly start doing stupid things.

In response to a front page post saying "If I'm a woman walking down the street naked, you STILL don't have the right to rape me."

5 upvotes · 1 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

I have no idea what point you're trying to make. Seriously, I don't.

My point is that rapists, like wolves, don't listen to arguments about what they should or shouldn't do, and non-rapists might listen, but don't need to hear them.

All I know is that, like you pointed out, men are not wolves, and should be able to process the fact that they can't rape people

I never said "men". I said humans. The fact that we are discussing rape and you automatically think "men" reveals a thing or two about your prejudices. You might wanna do something about that.

should be able to process the fact that they can't rape people, and control themselves. Sadly some do not, and still rape people, and this is bad. What is not bad is the fact that some women want to wear scanty clothing. There is nothing inherently wrong with that.

Should. Bad. Wrong.

You are addressing the world of IS with the language of OUGHT. Please read this again:

This is what happens when idealists clash with reality. They tend to complain to realists that someone hasn't made the reality go away for them, so that they can stay in their safe idealized world that they have constructed in their head, where things like rights and justice and fairness are things that objectively exist and can be measured, instead of just ways we made up of describing how we want others to behave.

Ontario Superior Court Justice Susan Greer orders CEO of Maple Leaf Foods to pay ex-wife $175,000 per month in "spousal support"...despite contract saying he would not have to.

5 upvotes · 14 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Didn't realize the contract was brought forth 16 years after they married

So what? Could she not have simply... not signed?

N.O.W. Is Very Concerned About The Progress Made By MRA's - YouTube

5 upvotes · 4 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

This is why even arguing with them at ALL quickly gets bogged down and becomes impossible- because now you would have to go back and explain all about how money is earned, not just simply handed over to you, as if you were having to educate a child. Then THAT explodes into yet ANOTHER argument

This is called fractal wrongness. Each feminist belief that is wrong is usually based on another set of false premises that are just as wrong as the original belief, which are based on another set of false premises, and so on...

Arguing with them takes an infinite amount of time, because each new level takes as much time as the original argument.

The good news is that we don't have to undo it with rational rhetorical argument, because it didn't come into being that way. People believe things because others believe them, and when any belief gets enough subscribers, it becomes mainstream and seems sensible to people. People confuse normal with sane.

This has worked against us, but it can also work in our favour. All we need to do is convince enough people (mostly men, but there'll be some sane women out there) about MRA issues, and our beliefs will become common. Then the fractally wrong individuals will have to adjust their own rationalizations or become marginalized and cease to matter.

You don't have to be persuasive, you just have to be visibly and persistently right.

Someone please tell me this quote is a fake...

5 upvotes · 7 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

Who cares if she believes it? She's willing to say it.

Rick Santorum might not actually hate gay people. But he's willing to pander to voters who do, and that's what makes the difference.

Someone's sincerity doesn't really matter. Only their actions.

There needs to be an honest study of all the ways women receive wealth, compared to men.

5 upvotes · 15 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

It's a simple matter of money out + money held = money in. If women save it, or spend it, they must be getting it from somewhere.

If they make .7 dollars for every dollar a man makes, but spend 5, and still have a higher average net worth, then the conclusion is inescapable... men are just giving women the rest of that money, either directly or the the point of a government gun.

This does mean something good for the MRM, though. Because it means we don't need to generate sympathy (which men don't usually get). Or complain (which doesn't work for men either). Or raise awareness.

All we have to do is stop giving women money.

I'm being homeschooled and my parents are using online courses; this is my Health course's tips about rape

5 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because if a man and a woman have sex, he's doing the "using", right?

Assumption of female hypoagency agency again.

I'm being homeschooled and my parents are using online courses; this is my Health course's tips about rape

5 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

It seems at first glance like a shallowness issue (he only wanted me for sex) and sometimes it is

I find this attitude kind of anti-male.

Since when is one type of intimacy "shallower" than another? Since when are one group's priorities less important than another's?

Since one group is assumed to consist mostly of males and the other mostly of females, that's when.

Congratulations: if you're a man - especially a white man, you have absolutely no problems.

5 upvotes · 13 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because, I think statistically, you either wouldn't get shot as often as someone of a minority, or would be shot by another white male.

Statistically, we're all mixed-race hermaphrodites who have been dead for several hundred years at least.

In the real world, however, we are all individuals.

Chivalry is dead! WAAAAAAH!!!

5 upvotes · 5 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Blue.

Why are women so negative about the "picking up women" school of thought?

5 upvotes · 1 October 2012 · /r/seduction

Excellently put.

But you forgot one. The big one. Game gives men power over sex. Women are accustomed to having a monopoly on sexual power, and, if they are under about 35 or so, they do not even remember a world where women did not have total control over sex and dating.

And if you look at the divorce industry and sex-harassment claims industry, you rapidly see that power over sex can easily, like any other form of power, be turned into money and other tangible benefits.

Sooner or later, the audiences of reddit and /r/MensRights are going to start realizing that they are fighting different tentacles of the same squid, and start talking to each other.

My mother asked me why there was no women in Formula 1. I replied that motor-sport was not gender specific & only the best make it. Is this the only sport where this applies?

5 upvotes · 12 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

Desiré Wilson became the only woman to win a Formula One race of any kind when she won at Brands Hatch in the British Aurora F1 series on 7 April 1980. As a result of this achievement, she has a grandstand at Brands Hatch named after her.

Amusing. Yet another example of special recognition for "doing X while in possession of a vagina".

A Post you'll Never Find in r/Feminism

5 upvotes · 11 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

Since when was "hard work" a necessarily male value?

Since when did I say anything about hard work? I'm talking about protocols for conflict resolution that exist within male social customs.

"...men in general are expected to view their sexuality and natural sexual instinct as predatory, something to be ashamed of, something dirty and devious which marks them out as potential rapists."

5 upvotes · 23 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

men in general are expected to view their sexuality and natural sexual instinct as predatory, something to be ashamed of, something dirty and devious which marks them out as potential rapists

... by websites like the Huffington Post.

The most pathetic beta thing I have ever seen (from Roosh tweet)

5 upvotes · 22 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

It's important to remember that we can't make all men's problems vanish just by eliminating feminism. There is another problem that is at least as bad, and that is men undervaluing themselves.

Now, if you've raised three children in a closed relationship with someone, you don't necessarily dump them the first time they break that closed-relationship agreement. There's a lot there that might be worth salvaging. But they better be the one fucking apologizing.

Relationships are either closed or open. And in a closed relationship, "cheating" happens sometimes. Monogamy is a difficult agreement to keep.

But you break an agreement, you take responsibility. She needs to be the one making videos like this. And if he doesn't start expecting that kind of responsibility and accountability from her, she's going to do this again. Because if Game teaches us one thing, it's that women do not find weakness attractive.

If you will not stand up to them, they will not be attracted to you.

The dark side of geek feminism (x Post from r/linux)

5 upvotes · 1 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

It gets into a "no true Scotsman" sort of thing

Yes, it does, and your argument is invalid.

You don't get a pass on using logical fallacies just for coming out and admitting it.

Femitheist Divine suicide

5 upvotes · 24 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Being abandoned by so many people and lied to left me wanting to watch the world burn, as cliché as that sounds. I lied here on every post and response about wanting to help people, I lied about loving people. The only person I care about is myself, and that's the way it has always been. I've always wanted others to feel the same way about me that I do about me. Anything less than absolute adoration leaves me feeling empty.

(Emphasis mine.)

This does sound like a case of Borderline/Narcissistic Personality Disorder. Hate agendas like feminism have a tendency to attract broken people.

The fact that on the internet, no one knows you're a dog... is both its greatest strength and its greatest weakness. Had she said the hateful things she said in person, had we actually seen her emerging from the mouth of a confused and rather stupid 20 year old girl, we would have laughed more and been less angry. But if you expect to be taken seriously by those who approve of you, you must expect to be taken seriously by those who disapprove as well.

Perhaps if MRAs were deific figures, perfect embodiments of worldly wisdom and compassion, we might have been able to save this child. But it should not be surprising that we couldn't, since every other part of society, including those close to her, and those explicitly tasked with caring for children, failed also.

Saving her wasn't our job.

Perhaps if a young member of the Westborough Baptist Church killed himself after being shouted at by gay activists at a rally, this would be sad. But the blame would properly rest with the Westborough Baptists, not the gay rights movement, or homosexuals in general.

Let us not forget that this person called for the systematic castration of all living human males... in a public "ceremony" designed to humiliate. And yet it turned out she was unable to bear even a minute fraction of the humiliation and pain she wished upon others.

So, while her death is hardly the ideal outcome, it is far less tragic than the deaths of many other 20 year olds, who deserved their lives much more, having done better things with them. That same day, 20 year old soldiers, all boys, died in wars not of their own choosing. 20 year old college students, of both sexes, died in accidents or of diseases. I mourned for none of them, for I did not know them, but theirs was a greater loss.

You will, therefore, have to pardon me my lack of crocodile tears at the self-inflicted death of a bigot.

We're having an MGTOW debate over at /r/LadyMRAs and we'd appreciate various POVs from /r/MensRights.

5 upvotes · 22 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

The very first words anyone said to him in response were:

Do you feel like you lack respect for all women?

how i found r/mensrights:

5 upvotes · 20 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, it's not far enough.

False accusations of rape are worse than rape.

Why?

- I think we can all agree that it's better for a guilty person to go free than for an innocent one to be punished.
- At least when someone is raped, it's against the law, so the system is trying to make things right. When a false accusation of rape is leveled, the system is being used, and fights to make things wrong.
- Rape ends. Try getting off the sex offender registry.
- We don't send people to prison for being raped.
- When you have been raped, it doesn't destroy your reputation.
- Being falsely accused of rape can send you somewhere where you get raped. Being raped doesn't get you falsely accused of raping someone.

"To learn who rules over you, simply find out who you are not allowed to criticize." ~Voltaire

5 upvotes · 19 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

it also implies that middle-aged white males have the LEAST power

And the only reason that sounds "absurd" is because it disagrees with consensus.

But consensus is not evidence. In this case, consensus is something people arrived at by committing one of the most basic logical errors of all... inverting a syllogism.

The syllogism that those in power are largely white and male cannot be inverted to state that those who are white and power are largely those in power.

I want to apologize to you guys

5 upvotes · 14 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, this is the fallacy.

People and movements are defined by their actions, not by what they say about themselves.

We understand the nazi movement through the actions of the third reich, not by reading Mein Kampf and taking it at face value. Similarly, we must look at the actions of the feminist movement, not just listen to what feminists say about themselves and call it a day.

If you call yourself a feminist, you are lumping yourself with a group whose actions are bigoted and hateful. And yet you seem to expect not to have us react at all to this.

If I started attending "aryan nation" rallies, my black friends might just get a little uncomfortable with that.

Here's how to get rid of SRS for good.

5 upvotes · 14 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

I actually feed this set of trolls on purpose. Why?

Because they are doing our work for us. People who have never heard of /r/mr are starting to come out against SRS.

Sometimes the best PR of all is the kind of people who consider you an enemy.

My girlfriend asked me to hit on someone else to prove I had game.

5 upvotes · 11 July 2012 · /r/seduction

- Your girlfriend can disrespect you in conversation.
- Your girlfriend can hold up hoops for you to jump through.
- Your girlfriend can then get angry at you for jumping through them.
- You are terrified of your girlfriend's anger.

You are the bitch in this relationship.

"In Defense of Men: When did it become OK for women to be sexist?" An article by Kate Bartolotta

5 upvotes · 2 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

While I agree with the general sentiment behind your words, when you say our wants and needs aren't so different

... I just can't agree. People can vary a lot, and everyone has their own individual needs. Part of treating other people fairly is having enough consideration for them to find out what those needs are, instead of just giving them what we assume everyone must want.

Instead, I would say "our wants and needs are all important".

It's okay to treat men and women differently, in fact, one kind of has to, because they're different. But it's critical to treat both groups fairly and with consideration.

That's why I don't subscribe to the notion of "gender equality", and prefer the term "fairness".

Why are feminists even slightly perturbed by the existence of MRM?

5 upvotes · 30 June 2012 · /r/MensRights someone labeling my gender as complicit (and/or active) in a secret pact of oppression?

That's why people keep telling you "feminist != woman".

Because you say you understand this, but he used the word "feminist" over and over and over again, and somehow, you heard "woman".

So exactly, how willing are most women to having sex the same night?

5 upvotes · 29 June 2012 · /r/seduction

I'm a Labrador Retriever who has learned to type with his nose.

Gay shaming has to stop

5 upvotes · 12 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

"Slut" isn't used only to attack manipulatively sexual women.

There's where you are participating in the slut-shaming of men, and you don't even know it.

The very idea that PUAs are "manipulatively sexual" is part of the bigotry that PUAs and other sexually promiscuous men face.

Saying that you don't attack PUAs for being sexually promiscuous, but for being manipulative and misogynistic... well, that's like saying "I don't attack sluts for being sexually active, but for being shallow, conniving, immoral home-wreckers." Your alleged reason is just part of the attack.

Gay shaming has to stop

5 upvotes · 12 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

They claim there is no slut analogue for men

Sure there is. And there is an analogue to slut-shaming, too. Look at the things feminists say about the PUA/seduction community.

Feminists hate sluts just as much as Jesus freaks do... so long as the sluts are male.

I think it's worth clarifying what exactly it is that we do here on Seddit.

5 upvotes · 8 June 2012 · /r/seduction

The problem is that "manipulating" is a weasel word. It's just the term "persuading" with a negative spin.

We all push each others' buttons all the time. It's how the world works. It's what human intelligence evolved from. When we see an example of that which we like, we call it persuasion or charisma, when we see one we don't like, we call it manipulation, or deception.

But there's no objective litmus test for distinguishing between the two.

Some people around here accept that, acknowledge that everyone is responsible for their own behaviour on a case-by-case basis, and get on with their lives.

Others are so hungry to appease feminists, tradcons, and other slut-shamers, or their own neurotically overactive superegos, that they will waste quite a bit of time on the sort of public hand-wringing we see here, or make ridiculous statements like "pickup is about self-improvement, not sex", or other means of wasting energy on what haters think.

In the end, we each have to live with ourselves, and be tolerated by those we come in contact with. Those are the only standards that matter.

The reason why you're so neurotic and what to do about it

5 upvotes · 31 May 2012 · /r/seduction

A better and more honest title would be "The reason why I'm so neurotic and what I can do about it".

You haven't cracked the code on neurosis in general. Just on yours. Interesting stuff. But the burdens of others may be very different indeed.

A feminist writes "perhaps it's premature to start worrying too much about the "second sexism" (Misandry) when the first one (Misogyny) seems so prevalent still."

5 upvotes · 23 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

A feminist is someone who wants to fix the last problem faced by women before the first problem faced by men.

Something Just Clicked For Me

5 upvotes · 18 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

It's a nail in the coffin.

The slam-dunk itself is non-falsifiability.

So, these "dude tips" are all over UCLA. By the Bruin Feminists for "Equality"

5 upvotes · 9 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Chick tip: If you have a child, remember not to murder it.

Obama White House pays women less than men, records show... but of course, no mention of job positions taken into account.

5 upvotes · 12 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

And in other news, I am more interested in talking to other engineers than to gangsta rappers... OMG I iz a racist!

Advice needed: Escalating with a girl who is scared of guys.

5 upvotes · 11 April 2012 · /r/seduction

I get the impression that the girl is nervous around guys. Perhaps a bad experience with sexual assault or some such.

Next her.

Her issues are not your responsibility. Why should you deal with extra crap? Is she a 10? Is she somehow special?

Why buy a fixer-upper at the price of a pristine home?

Dave Chappelle How Women Dress Quote

5 upvotes · 6 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Wait. Why? Why is it "shaming"?

It is only "shaming" if you assume that a whore is a bad thing to be. Which is the feminists' line. Not ours.

In fact, a whore is a far better person than a feminist, because a whore will give you something for your money.

'Two and a Half Men' Co-Creator "incensed industry colleagues by suggesting that there were too many television comedies focusing on women."

5 upvotes · 3 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Why bother dealing with the content when you can attack the source?

The power of vague slippery-slope rape hysteria: Phone app shut down because a writer called it "creepy" and hinted that it could be used for "stalking", but no policy violation occurred

5 upvotes · 31 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

These are all girls with publicly visible Facebook profiles who have checked into these locations recently using Foursquare.

Man banned from being alone with his own daughter (who he lives with) after reporting child porn he accidentally found being distributed on the net (there are no accusations that he did anything other than stumble across it by accident as far as I can tell)

5 upvotes · 7 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Never get involved with the "justice" system in any capacity, innocent or not.

Never tell the police anything, innocent or not.

The system exists to destroy people's lives, and they do it so regularly that they have lost their sense of proportion about it. If they think that locking someone in a cage for five years is a light punishment, do you think they are going to give a shit about separating you from your child, causing you to lose your job, destroying your reputation?

Stay the fuck away from them. They are far more dangerous to good people than anyone they are supposed to stop.

Can we please ban QquestionEveryPost?

5 upvotes · 21 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

claim 13 year old girls can consent to sex with an adult

Ok, hold on a sec.

While this is a troubling thing to contemplate, it is a claim about the world, and it can be disputed with evidence. It is absolutely an example of free intellectual discourse and inquiry. No one is obliged to agree with it.

The whole point of free discourse is allow one's deeply held values to be challenged, so that one can defend them... if one can.

If we, as a society, wish to hold it as an accepted fact that 13 year olds cannot consent to sex, and to penalize, quite harshly, anyone who acts on the opposite assumption, then we must allow that belief to be questioned, because we are obligated to prove we can defend it.

If something is so obviously true, we should be able to show that it is true without resorting to moral outrage and bans. If, for example, I said that the Holocaust was a good thing, I wouldn't need to be silenced. Because my arguments would be ridiculous and easy to deflate with a few careful bits of rhetoric.

Trying, instead, to stop the conversation would indicate that our position was weak, and had to break the rules of civilized discourse in order to win.

Nothing new, but I'm sick to death of being called a man simply because I support Men's Rights

5 upvotes · 18 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because, of course, what someone wants to hear doesn't ever, ever, just happen to also be true.

Saw this in a jewelry store window today.

5 upvotes · 11 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

One of the major reasons that advertising in general is so misandric is that, while men earn a dollar for every seventy cents a woman earns, women spend five dollars for every dollar a man spends (source: The Myth of Male Power, by Warren Farrel).

This means means that purchasers of most goods and services are largely women. Naturally advertisers are going to do whatever appeals to them.

The true misandry problem here is that women have been taught to like and respond positively to insults to men. They've been taught that men are the enemy.

Women Who Want Domesticity

5 upvotes · 8 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

The fact is that people ~~who are different~~ do not get along.

Fixed that for you.

People fight. They separate themselves into groups, and they fight. If it's not races, it's territories. If it's not religions, it's sports teams. Political philosophies. Economic philosophies. Income levels. Whatever.

Humans are hardwired to hate, fear, and distrust outgroups. But here's the tricky part. What defines an outgroup is left up to the small portion of our mind that is self-aware. In other words, if people think of themselves as black or white, they hate other races. If they think of themselves as Cardinals fans, they hate supporters of other teams. If they think of themselves as communists, they hate capitalists, and vice versa.

You seem to think that racial strife is hardwired in. You're wrong. Strife is hardwired in, and the more you pay attention to race, the more you promote racial strife (one of the huge mistakes of the American left).

Technically, I'm of nordic descent, but I don't care. Why don't I care? Because I don't want to live in Ethniklashistan, that's why. It's silly. And multiculturalist lefties always think that if I disagree with them, I must be a racist right-winger. They can't understand that I don't hate brown people, I hate being hated because I'm white. And right-wing racists always think that if I disagree with them, I must be a liberal. They can't understand that I simply don't fear certain groups the way they do.

I'm going to save my attention for differences that matter. Men's rights and feminism matter, because men and women really are different whether we admit it or not, so we need to figure out ways to deal with that.

But people of different colours are only different if we think of them as such, and teach them to be so. It's an arbitrary distinction. You could as easily choose eye colour, or hair colour, or height, or whether they have stars on thars.

Yes, liberals are wrong and their agenda is stupid. But that doesn't mean the opposite is right. And whatever you , in particular, mean by nationalism (a word that has been defined and redefined by so many people over centuries that it could mean anything from "patriotism" to "a fried egg"), I don't care until you give me a reason to.

What does your "nationalism" have for me, other than the tempting offer of alienating me from half my friends, and forcing me to kneel to the bloodthirsty mythological desert god of a bunch of bronze-age goat herders?

Oh, wait, I forgot, there's also the tempting offer of giving up my rich and varied sex life to spend my hard-earned money to support some stay-at-home woman and a litter of brats I don't particularly want to have.

Maybe that's not what you mean by nationalism. But don't you get it? I don't care. Because you haven't incentivized my caring. You say I don't "understand" your definition of "nationalism", as if this were an accusation rather than an indictment of your poor publicity.

If you want me to care, tell me what's in it for me. Because so far all I see on that website is a bunch of lists of what other people want me to be, and do... and not a hint of how this might bring me benefits I don't already have.

And don't bother to bore me with some tiresome rant about how our current society isn't sustainable, because that fact in no way proves that yours is the best, or the only, alternative. There are plenty of workable models for society. What's so great about yours?

Women Who Want Domesticity

5 upvotes · 8 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

your dislike is nothing more than ad hominem

No, it isn't.

Ad hominem isn't just "insulting a person". It's a specific logical fallacy. It means, attempting to refute an argument by talking about the person making it.

I was not attempting to refute the argument. I was pointing out how the site was objectionable, both on moral and public relations grounds. Ergo, no ad hominem. Just proper contempt for bunch of thinly veiled Nazis.

The message needs to be evaluated for worth separate from it's source.

True. But the wisdom of choosing a particular source for the message needs to be evaluated separately from the content of the message. I don't want to associate with those creeps.

A lot of MRAs have become racial nationalists because they've realized that multiculturalism is just as damaging to a society as feminism.

If they can't make the distinction between disagreeing with the political left's model of "multiculturalism" and "hating blacks and jews", then we don't need them.

I do not believe Rex is a racial nationalist either

Yes, I understand that the essay is just quoted on that site, and didn't originate there. But why create opportunities for those who would loooooooooooooove to depict us as racists?

Women Who Want Domesticity

5 upvotes · 8 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Problem is, once women entered the work force, this increased the amount of available labour, without increasing demand for that labour.

Price goes down.

Men from traditional, single-earner families would have to compete not only with all other men, but with most of the women.

It's all very well to talk about choices, but choices are constrained by markets. If you wanna give people choices, you need to know how they will affect the market, and how the market will affect them.

Why don't we nominate girlwriteswhat to be a speaker on TED?

5 upvotes · 5 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

You make a good point here.

The fact is that girlwriteswhat is an engaging speaker and writer, but we have several other individuals around here who are just as much so...

She stands out not just for her articulation skills, but because she is a woman saying these things. It's right there in her nom de plume.

And if that gets our message across, I say use it. If people won't listen to Fredrick Douglas, they'll listen to the white abolitionists.

Janet Howell, a Virginia State Senator, attached a amendment to a abortion bill to require men to have rectal exams before getting a Viagra prescription.

5 upvotes · 1 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Well, let's take revenge on some totally unrelated people who had nothing to do with the bill I'm upset about. Clearly, that would be the mature and responsible thing to do.

Dear MensRights

5 upvotes · 17 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Downvoters have trouble with reading comprehension.

Letters that start "Dear MR" are either concern trolls by feminists about how "misogynistic" we are, or stories from men about something horrible that just happened to them.

Forever Alone comes to reddit - Ask Us Anything

5 upvotes · 11 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Sedditor

Start small. Take a little risk, get a little victory, a little attention, whatever... then use that to go for a slightly bigger risk.

Remember that you're not trying to be perfect, just better than you were yesterday. Realize that men are not just useless sacks of hair like the television keeps telling you. Women want men as much as we want them.

Try believing that, and take a little chance. That's all you have to do. It can be as simple as touching an attractive girl on the arm as you talk to her, and seeing her not pull away... when your villainous self-doubt was whispering that she would.

Confidence and success feed off each other, spiraling upward together. All you need is a little taste to get it started.

UK Guardian and many Japanese elders angry that not all young Japanese men are eager to be one-dimensional grunt-laborers with a singular interest in sex

5 upvotes · 29 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Of course they're pissed.

For most all of human history, restricting access to women (either by the women's families in patriarchal cultures, or the women themselves in feminist cultures) has been used to extract labour, violence, and risk-taking behaviours from men.

But males have become regarded as so-low value, and are permitted to expect so little from women, that actual women are no longer able to compete with porn and videogames effectively.

Societies seem to feel entitled that men should behave as they always have, even when men cease to receive what they have always received.

The Eternal Solipsism Of The Female Mind

5 upvotes · 17 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

An interesting article that I mostly agree with. I find it interesting though, that it argues for a return to a previous reality.

While this is probably how the author thinks, the real take-away point from this market reality has a somewhat different focus.

The problem isn't that today's women are sluts. There's nothing wrong with sluts, now that technology has removed the natural impediments to enjoying yourself sexually. The problem is that they are selfish, entitled sluts, who have not embraced a concern for their partners' wants, needs, desires, and feelings at the same time they embraced their own.

A woman can treat men in an ethical manner whether she wishes to be promiscuous or monogamous. It's simply a matter of seeing men as human beings, equally entitled to pursue their own happiness, equally desirable and worthy of affection.

But women, for a transition period of several decades after the rise of the feminist sexual revolution, chose to be selfish about it, reveling in their new-found freedom without permitting that same freedom to men. They behaved like bohemian libertines while expecting men to behave like "gentlemen callers".

In concrete terms, while they were still young and desirable, and the men, slower to adjust, still let them get away with it, they restricted their promiscuity to men who were willing to pay, perform, and pursue, or the most desirable segment of the males. Everyone not in one of these categories, whether because he was a beta personality, less attractive, or simply prideful enough to insist on being treated as an equal, was left out of the sexual revolution.

And now, when they can no longer make men jump through hoops, they are wondering what the hell happened.

There's nothing wrong with the world being a sexual playground... but it cannot remain that way for only one gender. A woman whose lifestyle involves lots of sexual partners cannot and should not expect an approach much more suave or effort-laden than "Hey, how about it?". A woman who expects to be courted must offer something of equal value to the effort they expect a man to make. I suspect most women would be at a total loss to even answer what that might be, much less to actually provide it.

In short, women are facing a world where a man needs them as much as a bicycle needs a fish. Not because men want nothing from them, but more because all things men want are things they are unwilling or unable to provide.

A male feminist posted this link in myFacebook thread; in response to a Men's Rights link I put up. [Details in comments]

5 upvotes · 16 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Oh, I see your confusion.

Yes, there have been bad atheists. It would be surprising indeed if the absence of religion was sufficient to make everyone a nice person. What there haven't been is atrocities committed in the name of atheism.

This is because atheism isn't a belief system. It's a convenient name given to the absence of one of them. Trying to point to atrocities committed by atheism is like trying to point out atrocities committed by non-catholicism, or non-feudalism, or non-Marxism. You can either try to include every atrocity committed by someone who wasn't a catholic, medieval landowner, or Marxist, which is bad logic... or you can admit that there are none.

Not because atheists are necessarily better, but because people don't do things in the name of a non-cause.

Dear Women, it's shit like this...

5 upvotes · 14 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

I feel for you poor straight guys. I don't know how you can stand women sometimes.

The problem isn't that women behave badly.

The problem is that they've been given so much power that they can do so without consequences.

I'm a transgender female living as a man; I have some observations and questions you might be interested in, /mensrights

5 upvotes · 9 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

I'm not on testosterone

Well, I think if you were you'd understand why men talk about sex all the time.

It's insane how much it sounds like guys just see women as sex toys

Not really. You see, everyone sees other people as a means to an end, a lot of the time. This is normal, and we scarcely think about it. But when it's men, looking at women, and thinking about sex, people notice.

Why HPV Vaccination Of Boys May Be Easier? Easy... Because Girls are Chaste and Boys are Sex-Crazed Animals.

5 upvotes · 7 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

If you look a graph theory, and some of the things that computer science knows about networks, you discover something surprising.

If a majority of females are chaste or highly selective, this promotes the spread of disease. This is because the fewer females who are more promiscuous become "hubs" which connect the male population with fewer degrees of separation, and you end up with less path depth than a uniformly connected graph.

[For Newbies] Nice Guy Syndrome: What it is and why you should kill it with fire [LONG]

5 upvotes · 24 October 2011 · /r/seduction

I really don't get this obsession with 'nice guys'...

Because it's difficult not to be one.

There's a tendency to project your preferences onto others that's sometimes easy to slip into if you're not careful. For example, women will sometimes try to attract men by acting confident and somewhat aloof... because that's what they find attractive in men. But confidence is at best a neutral quality for female attractiveness, and aloofness is always a turnoff.

Similarly, because guys like girls who are attentive, forthcoming, and compliant, there's a danger to all of us of falling into the assumption that behaving that way will get us somewhere.

Neil Patrick Harris with his partner and their two children

5 upvotes · 13 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, Neil Patrick Harris is way too old for anyone to adopt. It would just be weird.

I saw this and cried.

5 upvotes · 7 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, passive aggressive and sarcasm, instead of saying what you mean. Troll, all right. Shouldn't have bothered.

Saw this Norman Rockwell illustration and I thought: If the black eye were on the girl would the picture be considered folksy and funny?

5 upvotes · 10 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

You're confusing male competitive violence with relationship violence.

It's true that one very bad way that our society mistreats men is not allowing us to compete (even violently) and gain respect and honor from it. Men gain trust for each other by testing each others' courage. This is natural to us, and right.

But there is no honour in competition with women. A woman who strikes a man is betraying a bond of trust, and hitting someone who is not able or allowed to hit back.

Relationship violence is not a matter of physical injury. The weakest, most cowardly person can survive the most horrific of injuries if they are inflicted by some psychologically neutral source, like a car accident. It is the betrayal of trust that damages. It is fear. It is walking on eggshells. It is the shame of being subordinated.

This is why you must always hit back. Even if the punch didn't hurt. Because someone who hits you is telling you that it's okay to hit you, and unless you've both signed up for the experience (boxing, BDSM, etc), that's not a healthy thing to put up with.

Mother of three sorely disappointed that a Taylor Swift concert featured Taylor Swift singing songs instead of pro-feminist messages

5 upvotes · 18 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Feminism is like Christianity in that its adherents insist that they are "oppressed" if everyone does not loudly and vehemently agree with them..

You are either with them or against them.

F* you, MensRights

5 upvotes · 9 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

When you turn on a light, the glare hurts at first.

But you're in the same place you were in when it was dark, and now you know where the furniture is.

Female Masculinist on Self-Control

5 upvotes · 8 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

This is the feminist theory: women are never responsible for their own actions and thus the men and children around them must endure whatever they dish out - murder by abortion, physical attacks, impoverishment, etc. – and protect them from the consequences.

This was well-put.

But I'm somewhat nonplussed at this idea that women (and men) who don't want children must "keep their legs together".

That's absurd. Everyone is descended from a long line of people, hominids, mammals, amphibians, fish, and eventually prokaryotes who were incapable of doing precisely that. Contraceptives exist for a reason.

I dislike in the strongest possible way this idea that masculinism is to be the new puritanism, whose answer to sex is "don't". Men have sexual needs, too, and surely any philosophy or advocacy that cares about their well-being will have a notion of what outlets there will be for that.

"Keep your legs together" is not an answer, because it doesn't work. One only need look at the number of unwed mothers in fundamentalist religious versus secular communities to prove that beyond the shadow of a doubt.

What works is acknowledging that you will have sex, planing for it, using contraceptives, and not trying to sweep the whole business under the carpet.

This is something that old-world puritanism can't handle, and neither can feminism with its insistence that women be granted all power over the sexual act. When women are cast in the sole role of "sexual gatekeeper", they can not, will not, be sexually responsible, because sex will only happen when men successfully seduce them into a state of feeling rather than thinking.

In other words, the feminist woman cannot responsibly engage in sex as an act of affection and shared pleasure and joy, because she's too involved with controlling access to it as a power play.

Throughout history, denial of access to sex has always been used to control men, and to extract value from them. Once it was the families of women who held this weapon, now it is women themselves.

But anyone who advocates such a scheme, especially a return to a more stringent version of it, is no friend to me, or to any other man whose ambitions do not include either lifelong celibacy, or the slavery of modern marriage.

In short, I like sex. Most men like sex. We don't want women totally in control of when, where and how we do that, like the feminists want... but neither do we want women punished for having sex with us, like these neo-puritans seem to desire.

Anyone who berates women for getting into bed with me is no friend of mine.

"No State or political subdivision of a State may adopt or continue in force a law, regulation, or order that prohibits or regulates the circumcision [...]"

5 upvotes · 6 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Unconstitutional.

Congress has no authority to enact such a law.

Smart Little Boy Doesn't Want To Get Married

5 upvotes · 25 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

misandry isn't in my spell check

I'll bet "misogyny" is.

A letter to male activists

5 upvotes · 20 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

stop defending yourself

Mmmmm hmmm.

"Men and women play games with each other because men are operating under an irrational paradigm that says to men, 'you're not good enough for any woman, so you must pretend to be better than you are.'" - Johnny Soporino

5 upvotes · 15 July 2011 · /r/seduction

I've said it before and I'll say it again.

The PUA community is a response to how the last few generations have been taught that women are somehow better than men.

On a value-level playing field, seddit wouldn't need to exist.

Don't MRAs and feminists both want gender equality? Where's the big disagreement?

5 upvotes · 4 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Just because two people disagree doesn't mean that fairness is splitting the difference.

Yes, it is indeed productive to say the other side is wrong when they are.

This stupid shit doesn't make a man; it makes an emasculated "nice guy" [aka vapid high school girl shit]

5 upvotes · 1 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Now stop dating such bitchy girls Reddit.

Unfortunately, there isn't enough of you to go around.

So we're trying to retrain the others. We're making progress, but they are slow learners.

This stupid shit doesn't make a man; it makes an emasculated "nice guy" [aka vapid high school girl shit]

5 upvotes · 30 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Unfortunately, because this message is quite pervasive in our culture, some women buy into it long, long after high school.

While we needn't obsess over it, some pushback is appropriate, I think.

Walmart Discriminates Against Women Because Its Male Managers Work Really Hard | So, it's sex discrimination if you hire harder-working people to be managers and more of them turn out to be men?

5 upvotes · 24 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Remember: equality for men means equality of opportunities, and equality for women means equality of outcomes!

Woman complains about "Sexism in the Atheist Community". The "sexist" act? Someone made a pass during a skeptic's convention.

5 upvotes · 22 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Listen to her. She's actually sticking up for the man in question. The complainer is a person she's talking about.

Are you a player?

5 upvotes · 18 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Yep.

I'd turn it back on her:

"What, you mean people keep a count? Is there a score system? Are you carving notches on something? How many guys have you slept with? Did you award yourself the same number of points for each one?"

Can I be a feminist AND a masculinist at the same time?

5 upvotes · 17 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Can I be a feminist and a masculinist at the same time? I don't view either of those "isms" as movements seeking to elevate one gender over another. I see them rather as movements seeking to fight the systematic oppression on either.

Sorry to bear bad news, but I'm afraid that how you view feminism really isn't that important.

It doesn't really matter how we view ourselves. It's our actions that define us. We could argue back and forth all day about the philosophy of feminism and what it supposedly "is", but ultimately what matter is the actions of those who describe themselves as feminists, and the effect those actions have.

I won't write you a list of feminist actions are anti-male; we're sitting in an entire subreddit of examples.

What I will say is if you really want to understand what someone is, what role they play, what effect they have on the world, stop listening to what they say about themselves, and start watching what they do to others.

Anyone can write their philosophy, making cunning arguments about how they are the bastion of righteousness. Anyone can sound good.

A friend once told me that if I believed in gender-fairness, then I was a feminist. At the time I had to restrain the impulse to hit her (those are fighting words), but upon reflection, a more enlightening response might have been:

"Okay, then you're a Muslim."

"What?"

"Are you a good person?"

"Well, yes."

"Then you're a Muslim. All good people serve Allah. All servants of Allah are Muslims. Therefore, if you believe in being good, you must be a Muslim."

"What???"

"Now, since you're a Muslim, put on this burka and hand in your driver's license."

See, that sounds like crazy talk, but to a Muslim, it would make perfect sense. See, the words of Muslims say that they are good people and don't discriminate against women. But the actions of Muslims involve burkas and such. We know that Muslims are anti-female because we ignore their arguments and look at their actions.

If we ignore feminism's demand to be understood only by its rhetoric, and instead of take a look at what it actually does, we see stark hatred of anything male.

So, you can't be a feminist and a masculinist as well. You can, however, be for fair treatment of both genders. These two are completely different things.

The chickens come home to roost: when a feminist's son is falsely accused of rape

5 upvotes · 17 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Like walking naked, eating without forks and not driving cars.

Also like smiling, walking upright, and eating a varied diet.

What is your point?

Not, as you seem to assume, that this ought not to be changed, but that it can not be changed. It's hardwired in.

We are programmed with so many different adaptations to hominid social dynamics. Is it any surprise that one of those is for females to pretend indifference to males they may be attracted to?

Is it not significant that humans are one of the only species where the female doesn't go into heat, but remains capable of sexual activity throughout her cycle? Ever stop to think about what this may have co-evolved with?

Take your misogyny elsewhere.

Don't like the message? Attack the source.

Of course, I'm not even sure you entirely understand what the message is, but we could start with the idea that it's foolish and futile to attempt to eliminate instinctive behaviour with social engineering.

Tampering with your species' mating rituals is a perilous thing. Nature is a sexist, and there's very little we can do about that. But the real problems happen when we try to iron that out with our naive partial understanding.

Let me be clear, women: you have changed the arrangement so that there is NOTHING in it for me.

5 upvotes · 16 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Actually, I'm afraid that when he says six thousand years, this idiot means what he thinks the age of the earth is.

Mystery speaks about IOIs

5 upvotes · 15 May 2011 · /r/seduction

I don't know you from a hole in the wall.

He gives a neg, then explains what one is... and they still don't notice.

I spoke on social dynamics at MIT

Good example of raising value. He uses "spoke on", which actually means "somebody invited me to give a talk, which occurred on campus", to imply "taught"... but he gets away with this by breezing past it quickly.

scratching

Never thought of that one. Explains why this little redheaded number I am keeping on the back burner keeps scratching her hair whenever I am around.

LTR and orbiters, where to draw the line.

5 upvotes · 10 May 2011 · /r/seduction

That's one way to look at it.

But it's important to realize that oneitis doesn't just mean "being emotionally invested in someone" or even loving someone.

Oneitis is the crippling fear of losing someone, because you believe that they are the only shot you have at getting what you want, that they are irreplaceable.

Jealousy comes from that same fear of loss. Jealousy and oneitis share the same pathology, but love does not necessarily imply either. If you can love someone and be willing to give them up if you cannot get what you want from them, then LTRs and even monogamy are fine.

Both jealous and seduction are about the desire for control... but jealousy is the desire to control another, out of fear of loss, while seduction practice is about the desire to control one's own destiny, without reference to, or dependence on, others.

The true masters of this attitude were the powerful men of the ancient world, of the time before feminism. Think of the roman upper class. To them, women were a commodity. So much so that they frequently acted as providers (using whores or slaves) rather than running game, not because they had no game, but because they couldn't even be bothered. That was how unimportant women were to them.

If you wanted some wine, you sent a slave to the market to buy some. If you wanted some women, ditto. We could learn a lot from that attitude.

Sure, it's okay to love a woman. In the same way that you love your pets. You love your dog. You'd be sad if he were hit by a bus. But you don't need him. You don't worry about whether he is going to run off. You don't get jealous when your friends scratch his ears. You're not afraid to smack him with a rolled up magazine if he chews up your hiking boots.

Should a 'Trans-girl' let you know that she used to be a man before sex? Not according to the folk of /r/transphobiaproject.

5 upvotes · 8 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

So you're saying you're only inferring that a woman being raped is like a man having consensual sex unwittingly with a trans person?

Okay, that's an improvement. You're asking what I mean, instead of trying to tell me what I mean.

So in what way is a woman who is upset about being raped like a man who is upset at having been duped into sleeping with a transsexual?

They are both upset over something that is only injurious because they are upset about it.

Thus, to claim that the latter is not a real injury because of this is like claiming that the former is not a real injury because of this. Which quite evidently not true.

Because psychological trauma is real injury.

Now do you understand?

So I was raised feminist in Sweden. I've read all the FAQs and I've been lurking for some months. But for the life of me I can't figure out how third wave feminism is different from the MRM.

5 upvotes · 5 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

It just seems like we are alienating a lot of good people because of semantics.

So you're in favour of calling it FEMINism for this reason?

Is this a joke?

Does feminism really mean 'the right to choose'?

4 upvotes · 25 April 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think "choice feminism" is a rationalization originating with women who have been taught to believe that feminism is synonymous with women's rights, but are appalled by the poisonous reality of how feminism, as a movement, behaves.

"See, I'm a feminist, too, because I'm making my own choices!"

But feminism isn't about choices, or liberation, or empowerment, or freedom, and it never has been.

The woman who fully embraces feminist ideology is just as submissive, obedient, and controlled as the housewife of previous centuries. The only difference is that she has replaced obedience to men who love and care for her with obedience to an abstract ideology that doesn't care if she is happy, healthy, or even alive... so long as its principles are upheld.

Trying to detoxify feminism is like trying to detoxify rat poison so it's safe for human consumption. Maybe, with great effort, you could, but why not just start from scratch with something that isn't poisonous to begin with?

Oh no, little boys must be incels if they're using that word ?

4 upvotes · 16 April 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

What do you mean, they're "involuntarily celibate"? You're not SUPPOSED to have sex with little boys, you freak.

Shower thoughts: being water

4 upvotes · 18 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I learned this technique from you all and use it when dealing with leftist types making accusations. Sure I'm racist, homophobic and sexist...and your point? It's an incredibly powerful tool.

Yeah, it's basically just shit tests 101.

The thing to understand is that calling you an istophobe isn't a serious discussion of anything. It's just a derailing tactic.

If I say "the federal budget has not been balanced since the 19th amendment was passed", and someone calls me a "sexist", then they are attempting to change the subject. They don't want to talk about the effect women's suffrage has had on the federal budget. They want to talk about whether or not I am a sexist.

If I say, "no, I am not a sexist", I am allowing them to change the subject. We are now talking about whether or not I am a sexist, not the effect of women's suffrage.

Not only that, if someone has a bad opinion of me, and I try to change it, I am implicitly submitting to them, because I am appealing to them, as the judge of me, for their good opinion. This places me in their power, because I want something from them that they have the power to withhold, or to impose conditions for.

For example, when /u/rosiemagyver finally cut all the bullshit and came out with the real reason of "I just don't like you", she followed it up with "don't bother discussing it" (or some such), because she expected me to try to change her mind, or argue that I wasn't such a bad guy, or something.

When I simply responded with something to the effect of "so what?", there was no way to respond that wouldn't make her look a bit of a prat.

Many women will attempt to get their way, or to one-up others, or vent their negative feelings, by threatening to withhold their good opinion from others, even others who are total strangers. One of the things TRP teaches is that you gain both power and serenity by realizing that you don't need any given person's good opinion, especially that of people who already don't like you.

If a person just doesn't like you, any time spent trying to make them like you is probably a bad investment, because you could just as easily spend that time on someone who does like you... and make them like you more.

This is what you are doing when you say "yes, I am a racist, sexist, homophobe". You are refusing to invest your valuable time catering to someone who doesn't value you in the first place.

Basically we are so used to being on pedestals and are primed to think men are unfair that we treat equality as a slight against us.

Yes. It all boils down to the protective instinct. Because the special requirements of human childbearing make women uniquely fragile, the whole species is imbued with an instinctive imperative to value and protect them.

However, being valued and protected is not quite the same as being privileged. Sure, it functions as privilege in many situations... women are certainly more privileged than men. But, at the same time, this instinct also prioritizes protecting women over empowering, freeing, or listening to them.

The instinct doesn't demand that women be given choices about their lives... it simply demands that they be protected.

That's why both feminism and tradconism are dead set against women making choices about their own lives. Because both of them are different forms of slavery to that protective instinct. They may have different ideas about what is good for women, but both demand that their idea of what is good for women should be imposed upon women, rather than simply allowing women to choose for themselves, and bear the consequences of their choices.

That's why the sidebar is written the way it is... RPW is about female empowerment, not protection. You cannot simultaneously empower and protect someone, and, while both feminism and tradconism choose the latter, the "red pill" idea was always about choosing the former, both for men in TRP, and for women in RPW.

What do you guys think?

4 upvotes · 17 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I do concur that being an extrovert makes life easier for me in terms of cold approach.

Absolutely.

Extroverts have an easier time with pickup, and introverts have an easier time maintaining the upper hand in relationships.

Horrible post about how a lot of men don't like consensual sex, click link to see

4 upvotes · 15 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

For your sake, I hope this is sarcasm.

Hitler was a socialist. Stalin was a communist. And this is what feminism is.

Belief systems and movements are not defined by what they say about themselves. They are defined by the effect that they have in the world.

Anyone can write a manifesto saying that their ideology means "we all live in paradise, and everyone gets a pet flying pony", but what actually matters is the shit they keep doing.

From day one, feminism has always been a hate movement.

Men are cruel

4 upvotes · 11 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Imagine seeing a man get permanently blinded and disfigured and having this be your take on it. I guess one out of every hundred people really is a psychopath. Go have yourself institutionalized so you don't hurt anyone.

What are your thoughts on this one-sided ad?

4 upvotes · 5 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Nearly ALL intelligence services use them to continuously screen their personnel.

You do understand that intelligence services don't care about false positives, right?

Yes a tiny fraction of the population can defeat the polygraph

I'm not sure you entirely understand what a polygraph is. There's nothing to "defeat". There's no algorithm. There's just a person. Whether or not a "lie" is "detected" is just basically asking a person their opinion.

The fact that this person is looking at some biometric data does not magically make their opinion any less subjective.

Is being in the medical field an obstacle to a healthy love life ?

4 upvotes · 17 February 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

your status as a doctor will allow you to date high quality men

Don't give misleading advice.

High status allows social contact with high status men... but it does nothing to attract them.

Would you guys still marry a female if you found out she was a feminist?

4 upvotes · 21 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

So you think that all women are unreasonable children, who can't tolerate even the slightest criticism, not of themselves, but of absolutely anyone else with girl parts?

That's kind of an unflattering view of an entire sex.

In my personal experience, both my girlfriends know my reddit username, and see me commenting here on a regular basis. They haven't thrown any tantrums yet.

Although this is possibly because neither of them is a raging narcissist, and consequently they don't have trouble with the idea that some conversations are not actually about them.

Triggered by a confident woman.

4 upvotes · 18 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"I know my worth." is code for "I am confrontational and have poor social skills."

People who actually know their worth and have good social skills don't say "I know my worth". They simply move on from people who treat them in a way that they don't like being treated. They can do this because they have plenty of other options for people to befriend/date/have sex with/hang out with/work for/hire/whatever.

The fact that you say this, and the fact that you ask this question, shows me you have poor social skills, and you may actually be so abrasive that anything you do bring to the table is utterly overshadowed.

You're probably not a threat, just a bad investment.

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

4 upvotes · 17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's the first non-salty female response. And I suspect it might be the only one I get.

I agree with you.

In reality, people with real value don't run around trying to get things from others by lecturing them about obligations.

They offer them incentives instead.

People who lecture others about their moral obligations are trying to get something for nothing.

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

4 upvotes · 17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They will use shaming tactics on you for this one ☹️

And that will provide much humorous entertainment for all of us.

Where have all the good men gone?

4 upvotes · 16 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Typically when a woman asks the question "where have all the good men gone?", the correct answer is "far away from you".

Men are as "good" as women inspire them to be.

Fitness, Finances, Fun, Fucking

4 upvotes · 3 January 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

The 4 F's to a good life

No.

[Q4W] Have any of you experienced guys who use dating coach tactics on you recently?

4 upvotes · 29 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You seem to be criticizing something that you have constructed in your own head. All of my advice is free, and it's mostly centered around SMV improvement, with PUA tactics playing a significant, but secondary, role.

That's pretty much what TRP is.

I make too much money at my unrelated career to make it worthwhile to try to monetize what I do with TRP. Any time I devoted to "building my brand" or "marketing" would be a huge pay cut. Not to mention that there's no physical product to sell, and that the target demographic (young dudes in their teens and early twenties) is the brokest demographic in the west.

Sure, you could probably scrape the bottom of the cultural barrel and come up with a few youtube "dating coaches" who are trying to make a living off this shit, and doing photoshoots with paid models and rented sports cars, but that's not really relevant to the "red pill", or the "blue pill", which is kinda what this space is all about.

If you just want me to agree that those guys are scams, sure, yeah, okay, but that's like asking me to agree that used car salesmen in North Hollywood will cheat you. It's technically true, but not really relevant to a discussion of the auto industry.

In truth, a fool and his money are soon parted, and no matter what field we are talking about, there is always going to be some charlatan selling magic soap, or promising that you can skip all the hard work if you just write him a check.

But things don't work like that. It may be hopelessly cliched to say "Money can't buy happiness", but it's true. It can only buy pleasure, and they are not the same. Anything that brings happiness involves personal effort as an inherent component, and you can't pay to bypass that, because without the personal effort, the happiness doesn't happen.

Happiness comes not from having something, but from achieving something.

This is why TRP is not about "getting laid". Not directly. Sex may be a goal, and a metric, but the actual liberating process is gaining control over your sex life, and know that you can attract sex (and possibly love) with your own efforts.

I am a plate

4 upvotes · 25 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://old.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/7za0r6/the_talk_is_socially_retarded_dont_do_it/

What are the lesser known struggle dating as a woman?

4 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, cool. That's what I thought.

I think it's very good to listen to the experiences of others, but we also have to be cautious when doing it. Because when we hear them relate their experiences, we're not only getting "what happened to them", we're also getting "how they interpreted it", and "how they feel about that".

The first is very helpful to us. The second and third, not so much.

There are people out there who are quite willing to exploit us, either out of desperation or sociopathy. And we need to watch out for them. At the same time, we need to beware of over-assigning people to that category.

In this case, the danger I'm thinking about is that of confusing "S/He wants X" with "S/He only wants X".

When "X" is sex, then you get men with a madonna/whore complex ("If she wants sex, she only wants sex, and is therefore a slut"), and women with an objectification complex ("if he wants sex, he only wants sex, and is therefore a predator").

Make sense?

What are the lesser known struggle dating as a woman?

4 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You might enjoy reading Abraham Maslow's book "Towards a Psychology of Being", particularly the parts where he talks about the difference between "D-cognition" and "B-cognition".

Lesbians, what's your take on FDS?

4 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We most likely don't think about you at all.

Women should not be shamed or judged or pressured over who they allow to touch their genitals. Its really simple.

4 upvotes · 12 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men should not be told what opinions they can and cannot hold with their own brains, and what they can and cannot say with their own mouths.

CMV.

Women Should Not Be Expected to Work or Have a Career.

4 upvotes · 12 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Once women enter the workforce en masse, being a homemaker is not an option except for the upper classes.

This is why the American standard of living has steadily declined since the 70s... when you massively increase the labour supply without increasing the demand, the price of labour (relative to the price of capital) drops.

American industry set about automating the role of the housewife, advertising this as "liberating" her from drudgery. This created several problems... first of all, they didn't do a very good job of substituting for her. Secondly, being without meaningful work to do is not a blessing. Third, these newly professional women were, in effect, competing with their own husbands, to the benefit of no one but the investor class (that socialists would call the bourgeoisie).

As a result, people who work for a living are less wealthy and less happy, as are their children. But no individual or family can reverse this in their own lives (except by becoming wealthy), because this is a systemic problem.

There's no living individual we can point to and say "this is your fault"... not even women who choose careers. They have to choose careers, because if they don't, the problem will still exist, and they will be also be poor. That's not a win.

What happened is that we, as a civilization, were cavalier about tampering with the family structure, and we are all paying the price now, even the people who opposed this move and thought it was a bad idea all along.

#NoNothingNovember 2021 Tribe on TRP.RED - Drop 3 bad habits / vices for November and Track Your Progress

4 upvotes · 25 November 2021 · /r/askTRP

Why on earth would I want to sell you a book on how to get laid?

You're young and broke.

If I wanted to make money writing books, I'd write fake feel-good self-help books for fat depressed middle aged women.

Despite TRPERS desperately wanting it to be true science shows that women aren't attracted to dark triad men.

4 upvotes · 12 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

One example of a selection bias might be the act of cherry-picking articles which argue for the conclusion you want to reach.

Once I reached the article that incorrectly defined a neg, I didn't see the need to read further. It is useless to parse the arguments of those who cannot pass an ideological Turing test.

I would be curious to see if you, yourself, are capable of passing one in this context.

What I find slightly more interesting is the more general question of "who understands human mating processes better, social scientists or the creators of TRP?".

One has a great deal of credential-related social capital, and uses statistical methods, but has yet to produce any coherent body of actionable advice which demonstrably works.

The other doesn't have social capital, and doesn't do math, but has a coherent set of instructions which demonstrably produces positive results for a large percentage of users.

This question isn't as clear-cut as some would like it to be, because it leaves open two major questions.

The first question, for TRP, would be: "If we were to statistically measure 'following TRP advice' in a longitudinal study with a control group, how strong would its effect be? Very? Or would it turn out to be like psychotherapy... something that some people subjectively experience as profoundly helpful, but overall not actually better than chance?"

The second question, for science, would be: "If social science has any validity or rigor whatsoever, why has it not led to any coherent practice of social engineering, as physical sciences generate engineering disciplines?"

Or, in other words, why are social scientists confined to making arguments that TRP doesn't work, instead of being able to present a viable alternative that does?

The reason we care about science is that knowledge empowers us. The work of physicists enabled us to put satellites in orbit and send probes to Mars. The work of chemists enabled us to create carbon fiber. The work of biologists enables us to conquer diseases and create medical treatments.

But what has social science enabled us to do? If all it generates for us is articles arguing that this is true, or that is false, then how are we to know that it hasn't been entirely subjugated to institutional capture, and repurposed for producing nothing more than career-oriented statistical fakery?

Scientific truth has been humorously defined as "that which doesn't go away when you stop believing in it". So why does the modern body of social science have no effect whatsoever on my life unless I choose to believe in it?

Or just maybe to get away from you.

4 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Why exactly does she think we should need an excuse before we talk to other men?

CMV: Men don't actually slut shame in real life. This is entirely a female construct that they direct at men to blame for their internalized guilt busting each others balls when they sleep with sluts.

4 upvotes · 3 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Husband sleeps in till late on weekends, even if we've got daytime plans?

4 upvotes · 4 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

He doesn't want to tell you because he sees his work as something he does to take care of you, and he doesn't want to burden you with the knowledge.

The social plans you enjoy are just an additional duty to him right now, because the job is so draining.

Are woman as horny as men ? What do you guys think about it

4 upvotes · 3 October 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Women are biologically hardwired to act as the gatekeepers of sex, so they have to put the brakes on it frequently, regardless of how much they want it in the abstract sense.

Think about it has way: You might want a relationship. You might want one a lot. You might want one more than some women do. But do you want a relationship with her?

That's how women feel about sex.

Responding gracefully to conviction from men

4 upvotes · 28 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you can't take criticism from a man, you cannot have a healthy heterosexual relationship. You are not a mind reader, so your man will need to be able to tell you what he likes and doesn't about how you are treating him, and be heard... just as you would with him.

However, the example that you give is not a good one, because pushing back would be entirely appropriate. This tradcon male may have ideas about how a relationship "should" be, but how you and your boyfriend interact with each other is none of his business.

Instead of arguing about what is and isn't your responsibility, it would have been appropriate for you to gently but firmly remind him that how you divide up responsibilities is between you and your boyfriend... not a subject for public comment.

If your man told you he needed sexual variety and wants to sleep with other women, but still being dedicated to you, would you be okay with it?

4 upvotes · 27 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so it's a pretty serious relationship, but you are both very young, so serious, effective communication about emotionally charged issues is going to be very difficult.

Still, you're going to need to do it.

First, ignore every answer you've just received telling you that he is "in the wrong", or a bad person. We don't do "right" and "wrong" here. Moral assertions won't help you fix this problem.

Second, you're both going to need to be able to understand what the other person really means by what they are saying.

Because:

One thing he told me that was bizarre to me was that men should be allowed to have sexual freedom

... can mean anything from "I want to sleep with other women" to "I have been awakened to the fact that society has been structured to serve women's sexual imperatives at the expense of men's, and I am articulating my anger at this, an anger which I feel is justified."

Now is not the time for "deciding what to do". Now is the time for finding out things.

Both of you need information before you decide what to do about how you feel.

If your man told you he needed sexual variety and wants to sleep with other women, but still being dedicated to you, would you be okay with it?

4 upvotes · 27 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

How much have you invested in this relationship so far?

How old are you?

For the Old Ladies: Laura Doyle is not real life

4 upvotes · 23 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

1) I objectified my man into a shiny pretty thing that I could show off to my social circle for my own ego, and then I became entitled and angry when, SHOCKER, said "object" had obligations of his own.

2) My SO didn't stand his ground and hold frame. If he had obligations, he should have stuck with that instead of acquiescing to my little tantrum and making promises that he couldn't keep just to make me feel better in the moment.

3) Going cold and giving my SO the silent treatment was just about the most immature thing I could have done BOTH times. He is not a mind reader and making him guess why I'm mad or upset is only going to make him MORE resentful of me, not more compassionate for my feelings.

I don't understand why he left

4 upvotes · 3 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Now that you put it like this, it occurs to me that there are some implications here.

I always teach men who are beginners at seduction to "text for logistics only". This is not a strict rule when you gain more skill, but the point is, don't hang about having text conversations forever, because you can only make her wet for you in person.

Now that you say this, however, I realize that it is also important for women not to text a lot instead of meeting... because you can only evaluate him in person. Anyone with sufficient intelligence can pretend to be anything in text.

Many women feel as if they are doing their "due diligence" by fending off men's attempts to meet, and texting for a long time. But this is just a holding pattern, because meaningful vetting cannot happen.

If you meet someone online you think you like, exchange pictures (fully clothed, not provocatively posed) quickly, get on the phone quickly, then meet (in a public place) quickly. After that, treat and evaluate him just like someone you met in person.

I am a 26F and I am socially awkward around people of the opposite sex.

4 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I was educated not to make the first move as a woman

By whom?

Healthy eating and portions when cooking for a man

4 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Unless he has a problem with being fat, and has asked for your help dealing with it, it's not really necessary or appropriate for you to decide how much he should be eating.

However, you do need to decide how much food to make.

Women generally underestimate how much men will eat, especially athletic men. If a man has twice your mass, he's going to eat more than twice what you do, because a larger percentage of his mass is muscle.

So here's how you deal with it.

- Make more food than he will eat. Make sure it's a lot.
- Serve him in small portion sizes. Many men have been taught to "clean their plates", so too much at once can subtly encourage overeating.
- Make sure he knows that there is more available if he is still hungry.
- Watch how many "refills" he takes and how much he ends up eating.
- Learn over time how much you can generally expect him to eat, and cook appropriately.

How to get over the fact that your guy has casually hooked up with other people before you?

4 upvotes · 27 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, cool.

Once you understand that male sexual instincts arise from sperm being cheap, getting over sexual jealousy becomes possible.

Our sperm is not "expensive" no matter how top-quality our genes are, because it is endlessly renewable. Would you vet someone, or charge them money, before you let them have a drink of water from your garden hose?

What is valuable is our commitment, time, attention, labour, etc.

So, there's no point in being jealous over women your man has had sex with before. His sexual desire for them means nothing about his relationship with you. What shows his affection is that he offers his commitment, time, attention, labour, etc.

This why a woman will only cheat on a man she has fallen out of love with, or is in the process of doing so, while a man will cheat on a woman he loves very much, without it meaning he loves her any less.

Do other women fell less than to a man

4 upvotes · 26 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You say you want to run and hide right now, but you've actually done the first brave thing I've seen you do... and that is to be honest with me, and with yourself.

What you are telling me is that you are ashamed of being a woman. That you see feminine accomplishments as valueless, and feminine virtues as meaningless. That you feel worthless unless you get the same kind of credit that the most successful of men get.

You were "fronting" to HSP and I because you feel worthless.

And I'm wondering, who the fuck did this to you? Who taught you to think that the feminine parts of your nature were flaws that must be hidden from the light of day?

Who made you hate yourself so much that you want someone else's life? That's not a rhetorical question. Who told you these things? How were you abused so much you started to abuse yourself.

You pretend to be something you aren't because you've been made to believe that what you are is no good.

You think that now I'm going to sneer at you because I've "exposed" you for not being a badass. But I never asked you to be a badass. I never needed you to be one. What's necessary is for you to be honest with yourself, so you can figure out what you actually want to be, and do what's necessary to be that.

If you wanna fly, fine. But fly because it's fun, or rewarding, or well-paid, not because you are trying to extirpate some sort of "original sin" of having been born with girl parts.

The women you just criticized for wanting to be nothing more than a "soft place to land" have something that you don't have yet... they are comfortable in their own skin. They are living their best life.

I don't know if your best life is flying planes, or doing girly stuff... or both. At this point, you don't know either. You're going to need to ditch the shame, and the self-hate, and the hiding, before you can find out.

I don't need you to bomb the third world for me. I didn't ask for it to be bombed, and I certainly don't want want to pay for that, because it's expensive and does me no good.

It's enough for me right now if you just be honest, let RPW work the way it's meant to work, and start figuring out what is actually valuable about you.

Study: Authenticity predicts high relationship satisfaction, except for people high in trait (DT) psychopathy.

4 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I did not say define. I said measure.

There is not a word on how these measurements were made, or what instruments they were collected with.

And since the actual study is behind a paywall, I'm not going to believe this based on the abstract. Seeing is believing, and if someone wants me to "Believe the science", then I want to see the actual science.

So it's the null hypothesis for me.

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

4 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The question isn't if I am going to head over there to help them.

Of course it is. You have this set of women, feminists, who claim to reject the idea of female submission, but any time they want to solve a problem, their first, last, and only, way of addressing it is to complain to daddy and wait to be rescued.

Sounds pretty submissive to me.

Of course, the problem with asking "The PatriarchyTM" to solve your problems for you is that it does not exist and never has.

But that doesn't stop feminists from trying to get it to do things.

A Typical Conversation with a Feminist

4 upvotes · 10 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I'm sure if I were to talk to a feminist

Why would you do that?

#IfAllMenDisappearedForADay is trending on Twitter and it's the cap to the misandry cocktail this week has been.

4 upvotes · 9 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

The reason this makes any sense at all to any woman is men in high visibility jackets are invisible to them.

They don't think of the infrastructure of civilization as "men working", think of it as just, you know, like, stuff. And stuff just happens, by, you know, ways.

And because once they saw a woman on a road crew holding a sign and directing traffic, therefore having roads has nothing to do with having men.

So I think a lot of women would really enjoy a day without men. After a week without men, they would wonder why the lights, water, and internet didn't work. After two weeks without men, they would be outraged that men had "abandoned them". After three, they would be willing to sell their bodies for the same things they took for granted very recently. After four, they would start to die. After eight, the human race would be largely extinct, with a few holdouts from earth's most primitive cultures.

Without women, the human race would last somewhere between sixty years and indefinitely, depending on how well the biotech boffins did at addressing some new problems. We wouldn't be happy about it, but life would go on.

TRP men have unicorn fallacy about Muslim girls and I am about to destroy it with reality

4 upvotes · 2 August 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I keep hearing all this weird shit about "YouTube redpill guys". I don't know who these guys are, and what I'm hearing about them doesn't really seem to contain any actual red pills.

Expatriating to another culture for pussy is a tradcon idea. Female nature is the same everywhere. You either learn to swim, or you drown. To expect "society" to solve your problems, especially low-level ones like pussy, is to make yourself dependent on society for that problem.

Society doesn't care about you.

Islam, for example, was not designed to service your needs. It was designed to make you obedient to other people, so you would service theirs. Same with Christianity, Judaism, Communism, Fascism, Liberalism, and most other ideologies and the cultures on which they are based.

The hijab isn't for making women obedient to you. It's for denying you even the most trivial of access to women until you pay their fathers a lot of money.

How do I find/date men who actually care about me?

4 upvotes · 31 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Do men treat women who are overweight badly?

You are not looking to be treated "not badly". You want men to be attracted to you. Accusing men of treating you "badly" for not being interested in a relationship with you is not exactly taking responsibility, now, is it?

You need to understand that men owe you literally nothing, not even a casual conversation. So long as they are not coming along and hurting you or taking your stuff, their moral obligations to you are entirely fulfilled. Anything you want them to actually do for you, you have to earn. And how you earn it is about what they want. And you don't get to tell them what to want.

If this sounds cold or harsh to you, then you need to realize that this is the same reality that men live in every day. It is, in fact, how you personally treat men.

And that's okay.

If you want men to like you, you are going to have to accept that men are people with wants, needs, desires, and ambitions. They were not put on this earth for the purpose of fulfilling your dreams. If you want something from them, you must offer something they want.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

4 upvotes · 31 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I know that question sounds spergy(because it kind of is) but it's mainly the contradiction I'm trying to clear up where we say it's possible to reform yourself as a human being based on forming the proper habits but on the same breath a lot of people say "you can't turn a hoe into a housewife".

Do you know what makes a question or assertion "spergy"?

It is the quality of being overly literal. It reminds us of spergs because spergs can't interpret nuance, or generalities. They interpret them as specifics.

If I tell you not to go to Los Vegas and gamble in casinos, because "you can't win", then a non-sperg will understand that this means the odds are overwhelmingly against you. Casinos are full of nice expensive things precisely because they can afford them. Gambling is a tax on people who can't do math.

However, a sperg will point out that someone did win once, and therefore the exact words "you can't win" are not literally true. He doesn't understand that "you can't win" is shorthand for "you are extremely unlikely to win".

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

4 upvotes · 26 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Oh, now I get it. You read Lustig's papers, but didn't listen to his talks. That's the part where he fills in the background information that you need to understand his work, if you don't happen to be an endocrinologist.

If you don't know about the differences between glucose and fructose metabolism, those papers aren't going to make any sense.

The video you want to watch is here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

But some key points you need to know are:

1. Glucose metabolism is basic to human cells. Every cell in the body can both store and metabolize glucose. Glucose is animal sugar.
2. These same cells cannot process fructose in any meaningful way. Fructose is plant sugar. Plants use it the same way we use glucose. They synthesize it to store energy, and metabolize it to retrieve that stored energy, the same as humans do with glucose.
3. The plants that live in your body can eat fructose. That's the first fructose sink I spoke of.
4. In the human body, only the liver can metabolize fructose. And it does so in a completely different fashion that plants do. And it does so in a completely different fashion than it does with glucose.
5. The second two fructose sinks are in the liver. Sink two is glycogenesis, which is the preferred pathway, but its overall capacity is very low.
6. The third sink dumps a metric fuckton of citrate out of your hepatic mitochondria. Presumably I don't need to tell you how the Krebs cycle works, or why this ends up as a metric fuckton of new fat... in your liver.
7. Hence NAFLD, Type2 diabetes, liver insulin resistance, NASH, and metabolic syndrome.

Watch the video.

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

4 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Fructose has three sinks.

The first sink is the gut microbiome. It has moderate affinity and moderate capacity. The second is glycogen repletion in the liver. It has extremely high affinity and low capacity. The last is hepatic triglyceride synthesis via the citrate path. It has low to moderate affinity, but its capacity is as close to infinite as makes no difference.

The hepatotoxicity of fructose is a product of the third sink.

So why is almost everyone in the modern west afflicted with some level of metabolic syndrome? Simple. The first two sinks are being bypassed.

The first sink is what fructose is for, in the human body. Fructose is a plant sugar... it is to plants what glucose is to animals. We can't process it (except in the liver), but they can. They love it. It's not food for you. It's food for your gut biome.

That's why you love it. That's why you're evolved to crave it. But in nature, it's rare, and only occurs with fiber (except for honey, which is not significantly available). The combination of soluble and insoluble fiber prevents the intestine from absorbing the fructose... and the gut flora get first crack at it.

In a healthy body, with healthy eating habits, this is where the fruit you eat goes.

But in our culture, this sink has been bypassed by separating the fructose from the fruit matrix. This makes the body absorb it.

The second sink is glycogen repletion. This is being bypassed through saturation. Yes, if you are glycogen-depleted, fructose will replete you faster than glucose. But it doesn't take very much. And the moment it's full, all that fructose goes to the third sink.

That's the toxic one.

In my next reply, I will address why this is happening now, instead of three hundred years ago when we first started refining cane sugar. The answer lies not in biochemistry, or "capitalism", but with the cause of most of mankind's problems... government.

How to be Lovely: A Guide to Attracting a Wonderful Man

4 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's not really an answer at all.

Let's think about this systematically, rather than metaphorically.

You say:

A woman attracts a man.

Do you imagine that this is exclusively the case? Do men not also attract women?

You never make the first move.

Why do you believe this is good advice? What specific negative consequence do you think there will be to a woman who makes the first move? What leads you to believe this negative consequence will happen?

Men want to hunt.

What leads you to believe that men enjoy hunting? And what leads you to believe that the process of engaging in a social interaction with a woman is in any way analogous to hunting in a way that men will enjoy?

Let him chase you!

Do you believe this will increase a man's attraction to a woman, and if so, why?

Don't use the new AskTRP website. They just want to monetize your attention.

4 upvotes · 3 July 2021 · /r/newTRP

This puzzles me. I'm rather confused as to how you think I am making money off this.

I understand that you don't want to get advice from people who have an ulterior motive, but how exactly is it that you think I am getting paid? The website itself doesn't run ads that I am aware of, and while it does accept donations, it's not breaking even.

RPS (and some generous donors) are essentially paying money for the right to have TRP the way it was before a bunch of social justice warriors with admin rights started messing with us.

And mess with us they have been. They have started banning mod accounts. The next step will be to tell us who we can and cannot appoint as mods, like they did with /r/The_Donald, and after that, they will just start modding people of their own choosing.

You say "why would they do this?", but it's not necessary to answer that question, because it is sufficient to point out that they actually have done exactly this in the past.

/u/redpillschool and I have spent almost a decade giving generously of our time and effort to build this stuff for you. If you want to try to build something new from scratch instead, solely for the privilege of remaining in a hostile environment controlled by people who hate you and wish you were dead, then... well, go ahead.

But I will not be assisting you, and you will rapidly discover just how much effort and time this sort of thing really takes.

Good luck out there.

I am surprised she knows that Cucumbers exist.

4 upvotes · 28 June 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

☹ You ☹ Are ☹ Not ☹ Entitled ☹ To ☹ Men's ☹ Attention ☹

(There. Did I do that right?)

R1ggedved's Guide to Amazing Intercourse and Why It's More Important Thank You Think It is

4 upvotes · 27 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

There's no easy way to answer this. I analyze individual women using the same methods that I use to analyze women as a species and write articles about them.

I've learn to spot fetishes and kinks and play on them. Sure, you can learn easily to spot a submissive girl (or just take it for granted, because most girls are), but then what kind of submissive. Rape kink? Wants a spanking from Daddy? Humiliation fetish?

Everyone has at least one paraphillia. The more precisely you are able to spot it, and more creatively you can create scenarios involving it, the less physical skill it will take.

Having Career/Degree is Important to Men

4 upvotes · 25 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Here's a video explaining this phenomenon.

R1ggedved's Guide to Amazing Intercourse and Why It's More Important Thank You Think It is

4 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

It's focused on getting inside a girl's head and creating sexual excitement, both by using things girls generally like, and by discovering and exploiting a girl's particular kinks.

I've found that physical sexual techniques are almost irrelevant if you get a girl worked up enough. Yes, she'll need some physical stimulation, but it doesn't need to be intense or precise if she's highly excited.

Guy gave me an incurable Std and has blocked me, I'm angry.

4 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'd also be super interested to see what TRP sub would say if a girl gave her male fwb herpes but didn't tell him anything or lied to him about it, and then just said 'gtfoh' and blocked him like a skank when he confronted her about it.

I can tell you exactly what TRP would say, because TRP is pretty much what I say it is.

You're not going to be able to get any justice for this, either through legal means or social ones, because society is intensely protective of women, and not of you. Attempting to sue her, or spread negative publicity about her, will just blow back on you.

My ex-girlfriend texted my new plate

4 upvotes · 11 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

When someone is calling you a horrible psychopathic villain, the best way to discredit them is to seem as calm and reasonable as possible.

Do not call her a crazy bitch. Instead, speak about her compassionately with a few gentle hints about her having some struggles with her mental health.

Then the more vehement she gets, the more she will color in the picture you have sketched out.

In your case, since she actually is crazy (and BPDs are an extra helping of crazy), she will shortly furnish plenty of evidence of that.

Women should plan for a future without a partner.

4 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We DON'T want to settle down with a loser

When you are a loser, this is exactly who is available to settle down with.

This "problem" is simple economics. When 99% of the available supply of "hookup sex" goes to 15% of the demand, there is a great market opportunity for anyone who can create an alternative product which can service the remaining 85% of the demand while consuming only 1% of the supply.

Enter porn. Porn is diluted hookup sex. By digitizing the product, you make it copyable. Then whenever there is a shortfall of hookup sex, porn can be copied infinitely to address the excess demand.

You know sexlessness is increasing in women too, right?

Of course. Apply economics again. The demand for "relationship sex" exceeds the supply... because "losers" cannot supply an acceptable quality of relationship sex. Thus, only 15% of men can supply something that 99% of women want.

And those men can only supply it if they aren't consuming "hookup sex" instead. So the actual supply is lower still.

But why are only 15% of men (or 20%, or 18%, or whatever approximation we like) not "losers"?

Because a "loser" in this context is defined as "any man who women have no respect for and do not consider sex-worthy". Thus, cultural influences on both male behaviour and female perception determine the balance of market forces, and thus, who is having sex with whom, or not.

The Feminism hurts women, too.

Backing off and letting my husband pursue me?

4 upvotes · 4 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think you're not being entirely honest with me.

You have alluded vaguely to "a difficult stretch of marriage", but you haven't described what the issues were, despite your obvious willingness to complain about your husband's attitudes and actions.

Which indicates to me that you may be somewhat unwilling to discuss or acknowledge your role in those marital difficulties.

If you are not willing to do this, then there is zero chance that your husband will let go of his resentments towards you. Amends, even if the offense is not unilateral, have to start with an acknowledgement of what you did.

And if you won't tell me, I'm betting that you're unwilling to acknowledge it to him, either.

What did you do? What did he do? What's actually going on here?

Straight men will not spend a significant amount of time/are not close friends with a straight woman in whom they are not sexually or romantically interested.

4 upvotes · 25 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And that's why the red pill exists.

Because some ideas are safer to express than others, and which ideas are safe to express has no relationship at all to which ideas are true.

Because TRP is already subject to the maximum amount of disapproval, we lose nothing by saying what we believe to be true. What are people going to do... call us misogynists twice?

That's why we set TRP up this way. Most of the institutions of western culture have wandered away from the truth as a core value, precisely because they have developed an incentive structure that encourages other things. TRP has no incentive structure. None of us is making a living at this. So we can't lose our livelihoods by saying something makes others unhappy, or get rewarded for saying something that does.

This doesn't mean, of course, that everything I say is true. I can be mistaken like anyone else. But it does mean that everything I say, I believe. Which cannot really be said for almost any entity besides TRP.

Why are men in denial that feminine men do well with women?

4 upvotes · 22 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What exactly did you hope to gain with that reply? To convince me that I haven't seen and heard what I've seen and heard?

Of course you haven't seen what I've seen, or heard what I've heard. Because you're not looking at or listening to what I see every day, and I have seen every day in the almost ten years since a couple of us created TRP in the first place.

Young men don't confide in you, and why would they? You've done nothing to earn their trust, except hang out in this little fanclub and pontificate about what they should think and who they should be?

Like they are suddenly going to honest with you about what they want? Hell, it's hard enough for some of them to be honest with themselves about what they want. It can take years. It can take hitting bottom. It can take falling down on the road to Damascus.

You have no insight whatsoever into men's thoughts and inner lives. And you never will.

[UPDATE] I think my gf is cheating on me

4 upvotes · 18 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Never spend money on a woman who hasn't yet sucked your dick.

According to RedPill/MGTOW, are healthy long term relationships just not possible?

4 upvotes · 15 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Healthy relationships are possible.

I have spoken.

Are Misandry and Mysogyny becoming more common?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It is also why obesity is a big problem, we are not designed to deal with ~~abundance~~ fructose.

Fixed that for you.

Toxic masculinity is because of men who are to feminine apparently but they say not masculine enough

4 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I believe history will not side with you

History doesn't have a side. History doesn't inevitably move in a direction. It's just a series of events that happen as a result of people pursuing their particular individual goals.

I hope that if nothing else you can think about your beliefs a bit

You have no idea what my beliefs are.

, and why you really think this way

And you have no idea why I hold them. The only thing you know about me is that I don't like feminism, and that I expect people incentivize the behaviour they want from me, rather than moralizing at me about how I "should" act.

Not everything has to be a bloody transaction, is it so hard to believe that feminists truly don't wish you ill will?

Yes, it's so unfair that people assume feminists hate men, just because of all the feminists who literally keep saying "I hate men".

I have, in fact, treated you with basic courtesy.

No, you have not. You have:

- Assumed that I hate women without bothering to ask me how I feel or what I believe.
- Assumed that no thought or experience has gone into those beliefs.
- Told me I was on the wrong side of history, when the only side I have taken is my own. (Consider the implications of that for a moment).
- Expected not to held accountable for the actions or beliefs of other feminists, when you have ascribed to me, without asking or listening, the beliefs of other anti-feminists.

Frankly, you speak as if you expect me to totally unfamiliar with feminism's basic arguments, and hearing them for the first time from you. And as if you are totally unfamiliar with the most basic arguments against feminism. And as if you are fifteen years old and cannot imagine someone else's point of view.

You want to be understood as an individual, rather than as a limb of a hivemind called "feminism", but you extend no such courtesy to anti-feminist thinkers, or indeed to men.

Which brings me back to my original point.

What good are you? Not just to me. To anyone. What value do you bring to the world, that we should give flying fuck what you think?

You are, of course, free to speak your mind, but that does not entitle you to my attention or anyone else's. Feminists, like KKK members or any other hate group, can stand on street corners and rant if they want, but passers-by do not have to stop and listen.

Say something that catches my interest, if you can. Say one thing that engages my curiosity. Tell me one single thing I haven't heard before from other feminists. If you have one original thought, show me.

Otherwise, you're just boring.

She wants to bring an ugly friend over

4 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Any of the authors on the sidebar would laugh at you.

I can tell you with absolute certainty that the specific guy who wrote the sidebar, and picked all the stuff to link from it, is laughing very hard right now.

How not to be fat.

4 upvotes · 1 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is a big mess of fatlogic.

It's not about logic. It's about evidence.

The moment people go wrong is the moment they believe they can figure the universe out of sitting down and reasoning about it, instead of testing their assumptions in an experiment.

What I did here was give a general explanation of how human fat metabolism works. Every single piece of this information is research-based and has been experimentally verified over and over again. We know exactly how insulin works. We know exactly how glucose metabolism and fatty acid metabolism work. We know exactly how the Krebs cycle works, and how fructose metabolism in the hepatic mitochondria work. There's no mystery here.

Meanwhile, you are repeating cultural myths that arose from people starting with the law of conservation of energy, and reasoning from there, without experimentally verifying any of their conclusions.

Conservation of energy is indeed something that happens in the human body, but that is the only correct assumption here. The CICO hypothesis, however, also requires the additional assumptions that eating behaviour is an independent rather than a dependent variable, that activity level is an independent rather than a dependent variable, that basal metabolic rate is constant, and that all energy sinks have accounted for.

These assumptions are not only not proven true, they are in fact proven false. And if you don't understand what I mean by independent and dependent variables, then you are so far out of your depth that the fish have lights on their noses.

You cannot figure out what the body does by reasoning about it, that is beyond your powers of reason. Any attempt to solve complex systems with pure reason inevitably ends up relying on some simplifying assumption that turns out to be wrong.

You must test and observe. Reason only helps you to understand your observations once you have made them.

How to make my boyfriend feel cared for?

4 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

He's putting the responsibility of his emotional state on you

No. /u/rose_auden is holding herself responsible for his emotional state.

It is very possible that he is actively trying to fight off this attention because he doesn't want it. Being mothered by their partner is not something most adult men want, and, frankly, if one does, that it a cause for concern.

It very frequent for men to want to be alone for a while after suffering an injury or setback, or at least to want to NOT talk about it.

Women have been taught that this is emotionally unhealthy, which is complete feminist rubbish. It is essentially the attitude that a man is a defective woman, and a healthy man will be healthy to extent that his emotional and social style resembles that of a woman.

I rather suspect that things would go better between them if she simply stopped trying to be his therapist when he hasn't expressed any desire for a therapist, and stopped trying to look for hidden meanings in what he says, and instead simply took his words at face value.

Good LTR or path to slavery?

4 upvotes · 26 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

If you have to ask, "should I LTR this girl?", the answer is no. Because if she were LTR material, you wouldn't have asked.

Interesting hypothesis lads, what do we think? I'm going with WTF!

4 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

"Argument from special pleading" is the logical fallacy of arguing your case based on the assumption that an equivalent statement is true.

The assumption that the world is dominated by males in an oppressive fashion is required for the argument that misogyny is oppression and misandry is resistance.

But the statement that misogyny is oppression and misandry is resistance also implies that the world is dominated by males in an oppressive fashion.

She is assuming the thing that it is her job to prove.

But don't tell her that, because then you would have to have a conversation with her, and that would be a complete waste of time.

Would you stay friends with your friend if he decided to transition to female?

4 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Try to talk him out of it.

Do you routinely put on a copper hat and stand on top of hills during thunderstorms?

The Sexual Revolution Was a Complete Failure

4 upvotes · 20 March 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Back then "Free love" wasn't understood as creating a sexual jungle where people who got lucky in the genetic dice-roll get to have it all while others eat shit. It was a far-left philosophy.

Far-left philosophies always result in a jungle where the top 1% get to have it all while all the others eat shit. That's the whole function of far-left philosophies.

And the people who actually promote them consist of two groups: manipulators who think they will be part of that 1%, and the people they have duped.

How not to be fat.

4 upvotes · 18 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay. I can where after reading that, you might definitely have some ideas that fasting is bad for you.

This is why it's so important to have an understanding of how something is supposed to happen, rather than simply asking someone with a PhD and taking their word for it.

Science works through understanding, not faith.

So, let's take an example of what happens when one looks at this article, and actually reads the citations.

Here's what the author says:

In the grand scheme of health decisions, experimenting with intermittent fasting probably seems tiny. So what could it hurt to give it a shot?

Well, for some women, it's a bigger deal than you might expect

Turns out, the hormones regulating key functions—like ovulation, metabolism, and even mood—are incredibly sensitive to your energy intake.¹

Okay, so when we follow that ¹, and read the abstract of the study, and dig out the relevant bit, we get this:

in some cases, excess energy storage in adipose tissue causes deficits in the pool of oxidizable fuels available for the reproductive system. Thus, in such cases, reproduction is inhibited despite a high body fat content and high plasma concentrations of hormones that are thought to stimulate reproductive processes.

(There's a lot of other stuff in there as well, but this is the most specific and relevant bit.)

So, it is technically true that this citation states how "hormones are incredibly sensitive to energy intake". But when that statement is made in the context of an article on how "Fasting may be DANGEROUS!", it becomes incredibly misleading because what the research here actually says is "being too fat can inhibit the production of sex hormones".

So the implication in the article is the exact opposite of the finding in the research paper.

This is what we call "FUD": Fear, uncertainty, doubt. It's a propaganda tactic that uses often technically true, but misleading, information about a product or practice in order to create fear of it which is not based on any concrete assessment of risk.

Let me give you some more examples of research cited by this article, and how I see its relevance.

Boutari C et al. The effect of underweight on female and male reproduction. Metabolism. 2020 June; 107:154229.

(Jesus fuck, of course being underweight is going to cause reproductive harm! Nobody is recommending being underweight! Fast to lose weight if you are too fat! What does that have to do with being underweight?)

1. Stewart DE. Reproductive functions in eating disorders. Ann Med. 1992 Aug;24(4):287-91.

(What. The. Actual. Fuck? Fasting is bad because eating disorders are bad???? Of course eating disorders are bad. What does that have to do with fixing obesity by not shoving bagels into your face every two hours?)

I'm going to stop here, because typing out all the ways I can pick apart this article would be a significant investment of time.

The takeaway here is, if someone says "X is bad for you", ask them "How, exactly is X bad for me?", and if they just say "It causes Y.", then ask "How does it cause Y?", and wait for a clear answer.

That's why I started this discussion with a long, dull lecture on insulin and glucagon... because I'm trying not to be taken on faith. I want people to understand. That's why when someone challenged my assertion that table sugar was toxic, I responded with a detailed explanation of exactly how five-carbon sugars lead to production of massive amounts of fat in the liver, which is obviously kinda related to non-alcoholic fatty liver disease.

The problem with treating science as a religion is that unquestioning belief is the exact opposite of what science is about. These people who proclaim "I fucking love SCIENCE!", and demand that we treat the pronouncements of PhDs with the same respect the Greeks gave the Delphian prophecies... well, they are anti-science, and they don't even know it.

Because science is not an institution, or a body of knowledge, it's an algorithm. Examine surroundings, make hypothesis, design test, test hypothesis, tell other people. Later rinse repeat.

If you don't understand how the thing is supposed to work, you're just treating the scientist like a priest, and their statement like the bible, which is the exact opposite of the whole point.

Is anyone here able to take care of a child, cook and keep the house clean?

4 upvotes · 9 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Women have been having babies and taking care of them since the dawn of multicellular life. You were literally designed for this. Yes, scary new experience, but you are going to be okay.

Is Asexuality a real thing?

4 upvotes · 8 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Wrong question.

The correct question is "why do you care?".

If a woman doesn't want to have sex with you, stop psychoanalyzing her. There's no upside to doing so. Go spend your energy on a woman who does.

What are you looking to find when you read here? What is PRW? Maybe it's time to reassess what this sub is about.

4 upvotes · 6 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You guys have put a lot of thought into TRP movement.

Well, we've been at this for eight years or so. Gave us time to make a fair amount of mistakes, learn from them, and correct them.

The journey I try to take men through recapitulates my own... I was angry once, too. Angry at the world for not being as I was taught it should be. And it took me a while to realize that I should instead be angry at the people who taught me wrong, because the world is just the world being itself, as it has been all along.

The r/FemaleDatingStrategy is similar to that of r/asktrp. So much hostility over there, but it's detrimental and counterproductive... They just keep losing touch of their femininity. I used to be a member, but quickly realized what was going on.

Ah, yes, FDS. I think the flaw in FDS is that they are comfort-seeking, rather than improvement-seeking. Telling themselves and each other that they are queens and goddesses and have "high value", and that everything that goes wrong for them is men's fault.... well, I'm sure it does help their immediate emotional pain, but it does so at the cost of their long-term prospects for getting better results.

When I have a problem, I always try to find the part that's my fault, because that's the part I have the power to change.

Still, the funny thing about FDS is that it doesn't bother me. I can go there and read all these horrible things they say about men and it doesn't hurt me or make me angry. Ten years ago I think it would have, but now I understand where it's coming from.

Because women are hardwired to be submissive to men, there's a huge problem of trust. When you're going to be that vulnerable to someone, you have to really really be able to trust them, both their intentions and their competence.

I think that frequently women who are the most anti-male, the most feminist, the most angry at men, are those who are very submissive, but have not had good experiences with the men in their lives. That hostility comes from fear of submitting to someone who will not care good care of them, either through incompetence or selfishness.

So I think the women of FDS are really victims of the disconnect between men and women, not merely perpetrators of it. But that doesn't mean I can wave my magic wand and make them listen. Inspiring the kind of trust makes a woman really listen to a man is not easy, and I haven't always succeeded even here.

But for me, running both halves of this thing, and looking at things from both perspectives, is what gives me an opportunity to study how that trust gets built, on both sides. Having had the opportunity to do so for many years now has given me lots of interesting stuff to talk about and share. But I've also accepted that the primary task, on the female side at least, is always going to be dealing with the internal questions of "Who is this 'Whisper' guy, anyway? How do I know that what he has to say is worthwhile? Is he trying to manipulate me and teach me to be a 'plate'?".

And that can be a tough hurdle to get over, especially in a culture where women have been fed flattery all their lives, and it's high time to serve them truth.

You seem to have figured out on your own that things that feel good to hear are not necessarily good for you, and people who praise you are not necessarily your friends. That's a good start. The human mind and body, in their natural state, are evolved to seek out things that are good for us... but when we are made sick, for long enough, we can grow to crave things that are bad for us.

I still like the taste of sugar, I just know better than to eat it.

This Article Will Infuriate You

4 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

When someone argues with me, I ask myself this: Are they skeptical, or do they have an ulterior motive for disagreeing?

If they are skeptical, I can convince them, or they can convince me. Thus the discussion is useful.

If they have an ulterior motive, I cannot convince them, because I cannot remove their ulterior motive, and they cannot convince me, because they are not arguing from evidence.

When someone says something like:

There is absolutely zero scientific literature to suggest that feeding windows somehow overrule energy balance

Instead of:

I am not aware of, and have been unable to find, any scientific literature or studies that establish this result

Then either they have read 100% of all scientific literature, or they are just making stuff up.

Since I am able to find not only studies, but medical researchers who have been studying the effects of fasting for decades, with a five minute websearch (the only real task being separating articles about studies from actual studies), I conclude that "there is absolutely zero" means "no one has shoved this under my nose while I am sitting here in this chair".

In short, you are wasting my time. Good day to you, sir.

Die in Comfort, or Live in Challenge

4 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://i.imgur.com/B4yLl0l.jpg>

Why is the average american moid so fat and ugly?

4 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because we can get away with it. Now, go wax your ladyparts.

Expecting sympathy or empathy from women is a fruitless pursuit and a waste of time.

4 upvotes · 2 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men are neurologically hardwired to be protective of women. Women are not neurologically hardwired to be protective of men.

It is therefore fruitless to display empathy or sympathy from women, because the "empathy or sympathy" you would expect is not actually default human behaviour at all... it is the specially hardwired altruistic behaviour that men are hardwired to display for women.

If you want be treated well by women, then you cannot simply wait for them to imagine what it's like to be you, and care about your feelings. Instead, you must get them to respect and look up to you, then tell them what you expect from them.

Women are hardwired to be obedient, if you can stimulate that instinct. You don't need them to be protective.

They have gone too far with this "Lesbian Jesus" movie...

4 upvotes · 2 January 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

The wonderful thing about private companies doing stupid things that annoy you is that all you have to do about it is not pay them any money.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

4 upvotes · 30 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Thank you for your feedback. This, and not large numbers of upvotes, is what motivates me to write.

Frankly, my most upvoted articles, I consider to be borderline retarded stuff that is so basic I wish I hadn't need to say it, and I'm not very proud of them. What makes me happy is when I have an idea I think is important, and someone really gets it.

With that said, what I'm driving at here is that no sociocultural movement is your friend. They all want something, and they can only be relied upon to the extent that your incentives align. And you can't trust them, ever, to tell you what their real incentives are, you have to figure that out by observation.

So, if you find value in some things that Jordan Peterson has to say, by all means take advantage of that. Hell, even the neomarxists are right about a few things.

But, if you want to prosper, you must learn to regard societies, and ideologies, and movements, and communities, not as incubators that exist to shelter you and serve your needs, but as junkyards full of scrap, some of which you might be able to use to build something for yourself.

No one who doesn't have a deep personal relationship with you is ever going to have all the answers for you, because their incentives will never totally align with yours.

Should I tell my friend about his girlfriend

4 upvotes · 22 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

If you play Captain Save-a-Bro, you will lose a friend.

Any man weak or deluded enough to need saving can be turned against you by any woman who is giving him occasional sex, or even any woman who he hopes eventually will.

New to red pill, still trying to figure it out, can I even be a red pill wife?

4 upvotes · 22 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, the problem is that you are used to your husband supporting you, you have fallen on hard times, and you don't want to work?

What, some of you clowns are actually MAD about OnlyFans?

4 upvotes · 20 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Conservatives aren't manlier - they are weaker and want a society that values their weakness, and takes advantage of them - because being a chad takes experience and risk.

You get it.

+1

/u/theredpike

The End of Democracy Part 2: The Next Great War

4 upvotes · 17 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes.

But call me a boomer again and I'll stab you in the face.

The End of Democracy Part 2: The Next Great War

4 upvotes · 17 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Saying that a system passed a test is saying that a politician won an election. You don't know if it means anything or not unless you're one of the guys running the test/election.

Most of the things sold to the DoD aren't really weapons at all. Weapons are for fighting. These objects are for being expensive and transferring tax dollars into private accounts. They don't have to be good weapons, they just have to look like good weapons.

Now, the needs of looking like a good weapon means they often are, at least, good enough for vapourizing third-world farmers with AKs, which is what the DoD does with them, not in order to vapourize the farmers, but in order to create the appearance of needing the weapons.

That's why we are bogged down in perpetual low-level conflicts in the third world. It's not a failure of policy, it's what the policy was designed to do.

But because this is the way that weapons get sold to the DoD, then any alleged weapon that isn't useful against an insurgency isn't going to be used, and consequently doesn't have to work. Just so long as you can rig an evaluation to make it look like it does. Which isn't hard when everyone involved in the evaluation shares that common goal.

So don't allow press releases of successful "tests" to turn off your own ability to think about basic physics.

Why do men say they prefer experienced women IRL and not so much online?

4 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In running TRP and RPW, I semi-frequently run into a certain type of young woman, who typically describes herself this way:

- She is very young, from high school age to very early twenties.
- She is a virgin or has a very low partner count.
- She is still figuring out who she is in life.
- But she knows with great certainty that she wants to single lifelong relationship, preferably ASAP, which is her priority above education, career, traveling around the world on a voyage of self-discovery, etc.

Typically, she is very distressed about this goal, because every man she meets seems hell-bent on getting to sex as fast as possible with no appreciable level of emotional intimacy happening.

Now, if you know who I am, you know I'm not going to criticize men for "just being interested in sex". What the hell are we supposed to be interested in, lawn bowling? Men exist for our own sake, not just as instruments to give women what they want.

However, women would be wise to react to this sensibly, by looking for what they want in places where it is actually on offer. Which means, in this case, that I generally advise these girls that they are looking in the wrong place... if they want to leverage their beauty and youthful energy to secure a match now rather than later, then any man who isn't either over 30 or close to it should be invisible to them.

Feminists and female tradcons cry about this, of course. Ostensibly because they don't want powerful older men exploiting naive young girls... but really because they don't like the competition. Older men are better prospects for relationship-minded young girls because their relationship goals align more closely.

Young men aren't interested in marriage or LTRs, not only inherently, but also because technological and economic pressures have combined to push them away.

The problem that these girls often have is that they don't quite realize this, because they don't interact with older men in the general sort of social Brownian motion that bounces them up against other people. So what is true of teenage boys, they think is true of males in general.

The possibility to shopping in a different age group often doesn't even occur to them, because they don't run into those guys, and they've been told that this sort of thing is creepy. Which is ostensible excuse for every effort meant to keep the two groups apart... this idea that young girls are irresistible to older men, resulting in a sort of social quasi-rape.

But if that were true and complete story, it could be solved by simply educating girls on their right to bodily autonomy. No, the true reason they must kept apart is that well-sorted and successful older men are often just as irresistible to young girls.

Male SMV doesn't quite exactly increase with age, but what does happen is that it tends towards the poles. An unattractive man who does not work at self-improvement and isn't in control of his life becomes vastly more unattractive, while men who are on the opposite trajectory become more attractive than they were before.

This makes it very easy for women to choose who is a good partner to have.

Incel, Feminism and FDS megathread

4 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think that's an awful thing to say, joke or not.

The world is awful. It's awful to us because it wasn't designed to have us in it, so it is not hospitable to our wants and needs without us expending great effort to alter it around us.

People are awful. Generally unhappy people are most awful. And you cannot cure this with a moral harangue, because the awful truth is that morals are a luxury. Only people who are doing sort of okay have the cargo space to care about the welfare of others, much less their feelings.

Lecturing unhappy people about being better people may feel good, but it doesn't work. The only thing you can do is make them less unhappy, avoid them, or kill them.

The first is appropriate to angry young TRP newbs, the second to incels who complain but resist all suggestions of self-improvement, and the third to "Allahu Ackbar" types who blow up shopping malls.

Incel, Feminism and FDS megathread

4 upvotes · 10 December 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The word incel once simply meant "involuntary celibate", which label has applied to every male at some point in his life.

But communities of these sort of men tend to develop two self-reinforcing characteristics: they resent women for not being attracted to them, and they blame everyone but themselves for their celibacy.

Either one of these traits would be okay singly, but taken together they are socially obnoxious to both red and blue pill people. The blues hate them for having negative attitudes about women, and the reds resent them because they complain constantly while refusing all attempts to help them out of their lamented state.

Bruh

4 upvotes · 5 December 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

If everyone you meet is a problem, the problem is you.

'Only a man with a fear of god won't cheat'...thoughts?

4 upvotes · 30 November 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I've actually come across two dating coaches

Stop that. Stop that right now. NEVER take dating advice from someone who is being paid for it.

People who are being paid for dating advice are incentivized to give bad advice.

How?

Because good, effective dating advice has two characteristics:

- It is unpleasant and upsetting to hear.
- It works if you follow it.

That's not how you sell books. You sell books by:

- Telling people things that make them feel good.
- Giving advice that will keep people in the same state as before they received it, so that they will buy more books.

The only trustworthy advice for relationship building (for women) or getting laid (for men) comes from people who have no external incentive.

My stalker "Chad" is being banned from Reddit

4 upvotes · 25 November 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Nah, it was hilarious... damsel with fainting couch vs. incel typing with one hand. The most entertaining trainwreck I've seen in weeks.

(Endgame) The Lost Boys

4 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep. I've said it before and I'll say it again. Tradconism is obsolete.

If it hadn't been, feminism would never have been able to kick its ass. Thirsty boomer twenty-somethings would never have thrown it away for the largely unfulfilled promise of a taste of unshaven free-love yeti snatch.

Worried I love my boyfriend more than he loves me

4 upvotes · 18 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

What is the unit of love?

What tool is used to measure it?

Crosspost from PPD: CMV - Every attractive young woman will have an OnlyFans account by 2030 and be entirely undateable

4 upvotes · 11 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't fuck or date emotionally retarded egomaniacs

I'm not sure if this means you are gay, or if it means you are celibate.

I don't believe in living together until being engaged. My friends think I'm crazy.

4 upvotes · 31 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think I give him enough of a nice taste of the kind of wife I will be, and feel if he wants more, he will have to propose.

This is common idea. It's based on a misunderstanding of how men work.

Women give in the hopes of receiving, and look for commitment to change something.

Men give because they have received, and commit when they hope it will change nothing.

I found Women who was Match maker. She quit because she could not handle female clients.

4 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

No need to thank me, those are earned.

You have grasped the essential idea of what RPW is doing, here. You win not by defeating men, but constructing "mutual win" scenarios so that men will work with you, not against you.

As a personal example, "FunSize", when introduced as my "girlfriend", to my social circle, was confused by the level of cattiness and snark directed towards her by the women. She didn't understand that I had slept with each and every one of them, and they had pretty much all wanted "girlfriend" status, and tried to get me to give it to them. And failed.

What they didn't understand is that she had played the game a different way. Instead of trying to push buttons to get me to do something she wanted, she simply made having her around fun and pleasurable. So each day or week, I made the decision to spend time with her instead of hitting up Tinder or whatever. Because it was the better option. That adds up a relationship pretty fast.

To all these other women, I was the "player" who was "not ready to settle down". They mentally assigned responsibility for starting a relationship to me, and if I didn't move the ball forwards, they blamed me while mentally excusing themselves. They had somehow held ME responsible for making sure THEY got what they wanted.

If you want to have some idea what that experience feels like for a man, imagine meeting a man who expected YOU to seduce HIM, then got resentful when you didn't.

In saying what you said, you showed awareness of a fact that even most women who read RPW struggle against: that THEY are responsible for making men WANT a relationship. They don't like the burden of responsibility.

But the wonderful thing about responsibility is that it comes packaged with power. If something is someone else's job, you have to wait for them to do it. If something is your job, you can step up and make something happen.

Girlfriend wearing skimpy bathing suits

4 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

My girlfriends dress how I fucking tell them to.

Why are you LTRing up disobedient women?

27/M how to tackle loneliness?

4 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Sounds like we have an extrovert here. One of my girlfriends is an extrovert, and she's suffering, too. My other girlfriend and I joke about "taking turns babysitting the extrovert".

In fact, I'm gonna let her talk about stuff she does to cope.

/u/_-_fangirl_-_ , take it away.

"Sacrificing" her career

4 upvotes · 1 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Oh, wow. Thanks. No, seriously... I'm not being sarcastic. This is enlightening. And fun!

You've inspired me. So get ready for a high-pressure torrent of words. With syllables.

Of course you call people "fat" when they get under your skin. You're a personal trainer. Your career is a lifelong battle with gluttony and sloth.

Not only that, it exposes you precisely to those who are most gluttonous and slothful. Think about it. If a "radical individualist" (Thanks for that, I love it.) looks down at himself, and thinks, "Hey, my core is too thick and my extremities are too thin", what does he do?

He goes and types "strength training" into a search engine. Then he reads a bit and goes back and types "starting strength". Then a bit later, he goes to youtube and types "Mark Rippetoe squat". Then after an hour or two, he types "rogue fitness" or "elitefts", drops about two thousand dollars, puts some stuff together in his basement or garage, then he off and running.

You never see him. He doesn't enter into your mental picture of humanity. Who you see are the people who need other people, not just to teach them, but to motivate them. So they join a gym, and pay you, not to teach them to squat, because youtube and Mark do that for free, but to tell them to squat.

And so you tell them to squat. And some of them learn to do without that, and stop paying you, and you stop seeing them. But others continue to need you to tell them to squat. And those are the ones who loom largest in your worldview (often in literal angular size as well as metaphorically)... the ones who are the most gluttonous and slothful of all.

So of course you think of life as a struggle against sloth and gluttony, full of weak people who need to submit to others to keep them fighting. That's who you're surrounded with.

I must say I don't quite understand this thing about taking a job that surrounds you with the very people who annoy you the most, but I think you must enjoy it on some level, because after a hard day of telling people to squat for money, you seem to love nothing so much as to get on reddit and tell people to squat for free. it doesn't actually matter to your life that I could replace you with a very small shell script. What matters is that you are doing what you love.

Anyway, of course you're going to see "lack of motivation/discipline/momentum/attitude" as the source of life's difficulties. Makes sense, doesn't it?

Now, enough about you. We're gonna talk about me for a while. What do I do?

I'm an engineer. A builder. A maker. I create things that didn't exist before. In fact, I am three types of engineer. A software engineer, an electrical engineer, and a systems engineer. As a systems engineer, I have to address problems not as something with a solution, but as design tradeoff between different conflicting priorities. As an electrical engineer, I have to understand the physical properties of the universe to make it do what I want. As a software engineer, I have to constantly learn unfamiliar things, and figure out how to do things humanity has never done before, because if they had, the code would exist.

So what is my career a lifelong battle with?

Ignorance.

Not mostly with individual ignorance (it's teachers who do that... although it doesn't escape my notice that teaching is one of things I like to do with my free time), but humanity's collective ignorance.

My job is to do battle with the Void. The big black endless wall of what we don't know and can't do. My job is to chip away at it.

So of course, where you think about motivation, and discipline, and momentum, I think about expertise.

Competence. Relevant knowledge. I'm the one who notices that humanity itself is the "unathletic dorks" of the animal kingdom. And yet we dominate the planet. (Some of us more than others.)

No how much time you spend at the gym, or how much time I spend in my garage, neither of us will ever be able to duke it out with the average grizzly bear without getting our heads well and truly nommed. But that doesn't matter, because thanks to the efforts of my brother engineers, and machinists, and opticians, and chemists, and miners, and smelters, etc, etc... I have Zeus's thunderbolt here leaning against my desk. I can throw the strap around my shoulders, walk out my door, and kill any animal I can see.

The primary barrier between our plains-apes ancestors, and that power, was lack of knowledge. They had all the discipline, motivation, and desire in the world. After all, their very lives were at stake, and that tends to focus a man some. But still they spent thousands of years slowly working their way up from banging the rocks together... because they didn't know.

Relevant knowledge is the the powerful and necessary thing in the universe, and the lack of it foils more plans than any other thing.

That's why I'm on this whole "politics doesn't matter so much" kick right now. I'm playing with the notion of looking at political and social trends as effects, rather than causes. I'm looking at them as the implications and consequences of knowledge and technology, and the economic realities that result from knowledge and technology.

In short, I'm thinking that Trump's redneck revolution, or the rise of urban loony SJW socialists, or whatever brand of collectivist ethnonationalist planned economy you would want me to read six pointless books about, which you didn't write yourself, is probably not really a determinant of the future as much as the falling cost of CNC machines. (Seriously, check out some Haas videos on youtube. I'm so hard it hurts.)

And, on our other tangential topic, thanks for being you, as usual. You may not be capable of deliberately teaching me anything I don't already know, but I learn a hell of a lot about human nature by watching your antics. I think if you didn't exist, it would have been necessary to invent you.

Or perhaps I kind of did.

Would it be okay to get a girlfriend a gift once in a while out of the blue ?

4 upvotes · 1 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Thank you for that. You've given me an opportunity to talk about one of my favorite versions of stupidity... this idea that everything is an indicator of its opposite.

"If you lift weights/drive a big truck/own a lot of guns/have a high-risk job or hobby/have sex with many different women you must be insecure about your masculinity. I, on the other hand, am a real man because I wear skinny jeans, cry a lot, and like to knit sweaters."

Next they'll be claiming black is white, up is down, and night is day. And that Thomas Jefferson was a fascist. Oh, wait, they already are.

Love my LTR girlfriend, but she has gained weight and doesn't care/try to lose weight

4 upvotes · 4 May 2020 · /r/askTRP

You know exactly what you need to do.

You're asking questions here instead because you don't have the balls to do it.

Crafting the perfect marriage

4 upvotes · 2 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Some people say that. But TRP isn't and hasn't ever been a cathedral of the One True Way. We don't all agree on everything, even when you limit "we" to the ECs.

Here's my take on cohabitation:

If you are a beginner, don't cohabit, and avoid LTRs unless a really amazing "keeper" comes along. If you have some game, you can cohabit if you don't slack off. But never marry no matter who you are or how tight your game is.

Why all of that?

Well, when you are cohabiting with a girl, you're there with her every damn day. So you can't be needing effort to get your "game face" on; you have to have absorbed this stuff to the point where you are a natural, and can crush shit tests and whatnot without breaking stride, without becoming fatigued.

You can fake it until you make it when you are seeing a girl every so often, but if she's there all the time, you can't be faking it anymore. It has to actually be you.

FunSize and FanGirl know about this account, and they pretty much read every word I write. If I were having to put on an act to be "Whisper", instead of just Scott Lindstrom pretending to be Whisper, then I'd be fucked in the long run. But because I am pretty much exactly how I describe myself here, it works out the opposite way. They know it's not an act.

So why do it, if it's harder? Well, like anything in life, it's a cost-benefit question. Cohabitation has benefits that some guys like. I don't LTR girls for sex, because the bottom has fallen out of the sex market and it's easy as hell to get. I get into LTRs because I like female companionship. I promote girls who are fun to be with, even when we have our clothes on.

You can date a girl and enjoy time with her if you don't live together, but if you want a mate (or more than one), somebody's gotta move in.

So why don't I ever advise getting married?

It's not that I, or others like me (/u/HumanSockPuppet also lives with his two girlfriends), couldn't handle a marriage and keep the upper hand just fine... hell, a lot of the guys reading this probably could. But it's an additional risk with no additional benefit, and it surrenders power, which makes you less attractive. That's just not smart.

"Oh, but Whiiiiisper, quaaaality women won't cohabit forever without a ring!"

Bullshit. Oh, sure, the women of RPW will often say that, but it's just woofing. The female version of macho. If one of them really falls for a man, they'll take whatever terms he gives them... and they'll be just fine, because men have an deep and abiding protective instinct towards women, especially the ones who treat us right.

Anyway, the dangerous part is that you need a really clear head to decide when you're ready to cohabit. It's easy for young and thirsty dudes to decide their ex-stripper "sugar baby" is a fucking born-again unicorn, and is totally ready to kick the coke habit and bear their children.

That's why most ECs say "don't cohabit"... they're not spergs, they just don't have much confidence in your spine, and they know that anyone who's ready to cohabit is also ready to pick and choose the advice that works for them, rather than slavishly obeying. I understand their motives, even applaud them, but that's just not my style.

How to be a Skeptical Bastard

4 upvotes · 15 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. You are starting to get it.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

4 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Fair enough.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

4 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

I hate to break it to you, but that's not an udder you're tugging on.

It's been fun, but it's going nowhere. Ultimately, you see TRP as a step on the road to the salvation of society. I see it as a step on many roads to the salvation of many individuals.

You don't require my permission to have your little crusade, but you can't have it here. I've been defending you behind the scenes for some time now, but from now on, rule two applies to you just like anyone else.

No alleging Kantian categorical imperatives.

And if men need those, it's okay for them to find those things elsewhere. TRP will continue to contain just what it says on the label.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

4 upvotes · 9 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Wow dude first you didn't know what Ideology meant even though here we are together on the internet with no one stopping you from using any number of dictionaries to help you figure it out. Now here you are confusing yourself out of looking up the word degenerate.

"Degenerate", according to Merriam-Webster:

having declined or become less specialized (as in nature, character, structure, or function) from an ancestral or former state; having sunk to a condition below that which is normal to a type

"Degenerate", according to /u/gaylubeoil:

Degenerate is an easy word to define, it's an adjective that describes that which does not generate. So a male to female transvestite is degenerate because it is infertile. A woman's study's course is degenerate because it doesn't generate anything unlike an engineering course.

That's why I tell you to define your terms, there, sparky. Because Merriam-Webster and GayLubeOil don't agree with each other, and it ain't Merriam-Webster I'm talking to.

So, now that you have at last come around to specifying what the fuck you are talking about, we can figure out your real agenda and motives through the thick cloud of disingenuous crap.

What you mean by "degenerate" is declining fertility... the tendency of a culture or race to fail, for whatever reason, to expand, or perhaps even sustain, its numbers through successive generations. This makes it appear as if less babies bothers you, or specifically less white babies, because the diversity certainly isn't refusing to breed.

You want more white babies.

Right now I'm watching white American society self destruct and get replaced by Mexicans Exactly. And while I'm not about to scream "racist", because that epithet pretty much exists so that one half of the authoritarian left can scream it at the other half of the authoritarian left, I have other ideas.

Specifically, the idea: Why the fuck should I, or any young man who looks to me for guidance or inspiration, give a shit?

These guys have been exploited enough already. Proselytized enough already for crusades that line the pockets and ensure the futures of others. I'm not teaching them to be good little soldiers. Good little soldiers get screwed. I'm teaching them to be mercenaries who demand half pay in advance before lifting a finger.

The Jordan Petersens of this world want young men to start working together, risking and sacrificing, to "save society". But save it for whom? These young dudes are going to live the rest of their lives in what you so apt termed "Upside Down Clown World", and their only hope of personal benefit is in learning to thrive there.

JP doesn't want to save society for young men. He wants young men to save society for future generations. Why? Because he has kids, that's why. Scratch a principled political idealist until the paint comes off, and you'll find a personal agenda.

I knew, four years ago when I wrote this, that you and others like you would eventually figure out what I was on about and start fussing at me. Frankly, I'm surprised it took this long, because I've made no secret of my recommendation that young men discard their indoctrinated loyalties and begin analyzing their involvement in society as a value proposition.

So I don't recommend to them that they expend their efforts saving society, because society hasn't made any indication of thinking that it needs to be saved, and thus is not about to open its damn checkbook.

"Buuuuuut Whhiisssper, it's their society! They live in it! They should save it for themselves and their children!"

Well, how the hell is it "their" society? None of it belongs to them. It doesn't respect them. It doesn't listen to them. It's spent the last twelve decades or so spitting on them. It sold them out before they were even born.

Why should they run after it, like abused children begging for love from the parent that beats them, trying to convince society to change its ways?

These are people. They are not here for your amusement. They are not a means to an end. They exist in their own right, not for the sake of whatever benefit they can bring to others. If what was once their nation or their culture wants them back, it can offer them something in return. Cash up front, please, because they've learn how much the promises of wannabe leaders are actually worth.

Otherwise, I'll be my tent, Agamemnon. Good luck with Hektor.

How to date in late twenties to get commitment from guys who are also late twenties

4 upvotes · 4 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

+1

/u/pearlsandstiletos

Considerations for visiting an old FWB in China?

4 upvotes · 1 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

So... your plan is to visit a communist dictatorship, that is in the middle of an epidemic, in order to get laid?

From an unbiased perspective, has the red pill improved your life or made you miserable?

4 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

In one of MJ's vids he mention that girls find out about the shit he's saying online about women and I could tell you for a fact, with the type of women this guy can pull, they would for a fact be disgusted and so turned off with what he teaches and just find another "Chad" because it's not hard for his caliber of women to find another guy like him.

My girls read all my reddit comments. They aren't disgusted and turned off. Because no one can find another guy like me.

For me, TRP is a place to write down all the ideas that made my life go from shit to awesome, and the red pill is the shit I wrote down. So, yeah, it fucking works.

Anthony Cumia — Red Pill rant about “love”

4 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

How can you love women knowing everything about them; their psychology, how their love works, and where theirs end.

How can I not?

I understand them. I understand that their nature has always been what it is. If were to resent their nature, that would mean that I expected them to be something they were not. The flaw would be in my expectations, not their nature.

Once I understood them, I knew how to make them like me, and, more importantly, to respect me. They started treating me how I wanted to be treated. How could I not love them for it?

Women are not a defective form of man. They are women. Their instincts and inner needs are different. But push the right buttons, and they will treat you like a god.

Receiving compliments with grace

4 upvotes · 11 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the reasons that those in our culture (especially women) can find compliments embarrassing is that there is a heavy undercurrent of disapproval for pride or self-promotion, which comes from a profound misinterpretation of our collective philosophy of egalitarianism and the worth of every person.

But humility does NOT mean lack of belief in one's virtues, it means not claiming privilege because of them. There is no point in beautiful women claiming to be plain, or intelligent men claiming to be average. What the virtue of humility actual means is that the beautiful women does not regard her dumpier counterparts as worthless, nor does the intelligent man disregard the knowledge or experience possessed by those less insightful than he.

So, yes, you are probably attractive. No, there is nothing wrong with admitting that. And the proper response to a compliment is "Thank you."

Why don't women "stage" sex to avoid bad sex encounters before they start?

4 upvotes · 19 February 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Sperg-like typing detected.

I'm a rpw but my boyfriend doesn't feel appreciated?

4 upvotes · 19 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

The first part of this is relevant to your situation... but the man in this story was 42 years old at the time.

Young dudes just don't have the decades of experience with having kinda-bad shit happen, and then everything comes out, if not all right, at least bearable, in the end. Young men don't have that solid confidence that they are going to be okay.

You are both emotionally unstable. You need to recognize this fact and make your plans accordingly, rather than try to make it not so by pretending it isn't.

If this relationship fails, I recommend starting your next one with a man significantly older than you.

I'm a rpw but my boyfriend doesn't feel appreciated?

4 upvotes · 19 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

No. Insufficient data.

He could be crazy. She could be damseling.

Gender roles

4 upvotes · 14 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

it has become apparent that most women want out of their gender role

Don't listen to what women say. Watch what they do.

Scandinavia: Can The New "Parental Team" Replace Marriage?

4 upvotes · 14 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

"Don't get married" is the most ironclad prenup of all.

The marriage shit test

4 upvotes · 3 January 2020 · /r/askTRP

Submissive women get what they want by creating incentives for you, not by nagging you.

The Consequences of Pornography

4 upvotes · 12 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Not necessarily so.

Females of the human species have the ability to orgasm, but the female orgasm, unlike the male orgasm, is not required for the survival of the species.

That means that evolutionary pressures are different. A woman who has difficulty reaching orgasm, or needs a particular and specific kind of stimulation (physical or psychological), can still have children as easily, so there's going to be a lot more women like that around.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

4 upvotes · 4 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

Its cute how proud you are of creating a disbanded subreddit.

Somebody hasn't been keeping up with current events.

but hey, if that's your life's shining achievement then we all gotta cling to something for meaning

If you're going to shit test me, can you put on some makeup and a little skirt first?

But make no mistake, you hold no claims on TRP.

And for my next trick... have a Vietnamese sandwich.

Mrs Midwest "Men are not trash"

4 upvotes · 26 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Being for or against sexism has nothing to do with morality. Believing that your attitudes determine your morality is just a cheap way for (mostly) millennials to pat themselves on the back, because then they can consider themselves to be good, upright, virtuous people without having actually done anything.

We don't discuss issues of what is right and wrong here, that's one of the rules, but I will say that right and wrong things, whatever they may be, are actions, not beliefs. Your beliefs don't matter, only what your beliefs make you do.

So being sexist is not about being bad or good. But it is about being factually correct or factually incorrect, with sexism being the factually correct position.

Men and women are different. Very different. They have different motivations, different needs, different capabilities, and different goals. Humans are among the most sexually dimorphic species on the planet. It therefore not only makes sense, but is vitally necessary for a healthy and functioning society, that they be treated differently.

That is why TRP and RPW exist in the first place. Because people in our culture weren't getting proper instruction on how to have healthy and happy life by being sexist. So I and a few of my friends invented an information source to correct this, and now we use these places to teach people the proper way to be sexist.

The redpill is NOT about women

4 upvotes · 14 November 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I know this game. I like this game. This is the part where my move is to say something like "If you're going to shit test me, at least put on a skirt and some makeup", or something like that.

But, of course, you haven't thought this through. This is a game you play with women, and the prize is getting laid. Here, there's no prize. A witty, but content-free comeback, doesn't get you anything that you don't also get from not responding at all.

So here's how silly this is: The author of the book you were arguing about showed up to settle the argument, and told you that you were wrong. You decided you needed to save face for your anonymous website account, so you started firing off snappy quips.

That's lame. No one reading this knows who you are, or gives a shit. In fact, no one is reading this at all, other than you and me and the people who read my entire feed.

What you're doing here isn't self-improvement OR a way to get laid. It's trying to salve your wounded ego. But what men who have self-improved AND men who get laid a lot have in common is that they are remarkably resilient to embarrassment, and they don't need to do shit like this. If you cannot bear to be thought less of, at any time, by anyone, even under conditions of anonymity on the internet, then you're going to come across as brittle and defensive to women you talk to, and they're not going to want to get naked with you.

I know im not worthless, why do i get treated like i am?

4 upvotes · 11 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm a well adjusted, funny guy. I'm over 6 foot tall, fit, white, and I have a jawline. It's not like I'm new to any of this social shit either.

None of that shit matters.

Confidence is king, and King Confidence rules alone. You need to be able to talk to girls with the appearance of ease and self-assurance before your looks or status or even social skills will help you in the slightest.

Is gay marriage the key to avoiding divorce rape?

4 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

The key to not getting divorced is not getting married, stupid.

What would you spend $1k on?

4 upvotes · 29 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why ever not? You've already jumped through the legal hoops.

Hell, if you like Glocks, you can do an 80 percent kit and not deal with asinine communist federal law bullshit. When I'm not dressed heavily enough to cover my Sphinx (my favorite), I have an unserialized 17/19 hybrid I like to tote instead.

But I tend to think that, while guns can be a money pit for an enthusiast, no household is complete without at least one rifle.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

4 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

Should is just a way to use one word to say "I want" with a side order of "and I don't want to take responsibility for wanting it".

The words "all men are created equal" were written to refute the idea of the divine right of kings and the birthright of nobility. They do not mean that no man is better than another. They mean that men are better than one another based on their accomplishments, not their birthright.

It is foolish to contend that all men are equal, because clearly they are not. It is equally foolish to claim that they "should" be equal, because that just means you want them to be equal... the sentiment of a below average man.

Should /r/TheRedPill be banned? Looks like Reddit admin think so...

4 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Any discussion of "should" is either a hypothetical imperative, or someone trying to disguise "I want" as a categorical imperative... since there are no categorical imperatives.

So "reddit should do this" means either "I want reddit to do this", or "reddit would be best served by doing this".

Only the second one is interesting, because anyone can want things.

I wouldn't even say this is a bad move for reddit, because I don't think there are any good moves for reddit. Its old "free speech" attitude certainly allowed it to draw a large audience, but what it didn't do is help reddit become self-sufficient.

Now reddit is trying to do that, but I don't think it's going to work. Not merely because this kind of thing makes audiences less engaged, but because the fickle attention of an anonymous audience simply isn't worth that much.

It was never worth that much to me... which is why I was never foolish enough to try to monetize it and quit my career.

Facebook makes money because it has detailed personal data on people to sell. Reddit doesn't.

"A bunch of people are reading my website, how do I make money off that?" is a much more difficult problem than people think. A mere count of eyes doesn't measure actual engagement. Internet audiences are fickle.

Should /r/TheRedPill be banned? Looks like Reddit admin think so...

4 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not interested in what you base your identity around. You wanna talk about reddit's monetization model, or not?

Whats with this 'warrior' thing?

4 upvotes · 25 September 2019 · /r/askTRP

"Warrior" doesn't mean "badass". It literally means someone who fights a war.

Most of them aren't badasses. They are lemmings, they are too stupid, untalented, naive, or just plain unlucky to avoid being used as a blunt instrument for someone else's cause. And they die like sheep, or come home broken and can't get fixed.

Moreover, fighting wars doesn't even make you a badass. It just tests if you already are.

Think about it. Think about this example:

I am an engineer. I've been an engineer for sixteen fucking years. Five days a week. If that makes you think I must be pretty good at engineering, you'd be wrong... I'm fucking amazing at engineering.

But why was I able to do it five days a week for sixteen years? Because engineering, as an activity, carries a 0.0% percent chance of fucking dying, that's why. If you fought in armed conflicts five days a week, eight hours a day, for sixteen years, you'd be... well, dead. So people who fight, actually fight, haven't fought enough to learn all that much from the actual fighting. There wasn't enough of it. If there was, they would eventually have gotten unlucky, and be dead now.

No, if they can do badass shit, it's because they fucking trained. The only thing anyone ever learned from fighting for his life is "here is some shit that I saw that I should probably incorporate into my training if I am lucky enough to live through today".

So don't call yourself a warrior, because you aren't one. And don't go become one, because they are disposable and get the shit end of life. Instead, if you admire the things about them that are positive, seek out training and learn those things.

Why do women love psychopaths?

4 upvotes · 23 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

there is no sense of guilt, or even an awareness about just how they impacted another person.

No.

To imply that psychopaths are unaware that others have feelings is to imply that they are all profoundly stupid, and incapable of reaching obvious evidence-based conclusions about other people's state of mind.

The reason psychopaths are generally willing to harm others is not because they don't realize that others have feelings, it's because they don't care.

Awareness of the feelings of others, and ability to understand what that feeling is like (empathy) is a cognitive ability. The tendency to feel those same feelings when one perceives them in others (sympathy) is hardwired into most people.

A psychopath is nothing more or less than someone with a vastly diminished (or absent) capacity for sympathy.

Both the sympathetic person, who refrains from harming others, and often tries to help them, and the psychopath, who is willing to harm others if it is at all convenient, are acting rationally. They are simply reacting rationally to different internal conditions. The "sympath" knows he will suffer if he hurts others, and, at best, he will have to spend a great deal of effort rationalizing his actions to avoid guilt. The psychopath knows he will be just fine, and not suffer at all.

Incidentally, this is why history's worst atrocities are perpetuated by ordinary "sympaths", not psychopaths. Because only "sympaths" feel the need to rationalize their actions to themselves. In the case of atrocities such as genocide, this means dehumanizing your victim... and once you have convinced yourself that your victims are not people, and killing them is a positive good, there's nothing to stop you.

A psychopath doesn't need to dehumanize his victims before harming them... because he has dehumanized everyone in advance, but because he is capable of inflicting harm on those whose humanity he is fully aware of without feeling any guilt at all.

This is why you see, for example, left-wing Americans taking to calling people who voted for Donald Trump "nazis". It's because they are not psychopaths, but wish to do something only a psychopath could otherwise do... target or even kill their political adversaries merely for disagreeing with them. Ironically enough, calling someone a "racist", in the modern world, serves the same purpose that racism itself was originally intended to serve; rationalizing persecution and murder. In the same way, calling someone a "nazi" now amounts to stealing a page from the playbook of the actual nazis; dehumanize a group, arouse a movement against them, ride this movement to political power.

Ordinary people in large groups can be brainwashed into mindless killing machines in a way that psychopaths simply can't.

Don't fall for "natural".

4 upvotes · 13 September 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

But of course. If I mentioned everything, I'd be hogging the spotlight, and leaving nothing for you to say. What do you think I am, some kind of attention whore?

[Discussion] Feminism & RedPillWomen

4 upvotes · 27 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Its about empowerment and equality.

Bullshit.

If feminism were about empowerment, it would encourage women to solve their own problems, instead of whinging to Daddy Patriarchy for more laws, more quotas, more special programs, and more free cookies from the government.

If feminism were about equality, ditto.

Feminism is not even a movement or a set of beliefs. It's an algorithm for getting free cookies from men. Goes like this:

1. Find something you think is a problem, that affects you (a woman), regardless of whether or not it affects mostly women, or affects you because you're a woman, or has anything to do with being a woman at all.
2. Construct a narrative that frames this problem as unfairness to women.
3. Relate this narrative to any man who will listen, and tell them that they personally are oppressing women unless they change their behaviour to fix this problem for you.
4. Repeat until men give you whatever it is you wanted.

Feminism can appear to a movement because women have flocked together to teach each other how to whine to men for free cookies. But the whole reason that there are different variations of feminism

... is because feminism is a method, not a goal. What appears to be different varieties is simply different sorts of free cookie being whined for.

Should I dye my hair blonde? Are men more attracted to blondes?

4 upvotes · 20 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

According to my observations, men are more attracted to blonde women.

Excuse me while I laugh myself sick.

You must think we are all a hive mind.

Which, if any, parts of TRP do you consider to be morally wrong or using the wrong tone, yet factually correct or efficient?

4 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No need for all this misogynistic wahmen suck crap.

On the contrary, that is precisely the secret sauce that makes it all work.

In every article I write, misogyny isn't something that accidentally leaks in. It's a part of the recipe, and I measure and add the precise correct amount.

The Wrong Girl

4 upvotes · 29 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

So you're telling me that what you want to do is have a permanent pro-wrestling style feud with Rollo because it will drive audience engagement?

Interesting notion. Are you quite sure that your own gopnik values are not driving this assumption? Because remember that most of our audience is what you would describe as "Anglo American Protestant". There's a reason why, in American culture, pro wrestling only exists so that people who go to monster truck pulls have someone to look down on.

The issue I have with your feud with Rollo is not that it's a disagreement, but that it's postmodern discourse. I don't share your goals. I don't want upvotes. I don't want to grow the audience. I want to grow the number of people who actually get it, and that is NOT a fixed percentage of the people who come and look.

That's why I remove postmodern shit. And that's why I mistook your fake feud for a real one... because postmodern discourse is precisely for throwing people you don't like over the side of the boat at any cost, by any means available. That's what the Eurotrash invented it for, because that's what fits in with Eurotrash values (what you call Game of Thrones style power games).

I'm not interested in those people, because they fundamentally don't get it and never will. All they do is decrease the signal to noise ratio. They're a waste of my time.

So you wanna have at Rollo's ideas, go for it.

Chad, Dylan, and the Myth of "the Bad Man"

4 upvotes · 25 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I see you're having so much fun writing this character that it's difficult to stop.

Dad trying to show power

4 upvotes · 22 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Are you nuts?

If you are living under his roof, on his dime, what the fuck do you expect?

And of course he's angry that your mutt pissed on his floor. Animals that live in human society need to abide by human rules, like "other people's houses are not your fucking toilet".

Train your damn dog, and stop biting the hand that feeds you. If you don't like that, get a job, move out, pay your own rent.

I love the red pill, mostly the theory. I seriously have my doubts about the guys who represent the manosphere.

4 upvotes · 11 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Been busy.

Second LTR moved in with me and first LTR. Distracting.

How to best deal with a feminist (future) mother-in-law

4 upvotes · 16 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The word "unnecessary" is often coupled to the word "friction" without an intervening thought. But if more people were to have that thought, it might often be "The use of the word unnecessary implies that there is also such a thing as necessary friction".

One of the most common places where friction is necessary is in the operation of brakes, which are a mechanical device used to stop things. Friction is good at making things stop.

In other words, to have a mature and civil relationship, it is necessary to have both clear boundaries, and respect for those boundaries. Sweetness is not always the appropriate tool for that goal.

Wait, what? We hate Rollo Tomassi now?

4 upvotes · 3 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is no "we". There is only me, and you, and the other guys reading this shit. And everyone gets to form their own opinion.

Yeah, Rollo has pissed some people off, but if you want to know what those people think, ask them.

Not my circus, not my monkeys.

Should i hit the gym and do martial arts there by myself?

4 upvotes · 2 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

After my last month in MMA classes, i notice that we are doing the same things over and over again

How the hell do you think you get good at something, Einstein?

Lifting Question: Will Switching To Powerlifting Get Me More Size?

4 upvotes · 28 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

Powerlifters are bigger and stronger because they are not in a caloric deficit half the time.

Man leapt from girlfriend's balcony after she pulled a gun on him and demanded oral sex.

4 upvotes · 25 May 2019 · /r/MensRights

That answers a lot of questions about why she had to resort to this.

Man why the fuck i cant cum?!?!?

4 upvotes · 25 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Yes, I am.

Now straighten your head out or get off my ship.

What does it mean if a chick asks if you have a girl?

4 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

I am answering the question you should have asked, instead of the one you did.

The way you find out what a girl intends is to keep the conversation going.

How long is too long to wait for commitment?

4 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't wait for commitment. You inspire it.

“Oooo dominant, I love it” Good thing?

4 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

FunSize has been with me for years.

FanGirl is just right now receiving a trial promotion to full LTR (from a sort of off-and-on FWB).

I have a few old friends here and there that I have sex with when I'm in their neck of the woods (FWBish stuff, none of them local).

And every once in a while I add a plate or two, if there's any looming danger of monogamy. I don't really spin for volume, though. I like more connection, and more obedience, than one typically gets from a plate.

“Oooo dominant, I love it” Good thing?

4 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You mean LTRs, or every category?

is the reason women say all men are assholes incapable of love because the only guys they are attracted to are the assholes?

4 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Men and women both are 100% absolutely selfish bags of flesh. This is because our idealism is stupid and doesn't apply to anyone.

Women know that "good" men aren't good. They are just scared. Confident men show their selfishness.

Is Machiavellianism the best way to win at life and relationships?

4 upvotes · 11 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

The point of TRP is not "be Machiavellian" it's "understand what works in a given situation, and do that".

Sometimes being kind, loving, and generous works... but you have to know when it works, and you have to do because it's going to work, not because it's the "right thing to do".

And you must never be good to a girl who isn't already submissive, respectful, and obedient to you.

Your kindness is a reward after the fact, never an offer in the hopes of a reward.

Saw this on r/nicegirls

4 upvotes · 7 May 2019 · /r/MensRights

Does it come with a bag of cat food?

If you don't enter her frame?

4 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Who cares if women are angry?

There's plenty of women.

I want to be normal - so afraid of other people's judgements I have constant panic attacks

4 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Do it again. Do it every day. A good day is not enough to dispel a lifetime of doubt.

We are what we habitually do.

How much self help/game do we actually need??

4 upvotes · 5 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

How much self help/game do we actually need??

Depends on how much sexual success/power you actually want.

Doing it right? Possessiveness?

4 upvotes · 5 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You can explicitly tell girls what to do once you have fully trained them to obey you.

This is an LTR thing... it takes a lot of time, and it's not worth going the full distance unless a girl is actually worth investing that effort in.

Here's the basic idea of how:

https://old.reddit.com/r/asktrp/comments/bkphy7/doing_it_right_possessiveness/emiv0ln/

... but what you are asking is "Is this really possible? How explicit can you really be?" The answer is that there is very little upper limit if you are skilled enough and put in enough time.

For example, FunSize is not allowed to have an orgasm unless I explicitly give her permission to. She's allowed to ask, but she must hold off until the command is given. This was difficult at first, orgasm not being strictly voluntary in most human beings, but after a good deal of training, she is now able to stay on the brink and hold off pretty much indefinitely, and hasn't had an "accident" in years.

In fact, I suspect she may by now be incapable without my verbal command, but I can't think of a way to test that, because any test would involve her trying to disobey me, which I don't see happening.

Now, I did this just because it's fun (she has other, more practical, standing orders), and you don't have to do that with your girls unless you feel like it.

Point is, obedience can go down to the autonomic nervous system with enough operant conditioning and time.

Plate I'm talking to brought up a guy she's interested and wants an LTR with

4 upvotes · 4 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

I responded by saying, "I hope things work out for you and your other guy", then stopped responding to her.

So you handled it correctly and are finished. Go find another girl.

It's Not Your Job to Unpack Her Desires- "The red pill community, no matter how right, simply doesn't have the resources to counter the trillions of dollars and the trillions of hours and the decades of years that have been invested brainwashing today's women into being non-women"

4 upvotes · 27 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not a big fan of "bitching about modern women", because I strongly believe that it's important to adapt to the terrain rather than criticize it.

However, to be brief (since FunSize and FanGirl are downstairs making me pancakes), I believe it's also important to recognize when the terrain is against you and to realize that while terrain can be reshaped, you lack the resources to do so.

The power of the red pill, like the power of everything else, is limited... it can always improve your situation, but it can never make the terrain not affect you at all.

Question for the guys who are red pilld but still do relationships

4 upvotes · 21 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

You think women are not controllable because the ones around you are not controlled.

Thank you for existing RPW.

4 upvotes · 13 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Fluffing yourself up like a wet hen and clucking angrily does not add weight to an argument. Try to focus on the sense of what you have to say, because moral outrage, real or feigned, doesn't carry any water here.

As to what you have to say, this argument is based upon a confusion between the concept of justice and the concept of responsibility.

TRP and RPW are both based around the notion of strategy rather than morals. We do not focus on what "should" happen to us, or how we "should" be treated. We ask instead, "what can I do to make good outcomes more likely in my life?".

We could all sit around and have a very non-controversial discussion about how rape is bad, and it shouldn't happen to people. But how would this help anyone? Empower anyone? Protect anyone?

It wouldn't. Because "rape is bad" isn't something you or I can do. It's not a piece of advice. It doesn't help.

"Avoid sketchy situations, don't sexually tease beta males, don't party with large groups of men not personally known to you, take advantage of your right to bear arms"... these things help. Do they protect you absolutely. No, of course not. Hell, you could walk outside right now and be struck dead by a falling meteor. Shit happens.

But it is deeply hypocritical to pretend serious concern about a danger, while refusing to take steps to defend yourself, because you "shouldn't have to".

People who don't want to take responsibility for their own safety aren't actually afraid; because when people are actually afraid, there is nothing they love more than to be empowered to protect themselves.

Fwb called me a psychopath and manipulative?

4 upvotes · 12 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

"What is it, kiddo? Did Cosmo have an article on 'twenty signs you might be dating a psychopath?'"

When plates talk about emotions?

4 upvotes · 9 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/803>

Most women get barely any sex at all

4 upvotes · 6 April 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I just redefined "sex" as "riding a giant flying platypus", and was suddenly shocked to discover that I get no "sex" at all.

Where's my flying platypus?

What to tell girls that know you're in a LTR

4 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why are you in a LTR when you're interested in other girls?

If you're not always interested in other girls, have your testosterone levels checked.

How to lower my sex drive?

4 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't know where girls get some of these crazy ideas.

"I want a woman who hates kinky, adventurous sex. I'd also like her to lie and hide important facts from me."

... said no man, ever.

How to lower my sex drive?

4 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

https://old.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/b708vd/always_be_sure_to_tie_a_live_duck_to_your_right/

Q4W: What is the difference between having sex & being used for sex?

4 upvotes · 14 March 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Making you useful for what you want to be useful for is not someone else's responsibility. It's yours.

If you want to be useful for "things other than sex", it's your job to figure out which things, and make yourself useful for them.

And if people only want you for sex, instead of those things, you failed.

Submissive behaviour

4 upvotes · 12 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

First, I recommend you quit bullshitting yourself. Anything that weighs 115lbs and smells like floral soap is not "intimidating".

Men are not afraid of you. They just don't like you.

The reason your girlfriends will not tell you this is that girls don't want to look mean. So they use the word "intimidating" as a flattering way to spin something that is much less flattering in truth.

You have a bossiness problem. Fix it or start adopting cats.

RPW 101b: moving beyond "how hold fighting stick"

4 upvotes · 12 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I really don't see the point of a woman aspiring to be attractive to most men, when it's in our nature to only be attracted to one man, at any point in time, not to mention the topic of n-count.

It's important for the single woman. The more she cultivates attributes that are attractive to most men, the better her odds of already being attractive to someone she meets that she wants to focus on.

Once she's "all-in", his individual tastes are more important. You can still focus on tastes that almost all men have in common, but listening, flexibility, empathy, caring... these are second-level skills that help to understand and communicate desires.

.. sorry for the excessive reply, I just wanted to voice some frustrations I've had with some concepts that's been on my mind, that I don't know how to effectively communicate to make it worthwhile as a contribution.

It's hard. Newbies will cry about being bullied if they hear advice they don't like. Women who have been married for decades will advise a level of sexual continence that they did not practice with the men who are now their husbands, and which will not make wives of the women who listen to them, under a de facto policy of "fuck you, I've got mine". Single women will read for two weeks, then pipe up to advise a 29 year old to dump a boyfriend of five years because he hasn't popped the question yet.

The trick is to just keep repeating to yourself the Parable of the Sower.

RPW 101b: moving beyond "how hold fighting stick"

4 upvotes · 9 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm really just looking for next step material/info/ideas/inspiration. Like some women here are 50, surely they know stuff I don't, but am oblivious to? I like learning from other peoples mistakes more than from my own.

There are several factors in play here.

- The impossibility of real, unified expertise. When you want to know how to seduce a woman, you ask a man who has seduced many different women. He is by definition an expert. But when you want to know how to keep a man in a happy relationship for life, who do you ask? A man? He is a fish, not a fisherman. A woman who has had many relationships? She is a failure, not a success. A woman who has had one long successful relationship? She only has experience with one specific man.
- Women's general reluctance to write theory articles, or field reports. I have had many successes in one-on-one coaching, but once they "have got theirs", women are often unwilling to take the effort to share their stories with others, and talk about what worked and what didn't. One can only badger them so much. (I suspect this may have to do with women feeling less responsibility for the welfare of those not in their immediate circle.)
- Dissemination of information within RPW. This is the big one. High-level RPW expertise does exist. We have some very feminine and wise women participating here. But that information is tightly concentrated, and the average participant is not very well informed. In TRP, I spend most of my time instructing men on how to take their game to the next level, or teaching about how something works. Here, I spend most of my time just trying to correct the worst of the misconceptions that women have absorbed from mainstream or tradcon society: "men love the chase", "if he sees other men interested in me, he'll think I'm high-value", "my sociology PhD helped impress my husband into proposing to me", "confidence is sexy", etc.
- Dissemination of TRP information. Most of the redpill stuff ever written was written for a male audience, and is totally unpalatable to all the most advanced (or just thick-skinned) RPW readers, and it percolates across very slowly, if at all.
- Smaller community. Creativity is multiplicative. The vibrancy of the TRP drives each man's ideas by immersing him in the ideas of others.
- Smaller test samples. TRP men are testing their ideas on many different women. RPW are testing their ideas on ONE significant other.

Discussion: Do you want children? What is the best way to have children?

4 upvotes · 5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

After studying a lot of different people's takes on this, through questioning and observation, I've come to the conclusion that there is no "why?".

The urge to raise children is a primary urge, like hunger or sex drive, not a means to an end. You either have it, or you don't.

I don't. He does. That's really all the deeper you can go with this one.

My boyfriend (19/m) and i have only been together about 2 months, and he's already suggesting we sleep together, would it be prudish of me if i said no?

4 upvotes · 2 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I mean, he's like a dog that constantly tries humping your leg.

He doesn't turn you on.

He never will. You will never be "ready". You will just eventually give in because it's gotten so long that it would be weird otherwise. Your sex life will be him badgering you, and you occasionally lying very still and waiting for it to be over.

Then you'll get married, fight a lot, have two kids, scream at each other constantly, you'll meet some guy who makes your heart beat fast, and have an affair with him, try to leave your husband for him, but discover he's only interested in a fling.

Either your husband will find out, or you'll just fight more until it's divorce time. Then you'll be a middle aged single mom with two kids, and you'll discover that only desperate losers and ex-jailbirds with missing teeth are willing to date single mothers over 30. You'll complain a lot online and wonder along why men are such irresponsible losers, always dimly aware but never actually admitting that the world is full of awesome men, but they're all staying away from you.

And that's more or less it.

If you can't be passionate about a man, he will resent you for as long as you are together.

Is this forum filled with nerds pretending to be alpha?

4 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

TRP isn't really something I had to "realize" is real and functional. Instead, it's collection of the things that I and a few other guys discovered were real and functional.

There was plenty of stuff that we discarded along the way because it didn't work so well, or because other stuff worked better.

But there was a sort of transformation from confidence to certainty, of a slightly different manner. See, I wrote all this stuff because it worked in my life. And when I let details of my life slip in one or another of my articles, people call me a liar, because they can't believe it isn't fantasy fiction.

But did that mean the models, the theories, were correct, or at least workable? Maybe it was the practice. Maybe it was just me... I'm not exactly ugly or shy.

What clinched it was the fanmail. When I started teaching young guys this stuff, they very quickly started writing thank you letters. Some of them were... embarrassing. I mean, when multiple people tell you they would have killed themselves if not for you... what do you do with that? How do you even respond?

But the point is it worked for them. Quickly.

It wasn't just me. It wasn't just the practice. It wasn't just the confidence. It wasn't just lifting and good looks. It wasn't just persistence until random success. It worked for everyone.

All men had to do was not smell bad, be around women, and understand how they think, and they get laid. If they worked on themselves, they could become men of abundance, and others would envy them.

Then the men I taught started teaching others, and it worked for them, too.

Men are smart. Men are strong. Men can win at life. Even the ones who look like losers right now are failing, not because they suck, but because they are taught wrong. When they know, they can do.

Best tactics for the anti-slut defense

4 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Pushing on ASD makes it stronger. Instead, partially withdraw your attention and make her chase you to get it back.

The "I love you"

4 upvotes · 24 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Girls who love you don't play games with who's going to say it first. That's for girls who are more in love with the idea of being in love than with you.

You, however, sometimes have to wait. Not for the sake of your ego, which would be silly. But because you have to maintain the upper hand to keep her attraction high.

That Awkward Moment When You Have to Lie in the Bed You've Made

4 upvotes · 23 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Locating logical flaws in female thinking is like finding a needle in a giant stack of needles.

The question we have to ask ourselves is what will happen with female-appearing sex robots?

Well, human beings are hardwired to be protective of women. This supersedes things like logical thinking. And, while a sex robot isn't a woman, and never will be, the whole point is for it to look and act like a woman.

And once it passes a certain threshold of resemblance, people will feel protective of it, regardless of whether this makes sense or not, because people are slaves to their instincts.

Pushing in the other direction will be a certain amount of economic pressure. Consider the porn industry, and the intensity of the demand for its product.

It will be interesting to watch the struggle between politicized human instinct and economic realpolitik.

ISIS and Female Agency

4 upvotes · 23 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Muslim" is not a race.

Let's talk about actually finding someone right for you.

4 upvotes · 22 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is, I'll admit, a selfish desire to find out more about where to look for someone I want that also wants me.

Become the kind of man women want. Then look anywhere.

Couldn't F close, want to know why specifically

4 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Is there a reason I couldn't f close?

...

I try and advance and her ASD was acting up or something and she didn't want to do it.

Did you never read about how to do a freeze out?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

4 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We don't say "all men are like this", because we don't say anything about men. We're not trying to seduce men. There may very well be some "this" that all men are like. We just don't care.

By the same token, we don't care about lesbians... at least about the ones with no interest in dudes. Asexuals likewise.

How do you ladies deal with the beta orbiters?

4 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't have them.

Creating orbiters is an active process. If you don't hit up men who unilaterally desire you for attention, favours, or goodies, you won't have orbiters.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

4 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

https://youtu.be/Y3lPhq0Ky_M?t=30

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

4 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

All of this may be true, but what does it have to do with "How get laid?" ?

Girl I'm developing kind of an LTR with says she will hang out with another guy--how to respond?

4 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

What the fuck is wrong with you?

Have you not read the Bitch Management Hierarchy? You promote girls for being good to you, not for playing bullshit head games.

The sudden "Why?" shittest

4 upvotes · 7 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Give nonsense answers.

"Because you touch yourself at night when you think Jesus can't see."

"Because light moves faster in a vacuum than in water."

"Because the great spider queen decrees it so."

CMV: Too many manospherians conflate femininity with cultural decadence

4 upvotes · 7 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Redpill does NOT really have much of a space for the kind of feminine power I'm talking about: the stern Merkel mommies and similar figures who are regularly required to sop up the mess the more reckless forces in our culture create.

Your sexual fantasies are perfectly okay, but they are not very interesting to the rest of us. Continue in private, please.

Something RP and BP should agree on; childfree is the way to go.

4 upvotes · 30 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's dumb.

Having kids is a primary drive. You don't have them in order to achieve some other goal... you have them because they are the goal.

You either have the urge or you don't. No one is ever going to convince anyone to switch.

I don't have interest in the majority of girls. Is it a problem?

4 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Well, yes, I am. But we're not here to talk about me.

We're here to excise this pathological idea you have that male quality "deserves" attractive women.

"Deserve" means "should get". And "should" means "I want".

Which means that the notion of "deserve" is a dangerous trap to fall into, because you're polluting the TRP notion of seduction skills and attractiveness with idealism. When you believe certain men "deserve" women, then you are essentially expressing an opinion about what women should want.

Which tends to dissuade you from paying strict attention to what women do want, whether we happen to like that or not.

So, the question to ask is not:

What makes you think you deserve it?

but

How exactly do you plan to get it?

A mans natural desire to have as many attractive women as possible

4 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

A woman's natural hypergamy is dangerous to a monogamous relationship

Not necessarily.

Hooking up after a break up

4 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

my friends said he will never do as good as me

This means nothing. It is a mouth noise girls make to other girls after a breakup so that they can sound like nice, supportive, caring people.

Women do not tell each other the truth. They lie in order to sound nice.

The fact, you feel bad because you found out that he could have another you in about a week. You feel bad because you found out you aren't all that special after all.

You have two choices now. You can either seek out people who will lie to you and soothe your bruised ego, or you can leave the past in the past, work on yourself until you actually become harder than that to replace (rather than simply telling yourself about how "beautiful, kind, and smart" you are.

This choice will determine your destiny.

How to date in the modern world?

4 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You need to realize that high-functioning autism is a disability for you to overcome, not a set of special needs that magically become obligations in others. Men don't owe you shit.

I realize that your disability gives you the urge to spell everything out in explicit, up-front conversation, and to set "ground rules" so that you know what to expect. You need to start combating this urge, because the men you are dating do not work this way, and they are not supposed to.

In a date, everything is on the table. Sex is on the table if they can make you want it. A relationship is on the table if you can make them want it.

By stating your desires up front, in literally language, and telling them, as you no doubt have, that their desires are off the table until and unless you get what you want first, you are attempting to subvert the natural, non-literal negotiation process in a way that benefits you.

Men are not keen on this. Frankly, if a man, speaking in r/asktrp, described this behaviour in a woman and asked what to do, my answer would be "find another woman".

It is up to you to appeal to men, and your special challenges do not lower that bar... they just mean you have more work to do. Because appealing to men means interacting them in ways they find appealing. If you argue, literally, that you have special needs they must accommodate, then they will think (and rightly so) "If she's this demanding on the first date, how will she be later?".

There is no difference, from anyone else's perspective, between "I need" and "I want". Neither one creates an obligation in others.

LTR of 5 years about to dump me. How to react?

4 upvotes · 13 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is no point in having this conversation. You know the outcome. Don't bother showing up. Ghost.

Get on with your life.

Meet women who want to fuck you.

Do you have a strong desire to be overpowered by a man?

4 upvotes · 7 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I've heard that in the BDSM community

The "BDSM community" should not be confused with "people who do BDSM". This would be like confusing the "swinger community" with "the totality of people who enjoy sex", or "a bunch of trannies in the tenderloin district" with "every homosexual man everywhere".

The vast majority of people who do BDSM stuff do with partners they met the same way everyone else does, and these people tend to think that people who make a public identity out of their sexual practices as a neurotic freakshow.

If you are meeting outside of the bounds of a community or warnings aren't given, it's risky all around.

It's less risky... because you aren't hooking up with some rando you met in sex community. You're having sex with someone you know, the same way that every healthy person does: meet them, get to know them, have sex with them. Any woman who isn't socially retarded doesn't use a sex community to tell who's sketchy before having sex with them. She does that herself, by getting to know men before having sex with them, and by not selecting her men from "hookups r us".

Male dominance in the area of sex and mating is the default way that humans are wired. There's no reason to form a community for that, any more than there's a reason to form a "league of human voters" or a "right-handed plumber's society".

Why are tattoos seen as a red flag?

4 upvotes · 4 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

You're looking at this wrong.

You don't reach conclusions by logicking them out. You reach them by observation. We have observed that women with tats are usually damaged goods.

My limit for tattoos is one. And it has to say "Property of {Whisper's real name}".

I cheated on my boyfriend with my ex, he forgave me and i can't respect him...I need advice?

4 upvotes · 20 December 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I tried to avoid talking to him but he persist, he told me he loved me and i told him to go away and I started crying. He still persist and said he just want to talk. He started touching me and i could not resist him.

You didn't trip and fall onto his dick. You cheated. You did it. On purpose.

This relationship is over. Not because you cheated, but because of why you cheated. You are an alpha widow. You still desire your ex. His cheating did nothing to kill your desire for him.

You need to understand that male and female cheating are different. A cheating husband is infuriating, but still attractive... in fact, more attractive. A cheating wife is infuriating and unattractive.

You need to either accept it, get back with your ex, and accept that keeping him interested enough to limit his cheating is up you, or dissociate yourself from both of them and stay single until you find a man you're just as attracted to who is less inclined to cheat.

There's no sense fussing about the double standard, because women created it. You helped. You effectively forgave him by staying attracted to him. That's what matters. You can either accept that, or gtfo the whole situation.

Why do women purposefully lie to men about what they are attracted to ?

4 upvotes · 20 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Because it never occurs to them to tell the truth.

For men, language is a tool for conveying information... and sometimes they decide to convey false information.

For women, language is for influencing what others believe... and sometimes the desired belief happens to align with the truth.

Gf plans to meet her ex next week. Best course of procedure due to holidays?

4 upvotes · 14 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why would you care what your ex-gf's parents think?

What's so wrong with being introverted?

4 upvotes · 13 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Absolutely nothing is wrong with it. We're teach masculinity and seduction skills here, not how to be a fucking stage magician or car salesman.

Just avoid loud, crowded environments, game girls one on one, and ditch your feelings of inferiority.

Hypergamy is Monogamy

4 upvotes · 11 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The majority of men simply aren't high-tier, and not only don't have the confidence, frame solidity, and cleverness to inspire obedience, they even more importantly do not have the initiative and will to realize they don't, and then go learn to have those things.

This might be a problem for monogynous societies, but it isn't a problem for TRP... because we are recipes for fixing individual dudes, not nations or cultures.

That being said, convincing a woman that you are a "good man" is not universally useless. Women have (or do not have) two separate types of trust in men: trust in intentions, and trust in competence.

In a culture like ours, where women are heavily the preferred sex, and men are widely denigrated, a man's task in making himself attractive is mostly inspiring trust in competence. Under circumstances where men are given more default credit for competence, intentions because somewhat less insignificant.

In fact, in societies where the workplace isn't cluttered up with women playing career, being a good provider actually can be attractive, not because women need one (attraction cannot be negotiated), but because the ability to do so is proof of competence that exceeds hers.

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

4 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm just going to give up.

Of course you are.

You're turning in circles and I feel like someone trying to have a discussion about elephants with someone who doesn't even know what an elephant is.

Yet here you are.

Still, it's concerning that people like you have traction in this movement.

You don't actually know what "Vanguard" means in this context, do you? We founded the group. There's about twelve of us. So, yeah, you could call that "traction", but if we disagree on what TRP is about, then it's because you don't understand what I defined it to be in the first place.

You keep calling TRP a "movement". You don't get it. It's not a movement. We are not TRP brothers, you and I. We are not on a crusade together. There is no great journey. TRP does not seek to change the world or accomplish any great goal or feat.

TRP is a junkyard. It is a heap of deliberately-unorganized cogs, springs, wires, and scrap steel, which is here for you to construct a machine to unfuck your life. The fact that most of the work has been left for you to do was one of our major design goals from the beginning.

Some young bros here are always going to be tempted to look for someone else to construct the machine for them, or least provide them with a set of blueprints, whether that someone is Hitler or Marx or Foucault or Schopenhauer or Buddha or Jesus. But that never works, because it is the process of designing and constructing the machine that performs transformative magic, not the end result.

TRP is not a movement in the same way that barbells are not muscle fibers. You have to lift. TRP is here for you to have your movement... a crusade consisting solely of you and whatever network you build, towards whatever goal and meaning you choose.

You could, perhaps, choose to regard philosophy the same way, but you don't, and neither do philosophers. Instead, you have stuck your head in a bucket, and are busily trying to convince me that within the bucket is a vastly profound transformative experience. But what you forget is that I don't just have to take your word for it... I am also watching what you do.

You claim to have been enlightened by sticking your head in this bucket, but what profound transformation happened to you afterwards? Where are you now? What are you doing?

Well, you are here, arguing with me, with a bucket on your head. And losing.

If that is where philosophy leads, include me out.

Bunch of women describing red pill teachings without realizing when asked how they feel about casual sex

4 upvotes · 9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, so now we know why you're here. You suffer from "feelings of inferiority around around masculinity", and you have a voice inside your calling you a "failure of a man". Listening to the particular insults people choose to hurl is always so instructive about the nature of the source.

We also know that I found your insecurities with that bit about the Skinner box and upgraded apes, which is why you are clumsily fumbling in the dark for mine.

But you misunderstand the purpose of that remark. It wasn't to humiliate you. I neither need nor want to humiliate you. It was to help you see yourself. It was to help you understand that philosophy is a security blanket you do not need, or someday will not.

You don't have to grapple with the "problem" of "meaning", and then pat yourself on the back for your "intellectual courage" and "nobility". It's not necessary. Because a philosopher telling you that you need philosophy to "save" you from the problem of meaning is like a Christian telling you that you need Christ to "save" you from sin.

They are selling you the solution to a problem that they themselves made up in first place.

Lack of meaning isn't a problem you were "dealt for being born". It's a problem you made for yourself, with your own projection of ego-needs onto the concept of your role in the universe (hint: you're here by accident, and you don't have one).

Meaning is a personal question, not a universal one. If you need some (which I'm not convinced you necessarily do), then stop wandering around searching, and start building some where you are.

Who are you? What do you want? What do you like? What fulfills you?

Marx isn't gonna do that for you. Even if he hadn't been an incompetent buffoon, he still knew jack shit about you. You're not going to find yourself in a book... unless you at some point stop reading and write one.

The Truth About Single Moms Who Bring Young Children To The Dating Market

4 upvotes · 7 December 2018 · /r/WhereAreAllTheGoodMen

As I said before, the contention is that the juice is not worth the squeeze. So there's no need to explain quite so verbosely.

What I would like YOU to understand is that when I talk of woman-management techniques, I do not speak of means to manage a woman at all, but, more strictly, of means to do so whereby the investment generates a positive return.

So, saying that a cost-benefit analysis would imply rejecting women altogether is essentially saying that net-gain woman management techniques do not exist. Which brings us back to the conclusion of my previous comment, but with additional hope that you now understand me fully.

We share the mutual understanding that there exist well-thought-out strategies for control of a woman's behaviour in an LTR. We disagree on whether these are effective enough to merit putting them in practice. What I am asking is why none of the experts at these techniques ever seem to give up and say, "These just don't work well enough".

Instead, the statement that they do not work well enough seems to be made mostly by those who have heard about them, read the instructions, and not tried putting the bookshelves together. There is a world of difference between the statement that "woman management strategies aren't worth it" and the statement "it's not worth it TO ME to practice woman management"... because the latter, while it can simply be an expression of personal choice, also raises the possibility that there is some personal inadequacy going on. Any statement to this effect seems to send the MGTOW community into an offended sulk.

The sentiment that TRP tactics are not worth it for anyone, regardless of motivation or skill, seems to be a means to pre-empting any possible criticism, rather than a soberly considered sentiment.

While TRP doesn't advise marriage, it does so not on the grounds that it constitutes some arbitrary level of "too much" risk, but rather that it offers any nonzero amount of risk for no additional gain over having a girlfriend or three. Since the role of "wife" carries no actual duties, you can get from an LTR anything you could get from a wife.

However, attempting to draw the same sort of hard boundary before LTRs, or even before sex, seems kind of like an arbitrary generalization of personal priorities. And when a man insists that everyone share his tastes, then we begin to suspect he has some hidden reason to not want to take personal responsibility for them.

Not mention, what on earth do you guys do about sex drive? Jerk off a lot? Just not miss it that much because your testosterone is low? Take vows and join the Catholic church?

Commodity Fetishism

4 upvotes · 7 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The whole reason we have GLO around is to say crazy shit and stir up interesting conversations. The occasional collectivist noise is just part of the wacky fun.

That's also the reason we tagged him "Jester".

While the word "fool" may have been avoided here because of its modern negative connotations, the very real and important role of the court fool was threefold: to act the fool, to promote foolishness, and to fool people. To be stupid so people can laugh at him, to act silly and encourage others to play, and to be smart and play tricks on people.

The fool is both the comedian and the joke, sometimes alternately, and sometimes both at once. The purpose of his foolishness, foolery, and fooling is also threefold: to make people laugh, to make people feel, and to make people think. The fool generates both foolishness and wisdom, and it's up to the listener to sort out which is which, not only because the fool doesn't necessarily know himself, but also because sorting the difference is good for you.

In other words, you are reading GLO comments like legal briefs. Read them like poetry instead.

The Truth About Single Moms Who Bring Young Children To The Dating Market

4 upvotes · 6 December 2018 · /r/WhereAreAllTheGoodMen

Postmodern discourse. The identity of the speaker is irrelevant to the content of the message.

Let's try to keep our eye on the ball. You have a claim: "MGTOW are deliberately choosing celibacy because having women is too troublesome, not because getting women is too difficult."

I do not have a claim. What I have is a question. "Why haven't we seen anyone successfully spin plates, then stop and go MGTOW?"

So all your stuff about false premises and what I supposedly think is irrelevant. It's not important what I think. It's only important what I asked.

The only salient part of your response was the link. I thank you for providing it, because it is not only on-point, but provides me with excellent material for a followup to this article.

So, assuming the third-hand account is truthful at least in so far as there is a real author of it out there, who was speaking of his real experiences, and saying things that, correct or not, he truly believed... then we have one example of a man who is at the very least, capable of spinning plates, who went asexual because the positives of doing so did not outweigh the negatives.

Now, I could move the goalposts and ask, okay, but why so few? And that would be sort of fair... an isolated counterexample does not refute a trend. But then you could simply ask, "how many trees do you need to see before you agree there's a forest?", and I would say "It's gotta be more than one.", and you would go about trying to find trees to point at, and we'd argue fruitlessly about the definition of "forest".

That's worthless. Allow me instead to probe further in a different direction. I'd like to focus on two interesting things our anonymous allegedly-stud said:

Drama and fighting with chad relationships is par for the course.

and

Happy stable relationships haven't been possible for a long time.

I think this gets back to the core of the rather wide gap between something like TRP, and what MGTOW has come to mean (it used to simply mean not letting women's goals define your life, now it means "don't have sex with women, either").

MGTOW do not believe that women can be managed to make association with them a net positive. TRP alleges that it provides instructions for doing precisely that. The sum of these two things imply that MGTOW must, by implication, believe that these instructions do not work, because if they do, MGTOW's core belief must be wrong.

So, a more useful way of phrasing my question, which gets away from the inflammatory and subjective issue of whether MGTOW are "losers", is:

If woman-management techniques do not work, we would expect to see a great many practitioners of them give up and go MGTOW. Have we in fact, seen this?

I will not insult your intelligence by pretending I don't have a hypothesis. Obviously, I believe the answer is "no".

Is it bad if i like persuing men?

4 upvotes · 25 November 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Alright, that is quite enough from you.

You are incompetent, you give bad advice, and you are hurting other women. And I am tired of having to undo the damage.

/u/luckylittlestar , let's put her in read only mode for a significant period.

If a girl asks why i do something do i just ignore it? she asked me why i wanted a sexy picture of her after she sent it to me

4 upvotes · 22 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

When in doubt, give a flippant answer. Also, when not in doubt, give a flippant answer.

"I'm selling them on the black market."

Whisper's Comprehensive Guide to the Shit Test

4 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I am the wrong kind of engineer to be involved with the building of websites. Please raise this issue with /u/redpillschool .

Status of the Appeal 10/11

4 upvotes · 14 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Relying upon "muh roads" as an argument for socialism is so overplayed it's an ancap meme.

Were there roads before there were income taxes? What percentage of US state and federal budgets does road work constitute? Do socialists tax enough to build roads, and then stop?

Do you think it is possible for a guy and a girl to be friends without one or both of them ever having any romantic or sexual thoughts/desires towards the other person?

4 upvotes · 14 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Sure. They could both be gay.

FAQ: Should we move in together

4 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I've never seen it work with men who have abundance (the mindset, not about status/money), so I think this advice about withholding "milk" is to help women avoid over-investing in men of abundance who would laugh and leave, instead of submit to marriage and domestication.

Submit to marriage and domestication is right.

There are two types of men who get married... men of scarcity who submit to domestication because the Great Keeper of the Golden Vag demands it, and men of abundance who want to reward a girl who has been amazing, and they have no doubts about keeping around permanently.

I'm not really interested in talking about the first category here, because there's no strategy involved. Want loyalty at any price? Date some dorky loser. Hell, ride the CC first. Have another man's kid. Then declare yourself a born-again virgin and save it for marriage. Thirsty guys will go for anything. The only drawback is you have to be married to him, and eventually you're gonna cheat. You aimed too low.

RPW strategy is about the second category... how do you get commitment from a man of abundance? Well, withholding the "milk" ain't gonna do shit except convince him that you aren't a good exclusive source to commit to. Milk is cheap.

Staring to feel unattractive because of his disinterest. What's a girl to do?

4 upvotes · 5 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Recently, he told me he just "hasn't been feeling very masculine". But I don't think low T is a possibility.

What? The only reason to say this is because you have blood test results.

Since you haven't said "I have blood test results", we know you don't have blood test results.

Get blood test results.

Field Report: My unethical way of fucking models - I'm eventually going to hell

4 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think that with the fact that TRP is currently quarantined, this kind of post should be made.

I do.

I ain't changing shit. I thought about writing a tongue-in-cheek "How to Get Away with Rape" article just to make u/spez's skinny ass take a bite out of the chair, but, funny as that is, fuck it. These people aren't worth our time and energy because they fundamentally don't get it.

They were raised wrong and have no idea why their ideas about forcing people to be polite are literally the bane of civilization. They think that if someone sees or hears something that upsets them, it is fundamentally a problem, rather than "just some ordinary everyday shit happening".

And you can't disabuse them of this notion, because any contradiction of it... upsets them. Disordered thinking tends to prevent people from realizing that their thinking is disordered.

There's no point in trying to appease them, because they don't draw a distinction between "How to Rape Bitches", and "Why Women Don't Really Act Like Adults", or even "Men Are People, and Have a Right to Take Care of Themselves". All of those things fall into the same category for them, which is "offensive". This, of course, means "offends me", because they have trouble telling the difference between themselves and the universe.

So, unless you agree with them totally and in every respect, they will eventually do everything they can to shut you up. They consider it a moral imperative.

What you do instead is just ignore them, do what you're gonna do, and if they take away a resource, provide an alternative yourself. If they scold you, laugh at them. If they physically come after you (which they fantasize about doing, but usually aren't brave enough), well, you have guns and they don't.

Remember that everything socialists do eventually backfires on them. It's the basic nature of collectivist philosophies. So you don't have to defeat them. All you have to do is stay afloat, not compromise your principles, and wait for them to defeat themselves.

How Many Women?

4 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is the same sort of jackass who gets mad at buskers for passing the hat. Probably still that phase of life where mommy and daddy are paying for tuition, rent, and groceries.

I swear sometimes you and I should just shut down the whole thing and start teaching thousand-dollars-a-head seminars for beta herbs, not because I need the money, but because people who have paid for something will be incentivized to fucking listen.

If /u/sorry_mommy is so afraid of being exploited that he's triggered just by seeing a tip jar on the counter, then he is going to have some serious work to do to shed his loser mindset.

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

4 upvotes · 30 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Feel free to go elsewhere.

Ended it with a girl a while back, just want some opinions.

4 upvotes · 24 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

I know that this is oneitis

So go fuck some other women.

You got it the same way. You cure it the same way.

Am I Even RedPilled?

4 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

The proper notation would not so much be "no idea" as "no skills".

See, before men give advice in RPW, we expect them to be able to put into practice what they have learned here, not just understand the theory. So if you get into it with the (female) mod team, it's a failure of game. And you don't have good game, you're not ready to give TRP advice to women.

That's why you got banned from RPW.

You got banned from TRP for progressing to a full-blown meltdown. This is the precise opposite of things like agree and amplify, amused mastery, outcome independence, abundance mentality, all these other things we teach. If you get banned, and have a meltdown in modmail, that shows us that you fundamentally don't get it.

We reverse bans all the time. Not because someone is super humble and contrite, but because someone shows us by how they talk to us that they fundamentally get what we are talking about, and can handle life's little shit tests without losing it.

If you try to go to war with the mod team, it reveals deep seated insecurity and fear, because you need the interaction to go a certain way, because you get all upset if it doesn't.

Women consider the source very heavily when deciding whether to believe what they hear. The same is true of /u/pearlsandstilettos and /u/luckylittlestar, because they, too, are women. What else would you expect? And you say, "well, women are irrational that way", then you fundamentally don't get it. Universal female nature is the terrain, and we do not judge the terrain.

If a woman trusts a man, then she will very seriously consider, and often believe, what he has to say, even if it sounds shocking and horrific to the casual ear. If she doesn't trust him, then he can't tell her anything. Female trust consists of two elements, basic trust in intentions (he is not actively trying to hurt her), and trust in competence (he knows what he is doing, and he is not going to lose control of himself).

Nothing simultaneously terrifies and disgusts a woman more than a man who is out of control of his own actions.

When you pitched a fit in modmail, the female team reacted with revulsion, and they were right to do so. You not only disgusted them, but you also showed that you would disgust all their readers, and that you didn't understand how to talk to women, therefore your advice would probably be no good.

The reason I'm not banning this new account right away (I usually would), is that this is a teaching moment. This an opportunity for you, and others like you, to realize that just having read a bunch of stuff and understood it does not mean you have it on lockdown.

Turn off the computer and go talk to some girls.

Am I Even RedPilled?

4 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

{oops}

What do you personally consider to be "a lot" in terms of N-count, and why?

4 upvotes · 19 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A woman's n-count is the number of times she has been dumped. Divide it by her adult years and you get frequency. Invert that and you get average relationship length.

That gives you the average amount of time before a dude gets sick of her.

Also relevant is variance.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

4 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed.

If Linus had quietly worked on his social skills from the beginning, rather than engaging in the nerd defense mechanism of acting like they only matter to the common masses of nontechnical ape-people, he could have avoided creating this kind of public opening for them to pounce on.

As you and I both well know, the use of both kindly and abusive language is a fine art, and cultivating TRP, we have to use both, and know when each is necessary.

Inappropriate use of kindly tone populates a space with useless people who should have been driven out.

Inappropriate use of a harsh tone not only drives out potentially useful resources, it leads to a backlash that ends up restricting the tool itself.

A good sergeant isn't a good sergeant because he screams at soldiers, but because he knows exactly when to do so.

I had noticed long ago that Linus doesn't.

How do you deal with dominant girls?

4 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

I don't. Not my kink, plenty of fish in the ocean.

New to a workplace where It's all women. I'm still learning and they all give me orders and talk to me in this dumber-down tone. It frustrates me but I need to learn. What do?

4 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Never report to a woman. Women cannot lead for shit.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

4 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't let fear of SJWs prevent you from improving your interactions with ordinary, sane, useful human beings.

No one who matters cares if you piss off people who use words like "mansplaining". In fact, I recommend you do so recreationally. It doesn't matter how much you piss them off, because they are essentially useless.

But other people have useful skills, like kernel development, or shooting mujahadeen in the face.

Don't get so hung up "I must not back down from SJW shaming tactics and fake morality" that you start extending that to "I must not change course based on other people's input, ever".

Men will be men?

4 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're welcome.

Women often want to "legitimize" their feelings before talking about them, or when talking about them, because they think they can't speak unless they are "in the right". (Because in the People's Socialist Republik, all territory is shared, and everyone has to agree.)

But men don't care about the "legitimacy" of your feelings at all, and trying to act like you're "in the right" comes across as pushy. They are perfectly willing to listen to your feelings even if they aren't "legitimized" and you have no right to demand anything. You can have totally irrational and want shit you have no right to at all, and we're still perfectly willing to listen so long as you don't demand stuff.

Because in the Anarcho-Capitalist Confederation, your feelings are your business and you don't need anyone's permission to have them. Then when you talk about them to him, they become his business, too, because you invited him to comment. (Anyone can invite people to their territory.)

In fact, trying to convince him you are "in the right" often offends, because that's telling him what to think.

As another example, it would have been an act of aggression, under male rules, for me to simply comment on your feelings and say you were afraid, because that would be your business and not mine. But by asking the abstract question, then bringing up your individual situation, then talking to me about your feelings, you invited me into that territory. This makes it acceptable and not an act of aggression for me to voice my opinion.

This is why males will sometimes pontificate at great lengths and other times just grunt and go back to what they are doing.

These concepts of absolute rule of one's own territory, respect for the territory of others, and invitation to enter territory rule all male social interactions.

If you watch men while thinking about the question of what is the territory, who owns it, and who has been invited or not invited to enter, it can open up whole new insights into how male behaviour works.

Not having children vs. not having grand children

4 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

People don't eat to avoid dying of starvation, they don't have sex to have children, and they don't have children to propagate their genes.

They do all these things because evolution instilled them with an instinctive urge to do so. The "reason" evolution did that doesn't matter, because evolution being an actor, with a reason for acting, is just a metaphor. There is no real purposeful action there.

If you want kids, have them. You're scratching an itch.

If you don't want kids, don't have them. No itch, no scratch.

Who/what exactly are red pill women?

4 upvotes · 9 September 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have a great idea! Let's figure them out by talking about them instead of to them. That'll clear up everything.

How to bring up topic of waiting for sex without sounding like you're asking to define the relationship?

4 upvotes · 7 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't bring up the topic of waiting for sex.

Do. Or do not.

What is the best response to "Why aren't you paying for my meal? Are you not a gentleman?"

4 upvotes · 6 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Don't want you to feel like you owe me anything."

"Ooog spear mammoth for woman. This not mammoth."

"You thought I was a gentleman? Heh heh. That's a good one."

"Nope."

"If I buy you something now, it will cheapen the whole experience of sodomy later."

"On the first date? Well, ah nevah! What kind of girl do you think ah am?"

Please Help. Made my Boyfriend Cry Today.

4 upvotes · 4 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Today, I took issue with the language, "I'll marry you if that's what makes you happy."

Secretly, I also freaked out because I realized I might not have a big wedding like some of my family and friends.

I told my boyfriend that saying he wanted to get married to me "if that's what makes me happy" wasn't enough for me.

Oh, my goodness! Is the princess in danger of not getting her Special Princess Moment?

Thank you for providing me more evidence for my next article advising men against ever getting married.

Am I an "alpha-widow"? What can I do?

4 upvotes · 1 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Eddie Murphy.

Do you ever feel guilty or regret a ONS?

4 upvotes · 28 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

How many times do I have to say it?

Relationships are her responsibility, not yours.

How do you guys handle STDs?

4 upvotes · 16 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you want to avoid property crimes, don't live in the 'hood.

If you want to avoid violent confrontations, don't go to the 'hood.

If you want to avoid STDs, don't have sex with the 'hood.

All the "safer sex" people who endlessly "educate" you about condoms don't want to talk about this, because it's "racist", but so what? Everyone knows some neighborhoods are safer than others, and they know why, and they all act accordingly. They just don't talk about it.

Well, it's the same for STDs, so do the same. White and asian girls, no mudsharks, no hoodrats, no junkies, no trailer trash.

The Myth of the Alpha Female

4 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You raise a valid point... the process of how a writer writes about sexual dynamics should demonstrate an understanding of it just as much as the content does.

Women are generally feel submissive to men, and feel a pressure to submit to men's frame of reference when men speak authoritatively. But when that reaction is coupled with the trepidation that women feel around a completely unfamiliar man who may or may not be protective of them, this produces a great deal of discomfort, which tends to close the ears.

When a man speaks to men, he is raising a possibility for consideration, intended to invoke rather than suppress the critical faculties of the listener.

When a woman speaks to women, she is creating a personal interaction, and indeed a personal relationship, between the speaker and the listener, which inherently requests a lowering of barriers of skepticism or indifference.

Thus the first, when addressed to the second, feels like a demand for intimacy without the requisite establishment of trust.

I still have a strong desire to fall in love with someone forever

4 upvotes · 6 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

This desire is stupid and futile precisely because men have no control over whether this will happen or not.

Getting emotional investment from a man is a girl's job, not a man's job. Thus, in the same way that a girl has no control over whether the men she meets are sex-worthy, men have no control over whether the girls they meet are relationship-worthy.

"It's kinda sick how much joy I get out of being cruel to old white men" - the new NYT editor everybody...

4 upvotes · 2 August 2018 · /r/MensRights

If old white men had said that about South Korea, she and her entire family would be starving under communist rule right now.

How can a woman determine her own SMV without riding the cock carousel and becoming jaded?

4 upvotes · 2 August 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Unsolicited male attention measures looks.

Male approval on repeated social contact measures femininity.

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

4 upvotes · 31 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So what are your plans for that?

[Q4AI] Why is your pill the best?

4 upvotes · 16 July 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It isn't. The blue pill is far better, and I highly recommend it. Tell girls how deeply you care about them, ask permission before every move you make, treat them not just with respect but with adulation, agree with everything they say, and regale them with long soliloquies about what an ardent feminist ally you are.

In the unlikely event that this doesn't cause them to be consumed with passion for you, remember that virtue is its own reward, and regardless of what happens in your life, you will always be the nicer guy.

Confused about negativity towards TRP

4 upvotes · 13 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

The Big Short is Adam McKay and Hollywood's attempt to sell socialism. Almost everything in the film is true except for one glaring omission: the Community Reinvestment Act.

Why would all those big banks suddenly make loans to people incapable of repaying them? Are they stupid, or was someone twisting their arm?

And what do you do when a state bureaucrat forces you at gunpoint to buy a shitty investment? Just what the banks did... obfuscate it as much as possible, and try to sell it as fast as possible.

Socialists will always fuck things up using the power of government, then demand we give government more power because things are fucked up.

The Manual. Do you agree with it ?

4 upvotes · 12 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

This did not make any sense really.

That's a shame. Let's try a different approach to see if it will sink in.

You are quoting books directly to me, and asking which is correct. This is you asking me what to think. If you want to be successful, stop asking me what to think and ask me how to think.

Not "which of these is correct?" but "how do I figure out which type of approach works for me?". Not "what should I believe?", but "how should I decide what to believe?".

Why're you so rude all the time?

4 upvotes · 11 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

- Not all the time. Just to you.
- I was raised by wolves.
- It's part of my beautiful and unique ethnic heritage.
- {2 day silence} Gaaay.
- 'Cuz.
- Image

"Are you having sex with other people?"

4 upvotes · 6 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

"No, right now we're cuddling. Check back in 30."

Advice on how to be organically feminine needed :)

4 upvotes · 4 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't want to feel like I'm losing the essence of myself.

Then don't feel that way.

This kind of thinking is a myth we have to dispel on TRP all the time. It is not your thoughts, but your actions, that define you. You are what you repeatedly do.

Want to be something different?

Do something different.

Every new habit feels abnormal until it becomes an old habit.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

4 upvotes · 2 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm experimenting with ways to induce satori.

I think this one may be a lost cause though. He still thinks we're talking about national socialism.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

4 upvotes · 1 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If I could teach you about the process channel without using it, I would. But I can't. That's a contradiction in terms.

So, why I am trolling you like this? Think hard. What is TRP supposed to be about?

A Beginners Guide To Using Steroids Safely

4 upvotes · 21 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So what you don't understand is how this applies to your situation.

Well, think about it this way.

TRP is about taking a step back from "what everybody knows" and "common sense", and asking "hey, wait a minute, is this really true? Let's observe, and test, and question."

Now, that's focused on stuff about getting laid, but when you make that decision to take the red pill, that can apply to any part of your life if you have the mental discipline to do that.

So, you've probably read a lot of this stuff, started watching the women around you to see if it fits with what you see, and begun trying things yourself to see if they work. You didn't just say "YEAH!", and take it on faith (or, at least, if you get the idea you didn't).

So why are you just repeating the cultural consensus about a different topic (steroids) without having said to yourself... "Wait a minute. If this culture is wrong about women, it can be wrong about other things. I'm going to do some reading."

I'm not criticizing you for disagreeing with me. I'm criticizing you for disagreeing with me based on no theoretical knowledge and no personal experience.

Inform yourself before you form an opinion.

Is it shit test, or that just mean I failed before?

4 upvotes · 17 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Neither.

It means "no".

Next.

Describe women in few words

4 upvotes · 16 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

This why you should probably stop giving a fuck what people think.

My low back hurts after I squat. Any suggestions?

4 upvotes · 14 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Make sure you are looking at the floor.

Feminist Bookstore Closes From Lack of Sales, Blames White Men

4 upvotes · 13 June 2018 · /r/MensRights

The idea of owning land is literally imperialism. Land is just there. It was always there. You didn't build it. How could you possibly own i...

... hey, what are these people doing in my house? I live here, dammit!

Imperialism!

Go Out and Test It.

4 upvotes · 10 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

but the real danger lies in

What do you mean "the real danger"?

There is more than one real danger. It's a complicated universe. There is no article I can write, or framework I can develop, which will save you from the need to develop nuanced thinking.

Plucked from AskTRP

4 upvotes · 9 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In my experience

Well, that's the problem, isn't it?

A woman who has had one relationship has a sample size of one, and she can't sort cause from correlation from coincidence.

A woman who has had many relationships has a track record of failure.

TRP material is very simple to sort out, because men with high counts are successful and know what works, and can teach other men. To generate the theory for women, we have to dig a little deeper because female expertise cannot come solely through personal experience.

What we've learned from looking into the male side of the equation is that what kills desire is not the delay in and of itself, but the belief that the delay is being deliberately imposed. The idea that "playing hard to get" can stoke the flames of desire is mostly a combination of projection and mistaking romantic comedies for examples of male behaviour.

Male indifference tends to increase, or at least not decrease, female desire, because women are constantly surrounded by male sexual desire, to the point where it is often obnoxious or burdensome. Thus, an indifferent male is judged to be confident and high value, and a woman tends to view the act of turning him passionate as a worthwhile and surmountable challenge.

Female indifference, real or feigned, is experienced quite differently by men. Sincere female sexual desire is not ubiquitous for men, even for those who are quite desirable. It's not unattainable for high quality men, but it is always scarce enough to be a measure of success, rather than an imposition.

Thus, men find female indifference irksome or even humiliating, not exciting or endearing.

A good strategy, therefore, when refusing or delaying sex with a man whose interest you want to keep, is to use a logistical obstacle or impediment, rather than displaying a lack of desire (real or feigned).

Tears

4 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Anytime a woman says some form of the verb "to be" to you, just substitute the appropriate form of the verb "to seem" or "to appear".

So when a woman asks you to be honest about your feelings, just parse that as "seem honest about your feelings".

So just talk to them as if you are slightly bummed out at this moment, but you'll get over it because you are a stoic badass.

Do you separate RP authors from their content ?

4 upvotes · 20 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

TRP is about giving you the tools to be successful at your goal.

If you are disillusioned because other people have different goals, there's not much I can do to help you with that.

I can't seem to get commitment before sex

4 upvotes · 8 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

When I try to bring up commitment before sex, they ghost.

That's the talk, dear.

Mate Guarding - Is it always wrong?

4 upvotes · 19 April 2018 · /r/askTRP

In most circumstances mate guarding lowers your value, because if your women were all that into you, they'd mate guard themselves.

The sole exception to this is when they are not able to. Mate guarding them against a physical grab, or some such, is not only fine, it's required, as failure to do so shows cowardice.

Boyfriend doesn't want marriage - how can I approach the subject w him?

4 upvotes · 27 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

he has no reason to not trust me

Has he said that, or are you saying that for him?

can you compromise on marriage?

4 upvotes · 24 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is one of the things I was really hoping to get at with this topic. Maybe women are truly vetting for marriage first and foremost and this doesn't come up. But I know that I was emotionally all in with my husband long before we discussed marriage. I also know that if I had given the man an ultimatum he'd have walked and I wasn't willing to do that.

That is a good point.

There's a big difference between wanting something and trying to inspire a man to offer it, and demanding a thing as a condition of being with you.

"What I want" isn't strategy. It may why you practice strategy, but it isn't strategy. Talking about insisting on marriage isn't learning girl game, in the same way that you don't practice for a race by deciding what your trophy should look like.

Wanting that trophy is fine. It makes perfect sense. But if you want it, you have to figure how you're going to get it... and "gimme or I walk" only works on a certain type of man. Women who are married to this type of man typically get whatever they ask him for, and still aren't very happy.... hmmm.

The biggest obstacle in trying to teach girl game is getting past "gimme". The vast majority of women seem to think that getting something from a man begins and ends with telling him to give it to you. Once you get beyond that first step, it's all very easy. Men are not complicated or demanding. It's very easy to get reciprocity from men. Once you are aware that you must put in effort, it's very easy to figure out what form that effort should take.

I am still searching for a good and reliable way to teach that first step of "yes, you actually have to do something".

Imma tell my Husband that Whisper says BJs on demand aren't required :-P

Oh, like that would make you stop.

Abs With Every Workout? Yes.

4 upvotes · 8 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you want to know what the number one sexiest muscle group on man is, according to women? You know what the fuck it is.

Someone has been listening to what women say, instead of watching what they do.

How I Manage My LTR

4 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

Having a "nice time" on a date: failed strategy

4 upvotes · 3 March 2018 · /r/askTRP

Stop being a 'tard.

Work the techniques like everyone else. It's unnatural until it isn't.

Submissive Behaviour as Strategy

4 upvotes · 1 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah, I know that wishing won't make it so.

And I've been bothered for a while that I have yet to hear a single cogent rebuttal to any of your points.

The only attempts I have heard are:

- You are a big meanie.
- My husband and I are doing just fine.
- We just need to roll back feminism and restore Marriage 1.0.

... to which the respective answers are, "Yes, and?", "That's nice for you.", and "Feminism didn't kill Marriage 1.0, the information economy did".

I could think of any number of solutions that would work, but every real, workable plan has two elements:

- What do you want people to do?
- How do you plan to get them to do it?

Without the second, a plan isn't a plan. It's a wish list.

So what I do is hang around telling men how avoid going down with the ship (don't get married or have kids), and women how to catch the last train out of clusterfuckistan (be a catch, and hope to god that your man didn't listen to my advice for men).

Submissive Behaviour as Strategy

4 upvotes · 1 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

RPW and MRP are an attempt at peace negotiations, which is the best result for everyone.

I disagree.

RPW is a lexicon of tactics for one woman to negotiate a separate peace with one man.

They as a group cannot effectively end the war, because they have zero traction with the people who started it, they are a tiny minority compared to TRP, and they are attempting to negotiate with the defender rather than the aggressor.

Caught husband doing drugs

4 upvotes · 25 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The men produced heroin from their testicles, they'd get a lot more blowjobs.

Chick who ghosted me when there was another guy in the picture hit me up. I know she is just seeking validation and I should ignore her, but I want to bang. What do I do?

4 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Busy right now.

Will be at X on Y. Drop by if u wanna catch up.

{if she shows, run game, smash, then ghost}

Advice for my brother?

4 upvotes · 21 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In addition, women are uniquely unqualified to help her brother directly. He needs the male TRP perspective.

I [23] caught my boyfriend [25] masturbating to pictures of women we know and I don't know how to respond.

4 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Pornography would be normal. But you're right that this isn't.

If he prefers clothed pictures of women he knows to lewder stuff of attractive women he doesn't, he's fantasizing opportunities, not just scenarios.

Worse yet if it was just one particular woman.

The best way to get real information is to ask in a non-confrontational way. If he hasn't done anything yet, you may be able to reel this back in.

Remember that attraction isn't negotiable, voluntary, or consciously controlled. So while you may be hurt, and you should be, this may not be a betrayal yet.

[CMV] Being kind with no reward (AKA "legitimately nice") offers no benefit to one's life.

4 upvotes · 16 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't think you quite understood the nuances of what Dawkins is trying to say. He was talking about why genes exist which code for self-sacrificing behaviour.

It is definitely a benefit to genes to promote unselfish behaviour in individuals. A gene is not an individual. An individual is not a gene.

You are not a player of the evolution game, because evolution only creates subtractively. You are only a square on the board.

How do you LET / GET a man to take care of you?

4 upvotes · 15 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I was sort of expecting a crazy entitled answer based on the language you used in your OP but your expectations seem reasonable.

First, nearly everything you listed falls within the parameters of what I'd consider a normal healthy relationship. I don't even think these are exclusive to a red pill dynamic. It is something that will be more common to a long term relationship or marriage.

It's important to remember that just because your expectations are moderate does not mean they are automatically understood.

Many women don't receive much of what they expect, not because their husband or SO is unwilling, but because they fall prey to the idea that "if he really loved me, I wouldn't have to ask, he should just know".

Casual sex is easy to attain, yet at the same time it is hard to believe guys have casual sex?

4 upvotes · 15 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The most common response is "thatHappened".

Assimilation (the act of changing the facts you accept in order to suit your existing worldview) is less painful than accommodation (the act of changing your worldview to suit a new fact).

The question of whether TRP techniques work is no longer open. Of course they do.

The problem that certain people have is reconciling the feeling they get when they read TRP, with the feelings women apparently get when dudes go out and try this stuff.

Comfort Game in the #MeToo era

4 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

She's reacting to damage to her self-image, not trauma.

She liked the rough sex. If she hadn't, she would have objected immediately, instead of having an orgasm and going into subspace.

However, when the pleasure faded, she had to confront a considerable cognitive dissonance...

"Only sluts do that kinky shit" vs. "I am not a nasty slut"

... unfortunately, when she was doing this, you had gotten up and were gargling or whatever. This is a BDSM rookie mistake. If you had held her for thirty seconds right afterwards, and spoken to her in a normal tone of voice, like what you had done was just normal shit that people do, that would have been it.

Submissive women take their cues for what is acceptable from outside influences. If you had been there and acted like it was normal, she would have decided it was normal. But you were gone and she fell back on stuff she got from other chicks.

So you had to do a whole lot of repair work.

Jesus, dude, even the most self-aware of kinky girls wants a hug after being fucking destroyed... and this girl had probably just found out she was into rough sex two minutes before.

Good job backing it out, but save yourself the bother next time.

Best Response/Comeback For When A Girl Calls You Sexist?

4 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Yep."

Try to lose the weight no matter what he says

4 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Many male desires have been characterized as unacceptable, and many women present the appearance, accurate or not, that they will be "hurt" if men tell the truth.

So sometimes if you want to get at a man's real opinion, you have to trick him.

Don't ask if he likes you better this way, or wants thinner. Don't show him a picture of a woman and ask how she compares to you.

Don't ask him to compare you to anything at all.

Show him pictures of women, all of whom are not you, and ask him which he likes best.

I'm attracting men in better shape than me and not sure how to proceed

4 upvotes · 13 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In which case you really don't belong here.

This is not a subreddit about how to get relationship-free sex, for the same reason that there is no "r/breathing" or "r/chewingfood" subreddit. Any woman can catch a dick, even if she looks like Amy Schumer. The trick to reach the endzone without fumbling it.

Therefore you neither need RPW advice, nor are you qualified to author any. RPW is not a zoo.

How do I maintain frame when I'm not a well liked person?

4 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

If I recall correctly, you just recently received your "knighthood".

What you're going to find, as you give advice to the young dudes, is that you start from the perspective of having your own successful story to share, and your own experience to draw on.

But then, as you help more dudes, the experience of having provided that help begins to weigh more and more heavily, and eventually eclipses even the knowledge you gained from your own journey.

Being a good teacher starts with experience at doing, but it acquires polish through experience at teaching, because then you not only know what must be done, but how to make others understand what must be done.

You will start to see certain patterns recur.

Is my girlfriend crazy?

4 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Think about this.

Here's what she did:

1. Imagine in her mind what you would do if you loved her.
2. Not tell you what she wanted.
3. Get angry at you for not coming to the same conclusion on your own, and then doing what she wanted.

How long do you want to live like this?

Does making men wait for sex leave only desperate betas?

4 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You tell me.

If you chose door #1, then feminism is bullshit. If you choose door #2, then there is nothing morally wrong with TRP.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

4 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

But the fact that some geniuses were laughed at does not imply that all who are laughed at are geniuses. They laughed at Columbus, they laughed at Fulton, they laughed at the Wright brothers. But they also laughed at Bozo the Clown.

Blue Pill Peterson

4 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm going to steal a piece of this for my followup article.

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

4 upvotes · 5 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

And?

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

4 upvotes · 5 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

And you just took the triggering to a whole new level.

How do pimps or porn directors turn "normal girls" who don't even drink into pornsters or prostitutes?

4 upvotes · 3 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

There are no good girls and there are no whores. There are only girls.

Girls are submissive. They look to others for their values.

Get her looking to you, she's whatever you tell her to be.

Open relationship, stupid idea?

4 upvotes · 2 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the biggest issues with opening a relationship is that NSA sex is much easier to get for women than it is for men.

In most cases, this ends up amounting to the woman having a "hall pass" while the man effectively does not, because he is unable to offer what most women want as part of a sexual relationship... some kind of emotional involvement.

This blows up the relationship, because male jealousy is much more hardwired in than female jealousy.

I refuse to say "Don't go through with this", because the red pill is not one-size-fits-all. So let's look at why you want to do this:

And lately we've been talking about it as an actual option. He says he would want to try it out. I asked if this was a matter of him being unsatisfied or unhappy but he says it absolutely isn't and that I shouldn't worry because he would never stop loving me. I trust him, and I trust us as a couple.

I don't think I would personally want to take advantage of the open relationship. I'm not interested in just sex and I feel like actually dating another man while still being with him would make me very confused.

However, I want him to be happy and fulfilled in life.

It sounds like you are primarily interested in pleasing him, here.

If you really feel like you are willing and able to go there, there's no reason you have to sleep with other men to give him what he wants. If he wants a "hall pass", and you really feel both able, and freely willing, to give him one, then you can simply try that. Say, for a period of a few months to see if you can live like that.

This is a trade-off. Jealousy is very volatile stuff, and other women can bring in their own set of expectations and demands. However, men tend to be highly reciprocal creatures, and receiving that much trust from a woman tends to inspire a good deal of appreciation.

I've seen this work very well indeed, but you must start from a strong foundation.

CMV: Red pill men don't want traditional wives because they don't want to be traditional husbands.

4 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is no evolutionary benefit to individuals, ever.

Evolution is a game played by genes, not people.

New Mod: /u/halitenina

4 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/gaylubeoil is the personification of chaos and outrageous remarks. To make him be a mod, and act impartial, would only cramp his style to the detriment of us all.

A court jester's motley is not simply a manner of dress, it is a uniform and badge of rank, indicating that the bearer is entitled to say anything to anyone, whenever the fuck he pleases.

So, if he is one of the mods (we'll never tell anyone who is a mod, or which mod is who) then he does so under a very different personality indeed.

After doing quite a bit of research, I can definitely relate to a lot of the Red Pill philosophy from my life and what I've seen. But is the bitter anger towards women necessary?

4 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not trying to moralise

I believe you about that. That's why I am troubling to explain at all.

the opportunity to learn the skills to get laid/that give control over their sex lives should already give a hell of a lot of intrinsic motivation aka fuel I would say

Not motivation to learn. Motivation to do what needs to be done. You see, there are two powerful, but not insurmountable, instincts built into human beings that govern relations between the sexes.

Women are inherently submissive: they are wired to instinctively defer to and obey men, as if they were children and men were adults. (This is why feminists are forever railing against any form of female-to-male deference... because the urge is constantly there.)

Men are inherently protective: they are wired to instinctively protect and care for women, as if they were adults and women were children.

Modern sociopolitical orthodoxy has worked for "equality", which is in fact female supremacy, because it means working to suppress the first effect, while leaving the second intact. This creates a situation where women deal with men using a competitive, "me first" strategy, while men are still trying to be cooperative.

Our program works because it partially suppresses the protective instinct, allowing men to reserve expression of it for those women who are proven submissive to them specifically.

A key tool for making this happen is a true, but highly selective, recounting of the selfish and ruthless behaviour that women are capable of... and do frequently engage in (especially those who have most suppressed their submissive instinct). It is only by creating an image in the heads of these young men of women as ruthless soul-eating succubi that we can get them to stop dealing with the average woman in a manner that is far too forthcoming.

When this is accomplished, we can then train these men in how to display calibrated dominance aggression, mostly on the verbal and non-verbal social channels, towards women they interact with. In the modern social environment, this strikes women as a display of almost inhuman mastery and self-assurance (precisely because it is so taboo), but, more importantly, it tends to re-awaken the submissive instinct in those women.

This is because the submissive instinct has been generally suppressed through broad-spectrum cultural propaganda, which works well enough in the absence of any countervailing force, but which cannot survive an individually focused attack from a highly desired man.

This in turn allows that man to dial the protective instinct back up somewhat.

This is the basic red pill dynamic. This is why the red pill works... because it restores the healthy balance of instinctive masculine and feminine behaviour.

It is also why blue pill criticism means less than nothing to us, with its demands that we respect women as if they were adults, while simultaneously protecting them as if they were children.

This is because we are able to see that it is not a reasoned reaction at all... it is simply an expression of the unbridled protective instinct writ large. It is the cortex enslaved to the hindbrain to provide rationalizations for instincts, while the red pill is the rule of the cortex over the hindbrain, expressing governance over when instincts are to be indulged, and when they are to be restrained.

In short, the red pill is medicine for the restoration of natural and healthy balance. The fact that some find it bizarre is simply an expression of how profoundly unnatural and unhealthy their lives have become.

Women Marching Against Themselves

4 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We've heard a lot of positive feedback on that.

Problem is, it's a lot of work for RPS to do that, and we don't want to burn him out. The struggle to keep quality high is very much a war against the Eternal September effect; the more successful we are, the tougher it is to shut up newbs until they learn something.

But we have plans for this; people's approval of the lockdown has NOT gone unnoticed, and we are always learning from the new obstacles life throws our way. We are constantly brainstorming ways to create capitalist meritocracy within the limits imposed by reddit's inherently equalitarian socialist software.

Q4Women: Would you rather have an unattractive man just for yourself or share an attractive man with others?

4 upvotes · 25 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, they will say they prefer an attractive man with exclusivity. Just you watch.

Women are uninterested in hypotheticals because they have no motivation for abstract thinking. They are not interested in working out a set of principles.

When someone asks a question like this, they do not imagine "what would I do?", they imagine "what do I want?"

And the answer always boils down to "more cake".

Question about terms (because debate needs agreed terms): what do you mean when you say 'sexualize'?

4 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Sorry, not buying it.

The fundamental weakness in your argument has been revealed, and suddenly you don't care about all the stuff you were just telling us you cared about.

In the race to give less fucks, you will always lose, because you are the one complaining about fairness to Daddy.

So now it's made clear that not objectifying women has absolutely no benefits for me whatsoever. Which means, in turn, that there must be some benefit to objectifying them.

This, of course, men have known all along, which is why we objectify women in the first place.

A girl might hate this or that particular man objectifying her, but she will never lie down with a man who doesn't objectify her.

Women don't hate pictures being taken of their butts. They love that. They post pictures of their butts on instagram for men to look at. What they hate is to have low-value, loser men looking at pictures of their butts. (Such as the sort of man who photographs women rather than going up and hitting on them.)

See, what you are calling a principled objection to an immoral activity, is really just a visceral revulsion to an unattractive man.

This makes you endorse the wrong fix.

The fix isn't:

1. Don't do that.
2. Treat women with respect.

... because women love that, and hate being treated with respect.

The fix is:

1. Be attractive.
2. Don't be unattractive.

Fortunately for both men and women, this last bit is real advice, because men can change their level of attractiveness with the right discipline and knowledge.

Question about terms (because debate needs agreed terms): what do you mean when you say 'sexualize'?

4 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm actually impressed.

Your ability to subtly get from "this makes me uncomfortable" to "this, that, and the other thing are violations of universal law" is actually pretty accomplished.

You've clearly spent some serious time honing your skill at whining to Daddy that it's not faaaaaaaaaaaaaaiiir.

But what you don't seem to have noticed here is that the Daddy whom you are attempting to appeal to, and the men you are characterizing as miscreants are one and the same.

So your argument boils down to "stop doing/saying/thinking this, or I will call you a big meanie".

To which the only sane response is, go ahead, knock yourself out.

All this shit only works on men who give a crap what you think. And because of all this shit, men increasingly don't.

So tell me something... you want me to stop sexualizing women. What's in it for me?

Question about terms (because debate needs agreed terms): what do you mean when you say 'sexualize'?

4 upvotes · 22 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So it's not written down, it's always changing, but you are ready, at a moment's notice, to tell us all precisely what it contains with regards to photography, sexual desire, and what men should and shouldn't be doing inside the privacy of their own heads.

Because you said so.

That's cute. Now run along and play.

So women were forced to marry men they weren't attracted to. That's pretty messed up right?

4 upvotes · 20 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women were treated like property .

Anything follows from a false premise. If two plus two is five, then I am the pope.

I want to be less biased, what do you think is best for any woman (not just RPW) emotionally to do regarding sex?

4 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, that's true.

Given modern women's level of unhappiness, I don't think the trade was worth it. But that's purely an academic question, since we don't have the option to choose a different world... we're stuck with the one we have.

And it's certainly bad news for women that they must compete with the sluts for men, even for the sort of men who are not committed to a steady diet of promiscuity and might like a nice relationship instead.

The way forward, of course, is to focus on what sluts don't have... girl game. Femininity. Whatever you want to call it. The quality of being pleasing to a man beyond the simple provision of sexual pleasure.

The bit where this becomes bad news, however, is that a man's sexual desires are pressing. They won't notice girl game if they're unsatisfied. Which means women have to play a dangerous game of sailing between the Scylla of having sex with inappropriate men and increasing their count, and the Charybdis of being passed over in favour of girls who will give them what they want.

Should Trump step down from the presidency for the allegations of sexual assault against him?

4 upvotes · 18 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We didn't rig our primary election.

What if all the men said no to marriage?

4 upvotes · 17 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Would all the women say men have to marry to get sex?

Look around you.

Have you noticed a rise in women claiming men are "on the spectrum"?

4 upvotes · 16 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

There have always been plenty of men on the spectrum.

In earlier times, society never noticed, because it had a clear, express idea of how men were supposed to behave, and it taught it to boys in an unambiguous fashion.

So, in all but the more severe cases, no one noticed the difference as anything other than a few harmless personal idiosyncrasies.

Science says: Physically Weak Men More Likely To Be Socialists

4 upvotes · 7 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So don't forget to pay your exploitative bourgeois gym owner your membership fees, and go lift that iron curtain.

Better yet, invest in the means of sick gainz production, and put a squat rack in your garage.

Can one be a liberal and still be Alpha? Are they mutually exclusive?

4 upvotes · 27 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

being red pill is more about owning your beliefs than having the "right" ones.

This, students is a prime example of the Rationalization Hamster in its natural habitat... the plebe brain.

Notice how it has convinced the host that any belief is valid, so long as that belief is "owned", whatever that might mean. Empirical results are no longer a concern for the host... he can simply "own" his beliefs, and all is well with his internal universe.

There truly is no cure for stupid.

Rsd says that i'm already enough

4 upvotes · 22 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

RSD doesn't teach game, they just run it on their "clients".

Need to discuss organizing with my LTR or Why do some women insist on so many dishes?

4 upvotes · 8 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Dudes like guns and power tools. Bitches like dishes.

Who cares why bitches like things?

What type of girl is "platable" ?

4 upvotes · 8 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

The only requirement for a plate is that she be worth fucking again.

Girl I nexted texts to say I have "no guts" for ignoring her break up text...

4 upvotes · 20 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

She wants you to respond. She's resorting to taunts to try to make you do so.

Problem is "whatsa matter? You skeeeeed?" stopped working on you when you were 7.

Is there another way to give something back to TRP community other than writing a post?

4 upvotes · 6 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

No, there isn't.

Following advice you have to work at makes you stronger.

Material assistance makes you weaker.

Balance between being a hot commodity and being loyal

4 upvotes · 29 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

I get your point, but im not trying to be an annoying bitch and try to make him work for me, i want him to be happy, but i also want him to be happy with me, and i was feeling that by being too submissive i would become boring because it's would be easy to take me for granted.

You're not necessarily the annoying bitch here. The annoying bitches may very well be the people giving you the idea that you need to "challenge" him to stay "interesting".

I get your point, but im not trying to be an annoying bitch and try to make him work for me, i want him to be happy, but i also want him to be happy with me, and i was feeling that by being too submissive i would become boring because it's would be easy to take me for granted. He even told me he felt very responsible about me and wanted to protect me and felt like he sees himself marrying me, im not exactly in a bad position, just paranoid that his stress and non-chattiness could be the result of me,

Ah-hah.

Now the real problem emerges.

You are afraid of being abandoned. Messing about with whether you are "challenging" or not is just an idea you had about what to do.

But most of my problems aren't those that you mentioned, just me not being confident, wich might not be a problem for him, but it does make me sad, that's why im venting on Reddit.

Sure.

Like I said, your problem comes from your feelings. That's why I played a dirty trick on you... I had to get you upset so your feelings would emerge. Sorry for the discomfort, not sorry I did it.

Anyway:

1. You're afraid of abandonment.
2. This cropped up because "he" (presumably the man in your life) has become stressed and not chatty.
3. But you haven't talked to him about it.

We have a saying here:

Bring your Captain your problem, not your solution.

Whatever is causing you distress right now is your problem. You might imagine ten solutions, and they might all be bad ideas. But your problem, at least, is real. And his ideas, as well as yours, have to go into solving it.

Your man is indeed the leader, and RPW is founded and built on idea that relationships work better if the man is the leader. But leaders need information to lead.

How can he make a decision that is good for both of you if he doesn't know what is going on with you? When you say:

if i feel bad i cry alone

... that screams "huge mistake" to me. It tells me he doesn't know how you feel, because you aren't telling him. Look how I had to needle you and get you upset before you told me how you felt.

Think how this conversation would have gone differently if you had posted: "My man is stressed out lately, and not very talkative at all. I'm scared he's losing interest in me. What do I do?"

That's communication. That's bringing others your problem.

Now bring it to him. And for god's sake stop hiding before you cry. Let him help you.

Is women's growing sexual freedom positive or negative for humanity?

4 upvotes · 29 October 2017 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't know what "humanity" is. All I can see are people.

And, like everything else, women's increased sexual freedom in the west is bad for some and good for others.

Winners:

- Pretty girls under 30.
- Men who are more attractive than average.
- The third world.
- Men who don't want children.
- Men who like variety.
- Prostitutes.

Losers:

- Ugly girls.
- Women over 30.
- Men of average or lower attractiveness.
- Men who like LTRs.
- Women who want children, especially if they want to be SAHMs.
- The middle class.

But is it good, or bad, overall?

No.

It's the terrain. The terrain can't be good or bad, because you can't change it, so there's no point in judging it. It just is.

Afraid of being alone forever...

4 upvotes · 26 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Educated, traditional men who can, and want to, support a stay-home wife and a brood of children are not "your equal".

They are out of your league.

You can't find them because they are out pursuing younger women who are a better deal for them.

You spent your best, most attractive most fertile years getting a PhD which turned out to be stupid and useless because you don't want a career. Those are years he doesn't get, if he chooses you.

Then, at some point, you worked as a fashion model, which doesn't just mean you were able to do that. It also means you are used to people paying you to do nothing, just because you're pretty (or were when you were younger). So any man who chooses you has that to look forward to, as well.

To top it all off, you just told us what your approach to the world is by writing a gripe post about how life isn't giving you everything you deserve, with not one word about what your hypothetical man might want or how he might feel. Which pretty much tells us how you would treat any man who chooses you.

Are you starting to see why you are not elbowing your way through crowds of insistent suitors?

This is the point where you decide if you are teachable, or unteachable.*

If you are teachable, you will consider the possibility that maybe your life is the result of your choices, perhaps you are already getting exactly what you deserve, and that if you want better, you first have to change yourself so you deserve better.

If you are unteachable, you will simply refuse to accept the idea that men are human beings, they also have wants, desires, hopes, dreams, and ambitions, and they are not just here to give you stuff because you want it.

Someone who refuses to consider what others might want, or how they might be responsible for their own problems, is unteachable.

If you are teachable, ask for advice. Not advice on how to get what you want, but advice on how to understand what men want, and on why men make the choices they do.

If you are unteachable, get some cats.

My boyfriend has suddenly become very alpha.

4 upvotes · 21 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Your problem is that you're not so sure dominant or confident behaviours can be learned.

Many, many women would love to believe that "alpha" behaviours are genetic, that men are born high-quality, or born low-quality, and they can sniff out real quality.

The idea that men can learn stuff fills them with the terror of being "fooled".

But there are no natural alphas. The ones you think there are just the ones that learned the right stuff before you met them, sometimes from their parents at a very young age indeed.

Soon or late, the best men are the ones who can learn, and keep doing so, because they are always getting better.

Pussy is a Commodity.

4 upvotes · 15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

They're not sociopaths, not quite in the sense you think. What they are is children.

A child will dip into the cookie jar when she knows she's not allowed, and when caught in the act, with said cookie in her hand, if you ask her what she is doing, she will say that she was getting a cookie for you.

- Children, like women, have learned to anticipate the short term consequences of their actions, but not the long term ones.
- Children, like women, are submissive and look to others for standards on what is acceptable.

Your evaluation of your ex as acting sociopathic is based on the wrong belief that women are adults.

Because you thought she was an adult, you expected her to take account of how her behaviour towards you might build long term resentment. But children are only capable of imagining what they will get away with right now, not how you will feel about it later.

Because you thought she was an adult, you expected her to decide on her own that certain behaviours weren't cool. But children don't have moral philosophies... they develop their world views based on what they see adults doing.

They set their standards of behaviour based on what you let them get away with. Anything you let pass, becomes morally acceptable. Anything you give them becomes what they have a right to. Anything you punish becomes NOT OKAY. Anything you demand, and get, becomes your right. She passed up traveling Europe for him because he demanded it, therefore it was right. She refused you sexual acts he demanded, because you didn't demand them, therefore you didn't deserve them.

Women can't be evil because they have no agency. They are just a collection of impulses filtered through habits. Women cannot be liberated, because freedom is meaningless to them, and cannot be empowered, because they don't even control their own thoughts.

If you set a woman free, and empower her, she immediately looks around for someone (a man, a group of women, whatever), to show her what she is supposed to do.

Women's behaviour is confusing because of the incorrect assumption that they know what the hell they are doing. As long as a man labours under this assumption, women can seem mysterious, or capricious, or downright vicious, but nothing quite explains their behaviour.

When a man looks at women, and thinks "children without adult supervision", it all makes perfect sense.

That's why all these women sucked Harvey Weinstein's cock, shut up about it for years, and are crying rape now. Because no one told them it wasn't a good idea to sell your body for shiny trinkets you don't need, and everybody else was doing it and shutting up about it, and now suddenly everyone is claiming he forced them, and it wasn't their fault, so now they are, too.

This is what happens when you let women run around without adult supervision.

Dating someone new

4 upvotes · 7 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

I had a mild freak out last night as I'm used to us texting every day.

You are infatuated.

Infatuated = endorphins.

Endorphins = opiates.

Opiates = junkie.

What you are experiencing right now is withdrawal symptoms.

Is boyfriend embarrassed of me - thoughts?

4 upvotes · 7 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, let's get this laid out straight:

1. You took care of yourself and looked nice when you attracted him.
2. But once you had him, you let yourself go.
3. It bothers you that he might be embarrassed by you.
4. But it didn't, and doesn't, bother you that he might be unhappy.
5. And you are wondering whether or not he is a jerk.

... is that about right?

Just received my testosterone bloodwork, where should I confirm my numbers?

4 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

His dumb ass is not there to be comfortable. It's there to get paid.

Replace him with someone who will do his damn job.

Yes, Virginia, you do have to be an asshole.

4 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure. Easy.

Doesn't work. But easy to do.

Supposed to hang out with a girl from tinder tomorrow but made a light joke and now she's not responding, what do I do

4 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

Dear diary,

Today I messaged the girl I am orbiting to tell her in no uncertain terms that I am a thirsty desperate loser.

Now I am camped outside her house and the sound of retching alternating with furious scrubbing is coming from her bathroom window.

Is this a bad sign, I wonder?

Family kicked brother out for being gay

4 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

Freedom is meaningless to a woman. If you let her do whatever she wants, she immediately looks around for a leader, or a group of other women, to tell her what to do next.

So if a woman does something crazy, like losing her shit over something that doesn't matter, immediately look around for the person, social group, or ideology that has its hand up her ass, and is moving her mouth like a puppet.

Field Report: Do Your Best to Document Consent

4 upvotes · 26 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not so sure most men can voluntarily become homosexual.

How to flirt with a lot of girls in High School without being a "Fuckboy?"

4 upvotes · 17 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

Stop giving a shit. The word is a lame attempt to pressureflip "slut".

How to battle my instincts?

4 upvotes · 11 May 2017 · /r/askTRP

That's not introversion. That's social anxiety.

Introversion is when you need lots of alone time, and prefer one on one conversations to crowds.

Married for 7 years. 3 year old daughter (who is my everything). Wife is depressed, in therapy, and abusive. I wonder if TRP will help?

4 upvotes · 26 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

A class on gun safety does not cover how to patch bullet wounds in your foot.

You came to us too late.

This sub needs more truth-seekers

4 upvotes · 16 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuss fuss fuss.

This sub has plenty of truth speakers. It does not have an abundance of truth readers. Most of TRP's subscribers are whiny betas who will never break out of betahood because they are too lazy to dig for the good material, much less learn from it, much less put it into practice.

How many people here have even read the Bitch Management Hierarchy?

Here, as everywhere, most people are a lost cause, and nothing you tell them is going to change that.

Donald Trump's statement is really more about women being whores than him being a sexual predator

4 upvotes · 13 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

What struck me about the tape was the slight tone of incredulity in his voice. It was... familiar.

When a woman is convinced you're a super-alpha (whether it's "true" or not, it's all perception anyway), then your work is done, they are good to go. They will, as he says, let you get away with anything.

And you feel slightly incredulous. Like, "holy shit, are they really this shallow?".

I'm over 5x5. What is your favorite routine for purely aesthetics.

4 upvotes · 5 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

You get "shredded" in the kitchen, not the gym.

If you're plateauing on 5x5, do 5-3-1 or Madcow.

Wife wants to take our sex to a new level

4 upvotes · 8 September 2016 · /r/askTRP

My wife and I have a decent sex life.

No you don't. Happy women don't ask their husband's blessing to cheat.

Goes in spurts

Bedroom regularly goes dead.

we generally enjoy it when it happens

You enjoy it when she throws you a bone. She pretends to be satisfied to keep you happy. And docile.

We are an attractive couple.

Physically, maybe. But you no longer give her tingles.

This morning when we woke up, after talking about sex we had last nite, she said that she was thinking of "spicing things up" a little bit. I asked her what she meant, and she said she was thinking about bringing another man into the bedroom, no emotional strings attached. Right away my chin dropped at the thought of it, as i have never done this before. She said not to freak out, she read that many couples do it under agreed terms, and it betters their sex lives.

Lol.

I am KIND OF up for it if it will make her happy.

Weakling.

Don't make your wife happy by letting her fuck Chad Thundercock. Make her happy by being Chad Thundercock, and fucking her.

However, she wants it be someone we know who we can trust.

Let me guess, she sold that as the reason she already had the guy picked out.

She mentioned an ex boyfriend of hers

Hahahahahahahhahhahhahhhh you're a troll, aren't you? This can't be real. No one is this stupid.

Good guy, we see him around mutual friends. Now the GOOD with this is, we know the guy and he respects me with my wife. Their time has passed. What WORRIES me about it is, from what my wife has told me about him, they had VERY rough sex. Kinky, even degrading stuff. Even her friends have told me when we first started dating in a joking manner.

She is an alpha widow. You are nothing but the consolation prize.

Women save the roughest, kinkiest, most degrading sex of their lives for the man they love the most. Female sexual depravity is the most accurate barometer of female love and desire.

QUESTION: Is she trying to relive what she had with this guy?

You know this already. You wouldn't be asking the question this way if you didn't already know this was the answer.

You already knew what we were going to say. You are just too cowardly to face the fact that you were never your wife's first choice.

Got denied a blowjob, told her either that or she can go home. She goes back and sends me this text. What do I do?

4 upvotes · 22 August 2016 · /r/askTRP

Weak frame control, whiny attitude. No wonder she wasn't into it.

What do I do now?

Find another woman.

If even the President teaches men to obey their wives (sources inside), what percent of the general male population do you think is "beta"/"cuck"/"whipped"?

4 upvotes · 22 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What percent of the male population do you think is "beta"/"cuck"/"whipped"?

99.{some number of 9s}, including most TRP readers.

Why do you think they are that way?

Early indoctrination.

Sexual performance has dropped suddenly with only one plate?

4 upvotes · 15 August 2016 · /r/askTRP

This isn't physical. It's psychological.

This is starting to feel like a relationship to you. And you don't like that. Something about that doesn't sit right with you, and your dick is trying to say so. Listen to your dick.

Is RP becoming mainstream?

4 upvotes · 18 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

RP is the default mainstream.

We exist in a small and temporary BP bubble, which is a sort of technological artifact, born from communications technology which allows a small group of cultural elites to address the general population, remove any conflicting messages, and not allow the general population to communicate with each other.

One-to-many communications media, basically, like television.

Now, we have the internet, which is a many to many medium, allowing ordinary people to talk to each other en masse, without going through a elitist gateway or facilitator. The elites have tried to push back by achieving "switchboard ownership" (Google, Reddit, etc), but this hasn't been as effective as they would like, because the internet interprets censorship as damage, and routes around it.

If women are happier in a patriarchy why does a form of feminism often rise eventually, even in ancient societies?

4 upvotes · 16 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In fact, the nature that makes men want to fuck everything above 4.9 with a vagina, the nature that makes men attach no emotional context to sex, the nature that makes women the gatekeepers of sex, and the nature of men that achieves great things and builds civilization... are all the exact same nature.

Men don't build civilization because we are just more awesome and it arises spontaneously from our awesomeness.

Men build civilization because we need to be awesome in order to get laid.

If we didn't care about getting laid all that much, or if we could get laid without being awesome, then we would all still be eating raw meat and sleeping in trees.

And this is why women never make it into the history books except by fucking the right man. Because they don't care about getting laid as much, and they can get laid without being awesome. It wouldn't matter if women were every bit as good as men at X, for any X, because if X is hard, women still won't do it... they can be sexually successful anyway.

The only thing a woman has to do to get laid is not be ugly, and not be so bitchy no one can stand to be near her.

Which is why most women who "achieve greatness" or "make it in a man's world" tend to be one or both of those things.

My RP boyfriend is breaking up with me for going to a festival without him

4 upvotes · 6 July 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Because all of that stuff about him not trusting you, or being jealous, or whatever, doesn't matter. That is just crap that the feminist world throws around to excuse women being able to push any boundary at any time and still look like the good guy.

Well put. Trust is not demanded, it is earned.

"How dare you not trust me?" is a red flag for someone who is unworthy of trust.

What are your personal ethical beliefs?

4 upvotes · 29 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What is your argument that it is?

CMV: Women do not like "swole" men.

4 upvotes · 29 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, it's this again.

Hi, I'm a girl, and I think big muscles are gross!

This (posts picture A of Mr. Olympia Champion, oiled up and spraytanned for posing contest) is, like, sooooo gross!

This (posts picture B of jacked and moderately huge bodybuilder, in relaxed state) is sexy! It's fit, but not, like, bodybuilder gross! He doesn't have, like, big muscles!

(Guy in picture B is 235 lbs, 8% bodyfat, and is a giant compared to most men.)

Explaining the dark truths behind why some older guys chase younger women and the "playboy" lifestyle.

4 upvotes · 28 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So what?

Give me one good reason why men who missed out in their 20s should settle into mediocrity in their 30s and 40s, rather than enjoying themselves when they have developed the skills and resources to do so.

You spend a good deal of words trying to convince men that it "won't be as good". This is a little strange, because college girls are still college girls.

And even if it weren't "as good" as being younger... so what? It's better than wifing up some bitter post-wall harpy.

Do what you can, with what you have, in the time left to you.

Anyone notice how if a biological aspect is found in women that advantages them more than men it's an automatic sign of their superiority but if men are found with a biological advantage then it "must" be socially constructed?

4 upvotes · 26 June 2016 · /r/MensRights

A lot of people say that women make up for lack of testosterone with 3 times more IGF and growth hormone

Absolute crap. And thirty seconds with google is sufficient to find that out.

Alright. I'm a beta fuck. I'm here to atone for my sins and get some help.

4 upvotes · 24 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

Then stop talking to her right now. No goodbye. Block her on Facebook (actually, delete your page, Facebook is poison). Block her email address. Block her texts, delete her number.

Go full ghost.

Not to "get back at her" (you did this to yourself), but because she is drugs, and you are trying to get clean.

34(F), working on swallowing RPW. Question for the RP men out there. What are your thoughts on women who drink?

4 upvotes · 24 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

The fact you are asking this question means you already know the answer.

My weird, confusing date with a Russian girl.

4 upvotes · 23 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

Try this:

Imagine a successful man who lives with his girlfriend. He's looking to cheat on her, because he likes some strange now and then. He's got a list of six girls he matched on Tinder, and the girl he's having a drink with is the fourth-hottest. At the end of the night, regardless of how it goes, he's going home to a guaranteed blowjob if he wants one, because his girl knows that if she won't blow him, someone else will.

Picture him.

Now, what would he say to this girl? Would he be afraid to make a sexual advance? No. But would he be eager to make one? No. Would he redouble his efforts if she didn't seem into it? No. Would he be withdrawing and making plans for his next target instead? Yes.

He is the prize. His attention is a reward. He bestows on women who please him, when they do so. He does not give out more of it as reward for pushing him away. If pushed away, he withdraws without upset. He has plenty of options. He routinely rejects girls because they said this or that thing that killed the mood for him.

Girls do not like the man of scarcity. They adore the man of abundance. You must act like the man of abundance would act.

CMV: Female incels have it worse than male incels

4 upvotes · 23 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

As which men?

"Until we reassess what it means to be a "real man" then men will continue to beat their wives and murder LGBT people to ease their own self-loathing."

4 upvotes · 19 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Toxic masculinity is easily identifiable. It's that thing where guys won't eat their cum

Thank you for the laugh.

My Experience With Prostitution (Obese Virgin)

4 upvotes · 11 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The confidence is actually more important than the getting laid.

Why? Because you've realized that pussy is a commodity. And like all commodities, it has a price. And like all prices, those who don't have good market information get taken advantage of by those who do.

Right now, you're not much to look at. Probably feel like a loser. With a fair amount of justification. But here's the important bit... you no longer use "can or can't get laid" as a measure of loserdom.

A man who measures himself by, or others, by volume or quality of pussy, is a man who has conceded to women the total and undisputed power to judge what is admirable, and what is contemptible, who is worthwhile and important, and who is not.

And yet you have just seen this is a lie. The price of pussy is 50-500 dollars. "Can get 500 dollars" is not much of a criterion for living your life right.

The truth is that women are terrible judges of character. That's why they sleep with failures (so long as those failures are Chaddish), and why preselection works... because if you don't how to judge, you take a consensus from others and hope.

So now you know a secret. Being awesome might get you laid, but getting laid does not make you awesome.

In fact, you know two secrets. Pussy is just a basic biological need... it's nice to have more and better, but at certain point, enough is enough. You will never build a happy life solely out of pussy, no matter how gorgeous and plentiful, any more than you could build happiness from fine food and wine.

Happiness comes from a feeling of connectedness and accomplishment. Acquire friends and goals.

CMV: 90% of TRP aren't actually redpill.

4 upvotes · 7 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This finally crystalized something for me that was niggling.

No matter how bad the deal got for me legally/socially, I would choose my husband. But I'm already married to him. It might be very different if I was in your shoes, staying unmarried, and that much I had accepted.

I don't think that's the major difference. I think the major difference is that I'm male and you're female. The reason this makes a difference is that men are genetically pre-programmed to protect women. So there's a limit to how bad the deal can get for you.

Think of it this way... if a dramatic legal and social upheaval changed everything to the extent that you were no longer considered a person at all, but your husband's property, and he could beat you with a stick if he wanted... what would he actually do differently?

Answer is not all that much, most likely. So it doesn't really make a huge difference how many legal rights he has over you, so long as he's not feral, vicious, or depraved.

The reverse is not true. Women aren't programmed to be protective of adult men, only little boys. And when they have to be protective of an adult man, they will start to think of him as being like that little boy, and lose all attraction to him. They tend to look out for themselves, only, because they tend to assume men are powerful, and thus are going to be basically okay, no matter what she does. And when even she can see that this is no longer true, she loses attraction to him, and thus no longer cares all that much if she hurts him.

Of course, men who are afraid of marriage aren't afraid of women... the worst she can do is break his heart, and only teenagers think that is a serious injury. What these men are afraid of is other men, specifically the hordes of armed white knights from what is laughably called the "justice" system, who will confiscate his house, his children, his fortune, his company, and his future earnings, give them all to her on her unsupported say-so, and pat themselves on the back for a job well done, if they are not too busy locking him in a small concrete box on trumped up charges of beating her or his children.

In brief, if she can harm him, he's icky, and deserves to be harmed.

This is why long term relationships don't work unless the man has power over the woman. Because men with the power to hurt a woman generally won't, and women with the power to hurt a man generally will.

Abandoning girlfriends, partnerships, romance, whatever you want to call it entirely if the laws change further is... well, its going further. "No incremental benefit in marriage" makes sense, since you can have sex and intimacy without marriage. But there is incremental benefit in girlfriendhood, or you all wouldn't have them. Those benefits aren't erased by shitty legislation; at most they could be overbalanced.

Yes, absolutely. And I would toss them in a second if they were. It's not just about the risk of harm.

It's about the insult. Men don't like being second class citizens. And it's about the mechanics of attraction. I know that as a man, I must be strong, I must be in power, or I am not attractive to women. Legislate away that power, and I will leave. I will go where I am powerful, because only there will women desire, respect, and admire me.

Placing the woman in power is relationship sabotage.

Men do not have the option of just nodding, bowing their heads to the legal technicalities, and establishing something different in their own families through sheer power of Magnificent Game™. Rock stars, movie legends, professional athletes, captains of industry, and boxing champions have been divorce-raped. If the answer is supposed to be "you should all just be more alpha than those guys", that doesn't pass the laugh test.

Divorce law isn't just the gun held to every husband's head, it's the death of attraction as she thinks over and over again "He's not so impressive... I could destroy him with one squeeze of this trigger".

CMV: 90% of TRP aren't actually redpill.

4 upvotes · 6 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Resolving at age 16 only to pump and dump forever

I don't understand. Why is this a problem? Resolutions last, or they don't.

None of the senior voices in TRP is telling men to avoid LTRs. /u/redpillschool has a girlfriend. /u/gaylubeoil has a girlfriend. I have a girlfriend.

Of course, if legislatures tried to "fix" marriage by legislating financial responsibility into LTRs, we would tell men to avoid them, but that hasn't happened yet.

The only thing that makes people think we advise against LTRs is that most of our actual advice is focused on plate spinning. There are several reasons for this, none of which is "LTRs are bad":

- Most TRP readers are young and want excitement rather than stability.
- The vast majority of women in the western are not relationship-worthy. Men, TRP reader or not, do not have control over when, or if, a relationship-worthy woman comes along. They're going to have to know how to get laid in an environment rich in bitchy sluts and fuck-all else.
- TRP novices are vulnerable to being taken advantage of in the way they typically have been in the past. Being in a relationship exacerbates this risk. I advise novices learn to spin plates or get one night stands with decent reliability before being open to an LTR.

- Men are the gatekeepers of relationships, not seekers of them. This means that a man who seeks a relationship will most likely end up in one with an unworthy woman, just as a woman who goes out seeking NSA sex will most likely end up having it with a loser. A man should be testing the women in his life for relationship-worthiness, not seeking a relationship. It's her job to talk him into that.

Let me be absolutely clear: I will continue to do my best to keep men away from any deal that's been made bad for them. Marriage and parenthood have both crossed that line. Cohabitation is close, but hasn't yet. LTRs are still okay... but if the social engineering continues, and the line moves more, I will move, too, and so will men.

If we reach a hypothetical future where the only way a man can interact with a woman without legal enslavement is to pay a whore, then TRP will become a MGTOW forum with advice on where to find the cheapest and best whores.

About the women's suffrage and democracy.

4 upvotes · 6 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

My question is, if women work and pay taxes, should they get the vote or not?

Time for a history lesson.

Historically, the unit of western society was not the individual, but the family. One family, one vote. This vote was cast by the head of the household (the man), but it was cast on behalf of the entire family. This mean that men who weren't heads of a household didn't get a vote.

Allowing all men to vote came along quite recently, not very long before the vote for women. And the argument used for it was that all males were eligible to be drafted for military service, therefore they should have a voice even if they are not the head of a household.

This means that once women got the vote, we were left with a unique situation in the United States.

In the US, only women have the right to vote. For men, voting is a privilege which is contingent on selective service registration.

So, no, I'm not in favour of special rights for women.

Sex with betas is not always duty sex

4 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The alpha/beta thing is a generalization for expressing broad ideas, and everyone get that.

When you drill down into the details, what we see is that everyone, when choosing a partner, faces a choice about what's important to them.

Since less women than men are interested in casual sex, women command a higher value on the hookup market than they do on the relationship market. This means that no matter how attractive or unattractive a woman is, there is always a man she can get sex, but not a relationship, from.

Groupies can fuck rockstars. They can't marry them. This means that every woman faces a choice, on some level, between being a roadie's girlfriend, or getting fucked once by Mick.

And for those who chose relationships, there's also an element of what the relationship looks like in the mix. A woman who chooses a less attractive man can wrap him around her little finger. A woman who looks for the sexiest man she can possibly get is going to have to work hard to please him, deal with the fact that he might cheat because he can, etc.

And it gets more complicated, because having dominance over a man makes him less attractive to most women. The reverse is also true.

So who a woman ends up with is a mashup of all these factors. And getting pumped and dumped is usually the result of making some mistake in balancing them, and thinking she could keep a man she was only able to fuck.

Question for red pill: Were you previously attractive?

4 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Any woman can catch a dick. The trick is reaching the end zone without fumbling it.

For women, there is a sharp separation between sexual attractiveness and relationship desirability. The second requires the first, but it's possible to have gobs of the first and none of the second.

This all gets confusing because when people talk about a woman being "attractive", they usually mean the first, but sometimes they mean the second.

Girlfriend is wife material but has a weight problem

4 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

For me it's marriage 1.0 or nothing.

Are you deaf or stupid?

You cannot have Marriage 1.0.

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/4ir0c6/50_is_a_failing_grade/

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2yr99w/marriage_red_pill_on_hamster_mode/

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2d9k75/the_redefinition_of_marriage/

How many more corpses do you need to see?

CMV: It's possible to follow the TRP sub WITHOUT becoming an asshole

4 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I stopped reading TRP mainly because I had already internalized everything. I took the training wheels off. Now I know what is attractive to women. I don't need to read much about it anymore.

Yes, there is a been there, done that effect, and this is good and natural.

But I think you have one more red pill to take.

Why are you still giving fucks whether randoms think we are misogynist assholes or not? If they think you, or we, are, why do you bother to try to persuade them otherwise?

Whatever good thing you think you happen as a result of this post, I promise you it will not. Nothing will change. TRP techniques will still work, the freak parade will still try to portray us as closet nazis, and the the earth will still rotate roughly once every 24 hours.

What do you think about people with sexual kinks?

4 upvotes · 12 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TRP isn't a religion. It isn't there to have a model of, and explanation for, everything in the universe. It's there to discuss strategy.

Here's what TRP thinks about sexual kinks:

If you have one, game women who appeal to it. If women have one you don't like, avoid them.

19 and have nothing going on with my life. Turning into a bum.

4 upvotes · 11 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

The problem is that I really want to get into college and become an engineer and as of now it looks like a huge mountain to climb considering how shitty my grades are and how long it will take me to get there.

Oh, no! 5 years? 6 maybe? How horrible! Why, you'll be 24 by the time you're done! Clearly your life is over.

Sack the fuck up. I would do 5 years in prison if I could be 24 again when I got out.

MRP and the ProMarriage Stance- Can Someone Explain the Schism in relation to TRP?

4 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What's your opinion the u/TheFamilyAlpha [+2] controversy?

I just saw this one conversation. I have no idea who he is, or what the "controversy" is.

What I'm really chewing on here is the bigger issue of the divide, not just between TRP and some groups on its borders (MRP, etc), but the divide in our culture between older married people and the newer generation.

This newer generation isn't

- Following the path older people followed.
- Listening to older people.
- Being listened to by older people.
- Facing the same set of circumstances as older people.

This goes back to something I had to chew Paul Elam out for a couple of years ago. It's a different world out there for young people, and instead of acknowledging that, and trying to connect, the older people are blaming those differences on the things that the young people did to adapt.

Their disdain for marriage is a response to changing conditions. That disdain is being called "childish" by people who don't even acknowledge that conditions have changed, and have no data, because they haven't dated anyone in the fifteen years since their wedding.

And what do young men do, when someone talks to them like that? They roll their eyes and say "Not this shit again..."

Because their experience of older generations is that of one big lecture that emerges from a position of utter cluelessness.

That's what I suspect all these little individual arguments are about. Young men are openly talking about their wants, needs, priorities, and concerns, and this gets dismissed with an airy wave of the hand by various brands of ideologue, who tells them "You're not {responsible|alpha|nice|empathic|tough|attractive|whatever} enough".

And their response is "fuck you". If you don't treat young men with respect, and take them seriously, their ears shut off. And then of course they say all sorts of outrageous things. Because now they see an enemy trying to exploit them. Trying to use shaming language to make them do things to someone else's benefit and their detriment. Taking pot shots at the one tribe that every treated them like human beings with as much right to their own wants, needs, and desires as anyone else.

If you say "TRP is a bunch of children", "TRP is neckbeard losers", "TRP is angry betas", "TRP is misogynistic rapists"... the conversation is over. They're no longer interested in "proving to you that they are not children", because they no longer believe you are speaking in good faith. Why would they? No one else who talks shit about them is.

So the time to talk was before saying shit like that. Now it may be too late. On reddit, and in our culture. The younger generation's trust may very well be lost beyond recovery. And we're still talking like they need us. They don't. Because collectively, we haven't done jack shit for them. All we did was screw things up.

LTR "You just want me for sex"

4 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Recently she's been trying to restrict sex due to this concept in her mind that I'm using her for sex. Yesterday when I was walking her out I said "I don't like it how we didnt have sex". I was genuinely annoyed. She had been over for two days, and we didn't have sex. This is very unusual for us.

You're trying to get her to see your side of things.

This is asking for Protective Love. Women don't feel that for men. She is not going to empathize with you, or walk a mile in your shoes.

You need to work on getting Respectful Love instead. She has to want to please you, and do what you tell her to do, because she wants to please you.

You need to cultivate her obedience, not her sympathy.

I was thinking about telling her that I will continue to date her but have purely sexual relationships on the side, in order to get my share of sex. -- This both proves I'm not with her for sex but Its something I need. Yet again its a bold move Don't tell her jack shit. Trying to reason with women just looks like weakness.

Instead, dread game. Show her with your actions that if she doesn't satisfy you, someone else will.

Low testosterone and how to fix it?

4 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

I was wondering how I can naturally increase my testosterone levels.

- Put syringe in vial of testosterone cypionate.
- Put testosterone cypionate in syringe.
- Put syringe in leg.
- Put testosterone cypionate in leg.

What the fuck am I doing wrong.. I've grown so much and still don't get laid

4 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Outcome attachment.

You are still valuing the pussy tingles of 20somethings whose main interests are selfies and cute shoes... as a measure of how much of a man you are.

Thus, you approach women and are anxious for results, not because you are a thirsty bitch, but because you want to "win".

You are the prize.

You can survive indefinitely without women. Women cannot survive without men. Women are so weak that they need protection from everything in the world, including themselves. Without men, they starve or freeze to death. Even in a civilized and comfortable society, where they are protected from freezing or starving by men they never even see, they still go off the rails without male guidance.

Your thirst to "win" looks like desperation to every woman you talk to. They're too dumb or narcissistic to tell the difference.

When you no longer care about being rejected, then you will have the life you want.

Can't stop comparing myself to others. How do I stop this?

4 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Remember that a facebook page is someone's highlight reel. Don't compare it to the footage on your cutting room floor.

No Men Beyond This Point

4 upvotes · 2 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women don't understand the value of men until they are cold, hungry, or afraid.

Generally speaking, why do you think they mostly considered women to be "witches"?

4 upvotes · 29 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I said only women were usually persecuted for witchcraft.

And I told you that you are incorrect about that. As near as we can tell, the majority of people hanged, drowned, or burned as witches were male.

Generally speaking, why do you think they mostly considered women to be "witches"?

4 upvotes · 29 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm asking why they usually burned women.

Because they didn't. Both men and women were hanged, drowned, or burned.

In our modern writing about witch trials, it's the women we hear about, because our culture's preferred sex is female. Therefore we find the lynching of a woman more horrific than the lynching of a man, and that it what we focus on.

Incidentally, a "warlock" is not a male witch, but the leader of a coven, and can be of either sex.

Sex is Trust

4 upvotes · 28 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're technically correct, but I'm not sure this is useful advice.

Yes, obviously everyone is different, every situation is different, people need to use their judgment, etc. I think we can pretty much take that as a given for every conversation we have.

But how is this sort of statement different than the people arguing against TRP who say "Everyone's different, treat everyone as a individual"?

Yes, everyone IS different, but the whole goal here is to make useful generalizations that can give people some guidelines.

Your point about trust is well made, however.

We seem, as a society, to have reached an impasse where neither sex trusts the other very much at all.

So we have a situation where men look at women and say "There is no way I am committing to you before sex happens." And women look at men and say "I am not going to have sex outside a committed relationship."

Right now, advice in both TRP and RPW seems to calibrated around ways to win this game of chicken.

The problem with that is that it becomes a conflict, a tug-of-war. And that's not good for women, not only because men have the upper hand these days (there's a plentiful supply of sluts to break any sex embargo), but also because being a tough negotiator is attractive in men, and unattractive in women.

So women are left with three options:

- Capitulate, and assume all the risk.
- Play tug-of-war anyway, and just hope men are willing to capitulate.
- Find some way work to around the problem. Present the appearance of capitulation while finding less obvious ways to limit risk.

Obviously, option #3 is best. But the tough part about it is figuring out what it looks like. That's where I'd center the discussion.

Women Do NOT Like Competition

4 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Fake tits look awful to me, and represent old age in my mind.

I think you may have selection bias here.

Axiomatically, all the fake tits you've noticed are fake tits that were noticeably fake. There could be any number of pairs that you've looked at, liked, and never known they were implants.

Slight Rule Change Regarding Red Pill Woman

4 upvotes · 23 April 2016 · /r/MarriedRedPill

I'm pretty sure RPS is male.

Yahoo: a shining example of female leadership running a company into the ground.

4 upvotes · 20 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Ellen Pao. Hillary Clinton. Marissa Meyer. Why is it that these women always seem to fuck someone on their way to the top?

Just once, I'd like to see a woman succeed on her own merits, just to get an idea of what sort of woman that would be. Because, so far, the female model for success appears to be "jump on the correct penis".

CMV: "Don't ask fish for advice on catching fish, ask a fisherman" is a flawed analogy

4 upvotes · 20 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women want men to do attractive things of their own accord. If a woman has to tell a man what to do, he's not an attractive man. He's a loser shlub following a girl's instructions.

Exactly. Of course, what they don't realize is that every man has to learn what is attractive and what isn't.

Chad isn't a natural. There are no naturals. Chad is just a guy whose dad or peer group taught him the right stuff (deliberately or not). So he makes the right moves, until the day he doesn't.

That said, I don't think women intend to mislead men to keep them from "tricking" other women.

If they wanted to mislead a man, they couldn't, because they have no clue what they, much less other women, find attractive.

If you ask a woman what a man should do to be attractive, they will tell you what they want an attractive man to do.

Womens death brigade' poster subtextually threatens genital mutilation as punishment for 'manspreading' (found on a train in Portsmouth).

4 upvotes · 19 April 2016 · /r/MensRights

Image: Class War Women's Death Brigade

Reality: A bunch of purple-haired fatties in cat glasses who haven't lifted anything heavier than a doughnut in years.

New Subreddit Rules

4 upvotes · 17 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't speak for the community. Not here, anyway.

This community is, in fact, still finding a consensus, after most of old mod team left. (RPS wouldn't let them use mod tools to promote a monoculture anymore.)

Sounds like you were upset because you felt like policy was being dictated to you.

I'm not a dictator. I'm a theorist. I'm doing R&D.

The only thing I willing to say for certain right now is that traditional conservatism is almost certainly not the answer, because it collapsed. That's why we're even having this conversation.

So the question is, how do women survive in the rubble?

At this point, I'm tossing out hypotheses for others to play with. That's how we start.

The Guardian does a whole article on TRP calling it "the heart of modern misogyny." Thoughts?

4 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

The open secret is that at least half the hyperbolic shit we say on TRP is hyperbolic shit. It's over the top on purpose, because that's what is needed to turn around men who have lived their whole lives in a sea of misinformation.

I mean, the fundamental piece on relationship management is called "The Bitch Management Hierarchy". How much more blatant can you get than that?

It's just like anti-American sentiment in Iran. The Iranian government screams "Death to America, Death to Israel!" at its own population. That's called energizing your base. It plays to the Iranian people who have legitimate grievances against America (and boy, do they ever).

And what the American state does is take that internal message, and repeat it to Americans as if it were a policy statement. Because they want their people to believe in The Axis of Evil.

Fact is, I gave up on being a moderate years ago, because if I preach moderate Red Pill to overly timid young men, I get overly timid young men. If I preach deliberately horrifying red pill extremism to overly timid young men, I get red pill moderates. And from the thank you notes I get, they are absolutely killing it out there.

And the beautiful thing is, I can give away the whole game right here in PPD, in this comment, and it won't matter, because they want to see crazy. They want to hate.

You see, you will read this, and say, "Ah-hah, of course. That's how he can say all this shit on here and still have women in his life who love him. Makes perfect sense."

But TBP readers will say "that's just an excuse", and it'll just blow right over them. It's the perfect scam. I can just explain the whole thing, and it still works.

"I have a Boyfriend"

4 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

She was very much interested

... until you said that, she was.

"So does my girlfriend." is too immediate, too raw, too serious. You made her feel like a slut. It might have worked on some bar ho, but not on the kind of girl who does most, or all, of her sex in relationships.

You should have said "So do I."

"Token Resistance is Common"

4 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Another possibility is that you are literally the most attractive man in the world, and have to fend groupies off with a stick.

If that were the case, how your experience be relevant to the average man on the street?

Still another possibility is that you have experienced what we call ASD and LMR all the time, and didn't even see it as resistance, and are thinking of something totally different when you hear someone say those words.

Regardless, what you are saying is irrelevant. We call it "Argument from AMOG".

It's any argument of the form:

"Well, I have never experienced X as a problem, therefore if it's a problem for you, then you are less awesome than me. So, do you wish to retract your statement, or are you a loser?"

Examples:

- Well, I've never experienced any "thug culture" in my gated community in Menlo Park. Why don't you just move out of your shitty area? (Shut up, or admit by implication that you are a broke loser.)
- What is this studying of which you speak? Just go to class, pay attention to the lecture and think. Fixed-point theory really isn't that difficult. (Shut up, or admit by implication that you are a dumb, untalented hack.)

Fact is, a lot of the young men who stumble into TRP are unattractive losers. Duh. They're supposed to be, because that's who most needs our help. If we didn't get them, that would be failure to reach the people who need our help.

I'm trying to un-loser them. I don't know exactly you're doing, apart from trying very hard to convince us you're cool.

A Note on Plates

4 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I agree that it's unrealistic to wait for sincere emotional commitment (because that takes forever and AMALT), but don't you think that puts a lot of unnecessary risk onto the woman?

I'm not telling women to do anything here.

I'm pointing out that this risk is unavoidable. All you can do is try to reduce it, or estimate that it's too great, and next the guy.

It's important, I think, that women not mistake words for a real emotional commitment. It's dangerous to say "I'm not a plate, because he said we'd be exclusive before we actually did the deed."

... and relax, and wind up breaking up two weeks later.

The super-new relationship is precarious. It carries the same risks. Instead of quibbling over what is and isn't a plate, we need to identify this danger zone, the sex-relationship gap, and talk about how to cross it.

"Men don't understand what it is like to be under attack"

4 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/MensRights

these men aren't being "attacked" because of their race or gender.

So, there were women on those boats, too? Musta missed that.

Q4Feminists: What feminist writings do you wish that RPer would read?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, now, if you're going to be that way, I should stop speaking casually, and be a bit more precise:

I, and many men like me, experience "feminism" as three things, all different, all using the same name, all correlated.

1. A set of allegations about fact. (Patriarchy Theory.)
2. A set of alleged moral imperatives, mostly based on #1. (The "shoulds" I just talked about.)
3. A rhetorical method that goes like this:
 1. Think of something you want.
 2. Construct an argument, however, convoluted, that links it to sexism.
 3. Demand #1 from men as reparations for #2.
 4. Repeat until men give you #1.

Women who call themselves feminists seem to do so because they either believe #1 and #2, because it allows them to practice #3, or both.

Obviously, I, and men like me, think that #1 is false, #2 is horseshit, and #3 works, but has disastrous long-term side effects.

So the word "feminist" is a complete deal-breaker for us. Calling yourself one stops conversations, rather than starting them. It's like opening a dialogue about race by asking "What problems do niggers face?" You've just done something so inflammatory that no dialogue or compromise is possible anymore.

Unwillingness to abandon that word demonstrates to us that a woman cares more about protecting and promoting the "feminist" brand than she does about opening a dialogue with men.

Generally, when we point this out, what we get is a condescending explanation of why we "shouldn't" hate that word. Perhaps, for bonus ignorant hubris points, she can even point us to the dictionary definition of feminism, as if we'd never heard it before, or the dictionary was some kind of authority.

And our reaction is "We haven't even started the discussion yet, and already she's telling what to think and say. Fuck a bowl of this. I'm outta here."

And so we go. We make /r/MensRights and /r/theredpill and MGTOW and AVFM. And we run them our way. Women wanna show up there and participate, fine. But it's our shtick, we're gonna make the rules. And one of those rules is "no feminists". Use that word, ejected. Don't like it, bye. Don't let the door hit you in the ass on the way out.

That goes for feminist writing, too. Sure I've read the Feminine Mystique, and The Second Sex, and whatnot. And you know what? I wasn't impressed. I didn't see convincing arguments. I saw mental illness. And I'm no longer interested in reading whatever new trash this cesspool of misinformation has spit out.

I'm done.

You wanna talk to me, you take off your white robe and pointy hood first, instead of sitting around explaining why I shouldn't care, like some sperg with zero respect for my welfare or my intelligence.

Because the fact is, feminists need men, but men don't need feminists. So I have zero incentive to compromise, even if I didn't have zero faith that anyone who calls herself a feminist was interested in compromise as a real thing, rather than code for "We get all the cookies".

Q4Feminists: What feminist writings do you wish that RPer would read?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It also seems presumptuous when posted in this context, like if I showed up in a foreign country saying, "I'm college educated and a US citizen. Work with me and I'll help you sort out your problems so that you can get yourselves recognized at an international level."

This is a very eloquent way to put it.

Feminist interference in men's issues not only smells of this sort of colonialism, it also comes off as disingenuous.

Many feminists and feminist groups have tried to open discussion about men's issues for the purpose of controlling the discussion (GoodMenProject, HeForShe, etc), because when "unsupervised" men start talking about men's issues, they very quickly (and correctly) identify feminism as the major enemy.

Trying to talk about men's issues while describing yourself with the term "feminist" is essentially a no-go zone. Call yourself that, I no longer have the slightest interest in what you are saying. That word is a deal-breaker. Anyone doesn't already understand why needs to be listening, not talking.

Is man wrong for not helping a woman who rejected him for a date?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Whoa, cool your jets, there, Commander Textwall. Believe it or not, I don't actually stalk people before replying to them.

I have no idea what you're like as an individual. Don't know, don't care, unless you somehow manage to prove interesting.

What I know is the shit people who label themselves "feminist" do over and over again. You can swear up and down your motives are different, but that's not going to make me suddenly put my capacity for inductive reasoning on hold. Enough trees really is called a forest.

If you care how I see feminism, from the outside, as a phenomenon, why don't you skip the leading questions and just ask?

I'm 20, almost 21, and Black, living in NYC. Where do I find a LTR with a high value man?

4 upvotes · 6 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I just don't want to have sex until I'm married. That was my original plan, I deviated from it, now I'm dedicating myself back to that goal.

Ooooooh, now, see, this is a problem for men.

You see, for both women and men, sex can be a lot of things, but to pretty much every straight man out there, one of those things is a measure of love and attraction.

In other words, if you have sex with a man that you have X level of commitment with, any man is going to expect sex once he reaches X level of commitment. Because if he has to go beyond that, he will believe that you are less passionate about him than you were about the other man.

And he'll be right. If you were carried away by passion with the first man, and made a reckless choice because of it, and you aren't carried away by passion with the second, then you are less passionate about the second man. Them's the breaks.

Men are sometimes willing to wait for a virgin, if they aren't too used to the luxury of modern society's cornucopia of readily available vagina. But you are not a virgin.

So you have two choices:

- Lie, and say you are.
- Compromise, be sexually intimate in an LTR, and try like hell to turn it into a marriage.
- Marry a man who is willing to live with the knowledge that he was a second choice.

All of these options have drawbacks. There is no advice any of us can give you that will make your past not matter. It does, and it always will.

If you choose "lie", you may get away with it. But you are committing to a lifetime of maintaining that lie with the person you expect to be closest to you. If you ever let it slip, his outraged sense of betrayal will be as fresh as if you had just done it. That's how men work. There's no statute of limitations on this sort of thing. He finds out, he'll be as angry as if you had just cheated on him.

If you choose "compromise", the risk is that the LTR won't turn into marriage. You are gambling on the strength of your girl game. Get it wrong enough times, and well, your N count gets pretty bad fast.

If you choose "find a man who's okay with it", your choice is actually "settle". Because men who are okay with playing second fiddle are men who have to take what they can get, because they are not as attractive to women.

This will, of course, include you.

Q4RP: Does a woman still want sex if she gives LMR/'soft no's? Do you care?

4 upvotes · 5 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not a bad question.

The problem is that you're using our terminology wrong.

A hard no isn't a forceful no. A soft no isn't a quiet no. A hard no is one that means she's really not into this, whereas a soft no is resistance put up despite being into it.

This happens all the time. It's sometimes very easy to tell the difference, and sometimes harder.

But "assume any no is a hard no" is not a realistic solution. Because women are instinctively geared and socially taught to be the gatekeepers of sex. That means they are the ones who have to be ready to put the brakes on.

And when you see something on the road ahead, or you come up to light (even if it's green), or you go into a curve, you touch the brakes. It doesn't mean you want to stop. You're just being cautious. Is there a "slut accusation" in the roadway? Is there a broken heart around this corner? Will the accidental pregnancy light suddenly come on? Is this road going to turn out not to be quite as smooth and awesome as I thought?

An ideal sexual pace is a compromise between women's overactive tendency to balk and men's overactive tendency to push forward.

But all of this is dependent on men having the subtle skill to distinguish a hard no from a soft one. The responsibility is entirely on them, and a mistake can be disastrous. But they must be able to do it.

A man who typically mistakes a hard no for a soft one is likely to end up in legal trouble.

A man who typically mistakes a soft no for a hard one is likely to end up alone.

Women are often unaware of the damage done by soft nos mistaken for hard ones. Since dick is cheap and readily available, a missed opportunity is no big deal to them. They can always catch another dick. So they don't stop to ask themselves what happens to a man who does that over and over again.

Naturally, since taking hard for soft hurts women, and taking soft for hard hurts men, women and those who are highly protective of them favour a policy of assuming any no is hard.

This is meaning behind the slogan "No means no."

The problem is that men are not totally stupid. They are aware that soft nos are a thing, because they have eyes and ears and brains. So when "no means no" becomes the policy, it doesn't make them stop trying to spot soft nos. Because they still need to in order to get laid, which leads to getting girlfriends, which leads to not dying alone in a ditch.

Any attempt to ask men to dive on a grenade for the sake of a principle is going to fail.

So all that the slogan does is prevent real discussions that teach men the difference between hard and soft nos, and how to distinguish.

This is Rumor Control. Here are the facts.

4 upvotes · 5 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah.

Concern about SO drinking

4 upvotes · 3 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

It sounds like you are already doing the right thing, and have got him thinking about it.

Do be aware that if he is actually in the early stages of alcohol addiction, it's most likely not going to be this simple. Many people crawl into a bottle and never come out again.

The only advice I can give you about this is general:

- Never try to strongarm him.
- But never hide from him any harm his drinking does to you.

I hope things turn out well for you.

Who/what are Red Pill women?

4 upvotes · 31 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

In that example you're getting nothing in return. I'd never argue that you should take risk with no possibility of reward.

Then why are you arguing in favour of Marriage 2.0?

The benefits of Marriage 2.0 accrue only to women. From the point of view of a man, there is no benefit he receives after the wedding, which he does not get from cohabiting before it, or without it. Marriage does not entitle him to a single enforceable thing.

Sex? No, that's still completely her choice. People have been tried and convicted for "raping" their own wife, but there is no record in the modern era of any wife facing social or legal consequences for refusing sex to her husband, regardless of how long this goes on.

Children? No, that is entirely up to her. If she doesn't want to get pregnant, he has no say. If she does, and she "forgets" her birth control, he cannot stop her from having it, cannot give it up for adoption, and is on the hook to provide for it even if he leaves her, or even if she leaves him. Even if he never wanted it in the first place. If he did and does, courts always award custody to the woman, unless she is actually beating them, and he can prove it.

Fidelity? No, he has no legal right to stop her from having sex with whoever she wants, and, while he can end the marriage, no-fault divorce means that she will suffer no negative consequences for being the one who broke the wedding vows, other than the dissolution of the marriage itself, which he also suffers. Thus, the perpetrator of infidelity and the victim suffer the same punishment.

Social respectability? No. Women have enhanced social status from getting the ring. Not men.

A tax break? Yeah, see, now, here, at the bottom of the barrel, we find something. In other words, marriage is such a bad deal that the government has to bribe men to enter into it. But while you can always add a gross benefit by bribing people, that doesn't translate into a net benefit.

The expected value of a marriage is the Sum of over the probability of gain, times the magnitude of that gain, minus the probability of loss, times the magnitude of that loss. (Actually, it's more complicated than that, but if you want details, I happen to have an actuary close at hand.)

Turns out the expected monetary value of a marriage, for a man, is negative. Despite the tax breaks.

So we're left with nothing. It's just a bad move. It doesn't matter how small or large the risks are if the benefits are zero.

Now, I understand you're teaching male sexual strategy, but realism is part of that strategy. Women are even more risk adverse than men, and if you next everywomen that doesn't feel like playing house and just relying on your goodwill to never skip out, you'll probably miss out on some quality women.

Yes, women could force men to commit by withholding sex. If they had the upper hand. They don't. Because an embargo must be universal. Nowadays, any man who can get a woman to accept a marriage proposal can get laid without needing to make one.

But what about withholding commitment, cohabitation, and kids? Women can't embargo those either, because they want them a lot more than men do. Men don't get baby rabies. Men love their children when those children are there in front of them, a concrete reality, but when they don't have any kids, they don't pine for them.

Women cannot embargo commitment, because men, not women, are the gatekeepers of commitment.

Interestingly enough, I've noticed a trend in the black community that's very similar to what you seem to describe as the ideal situation. That is men and women having kids together and raising them as a family without every getting married. It's interesting in that its a departure from the stereotypical absentee black father figure, yet still something different then the sterotypical suburban picket fence ideal into a new family structure. I wonder if they will make its way into mainstream America soon.

Blacks are the canary in America's coal mine. They are the most volatile community in terms of social structure, and thus respond the fastest to the pressures that shape the social environment.

Whatever the black community looks like at any time, white America will look like later, usually after a number of decades.

If the state redefines marriage in a way that kills it off, black men will stop getting married right away, because black men are used to being fucked by the system, and can spot right away when the system is trying to fuck them, either through malice or incompetence.

White men are more trusting, having only recently become targets for systematic abuse. Thus, it takes them a while to catch on. Usually, they have to see a number of their friends and relatives become casualties, and often, it takes more than that... it takes seeing this over and over again, while they are still children.

This means the collapse of white America is in the same pipeline as the collapse of black America... but one or two generations behind.

Who/what are Red Pill women?

4 upvotes · 30 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Fallacy of grey

Not a bad point.

But shall we coin a phrase?

Multiple Choice Fallacy

Just because a number of options are presented, even if some are better than others, does not mean that any are acceptable.

Example: "Of these three strangers, only this one has a clean criminal record. Therefore, he is the one I should give my online banking password to."

Odds - Risk Confusion Fallacy

The risk of a negative event is not equal to the odds of the event happening, but to the odds of it happening multiplied by the damage it would inflict.

Example: "Not wearing a seatbelt isn't risky! The odds of getting in an accident are very low!"

"Everyone lies" is not useful advice for figuring out who to trust

Multiple Choice Fallacy again. You are assuming that young men must chose one person to trust with marriage. They can also choose "none of the above".

They can even have a long-term relationship. They need simply avoid signing the papers, which add much risk and no benefit.

Women want marriage because it incurs increased social status for them among other women. It's fine to want that if she is simply unaware that marriage turns a man into a second-class citizen. Then she simply needs to be educated.

If she doesn't care that marriage turns men into second-class citizens, she's selfish, and unworthy of any man's trust.

This is why I don't think think much of RPW. They are all sweetness and light when they think they will get what they want. But point out that marriage turns a man into a second-class citizen, and suggest that they might not want to do that to a man they love, and they generally don't just disagree... they lash out in fury and the veneer of sweetness falls away.

Of course, they're not all exactly the same, but by and large, RPW seems to consist of women who wish feminism and the sexual revolution never happened, but expect men to protect them from the negative effects of these things. We're simply supposed to treat them like the genteel southern ladies of a bygone age, nevermind what the laws about marriage are now, nevermind what the environment is like for us, nevermind any of that.

Despite the fact that it's other women who messed things up for them, they expect, nay, demand, that men be the ones to fix it.

We're just supposed to write them a signed blank check and hope. Anyone who asks for that much trust is not your friend. And anyone who angrily demands that much trust is trouble on two legs.

Not for me, thank you. And not for anyone who listens to my advice. You get to work your way up from plate just like everyone else. You don't get to cut to the front of the line by pinkie-swearing that you're different.

Because all women say that.

Do You Really Not Talk During Sex?

4 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're holding that wrong, son. Better set it down before it goes off and you hit yourself in the foot.

The "Fallacy Fallacy" means "Dismissing an argument does not disprove the claim". It does not mean "You may not dismiss an argument just because it is flawed".

You made a series of bad arguments. They have been dismissed. Do you have any good ones?

Do You Really Not Talk During Sex?

4 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your logical fallacy is:

Complex Question.

Do You Really Not Talk During Sex?

4 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your logical fallacy is:

False Dilemma.

Is pegging considered gay ?

4 upvotes · 27 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Who the fuck cares if it's gay?

It's submissive.

Are you seriously thirsty enough to consider letting some bitch make you her bitch?

WTF?

When both TRP and TBP subscribers both claim to have fulfilling love and sex lives, what do you think is happening?

4 upvotes · 23 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I've seen many blue pillers claim they have wonderful and fulfilling love lives.

Some of them are telling the truth.

Others believe they are telling the truth, but have very low expectations, and accept a lot of things that they don't like because they think they have to.

Others are lying to support the argument they wish to make.

I've also seen red pillers claim that their love life did a complete 180 and is now wonderful after switch to the TRP.

They are telling the truth.

Do you believe that there enough romantic failures in both TBP and TRP that balance out the success

TRP's definition of romantic success includes instances of failure. The method is not to never be rejected. It is to not invest in a woman once she has rejected you.

TRP deals with failure not by avoiding it, but by taking risks which embrace it, but limiting its cost.

TRP regards failure like death or taxes... it's something that happens to everyone. The pathology is not failing, but dwelling on failure, being stalled by it, or being upset by it.

Guy hitting on my GF at the bar. Did I handle this alright?

4 upvotes · 21 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Your girls' job is mate-guard themselves socially, your job is to mate-guard them physically.

In other words, if he's just saying things, she should be the one saying things to make him go. If she says things, and he starts doing things anyway, you step in.

How do you think that Patriarchy hurts me?

4 upvotes · 11 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

savage bloodmouths

Sounds like a good name for a band.

But, like most college kids who have not yet had to survive as independent adults, I'm not sure you quite understand how silly you sound.

You think what would sustain your ludicrous idealism in the face of any hardship, but that's because you've never faced any. Real hardship isn't "microaggressions". It's having to deal with an indifferent universe on your own, with no one to help you out.

You are capable of being a vegetarian because what you call the patriarchy created a complex and interdependent society, where all sorts of people (most of whom you probably despise) work together to give you options you would not otherwise have had. All sorts of vegetable foods are mass-produced by large farms, using pesticides and petrochemical-fueled equipment. Truck drivers, most of whom eat meat and would never vote for Bernie Sanders, bring those to a grocery store in large trucks, most of which aren't powered by ethanol or hemp oil, on roads which were paved over the habitat of the Western Arizona Dwarf Mouse. Corporate grocery stores with stockholders sell them to you cheaply, which they are able to do because the cashiers make minimum wage. You pay for them with money given to you in order to support you as a student, which you did not produce anything to earn. If all of that money came from your parents, then you are wealthy. If some of it came from the state, then it was taken in taxes from people who studied engineering or medicine instead of Feminist Film Theory. Many of them vote republican and some even believe in god.

I could go on all day like this, but my meaning is clear.

Your ideology is self-swallowing, because it can only be sustained by the labour of those who do not follow it.

Milo: 'Male Feminism Is a Sort of Disease'

4 upvotes · 26 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

The guy is so conservative

Well, say no more. Obviously, we need to shun him. After all, the left wing is great, and anyone who disagrees is a monster. Please ignore how the left gave us feminists and social justice warriors in the first place. That was just a fluke.

Another working mother rant on Huffpost exposing failures and frustration of Feminism and urging for paid maternity leave.

4 upvotes · 17 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Wealthy countries can afford to waste money. News at 11.

Female prison guard rapes male inmate and the "legalization" of the rape of men by women.

4 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

I am speaking of killing a child before it is born.

I've been cheating on my gf who I love... And I've been telling her lies. I feel guilty and horrible but should I?

4 upvotes · 11 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

Sexual fidelity is important for women, not men.

In the long run, you should be working on conditioning her to accept this, so you don't have to run about trying to hide it.

AWALT: Nigerian girl saved from Boko Haram still misses the time she had with her militant husband

4 upvotes · 6 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Water adapts to the shape of its container.

The only kind of container water will not stay in is one that does not provide enclosing boundaries for the water.

Is there any shred of validity to the whole "legal rape" accusation against ROK?

4 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

If they contrived bullshit for clickbait idiots to masturbate to, I will feel vindicated in my anger - whereas if the dude is a complete tool that constantly posts clickbait shit himself and profits from riding that controversial line, I will at least have some sympathy for those idiots.

That anger is something you have because you're still detoxing. On some level, some bit of you is still surprised and angered that women and feminized men contrive bullshit stories to character-assassinate people.

That's because you still think of anything else as a possibility.

Look, lying and slander is what these people do. If anything they say every happens to be true, it's a coincidence. You can tell they are lying because their lips are moving. Expect nothing else.

Where on TBP does it say that women are better than men, that "just be yourself" is the only dating advice you need or that male self-improvement is bad?

4 upvotes · 30 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I've personally met some therapists who probably need therapy themselves.

They would if "therapy" cured anything. It doesn't.

The way TRP works

4 upvotes · 28 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yep, men are perfectly happy with their lives right now, and everything is going just swimmingly for first-world straight men... until TRP magically sprang up out of nowhere, for no discernable reason at all, and convinced all those perfectly happy men that they weren't happy after all, which they were vulnerable to because they were so happy.

Dude, are you even trying?

Next time you have the urge to post, consult an ordinary five-year-old. Then correct any logical flaws he spots in your proposed text.

CMV: A woman's past sexual behavior with previous boyfriends has nothing to do with you.

4 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A woman is at her kinkiest with the man she is most attracted to. If she isn't a freak in bed, she's not that into you, move on.

UK Police now requiring men to inform them BEFORE having sex or face jailtime. Thoughts?

4 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Look, I'm sorry someone touched you in your no-no spot when you were little. They shouldn't have done that.

But your personal traumas are not the only overriding interest that public policy has.

English man, convicted of no crime, banned from having any sexual activity without warning police 24 hours in advance.

4 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

I wonder if it would be possible to organize local York men in sort of an "I am Sparticus" response... have all of them call the local police every day with their sexual plans for the next 24 hours.

OKCupid's "The Case for an Older Woman" vs Red Pill beliefs

4 upvotes · 14 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, men's preferences are ... invalid?

Have you ever met or known a 30's or older woman having sex with guys 24 and under? If so, what do you think made her successful in achieving this?

4 upvotes · 13 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It gets easier the younger the men are. Young men are thirsty.

"Dear feminists, What we all REALLY want to say to the new wave of Feminists" - Nicole Arbour

4 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What we all REALLY want to say to the new wave of Feminists

Why would I say anything to a feminist?

There is no point in arguing with the insane.

Hillary's Blatant Sexism: 'I just think women in general are better listeners, are more collegial, more open to new ideas'

4 upvotes · 8 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

There are indeed some things women are better at, and some things men are better at. But as a society, we are not ready to have an adult conversation about what those things might be.

Because we can't do that without childish people like Hillary getting involved.

[Discussion] Question for RP and BP: How did you reach your chosen 'pill'?

4 upvotes · 7 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You've discovered what's fundamentally going on with TRP.

It's real talk. And being real talk, it occasionally says negative things about women.

And people who unconditionally worship women and can't stand to hear anything negative about them, ever... well, they hate it. So they try to stop it any way they can.

And red pillers know that if they give these people an inch, they will take a mile, TRP will no longer be real talk, and the mission will be a failure.

So they treat this like a "shit test". Agree and amplify. "Yep. I'm a big misogynist. Lemme show you how misogynist I am." And we deliver our message in the most inflammatory language possible.

This automatically filters out people who can't, or don't want to, mentally separate content from delivery.

You were able to see the sense in it, because you had the ability to mentally put on your big-girl panties and look for what was really going on, instead of conducting ideological litmus tests to see if the people talking were "meanies".

[CMV] RP is Anti-Feminist Activism

4 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So you're still talking just to get the last word in, then?

It's all a game. You write a shit test disguised as a question, I say something snarky to show men how to deal with a shit test, and you start scrambling for the conversational upper hand.

We're not talking about what we're talking about. It's all just powerplays all the way down.

This, students, is why listening to what women say is pointless. Whatever she says has a hidden agenda. She says she wants to talk about anti-feminist activism, but she's really just choosing her words ("powerless") in such a way as to imply you're weak, to see if you'll get all butthurt about it. (Which will show that you really are.)

So what you do is say something pointless. Agree and amplify. Just spout whatever nonsensical bullshit pops into your head. Doesn't matter that the conversation goes nowhere. It was going nowhere anyway.

[CMV] RP is Anti-Feminist Activism

4 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why, do you need help with something?

[CMV] RP is Anti-Feminist Activism

4 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because some men do deserve the effort. They're willing to do the legwork, they just need the information.

"My GF got off the pill without telling me and now she's pregnant" [X-post from sweden-subreddit]

4 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Morality/ethics aren't a thing here in trp.

TRP is a morals discussion free zone. Discussing morals is against the rules here. That doesn't mean you can't have them. It just means the topic isn't allowed here in this subreddit.

Some long text conversation with a new plate, feel free to comment, critique, etc.

4 upvotes · 26 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

long text conversation

Do not have long text conversations.

Q4RP: Why is the banning policy so strong and authoritarian to defend the sub from being 'corrupted by feminist/leftist dogma' if you're all amused masters of Machiavellianism and Game?

4 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you have to say it's not concern trolling, it is.

You're projecting.

You want a TRP with open borders. That's because wanking about discussing abstract concepts endlessly is your comfort zone. You'd rather debate endlessly about the merits of the red pill with every jerkoff who comes along, rather than test it for yourself and see.

And that's precisely what TRP would turn into if we opened the borders. Endless debate.

Men like you are gods in the philosophy department of small liberal-arts universities, and you are shit in nightclubs and social gatherings where human mating dynamics actually happen.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Z2OcbeGqbpU>

[Question for Red Pill] Do you reject or filter some of the common Red Pill ideologies?

4 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

if I said "Look, RP is so terrible, it encourages Nazism. /u/Whisper has admitted to being literally hitler." then anyone who had even an ounce of critical thinking and context would roll their eyes at my statement and immediately know that my claim about you was untrue, and by extension, my claim about RP.

Ah, no, see, there's where you went wrong.

Your claim about me would be false, but the falsity of that claim would not prove that we weren't a bunch of Nazis. We could still be a bunch of Nazis anyway.

This is known as the "Fallacy of fallacies". In other words, just because an argument is flawed or incomplete, doesn't mean the conclusion is false. It's just not proven.

So, in light of that, hateful quotes by feminists do not, in and of themselves, prove that feminism is a hate movement. Additional evidence is required.

One must also prove that the quotes:

- Actually represent feminists in context (not a strawman)
- Actually represent feminism's real agenda and not simply its propaganda. (not cherry-picked, actually representative)

Those two items are what I was unrolling for you. That which is not a strawman is not an instance of the strawman fallacy.

Now, it's easy for you to do the first about TRP. You can find quotes by specific individuals very easily, and you can quote them according to their contextual meaning.

But it's very hard for you to do the second. Because unlike the feminist agenda, which can be analyzed by its effect on public policy, TRP's agenda involves only changes in the behaviour of individual men. And you can't observe them, because we are all anonymous here.

This places me at somewhat of a rhetorical advantage with respect to you.

The real-world results of feminism are available for me to observe, allowing me to critique them.

The real-world results of TRP are not available for you to observe, preventing you from critiquing them.

I can effectively argue that:

- There are real feminists out there saying the crazy things.
- Some of those are in fact feminism's leading thinkers.
- They are actually influencing public policy.

Ergo, no strawman.

The only thing left for you to do, rhetorically, is either

- Argue that those things they said are not actually crazy things, but sensible things that I think are crazy (defend the rhetorical position).
- Throw those feminists under a bus and disavow them (abandon the rhetorical position).

CMV: It's better to be born a woman than a man in a first world country.

4 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

probably more at risk because they are encouraged to be more confident

If you say

men are more at risk because they are encouraged to be more confident and I say

men are more confident because they are forced to take more risks

... we are saying the same thing, but the first sounds like a privilege, the second like a disadvantage.

That's the problem with OP's silly who-has-it-worse question. Anything can be spun to sound like an advantage or a disadvantage.

But the Oppression Olympics is not a zero sum game. Human life does not exist on a continuum between a male supremacist society where men are happy and women are miserable, and a female supremacist society where women are happy and men are miserable.

It exists on a continuum between a society with sex roles, where men and women are happy, and a society without them, where androgynous beings are miserable.

Which view on gender equality?

4 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Define "equal".

TRP knowledge appears sound on the SMP but the vast majority of TRP dudes/leaders don't appear to be at a high SMV level. Will this lead to anger/false bravado like BP describes?

4 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, I'm a TRP leader, and I'm actually a Labrador Retriever who has learned to type with his nose. And my interest in sex really hasn't been all that high since that one trip to the vet.

So, yeah.

But it's the message, not the messenger, right?

CMV: If we Stressed Monogamy the Incel Problem would be less

4 upvotes · 20 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is a stupid thought.

You cannot simply "instruct" the top men to marry. Men are not robots you program. They're not going to just do stuff that's good for you and not them.

Also, you can leave women with no one but unattractive losers to marry, but you cannot force them to love those losers and not cheat on them.

There's no incentive for top men and women to go for monogamy because women like getting with top men, and top men like having harems.

There used to be. It was called slut shaming. Our society is working hard to stamp it out.

[Question for Red Pill] Do you reject or filter some of the common Red Pill ideologies?

4 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I get where you are trying to go with this. The strongest possible interpretation of your argument is Every large-enough group contains idiots, psychopaths, and the insane. I believe TRP's reaction to feminists is driven by a focus on feminists who are idiots, feminists who are psychopaths, and feminists who are insane. This is not relevant to examining the actions and beliefs of sane, moderate feminists.

It is indeed easy to cherry-pick quotes from idiots, psychopaths, or the insane to try to discredit any group. However, the idiotic, the psychopathic, and the insane occupy a special position within the feminist movement in particular.

In many movements, the role of the IPI axis is to stand on street corners holding signs, while the cooler heads do the steering. But this is not always the case. Most groups are led by cool heads, and supported by hotheads. But feminism is led by its radicals and supported by its moderates.

In fact, feminism has gone further than that and simply excommunicated many of its moderates.

Andrea Dworkin and Simone de Beauvoir were not names selected out of a hat because they said insane things we could use to discredit feminism. They were selected by feminists as leaders.

Christina Hoff Sommers and Camille Pagilla are not solely noteworthy for saying moderate things. They are noteworthy because mainstream feminism excommunicated them (for saying moderate things).

It is true that radicals make easy targets. But in feminism's case, the radicals, the psychopaths, the man-haters are steering the ship. And the moderates are only significant for the support they provide to the radical leadership, not for their more moderate opinions, which have close to zero impact.

Why women mock "nice guys"

4 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In my teens I experienced the whole beta orbiter phenomenon people talk about, and although at first I didn't understand, after the first time I figured it out. I felt guilty every time, but I didn't want to give up the attention I was getting so pretended I didn't notice their obvious infatuation with me in hope that if I couldn't "see" it it wasn't my fault for leading them on.

This is guilt over leading men on, not guilt over not having sex with them.

Women have no protective instinct towards men, while men do have one towards women.

This means that women can feel guilt over harming men (such as by leading them on), and men can feel guilt over harming women, but only men feel guilt over failure to rescue women, not vice versa.

When you say:

Whenever someone is in pain, it's just a natural urge for human beings to want to fix the pain and make things better.

You are talking about a protective instinct. Men have this for women. Women have it for children, but not men.

If a woman sees a man suffering, she may feel sympathy or (more often) contempt, but what she doesn't feel is a responsibility to do something.

Which brings us back to where we started:

Since the only thing that would fix the pain is something she is unwilling to do, she has to get rid of the guilt somehow

There is no guilt. Women do not feel guilty for not giving sex to unattractive men. (Although they might feel guilty for exploiting them, as you did.)

The reasons women mock unattractive men, especially those who pursue them:

- Fear for her social standing: If this guy makes a pass at her, a woman believes she is in danger of being mistaken for someone whose SMV is low enough that men like that have a chance with her. Thus, in order to combat the perceived threat to her social standing, she must characterize that hope as effrontery of the highest order.
- Because policing the behaviour of others is a form of social power.
- To shame betas into orbiting: The line used is that if you didn't orbit with no expectations, you are a bad person. The orbiting is taken for granted, so that the expectations can be cast as a demand by an entitled asshole.

This, of course, is a lie... which is why you felt guilty. Any woman who doesn't suffer from Asperger's syndrome knows full well when the line is crossed between low-effort favours between acquaintances, and courtship. Any woman knows that if she accepts courtship, she is leading men on, exploiting their weaknesses for personal gain, whether it be material or simple ego-validation.

Since women have no incentive to stop exploiting weak men through their sex drive, or through shaming and publicly browbeating them, we at TRP do not address women at all. We neither ask nor expect that they change their behaviour. Instead, we teach men how not to get exploited.

[Question for Red Pill] Do you reject or filter some of the common Red Pill ideologies?

4 upvotes · 17 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Poe's Law applies.

We are unable to construct any straw feminist so ridiculous that we can't also find actual feminists who have said that actual thing.

Call for selective abortion of male babies? Check.

Call for extermination of all males? Check.

Call for mothers to not nurture or care for their male offspring? Check.

Calling male children "future rapists"? Check.

Call for all males to be castrated at puberty? Check.

Drinking out of mugs labeled "Male Tears"? Check.

What's left? In order to construct a "straw feminist", we would have to make it more reasonable and sane than an actual feminist, because feminists have exhausted all the relevant insane things that we could think of for them to say.

The Crime of Rape - A Legal Primer

4 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you have ever seen a true cross-examination done by an experienced trial lawyer, then you know her initial lie to the cops, even if it makes it this far (which is unlikely), will fall flat at trial.

Your legal knowledge is indeed detailed, but you show an undue amount of confidence in the legal process.

This is probably because your window into the process was selective, giving you a biased sample. When a victim or witness was caught in a lie, you saw it. You were immediately made aware of the lie. When a victim or witness was not caught in a lie, it was not brought to your attention (because it was not detected).

Therefore, every lie you were aware of was detected.

Empirically, we know that men are falsely convicted of rape with non-trivial frequency, because many convicted "rapists" have later been exonerated by DNA evidence.

In order to believe that false claims of rape are always detected, we would then we required to believe that all erroneous convictions of rape are cases of mistaken identity... in other words, that both juries and the state are frequently wrong about who committed a rape, but never ever wrong about whether a rape occurred.

giving your number VS taking her number.

4 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Never give out your number unless you just got hers, you pussy.

You think a girl is going to take the initiative? Ha.

Think I may have found a unicorn, please advise. Also: critiquing my New Year's Eve approach.

4 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

You wrote three pages about this girl, and you never even had sex with her.

You have oneitis.

Ten Ways Feminism Has Harmed Women

4 upvotes · 12 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

But you come off as a giant, closed-minded cunt who is welcome to her cats if they can tolerate you.

They don't have a choice, the door of her studio apartment is firmly closed.

Meow means meow!

is feminism a device for western economies to conquer developing countries?

4 upvotes · 11 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yeah, I'm over here crying in my soup.

Which is a shame, because it was really good soup, and now it's all salty.

Perhaps you could dry my tears by telling me about the good old days when the law prohibited women from having jobs. What law was that, again?

Should I give up on men or continue

4 upvotes · 1 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Let's see:

- Random, stream-of-consciousness writing.
- Wants answers, but doesn't ask any actual questions.
- Unable to express what you want in any understandable way.
- Working on a PhD in Comp Sci.

... do you have Asperger's Syndrome?

If you do, you need to remember that others cannot read your mind. They don't know what you want unless you tell them.

You are clearly upset about something, but I actually cannot tell what that something is.

Male Feminists: a Life in Blue

4 upvotes · 30 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is actually quite insightful.

Men don't become losers because they are feminists; they become feminists because they are losers.

Male feminism is often a way for losers to repackage their weakness as decency.

Response to "why don't you pay for me"

4 upvotes · 27 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

"Why should I?"

"Dun feel like it."

"I don't do that."

"Because you are not a whore"

"Gifts are given, not demanded."

"Are you incapable of feeding yourself?"

Need RP analysis

4 upvotes · 23 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

You are still treating women like adults.

You discuss politics with adults. You do not discuss politics with children. If children express political opinions, you chuckle, because it's cute.

Visceral reaction to Obamacare Boy

4 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The disturbing part is not how this person looks (although that is disturbing), but that, on some level, someone in the Obama administration thought men might identify with this character.

Now, some leftoids hate men, some don't, we all know that. That's not the issue. The issue is that leftoids do not understand masculinity.

If you want to drive a big truck or a powerful sports car, own a gun, build your own business and answer to no one, learn to fight, climb a cliff with a rope and harness (or even with one), brawl with that stranger who picked a fight, risk your savings bringing your new invention to market, hunt lions with a spear, speak your mind regardless of what the world thinks, they are confused. They don't know why anyone would ever value fun over safety, thoughts over feelings, individuals over groups.

They're just puzzled. They ask why we don't want free stuff. Sometimes (valuing thoughts over feelings) we explain at great length that free stuff isn't free. And we get bogged down in a tedious argument.

But the real answer is no, we do not want free stuff. We want to work, and earn, and pay for own stuff. We want self-determination and fulfillment and a sense of accomplishment with our stuff. We want to make, create, build, invent, design, and repair. We want to do things.

And pajama-boy doesn't. He doesn't want to get dressed, set down his warm milk, and leave the house to do something. If that creature is what the left thinks a man is or should be, then they will never be able to understand me or any of my bros enough to even have a conversation with us.

Because nothing we say will make any sense to them.

How do I stop being a hurt boy and become a man?

4 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

How do I stop being a hurt boy and become a man?

You keep getting hurt until you wake up one day and find that the pain is so familiar that you can bear it and move forward.

An open letter to feminist students (from a guy who shoots straight)

4 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/MensRights

Never attempt to reason with a feminist. If they could be reasoned with, they wouldn't be feminists.

What annoys you about others who subscribe to your "pill" philosophy?

4 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're confusing "predictive power" with "good results".

I said that truth is predictive power. I did not say that the truth is most beneficial belief in all situations. Predictive power is only one of many kinds of power.

A delusion may, in many circumstances, benefit someone more than a realistic view. But it will never, can never, give someone more accurate predictive capabilities than a truthful belief.

Believing in god might make other people like me better, and be to my net benefit. But it will never give me the ability to more accurately predict the results of prayer.

What did this guy do wrong?

4 upvotes · 14 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I've had to kick hundreds of men out of my bar for creepy behavior, many of them were very attractive.

Attractive doesn't just mean "good-looking", especially not where men are concerned. Many extremely handsome men become unattractive the instant they open their mouths.

To me, a creep is someone who doesn't leave me alone once I tell him to leave me alone.

Exactly. "Creepy" is the female word for the combination of two factors:

1. I find this man unattractive.
2. I am worried this man will not take a hint and go away.

Without #1, you never get to #2.

It's more of a threatening presence than an "eeew" feeling

Yes, exactly. The "threat" in this case is a social one. You are in danger of being perceived as low-value (since an unattractive man thinks he has a chance with you), and at risk of being embarrassed (by having to be blunt and make a scene to make his attentions cease).

"Fake it until you make it". Does it work?

4 upvotes · 7 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

I don't believe in common sense, I believe in empiricism. That which has observable consequences exists. Anything else doesn't.

Only the outside matters. "Who we are inside" is just some idea we made up to explain the consistency of the outside over time.

The only reason that the idea of a "personality" ever took hold is that you can usually predict people's behaviour with it. But if some idea of your "personality" can no longer predict your behaviour, then it's no longer your personality, regardless of how recent that change is.

You have no personality. Only habits.

How much would legalizing prostitution actually change things for angry, 'frustrated' incels?

4 upvotes · 2 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Still, I just don't see how legalizing prostitution would do much to change the attitudes of many of these "frustrated" men. I mean, if a person is willing to commit rape or even murder due to sexual frustration – both of which are obviously highly illegal – I have a hard time believing they wouldn't first be willing to commit the misdemeanor crime of hiring a sex worker so legality doesn't really seem to be the issue.

The problem is access. Let me give you an example.

I am a transmuscular man undergoing hormone therapy. Because of our society's transphobic bias against the transmuscular, the anabolic steroids required for my therapy are illegal. I have been forced to obtain them on the black market.

I fortunate enough to have been exposed to good, reliable sources for my medicine. But there may be other transmuscular men out there may not have the same resources. They may be unable to find a good source. They may be afraid to break the law. They may be unable to afford the medicine they need.

Do you seriously think that these transmuscular men would not be helped by legalizing hormone therapy?

Pornography Addict

4 upvotes · 26 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

Your problem isn't the pornography you are using to fill the hole in your life.

It is the hole in your life that you are filling with pornography.

Nofap treats the symptom, not the disease. That's why it doesn't work. You aren't unable to connect with people because you watch videos and jerk off. Neither watching videos, nor jerking off, nor doing both together, damages social abilities. However, damaged social abilities cause you to seek stimulation that mimics human connection, but without the parts that are too difficult for those damaged social abilities.

So what happened when you were 13? Apart, of course, from the tail end of puberty.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

4 upvotes · 25 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The fact that you feel belittled is not a real problem. No one owes you courtesy. Maybe if you tried treating men like human beings, they would actually care about being nicer to you.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

4 upvotes · 24 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't sit up at night. I cry myself to sleep while clutching my big stuffed unicorn.

Seriously, however, you misapprehend the issue. You're right to expect him to take responsibility for making himself attractive. The problems are:

- You have no idea how he should do that.
- Despite this, you persist in giving him vague and bad advice.
- And ridiculing him for not knowing how already.
- And getting in the way of people who do know what he should do, and are trying to help him.

No one expects or needs you to help. But if you aren't volunteering to help, shut up and get out of the way of those of us who are. Because picking on people less well off than you is useless and contemptible.

I'll help him. You just go sit down and stop being a bully.

CMV: r/TheRedPill has become ridiculously extreme

4 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why, exactly, do I care if you think TRP is "justified"? What I care about is that it works. If I have to say something batshit crazy to help men rediscover their testicles and finally have some happiness in their lives, then batshit crazy, here I come.

I say some true things, some exaggerations with a core of truth, some crazy things that help men do the right thing, and some stuff purely intended to trigger feminists and make them cry. And I'm not going to tell you which is which.

Some of the things you think are true are exaggerations. Some of the things you think are batshit crazy are literally true. And you can't tell for yourself. Because you're still hung up on what's "acceptable". You cannot measure sanity, or truth, because your yardstick consists of "what is acceptable". Your mind is a dustbin of other people's ideas, and your only apparent criterion for an idea's sanity is its similarity to ideas you have already accepted.

You aren't supposed to believe everything you read on TRP. You couldn't even if you wanted to, because some of the things contradict other things. Hardly a surprise given that there are many different people writing. It exists to say "unacceptable" things. It's up to the reader to figure out which ones are useful.

And I'm not going to help you with that if you talk to me like a bitch, or listen to me like a sperg.

Why do white men have to let it be known they don't find black women attractive

4 upvotes · 14 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not your face I find unattractive, but your (collective) attitude.

Most of y'all come at relationships from this mental position of "men ain't shit", and "I am a tough sassy bitch who don't take no shit from no one". Even if you are less obnoxious than that about it, you pride yourselves on being tough.

Well, I'm not into tough and dominant. If I wanted to have sex with a tough, dominant person, I'd just masturbate. I like warm, friendly, emotionally open, submissive, sweet.

If I happen to meet a black woman like that, I will give her the same chance anyone else has. But I tend to avoid black women because you are less likely to be like that.

Look, I get it. It's your culture. The battle of the sexes is a nuclear exchange over on your side of the fence. That is not your personal fault. But your culture still sucks, and it's psychologically unhealthy, and I don't want to be involved. A good relationship is cooperative, not adversarial.

What Happened to Heartiste?

4 upvotes · 31 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

A lot of people flirt with racist ideas when they take the red pill.

This is because racism is held to be off-limits as a moral evil by our culture, rather than as simply an incorrect idea. Thus, when people take the red pill and reject moral enforcement of socio-political opinions, racism becomes "okay".

Racism is morally okay. It's just factually incorrect. Not a lot of people make that leap of logic.

Especially when confronted with racial groups in their country that happen to have pathological cultures.

CMV it is impossible to conclude that any TRP tenant is wrong by misusing it.

4 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Are you dim?

I just told you I don't care about your political orthodoxy tests, and that I think your moral compass is hopelessly skewed and broken. And you respond by trying to call me a bad person?

That's like telling me that I should believe in god because if I don't, he'll send me to hell, or that if I don't believe in invisible pink unicorns, they'll trample me. What you are trying to browbeat me with would only have power over me if I bought into your worldview, in which case you would have no need.

So, if you want me to value your moral judgments, then sell me on your worldview. I promise to listen with a reasonable amount of objectivity. Tell me why thoughtcrime is so terrible. Tell me why beliefs and attitudes are more morally significant than actions. Tell me why your opinion of other people's feelings matters. Tell me why being a racist is more obnoxious than talking in movie theatres.

Have you got anything positive to say about your political agenda, or is yelling "burn the witch!" your only trick?

If gender roles are bad, is culture also bad? Why or why not?

4 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I feel oppressed by left-wing notions of morality. They are a social construct with no basis in reality, and they straitjacket me into roles and social expectations that I have no interest in fulfilling.

That means I can do whatever I want, right?

How to handle long distance plates?

4 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

/u/OmLaLa is not 100% correct here.

You fuck them when you want, they fuck other when they want, you fuck others when you want.

The piece that's missing is "and you next them if you want".

If you want your plates faithful to you, make it clear that if they run around on you, it's over. If you don't care, then do nothing. It's up to you.

You are not forcing anyone to do anything, you are only setting the conditions of being with you, which is something you are absolutely free to do. You are under no obligation to make deal X or Y, so long as anyone is free to either take it or refuse it.

I usually don't allow plates or FWBs to see other men. I've made an exception or two under unusual circumstances (had a plate who was married, shared an FWB with my bro who is another EC, etc), but generally I like my women faithful. If you have enough SMV to make women accept that deal, then it's perfectly fine to offer it.

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillars themselves.

4 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I guess we must be a cult, then. Good, I can't wait to start exploiting my legions of mindless followers for money!

Do you really believe that we take everything we say literally?

4 upvotes · 18 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ooooooh yes, we do.

And we (gun owners) say it that way for a reason. Because the consequences of assuming a gun is not loaded can be disastrous.

The absolutist language is precisely and deliberately used, to instill good safety habits. You treat a gun as loaded even when you are 100% certain that it isn't, because you just unloaded it and checked it twice. Because one day, you will make a mistake, and that gun actually will be loaded. And when that day comes, you need to be in habit of always treating any gun as loaded.

Are betas being bred out of the gene pool?

4 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Alpha and beta are sets of behaviours, not genes.

What type of women do Redpill tactics work on?

4 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't need to.

You are not my audience.

Female strategic response to TRP & PUA

4 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ah yes...except that many women have wasted years of their youth being plates or FWB's in the hopes of making a man want an LTR

Indeed.

And the reason those women are in that position is that they are the kind of woman who searches for the right man, instead of being the right woman. People who blame their failures on others are not good relationship material.

If a man gets friendzoned, it's his own fault. Period. His job is to get her interested in sex, and he failed at it. If he tries to shift blame to her, then it's probably that same weakness that made him sexually unattractive.

If a woman gets plated, it's her fault. Period. Her job is to get him emotionally invested, and she failed at it. If she tries to shift blame to him, then it's probably that selfishness that made her a dumper and a not keeper.

You can take responsibility for what you want, and figure out how to get it, or you can blame others for not automatically just wanting to give it to you. But which kind of person would you rather be in a relationship with?

Female strategic response to TRP & PUA

4 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Please keep doing this.

It helps me to spot and avoid women who are looking for commitment-minded men, rather than looking for ways to make a man want an LTR. I will stick to women who have learned that they must incentivize that which they wish to see.

Men who respond to the stick, get the stick. Men who don't respond to the stick, get the carrot.

Reconnecting to your natural alpha self. Is red pill progress possible if you never had one?

4 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is no such thing as a "basic personality".

What we call a "personality" is a collection of habitual behaviours. Now, those behaviours may be genetic or cultural or both in origin. And they may be highly mutable, difficult but possible to change, or nearly impossible to alter.

But how you behave is your personality. There is no such thing as "the natural self", only a myriad of possible selves, all of them valid if they are expressed.

HL solid 7 (soft 1) 33F in relationship with LL40yo beta. Can I do anything to get him to swallow the pill?

4 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I don't think selling myself is the right approach here.

You're whacky.

I cannot decide whether you are some sort of attempt at satire, or honestly clueless.

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1lr2jt/an_open_letter_to_single_mothers/

Marriage??

4 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

Now my "wife" keeps saying that she loves me, will do anything for me, is trying to address her vaginismus, has told her mother about getting married, etc. She agrees that she has practically destroyed my life but says she wants to stay and make it better. I flatly tell her that she does not love me or she wouldn't have done what she did. My resentment level continues to grow every time she utters "I love you" as I see it as a lie.

It is a lie.

Think of it this way. There is no such thing as vaginismus of the mouth.

A woman who wanted to please you, who wanted you to be happy, and who found herself totally unable to have intercourse... would have long ago found other ways to get you off.

Did she even try? No? Then it's an excuse. She didn't feel like having sex, and she didn't care what that did to you. She only cared about having a good enough excuse to keep it from blowing back on her.

the main point the rest have is that since I am on the wrong side of 45, I have no choices left and that I should compromise so I am not alone in later life.

You're already alone. You're just alone + the additional burden of living with someone who doesn't give a shit about you or your happiness. If you wind up alone and never get laid again you will still be better off because at least you will not be experiencing daily feelings of rejection and being unwanted.

And if leave, and work on the things we talk about here, you will get laid again. How much depends on how hard you work.

But it's not just about getting laid. It's about being cared about. It's about seeing a woman's eyes light up when she looks at you. When was the last time you saw that?

What do you think you need to do?

TRP dread vs. TBP standards.

4 upvotes · 14 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh yes, the old "all non trpers are fat and ugly" chestnut.

It's a chestnut TBP loved the flavour of when it was "TRPers are obese virgin neckbeards living in their mothers' basements".

Now, when it's starting to come out that many of us are in startlingly good shape, all of a sudden that kind of ad hominem argument is just soooooooooo childish, and you've all totally gone beyond that.

When, pray tell? Last Tuesday?

It seems your new chestnut is "my fat body is Healthy at Any Size, unlike your body which just looks healthy, and just performs like it's healthy, but actually isn't healthy at all because you have weird big muscles and take scary steroids which are dangerous hormones totally unlike my nice safe birth control pills."

Good luck with that.

TRP Slut-shaming compendium

4 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What you're seeing in this conversation is the way that women aren't used to negative consequences. Therefore they think any negative consequence to their actions is a special action targeted at them. And they usually assume it's an attempt to punish or control them.

You call sluts sluts because that's what they are. You avoid them (except possibly for quick easy sex) because a slut isn't what you want (except for quick easy sex).

Sluts think you hate them, hate what they are doing, and are deeply personally hurt and offended by it, and desperately want them to stop. Because otherwise why would you be imposing a negative consequence?

The joke, of course, is that you aren't. The negative consequence is already there. You're just not making any special effort to protect her from it. This she immediately mistakes for malice, because she doesn't realize that others have been protecting her for her whole life.

She thinks that someone's feelings getting hurt automatically indicates that someone else was being mean.

I think I'm getting the hang of this.

4 upvotes · 11 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

Her: hey loser

Me: have lunch with me.

You do not have the hang of this yet.

Your attention, your desire, is a reward to her. You just rewarded her for insulting you. You must regard yourself as the prize until you make women believe it. Then it will become true.

Let me give you an example:

Her: Hey loser

You: Does that work on your little boy toys?

This turns the neg around. She is trying to suggest that she is high quality because she can talk to men like this. You suggest that she is low quality because she hangs out with weak men who have no self respect.

Never tolerate disrespect. Either punish it, laugh it off so she feels three inches tall, or if she won't behave herself, next her. Never let a woman walk on you. They will forgive cruelty, but never weakness.

BP: If you have a teenaged son who discovered TRP and he felt it was having a positive effect on his dating life, what would you say to him?

4 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I've seen the body builder long game. It's not pretty.

Yeah, you have to be governor of a state you can't pronounce. Then, afterwards, people keep bumping your selfie stick.

Do RPer's really want to see women as human or beneath them?

4 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It isn't about what I want. Women aren't evolved to be independent of male leadership, and things don't work out very well for them when they don't have it.

A question for the blue pillers

4 upvotes · 29 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So what do TBP readers owe to TRP readers?

Help an autistic firefighter with women

4 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't tell me to go after younger girls because I am too autistic to interact with them. She has been the only woman that remotely gave me any kind of attention and for once in my life, I am genuinely in love with a woman.

Stop. Just stop. What did you just say to me?

You just said "Whisper, I'm going to ignore the advice you have already given, please tell me how to get the results I want anyway?"

That's not how it works.

You have oneitis. As long as you continue to have oneitis, and especially as long as you actively want to have oneitis, I cannot help you. You are not ready to be helped.

Go fuck up until things get bad enough that you're ready to listen. Until then, stop wasting my time.

"Sexual strategy is amoral"

4 upvotes · 26 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's a reasonable argument, but it's wrong.

Because band-aids don't fix bullet holes.

We're in a hole that took generations to dig, and it would take generations to fix it. The time for "how do we fix society?" was decades ago. Today is the time for "Here's how not to go down with the ship."

I'm not going to ask all the young men who look to me for help and advice to sacrifice themselves for a society that has abandoned them. I'm teaching them to be cads instead of nice boys, because being cads is the only thing that's left for them. Healthy societies reward prosocial behaviour. We are not those societies.

The other day, a young man wrote to me, wanting advice about steroids. Not to "get mad gainz, bro", but because he is 24 years old and his testosterone levels came back as the average numbers of an 85 year old.

And the doctors wouldn't give him hormone replacement therapy. "It's within normal range." Yeah, right. No, his doctors are just the products of being raised in a society that is profoundly averse to and suspicious of masculinity. That's why Bruce Jenner can have his dick chopped off and pump himself full of female hormones because he wants to be feminine and we call that "courage". That's why women can take certain steroid hormones because they want to have sex without becoming pregnant. That's why it's called a "war on women" if we want women to pay for those hormones themselves.

And that's why a man is felon if he puts male hormones into his body because he wants to be more masculine. Even if he is starting from a place of being deficient.

So what do you want me to tell this young man?

"Be a good boy, obey the rules, and work to change society. Maybe someday your sons will be able to get the medical treatment they need, if you manage to have any with your super-low testosterone levels."

I did not tell him that.

I walked him through the process of how to obtain, on the black market, and how to properly use, the Testosterone Cypionate his doctors should have given him.

You read that right, it's gotten to the point where men can't get even their own doctors to care about their problems, and I have to step in for them, with no medical training, nothing but some practical experience using steroids.

I help other men in similar situations about sex, about their relationships, about marriage, about their children who they are not allowed to see. Sometimes I read my fanmail and I get angry, because I'm not a doctor, or a lawyer, or a psychologist, I'm not the guy who was supposed to help these kids. I'm just a smart man who faced the same sorts of problems when I was their age. But I'm all they've got. Because the doctors, lawyers, psychiatrists, lawmakers, and even their own parents have failed them.

So I am going to tell these kids to follow the rules, and sacrifice their happiness for someone else's? No I am not. I am going to tell them to grab everything they can with both hands, and kick anyone who gets in the way. Because morality is a contract, and they aren't the ones who tore it up.

If society wants them back, it can start caring about their happiness.

"Sexual strategy is amoral"

4 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How could someone strip me of being a strong, chiseled manbeast? That's what I take steroids for.

I have the same risk of testicular cancer as everyone else.

I have more credibility on steroids than before.

TRPers are Milhouse grown up.

4 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Methinks gentlesir doth protest too much.

"Sexual strategy is amoral"

4 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I will not defend the morality of a "lying whore",

We don't live in you. We live in society. And defend a lying whore is precisely what they will do.

The moderation policy of this subreddit is of the devil.

4 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, I am a man of wealth and taste.

Your definition of "hate speech" as some sort of special thing that must be silenced rather than refuted is silly, because "hate speech" is simply whatever hurts your feelings.

getting a male partner

4 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not too bad for men.

Women might not like it, though. Because men build everything, repair everything, invent everything, maintain everything. If men stop caring about women altogether, women are going to freeze or starve to death.

And it won't matter how much "technology" there is to address this problem, because women won't have it unless men give it to them. And why would we?

What are the effects of women and men not fulfilling their original gender roles.

4 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think a tacit admission of widespread promiscuity is part of why there is a social policy to vaccinate school aged kids against STDs, and why the gov't is pushing for unmarried girls to use from the shot to the pill.

The reason for this is not the decline in values, but the delay in marriage. You can expect a girl to keep her legs shut until 16, but not until 28.

However, I do not think other cultures are 'taking over'

I didn't say "taken over". I said "replaced in primacy". Within a few more generations, we will no longer be a political, economic, or military superpower. Someone else will take our place.

Revenge Porn laws only serve to protect women from the consequences of their bad decisions, reminding us once again that women have no agency and should be treated like children.

4 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because you say so?

Nah.

The 'girls are goofy as shit' phase

4 upvotes · 20 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

This is the beginning of stage 5.

Smart women and the CC

4 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't confuse college-educated with smart.

Only a few degrees require more than the ability to look up an answer or bullshit your way through a paper.

Plate sent this pic from her office. Is this a good sign, guize??

4 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

The best response is usually the outrageous thing you think of as a joke.

It's going to take a little while before you stop being surprised at how the best moves are what you think of as "over the top shit".

I would've gone with "Makes think about plugging all three of your holes".

How do you calculate someone's n-count?

4 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed. N-count is a quick and dirty way of describing a much more complex evaluation.

I would prefer a girl who kissed three boys in high school to a girl who sucked three dicks in the same nightclub. Obviously.

But I would also shun a girl who kissed seven different men in the same nightclub on the same night.

How do you calculate someone's n-count?

4 upvotes · 18 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

- Would what you just did be considered cheating if you were in a monogamous relationship?
- If yes, has activity with this person increased your n-count before?
- If no, increase n by one.

UN Women are endorsing anti-male discrimination

4 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/MensRights

Because they think it makes a difference. That's not evidence that it does.

How can thebluepill get away with calling itself a satire sub with humor?

4 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not masochism, it's a rage addiction and it's my guilty pleasure.

Heh heh heh heh heeee heeee.

8===D

How can thebluepill get away with calling itself a satire sub with humor?

4 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TBP is a group of people coming together to laugh at and vent frustrations with TRP.

What jumps out at me when people say is that you don't have to be frustrated.

It's not like TRP came and found you. When something "frustrates" me, it's because I don't like it, and can't avoid. I don't go seeking out things to be frustrated by.

That's just masochism.

Men, even TRP men, love women very much.

4 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You won't get far trying to AMOG around here. No one is going to think you're a tough guy just because you take a few potshots at a founder.

If you had an actual point to make, you'd have assembled a coherent argument for it by now. You may not be aware of it, but playing Internet Tough Guy is a tacit admission that you have nothing useful to say.

If I'm wrong about that, and you do have something useful to say, if you're the next EC sensation, or great TRP writer and thinker, then out with it. Here's your chance. Educate us all. Improve our lives.

But you'll excuse me if I don't hold my breath.

Nerdy hobbies?

4 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't pick your hobbies based on what women like.

Women aren't your mission. You are your mission.

There are some things you need to have in your life for self-improvement. You must lift. You must have a skill that makes money. You must have some masculine hobbies that teach you skills like fighting, or repairing stuff, or creating things. But beyond that, do what the fuck you want. The goal here is not to become some sort of automaton who only does things that are rewarded with pussy.

Pussy is a commodity, like fresh fruit. Also like fruit, it isn't very rare or very interesting. A certain amount of it is healthy in your diet, but once you have enough of it, at high enough quality, to satisfy you, why on earth would you stop doing something you like just because you might miss a chance at some fruit?

No women is going to get wet and excited from the guy who has a level 18 paladin in a D&D group yet the guy who travels can go 100mph+ on his crotch rocket makes girls weak around him

Be both.

I fight Mexican boxers at a ghetto gym, and I play video games. I practice Brazillian JiuJitsu and I play in an RPG run by /u/humansockpuppet. (And what a glorious cutthroat jungle of Machiavellianism the plot of that is...) The point of the red pill isn't for you to find new ways to help you kick yourself. It isn't here to help you exchange "women ruling your life with their demands" for "women ruling your life with their sexual tastes".

Pussy is like sleep. The more you chase it, the more it recedes from you. The more you set up the right conditions and stop giving a fuck, the more it comes and finds you. You don't become a real man by slaying pussy. You become a real man, and pussy slaying happens as a side effect.

Never be ruled by fear. Not fear of violence, not fear of loneliness, not fear of failure, not fear of embarrassment, not fear of women's disapproval.

If a woman gives you shit, laugh at her. It's a shit test. Agree and amplify. Deflect into another frame. Say something clever. Or just fucking next her. The world is full of women, and they all have cunts.

Would traditional patriarchy work without religion ?

4 upvotes · 7 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Is the weakening of religious influence linked to the weakening of the traditional patriarchy ? Are the most strongly patriarchal societies usually the most religious ones ?

Religion has no values. It is simply a tool for enforcing whatever values society has. If the values change, the religion changes. Look at christianity. Used to be a tool for establishing patriarchy and stable families, now it's a tool for dissembling families and enforcing female leadership.

How do you make the youngsters not have premarital sex without controlling them with religion ?

You need to understand the no-premarital-sex thing in context.

For a long time in prechristian jewish culture, premarital sex wasn't forbidden, it is impossible. Sex was marriage. A man who took a woman was responsible for her, and their children. That's what marriage was. The ceremony was a formality. Thus, you couldn't have premarital sex, only marital sex, and adultery. That's why the ten commandments forbid the latter but not the former. It wasn't a thing.

As the nomadic, herder jews settled down and began farming, marriage as a formal relationship grew into a thing in its own right. That's the era when the bible starts to talk about "fornication", the act of having sex without marrying. This became more of a thing as polygyny fell out of fashion, creating the idea that a man couldn't marry some women he'd had sexual relations with, because he had previously married another one.

The next change to was twofold; the ongoing development of industrial technology, and the "equality" meme.

Industrial development shifted economies away from physical labour and towards mental and social tasks as trades for income. As this happened, more and more education was required before youngsters could ascend to economic adulthood. This began to delay the age of marriage. When a girl can reasonably be expected to be married at 16 to 18 years of age, society can reasonably expect her to keep her legs shut until then. If she's going to be married at 21, it's a riskier proposition. At 25, forget about it. At 28, absurd. And when young people cannot afford a home or to support children, they cannot afford to get married.

The final blow was the equalist meme. The notion that women must have power and authority within the family at least equal to that of men, not merely as a safeguard against exploitation or unhappiness, but because anything else was held to be exploitation in and of itself.

Now it was no longer normal and acceptable to a young woman (16 to 18) to marry a man who had lived long enough to establish his career (28 to 40s) and be able to afford a home, a wife and a child.

Industrial development forced men to wait longer and longer to get married. Equalism forced women to wait longer and longer as well.

Thus the task of "saving it for marriage" developed from automatic to easy to difficult to unrealistically absurd.

Religion does not work for enforcing premartial abstinence. Only early marriage does that.

The only way to restore strong families is revise the social changes that prevent women from marrying young.

Mattress Girl just made a porno...and called it performance art.

4 upvotes · 6 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm only familiar with Marxism-Leninism from the viewpoint of its proselytizers, not the standard Soviet citizen who had it imposed on him from above. I wouldn't be surprised if most of them never bought into the bullshit at all.

Dunno how recently you came here, but from my experience, a lot of the decay you see around you now is relatively recent in appearance. The seeds were there, but it wasn't until the baby boomers' parents got old enough to step aside and hand them the reins that things got really bad.

Ironically, this was after the collapse of the Soviet Union.

Blue Pill refuses to recognize the monster they created.

4 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You haters are fun.

It's so easy to reduce you from rhetoric to schoolyard insults, simply by exploring the ramifications of your deviant philosophy.

You have little or no notion of what creates a community, what makes societies strong, or what makes people actually abide by codes of morality. You're only interested in selling codes of morality you invented, which pretty much boil down to "Give me all the cookies, for nothing".

Well, good luck with that.

[Serious Questions] Does the red pill hate women?

4 upvotes · 30 May 2015 · /r/askTRP

This is not the correct subreddit for your question:

Here we have Red Pill Discussion for personalized questions about specific situations, people, scenarios.

You want PurplePillDebate .

I am Karen Straughan [girlwriteswhat]; Ask Me Anything.

4 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

would be surprised at how a lot of the animosity is generated by readers rather than leaders, if you will.

I had begun to sense that.

Still, those readers, not what other people think of them, are my primary responsibility here. Everywhere else, and throughout the rest of their lives, people have been vastly more concerned about these men than for them. My self-chosen task is to be more concerned for them than about them. They wouldn't accept me as any sort of leader if they didn't see me doing that.

So, yes, they're angry young men. But I will only act to rein in that anger when it is hurting them, not just other people's delicate feelings. I don't expect them to be able to perfectly fathom the nuances of how our culture feels about men and how to respond. If they were superhuman enough to already know how to run between the raindrops like that, they wouldn't be here in the first place.

It's symptomatic, I think, of a much deeper malaise in our culture, when even the "men's rights activists" have a problem with men being angry in a cordoned-off space that they created for being angry in. If we cannot get self-identified MRAs to sympathetic to young men's frustration, how can we possibly hope to persuade society as a whole to have sympathy for men?

Martial arts recommendation for a beginner

4 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/askTRP

Select the teacher, not the style.

TRP is at its best discussing male sexual strategy and teaching men how better themselves. At its worst when posting about women's flawed character for the billionth time. Should a TRPAngerPhase subreddit exist?

4 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Be the change you wish to see in the world.

What MRA's could (and Should) learn from Gamergate (xpost)

4 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

You're basically arguing that women are psychopaths.

Semantics.

You are basically arguing here that what DS says cannot be true because it says something very negative about women. How exactly is this different from crying "misogynist"?

Let's talk about facts instead of feels. One of two things is true:

- Women are incapable, or permanently and stubbornly unwilling, to empathize with adult male suffering, to a sufficient extent that MRA tactics of appealing to female sympathy are untenable.
- Woman are willing to, and capable of, empathizing with adult male suffering to a sufficient extent that MRA tactics (of appealing to female sympathy) will work to a sufficient degree to make them worth investing time and energy in.

Only one of these contentions can be true. Exactly one of these contentions must be true. We are now back in the sane and navigable realm of factual debate. What evidence is there for each claim?

Redpillers, what is your advice for someone not from the west?

4 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Don't come to the west."

An ex-PUA said that most promiscuous men have issues (!)

4 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed.

PUAs are generally men with superior pickup skills who nevertheless have failed to have the dark enlightenment and awaken into cynicism. They tend to measure themselves and other men by how much "pussy" they get... failing to take into account that the pussy in question is attached to vapid twenty year old girls whose opinions we wouldn't trust on "what television shows are good" much less "who is an admirable man".

This of course is to be expected, given that they function within a gynocratic society. A man who has not yet awakened to the fact that bitches ain't shit is of course going to overvalue their opinions, given that those opinions govern his sexual satisfaction, and thereby to some degree his happiness.

Girl leaves 3 year relationship for Alpha, goes crawling back when he won't take her

4 upvotes · 17 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think I blame this particular woman too much.

Remember that the blue pill is dispensed just as eagerly to women as it is to men. The bind she is in is that she thinks she is supposed to love Mr. Reliable NiceGuy Teddybear, and she can't. This is why she says she "hates her submissive side".

Because, like most women, at the same time her submissive nature makes her wet at the thought of powerful, dominant men who seize her and use her roughly, her submissive nature also makes her listen to the consensus that she's supposed to love sweet, thoughtful, considerate guys.

The only thing this woman has done wrong is get in a relationship with someone she wasn't attracted to. She hasn't even betrayed him. She's just struggling with the urge to, struggling because she's ashamed of being submissive.

This is no different than a blue-pill guy being in a relationship with a "strong independent woman who don't need no man", with "lots of curves" and "more of her to love"... and feeling a desperate urge to fuckhammer the local college girls from behind, while spanking them and pulling their hair. No amount of this guy being a considerate relationship partner will make up for his inability to ignite her passion, in the same way that the most wonderful massage in the world means nothing when you are parched with thirst.

All Women Are Like That, but in this case, what she is "like" is submissive and horny.

Why are people against the MRM ?

4 upvotes · 14 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because feminism is a power grab, pure and simple. It's not about rights, it's not about equality, it's not about liberation or freedom. It isn't now, and it never was.

It's about one thing, and one thing only: more cookies.

And it has one primary tool: the victim narrative. And the MRM threatens its control over that tool.

If men can be victims of injustice or neglect, then they are not privileged members of a universally empowered "Patriarchy". This refutes the basic feminist rhetorical model of all men as oppressors and all women as victims.

They don't want that model refuted, because... more cookies.

The "Bitch." Test

4 upvotes · 7 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Protip, bro: they call them unicorns because they don't exist.

Not quite.

We call them unicorns because they are so rare they're not worth looking for.

No one, not you, not I, not anyone, has the ability to examine all 3 billion women in the world and prove that none of them are "different" or "special". But TRP is not about "pedantically chasing down possibilities". It's about sexual strategy.

Unicorn-chasing may or may not be totally hopeless. That's not the point. The point is that it's enough a long shot to be a really bad plan.

Eating 101: Fork use for Dummies

4 upvotes · 6 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a big difference between a baby drinking its mother's milk and a grown human consuming bovine milk.

Not as much as you might think. Cow's milk is actually better for adults. More fat, less lactose.

In any case, it's not comparable to bread. Humans have had livestock for longer than they have had agriculture, which is why we developed the ability to produce lactase as adults. For those who can't, you can take it in pill form, and this is every bit as good as producing it yourself.

Fermented or cultured dairy products like cheese and yogurt usually contain less lactose than fresh milk (since the bacteria have eaten some of it).

If you can't drink milk, but are fine with those, then you probably just don't produce enough lactase on your own.

why do redpillers shame hypergamy?

4 upvotes · 4 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're wasting your breath.

Women don't want to hear the truths you're telling. They'd rather believe they can get a relationship by withholding sex, because withholding sex is easy. It doesn't require them to do anything... just to not do something.

Tell them "raising price doesn't raise value", and they aren't really able to understand.

Avoid 'The Shut Down' at all costs and maintain your frame.

4 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The intent may be different from a shit test, but the tactical engagement is the same.

Hold your frame.

What do you want to do that for?

It's what I've decided to do. That's enough.

That is a ridiculous idea.

Then ridicule it if you like, while I do it.

Don't even think about it.

Just did. Gonna do it, too.

Oh, don't be silly that is far to dangerous.

Okay, then write me a nice eulogy.

Nobody goes there/does that anymore.

Guess they're missing out.

Everyone will think you are ridiculous!

And?

Never show weakness. She is not on your side.

4 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You're repeating what you've been told. I appreciate that you are sincere, but it is foolish.

You're a twentysomething trying to tell us about how to make a relationship last. You haven't been an adult long enough to have a lasting relationship. You use phrases like "true to yourself" because they have been used to you, but you would be unable to explain in specific and precise terms what you mean... because they have no such meaning.

A closed mouth and open ears are the antidote for innocence.

TRP's Anger is Directed Against a Chimerical Woman

4 upvotes · 11 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Everyone lies.

Discussion: "Why most of today's women aren't worthy of your commitment"

4 upvotes · 10 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I hear a lot of bluepill crying in here, but I haven't seen one comment addressing the question of whether or not modern women actually are worthy of commitment or not.

Does anyone wish to step up and say they are?

Fat girls can be sexy, too, and science is by my side (WTF am I talking about!?)

4 upvotes · 8 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

)(is fine.
) (is fine.
 () is fucking disgusting.

Cults, Internet Marketers, and The Red Pill

4 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not, and I am familiar with thumotic.

You are not trying to sabotage TRP, but you seem, in the excerpts (for some reason, the site itself is 404ing, but downforeveryoneorjustme.com says it's just me), to be echoing the language of some attackers.

This is a tactical and strategic mistake. Those who wish to pull down TRP do not do so with rhetoric, logic, or evidence, they do it with characterization. Echoing the words of the characterizers, even to refute them, deepens the Pavlovian connection they are trying to create between TRP and whatever characterization they wish.

The reason TRP is so hard to define is that its reason for coming into existence is our culture's lack of guidance for men. As such, we created a subculture to fill those needs. But having lacked for masculine guidance, men didn't know precisely what those needs were, and the mission is therefore constantly changing as we (re)discover them.

But we have no need to precisely define TRP. A bunch of people are doing what works for us. This encompasses quite a range of phenomena, and people will take what works for them and leave what doesn't.

The only people who NEED an overarching definition of characterization of TRP are those who wish to be able to slander or dismiss the whole thing as one concrete target.

You may be well-intentioned, but what I've read here strikes me as concern trolling nonetheless.

Cults, Internet Marketers, and The Red Pill

4 upvotes · 26 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I would say "the externalization of masculinity into a separate subculture".

Masculinity, which always existed within its parent cultures up until this point, finds itself, for the first time in history, becoming taboo. But masculinity is critically necessary. So an extreme form of it had to be invented as a subculture in social exile.

TRP 301: How to Apply Redpill in All Aspects of your life (Day 1)

4 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't answer boring questions.

Long-Term Relationship Game Theory: A Beginner's Guide to Managing Your Bitches

4 upvotes · 16 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no such thing as a natural. There are only those who have learned, and those who have yet to learn.

Long-Term Relationship Game Theory: A Beginner's Guide to Managing Your Bitches

4 upvotes · 16 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is playing games just as much as the women you are railing against.

Fallacy of composition. The person writing this article and the people "railing against" game-playing women are not the same person.

First "Plus Sized" model to be featured in Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue

4 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wouldn't. I'm well over 6 feet myself, but I still have a thing for short women.

First "Plus Sized" model to be featured in Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue

4 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, that's not a fatty, that's a freakish giant. A proportionate freakish giant. Huge turnoff for me personally, but there's a big difference between "not my thing", and "coyote ugly".

Red Pill guides for High-end careers

4 upvotes · 31 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Concur. People with valuable advice don't spend their time writing guides on the internet. People who write pages of stuff on the internet are either

- Poseurs seeking to give themselves a warm narcissistic glow.
- Theorists with nothing better to do.
- Compulsive explainers who prize the act of analysis solely for the enjoyment they personally derive from it.

Real players in sales and on Wall Street are none of these things. Most of them can most likely barely send email, much less have an internet presence. If you are a software engineer, you can get tons of good advice about how to do better work, and manage your career better, by reading the internet. If you are a salesman, or a stockbroker, or a finance guy, forget it. You have to get your mentoring in person.

Wanna see something funny? X-games Motocross Women's finals.

4 upvotes · 5 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Out of curiosity, do you (the collective you - anyone reading this) believe this serves as proof that women just shouldn't take up hobbies like this to begin with?

Nah. They might still have fun doing it. That's what hobbies are for.

They just shouldn't expect others to help them deceive themselves that they can do it anywhere near as well as men.

The Usefulness of Purple Pill

4 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ethical, Factual, and Idea Exchange.

You left one out.

Algorithmic. This is a discussion or debate about what is the most effective way to accomplish a certain goal.

How come TRP is Machiavellian but RPW is altruistic?

4 upvotes · 21 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I completely reject your premise. You most likely believe TRP is Machiavellian and RPW is altruistic, because you are inclined to believe men are ruthless and women are charitable and sweet.

This prejudice is built into both human nature and human culture, but that doesn't make it true.

That moment when a woman physically assaults you and everyone defends her. I've been thinking about it for a while...I am now a Men's Rights Advocate.

4 upvotes · 15 December 2014 · /r/MensRights

If I ever make it far in Democratic Party politics, you'll have an MRA speaking to the leaders of the party.

You won't.

The Democratic party is the party of hostility to men and any political issues or goals they may have.

If you ever mention them in public, your primary opponents will repeatedly call you a misogynist, and your career with the Democratic party will be over. Women's votes are their base ... if only men voted, then the Republicans would win every election.

If there is ever to be any traction on men's issues from the government (hint: there won't be), it will come from the red states.

Test sexual boundaries?

4 upvotes · 12 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I agree that asking is probably not the way to go, but not because the overly emotional puny female brain doesn't know what it wants

Be careful with that strawman. Angry protestors might burn it.

BP/RP: Do you think there could be a 'Blue pill' styled group with the efficacy of the red pill?

4 upvotes · 11 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

People are only offended by offensive things.

And offensive things are whatever people are offended by.

Oh, look, you made a perfect circle.

Anita Sarkeesian Unmasked: Feminist Icon or Con Artist?

4 upvotes · 27 November 2014 · /r/MensRights

Feminist icon and con artist.

Self Improvement and Motivations

4 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I dislike TRP because they're misogynists.

A misogynist is someone who doesn't like all women, because they are women.

So what you are telling me is that you dislike everyone in group X, because you believe every one of them dislikes every member of group Y, even though many of them deny this.

I think you must deserve some kind of award for nesting unconscious ironies.

To BPs, where would you find "the good parts of TRP" outside of TRP? To RPs, how would you change the subreddit if it were up to you?

4 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's a clip from Monty Python's Flying Circus. John Cleese teaches how to play the flute:

"Blow into this hole here, and move your fingers over these holes here."

To BPs, where would you find "the good parts of TRP" outside of TRP? To RPs, how would you change the subreddit if it were up to you?

4 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

But they are asking, where is the platform where someone says: I can't get laid! And the answer is to work out, be confident and dress better?

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=tNfGyIW7aHM>

The problem of insufficient vaginas

4 upvotes · 17 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem with this is that it's a tactic for arguing with feminists.

That's not something you want to do, because that's their home turf. They know six thousand ways to make you look like a big meanie, and once you look like a big meanie, no one listening cares what the truth is.

The way you win against feminists, both personally and collectively, is to withdraw your labour. Feminists don't build, invent, improve, expand, or repair things. What they do is complain about "unfairness" until they are given a share in what others have built, invented, improved, expanded, and repaired.

They they can and will win in any debate that spectators are judging. You have as little chance against a woman in a public sympathy contest as she does against you in a fist fight.

So what you do is you don't have that argument. You just don't participate. Don't give.

How do you deal with an extremely alpha female?

4 upvotes · 30 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

First of all, there is no such thing as an alpha female.

alpha/beta is a male distinction.

Second, if a woman isn't responding to your game, don't waste time trying to figure out what her deal is.

IQ distribution plotted by degree type vs % of female students in each

4 upvotes · 16 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And not very well extrapolated. The idea of the average physics major having a 135 IQ is a joke.

How to Hamster sex in to rape.

4 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You did NOT pull back when he was about to stick his dick in you- cuz it is damn near impossible to stick your dick in crazy unless the girl is wet and cooperative. Try it just to play "rape" sometime with your GF or wife. It is damn near impossible to gain insertion without her cooperation unless you have her tied up or are holding her down painfully in order to force compliance.

Concur on this one.

My main squeeze is under five feet tall, just generally tiny, and loves rough sex. So I know exactly what it feels like to try to rape a struggling woman.

It's like trying to thread a needle when the needle is fighting back. It doesn't matter that men are many times stronger, because you have to be stronger by an even wider margin than that to hold someone absolutely immobile.

Violent rapes do sometimes happen, yes, but they happen by the rapist beating the victim into submission.

If you claim you were raped by physical force alone (not, say, blackmail, or drugs, or by someone who used restraints, or the threat of violence to force compliance) and you are not covered in bruises, then you're lying about some part of it.

Do NOT date or marry women with mental issues

4 upvotes · 20 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Law of Power #10, Avoid the Unhappy and Unlucky.

Oddly enough Tila tequila shares some red pill truth in a "why do nice guys finish last" advice response.

4 upvotes · 10 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hot girls, in my experience, are actually pretty receptive to red pill truths, because they have the dating experience to know its true.

Also because they are in a position of power, so the truth doesn't hurt as much. Fuglies who have to date betas have a vested interest in pretending they choose to rather than have to.

[Discussion] The admins just took the most feminist subreddit and made it a default. How will this affect the quality of the site, from a RP perspective?

4 upvotes · 9 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Waves come and go. The ocean remains.

NoFap, Science or broscience?

4 upvotes · 5 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not bad, but one thing he left out was how R&W's junk science is driven by feminist theory.

Religion makes sense

4 upvotes · 25 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi, welcome to /r/theredpill. Hope you've had an interesting and informative two weeks.

I look forward to seeing the evidence from which you draw your point of view.

Feminists unhappy with science. Create "Feminist Biology" to combat gender bias. No I'm not joking.

4 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not actually surprised.

I was raised as a flaming left-winger in a rightwing community. And I embraced it at first, because I despise smug, underthinking self-assuredness, and I was constantly being exposed to the rightwing variety of it.

But there was a moment that I realized communism was crap. That moment happened when I was reading the story of a Chinese dissident who had eventually been diagnosed by their state health system with a mental disorder. There was apparently a note in his chart, put there by some psychiatrist, that he had "failed to adjust to Socialist reality".

Not "reality".

Socialist reality.

The moment when you think the universe shares your prescriptive ideology, or needs to... you fail forever. The universe doesn't care about "should". The universe just is.

Neil deGrasse Tyson: "Before we start talking about genetic differences [between race and gender], you gotta come up with a system where there is equal opportunity, then we can have that conversation"

4 upvotes · 19 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Except everyone I've ever heard talking about equal opportunity measures it by looking at equality of outcome.

Which assumes what they are trying to prove.

It takes four men to form a male harem

4 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Meh. Just don't be in a male harem. Who cares what self-centered women can talk suckers into?

Why is TRP so anti-education?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, it looks like we are making a little progress here.

Let's talk about the difference between modern and postmodern discourse.

Postmodern discourse is named after postmodernism, which is a movement in philosophy, art, literature, the academic humanities, etc.

Modern discourse is called this by contrast to postmodern discourse, but the philosophy or approach to life that it comes from is science.

So, what are they, and what distinguishes the two? Well, assuming you read that article I linked, you probably have some idea. But let's try to narrow it down a bit.

Modern discourse is scientific discourse... which means it proceeds from the basic axioms that the scientific methods has about the universe. These go kind of like this:

- There is such a thing as truth. Whether it's absolute truth or just a series of better and better approximations isn't important... what's important is that some statements are accurate and others are not.
- Truths are useful, because they allow us to predict and control our environment. So we want to know truths.
- Truths are true regardless of time, location, manner of representation (language or font they are written in, etc), or who speaks them or writes them down. In other words, truths do not have a "viewpoint".

- Truths do not contain value judgements. They are "is" statements, not "should" or "ought" statements.

So how does postmodernism differ? Well, postmodernism goes like this:

- There is no absolute truth, or indeed, any truth at all. Every belief a person has is a part of either their unique perspective, or their culture. There is no such thing as an accurate statement, only opinions.
- It is more important to respect all perspectives and points of view than chase some illusory notion of accuracy.
- The moral context of a statement is more important than its accuracy. "Should" is more important than "is".
- Scientific truths are tainted with the culture than discovered them.

Now, I don't think much of postmodernism. But I try to understand it nonetheless, and this allows me to see how the two traditions cause people to talk at cross-purposes.

Postmodernism, is, at its core, an objection to the Age of Enlightenment. The scientific revolution prizes reason and individualism, postmodernism prizes tradition and culture.

For example, Luce Irigaray, a postmodernist writer, regards Einstein's equation $E=mc^2$, as a gender-biased equation, because "it privileges the speed of light over other speeds that are vitally necessary to us" and asserts that fluid mechanics is unfairly neglected because it deals with "feminine" fluids in contrast to "masculine" rigid mechanics.

Now, it's easy to dismiss this as nonsense, and it is, in fact, nonsense. But it's important to understand why someone says it at all. A scientist is concerned with what's true. A postmodernist is concerned with what is morally right (by their standard).

So Irigaray isn't talking about truth at all. She doesn't care whether $E=mc^2$ or doesn't. She also doesn't care if it's useful. What she cares about is that her standards of justice and fairness are enforced.

So arguing about whether Irigaray is "right" or not misses the point. She isn't trying to be right. She isn't trying not to talk nonsense. Her goal is promote inclusiveness and collectivism. Which means that saying she's wrong is as meaningless to her as telling a scientist that his theory is "mean".

And that, finally, allows us to understand what TRP is.

TRP is scientifically-valued thinking about human sex dimorphism and mating behaviour.

You keep trying to decide whether TRP is "evil" or not. But that question is as meaningless as trying to a scientific study to settle once and for all the question of whether blue is a pretty colour. Because TRP's goal is to be accurate. To possess a set of facts that predict human behaviour. This means we have to discard worries about whether a theory makes people feel bad or not.

When I spoke to Miss Chemistry Gradstudent, my thinking was: She has a problem. She cannot solve this problem without understanding how it is happening. I have the information she needs. I will give it to her so she can fix her problem.

Why is TRP so anti-education?

4 upvotes · 13 April 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Thanks for that.

No, seriously. I mean, you're totally wrong, but what you said just helped me understand you.

See, at first I was puzzled. How could anyone possibly think it was cruel to tell someone they were unattractive? Especially when they were asking why men weren't attracted to them?

And then I had a light bulb moment.

You and I have fundamental different expectations about what a conversation is for, and what's important to talk about.

I am speaking in modern discourse, and you are speaking in postmodern discourse.

<https://arts.uwaterloo.ca/~kwesthue/regiftedxmas12.html>

In this specific conversation I linked you to, you saw the main problem/goal as:

She is feeling bad because she can't find a relationship. She needs to be made to feel better. The men of AskMen should tell her hopeful things that will lift her spirits. It doesn't really matter in this conversation if those things are true, because the immediate problem is that she feels bad and needs to feel better.

By contrast, I saw the main problem/goal as:

She cannot find a man she is attracted to who is willing to have a relationship with her. She has asked for help with this. I should tell her why this is the case, and how she should fix it. Many of the things I tell her are unpleasant truths and she will be sad when she hears them, but that doesn't really matter, because her actually long-term problem is the thing that's important to fix.

You focus on feelings, and opinions, and getting along, and being polite, and I focus on facts, and clear understanding of what's happening, and getting results.

You see that conversation as a cocktail party, where she is speaking about a problem she has in order to make conversation, and I've told her in response that it's all her fault and she blew it big time.

I see that conversation as a doctor's office, where she has come because she is feeling ill, has described her symptoms, and it's quite important to her to get better. And others, like you, are expecting me to tell her it's nothing and it's fine, and shouldn't worry about it, when my lab tests say she has stage 2 pancreatic cancer and needs chemotherapy.

Since you don't, or didn't, understand my plan and what I thought was important, you saw what I said as pure sadism.

And approaching TRP with the expectations that conversations are about feelings, and getting along, and everyone's opinion being respected, you could not help but interpret TRP as more sadism.

But in thinking this, you have failed to apply the:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Principle_of_humanity

... you don't have any mental model of us as sane people with rational goals. You just assume we're sadists... uh... because we're... uh... bad?

You assume that because you cannot see the rational motive, it must therefore not exist.

But what if you were to assume the opposite? What if you were to assume that TRP writers had a rational motive, which had nothing to do with sadism, bitterness, or hurt feelings in general? Wouldn't you have to learn what it was, before you could claim to understand TRP? Agree or disagree, we must understand things if we wish to talk about them.

So, examine the possibility that TRP writers see the "red pill" as a collection of true statements, many of which are unpleasant to hear, but ignorance of these facts causes far more unhappiness than hearing them does.

In other words, needles may hurt, no one is claiming they don't, but that's how we get antibiotics into the infection site.

Help me understand

4 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

{forking conversation}

I'm not really sure where the argument is here.

You are confused because I try to understand a phenomenon, rather than running about saying women are horrible.

This creates cognitive dissonance in you, because of the disparity between my behaviour and your mental caricature of me.

The contempt for friendzoned guys hanging around trying to get sex is so vehement, and so universal, that I don't see it as being something that could simply be a cultural aberration. There must be some sane rationale.

But women themselves don't know what that is. They only know these guys feel... icky somehow. That's why they use an imprecise word like "creepy".

That leaves us with the task of figuring out what that means. We can't just ask women, because they don't know.

Help me understand

4 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nobody RP seems to want advice from women so don't chastise me for not offering it.

Nobody on RP wants advice from women about how to attract women. This is because they have no experience being a man and trying to attract a woman.

A woman reacting badly to a man who is being nice to her in the hopes of getting sex may be unhappy with that situation at the point she realizes his niceness was conditional.

Almost, but not quite.

You see, all niceness is conditional. Everyone knows that. We don't talk about it much, we try to avoid talking about it, but we know it. We're okay with that, so long as we know what someone wants, and we're okay with them wanting it.

It isn't the fact that Mr. Friendzone Guy wants something that angers women. It's what he wants.

You see, these guys are creepy. Now, creepy is a term I used to think was a weasel word used to attack men for being unattractive to whatever woman is using it. But upon examination, it's more than that.

A "creepy" man is a man who

- is unattractive
- wants sex
- the woman using the term is afraid that she won't be able to get him to go away without looking mean.

Women are generally as terrified of looking mean as men are of looking weak. In most situations, they don't want to tell a man to fuck off and die, because that would make them look like a bitch, which is unfeminine, and frowned on in all sorts of ways. So they drop hints.

A creepy man is an unattractive man who won't take or can't see those hints.

A man who tries to get sex by hanging around in the friendzone creates a special instance of this anxiety for women. He's axiomatically unattractive, because he lacks courage (otherwise he would have been obvious about his desires from the beginning). But if she rejects him, she looks especially mean, because he's been investing a lot of time into their "friendship".

He's placed her in a hell of a bind.

Exactly like a man may react badly when discovering his hot gf is more interested in his bank balance than in him.

No. Not like that. A man like this is angry because he's been used, and cheated of the opportunity to find actual love.

On the implications of powertalk and other language categories.

4 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not a problem, I understand.

Can the actual regular expression it uses be changed? I'd be willing to have a look at it (I'm a software engineer by profession) if it's at all configurable.

It would be nice if we could figure out a way to allow links to subs like RPW, askTRP, AlreadyRed, etc.

"Bathing in Male Tears" and other man-hating t-shirts touted as feminism.

4 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Okay, so women have no right to an opinion on whether or not we go to war?

Serious question as a 1st gen American from Africa

4 upvotes · 10 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I always thought it was inherent and genetic for a man to know this shit.

One thing that is very inherent and genetic in human beings is to be trainable. We are hardwired with the capacity for language. But still we must be taught.

In Africa, you grew up around a community of men who had not been cut off from their roots, or propangandized away from their instincts. You watched them, and you learned, and it was so natural, obvious, and right to you that it was easy to believe you were born knowing it. But you weren't. You were only born with the tendency to learn it.

And here in America, that transmission has been interrupted. Fully half of our boys grow up without fathers. And of those who don't, many of them have fathers who grew up without fathers. Or their fathers fell for feminism's big lie.

The chain that connects us to our fathers and our fathers' fathers, and to all our male ancestors... has been broken here.

And we are left to try to reinvent what they should have taught us.

Let's talk about implied social contracts, rules, obligations, responsibilities, and duties.

4 upvotes · 9 February 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Consider the possibility that the word "sociopath" is simply modern society's way of pathologizing the warrior personality.

women & cats / men & dogs

4 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I was thinking about cat and dog personalities and the stereotypes that women love cats and men love dogs. Cats are basically dark triads that constantly neg their owners and women love them. Dogs are loyal companions and men love them.

No.

Dogs are herd animals, and cats aren't. This means that dogs have alpha and beta behaviour types, and cats... don't.

Neither are actually "loyal". Loyalty is a human concept. What gets mistaken for loyalty in dogs is beta behaviour. What gets mistaken for loyalty in cats is trust.

Both are capable of affection, but their behaviour is predicated on more basic instincts.

What does TRP want from women?

4 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The thing about looking at things from far away is that you can fit all of them into your field of view.

To move in for a closer look at one relationship, you have to move away from and not look at others.

so what about women who defy stereotypes

4 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

{ responds with personal definitions of "stereotype" and "generalization" }

I don't agree with those definitions. Moreover, they are are pretty much personal to you, and possibly your social circle or subculture, neither of which I belong to.

Furthermore, there are reasoning problems associated with many of your bullet points.

- They pass judgement

The distinction between a judgement and an observational conclusion is subjective and exists only in your mind. Unless you perhaps mean moral judgement.

If that is the case, however, that you can't argue that it's a (morally) bad thing, because that argument is self-swallowing. The idea that moral judgements are immoral is itself a moral judgement.

- They apply the generalization to everyone in the group
- They don't change, even when contrary data is presented

You didn't read that article, did you? Go read the article. What you're talking about is overfit. Except that whether overfit is occurring is very much in dispute.

- They are formed by casual observation rather than empirical evidence

I cannot easily fathom the confusion of mind which could have led to this sentence. What on earth do you mean by "casual"? Is there some different universe which we observe in our daily lives, that suddenly goes away when we wear a lab coat and write things down?

If you are referring to cognitive bias influencing the formation of conclusions, then you need to properly attach your complaint to that stage of the process, not the observation stage where it doesn't belong.

More broadly speaking, there is no intellectual traction in claiming that inductive reasoning doesn't work, because, like generalization, we are incapable of conducting our daily mental processes without it. The scientific method itself is based on it. In fact, the scientific method is nothing but the process of casual observation with some extra steps and protocols added to eliminate certain cognitive failures that humans are prone to.

- They don't help people really understand their differences

This is just a fancy way of saying "I, personally, don't agree."

I do not concede that "CFRProflcopter doesn't agree" is a useful litmus test for what is and isn't bad reasoning.

"7% of College Men Admit to Attempting Rape, Most of Them Multiple Times" claims Alternet

4 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

Ooooh, a self-report study!

Well, that just wraps everything up, doesn't it?

So, the BPer have spoken, so I'll ask the opposite question - RPer, how was your sex life with people who were non-RP and how did it differ from your RP partners?

4 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think the observation is a pretty common one, it's just many people feel uncomfortable utilizing many of the techniques.

Of course they don't. Admitting that one is a chimp wearing pants is not a comfortable feeling for most people.

It does feel like playing a numbers game to me, though

Why would you think that?

Oh, wait, lemme guess...

{reads ahead}

Yep, there it is:

NAWALT, so wouldn't it be worth it to find a woman who isn't?

You've fallen into the commonest of rationalization traps that people fall into upon hearing about the red pill, and starting to understand it. You cannot deny the observations that I have alluded to, because you have seen similar things.

But your brain, like everything about you, is shaped by evolution. It doesn't like having its worldview shaken up. Faced with the choice between discarding a belief and dismissing new data, it will look for ways to do the former. In order to train oneself to see clearly, one has to work very hard to fight this urge.

So let me make it absolutely clear:

*These observations do not apply just to some special group of "bad" women. They apply to all women. There aren't any human females who aren't descended from primates, who don't have the genes inherent in the species.*

And there is nothing "bad" about it. Women are no more "bad" for liking socially dominant men than men are "bad" for liking younger, shapelier women.

There aren't any women who are "not like the rest of them", because the things we are trying to observe in TRP are the things that are universal to the human species. If we found something that was only true of a few women, we'd toss it out as not general enough.

Now, certainly there are some women who don't mate with socially dominant men. But we are talking about attraction, not mate choice. Mate choice is a choice. Attraction is not. I could choose, for whatever reason, to marry a fat girl. But I couldn't choose to have a rock-hard erection when she got naked.

If I do not display the behavioural cues that women are hardwired to look for, they will not be as attracted to me. And while they might sleep with, date, or even marry someone like that, the absence of attraction will have an affect on that relationship.

And moreover, since women are pretty much completely oblivious to what they themselves find attractive, they will come up with rationalizations to explain to themselves, to try to make sense of why they are unhappy in the relationship. And these will become things they are upset or angry about, which have nothing to do with the real reason the relationship is in trouble.

Example:

Let us suppose, for a moment, that you and I were to really hit it off in this conversation, start exchanging email, progress to phone calls, you fly out to visit, one thing leads to another, and a year later we are living together.

Then suppose you start getting fat. Since I am, like everyone else, a creature of instinct, especially where sex is concerned, I am not able to be attracted to you, no matter how much I like your personality, or how much history we have together. But because I have "taken the red pill", I am able to admit to myself what I am like, and am clearly aware that the problem is that you're becoming fat. I can tell you what you need to fix. And you can either fix it, our sex life takes off again, I'm not ashamed to be seen in public with you, and everything's fine. Or you don't, and dumpsville.

Now, let's suppose that I am willing to stay, because you're losing weight, but, since you're not quite there yet, I develop roving eyes, and cheat on you. When you find out, you are somewhat upset. Now, because you, presumably, have not taken the red pill, you are not aware that you are attracted to dominance.

So, here's what happens. I either fall all over myself apologizing, cry a lot, and swear to never do it again. Or I shrug and say, well, toots, ya got fat. Wanted someone who turned me on. You wanna avoid a repeat, up to you.

Now, because you are actually attracted to male social dominance (remember that this does not make you "bad", this is your instinct from birth), you will dump me if I do the former. But if I do the latter, you will be angry, but eventually forgive me and stay. Because cheating on you, while upsetting, doesn't make me less desirable to you as a partner. Apologizing and begging you to stay does.

But see, if we assume you haven't taken the red pill, you don't know that this is why. So if I "beta out" and express great contrition and you leave, you believe that you left "because I cheated on you". If I maintain the dominant role, and you stay, you believe you stayed because you really love me, and want to give me another chance even though what I did was rotten.

Now, let's suppose that you are staying, but being mad, you figure you have a "hall pass" now, and I catch you drunkenly making out with one of my friends at the New Years party. Do I dump you? Well, as a male, I am attracted to feminine, caring, nurturing, warm, vulnerable, submissive behaviour. So if you pull the "so what, you cheated" card, then the relationship goes south. But if you apologize profusely, cry, beg my forgiveness, and carry on in precisely the way that would have gotten me dumped, then that's the behaviour that makes me most likely to let it slide with nothing more than a spanking.

The behaviour in me that is most unattractive to you, is the behaviour in you that was most attractive to me. Men and women... different.

So you see what's going on here? Our behaviour is determined by our instincts, whether or not we "take the red pill". What "taking the red pill" determines is whether we acknowledge those instincts, take responsibility for them, accept them, and deal with them. This means that there are inherent double standards. I am allowed by nature to cheat on you without losing your love, but you cannot do the same. You are allowed by nature to be needy, emotionally volatile, to cry on my shoulder without losing my love, but I cannot do the same.

That's why many TRP types appear "sexist" to the casual observer. We are.

We are, in the sense that we are acknowledging that evolution is a sexist, and there's nothing we can do about that. It's a 600 pound tiger, and it sleeps where it damn well pleases.

The name of the game is to cater to your instincts while steering them a bit, not trying to suppress them altogether. Because if you try that, you lose.

The Essential Difference Between Blue and Red Pill Mating Advice.

4 upvotes · 24 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So, you're saying that not only is feminism a giant shit test, the blue pill is, also?

Could very well be.

What is a man?

4 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1k0izp/what_is_it_like_for_a_man_to_have_to_hidesuppress/cbk64sr

The kind of oppressive comments that get you banned from r/OffMyChest these days

4 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

And yet if you say "DAE manatee legbeard", they get all huffy.

CNN: Should false rape accusers be sued?

4 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

No, they should be imprisoned first. Then sued.

Is TBP a frustration of gender stereotypes and TRP a celebration of gender stereotypes? I'm gonna go with "yes."

4 upvotes · 16 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'll look it up if you don't believe me, but there's a prominent feminist who said that being a stay-at-home mom is "not a choice women ought to have."

Simone de Beauvoir.

If one looks at the history of this person, she clearly either had a few screws loose, or, if you view her more in a more favourable light, she at least had wants, needs, and desires which were very distinct from those of most women.

In other words, someone who hangs out with Jean-Paul Sartre is uniquely unqualified to speak of the wants, needs, and feelings of the average person, even if you consider her to be unqualified because of intellectual superiority (which I do not concede, but some people might argue it).

Regarding housewifery in general, if you ask the average woman "Would she rather be a housewife or have a career?"... she'll hear "Would you rather be a throwback to the universally-reviled fifties, or be respected?". And she will answer "A career."

But if you ask her whether she would rather have a job that is highly-paid and respected, or one that allows her a comfortable living, a comfortable environment, and lots of time with her children, you'll get a very different answer.

And if you look at how women actually behave in their lives, the choices they make tend to bear out red pill generalizations. They stay away from engineering in droves. When they get MDs, they tend to work less than full time after the first decade. They gravitate towards nursing, secretarial work, and customer service. Not to mention child care and primary school education. Personnel departments ("human resources") tend to consist entirely of women.

What's the common thread, here?

They are shunning the brass ring of success and doing for money what housewives do for their families.

Women haven't stopped being housewives. They're just doing it outside the home, for strangers, and this is somehow more respectable because they earn a wage.

But money is not the measure of human value. It cannot possibly capture everything a society needs to survive and thrive, or everything that makes for human happiness.

Norwegian woman puts up post-birth selfie. Fat feminists go crazy.

4 upvotes · 8 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the distinctions between a psychologically healthy person, and a sick one is their reaction when they meet someone who's doing better than they are.

Is their first impulse to emulate, or to stab?

I don't think any of the regulars on red pill women looks quite this good. But they see her, and ask "what's she doing right, and how can I be more like that?"... not "how can I criticize her for hurting women's feeeeeeeeeeeeeeeelings?".

If stories are exaggerated, what emotional purpose does that serve for a movement like The Red Pill?

4 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There are a couple of problems with your question:

- First of all, you are questioning people's veracity based upon no contradictory evidence other than your incredulity. I could as easily go to TBP and pick out a bunch of stories that didn't feel right to me, and assume they were lies.
- It's not surprising that you find some of these stories incredible. Knowing about how attraction is based on simple primate dynamics is like having the "cheat codes" for being attractive. Things suddenly become incredibly easy. There is a common experience, when you learn this stuff and try it, of being shocked at how well it works. I've had my own set of experiences of "I can't fucking believe I just did that and it worked", and I have my own set of stories that you would probably think were lies.
- These stories are preselected for being the most outrageous. There's no point in telling the mundane ones. If you go hang out with a basketball team, don't be surprised if all them are really, really tall.

- One of the stories you gave as an example was told by someone I know IRL. I know it to be true, because I have additional details. I won't say which one for obvious reasons.
- Last, and most importantly, even if there are some lies, you have yet to show that the rate of lying is greater than the baseline.

It's as if I asked "What's with all this violence committed by black people? What's wrong with black people?"

That would be a racist question, would it not? Because I would be assuming blacks were more violent than, say, white people, and then assuming again that this violence was related to being black instead of, say, poverty or alienation.

You don't get to ask this question until you can back up your accusation with something more than feels.

TRP: what is an example of misogyny?

4 upvotes · 15 November 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Misogyny doesn't mean "the act saying negative things about women". It means "the condition of hating women as a group".

This means that statements aren't "misogynistic", because statements can't hate women. They can, however, be signs of someone's hatred for women.

But this means you have to look at the whole person. Because one statement, absent context, is seldom enough to diagnose any attitude.

If I were asked to pick some examples, I would say:

- This woman is a misandrast.
- This man is a misogynist.
- This man is a misandrast.
- Don't know of a good example of a female misogynist.

There's no such thing as an Alpha or a Beta male.

4 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It isn't "wrong". It's just important to remember that "beta male" means "male who habitually acts in a beta fashion", not "male who is essentially beta from birth and never does, nor ever can do, anything else".

15 yo kid faces being put on Sex Offender lists, hangs himself instead

4 upvotes · 12 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

People like Christian are the ones that create change.

Nope.

You've forgotten the fundamental premise.

Sympathy is not something people feel for men. Their male friends, relatives, and lovers, maybe. But male strangers? No. Ain't happenin'. Complaints and appeals for sympathy work for women, not men. If we want to create change to help men, appeals to sympathy are not the way to go.

The way to go is boycott. MGTOW. Marriage strike. Close your wallet. Withdraw the value you give, until the scarcity of men, of male labour, of male leadership, of masculinity makes them remember how valuable men are.

Christian choose the wrong strategy. Abused pets make more headlines than abused boys, and that's not going to change, because it's hardwired in.

Men need to stop crying and cultivate ruthlessness.

Is the MRM about equal rights?

4 upvotes · 11 October 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If she decides to have an abortion. Or if she decides not to collect it from him. Or if she decides to give the child up for adoption.

Men have reproductive rights in America today in the same sense that American women had voting rights before 1920... in other words, they are allowed to talk to the person who gets to make the choices, and attempt to persuade them.

Is the MRM about equal rights?

4 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There's an easy solution to this. Legally require any woman who has an abortion to adopt an infant nine months later.

There you go. Bodily autonomy, and no right to opt out of parenthood... just like men.

Think the feminists will go for that?

TIL by 2020 women will control 0.77 of every dollar wealth in America. Up from 60% of wealth in 2008.

4 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Saying that men are wealthier because they earn more is like someone saying black slaves were better dressed because they picked more cotton.

Do fishes need bicycles? Should We Care If Marriage Disappears?

4 upvotes · 26 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The fish are wondering where all the bicycles went, and the bicycles are wondering if they need fish.

Of course a millionaire lesbian would shame women choosing tradition roles....

4 upvotes · 17 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Not to mention that Viagra was discovered by accident, by one guy, who was researching heart medication. No working for years. No millions of dollars.

Help! I am new, am I here for the right thing?

4 upvotes · 9 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm not going to believe I haven't matured since I was 18 and that I am forever just "the most responsible teenager in the house".

Either that's true or it's not. It doesn't make sense to refuse to listen to something because you find it insulting.

However, it might not be what you think. Try reading this.

Be like this girl.

4 upvotes · 7 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

The girl at :34 is no slouch in the looks department, and she doesn't have a terrible reaction to him... she smiles, if somewhat nervously, and does say something.

But she doesn't relax enough to be playful.

Actually, here's something you can try. Pick a day, and try following these rules all day.

An open letter to single mothers.

4 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, sure.

An open letter to single mothers.

4 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks.

Successful vs unsuccessful people

4 upvotes · 24 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This creates a situation where the average person feels subtly self conscious and/or resentful around successful people. The average person starts to become embittered toward successful people, and his/her conscious mind finds rationalizations for those feelings that don't destroy the ego, ie "Muscular dudes are all 'bros' and 'douchebags'", or, "Rich people are snobs".

Are rich people really going around snubbing their nose at everyone? Of course not. You just feel insecure around them and interpret their actions as somehow offensive to justify your feelings of insecurity.

I think it's even less conscious than this.

It's for the same reason the bluetooth headset is seen as the emblem of assholes everywhere. Why? Because someone having a conversation with one is talking to an invisible person, so our brain keeps having an instinctive reaction that they're talking to us, which causes repeated cognitive dissonance, which is annoying.

Want to test this? Watch a film of someone talking on a cellphone, and then sit next to someone talking on a cellphone. Only the latter will annoy you.

Anyway, because we experience a negative emotion in response to them, we associate them with negative emotions, which makes us think that they are assholes. The same for rich people, or successful people, or other we might be envious of.

It doesn't even have to be a rationalization. It's simply Pavlovian.

Ponderings on "Maturity"

4 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, otherwise they aren't true scotswomen.

Seeing women all around me fit RP stereotypes..Here is this weeks batch.

4 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She was studying molecular biology, and I was very supportive of her because I support anyone who studies hard sciences. Well this week she has dropped it because "It's too hard". She is going to take a year off and go into.... Guess ? Guess ? Yup ! Nursing! This is why women will never be a majority in STEM fields.

If I had a nickel for every "nursing student" who told me that she "used to be in " {engineering, biology, physics, whatever} but quit because she "decided it wasn't what she wanted to do"... well, I wouldn't be rich, but my pants would fall down.

Means, motive, opportunity: Why do women consistently fail to outperform men?

4 upvotes · 10 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So, motive, then.

Pook: Who wants a bird that wants to be in a cage?

4 upvotes · 10 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Who wants a bird that wants to be in a cage?

Men.

Comparing and contrasting men's and women's fantasies with respect to the "False Equivalence" comic

4 upvotes · 5 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

Let's cut the bullshit here.

Why do men fantasize about being powerful? Because it's attractive to women.

"In this country, you gotta make the money first. Then when you get the money, you get the power. Then when you get the power, then you get the women." -Tony Montana, Scarface

Why do women fantasize about being attractive? Because it gives them power over, or by way of, men.

"Beauty is power the same way money is power the same way a gun is power." — Chuck Palahniuk, Invisible Monsters

Every male power fantasy is also a female sexual fantasy.

Every male sexual fantasy is also a female power fantasy.

Cheating: is it okay?

4 upvotes · 5 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

He who cannot cast away a treasure at need is in chains.

Maintainer of Linux told by female contributor his "violent" language is "not acceptable"; interesting discussion on "professional" versus "frank" communication

4 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

Threat narrative.

In yesterdays posts the whole thing just clicked on a much higher level than before. Are we on to something new?

4 upvotes · 22 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This also means, especially in an LTR/Marriage that it is entirely possible to be "too alpha"! We have never addressed this. Usually it is the opposite problem: beta men pay with emotions too lavishly, that makes women think they are low value, and move on. But if alpha men don't pay emotions for a long time, that too could make women think they are simply not getting a fair deal and move on.

Another danger is just of making them sad.

Women need petting and affection. We may be stuck in a society where women feel entitled to male attention and affection, yet enjoy it less (because it's cheap and easy to get)... but that doesn't mean they don't need some.

We withhold these things until they are valued, but then we have to give out some, in careful measured doses.

AskReddit thread about sluts. Apparently all men love sluts and women should be as slutty as they want without any consequence.

4 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey, no argument about whether it works for you. If cutting down helps you, then by all means you should.

But I don't buy the theoretical underpinnings described in the linked article, and I'm pretty sure the authors have an agenda.

18yo female arrested for relationship with minor. If the 18yo was a male, would there still be this giant push to free him? Equal rights = equal punishment under the law

4 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Ever notice how when a male sleeps with an underage girl, it's "statutory rape" in the press, but when a female does it, it's an "alleged relationship"?

Personally, I have very little problem with adults having sexytimes with consenting teenagers. But let's have a consistent standard, please.

This is your life as a beta. Be Proud!

4 upvotes · 9 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Moooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooo!

A dark spot in my girlfriend's sexual past

4 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Now that we have birth control technology, it's not fair to expect women to be pure as the driven snow. But neither can we ignore totally slutty behaviour. So what's unacceptable?

Red flags for a woman's sexual past:

- Doesn't tell you how many men she's slept with, and under what circumstances. A good woman will volunteer this information in pillow talk, not as details, but a general summary. If it doesn't come up, she has something to hide.
- Did freakier things with previous guys than she does with you. If the previous guy spanked her and called her a dirty whore, and she wants you to spank her and call her a dirty whore, then that's what she likes in bed. No problem. But if she wants to "put all that behind her" because "she made some mistakes" but she's "not like that anymore" then you are her beta backup plan.

- If she "doesn't know why she did that", and/or she "didn't even like him", then she likes the power and attention that men's sexual attraction gives her, and she will sleep with them to get it even when she doesn't really like them, and doesn't really want sex that much. the moment your attention ceases to be a novelty, she'll cheat on you just to stroke her ego.

So, to summarize:

A woman who has an FFM threesome with some guy she likes, tells you about it when you start dating, and starts talking about finding a second woman for the two of you to have playtime with, she's just fine. A little freaky, but that's a good thing if it's not too freaky for you.

A woman who has an FFM threesome with the local player, hides it from you, and wants your sex life to consist of gazing into each others' eyes while you have sex in the missionary position after watching chick flicks and lighting some scented candles... she is a rotten apple.

Men of Red Pill, What are YOUR potential deal breakers?

4 upvotes · 15 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- Smoker
- Fat/Obese (chubby is okay if proper hourglass profile is maintained).
- Has children
- Self-describes as a feminist
- Unfeminine (competitive, insensitive to the feelings of others, verbally aggressive, etc)
- Lack of effort with appearance (sloppy dresser, poor hygiene, legs not shaved, no makeup ever, etc)
- Religious
- Extreme left wing social values (condemning "heteronormativity", insists single parenthood is acceptable, believes that a need in one person creates an obligation in others)
- Extreme right wing social values (sex-negative, racist, hates homosexuals, against legality of abortion)

Man has rape conviction quashed as wedding footage shows alleged victim playfully touching the accused

4 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

They are not likely to believe you when you say "Barack Obama was not in the room" and this can break any relationship you have with the client. Telling the client "your interpretation of reality is wrong" isn't going to accomplish anything beneficial. At least according to many schools of thought.

Well, sure, but the same thing is in play with the schizophrenic who believes aliens live in his nasal passages. You don't confront a delusion with evidence, because a delusion is by definition a false belief that is resistant to the presentation of contradictory evidence.

But just because we don't contradict schizophrenics during therapy, doesn't mean we believe them. We don't say "schizophrenics never lie". We say "don't argue with schizophrenics over their delusions".

So why on earth would we say "clients never lie"? That's just not true. They lie all the damn time.

Why Are American Men So Dumb?

4 upvotes · 6 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

And you just gave him a perfect example of what he is talking about... by responding to the tone of what he said, rather than the content.

Shield Wife: Anti-Feminist Female Blogger

4 upvotes · 2 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah, women taking responsibility for their actions doesn't mean no more promiscuity.

Promiscuity or no promiscuity has no correlation to owning your shit.

I'm a proud MRA. I thought my wife was, but it appears like she's the exact opposite. Looks like I might be getting a divorce.

4 upvotes · 14 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Okay, I'm actually going to defend this one.

It's a BDSM thing. The site may be written like it's a view of all humankind, but it could very well just be someone indulging their fetish in writing. There are male supremacist sites, too. In fact, I know of some written by women.

And if the site seems obnoxious, or out of touch with reality, what can you expect? It was written by a woman. (Heheheheh.)

However, with that out of the way, it appears that your wife cannot distinguish between fantasy and reality. Time to get out.

I've been reading seddit for 1+ yr. I'm a girl. Some Insights

4 upvotes · 12 January 2013 · /r/seduction

the dirt under the fingernail comment is awesome, I guess I wouldn't call it a neg? I'm not saying it's not, I'm just saying that when I was referring to negging. Also, thanks for the reminder to paint my nails before I go out

Or just, you know, practice basic personal hygiene.

Also, serious question, can you or someone explain a shit-test to me? I've read the FAQ, I've searched for it before and I don't really understand. From my perspective, asking your job or your major is just me trying to make small talk.

Asking about a job or major can be a shit test, but it's not the best example of one... not clear cut enough.

A shit test is when a woman acts hostile, insulting, demeaning or challenging just to see how you deal with it. Women all do this (at least, no one who understands the phenomenon has ever reported meeting a woman who didn't throw at least one or two).

This will usually include some sort of dig at whatever she thinks are his weak points, or at whatever she thinks are the weak points of men in general.

For example, one woman called me a "delicate flower" after being told I had celiac disease. This is an attempt to shame me by implying that health conditions are a weakness, and weakness is unmasculine.

A shit test has two fail conditions. First of all, becoming upset. If a man becomes upset when insulted like this, it possibly indicates insecurity. Second of all, contradicting her directly. This is reactive, and allows her to control the "frame" of the conversation. If he does this, it possibly indicates passivity, or that he is a low status male who is used to reacting to others, rather than initiating things himself.

Basically, women want men who can deal with stress and adversity. The they can deal with, the better. To test a man's ability to do this, a woman will inflict some on him and watch what he does.

René Descartes on SRS

4 upvotes · 9 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Neither a Descartes quote nor a picture of him. Very meta. Well played, sir. Upvote for you.

4chan gets it right and femist erasure of male issue.

4 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

I am afraid you're the one who has forgotten what we are talking about:

4. Women in general do not care that video games aren't geared to them, and they have other pastimes that they are quite happy with, thank you oh so very much. The few women who do play video games like the ones that men make just fine. The only people unhappy with the status quo are a few pundits manufacturing controversy where none exists.

It's the pundits who need to put up or shut up. Not the female customers.

It's the pundits I am talking about. Because the reason I made an argument based on Ghandi's "Be the change you wish to see in the world." was to show that the Anita Sarkesians of this world aren't really upset that video games don't cater to women. If that were the problem, they could start companies and make games, and everyone, including me, would approve.

But the real reason that they are upset is not that video games don't cater to women, but that they do cater to men. They're not mad about what they do want to see in games, but don't. They're upset about what they don't want to see in games, but do.

They don't want to see female characters who are ideals of sexual attractiveness, because they don't like to let men regard women as objects of sexual desire, even when the women aren't women, but are in fact actually objects in computer memory.

They don't want to see male protagonists accomplishing things because they are threatened by strong male characters.

In fact, to sum it all up, there's a type of person they hate. It's people like me, people they call "dudebros" when they think no one else is watching. Basically, this is a person who not only has the temerity to be young, male, and heterosexual, but is actually unashamed of it, and refuses to apologize for acting like himself.

They don't want him to have what they call "safe spaces" for people like him. They don't want any story to be told for and about people like him, or any product to be marketed primarily to him. They don't want him to exist as a demographic or even as an entity. They don't like sex and violence in video games, and they especially don't like sexy females as a enticement for in-game heroics.

This is because they see history as a process of young men hitting each other with weapons for no other reason that they are young and stupid and male, and women being treated as payment by the victors in this pointless game. But I see history as a process of societies fighting over resources, using young men as disposable weapons in this struggle, and dangling mating privileges as bait.

Young men want to play at violence, conquest, and competition because they are the species' genetic instrument for doing just that. It's what they got respect for, back when young men still could get respect.

Young men play video games and watch movies to vicariously experience adventures they are no longer allowed to have. And now, a small group of professional noisemakers want to take even that away from them.

4chan gets it right and feminist erasure of male issue.

4 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

So learn the skills. Raise the funds.

Women who wish to make video games face no obstacles that are not also faced by men.

And if men can overcome them, can women not also?

So you want to stop men from getting raped in prison? Then RACIALLY SEGREGATE PRISONS.

4 upvotes · 27 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

Why is gender-segregating prisons acceptable, but racially segregating prisons unacceptable?

Feminists angry that some male victims get help: "gender neutrality is spreading like a virus through state services, and weakening the fight to tackle violence against women."

4 upvotes · 5 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

I agree it's time that men are allowed into our conferences so that they learn something – if only they listen for long enough to hear what is being said.

There's the giveaway right there.

She sees men's proper role as solely that of a listener and a learner. Never a speaker and a teacher.

Feminism is not an equality movement. It never was.

After a couple of dates, she reports back to you "there is no chemistry,": Does that essentially mean 'sorry, you have no game'?

4 upvotes · 3 December 2012 · /r/seduction

Yes. Next her and be less invested and more demanding with the next one.

Wife Threatening Action Against me if I get a Vasectomy

4 upvotes · 21 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Wait until your wife is gone for a few days, and get your vasectomy. Do not tell her.

This ain't gonna work the way you think.

It took me about three weeks to recover. Average is four.

"Birth control should be for men."

4 upvotes · 12 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Unfortunately it doesn't work that way.

The more complicated a system is, the easier it is to interrupt its function. We'd all love to have real male options for birth control, but the lack of them isn't just due to anti-male bias.

It's also due to the fact that making effective birth control measures for men is a much, much more complicated task.

Bus driver involved in incident with woman has been fired

4 upvotes · 7 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, a right cross or stomp to the kneecap works just as well.

In all seriousness, what is your proposed solution? Have you ever been in a fight as an adult? Have you ever had someone attack you with serious intent to harm? Have you ever tried to restrain someone who was trying to harm you or even simply not to be restrained?

Or are you just a monday morning quarterback who has never held a football?

It's easy to watch a youtube video and say "he used 25% too much force", when you've no idea what it looked like from his perspective. It's easy to say how much risk of harm you felt he should be able to accept in order to protect someone who was attacking him.

But it's intellectually dishonest to pretend you know what you're on about.

I'm fine in a low-key environment, in a bar the conversation struggles. What's going on?

4 upvotes · 5 November 2012 · /r/seduction

Introvert is not the opposite of "outgoing". It is the opposite of "extrovert".

Few people who aren't psychologists know what an introvert actually is. It has nothing whatsoever to with socialization.

It has to do with alertness, and optimal levels of neurological arousal. You, introverts are fundamentally more alert and require less stimulation to be aroused, and become overstimulated in environments designed for extroverts. Introverts thus hate loud, noisy, chaotic settings.

The difference can objectively be told by placing a drop of lemon juice on the tongue, and measuring how much someone salivates.

Anonymity for the victim but none for the SUSPECTED rapist. Ain't equality grand?

4 upvotes · 1 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Alleged victim.

r/Communism will openly ban MRAs, saying that MRAs are "anti-feminists" and "organized misogynists"

4 upvotes · 30 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

TIL there are actually 4000 people still willing to call themselves communists. Interesting.

And there we have it.

4 upvotes · 28 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Ancestor comment:

Feminists, however, constantly claim that to fix men's problems, we need more feminism.

A handy quotation by Noam Chomsky for those who call you a misogynist for speaking out for the issues of men

4 upvotes · 9 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Today's lefties have the political memory of a goldfish.

Now you're making his point for him. This is one of biggest problems with the political right... they cannot resist the temptation to insult and belittle anyone who disagrees with them, derailing the debate into the mire. You could have just said "Today's left seems to have paid little attention to the track record of their own movement."

It's as if they've convinced themselves that the last 30 years of leftist hate spewed at any men's issue just didn't happen.

This is true. They certainly do not seem to pay attention even to what is coming out of their own mouths.

The MR movement existed well BEFORE Reddit and the early activists were 90% conservative

I do not agree with this. It's important to make a distinction between MRA and tradcons (traditionalist conservatives).

To make this distinction, we must realize that tradcon values are also anti-male... they send to die in wars and down coal mines, in order to keep women safe. They make endless demands about what behaviours are and are not "allowed" to be a "true" man (and no homosexual men need apply). The only concession they make to men's rights is that they demand a thin surface veneer of submissiveness, obedience, and decorum from women in return for massive male sacrifice.

Because the left demands not even this, tradcons on the right often think they are MRAs. They are not. The party you think the lefties are late to is not the MR party. You just think it is because it has some of the same guests.

And in order to really get this party started, we need to realize that both the right and the left have not so much simply betrayed us as been our enemies all along. Both are primarily interested in the safety, comfort, and well-being of women, regardless of the expense to men, because both have not really examined their thinking about women... they are simply acting out the instinctive human behaviour of feeling more sympathy for women, and placing women first.

The political right's plan for men is a poison less toxic, less noxious than the left's. But in the end it is more dangerous for that very reason... men are more likely to sip at that cup, and be destroyed anyway, for it may taste sweeter, but it is poison all the same.

This was the last straw of my Red Pill, Access to goods and services, and Differences in Pay

4 upvotes · 25 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Okay, you're annoyed, but think a minute. What were the Americans doing there? Were they not wearing uniforms? Were they not fighting the same war? Were they not risking their lives?

We're having an MGTOW debate over at /r/LadyMRAs and we'd appreciate various POVs from /r/MensRights.

4 upvotes · 22 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

I actually think it sums you up as a human.

You took a reasonable essay about MGTOW, and you poked at its author until he exploded with rage. Then you pretended that his anger at you was hatred of all women.

And if your definition of "misogynist" or "hate-monger" is "anyone I can make angry enough to swear at me"... then that bar is too low.

His temper may be too short, but your diplomacy skills are non-existent.

Why is it ok for people to call men 'ugly' but as soon as someone were to call a woman 'ugly', everyone gets mad?

4 upvotes · 30 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because there are inherent differences between the genders, and some insults hit some groups harder than others.

Calling a woman "ugly" or a "slut" bothers her much more than it would bother a man. Calling a man "creepy", or a "wimp" bothers him much more than it would bother a woman.

The problem is not that we protect women more than men from these things that hurt them more. It's that we don't protect men more than women from the things that hurt them more.

Regarding the Suppression of Men's Issues in Our Public Discourse

4 upvotes · 10 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

This a logical non sequitur. Having a large audience doesn't make what you say any smarter.

And failing at logic like that is pretty dumb.

Daddy Justice reminds us that all a home invader has to do is find the list of who has restraining orders on them to find out who is not armed.

4 upvotes · 8 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

The entire country of Switzerland is armed to the teeth. Also very few home invasions.

Perhaps there isn't much of a correlation here.

As a woman, I'd like to express my support for this subreddit, and its parent organization. I've first-hand witnessed discrimination toward men.

4 upvotes · 8 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Brace yourself for a lot of feminists accusing you of only supporting us for the attention it gets you.

Apparently, liberated females can only have the proper, approved opinions. Only then are they truly free.

The Lonely Life of Julia: In Obama's ideal world, men are replaced by bureaucrats.

4 upvotes · 5 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Redistribution is much much worse than a zero-sum game.

Indeed. I was trying to keep it simple for a hostile audience.

However, we also need to remember that just because redistribution is lossy doesn't mean it's always a bad thing. Sometimes there are distribution problems that can't be fixed by the market.

But redistribution is always for distribution (you'd think the name would be a giveaway). Redistribution never creates wealth.

I feel more comfortable in MensRights than in /r/women or /r/TwoXChromosomes

4 upvotes · 19 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, like no one's ever made that joke before.

Huffington Post: Where Are the 'Normal' Men?

4 upvotes · 5 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

... and won't tell you about because, if you really loved her, you'd just know already.

Basic female advice from a girl

4 upvotes · 4 April 2012 · /r/seduction

True. But experience seducing women as a woman is not all that transferable.

Does anyone else see this irony in the feminist circles: they claim they're against gender roles, but engage in virgin shaming men all the time?

4 upvotes · 30 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

It reveals an interesting bias - that the value of a man is determined by his acceptance by women. Therefore, a man who hasn't been accepted by a woman is of low value.

This sentence is so good that there's no need for the rest of what you wrote.

Women are not the measure of a man's essential worth. But too many people think that they are.

7 unique TL;DRs.

4 upvotes · 27 March 2012 · /r/seduction

Myers-Briggs is not science, the person who came up with it was not even a psychologist.

However, I realize that you are saying "Chicks dig junk science, and horoscopes". So learn it, yeah, sure.

Just don't believe it.

More new mods

4 upvotes · 22 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Having leftist in charge, and ONLY them in charge, is like having wolf guarding the sheep.

No, it's like having the lunatics in charge of the asylum.

A subtle but important distinction. The problem with socialism is not ill intent, but the fact that it does not work properly. Or indeed at all.

And the fact that feminism and leftism usually occur together has less to do with leftism itself, as with the way that feminism hitches its cart to any available horse, rather than doing its own pulling.

Of course, the conservatives are no answer, either. Hell, male disposability is the fucking cornerstone of their political platform.

Would it be "hilarity" if the genders were reversed? (xpost from videos)

4 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

This person seems to be a traditionalist.

This person also appears to be living in Sri Lanka, so perhaps it's a little less antiquated there than here.

Women Who Want Domesticity

4 upvotes · 8 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

You don't understand racial nationalists then (and white nationalists are not the only racial nationalists).

What's to understand? What does race add to the picture, here? Why do we need to be race-aware? Who cares about skin colour or national origin? Why can't we just worry about people's behaviour instead of where they came from or who their parents were?

I read some of this site, and I saw people who regard me as the enemy because I don't believe the universe was created by an invisible sky wizard, enjoy kinky sex, and occasionally shoot my "racially pure" nordic semen into a black, or jewish, or asian girl, and have the temerity not to give a crap about their whining about how the brown people are taking over.

I know what the nation they imagine looks like, and I don't want to be a part of it. It's a Disney version of a 1950s America that never was. And it certainly has no room for free spirits like me.

Include me out.

Is there or isn't there a patriarchy?

4 upvotes · 1 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

The burden of proof is on the non-null hypothesis.

To prove a hypothesis, you must derive predictions from it, then test those predictions. Tell me, what predictions does the patriarchy hypothesis make? How can they be tested? How can they be distinguished from the results of alternative hypotheses?

There is a large thread in Askreddit about circumcision

4 upvotes · 30 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

By not letting them slice pieces off of infants! Mwahaahahahaah!

How Can She Slap? Abusive woman slaps guy, he slaps back equally and gets mauled and beaten by a dozen men on TV show. Nobody helps the male victim.

4 upvotes · 29 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

For fairness' sake: If you watch the video from the beginning, it seems the woman's official role at the TV show is to be a bastard bitch. So maybe one would have to expect this behavior from her.

And part that role would then be "getting hit back".

Ending the Last Minute Resistance controversy with SRS

4 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Do not pay any attention to SRS. They are trolls.

In general, seddit and the gameosphere needs to stop licking the boots of the far left wing and begging not to be called rapists and sociopaths. They are going to call us rapists and sociopaths no matter what we do, so long we continue to try to have some control over our sex lives, instead of ceding it all to women.

That is what they effectively want. They do not care about what women actually find attractive. They do not care what actually works for young men. They only care about making us behave as if we lived in a feminist fantasy ideal universe, and to hell with our lives in the real one.

The only thing that matters to them is making us participate in their collaborative lies. And as long as we care whether they call us immoral or not, they will be able to.

We know we are not rapists. We know the difference between persuasion and force. And that's the only standard that matters.

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

4 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Depends what the exchange rates are... I get paid in wampum. And blowjobs.

New: What makes you think I'm interested in you?

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

4 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Cool! Neither do I!

OR

Really? I do. They're great!

New: You're not one of those pickup guys, are you?

F-closing a 2-set at the same time?

4 upvotes · 11 January 2012 · /r/seduction

I'm thinking you just treat the 2-set as one.

That's not a bad idea. But my preferred method is to have one girl locked down, and then pick up the second together. All that double-barreled attention intoxicates them, plus having the other girl backing your game prequalifies you.

Sometimes girls are more down for a threesome with a female friend than a stranger, but sometimes if they know each other too well, it'll trigger ASD. I recall one instance where me and an FWB were just about to fclose one of her friends from school, when she LMRed, not because she was kissing another girl, because she was kissing her friend. Unfortunately, my FWB didn't have all that much game, so she kind of got in the way of my efforts to redirect. I so just had to fclose the new girl solo with FWB watching.

I generally find the most success approaching a relative stranger together. New girl doesn't get as much ASD because the other girl doesn't know her and can't spread rumors, and doesn't get as much resistance to the girl-girl thing because if there's a guy there, too, it's somehow different. Also helps if new girl is slightly lower on the 10-scale than the one you have in tow. Makes her feel singled out for special attention.

Still, batting average ain't high on this one. I think a lot of factors are internal to New Girl, and out of your control.

Louis CK: get off the toilet fathers, you might enjoy it

4 upvotes · 1 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

He keeps telling men to "man up" and live their lives harnessed to someone else's dream.

He thinks that having kids is a contribution to society, in fact, he thinks it's the only meaningful one.

He regularly spews misandrist garbage.

He can die in a fire, as far as I'm concerned.

I hear the "we have it tougher than you" argument all the time, and I've decided it's crap.

4 upvotes · 30 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's true that there are more pressing matters in the world than the equality issues of white American males, but you know what? There are more pressing matters in the world than the equality issues of white American females.

You, sir, win the internet forever.

Horseracing trainer jailed for contacting her daughter (UK)

4 upvotes · 20 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Vicky Haigh, 41, who was named and shamed earlier this year after she falsely accused her former boyfriend of being a paedophile,

Oh, no! She was named and shamed!

Won't anyone think of the poor lying sociopathic scumbags?

Domestic Violence Against Men - How It Often Starts

4 upvotes · 17 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

The most common reason is that most men are brought up being taught that it is never okay to hit a woman. While this rule remains true

What the actual fuck?

It is indeed sometimes okay to hit a woman. That's because it's sometimes okay to hit people. Usually it isn't, sometimes it is. And gender does not change that equation.

A male feminist posted this link in myFacebook thread; in response to a Men's Rights link I put up. [Details in comments]

4 upvotes · 16 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Yes, all those hardcore atheists, going around murdering priests, and denying all the atrocities committed by atheists in the name of atheism!

Wait, what? Really? Not even just one?

Oh, nevermind.

"Well you must be dating/marrying the wrong women, then!" How do you answer this smug, empty argument?

4 upvotes · 14 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

http://www.reddit.com/r/science/comments/7x78v/what_do_modern_men_want_in_women/c07omtc

Would you accept being in an 1700's-style marriage, where your husband owned everything, and had the legal right to beat you, simply because he was a "nice guy and wouldn't do that"?

That is precisely what men are being asked, no, expected, to accept.

Is it any wonder we are distrustful and suspicious to the point of paranoia? It's our only defense. The law will not protect us. The law is against us, straight down the line.

X post from r/feminisms - Campaign to remove r/beatingwomen and r/rapingwomen

4 upvotes · 1 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Banning is an ancient and honorable tradition. After all, what could be more democratic than forbidding others from seeing things you don't like?

What's important isn't what you ban, it's that you participate in the banning process.

I, for example, don't like pickles.

Boys Swimming on Girls Teams Find Success, Then Draw Jeers

4 upvotes · 24 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

ALERT Protein unit 59762 engaging in doubleplusungood gender essentialist wrongthink. Thought regulatory units engage and divert to reeducation sensitivity happytime goodthink programming.

Seduction, I have no knowledge of your ways. I'm a poor 27 year old college student, average looks and social skills. I drive a shitty car. I have sex with various women 2 to 4 times a week.

4 upvotes · 17 November 2011 · /r/seduction

I guess what my input here really boils down to is this (and, again, probably doing a shitty job of writing it down in a practical sense): you were born to do this. the connection between you and another person is the most natural and human thing there can be. if this isn't what you're experiencing maybe your heart is closed or damaged or you're completely surrounded by assholes.

This is very well said, and true.

But what you don't realize is that, in a post-feminism society, having a closed and damaged heart, and being completely surrounded by assholes, is the normal state of a young man.

What would you do if you woke up tomorrow morning the opposite sex?

4 upvotes · 9 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Question assumes that gender doesn't influence behaviour.

Women do what women do because they are women. Men do what men do because they are men. If you ask a woman what she would do as a man, or a man what he would do as a woman, you'll get a fake answer... neither gender has the drives they would actually have as a member of the other.

Women acting mean? Blame the men

4 upvotes · 27 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

In my experience, the one thing a feminist never runs out of is excuses.

Woman serves no jail time for alcohol and sexual abuse against 4 boys aged 12-16; judge cites her troubled upbringing

4 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

why is it rape if the boys consent

Are you willing to apply that same standard to 12 year old girls and adult men?

Being called "Creepy" ostracizes people, usually men. If you're a creep shamer, fuck you!

4 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

You totally missed the point.

"He creeped us out", you say. Exactly. He made you uncomfortable. Somebody else could have said the same words, in a different way, and made you laugh.

The problem is not that you were uncomfortable. That's fine. The problem is that you don't understand how or why. You can't articulate what it was about it that made you uncomfortable.

You don't have that self-understanding, and you aren't trying to cultivate it. So you just say "he's creepy", as if this were an inherent attribute of him, with no introspection required.

If you were to understand why he made you uncomfortable, you would be better equipped to avoid feeling that way, and better equipped to help others not to do that to you. The difficult part is that this involves taking responsibility for your feelings.

Circumcised men have a 4.5 times greater chance of suffering from erectile dysfunction than intact men - study by International Journal of Men's Health

4 upvotes · 25 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Correlation is not causation

So erectile dysfunction causes circumcision, then?

Or something causes both circumcision and ED?

Because those are the other two options.

[For Newbies] Nice Guy Syndrome: What it is and why you should kill it with fire [LONG]

4 upvotes · 24 October 2011 · /r/seduction

A NiceGuy(tm) isn't necessarily a jerk, but he is necessarily acting weak. This causes women to lose respect for him, and no attraction can survive the death of respect.

How does /r/MensRights feel about being linked to in the side bar at a White Supremacist subreddit?

4 upvotes · 17 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

This just in: jcm267 has never provided any evidence that he isn't a pedophile, a terrorist, a communist sympathizer, or a witch!

X-Post from r/Montana Man denied protection from ex wife, then shot to death by ex wife

4 upvotes · 15 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Have a look through his comment history. It's comedy gold.

When "good" feminists do nothing

4 upvotes · 14 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Well put.

As I've said many times before:

"Why is it when you tell me Not All Feminists Are Like That, you only tell me... not your fellow feminists? Why don't you stand up to them, instead of simply defending them from me?"

Warning women not to get too drunk makes a man a "Victim blamer and woman shamer"

4 upvotes · 13 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

"I know it was kinda my fault" is a common attitude among rape victims

See, this is why I love having women here. For these little insights. We often hate most the statements that we secretly worry are true.

But here's the kicker. They're confusing "my fault" with "I deserve it". No one who says women are partially responsible for rape believes that they deserve to be raped. They just want women to acknowledge that female behaviour has some impact on this phenomenon.

That women, as well as men, can stop rape.

'What do I do now?' asks man whose business was ruined by false claim of attempted rape

4 upvotes · 7 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Garada's family was able to prove he was set up by a man who has a grudge against him.

Hell of an idea. Instead of hiring a hit man to kill someone, you hire a woman to accuse him of rape. It destroys him almost as effectively, and if she gets caught, she won't be punished.

I saw this and cried.

4 upvotes · 7 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Okay, you're a troll, and I probably shouldn't be wasting my breath, but...

A "conspiracy" doesn't mean a bunch of people got together in a smoke-filled room and agreed on a plan of nefarious action while rubbing their hands together and cackling.

It's a bunch of people, with a common interest, who agree to work together towards an agenda, and who conceal that agenda from others.

How feminist men emotionally disable women

4 upvotes · 28 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Speaking as software engineer in one of the most arcane parts of the field, I can address this.

Tech fields are not anti-woman. They are pro-competence. The reason that there are so few women in software engineering is that so few of them can do it... and even less want to.

Software engineering, if you're any good, is a soft job to have. The pay is high, the working conditions are good, the job market is tight, and the respect flows freely.

But it is unadulterated hell to train for. Students at first-tier CS undergraduate programs must work incredibly hard to master the arcana of their craft. They make neurosurgery residents and Navy SEALs look like slackers. It's a little easier if you're a genius, but not much.

Running that gauntlet requires some combination of toughness, self-neglect, ambition, or simply desperate need for a good job and the money it brings.

It's rare for women to have the urgent need to run that gauntlet. Respect, financial security, and a good life are all available to them without having to ever learn to solve differential equations.

Man rapes Female Would-be Thief: "HOW DARE HE?". Woman rapes Male Would-be Thief:

"HOW DARE HE COMPLAIN?"

4 upvotes · 4 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Morons say moronic things

Morons say what other people tell them.

How Feminism Became a Joke

4 upvotes · 12 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

What do you mean, became?

Seddit, only you can help this poor clueless man! Feel like being a hero today?

4 upvotes · 8 August 2011 · /r/seduction

What I was keying in on was that his fiancée is objecting to him raising his value, and he feels guilty about it.

Guy and I hit it off really well, we had sex, he's stopped talking to me

4 upvotes · 16 July 2011 · /r/seduction

I'll definitely ask him what's going on, and he'll probably give me some bullshit "Sorry! I've been so busy!" blahblahblah answer.

He almost definitely will if he doesn't trust you. Unfortunately, your fellow women have been very busy all his life making that the case.

I will tell you right now, he wishes he could tell you the truth, but he can't. If you tell him he can, he'll wish he could believe you, but he can't.

It is a sad pass we have come to, you and us. We wish we could tell we want every inch of your bodies, without getting slapped or sneered at when we said it. You wish you could tell us you want to be fucked like a cylinder in a Porsche engine, without worrying about whether someone will think you're a "slut".

We want the same things. We like each other, love each other, lust after each other.

So we should get along better than we do.

So give him a break. He's been taught that he's seven varieties of awful chauvinist misogynist pig if he has the gall to tell you what he wants.

That tends to stick. Try to get him to trust you enough to be honest. And if he can't, remember this for the next guy.

Fauxminism and Men - A feminist explains why equality-minded men should not join feminism

4 upvotes · 14 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Why is it that MRAs seem to welcome female allies with open arms, while feminists seem to welcome male allies with additional complaints, criticism, and demands?

Oh, right, because MRAs have real issues to confront, while first-world feminists are down to "casting as sexism any interpersonal annoyance".

Why Circumcision is a Feminist Issue

4 upvotes · 11 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

You like it, so you want to keep forcing it on others?

Circumcision is done to infants, without their consent.

wikipedia is holding a "deletion review" for Tom Ball's entry

4 upvotes · 11 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Now you do.

Let's see how long before it's removed as "not significant".

Humble Pie For The Homely - you should be pleased that awkward elevator guy approached you at all.

4 upvotes · 10 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Your movement wants to be taken seriously, right?

Redditor for 27 days.

1 Karma.

-6 Comment Karma.

Randall Munroe (XKCD) on requiring gender to be shown in a public Google+ profile

4 upvotes · 9 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

This is all I have to say about Randall Monroe.

Acting on Impulse

4 upvotes · 6 July 2011 · /r/seduction

I wanted to write a comment on this, dithered about it for five minutes, then decided not to.

Don't MRAs and feminists both want gender equality? Where's the big disagreement?

4 upvotes · 4 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

As you point out below, a lot of what we identify as gender does go away if you ignore it

A little bit more careful reading, please:

some differences between the genders may indeed be cultural in nature. But the notion of "dissolving" gender roles rests upon the unwarranted and dangerous assumption that all of them are

Then you go on to say some very strange things:

there's also a whole lot of other baggage piled on top of that idea, and things have become confused enough that our social definition doesn't really line up with whatever biological definition there is anymore.

Anymore? Are you under the impression that non-construct differences between the genders are significantly decreasing over time?

In general, it is very dangerous to attempt to dissolve a non-construct. Why? Well, it becomes obvious when we realize that another way to say the phrase "dissolve a non-construct" is "deny reality".

But what have we done? We have restructured our society based on the advice of a non-scientific philosophical movement which has as one of its core beliefs the notion that gender roles themselves are a construct.

Yeah, all of them.

This is absurd. We can guess that probably at least a few are, but we don't know which ones. There's no collected body of scientific evidence. There's only a lot of rhetoric back and forth.

We don't understand the role gender plays in behaviour. We've barely scratched the surface. And still we attempt to meddle with what we do not understand.

And we are meddling. Make no mistake about that.

When you say:

it may be statistically true that more men have the ability to do high level scientific work, but that shouldn't imply that individual men should be treated as having more scientific ability than they do, or individual women should be treated as having less. Doing away with the idea that men should do certain work because they are men seems to leave it open for them to choose to do that work if they want to, whether it's due to nature or nurture.

... you are under a sadly mistaken impression of just what it is we are doing, as a society.

We don't just "stop saying that men should do this work". We have actually been saying that if women don't comprise at least 50% of {scientists, engineers, senators, CEOs, whatever}, then it must be because of bias against them, and we set out to "stamp it out", when we haven't even directly observed it.

In other words, instead of creating a non-sexist society by removing sexism where we observe it, we actually try to create a non-sexist society by imagining what one might look like, and then trying to force ours into that mold with quotas, laws, and propaganda.

But we have no idea what a non-sexist society would look like. to know that, we have to know exactly which gender roles were constructs, and which were not, and to what degree. We don't have that information.

So what we have, in effect, done, is create a new kind of gender-straitjacketed culture, based upon a new set of expectations, prejudices, and arbitrary abstract philosophical beliefs.

Feminism has become the problem.

Postscript: For simplicity, I have ignored the notion that even if something is a construct, that does not mean we ought to do away with it. As I pointed out, the USA is a construct. Anybody wanna stop having countries? Show of hands? Anyone? Bueler?

Til Death Do Us Part

4 upvotes · 20 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

The PUA sector of the man-o-sphere refers to tantrums like hers as 'shit-tests'. The idea being that, if only he stood up for himself, and did not back down or become emotional, he would 'pass' and she would become a more demure wife as a result.

Upvoted this so hard.

r/seduction and r/mensrights need to start reading each other.

People here don't realize that there are tools for fighting back, and people there don't realize that the playing field isn't level.

My girlfriend says you can't be sexist against men. Please help.

4 upvotes · 15 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

"So all men have power over all women?"

The "gay girl in damascus" hoax, false accusations and gullibility

4 upvotes · 14 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

This is an interesting read, and I'm glad I saw it somewhere.

But I'm not really sure it belongs here.

None of this really relates to men's rights. The gay rights movement is neither allied to nor opposed to men's rights. The islamic societies being slandered here are certainly no allies of ours (islam being almost as oppressive of men as it is of women).

How does this relate to men?

Amanda Marcotte: Liberal Head, Bigoted Heart

4 upvotes · 15 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

So what?

Just had a mental breakthrough.

4 upvotes · 11 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Did I touch a nerve there? Sorry.

But I do suggest you get some other source of self-worth than women. Women are not the measure of us. It would be rather sad and pathetic if after all this work, we were to still enslave our self-respect to female approval.

Seduction skills aren't about self-worth. They're about control over our own destinies. About the freedom from being controlled by the withholding of pussy, or from twisting ourselves into a caricature of man to please someone else.

How many Sedditors here are unemployed?

4 upvotes · 10 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Being unemployed gives you a financial disadvantage, but it gives you something valuable in return: time and energy.

Working full time gives you more money to spend, but fewer opportunities to work your game.

As the mod of mensrights, I openly argue for the rights of anyone 'who presently has, used to have, or desires to have a penis.'

4 upvotes · 9 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Okay, so you now grant people the right to own their own minds. That's progress of a sort, I suppose.

Let's ask the obvious next question, then. How big of a deal must something be, before I can withhold that information without being an asshole?

If I'm HIV positive, can I withhold that information until after sex?

Okay, let's try something a little milder.

If I'm a registered sex offender, do I have to say something?

Milder still...

How about if I neglect to mention to a woman that I'm into bdsm before I handcuff her to the bed?

Still feel like I have an obligation to say something? Okay, let's try a less clear-cut case.

How about if I don't mention that I'm morbidly obese before she sees me arrive at the airport? What if she was the one who paid for the ticket?

Have we found the line yet? Shall I keep going?

Should a 'Trans-girl' let you know that she used to be a man before sex? Not according to the folk of /r/transphobiaproject.

4 upvotes · 8 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Woman being raped = man finding out his girl is trans??? Wow--that's fucked up. I've heard a lot of stupid

Oh, I see.

You're just breathtakingly dumb, and don't know how analogies work.

I used to wonder why they had English class in junior high school. Now I realize that there really are people who can't read something and understand what it means, by putting together the meaning of each word in sequence.

Sorry, but I can't help you with this problem. You are either an unfortunate victim of parents who were at the shallow end of the gene pool, or you are too neurotic to be able to think straight without your feelings getting in the way.

Either case is beyond my remedy. If I had the slightest confidence in your mental powers, I would say "Go back and read what I wrote, dimwit." But I do not, and calling someone a dimwit is just too unkind when it is actually true.

Bf admitted to losing respect for me

3 upvotes · 13 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

He would also get annoyed with my clumsiness, and overall "chaotic" energy which I understood and am working on improving.

...

I'm honestly quite offended. He knows firsthand how I worry about people thinking I'm not smart/competent and here he was thinking all of the things I feared.

You each have expectations of the other that you haven't clearly expressed in a way the other person understands.

We call this a "covert contract". You imagine you have a contract with him, and he is breaking it by doing whatever it is he is doing... but you have told him what you expect, or allowed him the chance to agree or disagree.

One phrase women frequently use is "he did X when he knew I feel Y".

This attitude is pure poison to relationships.

- You have no idea what he knew or didn't know unless he tells you.
- He has no idea what you felt, or would feel, unless you told him.
- Just because you don't like something doesn't mean he's obligated not to do it. He has likes and dislikes, too. You have to compromise.

Sex Premarital, Casual and Otherwise

3 upvotes · 12 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

The reason that you're wearing a flair saying "Endorsed Contributor" isn't because you're wise, or insightful, or a good writer. None of these are enough.

It's because you're capable of writing these three words:

my immediate feeling

When you wrote those words, you did something very important, which is what TRP/RPW/etc is all about.

You externalized your instinctive reaction. You othered it. You treated it as something other than you. This allowed you to examine it.

TRP/RPW were really founded out of a desire to understand human instincts, so as to gain the power to predict them, and the power to avoid being sabotaged by our own.

To understand an instinct, we have to analyze it. To analyze it, we have to understand it as a discreet thing separate from our consciousness. We can't ask ourselves why we (or other people) do things, until we can understand instincts as something other than "just the way I feel", or "what is obviously right", or "just the way things are".

Most people are very bad at this. It makes them uncomfortable to try. But all progress and enlightenment occurs outside of our comfort zone. It has to be, because our comfort zone is explored already, and enlightenment is by definition learning that hasn't happened yet.

So when I say things like "the sexuality of 13 year old girls" you feel discomfort. It would be more comfortable for you if they didn't have one. But to pretend that is the case is self-destructive, because your girls will turn 13, and they will have a sexuality. And if you stick your head in the sand and ignore that... well, that's how you get pregnant teenagers, isn't it?

So let's probe at the uncomfortable spot: Your daughters, at some point in the future, will wrap their lips around someone's cock and do tongue tricks.

Ouch... right?

But now, externalize that reaction. Set it aside, so it can be examined. When you do that, of course, it becomes obvious that this is not only correct, it's fine. You, too, perform oral sex. That's fine, and it will be fine when they do it.

Your job, as a mother, is to educate them so they don't do it to the wrong cock, or a large number of them. That's why this revulsion exists in you. You're supposed to put the brakes on.

But if you just put the brakes on, without teaching or explaining or allowing some sort of healthy, gradually increasing outlet for their sexual instincts, they will rebel and you will be unable to put the brakes on at all. That's why being able to externalize our instincts is so important... so we can make them our servants, rather than our masters.

Fortunately, you have a huge head start over other mothers. You are already able to think this way, and you have ten years to go through this process and come up with a plan.

The most important thing for you is to continuously inspire their trust, so that they will be comfortable telling you about feelings that most kids are embarrassed or afraid to talk to their parents about.

Design the ideal woman for this man?

3 upvotes · 12 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Exactly.

Our culture's myth is that relationships are initiated by men, once a woman has attracted them simply by standing around looking desirable.

This is completely backwards. It is the woman who initiates, because the man has successfully looked awesome. People get this confused because men generally make the first overt move.

Pickup, TRP style, is about being masculine and attractive, and then recognizing what we call "IOI"s (indicators of interest). These are a woman's come-hither signals, and they can be conscious or unconscious.

But a man who doesn't know how to recognize them won't get laid except by women who are easy enough not to be selective, and a woman who doesn't know how to send them won't be able to choose the man she wants, and instead be stuck with whoever makes a cold pass at her.

Cringe comedian

3 upvotes · 25 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

She can't.

It's impossible to play pool with a rope for a cue.

Shower thoughts: being water

3 upvotes · 12 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I guess I just get sick of the intellectual grounds always being situated on their home turf and their constant reminders of that fact.

Who is this "they" of which you speak?

If you complain that the "other team" has the home field advantage, you are saying that someone is the "other team".

RPW is all about not seeing men as the "other team".

What are your thoughts on this one-sided ad?

3 upvotes · 5 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Because remember, kids, violence against a woman is Violence Against Women™, while violence against a man is just plain old generic violence!

FDS celebrating the decline of men's health. Seriously, are the people in that sub okay?

3 upvotes · 14 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

"Productive" in this sense, doesn't just mean benefiting women, it means benefiting them, personally.

In a way that they don't already have, and completely take for granted, like... all of human civilization.

"Predator" is a becoming a meaningless buzzword here

3 upvotes · 30 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What you've spotted here is just a female habit called "damseling".

It's the practice of pretending to be a victim when one is not, or of exaggerating one's fear or trauma, to exert more social influence.

For women, the appearance of victimhood is empowering.

would you be willing to date a woman who did not have sex?

3 upvotes · 24 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This question is far too unclear to be answered.

I am a plate

3 upvotes · 22 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

men are those who choose to offer commitment and postpone sex not because they had to, but because their religion, values, and beliefs dictate that they do

These men are a very combination of the lower risk of Cat4 men with the higher reward of Cat3 men... but they are only a good choice if you share those religious values.

This is because a good relationship is supported by three pillars:

1. Mutual attraction.
2. Shared values.
3. Shared goals.

No matter how desirable strong religious beliefs might make a man look on paper, you're not going to have a good relationship if you don't share those values. Remember that you're not just looking for a good man, you're for a good relationship.

If you're not religious, the strategy I recommend is:

1. Make an honest assessment of how good your girl game and femininity is, by watching how men you meet in your everyday life react to you. Are they eager to do you favours and be nice to you, or do you get in a lot of arguments with men?
2. If your girl game is no good, read and practice, and don't date until you improve it.
3. Once your girl game is good, date Cat3 men.
4. Don't have sex with them "to keep them", and don't delay sex with them "to test them".
5. Instead, have sex with them when you agree with all of the following statements:

"I trust this man"

"I want to spend the rest of my life with him"

"I want to have sex with him"

I say A, what y'all say?

3 upvotes · 20 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Allow me to make this simple for you.

You want something from me. Specifically, you want me to change my opinion about something. You don't know what my actual opinion is, because you haven't bothered to ask, but you think you know it, and you want me to change it.

I don't want anything from you. I don't care if you change your opinion about anything or not.

So, if you want something from me, but I don't want anything from you, how exactly are we supposed to make a deal? I'm not going to give you something for nothing.

You could, I suppose find something you have that I want, and offer it to me, but you don't know what I want, and I don't know what you have to offer. So that would take some figuring out.

So far all you are doing is fussing. I don't actually value fussing, because if I want some, I can get it for free. Try something else.

I say A, what y'all say?

3 upvotes · 20 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

I'm not dumb.

That remains to be seen.

I can tell when a descriptor is used as an insult

This conversation is becoming increasingly bizarre as you say more and more nonsensical things.

"Don't say that."

"I didn't say that. If you heard it, that's because you were thinking it already."

"Don't be disingenuous. I know what you were thinking."

So what you really meant was "don't think that".

If you want me to stop thinking something, persuade me otherwise.

How should I handle my boyfriend admitting to me that he is not 100% straight and finds some men sexually attractive?

3 upvotes · 20 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I was surprised, so I asked more questions: "do you find male genitalia attractive?" he says "yes," "do you like big 'p*nises?'" he says "yes," etc. Also, he has admitted that he has watched gay porn. However, towards the end of our conversation, he assured me that he has never liked men romantically/sexually throughout his life.

Your boyfriend is bisexual. So what?

I felt hurt because throughout our whole relationship, he has not mentioned anything about this.

Quit lying.

You're not hurt "because he didn't mention it". There are plenty of things he didn't mention. He never mentioned that he likes lingonberry jam. He never told you about that time in first grade when he got sick and threw up in a teacher's hair.

If he mentioned that thigh-high stockings turn him on, you wouldn't be "hurt because he didn't mention it". You'd start wearing them in bed.

You're not hurt that he didn't mention it. You're hurt because of it.

He is a faithful partner and is still working on his relationship with God.

Ah, now we finally see the problem.

You are bothered because a guy in a big hat read a book written by a bunch of bronze age goat herders, and now you are part of a social tradition that doesn't like teh gay.

The biblical rule doesn't enter into it, because, strictly speaking, there no biblical injunction against liking dick at all, only one against fucking dudes. And it's in the same part of the book that forbids eating shrimp, having tattoos, and wearing garments made of two different types of thread woven together.

You also should not approach the altar of the lord if you have a defect in your sight, you know. And you should wear a sign when you're on your period, to let men know you are unclean and they should not touch or approach you.

No, what's important to you here is not a biblical rule, but your community social tradition of disapproving of male homosexuality.

You have a decision to make. Which is more important to you... your social mores, or your boyfriend.

I say A, what y'all say?

3 upvotes · 20 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

If you didn't already think it was an insult, you would not have taken it for one.

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

3 upvotes · 17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What exactly were you fixing for women before that you're not doing so anymore? I'm confused by the tone of the post it sounds like a big declaration, so what exactly are you proclaiming here?

My argument is actually not just composed of what I am saying here, but of the responses to it.

I was able to make an argument that is partly composed of what other people say, because I knew just what they would say if I said what I said.

The goal here is for people to notice that when the correct statement "Women owe men nothing" is made, it is regarded as a simple statement of principle, and a subject for abstract discussion.

But when the equally correct statement "men owe women nothing" is made, it is regarded as a "rant", which warrants removal, and as an emotionally-charged statement which reveals some sort of "hatred" for women.

The actual point that I am making here is that our culture is in the habit of getting compliance from men by lecturing them on alleged moral obligations, rather than by offering incentives.

That's why pointing out that men don't have obligations meets with such hostility. Because people depend on that strategy to get things that they want from men.

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

3 upvotes · 17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You've actually expressed my exact intended point here.

People who lecture others about their supposed obligations are losers who are trying to get something for nothing, because they have nothing of value to offer.

Between people who have their heads screwed on straight, and their lives in order, the concept of "obligation" never even enters into it. They simply treat each other with consideration, and receive it in return.

Do you agree - Even if having sex with a man would literally save his life, a woman has NO moral "obligation" to do so

3 upvotes · 16 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, /u/Artistic_Guest4386, I take it you always vote against any form of taxpayer-funded public assistance?

A feminist told me to kill myself

3 upvotes · 14 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

She's trying to help women catch up to the male suicide rate.

Viewing dating as a marketplace might be the biggest failure someone can make

3 upvotes · 14 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Good luck out there.

Is crying a turnoff for you?

3 upvotes · 13 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How's that whole "self-awareness" thing working out for you?

When to let go of a relationship?

3 upvotes · 11 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm trying to deliberately steer the conversation away from "he's just an asshole and you need to work on your self esteem" because then, any man you don't inspire to commit to you is an asshole!

Whereas the truth is - some men that are assholes turn into gentlemen around a lady.

This is important enough to be worth repeating.

Male protective behaviour is instinctive, and most of your modern "misogynist assholes" are simply suppressing it because it has been used to exploit them. When you treat a man differently, and earn his trust that you will continue to do so, then surprising things can happen.

[Q4W] Have any of you experienced guys who use dating coach tactics on you recently?

3 upvotes · 29 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's a scheme that lures men in and keeps them paying.

Who, exactly, is paying me?

FDS are "pick me" women

3 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You sure you wanna use words like "never" or "always" when you're making assertions like this?

That's setting the goalposts a lot further than you can probably kick. All anyone would have to do to prove you wrong is find one single girl you would describe as a "pickme", who prospered.

And since most FDS readers tend to use this term for any woman who considers a man's needs and desires at all... well, that's not very hard to do.

I could simply say "/u/sunshinesundress", and girl you would describe as a "pickme" would magically appear, and not only be able to describe her extremely happy relationship, but also how it only happened once she learned to act in a way that you would describe as "pickme", and how that sort of behaviour now gets her love and respect from men she isn't sleeping with.

Of course, you could then say "this is an atypical result", but then you'd be moving the goalposts, because you said "never".

Or you could try to say "she's not a pickme", in which case you would need to explain to her how her behaviour is actually more in line with the advice of FDS than RPW.

Or you could claim that she only thinks she is happy and isn't really happy, in which case we would both love to hear you explain how someone can think they are happy without actually being happy.

Or you could say that her SO is a werewolf who is only waiting to transform and devour her, which would be a very interesting sort of assertion to make about a man you've never met, to someone who knows him very well indeed.

Or you could just call her a liar. leaving us all to wonder why she'd bother, or why we should believe anything you say.

The fact is, ANY psychologically healthy person is, to some extent, a "pickme"... including me and the rest of TRP. We do things girls like, just because girls like those things. If girls liked something different, we'd do something different. We've been open about that all along.

A healthy sense of boundaries doesn't consist of never doing anything to please others. It consists of having conscious and well-proportioned control over what we are and are not willing to do, and who we are willing to do it for.

Your fierce resentment of the idea that you might be expected to do anything for anyone else, ever, is a product of fear.

You fear being exploited, and being unable to put a stop to it.

I do not fear being exploited, because I know what I am not willing to do, and will not do it, regardless of what else I have done for the person who asks.

In typical FDS fashion, you seek to control others because you believe you cannot control yourself. So you try to find magic ways to get others to behave in such a way that you never have to control yourself.

But this task you have set yourself is much harder than the task of simply learning self-discipline in the first place.

What are the lesser known struggle dating as a woman?

3 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

As opposed to?

Lesbians, what's your take on FDS?

3 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely my point.

So why the hell can't you do the same? I'm not stopping you. So you must be stopping you.

Why are you doing that to yourself? Why are you using a mental caricature of me as a sock puppet to call yourself unpleasant names?

Is there some part of you thinks you're an "abomination", and you're projecting that self-loathing onto me? Or have you simply been angry for so long that having someone to fight against is part of your identity?

I don't care if you like fucking other women. In the words of Thomas Jefferson, it neither picks my pocket nor breaks my leg.

No one cares that you want to fuck other women, except the other women you want to fuck, a handful of Jesus freaks who like to get all up in everyone's business, and a bunch of trannies who want to use you as an instrument to validate their delusions of womanhood.

If you feel persecuted, take it up with those people, not straight dudes. We don't think about you at all. We're busying thinking about women who like dick.

Lesbians, what's your take on FDS?

3 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nothing is profitable on reddit. That's why they had to sell r/politics to the DNC.

So I am new to the idea of “men’s rights” and am genuinely curious what you guys are advocating for. Could someone provide a couple of rights you guys want to see passed? (Serious replies please)

3 upvotes · 3 December 2021 · /r/MensRights

It isn't actually made of gold and diamonds, you know, and no one particularly wants to see it. Half the human race has them, and there's nothing special about yours.

Now if you could show me a ban on infant circumcision, or equal time for equal crimes, or a moratorium on arresting male victims of domestic violence, I'd get excited about that.

If you only focus on looks, status, and money then don't be surprised when you attract a lot of shallow people.

3 upvotes · 2 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I prefer my women no more than a handful of inches deep.

Also no more than eighteen inches wide, and around 48 to 70 inches tall.

The art of “Negging”...I unfortunately feel like it works...

3 upvotes · 2 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, awesome. Now we can talk about "negs" in context.

So here's one of the things I tell men, when I am teaching them how to be attractive to women:

In order to be attractive to women, you can't put them on a pedestal or in a hugbox. This makes them hold you in contempt. You have to willing to give them either praise or criticism or just plain honesty, depending on what will work.

Most modern western women respond much better to being challenged, teased, or even sometimes criticized than to praise, or expressions of reassurance or devotion. This is because they've had far too much of that from modern west culture, so much that it's unhealthy and no longer feels good.

Candy tastes good, but it makes you fat and sick. If a girl has been fed candy all her life, give her steak and broccoli instead. She will tell you it tastes icky, because she is used to everything being sweet all the time, but if there is any health remaining in her, she will come back for more.

You are attracted to men who tease you, present a challenge, and are unafraid to take you down a peg or say something blunt.

You've been told that's a Very Bad Thing by a society that is so protective of you that it cannot bear to see you treated as an ordinary adult human being. Your instincts are wiser than that, and so you still like cocky, challenging boys... but they have managed to persuade you that this is problem with you, and you are somehow flawed, and thus you experience nagging self-doubt.

Which is what your post is all about.

Objectively, does red pill have real life relevance? Does it "work"?

3 upvotes · 2 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KCMGWRoPuMY>

Objectively, does red pill have real life relevance? Does it "work"?

3 upvotes · 1 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There is a common sentiment around here that says red pillers are just bitter misogynistic boys who are upset because the women blah blah blah

That sentiment is common to people who cannot stand to hear anything negative said about women in general, ever, and so they must immediately try to discredit the source because they cannot discredit the statement.

If you are a red pill subscriber, did your life change for the better or for the worse? Do you get the results you want or you wish you've never known about this? What difference RP awareness made in your life?

I'm one of the handful of guys who came up with this stuff in the first place, so I included all the stuff that made my life better, and excluded the stuff that didn't.

What exactly is the end game for red-pillers,mgtow, mra, etc?

3 upvotes · 15 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The answer is as simple as the word "corruption", but that word is used so much that we don't really unpack what it means.

Dictionary cor·rup·tion /kəˈrəpSH(ə)n/

\1. dishonest or fraudulent conduct by those in power, typically involving bribery.

the action of making someone or something morally depraved or the state of being so.

\2. the process by which something, typically a word or expression, is changed from its original use or meaning to one that is regarded as erroneous or debased.

the process of causing errors to appear in a computer program or database.

\3. (archaic) decay; putrefaction.

What's important to understand about corruption is how the first two definitions are actually logical results of the third.

When something is corrupted (3), it is being invaded by micro-organisms which are like its own cells in size and capability, but instead of participating in its goals, like those cells do, they are there to subvert it for their own benefit, by eating it from the inside.

So when an organization or institution is corrupted (2), that means the institution has been invaded by individuals who are corrupt (1), and are there to profit off of it, rather than advancing its goals. These people are analogous to bacteria eating an organism's flesh, causing it to rot and decay.

Now, usually when we speak of corruption, we tend to focus on individual politicians, or journalists. For example, we might notice the Clinton Foundation, which exists primarily as a means for the Clinton family to sell political influence.

But our society has entered a different phase of corruption, one where corruption ceases to be a characteristic of individual participants in institutions and becomes a characteristic of the institutions themselves. This is because all, or almost all, of the participants in those institutions are there to profit, rather than to further the institution's ostensible goals.

At this stage, the real goal of the organization is to trade off the power and trust the institution has gained, for the private benefit of those who have hijacked it. Anyone who believed in or fought for its original goals is either marginalized or entirely gone.

We call this "institutional capture", but you can also think of it as corruption (3).

So, when I say our society is "corrupt", what I mean is that every major institution of our society has been captured in this fashion.

It's not just politics and journalism. It's law. Medicine. Science. Unions. Professional guilds. Corporations. Even the food industry is now devoted to selling us addictive poison rather than nourishment.

No society in history has ever recovered from being this corrupt (1,2,3). They collapse instead, and new societies with new institutions emerge.

TRP exists because our society is corrupt. It has dismantled first the extended family, then the community, then the nuclear family, for the profit of the individuals in certain institutions.

TRP has stepped in to address certain needs that were once addressed by the community, the nuclear family, and fatherhood, all of which have been so destroyed by the process of corruption that they can no longer serve their original goals.

TRP differs from the rest of the institutions of society in that it is NOT corrupt. It is controlled by individuals who seek to further TRP's overt goals, rather than seek profit for themselves.

Why? Because, like every piece of organic matter on the planet that is not currently rotting, TRP has an immune system. This immune system was designed and built, and is maintained, by two individuals, /u/redpillschool, and myself, both of whom are not corrupt. This system (I won't go into how it works), detects individuals who attempt to profit off TRP without participating in its goals, and throws them out. They can go on to successfully leech off of others elsewhere, but TRP itself does not get co-opted into their business plan. It continues to serve its goals.

What are those goals?

Not to "save society". Not only is TRP tiny compared to society, and lacking in leverage over society's established institutions, but also, as I pointed out, no society in history has ever been saved in this fashion.

TRP's goal is to allow individual men to save themselves from the effects of institutional capture. As such, it can be a success regardless of the size of its audience, because that success is not measured in audience size, but in audience outcome.

How is it doing?

Well, it's impossible to measure precisely without compromising TRP's service of its goals (doxxing your readership isn't good for them), but there are some feedback indicators.

1. The most involved readers report greater success and happiness.
2. Most readers tend to drop out and exit once their reported success becomes high, indicating that they have gotten what they needed from the group and it is no longer interesting to them.
3. Despite the high rate of exit, /r/exredpill sounds kinda like this.
4. By this point, even the most ardent haters tend to acknowledge that TRP's methods work... they tend to focus now on either arguing that they are not unique to TRP (we never claimed they were), or that they are morally wrong (this is, and will always be, a matter of opinion).

To RP men: Do you communicate your RP views to your irl friends, family, acquaintances, etc...?

3 upvotes · 14 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are gaslighted to death

Stand back, everyone! Don't contaminate the crime scene!

Hmmm... from the way the victim collapsed backwards, this discarded lace handkerchief, and the faint odor of smelling salts, I deduce that that this poor unfortunate lady died of... criticism!

Clearly, the suspect we are looking for is a liar, a bounder, and a cad of the first water. Jeeves, alert the constabulary to on the lookout for a mustachioed man, possibly with a swarthy, foreign complexion!

"Femininity" isn't the natural state of women and what we call "masculinity" is normal animal behavior.

3 upvotes · 14 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Femininity and male protectiveness evolved because women cannot be powerful.

In your experience, what are some things different about women in the real world compared to FDS/PPD/Internet women?

3 upvotes · 12 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

On the internet, there are no actions, only words.

And, as TRP writers have been observing for years, women don't tell the truth.

This is not because "women are liars" so much as it is because women use language differently than men do. While men use language to exchange information, women use language to navigate the social matrix.

Under the primitive conditions in which humans evolved, men's survival was dependent on working effectively with other men as a team, while women's survival depended upon securing the approval of other members of the tribe (both male and female).

So men have the tendency to choose statements based on what they want others to know, while women choose statements based on how they want others to feel.

So, when you read what women write online, especially in female spaces, you need to learn to interpret it as an expression of women's feelings, hopes, desires, and fears... rather than their beliefs, their goals, or their current life conditions.

FDS is an expression of women's fears, and RPW is an expression of women's hopes.

How important is it for your spouse to be a virgin?

3 upvotes · 10 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Virginity is nice, but it's less important than "was trying to establish a permanent LTR every time she had sexual intercourse".

Tinder Data Shows Women's Standards Are Impossible

3 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Founder of /r/theredpill here.

This is true, but it doesn't mean what you think.

One of the early observations that got TRP started was me sitting around in a mixed group of friends, going through an early website called "hotornot.com", and having the men rate a female photograph when it showed up, and vice versa.

I very quickly noticed that the men tended to use the numbers 4-8 on a 1-10 scale a lot, and women tended to use 2-6... basically replicating the results of this study. And yet, in my social relationships with them, I saw these same women drooling over men they knew, who looked about the same as those photographs.

Something was clearly going on here. Men and women were very different... but how? What led to this?

I decided to investigate... talking to women, talking to men, observing them, etc.

What I eventually decided was that women rate photographs of men as unattractive because of the combination of two phenomena:

- Women are the gatekeepers of sex, and thus they tend to "default to no"... in other words, unless a man is attractive, he is unattractive... and men who create neither impression get lumped in with the later.
- Male attractiveness to women is primarily about male behaviour.

What this means is that if you show a woman a photo of a man, she cannot decide if he is attractive or not, because she has not interacted with him, or seen him interact with others.

Because she cannot decide if he is attractive, he defaults to unattractive.

If a man sees a woman's photograph and rates her at 3 or 4, she is done. It's over. He will never date or sleep with her unless he is desperate, and then he will try like hell to prevent his friends from finding out.

If a woman sees a man's photograph and rates him at 3 or 4, that can turn into 7 or 8 with a five minute conversation, or watching him play the guitar on stage, or something.

Asking a woman to rate a man's attractiveness on his looks is like asking a man to rate a woman's attractiveness based on her resume.

Wtf has fragile masculinity to do with anger

3 upvotes · 3 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

No, you see, "toxic" masculinity is when men hide emotions, and "fragile" masculinity is when men display emotions.

Tech VC calls men who take six months off to parent 'losers', says working harder to provide for their future is the correct masculine response. Are gender roles just acknowledging reality?

3 upvotes · 1 November 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

He measures masculinity by success in climbing the corporate ladder, or moving around large amounts of money. Other men measure it other ways.

For example, he could be characterized as a pencil-necked geek who doesn't even lift, a coward who never served in an 03xx MOS, a philistine who doesn't make or even understand art, a chode who can't pick up women, or any number of other characterizations.

It all depends what your values are, if we take "values" to mean "what you think is important".

Why Buy the Cow When He Can Get the Milk For Free...? Right...?

3 upvotes · 31 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You have a knack for taking my very long and verbose posts and breaking down what I mean into highly effective but very concise conclusions. How?!?

Writing practice. Been doing this for ten years.

You have very good ideas, but putting them into writing is a different skill, and it's one that our society doesn't really teach very well, because most of our society's intellectuals are focused on sounding impressive, rather than making ideas clear.

Writing is at its best, not when there is nothing left to add, but when there is nothing left to take away... when every piece serves its purpose concisely, using the clearest and simplest terms available.

You'll get there.

That's why I find it even more silly to consider saving all of that good stuff for marriage as if it's a valid strategy.

The reason women do this is Briffault's Law. Women invest in relationships because of the hope of future gain. So women who don't understand men think that men also work like this.

So they think if they don't withhold something, they have nothing to bargain with.

But that's not how men work. Men are reciprocal. They don't give because of future gain, but because of past gain.

If you want the title of wife, or the de facto role of wife, then take on the responsibilities of wife and execute on them.

If your man told you he needed sexual variety and wants to sleep with other women, but still being dedicated to you, would you be okay with it?

3 upvotes · 27 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

It should be obvious to him

Okay, this is the attitude I was checking for.

This is relationship poison. Never assume your partner shares the same set of assumptions and ground rules you do.

People are raised differently, they are not mind readers, and everyone has subtly different definitions of right and wrong.

Spell it out.

Can you explain to your boyfriend why you don't want him to have sex with other people, without relying on concepts like "should be obvious", "cheating", "what everyone does", etc?

If you can, you can articulate to him where the harm would be to you.

If you can't, then you don't know why you feel the way you feel, and you have some soul-searching to do.

If your man told you he needed sexual variety and wants to sleep with other women, but still being dedicated to you, would you be okay with it?

3 upvotes · 27 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's a curious way of phrasing it. He doesn't have to "earn" the right to control his own body. Under the rules of our culture, he can do as he likes with it. Other people, such as you, however, are going to have their own reactions to that.

He's not obliged to be "faithful" to anyone, and you are not obliged to stay with him. Those are our cultural rules.

But you are going to have to have a more nuanced understanding of yourself than "I think that's lame", before you can know what you want to do.

So let's try to articulate what bothers you about this. Suppose he hooks up with some other woman.

1. How would you feel about that?
2. Why?
3. What consequences do you think there would be to your relationship?
4. Why?

For the Old Ladies: Laura Doyle is not real life

3 upvotes · 23 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't need to be wise, smart, or right about anything to be Chad. You just need to be charismatic, and Obama is certainly that.

Back to Basics September: Male Attraction v Female Attraction

3 upvotes · 11 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I've always wondered what your dynamic is like with friends, family, and the general public. What do you guys usually do when meeting new people - selectively tell those who are more open and understanding, or just let everyone know and anyone who has a stick up their butt can eff off?

We're completely forthright about it. I have zero patience for people who can't mind their own business. The pattern is that no one gives us crap in red-state areas, and tolerant liberals... aren't.

What was it like when the newer partner joined and you let the people in your lives know?

That would be "FanGirl", a nickname I use because we met when she wrote fan mail to the Whisper account. A very determined young lady.

Her family, of course, loathes me, for the exact reason you would assume. But they are tradcons who probably wouldn't accept a child being gay or bisexual, either.

I can also see a LOT of hostility towards it here at RPW, but a LOT of admiration for it at TRP

Yes, women on RPW have thrown full-on meltdown tantrums before about me being non-monogamous... including former mods. Hence the "former". Men on TRP take my ability to have a harmonious household with two "sister-wives" as evidence that I might just know a little something about how women think and feel.

The assumptions those people have about your "hedonistic" relationship are probably rooted in that societal AND personal instinct to be overly protective [of] women, which we've talked about before.

I would say so. One of the few ways that women actually are disadvantaged in western civilization is that we are so protective of them that we prioritize this above listening to them, or respecting their choices and individualized needs. Which results in a lot of self-appointed white knight heroes swooping in to "save" women from the exact thing they wanted, and refusing to back the fuck off when gently told that their interference is unwelcome.

I don't think these people can even begin to grasp that relationships, monogamous or not, are supposed to be non-zero-sum games to be functional and healthy. They view ALL relationships in an adversarial light, and one person's "win" hinges upon their partner's "loss." To them, F-M-F polyamory just increases the man's win and the women's losses exponentially. With that mindset, though, their monogamous relationship probably won't go too well either.

This mirrors my thinking. The girls are 15 and 16 years younger than me, and many people have pointed out that there is a "power imbalance", an idea which they wave about as if it were the football they just carried across the line to win the superbowl.

Well, one, duh. And two, so what?

All this reveals about these people is that they see relationships as adversarial... so much so that they are unable to even realize they are making this assumption, since they can't imagine any other way to be.

I'm not really interested in the perspective of people like that on relationships, or mine in particular.

I never even thought about this. I mainly focused on how polygyny and hypergamy can go hand in hand, but you're totally right. One of the biggest costs of being a protector/provider means that the men were historically very often risking their lives to go hunt, to go make a living doing dangerous things, to go to war. When a lot of those men inevitably succumb to the dangers of manhood, are all the eligible young women doomed to lives of spinsterhood because the elite women have grabbed all the remaining men? Of course not (and the fact that we have way more female ancestors than male ones show this). They adapt (and eventually build up an evolutionary tendency to be more willing to share).

Moreover, polygyny in traditional societies can also serve the function of protecting women from having a poor, low status, or otherwise undesirable husband.

Where this doesn't come with high male mortality rate, however, it tends to destabilize societies because it creates a collection of young, broke, angry losers who can't get laid. This is why the House of Saud sponsors terrorism. It has to. It needs to keep these young dudes focused on hating America, because otherwise they would hate the rich men hogging all the chicks... which includes the House of Saud itself.

As for female jealousy, I do see why women are programmed to be jealous too, though. Even in the context of historical polygyny, a jealous wife's goal is to get the biggest share of resources for herself and her children

I think it's very easy to be glib about this.

Many women will roundly deny being "gold-diggers" or caring about wealth or resources at all, and angrily reject any insinuation that they might be hardwired to care. Then, the moment you bring up polygyny, they suddenly become evolutionary psychologists, and assert that they would be desperately unhappy if they had to share a man, because "resources" led to a hardwiring they just can't overcome.

They are of course, wrong.

Marriage is not a part of human evolution. It hasn't been around long enough. It wasn't until the Neolithic era and the agricultural revolution that there were any resources to have. That's 10K BC. And the first evidence we have of marriage being a thing dates from around 2350 BC.

So, not so much with the "evolved to seek resources".

No, women are biologically programmed to seek high-quality genetic material, and resources can be a rubric for this. Women are only culturally programmed to seek wealth directly.

Additionally, women now act as direct salary earners, so not only do they need less wealth from men, more adults in the household leads to more income.

Our household has three six-figure salaries and no kids. It's not hard to imagine why we are in the 1%.

Back to Basics September: Male Attraction v Female Attraction

3 upvotes · 11 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

While I think it's certainly possible for some couples (er... maybe throuples is a better word) to enjoy them, for many others it just isn't feasible given their culture, personality type, or temperament.

One of the greatest obstacles that "FunSize", "FanGirl" and I have faced in this respect is lack of cultural acceptance.

It's a little like being gay, but without the support network and pride parades. People feel totally comfortable being bigoted against us where they would feel ashamed of doing the same to gay couples. I've even faced a fair amount of that same attitude here.

Usually it comes through an overfocus on the sexual aspects of our relationship. Somehow, because our lifestyle is seen as a hedonic ideal for men, it must therefore be about, and solely about, hedonism. We can't possibly be having any sort of meaningful interaction with our clothes on, and everything I have done to arrange my life this way must simply be in service to my desire to have regular threesomes.

It's nonsense. There is absolutely no basis for the assumption that monogamy is somehow so "natural" and "stable" that nothing else works at all, and that no human society, culture, or tribe has ever had a high male mortality rate it needed to adapt to.

My opinion, which does not constitute proof, but is formed over all my years of studying this stuff and testing it... is that men are programmed to be jealous, and women can be taught to be jealous. Which most cultures do.

Why do men push the Older Man/Younger woman dynamic?

3 upvotes · 10 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you think it is entirely a coincidence that your attitude at every age exactly aligned with that which most flattered your ego at that age?

Feminism is something about equality something something something

3 upvotes · 9 September 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

If, when you encounter someone who disagrees with you, you immediately start explaining how they are neurotic, and how their mental illness led to their disagreement... you are essentially saying that no one can disagree with you and be sane.

This means you have no respect for anyone who isn't a clone of you.

Why should anyone else have any interest in hearing from you?

REPOST: Shit to Avoid Saying in Modmail

3 upvotes · 9 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't understand leadership yet.

A man of abundance may be able to reject, without preamble, those who don't meet his expectations. This is Indifference Game.

But then he is stuck rolling the dice again, trying to find someone who accidentally happens to do everything he wants.

A leader, however, has Control Game. He makes expectations clear, and is able to reward those who meet them, and punish those who don't (usually by rejection).

/u/CrazyHorseInvincible, /u/TheRedPike, and the rest of the mods, can tell you exactly what they expect of you, because if you don't meet those expectations, they have the power to do something about it.

If you simply want to get laid by tindersluts, you only need Indifference Game, and can get by forever on that. But if you want a relationship, you must learn to be a leader, and have Control Game.

The Social Credit Score: Coming soon to a country near you

3 upvotes · 6 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

A society can't be any better than the people who compose it, in the same way that you can't build a skyscraper out of meringue.

Once parents delegate the responsibility to educate their children to the state, you end up with generations of people who have been taught to be fearful and dependent.

Libertarian cultures tend to be frontier cultures.

Women are justified in being reluctant to give men compliments.

3 upvotes · 4 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You do know that people complaining about something doesn't actually prevent you from doing it, right?

Why Do Men Prefer Younger Women?

3 upvotes · 4 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If I am seeking a woman for sex, younger is preferable.

However, if I am looking for a wife or girlfriend, younger is preferable.

That's not the real question you wanted to ask, though.

What would be the female equivalent of a man being traumatized by his wife/GF's sexual past?

3 upvotes · 2 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Being traumatized by your man's sexual present (having other partners).

Do other women fell less than to a man

3 upvotes · 26 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

That's interesting, but it's not an MOS. What is your MOS?

Do other women fell less than to a man

3 upvotes · 26 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

What's your MOS?

Uh no, no it doesn't. Unless you call working yourself into an early grave yet still somehow being broke your whole life a "benefit"

3 upvotes · 25 August 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Last time I checked, your consent is being asked for three times... when he proposes, during the ceremony, and when you sign the papers.

If you don't like the deal, say no.

How to handle your boyfriend following women on Instagram?

3 upvotes · 19 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I know it's hard to imagine.

But for us, sex is very physical, and quite detached from how we feel or what we want out of the rest of our lives.

Struggling with the sexual aspect of my relationship - feel like a man eater.

3 upvotes · 19 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

He has being going through some stuff at work and with his finances which he says are affecting his libido.

That'll definitely do it. There's a stress hormone called "cortisol" which is only supposed to go high very briefly. If it stays high for a long time, it can kill libido and do other nasty stuff.

Get him to one of those "men's health clinic" doctors that specialize in pumping older dudes full of testosterone, HCG, and Cialis... because when they are not doing that, they are looking at really comprehensive bloodwork, and prescribing lifestyle changes and supplements.

Also, if he's having trouble getting interested or hard, then it might help to try changing how you have sex, so you can remove the feeling of a demand for performance.

Here's a specific thing you can try.

Try asking him if you can use your mouth to try to get him interested. Then suck very slowly and gently, focusing on the tip and concentrate on making it feel good rather than getting him hard. Try to create the impression that you're content to do this all day, and you don't particularly care if he gets erect or not, so long as he is enjoying himself.

Then (and this is critical), if he responds and gets into it... finish him with your mouth the first time. Ignore the urge to jump on his penis once it's hard and just finish the job doing what he seems to be enjoying. Then act as if you are perfectly content to go away afterwards with no reciprocation. This may not seem to get you what you want, but your patience will be rewarded.

What you are doing here is re-framing sex as an act of getting pleasure, rather than a performance you are demanding of him.

And the next time he's not interested, he will probably be willing to let you try to change that... because it will no longer be his "job" to change that. And then, once you establish that precedent, then you can jump on his penis once you get it hard. Or, even in cases when that doesn't work, he will most likely be willing to make it "your turn" to be brought to orgasm afterwards.

You see, if you take responsibility for his erection, and take it off his shoulders, he will have an easier time getting one because he won't be worried. After all, you wouldn't enjoy being with a man who just expected you to be wet, rather making it his job to make sure you were, right?

Study: Authenticity predicts high relationship satisfaction, except for people high in trait (DT) psychopathy.

3 upvotes · 18 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's not actually, which is why it's still used in every scientific discipline that works with people.

This is nothing but an appeal to popularity. If a lot of people make a mistake, it is still a mistake.

This comment is pure science denial.

Describing skepticism with a snarl phrase does not change its essential nature.

If it were completely unreliable it wouldn't have test-retest validity

I believe you mean test-retest reliability. Please learn the difference between validity and reliability in a psychometric context.

Every set of questions has test-retest reliability. All this means is that people have memories, and therefore tend to answer the same questions the same way. This does not mean that the underlying construct is reliable.

or predictive validity

Predictive validity refers to the degree to which scores on a test are related to performance on an objective benchmark ("gold standard") assessment that is administered at some point in the future.

I await with great curious anticipation your explanation of what an objective assessment of "authenticity" looks like.

You don't get construct validity by comparing one self-report to another. You must be able to predict behaviour.

What all this implies is that your research to be as rigorous as you claim, it's not enough to do some math somewhere. You have to validate the whole chain.

