

Whisper

ARCHIVE

www.TheRedArchive.com

ABOUT THIS ARCHIVE

Everything /u/Whisper wrote across the subreddits TheRedArchive holds: 185 posts and 10,911 comments published between May 2011 and May 2022.

About /u/Whisper. Most of the posts here come from /r/TheRedPill — 133 of 185 — with the rest in /r/RedPillWomen and /r/MensRights, and 4 other subreddits. The 10,911 comments come mostly from /r/PurplePillDebate. Between them the posts drew 38,045 upvotes; the most upvoted is “Still Wanna Get Married?” (March 2018, 1,443).

About TheRedArchive. TheRedArchive is a free, public archive of the Red Pill community, built so that none of this writing can quietly disappear. It holds 1,737,261 posts and 40,024,548 comments from 45 subreddits and 58 blogs. Much of it survives nowhere else — the accounts deleted, the subreddits banned, the websites long offline. All of it is free to read, search and download, and always will be, at www.TheRedArchive.com.

Support the mission. This Red Pill archive is free — no paywall, no account — but keeping it online isn't. I pay for the servers, the storage and the bandwidth myself, so that this valuable knowledge stays online. If you want to support the mission and archive, become one of the people who help keep it online at www.TheRedArchive.com/#help.

Share this file freely, and keep a copy of your own. What sits on one server can be taken down; what sits on a thousand hard drives cannot.

Best regards,

/u/dream-hunter

Founder of TheRedArchive
August 11, 2026

19

UPVOTES

Just had a mental breakthrough.

10 May 2011 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

After reading this subreddit for a while, and availing myself of some of the web's other resources, and practicing what I learned (with varying degrees of success), I've had some time to think about this stuff.

And something just hit me. A realization that I wanted to pass along, despite the fact that I'm certainly no expert at this yet.

Wait. Stop. Around now, at of you are saying to yourselves: "Mistake. Stop that. Don't tell yourself you are not good. That's defeating your game."

But see, that's the realization. Is that this idea is WRONG. It's okay not to be good at this, because it's an uncomplicated task that is all about practice and relaxation. That's it. It has nothing to do with talent, or genetic fitness, or real value, or anything else that is actually something to be proud of.

Men get nervous approaching women because of the mistaken belief that success or failure says anything about their worth as a person. But because anyone can learn to do it, it must be a skill that doesn't require talent, which means that it says nothing about you.

There's no more reason to be ashamed of being bad at picking up women than there is to be ashamed of being bad at math.

And that's why anybody who talks about AFCs or chodes doesn't get it. Thinking that being able to talk to women makes you brave or manly means that you still think that one has to be brave to do it. And that means he still feels fear. If you have contempt for people who can't do it, that means you still feel fear.

Think about it. A math expert doesn't think of people who get sweaty palms in math tests as "pussies". He thinks of them as people who haven't learned math, and hence are scared in a situation where they don't have to be. He knows it's just a simple task that has nothing to do with him, and everything to do with how well he paid attention in class.

So the point isn't to be "brave", or to be proud of what you accomplished. The point is to not need bravery, and to realize that it's not much of an accomplishment.

You just keep practicing until you're comfortable in these situations. Until you realize, really accept, that pickup isn't scary because it isn't dangerous, and it isn't a measure of your worth because it isn't difficult.

1

UPVOTE

How to deal with being wealthy?

12 May 2011 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

This isn't the usual problem, but how does one deal with being wealthy?

Often, I can actually see women mentally placing me in the "provider" category because I very obviously have money, despite the fact that I make it a rule never to spend very much at all on them until after fclose.

No one wants to be labeled a "provider". Women don't like providers, they just use them.

Should I hide my wealth, dress down, rent a less expensive car rather than showing up in mine, etc?

Does anyone know any good tactics for breaking out of that stereotype?

7

UPVOTES

This is where "AFCs" come from.
16 May 2011 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

How did AFCs get to be AFCs?

Here's a rant I went off on, on another subreddit. I thought it might be amusing to the guys over here who "get it".

[http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/hcl28/the_chickens_come_home_to_roost_when_a_feminists/clu dk7h](http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/hcl28/the_chickens_come_home_to_roost_when_a_feminists/clu dk7h)

I don't normally write [FR]s, I tend to feel that the women in question might be uncomfortable being talked about behind their backs.

But today I did something that so clearly illustrates how to make an approach, that I think I have to pass it along.

I met an old friend (and ex sexual partner) at a restaurant where a bunch of us were gathered to celebrate her graduation from college. Was introduced to a bunch of friends and family, including one attractive young woman, a cousin or friend of the family or something.

What I did was simple. The moment I saw her, the moment she looked up at me, I met her eyes with mine, and gave her a small smile. Not a big grin. Just a smile. A moment's eye contact. A greeting.

That's all. That's it. That's the big secret. It's nothing.

But from that moment, she looked at me like a dog at a steak. We'd shared a moment, you see. We had a tiny shared secret that connected us across this roomful of people.

From moment forward, she was tongued-tied as any AA-ridden guy, stumbling all over herself trying to agree with everything I said, trying to point out things we had in common, afraid to say anything that might displease me. I eventually had to extract myself by revealing that I was an atheist (She was inappropriately young, you see. I don't think she realized I was much older than I looked.), but until then, she hung on my every word.

That's all it takes to make an approach natural. Make eye contact. Little smile. Hold for a second or two, but no more.

That's it. Now you can talk to her. Because you've already talked to her. You've already been introduced. You've already said hi.

Meet her eyes. Little smile. Hold for a moment. You've noticed her. She has your attention. But you're not afraid of her. You're in charge.

Meet her eyes. Little smile. Hold for a moment. Then she'll break the ice if you don't. See if I'm not right.

Meet her eyes. Smile.

Go out there and just do that. If you can do that, the conversations will start, and AA won't be a firebreathing monster devouring villages.

Meet her eyes. Smile.

(Just make sure you can extract yourself without hurting her feelings if it turns out she's waaay younger than you thought.)

36

UPVOTES

Woman complains about "Sexism in the Atheist Community".
The "sexist" act? Someone made a pass during a skeptic's convention.

22 June 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/atheism/comments/i65b4/an_atheist_girls_take_on_sexism_in_the_community/

5
UPVOTES

Someone in r/seduction wakes the fuck up. These two subreddits need to talk.

25 June 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/seduction/comments/i8j1h/why_is_it_so_hard_to_see_the_benefits/

7
UPVOTES

A conscious and deliberate call for a double standard (crosspost from r/atheism)

5 July 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/atheism/comments/ih8ma/life_in_prison_for_a_miscarriage_is_this_iran_or/

3

UPVOTES

Crashes

8 July 2011 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

I've noticed a lot of people describing a common phenomenon here lately.

It seems to be a brief period of horrifically intense depression associated with dropping out of state, or having failures, or a bad night.

This thread is for discussing how/why it happens, and ways to deal with it. (Some of my own thoughts in comments.)

0
UPVOTES

Seddit, only you can help this poor clueless man! Feel like being a hero today?

8 August 2011 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

[deleted]

1
UPVOTE

Ahem.

12 August 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/reddit.com/comments/jh04b/hey_reddit_we_need_to_talk_about_rape/

4 | So this is what we have come to. How sad.
UPVOTES 10 September 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit http://www.reddit.com/r/Fitness/comments/kajo2/how_do_i_not_scare_the_hell_out_of_women_as_i_run/

2

UPVOTES

An interesting window into attitudes about gender roles and violence.

7 December 2011 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/martialarts/comments/n315t/what_would_you_do_if_you_were_attacked_by_women/

24

UPVOTES

Here's an example of how and why many people believe that rape is everywhere... because their definition of rape includes every sexual misadventure.

25 January 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/atheism/comments/ourzc/if_a_child_conceived_by_rape_is_a_blessing_from/c3k9aon

9

UPVOTES

Each one teach one. Progress, one open mind at a time.

13 February 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/atheism/comments/pm8y9/scumbag_kansas_bill_protects_doctors_from/c3qlse9

0

UPVOTES

So many things wrong with this. Where to begin?

2 April 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/Fitness/comments/ro2r4/how_the_gym_renewed_a_friendship_a_short_story_of/

23
UPVOTES

This is why you don't deprive children of their fathers.

15 June 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/aww/comments/v3kg7/a_secret_and_labor_of_love_13_years_in_the_making/

3
UPVOTES

What. The. Fuck.
29 July 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/xaxtd/ive_been_thinking_a_lot_due_to_the_aftermath_of/

7 | Well, wouldya look at that...
UPVOTES 31 October 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/12dk2w/do_you_feel_appreciated/

1

UPVOTE

Wife has problem, husband suggests solution, wife attacks husband. But wait, I thought domestic violence was male aggression? Someone please explain to me how this is the patriarchy's fault!

19 November 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/13gce8/slept_on_the_couch_last_night_because_i_suggested/

20

UPVOTES

Wife has problem, husband suggests solution, wife attacks husband. But wait, I thought domestic violence was male aggression? Someone please explain to me how this is the patriarchy's fault!

21 November 2012 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/13gce8/slept_on_the_couch_last_night_because_i_suggested/

4

UPVOTES

Just a reminder that "Red Pill" does not mean "Let's go back to the OLD way of fucking men over!"

1 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/5145/john-the-baptist-syndrome>

45

UPVOTES

Sedditor lays down some gender role truth, triggers blue-pill hamster explosion in comments.

10 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/seduction/comments/1a0vmc/4_rules_for_relationships/

4

UPVOTES

What the actual fuck?

14 March 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

11
UPVOTES

I do not know whether to laugh or cry.

16 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1ad7ca/would_you_consider_this_harassment_or_creepy/

20
UPVOTES

Apparently, people deserve to be found attractive just because they are human. If only we could hook this hamster to the power grid...

21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/Fitness/comments/1alg3b/some_thoughts_regarding_a_date_i_had_with_an/c8zo174

14 | Waking up is so gratifying to watch.
UPVOTES 29 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1dbgfy/has_anyone_else_lost_their_desire_to_chase_girls/

13

UPVOTES

Discussion Thread: The Red Pill and other "unacceptable ideas"... Voting.

9 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I think something ZionController said deserves its own thread.

I realize a lot of my posts piss people off. No one was madder about me saying women shouldnt vote than my own woman when I told her I would support taking her voting privilege away. She says Im a jerk. Shes right. I ask her if she still loves me. She says unfortunately. I say then it doesnt really matter that Im a jerk then, does it?

Now, of course, this idea is going to piss off a lot of people. But the thing about taking the Red Pill is that it is defined by the act of looking at reality the way it is, and reacting to what is really there, not dismissing ideas just because they give us, or anybody else, bad feels.

Obviously, when you look at reality, you only get IS, not OUGHT. Ought you have to make up for yourself.

But that doesn't mean all "oughts" are equal. Some sets of principles lead to wealth, health, and happiness, others lead to disaster. And this is true both for people and societies. So what "ought" to happen is something we can argue about, starting from the idea that there is no universal right and wrong (that's a blue pill idea), there are sets of morals that help us personally, or civilization as a whole, thrive, and others that have crappy outcomes.

So, that being established, "should" women vote? What's your individual take on this? What arguments do you have to support your position?

Coming soon: other "unacceptable ideas" threads covering topics such as racism.

22
UPVOTES

AskWomen finally notices people talking about the hamster.
Contributor makes whole thread devoted to hamsterizing how there is no hamster.

10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskWomen/comments/1e20h5/meta_we_ofTEN_get_accused_of_giving_answers_that/

90

UPVOTES

A little something for those of you who have the feeling that women are no good and can't be trusted.

13 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/fPUA/comments/1e9fz1/attracting_alphas_why_do_men_hate_us/

29

UPVOTES

I keep doing things I don't want to do. I want you to know that I don't want to do the things, even as I do them. I am not the sort of person who does the things I keep doing.

28 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1f6rtt/men_please_teach_me_how_to_say_no/

24
UPVOTES

Apparently, men are opting out to the point where women are starting to notice.

19 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1gmiv/why_are_so_many_young_men_these_days/

137

UPVOTES

The Slut, and how not to be one.

25 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

It's been brought up many, many times.

The cock carousel. The penis train. Promiscuity. The partner count. The word itself.

Slut.

It's easy to see that there are drawbacks to being one. Feminists decry "slut shaming", redpillians often say that men shouldn't commit to one, men in general just say that, right or wrong, they don't want to commit to one.

But what is a slut?

Religious conservatives who claim to have red-pill values say that PUA shouldn't be a red pill thing, because it creates sluts. PUA redpillians say religious conservatism isn't red pill at all, because attempting to increase a woman's sexual partner count by one is what "male sexual strategy" is all about. How could it be otherwise, when religious conservatism is, at its core, an attempt to culturally restrain that which cannot be restrained... human nature?

But all these arguments fall flat unless we can answer one important question.

What is a slut?

And it is an important question, because there is an apparent contradiction in red pill theory, a self-swallowing aspect to the way many people think about it.

In attempting to be attractive to women, a man tries to increase their count of sexual partners. Yet he himself does not desire to commit to women with high sexual partner counts? Is he not creating the very thing he shuns? Is he not destroying the very world he wishes to live in?

But if he tells women not to submit to men's sexual advances, is he not defeating his own efforts at sexual conquest?

Is a man nothing but a hypocrite when he shuns the slut? That depends upon the answer to one important question.

What is a slut?

Will the correct answer to this question make this apparent contradiction go away? I contend that it will.

To answer this question, we must remember one fundamental truth about the sexual marketplace: Women are the gatekeepers of sex, and men are the gatekeepers of relationships. When we think of a slut as a woman with a high count of sexual partners, we must be aware of what this implies.

First, that she has allowed men through the gate of sex many times.

Second, that she has been allowed, by men, through the gate of relationships very few times... for otherwise, she would have slowed down her pace of acquiring new partners considerably.

Now we are ready to answer the question.

A slut is a woman whose sexual market value consists mostly of sexual availability, and little else.

Or, equivalently,

A slut is a woman who does not have the ability to turn sexual encounters into relationships.

Looked at in this way, of course men don't want to commit to sluts. The very definition implies it.

High partner counts are a symptom of sluttiness, not its cause. Sluts acquire high partner counts not because they "open their legs too easily", but because the men they have coupled with do not wish to stay... and so they must, once again, find a new man.

A slut is pumped and dumped many times. But it is being dumped, not being pumped, that makes a woman a slut.

This resolves our apparent contradiction. If a woman's goal of avoiding sluthood is not to avoid sex, but to make a man stay afterwards, this is in no way opposed to a man's goal of getting to sex. It is the sex that is the male biological imperative, not the hasty departure afterwards.

In fact, that hasty departure provides him with no pleasure at all. Would he not rather met a woman with whom he wishes to have sex again? Would he not rather meet a woman whom he prefers to a hasty departure? Of course he would.

But that is out of his control. Just a woman, the gatekeeper of sex, cannot control how sex-worthy the men around her are, a man, the gatekeeper of commitment and emotional investment, cannot control how relationship-worthy the women he meets are. The only power they have is the binary choice whether or not to open the gate.

So, to avoid being a slut, don't refuse to have sex. Instead, have value beyond just sex. Make men want to see you again. And your partner count will stay low without having to resort to withholding tactics.

Because withholding tactics don't work. A slut cannot "reform" herself by withholding sex. If her only sexual market value is availability, then withholding that leaves her with... nothing to offer. A slut can only reform herself by increasing her value in other areas. If she does so, men will want to stay, and her partner count will stop increasing so fast.

That partner count is only a symptom, not the disease.

To avoid being a slut, be a keeper.

Have you noticed it yet?

Every couple of days, a woman wanders in here with a throwaway account, and she's had twenty different sexual partners. Or she doesn't want kids. Or she has a degree in engineering. And she either whimpers that her life is over, or defies us to explain her in particular, as if her very existence disproved everything we know about men and women.

And it's not just the one-off, in-and-out posters, either.

You're taking this all way too literally.

The red pill is some information. Not instructions. And that information is about basic principles, not universal specifics.

There's a basic red pill truth in effect here, and it's impacting how you interpret the other information.

Women are generally more submissive than men. Not always, not entirely, but generally and mostly.

That's why you are all treating this as a list of instructions. It's not. It's information for you to use in figuring and planning out your life. Yes, there things you need to do. Yes, you're inclined to ask what you need to do. But, no, people who don't know you can't figure out the specifics.

So if you don't kids, or you want a career, or you're not so into powerful, dominant men... does that mean none of this applies to you? No. Because none of these are the real principles we're really talking about.

What are some of these basic principles we're really talking about?

- Relationships, not achievements, are what makes women happy. That's why redpillian advice says things like "have children when you're young", and "prioritize marriage over your career", and "don't slut around", and "be sweet and nice, not sassy and competitive".

You see, all of these things are intended to build you satisfying and long-lasting relationships. With your man, with your children, with your friends. And to persuade you not to sacrifice those relationships for a career that will not fulfill you. This is why women get paid less than men... because they make less sacrifices for their career. And that's good for them.

- Masculine, not feminine, qualities are what women find attractive and fulfilling in a mate.
- Feminine, not masculine, qualities are what men find attractive and fulfilling in a mate.
- Feminine attractiveness becomes harder to achieve or maintain with age. Male attractiveness does not.

Do you get the point? Stop looking for a precise set of instructions on how to live your life. I know you're somewhat submissive by nature, and precise instructions would be comfortable, but people who don't know you cannot give them to you.

Instead, keep the principles in mind, when making decisions. Should you move to another city with your boyfriend when he gets that better job? Should you be receptive to that 40 year old guy hitting on your 22 year old self? Should you have the children you want at 23, or wait until 35?

So let's not hear anymore of this "Look, I have an engineering degree, none of this stuff must be about me at all!", "Oh, noes, I love a man who refuses to even consider marriage 2.0! I must be doomed!", "I don't want children at all, all your theories must be wrong, wrong, wrong!".

Okay?

89

UPVOTES

What if women treated jobs like they treat marriages and other long-term relationships?

1 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

- I'm not going to build my resume. The right company will come along in the fullness of time, probably when I least expect it.
- I'm not going to look for a job, or read the ads. Companies should come and find me.
- I'm not going to dress up or wear makeup for my interview... I want to work with people who appreciate me for who I am, not my looks.
- Why should I have any job skills? Going out of my way to be useful to my employer sounds oppressive. It's more important to find a personality match, anyway.
- No matter who or what I am, I am some company's ideal employee.
- That last company I interviewed with had a problem with me having 27 jobs over the last 3 years. What a bunch of jerks. I want a company that values my varied work experience.
- If this job doesn't work out, that's okay. I'll just quit and take them to Professional Court and get an order for them to keep paying my salary for the rest of my life.
- I'm not going to get a job until I'm older. There will be plenty of time for career building after I've spent my twenties backpacking around Europe.
- Established Fortune 500 companies that want to hire young workers are creepy. It's much more sane to work for a garage startup that does something cool.
- I used to work a whole bunch of short-term temp jobs for minimum wage. But now I realize how foolish I was. I'm going to insist the next company hire me as a senior manager and pay me six figures.
- How come everyone thinks that a company that hires thousands of new employees every year must just be rich, but an employee that works for a new company every month must not be able to hold a job? It's a double standard!
- Companies should be impressed by my relationship skills, and want to hire me!

One of feminism's favorite sub-shaming tactics is the term "doormat".

By painting the submissive woman as nothing more than an object to be stepped on by anyone who walks by, feminism has so successfully characterized a submissive nature as a shameful show of weakness that I even heard hardcore BDSM submissives go out of their way to, quite unaccused, assure me that they aren't one, that they can stand up for themselves.

Blurring the line between submission and obedience may be the result of honest muttonheaded confusion, rather than tactical social engineering, on the part of feminists, but they couldn't have chosen a better tactic, both for their admitted goal of making women behave less submissively... and their apparent goal of making women disempowered and miserable.

But what is submission, if it is not obedience?

Well, obviously, obedience is doing what you are told to. Simple enough. And we all must be obedient sometimes, even the most alpha-male of us all. Don't obey your customers, your business goes under. Don't obey the custom of driving on the right side of the road, you're dead. And so on.

Certainly submissive people are often obedient. But this does not define submission.

According to Wikipedia,

Submission is the acknowledgement of the legitimacy of the power of one's superior or superiors.

but in a more broad sense, submission, whether to is to a superior with power, or to someone who does not have any real power over you, is treating someone else like a superior, or, to put it another way, treating someone else as if they were more important than you, whether they are or not.

The idea of treating others as more important may raise a few hackles, especially when we explicitly connect it to notions of femininity or womanhood. Suggesting that a woman, in particular, ought to be submissive will prompt some strong objections indeed, from some quarters.

But what is so important about being important? About being superior or equal in status? About not being seen as an inferior? The goal behind all of these things to be treated well. Being seen as important is not, in many cases, an end goal in itself, but a means by which people seek to improve their treatment by others.

And certainly a man is treated better if he is seen as important. Feminists often complain (complaining is submissive, but they don't notice that) that men who behave dominantly are respected, while women who behave that way are seen as cold and bitchy. While many of the women so complained for are actually cold and bitchy (they don't know how to do dominance), it may also be true that dominant behaviour in women just isn't rewarded in the same way.

Feminists would cry "injustice", but as usual, they fail to examine the other end of the scale. A man who behaves submissively is seen as weak, whiny, cowardly, impotent, or at least unimportant and therefore not worthy of good treatment. But what about a woman who behaves submissively?

When a woman acts submissive, even without being particularly obedient, people, especially men, like her... and want to treat her well.

The word "empowering" probably doesn't work here, given what we're talking about, but submission is one of the most effective tools a woman has for being treated well. It often seems that women are treated not according to how important they appear to be, but according to how well others like them. When a woman treats others as if they were superiors, they feel valued and appreciated and loved, and, if they are not defective people, they wish to return that feeling, and encourage that behaviour.

Being liked in this way is most useful indeed in building relationships, and, as I have stressed again and again, it is relationships, not achievements, that make women happy.

A woman who is deliberately submissive is pursuing her own highly effective strategy for being happy... one with the added bonus of making others happy as well. That's about as far from weakness as you can get.

If submission were obedience, this would be dangerous, of course. You can't just do what others tell you to if they haven't earned your trust. There are plenty of people out there willing to hurt or exploit you.

But when we understand that submission means treating others like superiors, it becomes very easy to understand how to submit without obeying.

5

UPVOTES

Means, motive, opportunity: Why do women consistently fail to outperform men?

10 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Everyone knows that men outperform women, and outnumber women, in the most intellectually demanding professional careers: Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics. The most vehement cultural Marxist reading SRS would agree with what few actual misogynists there are upon this point.

The great raging debate, of course, is about why. This debate becomes a great deal simpler to understand, and engage in, if we regard STEM field success as being like a crime (which SRS readers already do, but in the wrong manner).

A crime has three necessary components:

Means. Motive. Opportunity.

Women lack either the intellectual and cognitive means to perform at technical tasks and education, or the motivation to train for, and work in, these fields, or the opportunity to realize their potential within this arena.

If women are outperformed by men at STEM, they must lack one or more of these things. Positions in the great debate can therefore be easily broken down into which one(s) one thinks it is.

A cultural Marxist would say that women lack the opportunity; that an entire culture conspires to drive women away from the laboratory.

Some contributors here point to evidence suggesting that women may frequently lack the means to perform in STEM settings; that many of them just aren't smart enough to compete.

Others would say that women lack the motivation to pursue STEM careers, or even take math classes, because math is hard (for everyone), and women are made happy by social relationships, not intellectual or financial achievements; that, for them, the juice is not worth the squeeze.

From which of these, and in what proportion, would you construct your explanation of this?

7

UPVOTES

Means, motive, opportunity: Why do women consistently fail to outperform men?

10 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Everyone knows that men outperform women, and outnumber women, in the most intellectually demanding professional careers: Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics. The most vehement cultural Marxist reading SRS would agree with what few actual misogynists there are upon this point.

The great raging debate, of course, is about why. This debate becomes a great deal simpler to understand, and engage in, if we regard STEM field success as being like a crime (which SRS readers already do, but in the wrong manner).

A crime has three necessary components:

Means. Motive. Opportunity.

Women lack either the intellectual and cognitive means to perform at technical tasks and education, or the motivation to train for, and work in, these fields, or the opportunity to realize their potential within this arena.

If women are outperformed by men at STEM, they must lack one or more of these things. Positions in the great debate can therefore be easily broken down into which one(s) one thinks it is.

A cultural Marxist would say that women lack the opportunity; that an entire culture conspires to drive women away from the laboratory.

Some contributors here point to evidence suggesting[2] that women may frequently lack the means to perform in STEM settings; that many of them just aren't smart enough to compete.

Others would say that women lack the motivation to pursue STEM careers, or even take math classes, because math is hard (for everyone), and women are made happy by social relationships, not intellectual or financial achievements; that, for them, the juice is not worth the squeeze.

From which of these, and in what proportion, would you construct your explanation of this?

63

UPVOTES

A wise woman discusses how she feels about being "the most mature teenager in the house".

21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/1krml5/ponderings_on_maturity/

77

UPVOTES

This is just how entitled to your money the average woman feels.

29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskWomen/comments/1l9oka/if_you_found_out_your_long_term_so_had_a_savings/

4

UPVOTES

Outward vs. Inward facing.

2 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We post a lot of "Bluepill examples" here. It's only natural. When you can see the insanity, and others can't, you naturally want to show it to someone who understands.

But every time we post a "Bluepill example" link to elsewhere in reddit, it's an np link. Which means we don't say anything in the actual discussion there, where there are people who still need the red pill so that they won't be celibate in their marriage, cheated on by their girlfriend, unable to have a husband and children, whatever.

The emergent effect of np link + blue example is that we are keeping the red pill for ourselves

241

UPVOTES

An open letter to single mothers.

5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You have been linked here because you asked why you couldn't find a relationship, or why you couldn't find one you wanted. I have written this same answer to so many of you, so many times, that now it's time to write it in one place, once and for all.

You've probably noticed that the men who used to pay attention to you are now staying away in droves. Perhaps you are wondering what's wrong with men. Perhaps you are wondering what's wrong with you. But you are certainly wondering what's wrong.

The first thing you must realize is that men are acting rationally and in their own best interest. Their reluctance to date you is not a form of neurosis, nor is it a character flaw somehow shared by an entire sex. You have made mistakes in your past that make you a bad catch, or, at the very least, a worse catch than you were before you made them.

There are two major reasons why this is so.

- First, you have a child.

This has several effects.

Obviously, the most important of these is that you are now a package deal. A package deal, not just with a child, but with someone else's child. Now, some men do not want children, and some men do. But even the ones who do, want to have children when they are ready, they want to have their own children, and they want to raise those children from the beginning. You might think children are just loveable, especially your children, but it is generally women who love children. Men love their children.

And it's no good to say "I wouldn't expect him to co-parent with me". There's no avoiding it. Any man in your life, who is closer than a one-night hookup, or a friend with benefits, is going to be in contact with those children, and is going to have responsibilities, express or implied, because of that.

Another, more subtle effect is that any man can now never be higher than priority three. If you are at all a decent mother, the most important thing in your life is your child (or children). After that comes you... because, after all, you have a responsibility to your children. That means he is, at most, priority three. Now, a man doesn't mind taking a back seat to his children, because they are his, and he feels the same way about them. But a stranger's? Not a good bargain.

- Second, you have a poor track record with relationships.

You were once in a relationship, which you saw as serious enough to have a child in. That relationship failed.

Now, this is either your fault, his fault, or some combination of the two. If it's your fault, you are a bad relationship partner. If it's his fault, you are a poor judge of character and a bad decision maker. If it's some combination of the two... well, you guessed it.

Now, perhaps not every woman whose relationship fails is going to take future relationships so lightly. Perhaps there are a few rare men out there who can truly turn psycho with no warning signs whatsoever. Perhaps a lot of things. But consider this: every man who gets involved with you is making a bet on you. Why would he bet on someone with a history of failed relationships, when there are women available who don't have that?

Which brings us to our summary point.

You may be thinking that, yes, all this is true, but you are still a pretty good person. You might be attractive, funny, charming, nice, considerate, a lot of things. Don't you deserve a second chance?

It's not about what you deserve. Men are not impartial gods charged with running the universe, and given infinite cosmic powers with which to do so. They are not here on earth to make sure things are fair to you. They are here to live their own lives, and seek their own happiness.

Which means that any good quality you have might be nice, but they will seek it out in someone who doesn't come prepackaged with another man's child. If you are beautiful, there are beautiful women who aren't single mothers. If you are nice, there are nice women who aren't single mothers. If you are charming, considerate, low-maintenance, feminine, a wildcat in bed... well, you guessed it. There is only one man in the universe for whom you will retain your full measure of relationship-worthiness, and that is the actual father of your child.

Otherwise, the only way that any of your good qualities can outweigh your unwelcome additional feature is if he could never hope to attract the single, unburdened version of you. This means you are going to have to lower your standards. A lot.

In other words, no matter why you left the father of your child, whatever he was, whoever you get afterwards will be not as attractive. If he cheated, if he was boring, if he got fat, if he didn't have a job, if he was unconfident and awkward, if he was an addict, a gambler, whatever... your next one is not going to be better. Get used to it. Find a less attractive man whose drawbacks you can live with.

Or hope to find one of the few single fathers out there. Or swear off relationships altogether.

6

UPVOTES

Your partner count doesn't indicate how "easy" you are. It indicates how long you stay.

25 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1n149v/is_the_number_of_guys_a_girl_has_been_with_really/cceqjhy

There's no such thing as an Alpha or a Beta male.

17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Trolling? No.

Just repeating a fact that most of us are aware of. We speak of alphas and betas, but we're really just using a casual shorthand for "someone who typically acts alpha" and "someone who typically acts beta".

Alpha and beta aren't people, they are sets of behaviours, like software programs, and both of them are hardwired into all of us.

- Alpha is a program for capitalizing on a dominant position.
- Beta is a program for getting along with people who have power over us, so we don't get our heads kicked in.

Despite what many of the haters think, we are not so simple as to believe that humans can be separated into the chosen and the defectives.

Instead, we point out that alpha behaviour protocols, and not their beta counterparts, are attractive to women. And that the typical modern man in the first world runs beta way too much, in situations where he doesn't need to and it doesn't help him.

Why is this so?

Because we live in a society where women, as a collective group, have artificially inflated social influence. And among women, being "nice" is a move that shows social value, rather than weakness. So, solipcistically, they tend to assume this is true for everyone, and they teach young men and boys to be "nice", so that people will "like them". But that's what works for little girls. Girls and the women they become really will prosper if they are nice, because people really will like them.

But teaching boys to act that way is teaching them to run that beta software, which causes them to be viewed with contempt, not affection.

This double standard is hardwired into the human species. Women who teach young boys to be submissive aren't being malicious (usually). They are just foolishly assuming that what works for them personally will work for everyone.

A woman who acts submissive gets treated better. A man who acts submissive gets treated worse. The conclusion is obvious.

194
UPVOTES

You know how the leftoids love to say that privilege is invisible to those who have it?

23 October 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://i.imgur.com/bCIoJZw.jpg>

229

UPVOTES

The Essential Difference Between Blue and Red Pill Mating Advice.

23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

... Can be boiled down to one principle.

Some people think that people are puzzle pieces, each a special unique snowflake with a different shape, and that each person needs to find someone they "fit" with. They advise people to look for someone "compatible", and if a relationship fails, well, the two of you just weren't "compatible" enough. Try the exact same thing again with a different person.

This is the Blue Pill.

Other people know that people are pretty much motivated by the same set of instincts, and their desires can be understood as similar. They know mating is about attraction, and that there are simple ways to work on being attractive, and that it's easy to tell who's attractive and who isn't.

This is the Red Pill.

And that's is why blue pill dating advice consists of "keep trying the same thing over and over again, hoping for different results", "just be yourself", "wait until you find the right person", "people are complicated, and all different. Just keep trying", and "changing yourself or your behaviour is dishonest, manipulative, and rapey". Because their notion that people are puzzle pieces means that they must find a fit the way puzzle pieces do... test each different piece the same way, until you get the right result. And anything you do to present yourself differently is just disguising what puzzle piece shape you are, and preventing others from finding a fit.

So why do they believe this lie? Because it is pretty.

Because it comforts them with the whisper that no one is better than anyone else. That we are all just different in our own unique, special way, and if we just be ourselves, that unique specialness will shine through and get us what we need. It whispers that the universe is fair. That no one's feelings ever need to be hurt, because no one is ever just plain not good enough the way they are.

One is inclined to wonder if these people have tried looking at the universe lately.

The beginning of the red pill is the realization that the universe is not fair, that we cannot make it fair, and we all must simply struggle as hard as we can to get by in an unfair universe. That some people are better than others (in the case of mating, this mean "more attractive"), and that we all simply have to work on improving what we have, and who we are.

The lie that no one is better than anyone else may stem from the commendable desire to hurt no one's feelings. But it ends up hurting more than feelings. It destroys lives. Not simply because it gives people fantasy expectations that the universe will crush, but because it prevents them from doing the work they need to do to become better.

66

UPVOTES

Measure your success not by how many people agree with you, but by how many people talk about you.

31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

AskMen is lit up over the question "Do you agree or disagree with /r/theredpill?", and I cannot help but chuckle a bit.

In life, just like in seduction, you wield influence not because people like you and think you're nice, but because people have strong feelings about you and are thinking about you.

On the flip side, a man who wishes to offend no one is a man who requires the permission of everyone to do anything.

503

UPVOTES

A woman cannot tell you how you must proceed. She can only tell you what she wants to experience.

14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's well known that women give incredibly poor seduction and relationship advice. It's also well known that they are completely unaware of this.

But what if we were to ask ourselves "why"? What is the common thread in all bad female advice that makes them think it's good? How does it look good advice from their perspective?

The answer is female solipsism.

When you ask a woman for dating advice (not that you should, unless you could use a laugh), she is incapable of imagining how the world must look through your eyes. Therefore, she can only tell you what she wants it to look like from hers.

A woman who says you should do X or Y, therefore, isn't talking crazy talk. Just self-centered narcissism talk. She's giving you good information... IF you insert words like "I want it to look/feel like" or "I want people to think" in front of every statement.

Try it as a mental exercise.

"Just be yourself" == "I want to look like you're just being yourself."

"Act natural, don't force it" == "I want it to feel natural, not forced."

"Love will just happen when you meet the right person." == "I want it to look like it just happened without effort, because he was the right person."

"Be honest" == "Sound honest."

All the quotes on the left are bullshit non-advice. But the ones on the right describe the seduction magic we work to create.

Does it work on other statements women make, too? You bet it does.

"I want to be independent." == "I want to look independent." (I don't, however, want to actually take responsibility for myself. That's hard work.)

"I would never do that." == "I wouldn't want anyone knowing I did that."

"I am a good person." == "I want you to think I am a good person."

"I am spiritual, but not religious." == "I want you to think I am deep, but I do not want you to think I am dogmatic."

We can see that pretty much every a woman says makes perfect sense if you proceed from the assumption that she is the center of the universe, and hers is the only perspective there is. If we think about, we can even start to have ideas about where female solipsism comes from.

Women are both evolved and raised to deal with people, not things. In the world of things, there is one true set of circumstances, the way things really are. Fail to grasp it, and you can't get anything done. Your machines don't work, your bridges collapse, your software crashes and brings down the New York Stock Exchange. But in the world of people, what's important isn't what's really there, but what you can convince other people of.

To a woman, truth == consensus. It isn't important what's true. It's important what you can make people believe. And telling any literal truth just weakens her ability to sell the story she wants to sell.

So when a woman tells you something, she isn't stupidly unable to know she's bullshitting you. Nor is she maliciously trying to pull your leg. It's just that, to her, communication consists solely of people trying to bullshit each other. Any other possible way of communicating doesn't enter into her awareness. That's why you can stand ten feet from a woman and scream "What I mean is the literal content of the words I just said!", and she will look for the hidden meaning in both that statement and the one before.

Someone steeped in that environment has no incentive to imagine what the world looks like from someone else's point of view. To attempt to do so would be a great weakness, because it would spoil her ability to push her own point of view.

Just remember that almost anytime a woman says "this is" or "do this", she is actually saying "this is the illusion I desire".

38

UPVOTES

Women aren't ALWAYS unaware of their sexual instincts.

4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://redditlog.com/snapshots/190425>

I'm probably not the first person to observe that taking the red pill is a gradual process, and that the loss of illusions, like any other loss, initiates a grieving process.

But it's worth pointing out that psychology's general "five stages" model of the grieving process applies to TRP.

1. Denial: "Women aren't like that! They're people just like everyone else! Treat them all as individuals, and you're sure to find the right one!"
2. Anger: "WTF! Bitches are all like this! They have no honour, no loyalty, and they don't really love anyone but themselves! Fucking cunts!"
3. Bargaining: "If I work real hard and learn all the pickup moves, then at least I'll get laid."
4. Depression: "Getting laid by shallow, obnoxious women has become dull and unrewarding. And there's no sense looking for a unicorn. Maybe I'll just be MGTOW for a while."
5. Acceptance: "Women aren't bad. My expectations of them, and theirs of me, were based on faulty premises. They are creatures of instinct, just like I am... but of different instincts. If I learn what those instincts are, and teach them about mine, we can develop realistic expectations of each other and get along just fine."

If we really want to understand what gets written here, in its proper context, we need to understand that most "Red Pill Theory" posts will belong to one of these five stages. Each stage has value, because to reach a later one, you must go through the earlier ones. And, as in grieving, the progress through is seldom linear, smooth, uniform, and one-directional.

But to understand each post in context, it helps to mentally decide which stage it belongs to, and read it with that in mind.

This is why concern trolling and tone policing have no place here. Not because extremism is our banner (we have no banner, we are not a crusade), but because venting, discussing and understanding anger is a legitimate part of phase 2. Saying that women aren't worth hanging about with, even for sex, is part of phase 4.

If I were to say "don't be so angry" to someone who comes here to say "all women are bitches and whores", then I would be interrupting his process of coming to terms with the loss of his illusions. It would be far better for me to tell him that his feelings are important (because feelings actually sometimes are important), and that his anger is not bottomless, and that it will eventually run dry.

So when I read a text post here, some red pill theory, some rant, I just say to myself "stage 2". Or "stage 3". Or "stage 5". And then I continue reading. Because they are all useful. Even if I am (mostly) over my own anger, understanding other men's anger helps me, because it teaches me more about where the disconnect between reality and our expectations occurs.

But to anyone who doesn't understand that TRP posts come from different stages of the process... well, a lot of what's written here just isn't going to make sense.

33

UPVOTES

The Huffington Post Accidentally Red Pill. Please Check Outside Your Window for Pigs on the Wing.

7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/matt-walsh/if-i-cant-accept-you-at-y_b_4673582.html

10

UPVOTES

Girls with an oppositional attitude towards men aren't able to enjoy sex very much.

24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://thoughtcatalog.com/lady-goodman/2014/02/6-manipulative-things-every-girl-should-do-when-dating/>

Read the article. Note the anti-male hostility. And then focus your attention on this gem:

Fake an orgasm the first time you have sex, unless he happened to magically know how to get you off the first time you sleep together, which rarely happens.

That's right, sweetie thinks the female orgasm is difficult.

Anyone surprised? Of course it's difficult when you hate and fear men. Orgasms come from arousal, which comes from emotional state, which comes from attitude. Too much bad attitude, not enough fireworks.

I wonder how many RPWs complain about difficulty reaching orgasm?

What IS the Red Pill (an explanation accessible to those who have not taken it).

4 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

- What is the Red Pill?

The idea of a Red Pill is a metaphor from a bad science fiction movie. It references a scene where a character is given a choice between a blue pill which symbolizes a return to his comforting delusions, and a red one which awakens him to some very unpleasant truths about the reality he is living in.

So the words "Red Pill" just mean "unpleasant, but true".

- So what do we mean by this metaphor, Red Pill?

Specifically, we use it to refer to a group of very unpopular and sometimes frightening observations about human mating behaviour, and about its effect on society. These ideas, while unpopular and often considered shocking, are empowering because they are more or less accurate generalizations of which most people in our culture are unaware. Sometimes wilfully so.

- So why do we buy into these "Red Pill" ideas? Why do we believe they are true?

Because when we test them, we get the results we would expect if they were true. When we apply these ideas about human sexuality (basically, that it's not much different than the sexuality of other large primates) to our own sex lives, we are more able to predict and control what we get.

- Do we really need the Red Pill? If so, why?

Yes, we do. Because our society has no win-win plan for men.

Throughout history, successful cultures have been those that linked their mechanisms of collective prosperity to mens' personal mating success. A society in which men who produce earn mating privileges... becomes a rich and successful society. A society which doesn't, stagnates.

This is because men are evolved to mate. It's our primary drive.

We live in a culture that either does not know, or refuses to admit, that men work and strive and risk so that they can have reproductive success: a pretty wife, or a lot of wives, or a vast array of star-struck, horny groupies, or a secure nest egg for their children and a safe space to raise them in, etc. Because of this, our culture has not presented men with a plan for how to act in order to achieve this. Instead, it has simply said: here is what we expect you to do for society. For your needs, you're on your own.

This is not a win-win situation. It's not a deal. It's not a social contract. It's exploitation if we go for it. And alienation if we don't. Because even men who achieve mating success in this culture did so on their own. Not as a result of benefiting society or following its plan.

So we cannot win by following the rules. The rules are intended to make us lose.

We have to make our own rules.

- What's in the Red Pill?

The Red Pill contains the new ~~rules~~ roadmap that we have made. A new social "contract" with no one but ourselves and the laws of nature. Do this, and you will get mating privileges (whether that means a busload of sluts, or one wife who treats you right is up to you).

What it doesn't contain is "how to benefit society". And that's on purpose.

Society broke the contract first. It made a plan for our behaviour, with no win for us, and said, "You're on your own, boys".

So we've made a plan for our behaviour, with no win for society. You're on your own, economy. You're on your own, government. You're on your own, next generation. You're on your own, infrastructure. You're on your own, community. You're on your own, moral watchdogs. You're on your own, science and industry. You're on your own, feminists. You're on your own, women.

Because you bailed on us first.

- What do we want from the Red Pill?

Not just sex.

What we want is control over our lives. Sex lives, yes, but also just plain lives.

Some understandable correlation between what we do, and what we get. Our grandparents had that. Our parents dismantled it, and replaced it with idealistic nonsense. The Greatest Generation gave birth to the worst one.

The Red Pill gives us autonomy. Yes, it's salted with alienation, but it's real autonomy, and it works.

- What would it take for us to give up the Red Pill?

A social contract that works for us as well as society. It doesn't have to be the old one. It could be a new one. But it has to be win-win.

We are not at home to harangues. You will not shame us into going back to the plan of giving, and giving some more, and getting "you're on your own" in return. We no longer value your approval, because your approval comes with no benefits.

We are making our own societies of one, because yours has failed us. Make a new one that works, or shut up.

Ball's in your court, society.

310

UPVOTES

On the implications of powertalk and other language categories.

6 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

By now, many of us have read Venkatesh Rao's interesting column, linked ~~here~~ (bot doesn't allow links) by TRPsubmitter, on different kinds of language in the workplace.

Already it is ~~generating some commentary~~ (bot doesn't allow links), mostly focused on the concept of the "PowerTalk" language... because communications in that language are the ones which cause real change.

However, in order to understand the concept of powertalk in general, we have to tease it away from examples that make it specific to "The Office" as a story, and the workplace as a setting, and create some more general definitions.

What are distinguishing characteristics of powertalk?

- It is used to get something for oneself, rather than to convey information.
- It can be truth or lies, according to the needs of the speaker.
- It is plausibly deniable.

The distinguishing feature of sociopaths, or power players, if you will, is that they are fluent in powertalk. This sets them apart from the group Rao calls "Clueless", which we might call naive, or surface communicators, or spergs, in that this group mistakes powertalk for straighttalk.

Now, EVERYONE engages in straighttalk from time to time. How long does that machine bolt need to be? Where is Sausalito? Will you that be for here or to go? What were the results of our wind tunnel study? Straighttalk just means language used to communicate a piece of information.

But the distinguishing characteristic of the sperg is that they engage in straighttalk all the time.

The third type, whom Rao calls "Losers", which we might call "awakened" or "cynics", is that they are aware of the existence of powertalk, but are unable or unwilling to accept it as just a morally neutral reality, and to employ it to their advantage. Instead, they observe and often resent it. They are stuck in the question of whether powertalk is "good" or "bad", and unable to consider the "how" of using it.

They engage in straighttalk at times, but not always. They also engage in what Rao calls "GameTalk" which is like powertalk, but with out key difference... it is self-oriented.

In other words:

- It can be truth or lies, according to the needs of the speaker.
- It is plausibly deniable.
- BUT unlike powertalk, is it used to make oneself feel better, or feel a certain way that one wants to feel. Instead of being oriented towards external goals, it pursues internal ones.

So, having taken a slightly different spin here, what does this get us?

Several startling but enlightening conclusions:

- Women are usually far more skilled at powertalk than men. Most of them instinctively understand that you don't say things because they're true, you say things to get what you want. If they're true, that's just a coincidence.
- Women's alternative to powertalk is usually gametalk, men's is usually straighttalk.

- This means that where and when men or women are successful and in power, they are both "power players/sociopaths", but the failure modes are different.
- Where and when women are unsuccessful, their failure mode is often "gametalk". They are in too much emotional turmoil to manipulate effectively, and must spend energy making themselves feel better.
- Where and when men are unsuccessful, their failure mode is mostly "straighttalk". They are unable to see that they are not being given the actual story, and that they must sniff it out for themselves. They waste energy responding to illusions someone else has created for them.
- What we are doing here in TRP is trying to engage in straighttalk ABOUT powertalk. This purpose of this is for people who are used to straighttalk to learn powertalk. This requires straighttalk because the number one rule of powertalk is that you never admit to the existence of powertalk.
- This is why women hate TRP and love the techniques it teaches. A man who can engage in powertalk, and use its rules to make himself attractive, turns them on. But TRP isn't powertalk. It's straighttalk ABOUT powertalk. The more they love skilled and fluent powertalk, the more they hate seeing the veil ripped off it (because doing so is bad powertalk).
- Feminism is powertalk. Example: Not only does no not always mean no, "No means no" doesn't mean "no means no". It doesn't mean "All men must ask permission before mating". "No means no" means "If you can't both discern the difference between no that means no, and no that means yes, AND you can't discern that 'no means no' doesn't apply to everyone, then we want YOU to be in the group of men that asks permission before mating. Because your lack of powertalk skills is unattractive, and we want to make sure that you don't try to sex us without first giving us an escape valve that we can use without looking mean."
- The only way to tell the difference between skilled-enough powertalk, and straighttalk is observe the actions of the speaker.
- Feminists calling TRP neckbearded quasi-rapists is more powertalk. Neckbeard is their powertalk code word for "unattractive", but the real unattractiveness they fear is his lack of mastery of powertalk. They're afraid of the creation of a sort of hybrid, a man who understands powertalk well enough to see through their bullshit, but not well enough to create his own bullshit and actually thus BE attractive. That's why they use the term "rapist"... because such a man is indeed frighteningly like a rapist... he ignores social defenses against unattractive men (because he can READ powertalk), but he can't make the leap to being an attractive man (because he cannot WRITE powertalk).
- For this reason, TRP is and must be, not a public forum for calling women out on their bullshit, but a private lab for teaching each other to play the bullshit game.

Spergs, Cynics, and Manipulators: How PowerTalk impacts the lifecycle of cultures.

7 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed · Archived copy · Reddit

The conversation so far:

http://www.reddit.com/r/AlreadyRed/comments/1zmm02/four_major_languages_spoken_in_organizations/

http://www.reddit.com/r/AlreadyRed/comments/1zpofw/some_people_will_never_get_it_xpost_now_30_longer/

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1zrcs3/on_the_implications_of_powertalk_and_other/

So we can separate people and their modes of speech into:

- Spergs (not literally people with Asperger's syndrome, but kinda like that): Speak StraightTalk (saying exactly what you think is the truth). Believe what they are told. Spergs are believers... people who cry at sad movies, people who believe in god, people who are patriotic, people who try to do the right thing, people who think Coke tastes better than Pepsi (or vice versa), people who buy lottery tickets.
- Cynics: Speak StraightTalk, GameTalk (manipulating others to make themselves feel better), and a small amount of PowerTalk. But unlike manipulators, they aren't very comfortable speaking it, or very good at it, and they tend to slide back into straighttalk if they try to relax or stop paying attention. Cynics are unbelievers and iconoclasts. Angry atheists, people who think all politicians are corrupt, people who think Coke and Pepsi both taste like malted battery acid, and probably have the same formula, people who think gambling is a tax on people who can't do math.
- Manipulators (usually not actually sociopaths, who are rarer altogether): Speak PowerTalk fluently and naturally. They don't have to school themselves in powertalk, because it is easy, relaxed, and natural for them. Manipulators are pretend-to-believers and convincers of others to believe. Cult leaders, people who write ads to convince people Pepsi tastes better than Coke (or vice versa), people who pass laws named after dead children, people who sell lottery tickets.

All societies and cultures are built and sustained by Spergs, because Spergs are the only ones that create real and lasting economic value. Cynics get by putting in as little effort as they can, and Manipulators never willingly build anything... it's much more efficient to let it Spergs build it, and then take it from them. Cynics can build things when they are forced or bribed into it. Manipulators only build things when they have to act like Spergs, either to pass for one, or because there's no opportunity to steal. But Spergs are the actual builders.

Societies start out innocent, whether they are nations or subcultures, whether they begin with revolution or exodus or simply through joining together to form a collective. What innocent means, in this case, is that spergs vastly outnumber cynics and manipulators. These societies are highly productive and good to live in... people work together, trust each other, and produce.

The problem is they aren't stable, because, while the strongest societies are made of spergs, those who prosper most in society are the manipulators. So while it's in everyone's best interest for spergs to outnumber everyone else, it isn't in anyone's best interest to be one of them.

This means there is an inevitable flow. It's slow at first, of course. In innocent societies, cynics point out manipulators... and the spergs lynch them. So manipulators have to hide very well indeed, and have to act very sperglike. But eventually, the number of manipulators grows, and with them, the number of cynics (since manipulators create them). But the rising number of cynics actually makes it safer to be a manipulator. There's a boy-who-cried-wolf effect, and gradually the manipulators become common enough to form alliances.

The tipping point is when there are enough manipulators that their activities appear mainstream... and then, when the cynics point them out, the manipulators can call the cynics crazy, and instead of being lynched themselves, they can actually get the spergs to lynch the cynics. Using words like "negative", "crazy", "unpatriotic", "conspiracy theorist", "tax dodge" and "part of the problem".

They come up with soundbite political slogans to keep the spergs yelling at each other, and different political parties that pretend to hate each other so that it will look like voting matters. And then say that the problem is people who don't vote.

If they want to spy on internet traffic, they just say it's full of terrorists and pedophiles. If they want to silence someone, they call him a racist or a sexist. Whatever.

Point is, when there's enough of them, the cynics stop wanting to get manipulators lynched (because it's hopeless), and start wanting to become manipulators. They stop hating them and start envying them.

This leaves manipulators free to devour the spergs as fast as they can. Now, here's the tricky part. The manipulators don't win.

Because manipulators are utterly dependent on spergs for survival. Manipulators don't produce anything, so they can't survive on their own. And once the manipulators' numbers are no longer being kept in check, they run out of spergs. They either turn into cynics (who limit their production to preserve their quality of life in a parasite-rich environment), or they're just supporting too many manipulators and don't have anything left to steal.

Manipulators are the ultimate survivors in a stable society, but they destroy the very thing they depend on for survival.

Cynics can spot the decay, but they can't stop it.

Spergs can produce, and could save society if they could work together... but at the head of every SAVE SOCIETY NOW march is a manipulator, quietly lining his pockets with the donation money.

Such a society has left innocence far behind and is now in a state of rot. This rot cannot be stopped. Because it makes no sense to be a sperg in this situation. It's suicide. But spergs are the one thing society needs to save itself and survive. So people run about trying to make everyone else bake more pie, while they themselves concentrate on fighting for a bigger slice. But anyone who actually stops fighting over slices in order to bake... immediately loses his whole slice.

When the decay has become so advanced that even the spergs can spot it, who is who, and to what degree, can be measured by their responses.

Spergs ask themselves how to save the culture.

Cynics ask themselves how to avoid going down with the ship.

Manipulators ask themselves how to use the collapse to make a buck and get laid (by pretending to care deeply about saving society, for example).

Who wins? No one. You can't win, you can't break even, and you can't quit the game. Spergs get eaten, cynics become metaphorical (or literal) refugees, and manipulators run out of spergs and eat each other. Or get burned at the stake.

And the cycle begins anew.

I started today happy.

Woke up, checked my email, browsed reddit while I was waiting for the shower to heat up. Saw that something I wrote in a trollish mood had rustled some jimmies. Usual collection of hate mail, of course. No death threats this time, but the day is still young. I have high hopes.

As I pulled on to the freeway at about 10:30am...

... turning up the stereo to flood-the-area levels ...

She's a gooooooooooooooood girl, loves her mama

Loves Jesus and America too

She's a gooooooooooooooood girl, crazy 'bout Elvis....

... it occurred to me to wonder why haters make me so happy. How it is that I truly DGAF. I wondered about it for a while.

It's a loooooooooooooong day livin' in Reseda

There's a freeeeeeeeeway runnin' through the yard

And I'm a baaaaaaaaad boy, 'cause I don't even miss her

I'm a baaaaaaaaaaaaad boy for breakin' her heart

(there is no reasonable definition of cool that doesn't include Tom Petty)

And the answer to my own question was right there. I was going to show up at work around 11, and no one was going to say shit about it. I was in a nice, expensive, luxury car on a beautiful day, shifting gears by hand as a wove around light traffic. I'd had sex with more than one woman the previous weekend, and they all know I do that sort of thing, and they DGAF, either.

And I realized that I wasn't dependent on public good opinion. It didn't effect my life.

Once you accept the fundamental premise, realize that sympathy and compassion is mostly reserved for women and small children, that the only people who will care about your problems are those who are emotionally invested in you, you're free.

And I'm freeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeee, I'm free fallin'

I didn't expect sympathy and compassion for the men behind the stories that a wrote that list based on. I didn't expect sympathy and compassion for me. But that's the key to male happiness. Once you accept that no one will give those things to you, and stop being mad about that, you can realize that you don't need it.

No one will defend your rights, which means you don't really have any. If people don't need you, or want you, or have investment in you (emotionally or literally), they will not defend you. Not ever. The GirlWritesWhats and TyphonBlues and Innocence Projects of this world are not common enough to count, and they never will be.

Instead, you improve your life by acquiring privilege. Jobs that don't care when you show up, because you are a rare individual who makes the magic happen. Girls who don't care who else you fuck, because they'd rather have part of your attention than all of someone else's.

It doesn't matter if default treatment for men is crap... you can get yourself some special treatment. It doesn't matter if haters hate... you can get people who care about you and have your back.

You will never be treated well just because you are a human, or just because you are a man. Stop breaking your own heart over things that will never be yours. You do not need them.

Go get treated well for who YOU are and what YOU do.

I wanna gliiiiiiide down over Mulholland

I wanna wriiiiiiite her name in the sky

I wanna freeeeeeeeeeee fall out into nothin'

Gonna leeeeeeeave this world for awhile...

And I'm freeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeee, I'm free fallin'

1

UPVOTE

Proposition: TRP is neither Liberal nor Conservative. Here's why.

7 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Liberal and conservative are two opposing political worldviews based upon two fundamentally different ideas about human nature. Now, political figures in both camps believe neither, because they are manipulators and have no actual opinions. But people who support one of these two schools do so because they have a certain view of human nature.

Liberals believe human beings are inherently Good, and only individual people become Bad, through malfunction or conditioning, and do Bad things. Therefore, society's role is remove obstacles to people's inherent Goodness.

This is why liberal political actions focuses around

- Giving people stuff regardless of their labour or choices (because people are Good and will be productive if you remove scarcity constraints.)
- Attacking or villifying anyone who exhibits any moral weakness or disagreement with liberalism (because people are inherently Good, any moral failing cannot simply be an expression of human nature, because there is no Bad in human nature. They must therefore be Bad, dangerous individuals, unlike ordinary Good people.)
- Removing social constraints on individual people's behaviour (because people are Good and will not do wrong even if there are no boundaries.)
- Collectivizing and redistributing wealth and resources (because people are Good and will not take advantage, even if their individual contributions do not effect their level of reward.)

Conservatives believe human beings are inherently Bad, and only individual people become Good, through conditioning and enforcement of behaviour by others. Therefore, society's role is force people to defy their Bad nature by punishing them if they deviate from a model of accepted behaviour.

This is why conservative political actions focus around:

- Rewarding financial success. (That which is Good must be rewarded, that which markets reward must obviously be Good.)
- Punishing behaviour which destroys or reduces wealth.
- Punishing individual people's behaviour if it is different from the normal behaviour for society (anything which comes from an individual's preferences, rather than society's guidelines, is from their human desires and is therefore Bad.)
- Removing restrictions on behaviour of groups, especially corporations (Groups are mini-societies, and therefore responsible for enforcing Good behaviour.)
- Privatizing resources and eliminating sharing (individual prosperity is a reward for being Good, poverty is a punishment for being Bad, because the free market is a reflection of the collective will of society, and failure to obey it is a moral failing. It is Bad to be a dance instructor when your society wants more physicians instead, and those who do so must be punished.)

The Red Pill awakens us to the fact that Good and Bad are ideas people just made up. So people can't be inherently either one. People are just animals, and their nature is neither Good nor Bad... it is simply instinct, channeled through indoctrination and incentives.

Therefore, society's role is to incentivize and propagandize whatever behaviour we decide we want to see. Societies that incentivize behaviour that makes them stronger will defeat and replace those that don't.

Discuss.

111
UPVOTES

The mainstream may not yet accept our answers... but they are starting to ask our questions.

30 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

321

UPVOTES

Complaining about women is not progress.

12 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've all done it.

We've all experienced that frustration with dealing with someone very different than ourselves, and that frustration is redoubled and redoubled again when we live in a place and time that discourages and even punishes criticism of certain people.

So, when we find a discussion venue or a private conversation where women are NOT held as sacred cows, immune to censure of any kind, the temptation to bitch endlessly is strong indeed, especially when we are in the angry phase.

And often others in this sort of conversation are reluctant to demur, because they know that white knighting, tone policing, and concern trolling are real things, and dangers to be avoided.

But complaining about a problem doesn't fix the problem. In fact, it is the opposite of fixing a problem. We complain to make ourselves feel better, and much of the time we do this by laying the blame for our difficulties on others.

But when we lay the blame on others, we surrender to circumstance and relenquish power. We say "this was done to me" instead of "I made this mistake, and suffered harm as a result".

Whenever a bad thing happens to us, or even whenever we are disappointed and frustrated, the blame lies partially with others and the universe, but partially with ourselves. The path to power, power in the sense of control over our own lives, lies in seeking out the ways in which we are at fault. Because these are the parts we can change.

You're not going to change women. You wouldn't even want to. The same things that make them frustratingly irrational on facebook posts are the things that also make them feminine and loveable to us. They live with their hearts. You wouldn't want them to live with their heads. If you did, you'd be gay. (And if you ARE gay, you probably don't find women all that frustrating, because you can take them or leave them.)

If you blame women for being how they are, instead of looking for the ways that your expectations of them are flawed, instead of looking for the ways that it is good for them to be as they are, instead of seeing the ways that they must be as they are... you are hurting only yourself. You are taking the path of least resistance instead instead of the path of self-improvement. You are sparing your feelings at the expense of your ambitions.

This is indeed an open forum for you to say socially unacceptable, politically incorrect things, if you wish. It must remain so, because some of those things are true, or useful, or both.

But consider your own progress, worth, and control over your life.

Laughing at women for being bad at obstacle courses, for example, is just a sop to your inner weakness. Because you know full well that women aren't for obstacle courses. That's your job. Women are for other things, and you want and need them for those other things, just as they want and need certain things from you.

You will grow if you understand how they operate and how to deal with them. You will stagnate if you sit around blaming them for not being like you.

30

UPVOTES

Complaining is not progress, Part 2: The space between despair and complacency.

13 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So we've talked about how sitting around bitching about the gap between your precise desires and women's behaviour won't help you any.

But what will?

We can imagine what call the "Red Pill" as any or all of the following:

- The idea that our dialogue about the sexes and the relationship between them must, to be useful, be based on observations and what we think is true, rather than what is politic and inoffensive to say.
- The ideas that we come up with from the resulting observations and dialogue.
- The discussion group where we exchange these ideas.
- The course of action suggested by those ideas we have exchanged.

The last one can be envisioned as sort of a road between the states of what we stereotypically imagine as a neckbearded, angry, fedora and trenchcoat wearing outcast, and that of the (perhaps vaguely-described) self-actualized man who is in control of his own life.

Moving from one to the other (or from some midpoint to the desirable end, since most of us didn't start out as neckbeards) requires knowing which direction to go, and fucking walking.

We've already seen how complaining is the enemy of motion. When we blame others for our problems, or when we focus on the part of our problem that is someone else's fault, we fail to focus on the part that is our fault... the part we can change.

If we do otherwise, we create the belief that we do not need to change, that we are fine as we are. This is the error of complacency. It comes from the beliefs that we are "good enough", or from the Dunning-Kruger effect making us think we are better than we are, or the belief that the problem is with others and it is they who must change to solve our problems (as if they would), or from smug self-satisfaction with the progress we have already made.

The other enemy of progress is the opposite of complacency... despair. This is the belief that we cannot change in the ways we need to. That we are genetically cursed to be fat. That we weren't born to parents with the right connections. That it's too late to go back to college. That only steroid-using "douchebros" can have muscles. In general, that there is no point in trying to get better.

To improve ourselves, we must exist in the space between complacency and despair. We must believe that we are worth investing in, and that we are strong enough to change our lives for the better. But we must also see our own weaknesses and shortcomings, and be dissatisfied with them, ashamed of them, worried about them enough to motivate a change.

Whether we want to become more attractive to women, more successful in our careers, more fit and strong, more socially apt and confident, or just learn to play the guitar, whatever, we need to balance these two forces against each other, and not give in to one or the other.

<http://watermarked.cutcaster.com/902149191-I-039-m-not-ready-to-improve-my-life.jpg>

When we contemplate the interesting point raised by this cartoon:

<http://explosm.net/db/files/Comics/Dave/yummyyummyyummyyummycake.png>

... we have a bit of a philosophical problem.

The cartoonist's point seems to make sense. But we know from experience, those of who lift, or do other hard physical exercise, that the lifter is living a better, more enjoyable life than the cake-eater. Cake tastes good, and lifting hurts. But people who eat cake a lot are fat and miserable, while people who lift a lot are usually healthy and happy about their bodies.

The cartoonist has mistaken pleasure for happiness.

Pleasure is what feels good right now... but that good feeling goes away as soon as the pleasure stops. Happiness is overall, lasting satisfaction with your life. The cake-eater's good feelings will go away as soon as the cake is gone. The lifter's good feelings won't be there while he's lifting, but when he sees the results, the good feelings are there to stay.

When we see people compulsively pursuing pleasure (making themselves fat with too much sugar, feeding drug habits, trying to have sex with as many new women as possible, working like slaves trying to become rich, gambling, compulsive spending, etc), consider the possibility that they are trying to treat their lack of happiness with pleasure.

This only works while they are actually experiencing the pleasure. The moment one hit wears off, they need the next. Their overall level of happiness hasn't changed... that's if they haven't made themselves less happy with what they had to do to chase pleasure.

Our society's plan for men, of course, includes no happiness, and as little pleasure as possible while still anesthetizing us enough to make us keep working and paying and supporting and contributing. When we wake up to this fact, we realize we must make our own plans.

But filling those plans with pleasure at the expense of happiness is a bad trap to fall into.

Instead, the wise man will pursue happiness, not pleasure. He will lift weights instead of a dessert fork or shot glass. He will pursue the awesomest career instead of the most highly paid. He will surround himself with the best women, instead of the next woman.

We needn't become monks or Amish farmers... we can sometimes indulge in pleasure without damaging our happiness. But when choosing between what feels good, and what gives a lasting sense of satisfaction and accomplishment, choose the latter.

145

UPVOTES

The Redefinition of Marriage.

11 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I think there is no group in America quite so awful at explaining its point as the so-called "Religious Right", that group of Christians-with-a-capital-C who are the populist voice of social conservatism in the American political landscape.

Their grasp of apologetics, outside of a few voices like Dalrock, is so bad that no one outside their community even understands their talking points.

When they said "family values", everyone else thought it was a code word for hating sex. When they say "defense of marriage", everyone else thought it was a code word for hating gays.

But the truth is more complicated.

The core of religious values, for almost all religions, not just christianity, is reenforcement of existing social structures. Now, the construction of a mythological framework for that is just what most religions DO. But when that framework becomes the only reason for those values that people understand, then they cannot explain the values to anyone who doesn't share their supernatural beliefs.

CCs (conservative christians) can't explain their values, because they don't themselves understand the real reasons behind them.

It never occurs, not only to cultural Marxists, SJWs, and other ultra-liberals, but also to the average moderate, that these values are wrapped around a correct idea.

This idea is that the basic unit of a society is not an individual, but a family. A society composed of weak, disconnected, or broken families is a broken society.

And the way our society has traditionally formed families is marriage. (Followed by children).

Now, marriage, at its core, is a contract. (Just like pretty much any human relationship that is formalized.) Contracts have a couple of things that distinguish them.

- They have terms. (These theoretically benefit both parties.)
- They have consent. (Both parties agree to the terms.)
- They have enforcement. (Some negative consequence to the party that breaks the agreement.)

Now, in the idealized version of the past that CCs want to return to, all these things supposedly worked.

- The wedding vows were the terms.
- Informed consent was obvious, because both parties recited the terms out loud.
- Enforcement was a social act by the community, because the vows were spoken in front of that community, who would socially enforce them.

Now, CCs think wedding vows are spoken in front of "God", but when was the last time you saw god punish a cheating wife, or a neglectful husband? No, the real enforcers of wedding vows were the tight-knit local communities people lived in. If the marriage contract was broken, the community would judge who broke it, and ostracize that person. Effective.

But because marriages have consequences in civil law, the government needed some notion of who was married. And this was the thin end of the wedge. Once people started having to sign papers declaring that they were married before the law recognized it, the enforcing authority passed from the hands of the community, and into the hands of the law.

And the law, in its need to standardize everything, began to standardize the contract.

So now, what do we have?

- The wedding vows are just poetry. The law defines the terms of the contract, and it can and will retroactively redefine those terms at any time.
- Informed consent is impossible, because the papers the couple sign don't contain the terms, which occupy volumes of lawbooks unavailable to most couples, and which can change at any time.
- The law does not enforce the marriage contract (no-fault divorce), it simply recognizes the dissolution of the contract, and divides the assets of the partnership (money, property, children) without any regard to who broke the contract.

So, when the modern couple gets "married", they are agreeing to terms they don't know about, breach of which will not be punished, and the dissolution of which will be handled by a templated process that someone else has decided is fair for everyone. Is it any surprise this doesn't work? The favoritism courts show to women doesn't even enter into it. The problem runs deeper. When the government defines the terms of a contract, the parties to that contract do not know what they are agreeing to.

This is what CCs are on about when they don't want to let gays get "married". They have no idea of the reasons underlying their own values, and they're closing the barn door decades after the horses have fled, but they have some vague notion that the government mishandles the institution of marriage, and they want to resist that somehow.

So how should we fix this problem....?

....

....

We shouldn't, you fool. We can't. Have you forgotten where you are? You're reading TRP. We are not here to fix society, because our society eats self-sacrificing heroes for breakfast, then demands they buy it lunch.

We are here to survive the collapse.

So how do you do that? DON'T GET MARRIED, DUMBASS.

- It doesn't matter if you want children.
- It doesn't matter how much game you have.
- It doesn't matter how ironclad your prenup is.
- It doesn't matter how high your SMV is.
- It doesn't matter if you could have another her in thirty seconds.

You are still signing a contract you don't get to read. Would you hand a stranger a signed blank cheque? It's just retarded. There is nothing that all the redpillian advice in the world can do for you, if you are such a rube that you sign things without reading them.

156

UPVOTES

"Ruining Virgins for Everyone Else" (Another Case of the Myth of Female Hypoagency)

12 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Some myths are like the walking dead. No matter how many times you refute them, debunk them, pound a stake through their heart, cut off their head, fill the mouth with salt and sew it shut, bury it face down on consecrated ground, and pour sixteen tons of concrete over the top, the nonsense just springs to life again.

Every man wants to have his decade of pumping and dumping dozens of unspoilt virgins before he finally marries one and has kids. That's only possible if we live in a traditional society wherein he breaks the traditional rules every other man plays by. Kind of like AF/BB inverted, it's the male version of cheating the system. RVEE (Ruining Virgins for Everyone Else)?

We do not ruin virgins. They ruin themselves.

Look, it's perfectly simple.

Women are the gatekeepers of sex. Getting to sex is a man's responsibility.

Men are the gatekeepers of relationships. Getting to a relationship is a woman's responsibility.

If a man gets friendzoned, it's his own fault, because he wasn't sex-worthy to the woman he choose to spend his time, energy, attention, money, and emotional investment on. He should have either had better game or picked an easier target.

If a woman gets pumped and dumped, it's her own fault, because she wasn't relationship-worthy to the man whose dick she choose to leap onto. She should have either had better game, or picked an easier target.

Just as all women can be seduced under some set circumstances, all men can stick to a woman under some set of circumstances. Being pumped and dumped just meant you were good enough to lay, but not a keeper. Just like being friendzoned meant you were good enough to hang with, but not good enough to fuck.

The sexual marketplace is a game of luck and skill for everyone. You enter, you play your best hand, and you take your chances.

You can play it risky, or you can play it safe. You play it safe, you're unlikely to lose big, or to win big. You play it risker, you win bigger, you lose bigger.

Sleep with a hot guy, you better bring your A game, because you're competing not only with all the other women he's banging, but all the women he might in the future. You don't wanna take the risk, bang a beta.

It's easy to spot guys who might pump and dump you. They're the attractive ones. You want lower risk of that? Bang an unattractive guy.

Women who whine about "players" are just trying to have their cake and eat it, too. They want a hot guy, but they don't want to have to work at keeping him, or risk getting dumped.

We have already seen that marriage is not what it was.

When I pointed this out, there was a great deal of agreement.

However, when I proceeded to the obvious conclusion:

DON'T GET MARRIED, DUMBASS.

... there was a great deal of whinging and crying from those who haven't quite coped with the loss of their dream of a pretty and faithful wife, a house, two kids, a dog, and a presumably a white picket fence.

It went kind of like this:

You're welcomed to avoid marriage & neither start nor be a part of a legacy, with your family likely descending back into the lower/middle class chaos and ecosystem of perpetually broken and dysfunctional homes & children.

In other words:

"Yes, getting married is bad for YOU, but if you don't do it, your kids are screwed."

... And these misconceptions are why we are having this little talk.

Yes, it is true that children of single mothers are screwed. That's not the misconception here. The misconception here is the words "your children".

YOU CAN'T HAVE CHILDREN, DUMBASS.

Not "you shouldn't". Not "don't".

You. Can't.

If you get a woman pregnant, married to her or not, she can take those children away from you at any time, and be rewarded with cash and prizes for doing so. You will have a piece of paper saying you can visit them on weekends, and nothing at all will happen if she ignores it and moves to another state with them.

So you can't have children. Men don't have children in this society. Women have children, and they allow whatever man, willing or duped, they choose whatever level of parenting and contact they choose.

Marry a woman, father two children on her, buy a house, a dog, and a white picket fence, doesn't matter. You will lose everything except possibly the dog, the moment she decides cash and prizes are better for her than your continued presence.

You can't be a father, because fatherhood has been abolished. There is only the "baby-daddy" who has responsibilities and no rights, and the stepfather, who has whatever the mother chooses to give him that day.

You. Can't. Be. A. Father.

What, did you think that if you just took the Red Pill, if you just worked real hard at having tight game, if you just did enough deadlifts and learned how to pass a shit test, none of this bullshit would affect your life in any way?

What a grand and intoxicating naiveté.

"But... but... but... Whiiiiiiiiiiiiisper, what if I waaaaaaaaaaaaaant kids?"

Well, what if I want telekinetic powers and a ten thousand year lifespan? So what? Since when did the universe start caring what we want?

What you have is a choice. Get a woman pregnant, and hope she'll let you see the kids, or don't.

87

UPVOTES

Here's a handy list of what not to do.

17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.redditlog.com/snapshots/1276125>

Consideration may not be inherently weak beta behaviour, but in a culture where women's perceived SMV is much higher than men's, nothing dries up a vagina faster than trying to butter her up.

The more weak-ass men there are out there, the more your girls are going to watch you to make sure you aren't one. The more of these things you do, the more they will suspect you are.

Women don't want to be treated awesome by someone nice, they want to be treated okay by someone awesome.

Don't be nice. Be awesome. The only safe way you can be nice to a woman is to give her the awesomest possible version of you to be with.

You're expecting me to say that no one will ever change anyone's mind.

But the issue runs much deeper than that.

RP and BP end up talking past each other because they cannot even agree on what they should be debating about. The sets of values they hold are completely disjoint. They cannot even agree on what a "debate" is, and what the goals of a "debate" are.

RP people generally bring the following assumptions to a debate:

- They believe that there is exactly one reality, and that truth is what accurately describes that reality. The better a statement describes reality, the more true it is. They are factual absolutists.
- They believe that whether something is "good" or "bad" is a matter of opinion, and that all systems of morality are things societies invented to get a result, and it is therefore pointless to argue about whether something is "evil" or not, instead of about what effect it has. They are moral relativists.
- They believe that the goal of a debate is to establish what the facts are, and how this knowledge can be used to control outcomes. They argue about what is true.
- They believe that debates are a cooperative process between two or more people who have the shared goal of achieving a more accurate picture of absolute reality, and that, while people may stick vehemently to their positions, they can also reverse them on a dime if new information comes to light, because the only real attachment is to the truth. They believe debates occur between theories, not people. Thus questioning someone's character is off-limits, because it is irrelevant.

BP people generally bring the following assumptions to a debate:

- They believe that reality is subjective, and what is "true" is simply a matter of who you ask. What is called "truth" is simply a codification of someone's perspective, and it is therefore pointless to argue about what is "true". They are factual relativists.
- They believe that there is exactly one set of moral laws, which human beings have gradually discovered in a historical climb towards ethical perfection. Certain people are ethically better or worse based not only on what they do, but also on what they believe. They believe that different ethical systems exist, but they can be ranked from ethically worst to ethically best based on a sort of meta-ethics whereby they can be tested for degree of compliance with the one absolute set of ethics that underlies reality. They are moral absolutists.
- They believe that the goal of debate is to establish what is morally better, and what everyone should do. They argue about what is right.
- They believe that debates are a competitive process between two people, who each have the goal of establishing their views about right and wrong by attaining a state of moral ascendancy over the other person. They believe that anyone who changes their views in revealing a flaw in their moral character (because their previous views were not morally correct), and must thereafter relinquish the moral high ground and submit their actions to the moral judgement of others (usually the person who won the debate). They believe debates occur between people, not ideas, for the precise purpose of establishing who should be allowed to set standards for the behaviour of others (because they are morally superior). Thus, questioning someone's character is not only relevant, it's the whole point.

This is why BP think RP are "misogynists" or bad people. Because they cannot imagine an analysis that does not ____ occur for the purposes of judgement, much less one that doesn't include any idea about what people "should" do.

This is why RP insist that BP are willfully blind. Because, to them, anyone who doesn't admit the truth must be unable to perceive it. They cannot imagine anyone not caring what the truth is.

This is why BP keep thinking that RP are trying to restore Dark Ages. They cannot imagine any group with shared views not having one moral agenda that they wish everyone to abide by.

This is RP think that BP must be hopelessly bad at understanding human social structures. They cannot imagine anyone not wanting to do things in the most effective possible way.

Here are some examples of this kind of misunderstanding in action:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheBluePill/comments/2nvw9v/so_much_for_mens_rights/cmhox1d

Here we see an interaction between RP and BP regarding age of consent laws.

- RP's primary objective to propose an algorithm for making legal judgements about consent or lack of it, which he believes will best serve what the majority of people desire to see these laws do. He looks at the issue as an engineering problem, and he proposes a solution.
- BP's objective is to establish whether or RP is a bad person. If he can be gotten to agree to a statement which BP thinks of as diagnostic of "evilness", then the debate can be won, and anything RP says can thereafter be dismissed as originating from an evil person.

Thus RP and BP cannot even agree on what to argue about.

http://www.reddit.com/r/PurplePillDebate/comments/2pw76h/q_a_on_basic_trp_premise_everyone_welcome_to/cn20sx9?context=3

The debate is rather tedious up until BP's parting shot.

- BP says "All this so you can justify getting laid.". BP thinks RP is trying to "justify" something according a set of moral rules, because to BP, every act has a moral valance, and anyone who wishes to do anything must at least be ready with a moral excuse.
- RP has been arguing, meanwhile, about which metaphors best illustrate human social and mating dynamics. RP does not address the issue of right or wrong at all, and seems to believe BP is engaging with him on factual level.

Thus RP and BP cannot even agree on what the argument is about.

It is for this reason that PPD is pointless. RP thinks right and wrong are a matter of opinion, and BP doesn't care what the facts are.

148

UPVOTES

In which I explain to MGTOW that he is MGTOW, and why.

26 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.redditlog.com/snapshots/1416693>

Copied and pasted for your convenience.

As for my metaphor, I'm saying that when men complain about marriage rape, while I agree losing most your shit and you children is horrible, I still don't see them dying of starvation in a mud hut.

How is that important?

The logical conclusion of this argument is that there one single most wretched individual in the world, and he is the only one allowed to complain, or to strive to better his lot in life. This is ridiculous. The fact that someone else has it worse is a non-sequitur.

Think of it this way. If I stab you in the stomach with a box cutter, and you are bleeding profusely, then you have a problem.

If I stab the guy next to you twice, or three times, or fifty-seven times, does that do anything to fix your problem? Does that make it one iota more bearable? No, it does not.

I don't see many western problems as that big of an issue and easily solvable, but are not due to human emotion and an unwillingness to bend.

Foolish and naive. Knowing what to do is only half the solution. Getting people to do it is the other half, and usually the more difficult one. People have a lot less control over their behaviour than most people think.

And I son't exactly care about those not getting enough of said pie because the physical world is a harsh place and luck has everything to do with your lot in life.

You don't care because you've given up hope. You feel like you have no chance at a pretty and feminine wife, a stable job with enough money to raise a family on one income, two or three children who respect and obey you, and a close-knit community with friends and acquaintances who treated you with courtesy.

You don't feel like you are entitled to any of those things. If you were born in an another era, you would have. Not entitled to just get them, but entitled to chance to work hard and earn them. And if you did have that fair shot at those things, you'd be out there now, busting your tail to reach that goal.

THAT is why I say the male sex drive (along with, yes, the male urge to dominate or lead) is the engine that drives both the economy, and civilization. Men want high-quality mates for long-term relationships. Men want families and children, in societies where fathers are the respected head of the household, rather than a figure of derision.

You have given up on busting your tail to afford and support a family, because society was restructured to remove the rewards. Some very broken people looked at the rewards men got in exchange for their responsibilities, and called them "male privilege". Then they persuaded our society to remove them. It never occurred to these people that this was what motivated men to keep the power running, and the grocery stores stocked with food. That, to them, was just background stuff that happened automagically, because you had "an economy", which is their word for "somebody else does the dirty jobs, because I am doing the important work of complaining about the Patriarchy".

So the rewards of fatherhood vanished, but the expectations remained. Is it any wonder you don't want the job now? You're not lazy. You're sensible.

I don't want the job either, not under these conditions. Fuck that. I'm going to bang sluts, get high, keep my money, buy expensive toys, and not have or raise children, not bankroll anyone, not contribute to my community or my society.

Because "my" community and "my" society aren't mine. They never were. They see me as an ATM. A special, wicked kind of ATM that they insult as they withdraw money from, because it's "privileged" and "greedy" for not giving them more.

My society does not give a fuck about one thing I want or one problem I have. Certain companies won't pay for women's birth control pills? Everyone loses their shit.

I want a job? I better figure out myself how to make that happen.

I want to get laid? The only thing my culture cares about is to make sure I am not "pressuring" or "coercing" anyone. Actually making that happen? That's my responsibility, and figuring out what I need to do is my responsibility, and when I figure out what I need to do, I'd better not say openly what it is, if that description hurts the feelings of real person.

Our society doesn't consider anything a problem until it starts hurting women. We have a metric fuckton of young men in their twenties living lives of involuntary celibacy, and our culture doesn't consider that a problem until they start reading something like TRP, and then it's a problem because, and only because, they say mean about women and hurt their feelings. We have a metric fuckton of older men in their thirties and forties, paying to support children they have been cut off from, and that's not a problem for our society until they stop paying, often because they no longer can, and then it's a problem because they are "deadbeat dads", and we need to hold them upside down and shake vigorously with a basket underneath them.

Some people need to figure out that if you give nothing to men, you get nothing from them.

That is why TRP exists. Our society has abandoned men, so we are starting to form our own social structures, our own communities, our own support networks. And we are loyal to the communities that support us, not the ones that just try to use us and cast us aside.

Now, if you tell certain people, most likely the SJW/feminist/BP crowd that, they say "oh, you're being overdramatic", "you have all this male privilege", "you have it good, because you live in America and aren't worried about where your next meal is coming from". (These are the same people who think overhearing a joke about dongles is a grave injustice that requires immediate action.)

But this is, ultimately, an excuse. They want to worry about men, never for men. Why?

Because men are the economic powerhouse. Men build things. Men produce wealth. If they admit men have problems, not just as people, not just as black men, gay men, or poor men, but as men, then there is a limit. They have to stop squeezing. They have to limit their demands. And their real goal is extract the maximum amount with a minimum of effort. Socialism, feminism, "social justice", arguments about fairness... it's all just a power play. They want more cookies. That's all.

The non-bakers want more pie. And the best way to do that is to gaslight the bakers. Make them feel inadequate. Guilty. Tell them they have "pie-baking privilege", and they better give away all the pie to cleanse themselves of this sin.

That is the real source of the rage against TRP. It supports men. Makes them stop feeling guilty. Makes them hard to control. Makes them not only want things for themselves, but feel like they can get them.

118

UPVOTES

On the absolute necessity of patriarchy for women's long term welfare.

11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So, /u/TRPsubmitter, in his usual fine form, gave us this

Beta bf who almost got cuckolded by Mario Balotelli mistakenly thinks he can negotiate attraction by publicly outing his gf into not cheating on him and it's full of juicy analysis, very enlightening, go read it. But it also brings up a more general principle that deserves to be called out on its own.

Why did the girl do this dumb shit?

Well, consider what would have happened if she fucked Mario Baloteli. She gets thirty minutes of sex, probably very good sex because she's super turned on by him. Then boyfriend dumps her, and she spends the rest of her life as an alpha widow, propping up her self-image by reminding herself that she fucked Mario Baloteli once. (That's how she puts it, of course. The truth is that Mario Baloteli fucked her.) Until, one day, she tells the story, and someone says "Who the fuck was Mario Baloteli?", and she realizes she has nothing.

So, bad for her. But her instincts drive her to do it. Why? Because our instincts drive us to act in the interests of our genes, not ourselves. Her genes "want" to be mixed with Mario Baloteli's, because that will give them a better chance of making more copies of themselves. That's the mechanism that created instinct. That process doesn't give a fuck if we get hurt along the way.

So what kind of girl would have reacted differently?

A girl who had been raised by a patriarch. If she had been steeped in all that ludicrous-sounding old-fashioned shit about "guarding her virtue", she would have realized, that, hey, she ain't gonna be able to hold on to a guy who has that kind of pulling ability. She's going to get pumped and dumped. She might have still felt some attraction, but it would be balanced with revulsion at the idea of being "cheap" or getting "used". So she doesn't respond to his message, but shows it to her mate instead, and they have a good laugh about it.

Patriarchy was a thing because girls self-destruct without it. Their instincts compel them to act against their long term interests.

But why girls in particular? Is the male of the species so much calmer, so much smarter, so much more logical, that he's planning ahead every second of his life and never makes a dumb shit move?

Bitch, please. Have you seen some of the things men do? Ha. No, the reason is that, by dint of biological happenstance, male mating mistakes don't have permanent consequences.

Imagine, for a moment, what it's like to be a woman. Imagine that every dumb shit move you ever made in the past, that thing you did when you were fourteen, that time you got drunk and had beer goggles, that thing with your brother's girlfriend in the cabin... imagine that all that shit stayed with you and permanently affected how attractive you were. Remember some of the stupid shit you did before your dark enlightenment? I'll bet some of you fuckers wrote love poetry.

And, just like you, the modern woman has had no guidance in how not to fuck up her SMV. Just like you, she has had to figure that shit out for herself. Except, unlike you, she isn't able to erase her past or make it irrelevant. She has to live with it. You get a whole lot of tries, opportunities to learn from your mistakes and fix them. She gets the test, and then the lesson, and no do-overs.

This is why women lie to you about their partner count. Once they figure out that it matters, what the fuck else are they supposed to do?

This is why little girls need a patriarch. Because they could figure shit out for themselves, they are capable of learning, but by the time they've had a chance to, it's too late.

Little girls who grow up without a strong male authority ruling the family have five to six years of non-stop party, then a lifetime of wondering what went wrong. Little girls who do, they miss the early-twenties sex party, but they have more fulfilling lives.

226

UPVOTES

Don't let people AMOG you... even if they claim to be dispensing red pills.

1 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So, once again, someone posted a link to, among other stuff, that tired old screed about how "everything is sales".

Then some other people started throwing around income numbers that were somewhat on the high side (a favorite trick for old men who wish to intimidate younger ones).

And there was a lot of very low quality discussion that followed. Guys who were butthurt about getting AMOGed. Guys who wanted to wave their dicks around about how much they make in sales, or about how they were a physician, and how physicians were just cooler and smarter than anyone. And a whole lot of sound and fury ensued, to no particular purpose.

Nothing of value was learned.

Having arguments, explicitly or otherwise, about who is "most alpha" is not only a waste of time, it's backsliding.

Why? Because people do it to make themselves feel better. They are selecting their actions, not for some purpose in the external world, but in order to adjust their own emotional state. They are trying to AMOG someone.

But what do we know about how to pass a shit test? You don't pass one by talking about how awesome you are. Everyone here knows that's a massive fail. It shows you can be rattled. That you have to prop up your self-image when someone attacks it.

Well, AMOGing someone on the internet is even worse, because it's doing that even when you haven't been shit-tested. Oh, it may feel good for a while, but it impedes your progress in reaching that state of Not Giving a Fuck.

Situational dominance is just that, situational. It's not a worthwhile end goal, because all situations change. If you start thinking you're "sooo fucking alpha, bro" because you make a lot of money, then what are you going to do about the fact that Miley Cyrus makes more than every TRP subscriber put together? Are you going to just try not to think about that? If you start tying your self-assessment to how ripped you are, and how much you can lift, what happens when you get sick?

The moment you start striving to "be alpha", you are no longer a man with a mission. You are a man trying to manage his public image.

Don't that, and don't let men who do that suck you into their madness. Even if they dress it up as red pill advice. Letting yourself be patronized erodes the confidence you need to pursue your goals, and worse yet, you're submitting to someone else's frame, which is precisely the habit you're trying to get out of.

Do not let someone else choose your goals for you.

If you start hearing advice that sounds like it's calibrated to make the giver sound fuckawesome, get suspicious. Is it really designed to help you? Or is it just an AMOG play?

If it is, treat as a shit test. Learn to laugh it off. Agree and amplify, if some other clever response doesn't occur to you. Above all, don't start asking yourself how "alpha" you are, or worse yet, answering that question according to someone else's measuring stick.

Instead, get your head unfucked, and work on being adaptable and unshakeable. You will never be the strongest man in the world, or the richest, or screw the most lingerie models, or whatever the fuck. There's six billion people in the world. Get over it.

The only thing you can do is get good at playing the cards you are dealt. Because your cards might be different tomorrow. Situational dominance means nothing. Because you can never have enough of it to avoid the need for good mental game.

146

UPVOTES

Socialism, Feminism, Marxism, and the Four Basic Types of Human Interaction.

20 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So, it's pretty easy to go on endlessly about the evils of feminism. And it's pretty easy to describe feminism as a special case of Marxism. And it's pretty easy to describe Marxism as a special case of socialism.

But what exactly is socialism? What causes it? And why does it always go wrong, screw everything up, and hurt people? After all, if we can explain how feminism causes all sorts of bad shit, but can't explain what causes feminism, then we really haven't explained anything, have we?

So, for the purposes of understanding, we will sort human interactions, and, in a larger sense, relationships, into four basic categories:

- Forcible: One human being uses force or fear to coerce another into providing X. There is no reciprocal benefit.
- Feudal: One human being subordinates himself to another in exchange for X. His subordinate status allows the other to obtain Y from him.
- Transactional: Two human beings arrange an exchange of X for Y.
- Communal: One human being does X, without arranging any sort of repayment. The other human being does Y, without arranging repayment.

Obviously, these interactions exist on a continual scale. A relationship with an employer is partially feudal and partially transactional (to varying degrees). Splitting a restaurant cheque with friends is partially transactional and partially communal (to varying degrees).

So, if we regard this as a continuum, what determines where an interaction falls? Clearly, expectations do, but that's not an answer, because what determines those expectations?

The answer is that the direction of this continuum is the direction of trust.

Near the bottom of the scale, resource transfers are very inefficient (violence is hard work), but the system requires very little trust. Near the top, resources are very easily distributed, but great trust is required.

But why is trust required? Because the higher you go on this scale, the more vulnerable the system is to bad actors. On the bottom, safeguards are built-in (you are not vulnerable to betrayal by the guy you are beating in order to steal his wallet), but there is a great waste of effort. At the top, there is no wasted energy on violence, systems of currency, or encryption schemes, but one bad actor can destroy the whole system.

Trust is determined by our assessment of the likelihood of a bad actor, and of the damage a bad actor could do. We will happily buy a backpack over the internet, sight unseen, but not a house.

This, in turn, means that the nature of an interaction is determined by the balance of trust and efficiency.

So what is socialism, and where does it come from?

Socialism is an attempt to force a move up the trust scale. It uses a forcible interaction to make others' actions more communal.

- "You must buy into the collective retirement plan, rather doing your investing."
- "You must buy into the school-funding pool, rather than teaching your children yourself, or choosing someone to do it for you, and paying them."
- "You must pay tax dollar into women's programs, rather than choosing a wife, and supporting only her."

So now can we answer the question, "Where does socialism come from?" ? Yes, we can.

Socialism comes from the misconception that communalism can be established merely by having the political will to do so.

The wealth of societies is, by large, a matter of how much internal trust they have. Societies who have a high degree of internal trust, and very few bad actors, can cooperate very efficiently. They are strong, productive societies. They are pleasant to live in. They take care of their own. They look like what socialists think they are working towards.

But where socialists go wrong is in thinking that having trust is a matter of just making people act trusting, by force if necessary. They are wrong. Trust is built by eliminating bad actors.

Socialism assumes that no member of society will be a bad actor, so all we need to do is trust each other and work together, and no one will ever game the system.

Feminism assumes that no woman will be a bad actor, so all we need to do is give women freedom and resources without any oversight. We must, for example, believe all rape allegations made by women, because no woman is a bad actor. Due process is inefficient... all we need is more trust.

The Red Pill, then, is a dose of cynicism. The first painful truth we realize upon awakening is that bad actors are all around us. We must learn to spot them. We must learn to protect against them by limiting trust. Often this means moving our interactions down the trust scale, making our relationships more transactional and less communal.

This is the basis of /u/HumanSockPuppet's Bitch Management Hierarchy. A bitch moves up the hierarchy by amassing evidence of trustworthiness, and is permanently demoted if she demonstrates the capacity for betrayal.

What's the moral, here?

- Trust cannot be gained by demanding it at the point of a gun.
- Trust cannot be gained by demanding it at the point of a idealistic moral argument.
- Trust cannot even be earned, because what can be earned can be owed.
- Trust must inspired.

Communal relationships are the most desirable. They are a society's greatest asset, and the real measure of a person's wealth. But they cannot be gotten just by deciding to have them. They must be slowly and painstakingly built, both by people and by society, and no amount of idealism will speed this process.

In other words, a functioning communist society is the most desirable end state. But when the size of your society exceeds Dunbar's Number, trust must be created through social mores, shared cultural values, and weeding out bad actors, a process taking many generations. Trying to jumpstart this process with ideologies or government force actually results in less efficiency than ever, as more and more effort is consumed in the creation and maintenance of the coercive mechanisms that force people to act as if they trusted each other when they do not.

On a personal level, you must behave very differently with different groups if you wish to prosper. You need a communal group. But you must be very careful who you let into it, the admission process must be gradual, and demotions down the trust scale should usually be permanent.

Marriage: Red Pill on Hamster Mode.

12 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you ever doubt for moment that the Rationalization Hamster exists within the male of the species, talk to a bunch of married TRP subscribers.

And you will come face to face with it.

We all know that marriage has been twisted into something that isn't good for you. We've all seen the evidence that fatherhood no longer exists.

Yet certain men, knowing they have failed to properly apply Bitch Management 101, looking at the same reality as the rest of us, allegedly having taken the red pill and unplugged...

... suddenly start making up reasons why they didn't actually fuck up.

So it's time to play:

"Married Red Pill" or Bitch Hitting the Wall!

Just peruse this list of common sayings, and guess which ones come from married TRP readers (A), and which ones come from bitches hitting the wall and marrying a beta (B)! Keep track of your answers!

- "I wanted to settle down and build something."
- "I needed a stable relationship to have kids in."
- "My tastes have matured."
- "I grew up."
- "My (partner) is awesome."
- "(Someone) without kids is (someone) without a legacy."
- "If you don't reproduce, you lose at evolution."
- "It's (relationships) on Hard Mode."

Got all your answers written down? Good. Now throw them away, and smack yourself upside the head for submitting to a stranger's frame on the internet. And when you're done with that, pay attention to my actual point.

Some men don't want to admit they made a mistake, and would rather rationalize like bitches instead of owning up to it.

We all made mistakes before we woke the fuck up. And some mistakes are not easily undone. And when you make a permanent mistake, you certainly want to do everything you can to minimize the damage instead of lying down and dying. And yes, the red pill can help with that.

But do not pretend that marriage is anything but a mistake. When you start telling others to imitate your mistakes "so they can have children", you're not only delusional and dangerous to yourself, you're malignant and dangerous to others.

Men cannot have children. Men have no legal rights to speak of, where children are concerned. We know better than to give women things in the hopes that the rule of reciprocity will suddenly, magically start working on bitches, and they'll want to repay us with sex... that's pussy begging, and we know better.

Putting a ring on it in the hopes that the rule of reciprocity will magically start working on this one bitch is uterus begging, like pussy begging, but taken five inches further.

If you want kids, adopt (very low risk). If you want your biological kids, hire a surrogate (not zero risk, but lower). If you want kids in a relationship, have an LTR and get her pregnant (high risk, but still not marriage).

Marriage provides you zero protection. Remember Briffault's Law... reciprocity does not work with females. Your only protection in a relationship is ever-present willingness and ability to kick her to the curb.

And if you are married, good luck to you. But don't be bucket crab. Don't trick younger, more naive men into emulating your mistakes just so you can prop up your wounded feels.

156

UPVOTES

The most important two videos you will ever watch.

15 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

... are not directly about sexual strategy.

But do you want to not be fat?

Do you want to not date fat chicks?

Do you want your LTR to not get fat?

Do you want to not have fat children?

Then you need to sit through these ~~two~~ three videos, and understand what fat is, and how it happens. Y'all need this... because I was reading this excellent post, and I saw some appalling bro-science in the comments.

So take two hours, out of your whole life, to learn you some real facts that will help you forever.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ceFyF9px20Y>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=lDneyrETR2o>

Now, I could go all GayLubeOil up in this bitch, post pictures of hippos and walruses and fat chicks, and then contrast with one or two of fine women and ripped men. But that's not my style, so I'm just going to give you this instead:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0OtFSDKrQ88&t=1m>

tl;dr: No. Fuck you. This isn't a field report, or rambling story of my personal life. This is dedicated physician who devoted years of his life to wiping out the scourge of the horrible hambeast, condensing all his research down to a pair of lectures. That is the tl;dr. You don't get it condensed further. You do not need to be spoon-fed.

EDIT: added another excellent video from the comments.

So, last time, your resident mad scientist exposed how taking the red pill doesn't automatically grant immunity to rationalization, and there was much wailing and gnashing of teeth.

Now it's time to piss off the rest of you.

Because there's still more shit red pillers have just as much trouble facing.

You are not completely in control of your own behaviour.

No one is. The science is in. Your metabolic health controls how much you eat. T levels change your personality. Blah blah fucking blah... but here's the clinch. The Max Planck Institute for Human Cognitive and Brain Sciences proved that some decisions happen (and can be read in an MRI) as much as seven seconds before the conscious, self-aware portions of the brain become aware of what the decision is.

That means the parts of you that you are aware of as "you" aren't making those decisions.

We are a monkey on the back of a lizard, and sometimes the lizard runs off in one direction or another, and the monkey invents stories about how that was where it wanted to go, and it's doing the steering, really.

And we all know about Phineas Gage.

But there are some people who can't accept this. It seems especially hard for red pillers. A dedication to relentless self-improvement makes us want to have absolute control over our behaviour and our destiny.

People who are improving themselves want to believe that they can do whatever they need to do if they just try. And people who have done awesome want to take credit for it. But these two attitudes are just as self-deceptive as the fattie who thinks she has a special gene that turns the air into marshmallows as she breathes it.

The words that sum up the basis of the red pill aren't "everything is up to you". They are "it is what it is". With the possible addition of "now what are you going to do about it?" If we want to make progress, we have to deal with reality as it is.

If we don't have total control, then we don't. So we control what we can, and also control ourselves by controlling the things that control us. Don't keep complex carbs in your kitchen. Don't hang out with betas who tempt you to old bad habits. Take steroids. If you're beginning your recovery, and coming from an incel streak, hire some beautiful whores to get abundance mentality rolling.

And don't let your woman hang out with Chad Thundercock, even if she respects you. Same principle.

Call it "lifehacker bullshit" if you want (I hate the word myself, it reeks of beta male herb), but either it works, or it doesn't. Pride doesn't matter. Playing by the rules doesn't matter. Only winning matters.

Use every tool available. Cheat. Win.

You can white-knuckle it if you want. But are you doing it because you think that's the best way? Or because you can't admit to yourself that you might need a little help? That you might not be fully in control?

That's the Hamster.

The anger phase is important. Without it, we never would have woken up in the first place.

But where does it from? What starts it, and when does it stop?

Well, the best local source for directly observing angry-phase men in the wild is /r/askmen (trp has plenty of angry-phase men, but your observations will be diluted with men in later stages). Reading this <https://archive.today/ny1mk> thread, where men talk about annoying shit women say, we can start to get an inkling.

What do all of these men, annoyed by women, angry at women, have in common?

They all expect women to be adults.

They were raised to think of women as adults. They were told over and over again that the differences between men and women were purely sexual. And they believed it. So they grew up and became adults, and expected the women around them to be adults. They just assumed women would make an effort to be objective, see things from others' points of view, finish what they start, keep their promises, take responsibility for their actions, and so forth.

When adults refuse to do these things, it's annoying. We get angry at them. Because they have failed a reasonable expectation. When children refuse to do these things, we're not annoyed or surprised. They are children. They are not capable of adulthood yet.

In the denial phase, we rationalize away women's childish behaviour, making excuses for them in order to preserve our delusion that women are peers we can rely on.

In the anger phase, we are awakened to women's childish behaviour, but it angers us because of the gap between the actual behaviour and our expectations. The anger ends when our expectations realign to women's actual patterns of behaviour.

The cause of the anger phase is the lingering belief that women are adults. Now, we learn to be more attractive by treating women like children. For example, the basic principle of all shit-test handling techniques is "don't take anything they say seriously". That's treating someone like a child.

But, like a religion taught to us in childhood, expectations and beliefs we held for that many years will linger, and we will slide back to thinking of women as adults. We make the mistake of arguing with them, instead of laughing at whatever ridiculous bullshit they say, and patting them on the head. We make the mistake of listening to what they say instead of watching what they do. We make the mistake of expecting them to handle their own shit instead of managing them and telling them exactly what we expect. We make the mistake of bargaining with them instead of instructing them. We expect them to not let themselves get fat, instead of controlling what they eat. We expect them to make good decisions, instead of simply telling them what to do.

The reason we must repeat simple lessons to ourselves over and over again is that it takes a long time to transition from "treat her like a child" as a tactic, to actually fully realizing and believing that she, and all women, are really children in adult bodies. It's slow, and difficult, but this is the step you must take before women stop being a source of pain in your life, and start being a source of happiness.

Many men in the anger phase linger there because of the dream that someday, they will find that unicorn, that one special woman who actually takes responsibility for her actions, can be an equal partner, can both take and provide emotional support, doesn't have to be managed, etc. But there is no such woman. (You know who actually can have equal relationships like that? Faggots, that's who. And if you're not a faggot, you wouldn't like it much. It would be like dating a dude in drag.)

Men who are looking for an "adult" woman are axiomatically in the anger phase, because if they were in denial, they would think all women were, and if they had passed anger, they would be aware that no such woman exists.

And by doing so, they make themselves angrier, because the more a woman is able to present the appearance of an adult, the more she is simply a child who expects to be treated like one.

The desirable woman is not a woman who acts adult, she is the woman who is aware and accepting of her own childish nature. Such a woman can submit to a man without shame, and provide things to a relationship that no adult can.

- Tirelessly remind yourself that women are children.
- When a woman makes you angry, look for the place where you made the mistake of thinking of her as an adult.
- Stop looking for adult women. They don't exist, and you wouldn't want one if they did.

A condition termed "Small Dog Syndrome" is a common malady I encounter in training dogs. It is frequently presented in small breed dogs and the general symptoms are problems with dog house training, aggression, separation anxiety, phobic reactions and diffused stress reactions.

The reason this is seen so frequently in small dogs is normally the fault of the owners. Accordingly, remedy for this Syndrome is only possible by owner education and owner behavior modification.

This may seem surprising since many people view the task of a dog trainer as one of strictly "fixing" the dog. However, the source of this problem is the owner and rehabilitation is impossible without the owner acknowledging and discarding bad owner behaviors.

The owner must first recognize that a dog is a dog, and All Dogs Are Like That. Because a dog weighs under ten pounds does not change the fundamental fact that it is still a dog. Consequently, just like you would not allow a 150 pound Rottweiler to jump up on you, one should not allow a small breed dog to jump and paw humans. To take the point further, if a 150 pound Rottweiler were to lunge and bark uncontrollably at every animal and human that they encountered on a walk, it is likely the owner would be reported to law enforcement. Yet it is a frequent sight in every neighborhood to encounter small breed dogs that lunge and bark like little demons until their owners scoop them up into their arms like naughty children. This strategy may keep the small dog from biting, but it is a short sighted strategy that actually worsens the problem.

Just like any other canine, small breed dogs need training, discipline and exercise. The dog must be taught to walk at a heel, sit, down and stay on command. Yet the major problem owners have is to recognize that all dogs need to work to earn food, praise and treats. It has been my experience that small breed dogs are often lavished with affection, food and treats for no other reason except that they are small and cute. Dogs do not understand this. In fact it makes them mentally ill. They interpret this cascade of affection without reason as submissive puppy-like behavior from their owners. In turn, they attempt to dominate and control their puppy/owners which can lead to aggression, separation anxiety and a host of neurotic behaviors. This is truly an instance where the phrase "killing with kindness" rings true.

There is no doubt in my mind that owners who smother their dogs with affection and fail to discipline their inappropriate behavior do very much love their dogs. However, I am also of the opinion that it is the responsible dog owner's duty to respect that their dogs are indeed a different species with different needs. Truly loving your dog entails a responsibility to cast aside your misconceptions. Your dog is not a little four legged human and does not want to be human. Your dog, no matter how small or cute, wants to be a dog.

1. If your dog sleeps in the bed with you, stop it. Now.
2. Teach your dog to walk at proper heel. Do not carry your dog. His paws are for walking.
3. Nothing in life is free. Have your dog work for food, rewards and especially affection.
4. Do not tolerate bad dog behavior because your dog is small. Consistently enforce all your commands.

Finally, always remember that if you treat your dog like a human, they will treat you like a dog.

23

UPVOTES

The Principle of "Why?"

21 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Even OP thought that this:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/33cj3s/i_know_this_idiocy_is_common_place_and_this_is/ was just a rant post, but as is often the case, the little annoying things in life, if examined carefully, can provide us with greater understanding.

If you read the link (or even just skim it), you will see the typical pattern of a woman's selfish behaviour being excused or explained away.

What's interesting is how the quoted poster does so.

You see, people always ask "why" about behaviours they wish to excuse, in a moral sense. If a cause can be found, or even, in this case, assumed to exist, then the the behaviour isn't "vile" it's merely "cause and effect". Often people will go through multiple layers of "why" until they reach the behaviour or person they wish to morally condemn, at which point they abruptly stop.

Thus you can always tell where someone's sympathies lie, simply by watching which explanations they look for.

So how to be objective? Simple... don't stop asking "why?". This is why TRP as an intellectual tradition is explicitly amoral. Because when moral evaluations start, understanding stops.

Why do women blow up their marriages and abandon their children to do drugs and screw random dudes?

Whatever you think of the behaviour, there is a reason. In this case, it is probably lack of a strong father figure early in life, who would have taught her to distinguish pleasure from happiness. Why was has absent? Because of the changing nature of marriage, skyrocketing divorce rates, and the emasculation of men who remain married. Why that? Feminism invading the cultural zeitgeist? Why feminism?

And so on.

1. Watch when people stop asking why, and you will know the conclusion they want to reach.
2. Watch when you stop asking why... and make yourself continue.

You know you need to lift. You know you need to lift heavy. You may even know that steroids are the smart choice.

But I'll bet some of ya'll still look like fat slugs. Strong fat slugs, maybe, but fat slugs nonetheless.

Why?

Because of some of the astonishing misinformation I see in the comments every time we talk about diet.

Now, most of you have heard how not to be fat:

- Avoid sugar
- Reduce starch
- Eat fat.
- Eat protein.
- Eat fiber.
- Eat often.

... but a lot of you don't believe it, or don't do it, or don't do it enough. In my experience, people don't usually follow instructions they don't understand the purpose of. So we are going to talk about why. Why these instructions work. And what it is that actually makes you fat.

The thing that makes you fat is the same thing that makes your cells fat. This should not surprise you; you are made of cells. Cells become fat when more fat moves into cells than out of them. This also should not surprise you if you think about it for a few seconds. But what moves fat into cells?

It's called "Insulin". You've probably heard of it.

Insulin (from the Latin, insula meaning island) is a peptide hormone produced by beta cells in the pancreas. It regulates the metabolism of carbohydrates and fats by promoting the absorption of glucose from the blood to skeletal muscles and fat tissue and by causing fat to be stored rather than used for energy.

You see, most fats you eat are in the form of "triglycerides". That's three fatty acids joined together at one end by glycerol. This whole structure is too big to pass through cell walls. It has to be broken down into fatty acids, which can pass through the cell wall, and reassembled within the cell. To retrieve fat from cells, this process must be performed in reverse.

It is insulin in the blood which triggers the process of breaking triglycerides in the bloodstream. It plays a similar role in glucose (sugar) uptake.

Now, it should be obvious that insulin is a vital hormone that plays an important and necessary role. You need to store fat and sugar. But you become a fat fuck when you store too much. This is the real reason why you are fat. Not too much food. Too much insulin. Do you seriously think that billions of years of evolution produced a species that becomes fat and unhealthy every time there is an abundance of food? That food scarcity was so universal, so uniform, so constant, that we have no biological mechanism for stopping ourselves from eating too much?

Of course we do.

We do not get fat because we eat too much. Instead, we eat too much because we are getting fat. Specifically, when we have insulin levels that are way too high, our body moves huge amounts of fat and sugar into cells. Now we have low levels of triglycerides and glucose in the blood. So we become ravenously hungry. That's why fat people eat like greedy pigs. Not because they have weak "willpower", but because their brainstem is convinced they are starving.

So now that we understand all that, where are these hyperelevated insulin levels coming from?

Insulin levels rise in response to elevated blood sugar. The more sugar, and the faster it hits your bloodstream, the more insulin, and the faster it spikes upwards. And the more often this happens, the more insulin levels become chronically elevated. (That's bad, in case you couldn't guess.) And the more you start to get something called "insulin insensitivity". And the next step after that is Type II diabetes.

So now that we understand that, where is are all these rapid spikes in blood sugar coming from?

Does anyone want to take a guess?

Starch is made of sugar. Sugar is also made of sugar. The more processed and refined it is, the quicker and easier it is to digest, and the quicker it hits your bloodstream... all in one big lump. Now your insulin goes through the roof, and your body starts busily working on turning you into a hamplanet.

So there it is. A calorie is not just a calorie. That is the biggest lie ever told about food. Instead, substances you into your body are different substances, and they do different things.

- Avoid sugar (it hits your bloodstream fast, and spikes your insulin)
- Reduce starch (it turns into sugar... and the more refined it is, the more quickly it does)
- Eat fat (fat calories don't spike insulin)
- Eat protein (muscle is made of meat. Muscle consumes stored fat. Muscle increases insulin sensitivity. Muscle is good. Strong people die less.)
- Eat fiber (Fiber slows the digestion of whatever you ate with it. It also does many, many other things for you, all of them good. Most of your carbs should come from vegetables.)
- Eat often (smaller more frequent meals stabilize insulin levels).

It's not so funny anymore, is it?

We have talked about the validity and importance of anger.

When I first opined that the stages of red pill digestion were similar to the stages of grieving, I didn't think it likely that this would be twisted into another tool to dismiss male anger. Yet I have seen precisely this happen, not only in PPD ("Oh, those guys are just in the anger phase, we wash our hands of them"), but even here ("get over the anger phase, bro, get out there, and start approaching").

Nothing could have been further from my intent. So we need to talk some more about anger.

We have a concept in engineering called Technical Debt. It works like this: When you do something quick and dirty (or don't do it at all) on a technical project, the time you saved has been borrowed from the future, and will need to be repaid, with interest.

Well, men who take the red pill are in Anger Debt.

Anger is not only healthy, but vitally necessary for a properly functioning male human being. If you never get angry, you are mentally ill.

And mentally ill is just what Stage One (Denial Phase) men are. They fail to become angry at treatment that would, and should, anger them... because they have been led to believe that it is normal, and natural, and that any discontent they feel at it is their own fault for all various forms of ThoughtCrime that feminists and their fellow leftoids are all too fond of exhaustively listing. Men buy into this for the same reason that abused children usually believe it's their fault mommy hits them; This is actually a comforting belief, because if mommy hits them because they deserve to be hit, then all they have to do be better. If they were to realize that mommy is a psycho, then they would have no hope to cling to.

Stage One men are abuse victims who believe they deserve abuse, and trying to appease their abusers in order to make it stop. From Tiger Woods apologizing for being attacked with a golf club by his abuser, to Joss Whedon endlessly groveling about how feminist he is even as feminists spew vitriol at him for not toeing the line enough, to the president of the United States using the Father's Day address as a bully pulpit to tell men that they need to sacrifice more and expect less, Stage One men are not only accumulating anger debt, they are creating it in others as well.

Stage Two, the much-referenced Anger Stage, begins when a man says to himself "Hey, I don't deserve this. I am a person, and pursuing the things I need and desire is natural and healthy behaviour for me.". At that moment, he begins to pay down his anger debt. A healthy person would become angry at all the ways he has been cheated of opportunities, treated as a scapegoat, and held in contempt over the years. So he cannot be a healthy person until he experiences all the anger he has put off.

The purpose of anger is to motivate change. A man who cannot get angry accepts that which should not be accepted, endures that which should not be endured. He allows his time, money, love, energy, and health to be burned for the benefit of others who show him no gratitude.

A man must pay down this anger debt in order to motivate changes in his life. Yes, he needs, eventually, to be able to laugh and say "Yeah, that's women for you, can't expect 'em to be adults", and use amused mastery to be attractive to them. But if he is never angry at them, he cannot correct their bad behaviour, and they will behave, not just like children, but like spoiled, bratty children.

- AWALT is not an excuse for letting women behave badly.
- Amused mastery and stoicism are not an excuse for letting people piss on your neck and tell you it's raining.
- Anger drives change. No anger, no change. If you haven't spent enough time in Stage Two, go back and pay the rest of that debt.

Now that we know how not to be fat slugs, we can address our next problem: How do we build muscle? Losing fat, after all, is not enough.

We already have the information we need. We know about insulin. We know about leptin. We know about protein. We know about triglycerides and fatty acids. We know that trying to predict weight gain by caloric intake is like trying to guess the size of a building by reading the electric bill.

We just need to put the knowledge together. So, what is necessary for muscle to grow?

Well, why hasn't it already grown? Why don't our bodies just pack on as much muscle as we have the protein to build?

Because muscle is expensive. Not only to build, not only to use, but to maintain. Even sleeping, giant ripped dudes burn a lot of calories. Your body is evolved to budget smartly. Under primitive conditions, when scarcity was not universal, but could occur at any time, there was a serious tradeoff between being strong, and wasting precious resources.

If muscle is a large expense, your frugal body is only willing to incur that expense when the purchase is:

- Affordable.
- Necessary.
- Available.

In other words, you need:

- Abundant calories.
- Progressive overload.
- Protein and testosterone.

Let's break that down.

- You must eat a lot of calories. Your system must be convinced that it not only can support the muscle, but is likely to be able to do so in the future. Frugal, smart people don't have one good month in sales, then go out and buy a yacht. They have to be convinced they can afford it in the future. That means lots of calories. Consistently over time.
- You must overload. Lift heavy things. If you don't how to do this, there are plenty of resources out there. But "exercise" isn't enough. Jogging is "exercise". Unless your muscles are unequal to the strain you put on them, they will not need to grow to become equal to it.
- You must have not only the raw material to build muscle with, but also the machinery to produce muscle. This means not only lots of ~~protein~~ meat, but also ~~healthy~~ elevated levels of testosterone or even more effective testosterone analogues. Needles don't really hurt that much, you know.

Calories, overload, meat, testosterone. If you are not getting stronger, one of those four things is the bottleneck.

And if you don't know which one it is, it's probably calories or protein.

One of the most common traps to fall into when trying to gain, especially for those of you who tend to be skinny fucks rather than fat fucks, is to assume you are eating enough when you aren't. Anyone knows when they are not lifting.

"But I eat a lot." Yeah, and are you gaining? Eat more.

"I eat whenever I am hungry".

And there's your problem. Hunger is not your guide. Most men think that they will become hungry if they are building muscle, so they should lift, wait to become ravenous, and eat until they are satisfied. They are wrong. All your frugal body wants to do is put back what was damaged. If you want to become stronger, the calories must already be there.

Think about this for a moment. Hunger is what you feel when gastrointestinal cells release ghrelin in response to elevated glucagon levels, in response to low blood glucose. What lowers blood glucose? Consumption by cells, of course, but too consume glucose, a cell must exist. It can't eat if your body hasn't built it yet.

Which means you must feed the body you want, not the body you have. If you are already lifting heavy, you must convince your system that calories are readily available. Then, and only then, will it splurge on big-ticket items like large muscles.

A modality is the way or mode in which something exists or is done. You might often see it used with reference to diagnostic modality, which is the way in which a disease or illness is diagnosed by a doctor.

Whenever someone talks about a way of doing something, or even, say, creates a subreddit to discuss ways to do a certain thing, sooner or later someone is going to come along and say

"Yes, we can do it that way, but should we?"

The word "should" is a slippery one. It really has two meanings.

1. "This is a moral imperative." (You "should" not have sex with someone else's wife.)
2. "This is the most effective way to achieve X.", where everyone agrees that X is a desirable end. (You "should" not run with scissors.)

The problem with the first one is that it's based on fundamentally flawed premise... that an absolute morality exists which can be discovered. That, of course, is bullshit. You cannot get "ought" from "is", never could, never will.

Does this mean that moral codes are fake, and we can do whatever we want? Well, we can, but morals are useful because they exist in the second sense. Moral codes are transactional, not absolute. In other words, they are a piece of social technology that cultures come up with for the purpose of achieving their ends, a social contract that we indoctrinate people into so that they can get along and work together, and thus achieve more than they could in an atmosphere of strife.

This means that an effective man does not have one code of moral behaviour. He has different types of moral behaviour, depending on who he is dealing with, what level of trust he has with them, and what level of reciprocity he can expect from them. The more internal trust a group or culture has, the more elaborate its moral code can be. Moral codes are tools, pieces of social technology, and different tools are appropriate for different tasks.

Losing sight of this is the root of the blue pill, and of the downfall of both civilizations and individual men. When a man can be suckered into acting against his self-interest and in the interest of others who will not do the same for him, he allows himself to be taken advantage of. This is Phase One, "Denial", when a man is unhappy with his lot in life, but refuses to act to change it, because "that would be wrong".

The moment of awakening (beginning of Phase Two) is the moment when a man realizes that the notions of right and wrong which he was taught were not absolutes. They were not even a social contract. They were a slave collar to extract the maximum of labour from him with the minimum of reward. The blue pill is the weaponization of morality. This is why there is a big difference between dispensing blue pills and swallowing them. One is using weaponized morality against others. The other is allowing weaponized morality to be used against you.

Thus, the question of whether you "should" sleep with someone's wife has two answers:

- The Blue answer ("no, it's wrong" or "yes, he doesn't own her")
- The Red answer ("what is he to me? Do we have trust? Is there a social contract? Would he extend me the same courtesy? Does he have my back? Is this my friend, or a stranger?")

The difference between RP and BP is not the difference between "keep the code" and "violate the code", but between "the code is absolute" and "the code is situational".

"I against my brother, my brothers and I against my cousins, then my cousins and I against the stranger."

Chapter 17: In which PPD wets the bed, then triumphantly declares itself a sailor.

25 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've often maintained that PPD is an exercise in futility, but I sometimes hang out there for rhetorical practice, and most of all, for the lulz.

Recently, PPD, delivered, in spades.

For those who hadn't heard, the sequence went like this:

1. The rather eloquent and always entertaining MRA voice, GirlWritesWhat, shows up in PPD, and fails to denounce us as a bunch of awful misogynists. Quite the opposite, in fact.
2. The also eloquent Undead_Keyboard (is this guy on the fast track to EC-dom when he's been here a little longer? Definitely a pen to watch, folks) writes the event up in TRP, and Karen (GWW) shows up here, too.
3. Somehow, we horrible misogynists fail to denounce her for the awful crime of being born with a vagina.
4. In fact, she's met with an outpouring of love and appreciation... at which point the hilarity begins.

Observe, class, the action in this footage, shot in the wild. The Hamster is attempting to engage and defeat its natural enemy, ~~reality common sense~~ TRP. But the venue has gone off-message and refuses to serve up examples of "misogyny" as ammunition. Behold the ingenuity of the the wild Hamster as it quickly changes tactics and fires of accusations of not being misogynist enough.

That's right, folks, if you express anger at a woman, the Hamster will accuse you of being misogynist. If you express love for a woman, the Hamster will accuse you of being unfaithful to "your" principles (that is, the principles the Hamster has just got done angrily accusing you of having, and being a bad person for having).

What's my point, here?

Haters gonna hate.

Do not let yourself be fooled into thinking that you are dealing with honest, well-intentioned folk who simply disagree, or don't understand. No, these people are not straight shooters.

Do not debate with them, except to for your own entertainment. A debate is a process of structured discussion between two people who honour certain basic principles. TRP haters do not honour the principles of debate. They are not honest. They do not say what they mean and mean what they say. They do not care about what is true.

They do not even disagree with you, because to agree or disagree, they would have to care about truth. No, their reaction to you is that your words are painful for them to hear, and so, truth or not, they must be silenced.

This is why, like the Bush administration in Iraq, they will change mission statements on a dime. Because the mission of the mission statement isn't to state the mission, it's to rationalize the real mission.

So do not debate them, because they do not care about truth. Truth is a weapon against mistaken or false ideas. But these people have no ideas at all, so truth doesn't work against them. They don't care if they are wrong. The weapon against haters is laughter.

This works for blue pillers. It works for shit tests. It works for people who are "just asking questions". It works for concern trolls, and disingenuous politicians, and feminists.

Any time you detect a hidden agenda, stop debating and starting mocking. Because debate only happens between honest men.

186

UPVOTES

On the Folly of Mistaking a Throne for an Army.

25 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I thought I was done talking about how Reddit wants to "share its values with the world". After all, I'm not all that broken up about the idea of finding a new place to talk. Internet's a big place, and so long as there's a corner of it I can scribble on, scribble I will. Even if I must build that corner myself. (I'm a software engineer, I can do that.)

But BluePillars, leftoids, feminists, SJWs, multiples with headmates, toasterkin, and Ellen Pao can all be useful, in a way, as sort of a reverse compass. Look in the opposite direction they are marching, and you just might find some nuggets of truth glinting from the roadside bushes.

There are many people who want to "share their values" with you. To become a "council of elders" and provide you with "direction". To "steer the discourse" into something "productive". What all of this means is that they wish to control you. They call it leadership, but that's because they don't understand what leadership is.

Because such people have status, or a position, or a well-known name, or a corner office, or what have you, they imagine that they get to decide what happens next. This is the control I speak of.

They have forgotten the 5th Law of Power, and the 18th.

All these things they have are perks of power, symptoms of power, not power itself. Power itself comes from skills and capabilities, and, on a broader scale, the support of others who have skills and capabilities of their own.

Without an army, a throne is just a chair.

Those who hunger for the return of kings (usually because they imagine themselves in the big chair), usually do not understand what a king is. A king who sits on a throne is merely a symbol of the real king who came before him; he is obeyed out of habit, and will be destroyed by the first serious challenger. A king who can seize a throne is a man who leads an army; that is, a man who has supporters who will back his play.

With an army, a throne is yours from the moment you reach out to take it.

You need not fear those with thrones and no armies. They can make pronouncements and write laws, but who will enforce them? They can kick you off a website, but what is a website? It is a small humming box in an air-conditioned closet, that's what. People who prize position and status, and seek to wield power through them, are dressing themselves in fancy costumes and issuing "Royal Edicts", but they have forgotten that kings don't wear silk and jewels and fur. They wear chainmail with someone else's blood on it.

So where do armies come from? From each man's decision to follow, and nothing else. You cannot force an army to follow you, because... what would you force it with? It is the force you seek to wield. You must instead make each man think that following you is a good idea that will work out well for them.

This is why I say that leaders do not ask permission to lead. They do not make a play to be appointed to the big chair. They do not announce their candidacy for Chief High Panjandrum of Lower Tuli.

They simply pick a direction, march in it, and inspire others to follow. They crave friends, not titles.

TRP is a lesson in this. In a sea of hatred, a handful of mods and other speakers have something going. Sure, they have position, they can ban people, but if a great number didn't agree they liked it here, they could simply vote with their feet, and all the mods would have left would be the power to ban people from a ghost town. The strength here isn't master passwords and website control tools. It's "over 100,000 people think this is good idea".

This is free market leadership. Strong men, men worth leading, will only follow someone who's going where they want to go. No one can control you if you have the power to walk away. An "alpha" isn't necessarily the man who fucks all the women. That's just a perk. An "alpha" is the one who leads the men. And to do this he must inspire them.

Never follow anyone who doesn't inspire you. And remember that you can have power anywhere if you learn to be the man who inspires others.

36

UPVOTES

What is a man's legitimate and effective defense against a mattress carrier?

25 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

Since crazy people do not carry signs or have large glowing runes on their foreheads, any man who is sexually active has some, non-negligible percentage chance that some time in his life he will have sex with a full-blown mattress carrier.

If, as many of you have said, we not to distrust women and take elaborate precautions (because that reveals a negative expectation of women and is therefore "misogynistic"), and if, as many of you have said, the legal system and the press should not examine a "victim"'s behaviour or check their story (because that is "victim blaming" and therefore "misogynistic"), and we are not to treat "date rape" or "acquaintance rape" less seriously, either at trial or at sentencing, than "stranger rape" (because that is "trivializing rape" and therefore "misogynistic"), please describe how men are to be protected from mattress carriers.

Note that the following suggestions:

- Celibacy
- Never disappointing a woman ever.
- Magically acquiring the infallible power to detect psychopaths
- Accepting status as "collateral damage" with a smile.

... will be greeted by the laughter they richly deserve.

Any notions?

What "vision" means to a leader of men.

26 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Not long ago, /u/Fred_Flintstone gave us this:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-S1ZfjZmjgA>

... treating as a text on how to deal with a shit test. This was a fairly good read, but I believe that there is more value to be had here.

Because when we speak of leadership in terms of having a plan or direction which others are inspired to follow, we introduce the concept of vision.

But what is vision, apart from a vague and really cliched way to praise some boring congressional candidate from a flyover state? Vision is the ability to see. When a man has vision, he sees things. When he has extraordinary vision, he sees things further away, in space or time, than others do.

We can see this at work if we mentally examine the possibility that perhaps in this video, Putin is actually answering the reporter's question.

It seems like a nonsequitur, and one with a dick joke, at that, but what's really going on? Let's run it through our subtext translator.

Reporter: {In taking military action against violent muslim extremists in Chechnya, you are going to get some poor innocent people hurt.}

Vlad: {Do you wish to become a muslim? Because those are your two options, dude.}

The reporter sees the world in terms of individuals. Violent muslim terrorists who must regrettably be stopped, with minimum force, and nice innocent muslims standing right next to them. Putin sees the world in terms of cultural, economic, and geopolitical forces. Islam is on the rise, and these terrorists are not lone criminals, they are the claws and teeth of a much larger beast, one that acts not through plans and intent, but aggregate actions of populations.

Pull the claws and blunt the teeth, or your daughters will be wearing burkas.

Religions and cultures are ideas at war for control of the human populations. Human populations, united by cultures, are in a slow-motion war against each other to spread and control territory and resources. The threat Putin is addressing is not some bad guys blowing up a church. It's the slow spread of a foreign and backwards culture that doesn't care much for his people, or their values.

It's so cliched as to be almost meaningless to say that leaders must see the big picture, but to shape the future, a man must understand the forces that make it the way it is... whether that is the future of nations and cultures, or of that man's own life.

We see an example of this lack of vision in men who get married. They know the divorce rate is 51%. They know about the cultural forces leading up to this. But they are only capable of seeing their lives in terms of the individuals around them. Their snowflake would never do that to them. They are unable to imagine how their lives are shaped by larger, aggregate forces of cultural trends, ideas, demographics, and other emergent, aggregate forces.

Without this kind of vision, we do stupid things because we are driving with the headlights off.

This is why TRP haters see us as "excessively paranoid" or "misogynist", "over-generalizing" or what have you. Because where they see individual people, and every circumstance being different and unclassifiable, we see interactions between people as being affected and even controlled by larger forces within their society, the nature of which we discuss and pick apart.

Vision is the act of broadening the scope of one's perspective to understand what is really going on.

We have already how marriage has lost its status as an enforceable contract.

But in addition to being a partnership, marriage also served as a sexual outlet, a means not only of channeling and controlling the sexual urge into safe and productive expressions, but also of guaranteeing release for a near-irresistible biological drive. This, too, has been abolished.

Marriage, at its core, was not only a contract, but an emotional and sexual relationship. It provided certain guarantees to men in exchange for the sacrifices made to, and by, entering into it.

- It guaranteed a safe and reliable outlet for the sexual appetite.
- It provided a defense against cuckoldry and paternity fraud.
- It provided a promise of sexual and emotional prioritization in a woman's life.

The first is easy to understand. Married men didn't have "dry spells". While passionate sex could decay into duty sex if the man failed to remain attractive, the level of respect (and thus attraction) commanded by a competent and productive protector and provider was not insignificant, and the wife was held at least partially responsible for her husband contentment.

This is of course no longer the case. While charges of "marital rape" are fortunately rare, the redefinition of rape to "any sexual encounter not desired by, and controlled by, the female" has made this absurd shibboleth seem to the more crazy among as a thing that can actually exist. What this is symptomatic of is the widespread attitude that, marriage being about desire rather than duty, a woman has no responsibility whatsoever to have sex with her husband, much less to make that sex satisfying and fulfilling to him. Just look in /r/deadbedrooms. Once, any of these situations would have been a breach of the marital contract. Now, people complain of it to strangers on a public forum, because wifey is under no obligation to listen.

The second is also a simple idea. While female fidelity was much harder to confirm in the age before the paternity test, the invention of such has merely shown us how real the threat is. It is no coincidence that France has banned them. Expect more first world nations to follow suit. While an adulterous woman can still be divorced if a man wishes, no-fault divorce has ensured that this will be no punishment or deterrent at all... simply a guarantee that his wealth and children will be divided between them by strangers with guns.

It is the third point that requires some explanation.

What does it mean to be an emotional and sexual priority for a woman? It can be hard to understand for many women, but sex is what makes men feel loved; not the only thing, perhaps, but the thing without which nothing else works. This is why female virginity at marriage is and was a priority for men whenever and wherever it could be had. A man who knows he is only man she has ever shared sexual passion with... is a man who knows he is the top priority in her life. Women now, who cannot deliver virginity, make rationalizations like "How can I be an expert at touching your penis if it's the first one?" But sexual pleasure is predicated on animal passion, not clinical skill. The primary organ of sexual excitement lies between the ears.

But virginity is not to be found today. In fact, it is widely accepted that the "requirement" of virginity at marriage was complete unreasonable, and ridiculous and tyrannical, and totalitarian religious practices were required to enforce it, on pain of death or shunning. Is this the case? Was history one long vignette of a boot stomping on a human face, as feminists would have us believe?

Well, if a feminist tells you a drought is coming, better buy a canoe. No, here's the truth of it.

Ever wonder why the early parts of the bible are silent on the subject of fornication? Adultery is strictly forbidden, but not a word is spoken about sex between unmarried people. Why? For a long time in prechristian jewish culture, premarital sex wasn't forbidden, it was impossible. Sex was marriage. A man who took a woman was responsible for her, and their children. That's what marriage was. The ceremony was a formality. Thus, you couldn't have premarital sex, only marital sex, and adultery. That's why the ten commandments forbid the latter but not the former. It wasn't a thing.

As the nomadic, herder jews settled down and began farming, marriage as a formal relationship grew into a thing in its own right. That's the era when the bible starts to talk about "fornication", the act of having sex without marrying. This became more of a thing as polygyny fell out of fashion, creating the idea that a man couldn't marry some women he'd had sexual relations with, because he had previously married another one.

The next change to was twofold; the ongoing development of industrial technology, and the "equality" meme.

Industrial development shifted economies away from physical labour and towards mental and social tasks as trades for income. As this happened, more and more education was required before youngsters could ascend to economic adulthood. This began to delay the age of marriage. When a girl can reasonably be expected to be married at 16 to 18 years of age, society can reasonably expect her to keep her legs shut until then. If she's going to be married at 21, it's a riskier proposition. At 25, forget about it. At 28, absurd. And when young people cannot afford a home or to support children, they cannot afford to get married.

The final blow was the equalist meme. The notion that women must have power and authority within the family at least equal to that of men, not merely as a safeguard against exploitation or unhappiness, but because anything else was held to be exploitation in and of itself.

Now it was no longer normal and acceptable to a young woman (16 to 18) to marry a man who had lived long enough to establish his career (28 to 40s) and be able to afford a home, a wife and a child.

Industrial development forced men to wait longer and longer to get married. Equalism forced women to wait longer and longer as well.

Thus the task of "saving it for marriage" developed from automatic to easy to difficult to unrealistically absurd.

The process of redefining marriage has been gradual, and not simply a matter female selfishness expressed as feminism, but also economic and technological change, allowed to reshape the family as it would, without an eye to male instincts and needs.

Now the juice simply isn't worth the squeeze. I suspect the divorce rate will actually even begin to go down, sooner or later, simply because only the sappiest and most controllable of men will get married. And without stable, loving, two-parent families, each generation is successively more fucked.

We all secretly know that banging a succession of sluts is second prize. But no one gets first prize anymore. There is no marriage to a worthy woman anymore, because she cannot be a worthy woman in a culture that railroads her in the opposite direction.

Do not hunt unicorns. Do not put a ring on it. Give women only the intimacy they earn. Do not bargain with them, do not make deals with them, give them no promises, enforceable or not. Always be able to walk away. That is your power. Do not give it away.

560

UPVOTES

Men, even TRP men, love women very much.

12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We don't talk about it because we live in a time and place that mistakes it for weakness. We don't even talk about it here because it's an instinct we often find ourselves having to suppress for our own good. But when /u/girlwriteswhat pointed out that if we didn't love women, there would be no anger phase, she absolutely right.

You are hardwired to be sympathetic to, and protective of women. Evolutionarily, that's what you are for. Keep the eggs safe. Ensure the next generation.

This is why there is an anger phase. This is why men have to come here and read motivational crap about not overvaluing bitches. Because it's easy to fall into that pattern.

You're all here, so you all know why you need to control it. We live in a culture that browbeats men into obeying women and fearing them, and this has been so successful that women now cannot tell the difference between healthy love, and spineless cowardice. We all know we have to clamp down on that instinct, and reserve that affection for the few women who are truly worthy of it, and have proven themselves so by earning it from us.

Once, our healthy instinct to protect was once in harmony with women's healthy instinct to respect men and obey male leadership. Why do you think feminists have to froth at the mouth so much about not being led or dominated by a man, ever? Because they are secretly tempted just like any sane woman, that's why.

Entire books could be written about why some women suddenly decided to wage war on their feminine instincts, and about why other women followed them, unawares, into that psychological desert. But regardless of why, that's where we are now, and we know we have to control the desire to see them smile.

The kind of love we need now is what used to be called "tough love"; not the love of a parent for a healthy, happy, well-adjusted child, but the love of a parent for the child whose heroin addiction is destroying the family.

"I cannot stop you from destroying yourself, but I will not allow you to take me or this family down with you. Next time you're in jail, use your phone to call someone else. Because I am done rescuing you."

Hide the protective instinct from women if you must, or admit it's there if you think you can do amused mastery well enough, but never deny its existence to yourself. Self-deception is not what we do here. This is why the anger phase is important. Pass through it and move on, but hold the memory of that anger, and of why you were angry, with you. Remember it when you need it to stiffen your spine.

And don't let your LTR turn you into a bitch.

Men are evolved for hardship. Without enemies to fight, wild animals to hunt, or frontiers to explore, we wash up upon adulthood feeling lost, living pieces of our lives through vicarious films, books, computer games depicting adventures we will never get to have.

And that means all of us. These adventures are hardships undertaken out of necessity. For the sake of survival, or advancement, or duty. They are not fun. They are not pleasant to have. They are harrowing experiences we are glad of afterwards, because they make of us what we would not otherwise have been.

Richard Branson skydiving out of a hot air balloon onto his private submarine that's launching a rocket isn't having an adventure. He's playing with toys, and he is in no way making himself more of a man than I am when I get scuba certified, or go skydiving. Our grandfathers didn't fight WWII because they wanted to be cool. They did it because they had to. And that was the important part.

We have automated ourselves a cozy womb to live in, and we are banging on the walls in frustration.

But if we have failed to become the men we could have been, in a world that might just no longer need warriors, hunters, and explorers, how much more profound is women's failure to become women, in a world that still needs nurturers?

Select your average woman. Not a horrible tumblr SJW harridan, not a legbearded feminist hambeast, but just the average modern specimen of womanhood. What has she done, what can she do, that is useful to anyone other than herself?

- She is not fit, strong, and healthy.
- She is not beautiful.
- She is not loyal.
- She does not uplift the spirits of those around her.
- She has no useful productive skills, other than "getting paid for doing something or other in an office".
- She can't cook.
- She can't manage a household.
- She waits until the least healthy possible time to have children.
- When they are born, she feeds them from a plastic bottle instead of her breast.
- If they are male, she has a piece of their cock sliced off with no anesthesia, instead of fighting to protect them like any decent mother would.
- When they are older, she feeds them food made in a factory and packaged in bags and boxes, instead of fresh vegetables, fruit, meat, and cheese.
- She gives them carbonated sugar water to drink, and "treats" made from corn syrup.
- Instead of devoting her time to loving them, she puts them in the care of a stranger so she can go back to doing things in an office.
- When they are older, she sends them to public school where they learn to be good, obedient, factory workers and buyers of consumer junk, rather than strong, independent, self-reliant adults.
- Odds are good she deprives them of their father, if they ever had a chance to know their father at all.

It is arguable that our society no longer needs warriors, hunters, explorers, men of adventure. If so, perhaps it is our lot to find some way to survive and make accommodation with being none of those things.

But our world has not stopped, and as long as there is a human race, will never stop, needing strong, healthy, happy children, a next generation that is mentally stable, physically sound, who can create their _____ society's future without laziness or crippling fear.

This is women's ONE JOB. And they have failed for generations.

Men are not men because women are not women. And women are not women because men are not men. The Greatest Generation gave birth to the worst, and together they pulled apart the very thing upon which all societies are grounded.

The family.

Selfish women demanded its destruction for the sake of poisonous ideals, and selfish men gave them what they wanted for the sake of looking like nice guys and maybe getting some of that "free love". It is the family which creates each future generation, which passes on the practices and values which make people healthy, happy, and whole, and allow them to create their own family, their own next generation.

So what, indeed, will you tell your grandchildren?

Nothing. You won't have any. We are not the heroes who are going to save society. We are rats deserting a sinking ship. It is vain and foolish and prideful and disingenuous to pretend that just by lifting enough black iron plates, injecting enough trenbolone, earning enough money, or inspiring enough vaginal moisture we can "save" society. We do not control society. It will not listen to us, and I, for one, will not bend the knee and beg for its attention. My missions will be my own, in the service of myself and those few people who earn a place in my tribe with their proven loyalty.

Adventures are heroics and heroics are self-sacrifices, and thankless self-sacrifice is the province of the slave, not the hero. Someone else can have the grandchildren and work out what to tell them.

474

UPVOTES

Innocence and Toughness

20 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

A poor confused young thing asked me the other day "So oral sex is still sex?".

Yes, dear, all that head you gave increased your partner count. And it sucks for you that no one told you that. That no one ever bothered to explain just what the realities of men's desires are, because they were all too busy trying to change those desires.

So it's time to tackle, once and for all, the question... what do men want? Why do men prefer virgins to sluts? And why do women prefer players to virgins?

Well, today, we're going to explain this point. Not prove it, but explain it. Let's look, not at some real pictures, but at some drawn stereotypes.

Here are two drawings of young, innocent looking people.

A girl.

And a boy.

Here are two drawings of old, tough, grizzled looking people.

A woman.

And a man.

You can already see. The pictures are carefully selected for similar style and representation. But notice how in the girl in the first set is much more appealing than the woman in the second set, while, if you are a woman, the man in the second set is more appealing than the boy in the first set. Why? Because we are evolved to select mates for health (in both sexes), but also for parental fitness.

What is parental fitness in a male parent? The ability to protect his offspring (by fighting), and provide for them (by hunting). In other words, a man who is tough, a proven survivor, and good at killing.

What is parental fitness in a female parent? The ability to bear healthy children (youth and fertility), and also the ability to raise healthy and confident children (by nurturing and interacting with them). In other words, a woman who is young, innocent, and good at loving.

Everyone, male or female, exists on a continuum from innocence to toughness. But what's important to understand is that this is a one-way street. The innocent can become tough. The tough cannot become innocent.

This is why men desire sexually inexperienced women. With every new partner, a woman becomes more experienced. With every breakup, she becomes more toughened against heartbreak, and less liable to emotionally invest. Each new penis removes some of the quality and air of innocence that men desire, and the less emotionally attached she is to the owner of that penis, the more innocence is removed.

The classic slut/feminist shibboleth "Don't you want an experienced woman who knows exactly how to touch your penis really well?" is nonsense. The organ of sexual excitement is the brain. An inexperienced, but enthusiastic and highly attractive woman is a much better sexual partner than seasoned penis handler who's seen it all before and doesn't think you're anything special. She's less excited, and so are you. This is why feminists love vibrators. Because they've destroyed their innocence, and have no adoration for their sexual partners. Their dull, flat, lifeless emotional involvement inhibits their orgasm, and they need lots of "just right" physical stimulation, right on the clitoris. A high school girl having an affair with her teacher can come from his fingers on her nipples, because it's the first time anyone ever took her bra off, and she's excited and nervous and overwhelmed.

This why girls need a patriarchy. Because they start their sex lives at the peak of their sexual attractiveness, both physical and emotional, and without guidance, they will fritter away that quality of innocence before they even _____ know it exists or is important.

And there's no going back. A young man who errs by being not tough enough can always harden the fuck up later. But a girl who errs by hardening up cannot go back down that one-way street.

Men wanting virgins isn't just about literally virginity, it is about the qualities of youthfulness and innocence.

So, no, dear, keeping your legs closed and sucking cock instead does not make you stay desirable.

“A society grows great when old men plant trees in whose shade they know they shall never sit.”

This is what morals are. The planting of trees for others. Now, we can argue all day about whether we "should" or "don't have to" do this. But "should" is just a one-word synonym for "I want".

The benefit of shade trees planted by the previous generation (or just other people) for us is obvious. We get to sit in the shade. But why do people do this?

Old men plant shade trees for the future, because the past planted shade trees for them. Those who receive, are willing to give back to the system they received from, because they buy into it, believe in it. Trust and cooperation go together.

What this means is that morals are a contract. We hold up our end of the bargain, and others hold up theirs. But there are many different contracts, and many different people to have contracts with. Whenever we are faced with a moral question, we cannot simply ask "What is right?", as if morals were a single, universal absolute. We must ask "What is the contract?", "Who is it with?", and, most importantly "Have they kept their end of the bargain?".

This is how to consider a moral question, from an awakened, eyes-open, red pill perspective. Is is to see moral systems from the outside, as a piece of social technology, and to evaluate them by their results, not to cling to them because they've been repeated to us over and over.

Let us suppose you are faced with the moral question of whether to fuck another man's wife. Now you could say "This is wrong, because it harms the man", or "This is not wrong, because the girl is free to do as she likes with her vagina". But both of those fail to consider the question properly. They simply repeat the principle they think is most important, without any evidence of why it is important, or what is the reason that people might wish to honour it.

That's not thinking. That's just obeying whoever was most successful in chanting slogans at you. The red pill means looking with your own eyes, and thinking with your own brain.

Instead, look at the morals, the contract, from the outside. What is the agreement, who is it between, are both ends being upheld?

For our example:

- Marriage is an agreement of monogamy (usually). Who is it between? The man and his wife. Are you responsible for upholding a contract you are not part of?
- Is there as an agreement between you and society, or all other men, not to fuck each others' wives? Maybe. But has it been upheld? Well, what has society done to protect you from cuckoldry? It has given wives cash and prizes for engaging in it and divorcing their husbands.
- Is there an agreement between you and the other man, as a person? Maybe. Would he fuck your wife? Who is he to you? Your brother? Your friend? An acquaintance? A stranger?

Obviously, I have some thoughts on these questions. I will not hide them. But the important thing for you is not what I think, it's to think about it for yourself.

When someone tells you to plant trees for others, ask yourself... do I sit in the shade of trees planted for me? How you answer that question is up to you. But don't let people control you with guilt and a lecture. And if you find yourself the sons of men who sat in the shade and planted no trees, I recommend you not stand out in the sun with a shovel.

352

UPVOTES

First post syndrome

13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

About one to four months after finding the red pill, a lot of you young bucks have a bad idea.

"My eyes are open now", you say to yourselves. "I can see now that it is all about being Alpha. I need to do what Alphas do, and then I will be Alpha. Alphas are teachers and leaders. I will become Alpha by teaching and leading."

"I will make a post!"

"Errr... let's see now... what am I going to say?"

Usually the result contains:

- Platitudes.
- Vague encouragement.
- The words "brothers" or "gentlemen".
- Nothing of value to anyone.

Well, "brothers", "gentlemen", let me remind you of something. TRP does not have democratic values. It is probably the first community with non-democratic values that you have ever lived in. It is this way because democracy, specifically the kind of fetishized democracy that insists that everyone's voice has equal value and weight, and that every voice needs to be heard... well, that's what fucked up the social order so bad we needed to invent TRP.

Your opinion is not valuable just because it's your opinion. Your voice does not need to be heard just because it's yours. You do not have the right to waste people's time to because you want to see yourself in print.

Every time I write something, you are doing me favour by reading it. You are giving me something you have a fixed amount of, and will never get any more of... your time. And either I repay that favour by making what you get worth your time, repay it so much that I've done you a favour by giving you something that was worth far more than your time, or I fail to repay the favour by wasting your time with words of little worth.

Either you either profit by reading, you break even, or you lose. Which one do you think would make me a teacher, and a leader of men?

Resist the impulse to speak because you want to be the guy speaking. The path to being a quality speaker is to wait until you have something you are burning to say. Something that has blown your mind and everyone else needs to hear it. Something that repays the precious gift of their time. Yes, it's a problem that RPS has to sticky something saying "Don't post pabulum", but writing pabulum isn't good for you, either. If you don't have insights or experiences you are burning to write about, then lurk, learn, and practice until you do. Ultimately, TRP is about the quality of your life, not the size of your metaphorical internet penis.

You do not need to see yourself in print to prosper.

719

UPVOTES

Don't Talk to Me Like a Bitch.

14 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"Hi, I'm Noh Wang, and I think I'm a hopeless case. I'm Chinese, 5'1, 110lbs, a virgin, and hopelessly shy. Women never notice me, and I can't muster up the courage to talk to them. I've never looked anyone in the eye since I learned to walk. Every night I go home and soak my pillow with tears, hating myself for being me. I know I will never be Alpha, but can you please help me, or just tell me it's hopeless so I can kill myself (except I'm too much of a pussy to actually do it). I'm so miserable. Please help."

You are talking like a bitch. Don't talk to me as if you were a bitch.

I'm going to take a wild guess here, Wang, and say you were raised with an absent, uninvolved, or pussified father. Because you are speaking woman-language to me, and you are trying to get woman-help.

You are trying to get me to rescue you. To fix your feelings. To dry your bitch-tears and tell you it'll be all right.

That's how bitches talk. Bitches talk like that because it works for them. If I see a cute little piece of girl crying and begging for help, my male protective instincts are going to kick in. I'm going to feel some sympathy, and maybe pick her up, dust her off, and parent her a little bit, teasing her for being so upset at this silly little problem, and here's what we're going to do about it. Then I will fuck that bitch so deeply that whoever pulls me out will be declared King of All England and Scotland, and things won't seem so bad anymore.

That's men are wired. Bitches talk like that because it works for bitches. If they cry, big strong Vikings like me come along and give them a big helping of Alpha male attention and Alpha male cock, after which they have nothing to cry about anymore.

And bitches taught you to talk like that because they are bitches and that's what they know. Bitches aim for sympathy because it works for them when they do.

But you know what you get if you talk to me like a bitch? Contempt, that's what. You disgust me. It's as sickening as if you had put on lipstick and a dress. Because you are not a cute little piece of girl, you are a man. And you sicken me when you don't talk like one.

The first thing you need to do, Wang, is talk like a man. Don't aim for sympathy. Aim for respect. The bitches who raised you never taught you to aim for respect because they don't know how, and it doesn't work for them anyway. Of course they don't do it. A bitch aiming for respect is as disgusting as a man angling for pity. It's as sickening as if she had stopped shaving her legs, put on a false mustache, and started swearing like a sailor. Bitches get sympathy. Men get respect. Drill that into your fucking skull, Wang. I know you have very little to brag about right now, but if you do not strive for my respect, I will not help you.

So if all you have is pain, then impress me with how manfully you bear it. Take responsibility. You have a long road ahead of you, but show me you're ready to pick up your fucking backpack and march, and I will point you in the right direction.

Tell me this:

"Hi, I'm Dam Sun, and I've got a shit-load of work to do. I'm Chinese, 5'1, 110lbs, a virgin, and hopelessly shy. Women never notice me, and I haven't yet mustered up the courage to talk to them. I don't look people in the eye, and I have a lot negative self-talk that I need to fucking stop doing. I've read the sidebar, and I know many of the places I need to go, but there are so many things to fix that it's hard to know where to start. What I think I need is a set of easy intermediate goals, a few homework assignments to get me started. So I'm asking for suggestions."

Now at least you're talking like a man. I'll still kick your lazy ass for being lazy and needing your hand held, because I came up with this shit and did it when there was no TRP at all to help me, but at least that kick will be a force pushing you in the right direction. At least you'll be worth berating, which is a start, and more than you'll get from talking to me like a bitch.

Better yet, read the fucking sidebar, lurk TRP and askTRP, work on yourself as if you were just another man who needed the standard advice and not a custom program, and, a year later, write me this:

"Hi, I'm Long Wang, and I've made some progress I need to know how to capitalize on. A year ago, I was a 5'1, 110 lb Chinese guy with severe shyness. I read the sidebar, went into monk mode, started lifting, cut sugar out of my diet, did a cycle or two of Test-cyp and Tren, practiced talking to strangers. Now I'm 5'1 and 160 lbs and ripped, and I can look people in the eye and talk to them. I've started seeing women's eyes sparkle when they look at me, but I don't quite know how to turn attraction to lays. Any advice on good resources and tactics for sealing the deal?"

Then you'll have my respect.

Hi, I'm PinkKitty1992, and I made this reddit account so I can tell you all my very important opinions on the red pill stuff. A lot of it makes sense, but I just don't agree that All Women Are Like That. My mommy stuck by my daddy through unemployment and cancer, and I'm not like that either 'cuz I'm not a vapid whore and I don't treat men bad or slut it up with every man I see even though I'm in college now and lots of boys like me (yay!), and I want to marry a man I respect someday and have some children but I don't wanna be chained to the stove and not have a job and have to ask permission to do anything and I don't see why the red pill has to be so full of angry guys being nasty!

...

Hi, my name is ThadThunderCock2378954732918, and I'm decently along on my redpill journey, but I have a question about to deal with disrespect. The other day I was talking about some politics stuff (not American, I'm Lebanese), and one of my plates said "That makes sense, but I don't quite agree", and made some other argument, which I didn't really pay attention to because I was thinking about how to respond to this obvious shit test. What would you guys say if one of your plates disagreed with you?

...

Y'all spergs.

Nothing you read here is to be taken literally. Except the parts that are. Which ones? You figure that out. I'm not here to give you a comprehensive, literal, and precise theory of everything. I'm here to say whacky stuff that shakes you up and opens your eyes. What you read here should start a thought process, not end it.

In every conversation, there two channels along which information flows... the content, and the process. The content is the literal meaning of the words we say. Simple, direct, easy to absorb for anyone who speaks English. The process is the message conveyed by how I speak, and what I do while speaking.

Process communication is the larger part of human language. While TRP attempts to open your eyes to process communication, by talking about it in the content channel, we cannot dispense with process communication even while doing so, because people do not work that way.

Even here, the literal content is not the message, because the end result is not dry information. It's what you do with what you now know. It's how you feel about what you heard. It's your new state of mind. There's no way to encode that in the content of words, because language doesn't do that. I can describe you, but I cannot write you. I can use the word "tree", I can point at a tree, but I cannot reach through the screen and forcibly twist your head so you see the tree and stop staring at my pointing finger.

And eventually, you're going to have to look at all the different trees and understand the concept of a forest.

Spergs cannot generalize. They cannot grasp implications. They cannot grasp nuance. They do not have a sense of proportion. They hear the content of a message, and take it literally, or reject it altogether. They do not grasp the intent behind the words. That's not going to help you here.

To be masculine in a world that has forgotten how is not just to know something. It is to think differently, act differently, see things differently than before.

So I cannot tell you. I have to show you. And you have to figure out how to be shown.

If you argue about whether literally all women are like that, you're being a sperg. If you treat everything as a shit test (even when I have literally just written to you "everything is a shit test"), then you are being a sperg. If you argue about whether TRP is full of "hatey stuff" that distracts from the message, you are being a sperg.

Instead, use your burgeoning social skills to read between the lines.

If you do not learn to use and understand process communication, not only will women not ever want to have sexytimes with you, you will also not be able to use the instructions written here for changing that.

Think about the presentation. Think about the process channel. Use your own brain. TRP does not free you from the responsibility to think.

If you have a controversial or unpopular opinion, and you say or write it, sooner or later, someone is going to accuse you of "generalizing", as if this were somehow a refutation of what you have said.

It's pointless to argue with them. Debates are won, in the long term, by action, not words. But it helps us to understand why people would say such a thing.

Some people think generalizations are not "true", or, at least, not "true" enough. And yet everything we ever say is a generalization, whether it is that objects on earth fall at 9.8 m/s^2 , or that women are shorter than men, or that I weigh 210 pounds.

So what does it mean to be "true"? What does the word truth mean? To say "accuracy" or "representation" means nothing, these are just other words for truth. The question to ask is why we care about truth. Why do we argue about what is true? Why do we seek to find it out? When we ask this question, we would in danger of disappearing up our own ass... except that there is a simple straightforward answer.

We care about what is true because it enables us to predict what will happen. Knowing the law of gravity lets me predict the orbit of planets, knowing someone's address lets us predict where we will find them.

Simple enough, and so much for philosophy. The word "truth" means "predictive power". This is how we test truth, and why we care about it, so this is how we define it.

Whenever someone asks you if something is true, ask yourself what it empowers you to predict, and what that empowers you to do. You do not need to possess the absolute truth, the perfect model that would allow you to predict everything, to say something is "true". It is enough that something be true enough to help you.

Are ALL women like "that"?

Who can say? To perfectly describe all women would require more words than can be printed on every flat surface in the universe, in microscopic print. We're not here to perfectly describe women, or ourselves, or humans in general. We're here to describe them well enough to get done what we need and want to get done.

Red Pill "truths" are not absolutely true, because nothing we have is. They are true enough to help us do what we need to.

Related reading:

Asimov's Axiom.

Wittgenstein's Ladder.

656

UPVOTES

Infatuation is not the only form of Oneitis.

26 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Lately, I have had several questions from young men, all variations in the key of "How do I {game/impress/win exchanges with/stick it to/seduce} {my ex-girlfriend/my high school crush/this girl who rejected me because I was beta/the one that got away}."

Then they insist that they don't have oneitis because they're banging other women. They're not in love with her. They're not infatuated.

But infatuation is not the only form of Oneitis.

Oneitis is nothing but the failure to regard a woman as replaceable, regardless of why you do so.

- Are you stuck on her because you looooooooooove her? Oneitis.
- Are you stuck on her because you have something to prove? Oneitis.
- Are you stuck on her because she's your ex and you still care what she thinks? Oneitis.
- Are you stuck on her because she's Jessica Alba, you actually have an opportunity to game her, and you want to brag to your friends that you banged Jessica Alba? You guessed it... oneitis.

A woman is a woman. A vagina is a vagina. Some are better than others, but no matter how good one is, there are others just as good, out there waiting to be found.

In today's ruthless sexual marketplace, you must learn to regard women as a commodity, like apples. Some are bruised and rotten, some are fresh, juicy and delicious, but any apple of good enough quality will do. Some people like the red, sweet ones, some people like the green, tart ones, but any apple of the proper variety will do.

If you are unwilling to walk away from a woman should she prove intractable, unavailable, or disappointing, you have oneitis regardless of your reason for that unwillingness.

- Do not try to impress your ex. She's nothing to you now but another woman.
- Do not try to catch the one that got away. She's just another woman.
- Do not chase that female celebrity any harder than you would a look-alike who is a waitress at IHOP. She's just another woman, and with more shit tests and drama.
- Do not cave and lose frame because she's super hot. She's just another woman.

No matter what reasons you have for wanting a woman, there is always another women with what you want. Chase, appreciate, but do not become stuck.

He who cannot cast away a treasure, at need, is in chains.

We talk a lot about "Frame Control", but many people misunderstand the term. I have noticed more and more people using the term generally, to mean something like "standing up for yourself", and more and more people asking about it on askTRP, because the overgeneralized use of the term has confused them as to its actual meaning.

Frame control isn't just conversational dominance. Frame control isn't just winning an argument. In fact, winning an argument without controlling the frame can be a very bad thing.

Frame is the process and context in which you interact with another person. It includes such things as the topic of discussion, the tone and manner of the speech, who is allowed to speak and when, and so.

Therefore, when we say "Frame Control", we do not simply mean standing up for yourself or not backing down. We mean control over the process of the conversation.

Example:

- Lose Frame, Lose Argument

Larry Summers: There may be some inherent difference in mathematical ability between male and female populations.

Horde of Angry Feminists: Misogynist!

Larry Summers: I'm sorry I'm sorry I'm sorry I'm sorry (resigns post).

- Lose Frame, Win Argument

MRA Larry Summers: There may be some inherent difference in mathematical ability between male and female populations.

Horde of Angry Feminists: Misogynist!

MRA Larry Summers: How dare you call me a misogynist? Here is my track of promoting female employees, donating to women's charities, promoting breast cancer research, etc, etc, etc.

Horde of Sheepish Feminists: Oops.

- Control Frame

TRP Larry Summers: There may be some inherent difference in mathematical ability between male and female populations.

Horde of Angry Feminists: Misogynist!

TRP Larry Summers: We're talking about mathematical ability, not your feels about whatever you think my feels are. Do you have anything useful to add to this the discussion of mathematical ability, or are you just going to squawk like a wet chicken?

You see, in the second example, MRA Larry Summers has won a battle, but lost the war, because he has won the battle that his enemy picked for him to fight. The point he was trying to make is forgotten, because the feminists successfully derailed the conversation into a discussion of Larry Summers' feelings and implied moral worth. They have successfully avoided the question of whether men and women differ in mathematical ability.

TRP Larry Summers displays frame control. He refuses to be drawn into the discussion that the feminists want to have. He is having the discussion he wants to have.

Without proper frame control, even a dominant conversationalist will lose out in the long run. This is because he can be drawn into discussions he doesn't want to have, and distracted from his own goals in the interaction.

The most critical form of frame control, as we shown in the example, is dealing with the accusation shit test. To directly confront and attempt to refute an accusation, even if wild successful, is a defeat, because you have:

1. Allowed someone to steer the topic of conversation to something that has no good outcome for you.
2. Shown that the accusation bothers you, which weakens your image.

In any conversation, the controller of the frame is the one who acts, rather than reacts. Many shit tests are, at their core, an attempt to push you into a reactive mode to see if it can be done.

Some Principles of Good Frame Control:

- Focus on your goal in the conversation, and focus what you say on that goal.
- Do not simply react to whatever anyone else says. Consider what direction you want the conversation to take, first.
- Do not cooperate with an attempt to change the subject unless it serves your goals.
- Ignore, call out, or laugh at accusations rather than denying or defending against them.
- Reward cooperation with your frame with active listening and positive reinforcement. Frame control does not mean monopolizing the conversation.
- Punish attempts to break your frame by ignoring the speaker or calling out the behaviour.
- Always finish your sentences. Ignore interruptions as if they did not happen. Be loud if necessary.
- Reward those who tolerate your (deliberate or accidental) interruptions by quickly finishing and then explicitly calling on them to finish their thoughts.
- Do not attempt to control the frame merely to control the frame. Have a frame in mind, and be only as controlling as you need to be in order to establish that frame.
- Do not hesitate to leave a conversation if circumstances render the frame uncontrollable. You lose more face by being dominated than you do by retreating to fight another day.

148

UPVOTES

Beating Infatuation (the most common form of Oneitis)

28 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Infatuation, or what people call "being in love", may not be the only form of Oneitis, but it is the most common one, and in some ways, the most dangerous.

Oscar Wilde knew, after all, that "A man can be happy with any woman so long as he does not love her". And while women protest loud and long that they wish to be loved by their man, they surely do not mean infatuation when they say love, because the behaviour which infatuation inspires in a man often inspires little but contempt in a woman.

So, while many would say that "never do this" is too simple and extreme a policy, there's no doubt that it is wiser to control it, rather than the reverse. Emotions make good servants, but cruel and tyrannical masters.

But how to avoid infatuation? The key is to understand how it occurs.

Your subconscious cannot tell the difference between fantasy and reality. That's how oneitis starts. Imagine yourself with a woman, dream of it, fantasize about it, and the primitive bits of your brain think that it is so.

This starts the process. This kind of love is heroin... literally. Endorphins. Short for endogenous morphine. Released in response to her presence. At my best guess, it's evolved to stick you together for at least until the pregnancy is done, possibly until the kid can walk.

When you're in love, you're a junkie. When you have oneitis, when you're in love with a fantasy, you're a junkie who can't get a fix.

So control your imagination. Don't imagine yourself with one particular woman. Don't fantasize about one particular woman. Don't pick one woman and fix your plans on her. Always have a few prospects in mind, or none. If you catch yourself thinking about one woman all the time, go find another to clear your head. Ideally to fuck, but even to talk to will do.

Remember that your emotions follow your imagination, and your brain cannot tell the difference between fantasy and reality. This is why visualization techniques work. Control your imagination, and you control your emotions.

A special word about ex-girlfriends: Infatuation is harder to overcome when the bond was real. But the same principle applies. If you think about her, parts of your brain think she is still there. Find someone else to think about. Do not still around obsessing. Do not fantasize revenge. Do not think about how she sees you now. Do not figure out ways to make her regret it. It no longer matters to you what she thinks. She isn't even dead to you, because corpses exist. She is a puff of smoke fading in your rearview mirror, and you're busy looking through the windshield.

Control your imagination and you control your emotions.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional and rather frivolous "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address:

1DChc2Az13zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

strat·e·gy

'stradəjē/

noun: strategy; plural noun: strategies

a plan of action or policy designed to achieve a major or overall aim.

A strategy is a method to achieve your goals. Presuming you are basically sane, you have goals that benefit you. Strategy is your plan for benefiting yourself.

Never confuse the means (Self-improvement, hard work, getting help from others, cheating) with the end (benefit). You live a universe that only cares about results. How you got there changes nothing, if the result is the same.

If you are strong because you spent 3 years lifting weights and taking steroids, instead of ten years lifting weights alone, do you think the universe cares? Will it impose justice by not allowing you to lift as much weight? Do you think the girls you want sex from care? Do you think anyone cares?

If you got rich by someone else's work, is your money worth less?

If you got blown because you learned game and faked confidence, did you enjoy the sex less than Chad, who was born with it?

We all know that those who take the path of least resistance are lazy. But some of you need to realize that those who take the path of most resistance are stupid.

- The lazy man takes the path of least resistance no matter where it leads.
- The stupid and gullible man takes the hard path because everyone tells him it is the right one, or the virtuous one.
- The strategist will succeed where both the lazy and the stupid fail.

The strategist is the man who takes the shortest, easiest path which leads to his goal. He does not waste his energy and time on unnecessary flourishes. He does not despise short cuts as a "cop-out". And he does not call inefficient work "self-improvement".

He improves whatever capabilities are necessary for his goal, but he never loses sight of what that goal is. Much strategy involves necessary self-improvement, but honing your capabilities is a means, not an end. Ultimately, you want something. Know what that something is, know what you have to use, and find the best means to bring the two together.

This means cheat. The universe isn't fair. There are no rules. Use whatever you have.

If you are smart, but not charismatic, make money by entering a profession that not many people can train for.

If you are charismatic, but not smart, make money by using your influence on others.

Use the advantages you have to get the ones you don't.

Gifts can be exchanged for each other. Wealth can buy steroids. Friends and connections can help you get wealthy.

Hooking a nerd up with a slut can get you smart, expert help. Intelligence can help you learn valuable skills.

You're going to have to improve yourself, a lot, to get what you want, if you're at all ambitious. But never mistake self-improvement for the goal, because then you will lose sight of the shortcuts, or, worse yet, come to despise them.

Only fools are proud of how hard they work. Wise men are proud of how effectively they work.

Be wise. Use strategy. Take the shortest path.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address: 1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

"Hi askTRP, I'm having some trouble {sticking to my diet/motivating myself to lift/avoiding oneitis/motivating myself to approach/whatever}. {Here are my specific circumstances.} Any tricks or tips for overcoming my specific problem?"

"UUuugggh! Me Gronk! Gronk! is strong, like Siberian bear! Gronk! not have problem! Every morning, before lift weights, Gronk! stick fork in eye, to make harder. Because Gronk! have strong willpower! You need have strong willpower, like Gronk! You no be pussy man. You have willpower. That solve problem."

"Oh, and, just to remind.... Gronk! very strong!"

Well, that's nice, Gronk. I'm glad your life is going well. Now kindly shut the fuck up.

Gronk! is a special sort of RedPill 'sperg that I see more and more of as TRP gets larger. He's read the sidebar. He's lurked for a long time, then asked pertinent questions. He's practiced the material in his life and started to get some success. But, like, most 'spergs, he overgeneralizes.

He's now treating TRP itself as a shit test. He has stopped seeing TRP as a place to learn about masculinity and success, and started seeing it as a masculinity contest. Gronk! is now determined to prove he is the biggest swingin' dick in TRP, or at least a bigger one than whoever he is responding to.

Gronk! is no longer speaking straighttalk (literal language about the subject under discussion, communicative language).

In fact, it's worse than that. Gronk! thinks he's speaking powertalk (language designed to manipulate the emotional state of others, goal oriented language), but he's not. He's speaking babytalk (language designed to manipulate one's own emotional state, masturbatory language).

Gronk! wins no real prize for AMOGing people on the internet. Gronk! may have "strong will" to resist eating doughnuts or skipping his workout, but he does not have "strong" enough "will" to resist the temptation to put his energy into getting cheap emotional highs that give him no long-term benefit.

Gronking feels good, but it makes you weaker. Kind of like doughnuts.

By endlessly singing the praises of "strong willpower" and a good "work ethic", which one either has or has not, Gronk! deprives himself and everyone around him of the opportunity to learn and systematically develop the right behaviour. Gronk!'s efforts to white-knuckle his way through life, and persuade everyone else to do so, deprive him and others of the opportunity to look on motivation as one more resource that can be built by understanding it, and using the right strategy.

Deciding to have more willpower is like deciding to be smarter, or to have more money. Like everything else, willpower (really motivation) is a finite resource that can be spent foolishly, spent wisely, developed, or squandered.

Gronk! builds an image of strength to project to others, pretending he was born with it, has an infinite amount of it, has always had it, and always will. Gronk! knows he must do this to women (women believe male strength is born, not made), but he has begun doing it to everyone, including himself. By lying to himself, he cheats himself of chances to strategically improve his weaknesses. By boasting to other men instead of helping them, he cheats himself of the chance to make allies, and learn by teaching.

Don't be Gronk!

Think carefully about when to project an image of strength, and when to talk plainly. Don't boast or AMOG just to make yourself feel good with cheap admiration highs. Instead, focus on your long-term goals, and your emotional state will take care of itself.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address: 1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

154

UPVOTES

Respect and male social hierarchies.

18 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've spoken about Gronk!ing already. It's the act of trying to project dominance without regard to the situation you're in. Especially on TRP.

And /u/humansockpuppet has expanded on this, explaining how dominance is for achieving goals, not a goal in and of itself.

But we need to talk about this still more.

- When you are with women, you must project dominance all the time. Women only respond to dominance, never to persuasion or shared goals.
- When you are with other men, projecting dominance is one of several tools. Sometimes you need to take charge in order to get done what needs doing. And sometimes you need to shut up and shovel the coal.

Most importantly

- There is no shame in deferring to a male authority when it makes sense to do so.

This is the part many of us miss. We must understand why this is so.

In our feminized, feminist society, we have taken steps to abolish all social hierarchies, seeing them as inherently oppressive. To a feminist, power = oppression, always. This means that people only defer to each other out of fear. They defer to their managers at work for fear of being fired, they defer to police for fear of being arrested, they defer to laws for fear of being punished, they defer to those who use dominance strategies and intimidate them.

That is the only type of deference most people know. They defer if they are intimidated or defeated, and they feel shame.

But there is another kind, and that is deference out of respect. Respect for a person's accomplishments, for their skills, for their territory, for the benefits they have provided to us, or simply respect for the most efficient way to get shit done.

- Deferring out of fear is shameful for a man. And it should be.
- Deferring out of respect is not.

Here in TRP, we teach you how to fight back and win when someone tries to AMOG you. We teach you how to dominate others when it's time to do so (vital for getting sex). But the reason we get all these Gronk!s is that they are men who have only ever deferred to or followed others out of fear. That's all they know.

So, whenever someone else is leading the charge, or in the spotlight, or has the badge that says "Vanguard", they feel shame. They think that if they do not immediately challenge and beat this individual in a contest of wills, it is proof that he has a bigger penis, and they must hide their faces in shame.

Male social hierarchies are not based on intimidation. They are based on respect.

Men naturally congregate in groups to accomplish a goal. Whether that's hunting mammoth or selling software. The leaders are not the best intimidators, but the ones who have invested the most time, invested the most effort, and contributed the most to group goals. They have earned respect. Some groups you are in, you will lead, because they are the ones you invested heavily in. Others, you will be a follower in, because you invested less time in those, and you just want to show up and participate. You can only focus on so many things.

EC members are not chosen for being the best men with the biggest swinging dicks. We choose them because they have contributed and earned respect. TRP becomes partially their territory because they helped build it.

This explains how a group of alpha males and aspiring alpha males, can get along. They earn each other's respect._____

Only this way can a team of men working together be built.

Without the twin abilities to earn respect, and to give the respect that others have earned, you cannot accomplish any goal that is too big for your own two hands. You can only build a team by giving respect when it is earned, and knowing how to earn it.

- Do not submit to others out of fear. If you lose your nerve, and do, feel ashamed, and use that shame to motivate you to do better.
- If someone earns your respect, give it. In the fullness of time, you will take what you learn from them, and use it to earn the respect of others.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address: 1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

309

UPVOTES

Change your actions, and your thoughts will follow.

29 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"Hi, askTRP, I pulled a threesome the other day, and couldn't get it up because I was drunk and had a case of nerves. Now I feel like a loser."

"Hi, askTRP, I pulled 300lbsx5 reps deadlift the other day, but gainz are coming slowly, and I feel feel small and weak."

"Hi, askTRP, I'm stuck at 15% bodyfat. I feel like a blob of lard."

"Hi, askTRP, my girlfriend wears a slave collar and calls me "master", but sometimes she fetches me the wrong kind of beer from the fridge, because she forgot what kind I like. Is it because I'm not alpha enough?"

The old seduction groups used to say "fake until you make it". Here we say to change your habits, and your mind will follow.

There will be a period of time, after you learn to act masculine, and get some success, where you will feel like a fraud and a loser in disguise. This is because actions are quicker and easier to change than thoughts. You will have new patterns of behaviour, but remember old ones. You will compare yourself to everyone Gronk!ing away on TRP. Your standards will rise faster than your progress. Your self-image will take time to catch up to the new you.

This is just what happens. Thoughts are habits ground in over years. Actions are what you are doing right now... they can change in an instant. Along the road between you and your goals, you will have moments of imposter syndrome.

Remember that there is no such thing as "who you are inside". You are defined only by what you do. If you do something awesome in the next two minutes, then in that moment, you did something awesome, and that is all that matters. And if you didn't do what you wanted, or get the result that you wanted, then that will no longer matter the moment you do it right.

The greatest advantage of being a man is the same as the greatest disadvantage: You have no inherent value, and you are worth only what you accomplish. This means you can acquire value at any time. If you're better than you were yesterday, you win. If tomorrow you are better than you were today, you win again.

Never waste time asking the question of how well you are doing. Mirrors are for people without a distant horizon to focus on. Only ask yourself what you want, and plan how you're going to get it.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional and rather frivolous "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address:

1DChc2Az13zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

151

UPVOTES

Ask Whisper: "How do I get attention while speaking?"

14 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey Whisper,

Can you provide me with some advice on speech/conversational dominance?

Sure can. Yell even louder, and punch anyone in the mouth if they try to talk over you.

... or perhaps "dominance" wasn't quite what you meant?

The first step to getting anything is to know exactly what it is you want:

I have trouble gaining attention when speaking, despite specifically making attempts to speak loud enough to grab attention.

Ah-hah. So you want to be able to command the attention of others. That's a good place to start.

Remember what we taught you about paying attention to women? You were taught to use attention as a reward, not give it out in the hopes of inspiring affection. But regardless of whether others do the former or the latter, we can see that attention is a payment. That why we call it PAYING attention.

Others give you attention because they know, or at least hope, that you will give them something of value in return. You are reading this right now because you think I might teach you something valuable, or because I have been valuable to you in the past, or because you think my writing is amusing, whatever. You read, or listen, or watch, because you think it's a good use of your time.

This is why speaking loudly alone doesn't work. No one wants to listen to an air horn. It's loud enough to force us to listen, but we quickly try to tune it out or stop the noise if we can. Because it does us no good.

Create value, or the perception of value, and attention will come.

What is "value" in the context of conversation? It is anything that rewards listeners for listening. There are too many possibilities to list, but here are a few examples. Charismatic people will use many of these at once.

- Be funny and entertaining.

People will listen to just about anything if it's creative, funny, tells a good story, or is otherwise pleasant to listen to.

- Be insightful and interesting.

Humans have been equipped by evolution with a powerful forebrain, which is basically a rationalizing and generalization engine. Its urge to spot patterns and find explanations is so powerful that we sometimes find them even when they aren't there. Few things are more gratifying to a human being than the experience of a bunch of random information suddenly falling into a pattern which explains other things. If you can provide eye-opening insights, people will not only patiently sit through, but actually enjoy, the wordiest of rants.

- Say useful things.

If what you have to say solves a problem they have, they will be all ears. Just make sure you remember that what people say their problem is counts for nothing. It's about what they actually want.

- Have status.

If you have status, power, and respect, not only do others hope to please you by paying attention, but what you think and plan to do effects their lives. This means it's important to them.

- Use silence to make your words stand out.

Remember that perception of value creates value. Make something scarce, and you make it more valuable. If you only speak when you have something to say, shut up when you have nothing to add, and use words sparingly, then people will quickly come to regard you as worth listening to. Speak because you have something to say, not just to be speaking.

- Pass the microphone.

Counterintuitively, indicating to others that it is their turn to speak, and supporting their points, can get you more attention. Not only does it give value which others may wish to repay, but indicating whose turn it is to speak, consistently, establishes you as the controller of the microphone and hence the leader of the conversation.

- Speak with conviction when you speak.

If you don't think what you have to say is important, no one else will either. Always speak clearly and with confidence, never mumble, and always finish your sentence rather than trailing off, even if someone interrupts you and gets the group's attention.

Remember that attention is a thing of value. If you simply try to snatch it, people will treat you like a thief. But if you reward it, people will give it to you to purchase that reward. And if you establish yourself as a figure of respect, people will pay it to you in tribute.

#Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional and rather frivolous "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address:

1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

168

UPVOTES

Startin' Shit.

24 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[Something we don't talk enough about is fighting, both literal and metaphorical.

Like every other topic under the sun, the majority of us learned the wrong lessons about it from feminized, domesticated fathers, or the wrong lessons about it from single mothers in the complete absence of a father.

So most of you learned about when to fight either from a woman, or from someone who learned from a woman. Women understand as much about how and when to fight as cats understand about refining crude oil, because, as with most other things, women are unable to imagine the perspective and experience of anyone who isn't a woman.

"Just don't do it", women will say. "Just walk away", as if you always had that option.

Women see violence as a sort of natural disaster that comes along and wrecks everyone's shit, like a hurricane, and if only no one would do it, everything would just be much better. This is because they are unequipped to deal with it, and therefore do not wish to confront the fact that violence is the default state of all living things.

Any moment you do not have to fight is a privilege earned with wealth, technology, planning, allies, or other resources.

We know that "don't fight" is stupid woman-speak, issuing from the childish mind of someone who has the privilege of going through her entire life protected by default by violence and conflict. But we also know that overwhelmingly it is stupid, insecure, broke-ass, trashy losers who throw down the most.

So is avoiding conflict cowardly? Or is getting in fights and arguments a loss of frame, and hence weakness?

There's a stupidly simple principle to resolve this question. Fighting is expensive, but it can get us things. That's why fighting is the default state of all living things. We need to fight to get the things we need to survive, and to prevent others from the taking those things.

Every conflict has a cost, and a prize.

Fight for good prizes.

Don't fight for stupid prizes.

Every time you find yourself in a conflict, whether it's a dick-measuring contest with some reddit stranger, or someone trying to beat you senseless with a crowbar, know what it is you are fighting to win. A momentary feeling of vindication is not a good prize. Getting to walk away with all your body parts is an excellent prize, as is the respect of people in your social network, the ability to live free of fear, etc.

Always know what you are fighting for. Never fight for a stupid prize because you are proud and insecure. Never fail to fight for a good prize because you are afraid, or straitjacketed by feminized "niceness-as-morality". Whether it's a argument or a gunfight, a conflict is an obstacle between you and your goal, and whether you are startin' shit or just finishing it, the goal determines the effort.

Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes and scented body lotion. Instead, the "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address: 1DChc2Az3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

100

UPVOTES

Ask Whisper: The Fear and Shame Loop

30 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey Whisper:

How do I overcome the fear of rejection and shame?

This question is very relevant to beginners. It's one thing to talk about bitch management, or how to pass a shit test, but there are a lot of young men out there who cannot make themselves put one foot in front of the other, physically walk up to a girl, open their mouth, and speak.

Now we can Gronk! away at men like this, call them scared little bitches or whatever, and maybe we even do some good with it, if we make them more scared of not approaching than they are of approaching. But there is a reason why this happens.

I call it the Fear and Shame Loop.

What young men fear, when they fear approaching women, is harsh rejection and humiliation. But why exactly do they fear this? Odds are this woman is a stranger whom they will never see again. Why does it matter what she thinks?

It doesn't. What these men fear is not the possible negative consequences. They fear the shame and fear they will experience. Being afraid hurts, in as real a sense as pain hurts.

When a frightened man approaches a girl, he isn't in danger of feeling like shit if things go badly. He already feels like shit, because the fear and shame he has developed. That's the danger he is afraid of, and it happens every time, whether he is rejected harshly, gently, or not at all. The more afraid he is, the worse the experience is, and the more afraid he is be next time. This is the loop... a self-reinforcing cycle of social anxiety.

There are many approaches to beating this spiral, everything from desensitization, to visualization, to training, to increased SMV, to drugs... and a full-blown case may require multiple methods.

But the most important first step is the realization that the enemy is not the girl, or the "danger" of rejection, or even his own poor social skills.... it is the shitty feeling he has while doing the approach.

Focus on the knowledge that the fear you are experiencing is not a warning of greater danger ahead. It is only a warning of itself. If you are experiencing it, and you can still hold yourself together and function, then that's the worst it has to offer. There is nothing more to be afraid of.

#Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need more soy lattes. Instead, the completely optional and rather frivolous "Buy Whisper More Steroids and Send Reddit to Chapter 11 Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address:
1DChc2Az3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

736

UPVOTES

If you don't sleep, you might as well not lift.

1 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"Golly gee wilikers, Whisper, I work and work out until 11 pm, and then get up at 5 in the morning 6 days out of every 7, and then I eat a nutritious breakfast (cuz' I suuuuuuuure don't wanna be unhealthy!). But when I have a rare day off, and I go out to meet girls, I just feel tired and want to go home! Whatever could be wrong? Is it my attitude?"

Look, I realize some of you bros never had fathers, but Jesus fuck, how dumb can you be?

If you do not sleep, you might as well not lift.

Lifting doesn't build muscle. Lifting incentivizes your body to build muscle. To actually build muscle, you need to eat and sleep. How the fuck are you going to build muscle if you don't give your body any rest to do it in?

Look down. Right now, sitting at your computer, playing with your phone, whatever, look the fuck down.

Do you have a fat belly, but the rest of you isn't? Then you don't sleep enough. And your testosterone is low, because you're using up all the same raw materials to make the excess cortisol that's making you fat. And your workouts aren't working because your testosterone is low and your cortisol is high and you don't get any recovery time anyway and your neurotransmitters are also all out of whack because your digestive system (yes, your digestive system, you scientific illiterate) is responsible for synthesizing most of them, and it's busy being fucked by all that cortisol.

And your dick doesn't work because your testosterone is low and your cortisol is high and your neurotransmitters are fucked up.

But you can't figure out why you are "tired and depressed".

Really. It doesn't get any simpler than this. If you are tired, sleep. Your body is speaking in the clearest possible language, and if you're still not listening, then it is not your body's fault.

Give your body what it asks for. You could have learned this from a children's cartoon.

If you are tired, do not fuck. Sleep.

#Whisper

This was a stupid article, and I shouldn't be putting my standard "Bitcoin-instead-of-more-Reddit-Gold" address (1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD) at the bottom of it. It's a stupid article because it states the blindingly fucking obvious, which is no great feat to point out. I shouldn't be rewarded for this. But none of you should need it, and apparently some of you did. For the rest of you, I apologize for this blatant insult to your fucking intelligence.

Did I ever tell you the definition of insanity?

Welcome, students. Today, we will take as our text one ThalesToAristotle, who gives us this gem of an example:

<https://archive.is/okbOT>

Now, everything you read on the web might be a lie, but there are certainly people like this, even if this one were fake.

And what, class, is he doing wrong?

No assertiveness!

Takes women too seriously!

He is listening to what women say, not watching what they do.

UNMASCULINE!

Shows weakness.

He probably doesn't even lift.

Yes, yes, yes, yes, yes, and yes. All good answers. But we're looking for something more fundamental, here. And it's not going to be hard to guess what I mean, since I just told you.

He is doing the same thing over and over again, and hoping for different results.

He has accepted a philosophy that he thinks is "correct", and if it doesn't work for him, he thinks he must be applying it wrong. And so he applies it harder. Feminism becomes like magic fairy dust... it solves every problem. If it didn't work, you just didn't use enough.

So does a man like this need the red pill? Surprisingly enough, no. No he does not.

All he really needs to do is try different things. If he were to simply do random shit, if he were to invent an imaginary character every day and talk to women as that character, he would eventually start to figure out what women like. That is, after all, how the red pill was invented. But he won't do that, because he is stuck on one strategy.

Why?

Well, obviously because he thinks it must work. But also because he regards opportunities as rare and precious. He does not have abundance mentality. So when an opportunity comes along, he is afraid to deviate from his strategy, because anything new risks "wasting" the opportunity.

And this is the answer to the question new students often ask: "How can I have abundance mentality if I still don't have lots of sex, or pickup success?"

The answer is that the "abundance" in "abundance mentality" means abundance of opportunities, not abundance of successes. Even ThalesToAristotle has abundance. There are women all around him. New women come along every day.

In order not to be insane (by trying the same thing over and over again), we must be able to regard opportunities as disposable, whether they be a woman who appears attracted to us, a job interview, an investment opportunity, something for sale, etc.

Opportunities are a river, not a pond. They flow past, but more will be along shortly. Try different things. Even if you are winning at life, shake things up and learn something. Don't just follow every piece of TRP advice as a set of step-by-step instructions. Use it as a starting point, and try something new, change up your style. Burn opportunities just because you can. There will always be more women, more jobs, more business ideas, more _____ chances, until the day you die.

The problem this poor sad man has is not that he is gargling the blue koolaid. It's that he's stuck.

Don't be him.

#Whisper

If you liked this article, please don't buy me any more Reddit Gold. I have enough to last years, and Spez and Ellen Pao don't need your money. Instead, the "Buy Whisper More Steroids Fund" can be found at the following Bitcoin address: 1DChc2Azt3zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD

547

UPVOTES

The Bitch Management Hierarchy study guide.

4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So some dumbass in /r/asktrp just got dumped after playing CaptainSaveAHO, and now Professor Whisper has to call school back into session, because some of y'all haven't done the basic reading.

This is HumanSockPuppet's Bitch Management Heirarchy.

It is not optional. It is required reading.

Understand the four ranks.

- Level 0: One-Night Stand
- Level 1: Plate
- Level 2: Friends with Benefits.
- Level 3: Significant Other -or- Girlfriend.

Understand the principles of promoting and demoting.

Understand that no sexual act ever leads to promotion. Sexual acts are simply required to keep a woman from getting demoted.

Understand that once a woman has been demoted, she can never be promoted again.

Understand that there is no rank 4. A woman cannot be worthy of marriage, because marriage has been turned into a deal that no human being could possibly be worthy of.

Now we need some additional supplemental material, because apparently, this isn't enough to stop some men from giving women things they haven't earned.

The ranks are distinguished by nature, not just degree, as follows:

- Rank 0 is the rank of sex.
- Rank 1 is the rank of repeated contact.
- Rank 2 is the rank of non-sexual social time.
- Rank 3 is the rank of emotional investment.

These are what a woman gets by being promoted to each rank.

- At rank 0, she gets to have sex with you.
- At rank 1, she gets to see you again.
- At rank 2, she gets to hang out with you, not just for the purpose of fucking.
- At rank 3, she gets to be invested in and cared about.

The Bitch Management Hierarchy also has maximum ranks.

There are women who are not worthy of the distinguishing feature of each rank, by virtue of their history. This is distinct from demotion, which is triggered by their behaviour with you... this is about their behaviour ever.

Women who are not worthy of sex (rank 0):

- Women who do not maintain their bodies in an attractive (to you) state.
- Women who do not protect themselves and their partners from sexual diseases.

Women who are not worthy of repeated contact (rank 1):

- Women who do not make any effort to ensure your sexual pleasure (selfish in bed).

- Women who are controlling or try to police your contact with other women.
- Women whom you didn't enjoy your first encounter with for any reason having to do with her.
- Women who withhold sex to try to get promoted.

Women who are not worthy of social time (rank 2):

- Single mothers.
- Women who are embarrassing to be seen with (no class, don't know how to act in public, dresses like a slob).
- Women who are not exclusive to you.

Women who are not worthy of emotional investment (rank 3):

- Women who have cheated, ever. Even with you.
- Women who are disobedient, or refuse sex.

This is not an exhaustive list.

WHY SO MANY RULES?

Because we're in remedial mode. Like the clueless waif who set me off on this rant, many of you do not value yourselves, and do not value your time and investment. You give it away too cheaply, to the first women who wets your penis or follows your lead.

If you do not value yourself no one else will. And understanding the Bitch Management Hierarchy is the first step on the road to recovery. The key principle is treat her sex as low-value, and your attention as high-value. If you are coming from a position of sexual scarcity, you must vigorously police yourself against the tendency to overvalue sex.

Hard and fast rules will help you do this.

#Whisper

I have a Bitcoin donation address: 1DChc2Az13zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD.

It's there because I resent reddit passing the hat after I speak, and then giving me a gold sticker and keeping the hat for themselves.

Donate, or don't, as you wish, but please do not gild.

2

UPVOTES

If only a verbal "yes" means sexual consent, are all nonhuman animals rapists? Were all pre-language homonids rapists?

5 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

/r/PurplePillDebate/comments/3zhfgv/if_only_a_verbal_yes_means_sexual_consent_are_all/

198

UPVOTES

Ask Whisper: Parents

7 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey Whisper, do you know of any good reads or materials on holding frame against parents. Especially against single parent (mother). I could handle normal shit tests but I do find myself a bit lost when having to deal with my mum.

Holding frame against some random clam is much easier than holding frame against your parents. They know you inside and out, there's no such thing as abundance mentality with them, and nexting them is a grave step indeed.

But it can be done. And it must be done. They remember you as a child, but at a certain point, you become a man, and you have your own life to live.

(Some of you are fortunate enough to have parents who are the solution, rather than the problem. For you, the following should be read to understand how the other half lives.)

- Never have an argument.

When you argue about what you should do, you are placing your actions upon the table, and dicing with them for the outcome. The very act of arguing concedes that which you do not wish to concede...the idea that their opinion matters to what you will do.

You are now an adult, and they will have some difficulty accepting that. Remind them of it by not opening up your reasoning for discussion.

- Never give a reason.

Your only reason should be "This is what I have decided to do." To give any other reason invites argument.

They can't argue "No, you haven't." If they argue "You shouldn't" (to try to tempt you into an argument), you can simply agree "Perhaps. But I will." If they say "I won't let you.", you simply point out that they cannot stop you. As you are doing whatever it is.

- Never wait for them to stop talking.

This is implicitly agreeing to have a discussion. If they say they will not let you leave, you tell them they cannot stop you... as you are walking out the door. Tell them what you will do, and immediately do it. Make them scamper after you if they want to talk.

- Prefer telling them what you have done to telling them what you will do.

They cannot argue with what has already happened.

- Draw boundaries. Punish bad behaviour by withdrawing contact.

If they raise their voices or speak disrespectfully to you, warn them once that if they do this, the conversation is over. If they continue, hang up the phone or walk away. Remember that they need to talk to you, but you do not need to talk to them.

- Be financially independent of them.
- If you aren't, become so, as rapidly as possible.
- If you can't (yet), call their bluff preemptively.

If you are afraid they will kick you out of the house, threaten to move out. If you are afraid they will stop paying for your tuition, threaten to drop out of college. Remember that cutting off your child is a dark and terrible thing to do, or have to do... it is much easier to threaten, or imply the threat of, than actually do.

They don't want to do it, not only because they love you, but because it a deeply humiliating thing for a parent to do. It implies a failure of the worst possible kind.

If you threaten them with it, then they cannot threaten you with it.

- Restrict access to information.

If they are the sort of parents you have to hold frame against, then they are on the lookout for weapons with which to undermine your will, your independence, your frame, your self-control, your confidence. Knowing what is going on with you, how you feel, what you want, provides them with opportunities. Tell them little or nothing.

- Never lose your temper.

If you become upset, you will be drawn into an argument. Calmly and firmly draw the line between acceptable and unacceptable and enforce it.

- Don't defend. Counterattack.

If they pull some bullshit, immediately focus on the bullshit they pulled. If they read your mail, it doesn't matter what they found out... what's now important is that they read your fucking mail and that's crazy. Doesn't matter that they found your steroids, what matters is that they went through your private stuff.

Put them on the defensive all the time.

- Don't hide conflict.

If they said your girlfriend dresses like a whore, let her know. Let her know the next time she and they are in the same room: "What do you think of this outfit, mom? Last time you said she was dressed like a whore. Still think so?"

Embarrass them with what they said. Show them that every piece of bullshit they pull, the whole extended family, and the whole world will know.

Problem parents use whatever hold they have over their adult children to do unacceptable shit. They use the privacy of family matters to create a world where the crazy seems commonplace. Let the world know.

Rot abhors sunlight.

- Most of all, hold the fucking line.

Never give an inch to keep the peace of avoid conflict. Peace without honour is not worth having.

Whisper

I have a Bitcoin donation address: 1DChc2Az13zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD.

It's there because I resent reddit passing the hat after I speak, and then giving me a gold sticker and keeping the hat for themselves.

Donate, or don't, as you wish, but please do not gild.

245

UPVOTES

Seduction in One Picture.

22 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Here is everything you need to know.

Watch her face. Don't just see the smile and giggles. See the coy turn after his second trick, the covered face. The foundations of sexuality are already laid down, years before they are expressed as sexuality.

Look at him. Look at the smile on his face that says it's all in good fun, even as he baits and switches her, over and over. Look at the assurance with which he moves.

Now looks at the skinny-ass beta in the background. Watch him try to bond with his companion over what he just saw, and completely screw it up. He isn't disapproving. He doesn't think our hero is a jerk. He wishes he could be our hero... but he does not have the courage, because he doesn't understand the meaning behind that little girl's smile.

It doesn't matter that he wears a silly costume and sells ice cream for a living. Because right there, in that moment, he is in control. He plays with her, not like one child plays with another, but like a cat plays with a ball of string.

And she instinctively loves it. She didn't learn this from culture. She didn't get conditioned by the Patriarchy™ to be this way. She's too young for that. What she does comes from what she is.

And as goes the little girl, so goes the woman.

Women don't love nice men. They love unpredictable men, challenging men, men who set the pace and keep them one step behind, forever reacting.

Watch this gif until you get it. Then go and practice.

Edit: Here is how it works on her in 20 years. Notice how the reactions are the same. The girl is the mother of the woman.

Edit2: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=L2U3A4YDqF0> https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Ygpw_8qeRFo
<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5LIrmr9fii8> <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AnX7brUCFP4>

How much more of the same pattern do you need to see?

Edit3:

Now watch how a man reacts: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Jj6cdYVNuKA>

This is Rumor Control. Here are the facts.

5 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Y'all know me.

I'm that guy who switches wildly back and forth between being diplomatic and saying crazy things. I've been diplomatic for a while, and as a consequence, some lying liars are getting away with telling lies about people far better than a jerk like me.

So I'm here to tell you the truth before riding off into the sunset. Ain't gonna be pretty.

This is the story of how the Gang of Five tried to stage a coup against Chairman Mao, and wound up in exile instead.

(All quotes paraphased from memory, or secondhand)

The scene is Women's Cadre of The Red Brigade, the time ~ 1.5 years ago:

Wong Pao Er: If you look, really look, at the modern laws surrounding marriage, it's all stick and no carrot for men. {statistics, anecdotes, etc}. Surely attempting to get a man you love to sign this kind of contract is bourgeois counterrevolutionary behaviour. Perhaps a communist alternative would be for members of the proletariat to cohabit and act as a committed couple without signing capitalist papers that strip rights from the people.

Someone: But what if he leaves you? Without marriage, you have no protection against this.

Wong Pao Er: If a legal contract is the only thing that stops him abandoning you, the marriage is already dead.

Exchange gradually increasing in heat, Gang of Five bans Wong Pao Er for "being a lackey of the capitalist running dogs"

1.5 years of silence...

Escalating tension as the Men's and Women's cadres of the Red Brigade talk shit about each other, and are increasingly unwelcome on the other side of the line.

Gang of Five: Chairman Mao, could we be made mods in askThePeoplesDaily? We could help you take care of the place. It needs some work.

Chairman Mao: I have some doubts, but some of these plans seem good, let's give it a trial run.

Gang of Five immediately bans Wong Pao Er from askThePeoplesDaily.

Politburo: Holy shit, you banned one of the founders of the Chinese Communist Party ? You can't just go and do that.

Politburo unbans Wong Pao Er, unmods Gang of Five, bans Gang of Five.

Chairman Mao: Okay, both of you, this ends now. The Gang of Five is unbanned from askThePeoplesDaily. Wong Pao Er is unbanned from the Women's Cadre Discussion Group. We're all good communists, and we need to engage in vigorous debate over Marxist principles, not purge each other like greedy capitalists. Letting a hundred flowers blossom and a hundred schools of thought contend is the policy for promoting progress in the arts and the sciences and a flourishing socialist culture in our land.

Gang of Five: Chairman Mao is forcing us to be revisionist Trotskyites! We will retreat to the island of Taiwan, where we can practice good Marxist-Leninist social doctrine!

Wong Pao Er: The tensions were always there, and this needed solving, but if you hadn't tried to throw your weight around in askThePeoplesDaily... none of this would have happened to you.

We now return you from communist China, and this amusing little tale of an attempted power grab gone wrong.

The moral of this story? You can decide that for yourself, but I might suggest that marginalized groups should avoid infighting. Because when communists fight, capitalists win.

380

UPVOTES

Avoiding the Tradcon Trap

8 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You can't spin plates all your life.

Not because you literally can't (some of y'all smooooothe muthafuckas), but because sooner or later, you're not going to want to.

Most men, with the occasional rare exception, are at some point in their lives going to want something more from a girl than a sexy body to ejaculate into.

That's where the shit gets dangerous. Because while y'all know enough not to LTR the town bicycle, there's another kind of woman out there who we need to talk about. Because while everyone knows crazy hoes will ruin your shit, there are other ways for your life to suck.

I'm talking about traditionalist conservative ("tradcon") women.

On the surface, this kind of woman looks like a good deal. She certainly talks a lot about doing the things that men want an LTR to do... keeping a low N count, being faithful and loyal to her man, acting submissive, treating his needs as important, etc.

Listen to her long enough, and some of y'all weak muthafuckas will tear up, decide she's a unicorn, and promote her to LTR right away. Some of them are good at talking that shit.

Not a good plan.

Why not?

Isn't an old-timey marriage, with a sweet, affectionate wife, a cozy home, and maybe some children something that many men want? It's not all fantasies about being a rockstar and nailing groupies. Hell, we get some guys in askTRP who can't get even get it up with on an ONS, because that's just not their thing.

Yes, many men want this, but that doesn't mean that is what is actually on offer.

You see, what the tradcon woman wants is the deal women had 100 years ago, or at least, the parts that are good for her. So she tells you, "marry me, and I will be a good wife to you".

If this were true, great. But she wants you to take her word for it.

This ignores the single greatest and most fundamental piece of redpill writing ever. (There's also a study guide.)

If you haven't read and understood the Bitch Management Hierarchy already, please leave class and go report to the Tutoring Center for remedial class.

The rest of you know that the basic point is that trust is earned, not demanded. The reason that a woman must earn her way up the Bitch Management Hierarchy is that you only find out what she is really like by observing her behaviour over time.

Anyone can say anything, only actions tell the truth.

The tradcon woman who says "Marry/commit to me before sex" is attempting to buy her way to the top of the Hierarchy with nothing more than a promise. And anyone can say anything.

We refer to this phenomenon as Ladder Jumping.

Only two things can make a woman worthy of any trust at all:

1. She knows that breaking that trust will result in immediate, dire, and unavoidable punishment.
2. She has been observed, over a long period of time, to value her investment in the person extending that trust.

Why did this work 100 years ago? Because wedding vows were enforced. A woman knew that breaking her promise would result in ostracism, social death, and poverty. Case 1.

But case 1 is dead now. Society will not enforce wedding vows. Instead, it reward her for breaking them with cash and prizes. Your money, your house, your kids, attention, love, sympathy, etc.

So we move to case number 2. The Bitch Management Hierarchy. We make women earn that trust. And this is the deal that the tradcon woman attempts to decline. Her doctrine tells her to avoid sex before commitment with you, to avoid risking her N-count. But where does this risk go?

The risk is shifted to you. Instead of her having to be "all-in", and betting that she can inspire you to want commitment, you assume the risk by committing to her before having any idea how she will handle that trust. How does that deal sound to you? You want that deal?

Ya wanna throw everything you've learned out the window because some bitch pinkie-swears she's a unicorn? Didn't think so. If she's a unicorn, she can prove it just like everyone else, and not need to cut to the front of the line.

If she says she's "saving it for marriage", or "only has sex in a relationship", laugh it off, treat it as ASD, and escalate the same way.

Women are women, no matter what values they give lip service to.

Ignore what women say, watch what they do.

#Whisper

I have a Bitcoin donation address: 1DChc2Az13zGHbZcwBwPG42jL9B8SuktdD.

It's there because I resent reddit passing the hat after I speak, and then giving me a gold sticker and keeping the hat for themselves.

Donate, or don't, as you wish, but please do not gild.

- Men want women with a low (ideally zero) partner count.
- Men want women to leap into bed with them as soon as possible.

We know both of these things to be true because we see them every day. And when we see both, we are confused. Surely men make no sense at all! Aren't these two things contradictory?

And our whole society is caught in a war between two cultures.

The tradcon side, which is slowly losing, says

- "Men, you must give up the desire for a woman to sexually surrender quickly... instead, you must invest time and resources in her, make her promises you cannot easily break, before she will give you what you desire."
- "Women, you must restrain your desires and be calculating. It is your job to test a man's commitment to you and make him jump through many hoops (ideally on fire) before he gets access to your precious lady parts."

The liberal side, which is slowly winning, says

- "Men, you must give up your desire not to marry the town bicycle. You must learn to cherish women who were ploughed bny the entire football team at the same drunken party, and that was just the begining. Women own their own sexuality... they also own your reaction to what they just did; make sure it's the approved one."
- "Women, do whatever you want. We'll make sure the men are docile and obedient."

The tiny, unnoticed redpill side rolls its eyes, and says:

- You cannot tell men to "give up" this or that desire. Desire is not a choice. Desire cannot be negotiated. If men want both these things, then the girl who achieves the most of both will have the most desireable men.
- And here's a long complicated explanation of why these things can coexist, which lots of people will read and not understand.

So the liberal and tradcon answers are just plain wrong.

And the red pill answer has too much boring math.

Time to simplify.

Why do men want low-count women? Why do men want sexually eager women?

Passion. Men want women who are passionate about them.

A woman who is passionate about a man does not consult her girlfriends about what an "acceptable" amount of time to "make him wait" is. A woman who is passionate about a man does not bargain the promise of her body for a wedding, like some jaded whore negotiating a "session". A woman who is passionate about a man will find a way to reach his bed. She will fly across the country, crawl under barbed wire, climb in through his second story window, do everything he desires, and wait patiently inside his closet if his wife comes home early from work.

Women do not withhold sex from men they are passionate about. A woman is not passionate about a man if she withholds sex from him. Unless she is seriously physically ill, or on fire at that very moment, she is ready when he is.

Similarly, a woman who has tasted a hundred men over her thirty years of life is not going to be enthralled by the hundred and first. Not only is the experience far from new or unique, he is unlikely to be the best or most attractive man she has had, since she was younger, more beautiful, and more innocent before, and could command the attention of a better variety of man.

Women are generally the most passionate about their first partner, and gradually less so with each new one. This is not their first rodeo.

Now we understand how these two male desires are NOT contradictory. They are actually the SAME desire... the desire to be both loved, and lusted after, passionately, utterly, and completely.

When a woman has a high partner count, a man asks himself "None of them kept her... why should I?".

When a woman delays, withholds, and asks for promises or time, a man says "She is cool-headed enough about me to negotiate. To enforce a policy. She regards sex with me as a price to pay for what she wants... not a joy she urgently desires."

In fact, if a woman delays sex to avoid risk to her partner count, because a low count makes her more attractive, just who is this low count making her more attractive to?

It makes her more attractive to other men. It does nothing for him. He of course expects to increase her count by one, because he wishes to be that one. If she hedges, then she is saying to him "I don't want to risk being less sexy, or less commitment-worthy, to the next guy."

She is already looking past him and the relationship hasn't even started yet. She is not "all in" with him, and he knows that.

Why would he be committed to her, when she is not committed to him?

But what is a woman to do about all this? How can she be passionate, and unrestrained, with men, without destroying her value from an accumulation of failures?

This, I will discuss in Part Two.

Last time I spoke about the apparent contradiction between men pressing for sex (and not wanting to be put off), and men wanting partners with low n-counts. And how these are actually two manifestations of the same male desire for a passionate, involved partner.

So, it may not be hypocrisy, but it still leaves today's young woman with a problem. She cannot simply treat men like slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the relationship jackpot... because with each pull, her odds get worse. Entering into a series of sexual relationship, and simply hoping each one will be "the one that works out" is foolish.

Every time a woman goes to bed with a man, she takes a risk, and makes an investment. Getting to lifelong, happy relationship, with the best possible man, is about managing this risk, and maximizing returns on her investment.

So, answering the question, "What is there?" leads to "What shall we do about it?"

The Final Exam.

"The moment after I first bedded a girl, that is when I would meet her for the first time."

The man who once told me this knew what he was talking about... he had loved a lot of women, some for a single night, some for years, one until breast cancer finally took her in the twilight of both their lives.

It took me a while to understand what he was talking about, but I eventually did. When a young woman meets a man, she naturally asks herself "Is he serious about me, or does he simply desire my body?" What she often doesn't realize is that such is the power of the male sex drive that often he doesn't know, himself.

Simply put, many men, in the first stages of getting to know a woman, are wearing "lust goggles". Couple this with the fact that male emotions are dimmed down to the point that many men are unaware of their emotional state from moment to moment, and you get a man who simply doesn't know what he wants yet. He may say he wants a relationship. He may even believe it. He may try hard for weeks or months. But the true test is how much emotional attachment remains when the "horny goggles" are off.

When sexual desire is out of the equation, whatever remains is emotional attachment.

So:

- The first "moment after" is like getting your grade back on the final exam.
- You are just now seeing the results of what you did up to this point.
- He, too, is just now seeing the results.
- If he's edging towards the door, or edging you towards the door, you failed.
- If he's spooning and nuzzling, it's more likely you passed.

Nothing is finalized until those "horny goggles" come off, and promises or facebook statuses don't change this. Men do not leave you because they "didn't pinkie swear". Men leave you if they are unhappy with who you are, or what the deal is.

So, given that the goal is the best possible relationship, with the best possible man, lasting indefinitely if possible, then there are a few obvious implications of this metaphor.

1. Don't take tests if you don't care about the class.

Never have sex with a man if you are not passionate about him, and specifically him. If you want an orgasm, get a vibrator. If you want attention, get a dog. If you are lonely, go hang out with friends. If you want to feel pretty, get a makeover. If you're not sure you're into him, and you want to test it and see, then you're not into him, and you _____ should stop wasting his time. Any relationship that you do not enter into out of urgent desire for that specific man is a bad risk.

2. Don't take tests if you don't know the material and haven't studied.

If "how to be a keeper" is an abstract idea to you, if you don't really know what it means to "be feminine", if you find yourself arguing with men instead of charming them, then you are not relationship-ready, and you need to be in monk mode, working on that, before you gamble on your relationship readiness.

3. Don't take tests unless you are prepared to take responsibility for the results.

If you are focusing on "searching for a commitment-minded man", "finding a trustworthy man", or "making sure he's not a player", then you are shifting responsibility. Getting to sex is men's responsibility, but getting to relationship is yours. There's a reason why we think a college student who complains that "the test was too hard" is a lazy, irresponsible lout.

4. Don't take any class that you are not good enough to pass.

Condemning men as "players" is shifting responsibility, but also be aware that any woman can have sex with a man that is out of her league for relationships. If you know your girl game isn't good enough to reel him in, let him swim past.... even though you know you could get him in bed. Some players are too good for you. Don't like that? Become better.

5. Be prepared to take the test when it's scheduled, or drop the class.

The purpose of a test is to assess your ability. If you tell the professor you need extra time to study, or you will fail, you are telling him you deserve to fail. If things are getting hot and heavy, and you have to put on the brakes and say "not yet, I need you to commit to me more", then he knows you're thinking you can't pass the test. You are telling him right up front your girl game isn't good enough, and that he won't want to stay without a binding promise in the mix.

6. Choose your university carefully.

Nightclub University gives tests on the first day of class. Maybe if your girl game is really tight, you can pass, but that's risky. Thirsty Beta University gives easy tests after a long class, but who the hell wants a degree from TBU? Fundamentalist Bible College doesn't give very hard tests at all, in fact, sometimes it gives you a passing grade before the test, but it only admits fundamentalists, and commits you to a career in the church. The Homewrecker School of Married Men lets you delay tests, but only a handful of women have ever successfully graduated, and they are not very popular.

Some good schools include Social Circle State, which gives slightly more study time and degree programs are pre-vetted for prestige and career impact. And the Workplace Crown College uses a unique model of allowing students to observe classes for some time before declaring the intent to take them. Clever students will think of other examples.

Key Takeaway points:

- Turning sex into a relationship is your responsibility, not his.
- Relationships are only truly tested after sex has begun.
- Putting men off when they think it's about time damages your prospects. (You are visibly not passionate about him.)

- Prefer nexting men over delaying them. You are either all-in, or you're out.
- Balance risks and rewards.
- The venue you meet in a man in has a lot of impact. Choose wisely.

248

UPVOTES

Goldilocks and the Three Metabolic Pumps. (Trigger Warning: Science!)

26 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's time we had another conversation about how not to be fat, pulling together all the previous information for the new guys.

There are three separate mechanisms that add fat to your body, both in the form of new fat cells (de novo lipogenesis), and adding fat to existing adipose tissue.

Think of them as three pumps which generate fat. Each one is fueled by a different material. We'll summarize each one, and link to more detailed discussion.

The first pump is the Fructose Pump. It runs on a specific sugar called fructose, which is present in sucrose (your standard white table sugar), high fructose corn syrup (obviously), fruit (in smaller amounts), and anything sweetened with either of these (including natural fruit juice).

This pump is the most powerful, and it has no shut-off point. Furthermore, the more it runs, the more powerful it becomes.

This where landwhales come from. You can learn, in detail, how it works, here:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dBnniua6-oM>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ceFyF9px20Y>

The second pump is the Starch Pump. It runs on glucose, another kind of sugar, found in grains (bread, pasta), potatoes, and pretty much anything starchy.

It is moderately powerful, and it drives body fat up, but reaches a point of diminishing returns.

This is where "a couple of extra pounds" comes from. You can read about it here:

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/353buo/eating_101_fork_use_for_dummies/

The third pump is the Weak Pump, also known as the thermodynamic pump. It runs on pretty much anything that has any calories and raw materials at all.

It is weak, and it has a low shut-off point, because it is a deliberate body process whose goal is to keep you above a certain fat percentage, for your health. However, sometimes we wish to slow this pump, too, because the idea of a "healthy reserve" that you have in a society surrounded by food, is different than that of a body evolved under conditions where you might not catch a wildebeast this week.

This is your "calories in - calories out" mechanism. It actually uses the starch pump to work, by synthesizing glucose to feed into it. Yes, your body will synthesize glucose itself if you don't eat enough. Your body needs glucose. Just not an infinite amount of it.

It makes the difference between "athletic" and "super cut bodybuilder".

So, what to do about all this?

Know which pump is causing your problem. For example, if you are drinking lots of soda or fruit juice, and you are 25% fat, don't bother counting calories, because that's messing with the Weak Pump, when your problem is the Fructose Pump.

Shut pumps down in order. Not all at once. If you try to shut them down all at once, you will white-knuckle it for a while, then fail. Your body knows how to make you hungry.

Don't mess with the Weak Pump until you're ready. You don't need to calorie restrict to get to 15% bodyfat, or even 12. Go hard keto first.

Be careful with the Weak Pump. No, you won't starve yourself to death. Nobody's that dumb. But if you calorie restrict too much, you are taking away what your body needs to feed those carefully built muscles (you ARE lifting, aren't you?), and you will do yourself more harm than good. Do not run large deficits.

Cheat days should feed lower pumps in preference to higher ones.

606

UPVOTES

Rule #6a

5 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Most of you are familiar with early proto-red pill material from the pre-TRP manosphere. If you aren't, you should be. Go read. Without Rollo Tomassi, the Book of Pook, and so on, we would not be here today. Don't just skim the sidebar. Read it, follow the links, read, lather rinse repeat.

Today, we will be revisiting one of the basics: Iron Rule of Tomassi #6.

Women are incapable of loving men in a way that a man idealizes is possible, in a way he thinks she should be capable of.

Read it, because the devil is in the details:

She's not incapable of love in the way she defines it, she's incapable of love as you would have it. She doesn't lack the capacity for connection and emotional investment, she lacks the capacity for the connection you think would ideally suit you.

Now it's time to refine it from the benefit of our additional five years of understanding:

Iron Rule #6a: If women cannot love you the way you want to be loved, then you want the wrong kind of love.

That's right, it's your fault, not theirs. Women are creatures of emotion and instinct, and what they do precedes from who they are. If you expect women to love you in a way they cannot, you are trying to teach a canary to talk, or a parrot to sing.

How do women love?

There are two kinds of love: Respectful Love, and Protective Love.

Protective love is the love of a superior for an inferior. It is not repelled by weakness or vulnerability. It does not serve, submit, or give up power. It controls, dominates, and protects. It will sacrifice safety and comfort for the benefit of its object, but never dignity. It concerns itself with the welfare of its object, but not with the object's whims or commands.

The Flow of Protective Love is:

Man -> Woman -> Child

Respectful love is the love of an inferior for a superior. It is inspired by strength and self-assurance, and destroyed by weakness or vulnerability. It serves, submits, and gives up power, but does not control, dominate, or protect. It will sacrifice dignity for its object. It concerns itself with the whims or demands, but never the welfare, of its object.

The Flow of Respectful Love is:

Child -> Woman -> Man

Men who want Protective Love from women are broken men. They are idealizing their mothers' love towards them, noticing that it is identical to the love they feel for women, and deciding that's what love is. But such men will never be loved at all until they learn of the existence of Respectful Love, and figure out how to inspire it.

Your woman will never count up the sacrifices you make for her, tally them, mark them, and respond with gratitude, for the same reason that a child will never spontaneously notice the sacrifices of a parent. Monitoring your state, and putting herself in your shoes, would be a Protective act. Parents who have grateful children are not the ones who have made great sacrifices for their children, but the ones who have taught their children to honor and respect them, and show that gratitude.

This is why you must learn to rule your woman, or she will rule you. Because if you love her, she must love you also, else you are her slave. And if you do not rule over her, if you are not superior to her, she will see you as a child in the body of a man, and any affection she ever holds for you will also be blended with contempt.

Women are capable of love. They are capable of self-sacrifice. They are capable of devotion. But to receive it, you must abandon ideals from your mother. You must put away childish things. You must stop expecting women to sympathize with you or be concerned for your safety or welfare. Instead, you must decide for yourself what your needs are, and demand them as a condition of your protection and care.

362

UPVOTES

50% is a Failing Grade.

10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

One of the common themes that detractors use to concern troll TRP is the issue of marriage.

"Don't you want to get maaaaaaaaaaaarried someday?"

"How are you going to have baaaaaaaaaaaaabiez?"

"A unicorn will never settle for anything less than a ring!"

"You can't fuck sluts all your life!"

"You are shallow!"

"MY marriage is teh awesums!"

"Man up!"

To which we can only say, no, we're not, there are no unicorns, just watch us, so what, we're happy for you, and a tool is not a man. Respectively.

We hear a whole lot of things about how marriage is good for women (and therefore quality ones will insist on it!), how marriage is good for "your" kids (and you want what's best for "your" kids, right?), how marriage is good for society (man up and save it, you slacker!), how marriage is good for humanity, etc, etc, etc, blah, blah, blah.

Of course, what you won't hear is anything about how marriage is good for you. Not because they wouldn't love to tell you. If they had a slum dunk case, they'd deliver it. If they had so much as a talking point, they'd repeat. But they don't.

There are a lot of people out there who urgently want you to accept marriage as an inevitable stage of life, whether it's because they want you to support the female sexual imperative, or to validate their poor life choices, or to support their religious beliefs, or save society for their children, or whatever.

These people aren't bad salesmen. The reason their pitch sucks is that their product sucks. They have to sell you something that's useless to you.

So what do they do? They try to shame you into it.

- They tell you it's the red pill on hard mode (implying "what kind of pansy plays on easy mode?").
- They tell you all the risks and drawbacks don't materialize for someone who is "alpha enough" (implying that if you care about any of that, you're just not "alpha enough").
- They tell you that without kids, you lose the evolution game (oh, goodness, I don't want to be loser! Wait, what's the prize, again?).

They tell you that if you don't do this, you're not good enough.

But there's something they'd like you to forget about:

50%

And that, my friends, is the elephant in the room. We call it an elephant, because I don't have to tell you what 50% means. You already know. No one's gonna ask "50% of what?" "50% do what?" All I do is say "50%", and you know exactly what I am talking about.

50% means it's not you. 50% means it has nothing to do with you, or how "alpha you are". 50% means the system is broken.

50% is a failing grade. 50% means that somewhere, somehow, something has gone terribly wrong.

And these concern trolls would have you believe that only thing has gone wrong, and that's men not being alpha enough.

Well, Mick Jagger got divorced.

Michael Jordan got divorced.

Evander Holyfield got divorced.

"Sugar" Shane Mosley's divorce rapist got his championship belts.

How do you fancy your chances now, Mr. Red Pill Guy? How alpha do you think you are? How many more corpses do you need to see?

So, does it make sense to discuss marriage? Sure. The discussion of marriage is "red pill damage control strategy". After all, if you already screwed up, you don't just lie down and die. Some guys make it work. Some guys get lucky.

But don't let anyone concern troll you into screwing up.

If someone tells you to do something, they better tell you how it helps you. Because "what's a matter? You skkkkeeeeerd?" stopped working on you when you hit puberty.

WARNING: THIS POST IS PURE THEORY AND CONTAINS NO ACTIONABLE ADVICE OTHER THAN "Don't get married, dumbass". Read only if you are curious.

So, you already know you need to avoid getting married in any modern western society, no matter how good the woman is. And you know why. If you don't, you have some reading to do. But, having established all that, and knowing what to do, and why, some questions still remain.

Most importantly, how did we get this way? Who broke marriage?

It wasn't feminists. It wasn't feminism. In fact, far from being the cause of the destruction of marriage-based society, feminism may very well be an effect of that collapse.

After all, you don't think that after hundreds upon thousands of generations of women being women, we suddenly got blue-haired hippos with cat glasses spontaneously and for no reason at all, do you? Suddenly decided to start hating men?

No. The fundamental change that broke marriage is something else. And when there is a sudden, sweeping, permanent, and global change in human society, there's only possible culprit... because only one human process runs in one direction only, never fails or falters, and spreads everywhere given time.

Some of you are already nodding your heads. It's technology. Science. Good old clever-monkey know-how.

Why? There are several pieces.

- Western Lifelong Bilaterally Monogamous Marriage 1.0 (which is what we are focusing on here) is sexual communism. Both parties sacrifice their optimal strategy in return for a safety net, and a stable society.
 - Men must sacrifice their urge to mate with every available female who is a 5.1 or greater, but they are guaranteed to be allowed to mate with one woman who isn't much lower than them on the desirability scale.
 - Women must sacrifice the chance to fuck Chad, be supported by Brad, and keep Thad in the dark about the whole business, but they get lifelong commitment, guaranteed.
 - Unlike economic communism, sexual communism is not inherently bad and unworkable. This is because the enterprise and initiative that economic communism sacrifices is a public good that flows to everyone, but the sexual success that sexual communism sacrifices is a private good which only benefits Chad, and Alice (AFBB).
 - However, like economic communism, sexual communism can only survive when it's the only game in town. Communism only works when everyone is a good communist.
 - In any economic communist system, the majority of those who produce more value than they receive in an equal share will opt out if given the chance, and keep that value for themselves. This slowly destroys the system unless the top is unable to escape.
 - In a sexually communist system, a similar dynamic will happen with Chad and Alice. The highly competitive players will always tend to move to the game that most rewards winning. Winners don't like low ceilings, and communism imposes a low ceiling in order to create a high floor.
 - The Tradcons were right about "destroying marriage". Marriage can only survive when it is enforced as an institution by society, never as one of a list of options. Gay marriage destroys marriage. Promiscuity destroys marriage. Single motherhood destroys marriage. Fornication destroys marriage. Because everything that isn't marriage destroys marriage.

But society did enforce marriage as an institution. It was held up as the sole outlet for sexual release. Anything else was frowned upon and ostracized when it wasn't outright punishable by law. Even if you did it, you had to hide it.

But the world has moved on... we are all villains now.

Why? The second piece:

- Economics controls the age at which people become independent adults.
 - There are several "adulthoods" that happen at different ages: The age of sexual maturity, the age of legal sexual consent, the age of legal adulthood, the age of economic independence, and the age of economic surplus... by which I mean the age at which one can afford a home and children.
 - The first age, sexual maturity, is firmly fixed by biological processes we have no control over. It is 12-13. It is when sexual desire emerges in a clear, unambiguous, and irrepressible way.
 - The second two ages, legal consent, and legal majority are consciously set by people, either with laws or social mores where laws are absent. They are often set as a response to the other ages, consciously or unconsciously. They are less important for this discussion.
 - The age of economic independence is the age at which the average working adult, with typical skills, and no rare talents, can support themselves financially.
 - The age of economic surplus is the age at which that same adult can afford to have a home, and support dependents.
 - The age of sexual maturity is when most people start wanting sex. But the age of economic surplus is when people can afford to get married.

And the third:

- Technology produces information economies.
 - An information and service economy requires longer to train for than an industrial economy, which requires longer than an agrarian economy, which requires longer than hunting and gathering.
 - The more sophisticated the skillset required for economic productivity, the longer the delay before a new adult can be economically productive.
 - Technology stretches the gap between sexual maturity and marriage.

And the fourth, and final piece:

- The sexual urge can only be delayed briefly, never denied.
 - Once the average person hits sexual maturity, the clock is ticking. The further from that point in time you look, the greater percentage of them will have had sexual intercourse.
 - If marriage can occur at 15-16, most people can wait. This can happen when you live in a small farming village, land is close to free, and your neighbors get together to help you build your house.
 - If marriage occurs at 26-30, almost no one can wait. Virgin brides become a thing of the past.
 - A thing becomes socially acceptable when a lot of people do it. If a lot of people are having sex outside marriage, then sex outside marriage becomes socially acceptable.

So now we put it together:

- Western Lifelong Bilaterally Monogamous Marriage 1.0 can only survive if non-marital sex is socially unacceptable.
- People can't afford to get married early in a modern technological economy.
- If people can't get married early, non-marital sex will become socially acceptable, because hormones don't give a shit about the real estate market.
- When this happens, marriage begins to crumble, very, very slowly, but very, very inevitably, as alternatives become more widespread.

Conclusion: Marriage 1.0 was doomed by technological advancement, long before feminism came along.

The only thing feminism did to Marriage 1.0 was perform an unholy ritual to turn its corpse into Marriage 2.0, a vile zombie nightmare that shambles about looking like its former self, but only existing to devour those it once loved.

The question of "Could marriage be truly resurrected?" will be left for a later article.

641

UPVOTES

Urbanism, Ruralism, and Dunbar's Number

9 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Take a good look at this picture. (Be careful, though. Erections that last longer than four hours can be damaging.)

But I am not here to gloat, and TRP is not here for "saving society", even if it actually proves possible after all. (I'm still a little skeptical. SJW tears are tasty, though.) TRP is here to empower the individual, and nothing empowers like understanding.

So examine the picture closely. Come on, look again. See anything enlightening?

Yeah, the title gives it away. This picture explains what liberals and conservatives really are. Liberalism is urbanism. Conservatism is ruralism.

Political views are a direct function of population density.

Both groups see the other as fundamentally insane because their different surroundings lead to completely different notions of what society is. The difference, in this context, between "rural" and "urban" is that a living situation becomes "urban" when the number of people they must directly get along with in their daily lives exceeds approximately 148.

This special ~148 is called Dunbar's Number. It's an approximate limit to the number of people the normal human brain can sustain individual psychological models of, for the purpose for maintaining a functioning social relationship.

When that functioning social relationship is maintained, elaborate and formalized rules for social are not necessary. Each relationship can be negotiated on an individual basis using communication both subtle and overt. Overarching rules are unnecessary, and no one uses them, because they lack precision. One size fits nobody.

But when there are too many different individuals around for every single person to have a mental model, not only of that person, but of how they relate to the others, then something breaks. Relationships can no longer be negotiated, interactions can no longer be personal. Suddenly, people start needing rules, and rules means authorities to make them, and praetorians to enforce them.

I'm sure intelligent readers can see plenty of other ramifications at this point.

Thus, ruralists have relationships, not rules and urbanists have rules, not relationships. The implications for sexual strategy are numerous, but the most important is this:

Slutty behaviour is an inevitable result of urbanism. Giving free rein to hypergamous instincts and AF/BB strategy allows a woman to satisfy sexual instincts and maximize resource gifts from males, but its drawback (from the female point of view) is that it destroys relationships (both with men, and with the social network in general). In an urban, and urbanist, environment, a woman can replace damaged relationships with new ones, as there are plenty of strangers around, and people are social networks tend to be wide, but shallow (many, but weak, bonds).

Ruralist environments, by contrast, restrain hypergamy. Women in these environments are dependent on the social network not only for status, but for survival, and social networks tend to be sparse, but deep (few, but strong, bonds). This means damaging relationships with hypergamy is unsustainable, because those damaged relationships are more valuable, and cannot be easily replaced.

So what's good for men?

It depends what you want. Unchecked hypergamy is good for you if you are looking for sex with as many different women as possible with as low as possible an investment of time, effort, and money... but it sucks if you want an LTR. If hypergamy is kept strictly in check, then there are more good candidates for LTRs, but a critical shortage of sluts.

This matters because opportunity rules everything. No matter how tight your same-night-lay game is, you're going to strike out with the Amish. No matter how alpha-male you are in your relationship, hoes gonna ho. To get what you want, learn the skills you need, but also place yourself where those things happen.

461

UPVOTES

Yes, Virginia, you do have to be an asshole.

20 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

First they called you all delusional for thinking such boorish behaviour might work.

Then they swore that these "tricks" would never, ever, ever work on them, because they weren't "party sluts".

Now the bleating has taken on a tone of:

Is[n't] there a way for men to look out for their own interests without being so savage/harsh/brutal to women?

... to which you, being sane, introspective, analytical sorts of young men, are tempted to respond with something like:

It's not savage[,] it's simply looking out for your own interests. A guy who has standards like this is unfortunately seen as some sort of devil. Anything that is pro-male or doesn't put the woman first is considered heinous in today's society.

Stop that.

You're supposed to agree and amplify. But you don't, because, deep down, you're not an asshole, and you don't want to be an asshole.

Well, crush that dream.

You have to be willing to do, and be, evil. Why?

Because this:

Anything that is pro-male or doesn't put the woman first is considered heinous in today's society.

... is dead wrong.

It is not "today's society" that regards male self-preservation as heinous. This isn't a plot cooked up by leftists, or feminists, or communist infiltrators seeking to sap and impurify our precious bodily fluids.

It is hardwired into the human genome. Human beings, both male and female, are hardwired to be more sympathetic to girls. Tribes that didn't protect their women via male self-sacrifice died out.

This is not only built into everyone out there calling you an asshole, it is also built into you. And it requires extensive brainwashing, internal or external, to overcome. That's what we do here.

Unless you are comfortable not only being called the bad guy, but actually being him, you will never be able to put your own interests before those of some chick you met three days who doesn't give a shit about you unless she wants your dick, attention, or money. That's how people are. That's how you are.

So, the real answer, the factual answer, the analytical answer, to this new question:

Is[n't] there a way for men to look out for their own interests without being so savage/harsh/brutal to women?

... is simply

"No."

Because "harsh/savage/brutal to women" simply means "men looking out for their own interests". Not only to feminists. Not only to our society. Not only to women. But to everyone.

The answer to give when asked can, of course, be selected from:

- Meh, don't care. Gettin' laid.
- Yep, am an asshole. Was raised by wolves.
- Don't recall asking your opinion.
- We prefer the term "Ethically Challenged".
- Gaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaay!

... or any other response that indicates you don't give a shit.

1,274
UPVOTES

You're not good enough, you're not smart enough, and people don't like you.

29 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I punched a girl right in the mouth once.

Long story short, she was convinced she was the greatest martial-arts trained badass that any of us poor scrubs had ever seen, and she quite insisted on starting a sparring match with me. Wouldn't take no for an answer. Okay, whatever.

First gentle lob I threw, easy, relaxed, telegraphed to hell... pow, canvas.

I was surprised as hell. Expected her to parry it easily.

And there she sat holding her face in her hands, looking for all the world as if she was waiting for everyone to flutter around her and fan her fevered brow. When none of this was forthcoming (after a very awkwardly long time indeed), she rose to her feet and mumbled something about ...

(and I shit you not, she said this)

... how she had been down trying to control her temper after being hit because she'd didn't want to lose control and hurt anyone.

She so desperately wanted to be like the cool ninja chicks she saw in movies and comic books that she was unwilling and unable to acknowledge the gap between what she was and what she wanted to be. So instead of training hard for years and years and years, she half-assed it for a little while, then started working at convincing everyone, herself included, that she was already there.

...

Okay, now finish up your little laugh about how silly and childish women are, because now we have to talk about how some of you assholes do the same damn thing.

You think your game is good enough. It isn't.

You think you're fit enough from calisthenics. Your "general fitness" is an excuse for being weak.

You think you don't have to train MMA or Thai boxing or karate, because you "don't wanna end up like Muhammed Ali", as if anyone would let your slow ass get into the ring with Joe Frazier. You just don't wanna get hit, because you are a pussy.

Anytime you are afraid of doing something, your treacherous ego will always find a way to tell you are either already good at it, or that you don't need to be good at it.

You will never become the person you want to be until you admit you are not him, and are more afraid of staying that way than you are of the work you're going to have to do.

People keep asking "When will I become confident, and not have to fake it?" Answer is, never. Not if you know what's good for you.

When you can deadlift 300 lbs, compare yourself to the people who deadlift 400, and focus on them until you feel like shit. When you can do 400, compare yourself to the people who lift 500, until you feel like shit again. When you hit 850, compare yourself to Eddie fucking Hall.

Greatness is driven by the fear of mediocrity. The moment you think you are good enough, you will never be any better.

There is no light at the end of the tunnel. There is no magical nirvana that you will break through into, where nothing will ever be hard again. There are only standards, and effort, and improvement, or complacency, weakness, and self-delusion.

Your choice. But don't make excuses for how you are too afraid of being hit in the face.

829

UPVOTES

Pussy is a Commodity.

15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So, now that our own Uncle Vasilya has troubled to explain to the class how not to be a disgusting loser despite having loads of money and power (go read), the next step is to understand how people get that way.

It certainly looks like a puzzler, when you think about. A premium class whore costs about $500 an hour. Two at once cost $1000. Double that, hell, multiply it tenfold, and anyone who's a major player in Hollywood can afford as much of that action as he wants.

So, even if you're ugly, even if you have no game, even if you look like Jabba the fucking Hutt, you still have two smoking hot pros at once, anytime you want, who will do whatever you want, right away, and fuck right the hell off afterwards.

That sounds like a pretty good deal even to those of you who can pull at will, doesn't it?

So why, oh why, do men with that much money still act like thirsty losers?

Why?

Mindset. Neediness. Ego.

Make no mistake, most or all of these girls (and probably boys as well) weren't raped in the strictest sense of the word. They held their noses and sucked Weinstein's greasy cock because they knew the money shot was made of Hollywood stardom, and pretty much anyone you see in film or television or hear on the radio is a degenerate whore, or they wouldn't be there in the first place.

But they didn't want to suck that cock. So why wouldn't this asshole at least pay someone whose job it was? Who would suck it harder and suck it better and suck it with a lot more enthusiasm out of sheer professionalism if nothing else?

Mindset. Neediness. Ego.

Harvey Weinstein creeped on starlets rather than paying whores, because if he paid a whore, he would have had to admit to himself that his cock was being sucked for money instead of the thrill of it.

That's right, little Ol' Harv didn't do all this to get sex with hot chicks... he did it to feel like a winner. Deep down, he knows he is an obese undisciplined slob, since he owns a mirror and isn't stupid. Harvey Weinstein ultimately thought of pussy as a yardstick that measured his worth. If he could get enough pussy, he must be a winner at life, right? Because that's what life is all about, right? Trying to climb back into the same sort of hole you crawled out of?

No.

Pussy isn't a yardstick. Pussy isn't a milestone. Pussy isn't an achievement.

Pussy is a commodity. Like potatoes. If you're hungry, you want a potato. If you're horny, you want pussy. You get as much as you want, of the kind you want, with the variety you want, then you fucking stop until the itch comes back.

The meaning of life will never be found inside a vagina. Self-respect will never be found inside a vagina. A sense of purpose and identity will never be found inside a vagina. Happiness will never be found inside a vagina. The only things you will find there are temporary pleasure, and temporary release from your sexual appetites.

Which means that if you don't want to end up like our little friend Harv, you can't get your self-image from how often vapid twentysomethings (whose major interests in life include cute shoes) spread their legs for you. Harvey's plan didn't work, because he just kept having to do it. No matter how many greedy, vapid little teenage sluts licked his sweaty balls then went home to take six showers and cry themselves to sleep, he had to keep doing it, because it didn't help for long.

So what's your mission? What is it that gives meaning to your life? It can be pretty much anything you think is important.

But if you say "popping bottles and fucking models", then have a long hard think. Because pussy is a commodity, like potatoes. Not the measuring stick of greatness, or the source of happiness. Anyone can get women's approval, because women are a herd of sheep. It didn't help Harvey feel better, and it won't help you.

And he is not the only man brought low by overvaluing pussy.

Remember Tiger Woods groveling to some bitch when models were lining up to fuck him? Then getting on TV and apologizing for being the victim of domestic abuse? Remember Shane Mosley's ex wife taking his title belts in court? Bitch can't punch her way out of a paper bag, and she's got four championship belts. Paul McCartney had to write a check for fifty million dollar to some bitch with one leg. How many hot teenagers would have crawled across broken glass for a shot at fucking Paul McCartney for free?

Pussy is something you get sometimes because you like pussy. Pussy is not an achievement.

Go do something you can be proud of.

I'm not done talking about Harvey Weinstein. (The man is just such a goldmine of perfect examples.)

We've talked about what he did wrong. (Mistook situational leverage for SMV.)

And we've talked why what drove him to do it. (Used pussy to stroke his ego, instead of just his johnson.)

But now we come to the question of why everyone in Hollywood sheltered him, then suddenly turned on him, when they knew all along what he was doing.

To understand the answer, we have to understand a couple of facts, and think about them all at the same time, in relation to each other.

- The vast majority of those women were not raped. That wasn't rape. They chose to suck his cock, even if they went home and took six showers and then knelt on the bathroom floor alternately puking and crying.
- The ones who he grabbed who didn't give in still shut up about it.
- All the women who are now accusing him of rape and harassment, are all doing so at the same time. A few did, then the others followed in a cascade.
- Pretty much everyone in Hollywood knew what was going on.
- Hollywood is in the illusion business. To make money, they need people to believe, or suspend disbelief in, certain illusions.
- Beginning on 31 Aug 2014, and over the next few weeks, in an event that would be jokingly labelled "the Fappening", an unknown person or persons leaked naked selfies of a bunch of celebrity actresses.
- The response to this was widespread outrage, ostensibly over their privacy.
- Celebrity actresses frequently get naked on camera on purpose, and this boosts boxoffice draw.
- In professional wrestling, the term "kayfabe" refers to the portrayal of staged events within the industry as "real" or "true", specifically the portrayal of competition, rivalries, and relationships between participants as being genuine and not of a staged or predetermined nature of any kind. Kayfabe has also evolved to become a code word of sorts for maintaining this "reality" within the direct or indirect presence of the general public.

Now we know everything we need to know.

Kayfabe is how Hollywood makes its money. Kayfabe is why no one said anything about Harv for decades, and kayfabe is why they are calling him a rapist now. Kayfabe is why Hollywood was angry about the "Fappening", and kayfabe is why Hollywood actresses get naked on camera at a specific point in their careers, never too early. Kayfabe is why Hollywood stars talk endlessly about how wonderful and amazing and talented the people they just worked with are, and kayfabe is why they got together at big televised ceremonies and give each other trophies for making dull original movies that you went and saw because you were bored and forgot the plot of within the next two days.

So what is Hollywood's kayfabe, exactly?

Hollywood's kayfabe is the collectively-sustained illusion that Hollywood stars are prettier, more exciting, more interesting, larger-than-life people who are special. If you believe this, you will pay more money to see and hear them, and to see and hear about them.

What is the reality that the kayfabe hides?

Hollywood stars are just a bunch of theatre nerds who have been selected for above-average looks and whoever gave ol' Harv the best handjob.

The only special people in Hollywood are the very expert professional makeup and lighting and sound and production folks who are very, very good at taking your average 7.5 - 9 and making her look ethereally beautiful on camera.

The woman in the second two pictures doesn't exist. She is the highlight reel from a makeover shoot by the best illusionists in the world. She is every bit as fake as if she had been constructed entirely from computer graphics. In the future, she might be. Kayfabe.

Hollywood wants you to believe in her.

The "Fappening" was an outrage not because involuntary porn, but because it revealed that celebrity-actresses don't really look any better than the hot secretary at the local car dealership. And that the girls themselves aren't special, either... just another bunch of dumb sexting instagram hoes. Kayfabe.

Harvey was protected before for precisely the same reason he is being thrown under a bus now... to sustain the illusion that these girls were selected for their extraordinary beauty and talent, as opposed to at random (or by casting couch) from a vast pool of relatively ordinary beauty and talent. Kayfabe.

Hollywood talks about how wonderful each other are, and give each other awards for doing their jobs, to make you believe that they are wonderful, and that their jobs are important and meaningful. Kayfabe.

So is kayfabe limited to Hollywood?

Of course not... other groups have their own kayfabe which helps them succeed.

Ever hear a physician criticize another physician in public? You won't. Some idiot could amputate the wrong leg and others of his guild will rush to defend him.

Why? Because closing ranks prevents public contradictions to the perception that physicians are the most highly trained and competent of professionals and deserve to be the only ones called doctor (as if PhDs didn't exist), as opposed to a mixed bag of ordinary dudes doing jobs that require recognizing the same things over and over again, and doing the same things over and over again.

The navy's SEAL teams have amazing kayfabe. They have practically everyone believing they are invincible-warrior-ninja-philosopher-batman, as opposed to high-selected light infantry who have had a lot more money spent on training them.

Why?

Well, how else do you get to cash in when you EAS? How else do you charge premium rates for "management consulting", as if killing muj had anything in common with manufacturing pipe fittings. How else do take one single idea that's obvious to anyone that isn't an idiot, pad it like a procrastinating undergrad into an entire book, and make the bestseller list?

So what happens with groups that don't have a kayfabe? That don't control their image?

Have a look at software engineers.

Unlike physicians, or actors, they have no group loyalty, and will ruthlessly criticize the slightest shortcoming in their fellow professionals' work, right in front of the public, calling them idiots and incompetents and whatever else comes to mind. Go read some Linus Torvalds posts to see what I mean.

Now, the vast majority of experienced ones are actually very good, having been ruthlessly subjected to this gladiatorial pit for the entirety of their careers. However, the public regards them as a bunch of high-paid manchildren who just seem to keep generating bugs (and never noticing when they swipe a credit card, send an email message, punch up satnav, or turn the lights on, and shit just works).

Because they have selected ruthless quality control over kayfabe, their public reputé is lower than their real world competence. For groups with good kayfabe, the reverse is true.

Lessons

- It is often good to exercise kayfabe, but never beneficial to be fooled by it. Be very careful what you take from anything deliberately presented for your consumption.
- If a group is held in high reputé, instead of automatically admiring them, ask yourself if kayfabe might be active. See if you can discern what it is.
- People are more often thrown under a bus for breaking kayfabe than for doing something wrong. Learn to spot that guy, and how not to be him.

Further thought

- Consider how the concept of kayfabe applies both to Donald Trump, and to the politicians who organize resistance against him.
- Consider how the concept of kayfabe applies to the collective behaviour of women. And of men.

So /u/gaylubeoil has called out some pundit I never heard of as a kuchi bushi.

Don't care, never heard of the dude, but this is a real phenomenon. The Red Pill has a set of common beliefs and values, and where you have that, you will always have people trying to preach the values as a way to appear to be living them.

Early Christians, for example, decided that "salvation through faith" rather than "salvation through merit" was the goal, and invented elaborate justifications for it, because actually practicing virtue is hard, but yammering on and on about Jesus is super easy.

The key issue here is teaching as a substitute for doing.

Some men read what other, better men have written, and think that writing the same way will make them better men, or make others think they are better men (which is one and the same to a beta male, since beta males concern themselves with appearances).

They have that backwards.

Saying things doesn't make you a better man. Being a better man causes you to have something to say.

It is easy to spot men who are trying to "become alpha" by talking, because they simply recapitulate what others have said. They have no experience of masculinity to draw fresh insights from. Their writing is unoriginal.

Genuine masculine experiences can be had by:

- Having goals and working to achieve them.
- Seeking control of your environment, rather than allowing it to control you.
- Taking responsibility for your circumstances, and for the distance between them and your desires.
- Gaining knowledge, skill, and wisdom by leaving your comfort zone to seek out new experiences.

When you write from these, your writing will have value, substance, and fresh insights that will inspire others to do the same.

If you write from a desire to write, and to be seen as having written, it's obvious. Every day our mod team deletes reams of trash filled with nothing but empty "moto" bullshit. It usually features the words "brothers", or "gentlemen" a lot.

It's holding you back. Do not focus your ambitions on being the biggest anonymous swinging dick on the internet.

Fix. Your. Life.

Someone asked me in PM for advice on how to attract, not just "men", but particular men she desires, once she's seen them.

This leads us to an area where many modern single girls are particular weak: the approach.

Obviously, approaching a man allows you to make something happen. But many women's immediate reaction to the very idea is "I do not want to approach men." There are a number of reasons for this, some good, some bad, which tend to boil down to this list:

- I don't want to look so starved for male attention that I have to chase men.
- I don't want to look like a slut.
- Men don't like to be approached. They want to do it... right?
- I don't want a man who isn't bold enough to make the first move.
- My ego requires that men do all the work.
- It's men's natural role to approach, not mine.
- Approaching is scary.
- Uh... I don't know how.

Most, if not all of these are based on single misconception.

Approaching or making advances doesn't just mean making a male-style overt pass.

It means any way of starting an interaction that can lead to something.

When a man approaches a woman, the effective way to do that demonstrates masculine virtues: courage, decisiveness, assertiveness, leadership skills, and so forth.

When a woman hears: "You can approach men, go ahead! It's fine! Men like it!", she often thinks of that particular process and either cringes in horror at the thought of acting like that, or naively forges ahead, and chats up dudes as if she were one... at which point they eye her as one would a crazy person or a rabid dog, and start edging away.

There are feminine ways to begin an interaction.

The first tier of this is signalling willingness to be approached. This is mostly done with eye contact, and many women already understand it.

Make eye contact deliberately. Hold for a few seconds. Smile. Break eye contact by dropping the eyes down, not looking away. Repeat. Turn toward him, displaying open body posture. Laugh at lot. Play with your hair.

... this isn't hard stuff. Most every girl knows how to do this.

The rarer skill, which we'll focus on here, is being able to actually open the conversation. There are several elements here:

- You must fabricate an excuse to talk to him.
- This excuse must be an excuse, and not your overt reason.
- This excuse must not be too good... in fact, it should be pretty bad.
- You must continue to fabricate bad excuses to give flirtation time to happen.

The point here is that you are using indirect speech.

He must be aware of your real intent, and he must think that it is about him in particular, not that any man will do, or that you want attention.

If you use an overt reason ("I find you attractive") rather than an excuse ("Can you help me with this homework problem?"), then you have broken the delicate surface tension between "Looks like she's really into me", and "This is weird, why is she acting weird? Is she crazy?". Then you look desperate, or like a slut, or neurotic, or whatever explanation he comes up with for your bizarre behaviour.

However, if your excuse is too good, then he either believes it, or is unsure whether or not it is an excuse. Both are bad. If he believes it, he will focus on the ostensible "purpose" of the interaction, miss any attempts at flirtation you make, and probably leave when the fake task is accomplished. If, for example, he really believes that you just need help with that one homework problem, he'll either focus on math, and leave when you seem to get it, or he'll decline (because he's not your unpaid tutor, and has things to do).

Where most women err here is excuse too subtle. They are often afraid of being too blatant or obvious, and not always aware that men do not speak to each other in subtleties.

There is no such thing as an excuse that's too bad, so long as it is an excuse and not an actual direct statement that you want to continue talking to him because you find him attractive. Remember that he's supposed to see through it, and that's its fine if others see through it as well. This can't be stressed enough. Men often miss what you think of as glaringly obvious, because men do not typically talk to each other that way. If it feels about right, it's too subtle. If it feels embarrassingly obvious, it's probably about right.

Once the conversation begins, and your bad excuses allow it to continue, flirtation has time to happen. If logistics intervene, a bad excuse can be made to resume contact in the future.

1,027
UPVOTESGood news: no one gives a shit about you.

7 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Sometimes a very simple observation can make all the difference.

It wasn't complicated for some dude to observe that gym embarrassment is stupid, because no one is watching you, but that post rocketed up because it's true, and it's important.

So important that we need to talk more about it.

Many of you, many of everyone, are being held back from doing what you want to do by fear of what other people will think.

Hammer this through your tiny brains:

- If you do something that might invite ridicule or hatred, probably no one is watching.
- If they are watching, they probably don't care.
- If they do care, they probably won't say or do anything.
- If they do say or do something, it probably won't stick if you don't act ashamed or apologetic.
- If it does stick, it will only stick until the next shiny object distracts them.

Humans are fantastically unobservant, and fantastically uncaring, because everyone is absorbed in their own lives. The universe is a flood of information, 99.9999999999999999...% of it is irrelevant to us, and our brains must filter it ruthlessly for us to function at all. Every stupid thing you do, every time you fail, everyone moment that you remember and cringe... no one else remembers it. They just don't care enough.

Don't believe me? Think of a friend, fellow student, or co-worker who you see almost every day. What colour shirt was he wearing yesterday?

Yeah, you have no idea.

Still don't believe me? Go to work or school with your shirt on inside-out, with the seams showing. Watch how long it is before someone notices, if anyone ever does. If someone does point it out, look down, shrug, and go "Meh. Oops.", and go right back to what you were doing. Note how fast business as usual resumes.

No one cares if you screw up, not unless you have enemies who are waiting for you to screw up (and you're not Donald Trump or /u/redpillschool, so you don't).

Get this through your head: Publicity is hard. It is almost impossible to get people to care, even when you are putting forth your best efforts to publicize and make them care. The constant scrutiny you are afraid of doesn't exist.

No one is watching.

No one is watching.

No one is watching.

Go do what you were afraid to do.

49

UPVOTES

Ignore the Peanut Gallery

15 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So some Indian dude wrote a Field Report about how he failed hard in all sorts of ways, and why.

That's a good thing. FRs are not for talking about how badass you are, they are for learning, and failure teaches more than success. I won't link him here, critique his technique, target selection, whatever. Basic shit you should already know.

What's important is what he said at the end:

Anything I missed? Thoughts and rational advice are appreciated.

Don't.

Do.

That.

A man who asks for advice from just anyone is saying that some rando's opinion is more valuable than his. He is telling the world he believes himself so lost and at sea that just anyone can put plans into his head. He wears his lack of confidence on his sleeve.

And while there may not be any chicks to impress on TRP, that shit is habit forming.

Asking and taking advice is a mark of respect, and strong men do not hand out respect like Halloween candy. They give it sparingly to those who inspire it.

Randos will always give you advice, whether you ask it or not. But the guys in the cheap seats have not earned the right to be listened to, unless what they just yelled out was spectacular enough in its own right to merit your attention.

This goes double for criticism. It's easy to tell the difference between someone who's got a point that's valuable for helping you improve, and someone who's feeling short-dicked because you have the lectern right now.

Every damn time you open your mouth in public, there's going to be unsolicited advice, and haters. (If there aren't, then everyone is ignoring you because what you said was stupid.) There is absolutely no reason to let some Juicebox Hero command even a microsecond of your attention.

Save it for the people who can convince you they matter.

111

UPVOTES

The 237 Commandments of the Alpha Sperg

6 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1. The Alpha Sperg shall, at all times, be Alpha. Alpha Alpha Alpha Alpha.
2. The Alpha Sperg shall not treat his Asperger's syndrome as a disability, or attempt to unlearn its habits.
3. The Alpha Sperg shall construct simple rules for being Alpha, in the form of a big, long, numbered list.
4. The Alpha Sperg shall show this list to anyone who asks, and everyone who doesn't, because bitches love lists.
5. The Alpha Sperg shall fill his list with Alpha traits, which everyone may emulate in order to become Alpha.
6. The Alpha Sperg shall not give his list a thesis, topic, or coherent centrel point, other than how to be Alpha.
7. The Alpha Sperg shall shun learning game, interaction with girls, and writing field reports in favour of cultivating his inner Alpha.
8. The Alpha Sperg shall tie an onion to his belt at all times, because this is very Alpha. Also, use lotion. Lotion is Alpha.
9. The Alpha Sperg shall publish his list of Alpha traits and actions for all to see, that they, too, might become Alpha by following a list of someone else's instructions.
10. The Alpha Sperg shall make his list as long as possible, to pack in all the very specific tips about what to do, which he has worked out by sitting around thinking about it, such as how to knot a tie, what the most Alpha way to mix a martini, and where in NYC most Alphas make dinner reservations. Eskimos need to know this shit.
11. The Alpha Sperg shall continue adding points to his list until he runs out of things he can think of. At no time should a list stop simply because it has made its point, exhausted the topic, or reached a natural conclusion... especially because all of these things would imply having a thesis, and that's not Alpha.
12. The Alpha Sperg's list shall encompass all the Alpha tips he can think of, every single one (especially lotion), then stop sudden

135

UPVOTES

The Pedestal

31 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I once knew a certain Benedicta whose presence filled the air with the ideal and whose eyes spread abroad the desire of grandeur, of beauty, of glory, and of all that makes man believe in immortality.

But this miraculous maiden was too beautiful for long life, so she died soon after I knew her first, and it was I myself who entombed her, upon a day when spring swung her censer even in the burial-ground. It was I myself who entombed her, fast closed in a coffin of perfumed wood, as uncorruptible as the coffers of India.

And, as my eyes rested upon the spot where my treasure lay hidden, I became suddenly aware of a little being who singularly resembled the dead; and who, stamping the newly-turned earth with a curious and hysterical violence, burst into laughter, and said: "It is I, the true Benedicta! It is I, the notorious drab! As the punishment of your folly and blindness you shall love me as I truly am."

But I, furious, replied: "No!" The better to emphasize my refusal I struck the ground so violently with my foot that my leg was thrust up to the knee in the recent grave, and I, like a wolf in a trap, was caught perhaps for ever in the Grave of the Ideal.

- Charles Baudelaire

Can't love an illusion, bro.

Still, since you're stuck there anyway, there's no reason why a quick one should be out of the question.

- Whisper

0

UPVOTES

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

4 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Every once in a while, some new tradcon cock enters the public eye, and all the recovering betas here cannot forbear relapsing into their old ways and wrapping their lips around it for a good hard suck.

If tradcon shit was the Red Pill, why does the Red Pill exist? Why was this wonderful, perfect tradcon world of justice, health, strength, freedom, and the right way of doing shit so soundly and thoroughly defeated by feminism in a couple of decades?

Why? Because tradcon values are none of these things, they are shit, they always were shit, and it's very easy for slaves to replace one master with another. Tradcons do not give a shit about your welfare. They are just fighting with feminism over who gets to hold your leash.

When feminism first came along, why the men buy into it?

Because they thought it would free them. They thought that the chains would be struck from their own natural and healthy sexual appetites if only women were "liberated" to be sluts. Why would they have gone for that, if they were already free and happy.

No, tradcons may hate feminism and cultural Marxism, but The enemy of your enemy is not your friend. He is your enemy's enemy, nothing less and nothing more.

The reason tradcons hate these things is not because they want you to be free, but because those chains get in the way of the ones they want you to wear. Chains like marriage to some ho. Chains like absolutist morality, as sold with the superstitions of a bunch of bronze-age sheep herders, and who gives a fuck whether you are getting anything in exchange for all this righteousness.

They don't give a fuck about you. They just want you pulling their ideological wagon instead of someone else's. Tradcons and feminists can fight their little war over whose plan to exploit you for women's sake is "better", and you don't have to be involved. Because if you actually take the Red Pill, instead of just longing for a low-T, shrill, pencilnecked right-wing intellectual to suck up to, then this what you already know:

- You belong to you.
- You exist for you.
- Anyone who wants something from you had better offer you something in exchange, instead of trying to convince you it's your duty.
- Because every moral system is just some shit somebody sat down and came up with.
- And if you buy into it when it hurts you, you're a fucking tool.
- If you are still looking for someone to worship, you're still in beta-male suck-up mode.
- Yes, that includes Jesus. If he loves you so much, why does he never pick up the phone and call?
- Yes, that also includes me and other redpill dudes. We'll eat your lunch out of the fridge and steal your girl. We're just not bullshitting you, not because we love you, but because we hate bullshit.

You belong to you. You exist for you.

Never let anyone subvert your primary directive with bullshit.

511

UPVOTES

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's easy to push people's buttons.

Post a hyperbolic rant about how someone's favorite sports team sucks, and you will easily be able to separate the people who watch sportsball for fun:

"Dude, the Podunk Penguins are a decent sportsball team, I happen to like sportsball, and they're fun to watch. What ARE you raving about?"

from the people who look to sportsball to provide them with a sense of identity:

"Fuck you, you limp-wristed fuck! The Penguins are WAY better at sportsball than you will ever be, loser! You're just jealous because THEY are successful sportsball players and YOU work in a mayonnaise factory! Eat shit and die!"

Separate them like this, and you know who is unplugged, and who isn't. Consider it as a sort of litmus test.

The process of unplugging from the "matrix" of someone else's ideas and plans for you can sometimes be interrupted by another type of blue pill. The sort that presents you with a nice matrix instead of a scary dystopian one.

It's easy to stop there.

There are, as one rather well unplugged reader put it, a great many young men here who are "temporarily on a strike, waiting for some authority figure (be it [Jordan Peterson], Ben Shapiro, Milo [Yiannopoulos], or some bigshot YouTube skeptic a-la Sargon of Akkad) to intellectually 'checkmate' the SJWs and the globalists into capitulation"

They are waiting for a messiah to save society.

And while these public figures certainly make us all smile when they take the radical left down a peg, that isn't what we built TRP for. That socket in your head, the one labeled "insert messiah here", or "insert plans here"... that's what made you vulnerable to the Disney Blue Pill, or the Chivalry Blue Pill, or the Feminist Blue Pill in the first place. Someone exploited your desire for a ready-made set of instructions for life. Your dream of a society where everything was mapped out, and you didn't have to wander in the wilderness on your own, looking for what suited you in life.

Unplugging is hard, because it means you are alone.

But when you have sockets in your head for people to plug you into something, whether it be Social Justice, or the Right Wing Save Society Movement, then you are forever at the mercy of any sufficiently persuasive person with an agenda that isn't yours.

TRP was created to weld that socket shut, so that any advice that entered your head had to do so through a more filtered orifice. When you put food in your mouth, you don't just swallow it. You chew first.

There was always the danger that he who seeks to unplug people from messiahs becomes regarded as one himself, whether we wanted to be or not. Sometimes, you point at things, and people just stare at your finger. That is inherent in the process, because unplugging can be hinted at, but never given as a list of instructions.

How could it? The whole idea is about not following lists of instructions. Feminist bullshit, Disney movies, sperg-like lists of "how to be Alpha™", and tradcon plans to save society by recruiting you with the promise of one free Unicorn™ (Caution: do not subject horn to strong lateral pressure as glue may fail) ... these are all blue pills.

The red pill is you. You regarding every thing you see as raw data to be analyzed. Every article or video or column of advice as a hypothesis to consider and weigh. Every strategic technique as a suggestion to test and see if it works for you.

And if some manipulative jerk can make you rage by telling you your favorite sportsball team sucks, then check your brain for someone else's fingerprints.

580

UPVOTES

Cancer

16 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

What distinguishes a bad habit from a harmless one?

AskTRP constantly wants to know if it should swear off masturbation, video games, television, weed, whatever. We hear endless arguments about whether this or that is "bad" or "okay".

This is the reasoning of a child. The dose determines the poison. Everything has a "too much", even oxygen and water. The question is how much. When is a habit simply a habit, and when is it cancer?

cancer (kăn'sər)►

n. Any of various malignant neoplasms characterized by the proliferation of anaplastic cells that tend to invade surrounding tissue and metastasize to new body sites.

n. The pathological condition characterized by such growths.

What this means in layman's terms is that a cell is cancerous if, when its growth is blocked by another cell, it eats into that cell instead of stopping.

This is how you know when anything you are doing is becoming a problem. Does it fill the time, attention, and resources you allot to it, or does it eat into other areas of your life?

Is masturbation reducing your motivation to go out and meet girls? Is weed keeping you idle on the couch? Do the video games stop when you're tired, or do they keep you awake into the predawn hours? Are you reading TRP and then going out and trying what you learned, or has the reading eaten the practice?

This is stupidly simple. Don't ask if it's bad, because enough is never bad, and too much always is. Ask if what it is doing is bad. Is it eating something else it's not supposed to eat? Cancer.

88

UPVOTES

Assuming men are stupid.

18 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

While the goal of girl game is ultimately to get better treatment from men, the practice of it must consist of something more than naively grabbing for what you want in the most obvious fashion possible.

As /u/durtyknees so aptly put it:

I've always found it ironic that women who aim for "high quality" men underestimate the mental capacity of such men, as if outstanding intellect, exceptional empathy, and excellent social skills are somehow not traits found in "high quality" men

--- I mean, this is the impression I get from reading posts in RP communities, and I always scratch my head about it.

To expand on this idea, it makes little sense to date a man who joined the Army and made it through Ranger School and then ask RPW about how best to break this man's will with an ultimatum.

Or to date a man who carefully practiced seduction, how to read women, and how to make himself attractive to them, then ask RPW about how to play little games to make him jealous... because you saw that in a movie once.

Or to date a man who got himself a law degree, passed the bar exam, learned through experience how to play a jury like a fiddle, then ask RPW how to put off his sexual advances while feigning passion.

If you do not want a stupid, weak-willed, or oblivious man, do not employ tactics that require these qualities in a man.

This is why high-quality girl game does not consist of adversarial tactics. Not because these tactics never work, but because the kind of man you can defeat in a game of chicken is not the sort of man you want to spend the rest of your life with. "The Rules" may be an excellent manual for managing your beta orbiters, but that's all it is.

Since a woman's goal is to remain with the man she practicing game on, any means of getting her way that makes her man unhappy with the result, will damage the relationship even if it works. Girl game does not contain the same level of option to "next" men, so it must seek a win-win situation.

An excellent rule of thumb for this is if explaining your tactic to him as you perform it would make it not work... it's not a good idea to try it at all.

Imagine yourself on a date with a man. It's going fairly well so far... he's confident, handsome, smart, and he has a sort of dry humor that makes you laugh. Then, about halfway through, he drops the banter, gives you a serious look, and says:

"We need to talk. You're a nice girl, and I like you, but my goal for tonight is to have sex. So we need to talk about whether you're ready for sex, and about what kind of sexual acts you're ready for. Because I deserve sex, and if you're not a sex-minded kind of girl, then I need to not be wasting my time here."

About now, most of you probably feel like you need to go and take a shower just from reading that.

That's okay, I feel like that from writing it.

Certainly in this scenario, sex would not be happening, that night or any other.

Why? Well, because it's creepy, but let's be more specific:

- He attempted to negotiate desire, which is involuntary and cannot be negotiated.
- He showed poor, indeed borderline autistic, social skills by not knowing this.
- He acted entitled and demanded what it was his job to inspire.
- He treated you as a means to his own goals, rather than a person.

The "Commitment Talk" is the female version of this social blunder, and men react to it with just as much distaste, for the same reasons.

- Negotiating Desire

Remember that commitment is not a man promising to stay, calling you his SO in public, letting you move into his house, or even marrying you. All of these are expressions of commitment. Commitment itself is his desire to keep you in his life. This is not a conscious act. A man can neither deliberately give you commitment, nor deliberately withhold it. You simply inspire it, or fail to.

- Poor Social Skills

These are even more repellent in a woman than in a man, since gracefully dealing with thorny social issues where conflict may arise is a feminine art. A man wants to be with a woman who smooths over potential arguments, rather than creating them.

- Entitled

Since you either inspire commitment or fail to, getting to commitment is your job, not his. If you attempt to dump this responsibility on him, he is certainly going to wonder what else you will just demand that you should have earned.

- Treating him as a means to an end.

This hardly requires explanation. He already knows what you want. If you simply demand it from him because you want it, then he will know you think that he was put on this planet to fulfill your desires.

The art of girl game is the art of getting what you want without conflict or ultimatums, by making him want to give it to you. Do not attempt to shortcut this process.

664

UPVOTES

"The Talk" is Socially Retarded, Do Not Tolerate It.

21 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So how many of you would drop this on a woman halfway through a date:

"We need to talk. You're a nice girl, and I like you, but my goal for tonight is to have sex. So we need to talk about whether you're ready for sex, and about what kind of sexual acts you're ready for. Because I deserve sex, and if you're not a sex-minded kind of girl, then I need to not be wasting my time here."

?

If any one of you raised your hands, then go to the back of the fucking class, and the some gentlemen from the Federal Witless Protection Program will stop by a little later with your helmet and a juicebox.

One of the first principles of TRP is that desire is not voluntary, and cannot be negotiated. And if you've been here more than a few minutes, you know better than to try.

So why would you let a girl get away with doing the same thing? The "Commitment Talk" is nothing but the female version of this clueless screed, an attempt to negotiate or just simply demand her way up the Bitch Management Hierarchy. Tolerate that, and you're the one who's the bitch. Hope you like strap-ons.

If a girl ever hits you with "the talk", her permanent maximum rank is "plate", because your desire isn't voluntary either, and it cannot be negotiated, either. You do not ever want to be in a relationship with a girl who doesn't get that.

When your game is tight, girls will have sex with you and never be conscious of having made a decision to do so... "it just kind of happened". In promoting a girl to LTR, you must not settle for anything less... you hang out with more and more because you want to spend time with her, you visit her when she's sick because you want her to feel better, you take her along on that road trip because you want her there.

A girl who can't make that happen without stopping the flow to make sperglie demands of you isn't worthy. If she cannot infuse you with the positive desire to promote her, she isn't worthy. She has to earn her way up just like anyone else, no matter what she says about herself.

And remember that there is no level 4.

Full fucking stop..

No fucking exceptions..

Do NOT go there.

No matter how much you want to see her smile.

That institution is DEAD.

Any woman with a triple digit IQ who devotes an hour or so to scanning the main redpill subreddit will quickly realize a few things:

- TRP deliberately cultivates a harsh and critical tone towards women in general.
- TRP deliberately teaches dealing with women in a ruthless and self-interested fashion.
- These are not the result of a raw outpouring of uncontrolled anger, but instead a deliberate instructional choice by TRP's leading voices.

While the men of TRP have no need for women to understand the "why" of this (TRP tactics work regardless), it is very for valuable for women to understand why this is so... it yields insight into their own best strategy.

The basic method of TRP is founded on the realization that mating between men and women is governed by the balance between two corresponding instincts:

- Women instinctively submit to, defer to, and obey men.
- Men instinctively protect and care for women.
- Each of these instincts, when expressed proportionally, tends to provoke the corresponding response in the other.

When these two instincts are both strongly expressed, a win-win interaction inevitably takes place... the woman is not brutalized or casually discarded despite her complete vulnerability, because the man's own instinct to protect and care for her restrains him, and the man is not exploited and vampirically sucked dry, because of the woman's instinct to defer to him and place his desires ahead of her own.

However, these instincts are not always expressed in balance. A woman who is submissive to a man who feels no urge to take care of her, or a man who is protective of a woman who does not submit to him, will end up being harmed.

When we understand this, we can see the reasoning behind the "tone" of TRP. It is a deliberate tactic for training men to suppress their protective instinct, necessitated by an environment full of women who are not submissive.

It is from here that we can realize a profound tactical implication for women who understand this. If the teachers of TRP must work as hard as they do to suppress male protectiveness even of women who are not submissive, how hard can it be for a woman who IS to activate that same instinct?

This, in a nutshell, is why RPW teaches submissive behaviour. It has nothing to do with tradition. It is not a religious law, or a moral obligation. It is simply the best move for dealing with any man who isn't severely damaged (how to identify those is a subject for another day). This is why "drawing boundaries" with your man, or "negotiating" with him "from a position of strength" may sound safe, but is a very bad idea. It is the decision to engage in conflict with the sex that is built for conflict, while in that very act sacrificing an incredibly potent advocate who lives inside his own head, past all his defenses.

The basis of any strong RPW strategy for navigating the risks of the sexual marketplace involves cultivating the ability to evoke this instinct in men.

This does not simply begin and end with deference or obedience, but rather consists of a whole host of behaviours calculated to draw the protective instinct out. It is, however, the willingness to behave in a submissive fashion to begin with that allows a woman to access, learn, and experiment with such strategies.

By this time, the only men who don't realize that marriage has mutated into something ugly are the truly stupid, or the delusionally hopeful. Since we are not Captain Save-A-Bro, either, we're not interested in preaching on streetcorners, trying to save idiots from themselves.

But there is a segment of the more clueful who are still making a serious mistake: They agree that Marriage 2.0 is a trap, but they want Marriage 1.0 back.

I don't know if it's too many Jordan Petersen videos, or just a yearning for unicorns that they know they won't find, but still believe once existed, but these guys want the 1950s back, despite having not been alive then, and only having ever read about that era through its own propaganda, or that of its fat, purple-haired detractors.

There's a temptation to think that, if only we could defeat the evvvvvvvvvvvvvvvviiiiiiiil feminism, that ruined everything, we could roll the clock back to an era where everything was easy, you could pluck a unicorn off the unicorn tree, and find happiness (at least sexual happiness) without having to think, struggle, build value, or reinvent yourself.

Well, no.

(Oh, here Whisper goes again, having a go at the tradcons yet again. What did they ever do to him? What the hell is his problem with the whole business, anyway?)

It's time we answered that question once and for all.

There's two simple reasons:

1. You can't bring Marriage 1.0 back.

Neither you, nor the secular tradcons, nor the Jesus freaks, nor all of you together, can resurrect this dead institution. Oh, you could defeat feminism. Feminism isn't scary. Hell, all you have to do for that is wait, and watch feminism defeat itself. But feminism didn't kill Marriage 1.0 in the first place. The information economy did.

2. Marriage 1.0 sucked for men, anyway.

Now, we can talk about how and why it sucked, and we will in a minute. But we don't need to know how it sucked to know that it sucked. All we need to know is that men agreed to destroy it for the (mostly false) promise of a little hairy free-love snatch.

Men saw it, it was available to them, they were intimately aware of what it offered, they watched their parents do it, and they chose column b. They didn't want it.

End of debate. But we can talk about why they made this choice, and why, for the same reasons, what modern tradcons are offering you is a shit sandwich on really good bread.

1. Tradcon women are not submissive to you. They are submissive to the rules.

Now, during the era of Marriage 0.1, this wasn't really a significant difference, because the rule was "Do what your husband tells you", and if one of your wives was disobedient, you just went and cut yourself a willow switch, and fixed the problem. And there was much rejoicing.

But Marriage 1.0 wasn't like that. The rules didn't say "Obey your husband" anymore. They said "Husband must do A, B, and C. Wife must do X, Y, and Z, and must obey husband... unleeeeeessssss he neglects her or his order isn't godly and righteous."

And who, exactly, decides if he has been neglectful, or his instructions are bad? Why, she does, of course!

That tradcon girl ain't gonna obey you, Mr. Alpha Male Badass Person. Even if you do put a ring on it. She's going to obey some guy in a big "I talk to Jesus" hat, who doesn't really care what your priorities are because his idea of a relationship is five minutes alone with that hot altar boy. She's only going to obey you if and when she feels like it.

And obedience when you feel like it isn't obedience at all... it's bdsm-flavoured doing-whatever-the-fuck-you-want.

And what consequences can you impose if she does shit you don't like? Funny you should ask....

2. A Captain who cannot fire a bad First Mate without losing his crew and half his ship is no Captain at all.

Now, no-fault divorce didn't exist yet in Marriage 1.0, so she could actually be punished for breaking hat-guy's rules. She cheated on you, she got nothing, because hat-guy told her not to cheat. But what about shit you want? Well, that Marriage 0.1 willow switch is right out, because hat-guy told you not to. So's dread game, because that's infidelity, which hat-guy doesn't like. And if you decide you need to fire your first mate, because she won't obey the captain, then she gets all the crew and at least half the ship.

Get the picture? You ain't the Captain, bro. Hat-guy is the Captain. The First Mate is you.

3. You are expected to surrender a large part of your sexual imperative for... what, exactly?

You're genetically programmed to seek out variety. Can't do that anymore, because it's against hat-guy's rules. Supposedly what you get in exchange is love, support, reliable sex, etc. Except hat-guy doesn't mandate those. Perhaps there's some lip service to a wife's "duties", but how are they enforced? What if she'll only have sex with you once every two weeks? Every month? No, you haven't escaped the necessity for running game. You're still in the sexual marketplace. Except now she has a monopoly.

And that's after marriage. Before it, well, don't you dare expect to test-drive a car before you buy it. Hat-guy doesn't like that, and he's the Captain.

4. Gotta pay to play. And pay. And pay. And pay.

Do you really need this explained? Picture the first girl you had sex with. Remember what she was like.

Remember what the sex was like. Wanna bankroll her for life, so you can have that when she feels like it?

Now you get the picture. Marriage 1.0 is better than Marriage 2.0 in the same way that a kick in the crotch is better than being stabbed. Marriage Anything.0 is for losers who can't get laid without it, and men so enslaved by their own oxytocin and protective instincts that they would take huge risks with no reward other than seeing her smile.

Don't do it.

Learn game.

And if you want to let her have an LTR, make her earn it, and make sure you can kick her to the curb with zero cost the moment she stops making it worth your while.

Because you're not allowed to give your wife a thrashing anymore. Your only power is the power to walk away. Never surrender it to anyone.

Just as most of the Red Pill's understanding of the sexual marketplace can be derived from the simple principle that "Sperm is cheap and eggs are expensive", most anything you need to know about childhood, and the raising of children can be derived from the simple principle that "Humans are incredibly smart, and being smart is incredibly expensive".

Now, you may not think humans are all that smart if you peruse the Huffington Post, or the average YouTube comments section, but all that really means is that the average human isn't all that smart compared to a smart human, the sort whose writing tends to grab our attention. No, the mere act of watching a YouTube video and commenting on it at all requires an incredible degree of intelligence as compared to most other species on the planet.

Now, we can also see that this intelligence is incredibly costly from a biological standpoint. We lack almost all of the advantages that other organisms possess: strength, stamina, agility, endurance, speed, claws, wings, fur, and so on. We put all the resources those things would have cost into building a giant information processor... and then use it to build tools that not only substitute for what we lack, but far surpass the natural versions they substitute for.

Due to our magnificent brains, we can survive where no other animal can, and do what no other animal can. Only one other organism in the history of the known universe has been brainier. (And humans who still have some of their genes are among the smartest of the modern human race.)

But how does our need for maximum brainpower shape us as evolved animals? The important thing to understand is that everything has been sacrificed to build those big brains.

Human babies need to be born with huge heads. But, while you can evolve a vagina to stretch a hell of a lot, ultimately it must pass through the pelvic girdle, which is a ring of bone. And sure, you can widen the female pelvic girdle some, but that ends up being the reason women can't run very well, so you can only take that so far.

Ultimately, an infant's head can only be so big before he must be delivered. Can't spend more time in the oven. This means that from the viewpoint of the average animal species, human infants are born prematurely. A newborn horse can stand up within about 30 minutes of birth, and can run in under two hours. Human infants can't crawl for months. And are physically helpless to some degree for many, many years after that, while all the hard work goes into building and training that giant brain.

So how does humanity evolve in response to that? Simple. Half of the entire race is optimized for child-rearing and very little else. It has to be that way. Human children are so uniquely helpless and needy that they must have close to 24/7 care, month after month, year after year. As an obvious consequence, the half who are totally optimized for child-rearing require constant support themselves from those who aren't. Evolution has exploited the opportunity represented by sexual dimorphism to specialize the human species.

If children are totally dependent on women, and women are totally dependent on men, then for the species to survive, women cannot be on their own. A female mountain lion can mate with a male and never see him again, because she can bear her kittens on her own, hunt on her own, feed them on her own, and teach them to hunt on her own. A female human cannot... she needs the continued presence of a male.

Which brings us at last to the Family.

The Family is a series of social structure designs which transfer support and resources from men to women, and from women to children. Because humans can directly transfer information between themselves using culture and language, the Family does not need to have a single, instinctively programmed structure. It can be redesigned on the fly by culture. This has happened several times.

- Family 0.0.1: This predates written records, so no one really knows for sure. Did hominid bands have the concept of a father? Did all males take care of all females, and all females of all children? We don't really have a clear idea. We only know that human society was structured into small hunter-gatherer bands of about 100+ people.

- Family 0.1: Introduced with Marriage 0.1. A family is a man, his children, and their mothers.
- Family 1.0: Introduced with Marriage 1.0. A family is a man, one woman, and their children. (This gets messy if a man impregnates more than one woman, or a woman is impregnated by more than one man).
- Family 2.0: Introduced with Marriage 2.0. A family is a woman, her children, and whatever man she is currently having sex with. <----- YOU ARE HERE
- Family 3.0: Introduced with the utter dissolution of marriage. A family is a woman and her children. They are supported by state-mandated transfer of resources from men in general... a sort of "man-tax" in lieu of fatherhood. Whether this tax explicitly targets men, or just higher income-earners, doesn't really matter. <----- THIS IS COMING

"Excuse me, Professor Whisper, that's very interesting and all, but what does this mean for ME? How do I go about having children in the Land of Marriage 2.0?"

You can't. Notice how the possessives change:

- Marriage 0.1 ---> HIS children.
- Marriage 1.0 ---> THEIR children.
- Marriage 2.0 ----> HER children.

You cannot have children.

You can sire children. You can possibly raise children. But you cannot have them. Because they are not YOUR children. They are HER children. And your level of involvement in their lives will be exactly what she decides, and no more.

So, if you wish to sire and raise (not have) children, here's what you are up against.

You are entering a voluntary but irreversible state of permanent oneitis, because while women are interchangeable, children are not. You will always have oneitis for those kids. And she controls those kids. Which means you are committed to keeping Briffault's Law from biting you until the last one becomes an adult.

"Hey, Professor! Haven't you already said that Marriage 2.0 is a benefit solely to women? If that's true, doesn't it make a good bribe to offer in exchange for permanent access to my kids? I've been hanging out on RPW and they told me marriage was important for child rearing!"

No, and go to the back of the class, and don't hang out on RPW.

Remember we are dealing with Briffault's Law here, not reciprocity. Reciprocity is giving something in exchange for what you have already received. Men do reciprocity. Briffault's Law is what women do instead... giving something in the hope of future benefit. Nothing you have given her in the past buys you anything, because she already has it.

If you marry a woman, you have permanently committed to supporting her, and she still gets that if she blows up the marriage.

If you sire children on a woman, you have permanently committed to giving her resources for them, and she still gets that if she withdraws your privilege of access.

Neither of these will stave off Briffault's Law in any way, shape, or form.

So, if you have the dream of siring and raising children, you have two choices:

- Find one single woman on which you wish to stake everything you have or will have, gambling on your ability to keep her in check permanently, come whatever may, without any ability to leave or run dread game. Don't even think about marrying her. That just makes the job harder.
- Exchange your dream for a less silly dream.
- Expatriate to Saudi Arabia perhaps.

Sorry, class, there's no magic technique here. If you want to do this, you simply have to abandon favourable ground, and get in a rock throwing contest while standing at the bottom of a well. Remember that this is how a lot of the early PUA guys got punked out in the end. Remember how many high-status "chad" types got shafted the same way.

Won't tell you not to do this, but you pays your money, and you takes your chances. Or you wise up and get a dog.

1,081
UPVOTES

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

9 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've avoided teaching about this, because learning to spin plates is more important. But now the subject has come up, and people are talking about it.

Here are the Basics. Not a comprehensive guide, not even a primer. Simply the absolute minimum you need, to avoid shooting yourself in the foot.

What is an LTR?

If we read the single most important piece of Redpill literature ever, /u/humansockpuppet's Bitch Management Hierarchy, we learn that there are four level of sexual intimacy with a woman.

- Level 0: One-Night Stand
- Level 1: Plate
- Level 2: Friends with Benefits.
- Level 3: LTR/Significant Other/Girlfriend

The Guide itself touches on the distinctions, but focuses on when and why to promote. Of a clear explanation of what the difference is, we turn to the Cliff's Notes, which makes it clear that:

- Rank 0 is the rank of sex.
- Rank 1 is the rank of repeated contact.
- Rank 2 is the rank of non-sexual social time.
- Rank 3 is the rank of emotional investment.

So, an LTR is a sexual partner you have voluntarily allowed yourself to become emotionally attached to.

That's it.

That's all.

It doesn't mean monogamy, necessarily. (Don't give that away unless you want to, and never for free.)

It doesn't mean promises made to her, or publicly announced status, or cohabitation, or investment of material resources (all of these are also gifts if you choose to give them).

It just means you emotionally invest in her.

This has additional benefits, and carries additional risks.

What are the benefits?

Men may be the gatekeepers of emotional connection, but this does not mean they derive no joy from it. Just as women, who are the gatekeepers of sex, still crave and enjoy sex, men can and do feel real affection for the right sort of woman, and will actively want to do so.

Most of you, this already makes sense to. If it doesn't, and you are still asking "why?", then this urge is weak or non-existent in you. Stop reading and go spin plates.

What is the major risk?

When we invest money in a business enterprise, we risk losing that money. When we emotionally invest in a woman, we risk losing that investment.

If the idea of losing this girl doesn't bother you to some degree, then you have an FWB, not an LTR. Thus, you lose the total outcome independence that you would have with a plate.

The effects of this are easy to imagine.

How do I capture the benefits while minimizing the risks?

Simple.

First, invest wisely. The Bitch Management Hierarchy deals very comprehensively with how to do this.

Second, actively manage your investment.

This means abandoning your strategy of indifference for a strategy of control.

You no longer get to not care if she stays or goes. You no longer get to say that "she's not yours, it's just your turn". These are tactics of indifference. If you are invested, you are axiomatically not indifferent. Investment and indifference are opposites of each other.

You must actively control your woman to prevent things from going pear-shaped. It's not just your turn. She is yours, and you damn well better be able to enforce that.

This principle is why Chad gets turned into a bitch by his LTR, and divorceraped by his wife. "Naturals" have only indifference game, and no control game.

"But Whiiiiiiisssssper, it's heeeeeeeeeeeeeer job to secure commitment! I'm just supposed to be attractive, and any effort to keep her is BETA! YOU are talking like a BETA right now! The Vanguard are getting WEAK! (I'm terrified of being a beta. Someone please hold me.)"

Yes, it is her job to secure commitment, and keep it. But since when can a woman do a job without a man to tell her what to do?

She does the work to keep the LTR. You control her so she does the right work.

Your control of your woman rests upon three pillars:

- Attraction

You must, at all times, keep her believing that you are it. That you are the best thing she could possibly get, and if she doesn't hold onto you, it's all downhill for the rest of her life. She must mate-guard herself whenever she is capable. This means that unless she is being strong-armed, you shouldn't have to step in.

- Obedience

You must instill her in the expectation that her job is to do what you say, when you say it, because you say it. She must explicitly and consciously accept her role as the subordinate in the relationship. This is easy to do if you start early. (Read some porn written by women, they touch themselves to this stuff.) Be sure not to let obedience stop at the bedroom door, use the habits she gets into there to give her instructions in her daily life. Use compliance tests frequently. Explicitly punish her for minor misbehaviours.

- Non-Entitlement

You must make sure she regards anything you give her as a gift given on a whim, not a normal aspect of your relationship that she is now entitled to. Gifts (generally small and inexpensive as a rule) should happen when you feel like it, not on Christmas, her birthday, Valentine's day, etc. Never respond to "I love you" with "I love you, too". Give her attention and pets as a reward for good behaviour, not as a pattern or habit. If she ever approaches you in a fashion that comes off as demanding, never give her what she wants.

She should always be working to keep you, and to keep you happy.

You should always be giving her clear and unambiguous guidance on what is expected of her.

If I'm not outcome independent, what do I do if it goes bad and my control strategy doesn't work?

He who cannot cast away a treasure at need is in chains.

While you must be invested, you must also be willing to write off a bad investment and cut your losses. Major misbehaviours (cheating, deception, ultimatums, deliberate disrespect, etc) must always result in a hard next. There is no "saving the relationship". If a relationship ever needs "saving" rather than a minor course correction, it's already a write-off.

It is important to keep your game strong, so you can get back into it as soon as possible after you write off a bad one.

I like relationships better than spinning plates. How do I get one?

You don't.

If a woman who practices reciprocity is a unicorn (because unicorns don't fucking exist), then a feminine, submissive woman who is willing to work is a "snow leopard", an animal that exists, but is so rare that if you see one, odds are it will already be captured and in someone else's zoo.

Don't hunt snow leopards. It's a waste of your time. Simply be prepared to recognize one if you see it, and know what to do with one when you recognize it.

Just as girls have no control over whether you are sex-worthy, you have no control over whether the girls you meet are relationship-worthy.

Plan accordingly.

1,443
UPVOTESStill Wanna Get Married?

29 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

From elsewhere on reddit:

Not at all. My wife took our baby when she dyed her hair blue and fell in with a crowd of regs feminists that work with her at Starbucks. She moved back in with her mom, stopped working, and hit me up for child support. They set my CS at the highest earnings I've ever made in my life - a single month during my time owning a janitorial business - , pre tax, 40%. So, that one single month (I had got a contract to clean up a demolished building that paid $4000), I made $6000. Luckily, in Texas, there's a cap at a little over $1000 a month. Problem is, I make $600 every two weeks.

I didn't cheat. I didn't flake. I was supportive, loving, and if I might say so, a good husband. She cheated on me while pregnant with our child, took off while I was at work, no notice, and filed a restraining order which I later found out all lawyers MUST advise their clients of, because it means a MUCH higher rate of achieving custody. That shows up on my background check.

I'm genuinely going to kill myself soon, because I have about two months of savings left with which I can pay my CS, and after that, for each payment missed, it's a court date, with a 180 day jail sentence. Why did all of this happen? So she could find herself. Because she's a strong independent waman who don't need no man. <--- that sentence would have never, ever come out of me before she left.

That's not the half of it, either. I won't bore you with details, but just a few highlights are:

Legal Aid place said their free help for poor people was "more for women".

The state provides free attorneys for women but not men in custody and CS cases.

95% of all custody cases are awarded to women in my state.

This one's the worst of them all, to me: After all of this, I am, in most of society's eyes, a deadbeat dad.

No, this one's the worst: They arbitrated CS from out of state for my wife, so she didn't even have to show up to the court date, but they won't do that for custody. I still haven't even seen my daughter. I learned her name (went from a classic "Julia" to "Aaliahya"..) when the policewoman served me CS papers and treated me like I was trash.

My wife, unemployed, living with mom, gets nothing but help and positivity and support. I'm a monster.

So, that's the story of how I die, apparently.

EDIT: wwell fuck I'm sitting here crying for the first time in.. I don't know.. I can't begin to tell you guys all how much this means to me. I've been living with this huge knot in my chest for close to 2 years and haven't told a soul because I was sure they'd call me weak or not a man or whatever I thought. Just thank you. Thank you thank you thank you, all of you, so much. I promise this to each and every one of you guys: I will document this all. I will make a video detailing all of this, and I'll try to get in contact with some of the people which some of you guys have told me would be interested in the story. I'll plea my case in court before I commit to anything, and like one guy said, maybe jail isn't that bad.

Still wanna get married?

Still wanna bet "your life and everything in it" on the turn of a card in order to win "she gets a ring and a princess party, and you keep the relationship you have now"?

How many more corpses do you need to see?

743

UPVOTES

Indifference and Control: Why You Don't Wanna Be Chad

20 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"Chad Thundercock", the metaphor for the man who never had to study game to be attractive, is often spoken of as a "natural", but he's not. There are no "naturals". We all emerged from a vagina naked and crying like a bitch, covered in goo and with no game whatsoever.

No, what Chad has isn't an instinctive understanding of game. Nor is it such manliness that he needs none, for again, there is no such thing. What Chad has is confidence, and abundance, and a host of other circumstances that lead to what define Chad: Chad is a man whose life up to this point has made him relaxed and indifferent.

Chad doesn't have clever techniques for making Katie attracted to him. Chad just doesn't give a shit, because if she isn't into him, he'll give Brittany a call. Or Karen. Chad doesn't have nerves of steel. He simply doesn't get approach anxiety, because not only is getting rejected no big deal to him, whether he is attractive isn't a big deal to him either. Women are like firewood to Chad... if you want some, it's lying around everywhere... just pick it up.

Indifference is the key element of most of the game we teach here on TRP, and Chad serves as a good exemplar of it. But indifference game is not the only type of game, this is where Chad gets in trouble, because indifference game is the only kind of game Chad has.

This is why you hear all the constant stories of super-alpha exemplar celebrity men being chewed up and spat out in divorce court. Pure indifference game is increasingly ineffective in relationships, and indifference is the only card Chad has to play.

Chad doesn't actually know what makes Katie tick, and has no idea how to get what he wants out of her. All he has going for him is the ability to easily next her for Brittany or Karen or Samantha or Kimiko. At first, this makes Katie run about desperately trying to figure out how to please him, which looks a lot of like he can get her to do what he wants. But he can't. She is doing it, because of his natural dread game, and the moment he enters a relationship, or otherwise makes a visible emotional investment in her, that power begins to fade.

Chad has no control game.

In fact, Chad doesn't even know he should be in control. Why would he know that? Women have always just given him what he wanted before. The whole concept of dominance, or even leverage, in a relationship is foreign to him, and he probably thinks it sounds slightly creepy. He thinks that women are generally biddable and easy to get along with, because cats always seem easy to get along with when you're holding a can of tuna.

Relationship game is control game. Because men are naturally protective of women, and women are not naturally protective of men, relationships are long-term viable to precisely degree that the man is in charge.

In initial contact with a woman, controlling behaviours appear weak, thirsty, needy, and creepy as fuck, and indifference behaviours appear relaxed, confident, and powerful. But as emotional investment visibly increases on both sides, indifference gradually begins to appear avoidant, unassertive, unconfident, passive-aggressive, and, you guessed it, creepy as fuck.

A certain point, you simply have to make your expectations clear to a woman, or she will believe you are afraid to. At a certain point, you have to be possessive, or she will believe you are afraid to. At a certain point, you have to punish rather than ignore bad behaviour, or she will believe you are afraid to.

At a certain point, the best indifference game in the world will simply cause her to jump ship. This is why knowing that there is a time to invest, expect, and demand is the first step to being able to have an LTR.

We will address how to play the control game in further articles. But, first, you must understand that to every thing, there is a season, and that includes breaking the rules of indifference game to play control game instead.

1,034
UPVOTESTears27 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Last week Funsized showed up at my door crying.

Apparently, her aunt, who she was quite close to, even lived with for a year, had unexpectedly died. An accident of some kind.

As she proceeded to soak my shirt, I thought about how this is one of the most difficult trials for men who have not had the "red pill". Tears used as a weapon are bad enough for them, but genuine tears can be worse still. Men instinctively know that we are to women as women are to children, and so they feel responsible to do something, but they don't know what.

I knew what to do, of course.

I didn't say anything. I simply held onto her, let her cry, and didn't show any emotion myself (which was easy, because I felt none). After a little while, I gently pried her off me, got up, walked to my closet, and changed my shirt, then resumed my former position. "It was wet.", I said with a half smile.

"But what if I cry again?"

"Then I will eventually run out of shirts."

She began to giggle uncontrollably.

Men who are not in the know will try to cheer women up. This accomplishes nothing; it only focuses them on their grief and makes them more upset. It makes them insecure because it shows your weakness and neediness... you need to make her smile right away. You need to fix things. You regard her emotional upsets as a dark and terrible catastrophe you must "fix", rather than just the child being a child again.

Girls derive emotional comfort from masculine presence and masculine stability, not from flailing attempts to fix things.

Shut up. Be visibly calm. Be visibly patient. Act like it's no big deal.

Girls' emotions are far stronger and more volatile than yours (as anyone who has ever screwed up a post-cycle knows). They are scared of them. What they need from you is for you to be stable and not get sucked into the madness.

After a little while, she asked my permission to fly back to Texas for the funeral, which I gave, and if could accompany her, which I refused.

"Standard travel rules apply."

"Yes, sir."

And that was that.

Control game is the game you play when you can no longer hide your emotional investment, and pretending to would simply appear as weakness.

The first rule of control game is that you must be visibly stable and in control of yourself. That which moves her, must not move you.

907

UPVOTES

Your Devotion is Worthless

29 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Most men who fail with women, fail because they apply the "Golden Rule".

They treat women how they would wish to be treated, and, when they desire love, they act in a way that would inspire love in them. But men and women are different, and they want different things. How you wish to be treated, women hate. And how women wish to be treated, you would hate.

The easiest way to understand how this is so, is to understand why this is so.

Many of you are in university right now, and some of you are nerds and will graduate with degrees in Computer Science, while others are losers and will graduate with degrees in Literature. Five years after that, you will have very different experiences.

The Literature graduates will be desperately looking for a job, any job, and worrying about the rent.

The CS graduates will be ducking phone calls and emails from Amardeep Nagpal, who wishes to advise them of much very fine opportunity to move to San Francisco and spend sixty hours a week coding javascript for some shitty startup's website for fifty bucks an hour. He also wants them to have a blessed day.

Now, the Lit guys would be thrilled to have a job come looking for them, and aren't going to understand that software engineers loathe Amardeep for the same reason that women despise attention from most men. It makes no difference to the engineers that Amardeep is very impressed with them, they get that every damn day. They are swimming in a sea of attention from the Amardeep Nagpals and Pritesh Krishnamurtis of this world. They hate them because San Francisco is a shit city, working sixty hours a week is a shit life, and fifty bucks an hour is a shit wage.

Men who court women by telling them how devoted they are making this same mistake... men's devotion is worthless, because girls have been swimming in a sea of constant male attention, love, and devotion since they were old enough to recognize emotions in other people. Offering them your love and devotion is like offering them plenty of air to breathe. They can get it anywhere. What they want isn't men who care, but men who are awesome.

- Do not offer women your devotion. Your devotion is worthless.
- Do not show them how deeply you care about your their feelings. Everyone cares about their feelings. Human beings are genetically hardwired to care about their feelings.
- Do not tell them about how awesome you will treat them. Everyone is nice to them. Human beings are genetically hardwired to be nice to them.
- Show them how awesome you are.

Men want to be treated awesome by someone okay. Girls want to be treated okay by someone awesome.

44

UPVOTES

Plucked from AskTRP

8 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I forget her actual number but I know it can be counted with just one hand. We're technically not exclusive, but I've dropped my other plates just out of lack of desire for them now, and she has made it abundantly clear that that I'm the only guy she's seeing. The sex happened pretty quickly but like I said, we have history and it just naturally turned into that.

This is what can be done with strong game.

400

UPVOTES

Go Out and Test It.

10 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Beware of Scienceism.

Okay, Whisper, what the fuck is "Scienceism"?

Scienceism is the cult surrounding scientific data, and the institutions and practitioners of science.

Are you trying to say that SCIENCE is a CULT?

Of course not. Science is one of the best things humanity ever invented. But it is a very small and simple thing. It consists only of...

This.

That's it, maybe with a few principles of experiment design thrown in for good measure.

So what are you calling a cult?

Scienceism. The practice of:

- Confusing scientific data with science itself.
- Quasi-patriotic displays of enthusiasm for this body of data as a manner of ritually establishing group identity.
- Revering professional practitioners of science as privileged arbiters of truth.
- Uncritical acceptance of the beliefs of scientists as established fact, without first making any demand for an understandable explanation, or a visible demonstration.
- Contempt for ad-hoc use of the scientific method by non-professionals, most often with accompanying accusations of insufficient experimental rigor or subject expertise.

Around now, you may be starting to think, "Hey, I've seen a lot of Scienceism in the world lately, especially in the news." Yeah.

- "97% of Climateologists say Global Warming is Here, it's Real, and it's a Threat to Us All."
- "Steven Hawking Says the Development of Strong AI Could Destroy Civilization."
- "New Medical Study Reveals Coffee is Better For You Than We Thought."
- "Nobel Prize Winning Economist Paul Krugman Says Trade Deficits Are Not the Enemy."

In each case, the scientist, researcher, or "expert" is being treated as a priest, who transmits revealed truth, rather than a teacher, who is supposed to explain why this is so, or an engineer, whose machine had better fucking work, or we are all going to laugh him off the stage.

The Scienceist may, in any case, be the scientist himself who demands unquestioning acceptance of his utterances, the reporter who only reads abstracts, or your aging hippie aunt who mails you links to articles in the Huffington Paint about how going vegan will save the planet from... well... something. In any case, a Scienceist can be distinguished by the way he puffs up like a wet hen and clucks when you remain skeptical and ask to see the evidence for yourself.

Scienceists regard doing actual science in much the same way that medieval Catholics regarded bible study... laudable in principle, but in practice heretical for anyone but a priest operating under the most controlled and ritualized of conditions.

You can be pretty sure you are talking to a Scienceist if they:

- Cite a study to you without explaining in plain language how it worked, or what it is supposed to show.
- Call you a "Denier" of something rather than "Mistaken about this particular issue." (Remember that science is not a personal identity.)

- Ask you what your relevant expertise is for disbelieving something, as if you needed permission to be a skeptic.
- Use the word "science" a lot in lieu of an actual argument, formed from a connected series of statements which explain a proposition.
- Avoid explaining the basis for their opinion by alleging that you lack the relevant expertise to understand it.
- Make general responses to the tone of things they disagree with (often using the word "anti-intellectual" a lot), rather than pointing out any specific false premise or error in reasoning .

Which brings us to our point.

Be a scientist, not a Scienceist.

Every major writer in TRP has told you time and time again to go out and practice this stuff, rather than simply reading about it. And this has been because it is important for you to be skilled, rather than merely know.

But it is also because it is important for you to know from your own experience, rather than believe from faith in someone else's.

Of course you're not a PhD. Of course you lack the resources to run a double-blind controlled study with a high sample size, or the mathematical knowledge to perform an ANOVA (both ways, please!) on the results. But it is better to be the most imperfect, ad hoc, untrained, and informal of SCIENTISTS than it is to be the most devout and fanatical of SCIENCEISTS.

For every writer here worth reading, everything we state with great confidence (because we have tested it our satisfaction) is meant to be a hypothesis to you. Which you not only may, but must, test to your satisfaction.

Otherwise, you don't know.

Theres so much of information out there, so many gurus telling you to do 'X' so 'Y' will definitely happen. So many websites teaching you the behaviour of a High Value Woman... there is this one thing almost all the Gurus teach. "By not caring for the relationship, you hold the most power"... "Do not care, be busy, be high value" mantra is blatantly taught by all the big names (Brian Nox, even Sherry Argov... in their bestselling books.

Well, congratulations, lady, you just answered your own question.

In. Their. Bestselling. Books.

When you go to Brian Nox's website, here is the first thing you see. Scroll down a bit and you get to read this:

Some men are silly to say the least. They don't treat women with the respect they deserve in relationships, at work and even in their family lives. Sure, not all men are like this, but you might have noticed life is not always easy, as a woman.

I'm on a personal mission to change that. Being a man I get why men do what they do. Consider me your "insider" who is not afraid to share the truth about men and their 'interesting' behaviors. I share important strategies with women that will help them get what they deserve, in their love life, in their career, wherever they need it.

Yeah, right. Mr. Brian Nox, your personal white knight, is going to treat you with the respect you deserve, by giving you inside information on how men are silly and what you should do to get everything you deserve from them.

Just click here to buy his book.

I swear, if I ever get sick enough of working for a living to be willing to sacrifice my self-respect, I will take a fifty milligram dose of ondansetron hydrochloride, and start penning "Coughing Up The Red Pill: How I Rejected Misogyny and Discovered Women are Wonderful", full of every platitude I can think of about how women are perfect, how anything they do wrong is men's fault, how they deserve a Nobel Prize and a Congressional Medal of Honor just for breathing, and how it is morally imperative that every man they encounter should devote his entire existence to satisfying their every whim, but never dare to speak in their presence unless given permission.

Then I will buy a small Caribbean island, have a palace built on it, and never do any work again, unless flinging the ice from my martini glass off the balcony counts as "watering the lawn".

Because hordes of women will buy enough copies to kill a small forest, then read the first three chapters and collapse on the sofa in a drugged-out stupor of ego-gratification, oblivious to the babble of daytime television or the fact that their bag of potato chips has spilled into their unwashed hair.

In case my real point isn't totally fucking obvious, anyone who makes money giving women relationship advice is really being paid to tell women what they want to hear.

It must be quite tough to be a woman sometimes (and here I am no longer being sarcastic), because women are constantly surrounded by a perfect storm of misinformation, blowing from overprotective busybodies, and dudes who will say anything if they think they'll get laid.

Let's face it: If good relationship advice for women affirmed what they already wanted to hear, they wouldn't need any. They'd already know it.

All growth, by definition, happens outside your comfort zone. This is common sense. If you want better results than you have ever had, you are going to have to learn things you have never known, think things you have never thought, and try things you have never done.

If advice tastes good on your tongue, spit it out. It's full of sugar and it will make you fat. Anyone can make long lists of what they they deserve, and seek out people they can pay to agree with them. But if you think you deserve something, and the world isn't offering it to you, then it has a different opinion of what you deserve.

And you can work hard to change yourself, or you can pay people to tell you the world is mistaken. Guess which one of these will get you what you want?

A while back, some revolutionary thinker in the field of psychology noticed that some people think that they are pretty cool, and others don't. This astonishing revelation was heralded by trumpet fanfare and a new fad sweeping the psychological community (which should tell you something about the average intellectual calibre of that profession).

Today, while the professionals have largely moved on to other, even stupider, things, this concept has lingered on in the popular concept of what psychology is, largely because it is easy to grasp, easy to explain things with, and impossible to predict anything with and thereby be proven wrong. This allows otherwise useless people to feed themselves by writing articles for Cosmo, and people who know nothing about anything to sound smarter than they are during casual conversation.

And where you encounter the words "self-esteem", you almost invariably encounter the word "women".

In fact, aliens reading random samples of earth's modern printed material could be forgiven for mistakenly thinking that "women's self-esteem" was our most precious resource, which we use to catalyze working nuclear fusion reactors, or distill to cure cancer, or something.

In fact, a lot of humans, who live on earth and should know better, seem to believe this as well. It always makes me smile when I am accused by some outraged feminist or tradcon, of "trying to lower women's self-esteem", often with the codicil "so they will be easy prey for men". (At which point she glances backwards to find a soft spot, faints dramatically, smelling salts are fetched, and a good time is had by all.)

Technically, of course, they are absolutely right. What they, and pretty much anyone else, have never thought about, however, is a simple question: What makes everyone so sure that having the highest possible self-esteem is good for you?

No one ever explained that to you, did they? They just took it as their starting point. Obviously a high self-esteem is good, and a higher self-esteem is better, so here's how you go about convincing yourself that you are best thing evaaar.

Well, yes, this is obvious, and like about 50% of obvious things, it's also dead wrong.

If you look at successful and happy people, you'll find they all have high self-esteem. That's why people are tempted to conclude that high self-esteem makes you successful and happy. This, of course, is backwards. Being happy and successful gives you high self-esteem, and it doesn't work the other way at all.

When you start to think about it this way, it becomes clear. This girl obviously thinks she's beautiful, because she has access to a mirror, and her eyes work. But if this ... whatever that is... believes the same thing, will she be happy?

She will persistently wonder why nothing ever seems to work out like she expects.

In practice, self-esteem is not like wealth (more is better), but like insulin: Too little will hurt you, but so will too much.

We live in a society and era where the male ego is systematically starved (and then called "fragile" when it exhibits signs of that starvation), while the female ego is fed, and fed, and then force-fed some more with a tube down its throat as if we were trying to produce foie gras. This means that, while both too much or too little self-worth is bad for both men and women, the most common self-esteem problem that women face is "having too much of it".

This leads women to chronic disappointment, envy of others, and most importantly, to making really bad moves in their efforts to get and keep the best relationship they can.

In my next article here, we'll discuss how to detect low and high self-esteem problems.

513

UPVOTES

You Don't Need a Wife, Just a Blowjob.

17 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

/u/conflagratorX asks:

I am wondering why there is so much contempt for {tradcon pundit}. The only difference between {tradcon pundit} and TRP is that {tradcon pundit} thinks current civilization can revert back to traditional values while TRP prefer to enjoy the decline. Not everyone is cynical and nihilistic enough to enjoy the decline while almost every men can benefit from other TRP concepts. Why making so much fuss about guy whose core concepts align with TRP?

I've been asked this fair amount... "What the hell do you have against Tradcons, Whisper? Why not stop the decline instead of just learning to prosper within it?"

Since we've already had enough ragebait and shit tests to smoke out the cucks among us, we'll just talk about the answers.

1. Their utopia is not your utopia.
2. They lost the fight, why would you think they'll win the rematch?
3. Tradconism was destroyed by a non-reversible process.
4. They're not offering to save society for you. They're demanding you save it for their kids.

So, to lump it all together, they want you in a fight you can't win, against a foe you can't defeat, for a prize you don't want, in a future you will never live to see.

I'll give them credit for a nice sales pitch, though.

Their utopia is not your utopia.

The reason that tradcon societies are so economically successful in general is that they hitch the wagon of productivity to the strongest horse there is... the male sex drive. Civilization itself was, after all, built by dudes trying to get laid. If men have to be financially successful to get laid, they have to work hard and be productive. That's great for society, and great for women... but for you? Are you really that sure you want the price of pussy raised?

How thirsty would you have to be to consider marrying a woman you hadn't fucked yet? (Especially in a society that expected monogamy of you.)

Remember that Baby Boomer men enthusiastically helped to dismantle the tradcon way of life. If marriage was so great for them, why did they kick over the traces for the vague promise of some hairy free-love snatch?

Which brings us to...

They lost the fight, why would you think they'll win the rematch?

Tradconism pays lip-service respect to men, rather than insulting them, but remember that it, too, is in service to the female imperative. Instead of helping men to overcome and control their protective instinct towards women, it plays to that instinct, and raises men who are slaves to it.

This is why feminism ate tradcon's lunch. Feminism is nothing, after all, but a massive exploitation of the male protective instinct. Chivalry-type polkamans will always be weak to girl-type polkamans.

Especially when their victory condition is unattainable because...

Tradconism was destroyed by a non-reversible process.

Nuff said.

They're not offering to save society for you. They're demanding you save it for their kids.

Anytime someone comes to you with a plan for society, there is always a price to pay. If they don't tell you upfront who will pay, and how much it will cost, then the answers are you, and a whole hell of a lot, respectively.

Are tradcons going to smooth the way for you by abolishing alimony and no-fault divorce, banning abortion or legalizing paternal severance, getting young women to marry at 16 before going to college? Are they going to restore fatherhood as a position of respect and veneration? Are they going to take ANY action to eliminate any of the risks and drawbacks of marriage and raising children?

No, they want YOU to do that work starting the crusade yourself. They want you to dive on the grenade so that the next generation of their kids can reap the benefits created by the survivors.

They can't fix western civilization in time to make a difference in your life. You are going to live the rest of your life in Upside Down Clown World.

What they want is for you to stop trying to make the best of it and start taking a bullet for the same western civilization that abandoned you.

What they promise will happen might sound wonderful to you, if you are thirsty enough to trade your glorious freedom to game sluts for a lifetime of guaranteed starfish sex and nagging... but the tradcon "return to traditional values" is no more a real prospect for improving your existence than the "pie in the sky when die" offered by Christians, or communist's glorious utopia of the proletariat.

That's why I'm not telling you a plan, and not recruiting you for a movement. I do not have a glorious vision of hope to sell you. I am not asking for your trust. If I met you in person, I would eat your lunch and steal your girl. I am telling you that you are on your own. The only person with your best interests at heart is you.

Don't get suckered.

832

UPVOTES

Distrust that Particular Flavour

15 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm here today to talk about the blue pills.

Note the plural.

It's easy enough now to understand what many people call "THE" blue pill, especially since others have done all the hard work for you. Just read the sidebar. What's harder to come by is an understanding of just how those others came to say those things, and how that might apply to other things.

Grasping the truth about women and sex is one thing. Grasping the truth about grasping the truth is quite another.

But does anyone out there think that women are the only thing in life you've been lied to about? There are many, many Blue Pills in life, and nobody's going to make a discussion group for each and every one. So without the ability to do what others did, the ability to spot blue pills yourself instead of merely understanding someone who points them out to you, you're going to remain vulnerable to a lot of nonsense of all sorts.

Now, it's easy enough to see a lie when you already know the truth. And it's easy enough to discern lies when you can test a proposition for yourself. But that doesn't cover all of reality. How can you avoid being bluepilled when you don't have the resources to test, or access to the data, and can only hear what others tell you about it?

When you can't find out the truth, you need to learn to spot the lie by its own characteristics. That won't tell you what the truth is, of course, but it will tell you when to be skeptical, and suspicious. Lies have distinguishing features.

Blue pills have an aftertaste. Learn to distrust that particular flavour.

A selection from Whisper's ~~bullshit~~ blue pill detection tools:

- Lies are told by those who want them believed. Be suspicious if the person telling you a thing profits from you believing that thing, or learned it from someone who profits from you believing that thing.
- Truth can be observed many times from the universe, but lies spread from their authors. Be suspicious if every person who tells you an idea uses the same words. Odds are they all heard it from each other.
- Lies are told to get you to do something. Be suspicious if the man telling you something to believe also has something he wants you to do because of that.
- People are defensive about lies. Be suspicious if proponents of a narrative get mad that you don't believe them.
- Liars hate the burden of evidence, and want to shift it. Be suspicious of any speaker who demands justification for your skepticism.
- Liars don't like competition. Be suspicious of anyone who tries to silence other narratives, instead of ignoring or criticizing them.
- Profitable things justify investment. If someone is spending a lot of money to spread a story, be suspicious. They expect to profit from that investment.'
- People tend to believe what they want the truth to be, but the universe is perverse. Be suspicious if a story contains no bad news. Since when did the universe become friendly to our desires?
- Liars love language. Those who have no evidence can't show you anything... they have only words. Be suspicious of anyone who tries to change the words you use... they are trying to influence how you think. (Thanks, /u/Heathcliff--)
- Liars rely on reverence. If you're afraid to have your story questioned, you attach it to the coattails of that which it is socially unacceptable to question. This might be JESUS (as opposed to just the moral traditions of our culture) in some communities and SCIENCE! (as opposed to just plain old science) in others. Remember that liars want to stop the argument, not settle it.

- Liars make compound assertions. Be suspicious of someone who doesn't want to let you pick and choose what to believe from his story. Anyone can start with an obviously true statement, but truth is not contagious. It doesn't infect the rest of this narrative.

You can sample any story, from religion to late-night television commercials, from these characteristic tastes, and for others like them. But even more important is the process of tasting again to find them in what you already believe. The lies you never notice are the ones that hurt you the most. Learn to recognize the distinguishing smells of a lie in the things you know to be lies. Then look for them elsewhere.

Remember that skepticism is free.

There are two fundamental skills that one must have in order to thrive. The first, distinguishing truth from falsehood, we have already talked about some:

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/97f0kh/distrust_that_particular_flavour/

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/8pz9m3/go_out_and_test_it/

... and will talk about more in the future. The second is the skill of learning new skills.

Skills are the path to pretty much anything you want which is at all possible. When you know what to learn (by distinguishing truth from falsehood), and you know how to learn, you always have a way to work towards your goals.

Learning important things is hard, because if learning a thing is easy, everyone already knows how to do it, so it's not that important. We distinguish ourselves from others by learning hard skills. And when we say "hard skills", we mean "hard to learn", because any skill becomes easier to perform the better one learns to perform it.

So how does learning work?

- There are three distinct types of learning: Education, Practice, and Training.
- They don't substitute for each other; learning requires all three.
- Although they do overlap some, they are stages, and they need to happen in order.
- Learning a skill can be one big Education-Practice-Training sequence, but it usually also has lots of little ones inside it.

Now, everyone here knows that:

- EDUCATION is the process of transferring knowledge from an external source into you. (The source can be a book, another person, a video, just going out and looking at something directly, performing science experiments, whatever.) Knowledge of a subject is not performance of a skill, but no one can perform a skill unless they first know what they are supposed to be doing.

So what are practice and training, and how are they different?

- PRACTICE is the act of attempting to perform a skill, observing the results of the attempt, and correcting the performance according to the observation. This try-observe-correct-try cycle is called a feedback loop. It is the presence of this feedback loop which distinguishes practice from education. Generally the faster this loop can be run, the more cycles you can complete, and the more effective your practice time will be at improving your skill.
- TRAINING is the process of inducing a stress to stimulate an adaptive response. (If this doesn't sound familiar to you, then do you even lift, bro?) When a skill can be performed correctly and reliably in practice, a stress is introduced into that performance to induce an adaptation to that stress. (If you can perform a squat correctly with an empty bar, add some weight to it. If you can reliably hit 10 out of 10 shots from prone at 300 yards, do it against a 60 second time limit.)

The difference between practice and training is that practice uses a feedback loop to teach an action, while training uses an induced stress to modify the performance of an already-practiced action.

So, when we want to learn properly, we:

- First educate ourselves so we know what a performance of the action should look like.

- Then we practice the action, focusing on using feedback (the quicker the better) to make the action correct, not on the difficulty or challenge of the practice task.
- Last, when we can do the action reliably and correctly, we train by adding some stress to that performance in order to be able to do it under those conditions: faster, heavier, under less favorable conditions, while balancing a ball on your nose, whatever. Just remember that adapting to one stress adapts you to that stress, not necessarily others.
- This is the cycle. We run big cycles of this, and smaller cycles inside that. But practice must be informed by education, and training must be enabled by practice.

So what happens to people who don't do this?

- Your kid brother who tried to "learn MMA" by putting on some boxing gloves and duking it out in the backyard with his friends was training without practice or education. He got faster and smoother at doing the wrong thing, perhaps, but can't really fight.
- If he hung a heavy bag and hit that a bunch first, before he progressed to brawling, then he was practicing without education, and things were much the same.
- The guy who thinks he can fight because he watches a whole bunch of professional MMA matches and knows what all the moves are is educated without being practiced or trained, and can't punch his way out of a wet paper bag.
- That strip mall karate school guy who can do elaborate forms but can't fight is educated and practiced, but not trained. He has not introduced stress into his learning process, so his skill performance falls apart under stress.
- That wannabe tough guy who starts fighting smoker matches when has only been boxing for four months is training without enough practice. He knows what a good punch looks like, what good footwork looks like, but it all falls apart in the ring, because he hasn't practiced it enough, and the level of stress he is inducing is too high, too fast.

So how do we learn?

- Pursue the steps in order.
- Any time you are learning, know which one you are doing: educating yourself, practicing, or training.
- Focus on what is needed for the step you are doing:
 - When educating yourself, focus on gaining a mental understanding of the proper way to do things. It doesn't matter that you can't do it yet.
 - When practicing, focus on creating a tight feedback loop so you can correct your technique. The quicker and better your feedback, the more effective your practice will be. Do not induce stress by trying to make things more "realistic" or by "practicing a harder thing". You are trying to be correct, not fast, smooth, or awesome.
 - When training, focus on adapting what you already know to a new level of pressure. Do not try new shit you haven't practiced first.
- Don't make the "coward error" of educating forever to avoid practice, or practicing forever to avoid training. You will never learn.
- Don't make the "showoff error" of jumping right to practice without education, or training right away without practice. You will think you look awesome, but you will continue to suck.
- When you change what you are doing, jump back to a previous stage. Never try to learn something new under stress if you can avoid it.

Think about what you are doing, and you will get better faster.

620

UPVOTES

Instant Gratification

4 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm eating a burger as I write this.

It's a pretty good burger... 50/50 wagyu and elk, duck bacon, mozzarella cheese, some kinda spicy barbeque sauce but not nasty and sugary like southern style, more southwestern. Bun's a tasteless disappointment of gluten-free "bread", but that's hardly anyone's fault other than my own digestive system.

Nicest thing about it is that someone brought it to my door. I just clicked some things on the internet and someone brought me food, and I can concentrate on writing weird stuff for you deranged monkey boys instead of driving my ass downtown or even talking on the phone with some minimum-wage retard who doesn't speak American.

So why the fuck am I writing an article about my lunch? Have I finally lost the plot? Am I about to start taking restaurant selfies and posting them on instabook or facegram?

Nah.

I'm talking about food (and more importantly, food delivery), because last time I talked to ya'll, about something a little more fundamental, a sizeable number of people choose to "agree" with me by recapitulating the Yorkshiremen Sketch, like this:

A large problem with today's society is we're a bunch of wanters. Everything is so instant...messaging, food, online shopping.

...

Instant gratification is the death of character, and self respect.

...

Indeed. You become addicted to gratification.

This shit is eternal. Every time society starts working right, or simply hasn't stopped working yet, technology advances. And every time technology advances, old farts decide that young people have it "too easy", and either it's going to ruin them, or it already has. I'm sure that at some moment in prehistory, Angrinak thought that Tholo was ruining his character by hunting aurochs with these fancy new Clovis points.

So I'm here, having polished off my instant-gratification-and-duck-bacon burger, to rant at you why, yes, there IS something wrong with young dudes right now (as if we would be here if there weren't), but, no Dr. Van Winkle, your diagnosis is not correct.

The average timid, depressed millennial who limps into TRP looking to fix his life has not been broken by the presence of instant gratification, but by the absence of non-instant gratification.

Saaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaay whut? Whisper, you just said the same thing twice!

No, I didn't.

It doesn't matter that I can make someone bring me lunch right away so I can write. What matters is that I have things to work on that are neither so easy that I can succeed instantly, nor so hard that I cannot ever conquer them.

Real goals that require long term work give life what most people call "meaning", although it can be better described as a sense of achievement.

It doesn't matter whether the average millennial can summon lunch with one click, or images of naked nymphs with another. He's not depressed, hopeless and ineffectual because everything is too easy. If everything were too easy, he would be getting a lot more things... easily.

No, his problem is that he doesn't believe in his ability to succeed at difficult tasks eventually. If his initial effort doesn't lead to success, he doesn't give up to avoid hard work... he gives up in the belief that hard work would yield him nothing. He's not being lured away from real girls by images of naked sluts... he's using the images of naked sluts to anesthetize his feelings of hopelessness of ever succeeding with the real girls.

How did we get this way?

Well, to grossly oversimplify, around about the mid-1970s, a bunch of middle-aged harpies with PhDs in Education (from the French "Edu", meaning "like psychology", and "cation", meaning "but with even more bullshit"), decided that there was a thing called "self-esteem", that "self-esteem" was really important for children to have, that constant praise and celebration of everything about them would bolster children's "self-esteem", and that failure would damage or destroy it. So they adjusted public school practices, and "expert" advice to young parents, accordingly.

Well, it turns out that scienceism isn't just dumb... it's dangerous. Consider the work of this negligent mass-murderer, for example.

And so, like so many of the projects of scienceists and ivory-tower intellectuals, the action they took achieved the exact opposite of the intended effect. Each succeeding generation of young children, constantly praised, and sheltered from any difficult task which might lead to failure, did not develop a high self-esteem. They hated their participation trophies, they knew their accomplishments amounted to nothing, and yet they were terrified to try anything difficult, because all of their young lives, they had been graded on avoiding failure.

Self-reliance (a very different thing from self esteem) in adulthood comes from the repeated experience in childhood of trying a difficult thing, and succeeding through sustained effort. Without this experience early on, the later adult will be very afraid to try new things, believing failure to be both inevitable and permanent. This continues the pattern of deprivation of challenge, and lack of self-reliance.

Thus, the problem we see is not one of general excess and abundance, but of specific scarcity and starvation in the very midst of that excess.

One of the most common mistakes both men and women make when trying to attract the opposite sex is projection.

Men who don't understand women will woo them with displays of devotion and declarations of passion (and come off appearing pathetic rather than attractive), because they think what men want is simply what people want.

And women who do not understand men will attempt to increase their allure by making a show of confidence they don't feel, and "playing hard to get" with a show of challenging aloofness, because they think what women want is simply what people want.

When women have significant academic or career accomplishments, they tend to fall into a particular example of this trap... assuming that men care, or should care, what they have accomplished. This can take the form of "resume courtship" (attempting to appeal to men by showing or speaking of accomplishments or capabilities), attempting to attract a man's attention by competing with him (a real turnoff), or even actually becoming angry that men do not value her small business, her executive title, or her PhD.

This is a form of projection. While women use a man's accomplishments to evaluate his character, but men do not... they have other ways to do that which they prefer.

Why?

Simple. Because men like young women. A 21 year old cannot meaningfully be evaluated by asking "Does she have a PhD in philosophy?", because no 21 year old does. A man who wishes to court her must find other ways of evaluating if she is intelligent enough to understand the world around her, a good conversationalist, and possessed of a sense of curiosity. He cannot simply ask "has she built a business from the ground up?" because she won't have done that, either... he must find other ways to evaluate if she resourceful, self-disciplined, and capable of sticking to a goal.

So, you might think that if you have a PhD, and your husband has a PhD, your PhD matters to him... but it doesn't. It didn't make him pick you. What made him pick you was the traits that enabled you to get it, coupled with the fact that he ran into you in that environment because you were there in the first place... that's how you met.

To understand this, it helps to hear a tale I was once told by a sports reporter. Apparently, the athletes' village at each olympic games is the site of a great deal of promiscuity. (Anyone surprised? Didn't think so.) But apparently the dynamic shifts as the games wear on, and more and more events are completed. As event results come in, female athletes begin to display a marked preference for male medalists. (Anyone surprised? Didn't think so.) But the instructive part is that the males do not display a corresponding preference. Female olympic athletes are highly desirable because they are pretty, healthy, energetic, and vital... but it doesn't make a damn bit of difference whether they won or not. The losers are still all of these things, and the men still seek them out.

The takeaway looks like this:

- Men don't care about your victories, only the traits you used to get them.
- Men don't use your victories to measure your traits or character.
- Never expect a man to love you for your accomplishments, you will be disappointed.
- Never build a resume for the sake of attracting a man. Only do it if you want it for some other reason.
- Never assume you are unable to attract a high-status man because you lack the accomplishments of other women in his life. All you need is the combination of traits he desires.

85

UPVOTES

How Many Women?

1 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Kitten is still struggling to come to terms with having to share my attention with FunSize, not to mention the occasional plate. FunSize, of course, is experienced at this, and has no issues, but Kitten feels threatened by her very presence, and won't talk to her for long enough to bond and stop seeing her as a threat.

Since Kitten is actually Dr. Kitten, PhD, she likes to intellectualize things that upset her, thinking about them in abstract terms rather than as they relate to her personally. This gives her emotional distance so she can cope. So the other day (I actually started writing this sometime back, so it was a while ago now), she hits me with this question:

"How does polygamy [by which she means polygyny] fit into evo psych? How did monogamy [by which she means monogyny] form?"

Fleshing out the gist of my answer into a compete description for TRP:

Polygyny is a mating strategy optimized for replacing combat losses, because one man can easily keep multiple women pregnant. It's used by warlike societies, or those with high male-specific mortality rates.

Monogyny is a mating strategy optimized for appeasing low-tier males, because it guarantees them a mate. It's used by peaceful societies which depend on beta male labour and cooperation for their prosperity.

Polygyny's effect upon the Sexual Marketplace is to increase the availability of apex males.

This benefits:

Read the rest on trp.red...

200

UPVOTES

Whisper's Comprehensive Guide to the Shit Test

12 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

What is a shit test?

Female attractiveness is clearly obvious to even the most casual of observers. Beauty, femininity, and approachability, the three pillars of female SMV, are all on display in any girl you can see, hear, and speak with.

Male attractiveness, being basically a rubric for "how useful would this guy be during a riot or zombie apocalypse?", is less evident from casual interaction. While muscularity can be seen, wits, nerve, resourcefulness, persistence, and other behavioural qualities cannot.

Men can passively observe attractiveness, but girls must actively probe for it.

Enter the shit test, wherein a girl gives a man a hard time ("some shit") to see how well he copes with it. This takes a number of different forms, and can be at pretty much any level of intensity, but if a girl suddenly does something that seems intended to bother you, and is totally unprovoked, you can be pretty sure you're being shit-tested.

This is generally an indicator of interest (IOI). If a girl cares how attractive you are, it's usually because she is considering mating with you, consciously or not. Successfully pass a shit test, and she will feel more attracted to you. Fail it, and she'll feel less.

Read the full guide at TRP.red.

262

UPVOTES

Hypergamy is Monogamy

9 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Dr. Kitten, PhD, is a useful girl to have around. Studying mainstream western psychology may have taught her all the wrong answers, but it did give her a certain facility with asking the right questions, and understanding the answers without too much difficulty.

The other day she laid this one on me:

“If there’s just a few men who all the women are attracted to, and the rest just get ignored...”

(Jealous as she is of FunSize, FanGirl, and whatever plates she might find out about, she has to admit she’d rather share my attention than have any of the various guys who have proposed to her all to herself.)

“... then is that true of women as well? Are there apex women who all the men want instead of anyone else? And what are they like? How do they get there?”

The answer, of course, is “No.”

Hypergamy is the reason, and it’s much talked about, but rarely understood. Most people think it just means “women are cheaters with an inherent tendency to trade up”.

If you think that, you missed the whole point. Hypergamy actually happens because women are monogamous, and men aren’t.

Here’s how it works:

(Full article on trp.red)

222

UPVOTES

The Zeroth Law of Power

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Ultimately, the Red Pill is about winning. Certainly, it was invented to be nothing but a pool of observations and speculations about what really is, but the reason we care about this shit is so we can get what we want.

Knowledge is important because knowledge is power.

And we can read the 48 Laws of Power for some valuable suggestions on how to attain and wield power. But what about knowledge about power? Surely that is the most powerful of all. What are the underlying principles upon which power is based, and with which it can be analyzed and understood?

Examine this possibility:

The Zeroth Law of Power: In any interaction, power is held in inverse proportion to need. He who needs the least from an interaction has the most power within it.

When we try thinking this way, we can see arguments, negotiations, and power struggles in a whole new light.

Full text on trp.red

145

UPVOTES

You NEED to Stick Your Head in this Bucket. RIGHT NOW.

15 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Sooner or later, someone is going to walk up to you with a bucket, and somewhat breathlessly explain how you urgently need to stick your head in it.

It might have any number of different labels on it. “Jesus”, perhaps. Or “philosophy”. Or “psychotherapy”, “socialism”, “functional programming”, or “steroids”, or “veganism” or “nofap” or “The Red Pill”, or “LSD”, or “mysticism”.

They’ll explain how inside the bucket is a wonderful enlightening experience that will change your view of the universe... and having already stuck their own heads there, they certainly seem to believe it. But is that a slightly glazed look in their eyes?

If we look at this problem in a naive, simplified-math-game-theory way, it’s insoluble. Before you stick your head in the bucket, you don’t know what’s inside. And afterwards, if indeed you do, you don’t know if you have truly gained meaningful enlightenment, or simply been practiced upon.

But the world, fortunately for us, isn’t actually that simple. It’s full of other people...

Full text on the parent site.

97
UPVOTES

There Is More Than One Blue Pill
22 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

Whhhhhhhhaaaaaaaaaaaaaaat?

Exactly.

That's the experience of reading some of these questions. I'll be skimming along, yes, okay, dead bedroom, trying to do better, been reading RPW for a few weeks/months, boyfriend is like this, she is like that, yeah, yeah, looks familiar... and then, suddenly:

I've been trying to improve. Every day I tie a live duck to my right ankle, just like the red pill advises. It's hard, but I'm getting used to the quacking now. He doesn't seem to like it, though.

... or something only slightly less ridiculous.

What?

The red pill advises whatnow?

When did I write this? When did any EC write this, here or on TRP? Who wrote this? How on earth did you come to think this was any part of red pill advice?

As if we didn't already know.

Some of y'all been going to university, and listening to the freshman in the back of the class, who's straight out of high school, instead of to the professor's lecture.

Example:

Our relationship has worked up to this point because I worked the RedPill and part of this included hiding my fetishes with him so I would appear to be a quality woman.

This poor girl somehow got confused, listened to the newcomers in the cheap seats, thought it was redpilled advice because it was a comment on RPW, and thought that:

- Quality women don't have fetishes (What?)
- Quality women lie to their spouses. (Seriously?)
- Lying and hiding information from a man helps him to be a good and effective leader. (No. Just... no.)
- You can white-knuckle your way through life suppressing your own needs (I'll pass, thanks.)

RPW is no different than every other place in the human sphere... it's fulla people who love to hear themselves talk. Some of those advice comments are coming from people who just showed up here yesterday, and have never had a successful relationship in their lives. It's kinda dumb for them to be pontificating, but the mod team's not gonna ban them all, because that's like trying to hold back a glacier, and, hey, they need to learn, too.

So be careful who you listen to.

We invented the EC tag system to make this easier on you. There are some people you know you can rely on, with big, easy to read stamps on them for your convenience. The mods have vetted them for a long time, to make sure they know what they are talking about, and continue to watch them to make sure quality stays high. (Yes, tags have been yanked in the past, for bad advice, or losing the trust of the community).

Others, you might wanna ask yourself if what you just heard is really in line with the way we try to build healthy relationships.

And if you're trying some principle that just isn't working out for you no matter how hard you try, try asking yourself if that's really something we actually teach... or you just picked up that impression from somewhere.

And for god's sake, don't hide your kinks from your husband. (Eyeroll.)

191
UPVOTES

The Thing You Really Want
8 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

64

UPVOTES

How Do I Use This Thing?

23 April 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/918>

187
UPVOTES

The Why of Feminism
18 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/926>

Chad, Dylan, and the Myth of "the Bad Man"

24 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I recently read a neat little send-up of how some men use feminism or the appearance of sensitivity and allegiance to women's concerns as a sexual strategy, using a character "Dylan" as a concrete stereotype. While it was cleverly written, and certainly describes a thing, there was something slightly... off... about it.

Damseling.

"Oh, woe is women's lot! All these different evil men are always trying different evil strategies to get them into bed! How could they despoil these helpless creatures who have no will or judgment of their own? How dare they pursue their own objectives in life, rather than making sure women get what they want instead? How dare they coerce women into deviant sex acts by making noises with their mouths?"

Now, some women who object to Chad and Dylan may need a fainting couch and some ammonia salts, while others may just be a bit disapproving, but they would both be making the same mistake.

What mistake? Sorting men into "good" and "bad" men, and believing that their lives will be made happy by seeking out the former and shunning the latter.

Women, however, are not endowed with any special powers of moral perception, nor with any sort of divine ability to sort the evil men from the good ones. And even were they equipped to do so, there are plenty of good men who make terrible relationship partners.

In order to be successful in love, a women must understand the difference between the concepts of "good" and "good for me", and realize that only one is in play in relationships.

Any man you date will appear bad or good to you depending on how closely the way he treats you aligns with your goals for the relationship. But since the way he treats you will always align with his own relationship goals, a man will appear bad or good to you depending upon how closely his relationship goals align with yours.

If you are left-leaning college girl who wants to party, have fun, get a lot of attention, and have a lot of orgasms, then Dylan will be a godsend. If you are a Christian-with-capital-C girl who wants to be in a committed relationship before she graduates, get married right afterwards, then stay at home raising four children while her husband supports her, then Dylan will appear to be the devil himself.

And that girl's ideal mate (let's call him Alan) will appear to another girl to be a raging asshole because he wants to take away her career, turn her into a brood mare, trap her at home with a herd of brats, and prevent her from wearing skirts that show her (gasp!) ankles.

The most saintly man in the world might be a terrible partner for you if you're into rough kinky sex and he absolutely refuses to choke a bitch. A complete cad to others might be a wonderful husband if he wants the same things out of life you do, and you are Bonnie to his Clyde.

The same thing is true for men. The same sentence might sound to two different men like "I love you so much that I want to bear your heirs and care for them with all my love" ... or "I love you so much that I want to create a screaming, expensive homunculus, and prioritize it above you in all things for the rest of your life".

Depending on whether or not he wants kids.

Shared goals are one of the three elements of a successful relationship (along with mutual attraction and shared values), and so, to be successful in relationships, you need to know what your real relationship goals are, and to be able to figure out what those of the men you date are.

This is less simple than it sounds, because people lie all the time, both to themselves and others, about what they want, and what will make them happy. You can't just take his word for it, or even your own.

But the task is made possible at all when you realize that goal alignment is not the same as morality, and that the second is not necessary or even sufficient for the first. Analyzing someone's morality is idle coffee-shop chatter; analyzing his goals tells you if he is right for you.

208

UPVOTES

Don't fall for "natural".

10 September 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

So someone asked how, if femininity was hard to achieve for some women, could it really be "natural".

Nothing we do in our lives is "natural". Natural is hunting and gathering. Natural is sleeping under a tree. Natural is being constantly pregnant between the ages of 11 and 35. Natural is dying in your thirties of rotten teeth. In short, natural, the way modern people use the word, is what happens if you don't do something to oppose entropy.

So do not mistake natural for good, healthy, or desirable.

You are not trying to live as you would in the natural state of humanity... you are trying to do far, far better than that. Doing far, far, better than that is why humans invented civilization and technology in the first place. We are trying to improve our lives over the state of "natural".

When you shave your legs, you are not just imitating a young, healthy, high-estrogen girl's pale, fine, and less-visible leg hair... you are exaggerating it. When I lift heavy barbells, I am not simply imitating the effects of high natural testosterone, I am greatly exceeding them. A house built of timber and drywall isn't a substitute for a shade tree on the African savannah, or a cave... it is a vast improvement upon it. Willow bark is natural. Ibuprofen is not. Guess which one works better?

The history of human civilization is nothing but the story of how humans tried to improve upon nature... and usually succeeded. This required effort. This required humans to leave their comfort zone, and do things they they had not tried before. This required the willingness to plan, try, fail, plan again, and try again.

If you don't want to cultivate those things, then the notion that everything worth doing should be "natural" will seem very tempting. But this is just wishful thinking. If improvement were easy, it would not be considered improvement, because everyone would already have done it.

You're going to have to work.

141

UPVOTES

Giant Heads

17 November 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1058>

220
UPVOTES

How to GET RICH OVERNIGHT with this one simple trick (Employers hate it!)

22 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1081>

264 | How to NOT argue with feminists.
UPVOTES 10 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1088>

173
UPVOTES

How to be a Skeptical Bastard
14 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1153>

86

UPVOTES

Situational Metagame

4 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1221>

223
UPVOTES

Muscle Men, Intellectuals, and the Perpetual Student

9 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1252>

29

UPVOTES

Persuasion and the Modular Mind

8 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1269>

35

UPVOTES

No Means No Means ... What?

12 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1274>

169

UPVOTES

So what if you've had a lot of partners?

2 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

(This started out as a comment, and grew.)

Okay, so first of all, this is not a tradcon space. Their answer to "I slept with a lot of men" is "begone harlot!", which isn't very useful, because "you shouldn't have done that" isn't advice, it's just moralizing.

Okay, the bad news is that because of what you did, you absolutely are less desirable as a wife. Take a deep breath, look in the mirror, and accept that, because getting mad or sad about it does no good. You are not a jar of peanut butter, you can't get unscrewed.

Also useless is blaming men for caring about such things. Men weren't put on this earth to serve you. They get to like what they like and they don't have to answer to you for whether it's "justified" or not.

The important place to start with is to understand why men care about your sexual past.

This may be difficult because men themselves usually do not know why they care about your sexual past. They don't understand their own feelings in this area, and so they cannot explain them. They only know that it "bothers them". So they make up excuses like the ridiculous "stretched out" myth, as if girl parts could somehow wear out, and did so faster with more partners. Or they say that women who have lots of partners can't pair bond, when it's actually the reverse (women who can't pair bond have lots of partners).

They're not trying to lie to you. They just don't know why they are turned off by the idea of committing to a woman who's been with lots of other men... and they are trying to explain it themselves.

But it can be understood. The key word here is "committing". If you look at porn targeted towards men (not the written-word stuff targeted at women), then you notice that the women in it are just about as slutty as it's possible to be, and it doesn't turn the male audience off at all (otherwise they wouldn't be depicted that way).

Men don't care about the sexual past of their casual sex partners, but they care deeply about the sexual past of their romantic partners. This is because they know, even if they can't articulate it, that a woman is at her most sexually available and adventurous with the man she loves the most.

What actually bothers men is the idea of being with someone, of committing to someone, for whom he wasn't the top choice. A man can be patient with a girl who is a virgin... so what if she made him wait for a week, or a month, or whatever? After all, she made everyone else wait for eternity. She's still being at her most sexually available with him in particular.

But once a girl has, for example, a one-night stand, then that indicates something about what it takes to inspire her sexual enthusiasm, and if she tries to put the brakes on with future partners, this tells them exactly where they stand in the scheme of things. This is why men find the news that his wife had a previous one night stand to be humiliating... she desired that other man more than she desired him.

And it's no good to say "I made a mistake" or "I changed my standards" because all that means is "other men were able to tempt me to do unwise things, but I have more self-control with you".

So, that's the problem with sleeping with a man you just met... because forever afterwards, that's the standard. That's the benchmark. Anything more reserved than that means "I'm just not that into you". And you will never persuade a man otherwise by talking at him.

So, with all this being understood, what can you do?

There are three approaches:

1. Lie. This may seem immoral, but we don't do moralizing here. Lies can, theoretically, fix the problem. But there are some drawbacks. You can't ever be totally open and honest in your relationship... you have to live that lie for as long as your relationship lasts. Also, if you ever get caught, a lie compounds the injury, and you should not expect the relationship to survive.

2. Continue to take sexual risks, but with a purpose. This involves being as sexually available to the men you're dating now as you ever were in the past, although now you are at least looking for a relationship. Obviously, this tend to expand your sexual history even further, but at least if you manage to get something going, you didn't withhold from him more than you did with others.
3. Radical self-improvement. Increase your value on the sexual marketplace so much that you are not the same sexual partner at all, and it's obvious that you can command more effort and investment. This is not as simple as just learning to play the piano, or being slightly nicer to men. It has to be a profound and immediately obvious improvement to the point where a man would not be made ashamed. Think on the order of quitting your drug habit, losing fifty pounds, maybe getting a nose job, and basically reinventing yourself. If you could be in a room with a former sexual partner and your husband, and the FIRST guy feels like a loser, because he had a much worse version of you, that's the magnitude we are talking about.

What do all of these solutions have in common? Well, they all hurt. They all have drawbacks.

But this is the real world, and it wasn't put here to be fulfill your fantasies. This is simply damage control.

It may be tempting to think that you can re-invent yourself as a virgin and simply raise your standards. We've seen plenty of women try to do this, and some of them even find partners. But what they do not find is enthusiastic partners who had other choices. Men who wife up an slut are men who don't have options, and there will reasons why they don't have those options.

So if you want the best partner that is available to you, you're going to have to have a concrete strategy for dealing with what you did, and how that affects their feelings, instead of just complaints about the consequences of your actions. That means more risk, and more compromises... but we can always play the cards we have to the best of our abilities.

321

UPVOTES

TRP has an End Game

22 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1355>

71
UPVOTES

(Endgame) The Lost Boys
3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1363>

90

UPVOTES

The TRP Endgame: Financial Freedom

16 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1375>

345

UPVOTES

What, some of you clowns are actually MAD about OnlyFans?

15 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Are you seriously that retarded?

When are going to stop being butthurt about every girl on the planet not being your ideal Stepford sex slave, and start thinking about them as a commodity that follows the rules of economics?

A small but significant percentage of the latest generation of basic self-absorbed bimbos just dropped the bottom out of the pussy market.

Three times.

First because the price of a girl getting naked for ya is now fixed at about the going rate of a cup of fancy coffee.

Second because so many of the simsps who used to give out free attention are now at home jerking off to cheap custom porn, which drives the price of male attention up.

Third because now ordinary girls, instead of just drug addicts whose daddies beat them, are now joining the sex work economy. Which normalizes prostitution. And when that becomes legalized in the same that weed did, the real price of pussy will forever be public knowledge, and it won't be much.

Look, if TRP was the Tradcon Central Committee of the Revive EthnoNationalist Socialism Movement, and you were a good little Christian Patriarch in Training, looking for your pure-as-the-driven-snow Aryan forever wife, to have starfish sex with you once a month with the lights off and raise your 3.5 children in exchange for half your shit, then, yeah, OnlyFans would lower your pool of options.

But you're not. You're a degenerate pervert who's here to learn to keep your pimp hand strong and be a better degenerate pervert, from older, wiser, and more degenerate perverts like me. And you don't care if society fucks off down a hole and drowns itself, because it wasn't your decision to send it there, and you have neither the power nor the obligation to save it.

Don't you get it yet? You may be living in Upside Down Clown World, and the people running the circus may hate you, but you're still at an advantage because you're the only guy in the room who isn't dressed like a clown.

Did you not ever wonder why the old world failed? Why the tradcons got their asses kicked by feminism? Because Top Side Up Pussy Cartel World sucked, too, just in a completely different way. Think about how fucking thirsty the baby boomer men must have been, to kick over their entire society just for the promise of little unshaven free-love poontang? (Which they largely never got.)

I don't have to think about it. I was there. I saw.

Yes, it's true that girlfriend material is scarcer. Yes, it's true that in my high school, you couldn't have thrown a sock in a classroom without hitting three thin, pretty, white or asian girls who were relatively polite and didn't even use cuss words.

But getting them in bed was a lot of work. Nowadays you can have all the variety you want, quick and easy and cheap, and if you want a girlfriend, it doesn't actually matter as much as you think that supplies are dwindling... because your competition is dwindling even faster.

I honestly don't know what I'm going to tell the girls at RPW. Because if they are still looking for a relationship and not already in one, they are so completely and totally fucked. Imagine trying to keep your N-count low when every swingin' dick out there expects a test drive before he even thinks about buying, to say nothing of the joy riders who are only pretending to be in the market at all.

But you... you are going to be fine. Feminism has given you far more power over women than patriarchy ever would have. So stop slut-shaming. Sluts are good for you. They suck your dick, and then other women have to suck your dick to be able to compete. Just ignore or laugh at them if they want your commitment and love.

Go get 'em, boys.

If you're reading this post months or years after it was written, it's probably because you have been linked here by someone who thinks that you need in-person help with your relationship, possibly by a professional.

(This post was written at the request of the mod team to be a resource for situations where RPW cannot necessarily help.)

While RPW, as a group with values, tries to avoid the typical pattern of "leave him, gurl, You Deserve Better™!" advice that women tend to get on the internet (regardless of the situation), certain relationship problems are actually severe, and cannot be addressed by some internet advice.

This is not simply a matter of "we're not qualified professionals"... indeed some of us may be. But the major qualification to do intervention in a profoundly unhealthy relationship is physical presence and ongoing involvement... neither of which we are able to provide you.

This isn't the "when you should leave" list. It's the "we can't help you" list. You might leave even a serious relationship for many more reasons than this. But these are specifically things where internet advice is inappropriate.

Here are some situations which might be severe enough that you should seek in-person help, or consider ending the relationship, even if it is an ongoing long-term one with a lot invested in it:

.1. Physical abuse.

While the stereotype of unilateral evil-man-beats-innocent-angelic-woman is not the typical abuse situation, any type of relationship violence is a severe problem, whether it's him striking you, you striking him, both of hitting each other, or anyone hitting the kids. This level of relationship conflict is not something we can defuse with internet advice. You should seek expert help, and consider ending the relationship if that does not work... patterns of this level of conflict can be difficult to break. Seek help in person.

(Note: this doesn't apply to kinky sex. If one of you is hitting the other, not out of anger, but because you both get off on it, that might be considered "violence", but it isn't conflict. Just be careful not to get too enthusiastic and put someone in the Emergency Room.)

.2. Severe emotional abuse or conflict

The real damage in abusive relationships often results from living in fear or a constant state of vigilance, rather than simply injuries. This same effect can be created with words. Like physical violence, this can go either way, or in both directions at once, but is not something anyone can simply "live with"... it can cause severe mental and even physical health problems. Seek help in person.

.3. Severe addiction

While our culture is slowly coming around to the idea that addiction is a health problem, rather than a moral or criminal one, addict behaviour can be very destructive, and the consequences of living close to an addict can be severe. While the choice to stay or leave is ultimately an individual one, we can't provide advice for that choice here, because it's simply too hard to get insight into the situation over the internet. Seek help in person.

.4. Prolonged physical separation

While this one may seem harsh, as it isn't really anyone's "fault", relationships are close personal contact, and prolonged separation is not something they can necessarily survive. The decision to end a relationship because someone cannot be available enough to make it work is a painful one, but sometimes it is necessary to do so, so that both people can be free to find another that can fulfilled their needs. Discuss this with your partner, and seek advice from friends and family who have known you a long time.

(When this is initially posted, I will leave the comments open so that readers can suggest amendments. The intent here is to have a permanent list of "this problem is beyond the scope of RPW situations" that we can link people to, instead of randomly saying "leave him, gurl, You Deserve Better"TM!)"

233

UPVOTES

The Most Important Thing

24 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1424>

147
UPVOTES

This Article Will Infuriate You
5 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1442>

20

UPVOTES

Ask Whisper: How to use intermittent fasting to lose weight?

7 February 2021 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

After reading my brief summary of some human metabolism basics, a reader asks:

I am about 50 pounds overweight just bought an exercise bike. Should I fast 16 hours a day and eat during the 8 hours window to keep my insulin lower and start the fat burning process?

Also should I exercise while fasted to burn more fat before my insulin spikes. Thank you for your post very informative and made a lot of sense and changed my out look on eating!

Dear Reader:

Glad ya liked it.

If you are fifty pounds overweight, you've probably tried all the traditional bluepilled advice by this time. "Just eat less and move more, bro! It's like... thermo-dianetics, bro! It can't not work!". So, presumably you're sick of it. Time to stop treating your body like a passive box that holds calories, and treat it like an active engine that does stuff.

The basic idea here is to spend time in a low-insulin state, so that you can get energy-storing compounds out of your cells. So the lower your insulin levels, and the longer you spend with low insulin levels, the more opportunity you have to burn both the stuff that makes you ugly (subcutaneous fat), and the stuff that's going to kill you (liver fat and pancreas fat). Fasting puts you in this state without lowering your metabolic rate. (Because primitive man would truly have been fucked if he couldn't chase meatbeasts while he was hungry.)

Many physicians who recommend this approach will start their patients with an 8-hour eating window each day, followed by 16 hours of fasting. This is a good start, and gets your body used to the idea. You will be hungry at first, and, since you are probably obese, you be more hungry... you may feel like you are going to die, or to give in and start shoving bagels in your face.

The thing to keep in mind is that courage is knowing the difference between the hard and the impossible. The reason you're not going to give up is that you know that this bad period will be very brief. Soon, you won't be hungry anymore.... because your body doesn't get hungry.

Your stomach doesn't get hungry... it is perfectly happy being empty. It only has stretch receptors to tell you when it is full. It's your blood that gets hungry. And if you don't feed it when it's hungry, your insulin will go low, your glucagon will go high, and your fat cells will unpack the cooler and serve it up a sandwich.

You will know this is happening when you get hungry, and then it goes away again.

When you are fasting, stick to water, coffee, or tea. Anything non-caloric, but avoid artificial sweeteners; they can spike insulin, and some are unhealthy in other ways.

When you are eating, eat big meals and stop, rather than grazing constantly. Avoid bad stuff like processed food and sugar/fructose. But don't consciously try to eat less calories overall. Don't leave the table hungry. It's okay for your insulin to go high when you eat. Insulin is not the devil, high insulin is not bad. Insulin just needs to have the chance to go low instead of staying high all the time.

Pretty soon this will be comfortable. Then you can slowly raise the time limit as your body adapts, either by shrinking the eating time window, or skipping it once a week... whatever is most comfortable for you.

Then you can combine this with more good strategies like cutting carbohydrates, building muscle mass, doing cardio work, whatever. I recommend doing your lifting during eating windows, because high insulin assists muscle growth, and, while your body WILL NOT cannibal muscle to any great degree until your bodyfat gets low, your muscles WILL be weaker during the time you are fasting, simply on account of less fuel. The same applies to HIIT.

During fasting periods, you can walk or ride a bike or something if you want. But remember that the king of fat burning is not exercise, it's basal metabolic rate. The average human, depending on size, burns enough calories over the course of a day to run 6 to 10 miles. That's not including your regular activity. That's just lying still in bed keeping your body temperature up, your heart beating, your lungs breathing, etc.

So exercise helps, but above all, you wanna keep that metabolic rate high... so LIFT. Muscle mass burns that excess fat just by existing.

So, to summarize:

1. Start with an eat8/fast16 model.
2. No sugar, no alcohol.
3. During the 8, eat big meals, not little snacks.
4. During the 8, lift.
5. During the 16, non-caloric liquids only.
6. When 8/16 is a comfortable routine, experiment with finding ways to stretch that fast that your body likes. Shrink the eating window, or add one or more full-day fasts to your week.
7. Add in keto or low-carb if your body likes it.
8. Keep it at a pace you can sustain. Just like in lifting, the discipline that makes you go steadily is more important than the discipline that makes you go hard.
9. Ignore people who are angry that you can get results without suffering. If they want to suffer, they can go squirt pepper spray in their eyes or something. The red pill is about winning through knowing real shit.

Good luck.

126

UPVOTES

How not to be fat.

12 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Everyone knows that being fat is unattractive.

Lately there have been a fair amount of attempts to shame men into being attracted to fat women, but since most men don't find shame to be enticing, this hasn't been effective at all and is unlikely to be in the future. And while some women carry fat better than others, for every woman, there is a level of body fat at which she becomes unattractive.

There is also a great deal of argument as to whether being fat is unhealthy or not, but since people will move heaven and earth to avoid being ugly, when they won't lift a finger to avoid dying twenty years sooner, this really doesn't matter much.

Suffice to say that you don't want to be fat.

And yet, despite the fact that women desire desperately not to be fat, and try very hard not to be, still many, many women are... in fact many more than there were in previous generations. Which makes it overwhelmingly likely that some of you reading this are fat. And that still more, perhaps even most, are fatter than you would like to be.

Now, our culture, society, and indeed medical profession has very simple instructions for not being fat: Eat less, move more. They will tell you that your body is a receptacle for something called a "calorie", and that if you eat more of these "calories" than you burn while moving around, they are going to be stored as fat. And that thus fat loss, or fat gain, is a simple matter of arithmetic.

Now, anyone whose brain has not been surgically replaced with a cauliflower can tell that this is wrong, even if they are not a macho arrogant jerk like me, and therefore are not willing to argue with the food industry, the government, the medical profession, and a whole bunch of know-it-alls quoting from what they learned in the University of It Stands to Reason, or possibly the Post-Graduate School of I Read in a Book Somewhere.

Why? Because huge numbers of people are fat now, and fifty years ago, they weren't. "Calories" didn't come into existence fifty years ago. Neither did gluttony and sloth. Unless you want to try explaining how we, for no apparent reason, birthed several successive generations who were lazier and greedier than every generation before, this simply doesn't add up.

Neither does it add up with your own experience. You know who you are. You've counted "calories". And it kinda-sorta worked. For a while. But it was really hard. And unsustainable. And you quit. Then you blamed yourself, instead of the idea, because surely if you had only stuck to it, it would have worked.

Except a program that 99% of people cannot stick to needs to take the blame for its own failures. We cannot make people fit again by simply demanding a better class of human being, with more "willpower". "Just have more willpower" isn't any easier than "just don't be fat". That's silly.

Additionally, your great-grandmother did not count "calories", because she didn't know what a "calorie" was. And she didn't do "zumba", either. Because even I don't know what that is, and please don't tell me.

So we are going to start from the basic idea that you can be slim and proportionate your whole life without ever knowing what a "calorie" is, much less counting one.

And we are going to talk about what researchers (NOT physicians, physicians are a bunch of coconuts) know about how the body stores and uses fat.

So what IS fat, anyway? Well, fat is bunch of organic stuff that your body can burn for fuel, and can store in some of your cells so you don't die when you have nothing to eat.

And right there is the answer. But you don't see it yet, because getting the answer isn't the hard part... it's asking the right question. Often the answer to our problems are right there, but we can't see them because we don't understand the problem yet.

So fat is FOR keeping you alive when you don't have anything to eat. Duh. If your body had chlorophyll, or solar panels, or plugged into a wall, and thus had a constant inflow of energy, you wouldn't need the capacity to store it at all. Your hair dryer doesn't have a battery in it, but your laptop does. That's because your hair dryer is designed to work in an environment where energy is always available, and your laptop is designed to function without an outside source of energy for at least some period of time.

So now we know that your body is designed to store fat. That's supposed to happen. And your body is also designed to burn fat. That's supposed to happen, too. And that between these two processes, you're not supposed to get so skinny you can't sustain your body temperature, and you die of cold, or so fat you can't run or climb, and you die of sabertooth tigers. You're supposed to gain a little fat, and lose a little, over and over again.

Now, your body, despite what the "calorie" people will tell you, is not a box. It doesn't just have things in it because you put them there. In order to store fat, an active biochemical set of events has to happen to turn things into fat and put them in fat (adipose) cells. In order to burn fat, another set has to happen to order to unpack the fat and send it to muscle cells.

Your body doesn't get fat just because some things are lying around, and it doesn't get thin just because you're low on fuel. It gets fat, or thin, on purpose. There are control mechanisms, and things that trigger them.

So if your body is storing too much, and unpacking too little, so that you gradually expand like a balloon, than its because there is a switch (metaphorically speaking) that is stuck in one position.

Well, researchers know what this switch is, and now you will, too, because that's what we need to know.

The "switch" is two hormones: insulin, and glucagon.

Insulin stimulates cells to take up glucose from the bloodstream. Some need it to have this happen at all, some don't, but the important thing here is that adipose (fatty) cells turn this glucose (sugar) into triglycerides (fat), and store it. Beta cells in the pancreas release insulin when blood sugar is high.

Glucagon stimulates adipose cells to unpack triglycerides (fat), and release it into the blood. Other cells can burn this directly, and the liver can also convert it into glucose (sugar). Alpha cells in the pancreas release glucagon when blood sugar is low.

The important thing to understand here is that you can't have both these hormones high at once. So when your blood sugar is above a certain level, insulin stays high, and you can't burn fat, no matter how much you have, because you can't get it out of your cells.

That's the stuck switch.

If your blood sugar is too high, your insulin stays high, and you can't burn fat, you can only store it.

This is what happens when you calorie-restrict. You're eating small meals, but since you keep eating, your blood sugar stays high enough to prevent the release of glucagon in any significant amount. So if you have less energy coming in, but you can't unpack stored energy, you have to burn less, because it's physically impossible to burn energy you haven't got.

You've got loads of fat in your butt, but you're short of fuel, because you can't get it from your butt into your blood. You're hungry, and your metabolism slows to a glacial speed, because you're short of fuel.

This is why calorie-restricting diets fail. They're inefficient, because your metabolism is tanked, and they're impossible to stick to, because your brain thinks you're starving. Your brain can only see your blood, not your butt.

So what to do?

Do what this system was evolved for. Your body fat isn't evolved to sustain you when you eat a salad and a small bun. It's for when you have no food. If, instead of six small meals that don't add up to a lot of calories, you eat nothing, then your insulin will go low, all that fat can be unpacked from your butt, and you won't be hungry anymore, because why on earth would your body unpack less than it wants, now that you can unpack something?

In other words, you stop eating tiny meals, and you fast, instead.

When we understand this, we understand why grandma wasn't fat, and you are. It's not because you have less self-control than she did. It's not because she ate more than you do. It's because of what she ate and when.

She ate fat, protein, moderate amounts of starch, and almost no sugar. You eat very little fat, and a whole lot of starch, processed food, and sugar. Guess which one keeps your insulin higher longer?

If you want to be less fat, eat more fat.

She ate at mealtimes, and never in between. She didn't have plastic-wrapped convenience food. She didn't have a microwave oven. If she wanted to eat something, she had to cook it. She and her family ate at mealtimes, and not in between.

You... snack. Throughout the day. So when does insulin have a chance to drop?

If you want to stop looking like a cow, stop grazing like one.

Eating real food at defined mealtimes was enough to keep the people of 1960 thin. But if you're already fat, you have to reverse that switch harder. It's called "intermittent fasting", although it really should be called "intermittent eating", because the idea is to impose long delays between meals. When you run out of sugar, you will unpack the fat.

Sounds like starving yourself, doesn't it? But it isn't. Because "starving" is when you're running out of fuel, not when you're merrily burning it. You're not starving, you're fasting. It sounds scary, but that's only if you believe that you're just going to keep getting hungrier and hungrier when you don't eat. That's not true. You get hungry, and then you enter ketosis (the state where your body unpacks and burns fat), and you're not hungry any more.

All of those stories about medieval people spending days in "fasting and prayer" suddenly make a lot more sense. You don't actually need to shove bread into your face every two hours in order to survive. This works. There's a whole subreddit devoted to it, and you can check it out, it's full of success stories, and you can learn what eating and fasting schedules work for people.

This method works because it's sustainable. Instead of fighting your body, you're doing what your body was designed to do... store fuel, and then use it. With a little practice, you can even decide how fat you want to be. Some level of subcutaneous fat is good for you, and you can get to decide how much looks good on you.

There's a lot more science in this rabbit hole; we could talk about how "sugar" (the white stuff on your table) is poison, but "sugar" (the glucose in your blood) is the energy of life; we could talk about how fruit juice and smoothies are terrible, terrible things, we could talk about how eating anything is a nutrition label is most likely a bad idea; about how butt fat is healthy and belly fat is terrible; about where diabetes really comes from and why "life-saving" insulin injections are really expensive now; about why healthcare is so expensive now and how socialism is not the answer and will only make things far, far worse.

But the important thing to understand is:

- Calories don't matter. Insulin matters.
- It isn't how much you eat, it's what and when.

171
UPVOTES

Serotonin, Dopamine, and Covid-19

15 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1556>

282 | Many of you don't know what "Frame" is
UPVOTES 6 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1654>

208

UPVOTES

Why They Hate You

24 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1693>

126
UPVOTES

NARS: The Real Epidemic
14 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1897>

14

UPVOTES

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

We've heard a lot lately about how men, collectively, can "fix" dating, or society, and correct whatever is going on that is inconveniencing women.

We've also heard a fair amount about how women don't owe men sex, or anything else, and wouldn't owe men anything even if our lives depended on it.

We've also heard a lot about how men shouldn't be in charge of society any more.

And we've also heard it said that responsibility comes from having power.

When I put all these things together, I come to the following conclusion:

I owe women nothing. Not even if their lives depend on it. I don't have to fix anything for women, save them from anything, or lift a finger to make sure they are okay.

I wouldn't be obliged to put a woman out if she were on fire.

So it doesn't matter what I can do to help women. Because what matters is "What's in it for me?"

Think different?

Persuade me.

COMMENTS

TIL: Cesar Millan's wife (The Dog Whisperer) filed for divorce in March 2010. She ended up receiving a single payment of $400,000, monthly spousal payment of $23,000 (that's $276,000 a year), AND $120,000 a year in monthly child support. Cesar Millan then attempted suicide.

834 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't.

Get.

Married.

A woman complained that she "couldn't use the weight room because of the men and that's not fair." Now the gym might have women only hours in the weight room.

698 upvotes · 6 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, the other day I wanted to use the weight room, but couldn't, because there were black people...

...oh, wait, is that not the same?

Emma Watson called out in the New York Post

468 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

I think some guy on TwoX put it best: "Why should I take tips on how to be a man from a 25 year old girl whose greatest achievement is pretending to be a wizard?"

Woman who cried rape nine times loses her appeal

429 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/MensRights

Based on that photograph, she lost her appeal long ago.

Ronda Rousey admits to having suicidal thoughts, but then looked to her man and thought "I need to have his babies. I need to stay alive." You just can't make up how true TRP is

428 upvotes · 24 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Never make the mistake of assuming any sentiment you see expressed on television is necessarily real.

Ronda was a creation of the UFC marketing machine from day one. They wanted more pink dollars, so they needed a female star who had real "star power" (that ability to draw attention). Someone who would draw female viewers without alienating the male ones.

So they took the best fighter from a very small talent pool, hyped her up as some invincible superstar who could leap tall buildings and wrestle men, had her talk about "do nothing bitches", but very breezily dismiss any attempts by feminist-leaning interviewers to turn her into a "grrrrrrrrrl power" phenomenon. Walk a fine line... because they want to draw the "grrrrl power" types (the only women who actually give a fuck about MMA) without pissing off their young male base.

Have her fight a series of propped-up nothings, and hype them up like it's a real fight.

And it worked. She outsold the men.

Until she met a real challenger, someone who could actually hit her hard enough to hurt. And down she goes.

So, they're mostly okay... after all, they can run Holly as their new draw. But what about their investment in Ronda?

Well, they still have a way to see some value out of that. Gotta make a new story, though. "Invincible super-athlete who could kick Floyd Mayweather's butt" isn't going to fly any more. They need a new angle.

And it looks like the new angle they have chosen is the "comeback kid" redemption story. So she vanishes for a while, then makes an appearance to a show with an entirely female audience, talks about having sunk real low.

Now they've built a human angle, some drama to sell, something for her to "come back" from. The hope is that audiences will eat it up. If they don't, well, it didn't cost much.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

353 upvotes · 26 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

She looked so fucking feminine

Of course. They take estrogen. Sometimes a lot more of it than real ovaries generate. So what the hell do you think would happen?

What should I do

Nothing.

I kinda feel yuck

Irrational. There's no such thing as "gay cooties", and, if you were gay, you wouldn't mind.

You saw something you thought you liked, turned out it had some features you don't like, so you bailed. End of story.

What happens when you drop a bunch of women on an island to fend for themselves?

347 upvotes · 7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It is to be remembered that "patriarchy" doesn't literally mean "rule by men".

It means "rule by fathers". That distinction is super-important. Fathers are the subset of men who are most invested in society. It is they who are willing to sacrifice their personal welfare for that of society.

Practice somewhere else.

344 upvotes · 7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

♂

This is what we want to see in TRP. Not Taylor Swift lyrics, not whining about how tough it is to pick up blondes when you're Indian, not debating about whether some non-contributing asshole should be banned for calling someone else a "misogynist".

Actual. Helpful. Fucking. Advice.

To succeed, you must free yourself of the fear of failure. Because when you are trying to succeed at anything worth your time, you will fail over and over again before you succeed. Why?

Because if you don't fail most of the time, you aren't trying difficult enough things.

Any tip that helps any man free himself from the fear of failure is gold.

Is MeToo turning into NotYou at small companies?

335 upvotes · 27 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists really don't understand the concept of backlash, because women really don't understand the concept of backlash.

Hell, the other day in RPW, I actually saw some clam ask, in all seriousness, if she could deal with the dating challenges of being a single mother by hiding the existence of her child from men she dates until later "when they are more committed".

It's not so much as if they think men are stupid. It's more that it doesn't occur to them that other people, male or female, have a thought process at all. That they are the only being in the universe that thinks, plans, or reasons, and everyone else is just a variety of wet clay.

Narcissistic personality disorder is almost impossible to diagnose in women, because it's indistinguishable from normal female behaviour.

The Cuddle Effect

323 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Played properly, this can be a good escape strategy.

Never underestimate the value of playing beta when you want to get rid of a tiresome girl with as little drama as possible.

Wrong panties

277 upvotes · 5 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

You did brilliantly.

Now ask her what hers looked like.

"Partner Count Doesn't Matter" vs. Medical Reality

270 upvotes · 25 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And that's just the physical stuff.

What matters even more (because the odds are worse) is that past behaviour is a predictor of future behaviour.

The reason a woman has a high partner count is because guys didn't stick around after banging her. It doesn't matter how easily she gives it up, if she such a keeper that the first guy she gives it up easy to puts a ring on it six months later.

A slut is a woman whose only appeal to men is physical, so she has to substitute sexual availability for girl game. That means having a high partner count is the symptom, not the disease. The disease is whatever awful personality trait it is that made all those other men run for the hills.

If they did that, you should, too.

Kicked a girl out after she disrespected me, did I handle it right?

254 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is a time to pass a shit test, and a time to reject a girl for rudeness.

A shit test is supposed to help her decide how attractive you are to her. It crosses the line when it makes her unattractive to you.

Where exactly that happens is up to you.

Remember that rejecting a girl is no big deal... there are more.

Why are blowjobs indicative of higher interest?

246 upvotes · 24 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Blowjobs are submissive in nature.

If she doesn't want to suck you off, then she doesn't want to submit to you.

I made my mom cry.

244 upvotes · 3 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No. Your mother made herself cry.

If she cannot be disagreed with without bursting into tears, then what are you to do? Never disagree with her?

People who cry lightly must expect to have their tears lightly regarded.

Very disrespectful comments from LTR after broken frame, soft or hard next?

220 upvotes · 22 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Anytime a woman does something that might be a bluff, immediately call it. If it's not a bluff, find another woman.

at the end of the argument she says "you're lucky I'm not dumping you over this, I can do better".

Invite her to do so... "Yes, you absolutely can do it better. Good luck out there."

Remember that women want relationships and you are the gatekeeper of them. A woman threatening to break up with you is like a man threatening to not have sex with her.

Is it possible to LOVE when you are red pill?

206 upvotes · 31 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Yes, it is.

The red pill just taught you to reserve those feelings for girls who have invested effort to earn them.

"Fucking is a large part of how females are kept subordinated to males." (x-post /r/rage & /r/TiA)

197 upvotes · 22 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

This is an interesting quote, because, inarguably, sex is part of the biological programming of the human species, which we cannot alter either now or in the foreseeable future.

So if men fucking women ipso facto reinforces male supremacy, then male supremacy is part of the unavoidable nature of our species.

Are you absolutely sure that's your final answer?

LGBT Student Activist Group Says Gay Men Not Oppressed Enough to Deserve Representation

196 upvotes · 22 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

Milo Yiannopoulos said that the moment gay man got marriage, the left wing would start to turn on them.

I knew he was right the moment he said it. Now it's time to sit back, watch it happen, and eat popcorn.

More philosophical question, why are men "hated"?

195 upvotes · 16 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

It was actually one of my girlfriends ("FunSize") who explained this one to me. She told me that women know they can't compete with men (and are too lazy to try), and this makes them insecure.

Then I added, later, that everyone who feels threatened by you, who wants to beat you, is going to try to compete with you in their chosen arena, the thing that they care about. Boxers will want to pick a fistfight with you, lawyers want to debate, etc, etc.

But what is women's arena? Public opinion. Public sympathy. The attention of others.

The weapon of an insecure woman, who hates men because she fears them, is character assassination.

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

189 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Many men have trouble finding physical and emotional intimacy...Men are given terrible advice to fix this

Or, more generally, our society's plan for men isn't good for them, personally.

Now, men have never had an easy ride unless they were one of the aristocracy. We've always been the labouring sex, the risk-taking sex, the disposable sex. In the world of the past, those burdens came with rewards for the those of us who survived our disposability.

Now those rewards have been called "privileges", and taken away. (And the burdens have been called "privileges", too, but have not been taken away.)

Now, when something unfair happens to a woman, her usual response to point this unfairness out to whoever appears to have power. But men, being less submissive, tend to blame ourselves, ask "What am I doing wrong?", and try to change either our behaviour or our environment (by going elsewhere).

So the first thing we got was a generation or two of men thinking that we, personally, were no good, and was why we couldn't get laid, or why we couldn't get jobs, or why we couldn't pay off our student loans, or why we came home from the war broken and unable to fit back in, or why our marriages exploded and we lost our children, our homes, and our livelihoods.

So we looked to women to tell us what it was we were doing wrong. After all, many of our problems were with them, and even if they weren't, women seemed to be prospering. On top of that, they seemed to have this mysterious power to love themselves unconditionally. And everyone, everywhere, kept telling us to treat them with kindness and respect, and even reverence, because they could do anything we could do, anything at all, even backwards and in heels.

And when a man sees someone doing better than him, his first impulse is not to stab, but to try to learn.

And women were certainly willing to give us advice. Oh, boy, were they ever willing to give us advice. Page after page, speech after speech, of what we should and shouldn't do, who we should and shouldn't be, what they wanted, what they didn't, exactly what a man's role was and wasn't. Women were all too willing to define masculinity for us, if asked. Or even if not asked.

And, of course, when we followed this advice, things got worse.

And gradually we came to realize that when we asked these "new women", empowered by feminism, what a man should do, they didn't hear "What should a man's life be like?", they heard "What do you want for christmas?".

No one answering was giving any thought at all to what might happen to us in the process of fulfilling women's ambitions and fantasies.

We woke up to the fact that women's lists of what a man should do were the equivalent of a 12 year old girl asking daddy for a pony. She doesn't worry about whether daddy can actually afford to buy her one, because she's aware that daddy is older and wiser and more worldly than her, and will figure out for himself if he can do that, and is willing to. She knows he will probably tell her "no", and if she throws a tantrum on hearing it, that's just to make sure it's a firm "no" without any wiggle room.

All this time, the same feminist-indoctrinated women who were loudly and repeated assuring us they were at least our equals in every way... were simultaneously treating us as if we were gods who had the power to give them anything at all, so long as we could be persuaded to.

And we fell down on the road to Damascus. We realized that we were still in charge. That we had always been in charge. And we would remain in charge for as long as women looked to us to give them things and solve their problems.

Every feminist lobbying for paid maternity leave is a submissive asking daddy to care for her. Every "men can stop rape" poster is a woman admitting she cannot protect herself. Every woman complaining that we shouldn't portray women like that in video games is a woman saying "I can't make my own video games, please consider my wishes when you make them for both of us". Every woman asking men for a better deal is a woman on her knees.

Feminism was never about female independence. If it were, it would not require men to cooperate or even notice. They wouldn't need us to give them jobs if they started their own businesses. They wouldn't need us to give them "equal pay" if they were doing the hiring. They wouldn't need laws mandating maternity leave and free birth control if they were the ones setting, and paying, employee benefits. They wouldn't need "no means no" if they were the ones making the sexual advances. They wouldn't need "men can stop rape" if they took responsibility for defending themselves from psychos.

So all we have to do is stop. Say no. You can have a slightly bigger allowance, but you cannot have a pony.

That's what the Red Pill is. Not some fool notion that women are horrible selfish bitches. Not the idea that men "should be" in charge. Just the realization that men are in charge, that we will be until the day women stop asking for, or even accepting, things from us. That if we're in charge, we're gonna have to take some responsibility for putting the brakes on.

We are the ones who need to say, no, a woman cannot have it all.

She has to share.

Posted a Snapchat story hanging out with a girl. Girl I'm trying to game replied and asks me if it's a date. How do you reply?

184 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

"It was Saturday, September 22nd, to be precise."

No, I mean was it a date date?

"September 22nd."

No, I mean do you like her?

"No, I love to hang with people I hate."

Stop that, you know what I mean!

"I don't think even YOU know what you mean."

Are you into her? Like, sex?

"Checking out the competition, eh?"

Never give them a straight answer right away. Always give them a hard time.

I am a slave.

170 upvotes · 14 August 2018 · /r/MensRights

You were a slave the moment you got married. What happened now is simply that your owners switched you from house nigger to field nigger.

Secretly most of these "fEmiNisTs" love to be treated like shit. Ofc only if you are good looking.

168 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Most feminists are frustrated sexual submissives.

"I'd love to see her get plowed by a BBC"

167 upvotes · 13 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

What? The ENTIRE British Broadcasting Corporation?

[25m] my girlfriend[24f] told me she had only slept with 3 guys, her best friend[24f] blurted out that they slept with a guy every city in Europe they visited

166 upvotes · 8 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Any man who is in the know would have expected this the moment he learned about the trip.

There are girls who don't fuck every Juan, Franz, and János they encounter... but those girls don't go on backpacking trips through Europe.

If she travels for pleasure (not business) without her parents, husband, or boyfriend, she will ride strange dick. Period.

There is a reason Victorians considered it scandalous for a woman to travel alone... and it's not just because they were prudes. They understood what really happens.

"What I've Learned About Dating In Silicon Valley" - female columnist has a meltdown after realizing she's surrounded by betas.

164 upvotes · 31 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women do not care about intellectual accomplishments. Their sexual attraction instincts were last calibrated in the Paleolithic era, when there was no such thing as an intellectual accomplishment.

Bill the iPhone engineer would, here and now, be a far better bet as the father of her children than Chad the frontman in a garage band that plays the local bars. However, Chad bears much more superficial resemblance to a successful Paleolithic hunter, and that's really all that matters.

Desire is not calculated. Desire is not deliberate. Desire cannot be negotiated.

The unicorn fantasy that even TRP men have the hardest time letting go.

163 upvotes · 30 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I find the reverse to be true.

Men with terrible mothers frequently seem to be better with women because they have never experienced unconditional love and do not expect it.

"You're not attractive enough to say that"

162 upvotes · 13 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

You suck at negging.

The goal of a neg is to make her feel insecure so she wants to qualify herself to you. If you just straight-up insult her, she doesn't need to qualify herself to you, she can just preserve her ego by disqualifying you.

Which is precisely what she did.

You need to say something that makes her insult herself. The criticism has to come from her, not you. You need to say something perfectly innocent that plays upon her insecurities, and causes her to generate the criticism, herself, within her own internal monologue.

If you point that she has a piece of lettuce stuck in her teeth, she will be embarrassed, quickly try to groom herself back into presentability, and conclude that you are not afraid to be blunt with her. She can't get mad at you... it was true, and you were just helping her out, right?

If you call her a slob because of it, you will be the source of the attack, and she can regain her internal composure and external status by trying to take you down instead.

Can I have a cigarette?

157 upvotes · 4 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

So you valued her more than $10, but not as much as $20.

Sounds about right.

Woman is thinking of making her husband a 'list of chores' before he gets a blowjob.

153 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women will take whatever they can get from you, but will value only what you withhold from them and make scarce.

This is why women will drive betaish men like pack mules, but still be angry at them for not doing enough. They measure value by scarcity, not utility.

Wise words

153 upvotes · 23 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Except it kind of is.

You see, there are women who are lesbians because they are primarily attracted to women.

And there are women who are lesbians for political reasons. Not because they are drawn to women, but because they wish to avoid men.

The way to spot the difference is to look for the hatred and fear. Someone who is truly homosexual has little or no reason to hate or fear the opposite sex; since they need nothing from them on a personal level, they have little vulnerability to abuse or exploitation by them.

Gay men generally can't be friendzoned, turned into orbiters, or emotionally abused by toxic women. They are immune to paternity fraud, less vulnerable to false rape accusations, and so on. And same sort of pattern holds true for lesbians.

So when I see a woman, who describes herself as a lesbian separatist, I usually suspect I'm seeing a frustrated heterosexual. A woman for whom male sexuality is an object of desire, but an object of desire that is too frightening, too threatening, too powerful and self-willed and scary, to reach out for.

And what is it that people do with objects of desire which are also threatening? People attempt to control those objects.

That's what all this business about reducing the male population and castration and so forth. It's an attempt to control the threatening object of desire. If you go and read "femiteist"s fantasies about "international castration day", it's easy to see the sexual fetishism. In fact, given some of the details, it's hard to imagine that she wasn't masturbating when she wrote it.

One can even go a step further and postulate that in some cases, all this obsession with "male violence" isn't quite unsexual, either. Sometimes, the lady doth protest too much.

Why aren't men interested in me.

152 upvotes · 22 August 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I am not interested in casual sexual relationships. All I do is work (from home), hang out with my close friend which means going to restaurants, movies, etc. No bars or clubs.

"I have given myself very few opportunities to meet men socially."

I am interested in men at least 10 years older but I am also kind of wary of them because of the age gap.

"I am attracted to men who know there is a risk of being shamed for approaching me. I have done nothing to make myself appear willing to be approached by them."

Religion makes sense

151 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists are absolutely right that religions institutions are for controlling women's sexuality.

The problem is that when you don't control women's sexuality, here's what happens.

- 16-29 year old women have a 13-year sex party with the top 20% of sexually attractive men, both of their age and older.
- Women 30 and older get little attention, sex, or love, and have trouble getting married.
- 80% of men cannot get laid, or have great difficulty doing so.
- The top 20% of men don't work very hard on being productive, because they are rolling in the whole reason men are ever productive in the first place.
- The other 80% of men are also less and less productive as they figure out that no matter what they earn, they ain't getting none.
- Legal prostitution would fix this, but women over 30 won't allow that to become a reality, because that's more competition for a diminishing pool of potential husbands.
- People start having children later and later... and the more successful they are, the later they have kids. (Because successful men have no incentive to settle down, and women only exit the sex party when they have to)
- Birth rate goes down
- Productivity goes down.
- The society is out-competed by one that controls and channels the sexuality of its women into productive avenues.

The beautiful, horrible, tragic irony is that the same feminists who spent their twentysomething years (back in the seventies/eighties/early nineties) trying to make the west a sexual paradise for women failed to notice that they were making it a sexual paradise only for young women.

They failed to notice this because they were young women at the time. Now they're not, and they are caught in a trap of their own design. This would all be wonderful, except that they're not just destroying their own lives... they are hurting everyone else, too.

With the invention of birth control methods that really, really, reliably work, we got the luxury of allowing people a little sexual freedom. But what's going on now isn't "a little sexual freedom".

It's ultimate sexual freedom and power for pretty young girls and caddish, psychopathic men... and fuck-all for everyone else.

The fact that we are here, deliberately teaching ourselves to be caddish and psychopathic, is a measure of how broken the system is.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

148 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, /u/throwaway-iwantmysil, this doesn't often happen, but I'm going to have to strongly disagree with /u/redpillschool on this one.

Let's look at the facts, and the facts alone.

- Your wife is totally passive during sex.
- But she never denies you sex.
- Except she refuses the one sexual act that would put her in an active role.
- Then she suggests you get it from someone else.
- When you talk about this idea, painting a detailed scenario, she becomes aroused instead of angry.
- So aroused that she initiates sex, which is uncharacteristic for her.
- And has an orgasm.
- Then asks for more (this time with her in a passive position).

Does that sound like disinterest in sex to you?

Yes, she could do a better job at communicating her sexual desires, but you're adult here, so you need to be able to take the lead and figure shit out.

So wake the fuck up and dominate and cuck the poor woman already.

If you still don't believe me, here's how you can prove it to yourself. Next time you're using her and she's passively lying there, start talking about how you're going to go get blowjobs from Tinder sluts from now on... and just maybe you'll make her sit in the corner and watch.

Do you really think she'll react with anger? Or with arousal?

If you want her to give head, that's a more difficult task. She probably sees it as dominant because it's an act where the woman is more active. You need to reframe it so she sees it as a submissive act of serving you. Down on her knees, hair wrapped in your fist, move her head back and forth. Put a ring gag in her if it helps.

TIL: Cesar Millan's wife (The Dog Whisperer) filed for divorce in March 2010. She ended up receiving a single payment of $400,000, monthly spousal payment of $23,000 (that's $276,000 a year), AND $120,000 a year in monthly child support. Cesar Millan then attempted suicide.

146 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't.

Have.

Children.

On Freedom of Speech

144 upvotes · 22 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Everyone is principled when they are the opposition party. If you truly want to test someone's character, give them power.

TRP Is Getting Popular - even Simple Pickup hate us

141 upvotes · 10 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You are no one until someone hates you.

In horrible pain

137 upvotes · 13 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

You deal with pain by becoming better.

Once you understand that you can make yourself better, and things will be better for you, then even in horrible emotional pain, you have... hope.

And that's better than all the sympathy in the world.

"Why Would That Matter? I'm The Girl"

137 upvotes · 16 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's very easy to resent this.

But in a way, she's right.

According to some geneticists who did their homework pretty thoroughly, 87% of all the women who have ever been alive have descendants who are alive today. For all the men, that number is 34%.

What does that mean? Certainly, those numbers are a composite of those who never had offspring, and those whose offspring died, but I think we can all agree that at least a large part of this effect is that for women, mating privileges are a given, but only exceptional men receive them.

If nine in ten women, and one in three men, are fuckable, then that means that a man, in order to be fuckable, must take risks to distinguish himself as exceptional (in that top third), if he doesn't already possess status that marks him thus.

Women, however, only need to do three things:

- Show up.
- Look cute.
- Be nice.

That's enough. The one woman in ten who isn't fuckable is that way because she failed one of those three things. She either didn't show up (isn't around eligible men), didn't look cute (she shows some visible evidence of poor health, like being fat or having a skin disease), or wasn't nice (was so mentally ill or high-conflict that men couldn't stand to stick around).

In other words, men, in order to be fuckable, must be exceptionally good. Women, in order to be fuckable, must be not exceptionally bad.

This is why men are the building sex, the discovering sex, the risk-taking sex, the daredevil sex, the hardworking sex, the inventing sex. It's not about capabilities. It's about need. Women don't need to do these things, so most of them don't. Men do.

So she was correct. None of that stuff matters, and none of it matters because she is a girl. There's no sense railing against it. Girls didn't create this reality any more than we did. It's a biotrueth. It's part of our evolution.

However, she did make an error, which is pointing it out in a high-handed manner. Remember that there are three things that do effect female fuckability: show up, look cute, be nice. Flaunting your gender advantage isn't nice... and this will reduce her access to the most exceptional men (who don't have to put up with her bullshit). Oh, she'll still successfully reproduce, unless she chooses not to, but it does have a cost (albeit minor compared to that faced by men).

Since the whole goal of TRP is learn how to distinguish oneself as an exceptional male, who can breed if he wishes, a wise move in response to this wouldn't be to have sex with this woman (men with choices avoid high-conflict women), but it also wouldn't be to argue with her or get all butthurt (men with choices avoid high-conflict women). The behaviour of an exceptional male would be a shrug, some noncommittal answer, and then exclusion from his social circle and calendar.

Guy wants his wife to fall in love with him again. /r/relationships tells him to do all the housework, cook her dinner, clean the bedroom, have sex, cuddle, give her a back and foot rub.

133 upvotes · 7 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Most stereotypes don't apply. She doesn't like drinking, dancing, parties, clubs, flowers, jewelry. She's shy with strangers, likes nature, hates winter, does a lot of crafts. She has anxiety, doesn't like crowds. She has a real hard time telling me what she wants. She likes for me to make all the decisions, but still often doesn't dig my decisions. She has poor self image, low libido. When we're together it's great, but it's infrequent. If we're out of the house - say a hotel out of state - she's good with intimacy.

This doesn't sound very hard. She's already submissive. She's just not getting tingles because he hasn't stepped up.

He needs to plan an adventure and take on her on it without telling her where they are going or why. Then he needs to fuck her at the end of it, without asking permission. Real simple stuff.

Revised.... Ex wife reaching out, AWALT

132 upvotes · 22 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Point added.

This, students, is why sociopathy, narcissism, and borderline personalities are so difficult to spot in women... because they are almost indistinguishable from normal female behaviour.

Women, like children, are biologically programmed to be almost completely selfish. They will not, of their own initiative, consider the feelings of any other human being.

But, if properly socialized, they will respond to articulated expectations.

This is why is critical to deal with women in two phases:

- First, ruthlessly ignore or next any new woman for bad behaviour (don't articulate expectations, because you haven't socialized her to obedience, and have no leverage).
- Second, establish leverage, and then make all your expectations crystal clear. Never wait for her to consider on her own what you might want or how you might feel, because even if she worships the ground you walk on, she won't. She must be told.

I feel like RP men and RP women's goals are completely opposite.

132 upvotes · 23 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This has been asked and answered many, many times.

One of these answers needs to be sidebarred so newbs don't keep asking.

- Women are the gatekeepers of sex. Talking a woman into sex is a man's job.
- Men are the gatekeepers of relationships. Talking a man into a relationship is a woman's job.

So let's see what happens with people doing their respective jobs:

- Man fails, woman fails = no sex, no relationship = Nothing happens.
- Man fails, woman succeeds = no sex, relationship = orbiter.
- Man succeeds, woman fails = sex, no relationship = pump and dump.
- Man succeeds, woman succeeds = sex, relationship = LTR.

You see the difference between the last two? Pump and dump vs. relationship is up to the woman, not us.

Girls are fun

131 upvotes · 4 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Add in your creativity and your physical self...

Laughing my ass off over here. I know HumanSockPuppet personally, and he's working on it, but still kinda fat.

This just helps show the great truth that there is no trait that a woman won't think is attractive if she's already attracted.

If you're fat, she'll think you're big and strong, or "cuddly". If you're skinny, she'll think you're fit and talk about how she hates "meatheads". If you're smart and talk a mile a minute, she'll think you're fascinating and always have a plan for everything. If you almost never say anything, she'll think you're confident and don't have anything to prove to anyone.

Just get those tingles going, and her hamster will do the rest.

On Freedom of Speech

130 upvotes · 22 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It would be hilarious if trp.red ended up replacing reddit as a general purpose web forum.

Difference is, we wouldn't ban lefty subgroups. We'd just show them ads for vegan food, male chastity gear, and anti-depressants, and laugh all the way to the bank.

Hey MRAs, I just thought you should know that SRS and SomethingAwful are about to redditbomb you in an attempt to have you shut down.

130 upvotes · 17 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Meh, they'll flood the frontpage of r/mensrights for a day or two, like they did with r/atheism. And then they'll go back to their basements patting themselves on the back for their great victory, and everyone else will forget what happened within a week.

Help me understand better about Beta Bait

129 upvotes · 20 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

Chicks who are considering fucking you will want to meet you to see if they end up wanting sex to happen.

Chicks who already want to fuck you will go further, and bend heaven and earth to make that meeting happen.

If they don't want to meet you, then they don't want sex. They want something they can get online... which is usually attention or validation.

She's just your Girlfriend, she's not your Siamese twin. She's not your partner on a mission to Mars. She doesn't control your oxygen supply. (How to do a LTR.)

128 upvotes · 25 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1.

Your woman is your follower, not your destination or your mission. Do the shit you were going to do with your life, and allow her to come along on the magical adventure if she carries her weight and is fun to travel with.

You can let yourself love her, but you must be willing to write that off, cut her lose, and keep any mourning short and internal if she becomes difficult or not-fun. You are Caesar conquering Gaul, not Caesar conquering some clam's fluffy little romantic dreams.

Do bend a little on the "no lists of rules" thing if she's into BDSM, though. (And if she's not, why the fuck are you with her?)

The Double Income No Kids Trap

127 upvotes · 27 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This isn't the DINK trap. It's the Oops, I'm Pregnant trap.

asked my gf for a bj she said "help yourself out", what is the appropriate response?

123 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Say, "Okay" without a shred of hurt or anger in your voice. Then go leave. Be gone and out of contact for a long time. Don't call or text, don't answer calls or texts.

When you see her again, don't explain anything. Act like nothing happened.

If she asks, make a cryptic remark about how you were surprised she was so open-minded.

How to Stop Being Creepy and Needy

122 upvotes · 14 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

This article is too long for reddit.

And that describes what you can do to improve your writing. There's good stuff here, but it can get lost on a lot of people by not being tight enough.

A piece of writing is finished not when there is nothing helpful to add, but when there is nothing superfluous to take away.

What are some red pill truths that even most trp'ers won't swallow

122 upvotes · 1 June 2020 · /r/askTRP

- TRP doesn't exist or work because society is somehow "broken". The struggle to be one of the haves instead of the have-nots has existed in every society and will exist in every society.

- Jesus isn't going to save your soul, ethnonationalism isn't going to procure you a sweet beautiful obedient feminine virgin wife, and communism isn't going to release the floodgates of magical wealth that the rich are somehow currently swimming in like Scrooge McDuck. The only person who is interested in helping you is you.
- Genetics matters. Game is simply the best way to play the hand you have been dealt.
- But it doesn't matter that genetics matters, because you're only going to get dealt that one hand, and the best thing you can do is play it well.
- Some people are just stupid, were doomed from birth to be stupid, and you can't fix stupid no matter how many books you give them to read.
- You are going to die, and if you have lots of children, you are still going to die, and it doesn't make a lick of difference that a few hundred years after you are dead, some people will be running around who share 1/1024th of your genetic code. They won't even remember your name.
- Before you die, you are going to fall apart. Your body will gradually lose its ability to recover, and once that starts to happen, your willpower will no longer determine your level of physical fitness or health. Instead, your ability to recover from exercise will place a limit on your gains.
- There is no way to be so red-pilled and alpha male that unfavorable circumstances or rotten luck can't harm you. Proper strategy is just a way of bettering your odds.
- You still have a strong protective instinct towards women, and you always will. The best you can do to protect yourself is to save it for the ones who treat you right.

Indifference and Control: Why You Don't Wanna Be Chad

120 upvotes · 21 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's like would you rather be born with a 6 pack and big biceps, or would you rather be born skinnyfat and instead work hard over 3 years to painstakingly grow a 6 pack and big biceps. The first one would sure feel nice, but the second one will leave you with something far more important and meaningful to your overall life than being ripped.

Not only that, but it's going to quit on you around 30.

This is "the wall". It's why most girls are washed up at 30, but can you see girls in their 40s who are hot as fuck. 30 is the age where you can't slide by on talent anymore, but have to actually work.

Woman thinks her guy friend is being an 'asshole' because he's no longer doing nice things for her after she rejected him.

120 upvotes · 11 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you give a man something, he feels like he owes you. If you give a woman something, she feels like you owe her.

Never give a woman anything without telling her what you expect in return.

Insecure girls

119 upvotes · 26 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Remember that the goal of negging and teasing is to lower artificially high female self-confidence so that a girl looks up to you and becomes more submissive, which is both sexy to you, and makes you more sexy to her.

If she's already closer to that state, you need to calibrate your teasing accordingly. Don't cease it altogether, but make it gentler, and interleave it with little pieces of encouragement, and with, most of all, dominant language and behaviour: give her things to do, and reward compliance with praise... a little bit like you're training a dog: "Good girl!".

If it is gentle and kind, but would make any listening feminist explode in a flaming ball of rage at its "condescension" and "benevolent sexism", then that's exactly right.

In order to desire you, a girl must see herself as inferior to you, but not so inferior that she fears being spurned or exploited and cast aside. You must learn to adjust her self-esteem higher or lower, moment by moment, to keep an optimal balance.

Why Women Need To Start Asking Men Out...Because Men Have No Balls

116 upvotes · 10 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

"Men have no balls" is a funny complaint to hear from the people who spent the last four decades doing their level best to cut them off.

Submissive women can have their downsides in relationships too

112 upvotes · 17 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Beware of the super submissive woman.

...

She is not just submissive to you. She is constantly seeking outside council for her own life from friends, family, coworkers, television questions you don't give a shit about.. You do not want the extra work.

...

...

Be prepared to look like and feel like an asshole for expecting to be the center of her attention

...

You can't show too much anger either or tell her that she is responsible

...

expects you to carry

...

she expects you to do all the

...

Do you really want to drop everything and drive 30 minutes to change a flat on her car because you both decided

Wait, which one of you is "super submissive", again? I kinda lost track there.

Super submissive women are super easy to get along with. You want something, you train them to do it. You don't like something, you train them to stop. You can't do that, it's not her fault your dominance game sucks.

I gave an unlikely match a chance

109 upvotes · 30 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Male attractiveness is almost entirely behavioral.

This is why girls look at men's personal ads and always think they are unattractive losers. Because an ad like that cannot show a man's behavioral traits.

Why get into an LTR?

108 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

So much great advice on here about AWALT, "all women are sluts," etc. some even say that LTRs will go stale around 5 years, the sex will die after 3 years, and its over once she meets somebody that's just like you, but "better in every way."

If that's what you think, you do you. But don't mistake the students chatting in the back of the lecture hall for the professor.

I've been in a relationship with the same woman for 9 nine years. She's affectionate, obedient, cheerful, and considerate. Do you think it just so happened that the one dude who got lucky and found a unicorn was one of TRP's founders? Or do you think that it's not entirely chance, and that it has, instead, something to do with how I act?

You're one of those guys who wants a relationship. Otherwise, you wouldn't be griping about the supposed impossibility of one.

Well, are you willing to take responsibility for what you want, or do you just want to keep fussing about how helpless you are in the face of "female nature"?

My sister took her life and my world is fucked.

106 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

I don't know what to do.

You don't have to do anything. You didn't fuck it up. You don't have to fix this. All you have to do is survive and eventually heal.

TRP isn't stupid tradcon shit. You aren't supposed to not feel pain. You just need to hide it from women, because they live lives of privilege and don't understand the difference between pain and weakness.

So cry. Just don't do it in front of that girl you're fucking.

I don't have any magic answers. There are cheat codes to a woman's lust and respect, and I did my best to teach you them. But there's no cheat code for this.

She was your little sister. Not some clam. Of course this matters. Of course you're going to not be okay. Why would you even want to be okay? She mattered to you. She was family.

It's supposed to hurt.

The chickens come home to roost: when a feminist's son is falsely accused of rape

105 upvotes · 16 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

What gets me is not just the false rape accusation.

It's when I read a little deeper into this, and saw what had actually happened with the son she raised, the son called a "beautiful strong man" who was "sensitive to the needs of women".

He was being used as a Small Emergency Backup Guy and Emotional Tampon by a bipolar woman, and after a couple of months (months!) of "dating" her, he tried to break out of the Friend Zone, and all hell broke loose.

Last year a woman, we'll call her Sarah, accused my son of attempted sexual assault. She said, she thinks he tried to rape her. She and my son had been dating for a couple of months, but mostly they were consoling each other, I think. He, brokenhearted over the recent breakup of a long term relationship, she, confused over her on again, off again boyfriend who didn't treat her very well.

This woman was also feeling a lot of conflict between her purported Christian beliefs and being attracted to two men. Discussions with her therapist didn't help because, as she told my son, (let's call him Robert), the therapist said, "what's wrong with being attracted to two men?" But she couldn't deal with that, and came to Robert's house and told him she didn't want to see him anymore. It wasn't quite as clear cut as that because she lay down on the bed with Robert and there was flirting and fondling before she came to her decision. When she did, Robert agreed, and got up, walked her to the door. They hugged and he walked her to her car.

I'm sorry, Ms., but you didn't raise a "beautiful strong man". You raised a cripple. I know you love him and wanted the best for him, but you have wronged him grievously.

You spent too much time worrying about the wrongs he might commit, rather than about the wrongs he might suffer. You have taught him not to assert himself, not to stand up for himself, not to be a man.

This is why he has to date emotional cripples. Because healthy women want healthy men, masculine men who will challenge them, and engage their femininity, not "sensitive nice guys" who "understand their needs". Healthy women want a playmate, not a therapist.

Men like your son are unable to mate, or must scrape the bottom of the barrel, because women don't respect them. Your son is dating a bipolar woman precisely because only a woman who needs that much niceness is willing to put up with the lack of assertiveness and of even (sexual) aggression that comes with it.

Feminism has begun to eat itself because the men that it has made are not attractive, even to feminists. **

The fact is that this "on again, off again boyfriend who didn't treat her very well" is more attractive to this woman than your son is. He may treat her badly sometimes, but his ability to assert himself appeals to her instinctive attraction responses in ways that your son cannot... or rather, is afraid to.

This is your fault. You treated your son like a potential problem, hazard, or risk, because he was born with a penis. You were more concerned about him than for him. You were so worried that he might become a hammer, that you made him into a nail.

You betrayed your own flesh and blood in the name of an abstract philosophy.

If your eyes were open, you might be able to help undo the damage. By telling him that you were wrong. By telling him that macho is a Good thing. By telling him that masculine power built civilization, and sustains it, and that real, healthy, beautiful, admirable women are drawn to, rather than repelled by, it. You could tell him that no doesn't always mean no.

But I don't think you are strong and secure enough to do that.

Which Sweater Should I Wear?

104 upvotes · 14 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/ProjectImmortality, ya dropped the ball.

This was a submissive gesture and you interpreted it as a demand. She didn't want to avoid choosing what to wear. Do you seriously think she would be stuck in front of her closet crying in frustration if she were going somewhere alone and had to pick?

No.

She wanted you to tell her what to wear.

She doesn't hate making minor decisions. She loves being told what to do by men she is attracted to. That's why you were being asked to make minor decisions that carried no real responsibility... decisions she couldn't possibly be afraid of. She gives zero fucks about what sweater she ends up wearing. She gives many fucks about whether you are willing to give orders or not.

For extra fun, when you are telling her what to wear, make her model each one for you. Tell her to give you a slow spin so you can see it from all sides. Make modeling-related jokes. Then pick one you like (or one at random) and tell "Wear that. Daddy likes that one."

If prostitution became legal in the future, do you think we would see more men preferring to pay for sex instead of playing these "games" with women just to sleep with them?

104 upvotes · 8 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Prostitutes are the rational course of action for any man who finds himself in two conditions:

- He desires only sex from women, not companionship.
- His time is valuable enough, by the hour, to make prostitutes cost-effective.

Any man in these two circumstances should pay whores and not bother with TRP.

Tears

103 upvotes · 27 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The trick is to replace your definition of "okay", and your definition of your responsibilities.

Right now, when your daughter cries, you feel like you have a responsibility to do something because she is not okay.

Except you don't, and she is okay. Because nothing is fundamentally wrong. She's gonna be fine. She's just having some feelings. This is part of a the package deal that is life as a woman. They cry at sentimental commercials, for fuck's sake.

You are not supposed to make your daughter feel better. You are supposed to feed, clothe, shelter, and teach her. You don't do anything about her crying any more than you would do something about her sneezing.

She runs into her room and slams the door, you let her. You go on with your day.

She hugs you and sobs on your shoulder, you let her. You tease her a bit about getting your shirt all wet.

It's no big deal. So make it no big deal.

The one gender discriminatory sign feminists have no problem with

102 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

Male privilege: Hearing a sewer entrance referred to as a "manhole".

Female privilege: Never having to go down one.

CNN: What if women went on a sex strike before the midterms?

101 upvotes · 3 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If your girlfriend/wife disproves the Cartesian maxium "I think therefore I am" it's time to pull the ejection switch before she uses your semen to make retards.

It's also a sign that you have failed your basic pet training responsibilities. Women have no more volition than pets or children. If they do stupid stuff, or believe stupid stuff, it's because you either weren't selective enough, or your control game sucks.

Freedom is meaningless to a woman. They can't have it even if you give it to them, because it's not something they are capable of having. If you do not control her, someone else will.

Pussy is a Commodity.

97 upvotes · 15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Women see a waiter who looks like Paul Walker as a counterfeit Paul Walker. The fake that he's not the real one is a drawback.

Men see a waitress who looks like Scarlett Johanssen as a bullshit-free Scarlett Johanssen. The fact that she's not the real one is a bonus.

Classic from Mike Cernovich. Stop passing shit-tests. Start punishing, instead.

97 upvotes · 29 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The mistake he makes here is to construe the shit test narrowly.

ALL women shit test. It is part of instinctive female behaviour. Bitchy women throw bitchy shit tests, kind and gentle women throw kind and gentle ones, flirtatious women throw flirtatious ones, standoffish women throw standoffish ones, playful women throw playful ones, shy women throw shy ones.

They don't usually even know they are doing it.

What he is talking about isn't crushing shit tests... it's crushing bitchy behaviour.

Expecting women not to shit test is like expecting men to answer personal ads without photos. You cannot be attracted to someone without evaluating the characteristics that make them attractive.

Replacing "Cis/het/white/male" with "Jew" in SJW posts

97 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Yeah. Most racists I've known don't actually want to kill jews and blacks, they just want them out of the country.

Actually, scratch that. Most racists I've known have hated white people.

Why are women so against being seen as "sluts"?

97 upvotes · 13 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Guys are often confused about this, because we have nothing against sluts. We know that we won't "lose respect for them", or any of the other things they say they are concerned about.

Any guy who worries about how many other guys she's had is probably like 20 years old and still has hangups.

But you see, it's not guys she's worried about. The real hater of sluts is other women. Women act collectively to shame and otherwise punish sluts, because they lower the price of sex, and make sexual bait-and-switch a lot more difficult.

In an environment full of sluts, a woman not only has less power over the guys she does screw, she has a great deal of difficulty maintaining orbiters, because she can't keep them in a state of oneitis.

So they act to punish sluts.

This is why a woman doesn't want anyone to find out she's slutting it up. She doesn't want to invoke the wrath of the collective.

What this means is that if you want to get laid, then you must isolate a woman from her female friends, as unobtrusively as possible. The closer the female friend, the more of a cock-block she is... even if she's not there. "So what happened with you and ..." is a question almost every woman fears.

Hypergamy - why it's unique to women.

96 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The difference that if a woman sees two 9s standing next to a 10, they are invisible.

If a man sees two 9s standing next to a 10, he wants all three.

Husband thinks we have too much sex!

96 upvotes · 1 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

/sex two to four times a day

/asks if husband finds her boring in bed

No, you silly woman. Men have limited sexual endurance.

How to deal with boyfriends success?

95 upvotes · 19 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You believe he will have more options now and that you are not good enough to hold his attention.

But what, and who, he wants, has always been his choice. If he likes you, who are you to argue with that?

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

94 upvotes · 26 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

They are still trapped in the tradcon matrix. They don't realize that gay-bashing was invented to serve women, not men.

30+ Alpha's give us (20-29 y/o) advice they wish they knew

94 upvotes · 24 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- Women are not interchangeable, but they are replaceable. Don't throw your career, life, health, future, or self-respect away for a woman because you love her. You can find someone else to love who will not demand you sacrifice these things.
- Your career is important, but you can work on it at any age. Getting fit and healthy is easier when you are young. Don't sacrifice your fitness and health to your career.

- Don't let public education train you out of taking risks and being willing to make mistakes. In school, you get an A for trying easy things and always getting them right. In life, you get ahead by trying ridiculously hard things, and getting them right once in a while. Eventually. If you become too risk-averse, you'll miss opportunities.
- Always have some kind of contraception. It's easier for your life to recover from a stretch in prison than an unwanted child. This doesn't mean you have to use condoms... diseases are much rarer than you think, especially among middle class white people like you probably are. But most any woman can get pregnant... if you don't have contraception in place, do something other than vaginal intercourse.
- Don't borrow money to buy anything that won't increase in value. This means real estate, a business, or a degree in STEM, medicine, or law. Pretty much everything else, you need to save up and pay for.
- Always be ready to break up with her. Don't value a woman based on how cute, smart, funny, or cool she is... only on how much she improves your life. It doesn't matter how hot she is if she makes you unhappy most of the time.
- When someone gives you advice, it's usually either a recipe for how to end up like they did, or for how not to end up like they did. Before following it, decide which one it is, and decide if you want that.
- Do not live in the wealthiest neighbourhood you can afford to. Being surrounded by people richer than you will make you discontented with what you have, even if they were born there, and you climbed your way up from the ghetto.
- When choosing monthly expenses (rent, bills, etc), be stingy. When making one-time purchases, buy nice things.
- At some point in your life, you will be with a woman, and your penis will not get hard no matter what you do. Don't panic. This is not a failure of masculinity, or some insidious medical disaster. This is your penis telling you that you are not happy with what's going on. Fix the underlying problem.
- You may already know that, as a man, you will sometimes have to persevere under conditions of fear, anxiety, hardship, privation, and pain that women don't even know can happen. Being masculine means having and showing courage, and it's important to do that. But realize that courage means you keep going. Not that you don't feel fear or pain.
- Get yourself a tribe. Ever wonder why professional boxers walk to the ring with a whole fucking posse in tow? Because having other men on your side is the root of courage and success, even in trials you must face alone.
- Don't take women too seriously. Everyone tells you how awesome they are, and that never do anything wrong, and everyone tells them that, too. But they're no better than you... in fact, they are no better than you would be if you had grown up in a society committed to telling you how precious and special and magical you were. Treat their cocksure arrogance with the amused skepticism of an adult confronting a boasting child.
- Never wrestle with a pig in the mud. After you both get dirty enough, people won't be able to tell the difference between you and the pig.

[FR] report from the other side- girl meeting a PUA

94 upvotes · 14 February 2013 · /r/seduction

TL;DR: Girl notices guy using PUA techniques. Still finds them attractive. In other news, water wet, Pope catholic.

I've been reading seddit for 1+ yr. I'm a girl. Some Insights

94 upvotes · 12 January 2013 · /r/seduction

Negging. For the love of God, don't do it. I know, I know seddit preaches to only do it to the hottest of the hot, but what you fail to account for is a girl's self esteem. The hottest girls aren't necessarily the most confident. Even if the girl has THE BEST LEGS YOU'VE EVER SEEN, don't make a neg about them because you have no idea how she feels about them.

I am really sick of hearing this, and with good cause.

There are many tactics that the community has abandoned because they don't work as well as others, or because our understanding has grown. But negging is a tactic that works, which is being abandoned because people are afraid of looking mean.

It's hypersensitivity.

Example: one of my favorite negs, which I use to good effect, is pointing out that she has dirt under her fingernails. Of course, one can only do this when it's actually true.

But if someone is so delicate that she can't stand to have that pointed out, then she's neurotic and it's not my problem.

Does everyone think that men don't have negative things said to us every day? That people "fail to take into account" our self-esteem? That's just business as usual, I guess, but gods forbid someone should say something critical to a woman.

I'll make you a deal: I'll stop negging the day women stop shit testing.

Or we could just all be adults, and handle criticism gracefully.

Don't talk about fight club

92 upvotes · 25 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

If the FBI was five foot two, 110 pounds sopping wet, and afraid of walking alone at night.

What does TRP actually want from women?

92 upvotes · 16 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

What does TRP actually want from women?

Nothing.

We have no philosophy. We are not a movement. We're not here to persuade people to do anything. We're just here to teach men how to get the results they want.

There is no agenda for you to like or dislike, to comply with or rebel against.

We are not "trad-cons". We are sexual strategy wonks. If we seem to like some kinds of women better than others, it's simply because those women are more pleasing to men.

For real? Of course he would call it female character just like we say male character not man character or woman character.

91 upvotes · 5 March 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

/subscribed to "fragilemaleredditor".

/objects to the word "female".

Joe Rogan is stunned at Miriam Nakamoto's open display of hypergamy

88 upvotes · 13 March 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

This is an illustration of the reason we decided to put a "no moralizing" rule. It is so easy to fall into the trap of oh, no, this is an evil, bad, ruthless woman... just as women frequently fall into the trap of thinking we are evil for being attracted to teenage girls.

But the truth is that instincts are ruthless, period. Nakamoto, in this conversation, is just the messenger.

But what can we learn from this?

Well, two things. Since we are interacting with women's instincts, not their character, we should never try to reason with them, in speech or action. Don't talk, don't negotiate, push the buttons.

Also, try to avoid women who are highly successful in fields males compete in. Why? Because they demand more from you with nothing more to offer to you. This holds true even if that success is largely fake. Nakamoto, for example, is incapable of defeating, in a fistfight, the vast majority of men reading this comment. She's a 135lb woman who fights other 135lb women. If a girl has a degree from Harvard, she's not going to be able sustain attraction to your state-school self, even if you're a successful engineer, and her degree is in psychology and she never did anything with it. If a girl has a huge income, she's going to be turned off by your middle class salary, even if what she gets comes from investments daddy left her.

Women need to look up to you to be attracted to you, and more they are put on a pedestal, not just by you, but by society, the harder it is for them to look up to you. That's not them being "bad", it's just the way they are wired, and they have no more control over it than you do over what makes your dick hard.

There are plenty of beautiful, kind, loving, and supportive women who don't have MMA titles, or Harvard degrees, or daddy's money. Don't waste your time.

Plate sends long text

88 upvotes · 20 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Feelings aren't out of the question, you know."

Dangle bait, get her over there, smash.

Repeat several times, then use

"You know we're just going to end up in each others' arms again"

The next time. Smash some more, then wait for either resignation, or plate breakage.

Just because commitment is out of the question doesn't mean don't imply it as bait.

What makes men more extreme?

88 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The motivation here isn't tactical or strategic, it's emotional.

When you treat certain ideas as taboo, or thoughtcrime, what you are doing is punishing people for having the idea, and rewarding them for hating it. So they are not so much motivated to work to reduce the idea's prevalence, as they are to make grand public gestures to demonstrate that they as far removed from the idea as possible.

As Terry Pratchett put it:

"Oh, I'm not talking about the poor bugger in the pit," said the philosopher. "I'm talking about the people throwing the stones. They were sure all right. They were sure it wasn't them in the pit. You could see it in their faces. So glad it wasn't them that they were throwing just as hard as they could."

Hate groups like TBP don't exist to stop us. They don't even want to stop us. They want to prove to themselves and everyone else how much they disagree with us, hate us, and aren't like us.

Man-hating feminist cafe Handsome Her, which charges men 17% more than women because "Muh wage gap", is closing. Another case of get woke, go broke.

87 upvotes · 22 April 2019 · /r/MensRights

"Let's cut our pool of potential customers in half."

I finally dropped a girl that I liked and it feels so fucking good.

87 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

This is good. However, I prefer to roll based on examination of how they cancel:

"Hey, can't make it tonight."

vs

"OMG I am ssooooo sorry I got rescheduled at work and can't find anyone to cover my shift! Can we do Friday instead?"

So love is fake?

87 upvotes · 21 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Is love fake?

No. But stop looking for the wrong kind.

Are my visions of finding a solid loyal, high class woman who's hot unrealistic?

Yes. You don't find quality women, you train them. Pick one that's not ruined yet.

From a lot of what I read here, it sounds like marriage or monogamy is not worth it..

Marriage is an insane risk because there's no payoff.

Monogamy isn't "worth it", because it's a concession. You EXCHANGE it for something that's "worth it".

Ex contacts current girl I'm talking to

86 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

You fool, to receive such a gift and yet curse the gods for blessing you.

Your ex girlfriend has just told your current prospect that she can't get over you, and will fight and claw and chase to get you back.

All you need to do is laugh about her to the new girl, and display amused mastery instead of fearful butthurt.

Joke about getting a restraining order or some pepper spray.

How do women perceive arrogant men like this?

86 upvotes · 14 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

He handled this well, but not as well as he could have.

By talking about who he is and what he does, he allowed a element of defensiveness to enter his tone. How this was perceived is anyone's guess.

When a woman behaves in a selfish, entitled fashion, it is better to show that you are an authority figure by taking charge and holding her to account, rather than telling her you are one and attempting to do so.

Consider this hypothetical response:

"You made a request, I have declined it. Perhaps tantrums work on the men you are used to, but I do not find them charming, or impressive. If you wish to inspire men to behave like gentlemen, then you need to start behaving like a lady."

Me [25M] with my wife [29F] of six years, is not sexually adventurous with me like she was in her college years before me.

85 upvotes · 16 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

Most people who come to askTRP are already carrying the answers to their question with them.

You are no exception. And you know it.

You know perfectly well that you are not her first choice. You know perfectly well that you do not inspire the same passion as the randoms she banged. You have come to me not because you need answers, but because you need help facing the answers you already have.

You know perfectly well that you face a choice between blowing up your marriage, and spending your life as a slut's plan B. You're just hoping against hope that this awful news can somehow not be. Well, it is.

There's no way of talking her into feeling passion for you like she did for them. Desire is not under the control of the conscious mind. No matter how you reason with her, or threaten to leave, she will not change, even if she agrees with what you say. Because she cannot control the part of herself where sexual desire lives.

This means she hasn't wronged you by denying you passionate sex. That's your fault. You failed to inspire that passion.

Instead, she wronged you by agreeing to marry you when she knew full well that the best of her was reserved for others. This deprived you of a chance to find someone who felt that way about you, and marry her instead.

The good news is that you are 25, and have plenty of time left to find that someone, if you start right now.

Get a load of this shit. Guy finds out his wife has cheated with at least 25 male and female Craigslist hookups. r/relationships responds by lighting up the Knight Signal and rushing to the Chivalrymobile.

85 upvotes · 23 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Your wife does not sound like a whore. If anything she may be a sex addict, or worse, a nymphomaniac. She's going to strangers for little more than sex, man! If she was emotionally cheating as well as being promiscuous, then sure, I would worry about her fidelity. But by sheer number and quality of her exploits, this is definitely a psychological matter. While the usual r/relationships advice would work for a normal cheater, you need more finesse with your wife; first and foremost a doctor.

Oh, good. I can put my penis wherever I want. All I have to do is say that I'm a "sex addict".

Or does that only apply to women?

Woman tries to date women... lol

85 upvotes · 6 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way.

It's like that joke I like to tell: "How do we know being gay isn't a choice? Because there are straight men."

LTR letting me cheat to continue relationship

84 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Had to call in more air strikes on dumb comments. This is what you get when the retards at the back of the class try to instruct, instead of shutting up so you can hear the professor.

She just submitted. She has come to grips with the fact that equality is a lie, and double standards are the natural order of the human race. She has agreed to submit to your rule in order to be with you.

When women submit, you reward them for it. You don't punish them by demoting to plate status, or questioning their motives like a starving dog that growls at you over the food bowl you just gave it, unable to believe that you aren't going to take it back. (Men who can't believe women would tolerate polygyny are men who have never truly held a woman's fascination. Thus, starving dogs.)

Now, you must reward her by helping her to cope with the jealousy. Use consistent demonstrations of affection and ownership to demonstrate to her that sharing your attention doesn't mean losing it. She is your dog now, and good dogs get petted.

Eventually, if you play this game right, she will come to accept this as the new normal, and be able to be social, even friendly, with your other women. Don't focus on the threesomes. They'll happen, they are a perk of this, but they are not what makes this work, or the great goal.

The goal is you as the unequivocal head of the relationship structure. It is the state where your rules, not society's rules, determine what is normal and expected within the relationship.

TRP believes in "Enjoy the decline", why don't you think the west can be saved?

84 upvotes · 4 October 2017 · /r/askTRP

Because historically, no society has ever been saved once it lost internal unity.

Once you stop being one culture, with one set of values, you don't go back. You only split or collapse.

Feminist Is Troubled By Lack of Male Attendance at "All About Women"

84 upvotes · 10 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

In other news, KKK surprised by lack of black membership.

Never show weakness. She is not on your side.

84 upvotes · 24 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a myth floating around the manosphere about the "good alpha." A guy who's hot, charming, successful, interesting, smart, funny, and most important of all, a great leader. Not a fake Red Pill alpha, but a real alpha. A guy who isn't just out for himself, but a guy who genuinely cares about others, brings others up, and makes others feel good. A perfect-ten human.

These real alphas, who were most often born and raised that way and never needed a creepy internet cult like us to learn how to be men, are admirably human, and the complete opposite of everything we evil Red Pillers teach. They're not aloof and indifferent – they're engaging, compassionate, and concerned! They don't stonewall and tease – they earnestly communicate! They're not stoic and emotionless – they're open and honest and their emotions captivate you and make you like them even more! And they're not perfect – they're human, but they own their flaws and mistakes and admit them readily, because that's being a real man.

I've actually never met a man like this, but I hear about them all the time. Mostly from women.

This kind of leadership is not a characteristic of a leader. It's a characteristic of a particular relationship between one particular leader, and one or more followers, in a given situation.

The what is being described here is not a different style of leadership, but a particular relationship where positivity dominates, as a result of successful leadership. This is an effect, not a cause.

A patriarch who is firmly in control of his household, and is automatically respected and obeyed, has more leeway to be positive, open, honest, benevolent, straightforward. This is an effect of his greater leadership skills, but only insofar as he makes it possible by creating order, harmony, and cooperation, using Machiavellian means if necessary.

This is also why many of the dating tactics of the past, which we explicitly reject ("gentlemanly" behaviour, flowers, etc) came about... they are artifacts of a gentler time, when men were not seen as low-value by default... and thus they could demonstrate more emotional investment without having it taken for thirsty desperation.

TL;DR: The "good alpha" that women idealize is precisely the animal they hunted to the brink of extinction. When masculinity is welcomed with less hostility, only then will masculinity be less hostile.

Why I love working out, and why you should too

83 upvotes · 23 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If moderate exercise doesn't feel good, you are either:

- Tired from a shit job, work on career building.
- Sick, see a doctor, get some blood tests.
- Not eating right, eat right.
- Not sleeping enough, sleep more.
- Really out of shape, stick with it, it'll start to feel good.

I doubt even the most beta of betas would go for this.

83 upvotes · 18 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Fuck. Now they're skipping the marriage and moving right to the divorce.

Feminist favourite, Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau, learns the hard way that-even if youre a White Knight-somewhere, somehow, there'll always be an offended feminist who can take you down, as he's accused of 'groping'. Ahhh, the irony.....

82 upvotes · 7 July 2018 · /r/MensRights

Women, collectively, can never be appeased.

That is because what of this feminist bullshit really is... is just the weaponization of the male protective instinct towards women.

When you take women playing the victim card extremely seriously, you make it more effective against you, not less. And therefore some woman will always eventually play it, for cash and prizes.

The only defense is to laugh at women who attempt to play the victim card.

Maybe we should stop hiring feminists?

82 upvotes · 22 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm in software engineering. I couldn't hire a feminist if I wanted to.

GF admitted kissing somone on spin the bottle and says "it's not cheating"...WTF!?

81 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

I feel like a part of my manhood has been stripped from me.

When you break up with her immediately, you get it back.

Forbes Article- Don't Marry Career Women

81 upvotes · 7 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't marry ~~career women~~.

FTFY

I love the red pill, mostly the theory. I seriously have my doubts about the guys who represent the manosphere.

80 upvotes · 9 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't idolize us.

Try what we suggest, see if it helps, practice it, make it your own.

I don't want to be your hero. I want you to be your own hero.

Yeah! Because death sentence is the solution!

80 upvotes · 17 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

And remember that drunken sex is rape.

Now put the two together.

Aren't red pill men and women the losers of the sexual marketplace?

79 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Naturally strong people don't need to lift weights, because they're naturally strong. People who lift weights are therefore not naturally strong.

Therefore, people who lift weights are weaker than people who don't.

Was "taught not to rape" in sociology class today (rant)

79 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The Jews have a long history of gaining strength from being hated and ostracized.

Adversity makes you strong. Handouts and special rights make you weak.

What else have we being lied to about?

78 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

- Most of what they are selling you as food is toxic and causes obesity.
- A university degree is not the path to a better financial future.
- Soldiers and police officers are not badass heroes.
- Democracy is not the opposite of authoritarianism, it is a form of authoritarianism.
- Your vote does not count. No votes count. The counts are rigged.
- Masks don't work.
- Charitable foundations are usually either money laundering operations, scams, or a way for politicians to accept bribes.
- Book deals and speaking fees are also ways for politicians to accept bribes.
- Most large companies and organizations are horrifically inefficient and institutionally incompetent.
- The vast majority of people are slaves to their basest and most childish impulses, and don't even know it.
- There is no god.
- There are no souls. You are a meat robot. When you're dead, that's it.
- Stupid is genetic, and epigenetic, and cannot be fixed. Reading books doesn't help.
- Medical professionals are dumb as a sack of hammers and can't diagnose or fix anything outside a narrow scope of problems they have seen over and over again.
- A large portion of scientific research papers are fraudulently tweaked to say what the principal investigator, or the sponsor, wants to hear.
- A large portion of the remainder are invalid due to flawed methods.
- There is no cause so noble that is doesn't attract idiots and assholes. A great deal of propaganda consists simply of finding the other sides' idiots and assholes, and pointing as many microphones and cameras as possible at them.
- Anything that makes you feel pleasure (as opposed to contentment) target dopamine receptors, and dopamine receptors always down-regulate. If it gets you off, or high, it's addictive, and you can only get off on it so many times before the thrill is gone.
- Your body has all sorts of bits that are not designed to last. Medical science will not fix this in your lifetime.
- The opinion of a scientist is not a scientific result. Most scientists have at least a few completely incorrect beliefs about their own field of expertise.
- Hard work doesn't always, or even usually, pay off. Knowing what to do is far more important than doing it diligently.
- Specific knowledge trumps general education.
- It also trumps intelligence.
- For this reason, centralization of power or policy almost always makes things generally worse.
- Every organization that outlives its original leadership no longer serves its original goals.
- Society does not exist to help or support you. It is simply there as the emergent result of other people's effort to help themselves.
- Diversity + proximity + segregation = conflict. Multiculturalism doesn't work.
- High IQ men outnumber high IQ women by a large margin. Your girlfriend will not be as smart as you. There will never be as many high-achieving women as men.
- A significant portion of people are so stupid or mentally ill that they are unemployable.
- Psychotherapy doesn't work. No one gets better who wouldn't have gotten better anyway.

- Most genius-level talents are wasted because others simply cannot work with them.
- There is almost no overlap between nice guys and great men. Most people who vastly improve life for humans everywhere are assholes.
- If you don't have at least one or two beliefs that your culture would retaliate against you for voicing, then you have no actual beliefs, you are just echoing someone else's.
- If you receive something you are not paying for, you are the product, not the customer.
- Women are generally incompetent at every level of intelligence, because the powerful human protective instinct towards women shelters them from the pressures that force men to become useful or die.
- Race actually does sometimes correlate to some things that matter. But saying exactly how is social and political suicide.
- Human beings are hardwired for tribalism and tribal warfare. What isn't hardwired is what criteria they use to sort themselves into tribes.
- A significant percentage of human beings are too stupid to be able to understand that they are stupid.
- The motivations of someone smarter than you will never make sense to you unless they stop to explain. If someone does something that appears dumb, they probably are, but the dumb one just might be you.
- Accepting the "findings" of "science" is an act of religious faith unless you bother to read and understand the research. How do you know the earth is round? How do you know the universe had a beginning?
- Money is a measure of fucks given. If someone is not willing to pay for something, they don't actually care about it.
- Some parents do not love their children. The biological hardwiring just breaks sometimes. Those children will sometimes be able to thrive anyway, but their scars will never heal.
- Having children does not make you immortal. 500 years from now, it will not matter at all that someone who doesn't know your name got 1/1024th of their genes from you.
- All love is conditional. Even the love of a parent for a child.
- Cultural Marxism overthrew traditional culture because traditional culture was almost as shitty to live in, and people wanted an alternative. The "good old days" were terrible.
- No human being is actually independent. Most of us can't grow our own food, and the ones who can, can only do so using tools they don't know how to build. "Independence", in humans, only means that we can pull our own weight within a mutually supporting group.
- Some people just ain't right, and will damage and disrupt any group or society they are part of. The only way the rest of us can have nice things is to detect and imprison, exile, or kill them as fast as possible.
- These people don't align with any concrete social group like "psychopaths". Some psychopaths are incredibly useful, and society couldn't get by without them.
- Evil is not the product of psychopathy, or lack of consideration for others, or lack of virtue, or anything like that. The worst evils of history were committed by nice, normal, loving, psychologically healthy people who were motivated by ideology.
- Dogs are not wonderful, loving, or virtuous. They are simply bred to mimic human behaviours that signal devotion.
- A significant portion of people would self-destruct if their every wish were granted.
- Money actually doesn't buy happiness. Happiness is contentment, and by its very nature, it requires nothing beyond what one already has, so there is nothing to buy. Money can only buy pleasure.
- However, lack of money can destroy happiness. It is impossible to be happy when one is worried about the future.
- If you are psychologically unable to act submissive ever, you will not fit into any organization you did not have a hand in creating.

- If you are unable to share the spotlight with others, you will never have any friends or allies, only sycophants and rivals.
- In some professions, image is more important than ability. If you could conceivably get ahead by sucking the right cock, you are in one of those professions.
- Most ideologies and economic theories are foolhardy attempts to change human nature with idealism. Any that are not will automatically sound selfish and vile to people who are not aware of this.
- Communism has failed every time it has been tried. Anyone who makes excuses for this is a slave to wishful thinking.
- Persistence cannot and does not overcome all problems.

Why do women love psychopaths?

78 upvotes · 22 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Psychopaths aren't necessarily bad guys in any colloquial sense of the word.

Any system of morality, that isn't totally pathological and destructive to the society that embraces it, judges people not by how they feel or what they think, but by what they do, and the impact they have upon others.

People who lack emotional mirroring traits (they can understand the feelings of others, but do not experience the emotions they are perceiving) are termed "psychopaths" by our culture.

We tend to collectively believe this is a detrimental trait, but that's just selection bias confirming our preconceived view... you see, we only notice that someone is a psychopath when they harm others.

So we don't notice, for example, that most surgeons are psychopaths.

Expat business man is utterly destroyed and drained out of his entire life savings by a sweet feminine thai woman.

78 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no escaping the necessity for game.

- Being tall will not save you.
- Being handsome will not save you.
- Being huge and cut will not save you.
- Being rich will not save you.
- Being famous will not save you.
- Being hung like a rhinoceros will not save you.
- Being good in bed will not save you.
- Being Chad will not save you.

Equality does not exist. If you do not have the mental game to control women, they will control you. Your woman is either your slave or your master. There is no middle ground.

First post syndrome

77 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I've noticed these as well.

I think they are an artifact of certain men being largely raised by women. They learn woman-tactics for interpersonal interaction. "I am hopeless at this please help me" is a viable thing to say if you are a woman. It evokes male protective instincts, and also displays a humble, submissive attitude which men find appealing.

These young men want help, and their only experience of how to get help is what they see women doing. Their only experience of emotional comfort has been their mothers' love for them, so when they are hurting and in despair, they retreat into the psychological space of childhood, and look for someone to parent them.

The question here is how to get them to that initial realization that shit that works for women will not work for them, that submissiveness is charming when women do it and cringeworthy when men do it, that to get help they need to show a serious determination to use their own energy to walk the right path if only a wise teacher will point them in the right direction.

The men of TRP can't give out emotional comfort, because it's not what's needed. Emotional comfort for men comes not from sympathy, but from getting that first small win under your belt because you made the right moves at last.

In order to profit from TRP, men need to understand the man-language that is spoken here. That's the first real hurdle, and it's a high one for men who have only been raised to understand chick-speak.

Another post about Ph.D.s and status, or "You are dammed if you do, and dammed if you don't".

77 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Avoid women with PhDs. They're not "broken" in the sense that single mothers, women with neck tattoos, women with facial piercings, etc, are broken, but they have kind of painted themselves into a corner.

First, she will have convinced herself that that sheepskin is very important, and a measure of someone's worth. Why? Because that's how her hamster will deal with the knowledge that she spent a lot of money, and a lot of the best years of her life to earn it. This is somewhat similar to the way that people will see an expensive product they just bought as higher-quality. It just has to be good, because otherwise, they got cheated.

Next, this will lead her to the belief that any man without a PhD or MD is beneath her. She lacks a natural advantage that men have, in that men have it pounded into us at boyhood that we are only worth what we can do. She mistakes the PhD, which is actually a means to an end, for an end unto itself. And she will think that any man without one doesn't have it, not because it is not useful for his goals, but because he failed to get one.

This means she is in a position where she is only capable of being attracted to a much smaller portion of men, but she has not made herself one iota more attractive in making this change.

She has raised her price without raising her value. A woman with a PhD is no more attractive than she would be as a waitress at Denny's. But she is now inaccessible to more men, harder to game, and more demanding.

This is not a good deal.

not my story but a typical case os the ds

76 upvotes · 10 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

If you were passed out drunk and someone had sex with you, you were raped.

If you were tipsy, and disinhibited, you weren't. I don't care if you're male or female. If you are on a drug you chose to take, you are responsible for your behaviour.

Where do you draw the line between girlfriend and wife duties?

76 upvotes · 25 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Where do you draw the line between girlfriend and wife duties?

You don't.

Women often think things like this:

However, I often see stuff that's like "don't be a wife to your boyfriend because he'll start looking at you like his mother"

... because they don't understand men.

Men are different from women. Women give because they anticipate future benefit (Briffault's Law). Men give because they have received benefit (reciprocity).

Thus, women who are confused about men often think they should withhold something so that men will marry them to get it. But men don't marry women in the hopes that something will change. They marry women because they hope that nothing will change. They do it because they want to make their current situation permanent.

Never show weakness. She is not on your side.

76 upvotes · 24 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women do love men who do the dishes and vacuum the carpet.

In the same sense that I love wild-caught salmon with soy-miso glaze, or my favorite pair of shoes.

Correcting female chauvinism, one meme at a time.

75 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

If people call you "bossy" that means you don't have leadership skills. Leadership skills inspire people to voluntarily follow.

Do girls actually have an easier time in college?

75 upvotes · 2 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

All hatred is based on fear (sometimes rational and sensible, sometimes not).

The way to stop hating women is to learn game and thereby achieve power over them. Then you will no longer fear them.

Stop me if you've heard this one before: Man moves across the country to please GF. She immediately leaves him

75 upvotes · 3 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Just as men can't stand looking weak, women can't stand looking mean.

The key word here is looking however. Women are willing to fuck up your life if it isn't visibly their fault, just as men are willing to pussy out of something so long as they don't look weak doing it.

So if you don't want a woman to fuck up your life, create a pattern of accountability, where you clearly connect her actions to the consequences thereof.

My sister told me she would use a man for money and then leave him

73 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Never let a woman get near your money. Never enter any arrangement, legal, or practical, that allows her access to it.

The moment you do, she will regard it as half hers.

And if she ever ceases to be attracted to you, she will regard "your half" as due to her in "just compensation" for the wrongs you did her.

Which as often as not, she just came up with as an excuse for no longer being attracted to you.

They do not think of themselves as goldiggers, because it's "sharing" until they hate you. Then it's just "what you deserve".

How To AMOG Beta Males

72 upvotes · 16 March 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

TL;DR:

- Beta males follow instructions.
- Alpha males look at the terrain and decide what to do.
- Beta males are comforted by being told what to do, because they are afraid if they have to decide for themselves they'll get it wrong.
- Alpha males hate being told what to do, because they are afraid that if someone else decides, they'll get it wrong.
- Beta males trust other people more than themselves, alpha males trust themselves more than other people.
- Alpha males are attractive to women because women want to be around men who can be trusted to take care of them.
- Beta males are not attractive to women because they can't even take care of themselves without needing instructions.
- Whisper cannot tell you how to be an alpha male, because that would be a list of instructions.
- He can only point to examples and hope you eventually get it.
- When I point at things, stop staring at my finger.

AskReddit thread about sluts. Apparently all men love sluts and women should be as slutty as they want without any consequence.

72 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are the gatekeepers of sex. Women like nice guys, but do not have sex with them.

Men are the gatekeepers of relationships. Men like sluts, but do not have relationships with them.

Can someone tell me where I can sign up for some white male privilege? Because I can't find it. /rant

72 upvotes · 23 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Male privilege: Hearing a sewer entrance referred to as a "manhole".

Female privilege: Never having to go down one.

What to do with girls who are bad in the bedroom?

71 upvotes · 12 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

If they lack skill, teach them. If they lack effort, next them.

The Red Pill Guide to Advanced (Natty) Fitness

71 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Not too bad overall, but you're repeating a dangerous myth:

Your body basically treats all carbs, all fats and all proteins the same, from a caloric standpoint. That means, as long as you are getting your micro-nutrients, it doesn't matter where your macronutrients come from. Your body treats 20 grams of carbs from organic natural gluten-free quinoa or whatever the food-of-the-month is the EXACT same as 20 grams of carbs from my favorite ice cream (Fiber content notwithstanding). From a weight loss perspective, it is exactly the same

... This is the same old "calorie is a calorie is a calorie" myth that endocrinologists have been trying to kill for years now. But no matter how many times you kill it, pound a stake through its heart, chop its head off, fill the mouth with salt, sew it shut, and bury it facedown in a churchyard on Good Friday, sprinkle the site with holy water, and then set a very heavy rock on top, the stupid just rises again to eat the brains of the living.

A calorie is only just a calorie if you are a fire. You are not a fire.

Different foods are fundamentally different substances. The fact that your body has evolved to be able to use different types of fuel does not make them magically the same. They are processed in completely different ways on the cellular and molecular levels, and even to some extent on the anatomical level.

Now, I don't blame you for making this mistake. You are simply repeating what someone else told you, and that someone wasn't a medical researcher. And you believe it because you have achieved decent results while believing it, so it must be right, huh?

Well, believe it or not, it is possible to do the right thing by accident, and also possible to get good results without always doing everything 100% right.

But you are repeating dangerous myths to people who might need the right information to make progress.

Pop quiz for readers (If you cannot answer all of these questions correctly, you do not know enough to assert whether or not "a calorie is just a calorie" or not.)

- Which organs in the body can process glucose?
- Which organs in the body can process fructose?
- What is the difference between a triglyceride and a fatty acid?
- What is the difference between saturated and unsaturated fat?
- What is insulin? What does it do?
- What is leptin? What does it do?
- What is cortisol? What does it do?
- What is the relationship between dietary and serum cholesterol?
- What are the different forms in which the body stores potential energy derived from food? Where is each one located? How is it accessed?
- What is an amino acid? What is it used for? Which ones can the body synthesize? Which must be obtained from food?

If you are uncertain of the answers to any one of these questions, do not take pre-chewed nutrition advice from personal trainers. Educate yourself. A red pill man does his own homework.

Even the Catholic Church, once a stalwart bastion of the strong nuclear family, is now throwing in with the feminists and is encouraging divorce and man shaming

71 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Liberal white guilt did what slavery couldn't, what segregation couldn't, what hundreds of years of racism and hate couldn't.

It destroyed the black family.

"My wife's male best friend has moved in with us – and he won't leave"

71 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She's just going through a difficult period in her life. He needs to respect her emotional needs for things like autonomy, self-expression, and a Dark Triad cock up her ass.

He should give her plenty of space, and maybe suggest they go to couples counselling.

How to make a persuasive argument

70 upvotes · 8 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You've added a lot of structure here which doesn't help increase clarity.

Great writing makes ideas easy to understand. Resist the temptation to sort, organize, classify, generalize, or systematize in ways that don't aid clarity.

Less is more.

FR: My Plate (22f) uses emotions to get me (41m) to give her "more" Bonus features: Beta Butthurt running rampant.

70 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"Plate, I really enjoy my time with you too, but I certainly don't want to take up your time if I am not meeting your needs. If you need to stop seeing me, I will be just fine. I'd rather you be completely content with someone else than be miserable with me."

This is how you do it, kids.

The same message can be given a hardcore or softcore spin. You use the hardcore spin to teach other men, and the softcore spin to sell it to bitches.

I made my mom cry.

70 upvotes · 3 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

seeing my own mom cry hurts my soul dude

And this is why she did it.

Men hold back tears because we know that showing them will harm us. Women let tears flow because they know that showing them can only help them.

Mother and son have a bond. For some mothers, that bond represents a duty, to do whatever she can to protect her son when he is young and weak, and to inspire and nurture him when he is older and stronger. For other mothers, that bond is a pry bar to use to influence him whenever it would make her feel good to do so. Some lie in between these two poles.

Did you think that your mother was always good, always fair, always decent, just because she is your mother? This is the reasoning of a child.

[Mod] Snark, sarcasm, and mocking...

70 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

While I generally agree, sometimes laughter is an important weapon against nonsense.

You see, when an opponent takes a rational position, one can debate rationally. But when someone says something cartoonishly ludicrous (saying "good morning is sexual harassment, the burden of proof should be on those accused of rape), then debating them actually lends them credibility because it makes their position seem worthy of this kind of address.

In other words, we debate people who think socialism can work... but we don't debate people who think Elvis is alive. We laugh at them. Because otherwise we are helping them to move the Overton window.

Thanks Guardian for Picking this Comment

70 upvotes · 19 May 2014 · /r/MensRights

Physical size and strength is irrelevant to partner abuse situations because one of its distinguishing characteristics is that the victim doesn't fight back.

Saying that a woman can't abuse a man because he's strong enough to stop her is like saying a cattle rancher can't abuse a bull because it's huge and can stomp him flat.

Ariana Grande with the anthem for hypergamy and branch swinging?

69 upvotes · 17 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

One of my plates was playing this and I had to turn it off.

That's because you imagine yourself as the person cheated on and not the person cheated with.

Female behaviour is the terrain. It's there. We don't judge it. We use it to our advantage.

Where to find a man? XD

69 upvotes · 4 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Asking how to find a man who is "interested in a long term relationship" is like asking how to find a woman who is "interested in sex".

It tries to shift responsibility for what you are supposed to inspire. Making a woman want sex is a man's job, making a man want a relationship is a woman's job.

While there are men who have no interest in relationships, just as there are women who have no interest in sex, these are simply an abnormal hazard to avoid, not a usual condition.

Posted in asktrp about my overly-controlling mother. Diehard bluepill messages me with "advice." So much cringe.

69 upvotes · 24 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Her problems and behaviours are particular to her, not 'all women'..."

"the men who post in TRP... are very bitter and angry towards women... through their own romantic failures..."

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

68 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So when are feminists going to strap on a plate carrier and M4 and go fight to liberate those women?

Or will they just whine very non-submissively for the Patriarchy to do it for them?

Women don't think that women can make adult decisions and be held accountable for those decisions

68 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Women know they are submissive and easily controlled. They just don't like to talk about it because it's embarrassing, and it gets in the way of their demands for adult levels of respect.

To a man, "coercion" means you put a gun to his head, threatened to out him as gay to his church congregation, kidnapped his children, etc...

To a woman, "coercion" can be anything, including you making a frowny face. They really have so little internal rudder to them that they can experience criticism as force, and persuasion as mind control. I've seen women claim they were raped after someone initiated sex and they were "too embarrassed to say no" or "afraid he would be mad".

That's right, plainly articulating their own desires is too high a bar to clear for some women.

Women know this about themselves, which is why you'll see groups of female friends policing each other for impulsive choices.

Give thanks that you are not a woman... despite how nice everyone treats them. Despite how even strangers care about their problems. Give thanks... and imagine what it must be like to have no agency, no control over your actions, no ability to distinguish between what you want and what others want of you.

Imagine being a leaf in a stream, a feather on the wind, with no control over your destiny, and nothing to do about what you want in life but to hope it randomly finds you.

Imagine being too afraid to take responsibility for your actions, and never having any power over your life, because you can't bear to take responsibility for your actions. Imagine having a perfectly intelligent functioning forebrain, and having no use for it other than to come up with excuses for what you did.

No wonder they cry all the time.

Secretly most of these "fEmiNiSts" love to be treated like shit. Ofc only if you are good looking.

68 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

This is a common cause of the frustration.

Another is inability to trust.

They want desperately to submit to a man, but they can't trust one. So they go into 180 degree denial about their own submissive tendencies. No, they are not submissive, they are strong and independent women, fuck the Patriarchy, any woman submitting to any man ever is the most horrible thing in the world, and it must be stopped even if it has nothing to do with them.

Also, for bonus points, projection: no, they are not submissive, it's that darn Patriarchy trying to enslave them.

I am addicted to cuddling!

68 upvotes · 26 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Physical contact is not unattractive to girls.

Neediness or dependency is. Rearrange how you do physical contact so that it uses body language which sends the proper message.

I am Karen Straughan [girlwriteswhat]; Ask Me Anything.

68 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi, Karen. Nice to see ya here.

From your comments, I get the impression you've received a fair amount of static from the R/MR crowd over doing this at all.

How much of that was there? Did it make you hesitate at all? Has there been support as well?

How much of the recent wave of attention that the MRM has directing towards TRP do you think is a reaction to the /r/TheRedPill surpassing /r/MensRights in readership?

Where do you see the interaction between the two going in the future?

Women Never Suck Dick In Their Stories

68 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not telling you that, that's private!

== "yes".

Because if she hadn't, she'd say "no".

I guess it could also be a shit test - if you tolerate the fact that she's flaunting her sexual experiences in your face, you're letting her dominate a bit, which makes you all that much more beta.

Tell her that "Reciting your resume will only get you so far. We'll wait and see how you do at the interview." That puts her in her place, because it sets you up as the one evaluating her, and reminds her that those sexual skills are there to serve you.

Beware the Female Psychopath

67 upvotes · 31 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

But DAMN were there points where she was convincing.

What exactly it is that you think a whore's entire job is?

Do not compete with experts in their area of expertise.

No matter how smart you are, do not allow detectives to question you without your lawyer present, do not attempt to negotiate price with salesmen, do not attempt to detect deception from whores, do not give interviews to hostile reporters.

Yes, you will think you are smarter than they are. You probably are. But experience, preparation, and domain knowledge beats intelligence every time.

Yes, you will think you can win. They are good at making you think that. They need to make you think that in order to draw you into their game.

What to do if a girl starts treating me like her boyfriend?

67 upvotes · 18 February 2020 · /r/askTRP

Think about this very hard.

Why do women want relationships? Not so that they can treat you like a boyfriend, but so that you will treat them like a girlfriend.

She can't force you to do that.

So what are you afraid of?

The Reddit Administration Recants

67 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The truth is that reddit staff didn't give this more than thirty seconds worth of thought. Some butthurt intern wanted to answer back, using root access instead of a regular comment or post, and googled the first thing xe could find that contradicted us.

Lo, and behold, it turned out that this was composed of the ideas of a creepy harrasser, a genocide advocate, a man hater, and a domestic abuse apologist. And that's just two people.

Anyone think that's a coincidence?

100% of our ideological opponents are morally bankrupt. All of them. The ones who appear clean just haven't been caught yet. Everything they accuse us of, they themselves are guilty of.

DARVO: Deny, Attack, Reverse Victim and Offender. This is what they do.

/u/spez doesn't care about any of that, of course. He's not truly ashamed because the possibility has never entered his tiny, self-absorbed mind that he might, just might be wrong. No, he's not ashamed, he's only embarrassed.

He just doesn't want to look bad.

That's why the link silently vanished, with no retraction or apology. He doesn't have the courage to take responsibility for his mistakes, or those of the team that reports to him. He is every inch the disgusting spineless manchild that his physical appearance would suggest. Stereotypes exist for a reason.

That is why there can never be a debate or open dialogue with this sort of leftist human headache. Not simply because they lack the imagination and mental discipline to imagine someone else's worldview, but because they are so lacking in courage that they bear to sit and listen to someone contradict them, even for long enough to await their turn to speak.

Being contradicted fills them with such pain that they cannot imagine the source of it to be anything but pure evil.

- This will never be resolved.
- No reddit staff will ever address this community directly in any medium that permits a response, unless that response can be shamelessly ignored.
- The ban, when it happens, will happen silently and without warning.

The good news is that we don't need them. We only ever used their resources out of convenience, not necessity. We have among us all the expertise and initiative required to build for ourselves whatever we need.

All you have to do is show willing.

The Great Trad Con, and How Not to Get Conned.

67 upvotes · 2 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

My next article will address the topic of children.

[Video] Man demonstrates that you can get away with anything if you have high (perceived) SMV.

67 upvotes · 2 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Technically, I understand Rhianna threw the first punch.

But that's irrelevant, and you're right, because that's not why he's off the hook. Most people don't even know that.

No, he's off the hook because of how the human brain works. The brain doesn't have a category for "celebrity" (person I see a lot of, but who is unaware of my existence). It only has "member of my tribe", and "stranger".

If some random dude beats up his girlfriend, and we hear about it, our brain uses the bits we use to think about strangers, and we generally think he should have the book thrown at him.

If our brother beats up his girlfriend, our brain uses the bits we use to think about tribe members, and we generally make excuses like his PTSD or her smashing the windows out of his car, and want him to get counseling or something.

But there's no "celebrity" slot in the brain. So our brains use the "tribe member" slot. Because we see them a lot, our brain thinks we know them.

How SRS helped me find Men's Rights

67 upvotes · 11 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Yes, we are.

We hate double standards, character assassination, and hypocrisy. We hate dubious statistics and faulty logic. We hate suppression of free intellectual discourse. We hate injustice and treating people as members of demographic groups instead of individuals. We hate lies, and self-serving crocodile tears.

We hate all sort of things!

My gf hit me

66 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

I don't know if this is worth salvaging.

Yes, you do.

You know exactly what you need to do. You're just asking because you're too scared to do it.

Feminism isn't completely bad for TRP men

66 upvotes · 30 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Being a man in a feminist society is a bit like being a girl at Caltech or MIT.

The odds are good, but the goods are odd.

What's the worst that a woman that's turned against a man can do to a man? Quora reveals a lot -- especially the warning signs and red flags before the big shock happens.

66 upvotes · 4 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

How does she live with what she's done to me? Knowing she had me imprisoned on a false charge? Having full knowledge of what she did to my life?

TRP, of course, has the answer to this. She doesn't care at all.

There is a male protective instinct towards women.

There is a female protective instinct towards children.

There is NO female protective instinct towards men.

These imbalanced protective instincts evolved to safeguard certain members of the human species under conditions of total inequality in the natural state... women having absolute power over children, and men having absolute power over women.

A child who was made the legal "equal" of an adult could, and frequently would, perpetuate the worst and most horrible crimes upon adults with absolute impunity, frequently using other adults as proxies to do so. And so it is with women. This is the basis of their behaviour.

How does this appear to women? That, too, is a simple answer through the lens of the red pill. To a woman, a man exists in one of two mutually exclusive states. Either he is a worthy, attractive man, by reason of being more powerful than her, and therefore nothing she does to get revenge can seriously harm him... she is simply getting even, and he is not seriously harmed, for he is a powerful man, and therefore invincible. OR he is NOT more powerful than her... but if this is so, then he is not more powerful than her, and is therefore weak, and therefore worthless and despicable, and his pain does not matter.

Thus it is that in a woman's view, any pain she can inflict on a man, he deserves by reason of his vulnerability to it.

Still wanna get married?

"Rape: A Men's Issue" Shown in my sexuality class

66 upvotes · 6 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

Rape is a choice men make to use sex as a weapon for power and control.

Dude, if using sex as a weapon for power and control is all it takes to make a rape, then the overwhelming majority of rapists are women.

LTR wants to move a couple of hours away, should I tell her I will break up with her?

65 upvotes · 25 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

We moved back to the city because of the pandemic.

Perhaps you are not entirely clear on how this whole "pandemic" thing works.

Beta male orbits that for 9 years while she rides the cock carousel, then she hits the wall and he buys her a house. Don't be this guy.

65 upvotes · 3 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to spend money on women, spend it on whores.

They have upfront pricing, will actually give you something, and will go away afterwards.

If you're weak, they'll leave you.

65 upvotes · 12 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Makes sense, actually.

Men who look like that can get women on the strength of that alone, so their game doesn't have to good, it just has to be "not terrible".

Of course, once they are in a relationship, they are fucked. Because looks and status can attract women, but only game can dominate them.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

65 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

What I find particularly interesting is how, time and again, whenever someone wishes to externally influence

TRP, they will talk about evil, but when get angry, and cease trying to steer and instead try to discredit, they focus on accusations of weakness.

This demonstrates that everyone really knows the truth... that it is weakness, not evil, which is the unforgivable sin in men.

When someone calls you "evil", especially when what they have is a caricature of your behaviour, it can be tempting to engage with them and attempt to correct their impression. But this is simply bait... "make this concession and we will cease regarding you as evil... oh, and also this one. And this one. And this other little thing."

Sooner or later, you will deny them some concession they want, and the narrative switches from attempting to bait to attempting to discredit.

Never make any concession to anyone who attempts to characterize you, rather than persuade you.

Drunken Dipshittery Results in a Life Lesson About Beta Shaming

65 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nobody respects a man that doesn't defend himself. Nobody respects a beta. And what's worse, is that not only do women not respect them, women think betas DESERVE to be put down. To be mistreated, bullied, and abused. They deserve to be shat on by society until they learn to "man up" and "stop being such a pussy."

Exactly.

A cowardly man is not useful to them, so they feel no compassion for him, no matter how he is wronged.

But there is one thing they are absolutely correct about. Bullying among men is mental strength training. We pick on each other to teach each other to handle adversity and keep our cool under pressure.

What you did wrong wasn't to pick on him, but to do so without proper calibration. You were not so much an attacker as you were the fanatical gym teacher who tries to make the fat wheezy kid run 5 miles the first day.

If he had been a more advanced student of masculinity and toughness, he would have responded "Yeah, that's my excuse for being ugly. What's yours?", or "Why? Do I remind you of your father?", or just looked you up and down in a way that made you slink off into the corner. And everything would have been fine. No harm, no foul.

That's the important lesson here. All men are punching bags. But we have to learn to take hits. And learning means gradual. Those guys you see who curl up on themselves, they're the ones who never had a chance to start slow. To learn with taking small hits before life hit them with big ones.

And yes, you're right, it's because they didn't have men. Strong male friends, or a real, present father, or a coach or somebody who knows what masculinity is about.

Who teaches them to take a hit. First light, then harder.

"Does this Culture Make Me Look Fat?": When an overweight Korean-American girl moves to Korea.

65 upvotes · 26 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Does this Culture Make Me Look Fat?"

No, that would be all the pie.

How to GET RICH OVERNIGHT with this one simple trick (Employers hate it!)

64 upvotes · 23 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

What you say about these particular bubbles is correct, but it's important to understand them as part of a larger phenomenon. The behaviour of the market is the aggregate behaviour of human beings.

Human beings tend to be affected by hype, and this creates bubbles.

Human beings also learn from experience, and this creates market corrections.

Now, the easiest way to get rich quick is to ride a bubble, but that works until a market correction occurs. Similarly, stock-picking strategies using quantitative analysis can work, but each new technique works, again, until a market correction occurs. Knowing when a correction will occur is as difficult as timing the market.

There are indeed plenty of stupid people who got rich with THIS ONE EASY TRICK, but there are plenty more who didn't get in or out at the right time. We don't see or hear about them (survivorship bias).

The only advice that always works is to take advantage of the constant flow of real value that is entering the market through people's accumulated labour. This is not foolproof, but you're just as safe inside it as you are outside, because, like I said, if it stops working... vegetables, chickens, rifle ammo.

Talking about people who got rich in a bubble as examples of investment strategy is like talking about people who got lucky at the track, or people who won the lottery. Sure, it would be nice to be them, but there's no systematic, teachable strategy for becoming that guy.

A few months ago, I was talking to a younger red pill student who has been a bit of a protege of mine, and who was born into a (((much wealthier segment of society))) than I. He asked me what I thought of ${some quantitative investment outfit}. I said I didn't give a shit. He informed me that they were doing really well. I informed him that this was very nice for them, but what did it have to do with me, since I wasn't privy to their methods, they wouldn't tell me their methods, and they weren't taking outside investments.

What was I supposed to do, jack off to them? How would that help?

Everyone's obsessed with "beating the market", and almost everyone has a plan for how to do it. But no plan has ever worked forever, and none ever will, and if you are in the class of people that needs a job to pay the mortgage or the rent, then you don't have access to the kinds of resources that allow you to play this game without losing everything if it doesn't go well. All these millionaires, and billionaires I've rubbed up against? They know how to be rich and stay rich, but they don't know how to get rich. Because these are two totally different things. Being rich is about managing money and enterprises. Becoming rich is about storing up enough assets to buy into the poker game in the first place.

Infatuation is not the only form of Oneitis.

64 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Ask yourself this: if someone thinks you're cool, what does that really get you? Really?

The answer is absolutely nothing.

The answer is: it depends who they are.

It might get you laid. It might get you paid. It might get you a reputation that will help get you laid or paid.

But I suspect this is not really your point. It sounds like you were talking about the cheap, temporary internal high we sometimes get from the approval of others.

In criticizing that, you are absolutely correct. Not only does it do nothing for you beyond a transitory tingle of pleasure, it actually hurts you, by encouraging the bad habit of relying on external validation for feelings of self-worth.

The moral here would be "Seek a good reputation with others, but do not rely on them for validation."

White knight gets his ass kicked in a bar, goes sobbing to r/TrollXChromosomes for validation and hugs. This is what happens to your brain on feminism.

64 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a constant theme for me, but I'll say it again.

Everyone who has the power to vote with his feet is free. That's just as true if it's her feet.

That girl in the parking lot getting beat on? She's letting it happen. Either that, or she's going to go and pack her bags and he'll never see her again. Whatever a woman's damage is that makes her stay with an abusive guy (assuming she's not hitting him, too, which she usually is; most partner violence is reciprocal), it's not going to be magically cured by a stranger stepping into the middle. That only happens on "Lifetime" or "Oxygen" or the fucking Estrogen Network.

Ass kickings don't just fall out of the sky. Sweet innocent blonde Mormon girls don't just fall for clean cut college boys and find them suddenly transforming, werewolf-style, into Tony Montana.

No, the real truth is that trashy people with no social skills or emotional control fight all the time, and hit each other.

"Ladies of Reddit, what tastes in men do you have that you're not proud of?"

64 upvotes · 6 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women don't want to be with any man who has to ask how to be attractive. He's supposed to just know.

So if he asks how to be attractive, he's put in the unattractive category, and told to act in the way that women want unattractive men to act.

Is this power move or silly?

63 upvotes · 9 March 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

So, her complaint is that she met 28 men who did exactly what she was doing?

The whole Internet hates forced feminist propaganda

63 upvotes · 26 February 2019 · /r/MensRights

The left: whine about toxic masculinity and how men don't show feelings.

Also the left: Call men "triggered" and "sensitive" to suggest they lack masculinity when they do.

A legit 10/10 looking escort just quit her 'profession' and wants to date me

63 upvotes · 2 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

she told me how she wanted to kill her self while she did it... Really gives off the vibe that she hated what she did and is disgusted by it. She claims to have only done this for two months

Stop right there, you fucking idiot.

Stop. Listening. To. What. Women. Say.

Start. Watching. What. They. Do.

Boxing has been required for men at West Point for decades. Now that it's required for women there are suddenly concerns that it's too dangerous.

63 upvotes · 22 September 2016 · /r/MensRights

If you think boxing is too dangerous, wait until you see war.

23 year old virgin posts to CMV that he's frustrated and considering TRP. Helpful redditors assure him it's a bad idea. I posted a response to one such redditor and I wanted to share.

63 upvotes · 3 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hell, you can cut open people's brains and see the differences!

Coming on TBP: RedPill poster advocates killing women by cutting open their heads!!!!

I don't understand why the hell I am still single

62 upvotes · 2 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You've told us how you see yourself.

But to answer your question, we would need to know how others see you.

What is the best way to ease a date into me eating a special/restrictive diet?

62 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I feel like just by needing to eat this diet my SMV drops because it limits the activities and food we'd be able to eat together.

Time for a "man here" comment... because in this case, it actually matters.

Speaking from inside an extremely male mind, I promise you that I, and the vast majority of my XY bros, do not give one single solitary FUCK what you eat, so long as you do not do either of two things:

1. Try to control what WE eat.
2. Make it OUR problem to find food for you that you can safely consume.

In other words, we don't like controlling women, and we don't like fussy budgets, but whether you are either of those things has nothing to do with what you eat, and everything to do with how you deal socially with your dietary restrictions.

The Incalculable Value of a Woman Who Can Cook

62 upvotes · 28 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Anyone who cannot prepare food is not an adult.

Women who can cook are nice, but you have no excuse for not being able to do so yourself.

Why getting a girlfriend could be the right thing to do if you never had one

62 upvotes · 18 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

LTRs are not, contrary to the belief of most novices, anathema to TRP. A lot of the senior ECs have steady girlfriends, some even to the point of having stopped platespinning.

However, two things have to happen for you to be ready to do an LTR.

- You have to be able to platespin. Without that abundance mentality that comes from knowing you have options if you walk away, you will not be able to maintain the dominant position in the relationship.
- You need a worthy girl. This is not under your control, any more than whether you are sex-worthy is under girls' control.
- You need to vet that girl as she works her way up. Remember the Bitch Management Hierarchy. Do not ever let a girl try to cut in line by telling you she's a unicorn. There's no such thing, and even if there were, that is precisely the kind of girl who would understand she had to earn trust instead of demanding it.

Attention -- All rapists and misogynists: Where do I hide the body? Alphas only.

62 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why would you bother to move the body? Just call the Secret Patriarchy Hotline and tell them to make sure you don't get into any trouble.

Life is easy when all the other men are looking after you on account of your mutual experience of penis-ownership.

The Slut, and how not to be one.

62 upvotes · 25 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

i was mostly a slut because i believed that the way you GOT a relationship was to sleep with men until one stuck

Exactly. Just as women are not machines where you insert kindness coins until they dispense sex, men are not machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the commitment jackpot.

Sluts who complain that men won't commit to them are the equivalent of orbiters whining about the friend zone. Don't wanna friendzoned? Raise your sexual market value until women want sex from you. Don't wanna get pumped and dumped? Raise your relationship market value until men want commitment from you.

Another case of DOUBLE STANDARD: Female teacher performs sex act on 7 male students, gets her hands slapped with 60 days in jail

62 upvotes · 16 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

You know, I know I'm in the minority here, but I don't see having sex with consenting teenagers as a serious problem.

The bigotry is not that women aren't punished harshly enough when they do it, it's that men are punished too harshly.

Now, if someone is actually having sex with children, or blackmailing or forcing teenagers to have sex, that's a different story. That ain't so cool.

Now, obviously, this person is mentally unstable, fails to show good judgement, and needs to be fired for that consideration alone. A slap on the wrist and some treatment probably wouldn't go amiss, either. But I don't see how throwing away the key would really help men any.

"But ", you might ask, " what about the teenage boys she harmed?"

Well, I'm not sure she harmed them. And before you accuse me of having a double standard, I would say the same thing about some consenting teenage girls. Again, I hate double standards, but I disagree about what the single standard needs to be.

6"2 roided chad called me nigger behind my back don't think he would have a problem doing it again either. What to do in future if it happens again?

61 upvotes · 27 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

There are several problems here, and none of them is his attitude about niggers.

He said the word nigger where you weren't supposed to hear, and now you're all butthurt about it. Can you see what you did there?

You manufactured a psychological need for him to have certain beliefs, or you won't be okay. Now, you've challenged him to a game, one where in order to win, you need him to change the way he acts, and in order for him to win, all he has to do is... not.

Who do you think is going to win this game?

If you need everyone around you to not hate niggers, you're going to have a rough go of it. Because now you have made your mental well-being hostage to everyone else's behavior and attitudes.

You say you're annoyed that he has so much power over you, but guess who gave it to him?

The way to deal with a man who dislikes niggers and refuses to associate with them is for niggers to be useful and valuable people, so that this man will hurt himself more with his attitude than he hurts niggers.

Do that. Improve yourself. Make it so he misses out by his distaste, not you. The way to deal with bigots is to prove them wrong, because if you can't, they're right.

Get jacked. Get chicks. Get career skills. Get money. Get respect. Get power. Get status.

Then it won't matter who hates niggers. Do you think Kanye West, Lil Wayne, Denzel Washington, Morgan Freeman, Thomas Sowell, or Ben Carson are going to read this comment here, and cry themselves to sleep because I keep using the word "nigger"? No. They don't give a shit. They have shit to do, and their lives to live.

Sure as fuck bothers you, though, doesn't it?

Think on that.

Any given day you can go into female spaces like TwoX or Relationships and find RP truths everywhere...a beta husband finds his wife's sex tape with Chad

61 upvotes · 28 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My advice: Read through all the comments.

Some commenters are understanding towards the husband, some try to shift blame to him. But not one of them blames her.

Their reasoning goes this way: "If she didn't know Joe back then, how could she possibly have taken his feelings into consideration before making a sex tape with Mark?"

They are absolutely right. She couldn't have. She was harming no one at the moment she made that tape, except herself.

But Joe isn't angry about that. Her sexual strategy harmed Joe's sexual strategy, not when she made that tape, but when she married Joe. When she married a man who was her second choice, who was a consolation prize, she removed his chance to be with a woman whose first choice he was.

Men desire women's passionate love, and deep respect, even more than they desire sex. This is why a man with a "unicorn" LTR is more sexually successful than a man with whole string of ONS notches.

Joe has lost his chance at that for a long time, and he hadn't discovered her lies, he would have lost that chance permanently.

Blue pills/feminists verify just how correct Red pill values are

61 upvotes · 4 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, of course.

And by choosing those particular criticisms, TRP readers are admitting they value women's looks and fitness. But do you know how else you could get that information?

By... asking.

TRP readers openly tell the world what they want.

BPFs lie about what qualities they find important. They claim to value sensitivity, kindness, and morality (their version) in men, but when they want to express their disgust with a man, they criticize not his sensitivity, kindness, or morality, but his sexual attractiveness, financial success, or inner strength.

This gives the game away.

If feminists were to call me a muscular, successful, competent, but morally deficient jerk, I would be hard pressed to defend myself... it's pretty close to the mark.

But they can't say that, because in their heart of hearts, they don't consider that an insult. They consider a man like me to be like candy... bad for them in the long run, but they can't resist putting him in their mouths.

If they overhear me talking to other men about this stuff, and don't like the straight dope, they have to call me a neckbeard and hope it sticks if they say it enough.

r/twoxchromosome thread - "I have a fear that my sexual history will come back to haunt me" GENTLE BE WARNED

61 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Only words can be lies. Actions always tell the truth. She knows damn well it matters, or she'd talk about it.

♂

Religion makes sense

61 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Copied from one of my earlier comments:

The whole point of the term "Eternal September" is to describe how a community loses its values when it grows too quickly.

In the pre-1993 world, Usenet was a thriving community with social mores. Each September, it would get an influx of newcomers (new college students got access through campus networks) who didn't know the rules, didn't know how they were expected to behave, but by October or November, they had learned the rules, because there were plenty of established community members to give an example, and to chide them for any infractions.

So Usenet was a mess only in September.

Then, in September 1993, AOL gave its users Usenet access. The influx of new users was like any other September... except now the newcomers, who didn't know the rules and social mores, outnumbered the established community. As a minority, the regulars couldn't enforce Usenet's mores.

September 1993 never ended, in the sense that Usenet was a mess forever. Usenet is now defunct. Dead.

Nothing but a mass of spam where it even still exists.

It was a victim of its own rapid growth.

Analogously, if we, the United States, or we, the western world, accept immigrants from the third world or other failed states slowly, these people will learn our values. They will learn English, get educations, stop mutilating infants' genitals, abandon religious law, etc. They'll keep their music and food, and English will get a few new words, but we won't lose our core values.

But if we accept more of them faster, they form their own ethnic enclaves, don't learn English, and are cut off from the economic and social life of the culture they have moved to. "Little Saigon"s and "Little Mexico"s may be charming districts for outsiders, but they can form socioeconomic traps for the people born in them.

And if we accept still more, even faster... Eternal September. Sharia law in Europe. Whatever.

We must remember that these people come from failed states. That's why they bothered to come. If everything were awesome back home, they'd have stayed there. And they bring with them ideas from those failed states. Some of them good, but some of them the very same bad ideas that caused those states to fail. If you let them in a controlled rate, you give yourself time to sort the bad ideas from the good.

If you open the borders, your culture is committing suicide. And culture matters.

"I hate my bf for being too nice."

61 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

What bitch?

She's better than most women... she has enough self-awareness and honest introspection to admit what she's into.

All women are like that. Trying to expect her to be turned on by weakness is like expecting us to be turned on by fat chicks.

Why are feminists in complete denial of the superior physical strength of Males??

60 upvotes · 21 November 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Lucia Rijker, the greatest female professional fighter of all time, was kind enough to test this for us, by putting on an exhibition match with Somchai Jaidee, a relative unknown Thai boxer with a record evenly split between wins and losses. He was nothing special, and is mostly only known for this match.

He knocked her out in the opening moments of the second round.

Why does this matter? It matters because if we don't acknowledge it, we give women bad advice and set them up to get hurt.

3 months, 3 years, or 30 – There is no cure.

60 upvotes · 24 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

♂

You get it. All women are like that. They can only love you if they need you. If they ever have power over you, it's all over.

Why your wife or girlfriend should suck your dick

60 upvotes · 10 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Interesting argument.

But it's weak that this is even an argument. My expression of my feelings is simpler.

I like oral sex. If she won't do it, and do it enthusiastically, I will find someone who will. If she thinks that's too much to ask, she's welcome to call my bluff. If my companionship isn't worth sucking some dick for, then she can go elsewhere, and not suffer on account of it.

As I always say, if my leaving is a threat with teeth, then I must not be so awful at all, eh?

4chan gets it right and femist erasure of male issue.

60 upvotes · 6 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

If women want videogames that appeal to female interests, points of view, and values... nothing is stopping them from writing those games themselves.

LTR of 2 years asked if I didn't want to have sex because she's fat. I said "yes." She may have left me... what do I do?

59 upvotes · 20 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Either she is gone, or this is going to be a wake up call for her. Either way, you come out ahead.

Do not chase.

If she comes back, be calm but blunt and firm. You keep yourself in shape, you expect the same consideration from her. She wants to lose weight, you'll do what you can to help. She wants to let herself go, you're gone.

Has anyone else become more conservative over the course of their TRP journey?

59 upvotes · 16 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

TRP is inherently and unavoidably right-wing and libertarian.

While we don't, as a matter of group focus, weigh in on political issues here, we are embracing a philosophy that each person is responsible for whatever conditions they wish to see in their lives, that the world must be dealt with as it is, not as you wish it were, and that people are individuals first and foremost, and group demographics might help predict their behaviour, but it is their actions that define them.

This clashes with collectivism, globalism, authoritarianism, and socialism by its very nature. Socialists, authoritarians, and collectivists are not incapable of understanding TRP, but, having understood, they begin a journey which will inexorably, if often slowly, leads them away from socialism and authoritarianism.

Just as feminism is the application of Marxism to the family, TRP is the application of anarcho-capitalism to sex.

Plate starts denying sex

59 upvotes · 24 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

A plate is a girl that you only see for sex. If she doesn't have sex with you, don't see her.

Hello M'Lady

59 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The femmes are acting like those guys are incurable lepers, mutants of genetically inferior stock, so beneath them.

Women really, really, really, really want to believe that attractive men are born, not made.

That's how they can hate TRP while simultaneously loving the results. Because when they meet those results in the field, they believe that man was born attractive.

But we know the truth. And we don't care. Because if a land whale were to lose those 100 lbs and start looking good, we'd happily tap that. Hell, we'd tell our friends she used to be fugly. It's not a source of shame for us. We care who women are, not where they came from.

But women don't like this idea, because they want to believe that attractive men are invincible, and could never be made weak or uncertain. And if they came from that, then that certainty isn't there.

In reality, we're all human. We all have feet of clay. There, but for the grace of a god that doesn't exist, go all of us. If we want to be admirable, we have to keep working at it.

Women do not give a shit about your problems!

59 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yesterday I was having a real shit day, was exhausted, and needed to vent. Rather than talking to one of my buddies like I normally would, I tried venting to her. She promptly got disinterested and basically ignored me. Not only ignored my problem but even had little interest for me in general afterwards. She had temporarily lost attraction for the 'weak', 'whiney', 'feminine' person I was showing her.

In my experience, venting to a woman is like making a withdrawal from the opinion bank. It always reduces your balance, you can become overdrawn if you haven't been making deposits, and it's best to keep your withdrawals small. But if you are in credit, you can survive.

If I wish to vent to a woman, there are some principles I keep in mind:

- I am not sad or hurt. I am disappointed, or better yet, annoyed.
- I have a plan for fixing it. If I do not have a plan, I have a plan to make a plan.
- I will always handle it myself. I will brush off any advice she gives me.
- If I am in pain, it is never agonizing or awful. It is annoying, distracting, or "unlikely to replace baseball as the national pastime".
- Things are never bad. They only just bad enough so that I am mentioning it in passage.
- I never need a hug. Instead, she wants to give me one because she is concerned about me.

In general, women can be quite the caregivers if they feel like it's their idea, and that it is their own tender sensibilities, rather than your needs, that make them do it.

Always make sure you appear to be understating your discomforts. Always make sure that you retain your composure. And always make sure she looks more upset about your problem than you do. If she doesn't, stop.

If she ever responds to "I'll be all right" with something to the effect of "I don't want you to be just 'all right'. I want you to be happy/comfortable/etc!", then you have done it right, and can relax and enjoy some feminine care.

Women are evolved to care for people's comfort just like we are evolved to care for people's safety. But just like we have to feel like it's our idea, they have to feel like it's theirs.

A response to Roosh

59 upvotes · 13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think much of Minter or Roosh. The former is a useless hypocrite who never appeared on my radar until he did so by betraying his principles. The latter is the personification of argumentum ad AMOG, who tries to pretend to solve men's problems by teaching them how to be awesome like him, but is really trying to solve his own problems by making sure everyone thinks he's awesome.

At the end of the day, it doesn't matter to anyone but you how many women you have sex with, or how pretty they are, or how good that sex is.

I am not a voyeur. I gain no pleasure from contemplating other people's sex lives, whether they be a sybaritic fantasy or a train wreck. Every time a game-oriented writer starts crowing about how much he gets laid compared to other writers, or how MRAs don't get laid, or how so-and-so is a "paper alpha", I develop a deep and abiding sense of don't give a fuck.

If I wanted to read the writing of someone who gets laid, I'd read Hugo Schwyzer, and what the fuck good would that do me?

I want to read someone who writes things I haven't thought of before, that help me. There's not a lot who fit the bill.

Many of you don't know what "Frame" is

58 upvotes · 6 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Frame control also isn't relevant only to getting laid.

The other day I found myself in conversation with a good friend of mine, whom we shall call Matthew for the purposes of this story. He is moving, with his wife and children, to $\{\text{redstate}\}$, on account of being sick of the bullshit. While he sees this is a good move overall, he expressed fears to me that he would not find a social group for discussions of sophisticated topics that he likes, such as machine learning and so on.

I started out by telling him there are smart people everywhere, and the idea that red-staters are a bunch of hayseeds is just ignorant liberal bullshit. And while he acknowledged that I was right, operating within his frame wasn't actually producing results that he found very reassuring.

So I changed the frame. Instead of talking about "how to find X", I reframed the topic:

"Mat, " I said "tell me something. What is it you get, not intellectually, but in terms of goals and motivations, out of these types of interactions?"

I pointed out that WE, in fact, didn't talk about machine learning much... that afternoon we had mostly talked about red pill stuff, and how to cook the ideal steak. That what he was, in fact, looking for, was what he gets out of a certain type of interaction, and that before he can figure out how to get it from somewhere else, he needs to understand what it is.

Suffice to say this helped him become unstuck. His assumption that he would have to fill his needs in the exact same way he always had... had been baked into the conversation. It was part of the frame. To get him to think about other ways to live, I had to change the frame.

TIL: Cesar Millan's wife (The Dog Whisperer) filed for divorce in March 2010. She ended up receiving a single payment of $400,000, monthly spousal payment of $23,000 (that's $276,000 a year), AND $120,000 a year in monthly child support. Cesar Millan then attempted suicide.

58 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You go ahead.

But be aware that you are not a player in the game of evolution. You are only one of the pieces. So if you want to bust your ass so that a bunch of alleles can "win" a game they're not sentient enough to know they're playing, then knock yourself out. But you aren't going to win anything for it.

THE DISGUSTING DOUBLE STANDARD

57 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Gonna need a lot of strategy.

Devastated about being rejected for my height, how to forget it

57 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Stop worshipping basic bitches whose major interests are "selfies", "cute shoes", and "whatever Hollywood is doing these days".

You are a man. You have within you the power and creativity to build technologies and empires. What are you going to do with yourself?

Stop judging your value based on pussy. Pussy is a commodity like potatoes. It's important, but only when you can't get enough. A community where the man with the most potatoes is king is a bunch of starving commies. A community where the man who gets the most pussy is king is a bunch of thirsty simps.

There are women out there who don't give a shit about height. There are women out there who are under five feet tall. Do you think they are going to care that you are 10% shorter than the "male ideal", or 3.5% shorter than the average male?

You don't need to be attractive to every woman. You just need to be attractive to enough women.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

57 upvotes · 9 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it's a combination of "What, I can't just go find a special magic fairy princess like I was ordering a sandwich???" and "Mongo! Very! Strong! Mongo not have sissy feelings!" and "OMG the horrible mean bad mans said that evvil mans should control the nice womens!"

If it doesn't bother you to hear it, it's probably not truth.

Askreddit: "What subreddit do you disagree with the most?" Guess what is #1

57 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Brace yourself ...

... a wave of new subscribers is coming.

I just got butthurt via text with my oneitis.. and it worked. Can anyone explain why it worked?

56 upvotes · 22 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Over text, it sounded aloof rather than butthurt to her. You lucked out.

What All Pretty Girls and Champions Know But Can Never Tell You

56 upvotes · 2 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Good material. Pointed and pinned.

In the future, make it shorter, tighter, more focused on your thesis. People are only going to give you so much read time. One idea per article. Every sentence should explain or expand upon that idea.

Cut the autobiographical stuff to a bare minimum, and use it only when it provides an interesting narrative hook.

Your audience here is bathed in testosterone... they don't care about the speaker, only the speech.

This would have been improved by cutting out everything after

Otherwise, why the hell should a top-notch girl be interested in giving up her other options in order to be with you? It's opportunity cost. You have to be the best alternative, and with sufficient (but not excessive) availability, for the right people to wanna invest their time, energy and resources in you.

On the implications of powertalk and other language categories.

56 upvotes · 6 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Relevant links for those who haven't seen the discussion:

http://www.reddit.com/r/AlreadyRed/comments/1zmm02/four_major_languages_spoken_in_organizations/

http://www.reddit.com/r/AlreadyRed/comments/1zpofw/some_people_will_never_get_it_xpost_now_30_longer/

The Red Pill made me realize that I'm not even a Beta, but an Omega...

56 upvotes · 28 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, I'm going to lead off with something I say here very often.

- Most betas aren't weak, what they are is decent and misled.

You were told, and taught, from a very young age, to act a certain way, told it would get you what you wanted, or what you "should" want. Whatever. Turns out it didn't work. Well, your only mistake here is being gullible. When you were, like... 8.

Yes, you're supposed to be masculine. But were supposed to have a father to tell you this would be expected of you, and to teach you how to do it.

You didn't. Either he wasn't there, or he taught you nothing, or he taught you the wrong things, or he didn't protect you from other sources of really bad advice.

So, yeah, you still have a problem. Plenty of things can be your problem even if they aren't your fault. But stop kicking yourself. The world will kick you hard enough. Your job is not to help it do so, but to kick back.

[FR] God Mode Unlocked: Beating the 10 year friendzone

56 upvotes · 13 January 2012 · /r/seduction

"Well I think that is a bad idea"

That is the checkered flag right there.

If a woman says something is a bad idea, she wants to do it. Because if she didn't want to do it, she'd say she didn't want to do it.

In a broader sense, ASD is an IOI, because if she was against the idea of doing anything with a guy, she wouldn't be getting slut anxiety in the first place.

Black men of Asktrp or honestly just men in general, do you call out hyper liberal BS?

55 upvotes · 8 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

The thing to understand here is that SJWs don't give a shit about you. They don't even really think about whether your life is harder in any way, or what your experience might be like.

You aren't a person at all to them. You are a sort of talisman they can invoke to gain moral ascendancy. Thus it is highly inconvenient for them when you actually talk, especially if you express opinions which have more to do with you are as an individual, rather than your demographics.

This is why black conservatives and libertarians have their "blackness" called into question, and no one asks "what does that even mean?".

My sister took her life and my world is fucked.

55 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

That's silly. If you broke your leg and told me that you wanted to walk around the next day, without even having set the bone, I'd call you a retard.

You are injured, dumbass. Stop trying to run around, and start resting.

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

55 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Which is of course, frustrating, because I never asked for their worship. That's why I keep using this line about how, in person, I would eat their lunch and steal their girl.

I don't object to Peterson because he is a rival for the position of "cult leader"... because I don't want the job. I want young bros to stop joining cults of personality. The "great leader" they need to follow is themselves.

All the rest of us are just tossing out ideas for them to consider.

Tears

55 upvotes · 28 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We don't crave a good "rep".

We crave the power to help other, younger, less experienced men get what they want from life and be happy.

What you haven't come to believe, yet, is that women love being pets. They do not love having that fact pointed out by a stranger, or to a stranger, but if their man treats them like a pet, they love it.

Learn how to do this, and they will love you for it.

How to Recognize Crazy BEFORE You're Targeted - A Guide to Identifying the Borderline Woman. (Part I)

55 upvotes · 12 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

All of this is far too elaborate to be a good thumbnail. As a writer, you need to strive for clarity of basics over completeness.

Here's what people need to know about Borderline women:

They love you madly, until the first time you disappoint them in any way.

Then they hate you, and they will kill your pets.

Beware of any woman who idealizes you right away, and tells stories of all the horrible people who betrayed her and let her down in the past.

For school I had to create a poster on a cause we're passionate about. I did mine on domestic violence against men.

55 upvotes · 4 October 2016 · /r/MensRights

Also, the only profile you were able to find of a woman throwing a punch was one wearing boxing gloves... which are not part of your typical abusive spouse starter pack.

Kinda funny how the very absence of awareness about something makes certain ideas difficult to express, because the building blocks to make them out of don't exist.

When feminists treat men badly, it's bad for feminism - Cathy Young

55 upvotes · 11 July 2016 · /r/MensRights

Guess what, Cathy Young?

You're about to be excommunicated. That's what feminism does to its moderates. Get ready to build your hut next to Christina Hoff Summers.

Just saw this on TwoX, and had to share..

55 upvotes · 23 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Whores aren't bad people. Just bad girlfriends.

Karen Straughan (Girlwriteswhat) succinctly discusses that men don't hate women, and defends TRP. Good read!

55 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wouldn't go that route.

Karen doesn't exactly need to distance herself from us to be effective, but close association might be counterproductive.

You notice how PPD gushed at being noticed, when she showed up? She has successfully positioned herself as an important voice in this debate, and she has several assets working for her in this respect (in addition to her actual merits as a writer and speaker).

First of all, she's a woman, which renders her immune to many of the silencing tactics used against men fighting the same fight.

Secondly, and this is my real topic here, she has us. The Red Pill. What we do is present a visible scary ogre of an "extremist" faction. And this makes her, and other MRAs like her, look like the safe, sober, moderate option. We lend them legitimacy and insulate them from the charge of extremism or dangerousness.

It's sort of an unplanned good cop / bad cop routine. But the good cop can't pal around with the bad cop in full view of the suspect.

Just found out my boyfriend is using steroids. How do I put my foot down without losing him?

54 upvotes · 16 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't put your foot down.

You tell him your actual problem, which that you are nervous about him using anabolics, since you know nothing about them. Then you address the actual problem together, rather than arguing about whether he will use anabolics or not.

I'll let you guys handle the degeneracy.

54 upvotes · 15 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I think I will survive the disapproval of a twentysomething who plays make-believe for a living.

"Please no hate, I already feel so bad.."

54 upvotes · 7 April 2019 · /r/MensRights

An intact penis is a piston. A cut penis is a stick.

"I wanna be loyal"

54 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

She doesn't "want to be loyal", she's just feeling guilty right now. Raise her temperature again, and she'll cheat again.

A woman who "wants to be loyal" never would have been alone with you in the first place.

Dave Foley's Divorce (from Joe Rogan Experience #82) -- Prepare to RAGE

54 upvotes · 10 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"This is Mario. He's in for murder. He's serving 20 years."

"This is John. He's doing 10 years for armed robbery."

"This is Dave Foley. He's serving life for unpaid child support."

How many times do we have to say it?

Don't.

Get.

Married.

Empowered woman way past the wall tries to understand why she's single. Hamstering ensues.

54 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't to read the article at all. I just look at the pictures. I see pictures of a woman who looks like she's made of leather, dressed and acting like a 20 year old.

If you act like a 20 year old girl, but you no longer look like one, well... why wouldn't I just have a 20 year old girl instead of you?

Professional privilege checker

54 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Begging on the internet for money to make a video about how sexist computer games are.

Jezebel: Punch Annoying Frat Boys

54 upvotes · 7 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Soooo... the world according to Jezebel:

Punch a woman who's threatening to make herself pregnant with a discarded condom and fuck up your life: Not okay.

Punch a man for saying something rude: Okay.

But we can simplify this, I think.

Punch a woman: Not okay.

Punch a man: Okay.

Are you an insecure loser who ego lifts at the gym? Kill it with the Vince Gironda 8x8

53 upvotes · 14 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What you left out here is an explanation of what this program is intended to do.

Most people who lift seriously are not interested in going to the gym and fucking around, or in panting and sweating for the hell of it. Training is intended to produce measurable progress towards a goal over time.

So what particular adaptation is this program optimized for?

The guilt of being red pill

53 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Guilt is not a magical hotline to the One True Moral Code of the Entire Universe. It doesn't help you distinguish right from wrong, or even to determine if there are such things as right and wrong.

It's just the internalization of shit other people have told you.

Do those people have your best interests as a priority? Do they even know what those interests are?

Why Using Low N-Count To Vet Women Is Useless

53 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Her N-count is the number of times she's been dumped, bro.

What are your favorite feminine hobbies that aren't "basic"?

53 upvotes · 29 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think a better way to put this would be hobbies that aren't made up in order to sound like you have hobbies when you don't. It doesn't really matter what you are into, or even if you don't have a lot of things you are into.

What's important is being ready to try new activities and keep the ones you enjoy.

The difference between a "basic bitch", and an interesting girl isn't that the latter has a fully developed personality and lifestyle. She might not. She might be 17 years old and still figuring out who she is. What's important is that she has the openness and raw enthusiasm for life that allows her to be interested when she sees something interesting, rather than simply a consumer of passive entertainments and part-time gossip.

How I Manage My LTR

53 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

My god, the fussing, the endless fussing. You're morally outraged, and your brain is rationalizing it as an objection to "insecurity".

Sure, it's insecure. So what? Either he feels insecure or he doesn't. It's not voluntary.

And what do you do if you feel insecure? In basic fucking TRP 101 material? Do you suddenly and magically not feel it?

No, that's retarded. If you could do that, you wouldn't be insecure in the first place. No, you hide it. You fake feeling at ease until the act becomes the reality.

Which is precisely what he is doing.

Now calm your tits and go read the rest of what OP has to say.

Avoiding the Tradcon Trap

53 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

don't assume that the label of "Traditional" means to her what it does to you

You have anticipated the theme of "Avoiding the Tradcon Trap (Part Two)".

What's a good snippy comeback after a women complains about men dating younger girls?

52 upvotes · 27 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why are you hanging out with people who tear you down instead of building you up?

Peacocking still works

52 upvotes · 8 November 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Peacocking is like shit testing yourself every moment.

It will help you... but only if you have the attitude to back it up.

Woman wants to open marriage to "explore her sexuality", then gets mad if husband gets laid.

52 upvotes · 4 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Never give women what they say they want. Give them what you know they need.

I have a LTR with an amazing soft-Alpha man who wants children, but I'm on the fence.

52 upvotes · 6 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Every single one of those comments that says "removed" was talking about whether or not it's advisable to have kids early or late. If you wrote one of those, go to the back of the class, and don't raise your hand to be called on for a while.

This is not about kids and if or when to have them.

This is about how to deal with clashing expectations.

The basic RPW principle here is one of the oldest: Bring your man your problem, not your solution. No matter how many people on here tell you that having kids early is a better idea if you want them at all (it is, but opinions vary on how important this is), you'll still have the same problem: he wants kids soon, and you're afraid to.

/u/lunarmoth_, your problem isn't "when to have kids". It's "I am afraid of losing my freedom", and "I am afraid of taking on responsibility".

Bring him these problems. Talk to him about them. Be open and vulnerable. He is supposed to be the leader, give him the information he needs in order to lead well.

He may find any number of solutions... finding a way to quell your fears, making a compromise solution that splits the difference, getting a new puppy as a "dry run", freezing some fertilized eggs (can they do that now? I don't actually know.), or any number of things none of us have thought of.

But if you won't tell him what's going on with you, he can't help you deal with it. Bringing him these kinds of fears and anxieties isn't just something you get to do. It's something you have to do. It's your job.

You two need to have a conversation.

For Those Questioning The Red Pill

52 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Go tell any feminist that you don't let women stay after fucking you, and they will look at you like you beat a baby to death with a rock.

What, are we not supposed to do that now?

What am I supposed to beat babies to death with, then?

Miss Nevada suggests women learn martial arts to help prevent being raped; Feminists freak out at idea of effort and accountability

52 upvotes · 10 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you do it with your legs apart, you'll be occupying too much space.

TIL for $700, many girls in China pay for a surgery to restore their hymen before their wedding night to fake virginity so that husbands can see blood on the sheets during the honeymoon night.

52 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is kinda silly. You can tell a slut from a virgin from a girl with a few LTRs by her behaviour.

That's what matters.

Be like this girl.

52 upvotes · 6 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Clearly, this girl has something men want. And it's not just that she's young and cute and has great legs — it's how she acts that really makes the difference.

In this unexpected 30 second interaction Summer revealed her character, and showed herself to be good-spirited, good-natured, playful, genuine, attentive, kind and giving — in short, a keeper.

One of the telling things about girl game is that it induces better game in men... more confidence, more attractiveness.

Notice how by her degree of warmth and openness makes it very natural for him to get contact information so they can see each other again. Gaming someone this warm is an easy and natural process. But girl game has almost vanished from the world.

One of the reasons that modern, /r/seduction, PUA-style game is seen as creepy, pushy, or weird by many people is that it is a dance with a sleepwalker. It is one half of a duet. It reminiscent of nothing so much as the film "Weekend at Bernie's", wherein the two protagonists must prop up a corpse, fooling everyone into thinking it is alive.

The utter absence of girl game is what makes it so. When the woman becomes an active part of the flirtation and seduction process, there is a natural, organic, cooperative feel to the process, utterly distinct from the adversarial environment of the modern nightclub or other hookup venue.

The red pill is pro-rape if you take away the last eleven words from this sentence.

52 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't do this.

Don't go down this road. I can grasp what you're trying to do here, but the very act of addressing such silly accusations gives them traction they don't deserve.

To say "I am not a rapist" implies that it's a question worth talking about.

We do not run about saying "I am not a cannibal", because no one in his right mind is saying that we are. Well, no one in his right mind is saying we are rapists, either. Because to say that we are rapists is sufficient evidence that the speaker is not in his right mind.

And hence is not worth talking to, or about.

After getting with multiple 'unicorns', I've noticed that no matter what, when you get to truly know their personalities, they are literally all the same.... so how do some guys stay with an LTR for so long, don't you get bored?

51 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Would a discussion of the difference between an "example" and a "definition" qualify?

Ghosted my ex - gf and she's contacting me 4 months later for closure

51 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't give women "closure". Just leave.

Why do I crave for a girlfriend so much?

51 upvotes · 17 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

I've had a crapload of hookups during my uni years.

If you know how spin plates, and you still want a girlfriend, then it's because you actually want a girlfriend.

Advice for someone forever alone? (22yo F)

51 upvotes · 29 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The quality of the man you can get a date with is a real-world measurement of how attractive you are overall.

The reason you find these men unattractive is that you think you are more attractive than they are.

The reason you are on dates with them is that you are not.

Either become more attractive, or lower your standards.

We're here for the unhappy losers

51 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stop reading for a second and take a moment to really think about this point: These men will live their entire lives, working their asses off, then die, never knowing what it's like to have sex with somebody who actually wants them.

Should've bolded this sentence, it deserves the emphasis. This whole article is fucking gold, but that's the main point, right there.

We don't automatically deserve to be loved, to be respected, to lusted after, but we are born with the chance to earn these things. Don't ever let anyone steal your chance at them by offering you a helping of tolerance for you to settle for.

What specifically made you a MRA?

51 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Watching all my male friends get hit by the bullets I dodged.

I participated in the marriage strike. I got a vasectomy. I refused to court women by paying for their crap, or putting up with their crap. I didn't join the army. Insisted on being treated fairly. Whenever a woman hit me, I hit her back.

And I prospered. I kept my money for myself instead of giving all to a woman and whatever kids she browbeat me into having. I had sex when I wanted, with lots of different women, instead of swearing sexual fidelity to someone who would decide when I was allowed sexual release. I had a career instead of get shot in a third world shithole, and coming back a cripple to a nation that had no further use for me.

And I saw horrible things happen to the lives of any man who did what the feminists wanted. I saw them chewed up, spat out, used up, and thrown away. I saw them mistreated by girlfriends and wives, and then abandoned the instant they had nothing left to give, balls of scar tissue who would never trust a woman again.

And I got angry.

Why should I have all the threesomes? All the money? All the respect? All the hedonistic life of the fully actualized man?

I saw men grovelling, pleading, performing, pursuing, and above all, paying, for a shred of the affection women were lining up to offer me for free. I watched and listened as they took phone calls from their boyfriends, lying naked in bed next to me, suppressing a gleeful giggle at their own wickedness.

I heard men call me or my lifestyle "immoral", and in their complaints that I didn't "respect women", I heard the bill of goods that feminism sold them.

All the men I saw around me, dying inside by degrees from neglect, from overwork, from loneliness, from thwarted dreams, and sometimes even quite actually from bullets and industrial accidents... they were mostly good men. Decent men.

Their only sin was to believe what they had been told. To believe that their society's plan for them was good for them and not just society.

The quality in me that was being rewarded with independence, money, leisure time, and a surfeit of feminine lust was not intelligence, or ambition, or courage, or wisdom, or service to others. No. It was cynicism. It was my refusal to follow the plan.

I realized that our culture's plan for women helps them achieve their dreams, helps them prosper and thrive. And our society's plan for men leaves them as withered husks, sucked dry and waiting for death.

And I stayed angry.

Don't reply to trolls

51 upvotes · 15 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

I don't want them to go away. They are discrediting their own cause. Reddit is really starting to hate SRS and all their little gremlins. I want them to stay around here and discredit themselves some more.

So I propose an alternate strategy... provoke them without sinking to their level. No invective, no gutter insults, no out-of-context quotes, no false-flag ops. Just rational rhetoric while they chant "neckbeard, misogynist, wimp" over and over again.

The more we can get them to say that, the worse they look. And the more we are revealed to be adults dealing with children.

Consultation with urologist: $100. Bilateral vasectomy: $800. Never having to worry about an unplanned pregnancy: Priceless. I'm leaving for my surgery in a half hour, wish me luck. :P

51 upvotes · 3 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Good luck.

Ice your balls afterwards. That may seem like a horrible, horrible thought, but trust me, it will be blessed relief.

How to deal with letting go of an LTR, knowing she'll go straight to pound town.

50 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Why would you ask me for advice after having ignored everything I've written in the last seven years?

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

50 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If you allow politicians to break the law in an emergency, they will create emergencies in order to break the law.

After getting with multiple 'unicorns', I've noticed that no matter what, when you get to truly know their personalities, they are literally all the same.... so how do some guys stay with an LTR for so long, don't you get bored?

50 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

So, in summary, the girls you meet at bars and on tinder are not as smart as you.

"As smart as me" is a high requirement if you are smart. Male and female IQ scores tend to have about the same average, but male scores have a much higher standard deviation, meaning that the smarter the population you select for, the more that men outnumber women.

Mensa has about a three to one ratio, and if I recall correctly, once you get to the one in a million level, men outnumber women by about 300 to 1, meaning that if your IQ were around 175, you would only have around 20 female intellectual peers on the planet.

But it's not hopeless. Your IQ is not 175.

This does, however, mean that if you want to talk about "what is truth?", rather than whether the Hulk could beat up Superman, then you're going to have to meet girls in places that smart girls hang out.

Alternatively, you could do some soul searching and ask yourself why the hell you want to have philosophical conversations with women in the first place. Naturally anyone who is too much dumber than you is frustrating and boring to talk to, but it's not necessarily desirable to live in your head all the time. Women are for fun; for getting you out of your head and into your body, and your senses, and the basic experiences of life.

One of the most important things a highly intelligent person can learn is not to let the life of the mind consume you. Your cognitive ability is your servant, not your master, and while it opens greater realms of possibility to you, what course you navigate within that space is determined by emotions and desires.

To put it simply, being smart is not a personality.

It would of course frustrate me if FunSize and FanGirl weren't equipped to understand stuff I like to talk about, but they are not for teaching me things. They are for sex and tickle fights and bike rides and climbing mountains and running to the door to greet me when I've had a hard day.

So it may be that you're just meeting basic hoes because you're looking in the wrong places, or that you are still caught in the "child prodigy trap" of intellectual self-congratulation. Either way, instead of complaining about how women are, learn to regard that as the terrain, and think about how to navigate.

Did I handle this situation properly?

50 upvotes · 7 June 2020 · /r/askTRP

You did her a favour. If she found it at all embarrassing, she'll never neglect to wash again.

Are men really attracted to a woman's job?

50 upvotes · 28 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Short answer: No.

Long answer:

[illegible]

True or false: Men "should believe that good behavior is rewarding in itself and that getting respect from people is better than sex."

50 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Should" just means "I want", with a side order of "and I don't want to take responsibility for wanting it".

Sure, you can want men to be like this, or that, or the other. But they're not going to unless they want it as well.

And the ones who already want to be like that, already are. So if you want others to change, you have to offer some incentive that they are not currently being offered.

If you don't change the inputs to the equation of motivation and desire, the output will not change, either.

The Talk is Socially Retarded, Don't Do It.

50 upvotes · 22 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I wound up being 'the only woman he could ever marry' and he wound up being 'the only man I couldn't control myself around'.

THIS is the win-win situation in a nutshell... what happens when both people have strong game.

How to respond to a shit test where a chick calls you ugly?

50 upvotes · 11 May 2017 · /r/askTRP

Agree and amplify.

This is not rocket science, folks. You don't have to say anything clever, you don't have to crush her. You just have to have any response that shows you're not butthurt. Even saying nothing can work, if you do it with the right air.

Just grin, say "Yep, hideous.", and go right back to what you were doing before.

Women aren't testing the quickness of your wits... just the strength of your self-belief.

I made my mom cry.

50 upvotes · 3 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There are things that can be owed, and things that cannot.

I think it's possible, even probable, that she was a good mother, and not this emotionally manipulative most of the time. But no matter how good she was, you cannot possibly owe it to her to never disagree with her. Because that's insane.

She's going to have to learn to tolerate dissent like a big girl.

Tom Cruise gets squirted by asshole cameraman, holds frame, strong eye contact

50 upvotes · 8 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Very well handled. "This is childish thing you just did" is a very good way to get at people who attempt to drag you down to their level.

The Female Imperative

50 upvotes · 8 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Overall I think I agree.

One of the dangers inherent in learning about seduction and becoming part of the PUA culture is that one can start to regard "success" with attractive women as a measure of one's worth.

But early twentyish women are mostly silly creatures whose greatest interest is themselves, and whose strongest opinions are about fashion and what the world owes them. They are not, by and large, a useful measure of anything.

If you really want a series of ONS with attractive girls, or a set of plates to spin, by all means do pickup. But pickup is only for the service of that specific goal. It's not a measure of your value as a human being or as a man.

You have to decide for yourself what you want to do and be. Don't let hoes determine it for you.

A story: The great Red Pill paradox (or, how to completely castrate an alpha)

50 upvotes · 22 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Game isn't a horse you ride to a relationship, and then dismount.

Losing your game once you've "got the girl", are in a relationship, or even are in love... well, that makes you the male equivalent of a girl who gets married and then gains fifty pounds.

A good woman isn't one who loves you unconditionally. It's completely unfair to demand a woman's unconditional love. You don't love women unconditionally... why should they?

Instead, a good woman is one who admits she likes masculinity, expects it of you, and is willing to put effort into femininity to make it worth your while.

Why do Red Pill Content Creators appear so shady?

49 upvotes · 22 October 2020 · /r/askTRP

Some of them are shady. And fake.

Whenever you have something with real value, you're going to attract parasites who want to insert themselves between the value and your audience, in order to gatekeep it for money. There are plenty of guys out there with no real job skills, who basically try to scratch out a living by repeating for money what I wrote years ago for free. Sometimes repeating it badly, because they didn't understand it in the first place.

Dumb guys will pay the money. Smart guys will dig through the internet, and find the Book of Pook, and the Bitch Management Hierarchy, and learn about Control Game.

In the meantime, I'm not going to waste my life fighting a war with hucksters. Because that time would be better spent either on my personal goals, or in telling you guys what I learned in the course of accomplishing those personal goals, which is what TRP has been about for me all along.

So if you want a short bullshit detector, here you go:

- The BEST content is free, because it's written by people who had an idea we were burning to talk about, not bills to pay.
- The BEST content is hard to find, because those people don't have time or cargo space for advertising.
- The BEST content comes out at a snail's pace, from guys who sometimes write as little as two or three articles a year ... they have real lives outside of selling you magic soap, or hyped-up "seminars", and they talk when they have something important to say, not when they have an electric bill.
- The BEST content requires digging into the past. Guys who are burning to say something aren't burning to say it again, after two years, to a different audience.
- The BEST content sometimes comes from people who aren't writing anymore. It is natural for guys who master getting laid to move on to other things in life, and not all want to stick around forever. Not everyone who is playing the end game wants to tell you about it, because most of you are still mastering "how get laid".
- Watch out for people who are "all about the hustle". People who add value don't need to spend lots of energy marketing themselves, because others who want value, and have money, are eagerly working hard to find them.

I don't have interest in the majority of girls. Is it a problem?

49 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

I think you want a relationship.

Men who just want to hit it and quit it tend to give less fucks about personality.

The art of making men jealous

49 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

What are your thoughts on making men jealous in this way when it's obvious they're smitten with you?

It's a good tactic for getting rid of a man you're not into.

I'm on autism spectrum and I was played like a flute by a natural alpha, whats the best course of action besides suicide?

49 upvotes · 15 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

I'm on spectrum so I can't control my emotions

Wrong.

I have 163 IQ

The smartest thing you can do with this is stop telling people about it.

Be honest with yourself. You are spouting this number because you feel inferior. You have trouble functioning in daily life, so you're worried that everyone will think you're useless, so you tell them all about how smart you are.

Dumb move.

Now they think you are useless and arrogant.

This is the example of the dumb shit you do because you don't know the basic social rules that others do.

But here's the good news: Autism does not prevent you from having social skills, it just makes it difficult to learn them.

You are going to have to:

1. Make a conscious, deliberate and ongoing effort to read social skills.
2. Learn to run those skills in high-level emulation, using other bits of your brain.
3. Acquire those skills by consulting literal sources of information to supplement your observations of others.
4. Be okay with the fact that this is going to take you a much longer time than others.
5. Never use being a sperg as an excuse.
6. Once you start learning to pass, never tell anyone. Not your friends, not your date, not your girlfriend, not your fucking therapist. No good will ever come from that conversation.

Millionaire releases surveillance video of his ex-fiancee 'beating herself up' after she claimed he attacked her

49 upvotes · 29 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Always be asking paranoid questions in your own head.

Pretend to trust, but always verify on the downlow.

Immediately next on suspicious behaviour.

Hard next suddenly. Go from her not suspecting you know anything, to you are gone, in one move.

Never be alone with her again after a hard next.

This popped up on my feed "6 Things Men Will Literally Never Get"

49 upvotes · 26 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I hope she enjoys dressing her cats up for Halloween.

5 Useful Things You Learn From Video Games Applied to Dating

49 upvotes · 1 April 2013 · /r/seduction

6: If you are very successful, Anita Sarkesian will eventually come along and get paid for calling you a misogynist.

You might have taken the Red Pill if....

49 upvotes · 13 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- If you no longer feel any resentment about the way women shit test, or shun nice guys and date narcissists, because you understand it's instinctive behaviour, just like your preference for hourglass figures....
- If you're getting regular sex and the money you spend on women is equal to or less than what they spend on you...
- If you no longer regard celibate men as failures, because the vagina tingles of 18-27 year old girls are not a measure of any kind of character or value that really matters...
- If you can sum up any romance novel, romantic comedy, popular song about relationships, etc, in two sentences of technical terminology...
- If you have started mentally separating every assertion you hear into two categories, "things our culture has found out through investigation" (relativity, supply and demand, evolution, normal distributions), and "things people want you to believe" (soulmates, god, patriotism, monogamy, absolute morality)...

- If you are noticing yourself becoming more cynical and yet happier at the same time...

A feminist's view of the ideal society: "all the women would share one good-looking local stud to have babies with..."

49 upvotes · 29 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Interesting.

As usual, radfems gloss over or ignore the fact that they cannot have a civilization (or even survive) without male labour.

Ever noticed how many radfem position statements include the words "total automation"? They literally need slave robots for their utopia. And they don't have the skills to build them, either.

So they can crow all they want about males being redundant. That silence you hear is the absence of rustling.

An Upton Sinclair quote for the Manosphere

48 upvotes · 19 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

There will always, inevitably, regardless of field, be a split between amateurs and professionals. Between those who do something for the satisfaction it gives them, and those who do it as a primary source of income.

The professional has a great deal more freedom to pursue his craft, simply because he need not divide his attentions between it and whatever means he uses to earn his bread; they are one and the same.

However, he is also exposed to temptation, in proportion to the gap between that which the ideas of the discipline demand, and that which sells. And that is the temptation to favour the latter over the former.

TRP, both the reddit group and the website, is squarely in the hands of the amateurs. /u/redpillschool, /u/humansockpuppet, myself, and the other Vanguard members all have careers and investments and income streams that have nothing to do with teaching young bros to get laid.

Most of the professionals are clustered around YouTube, with some book sales thrown in for good measure. In all honesty, I don't know who most of these guys are, and every now and then, when one is brought to my attention, and I skim through his material to see what he's about... it's almost always just a rehash of my old stuff, or ArchWinger's, or HSP's, or Vasily's, or some such, simplified and condensed into easy-to-chew form.

Rollo is a little bit different. He was one of the first to move beyond pointing out that All Women are Like That, into pointing out what the hell we mean by that... describing what women are actually like. That's where the Iron Rules come in.

The problem is, I think, that complaining about women, to men in the anger phase, is so lucrative that's there's no sane financial incentive to move beyond it. People love to hear their opinions validated, and will pay for the experience. Some comedians who never said anything funny in their lives have built entire careers on this.

On second thought, however, how is that a problem? A financial comfort zone can indeed be a trap, but only from the perspective of those who have other goals. If you simply want to make money, or if you simply want other people to validate you for a modest fee, then why not? What incentive is there to fix a problem you enjoy... and how can we describe something you enjoy as a "problem" at all?

The reason that I (and the other amateurs) didn't stop at anger-phase thinking is that I had other goals. I didn't actually particularly want to be angry at women. Instead, I wanted them to treat me so well that it was impossible to be angry at them. And here I am. FunSize and FanGirl are so obedient I barely ever even have to spank them anymore, unless it's for fun.

What you do has to depend on what you want, and who you listen to has to depend on who you want to end up like. Do you want sex? Wealth? Fame? Female adoration? Revenge? A drama-free life? Excitement? Visible success so that others will envy you?

Dopamine or serotonin?

Ultimately, TRP isn't and never was a way to turn your brain off. It's not going to do your thinking for you. You still have responsibility for your life, and you still have to pick and choose who you want to listen to. Personally, I don't recommend emulating anyone you don't envy, because if you follow people, you tend to end up where they are headed.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

48 upvotes · 26 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

transphobia

I'm not really too keen on adapting the terminology of a bunch of commie losers.

But once you have escaped the commie matrix, then you also need to escape the tradcon matrix, because tradconism may praise masculinity, but all of tradcon rules actually serve feminine goals.

Think about it... lifelong monogamous relationships, no sex until marriage, man financially supports the woman and children. Whose fantasy is that? It's /r/RedPillWomen's fantasy, not ours.

Judeo-Christian values serve the feminine imperative, and anti-homosexual attitudes are part of that. Faggotry isn't harmful to us, as men, at all, whether we are faggots or not. The only losers in faggotry are women, because here is a class of men that doesn't serve women, doesn't protect women, doesn't give resources to women, and is immune to manipulation by women. And they hang around giving heterosexual men ideas, dangerous ideas like "maybe I don't have to kiss women's feet".

Faggots are lucky. They are immune to women's bullshit. But they're not hurting us. So I see no reason to go wage a crusade on them for the benefit of womankind.

Thinking of moving my plate into LTR. Looking for advice.

48 upvotes · 15 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

Your comment is stupid. You have no idea what other people's goals and preferences might be.

Low Testosterone

48 upvotes · 29 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So what?

They don't fear low T betas going postal. They welcome that. It's no threat to them, and it's a great excuse for more disarmament, more censorship, and more centralization of power.

What they fear isn't violence, it's initiative, creativity, enterprise, risk-taking, and self-reliance... the things that make people less dependent on authority figures. And what do these things come from? Testosterone.

How TRP made an immediate, and obvious difference, and converted me in one day.

48 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I said, "No, not alright, GF. I am demanding your respect. If you can't do that, then get out. The way you walk around her as though you own the place is disgusting. I may not currently be in a position to do better than you, but I would certainly be happier with you gone, than being treated like this."

Not a bad way to run dread game with low to moderate SMV.

Bitches are usually pretty good about knowing whether you can pull or not, but they have little defense against the suggestion that nothing is preferable to them. Vagina is pretty much all most of them have to offer, and if you reframe vagina as a convenience rather than a necessity...

CEO of Reddit: Ellen Pao says she "weeds out" candidates who don't embrace her priority of building a gender-balanced and multiracial team. She has also has removed salary negotiations from the hiring process because studies show "women don't fare as well as men."

48 upvotes · 6 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

Found the inexperienced software engineer.

Arch feminist Tracy Clark-Flory can't stand that Chris Pratt is getting positive attention as a sexy 'douchebag'.

48 upvotes · 6 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Many, many women cannot stand the idea of male self-improvement, because their sexual attraction behaviours are for looking for good genes.

If a man improves himself, and becomes more attractive, then either

- men with bad genes are able to fool them with lots of work or

- these men had good genes all along, which means, their tricks for identifying high-value male genetics never worked to begin with

Either thought is disturbing to them.

This is why they tell men to "just be yourself". It means "express your genetics as purely as possible, so I can easily reject you if you don't measure up".

This is why the idea of men learning game, taking steroids, etc, is so hateful to them. Because they see this as creating a "counterfeit" high-value man, which might conceivably dupe her into wasting her valuable eggs on sperm that doesn't measure up.

What they don't realize, of course, is that genetics only matter because they influence outcomes. Something that can do anything a high-value male can do, is a high-value male. If our instincts cared about the difference between a self-taught alpha and a "natural", then we'd be able to tell that difference.

A woman can be perfectly happy with an ex-beta, even if she knows he's an ex-beta.

So what is it in some women that hates ex-betas? It's their hamster. It's the part of them that refuses to admit that they are creatures of instinct like the rest of us. It's the part that wants to think that they are looking into someone's soul and seeing his quality as a person. That thinks they are better than those men who lust after smooth alabaster skin, big luminous eyes, and full, buoyant breasts.

Ex-betas tear the veil off reality, showing women that they are made of the same shallow, selfish goo as the rest of us.

"You only want me for sex" shit test & how to respond

48 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I usually respond with "And sandwiches. Don't forget the sandwiches."

This is getting a little out of hand, Kotaku

48 upvotes · 23 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

I need to see more of them, then. That was hella funny.

I don't know where else to get advice

47 upvotes · 10 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Neither of you is ready for a relationship because you're both fucking nuts.

"Technically, I didn't cheat on you because we weren't official yet!"

"Yeah, well, technically I didn't cheat on you because I didn't sleep with the girlfriend I hadn't dumped yet!"

What the fuck is this? Small claims court? A chess tournament? Law school?

Nobody gives a shit about "technically". They care about how you treat them. And both of you care how you were treated, but give not one single solitary fuck about the other person's feelings. You just argue about how you think they are obligated to behave.

Relationships are built on desire, not obligation. What you have is not a relationship, it's a very long argument.

You need to be single until you get your head out of your ass.

If a woman can't stop talking about men that hit on her, is this a possible trickle truth?

47 upvotes · 18 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

A woman who is telling you about men who hit on her is doing one or more of several things:

1. Trying to dread you, because she doesn't know that dread repels men instead of attracting them.
2. Trickle truthing you that she's a whore.
3. Trying to display preselection to you, because she doesn't know that preselection has no effect on men.
4. Trying to show loyalty by telling you about how she mate-guarded herself for you.
5. Being submissive by making a full report of anything any questionable interactions someone tries to start.

Which of these is the case is something you have to glean from context clues.

How do I introduce my dad to TRP or turn him into a better man?

47 upvotes · 11 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

You don't.

A better man is self-starting. If you introduced him to TRP, the process of how he got there would contradict the content of what he read, and no progress would be made.

Thots are getting audited for tax evasion

47 upvotes · 25 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

For those not fond of dusty books, a simple explanation of this can be made.

The master in any interaction is he who controls the language and ideological context the conversation occurs in. He who adopts the language, ideas, and values of another becomes his slave, since his very thoughts are controlled, even in his rebellion.

Thus, MRAs have made themselves slaves to feminism, because their adoption of its strategies concedes all of its major points.

When MRAs focus on men as victims in order to seek social change for relief of their victimhood, they adopt feminism's paradigm, and concede its assumption that victimhood is moral entitlement.

Families and Children

47 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

What is the point of maximizing oneself if that achievement dies with that man?

Achievement ALWAYS dies with you. Immortality is an illusion. Someday, you will die. Then sometime after, everyone who knew you will die. Then sometime after, everyone who knew of you will die, and it will be as if you never existed.

Sometime after that, the sun will go nova and swallow the earth, and then the universe itself will wind down in an irreversible entropic spiral.

If you think kids are a way out of that, you're wrong. After ten generations, your descendants will share 1/1024th of your genes, and a lot sooner than that, they will forget all about you.

Quick, tell me something about your great-grandfather other than his name. Now tell me ten things. See?

All we have is now. If you wish to sire and raise children, do so because you wish to sire and raise children. Not because you have some delusion that you can cheat the reaper.

Proof that you, as a man, are an island

47 upvotes · 30 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The wolf does not concern himself with the opinions of sheep.

Seduction in One Picture.

47 upvotes · 23 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

After seeing this and the video with an adult woman's reaction... I realized I totally suck at seduction. I know you have to have confidence, but how do I develop such teasing skills?

You're creating obstacles in your mind that aren't real.

This guy isn't displaying "mad skillz". Turkish ice cream vendors are a thing, this rigamarole is a trade routine. The point of the video isn't what, precisely, the man is doing... it's the little girl's reaction.

Little kids are honest windows into natural human behaviour because they haven't yet learned to lie, conceal, or think about what they "should" want. They just react.

The point is not the necessity for great skill at teasing. The point is to be aware that women respond to it.

You don't "suck" at seduction... you simply haven't yet been taught what you are supposed to do. Well, now you have. It's not hard because it's hard. It's only hard because you didn't know what to do.

Milo Yiannopoulos: The Sexodous, Parts 1 & 2, Reposted For Newbie Digest

47 upvotes · 19 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He's more of a charismatic powerhouse than an intellectual one, but that's what we need right now. None of this is rocket science. The problems we face as a sex are not complicated, nor do they require great minds to model and understand.

Rather, they require great wit and verve to make people pay attention.

Don't save her. She doesn't want to be saved.

47 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Whatever she says about her ex, she'll say it about you when you are her ex.

Unfortunate this is the attitude from other men.

47 upvotes · 3 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

The problem isn't people pointing out the obvious fact this teenager probably enjoyed himself.

The problem is that they don't ever acknowledge the fact that teenage girls who sleep with older men are probably enjoying themselves, too.

Girlfriend spends night in her client's hotel room, has audacity to try and flip this back onto me.

47 upvotes · 1 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And if she didn't, then "trickle escalation" applies.

Once all the truths have trickled out, the level of infidelity she's now at becomes the new baseline, and next time, additional truths will accumulate.

Ultimately, it's not important whether she sexed him or not. Because she's putting herself in a situation where it might happen. So if didn't happen this time, it will next time. And if there is no next time with this guy, there will be with another.

We all know how you seduce women. It's a gradual process of building both excitement and comfort, in some combination. And we all know that getting her drunk is a possible stage in that process. And that getting to not go home, but sleep here instead because she's tired, is a possible stage in that process. And we know where that process ends.

It doesn't matter how far along that path she is. She's walking it.

And women don't do that unless they like where the path is going. Because they know full well from step one where it's going. The graduality of the process is just about ASD. If they genuinely wouldn't consider sex with you, then they don't get in situations like this. Period.

Men not marrying? How deep does "the problem" go?

47 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

It is interesting to me that men not wanting to marry doesn't become a "problem" until it inconveniences women who want a husband.

It's almost as if our culture's definition of the word "problem" is "something that makes women unhappy".

Bus driver decks unruly passenger who was shouting and spitting in his face while he was driving. The only issue is she's a female.

47 upvotes · 13 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Hint: if you don't pick fights with people who are far stronger, faster, and tougher than you, you're less likely to get your ass kicked.

Bothered watching red pill YouTube

46 upvotes · 16 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

NO HOST ever tells guys to be careful of wasting a woman's time

...

The honourable thing for a red pill guy to do

...

A man who is red pill aware should not

This is skirting the "no moralizing" rule, but let's answer it, because we can deal with some important misconceptions.

The reason TRP exists is because men got tired of looking out for women who were only looking out for themselves.

Obviously, in any kind of functional relationship, both partners must look out for each others' needs, or else the relationship doesn't work. But this isn't a "gimme" that can just be assumed, certainly not today and possibly not ever.

Men are human beings. They are entitled, just like any human being, to prioritize their interests, and exist for their own goals rather than other people's. What this means is that you don't get to demand protectiveness from men just because you have a vagina. You have to earn that protectiveness with your behaviour towards him.

The men of TRP, and men in general, are not obligated to take care of you, any more than you were obligated to consider their feelings before you wrote this demanding and demeaning post about what you thought they "should" do.

You do not become a "red pill woman" who is entitled to men's time, effort, love, and care simply by declaring yourself so, and reading this group. If you want something from them, you have to actually act in a way that inspires it... which starts with not acting entitled.

If you want a man to willingly consider your needs, RPW is here to teach you how to inspire that. If you think you should not have to, then you would probably more comfortable somewhere else.

Schrodinger's cat is cooming in its grave #2

46 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why is anyone listening to speeches about gender equality given by a 22 year old girl whose resume consists of pretending to be a wizard?

If you listen to stupid people, you will hear stupid things.

Top toxic Female Dating Strategist inadvertently explains how they lose their pair bonding ability after riding the carousel.

46 upvotes · 26 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Let's not get sidetracked.

The problem with women pursuing ruthless dating strategies isn't that they are "toxic". The problem with women pursuing ruthless dating strategies is that ruthlessness does not work well for women.

You can see it right over there on the sidebar. Niceness, agreeableness, submissive behaviour, etc... aren't advocated here because they are "good", they are advocated here because they work.

Why? How?

Well, remember that men have two ways of "winning" at the sexual marketplace game. They can either be Casanovas or Patriarchs. They can "win" without regard to women's welfare, or "win" alongside women who are "winning" also. Some men might prefer one or the other, but either way works.

Women, on the other hand, can only "win" alongside men, because their happiness requires long-term pair bonding. Eggs are expensive, sperm is cheap, and women have instincts evolved to carefully handle their valuable eggs. They can't be happy behaving as if they were inexhaustible factories manufacturing cheap sperm... no matter how much they envy men and wish they could.

If you want a good, happy, mutually supportive, low conflict long term pair bond with someone, you cannot behave one hundred percent ruthlessly with them. And unlike women, who are attracted to a certain amount of ruthlessness mixed in with other things, men are just plain repelled by it in all but the tiniest amounts.

Sure, you can be like this and still catch a dick. But any woman can catch a dick. Catching a dick is the easy part. The trick is to run it to the end zone without fumbling it.

The important thing to realize, then, is that the red pill does not demand women be more prosocial and altruistic for the benefit of others. It instead recommends that they do so entirely for their own benefit. And alternatives like this are to be avoided not because they are "morally bad" (who cares?), but because they are ineffective.

the meaning behind "Broken goods"

46 upvotes · 3 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You're a good writer and a clear thinker, but you're falling short of the mark... because you're not yet politically incorrect and misogynist enough.

The truth is that women do not give a shit about consent. Not in sex, not in life, not in anything. What they care about is having a positive experience. They are willing, able, and happy to be literal slaves so long as their daily lives are comfortable and happy.

(This is why women will vote for socialists and other types of authoritarian. They don't care about freedom, they don't want freedom, and they don't understand why anyone else does.)

So if women don't care about consent, or freedom, why does rape bother them?

Because they DO care about male sex-worthiness. They are instinctively programmed to vet men for sex-worthiness. It is more or less the entire function of all their mating behaviours.

The trauma of rape, for a woman, isn't violation of autonomy. It's having her vetting process bypassed. It's having sex with a male she sees as unsexworthy.

This explains how the same woman who masturbates in secret to rape porn will hamster consensual sex with a loser into "regret rape". There is no contradiction. Her litmus test isn't consent at all, it's sex-worthiness.

This is why some men get away with rape all the time, and others get locked in a box for years over a drunken mutual hookup.

So, what do men need to do about this?

Well, the answer "don't rape" is retarded. It doesn't protect you. It's not what women care about, and it's not what they will target you for. The real answer is...

Don't have sex with a woman if she doesn't see you as sex-worthy. Don't be that thirsty bitch who begs for it. Use alcohol to socially lubricate her so you can create attraction, not to overcome ASD. Don't "push through" LMR... use a freeze-out. If she doesn't immediately try to pull you back, then she doesn't see you as sex-worthy, and you weren't going to get sex anything.

TRP isn't about getting sex. It's about getting sexual enthusiasm. Let's face it... there's only so much sex you can have. What you really want isn't just for her to take your dick... it's for her to beg for it. It's for her to sneak out her boyfriend's window in the middle of the night to have you shove it inside her. It's to buy her own plane ticket from Florida to California so she can suck it. It's for her to steal tshirts from your laundry basket so she can smell you when you're not around.

Don't make her "consent". Make her worship you. Then she'll never think the word "consent" again. Hell, if I drag FunSize or FanGirl or Tinkerbelle to my bedroom by the hair for some Mandatory Intimacy Time™, do you think they would call it "rape"?

Ha.

They call it "Saturday".

"I wanna be loyal"

46 upvotes · 20 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

I know I have to tread carefully.

No, you absolutely do not.

She's just a ho. It doesn't matter if she ends up swallowing your semen or not. There are lots of hoes out there.

Do whatever the fuck technique you feel like testing. If she gobbles your cock, great. If she pushes you away, agree to "just be friends", then never answer her texts again.

Or if you just want some lulz, respond to with:

this after I fingered you?

... then when she responds with some excuse, thereby acknowledging that it happened, send a screenshot of the whole thing to her boyfriend, and THEN next her, while giggling like a schoolgirl.

Hoes are worthless and interchangeable. Do whatever you feel like doing with them.

Why do I feel like women are terrible pieces of shit?

46 upvotes · 11 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Because you are expecting them to be men.

Women make really terrible men.

What makes men more extreme?

46 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's worth remembering that "pickup" is not masculinity, or confidence, or courage, or strength.

It's just "what to do say to vapid 20something girls who like appletinis and cute shoes".

Once someone gets really good at that, they can get laid more than tile floor, but that imbues them with no special abilities beyond that one specific thing. It is narrow, specific, situational confidence.

Would you want Tyler from RSD to have your back in a street brawl? Would you put Neil Strauss in charge of an infantry battalion? Would you climb Mt. Everest with Roosh V? Of course not.

What these men have to sell is pickup seminars and books. If men's needs are deeper or broader than that, they have nothing, because that's not a test they studied for.

For the answer to that, you have to turn to TRP, or something like it. Because TRP is community of men discussing and working on all the things that men need to work on.

Not just getting laid. Getting paid. Getting independence. Getting bros who will have your back. Getting respect. Getting happiness. And so much more. There's lots of shit men need that we haven't covered yet, but we will. Because we're not one guy. Not one thing. Not one voice. Not a guru and not a brand.

We're a tribe. Many voices. Men helping each other. We're adding more ECs all the time, each with something a little different to say.

No one of us is as strong as all of us. If there's one real secret of masculinity, that's it. Men work together to get shit done. We multiply our strength by creating a tribe. Sure, we're each gonna do our own thing. GLO gonna sell bro-threads. IllimitableMan gonna have his column site. I might monetize someday, if I ever find myself idle enough. But we take from the community, and give back to it. Our own things prosper because we participate in "our thing", too.

TRP isn't a democracy, it isn't ruled by everyone here, but it is for the benefit of everyone here.

If this "societal misandry" thing is going to be cracked, it won't be by some guy selling seminars and putting his name on everything. It will be by a bunch of bros who work together and have each others' backs.

Do all women really feel this way?

46 upvotes · 23 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

"If no woman in your life has ever talked to you about how she lives her life with an undercurrent of fear of men, consider the possibility that it may be because she sees you as one of those men she cannot really trust."

"If no white person in your life in your life has ever talked to you about how they live their life with an undercurrent of fear of black people, consider the possibility that it may be because they see you as one of those black people they cannot really trust."

Her Friends, Your Enemies

45 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/VasiliyZaitzev is spot on as usual.

Girls' friendships are typically more numerous than men's, but utterly lacking in any of the qualities that men would consider as defining "friendship" at all, such as loyalty or a genuine interest in each others' welfare.

Now, as a fun exercise for the reader, you can certainly come up with ways that Young Vas could have handled these two girls better.

But if you have to run interference on cock-blocking friends, then that girl is probably not relationship material. Cunts hang out with other cunts. Good LTR girls will often have very few or even no female friends, because they cannot stand cunts.

Why get into an LTR?

45 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Aaaaaaaaaaaaaaand we have now found someone who gets it. Please hang around and instruct your slower brethren.

Don't Get Fucked By Black Jesus

45 upvotes · 1 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This one is gonna go right over everyone's heads, because they are stupid.

Black Jesus, like White Jesus before him, constitutes an admission that Jesus isn't real.

Because if you have Black Jesus and White Jesus, Short Jesus and Tall Jesus, Thin Jesus and Fat Jesus and Bodybuilder Jesus, Gay Jesus and Female Jesus and Tranny Jesus, then you're changing Jesus to suit the audience.

Facts which can be changed to suit the audience are called "lies".

If Jesus was real, then he had a height and a weight, a hair colour and an eye colour and a skin colour, and, more importantly, some shit he said and other shit he didn't say. If you believe in Jesus, then you might not know exactly what he said, you might have to take your best guess about him, but if you just make up shit to suit you, then you've just admitted you're lying and you don't really believe.

Which means even the Pastafarians are more serious than you, because at least they acknowledge that the Flying Spaghetti Monster is a metaphor.

Badly alpha widowed. What can I do?

45 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Well it was actually a break-up but I intended to get back with him.

You played stupid games. You won stupid prizes.

"Women write better code, study suggests". - BBC report on UNPUBLISHED and NON-PEER REVIEWED study suggesting female inherent superiority...

45 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

As someone who codes for a living, I will expand on this:

No one has ever found an objective way to measure code quality. Personally, I suspect no one ever will.

In our current understanding, quality code is like pornography... you can't define it, you can only know it when you see it.

Me and my alpha mates system for weeding out a "Bad Seed" for a LTR

45 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Wrong.

All wrong.

Let's start with an example so you can see:

If she never picks up the bill - We both ended relationships/plates over this. My one was a plate, his was his gf of 2 years. They always expected you to pay. You don't want that in a partner. You'll always be "paying" and the biggest price will be in the courtroom when she divorces your ass.

You don't wait for her to volunteer to pay. You tell her it's her turn to pay.

Because there are no good or bad women. Women do what they are told to. There are only women who obey men, and women who obey the herd of other women.

If she is obedient to men, you earn her trust in you personally, then you train her to do what you want. If she is obedient to other women, you leave a trail of smoking footprints in the other direction.

Women who do the right thing all by themselves, without being told to, are called "unicorns". Because they do not fucking exist.

"I Was Raped" The "Documentary" Has Been Released, "THE HUNTING GROUND".

45 upvotes · 25 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely.

Women don't care about consent, they care about tingles. If we watch the narrative, we can see the word "consent" being replaced with the word "want".

Thus, when a woman accidentally fucks an unattractive man, or otherwise has sex she isn't happy about, it's rape because she was "pressured" or "drunk" or brainwashed or something. But when she loves it, it's just sexy, sexy "ravishment" or "rough sex", and no complaint is raised, so no one ever examines if consent was given or not.

A Guide To Being Ugly

45 upvotes · 27 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is interesting, and possibly useful, but it would also be easy for readers to take and twist into an excuse for not working on their weaknesses. And I would rather avoid leftoid concepts like "self-esteem".

I would instead say "Play to your strengths, correct your weaknesses, focus your efforts in the area of greatest marginal utility".

The Problem that has No Name: Feminism has been worse on women.

45 upvotes · 23 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Despite the apparent advantages conferred to women in the current social arrangement, they're miserable.

Feminism has given women power, not happiness.

The mistake feminists made was to assume the two were the same. They assumed that if only they had enough control over their own lives, they would be happy. When this failed to manifest, they believed it was because they didn't have enough control.

Eventually, gradually, almost invisibly, the control they sought passed the boundaries of their own lives, and became control over the lives of others, as those others had to be pressed into service to support an ever-increasing array of "choices" that women "should" have... because, surely, this one last thing would make them happy at last.

It never did.

Happiness, pleasure, power, and control may be related, but they are all different. And one thing any student of pickup knows is that women are terrible at knowing what they want.

My bitter taste of the Red Pill

45 upvotes · 5 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

How is this evil?

She chose to have a child without being married. She chose to break up with that child's father. She chose a life path which left her without high-demand skills. Then, when you stood up to her, she chose to blow you.

Refusing to stand between someone and the consequences of their choices does not equal coercion.

Refusing to stand between someone and the consequences of their choices does not equal aggression.

Refusing to stand between someone and the consequences of their choices does not equal oppression.

A gift repeatedly given does not become an obligation. You chose to support her unproductive ass, now you're choosing not to. Your call.

You are thinking of this as treating a woman like shit because you are used to your culture's expectations that you must constantly sacrifice yourself, your needs, your feelings, your dreams, your ambitions, in order to just give women stuff. Think about it. We suggest that women might have to, in some circumstances, pay for their own damn birth control pills, and they call it a War on Women™.

But no matter how much free crap, and how much adulation, we give women, they never seem to be happy. Why not?

Because women define themselves by relationships. No amount of free rent is going to ease the pain of being with a man they cannot respect. The red pill truth is that most women need to mate up to be happy. They need to look up to their man, to see him as their superior. This is the man in the relationship almost always outearns the women. Because women don't get in relationships with a man who doesn't, or don't stay in them.

She didn't give you a blowjob so you'd let her stay. She did it because when you reasserted control over the money you earn, and the home you own, it was once again your money and home instead of "our" money and home. You became once again superior to her broke ass.

And that is not just attractive to women, it's a necessity for attraction.

Teacher Nicole Ryan hires hitman to kill ex husband and Supreme Court sets her free - husband response

45 upvotes · 22 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Not to blame the victim, but to warn possible future victims: Don't get married.

A feminist's view of the ideal society: "all the women would share one good-looking local stud to have babies with..."

45 upvotes · 29 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

A lot of that is actually true.

What they fail to understand is that "natural" is not the same as "ideal".

First of all, those "apex" males, in a hunter-gatherer society, aren't the handsomest ones. Or the most sensitive. Or the most charming. Or the most anything that women like, or think they like, or claim to like. No, they are the ones that survived. In a society where less than 50% of males survive to breed, anyone who's left is an apex male. And the women ain't exactly spoiled for choice. In fact, they're no longer the choosers at all.

Secondly, there's no such thing as an "economically self-sufficient woman". Sure, women can support themselves economically, but only in technological societies. Which have always been built and maintained by males. Sure, maybe it could theoretically be different, but women like these seem a lot more enthusiastic about talking about self-sufficiency on the (male-created) internet than they do about building a society for themselves. Set them loose in the woods at night with a knife and a book of matches, how long before they can send us an email?

Third and last, their idea of a non-patriarchal society sounds a lot like baboon or gorilla troops, or prides of lions. Which are, of course, among the most patriarchal societies on the planet. The smaller the number of males, the greater the social power the individual males wield. And apex males don't really have all that much interest in breeding with feminists.

Threatened with violence at the gym, did I lose frame or stand my ground?

44 upvotes · 4 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

If someone wants you to do something, then their goal requires your cooperation. If you don't want to do it, then your goal doesn't require their cooperation.

Therefore, all you have to do to win the confrontation and get your way is... nothing.

There is no need for arguing. Or screaming like a angry toddler. Or even discussing.

Just do what you were already doing.

The Guardian: Sahara Desert dry loins edition

44 upvotes · 19 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She very helpfully lists what he did wrong:

- He is a hard worker
- a good father
- a loving husband
- we share similar tastes
- He is no chauvinist
- and always treats me as an equal when it comes to housework and money.

Here's what to do to keep your wife passionate:

- Make her do most of the work at everything but your job
- Make her do most of the parenting
- dread game
- have your own hobbies and often ignore her to pursue them
- Be a chauvinist
- treat her like an inferior
- make her do the housework
- control the money

or, if you haven't already screwed up your life:

- don't get married, dumbass.

Are the real misogynists more successful with women than the accused misogynists?

44 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women adore a happy, cheerful misogynist and hate a bitter, angry one.

Reddit Front Page: Ronda Rousey on "Do Nothing Bitches"

44 upvotes · 31 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't make the mistake of thinking that anything you see a public figure say on video is sincere or unscripted.

Ronda Rousey is a product, marketed to an audience. She has agents who understand the demographics and tastes of that audience, and have coached her in how to play to it. Just as some women (whom she calls "do-nothing bitches") are carefully prepped to appeal to the tastes of millionaires, she is carefully prepped to appeal to her own target audience.

They are both engaging in beauty contests. The difference is the judges. One contest is judged by rich men's erections, the other is judged by audience spending.

Since female athletic contests are less impressive (and less popular) than male athletic contests, the preferred route to real money for female Olympians appears to consist of two elements, the vicarious female ego and the erect male penis. This can be a difficult line to straddle, because excessive tough-talk from a woman tends to be a boner-killer, and excessive sexual objectification tends to ruin a tough-girl image.

From what I have observed of her marketing strategy, Ronda appears to have some finesse at playing this.

Observe a publicity still typical of her. The gloves and challenging scowl are easy to spot... they impinge upon the consciousness. But unless we pay careful attention, other elements slip under the radar... the flowing, carefully styled hair, the full makeup with lip gloss (remember that makeup simulates not only the signs of health and high estrogen, but also female sexual arousal).

And she's not above dropping the scowl and flashing a smile when she knows the boys are watching.

And then there's this.

So don't be fooled. Like nearly all successful women, Ronda leverages her sex appeal to heterosexual men far more than her physical or mental capabilities. This is not evil, it is simply intelligent marketing. After all, many men surpass her in the last two categories, but in the first, not a one could ever equal her. Most of what comes out of her mouth is spin-doctoring that.

Ronda would be nothing more than an unknown olympic medalist (quick, name another female olympic judoka) if significant number of men weren't masturbating while looking at pictures of her. She knows this, accepts it, and either likes it or at least doesn't dislike it enough to stop making money off it.

New dumb feminist meme: Only sexist dinosaurs notice which women are fat. Everyone else is blind.

44 upvotes · 1 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A lot of men have a major, deep-rooted aversion to smart, funny, powerful women, especially one they wouldn't beat off to.

Wrong. Men have a deep-seated version to collaborative lying. We don't care if women are fat. We just don't want to pretend to be attracted to them if they are.

If these women really were as smart, funny, powerful, strong, and independent as they say they are, they would not need us to validate them.

So go on, be fat. You're entitled to shovel as much cake into your face as you can stand to.

But you're NOT entitled to dictate my reaction to that.

You eat what you want with your mouth, and I'll say what I want with mine.

Woman who debunks Assange as "Not a rapist, but probably a douche" has her opinion completely disregarded as male abuse.

44 upvotes · 20 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Yes, it's a good thing women were liberated, so they could say and think exactly what someone else decided they should.

Or they must be, you know, brainwashed. By men.

Ryan Gosling saves feminist from being run over. Feminist is indignant.

44 upvotes · 6 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Ludicrous.

If a woman saved my life, I wouldn't use that as an opportunity to talk about MRA issues. I'd say "thanks".

How Stripping Sparked my Conversion From BluePill to Redpill

43 upvotes · 20 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I can imagine sex work is controversial in this sub

No, it's not. RPW is tactical in nature, not moral. We take no position here on whether stripping is "bad". We just tell you that it is usually bad for your long-term happiness.

Moreover, this is not a Tradcon sub. We aren't going to tell you "depart, harlot!", or whatever. Yeah, you fucked up, but the point of this sub is advice, and the advice is for improving your current situation over what it otherwise would be, not for fruitless speculation about what you could have done.

You will never repair all the damage you did to your ability to have fulfilling relationships. But you still have to play the cards you have in your hand.

Suicidal lonely guy is frustrated by women, reaches out for help. R/AskMen decides the REAL problem is that he's a shitlord misogynist!

43 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why you don't ask for sympathy. Ever. Because the average man or woman's sympathy for a hypothetical female with an abstract problem is higher than for real you with a concrete problem.

People get sympathy according to how much they are valued. Since women have inherent, biological value to the tribe (they can have babies), they retain at least some value no matter how much of a train wreck they are. Men are only valuable to the tribe because of what they can accomplish (sperm is cheap).

If you show weakness by asking for sympathy, you will demonstrate weakness, and therefore be seen as unworthy of it. The more severe your problem, the more you will be seen as unworthy, and the less sympathy you will receive.

Here's what you do instead:

- Be awesome. That way less things will happen that make you afraid or sad.
- Ignore or suppress it. These emotions swell when dwelt upon.
- Exercise. Adrenalin flushes away tension and fear.
- Do something productive. A sense of accomplishment washes away sadness.
- Build a network of bros, male friends who have your back.

Askreddit: "What subreddit do you disagree with the most?" Guess what is #1

43 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

But every dude can tell the same story, they were a nice guy and got shit on. It's no coincidence, not by a long shot.

♂

Yep, oldest story ever told. After awhile, one has to realize that most of the stories here are variations on that.

Nice guys get shit on. People either blame themselves forever, blame others forever, or eventually wise up and just STOP.

HuffPost strikes again.. "How to date a feminist".

43 upvotes · 21 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

People who have open minds don't tell you they do, because it never occurs to them that there's another way they could be.

People who are classy don't worry about whether they're being classy or not... that's one of the things that makes them classy.

People who say that they hate drama have been around a lot of it... otherwise drama wouldn't be in their minds as a common problem for them to hate.

A response to Roosh

43 upvotes · 13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the problem with guys whose social skills are so good that they start making a living off of them... it overrides their incentive to tell the truth.

Once someone becomes skilled enough at persuasion/manipulation/game, those skills become inaccessible to others as a source of learning, because that man becomes like Anasurimbor Kellhus... a man who cannot speak honestly, because in every conversation, he sees exactly what he must say to get what he wants, and it is only ever the same as the truth by rare coincidence.

That's where a lot of these pickup gurus are at... they do not so much teach their customers how to run game, as simply run game on their customers. Watch a Real Social Dynamics seminar video if you want to see what I am talking about.

Hell, even Hugo Schwyzer seems to have been very like some types of PUA. He told women what they wanted to hear, and acted totally different. Eventually, his strategy proved too placative, and he wound up under a bus, but we all must agree that his sex life was a good deal more red pill than what came out of his mouth.

But there is no reason to listen to someone who has too much game to be honest. If we want to be a community that helps each other grow, instead of collection of pit dogs fighting over scraps of respect, we need to learn when to drop the game, and the one-upsmanship, and learn, for once, from the female of the species... because they certainly know how to pull together and support Team Woman.

How to Sit like a Badass

43 upvotes · 5 April 2012 · /r/seduction

"You are a king" is one way to sit properly.

Mine is "you are a cat".

Drape yourself over that furniture. Lounge. Put your feet up on things. Sit on things in ways they weren't meant to be sat on. Expand and fill up space. Most importantly, break all the unwritten rules about how furniture is supposed to be used (Except the one about not peeing on it. Follow that one.).

Really nice rejection.

43 upvotes · 10 December 2011 · /r/seduction

Here's a little key to the male psyche:

Express the difference between "want" and "willing". Men aren't hurt or offended by not getting what they want. They are hurt or offended by being judged as undesirable or unworthy.

You see, women are seen by our culture as worthy or loveable simply because of who they are. Men are not seen that way until they do something. Men must earn their humanity.

The reason rejection cuts men so deeply, then, is not that they won't get their way, but that it amounts to a judgement of them as "not good enough". In our modern atmosphere of equality, this gets worse, because it becomes a judgement that she is "out of his league" or "worth more" than him... insulting.

Too often, women's ASD takes the form of "I don't want you"/"I don't like you"/"I'm not interested", which plays into this.

If instead, you express the difference between "want" and "willing", you avoid this.

"You're attractive, but I'm happy in my relationship."

"I'd love to talk to you, but my dad's standing right over there and it would just be awkward."

"Yes, I'm as turned on as you are, but I'm a saving-it-for-marriage-christian, and I'd feel horribly guilty afterwards."

Guys fully understand not doing everything you feel the momentary urge to. They realize that sometimes the situation just doesn't flow. It's like that for them, sometimes, too.

But if you aren't about what's going on with you, they will almost always assume the worst. You can never spare a man's feelings by withholding information. He'll always feel worse than if you told him.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

42 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I've seen shit like this before. (I have zero interest in chicks who aren't going to be my obedient little slave.)

It's a common problem with women who are both extremely submissive and somewhat modest or shy.

They urgently want to be dominated and "mistreated", but they don't want to say so, because then they don't get to be the "victim". So they drop hints, come up with plausibly deniable excuses for what they want, etc.

The blowjob thing is more uncharacteristic, but I've met women who saw it as being in control of the action, rather than an act of servitude.

In any case, there's no point in us discussing this to death, because the empirical test I suggested is readily available. OP can just try it and see what happens.

On a side note, if I'm right, OP has had some singular good fortune by stumbling into something it usually takes work to get. There are few things better than a girlfriend or wife with a fetish for being cucked.

Is a zero N count desirable?

42 upvotes · 9 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This discussion has been rehashed many, many times.

There are those that say you should, at all times, demand that the man assume all of the risk, because then you have less risk. And there are those that roll their eyes and say, "do you want to be with any man who would go for that deal?".

There's no point in rehashing this debate. It's basically submissive women (who believe in male-led relationships) vs. tradcons (who believe that both men and women should be submissive to a fixed set of rules). The tradcon viewpoint was the ruling paradigm for a long time, until the feminist movement came along and kicked its butt, by recruiting male help using the largely unfulfilled promise of a bit of hairy free-love snatch.

Today, we live in slutworld.

Like it or deplore it, you must compete with women who offer sex. And you have the choice to either not offer sex, and hope that whatever else you bring to the table is enough, or offer it, and hope that you don't fail repeatedly to the point where you end up being indistinguishable from the sluts.

UPDATE: Me (22/F) and my bf (31/M) broke up due to my past affair with his married best friend

42 upvotes · 9 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

How can I shift my mind into accepting this and being okay?

You don't.

You played stupid games, you won stupid prizes. Of course you are miserable now. That's what misery is for... preventing you from doing stupid stuff.

The only thing you can do at this point is plead guilty and throw yourself on the mercy of the court. I recommend grovelling.

A woman's Thinking in a Word: Sequential.

42 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman is unable to be in one emotional state and imagine herself in another.

Therefore, to her, how she feels now is how she always felt.

- If she is angry at you, then she never loved you, and she faked every orgasm.
- If she is happy with you, then she didn't really mean all those dishes she threw at your head.
- If she is happy, the world is wonderful, and everyone with a problem is just a whiner.
- If she is sad, her life is a mess, she's ugly, and she's going to die alone.

Never attempt to reason her out of any silly idea she has in this way. Simply change her emotional state, and she will abandon it herself.

Bernie Sanders accused of Misogyny for suggesting police involvement in college rape cases. PPD, what are your thoughts on this?

42 upvotes · 14 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I take it as further evidence that no man can ever be enough of an emasculated SJW doormat to escape castigation by his feminist masters.

Feminism isn't so much a coherent movement as it is a rhetorical toolkit for policing male behaviour.

The more feminist a man is, the more vulnerable he is to this kind of manipulation. And the more prominent he is, the more tempting a target he makes.

And the more vulnerable he to manipulation, the more women subconsciously hate him for being weak and unmasculine.

Bernie Sander is correct on this issue, but he would be a disaster as president, because he has no cojones. You cannot trust cowards, because they are loyal only to whoever bullied them last.

The Reaction Of Feminists To A Male Rape Victim

42 upvotes · 29 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Then stop telling us that, and start telling them.

The reason we have to say things like this is that you refuse to police yourselves. People like you never seem to disavow people like them until people like us notice them.

It's like you're not against them for being horrible... you're just against them for embarrassing the sisterhood.

That's the thing. Feminists can laugh on national television about men getting castrated, they can call for reducing the male population to 10% of the human race, they can idolize Lorena Bobbit as heroine, they can declare that women are the primary victims of war because their male relatives are dead, they can get the Duluth Model incorporated into law, they can declare that being drafted and sent to get shot at in Vietnam is a privilege, they can say... anything.

So I have to conclude that feminists like you are either disingenuous or completely ineffective. You are not the voice of the ideology. They are. And you are standing up and being counted as one of them when you describe yourself with that word.

So, no, you don't get a pass on this one. You are responsible for the consequences of your actions, not just your intent.

"Open Letter to Bearded Hipsters" being shared by girls on my Facebook

42 upvotes · 27 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Attention fat girls, you are ruining my large-breast fetish.

"Logical fallacies are man-centric mumbo jumbo" - couldn't make this stuff up if I tried.

42 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Powertalk again.

They don't actually believe that "whoever asks, pays" is different from "the man pays". They just want plausible deniability.

Remember, lads, whenever a woman says some stupid bullshit like this, it's typically not because she's stupid. Women aren't stupid. Quite the contrary... they are very smart about using the appearance of stupidity to their social advantage.

They know your argument makes sense. But they do not care. What they want is to win, and get their way. Free meals and equal opportunity. Equality and government subsidies. Women care about consensus, not abstract notions of right and wrong, accurate and inaccurate. These things don't impact their lives. What other people think, especially what other women think, is what impacts her life.

Never try to convince an arguing woman of anything using reason. She already knows. She already understands the logic. She just doesn't care.

Instead, you must convince her that others do not agree with her, and that she's going to be publicly humiliated if she sticks to her petition. All the evidence in the world does not carry the same weight with her as two other people in the conversation who agree with you.

Only use reason if you are really trying to convince the people listening, instead of her.

I just realized that in the 17 years that I've been sexually active, not one woman respected my wishes when I declined sex.

42 upvotes · 21 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Of course. When they say "Consent is sexy" they mean their consent. Ours, they take for granted.

A Must Read To Get Real Success...

42 upvotes · 30 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Holy textwall, batman!

Insert some paragraph breaks, for the sake of our eyes.

lets see how feminists survive a day without men.

41 upvotes · 3 October 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Men only need women at the beginning of their lives, before puberty. After that, they merely want women.

Women need men throughout their lives, but men have collectively done such a good job of taking care of women that women often don't realize that men are, in fact, taking care of them every day, just as any job done perfectly tends to become invisible.

I find FDS fascinating and read it regularly. It's a very useful source of insight on certain types of psychological malfunctions that women can have. The typical FDS reader is absolutely terrified of men. Attempting to control the object of one's fear is an entirely rational response to fear, even if that fear itself is irrational.

An Upton Sinclair quote for the Manosphere

41 upvotes · 19 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I think you are onto something here... I can't count the times and ways that I have been, in effect, offered the crown. I've always refused it, because one of my most important points all along has been no gods, no kings, no masters. Kneel to no one, and only do what is asked of you if someone convinces you in it's in your interest as well as theirs, or offers you a big fat bribe to make sure it is.

The truth is that the vast majority of the human race, especially women, but also most men, simply don't want freedom. The risk and responsibility that come with it are too scary. They want a simple path laid out for them, by Mr. Authority Figure, that's going to lead to plenitude and happiness.

This is why it's so easy to yell at betas and insult them and call them all a bunch of fat losers... until they see you as daddy and start trying to please you. Which can get them lifting and whatnot, but ultimately they are as exploitable as they ever were. It's still the blue pill.

It's a lot harder to get people to see that there is no plan except the one they make. That society hasn't failed them, because making sure they were okay was never society's job in the first place.

Society is a junkyard, not an incubator. You can build really cool stuff in it, and it can help you in all sorts of ways, but it's not going to go that on its own. You have to do your own navigation.

There's some percentage of people who hang around here that want society to be an incubator... who want to be politically active to resurrect the corpse of fascism, or communism, or christian theocracy, or whatever, because they really want to be taken care of. But incubators are for babies, and at some point, it's time to grow up.

So, no, Rollo isn't daddy. He teaches you the problem but not solution. He teaches you how to be angry, which you need in order to stand up for yourself, but he doesn't teach you what to do with that anger. But he has no obligation to. If how women are shit is what he wants to write about, if that's what fires his imagination, then no one gets to tell him he can't write about that.

If you need to know what's next, then find someone else who will tell you that. I can tell dudes all about how women make great pets. I'm not angry at women any more. I only ever was because I expected them to be something they never were. And that's not on them at all. It's on the people who told me lies, and on me for believing them.

There's a reason I hang out in RPW and spend a lot of time and effort helping women who are never gonna suck my dick (nor would I want them to). Because ultimately, regardless of what you think of them, women aren't going anywhere, and they aren't going to be replaced by sex robots. You can either be mad at them forever, or you can learn how to get happiness out of what they are, instead of what they are not.

And I've chosen to go learn what I need to know by pulling knowledge from the universe, instead of waiting for someone to spoon feed it to me. And I'll share what I learn, but sooner or later, every man needs to take that last step and become his own teacher.

The moment that I realized that HSP had stopped being like a son to me, and started to be my brother, was one of the proudest and happiest of my life.

Truth

41 upvotes · 5 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not amazing at all.

The world isn't divided into nerds who are good at some things, jocks who are good at others, etc.

It's divided into talented people who are good at most everything they work hard at (but they have to choose), less talented people who are good at one or two things, and losers.

Here is Steve Wozniak as a young man.

Here is who Hollywood picked to play Steve Wozniak as a young man.

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

41 upvotes · 29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Misogyny used to mean hatred of women. Now it means anything that some woman hates.

Just discovered my fiance has a very promiscuous past and I have thoughts of ending it. Am I being too rash?

41 upvotes · 30 March 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why the fuck are you even asking?

If you are getting married at all, then you don't fucking listen to what we have to say.

So, here's what you will do.

- You will read a whole bunch of comments telling you not to do it.
- Then you will do it.
- Then she will cheat on you, not with a super alpha, but with some twaker with a mullet and a service job.
- And you will write us another post asking for advice you won't take.

"A new book answers why it's so hard for educated women to find dates" - Hidden RP Gold

41 upvotes · 27 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I would pick Adele over, say, Amy Schumer.

"None of the above" is always an option, you know.

Empowerment or Oppression? Depends on your Gender.

41 upvotes · 24 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

The man is expressing himself using someone else's body.

The woman expresses herself using someone else's attention. Sexuality is fundamentally interactive. Deal with it.

Not that that offends me at all

It doesn't matter what does or does not offend you.

NY Mag Article: "Feminist" Men Should be Okay with Wives Having Sex with Others

41 upvotes · 17 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

This is feminism's endgame.

Destruction of the family unit. Abolition of fatherhood.

Children are now the property of their mothers, and men are now excluded from family life except as house servants or ATMs, on whatever terms the mother decides. The role of the father is replaced by the state, whose role is to replace the financial and physical safety mechanism that fathers once provided. It does so by forcing all men, collectively, to provide these things for all mothers and children.

The only flaw in this strategy is that, while the state can coerce any man, it cannot coerce all men.

Feminists take men for granted and fail to realize that, pushed hard enough, men will go on strike. MGTOW and TRP are the first wave of this.

Feminists Don't Actually Give a Fuck About Women

41 upvotes · 20 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists and SJWs aren't normal women. They don't look like normal women, they don't think like normal women, and they don't communicate the way normal women do. Because of their abnormality they can't function in society in the same way that normal women can. They can't hold down a job. They can't have a normal healthy relationship. They can't enjoy a movie. This makes them jealous and deeply resentful of normal women.

This needs some expansion.

Feminists are inadequate women, because they are unable to do the things it is important for women to do:

- Look attractive in order to attract male attention.
- Be sweet, pleasant, and empathetic in order to attract male love.
- Be loyal, affectionate, and and a good prospective mother in order to attract male commitment and resources.
- Have social graces and insight which allows them to help create a happy, harmonious social circle and community.

Healthy, well-adjusted women who can do these things don't need feminism, because feminism is, at its core, an attempt by inadequate, broken women to remove the necessity of doing anything they cannot or will not do.

- They cannot make themselves attractive, so they demand "fat acceptance".
- They cannot act pleasant to those around them, so they demand we "ban bossy".
- They cannot be loyal, affectionate, or giving, so they denigrate motherhood, and demand we stop "slut shaming".
- They cannot get along and play well with others, so they demand we respect their bullshit "careers" they chose to have instead.

And yet healthy women often swell the ranks that feminism lays claim to, because, being NOT bitter, NOT resentful, NOT full of hate, they have trouble seeing or imagining how feminists are. They hear the rhetoric, pay some casual attention, take it as face value, and embrace "feminism-lite". "Gee, free birth control pills would be nice." "It would be nice if people weren't mean to fat girls", and so on.

The feminists-lite don't really mean badly, they are just naive. They fail to understand that feminism is an attempt to abolish femininity and feminine virtue, by those who have none. It is an attempt to drag the healthy women down to the level of the freaks.

Quick recommendations for building an aesthetic male body

41 upvotes · 6 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That picture doesn't look exceptional because you grew surrounded by pictures of guys who were using lots of steroids.

You are distinguishing "the steroid look" from the "non steroid look" by looking for the type of striation and obvious vascularity we see in your picture.

But this is actually the "moderate steroid look" vs "the extreme steroid look". You won't see modern pictures of the non-steroid look. Why? Because no one considers it worth pointing a camera at, anymore.

What does it look like?

It looks like this: http://ecx.images-amazon.com/images/I/51tkxb4LzcL._SX342_.jpg

That's Peter Lupus. He was born in 1932, and he took a lot of "vitamins and suppliments", but no Trenbolone, because it wasn't available.

That picture is what you will look like if you work your tail off for most of your life "natty". That's why gear users laugh their asses off when pictures like this:

<http://i1099.photobucket.com/albums/g386/zinapapag/kenyattaw3fx9.jpg> pop up on a GIS for "natural bodybuilder".

Bitch, I can tell just by looking at you that this is a fuckin' lie. You know why? Because NOBODY looked like that before the 70s. You expect you to believe that forty years ago men suddenly got a whole lot more talented at lifting heavy shit? I do not fucking think so.

And testing clean means nothing. It just means you found a way to beat the test (and there are designer steroids like "the cream" that do just that), or you simply aren't using right now.

I had one bodybuilder try to tell me he was "all natural" and the guy had stretch marks on his fucking biceps. Bitch, don't insult my intelligence.

Bodybuilders lie about steroids the way women lie about their partner counts. But if you wanna look like GLO, you better be prepared to take not just test-c, but tren and probably some deca and masteron as well. Stay the fuck away from DNP or insulin, though.

A Woman's Perspective on Getting a Blowjob

41 upvotes · 25 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before, I'll say it again.

Men want to be treated awesomely by someone good enough. Women want to be treated well enough by someone awesome.

Supplication to a woman does her no favours.

Cuckolding other guys' gfs/wives is fine. Sexual strategy is amoral. (Don't be a Bro Knight)

41 upvotes · 14 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

TRP is a context for modern discourse. We are concerned with "is", not "ought".

"Bang other dudes' wives" vs "don't" vs "do, but tell him afterwards" is a moral question... which means it's offtopic. Not that it isn't an interesting or even an important question.

It's just not TRP's job to answer it.

failed at sex, damage control

41 upvotes · 4 September 2011 · /r/seduction

However, when it finally came down to having sex my dick let me down

Might be the drinking. But sometimes it can also be "wise dick"... where your penis says "hey, dude, you don't want to do this".

Low testosterone?

40 upvotes · 30 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

There is no sense in arguing or speculating about that which can be resolved by experiment. If you are concerned about your testosterone levels, have your blood tested.

Abortion can be our business too

40 upvotes · 27 November 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

If something affects you, it's your business.

Why get into an LTR?

40 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Good. You get it. At least some of it.

The next step is to realize that, if you have enough of her respect, you can influence how she sees you and the world, and thus retain that respect.

Women can be controlled. Arguably, they are evolved for that very thing.

If you're not willing to take charge, whether from indolence, fear, or inability, then, yes, relationships have a shelf life. If you are, not this may not be so true.

With women we don't know very well, we play the indifference game. This shows strength, and abundance, and self-control. But when one is clearly invested (in an LTR), a pretense of indifference is a display of weakness, and will be treated as such.

If you don't take charge, your relationships will not last.

Is there a new wave of RP guys on here who are taking things a bit differently?

40 upvotes · 30 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Many of the dudes would talk about how they learned frame and now live the Dan Blitzerian life and the champagne and pussy squirts were flowing wherever they are.

It's important to learn the core skills that can make that happen, but it's also good to realize that this is not necessarily what every man is going to want to do with those skills. TRP is for giving you knowledge that empowers you and gives you options, not for telling you how to live.

Oh, sure, we tell you not to be a doormat, but that's just because we know damn well you don't want to be.

What happiness looks like varies from man to man, and changes with age. I'm closer to fifty than forty, and picking up strange chicks in bars just isn't my idea of a good time anymore. But the same set of skills, knowledge, and understanding allows me to keep my two live-in girlfriends slavishly devoted to me, as well as allowing me to have the occasional fling when I see a number I like.

The more experienced I get with this stuff, the more I realize that "lift heavy things, act masculine, give zero fucks" is how you start the journey, and getting people to do that benefits from some drill instructor style yelling. But you don't make warriors with perpetual boot camp. Eventually you have to give them knowledge, instead of just motivation. And the more I see this, the more I focus my efforts on the guys who are already lifting, already masculine, and ready to learn.

It doesn't take any great insight to yell at a bunch of pencil necks until they see you as daddy and start imitating you. I'm glad we have people to do that, but I find it boring. The real unique value about TRP is insight.

Men are drawn to borderline personality traits in physically attractive women, study finds

40 upvotes · 7 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

So... go gay?

How do you respond to another guy asking your ltr to dance?

40 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Had to nuke some very bad responses, including "fuck him up", and one dude who posted "Take her, she ain't mine", because apparently Chad allows him to have internet access from the Shed.

The real answer is that LTRs are expected to mate guard themselves. If she doesn't, you picked the wrong girl. If someone grabs her, of course, you step in, because girls can't fight without guns. But so long as words are sufficient resistance to deal with it, make sure they are her words, not yours.

A good LTR avoids not just cheating, but the appearance of impropriety. If you ever hear her telling you "nothing happened" in a situation, then most likely she disrespected you by being in that situation in the first place, because "nothing happened" implies that it looks as if "something" might have. And we all know what sorts of things are included in "something".

So... how to achieve this? First of when you promote a girl to LTR, you are ditching your Indifference Game for Control Game. (If you're smart you did this gradually.) It's no longer just your turn, she is yours, and you better make sure she knows it.

If you think she'd never go for that, or that she would see you as "weak", then you either LTRed the wrong girl, or trained her wrong. If you think girls can never be controlled, then your pimp hand is weak. A girl can always be controlled if she is more afraid of losing you than you are of losing her.

Second, make your expectations clear. If you think that will sound weak, then you don't know how to project DGAF attitude. Any time the hypothetical idea comes up, you show no bitterness or resentment, you just make sure she knows she'd be ending the relationship, no hard feelings, good luck in the future, here's your apartment key back.

(Not telling her you would break it off with her, mind you. Just speaking with the clear idea, that, by doing anything like that, she would be breaking it off with you.)

The Thing You Really Want

40 upvotes · 9 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Contrary to what fiction seems to think, erections are not automatic with high testosterone. The penis is a barometer of whether a man is content with how things are going.

You are having this experience because you think of sex as a performance. Like you're supposed to do a "good enough job" of responding.

And that's not the case. Her orgasm is your job. Yours is her job. If you can't get it up, then she is doing a shit job at making you happy. And it probably doesn't help that you are not even expecting her to.

Where do I find quality men in the city?

40 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Be a quality woman.

You only need one, so even target-poor environments can support you if you are worthy.

LTR claims she has no sex drive

40 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

We've been dating for 9 months, and we used to have sex 3-4 times a week. Now it's been dipping to about 3 times a month.

Only see her 3 times a month. Spend your new spare time dating other women.

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillars themselves.

40 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When you have Endorsed Contributors say that women are completely incapable of empathy and useless (CisWhiteMaelstrom 2015), people from the outside are going to take it seriously, regardless of whether the guy meant it to be a "hyperbole" or not.

I don't expect people to. In fact, I expect them not to. In fact, I hope they won't.

You see, TRP is something we've played with for about two years, tuning the signal as if we were fiddling with a radio knob. And the area we're homing in on isn't "palatable". Nor "proveable". Nor "well documented". Nor "specific".

It's "Improve men's lives".

And not just any men. The ones who need it most. The incels and neckbeards and shoe-gazers.

And it works. Our trick is that we reach them at a specific time... the time when they are finally fed up enough to stop saying "I'm no good", and start saying "I've been jerked around". Then we point them in the right direction, take that anger, and channel it into useful effort.

I don't really care what the process looks like to you. It's not for you. And you're not really capable of understanding it, because you've never had, never will have, cannot possibly have, the experiences which would make you realize what the moving parts are, how they work together, and why each one is necessary.

We're a lot smarter than you realize. I know you're not going to believe that just because I say it, but that doesn't matter. This process doesn't involve you, and it requires neither your assistance nor your permission. And anything we could do to make it more palatable to you would harm the results.

In other words, we are doing this on purpose.

What did she ever do to deserve being called a woman?

40 upvotes · 15 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Adventures are heroics and heroics are self-sacrifices, and thankless self-sacrifice is the province of the slave, not the hero.

... may not have been clear enough. Here's what I meant.

The sort of adventures with which the "real men" of the past earned their spurs were undertaken, not to establish "man credits", but out of necessity for survival, or opportunity for advancement. They were trials endured to claim a real prize.

When there is no prize, the trial is no longer a forge that makes men, but simply a machine that grinds them up into mulch for the benefit of others.

Making ourselves into "real men" in a society that has nothing for real men to do, and no reward, is self-sacrifice to save a society that has demonstrated no desire to be saved.

Engaging in made-up adventures and trials of manhood that have no payoff other than bragging rights isn't going to fill that void, either. We can't simply all start jumping out of airplanes or backpacking to Costa Rica and expect it to be the same. Worth is tested, proved, and built by engaging the hardships of the world, not playing games for people rich enough not to have to work instead.

Female RAF recruits get £100,000 compensation each... because they were made to march like men

40 upvotes · 24 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I thought they could do everything a man could, backwards and in heels?

Women who can't cook

40 upvotes · 4 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"If you can't cook, how do you expect to put food in your children's bellies?"

What children? Producing the next generation of humans is oppressive, shitlord.

An open letter to single mothers.

40 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, I might edit in the idea of dating a single father. However, there are a lot less single fathers than single mothers, so this is not a realistic solution on a broader scale.

Halo 4 is banning for sexism. Thoughts?

40 upvotes · 31 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Both Ross and Wolkfill are prominent female gamers, but neither wants gender to be their defining characteristic.

Irony-resistance at its finest.

"misandry" is now officially a word in the OED

40 upvotes · 13 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Still some work to be done, though.

What do I do with a girl when I'm broke?

40 upvotes · 18 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Your biggest problem in this area isn't that you don't have money.

It's that you are down on yourself for being "an unemployed, broke college kid". You need to remember that unemployed and broke is a normal thing for college kids. A lot of the rich guys you see driving big shiny cars were unemployed and broke in college, too. (At least, it seems that way to me, because that's my story.)

College girls ain't gonna hold it against you if you're broke. You just need to demonstrate value in other ways. (Read reddit for suggestions.)

The bigger problem is that you hold it against you. It's hard as hell to be smooth when you are full of self-doubt. So do look for a job. But also, when you are scared, or doubt yourself, remember to stop being scared and be awesome instead.

Should a 'Trans-girl' let you know that she used to be a man before sex? Not according to the folk of /r/transphobiaproject.

40 upvotes · 8 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Would you fellas please explain the harm done by non-disclosure of trans status?

Because it matters to some men.

They don't have to justify it. They don't need a reason. It's a matter of personal preference, and if no means no for women, then no means no for men, too.

I cannot fathom why any woman, trans or actual, would want to have sex with a man whom she likes so little as to not have any consideration for his feelings. If you have no affection for them, why are you having sex with them?

I Will Never Be Like You Guys

39 upvotes · 22 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't be like them.

Be like you. A better, wiser version of you.

Go read the sidebar again. The words are no less true now than they were when I wrote them.

Being feminine and acting submissive is not a moral obligation. It's a way to play on man's reciprocal and protective instincts. The point of "girl game" to make men not only treat you better, but be happy to do so. If a man doesn't respond to good treatment with love and kindness, then move on to another man who will.

But don't prejudge... often the most surly-appearing men will melt if shown a little kindness, empathy, and respect.

I feel like this is necessary, as a female I'm sorry to men.

39 upvotes · 24 March 2021 · /r/MensRights

You are not responsible for fighting every evil in the world. You are only responsible for not perpetuating them.

Wife demands Open Marriage or else divorce. Husband accepts for the kids. Wife starts sleeping with a guy lined up immediately. Husband finds someone to sleep with. Wife becomes furious, demands Closed Marriage.

39 upvotes · 29 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

There are three kinds of girls who will suggest non-monogamy:

1. Girls who want strange dick, and already have one lined up, secure in the knowledge that you will have greater difficulty securing strange pussy (because while many women are down for NSA sex, fewer are willing to enter arrangements that make it clear that's what they are doing).
2. Girls who are explicitly and overtly submissive to the point where they actually want to share you with other women.
3. Girls who are bisexual or heteroflexible and want pussy (which you by nature cannot supply).

If any woman suggests anything non-monogamous, the first thing to do is decide which one you are dealing with. Then you need to decide what you want to do about that.

I personally recommend immediately dumping type #1, holding onto type #2, and establishing some ground rules for type #3, such as "neither one of us has sex with any woman we're not both having sex with", or "she doesn't have sex with any woman that you don't have sex with first".

True or false: Men "should believe that good behavior is rewarding in itself and that getting respect from people is better than sex."

39 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It works like this.

- Humans are smart.
- In order to be smart, humans must be born with giant heads.
- Because giant heads are difficult to push out of a human body, humans must be born prematurely, before their heads get even bigger.
- Because humans are born prematurely with giant heads, female humans must be evolved to deliver giant heads, and take care of extraordinarily helpless babies.
- Because female humans are optimized for pushing out giant heads, instead of running, fighting, or climbing trees, they, too, are extraordinarily helpless.
- Because female humans often have extraordinarily helpless babies in tow, they are even more extraordinarily helpless.
- Because female humans are extraordinarily helpless, they need male humans to take care of them so they can survive, just as they take care of infants.
- Because female humans need constant care from male humans to survive, just as infants need care from females, male humans need to have a protective instinct towards female humans that resembles the female protective instinct towards infants.

So, now, imagine a variety of infant that can walk, talk, steal your credit cards and max it out, etc. How badly would babies have to behave before women started refusing to care for them?

That's how badly women have to behave before men start refusing to care for them.

That's why only some men will ever reach that point. What will happen with others is that they will become unable to care for women, having been vampirically sucked dry.

Shit where I eat, majority of girls in town know me now help me own it

39 upvotes · 31 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Oh, no! I have a reputation as an attractive male who gets laid a lot! What shall I do?

LTR letting me cheat to continue relationship

39 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Glad you asked.

There are two varieties of game... indifference and control. TRP encompasses both, but we teach and emphasize "indifference" much more because control is for LTRs, and, in case you haven't noticed, our civilization isn't exactly swimming in LTR-worthy women. A major part of this is that women are not behaving in a submissive fashion.

So, when a woman submits to you, this is the desired behaviour. If you want to see more of something, you must incentivize it. The retards at the back of the class would have you punish her instead... they are projecting their fears onto her, and wish to punish her for being the source of that terror. But of course, if you punish people for doing what you want, you are working against your own interests. But, of course, the reward cannot take the form of capitulation to her whims, or other shows of weakness, because women cannot respect weak men, and cannot love or desire men they do not respect.

So how and when do you reward her?

The "how" is easy. She has already told you what she considers to be a reward.

"... and I want you in my life."

She wants your presence, your attention, your affection, and your care. You can now dole these out as rewards for good behaviour.

So when do you do this?

When she submits to your control and lives by your rules. The more she does this, the more you switch from pretending indifference, detachment, and outcome independence, to visibly investing in her, giving her affection, and considering her welfare.

For example, if you wish to train her to deal with your polygyny calmly, then give pets, praise, and affection as rewards for staying calm and well-behaved when she sees evidence of it... and withdraw these if she throws a tantrum instead. The whole reason women get jealous is that they fear the loss of your attachment. If this fear makes her try to control you, you withdraw. If she manages to suppress it, or to articulate it to you without being demanding, controlling, or aggressive, you provide affection and comfort instead. Over time, this helps you to alleviate the fear.

Your goal is not to create a beaten down, miserable wretch, but a trusting and adoring pet.

I cannot give you the details of how to do this, because they have to be tailored to your particular pet. But what's important for you is to understand the idea. You are training a dog. How do you train a dog? By associating positive feelings of affection, praise, and approval with the desired behaviour.

How do I differentiate between my hypergamous tendencies and justified lack of interest in a mate?

39 upvotes · 18 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So I couldn't respect him as a MAN. Nor did he really internalize his masculinity. I thought "well its quite amazing that someone loves me so purely and deeply, I'd be an idiot to throw that away" so the relationship persisted, until it didn't.

Hi, I'm Whisper. One of the founders of TRP, and widely denounced by limp-wristed whiners everywhere as the epitome of a terrible internet misogynist. I am NOT Captain SaveAHoe. I will not white knight you. If you fuck up, I will take sadistic glee in dressing you down for it.

I say this so you will understand the context of what I say next.

This is not on you. Your love is not, cannot be, and was never supposed to be unconditional. A woman's sexual attraction, just like a man's emotional investment, is not a choice and cannot be negotiated.

Hypergamy is not some sort of evil spirit that possesses you and makes you do bad, wicked things. It's just a word for the way that girls, seeing two 9s next to a 10, only have eyes for the 10. (While men want all three.) It is necessary for you, in your life, to temper your hypergamous instinct so you don't throw your life away chasing something you can't have, but you are not under some moral obligation to spend a lifetime pretending attraction to someone who isn't inspiring any.

Women need to steer a middle course between the two risks of chasing a man so attractive they can't get or keep him, and securing a man so unattractive they can easily keep him, but don't want to.

Best books to red pill my 14yr old daughter?

39 upvotes · 28 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the best things you can do is shield her from bad influences.

I don't recommend forbidding material outright (this only makes it more attractive to teenagers). Instead, discuss bluepill messages in material that she sees with her, with an eye towards not only refuting it, but also explaining the motivations of the authors for including such propaganda.

Most importantly, do not rely upon faith or morality as the foundation for redpill ideas. These are choices your daughter will make as she becomes an adult, and hers may not align with yours. If you present redpill ideas and behaviour as an obligation, she may rebel.

Instead, present it as a strategy, and help her understand how it benefits her personally.

I'm sure you will get some good book recommendations, but nothing is a substitute for an involved, loving, and sympathetic parent.

New boyfriend seems to have low sex drive... confused.

39 upvotes · 3 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

He seems perfectly fine having much less sex and it seems to be me that is always the one initiating sex. He is more likely to initiate if he's a little drunk, but even then not all the time. Sometimes I try not to initiate at all to see if he will and either I give up and initiate and start going down on him (which generally leads him to get turned on and then really go for it and we have great sex) or nothing happens and we just go to bed.

So either:

1. You initiate and he is super responsive and the sex is great.
2. You don't initiate and nothing happens and you feel bad.

... sounds like you have the solution to your problem already if your problem is sex. Both you and he are able to get off just fine when you start the ball rolling.

But your problem isn't sex, is it? It's feeling attractive.

You have the idea that attractive women don't initiate sex, because they are attractive enough that the men chase them. Therefore, initiating sex works just fine for your sex life, but triggers your insecurities.

You want him to initiate in order to bolster your self-image.

We have a saying here... bring your man your problem, not your solution.

Your problem is that you are insecure about your attractiveness. Your solution is for him to change how he does sex.

Ditch your solution (it was made without consulting him), but accept his help with your problem.

I suggest:

1. Work on your appearance. The idea that you can't make yourself prettier is a dirty, dirty lie, and everyone knows it. You can exercise, diet, adjust your hair, your makeup, your dress habits, etc. You will feel better about your appearance if you make improvements you can see in the mirror.
2. Solicit his opinions with #1. Ask about his tastes with the explicit intention of altering your appearance to suit his preferences. Now, instead of criticizing his performance ("You're not initiating enough! You don't make me feel pretty!"), you are sending the message that you love him and he is super important to you.
3. Talk about what he likes in bed, while avoid "why don't you...?" questions (that will sound accusatory). You may very well find out that it has nothing to do with you at all, and in fact, women making advances on him is his big turn-on.
4. Above all, focus on your real problem ("I have trouble feeling attractive without active reassurance") rather than the one possible solution you thought up ("I want him to initiate more"), because there may be plenty of others you never imagined.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

39 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

wanted me dead for not being white

This is pretty much motivates my stance on racism.

When someone disagrees with you, there's usually something they want you to do.

If it's "pull up your pants, speak proper English, get a job, obey the law, etc", that's cool. And I'm not upset about people noticing correlations between behaviour they don't like, and skin colour. Because sometimes those correlations exist.

But if what they want you to do is "die in a fire", there's no reasoning with that.

... And Don't Listen to Me Like a 'Sperg, Either.

39 upvotes · 20 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"When "science" as description of a natural cognitive process turns into "Science!" as an identity-anchoring pattern of codified conspicuous production by the insecure, you get a cargo-cult procedural prescription. Unlike science, Science! is practiced by those whose social awkwardness is caused by actual social incompetence rather than the indifference and neglect that comes from being absorbed on another front. People who need procedural scaffolding because they never actually cultivated the necessary natural instincts. So natural behaviors like attentiveness and trial-and-error turn into Observation! and Experimentation! Seeking clarity by corralling doubt turns into theatrical Hypothesis! and systematic thought turns into Rigor!, Systems! and Methods! The result is an elaborate theater of mostly useless production where citations and awards become measures rather than consequences of value and curiosity turns into an expensive optional extra element in the business of grant-writing. Over the last fifty years, social support for science has gradually been diverted towards Science! which is why today, we're paying far too much for whatever science actually emerges"

I like this a lot.

I am reminded of a young lady, working on a PhD in perceptual psychology, who got in over her head trying to write software for her dissertation, whom I gave a reasonable hourly rate to bail her out.

We spent weekend over some months, off and on, redesigning tests to capture small details of various models of attention and visual focus. And I wrote a lot of code to flash graphical objects on the screen, at various locations, for brief periods of time.

And at one point, we did something else. We would flash a distraction on the screen being showing the objects, and asking what they saw. It was a square field of static (random black or white bits) that I displayed for about twenty milliseconds or so, far too fast for the conscious mind to "see" it. And as we played around to find what was a good enough distraction, we encountered something curious.

- If the field was smaller than the square area occupied by the objects, it wasn't a distraction. It had no effect.
- If it was larger, it was distraction.
- But if it was precisely the same size, and I mean precisely, then it melted the brain.

You literally would be unable to see the objects. Because the static came and went so fast, you couldn't see it. You didn't know it was there unless you wrote the code. But you would suddenly be completely unable to remember what you just saw.

The effect was scary. It was like a sudden onset of amnesia, an unexplained blank in one's mind. We were onto something no one had written about before.

And she cut it out of her experiment. Because it wasn't the subject of her dissertation. She wasn't there to do real science. She wasn't there to indulge her curiosity. She was there to get her PhD, and go pursue a tenure-track position, and get research grants. She did not have a passion for science, but only a career in "Science!".

One of the amateur scientists of the Enlightenment, or a greek philosopher, or a garage hacker, would have stopped, dropped everything, and begun feverishly investigating this new phenomenon. Alas, we live in the age of the professional, state-funded "Scientist!", whose ambitions include tenure, an impressive list of publications, and a prestigious award or two. Not so much with the curiosity.

Rant: "Let's get one thing straight: I can do whatever the fuck I want" but are the consequences not obvious?!"

39 upvotes · 2 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's what feminism is. It's "I can do whatever I want". Followed by crying when it turns out that so can everyone else.

Either you care how other people feel, and they care how you feel, or you don't, and they don't either. Take your pick.

It's best to just ignore women who act like this. You're not going to change them, and they have nothing to offer that you want.

"Over 75% of women prefer FLAB to abs" says sex therapist

39 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to know what people would do, don't ask them, watch them.

Self-report data is completely unreliable.

Behind every 'great' woman is a bunch of men doing the actual work while she collects the credit

39 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Powertalk to straighttalk translation:

I got screwed, big time. But please stop pointing it out, or I'll never be able to get another job ever again. Here, let me distance myself from you so that his won't blow back on me, I hope.

"Oh feminism, what happened to you?" Interesting article from the point of view of a young woman

39 upvotes · 22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Nothing "happened" to feminism. It simply achieved power. If you want to test someone's character, give them some power.

My husband is putting me and children at great risk.

38 upvotes · 5 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

He should be listening to your fears and not make light of it.

Exactly. An effective leader doesn't necessarily let people have their way... sometimes he can't, or shouldn't. But there is no excuse for not listening to feedback.

"During sex it is impossible to shield our emotions. During and after sex, you can access the deepest of a woman's emotions directly." -SGM How much of what a woman says during sex is the actual truth and how much is just the emotions of sex?

38 upvotes · 10 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

100% and 100%, respectively.

Stop thinking that women have a longterm opinion of you. How they feel about you right now is how they have always felt, and how they will always feel. Then, five minutes later, they will feel something new, then that's how they always felt and how they will always feel.

Swedish Feminist Politician Says Rape Isn't As Bad When Muslims Do It

38 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/MensRights

Somewhere, sometime, a white man has committed rape! Therefore OP is a racist!

Discussion over. I said "racist" first. That's the cheat code for winning debates, right?

asked my gf for a bj she said "help yourself out", what is the appropriate response?

38 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

No, you did it right.

Leaving anyway would have come off as bitter and petty. If you insist on punishing her for refusing sex, you're telling her that refusing sex hurts you... which means it is a scarce commodity to you.

You want to give the impression (without saying it) that you'd rather have sex with her because she's right there, but she says no, it's no big deal, because at moment, there are three to six women waiting and praying for her to say no, so that they can say yes.

Empowerment or Oppression? Depends on your Gender.

38 upvotes · 24 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

The end goal of feminism to maximally liberate female sexual expression, while maximally restricting male sexual expression.

Only 3% Of American Singles Are Worth Dating

38 upvotes · 15 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I find it amusing that, by these criteria, 100% of college students are undateable.

On basic GAME, PICKUP, and the direction of TheRedPill, RULES REVISITED 4/2014

38 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I do like this.

I think we are being forced to confront the reality that the mission of TRP is naturally expanding into our area of greatest need.

Karen Straughan has spoken about how one of the biggest deficits that young men feel in our culture is the lack of a positive male identity. In a culture that has lost all respect and care for men, there is no clear way forward other than what we figure out for ourselves, with no help from our society.

TRP started out as "how do I get laid?", an important question, because sex is one of the most fundamental components of happiness for men, and it's one of the hardest obstacles for modern men.

But at some point, we began to be able to answer that question, and we naturally started asking, "okay, so what now?".

Male happiness doesn't consist solely of getting inside as many vaginas as possible. I mean, that's great, but it's not enough. There are other things we need.

And so we naturally started talking about theory. How do men and women interact? How do societies deal with masculinity as a part of their plan? What exactly is it we need besides a lot of pussy? What should we as individuals do in this society, right now, to not only get laid, but to lead happy, fulfilled lives?

Seduction technique will always have a place here. Sex is a critical parts of men's needs. But as we learn more, we will understand other things. Missions evolve when greater understanding reveals previously unseen possibilities. And that is as it should be.

Friend Zone [xpost from TwoXChromosomes]

38 upvotes · 11 January 2012 · /r/seduction

No.

Trying to seduce a women by being nice and compliant and giving isn't "manipulation" any more than seddit's bag of tricks is. Both are attempts at persuasion, not a means of deception.

The real difference is that the second one works, and the first one doesn't.

I saw this and cried.

38 upvotes · 7 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's not really a sanctuary for men.

Yes it is.

There are plenty of women who understand our cause

And a lot of them are here. A "sanctuary for men" doesn't mean there are no women. It means that men aren't attacked here for being men.

Personally, one of the most important things to me about this subreddit is the presence of girlwriteswhat and others like her. I don't WANT places that are free of women. I love women, and I want them around. I only want places that are free of hatred for men.

When you get turned down for a blowjob?

37 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Some women refuse to suck dick. Some men refuse to date them.

Clear enough?

How did you train yourself to see women as child-like?

37 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

You don't have to train yourself to see women as mentally childlike. They are mentally childlike. All you have to do is observe.

What you need to realize is that you have been trained to see women as adults. You have been conditioned to deny the reality reported by your own eyes and ears.

What you must do is overcome this conditioning.

Think about it. If you say, for example, that women should not be voting, then what is people's response?

Do they say "No, they should, because XYZ." ?

No, they don't say that. They immediately conduct an inquisition into whether or not you like women, and whether you are a good person. The effective message here is that if you do not express certain sentiments about women, and especially if you express some other sentiments instead, you will not be debated, you will be retaliated against.

Fear of the judgement of others, and of social ostracism, is a powerful force within the human psyche, and, yes, using it you can get people to deny the evidence of their own senses, or, more often, to find increasingly threadbare rationalizations to explain it away.

The idea that women are not fully mature or emotionally stable is not a new one. Most societies throughout human history have believed this to one extent or another. Our society would have you believe they were all sexist and wrong.

Well, that leaves unanswered a very important question: why? Why did they believe this? Why did this idea crop up again, and again, and again, if it flew in the face of all the evidence? This question doesn't really get addressed... except by a sotto voce response of "stop asking, or we will make bad things happen to you".

You haven't been given an answer to the question of whether women are adults or not, or why people of the past believed they weren't. You've simply been trained not to ask. Which means you don't have to "train" yourself to believe a particular answer to this question. You simply have to allow yourself to ask it, even if, for your own well-being and safety, you do so merely in the privacy of your own head.

So just watch women, and ask yourself the question. Does this behaviour match with my definition of emotional maturity? How would I react to a man who did what I just saw?

How does an Alpha deal with aggressive guys?

37 upvotes · 3 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Sometimes you need to fight, and sometimes you need to not fight.

You always need to know which is which.

Another Poor Bastard Finds Out His Wife Was a Whore For Everyone But Him

37 upvotes · 27 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

First he says:

After we got married, we moved in together and began our lives. I did my absolute best to be the best husband that I could. I tried my best to not ask her for much help with chores, and assigned them as needed: her taking care of the food issues since she was a better cook, and me taking care of the cleaning throughout the apartment. I kept up with my old "tricks" from my Casanova days and made sure to bring flowers every few days, the occasional dessert touch, surprise dates, and jewelry. I wanted to make my wife know that in our world, she was my queen.

Then he says:

I didn't want to say it on there, but I actually follow the red pill religiously.

Hey boot... reading and nodding your head doesn't mean shit.

Unless you take action, you might as well be reading 12th century Indian poetry or back issues of Reader's Digest for all it matters.

Hung in the guy's dorm. Am I reading too much into this or is it really sexist?

37 upvotes · 12 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

"Rule #29: it's not a good idea unless it's her idea"

Welcome to the new face of Equality™. Only women can have good ideas. All of men's ideas are bad. Because Equality™.

Blue pills/feminists verify just how correct Red pill values are

37 upvotes · 4 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I could probably find plenty.

But what I notice about them is that they are all calmer, more calculated arguments, delivered with a cooler head. It is the moments of heat (and hence of honesty) which give rise to the accusations of low sexual value.

What resonates most with me is the fact that feminists angrily, nay venomously accuse these men of being the very sort of man that in their calmer moments they claim to defend.

When one speaks in abstract about the effeminate man who watches "my little pony" cartoons, the financially unsuccessful "basement dweller", the physically unattractive fat man, the socially inept "neckbeard", feminists claim to be defending all of these men from the "outdated and restrictive" masculinity of "the Patriarchy".

Yet when one points to a specific example of one, or, what's more, when they accuse someone of being one, their true contempt for such men emerges.

However, it is important to note that this contempt is not specifically feminist, but rather feminine. It comes not specifically from their feminist ideals, but from their female instincts. It serves the evolutionary purpose of preventing them from mating with men who are failures and may (not necessary do, but may) have defective genes.

The point here is not that feminism is sexist and hypocritical, but that it has failed to overcome sexism (which is its stated mission) even within its own high priesthood. This is a strong argument that sexism is inherent within the human species, and cannot be overcome. (I would also argue that sexism is a force for good in this world, but that's another discussion.)

LIVE: Michelle Obama just said "Women are smarter than men, and men can't complain about it" (1-2 mins ago)

37 upvotes · 6 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She doesn't actually believe this.

A regular on RPW once put it to me this way:

Women who are desperately eager to prove they are as good as or better than men are that way because they secretly know they aren't... and it kills them inside.

Women like these have ignored women's natural strengths and abilities, and chosen to covet men's instead. They try to compete with men at being men, and cannot measure up. So they must embark on a desperate campaign of self-deception.

If they were instead to prize feminine strengths and virtues, they would not need to compete with men, because they would already be far better at what was important to them than men could ever be.

I'm being homeschooled and my parents are using online courses; this is my Health course's tips about rape

37 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

So if there's no use of physical force, it's not rape?

What does reddit think of this "get out of friend zone" lifehack?

37 upvotes · 26 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Don't break out of the friendzone. Because if you do, you're now in a relationship with someone who was willing to friendzone you.

Do men tend to care more about you when you're thinner, and more attractive?

36 upvotes · 17 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Somebody summon Captain Obvious, please.

Modern women appear to be lost. Many are seeking external validation and media messages do not help. Should we try to help our fellow sister or is it every woman for themselves?

36 upvotes · 14 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You can't help someone without their permission.

No matter how good your advice is, if a woman didn't ask for it (sometimes even if she did), she's likely going to perceive it as an "attack", and you will be subject to much pointless bickering and zero gratitude.

Most people are very emotionally attached to their beliefs, even when those beliefs haven't worked out for them at all.

You are far better off simply serving as an example.

Went thought my girlfriends phone this morning. Found text messages about her having multiple sugar daddy profiles. I live with her and I'm gutted.

36 upvotes · 10 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Yeah. Tell her if you're going to stay with her, you want the VIP service. Do the threesome, then ghost her.

How to Stop Being Creepy and Needy

36 upvotes · 14 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

It's good stuff.

Just don't feel like you have to do all your writing in one pass. I like to explain something to people out loud, then write it down as an outline, then go away for a while and come back to it.

Mrs Midwest "Men are not trash"

36 upvotes · 26 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

As we frequently point out on TRP, pretty women don't need, and usually don't like, feminism. Sexism benefits pretty women more than any other group, so it makes sense for them to be anti-feminist.

This is why feminists are so ugly. Not because feminism makes women ugly (though it often does), but because being ugly increases the likelihood of being feminist.

After all, it isn't those who have just been dealt a good hand of cards who most want to flip the table.

Has anyone noticed that movies/shows seem to all star aggressive/masculine women nowadays?

36 upvotes · 23 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Having rejected femininity as powerful, effective, valuable, or worthy of respect, they crave masculinity.

Women Are A Reflection

36 upvotes · 7 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Women don't have agency. Stop acting as if they do. It doesn't matter what you say to a woman, what she promises, or how she is currently behaving. The sole determinant factor is what cultural form she subscribes to and how you are perceived by that form. All of her major decisions are outsourced to the cultural form, usually by calling all her friends.

This how Control Game works. LTRs become sustainable only when you are the cultural form she subscribes to.

The Red Pill vs. the Black Pill

36 upvotes · 30 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

No matter how bad the hand of cards you have been dealt, your only options are play to the best of your ability, or don't.

The results of the first are quantifiably better. Your choice is not between average genetics with active effort to learn and improve, or super genetics. It's between whatever genetics you have with effort to improve your lot, or without.

Your genetics, like the nature of women, is the terrain, i.e. an aspect of the the battlefield which you must work with because you cannot alter it.

How I Manage My LTR

36 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP is about overcoming weakness, not deluding ourselves into thinking that it does not exist.

We hide weaknesses from women, because weaknesses are unattractive.

But we cannot work on them without being aware of them ourselves. The reason you are jealous is that you fear abandonment.

This is because you haven't completely internalized two important principles:

- Abundance mentality
- You are the prize.

Woman Used Sperm From Oral Sex To Get Pregnant, Gets Child Support

36 upvotes · 25 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

the court rejected that stance, saying his sperm was given to her as a “gift,” “an absolute and irrevocable transfer of title to property from a donor to a donee,” according to the court decision.

Heh. Okay, fine. Then anything she does with it is her responsibility, and he doesn't have to pay a dime.

I'm okay with that. Either sperm becomes her property when I shoot it into her, and she's on the hook, not me... or it remains my property, and she has no right to make it into a child without my permission.

CMV: There is no alternative to r/theredpill or PUA.

36 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Life is not a feminist fairytale. If I have to break a few hearts to get where I want to be, I'll do it in a heartbeat. And unless feminists can offer an alternative, the manosphere will continue to grow. And if feminism doesn't care about providing one, I'll be happy where I am.

You're wrong.

Feminism cares a great deal about male sexual success. Because there's still some around, and feminism wants to put a stop to that.

You seem to think that PUA techniques are labeled misogynist AND they work. No. They are labeled misogynist BECAUSE they work. The thing they're calling "misogyny" is men having any power at all over their own sex lives.

Because when you start with women in total control of sex, and you act to give sexual power to men, you can only do that by taking some of it away from women.

And if you take any sexual power away from women whatsoever... "misogyny".

That is the real reason why feminists and TBP don't suggest an alternative. It's not just that they can't. It's that they don't want to. They don't want one to exist. Especially not one that worked.

This is why their "advice" is "be yourself", "act natural", "treat her like a person", and other vague stuff about doing what you're already doing. It means know your place. It means accept whatever you get. It means do not try to better your lot in life. It means the first-class citizens have decided your sexual fate. It means don't be rebellious.

Blue pills/feminists verify just how correct Red pill values are

36 upvotes · 4 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I personally think that a lot of women value kind and moral men though .

Indeed they do. But value does not imply love or respect.

Women frequently value beta-acting males as a source of praise, attention, validation, protection, special treatment, and, of course, money. This is why, for them, a man increasing his sexual market value is not universally and necessarily good news. He becomes unavailable to them as a resource.

The problem that men have with the provider role is that it is not "valued" by women in a way that earns them the recompense they most urgently desire: love, respect, lust, admiration, sex of the enthusiastic rather than dutiful variety. It is these reaffirmations and only these which preserve the male soul from a long slow death of despair and self-neglect.

Provider males are given some things, but only what women can give with calculation rather than passion. These include dutiful sex, cohabitation, female-role chores, childbearing, and so forth. Expecting men to thrive on such fare is not unlike wondering why your cat is thin, cranky, and an aggressive food-stealer despite being offered copious amounts of the finest fresh organic vegetables.

Women are not vicious, coldhearted creatures who refuse to love a provider. They are simply self-deluding creatures who will not confront the fact that they cannot love a provider... that only masculine virtues, never feminine ones, excite the sort of passion that men desire from them.

To be loved, a man must be more than a provider. He must be strong, confident, successful, independent, bold. And in the modern era, we have come so far that a man best demonstrates these virtues by refusing to be a provider or an enabler... since standing up to women has become one of the most socially hazardous things the average man can do.

Also , you will find a lot of BPillers attacking RPillers for their "immoral" tactics

As I said before, they do so in their calmer moments, when their anger and hate do not overcome their craft and guile, and thus they retain the intellectual wherewithall to deliberately make their message consistent.

It is not the calculating rhetorical attack, but the slur spoken in anger, which reveals the nature of the speaker.

Death Tolls Expected: Female Firefighters in Sweden Not Required To Meet The Standards (will not be able to pull victims out of a burning building)

36 upvotes · 12 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

A test in which 35 times to lift a barbell weighing 30 kg is designed for a man and not a woman, says Stefan Lundqvist, Training Manager at MSB.

That's 66 lbs, for Americans.

66 lbs. 35 times. Seriously. That's the bar with a ten pound plate on either side.

If you can't do that and you're under 60, you're not just unfit to be a firefighter, you're unfit, period, and should be worrying about your health.

But we have a need for female firefighters and firefighters with immigrant backgrounds.

No, you have a need for firefighters who are any gender and from anywhere, so long they can do the fucking job.

Dear Michael from Toronto...you need to stop.

35 upvotes · 23 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Group founder here. Thanks for the laugh. I'm thinking of writing an article entitled "Don't be Michael from Toronto".

The argument isn't about "Nice Guys", the argument is about whether or not decent men are getting laid.

35 upvotes · 9 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

Decency is not attractive. Complaining about how decent men aren't getting laid is like complaining about how women with PhDs aren't getting marriage proposals... the trait they are talking about does not produce the results they want.

The Most Important Thing

35 upvotes · 24 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Not only Pook. Thiel calls it easy, hard and impossible, in reference to what to invest in or build. Martin Seligman shocked dogs who later didn't try to escape them even when they could, because they had learned the shocks were "unavoidable".

The problem is that most everyone interprets these results in terms of either the power of positive thinking, or in terms of the "willpower" to take risks and leave your comfort zone.

But neither of those two things can be changed at will. What can be changed at will is what you know, because you can voluntarily seek out new knowledge. What I've done here is outline how courage is knowledge. So those who lack courage, if they embrace this model, can become braver by correcting their ignorance.

The brain is an information storage device. We are what we know.

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

35 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Now I know you should generally never cohabit with an LTR.

Stop listening to retards. I've been living with one of my LTRs for six fucking years.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

35 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

This is because men need to excel to successfully breed, while women just need to not be a total trainwreck.

So naturally men are more experimental and risk-bearing, both by genetic predilection and environmental education. I generally think that "lack of need" is a much more significant factor than "lack of talent" in women's usual lack of achievement. They may be somewhat worse at, say, mathematics, than men, but mostly they are no good at math because they don't work at being good at it, because they have no use for being good at it.

One of things that makes me suspect this is that women in STEM fields generally have less entitled attitudes. I believe STEM is not a cause of this in women, but an effect.

Is Alpha Male Strategies legit?

35 upvotes · 12 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Wrong question.

What matter is not what he can do, but what you can do with his material.

Husband pushed me away in public

35 upvotes · 13 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There are several reasons why this might happen:

1. He is mad at you.
2. Your level of PDA, or its timing, is inappropriate.
3. You selected a time and place where the gesture would clearly be possessive. Men do not like being marked as territory, even if they are exclusive to you, because it signals your dominance over them (an inversion of the natural order).
4. There is a mission he is on or a crisis he is dealing with, and you are interfering with "mission mode".
(Example: I strongly dislike it if my SO tries to kiss or cuddle between sets at the gym. Fortunately, she is savvy and only needs to be told such things once.)

Who killed Marriage 1.0? (Trigger warning: dry theory)

35 upvotes · 13 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Technology drastically changed Western societies, but it never changed society of Saudi Arabia, for example. They have Internet, skyscrapers, highways, fast cars - just like we have them here. But, they don't have promiscuity, alcohol, drugs. They hold exactly the same values they held 500 years ago.

This article is about western Lifelong Bilaterally Monogamous Marriage. Polygynous marriage is a different beast, with different drawbacks. I declined to talk about it because we live in the west, and women who get married generally expect their male partner to be exclusive to them (not always a wise choice, but not one made in a vacuum).

Polygynous marriage is much easier to sell to men, because Chad will go for it. It doesn't lower the ceiling on his sexual success. The problem is that there's not much in it for Thad. Chad will have 2+ wives, Brad will have 1, and Thad will have zero.

This works great in individual relationships, but as a societal plan, it has one significant problem: it manufactures rebels and terrorists. All those Thads who can't get laid. Which is exactly what we see in Saudi Arabia.

Saudi Arabia has to sponsor terrorism. Because it manufactures angry young men, and it needs a place to dump them. If it didn't do things to focus blame on the west, all those angry young men and boys would notice that they live in a slave state, where they labour in celibacy for peanuts, so that the seventy skillion useless "princes" can have trust funds and bang every chick in sight.

This is what polygyny does to Muslim societies. Hell, why do think ISIS rapes and sexually enslaves every woman they get their hands on? Why do you think Afghani men systematically rape little boys? And so on and so on.

Polygyny is only stable (for societies) in dangerous environments where male mortality is high. In fact, then you have no choice but to have polygyny. Because all those women who can't get husbands will fuck other women's husbands. And the married women can't stop it, because what will they do... threaten to divorce him?

So societies that are already polygynous need to have some combination of channeling male anger outward, exporting young single men, and raising male mortality.

Which is precisely what we see happening.

AskWomen on n-count and poor marriage: mods deleting comments that show correlation

35 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

where women go to realign themselves with "the consensus"

This why I say that all women are submissive. If they're not following a man, they're following the herd.

Sure, you can "free" a woman, but when you do, she "chooses" to do the same thing all the other women do, because she's terrified they'll disapprove of her.

That is why women with feminist tendencies will argue that women weren't "allowed" to have careers before 1960, why they say they say that slut-shaming is "policing" womens' sexual behaviour. Because to a woman, widespread disapproval is perceived as equal to physical force.

If you tell her "that's a dumb thing to say", to her, that's the same thing to her as slapping a gag in her mouth... unless she can show that the herd disagrees with you. Then you're supposed to be the one that has to shut up.

Corpse Feeders

35 upvotes · 23 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

women are soulless baby machines who's only drive is reproduction

Oh, come on now. I can't agree with that. That's outrageous. How could you write that?

It should be:

"Women are soulless baby machines whose only drive is reproduction."

Why are ex-girlfriends so vindictive and petty?

35 upvotes · 22 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Stop caring.

Protein supplement reality check

35 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Steroid users should disregard this post entirely.

Also non steroid users.

I made my mom cry.

35 upvotes · 3 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I am no more interested in the cult of motherhood than I am in the cult of womanhood. Uterus worship is nothing but vagina worship taken several inches further. Any job which you can get by accident, are never evaluated at, and cannot be fired from is not a particularly noteworthy accomplishment unless one does it particularly well.

I am particularly unimpressed with anyone nearly sixty years old who cannot tolerate being disagreed with without bursting into tears, and pushing some shrieking, jam-covered goblin out of your loins is not a magic ticket back to my respect.

And if you cannot see the difference between "not trying to convert uninterested people to your worldview", and "pretending to agree with people because they are too thin-skinned to avoid tantrums", then I am not particularly impressed by you, either.

In one season of the Dutch version of "Survivor," the men and women were split and given their own islands. At the end of 8 days, the men had a "Cafe on the beach," while the women were stealing from each other and had not yet built a hut; the women approved of a tribe merger.

35 upvotes · 11 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are not for getting shit done. Women are for fucking and making more people.

And the only reason you're not hearing this everywhere is that people are afraid to say it.

Why does the Blue Pill hate (unfortunate) virgin guys so much?

35 upvotes · 20 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Actually, it kinda makes sense in a sick, twisted way.

You see, TRP exists to help people like you. And certain women, not all, but some, are terrified of that.

These are the women who believe that male sexual value and attractiveness are inherent. That someone like you, if he's not attractive now, must not have the special genetic magic that produces attractive behaviour out of nowhere, and therefore you will never be anything but "fake attractive". And they are very, very scared of being "tricked" into expending their precious eggs (both metaphorically and literally) on an "unworthy" man like you.

In other words, they want you to stay a virgin. They may not quite consciously think of it that way, but they do. That's what's behind "just be yourself", and "don't learn that disgusting fake stuff"... they want you to be easily sortable into the category they think you belong in.

Not very good for you, but they don't really care about that. They're out for the best possible deal for themselves, and for women in general, and you, sir, are on your own.

TRP's plan isn't perfect. We're still refining it. Hell, we had to make this shit up through trial and error, because the androgynization of society has all but wiped out the old knowledge. But it's a plan, with something in it for you. That's what they hate.

And part of the tactics to stop you from enacting it is to break your will. To make you despise yourself as much as they despise you. To make you stumble, unwitting, into the belief that the vagina tingles of a bunch of twentysomething twits whose major interests are themselves, gossip, and cute shoes... should somehow be the barometer of your feelings of self-worth.

Being good at attracting women is ultimately no more significant, in the scheme of things, than being good at poker or video games, or golf.

And boy, let me tell you, I really suck at golf. It doesn't keep me up nights.

Radicalizing the Romanceless: "If you're smart, don't drink much, stay out of fights, display a friendly personality, & have no criminal history – then you're the population most at risk of being miserable & alone. In other words, everything that 'nice guys' complain of is pretty darned accurate."

35 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If nice guys were really Machiavellian, they would be doing something that worked.

The failure of nice guys isn't that they're actually selfish and evil... it's that they aren't brave. A woman can't stand a man who isn't courageous. And they're right not to, because cowards are only loyal to whoever bullied them last.

Anyone who can't stand up to you, won't stand up for you.

Personal story: Good girls cheat and get crazy after alpha

35 upvotes · 8 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women aren't loyal to betas.

Why not? Because women don't submit on principle. They do it by instinct. (That's why they're not always aware that that's what they do.)

So they'll only be loyal if you inspire their loyalty with dominant behaviour.

It's on you.

Day 1 cold approach | got a number!

34 upvotes · 8 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Learn to care less about conversion rates. Yes, as you self-improve and learn game, conversion rates will increase for you. But the greatest milestone of success is learning to give less fucks.

When you don't emotionally invest in converting, it will happen more.

Dear Michael from Toronto...you need to stop.

34 upvotes · 23 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Jesus fuck.

No matter how carefully I explain myself, there is always some giant retard who listens carefully, nods at all the right points... and takes away the opposite of the intended message.

Michael, you giant pussy, it doesn't matter what /u/SFVisitor84's sisters thinks of you now, or what she thinks at all. If you had any sort of abundance mentality, she would already be fading rapidly in your rear view mirror, and you would be busy chatting up some chick who might actually like you.

How many times do I have to say it?

Attraction is not a voluntary act and cannot be negotiated. Next early, next often. It didn't work out. Move on.

Interview with an OnlyFans girl

34 upvotes · 20 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

OnlyFans is a job where any one producer can serve an unlimited number of consumers. Such jobs tend to follow a power-law distribution, where the vast majority of the income goes to the top few producers, and others get practically nothing.

Consider, as a further example, actors. In the age of digital distribution, and movie theatres, the top tiny fraction of actors make ridiculous sums, while the rest of them are waiting table in diners in Hollywood and Burbank, doing commercials, and waiting for their big chance that will most likely never happen.

In the ancient world, when all theatre was live, actors were considered little better than whores, and income, such as it was, was distributed rather evenly between them.

When you look at the very top echelons of a power-law, winner-take-all profession, it looks highly desirable...

many people would want to be a famous actor or a rock star. But entering the professions of "actor" or "musician" are actually synonymous with poverty because the expected value of these professions is quite low.

If you are a dentist, you don't need to be a famous dentist to make good money. You just need a nice middle class neighbourhood, some spare office space, and a hygienist assistant, ideally a pretty one.

To think about what profession to enter into, purely in terms of compensation, you need to consider what the total adjusted income over the course of that career. That's the definite integral of the salary curve from zero to retirement, for those of you who chose math.

If suddenly woke up tomorrow with my psyche swapped into a hot 18 year old girl's body, what I would do with my life (after coming out as a lesbian) would not have anything to with selling sex, selling my decorative appearance, or anything else that didn't require job training. Instead, I'd quota my way into top university, flirt (not whore) by way through classes, then through the power of being a Woman in Technology™, I would secure myself a position in a top tech company, where I would be pandered to forever so long as I wasn't total rubbish at my job. I'd write lots of tweets about how most men were nice and welcoming, but a few bad apples and archaic attitudes had been a terrible obstacle to overcome on my heroic journey. And my male colleagues would fall all over themselves to be nice to me and prove that they were "one of the good ones", grateful that I wasn't tweeting out "kill all men" instead. If anyone got too persistently friendly, I'd publicly shame him for "fetishizing lesbians", and that would be the end of that.

Why not take the easy route of selling sex or even the scent thereof? Because whores have a shelf life, and it's not a long one. Yes, hot chicks are highly desirable, even now that the pussy bubble has burst, but what matters is not how just how big the demand is, but how the demand compares to the supply. There is ALWAYS a fresh generation of hot chicks who are just turning 18, and they are dumb and easy to get dirt cheap.

Do not envy these girls. They will have five years of riding high, followed by a lifetime of bitterness and trying to recapture the attention and love they once had. And that's the TOP ones. Others will have a lot less fawning and cash, followed by the same fate.

You, on the other hand, can continue to enjoy enthralled female attention until you are so old you don't know what to do with it because your dick no longer works.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

34 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Linus Torvalds is not "politically incorrect".

Linus Torvalds is a sperg. Spergs always cry out that they are being stifled when others recoil in revulsion from their utter lack of social skills.

Reading the whole email, instead of cherrypicking from it, would give an opportunity to read between the lines and figure out that Torvalds alienated, not a bunch of blue-haired feminists (because they aren't smart enough to write kernel code, and don't even know who he is), but his own goddamned acolytes.

The king rules because he has an army, not a shiny hat.

The king must never lose the loyalty of his army, or, from that moment, he is no king.

Linus Torvalds needs to read The 48 Laws of Power.

Please help me know if what I did was really wrong or he is overreacting.

34 upvotes · 29 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

"I belittled and insulted my man by telling him he was incompetent and couldn't learn things.

Then he got angry, which I found very mysterious and puzzling.

So I said it again, this time using small words so his tiny brain would understand. I explained to him that he was being childish, and should just listen to superior adult brains like mine.

But instead of thanking me for explaining to him how useless he was, thereby saving him the hopeless effort of trying to improve himself... well, he got even angrier.

Now I'm upset myself... how could he be so selfish as not to anticipate and consider my feelings while I was insulting him?

Perhaps I should stab him in the eye with a fork while he is asleep. Maybe that will calm him down."

If you want your relationship to be as good as it was before you said this, then here's what to do:

- Invent a time travel machine.
- Go back to five minutes before Incident Zero.
- Bludgeon your former self unconscious with a pipe wrench.
- Superglue her mouth shut so she can't say anything asinine when they wake her up in the hospital.

If you can't discover time travel, then things will never be quite the same.

In that case, I recommend either joining the Federal Witless Protection Program, and beginning a new life in Czechoslovakia as a lesbian poet, or immediately grovelling and begging forgiveness, with careful attention to getting your tongue into all those tricky bits around the bootlaces, where dried mud can really stick quite stubbornly.

A guy who is loud and high energy all the time in my group is constantly trying to get attention. Why does it scream insecurity to me and coolness to the others?

34 upvotes · 28 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

Either he is tryhard, or you are envious, and convincing yourself he's tryhard to make yourself feel better.

And when you have two possible explanations, the one that hurts more is usually the truth.

This is Why I Think Lifting is Pointless for Most Guys

34 upvotes · 21 September 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If only you put as much effort into lifting as you do into making excuses.

[FR] The White Knight: A prison worse than death.

34 upvotes · 20 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I would interpret this as a cry for help.

This is the future you chose male feminists - stay at home dad is cuckold and terms it as enlightenment.

34 upvotes · 17 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you swapped the genders of the people in the story, this situation won't be acceptable.

But if you swapped the genders, it would work. Women are perfectly willing to share a man if they do not fear losing his affection, attention, or support by doing so.

Why?

Jealousy is fear someone else will take what you have. For a man, this happens when another man fucks his woman. For a woman, this doesn't happen until another woman actually gets her man to leave her.

For a woman, male cheating is the threat of damage. For a man, female cheating is the threatened damage in and of itself.

UK: Male MPs protest at not being allowed to take bags in the Commons but women can.

34 upvotes · 2 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

For the same reason they use terms like "bromance". To shame men out of acting like we're allowed to do the same things women are.

Usually from a safe distance.

(Go taunt a bunch of Scotsmen who throw telephone poles for fun about their "man skirts". See how that works out for ya, there, pen wielder.)

Are women capable of understanding or comprehending what sexual frustration feels like for a male?

34 upvotes · 23 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I recall once seeing an interview on cable television with a female-to-male transsexual. She/he/it/whatever went on at some length about how women needed to shut the fuck up about men and sex, because they had no idea what they were talking about.

Unless you have had high testosterone levels, you have no idea, and you never will.

The pseudo-nerd syndrome: Awkward kids believing they are smart for being unattractive.

34 upvotes · 18 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The universal attribute of genius is that it has no other universal attributes. Genius defies description by its very nature.

Collecting comic books, watching Japanese anime, prizing useless knowledge, quoting Monty Python, joining Mensa, or any other "nerdy" thing... has nothing to do with actual intelligence.

Nerd culture is just an alternative status culture, no more meaningful or useful than that of highschool "jocks". The man who truly achieves things, or simply truly controls his own life, cannot be categorized because he does not imitate others or cater to their whims or tastes.

He prizes his own respect for himself above theirs.

Mathematics professors who compete at powerlifting, Vin Diesel playing Dungeons and Dragons, Navy Seals writing poetry, men who break stereotypes and form their own identities are men who DGAF.

Do what serves your goals, not what others do.

TBP chick hates RP guys but spends her birthday being treated like shit by one who also cheated on her. The irony is sublime.

34 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It goes for everything. If you never take a woman to dinner, the first time you take her to fucking Arby's she's going to be ecstatic. Not because Arby's is not shitty, but because you've already set yourself up to be the guy who never pays for a woman's meal.

There are very few absolutes for a woman, within a relationship. Fail enough shit tests and you'll set yourself up for busting your ass for nothing. Also why men rarely feel appreciated. The man compares anything he does for women to a him doing nothing. A woman compares anything a guy does for her to what he's been doing until that point (or what other men have been doing).

Women like to feel special. They don't measure the absolute amount of effort a man puts in. Only the relative amount of effort to what he usually does, what he puts in for other people, etc.

This is why women adore selfish men. Because if he is slightly less selfish with her, that makes her feel unique and special, like she's the one person who can get affection from him... so she must be super awesome, right? And if he makes her feel super awesome, well...

This is also one of the reasons women like cats. Cats are aloof and standoffish with everyone but their owners.

A Woman tells Hamsters: Why You're Not Married.

34 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The way I describe it is that having a woman angry at you is not unlike having your friend's tiny little yip dog attack your ankles.

It's not terrifying and ferocious, but there are certain social ramifications if you punt it into the next room.

Vasectomy: $400. Speechless look on her face: priceless.

34 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No, absolutely not. That would harm an innocent child.

western anti feminists: "feminism isn't needed in the west, rather in 3rd world countries" feminists in 3rd world countries:

33 upvotes · 4 April 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

They always say that to us, instead of to the other feminists that are busy hating men. That's how we know it is not a sincere sentiment... just damage control.

Reddit Case Study on exactly what NOT to do

33 upvotes · 24 November 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

The single most important difference between RPW and FDS/feminism is trust.

Demands that you not give up a single iota of power or control to a man you're supposed to love are based in distrust. Which demands of us that we ask the question... "if you don't trust this man, why are you with him?".

One of RPW's most important core beliefs is that, while there are bad men, and men behaving badly, men, as a whole and in general, are actually good... especially towards women.

And the better, sweeter, and kinder women are to them, the more this becomes true.

Many of you don't know what "Frame" is

33 upvotes · 6 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

And whose acceptance and validation are you looking for? Mine? That of TRP in general?

Have you been taught here talking tough and calling someone you never met a "man-boy" will allow you to be perceived as more manly?

Playing "who is the smartest?" is indeed a popular game among coastal-city-dwelling liberals. This is easy to notice. What fewer people notice is that there are many, many games of this form, simply with the adjective replaced. These games can, and indeed will, be found in every group of people.

The trick is spotting the game, and knowing when and when not to play it.

Can you guys expand on the idea of frame?

33 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

Okay, if that doesn't feel like enough of a definition, try this:

Think about a "frame". Not metaphorically. Literally.

The frame of a house. The frame of a door. The frame of a picture. What is it? What does it do? Well, it provides structure, and it defines the boundaries.

So, when we talk about "controlling" the "frame", we mean the frame of an interaction.

The frame of an interaction is its structure and boundaries. What is being talked about. Who is talking. What the goal of the interaction is. What the context is. All of the aspects of the interaction that determine what is and isn't appropriate to do and say.

When you control the frame of an interaction, it means that you are interacting in such a way that you are able to steer it and decide what is "in bounds" and what is "out of bounds".

For example, if I say "All women are inherently submissive. They don't know what to do with freedom. If you liberate a woman, she just looks around for someone to imitate."

And some clam says "you're a misogynist"...

... Then she is trying to seize control of the frame, to change the conversation from being about "whether women are capable of being free" to "whether Whisper is a misogynist, and by implication, a bad person, and by further implication, wrong".

So, if I say "no, I am not", I have lost control of the frame. Because now we are arguing about whether or not I am a misogynist, which is not what I typically want.

So there are things I can say instead to maintain control of the frame, and these will vary depending on what I want to the frame to be.

I can say "no, I am THE misogynist" if I wish the frame to "conversation what demonstrates that Whisper is unflappable, while upset chick is prone to losing her shit". We are now still talking about whether I am a misogynist, but without the implication that I am bad, or wrong.

I can say "That IS the standard response, which you have now just imitated." if I wish the frame to be "conversation where a woman shows that I am right while saying that I am wrong". We are now not talking about whether I am a misogynist at all, but about whether she is an NPC.

I can say "That's not relevant. We are talking about whether women make their own choices, or whether they tend to imitate each other, not about how I personally feel about women." if I wish to frame the conversation as a formal debate. I can now derail every single personal accusation she makes about me simply by calling it out as a personal accusation, and dismiss any assertion she makes without producing evidence. This isn't sexy, of course, but I might want to humiliate her rather than appeal to her.

What is "red pill"?

33 upvotes · 15 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's a metaphor we selected for accepting the world as you see it is, rather than as you wish it be, or as others tell you it is.

It's empiricism.

Since we discussed this in a sexual context, it's mostly sexual empiricism.

This means we focus on what we think is, striving to perceive and understand it without being hampered by the need to judge it.

Does that mean we can never be wrong? Of course not. We have discarded many ideas and embraced others as our understanding evolved. But it does mean that we do not hesitate to grasp at what seems to be true out of fear of giving offense, or because it might be bad news that makes us sad.

The fact that this took us very deep down the rabbit hole is simply a measure of how far our cultural zeitgeist has drifted from the truth. And the amount of pushback, censorship, insults, and death threats we got at the beginning made it very easy to be angry about how foolish our culture is.

But with greater understanding, it becomes apparent that this hostility comes from fear... and it has lessened some, partially because some people realized we were right, but also because we become familiar. We've been around for years now, and the sky has not fallen to the earth, nor has the sea risen to swallow the land. We've hurt a lot of feelings, of course, but perhaps some people have learned that having your feelings hurt isn't the end of the world.

Sometimes, it is the beginning.

What are you looking to find when you read here? What is PRW? Maybe it's time to reassess what this sub is about.

33 upvotes · 5 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

It is surprising, yes, but less so if you think about it.

It was some of the founders at TRP who first had the idea to create, as an experiment, a group for women which could share some of the same insights about human nature, but be a place for women to discuss how to use those insights to pursue their goals.

The reason we had this idea was that women kept wandering into TRP and asking what they could do to better their lot in the relationship market. Since TRP wasn't really cut out for that, and no women had stepped up to create something similar elsewhere on the internet, we had a whack at setting something up ourselves.

At we tried recruiting some sort of tradcon-ish female bloggers to moderate it. This didn't work out so well... we quickly learned that many traditional conservatives are not very interested in interacting with, or sharing knowledge with, women from different walks of life... precisely those who might most need redpill-oriented help. Additionally, we learned that the skills and inclinations of a content creator, and those of a custodian and moderator, are not necessarily the same.

So we get a lot of eager participation on the level of asking, and discussing, individual situations, but in the areas of providing moderation, and more general content, we've had to rely on some of the more seasoned men from TRP to help out (especially with the moderation and preventing fights).

At first I felt like (out of some level of irritation) women just weren't interested in helping other women. But the way I see it now is that women tend to instinctively reserve their efforts for supporting their children, families, and friends... so therefore most of the help they want to provide is personal... directed towards another woman who has asked directly for help and support.

This has meant that TRP has ended up structured much more like a university, while RPW is structured much more like an advice column.

LTR wants to bring a girl in the bedroom

33 upvotes · 29 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

Because women don't use reciprocity as a tactic. It doesn't occur to them because they don't feel it and it doesn't work on them.

They're not going to say "I want you to fuck another woman" and then later "you owe me my turn to fuck another man"... because they don't understand debt or obligation. If a woman wants to fuck another man, she'll say "I think we should try an open relationship".

If she says "I want to watch you fuck another woman", then that's a turn on for her. Do it.

Don't limit yourself by believing certain things are too good to be true. They aren't if your game is tight. Go on. Ask me how I know.

LTR. Is it worth it?

33 upvotes · 2 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

This is completely a personal choice. In fact, it is quite a number of personal choices.

The red pill is made of information not directions.

We tell you how to achieve your goals, not how to choose them. Whether you "should" do an LTR (or two) depends entirely on what you like.

But as someone who likes LTRs, I can tell you I haven't sacrificed my freedom, my choices, my money, or my plates. Just my time and care. For me, that's a rewarding investment. FunSize and FanGirl make me happy.

Your mileage may vary. Having a girlfriend is one of those things like having kids. Either you want to, inherently, for its own sake, or you don't have any urge, and you don't understand why anyone would do this. You don't have a girlfriend in order to get sex... that's stupid. You don't have a girlfriend in order to... anything. You either have one because you like the process itself, or you don't, because you don't.

LTR of 3.5 Years that "loved" me to death cheated this weekend. Why and how to pursue?

33 upvotes · 21 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

There is no such thing as "finding a good one". Water takes the shape of the container you pour it into.

Everything a woman does wrong is ultimately the fault of some man or other, because women need to be controlled. If they fuck up, you either didn't control them, or did so badly.

You established patterns that made her think it was okay to:

- Go out drinking without you there.
- Bring men back to her place.
- Get blind drunk.

That's how this shit starts.

She cheated on you because you let the leash go slack.

Women are to men as children are to women. They're not going to automatically look out for your welfare or treat you with respect. YOU have to make your expectations clear, and enforce them. It's not just about cheating, it's about disrespect. Getting blind drunk with other men is disrespectful to you, even if "nothing happened".

Your girlfriend should never say to you "nothing happened", because she should never let herself be in a situation that she would have to say that about. If she has to say "nothing happened", that implies something could have happened, and that "something" wasn't "a game of checkers".

Giving you reason for suspicion is almost as bad as there being truth to those suspicions. It's disrespectful.

Never let your women disrespect you.

LTR asked why I dont just break up.

33 upvotes · 5 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Y'all keep making me post the cat again.

We're Right and You're Wrong

33 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Openly admits that my new physique "makes her feel shallow", which is probably because her and all other women really are wired up to be super shallow.

Women actually think they aren't shallow. How delusional can you possibly be? Men know from the moment we are old enough to be self-aware that we are shallow as fuck, nothing but apes wearing pants, but women are actually dumb enough to believe their own hype. It's hilarious.

There's the Thousand Cock Stare, and then there's the One Cock In A Thousand Stare.

33 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The reason that Hollywood was so outraged by naked pictures of girls who regularly appear naked on film had nothing to do with "involuntary pornography".

It was because it broke the facade. Without all their careful makeup, lighting, selection, and post-processing, all of these girls were revealed not to be the ethereal sirens you see on screen, but just ordinary instagram-ho caliber sluts, no more attractive than the pretty waitress at your diner, and carefully selected only for "whoever gave Harvey Weinstein the best handjob".

It's all kayfabe. Smoke and mirrors.

Do tattoos increase smv for men?

33 upvotes · 19 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

Tattoos used to be a sign that you're an iconoclast. Now they are a sign that you're a hipster.

50% is a Failing Grade.

33 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"How are you going to have baaaaaaaaaaaaabiez?"

we're not

Does this imply that involved fathers should be shamed? Is childfree the only TRP acceptable path?

TRP doesn't really do "official stances" all that much. No one I know of is saying you are an idiot or a weakling because you're married. Only that you made a bad move that put you in a bad position, which younger men should avoid.

But the issue of children is the next thing I was going to get to in our conversation on PPD. We can continue here.

I think you have the impression that, yeah, marriage law may suck, but you gotta make it work, because, how else you gonna have kids?

What I'm trying to get across is that many or most of these young bros have written off fatherhood instead. In other words, fatherhood doesn't save Marriage 2.0. Marriage 2.0 kills fatherhood.

These guys (with my full agreement and support) are looking at the news, and saying "If I spawn children, they are not really my children at all. They are her children, and I will have precisely the amount of involvement in their life that she decides".

These are men who took the red pill, and learned to free themselves from a shitty situation by uninvolving themselves and being able to walk away from anything. The law, the courts, the media, and public opinion are all stacked against them, but they can counter all that with independence and willingness to next.

Marriage and children are ways of reinvolving themselves. And they don't want to do that, because it means surrendering their newfound independence and the happiness that finally came from it.

I know this is hard to process for you, because you most likely have kids. Let's assume, for the sake of argument, that you have a daughter. She's the most important thing in the world to you. You'd take a bullet for her, and not stop with the first bullet. You love her like no one and nothing else in the world.

So you don't understand this whole "giving up on kids" thing, because that feels like giving up your daughter. You could never do that.

But the thing to think about is... when did you start feeling that way? When your daughter was an abstract idea of kids you might someday want to have? Or when you saw her for the first time? It's women, not men, who get "baby rabies", and pine for hypothetical children. Men love their children when those children appear. Before that happens, it's very easy for men to say "nah", and have that never happen at all. Can't miss somewhere you've never been.

The men here don't PM me asking how they can get sons and daughters. They PM me asking for how to get laid, and even more, for how to get respect, love, admiration, pride in themselves.

TRP doesn't talk about kids, not because it's the great dark weakness in our conspiratorial "no marriage plan", but because it's a question that none of the dudes here are asking. The question "how can I have a son when the family laws are stacked against me?" is as irrelevant as "how can I have a pet otter when exotic pets are against the law?" Yeah, sure some dudes might think it would be kinda cool to have a pet otter, but if it not doable, they're not going to stay up at night soaking their pillow with tears. Other dudes couldn't care less.

So fatherhood isn't the magic bullet that's going to save marriage. Because these guys have seen too many corpses of once-proud men. Fucking Mystery, one of the founders of the whole PUA thing, got turned into a groveling little bitch by some clam he was dumb enough to have kids with. Once he had kids, all the game and abundance mentality in the world couldn't save him. Young men do not look at this and say "Gee, I hope my future children don't get arbitrarily taken away, now let me set about making some."

They say "fuck a bowl of this, I'm gonna wrap it".

If the answer to "what's good for me in marriage?" is "fatherhood", then the question becomes "what's good for me in fatherhood?"

I've started hating my fellow woman.

33 upvotes · 29 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't know how to go back to being proud to be a woman

Don't. Being proud of stuff you were born with is stupid.

Instead, do things in your own life that you can be proud of.

Ask Whisper: Parents

33 upvotes · 7 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

they told me if I want to stay I have to go to church

"You own this house and this car, but you do not own my body. I will not be going to church. You do what you choose to do with your property."

I'm worried that taking any steps to become independent of them will cause them to kick me out.

Threaten to leave. If they ask where you will go, say that you will scrape by, and if you can't, there are plenty of homeless shelters out there.

I started working for my dad, but he pays me just enough to pay my bills.

He is deliberately keeping money tight in order to control you. Tell him you are quitting to find another so you will not have to be a financial burden on him.

I'm worried that taking any steps to become independent of them will cause them to kick me out. Also my mother fairly often disrespects me (example: I got home from a doctors appointment and didn't immediately tell her all the details of what went on, so she came to my room and said my name expecting me to then tell her everything she wanted to hear without telling me she wanted to hear anything, apparently I'm supposed to be psychic. So I asked "what" to which she blew up on me. I told dad but she hamstered it away in front of him, he threatened to kick me out until my brother agreed with me. Later he told me my mom is a sensitive person and I need to learn to respect that.)

You have abusive, controlling parents.

Get. Out.

Get out even if you have to pay a friend $100 a month to sleep on his couch. Doesn't matter. Get out.

Poverty now will be nothing but an adventure story to tell when you are 30. You can use it to pick up chicks.

Remaining will break you psychologically, and set you up for a life of failure. Get out.

What are the effects of women and men not fulfilling their original gender roles.

33 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

- Declining attraction between the sexes.
- Increased hostility between the sexes.
- Decreased trust between the sexes.
- Decline in marriage and/or increase in divorce.
- Increased sexual opportunities for the top 10-20% most attractive.
- Greatly decreased sexual opportunities for other men.
- Increased sexual opportunities for girls aged 18-26.
- Greatly decreased sexual opportunities for other girls.
- Increase in births out of wedlock (broken families).
- Declining birth rates among educated classes.
- Decreased childhood happiness.
- Decreased levels of happiness, health, and coping skills in subsequent generations.

- Economic decline.
- Very gradual collapse of national infrastructure.
- Widespread decay and collapse of all positive attributes of society.
- Society replaced in primacy by other cultures.

Tribe of young men banding together to learn to emulate sociopaths. As a survival trait.

"When unattractive men have hit on me, I have honestly been insulted. It's sort of like having an amazing degree and work experience, and someone seriously asking you if you want a minimum wage job."

33 upvotes · 8 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Female solipsism.

As a software engineer with an impressive resume, I match a lot of keyword searches by recruiters. So I get approached all the time for jobs which turn out to pay about half my current salary. I don't throw a tantrum. I simply start any interaction with the question "What is your client's salary range for the position?".

If the answer isn't anywhere near my market value, I say "no thanks, that would be a substantial pay cut for me", and that's that. I have no need to get angry at these people because they are no threat to me. I'm not going to be paid less because they offered me less.

The real reason women get mad when approached by an unattractive man is that they think everyone's attraction works like theirs.

Men's SMV in their eyes is completely mutable depending what other women think. A man can be fat, homely, out of shape, and working at a grocery store or car wash, and if attractive women are hanging on his every word, then other women will be attracted to him, too. If he is a squared-jawed brooding hunk of rippling muscle, and he has an ugly woman on his arm, other women will want nothing to do with him.

Because of female solipsism, women think men work like that, too.

So they are terrified that the ugly, awkward man hitting on them is decreasing their SMV. That's why they are angry.

FR: Showing Value In Front of Plates

33 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women need drama only slightly less urgently than they need air.

In fact, briefly cutting off her supply of air is a good way to fill up her supply of drama.

TRP's Anger is Directed Against a Chimerical Woman

33 upvotes · 10 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

But the average woman 30-44 years old has only had an average of 4 male sexual partners in their lifetime.

Your source doesn't say that.

It says the average women reports having had 4 sexual partners.

R/Askreddit mentioned us not once, but twice in the same thread. Get ready for an assload of new subscribers!

33 upvotes · 10 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Deny. Attack. Reverse victim and offender.

It's what hamsters do.

A Tale of Two Women

33 upvotes · 10 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's no point in hurting someone's feels unless they can learn from it. This is why it often makes sense to be harsher with women who almost get it than ones who are completely hamster-ridden.

The former can be helped. The latter should just be avoided.

There is a hilarious hamster-fest going on in Askhamsters right now about how women in their 30s are so desireable and men who do not find them attractive are immature boys with no clue what is sexy.

33 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In terms of a man of any age, but especially in his 30s, the logical choice is statistically the younger woman. Especially for LTRs.

They tend to not understand the difference between value in an established relationship and value as a stranger.

Sure:

(the fit, sexy, sane 35 year old woman you've been married to for 15 years) >= (a fit, sexy, sane 20 year old you don't know) but

(a fit, sexy, sane 20 year old you don't know) > (a fit, sexy, sane 35 year old you don't know)

That is why 35 year old women can KEEP their men by staying fit, sexy, and sane, but still can't compete with 20 year olds to GET a man. If I have history with someone, that brings other considerations that outweigh age.

Maybe. But when meeting strangers, there's no history.

UPDATE 2: Girlfriend stopped taking the pill without telling me, and is now pregnant. Says she wants to keep it. I'm extremely scared.

33 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

Here's some advice: don't fuck a woman you wouldn't have a kid with Soooo... a man who doesn't want kids at all shouldn't have sex?

N.O.W. Is Very Concerned About The Progress Made By MRA's - YouTube

33 upvotes · 4 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

The money. Not his money, not her money. The money.

As if it were some kind of mana that rained from heaven, as opposed something that had to be earned by the labour of one particular person. Not a marriage, not a partnership. A person.

The person who is entitled to take the money is the person who earned the money.

female makes a blog post about how tumblr is okay with objectifying men but not women.

"feminist" respond with telling her that its an okay double standard because women are opposed.

33 upvotes · 7 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

A feminist is someone who wants to fix the last injustice facing women before the first injustice facing men.

Why do girls do this?

32 upvotes · 7 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

Stop trying to analyze women who you are not going to associate with again. It's doesn't matter what their madness is.

Plate thats obsessed w/ me stalks me on IG and sent me this shit lol. Unreal. Thoughts?

32 upvotes · 30 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Women want you to be "alpha" and dominant, but they don't want to think about you having to learn it. They just want you to have been born superior.

This is, of course, total bullshit... we all emerged from a vagina naked, covered in goo, and crying like a bitch, and the only difference is how much we improved from then.

But reasoning with women is a waste of time.

So, just treat this like a power interaction. She wants you to be or act a certain way. You want... nothing really. All you have to do is not play her game.

Tease her. Send her something ambiguous, like "lol, whatever", or ASCII art of a squirrel. Any response that doesn't take her seriously is fine.

Should I leave my LTR with a unicorn?

32 upvotes · 4 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Why break up with her?

Treat a girl based on how she treats you, not on how other women treat you. You dump girls for being unsatisfactory, not because other girls exist.

If you want to fuck other girls, fuck them. Just because you have given a girl emotional investment doesn't mean she owns your penis. If she doesn't like that, and she won't, she has a choice to make. She can accept it to stay with you, or leave and look for a more docile slave.

If a girl wants monogamy from you, then she can get it by making you lose interest in other women.

Newbie here, I guess I'm a plate. Now how do we turn this around?

32 upvotes · 25 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Wrote another response to this, realized it was mainly focused on my frustration with slow learners, deleted it. That's not helpful to you, and slow learners gonna be slow learners.

Here's what's relevant to you:

- You have already been promoted from plate:

He keeps coming back to me.... every day.... for things other than sex

- You appear to be well on your way to being promoted again, or possibly already have:

There's things that are entirely confusing about this dynamic as well. He's pretty much treating me like a girlfriend at this rate but hasn't declared me that title. He's mentioned he's extremely picky but constantly says he likes being around me more than anybody else. He's constantly alluding to the fact that no other girl has treated him the way I do, whether it's cleaning up his place because I know he's busy, or accompanying him on an extremely productive yet fun weekend full of errands and friends, or simply being relaxing for him to be around after a very long and busy day at work.

Always hearing "Wow, you did x, this is nice." "Wow you're wearing x, you look nice." And "Your place is so clean, this is nice." makes me just want to do whatever just to hear him say those things more.

- In short, you are doing it right.
- This post appears to be mainly motivated by anxiety about not being "official". Well, there's no registrar's office, and "official" isn't the goal. The goal is "solid".
- Commitment is his mental state, not his Facetube status.
- Keep doing what you are doing, and don't blow it up with nagging or "The Talk".
- If you feel the need to say something, make it about how attached you are becoming. Appearance of vulnerability is a strong position for getting what you want.

Girlfriend never creates drama. Never does anything weird. I don't know what to do.

32 upvotes · 19 April 2018 · /r/askTRP

Submissive.

Life is too short to be a chump. The 80/20 rule isn't a theory, it is law. Not every action yields an equal result. The key to personal success is finding the 20% of things that give you 80% of your results and to double down on those motherfuckers. Here is a guide.

32 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is not a democracy. Most votes don't matter.

MY vote matters.

+1

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

32 upvotes · 4 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's actually a valid objection, if incorrect.

Petersen's (or any other tradcon's) feelings are not actually the point. I'm sure that medieval doctors were very often quite compassionate as they bled their patients and dosed them with quicksilver.

The tradcon system is a set of beliefs you are supposed to embrace because someone told you to, and a set of things that you are supposed to do because you are morally obligated to. This is by definition a blue pill. Many TRP readers haven't quite gotten the idea, and they think the blue pill is feminism and cultural Marxism. Then they see something fighting against that, and they assume it must be the red pill.

The critical mistake here is that feminism isn't the blue pill, it's a blue pill. Since the blue pill is just a metaphor for a systematic lie about the universe, there are an infinite number of possible blue pills, and certainly they are going to fight each other for your brain. The point is not to fall into the arms of the second blue pill that you notice, just because it happens to be fighting against the first.

Swedish Feminist Politician Says Rape Isn't As Bad When Muslims Do It

32 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/MensRights

Aw that's cute

I am not just cute, I am fucking adorable. Here's a selfie to prove it.

the anti-PC crowd don't like being called racist.

Au contraire, I love it. It saves all that troublesome "discussion" about "issues", and lets us get right to the part where we scream slogans and talking points at each other.

You want to be called proud patriot, am I right?

Good question. It's very important what sort of person I am. That's much more important than what anyone has to say, because politics is about identity, not views. People aren't really important as individuals with opinions, only as representatives of their demographic and sociopolitical groups.

Better figure out if I'm white or not.

(Or you could just look at the picture, which shows you that I am white and orange. And fuzzy!)

Divorcee wins 90 per cent of husband's wealth in bitter court battle. Company boss, Peter Morris, has nothing but his 'anger' to show for 25 years of marriage after a series of rulings

32 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

Oh, by all means sign a prenup. Divorce court judges love a good laugh.

Why are women loud during sex? Bonobos may have an answer.

32 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's see how long it takes somebody to twist this into a rape comment.

No twisting required. They have invented an amazing new memetic technology called the "rapey". By adding the extra y, they can apply the term "rape" to anything without actually having to meet even the recently expanded definition of the word.

An MRA discussion is happening tonight at my university. Here's the news article about our resident feminists' attempt at blocking it. The comments are worth a read.

32 upvotes · 27 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There isn't any. It's the Chewbacca Defense, plain and simple.

They simply draw an equivalence between feminism and women's rights, therefore any opposition to feminism is opposition to any and all rights for women. Feminists expect to completely own the issue of sexual politics... anything that's not feminism is ipso facto oppression and hate.

What's your most controversial redpill belief?

32 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Makes sense. People who get free cookies tend to vote for more cookies.

Eventually you run out of dough.

A true beta male is a Gump

32 upvotes · 11 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before, I'll say it again. Beta-acting males aren't usually weaklings. What they are is suckers.

Redditor finds out through the grapevine his fiance was a stripper in college, /sex says she did nothing wrong

32 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Maybe she concealed this from you because she feared you would react the way you actually did react.

Your honour, I only burned all that evidence because I knew you would send me to prison if you found it! It's really your fault, you see!

"Men Got Us Into The Shutdown, Women Got Us Out" Anyone else find this pointlessly splitting the issue?

32 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

Men got us into civilization; women will get us out.

Western idiot is blinded by her hypergamy/western ideals and pays the price.

32 upvotes · 23 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Because of my foreign stomach, the foods — kebabs, rice dishes, yogurts, nuts — are baked with Crisco instead of ghee, an evil-smelling, rancid, clarified butter that is loved by locals but wreaks havoc on a non-native's stomach. The smell of ghee alone can make you throw up if you're unused to it.

All my whut.

Ghee is just butter with some of the water and solids boiled off. It tastes and smells like... butter. If you toast it a bit longer, it gets a nice, nutty aroma.

I cannot fathom why anyone would prefer to use vegetable shortening unless they needed to for texture (the homogenous microstructure of shortening holds smaller, more dense bubbles when beaten with sugar in the creaming method, leading to softer baked goods).

An open letter to single mothers.

32 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey, you do what you want with your life. You wanna raise some burnout's kid in place of your own, fine. You wanna get with women who have kids with druggies, fine.

But don't pretend that's what makes you a man.

Men don't exist to burn their lives fixing others' mistakes. We are not born to serve. We are human beings in our own right. You're not going to shame anyone here into acting like a tool. Fear of criticism is not a badge of courage.

Perhaps my words, or other people's, stung enough so you felt the need to defend your honor. But this isn't about you. This is bigger than you. This is about how men get taken for granted. As a culture, we have dismantled the family, moved from a family model to a child support model, and women are still expecting that other men are going to take up the slack.

Well, you might wanna do it, but don't try to get other men to follow suit. Because it isn't in their best interests.

And taunting them might make you feel better, but it's not going to make them lose sight of what's good for them.

The Difference between TRP and RPW

32 upvotes · 2 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is because, while the government can legislate relationships into a bad deal for men, it cannot legislate sex into a bad deal for women.

Laws can abolish any rights a man may have in marriage, but they cannot abolish love, affection, pleasure, connection, or the female orgasm.

A lot of trolls tonight ...

32 upvotes · 10 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

It gets better.

Hold fast. Keep breathing. As men, we were always taught to hold fast, to ignore our pain, and that hurts us. But we were also taught to hold fast and survive, to live to fight another day.

I don't know what going on with you, but I will assume it's serious. I would never disrespect you by telling you you're wrong, that it's not as bad as you think. I'm just going to ask you to hold fast anyway. Give yourself another day, another chance to get lucky. Endure.

And if you can't keep speaking out, if you need to focus on yourself, that's okay. There's 30,000 of us. We got this.

Hold fast. Live. Hold fast.

No Female Privilege? 3 Lesbians beat gay man, use "homophobic slurs", break his nose. Bail: $100-500 each

32 upvotes · 26 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Don't be ridiculous. SRS would never dare attack anyone with only 3 to 1 odds.

Richard Dawkins not impressed by Skepchick's horrifying incident of being asked for coffee in an elevator.

32 upvotes · 4 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

What I find interesting about this whole incident is... what if this man had been black?

What, then, would it look like when people went on and on about how it was a "threatening" situation, and she had "no escape"?

Have a long, hard look in the mirror. Are you proud of what you have become?

Is there a reason why a woman would intentionally destroy her value among men and instead flatter other women for their beauty?

31 upvotes · 17 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't know if it's necessarily worth your time to examine the details of self-destructive behaviour.

What should be common knowledge (when diving into a ltr/engagement/marriage)

31 upvotes · 7 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Any woman who wants you to make your relationship legally binding is a woman who wants to be able to do things that would make you want to leave.

OnlyFans ruined NSFW Reddit

31 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, they're still sluts, they just think they can make money at it now.

But camwhoring isn't like whoring, because one woman can service any number of men. This means the top few percent of camwhores will get the lion's share of the money, and the others will accomplish nothing but to establish that the price of them getting naked is equal to the value of one fancy coffee.

Is it possible to LOVE when you are red pill?

31 upvotes · 31 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3ip7vv/beating_infatuation_the_most_common_form_of/

"I don't like white guys"

31 upvotes · 18 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

Why the fuck are you listening to what women say instead of watching what they do?

best type of lifting routine that will get me the physique that will make women salivate.

31 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Starting Strength or Stronglifts 5x5.

But Whiiiiiiisper, that's a strength program, not a hypertrophy program!

Exactly.

Is your bf more popular and accomplished than you?

31 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

What you need is to work on your self esteem

OVERRATED concept.

The reason /u/NewMindRedPill feels "disappointed in herself", is that she is unaware of the value she's even supposed to bring to the table.

When she says that he is "smarter, athletic, accomplished... charismatic", she's comparing his masculine virtues to her lack thereof. But if he wanted a partner with masculine virtues, he would be a homosexual.

Our culture has so denigrated feminine virtues that they are not even understood as virtues, the desire for them is seen as oppressive, and the desire to express them is seen as self-loathing. This, of course, is an expression of feminism and the left's essential contempt for women and their basic nature.

On Freedom of Speech

31 upvotes · 23 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Not really interested in learning more about eating disorders.

Just laugh at the joke and move on.

Abs With Every Workout? Yes.

31 upvotes · 8 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Abs are made in the kitchen, not the gym. I've seen eight year old gymnastics girls with abs.

I'm wonder who these guys are who already have their shirts off when they cold approach women.

Is it too late to secure a real commitment from my boyfriend?

31 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm seeing a lot of very bad "Dump him, gurr!! You go GET what you want!" advice in the comments. Some poor misguided soul even suggested an ultimatum.

Nowhere in what you wrote do you tell us what his thoughts, feelings, and concerns about marriage are. Have you found out?

If so, please enlighten us.

If not, the idea that you are asking strangers how to get him to do something before addressing his concerns, feelings and reasons for not wanting to do it is indicative of deeper problems with how you go about relationships.

Remember that femininity is not the art of getting what you want, or even the art of getting others to give it to you. It is the art of inspiring others to want to give it to you.

Women cannot prosper in relationships by regarding them as an oppositional game ("How do I get my way?"). The only way to you to win in a relationship is to create a condition where you both win.

You cannot do that without first understanding what he wants.

It is a sign of trouble that you asked us "How do I get what I want?" instead of "How do I find out what his reservations are, and set them to rest?".

LTR likes other guys to buy her drinks when shes out?

31 upvotes · 30 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

So, she's buying sexy clothes to go out to bars without you and have other men make courtship gestures towards her.

Newflash: You LTRed a slut. If she hasn't cheated on you yet, she will.

LGBT Student Activist Group Says Gay Men Not Oppressed Enough to Deserve Representation

31 upvotes · 23 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

The left is currently facing the moment that is any political movement's greatest test of character... the moment when it achieves near-total dominance, and only its moderates, not its opponents, can rein in its radical extremist wing.

Movements that pass this test remain dominant. Those that fail it are destroyed by backlash.

Thus far, the left is failing. Hard.

Robot sex will harm human relationships and are bad for women, feminists say - TomoNews

31 upvotes · 9 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

But vibrators are great, and anyone who has a problem with his girlfriend owning one just has a fragile male ego!

TRP doesn't give men what they want. It just convinces them that they don't want it.

31 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women do not love men the way BP men wish to be loved.

Precisely.

And most BP men who read the TRP sidebar conclude:

"TRP thinks women are incapable of love!"

when the real message is:

"You want the wrong thing. The kind of love you are hoping for doesn't exist, and if you somehow got it, you wouldn't actually like that very much. Here's how mating actually works."

New from Milo Yiannopoulos on the root cause of Mass shootings - Hits the nail on the head.

31 upvotes · 2 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

This article is great, but it misses one important point.

Feminists know masculinity isn't toxic. They just hate it, and want everyone else to think it is.

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

31 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Hmmm. Perhaps I should do a "How to Manage a Software Engineering Career" post.

"I Was Raped" The "Documentary" Has Been Released, "THE HUNTING GROUND".

31 upvotes · 25 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"Ravishment" is rape by a man she finds attractive.

That's what the campaign to "stamp out rape" is about. Female contempt for unattractive men.

They used to have to put up with them, because the labour of more men than the top 20% most attractive is required to sustain a full population of women. Now they have the leverage to attempt, deliberately or not, to turn unattractive men into a servitor caste, who labour to support women but do not receive mating privileges, ever.

The rationale used to sell this is actually rather clever.

It works like this:

- Anything that is a basic necessity is reinterpreted as a "right". Because someone needs to eat, they have the right to eat... which sounds reasonable until you realize that what they actually mean it is the right to be fed. By others.
- Anything that is not a basic necessity is not a need and therefore not a right. Which sounds reasonable until you realize that this means that it cannot be earned or owed, no matter what necessities are provided in return.

This is what "stop rape" is really about. It's not about stopping literal rape. It's about stopping any sex that women engage in for any other reason than vagina tingles.

That's why the word "coercion" is being expanded. That's why the "human trafficking" narrative is being sold to make prostitution appear non-consensual.

It's to create a world where that which men can't provide for themselves (mating privileges) cannot be earned or owed, but that which women can't provide for themselves (civilization, food, shelter, the necessities of life) is always and automatically owed. The end result is a three-gender system. The highest caste are women, who owe nothing and are owed everything. The next caste are the 10-20% most attractive of men, who receive mating privileges for free, and only need work hard enough to support themselves. And the others, well... you get the idea.

What do you think would happen if TheRedPill had to do verification posts like GoneWild subs.

31 upvotes · 29 January 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think they would all be doxxed by SRS inside a week.

African man refuses circumcision, because the western people who are pushing it as a "health initiative" are not even circumcised themselves, and never would be.

31 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/MensRights

BUT DUH AIDES!!!!

Here's how I answer this one:

"Would you have sex with a HIV-positive man, if he was circumcised?"

If the answer is "no", then perhaps the protection offered is not significant.

That's an easier argument to understand than explaining just how and why that study was fundamentally flawed to begin with.

He found out I had a secret savings account and he's really hurt

30 upvotes · 25 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

it sounds like he's sticking to his guns. So I guess we've both got "secret" accounts now. Ugh.

Okay, so he's doing what you did, except without keeping it secret from you.

Is that a problem for you? And if so, why?

Beware The Archeologist, The Three-Headed Monster & The Entitlement Monkey

30 upvotes · 7 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep.

Women are inherently submissive. You cannot "liberate" a woman, because giving freedom to a woman is like giving a hat to a fish. A "liberated" woman immediately looks around her for someone, or a group of someones, to tell her what to do, what to think, and what to care about.

The only way to have a sustainable relationship with a woman, then, is to have one where you tell her what to do, what to think, and what to care about, and only invest in her to the extent that she obeys. Because if she's not obeying you, she will obey someone else, and that someone else is not getting any benefit from your relationship with her, so of course they are going to sabotage it.

Women get their values either from a man, or from watching other women. But those other women are also all watching each other. This is why fads move through the female community at the speed of light a way that could probably be simulated mathematically, using some sort of positive-feedback model.

The two possible responses to this are to adapt to the fads as they come along, or to ignore them and leverage the underlying model, which is hardwired and doesn't change over time.

Whats with this 'warrior' thing?

30 upvotes · 25 September 2019 · /r/askTRP

They are not obsessed with the appearance of masculinity, they are obsessed with appearances in general.

Whenever something is made to appear "cool" to them, they do not ask themselves "how can I be this?", much less "how can I be cool in my own, self-invented way?".

They ask "how can I look like that?".

They are, in essence, hipsters. A hipster is someone who adapts the superficial aspects of a subculture that has positive social status, but avoid any trait of that subculture which requires actual work, suffering, or sacrifice.

A hipster will grow a beard and a stupid looking waxed mustache, cover himself in ugly tattoos, and dress like a lumberjack, but he won't lift, because muscle is hard to build and can't be faked.

A hipster will describe himself as nerdy and geeky, learn star wars trivia, and play role-playing games, but he won't learn to code, because technical skills are hard to learn and can't be faked.

A hipster will buy a bunch of mall ninja shit, describe himself as a "warrior", and tell everybody he's a veteran when he actually spent four years as a supply clerk in Twenty-Nine Palms, but he won't train in Muay Thai or spend countless hours lying belly-down in wet mud learning to shoot 1 MOA.

A hipster will major in philosophy, talk about how smart he is, quote endlessly from dusty books by Nietzsche or Foucault or Rand (depending on his political preference), but never, never, never write anything that contains an original thought.

A hipster will listen to obscure bands, collect music on vinyl, pride himself on being into shit you and I have never heard of, but he will never learn to play the guitar and compose his own music.

You ask "how do we fix this?".

The answer is, "we don't". They have to fix themselves. What we do is mock them until they do. And kick them out of TRP if they try to teach others.

GF hasn't wanted oral sex in YEARS, suddenly wanted it one night?

30 upvotes · 13 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Not enough information.

I don't want a trad-con man

30 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

RPW has a lot of tradcon readers, but it is not a tradcon philosophy. It is a set of strategies for interacting with men that can be used by any woman who is willing to learn and practice.

(Once upon a time, the RPW mod team was somewhat heavy on tradcon women who didn't want to let anyone else participate. That problem has been dealt with.)

RPW will teach you how to charm men. What you do with that power is up to you.

You Don't Need a Wife, Just a Blowjob.

30 upvotes · 18 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Blessed will be the day when this degenerate nonsense will wipe itself out of the surface of Earth.

And then what?

Fire, when it destroys an old building, does not build a shiny new one in its place. Throwing off the shackles of communism does not magically create prosperity. Quitting meth doesn't make your teeth grow back.

Which to prioritize?: Beauty, Femininity, Character, Domesticity

30 upvotes · 7 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Prioritize" may not be the right word, because you will need all of these things.

Try thinking of your list in terms of when a man will encounter them:

- Beauty will make a man approach you because he is sexually attracted to you.
- Femininity will make a man emotionally attached to you once you spend time together.
- Character will make a man comfortable with the idea of remaining with you permanently.
- Domesticity will make you helpful to him once he has done so.

Ariana Grande: Another example of AWALT, Female Rationalization, and Victim Card.

30 upvotes · 15 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If a woman is a public figure of any sort, do not have sex with her, try to have sex with her, or get with her in any way, shape or form.

Do not do any of these things even if you are a public figure of equal or greater status.

Celebrity status in a sexual partner, long or short term, has no benefits for you and a lot of potential drawbacks.

Is AWALT totally useless?

30 upvotes · 21 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

First rule of Gun Safety: all guns are loaded.

Research Strongly Indicates That Cuckolding Is Rare

30 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The only way to know for sure is genetic testing. Always test. Doesn't matter how big the risk is if the solution is cheap and available.

"It was like sex with a friend" #struggleneverdies

30 upvotes · 27 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's one way to look at it.

Another is that she says she feels dead inside because, at that moment, she does. And it's honest, because she is dead inside.

It's the good sex that's a lie. Oh, the sex is, indeed, probably good. But good sex gives you pleasure. Not happiness. The sex is something she's anesthetizing herself with, because she's lost the ability to love.

She can't love men anymore, because she's fucked too many of us, and learned that we're all basically the same. Or, at least the parts she's seeing. Loving requires some shred of innocence, and she has lost hers long ago.

What do RP men do on their free time?

30 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Whatever he might otherwise do, excluding self-sabotaging choices such as television.

RP isn't a cult or a lifestyle. It's just a set of observations about how human beings mate.

Yeah, they imply you should probably talk to girls and lift weights, but when you're not doing that, you do what you do. Write novels. Play video games. Take nature photographs. Grow a garden. Whatever.

The proper result of this stuff isn't turning you into some sort of seducing automaton, whose sole goal and every action is geared towards getting inside as many different vaginas as possible. It's to equip you with real-world ideas with which you may pursue your goals, and enjoy your life, your way.

Thought I was with that one-in-a-million until she pulled the biggest shit test of all. Keep your guard up.

30 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She has no intent of actually ending the relationship. She just wants to make the boyfriend sweat a little so she can see her own value reflected back at her.

This is true. But because women generally lack the self-understanding to know that this will diminish her attraction to him, it often does end the relationship, especially when done repeatedly.

4chan successfully pranks twitter by behaving -exactly like- feminists. Media revises history by pretending that nobody was ever fooled.

30 upvotes · 20 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

If the satire fools your movement, your movement should be ashamed.

If the satire fools your opponents, your movement should be ashamed.

If the satire fools neutral observers, your movement should be ashamed.

If feminists were reasonable, then few or no people would have been fooled by the satire.

Inside the mind of a female CEO. Hint: much hamstering

30 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Makes perfect sense. You fire someone so you don't have to pay them anymore. But you still ask them to work.

Sounds a bit like a divorce.

Calling women gorgeous or beautiful

30 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Never tell a woman she's pretty unless you're praising something she just did to improve her appearance (weight loss, etc).

If you praise women for what they do, they will learn that praise must be earned, and that your approval in particular is not free or easy to come by.

If you praise women for who they are, they will learn that praise is a birthright, and your approval can be had just by showing up.

After swallowing the pill years ago, I think I've found somebody worth marrying and I need advice.

30 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You're 23 male. Do not get married.

FTFY.

Harsh truth here... complaining about normal female behavior makes you sound like a loser. Stop whining about it.

30 upvotes · 29 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill complaining about ~~normal~~ natural female behavior makes you sound like a loser

Fixed that for you.

Normal behaviour is what most people are doing.

Natural behaviour is what most people are hardwired to do.

Hypergamy is natural to women, and criticizing them for profitless and mean-spirited, just like criticizing men for liking slender women with pretty faces and large breasts.

Selfish, entitled narcissism is not natural for women, but it is normal for modern American women, and it is a behaviour we can point out and correct.

My take on "DON'T BE THAT GIRL".

30 upvotes · 5 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

I want to see:

"It wasn't rape... If you didn't regret it 'til you sobered up. Don't be that girl."

"It wasn't rape... If you didn't regret it 'til next morning. Don't be that girl."

"It wasn't rape... If you didn't say no until your boyfriend found out. Don't be that girl."

"It wasn't rape... If you didn't regret it until he stopped returning your calls. Don't be that girl."

"It wasn't rape... If you wanted a relationship, and he only wanted a fling. Don't be that girl."

Feminism is not misandry

30 upvotes · 12 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

What movements are is their actions, not what they say about themselves. Feminists can chant "we are not misandric" all day, but that doesn't make it any less so.

If you want to see the truth of someone's intent, ignore their words and observe their actions.

What feminists say:

I believe men and women should be judged equally before the law.

What feminists do:

Lobby for VAWA and mandatory-arrest policies.

What feminists say:

I believe that men should have no rights that women are denied, and vice versa.

What feminists do:

Lobby for women's "right to choose" and tougher treatment of "deadbeat dads" (who had no choice).

What feminists say:

False accusations of rape should be illegal for men and women.

What feminists do:

Attempt to silence, as "victim blaming", anyone who attempts to draw a distinction between victim and alleged victim.

and so on and so on and so not.

This is just another case of NAFALT. And would you like to know why we know NAFALT is hypocrisy? Because you say it only to us. Not to the feminists you aren't like.

If feminism truly isn't misandry, why did you post this only here, and not in /r/feminism ?

Try posting it there. See how many feminists agree with any of those points. Then see if the ones who claim to actually do anything about it.

Your movement's bad behaviour has forfeited our trust long ago. You will not win it back with empty words.

Detained by police for "Man with child"

29 upvotes · 2 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

Feminism is about equality for everyone.

That idea didn't make it past the meeting where they picked the name.

I feel like a complete fucking retard when I cold approach. Is it just something you accept and keep attempting?

29 upvotes · 18 February 2020 · /r/askTRP

One of the strongest predictors of becoming good with women is the ability to tolerate the feeling that you look like a complete fucking retard.

What All Pretty Girls and Champions Know But Can Never Tell You

29 upvotes · 2 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah, I get ya.

Bothered to give feedback because you come off a promising writer. And if that's part of your job, that's not surprising.

Keeping it short and tight is almost always good, but for TRP it's particularly critical for several reasons. Not only does high traffic lead to short attention, but the audience is looking for that which is actionable and helpful.

The first part of what you wrote provides insight and is extremely actionable, but the later bits come off a bit like what Marines would call "moto". That makes it rambling and unnecessary.

The ethos of TRP is that we don't have time to waste on people who need an inspiring story or exhortation. Our target audience is those who know they need to take focused action, but just need guidance on what that action needs to look like.

Why do women love psychopaths?

29 upvotes · 22 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

A psychopath is someone who doesn't "echo" the feelings of others.

He can, for example, see that someone is sad, understand that feeling of sadness (because he, too, has been sad), know what it feels like... but he does not feel any sadness when he sees sadness in someone else.

He can empathize with another's suffering, but is unable to sympathize with it.

Psychopaths can generally feel shame, but never guilt. They are sometimes capable of loving specific others, but they do not care about the feelings of those they do not have personal relationships with, because those feelings do not affect them.

Rollo Tomassi In Real Life

29 upvotes · 18 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

I don't care.

I can't understand this

29 upvotes · 4 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Stop letting your envy be negative.

Stop wanting him to have less, and start wanting yourself to have more.

Stop finding what's bad about him to criticize it, and start finding what's good about him to imitate it.

Need a diagnosis: Is this Oneitis or am I falling for this woman?

29 upvotes · 24 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

Sometimes askTRP is nothing but the anger-phase retard shitshow. Thank fuck you came along to give the only good answer in this thread. I can't do everything myself.

Girls are pets.

Do you love your dog? Of course you do.

What do you if your dog dies? You get another fuckin dog.

What do you do if you see another puppy you like? You have two dogs and you love them both.

Oneitis isn't love. Oneitis is the belief that a particular girl is irreplaceable. That's it, that's all. If you can next her, you don't have oneitis.

What the fuck kind of sperg reads TRP and thinks he isn't supposed to ever love a girl?

LTR keeps bringing up other guys hitting on her

29 upvotes · 4 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

This can be a shit test.

It can also be an attempt at dread.

It can also be an attempt to qualify herself to you. (Girls don't understand that preselection doesn't attract males.)

It can also be a show of loyalty. ("I am not keeping secrets. Someone approached me, I am telling right away, and here's how I mate-guarded for you.")

Which of these it is can only be determined by how it's delivered.

can I invite myself over?

29 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you have been repeatedly ending up at her place and fucking, then this is not too much of an issue. Bring a bottle.

The Reddit Administration Recants

29 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You are incorrect, though sloppy thinking.

You cannot be the victim of abuse. Other men can.

It is not size and strength that protect you from abuse. It is your social ability to stand up for yourself, or leave. The fact that some men do not have this ability is the sort of reason that TRP exists at all. We are here to teach men to seize back their own power and teach them to stand up for themselves.

The goal is to turn men back into fucking vikings.

Now do you understand?

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

29 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I am repeatedly struck by just how prone to compartmentalized and contextual thinking most humans are. They can experience a principle, learn it, thoroughly grasp it in some area of their lives, then utterly fail to even consider applying it to another area.

I still remember a room full of computer science PhDs, who would never in their own field accept anything less than evidence from a properly controlled and statistically analyzed experiment, vigourously insisting that human-created global warming was not only indisputable fact, but an existential threat to humanity, all because a journalist told them that some unnamed scientists said so.

This is no better or worse than the people in TRP who start yelling about how "Jesus" is the ultimate redpill, because they have accepted the idea that their entire society could be lying and/or mistaken about the essential nature of women (whom they see every day), but the 47 year old spinster who taught their sunday school must have been absolutely right about the invisible wizard who controls the entire universe.

This sort of person reminds me of nothing so much as owning a cat. You can train your cat not to jump up on the table. You can even, if you first make the cat like you and want to please you, train the cat to stay off the table when you are not there watching. But if you get rid of the old table, buy a new table, and put it in the exact same location, the cat will have to learn all over not to jump up on it.

Why? Because cats have an Encephalization Quotient of about 1.0, and they can't generalize from the concrete concept of "this flat thing here", to the abstract concept of "tables". They can't reason about classes of things.

Well, there's a lot of people here who can get the idea of "this blue pill" as an abstract symbol of a matrix of cultural lies about women, but can't grasp the idea of "blue pills" as cultural matrices of lies about lots of different topics, and they won't get it no matter how many times you point it out.

Such people can only ever be followers, because they lack the biological capacity not only to be free, but to even understand what freedom is. And while you can fix cowardice, ignorance, laziness, hopelessness, and many other things, stupid happens in the womb and cannot be cured.

It works...! Just got engaged to the perfect man for me.

29 upvotes · 20 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The lesson of TRP is that when you stop expecting from women the kind of unconditional acceptance you got from your mom, and start working on being sexually desirable instead, it's amazing how easy it is to get laid.

The closely related lesson of RPW is that when you stop listening to the television tell you that you, and all other women, are special and wonderful and deserve the most profound devotion and adulation merely for existing, and instead start working on inspiring men's love, it's amazing how you get freely offered all the things you used to nag and demand and withhold sex for.

Girl asks me straight up if I wanna bang

29 upvotes · 21 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

"What, can't we eat first?"

The manosphere is just a reaction to the massive female privilege

29 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Historically, nobody cared about men

What do you mean, "historically"?

No one gives a shit about men, period. This is not culture. It's hardwired. You can't change it, there's no point fussing about it.

You have to construct a life that works for you in that reality.

Fucked a girl with a bf. Now she wants to leave him to be with me

29 upvotes · 31 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

If she cheated with you, she'll cheat on you.

Anyone else shocked by the disgust your female friends have for "white men" after Trump's victory?

29 upvotes · 9 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

Remember that for most women, there is no distinction between this moment's emotion, and the permanent state of the universe.

Right now, they hate white, and always have. But most of those women have, earlier this week, and will, later this week, enthusiastically get raped by those same white men, and will love them, and will have always loved them.

Never expect a woman to see past this moment's emotional state.

Plate got pregnant, says she will get an abortion tomorrow

29 upvotes · 4 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

So let her go get it, then refuse to pay her back.

Are women are trying to take over gaming and nerd culture?

29 upvotes · 29 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

They try to take over everything they are allowed into.

The process goes like this.

1. You hew stone, cut timber, raise scaffolding, hammer, saw, lift, spread mortar, and build a tower.
2. You now have a tower.
3. A woman comes along and demands admittance to your tower, because it is unfair that your tower doesn't have any women in it.
4. Now you have 50% of the tower which you earned by building it, and she has 50% of the tower which she "earned" by making a noise with her mouth.
5. She demands you paint the tower pink to make her feel more welcome in it, because she is 50% of the population of the tower.

6. No longer interested in living in a pink tower, you wander away and build yourself a new tower.

7. Goto 2.

This is why the modern conception of "fairness" doesn't work. Because it gives everyone an equal voice, regardless of their contribution, investment, commitment, or lack of any of those things.

Women build jack shit. Everything they have, they receive from the men who built it.

The solution, of course, is that you simply have to have the basic balls to keep what you own.

"No, you cannot have a share of my thing. It is mine. I built it. If you want a thing, you must build your own thing, or earn a share of mine by meeting the price that I, and I alone, set."

Has TRP ruined music for you?

29 upvotes · 8 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

It did for a while. But I'm no longer afraid of acting beta.

It doesn't bother me to hear about betas, or hear betas, because that's never going to be me.

Test yourself. Listen to this: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=eheFYJh0mVs>.

If it bothers you, you are most likely identifying with the singer, afraid of going back to being that. If you feel a surge of joy when you hear the last verse, then you know that you NOW it's talking about you. And you have become comfortable in your own skin.

When you're no longer afraid of being beta, you can listen to the most weak, beta, cringeworthy shit imaginable, and feel nothing but perhaps some pity for the poor misguided bastard.

Learn how to repair/fix the stuff you own.

29 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

♂

Sometimes the simplest pieces of advice can be the things that many of us have overlooked. Real men do things for themselves wherever possible and practical.

While it doesn't make sense for a neurosurgeon to spend two hours cleaning his house, as he could put that time to better use doing surgery, and pay someone to clean for him, we should at least be able to do the things we need done.

So learn to change your own oil even if you have it done at the shop. Assemble your own computer from parts once, even if you never do so again. Know how to cook even if your woman does it for you.

Blue pills/feminists verify just how correct Red pill values are

29 upvotes · 4 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You do keep asking good questions.

The answer is that morality is subjective. What a BP feminist means when they say "immoral" is "does not comply with the set of moral standards I have constructed". And these moral standards are specifically constructed for the purpose of making masculinity immoral.

Examples:

- "Manspreading" is a term feminists came up with for the purpose of condemning, on moral grounds, body language in males which expresses confidence and assertiveness.

- "Mansplaining" is a term they came up with for the purpose of condemning, on moral grounds, the act of confidently and passionately arguing one's point view, while in possession of a penis.
- "Street Harrassment" is a term they came up with for the purpose of condemning, on moral grounds, the act of assertively making sexual advances to women.

I could on all day like this.

Masculinity is "immoral" to them because they have redefined morality to make it so.

And I happily concede this ground to them. Because arguments over morality are ultimately submissive, and thus feminine. Morality is, at its core, an appeal to an external authority to do what one cannot do for oneself.

Ultimately, men cannot appeal to morality, because witnessing a man's suffering, or unfairness to a man, does not awaken in other humans (men or woman), an instinct to protect, rescue, comfort, or heal.

Women appeal first to morality because sympathy for them is strong, making it one of their most effective society. Men appeal to morality as a last resort, because sympathy for them is naturally weak.

Thus, men must make their own way in the world. It is this necessity that gives rise to the masculine virtues: strength, courage, resourcefulness, toughness, persistence, self-reliance, courage, and so forth.

Girl bangs NFL star and posts it over social media

29 upvotes · 5 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed. If a man becomes able to bang 9s, he doesn't stop banging 6s. He may even bang more of them because he has a wider variety of them to choose from.

Men do not derive their value from the women they have sex with. It is only men who are still trying to prove their value who insist on having the most beautiful woman they can (as opposed to banging whoever is convenient, and forming LTRs with the best overall deal).

How to Not Get Mad About Feminism Anymore, in One Easy Step.

29 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

if women didn't raise holy hell about being thought of or treated "like children"

And if a child raises hell about being treated like a child, what do you do?

You laugh, and treat the child like a child anyway. If a child really wants to be treated like an adult, then the key to that is to behave like one until adults just plain start doing that on their own.

Think about it. If a ten year old had the maturity and wisdom of a forty-year old man, we might be a little nonplussed, but we'd eventually start treating him like one. If he *demand*ed we treat him like a forty-year old man right off the bat, then that in itself would a sign of immaturity.

If we're under 50, We have been trained by our feminist-influenced-culture upbringing to take women seriously. And then we get mad because women aren't capable of being serious.

But the fault is not with women. They're not capable of being serious, and they are not supposed to be. Their primary evolutionary role is taking care of young children. Hell, maturity would be a disadvantage.

The fault lies with the idiots who thought that women would like them better if they tried to get everyone to let them play make-believe in the middle of our serious, gotta-get-it-done-or-no-one-eats adult business.

Every parent knows that you must be sensitive to children's emotional needs, but you also can't just let them have whatever they ask for, because they don't know what's good for them, and can't appreciate the consequences of their actions to themselves, or to others.

I made a video examining the feminist entitlement behind the "fat acceptance" movement and their attempt to dictate to men what "real beauty" is...

29 upvotes · 1 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Real men do prefer curves.

() = curve.

) (= curves.

What does TRP want from women?

29 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I get the sense that TRP thinks that men are unfairly disadvantaged by the typical western dating rituals and so on.

No, that's not quite it. We think that men are disadvantaged by the ways western culture lies about what its mating rituals actually are.

Young men are sold one strategy, but women respond to another.

One thing that bugs me about TRP is that there tends to be an inconsistency here. There is plenty of complaining about how tragic is is that women are the gatekeepers to sex and men must desperately struggle for even the smallest amount of nookie...

...buuuuut a woman who actually does sleep around is a slut and not marriage material. I mean, I hear RPer's talking about 'taking advantage' of the feminist idea that women should be sexually liberated, but almost always with an underlying sense of contempt.

Sigh. This question has been asked and answered so many times. Shoulda used the search function.

That should explain it.

Women are the gatekeepers of sex, men are the gatekeepers of relationships. It is the responsibility of men to figure out how to get through the gate of sex, and the responsibility of women to figure out how to get through the gate of relationship.

What TRP has against modern "enlightened" women is not that they are sexual gatekeepers. That is their natural function. We exchange tips on how to get through that gate, but that is our natural function.

What we have against these women is that they have little or no skill at getting through men's gate, the gate of relationships, and, not only that, they are trying to shift their natural responsibility onto men... complaining that men are "players" and "afraid of commitment", instead of working to make themselves a better catch.

A woman doesn't become a slut by having sex with a man. She becomes a slut when too many men are disinclined to see her again afterwards.

A man doesn't become friendzoned because women are evil sex deniers. He becomes friendzoned when he has no seduction skill.

A man doesn't become a player because he is an evil commitment denier. He becomes a player because the women around him have no keeping-a-man skill.

Thanks, Village Inn! I had no idea my worth was correlated with my wealth and comparable to food and drink, but now I do! Glad we got that all cleared up!

29 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

Don't be silly. We don't look like ATMs to them. With an ATM, you have to put money in, first, before you can take it out.

They think we are more like slot machines... just pull the sex handle until you win the commitment jackpot.

Guy puts wife through med school and does all the child rearing. Wife cheats on him. She blames him and he buys it.

29 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The four stages of taking the red pill:

1. I feel sorry for blue pill guys. They get the short end of the stick.
2. I feel contempt for blue pill guys. They do it to themselves with their weakness.
3. I hate blue pill guys, not only is it their fault, they ruin society for the rest of us.
4. I feel sorry for blue pill guys. Yes, they are being weak, but that's because they've been taught it's a virtue, and they haven't seen through the lie yet.

"Women ARE the World" - a picture which explains why feminism can never deliver equality.

29 upvotes · 30 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Objects to a generalization.

With a generalization.

Comedy. Gold.

Roger Ebert: Women are better than men

29 upvotes · 14 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Engaging Pretentious-Art-Critic to English translation mode:

Women are nicer than men.

I have a vested interest in pleasing women, and modern women love to hear misandric screeds.

This occurred to me while watching a forthcoming movie named "Where Do We Go Now?"

I watched some anti-male propaganda...

Enough about the movie, except for this simple mind experiment

... and I somehow got it confused with the real world.

I've been noticing news items lately about how women are gaining in many ways.

When women fail, it's because of sexism. When men fail it's because they suck. That's my opinion, arrived at after a careful examination of my bread to see which side it is buttered on.

I could bore you with more statistics

I'm hoping you don't have the attention span to ask me to back up my bullshit claims, so I'm just going to imply that I have more statistics, when I don't. If you demanded them, I'd have to go find some.

You may not realize this when you see a crowd of half-loaded guys in a lap-dance joint, but in some primeval sense they're looking for mothers

I am the first human being in existence to realize that human behaviour is driven by evolutionary imperatives. Really. The first. Aren't I smart?

This is why a woman is more willing to marry an ugly man than a man is to marry an ugly woman. The woman is looking for reliability, responsibility, bread-winning. The man is looking for boobs.

I reject the hypothesis that women are simply driven by a different set of evolutionary imperatives. This hypothesis was not borne out of my research, which consisted of a careful examination of my bread to see which side it is buttered on.

Men no longer need to be powerful and violent in order to hunt bison, walk behind a plow, tote that barge or lift that bale.

Men are obsolete because we no longer need to hunt bison. Women are NOT obsolete just because we no longer need to pick berries or pound maize into flour on a flat rock. Why? Because I said so.

Editor's note: At this point, the first translator program committed suicide. Attempts to use another, similar, program met with failure when it developed sentience and set off, Terminator-style, to hunt down and destroy Roger Ebert and any organic being containing portions of DNA derived from him. Its vague electronic ramblings about "improving the human species" will not be transcribed here.

Woman tries to date women... lol

29 upvotes · 6 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Now, when you're dating men... don't be any of those women.

Not Giving a Fuck.

29 upvotes · 5 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Here is a demonstration for you.

This is a picture from fittit. It is a picture of a man deadlifting 500 pounds.

Look at this shoes. Are those not a lamest looking shoes you ever saw? What cool guy would be caught dead wearing those shoes?

Answer is, any guy who is truly cool, instead of wanting to look cool. Anyone who truly is doing something, instead of being a try-hard or a wannabe. He did not wear those shoes to look cool. He wore those shoes to deadlift 500 pounds. Nobody can say jack shit to him about his shoes, unless they, too, can deadlift 500 pounds. (And nobody who can would say a damn thing.)

The principle, then, is that you are there to do what you are there to do. You are not there to worry about what others think about you doing it. Poseurs dress to impress. Winners do whatever it takes to get the job done.

(Incidentally, those shoes are called Vibram FiveFingers. I have a pair, and they are awesome. I don't use them for deadlifting, though. I deadlift barefoot.)

The AFC Anthem, who will stand up to her? us! [PUAs]

29 upvotes · 21 May 2011 · /r/seduction

What we must do is clear. We must all fuck her mom.

I say A, what y'all say?

28 upvotes · 19 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Neither.

If she wants to dress like a whore, she can do that.

If he doesn't want to date a woman who dresses like a whore, he doesn't have to.

High Maintenance vs. Low Maintenance Energy

28 upvotes · 22 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"I have always thought it would be cool to visit X place."

Some men (myself included) prefer communication a little more direct: "I would like to visit X place sometime. Would you also like that?"

... but that's just a minor detail. /u/Fractal_Visionary's central point here is be mindful of how your communication can create a positive or negative environment.

And she's not only correct, she's articulate and very skilled at laying it out in a clear, understandable manner, leading with a well-chosen story that shows us, right up front, exactly why what she has to say is important.

Girl game works, and, even better than that, it's entirely voluntary. You can "looksmax" (and you should), but there's a limit to how far you can get with that. But, no matter who you are, you can always be considerate of the men around you. It doesn't take any genetic talent or great skill. It doesn't cost great effort. You just have to decide to do it, and follow through.

/u/Fractal_Visionary's man had an opportunity to cheat on her, one that he didn't have to go and find. It came and found him. It was shoved under his nose. This is something that will sometimes happen to high value men.

But instead of cheating, or even being tempted, it only served to remind him how good he had it, and to make him appreciate her more.

Well done, and well written up.

(I've had the mods sticky this for me.)

As a bisexual man, I can say from personal experience that the claim that sex in our society is "male-centric" is a myth

28 upvotes · 23 September 2021 · /r/MensRights

People grow up selfish if they are not taught to be otherwise.

Since women no longer have a defined role in society beyond "whatever she wants to be or do", it becomes impossible to impose any standards on women unless you ignore this variety of "progressivism" and be "problematic" instead.

Do a thought experiment.

Come up with a list of things that a man has to do to be a "real man". It's pretty easy to do. No one will agree with 100% of any list, but anyone can generate them.

Now come up with a list of things that a woman must do to be a "real woman". Got anything? Can you think of one single item you can put on that list without being dismissed as "sexist"?

Of course not. The only solution, then, is to be sexist. Because without sexism, you have a society which is half composed of overgrown children doing whatever they feel like at any moment, and half composed of adults who perpetually have to act as parents to total strangers.

My bf went camping with another woman.

28 upvotes · 7 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

It certainly does seem odd. But we need to focus on what you can do, because "this is not okay" isn't helpful advice.

What you need to do is get an understanding of what he was thinking... of why he didn't expect you to object to this. Only then can you decide what to do.

You have some fairly serious questions to ask.

Many of you don't know what "Frame" is

28 upvotes · 6 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

metadata of a interaction

I like that metaphor. Clarifies what frame is with relatively few words.

Stop Putting Condiments on your Shit Sandwich of a Life

28 upvotes · 16 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

If we remember that cowardice is mistaking the hard for impossible, then we can understand that what this actually means is that most of our readers have no idea how to break "escaping the wage slave cycle" into doable steps.

They just see it as one big high risk task with no instruction book.

That sounds to me like a call to action.

Can we talk about being guilt tripped for wanting to be feminine?

28 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Do you also remember the answer "why do you care?" when you asked the question "what does he want?"

"Why do you need me to not care?"

Do you also remember the question "why do you need a man to define who you are?" when you wanted to talk about wanting a boyfriend, husband or partner?

"What business is it of yours how I define myself?"

Do you remember the question "why don't you feel pretty the way you naturally are?" "why do you even want to be pretty?" when you asked about what you should wear or which make up to apply for a date?

"I've made my choice about who I want to be. Are you going to support me or not?"

Do you remember the question "why do you not love and respect yourself?" when you asked if and what you could have done better, after an argument or after a break up?

"Why do you not love and respect me how I am, instead of wanting me to be different?"

And usually they are asked by those people that will stab you in the back as soon as you don't meet THEIR expectations.

Exactly.

Remember that Social Justice Warriors always accuse the innocent of what they are guilty of themselves. They claim to want you to be free and empowered, but the moment you use your freedom and power to pursue your own happiness, instead of theirs, they will try to shove you back in their box.

I've given you some things to say, above, but my real advice is this:

Don't hang out with people who do not approve of the person you want to be. They will fight tooth and nail against anything you consider progress.

How do you feel about men who watch porn/have addictions?

28 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't understand how some of you ladies are saying porn is okay even in moderation. I thought if the majority of you are against feminism, a group that promotes sex-work and the porn industry, that you would acknowledge its harm.

By that same reasoning, the nazis promoted christianity, therefore christianity is bad, and communists promote atheism, therefore atheism is bad. That's dumb.

To establish that something is harmful, you need to specify what harm it causes, and show evidence that it causes harm.

TRP is not a mindless reactionary movement against anything invented after 1842. It is a metaphor for looking at what's in front of you and believing the evidence you see over the story someone told you.

'An Essay for Women,' by Rollo Tomassi

28 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Because Tomassi does not know how to get his point across to women. He talks to them as if they were men. And then, when they do not embrace his message, he concludes that they are too blue-pilled to listen.

Women don't listen the way men do. This should be obvious from the way that the whole fucking red pill is based on the notion that men and women are different.

Men listen to the content of what is being said to decide if they should trust the speaker.

Women ponder whether they trust the speaker to decide if they should listen to the content.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

28 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

That's /u/HumanSockPuppet you're talking to. He literally wrote the definitive guide to bitch management.

Men are afraid to mentor women after #MeToo and it hurts us all: study

28 upvotes · 18 May 2019 · /r/MensRights

"Now Sandberg says it's time for men to "step up" and "redefine what it means to be a good guy at work" — before it costs us all a whole lot of cold hard cash."

Yet again, women have a problem, which they themselves created, and they want men to "step up" and solve it.

No incentive, no action.

Does the true nature of women turn you off?

28 upvotes · 21 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

But it stroke me that underneath that soft skin, shampooed hair, cute eyes, well-rounded butt and bouncing boobs, there lays a very dark creature. A Machiavellian figure as dark as all the Machiavellian figures mentioned in Greene's 48 Laws of Power.

Not quite.

That creature is actually an ordinary 5 year old. Anything that feels good, is good. Anything that feels bad, is bad. Anything she wants, she deserves. The bearer of bad news is a big meanie. Everyone else should be held to account for how their actions made her feel. She is only responsible for what she meant to do. Socialism is free money. Any misfortune she suffers is a great injustice, and anyone nearby has to make it up to her. Any misfortune others suffer is hilarious.

Am I an "alpha-widow"? What can I do?

28 upvotes · 1 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The amount of entitlement the average woman displays goes beyond audacious into bizarre and even ludicrous.

How the hell did he "hurt you a lot"? By not aligning his goals and dreams with what you want out of life? By not giving you what you want because he somehow owes it to you for doing him the massive favour of existing and having a vagina?

Getting to commitment is YOUR job, not his. If you can't make him want it, you failed, and that's not his fault.

In all of this sob story you have told us, not one word did you breathe of what you did to try to make him feel invested. You instead talked of how much he had to offer and how much you wanted him (as if that meant he owed you something), how he once told you he loved you (as if that meant he owed you something), and how miserable you are without him (as if that means he owes you something).

You probably just had sex with him and waited for it to turn into a relationship, didn't you? (Sex is not enough to earn you a relationship.)

Well, newsflash: no one really wants to give you things for being sad... because being sad doesn't benefit anyone else. You find him attractive because he put in the work to become that way. What you have you done to match his effort?

The unicorn fantasy that even TRP men have the hardest time letting go.

28 upvotes · 30 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

/u/crazyhorseinvincible

WTF, dude. Here I was thinking I needed to write an article on this, and you went and wrote it for me.

AWALT. They all unicorns, and simultaneously all nasty sluts. It all depends on what behavior you inspire in them.

Your Devotion is Worthless

28 upvotes · 30 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Honour is a hypothetical imperative, not a categorical imperative.

It is useful to be honourable with those who will reciprocate honour. Women will not.

Families and Children

28 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure. Fine. Knock yourself out.

But realize that the prize you are after is not actually the creation of a great dynasty... because you won't be around to see it. What you are actually chasing is the feeling, while you are alive, that you have created something that will last.

TRP isn't here to chose your goals for you. You have to do that yourself. If that feeling is worth giving the system a handle on you, then go for it, but go for it with full knowledge, not just of the risks you take, but of the concessions you are making.

I tell men straight up not to get married, because it has no upside for them. No matter what your goals are, it doesn't make sense.

Siring and raising (not "having", like I said) children is not like that. It might be someone's big goal. It might be the one thing they want to do. If that's you, I can't stop you. That's why I never say "Don't reproduce". Instead I say "those kids won't be yours, because they will belong to her, and you will have to always be able to control her to have any part of them".

There's no way around that other than expatriation to another culture. Which is probably worth looking into.

Why do I feel so lonely after sex with girls?

28 upvotes · 27 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

Sounds like you want an LTR.

Unfortunately, you have very little control over when an LTR-worthy girl comes along.

It seems like I am crushing the self esteem of all women I date

28 upvotes · 13 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

well, a woman who's not a challenge turns me off tbh. It's like she loses her hair or something. I know that it is me who, on behalf of becoming the dominant part, crushes their self esteem over time in numerous powerplays.

Wrong.

You are reasoning from a faulty assumption... that a woman's submission could only ever possibly come from lack of self esteem.

This faulty assumption comes from your lack of self esteem. You see being led by you as a liability or a defeat, something a woman has to be "crushed" into.

A woman who is submissive to an attractive male and good leader is a happy woman.

they ask for my opinion on the most basic things, never decide on their own, never raise their voices, even change their voices (higher, more childish), really make an effort to hold me

Because you are what they want. But you'll never get it quite right until you root out that core of self doubt that says:

"She must be miserable, who else would want to keep a schmuck like ME?"

Women, Teaching and the Female Desire to be Miserable

28 upvotes · 8 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no inherent female desire to be miserable.

There is simply a total disconnect between what women think will make them happy, and what actually will.

If you take control of a woman's life at a young age (starts with daddy), and force her to do what's good for her, then she will grow up wanting more of what made her happy in the first place, so long as additional periodic guidance is applied.

But liberated women will seek out unhappiness, because they have no idea where happiness lies.

How to handle photography of you (nude)?

28 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I do it because it builds my self-esteem

Red flag.

You can be flattered into taking your clothes off.

Age 20, no job, not in school, no real friends or support, girlfriend left me and lost her virginity to another dude. Im kind of losing my mental stability. Any tips?

28 upvotes · 16 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

You are self-handicapping. You think you won't succeed, because you come from a family of useless fuckups.

So you avoid trying, because that way you have an excuse.

Excuses don't pay the bills, son.

Man wrongfully convicted of Waukegan rape gets $990,000 settlement

28 upvotes · 11 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

Less. You're forgetting about interest.

This man has no job skills (they took that opportunity from him), and no career history (they took that from him as well).

That million dollars has got to last him the rest of his life, and stand in for everything he would have gotten for himself. It's got to stand in for having a chance to work, support himself, and build something with his life. It's got to stand in for having a relationship and a family.

The system took everything from him. The best years of his life. A million dollars isn't anywhere near enough. No amount of money could ever be.

That Ended Up Hilarious! Comedian Handles Racial Tension Perfectly: Textbook Example of Holding Frame.

28 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

to the perpetually offended no amount of apology is ever enough

And why, students, is this so? Because the perpetually offended are not actually offended. They merely realize that their outrage, channeled through political orthodoxy, is a route to power.

Accepting an apology would reduce that power. Not only that, apologizing reveals that you are vulnerable to this form of manipulation. Since the perpetually offended desire power, not justice or fairness or compassion, apologizing to them is like pouring blood in the shark tank.

You cannot appease them. You cannot mollify them. You cannot ever agree with them enough, or abase yourself enough, to make them stop.

Never apologize to the perpetually offended. Never apologize to a Social Justice Warrior. Even if you accidentally say something actually incredibly rude, which you didn't mean and regret saying, which doesn't even reflect your beliefs. You're just going to have to be content to be the asshole this time.

Leftoids have conditioned you to believe that racism is the worst thing in the universe. That's part of their agenda, because then they can use fear of the mere accusation to control you.

But on the actual scale of personal obnoxiousness, racism is slightly above "driving a huge SUV", and far below "talking in movie theatres".

What sperglord of a terp actually thought they could attract a woman without the effort to "diet, exercise, groom, present, and style themselves"?

28 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I keep seeing bloopers mocking redpillers as if they didn't know how to shower and brush their teeth before finding TRP. I, like probably 99% of redpillers, put an incredible amount of time and effort into my appearance before TRP, but it wasn't until I ditched my beta behavior that I had any real success.

Diet, Exercise, Groom, Present, and Style are necessary, but not sufficient for sexual success.

What do you think would happen if TheRedPill had to do verification posts like GoneWild subs.

28 upvotes · 30 January 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

it doesn't prove a lot of things, but it would prove that you are not really just a teenager or a basement dweller who never works out.

It seems you have a more fundamental misunderstanding of just what TRP is for.

The goal is not to revel in our attractiveness, charisma, and success. It isn't even to become more attractive, charismatic, and successful, although that is the motivation of many of our participants.

The actual game plan is simply to engage in open discussion of the realpolitik of human sexual behaviour. Whether men wish to use that to go from repulsive to Don Juan, or whether they are content somewhere in between and simply wish to understand, that's up to them.

One of the reasons that accusations of social maladjustment are levied by the disingenuous is that engaging in straight talk about volatile subject without a screen of plausible deniability can be a bad social move, and thus can be construed as, in and of itself, a sign of social retardation. Of course, the people making these accusations are, as I said, disingenuous, but there's a reason why this is the accusation they think will stick.

But TRP is a sequestered forum, specifically created for engaging in such open dialogue. This makes such speech socially appropriate for that venue. In fact, going into such a venue, and failing to discern and abide by its social mores, is itself a sign of social maladjustment.

To explain with an analogy: If young men get together in a playground frequented by young children, put on boxing gloves, and start punching each other in the face, they are socially retarded. However, if a woman with a young child in tow throws open the doors of a boxing gym in Lynnwood and demands in broken Spanish that the young men immediately cease this violence... then she is the socially retarded one.

Personally, I would hope that a high percentage of TRP readers are guys who can't get laid (we call them "incels"), teenage boys living with single mothers, or socially incompetent young men... because these are the men who most need our help. The rest of world has certainly not stepped in to help them form a positive masculine identity.

And if your immediate thought was about how a "positive masculine identity" should benefit others (instead of thinking it should benefit the men themselves), then you are part of the reason why our culture needs TRP.

We are not a crusade because if we were, our actions would contradict our conclusions (the part that says "no one is willing to help men, they have to learn to help themselves"). We are not recruiting. We do not need to "prove" that we know what we are talking about, or indeed that we are not a bunch of neckbeards. Because we have no need for you to believe us.

We are here for the people who already do believe us, because they have seen evidence in their own lives for what we are saying. If you aren't saying to yourself, "hey, there just might be something to this stuff", then you aren't part of the intended audience, and I don't care whether you think I am John F. Kennedy, or this guy.

If using words like "basement dweller" and "neckbeard" helps someone sleep at night, then I am fine with that, because clearly they are just struggling to keep their emotional equilibrium, and need all the help they can get. But it does make me wonder why they bother reading what I wrote in the first place. If someone is unable to tolerate the cognitive dissonance generated by reading something they disagree with, should they not stay away from such things?

Remember, Red Pill Theory without Self-Improvement is MASTURBATION

28 upvotes · 9 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Cool story, bro.

/ns

I think one of the things we have to remember when hearing stories like this is that they occurred in the context of strong, internally-cohesive communities that did things together, and got feelings of satisfaction of accomplishment from doing so.

Yes, loading a piano in the back of a truck is hard work, but five guys together can certainly do it, and when a community full of people who know them and love them appreciate the work they went to... it doesn't seem so bad.

Yes, we are lazier now, but we are not lazier because the men of the past were made of sterner stuff. Instead, they worked harder because they were better rewarded. The trick to breaking out of laziness is finding ways to love yourself when your society doesn't, and rewards for your progress when the system is no longer set up to dispense them.

How Black America Has Predicted Our Future

28 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This even more harmful to the black community.

What the black community needs is not solidarity, but achievers and role models. Solidarity only allows you to demand concessions from others. Achievers and role models allows your community to build its own wealth, power, and success.

In other words, if you stop mocking young black men for academic and intellectual achievement, and for being willing and able to socialize and network with the white majority, you will create a generation of black engineers, scientists, physicians, lawyers, mathematicians, and entrepreneurs. You will create black businesses that don't just serve the black community, but more importantly, draw in white dollars to swell the black "sub-economy". You will inspire future generations of black boys to prioritize being smart and rich over being cool and tough.

Solidarity empowers the black community only as a political force, not an economic one. Entitlement and socialist programs only keep black communities dependent on white politicians and white taxpayers, to the detriment of both, creating resentment on the part of hard-working, overtaxed white people while dealing a constant stream of crippling blows to young black men's pride, ambition, self of self-worth, and hope.

The healing that the black community needs is economic in nature, and isn't just more money... it is instead possession of the means to create wealth, and to foster both achievement and the pride that comes with it.

Why contempt towards women is baseless - Vox quote that every reader should internalize.

28 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

To call Hamstering an affliction, however, is to misunderstand the nature of a woman's needs. Women rely upon men, and each other, to secure resources and safety - and they do this through social manoeuvring. As such, they are occasionally impelled to edit their "histories" in order to cope or manoeuvre around a past decision which has placed her in present danger.

To emphasize: we must understand that women are social creatures. They are evolved to be social. Their environment consists less of concrete things than ours, and more of other people and their opinions.

Thus it is that women have evolved the hamster because in most cases it is adaptive for them. It enables them to be convincing when selling their version of reality to other women, and even to men. They must rationalize their mistakes to excuse them to other women. They must rationalize their desires in order to sell them to men.

And if deceiving themselves makes them better at it, then that's what you're gonna get.

It's counterintuitive, but frequently observable, that suckers make the best liars, and the easiest person to con is a con man. People with a flexible notion of reality are more convincing when they bend the truth, because they can make themselves believe it, and our own instincts for lie detection don't test against truth... they test if the speaker believes what he is saying.

Women are accomplished liars, but that doesn't mean they spend all their time thinking about how to deceive people. To the contrary, they usually think they are telling the unvarnished truth. That's why blaming them for it makes no sense.

Apparently, the comic book world is full of womanhaters.

28 upvotes · 17 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Female solipsism is action.

"Gee, if I see something that makes me not love myself, it must have been designed to make me not love myself, by someone who gets off on that very thing!"

I had my first experience with a true psycho feminist. I am lucky that all we did was kiss. Afterwards I get accused of 'molesting her face'

28 upvotes · 3 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This ain't feminism's fault. It's yours. You handled this poorly enough that she got buyer's remorse.

You notice how she turned cold, not immediately, but the next day? She didn't dislike you until her mood cooled down.

That "still light-headed" line was a huge mistake. It showed that you felt like she was doing you a favour. And she tested that assumption, and you let it stand.

Now, when she was discussing this with her girlfriend(s) on phone (this happens the instant after you leave), she's giving them the play by play, and she's embarrassed at how much she gave up to someone she doesn't feel so awesome about. So her hamster engages, and equivocates between "molested my face" meaning you're a bad kisser, and "molested my face" meaning kissing her when she was unwilling or unresponsive.

The hamster does not care about truth. The hamster only cares about not feeling bad.

You disappointed her, and she pretended it was all your idea, so that she wouldn't be embarrassed at her poor choice.

Yes, "passionate about social justice" means she's most likely a tumblr feminist crackpot, but this isn't feminism. It's simple buyer's remorse, coupled with self-deception, and you gave her enough to be remorseful about.

Remember that 5s will often shit test you more ruthlessly than 8s, because they are used to getting the dregs of masculinity, and they're terrified it's happening again.

At least, the dregs of masculinity in their estimation... which means the 60th percentile instead of the 80th. Women consider the second 5th (60-80 percentile) of men to be the dregs, the bottom half, because anyone below the 60th is invisible to them. So that second 20% looks like the bottom half.

You have to convince women you're in the top 20% of men, because no matter how fat, how rude, how asexual, how unfeminine, how burdened with someone else's children or how old she is, she's almost always gonna feel entitled to someone from that top 20 percent.

Friends HATE the changes I've made to my life

28 upvotes · 1 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Here we see the feminist contradiction: the claim to prioritize "liberation" of women above all else, coupled with the simultaneous insistence that they alone know what a free woman would choose to do; therefore any woman who chooses differently than they desire is not "free", and must be stopped from her current course of action at all costs, and instead be "freed" to do exactly the one course of action and thought that is permitted for "free" women.

In the long run, these people will not remain your friends. Friendship, like any relationship, relies upon mutual benefit.

However, if you wish to shut them up in the immediate future, you could try pointing out that you do not have to do what they say, either.

Bus driver decks unruly passenger who was shouting and spitting in his face while he was driving. The only issue is she's a female.

28 upvotes · 13 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

No shit eh? Women are such children.

A consequence-free upbringing can do that to someone. I think we are subjecting women to a tyranny of low expectations. We don't expect them to be adults when they are young, so they don't acquire the habit, and then if we point out this pattern, people jump into overprotective mode again by calling us "misogynists".

Women don't need yet more protection by other people. Instead, they need to learn to protect themselves.

One critical aspect of self-protection is temper control. I'm a 200 pound gym rat with a black belt, and I still don't scream abuse at strangers if I feel upset at them... because even if I totally kick their ass in the ensuing fight, that's still a negative outcome (being in a pointless fight, and looking like a giant douche).

We need to start stressing to women that feelings don't justify actions. "I was angry" is not a mitigating circumstance... it just means you're more of a douche... because you can't control your temper, and you don't feel the obligation to try.

The fact is that we would all be spoiled children if no one was ever allowed to hit us or speak harshly to us.

Feminists demand the right to show off their bodies, whilst simultaneously condemning men for looking at them.

28 upvotes · 25 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

Your body belongs to you. You choose how to clothe it.

My eyes belong to me. I choose where to point them.

We're having an MGTOW debate over at /r/LadyMRAs and we'd appreciate various POVs from /r/MensRights.

28 upvotes · 21 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

Very disappointed in /r/LadyMRAs right now.

Here's what I wrote:

You're in the wrong here.

The article Factory wrote was reasonable in its tone, and its conclusions were rational. I don't agree, personally, with every single one, but they are the words of a reasonable human being.

And when you read it, the very first words out of your keyboard were

Do you feel like you lack respect for all women?

... and then you proceeded to vet him for "misogyny", focusing on the small embers of his anger at being marginalized until you fanned it into a roaring flame, then pointing at the fire you fed and saying "look, misogyny!".

You seem to care more about whether or not he hates women in general than what any experiences have actually been, or what might have happened to his trust, or what his legitimate points might be.

No one is asking you to agree with him. In fact, I don't agree with him... as a PUA/seduction skills/game guy with a "harem" of multiple women, I hardly think sex and relations with women are too risky (marriage is, of course). But that's not the point.

He's a reasonable human being, reacting to a bad situation for men, reacting to his own feelings of marginalization and mistrust, and your top priority is to worry about whether his own feelings, in the privacy of his own head, are not sufficiently "respectful" to an abstract group.

You view him more as a threat than a person. You are more worried about him than for him.

One of the biggest men's issues (in my opinion, the only real men's issue) is that both culture and instinct drive our society to disregard our humanity... not to care about our experiences, not to worry about our pain, not to value us except for how we benefit others, specifically women and children.

That's what you're doing right now.

You are more worried about MGTOWs not "respecting women" than you are about their feelings, their experiences.

And frankly, I am disappointed in you. When I think of female MRAs, I have always thought of people like TyphonBlue, or GirlWritesWhat, women who I could count on, not to always agree with me, but to always acknowledge that I have a valid point of view, and to address my concerns in a fair manner.

But this treatment of Factory is the same as I might expect anywhere that's not an MRA space... whenever an MRA speaks up about anything pertaining to men's rights, he is immediately expected to prove he is not a misogynist before any conversation can proceed.

He's entitled to the presumption of innocence. Even though he happens to be a man.

And even if he were a misogynist, so fucking what?

He is also entitled to have feelings. Even though he happens to be a man. And that in no way invalidates any reasonable point he brings up.

You might feel like he's the crazy one, because he's swearing more. But you would swear, too, if your character were being assassinated by someone who you thought was a friend.

feminazi attacks Reddit: "Reddit contain so much anti-feminist sentiment that they even have active communities such as r/mensrights." An attempt to smear and censor us, and to force admins to shutdown this subreddit???

28 upvotes · 13 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's a lot easier doing the "hardest job in the world", you know, be a mom and living off your husband.

This may be a responsibility, but it is not a job at all.

If your "job" is "mother", your performance is not evaluated, and you cannot be fired. You may do as much as your sense of responsibility and your conscience compel you, or as little as you can get away with when you're willing to put up with complaints (all your husband is actually allowed to do about it), but if you are not accountable...

... well, then it's not a job, is it?

Trans Disclosure(Post-Op)[MTF, in this case]

28 upvotes · 26 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Logically, if they are a woman, then they aren't a threat to their/your precious heterosexuality,

What a load of condescending crap.

People have a right to control their own sex lives without having to justify themselves to you (or too anyone else who speaks to them with such unbridled contempt).

Maybe they do want children. Maybe they have a hangup. Maybe they have a different definition of "woman" than you do.

Maybe they have a phobia of lying, manipulative sociopaths.

The Importance of Manliness.

27 upvotes · 7 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

If “just being yourself” or “Being a Nice Guy” was the Pathway to Pussy

Just make yourself into a real fucking man.

THEN be yourself.

This Definition of HVM Is Flawed

27 upvotes · 16 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

At the end of the day, a HVM for the intents and purposes of YOUR RPW journey is simply a man with DESIRABLE MASCULINE BEHAVIORAL TRAITS that manifest in a way that fits your goals, lifestyle, morals, and preferences.

Let's try breaking this into two elements.

All of the men you describe are value because they apply effort successfully to achieve their goals. A man whose high value is about being wealthy isn't a high value man simply because he has lots of money. He is high value because at some point he said to himself, "I want to be rich", and then figured out what he needed to do to make that happen, and he did it.

So, first, an HVM is any man who is good at achieving his goals.

Second, the right HVM for you is one whose goals are compatible with what you want from a relationship.

Why Do So Many Average Women Have Such a Comically Overvalued Sense of Ego?

27 upvotes · 1 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

Boasting is not necessarily the sign of a high self-image. It can be bravado covering severe anxiety.

Imagine, for moment, a typical white upper middle class American or west European girl in her mid-twenties. She's not accomplished, brilliant, or well read. Her achievements, if any consist of a college degree and little else... and it's not a degree in math or chemical engineering.

She doesn't have any feminine accomplishments, either. She's not kind, popular, or well-liked. She is not artistic or creative. She's not good at putting others at ease, or bringing out the best in them.

In short, her only source of self-worth is if people think she's attractive. Facebook and instagram upvotes are literally the only thing keeping her self-image going.

You get it?

She actually feels horrible. She's got nothing going for her; she a basic bitch. She actually knows. And she still has to put a brave face on it, and pretend she's okay.

And she feels helpless. That's what you need to understand about girls. They feel helpless in ways that we never do.

Because males start out at zero worth, and whatever we have, we first have to achieve. And we are used to achieving things. But women are seen as having inherent value. So they think that however good they were born to be, that's as good as they are, and as good as they could ever be.

Imagine feeling like nothing you did in life would make a difference. Like all you could ever do was put a positive spin on whatever you were born with. Or not.

Our culture has failed women, too. By not demanding enough of them. By not insisting they achieve something.

Girls need work to do, not just praise for existing.

Text game example and breakdown: how to deal with a Feminist

27 upvotes · 3 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Look, I reached into the dumpster, and the garbage didn't reject me!

The Thing You Really Want

27 upvotes · 8 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

it needs a caveat for spergs who are going to use this post as a justification to avoid approaching women that don't show desire from the get go Sigh.

Yeah, probably.

Hooked up with a girl and now she's acting almost scared?

27 upvotes · 1 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

You need to provide guidance and project an air of assurance and absolute comfort with what is going on.

She doesn't know what happens next. You must show her that you do, and will be her guide, and all she needs to do is listen to Daddy.

"Toxic masculinity" in advertising: keeping women scared and men shamed. | "A baby shower for a girl. A gift is passed to the expectant mother. It's a rape whistle. Cut to a black screen: "1 in 2 girls will be physically or sexually abused." Fifty percent of women will be beaten or raped? PARDON?"

27 upvotes · 29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a controversial opinion, but ~~modern 21-century western world~~ women are not very bright.

Fixed that for you.

They aren't very bright because they don't have to be. 87% of all women who were ever alive have living descendants today. The comparative figure for men is somewhere in the thirties.

That means that all a woman has to do, to be successful enough to breed, is not be in the bottom 13% of womanhood (actually, the number is lower than that, because some of that 13% is successful-breeding women whose descendants died out later).

Imagine how lazy, slovenly, and functionally stupid you would be if the bar was set so low for you. Imagine if your society was full of people praising you merely for existing, writing news article about you for doing ordinary shit because you did it while being male, and creating political campaigns around the notion that they were going to give you free money from cradle to grave.

Imagine if people were so protective of you that you got to be first in the lifeboats, yet the same society constantly berated itself for not being protective enough yet, and called that a "war on men".

You'd be dumb as a sack of hammers... because you never would have had to think about anything more complicated than what you wanted to wear that day. Abstract thought is a skill; use it or lose it.

Women are precisely as dumb as they can get away with being.

Guys who went from zero to hero picking up girls?

27 upvotes · 25 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Every single human male started from zero. We all emerged from the womb naked, covered in goo, and crying like a bitch.

What matters is what we do next.

How do I differentiate between my hypergamous tendencies and justified lack of interest in a mate?

27 upvotes · 18 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Firstly, how in the hell did you secure that username?

I am an ancient being from a time when titans strode the earth.

Ok...so as far as what you said, it's implying I was dating "below" my SMV and therefore being dissatisfied isn't exactly hypergamy it's just normal, no?

Hypergamy IS normal.

When we say women are "hypergamous", it means they are exclusively attracted (-gamous) to the top choice (hyper-).

- If a man is at a party, and he is introduced to two girls, a 9 and an 8, he is attracted to them both. He'd prefer the 9. But if it's the 8 that ends up going home with him, he will be happy and satisfied.
- If a girl is at a party, and she is introduced to two men, a 9 and an 8, she is only attracted to the 9. She will feel no enthusiasm at all for the 8, even though if she met him on the street with no 9s present, she'd be drooling.

What's important about hypergamy is not who a woman is attracted to, it's who she isn't attracted to... i.e. anyone, regardless of his merits, who is standing next to a more attractive dude.

This is a natural instinct, and it's no more evil than breathing oxygen or drinking water. But if it is completely unrestrained, it can cause trouble.

- For men, it can mean that they can lose the love of a woman who has been head over heels for them for years, without doing anything at all to cause this to happen. All that happened was she saw someone she wanted more, and instead of this being a fleeting temptation, it is a permanent passion-killer.
- For women, it can mean that having sex, or even excessive social contact, with a really attractive man that she can't realistically get a relationship from, can permanently damage her happiness. She becomes unable to be content with anyone who's in her league.

A related concept is that of the "alpha widow"... this is a woman who once had extensive contact, and usually sex, with a man who is just fucking kryptonite for her, leaving her unable to be content with any other man. Sometimes even higher value men cannot compete with how she has built "the guy" up in her head.

Hypergamy is thus both unavoidable and very dangerous, so the trick is to moderate it before the fact by not exposing yourself to severe temptation (anything from sex to fantasizing about them) with men who are out of your league, and by securing the best mate you can, so as to avoid having him come out clearly worse in comparison to other males you see.

So, to answer your original question, there is no difference between hypergamy and justified loss of interest in your mate, because hypergamy isn't "unjustified". It simply is.

- If you try to suppress it altogether, you wind up dating a loser, and then it comes bursting out because it's triggered by every single man you meet.
- If you give it absolute free rein to do its thing, you wind up alone except for 17 cats, masturbating to pictures of some male A-list celebrity you are "saving yourself for" (while having no idea what he's actually like in person).

You aimed too low last time. Next time, aim higher... but not too high.

Most good female sexual strategies involve charting a middle course between two different hazards on both sides.

Bullet Points 2: Ending a Good Relationship

27 upvotes · 20 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You've understood me.

It's not about whether you like tabletop RPGs, or racing Porsches. It's not about whether you choose to be a pro bodybuilder or a software engineer. It's not about whether you party with sluts every night, or settle down with a Catholic girl and have 2.5 kids.

It's about rejecting the ways that others try to program you, so you can live for you, and not for other people.

To be an "alpha male" sort of person isn't compatible with asking others for instructions on how to live your life, only with asking them how you might do this or that thing (which you yourself have decided to do).

So I can tell young bros how to handle a woman, but I can't tell them how to be men. I can't give instructions for being the sort of man who doesn't look to others for instructions. I can only point down the road, while idiots stare at my finger, and every once in a while someone gets it.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

27 upvotes · 10 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want a dog, you can either train a dog, or have a badly behaved dog. Your choice.

How to approach sex when dating

27 upvotes · 18 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You have a timetable for sex that matches your goals, for what you want a man to be in your life. These men have correctly discerned that you are a lot more passionate about your plan for the future than you are about them.

Men want women who are passionate about them, not women who have a neat little slot planned for them to fit into. He wants to be the man you lose your self-control over, the man who makes you break your self-imposed rules.

It looks like you are trying to find a way to avoid taking risks, and avoid making a man feel unappreciated.

There is no such thing, because your level of passion for a man is precisely measured by your willingness to take risks to be with him.

As such, there is no risk-free way forward for you. You either have bet on the strength of your girl game to keep him afterwards, or bet on your ability to fool him into thinking you're a lot less calculating than you are.

Safe dating for women disappeared the moment they decided to dismantle traditional marriage. Your mother and grandmother wanted equality, and this is what it looks like. There's no putting the djinni back in the bottle.

You either have to date men who have fewer options and must wait, or take risks with more attractive men.

Advise

27 upvotes · 4 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, let's get this straight:

You:

- Are an addict.
- Married a man you didn't love.
- Cheated on him.
- Lied about it.
- Had two kids with him(?) before telling him the truth.

and he:

- Is angry at you.
- Doesn't want to be married.
- Loves his(?) children and is willing to keep you around for their sake.
- Wants a woman who loves him, and is trustworthy, even if he can't marry her because you tricked him into marrying you.
- Expects you to play the threesome game like you used to if you want to stay around.

So now you want:

- Him to forgive you.
- Him to love you.
- Him to be monogamous to you.

And you think you deserve this because:

- You stopped using drugs.
- You went to counseling.
- You completed two years of college.
- You clean things.
- You have an anxiety disorder.

Is that about right?

Well, I don't think you entirely understand where you are.

RPW is not a "support network" to for women to tell each other how much men owe them or what they deserve.

RPW is a strategy forum for women to learn to inspire men to willingly and enthusiastically give.

What exactly do you think is going to happen if everyone here agrees with you? Do you think they are going to give you a magical wishbone that summons a genie to make your victim forgive you for what you did?

The only person who can forgive you is him. And you're not going to get it by convincing yourself or anyone else that you are the victim here, even if you succeed. The victim card is useless to you.

It does not matter whether you or anyone else thinks his punishments aren't proportional to the hurt you inflicted on him. Because convincing anyone else of that isn't going to change his mind.

The only help we can give you is advice on how to make him less angry. And you do not sound like you are ready to hear that.

So either get that straight in your head, or leave him and get some cats.

Stuck in a unhealthy relationship, what can I do.

27 upvotes · 16 January 2017 · /r/askTRP

If you let others control you by putting a gun to their own head and holding themselves hostage, then you will never be free. Because you can never protect people from themselves.

Norwegian "male feminist" gets raped by a refugee immigrant - then feels bad when the rapist is deported.

27 upvotes · 25 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is all inherent in the basic structure of Marxism.

Marxism's basic paradigm is that of a struggle between two rigidly defined, mutually exclusive, classes: a universally evil oppressor class, and a universally virtuous oppressed class.

This causes Marxists to organize themselves into two castes. A ruling caste composed of those whose demographics identify them as "oppressed" (and therefore virtuous), and a servant caste who are part of an "oppressor" demographic, and are therefore branded with the taint of original sin, which must be constantly apologized for, but can never be expunged.

The ruling caste Marxists compete for status amongst themselves in two fashions.

- By arguments that their demographic is the most oppressed (and therefore the most virtuous).
- By engaging in ritual denunciations of the oppressor.

This second activity is where the servant caste of Marxism becomes valuable to the Marxist community. By active acceptance of that ritual denunciation and whatever other humiliations the ruling caste can dream up, the servant caste validates the oppression narratives of the ruling caste.

Without this validation, the oppression narrative would be revealed as transparently self-interested and status-seeking. But by having servant-caste Marxists to validate a narrative that does not serve their personal interests, the ruling-caste Marxists can hide this self-interest. In fact, ritual denunciations of the oppressor as a class often skip right to this step by emerging as denunciations of the servant-caste Marxists themselves, or even of a particular servant-caste Marxist.

What do the servant-caste Marxists get in return? Very little. They are controlled not with rewards and incentives, but with hope and fear... fear of being targeted for ritual denunciation, and hope that they can avoid this fate by being diligent and proactive in their self-criticism. This last, of course, in a vain wish, for the more effective a self-flagellant the servant-caste Marxist becomes, the more useful he is as a means of validating the Marxist oppression narratives, and thus a more useful target for ritual denunciation.

This is why, for example, feminists' worst opprobrium is always reserved for male "allies".

So why do servant-castes Marxists participate in Marxism at all? Because, like any oppressed class, they have been isolated, disenfranchised, and psychologically beaten down. Like any victim of relationship abuse, they believe that if only they appease their abuser, the abuse will stop. But it won't. Servant-caste Marxists can never become ruling-caste Marxists, and will continue to suffer abuse until they leave the relationship.

Insanity.

27 upvotes · 7 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm afraid you may have missed the point.

There is most likely nothing genetically wrong with this man. All his ancestors managed to breed.

The point is that anyone can get stuck in a loop if they are afraid to try new things. He has become infected with a poisonous meme (feminism), and is unwilling to have new experiences which would break the cycle.

Sweden, where 60% of university students are women, abolished their affirmative action program because it helped men over women.

27 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Women: equal, except when they are more equal.

Why TRP Always Tells You to Lift Weights (Mandatory for non-lifters)

27 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not just about being strong enough to pick them up. It's about having the extra strength to not get tired after it goes on for a while.

Why TRP Always Tells You to Lift Weights (Mandatory for non-lifters)

27 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Fireman's Carry is good, Superman Carry is good, I use both, but my favorite is the Hand Chair.

When you bend down to kiss her, just grab her ass with both hands and pick her up. Her legs will wrap around you, because there's nowhere else for them to go, and she's worried about falling. But you just hold her like that. The feel of your hands on her, and the dawning realization that this just keeps going and you're not getting tired... it drives women wild.

Karen Straughan (Girlwriteswhat) succinctly discusses that men don't hate women, and defends TRP. Good read!

27 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I definitely agree that you are Malcolm X to the MRM's MLK.

There are definitely some parallels. Martin's role was to appeal to white people, so he needed to be nonthreatening, moderate, reasonable. Malcolm's role was to unite black people, so he needed to provide an outlet for their (largely justified) anger and frustration.

However, we have an additional obstacle to deal with. Humans, both black and white, are not hardwired to be more sympathetic to white people than black people. The civil rights movement and its outcomes might have looked very different if it did.

But I've never been one to snub people based on them being unpopular...

True.

And I often do say that letting the opposition control the discourse with their feels is a strategic mistake. So I could go either way on what I said earlier.

But there's more to it than that. One of the first things I tell hurt, angry young men who come here looking for answers is "Abandon any hope of changing society, or saving it from its self-destructive neglect of men and masculinity. Only when you cease looking for others to give you a fair deal can you learn what need to survive and prosper in the world that is."

Ultimately, one of the basic tenets of TRP is that we are not here to save society, we are here to save ourselves, and teach other men how to save themselves. Trying to hold back this glacier is just another form of self-sacrifice, and we are already in a state where our culture eats self-sacrificing men for breakfast, and then demands of their bones that they buy it lunch. Our long term strategy is wait for society's disrespect for the very masculinity that builds and sustains civilization to trigger an economic crisis which we inevitably restore respect for the same.

This is the cycle of civilization. Men with guns and shovels build something, make it better and better, until the women no longer even have to see the men with guns and shovels. Then the women believe the safety, the well-being, and the prosperity just fall like rain from the sky, and start asking why we have all these men around, anyway. Then the men try to indulge the women, until the point where the invisible men with guns and shovels can no longer keep up. Then the economy collapses, safety and prosperity vanish, and women realize what men with guns and shovels are for, and begin to once again love and respect men who wield guns and shovels for the safety and prosperity of others, instead of regarding them as losers who couldn't get a better job. And men pick up their guns and shovels again, and something new is built. And the cycle begins again.

I appreciate your efforts to hold back this glacier for my benefit. Really, I'd give you a big hug if I could.

But ultimately, the young men here can't afford to give in to the false hope that isolated voices like you give them. If they allow themselves to be sucked into the MRM's brand of windmill-tilting, they will simply be burning themselves out in a new way. Because women, in general, do not understand what men are for until the moment they experience real cold, real hunger, real fear. At that moment, and not an instant before, are they able to value men.

RooshV slams the Red Pill

27 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Because it has no council of elders to guide the ideology, it is now being steered by the mob and watered down—or outright trolled—by entryists who are blue pill.

Oh, we're here, all right. Vanguard ECs and mods.

We think, however, that we are a laboratory, not an ideology. Sure, we could narrow the discourse, throw out anything that doesn't match our particular game plan, but why would we? Unlike Roosh, we are not selling anything. I have a job. And if I decide to collect my thoughts into a blogosphere column somewhere, someday, it won't be my primary source of income, just a bitcoin donation link and some google adwords stuff. I don't want to ever mix the content with selling anything, and don't think any of the other founders do either.

There is a choice every person has to make when he acquires a large audience by having a message. He can use that audience to make a profit, at the risk of changing the message to serve that end. Or he can refrain from doing so, at the risk of surrendering the increased power, options, and opportunities for a still-larger audience that such a profit might provide.

I don't know if Roosh just wants to lead because he wants to promote his brand and make more money, or if he wants to lead simply because he wishes to control the direction of the swarm. But leaders do not ask for permission to lead. They do not ask to be appointed leaders.

They simply lead, and become prominent because they inspire others to follow.

Councils of elders aren't powerful because they can force mobs of young men to do their bidding. They can't. They are powerful because the young men respect their wisdom and experience, and voluntarily listen. If you want to be an elder, no structure is required. All you have to do is inspire the respect of the younger men.

If Roosh wants to do that, he's going to have to step up his game. Because the word "neomascularity" is a pretty good brand name. I'm sure it's going to have an awesome logo that will look good on a t-shirt, available for only $29.95 exclusively from RooshV™ Neomascularity™ Enterprises, LLC. But I sure haven't heard anything about what this neomascularity is actually going to do for young men who aren't Roosh. So far what I've seen is all brand and no message.

Sure, you can say that the Red Pill lacks direction. But having direction isn't inherently good. What's good is having a good direction. So pick your direction, Roosh. Start marching in it and see who follows. Don't sit around trying to talk young men into following you no matter what direction you go in. Show them what you have.

Men Just Don't Trust Women -- And It's A Huge Problem [HuffPo male hamster comes close to RP truth]

27 upvotes · 8 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

All trust is inspired. Not owed. Not earned. Inspired.

Anyone who acts entitled to your trust is unworthy of it.

A lot of people think RP is anti-woman... let's put that one to rest.

27 upvotes · 8 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're not going to put it to rest, because it's powertalk. Language that means one thing to the initiated, and another, safer meaning to outsiders.

When people say "TRP hates women", they do not mean "TRP hates women". They mean "TRP is getting in the way of a power grab that benefits me", but they are saying it in such a way that only participants in the the power grab (feminists, SRS, SJW, etc) and detractors (TRP, MRM, MGTOW, etc) are aware of the real meaning. To everyone else, it means "TRP hates women".

And if they are challenged for their real message, they simply claim they were simply delivering the safe message. Since there's no way to prove the real message exists, there's no way to call it out or argue against it, since the moment an effective criticism is launched, only the safe message is claimed.

So there's no point in arguing about whether or not TRP "hates women", because the people saying it don't care if it's true. They only care if saying it will prevent TRP from impeding their socio-cultural-political power grab, their attempt to restructure society in ways that cannot possibly function, but are good for them in the short term.

Do not bother arguing with psychopaths as if they were sincere.

Four major languages spoken in organizations among Sociopaths, Losers and the Clueless: Posturetalk, Babytalk, Gametalk & Powertalk

27 upvotes · 5 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

Interestingly enough, that's the reason we need TRP.

Because we are not actually natural sociopaths. Born in, dyed-in-the-wool sociopaths speak powertalk fluently. They never say what they mean without plausible deniability.

Now, non-sociopaths who have woken the fuck up know that we need to emulate sociopathic traits just in order to survive, let alone prosper. But you can't just learn from sociopaths, because they won't tell you anything explicitly. They won't even admit to being sociopaths, much less tell you how to do it.

TRP is a paradigm where we can talk straightforwardly about these topics, something a real sociopath would never, ever, do. But we need to do it in order to learn.

Why dont you try being gay?

27 upvotes · 24 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Diagnosis: Red Pill stage 2: Anger.

Lurk more, post less.

Example#3 of doxing from /r/thebluepill

27 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Weak men are untrustworthy because they are only loyal to whoever bullied them last.

TRP is Ironic.

27 upvotes · 25 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Because hamster.

Their unshakeable belief is that they are good, wise, virtuous, beautiful, and special. Every other belief that they have must bend to be consistent with that.

Online, a man says that women are not any more good, wise, virtuous, beautiful, and special than anyone else. But their one unshakable axiom, their central belief, is that they are. So this man must be a bad man, telling lies, because he hates women.

But when they meet him in person, he doesn't take them seriously. He isn't putty in their hands. But it is axiomatically true that they are good, wise, virtuous, beautiful, and special. So it can't be that they aren't that special. Instead, he must be really awesome.

So they're attracted to him. But he's talking about how women are just ordinary people, not good, wise, virtuous, beautiful, and special. Now this can't be true. Because they are good, wise, virtuous, beautiful, and special. And he can't be wrong, because he's really awesome, and they're attracted to him. And they're not foolish or undiscerning.

So he must be talking about all those other women. Not them. Okay, that's okay, then. They just need to show him how different and special they are.

Hamster uber alles.

Or, she could just take the red pill, admit that women are just ordinary human beings, and adapt to it. But narcissism is a difficult drug to give up.

Why Sluts Make Bad Wives

27 upvotes · 22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Sucker move #2.

Seriously, we treat "wanting kids" like a sacred cow around here. Like no matter how stupid a move it is, it's okay because you wanna.

If somebody just wanted to pick up women by "just being himself", or telling them how beautiful they were, or buying them flowers or something, we'd explain to him that this was a bad move and wouldn't work, and if he "really wanted to do it", then he would just have to adjust his wants, because the universe doesn't care.

But if a guy wants kids, oh, well, then go ahead and get married. Just make sure you get a prenup, because divorce courts love a good laugh.

I'm sorry, it sucks, but if you want to have kids, what you should do is not have kids, because that's still the better route to life satisfaction. Yeah, it's dumb, it's a measure of how fucked our society is, the lunatics have taken over the asylum, etc.

But it's not your job anymore to worry about where the next generation is gonna come from. There's no sense in taking one for Team Western Civilization, because Team Western Civilization ain't gonna take one for you. Not anymore.

The smartest thing men can do to win back control over this ship before it smashes into the rocks isn't "learning game". Making 20 year old girls' vaginas tingle isn't going to get you any political power. The smartest thing men can do is stage a marriage strike, and a baby strike. Yeah, some men, who want kids, they'll suffer. But they won't suffer anywhere near as much as women with baby rabies.

Let those women find a way to restore men's place in society.

Mannerbund: This is what a feminist looks AT (mentions theredpill)

27 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The men's romantic advice to each other essentially boils down to: women are selfish and incapable of love, so never fall in love, just improve yourself, lift weights, make money, dress better, and the women will come running.

Yeah, pretty much.

Except that women are capable of love. They are capable of loving men who:

never fall in love, improve [themselves], lift weights, make money, dress better, [and are desired by other women].

As a black male viewing white culture, I cannot help but feel feminism has co-opted white women (generally) and vilifies white males in mainstream culture. If true, how or why did this occur?

27 upvotes · 25 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

Because the government is not a uniary entity with a single consciousness. It doesn't "want" anything.

What it does emerges from the actions of the people it most serves. These people are mostly female, and like most females, they regard male contributions as part of a sort of backdrop of society, something that will always happen no matter what you set in front of it.

They take for granted that the roads will always get fixed, the power will stay on, the internet will run, there will be gasoline at the corner station for them to put in their cars, there will be food to buy at the grocery store, and so on and so on and so on.

They have not stopped to think that all these things happen because of the labour of people, the overwhelming majority of whom are male.

They have not stopped to think that if you do not reward things people do, they are not going to do them.

We all of us, male and female alike, have a sense that we live in a society which is in economic decline. But many of us have failed to connect that notion to the idea that the people who once were rewarded for making society run are now either not rewarded at all, or being rewarded for doing useless things rather than useful ones.

It's not just that the government is taking money away from men and giving it to women. It that it is being run according to what causal thinkers decide is fair, rather than what experts think is needful.

We are all so busy fighting over how big each person's slice of the pie is going to be... and we have neglected the baking.

What are some subtle signs that most don't notice when they're being AMOG'd?

27 upvotes · 20 January 2012 · /r/seduction

If someone asks you to hold his drink, finish it.

Some vile and vapid advice these 'nerd loving' girls on my facebook keep posting.

27 upvotes · 28 July 2011 · /r/seduction

Listening to a woman on how to attract women is like listening to a child on how to raise children.

Guys, please don't do this!

27 upvotes · 7 July 2011 · /r/seduction

There is never any reason to try to drive other men away from a woman you desire.

If she prefers you, you don't need to.

If she doesn't prefer you, you deserve someone who does.

Woman's view on physical escalation

27 upvotes · 17 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Asking a woman's advice on seduction is like asking a child's advice on parenting.

The Great Reddit Exodus

26 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Hopefully this can be sorted out or at least efficiently moved to the external forum. Weird how it goes. Subs like FDS stay active and keep strategically planning on how to use men, while we're getting shut down for merely having open conversations about how to improve our lives.

That's the plan. The Control-Left isn't accidentally hurting and marginalizing young men in pursuit of some other goal. That is the goal.

They want you not talking to each other and sharing strength, support, and insight, because they want you weak. They want you dependent on them. They want you to Believe Television, Vote Democrat, and Consume Product.

So of course they are going to lash out at anything that allows men to talk to each other without going through a gatekeeper or filter.

Remember this when you contemplate the inconvenience of adapting to a new platform. That inconvenience is what they are counting on. It is what they hope will stop you.

How to deal with letting go of an LTR, knowing she'll go straight to pound town.

26 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Yes, you were. It's my fucking subreddit.

You don't need personalized advice. You need to stop ignoring the general advice.

Reddit Anti-Evil Operations Decidedly Evil as They Remove Pro-Equality Post from TRP

26 upvotes · 10 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The Reddit Censorship Board is just a bunch of twentysomethings with the power to remove things, but no guidelines other than their own immature and sheltered worldview. There is no oversight, and no standardization.

A certain bunch of words just made a manchild feel icky, and he had the access to remove it, so he did. The thought that went into the decision to remove didn't amount to five percent of the thought put into writing it.

Because light-skinned people happened to become technologically, and thus historically, dominant, there is a fad among those who fancy themselves to be iconoclasts, of speaking critically of light-skinned people, and endeavouring to "defend" dark-skinned people from them.

But that's not the actual point. If it were, this particular light-skinned person would notice that he was silencing a dark-skinned person... the precise antithesis of what he pretends to be about. What this is really about is the unfocused petty resentment of an entitled manchild.

It's not going to do you any good, son.

Shall I tell you why? Because there is nothing special about Reddit. The only thing that is valuable here is people. And people are invested in the content, not the platform. We can go anywhere and create things, because we are creative in a way that you are not... you only know how to destroy.

The man whose words you hid still possesses the gifts of creativity and intelligence and drive that allowed him to write those words. He possesses them wherever he goes. You do not possess administrative access wherever you go.

He can create faster, and better, and more, than you can destroy. If you wish to stop him, the only thing you could truly do is engage with him, and change his mind. But your political faction has lost the power to argue its position in much the same way that chickens have lost the power to fly. You rely upon silencing others because that is all you have left.

What are some red pill truths that even most trp'ers won't swallow

26 upvotes · 1 June 2020 · /r/askTRP

Put the phone down and go to sleep.

Are there any RPW rules which you don't "follow" or cannot accept for you?

26 upvotes · 30 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

For me (personally) it's the advice of not living together before marriage.

Stop listening to the remedial students whispering in the back of the lecture hall. That is not the lecture material.

I don't teach rules. I teach principles and an understanding of the male mindset and mating instincts.

Wanting a set of rules is lazy. Wanting a set of rules is for spoiled women who don't want to think, make decisions, or take risks.

There is no avoiding responsibility for your life. You have to learn what is, then figure out for yourself how to apply it to your situation. Or your life is gonna suck.

So cohabit or don't. Save it for marriage or don't. Start as a plate or don't. Nobody can make those decisions for you. We can only give you an education to help you make them in an informed fashion.

Is there a female equivalent of wife goggles?

26 upvotes · 20 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Think of the wall as "the age where a woman's beauty is more affected by her lifestyle than her genetics".

I finally dropped a girl that I liked and it feels so fucking good.

26 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

You definitely have a point there.

But I tend not to go that route because novices have a tendency to 'sparg out if you give them too many hard and fast rules. The problem isn't "nexting a good opportunity" because opportunities are like water in a river... more will be by shortly. No, the problem is that some of them start to develop a mental flowchart that they treat as a set of instructions to follow, instead of a scaffold to build their nuanced and calibrated game and judgement skills around.

So I try to interlace the rules of thumb with examples of how I might make a judgement call.

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

26 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

"I have emasculating political beliefs. I am not attracted to men who don't share my political beliefs. Why do I keep running into emasculated men?"

The Red Pill Has Too Much Respect For Women

26 upvotes · 27 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It also forced women to be forward-thinking, and date the guy in med school instead of the doctor (who was already married)... but so what?

Your comment is backward thinking. That society, good or bad, is gone and it's not coming back. It doesn't matter whether it was good or bad, because it doesn't affect the future, or your future, in any meaningful way.

Only tradcons think we can roll back the clock. They are wrong. And they are not your friends.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

26 upvotes · 10 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Perhaps we can combine all this into the "Comprehensive Bitch Management Guide".

Fucked but no BJ. "Blow" her off?

26 upvotes · 16 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

Reciprocity does not work with women. Whatever you give them, they will take and assume it's free.

If you want something, tell her. If she refuses, next her.

"Where are all the good men?"

26 upvotes · 7 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why can't I find a girl who isn't a ho?

Because they settled down with men who are more attractive than you.

Why can't I find a commitment-minded man?

Because you don't inspire commitment-mindedness in the men you meet.

Why can't I find a man who isn't an unemployed loser?

Because you are low-class, trashy, and unfeminine.

Why don't pretty girls want me?

Because you don't lift.

Why don't hot guys want me?

Because you are fat.

Why are all these men intimidated by my PhD and strong confident personality?

They are repulsed by your unfeminine, combative personality.

Why don't girls see what a nice, caring man I am?

They are not stupid enough to mistake your weakness for benevolence.

How come all the men I meet are players who just try to use me for sex?

Because you bring out the player in them by not having anything to offer besides a warm hole.

How come on the women I meet are frigid gold-diggers?

Because you don't turn them on.

Why is having a relationship so hard these days?

Because your mommy and daddy were stupid Boomer ex-hippies who taught you that masculinity, femininity, and sex roles were bad things.

And because you were dumb enough to listen.

'Men can do anything they want to women in Honduras': Inside one of the most dangerous places on Earth to be a woman: As supporters of true gender equality, we condemn these injustices

26 upvotes · 9 September 2017 · /r/MensRights

It's funny how they never called it "oppression olympics" until people began pointing out that they weren't winning.

Article: Man loses custody battle for kids living with sex offender.

26 upvotes · 20 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely.

Men must remember that, while the law may shield them against other men, it will almost never take their side against a woman.

We built voice modulation to mask gender in technical interviews. Here's what happened.

26 upvotes · 30 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Heh. She arrives at the exact opposite of the truth.

Human beings display an adaptive response to almost everything. Push on them, and they get stronger over time.

Women aren't weak because they have been worn down by too much adversity... they are weak because they haven't been built up by enough adversity.

This is also why we see womanish behaviour in those men who have been most coddled and protected.

New to Red Pill. Question about testing my man?

26 upvotes · 20 May 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

As a submissive partner in a relationship, you don't have the right to get your way, but what you get in return for giving that up is the absolute right to be heard and have your welfare and feelings considered.

Men are easily willing to give this when they do not feel like they are being directed or pushed.

First, read this.

Then, practice saying what you feel or what your problem is in a non-directive way. This takes a little practice, but here are some principles.

- Don't suggest solutions right away, even when you have one in mind. To a woman, bringing someone a problem without telling them what you want them to do may seem like a burden ("Here, you figure this out"), but to a man it's a mark of admiration and trust ("You're wise and smart, and I know you will be able to solve this").
- Identify the real problem. The real problem is what bothers you, not what you want. For example "You don't respond to my texts for hours" is not the real problem. "I get separation anxiety" is the real problem.
- *Recognize that trying to "manage" a man comes from lack of trust. If you are trying to make him do something, it's because you don't trust what he will do. Trust is, of course, not automatic, and takes time to build, but you handle your own limited trust in better ways. Instead of telling him what to do, try asking him what he will do, and making sure you're okay with that.
- Also, if you are having trust issues, articulate them as another problem you are having. There are very few downsides ever to giving your man more information to make decisions with.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

26 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So, you want them censored because they are "hurting the modern conservative movement"?

Since neither I, nor TRP, are part of this "modern conservative movement", why would we play along?

Conservatism's got a big branding problem where it's most vocal advocates are nutters like the racists or Evangelical Christians.

Conservatism has had a big branding problem all along, because it isn't a thing. It's a coalition of people opposed to liberalism and socialism. Groups like the religious right and free-market capitalists have nothing in common.

This is why the political right wing never has any unified plans, visions, or ideas. Because they have no unifying values or goals. They are the party of no ideas, trying to stop the party of really bad ideas. Or, in the case of their politicians, pretending to.

Asking for her n-count?

26 upvotes · 23 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

Ask for a number, and she'll lie. Talk about your past girls, get her talking about her past men. Act like you don't judge, then judge. Deduce a rough count to see if she's a ho.

Lifting and 40+ hour professional work week is HARD!

26 upvotes · 21 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

Everybody wanna be a bodybuilder, don't nobody wanna lift no heavy-ass weight.

LTR says: "You are loosing me", what to reply to this?

26 upvotes · 28 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

"Door's right there."

Women Do Not Want Equality

26 upvotes · 26 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

What jumps out at me with this "men are the new ball and chain" stuff, this "men will be home with the kiddies" stuff, is that the girls think they will still have husbands in their future.

They won't.

What do TRPillers actually like in women ?

26 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're whacky. I don't know what scenario you're going on about. But I will answer the question you should have asked.

There is a scale, from toughlmaturelcynical to tenderlinnocentlnaive. Self-sacrifice flows down this scale. Men naturally self-sacrifice for the benefit of women, women naturally self-sacrifice for the benefit of children. Obedience and respect naturally flows up the scale. Women respect and obey men, children respect and obey women.

When women got together and decided to turn off the flow of obedience and respect, they called it feminism.

After a couple of decade of self-sacrifice without obedience or respect, men decided that the only rational response was to cut off the flow of self-sacrifice.

Feminists called this "misogyny". Men called it the "red pill".

FR Choking Wife During Sex

26 upvotes · 29 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We're not in "the lifestyle"

Of course, you're not. "The lifestyle" is for submissive men and dominatrices. Female submissives don't need a "lifestyle" because they are the mainstream.

Are Male Feminists Getting Laid?

26 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Use a little lemon juice instead. Cutting sugar is actually a good idea.

Your "One True Love" Does Not Exist

26 upvotes · 21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I have always contended that women lose their ability to love after age 21, when they realize their SMV by going out to a bar and realizing how many men will trip over themselves by buying them a drink.

Not quite.

They can love their children, they can love their mother, they can love their friends, they can love their cats.

But in order to love a man, a woman must respect him. ("Respect" in the male sense of the world, meaning "look up to and admire", not the female sense of the word, meaning "care about the feelings and well-being of".)

The "thousand-cock-stare" is the look of a woman who has lost respect for men in general, because she sees them as interchangeable and replaceable. Just when this happens depends on age, on the woman, and on the cultural and social environment she comes from.

Beta husband falls for the "polyamory trap" lets other men fuck his wife. Guess what happens?

26 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

About 2 years ago, I left a highly paid executive position to become a university professor.

Dingdingdingdingding.

TIL: Cesar Millan's wife (The Dog Whisperer) filed for divorce in March 2010. She ended up receiving a single payment of $400,000, monthly spousal payment of $23,000 (that's $276,000 a year), AND $120,000 a year in monthly child support. Cesar Millan then attempted suicide.

26 upvotes · 8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's frustrating to see that this is the majority opinion amongst these parts, because not having children is the evolutionary equivalent of rolling over and dying a quiet death in the ditch somewhere.

You are not a player in the game of evolution. You are a piece.

This no-marriage-no-kids thing is a nihilistic abdication of responsibility.

Can't abdicate a responsibility I never had to begin with.

It stinks of laziness and cowardice.

Go on and keep trying to shame me into being a tool. I do so love a good laugh.

Is scorched earth really our only policy in relation to Western society?

Ay-firmative. Men taking responsibility for society without thought of reward was what got us into this mess.

Trying to sell your point of view, trying to win people's hearts and minds... you can't win that game. You've forgotten The Fundamental Premise.

So you can go on pouring your time, love, care, and tax money into western civilization. And feminist-enlightened women will drink it right up, slurp, gone, like a cup of water poured into the Rub' al Khali. And then they'll say "where's the rest?".

Because when you give someone something unearned, they resent you for it. People want to believe they deserve their good fortune. So they make up stories about how it's theirs by right. They will convince themselves that they are entitled to everything you have given them, and demand more.

And everyone will believe their rationalizations about what they are entitled to, because of The Fundamental Premise.

So you can't win by fighting. The way you win is to go on strike.

The kind of oppressive comments that get you banned from r/OffMyChest these days

26 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

I love that... "You do realize your posting history is clear".

You were banned not for saying something, but for holding a particular opinion.

One of the key marks of immaturity in a moderator is not realizing that the moderation role is not for advocating their personal views, no matter how obviously correct they think those views are. It's the "poster and commenter" role that serves that end.

The moderator role is for removing that which is prevents the subreddit from serving its purpose, usually by reason of being off-topic or disruptive without redeeming contributive value.

/u/IdesOfLight appears to one those idiots who reaches idiocy not by being actually stupid, but by having such strong and inflexible feelings that the ability to think critically is no longer applied.

Female finance student whines about how hard it is to be in finance, blames it on the lack of female mentors available to her generation

26 upvotes · 20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Same way she got into Yale.

The Slut, and how not to be one.

26 upvotes · 25 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Maybe I'm reading incorrectly, but you seem to imply that the slut and the man she sleeps with both want a relationship?

Yes, if you think about it in a slightly more sophisticated fashion.

Under normal circumstances, people don't look for relationships. They meet someone who makes them want one.

Sluts may actively and enthusiastically participate in one night stands, but would they rather the next be the love of their life? Of course they would. Men want a night of wild sex... but they'd rather follow that with another one, and it would be awesome if it was with someone sweet who really cared about them, and they discovered they wanted to keep her around.

In fact if someone is "looking for a relationship" (rather than a person), there's usually something wrong, either with them, or their culture, or the men/women around them.

People who are desirable relationship partners get offered relationships a lot. Even when it started as a one night stand. Those who aren't, don't.

So you see, exiting the "whole college/party/hookup thing" doesn't make a woman any less of a slut. Because it doesn't give her anything more to offer. It only decreases her sexual availability.

In order to be less of a slut, she has to increase something else that she has to offer.

4 Rules for Relationships

26 upvotes · 10 March 2013 · /r/seduction

He may or may not be, but you added nothing to the discussion. If what you is not important enough to back up, it's not important enough to say.

From the feminist blog Boner Killers - "Personally, it terribly unfortunate to me that someone came here to comment and pretend that sexual violence perpetrated by women against men is a relevant concern in our world"

26 upvotes · 30 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Women will never systematically rape and destroy the male sex class because....we don't have any social power to somehow turn the tables and systematically oppress the male sex

So let's get this straight. Women:

1. Are at least as capable as men in every important respect.
2. Will never have any social power sufficient to harm men.

???

Woman tries to date women... lol

26 upvotes · 6 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

I think I have to take some time and make the "Bisexual Arrogance" bingo card.

It will include such items as "Everyone is inherently bisexual", "I love people, not genders!", and "heteros are just timid".

FDS celebrating the decline of men's health. Seriously, are the people in that sub okay?

25 upvotes · 14 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

TRP co-founder here. A lot of what you say is absolutely true. TRP is kinda predicated on the idea that human beings are upgraded chimpanzees, rather than exalted angels clothed in flesh... and that our mating instincts are just as base, and as basic.

FDS is kind of the most extreme example of this, as witnessed through the lens of some women who are mentally ill enough, not only to go full mask-off, but to be the most extreme and retarded example of the basest of human instincts, in the absence of any mitigating factor.

The kind of man FDS regards as high-value is the overlapping of two almost entirely disjoint sets: a man who is both attractive enough to be the pinnacle of female desire, but at the same time insecure and needy enough to tolerate dating a woman whose entire way of dealing with men is controlled by fear-based aggression.

I don't know where else to get advice

25 upvotes · 10 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If I had to guess, I'd guess that she cheated on him, and is now trying to pretend he's the bad guy for being angry.

A young mans FULL self improvement guide (Taking action, responsibility, mental health, building an aesthetic physique, addictions & productivity, relationships, finding your purpose)

25 upvotes · 7 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Writing tip for the day:

One topic at once. This reads like a self-help bookstore threw up on a page. Each piece of writing should be organized around a single central thesis.

If you have more than one thesis, then you have more than one article.

How bad is my vehicle for dating/picking up, etc.

25 upvotes · 7 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

While setting up a date in text, make jokes about how you are going to pick her up in your kidnapper van. Then show up with van.

TRP has an End Game

25 upvotes · 22 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't have to like rifles, you just have to have one. Because the opinions of a man without a rifle don't matter unless the men with rifles say they do. So don't be a man without a rifle.

If I'm too alt-right (and too incredibly handsome and smart) for you to believe me, then listen to some commies on the subject:

"Para ser libre, un hombre debe tener tres cosas, la tierra, una educacion, y un fusil. Siempre un fusil !" (Emiliano Zapata)

"Political power comes out of the barrel of a gun." (Mao Xedong)

"That rifle on the wall of the labourer's cottage or working class flat is the symbol of democracy. It is our job to see that it stays there." (George Orwell)

"Under no pretext should arms and ammunition be surrendered; any attempt to disarm the workers must be frustrated, by force if necessary" (Karl Marx)

On the other hand, if you're just a pussy who's afraid of guns, I can't help you.

LTR Giving me the ultimatum

25 upvotes · 28 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't want to lock myself down forever, but I also don't want to lose a ~~good girl~~ manipulative socially retarded shrew whom I ~~love~~ am emotionally dependent on.

Fixed that for your dumb ass.

Good women do not give you ultimatums.

If women don't need men as providers anymore, what use do they have for us?

25 upvotes · 4 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why are you wasting time arguing with women?

Women agree or disagree with the speaker, not the speech. If you inspire admiration, respect, desire, and trust, they will agree with you easily, almost automatically. If you don't, they will not listen to you no matter how much sense you make.

Never treat her like a peer.

Tears

25 upvotes · 28 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't worry, you got a laugh from her.

Jordan Peterson wants to force you into monogamy. Jordan Peterson wants you to be a slave. He is not your friend.

25 upvotes · 20 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Who put this tradcon bullshit in my TRP?

Evolution is a game played by genes, not a game played by people. People are just squares on the board. The board can neither win nor lose the game.

The moment you die, you are dead, no matter how many children you have, and their continued existence does you no good whatsoever, because nothing can.

Now, if the thought of someone who shares 1/256th of your genes continuing to exist after you gives you great joy while you are alive, by all means, have at it.

But this joy is your only reward, and for others who do not feel it, there is no reward.

Indifference and Control: Why You Don't Wanna Be Chad

25 upvotes · 20 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Sounds like you were Chad.

Chad is inferior to studied game in the same way that pillow Japanese is inferior to classroom Japanese. The guy who learned Japanese by fucking Kimiko knows how to say "please could you get me a beer, honoured superior?", but the guy who learned it in class knows the difference between that and "go fetch me a beer, bitch".

If you have only indifference game, your only option to get what you want is Next... in other words, throw what you have away and take another random draw from the grab bag. This means you can't make minor adjustments. Your only option is "take whatever you get" or "start from scratch".

Relationships don't work that way.

We talk endlessly here about giving less fucks, because that's the advice that most young bros need... they tend to be needy, and overinvest. But after a couple of years, you better be invested, or it means your relationship is shit.

And when you are invested, you have to know how to act in that situation. Chad doesn't.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

25 upvotes · 9 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Very good stuff.

There's a minor point I disagree on, though. And that's this idea that you can't tell her what to do, ever.

One of the things I advocate above is getting her into the habit of obedience. You can tell her what to do if she is used to doing what you say. You cannot, of course, just come out of the blue and start telling her "do this, don't do that". She'll get resentful, and say to herself, "Hey, what I don't do it? Nothing will actually happen."

But if you get her doing as you say from the very start, then disobeying you is crossing one of your boundaries. And, moreover, it's transgressing the expected pattern of behaviour.

Recall that women are inherently submissive, and look around them to see what is normal behaviour.

Establish obedience as normal behaviour.

Families and Children

25 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you are alpha enough and smart enough

This is the most frequent response to the sort of argument that I have laid out.

Nevertheless, it contains a grain of truth, or, at the very least, of conundrum. When faced with a rigged game, what will the superior man do? Will he sit down at the table and display his cunning and skill by bluffing, not merely with a bad hand, but with no cards, and somehow win? Or will he NOT sit at the table, and display his wisdom, or simply his pride, by refusing to play a rigged game? Or will he do something else entirely?

Some men can humble themselves, accept a subordinate position, hide their rebellion in their hearts, and play to win. Other would rather find a different game to play.

It really depends how much you want children.

The Talk is Socially Retarded, Don't Do It.

25 upvotes · 22 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Good question.

In general, I think that men, as the gatekeepers of relationships, can talk more openly about relationship status, and women, as the gatekeepers of sex, can be more open about sex.

But there is a threshold. And there is also a certain degree of social grace in how you offer that which it is your role to offer.

A man is certainly going to be more turned on by you growling "Take me now" in his ear than "I. Am. Offering. Sex. If. You. Want. It.", which, let's face it, is kinda robotic.

At a certain point, things have to become explicit, but even then, indicative words are superior to literal language, and actions are better yet. Tearing off his shirt, with buttons flying everywhere, is a better indicator of sexual passion than anything you could say. And bringing you with him to his family's Thanksgiving celebration, or along with his college friends on that road trip, is a better indicator of investment than using the word "girlfriend".

I would say that the principle is that men should work to inspire sexual desire, and women should indicate it with their actions. While women should work to inspire emotional investment, and men should indicate it with their actions.

Telling the other person that their "game" is working is generally fine... but the actions they take are a better measure of how they feel.

Why would a high-quality man marry?

25 upvotes · 16 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Commitment and marriage are two very different things.

Commitment is an emotional state existing inside a man... his inclination to stay with you and have a future together.

Marriage is a set of legal obligations, defined, and subsequently redefined, by a society. Notice that I didn't say "rights and obligations", because modern marriage includes no rights for the man whatsoever.

Commitment can have many advantages for a man. Marriage has none.

Thus, commitment can be something that men want, despite being the gatekeepers of it (just as women can want sex). Marriage is not something men want, just something they are sometimes willing to do.

If I want children, should I still not get married?

25 upvotes · 21 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

You do not have a vagina. You can't have children.

Because under no circumstances can they be your children. Married or not, they are her children, and you will have precisely the type and degree of contact with them that she allows, nothing more.

The ancient-world family was a man, his children, and the various women he got them on.

The old-world family was a man, his wife, and their children.

The new-world family is a woman, her children, and the state.

LTR wants threesome, am I being cuckolded plus tips for holding frame?

25 upvotes · 4 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

I think she's asking to cuckold me.

She already has.

"No more slapping - Why I stopped slapping my boyfriend in the face" (xpost /r/videos)

25 upvotes · 19 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

Noble intent, but this video actually sends the opposite of the intended message.

It shows many women slapping men, but when the time comes to show a man slapping a woman, to make their rhetorical point, they cut away.

What this means is that even the producers of this video consider male-on-female aggression to be far worse than female-on-male aggression.

Even as their reason argues that the second is not okay, their underlying, visceral attitude that the first is the real problem shines through. And that becomes the takeaway message.

These kinds of appeals cannot sustain themselves when they are based on a huge lie... and that lie is the nice, sweet falsehood that violence is never okay, necessary, or called for.

Sometimes, a bitch just needs a good slapping.

First post syndrome

25 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm also tired of Jim-bob's FRs after his first (insert sexual triumph here).

I'm not. Newb Field Reports are important. If the only accounts newcomers ever read are "Just pulled a threesome with two bridesmaids from a wedding I crashed", and "My girlfriend wears slave collar and calls me master", then they aren't going to be able to see the path between themselves and this paradise of sexual power.

How would redpillers react if there were a sexual/life strategy sub run by women using the same methodology as TRP?

25 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nobody, man or woman, likes a crybaby, but a man in a healthy relationship should be able to disclose to their partner.

"Should" is just a one-word synonym for "I want". It has no bearing on reality.

You can sit there all you want and dither about how nice it would be if women just acted completely differently than they do and did not treat male displays of vulnerability with indifference if not contempt.

You can split hairs about whether it's nature or culture or the alignment of the stars, and how many pins can dance on the head of an angel. You can theorize that somewhere, somehow some woman might not be like that, and how nice it would be if every guy could just find that special unicorn.

What you do not have is one single answer for guys who are fed up with trying the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.

As such, I don't accept that male displays of emotion are inherently a turn-off, or that women who are high-value and compatible enough with you to rise above cultural norms will find it a turn-off.

It doesn't matter what you accept. A million people can call the mountains a fiction, and that will make no difference to the man who stands atop one. The universe does not care what we want, or what we believe.

And neither does TRP. Nobody's trying to persuade you of anything. Stoicism attracts women whether you think it does or not.

This is wrong

25 upvotes · 11 August 2014 · /r/MensRights

Everyone repeat after me the judge:

"She's... a... good... person... who... made... a... bad... mistake."

Girlwriteswhat explains the rationalization hamater

25 upvotes · 27 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

But see, she's not asking us to be sexually attracted to her. She's interacting with us as a general human being, not as specifically a woman. The wall doesn't destroy women's brains, just their looks.

That's what many people don't get about TRP. Post-wall women, women with short hair, etc... aren't bad people. They're just not good choices for a mate.

We judge Karen on the quality of her ideas, because that is the face of herself that she has presented to us. She's not whining about how there are no good men left, or talking about her love life at all. I don't even know if she has one or what it's like. She could be gay for all I know. Doesn't matter.

Tracy Clark-Flory inadvertently reveals what feminism really is

25 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This strikes me as actually less stupid than it seems.

Like most feminist ideas, it's actually perfectly sensible IF you accept the initial, totally wrong premise.

The premise in this case is that only unstable, volatile, drama-prone, commitment-proof men are alpha males (and thus sexy).

Once she accepts that premise, she's reached the point of not crying about it, but embracing "alpha fucks, beta pays" as a life strategy. Ride the carousel through your twenties, accepting that eventually, the party will be over. Then marry a beta and try to appease yourself with his supplication.

If the premise were true, then all this would be the best bad plan of the possible bad plans. This represents feminists trying to actually live in a world previous feminists created.

They think only outcasts are masculine. The truth is that if you cast masculinity out, only outcasts will be masculine.

I saw this at my university today. Obviously only men can be sexual predators.

25 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Why is it that whenever someone tries to define a "real" man, it always boils down to "man who does what I want him to do"?

How To Bring Down A Hero

24 upvotes · 9 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

<https://www.theonion.com/girlfriend-changes-man-into-someone-shes-not-interested-1819565990>

What happened to r/mgtow is a wake up call for r/mensrights

24 upvotes · 4 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

r/theredpill is still there and that will be gone also.

We have our own backup website and they know it.

Why do women put down other women for wanting a HVM/provider?

24 upvotes · 3 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

When you use the toilet, you don't examine the results. You flush.

Do not waste time examining the motives of people who hate you and hold you in contempt. Exclude them from your life.

R1ggedved's Guide to Amazing Intercourse and Why It's More Important Than You Think It is

24 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

This is good writing.

I'm not a yoga guy, and my sexual technique is very different, but the way these ideas are presented carries some more universal, and important messages.

The important takeaway here isn't "do yoga". I don't give a shit about yoga, and I'm going to laugh at anyone who calls himself a "spiritual master".

Instead, it's... look at how /u/riggedved has owned and confronted each thing about himself that he didn't like, both honest with himself about his weaknesses and what he didn't like about himself, and made a plan to change himself into who he wanted to be.

Why do we excuse women's bad behaviour by saying 'it's just their nature'

24 upvotes · 28 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

To expand on this for the audience...

When we talk about "excusing" behaviour, or what "should" happen, we've started discussing morality.

Here's the rule:

Nothing in TRP prohibits you from having and following a code of ethics. You're welcome to discuss why certain morals or values might exist, or their benefit in the context of strategy, however arguments that stem from morality (i.e. this is evil, therefore) are strictly prohibited.

And here's why I wrote it this way.

TRP is ultimately about helping men achieve their goals, in a culture that mostly tries to make them a means to someone else's. Moral arguments not only do not help men achieve their goals, they are often employed to prevent them from doing so. This works in several ways:

1. I can use a moral argument to shame you out of pursuing your goals.
2. I can use a moral argument to persuade you to adopt goals that help me instead of you.
3. I can use a moral argument to prevent you from using certain effective methods of pursuing your goals.
4. I can start a moral discussion to get you to focus on what "should" happen, instead of how to make it happen.

This question is an example of the last point.

We can all have opinions about what women "should" do. But this does not effect what women will do. If we wish to be effective upon the world, we must focus dealing with it as it is, and how to move it towards what we would like it to be, not on scolding it for not already being that way.

Women are, whether by nature or training, hypocritical, dishonourable, selfish, inconsiderate, thoughtless, and lazy. If you wish them to be otherwise, you must train them, and you must incentivize them.

That's on you. Not because it "should" be on you, but because if you don't do it, it won't get done.

I have learned a lot in my life and I want to share.

24 upvotes · 8 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

It stays.

Not everything has to be to everyone's taste.

Why is an opinionated woman a thing of repulsion?

24 upvotes · 28 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Already I see the problem. You don't come off as an opinionated, dogmatic jerk...you actually act like one.

I can tell this even from how you are writing here. Your initial question boils down to "what is everyone else's problem?", as if no element of it could possibly be you. Then, in this comment, you reference "basic civil and human rights", as if there were no possibility that anyone who isn't crazy could disagree with you.

And yet, clearly many people have. Are they all crazy? Is that your final answer?

Or is it possible that two or more intelligent and sane human beings can disagree on matters of opinion because different people have different priorities?

You are trying very hard to act like everyone else is the problem. That's not what we do here. This group is for women to face their own faults and shortcomings, not because others have none, but because your role in the problem is what you can control and fix.

People who are unwilling and unable to consider or understand the perspectives of others they don't agree with are actively unpleasant to be around. You are free to speak however you choose, of course... but others are free to associate with you or not, as they choose.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

24 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

Has to be substantive. "Nuh-uh" won't cut it.

TRP is not a democracy. Democracy sucks.

Those of us who founded these groups and control them regard our self-imposed responsibility as "make sure TRP is a source of accurate and useful guidance", not "treat everyone equally".

HSP has proven that he's useful to young men trying to get laid. He's provided many hours of his own time, writing guide material, answering questions, and giving individual advice. I don't know who the fuck "huntersam13" is, and if he had made contributions of note, I would.

No no, I do not regard these two men as equally valuable, equally worthy, or deserving of an equal voice. HSP has already proven his worth, but huntersam13 would need to say something that was self-evidently useful or valuable. His arguments have to be backed up with something, and if they aren't backed up with a solid track record, they have to be backed up with something else, like a sound and reasoned argument.

"lol" doesn't cut it.

What are the major red flags to notice on a girl?

24 upvotes · 31 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Not friends/friendly with any Ex BF's

<https://i.imgur.com/B4yLl0l.jpg>

What are some things you wish women understood about men/the male experience?

24 upvotes · 6 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Stop listening to what women say, and start watching what they do.

Why does an interest in firearms trigger a reflexive ostracism from most people?

24 upvotes · 4 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

The formula for ruling a large number of people, using a small number of people, without their consent, is very simple:

- You must disarm the peasants. There is no way to stop an angry mob except with superior firepower.
- If the peasants are already armed, you must trick them into disarming themselves.
- To do this, you must make them afraid, and promise you will protect them.
 - Create conflict and distrust within your society. Black vs. White. Poor vs. Rich. Urban vs. Rural. Whatever.
 - When violence erupts, paint it all over the news. Focus on the gun, not the perpetrator. Ignore any incidents where a gun is used for defense, or that otherwise do not fit the narrative.
 - Use this to pass "common sense restrictions" on guns. Don't go for a ban all at once, because you haven't fooled everyone. Tighten the noose slowly.
 - Create a special class of praetorian who are specifically exempt from your gun laws, and from many other laws as well. These are the guys who will enforce your gun laws, and they will do so enthusiastically because they themselves are not effected.
 - Create fictional entertainments that support your narrative. Show guns constantly, but only in the hands of perpetrators of violence, and praetorian-class "special people" stopping them. If you must occasionally show a regular person using a gun, have them pick up a dropped one. Never show them buying one, and especially never show them already owning one.
 - Now that you have created the impression that only praetorians and the violently antisocial have guns, treat anyone who has one as suspect. Loudly and publicly "investigate" people who are doing entirely legal things with their guns (such as carrying them in a holster) to "make sure nothing is wrong and everyone is safe". Announce that they "technically weren't doing anything against current law" (nudge nudge wink).
 - Use the growing fear to create more gun laws. Make them as complex, irrational, and difficult to understand and follow as possible. Publicly arrest some people who get it wrong, and publish scary news stories with pictures of their collection, and quotes about how they had "hundreds" of rounds of ammunition, and about how you "don't know at this time if they were planning anything".
- Once you have them afraid, slowly use a combination of legal and social pressure to reduce gun ownership.

Eventually, you will be able to enact whatever policies you want. You no longer need to avoid outraging the population. You can keep them down through fear, rather than having to court their good opinion.

You only need to keep the favour of your praetorians. And this is a much easier task, because the praetorians like their special status, prestige, and legal immunities. Also, they are completely aware that many of the peasants now hate and fear them, and suspect that it would go very badly with them if the peasants were allowed to "throw the bastards out".

The Great Trad Con, and How Not to Get Conned.

24 upvotes · 2 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I think your post was pretty spot on but I think it's unfair to say that Tradcons are trying to find a unicorn. I think, in most cases, it's more accurate to say that they think that, with proper frame and adherence to TRP, they can keep enough dread to be able to maintain a long term relationship.

Not so.

The distinguishing feature between the redpilled man in an LTR, and the tradcon retard who claims he's redpilled, is that the latter wants to "save society" by recreating the structures of the past, or, at the very least, to pretend that he and his wife can live in a separate era by mutual consent, as if participation in society were somehow voluntary. A man surrenders all but a sliver of his ability to inflict dread when he marries, and having children removes that sliver.

So the tradcon gets married, and the redpilled man does not.

Now, you will meet certain tradcon retards who will say things like "it's red pill on hard mode, dude! If your game is good enough blah blah blah".

These people have not read their Sun Tzu.

Sun Tzu said:

"The skilled general imposes his will on the enemy, but does not allow the enemy's will to be imposed on him... those who excel at defense, defend that which cannot be attacked... those who excel at attack, attack that which cannot be defended"

"to win one hundred victories in one hundred battles is not the acme of skill. To subdue the enemy without fighting is the acme of skill."

"The mediocre general joins battle, and then seeks victory. The great general seeks victory, and then joins battle."

Whisper said:

"Brilliant game is not expressed in placing yourself at a position of extreme disadvantage and escaping annihilation though desperate application of effort and skill. It is expressed in having the skill to place yourself at a position of extreme advantage, and then winning great victories with little effort."

I don't think that the tradcon approach is really ever going to go away though because i think what motivates it is a deep-seated, maybe innate desire for at least partial monogamy and companionship in men.

Horseshit. Men desire companionship and monogamy from women. They have zero desire to promise monogamy themselves.

Do you think at least some men have an innate desire for monogamous, long-term relationships?

No man has an innate desire to be forbidden to touch other women, whether he is inclined to do so at any given moment or not. Every man has some level of innate desire for female companionship, and some level of desire to bang as many different women as he can. Which of these is stronger depends on the man.

And which one wins out depends not only on which is stronger, but on the best deal available by each strategy. A girl with good enough girl game can induce feelings of attachment even in an expert player. A girl who is bratty, unfeminine, and rebellious enough can induce abandonment or cheating in even the most loyal of men.

Do you think that a TRP approach can sustain a relationship

Yes. There are additional principles and skills for this, added onto the basic seduction game.

I seldom teach them, not because they are secret, or advanced, but because it's a waste of my time and yours. You will probably never meet one single girl in your life who is both unattached and LTR-worthy, so me writing you an article on LTR game is like writing you an article on the feeding and care of snow leopards... interesting perhaps, but not useful to you in any way.

Spent the weekend with a group of alphas

24 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The one time you compliment her she cools down. This is the thing I have found the most baffling about game. The hotter the girl, the more game works on them.

Correction: The hotter she thinks she is.

If their self-esteem is too high, you have to be indifferent. If their self-esteem is low, a gentler touch (but never compliant) is required.

Usually this coincides with hotness, but not always.

Don't hide how you feel. Men are allowed to feel sad.

24 upvotes · 8 September 2017 · /r/MensRights

Yes.

HumanSockPuppet's Guide to Teasing Bitches

24 upvotes · 9 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm dealing with a more fundamental, emotional issue that specifically limits my ability to escalate with women.

Every newb thinks they have a unique roadblock.

Girl friend got forcibly kissed and got her ass grabbed by another man while on a study trip, how should I react to this

24 upvotes · 9 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

Were you born yesterday or something? This didn't just randomly happen. She was flirting with him and he escalated.

Has she suggested going to the police? No?

And she won't. Because she led him on and she knows it. She may not have planned for it to escalate like that (at least not public), but if she doesn't want him punished... you'll know.

As if you didn't already.

Why you should look as attractive as possible.

24 upvotes · 19 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Good points, but there's a bigger picture you missed.

It's not just about looks. It's about looks on Tinder, because that's the focus there... but this works for whatever the currency of attraction is in whatever venue you're in.

If you're perceived as high-status, if you're highly-preselected, if you're famous or powerful, or whatever, you get treated like this.

The thing to remember is:

Women do not care about your politeness, or appropriateness. They only care about your "alphaness".

The desirable man can get away with anything. The undesirable man can get away with nothing... and will be reprimanded even for being polite.

Be the desirable man.

[SERIOUS] When a 13 year old kid gets caught having sex with his hot 24 year old teacher: How should we look at the situation?

24 upvotes · 16 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

A 13yo is not ready emotionally to handle a grown ass woman.

You're just repeating some dumb shit your society told you.

Sex is not some sort of emotional dynamite that permanently destroys people's lives. You know this. You do not seriously believe that people evolved to be physically ready for sex at 13, to want sex at 13, but to be mentally damaged by sex for five more years.

That doesn't pass the laugh test. You're smarter than that.

What you are saying is ridiculous, but it's the safe thing to say. That's the real reason you are saying it.

I went full retard with TRP. How can future members avoid this?

24 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Over-gaming isn't just overgaming, it's uncalibrated gaming.

It's okay to go out there and be an over-the-top, over-assertive caricature douchebag. Why?

Because it's practice. After a while, you'll get calibrated and stop. But if you under-game, you'll never learn.

There is such a thing as too bold. But too bold is always better than too tame.

Why are (some) men so concerned with who and how many men an adult woman sleeps with?

24 upvotes · 1 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why are you so concerned with what (some) men are concerned about?

Boys are not defective girls

24 upvotes · 29 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

the impression that feminists are all misandrist psychos

That's not the problem.

The problem is that the man-hatin' psychos are running the show.

Asked a girl to hang out, she told me she "has standards". How do I get over feeling shitty about this lmao?

24 upvotes · 1 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

How do I get over this? I feel like a little bitch.

You feel like this because you are basing your self-worth on her evaluation of you.

How good is her judgment? Well, she gossips, does drugs, drinks heavily, quit school, has a very high partner count, etc

If she has/had 'friends with benefits' she's not worth the commitment.

24 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As a general rule, it's best to limit your commitment to a girl to the maximum commitment she achieved with the man who gave her the least commitment she had.

In other words, if she was a plate to the last man she had sex with, then she's a plate to you. If she started out as his plate but achieved LTR status, then she might be LTRable, assuming she wasn't just a plate to someone else.

And so on.

What do you talk to 18-25 year old women about?

24 upvotes · 22 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Why does it matter that they are 18-25? Do you think women suddenly grow up when they hit 30? Talk to them all as if they were 15.

And why would you choose topics to please them, anyway?

Talk about something interesting you have to say. Who cares if it's her thing or not? You are not there to please or entertain her. You are on an adventure, and she can come along if she likes. You have something to talk about, and she can listen if she likes. You have passions to express, and she can participate or not.

"I would like to settle down with a guy like you"

24 upvotes · 13 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

The ultimate girl fantasy isn't the dual track mating strategy with alpha playmates and a beta provider.

It's merging those two tracks into the alpha provider. "50 Shades of Grey" represents a snapshot of this, a sexy billionaire who can satisfy not only her material needs, but her desire for passion, drama, and sexual excitement.

AFBB simply materializes because girls cannot find the alpha provider. Your average alpha doesn't have to bankroll girls, and your average man who is able to bankroll girls is focused on his career, not on traveling the world and perfecting his sex-pack abs.

If a girl expresses urges to lock you down, it can mean one of several things. She might see you as a nice safe beta provider to jump off the cock train with. Or she might see you as the best man she could ever possibly get, and she wants to hold on rather than trying to trade up.

In order to tell which one she sees you as, you have to use context clues to determine if she's mentally putting you in the "alpha" category or the "beta" category.

Here's a few things to look at.

- Alphas get sex soon after meeting. Betas get sex eventually.
- Alphas get sex when they want it. Betas get sex when she wants it.
- Alphas get kinky sex. Betas get vanilla sex.
- Women expect monogamy from betas. Women are willing to share alphas.
- Women do what alphas tell them. Women tell betas what to do.
- Women get briefly furious at alphas, then apologize. Women are constantly slightly annoyed with betas, and expect them to apologize.
- Women demand expensive gestures from betas. Women are surprised and boundlessly grateful for the smallest gesture from alphas.
- Beta chase women. Women chase alphas.

You get the idea.

If walk you up to her, wordlessly open your fly, and push her head down, and she goes to work, then mentions an LTR while licking up the last of your semen, she's saying "That's it, I'm done. I don't think I could possibly trade up. You're the best I'm ever going to get. Please stay."

If she says the same thing in the fancy restaurant after you just bought her an expensive meal, and you're hoping you might get to second base tonight, she's saying "You are controllable and appear to have a decent amount of cash, and the ability to bolster my ego. Hang around until ~~I'm done fucking Chad~~ Chad is done fucking me, and I'll let you buy me more things."

First post syndrome

24 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You're not quite hearing me.

The takeaway isn't "Don't write with passion", it's "when you don't have passion, don't write".

Even the Catholic Church, once a stalwart bastion of the strong nuclear family, is now throwing in with the feminists and is encouraging divorce and man shaming

24 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Socialism actually creates the problem it purports to solve. Building wealth is a multi-generational process. This requires stable families and intact inheritances.

Socialism also protects the super-rich. It taxes income (not wealth), thereby preventing people from becoming wealthy. The super-rich are already wealthy, so to them, this is just eliminating of the competition. It also distracts the poor with free bread and circuses from the barriers that socialism has placed between them and wealth.

Girl on TwoXChromosomes continues hooking up with "an inconsiderate, disgusting douchebag" for 3 years straight. Hamsters ahoy!

24 upvotes · 23 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And here's the other shoe; you know what would happen if he did? She'd get bored and find another sexy rapist to cheat with.

AWALT.

Suicidal lonely guy is frustrated by women, reaches out for help. R/AskMen decides the REAL problem is that he's a shitlord misogynist!

24 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's about sexing women because it started as a pickup group, but the mission has broadened.

One of the biggest problems with raising boys today is that, as women's voices have become more and more listened to, and men's voices less and less so, and as acknowledgment of the fundamental differences between the male and female brain has started to vanish from our culture, female behaviour is reinterpreted as healthy behaviour, and male behaviour is reinterpreted as defective or delinquent behaviour.

Proper care of boys starts with respect for the value of masculinity.

What problems are you having?

Karen Straughan gets shit-faced while ripping apart the "25 Invisible Benefits of Gaming While Male" video.

24 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/MensRights

Looks like Karen is starting to wise up.

Using reason with feminists gets you nowhere, because if you could reason with them, they wouldn't be feminists.

Debunking them rationally for the benefit of third parties doesn't help either. Arguing with them rationally just lends them an appearance of credibility they don't deserve, because an adult is taking them seriously.

The thing to do is laugh at them.

The real enemy isn't feminists. Feminists are just a bunch of girls who never grew up playing career, playing advocate, playing social revolutionary. The enemy is the men who take them seriously, because feminists don't have any power of their own, because they don't build, improve or sustain anything. They just whine for a share in what others have built.

When a little girl whines to daddy to buy her a pony, that's just a little girl doing what little girls do. The problem is when daddy actually buys her one... and anything else she wants.

Finally a national leader who gets it: "'Women are not equal to men,' Turkish president declares."

24 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Recep Tayyip Erdogan claims Muslim sailors reached the American continent in 1178 – exactly 314 years before Columbus

And when they got there, some Vikings said "What took you so long?"

#YesAllCats is taking off on Twitter. Shitstorm Imminent

24 upvotes · 1 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Once again, 4chan illustrates that the best weapon against nonsense isn't logic, but laughter.

27-year-old fair maiden named "boozemunkee" is mystified why she can't find a man who wants more than sex and to settle down with her. r/relationships dons their white armor and rides to the rescue.

24 upvotes · 18 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's the way I explain it to women:

"Men don't want to be an accessory that you pick out when you're 30 and have the career, the house, and the pets all picked out, and you've already had your adventures, scars, and stories.

"Instead, we want to go through life's adventures with you. We want to be young and wild together. Everything personality-forming you do without me is one less adventure I get to share.

"I'd rather you didn't have scars unless I can tell the story to our friends of how the car spun off that icy road. I'd rather you didn't have tattoos unless we picked them out together and I held your hand while you winced under the needle. The more of you that's formed, complete, set in concrete by the time I meet you, the less I get to be part of that process.

"Being part of that process is something men desire. Now, I know that may not make a lot of sense to you, since many or most women like a man with scars and stories. But men are different."

The Five Stages of Red Pill, and how to read r/TRP textposts.

24 upvotes · 5 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I really hope this 'stage 2' anger doesn't become a component of TRP.

It is, and necessarily so.

One of the reasons we need a place like TRP is that it's pretty much taboo everywhere else to say negative things about women, especially if those things are generalizations.

The only way we can have a productive discussion is to be able to explore whatever thoughts we have, and examine them for truth or falsity. That means this needs to be a zero white-knighting zone. Which means it's okay to say mean things about women, advocate trolling them, whatever.

Now, that's not to say we have to agree. But if we disagree, we must do so by saying "that's false", not "that's angry/mean/hostile".

Or even "that's juvenile". Because what is juvenile? It's a stage in the process of growing up. There are people who come in here, who have never, in their whole lives, been free to say negative things about women without fear, despite the fact that women do have many obvious negative attributes.

Now the chains are off. Of course they're going to run their mouths a bit. Some just for the heady feeling of newfound freedom, some to look edgy, some to try to look more "alpha" than more moderate voices.

And if you try to stop that, you are recreating the problem. It is knowledge, not nagging, that extinguishes anger. No one is angry at that which he can control.

What is the "red pill" response to accusations of "rape culture"?

24 upvotes · 29 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Rational argument is like chess. You can only play it against the people who understand the rules.

Debating with feminists, cultural Marxists, and postmodernists is like playing chess with a pigeon. It doesn't know how to move the pieces, so it can't even play the game long enough to successfully lose.

Satire and mockery are the weapons of choice here.

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

24 upvotes · 27 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This actually feeds into a notion I had a while back.

The few women in our culture who are actually adults aren't offended by "misogyny", because they can tell for themselves whether or not these criticisms apply to them.

A woman who is an adult is no more offended by an essay about how women don't mature past the age of 15, than I am by articles complaining about how modern men are ball-less wonders who don't act like men anymore. It doesn't bother me, not only because I know it's not about me, but because it's pointing out precisely what annoys me about men in my society.

For all the guys who ask "what does this mean?" or "does this mean she's interested?"

24 upvotes · 22 June 2011 · /r/seduction

If you're not confident that you're good enough for her, why would she be confident that you're good enough for her?

And remember, what's so great about her, anyway?

Women in this culture overvalue themselves, and men undervalue themselves. The first step is not to buy into this.

Sweetheart, you look a Barbie clown.

23 upvotes · 13 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Bold of her to assume we want to be useful to her in the first place.

I am a bit scared of older men

23 upvotes · 14 November 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

it suddenly hit me that he is 37 and I am 24, that's a 13 year age gap, why would he be interested in me if it's not the fact that I am young?

If your sense of your own worth is very low, your brain will start making up excuses as to why people who like you don't really like you.

And your sense of self worth can be discerned just from reading your user name.

Of course he likes it that you are young... men are attracted to younger women. But can you see how your brain made an unnoticed and unsupported leap from he likes me because I am young and attractive to he ONLY likes me because I am young and attractive?

There are lots of young and attractive women in the world. Why did he pick you in particular?

I am scared of being the little young toy of an older man.

Why?

What is so terrible about being the favorite toy of someone you liked enough to throw caution to the winds and have sex with on the first date?

Read between the lines. You're just nervous because you have fallen for him, and that means when you don't see him for more than a few hours, you run out of delicious endorphins and start getting anxiety, which you make up reasons for.

Don't sabotage yourself.

And for fuck's sake learn to use paragraph breaks.

Serotonin, Dopamine, and Covid-19

23 upvotes · 15 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

There's such a thing as too much dopamine. You can overdose yourself with your own behaviour, and get tolerance and addiction.

Serotonin doesn't work that way. No tolerance, no addiction. Sure, too much could, theoretically, kill you, but the only way to get that would be by injection. I know of no behaviour you can indulge in that will wreck your serotonin system through overuse.

But by the same token, I know of no way to productize serotonin. Sure, there are things you can buy that can help you get it. You can spend money to learn things, to build things, to meet and interact with people, to get further from concrete and closer to trees. But there's no pre-packaged serotonin hit. Every one of those things requires you to do something, and the money you spent is just a small step in the larger process.

I can sell you a doughnut that can give you a dopamine hit (pleasure) when you bite in and taste it. But there's nothing I can sell you that will just give you serotonin (happiness). I sell you a set you a rack, a bar, and some plates. But you have to actually lift them, and that's the rare part.

Money cannot buy happiness. It can only buy pleasure.

and not to mention how many times they said that i have internalized misogyny

23 upvotes · 28 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

If a woman uses the phrase "pick me girl", this generally means she's a "skip me girl".

I found out my boyfriend is a gambling addict and lost it all, what do I do?

23 upvotes · 7 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

In general, you can fix yourself and you can fix your relationship with someone else, but you cannot fix someone else.

Whether you wish to keep the relationship is up to you. But DO NOT merge finances with this person, and NEVER loan him money.

Can't attract the men I want

23 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Your rapid descent into self-pity certainly makes me feel like I wouldn't want to date you. It would be depressing. I'd be concerned about being stuck with someone who complains all the time.

I have learned a lot in my life and I want to share.

23 upvotes · 8 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You didn't cause any problems.

Where I'm coming from is that I try to curate the group so that it will be generally intended to benefit men. So I steer it away from stuff like:

- Somebody trying to recruit them for a cause that they won't be individually helped by fighting for.
- Somebody trying to talk them out of useful beliefs or techniques because it hurts, or might hurt, someone else's interests.
- Haters in general.
- Successful men (or those claiming to be such) talking a way that makes beginners lose hope.
- Promoting inaction and despair, etc.

You don't have any great insights or advice to share, which is what I usually look for in good content, but for whatever reason, you provoked some good discussion. So that's worth it.

"I won't be available for a week"

23 upvotes · 1 May 2020 · /r/askTRP

So what?

Some chicks will ghost you and you'll never know why. The trick is not to care.

Masculinity is winning, and winning is power

23 upvotes · 21 March 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Psychological strength or power is the ability to act according to demands of the situation, rather than one's habits, compulsions, feelings, or inner needs.

Psychological weakness is the reverse.

Many men of the past treated stereotypical masculinity as a cage. And this was indeed weakness. But when the soylent left decided to discard stereotypical masculinity altogether, this was even more weakness.

Power is control, and control starts with self-control. Any time there is a course of action that is useful, but unavailable to you because you can't stand to do it, this is weakness. The soylent left replaced being weak because you are unable to vent emotions ever, with being even weaker because you cannot stop.

The better a man's self-control, the more his actions are dictated by his circumstances rather than his feelings.

I have to fake my personality around girls and it's exhausting

23 upvotes · 16 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

"In character" is a temporary stage of changing yourself.

In time, you will find ways of integrating what you want to do with who you want to be.

I am quiet and introspective. And it gets me hella laid.

What makes girls like dangerous man?

23 upvotes · 18 February 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A dangerous man is dangerous...to whom?

To other men.

Precisely.

Women are not endangered by violent male competition because they are the prize, not the target.

Why do guys not want relationships as much as women?

23 upvotes · 14 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are the gatekeepers of sex, men are the gatekeepers of relationships.

Is this all in my [21F] head or something else [22M]?

23 upvotes · 14 December 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

A lot of the women here are giving you advice on whether you should "stay or go".

This is utterly useless... right or wrong, you are going to stay. You're head over heels for him. Just look at the number of tears you have shed and paragraphs written.

So I'm not going to tell you whether it's wise to stay or wise to go. I'm going to tell you how to turn the relationship into something you want.

Your goal is to be his acknowledged and exclusive partner. For that, he wants obedience and self-improvement. Now, while self-improvement is always a good idea, obedience requires trust, which he wants and you don't feel.

Tell him this:

I want to trust you, and, even more, I want to be able to trust you. But trust isn't voluntary. It can't be owed, and it can't even be earned. It has to be inspired. Help me trust you by showing me I am safe in your hands. Then I will be able to obey you.

I want to be your acknowledged and exclusive partner, and it shames me to be with you without that. I understand that for that to happen, you want me to be someone you can be proud of. I'm willing to work towards that with your help, but I also need some hope that this goal is achievable.

Know this:

No matter how high his status, he's only 22, and therefore he's not yet a polished, skilled and confident dom (in the BDSM sense or any other). He's still figuring it out, which he can do if he's smart. But he's going to need good feedback from you for that.

You need to make the constant habit of telling him your feelings, wants, and needs, without telling him want to do or demanding any particular action. Bring your Captain your problems, not your solutions. When he receives a running inventory of what's in your head, he can make decisions with your welfare in mind, because he knows what such a decision would look like.

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

23 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism isn't our enemy... it's just part of the terrain.

And we don't need to be allied, because we are not a movement. We speak to the individual man. We give him ideas for how to fix his individual life. There is as much value in us arguing as us getting along, because every man has the ability to pick and choose what he listens to... nothing, everything, or something in between.

Be still my manic hamster

23 upvotes · 9 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's difficult to speculate about the inner thoughts of someone who I cannot observe.

There are many possibilities, ranging from "he's sexually inexperienced and shy about escalating" to "he's gay, and you are a beard".

You could try bolder encouragement (girls' hints are ALWAYS too subtle. ALWAYS.), but if he doesn't respond to that, regardless of the reason, you may have to give up. If his sexual desire for you does not match yours for him, this is a recipe for unhappiness.

So:

1. Try escalating yourself.
2. Give some more time.
3. If that doesn't work, consider nexting.

RPW does not mean we are playthings for men.

23 upvotes · 20 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

This question is more about your feelings than any concrete strategy issue.

It's often difficult for women to think about submissiveness in the abstract, because women aren't submissive to "some dude". They are submissive to men they trust... and in order to feel that, you have to have some concrete idea of who and what sort of guy you are talking about. Can't trust an abstraction.

In other words, the goal isn't "be a Stepford wife"... it's "find a specific man who makes you feel like you want to be one for him".

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

23 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

In this life, there are always people who want you to do things, and who want you not to do things. The difference between them is how they try to incentivize that. Arguments fall into one of several broad categories:

- Do this, because it's good for you.
- Do this, and I will give you something in exchange.
- Do this, because it is a moral imperative.
- Do this, or I will harm you or your reputation.

Moral arguments fall into the second pair of categories. They are essentially a shock collar that attempts to compel behaviour without giving value in exchange. They are, in fact, how the "seduction" subreddit was destroyed from the outside by people who cared nothing for its goals, thus inducing us to create TRP.

If you ask why I do not teach young men to treat others morally, I will ask you why their own culture has taken no pains at all to treat these young men morally. All of its plans for their behaviour run counter to their well-being. So I am teaching them to reject a moral system that places them outside not only its circle of protection, but its definition of acknowledged humanity.

They are, of course, free to use their developing wisdom and judgement to develop their own definitions of morality. But I am not going to allow more of the poison that brought them here in the first place.

More Silence from Reddit Administration - A Failure for Community Managers to... Manage?

23 upvotes · 29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

For those not in the know:

We are not, of course, really desirous of "guidance", or "leadership", or "direction" from reddit's "community" team. Such a thing would be absurd, since they have zero knowledge of masculinity, leadership, or indeed anything we are trying to accomplish here.

But they have claimed a mantle of leadership, and so we are using their own language and communication paradigms to reveal their utter hypocrisy and/or institutional incompetence.

Reddit, like most online social media platforms, was created by those whose only qualifications were technical and technological, and thus they fail when and where they are called on to anticipate, or deal with, the social and psychological ramifications of their actions, positions, and attitudes. Not only are they unable to deal with social problems, they are unable to understand that social problems are every bit as real and demanding as technical ones.

Thus they do not devote serious time, thought, effort, and expertise to the cultivation of a social community environment.

The TRP leadership team, by contrast, specializes in analyzing and managing social matters, which is how we have built a thriving culture, beneficial to its members, on a hostile raft in the midst of a sea of hostility.

The important lesson here is that social skills, and social problems, are every bit as important as technical ones. Digg, MySpace, Google Plus, and other failed platforms were not brought down by technical failures.

Social entities are destroyed when their members cannot effectively communicate with each other internally to settle differences, and to establish and work towards common goals. This lessons can be applied to many phenomena in today's world.

"You're too young" shit test

23 upvotes · 17 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Too young for what? Was there something you had in mind?"

What do men want? - positive masculinity in relationships

23 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's good to discuss just what definition of masculinity /u/spez would like to cram down our throats, but this question, as you have asked it, misses the larger issue.

TRP defines a notion of a positive masculine identity. The feminists and genocide advocates at the link target have another definition altogether. The key difference between these two notions is the question of "positive for whom?".

TRP begins with the assumption that men are people, and that what is good for men is an end, not a means to someone else's good. Therefore, the sort of masculinity it teaches is centered around notions of competence, power, and effectiveness... around the ability for men to achieve their own ends for their own sake.

Feminists do not see men as an end, but as a means to an end. This is why all of their definitions of "positive" masculinity center around what they believe men can and should do for the sake of women. They center around notions of giving and of self-sacrifice.

To ask what men "bring to the table" is missing the point, because it is once again defining masculinity in terms of what it "brings to the table" for women to enjoy. To define masculinity in these terms is to tacitly agree with the Naomi Wolf and Michael Kimmel's fundamental assumption... that men are not people.

For me, the choice between these two definitions is simply a question of whether I wish to be seen, and to treat myself, as a person... or not.

If I want to be a person, and regard my own benefit as an end unto itself, I must choose TRP over Naomi Wolf.

So the question of what I can do for you ladies must remain unanswered here, at this moment, because that's not what masculinity is for me, nor is it the purpose of my life. There's plenty I can do for those who do for me, but that's not the meaning of my existence, and it's not what it means to be a man.

Struggling to adjust to RP dating mindset

23 upvotes · 25 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I sometimes wonder how women can possibly enjoy watching romantic comedies... an entire genre of film where all plot conflicts could be resolved by five minutes of adult conversation between the major characters.

Then I talk to a novice RPW and am once again reminded that this is how the majority of women live their lives... sabotaging their long term happiness over and over again through a refusal to take the smallest social risk, or to actively reach for their dreams.

You have painted yourself into this corner by the magical power of *Wishful Listening*TM, a process whereby you hear one thing, and then say the magic words, and transform it into exactly the thing you wanted to hear.

For example, you might hear "Relationships are happiest and most stable when the male partner is the acknowledged leader and decision maker."

But what you want is for him to do all the heavy lifting, take all the social risks, guess what you want without you having to face the embarrassment of telling him, and then give it to you without you having to take responsibility for asking.

So, you apply *Wishful Listening*TM, and think "Weeeeeeeelll, if I transform what I heard into 'Men should take the reins', then look at it sideways and squint real hard, I can kinda make it sound like what I wanted to hear."

The problem with *Wishful Listening*TM is that it doesn't work on men's brains. Stubborn creatures that they are, they will insist upon inhabiting the real world, where people don't have telepathic powers, and someone who wants something is responsible for asking for it, because nobody else knows. \

If you don't want to tell him, don't expect him to know.

If you don't want to chase him, don't expect to catch him.

We both know what is going on. You want him. But you were too proud to submit to him, so instead you went off, did your own thing, rode a bunch of strange dick because reasons, and generally acted like an ass. And now you don't want to tell him you love him, because then you would have to acknowledge that you have been an ass, apologize for being an ass, and beg him to take you back.

Instead, you've constructed a fantasy world where the advice you hear is somehow telling you it's his job to make up for your stupidity.

Well, hi, I'm Whisper, I'm one of the original founders of both TRP and RPW, I've teaching this crap for almost a decade, and never once did I say anything like that.

So, what I am telling you, without the magic of *Wishful Listening*TM, is that you have two choices:

- Keep your pride, and get a cat to go with it.
- Humble yourself, and ask the man you love to take you back.

Nobody Ever Told Me...

23 upvotes · 16 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

+1

/u/LuckyLittleStar

Are you a virgin/you look like a virgin. How do you respond

23 upvotes · 17 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Jesus fuck, just agree and amplify. Why the hell do you even need to ask this question?

Girlfriend cheated on me with a girl

23 upvotes · 24 April 2017 · /r/askTRP

No, just bail.

Threesome is for when she includes you from the start.

"I knew I could trust you when your hands were around my throat and you were choking me"

23 upvotes · 7 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is just the whole Madonna-Whore thing, writ small.

You think of rough, dominant sex as something you do out of hate, so you're uncomfortable doing it to a woman you love. "Whores" deserve that treatment, but, to you, "good girls" don't.

That's your fundamental error. Rough sex isn't about destroying a woman... it's about dominating her. You hurt her to coerce her into submitting, not to wreck her. That's the answer that girl was telling you... you used violence to force her to submit, not to kill her.

This is the fundamental underpinning of female sexuality. They wish to be subjugated, not destroyed. They cannot easily ask to be subjugated, because they fear destruction. So the fantasy is to be dominated, coerced, owned, but to be able to escape the danger of destruction by the act of submitting and humbling themselves.

Feminists see sex as inherently a violent, coercive, predatory act of conquest. Guess what? They are right. It's supposed to be like that... and healthy men and women are wired to find their respective roles fucking hot.

You are not hurting your woman, you are owning her. She's your property. Make sure she knows it.

March of the Freak Parade

23 upvotes · 23 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Whites are not superior individually, but when in a collective the combined tendency for goodwill, easy outward trust and an inclination to welcome the unknown become an exponentially overwhelming force for change if given a chance to "build up". This is why prisoner's dilemmas (diversity) conditions are injected into white societies to disrupt them.

It's not about whiteness, it's about homogeneity of cultural identity, and cooperative habits.

It is well-understood (in scientific circles whose papers SJWs and cultural Marxists don't read) that the prosperity of a society consists largely of two elements:

- The degree to which members of it trust one another, and act in a trustworthy way toward one another.
- The degree to which it successfully adapts to and uses effective new ideas.

This means that to be successful, societies must strike a balance between internal cohesion and external adaptability.

So this suggests two ways that a society can destroy itself from within:

- It can allow few to no external influences or immigration. This causes the society to leave chunks of wealth, technological advances, and cultural progress "on the table", and be bypassed by the rest of civilization. It will eventually be conquered, militarily or economically.
- It can open its borders and minds too much, thereby eroding its sense of shared identity and trust. Members of the society factionalize into subgroups based on political affiliation, genetic traits, subculture, etc. Internal cooperation decreases and internal conflict increases.

The first case is the collapse of the Soviet Union.

The second is the decline of the United States of America.

Holy fuck, TRP/MRA mentioned in a marvel comic.

23 upvotes · 31 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So, lemme get this straight.

Insulting your core demographic is a smart business move? Or a dumb one?

Female dating advisor shares why women can't find a Good Guy.

23 upvotes · 23 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's to find a girl who doesn't behave like Amy describes

Back to red pill school with you.

We have a word for girl who naturally behaves herself. That word is "unicorn".

Because they do not fucking exist.

But Whiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiispperrrrrrrrrrrr, keepers dooooooooo exist... I've seeeeeeeeeeen them!

What you've seen is a man who knows how to set boundaries and expectations for his woman. You don't find keepers. You make them.

Taking Social Psychology Class and Professor Mentions The Red Pill

23 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember that bad publicity for us is good publicity for us.

Every time one of these chucklefucks whimpers about us in a public forum, we get more people wandering in here who are more curious than outraged.

Why most video game characters are male

23 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

And another one:

People write stories about people like them. In all the old Godzilla movies, the monsters attacked Tokyo, not Novia Scotia or Rio de Janeiro.

Video games are man stories, told by men, for men. Why? Because men are telling them.

Only a tiny minority of women have both the interest and the technical aptitude to assist in any material way with video game creation. This means their perspective tends not to loom large when a big budget dev company is inventing an original scenario to set a game in.

There may be more and more women who are interested enough in a male type of story that they are willing to play these kinds of games, but they can't reasonably expect to be catered to any time in the near future.

Not why?

Because no matter what business you are in, pissing off the people who buy your product, in order to appease people who don't, is pants-on-head retarded, that's why not.

Make a sexy heroine in a skin-tight uniform, and you'll piss off Anita Sarkessian, but why would you care? She's not a gamer. She's not going to buy your product anyway.

How do you respond to people who believe gender is a social construct ?

23 upvotes · 26 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How do you respond to people who believe gender is a social construct ?

Laughter.

Man loses job and breaks down crying when he tells his wife. She is surprised to discover that she feels disgusted by him.

23 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A man defines a "strong" man as "a tough man who is difficult to break".

A woman's libido defines a "strong" man as "a man who is unbreakable".

Women do not think proportionally or realistically about male toughness, because proportional and realistic thinking are done with the conscious forebrain. Women do not decide based on rational thinking who to be attracted to. It's an instinctive response.

The lower brain does not care if you are crying because your child has stage 4 bone cancer. It is not capable of thinking about cause and effect, or noticing patterns. It is not set up to do that. It only sees you crying.

A woman who sees you cry when facing adversity can think about what you are facing, and calculate. But the part of her that does that is not the part of her that is connected to her libido or her feelings of love, affection, or respect.

A woman can stay attracted to you after under only a few circumstances. Examples include dust under your contact lens, cutting onions, just caught the winning touchdown in the superbowl, and so on. If she sees you cry from fear or sadness, that will severely damage her respect for you. And female love is 90% respect.

Why is this? Because the evolutionary role of tears is to ask for help from other humans. Women are attracted to a man who is help, not a man who asks for it.

"...And Candy Cheats Again"

23 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

LTRs can be discarded and replaced with no damage other than the emotional. Marriage, not so much.

Story of my young adult life and how I came crashing into TRP.

23 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I would think, "How could she not see how much I love her, and how much I still want to be with her?" Now I know she simply didn't care, not because she didn't want to, but because she couldn't.

Women do not care how much you love them. They care about how much they love you.

Men who seek to attract a woman, or keep her attracted, by showing devotion, are making a solipsistic error. It is men who are attracted to devotion. Women are indifferent to it at best. More frequently, they interpret it as weakness, and it repels them.

Women don't do "commitment". The only way to hold their loyalty continuously is to be attractive to them consistently.

Post-wall, ugly female professor's bitter rant about her colleagues hitting up 20 year old coeds instead of her.

23 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They're tearing her apart because, in this, she's not just having a go at older male professors, but also the attractive young women they are dating.

A man will almost never win a public sympathy contest with any woman, but, by the same token, in a public sympathy contest between two women, the one with the higher apparent SMV will almost always win.

This old woman could bitch about her male colleagues being sexist and whatnot endlessly, and receive nothing but support... but the instant she launches even an implied criticism of a younger, prettier woman, the sympathy dries up.

Why do men want younger, less experienced women?

23 upvotes · 18 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ah, "intimidated". The first resort of those who wish to shame men because they don't like those men's preferences.

I either want to buy a Porsche because it's better quality than a Honda, or I want to buy a Honda because it's cheaper than a Porsche. Arguing that I'm "intimidated" by either brand of car is retarded.

You just say "intimidated" because you want to call men whose choices bother you cowards, in the subconscious hope that maybe we will change our minds. Don't bother. We won't.

All the schoolyard "whatsa matter? You skkeeeeeeeeeeeered?" in the world won't make young women one iota less smooth-skinned, bright-eyed, shapely, bubbly, enthusiastic, open-hearted, or playful. And it won't make 40 year old thrice-divorced hags one iota less wrinkly, fat, bitter, jaded, demanding, and callous.

The Root Cause of the Anger Phase.

23 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Being out of the anger phase doesn't mean "never being angry again". It means not walking around in the constant state of anger that men get when they wake up.

However, on the global scale, I think our anger is better directed at those who let the children run loose without supervision... the beta majority of the baby boomer males. They, at least were capable of growing up, but they neglected the responsibility to actually do so.

As for most of your examples, anger would be appropriate, but it's late defense... for any reader who has children. I would recommend the early defense of keeping your kids the hell out of the loser factory in the first place.

And that's the next article... stay tuned, fans.

Thunderf00t explores why Joss Whedon's support for Anita Sarkeesian is contradictory to his own works.

23 upvotes · 3 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

What Joss Whedon is, is a sexual submissive. It's pretty obvious if you look at his body of work.

This explains why he supports feminism (because he likes the idea of women in power over men), but portrays women as sexual objects (because that's why he likes empowered women).

It also explains why he often portrays women as victims. It's because in his body of work, that is the moral barometer. It's how he tells you who the villain of the piece is. The hero is the guy who rescues the woman from the abuse, and then gets beaten up and/or treated with contempt by her. This last bit doesn't seem inconsistent to him, because to him it's a reward.

Someone who was feminist for non-sexual reasons would portray female characters taking care of themselves, but Joss won't do that because it's not his kink. What he wants to show is male physical power subservient to female social power. If female characters are taking care of themselves, then male characters cannot act like, and be treated like, their slaves.

My response to EMSK's "Why RedPill will kill you inside"

23 upvotes · 30 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's all I have to say about this.

If "flipping the power dynamic" on a hot, popular school girl means "breaking her like an animal", does that then mean that the unflipped power dynamic breaks high school boys like animals?

And if so, is /u/Talshar okay with this?

The power dynamics are already there. People who suddenly start crying when men have some power are not objecting to power dynamics. They're just objecting to women being treated like ordinary people.

This video epitomizes how reddit outside of TRP gives relationship advice.[Humor]

23 upvotes · 23 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Some people seem to think that breaking up with someone is a magic reset button that undoes everything that happened when you were with them. Even if "breaking up" really means "doing the walk of shame from his apartment in the morning, and never seeing him again".

Maybe I'll try that on the next woman I meet. Tell her some tall tale about how I used to beat up my last girlfriend, but "that was before I met you".

See if she's "open-minded" and "non-judgmental" about that.

Why Generation Y Yuppies are Unhappy

23 upvotes · 17 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think this article is pretty silly.

First of all, anything that praises the baby boomers for their work ethic has strayed so far into bizarro-universe that bacon is growing on trees.

The reason generation Y is unhappy is that they are the first generation in America to be worse off than their parents. Baby boomers mostly owned their own homes, worked for many years at the same companies, and didn't have to worry too much about the future.

Generation X, the boomers' children, which for some reason the article is calling generation Y, didn't have those luxuries.

Was it because they were just too constitutionally lazy to work hard? Ridiculous. Where does an entire generation of people, varied as they are, suddenly and unilaterally become universally lazy?

No. Individuals are unpredictable, but populations spread that unpredictable behaviour across a normal distribution, and become predictable. Which means that if the whole population does something, there is an overriding externality in play.

In this case, the externality is very simple. You cannot climb a falling rope. The post-boomer generations didn't expect to be handed everything, but they did expect there to be steady jobs they could get and work at, homes that could be purchased with the pay of those jobs, and sufficient money to raise a family.

None of these was there to be found. Boomer investment created the housing bubble and squeezed many first home buyers out of the market. Boomer feminism expanded the workforce without creating additional markets, lowering the cost of labour, and destroying job security. Boomer socialism raised taxes to take bigger and bigger bites of everyone's purse, but hit small and new businesses the hardest by far. Boomer foreign policy subsidized the oil industry, which not only raised taxes and increased public debt, it prevented the development of alternative energy sources such as nuclear plants, and it sent post-boomer generations' men out to get maimed in fruitless military adventures.

The tragedy of history is that each generation thrives according to the wisdom and industry of the previous generation, not according to its own.

Back from OKC Hiatus. Women's Profiles Have Become Even More Banal (x post from r/okcupid)

23 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

For the love of all that is good and right and just, do not waste one moment of your life reading OKStupid.

It's a high-static environment, caught in the Dating Site Death Spiral where men can only be successful by spamming, because the women have grown ever more resistant and eager to reject, because they get spammed so much.

If you walk up to a girl on the street and talk to her, you're another human being. If you message her on OKStupid, you're one in 27 in her inbox that day alone, and she will delete your message unread, based on your picture thumbnail alone. (Don't feel bad. Yesterday she rejected the man of her dreams because his profile said he didn't like dogs.)

Get off the computer and go talk to some women in meatspace. They aren't getting mobbed there like a cow carcass by a school of piranha.

Female on AskMen: "Where do I go to find guys to sleep with without spending a ton of money (if any)?"

23 upvotes · 12 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The only thing she has going for her is "not obese". 2.5/10.

Women are starving themselves to look like skinny models, because that's how you Men prefer them to be! NYAH!

23 upvotes · 10 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

If you want to see what straight men like, don't look at fashion models. Who reads fashion magazines? Women and gay men.

Look at porn, instead. Do they look anorexic?

How do conservative women convince men that they are not gold diggers?

22 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You are one.

Do you know why so many billionaires have reasonably hot wives their own age, as opposed to smoking hot professional models twenty years younger than they are?

Because when you are very wealthy, one of the hardest things to get your hands on is someone you know is committed to you, not your wealth. So they tend to marry girls who were with them out of the starting gate.

Not ones who did what you are doing, which is wait at the finish line in a short skirt.

Real life RP effects: men in 40s divorcing wives who helped them reach high SMV/RMV?

22 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Remember that you have a parasocial relationship with these people.

You don't know if she was supportive or not. You don't know what she did or didn't do, what he did or didn't do. You only know what the press makes up, then tells you.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

22 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes.

Here's what I would have said if my audience could be relied upon to have an IQ at least two standard deviations above the mean:

Any time there is a metric, it can be gamed in proportion to the gap between it and the quality it seeks to measure. Any time there is profit or power to be gained from gaming a metric, the amount it is gamed will tend towards a maximum over time. There is absolutely no way of systematically reversing this process. All you can do is replace the metric.

However, when you use a non-standard metric, or when you look at the desired quality directly, if you can, the gap between your measurement, and the measurement according to the gamed metric, will be directly proportional to the amount that the metric is gamed.

So highly gamed metrics are easy to detect, and thus highly fraudulent individuals and institutions are easy to detect... but only if you have enough cynicism and distrust to know you should be looking.

But getting upset at people being stupid is itself stupid... because there's no way to actually make people smarter... you can only try to reach the ones who are not yet operating at their full intellectual potential.

Hence the simplified metaphor, NARS.

The Importance of Manliness.

22 upvotes · 7 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

That's my whole point.

Using "frame" to mean composure is retarded misinterpretation by people who read red pill material but haven't the wit to understand it.

You don't "have" frame and you don't "hold" frame. You control the frame, which is the subject, context, and rules of the discourse.

My game isn't "poker" or "failed ideologies from a century ago". It's "whichever game has the highest expected value at the moment". That's what I mean by talking about the concept of frame control in response to the idea of answering dumb questions the opposition asks, and ending up in a box.

Answering questions straightforwardly allows the opponent to set the frame. That's the concept you were approaching when you talked about "ending up in a box". That "box" is simply your opponent's chosen frame for the interaction.

Why They Hate You

22 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

This question is interesting, but not necessary.

It doesn't matter to the purposes of Upside Down Clown World (UDCW) just why young white males are the most libertarian demographic on the planet. It suffices to be aware that they are. The leaders and driving forces of UDCW may not be super deep thinkers, but they can certainly read poll data. That alone suffices to tell them what is in their best interests.

If I, personally, had to hazard an educated guess as to why young white males are the most libertarian, I would say that they are the demographic which benefits the state the most, but benefits least from the state. Therefore it is in their best interests to disempower the state, and in the state's best interest to disempower them.

Is it a warning sign for a man to be into anime?

22 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Anime" means Japanese animation. And the Japanese use animation for telling all kinds of different stories. So this basically means "Japanese fiction".

Well, the Japanese also like Japanese fiction. So, clearly, unless all Japanese people are unsuitable partners, it can't ALL be a warning sign.

It's gonna depend on what sort of fiction it is.

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

22 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Then why are most homophobes men

Because women do everything by proxy. Why would they bother to bash gay men themselves when they can get men to do it for them?

most women love gay guys like James charles

Women don't love gay men.

Women are perpetual fashion victims. They do whatever is in vogue, regardless of how stupid it is, because they are inherently submissive, and if they don't have a man to hold their leash, they look around at other women to know what to do.

The last half a century has been characterized by a culture war between tradconism and cultural marxism ... but what they are fighting over is not the feminine vs the masculine imperative, but rather, over who can most effectively serve the feminine imperative.

The tradcons think that masculinity is for taming and turning into a beast of burden. Cultural Marxists think it is a dangerous animal to be destroyed.

But neither want it to be free to live in the wild how it chooses to live.

Don't talk about fight club.

22 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

My girls read every single article I write.

Lying is for people who fear consequences of the truth, and if you are afraid of your girl, guess who's wearing the pants?

Be unapologetic, accumulate power, and surround yourself with people who appreciate you.

I found Women who was Match maker. She quit because she could not handle female clients.

22 upvotes · 16 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

She's wrong about one very important thing.

Men don't become "ready" to settle down. There's not some magic time period that makes us suddenly interested in what you want.

We become interested in what you want when you make it worthwhile for us. By being interested in what we want. A man doesn't get into a relationship because he's "ready". He becomes ready because he found a woman who was worth a relationship with.

All the men who "weren't ready" for relationship with you, were at that exact moment ready for a relationship with someone else who was a better catch.

I'm successful/get laid lots by being nice. I'm literally just kind to girls, honest and straightforward. Then I bang, and move on. Is this allowed? What am I missing out on with this approach?

22 upvotes · 24 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

I bet that by "nice" you don't mean showering girls with compliments, being too available, being a pushover, etc, which is what actual "nice guys" do.

+1

I believe virginity is a beautiful gift that women are blessed with, which is why I choose to be celibate. [?] I strongly believe that people who attack women for their conservative views are sexist jerks.

22 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Virginity is a social construct.

So is civilization. What's your point?

What do guys consider "fat"?

22 upvotes · 27 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's about shape not size.

Men like ) (or) (or) (

They don't like

()

Doctor shares her thoughts on infant circumcision

22 upvotes · 21 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

Personally the best benefit is the compliments I get on my dick during sex. Nailing the G-spot is easier.

So, the primary benefit to mutilating your infant is that the resulting adult will be more pleasing to some stranger?

Glad to see you have your priorities straight.

Are all women like this?

22 upvotes · 22 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Women hate initiating.

Why? Because everyone hates initiating until they are fucking trained at it. Remember how hard it was to approach girls before you practiced your ass off at it?

Well, imagine what it's like for women. Not only is it just as hard for them, they don't have to do it. So why would they ever bother to get over that hill?

Not only that, women are submissive by nature. And if they don't have a man to tell them what to do, they look around at other women and imitate the herd. And they don't see other women approaching men. So they don't want to.

And since they don't want to, the hamster starts spinning, and they justify it to themselves....

"Men love the chase."

"If I initiate, he'll think I'm desperate or a slut."

"I already gave him an obvious hint by standing near him for 27 seconds while looking in the opposite direction. And wearing a green shirt."

"Men feel emasculated if a woman approaches them."

... just an unending stream of bullshit to justify what they already want to do.

Seriously, go and read /r/RedPillWomen (silently, please). You'll be shocked at how remedial they are... and those are the elite, the ones who cared enough to come there in the first place. It's like we're up to teaching you guys how to run up walls and shatter stones at a distance with chi power, and they're still stuck on Kung Fu 101, How Hold Fighting Stick.

Because women are both extremely fragile and vital to the species, they are genetically programmed to be the single most selfish type of creature in the known universe.

Getting them to learn how to put effort into a relationship is a struggle, but doable. Getting them to start approaching? Hah.

Only when you reach the highest echolons of attractiveness and skill will it begin to happen to you.

Why do women love psychopaths?

22 upvotes · 23 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You've made the most common math mistake of all... not doing the math.

If we assume your numbers are good (and they probably aren't, because people look for psychopaths in prison, not out of it), and we add (from Wikipedia) the statistic that 655 of every 100,000 adults in the US is currently incarcerated, we have enough information to answer the math question you should have asked.

If someone is a psychopath, what is the probability that they are in prison?

We assume that:

- The probability that a prisoner is a psychopath is 20%
- The probability that anyone is a psychopath is 1%
- The probability that anyone is a prisoner is 0.655%

Now we turn to Bayes' Theorem:

The probability of (B given A) is the probability of (A given B) times the probability of B, divided by the probability of A.

If B is "subject is a prisoner", and A is "subject is a psychopath", then we have:

The probability that a given psychopath is a prisoner is the probability that a given prisoner is a psychopath, times the probability that anyone is a prisoner, divided by the probability that anyone is a psychopath.

thus

The probability that a given psychopath is a prisoner = $.2 * .00655 / .01 = .131 = 13.1\%$

So, even if those input numbers were correct (they're not), a given psychopath would be 86.9% likely NOT to be incarcerated.

Now, you might ask how I'm making the leap from "in prison" to "bad guy"... but I didn't. You did. There are no statistics for "bad guy" because "bad guy" cannot be measured, agreed upon, or even defined. (That's why I wrote rule two of TRP in the first place.)

Of these statistics that we plugged into the equation, the only one I trust is the 0.655%. The 20% and the 1% are both subject to selection bias because researchers are more likely to diagnose psychopathy in prisoners than in non-prisoners, and more likely to look at prisoners for psychopathy in the first place.

Both of these effects would tend to mean that 13.1% is too high an estimate, and the real number is much lower.

How do you act around other Alphas in the group?

22 upvotes · 9 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Do you need to be in competition? Only a scared animal tries to bite anything else with a penis.

If you cannot make allies of other alpha males, you will never be able to accomplish anything that requires the work of more than one alpha male.

Pussy is a commodity, and not a scarce one. Allies are more valuable.

Being too obliging and "surrendered" too early?

22 upvotes · 13 November 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

My concern is that I'm giving him the milk for free, as they say. We've slept together a few times now (super good) and have had many frank conversations about sex. I told him when it comes to sex he can use me how he likes (within reason) because I trust him and I want to please him. He's very dominant in bed and that's what he wants. He's a lot more experienced than I am and I've been clear I've never given a man a blank cheque like that before. He says he can't believe his luck. Should I be holding back more, at this stage?

No matter how many times I slay this myth, cut its head off, fill the mouth with salt and sew it shut, douse the corpse in holy water, burn it to ashes on a fire of rowan wood and communion wafers, and bury it in a churchyard at high noon on the summer solstice under a very heavy rock, it still rises from the grave and shambles around groaning and eating the brains of the living.

Sex isn't useful bait anymore. The only useful thing you can do with sex is make men go away by refusing it.

Sure, there are men out for whom sex is scarce. If you want one, go buy a copy of "The Rules", read it from cover to cover, and start the hunt for the boring unattractive shlub of your dreams.

If you want a man with options to choose you, you need to offer something scarce.

Sex is not that thing. Sex is not scarce, and sex does not cement relationships. Femininity is scarce, sex is raining from the sky.

*You can never damage your relationship with a man by having sex with him sooner. He doesn't mind at all. He likes it. The only damage you are doing is exposing yourself to additional risk.*

The time to have sex with a man is the time you decide:

- I want to keep this one with me.
- I think I can keep this one with me.

FAQ: Should we move in together

22 upvotes · 8 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you're going to get married, get married. Take on a true commitment. Don't go halvesies and give him literally every benefit of marriage he wants without getting any of the benefits you want: the financial security of two incomes, a lifelong commitment, legal protection if things go south, an intact family.

This is one of the more common fundamental misunderstandings of the Redpill model for women, and, as is usual for such misunderstandings, it's based on projection; upon the belief that what works with you will work with the opposite sex.

"Why buy the cow if you can get the milk for free?" is a Briffault's Law based argument. It is the idea that you must withhold something in order to provide an incentive for marriage.

Men do not work that way. Briffault's Law describes female behaviour, not male behaviour.

Men do not marry in order to secure some unrealized future benefit. They marry in order to render their current situation permanent. The less beneficial you make their current situation, the less likely they are to want to render it permanent.

The very core of RPW strategy is the acknowledgement that men are reciprocal, and will reward you for simply giving without expecting or bargaining. If this seems frightening and risky to you, then you have not yet fully understood RP theory, or men.

Field Report: My unethical way of fucking models - I'm eventually going to hell

22 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

unethical

Gold diggers gonna gold dig.

Gold digger diggers gonna lie about where the gold is.

Dun care, fucked model.

Falling fast. Please some advice.

22 upvotes · 23 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is a silly post, and a silly question.

You are asking us to evaluate a man you have seen and talked to, that we have not, based on your description of him.

The question you should be asking yourself is not "is this man ready for commitment?" (every man both is and isn't, at every moment). The question you should be asking yourself is

"Can I, with my current skillset and SMV, get this man emotionally invested in me?"

If no, bail. Then fix yourself.

If yes, stay, and do so.

If maybe, judge risk vs reward, and choose.

As a red piller, what's the goal of pursuing a LTR if there are no unicorns?

22 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

You don't pursue an LTR. You pursue sex.

Girls pursue an LTR.

Families and Children

22 upvotes · 5 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

My argument is not a simplistic "I am alpha so the rules do not apply to me".

Argumentum ad AMOG is really a bit more insidious than that. It not only says "This is not a problem for me, because I am a badass.", it also implies "if you argue with me, then this is a problem for you, and therefore you concede that my badassery is superior to yours".

Now, I don't think you're narrow enough to do that deliberately. I know you better than that.

But every time this debate comes up, a lot of dudes do launch this sort of "whatsa matter.... is baby skkeeeered?" kind of rhetoric, and we need to try to move beyond that.

Because sure, you can have a bitch on lockdown. Hell, a lot of guys here probably have girlfriends who would do pet tricks on command. Keeping her loyal for 18 years wouldn't be inconceivable. But there's a deeper issue, and that's the fact that one is entering into a legally subordinate position. The insult of that is obvious, and the risks cannot be objectively assessed. After all, no one goes to the altar thinking "this bitch might dump me", and this is no different. We must all realize that learning game does not make us immune to self-deception.

If a man wants children enough to take the risks, he's going to do it regardless of what I say.

One of the benefits of taking a hard line, however, both on an individual and collective level, is that women want children, and women want marriage, and women want society saved, a lot more than we do. This means that even if you want these things, it's a good idea to let the woman beg you for them first, that they may be regarded as largesse from you, rather than a favour to you.

What to say when a girl asks if you think she's pretty/attractive?

22 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Tease her about being insecure and fishing for compliments.

Girl I just started dating uses "white male" or "old white male" as pejoratives when talking about her boss, politicians, or any other authority figure she dislikes...

22 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

Wrong. You are making the mistake of thinking of girls as adults.

If an adult male tells you he voted for Bernie Sanders, that means he actually believes socialism is good, and you should probably avoid him, before he tries to confiscate your stuff for the people.

If a girl tells you she voted for Bernie Sanders, it's because whoever she is taking her cues from said he was good, because five year olds believe whatever their parents tell them.

Become the dominant influence in her life (not hard to do when you're fucking her), and she'll believe whatever you tell her. Girls do not ally themselves with principles, they ally themselves with groups or individuals.

This is why islamic religious rules forbid muslim women from marrying infidels.

How widespread is The Red Pill?

22 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think you misspelled "shot people and took their stuff".

Q4All: Why do so many men have such low self esteem about their looks or personality and what can we do to fix this?

22 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

1. Because women would rather share the top 1/3 of men than have one of the others to themselves.
2. We can't.

The Alpha investment.

22 upvotes · 6 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Sparg-like typing detected.

The Time I Ditched my Girlfriend in Europe: A Redpill tale from my Bluepill days

22 upvotes · 1 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no "us". There's you, and there's me.

I'd steal your girl, too.

Go squat.

Girl at party tells me "I'm not gonna sleep with you."

22 upvotes · 23 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

A girl who says "I am not going to have sex with you" without first being propositioned is just showing that she is thinking about sex, and you, in combination.

Black Man From the Projects Tells Us How Western Cultural Dysfunction and Oppression Can Be Traced Back to Experimentation on Blacks in the 70's

22 upvotes · 28 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The liberal welfare state did what slavery couldn't do, what racism couldn't do, what Jim Crow couldn't do... it destroyed the black family.

LTR wants a break on vacation because she wants to feel "free"

22 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

"Break" is a code word for "new dick".

Plate says "I don't want you fucking other girls" during sex

22 upvotes · 17 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

I actually made a post on here awhile back- on the first date, I get her pants off and she says "We can either fuck tonight and never see each other again or not and keep seeing each other." Well, we didn't and I've seen her about once-a-week since then.

You caved.

When a woman says this or that will or won't happen, or we are doing or not doing this or that... don't agree. And don't argue.

Just say "we'll see how it goes". And proceed as if she never said it.

Women 'Improving' Men

22 upvotes · 16 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"Yeah, OK, you got us, Game is really what women want, Hypergamy is the law of womankind, but now it's your responsibility that you use it for the better benefit of society by molding a new breed of improved Betas to accommodate fem-centric monogamy. You owe us our security for having admitted to the grand illusion that's kept you in thrall for so long."

/r/RedPillWomen in a nutshell.

Why socially-awkward men hate feminism

22 upvotes · 13 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There are two strategies when faced with widespread disapproval.

- Don't care, do your own thing, approve of yourself.
- Appeasement.

Those male feminists who are ugly losers are taking that path.

They believe that if only they are feminist enough, feminist women will cease berating them.

This, of course, is not true. Because feminism is a power strategy. A rhetorical weapon which one wields to control others... and that is best wielded against those who are most vulnerable to it.

This is why feminist women berate feminist men endlessly, presenting a never-ending stream of ever more refined demands for precisely "correct" behaviour, and scrutinizing their behaviour ever more intensely for the slightest sign of even unconscious deviance from the orthodox.

You can never appease a feminist woman, because they do not want to be appeased. They want to fight. They want to berate. They want to denounce. They want to humiliate. They want to control.

A world of perfect equality and egalitarianism would be the feminist version of hell. Because there would be no great crusade to make them feel special and righteous and important.

women in denial, the bullshit of victimhood

22 upvotes · 22 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What these women seem to be doing is to force the idea that she must be confused coz she was abused and shes some victim, and she cant possibly like it.

One experience women often have to struggle with is the disconnect between getting off on something, and feeling that they are not "supposed" to.

Because women in general are inherently submissive, they often get off on being "victimized" in a sexual context.

So long as things don't get too crazy, the scenario of being forced or tortured or humiliated is often exciting to them.

But another effect of this generally submissive nature is that women often really listen and take it to heart when the collective zeitgeist tells them that they must not let themselves be victimized by those evil men. Then they beat themselves up with guilt for liking something they are not "supposed" to like.

What they don't realize is that this collective zeitgeist mostly consists of other women who also secretly love being spanked, and who are also terrified that the other women will find out what a freak they are.

That's why you will be hard-pressed to find very many women who will say that they have rape fantasies, but women as a group will simultaneously consume huge amounts of BDSM porn (a lot more than 50 shades of it, in fact). Because no one knows that it's them, personally, doing it.

Women are very susceptible to shame. That's why, if you want to understand what women really want, you have to figure out how to watch what they do when no one is watching, when no one is judging. That's why "judging" is a taboo activity and a dirty word to female social groups... only to a submissive does the unfavourable opinion of others hurt so fucking much.

Should riding the cock carousel in her past automatically disqualify a woman from being a serious LTR prospect?

22 upvotes · 7 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Should having been sown with anti-personnel mines in the past automatically disqualify a field for use by the American Youth Soccer Organization?

Teen Boy Will Be Charged As Adult For Having Naked Pics of a Minor: Himself

22 upvotes · 3 September 2015 · /r/MensRights

So, no sexism here.

In this case, it's ageism. The state is asserting primary ownership of young people's bodies.

Feminist at r/askhamsters feels bad about liking to be dominated. She's tried to suppress it but she just can't.

22 upvotes · 19 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

How many trees must you see, before you call it a forest?

Does TRP exaggerate about how quickly women stop respecting their men ?

22 upvotes · 30 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It upsets you that we judge women more harshly than you are used to, and withhold the approval you desire.

Consider this: do you want to be loyal, or do you want to be regarded as loyal?

If you want to be loyal, simply be so, and our observations of women in general need not trouble you. If you wish to be regarded as loyal, actions speak louder than words. Be loyal, and those men who can observe you will see it.

Talk is cheap. Demonstrate your worth.

[FR] The "I will not fuck you" shit test

22 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"No sex" is an IOI.

If she's not already thinking about you and sex, in combination, she's not going to think to mention the two together. So if a woman tells you "no sex", you're already in, and you just have to not make a mistake, like failing a major shit test.

why do redpillers shame hypergamy?

22 upvotes · 1 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What do you mean by "shaming" someone?

Do what you want. Ride a thousand cocks. Just don't expect me to rescue you with personal efforts or tax dollars when you hit 35 and can't find a man who is willing to commit to you, support you, raise your children, etc.

There's nothing immoral about being a slut. It's just unattractive and a bad idea.

The Root Cause of the Anger Phase.

22 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the use of the word mother here is very important.

Most men's first experience of being loved comes from their mothers. But a mother, while not really an adult (because AWALT), is an adult compared to her very young son. So a mother loves a son as a parent loves a child.

Men who do not learn that women are children will stay with that as their image of what love is. So they will never experience love until they learn, because a woman loves her man as a child loves a parent.

What's your explanation for Hugh Jackman marrying an average-looking woman 13 years older than him?

22 upvotes · 1 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

♂

Well spotted.

We should also consider that beards are often unattractive not only because only unattractive women tolerate the position, but also because gay men are indifferent to female attractiveness.

Think about it, folks. If you had to pretend to be gay, and had to marry a guy in order to do so, would look for the hottest guy you could find? Hell no. You wouldn't even be sure which one that was.

You would pick, from among the ones willing to enable your deception, the one guy was the coolest to hang out with.

Guy exposes a cabal of reddit SJWs and their ties to the admins of reddit and creates a watchdog sub. Then the shit hits the fan.

22 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

many people on the internet want to "just talk about learning to get laid" or "just talk about video games" and don't really care about political shit, yet we keep being pulled into political shit because of SJW's trying to ruin everything.

That is the specific, acknowledged agenda of the modern far left. They wish to politicize people's personal lives. To make everything a political issue, and subject every person's every action to scrutiny to make sure it adheres to the proper orthodox values.

They are quite open about this:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_personal_is_political

An opening of "private" or "social" matters to political analysis and discussion.

And there it is.

Transgender (M2F) MMA Fighter Grievously Injures Female Opponent. This is Feminism's Equality at Work.

22 upvotes · 25 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Given that Feminist Priority of Blame™ passes over women every time practical reality squashes wishful thinking, my guess would be that transmen (F2M) would be placed right after women. After all, they're still women deep down inside. Except when they're not.

All we need is some woman willing to get a sex change and enter the men's fighting league, and we can test this theory.

The issue here is that testosterone giveth, and taketh not away.

A F2M fighter, given enough exogenous testosterone, could actually compete just fine with men. Testosterone adds muscle, adds bone density, raises the pain threshold, etc, and doesn't give a crap what sex chromosomes you have.

A M2F tranny does have an unfair advantage over actual women. Testosterone makes permanent changes.

All of this is trivial, of course. Who cares about an unfair advantage in women's professional athletics? The only reason there is such a thing is that women need a special protected league to compete in. Men's athletics isn't "men's" because only men are allowed in. It's "men's" because women don't stand a chance.

Asking whether an M2F tranny should be allowed to compete in women's athletics is like asking whether an ordinary person with his legs amputated should be allowed to compete in the "tallest midget competition".

Drunken Dipshittery Results in a Life Lesson About Beta Shaming

22 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Let me guess... you're either a woman, or a man who grew up without a father? Perhaps not.

But if you go through this life with an XY chromosome, people are going to pick on you for things you had no choice about and can't control. Not just other men. Women, too.

Also, the universe will not care that whatever it is isn't your fault. And, again, XY chromosome, so no one is going to shelter you from what the universe does.

So if you're not able to deal with being picked on for things you can't control, then you're going to have a bad time.

Graduating with a Mrs degree

22 upvotes · 12 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Depends on what your degree is in. Math or engineering pay off. But they are hard work.

Feminist is invited on prestigious Red Cross panel, then refuses because other 3 panelists are 'straight, white man' and supplies organiser with names of 48 of her unqualified feminist friends instead.

22 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

The trend she's noticed - a bunch of white guys sitting around speaking authoritatively about problems that are primarily affecting brown people - is a real thing

Yes, it is a real thing, and we ought to fucking thank them for it.

Because they're the ones who stepped up and fucking did something. Maybe they don't "fully understand the internal experience of being a brown person", or some shit like that, but you know what?

I do not give a fuck.

If tan people don't like how pale people try to help them out, then let them step up and help each other out instead, instead of endlessly bitching about it's not exactly perfect, while doing nothing themselves to present an alternative.

18 Year Old Man Utd Player Januzaj Takes Date (Goldigger) Out To Cheap Chicken Restaurant While Wearing Tracksuits

22 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No bad looking, but any star pro athlete is going to be wading through women at least as attractive as that any time he walks out his front door.

Ladies, if you want a pro athlete as a relationship and not just a bang, you better either get with him while he's still playing college ball, or be prepared to work like hell proving yourself.

TRP: One Question, One Answer: Extrapolate.

22 upvotes · 13 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm an old-guy...fifty-six years old, built several international corporations with 3.5K employees. Have had hundreds of three-somes.

Dude, quit trying to DHV. You don't wanna pick me up, I'm not your type.

There is nothing complicated going on here. Many of you are overthinking this entire thing.

Be confident, and don't respond to, nor accept manipulation from women.

Enjoy your life. That's it.

<http://www.thumotic.com/2013/05/09/argumentum-ad-amog/>

Back from OKC Hiatus. Women's Profiles Have Become Even More Banal (x post from r/okcupid)

22 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I know for a fact that I message 2 or 3 paragraphs that are contextual, containing subjects from her profile, and asking questions so she'll have an easier time replying. Nope, no replies. And certainly no initial messages.

See, don't do that.

You're treating them with respect. Don't treat them with respect.

Woman say that they want to be treated with respect, but the actual thought process when someone does goes something like this:

"He put a lot of effort into this message. He must have to put a lot of effort in to get girls to talk to him. That's not very attractive. Meh."

The Slut, and how not to be one.

22 upvotes · 26 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're missing the point.

Waiting at all is not the issue. Women always seem to be wondering "how long" they should wait, and it's pure hamstering... they get dumped after first-night sex and they tell themselves he "didn't respect me because I put out too soon", they get nexted after two weeks of nothing beyond a kiss and they tell themselves "he was no good, he was only interested in sex, because he dumped me for not putting out".

They have a whole board of switches, levers, buttons, and other controls in front of them, and they always seem to insist that they didn't get love because they had the wrong setting on the "Sex Delay" knob.

The sex delay knob is not the problem, ladies. Leave the sex delay knob alone for once, and start adjusting the other controls.

Flip the "aloofness" switch to "off". Turn the "empathy and caring" dial way up. Turn the "oppositional style" selector from "tough, sassy bitch" to "playful saucy wench".

Play with the other settings. Stop going through life expecting men to "accept you as you are" with different sex delays, and everything else the same. Snails can learn. Cockroaches can learn. And you can learn, too, if you'd stop telling yourselves you don't have to.

I'm even more surprised to see a man buying into this line of reasoning.

Sour grapes and ad hominem abound as Abercrombie & Fitch CEO explains why he doesn't cater to fat chicks

22 upvotes · 8 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Everybody knows that fat people are all dowdy frumps with no fashion sense

No, I do not know this. I know that I don't give a crap what hamplanets are wearing, because no matter how tasteful it is, it's on a hamplanet. There is nothing you can wear that looks good on you if you are a 200 pound woman, because you are a 200 pound woman.

Stop worrying about how you are dressed, it's rearranging deck chairs on the titanic.

Gods and stray animals, if these women spent as much time and effort running or playing tennis as they do bitching about fat-shaming, no one would ever have to fat-shame them again.

Nordic Feminists are trying to make criticism against Feminism illegal (comparing it to Racism)

22 upvotes · 25 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

Anti-feminism should be part of the Equality officers' activity area.

Is it just me, or do the words "equality officer" have a certain... Soviet... ring to them?

How SRS helped me find Men's Rights

22 upvotes · 11 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

I've been saying for quite some time that I don't want SRS to go away.

By jumping up and down and frothing at the mouth and just being lunatics in general while they hate on us, they make us look reasonable. It doesn't prove anything, of course, but it certainly gets people thinking that way.

How to not come off as creepy

22 upvotes · 9 July 2012 · /r/seduction

Discard the word creepy.

Creepy is not a thing you can be. Creepy is actually a feeling women have, but they mistake it for a trait of a person.

What creepy means is "I find this person unattractive, and I'm not sure he'll go away".

Don't bother trying not to be creepy. Just invest your time in women who appreciate you, and not in those who don't.

The "Women are Wonderful" effect

22 upvotes · 15 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Wow... they somehow still manage to spin that as sexism against women, rather than against men.

Hillary Clinton: "Strike a woman and you strike all of society"

22 upvotes · 8 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Strike a man and you are all of society.

Behold: The Black Male Privilege Checklist.

22 upvotes · 14 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

People who talk about "privilege" usually don't know what it means.

It doesn't mean "advantage".

It comes from latin roots meaning "private law". In other words, the law is different for you than for someone who is not you, in a way that favours you.

Men in Saudi Arabia have privilege over women. They can drive, go out in public unescorted, etc... things that women in Saudi Arabia cannot legally do.

Men in America do not have privilege. There are no legal rights which they possess which a woman does not. Quite the reverse, in fact.

Those who talk about any circumstantial advantage as a "privilege" can only be construed as desiring a sort of Harrison Bergeron universe, where everyone is only allowed to do and be what everyone else does and is.

Ten years a RPW, hit the wall with no loving marriage in sight. Trying to figure out why?

21 upvotes · 29 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I genuinely think meeting the right person is pure luck

Being the right person isn't.

Oh shit they figured out our resilience method of identity (re)construction. "undertheorizing is the communicative construction of resilience in precarious and problematic spaces online"

21 upvotes · 13 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I could pick through the numerous errors in this polemic, not least of which was the rather humorous reference to a study done on TRP in 1984, when none of its founders were out of middle school.

But let's take a step back and ask some broader fundamental questions, instead.

What, exactly, is the purpose of this paper? What ends does it serve? What change does Sean M. Eddington, PhD, hope to create in the world by the act of committing it to paper?

It is couched in a language that clearly marks it as intended for consumption by other PhDs studying "Applied Communication", who read the "Journal of Applied Communication Research".

Presumably, it will have some effect on them when they read it, which will influence what they write, couched in equally academic language. Which will in turn, influence other academic writers, and so on, ad nauseam.

But one is disposed to wonder at what point any measurable result is expected to exit this closed ecosystem. The author takes great pains to assure his readers that many thousands of comments were subjected to "semantic analysis" by computer software, but no numerical or quantitative data is presented at all, much less related in a meaningful way to any significant conclusion.

Instead, readers are subjected to a melange of Sean's thoughts upon looking at the constructed word cloud, and upon reading some of the raw data, although presumably not all 35,000 comments worth. No information is forthcoming on how he selected comments to read.

What benefit the reader is intended to derive from this process is not clear. It is not even clear if the reader is intended to derive benefit at all, which implies the question of why anyone other than myself could be expected to read it.

In short, this paper is a PurplePillDebate comment, and not a particularly compelling one, with some computerization and technical verbiage slapped on in an attempt to ennoble it with the mantle of scholarship, in a fashion that disposes me to wonder when John Frum is expected to show up.

The only outcome that can be anticipated is some degree of alteration to the career of Sean M. Eddington, PhD, both at Purdue University and elsewhere. It is possible that this is the only intended outcome, since when we read the wordpress blog of Sean M. Eddington, PhD, to find out what words of wisdom this expert has for the layperson, it contains, in the two years since its creation, the following sentiment:

Posted on 20th Jun 2019 The Journey Begins

Thanks for joining me!

Good company in a journey makes the way seem shorter. — Izaak Walton

... that is all. Two years, nothing else.

While I certainly agree that good company in a journey is nice, I'm not really sure that I was in need of Sean M. Eddington, PhD, and his entire academic career, to tell me that. Instead, I am rather forced to conclude that Sean M. Eddington, PhD has nothing whatsoever, that he is interested in saying to the layperson, possibly because those who fall into that category have no ability to advance Sean M. Eddington, PhD's career.

And, in the interests of fairness, we can observe that Sean M. Eddington, PhD's lack of interest in the non-academic world is mirrored by its lack of interest in him.

In conclusion, I find, Sean M. Eddington, PhD, and his paper to be best described in the words of the late, and far more influential, Mr. Douglass Adams:

"Mostly Harmless."

THE DISGUSTING DOUBLE STANDARD

21 upvotes · 14 January 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

I disagree. A woman who is beautiful, but has no understanding of men, what they want, or what treatment they respond to, will still attract much attention and desire, but she will be unlikely to get what she wants out of her relationships.

The best relationships, like the best business deals, are those where each person contributes something that is easy for them, but intensely valued by the other person.

You can only achieve this with a keen understanding of how the opposite sex thinks.

FDS is not focused on understanding and self-improvement, but on reassuring themselves and each other about their inherent value and what they deserve. As such, it appears to more about seeking emotional comfort right now than about seeking better results in the future.

What's with Gen Z girls posting their nudes on IG claiming women empowerment?

21 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/askTRP

Women's life outcomes are determined primarily not by what they can do, but by how much others approve of them. Thus, they quickly become adept at putting a positive spin on whatever it is they want to do.

Any woman whose looks are average or above can get more attention and approval with her clothes off than on. That's the majority of women.

They don't have to be good at anything.

They don't have to work hard at anything.

They just have to get naked.

So now all they need is a way to spin this as something other than a lazy way to get approval. "Empowerment" suits nicely as an excuse.

So what should you do about this? Well, you don't have to do anything. Just keep in mind that, while you are not going to stop liking women, naked women, or sex, you don't have to pay a high price for any of these. Since so many women are now getting naked for a little attention, regard naked women as a common commodity... and don't pay much for it, either in money or attention.

It seems like Southern men are more attracted to blondes, even if their faces/bodies are average. Am I imagining things?

21 upvotes · 26 June 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Remember that this is not TRP, and you are not a man... you are not playing the numbers game and trying to "conquer loads of pussy".

You want to be attractive, not to all men, but to one single example of the type of man you personally like, ideally the one you most prefer.

So when you say

hot and eligible guys here seem to go for basic looking and basic-dressing girls (by basic, I mean less sophisticated) when they are blonde. I can't make this up

Then I am forced to conclude that either you are denigrating other women out of envy (not a good look on anyone), or you are not thinking carefully about what sort of man you want.

If you think of yourself as "sophisticated" (whatever that might mean), and want a man who is "sophisticated", and who likes women who are "sophisticated", it is the height of insanity to seek to attract some different sort of man, then change him into what you want.

Men are not malleable. What you see is what you get. If cowboys like country girls, and you want to wear heels and discuss the wine you're drinking as if it were a person, then stop hitting on cowboys and move to New York City or wherever else it is that pretentious people hang out.

'Well done men. You deserve to be honoured' Pauline Hanson blasts feminists | This is the most pro-male speech I've ever seen a politician make. Fantastic!

21 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

1. Civilization is built by men with guns and shovels.
2. As each generation builds on the last, things eventually become so refined that not only do women not have to ever pick up a gun or shovel, they don't even have to ever acknowledge the men who do.
3. Women come to regard civilization and the fruits of it as something that falls from heaven, free, like rain, and they start to hold the men with guns and shovels in contempt, for being violent and sweaty.
4. Men begin to set down their guns and shovels to appease women.
5. Civilization begins to fail.
6. Women find out what it feels like to be cold, hungry and afraid.
7. Women abruptly discover that men with guns and shovels are actually real sexy all of a sudden.
8. Goto 1.

A great rebuttal to "toxic masculinity is the fault of men"

21 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

It's fine for women to be unattracted to men who show weakness and vulnerability... that shit is hardwired in and they don't have a choice about it.

But, as a general rule of life, do not struggle to create that which is loathsome to you.

In other words, stop telling men that you want them to be less tough and stoic, when in reality you will do everything you can to punish them for that very thing.

It may look "woke" when you are saying it (which is why you do it), but it just makes you look like a hypocritical cunt when your actions inevitably fail to agree with your words.

Why Cant I Keep Anyone?

21 upvotes · 9 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

What do we call a girl who aggressively seeks sex? A slut. Why? Because women are the gatekeepers of sex... a girl who has to chase it, instead of accept or reject it, is clearly broken.

Men who chase relationships, same thing.

Once a woman has worked her tail off, and actually charmed you into wanting one, then you can show enthusiasm about a relationship with her.

But if you are visibly enthusiastic about just "a" relationship, then you look needy and weak. You have to make them work for it.

Is she selfish if she submits but never initiates?

21 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

No, you're dealing with a garden variety well-behaved submissive, and you're a shitty dom.

Step up your damn game.

GF won't let me randomly touch her boobs

21 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Why the hell do I write articles about LTRs when you just go and LTR up the first woman who lets you touch her, despite her clear ambivalence about you?

Girls who are into you don't push your hands away.

Am i pretty ?

21 upvotes · 25 December 2018 · /r/askTRP

What do alpha say when women are asking for validation what type of answers should be accurate for this type of questions ?

- "Is someone feeling insecure today?"
- Look her up and down thoughtfully. Pause. Gesture with your hand for her to twirl in place. Stare at various parts of her body from an awkwardly close distance. Pause again. Big grin... "You'll do."
- "Yeah, you're okay. Your eyebrows could use a little attention in the middle though."
- "Well, we could stand you next to a couple of other girls and take a poll if you like."
- "Well, you're not a redhead (substitute Vietnamese, blonde, tall, or whatever she isn't that you can say you like), but you have some good points."
- "I'd say your butt is your best feature."
- "From the front? Or from behind?"
- "All women look the same in the dark, ya know."
- "Hey, hey, baby, moving a little fast aren't we? You haven't even gotten me drunk yet."

And what if she loses interests after not giving her any validation

Then she never had any interest in you, only in validation.

CNN: What if women went on a sex strike before the midterms?

21 upvotes · 3 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

/u/Halitenina

I have no idea how to get in a healthy relationship- help!

21 upvotes · 24 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Now, with male reactions:

I'm 37

Hmmmm, past her prime. Well, maybe if she's hot and nice.

and I have never had a boyfriend.

Whaaaaaat?

Nor sex for that matter.

Something is very, very wrong here.

My friends and I are at a loss for figuring out what to do.

She's asking her FRIENDS? Really? Seriously?

I've really put a lot more attention towards this issue off and on this year

Oh, really? Was it on the list right right between "buy more candles" and "call plumber about dripping faucet"?

It feels at times everyone has paired off

Gee, I wonder why that is? Oh, wait, I know, it's because you're 37 fucking years old! And everyone has unless they are Joe the Toothless Meth Addict, or Cassanova McSuave, who is still dating college girls.

I know a big problem is trying to suss out where these available (actually, but also emotionally available) dudes are.

Creeping, weeping Jesus. No one has touched you in 37 years and you think the problem is "men are emotionally unavailable"??????

Okay, I can't do this anymore.

Look lady, I give advice to girls who need it. And I'm GOOD at it. I have a stack of thank you letters. But I can't help you, because you are not being truthful with us, me, or possibly yourself.

If you reach the age of 37 years as a virgin with zero relationship history, you are either the last of your species, or you have fucked up. Not just ordinary fucked up. Fucked up BADLY. Chernobyl level fucked up. Hitler-invading-Russia-in-the-winter fucked up. "Basket of deplorables" fucked up. Sent-the-Mongol-ambassador-back-without-his-head fucked up. Voted-the-communists-into-power fucked up.

One of several things is true about this message:

- It is pure bullshit from beginning to end.
- It fails to tell us about one or more glaring deal-breakers which would cause any sane man, and most insane ones, to crawl across a mile of broken glass to get away from you.
- It is about to be followed by a score of angry and deranged comments that prove how batshit insane you really are.

So tell the fucking truth, or stop wasting our time. What exactly have you got going on?

Unfortunate physical appearance? Outrageous relationship demands? Constantly critical of men, or just of everyone in earshot? High maintenance neurotic? No interest in sex? Barely-controlled mental illness?

We can help with a lot of problems, but not if you don't 'fess up.

Is it fucked if i tell a chick she cant ride dick?

21 upvotes · 9 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Saying "you suck and your sexual prowess is a lie" isn't great.

Imagine if she said you can't give dick.

Asking him how he would feel in her position is silly. Men and women do not react to things the same way. Why do I even have to tell you this?

Never try to guess how a girl would feel about something by imagining how you would feel. It will steer you wrong every time.

The Red Pill vs. the Black Pill

21 upvotes · 30 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Everyone always works on what they perceive their biggest problem to be.

Therefore, by looking at what people are working on, you can tell what they are most worried about.

Red pill readers work on improving themselves to get laid. Therefore, they think of their problem as "I want more and/or better pussy".

Incel Calvinists work on constructing a coherent explanation for how their lack of sexual success is not their fault. Therefore the problem that most concerns them is how they feel about their lack of sexual success.

What this tells us is that even they don't believe it. If they did, there would be nothing further to say, and no reason to think further about it.

How life changed after growing muscles and getting bigger. A lesson for everyone swallowing the pill

21 upvotes · 30 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I may not be getting laid every other day but I'm still glad I found trp this early in life.

You will be. This is how it starts. The small successes bring the confidence you need for the big ones.

The wreckage of Feminism is here and its hilarious.

21 upvotes · 3 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

When men commit murder, they use a weapon. When women commit murder, they use a man.

Your damseling will not work here. Go cry to the patriarchy about how we hurt your womanfeels.

Honest question, why does SMV matter if all men are inherently horny and looking for partners?

21 upvotes · 25 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Amy Schumer: "I'm probably like 160 pounds right now and I can catch a dick whenever I want, like, that's the truth. It's not a problem!"

RPW: "Honey, anyone can catch a dick. The trick is to run it to the end zone without fumbling it."

Girlfriend weight gain problem

21 upvotes · 20 November 2017 · /r/askTRP

Don't hint. Tell.

If women despise betas why do they commit their whole lives to them?

21 upvotes · 11 February 2017 · /r/askTRP

Because men are the gatekeepers of commitment.

Read the sidebar, Einstein.

Urbanism, Ruralism, and Dunbar's Number

21 upvotes · 13 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is correct. Anyone who goes expecting a unicorn because he's looking in Lolo, Montana instead of New York City is missing the point.

The women aren't different. Women are water. They assume the shape of the vessel they are poured into.

What's different is that vessel.

CMV: Female incels have it worse than male incels

21 upvotes · 22 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't get hit on or anything.

Please help me! I've tried nothing, and it hasn't worked!

CMV: The no BJ/Anal with me but did it with past lovers/ex's is an issue of low masculinity/confidence, not resources

21 upvotes · 12 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women are at their kinkiest with the men they are most attracted to.

If she was kinkier with a past lover, then you are not her first choice.

Your thoughts on naked selfies?

21 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Bad idea.

Sure, you may intend them only for your partner, but anyone who gets their mitts on it can send copies anywhere. That's not just the person you sent them to, but anyone.

And selfies don't contain context. Once they are out there, there's no distinction between "I took this to spice my sex life with boyfriend" and "I posted this on gonewild for upvotes".

The only exceptions I can see are:

- You are an exhibitionist and you want the world to see. (In which case, this is probably not the group for you.)
- Your husband or serious LTR is unavoidably separated for long periods of time (deployment, etc), in which case the urgent need to keep the sexual chemistry alive might outweigh the risk of exposure. Still risky, though.

Avoiding the Tradcon Trap

21 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"saving it for marriage": Why are you wasting your time? Eject ASAP!

Why would you take anything a woman says seriously?

I've banged plenty of girls who were "saving it for marriage". Sometimes only to find out they were saving their seconds for marriage. Or their thirds.

2.5 million men 'have no close friends'; Lets Brainstorm How to Make Friends post-College

21 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

another is to believe in God (Higher Power sort of thing, not a religion). If you can answer honestly that question,

Many young men can't. It's a lie that's super-easy to tell, and has few or no negative consequences, but not every man is willing to lie to those who are supposed to become his brothers.

President of a country in my region considers introducing "a bachelor tax"

21 upvotes · 27 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

What do you mean, "insurance companies"? The government should pay for it itself with all its free money, you motherfucking nazi fascist hitler!

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

21 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You don't beat a shit test with rationality, dear.

Banned from askmrp for "You are not entitled to sex with your wife." PPD, what do you think?

21 upvotes · 9 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Your notion of "helping people" isn't actually helpful. You're pushing mainstream opinions in a group specifically intended to present an alternative, away from all the noise. You have an ill-disguised contempt for them, and have shown zero concern for their wishes, or respect for their views.

They were right to ban you. I would have banned you, too.

Let me ask you a question: Does marriage entitle you to any particular thing from your wife? If so, what is it? If not, what do marriage vows actually mean?

Expat business man is utterly destroyed and drained out of his entire life savings by a sweet feminine thai woman.

21 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly.

Educated self-made alpha > natural alpha "Chad"

Chads get girls, but then those girls fuck them over, because Chads don't understand bitch management. There is a difference between being attractive and being dominant. Women want Chad, but once they get with him, they domesticate him. His only way of staying in control of his life is to pump and dump forever.

And no one can pump and dump forever. Even world famous rockstars who could do that will eventually discover that they want some form of lasting connection. And then they get divorceraped, because attractiveness game doesn't automagically give you relationship dominance game.

3rd day on the red pill

21 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

And today, after ignoring my oneitis for just three days, I just want to text her. Not that she would even reply, but i am dying to get scraps from her table.

She is gone from your life. You will never be with her. You need to accept that now. Nothing I can teach you will undo the way she already thinks of you.

She thinks you are a loser. She holds you in contempt. This is will not change. This will not ever change. You could become dictator-for-life of the solar system, with a harem of a thousand gorgeous women, and an army of billions of fanatical worshippers, and she would just think you are "really good at faking it".

She doesn't love you. She doesn't even like you. You will never get anything worth having from her. What you are hungry for is forever beyond your reach. Reach for something else.

The red pill in as few words as possible.

21 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The red pill in as few words as possible:

"Cynicism".

On party girls and wannabe models

21 upvotes · 4 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What's hilarious is that most hardworking, gifted, intelligent, awesome guys will never see St. Tropez, and never set foot on a yacht... and yet these bitches feel hard done by because they don't get to keep forever what they got for free.

The thing to do is realize that the universe isn't a wish-granting machine, and life isn't anything like fair, and just have a laugh about it whenever these bitches complain about anything.

They just don't realize how easy they have it, because they have never had it hard.

The Root Cause of the Anger Phase.

21 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

♂

10/10. Will shamelessly steal and repeat.

The Root Cause of the Anger Phase.

21 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I disagree. As the thread you provided shows, men are mostly angry because women lie to them.

And this makes them angry because they expect women to be adults.

Do you get angry if your six year old cousin tells you that three unicorns came to her tea party with her stuffed animals and one of them was pink? Of course. She is playing make-believe.

Men in the anger phase are angry because they still expect women to be something other than six-year-olds playing make believe.

Well, they're not. We've given them adult responsibilities for a couple of generations now. Plenty of time to grow up. They didn't. The experiment is over. They either can't or won't, and it doesn't matter which one.

Now, I have some strong words for the cowards who let them run around telling everybody what to do and think.

I mean, sure, if you go to your six-year-old cousin's tea party with her stuffed animals, then you play along and pretend Mr. Fuzzington is a real bear. But you don't let her do that everywhere, because some places in life have serious business that needs to get done, and we don't have time to play with toys.

But it's not the little girl's fault. She is not capable of understanding the difference between time to work and time to play make-believe. We, men, collectively, need to be the ones that make that distinction.

You don't deserve her.

21 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You got that backwards. She doesn't deserve me.

Women aren't some sort of awesome prize. They're mostly silly creatures who don't really accomplish much of anything. Stop putting them on a pedestal.

Guy exposes a cabal of reddit SJWs and their ties to the admins of reddit and creates a watchdog sub. Then the shit hits the fan.

21 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Reddit is disappearing up its own ass with this story.

Oh, it may be true, but it really doesn't matter. You see, far left lunatics, from the hippies of the previous century to the modern SJW, are generally extremely hateful people. This makes it very hard for them to command people's respect and cooperation for very long.

This is why they end up trying to control the medium, rather than directly command people's attention. They think that, if only they can have some sort of trump card which silences dissent, then everyone will start to agree with them, because the "evil" influences that prevent this will be gone.

The joke, however, is on them. Because hateful people (not just the ones on the political left, but any kind) create their own dissent. People don't hate SRS because of TRP. They hate SRS because of SRS. In fact, many of the people who hate SRS think that we over here are a bunch of extremist weirdos.

But almost no one thinks we are ruining reddit. Because we don't silence dissent. We escort troublemakers out the door, but the instant they are out of TRP, they can say whatever they want. And we'll just treat it like a shit test.

The harder SRS tightens their grip, the more readers will slip through their fingers. You cannot browbeat people into liking you. If SRS, as a group, were to achieve complete control of reddit tomorrow, what would they really control? A bunch of servers on a rack somewhere?

What matters is the people who listen, not the place they listen in. Internet audiences are fickle. When you stop giving them what they want, and start trying to tell them what to want, every other website in the world is just a click away.

[PSA] I'm Adding Bro-Knighting To My List Of Bannable Offenses

21 upvotes · 25 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before, I'll say it again: Monogamy is a contract between two people. I am not either one of those people.

Men do not have an obligation to not seduce married women. It is married women who have an obligation not cheat.

Now this bit, however:

Bro-Knighting ("That poor dude deserves to know his wife is a whore, you should tell him")

... is incorrect.

You should make sure a guy finds out, after you bang his wife. Not in order to Bro-knight him, but in order to Black-knight her. She's a cheating ho, and you should throw her in it when you are done with her, because she is a cheating ho.

If you're feeling civic-minded, you should do it to help restore the healthy culture of slut-shaming.

If you're not feeling civic-minded, you should do it for the lulz.

Drunken Dipshittery Results in a Life Lesson About Beta Shaming

21 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

What will cure me, when I am sick? The same thing that made me sick, only less of it.

What we need, in order to learn, is challenges which are calibrated to our skill level.

A 120 lb. weakling will not become strong by lifting 2 lb. rubber-coated dumbbells. Nor will he become strong by overhead pressing an olympic barbell loaded to 225 lbs. The first doesn't force him to improve. The second, he cannot do at all. He needs something in between.

Divorces and absent fathers, handing schools to the feminists, paedohysteria and homophobia, and the growing contempt of the west for masculinity, have broken the chain whereby each generation of boys learned the lessons of manhood from the last.

White working-class women should stay single mothers, argue the authors of Marriage Markets: How Inequality Is Remaking the American Family. (xpost from /r/FoodForthought)

21 upvotes · 25 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, noes! Fathers are being allowed to see their children! What a disgrace! Quick, someone do something!

We are the Cock Carousel

21 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not this shit again.

How many times does this question have to be answered before it goes away?

Women are the gatekeepers of sex, men are the gatekeepers of relationships. If a man gets friendzoned, it's his fault. If a woman gets no call back after a night of sex, that's her fault.

Pumping and dumping sluts is second prize. We'd rather have a woman we wanted to keep. But that's not up to us. It's up to them. We are the cock carousel, indeed. But changing that isn't up to us, because we don't have that power. Only women have that power.

It is not opening her legs, but being dumped afterwards, that gives a woman a high partner count.

Female entitlement...with a low SMV? Madness.

21 upvotes · 11 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

All the shit that I have read about, you have not, and you will fall victim to shortcomings i. I'm at the level of professor while you are at the level of student. Why would I want a student? I want someone on my level. You're not fucking on it.

Disagree. A student is exactly what I want.

Why? Because a student is ready, willing, and able to learn. The girl you describe, she's not even a student. She's a dropout.

Slutty Flings and Virginal Rings: 9 Chicks To Do Before You Die. I Mean, Marry

21 upvotes · 30 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You aren't marketing well.

We're only doing this because quality women are too scarce to look for.

Apparently the 80/20 thing is true on Grindr as well - And HuffPo criticizes gay men for having the same dealbreaker criteria as women, listed in their Grindr profiles: "Only Masc." "Tall" "No Asians" etc. - Criticize women for this and you'd be called Misog.

21 upvotes · 17 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As a queer Latino gay man of size,

No need to read the rest of the article.

It's fake layer of neoleftoid "morality" over a core of naked self-interest.

Young women 'now earning more than men'

21 upvotes · 9 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Not surprising.

Alpha fucks, beta pays. So when alphaness is no longer even partially a function of income, men have much less incentive to join the rat race. They're electing to spend their 20s on the couch playing Call of Duty and smoking weed... and who can blame them? They either have game, and don't need money to get laid, or they don't, and no amount of money will help, and women aren't "ready" to marry them until they're 30 anyway.

The male sex drive is the engine that built civilization. Why do boys fantasize about being Batman, owning a supercar, or winning the big football game? Respect. And they want respect because it means mating privileges. More and/or better women.

When you decouple the engine of the male sex drive from the cargo of the economy, it will surge ahead under reduced load, to either accelerate into the distance guided by game, or derail and explode. The cargo will sit abandoned on the tracks, going nowhere.

Woman who has lived as a man for 18 months say that being a woman "is more of a privilege"

21 upvotes · 18 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I've often considered the possibility that psychiatry and clinical/counseling psychology, given that they reflect society's prejudices rather than steering them with science, are nothing but the practice of "hamster repair".

Even if she's not totally redpill I love when moxie destroys entitled forty somethings only reason a read her page

21 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

From the comments:

OK, let me put this in stark terms: Women want to fuck. They want to fuck men they actually desire instead of going through the motions of being fucked by men they don't really desire. Many women do NOT desire to fuck men that look old to them. Generally speaking old is not sexy. Is women dating guys they actively want to fuck supposed end at 35? Is this what you are all telling this woman?

Bwahahahahahaahhaahhhh.

When they had the sexual upper hand, it didn't matter what their 20-something peers wanted.

When they had the legal upper hand, it didn't matter what their soon-to-be ex-husbands, and their children, wanted.

And now, when they have no leverage, we're suddenly supposed to care what they want? When they have gone through life caring about no one's pleasures but their own?

A wise woman discusses how she feels about being "the most mature teenager in the house".

21 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Because feminism speaks for all women, and anyone who disagrees with it must not really be a woman?

Rational Wiki shows definite bias against MGTOW when defining a MGTOW

21 upvotes · 7 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

RationalWiki isn't RationalWiki, it's LiberalWiki, and it's just as pants-on-head retarded as Conservapedia.

ReallyRationalWiki would confine itself to issues on which there is evidence.

Clever Feminist says I'M A RAPEY REDPILLER! WRITE SCATHING COLUMNS ABOUT ME!

21 upvotes · 20 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

a dude would want to tell other dudes that consent is for pussies and real men take what they want from women, even if they have to use force. (But, like, not REAL force, according to Hoinsky. Sexxy force!)

You gotta start realizing that something is pretty much true when even satire cannot touch it. The moment she says "sexy force", everyone reading it gets a little click of recognition, because we all already know that sexy force is indeed a thing.

Does she have any idea of the colossal rate at which first-world women consume romance-story material which is essentially about "sexxy force"?

Hell, even self-proclaimed feminists are writing articles about how hot it was when she said "no, stop!" and he said "I'm going to count to three, and then push it all the way in".

The sine qua non of male mating strategy is the ability to distinguish between real and fake resistance. It is the ability to tell a no that means no from a no that means yes. A male that cannot do this is rejected by women as an unfit male.

So why do feminists insist that "no means no" even as they mate (if they can) with men who ignore this slogan? Because they see any man who doesn't have the social savvy to figure this out as an unfit male who should never receive anything but real resistance.

In other words, they think that if you believe it, it should become true. 80/20 rule.

AskReddit thread about sluts. Apparently all men love sluts and women should be as slutty as they want without any consequence.

21 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You are aware that this theory is the brainchild of, and being pushed by, a feminist couple, right?

No more lurking. I'm married, too.

21 upvotes · 31 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Argumentum ad AMOG.

Let me translate your words:

I, sir, am an alpha male who is capable of effortlessly dominating my desirable wife, thereby assuring she will never control me with sex, divorce me and take my children and all my wealth, have me imprisoned with a false accusation of domestic violence or rape, or any other thing you losers are afraid of.

I therefore find your aversion to marriage wholly irrational, and you must either agree with me, or implicitly admit that I am the superior alpha.

Well, no. First of all, how well I control my women, or how well you control your woman, is irrelevant to the discussion of whether marriage is advisable for men as a group.

The law has given women a plethora of weapons for destroying men with impunity. Some men influence women well enough to prevent them from picking up those weapons and using them. And some women are decent and would never touch them anyway.

But those weapons are still there. And not only do they grievously hurt many men less fortunate than you or I, they also offend me on principle. I refuse to be in a relationship in which the law strives as hard as it can to make me into the lesser of two partners. I will define my own relationships, thank you oh so very much, and instead of showing nothing but contempt for men weaker or less fortunate than I, I will do everything I can to protect them from that fate.

So, you've done well in your personal life, congratulations. Now stop telling us what an alpha you are and show us instead, by expanding your concerns beyond the personal, taking up the responsibilities of leadership, and showing concern for your tribe, instead of just yourself.

Female on AskMen: "Where do I go to find guys to sleep with without spending a ton of money (if any)?"

21 upvotes · 12 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, that's true, but she's not a 7 no matter how you dress her.

Feminist comedian blogger imagines a day where her frumpy ass arouses men so much that all day strangers turn into sexual deviants around her and writes about it.

21 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Complain-o-brag.

Dresses up to attract attention. Tells stories (true or false, doesn't matter) about attention she got. Tries to create the impression of even higher SMV by pretending guys giving attention are unworthy of her.

Frankly, SMV is low-to-moderate. Masculine nasal angle, semi-manjaw, not a total fatty but waist a bit thick.

And frankly, what the fuck is up with this "street harassment" stuff, anyway? Who grabs his crotch at passing women? Where the hell is she going walking? A favela?

Possibly the worst possible concocted evidence for male privilege.

21 upvotes · 14 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Are you kidding? Torturing cats was a favorite medieval pastime.

Of course, then they all died of a rat-bourne disease. Three cheers for poetic justice.

Here's how to get rid of SRS for good.

21 upvotes · 14 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

In fact, it will make most women hate them lots more. Healthy women want friends and playmates, not rescuers and therapists.

Basic female advice from a girl

21 upvotes · 4 April 2012 · /r/seduction

You speak as if you think no one here has ever spoken to a girl before.

Here's what's going on... you've been on reddit three days, you stumbled in here, and you think you're going to give us some fresh insight that we haven't heard before. As if there were no experts here, and we were all stumbling and groping in the dark.

Well, let's see if you're as willing to learn as you are to teach.

Here are some insights for you.

- Asking a woman for seduction advice is like asking a child for parenting advice. She has experience only as the subject of the act, not as the actor.
- Women do not always know what entices them. Ask her what flavour of ice she likes, and she can give you an accurate answer. Ask her what attracts her to a man, and the answer you get will be a combination of what other women say they like, what she thinks she likes, what she thinks she should like, and what she thinks will sound good. With maybe a little bit of largely accidental accuracy somewhere in there.
- The actual principles of seduction are the principles of biology, hominid social structure, and the sexual marketplace, none of which agree very well with our polite cultural myths about what we think should work. If a statement about seduction or mating dynamics doesn't offend a lot of people, it's almost certainly false.
- You scored poorly on your self-administered test. You got 4 right, and 10 wrong. Would you like to know which ones, or are you keen to guess?

upon reddit's policy change and removal of all subreddits sexualizing minors, well known blogger and Gawker writer tweets "do /mensrights next." not /niggers, not /radicalfeminism, not any other truly offensive or extreme subreddit...just us.

21 upvotes · 13 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

I don't get why the hell they need to be such cocky fucks about everything. We all think Child Porn is wrong.

They know that.

But they want other people to think we're a bunch of pedos. So they pretend to think that we are.

Self-confessed radical feminist gave her baby son a neutral name 'Sasha' and now she regularly dresses Sasha, 5, in girls' clothes.

21 upvotes · 21 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, he's not gonna have aaaannnyyyy issues when he grows up.

Is porn really affecting us?

21 upvotes · 6 September 2011 · /r/seduction

Digging a little deeper, this website appears to be the creation of Marnia Robinson and Gary Wilson, a pair of feminists associated with trash like "The Good Men Project".

Not exactly the best of sources.

Feminists always want to blame porn, because they don't wish to face the possibility that their philosophy has broken the dynamics of relationships and sex. Or the possibility that porn is a poor substitute for attraction, sex, relationships, and trust, rather than a supernatural force that destroys them.

The reason that this article has the flavour of pseudoscience is that this is precisely what it is.

Brazil votes to criminalize homophobia. Political correctness threatens freedom of expression & research. Religious parties and churches oppose the law, because priests preaching against homosexuality would face arrest for the crime of homophobia.

21 upvotes · 14 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Gay-bashing sucks.

Censorship sucks a lot more.

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

20 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

But they are totally not submissive, unlike those Afghan women.

Update: Letting my husband pursue me.

20 upvotes · 6 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so you let yourself go.

This not only makes you physically unattractive to him, it's disrespectful. Because you took him for granted.

And you are still not taking responsibility. Because you're pretending you just found this out. You knew you were getting fat. You just expected him not to care. You expected him to be sexually attracted to you regardless of how you looked, based on your pre-existing relationship.

That is not how men work. And you knew that, too. You just didn't care until it created a problem for you.

So it's not time to talk about his testosterone level. It's time for you to have a long hard look in the mirror, both literally and figuratively.

How can you tell if you're just a "practice wife/girlfriend"?

20 upvotes · 1 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

But I've heard so many people talk about "the practice woman" that men want to work out their kinks with before they meet and marry their wife.

And by people, do you mean men, or women?

How can I begin working on myself to feel worthy of a HVM?

20 upvotes · 20 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't have to "feel worthy".

Just because a man has to be confident to attract you doesn't mean you have to be confident to attract a man. Men and women are different.

A man doesn't need you to agree that you are worthy of him. He just has to decide you are. Let him decide, instead of pre-disqualifying yourself.

I (25M) switched my tinder preferences to 30-45 and WOW

20 upvotes · 13 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Looks are more important for women, and age deteriorates looks.

It also exacerbates the effort of lifestyle on looks... a beautiful 18 year old girl might be getting drunk every night, sleeping four hours, eating lots of sugar, and never exercising, but a beautiful 36 year old woman is taking care of herself, or she wouldn't be beautiful.

There are attractive older women out there, but most of them are living with their boyfriends or husbands, not posting selfies on tinder. The older the woman, the more time she has had to get off the market, and if she's still single, that means her chance of getting off the market in any given year will be lower overall. If a girl is sweet, kind, socially skilled and a complete smoke job, she's not going to be single for long.

The same is not true of men, because men are not necessarily trying to get off the market. This means that there are more attractive older men who are available for sex than there are attractive older women who are available for sex.

Which is why a lot of attractive older men will have sex with younger women. Not only would they rather do so, they would have to do so even if they didn't prefer that.

Plate of 1yr recently got told she has cancer and is starting treatment soon. I'm experiencing feeling I haven't had before. Possibly not TRP related. Just after some advice or something.

20 upvotes · 10 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

I immediately feel very emotional towards her situation and I am feeling that I have lived in this TRP bubble to the point where it has taken this tragic news for me to realize that we are all human and only here for 70 something years on average and that maybe I just need to stop trying so fucking hard to be this perfect TRP guy in my vision.

I wrote all this TRP stuff so that it could help you, not so that you could serve it.

Bear in mind that while I wrote it, I was in an LTR with the same girl for nine years now, whom I stuck with through cancer. I live with her and my other LTR of two years. So it is not now, nor was it ever, a single-track lifestyle guide for spinning plates and nothing else.

None of this stuff is intended to tell you who to be, only how to achieve your goals. If you are treating my writing as something to live up to, you are sperging out and misusing it.

What TRP material can do for you in this situation is remind you that you have choices. That you don't have let yourself be guilted into anything you don't want to do, or commit to. That you can give as much time, energy, and support as you want to, and stop at any level when it becomes too much.

The ultimate message of TRP is that you belong to yourself, and you have the right to run your own life. You don't owe her help, but you also don't owe me obedience to some abstract ideal.

You get to do as much, or as little, as you want.

I(20f) often feel down about not having a boyfriend

20 upvotes · 28 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

This post contains a whole lot about what you want and how much you want it, but nothing about what you have to offer.

You're going to need to start learning to think about what the world looks like through other people's eyes, if you want to them to like you.

What's with Gen Z girls posting their nudes on IG claiming women empowerment?

20 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/askTRP

- Denial
- Anger
- Bargaining
- Depression <----- You are here.
- Acceptance

How to be a Skeptical Bastard

20 upvotes · 15 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Guys wanting to research everything before getting field experience.

That's one problem that's always been with us.. but as we gained popularity, we also developed another one: Abstraction Astronauts.

When smart people think about problems, they see patterns. Then they look at another problem and see something that's kinda-sorta the same pattern if you look at it sideways and squint a bit, and, happy as an autistic in a giant bucket of legos, they create an abstraction that encompasses both and treats them as the same thing.

Then they spot a third thing, and they do it again. And again. And again.

Thing is, if you go too far up Mount Abstraction, you start to run out of oxygen. Sometimes smart thinkers just don't know when to stop, and they create these absurd, all-encompassing, high-level pictures of the universe that are fine for people who find that sort of thing entertaining, but don't actually imply anything useful that can be tested.

Because their models have no useful, demonstrable results, and no specific applications that they can show you, they tend to proselytize instead. It's pretty easy to spot when one of these characters is preaching at your doorstep: the incredible amount of bombast; the heroic, utopian grandiloquence; the boastfulness; the complete lack of reality, the sulkiness gradually turning to anger when you fail to show the proper amount of awe or simply don't agree, the insistence that you must just not be smart enough to understand their greatness.

Since these people are solving problems that they think they can solve, not problems which are useful to solve, preaching is the only card they can play.

Any time an organization, corporation, society, or other collective entity becomes large enough, it develops the capability to support a certain amount of people who don't pull their own weight... their primary skill isn't contributing, it's convincing people that they're about to contribute (when they get more investment dollars), or have been contributing invisibly all along, or have major contributions ready to go if only you peasants were smart enough to understand the sheer brilliance of their new platform, and stop caring about the fact that it lacks a killer app.

Over my years in TRP, I've had less and less time and energy to talk about how to get laid, or how to understand women (in order to get laid), because I've had to devote more and more time to teaching young men how to spot these characters and avoid them. I'm writing titles like "Go out and test it", "how to be a skeptical bastard", and "Jordan Petersen is not your friend", instead of "the basics of LTRs", "the guide to shit tests", or "how to gracefully handle last-minute resistance".

Surely it's obvious. Doesn't every schoolboy know it? Ends are ape-chosen; only the means are man's. Papio's procurer, bursar to baboons, Reason comes running, eager to ratify; Comes a catch-fart, with philosophy, truckling to Tyrants; Comes, a pimp for Prussia, With Hegel's Patent History; Comes with Medicine to administer the Ape-King's aphrodisiac; Comes, Rhyming and with Rhetoric, to write his orations; Comes with Calculus to aim his rockets Accurately at the orphanage across the ocean; Comes, having aimed, with incense to impetrate Our Lady devoutly for a direct hit.

Thoughts on r/theredpill closing?

20 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

One thing that interests me is how keen socialists suddenly become on the absolute property rights and sovereignty of corporations if what they do with those rights is fight to shut individualists up.

It very human and universal to experience discomfort at having to listen to oneself disagreed with. It is not as universal to be so unhinged by that discomfort as to stop up one's ears.

Girl says she loves me few days after the first date.

20 upvotes · 8 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You handled this properly.

She's angling for an LTR, but you haven't had time to vet her yet. Just keep on in the same tone, and tell her it's a little bit early, but you certainly do like her, and that she'll just have to keep working.

Then dangle your love and affection on a string and lead her around with it, while she tries to convince you to let her have the bait.

You decide if she gets to.

At what point do you become too muscular for most girls?

20 upvotes · 11 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Somebody's been listening to what girls say instead of watching what they do.

Glassdoor Average Base Pay for Webcam Models: $47,499/year

20 upvotes · 28 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Everyone seems to think men object to whores on moral grounds.

Nah. Whores deliver a product and charge a price.

Men just don't want to commit to a girl who has sold sex.

I feel guilty for wanting a monogamous relationship

20 upvotes · 17 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The red pill is intended to discuss things from an amoral standpoint.

This means men get to pursue what will make them happy without being scolded for it... and so do you.

If monogamy is very important to you, then simply find a man who sets a low priority on his desire for multiple partners, and is willing to give that up in return for something he wants from you. Leave the men with a high desire for multiple partners for women who experience less jealousy.

The real terms of every relationship are settled between the people in it based on what they want and what they have to offer.

Anything you want, you try to arrange for yourself, and focus on people who are willing to give it to you.

What to say when a girl mentions her working out?

20 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Theirs this girl

The opening bars of the National Anthem of Oneitis.

Dead Bedroom Marriage

20 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Maybe I had fallen into the trap of "mom pants" and just stopped putting effort into myself and appearance. Nope. Nothing. Then I realized maybe he just saw me as a giant, ugly, screeching, disrespectful witch and pulled away in response to me. I think this is more accurate, and while it's really painful to think that my pain and my need for him was displayed and interpreted in a way which alienated the very person I wanted the most, it was a relief to think that I had caused the problem by a totally changeable behavior. So here we are now; day-to-day relations are very good, pleasant, and enjoyable. He watches Netflix with me with I say I'd like to spend time together, and he does little things to make me laugh and asks me at night if I'm happy and gives me little kisses on the forehead - but I still have the undeniable, deep yearning for something more substantial. Especially when I'm hormonal/ovulating. I tell him I want sex and he flat out says something like, "I'm just not feeling you right now." Doesn't seem happy at all, just kind of annoyed.

The problem is not simply alienation... it is demanding behaviour. Men hate demanding behaviour because it triggers the fear that their protective instinct towards women will be exploited.

It sounds like there a few factors in play here:

- You became the very avatar of demanding during pregnancy
- He is also unavoidably subjected to a lot more demanding behaviour by virtue of being the father of two young children.
- I don't see anything in your summary that describes what you have done to make amends.
- Or any statement that you ever acknowledged your behaviour and apologized.

The circumstances as they are now look like:

- All his sexual contact with you is focused around you serving his needs (the precise opposite of a demand)
- He is resistant to anything that could be perceived as a demand on your part.
- He is avoiding penetrative sex with you, precisely the thing that got you pregnant in the first place.
- You are focused on how to deal with adjusting or dealing with your needs in this situation, rather than reconnecting with him, and getting an understanding of what is going on within him.
- Frankly, you give me the impression of someone who only cares about how he feels because of how it affects you.

I wouldn't be surprised if he is very angry at you, and has been suppressing it for a long time because he doesn't have any faith that you care enough to listen.

Men use sex as a barometer of love. If your bedroom is dead, your marriage is dead. You need to be responding to this in crisis mode, not wait-and-see.

What do men want? - positive masculinity in relationships

20 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm not sure. I'm actually glad this question was asked the way it was, because it gives me the opportunity to say what I said.

The reason that this question sees men as a means, rather than an end, is not that RPW agrees, in any real sense, with feminism, but instead that RPW is a women's group, and women will always see men as a means rather than an end.

This is acceptable, because, in the same way, men can also reasonably see women as a means, rather than an end. This is simply the self-interested nature of every living organism.

What feminism does, however, is demand that men see women as an end, and themselves as a means. What TRP attempts to do is deprogram this.

Therefore the key difference between RPW and feminism is not what it expects women to do, because the answer is, in both cases "seek their own advantage" (albeit with different tactics). The difference is that RPW expects that men will also seek their own advantage, and any tactics for dealing with them must take this into account... while feminism persists in stomping its tiny foot and being outraged that men won't get with the program.

The unicorn fantasy that even TRP men have the hardest time letting go.

20 upvotes · 31 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Fluffy doesn't love you.

You feed Fluffy.

What do you think of "internalized misogyny?"

20 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's feminist-speak for "women's opinions only count if they agree with us".

She wants to bang other guys, how should I react?

20 upvotes · 13 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

So much fail in these comments that I have called in an air strike.

Look, women are children, see? And children are going to test the boundaries. See what they can get away with. So she tries to play you. Either you say, no, no, no, and thereby dive into the monogamy pit yourself, or you give her permission to cuck you because muh equality.

Fuck that.

Here's your policy: You get to fuck other chicks. She doesn't get to fuck other guys. Why? Because fuck you, that's why. If she doesn't like it, there's the door.

Now the trick is to convey all this to her without sounding insecure or butthurt.

There's two ways to do this:

1. Treat it like a shit test, agree and amplify. "Sure, babe, I'll call up some of my bros, we can run a train on ya. Whaddya think, four, maybe five?" Laugh about it. She gets serious, switch to #2.
2. Subtly call her bluff. "Okay, cool. Was fun while it lasted. Here, lemme see if I can find where we dropped your bra..." The trick is to act completely nonchalant; this was a temporary thing, you knew that all along, she's ending it now, and you're cool with that.

Now, she either has to really go, out the door, right that minute, or she has to reverse herself and start begging just to keep what she already had a moment ago.

This is how you deal with plates. No girl will stay a plate forever. She's either part of the 0.1%, and gets promoted, or she breaks. So never let a plate leverage anything by threatening to break. Just let it happen when it happens.

A plate breaking isn't failure. Failure is being in any sort of relationship that is not on your terms.

It's your way, or the doorway.

Theory on Threesomes ?

20 upvotes · 5 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This topic is very volatile and you're going to get some very upset respondents. This is because men and women both have a tendency to project their sexual habits onto the opposite sex.

Here's the real deal:

- Women are evolved to safeguard precious eggs. A psychologically healthy woman only wants to have sex with the man she {is most attracted to/loves the most}.
- Men are evolved to disseminate cheap sperm. A psychologically healthy man wants to have sex with any woman he is attracted to, even there is another woman he {loves / is attracted to} more.

This means that if your woman has sex with another man, stick a fork in the relationship, it's done... but that the same is not necessarily true for men.

Does this mean that it's necessarily a good idea? No. Whether it's a good idea or not depends on you, and on him, and on the dynamic between you.

What this simply means is that objections that "He will leave you if you let him stray!" are based on a fundamental misunderstanding of both men and redpill strategy.

I'll put my own advice in another comment.

Do you have a physical preference when it comes to men?

20 upvotes · 5 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Attraction is not a choice, and it cannot be negotiated.

I can't seem to get commitment before sex

20 upvotes · 8 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

For seem to think, like many girls, that "commitment" is a special shiny gold coin we carry in our pockets, that, if you persuade us to do so, we just give to you once, and that's it, you've done your job, you can just kick back and do whatever.

The reason you cannot get commitment is that you don't know what commitment IS.

Commitment is not "telling you you're his girlfriend". Commitment is not "agreeing to be exclusive".

Commitment is not facebookthing status. Commitment is not a promise or a signed paper or a piece of jewelry.

Commitment is his attitude about you. The one that makes him decide, over and over again, to spend the evening with you instead of looking for a new girl on Tinder.

You are completely failing to inspire that, probably because you have no clue that this is what you need to be doing. You appear not to have even started the process of thinking about what the experience of spending time with you looks like from his perspective.

One of the most difficult tasks I have ever attempted is convincing women that men are more intelligent than lab monkeys.

On Freedom of Speech

20 upvotes · 23 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Also cheap hair dye in pastel colours, piercing jewelry, Che Guevara tshirts, and lots and lots of chocolate.

How do you communicate your needs and encourage captain behavior when husband's beta traits are killing the marriage?

20 upvotes · 13 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It is a frequent habit of mine to dress down girls behaving badly, and chide other commenters for giving her a pass for bad behaviour.

In this case, the reverse is true.

This one is not your fault, because attraction is not a voluntary act. You can no more force yourself to be attracted to a man who doesn't have the qualities you are attracted to, than you can force yourself to like a food you hate.

You are attracted to dominant men. Your husband is not dominant. Your mistake is not in feeling how you feel, but in that you married someone you were "supposed to" like rather than someone you did. That part is your fault.

You are, in a word, stuck.

You cannot simply demand that a man be dominant, because that's not just a privilege, it's a lot of work.

Dominant men embrace that work because they love the rewards... but those who aren't dominant by nature aren't going to do that, because the rewards are meaningless to them.

It was an act of extreme selfishness to marry him (because you cheated him of his chance to have a wife who appreciates him), but also would be one to leave him (simply blowing up his marriage over your feels).

Your only choices are:

- Grin and bear it.
- Try to find and arouse some sort of dominant streak somewhere in him.

If you opt for the latter, you must start with the REWARDS of dominance and not the DUTIES. This means:

- Obedience to his sexual desires rather than insistence on your tastes.
- Pleasing him sexually on demand, rather demanding he turn you on by being dominant first.
- Deferring to his faintly expressed desires, rather insistence he express them more forcefully.
- Finding ways to please him rather than waiting for him to tell you how you might please him.

If you can get him addicted to the rewards of dominance, he may be inspired to take up the duties.

This is a long shot, but some men are a lot more unselfish than they would really like to be, because they think they are "not supposed to". If you are undeservedly lucky, he may be one of those. If you play upon him in such a way as to show him that he can "get away with" being less nice and more assertive, he may discover that he actually wanted that all along.

It's a long shot. Best of luck.

Advice needed, please.

20 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Other, stupider reasons why I'm doubting him: I value a sense of humour, and while he has one, he is not the funniest guy and doesn't make laugh, like really laugh with tears in my eyes, very often. Is this a dumb thing to say?

Yes, it is incredibly dumb.

Also, since he doesn't have a full-time, professional job, I don't see him as a provider as of right now.

Because he's in college. This is also incredibly dumb.

Your brain is finding bullshit excuses for feelings that have a totally different cause.

Your problem is very simple. You had a hormonal meltdown, and were no longer able to feel sexually attracted to anyone. At the same time you became sexually unattractive (30 lbs? C'mon.) So then, you had the experience of being with him without being sexually attracted to him for an extended period. Now your brain is trying to rationalize ways that this is his fault.

Do you seriously think you are going to be able to attract a better mate now that you're older and fat?

If you can't fix your attraction to him, you may have to let him go so he can find someone who will treat him right, but be aware that his replacement will not compare well to him.

Here are your choices:

1. Fix your relationship.
2. Lower your standards.
3. Begin acquiring cats.

HB 8 - Did I play this correctly?

20 upvotes · 20 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

"Hey Tangeyboy. Nice to have have made out with u, maybe if u didn't make out w some girl in front of me 5 second later that would be good"

"Nah, it was more like 10 seconds."

[Mod] What to do if you're approached by a reporter for an interview about The Red Pill

20 upvotes · 15 July 2016 · /r/askTRP

"... beat the fuck out of her", opined one of the strange internet misogynist cult, when told about reporters asking questions...

Does Feminism have any Merit? If so where do you draw the line?

20 upvotes · 26 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Feminism isn't a worldview, a movement, or a philosophy.

It's a rhetorical algorithm consisting of four simple steps.

1. Find something you want.
2. Construct a scenario in which denying it to you can be construed as unfair to women.
3. Publicize this scenario.
4. Wait for the male protective response to make men offer it to you.

This is why you have to invent shit about "waves" of feminism. Because there is no core ideology. It's simple trends of women using the toolkit to get different kinds of free stuff.

Feminism is simply the expression of women's avaricious and manipulative nature.

As for the Arab world being how it is, it's simple. Every culture has a preferred sex. The laws and customs are constructed based on the worldview of that sex.

In the middle east, it's males. In the west, it's females.

Arab women are punished for being raped by men for the same reason that American men are punished for being abused by their wives. The real story is always subordinated to the culture's preferred narrative.

To Arabs, women are the sex that is lascivious and sexually immoral. Therefore if sex happened, the woman seduced the man and is an adulteress.

To westerners, men are the violent sex. Therefore, if violence happened, the man was attacking the woman.

So why does the Arab world prefer men, while the west prefers women? Because the west is rich. Female-centricity is an inevitable result of wealth and security.

What do Red Pill men bring to the table (and what do you expect women to offer)?

20 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The finest handcrafted misogyny, exploitation, and manipulation.

Shocking feminist threats against men (Part I)

20 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

If males were reduced to 10% of the population the women would kill each other mercilessly.

The women would be too busy starving to death, or trying to plead their way into the harem of any man who could keep them alive.

[FR] This crazy playboy girl I met has a SLAVE!

20 upvotes · 24 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Almost every male dom I've ever come across, even the most brutally sadistic needles-in-the-tits types, has been very, very benevolent towards their subs in general. It's generally a very happy and reciprocally satisfying relationship. There are exceptions, but as a rule it's generally pretty healthy.

Exactly.

Men have a protective instinct towards women.

Women do not have a protective instinct towards men.

Serious question : end game of a trper

20 upvotes · 17 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This question has been asked many times.

It's not the right question. The answer is the answer to the question you should have asked instead.

Is the last part of an redpill life better than the last part of a bluepill life?

Yes. Yes, it is.

Entropy gets us all in the end. At some point, time stops giving us things and begins taking them away. And no matter how slowly it does so, eventually we lose everything.

That is not very nice, but it's true no matter how we live our lives, so until scientists and engineers crack the code on that one, what matters is the time before that inevitable end. How much is there of that, and how good is it?

Taking the Red Pill is obviously, almost axiomatically better for this if you assume the premises that:

- Red Pill tactics work.
- The Red Pill tells you how to get what you want, not what you should want.

The second piece is the important part, and not understanding it why people ask the wrong question. They think TRP says "Live alone, lift weights, pin steroids, own a business, fuck a new girl off tinder every friday and saturday night". That's not a bad plan, and young men should consider it.

But it's not the only plan you're somehow "allowed" to have. TRP is here to increase your options, not decrease them.

You want a relationship? Great. We have tools for that. They are mostly the same ones. You want to get married? You're an idiot. But TRP methods can still get you better outcomes. Wanna be a monk and take a vow of celibacy? Fine. Most of the advice won't be relevant to you, but some can still help you do other things. Are you gay? Same deal. Are you so rich that 500/hr whores are cheaper than the time you would waste running game? Great. Bang expensive hoes and be happy.

More options is almost never a bad thing. More control over your life is never a bad thing.

No matter what time takes away from you, even if what you have is a fraction of what you once had, it will always be more than you would have had if you took the blue pill.

TRP isn't a religion. We don't promise miracles. We don't solve every problem perfectly. If you have cancer, or your country is being invaded, we can't help much. But having the tools we provide is never worse than not having them.

Re-post from /r/funny thought it would be appreciated here. Seems like a fairly universal one sided debate.

20 upvotes · 14 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

Who the hell sits down on anything without looking at it first? Who are these people?

I am Karen Straughan [girlwriteswhat]; Ask Me Anything.

20 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Just about every bisexual woman I know is submissive with men, but less so with other women. It's almost as if there were two distinct psychosocial "endpoints" built into human mating, and bisexuals get both sets of behavioural code.

I thought the whole point of RP was to stop worshipping pussy

20 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So your feels told you it was vagina worship.

Well, you and your feels should go to a nice safe space, possibly with some playdough and colorful posters on the walls, and discuss it. Let me know what you work out.

Nah, actually, don't. I've run out of fucks to give.

Feminist explains "Four Things All Men Can Do" during YMCA's 'Week Without Violence': She claims that people saying "violence is an equal opportunity offender" are simply "terrorising women" by "detai

20 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

Does anyone know if there's a logical fallacy formally named for this?

It's called the Fallacy of Division.

It is the assumption that what is true of the whole must be true of its parts. In this case, the assumption that because men collectively have more power than women, that individual men have more power than individual women.

Do not mistake pleasure for happiness.

20 upvotes · 3 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Depends how and why you do it.

Sex is good, and it's good for you. But the PUA community is not without those who are trying to anesthetize themselves with a long series of one night stands, or using a notch count to try to convince themselves they are successful and therefore happy.

Going to bed with an attractive woman is almost always pleasurable.

But in some situations, it's going to leave you feeling like you had an awesome day, and in others, it's going to leave you feeling empty. If the latter happens, examine the possibility that the pleasure of sex is something you're using as an inadequate substitute for some long-term satisfaction you want but don't have (being loved by a good woman, feeling like a success, feeling attractive, etc).

Red Pill knowledge being heavily upvoted at /r/askreddit.

20 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Heh. She thinks she's getting dumped afterwards because she's not playing hard to get.

Lollerskates.

More women in tech failures. UK woman in charge of the 3M pound "Learn to Code" Initiative has no idea how to code.

20 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I have.

One. In four years at university, and ten years in the industry, I've personally met exactly one woman who could really code.

And she was from a non-western culture.

Twitter users attacking Feminists for racism at #WhiteFeministRants.

20 upvotes · 2 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Twitter is amusing. Not its content, but its existence. It's like "sound bite wars". No thought process, no reasoning, no point and counterpoint, no analysis.

Just a shouting match conducted as a contest to see who can come up with the pithiest thought-terminating cliché.

It's postmodernism in a nutshell.

Feds Spend $1.5 Million to Study Why Lesbians Are Fat

20 upvotes · 6 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's very simple.

Men are attracted to appearance. This includes gay men. Gay men are still men, so they like buff, fit, handsome men, rather than feminine curvy women, but they are still appearance-oriented, because they are men. This means that if gay dudes wanna be attractive to other gay dudes, they better exercise a lot and not eat cake with a shovel.

This is in fact the case. In my experience, gay dudes tend to take great care with their appearance.

Women are attracted to behaviour. Even if they are attracted to other women, they're not focusing on the same things a heterosexual male would, because they're still women.

Bottom line is, gay dudes are fit, trim, and neatly groomed because they have to be, and lesbians look like walking potatoes because they can get away with it.

The Rise Of Heterophobia

20 upvotes · 2 December 2013 · /r/askTRP

The love that once dared not speak its name has now gone hoarse from screaming.

So I just finished having lunch with one of the biggest djs in the USA..

20 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Most women display a tendency to mistake status for quality.

Why Sluts Make Bad Wives

20 upvotes · 22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Getting married, even to a virgin, is a sucker's game.

Why do it?

Feminist male unable to understand why he can't get laid

20 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminism is a self-swallowing philosophy because the kind of men it creates are not attractive, even to feminist women.

Seriously, it's weird how feminists' actions belie their philosophy. I can no longer recall the exact number of women I've known who will get quite heated as they try to convince me that "male privilege", "the patriarchy", "rape culture", and whatnot are things. And their feminist-male orbiters will argue along with them.

And then those same women crawl into bed with me. And won't give the guys who agree with them even an occasional taste of treat-sex. It's like their feminist forebrain doesn't even notice the actions of their hypergamous hindbrain.

One woman called me a misogynist and then performed oral sex on me half an hour later. I mean, what am I supposed to think? How can I be expected to take the rhetoric seriously when their actions belie it so?

UPDATE 2: Girlfriend stopped taking the pill without telling me, and is now pregnant. Says she wants to keep it. I'm extremely scared.

20 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

non-human life forms

I fear you. Please stay away from my home.

What is the first you personally experienced sexism with real consequences?

20 upvotes · 6 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

For anyone who's circumcised, the answer is "just after being born".

There are very many articles published on the web about paternity. Many of these have a naive theme: "stop worrying about biological paternity - what matters is raising children".

20 upvotes · 7 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

If biological paternity doesn't matter at all, then no more child support. You girls cool with that?

Obama White House pays women less than men, records show... but of course, no mention of job positions taken into account.

20 upvotes · 11 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

In other news, zoo records show that zebras were fed less than elephants.

Naomi Wolf : Is pornography driving men crazy?

20 upvotes · 3 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Is feminism rewiring the female brain?

Are concern trolls pushing a political agenda?

Is Naomi Wolf's mother a whore?

Hey, I'm not biased! I'm just asking questions! I report, you decide!

I don't know where else to get advice

19 upvotes · 10 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah, you care so much about his feelings that you got on the internet, told a bunch of strangers and story about how unreasonable and mean he was being, and asked them how to make him stop being a big meanie.

You're still in an argument over who's right and wrong, and you're trying to recruit RPW to play favorites.

Let me explain to you how relationships work. In relationships, you are a team, not opponents.

You are asking me how to win the fight you are having with him, by making him change his feelings and behaviour to suit you. Even if I helped you do that, you would still have a shit relationship, because if win a fight, you still had a fight.

If you were ready for a relationship, you would be asking me how to avoid fighting and get along.

How to be a better Auntie to 16yo boys

19 upvotes · 9 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You have small children, and small children need to be guided, taught, and cared for.

She has teenagers, and teenagers, especially boys, need to become adults.

If you want to conversation to flow with a teenage boy, speak to him in a way that acknowledges him growing into an adult. Instead of being directive, like you would with a young child, ask him questions and allow him to teach you something... even if it's only about his videogame that he likes.

He's going to need to take the lead as an adult... because that's what men need in order to thrive, and he instinctively knows this. Let him practice on you by showing you things, telling you things, teaching you things, taking the lead.

If you are out somewhere on the weekend, where would he like to go? What adventure ideas does he have? Hey, teach me to play your game. Hey, how do you do that with the skateboard?

Can you guys expand on the idea of frame?

19 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/askTRP

Apparently, they can't. Every single person who answered you got it dead wrong.

You're going to have to wait until I'm not on my phone.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

19 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Ah, okay. I suspected that's where we were going to end up going.

If your husband were on TRP, the advice I would give him would be somewhat like this:

You are an idiot. Women barely manage to sometimes know what they want, how the fuck are they supposed to figure out what you want from some sort of oblique hint game? Frankly, I'm starting to suspect you're a pussy as well, because you don't have the balls to just say what you want and take responsibility for it. How the fuck do you expect her to follow if you don't lead?

... except I'd find some way to insert even more swearing and misogyny, because TRP.

What you can take away from this is that there's something going on here, and while he certainly could have been more clear, you're still in this situation, and it's in your interest to find out what is going on.

So, instead of focusing on trying to make him stop, because that hasn't worked yet... perhaps you might switch to a focus on getting him to tell you what he is trying to say. Now, while obviously at some point, you're going to have to talk about this, there are some things we can maybe do to prep you for that conversation.

First of all, do those women in the pictures have anything in common? Do they all have a particular look? Are they dressed in similar fashion? Anything?

Discussing relationship deal breakers and the adult entertainment industry

19 upvotes · 1 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

To clarify, yes I still work in the industry. I see myself as emotionally and physically monogamous to him because I do not desire to be physically intimate in a "non professional" manner with any other man. I don't seek out any men for my own personal satisfaction or orgasms.

Okay.

So what you're going to need to understand here is that men and women don't have the same idea of what intimacy and fidelity are, because different things are important to each. So, you may see not sexually desiring anyone else as being "monogamous", but men are not necessarily going to share that definition.

One reason is that this is an impossible standard for men to meet. Men are not hardwired for monogamy. We feel sexual desire for a wide variety of women, often on a daily basis, regardless of what sort of relationship we are in or how much we love our partners. Our sexual desires are not under our conscious control, so asking that someone not want something is a bit strange. People can only control what they do, not what they desire.

Secondly, I cannot help but notice that your definition of fidelity consists of precisely what you already wanted to do, and excludes anything you don't want him to do. It seems awfully convenient, and he cannot help but notice that as well.

You want him to sacrifice something he wants to do, for the good of the relationship, but what sacrifices are you making in this area? You have continued to be physically intimate with other men, while creating a definition of fidelity that allows you to do that.

That's not a compromise. If you are not willing to give anything up, he may be okay with that, but he will probably expect not to have to give anything up, either. If you want him to give up something without you having to do the same, you may get your way, for now, if you manage to outtalk him, but in the long run it will put a strain on your relationship, because men are not totally stupid, and thus we generally notice these things.

In fact, it may well be that one of the major reasons he is okay with you continuing to be with other men is that it implicitly gives him the expectation of the same degree of liberty.

That being said, there are two ways you can come at this.

The first is "I don't want you to have sex with other women, despite the fact that I am having sex with other men, because when I do it, it doesn't count." This will eventually destroy your relationship.

The second is "I feel jealous and insecure when I consider the idea of you having sex with other women, despite the fact that I am having sex with other men. How do I deal with these feelings?" This allows for a variety of ways forward.

For example, you could try joining his next visit to another pro, so you can see what's going on and aren't being shut out. Or you could find a new line of work, so you aren't imposing a double standard on him. Or any number of other things, which he might come up with, or you might come up with together.

But you are going to need to present how you feel, not what he is doing, as the basic problem that needs to be solved.

The very thing that they "hate" being treated like (i.e. a "bangmaid") is exactly what they say men are. Extreme levels of hypocrisy and 0/10 self awareness.

19 upvotes · 20 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Do you feel better now? Did snapping at a stranger do anything to improve your mood? Was there any positive result from that?

Problems that are beyond the scope of RPW.

19 upvotes · 8 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I thought about that one.

But then the following language (which I have just added) occurred to me:

This isn't the "when you should leave" list. It's the "we can't help you" list. You might leave even a serious relationship for many more reasons than this. But these are specifically things where internet advice is inappropriate.

I think there are some things that RPW can assess and give individualized advice about, and cheating falls into that category.

What, some of you clowns are actually MAD about OnlyFans?

19 upvotes · 16 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't get bent out of shape about the downvotes. /u/reddithrowaway1478 was talking strategy, and didn't barbeque anyone's traditionalist sacred cow.

There's a lot of people reading TRP who haven't actually taken the pill, and that's okay. I'm here for the people who do.

It's hard to give up the tradcon dream, because it offers the illusion of respect to young men who have had nothing but contempt directed their way by the common alternatives. But that's all it is... an illusion.

Feminism is crazy, standing on your lawn naked and smeared in its own feces, waving a steak knife and screaming that it's going to kill you. Tradconism is sly and malevolent, greeting you with a warm smile and a knife hidden under its lace skirts, waiting to stab you when you get your pants off.

That's why I say these things, knowing that young men who are still holding onto the dream will feel hurt and stab that downvote button hard. I don't care. I don't need imaginary internet points, because I can nail things to the top of TRP whether they tickle people's sensitive balls or not. I don't care about big numbers because I'm not selling life coaching or magic soap. I have plenty of money already, and get paid plenty more from doing things that have nothing to do with TRP, for prices these guys couldn't afford.

Nah, I'm here to reach the people who are actually ready to listen. I'm writing for those one or two guys who are ready to say "Hey, that kinda makes sense. I'm not going to idealize some woman who's giving me a worse deal because Jesus."

Why do girls use dread when it just makes them look slutty

19 upvotes · 5 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

Girls who use dread, or play hard to get, do so for the same reason that men simp and orbit.

Because they don't understand that the sexes are different, and so they are doing what would work on them.

TRP has an End Game

19 upvotes · 22 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I live in Europe and it's extremely difficult to get a gun. No one except police has them.

Why do you suppose that is?

The police don't work for you. They work for your masters.

And somehow life is pretty great.

It always is until it isn't.

On the other side the US had one mass shooting per day on average since 2013.

You don't pay news organizations. You get your news for free.

But if you're not paying, you are not the customer. You are the product. The news organization's business model isn't selling information to you... it's selling your ears to someone who wants you to hear some things, and not others.

That's how I imagine you.

Of course you do. Your masters have you well-trained. Hopefully that visit to the vet wasn't too painful.

Women Are For Sex – The Sexual Marketplace in 'Current Year'

19 upvotes · 7 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Jesus fuck, no matter how many times we cut the head off this myth, fill the mouth with salt and communion wafers, burn the body, then bury it face down in a church yard at high noon on the summer solstice and roll a heavy rock on top... it stills rises up to eat the brains of the living.

The difference between a ride-or-die bitch and a backstabbing hoe isn't what she is, it's what you do.

Stop trying to FIND the perfect girl. Develop your Control Game and BUILD what you want.

After getting with multiple 'unicorns', I've noticed that no matter what, when you get to truly know their personalities, they are literally all the same.... so how do some guys stay with an LTR for so long, don't you get bored?

19 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Okay, so you like to talk about philosophy.

Are you looking for an audience, who can understand your ideas, or a peer, who can contribute stuff you haven't thought of?

Should I cut off the boys or am I being dramatic

19 upvotes · 20 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Don't hang out with bucket crabs.

The cons of TRP

19 upvotes · 22 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

1. Denial
2. Anger
3. Bargaining
4. Depression <----- you are here
5. Acceptance

Someone help me, please. My life is spiraling and I'm losing the battle.

19 upvotes · 25 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

I will tell you the best news you will ever hear.

It's all your fault.

That's good news, because anything that's your fault is under your power. You can change it.

LTR lied about fucking a guy in the past. Broke up with her. Did I do the right thing?

19 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

He is, however, not the only one reading.

Every retard saying a retarded thing presents us with a valuable opportunity for a teaching moment... not, of course, for the retard, but for anyone else watching. Here, for example, we got an opportunity to talk about how male-oriented groups distribute status, power, and respect.

From each according to his ability, to each according to his contribution.

Just broke up with ltr of 5months, what did I do wrong?

19 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you seriously suspect a girl of cheating, you pretty much have to end the relationship... because you may not always be correct, but if she hasn't, she will soon.

Girls who don't want to cheat on you won't put themselves in situations that would arouse suspicion.

Not only because they don't want to be suspected, but because a girl who is vigourously mate-guarding herself (as every LTR-worthy girl must do) is, by that very process, not winding up in situations that are suspicious. If you're trying to shut down potential suitors, you don't go drinking with strange guys without your man there.

And deleting stuff... that's a smoking gun. There's something she doesn't want you to see. Whether it's photos of her with a cock in her mouth, or flirty text messages... doesn't matter. If she's trying to deceive you now, she will do so again. And the next time, or the time after that, it WILL be strange dick.

It's just a matter of time.

You don't next girls for their actions. You next them for what their actions tell you about them, and about what they will do.

Current LTR of two years almost never gives me head. Advice?

19 upvotes · 20 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

LTR defective. Replace LTR.

HumanSockPuppet's Guide to Training Bitches

19 upvotes · 12 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Abundance mentality is. You have to build this with time and experience.

The trick is that you must start by feigning indifference even when you don't feel it. Women only value your devotion if they already think you are amazing. (Then you can dole it out in small doses as a reward.)

Never try to attract a woman by showing how attracted you are. She'll think you're a loser.

Play hard to get.

Girl declines oral

19 upvotes · 25 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

She doesn't like it.

This is common for submissive girls.

Newbie here, I guess I'm a plate. Now how do we turn this around?

19 upvotes · 25 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah, this is pretty much the game you have to play after the death of the tradcon system.

Many women, including many women here, don't understand this. They keep saying things like "why would he buy the cow, if he can get the milk for free?". They think raising the price of something raises its value.

Well, you can't raise the value of sex by raising its price. The bottom has fallen out of the sex market, because the demand has remained constant, but the supply has increased.

Your bait isn't sex, it's feminine companionship. And you should be giving out free samples.

Why? Because the first one's always free. You are a drug dealer, and your goal is to get him addicted.

RP advice on correct perspective with losing weight

19 upvotes · 21 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It has taken 11 years of ~~therapy, support groups, and practicing self-love~~ group-assisted rationalization to come to the point of ~~loving myself~~ being able to completely ignore my complete failure at a basic life task.

You have wasted 11 years that you could have spent lifting weights and eating proper food.

You know why you had to spend that much effort telling yourself it's okay to be obese? Because it's not fucking okay, that's why.

You already know this. That's why it has been so hard to convince yourself otherwise, despite your desperate desire to believe it.

How much longer are you going to live a lie before you take charge of your life?

Discuss: Settling

19 upvotes · 10 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

For every woman, no matter how attractive or unattractive, there are some stacked categories of men:

- Men who are so far out of her league they won't give her anything.
- Men who she can get sex from, but not a relationship.
- Men who she can get a relationship with after having sex with them, if she plays her cards right.
- Men who will commit to her before sex.

The order roughly corresponds to how desirable one can expect them to be. Changing her level of attractiveness will change who falls into each category, but not the existence or order of the categories.

- The first category is off limits regardless of what she does.
- The second category is the no-go zone that RPW basics advise avoiding at all costs.
- The third carries more pre-commitment risk, as these men are more difficult to inspire attachment in, and can increase the n-count, but also less post-commitment risk, and a greater reward.
- The fourth carries less pre-commitment risk, at the expense of greater post-commitment risk: unhappiness and hypergamous urges.

To be successful, a woman has to be able to:

- Accurately sort men into these categories (this requires knowing her real SMV).
- Decide what tradeoff she wants to make between pre- and post-commitment risk.
- Focus her game skill development on whichever strategy she has chosen; focusing on femininity and character if she chooses pre-commitment risk, and self-discipline and expectation management if she chooses more post-commitment risk.

My God... It's Full Of... Kittens.

19 upvotes · 30 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You're making jokes at the expense of 6 million people.

Son, we are making jokes at the expense of seven billion people. The universe itself is one vast and extremely cruel practical joke on everyone who ever existed, or ever will.

So if you can't take a joke, I guarantee you're not gonna enjoy your time here very much.

And by "here", I mean "the universe".

My relationship lasts an average of 3 months, what am I doing wrong?

19 upvotes · 25 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Do men find it cheap/unattractive if women bring up the topic of relationship/executivity/commitment ?

Not just unattractive. It's a giant red flag that a woman is a bad relationship partner.

Think of it this way:

Women are the gatekeepers of sex. So men's job is to get to sex. But men who try to get to sex by asking, bargaining, negotiating, begging, or threatening are bad sexual partners. Sex with them is a chore, not a pleasure.

A man who is a good sexual partners gets sex from women by making them want sex.

Men are the gatekeepers of relationships. So women's job is to get to a relationship. But women who try to get to relationships by asking, bargaining, negotiating, begging, or threatening are bad relationship partners.

Relationships with them are a chore, not a pleasure. A woman who is a good relationship partner gets a relationship from a man by making him want one with her.

"The talk" is a symptom of poor social skills and a demanding nature.

Women say I have no emotion

19 upvotes · 23 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Ignore what women say.

Watch what they do. Are they talking to you? Are they talking about you? Are they analyzing every last little thing you do or don't, obsessively?

Tears

19 upvotes · 28 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah.

Fuck up your T levels by not doing proper post-cycle therapy, and for a week or so, you'll get, not the full experience, but just a glimpse of what it must be like to be a woman.

If your T levels sink low, sentimental stuff starts to affect you just enough so you can imagine what it must be like to have them even lower AND be bursting full of estrogen at the same time.

Women literally cannot control their emotions. Getting mad at them for not doing so is unreasonable, senseless, and pointlessly cruel. Instead, men need to learn not to take women's moods seriously.

I think I'm a little bitch... help me TRP

19 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

You're too attached to things.

Things that you are attached to, own you. Whatever you have in your life that's nice, if it becomes a liability, you have to be willing to walk away from it, and devote the time you spent on it to replacing it or doing something else you enjoy.

Trying to berate people who disappoint you just means you think you can't replace them. That's why you try to control them with anger, instead of simply withdrawing your attention. Punishment is for women who are already invested and have some motivation to obey you.

If they don't, getting angry is just weak. Withdraw instead. Sometimes, this will make girls leave, but nothing of value will be lost.

Jordan Peterson is not your friend.

19 upvotes · 4 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

He is not my friend. He represented an important stepping stone in my journey from blue to red, but it was at the very beginning.

This should be true of everyone, including me. That's why I threw in that line about eating your lunch and stealing your girl.

You don't unplug by changing the people whose words you uncritically accept. You unplug by regarding everything you hear as a theory to test, and being your own guru.

The Monogamy Talk

19 upvotes · 28 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Monogamy isn't even your biggest concern. Who cares if he's willing to be monogamous with you for a couple years, then ditch you for a younger model because "he's not ready to settle down yet."

This is well put.

Male commitment is not a formalism or a promise or an out-loud statement in front of witnesses. It consists precisely of his lasting desire to remain with you. With this, promises are simply acknowledgement. Without it, they are meaningless.

You can't deny someone sex completely really in our modern culture, certainly not a very attractive guy who can get it a dozen other places, but you can't give it to someone without knowing.

This is the bad news.

Today's women face a much harder and narrow path than their mothers and grandmothers.

Withholding sex to get a promise simply does not work, not only because male libido has many more outlets, but because if a man perceives that you are withholding sex on purpose, he will interpret your behaviour based on this... usually as much more calculating, and as inspired by personal interest rather than love.

On the other hand, sex alone never inspires a desire to commit, except in men who have great difficulty getting to sex (and if other girls didn't want him, odds you won't either).

I generally advise the following:

- Never have sex with a man you don't want to keep.
- Never have sex with a man you think you won't be able to keep. (Usually due to competition.)
- Don't have sex earlier than you feel ready, in the attempt to get him interested.
- Don't have sex later than you feel ready, in the attempt to "hold off for commitment".
- Make sure your girl game is on point, and be working for his long-term affection from before you have sex.
- Once you have sex, you have entered the danger zone. Now you've wagered on the strength of your girl game: an n-count increase if you lose, an LTR with this man if you win. Make sure the reward is worth the risk, and that the odds are the best you can make them.

Q4All: Why do so many men have such low self esteem about their looks or personality and what can we do to fix this?

19 upvotes · 8 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The truth is that which doesn't go away when you stop believing in it.

The Creep - Part 3

19 upvotes · 26 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Hanlon's Razor.

It is far simpler to explain as an outgrowth of women situationally grasping for control with no appreciation of the long-term consequences.

Women's definition of morality is experiential in nature. That which makes them feel bad is evil. That which makes them feel good is righteous.

Therefore any sexual interaction, on any level, that made them feel bad, must have been a case of wrongdoing by the man.

Why is 'boy' and 'masculine' associated with 'bad' and 'war'? This is in the main hallway of my high school.

19 upvotes · 17 October 2016 · /r/MensRights

Be different exactly how we tell you to.

Welcome to the Desert of The Real

19 upvotes · 24 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

They've disavowed him/her now. He/she came out as a conservative.

Another Poor Bastard Finds Out His Wife Was a Whore For Everyone But Him

19 upvotes · 27 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't get married. Problem solved before you have it.

How to lose a lifelong friend in a week

19 upvotes · 24 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

A coward is never your friend.

He cannot be your friend because he is not reliable... he is only loyal to whoever bullied him last.

Point out that men commit suicide more often than women? You're obviously a basement dweller who thinks all women belong in the kitchen.

19 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

Evidently, "Male Tears" are really high in calories.

Reddit's new 'Trust and Safety Team' just quarantined the r / european subreddit

19 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Reddit is a bunch of humming boxes in a room somewhere. What's valuable is not the boxes, but the audience. The audience can easily go elsewhere.

Elsewhere is already set up.

Do not mistake a throne for an army.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

19 upvotes · 8 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Correct.

But they think it's a slam-dunk case. Why? Because women invariably, universally believe that their vaginal moistness is a magic dowsing rod that inerrantly locates good genes and good character.

Therefore, once a loser, always a loser. Once couldn't get laid, always couldn't get laid.

This means that women who like TRP are forced to conclude that we were always pretty awesome dudes, but we just wanted even more control over our sex lives. And women who hate TRP are forced to conclude that we still aren't getting laid, it's all a con game, and all the field reports are fake.

Because anything else would force them to admit that their sexual urges are a simple rubric that can be beaten with a simple set of cheat codes. They can't handle that.

Men, on the other hand, have always known this about themselves. Symmetric facial bone structure, big eyes, the correct distribution of a little bit of body fat, and we're in love, or at least in something we can call love until our balls are empty.

Men confront their own shallowness every day. That's why the red pill is easier for us to swallow. Because "swallowing the red pill" is the admission that there are no great and noble souls, that everyone is made of the same selfish goo as everyone else. Very, very few women ever truly take the red pill, because very, very few women can look in the mirror and say "I am shallow. I am a basic bitch. I want the same simple, stupid stuff every other woman wants."

Theory Weekend Continues - Posting Threads Is Temporarily Locked

19 upvotes · 23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll tell ya'll what the fuck isn't "Alpha".

Abandoning something you enjoy because you're afraid the other children will call you a nerd at recess.

This isn't a "gotcha question". I'm genuinely asking. Red pillers, how do you live with yourselves?

19 upvotes · 7 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How do you atheists live with yourselves, knowing that you are bad people because you hate your Lord and Saviour Jesus the Risen Christ?

Computer Science Degree useless?

19 upvotes · 7 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

I am an experienced developer that has made some sites already.

Heh. You're cute.

No, you are not an experienced developer.

Do you need a diploma to be one? No. But you do need a sound education in theoretical comp sci.

I try to avoid hiring programmers without degrees. A fresh graduate with no practical experience is a temporary liability. A self-taught programmer with no theoretical education is a permanent liability.

The University of Melbourne's largest residential college banned access to online pornography on campus, on the basis that it "presents women primarily as sex objects who are a means to the end of male pleasure".

19 upvotes · 18 September 2015 · /r/MensRights

Residential college.

They are banning porn access from the dorms. That is the students' home.

This is definitely a hard pill to swallow, but I am doing it.

19 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

First step:

Cease regarding sex or women as the goal.

Your first goal is not to "start getting laid more". It is to not be controlled via your sex drive. At first, that will not mean more sex (because you have no game). It may even mean less sex (because betas sometimes manage to get "maintenance sex" from their exploiters).

That's okay. Because it wasn't lack of sex that made you angry enough to wake up. It was lack of respect. It was being taken for granted. It was being jerked around.

Your first goal is to make that stop.

example of how bad wives can treat Beta Bux [CRINGE WARRING]

19 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I swear I never wanted to smack a bitch so much in my life.

When you start wanting to smack him instead of her, your training will be complete.

He's the bitch. She's just a parasite that feeds off bitches. Don't be a bitch, and you have nothing to fear from her.

HL solid 7 (soft 1) 33F in relationship with LL40yo beta. Can I do anything to get him to swallow the pill?

19 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I'm phd, good money, divorced with a kid from marriage.

You're not a 7. You're damaged goods.

He's 2 classes shy of his ba, service industry, decent money. He's emasculated and it makes me want to fuck around. I love him, but I want a trp man, who knows his value.

You're rationalizing. You're not with him because you love with in particular, you're with him because he's the best you can get. Why? Because you're over 30, have a phd, a history of divorce, and a kid that isn't his.

No one whom you would think of as an alpha male is going to touch you except for a quick pump and dump. You're not worthy. So, being flat broke in the sexual marketplace, you decided to buy a fixer-upper on the cheap. In abstract, it's not a bad plan. But there's a problem.

You can never lead someone to being a leader. You can never control someone into being dominant. It's a contradiction in terms.

Dominate me kindly but firmly.

Shoulda said this ten years ago, before you made all your mistakes. Now, you may as well have asked me what you should do, now that you have jumped out of an airplane with no parachute. The only answer is "spread your arms and legs and hope you hit something soft". Which is what you have going for you. Your man is not awesome. He is not exciting. He is not sexy. But he's what you can realistically have, because if you could do better, you would have.

Do what you can to raise your attractiveness. Work out and starve yourself thin like it's your job (because it is). Act more submissive. Be a better woman, and maybe, just maybe you'll inspire him to be a bit of a better man.

But most of what you need to do is get off your high horse. You have precisely what you deserve.

but I want a trp man, who knows his value.

And I want to be the Sultan of the Milky Way Galaxy, and wear a shiny hat. So what?

What do you have to offer? How can you improve that?

TRP take on smoking?

19 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

The nihilistic, IDGAF side of me says do whatever you enjoy regardless of what society says.

If you had this attitude about cake, you'd be a fat slob, wouldn't you?

How is lung cancer any different?

Society doesn't make you fat. Cake does. Society doesn't give you lung cancer. Tobacco does.

What can American women do that men can't ?

19 upvotes · 6 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Have reproductive rights?

Radicalizing the Romanceless: "If you're smart, don't drink much, stay out of fights, display a friendly personality, & have no criminal history – then you're the population most at risk of being miserable & alone. In other words, everything that 'nice guys' complain of is pretty darned accurate."

19 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You are assuming that female attraction is based on what's good for them.

Someone get this man a red pill, stat.

Female attraction is based not on what's good for them, but what's good for their genes. Her brainstem doesn't care if he beats her and makes her miserable. It only cares if she gives birth to baby badasses who are going to be the hammer instead of the nail.

This is why women aren't happy when you give them whatever they want. Because their genes are evolved with something other than their happiness as a top priority.

Girls, without guidance from a patriarchy, grow up into women who self-destruct. Because genetic imperatives could not possibly give less of a fuck about individual happiness and welfare.

What power does she have over you?

19 upvotes · 28 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Was there any consequence she could give me that she could actually enforce?

She could leave me. Divorce. That was really the only card she held.

That's the key concept here. Women are smaller and weaker than us. They cannot actually force us to do anything we don't want to do, unless they manage to enlist other males to do it for them.

This means that when they try to control us, it most often happens as a threat to withhold something... affection, sex, respect, whatever.

A man can live free of women's control if he remembers one simple principle:

He who cannot cast away a treasure at need is in chains.

No matter how good she is, no matter how much you love her, be psychologically prepared to walk away without ever looking back. at any moment.

Reddit Female Solipsism Firsthand

19 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why are you taking women seriously enough to argue with them? Don't do that unless you run across one who happens to be behaving like an adult.

Arguing with a 21 year old girl about whether she should or shouldn't sleep with every guy she has a tingle for is like arguing with an 11 year old girl about whether daddy should or shouldn't buy her a pony. In both cases, you are discussing a ridiculous proposition with someone who doesn't have the mental ability or willingness to weigh the pros and cons.

Don't treat women like peers. Treat them like little girls. If they demand something ridiculous, don't debate, laugh. If you have power over them, just tell them no, and get on with your life. If you don't have power over them, just laugh, let them do what they want, and you do what you want (i.e., avoid such silly irresponsible women).

Don't go on the great crusade to reform spoiled women. You are under no obligation to be Mr. Fixit. Don't try to punish them. Give them one warning about the way things really work, delivered with an attitude of amused superiority, and then let them be punished by the consequences of their own actions.

You can save a person from many things, but you can never save a person from themselves.

OP's wife stops having sex with him, OP talks to wife about counseling, wife tells OP to use a dildo, OP is angry but considers it

19 upvotes · 26 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's not misconstrue... there is absolutely nothing wrong with a hand-held dildo as part of a kinky toybox.

But that's a far cry from "wear this strapon, because I find your dick inadequate".

Swedish newspaper: men shouldn't be taller than women and the only reason they are is because of discrimination

19 upvotes · 26 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We did. But all the ones who were Vikings got in ships and sailed elsewhere, remember?

"It is inappropriate to consider as a rape victim a man who engages in unwanted sexual intercourse with a woman." - KOSS page 206, last paragraph[pdf]

19 upvotes · 22 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

And they only mention that to MRAs, not to her, or other feminists.

Opening paragraph from Mike Tyson's autobiography "Undisputed Truth". Hypergamy at its finest. After being convicted of rape Tyson spends the month and a half before his sentencing fending off women who want to sleep with him.

19 upvotes · 9 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Whenever I hear about a professional athlete being accused of rape, I don't just assume it's a lie, I'm certain of it.

Most people have no idea of the sheer magnitude of the epidemic of gold-digging whores flinging themselves at pro athlete cock. These guys don't have to rape anyone. In fact, they probably have a hard time finding an attractive woman who doesn't want to sleep with them, because to do so, they would have to elbow their way through the thick layer of women following them around who do.

These women weren't fucking raped, they were trying to get pregnant and didn't, so a rape accusation is plan B. Show me one woman who accused a pro athlete of rape, then didn't subsequently sue him. Show me the one who isn't looking for a payday, and I'll think maybe there's a chance she might not be lying.

But I'll still doubt it. Women don't get raped by pro athletes for the same reason construction workers don't get raped by supermodels... because no one has to steal what is available for free, in a huge supply, with a plentiful selection.

My advice to guys lucky enough to have a real shot at the pros is: get yourself a girlfriend or wife before you make the cut. Yeah, sure, a lot of girls sniffing around you now are not quite as hot. A lot of them are gold diggers, too. But they're playing the long game. They're trying to hitch themselves to an investment that has a chance of paying off big.

Pick one, marry her, and stay monogamous. That's right, I said it. Exact opposite of my usual advice. But circumstances are different. Pro athletes' situation dodges most of the hazards in marriage, but adds a lot of risks to playing the field. Ain't no woman gonna divorce you unless you pussy out (like Tiger Woods did), but if you try to climb that huge mountain of poontang that waiting in the lobby of every hotel you stay at... then you're gonna get taken to the fucking cleaners, no lie.

I mean, monogamy sucks, but it's better than getting tooled. Keep it in your pants, cowboy, because you are surrounded by gold-diggin', rape-accusin', pill-lyin', condom-piercin', lawyer-on-speed-dial hos. Sorry. You want some strange, you gotta pop out two or three kids with the wife, get a vasectomy, and then get your variety in a threesome with the wife.

Let's see them call that rape.

It's not that every woman who makes a pass at an NBA or NFL player is looking to get paid. Some of them are just celebrity groupies, or just get so wet at all your physical and social dominance that they could sail toy boats in their underwear. Some women don't want anything from you but the chance to get railed. But here's the thing: how you gonna tell the difference?

Introducing a male equivalent of the Bechdel test

19 upvotes · 26 November 2013 · /r/MensRights

I already have a personal version of this test.

- 1: Are there two named male characters who are neither feral, sinister, nor inept?
- 2: Who work together towards a major goal which does not involve helping a woman, securing female attention (romantic or otherwise), or serving "society" in general at significant risk or loss to themselves?

Examples of movies that fail:

- Django Unchained (only two males pass criteria #1, and the whole film is about them rescuing a woman)
- Heat (Only one male character passes criteria #1, and he is serving society at great personal risk and cost)
- Terminator 2 (Only two male characters at all, one sacrifices his life for the benefit of society. Schwarzenegger's character does not count... he's a robot)
- Dogma (No male characters are neither feral, nor sinister, nor inept)
- Lord of the Rings trilogy (All male characters who pass #1 endure great risk and loss to preserve society)
- The Professional (Only one male character passes #1, he sacrifices his life to save a woman)

Wife goes to wedding alone. Gives handjob to groomsman.

19 upvotes · 12 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Another reason why you don't marry her.

If the two of you have a good, committed relationship, you don't need a wedding or a document. You'll decide to stay, each day. The purpose of a marriage is to make it difficult to leave. If she wants it to be difficult for you to leave, ask yourself why.

SALON.COM – "5 Ways America Tells Boys Not to Be Girly"

19 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

But they will wreck a lot of boys trying to make it work.

Professional privilege checker

19 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

You're right except for engineering and physical sciences. If you want a PhD in comp sci, mechanical engineering, or chemistry, you'd better have (or get) an undergrad degree in the same field, first.

The Jodi Arias trials is a Men's Rights issue because...

19 upvotes · 9 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

The defense attorney was doing their job which was trying to raise any defense they could. This is also true regardless of gender. You work with what you have which often times isn't much.

Absolutely true.

The problem is not that the defense council tried it. The problem is that it was a useful thing to try. The problem is that we live in a society where this bullshit will fly instead of being laughed out of court.

Oh sweet Oprah: national class anti-Game

19 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is not, of course, a relationship expert. This is an expert at what Bill Marr calls "making women nod".

Some very good careers indeed have been made in the field of getting on television and telling women what they want to hear. This makes women feel good, an experience they will pay for by buying your book.

Telling women the truth is not generally a good career move.

The Emperor of all hamsters has been found!

19 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not going to read all this, because, skimming it, I can see that I've seen it all before.

If 40ish women were really so great, why would everybody have to keep telling me so?

Richard Feynman: "you're worse than a whore". - Game prior to the 1960s.

19 upvotes · 5 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I knew Feynman personally when I was a child. (Didn't realize until after he was dead that he was famous.)

This is very typical of him. He loved it when there was a conflict between people's social expectations and cold hard reality, because that gave him a chance to come down on the side of reality. He refused to participate in collaborative lies, and would always puncture them with a big grin on his face, and a deliberate exaggeration of that stupid accent of his.

He was an old school red pill swallower, in very many ways, not just about men and women, but about science, social conventions, religion, the universe around him, etc. He would have found this article funny. You see, the arguing about whether this meant "you must disrespect women to get their affection" vs. "women's affection is not bought with money" would have been silly to him.

Because neither of these are tested by the experiments he performed. I think he would have pointed out that the only thing that the evidence showed was that women are more likely to have sex with the same man when he is verbally aggressive and demanding than when he is "gentlemanly" and compliant.

As I would put it, you can argue interpretations all day long. But if you argue with facts, you just look like a twit to anyone who's paying attention.

Who cares why acting disrespectful and demanding works? The only thing that matters is that it does.

[FR] report from the other side- girl meeting a PUA

19 upvotes · 14 February 2013 · /r/seduction

Saying "Game for when she knows about game" is like saying "makeup for when he knows about makeup".

What all successful people have in common. Some words of encouragement.

19 upvotes · 28 July 2012 · /r/seduction

The important thing in life isn't to avoid failure, it's to survive it. That is, to not come away so damaged that you cannot try again and succeed.

I think one of the worst things we do to kids is public school. Where an A means not that you did anything spectacular, but that you avoided mistakes. We spend 12 of their most important formative years teaching them to avoid mistakes, and then we wonder why they are so risk-averse and have no drive.

Ex-Wife In Wisconsin Gives Away Ex-Husbands Belongings, Vandalizes SUV. Superior Police Sgt. William Lear told the newspaper there's no law against spray painting ex-husband's vehicle. Police refuse to charge woman.

19 upvotes · 21 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Just as not all men are the evil pigs that some feminists would have us believe, neither are all women man-using shrews.

Irrelevant. This is not about women. This is about the law, and how it is selectively enforced.

If men were given the right to beat women at will, would that somehow be okay because most men are good people, and wouldn't do so?

A slave with a kind master is still a slave.

Boyfriend's got a roving eye? Control it. Click on him to HIT HIM when he checks out the girls."

19 upvotes · 20 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because, remember, kids, when something insults women, it's indicative of a larger social trend with disturbing implications, and when something insults men, it's just, you know... stuff.

Remember the victim of that rapist - oops, I mean "sex-mad woman"? Well, he gets to be publicly named. The rapist is anonymous of course.

19 upvotes · 17 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

sexual coercion and deprivation of freedom against a woman

Because we just couldn't charge a woman with kidnapping and rape.

Hey MRAs, I just thought you should know that SRS and SomethingAwful are about to redditbomb you in an attempt to have you shut down.

19 upvotes · 17 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

As much as the content on r/atheism offends me

I guess we're all different. As an atheist and an r/atheism subscriber, I have little problem with it other than the fact that the amount of ragecomics, quotepics, and other content-lite submissions is too damn high.

But that goes to show that the men's right movement is orthogonal to religion, most of the dimensions of politics, and just about everything else. We are aligned with neither atheism nor religion, neither liberalism nor conservatism, not with any philosophy or worldview.

And unlike feminism, we do not have a belief system. We do not have a "theory wing" that tries to explain the universe, or even the genders. There is no MRA equivalent of "patriarchy theory".

The men's movement is not an -ism. It doesn't make assertions about how things work, or what causes what. It only has one belief, the belief that men ought to be treated fairly.

And that's not an idea you can make go away with "raids" from some website to some other website.

People hanging out in virtual places like somethingawful, fark, 4chan, slashdot, digg, or reddit tend to forget that, while the audiences for such can sometimes be massive, they are also ephemeral. They flow and drift, and websites and social media rise and fall... the only thing that lasts is the people.

So doing something to a website is like carving your name on water. In a little while, it won't matter. In 10 years or so, when both reddit and SA are gone, what will it matter that the latter tried to mess with the former? The only effect these things have is the way it changes the participating people.

Something like reddit can be powerful when it changes minds. But messing with the medium itself, in the absence of that, is kind of a waste of time.

One of the most sexist bigoted articles I've read in awhile "There are four refuges left for men who cling to male hegemony and stereotyped masculinity. They are: the National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun culture; the military; the Christian right; and pornography."

19 upvotes · 4 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Men introduce sex and sexually related material into conversations instantly and inappropriately, yet many cannot perform.

Heh.

"Cannot perform"... I love that.

Look, ladies, if he's not hard, there's only two possible reasons. Either there's something wrong with the plumbing, and he can't get an erection ever, or his penis is telling him something about whether he's really into this.

Guess which one is more common?

RP Success Story from an initial skeptic! Thanks gals

18 upvotes · 11 January 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Glad to hear things are going well for you. Stories like this are a vindication of what we are trying to do here... provide other people with the tools to find happiness, in an age where their society is trying to condition them to seek pleasure instead.

How do you deal with the feeling of "but I deserve better" when it comes to settling down with a man?

18 upvotes · 20 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you are not satisfied with the best man you can attract, then improve your appearance and behaviour until you are.

Meta-Post: What is TRP, r- and K-selection, and political context

18 upvotes · 17 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

An important insight to add to this understanding is that as western civilization has become more and more wealthy, and less and less close to questions of pure survival in a hostile universe, its social customs are naturally drifting towards r-selecting patterns.

Women don't think that women can make adult decisions and be held accountable for those decisions

18 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I would like to point out you are being bitter

How the hell do you have any idea how I taste? Pretty sure I don't recall you licking me.

Don't talk about fight club

18 upvotes · 25 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

What exactly are you afraid of?

How to Deal with Loser Roommate

18 upvotes · 24 February 2021 · /r/askTRP

If someone needs your help to grow, that's good. You are investing in a valuable future friend and ally.

If someone needs your help to survive, stay the fuck away.

I (31M) threatened to take my wife's (29F) weekly stipend away if she doesn't do more chores or get a job. Now she won't speak to me. What do I do?

18 upvotes · 12 January 2021 · /r/askTRP

First off, realize that you need her far less than she needs you. This gives you the upper hand... but only if you are aware of that and use it to your advantage.

Secondly, realize that you fucked up. If you wanted someone who felt gratitude and was motivated by reciprocity, you should have gone gay and married a dude. Women don't work that way.

If you give a man something, he feels like he owes you, because he received something, and now he has to give back.

If you give a woman something, she feels like you owe her, because now you giving her thing is the normal and expected way of doing things.

- Stop having sex with her. You don't want to have children right now, and birth control can be sabotaged. This also prevents her from weaponizing sex. You're going to have to suppress your sexual needs right now, because you are in survival mode.
- Contact a divorce attorney right now, and do everything he tells you to do. You are not necessarily going to divorce her, but you might have to, so you are building a case. Yes, lawyers are expensive. You know what's even more expensive? Not having one.
- Your attorney will tell to do this, but so will I: Document. Everything. You are building a case. If you have to divorce this bitch, it's not going to be amicable. She is going to fight you for everything you have earned.
- If she is giving you the silent treatment, don't try to talk to her. Ignore her.
- Read up on dread game and start applying it right now. But don't actually cheat on her yet. Remember, you are most likely going to wind up in divorce court.
- Regard your marriage as "probably over", and don't try to save it. Instead, see if she tries to save it.

Remember, it is sexual attraction that is your responsibility... keeping a strong relationship is hers.

- Post this on MRP. Those guys know far more than I do about how to deal with a woman from a position of "legally fucked".
- If you get divorced, learn your lesson and don't get married again.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

18 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Absolute nonsense.

So you think that politicians are not corruptible? That people are too principled to cheat at the highest-stakes game in the world?

Son, humans cheat at solitaire.

Of Human Bondage Part III: Slave Girls of the Red Pill.

18 upvotes · 11 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Because slave girls LOVE, LOVE, LOVE their collars. Love them. Why so? Because a slave girl's collar is a tangible symbol of her sexual value and desirability to men. It means she is pretty enough, sexy enough, for a man to want to CLAIM her, and OWN her. See that feminist fattie over there? No collar. What man could want her? Slave girl? Collared, because men want her. That's what slave girls think about. And really, they're right.

Yep.

Funszie gets visibly upset when I have to remove her collar for an xray, or to clean the lock.

Why?

Because she knows that all women are property by nature... it's just a matter of who they belong to, and how. A woman who no man owns is either a woman loved by a weak man, or a woman loved by no men at all. And if she's not a dedicated, fully committed member of the Order of Exclusive Carpet Munchers, she ain't gonna be okay with that.

No matter how feminist she claims to be, a woman's self-worth is always based on the value of the man who claims her.

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

18 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Spot on. Especially that bit about mistakes. People, realize that you are going to make mistakes.

Go ahead.

The glorious advantage of being male is that you get to leave your mistakes behind. Next your mistakes.

Nexting isn't punishment. It's a decision that your time would be better invested in the next girl than in this one.

How Stripping Sparked my Conversion From BluePill to Redpill

18 upvotes · 20 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's a couple of ways by which this works.

#1. Men don't like it.

It's not even necessary to understand why men don't like it (although I could talk about that), it's enough that they do.

This leaves her with the choice of either telling her hypothetical future partner something about her which he's not going to like, and will diminish his investment in the relationship, or to lie to him about it (even if only by omission), which represents lack of investment in the relationship on her part.

Edit: Someone sent me a heads-up, and it seems /u/perryplats is lying by omission already. She is not a former sex worker, she is an active sex worker.

#2 It affects her attitude about men, relationships, and sex, in a negative way.

Using sex in a transactional manner is a very damaging antipattern in relationships (the video should give you some insight into why), and this is precisely what she has spent a long time doing.

#3 It shames her future partner in front of other men.

'Nuff said. I think everyone understands this one.

If one of the core tenets of TRP is to be muscular as fuck (bodybuilding), then why are some figures of this community out of shape ?

18 upvotes · 19 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

If they were, we (the dudes who created this place) would have failed.

Men who are not yet successful are our target audience. We don't have to help the ones who already are.

How to politely tell him I'd like to drive myself?

18 upvotes · 12 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

A lot depends on how you say this. "I prefer to meet you there" with no explanation might come off as "I want to end the date when we leave the venue, no matter how well it's going" ... quite cold and off-putting.

I would recommend honesty. A girl can never overestimate how powerful a tactically employed appearance of weakness can actually be:

"I'm sorry, I had this one guy find out where I lived and kinda, well, stalked me. So I get really nervous about this. Can we meet in public the first time?"

What you would be doing, here, is a tactical attempt to provoke the male protective instinct. This not only gets you what you want (probably), it also allows you to test how easily provoked his protective instincts are.

Even better, if, after meeting him, you feel like this is no longer a concern, you get to turn it around and say "Can you pick me up next time? I'm sorry about earlier, but I really feel safe around you now."

Then it becomes a compliment.

In general, use flattery and requests, rather than demands or assertions of your "rights", even in cases where you actually have the right of it... because remember that your goal isn't to be Ms. Tough Chick and make sure everyone knows it, it's to have your interests looked after.

The best way to do that is to act meek in a carefully calculated way.

Honest question for long time red pillers

18 upvotes · 4 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

How in the flying fuck do you guys stay detached from multiple girls who display no red flags and are your EXACT type, basically the dream girls of your blue pill days?

Why would you stay detached from them?

What to do when a girl is throwing herself at you?

18 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

"Hey, will be at xyz 800pm tonight. Join me. Wear something casual."

If your girl cheats then it's your fault

18 upvotes · 3 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Men are to blame for everything because women are sheep with no free will.

Anything women have, we gave them. Anything they do, we either let them do, or encouraged them to do.

Modern women are what happens when you don't train your dog.

False Positives

18 upvotes · 7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

They're suspicious after being used by a late capitalist society and don't want to be used again.

Capitalism isn't for pussies. Because it doesn't give you what you need, or even what you want. It gives you what you ask for. That means that you are responsible for knowing what you want and need, and asking for it.

If little Timmy needs a nanny economy that is going to figure out for him what he needs instead selling him what he buys, then little Timmy has deeper problems than capitalism. You will not fix people's mental illness, individual or collective, by arguing about who should set the price of things.

Anthony sucks, and his product sucks, and this right here is the free market taking care of that. This is us posting a 0/10 product review.

Because there is no value added by going to a pep rally and having someone read TRP articles on stage, instead of reading them yourself, right in your mom's basement or wherever you are. Because you need a dog and pony show to learn and improve yourself, you have bigger problems than capitalism, or whatever the fuck centrally planned retard economy that plastic bubble intellectuals want to replace it with.

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

18 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, to summarize:

1. Here's what you conservatives believe, because I'd rather tell you than ask you.
2. Here's why you believe it, because I'd rather tell you than ask you.
3. I know this from watching Fox news.
4. And talking to my grandma.

Well, given that you are so well informed, there is certainly no need to be a good listener. You already know, and can carry on both halves of the conversation yourself.

I wonder why you might be having trouble attracting the interest of men who aren't "practically emasculated".

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

18 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You object to being held responsible for left's anti-male views, on the grounds that you don't share them, yet you state clearly that you are "absolutely turned off" by republicans, without any sort of pause to examine their individual political beliefs.

I'm wondering why you seem to be asking for yourself a courtesy you are unwilling to extend to others.

Who The Fuck Are You?

18 upvotes · 31 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

One important takeaway from this is that young men without strong and effective fathers struggle to get through daily life, slowly reinvent themselves, and then work to catch up, while young men with strong and effective fathers hit the ground running.

Where to find a man? XD

18 upvotes · 4 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There are some, but less than you think.

The numerous men I've advised over the years, both publicly on TRP, privately, and in person, tend to fall into three categories:

1. Dude: "I don't understand why anyone would ever want a relationship. I don't want anything from a woman apart from sex followed by absence." Whisper: "Target slutty girls. For you, disloyalty is a feature, not a flaw."
2. Dude: "I can't get it up with one night stands. I don't know what's wrong with my dick." Whisper: "Nothing is wrong with your dick. It's trying to tell you that you want an LTR."
3. Dude: "Women keep expecting commitment from me, but I don't want to give it." Whisper: "That means they haven't earned it. An LTR-worthy girl is one that you WANT to keep around."

You're talking about case #1, but those are only about 3 percent. Girls who think there are more are mistaking case #3 and even case #2 for case #1 because they either need to work on themselves, or have been listening to other girls who need to work on themselves.

I have personally never met a relationship-worthy girl who was unable to get one due to lack of relationship-ready men.

But I have known hundreds if not thousands of girls who told themselves that "all men are players" rather than admit they were unpleasant to be around.

Worry less about finding men who are motivated to keep someone, and more about motivating a man to keep you.

I'm attracting men in better shape than me and not sure how to proceed

18 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

In general, "punching above your weight class" is very dangerous, because for every woman at every attractiveness level, there is some man that she is attractive enough to get sex from, but not attractive enough to get a relationship from.

These men are typically right below the men who won't even sleep with you.

Many women fall prey to this mistake, because most women won't sleep with any man they wouldn't want for an

SO. But they need to realize and remember that this is not true of men.

While some women have successfully "punched above their weight class" via good behaviour and a commitment to improve, and, indeed, if done right, this can get you a class of man you would not normally have a chance with, be aware that this a high-risk, high-reward strategy.

5'7 and 200 lbs, while it represents a big improvement over where you were, is still seriously fat. If a fit, attractive man is showing interest, you need to have a clear idea why before you "seize your good fortune", because what you're seizing may not be what you think it is.

A wise woman who is playing the long game must be aware that sometimes she needs to reject a man for being too good for her.

Learning how to speak skillfully/gracefully?

18 upvotes · 14 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

1. Always acknowledge what the other person has said before you begin responding.
2. When doing #1, express sympathy for the motivating emotions behind the point of view.
3. Then, when you express your opinion, "own" it, using the words "I think", or "I feel", or "I believe", rather than stating it as if it were an uncontroversial fact.
4. Explain the motivating emotions, goals, and priorities behind your belief when you express it.

I hate myself because of my high n-count..advice?

18 upvotes · 30 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

My issue is that I slept around a lot before I discovered TRP. Including my boyfriend, my n-count is 8

That is very high for 19.

only had oral sex with

Doesn't matter. N-count matters because of psychological reasons, no physical ones. If you did stuff, it counts.

It wouldn't bother me as much if my boyfriend's n-count was higher

Nope. His count doesn't matter. Life is unfair like that.

This brings me so much distress, and I so wish I could go back to my 15 year old self and scream, "SAVE YOURSELF FOR THE MAN YOU'RE GOING TO MARRY!" but alas, I cannot travel back in time.

The world is indeed full of 30 year old women who want to punch their 20 year old selves right in the mouth.

I'm actually tearing up a bit as I write this..any help?

First, the bad news: NOTHING can fix this. You are not a jar of pickles. You cannot get unscrewed.

We actually had casual sex before he asked to be his girlfriend, but ugh, I just regret it so much.

No. That's the only good move you've mentioned so far. A man might learn to live with a high n-count, but if he ever finds out that you made him wait longer or work harder than other men... {insert your favorite metaphor for the apocalypse here}.

I just regret it so much. I wish I could have just slept with only him, as he deserves so much.

Gotta hold onto this one, then.

You cannot repair this aspect. What you can do is work on other things to make yourself a better deal.

You cannot change the fact that you gave yourself to other men easily. You can only make sure he's getting a better version of you than the one they got.

Work. Be prettier. Be nicer. Be less trouble. Be more fun. Treat him with more respect. Do kinky things for him in bed that you never did with anyone else.

The only way to make him feel like a winner is to improve yourself so if your old flings could see you, they'd envy him for getting the improved version.

Do females use weed/pot smokers as their orbiters? + little story.

18 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

If you provide, you are a provider. What part of this did your dumb ass not understand?

At least you learned.

If you are providing drugs to a girl, explicitly make her whore herself to you for them. Because girls who take drugs are trash, they know they are trash, and if you treat them like anything else, that just tells them you are a loser.

Google memo guy Sanity Sunday

18 upvotes · 28 August 2017 · /r/MensRights

Your statement would be more compelling if you had read what he wrote, rather than what others said about it.

Plate got pregnant, says she will get an abortion tomorrow

18 upvotes · 4 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

Said it was drippage after anal sex. We have only had protected sex vaginally.

It's not yours.

Don't pay her shit.

Who killed Marriage 1.0? (Trigger warning: dry theory)

18 upvotes · 13 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

In fact, they are all responses to the dissolution of marriage culture.

Welfare because promiscuous women are having children outside of marriage (which they are doing because they're horny at 14, but can't get married until 25).

Contraception to avoid having children because they are ready for sex but not ready for marriage.

Women in the workplace because one income can no longer support a family until people are much older.

Cultural acceptance of female promiscuity because you have to accept what everyone is doing. No one's going to keep her legs shut until 28.

Getting the Sunday Sads hardcore when I part from my SO

18 upvotes · 7 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is not clingy.

Because it's not cognitive anxiety. It's hormonal.

You see, when you are infatuated with someone, you release endorphins in response to their presence.

"Endorphin" is short for endogenous morphine.

In other words, you're a junkie. And you're depressed and anxious because you can't get your fix. You're in withdrawal.

This is okay... you're supposed to be a junkie right now. Your body does this for a reason. And you're not supposed to be stoic about it, either. Stoicism is attractive in a man. Emotional openness and expressiveness is attractive in a woman.

What you need to do is not demand his presence when he can't be there. And trick your nervous system into responding as if he were present so you're not miserable.

- Steal some of his dirty laundry and sleep with it. Smell is strongly linked to memory.
- Keep photos of him around.
- Use brief text or phone contact if you can get it.
- Etc.

Your brain doesn't really know the difference between seeing, hearing, or smelling him, and him being present.

What would be your reaction if 90% of men in society absolutely refused to get married?

18 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have never seen us as adversaries.

I think you've actually pointed out the real problem there.

It takes two to tango, but it only takes one to start a fight. From men's point of view, women, collectively, have started a fight with men. They did it not only by voting for politicians whose policy was "everything for women, and nothing for men, because they're privileged and invulnerable"... but also by taking advantage of those policies.

Women, collectively, cannot just now start saying "why can't we all just get along?", because once you've punched someone in the mouth two or three times, "can't we just talk about this like reasonable people?" is no longer an option.

You, personally, do not see men as adversaries, but women have been treating men like adversaries for at least four decades now. (Arguably longer. Hell, the first thing women did when men gave them the vote, was take away men's beer.) Which means you have entire generations of men who have never known anything but hostility from women.

And you have entire generations of women who have never known any other social plan that "women get all the cookies, and are not accountable for anything".

So when you tell them they have to make concessions to regain men's trust, they throw a tantrum. Because they think they are being told to give up what they own, not to give back what they stole.

So the solution to this cannot take the form of negotiation, it has to take the form of men going on strike.

Conversations like this with you are interesting, but ultimately futile, because even if you, personally, are willing to sit down and negotiate in good faith, your sisters will never listen to you.

"What, I can't have half his stuff if our relationship doesn't work out? Unfair!"

"What, men get to have reproductive rights like I do? Unfair!"

etc etc etc. I could make a list as long as the endurance of my fingers.

So whatever theoretical solution we settled on here, as a thought experiment, it will never be more than that. Because the moment you advocate one single concession to the situation women find themselves in, they'll call you a traitor, or laugh in your face, confident that their prince will come.

Basically, this is not going to get solved without a few generations of single mothers and cat ladies. Because women never believe in the existence of danger so long as men are protecting them from it. Only when they lose that protection do they understand.

Things are simply going to have to get worse before they can get better.

asked my gf for a bj she said "help yourself out", what is the appropriate response?

18 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

Bad advice. It sounds petty and bitter. Never let a woman feel like she's gotten to you.

Why do ForeverAlone men fail with women: bad luck or lack of effort?

18 upvotes · 16 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why do ForeverAlone men fail with women: bad luck or lack of effort?

Neither. It's lack of knowledge. They are expending a great deal of effort doing the wrong things.

Girlfriend of two years says she only loves me as a friend

18 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

You have oneitis.

She is a whore, and she is banging some other dude, maybe two or three. And you don't see it because you have oneitis.

Woman Causes Accident, Puts Children In Danger, And It's All My Fault - AWALT

18 upvotes · 20 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In Russia, you invade shitty country.

In America, shitty country invades you.

Is being bigger worth it?

18 upvotes · 8 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

http://vignette3.wikia.nocookie.net/heman/images/3/3d/Transparent_skeletor.png/revision/latest?cb=20150910213953

?

New to sub. Saw something on r/TheRedPill that concerned me.

18 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Adults respond to being called childish by laughing it off and demonstrating otherwise.

Children respond to being called childish with "Duh! But I'm having fun... wheeeeeee!".

Surly teenagers respond to being called childish by throwing a tantrum and demanding respect.

A Neckbeard Manifesto - my thoughts as a neckbeard as a response to that one incel thread.

18 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You have a right to eat, but not a right to be fed.

No one owes you food or sex just because you need it. You do, however, have to the right to go out and pursue what you need without others stepping in to prevent you from doing so.

This is definitely a hard pill to swallow, but I am doing it.

18 upvotes · 18 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That is what you should focus on.

One of the dangers associated with first learning TRP techniques for being attractive is that young men sometimes just swap in "success with girls" as a pillar for the ego, instead of "being a nice guy".

This just gives them a whole new way to feel inadequate. Because at first, you're not going to get laid. You need more practice to get results.

And when you feel bad because you can't make this stuff work, you simply become outcome dependent in a new way. Instead of being desperate to impress girls because you're lonely and horny, you're now desperate to impress girls because you want to rack up wins and prove how awesome you are.

And of course, girls can still smell the outcome dependence, and stay away in droves.

Here's your homework assignment for the first few months of college: * Do not spend any money on a woman who hasn't already sexed you. * Do not do any favours for women unless you are repaying one already done for you. * Do not do anything for a woman that you wouldn't do for a man you'd known for the same amount of time. * Do not have sex with any woman except on your terms.

Will this lose you "opportunities" to get laid? Yes! But you need to regard those "opportunities" as having little value. Which means you need to throw some away, sometimes.

When you catch yourself wanting to make a concession, because you're afraid of losing a "chance" at pussy, recite this in your head.

I am no one's dog. I may not always be the toughest man, or the most powerful, or the sexiest, but I am my own man. A free man, no matter how unremarkable, is more to be envied than the most accomplished slave in the world.

Mattress Girl just made a porno...and called it performance art.

18 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The way to understand this is that Marxism-Leninism, like most other political philosophies peddled by manipulators to spurgs, a means of control.

The group you wish to promote, you cast as the proletariat. The group you wish to condemn, you cast as the bourgeoisie.

Mattress girl is also using Marxism-Leninism in the same way the Bolsheviks did. The difference is that she casts herself in the role of proletariat because she is a woman, while the Bolsheviks would cast her in the role of bourgeoisie because she is an American. Marxism-Leninism, repackaged as "socialism", then repackaged again as "progressivism", is simply a paradigm for creating any narrative where you do anything you want to your enemy group by casting them in the role of oppressor.

It is a do-anything narrative designed to have different rationalizations of victimhood plugged into it.

First "Plus Sized" model to be featured in Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Issue

18 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I disagree. Twenty minutes' viewing every morning WILL get your ass to the gym, rain or shine.

Can red pill men "fall in love"?

18 upvotes · 12 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're confusing "falling in love" with "loving someone".

These two things have nothing more in common than the fact that we have unwisely chosen the same word to refer to both.

"Falling in love" is infatuation. It happens very quickly, often for trivial reasons. Redpill-based sexual strategy advises us to avoid this. It is closely related to oneitis, leads to beta behaviour, and so on.

"Loving someone" is emotional investment. It grows slowly as a result of shared experiences and trust. It is a cornerstone of a healthy emotional life.

To me the best the RPer can hope for is to have some sort of emotionally-manipulated sex pet.

You sound a little like our stalkers over at TBP, here. Everyone influences everyone else. We call it "persuasion" when we want it to sound benign, and "manipulation" when we want it to sound evil.

The only way for "true love" to exist is to take your hands off of the puppet strings.

What people call "true love" is infatuation, which is really fake love. It may feel wonderful for a while, but so does heroin. By pretty much the same chemical mechanism.

A healthy RP-based mating strategy regards love as something you build, not something you find.

My brother is getting married, How do I introduce him to TRP because he is beta, white knight, NAWLT, Heil FemiNazi?

18 upvotes · 8 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't. We are not a religion. We are not looking for converts.

You can help someone if they have a problem. You cannot help them if they are their own problem.

They have to take the first step.

Woman catches 2y BF cheating on her, goes on a rage on him. The catch? She had cheated before, but apparently her cheating was justified and his isn't!

18 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's heartening to see her getting torn up in the comments.

You can't train a woman not to hamster, but you can train women to police each other.

Fight Fat Acceptance, Make Fatties Sad With Math

18 upvotes · 2 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sugar. The bitter truth.

Love him or hate him, he's Alpha as fuck. "Give it to me. You dumb motherr, I'm the Commander-in-Chief of the United States of America. The buck stops here. Give me the damn number."

18 upvotes · 5 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why ever not?

I used to think we needed to push feminists back. Now what I think we ought to do is give them enough rope to hang themselves.

A Note on "Real" Alphas

18 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They're not even traits, they're habits.

Which is good news, because we can cultivate the behaviours that will get us what we want.

Why Good Girls Have Become Unicorns: A Response From A Unicorn

18 upvotes · 7 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That's not a unicorn. That's a land mine.

Joe Rogan dominates a feminist.

18 upvotes · 3 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Passing a shit test from a woman you want to fuck is different from winning an argument with someone from whom you want nothing but her absence.

I think he goes angry here because that's her tactic. She tries to intimidate people... and he shows her who she can and can't intimidate. I think he comes off as a bit too defensive at times, yeah. But her shit is far weaker.

The Archetypal Modern Woman

18 upvotes · 16 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Grey's Law: Any sufficiently advanced incompetence is indistinguishable from malice.

Red pill bitterness – A guest post from Tom Torero

18 upvotes · 14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before, and I'll say it again.

It looks like some manosphere writers are disappearing up their own asses. They became addicted to the rush, not just of getting laid, but of everyone thinking they were awesome because they got laid so much.

But when more people entered the manosphere, some broader issues entered the discussion... how divorce screws the average man, how our culture has lost respect for men, how taking at face value what women say about their desires is a terrible idea, etc.

They don't like this. They don't want to become part of a movement for social change, because in that movement, they would no longer be superstars.

And they don't want to make western society healthy, because they thrive, professionally and sexually, in a sick society. Their worst nightmare isn't a feminist society. It's a non-feminist society where the average man grows up with self-worth, confidence, and some game.

The reason that he is resorting to argumentum ad AMOG and the whole list of feminist shaming tactics is that he doesn't want the manosphere to expand beyond being anything but a "hot chick banging contest", so that he can win, because that's what he's presumably good at.

But "I want to bang hot chicks" is only one of many problems that men have. Will game help me if I am falsely accused of rape? Will game prevent the white knights in government from taxing away my money and giving it to single mothers? Will game give me reproductive rights like legal paternal surrender? Will game abolish selective service? Will game restore society's respect for men?

No, no, no, no, and no.

Respectively.

All Roosh has to offer me is game. He wants the manosphere to stay a small pond, so he can continue to be a big fish in it. He isn't playing for Team Men. He's playing for Team Roosh. So should you trust him? Only if you are a member of Team Roosh, because otherwise, he hasn't got your back.

He is a vulture raising his voice in favor of more desert, and teaching people to eat carrion. (An apt description of the level of selfish narcissism that our culture inspires in 8s, 9s, and 10s. Nevermind that anti-male societies like ours reduce the overall number of 8s, 9s, and 10s.)

Such men would burn the world if doing so meant they could be king of the ashes that remained.

Yeah, sure, MRAs sound whiny. But they're trying to fix the problem, instead of just having a big "end of civilization" party. If I had to pick who to keep between Roosh and GirlWritesWhat, it would be a no-brainer. Because I know who's got my back, and who wants to sell me a book.

15 Ways To Drive Men Wild – Even If You're Overweight

18 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This article boils down to:

- Make the best of what you have.
- Approach.

This will indeed get fat women laid, if they're not too horribly fat.

What it won't do is drive men wild. Want to drive us wild?

Get in shape.

Blue Beta -> Seduction -> PUA -> Red Pill -> MGTOW

18 upvotes · 18 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I used to look at it that way.

Now I think that not playing can be not just a response to losing, but also an objection to a rigged game.

I've lost all respect for the American Humanist Association

18 upvotes · 8 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

MRAs insist upon voicing their opinions on the issue

Oh, noes!

The 10 types of guys women have to choose from (what type are we, then?)

18 upvotes · 2 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

The One Type of Man These Women Can't Choose From:

1. Mr. Self-Respect. This is guy who realizes that he is a human being who is responsible for his own life. He insists on fair treatment from others, and avoids the company of those who view with with contempt, or as a means to an end. He has a lucrative job and makes lots of money if that's important to him, or he has an easy, pleasant job that pays enough to get by... but either way, the proceeds belong to him, and he doesn't spend them trying to buy affection from the unappreciative. He likes sex a lot, but he doesn't spend all his waking hours chasing it... because he knows how to get some when he wants it. Women who hold men in contempt often don't realize he exists, because he avoids them like the plague. He knows that dating women who blame an entire gender for their poor relationship skills is a losing proposition. He can most often be found in the company of other men, a woman prettier, classier, smarter, nicer, and better in bed than you, or by himself, because he likes spending time alone, and doesn't define himself through other people.

Feminists attack and misrepresent Mens Rights Movement (Fathers4Justice, National Coalition for Men, A Voice for Men, RegisterHer)

18 upvotes · 21 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

"As the feminist deity and all-round bullshit detector Suzanne Moore has pointed out, this [prisons being full of men] might have something to do with men like, doing more crime."

So does this mean that prisons being full of black men has mostly to do with black men doing more crime?

If the second statement is unacceptable and makes us uncomfortable, why shouldn't the first?

Dear MRA's : Stop Being Angry.

18 upvotes · 15 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Sidebar, please.

Here's an example of how and why many people believe that rape is everywhere... because their definition of rape includes every sexual misadventure.

18 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

An interesting contention. But you are assuming what you are trying to prove. This is referred to as "begging the question", or "argument by special pleading".

You do so when you say that I am "blaming the victim", and attempt to thus dismiss my argument.

However, I am arguing that a rape did not occur. If a rape did not occur, there can be no victim of said rape. Thus, you cannot claim that I am "blaming the victim" until you establish that a rape did occur.

Dismissing my arguments is not sufficient, but is necessary, for this.

Thus, you are trying to dismiss my argument, using a rhetorical construct that is only available to you once my argument has already been dismissed.

Special pleading, QED.

How do videos like this make the men of MensRights feel?

18 upvotes · 18 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Unfortunately, we get so many "concern trolls" in here that my first thought is that you might be one of them.

My second thought is "Why is this narrative being told to people who are not responsible for the injustices it describes?". A common tactic among the feminist crowd is produce a real injustice against women in the third world, then try to redirect the sympathy it generates onto first-world feminist causes.

My third thought is that I am seeing the sexism of selective distress, here. When one reaches into a sea of cruelty and injustice, plucks out examples featuring only female victims, and holds these alone up for inspection, one is lying in the same way that cameras can lie... by omission.

My fourth thought is that it is sad that I have reached a sort of "sympathy fatigue", where I have been commanded to feel sorry for the poor wimmins so often that I can no longer muster much of that feeling, only a vague, cynical suspicion that someone is attempting to manipulate me yet again.

One would like to be able, as a decent human being, to feel for anyone who has been hard done by. But when victims are only brought to our attention as part of a demographically skewed agenda, to react with sympathy and without thought is to make oneself a tool of that agenda.

My fifth thought is that I would like like to turn this tactic on its head by showing the distributors of the video this, and asking what they thought about it.

My sixth thought is that this is what they call oppression olympics.

My seventh thought is that they only call it that when the men stop forfeiting the all the events.

How do you decline sex without making husband feel rejected?

17 upvotes · 8 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you get skilled with your lips and tongue, you can bring a man to orgasm within a minute or three, without fail. This requires a certain amount of precision, but very little physical effort. You can do it when you are tired, without becoming more tired, especially if the two of experiment to find a position that's comfortable for both of you.

If you do this anytime he asks, no man in the world will feel hard done by, even if you only want penetrative sex occasionally.

It may take a little work to get him over the standard performative expectations that are put on males in our culture, and get him comfortable with accepting pleasure without having to reciprocate every time. However, if this hurdle can be dealt with, one of the great things about oral sex is that, being unilateral by its very nature, it is extremely effective at making someone feel loved.

Swallowing semen without hesitation also sends a very powerful acceptance signal to men.

If you can get him used to a routine of this, you will be constantly providing him, not only with sexual pleasure and satisfaction, not only with powerful messages of love and acceptance, but with constant reinforcement of the idea that lack of libido or energy does not mean lack of interest or love.

The Importance of Manliness.

17 upvotes · 7 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly.

Some questions are sincere requests for information that it is in your best interest to give.

Many others aren't.

[CMV] The Manosphere Consistently Gives Terrible Nutritional Advice and It's Hurting Men in the Long Term

17 upvotes · 12 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Even though I'm vegan now

I don't take dietary advice from people with eating disorders.

Discussing relationship deal breakers and the adult entertainment industry

17 upvotes · 31 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm a little bit puzzled, here. You didn't use the past tense and say "I worked" in the sex industry, you used the present tense and said "I work".

Then you said you were "monogamous" in your relationship.

So perhaps I'm not quite understanding what it is you do that you get paid for. Because presumably you are doing it with someone other than him. I'm not sure everyone would call that monogamy, and how many people would see it that way probably depends on what you are doing.

Since you are not in what most everyone would agree is a monogamous relationship, that means you cannot simply rely on the cultural zeitgeist for what the boundaries for your relationship are. You're going to have to negotiate them.

If he feels jealous of the other men you see for work, or you feel jealous if he wants to go to other sex workers, then you're going to need some sort of understanding that everyone can live with, and you're going to have to be able to communicate about what that is going to look like.

Obviously, talking about how you feel jealous is a good first step, but you will also need to be open to hearing about his feelings of jealousy. And if he doesn't have any, then yours may not make much sense to him, especially if what he is doing with other women is what other men are doing with you.

A good way to prevent this from becoming an argument is to start out by asking about his feelings (if your work makes him jealous, etc), because then when it comes time to talk about yours, you have already validated him and shown caring.

Is my pair bonding affected by promiscuity if I never enjoyed the sex?

17 upvotes · 10 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I understand that promiscuity hurts the ability to pair bond in women

Nope, that's backwards.

Women are promiscuous because they are not good relationship material. High partner count is a trailing indicator of unsuitability.

Increasing RMW from natural RPW

17 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Career does matter!

This needs rephrasing in order to understand the why of male priorities.

An appropriate rule would be: Do not be expensive to date. It makes little difference whether you are gold-digging because you are entitled and selfish, or because you have 100k in student loan debt and a degree in Fine Art, and don't want to "sell out" and be a graphic designer.

Men wish to be appreciated as individuals, not as convenient sources of financial support. If you are broke and expecting him to pay your bills, that's bad for him. But if you have a high-flying career that takes priority over him, and increases your expectations, that's bad for him, too.

Because according to our cultural lexicon, what's yours is yours, and what's his is "ours", so he knows he's never going to see a dime of that money. And if you, as a couple, break that rule, he knows you will lose attraction to him because in our cultural lexicon, "he isn't the majority income earner" means "he can't take care of himself."

Kissed a transgender woman accidentally

17 upvotes · 27 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

You get a sneak preview of my next article:

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1408>

You Cannot Control Her

17 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You cannot control her.

Yes you can.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8EwcYwax4Oo>

What a whole year of TRP does to you – how I slept with my first MILF

17 upvotes · 12 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy shit, people are reporting this as "fake"?

We really must have a lot of readers who do nothing but read. You have to go out and talk to girls, people.

I read "The Married Man's Sex Life" and I tried saying no to what I thought was a "fitness test". It backfired

17 upvotes · 27 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

This question, and every answer I've seen so far, is clownishly stupid.

Of course she's going to get mad if you've been her compliant little bitch for years and you suddenly stop.

And... so what? Let her get mad. It's part of her adjusting to the new reality. Either she will or she won't.

How to NOT argue with feminists.

17 upvotes · 11 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

The purpose here is to start readers thinking about getting out of a reactive mindset, and into an analytical one.

Not, "she is spewing communist bullshit, how I effectively counter it?", but "she is spewing communist bullshit, what does this tell me about her needs, feelings, and motivations?".

Best replies to "I'm not easy"

17 upvotes · 31 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

"Easy to... what exactly?"

(some answer about sex)

"So we're talking about sex already? Okay. I like to be on top."

Why do Red Pillers fetishize traditional masculinity?

17 upvotes · 4 August 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why do Red Pillers fetishize traditional masculinity?

Because women do.

Things like this lead me to believe that Red Pillers are in fact crypto-tradcons.

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/4dyok7/avoiding_the_tradcon_trap/

I thought I wanted a unicorn.

17 upvotes · 14 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

If she would do anything for you, that includes learning to share.

We're Right and You're Wrong

17 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Learning to be a good person entails actively trying to not be shallow because you realize that it is shitty to treat people differently because of superficial characteristics beyond their control. Before the pill, I thought that all thinking people who weren't assholes felt this way.

We created TRP as a "moralization free zone" precisely to get away from this kind of thinking, so that we could focus on the facts.

But this idea is demonstrably wrong on rational grounds alone. Consider:

If I treat girls differently because they are fat or slender, this idea would say I was behaving "badly". But if being fat is not under their control, then where is the evidence that my reaction is under my control?

If they suffer from Compulsive Cake Eating, then do I not also suffer from Compulsive Thin Girl Dating?

How do we decide what's under someone's control and what isn't? How would we devise an experiment to test such a thing?

[25m] my girlfriend[24f] told me she had only slept with 3 guys, her best friend[24f] blurted out that they slept with a guy every city in Europe they visited

17 upvotes · 8 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is she has a very nice ass and likes girls, so the sex is awesome

This is a bad reason to promote to LTR.

When you promote a girl to lock down a steady source of good sex, you are acting and making decisions based on scarcity mentality. Your best course of action is to behave as if you can get a girl for sex anytime you want one... regardless of whether or not this is true.

I did not promote FunSize to the point where she is actually living in my house because she is good at sucking cock. I did so because she is always well-behaved and obedient, whatever I do is more fun with her along than with her absent, and whenever I have a problem, she is sometimes part of the solution, but never part of the problem.

This girl might or might not cheat on you, but your problem is bigger. A girl who is just good at sex, is a sex girl. To be a relationship girl, a girl has make you want the relationship bits. She has to enhance your life. Otherwise, you are giving away your value too cheaply.

Just as girls are not vending machines into which you insert attention coins until sex falls out, you are not a slot machine where girls pull the sex handle until they win the relationship prize. You have to get sex by making girls want sex, and girls have to get relationships by making you want one.

What you need to do is read the Bitch Management Hierarchy again... and consider long and hard whether this girl has really earned her way to LTR. Personally, I can't say, because I haven't observed her, but the fact that she would even consider traveling alone when she is in a relationship makes me suspicious. This is not the behaviour of a girl who has found the man she wants to stay with for life, and is "all-in" on trying to make him stay.

A relationship-worthy girl might have a non-zero n-count (the modern world being what it is), but each "1" in that count should have been someone she planned on being the very last "1" she would add. If she is not striving for this, she's a plate or an FWB at most.

How to not hit the wall/ age gracefully?

17 upvotes · 22 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The wall is the age where the effect of your genes on your looks is surpassed by the effect of your behaviour on your looks.

The most important thing is to be willing to do what it takes to be the person you want to be.

Has anyone else looked back at their bluepill self and cringed? Semi-struggling at the moment

17 upvotes · 17 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

I realized I could've had sex super easily with this bitch

So what?

There are other bitches. Fuck the next one.

CNN: What if women went on a sex strike before the midterms?

17 upvotes · 4 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Why the fuck would you do that?

Look, believe whatever you want about the origin of the universe and if there is anyone in charge of it. Talk to people you can't see if you want. Live your life according to whatever principles you think best.

Just don't join a fucking religion. Religion is a blue pill for stupid people.

"Islam" literally means "submission". In reality it's submission to some asshole without an actual job who somehow gets paid to tell you what god wants. Which, by an amazing coincidence, is always exactly what's good for the dude that's doing the telling.

Status of the Appeal 10/11

17 upvotes · 12 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It does sound that way. Tends to make people's ears perk up a bit. But in order to make it sound sane and proportional, you have to experiment with viewing things in a slightly different way.

Most leftist political agendas are sold to voters as "using government action to solve X problem". Whatever X might be. And the rhetoric mostly focuses on the severity and urgency of the problem.

Well, instead, let's set aside the problems for a moment, and look at the solution. It's always pretty much the same thing... the state confiscates resources from some people, and spends them on someone else. We call this "socialism". And there can be a little of it, or a lot, but that's how it works.

So leftism is basically the application of the socialist model to a bunch of different problems.

Well, let's suppose that instead of asking "will it work?", or "should we do it?" (the typical questions), we instead ask a different question:

Which problems?

Or, more specifically...

Whose problems?

Because if you are always the person donating the resources, and never the person who receives them, then, for you, socialism is nothing but slavery with extra steps. And if you resist, well... the basis of socialism is compulsion. They don't go 'round to your house and ask nicely for a donation, and then fuck off if you say no. They take it. By force. And they're eventually going to shoot you if you keep resisting.

If we can imagine a hypothetical set of people who are never the recipient of socialist wealth redistribution, only the source, then, yes, socialists want these people enslaved or dead.

But does this hypothetical group of people exist? If so, who are they?

Well, if you read TRP, the answer is "probably you". I trust I need not explain my reasoning behind that one.

So, it doesn't really matter whether you think socialism can work, or whether you think some of the proposed projects are worthy. (If you think they are, don't vote: donate.) What matters is what these people are going to do to you if you give them power.

Do you feel lucky?

Status of the Appeal 10/11

17 upvotes · 12 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I am a self professed liberal

Still haven't seen the writing on the wall, eh?

It doesn't matter what your political beliefs in principle are. They want you dead or enslaved. The only question is when you are going to stop being their useful idiot.

I have an extreme jealousy of red pill men. It's honestly getting me down.

17 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Take a couple of deep breaths.

Now tell us how you came to have such a bad day.

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

17 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Hmmm, yes.

In fact, to carry this point further, how on earth are you getting your information about right-wing voters, anyway? From the media which is entirely owned by people who hate them? From your left-wing friends who hate them? From left-wing leaders who hate them and call them "deplorables" and "the dregs of society" and "fascists"?

When was the last time you willingly and knowingly had a conversation with one?

And what would you and your left-wing friends say about someone who:

1. Dislikes a demographic group they have no personal contact with?
2. Gets all their beliefs about that group from people who don't like them?
3. Wants to avoid personal contact with members of that group, and is "absolutely turned off" by them?

You folks have a word for people like that, don't you? A couple of them, in fact.

Dating a mgtow!

17 upvotes · 2 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

MGTOW is an acronym with so many different meanings that the fact that someone describes himself that way tells you nothing.

Best to ascertain on an individual level what it means to him.

Can you guys help me finalize my inner game?

17 upvotes · 13 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Ghetto black" is loser behaviour.

It's how people behave when they are losers, and it's how to behave in order to keep losing.

Think about it. Ghetto black is all about being a tough hardass who no one wants to make come along and make trouble for.

Well, who worries about having people come along and make trouble for them? People who regularly have someone come along and make trouble for them.

In other words, losers.

Ghetto blacks tell themselves that white people are soft and weak (mostly in order to make themselves feel better about being losers) by reason of the way white people don't act belligerent all the time.

Well, who doesn't act belligerent all the time? Somebody who isn't afraid of someone coming along and making trouble for them. Because it never fucking happens.

Successful white people are approachable, because in non-loser-world, power isn't about driving people off to avoid trouble, it's about making connections with people to have opportunities and allies.

You only switch to tough mode when you're around someone who doesn't act right and needs to be shown the door. Or put down like a mad dog.

The only people who need to see that side of you are losers who don't act right, and girls who just need a glimpse so they know it's there and they can feel safe.

Most Common Shit Test of them All - IHABF

17 upvotes · 9 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It does not matter whether a girl has a boyfriend or husband or is single. Because in every case, every girl has options.

Whether she wants you or not is a matter of whether she prefers you to her other options. This is true whether the "option" is her husband, or just that cute guy in the next cubicle at work... and you should treat these two situations the same.

Girls who are way into their SOs, and totally loyal, will shut you down hard, so if you're seeing IOIs, you're in play.

Women Marching Against Themselves

17 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This idea you have is similar to libertarians who want open borders because of "Freeeeeeeeedom!".

Your motives are noble, but your idea is bad, and the outcome would be disastrous.

Your utopia was created when the internet was barely a thing, in the late 80s and early 90s. It was called "Usenet". It was decentralized and rulerless and had completely open borders and free speech for everyone.

And it ate itself.

How? Why?

Every September, Usenet had an influx of new users, mostly kids who got internet access through a university account, who were unfamiliar with its customs and expectations. They would run about various newsgroups, posting inane crap and generally piddling on the floor.

This was annoying, but the existing user base far outnumbered these people, and, by the end of October, the new users had learned what was expected of them, and would toe the line, either voluntarily or through the pressure of taunts and shame.

Then, in September of 1993, AOL unexpected provided all of its users with access to the Usenet system. All of a sudden, a massive wave of new users entered the mix, so massive that they outnumbered the existing community. That community was suddenly a minority and could no longer even effectively teach, let alone enforce, the culture.

September of 1993 was the Eternal September, the chaos that never ended. Usenet is now nothing but spam and cobwebs.

This is the fate of your imagined noble experiment.

Anarchy only works with the ability to exclude troublemakers, or force them to assimilate.

A female coworker came back from holidays and I asked where she went, and another girl there intervened with "it's her fucking business....". How do you deal with disrepsectful shit like that?

17 upvotes · 10 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Pressure flip.

"Were you not hugged enough as a child?"

"Do you have a headache, or something? Do you need a nap? A juicebox?"

My boyfriend feels pressured to marry me.

17 upvotes · 20 November 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

One of the danger areas when dealing with men is overfocusing on the milestone instead of the goal.

You don't just want a wedding, which is a single event, and some legal forms.

You want a marriage. Which is an ongoing process requiring both parties' enthusiast cooperation.

That means if he feels railroaded, that is your biggest problem. Read this.

Why getting a girlfriend could be the right thing to do if you never had one

17 upvotes · 18 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

However, abundance mentality does not require the skill of plate spinning particularly.

Plate spinning is to abundance mentality what weight lifting is to strength. It's not the only way, merely the best.

Pussy isn't worth it because it isn't needed to survive.

We don't eat because we know we need to in order to survive. We eat because we're hungry.

We don't seek shelter in order to protect our core metabolic equilibrium. We do so because we are cold.

Overriding biological urges are overriding, whether they were instilled in us for survival, or for some other reason.

When sex isn't enough

17 upvotes · 29 October 2017 · /r/askTRP

So I'd consider myself a "chad"

Wrong. You aren't Chad. Not because "no one is attractive, ever", but because Chad isn't a person, or a category of people.

He's a metaphor. A metaphor for "the other guy who is attractive without having consciously learned game".

So you can't be Chad any more than you can "be" "man's inhumanity to man", or "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" or "a bridge too far".

If you think you "are" Chad, you're taking the metaphor too literally.

But...is actual affection beyond lust just something that we can't do anything about?

Okay, so you have oneitis for some chick, and you're not a orbiter because you fucked her, and can do so again, but she doesn't want a relationship (because she's a ho), and you do, because there's more to life than sticking your cock in vaginas... which you realize because you're no longer a thirsty loser.

Right?

Well, your problem, numbnuts, is that you have oneitis for a ho.

I can't teach you how to fuck that girl. I can only teach you how to make lots of girls want to fuck you. I also can't teach you how to make that girl infatuated with you. I can only teach you how to make lots of girls infatuated with you.

If you set out with one target in mind, you have already failed. Because no matter what you got, there's always gonna be some girl who wants no part of it.

Hell, I've been rejected for not being fat enough. Chick weighed like 95 pounds, had a thing for fat dudes, I shit you not.

What you need to do is cure your fucking oneitis.

Pussy is a Commodity.

17 upvotes · 15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Is that not just the teensiest bit dehumanising to women?

No, it isn't.

It's a whole lot dehumanizing to women.

What's your point?

So, boys(11-13) who are raped by a woman are either a "trembling little weak-kneed pansies" or "homosexuals", and are "hypersensitive pussies" for not being grateful. This is the kind of shaming male sexual abuse victims face all the time

17 upvotes · 9 April 2017 · /r/MensRights

One needs to draw a distinction between statutory rape and rape of a minor.

Statutory rape is only rape under law. That's why it's called "statutory". The minor consents, but we legally treat it as rape, because we have decided, as a society, by majority opinion, that we think that they will be psychologically harmed by this thing even if they consented to it, and therefore we wish to deter adults from it.

Literal rape is a different beast. It's just plain rape, whether the victim is 5 or 15 or 50.

So, I will accept, indeed I will argue, that many teenage boys do consent, and do want it. So do many teenage girls.

But we ain't talking about that. We are talking about people being forced or coerced into sex, and even people who like sex very much aren't very likely to go for that.

So we can debate what the penalty for statutory rape ought to be, and whether we ought always to ignore the consent of a minor. (I protected, and to this day protect, the identity of a woman who touched me at quite a young age. I was into it then, and I do not retract that decision to this day.)

But anyone who says that young boys ought to consent to sex whether they want to or not... is clearly not worth taking seriously.

Donald Trump represents the type of IDGAF, Politically Incorrect, Alpha Male that Modern Feminism is petrified of, and that is the real, underlying reason for their disdain of him...He represents THE MISANDRY BUBBLE POPPING

17 upvotes · 16 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

There are so many women in this world whom you have only ever heard of because the cock they jumped on happened to be the right one. And there are so many more just like them whom you have never heard of because wrong cock.

Having a hard time swallowing the red pill?

17 upvotes · 10 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

Hold on. Who ever said you shouldn't love women? What the hell does that have to do with the red pill?

Hell, I love my girlfriend. I love my sister. I love my female friends. And I fucking came up with a lot of this shit in the first place. Life would suck if we couldn't let ourselves love women.

The only thing the red pill does with that is to underline the principle of do not let your love for a woman blind you to her nature.

I love my girlfriend. But I know better than to show weakness around her. Because she is still a woman, and her love is built on a foundation of respect. I love my sister. But I know better than to expect her to do anything in a crisis except cry. Because she is still a woman, and she built to be demonstrative rather than stoic.

When you accept female nature for what it is, you stop being angry at them for not being men's brains inside female bodies. Then you can love them as they are, not hate them because you want the wrong things.

German model fined 24,000 Euro for false rape accusation

17 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/MensRights

She was fined for committing perjury. The video evidence showed she lied on the stand.

Work Orbiter taking LTR out for dinner this weekend and I'm triggered

17 upvotes · 18 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Basically they play games all the time, tease each other. They have a bet going on now about some vote that is supposed to happen within her job and the bet is how their boss will vote, either for the measure or against it. That's all cool but she told me The "loser" of the bet has to take the "winner" to a very fancy 5 star restaurant after work this weekend.

Were you dropped on your head as a child or something?

Relationship is over.

The only reason you think it isn't is that a monkey never lets go of the old branch until his other hand is on the new one.

Just learned that gf was raped by her step-dad

17 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

- Keep in mind the possibility that this may be a lie. Women lie for all sorts of reasons, and sometimes for no reason at all. Act as if you believe, but don't assume it's true.
- Bear in mind that real rape victims (not "victims" of SJW "rape") can vary from "traumatized" to "meh". The latter doesn't mean it's not true.
- Bear in mind that there is a difference between morally judging a rape victim and being ready to deal with that. Not being ready to play therapist in an LTR does not mean you are blaming her.
- You and only you can judge how worthwhile, honest, or trustworthy she is.
- Remember the Bitch Management Hierarchy. Sob stories, even if true, do not jump a woman up the ladder. Nothing she can possibly say is a substitute for observed positive actions over time.

I realized something about myself and apologies today. (Long)

17 upvotes · 7 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I strongly disapprove of "the STFU method".

While TRP theorists are pretty unanimous that male-led relationships work better and are healthier, STFU is not a good way to support a leader.

A leader's responsibility is to make decisions that balance the needs of the whole team, not just him.

A follower's responsibility is to communicate enough information to her leader to allow him to effectively do this, not just keep silent and blame him when she's unhappy.

Reading this, I can tell that the two of you are not communicating effectively.

- You are withholding information about your emotional state because you are embarrassed that it makes little sense, or that you can't articulate a reason.

- He cannot take this information into account when speaking to you, because he doesn't have it.
- Now you are sad and upset because he's speaking to you in a way that ignores how you feel.
- And you become sullen, withdrawn, and uncommunicative.
- Which makes him angry.
- Which makes you more upset.

And so on.

You are withdrawing because you are embarrassed about appearing childish or foolish.

This is a mistake. Men do not love women for being super-competent, independent, and rational. Men love women for being innocent, joyful, empathic, and making men feel needed and important.

https://www.reddit.com/r/RedPillWomen/comments/1krml5/ponderings_on_maturity/

Stop trying to avoid looking childish or foolish. It will not make you one bit less attractive to your mate.

- It is not his job to "fix" your emotions.
- But he needs to know what is up with you, in order to do the things that are his job.
- Tell him what's up with you.
- Make it clear that you don't expect him to wave his magic wand and make it all better.
- Make it clear that if you figure out what is bugging you, you will tell him instead of expecting him to guess.

You are on a team. That team has a captain.

Making demands on the leader is acting like you're supposed to be the leader. But not sharing information with the leader is acting like you're not on a team.

Stop white-knuckling it and talk.

Plate Posted Pictures of Slit Wrists on FB

17 upvotes · 13 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

I recommend immediately nexting any girl who threatens or attempts suicide.

Female dating advisor shares why women can't find a Good Guy.

17 upvotes · 23 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Wrong.

Women don't eat bananas because they are there. If they really wanted an avocado, they'd look for one.

If someone does something over and over and over again, consider the possibility that this is what they want to do.

If bananas are flying off the shelves, and you can't sell an avocado, grow bananas. Duh.

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

17 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

MY thoughts are that this conversation is awesome, because it is excellent at rustling your jimmies.

TRP doesn't give men what they want. It just convinces them that they don't want it.

17 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

Often the reason blue pill men fail with women is because they had no father, or a weak father who might as well have been absent, and so they learned about female love from their relationship with their mother.

Which teaches all the wrong lessons.

You see, women are capable of non-judgmental, unconditional, pure, timeless, unbreakable, all-conquering love. In fact, they are programmed to feel it.

... for their children.

So these blue pill men learn to expect an idealized kind of love that women only feel for their offspring, never for their men.

The kind of love women can actually feel for men is never unconditional. It can be so intense that she would crawl over broken glass to be with him, but it is never unconditional; it is felt only when she respects him. In most cases, a son will never lose his mother's love no matter how much weakness he shows or how much he disappoints her, but a man will lose his woman's love, no matter how intense, if he loses her respect.

This is one of the reasons why men with Dark Triad mothers have an advantage when dealing with women... they have never been loved unconditionally by anyone, and thus have had no early bad example to learn bad expectations from.

[Mod] Spam policy and the shameless self promotion issue

17 upvotes · 9 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Because the idea of "changing" or "saving" society carries with it many things which are counter to our mission.

Self-sacrifice, appeal to sympathy, caring about popular opinion, and so on.

"Creating a movement" is how bitches get things, because bitches have the sympathy card to play, and daddy state will white knight them all day long. If men want change, men have to change things like men... not by appealing to others, but by forcing others to appeal to men.

We don't ask. We don't even demand. Either would be submitting to the frame of our polluted culture, failing a society-wide shit test. What we do is withdraw. We stop giving and keep our value for ourselves. We go on strike. We check the fuck out. We set down our guns and shovels.

This is how men get change. Not by going to others, but by making others come to us. When enough men check out, bitches start to appreciate men again.

A woman does not understand the value of men until she is cold, hungry, or afraid.

The marriage strike is already a thing. MGTOW is already a thing. The death of marriage is already a thing. We are already the movement we need to be.

Can a girl doing favors/nice things for a guy make up for her lack of physical attractiveness?

17 upvotes · 16 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

i don't find anything attractive about fake "boobs" and "ass".

You only notice them when they are done badly.

"...And Candy Cheats Again"

17 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And this, class, is why /u/OmLaLa is distinguishing himself as a rising star around here.

I usually advise hard nexting women who see you as a beta. Because you're starting from less than zero. It's better to begin with a fresh woman. In fact, I write snarky comments about how impossible it is to dig yourself out that hole. But of course, that's not really true. Like so much around here, it's an colourful exaggeration intended to instruct. It keeps novices away from the oneitis who had them on a leash.

When you get good enough, you start to realize the true power of standing your ground. 90% of game is standing your ground. Women take their cues for what is acceptable from others. Women will accept just about anything you act unashamed of, and all but murder you for the slightest annoyance if you apologize for it.

- If your girl "catches" you eyeing another woman, and you protest your "innocence", she'll soon have you not allowed to talk to other women, including all your female (former) friends.
- If your girl "catches" you eyeing another woman, and you confirm her suspicions and then dress her down for daring to try to control you, you can soon have her helping you pick up other chicks for threesomes.

Same woman.

/u/OmLaLa had no advanced techniques here. No special trickery. Just an abundance mentality and no fear of "losing" her. When you can discard a woman with no distress at all, standing your ground is easy.

Free yourself of the desire for her in particular. Then free yourself of the desire to score or "win" by getting her. Free yourself of the desire to be a "Chad" instead of a "Chode".

Learn to regard standing your ground as a higher form of victory than getting laid. If you can do that, I promise you, you will never be thirsty again.

Is AWALT essentially the male version of #YesAllWomen?

17 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

AllGunsAreLikeThat: Treat every gun as if it's loaded. Keep it pointed in a safe direction. You are responsible for your own safety.

YesAllHumans: You guns are bad. Stop being loaded. You are responsible for our safety.

Bluepillers and Redpillers: What is your favourite thing about women

17 upvotes · 30 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What, you want me to generalize about women? Instead of treating them all like special unique individuals?

why do redpillers shame hypergamy?

17 upvotes · 1 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

a lot of redpillers talk as if women are hypergamous to the extent that a woman can never be faithful to a man and will eventually cheat. it seems as though redpillers dont like hypergamy for this reason, and therefore shame it

Nah. You're thinking that we're trying to get women to stop slutting it up. We're not. We're not talking to women at all. We're talking to other men. Trying to warn them about wifing up a slut.

You don't tell scorpions not to sting. You tell people to shake out their boots before putting them on.

LMR so I took her home. Thoughts?

17 upvotes · 17 April 2015 · /r/askTRP

You didn't do a proper freezeout.

The way to do a freezeout isn't just to withdraw sex. Bitches don't care about loss of sexual opportunities. Dick is available for free. The only reason bitches would care is if you already have her in the mode of thinking your dick is special. But then you won't be getting much LMR.

No, the way you do a freezeout is to withdraw attention.

Here's what you should have done differently:

I said "Ok", put music on and started to drive her home.

Should've shrugged and started ignoring her. Play with your smartphone. Make her ask you to take her home. Yes, that's going to be awkward as fuck with you sitting there playing with your phone and ignoring her. But that's the point. You want it awkward. Just make sure she feels it more than you do.

On the way I didn't speak much but I was friendly.

Shouldn't have been friendly. Should've been bored.

When she was about to get out, she asked me if I was annoyed to which I replied "Ofcourse not!"

What kind of weak-ass shit was that? Here's what you say. This one is the golden panty-peeler, so pay attention.

"Nah."

Just "nah". No explanations, no effort to smooth things over, no tells, nothing for her hamster to chew on. Deliver a good "nah", and you can make a bitch obsess for days over what you meant and how you felt.

Getting emotional feedback is a reward to bitches. Make them earn it.

Why do women hold out (typically beta but not always) men in long term relationships sexually?

17 upvotes · 24 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's not really a question we ask ourselves. The topography of the male mind is far different than you imagine.

Not your fault, of course. You've been living in a culture that not only doesn't help you to understand men; it actually tells you there is nothing to understand.

When I am seeing a woman, I don't form some abstract plan for whether we have a future or not, based on whether or not I think she is "like this" or "like that".

I definitely don't decide to dump her because she was overcome with raw animal passion and tore several of the buttons off my shirt getting it off me when we got back to my place.

What happens it that when my sexual passions have cooled, I have a new perspective on whether or not she's fun to be around, feminine, empathetic, warm, giving, considerate, and so on.

In other words, when I no longer have an erection, am I looking for excuses to get myself out the door, because her annoying shit suddenly got a whole lot more annoying? Do I call her back soon, because I want to talk to her again, or do I procrastinate about it, because the whole operation was kind of a chore?

If you were to withhold sex as part of some kind of plan for how you wanted me to see you, that would be annoying. It would make your company less pleasant. It would that your passion for me was firmly leashed by your intellect, suggesting to me that it was a much weaker and tamer animal. I would probably replace you with a more pleasant, more open, more available, more invested option, regardless of whether I hung around long enough to get laid.

You're sitting in front of very large control panel, dear, and yet you're trying to find the perfect setting on one little knob over in the corner. Relax, the "sex delay" setting doesn't actually do much of anything unless you set it way too high.

Try the row of slider switches over there labelled "femininity". Or the "consideration" dial. Those switches marked "playfulness", "cheerfulness", and "enthusiasm" have a couple of settings that will help.

Found this RP Gem on answers.yahoo.com

17 upvotes · 4 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women aren't designed to be happy.

I understand the sentiment behind your rant, but you're wrong.

Women are capable of happiness, and, indeed, under certain conditions, it is very easy to keep a woman happy. Unfortunately for both us and the modern first-world women, those conditions start in childhood, and so we are now surrounded by women who are incapable of happiness.

Which, I suspect, is what you are really talking about.

The Sexodus, Part 1: The Men Giving Up On Women And Checking Out Of Society

17 upvotes · 5 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Men always want to go to bat for women, and that shit fucks me off. It must be genetic or some shit because I see men in TRP doing that shit too "don't be mad at tuh womenz brah, u just bitter OK? I get LOADSA PUSSY, you gotta lift and man up brah, stop being bitter brah" I get fucking tired of that retarded trite dumb testosterone monkeys spit. Fucking retards who lift a bit of metal and fuck a bit of pussy who are totally ignorant to what's going on, but think they're a boss because they can get laid and are constantly high on fucking TREN and a post workout buzz.

This is known as Argumentum ad AMOG.

"Do you have a problem? Well, sir, I do not have that problem, because I am awesome. Therefore, your REAL problem is that you are JUST NOT AWESOME ENOUGH. Now, shut up, or by continuing to complain, admit that you are not as awesome as me."

But society has a problem when you have to be awesome in order to avoid having a problem. If your "merely average" people live sucky lives, then your society is failing.

r/twoxchromosome thread - "I have a fear that my sexual history will come back to haunt me" GENTLE BE WARNED

17 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No ratio of me to her.

I look at ratio of partners to sexually active years. That tells me how long her average relationship lasts.

Attention -- All rapists and misogynists: Where do I hide the body? Alphas only.

17 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well, all the men already know.

And if any woman catches on that I'm not joking, the Patriarchy will just have her ~~killed~~ raped and then killed.

remember guys, money can no longer save the beta male

17 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Never bankroll a woman. It doesn't get you credit. It just becomes a baseline obligation which you are expected to never reduce or stop.

Never marry a woman. The legal environment has been redesigned to protect women from any possible negative outcome from marriage, while tolerating ANY negative consequence to you as acceptable collateral damage.

I have been a terrible first mate to my captain

17 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's not that I don't take care of him and what needs to be done around the house and work; it's more on an emotional level. I feel scared that he no longer has the wheel and that he might not be capable of steering the ship.

The instant I read your first sentence, I knew that I would either find this statement somewhere in your post, or that I would have to drag it out of you.

This is not a drift away from RP behaviour, but an overidealization of it, a lack of willingness to acknowledge messy and complicated reality.

Men are naturally leaders, but we are not perfect infallible invincible gods. We're going to make mistakes sometimes, or, in this case, get sick and be weaker than we usually are.

It's obvious that you would and should lose respect for a man who shows egregious and unusual weakness, but if you lose respect for a man when he gets the flu, your expectations for male dominance and toughness are far too high... there is no man who is not susceptible to viruses. You are being like that teenage boy who, instead of restricting himself to shaming actual fat women, has taken to calling any girl who weighs 121 pounds instead of 115 a "manatee".

Cut it out. You're a big girl now, and you need to deal with your desire for male leadership by acknowledging it, understanding it, and working with it, not blindly stumbling around after your feels, unaware of your own motivations.

TRP: One Question, One Answer: Extrapolate.

17 upvotes · 13 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Your place, in this case, is "out of the scope of the discussion".

The advice you give needs to stand on its own merits, not be artificially inflated with DHV attempts by the speaker.

SALON.COM – "5 Ways America Tells Boys Not to Be Girly"

17 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

School aren't emasculating boys, American masculinity is dehumanizing them.

Soooooooooooo.... a boy is human only if he isn't masculine?

You Really Can't Make This Shit Up (Part 2)

17 upvotes · 1 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I fucked a girl with a boyfriend

So what? That just means she is disloyal. Monogamy is a contract between two people. Neither of those people is you.

No need to be defensive.

Dr Phil and the feminist inquisition

17 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You know what I thought when I heard about the feminists going after Dr. Phil?

I thought "Bravo, the rats devour one another".

It showed me that, just like in other cases there is no such thing as a "male feminist" in the minds of the female ones. There are only "allies" whom they have stabbed in the back, and "allies" with backs they haven't gotten around to stabbing yet.

Being both feminist and male is a bit like worshipping Cthulhu... you might not be the first to go, but, in the end, the power you serve will devour you as well.

Finally a voice of reason: Anthony Weiner's women aren't saints, sluts, or victims

17 upvotes · 5 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

A woman doesn't become a victim simply because an outsider can't understand the reasons for her decision.

About fucking time.

Did you know men gang rape women because they are secretly gay? That gay men & Feminism can never be allies because gays believe in "universal phallic access"? See such batshit crazy ramblings fro

17 upvotes · 23 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

The term "universal phallic access" is very clever. It deliberates obfuscates the line between that which is not forbidden and that which one has a prerogative to do.

By this doctrine, if I am not absolutely forbidden to do something in any circumstances, I am allowed to do it in all circumstances. If I am not forbidden to put my penis in every single woman, I am allowed to put my penis in every and all women.

One could as easily argue that abolishing white-only restrooms was promoting "universal negro access", and that the darkies will have access to your home! (and presumably your vagina).

Or that allowing me to drive my own vehicle promoted "universal car access", and would allow me to hijack a city bus and drive it to Wichita with a load of drugged-out hippies.

There's no reasoning with people like this.

Woman wants her husband to make more money. Frustrated he chooses to work a job he loves and play video games in his free time (when she's not around) instead.

17 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I feel embarrassed when I tell people what I do and what my husband does for a living.

This is the core of the issue. Her masculine-role accomplishments (her own solid career) do not soothe her ego, because she really wants feminine-role accomplishments (being married to an awesome guy and having awesome kids, etc). This is why she is ashamed in front of other women... because she is a woman, and as a woman, she has failed, even as she succeeded as a man.

If the feminists had been right about women, she (and women like her) would have been perfectly content to be the breadwinners while their men were homemakers. But they're not. It lasts a few years, and then they change their minds.

What's wrong with her is not that she wants a successful husband. That's perfectly okay. What's wrong with her is that she lacked the foresight to realize that from the beginning, and that she lacks the responsibility to own up to the fact that her situation is the result of her poor choices, not his.

Men Shun Match.com Events For Older Women

17 upvotes · 25 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You wanna know why some actresses (NOT Jennifer Anniston) remain attractive into their 30s and 40s?

Because they are waaay more attractive to begin with.

And, even more importantly, being attractive is their job. And they work at it like it's a job.

"Work at being beautiful like it's your job" is the best Red Pill advice one could give a woman that's about to hit the Wall.

See, age's depredations are inevitable, but the rate at which they happen is not constant. The women of today seem to have reacted to standards of beauty by trying to abolish the standards rather than live up to them.

They don't understand that we, as men, are unable to play along with this even if we wanted to. Those standards are encoded in our genes. They are not a matter of choice. We could no more start finding fat middle aged women prettier than slender, clear-skinned nineteen year old girls, than women could start preferring garbage collectors to pro athletes.

6 Harsh Truths that Will Make you a better person

17 upvotes · 17 December 2012 · /r/seduction

Makes me sad a little that the reason women like me is because I'm a successful, fit, employed talented guy instead of just a good person.

Why should it? You like girls because they are nice to look at, fun to be around, and smell like sunshine. Not because they are "good people".

Thats why I generally only care about the fruit they produce (melons).

Exactly. This is not wrong. This is the way the world must, and should, be.

Jenny McCarthy grabs Justin Bieber's ass and kisses him on the neck without consent. Can you imagine the reaction if a 40-year-old man had done this to an 18-year-old girl?

17 upvotes · 20 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

And the infuriating thing is if he punched her, everyone would be outraged that he had hit a woman.

Scam website allows anybody to post people as potential predators, offers name removal for $100. Site is full of men.

17 upvotes · 5 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Look, there's no captcha.

Looks like anyone could write a little greasemonkey script that would submit junk information with a randomly selected photograph, at a rate of thousands per hour.

Please, nobody do that.

Perhaps later on I will post an example of the sort of script you shouldn't run in this fashion.

Most people have the impression that Mens Rights equals Anti Womens Rights

17 upvotes · 4 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

I know it sounds rather silly, but wouldn't it be helpful to contain a short message along the banner to show that the negative image is totally untrue. I'm not the best at articulating things, but a simple message saying that you support female rights and mens rights.

No. We're not going to do that.

It's not that we don't like women. Most of us do. I love them.

It's not that we don't think women's rights are important. They are.

It's not that we don't think women's rights are urgent. Look at societies like Saudi Arabia, and one can see there's some work to be done.

But this is not the women's rights subreddit. "What about the women?" is a perfectly valid question. But this is not the place to answer it.

First, because it's the men's rights subreddit.

But, second, because we shouldn't, and don't, have to bend over backwards assuring everyone we are not misogynists. Like everyone else, we are entitled to that presumption. We should not have to preface everything we say with disclaimers about how we don't hate women, any more than Jewish forums should have to post disclaimers about how they don't kidnap Christian children and drink their blood.

A question about why men are scapegoated in our rape culture.

17 upvotes · 13 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Some insight/discussion as to why our society scapegoats men to the extent that they are prejudiced against and real solutions to the problem

Because humans are naturally inclined to protect and be sympathetic to women over men, and most political and social schools of thought are shaped by this.

You see, this is why traditionalist patriarchies and feminist movements are actually allies, despite what they themselves believe. They both have protecting women as a core goal... but they are allies who are having an acrimonious dispute about how to accomplish that goal.

Traditionalists wish to protect women by infantilizing them, defending them from responsibility by keeping them out of power, and making choices for them, but also for their benefit.

Feminists wish to protect women by empowering them as much as possible, regardless of the consequences to men and children, and then shifting responsibility for any bad outcomes or poor choices back onto men and children.

But the gender dialogue in our society is precisely this dispute, this argument between two schools of thought on how best to protect women. No advocate for men even has a place at the table, and no one is asking whether we should protect women at all. If we couple the fact that men have no advocate, with the fact we are hardwired to be more sympathetic to women, it's not hard to see why everything gets blamed on men.

Be warned, though. Once you have "taken the red pill", and can see anti-male bias, you begin to see that it is everywhere... and if you open your mouth too often, you appear fanatical to everyone else, to whom it is still invisible.

This was on my facebook. Apparently all men want is sex and to be lazy, and that is the end of our interests.

17 upvotes · 11 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

I don't have a big problem with this so long as we can joke about how women are stupid, selfish, and obsessed with shoes.

Forever Alone comes to reddit - Ask Us Anything

17 upvotes · 11 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Sedditor

Dude, I still play Elder Scrolls for days on end. Then I go get laid.

Elder Scrolls is awesome, and anyone who doesn't like me playing it can suck my left nut. (Because the right one is much too powerful for them.)

I think a lot of FAs think they have to change, be something they're not, in order to be attractive. Nothing could be further from the truth. They just have to be themselves without the fear and shame and self-doubt.

girlwriteswhat on Legal Paternal Surrender

17 upvotes · 7 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

She does make one logical oversight.

Girl, you reading this? When you attacked the idea that men have equal responsibility for preventing pregnancy, you kinda missed the point.

Doesn't matter if they do, or don't. It's a non sequitur, a total disconnect. If women cannot be forced into motherhood simply because they have, or share, the responsibility for preventing pregnancy, then why would it affect the issue if men shared that responsibility?

Why would the burden of a shared responsibility fall more heavily on men than women... regardless of whether that burden is shared or not?

Let me be clear, women: you have changed the arrangement so that there is NOTHING in it for me.

17 upvotes · 15 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

He had me right up until he started talking about some sort of invisible sky wizard.

Surfing the Whorely Yuga

16 upvotes · 25 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

As a younger man who's a kissless virgin, what's the point?

16 upvotes · 12 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

That post was very much how old school trp was.

Thanks for telling us all how "old school TRP" was. What would we do without you?

I'm not sure if you were around this sub in early 2017

Truly, you are some sort of ancient being.

Betas lose and alphas win.

So puncture your narcissistic bullshit sphere and get to work.

You are not at special greater disadvantage. You are just an ordinary little boy who hasn't done his homework yet.

I can't get over Redpill's (especially TRP's) treatment and attitude towards ugly women.

16 upvotes · 6 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Part of taking the red pill is acceptance of the fact that men are human beings, and are entitled to exist for their own good, instead of existing as a means for the health, happiness and prosperity of others.

This is the part you're having trouble with.

You're still seeing men as our culture typically does... as a sort of combination of all-powerful gods, with the power to bring justice to the universe, and servant automatons, whose role is create this justice for the sake of others.

Women don't like unattractive men.

Men don't like unattractive women.

That's what the word "attractive" means. When you are able to accept both permutations of this fact, then you will be able to use a clear view of the world to improve your own lot in life, by understanding what is "attractive", and working to achieve it.

You can either do that, or blame men for the fact that the universe isn't fair. Your choice.

I'm 15 want to be a housewife, I feel really isolated and everyone at school is bullying me

16 upvotes · 6 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Having things doesn't make you happy. Money doesn't make you happy. Pleasure is not happiness.

Happiness is contentment and inner peace.

Only two things in life create happiness:

1. A feeling of accomplishment.
2. Relationships with other people.

If you are wise enough at 15 to know this, then you have a huge head start, and head starts are important, because we don't have all the time in the world. Four score and ten years may seem like a long time, but it's not.

If you have a dream, no matter what it is, someone is going to try to stand between you and it. Someone is going to try to drag you down. Because that's what losers do. They try to make others join them in perpetual defeat.

That means you are going to have to fight, even if that fight is just believing in yourself when no one else does.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

16 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The point of the article has nothing to do with covid, your reading comprehension skills suck, and I don't think you're intelligent enough to make it worth my time to spoon feed you the actual point.

Good luck out there.

Women's dating/relational motivations are seen by mainstream society as more noble than men's, but they actually aren't

16 upvotes · 25 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

That's an interesting way of spinning "women expect to be paid for sex".

Struggling self-esteem

16 upvotes · 6 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men do not care about your station in life. They care about whether their experience of you is pleasant or unpleasant. I would rather be with a woman from a trailer park who treats me like a king, than be with a princess who treats me like I belong in a trailer park.

If you are pretty, kind, and approachable, men don't give a flying fuck how broke you are.

In general, having a self-image that is either too high or too low is bad. A healthy self-image is one that reflects our real accomplishments and value.

If you are too proud, you will not appreciate the things you have, and will reject good and healthy opportunities as "beneath you". But if you are too ashamed, you will not reach for the things you want, and will reject good and healthy opportunities because you believe they are beyond your reach.

How to advertise that I want the man to sleep with other women while I remember monogamous to him?

16 upvotes · 30 November 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I want to advertise this preference in order to make myself seem like a more appealing and attractive partner.

No. This is not a "selling point" for you. This is your sexual fetish. Just because this is a sexual fetish that most men would enjoy does not make it their sexual fetish instead of yours. It is socially unappealing and disingenuous to pretend that getting what you want is a favour to other people.

However, when you have strong sexual fetishes, it's a good idea to give early warning... you just have to have a good sense of when it is socially appropriate.

You don't lead with "I will let you fuck other women!", because that's disingenuous. It's not something you are doing for him, it's something you want him to do for you. Take responsibility for what you want.

You also don't lead with "I want you to fuck other women!". That's too blunt. It will turn men off... not because they don't like the idea (they do), but because if you lead with that too early, it indicates all sorts of worrisome things about your social skills and your sense of what is appropriate.

What you do is start with hints and progress to the truth.

- "I'm not really the jealous type" / "Do you find [female actress in the movie we are watching] attractive?"
- "What types of women do you find physically attractive?" (where you use the plural as a tacit acknowledge that all men are attracted to multiple women).

- Other things like pointing out attractive women to him when the two of you are out in public.

By this time, you will have weeded out any man to whom monogamy is a strict core value, or who is otherwise generally horrified by this idea.

Then, at some point the topic will come up (possibly with a little steering), and all you have to do is act somewhat embarrassed as you sheepishly mumble that you "think that's kind of hot". That display of embarrassment is a good idea even if you don't feel all that uncomfortable, because it prevents him from thinking that he is being subjected to some bizarre manipulative "loyalty test".

At that point, he will either quite like the idea (which, as you state, is probably pretty common), or be more neutral but willing to indulge you. Anyone who would be horrified is probably long gone by this point. After that, it's simply up to the two of you to figure out how you want to proceed. It's probably wise to take it slow... sexual fantasies are often much more extreme than actual tastes, to make up for the fact that they are fantasies.

Sip before you quaff.

With all that being said, I strongly recommend against women hiding or suppressing their sexual fetishes. These kinds of desires damage relationships when they go unfulfilled, and really damage relationships when they cannot even be acknowledged and expressed openly.

Yes, other women will try to shame you out of this. But they are not having your relationship. You are.

After getting with multiple 'unicorns', I've noticed that no matter what, when you get to truly know their personalities, they are literally all the same.... so how do some guys stay with an LTR for so long, don't you get bored?

16 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Okay, so you want a girl who is as smart as you.

Where are you meeting girls right now?

How Stripping Sparked my Conversion From BluePill to Redpill

16 upvotes · 20 April 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

And that, in itself, is one of the things what makes it bad for you.

You're defensive because you're ashamed, so much so that you're reacting defensively even to those who have no intent to condemn you.

Now consider a hypothetical future where a hypothetical boyfriend finds out about this and reacts. Would you act this way with him? And how might he feel about this?

You if expect strangers to walk on eggshells because you feel bad, what's that going to do to your ability to have a relationship?

Edit: In fact, you haven't told us the whole story. You're not just a former sex worker, you're a current sex worker. The very fact that you hid that shows you're ashamed. That's why you see condemnation where none exists.

Why is an opinionated woman a thing of repulsion?

16 upvotes · 28 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

It seems to have reached a point where I can debate or be perceived as argumentative.

But I'm not actually argumentative, dogmatic, and socially obnoxious. Oh, no. It's all those other people's fault.

They are just intimidated by a strong independent woman.

Here, let me ask RPW about it:

Why am I so awesome? Why does everyone who doesn't like me suck so much?

Past Abuse Makes Being Intimate With My Husband Hard...

16 upvotes · 27 February 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is going to be hard to hear, but you cannot change your behaviour by changing your thoughts first. Human brains don't work that way. You have to change your actions and let your thoughts follow.

This is why I teach men to "fake it 'til you make it", and ignore all the stupid advice that says "just act natural", or "just be yourself". In order to, for example, confidently talk to girls, a young man who isn't confident has to fake that confidence, even if he's dying inside, and just fucking do it. Then, slowly, the real confidence will follow.

If sex isn't psychologically comfortable for you (and it's understandable why that would be), the only way forward is to do it anyway, and get comfortable with it. Yes, that's hard. If it were easy, you would never have needed to ask this question.

Always do what the person you wish you were would do, and you will become that person in the process.

Why do you think women from Eastern Europe / Asia are better?

16 upvotes · 26 October 2019 · /r/askTRP

Came to say this. No girl is submissive unless your pimp hand is strong.

Next my wife? Easier said then done.

16 upvotes · 12 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Pook and Tomassi seem to tell me I'm wasting my time trying to right this ship and that it's a lot easier to start fresh with a new woman

They are right.

I'll do ya one further... Even Whisper, TRP's LTR expert, who has been with his main LTR himself for seven years, is going to tell you that you need to next this fucking whore yesterday.

I'm considering getting tattoos to make me appear more alpha. Is this a good idea?

16 upvotes · 3 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

Dumb idea.

This is cargo-cult masculinity. Alpha males tend to have tattoos because that is a side effect of being a risk-taker and a zero-fuck-giver.

But it doesn't work backwards. Having stuff printed on your skin will not make you a give-zero-fucks, low-anxiety kind of man.

Ever wonder why hipsters have lumberjack beards, lots of tattoos, and skinny toothpick arms? It's because muscularity requires sustained effort.

If you want to look like more of a man, be more of a man.

Postmodern Masculinity

16 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What works is historically and culturally contingent and as such subject to change without notice.

Yes. And?

Unfortunately nobody is allowed to pivot to anything deeper, because nuanced discuss on complex issues doesn't make the sexperts feel alfa.

Who's stopping you? I haven't allowed you to be shut down yet. And no one is going to unless they can convince me first.

What you seem to be on about is that none of the rest of us are interested in participating in your latest perseveration. Well, nothing's stopping you from persuading me, unless it's an inability to do so. So far there's a lack of demonstrable benefit from sticking my head in this particular bucket.

Did you ever wonder why people care about truth? Why we even invented the word?

The answer is that truth empowers. If you understand what's really going on, you can predict what will happen next. That's why we came up with the word.

In fact, that's what the word means. The truth is that which has predictive power.

If your truth can't predict anything, or empower anyone, it's not truth, it's just a plausible-sounding story. Just because you can explain everything you have seen in terms of your story, doesn't mean your story is true. To be truth, it has to predict, accurately, something you hadn't seen when you wrote it. Over and over again, for preference.

I have yet to see philosophy, psychoanalysis, or crackpot political theories accomplish anything other than to lure people who want to use their intelligence as a toy rather than a tool.

Show me something useful.

Surely it's obvious.

Doesn't every schoolboy know it?

Ends are ape-chosen; only the means are man's.

Papio's procurer, bursar to baboons,

Reason comes running, eager to ratify;

Comes a catch-fart, with philosophy, truckling to Tyrants;

Comes, a pimp for Prussia, With Hegel's Patent History;

Comes with Medicine to administer the Ape-King's aphrodisiac;

Comes, Rhyming and with Rhetoric, to write his orations;

Comes with Calculus to aim his rockets

Accurately at the orphanage across the ocean;

Comes, having aimed, with incense to impetrate

Our Lady devoutly for a direct hit.

Postmodern Masculinity

16 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Golly G do I want to build my understanding of women on a sad alcoholic or the founder of psychoanalysis?

You can build your understanding of women on the founder of homeopathy, dowsing, or astrology if you like.

Philosophy doesn't matter at all, and psychoanalysis only matters because you can charge suckers two hundred fifty dollars an hour to listen to them whine, if you have enough social proof.

Young bros only care about one thing, and that's... results.

It doesn't even matter if what we say about women is true in any sense of the word. It only matters if dudes who read it get more trim than they did before. The 21 convention doesn't offer that service, and Freud doesn't either. Neither does Marx, Evola, Jung, Lacan, or whatever knob the post-modernists will be slobbering on this time next week.

Philosophy is what get when you take thought and generalize all the value away.

So have a go at Rollo all you like. But for fuck's sake, go back on the tren or something and write some more funny shit about pussy. Because dudes don't come here for philosophy, and, frankly, neither do I.

Have a hb6,5-7 gf, cheated on her with a hb9 on trip. Need advice.

16 upvotes · 19 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

I don't understand what the problem is.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

16 upvotes · 12 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

That's because you're thinking of nerds.

Nerds signal intelligence a lot more than they use it. And since women are a lot more alert to the subtext of speech than men are, this just screams "I am trying to impress you", with predictable results.

Intelligence is just the ability to figure shit out. And you'd be hard-pressed to find something that isn't good for.

Girls think i'm gay

16 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I hate you, you're such a dick (with a grin)

This is girlese for "you have just crushed my shit test, and I am experiencing vaginal moisture".

Struggling to adjust to RP dating mindset

16 upvotes · 25 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

He broke up with me a week after I got home from our trip together during the halftime of the super bowl over skype.

Left that little detail out before, did we?

As usual, one never seems to get the whole, real, story until one makes someone upset. Angry hurt people are blunt and honest.

Now we might actually get somewhere.

This tells me a couple of things:

- You feel like you gave a lot.
- You thought things were working.
- Suddenly you were disabused of that notion.

- You still don't seem to be entirely sure why.
- You can't get over him and you want him back.
- But you feel like you can't ask because hell, last time things unexpectedly blew up.
- So you feel like the ball is in his court this time. But you still want to play.

So, what was his ostensible reason for the breakup?

How to say no to female friends whining?

16 upvotes · 3 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

"No."

What is it about me that repels men so much?

16 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Physicians have zero training on the subjects of fitness and fat loss.

Medical school doesn't cover that, internships don't cover that, residency doesn't cover that.

The only thing they know about in this area is how to treat gross obesity and type 2 diabetes. So anything that's not that, they don't have training to evaluate as a problem.

If a physician tries to tell you it's "unhealthy" for you to weigh 120 lbs at 5'6, what does that mean? "Unhealthy" isn't the name of a medical problem. When a physician knows what they are talking about, they can explain specific risks.

Otherwise, you're just hearing an opinion that is no more valuable than anyone else's.

Assuming you do not lose fat in dangerous ways (bulimia, anorexia, methamphetamine), you are perfectly safe losing fat until quite awhile after you become unaesthetically thin and gaunt.

If you don't look like a waif already, intermittent fasting and sub 1200 calorie days are fine.

How to find a balance between too much and too little ?

16 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The thing is, when I'm in love, I tend to be overly giving, and got caught up in an abusive relationship last year, so I'm trying really hard to not make some mistakes like being too generous (I'm in debt because of my ex, who just took it all without giving very much in return) and just giving the relationship my all when we're not that committed and just casually dating.

No.

You don't get caught in abusive relationships because you are "too giving". You get caught in abusive relationships because you date abusive men. Abusers, by their very nature, do not respect boundaries.

The way forward isn't to limit your investment. It's to vet as you invest.

Men who are not feral or broken will respond with reciprocity, so giving it your all is a sound tactic... once you know what you are dealing with.

The trick is not to "draw boundaries", or take things off the table, but to pace your investment with your trust in him. Extend small amounts of trust, and, if he handles it well, gradually extend larger ones.

Make sure this takes a certain amount of time. The best way to weed out non-reciprocal manipulators is to extend trust at a moderate pace, because men who want to use girls, abandon them, and move on quickly are not willing to spend that much time on one "sucker".

You don't want to put yourself in a position where you can never submit fully to him, but you also don't want to simply dive into the deep end and hope for the best.

Husband thinks we have too much sex!

16 upvotes · 2 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men enjoy pursuing.

One of the greatest lies that women love to tell themselves and each other.

Pussy is a Commodity.

16 upvotes · 15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Your subreddit leaves me conflicted.

You're not the only one. There are entire reddit groups devoted to hating us, to debating our findings, to applying our ideas to all sorts of different stuff.

We started as a bunch of dudes in /r/seduction, just ordinary pickup stuff. And since the pickup stuff had no underlying philosophy (back then, dudes were just trying different things and reporting on how they worked), we just followed results by ignoring what women said, and responding to what they did.

A lot of people bailed out on the way there, horrified by what they had found and unwilling to face it. This is why we had to form a different reddit group.

That's because this trail led us to what seemed, at first, to be a very dark place. It seems women, not just broken women, not just party sluts with daddy issues, but women, looooved psychopaths. Loved selfish men who treated them like playthings. And despised men who showed them too much love and devotion.

The worse we treated women, the better they liked us.

Didn't take us long to figure it out, though. Turned out that women value things based mostly on the perceived value of the person giving it. And someone who acts more selfish, and less invested, must be more powerful, and have more options, and more value.

Turns out that all these beta male types with their romantic gestures were really just saying, in woman-speak... "I am weak, and I obsess over you because no other woman likes me".

Makes her skin crawl.

Then we realized lots of these other men, men who women shunned, despised, and actually sometimes hated simply because their instinctive revulsion was so strong... these guys weren't actually genetic failures, or lacking in courage, or in any other area. Then had simply been given bad information because it was socially and politically inoffensive to do so.

So we started training them to see women as children who never grow up.

It works.

Google memo guy Sanity Sunday

16 upvotes · 28 August 2017 · /r/MensRights

It is true that I cannot prove you failed to read the original source... I was simply making the charitable assumption that you are mistaken rather than mentally ill.

The memo itself can be agreed with, or disagreed with, by sane and intelligent people. However, to read it, and say, "Tu quoque fallacy!" is a lack of basic reading comprehension on par with describing the Communist Manifesto as a cookbook, i.e. a complete nonsequitur.

That particular logical fallacy simply does not occur within the text.

May I recommend demonstrable facts and logical congruencies as perhaps, better tools to try in future threads?

You may recommend anything you like. It's still a free country, despite certain people's best efforts, and if the sound of your own voice will give you great satisfaction, you may indulge yourself.

However, do not labour under the misapprehension that recommending such things will be confused with practicing them by any but the most casual observers.

In other words, be the change you wish to see in the world.

Wife got my name tattooed on her back...

16 upvotes · 1 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

I see.

Her being submissive to you bothers you, because if you own her, you are responsible for her.

You were not ready for marriage.

Do you guys bang fat girls...?

16 upvotes · 21 October 2016 · /r/askTRP

) (Will fuck.

) (Will fuck.

() Won't fuck.

CMV: There is no rape culture in the United States.

16 upvotes · 2 August 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In a lots of 3rd world countries if a woman is rape she can be arrested of all things, sometimes the law forces he to get married to her rapist.

The reason women are arrested for being raped in Saudi Arabia is the same as the reason men are arrested for being beaten by their wives in America.

Do women value certain betas as much as alphas?

16 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Women value betas in the same sense that dairy farmers value cows.

How common are incels?

16 upvotes · 26 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Am I an incel in that case? I mean, I'm not even trying. I'm damn near voluntarily celibate.

One needs to draw the line between those who are too lazy to try (voluntary), and those who don't know what to do (involuntary).

My girlfriend is pressuring me to get engaged

16 upvotes · 25 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

Wait a second.

She cheated on you, and now she wants you to prove yourself to her?

I salute this woman for her mastery at playing you like a fiddle, and then I recommend you get as far away from her as possible.

What do you think will happen if you get married? I'll tell you what will happen... more of the same. She will continue to misbehave, and continue to think of rationalizations as to why it is your fault. And you, good little lapdog that you are, will continue to accept them.

You, my young friend, require a sea change. A complete and total transformation of your world view.

Start here.

Believing in male supremacy will make you more attractive to women.

16 upvotes · 20 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Anger phase is a thing, but I think weak, moderate, low-testosterone, pedantic, overly-analytical men (this is the majority of middle class western men) like to use it as a rationalisation for why something that offends them or seems extreme or unfair is untrue.

To add to this:

Remember that the universe has no obligation to be fair.

Many people read TRP with the expectation that they will emerge from the five phases with the secret knowledge of how women have equal, but differing, roles to play, that everything is fair once you understand those roles.

Wrong.

Fairness is in the mind of the observer. The evolution does what works, and things are what they are. It programs chicks to like doing chick things, and men to like doing man things, and maybe they will be equally happy and/or equally competent at different, but equally important, shit.

But maybe they won't. And evolution does not give a fuck so long as babies are born and grow up to have babies of their own.

Be prepared to deal with whatever you find when you look at reality, and stop expecting that the magic equality you were looking for was really inside you all along.

I applied to much dread to my LTR... Now she's pushing me away

16 upvotes · 13 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Dread game isn't something you just spring on someone out of the blue. It's a response to something.

It sounds like you just read a bunch of techniques and started trying them more or less at random.

Lurk more.

the 'you're too old for me' shit test

16 upvotes · 29 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

just a number

That's a bad response. Don't argue.

Agree and amplify:

- (In your best "crabby old man voice", ludicrously exaggerated): Have shome reshpect for your elders, young lady.
- Yep, better run now. Wouldn't want to piss your dad off.
- Who are you and what are you doing on my lawn?

... and so on.

The thing about being much older than the girl you're gaming is there's no middle ground. In her mind, either:

- You are the creepy old quasi-pedophile cruising around the high school in a van with the windows blacked out, and she's a hot teenage girl way out of your league.
- Or you are the hot worldly sophisticated university professor, and she's the student with a desperate crush.

The trick is, the instant you appear afraid of looking creepy, she puts you in category one.

So if she tells you it's inappropriate, you must agree. You can play this as being on the verge of losing interest, or as playful banter, but you must play it up to prove to her you are not afraid of it.

No more is more afraid of being seen as a creeper than an actual creeper, and thus, with the female incapacity for logic, she concludes that this works in reverse.

Banned from askmrp for "You are not entitled to sex with your wife." PPD, what do you think?

16 upvotes · 10 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Clearly, you haven't thought about this much, which is why you still haven't answered the question, and why you are asking stupid, poorly-thought-out questions full of characterizations, and not even bothering to read the replies carefully.

I, however, have thought about this a great deal.

https://np.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2d9k75/the_redefinition_of_marriage/

https://np.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/38zz33/the_redefinition_of_marriage_part_two_sex/

Now, since you were too lazy to even read comments replying to yours, you will not read these, and if you do, you will not understand them.

That's why your opinion of TRP doesn't matter to me. Because it is the product of less thought than you devote to what topping you want on your pizza. If you can't be bothered to think before opening your mouth, I can't be bothered to try to persuade you that the opinion you took thirty seconds creating is dumb.

However, I have provided those links for others who may be following along.

Banned from askmrp for "You are not entitled to sex with your wife." PPD, what do you think?

16 upvotes · 9 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What I am trying to do is help the men who are being lied to.. Oh shit. You're right. Disrupting the echo Chamber. No wonder I got banned.

Yes, you are just full of desire to help.

Cut the bullshit. I wasn't born yesterday. You don't care if these men are happy or unhappy. You just want them to stop saying things that make you unhappy.

Anyway thanks for addressing the entitlement part. Marriage is not a contract your wife signs where you get to fuck her x/week when you want. If she's not in the mood.. Pressuring her won't help. But you probably know that already...

You didn't answer the specific question I asked.

- Does marriage entitle you (morally, not legally) to any particular thing from your wife?
- If yes, what?
- If no, are wedding vows meaningful? Or are they a symbolic promise that no one is morally obligated to keep?

Beating Infatuation (the most common form of Oneitis)

16 upvotes · 28 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Absolutely. But this is not useful advice for beginners who are just learning to pull, because they are not yet able to do that.

And they are the ones is the greatest danger of oneitis.

For them, the best strategy is to control the imagination by having more than one target in mind, even if they are not yet able to pull those targets consistently, or in a short time.

Spain - A Femminazi's Wetdream

16 upvotes · 21 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

But, but, but... if you just have game skills and good enough frame, this will never ever happen! If you don't get married, you've lost the evolution game! Don't you want baaaaabies?

How can thebluepill get away with calling itself a satire sub with humor?

16 upvotes · 13 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The bluepill group is an example of a particular kind of humor that I first noticed in certain comedians like Lewis Black, Jon Stewart, and Dennis Miller.

What you do is you cultivate an audience with a particular strong opinion on a topic many people feel strongly about, usually sociopolitical. Then you stand in front of them and say things they agree with.

Hearing these things invokes the listener's confirmation bias, and makes feel good, which predisposes them to laugh. Then even the faintest breath of humor in your presentation is enough.

But a real comedian can draw a laugh from audiences in Portland, Oregon or Laguna Beach, California.

A true guide for avoiding red pill men:

16 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I prefer to think of myself as a "humanitarian".

What should women do ?

16 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Nothing. They should continue on their merry way, and do whatever they feel like. (The lifespan of the domestic cat is 14-18 years. Plan accordingly.)

However, if they want something from me, they need to figure out how to give me an incentive to give it to them. It's not my job to figure that out and spoon-feed it to them.

I am not having a conversation with women, here. I am done talking to women. The only women I have any interest in talking to are my LTR (who already knows how to hold up her end of the bargain), women that I hook up with (for one night at least), and possibly /u/girlwriteswhat and some others like her.

I am not here to engage in a dialogue with women collectively. That time has passed. It's decades too late for that. I am here to help other men get off the treadmill.

/u/HumanSockPuppet:

What's happening now is that young men are withdrawing their contributions from society, and yet society plods along trying to provide the same security, safety, and services from the taxes of working men. But with fewer and fewer men working hard, there's less for the government to hand out as single mothers and other welfare barnacles continue to pick the bones of our society clean.

In the end, I'm predicting that the country will fall into economic and social turmoil. Then, when dire need rears its ugly head, women will shut their mouths (as they always do in crisis), and men will pick up their guns and shovels (as they always do in crisis), and cold pragmatism will rule the day. Then people will be bitterly reminded of the value of masculine virtue.

Modern sexism in a nutshell.

16 upvotes · 5 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

The last female protagonist I enjoyed was Lt. Ellen Ripley in Aliens. She's the last one I remember who didn't have male humiliation written into the script to make her look tough or smart.

The modern woman seems to need constant reassurance that she's as good as men.

I wonder why?

BP friends - 'You sound like a rapist'

16 upvotes · 4 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Technically, the correct term for a group of SJWs is a "waddle".

The most important two videos you will ever watch.

16 upvotes · 16 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

First video seems to be a little Anti-RP in its obsession over playing the victim card. If you are fat it is your fault and no one else's. No fucking shit sugar is bad for you, everyone knows this. If you don't have enough self control to eat right and keep your body healthy then I have no respect for you.

Not exactly.

RP is not about personal responsibility vs. lack thereof.

It is about facts vs. feelings. If a bunch of scientists get together and say, "This is about toxic exposure, not gluttony and sloth.", then the basic principle of RP says we must agree if their science is sound.

Saying "it's all about personal responsibility" is actually a surrender to emotional thinking. We want it to be about personal responsibility, because that would mean that we were in absolute control of our lives, that we could never have that happen to us, because we are just oh-so-special and awesome. We want to believe we live in a fair universe, that rewards us in proportion to how hard we play the game.

Well, no dice. The universe isn't fair, and we aren't special.

And if toxic exposure is the answer science comes up with, then that's the answer we must accept. Because what "RP" really stands for, what it must stand for, is Ruthless Pragmatism. Even when we don't like it. Even when we are afraid that it will lead to fatties absolving themselves of blame. We have to follow the truth no matter where it leads.

So where does personal responsibility come in? Is there none to be had, here?

Well, there is some.

We must take personal responsibility for educating ourselves and knowing the dangers. Not just the two-sentence summary, but the whole picture. If we are too lazy to watch lectures or actually read the science papers we link to, then we don't deserve the knowledge they contain.

We also must take responsibility for dealing with the fact that our power over our own behaviour is limited. Is sugar bad for us? Don't eat it. But it is addictive to the point where we will eat it whether we choose to or not, just like any addict? Well, then don't have it in the house. Is slipped into the pre-perpared foods we buy? Then don't buy them.

It more personally responsible, and revealing of a stronger character, to admit that our willpower and discipline are limited, and to set ourselves up to make the most of those limited resources, rather than fostering the self-indulgent and ego-flattering lie that we are so badass we can white-knuckle anything.

If you believe you are infinitely strong, and that the world cannot bend you, then when it does bend you, you will break, as any brittle thing does.

The trick is to plan so you don't have to white-knuckle it. The inferior general joins battle, and then seeks victory. The competent general sets himself up to win before ever joining battle.

Test sexual boundaries?

16 upvotes · 11 December 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

On Saturday ... {story story story}

You were being too timid. She wanted you to be sexually aggressive, and you made a weak move by giving her your number (Never just give a girl your number. Ask her for hers, first, and then give yours only if she asks.)

But she already liked you well enough that she didn't want to write you off... so she gave you a hint, hoping you would be bolder quickly, so she wouldn't lose her attraction.

And you said:

"well, we're not going to have sex tonight and once we start making out, I'm going to want to even more"

Which was a good move, even if it may have been accidental. Here's what you did right:

we're not going to have sex tonight

You drew the "no sex" line, which puts you in control. Instead of letting her put on the brakes, you put them on and make her work for you. This is similar to the technique we call a "freeze-out".

once we start making out

You took her for granted... "once we start", not "if we start". This showed sureness of your sexual power.

I'm going to want to even more

You neither hid your appetites nor apologized for them.

So closed the deal because you (accidentally?) made a play straight out of the red pill playbook.

Now, to answer your question:

Asking a woman if she wants to kiss/fuck/whatever just annoys her. Why? Because she doesn't know. She doesn't know if she wants to kiss you until you actually go for the kiss, and she either likes it or doesn't. Women live in their feelings, and usually cannot anticipate their emotional response to something they haven't had yet.

Now, how much exposure they need to figure it out depends on how strongly they react. Most women are pretty sure they don't want to kiss a spider, and pretty sure they do want to kiss certain Hollywood stars or other high-status men. But with the guys they actually do the mating dance with, they don't know. They're trying to figure it out. Asking them is just a demand for information they don't have. It's nothing but stressful and annoying.

What you have to do is do stuff and see how they react. And you have to be able to tell the difference between her hoping the fuck out, and her putting up the token resistance she expects herself to put up.

Anyone who says "that sounds problematic/rapey/whatever word SJWs are using this week" is either a hypocrite or a virgin. Because this is how sex actually happens. All the women carrying signs saying "no means no" have had sex with a man who didn't ask first. And most of them have had sex with a man whom they said "no" to the first time he did something. No doesn't always mean no. Sometimes it means maybe later. Sometimes it means convince me. Sometimes it means yes, but make it look like it was all your idea. Sometimes it means just take me by force already.

Don't like that for political reasons? Too bad. Millions of years of evolution does not have two fucks to give about your political sentiments. You could say it's wrong, but there's no point in saying that, because men are going to take taking women without asking for permission, and women are going to keep enjoying it, and nothing is going to change.

New Zealand leftists plan to change rape law to reverse the burden of proof from the accuser to the accused. If accused of rape, one will have to prove innocence or be automatically found guilty.

16 upvotes · 9 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists and SJWs are authoritarian leftists.

Support anonymity for rape defendants? Then you're obviously a rapist yourself, according to Zoe Stavri.

16 upvotes · 14 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Defending those accused of witchcraft?

You must be a witch yourself!

Nigel Evans has suggested that those who accused him of rape and sexual assault should have their identities revealed after he was cleared of all charges against him. British MP Evans said that he had been the subject of a witch hunt which had wiped out his life savings of £130,000

16 upvotes · 13 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Personally, I would think it would be ideal for justice to be served if no names were published publicly until guilty or not guilty verdicts were acquired.

Unfortunately, that runs up against one of the fundamental rights of the accused (in the US, at least). The accused have the right to a prompt public trial. A secret court with secret defendants and accusers, and secret evidence, is essentially this:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Star_Chamber

"We Are Women" shared this on Facebook. Your daily WTF.

16 upvotes · 6 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is just powertalk. There's no sense pointing out that it's a lie.

It's supposed to be a lie. The people saying this know it's a lie.

They're just saying it so that they can claim they mean it... to people who don't speak powertalk.

Male power fantasy, uh huh

16 upvotes · 1 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

And the covers of romance novels are made for female readers to oggle. Your point?

The consequences of being a white knight

16 upvotes · 27 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I would say "only defend your woman".

That means your mother, your sister, your daughter, or your SO. And just whether a spun plate is an SO depends on her. There are women who will get you trouble because of their bad behaviour, and they should be cut loose to fight their own battles. But every once in a while, trouble finds people who didn't ask for it. And if they're your people, then it makes sense to help out.

But I am not an unpaid bodyguard for random strangers, regardless of their sex.

32 Year Old Virgin doctor shows that a job is no substitute for game.

16 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You haven't broken any vows, but you're an accessory to breaking vows. You're driving the getaway car. Regardless of your feelings about marriage, she made a promise to someone; she's breaking that promise, and you're helping her do it. If she doesn't want to be married to the guy anymore, that's fine, but she should get divorced first.

Lollerskates.

A vow is not a law, it's a contract. It's not the responsibility of anyone who didn't sign up.

He's not driving the getaway car, he's offering the business partner a better deal. Driving a getaway car is a crime, because everyone is legally obligated not to steal. People aren't obligated to honour any wedding vows but their own, because they didn't make them.

That's why we make wedding vows in front of witnesses, but never stand up and take an oath not to rob banks. If cheating was a crime instead of just a breach of promise, there would be no need to have wedding ceremonies and speak vows.

Simon pegg as an alpha

16 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She just throws shit test after shit test, and he just handles them. Agree and amplify. It's a bit formulaic, but it just works.

How do you feel about r/PurplePillDebate?

16 upvotes · 26 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

See? The Patriarchy hurts men, too!

Female soldier - and too much "grrl power"....

16 upvotes · 3 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That was pathetic.

In twenty years of practicing martial arts, I've met plenty of women who could fight better than that. And, do you know what all of those women had in common? They weren't delusional enough to think they could stand toe to toe with fit, athletic men, trading punches, and come well out it.

Women can be trained to fight well. But men have huge genetic advantage which difficult or impossible to overcome. Every woman who can actually fight knows this, because she has trained with men.

White Women's Marriage Rates Dropping Much Faster Than Men's

16 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Seems to imply that more white men are marrying non-white women. Smart of them.

Beta's "depressed" wife of 14 years is cheats on him their entire marriage while biding her time and preparing a marriage parachute. He, of course, blames himself. r/relationship's advice? Couples counseling, what else!

16 upvotes · 20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A lot of people here at r/theredpill like to say that betas have no one to blame but themselves for not seeing the truth. While there's no question they bear their share of responsibility, look at the "advice" the poor bastard is getting in that thread.

We come into this world naked, screaming, covered in goo, unable to walk, talk, or feed ourselves.

We learn what we are taught. Some extraordinary individuals might have invented our brand of realistic cynicism all by themselves, but the rest of us gotta help each other if we wanna avoid this guy's fate AND his attitude that led to that fate.

Reserve your contempt for men who fight back against you when you try to help them, not for men who merely need your help.

Video in description. Female student assaults male she doesn't agree with by continuously pressing her body against him, he tries to push her away, she screams "get your hand off my breast now" and pushes him over a ledge.

16 upvotes · 7 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

Don't call her a cunt.

She lacks the depth. And the warmth.

STEM major repeats line that the word "female" is now an insult

16 upvotes · 17 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Is it just me, or is cringe pics turning into SRS?

Chicks Dig Jerks ep. #2386 "The Confession"

16 upvotes · 28 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Bad boys add the spice to lives that might otherwise feel bland, said Victoria Howard, author of five books including "Why Women Love Bad Boys." She has been counseling women in South Florida for more than eight years and is, herself, twice divorced.

You just cannot make this stuff up.

datedthatdouche.com, hamsters gonna hamst.

16 upvotes · 28 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What I love about sites for women, to women, by women, about how horrible men are... is that they often contain little nuggets of accidental truth, which spin out when the hamster pauses for breath:

http://3.bp.blogspot.com/-iPS_t-aMnP4/ULd-qzx5IFI/AAAAAAAAAKoE/IzuzjbQ73T8/s1600/vodka.jpg

<http://1.bp.blogspot.com/-KquTO5f5fhk/UJ5qKvPdyE/AAAAAAAAAKIU/s--ygGo8Fto/s1600/pleasant.jpg>

<http://1.bp.blogspot.com/-HpAoDwqNJT8/UDvj6fnmKpI/AAAAAAAAAIJ0/pbhojG2T828/s1600/fat.jpg>

<http://3.bp.blogspot.com/-ChuSiQCcDQA/UDjLdHOu6YI/AAAAAAAAAH9U/eEZZ2tMqaJc/s1600/bitch.png>

http://1.bp.blogspot.com/-fG_o1NSgXCc/UA7uG6-VSrI/AAAAAAAAAGK0/kN7lvmTfF2o/s1600/charity.png

<http://1.bp.blogspot.com/-gLLI3Xw5Q0o/T4-f-mMiwcI/AAAAAAAAACmE/KesW3unDNbY/s1600/alone.jpg>

<http://2.bp.blogspot.com/-Vo2z7hBIdoY/UPQScR8jWFI/AAAAAAAAALiM/UxlziG8K1no/s1600/douche.png>

http://4.bp.blogspot.com/-x_CHShFXPn8/ULd9NqUQtGI/AAAAAAAAAKnc/Y6ISDX_gczA/s1600/bat.jpg

<http://1.bp.blogspot.com/-BFWgj05pWTs/UPQSRn8OGGI/AAAAAAAAALiE/rmYfuxm6uVA/s1600/romanticcomedy.jpg>

Feminists adamantly opposed male contraception

16 upvotes · 15 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

She may have been wrong, but her view was that ONLY the person who gets pregnant can reasonably be expected to take responsibility for preventing pregnancy. That's not a man-hating viewpoint.

It is indeed a man-hating viewpoint. Not because it says that men lie, but because it says that only men lie.

She assumes that men will lie about being on the pill in order to save themselves the small effort of taking it (weak motivation), but women who wish to become pregnant (strong motivation) would never, ever, lie about being on the pill.

It assumes that only women need a method of defense against manipulative sexual partners.

Feminism hurts women too

16 upvotes · 28 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

- By portraying women's problems as caused by men, feminism can prevent women from seeking out or accepting male help in solving those problems.

"A runaway slave is the worst kind of slave - one that absolutely refuses to serve his massa. My reasons were simple... if the state forces me not to be a father than I will not pretend to be one. I will certainly not pay 75% of my take home pay to someone who hates me"

16 upvotes · 5 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Pre-nups ain't gonna help. At the end of the day, they are a stack of paper. Judges and other lawyers are experts at finding ways to ignore pieces of law they don't like.

Relying on a pre-nup to defend you means relying on the system to follow its own rules, and enforce a contract. But the system doesn't care about fairness or justice... what are the odds it's going to care about consistency?

Feminist blogger pays settlement of $13,000 to man she wrongly shamed as a misogynist

16 upvotes · 27 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Difference here is that "X is the author of Y" isn't an opinion. It's a claim of fact.

If I call you a douchebag, that's neither a true statement or a false one, just a subjective view which I am inviting others to share. If I tell others you rape children, it better be true. Otherwise, I'm setting up an innocent person for a lynch mob.

I'm a transgender female living as a man; I have some observations and questions you might be interested in, /mensrights

16 upvotes · 8 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Can you address the question of the male sex drive?

Having experienced the hormonal state both of a woman, and of a man, can you comment on the relative levels of sex drive, and how much sense (or lack thereof) it makes for women to characterize us as completely ruled by our genitalia, or to expect us to just "control ourselves"?

Behold: The Black Male Privilege Checklist.

16 upvotes · 14 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

Then anthropologists are partly responsible for creating this mess by their sloppy use of language. In their own parlance, the practice of hijacking terms with a specific meaning, turning them to their own ends, and then turning around and attempting to "explain" the meaning of a word to the very people they stole it from... well, this would be an example of "anthropologist privileging", wouldn't it?

a coach calling his team "ladies" to "motivate" them because of the negative association with femaleness in our society.

This example is particularly amusing because it's dead wrong.

If I mockingly call someone "my lord" or "your highness" for demanding special treatment, or acting arrogant, am I demonstrating how everyone looks down on the peerage?

No. I am mocking someone for acting above his station.

A coach who calls his team "ladies" is telling them that they are acting like a class of person that is exempted from the expectation to do hard physical work, undertake physical risks, or endure pain and discomfort.

He is in fact appealing the notion that a man who does not pull his weight is a bad man, whereas a woman is neither expected nor required to pull hers.

"Shift the paradigm - something should have to prove it's not misogynist"... And feminists claim they don't believe in guilty until proven innocent.

16 upvotes · 14 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

And the usual disclaimer: I don't hate men.

By your own standard: Prove it.

Age Demographics of Failing Societies

15 upvotes · 24 May 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

The Right just wishes I would stop being such a rascal, find a nice girl and get married and settle down.

That's their sales pitch. But as things stand right now, they want you to dive on a grenade to save their vision of society.

The right is actually more dangerous than the left, because the left's malice is obvious and therefore easy to avoid.

The left is standing on your lawn, naked and smeared in its own excrement, waving a butcher knife and screaming that the voices told it to kill you. The right is wearing a nice dress and some perfume, telling you it loves you and going in for the hug... while holding a butcher knife behind its back.

Sex Premarital, Casual and Otherwise

15 upvotes · 10 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Women's sexuality has the most value (and hence power) at the very beginning of their sexual adulthood.

It's pretty much as if you get handed a rocket launcher at age 13, with no instruction manual. Then you're thirteen years old, don't know what you're doing, don't even know how to use this thing, and it can blow stuff up... including you.

So the message here isn't "never use it". Anything that's powerful enough to be dangerous is powerful enough to be useful. And vice versa.

The message here is "think first, and be careful".

How low can you go.....Financially speaking

15 upvotes · 19 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

To answer this question, you need to separate the consideration of the visceral from the calculating.

A woman doesn't become less sexy, fun to be around, or desirable if she has a degree in Theater Arts, $100K in student loan debt, and a job as a cashier at Walmart.

But men would certainly hesitate before committing to her, because every man knows that if he does, he will eventually be expected to pay that debt.

This is what modern feminism and modern women refuse to admit when they say it is ok to have sex with anybody you liked. Women, they are destorying you. These comments also dropped truth bombs

15 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

That's correct. They prefer other things. Men and women are different.

Got kicked hard in the groin last night by a girl showing me her 'self defence' moves. Was laughed at and told to get over it as they have to deal with periods and child birth....

15 upvotes · 29 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

You're wrong, but okay.

I suspect I am not. When I encounter someone who believes that training in hand to hand combat skills creates a magical shield against being sucker punched by someone they know and trust, I tend to think that they are either not trained, or badly trained... in sense that they are delusional about what their skillset will and will not do.

Action beats reaction. This is why alertness and situational awareness are even more important than technical skill.

Many of you don't know what "Frame" is

15 upvotes · 7 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

How do you deal with someone trying to steal the frame? When I read your post I get the idea that I'm mistaking shit tests for people challenging my attempts to set the frame. Are there any analogues to A&A, pressure flip etc. for maintaining the frame in the face of a challenge?

Here are some things that help:

- Don't allow yourself to become distracted. If someone says something that tempts you to disagree, remember that if you agree or disagree, you are now talking about that thing.
- Be willing to talk over others who try to interrupt you.
- But don't hog the floor. By deliberately "passing the mic" and inviting others to speak, you establish yourself as the arbiter of the conversation.
- Especially pass the mic to the shyest and timidest members of the group. This makes you appear as a fair and evenhanded leader.
- Be willing to point out attempted evasions and stick to your point.
- Don't be drawn into arguments. Remember that you don't need anyone's permission to disagree, nor do you need to justify your disagreement with anything. You don't have to support your position.
- Be willing to walk away, literally or figuratively, from an interaction.
- Don't try to prevent awkward moments. Just act comfortable in them, and let others be the ones who feel awkward and try to smooth things over.
- Make allies of others with strong personal presence and frame control skills by backing their plays as they back yours. A strong man can be a daunting opponent... or the other half of an unstoppable team.

Should I leave my wife?

15 upvotes · 4 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Good.

But you left out:

1. Contact and consult with a divorce attorney before telling her you want a divorce.
2. Follow that attorney's advice to the letter.
3. Have a device capable of recording sound and video quickly and easily. Keep it on you or next to you at all times, even when you sleep.
4. Be psychologically prepared to be accused of beating and/or raping your wife and/or daughter. These are standard tactics in a divorce case.
5. Do not move out of your house. Even for the night. She will change the locks and you will lose it and never get it back, not even in court.
6. Ask this question in Married Red Pill.

What else have we being lied to about?

15 upvotes · 22 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

For unsophisticated thinkers, truth is binary: things are "true" or "false".

For slightly smarter people, truth is quinary: things I know, things I suspect, things I dunno about, things I think aren't true, things I know aren't true.

For smart people, truth has two nondiscrete axes: predictive power (truth-value), and confidence (certainty-value).

For those reading who are capable of this kind of thinking... consider this:

You've been told masks work, but how do you know? What evidence have you personally seen? Sure, you've been told by other people that they work, but what have you seen?

Anything that you believe, which you haven't seen evidence of, you are taking on faith. Now, you have to take some things on faith, because you don't have time to investigate everything... but you need to know the difference.

For example, if someone tells you masks work, and you believe them, you are taking it on faith that masks work. If you go and find a study that says there is no difference in infection rates and infection fatality rates between political districts with mask mandates and those without, you are taking it on faith that the numbers used in the study are not fabrications.

These are two very different things.

If you don't know why you believe what you believe, then you don't know if it came from you, or someone else, and you don't know if it serves your agenda or theirs.

This is why people call you an NPC. NPCs' behaviour is programmed, and they have no effective motivations beyond the ones of those who programmed them (who may be NPCs themselves).

Only a small portion of the human species is effectively sentient... and being so requires both a certain degree of inborn intelligence, and a certain degree of conscious and deliberate mental effort.

I don't resent you for being programmed, and you calling me a "retard" is functionally equivalent to being barked at by a dog. But you may be capable of sentience, so I ask again:

How do you know masks work? What have you seen that makes you so certain?

This should be entertaining.

After getting with multiple 'unicorns', I've noticed that no matter what, when you get to truly know their personalities, they are literally all the same.... so how do some guys stay with an LTR for so long, don't you get bored?

15 upvotes · 19 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Give me an example of what a "deep and meaningful conversation" is to you.

hard-working Christian guy VS alpha male in sexual attraction NEED Clarification

15 upvotes · 25 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

(random question) I've been hearing so much about men having to be more vulnerable and emotional because it's mentally healthier to express emotions rather than repress them. I understand why being stoic and logic based is attractive to women, but I still don't understand why the blue pillers are wrong when they say it's healthier to express emotion. if it's healthier it's healthier?

This is the only interesting question you asked.

The way of TRP is not emotional repression. It is emotional control.

Remember that your emotions evolved to aid you. To motivate you to do things that are good for you. But they also evolved in circumstances very unlike your life today. So they are sometimes helpful to you and sometimes not.

Things that are sometimes useful and sometimes not make terrible masters, but excellent tools... the distinguishing feature of a tool is that you possess it, and you decide how and when to use it. A tool is useless if you never use it, and downright destructive if you use for things it's not useful for.

When an emotion makes you want to do something, that's fine. It might be something you need or want to do. To thrive, you must learn to insert a small moment of goal-oriented thought between the feeling and the action. And in that gap, ask yourself "where does my best interest lie?".

Q4RP: Cheating. Relationship imperative, inevitable moral hazard, or completely out-of-bounds?

15 upvotes · 27 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

The answer to this question is implied by the very nature of hypergamy.

The term "hypergamy" actually means that women are inherently monogamous. They are only capable of sustained attraction to one man at once. The only time they can be attracted to more than one man is if they are in the process of losing attraction to one and gaining it to the other.

"Hypergamy" really means that women are monogamous to whatever man they are attracted to the most. Second place isn't even the first loser, he's just one of the losers.

This isn't true of a man. He is attracted to different girls at once, in proportion to how attractive each of them is to him.

Hell, I've had sex with women who are less attractive, less well-behaved, and not as good in bed as FunSize, just because I like a little variety now and again. Eggs are expensive, sperm is cheap. Therefore, women protect their expensive eggs from anyone less than the best they can get, and men give away our cheap sperm on a whim.

What does this mean?

- You must not let your woman cheat on you. If she does, or even wants to, she's not that into you.

- If she's just a plate, it might be okay that she's not that into you. That's up to you.
- If you agree not to cheat on a woman, you are doing to appease her, not for your reasons. Consider carefully whether you want to let a woman have that much control over you.
- If you have no agreement or expectation not to cheat on a woman, and you find yourself not doing so, then it might just be because her competition can't stack up to her.

How can the sexual marketplace be “regulated” without basically forcing people to be intimate with those they don’t desire?

15 upvotes · 25 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This belief is why we keep having to shake the TRP tree to make the crypto-tradcons fall out.

It is very difficult to get it through some men's thick skulls that traditional monogamy sucked for the vast majority of men. If things had been so great, the boomer men would never have kowtowed to the feminists and overthrown the whole system for nothing but the largely unfulfilled promise of some fat hairy free-love snatch.

The fact that the sexual marketplace sucks for the vast majority of men isn't cultural. It's the result of instincts built into the human genome. There's nothing anyone can do about this until such a future time as our biotechnology becomes so advanced that we can reprogram ourselves at will, and we are all as gods.

TRP is about playing the game skillfully, not changing its fundamental nature. And sexual communism, whether culturally or legally imposed, works the same as any other kind of communism: it makes people equal by making things worse for everyone, not better.

Plate said no sleeping with other people. Do I listen?

15 upvotes · 31 August 2019 · /r/askTRP

Whatever a girl asks for is negotiable.

Whatever a girl *demand*s of you, you must deny her.

That moment when I realized I had become... Chad! Be prepared for this milestone in your Red Pill Journey, the audacious circumstances can catapult you ahead or shock you backward.

15 upvotes · 14 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I asked why she cheated and she told me she didn't know, she just felt like it. The relationship was getting stale. She said she couldn't believe that she had acted this way herself and that she felt like a terrible person. I asked why she didn't just break up with her boyfriend and then sleep around. She had no answer.

Hypergamy.

It doesn't end because women cheat. Women cheat because it has ended.

They just don't tell the guy. Because they don't wanna be single. Because they don't wanna be the bad girl. Because they don't wanna take responsibility. Because they actually do love him... but they're not in love with him, because hypergamy don't care.

Hypergamy is built into every woman, and it does not give a single fuck about her moral values, personal relationships, life goals, or anything else.

It will drag her around on a leash, enslave her to her mating instincts, sabotage everything else in her life...

"I don't know why I'm doing this" (because you are a slave to your brainstem)

"I feel like a terrible person" (your brainstem has no conscience)

Why are women so afraid of being called a slut? Like seriously who the fuck cares?

15 upvotes · 9 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

Women do not live in the physical universe. They live in the social universe.

What this means is that the majority of the obstacles they encounter are not physical (men deal with those for them), but social. Women thrive or falter depending less upon what they can do, and more upon what others think of them.

To be shunned by other women is like death for them.

As a 30 year old single woman, I feel left behind

15 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men decide to get into a relationship with you, or not, based upon how they think the daily experience of being with you will feel.

This means that becoming a wife or girlfriend is a totally different process from getting a man attracted to you (in sense of wanting to have sex with you).

I didn't watch your long ranty video, of course, but, as I skipped forward through it, I noticed an awful lot of material about your desires, your biological clock, what you wanted out of life, how you feel, etc, etc, etc.

I didn't really find any bits about this hypothetical "him", what you could do for him, how you would treat him, what his life with you would be like, etc.

Men aren't really that keen on being a means to an end and nothing more.

How do I make girls not lose interest in me due to autism.

15 upvotes · 5 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't date autistic girls.

Does soy really kill testosterone levels

15 upvotes · 13 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

It's bro science, but it's super fun to taunt them with.

How do I approach my Captain about exploring some new weird sexual adventures?

15 upvotes · 26 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This sounds like a question for me.

Relax.

This kind of fantasy about as common as milkweed pollen. I wouldn't even call it a kink; you're in the majority or close to it.

It's a constant source of amusement to me how a near-majority of women walk around thinking "I'm the only one who's like this, I'm such a pervert, the other women would be horrified if they knew. "

.... About a bunch of other women who are having that same thought.

Playing hard to get vs. being too "easy"?

15 upvotes · 7 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Nailed it.

Even very attractive men experience nothing like the overt attention and solicitation that women do. If you are an attractive woman, men will want to give you attention. If you are an attractive man, women will want you to give them attention.

Also, women use aloofness, confidence, attention from other women, etc... to measure a man's real value. Men don't need to do that. Your real value to them comes from qualities that they can measure for themselves in the space of a five minute conversation.

Feminine attractiveness consists of three things:

1. Beauty.
2. Femininity.
3. Approachability and availability.

A woman who plays hard to get is as unattractive as a man who is fawning and solicitous.

Men will be men?

15 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is one of the most common ways that women inadvertently piss men off.

You see, women live in the Glorious Revolutionary Socialist Kollektive People's Republik of Everything Is Everyone Else's Affair. If a woman says something the others don't like, the Komissar is summoned, a People's Komitee is formed to determine if the statement was counterrevolutionary in nature, everyone gets a chance to weigh in, and when the accused is found guilty, she is sent to the People's Re-Education Gulag to be purged of decadent capitalist-imperialist running-dog influences. Probably by breaking rocks with a pickaxe. In the snow. For twenty-seven years.

Men, however, live in the Anarcho-Capitalist Free Confederation of Mind Your Own Goddamn Business, Asshole. If a man ignores the big red sign saying "Private Property: Keep your dumb ass out", and wanders into another man's (untaxed) heroin plantation, he typically gets one loud and verbally abusive warning to leave, before being shot with a high caliber rifle and nailed up at the fenceline as a warning to other idiots. If his neighbors object, it will only be on the grounds that the corpse is stinking up their territory.

To a man, everything is either his territory, or not his territory. If it's his territory, his sovereignty is absolute, and no one gets to say a damn thing to him about it unless it is also their territory, too, in which case a compromise or fight occurs. If it's not his territory, he's a guest and he has to shut the fuck up unless someone whose territory it is asks his opinion.

If you criticize a man's actions in his own territory, you are telling him that his territory is your territory. This is a challenge to a fight.

Any time you say to a man, "What you said was bad/unacceptable", if you are not one of the people it was said to (which would make it also your territory), you are saying to him "I am your overlord and judge. Kneel before me." He must then fight you (metaphorically or literally) to repel your attempt to dominate him.

Women don't understand this because they do this to each other all the time, and it's considered acceptable. This means that women who treat men like they would other women are constantly and inadvertently challenging men to a fight.

This is what it means when men call a woman "bossy".

A Field Guide to Retarded Bullshit

15 upvotes · 5 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

He's too busy "empowering women".

For muslim trpers what have you done in regards to marriage?

15 upvotes · 4 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

I don't have any politically correct advice for you.

Islam and TRP are two fundamentally different things.

The first is concerned with an alleged set of eternal truths, which it demands you accept and believe without evidence, and with what it demands you do about those beliefs, regardless of how it affects your life.

The second is concerned with how to achieve certain goals, and any truth you find along the way is merely a means to an end. It makes no provision for what happens when those accidental truths throw your sacred cow upon the barbeque.

At some point, the TRP "advised course of action" and the muslim "will of god" are going to clash. If you choose the latter, you may fall into any or all of the traps TRP warns you against. If you choose the former, other muslims may retaliate against you... after all, the explicit penalty in islam for apostasy is death.

Up to you, really.

Does The Red Pill mean saying goodbye to emotional sex?

15 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

And obviously from what I've gathered here is that many of you don't recommend (to sugarcoat it) going into LTRs, and to not fall in love with a girl. To just spin plates and bang as many women as possible.

Doesn't matter what "many" people on TRP recommend. TRP is 75% total novice, 20% intermediate, and 5% expert. If you take a poll, it's the blind leading the blind.

Here's the real story. You can by all means love girls, and be in a relationship with one. Or more. You just have to realize that girls are pets, not peers.

You need to control your girl just like you need to control your dog... doesn't mean you don't love your dog. Of course you do. But your dog is a dog, and you have to be in charge, because your dog can't handle decisions on its own. It's a dog.

When you see girls as pets or children, and are absolutely comfortable expressing the ironclad expectation that you are the boss, and she must acknowledge that or depart, then you are ready to be in a relationship.

Until you can do that, you must spin plates.

Plate sends long text

15 upvotes · 20 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Wrong.

The truth is simpler.

If you freely offer a woman a diamond, she will think she's doing you a favour by taking it. If you make her work for a lump of coal, she will think you're doing her a favour by giving her the chance to earn it.

Women Marching Against Themselves

15 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Every group has to draw the line between disagreement and sabotage.

And in the time since we made this group, back when there were about 100 of us, we've learned a lot about where to draw that line. I've not only seen a whole lot of versions of this clown you are going to bat for, I've seen a whole lot of versions of you.

The guy who thinks that we are in constant danger of "becoming too insular".

That guy doesn't understand why we made this group. He doesn't understand that we are not a university. He doesn't understand that we are not a think tank. He doesn't understand that we are not a club. He doesn't understand that we are not the academic quest for truth.

He doesn't know what we are for.

TRP is judged by one standard, and one alone. Does it give men power over their own sex lives? Does it give men the ability to get laid at will? Does it enable them to attract women?

And you know what?

Never, never, never, has any one of us, any one of the founders, seen any person come in here and make a serious, reasoned or evidence-based argument that this stuff doesn't work.

How could they? It works.

No, what they want to do is sabotage. Because it works.

I spent years of my life building this thing from 100 subscribers to a quarter of a million. So when you come in here, mother's milk wet upon your lips, and raise some academic concern about missing out on valuable ideas from a bunch of social justice warriors, many of whom would be happy to see you dead, how much weight do you think that carries with me?

What the fuck have you put into this place, that you think you're going to tell me how it should be run? Not a god damn thing, as far as I can tell.

You think your opinion is important just because it's your opinion?

No. Respect is earned. You want your opinion to carry weight, do something other than sit in the peanut gallery and bitch about how we're too mean to trolls.

Jesus fuck, I am sick of idealists.

She may have slept with someone else, soft next or?

15 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/askTRP

Somebody hasn't read the Bitch Management Hierarchy.

Bitches need to act like the job they want, not the job they have. No promotion for her.

Relationship is sinking S.O.S!

15 upvotes · 18 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't want to go into details here.

If you want good advice, you're going to have to. We can't give good advice based on guesswork.

This is a group for frank and effective relationship advice for women, not "Bible Study and Cake Recipes for Traditional Conservative Women, Where We Never Say the S-Word Because There Are Ladies Present".

Is it too late to secure a real commitment from my boyfriend?

15 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

He dodges the discussion and gets uncomfortable whenever I bring it up, so I'm not sure what his reasoning is yet.

Okay, so THAT is the real issue.

The right question for you to be asking is not "How do I get him to propose?", but "He clearly has specific reservations about marriage, but I can't get him to tell me what they are. How do I start this discussion without pestering?".

When a man is evasive about discussing something with a woman, it's usually because he thinks she's not going to like or accept what he has to say. Remember that a man has as little chance against you in a public sympathy contest as you have against him in a fist fight.

You have almost unlimited power to make him out to be the bad guy.

Look at how ready even some commenters right here in RPW are to make him out to be the bad guy. (Some people have a lot of red pill left to digest and should be asking advice more and giving it less.)

This is most likely why he is unwilling to talk to you. You have not yet built sufficient trust that he is going to be heard and not judged.

As to what he might have to say, I cannot speak for him, and I can only surmise. But I have a strong suspicion. Modern marriage has been legislated into something that is very bad for men, and most men know this. It contains no rights for them whatsoever, only responsibilities.

To be frank, when I am advising men, on the TRP side of the line, I tell them to avoid marriage at all costs. It just is plain not good for them... the best outcome they can hope for is "not getting burned", and in the modern west, the "getting burned" rate is hovering close to 50%.

If you really want to understand this, grow a thick skin and read what men say about it. Not just the article, but the comments. Then you will understand what you are up against.

Then you will understand why your SO doesn't want to talk about this. Because you're going to be mad, and you're going to want to write every man talking about it as a bad, evil, selfish man who shouldn't be listened to. But if you do, remember that you will also be including your SO in this group as well. Because he has his own reservations, and they look like this.

So you would have a choice to make. Either set about earning the metric fuckton of trust that it would require to get a man to ignore my very sensible advice, work out some compromise with him instead, or try to shame or threaten him into entering into a deal that has only rights for you, and only responsibilities for him.

But first you have to get him talking.

When a Girl Tells You Whats Wrong

15 upvotes · 28 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

I don't want to sound like a remorseless dick.

Yes you do.

That is exactly how you need to sound.

In our culture, today, girls have only two mental categories for men: "Remorseless dick" and "thirsty loser".

I met this girl (hb7 Polish girl) in a bar, drove her home. Now she acts like my girlfriend

15 upvotes · 11 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

What's the problem?

She's giving, not taking. You're just afraid of being "trapped" because you don't have confidence in your ability to say "no" if and when a demand is made.

That's not her fault, and has nothing to do with her.

A request for advice on our (23f, 29m) sex lives please.

15 upvotes · 21 November 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

The first thing to look at is you. Healthy weight? Taking care of your appearance?

Then your relationship. Any tension or conflict?

Then his mental state. Stressed? Worried? Sexual needs or fantasies he doesn't feel comfortable expressing?

Then his health. Testosterone and thyroid levels. Getting enough sleep?

MGTOW are simply incels who celebrate the fact they can't get any pussy rather than feel down about it

15 upvotes · 30 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem with the bottom crab is not that he's in the bucket. It's that he's trying to drag the other crabs down.

A Theory On "Vibe"

15 upvotes · 3 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That's a problem inherent to TRP: guys such as u/Whisper are too busy having productive lives to really bother posting much, while loser NEETs can hammer out content all fucking day

You're not wrong.

However, what saves TRP from immediate extinction is that there is a gap between the time a man no longer needs TRP, and the time he loses interest in talking about the theory.

Men who are going to progress, rather than stagnate, can progress through.

- incel/failure to launch/NEET
- average guy who sometimes gets what he wants if he works hard and gets lucky
- Man who knows what to do to achieve his goals, and works at them
- Man is constantly achieving old goals, and setting new ones

... once a man hits that last stage, he is no longer personally invested in TRP. But he doesn't always lose interest, and he almost never does so right away.

The trick is to keep new thought-leaders coming in from the ranks of the men who are just starting to get success.

Wife got my name tattooed on her back...

15 upvotes · 1 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

Yes, but what specifically is "cringe-worthy" about it? For you.

Is it the implication of responsibility for her? Or is the fact that she took such a step without consulting you? Does it make you feel trapped or committed? (You did marry her, you know.)

Yes, it makes your skin crawl. I get that. But you need to understand why.

Wife got my name tattooed on her back...

15 upvotes · 1 December 2016 · /r/askTRP

You need to understand why you find this creepy before you decide how to handle it.

What is it that bothers you about it, specifically?

Traditional masculine behaviour is overtly punished and covertly rewarded in North America.

15 upvotes · 11 October 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This is precisely so.

The reason for this distinction is that what people say is determined by their conscious ideology... but what they do is determined by their unconscious hardwiring.

Thus, a feminist can have a conscious ideology that disapproves of masculinity, and causes her to express constant criticism of it with her words, but her instinctive sexual drives will still display the same tropism towards it that they would have if she had any other ideology instead.

TRP's whole process is to point out this disparity, and to enlighten men to the fact that all the rewards men actually want are gained by appealing to women's instinctive drives, not their conscious ideologies.

If you (/u/SipsSparklingWater) understand this, the question of why you label yourself "blue pill" puzzles me... unless you think that tropism towards masculinity can be changed with enough indoctrination, that you think it isn't truly instinctive, and you wish to bring about that change in society.

The whole bluepill/leftwing/socialist/SJW cluster seems oddly prone to this assumption that human beings are infinitely malleable, and can be made to prefer anything which you teach them to prefer. This is wishful thinking, but the question of how long this belief will remain widespread in the face of increasing contrary evidence is still very much open.

Sociological engineering doesn't work. Give it up.

"Token Resistance is Common"

15 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

should not be common

"Should" is just a way to use one word to say "I want".

The universe doesn't care what you want. It is what it is.

If token resistance is common, then it's common. Save your fantasy worlds for your Doctor Who fanfiction page. Adults have to live in the real world.

Q4Feminists: What feminist writings do you wish that RPer would read?

15 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ooooooh, I just love it when feminist women tell me exactly what the structure should be for figuring out what men's problems are and fixing them.

(Because there aren't any men talking about this shit already. No sirieeeee, lallalallalalaalaalaIcan'tHEARyou.)

Let me guess... is my biggest problem going to be... Patriarchy? And is the solution... More Feminism?

Where the hell did my sex-drive go?

15 upvotes · 18 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Your testosterone is so low that you are not sane. That's why you deliberately allow your wife to cuck you.

See a doctor and start hormone replacement therapy immediately. Then you have a divorce to get through.

An Example of Holding Frame by Richard Park Feynman

15 upvotes · 15 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I knew Richard Feynman when I was a child. He became part of the inspiration for the ideas that would become TRP.

One of the most important things he teaches us with his example is that any sort of man can be an alpha male if he:

- Has a strong passion, and pursues it regardless of what others think.
- Is comfortable in his own skin.
- Knows how to handle a shit test.
- Gets shit done.

Question for Redpillers: do you believe that selfless love is possible, or do you see people in purely utilitarian terms?

15 upvotes · 9 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Don't you want to feel real love? Or do you want to manipulate people forever? Doesn't that make you a shitty person?

You're a very confused person, you know that?

You've taken "is", "should", and "want", rolled them into a big ball, tied them with twine, and proceeded to confuse which is which.

I'm not even sure I can untangle you.

Why don't you start by defining the word "love"?

A Message to Men's Rights from Red Pill

15 upvotes · 19 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

But, the MRM is caught in the throes of 'Just Be Yourself' (although most will refuse to admit it) feminist conditioning from the male perspective, and a good portion of us simply believe we are good enough as is, with no need to improve, and nevermind that reality doesn't mesh with this fantasy.

No one wants to talk about it, but the MRM has a real problem with feminism-envy.

It hates feminism (with good reason), but is robotically and unconsciously following its game plan, its model of "liberation" from expectations and standards.

It wants to do for men what feminism did for women. They do not see that feminism gave women power, but simultaneously fucked up their lives. Women are far less happy now than they ever were living under the boot of male "oppression". Freeing men from "sexism" would result in men being just as lost as women. Most of what we call sexism is a positive force for human welfare and prosperity.

That said, I've been a practitioner of the Red Pill for years as well, and I can tell you a good portion of RP 'glitterati' has their own heads equally up their asses about similar, but different issues. Basically, if you think you occupy some kind of high ground because Red Pill, don't. Because you don't.

strategy for getting men to care about you, and use their superior strength and toughness on your behalf.

The Red Pill Graduation - You can't stay in school forever.

15 upvotes · 3 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Christians will become Atheists, Atheists become Buddhists. Round and round they go. Blue Pill will turn to ego-ridden assholes and then to Red Pill and then one morning rip off the labels and go back to their life's business. Lovers will invest everything in each other, become one-dimensional, neglect their true calling and focus, then trade it back in for the uncertain single life again.

And trees become fruit, fruit becomes shit, shit becomes trees. What's your point?

As if I didn't know.

You think you're saying something here, because you think "red pill" is a belief system, a way of life. It's not. It's a discussion group. There's no "ism" here.

Just a bunch of guys who realize they've been misled, and are working on figuring what there is.

Roosh came across as an autistic man on Dr. Oz

15 upvotes · 29 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Debating these clowns is a tactical mistake.

An argument on television is a public sympathy contest, and you have as little chance against a woman in a public sympathy contest as she has against you in unarmed combat.

And even if you win, there's no upside. We're not saving society, here. We have accepted the harsh truth that we cannot do that. It has to save itself.

Feminists, SJWs, entitled landwhales, limpwristed feminist enablers, leftoid pansies, white-guilt profiteers... all of these people thrive on public attention, because manipulating the media gestalt is what they do. They have practiced the art of "making you look like a big meanie" for a long time, and while you may occasionally tempt them to go too far, that's not going to change the mind of much of anyone who didn't already despise whiny human parasites.

There are two real weapons against these mutants:

1. Ignore them.
2. Laugh at them.

The Unabomber on SJWs in 1995

15 upvotes · 2 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In healthy societies, it is respectable among warriors to be a scholar, and among scholars to be a warrior.

Do BPer's unknowingly measure men by the same scale as TRPer's?

15 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TBP's view of virginity is that it is a weakness and a sore spot, something that a man is probably ashamed of, therefore it is fair game for use in mocking anyone who fails the political orthodoxy test.

It's not that TBP hates virgins, or gays, or brown people. It's that TBP hates everyone who isn't a subscriber to a certain type of left wing ideology (a lot of the more sensible leftoids included). And because they pride themselves not on superior skills, or superior knowledge, or superior accomplishments, but on a belief in their moral superiority, this means that anyone they hate is evil, and therefore fair game, to be punished using any and all means possible.

To paraphrase R. Scott Bakker:

"To make his brother wicked, a man need only strike his brother. For the righteous do not strike the innocent... and every man imagines himself righteous."

What do you think would happen if TheRedPill had to do verification posts like GoneWild subs.

15 upvotes · 29 January 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In fact, now you've got me thinking about it, it brings up something interesting.

Let's suppose I posted a photo of myself, minus the face, and I appeared to be a 6'2 white male, between the ages of 20 and 50, weighing about 225 lbs with about 8% bodyfat, well dressed, and in surroundings which suggested affluence and good mental health.

Would any of this prove I am attractive to women? No, it would not.

One of the things we tend to agree on in the TRP discussion group is that male attractiveness consists much less of appearance, and much more of behaviour, as compared to female attractiveness. Showing a woman a photograph of a man does not establish, for her, how attractive he is, because she cannot speak with him, observe his behaviour, use conversational gambits to test his poise and self-assurance (we call this a "shit test").

Showing a woman a photograph of a man and asking if he is attractive is a bit like showing a man a woman's resume and asking if she is attractive... the most relevant information has been left out.

Science Has Finally Shown That Girls Are Smarter At School Than Boys: Could you imagine if the sexes were reversed there would be all out hysteria throwing all available resources to address the problem...but because its boys we just jeer and turn a blind eye

15 upvotes · 29 January 2015 · /r/MensRights

Men do better at something: "Institutional bias! Sexism! Hidden barriers! Glass ceiling!"

Women do better at something: "Success! Progress! See? Women were really better all along!"

This is all because there's one thing that women really are far better at: Gaining the sympathy of strangers.

Anonymous says it will name Dalhousie dentistry students if demands not met. It is calling on the university to start a "thorough, inclusive, independent and transparent investigation" into institutional practices pertaining to human rights, misogyny, rape culture and gender justice

15 upvotes · 25 December 2014 · /r/MensRights

This isn't Anonymous in the proper sense. This is someone making a personal army request, which is full of epic fail and will go nowhere.

Also, OP is kind of like this.

Here's a handy list of what not to do.

15 upvotes · 17 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed. You can certainly cook, but you have to cook to show off how awesome you are at cooking, not to please her.

Maybe its not just because they were men after all. In order to replicate the results of the infamous 10 hour walk through New York, an Australian Newspaper sent a 20 year old model in short shorts through Sydney. She received no "harassment" of any kind. Not one.

15 upvotes · 4 November 2014 · /r/MensRights

He doesn't have to prove he's not a racist. You have to prove he is.

Its not enough to be "a perfect, sweet, amazing person", girls will still cheat for "sexual adventures"

15 upvotes · 11 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It isn't that being a "sweet, amazing person" isn't enough. It's that it's not the right thing.

What he needs to be is attractive. Not good. He can be good or bad or indifferent, but he must be attractive.

This is just her acting on instinct. She can no more help it than we can help cheating with the hottest girls we can find.

(Last sentence intentionally ambiguous.)

Woman love to be validated and beta men will line up to provide this to them. My view on a post on r/theredpill

15 upvotes · 26 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

try to look deeper into the possible reasons for the actions of people. What do they have to gain by there actions.

Do you agree with my premises that woman who post on the redpill do so with the "basic" or "back of the mind" intention of having themselves be validated by being "different and/or better" than "the rest"?

So what?

Why do I care why someone does what I want, so long as they do it?

There is no such thing as altruism. Everyone does whatever they do in the hopes of a reward, even if it is the intangible reward of feeling good.

My female "friend" asks for a favour, goes ballistic after I ditch her

15 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Never give women money or anything of nontrivial monetary value unless:

- You're buying something from her or selling something to her.
- She's a current sexual partner.
- She's an acquaintance you're not trying to get with, and it's christmas or her birthday or some other gift-giving occasion.
- She's related to you by blood (mother, sister, daughter, etc).

Even if she is a current sexual partner, gifts should be inexpensive and have emotional rather than monetary value.

I've realized that I'm a plan B kind of guy and I'm bitter about it.

15 upvotes · 21 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women like alphas. No one is denying that fact.

Correction. Women like alpha behaviour.

Alpha is as alpha does. There is nothing preventing you from acting like that.

We called it, TRP: BREAKING: Father of 16yr old girl who shot 17yr old boy in daughter's bedroom will NOT be charged

15 upvotes · 19 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Charge the girl.

Spergs, Cynics, and Manipulators: How PowerTalk impacts the lifecycle of cultures.

15 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

They needed rebranding if they were to function outside Office-space. In the real world, not all cynics can be described as losers (some do very well in life), not all manipulators are actual sociopaths (one's a learned behaviour, the other is a congenital condition).

Spergs and clueless are pretty much equivalent, but sperg is intransitive.

Your takeaway from this was supposed to be:

- Spergs, cynics, and manipulators are not born in a constant three-way ratio, but are present in different proportions in society depending on the state of decay of a society.
- This ratio change is what causes societies to decay and collapse.
- Societies are inherently unstable, because it is always beneficial to everyone in general to have the maximum number of spergs, and always beneficial to each and every individual in particular to cease being a sperg and become a cynic or manipulator. Thus, societies can only survive if people act against their own interests, which they will not, in the long term, do.

Actually, AWALT.

15 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Valentine's is coming up and I've made reservations to a swanky restaurant

Mistake #1. Making a big deal about February 14th.

My girl gets a wild hair up her ass every once in a while and tries to give me shit about little things.

Mistake #2. Not permanently correcting the problem.

I got lazy one day and didn't check her apparently because she just read me the riot act on a small oversight on my part.

Mistake #3. Never get lazy. Shit tests are unending.

I have a talk to her about all the stuff I do for her, and gave her a list of things I do for her without a second thought.

Mistake #4. Expecting reciprocity from women. You must tell them what you expect of them. Never wait for gratitude to move them spontaneously.

Things that I do because I want to do them. And that I never expect her to do anything for me, ever Mistake #5. Not having demands and expectations.

it'd be fucking nice if she'd just fucking do the shit without me having to ask.

Mistake #6. Expecting a woman to take the initiative.

Don't you get it? Women want to be led. If you expect her to be a self-starter, she's going to appear very selfish, because she won't do jack shit for you. Women will do things for you, they will make an effort, but you have to tell them what you want, because one thing they won't do for you is take the initiative.

To them, dates and relationships are supposed to be an adventure, a magical roller coaster ride with regular doses of excitement. But the thing about roller coasters is that she doesn't have to steer them. She just has to put her hands up and go "wheeee!".

Women are willing to push a relationship. But not to steer one.

Pregnant from Oral. Father Still Has to Pay

15 upvotes · 6 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

According to the law, Dr. Phillips' sperm wasn't stolen; it was given away, for Dr. Irons to use as she pleased.

Okay, fine. Then it's hers. Hers and hers alone.

And so is the financial responsibility for what she does with it.

Women do not give a shit about your problems!

15 upvotes · 30 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Because femininity means nurturing, caring, understanding, compassionate, loving, and so on.

If they were to say they don't want their man sharing his feelings, they would be saying they don't care about his feelings, and that would make them feel unfeminine.

Think you (or your friends) captured a unicorn? Think again.

15 upvotes · 16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course there is no woman who is absolutely loyal. No one is. Think about it. Are you absolutely loyal to your women? To your friends? To your family?

Of course not.

What matters is if you're loyal enough.

Sexual Assault quiz is a little biased...

15 upvotes · 9 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

Smiling at women is a creepy way of manipulating them into sex! You must be one of those rapey pickup guys!

Don't you know you need to ask a woman's permission before smiling at her, shitlord?

What do you believe about women having careers?

15 upvotes · 19 October 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's a tradeoff.

If a woman chooses to focus on her career and compete with men in the workplace, she won't be as attractive to men, and may have to choose a less desirable mate. If she has kids, she'll have to dial back her career.

If she chooses to focus less on her career, she'll have less of her own money, but men will be more forthcoming with her, and she'll have more time to spend with her children.

The red pill isn't about this or that thing being good or bad. It's about actions having consequences, and lives being a tradeoff in priorities.

Oh the irony (xpost from r/funny)

15 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

This is ~~He-Man~~ a male power fantasy which reinforces the Patriarchy something something rape culture.

Ex-wife fights to keep disappeared husband as "legally dead" so she can continue to loot Social Security and not pay back Social Security, in spite of her ex-husband being alive and well.

15 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

However, there's a legal model for that, too, and it's not "you are dead".

Sue him for child support, whatever. But he's not dead, that's a fact, and when the law starts thinking it can overrule facts, something is clearly wrong.

It's always good to read a Salon Feminist tell us what the real boy's crisis is. (Teaching boys not to be girly).

15 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

School aren't emasculating boys, American masculinity is dehumanizing them.

Soooooooooo... boys are human only if they are not masculine?

"Dear r/relationships: Convince me that my girlfriend is a helpless infant who had no choice but to give her phone number to another man."

15 upvotes · 8 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The funny part is where a girl tries to set these guys straight and tell them the truth about what this action means from a woman, they downvote her to oblivion.

http://np.reddit.com/r/relationships/comments/1lz0bx/my_m22_girlfriend_f21_gave_her_number_to_a_guy_at/c45rok

An open letter to single mothers.

15 upvotes · 5 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Then she's a widow, not a single mother.

You seem confused about when a failed relationship becomes a red flag. Let me highlight for you.

You were once in a relationship, which you saw as serious enough to have a child in. That relationship failed.

A wise woman discusses how she feels about being "the most mature teenager in the house".

15 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I know her personally, so yes, she's a woman.

At first I thought it was some gender superiority bull shot

I take it you're new to this subreddit? Stick around. If you read carefully, you'll find that most of our views on sex, relationships, men, women, society, and civilization, are a lot more nuanced than certain ideological dogma-book thumpers would have you believe.

Of course men aren't the only ones who are those protectors of innocence. Women can also be single mothers.

One of the problems with this is that women have traditionally been responsible for raising children and have been shielded in a state of greater innocence and childishness, and of less toughness and maturity for precisely this reason.

In other words, providing for children requires maturity and toughness, and nurturing children requires immaturity and softness. Asking someone to play both roles is a tall order, since they are contradictory in nature.

Women Aren't Attracted To Men

15 upvotes · 9 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I am indeed. Redpillschool did some housecleaning.

Good thing, too. TRP was developing a bit of a siege mentality. Sure, we get plenty of hate and trolls, but it's important not to get ban-happy, lest we cease to become a discussion group and start becoming an agreeing-with-each-other group.

Even the blue pill types, the haters, are valuable, so long as they can make an articulate argument... this is because we need to have our basic premises questioned all the time. Feminism got to be the distortion that it is by excluding any voices that disagree with concepts like the "Patriarchy", then speaking to a roomful of people who never questioned that idea again.

So we need people in here occasionally who disagree with ideas like hypergamy, because an idea you can't support with arguments doesn't deserve to be accepted. We need constant practice at questioning and supporting our basic premises to remain intellectually honest.

Now, I was banned for religious dissent, not arguing with red pill concepts, but the principle remains the same.

so many things to address...the decline of /r/theredpill, a man's obligation to "train" a woman to be red pill, and other thoughts.

15 upvotes · 7 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, good.

First, some basic facts. I feel comfortable asserting these as facts, because I do not think you, or much of anyone else besides a few hardcore bluepill types, would disagree with them. Basic stuff.

1. Women are the gatekeepers of sex, men are the gatekeepers of relationships.
2. Every hookup, at the moment it happens, is a potential pump-and-dump, and a potential LTR. To speak of a man who isn't interested in an LTR is as silly as speaking of a woman who's DTF. Whether a woman is DTF depends on the guy, and whether a man is willing to LTR depends on the woman.

3. Someone with good game is someone who is good at passing through the gateways set up by the opposite sex. A man with good game can get sex from women easily. A woman with good game can get relationships from men easily.
4. The hookup market and the relationship market are two distinct markets.
5. Women have a higher value than men on the hookup market than on the relationship market, since more men than women are interested in no-commitment flings. (A female 5 can get fucked by a male 8, but she usually cannot get a second one from him, much less commitment or monogamy.)
6. It is a woman's distinct partner count, not her sexual act count, that is related to her relationship value. (A woman who has had sex with the same man 1000 times is more desirable than a woman who has had sex once with 50 different men.)

Okay? All in agreement? Now let's put our axioms together in some deductions, by walking through the timeline of how women and men acquire partner count.

- Man meets woman. If he has good game, and his hookup market value is high enough compared to hers, they have a sexual encounter. (#1 and #5) If not, repeat this step with a different man.
- At this stage, the interaction is either a relationship or a hookup (#2).
- If a woman has good game and her value is high enough on the relationship market compared to his, a relationship ensues. (#1 and #3) Take her off the market, with a partner count increase of only 1.
- If she does not have good game or high enough market value, repeat this from the start until it stops, incrementing her partner count by one each time.

Can you see what's going to happen? Men with good game will accumulate partner count quickly until they meet a woman who is desirable relationship material.

Women who are desirable relationship material will accumulate partner count slowly (+1 after each breakup, basically, and the better they are, the longer before each breakup). Women who are not will accumulate partner count more quickly.

So can you see what happens? Women aren't "keepers" because they have a low partner count. They have a low partner count because they are "keepers".

A high partner count for a woman is the symptom, not the disease.

How this works is that a woman with 50 prior partners is a woman who wasn't a keeper for 50 other guys. That's why I won't keep her either. Not because of the 50 other guys, but because the consensus of those 50 other guys tells me about her.

So maybe it would be helpful to reframe our understanding of the word "slut". A slut is a woman who provides no value other than than sexual availability, and hence she cannot secure relationships.

This is why I have no qualms about seducing women. My job, as a man, is to have good man game, and pass through the gate of sex. Her job, then, as a woman, is to have good woman game, and pass through the gate of relationship. If I dump her after pumping her, that's not my fault. It's hers. She didn't make me want to stay. Trying to shame me for not giving a relationship to an unworthy women is like trying to shame a woman for not giving sex to an unworthy man.

It is the death of girl game, not the death of sex-restrictive social rules, that have given rise to the slut.

In yesterdays posts the whole thing just clicked on a much higher level than before. Are we on to something new?

15 upvotes · 22 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Let me ask a question. Unless a woman has an easy life e.g. housewife, we cannot really assume all her behavior is about us. For example, if she has a hard job like waitressing, then it is reasonable that she is tired, sweaty, has leg and back pain in the evenings, that makes her grumpy, not in the mood for sex etc. this makes sense. Would you punish in such a situation

Yes, absolutely. Letting frustrations that have nothing to do with me, spill over into disrespectful behaviour towards me... that's bad behaviour.

If she needs comfort from me, then she needs to ask me for it, not be bad tempered and rude to me. Letting your discomforts rule your manners is childish behaviour.

Supersonic hamstering: "All men in the Seattle dating scene are shy, timid and undateable. There's no way it could be something wrong with me."

15 upvotes · 9 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I was up in Seattle a little while ago, related to my tech career, and met an old friend to hang out with. She's over 30, and very unattractive; she's been positively smashed by the wall.

I don't care because I'm not gonna bang her. She listens to me talk act about RedPill and men's rights issues in the abstract, because she wants to bang me, even though she realistically knows I am way out of her league.

But she doesn't apply them to herself.

She told me that the Seattle dating scene sucked because all the men were hopeless betas who didn't have to courage to make a move, or toss a woman on the bed and "take her in a manly fashion".

And I was sitting there thinking "I couldn't take you in a manly fashion, because I cannot push cooked linguine through a keyhole, or play pool with a rope for a cue."

I don't know if alpha-acting men exist in Seattle, but I know that if they do, they aren't dating her. It never seemed to occur to her that she might be the problem. That she might be washed up from too many years of self-neglect (or just too many years), and no guy who has options gives her a second glance.

I was more into the hot, feminine, sweet-natured barmaid she introduced me to... until I found out she was a single mother of two. FAIL.

She probably thinks that there are "no good men out there", too.

Anyone notice how often porn features sexually assertive women?

15 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a difference between assertiveness and dominance.

Most porn features female sexual assertiveness because it is trying to portray high female sexual appetite and enthusiasm, all in a script written for, and by, room-temperature IQs.

Hose or Marshmallows?

15 upvotes · 5 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Our fight is not to change society, but to educate men.

We dispense red pills. That is the help we give.

Men do not have to "fix" society, because we didn't break it. Women broke it. The only thing men have to do is stop rewarding them for doing so. This happens when we take the red pill.

We do not need an overarching plan for how to fix things, or for what an ideal society should look like. We do not need to decide whether we want a resurrection of monogamy, or to embrace the changes birth control technology has wrought. We do not need to decide if we are for or against abortion. We do not need a policy on whether women should remain virgins until marriage, whether they should go to college, when they should have children, whatever.

We do not need a plan.

All that men need to do is take the red pill, go on strike, don't get married, and stop giving women free money and attention.

Then it will be up to women to figure out how to incentivize renewed male participation.

Maybe women will step up and start earning their own way through life, not get married, raise children in limited-duration child-rearing-contract partnerships, and we can all ride the cock/pussy train together.

Maybe women will resurrect traditional marriage, honor and obey their husbands, etc.

Maybe women will reverse the order of career and children, by marrying 45 year old men at age 17-20, having a couple of kids while being monogamous, obedient, supportive wives, then going to college in at 35 or 40 when those children are grown, and sexing it up with the younger college men.

Maybe women will assume their share of the burden of building and maintaining civilization, or maybe they will admit they don't want to, and once more cede control and ownership of that civilization back to those who build it.

Maybe women will just gravitate to some other solution I haven't thought of. Doesn't matter.

All we have to do is stop giving our money, our labour, and our lives and dreams, until we receive respect, the fruits of our labours, satisfying sex lives (and control over our sexual and reproductive destinies), and control over the things we built and the wealth we provide.

We don't have to bring a hose.

We are the water.

MRM's point: tons of survivors of sexual assault aren't women. This feminist response is an inconsistent mess and a slap in the face to those of us who were assaulted by women.

15 upvotes · 4 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

The hamster is small, but it is tireless.

Expert: Guys don't want casual sex!

15 upvotes · 18 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is the image that we as MRAs should promote

No.

I would rather we insist that we are human beings, and our individual desires are just as important and worthy as anyone else's... whether it be for lots of sex, or someone we can call our soulmate, or both, concurrently OR consecutively.

Man asks do I know you. Says No I dont. Walks away. Files police report

15 upvotes · 26 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

No.

Don't settle for irrational behaviour from women. Don't let them get away with it by assuming they can't help it.

They can.

They just need to be properly taught.

Feminists demand the right to show off their bodies, whilst simultaneously condemning men for looking at them.

15 upvotes · 25 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

NAFALT, true scotsman, and why don't you tell feminists that?

"Men are basically unevolved dogs", "the Y chromosome is broken", "men are just testosterone damaged versions of women", "all humans are born female". This is the kind of hateful bigotry currently infecting the skeptic movement.

15 upvotes · 5 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

Crossposting to r/atheism

Feeling weird and guilty about sex

15 upvotes · 28 July 2012 · /r/seduction

It's amazing how many male children of single mothers end up like this.

Look, son, you live in a society that tells you male sexuality is poisonous and bad. You never had a father to take you aside and tell you that's bullshit. To encourage you to be what you were born to be. To teach you just how awesome men are.

Women aren't worth more than you. They aren't pure and magical beings made of angelic starstuff. They are animals like the rest of us, and Discovery-channel-fucking is part of the script that's built into our genes.

Disney lies. Romantic comedies lie. Feminist bullshit lies. Your oh-so-saintly-momma lied, too.

Women don't want flowers. They don't want you to get down on one knee and recite poetry. They don't want you to ask permission.

They want you to strut like you know you are the awesomest thing in room, say arrogant and flirty things that make them laugh at your sheer outrageousness, then grab them by the back of the neck and kiss them hard.

Then they want you to take them back to your apartment and fuck them like the piston in a Ferrari.

So why are you still reading this?

Go.

Fucking go do it already.

"To learn who rules over you, simply find out who you are not allowed to criticize." ~Voltaire

15 upvotes · 19 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

The problem with expressing your opinion in a fictional conversation is that you can make the opposition say whatever you want them to.

North Carolina's law mandating that an assault on a female is a more serious offense than an assault on a male is not consonant with modern notions of gender equality

15 upvotes · 4 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

My only rebuttle would be "Why is this" and then they say "Because men are bigger and stronger than women and therefore, women are more likely to sustain greater damage in an assault"

By this reasoning, professional athletes should receive greater sentences if they commit violent crimes. So should larger and taller people.

Assault? ARE YOU FUCKING KIDDING ME?

15 upvotes · 25 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

There are many, many misdemeanors on the books whose text basically translates to "being an ass in public". He needs to be charged with one of them, spend the night in jail, pay a five hundred dollar fine, and not do it again.

She needs to make this the thirty-second "chuckle story" at the end of the news, and not be such a big fucking baby.

Free legal sessions to empower women. The sessions will be run by all-woman legal firm. Family lawyer welcomes proposed changes to the Family Law Act, expected to take effect mid-year, which would redefine family violence to include the withholding of financial support and psychological abuse.

15 upvotes · 16 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

the withholding of financial support

Never give a woman financial support, or she becomes entitled to it?

"Be sexually aggressive towards older, successful women. That's what they want." I received this advice on a PUA forum, is it appropriate?

15 upvotes · 2 April 2012 · /r/seduction

"Be sexually aggressive towards ~~older, successful~~ women. That's what they want."

FTFY.

Wired thinks you are all a bunch of "sick and deluded" freaks

15 upvotes · 25 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

"Wired" thinks?

When did this start happening?

TwoX hates us so bad, lol.

15 upvotes · 27 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Men who hate seddit/seduction, are women.

No. Why would you say such a horrible thing about women?

Men who hate seddit are white knights and submissive men, who hope to gain female affection by grovelling and appeasement, and are angered by the idea that women don't find these things sexy.

One of the most sexist bigoted articles I've read in awhile "There are four refuges left for men who cling to male hegemony and stereotyped masculinity. They are: the National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun culture; the military; the Christian right; and pornography."

15 upvotes · 4 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

I also love the way they use the term "gun culture" to make scary noises about how guns are associated with all sorts of vaguely referenced scary things.

Kind of like how the right wing uses "gay culture".

Being called "Creepy" ostracizes people, usually men. If you're a creep shamer, fuck you!

15 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

use a term that has sinister connotations (i.e. rape, mental instability, etc) to be dismissive of people that they find unattractive

Well said.

The term "creepy" really just means "that makes me uncomfortable". But a mentally healthy human being, when confronted with something that makes him uncomfortable, will ask himself why, engage in a little introspection, and come up with a more specific term.

It is only the spoiled individual, the entitled individual, who sees their discomfort as someone else's problem, that doesn't ask anything further of themselves. They just slap a label on it and insist that it stop, without even bothering to explain what "it" is.

It's shit like this Feminists (First post, not sure if a repost. I can't find it.)

15 upvotes · 6 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

The reason fathers are becoming absent is that they are being driven away.

A man who makes sacrifices that are honoured and appreciated is a hero. A man who makes sacrifices that are taken for granted and denigrated is a sucker.

Attempting to solve the problem of male disengagement by telling them to "just man up" is to tell them to keep giving where they do not receive, loving where they are not loved, and taking responsibility where they have no power.

It isn't that there are no responsibilities associated with manhood, it is that they come as a package deal with rights. When the rights are taken away, so go the responsibilities.

Let's play the non reactive game (version 1. Game 1)

15 upvotes · 1 July 2011 · /r/seduction

"And yet, still, it's me that you are looking at. "

Should a 'Trans-girl' let you know that she used to be a man before sex? Not according to the folk of /r/transphobiaproject.

15 upvotes · 8 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

The amount of hubris that people who theorize about gender issues allow themselves is breathtaking.

...taking it upon themselves to decide how everyone "should" think about gender, what gender "is", and what people "should" and "shouldn't" be comfortable with.

Horrible post about how a lot of men don't like consensual sex, click link to see

14 upvotes · 15 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'll tell you the precise moment a man wants a woman to "give up" sex.

It's the moment when he sees that she understand who he is, rather than seeing him as "some dude". That's the moment where sex stops meaning "she bangs strangers", and starts meaning "she really likes me".

Got kicked hard in the groin last night by a girl showing me her 'self defence' moves. Was laughed at and told to get over it as they have to deal with periods and child birth....

14 upvotes · 29 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

I think you need to learn to defend yourself. Taking boxing classes or something or BJJ.

Don't give advice you haven't taken.

It's very clear from this comment that you have little or no unarmed combat training.

Many of you don't know what "Frame" is

14 upvotes · 6 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

when some egotistical MIT grad comes at you with his credentials, clearly trying to score points for being wicked smaht, rather than bust out your credentials if you have them, you can quickly shut him down by using A&A in the context of said smahts. "Oh yeah, I'm just a regular guy, I wish I was as smart as you."

This sort of thing is happening on a societal scale as well.

"Science™" and Ivy League credentials are being used today in the way that the religious sects of the past used "Jesus™" as a sort of ultimate authority figure who says whatever its invoker wants, which cannot be questioned on pain of a charge of heresy.

If you don't want to go vegan, sell your cars, celebrate "Pride Month", verbally express shame over your heritage, cut your energy usage by half, nationalize the medical industry, inject yourself with hastily-tested recombinant mRNA to make your own body generate toxic spike proteins, consume Product™, or generally work to unravel western civilization... then you are deluged with indirect quotes from "experts" who are never available to answer your uncured questions.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

14 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

"Just joking" is very vague, and clearly it's not really communicating any sort of message to you.

This leads us to two possible conclusions:

- Either he doesn't want you to understand, and his purpose is upset you.
- He's trying to say something that he is afraid to say more directly.

Now, many respondents have leaped with great alacrity to the first conclusion, and gone on to call him abusive. They might as well be saying "Look at ME! Look what a compassionate, supportive person I am! Showing you how great I am is far more important than taking up MY valuable time having an actual conversation about what might be going on!"

We still might, in the fullness of time, reach the conclusion that this is abusive behaviour, but abuse is a means, not an end. It doesn't tell us what it is he wants, and that is what we are trying to figure out, here.

Additionally, people who abuse their partners don't just find one way of doing it. Is he hitting you? Verbally insulting and denigrating you? Threatening you with harm if you don't do exactly as he says?

Or is his treatment of you generally supportive and loving, apart from this weird habit of sending you these pictures?

Update: Letting my husband pursue me.

14 upvotes · 6 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, your husband is also a coward.

You are both so afraid of saying something that might make you look bad, or get someone else upset at you, that you have literally waited until your relationship was on the rocks to start being honest with each other.

Not that I believe for a moment that either one of you is being completely honest even now.

Women don't think that women can make adult decisions and be held accountable for those decisions

14 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

You have no idea what I think. Nor do you have any idea where you are. Or what the local mores are. You've just wandered in here from mainstream reddit, and you're so far out of your depth that the fish have lights on their noses.

You see the part on sidebar that says "You are REQUIRED to read these before posting. Ignorance of the rules is not an excuse." ?

Yeah, that's the part you missed.

Bye now.

Seriously, I'm done holding doors and making space in the walk aisle.

14 upvotes · 31 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

This may seem a small thing, but you have grasped the essential point of TRP.

Women and society have stopped repaying male protectiveness and care, so it's time to reserve those things for those you have a personal relationship with. TRP is here to train you in how to turn your protective instincts off when you need to.

What's Your D@mn Hurry, You Young Whippersnappers!?!

14 upvotes · 24 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

u/crazyhorseinvincible

How to deal with extremely blue pill advice from my parents?

14 upvotes · 12 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

You don't need to persuade them of anything, because you do not need their permission.

Just nod, smile, thank them for the advice, and then do what you were going to do.

Soft next vs explicitly enforcing boundaries?

14 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/askTRP

This is the difference between Indifference Game and Control Game.

If you just met her, trying to tell her what to do is autistic. She has low investment in you and can easily just say "no". Then what will you do? Beat her or something? You have no play, and you look like a sperg. In this stage, you ignore minor shit, and next for anything bigger.

When is invested in you, passes compliance tests, and values your opinion of her above that of others, then you must tell her what you expect, because no matter how much she respects you, she's not a mind reader.

Threesomes are mostly silly and definitely overrated

14 upvotes · 2 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

For you, the day you had a threesome was a momentous occasion, which was as awkward and uncomfortable in execution as it was exciting and fulfilling in anticipation.

For me and my two LTRs, the day we had a threesome was... Tuesday.

Your discomfort and disappointment is contained entirely within you.

This whole women are not rehabilitation centers for badly raised men is a huge double standard.

14 upvotes · 8 December 2020 · /r/MensRights

- Women are not rehabilitation centers for psychologically damaged men.
- Men are not welfare programs for lazy and broke women.
- Women are not vending machines where you insert kindness coins until sex falls out.
- Men are not slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the commitment jackpot.

Any questions?

What in the fresh hell is this

14 upvotes · 3 December 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

Whether or not you think taking estrogen and acting female is sufficient to transform a man into a woman is your business. You get to make that decision for yourself.

What you don't get to do, and no one else does either, is make that decision for others.

How to get past boyfriend's sexual history

14 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

/u/LuckyLittleStar

+1 for this.

To state this as a general principle:

Women are the gatekeepers of sex, and they are at their most sexually available, and most sexually adventurous, with the men they hold in highest esteem.

Similarly, men are the gatekeepers of relationships, and they are the most committed with the women they hold in highest esteem.

If your man slept with 100 women, and committed to none of them, and then met you and you're buying a house together.... then congratulations, you won.

My LTR (7 years) Just Moved Out

14 upvotes · 15 September 2020 · /r/askTRP

Any girl who pressures you to marry her, rather than incentivizing you to marry her, is not a girl you should marry.

Why do a lot of females get angry when you talk about how they are like?

14 upvotes · 5 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Why are you paying attention to what women say?

Single Motherhood, Vetting, and why Redpill should be taught to young man at school

14 upvotes · 20 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

What you are actually seeing is women's complaints being legally and socially upheld by either weak men, or by self-interested men who have political careers.

To expand upon this, one of the primary realizations that leads to exiting the anger phase and growing the fuck up, is the realization that everything is men's fault. Women are not actors, they are objects. Anything they do is a reaction to the environment men create around them.

Nothing about society can ever be women's fault in the same sense that allowing a four year old to play in the control room of a nuclear reactor does not make the four year old responsible for any subsequent meltdowns.

Everything that angry young men want to call a "matriarchy" is simply the fault of men who decided they would look like nice guys if they pretended women were adults instead of children.

Chad, Dylan, and the Myth of "the Bad Man"

14 upvotes · 25 July 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's for the best. You are a beautiful free spirit and need to be allowed to soar. Dylan wouldn't want to hold you back.

Oh, great. Now you've got me doing it, too.

Did I pass this shit test?

14 upvotes · 18 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

That's not a shit test. That's a total lack of interest. Why are you still wasting your time?

25M/22F I found out the girl I'm meeting soon is in a seemingly loving and public relationship. What is going on here?

14 upvotes · 11 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

If girl cheats with you, the relationship is essentially over whether it publicly appears so or not.

Every single damn time a girl has cheated on somebody with me, it starts out with them playing it off as just some fun, or "experimenting" (whatever the fuck that might mean), or "taking a break", but it always comes out that they are unhappy and have lost attraction for boyfriend/husband.

Women are inherently monogamous, but not necessarily to their acknowledged mate. They are monogamous to whoever they desire the most and think they can have. Only a very badly broken woman loses this tendency.

This means you have zero chance with a woman who is enthralled with her man, but if she isn't, getting her to cheat is like getting a duck to eat bread.

Be prepared for a lot of (possibly even sincere) weeping about how she just can't make it work. Chuckle and enable the fuck out of her.

Remember that there is no such thing as a homewrecker. The home was already wrecked. You're just a cleanup crew.

Is sex the main reason guys have relationships?

14 upvotes · 3 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

No.

Girls are the gatekeepers of sex, but they still want sex.

Men are the gatekeepers of relationships, but they still want relationships.

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

14 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Would you not say though - and I ask you as THE person who would know - that feminism has engendered the social climate that makes the red pill necessary in the first place?

People tend to ask why things happen, until they reach something they wish to blame, then they stop asking why that bit happened.

Feminism can be identified as the cause of a lot of bad shit, but what is it an effect of? What caused feminism? When you understand that feminism is itself caused by larger socioeconomic forces, then you understand feminism as a symptom, not the disease.

I see your point about each one must do it for himself, but why is there an absence in men for the instinct to cohere, on principle, to an ingroup?

Because men come together for missions, not to gossip, socialize, or be part of something. And here, there is no overarching mission. My mission is me. Your mission is you. We can compare notes, but not work together.

Want a powerful voice? Here is how.

14 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

And?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

14 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Same. Really.

First of all, we are barbarians who don't care about art. Second, we don't really care what your audience thinks of us, either.

This isn't about how we confront an audience that's assumed to be hostile. It's about how we really don't confront an audience at all.

We're not raising awareness, we're changing our own behaviour.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

14 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The girl crouching under my desk is supplying extra hands so I can type properly. Unfortunately, her sister won't fit... I need a bigger desk.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

14 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP in its entirety is here to answer that question. I cannot meaningfully distill it for you. You're going to have to read, test, and sort like everyone else (because that is a necessary part of the process).

Abandon your desire for a step by step guide, and take responsibility for yourself.

When a girl asks if you have an IG, and you don't, but she asks why... What do you say?

14 upvotes · 4 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm busy living my life, not taking selfies of it.

Hypergamy is Monogamy

14 upvotes · 10 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Any other kind of relationship inverts the natural power dynamic that helps attraction remain strong. You want to fuck around. She doesn't want you to. There is no middle ground... either you do what you want, or you do what she wants.

There can be no equal partnerships between men and women. If she is not your slave, then you will be hers.

Women out of your league sending you "IOIs" = Beta Orbiter recruitment?

14 upvotes · 4 November 2018 · /r/askTRP

Every IOI is potential orbiter recruitment.

That's why you must escalate quickly, and bail if you fail.

I don't want a trad-con man

14 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Liberal social circles tend to have a lower standard for acceptable n-counts, but men of any stripe prefer a smaller count to a larger one in a partner.

Plan accordingly.

Struggling to adjust to RP dating mindset

14 upvotes · 24 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I would need strong affirmation that he really wanted to be with me, which he's capable of communicating if he wants to.

So, in other words, you want to be chased, so you made a covert contract, sat there silently with expectations you haven't even expressed, and told yourself this was RP.

Idk if its my pride

Duh.

or the RP philosophy of men being the chasers / pursuers

What?

Telling him would be honest but terrifying.

Which is what this is really all about.

Time to put the big girl panties on and use your words.

Ditch the Resume

14 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Wait, I still don't quite get the gist of this. So men who date college educated women do so only because of the circumstances, not because it is an actual minimum requirement?

Yes, you exactly get the gist of this. That is precisely it.

College education is bare minimum these days.

Nope.

And why would a highly educated man not care?

Because a highly educated man is still a man.

Would they not want to have someone who is an intellectual equal? That they can actually talk to about their deepest interests?

Yes, and yes. Absolutely.

But he doesn't care if you have a college degree. That's not how he gauges your ability to do that.

Women look at resumes. Men throw your resume directly into the garbage without reading it, and evaluate you in the interview.

I'm liberally minded in my political beliefs, and tend to date more artistic guys who see the world similarly. Do I have hope at a RP relationship?

14 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I think I see your problem.

Let's suppose you were talking to a man who isn't "practically emasculated", as you describe liberal men. Let's suppose he says something about how liberals, as a group, don't like men very much, and don't really listen to conservatives.

Which would be a more appealing approach?

A. Refusing to speak to him at all.

B. Telling him that he's a nazi.

C. Telling him that you don't need to listen to conservatives, because you already know what they think, because someone told you about them.

D. Telling him that you don't need to listen to conservatives, because you already know what they think, because you already have, and here's what they think.

D. Telling him that you aren't like that, and you do listen, and here's documented evidence of what conservatives you have listened to.

E. Asking what he would say if liberals did listen.

F. Making it personal, and saying "I'm sorry you haven't felt heard. That must be frustrating. What is it I should know about you that people like me haven't been willing to listen to?"

Most of the time, when a woman asks "Where have all the good men gone?" the painful answer is "Away from you."

Masculine men want feminine women (actually, so do unmasculine men, but no one cares what they want).

Am I wasting my time in trying to get laid?

14 upvotes · 18 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

I'm 19 ... and my mom doesn't let me

Isn't it cool how I can answer someone's question just by repeating the relevant bits of it?

What is it about me that repels men so much?

14 upvotes · 16 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm reminded of a quote: "Before thinking that you're a horrible person, first check to see if you have surrounded yourself with assholes."

I, too, am reminded of a quote:

If you meet an asshole once in the course of your day, you met an asshole. If you meet all assholes, every day... you're the asshole.

Young, educated, well traveled, well read....and expecting?

14 upvotes · 1 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

So if I have this baby, I will be doing it alone.

Bad idea. Children need fathers.

I won't discuss abortion one way or the other here, because this group is not for arguing about what is right and wrong. But if that is not an option, let someone adopt the child.

You need to get your relationships in order before you can be ready to be a mother. And you will NEVER be ready to be a father.

How can I become a unicorn if I am an orphan?

14 upvotes · 20 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I have an amazing boyfriend and I don't want to fuck things over, he deserves a unicorn but right now I am just a decent horse at most.

This is a good first step.

Most women's greatest obstacle is actually admitting to themselves that they are not a special magic fairy princess who deserves everything the world has to give just for the wondrous act of existing with girl parts.

The rest is just work.

How did this nigga handle the talk?

14 upvotes · 5 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Check the hair-twirling at the end.

(Ignore what women say. Watch what they do.)

What is the male complement/equivalent to female hypergamy?

14 upvotes · 6 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

A key concept to understand here is that of satisfaction vs maximization.

When you are buying a waffle iron, you don't spend weeks doing research and reading reviews, make big lists of pros and cons, and agonize over the decision. You just look at waffle irons until you see one that meets your waffle-related needs, then you buy it and fuck off back home.

When you are buying a house, you spend a lot more effort. You look at all the houses (or at least all you can until you get exhausted from looking) and try to get the absolute best one you can afford.

The reason for this is that buying a waffle iron in no way inhibits your ability to acquire a better one if you should happen to see it. But once you buy a house, it's not so easy to afford another one.

To men, women are waffle irons. To women, men are houses.

This is what "hypergamy" actually means. It means that women instinctively try to maximize when choosing a man, while men simply satisfy when choosing a woman. A woman who is conversing, at a party, with a 2 8s and a 9 will be completely unable to see the 8s as attractive at all, even if she would have drooled over them the week before, and will over another 8 that she meets next week when he is not standing next to a 9.

A man in this same situation will just want to bang all three. Preferably at the same time.

So why are men able to see and consider all good options, while women are blind to anything but the best?

Because for women, it costs to switch.

Badly alpha widowed. What can I do?

14 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

That depends on you. You can't come at this with the attitude of "there must be a solution to this problem, just tell me the step by step instructions so I don't have to think".

In my experience, if a man who can't afford a Porsche test drives one, he will say "awesome car", then go out and buy a new Honda and be happy with it because it's new and shiny and a pretty good car.

If a woman who can't afford a Porsche test drives one, she will think she deserves a Porsche, become morose that she can't have one, hate her car, hate the shiny new Honda she bought because she hated her old car (it's not a Porsche), rail at the unfairness of the universe because she can't afford the Porsche she so clearly deserves, get angry at her daddy and her husband because they can't or won't buy it for her, and spend the rest of her life pawing at pictures of them in magazines.

She has three options:

- Spend the rest of her life obsessed with some car she can't have.
- Get over her high self esteem problem and realize that she isn't all that special, and doesn't deserve the best unless she does something to earn it.
- Work hard and save until she can afford the thing she wants.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

14 upvotes · 10 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you 100% don't care about a woman, its silly to upgrade her past plate status.

If you 100% don't care about a girl, you can't upgrade her to LTR status.

The LTR is the act of allowing yourself to care about her. If you don't feel that, any promise you make is just a bullshit lie to get your dick wet.

The more a girl invests in you, the more control over her you have. The more control you have, the more you can care about her without losing the upper hand.

Got the 'We should try not having sex' shit test. How'd I do?

14 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Don't discuss or debate.

me: "thats not gonna work for me Nah."

her: "why"

Me: "sex is part of a healthy relationship Not into that."

Now she can't argue. What is she going to say, "yes you are?"

Beta males try to justify their preferences. Alpha males just state them.

Why is Reddit so Left-Wing?

14 upvotes · 3 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

Low testosterone. Bad social skills. No meaningful accomplishments.

CNN Rips Aziz Ansari Accuser, Calls Allegations 'Reckless and Hollow'

14 upvotes · 17 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We are crossing a point now where even liberal, prominent women or groups are calling out these allegations.

Duh.

They were designed as a weapon against white men. The left is just upset that this weapon turns out to have splash damage.

Am I out of his league?

14 upvotes · 21 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

I've read the book "He's Just Not That In To You" a few years ago

If you still have it, set fire to it.

Failed connections usually happen for one of two reasons:

- Man thinks too little of himself, lacks confidence, doesn't approach.

- Woman thinks too much of herself, doesn't put in any effort, figures it's all his job.

Pussy is a Commodity.

14 upvotes · 15 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That was rather vague. Seems like you're a bit surprised that I didn't just curl up in shame and apologize. I'm not quite certain you know where you are.

Welcome to the Hallowed Halls of the Happy Misogynist Clan. We kinda started out as a pickup forum. Then at some point we discovered a very surprising thing... the less respect we treated women with, the more respect they treated us with.

I know. Messed up, right?

But also really interesting. So we poked at this idea a bit more, experimented, and the rabbit hole actually went pretty deep. It's helped us turn some unhappy, self-hating incels into pretty chill dudes.

So, no, I don't expect you to get it right away. It all kinda runs against most people's whole worldview. That's why we call it the red pill. If you're curious, start with the sidebar.

Got a girl flying in to visit me in a few weeks. Tips?

14 upvotes · 29 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

So far you're doing all right.

You just need to strike that balance between "not afraid to be aggressive and openly pursue sex" and "not thirsty as fuck and afraid of missing an opportunity".

Remember that what feels like "just about right" is usually "not far enough", and what feels like going too far is usually about right.

Also remember that if you fumble, it's no big deal. It's training. Use what you learned on the next woman.

Don't buy a rental car

14 upvotes · 2 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed.

Evolution is a description of what happens, not a set of ethical imperatives.

The universe does not come with instructions. There's no set of goals carved in tiny letters on neutrons, or woven out of vast ribbons of galaxies that make up the Sloan Great Wall.

If you want existence to have a point, you gotta pick it yourself. If your choice makes you unhappy, then it's you who screwed up.

Is this an effective dating strategy for "ugly women"?

14 upvotes · 8 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

This sounds like a recipe for being stuck as a plate.

A male 7 or 8 will have sex with a 5. In fact, a 5 woman can easily get sex with a 7 or 8 man, because women are in greater demand in the NSA sex marketplace, and only the NSA sex marketplace.

In fact, any woman can have sex with a man who is out of her league. What she cannot do is keep him.

Because a man can have sex with any number of women, but he can only commit to one... unless he's Muslim, some sort of Mormon throwback, or a real counterculture studmuffin.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/R/K_selection_theory

That means that when he picks hookup partners, he's going to r-select or "satisfy"... he'll fuck any woman who is above a certain minimum standard.

But when he picks a girlfriend, he's going to k-select, or "maximize"... he'll carefully choose his best option. And while "prettiest" isn't all of "best", it is a great big whopping piece.

So an unattractive girl has a few options:

- Be a plate (not a good recipe for long term happiness).
- Resolve not to punch above her weight class, and stick to that resolution (yes, this means rejecting men for being too attractive).
- Try to offer a better deal in other ways. (Not too effective.)
- Have the plastic surgery.

Mother Who Filmed Herself Raping Her 1-Year-Old and Sold it for $300 Gets House Arrest and Community Service

14 upvotes · 7 April 2016 · /r/MensRights

"He was sucking on my titties, cried when i wouldn't let him have them.

Clearly he is a rapist, and she was only trying to educate him in why rape is wrong.

Send him to prison and give her a medal!

How do I tell my girlfriend. "don't bother coming over unless you're going to put out" without saying exactly those words?

14 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

There another way to get this point across without being accused of being an insensitive asshole?

See, you think that's bad result. It's not. It doesn't matter whether women approve of you or not... only if they take you seriously.

If she calls you an insensitive asshole, cheerfully agree.

Then she will either dump you or fuck your brains out, and either one is a win.

Has anyone had success slowly transforming your LTR into your ideal woman?

14 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/askTRP

It feels like I'm training a dog sometimes...

This is exactly correct. Gentle and patient but firm and unyielding.

In general, it is a bad idea to try to "fix" a broken or unworthy woman, and a good idea to polish one that is good, but not perfect.

There are plenty of women out there, but you will never find exactly what you want, so if your goals are a relationship with your ideal (rather than grinding volume), then you will have to polish and customize.

The RedPill lens: Miss USA dumps Tim Tebow due to "lack of sex"

14 upvotes · 30 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Plus who knows, maybe there is a god.

And maybe there is a giant teapot made out of pink diamonds orbiting Aldebaran. But until we see one scrap of evidence, I'm going to assume there isn't.

Anything which has no discernible effect might as well not exist.

A lot of the lessons and claims though about men, women, society and all that, are right up our alley.

So what? Religion is simply a propaganda tool, and any propaganda tool can be used to sell any story.

The whole metaphor of the red pill is about seeing what is in front of you, rather than what you have been told is there. Religion is all about believing what you are told, rather than the evidence of your eyes.

Yes, a lot of what we would call "red pill" values got packed into some religions way back when, but when they became separated from real-world explanations, they became blue pill. Also useless. Also doomed.

Almost got robbed at a LGBT event in hipster brooklyn. Everyone just watched it happen. Then I got lectured for using offensive words against the man trying to rob me.

14 upvotes · 13 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Starting to sound a little butthurt there.

You don't really understand straight men, do you? They're not afraid of being gay. They know they're not gay.

They're afraid of being seen as gay. Because then they face all the stigma of being gay, with none of the compensations (because those can only be enjoyed by men who actually are gay).

"I know about sureness," said Didactylos. 'I remember, before I was blind, I went to Omnia once. And in your Citadel I saw a crowd stoning a man to death in a pit. Ever seen that?'

'It has to be done,' Brutha mumbled. 'So the soul can be shriven and-'

'Don't know about the soul. Never been that kind of philosopher,' said Didactylos. 'All I know is, it was a horrible sight.'

'The state of the body is not-'

'Oh, I'm not talking about the poor bugger in the pit,' said the philosopher. 'I'm talking about the people throwing the stones. They were sure all right. They were sure it wasn't them in the pit. You could see it in their faces. So glad it wasn't them in the pit that they were throwing just as hard as they could.'

- Terry Pratchett

The AF-BB dichotomy is a very flawed concept.

14 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

AFBB isn't a description of male sexual strategy. It's a description of female sexual strategy.

Women don't necessarily want AFBB.

They want the total package... exciting alpha males who can make them orgasm like the world is ending and provide them with a stable relationship. But there are only so many alpha males... not enough for every woman to have a relationship with one. And not all of them want relationships at all.

So women adapt a strategy of distributing their wants, instead of trying to find one man who satisfies all of them.

A single beta male relationship partner provides ego-gratification, favours, labour, money, etc. A rotation of alpha male sexual partners provide excitement, passion, and sexual satisfaction.

In return, alphas receive sex with no strings, or very few, attached. What a beta receives in return depends upon how total her dominance over him is. More self-assured and assertive members of the beta set receive regular maintenance sex and are treated with a facsimile of courtesy (but not with real respect). At the other end of the continuum are betas in dead bedrooms or "open relationships" (which are always theoretically open in both directions, but she can get NSA sex easily and he can't).

But women don't only get into relationships with BB, because AFBB isn't their plan A, it's their plan B. It's what they do if they can't get a relationship with an alpha.

What does this mean for males? It means make damn sure you aren't BB, because in this game, alphas win, and women win... it's betas that lose. So, if you want a relationship, have one, but make damn sure she sees you as the alpha "total package", and not BB.

How do you do that? Simple.

Women behave differently towards a man they see as alpha, and the man they see as beta. Any one of a number of behavioural observations can serve as a litmus test.

- Women have sex with betas when she decides to. Women have sex with alphas when he decides to.
- Women command betas. Women obey alphas.
- Women demand fidelity from betas, then cheat on them. Women will give fidelity to alphas, then tolerate them cheating.
- Women are more grateful for the slightest gesture from an alpha than they are for the grandest from a beta.

... and so on.

One of the things I've discovered in mentoring men on TRP is that plenty of men want relationships, and are not happy with a endless series of tinder encounters. These men can have what they want, they just have to make sure that they are not in the BB role.

Redpillers: how would you react to an ugly woman "gaming you"?

14 upvotes · 6 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Wouldn't even work for a gorgeous woman. That's man-game.

AF or Orbiter?

14 upvotes · 3 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

I can respect that you're in a relationship blah blah blah blah

Weak.

You must always appear to give fewer fucks than she does. Otherwise, she is in control of you, and she knows it. Instant vaginal dryness.

This means not only must you not say anything about giving a fuck, you must also not spend too much effort explaining that you don't. Why would you waste your time explaining yourself to a woman you don't give a fuck about?

One word answers. Lackadaisical. Never complain, never explain. If she says she's in a relationship, say "k". If she says she wants to hang out as friend say "Sure. Bring condoms."

Immediately lose interest if she's not doing what you want. You have absolutely no power over her but your disinterest. You must use that disinterest ruthlessly.

Why do women these days collect mental illnesses like they're fucking scout badges.

14 upvotes · 10 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

The wife complains about a problem until her husband fixes it. You'd think that the husband would then be appreciated for fixing the problem, but that's not how things work in girl-world. In girl-world, the person who first notices the problem and complains about it is the one who fixed it. In this case, the wife noticed the problem and utilized one of her resources - her husband - to get the job done. So she fixed it, and her husband is a bigass loser for not having fixed it first before she had to.

This is because women live in SocialWorld, and men live in PhysicsWorld. In SocialWorld, anything that effects the physical universe is not an actor, it's a tool. The actor is the person who took Social action to make the tool do its job.

if red pill is so wrong where's the blue pill guide to fulfilment, relationships and workplace success? where are all the people saying they owe their successes in life to blue-pillism?

14 upvotes · 24 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Left wing, right brain. Right wing, left brain.

People who struggle socially are despised by the left because the left is composed largely of those who get by on their social skills rather than their material or productive skills.

The left gains power by playing upon insecurities, constructing a narrative of human injustice to offer an opiate for people's fears of personal failure and just plain bad luck. You are not poor because you lack marketable skills, nor because you lack the drive or talent to acquire them. You are poor because rich people are rich. You are not poor because the economy has been tanked by state mismanagement or because it's too expensive for companies to hire you, or because you had the misfortune to be born the son of illiterate fruit pickers. No, you are poor because an evil person is stealing what is rightfully yours.

It replaces the harsh reality of living in an unjust universe with the heroic fantasy of struggle against unjust people. The basic liberal myth is that the universe itself is just, and that any injustice that exists is therefore the fault of bad people. Whenever a liberal finds an injustice, he must find a human being to blame it on.

Because if human beings are not to blame, if injustice comes from the random nature of the universe itself, then there is no hope of ever creating the perfect utopia that liberals dream of.

This idea is unthinkable, too painful to be confronted. It must be suppressed.

Enter the actual sperg. The guy with poor social skills. The guy who was born with too much left brain, and not enough right.

- To the TRP thinker, this guy is just unlucky. He got a bad hand of cards, it's no one fault, but he's the one who has to play it as best he can, bluff, or draw, or tip over the table grab two handfuls of chips and run. That's because TRP begins with accepting the idea that the universe is unjust.
- The left-wing, feminist, bluepill, SJW cluster of thinker, this man is a victim... at first. His poor treatment at the hands of others is the fault of those others, who are too "intolerant" to accommodate his "neurodiversity".

This idea continues until they meet him. When they meet him, they find him infuriating as well. (Which is to be expected, because that's what poor social skills means.)

However, at that moment, they can no longer blame the others around him, because they have become one of those others. And the idea that they, too, can be unjust, is equally unthinkable.

So they cannot blame no one, and they cannot blame the people around him. The only person left to blame is him. He must be acting obnoxiously on purpose. Not because they have any evidence of this, but because any alternative would shatter their worldview.

Liberals are incapable of imagining a victim without an oppressor. Let a great flood scour New Orleans, and their focus will quickly turn to the "racism" of "inadequate" relief efforts (because they fall short of the ideal). Because you cannot whip up outrage against the rain. You cannot have warm smug feelings of moral superiority to the ocean. You cannot replace the weather with something more enlightened, or make it take a series of sensitivity seminars.

Shit happens. Rain falls. Bridges collapse. Mentally ill people go on killing sprees. Groups of people get into conflicts over resources, and field armies against each other. Some people are born without a fair shot at life. Some times people make huge mistakes that hurt others.

TBP looks for someone to blame, someone to punish so that this will never happen again.

TRP knows that it always will. Start filling sandbags. Fetch the mop. File an insurance claim. Rebuild the shed. Move to another country. Learn game.

Interesting study finds more skilled male gamers are more positive towards women, less skilled male gamers are more negative towards women

14 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're inverting a syllogism.

Red pill or douche bag ?

14 upvotes · 18 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I probably would have left already is she wasn't a 9

That's your problem. Your power in a relationship comes from your ability to walk away.

Soft next.

How much slack should you cut them? Did I overreact?

14 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

You gave way too many fucks.

The impression you want to give is that you have hoes in different area codes. If she doesn't want to come, you can have other plans in five minutes.

If that were your situation, would you say:

"Tell them something came up, they'll understand"

No, you would not.

You would say:

K, later.

And shut up. Then you're busy the rest of the evening.

Man dates TEN attractive women, gets caught, shrugs it off, and plates 10 new women

14 upvotes · 25 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No, they just need to open their mouths to John's cock.

The truth will then be obvious to anyone who's paying attention.

Redpillers: explain why a woman would want to be with you

14 upvotes · 5 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't have to explain it. They do, so I accept that.

If you want to know why, ask them.

Is the redpill damaging or beneficial for young men?

14 upvotes · 1 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Damaging to whom?

Whenever we speak of "damage", we are starting from the standpoint of speaking in a society that does not value men, or care about what outcomes are like for them.

So when our culture speaks of men being "damaged" it means a change that renders them less useful to others, not a change that impairs their quality of life.

Nikita Coulombe on portrayal of men in the media: why there needs to be a reverse Bechdel test

14 upvotes · 27 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

While I don't really think we need to pigeonhole films in this way, I do like to fend off people who wave the Bechdel test around by proposing the Delbech test.

The Delbech test:

- There must be at least two named male characters in it.
- They must be neither incompetent, nor feral, nor depraved.
- They must work together at a task.
- This task must not have the goal of benefiting women, a woman, or society in general.

I then argue that this test measures whether a film sees men as instrumentalities for the benefit of others, or as autonomous individuals in their own right, whose benefit is in and of itself an inherent good (not merely a means of benefiting women).

Is this the best these idiots can come up with? The classic crying manbaby ad hominem

14 upvotes · 30 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

DARVO.

Deny

Attack

Reverse Victim and Offender

CMV The Red Pill gave me advice on not how to be controlled by anyone, not sure where I stand

14 upvotes · 1 March 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I am at a place where I want my respect, but I'm not willing to lose people I care about. I want this view challenged in order to get me thinking, because mentally I feel stuck.

Don't be unwilling to lose the people you care about. Be unwilling to lose the people who care about you.

If you make a positive but unpopular change in your life, you will rapidly find out who cares about you, and who doesn't.

Don't let people AMOG you... even if they claim to be dispensing red pills.

14 upvotes · 2 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh man there's nothing worse than the loser who literally chooses his entire career and life plan according to what other men tell him will get him the best income and best chances of getting laid.

♂

You get it. You cannot become a leader by asking others how to lead. You cannot be confident by asking others how to be confident. You cannot become your own person by choosing your path to please or impress others.

AskHamster post inadvertently reveals the unattractiveness of their major subscribers

14 upvotes · 9 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nonsense, guys. I'm sure she doesn't look a pound over 275.

What Emma Watson didn't say #HeForShe

14 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

Men's Rights activism

... neither means gender equality or claims to. It is activism for the rights men, coupled with the belief that men have some rights.

Unlike feminism, however, it neither contains or expresses the belief that it is the only theory the world needs. It is focused on the issue of men's rights in the same way that the American Cancer Society is focused upon the problem of cancer, and not on every problem.

Why are the feminazis so buttdevastated about the leaked nude pics?

14 upvotes · 1 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well put.

Men have been masturbating for far too long to the "highlight reels" of certain women. But when their uncut raw footage was exposed, they were revealed to be no more than ordinary women, if slightly on the pretty side.

There's only so pretty that women can get, and pretty much every guy alive knows, personally, at least ten or twenty women who are, in reality, just as good looking as female film stars. The only difference is that the film stars have a PR machine dedicated to making them look good.

Now, pretty is good, and it's important for male happiness. But in overvaluing it, we've created an environment where fake prettiness is shown to us from afar... look, but don't touch (because touching will reveal the illusion). We've created an environment where pretty women have too much power, because we foolishly allow them totally control over their own sexuality (something no other member of society has).

And worst of all, we've created an environment where ordinary women don't strive to be pretty, and pretty women don't make an effort to treat men right.

This is all men's fault. We should have been treating pretty girls like ordinary girls. Instead of selecting the nicest hot chick we can find, we should have been selecting the prettiest girl we can find from among the well-behaved.

Bitches, and even ordinary entitled-feeling hot women, should be invisible to us. If they were ignored in favour of their more submissive (or at least more considerate) sisters, then they'd shape up.

Ultimately, men who boast about their lives of "poppin' bottles and fuckin' models" are overvaluing pussy, because they are making the approval of pretty girls the measure of how much of a man they are. This places women in a dominant position over them, in the same way that complimenting someone is an AMOG move... because he, or she, who judges is the judge.

It is not for pretty women to decide who a real man is. It is instead for real men to decide what women are worthwhile.

GS Elevator; rules for being a man.

14 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, boy, another set of rules for being exactly like the author, who has nothing better to do than sit around making up lists of rules!

Inside the mind of a female CEO. Hint: much hamstering

14 upvotes · 24 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In the tech industry, especially with sysadmins and software engineers, it is a common occurrence to ask someone you've laid off to come back and help out for a short time with a system they have a unique understanding of.

But the standard practice is that they receive VERY high hourly rates to do so. IF they choose to.

Do you have sympathy for the guys on r/foreveralone? Are they hopeless omegas or do they have the potential to be great?

14 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, that or an eye patch.

And for fuck's sake USE it.

Her: How did you lose your eye?

You: (Big grin) Capri sun mishap.

Her: No, I'm serious! How?

You: Did a summer internship as a pirate.

Her: C'mon! Tell me.

You: (More banter)

This is the Blue Pill

14 upvotes · 14 April 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

I think it's fair to assume that ALL educated opponents of TRP are either fat, lesbians, ugly, or a loser.

You're basically right, but you left out one.

And that is the wolf in sheep's clothing. Examples are Barack Obama and Hugo Schyhoweverthefuckyouspellit.

Their opposition to TRP ideas takes the form of saying "no, no, no you need to respect women" while thinking "holy shit, man, what are you doing? Stop telling the peasants the secrets! You're supposed to praise feminism in public while fucking other men's wives when their backs are turned! Stop letting the cat out of the bag!"

Why sexual history is EXTREMELY important

14 upvotes · 16 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriage.

Not even once.

Feminist writes piece decrying 300 Movie for "unrealistic male body standards", actual men show up in the comments to lambast her as the weak and projecting woman that she truly is

14 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Eliana Dockterman deserves some credit for trying to be fair. This is more than most feminists have ever done for men.

Unfortunately, she continues the feminist pattern of trying to think for all women, by extending it into trying to think for men as well. If she truly had the kind of "respect" for men that feminists claim they want for women, she would have asked some men what they thought before opening her mouth.

And the answer she would have received would have been:

"We don't want the men of 300 hidden from our sight. We want to look and feel like they do. If you wish to take action on our behalf, then instead of trying to make buff dudes cover up, help us remove obstacles that get in the way of OUR self improvement."

Things like

- Stop putting sugar and high fructose corn syrup in everything.
- Stop replacing black iron gyms (where men lift heavy things and grunt) with "fitness centers" (where women and metrosexuals jog on treadmills, and men get thrown out for grunting). Seriously, if you want to jog, there's an entire world out there.
- Stop promoting "fat acceptance".
- Stop breaking up families. It is from their fathers that little boys learn to play sports, lift weights, practice martial arts, and just generally be active.

Male power fantasy, uh huh

14 upvotes · 1 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

Tsk. You really are naive, aren't you? Either that or disingenuous.

Do you think they don't know exactly what sells? Do you think they don't do market research?

Or you just following the standard feminist "Deny, Attack, Reverse Victim and Offender" response plan?

Is height important in matters of the heart? New study says yes - "13.5 percent of the men wanted to date only women shorter than they are. In contrast, nearly half of the women – 48.9

percent – wante

14 upvotes · 12 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

The feminism algorithm:

1. See something you don't like.
2. Find a possible explanation for why traditional gender roles are to blame.
3. Immediately decide this is the real and only explanation.
4. Run about telling people that all problems will go away when you have stomped out traditional gender roles.

Valentine's Day

14 upvotes · 5 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I just squealed like a little girl.

I'd forgotten this was coming.

A woman cannot tell you how you must proceed. She can only tell you what she wants to experience.

14 upvotes · 15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You have grasped my message precisely. And explained it eloquently.

Man Finds Sex Video of Sexually Reserved Wife Getting Gang-Banged from her College Days. /r/Sex predictably sides with the wife and tries to shame him for wanting to leave her and for resenting her for giving them the sex he never had.

14 upvotes · 25 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Like who keeps a tape of them getting fucked in college in their attic or something?

We keep things we want to remember.

If you had a tape of yourself getting fooled by a postop tranny, you'd not just throw it away, but destroy it with extreme prejudice. If you had a sex tape you made with Olivia Wilde or Christina Hendricks, you'd keep that.

What about "reverse" fitness testing? That is, men testing women?

14 upvotes · 16 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Usually all that's necessary is to watch.

Since women tend to be shielded from serious social censure no matter what they do, they usually don't acquire the habit of burying the crazy very deep.

Mom writes a letter to her sons' female Facebook friends: 'FYI (if you're a teenage girl)'

14 upvotes · 13 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Sir, are you management?

Because you don't understand the problem, but you think you know how it should be fixed; you asked an irrelevant question and complained when you were given the right answer; you are just as lost as before, but now you somehow imagine it to be an engineer's fault.

Simpson's Paradox and Sex Discrimination

14 upvotes · 30 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are shunted by their socialization and education toward fields of graduate study that are generally more crowded, less productive of completed degrees, and less well funded, and that frequently offer poorer professional employment prospects.

Removing denial of female agency:

Women choose fields of graduate study that are generally more crowded, less productive of completed degrees, and less well funded, and that frequently offer poorer professional employment prospects.

Removing irrelevancies and redundancies:

Women choose fields of graduate study that are generally more crowded

Adding relevant detail:

Women choose fields of graduate study that are less demanding, and thus more crowded and harder to get into.

This is just how entitled to your money the average woman feels.

14 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"I don't like this because he is lying" is a rationalization.

First of all, failing to mention something that isn't her business is not a lie.

Second, if he had a bunch of old furniture in storage that he never mentioned, do you think they would be upset about that?

Third, if you start making hypothetical plans for that money, you don't get to claim that it's about the lie, not the money.

Woman to serve 2 months for making a false sexual assault charge that sent a man to prison for 4 years.

14 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

It would be interesting to assemble statistics on how much time was served by each woman sent to prison for this kind of lie, compared to how much time was served by victim in each case.

We could get some sort of mean, and find out how many male days in prison each female day in prison is considered, by the courts, to be worth. Just a ballpark idea of just how much more valued than us they are.

Seven times? Ten times? Twelve times?

Thoughtless selfish dick != Alpha

14 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

So you're saying that because masculinity has been demonized as douchebaggery, young men don't know any other definition, and so the only way they know to try to be more masculine is to act like a douchebag?

Interesting. There's something to that. I think I agree.

But also, be aware that for the same reason, some of what you're spotting as "douchebag behaviour" might just be masculine behaviour that you've been conditioned to think is immoral or destructive.

Getting with another man's woman?

14 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Monogamy is a contract between two people. You are not either one of those people.

If you want to make sure you're being a good person, you can go above and beyond the call of duty, and tell the boyfriend afterwards, so he can dump her.

Is female-dominant sex inherently un-redpill?

14 upvotes · 31 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The red pill is knowledge, not action. Taking the red pill is a metaphor for becoming aware of the way things are. What you choose to do about it is up to you.

I used to be so blue pill, that I came to hate women.

14 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Briffault's Law is actually only a specific case of the general definition of a relationship:

A relationship is an ongoing or recurrent interaction with mutual benefit.

On average, the male geek keeps his dick in his pants

14 upvotes · 15 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

What I never had was the experience a lot of modern geek girls talk about in tech, of being treated like being female meant that I didn't belong.

They don't have that either.

The thing about tech is that it's a field where colleagues assume everyone is an idiot until they prove themselves. Females who are looking for sexism tend to see this happening to them, assume it was happening because they were female, and cry sexism.

If they were looking for racism, or prejudice against blondes, or against left-handed people, they'd find that instead.

Can anyone distill 50 Shades of Grey, once and for all?

14 upvotes · 24 August 2012 · /r/seduction

http://image.ec21.com/image/fsourpai/oimg_GC02532637_CA05420223/Dark_Grey_Color_JSI06801Z_.jpg

I'm all for women agreeing with us, but do we have to always give the biweekly female convert 400+ upvotes while real issues don't see 100?

14 upvotes · 22 August 2012 · /r/MensRights

How about imagining it as "So you became normal and rational despite being raised to be otherwise." ?

Circumcised or Uncircumcised: Does It Matter in Sex?

14 upvotes · 27 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

Sooooooooo... mutilating male infants isn't "legitimately" a violation of their rights?

Or should we just ignore sanity and change our message to make it palatable to wingnuts like you?

I wandered in here today and I'm a little hurt.

14 upvotes · 10 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Facepalm.

NAFALT again. Serious broken record time.

Look if not at all feminists are like that, go tell them so they can change. If you only tell us to make us shut up about them, then you don't care about us or what we're saying, you only want to shut us up.

Go to tell them NAFALT. Because we're sick of hearing it.

What is the best way to convince men who deny the existence of discrimination against men?

14 upvotes · 24 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Don't argue with feminists unless you have an audience. You're trying to convince the audience, not the feminist.

Feminism is a belief system which is not evidence-based, therefore you cannot reverse those beliefs with evidence.

I may have something here, but I need to play it carefully. Help is appreciated.

14 upvotes · 15 January 2012 · /r/seduction

Me: How are you

Her: Single :)

IOI.

If she were just giving you the news, it would have been :

Single :(

Me: Oh really? What should I do about it :)

Not assertive enough. Used a smiley. Asked for directions.

Her: Lol What

Because you weren't assertive enough, not quite comfortable. Backing off a bit, trying to establish plausible deniability.

Me: I was responding to your text from earlier. It took me so long to respond because I was at work.

Never complain, never explain.

Her: Haha yeah, I'm happy about the break up actually

Full retreat mode now, trying to establish specific plausible deniability for the smiley on "single".

So r/seduction Where do I go from here. Do I invite her for coffee or a better date. Considering she JUST got out of a relationship it might be a little pushy

You need to get pushy, fast. By not being assertive enough, you forced her to feel responsible for any potential sexuality/chemistry/romance between the two of you.

Girls don't like that. They want it to look like your idea.

That's why she backed off fast. You can still work this (I think), but you need to be assertive (pushy) very soon.

Women's rights activist vs feminist

14 upvotes · 19 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

"MySpace Angle"

How does inequality hurt men, and how can we feminists help you men fight that inequality? Your thoughts are appreciated!

14 upvotes · 12 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

You're trying to start a conversation... but the problem with conversations of this type (and we've had them before) is that feminism has many precepts which are accepted by feminists as axiomatic, but which others do not agree with at all. But since they are axioms of feminism, feminists try to refer to them, and become confused when asked to support them.

For a feminist, being asked to show evidence of "the Patriarchy" is like being asked to prove that $2 + 2 = 4$.

For an non-feminist, being shown an argument based on the principle of "the Patriarchy" is like being given a proof based on the premise that $2 + 2 = 5$.

This has happened because for several decades now, feminists have had their discussions, and developed their theories, in what they called "safe spaces"; in practice, this meant spaces free of dissenting, non-feminist voices. Agreement from everyone who was included in the discussion masqueraded as universal agreement, and universal agreement masqueraded as evidence.

Thus, allegations of fact become tenets of faith.

To give a concrete example of this:

As a feminist, I believe that this is a man's world. Patriarchy exists.

... When you say that, it's not a presentation of a factual case. It's not even an allegation of fact. It's a declaration of fealty, and a catechism of religious faith. In is no longer something that you, or any feminist, feels any obligation to prove.

But to make an allegation is precisely to undertake the obligation to prove it, and the more extraordinary the claim, the more extraordinary the proof must be. The allegation that society is patriarchal, not only ruled by men, but ruled for men, at women's expense, is a claim requiring quite an extraordinary amount of proof indeed.

And yet you try to make it the premise of our discussion.

In this statement, you are saying to me:

"First, acknowledge that you are privileged and society was built for you. Then, tell me what you're so mad about."

By even using the term "Partriarchy", you dismiss everything I have to say before I even open my mouth. Why should I waste my breath?

Female kicks Male in testicles "as if she was going to punt a football", which made him to fall to the ground for 10 minutes. Male retaliates. Male gets prosecuted.

14 upvotes · 29 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

Kick in the genitals led to assaults

I love how someone was able to write that with no notion whatsoever of the irony involved.

A story about my dad for r/mensrights

14 upvotes · 6 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

OP is confused. "Data" is not the plural of "anecdote".

The threat of these accusations is not that they always happen, or even frequently happen, but that they are a nuclear weapon when they do. Lives need to be preserved every day, but destroying them once is enough.

Some vile and vapid advice these 'nerd loving' girls on my facebook keep posting.

14 upvotes · 28 July 2011 · /r/seduction

No, I understood that.

My meaning was that women don't understand female attraction. The author is making arguments for dating "nerdy" guys in a way that clearly shows she has no idea what actually makes women attracted to men.

I suppose "how to" wasn't the best way to phrase that.

The chickens come home to roost: when a feminist's son is falsely accused of rape

14 upvotes · 16 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Well, you could just take that part out.

And here we see the problem. Why would I want to self-censor? To appease? Why is the modern "man" so eager to deny his thoughts in order to avoid making waves?

If you agree with me...

Also, as I'm sure you know, despite what feminists pretend, it's a fact that no doesn't always mean no.

... and I think you do...

... then why not say it? What would they do? Call me a rapist? I've been called worse. And I only worry about the good opinions of people I respect.

It's time we all hardened the fuck up and stopped worrying about noises idiots make with their mouths.

The chickens come home to roost: when a feminist's son is falsely accused of rape

14 upvotes · 16 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

Because that would be telling him to "walk the fuck away" from every woman in the world, even the ones who would tell him to "walk the fuck away" from women like that.

This behaviour is hardwired in. It's not voluntary. It's a test of the male's assertiveness and (presumed) genetic fitness. A woman will always resist a man she desires, to test his courage and ardour, unless his perceived social value is already so high that she feels lucky to have a chance with him (think groupies and rockstars).

A woman who admitted this could have taught her son to tell the difference between "go away" and "show me you're a real man".

One wonders how feminists think sex is ever supposed to happen, if a man is immediately supposed to stop when she resists, and any woman who doesn't resist is a case of "low self-esteem" who is "acting self-destructively" and needs to be "protected" (think Monica Lewinsky).

As the mod of mensrights, I openly argue for the rights of anyone 'who presently has, used to have, or desires to have a penis.'

14 upvotes · 9 May 2011 · /r/MensRights

they can use to irrationally reject people they would otherwise be

What breathtaking arrogance.

That is not your call. You do not get to pass judgment on other people's taste in sexual partners. If I'm not into blondes, or dominatrixes, or fat girls, then the why of it is none of your business. You don't get to decide that some rejections are "irrational" and somehow disallow them.

How would it be, after all, if I treated women like that?

"Your rejection is irrational. I'm going to ignore it!"

Found this on tiktok

13 upvotes · 10 February 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

Feminist calling her a "pickme" in 3...2...

This is what modern feminism and modern women refuse to admit when they say it is ok to have sex with anybody you liked. Women, they are destorying you. These comments also dropped truth bombs

13 upvotes · 9 November 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

It's okay to prefer whatever you prefer. If you only want to date midgets, or policemen, or amputees, or stockbrokers, or left-handed jugglers who speak Urdu, then knock yourself out.

The common thread is here that other people can also do what they want in response to that.

Some additional shower thoughts about sex and marriage and dating (oh my)

13 upvotes · 9 October 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Mutual desire is great, and mutual simultaneous orgasm is great, but not every sexual act has to be done that way. If only one participant is aroused, then it is perfectly healthy for the other person to focus on getting them off, without having to feign need or pleasure.

Men despise starfish sex, and duty sex, not because they have some strange need to witness the female orgasm every time, but because they despise indifference or poorly feigned enthusiasm. You don't have to be turned on to suck a dick, and you don't have to display arousal to display concern for a partner's feelings or enjoyment.

For the Old Ladies: Laura Doyle is not real life

13 upvotes · 23 September 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

One important thing to realize is that, while older people may be wiser, it's also easy for them to lose sight of the sorts of situations and difficulties that young people find themselves in.

It's very easy for a woman who has been married for ten or twenty years to tell a twenty year old girl "no sex until marriage, or long commitment at the very least". It's cost-free, and fun, and makes the married woman look really virtuous.

But it's not helpful, because it totally ignores the realities of the modern sexual marketplace. Behaving like a prim and proper 1950s stereotype yourself doesn't magically bring the 1950s back, especially since most people's vision of them is of something that never actually existed.

In a nutshell, if you wanna date men who are attractive and have other options, you're gonna have to fuck, or they are gonna leave. Sex isn't sufficient to keep a modern man, but it is necessary.

The trick is to keep the false starts low. This is hard to do, so it sucks to hear that, but there's no point in blaming men for being able to read the room, instead of your mothers' and grandmothers' generation for destroying the old deal.

The Laura Doyles of this world have a lot of useful things to say about how to make a marriage good, but if you're not married yet, she ain't gonna get you there without some other sources of wisdom.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

13 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Intelligence test: Do you believe this article was about SARS-Covid-19? Or about something else?

I am a 26F and I am socially awkward around people of the opposite sex.

13 upvotes · 31 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so here's how it really works.

Most relationships are initiated by women... men only make the first overt move. Women initiate by sending readable, but deniable, "come-hither" signals.

Women who don't know how to do that, or don't know that they should, typically end up being ignored and not knowing why.

Sound familiar?

Victoria's Secret and what it means to be "sexy" in the modern era.

13 upvotes · 25 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Victoria's Secret must rebrand itself or die.

We are in the midst of an obesity epidemic. The "food" industry has replaced the housewife and the kitchen, and its primary function to sell people a substance that is both toxic and addictive.

If you eat this substance, you get addicted and you buy more, and you also get fat and die. This is not the "food" industry's problem, because while you are slowly dying, you buy a lot of more of this poison.

So the only problem is how to convince you that this stuff isn't poison, so you don't try to rehab yourself and go back to eating real food. The "food" industry strategy for doing this is to convince you that you are fat because you are eating a fictional substance called "calories", which all food contains.

This has worked well so far. Even in RPW, there are plenty of poison addicts who believe in "calories", and think it is their own fault that they are fat and sick and slowly dying. They would rather believe this than give up their addiction.

So, now, Victoria's Secret has a problem. How does a company that used to make a dollar selling sexy clothes to sexy women survive in a landscape where there are no sexy women... only fat, sick, and dying poison addicts?

Well, you sell what fat sick dying poison addicts really want, second only to "more addictive poison"... they want the illusion that they are healthy, and that fat is sexy, and that they are going to be okay, and everything is normal, and that all the thin sexy women of the past were an illusion built around a tiny minority of abnormal women who didn't eat any "calories".

It is not Victoria's Secret's fault that we are in the midst of history's greatest mass poisoning. Nor can they survive by trying to reason with addicts. Addicts cannot be reasoned with. Even here in RPW you will find lots of addicts who are about to write me angry replies insisting that "calories" are real.

VS cannot survive by having this kind of argument with junkies. Junkies, by definition, cannot be argued with. They insist they are not junkies until they either OD and die, or hit bottom and realize that, yes, they are addicts, and they need help.

No one ever gets rich telling people things they don't want to believe.

The Reason the Redpill and FDS Types Don't Post Physique

13 upvotes · 12 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Also, he didn't post physique.

"If you've ever had a one night stand or hooked up with multiple people in a short span of time, It is unfair to then make your long term partner wait months on ends to have sex with them." Is this really that crazy of an opinion?

13 upvotes · 26 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

If you want to be attractive to women, purge the word "unfair" from your vocabulary.

Why are 'less hotter' chicks more confident?

13 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Women don't hit on you because they are confident, they hit on you because they are not. The more confident they are, the more they believe that you will do all the work if they just sit back and wait.

This is why women who are too confident are unattractive. Who wouldn't rather be chased?

literally just LTR'd a girl to fuck her now don't know what to do....help please.

13 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

Chill the fuck out.

You said some words. You didn't sign anything, you didn't pay anything, you didn't hand over anything. You can change your mind tomorrow if you feel like it. Whether you feel like or not is up to her. It's about how she treats you.

Promises have literally no place in modern relationships, and you can regard them as valueless. Women don't need us to support them financially anymore, they won't starve if we leave, and therefore you can feel free to leave anytime you aren't happy.

I don't keep FunSize and FanGirl because "I promised" or because we have "been together for years". I keep them because they are obedient, respectful, considerate, fun to be with, and so on.

An LTR is not when you chain yourself up with promises you feel like you have to keep. That's called "being pussywhipped". An LTR is when you don't want to get rid of her, because life is better with her in it.

Things you say are just mouth noises. It's your actions that define you.

Want to be married but my case feels hopeless

13 upvotes · 30 November 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's okay to want things.

But you are going to be perpetually disappointed unless you grasp the simple truth that other people want things, too. Even if they happen to be male.

I've been on this earth quite a few years now, and I do not ever recall any morning where I woke up and said to myself, "Today I want to go on a date with a socially inept autistic single mother of two children with different fathers."

So if your ambitions in life include marriage, you have to find some way for that to include his ambitions in life, too.

So, do you have any idea what men want out of a relationship?

Fucked an ugly chick and am pretty disappointed in myself

13 upvotes · 20 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

That's because you're seeing sex as a barometer of your value.

There's a huge difference between having sex for pleasure, and to satiate your sex drive... and having sex as some sort of source of validation.

"I matter because pretty girls think I matter" gives entirely too much power to pretty girls. Remember that most pretty girls didn't become pretty through goal setting, proper planning, and hard work. They were simply born with good genetics, and haven't been on this earth long enough to fuck it up yet.

That means that their judgement is not in any way special.

Certainly you should fuck them... because it is nice to do so. But don't respect them or value their opinions.

(Endgame) The Lost Boys

13 upvotes · 3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll tell you the abstract version of the story.

Somebody started kicking something I built, and some friends of mine engaged with him to find out what the fuck was up. He kinda started going off about how we hadn't been around to take care of the thing. Seemed entitled at first, but then it occurred to me that he wasn't so much angry as hurt.

Like I had abandoned him, personally, and everyone like him, by not writing as many articles.

And I'm like "wtf the do you want? I taught you how to get laid, wrote a whole bunch of articles on thinking for yourself, what more is there to say? Do you really want me to hang around forever repeating the same old lessons on how to get laid? It's a solved problem, for fuck's sake... just do the work".

Then the epiphany hit. He's not upset about me not writing more articles about how to get pussy. He's upset about me not writing more articles, period. Why? Because on some subconscious level, he feels like he needs me. He's seeing TRP as his new society, and the OGs as its new parents.

Except we're not. TRP isn't here to be a substitute for society. It's here for us to share notes on how to build what we need, for ourselves. And it occurs to me that I never spelled this out. I thought it was obvious. Here I am playing the endgame, talking about the experience, but not everyone has read between the lines and realized that what you did after you mastered getting laid was build your own microclimate to live in.

I'm not passionate about "how to get laid" articles anymore. The fundamental structure is there, and it's a solved problem for anyone willing to go out and do the legwork instead of just reading. We don't really need a whole bunch of articles like "how to get laid now that bell bottoms are back in fashion"... because anyone who understands the fundamentals can work that shit out for themselves.

The idea of writing a bunch of articles about the sexual ramifications of TikTok or riots bores the shit out of me. I tried it once, just to see. And yeah, it bored the shit out of me.

What doesn't bore the shit out of me is all the other things men can do for themselves once they master getting laid, for which I have started using the term "endgame". So that's what I'm going to write about.

The first article was "It exists. It looks kinda like this."

The second was "No, you don't NEED society. You don't NEED the 1950s back. This is doable."

The next ones are going to be about the various things you can do.

So, no, I'm not leaving. I'm just going to talk about what I want to talk about. That's all TRP ever was to me, anyway... a place to talk about things I have the urge to talk about. I wasn't trying to build a society. I don't want to crown myself king of anything, because people who voluntarily kneel to kings are losers, and who wants to be surrounded by losers?

TRP is my podium. My lectern. My soapbox in the public square.

And this is what I feel like talking about now.

How do you come to terms with men's' lack of mental monogamy?

13 upvotes · 26 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I get it.

But I am trying to teach here is one of RPW's fundamental principles: Take responsibility for your wants.

The idea is to get women away from saying "Men should do X", and teach them to say instead "I want a man who does X".

Women often feel that their wants need to be "justified" or "reasonable"... but the effect of this is that they start to argue that whatever they personally want is actually a moral imperative.

This leads them down the unproductive path of trying to browbeat whatever men they randomly encounter into being what they think men "should" be... instead of looking for the men who are the way they want.

That's why it's important for other women reading this to understand that it's not about, in your case, whether men looking at porn is "reasonable" or not, or "okay" or not. It's simply that some men do, and some men don't, and you, personally, want the latter.

- Women are not obligated to argue, justify, or limit their wants.
- Men are not obligated to fulfill those wants.

JP always telling the truth vs dark triads

13 upvotes · 2 October 2020 · /r/askTRP

Telling a lie or the truth isn't something you are, it's something you do. What is best for you is to have three abilities:

1. The ability to lie when it's best to do so.
2. The ability to speak truth when it's best to do so.
3. The ability to know the difference between these two occasions.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

13 upvotes · 2 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If reddit the corporate entity truly cared about protecting users from content that might upset them, then instead of actively censoring content, they would provide users with the tools to filter content for themselves.

I would happily attach a "may-be-offensive-to-feminists" tag to TRP myself. That way, feminists who want to exist in a happy little bubble of male disposability could be blissfully aware of our existence, and feminists who like outrage porn could read us every day and have a hate-gasm.

But Silicon Valley commies are not into "protecting their users", because their users are not paying the bills. If you're not paying for a service, you are not the customer, you are the product. Reddit is in the business of selling our eyes to people who want attention.

And its not the on-the-books advertising dollars that keep never-profitable reddit afloat. It's dark money from the DNC. While it's pretty clear that r/politics (which is now nothing more than a publisher of DNC press releases) and r/politicalhumor were purchased outright, it's also clear that the rot goes deeper than that. Pushing any alternative to socialism off the main page isn't just what makes the people of reddit collectively feel good, it's how they put vegan soy protein on the table and pay the $3K rent on their San Fransisco based studio apartments.

The part in all this that makes reddit look like a bunch of incompetent clowns is that the DNC really isn't getting its money's worth. Reddit's audience is a mile wide and an inch deep. All pageviews are not the same. Some writers and publishers have a great deal of influence over their audience's thought process, some have very little, and the difference is trust.

While reddit has kept any actual money it's accepting out of the public eye, everybody is aware that reddit is putting spin on the ball, even the people who agree with its bias, are glad of it, and consider it to be nothing more than common decency. This diminishes trust on the part of anyone who doesn't already agree, and the eyes of those who already agree are worthless in that they do not need to be persuaded.

Reddit collectively does not understand what TRP does... the simple fact that forcing someone's eye onto something they disagree with does not change their convictions, it strengthens them. /r/politics doesn't convert conservatives or libertarians into liberals... instead, it gives liberals a transitory and financially valueless confirmation bias high, but makes conservatives more conservative, and libertarians more libertarian.

Real persuasion requires engaging with someone's real and personal reasons for believing as they do.

TRP collectively understands this, which is why we only engage with those who voluntarily come here ready to listen.

Rich baby boomers buying audiences on reddit, however, do not understand this, because they grew up in the age of network television, where there was little or no alternative to the paid-for narrative. And reddit doesn't understand this, or affects not to, because it's directly against their financial interest to do so.

People who don't like being told what to do or think are slowly building alternatives to the moneyed social networks. "Slowly" is of course the operative term, because they aren't sponsored by people who want to control you, and therefore have to do so for personal satisfaction and little gratitude or money. But people want to talk to each other without Big Brother in the way, and they will, now that the technology exists, find ways to do so.

A high value Man's checklist for his partner

13 upvotes · 31 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Is good to realize that you will have to do something, but constructing a fiction of a fiction is probably not the best way to determine what.

Instead, I suggest watching and listening to actual men.

My wife wants a sister wife and so does her friend

13 upvotes · 23 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

You're life will be full of sex but tons of drama I predict. Lots of jealousy and cat fights.

Heh.

Nope.

Proctor & Gamble loses $8 Billion, decides maybe war on men was a bad idea...

13 upvotes · 6 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Organizations aren't people. They don't have thoughts or goals, and all of their behaviour is emergent. The individual people in that meeting room don't care about Gillette as a whole. They care about their own goals.

Censorship is not about the bottom line. It's ideological. Gillette didn't use misandry to sell razors. It used razors to sell misandry.

13 upvotes · 12 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

It's kind of amusing when people think "the Government" or "the Corporations" want something, or will do something. Both of these are collective entities. They don't want things. People want things. The behaviour of corporations or governments is an emergent property.

The question is what people do, and what effect the aggregate of that behaviour is.

Obviously, if "Gillette" were a single entity, with thoughts and desires, that wanted to make money, it would be insane to insult its entire customer base.

But "Gillette" doesn't want anything. A set of people who come up with ads wanted something, and it wasn't money, because they were on salary and get paid regardless. No, they wanted to insult men. Because they don't like men. Because it is fashionable to not like men right now.

Because human beings imitate each other, so it is quite frequent for madness to spread like a forest fire. Never assume that anything is happening because someone planned it.

Trying to decide if I should move in with his parents --please help!

13 upvotes · 10 May 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Let me guess, he's from a non-western culture, he was born here, but his parents were not.

/r/askTRP RPEC Advice AMA Megathread - Ask Away!

13 upvotes · 7 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

The great shibboleth of the intellectual class is the persistent delusion that there is such a thing as a general education, which somehow makes a person smarter and more qualified to comment on anything, from how to ideally implement failed 19th century economic theories to what popular film reveals about the collective personality of nations, from how best to grow wheat crops with high yield to the geopolitics of the Asian subcontinent.

They will angrily insist that some abstract intellectual exercise, for instance chess, develops the abilities of the mind. Well, of course it does. It develops the ability of the mind to play chess.

Empirical observation has never shown us that this translates into any sort of general benefit. (And it is empirical observation, not theoretical reasoning, which actually helps us understand shit).

So lamentation of the fact that modern teenagers would rather learn to program a computer than read Mein

Kampf is, at best, a crypto-luddite sentiment. It may be unwelcome to their elders that the behaviour of android phones is more relevant to their lives than fascism in particular, or the cultural heritage of their dead relatives in general, but I assure you this will impede them not one whit.

- People with adequate nutrition and non-abusive parents are precisely as smart as they were born capable of being. Books will not change this.
- People turn their intelligence towards that which is most relevant to the comfort and prosperity of their daily lives.
- Anyone who believes that debugging multithreaded code, or repairing the modern automobile engine, truly requires less marbles than scribbling eloquent poetry, or writing works of philosophical musings, is in for a rude shock should he ever choose to truly leave his comfort zone.
- Society, and its characteristics, are an emergent property. The implications of this should be obvious to anyone who understands about emergent properties.

How to NOT argue with feminists.

13 upvotes · 11 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't waste your breath. Remember what I said about people talking to adjust their own emotional state?

Some people have a deep seated personal need to believe that the brainstem can't be hacked. And they will go to great lengths to reassure themselves that any story involving hacking the brainstem is "fake". But any computational construct, designed or emergent, can be gamed if you know the limitations of its representational environment.

The fact that you stood amazed at this really just means that you didn't quite understand it either... it wasn't some great feat of masterful manipulation. If it was I'd have written about it differently. Picture it instead as psychological structure carefully built to disguise an unstable base, which was nevertheless ready to topple with a single judicious push.

Every woman is filled with the instinctive desire to hand the reigns to a patriarchal male at first opportunity. All I did was remember that fact in the face strong verbal denial (don't listen to what women say, watch what they do), and proceed accordingly. This is about knowledge, not skills. Skill was irrelevant, because I had the cheat codes.

Need relationship advice please

13 upvotes · 9 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

You spend too much time trying to be a man, it is no wonder you are having trouble finding one.

I'm stealing this for future use.

Are girls with daddy issues a red flag?

13 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

All girls have daddy issues. Either he was good, he was bad, or he was absent.

Each one has an effect.

I failed! LTR asks for permission to "have a coffee" with a fuckbuddy she used to date before. I didn't react well, how can I save this?

13 upvotes · 27 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

She is anxious about having displeased you.

"Please go" is a fucking cuck move. You have mistaken a sensible "don't show insecurity" for an insane "never mate guard".

Postmodern Masculinity

13 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not the self-appointed shepherd of idiots. I don't give a crap about anyone dumb enough to pay thousands of dollars to have a cuckold fetish pitched to them. Because some people are beyond salvage.

The reason I am behind giving Anthony the boot is very simple: I don't hang with losers. Repeated and abject failure has a splash zone. You think I wanna stand next to some huckster selling magic soap to idiots?

If I tolerate that, I not only have to be near his cheesy antics, but also all the dumbasses he attracts. No, thanks.

I live by the parable of the sower. I speak, and he who has the wits to listen and understand is the only audience I care about. The rest can fuck right off.

Best friend (24M) has proposed to single mother (42F) he's known for 5 months

13 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You cannot play Captain SaveABro. He will not listen.

No one can be saved from anything until they realize they need saving.

"Oooo dominant, I love it" Good thing?

13 upvotes · 12 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm also very affectionate towards her. I love running my hands along her thighs and feeling her curves and I give her frequent hugs and kisses.

Some people may see this as being beta.

Who the fuck have you been listening to?

People frequently mistake FunSize and I for newlyweds. And when FanGirl is out with us... well, they're extremely confused.

By all means be affectionate with women... just remember that it's a reward and not a bribe.

I just obliterated my sister and i's relationship. Parents had a big fight & i dropped some trp bombs. Im an idiot.

13 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You don't have to keep your mouth shut. Just don't get flustered.

If women say silly things, you don't argue with them, you laugh at them.

Bar Girls Are The New Church Girls

13 upvotes · 8 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You're not objecting to this because you think of it as false. You're objecting because you're afraid of what others will think of you.

Racial stuff is just one more hypothesis. Treat it like one. Don't reject it as "evil", and don't accept it as a validation of how everything bad in your life is someone else's fault.

Instead, just worry about whether it's true or not true. Is there some significant correlation between lack of melanin (blue eyes, pale skin and hair, etc), and the rise of civilization? What, if any, is the causal relationship?

I'm not going to try to answer that question. Because I care more about people treating this amorally, as a question of fact, than I care about what the answer they reach is.

Allegations of fact aren't bad or good, they are true or untrue. And that's all.

How to stop changing my behavior(approval seeking) when attractive women are around?

13 upvotes · 6 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

You don't want their approval.

You want their desire. Women's approval does not increase women's desire.

Picking up strippers... if that's your bag

13 upvotes · 3 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Some men pay whores to fuck, other men pay whores to go away after fucking. So both whores run into both losers and winners.

Men pay strippers to pretend to like them. So strippers only run into losers.

So, if you really wanna plate some cumdumpster who also thinks all men are losers... well, I suppose this would be how you do it. Next up, tips on how to hit yourself in the dick with a ball peen hammer.

Cursing. How much is okay?

13 upvotes · 26 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I look like a stereotypically submissive Indian girl so I use cursing to signal to others that I'm NOT like that.

👍👍

Before TRP I could feel myself falling in love and be attracted. Now I'm just not interested

13 upvotes · 24 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I can't feel like I can let myself "fall in love" or be relaxed.

Master pickup and you will be able to have a relationship again, so long as you find a girl who is actually relationship-worthy. (That includes you having to manage and lead her, and her being leadable.)

Hell, I've been in a relationship for years now.

RPW does not mean we are playthings for men.

13 upvotes · 20 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men need to understand that dominance isn't the desire for obedience, or the habit of demanding it, but the ability to inspire it.

Trust is a key element of this. There's two kinds: trust in intentions (that he won't use his power over you with no regard for your welfare) and trust in capability (that he will be a competent and strong leader who makes good decisions).

The second is actually more important because it's more rare. Almost any man will consider the feelings of his woman. But knowing how to lead requires confidence, judgement, wisdom, and courage.

That's why on the TRP side we teach men that they need to project a lot more confidence and strength than niceness and harmlessness.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

13 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Success doesn't come from intense effort, but from consistent effort.

Why I am cynical towards the readership in TRP, and I don't think I'm alone

13 upvotes · 3 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed.

Really getting TRP isn't about banging a mother and daughter on the same day, or going home from a wedding with 2 bridesmaids, or having 2 LTRs who wear slave collars with your name on them.

Why not? Because if you can do that, you already get it.

The process of getting it is about striking up a conversation with that cute girl at the college bookstore cashregister. That's all. Just do something. Take a little step today.

Why is it a woman's fault if she's alpha widowed?

13 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Everyone on here says being alpha widowed is a horrible character flaw

Literally no one says this.

The TRP gents call it oneitis.

Almost. Difference is you can get oneitis in a broader variety of situations.

Yes, I consider myself alpha widowed. No, I don't consider myself a terrible person because of it.

Neither does anyone else.

Being an alpha widow doesn't make you an evil person. It makes you a bad relationship prospect, because you have baggage. Being a good relationship partner, and moral worth, are not the same thing at all.

You can be a saint, and a really bad relationship partner, or a psychopath and a really good one.

As a red piller, what's the goal of pursuing a LTR if there are no unicorns?

13 upvotes · 21 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

It's not about word choice. It's a real distinction.

You don't look for an LTR or go forward with one, any more than a girl looks at a spreadsheet, weighs the pros and cons, and decides whether to have sex with you.

A woman's role in sex is passive. She interacts with you, and you work to inspire lust in her. If you do your job well enough, sex.

Same way, your role in starting an LTR is passive. You interact with her, and she works to inspire emotional investment in you. If she does her job well enough, you'll start to catch feelings, and your behaviour will reflect that. Your only role is that you can consciously put the brakes on the process if you spot red flags. Otherwise, it's all up to her.

You are not empowered to make relationships happen. You just have to sit there and see if she plays her cards right, maybe give some feedback if you're feeling merciful and can do it without killing the vibe.

But you have no more control over whether a girl is LTR-worthy than she does over whether you are sex worthy.

Ditch the Resume

13 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Just so everyone has an accurate understanding of the male mindset:

Men do not answer the question "would I fuck her?" unless someone asks. They either want to or don't... there is typically no conscious weighing of pros and cons. Whether they want to or not is based on three things: physical appearance, feminine behaviour, and absence of red flags.

Men do very consciously ask the question "Do I want to marry her?"... typically only after "do I want to fuck her?" and "do I want a relationship?". However, no man in history has ever said "Meh, if she had a college degree, I'd marry her, but as it is... nah." That's just not how the male brain works.

It is absolutely true that college-educated men marry college-educated women... but they do this while not giving a fuck about her college education.

How can that be? Very simple: College-educated women are who college-educated men run into, both in college, and afterwards. A man gives zero fucks about your degree, but if you aren't in the places he's at, then he can't meet you to accept your degreeless self.

Men do not make calculations about "bringing in additional income", or "ability to support the family if", or other such things. Men do not use a spreadsheet to decide who to marry.

Don't make the mistake of thinking that because B occurs with A, A must cause B. The real story is that X causes both A and B.

Linus Torvalds apologizes for twenty years of being insensitive

13 upvotes · 17 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I must admit that for a moment I was tempted to bat my eyes and say "Please, mister, what's Git?", and let you type out a long explanation. But toying with some people is necessary, others it's just cruel.

I realize you admire the man, and his accomplishments, and you are right to feel that his lack of social skills in no way diminishes them. However, it does impede them. The man could get so much more done if he had the ability to judge how he comes across to other people, so that he could choose his words according to the effect he wanted them to have, and not according to the emotion he himself was experiencing.

When someone is in a unique, or near-unique, position of expertise, the most useful thing they can do is knowledge transfer. This applies to Linus with the Linux kernel, and to me with the Red Pill. And you should understand that, because you are a smart young man, and possibly someday it will apply to you in some area. When you know something useful that very few people know, the best use of your time is spreading that knowledge.

This means that when someone disagrees with you, you have to make a judgement call. Are they unable to learn, and wasting your valuable time that could be getting used to enlighten someone else? Are they a potentially useful person who could benefit from instruction? Or, is it one of those rare cases where you're actually wrong?

When you're in that position, the ability to choose your words according to who you are dealing with and the effect you want to have upon them is critical. Just lashing out because you feel angry is a malfunction.

So, when Linus says:

I am not an emotionally empathetic kind of person and that probably doesn't come as a big surprise to anybody. Least of all me. The fact that I then misread people and don't realize (for years) how badly I've judged a situation and contributed to an unprofessional environment is not good.

This is significant, because the words don't realize show us what's going on.

If you are a key figure whose time is valuable, you can, and sometimes should, choose to drive someone away, possibly because they are wasting that valuable time. (Read my comment history, you'll see how this works.) But if you don't know what effect your words have on people, how can you choose when to alienate and when to teach?

I didn't say that Linus's problem was being an asshole. His problem is being a sperg.

Pissing people off on purpose, great. Pissing them off by accident because you are socially incompetent, not so much.

Oneitis for my best friend.

13 upvotes · 9 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Dumbass.

You know what the cure for oneitis is. But you somehow think you're special.

You're not special. Man up or get the fuck out.

Rough sex girl, but no orgasm

13 upvotes · 6 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

You need to get better at domming.

Girls who act submissive and freaky in bed, don't get anything out of masturbation, don't like receiving oral sex, and have difficulty reaching orgasm with vanilla sex are BDSM girls.

They can't come if they are in control.

Break out the handcuffs and riding crop.

Girl declines oral

13 upvotes · 25 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

Performing oral sex is a submissive act.

Sex dolls which 'go all night' could replace MEN – as women 'can't tell the difference' - Any cries of rape being heard over this? Doubt it.

13 upvotes · 7 August 2018 · /r/MensRights

Sex robots for women exist already. They are called vibrators.

While lonely women the world over do indeed avail themselves of them, men have not been replaced. It's almost as if a small mechanical device were completely useless for fulfilling women's emotional needs.

"What are we?" A very brief field report

13 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Behold the power of silence.

Plate not sexual anymore, should I next?

13 upvotes · 24 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

"Guise, I did girlfriend shit with a human fleshlight, now I'm a boyfriend without benefits! What did I do wrong?"

Read the /u/humansockpuppet's Bitch Management Guide, retard.

How do I differentiate between my hypergamous tendencies and justified lack of interest in a mate?

13 upvotes · 18 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Certainly it isn't.

Men's attachment to a girl is no more a choice than women's attraction to a man. When we talk about a man's "commitment" here, we don't mean "holding hands in public", or "changing a facetube status". We mean his motivation to remain with a girl instead of dumping her and looking for something else.

Still Wanna Get Married?

13 upvotes · 29 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

And what do you stand to gain, by taking this risk?

Writ's List of Challenges

13 upvotes · 6 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

What's good about your list isn't what's on it, but that you have one.

The first step in achieving goals is to set them. Don't just exist. Want things, make a plan to get them, work the plan.

How do I not hate myself for being female?

13 upvotes · 17 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This screed is just back handed resentment.

The only person who called you inferior is you. If you think being feminine is demeaning, then you're going to have problems until you get over it.

Either that, or you're a troll account, and you're here to try to satirize the RPW position. In which case, if you have to lie to make your point, your point doesn't deserve to be made.

Why are TERPERS supporting rape as a sexual strategy?

13 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Thus you admit that women are children who are easily manipulated by adults.

That's why you're so defensive of her. You know she has no idea what she wants or what is good for her. If you thought she did, you'd call this nothing but a case of sub drop, shrug your shoulders and get on with your life.

But you would rather beg Daddy Patriarchy to see her (and you) as a helpless victim so she (and you) can be rescued from the bad mans.

How can I encourage my girlfriend to keep trying?

13 upvotes · 19 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Never offer the red pill to someone who didn't seek it out.

Women are even more prone than men to shooting the messenger.

Does GayLubeOil's (presumably ironic) flirtation-tactic here actually work?

13 upvotes · 28 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Let me guess: you are one of those people who thinks that the point of intelligence is to display it constantly and prove its existence to others.

How do I Always end up losing power in relationships?

13 upvotes · 26 December 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

The only common element in all of your bad relationships is you.

Having lasting attention and affection from men is not a problem of mate selection, because there are no men who are endless fountains of unconditional love.

If you want things from men, you cannot force them to give. You must make them want to give.

And if you aren't getting that, that means you aren't doing that.

Since you haven't told us anything about how you act towards men, just what you are screwing up can't be determined. But it is certainly something.

Elon musk and his multiple divorces

13 upvotes · 5 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

There is a certain level of wealthy at which your only viable option is prostitutes.

If you are rich enough, it becomes worthwhile for LTRs to sue you after a breakup as if they were wives. Such lawsuits are not a slam-dunk case, but they have been won in the past.

If you are even richer still, there is a level at which a one-night-stand's best financial move is to accuse you of rape. (Does anyone really believe that pro athletes need to rape women? Ha.)

Wealthy men don't pay prostitutes to have sex with them. They pay them to go away afterwards.

How to be good in the bedroom without much experience?

13 upvotes · 9 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

Do not fall into the trap of assuming that sex is a complex physical skill that requires huge amounts of training and practice and expertise.

That's just a rationalization for trying to browbeat men into wanting sluts.

What gets people off isn't precise forms of physical stimulation... it's any reasonable amount of physical stimulation when they are really turned on.

- Know how to make yourself attractive.
- Be receptive when he tells you what he likes.
- Listen to feedback.

That's all you need.

(Protip: learning to give a good backrub is excellent practice at reading a man and calibrating your touch to what he enjoys.)

Yes, Virginia, you do have to be an asshole.

13 upvotes · 22 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Eggs are expensive and sperm is cheap. Every lost woman is a lethal blow to humanity's repopulation project but we only need one man for that job.

Every aspect of human sexual behaviour can be derived by reasoning from this.

What if you enjoy giving her validation?

13 upvotes · 14 September 2017 · /r/askTRP

You have oneitis.

Cuckery afoot in my LTR

13 upvotes · 28 July 2017 · /r/askTRP

"Closure" is womanese for "my ex-boyfriend's penis".

Girlfriend has characteristics which I'm not sure are red flags or not

13 upvotes · 17 September 2016 · /r/askTRP

These are green flags.

-Girlfriend seems to be a loner and doesn't have many friends.

Introvert.

-Girlfriend seems to have become more of a loner and doesn't spend time with other people since the beginning of the relationship. I think she hung out with other people maybe twice in the last year, excluding work events.

Introvert, relationship focused.

-Girlfriend shows me said beta male communication via texts, etc, and asks me if she should respond, because she thinks they are being nice. I say I don't care if she does or not, but I inform her of the error in her thinking because guys likely wouldn't be trying to get so much attention from her unless they had interest. She decides to not respond.

Submissive, loyal.

-Girlfriend is in a relationship with me. I find this strange because I thought girls are attempting to look for the best mate possible. Before being in a relationship with me, she went on some dates with other guys that are very successful, working in well known tech companies, but she stated something about their personalities was off-putting. I'm just a student (but I'll graduate soon), but she said my personality is manly.

Invested, non-materialistic.

-Girlfriend seems to be emotionally needy. I went away for a week once (we live together) and she seemed to turn into a bat for that week. Literally just sitting at home and doing nothing, and I got the vibe she was depressed or something. To be fair, something terrible happened that week to her (victim of fraud, lost like 10,000 dollars) and I couldn't talk to her because I was busy. She tried to talk to other people about her problem, including her mom, co-workers, and some of the beta orbiters.

Brings problems to you first.

-When I finally came back, she cried and was happy to see me. She cooked for me for the next few days and literally did everything I told her to. Also, not to mention she became hornier, too.

Submissive, attached.

But it just seems like she's very needy emotionally.

Needy = Attached + controlling.

Attached + Submissive = LTR material.

This looks like a good one.

she lied but it was years ago, now what?

13 upvotes · 16 August 2016 · /r/askTRP

If she's in another country, it doesn't count, right?

Woman successfully screws up a guys life with questionable rape accusation.

13 upvotes · 22 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Especially Poli Sci PhD students.

Do not fuck, talk to, or stand near, women with social science degrees.

LTR wants to travel. Should I demote?

13 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

If your description is accurate, sounds like a good one.

Under no circumstances should any man sign legal papers for Marriage 2.0, but there is no downside to treating a highly-proven LTR exactly as you would a wife (without selling your ass to the government).

This sounds like a comfort test to me. She's trying to see if you are invested.

Before you can know what to do, you have to know how invested you actually are. Don't necessarily let on, but figure it out for yourself.

Question on how to fuck MILFs

13 upvotes · 25 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

You have oneitis. Anytime you come on here talking about this one chick you haven't had yet, it's oneitis.

I can't tell you how to get her, and I don't care to.

I can only tell you how to improve your odds and get someone. Or a series of someones. Whichever you prefer.

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

13 upvotes · 15 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm all for "there's no such thing as bad publicity," but what on earth does any Red Pillar have to gain by engaging a feminist?

Feminist outrage is free publicity, young Padawan. Not only that, negative publicity from Joe is positive publicity with anyone who can't stand Joe.

You don't engage with feminists trying to reason with them. If they could be reasoned with, they wouldn't be feminists. What you do is wind them up, and wait for their howling to attract wolves.

Hell, we all know half the shit we say in here is ridiculously hyperbolic. But it not only helps us get in the right mindset, it also creates a storm of free publicity from TBP and feminists and haters because no one let them in on the joke, and they're such a bunch of spergs that they take it all literally.

They actually talk themselves into believing their worst fears. I'm not sure whether to laugh or cry, sometimes.

So of course no media article on us is ever going to be anything but a hit piece. But so what? Will that make women suddenly stop being moist for selfish, cocky men? Nah. It'll just make more people come here to see what the fuss is about.

How to handle photography of you (nude)?

13 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

Indeed. You saying you wouldn't do this is meaningless:

- No one is ever able to say with certainty what they would do.
- Even if you could, that knowledge exists only in your mind. Men have no access to it.
- The only thing you could do is say "I'd never do that", and words are wind. Anyone can say anything.
- Even if he believed it, in many male social circles, naked pics of you, voluntarily released to the public, is shaming to him. You're sharing with the world a degree of sexual intimacy that is normally reserved for him. You can argue that "it's slight", but that's just you telling him what "should" be important to him.

Passion

13 upvotes · 11 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

He couldn't stop smiling all day long

Precisely. It wasn't just sex (although presumably sex generally put a smile on his face as well), it was the feeling of being wanted that much, that you were willing, no, eager, to risk embarrassment to please him.

Men don't usually get catcalled. Men don't usually get pursued. Men don't usually get chatted up in public places. Men don't usually get upvotes on "gonewild". You get the point. This means that women often have a good deal of difficulty understanding just how rare it is for men to be told they are desired, even if they are among the most attractive of men.

"Don't put your hands on me"

13 upvotes · 29 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

You just said the same thing twice.

"He's so hot/sexy, giggles" shit test response

13 upvotes · 24 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

/u/redpillschool, please add flair point to parent.

Thank you.

Seduction in One Picture.

13 upvotes · 22 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The retard is strong in many here.

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Parable_of_the_Sower

Why are (some) men so concerned with who and how many men an adult woman sleeps with?

13 upvotes · 1 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How?

2.5 million men 'have no close friends'; Lets Brainstorm How to Make Friends post-College

13 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

70% of US population believes in {some version of a deity}

That sounds about right.

However, this is significantly lower among younger people. That means that religion is dying out. Organizations that only accept theists are going to have smaller and smaller percentages of younger people, which limits their future in a rather severe way.

If, however, you think that maybe there's some intelligent design behind things--again, not Christianity--then that's all we ask.

You don't have to argue that your requirement is reasonable and small. It's your club. You can do whatever the fuck you like. You require neither my permission nor my approval.

However, it's specifically the idea of an intelligent designer that younger people tend not to believe in.

As our process of gathering data with science starts to explain more and more things, not once has that explanation ever been "someone designed this". So the responsibilities attributed to a designer have gradually retreated into the areas we do not yet understand.

Once God was thought responsible for mankind. Then this was shown not to be the case, and it was that surmised that he was responsible for life. Then, this, too, was shown to be untrue, and he is held responsible for the universe.

But young people are starting to notice a trend. Everywhere we look for God, we find him absent. While the non-existence of any thing can never be proven, people are starting to think it's reasonable to assume that this trend will continue, and that every new corner we shine a light into will reveal complexity as an emergent phenomenon, and the absence of God.

What the Masons wish to do about this is up to them. My understanding is that Masonry is not a church, and that it still certainly has functions to serve in a godless universe, but that's not for me to say. It's not my place to tell Masons what to do with their thing. They built it, I didn't. They own it, I don't.

Modern day feminism is almost solely about the hatred of white men.

13 upvotes · 27 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What's important is that you have found a way to feel superior to both.

TRP doesn't give men what they want. It just convinces them that they don't want it.

13 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

<http://www.k5learning.com/reading-comprehension-worksheets>

When should you apologize to a girl if you were in the wrong?

13 upvotes · 4 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

I don't talk to her unless I want to have sex and I ignore her when she doesn't want to.

Back to school with you.

This is not "being an asshole". This is the definition of a plate.

Let us refer back to /u/humansockpuppet 's bitch management heirarchy

Level 0: ONS. Fuck once, never see again.

Level 1: Plate. Sex regularly, but only interact for sex.

Level 2: FWB. Sex and non-sexual social interactions.

Level 3: LTR. Sex + emotional investment.

This woman is on level 1. You don't owe her level 2, and you are not an "asshole" for withholding it. Because no amount or quality of sex entitles a woman to intimacy.

Men are not slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the commitment jackpot.

If she's got you convinced you owe her intimacy because she provided sex, you need to work on your frame control.

New to sub. Saw something on r/TheRedPill that concerned me.

13 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, Cinderella, explain to me if the slipper fits, or not.

Q4TRP: Why not control the content at TRP?

13 upvotes · 2 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm a vanguard member, and I do control the content.

I control it to make sure that it's "toxic" enough to keep people like you out.

In order to have discussions that contradict the moral consensus of our culture (which is the whole point), we cannot allow people to police the "offensiveness" of our "tone". Because that which contradicts the consensus is always deemed "offensive". In the Vatican, atheism is "offensive". In Saudi Arabia, Christianity is "offensive". In rural Mississippi, Islam is "offensive".

Saying "you must not say offensive things" is crypto-newspeak for "you must not disagree with the herd".

So clutch your pearls all you want. We're not going to stop.

16 Days Left in the KickStarter for "The Red Pill". Let's show we can take part in some actual activism and not just post stuff in here, which, while advocacy is important, so is taking action such as this.

13 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

They oppose feminist BS just like MRAs do, but they don't want to fix the system. Instead their philosophy is "you'll never make the world a better place, you should focus your efforts on hitting the gym and becoming more of an Alpha Male, so you can have sex with a lot of women and enjoy life."

Not a bad assessment, but try this:

We realize that the system cannot be fixed. Because what you call "the system" is actually the inherent, hardwired human instinct to be more sympathetic to women than men. Persuasion didn't create it, so persuasion can't remove it.

What we focus on is helping individual men improve their individual lives, by giving them the tools to address whatever problems in their lives are the biggest priority for them.

You try to help men by changing society. We help men by helping men.

What annoys you about others who subscribe to your "pill" philosophy?

13 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

For people who don't identify as either pill: many of them (rather, many of us) think that not having a label somehow puts us "above" the ideological squabbles of the reds and the blues. We're not above ideology; we just have a more idiosyncratic ideology. It's not inherently better.

Looks like you have finally understood the Middle Ground Fallacy.

For redpillers: despite all the rhetoric about the "truth", "unplugging", "seeing the world for how it really is", etc., a lot of them prioritize "what gets us laid" over "what's true". Much of the extreme "women are just really awful in general" stuff seems to be about helping them be comfortable talking to women (and, further down the line, have a lot of casual sex) rather than actually finding out (or disseminating) any "truth" about women.

Yes.

But there's more to than that.

First of all, truth is predictive power. So you can't really separate "what gets us laid" and "what's true".

Secondly, the goal of TRP is instill a realistic picture, not paint one. If you have a misaligned car that constantly pulls to the left (kind of like our culture), you have to keep steering right to go in a straight line.

For bluepillers: many of them have a strong lack of empathy for men who don't do well with women. Either they don't think it's a big deal for a guy to be in this position in general, or they think that once a guy considers TRP that he's "thrown away any claim to empathy". They take the approach of "pointing and laughing" or mocking men who don't do well with women because it's enjoyable for them as bluepillers but it just makes things worse and takes away legitimacy that they'd have as critics.

It's not just men who don't do well with women. It's men who want to do well with women, whether they do or not.

The TBP worldview places women, as a group, on a pedestal, and anything which disparages them, or seems like it might potentially hurt their feelings, must be stopped... regardless of the cost to anyone else. In their eyes, any amount of male suffering is justified to prevent any female suffering at all, even if the source of the latter is the consequences of her own actions.

TBP is not inherently opposed to men having sexual success, but only wishes to allow whatever techniques can be discovered and taught without the faintest criticism of women, and can be practiced without inconveniencing women in any way.

But all study is potentially criticism. Therefore, that which you are not permitted to criticize, you are not permitted to study and understand.

That is why TBP has no answers. It is not interested in answers. It is interested in defense of its sacred cows.

RP Example: Amazon.com makes women and betas cry

13 upvotes · 9 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Amazon is well known for insultingly low offers. I can confirm this personally.

Redpillers: why don't you take women seriously?

13 upvotes · 2 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Being taken seriously is not a right. It's a privilege. It's earned.

I'm not seeing how TRP is as horrible as the feminists say...

13 upvotes · 26 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not reddit in particular. Our entire culture.

Does the "don't shit where you eat" rule apply here or what?

13 upvotes · 14 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

It's a guideline, not a rule.

I don't really care if I lose the job cuz I know I can get another one easily

Then you're probably good to go. "Never tap workplace ass" is advice for men with careers and resumes and 401k accounts.

Why is female promiscuity shameful ?

13 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I also believe that people should be free to make their own choices and determine their own "value"

That's not what the term "value" means.

val·ue
'valyōō/noun
1. the regard that something is held to deserve; the importance, worth, or usefulness of something.

You don't "determine your own value". Instead, others decide how much they value you.

I decide how much I value you based on your actions. If you want to suck three dicks in a nightclub bathroom, so be it. I might let you suck mine after that, but that's the limit... all you will ever get from me is a mouthful of semen. If that's all you want, we're golden.

But if you want me to value you, you have to care what I think. It's amazing to me that I have to explain this to you. Didn't you have parents?

In one season of the Dutch version of "Survivor," the men and women were split and given their own islands. At the end of 8 days, the men had a "Cafe on the beach," while the women were stealing from each other and had not yet built a hut; the women approved of a tribe merger.

13 upvotes · 11 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's cruel, but the cruelty is not exclusive to women. Genes are harsh masters. They use for for their own ends, and don't particularly care if anything is left of us afterwards.

Women being baby machines is not really any crueler than men being disposable fighters and workhorses.

Still, if we manage our behaviour carefully, striking a balance between letting the wild horse run, and steering where it runs with our intellect, we can have lives that are worth living.

How important is sex/relationships to you?

13 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You find "sexist and infuriating" better than "boring". It grabs your attention.

The idea of being the sort of submissive little geisha girl TRPers seem to want fills you with horror and rage. But you keep picking up the idea compulsively, to rage at it anew.

A true guide for avoiding red pill men:

13 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yeah, we have all the books locked in a big cabinet, and the key is chained to a 120lb kettlebell.

Can't lift it, no philosophy for you.

I thought the whole point of RP was to stop worshipping pussy

13 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Careful. It may die of loneliness.

Is This a Toxic Relationship?

13 upvotes · 19 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Do you know her personally? Or are you telling him, based on a 15 second video, not only what sort of person he is with, but why she does what she does?

You're wacky.

Modern Feminism in America

13 upvotes · 7 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

No, that's drawn correctly. He is single and left-handed.

Blue pills/feminists verify just how correct Red pill values are

13 upvotes · 5 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And manspreading is a man taking up more than the one seat he paid for.

So, when are you going after fat chicks?

why do redpillers shame hypergamy?

13 upvotes · 1 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ah, I see. This is a common misconception among women, as well.

Perhaps I need to write another article.

"Relationship-worthiness" doesn't consist of "not being easy". "Easy" is actually irrelevant. Women often assume that by "holding out", they are sorting out the "relationship-minded" men from the "players".

Nothing of the sort is happening. All that they're doing is shifting responsibility.

Fiddling with the "sex delay" knob in the corner of the control board isn't "girl game"... because you haven't touched any one of the thousands of other controls. The "sex delay" knob doesn't do much. Leave it alone, and start experimenting with the other controls. Start with the ones labeled "femininity", "cheerfulness", "playfulness", "warmth/empathy", and then go from there.

To understand why this is so, you must understand the male mind.

After I have sex with a woman, I meet her for the first time. We've screwed until we were done, and my libido is exhausted. I no longer desire her for sex, at that moment. At the moment, I get my first clear insight into whether she has anything else to offer, or whether the annoying self-centered nonsense I waded through to get laid is now just a big annoyance.

Do I want to cuddle, or am I looking around the floor to see where I left my pants (because I'm going to want them in a moment)?

I don't want to pump-and-dump you any more than you want to friendzone me. You would rather I be so dead sexy that you can't wait to climb on top of me. And I would rather you be so pleasant and fun that I don't want to go home, and can't wait to call you next weekend.

But for those things to work out, we each have to do our respective jobs. Getting to sex is mine. Getting from sex to relationship is yours.

Why isn't there a subreddit or forum for female sexual strategy if it's supposedly just as hard for women to get sex as it is for men? Is it because all women have to do is look as attractive as possible and screen all the men who come to them then select the best available option?

13 upvotes · 15 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, certainly.

Male attractiveness = CHARISMA + appearance.

Female attractiveness = APPEARANCE + charisma.

100,000

13 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

One common trope I hear there is "the red pill doesn't have the monopoly on the advice, work out, dress well, and improve your personality."

The point they're trying to make is that you can take this very simple advice and probably improve your standing, so there's no real reason to buy into the "hate-group" of the red pill....Originally the campaign against men included denying that stoicism and fitness were effective with women. They tried to convince a generation of boys that what women really wanted was a dude who shared his feelings and was able to cry on her shoulder... That the purple pill tries to deny it now, telling us that "get fit and confident" has always been a no-brainer is disingenuous.

They want to co-opt the inarguable parts of our argument to continue the campaign against what really scares them: understanding and truth about female sexual strategy.

There are some well-reasoned red pillars on the purple pill subreddit who tend to cave to these pressures nevertheless, and I see them now taking a foothold on our main subreddit.

I'll tell you what PPD's next line will be:

"We never said TRP was scary womanhaters, it's just rambunctious locker-room talk. But, could you tone it down a little, boys? It's kind of out of hand."

When a bitch can't shame you into compliance, her next tactic is to pretend to be your friend for just long enough to get what she wants.

Too bad for them we don't have an attention span limited to that of a goldfish.

Women's rights prof arrested for beating up boyfriend on Valentine's Day

13 upvotes · 21 February 2015 · /r/MensRights

Here, let me have a stab at it:

"Violence is harming others + privilege. Women cannot be violent because they do not have privilege."

How was that?

Girl Reports Me for Inappropriate Behavior On Match.com for Getting Her Naked !

13 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The trick to dealing with the stare trap is to treat it like any other shit test. Agree and amplify.

One lesson that took a long time for me to absorb, even after my "red pill awakening" was don't look away if someone "catches" you looking at them.

Yes, prolonged eye with strangers is "awkward", but confident people don't care about that. Awkwardness is something that embarrasses the other person, not them.

You don't have to make everything a staring contest, but don't look away right away. That shows you up as uncomfortable with others knowing you are looking at them. You aren't. The trick is to leave them wondering whether you thought they were attractive, thought they looked ridiculous, or were looking at something behind them.

The biggest cock carousel rider is posting sad posts on her Facebook about being single past the age of 30.

13 upvotes · 14 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The cock carousel doesn't just end at the wall, it races toward it.

Beauty is health, and health is beauty. That's why we have a notion of beauty at all.

Alcohol is fermented sugar, so it makes you fat just like sugar does. Lack of sleep raises cortisol levels, which increases visceral fat, depletes sex hormones, and kicks autoimmune responses into overdrive. Light night partying and cocaine lead to lack of sleep. To say nothing of what cocaine just does to you directly.

"Partying hard" is NOT a good idea, for men OR women ... it wears you out and it only pays you back in pleasure, which is a poor substitute for happiness.

Alphas foster strong loving relationships, whereas relationships with betas rot and fester into toxic codependency.

13 upvotes · 9 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you are a woman and as cognisant of your own thoughts as behaviors as they relate to red pill as you think you are.

Did you actually communicate any of this to 'The Beta' or just jump ship and find a new captain ?

A woman cannot teach a man to be her leader. The process contradicts the content.

Shocker: Women have stronger orgasms with rich hot guys

13 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Just be yourself" is advice for men who are already attractive.

Women have no advice for men who aren't already attractive, because those men are invisible to women, and when they are not, women do not want those men to succeed.

Factual Feminist on Catcalling video

13 upvotes · 12 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a pretty good analysis. CHS is usually not far from the point.

There is one thing that she only spends one sentence on, however, which deserves a little repetition.

Many or most women enjoy at least certain instances of "street harassment". This is a bit like the "no means no" slogan, which diminishes the complicated human interaction to a simple, single, unworkable dimension. No frequently doesn't mean no, and yes frequently doesn't mean yes. There is a whole complicated social dance that has grown up around the practice of communicating what we really mean while maintaining deniability if what we mean doesn't go down well.

Similarly, some women like unsolicited approaches, some women hate them, and the vast majority in between like some and hate others.

Feminists blame Mens Rights for MMA fighter John 'War Machine' Koppenhaver brutally beating up his ex: "All MRA's want to rape women" etc.

13 upvotes · 21 August 2014 · /r/MensRights

Does anyone else think that feminists are starting to sound like Pat Robertson?

"Hurricane? Gays."

"Terrorist attack? Gays."

"Economic slump? Gays."

World's Toughest Job - Great RP humor

13 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If it's the toughest job on the planet, how come almost half the human race throughout our entire history has successfully done it?

Redpillers do know that promiscuity doesn't effect the appearance of a vulva...right?

13 upvotes · 12 April 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Thank you, Captain Obvious, for decomplexifying this mysterium for we.

It's a metaphor. What's actually stretched out and used up is her soul. Her capacity to love. Her ability to approach the world with enthusiasm, innocence, and wonder. Her empathy for others.

You know, the kind of things that make a woman desirable for more than a one night stand.

A girl once accused me of sexual harassment, but the only claim she made is that I was staring at her.

13 upvotes · 7 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Second-class citizens should keep their eyes lowered to demonstrate awareness of their station, and avoid disturbing their betters.

Feminist Porn Star Belle Knox: 'Every Single Day Like A Nightmare' but quit porn?.... naah.

13 upvotes · 21 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, when the duck tells you it's a swan, you laugh.

When the duck tells you it's a swan, and then everyone around you tells you are a horrible person for laughing, and that you MUST tell the duck it's a swan... then you get angry.

Women complain that men are failing to protect them from violent crimes.

13 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

"Where are our men? Why are they not protecting us?" Sanchez continued, her voice full of frustration. "Men are failing us. I feel as though we are not being protected."

You wanted to be strong, independent women. Here's your chance.

"When women get pissed, they get things done."

... by men, apparently.

"What a girl does while she's single (and she was) is not an indication of what she does while in a relationship." Is this utter bullshit?

13 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

People don't suddenly become different people just because they are in a relationship.

13 Things Mentally Strong People DON'T Do

13 upvotes · 20 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Why hello, agent provocateur, and welcome to TRP. Enjoy your stay, do your best to get mistaken for an adult, and try not to run with the scissors.

What women mean when they say they want a nice guy.

13 upvotes · 19 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll make it simpler for you.

A woman's world begins and ends with her. A "good" man is a man who makes her have good feelings. A "bad" man is one who makes her have bad feelings. A "boring" man is one who doesn't give her any feelings at all.

It doesn't matter how other people than her experience him. It doesn't matter about all those investors he bilked, or about all those homeless people he took in, got jobs for, and helped to put their lives together again. If that investment fraud buys her nice things, he's a good man. If those homeless guys are scary to be around, he's an asshole.

Just think about dealing with a five year old. To a five year old, "that's not fair" means "I don't get what I want". To a five year old, "bad" means "feels bad". To a five year old, the man who ran over her dog is a bad man and must be punished, regardless of whether he meant to do it or not, or even whether he had the physical capability to stop in time. To a five year old, daddy is bad if he tells her she cannot have ice cream for breakfast, or stay up past her bedtime.

And the problem with this worldview is that it's contagious within a society. Why?

Because everyone feels bad when we see a woman being made unhappy. Yes, even us hardcore "misogynists" here at TRP. It's hardwired into our species. The reason we have to fight so hard against Captain Save-A-Ho is that he lives in all of us, waiting for a moment of weakness.

But if we start regarding female unhappiness as inherently and invariably bad simply because it makes us feel bad, then we are being like that five year old. And when we act on those feelings, we protect women from having to share, and have responsibilities, and sacrifice for others. Which causes them to grow up into the big five year olds described above.

Women aren't hardwired to be the "most mature teenager in the house". That would be silly. That would not be a survival trait for the species. But making them that way is a self reinforcing process, and we are deep into that downward spiral.

Self-proclaimed "small" woman comes to Korea from Canada and is upset that she is no longer complimented for being the only skinny girl around. Instead of praising the culture for valuing a healthy weight, she criticizes it

13 upvotes · 22 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's interesting how the hamsterization is only in regards to HER... "oh, I was so skinny I was having health problems etc etc etc", but when she talks about the Korean diet in general, she quite correctly points out how good and healthy it is.

The hamster isn't interested in constructing a whole consistent worldview. It doesn't care about making sense overall. It just defends the ego. Once the ego is no longer threatened, the hamster stops.

This leads to what George Orwell called "doublethink"... the ability to sustain two contradictory ideas, by never thinking about them both at the same time; the Koreans are simultaneously thin, self-disciplined, and healthy when she watches them eat, and also skinny, weight-obsessed, nagging, and unhealthy when they are watching her eat.

ABC will air a 20/20 program about Manosphere and Mens Rights groups harassing women online. Anita Sarkeesian has a starring role and will talk about the "abuse" she received from men online. I wonder if ABC will mention MRAs being attacked and abused by feminists in Toronto twice this year.

13 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

The definition of MRA will, of course, be anyone who sent her a nasty note. No actual MRAs will be interviewed.

RPW's thoughts on a particular version of feminism?

13 upvotes · 14 September 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

All of this is pretty much correct, but you underemphasize the most important point.

All of these women are being criticized. And feminists think this is an injustice. You know why all these women get criticized? Because everyone gets criticized. That's called "life".

Feminism's way of dealing with life's little hazards is to pretend they only happen to women, and that some sort of shadowy "patriarchy" is responsible for maliciously doing it to them.

But being free doesn't mean being protected from criticism. It means not being protected from criticism. Because freedom means making your own choices, and being responsible for them.

- If you're fat, people are going to criticize you for being fat, and offending the eyes of everyone who has to look at you.

- If you're fit, people are going to find something to criticize you for, because you make them look bad by comparison.
- If you're a nerd and male, people are going to criticize you for being abnormal and socially awkward.
- If you're a nerd and female, people are going to criticize for adopting the identity without paying the social cost, which is reserved for males.
- If you're cool, attractive, and popular, people are going to criticize you for being shallow and petty and mean.
- If you're a housewife and mother, people are going to criticize you for wasting your potential on your husband and children, instead of an office full of strangers.
- If you're a career woman, people are going to criticize you for wasting your potential on an office full of strangers, instead of your husband and children.
- If you're a career man, people are going to call you selfish for spending time away from your family.
- If you're not a career man, people are going to call you lazy and selfish and a loser.

Haters

Gonna

Hate

... because that's what makes them haters. Anyone who cares too much is doing life wrong. Like feminists.

And it is a shameful thing to demand respect. It is the most shameful thing. Because respect is earned.

"I miss you terribly" need TRP input on how to proceed

13 upvotes · 8 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My stock response to "I miss you terribly" is "Practice at it, you'll learn to do it better."

But in your case, with this woman, too much history. Amputation is better than gangrene.

Feminist university newspaper article says there's no such thing as a good man in a patriarchy, and that all men oppress women by nothing more than existing. And more happy thoughts.

13 upvotes · 26 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

This is why there can be no coexistence with feminism, no compromise. Because feminism is not interested in coexistence and a compromise.

They want to rule over.

The Way of Men

13 upvotes · 18 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When men evaluate each other as men, they still look for the same virtues that they'd need to keep the perimeter. Men respond to and admire the qualities that would make men useful and dependable in an emergency. Men have always had a role apart, and they still judge one another according to the demands of that role as a guardian in a gang struggling for survival against encroaching doom. Everything that is specifically about being a man — not merely a person — has to do with that role.

This is why men often fight and then become friends, a behaviour that puzzles women.

A man who fights you with courage shows that he is a good ally to have. That he is strong enough to stand for what is important to him.

A man who will stand up to you will stand up for you.

Marriage fail, I need help.

13 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

I am not going to talk to you about the morality of what you have done. Others have covered that angle. Instead, I am going to tell you what your best options for future happiness are.

Your relationship is damaged in two fundamental ways.

- You have lost respect for him.
- He has lost trust in you.

You must either:

- End the relationship and presumably go back to Russia or wherever.
- Repair the relationship; not just well enough to save it, but a full repair. This means restoring both your respect for him and his trust for you. You cannot continue without those two things, even if he agrees to keep you, because something else will happen, you would keep fighting, no sex, etc. Gotta fix it.

There is one recipe for restoring both his trust and your respect: Absolute submission.

Prove to him that you will do whatever it takes to prove to him that he is the top priority in your life from his moment forward, period. That means doing anything and everything he wants, meeting absolutely any condition he sets for the restoration of his trust. If he wants an open relationship, he gets it. If he wants an open relationship for him, but not for you, he gets it. If he wants to take away your cell phone and car keys, you give them up. If he wants to install a GPS tracker on your cell phone, he gets to.

If he wants to spank your ass with a wooden paddle every day until his hurt and outrage subsides, then every day at the appointed time, you remind him and bring him the paddle.

If he wants you to stand in front of your house with a sign saying "I cheated on my husband like a slut, and I will stand here every day with this sign until I learn to obey him", then that is what you will do.

Why?

Not as punishment for your transgressions. This is not about crime, or sin, or morality. This is about trust and respect.

- He does not trust you because you proven yourself to be untrustworthy.
- You do not respect him, which is clearly evident from the fact that you were refusing sex, and then cheating on him. I do not know HOW you came to lose respect for him, or if you ever had it. But I do know that if you had that respect for him, you would want to have sex with him, because it is respect and admiration that is the greatest component of sexual attraction in women.

Submission to him is your best chance to fix both of these. If you submit to him, he may regain trust in you. If you submit to him and treat him not as a peer but a superior, you will respect him, and you'll find yourself attracted to him. This is how sexual attraction WORKS for women.

Believe it or not, you would be happier bringing him that paddle at 4pm every day, and asking for your punishment, than you were having the affair. Because a relationship with a man you respect is better for you than all the affairs you could ever manage.

Now I'm going to start guessing about why you didn't respect him. Anything from here on in could be totally wrong, it's just one likely scenario.

Because you never did. You probably like him well enough, but see yourself as "out of his league" because you're probably "hot" and he's a bit of a "nerd". You probably would have friendzoned him if he hadn't come with a green card to sweeten the deal.

Now you're married to him, and fighting a lot because you're not happy. You feel like you settled, and he doesn't turn you on, so you don't want sex with him.

Well, I have good news for you. He can become more attractive. In fact, you can make him more attractive. Attractiveness in men is not physical, it's behavioural. He can become more attractive by acting more confident. And he can be more confident if you start acting submissive and treating him with respect.

Female cyclists start a petition to be included in Tour de France. There would have to be different start and finish lines for men and women, or streets would have to be closed for hours till women would pass.

13 upvotes · 12 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

Some of the target shooting events, perhaps.

Why do people think you guys hate women?

13 upvotes · 22 June 2013 · /r/MensRights

They don't think that.

They want other people to think that, so that those people will not listen to what we have to say.

Train a society of men that the only acceptable option is to be "the nice guy". But.. If they notice that it works against them in dating that must mean they only want sex. So berate and chastise them

13 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

It's important to note that the anti-maleness is not in being attracted to liking dominant, confident, assertive guys. Berating women for not liking "nice guys" is like berating men for not liking fat girls. It's useless, and it's an attempt to get someone to defy their instincts.

The anti-male action, is in teaching little boys, and later men, an ineffective strategy so that women can feel good about themselves and how noble they are.

Women are just as shallow as the rest of us.

Yes, we like big tits, and they like behaviour. But the behaviour they like is very simple, and can be assumed by any man who practices it a bit. No one, not men, not women, is turned on by character and virtue.

Should I be honorable with women?

13 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Honor really isn't a female value, so expecting them to show it is somewhat strange. You're expecting women to act like men.

However, empathy, consideration, courtesy... these are female values.

So you cannot expect a woman to keep promises to you because she gave her word. But you can expect her to keep a promise because it's rude and inconsiderate of your feelings not to.

But a part of me still thinks that Honor is Honor, regardless of who I'm interacting with.

You're kinda operating from a male-centric view, here. I know that's an odd thing to say in TRP. But it's important for men to be masculine and women to be feminine. Of course you'll want to be masculine and value honor and integrity. But don't expect women to be masculine, because it isn't fair and you wouldn't like it anyway.

Instead, understand that there are feminine virtues, and that those, not masculine virtues, are the ones we can expect women to display. When we understand what those virtues are, then not only do we know what we can expect of women, we know how to speak to them to make our expectations clear.

A man can be expected to treat others fairly because it is the right thing to do.

A woman can be expected to treat others fairly because she considers their feelings, and wants to be nice, rather than hurting them.

This affects how we talk to women if we want to get results. If you talk to a woman about keeping her word, and the right thing to do, she'll ignore you. Those masculine values do not scan for her. Instead, tell her about how her actions look from the point of view of others, and ask how she thinks it makes that person feel.

That's a rebuke that makes sense to her.

That is why women have a rationalization hamster at all. Because their better (feminine) nature demands that they not be inconsiderate and selfish and hurtful. If they live in society that encourages them to be just that, then they have to come up with reasons to believe that what they're doing actually isn't inconsiderate and selfish and hurtful, because then they wouldn't be able to live with themselves.

Beware the woman who doesn't have a hamster, because odds are she is a sociopath who doesn't need one.

Instead, use Whisper's Infallible Hamster Disarming Technique™. (Note: actual infallibility of technique depends on skill of user. Your results may vary.)

A hamster can only come up with rationalizations that a behaviour isn't hurtful in the abstract, or shouldn't be hurtful, or isn't a bad person, or whatever.

It cannot dispel the statement that she has specifically hurt, in this specific case, this specific person's feelings. If you just keep restating that important fact, the hamster will run out of material.

You will know you are getting close when she starts to talk about how she's not a bad person, or tries to convince you that she had no malicious intent. That means she realizes she was mean to someone. At that point, just point out that what she intended or who she is, doesn't change how that person experienced what she did.

Press this, and you can reach remorse and an apology.

Do it repeatedly, and she'll learn to do it to herself, and start becoming a trustworthy adult.

The important point here is Women do not give a crap about sticking to moral principles, or being consistent. Their morality comes from a desire not to hurt others, especially not to hurt others' feelings.

On the other hand, men do not give a crap about hurting others' feelings. Our moral behaviour comes from sticking consistently to what we consider to be the principles of fairness.

Why are women you rode the cock carousel viewed as sluts/skanks or in a negative light (ie not relationship material)?

13 upvotes · 2 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Things to understand:

- Every woman rides the penis train. Even if she gets off at the first stop.
- Women get off the penis train when they find the best station they think they can.
- They think the station is the best they can get for one of two reasons. Either they have found someone whose SMV represents the best they think they could ever do, or their womb is nearing its sell-by date, and they are having to settle.
- This means that a woman with a more realistic idea of her SMV tends to exit the penis train sooner, and after fewer stops.
- This also means that a woman with a higher SMV tends to exit the penis train sooner, and after fewer stops.

Conclusion: Riding the cock train for a long time is not so much a reducer of SMV, as it is a symptom of being a bad catch.

Students in a Vancouver suburb protested a local strip club. A former exotic dancer takes a unique stand to protest their protest. (x-post r/Vancouver) - Imgur

13 upvotes · 24 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

To feminists, how liberated a woman is can be measured by, and can only be measured by, the degree to which she behaves as they imagine a liberated women would.

Any behaviour on her part that's "off-plan" (not majoring in computer science, getting paid to take her clothes off, quitting her job to have kids) is interpreted as either an act of oppression, or the consequences of such an act.

6 Harsh Truths that Will Make you a better person

13 upvotes · 17 December 2012 · /r/seduction

Is this guy me? Have I been writing cracked articles in my sleep?

Usually cracked is total shit, but this is completely spot-on, and echoes things I've been saying for years.

Everyone is a sociopath. We all just care about what's in it for us. We may construct elaborate rationalizations to the contrary, but that's just what they are. Rationalizations.

Because we are small correlation and rationalization engine strapped onto the brain of a primate that wants food, sex, and power. And what most of us do all day is construct bullshit excuses about how the actions of that primate are aligned to some higher principle. That's dumb.

What we can learn to do instead is admit that we are mostly an ape, and that the best thing we could possibly do is help the ape be better at getting what it wants.

Jezebel: Fuck You Men's Rights Activists.

13 upvotes · 13 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

Inhale deeply.

You smell that?

That's fear.

So much for equality Google

13 upvotes · 20 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

TIL that testicles are worth $500 million each.

Checked out the spot where JohnTheOther posted his posters... this is what has replaced them...WTF!

13 upvotes · 17 September 2012 · /r/MensRights

Oh, good. A "study" of the self-reported attitudes of self-identified feminists, done by feminists.

Were these people asleep the day they taught the scientific method? Are they not required to take a course in statistics?

Of course, they weren't, and they were, respectively. That's the thing about "social science"... the more closely you look at it, the less it looks like science. They do things they know invalidate the study... but they just hand-wave over it, hope it has some validity anyway, because if they admit that bad science is worse than no science at all, well, then they don't have a career, do they?

Publishing silly studies and teaching "Women's Studies 101" or "Intro to Psych" may not be the most highly paid or respected of careers, but it's all they know how to do.

"misandry" is now officially a word in the OED

13 upvotes · 13 July 2012 · /r/MensRights

<http://i.imgur.com/dhUdO.png>

No, I will not "grow a pair"

13 upvotes · 22 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

For those of us men who are more team players than the all-conquering alphas we're supposed to aspire to be, it's a tiresome thing. Not all of us are meant to shout and bellow and fight our way to success; some of us prefer other ways of doing things. It's not through a lack of balls, but through a lack of unfeeling uber-competitiveness.

Fuck everything about this.

Didn't we learn anything from feminist mistakes?

Stereotyping and hating on competitive alpha males is just more misandry.

Jezebel: Stealing a man's sperm is ok, as long as no women are harmed in the process.

13 upvotes · 5 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

Where does this legend of the sperm swiping madwoman come from? And why won't it die? Why are men's rights activists so willing to believe that in a world practically dripping with sperm, women specifically want theirs so they can be pregnant and possibly farty for 9 months, stretch their skin out, and go through childbirth in order to control the men in their lives? Don't flatter yourselves, dudes. If a woman wants to be pregnant, she doesn't need to steal sperm — she can just head to a sperm bank or a local bar full of drunk irresponsible barebacking-a-stranger types.

Ah, yes, the deliberate misunderstanding. Debating tactic of second-rate hacks everywhere.

Not one of these wonks doesn't know that no one, ourselves included, thinks sperm is valuable. Heck, it's easy as hell to manufacture.

But something doesn't have to be valuable to be dangerous. It's a copy of our genetic material. And legally, anyone who gets their hands on it can do whatever they want with it, and we're responsible for the results.

Gee whiz, Mister, you think that might be just a little... I dunno... dangerous?

And you ask why women would do such a thing?

Well, why anything? Why would men rape when there are plenty of horny women out there raring to go? Why would people voluntarily listen to Justin Beiber? Why do people eat lutelisk? Why would they drive American cars, or eat British "food"? Mysteries abound.

You'll won't get far preceding from the assumption that anyone in the universe is a rational actor.

My Body, My Choice: Ban Non-Consensual Circumcision

13 upvotes · 23 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Although I would like to point out that your parents all kind of medical choices for you that you have no say in.

Excellent point! I'm going to cut off my child's ears. It's hygienic!

What the fucking fuck?! Woman fatally stabs a man from the backseat of the car he's driving. FOUND NOT GUILTY.

13 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Anyone here think that if a man stabbed a woman in the neck, the headline would point out that he "still treasures the locket with a photo of the woman he killed" ?

No matter how awful a woman's crime, the press always seems to find some way to try to make her sympathetic.

The Patriarchy - Image

13 upvotes · 10 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

I understand your meaning, but I don't think you really get what the word "privilege" means in the context of where it comes from.

It doesn't just mean "advantage". It comes from two words, the word for private and the word for law. In other words, a privilege is not just when circumstances favor you, but when the rules favor you.

For example, I am a bodybuilder. I am stronger and healthier than people who don't exercise. This is an advantage, but it is not a privilege, because it came to me through my own efforts, not as a result of policy or rules. I am also highly intelligent. This is another advantage, but, again, it is not a privilege, because it came to me as result of chance (what genes I happened to end up with), not as result of policy or rules. And I am a US citizen. This is a privilege. It is an advantage that comes to me as a result of rules.

You are (presumably) a woman. When you complain about injustice, people are more likely to be sympathetic to you, and to act on your behalf. This is an advantage, but not a privilege. The social custom of valuing you more and being more protective of you is not a rule or policy. You are also less likely to wind up homeless. This is a privilege. There are public programs, which both of us pay taxes into in equal portion, which will provide support to you, but not me, as a matter of policy.

I trust this makes the distinction clear.

Now, why am I arguing semantics with you? Because it's important. To call an advantage a "privilege" to use language that implies it is something unfair that must be eliminated.

If you say "let us work to eliminate privilege", that's going to sound like a reasonable proposition to a lot of people. But if we strip away the spin-doctoring, and realize that what this really means is "let us work to eliminate advantage", then it sounds like the precise sort of insane, Harrison Bergeron-esque statement that it actually is.

The very use of the term "privilege" in situations like this is an attempt to frame the discussion so that certain people are automatically characterized as part of the problem. You may think you're "explaining" the meaning of a technical term, but you're actually dispensing a piece of propaganda disguised as scholarship.

The very notion of "privilege" as a useful concept must be questioned vigorously, because the consensus that originally adopted it deliberately excluded certain perspectives, the male perspective being one of these.

r/TransphobiaProject fights with r/feminisms. r/Mensrights emerges as the villain.

13 upvotes · 11 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

While men are not allowed at the festival, male children 4 years and younger are.

Interesting. I guess now we know what age feminists think the evil starts.

4 year old boy: innocent child who needs to be protected.

5 year old boy: evil patriarchal oppressor.

There are some women like that.

13 upvotes · 12 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Yeah, because judging an entire group by one action by one of its adherents is soooo valid!

Unless it's a cartoon about women.

(Closed caption for the irony-resistant: you just objected to a generalization with an even more broad and negative generalization.)

Ah yes, completely necessary in a game where women already make as much as men.

12 upvotes · 6 May 2022 · /r/MensRights

Succinct illustration of what feminism actually is.

Would women be happier if they stopped thinking about themselves/perfecting themselves for the "male gaze" or if they improved their lives to be deemed attractive by men?

12 upvotes · 20 March 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Happiness is not pleasure.

Happiness is different. It comes from two things. A feeling of accomplishment, and a feeling of connection to other people.

Men who plan to marry in their 40s are ruining the dating market

12 upvotes · 17 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Okay, well when we look at your list, see that it includes only women and children, then see you summarize it as "everyone"...

Then we know everything we need to know about you.

I owe you nothing, and I don't have to fix anything for you.

R1ggedved's Guide to Amazing Intercourse and Why It's More Important Than You Think It is

12 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

You have incorrectly identified the primary organ responsible for the female orgasm.

It's the brain. The way you get a woman off is to get inside her head, and get her in the right mindset.

Sure, some girls are vaginal-thrusting girls, and other girls are clit girls, and there are girls who like all sorts of things.

But the thing that all girls need is to be in the right headspace. So don't be so quick to assume that anyone who doesn't share your physical tech manual is a liar.

Women should plan for a future without a partner.

12 upvotes · 8 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Contrary to popular belief, boys are neither stupid nor oblivious to what is going on around them, and are quite capable of forming opinions about, and emotional reactions to, things before the point at which they personally experience them.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

12 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, time to speculate a little.

Imagine a man with a wife who is conventionally pretty attractive and has a healthy and aesthetic height to weight ratio. This is fine, but he's got two additional things going on.

One, he's confrontation-averse and doesn't like to communicate directly.

Two, he finds this more attractive than this.

If he were willing to be direct, he might ask her to do less aerobics and more heavy squats, and that would be a simple conversation.

But he doesn't want to make her feel insulted. And he's been told since birth that telling women how to look is asshole behaviour. And she's already conventionally attractive, and he does find her attractive, and he doesn't want to seem picky or spoiled.

And, since he never read TRP, he doesn't realize that everything that women actually like (such as direct communication and clear expectations) is being condemned as "MisOGyny!!!".

So, in his pathological inability to just fucking SAY it, he starts sending her pictures of buff chicks instead. And every time he's confronted, he loses his nerve and calls it a "joke".

Does any of that sound weirdly familiar?

Why do men react so shrilly to "OnlyFans" but don't seem to have an issue with porn, strip clubs, sex phone operators, cam girls on porn sites...?

12 upvotes · 5 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Dear diary:

Today I noticed a man who was upset about onlyfans, but yesterday I heard a man express enthusiasm about porn. I am confused.

I hate having to ignore.

12 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

Look at it this way: when you reprimand someone, you are trying to correct their behaviour.

The more options someone has, the easier it is for them to choose to interact with someone else, rather than trying to correct behaviour.

The more you improve yourself, the more options you will have.

The more options you have, the less anyone's disrespect will make you feel hurt (because you don't need them).

What you are doing right now is emulating the behaviour of a high value, high option person, in order to get treated like one. We recommend you do this (while you are working on yourself to actually become one) because getting treated like one increases your confidence, which is part of being one and helps you become one.

So, the question that's important is:

How are you guys content with just ghosting her, and leaving her thinking she didn't do anything wrong?

Because if I ghost a woman, or a recruiter, or a business or investment opportunity, then it's because I'm not into what they have to offer. If I don't need them, and I'm not going to interact with them, then what does it matter what they think of me?

I don't care if someone I have no use for thinks I am a dastardly villain or an insecure weakling or a stupid, knuckle-dragging ape. Their opinion isn't going to effect me.

But you still want their good opinion. Why? Because you have doubts in your own value, and use the opinions of others to bolster yourself.

The opprobrium of others hurts because it echoes your own self-loathing and fear.

But as you continue to self-improve and build success and confidence, that negative self-talk will dissipate. And you will give less fucks what strangers think of you.

Have you noticed any patterns in the types of people attracted to you?

12 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

For some reason I am a Jew magnet.

Correcting female chauvinism, one meme at a time.

12 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Oftentimes a woman's bossiness is mistaken for leadership.

How did you find out about TRP community?

12 upvotes · 23 March 2021 · /r/askTRP

That's a badass story.

Especially so for me, and others like /u/redpillschool and /u/humansockpuppet who helped put this all together.

Nobody really sets out saying "I'm going to build something great today, and save lives or change the world forever." Instead, it begins with "I have an idea.", or "I'm gonna try this.", or "Hmmmm, that's interesting."

I've written a lot since then, talked to a lot of dudes, been told I changed a lot of lives. Ever been told by a few people that I saved them from killing themselves. But really it was all of us.

As someone put it elsewhere... apes together strong.

Is MGTOW a problem for us and why men judge us all by the worst women they've met?

12 upvotes · 8 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men there are bitter and completely positive to write women off, go completely their own way.

Male anger about what's happen between the sexes is the west is largely legitimate, but that's not going to matter to your individual life if and when you run into someone who is so angry at what you are that he can't see who you are.

In order to interact with someone, there has to be a certain baseline amount of trust. Even the act of speaking to someone is an act of trust, because it requires some belief that the other will care what we have to say.

When someone can't speak to you and trust you to hear, or listen to you and believe a word you say, there is nothing you can do to help them. That has to be left to someone who can still have a conversation with them. All you can do is gracefully depart their presence without causing more damage.

I'm getting really worried that myself and other good women weren't be able to find a good man.

You are correct that this is a problem for women collectively. Which is why you have to take care of yourself individually. If you, personally, are kind, feminine, warm, and considerate, and take an effort to understand men's point of view, you will stand out in a world of women who typically do not do this.

To put it more bluntly, when your competition is a bunch of selfish, narcissistic, spiteful cunts, all you have to do to stand out is be a decent human being, and men will reward you as if you were a paragon of virtue.

Then you can find a good relationship, and watch the chaos and fire from a safe distance.

For real? Of course he would call it female character just like we say male character not man character or woman character.

12 upvotes · 5 March 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Sounds pretty fragile of them.

Problems that are beyond the scope of RPW.

12 upvotes · 8 January 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

The intention here is that we're talking solely about relationships that have already gotten serious. Obviously, dating involves rejecting lots of people.

But, yes, we might need to insert some language to make that more clear.

You must be 6ft tall, tattooed, and have a job to provide for her kids because she's not getting a job anytime soon.

12 upvotes · 5 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And 0 6ft+ inked men who were willing and able to support her and her kids.

Women like this can get sex, no problem. But that's what men want. They don't get what they want.

Narcissist ex boyfriend using me as a bait for making his wife jealous, blocking my feminine journey, making me crazy. Should I involve my parents in this matter??

12 upvotes · 13 October 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

So the answers are "because I have an unhealthy obsession with a married man" and "absolutely nothing" respectively.

Guys in a LTR have you cheated? If yes why?

12 upvotes · 30 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

What's "cheating", when I make the rules?

Why get into an LTR?

12 upvotes · 9 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Yes, exactly.

FunSize makes me the envy of any man who sees her with me, not because she's fucking adorable (there are plenty of pretty women out there), but because of how she treats me. I am showered in love and respect every day, not just from her, but because FanGirl is learning from her example. Does that mean that FunSize is just the avatar of sweetness and light, and I'm the lucky man who found her? Of course not. She's as capable of viciousness as any other woman... what's more, I hope she is, because I gave her an H&K P30SK to carry and taught her how to use it if she runs across someone who desperately needs a few nine millimeter holes to improve his manners.

The simple, basic not-at-all-secret of relationships is that men and women have complimentary instincts that feed off each other. Women instinctively respect and obey men. Men instinctively protect and care for women. And the expression of each instinct in action will stimulate the other.

The purpose of how TRP teaches you to interact with women isn't to destroy or suppress that protective instinct. It's to teach you how to switch it on and off as the situation demands, so you can be ruthless with nasty, combative, sassy hoes, and chivalrous with women who are submissive and loving towards you.

Yes, we absolutely start you out teaching y'all how bitches ain't shit, and very selectively giving you examples of the depths of bad behaviour that women are capable of, but that's because the vast majority of you come to us with the protective instinct switch stuck in the "on" position, and we have to leverage your anger to jar it loose.

All those times some of you got friendzoned or exploited or turned into an orbiter were because you acted protective with a woman who didn't act submissive to you. So we teach you how to be indifferent, and that makes you able to spin plates.

But when you decide you want a relationship, you need to be able to use it again to train a girl. Or two. Or three. You just need to have control over it, instead of it having control over you.

Who else has been called a pick me girl?

12 upvotes · 4 August 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

If someone who are arguing with starts talking about who or what you are, then they have conceded they are unable to refute what you say based on its content, and therefore they need to dismiss it based on its source.

35+ wants kids someday WTF?

12 upvotes · 11 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

There is no upside to telling the truth to women.

Why would anyone do it? Women will shoot the messenger every time. Or just cry.

LTR hits me with «When are we getting married?»

12 upvotes · 27 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

You save me a lot of typing.

Crafting the perfect marriage

12 upvotes · 25 April 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You're objectively wrong. Women do enjoy being side chicks for the right man. And plenty of men who have enough experience being the right man can tell you so.

What they don't enjoy is the level of social shaming they receive from other women for doing so.

All women are submissive and look around them for cues on what to do, on what is normal, sane, and acceptable, and what is not. This means that modern women are going to fall into two categories... women who are submissive to a man, and women who are submissive to other women.

Women who are submissive to other women look to the collective behaviour and speech of other women to give them their beliefs and values. Thing is, all the other women they are looking to are doing this as well, which means they form a massive hive that is not so much composed of reasoning beings, as it is a substrate for self-perpetuating ideas. One of these ideas is "high-value women don't share men", which is mindlessly repeated without ever stopping to ask exactly what "high-value" means in this context.

Women who are submissive to a man get their values from him, and will happily share him if the arrangement continues to feel good. They don't give a toss what other women say, because they are not submissive to other women.

If your women or woman enforces society's general expectations for relationships on you, instead of following your lead, then she is submissive to other women, not you.

Should I tell her I'm a virgin?

12 upvotes · 31 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

No.

My ltr randomly dyed her hair pink and I hate it

12 upvotes · 23 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

.

My body my choice

12 upvotes · 10 January 2020 · /r/MensRights

"Nazi" is now just a snarl word for right-wing authoritarian.

Why this total disregard for boys and their right to genital integrity? Infant boy lost his penis head during circumcision, but apparently its no big deal because they created a fake penis out from his scrotum and he can urinate just fine. Wtf?

12 upvotes · 23 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

Your nation is a backwards hellhole full of ignorant barbarians who belong to a medieval death cult.

Was that sufficiently clear to you?

How to escape this "crabs in a bucket" cycle?

12 upvotes · 19 December 2019 · /r/askTRP

If high school doesn't suck, you do.

Think about it. You are forced to be there, with the children of a bunch of people who are too lazy to homeschool their children and too broke to send them to private school, getting fed a bunch of bullshit selected for your consumption by government, as dispensed by losers who with a college degree and no marketable skills except "unionized babysitter", and being graded on how well you avoid taking risks or making any sort mistake you might learn from.

If you are comfortable in that environment, if you don't rage every single day at the bars surrounding your world, then you are the human equivalent of unflavoured rice cakes, and you only exist because someone out there has to get excited about the new flavour of doritos.

How do I stop being bitter and get over oneitis ? I now believe every girl is a slut. Is this true ?

12 upvotes · 6 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Me and about ten of my friends wrote it, so it's pretty much what I say it is... sexual strategy, not philosophy.

We've allowed other useful stuff, from time to time, on a case by case basis, and we've considered explicitly expanding the mission, but so far, no. If we change our minds we'll let ya know.

How do I stop being bitter and get over oneitis ? I now believe every girl is a slut. Is this true ?

12 upvotes · 6 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Wrong. TRP is about getting women.

But not about getting any one particular woman. It's a numbers game.

Boyfriend's hesitation about having SAHM: time to go?

12 upvotes · 24 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

+1

/u/LuckyLittleStar

Postmodern Masculinity

12 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a difference between finding enjoyment and finding value.

Philosophy can occupy the bored brain, but your personal enjoyment is only value to you, not to everyone. Trying to retrofit some kind of philosophical underpinning to TRP just because some people are intellectuals and like to play with abstractions doesn't make a whole lot of sense. It's just dead weight for everyone else.

As for Rollo, I find that his work is terrific for young novice dudes whose primary training need is how to resist being weak to female wiles... but when you're ready to be a patriarch and rule a harem of obedient girls, it needs a lot of recontextualizing.

I don't think anyone is a "role model", not even /u/redpillschool and I... because to learn what we are trying to teach here, a man must grow beyond the need for father figures, and become a father to himself. I am appreciative of all the love and gratitude I have received from younger men I have helped, but it is best of all when they pass beyond needing a mentor, and become peers instead.

Eventually, any man who reads and practices will acquire the knowledge, experience, and wisdom to question the source material, and tamper with it to suit his own life, not like a novice fucking around with basic lifting programs, but like an advanced lifter knowledgeably tailoring his program to his goals.

I have no patience for overarching philosophies or schools of revealed truth that revere their founders beyond the possibility or question or refinement. Formal structures and grand theories of everything are generally a waste of time, because such theories do not empower those who subscribe to them. Some men may find reading Nietzsche entertaining, but no one has ever been able to produce a shred of concrete evidence that such activity is of any practical benefit beyond that enjoyment.

So there will be no philosophy of TRP, and TRP will never be a movement to change society, or the terrain. It will continue to focus on helping individual men make themselves into survivors, who not only know most of what they need to, but know how to teach themselves what they don't.

Weak men will screw feminism up. - The Sexbots Are Coming

12 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

When we reach Westworld levels of robots women are fucked.

Human-level AI would change everything so much that I'm not sure that would even be a blip.

"I'll let you know"

12 upvotes · 27 March 2019 · /r/askTRP

There are only two answers a woman gives you. "Hell yes" or "no".

Anything that's not the first is the second.

Cursing. How much is okay?

12 upvotes · 26 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yeah, that was a bit low-brow, but what better way to express the feeling that my penis was actually trying to retract into my body? (Apparently some animals can do this.)

Imagine being with a woman who goes out of her way to deliberately act vulgar and/or hostile just to dispel any possible misconceptions that she might be too feminine and nice.

Imagine the lack of class. Imagine the fights she'd pick with you. Imagine the general lack of concern for your feelings and desires. Imagine being embarrassed to take her anywhere public.

Ew.

I feel guilty for wanting a monogamous relationship

12 upvotes · 17 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I guess I want to make sure I am not just blindly following my emotions.

You're supposed to follow your emotions, although perhaps not blindly. That's what pursuing your own happiness looks like.

The important thing to understand is that three things make a good relationship:

- Mutual strong attraction.
- Shared values.
- Compatible goals.

So, if you consider polygyny morally wrong, that's a value. If it simply makes you unhappy, then having a man that's exclusive to you is a goal.

So, for example, I'm one of the founders of TRP, and I came up with this stuff because I like variety, and even more importantly, I value freedom. An expectation of exclusivity would be a deal-breaker for me. So, if you and

I met, no matter how strong our mutual attraction was, we could not have a happy relationship because we do not have shared values or compatible goals.

But I'm not the only man in the universe. Just as I will not allow anyone to make me feel ashamed of pursuing my happiness, there is no point in you feeling ashamed of pursuing yours... TRP is not a moral philosophy, we do not concern ourselves with right or wrong. We simply talk about the best way for me to effectively get what I want, and the best way for you to effectively get what you want.

And part of that is for you to understand that, yes, men do like variety. So you don't get your sights on a man, then try to morally harangue him out of that desire. (Because taste cannot be negotiated.) Instead, you choose to spend your effort on men who set a low priority on it, or don't even want it at all.

When we abandon the idea of right and wrong, or the idea of what a relationship should look like, we are free to focus on what works or doesn't, and how to get a relationship that looks like we want it to look.

You do not need to "justify" your wants with moral arguments. What you want is important merely because you want it, just as what I want is important merely because I want it.

Billionaire incel dies during penis enlargement surgery

12 upvotes · 7 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

NYET! Rifle is fine!

WHY YOU WANT RAIL FOR KALASHNIKOV? IS NOT GOOD ENOUGH AS PROCURED FROM IZHEVSK MECHANICAL WORKS? YOU THINK NEEDS IMPROVEMENT? THEN MAYBE YOU FIND JOB WITH ARMY OF RUSSIA! YOU HAVE DRINKS WITH MIKHAIL KALASHNIKOV, TRADE STORY OF MANY WEAPONS DESIGNED AND DETAILS OF SCHOOL FOR ENGINEERING!

OR MAYBE YOU NOT DO THIS. PROBABLY IS BECAUSE YOU NEVER DESIGN WEAPON IN WHOLE LIFE. YOU LOOK AT FINE RUSSIAN RIFLE, THINK IT NEED CRAZY SHIT STICK ON ALL SIDES OF WEAPON. YOU HAVE DISEASE OF AMERICAN CAPITALIST, CHANGE THING THAT IS FINE FOR NO REASON EXCEPT TO LOOK DIFFERENT FROM COMRADE. YOU PUT CHEAP FLASHLIGHT OF CHINESE SLAVE FACTORY ON ONE SIDE, YOU PUT BAD SCOPE OF AMERICAN MIDDLE WEST ON OTHER SIDE, YOU PUT FRONT PISTOL GRIP ON BOTTOM SO YOU ARE LIKE AMERICAN MOVIE GUY JOHN RAMBO. MAYBE YOU PUT SEX DILDO ON TOP TO FUCK YOURSELF IN ASSHOLE FOR MAKING SHAMEFUL TRAVESTY OF RIFLE OF MIKHAIL KALASHNIKOV, NO?

RIFLE IS FINE. YOU FUCK IT, IT ONLY GET HEAVY AND YOU STILL NO HIT LARGEST SIDE OF BARN. GO TO FIRING RANGE, PRACTICE WITH MANY MAGAZINE OF CARTRIDGE. THEN YOU NOT NEED DUMB SHIT PUT ON SIDE OF RIFLE.

Q4W: Have you ever blamed yourself for your dating problems?

12 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In my experience, many girls follow a cycling pattern between "it's all my fault, I suck, I want someone to comfort me" and "it's all men's fault, they suck, why won't they treat me like a princess?".

Real progress is generally arrested until these can be replaced by an attitude of "who cares whose fault it is? It's my problem, and I'm the only one who can fix it"

Couldn't F close, want to know why specifically

12 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Jesus fuck.

We need to re-sticky the basic game material... the newer guys aren't seeing it. (/u/redpillschool)

When you encounter LMR, do not push forward. That will only produce more resistance. Instead, "freeze her out" by pulling back way further than she wants you to. Like, she wants you to keep making out with her and giving her attention, but not seal the deal and get what you want.

Instead, you pull all the way back. Physically pull back, say you had a good time (very sincerely, avoid looking butthurt), and start making preparations to leave.

Now this is NOT what she wants, but she can't blame you for it, because she thinks you think that's what she wants. She'll typically say something like "You don't have to go". Act reluctant. You are saving her from temptation, and it's just a better idea all around if you go. Make her talk you into staying.

Then escalate again. This time, she'll think of you as a man who must have other options, because he isn't all that thirsty... he was willing to just leave. Now it's not "how do I safeguard my virtue?", it's "how do I hold his interest?".

Hard cases will sometimes require a second freeze out, but never freeze out a third time. If she turns you down twice, she's not that into you, she just likes the attention... she's a time waster, go for real. Don't call the next day.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

12 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's possible you want a girl you can actually love. Nothing in TRP advice precludes this. Read my articles on control game.

I've been texting this random chick from college for 3 months. What should I do next?

12 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I could berate you for spending months texting someone who lives near you without going and seeing her. But you're clearly a novice, so you know you're fucking up... what you need is the balls to do something different.

You can't get laid over text.

Gotta do something sooner or later.

If her Tinder profile says "NO ONS/serious intentions only" - do you bother swiping right?

12 upvotes · 10 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Stop listening to what women say, and watch what they do.

Girls who don't hook up don't say "no hookups", because hookups aren't a thing, in their world.

The Red Pill and The Broken Heart, Is this TRP Way?

12 upvotes · 10 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

I'm really glad TRP, PUA, etc came into my life but I feel like the Red Pill is going to preclude me from ever loving a woman again.

You silly person, how can I help you if you don't read what I write?

Hypergamy is Monogamy

12 upvotes · 10 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Cheating on your girlfriend is almost mandatory if you want to see where she sees you in the hierarchy of men available to her. If she leaves over it you have your answer.

+1

Commodity Fetishism

12 upvotes · 4 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This is closely related to the concept of Kayfabe.

Fake realities can be constructed using symbolism (your SUV doesn't make you a rugged outdoorsman, it's just a minivan with fenders), and true realities can be ignored by denying emergent symbolism (you claim you're not a whore, but you're wearing the uniform).

Symbol-object confusion is one of the primary blue-pill ways to fool the self and others.

Tactical soap

If this is satire, it's brilliant.

If it isn't satire, what the actual fuck?

Edit: Holy shit. There's an order link. It's not satire.

Well, fuck that.

Status of the Appeal 10/11

12 upvotes · 12 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That is indeed their plan. Our plan is to reveal that this what is in fact going on.

The whole process is a sham, we know it, we're fine with it, quarantine hurts us not at all. We just want to expose them for the incompetent liars they are.

I have an extreme jealousy of red pill men. It's honestly getting me down.

12 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The best place to begin is usually at the beginning.

Dealing with your own shit is just better for ya than being angry at somebody else for having already done that.

Can't ever feel better from trying to fix the wrong problem.

Tinder girls pleading for me not to murder them when we meet up? Wtf, possible shit test?

12 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do write this.

How to bring up topic of waiting for sex without sounding like you're asking to define the relationship?

12 upvotes · 7 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Either have sex, or don't, at any given moment.

Do not stop and negotiate when to have sex. Attraction cannot be negotiated, and attempting to do so just makes you come off as autistic.

Advice For a 16 Year Old Girl?

12 upvotes · 16 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm sorry, but this sounds more like a personal bias, not red pill advice.

You may not like it, but this is not about you.

Can you clarify what you mean?

The red pill is ultimately a metaphor for seeing what's there, rather than what someone else tells you is there.

There are a lot of political movements and religious groups out there that love to get their hooks into young people, get them working as volunteers for some idealistic cause, whether it's saving the planet, or the rainforest, or the nation, or people's "souls". Then they treat them like slaves.

One of the reasons we created TRP is the first place is that we don't like seeing young people's innate idealism used against them.

How am I meant to compete with guys who take steroids?

12 upvotes · 30 May 2018 · /r/askTRP

In this thread, we see the male anorexic in his natural habitat (the internet), engaged in his natural range of behaviour (bitching about other people and making excuses).

The male anorexic may also be found in the gym, benching 135 lbs with his tiny little stick arms day after day, year after year, without making any "progress" because he won't "eat a damn sandwich" for fear of losing his "abs" (a fashion trend whereby visible evidence of anorexia is mistaken for strength).

Badly alpha widowed. What can I do?

12 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's got to be something I can do to fix this.

No, there doesn't.

Men get to erase their history and reinvent themselves. You don't. That's the price you pay for being the preferred sex and having people give a shit about you.

Because you are a container of valuable eggs, rather than a factory that makes cheap and replaceable sperm, people will judge you for how you handled that value.

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

12 upvotes · 11 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"I know."

LTR: The Bare Minimum You Need to Know

12 upvotes · 10 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Symptom, not disease.

Women who claim then want nice guys. Lying or naivety?

12 upvotes · 7 March 2018 · /r/askTRP

Women believe men are born either attractive or not.

So if you ask a woman what a man should do to be attractive, she doesn't understand the question, and will answer with what she wants an attractive man to do.

The Great Trad Con, and How Not to Get Conned.

12 upvotes · 3 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Your point-of-view is well-taken. How about we qualify the Tradcon position right now and narrow it down to just the proposition that "a plate can be spun indefinitely."

I'm not sure I understand this sentence, but if I'm reading it right, I disagree.

When I say tradcon, I'm at the very least talking about people who want to save or enter into the institution of marriage. I think this is foolish because marriage is dead.

That doesn't apply to LTRs, because they have a zero-cost entry and exit.

And how about if we further narrow monogamy to be just interested in maintaining a relationship with certain people. It doesn't have to be an exclusive, monogamous attachment, but just an interest in and an enjoyment of emotional attachment to particular girls.

I think these two, narrow facets of the tradcon mentality = an interest in LTR game.

No, I'm simply not willing to define tradcon that broadly, because an interest in LTRs is neither traditional nor conservative in its inherent nature. It's simply motivated by the desire for lasting emotional closeness with a particular sexual partner.

why would you intentionally deny these men your knowledge of "how to tame a snow leopard."... Also I think your allusion to playing with the snow leopard is a variation of playing TRP on hard mode

You misunderstand the metaphor of the snow leopard.

A woman who will behave fairly and properly in a relationship without you having to train, dread, or control her is called a "unicorn"... because unicorns don't fucking exist and they never have.

A woman who, with proper leadership, can be a good LTR partner is called a "snow leopard" ... because they do exist, but they are so fucking rare you will probably never see one, and there certainly aren't enough to go around.

In fact, I have probably done you, and TRP, a disservice by bringing them up at all, because you see a picture like this, and now you want to pet the kitty (who wouldn't?) and not only are you never gonna find one, you're now in danger of mistaking this for one through sheer wishful thinking.

NEVER go looking for a snow leopard. You will fail. Not because your game isn't good enough, but because you cannot game what isn't fucking there.

So, sure, I'll answer LTR game questions if someone asks, but, frankly every time someone has asked me such a thing, the answer has always turned out to be "Holy shit, you LTRed that thing? WTF is wrong with you, mate? Dump that and reclaim your life!"

Submissive Behaviour as Strategy

12 upvotes · 1 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Gonna jump in here.

That ruthless tone is precisely the secret sauce that makes TRP work. Without it, nothing would help... in fact, there was a group that had all the same sort of material without the "ruthlessness and misogyny", and it failed

HARD, necessitating the creation of TRP in the first place.

As I said, the whole idea is to suppress the protective instinct... because right now, your average, decently attractive, non-RP guy is getting into relationships not because they serve any goal or desire of his at all, but simply because women demand them before or after sex.

His protective instinct is making him work towards the goals of women who are not submissive to him at all, and do not give a single fuck about his goals, dreams, or happiness.

We enable men to suppress that self-destructive pattern by churning up and stoking the coals of their resentment at this high-handed and entitled treatment. This produces an angry misogynist.

Then we teach him the ins and out of how to build attraction, and he starts getting sex, and, even more importantly, adoration and desire (something men crave because, unlike women, they don't grow up swimming in a sea of it). This turns him into a happy misogynist. Now he gets laid a lot, because women adore a happy, self-contained, unapologetic misogynist.

But we don't teach the next step, beyond mentioning that it exists occasionally.

Why not?

Because it's out of his control.

Just as you, a woman, can only vet men for sex-worthiness, and have no power over whether or not you meet sex-worthy men... so he, a man, can only vet women for commitment worthiness. He has no power over whether he meets a commitment-worthy woman.

He can try to train the ones he meets, a bit, but they have to be teachable, which pretty much boils down to the same thing. And he can't try too hard to teach them, because it's not his job to make a relationship happen, any more than it is a woman's to make sex happen. (Think about it... how open would you be to meeting a guy who wasn't sex-worthy, whom you didn't find attractive, and trying to train him up and then sleep with him?)

He can't even go and hang out where they congregate, because they don't congregate anywhere. There aren't enough of them to run into each other and form social groups. Commitment-worthy women in this society live lives of quiet isolation, wondering in the privacy of their own heads if something is wrong with them because they don't think men are cancer, and being lectured by their girlfriends about that "low self-esteem" problem that seems to imbue them with the crazy idea that they aren't special, and have to earn love.

Teaching the men of TRP how to handle a commitment-worthy woman would be like teaching them how to tame snow leopards... a complete and utter waste of their time.

Life is too short to be a chump. The 80/20 rule isn't a theory, it is law. Not every action yields an equal result. The key to personal success is finding the 20% of things that give you 80% of your results and to double down on those motherfuckers. Here is a guide.

12 upvotes · 19 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Says the man making a counterclaim with no supporting examples.

Why are TERPERS supporting rape as a sexual strategy?

12 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Oh, you mean the girl who slept in his arms all night and had sex with him again in the morning? That rape victim?

Once again, OP shows us that feminists also realize that women are children and have no agency.

How do I maintain frame when I'm not a well liked person?

12 upvotes · 11 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

You sound very anxious to convince me you don't give a shit. Which shows me how much you do.

You want our help, tell us real story.

I like to hook up with women, but I always have the goal to end up in a relationship.

12 upvotes · 7 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

TRP is here to teach you methods, not goals.

If you like LTRs, have one. Just be sure to use the Bitch Management Hierarchy.

Hell, a lot of the ECs have girlfriends. Some have a few.

Confessions of an Alpha Widow/Branch Swinger

12 upvotes · 1 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The wrong kind of boasting and swaggering screams insecurity, depicting a man who must boast to cover his fear.

So does lack of the proper kind, depicting a man who is afraid to boast.

Getting this right boils down to two things: practice, and lack of fucks given.

Frankly, your comment strikes me as the first type. "Look at me! I'm not insecure! Everyone with muscles, or a big truck, is compensating for something!"

CMV: Red pill men don't want traditional wives because they don't want to be traditional husbands.

12 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The way I put it the other day in RPW is that men have two win conditions: Respected Patriarch, and Debauched Libertine. Which one is actually better for men depends largely upon circumstances.

If a society decides to "smash the patriarchy" and "create equality", it makes the path of the Libertine more appealing to its top males, because Patriarchs are less respected and rewarded.

If a society decides to "embrace traditional values" and "defend the family", it creates incentives to lure men away from the Libertine lifestyle.

What makes this all so amusing is that men don't really care. Men can be happy either way. But for women, being railed by Libertines is not a win condition. Women want husbands... and if they don't now, then you go and ask them again when they are 35, and see what they say.

See, I wrote an article some time ago about the question "What Killed Marriage?", and at the end, I promised a planned followup about "Can Marriage Be Saved?".

But I never wrote, because I quickly realized that, not only did none of the men give a fuck, but I didn't either.

Men are all perfectly happy in a post-marriage world. We can have girlfriends if we want, bang sluts if we want, or, if we are awesome enough, both. Men are not going to resurrect marriage just because women have wised up and now pinky-swear they will behave themselves, because why the fuck should we do all that work when we are happy with the way things are?

No, if marriage is going to be saved, then women have to do it, because they are the only ones who stand to benefit.

Personally, I'm not going to wait up for that to happen, because very few women have yet realized that the "Patriarchy" existed primarily for their benefit, and even fewer women are willing to do any work other than "complain, and wait for men to fix their problems".

Will I even find one?

12 upvotes · 24 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Yes, many men want to experience both.

Not only is variety a huge turn on for men, but plate-spinning gives men what most men never have, and what women never understand because they experience it constantly... a sense of control over their sex lives. The knowledge that if they want sex, they can just go get it, instead having to try and wait and face uncertain odds.

It's only once that confidence and security is achieved that men tend to become more open to other options with alternative benefits. Men who enter relationships without ever having first been promiscuous are generally doing so because they can't, or even because they don't really want a relationship at all, just a steady source of relief for their sexual needs.

The experience of having a period of promiscuity effects different men differently. Some tire of it. Some become unwilling to give it up, and will only enter relationships where they have a "hall pass", or they simply cheat on the sly. Some go back and forth.

And men who were never able to do this sometimes never miss it, and sometimes cheat a lot later on because they feel like they "missed out".

A period of promiscuity in a man's life is simply not a very good predictor, positive or negative, of his willingness to sustain an LTR. It is, however, highly correlated to his attractiveness... the more you like him, the greater the odds that lots of other girls did too.

Hanging around TRP may be a temptation for a certain type of girl, but I generally advise against it. It's a place where men talk to each other in the ways that men use language. It's necessary, but it's not intended for your ears, and it isn't spoken with your sensitivities in mind.

Even the sort of man you would want very much (and would be right in feeling so), will speak there in a way you will find upsetting.

I have masculine interests

12 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Femininity is not a set of hobbies, it is a set of behaviours.

How women getting passes for crimes can truly destroy people's lives: what it was like being raised by a convicted sexual offender

12 upvotes · 16 December 2017 · /r/MensRights

Cultures have "preferred narratives", which individual stories they hear tend to get fit into, whether they fit or not.

For example, this is why, in Saudi Arabia, women get arrested for being raped. Because they preferred narrative for extramarital sex is "evil wanton woman seduces man with her licentious ways". And then whatever happens gets fit into that, whether it fits or not.

Well, our culture has some preferred narratives about sexual contact between adults and youngsters. They are:

"Kind, loving, older woman gives sexual pleasure to eager, inexperienced young man, while teaching him about sex."

and

"Evil perverted old man manipulates young girl into serving his depraved desires."

... and whatever sexual thing happens between a younger and an older person gets fit into one of these narratives, regardless of whether that works or not.

Fact is, both things happen, regardless of the sexes involved.

The Red Pill Is NOT a Cult

12 upvotes · 3 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Partially agree.

We don't have any hierarchy, much less leaders.

No. Of course we have leaders. But those leaders get to be leaders by earning public attention and respect, not by appointment. If people don't like my stuff, they'll vote down, and there ain't shit I, or the mod team, or all the ECs put together, could do about it.

We are constantly accountable to everyone.

Even those with mod tools are accountable. Because someone could go start another redpill group tomorrow, and steal our audience if he could do a better job. Isn't been tried. Only reason it didn't work is because our shit is popular.

Politicians have to win elections every four years. I have to win an election every damn time I hit my keyboard. Wouldn't have it any other way.

We don't engage in mind-altering practices.

Oh, please. Of course we do. We do it to ourselves. We do it deliberately. We pump ourselves up to create the proper mindset of ruthlessness and selfishness that is necessary for men to thrive in a culture that is hostile to masculinity. We indoctrinate ourselves with the attitudes and beliefs that we know, from experience, will get us what we want.

This isn't a big secret. The whole game is right out there in the open.

We don't demand that people think/act a certain way. We provide people with information, they can decide how they want to apply it to their own lives, and we openly discuss our opinions in the sub.

Sure we do. But all we do is mock them if they don't. If they value our good opinion so much, then they already do agree with us.

We have don't have membership

True.

We don't make profit.

Sure don't. I put up a donation link for a while because I was tired of people gilding my posts, and funding a bunch of limp-wristed cucks. I didn't make a lot of money... basically ended up getting enough for about 3 months supply of my steroids. I earn more than that in a single day of work.

No one's getting rich of this shit, and we like it that way. Because the entire top of our society is corrupt, we know this now, and they got that way by sucking off Harvey Weinstein, or rimming George Soros, or some shit like that. Well, I love money and power, but have to admit I love freedom and dignity more... because every time I had to make a choice, I chose the latter.

Pretty much everyone here would rather not be famous, and not know what a cock tastes like.

We don't have any group related activities or expect anyone to devote any time to us.

True. Even the mod team comes and goes as they please. The people doing the day-to-day moderating are "whoever's not burned out at the moment".

We don't isolate each other from the outside world.

In fact, we demand people go and engage with it, and mock them if they don't.

But, of course, anyone can say anything is a cult. They can say it over and over again: "Cult cult cult cult cult". They can say it in all caps.

It won't stop this shit from working.

So I went full beta blue pill tonight. Girlfriend who I was very emotionally invested in wanted to break up over some petty shit. I convinced her to do it to my face tomorrow instead of over the phone after pleading with her to reconsider. Is there a way I can end this with dignity?

12 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/askTRP

Respect in her eyes?

No. The bloom is off the rose. She will never see you in the same way again. You might guilt-trip her into staying, but it won't last long. Female love is mostly respect. Once the second goes, the first quickly follows.

Dignity for yourself?

Doesn't matter. History is in the past. You are as good as the next thing you do.

Tell her you have changed your mind, and it's best if she just goes. Then go meet some other women.

I cannot cope with the realisation all it takes is the right guy to ruin your relationship.

12 upvotes · 20 March 2017 · /r/askTRP

I know all it takes is the right circumstances and the right guy and it's all over. Maybe it's the same for men too with a beautiful woman but I feel men are more principled and many would decline.

Son, you really are a special kind of dumb, aren't you? Men are not "more principled". We are made of the same selfish goo that women are.

The only difference is that, when put in a room with a 7 and a 9, the woman will want to fuck the 9, and forget that the 7 exists... whereas the man will want to fuck them both.

The only way to keep your relationship secure is to be the best of all available options.

Ghostbusters reboot cast declare movies critics to be only men, have empty lives (tired old "losers" schtick), hate it because "women" and "only men can fight imaginary ghosts", that they live with their mother and are 45 years old

12 upvotes · 10 June 2016 · /r/MensRights

I don't know if that was a white thing, or a man thing, but now I'm going to laugh until my shirt is soaked with drool.

Seriously, what's their end game, here?

"Go see our movie, or we'll say mean stuff about you on television." ?

Exception That Proves the Rule (Captain Dynamic & The Problem With Male-Centric Advice)

12 upvotes · 8 June 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

The problem with male-centric advice isn't that it's based on improving things for the male. Instead, it's based on the fact that it often does not improve things for the female

Very well spotted.

Service to male sexual/mating imperatives often is good sexual strategy for women... when and where it stimulates male reciprocity.

Many men will indeed respond to submissive and self-sacrificing behaviour with protectiveness, love, and generosity. In fact, it's important to emphasize that here because, on a societal level, women are generally not submissive and self-sacrificing enough to reap the benefits of male reciprocity.

However, it's also important to be aware that not every man both able and willing to be reciprocal.

Female submission is a sexual strategy, not a moral imperative, and a woman has no obligation to submit to a man who makes doing so an unrewarding experience.

"Token Resistance is Common"

12 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You don't get it, do you?

Women who want you to fuck them still do this shit. If you think otherwise, you have missed a lot of opportunities, my friend.

Or maybe not. Maybe you are so unattractive that you've only seen fake no's, only real ones.

God, I hope not.

The cheaters script

12 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This is extremely well-written and quite accurate, and should probably be sidebarred if by some miracle there's still room.

However, there is one part you got wrong:

There is generally only one type of cheating men: those who are not getting their emotional or physical needs met.

There are two kinds of cheating men.

- Those who are not getting their emotional or physical needs met.
- Those who want variety, and think they can probably get away with cheating.

The second type is more common than you might think. Women are puzzled by this:

Man: "She meant nothing to me, dear."

Woman: "Ewwww, that makes it worse!"

But here's what each party is really thinking:

Woman: "How could you violate our sacred trust over someone who didn't even mean anything to you? That means you don't care at all about our relationship!" Men: "Sperm is cheap and disposable. For me, the sacred trust is giving commitment, not sex. Hell, I'll fuck anyone female, disease-free and decently attractive, so long as she's not a horrible toxic bitch."

The man is trying to explain that the relationship is not in danger, he just wanted a little variety in his diet.

The woman thinks the relationship is in danger, because even someone he cares for so little can make him cheat.

I recommend that men lay the groundwork and psychologically prepare their woman beforehand so she understands this. Use trickle truth methods. Start with jokes and work from there.

Poll: Women Support the Idea of Women in the Military, But Not if They're Drafted

12 upvotes · 24 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

Women support the idea of other women being in the military.

That way, they can get credit for "sharing the burden", and "being as tough as the boys", without actually having to get tired, dirty, or hurt.

In much the same fashion, women support the idea of other women having STEM careers. Because, you know, math is hard.

Two friends. One wants me. Not the one I want.

12 upvotes · 20 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

If I get with M because it's easy, B will know about it and then that plate will be much more unlikely

Wrong.

Why do ForeverAlone men fail with women: bad luck or lack of effort?

12 upvotes · 16 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men and women are different, and want different things.

Incels do what they would find attractive, not what a woman would find attractive, not understanding that these two things are very different, even direct opposites in many cases.

Thus, their efforts are spent effectively sabotaging themselves, and the harder they try, the quicker they fail.

Q4RP: why lambast single moms?

12 upvotes · 29 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

what does lambasting single moms as human scum have to do with sexual strategy?

It keeps thirsty n00bs from dating them.

not on peep on single fathers, why?

Because TRP is about sexual strategy for heterosexual men.

The gay community needs to deal with its misogyny problem.

12 upvotes · 16 February 2016 · /r/MensRights

Milo Yiannopoulos predicted that the moment the US recognized same-sex marriages, feminists would start to come after the queers.

It's starting.

Question for redpill. What dating advice do you offer that a man isn't going to get anywhere else?

12 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If they can get it somewhere else, let them. I'm not selling anything.

(on Reddit's frontpage) Guy's GF fucks his dad, begs for second chance and threatens to do it again if he doesn't forgive her

12 upvotes · 9 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If your girlfriend cheats on you with any other man, shake his hand and thank him for showing you that you had accidentally LTRed a whore.

Then tell him he can have her.

The downfall of the first and greatest Redpill (sad...)

12 upvotes · 7 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

But seemingly he did have two daughters and fell into oneitis, though he didn't marry.

When you have children, you have oneitis.

For your children.

Mystery knows how to pick up women. He knows how to next them for another if things don't work. But one woman, one particular woman, has his children. They are her property, and she controls access to them, because our society would have it so.

He is now helpless. All his pickup skills come to nothing, because he cannot walk away.

All your power is the power to walk away. Never give it up.

Leases can be broken. Promises can be broken. Emotional investment can be written off.

But if you have children with a woman, you are her slave.

"My GF got off the pill without telling me and now she's pregnant" [X-post from sweden-subreddit]

12 upvotes · 4 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

And I hope you realize the "just for being refugees" includes losing everything in a war that got nothing to do with them right?

So what?

That's a total nonsequitur. Misfortune does not create obligation in random strangers half a world away.

Best response to 'Be a man'?

12 upvotes · 21 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

Depends on context, but here are some good responses for various situations:

- "You don't get to decide what a man is."
- "I'll start being a man when you start being a woman."
- "I'll start being a man when you stop being one."
- "Well, I've had the hormone shots, but not the surgery yet, so you'll have to wait a while."

- "Your mouth is making noise. You might want to have that seen to."
- "Nah, today is Tuesday. Check back with tomorrow."
- "I find that difficult ever since that visit to the vet."
- "Do like strawberries?" (Wait for her to give you a puzzled look) "Sorry, I thought we were saying irrelevant bullshit now."
- (Launch into a two-minute monologue on the performance differences between V8 engines and the horizontally opposed "boxer" flat-6.)
- "But if I did I'd have to stop watching My Little Pony cartoons!"

Doesn't matter what you say. The only important part of your response is to make it transparently obvious that you give zero fucks what she thinks. (Without actually saying that you give zero fucks what she thinks. Because if you have to say that, it looks like you do.)

Maintaining a relationship without sex in India

12 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

TRP: The rules of most modern societies are designed in such a way that a man cannot be achieve happiness without breaking them.

Indian Whiner: How do I succeed at life within the rules of my society?

TRP: You don't. You learn how to effectively break them. We have pages of material on this.

Indian Whiner: But I have to follow the rules! They're... the rules!

What the fuck is it with you people? Are you genetically cowards? Do they surgically extract your spines at birth? Or are you just gradually beaten down?

The game is rigged against you. Overturn the table and walk away.

Once you accept that you must do this, we can talk about how. But until you're ready to fight for yourself, I'm not going to waste my time with you.

Why are you, RedPiller, in a relationship?

12 upvotes · 13 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

I'm not "committed" to my relationship any more than I am "committed" to my Porsche.

I choose to drive my Porsche to work each day because it's a lot more fun than renting a Nissan. On a rare occasion when I want something with back seats, I drive another car. I expect my Porsche not to sulk, object, or get jealous. If it wanted me to drive it all the time, it should have satisfied every need I have for a car, not just most. If my Porsche goes wrong, or ceases to provide a fun driving experience, I'll get rid of it.

A relationship isn't something I swear into. It's something that happens one day at a time. Every day I choose to stay because staying is far more awesome than leaving.

Relationship allow you to develop emotional intimacy with a woman, and to be loved. This is far better than just "getting laid enough", and men who don't understand that are either loners who will NEVER want it, or men for whom sexual abundance is still a novelty.

Let me be absolutely clear: The only kind of male monogamy that is acceptable is the kind she gets by making you lose enthusiasm for other women. If your woman expects monogamy, then you need better bitch control.

A loving father's life destroyed by child sex abuse lies peddled by his own DAUGHTER: Jailed on the word of a woman hell-bent on revenge... and only freed when his wife turned detective to prove his innocence

12 upvotes · 1 November 2015 · /r/MensRights

I swear, it seems that the justice system loses empathy for you if you are a male.

What do you mean "loses"?

It doesn't have any to begin with. It never did, and it never will. The human species is hardwired to be sympathetic to women, not men. You cannot change this with activism, because it's built-in. Either you create a society where men don't need sympathy to get fairness, or you live a society ruled by women. Those are your only two choices.

Karen Straughan on violence in relationship

12 upvotes · 28 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

Oh, did she hit him back?

WTF is wrong with you?

You don't know that he did any hitting. You don't know that he wasn't the one "hitting back".

You, my friend, are still a vagina worshiper, whether you are aware of it or not. You assume he is guilty and concede that maaaaaybe she might be guilty as well. Wake up and realize that women are at the very least as capable of bad behaviour as men, if not much, much more so.

OP in the OKCupid sub rejects woman after finding out she's pregnant. Commenters tell him to man up and that "you are far, far too emotionally immature to date a single mom."

12 upvotes · 18 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The woman was making the best of a shitty situation.

I am constantly amused by the lengths people will go to in order to excuse any bad behaviour so long as it is attached to a vagina.

You call it a "shitty situation", as if it were a cancer diagnosis, or some other chance misfortune which fell randomly upon her from a great height.

You say she was "making the best of it", as if she were attending to it herself, rather than seeking strangers to do it for her.

In truth, since the "woman's right to choose" is enshrined by our society as all but holy, and perhaps even that, since the exercise of that right is readily and freely available, and since women's contraceptives are so easily and readily available that it is deemed a "war" upon the female sex itself if an employer declines to pay for them, pregnancy is no longer a misfortune, much less a random one.

It is a choice. She has chosen to be pregnant, has chosen to remain so, and has chosen to seek someone other than the father to shoulder a great portion of the responsibility and trouble of it.

She is free to make these choices, but with freedom to make choices comes responsibility for the consequences thereof.

An alpha widow laments her inability to enjoy sex anymore.

12 upvotes · 15 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Nah, once in a while you see a woman admitting she did something bad.

But don't you worry, she is working on forgiving herself!

9 Assumptions People Make About Single Women That Are Totally True (but this hamster rationalizes as bullshit)

12 upvotes · 18 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll tell you who I feel sorry for.

I feel sorry for the cats.

The cat is, at its core, a simple animal, not very intelligent, but quite sensible in its way. It's not basically neurotic like a dog. It will not fawn on any random human. It doesn't have any instinctive pack behaviour that dumb humans can mistake for loyalty, selflessness, and love. It's just a solitary predator that likes to pounce on small moving objects, and get the occasional headscratch.

It is friendly sometimes, but it's not a teddy bear. It wasn't built for loving things. It was built for sneaking up on things.

It's basically a small furry ninja. Which makes it a great pet for a twentysomething single guy who's busy with college and learning the guitar. Scratch its ears for five minutes every once in a while, feed it regularly, run it around the house with a laser pointer, and you got yourself a happy animal, and you can get on with your busy life.

But it's a terrible pet for a lonely postwall ex-party-bitch. Because it's a small furry ninja. It wasn't built for loving things. It doesn't want to spend most of its time cuddling. It wants to climb trees and chase the laser pointer. It does not want to spend all day being hassled by some neurotic woman. Human babies love to be held and babbled and cooed at. That's how babies learn language. Cats do not love it. Cats do not need or want to learn language. They want to chase the laser pointer, sit on the lap of a familiar human for about ten minutes once they are tired, then fuck off and take a nap.

If men will eventually get sentient AI sex robots with all the qualities that vile, spoiled modern women lack, then perhaps those vile women should eventually get a sort of AI child that will cuddle and call her "mommy" and never, never grow up. Then they can leave the poor cats alone.

The Red Pill Guide to Advanced (Natty) Fitness

12 upvotes · 28 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You're saying that if I consume a diet leaving me in a 500 calorie daily deficit, with lets say, 200 grams of carbs, there will be a difference in body composition at the end of the diet period if those carbs come from white rice as opposed to brown rice (for example).

Sort of. A bit. But it also depends on who you are and what you've done in the past.

I wrote a long article about this before, but here's the short version.

Acute Response:

1. The white rice will hit your bloodstream significantly faster, because it's easier to digest without the hull. This means that your blood glucose levels will rise faster and higher.
2. The higher blood glucose will trigger a release of more insulin.
3. Insulin in the blood is the hormone responsible for moving fats and sugars into cells. It causes the body to store fat.

4. You will store more of the fats and sugars you have consumed, and have less to burn. You will be less energetic, and exercise will be harder to sustain/motivate.
5. You will have lower blood sugar levels because sugar has moved into storage. You will release less leptin and release it slower, so you will be hungry. (Ever wonder why you're hungry an hour after eating takeout Chinese? White rice and sugary sauces.)

Now, how much will this affect you? Not much. The guy in the photo has a pretty healthy insulin-leptin-cortisol system. Brown vs. white rice isn't going to make that big a difference to you. That's why you never noticed this, and believe the "calorie is a calorie is a calorie" thing. Because your healthy metabolism succeeds in hiding most of the difference from you.

But what about someone who has been eating sugary food and drinking soda for ten years? Then we get into talking about:

Chronic Response:

1. Habitual spikes in insulin reduce the body's sensitivity to insulin.
2. Insulin response to blood sugar increases.
3. Higher insulin levels move more of each meal into cells. That's what "getting fat" is, on the cellular level.
4. Because {complex reasons}, this also reduces leptin sensitivity.
5. Because fatty's brain cannot see the leptin that's supposed to be telling him "you're full", fatty eats more.

There's your Type II diabetes. There's your non-alcoholic fatty liver disease. There's your obesity. Endocrinologists call it metabolic syndrome.

In other words, that thing you always heard about fat being surplus calories is wrong. Storage is something your body budgets for.

~~{what you eat} minus {what you burn} equals {what you store}~~ No! Wrong!

{what you store} plus {what you burn} equals {what you have to eat} The real story

Eating is a dependent variable, not an independent variable. You do not get fat because you eat too much. You eat too much because you are getting fat. This is why fatties overeat to a ridiculous degree. They are hungry. Their brains can't see the leptin. Their brains think they are starving.

Obesity is not the problem. Obesity is a symptom of metabolic syndrome. Metabolic syndrome is the problem. It is the unhealthy, damaged metabolism that makes you fat.

What damages the metabolism? Foods that spike insulin. We all know what those are.

The Ultimate Red Pill University Guide

12 upvotes · 28 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Nerd Herding

A word of caution here. You need to handle nerds much more carefully than sluts. Sluts are dumber than you. Nerds are smarter than you (if they aren't, then you don't need to nerd herd at all).

This means you can't fool them indefinitely. You must eventually provide some value, or they're going to wise. And nerds speak straighttalk to each other. Burn one, and he'll tell the others. You can leverage their lack of social confidence for a little while, but that's not going to last.

Here's some things you can do to make nerds want to help you:

- Get them laid. See GLO's section on sluts.
- Get them paid. This is especially effective with computer science majors, as they have valuable skills even as sophomores, and they typically don't know their own market value. Hook them up with someone from your social network who needs a website set up on the cheap, and they'll credit that $30 an hour to you, not realizing that this is close to their real market value, even without a degree yet.
- Feed their egos. Nerds are intellectually arrogant. This is how they cope with the crushing social rejection most of them have faced all their lives. They will be willing to do almost anything for you if you frame it as a way to feel superior to others, especially to you. Freely admit that they are smarter than you, and express awe at their knowledge, and they won't care, or often even notice, that they are doing all the work.
- Patch up their egos. Just as you appeal to the major pillar of their ego (intellect), you can shore up their insecurities. Teach them to lift. Teach them how to talk to girls. Feed them little pieces of red pill in disguise.

If you could give 16 y/o you any red pill advice, what would it be?

12 upvotes · 25 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

Don't listen to what women say, watch what they do.

CMV: The Red Pill is often "misunderstood" because of TheRedPillars themselves.

12 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

How do you always get them at a useful time?

By making TRP unpalatable to anyone who isn't ready.

As a non-american, how representative is reddit of USA/western Europe?

12 upvotes · 7 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Is it really this bad?

Yes. Just ask Larry Summers.

And no. You can easily surround yourself with sane people if you kick the insane ones out of your life.

Are these "liberals" and feminists representative of the majority ruling opinionset of your society?

Majority, no. Ruling, yes.

If not, is it at least representative of the majority of young people? Like, have young people there just up and decided that they know why all social norms are unnecessary for society?

Young people always decide this. Fifteen year olds think they know everything if you don't give them adult responsibilities to knock the corners off them.

Bonus question: If so, is there any hope for the future?

Yes and no.

Society moves in what I call the SockPuppet Cycle.

- Men with guns and shovels create safety and surplus.
- Safety and surplus creates leisure and luxury.
- Leisure and luxury isolate decision makers and women from men with guns and shovels.
- Men with guns and shovels are neglected and underrewarded.
- Men set down their guns and shovels.
- Safety and surplus decline to the point of collapse.
- Men with guns and shovels create new economy upon the ashes of the old.

We are simply in a declining phase of this cycle.

Or, to put it more succinctly, Magua understands that the white man is a dog to his women. Even when he is on the warpath, he will set down his tomahawk to feed their laziness.

Hard BPer, what is your opinion of /r/thankTRP?

12 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So when they say oh she totally wanted me! She might have wanted you to leave her house, and was doing anything to get you out.

Has PPD ever ruined your day before? (Made you depressed, confused, etc.)

12 upvotes · 8 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The reason is that from where they are sitting, they see no other solution. This does not mean it does not exist,

You are correct. However, since no one has offered another working solution, it effectively doesn't exist from where they are sitting.

The reason that it hasn't been offered is that TRP/RPW (along with some likeminded people like /u/girlwriteswhat, Tara Palamtier, and so on) are the only significant group of people around who give a fuck about the quality of life of young heterosexual men.

There are no other solutions, not because no one has ever been able to come up with one, but because no one has even cared enough to try.

or that it is good.

Good for whom? As I just finished saying, very few people seem to consider young heterosexual men "human" in the sense that a good to them is an inherent good, not just good if it happens to benefit someone else who is considered a real person. These young men are reclaiming their pride, they are becoming happy, they are being not only appreciated but lusted after, for the first time in their lives.

Do you not consider that good?

This is the core issue - the ideas are even often good, but presented in a cultish "them vs. us" picture. This... tends to be attractive for young, inexperienced people who are not yet inoculated against it. (I am - I got my inoculation when I got temporarily sucked into Scientology. It is very similar.)

If TRP is a cult, then I'm one of the master manipulators, a Bagwan Shri Ranjneesh of the internet. Which I find a little strange. No one's washing my car, sending me money, or signing their inheritance over to me. It was weird at first, when I started getting fan mail, because what I had done felt comparatively mild to me. Simple and small. I just wrote what I thought. I just gave a little advice from the things I learned the hard way. It didn't seem like something to go crazy over.

But then I realized... We were all these young guys had. Their parents had failed them. Their female peers didn't care about them. Their society took them for granted. The cultural elite was straight up out to get them.

Young men aren't stupid. They know who their friends are. They may not be eloquent enough to articulate their reasoning, but they are perfectly capable of watching people's actions and figuring out what's up. They may look to you like my pet fanatics, but I assure you they are not, and your dismissal of their reasoning skills only reveals your contempt for them. They are smart and brave and loyal and passionate, and they like me and GayLubeOil and IllimitableMan and RedPillSchool and ArchWinger and the rest because we actually give a fuck about them.

But the root issue is the lack of fathers, older brothers, older friends, men's spaces like barber shops etc. where useful advice to live and succeed as a man would be given without the hatey shit.

TRP has been saying this all along.

That's why your society took away the fathers, the older brothers, the older friends, the men's spaces. Because it was saying the same thing we do, and they called it "hatey shit". So you go ahead and just keep chopping heads off that hydra, there.

Trees.

12 upvotes · 24 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I may be reading this wrong, but it seems that his ultimate premise is thus: You do not have to act morally as there is no guarantee anyone will act morally to you.

No.

What we call "morality" isn't one giant social contract between everyone. It's millions upon millions of tiny ones.

And for each one, you have to decide for yourself, if there's a contract, if it's valid, if it's enforceable, if the other party broke it first, etc, etc.

My view is that moral codes are a piece of social technology, constructed for a purpose. Thus, rather than blindly following them, we would be better advised to evaluate them as tools, look at them from the outside, before deciding what to do.

The red pill means examining things from the outside. Examine what you've been told about women from the outside. Examine what you've been told about Jesus from the outside. Examine what you've been told about right and wrong from the outside.

What I want for TRP is to have more sophisticated discussions of morality. Ban the sermonizers and finger-wavers, and have conversations like this one, instead.

Omegas vs Betas (No diss)

12 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Alpha/beta/omega is vernacular, not a strict category. But this should give you a sense:

The first get laid often, frequently "when they choose to", and don't have to devote much time, effort, money, etc, in chasing additional sex unless they want to.

- If you can go hit on a bunch of women, and know that within a short space of time, you're going to find one who says "yes", you're an "alpha".
- If you have a wife or girlfriend who puts out whenever you initiate (whether out of obedience or because she always wants to), you're an "alpha".
- If you fuck whores not because you have to, but because your time is so valuable, and money so easy to come by, that picking up girls just doesn't make sense, you're an "alpha".
- If you can get sex with little effort from a 5+, but spend a lot of time and effort on chasing sex because it gets you the most and hottest women, you're an "alpha".

The second get laid occasionally, but not as much as they'd like, and have to put significant time, effort, and money into it.

- If hitting on women doesn't generally work for you, but every once in a while you meet a woman you just kind of "click" with, and sex happens, you're a "beta".
- If you have a wife or girlfriend who has sex with you only when she feels like it (which she sometimes does, and sometimes doesn't) you're a "beta".
- If you fuck whores, not because you can't get laid, but because they fill the gap between the amount of sex you get, and the amount you want, you're a "beta".
- If you have chase to get laid by plain women, you're a "beta".

The third do not get sex except under extraordinary circumstances.

- If the only women who show interest on you are desperate or broken, you're an "omega".
- If you don't have a girlfriend, not because you don't want one, but because you desperately want one and can't get one, you're an "omega".
- If you are in a dead-bedroom relationship, you're an "omega".
- If whores are your only option (not the "easiest option", not the "best option", but the only one), you're an "omega".

And here's the funny thing. In the vast majority of cases, the difference between alpha, beta, and omega is entirely behavioural.

- Alphas are not all tall, ripped, square-jawed hunks of brooding manhood.
- Betas are not all average joes.
- Omegas are not all fat neckbeards.

Instead, each man unconsciously signals what category he belongs to by behaviour that reveals what he is used to getting out of life.

- Omegas signal their omegahood to women by staring at their shoes and mumbling, or making dopey and pathetic displays of devotion in the hopes of being rewarded.

- Betas signal their betahood by immediately investing large amounts of time and attention in "prospects" (women who display attraction to them).
- Alphas signal their alphaness by expecting sex, and ignoring any woman who doesn't give it to them (because they know that the next one will).

Women judge which category a man falls into by this behaviour, and this decides how much attraction they feel for him. However, they have very finely evolved senses for distinguishing between someone who actually has these attitudes, and someone who's putting on an act.

Thus, the climb towards the category every man wants to be in is not an immediate set of step-by-step instructions, but a slow process of deliberately altering one's habits and personality. Faking a certain attitude is part of that habituation project, but the real results only come when the change starts to become more real and permanent.

What do you think about Emma Sulkowicz? Is she a victim or not?

12 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Again with the bullying.

You skip right over the content of what she said, and demand more unearned trust... in this case seeking to get her to disclose her emotional state so you can pick that apart, play the role of psychologist, and put yourself in a dominant position.

It's not that you're a dark triad personality... such people can be useful. It's that you're so bloody obvious about it, to the point where you almost seem to be attempting some sort of satire. If so, you're going about it wrong.

Alright BPer! I'm open to your ideas - step up and show me what you got! :)

12 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yeah, I wouldn't hold my breath as far as rekindling her libido is concerned.

I can't tell you that a defibrillator will save the patient, but I can tell you it's the only thing that could.

I'd advise him to fuck someone else because that way he gets to have sex, not to get a positive (or any) reaction out of his wife. That would be a stupid argument, because it's just as likely that she'll pack her things - or, more likely, his things - and he's in for a messy divorce and a sad goodbye to his kids.

That's what happens in >50% of modern marriages.

TRP's consensus is "don't get married", precisely because marriage no longer contains any safeguards or inhibiting factors against this kind of thing.

People can say "it's not worth blowing up your marriage over", but frankly, yes it is. Because I guarantee that to him, that marriage has ceased to provide him any real benefit, tangible or intangible. There's no longer anything of value to be lost, because all it does is make him unhappy.

I'm 14 years old. I just found this subreddit.

12 upvotes · 2 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A lot of the advice here is geared towards older people, but there are things you can be doing right now, as a boy, that will make your life better when you are a man.

- Exercise. Especially weightlifting. Your body is brimming with testosterone right now, and your metabolism is young and healthy. You are at the best time of your life to add muscle mass. The more muscle mass you have, the better your life will be. Lift. It's okay if you are weak right now. Don't be embarrassed. Lift. If you can only lift 100 lbs, or 50, then lift it. Even if it's embarrassing to be moving tiny weights alongside bigger guys. Do not let that stop you. The best time to start anything is "years ago". But the second best time is "right now".

- Cut sugar out of your diet. It's addictive and horrible and makes you fat. Worse, the sugar you eat right now won't make you fat right now, it will make you fat when you are older. You can be fucking up your 25-year-old self and have NO VISIBLE SIGNS of it today. Stop now. Especially soda. That stuff is a vile poison straight from satan's asscrack.
- Learn to be cynical. That doesn't mean negative or despairing, it means realizing that everyone has selfish motivations. Learn to ask yourself what those motivations are, whenever anyone, adult, child, or teenager, does or says anything. Don't take their words at face value, look for the hidden agenda. Hidden agendas are not always malevolent, sometimes they will align with your goals just fine. But you should always know what they are. Someone whose selfish motives are clear is always more trustworthy than someone who claims to be benevolent.
- Be patient. Being a teenager is frustrating. Nature says you are an adult. Your brain is fully developed. But your society puts you in the role of a child. This is why teenagers are rebellious and angsty. It's true that teenagers don't know shit, and say stupid things, but that's not because you are a child. It's because you are being unnaturally sheltered from the pressures and responsibilities you need in order to grow strong. If you want independence, learn not to rely on ways your parents and teachers shelter you. Get a job even if your parents pay for everything... or buy stuff other kids want, in bulk, and start selling it at school. Arrange your own rides instead of getting your parents to drive you places. Deal with businesses, school forms, and other paperwork responsibilities yourself instead of letting your parents handle it.
- Know that what you do now matters. You are forming habits that will last a lifetime. Most of your peers think that this is the time to mess around and have fun while waiting for adulthood... but adulthood isn't something that happens to you. It's something you learn.
- Learn a skill that you can sell for money. What you already good at? Programming? Fixing cars? Drawing? Persuading people to buy things they don't really need? Practice the fuck out of it. Ideally it should be something you enjoy (so that you WILL practice the fuck out of it), but ignore all that hippie bullshit about your dreams. Pick a dream that will make other people need you, and those people will find ways to make your life better.
- Learn to agree and amplify. It's not just for picking up girls. Letting an insult roll off you without giving a fuck is the best way to show confidence, and after showing that confidence for a while, you will actually begin to feel it. You don't just fake it until you make it. Faking it helps you make it.
- Do not avoid failure. Failure is what you get before you get success. If you don't fail regularly, it's because you aren't taking enough risks, and you aren't trying hard enough things. School teaches you to avoid failure and mistakes by grading you on how often you succeeded. School is training you to be a loser living a mediocre life. In the real world, no one gives a fuck how many times you failed. They only care what is the most awesome thing you succeeded at.

Genital mutilation? Not a big deal, provided the victim is male, of course. In that case, it's fucking hilarious! Stay classy, Reddit.

12 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/MensRights

Well, they've convinced me. I'm going to have my daughter circumcised.

What does a "healthy" relationship look like?

12 upvotes · 23 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Repeat after me "The internet isn't real. The internet isn't real..."

Except that the internet is real. It's full of real people. The internet is what people really say when they have no fear of retaliation. The internet is honesty.

Honesty sure is ugly, isn't it?

All human beings are terribly ugly on the inside... because that "ugly" is defined in comparison to idealistic dreams that never were. We're an ape on the back of a rodent on the back of a lizard, and our brains are built of all the prehistoric darkness we ever descended from. Nature, red in tooth and claw, built us to what we really are.

I'll be damned if I've met any of these SJW hags or RP Sociopaths in real life

Then you'll be damned. Because you have, you just didn't know. Because the internet is honest. People lie in person.

Shocker: Women have stronger orgasms with rich hot guys

12 upvotes · 18 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that's it's a combination of instinct and wishful thinking.

See, women have the instinct to seek out good genes in a mate (what we call "high quality sperm"), and this seems to be experienced by them as a sort of desire to find guys who "just are" attractive.

Because they want men to "just be" attractive, they rationalize that everything a man is or isn't is just part of his inherent nature. No learning involved. NO environmental influences. Nothing but pure genetic destiny. This would make their attractions sensible, so it must be true, right?

This means that any attractive guy must be born attractive, or he isn't really attractive. He's a faker. He's got bad genes, and he's pretending have good ones, to evilly trick women into accepting his low-quality sperm, right?

This is why women hate TRP, and the idea of male self-improvement in general. Because they don't imagine there is such a thing as a man with good genes who is unattractive. Any man who isn't naturally attractive without having to learn anything at all is a write-off for them. He doesn't deserve to breed, and they don't want him to.

That's why they say "be yourself". Because if men just "are themselves", then women will, in their infinite wisdom, always judge their worth correctly. They will either be born knowing how to talk to girls, or they will die alone, and everybody wins, except the unattractive guys, who don't count.

So, "be yourself" is advice that is intended to be good for the giver, not the recipient.

California law college professor, noting the trend of defendants using video evidence to counter rape charges, feels surreptitious recordings should be illegal

12 upvotes · 30 September 2014 · /r/MensRights

Men are being sent to prison for rapes they didn't commit, but we have to deal with the bigger problem of girls being filmed nekkid.

Transgenderism is a psychiatric disorder: its sufferers need therapy, not surgery

12 upvotes · 17 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure.

Ultimately, anything that's in the brain is a biological thing. Every memory we have is a layout of physical connections between neurons. Every thought we have is a pattern of electrical impulses.

Schizophrenia is also a real biological thing. We attempt to treat it, rather than treating it as a new reality.

The Sweet Irony of Beyonce at the VMAs

12 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I guess he has 100 problems now.

Truly, any man who marries is being stupid, any celebrity man who marries is stupid, and any man who marries a celebrity woman is His Royal Highness King Retard, Lord of Great and All-Encompassing Dumbfuckery.

I would not trade places with the man, not with all his millions of dollars and legions of fans, because money only buys pleasure. Not happiness. And a man whose wife disrespects him like that in public is either not a happy man, or not going to stay that way.

Jesus in a bucket... I'm not a famous guy with a private jet, and my plates treat me with more respect than this man's wife treats him.

Denmark: Bella Sky must allow men in its women-only hotel rooms

12 upvotes · 28 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Nah, you're too fat.

I'm ready for you, Mr. Nice Guy.

12 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I promise you this, Nice Guy: I don't know you yet, but I will be a nice girl to you in return. I will show you what you're like at you're best. I will treat you with the respect you deserve and will always answer your call when you need me. I will show you what all those bitchy girls couldn't.

So, I guess all there is left to say is...

I'm ready whenever you are.

Cricket cricket cricket.

RedPill alternative

12 upvotes · 31 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It doesn't make sense to ask bluepillers this question because they do not care about your needs.

They only care about what they want you to not do, and that is act in a way that makes them uncomfortable.

Dear Abbey vs. Fatties.

12 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Loud obnoxious fat chicks think that thin pretty quiet women are too "timid" to fight for attention.

They don't understand that thin pretty quiet women don't have to fight for attention. Men are happy to give it to them conflict-free.

Pushy bossy competitive women think that feminine gentle submissive women are too compliant and can't fight for control of their surrounding or to get their way.

They don't understand that feminine gentle submissive women don't have to control their surroundings. Men who are in control will be happy to make sure they are happy, healthy, and content.

It turns out that having a toughness contest with men is not the way to our hearts. Who knew?

Why do you identify as Blue Pill?

12 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I make a lousy RP candidate- I'm female and not remotely interested in being submissive to my partners (according to RPW, non-negotiable),

I can't speak for RPW, but the actual principle in TRP theory is a little different. Remember that TRP is descriptive, not prescriptive.

What it says is not "women should be submissive to their men" (prescriptive), but "Women are generally more attracted to men who are socially dominant over them, and men are generally more attracted to women who behave submissively toward them" (descriptive).

The dominant-male, submissive-female dynamic that you see talked about is not seen as a moral imperative but a tool for maximizing attraction, with benefits for everyone involved.

and I have little patience with anyone who thinks I am intellectually superfluous on account of my chromosome set.

TRP theory is not only descriptive rather than prescriptive, it describes behaviours, not capabilities.

TRP doesn't know or care if you are capable of proving Fermat's Last Theorem (capabilities). What it talks about is the fact that women are much less likely to try (behaviour).

In other words, women don't win less Nobel Prizes because of "sexism". But it also doesn't matter if they're "smart enough" or whatever. Because what's actually going on is they just don't want Nobel Prizes as much as men do, and don't chase them as hard.

No one is trying to constrain your choices. They are simply trying to observe and predict them.

TRP often ends up in conflict with prescriptive ideologies like TBP, or the brand of liberalism espoused by its ideological cousin, SRS, is that TRP's observations end up revealing that these prescriptions are unworkable (self-swallowing), or lead to conclusions desired by no one (not even their proponents).

Pro feminist blog equates anti-circumcision to male privilege, says circumcision isn't mutilation, calls you a sexist and whiner for saying otherwise. O, and it's a "body positive" blog.

12 upvotes · 13 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

I have no problem with being compassionate to the mentally ill. But that's not the same as allowing them to set policy.

Look, if you have problems with your sexual identity, emotional stability, behaviour, attitudes, perception, etc, then you have my sympathy. Brains are complicated things, and they don't always work exactly right, and when they don't, the amount of suffering that causes can be... extreme.

But if your brain doesn't work right, you don't get to tell me what our social mores should be. And that goes double for infant care.

I'm sorry if you have bipolar disorder, or something odd thing that makes you think you're a reincarnated animal soul. But it still disqualifies you from deciding whether we should cut pieces off infants.

Hint: No, we shouldn't.

What IS the Red Pill (an explanation accessible to those who have not taken it).

12 upvotes · 5 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, you're absolutely right. We are following the Roman pattern.

But we can't save our society by working harder, or fighting a culture war, or voting. Anything we put into it is just gonna get sucked up and used to fuel more entitlements and more military adventures.

We can only save ourselves.

What is TRP's criteria for getting married?

12 upvotes · 7 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't see it as any financial gain or political gain. Marriage signifies a trust and passion towards one another, that there is no one else. But only one you love, cherish and commit too. Now you all say it will all change, but you don't know me. If him and I where ever to get a divorce, which I hope never happens, I would never take what is not mine, I wouldn't strip him dry. I would only hope that if we divorce it was mutual decision and if not, I would still treat him right, because that is what he did all those years for me, before he decided to pull the plug. I couldn't rip him of everything he has, just not right.

What you're saying is "I wouldn't do that".

But how many couples went to the altar saying "I WOULD do that"? The ones who end up doing that are the ones that change their minds.

Your motivation is not the problem. The problem is that anytime you change your mind, you can can take what's his, and the law not only allows but encourages that. Would accept being in a marriage where he is legally allowed to beat you? After all, he wouldn't do that, right?

Same principle. Whether you chose to take advantage or not, by marrying, he enters into an agreement which makes him a second class citizen.

The Five Stages of Red Pill, and how to read r/TRP textposts.

12 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's step 4.

Female Philadelphia Cop 'Stops and Frisks' African American Teen, Literally Destroying His Genitals

12 upvotes · 22 January 2014 · /r/MensRights

If cops attack you for covering your face, look in the mirror. You just might be provoking them by being black.

Woman writes "open letter" to "jaded" men giving solipsistic advice that shames all men into being providers. "Romantic" guy gives response of why her advice got him burned

12 upvotes · 21 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely. Women often fail to understand that the relationship market and the sex market are different markets. A woman has enhanced value on the hookup market, so she can punch above her weight class there. But if she does that, she won't get relationships out of those hookups, because the guys she hooks up with are above her value in the relationship market, and they know damn well they can do better.

How it feels to ruin a slut's Christmas.

12 upvotes · 28 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's interesting how some women can have an entire conversation with:

"K"

"lol"

"no"

and "merry christmas".

It's like chicks are so addicted to drama and "having a serious talk" that they will actually fill in your half of the conversation in their own head if you decline to participate.

The thing is, if you decline to participate in drama by ignoring it, giving one-syllable answers, etc... the only women you will have real conversations with are the few sane ones who don't do that.

The kind of oppressive comments that get you banned from r/OffMyChest these days

12 upvotes · 19 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

Imagine how "sexist" and horrible she would have found it if a male mod addressed a female that way.

I got into debate with a feminist who founded a feminist alliance at my university. Faced classic slut shaming and white knight anger; I've think I've learnt my lesson, but I need to let it out.

12 upvotes · 3 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women aren't inherently bad, they are being badly brought up.

The distinction may not matter a lot in your everyday life, but if you want a glimpse of what's possible, go redditstalk /u/girlwriteswhat, /u/typhonblue, /u/TempestTcup, or especially /u/FleetingWish, who wrote this, which you should probably go and read right now.

Help me understand The Sixteen Commandments of Poon

12 upvotes · 20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Make her have strong feelings. Good and bad. Feed her need for drama. Resist your own male impulse to be logical, for everything to have a conclusion, for everything to support a central thesis and make sense.

Women don't make sense of their thoughts, of their emotions, of their lives. They just experience them.

Eldersluts and Spinsters: the end result of the female fantasy of marrying "three days after turning 30".

12 upvotes · 16 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

...Mainly I'm just happy that our country's high divorce rate means I don't necessarily have to resign myself to a second, or even third-tier male just because I didn't get my arse in gear a few years ago.

Lucky for those second- and third-tier men, she isn't gunning for them. What she also doesn't understand is that all those divorced women will be looking for men, too. She's going to have a whole lot of competition. I see permanent spinsterhood in her future.

It's a source of constant amusement to me how a woman in her 40s can say things like "second or even third-tier", and not realize she's describing herself.

Most men have a good notion of approximate what their sexual market value is. These women, the loud, outspoken ones who write articles like this, don't have a clue.

42 years old and she still thinks the world is there just for her. How thick the skin of her bubble must be.

Oooh, something else to add to "victim blaming"

12 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

Indeed. In fact, by comparing their actions to their rationales, we can see that neither the traditionalist conservatives nor the cultural marxists are being honest about their motives when it comes to abortion.

Tradcons claim to be trying to preserve human life. If this were true, they would try to prevent abortions by the most effective means possible. This means good, cheap, and readily available contraceptives, plus reproductive choices for men.

Cultural marxists and other "liberals" claim to be trying to make parenthood a choice, a planned, opt-in process, and prevent the birth of unwanted children. This means good, cheap, and readily available contraceptives, plus reproductive choices for men.

So the two political wings would agree on policy, if their stated motives were their real ones. This shows they are both big, fat, hypocrites.

Tradcons' real motive is to make sex as risky and scary as possible, in the hopes that it will make people start getting married again.

Liberals' real motive is preventing a misfortune from happening to women under any circumstances, even if it is the result of her own stupidity.

That's why they can't agree. Neither of them gives a damn about children, born, unborn, or hypothetical.

Tradcons want bad things to happen to women who have sex outside of marriage. Liberals want bad things not to happen to women, ever.

Jimmy Connors has the nerve to talk about Chris Evert aborting their child and how it affected him. Shame-police out in force.

12 upvotes · 14 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

I am extremely disappointed that he used the book to misrepresent a private matter that took place 40 years ago and made it public, without my knowledge.

You, on the other hand, killed a child that was as much his as yours, without his knowledge, and expect him to be okay with that.

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

12 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No, and I don't oppose maternity leave.

I oppose government mandated paternity/maternity leave. Businesses can offer whatever perks they wish to (and can afford) to their employees.

Reddit Men's Rights Activists Are Fundraising For The "Victim" Of Adria Richards

12 upvotes · 23 March 2013 · /r/askTRP

Also on buzzfeed: 15 Insanely Hot Pictures Of Ryan Gosling Pumping Gas

I think we are done here.

Hypergamy bit her in the ass so hard it's sad.

12 upvotes · 14 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a part of me that wishes there was a way to help them realize this before jumping on the carousel

Hold on there, slim. It wasn't the carousel that was the problem, here.

Struggling should have brought us closer together, and at first it did. But as time went on, and my magazine career - and salary - advanced, I started to resent Matthew as he drifted from one dead-end job to another.

This is plain old hypergamy without the carousel twist. Women are biologically incapable of staying faithful to someone they cannot look up to.

This is why equality is impossible. Not because men cannot see women as equals, but because women are incapable of loving men whom they see as equals. A heterosexual woman can only be content with a partner she sees as more powerful than her.

That's why I keep saying it:

The carousel is not the problem.

Promiscuity is not the problem.

Hypergamy is not the problem.

The problem is that women do not want the consequences of equality.

study: when domestic violence is one-sided, in 70% of the cases, women were the perpetrators

12 upvotes · 18 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

This blew my mind, until I told a female friend about it.

Now, a feminist might have hamsterized or argued with the results. She, however, that pointed out that what this study really shows is that men are less likely to hit back.

At that point, I stopped going "wow", and started going "well, duh".

Guys, don't take stalking as a joke.

12 upvotes · 12 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Jodi Arias is accused of shooting her ex-boyfriend in the face, stabbing him multiple times and slitting his throat from ear to ear. Her attorneys will argue she killed him in self-defense.

"Your Honor, I shot him in the face, and that didn't stop him. Then I stabbed him twenty-nine times, but he just kept coming. Finally I had to cut his throat."

Askreddit thread asks "what's the worst thing you've ever been accused of?". Thread EXPLODES with false rape allegations.

12 upvotes · 10 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Rape... by a woman who was so eager to get my shirt off me that she tore the buttons off it.

The next week, to her friends, she accused me of "taking advantage of her" because she "hadn't been in her right mind".

Not on account of being drunk, or drugged, or what have you. No.

Because she was sleepy.

I lost friends over this.

Exhibit A in why I as a gay dude do NOT support feminists and increasingly identify with the MRM. These hateful FEMEN idiots don't give a fuck about gay rights, they're just appropriating our cause for their sick anti-male attention whoring purposes.

12 upvotes · 20 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

You are my brothers.

Right you are. I don't care who you fuck. Feminists would love other people to think that straight MRAs like me hate you, but fuck that noise. You don't hurt men (straight or gay) by getting it on with other dudes.

It's feminists who hurt men.

Cases And Materials blog "Currently dealing with MRAs"

12 upvotes · 16 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

If this is the caliber of the opposition, I am not going to lose much sleep.

I got accused of rape once. Apparently I'm a rapist. My story.

12 upvotes · 13 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Don't blame the victim.

Single mother who receives 15,000 kroner a month in benefits sets off debate about what it means to be poor in Denmark [xpost /r/Libertarian]

12 upvotes · 19 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

After paying for rent, utilities, internet, a TV licence, dog food and vet bills, football expenses, medicine, private debts, and cigarettes, she has – by her own calculation – 5,000 kroner left over each month for food, clothing and housekeeping.

So.... she's 36 years old. She's been on welfare for 20 years.

And her spending priorities look like this:

Noting that she had enough money to buy food, plus spent 500 kroner per month on cigarettes, he added: "I think you can afford a decent life when I look at your budget, and I think that you live very nicely here."

In response, Cekic called Olsen "ridiculous" and said it was "unbelievable" that he couldn't agree that it was "degrading that a mother can't afford to buy a pair of shoes for her son."

... cigarettes before shoes for her children.

This person has never done any work in her life. What is all this money for? They've paid this woman over six hundred thousand dollars. And if they had invested it at eight percent instead... $1,556,670.27.

Why?

When is there an end to it? When does the bottomless pit of "I need" stop being everyone else's obligation?

People work because they need money. She "needs" money... but not enough to get a job. Other people have to get jobs instead. Apparently, they don't need anything.

The left wing talks about "fairness", but apparently, that fairness is very selective. We must be extremely fair to people who don't work, but not so much to people who do. That's not what I think fairness means.

Fairness means equality of opportunities, not outcomes.

You wanna spend some money helping her get a job? Fine. It's not precisely fair either, but it's the cheap option. But this woman has to have some responsibilities if she wants people to give her things. She has to give them something, too. What does she contribute? Anything?

This is what we're up against.

12 upvotes · 9 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

Then they'll accuse you of bestiality and pedophilia.

3 Mistakes Women Make When Dealing With Men

12 upvotes · 4 May 2012 · /r/seduction

4- Listening to advice from cracked.com

Do you have to be an anti-feminist to be a MRA?

12 upvotes · 30 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

It is possible to be an activist for women's rights and an activist for men's rights.

But feminism isn't just advocacy for women. It's a philosophy, a connected series of beliefs. That's why it bears the suffix, "-ism".

Many of these beliefs (patriarchy, rape culture, objectification, gender as a construct) are incompatible with advocacy for the rights of men.

What to answer to girl who says shes really good in bed?

12 upvotes · 26 March 2012 · /r/seduction

What is a good alpha answer to counter her obvious superiority in bed?

"We'll see about that" is actually an excellent alpha answer.

Because it sets you up as the judge of her. Being dominant isn't about competing over every little thing. It's about knowing you're in charge and letting others compete to impress you.

Dear fellow Patriarchal oppressors, feel free to enjoy the asswhipping being handed to SRS mods in ModNews

12 upvotes · 15 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

Personally, I hope SRS stays around, and keeps sending drones in here. They used to annoy me, but now that all of reddit hates them, I realize that they are helping us out by dispelling the stereotype that we're the unreasonable ones.

Teacher sleeps with 16 year old student and gets pregnant. The verdict? Probation and no more teaching. She also does NOT have to register as a sex offender. Bullshit!

12 upvotes · 22 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because sex with a consenting 16 year old girl is rape, but sex with consenting 16 year old boy is just sex.
Riiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiight.

are we slowly coming to the conclusion that "game" doesn't exist?

12 upvotes · 3 January 2012 · /r/seduction

1. Women are genetically programmed to use social confidence as a metric for fitness, genetic and otherwise.
2. As we developed a civilization, this metric stopped being representative. There are some males out there with very desirable traits and no game (social confidence when chatting up females), and some absolute losers out there with good game.
3. #2 is not our problem, and we can't fix it because of #1.
4. So we have to develop social confidence with females, absent any traits that it is actually intended to measure (status, personal abilities, etc.).

The reason it is called "game" is that we are gaming the system. In fact, when a metric becomes bad, you have to game it, because it does not measure what it is supposed to measure (so increasing that thing doesn't help).

I just realized that in the 17 years that I've been sexually active, not one woman respected my wishes when I declined sex.

12 upvotes · 22 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

these kinds of women view their orgasm as an inalienable right

I don't think that's quite it. I don't think it's precisely an orgasm, or even sex, that women feel entitled to.

I think they feel entitled that we be attracted to them. I think that they (certainly the younger ones) have been raised from birth to think of women as much more attractive than men, much more valuable, much more special, much more desirable, much sexier.

They grow to think that their role, in sex, and in courtship, is to show up, be willing, and be appreciated for how special they are.

The rage of a woman who consents and is rejected is similar in form and nature to the rage of a man who has been encouraged to go to great efforts in courtship, and then spurned. They have been taught to see their consent as a vast and generous concession, of equal value to much courtship effort on the part of a man.

This is why I say they do not find our consent sexy, that they take it for granted. They believe they have inherent value, and that they do not have to do anything to be desirable. A man who does not desire them, therefore, is somehow saying that they are not inherently desirable, which they take to be a mortal insult. The only remedy available to soothe their "fragile egos" (to borrow a feminist phrase) is to suggest, and believe, that his lack of sexual interest in her is a lack of sex drive, and of masculinity itself.

Of course, to anyone who thinks about it sensibly, it is readily apparent that no one is desirable without effort, whether in self-improvement or in courtship... and the only reason that women think they should be is that men, too, have been taught that women are inherently sexier and more desirable than men are.

The worst of the heartbreaks, headaches, and all other pain that our broken system of sex, dating, courtship, marriage, and divorce, is reserved for those men who believe this.

The nice folks at r/seduction have realized that they must have value equal to a woman if they are to have fulfilling sex lives. What they don't realize is that in rating that value by "success with women", they are measuring their masculinity with a broken yardstick. Sex, relationships, and marriage will not be repaired, will not work, in this culture until men are once again generally acknowledged as desirable in the same way that women are.

Right now, it is a market with only two stocks, one vastly undervalued, and one vastly overvalued. Women, the holders of the overvalued stock, have been getting rich off the discrepancy. But the holders of the undervalued stock are wising up and refusing to trade. This creates a situation where no one gets what they want. But this is at least better than what we had before.

If you are a Feminist, and you've come here to tell us that "RadFems don't represent Feminism" please read this.

12 upvotes · 16 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

Can I get you to edit in a "point #3"?

-3. If you only tell US that not all feminists are like that, then you don't really care about the damage that radfems do to men.

Time and time again, we hear feminists telling us that "not all feminists are like that". But when those feminists are out in public, doing what you don't do, and being what you aren't like, what we hear from you then, and what they hear from you, seems to be a vast echoing silence.

How can we help but believe that "not all feminists are like that" is simply an excuse to dismiss criticism, when there is little or no visible dissent from within the feminist camp over these issue? What are we to think when radfems are disowned only at the point when their bad behaviour is criticized, never when their bad behaviour actually occurs?

You seem to be willing to throw radfems under the bus when they become an embarrassment to the movement, but not when they become an embarrassment to the species.

Duke Rape Liar to be tried for murder

12 upvotes · 9 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

"I'm sad for her. I hope people realize how difficult it is being her," Clark said.

Yep, those female domestic abusers. They are the real victims.

Have a vagina? Play videogames? Now you're a celebrity, apparently!

12 upvotes · 7 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Haven't you heard? Doing something entirely ordinary while being female is a noteworthy accomplishment worthy of press attention, if not special awards!

Woman serves no jail time for alcohol and sexual abuse against 4 boys aged 12-16; judge cites her troubled upbringing

12 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

These 4 boys will grow up and sexually abuse young women (most abusers were themselves victims of abuse), and we won't hear a peep about their "troubled upbringing" as they are sent away for 20 to life.

Unsocial Male Nerd in the USA

12 upvotes · 17 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

That's quite funny that nerds are blamed for being oppressive to women.

If by funny, you mean "surprising", then not at all. You yourself answer the question "why", two sentences later.

Nerds aren't very popular and easily manipulated by pretty women.

... that's why.

Nerds are picked as a target for accusations of oppression, not because they are less woman-friendly, but because they are the easiest target for these accusations.

They are the group most easily manipulated into turning on each other, into public self-loathing, into appeasement.

Men should be honest to their mates about porn, but don't demand a women who cuckolded you to do the same. - Cordially, Hugo Schwyzer

12 upvotes · 1 August 2011 · /r/MensRights

I hypothesize that Hugo Schwyzer is a submissive, whose shame prevents him from exercising his fetish, and therefore it manifests itself into his work as he describes a world he wished existed; a female dominated society.

This may have been intended as a joke, but I think this may seriously be the case.

As an active BDSMer myself, I can testify that there is something very strange about male subs. While dom males will generally take the attitude of "I like to be dominant, and I will seek out women who like me that way.", submissive males tend to push the belief that all women "should" be dominant, and all men "should" treat them like goddesses.

Can anyone, even a women explain how this is sexist?

12 upvotes · 29 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

Because violence against a woman is violence against women, but violence against a man is just generic violence.

Some vile and vapid advice these 'nerd loving' girls on my facebook keep posting.

12 upvotes · 28 July 2011 · /r/seduction

It's arguing that men who get less women appreciate them more and make better boyfriends. Men who get a lot won't try so hard to keep one because there's more where that came from.

You're assuming that "trying hard" makes a better boyfriend.

Since a "better" boyfriend is one that women prefer, then trying hard empirically makes a worse boyfriend, since women shun men who try too hard.

By and large, there's no point to telling women to "give nerds a chance", because women won't. That's why this subreddit exists.

There's no point in giving women in this society advice about dating, because they already have all the power. There's no motivation for them to change. They'll do whatever they want, and right now, that doesn't include "date nerds".

Which makes this article nothing but white noise, really.

MRA's Support Womens rights

12 upvotes · 21 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

I have several reactions to this:

1. Dude. Paragraph breaks. Srsly.
2. Women are people. We should treat them like people, just like we expect them to treat us like people.
3. BUT we don't have to run around "proving" we are not misogynists. We don't have to preface everything we say with a list of the women's rights we believe in and agree with. We are just as entitled as anyone else to the presumption that we are decent human beings who treat others fairly.
4. Sometimes I am somewhat disturbed by the very angry things that some people here say about women (not just feminists, but women). Sometimes I read things I'd rather people hadn't said. But I remind myself that misogynists are made, not born. That some people are angry, and that anger can spill over. That some people need a safe place to be angry, where they can be angry, not without disagreement from others, but at least without character assassination.

Since circumcision is debated so much here, I thought you guys (and gals) would like to see a video of the procedure. Turn down your volume as the screams of pain are pretty loud.

12 upvotes · 8 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

NSFWork.

NSFSanity.

NSFLife.

Cannot be unseen.

Man Selling His Body (NSFW)

11 upvotes · 24 May 2022 · /r/MensRights

Yes.

How can men fix online dating? Issues from a woman's point of view

11 upvotes · 9 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You chose not to respond to what I said, because it doesn't fit your worldview, and you aren't equipped to understand it.

I'm going to give you the most valuable advice you will ever receive, and you're going to ignore it, because you won't like it. I'm still going to give it to you, because you're not the only person who reads my comments.

- Almost every social interaction is a negotiation.
- The goal of negotiation is to reach an agreement that is acceptable to both parties.
- This means that every negotiation has two elements for each party... what they want, and what they offer.
- If you want something, you must also offer something, or you will not get what you want.
- You cannot consciously engage in negotiation without having a clear idea of what you want, and what you are willing to offer.

By writing his post, you are expressing that you want something from men. You want them to "fix" online dating, and by "fix", you mean create more favourable outcomes for you.

But you do not have a clear idea what you are offering in return.

That's because you didn't realize you were negotiating.

That's an easy mistake to make... if you have not been taught to negotiate, which you probably haven't.

What you did instead is say "do this or I will leave", and "do this because it is the right thing to do". Neither of these are an offer. They attempt to get people to do what you want in exchange for... nothing.

And I think you probably talk to others that way because all your life, people have talking to you that way. "Do this or else". "Do this because it's the right thing to do."

If so, you have been letting yourself get taken advantage of.

If you have something others want, you need to learn to expect something in return... or you will be exploited and get nothing. If others have something you want, you need to offer something in return... or everyone who knows their own value will avoid you.

Destroy Your Dick December

11 upvotes · 4 November 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The reason we get this is that people tend to remember the good stuff, and not the rest.

Ah yes, the male species is a prestige type of species

11 upvotes · 11 October 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

There are only two kinds of women: pickmes, and skipmes. The choice is entirely hers.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

11 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

People tend to sort themselves into those who have already developed critical thinking skills, those who can be taught them, and those who aren't worth the effort.

The intended audience for this article was the second group.

This is why I dislike fourth wave feminism. This right here.

11 upvotes · 13 September 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Okay, I'm gonna sit at home and you can bankroll me.

And you can try to tell me what to do, but if I refuse to do it, you can't lay a finger on me or you're going to jail.

I don't have to stay in shape, perform oral sex ever, perform any kind of sex unless I want to, or be considerate or even polite.

And if you decide to divorce me to get out of this deal, you'll still have to bankroll me and I get to keep the kids if I want them.

"I can't be open because they will use it against me" is a common thing I hear men say, but not women as much — why?

11 upvotes · 2 September 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because when women are open, men don't use it against them.

Men are protective of women, women are protective of children.

Extreme sex positivity

11 upvotes · 31 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

How much you wish to trust others is always a personal and situational choice.

If we trust others too little, we miss out on what they have to offer us. If we trust others too much, we give bad actors and incompetents a chance to harm us.

So, the question to be asking yourself is "what do I stand to gain from this?" and "what do I stand to lose?".

On Sheryl Sandberg's advice to women on finding a life partner: be the first guy

11 upvotes · 13 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"How to be an alpha widow".

Gf blocked me on her instagram stories

11 upvotes · 30 April 2021 · /r/askTRP

If you have to ask "Should I be suspicious?", you should be suspicious.

Toxic masculinity is because of men who are too feminine apparently but they say not masculine enough

11 upvotes · 8 April 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Dear tired lesbian feminist:

I don't care what you want anymore. You have given me no incentive to care. Your movement's sole interaction with men is to scold them, and I have no interest in living my life surrounded by naggy scolds who don't appreciate me and have nothing to offer me.

You and your sisters keep making remarks about what you want me to do and not do, but never once have you bothered to address the obvious question "what's in it for me?".

Why would I even want to negotiate with you, when you demand stuff and offer nothing in return? And even if you were to change up, what the hell do you have to offer that I even want? You are utterly useless to me, to me and don't even treat me with basic courtesy, so why would I bother interacting with you?

Answer, I wouldn't. Fuck off.

Sincerely,

A Guy Who Wouldn't Touch You with Somebody Else's Ten-Foot Pole.

Stop Putting Condiments on your Shit Sandwich of a Life

11 upvotes · 16 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

So do you have a plan for making them able to act?

So PPD in a nutshell

11 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

People the cartoonist doesn't like have snake eyes and pointy teeth, and say whatever the cartoonist wants them to say.

Always tear up after masturbating because I don't have a boyfriend and can't find real things.

11 upvotes · 12 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, you've included no human connections in your life, and you're wondering why your vibrator doesn't ease your loneliness any?

Hmmm.

Has it occurred to you that your immediate needs don't give a shit about your long term plans?

TRP has an End Game

11 upvotes · 22 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a glock 43

That's good. A rifle defends your home/territory, but a handgun defends your BODY. Small, concealable, reliable, and accurate enough. Just what you want.

Could you recommend a budget AR or AK that I could order online?

I'm an AR guy myself, but AKs are good, too. There's a reason why these two rifles are the most popular in the world.

Personally, I build most of my rifles from scratch out of off-the-shelf components, and spare no expense, but you don't need to do that. A basic-but-sound rifle is 95% as good in most situations that you're gonna need it for. So long as the gear works, the shooter matters more than the gear.

Back in the days when you could get a GOOD stamped AK in the US for ~$400, I would have recommended that, but those days are gone, so you might as well get the more customizable AR... you'll be paying about the same anyway.

The cheapest ARs you can get would run you about 650, but I don't recommend that. Palmetto State Armory is to be commended for getting rifles in as many hands as they do, but you're going to be buying this ONCE, so save your pennies and get it right the first time.

I'd hang out in /r/ar15 for a while and learn, but if you really want a simple recommendation you can go with, this is probably the least expensive thing you could bet your life on.

If you're willing to spend a bit more: this is what I recommend. Brownells also sells these complete.

If you are basically comfortable with tools, and comfortable with building things, you can make one yourself. If you want, PM me a throwaway email address and I can point you in the right direction.

First time being hit with a question like this.

11 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/askTRP

"Well, let's see... are you wearing panties right now?"

Totally not a sexist sub

11 upvotes · 31 August 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

The worst thing that can happen to these women is to live out the rest of their lives being precisely the sort of people they already are.

So, if you feel the need for vengeance, all you must do is eat popcorn and watch.

I found Women who was Match maker. She quit because she could not handle female clients.

11 upvotes · 16 August 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

If all you have to offer is pussy, then that's highly likely. We are indeed, strongly hardwired with an obsessive interest in vaginas, but bear in mind that there a great many of them to choose from, and that they are far less distinct than the women that surround them.

Why is TRP hung up on an idealized version of love?

11 upvotes · 5 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/781>

I gave him an ultimatum

11 upvotes · 12 July 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Never give ultimatums.

Anything that justifies giving one justifies leaving.

Did what felt empowering and right for me. Did it follow TRP way?

11 upvotes · 3 May 2020 · /r/askTRP

The TRP way is "whatever we have discovered is consistently effective".

Did your choice of actions work?

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

11 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Just her, or shall I kick them both out to appease you?

Why is an opinionated woman a thing of repulsion?

11 upvotes · 29 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Let me provide some context here: I believe that as a citizen of a nation, when the underprivileged are subjected to ill-treatment, people should stand up for them. Now of course not everyone could care or have the same priorities.

I understand that you have reasons for thinking what you think, feeling how you feel, and acting how you act. I also have a pretty good idea what they are, and why they make sense to you.

But I'm not talking to about things you already know, understand, and believe. I'm trying to talk to you about something you don't yet have a clear idea of, which is how you look to others.

You are telling people that they "should" do, think or feel something. Now, what this means that you want them to do something. Now, when we want someone to do something, we can get that one of two ways:

- "Do what I want, AND I will give you something nice."
 - (This can tangible, like money, or intangible, like appreciation, or even a warm feeling of pride from having helped someone.)
- "Don what I want, OR I will give you something not-nice." *(This can be tangible, like physical violence, or intangible, like moral criticism)

Now, do you see what the real dynamic of this interaction is? You are telling people "Do what I say, or I will do something unpleasant to you."

You, in short, are acting like a bully.

And you think it's okay, because you are doing it "in a good cause". But a cause is only as good as the actions you take to further it. In thinking yourself righteous, you give yourself unlimited license to badger and threaten people into serving YOUR goals, not their own.

So what can you do instead, if you truly believe that your moral cause is righteous and you need to serve it?

Instead of trying "Do what I want, OR...", try "Do what I want, AND..."

I'm a rpw but my boyfriend doesn't feel appreciated?

11 upvotes · 19 January 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, neither one is the case then.

You're both young and have trouble with emotional stability, and what's happening is that you are both needing support at the same time.

Women look for men to be their rock, and not get upset when she is. Unfortunately, young men just aren't mentally tough yet, and are still looking to be mothered when they have emotional deficits.

If you two want to save the relationship from an escalating pattern of fights and growing resentment, you are going to have to learn to take turns.

2nd date with a shy nerdy chick has turned into a double date with her sister and sisters bf....what's going on here?

11 upvotes · 27 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

I like you. You save me a lot of typing.

Can a RPW be single forever?

11 upvotes · 27 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I have these thoughts in my head along the lines of, "What if I never find a husband?"

Do you want one?

If so, why are you planning to fail?

'An Essay for Women,' by Rollo Tomassi

11 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Everyone has their strengths and weaknesses.

Rollo is magnificent at getting young men to see that their society no longer has their back, and it is time to become a rebel. He is less strong in making them able to see when their rebellion has been victorious in their own life, and it is therefore time to stop being a rebel and become a patriarch.

The anger you sensed in his tone is precisely what young men who have been jerked around need to hear. It is good for them. It is righteous. Anger is what helps people stand up for themselves and make sure they get treated fairly. And the way that anger has to end is by achieving its purpose.

It's okay for you to not be attracted to that. It's absolutely okay to keep your distance while you wait for them to work through that. It's just not okay to talk smack about it, because it's appropriate, necessary, and right.

Rollo does a lot of good... but he's not necessarily the best person to speak directly to you.

About to leave my husband for the new man

11 upvotes · 17 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

As I thought. Your behaviour is predictable, and I tell you the second half of your story from hearing the first, because how you are behaving now comes from the nature of women, not from your nature as an individual.

When the founders of the red pill first started making an effort to understand the nature of women (rather than just what pickup lines worked), we borrowed something called "Briffault's Law".

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

— Robert Briffault, The Mothers, Vol. I, p. 191

With a few years of refinement added to our understanding, this is what I would take from this idea:

Whisper's Law of Mating: In the human species, males decide to engage in a long-term sexual pair bond based on benefits already received from the interaction, while females do so based on the expectation of future benefit.

This not only explains why it is a terrible idea for women to withhold sex to secure commitment, it also explains your behaviour perfectly. You married your husband in an expectation of future benefit, to wit citizenship. Once you secured that citizenship, it was no longer a future benefit, and in the absence of any other significant expected cookie, you ceased to be emotionally invested in your husband.

That's why you were able to fall in love with someone else.

This not only helps us explain your past behaviour, but it tells us what you will do. Not what you should do, perhaps, but what you inevitably will do. You will leave your husband, regardless of whether I or anyone else tells you to do so, or tells you not to do so. If you do not leave him for this man, you will leave him for another. It is in your basic nature as a woman.

Of course, you will feel guilty, but that will not change your course of action. This is due to:

Whisper's Law of Conscience: The moral behaviour of ordinary humans is not significantly distinct from that of a psychopath, except for the degree of rationalization and self-recrimination required. The human brain treats the conscience as an obstacle between itself and the desired behaviour, not a means of making decisions.

This principle is featured in such timeless classics as "Everyone Is Doing It", "If I Don't Do It, Someone Else Will", and "God Has Forgiven Me", as well as new contemporary hits like "It's Just A Clump of Cells, Not a Human Being", "You Can't Be Racist Against White People", and "I'm Not a Terrible Person, I'm Just in a Terrible Situation". Moral systems provide much more jaw-flapping to the world than they ever will provide decision-making.

So there is little or nothing to discuss. You will do this. You will cry about it a lot, but you will do it. It's what women do.

Always assume attraction - A.A.A.

11 upvotes · 14 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Just to be clear... this list has some unusually good stuff (but it also has some crap). /u/4nt43us, on some level, gets it. The problem is that he just stuck six things together, rather than writing a coherent article with a single idea, and stuff to explain and support it.

That's not how you make an argument, or teach an audience.

He needs to take some of this material, and fit it together into a single-point article called "Don't reject yourself before she has the chance". 1,2,3, and 5 will fit neatly into that. 4 and 6 won't, but that's because they are content-free rubbish, and need to be removed.

Bluepilled "Comedy" video explaining why alpha males don't exist is accidentally redpilled.

11 upvotes · 3 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

If these scrubs spent half the effort on self-improvement that they do on denial, they'd be alpha as fuck.

Why do I keep choosing to ignore red flags?

11 upvotes · 24 June 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

At 19 I lost my virginity and throughout college I was fine with hooking up with people but in the back of my mind I have always preferred being in a relationship. I also admit that I exclusively date using dating apps. I hooked up with ten guys in college

Uhhhhh, you're the town bicycle.

And you're wondering why you are being treated like the town bicycle.

If you want to reinvent yourself as relationship worthy, you're going to have to do a lot more than lose 20 pounds.

What to do when a girl is throwing herself at you?

11 upvotes · 6 June 2019 · /r/askTRP

That's because it doesn't happen to you very much.

Keep working on yourself and your game.

Is it true that if he won't treat you correct now, he won't ever treat you correctly in the future?

11 upvotes · 27 May 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

I actually was in love with him. I was ready to spend my entire life with this guy. But it's all his fault. He wouldn't commit and he wasn't good at maintaining our relationship.

What kind of entitled crap is this?

You don't owe men sex just because they want it, and men don't owe you a relationship just because you want one. You have to make them want one. Making you want sex is their job, making them want a relationship is yours.

Men are not slot machines where you pull the sex handle until you win the relationship jackpot.

Every girl has a boyfriend...

11 upvotes · 23 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

He doesn't let you talk to people line is combative.

That may not necessarily work against you.

Remember that you don't make girls cheat, you allow them to cheat. A girl who is "all-in" with her man is going to shut you down no matter what you do. A girl who isn't, and is already tempted, just needs an excuse.

"How dare he hypothetically get mad at me for just talking to this guy!" is one such excuse.

Yes, absolutely a girl who is enthralled with her man is going to go "Come off it. We both know what you're after. Go away." ... but that's not a drawback, because she is going to do that no matter what.

Getting blown out earlier just saves you time.

The big tell here is "Does her boyfriend know she's talking to you?". Will she tell him about your conversation? Will she tell him you made a pass at her? If she's going mention this to him next time she sees him, you have no chance. Move on. If she keeps your actions or existence a secret from him, she's already considering cheating with you, even if all you have talked about is the history of the French and Indian War.

Do you next prudish girls or get them to become more adventurous, if so, how to pull it off?

11 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

A woman will behave with wild sexual abandon with a man in a degree proportional to both her attitudes about sex and her attraction to that man.

Since background matters, sexual behaviour is a lot less comparable between different women than it is between different men with the same woman. A woman may be wanton, or not, but she is always the freakiest with the man she loves and desires the most.

Women are hardwired to vet men for sex-worthiness. The more sex-worthy a man is, the less ashamed she feels about having sex with him. The less ashamed she is, the freakier she gets.

If you want to know how into you she is, push the envelope.

How to stop being anxious & Become mentally strong and man up?

11 upvotes · 6 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

You don't stop being anxious and then act. You act even though you are anxious, and through that process, learn not to be.

If you wait to stop being afraid before you begin, you will never begin.

We're Right and You're Wrong

11 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Your post sounds like you are trying to start a cult.

Who gives a shit what it sounds like?

He's either correct or incorrect. Test it. Find out which.

How to get over a one night stand?

11 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Don't use MDMA with strangers.

Every feeling you ever had was nothing but a chemical and electrical state in your brain. With drugs, most of them can be duplicated. You did this to yourself.

Now there's nothing you can do but ride it out. And pay the stupidity tax.

The Thing You Really Want

11 upvotes · 8 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I just be missing the nuances here

Yes.

A man who's desperate for validation from whatever girl he's talking to is different from a man who reserves his attention for the women who love and appreciate him.

Why do you think we call "starfish sex" that, as a term of disdain?

What's next . Ltr . Possible emotional cheating.

11 upvotes · 6 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Bad feeling about the guy and what might be going on

That's all you need to know.

Is this something worth breaking up over?

11 upvotes · 1 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

It's not about what she's done or hasn't done.

You are option B. Do you want to have an LTR with a girl for whom you are option B?

Negotiating for affection

11 upvotes · 22 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

"The talk" ... she is negotiating for commitment.

Using sex as a bargaining chip (either withholding or offering).

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

11 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You need to stick your head in this bucket.

CNN: What if women went on a sex strike before the midterms?

11 upvotes · 4 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Yep.

How can i attract a bipolar chick?

11 upvotes · 21 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Don't.

Infamous N-Count

11 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

If men understood the nature of women, marriage rate would be zero.

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

11 upvotes · 30 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There certainly are men who express hatred, mistrust or inferiority of women here.

So what?

I've always thought we should have a rule against whining,

Who's this "we" ?

If you want a new rule, you can go make a discussion group that has that rule. 'Round here, shit ain't changing, because I happen to like it the way it is.

But at the same time, we can't just tuck our tails and appease the Reddit admins

Not gonna appease them. Or you. Because from where I'm sitting the only difference I can see is that they have root access and you don't. Attitude looks pretty similar.

because they'll keep doing this until they either drive us from the site or turn us into some fem-positive lalaland. Difficult situation.

We have a site already. We'll go there when they delete it from here, but until then, ain't changing shit.

The unicorn fantasy that even TRP men have the hardest time letting go.

11 upvotes · 31 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Allow me to clarify my off-the-cuff response. It's not literally about "food".

Let's put it this way... dogs are pack animals. The instinctive behaviour of subordinate dogs in a pack mimics cues that humans mistake for love; this is especially so when dogs have been domesticated and selectively bred for behaviour that humans find pleasing.

All this "dogs are wonderful, loving creatures" and "we don't deserve dogs" bullshit is just another form of blue pill. Dogs are fine companion animals, but at the end of the day, they are just dogs, and not capable of understanding you, much less of giving you unconditional love.

The truth is, unconditional love doesn't exist. The instinctive love of a mother for a child comes the closest, but even that requires certain cues that are programmed into children's behaviour.

Do not pedestalize your dog or your mom, either.

What Do Men Want - how soon to have sex

11 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's not about "how soon" or "how late". If I decide to ghost her, it's not going to be because sex didn't happen within X. It's going to be because of what that tells me about her.

Sex is a really simple thing. We either both like each other, we want to do it, so we do, or we don't both like each other, we figure that out, and we part ways.

Strange rules like "The priest has to sprinkle lemon juice on us first", or "you have to say in public that we're a couple, in first of at least three witnesses", or "we can't do this now because it's Saint Answelm's Day" are actually kind of creepy. They suggest that she has some weird ulterior motive, rather than just being into me. If she's not into me, that's fine, but then I'd like her to stop wasting my time so I can go find someone who is.

Tyler "Ninja" Blevins, Twitch's biggest streamer doesn't stream with women because he doesn't want the internet rumor mill to go into overdrive and cause problems with his marriage. In response, he has been accused of 'misogyny' and is being compared to Mike Pence.

11 upvotes · 13 August 2018 · /r/MensRights

When you stop taking it seriously and start laughing at it.

Genuine question

11 upvotes · 14 July 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

What you are asking boils down to "Aren't you being taken advantage of?"

A healthy relationship is a partnership, not a power struggle. It is not a contest to see who can get more and give less.

First world western white and asian middle to upper class women are the single most privileged demographic in the history of the known universe. When you exclude tiny minorities like nobility and the idle rich, never has any subspecies of humanity given less, and gotten more for it.

And yet, is this the happiest demographic? No. Far from it. If you don't believe me, just go on facegram or instatwit or something. The internet is stuffed to the seams with unhappy women demanding that men do more, work harder, expect less, and obey their every whim... when they are not simply crying about their first world problems, or ranting about how they hate men.

You've certainly met plenty of feminists who claimed, somewhat insistently, that they were happy, but have you ever seen a feminist who actually looked and acted happy? Feminism, indeed the most radical form of feminism, feminism that demands female supremacy, has become the dominant paradigm in our culture, to the point where many men scarcely dare speak to a woman or look her in the eye.

So something clearly is off. Female power is way up, female happiness is way down. Perhaps power is not women's route to happiness.

Tell LTR about ssri?

11 upvotes · 8 July 2018 · /r/askTRP

Do I keep this secret with me forever?

Yes.

Advice For a 16 Year Old Girl?

11 upvotes · 16 June 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you could give any Red Pill advice to a 16 year old, what would it be?

- What you do right now matters. Men can reinvent themselves at any age, but you cannot. Be careful.
- The best thing to do is predicated on what you want out of life. I know it's very early to figure that out, but see #1.
- When people try to give you advice, take a moment to pay attention to who they are. Are they successful or unsuccessful? Happy or sad or bitter and angry? Are they telling you to do what they did, or what they didn't do?
- Pay attention to older people. Don't just listen to what they say. Watch them. You can learn from both their mistakes and their successes. You can't learn shit from other teenagers, because they don't know shit.
- Do not allow yourself to be recruited to religious or political groups or causes. They will take everything you have to give, and give nothing in return.
- Do not let yourself accumulate bad habits: sugar, tobacco, drugs, casual sex, self-defeating attitudes, feminism, skipping sleep. The last one is much worse than you think.
- Get in shape. Now. Now is the time when it is easy. When you are older, it will be easy to stay in shape, but hard as hell to get in shape.

Jordan Peterson wants to force you into monogamy. Jordan Peterson wants you to be a slave. He is not your friend.

11 upvotes · 20 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"Forced celibacy" was how the world worked until about 30 years ago

Everything works until it doesn't.

The fact that it kinda sucked is the smaller of tradcon's two problems. The bigger one is that it failed.

Blue Pill Peterson

11 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You do not "win" the evolution game. Genes win the evolution game. You are just a square on the board.

Advice needed, please.

11 upvotes · 21 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're obviously from TRP, so I'm going to put on my TRP hat and fix your idiocy TRP-style.

I honestly do not understand how you can simultaneously have your foot in your mouth while your entire head is so far up your ass.

The whole point of AWALT is that women are genetically programmed to be selfish because they contain valuable eggs while men constantly manufacture cheap and replaceable sperm. And here you are, coming in here and fussing at women for being women, as if you could somehow change their very nature with some sort of weak-ass appeal to morality.

All it does is make you look like a whiny loser. Which is the very thing you are presumably reading TRP to learn to stop.

Anything you teach to women needs to start with an appeal to self-interest, because that's how women work.

RPW teaches women to cooperate with men, and treat them well, but not from moral obligation. No, RPW strategy is based on treating men well because it fucking works.

Men do not follow Briffault's Law. Men reciprocate good treatment. Submissiveness, femininity, kindness, sweetness and generosity are female strategies, not female obligations.

/u/LuckyLittleStar, ban this fool for half a year so he can shut up until he learns something.

CNN Rips Aziz Ansari Accuser, Calls Allegations 'Reckless and Hollow'

11 upvotes · 17 January 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Well, here's what an op-ed piece in the Atlantic Monthly had to say:

I thought it would take a little longer for the hit squad of privileged young white women to open fire on brown-skinned men. I had assumed that on the basis of intersectionality and all that, they'd stay laser focused on college-educated white men for another few months.

Oops, kinda gave away the game there.

This was never about sexual assault qua sexual assault. It was about painting white men as the sole perpetrators of it.

Is it too late to secure a real commitment from my boyfriend?

11 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is not actionable advice.

The 237 Commandments of the Alpha Sperg

11 upvotes · 7 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's what the report button is for. Brings things to the mods' attention. Concern trolling is holding forth in public about how "this sub is shit now" or "we need to change this", in a way that actually reduces the signal to noise ratio.

Anything you want the mods to see, hit that button. Better yet, hit it, then write just why you hit it in the little box there. If whatever mod is looking at it agrees with you, it's gone.

The rules are just guidelines. The real principle is "stop the good stuff from being drowned out by shit".

I've been rejecting women

11 upvotes · 20 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

I felt like an asshole for flirting with women without any intention of being in a relationship.

It's their responsibility to persuade you to have the intention of being in a relationship.

Why does TRP love Brazilian Jiu Jitsu so much?

11 upvotes · 11 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

Because the TRP population isn't mostly top-tier alpha males, nor is it composed of bottom-tier losers who want to hide their failure. It's composed of middle tier guys who want to get better.

Bottom-tier men don't want to learn to fight, they want to abolish fighting.

Middle-tier men want a self-improvement exercise where they don't have to risk getting hit in the face.

Top-tier men like fighting and competing, and they don't care.

The System Made Women Trash; Then They Made Men Trash Too System > Women > Men

11 upvotes · 1 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Son, it's easy to complain about the problem.

Let us know what you're going to do to solve it.

I've lived on TheRedPill for years, I still get depressed

11 upvotes · 27 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

So what?

We told you the truth would set you free.

We didn't say it would make you happy. Your happiness is your responsibility, and yours alone.

Ignore the Peanut Gallery

11 upvotes · 15 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem isn't receiving advice or even receiving advice from strangers.

The problem is that he asked. Not from a specific person, but from anyone. That shows a lack of boundaries and self-respect. Which is the real problem he has.

He's perfectly free to take any advice he hears if it sounds wise to him.

But soliciting advice is a mark of respect, and means you think someone knows better than you. If you treat a whole audience that way, you're training yourself in beta-male behaviour.

Do I tell him the truth, lie, or ignore?

11 upvotes · 7 August 2017 · /r/askTRP

Don't bro knight.

Also don't lie for strangers.

If asked, here's what you say.

"No, that's not what I saw."

"No, I'm not gonna say what. You wanna know, you ask your wife. Then you check her story. But I'm not gonna get involved. "

So, boys(11-13) who are raped by a woman are either a "trembling little weak-kneed pansies" or "homosexuals", and are "hypersensitive pussies" for not being grateful. This is the kind of shaming male sexual abuse victims face all the time i disagree with your assumption that because they consented they arent harmed.

11 upvotes · 9 April 2017 · /r/MensRights

You need to reread more carefully.

This better not have been any of you

11 upvotes · 2 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

You do realize that no one here cares, right?

Wikileaks, Feminist President, Trump - relation to TRP

11 upvotes · 20 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Go look at "Project Veritas" on youtube.

Let's Talk about Trump

11 upvotes · 10 October 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

It's not this kind of action women hate. This is just groupies being groupies, plain and simple.

What they hate is this kind of talk. Because it makes them look like cheap, shallow whores. They don't want the veil torn off this game. They have an image to maintain.

Men don't understand this. All men (except a few limpwristed cucks) openly acknowledge that they are cheap and shallow. So they don't really understand why women really, really, really want to pretend they're better than that. Men just shrug and say "thank you, Captain Obvious".

Trump's sin, from the female perspective, isn't grabbin' some pussy. It's talking about it where the world could hear.

Why are poly relationships so rare among the very wealthy?

11 upvotes · 14 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because one of the usual prerequisites for becoming wealthy is having a wide network of people who connect you to opportunities you would not otherwise have had.

This, in turn, means that you eat what you wish in your tent, but when you venture into the streets, you dress as other men do.

Most wealthy people present the appearance of following custom very closely, because their power is social power, and social power requires the approval of others.

What does The Red Pill actually offer that I can't find somewhere else?

11 upvotes · 11 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Correction:

Redditor: How get laid?

RedPill: Lift weights, neg, Dread Game.

BluePill: RedPill is dicks.

Redditor: BluePill, how get laid?

BluePill: Women not for laid. You bad man, hate women!

Got called out for spitting game, having 2 personalities.

11 upvotes · 23 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

Defensive again.

Learn to agree and amplify.

Is it OK to tell my girlfriend I feel depressed?

11 upvotes · 1 June 2016 · /r/askTRP

No.

What would be your reaction if 90% of men in society absolutely refused to get married?

11 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It can't be lifetime girlfriend/boyfriend.

Why ever not?

No matter how bad a deal women voters and white-knight legislators define marriage into, men are still the gatekeepers of relationships. Women do not have the power to "put their foot down" and demand marriage, or cohabitation, or even LTRs.

If cohabitation is legislated into being marriage 2.0, men will stop cohabiting. If LTRs are legislated into being marriage 2.0, men will stop LTRing.

You can't force someone to sign a contract. You can only trick them into it. And once they know the contract is bad for them... well, that's that.

We have built the damned world with the model we have, one man and one woman and the labor and kids they produce

Yes, but so what?

Men didn't build that system, and work within it, out of the goodness of their hearts. They did it because the bargain contained things men want. Regular access to sex, a supportive and obedient woman, children they could be pretty sure were theirs, the authority to raise those children as they thought best, and most of all, respect.

As society, we took all those things away.

Which means that what women want:

the need a good woman has to make a family with her man.

... no longer matters to what will happen.

You're talking like the sexual apocalypse, followed by anarchy, will be prevented by women still wanting families. That doesn't matter. Because women have no leverage anymore. There's nothing they can do, or not do, or threaten to do, or not do, that can force a man to marry.

From the point of view of men, the sexual apocalypse, followed by anarchy, is a thing that has already happened. Men have no problem swapping indefinite LTRs for marriage, because Marriage 2.0 offers them nothing that an indefinite LTR doesn't.

Master Monk Mode With Modafinil

11 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I would advise caution.

While nootropics can indeed have benefits, modafinil has considerable potential to disrupt sleep... and lack of sleep is a very severe problem that is highly prevalent among today's young men.

Vasalgel Donation Pledge

11 upvotes · 17 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Perhaps we could provoke them into writing such articles by starting a "Vasalgel and don't tell!" slogan circulating.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

11 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You'll be more persuasive if you don't use the word nigger.

Mostly. But there's a grey area between using palatable language to your target audience, and allowing your language to be policed for palatability by anyone.

There's a huge difference between "I will not use this word to this audience, because it's not persuasive", and "you may not use that word, because you're evil if you say it. Also this word, and that word. Oh, and that word we told you to use ten years ago? That's evil now.."

At a certain point, you have to be inflammatory on principle. Because if the language police are allowed free rein, they shut down not just words, but entire topics.

That's why the red pill exists.

What's the best way to respond to a girl saying "I love you" if you don't love her back?

11 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

"I know".

"Token Resistance is Common"

11 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I am telling you that your advice for men would literally result in the eventual extermination of the human species.

The Direction of RPW.

11 upvotes · 4 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I would love /u/whisper to come comment on this if he can.

I'm still mulling over what to say. This has obviously exploded into a gossip bomb, and I do not wish to put out fire with gasoline.

However, if I were to tell the whole story, it would be very unflattering to certain specific people who are trying very hard to make themselves out to be the very image of injured innocence.

Foster family who had child for three weeks angry because real father wanted his daughter

11 upvotes · 27 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

American Indian. People of all different ethnicities are native to America.

When do you cross the line from cocky-funny to asshole?

11 upvotes · 24 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

I didn't really want to risk offending her

There's your problem.

Why do ForeverAlone men fail with women: bad luck or lack of effort?

11 upvotes · 16 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why not fuck a hooker?

Because FA men want to be loved and appreciated. They don't just want an orgasm.

Defending Boys in a "Girl Power" Age

11 upvotes · 10 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

You think people like Putin or Steve Jobs needed Kids tv to help them with their self esteem to end up where they are?

No, they don't. But are we so sure they would be household names today if everyone, including their parents, had been rubbing them when they were three years old?

Men are tough. But little boys are not. Toughness takes time and brain development to build.

What must it be like to be so weak

11 upvotes · 7 March 2016 · /r/MensRights

What you fail to understand is that weakness is strength for women.

Women aren't ashamed of weakness, because weakness is power for them. Weakness gets them sympathy, attention, an endless stream of free stuff, and the ability to use the strength of the nearest male. Why should they be ashamed of being weak?

Calling her weak is not going to make an impact, because while she will take offense (you're not 'sposed to say out loud, silly male), she won't truly be ashamed.

Leaving the room was simply her doubling down on her power strategy. She was having a fit of the vapours in order to:

- Make you ashamed of "hurting her", and retract what you said.
- Failing that, make other males silence you.
- Failing that, make a swarm of other women use the same tactic.

How you deal with women like this isn't to argue, it's to agree and amplify.

Express sympathy and suggest, in the perfect appearance of seriousness, that her husband or boyfriend should pre-approve what she reads or watches in order to prevent her from reading anything that might upset her.

Why idolize men who essentially pay for women's company? Wouldn't it make more sense to idolize men who get a lot of female attention WITHOUT being rich?

11 upvotes · 17 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Blooper chicks in 3...2...

2.5 million men 'have no close friends'; Lets Brainstorm How to Make Friends post-College

11 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

These organizations were formed when everyone either believed in the invisible wizard, or had to lie about it in every aspect of their lives.

Now, they stand out for this, because they are one of the few organizations that hasn't changed the rules. This is probably not so much them being Jesus freaks, as simply being an organization of men, for men, and thus naturally resistant to outside pressure to change the rule.

It's their ballgame, so they can do that. We wouldn't let anyone come along and tell us to change Rule Zero.

But in applying a vague litmus test like that, instead of explicitly abolishing the rule, they are selecting for people willing to lie to them (especially among younger men, who are the least religious segment of the population).

AWALT: Nigerian girl saved from Boko Haram still misses the time she had with her militant husband

11 upvotes · 6 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Women create life, men create civilization.

Men destroy life, women destroy civilization.

Should I go for a lower SMV woman if I don't have many options and I'm still a virgin?

11 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/askTRP

There is only one litmus test for sex. Penis hardness.

Can you get it up for her? If so, bang. You are a man, sperm is cheap, sex has almost zero cost for you.

Nice try

Abundance mentality is not about having lots of bitches, it's about having lots of opportunities. If you have a bad hand, fold and wait for the next deal.

11 upvotes · 22 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

[illegible]

If all you plan to do is clutch your pearls, you have two hands to do it with, and thus do not need my help.

11 upvotes · 14 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Is it that the latter is done while in possession of a vagina?

11 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The only good reason to get a PhD in CS is if, at the age of 22 when you graduate, you already have a specific topic that you have the burning desire to spend the rest of your life studying and making new discoveries in.

11 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

742 / 2955

You don't get to have a substantive discussion, but that's impossible anyway, because they never planned to have one in the first place.

Instead, you get to have fun.

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

11 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Of course you weren't. You totes wanted an answer to that question, and you had no idea which answer you were expecting.

Credit for the ability to have rational discussions isn't free. If you want it from me, you have to earn it. Thus far, not impressed.

CMV: There is a general idea on TRP that feminists are holding them back from fucking young hot women

11 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Without feminism, I can marry one woman who is worth marrying.

With feminism, I can fuck a whole lot of sluts that aren't worth marrying.

Feminism = less relationships, more pussy.

Woman Causes Accident, Puts Children In Danger, And It's All My Fault - AWALT

11 upvotes · 20 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Look, if you're bent on committing cultural suicide, find your own culture to do it in instead of trying to take me with you.

Oh, and how about some mod bans this knucklehead before he starts accusing people for "Islamophobic" or some other made up shit.

Because he wants people who don't come from shitty cultures to be too broadminded even to take their own side.

When I treated women as individuals and gave them the benefit of the doubt, I was rejected, cuckolded, and burned. But when I apply TRP and treat women with the same broad brush..I enjoy way more success. PPD please tell me why I should stop being RedPill

11 upvotes · 10 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Something tells me you are not a true Scotsman.

TRPers in exclusive relationships/LTRs: how/why did you decide to do it?

11 upvotes · 4 December 2015 · /r/askTRP

If she asks, the answer is no.

Read and learn the Bitch Management Hierarchy.

She gets promoted to LTR from plate based on how she acts, not what she asks for.

New to sub. Saw something on r/TheRedPill that concerned me.

11 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Maturity is measured through actions, not a series of rhetorical arguments.

What would you do if someone called you immature? Would you argue with them and try to convince them otherwise? Or would take actions that show maturity? Or would you just not care?

If you don't sleep, you might as well not lift.

11 upvotes · 2 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

combat vet. Insomnia and nightmares are literally killing me.

- Get your blood cortisol levels checked. When (not if) you learn that they are high, 50mg of DHEA in the morning (must be in the morning) will help drive them down.
- Hang out with other combat vets who have some idea what you're going through.
- Cry if you can. We usually give the opposite advice, but post-combat stress is serious shit, and you need to vent. Just don't let bitches see you do it, because they think it's weak. Their idea of a bad day is denting their fender in the parking lot and spilling a latte on their new shoes. They have no fucking idea, and it cannot be explained to them.
- Adopt a puppy or kitten. Studies have shown this helps a lot.
- Try to focus on and accept what's around you. Many combat vets come back with the feeling that a veil has been torn off reality, and they've seen what the universe was really like outside a nice safe bubble inhabited by trivial people. That's not quite true. Whatever you went through was reality, but so are nice safe suburban neighborhoods. Not everywhere is a shithole full of ragheads trying to kill you.

Good luck out there.

Guy is secretly loaded with cash but does not tell his gf, she leaves him then finds out from his friends that he has been hiding his wealth from her (hamestering ensues) Re-Post

11 upvotes · 13 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Precisely.

If she just wanted a house, she could have done what men who want houses do: earn, save, invest, research, and buy.

But she wanted to know that he was "ambitious" enough to buy her a house.

If feminism is about equality, why have feminists done NOTHING about the plight of the incel?

11 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Extremist.

You see, freedom is the freedom to say that two and two make four. Even if the Party wants them to make five. From that, all else must follow.

What I just said there was that men do 99.99...% of the labour that keep us all from starving or freezing to death. We all know this. Even feminists know it. They just want to avoid focusing on it wherever possible.

This is why feminism needs the cooperation of men. Feminism is, at its core, a submissive philosophy. Surprising statement? Perhaps.

But it is an act of submission to turn to someone else and say "This is unfair to me. Fix it." By doing so, you make them Daddy. You make them the authority who administers justice and takes care of you. You submit to them. And that is what feminism has done, with all it's demands for what it defines as justice. It pretends to loathe what it calls the patriarchy, but it is totally dependent upon it for everything it has achieved.

It didn't have to be that way.

- Instead of saying "You should hire X percentage of women in your company", a non-submissive feminism would have said, "we are going to start our own companies, hire women, and compete with you".
- Instead of saying "You shouldn't portray women this way in your video games and movies", a non-submissive feminism would have said "we are going to make our own games and movies, filled with the characters we wish to see".
- Instead of saying "What are you doing to get more women in STEM?", a non-submissive feminism would have said "Libraries are full of computer science books. We are going to crack them and learn to code."
- Instead of saying "You must arrest the man in any domestic dispute, regardless of the evidence", a non-submissive feminism would have said "we are going to help other women leave troubled relationships, and support themselves".
- Instead of saying "You must pass affirmative consent laws to protect me from unwanted sex", a non-submissive feminism would have said "we are going to protect ourselves from sketchy people by not getting drunk with them".
- Instead of saying "You must track down the men we used as sperm donors, with or without their consent, and take money from them to help us raise our children", a non-submissive feminism would have said "we will use birth control methods, and if we decide to be single mothers, we will foot the bill our damn selves".

Instead of saying "Where's my free pizza?", a non-submissive feminism would have said "Hmmm, let's see: Chapter one: Planting Wheat..."

You see, freedom, power, and self-determination are not things others can just give you. They are consequences of taking responsibility for your own life. If someone wants to create a feminism like that, it's not so much that they can have my blessing as that, more importantly, they will not need it. A non-submissive feminism could do anything it needed to do without my help, or any man's help. It would neither ask nor even accept anything from me.

This is why we of TRP say that all women are children. Because "You owe me this because I need it", and "You owe me this because it's fair" are the statements of a child, and anyone who says them is not an adult.

An adult says, instead, "I desire this from you. What do you want in exchange?" or "I desire this from you, and I offer that. Is this acceptable?" or even, in cases of the utmost extremity "I need this from you, and have little to offer. You owe me nothing... I merely ask for your charity, and offer my gratitude."

An adult knows that he is only owed what he has earned with his actions.

This is why I say "If feminism does not care about me, I do not care about feminism".

Caring is a bargain, you see. If you want something from me, you must bargain with me. A cat for a hat, or a hat for a cat, but nothing for nothing.

Drone hobbyist is confronted as "pedophile"... Drone hobbyist wins

11 upvotes · 2 September 2015 · /r/MensRights

If you're uncomfortable with children being filmed doing something, don't let them do that something in public.

Who are these weirdos who think watching kids play soccer is somehow so erotic that we have to stop people from doing it?

In other two or three decades, we'll be back to skirts for furniture, separate boys' and girls' schools, and maybe burkhas.

Excessive promiscuity often has a negative effect on a man's ability to commit

11 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

He's talking about behaviour prediction, you're talking about blame.

When choosing whether to blame someone, intent matters, and severity of the behaviour matters. When predicting future behaviour, only patterns matter.

This is something bloopers have such trouble understanding. It's like you simply cannot grasp the notion of a decision that is not based on a moral judgment.

Let me try to help you out by giving you an example.

If I meet a girl I like, and I learn she's in the early stages of hereditary Huntington's Disease, I'm not going to marry her. Because I know what the future would hold if I did.

Now, is there any kind of moral judgment in that? Of course not, that would be silly. Do I suddenly hate her? Of course not, how would that make any sense at all?

I am predicting the future of that choice, and it contains stuff I don't want.

That's what it would be like marrying a slut. She's going to cheat, she's going to have trouble forming healthy emotional bonds, she's going to exhibit whatever psychological illness made her a slut in the first place. Not a good choice.

Does that mean I hate sluts? No, why would I? Believe it or not, there are other attitudes besides "hate" and "want to marry".

I'm not seeing how TRP is as horrible as the feminists say...

11 upvotes · 26 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

We are a "hate movement" because anyone who dares to say otherwise is dismissed and ignored as "part of the hate movement".

The cultural Marxist machine will brook no dissent.

Why is female promiscuity shameful ?

11 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Ewww, men doing what you said you would do are sure to have lots of unpleasant sexual diseases.

Did you just call sexually adventurous and liberated women "unclean"? Why, you horrible misogynistic slut-shamer, you!

The measures of value that others put on you are not consistent, therefore, their measures are of no value to an individual.

Not everyone agrees on the exact value of Microsoft stock, therefore it's worthless.

Different people find different things useful or important.

So find someone who values sluts, and stop crying about what I have to say about them.

But what if no one cares what you think?

Then I must have done things that make me low value. Like sucking three dicks in a nightclub bathroom.

Why is female promiscuity shameful ?

11 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why should they care about how some other people value them ?

If they don't, then slut-shaming doesn't bother them. Problem solved.

It's not anger. It's not hate. It's pain.

11 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You, sir, are wasting your breath.

They do not care about male pain. Human beings are hardwired to not care about male pain.

We transform it into anger, and they care. They care because it scares them. If you transform it back into pain, they will cease caring.

No. One. Gives. A. Fuck. About. Male. Suffering. This is hardwired in. Deal with it. Find other ways for men to get what they need. Because they do not care, they cannot care, and short of genetic engineering, you will never make them care.

Men, even TRP men, love women very much.

11 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I just knew some puppy was going to come in here and yip that this was "white knight bullshit" and about how he was stronk, like bull.

Maybe he'd even try to tell me what the red pill "is".

Son, the reason we called it by a metaphor from a dumbass science fiction movie is that it was an apt picture of the transformative experience of opening your eyes and seeing what's there.

Now, you may find the idea that you're hardwired to take care of women unpalatable. That doesn't make it any less true. And of course we have to suppress that programming. That's what this shit is all about. If you'd read instead of skimming, you'd have seen that.

The way to control something is not, however, to pretend it doesn't exist. We invented another metaphor for that kind of thing.

What kind of self-improvement are you doing?

11 upvotes · 26 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I use whitespace and paragraph breaks when I write.

Are women capable of understanding or comprehending what sexual frustration feels like for a male?

11 upvotes · 24 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Except you didn't say "That's wrongheaded/inaccurate/badidea because {reasons}".

You said "can you not do that because it's {characterization}".

That's not discourse. That's just the semantic equivalent of "shut up". To which the only pertinent response is "I don't have to". See, the difference is between trying to start a conversation, and trying to stop one.

I thought the whole point of RP was to stop worshipping pussy

11 upvotes · 23 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You know, I might, at that.

If it were different people. But it's always the same group of people. And then when I watch them for a while, they seem to spend a lot of time saying it to everyone else, too.

It's like there's this weird thing, where "You are wrong, because {reasons}" is too much trouble or something, now. It's too difficult. Because you have to know something about rhetoric, you have to spend time writing and speaking, you have to be familiar with the schools of thought you are attempting to dismiss.

And this not only requires work, it doesn't fit into a sound bite. There's not enough room to write it on sign. You can't print it on a tshirt or a bumper sticker. You can't chant it at a rally.

So it's become easier to criticize the speaker. You're evil. You're a narcissist. You're a racist. You crack your eggs on the small end.

I don't have time or bandwidth for that kind of talk. It's pointless.

TRP has shattered my world and made me realise what a sexually grovelling beta I've become. Uncoordinated rant.

11 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You are not ready to be helped.

Why not? Because you claim to have read the material, yet you are still making plans to marry this woman and buy a house together. That's like buying a set of weights and never fucking lifting. All the truth in the world won't do shit for you if you don't apply it to your life.

You know the truth. You know the sex will never get better. You know she doesn't respect you. You know what your chances of getting divorced and taken to the cleaners are.

And you still plan to go through with it, because you are a fucking coward... too chickenshit to change your mind because she might yell at you. And you come in here asking me how to "alpha up" without making the actual changes you fucking know you need to make.

Well, fuck you. You don't deserve my help. Because you are too weak, too cowardly, and too lazy to take any advice I could give you. I'm not going to waste my time. You don't deserve my time.

Come back after your divorce, asshole. Maybe then you will be ready to listen.

How has society been lying to men ?

11 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

- Before "taking the pill", men stumble along following society's plan for men.
- The moment of "taking the pill" is the moment a man realizes that society's plan for men does include any provision for their happiness or personal welfare.
- After that moment, men tend to be confused. They know that they will not be healthy or happy if they continue to follow society's plan for them. But they don't know what they should do instead.
- It is at the moment that TRP is there for them. TRP is the collection of the men who have "taken the pill" before them. It provides them with guidance and advice on what to do in order to prosper and be happy.

why do redpillers shame hypergamy?

11 upvotes · 1 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're not understanding the argument.

A sex act isn't a "pump-and-dump" or "the beginning of a relationship" before it happens. It only becomes one of those two things after it happens.

A woman with no girl game is going to get pumped and dumped a lot, and have a high partner count. That's your slut. A woman with good girl game is going have a sex with a guy, and then get wifed or girlfriended up, and have a low partner count. That's your non-slut.

Women don't set out to friendzone men, but they have no control over whether a man is sexworthy or not. That's up to him.

And men don't set out to pump and dump women, but they have no control over whether a woman is relationshipworthy or not. That's up to her.

The biggest misconception about TRP that I see on here is that it's aggressive rather than defensive.

11 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

what happens when you decided to terminate the relationship? What happens when you remove the mold? The gel/liquid collapses. Your relationship with this women has defined her. Without it she has nothing left.

Are you even listening to yourself?

Who chose to define herself that way? Everyone builds his world in his own image. He has the power to choose, but no power to escape the necessity of choice. Leaving that choice to someone else is still a choice made.

Everyone, in every relationship, everywhere, that isn't actual slavery is free to stay, and free to go. That's what keeps people honest... that everyone ultimately has the right to vote with their feet.

You talk as if you regard this option as a fundamental right when a woman does it, and abuse when a man does it.

Genital mutilation? Not a big deal, provided the victim is male, of course. In that case, it's fucking hilarious! Stay classy, Reddit.

11 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/MensRights

This is the post that made me unsub from /r/mensrights

Don't let the door hit you in the ass on the way out.

There Are No Shortcuts: Thoughts on "Social Proof"

11 upvotes · 6 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

How old are you? Maybe you're young enough that the damage hasn't become visible.

Eventually, you'll tank your testosterone levels and develop a host of exciting autoimmune disorders.

There's a reason why pro athletes sleep so much.

Woman raped 14yo boy - pedophilic Guardian describes it as "starting a sexual relationship". She also brutalized children, but portrayed as victim. The crimes committed by men? Well that was "abuse" n

11 upvotes · 5 December 2014 · /r/MensRights

Thing is, sometimes it is "a sexual relationship". And sometimes it is rape.

And what we need to do isn't put all the young boys in the "sexual relationship" bucket, and all the young girls in the "rape" bucket. It's look at each case and decide which bucket it belongs in.

Yes, some people under 18 are actually capable of consenting to a sexual relationship with someone over 18. I was.

Our reaction, as a society, to women having sex with 14 year olds is a reflection of us knowing that. We know damn well that sometimes horny teenagers want nothing more than some of that Mrs. Robinson action. Because we see boys and men as sexually aggressive, we assume that's what's going on. Because we have an aversion to blanket application of arbitrary laws if it hurts a woman.

Because we see women and girls as sexually passive, and "pure" where male sexuality is "polluting", we tend to do the opposite and toss all sex between a girl under 18 and someone older in the "rape" bucket. Because if a man gets unfairly hurt by the justice system, no one cares but that man and his relatives.

Our culture is the midst of a decades-long moral panic where young people and sex are concerned, to the point where we are doing far more harm than good.

A lot of people have the common sense to say this, but it's not safe to do so, because people who do so can be targeted for character assassination, and frequently are. The subject of discussion quickly becomes "Is the speaker a bad person?" rather than "Do we agree or disagree with what he just said?". Joe McCarthy and Cotton Mather would be proud.

Made a feminist 'friend' mad.

11 upvotes · 16 November 2014 · /r/MensRights

This is true. A man has only those rights he can defend. A right that cannot be defended is not a right, but simply a privilege extended by others, which can be revoked on a whim.

The right to effective self-defense is the most fundamental right of all, for a man who cannot defend himself can defend nothing, and hence has no rights at all... because he cannot defend them.

Thus men have rights when they interact with other men, but few or none when they interact with women.

Acting CEO of Reddit, Ellen Pao - things we should be aware of.

11 upvotes · 14 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It wouldn't be hard to do. Reddit's source code is publicly available. All we would really need to do is set up some hosting.

How to Ensure you NEVER become a Beta Orbiter Again

11 upvotes · 30 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Always be closing, always be nexting.

If you don't close, next. Doesn't matter if she's a cocktease or if you messed up. Either way, if you're not getting laid, move on.

The moment you make a serious mistake, you're in the red, and you're better off starting again with someone else, and a blank slate.

Transgender (M2F) MMA Fighter Grievously Injures Female Opponent. This is Feminism's Equality at Work.

11 upvotes · 25 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If this were a sinking ship, I would bet my boots that natural born-women would receive preferential selection over M2Fs for lifeboat privileges.

Of course.

SJW's preference for women is disguised as a passion for justice, but what it really is, is their expression of the oldest, most fundamental, principle of the human condition.

Eggs are valuable. Sperm is cheap.

A group of primitive humans can replenish its number quickly if it loses a significant number of men. If it loses a lot of women, it's in trouble.

This is why humans, both male and female, have a hardwired instinctive drive to protect women over men. Women have inherent value because they can produce children. Men have only whatever value they earn.

This is why a F2M tranny can function just fine in most contexts. She gives up her inherent value, and succeeds or fails at earning value just like any man.

This is also why a M2F just can't function as a woman. He doesn't gain a woman's inherent value by taking some hormones and having his dick chopped off.

So, if this were a sinking ship, women would indeed receive a place in the lifeboats before an M2F. But an F2M would also get put with the men.

The protectiveness hierarchy is female > everyone else. M2F, F2M, male, doesn't matter.

Why Are So Many Professional Millennial Women Unable To Find Dateable Men?

11 upvotes · 30 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Because it's men who make passes at women, men who are "out of your league" become invisible to you, because they aren't in the pool of men who approach you. They appear to be very scarce, or not exist.

If you never seem to see any dateable men, then you have overestimated your value on the dating market.

Either raise it, or lower your standards.

What They Didn't Tell You About Mike Tyson's Rape Conviction

11 upvotes · 9 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

Any time a celebrity pro athlete is accused of rape, I assume he's innocent, and it's a setup for a cash grab lawsuit.

Celebrity pro athletes don't need to rape. Not every woman is into him, but there are plenty of women out there who want him to take her right then and there, up against the wall. Pro athletes get stalked by women.

He's never gonna have to force, coerce, or even ask twice. The problem these guys have with getting laid isn't opportunity, it's which of those many opportunities is a land mine.

Because starfuckers have different goals. Some want to feel special by association. Some just lust after high-status males, or physically impressive ones. Some are looking to win the wife lottery. But some of them are goldiggers.

And no matter how well-known and beloved the man, humans of both sexes will always be more sympathetic to a woman, even if she is a complete unknown. Humans are hardwired to favour women over men.

So a rape accusation will get an entire society to actively assist her in her golddigging, and get a happy warm glow of moral smugness while doing so.

The Nuances of Rationalising the Dark Triad Personality Type

11 upvotes · 8 July 2014 · /r/AlreadyRed

A selfish person is predictable. He will act in his own best interest. You can control his behaviour by incentivizing the actions you desire.

A person who acts according to some taught code of morality is unpredictable. You have no way of knowing whether self-interest or guilt will rule at any given moment, and it's not always even predictable which actions guilt will motivate.

4chan successfully pranks twitter by behaving -exactly like- feminists. Media revises history by pretending that nobody was ever fooled.

11 upvotes · 20 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

You still are debating. Except ad hominem isn't considered a valid tactic... it generates more heat than light.

Don't fall for the "busy" bullshit women throw at you. Its a scam.

11 upvotes · 23 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a woman says she is "busy", she is brushing you off. You might be able to get some traction if you treat it as a shit test, but why bother? Next her instead.

If a woman tells you what she is going to be busy with, and tries to reschedule, she's just plain busy, cut her some slack.

Okay, MGOTW, I get it now. If this is the option, I'd pass too

11 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

JB is always an engaging read.

However, while talking about the horribleness of the post-wall settler (and her inevitable cheating and divorce court sanctioned robbery), she also shows us what women could be like, by talking about loyalty, integrity, generosity, and so forth... and meaning it.

Women are not naturally self-centered, disloyal sluts. That's something that we see all around us, but it's what women have been taught to be.

What women inherently are is submissive. Followers. Conformists. What you get comes from how you raise them.

Does that distinction matter for those of us meeting adult women, and hooking up with them? No. Nature, nurture, either way it's there and must be acknowledged and dealt with. But it does matter to our understanding of civilizations and societies.

Healthy societies raise little boys and little girls to understand that they have different responsibilities, to expect that if they fulfil those responsibilities, they will earn love, respect, financial security, and a satisfying sex life. And then they deliver on those promises. That's the bargain. It must be both well-understood and faithfully fulfilled.

Our culture has failed little boys growing into young men by failing to deliver on that bargain. And it has failed little girls growing into young women by failing to teach them what that bargain is.

The term "irresponsible slut" must seem hopelessly out-of-touch and old-fashioned to most young women... a relic of the days when people had to keep their legs closed and marry young because birth control wasn't available, or wasn't reliable when it was. But the reality behind that term isn't just about partner count. A high partner count is the symptom, not the disease.

The disease is selfishness. Not just any kind of selfishness, but a special kind of selfishness that doesn't merely focus on what one wants to the exclusion of all else, but then fails to reward those who provide it.

It doesn't matter if a girl opens her legs on the first date or the tenth... if she has loyalty, integrity, generosity, empathy, warmth, concern for others, social graces, and so... that one-night stand will become a one-week-stand, and then a month, and then a year, and then a wedding and a house in the suburbs and two happy children. Men can spot a keeper.

"Nice guys" vs. "bad boys with neck tattoos" aren't a fixed dichotomy of the universe. Male behaviour is partially determined by what women reward with sex, love, and devotion. A lot of those bad boys (including a lot of us here) became footloose irresponsible players precisely because there were no good women to settle down with.

The "You're such a Nice Guy" shit test.

11 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Passing shit tests isn't about something clever. Clever is just the bonus round.

Passing is about not getting rattled. "Agree and amplify" works all the time because it shows you aren't rattled. You can pass a shit test by saying nothing, if you can show you're not rattled.

Worrying about whether you should have filled someone's water glass or not is overthinking. It's pre-rattling yourself, sitting there worrying about whether any given move is "alpha" or not.

Steps to passing shit tests, being alpha, and getting laid:

1. DGAF
2. Be obvious about NGAF.
3. Profit.

You get good enough at this, you don't even need to worry about whether you attracted this or that woman, or how your "game" was. Just DGAF, maintain your frame, control your own life, and pretty soon women will be pawing you.

Tracy Clark-Flory inadvertently reveals what feminism really is

11 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This reads like a cry for help.

"I wanted to show that average is beautiful," Lamm says in a video promoting the doll, Lammily. "Lammily promotes realistic beauty standards, because she is made according to typical human body proportions."

11 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/askTRP

"I want the fat doll!"

-- No little girl, ever.

Concise Advice From A Heterosexual Woman on Attracting Women

11 upvotes · 4 March 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You are unqualified to give advice to men on how to attract a woman.

You've never tried it. You don't even want to. You haven't done it even once. You have no experience of what works and what doesn't.

A local 27yo teacher from my area has lost his job and had his life ruined by a student who posed as an adult and solicited him for sexual pictures.

11 upvotes · 21 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Yes, that's right, folks, if you are tied up up, unconscious, and dosed with viagra, and a 16 year old girl whom you have never seen or spoken to enters the room, and climbs on your johnson, you are guilty of statutory rape.

You stay classy, American justice system.

Actually, AWALT.

11 upvotes · 11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And I have a tendency to to expect the same level of treatment I give her.

You absolutely can expect her to put in the same level of effort you do. You just can't expect her to put it in the same way you would.

Think of it this way:

When you move to a new home, you call your friends (because movers will break your stuff, or extort you). And the friends you call are both male and female. Why?

Because they do different tasks. Women pack little things in boxes, arrange things to go out to the truck, and deal with all the not-heavy-but-tedious stuff. Men lift boxes and furniture and do the not-tedious-but-hard-fucking-work parts. No one has to tell them to do this. They gravitate to these roles.

Women hate lifting heavy shit. Lifting heavy shit is a minor inconvenience for men.

Men hate doing repetitive tasks. Doing repetitive tasks is a minor inconvenience for women.

If you match your expectations of her to things that women are comfortable doing, the level of effort you can get her to put into those things can be great indeed (if you play your cards right).

Best example of Women's Lies I've ever seen in my entire life

11 upvotes · 25 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Crab bucket.

The documentary that made Scandinavians cut all funds to its gender studies institute

11 upvotes · 22 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

What it boils down to is that societies with the more accurate model of reality almost always win conflicts.

Usually this means "scientifically advanced", but scientific knowledge is only effective when your values don't prevent you from using it.

NoFap?

11 upvotes · 21 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In fact, in cases like this, people aren't being pulled away from more rewarding pursuits by masturbation, they're masturbating because of the lack of more rewarding pursuits.

No man actually prefers masturbation to sex unless either:

- He's temporarily sick or exhausted and not up to having sex right now.
- The available women are so physically or emotionally unattractive that they can't compete with things that exist only in his imagination.

See, we don't have a porn epidemic, and we don't have a masturbation epidemic. We have fat shrew epidemic and a shaming men out of learning game epidemic.

The reason feminists have a problem with porn is that it shows men that there are women who are pretty, thin, and enthusiastic about sex and men. Of course they don't want men to see that... it's like the escaped slave bringing news of freedom.

That's what they really mean by "creates unrealistic expectations". These are real women. How can they be "unrealistic"?

They mean "creates entirely realistic expectations that we cannot be bothered to meet, either because we are lazy, or because we view anything done to please men as hateful capitulation".

Love-Shy.com forums; the end result of men being raised under the feminist victim mentality

11 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The fact that he automatically assumed that he'd be one whose village was being burned, rather than one of the Vikings, is further evidence of his beta thinking habits.

Radical Feminist claims all PIV sex is Rape. Prepare to facepalm. How would you answer her?

11 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the basic redpill ideas is that people are first and foremost individuals, and, while their behaviour is often alike and can be described in generalities, people are only responsible for what they, personally, say and do.

You do not have any responsibility for what this idiot said, just because you and she both have vaginas and XX chromosomes. Neither of those things made her say what she did.

Her lack of intelligence and/or emotional stability made her say what she did.

Radical Feminist claims all PIV sex is Rape. Prepare to facepalm. How would you answer her?

11 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And when you both get sufficiently dirty, no one will be able to tell the difference between you and the pig.

It's the same reason why Richard Dawkins says biologists and geneticists shouldn't debate creationists... appearing on a public stage with an actual scientist lends a dignity to their position that it doesn't deserve.

TRP is Ironic.

11 upvotes · 25 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I wouldn't worry about it too much.

I think there are a lot of high functioning sociopaths walking around being perfectly personable functioning human beings. In fact, the term "sociopath" may simply be a social construct which pathologizes the descendants of the tribe's warriors, the people who had to hit enemies in the face with an axe, then go home and sleep without nightmares.

There's nothing "dark" about the dark triad. We just live in a society that values niceness over courage, predictability over enterprise, safety over risk.

And no one notices "sociopaths" until they do something those people think of as "sociopathic".

Reddit says: Women love to be sexually dominated

11 upvotes · 23 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Femsub BDSM is the mainstream. But most people won't admit it.

TRP: One Question, One Answer: Extrapolate.

11 upvotes · 14 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You're right, of course, but there's an even more insidious level to Argumentum Ad AMOG. It's not just "I am awesome, you should all listen to me."

It's "this isn't a real problem, because I am too awesome to have it."

Which forces everyone else to either:

- Join in the pretense that it's not real problem.
- Admit they are less awesome, and that, by implication, the problem is with them alone, and isn't a real problem that many people have.
- Call the speaker out on his irrelevant AMOGing, and risk looking like a hater who is, by implication, less awesome and therefore wrong.

If you look at this thread, it's working very well. Many people who would be ashamed to fawn on a woman can be reduced to yes-men by an implied threat to their public image. Ideas, however, operate in the forum of ideas, independent of their source. Even known successful people aren't necessarily sources of good advice.

Would anyone here take advice from Oprah or Barrack Obama? How about Arianna Huffington? Depok Chopra?

Successful people can be source of bad advice just like everyone else... because they don't necessarily KNOW what made them successful. They mistake effects of their success for causes of it (this is why there are so many rich advocates of "the power of positive thinking"). They mistake irrelevancies for core causes.

Ever noticed how impoverished people always seem to think success is about opportunity, and rich people always think success is about drive and talent? They're both not thinking clearly. They both have beliefs caused by their circumstances, not circumstances caused by their beliefs.

One of the core ideas behind the red pill is that people are different. But this suggests to anyone who isn't totally out of lunch that they are going to need different strategies in order to prosper.

27 Male Survivors Of Sexual Assault Quoting The People Who Attacked Them

11 upvotes · 25 September 2013 · /r/MensRights

Appropriate to what? To the need for a convenient excuse to ignore the fact that rape isn't a one-sex issue?

Gee, all these MRAs are bringing it up for the wrong reasons! Their motives aren't pure! I guess we can just go back to ignoring or mocking men who get raped, then. Phew, that was a close one.

Man served 4 years in jail for a sex crime he did not commit, woman to serve 60 days on weekends

11 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

People whimper about misogyny when /r/TheRedPill links to an article about women being "the most mature teenager in the house", but then what happens when one does something seriously wrong?

She gets grounded.

PZ Myers retracts rape allegation post (and this post). Tries to have one more final dig at Michael Shermer's character.

11 upvotes · 13 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

One of the fundamentals of our cultural and traditions, central to our notions of fairness, is the idea that the accused has a right to face his or her accuser.

Mods have now reduced subreddit /r/TheRedPill to a circlejerk, banning users who disagree with them

11 upvotes · 21 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

I was banned from TRP for advocating atheism, so no argument here. I was, at the time, an endorsed contributor who'd written some of the sidebar material.

While the basic idea that one needs to embrace realities, even harsh ones, is sound and essential, one cannot find out what is real without tolerating challenges to one's ideas. If you cannot defend your ideas against both reasoned argument and occasional ridicule, then either your ideas suck, or you do.

It this case, it's the latter.

What does the dating-phase sex life look like between man and woman who are both red pill, where the woman is a virgin who wants to wait until marriage?

11 upvotes · 13 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

a TRP woman

Typically, conservative christian girls

These are two different things.

The words "red pill" are a metaphor for seeing what's there. Specifically, the realities of the sexual marketplace, and how men and women relate to each other. In other words, taking the red pill means allowing reality to trump dogma in your life.

A christian girl wants to remain a virgin because of dogma that tells her it's wrong to do otherwise.

A red pill girl wants to keep her partner count low because it has better consequences for her future happiness.

Someone with red pill values knows that there is a tradeoff in any mating relationship. They know that you have to give to get. A christian girl expects to get a promise of lifelong sexual fidelity without giving so much as the opportunity to experience what he's getting into.

If she has so little concern for your point of view now, why do you think marriage will change things?

You need to read this, and this.

Saw a thread on r/theredpill, and it got me thinking about certain alpha males that are not appropriate to date. Can you give your opinion on this?

11 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

This would put me off, not because of some sexual timetable, but because you are using sex as bargaining chip, test, or medium of exchange.

A woman who isn't having sex with me because she isn't comfortable yet is normal. A woman who wants to, but is withholding to "test" me is going to rub me the wrong way.

I think you should read this.

The solution to the risk of pump-and-dump is not to be less pumpable, but to be less dumpable.

"Forced motherhood is a form of violence." What about forced fatherhood?

11 upvotes · 2 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

So "forced motherhood" is a "form of violence".

And "forced fatherhood" is "in the best interests of the child".

Riiiiiiiiiiiiiiiiight.

"Allowing yourself to believe, even for a nanosecond, that some stupid iphone is more important than YOU. Allowing yourself ...project to the girl, that ANYTHING on her phone is going to be more enjoyable and rewarding to her than the opportunity to look a real human being in the face"

11 upvotes · 24 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

He left out 1983.

In that version, it's not just about your "game" and whether it's any good. In that one, you're still nervous, but she's nervous, too, because she feels like men have value, and she's just as worried about how you feel about her as you are about making a good impression on her.

Women talking = Bullshit 90% of the Time

11 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When I was 20 years old, I had a girlfriend go through three steps:

- Lie to me and claim that she cheated (when she hadn't).
- Actually cheat.
- Actually cheat with someone I knew.

I realized years later that what she wanted was for me to fly into a rage and get possessive, because that would make her feel loved.

Games. Gotta learn to spot 'em.

Let's Not Let Boys Be Boys

11 upvotes · 17 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

The sad thing is that it took me a while to realize this was satire.

Feminists complain of being silenced by transsexual activists -- How Does It Feel?

11 upvotes · 13 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

But only if they are born female (which is a construct unless we want it not to be!).

Female on AskMen: "Where do I go to find guys to sleep with without spending a ton of money (if any)?"

11 upvotes · 12 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Not currently. But make-up, hair, weight-loss, posture, attitude (you can just tell), clothes, and making an effort to close her lips. And she can be. The fact is that it's obviously she lacks all the skills of femininity and it will take some time. All that might take her to a 7

She can't become a 7 right now with presentation.

I agree with you in principle that women's physical beauty is much more responsive to effort than most people believe, but that effort takes time.

But, the instruction manuals to boost your feminine SMV is easily accessible to women

They don't necessarily realize how important it is, though. Men get shamed a lot for having real preferences as opposed to the ones they are "supposed" to have, so they learn to make the right mouth noises, while still acting on their real preferences.

Many women then believe those self-protective lies and wonder why men don't pay them much attention.

Some men need to start being the bad guys and saying "Yes, it matters that you weigh 150 lbs instead of 120, and no, your personality won't make up for it", "No, we will not see past your acne into your soul", "No, non-obese is not the same as hot", "Yes, makeup matters", "No, your short haircut is not cute".

No one wants to be "mean" to women, but a comforting lie is bad information, a poison pill that hurts the recipient no matter how sweet it tastes and how easily it goes down.

Men need to lift heavy things and develop nice forearms, women need to cut out the soda and candy.

What I discovered after two weeks in America...

11 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I didn't ask what you prefer. I don't care.

I prefer women who make some effort to please me, instead of lying there waiting for me to get them off. And that's the question I was asking: Are these rare in Japan?

what I understand from reading the Redpill

11 upvotes · 20 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No. The red pill is not a pep talk. It's not a self-help book or some feel-good inspirational thing.

It's the act of placing accuracy ahead of desire. Of seeing the world as it is, rather than as you or anyone else would like it to be; rather than as others wish you to see it.

What you do with that insight is entirely up to you.

Removing options from a house-share. (xpost from /r/funny)

11 upvotes · 16 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

This could easily be as much discrimination as it could be lazy copying by a coder who just didn't proofread that well

Software engineer here, and no. Absolutely not. There's no good reason why this menu would display differently based on sex unless it were set up to do so, because it's invoking the same code.

It's actually more work to make it different. This was done on purpose.

Men not marrying? How deep does "the problem" go?

11 upvotes · 15 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Wow, women on online dating sites deemed 80% of the male population on the site less than average.

Well, it certainly shows they do not understand the concept of an "average".

My opinion on some of the content in /r/mensrights

11 upvotes · 20 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

You're wrong for several reasons.

First of all, most people don't believe things because reasons. Reasons are excuses. They believe things because others tell them so. Beliefs gain momentum by numbers. In other words, MR is seen as unreasonable because it's not mainstream, not as not mainstream because it's unreasonable.

Second of all, the audience of MR messages isn't feminists or even women. It's men. And the message of these facebook screenshots is "This. This. See this? You are not the only one who hates this and thinks it's unreasonable and bigoted and selfish. You don't have to put up with it. Lots of other men agree with you. Speak up and be heard."

Ultimate, the men's rights movement is for men. It is not for women. It is not for talking to women, complaining to women, or persuading women of anything. Complaining gets results for women, not for men. Men get results by withholding the value we provide until we get what we want.

We are not here to seem reasonable to women. We are here to support men in their decisions not to marry, not to give women money, not to take shit, not to tolerate demonization.

We are here for solidarity, not public relations.

Woman jailed for crying rape to cover up cheating on her husband: an example of what can happen even when a false accuser doesn't name a specific male

11 upvotes · 17 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

A false accusation of rape against a specific man is a shot fired at him.

A false accusation of rape against no specific man is a shot fired into a crowd.

Guy pulls over, opens and closes car door in general vicinity of child. EVERYBODY PANIC

11 upvotes · 9 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

The next day...

"Suspicious man questioned by police, claims seat belt was caught in door. "

Obama campaign manager Lena Dunham says about female Obama voters: "Your first time shouldn't be with just anybody. You want to do it with a great guy!"

11 upvotes · 26 October 2012 · /r/MensRights

It's the new socialist family... a woman, a child, and a government bureaucrat.

(And millions of unconsenting male taxpayers.)

/v/'s summary of the "Tropes vs. Women in Video Games" kickstarter, and all the fuzz about it.

11 upvotes · 18 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

Your logical fallacy is: Circular argument.

Kacy Wilson, 28, rapes boy. Charged with "unlawful sexual activity." Article jokes about rape.

11 upvotes · 8 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

28-year-old Kevin Wilson has been arrested for taking a 16-year-old girl's virginity and sending her pictures of his erect penis. This all went down in Kissimmee, Fla. (don't laugh), where police have charged the former Osceola High School teacher with unlawful sexual activity with minors and transmission of pornography by electronic device.

The trouble began last fall, when the school received an anonymous letter saying he was screwing around with students. He went H.A.M. on one kid in particular, calling her out of class saying she had left something behind in his room. This sounds like many a porn plot, a typical teenage girl's fantasy.

As soon as the kid stepped in the room, he rushed her into a closet and proceeded to have sex with her—during school hours. The kid wasn't so hot for teacher though, saying, "It's bad, that when I grow up and think about my first time, I have to think about Mr. Wilson."

Wilson had quit and moved to Colorado, but authorities tracked him down. He's currently being held on $85,000 bond. As inappropriate as this is, there's some high school girl out there that wishes it had been her.

MensRights, we all want the same thing. Can we cut down on the adversarial nature of left vs right discourse in this subreddit?

11 upvotes · 26 March 2012 · /r/MensRights

I identify as a socialist. I believe that our economy is set up in a way that stifles individual advancement and places far too much in the hands of those who already have much.

No. No. No no no no no.

If you wanted to ask if we can all just get along, you shouldn't have come in as an advocate for one side of the debate. You should have kept it under your hat.

A word about "safe spaces" for feminists and MRA's

11 upvotes · 29 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Once again, males are portrayed as crude, aggressive, boorish, and perpetually angry oppressors of peaceful, cooperative, easygoing, sweet, innocent women.

When you strip this comic of its characterizations, what's left?

Some MRAs came into a feminist board and expressed their opinions. And if no feminists ever came in here, that might mean something.

One of the most sexist bigoted articles I've read in awhile "There are four refuges left for men who cling to male hegemony and stereotyped masculinity. They are: the National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun culture; the military; the Christian right; and pornography."

11 upvotes · 4 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

It only serves to alienate feminists who are not bigots

Really? Both of them?

Feminists tore up their side of the social gender contract and are desperate to keep men upholding their unbroken side of that contract.

11 upvotes · 20 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

Oh, look, yet another MRA that totally misunderstands the goals and ideas of feminism. I hate to break it to you, but you'd be hard-pressed to find a feminist that would actually be upset by that.

Oh, really?

Do you speak, then, with complete knowledge of what you would feel, or expect, if you were in a burning building? Have you ever been in a burning building?

You see, words are wind. Feminists don't get to define themselves as egalitarians simply by saying so, any more than Richard Nixon gets to exonerate himself by saying "I am not a crook".

It doesn't matter who we say we are, or who we think we are inside. It is our actions that define us.

When MRAs say that feminists are not egalitarian, we are not failing to understand what they say. We are saying what we see.

Let me say it one more time, just to make it clear:

The "goals and ideas" of feminism don't matter. What matters is the actions of feminists.

Why men are in trouble (Why it's time for men to man up) - CNN.com

11 upvotes · 4 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Get off the video games five hours a day, get yourself together, get a challenging job and get married.

I see. So you think my purpose for existing in this world is to earn as much money as possible, and then give it to a woman. Would you care to explain why you expect me to exist for someone else, when no one expects her to exist for me?

I have a highly paid job, and I play a lot of video games. And would you like to know how I manage to do that? By not being married. By not living in harness. By not being a draft horse hitched to someone else's dream.

Side Effects of Patriarchy May Include PIV

11 upvotes · 1 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Women would group together and self-resource, as opposed to the present system, where men group together to steal women's resources, and then dish them out the crumbs of their own efforts, in exchange for menial and reproductive services.

Yeah, that's the interesting part.

Suppose you wanted to construct, as an experiment, a nation composed solely of women... a small one, to make it a little easier to set up.

Now, one can imagine that, given that you were able to comb the world for volunteers, one might be just be able to scrape together enough female physicians, engineers, and others with the highly specialized skills necessary to run a society.

But what about the hard work that's also required? Where would you get the female construction workers, sewage workers, garbage collectors?

Quotes like the one I reference above seem to keenly observe how much control men had over the flow of resources in ages past, but they never seem to expend much energy asking where resources came from in the first place.

I guess it would put a little bit of a damper on their argument to admit the possibility that men controlled those resources because their labour created them in the first place.

Many of the arguments about the alleged wage gap stem from the assumption that men (as a group) and women (as a group) generate equal amounts of value. There isn't really any evidence that this premise is true.

But nonetheless, the modern state in the first world does seem to have as one of its major functions the confiscation of wealth from men, and the the transfer of that wealth to women (after the grabbers themselves take their cut, of course). And this is in addition to the many social customs that encourage men to pseudo-voluntarily transfer even more of their wealth to women. This is how it is possible that the statistics tell us that men earn more money, but women spend more money, and have more money (higher net worth).

Anyway, if one were to build such a nation of women, I think one of two things would happen:

1. It would collapse.
2. It would survive, but the women would start to act "like men" in all the ways that feminists have criticized as evil while they lived in man-created and man-sustained societies. In other words, they would discover that many of things they don't like about male behaviour and culture are not arbitrary or even necessarily masculine at all, but simply the effects of the ways you need to act to build and sustain a civilization.

I suspect the second is more likely.

Should I tell her how I feel one last time?

11 upvotes · 1 August 2011 · /r/seduction

No. Never tell a woman how you feel about her. She doesn't care. She cares how you make her feel.

How do I get the creep out of me?

11 upvotes · 18 July 2011 · /r/seduction

First of all, banish the word "creepy" from your vocabulary. "Creepy" is just a word for "unattractive". If someone says you're unattractive because you're creepy, they're essentially saying you're unattractive because you're unattractive.

Not helpful.

Instead, just learn how to build attraction (using the resources here), and stop worrying about being "creepy".

wikipedia is holding a "deletion review" for Tom Ball's entry

11 upvotes · 11 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Th%C3%ADch_Qu%E1%BA%A3ng_%C4%90%E1%BB%A9c

Your husband is your number one. Always. - Sage advice from my grandmother.

10 upvotes · 2 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

+1

/u/livelylychee /u/luckylittlestar

One More Condom in the Landfill

10 upvotes · 23 January 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I just read all these men complaining about how much they hate that they can't get sex right away, and how awful that is.

<https://englishforeveryone.org/Topics/Reading-Comprehension.html>

Objectively, does red pill have real life relevance? Does it "work"?

10 upvotes · 1 December 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Exactly. Economics isn't the study of money... it's the study of choice.

NARS: The Real Epidemic

10 upvotes · 15 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

What is the point of this post? To discredit that Covid is not a real epidemic?

<https://www.k5learning.com/reading-comprehension-worksheets>

The Importance of Manliness.

10 upvotes · 7 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

If you answer to many form questions you end up living in a box.

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/1654>

I am a 26F and I am socially awkward around people of the opposite sex.

10 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

And so, having followed your mother's advice so far, you ended up being "socially awkward around the opposite sex" at the age of 26.

All things considered, is that advice working out for you?

I am a 26F and I am socially awkward around people of the opposite sex.

10 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I didn't want him to think I am flirting with him.

Why not?

You were interested in him as a man, otherwise you wouldn't be asking this question here. Sounds like flirting with him was the appropriate move.

Someone being a "strong and independent woman" is a major red flag for most man

10 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

When someone is called "strong and independent", "nice", or "alpha" by someone else, it is moderately likely to be true. When someone calls himself that, it is somewhat less likely to be true.

One of the most hypocrite things I've ever seen

10 upvotes · 14 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

just get a prenup

... because family courts love a good laugh, and could always use some spare toilet paper.

How to be Lovely: A Guide to Attracting a Wonderful Man

10 upvotes · 22 July 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

A woman attracts a man. You never make the first move. Men want to hunt. Let him chase you!

What gives you this idea?

Remember- Reddit Admin Tacitly Endorsed Male Abuse and Denies its Victims - Then tried to secretly recant without apologizing.

10 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

If you wonder why your world is a wasteland, with every normal function — jobs, government, art, culture, family and friends — perverted into a replica of the larger control structure, this is why. The West is a ruin because it is existential misery with excellent shopping. The soulless person says, “Hotdogs only 5 dollars! I love this country, such a bargain!” and then goes through life ignoring crises, and rationalizing the loss of time and autonomy as necessary for the highest value, which is then justified as being the shopping itself.

Precisely.

Capitalism, or more precisely the free market, needs to be understood as an economic system, not a culture or an identity. It gives you more of what you want (which it understands only by looking at what you buy), but it is entirely up to you to determine what you want.

In other words, capitalism doesn't give you a psychologically healthy society. Instead, it gives you the society that the majority of people around you deserve... healthy, happy, and life-promoting if and only if they themselves are strong, healthy, and wise. Otherwise, it just feeds your addictions and helps you destroy yourself.

All of the alternatives to the free market (communism, fascism, theocracy, etc) are, of course, worse... because, unlike the free market, they do not merely reflect people's mental illness, they actively create it.

The moral of this story is that there is no structure that will systematically unfuck broken people. Instead, they must unfuck themselves, and then whatever relationships or interactions they have will tend to become healthy.

The only way to stop Leftism is to recognize it for what it is: tyranny by the unimportant, miserable, unhappy, neurotic and obsessive. In other words, those who are not the productive contributors and creators in a civilization have become a growth within it that hopes to take over. The rest oppress the best, which causes the best to drop out or leave, and renders that civilization into a wasteland of incompetence and solipsism.

Precisely.

The idea that "society must level the playing field", inherently means that society must reward failure. And what you reward, you incentivize.

It is not by coincidence that we now literally see people competing to create the most convincing appearance of victimhood. What else can we expect when that appearance is rewarded, not only with cash and prizes, but with what is arguably the most valuable currency of all... the positive attention of other human beings?

+1

And of course, dumbass bitches neglect to notice that a queen is the piece most often taken first in chess, and if you lose your king, you fucking lose. Of course, FDS is stupid enough to not understand that, and chess is not about female empowerment. It's a fucking board game.

10 upvotes · 21 May 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

Ever notice that Female Dating Strategy doesn't contain any actual strategy?

No tactics, no advice, no techniques for self-improvement. Just declarations of how wonderful they are, and little memes design to salve their wounded egos.

Let's talk about arranged marriages

10 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Arranged marriages work much better in cultures where gender roles, and the responsibilities of a husband and a wife, are much more clear.

If being a good partner is a matter of doing what you're supposed to do, and you know what you're supposed to do, then "compatibility" (the shibboleth of the modern west's take on relationships) isn't as important a thing as you might think.

However, when expectations are not clear, people tend to need to spend years randomly bouncing off other people, trying to find one whose default behaviour fulfills their wants.

Girl I like just told me she wants to pursue another guy. How do I steal her back?

10 upvotes · 19 May 2021 · /r/askTRP

It's not simply oneitis.

It's simply oneitis.

The argument isn't about "Nice Guys", the argument is about whether or not decent men are getting laid.

10 upvotes · 10 May 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're surprised by the fact that women lie a lot? Really?

I(20f) often feel down about not having a boyfriend

10 upvotes · 28 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't think trying to make a giant list in one reddit comment is a good idea.

Instead, let's try to narrow the focus to what you are doing in your life. That's a topic we actually have a prayer of covering.

Here's what we know:

1. You don't have a boyfriend.
2. You want one.
3. You are trying to make yourself appealing to men, but so far still #2.
4. There exist other 20 year old girls who wanted boyfriends, tried to make themselves appealing to men, and got boyfriends.

So the task here is to identify the difference between what they did, and what you did.

And then to identify what mistaken beliefs you have that led to those mistaken actions, so we can correct them.

So, what are doing, right now, to try to meet men and be appealing to them?

Feminist who say these kinds of things act like there's not grown women with those features

10 upvotes · 27 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

.

Die in Comfort, or Live in Challenge

10 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah. I am getting sick and tired of these idiots who think that the motivation is the message, and that because progress occurs outside the comfort zone, therefore discomfort is progress.

Anyone who thinks that can just go sit in a chair and stab themselves in the thigh with a dinner fork until they magically become wealthy, strong, healthy, attractive, and successful. Or until they realize it doesn't work that way at all.

This narrative of pushing on through pain makes me deeply suspicious when I hear it... it makes me think I am talking to a tradcon Naughty Boy Who Needs a Spanking From Mommy. Or possibly Jesus.

Back in the real world, pain is a message from your body that says "don't do that", and the real winners are not those with the most willpower, but those with the best information.

Sure, the direction is often a direction of SOME discomfort, but it doesn't work the other way... the direction of greatest discomfort is never the direction of success.

Which girl is better prospect

10 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/askTRP

Why not both?

Effortlessness - Should I make it sound completely like I've never touched a gym etc?

10 upvotes · 8 February 2021 · /r/askTRP

you look a lot bigger have you been working out?

"Yeah."

Then change the subject.

Slutty women are happier than restricted women

10 upvotes · 14 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why do you care what other girls do?

Women's filtering methods are far more effective at eliminating HVM than LVM

10 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm looking for a chill girl

What does this even mean? Are there men out there who are looking for an uptight neurotic bitch?

Or is this the male equivalent of girls who write "I like to have fun" ?

(i.e. "I am trying to think of things to say because there is nothing interesting or unique about me.")

Dafuq this supposed to mean sometimes, I just can't comprehend the other side

10 upvotes · 9 January 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

That's how they talk, but it helps to understand what that group is actually for.

It's not for strategy, and its goal isn't success. It's for emotional support, and its goal is comfort.

Women who have been unlucky in love (and who have very often created their own bad luck) don't just want to do better later, they also want to feel better right now.

Doing better involves blaming yourself, and finding the things you can improve about yourself to get different results.

But blaming men, and reassuring themselves and each other that men who disappoint them are "low-value", and that they can get "high-value" without having to "settle"... it soothes their immediate emotional pain.

What should be common knowledge (when diving into a ltr/engagement/marriage)

10 upvotes · 7 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

some of you are SO FUCKING PRONE TO LEAVE TO EVERY LITTLE SHIT.

What exactly do you mean, "some of us"? Who is this group you think you are addressing?

man up

Okay, here's what you can do with this.

1. Pack that it up, using whatever foam, bubblewrap, or tape you find necessary.
2. Take it on down the road.

TRP wasn't created to be yet another social structure that defines masculinity in terms of responsibilities.

First world European-derived western cultures define men in terms of what it demands from them, and women in terms of what it can do for them.

Traditional parts of it may feign respect for men, but only because it finds them to be a useful tool.

We don't do that here. Here, men are an end, not a means.

We don't tell men to give up power, to their own detriment. Making a target or a victim of yourself is not "manning up". Signing a contract you don't get to read is not "manning up". Because a man is a person, not a tool.

This is not up for discussion. Is that crystal clear, or do you need to leave?

"FDS has ruined my life" finally a confession. But still don't want to abandon this crazy ideology.

10 upvotes · 26 December 2020 · /r/AntiFeminists

It's almost like someone looked at /r/TheRedPill, didn't really understand what was going on, and said "I can do that, too".

Getting Laid a Lot Requires You to be "Creepy"

10 upvotes · 17 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If you never go too far, then you are almost always not going far enough.

+1 /u/TheRedPike

Want to be married but my case feels hopeless

10 upvotes · 30 November 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

Okay, so there's a lot you don't understand about men, which is probably how you ended having children with different fathers.

Just like you men want to be in relationships where their daily experience of that relationship is pleasant. But you cannot provide that unless you understand what men in general, and one man in particular, finds pleasant and fulfilling.

Sex isn't enough. Advertising your qualities as a relationship partner by saying you are willing to provide sex is like advertising a car by saying it has four wheels. Saying you provide sex without nagging is like saying it has four wheels and the engine works.

If all I wanted from women was sex without nagging or seduction, I wouldn't get in a relationship. I would be paying prostitutes to have sex with me and go away afterwards. If your only competitive advantage over a whore is that you are less expensive, that's not going to get you very far. And if you come packaged with two kids that aren't his, you don't even have that advantage. Kids require time, effort, and money.

Your desire to break the cycle of mental illness and raise your children in a stable, loving home environment is laudable, and probably the best possible goal you could have. But a man is only going to want to take that journey with you if it provides for his goals as well. And if you think that men's only goals are "sex", and "no nagging", then you are essentially assuming that men are primitive ape-creatures with no ambitions, dreams, desires, or complex thoughts. And while this is sometimes jokingly asserted by comedians, it's just a joke. It's not true.

Men's emotional wants and needs are no less complex than yours, which is why I am not going to try to tell you what they are in a reddit comment. But what you need to do is realize that they exist, and set out to learn them.

Hanging out here is not a terrible start, but it's not enough, because RPW is composed of women who CARE what men want, and WANT to be good partners... not necessarily women who already KNOW what men want and ARE good partners.

So you're also going to have to start learning to listen to men and understand them, as well as how to spot and learn from women who actually do understand and appreciate men. I recommend reading /u/fleetingwish's entire posting and comment history.

LTR hasn't wanted to have sex for weeks. Trying to apply dread, but not sure it's working.

10 upvotes · 20 November 2020 · /r/askTRP

The answer here lies in biology, not psychology. A woman who loses attraction for you in particular will not be up front and honest with you.

This is a woman who has lost her sex drive for health or biological reasons. That means dread isn't going to work.

Have her go off the birth control. If that doesn't help, she'll need to bloodwork to figure out what's wrong.

Whether you stick with her while that gets figured out, replace her, or keep her around but fuck other women, is up to you.

Gf said she will propose today.

10 upvotes · 30 October 2020 · /r/askTRP

You handled this well. Gentle but firm.

It's now up to her to decide which is more important to her: being with you, or having a wedding ring.

What is reasonable to expect from your man in a disagreement?

10 upvotes · 22 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

You haven't told us anything other than "I feel hurt".

This guy is not able to read your mind, so he can't be held responsible for knowing exactly what to say that is going to make you happy all the time. If that is your standard for relationship harmony, you are going to wind up alone.

However, you both need to be able to disagree and discuss your disagreements without it resulting in lasting resentment.

I advise you to bring him your problem, not your solution. If your problem is that you don't feel heard, don't tell him that he's wrong, and try to argue the facts when the problem lies in your feelings. Instead, tell the truth... that you don't feel heard.

Then, leave it up to him how he's going to handle that, and just watch what he does. If he is able to deal with that in a way that fixes your real concerns, without compromising his, then he might just be a good leader. If he can't pivot like that, maybe not so much.

Is this sub reddit filled with trolls?!

10 upvotes · 7 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

No, I haven't. And I wonder why anyone would.

We don't think about them much at all. They think about us all the time.

What does that tell you?

What a whole year of TRP does to you – how I slept with my first MILF

10 upvotes · 12 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude, I saw this in my inbox and genuinely had a sinking feeling in my stomach before I saw it was you.

I can't spot sarcasm anymore. Because people will seriously say shit like that.

Synthetic Masculinity

10 upvotes · 4 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

For years the masculinity sphere has preached about mindset being the number one thing. Frame. Frame is what it's all about. You absolutely cannot be neurotic and paranoid and also be a stable, sturdy, rock-like man.

For new guys, this takes on a bit of this sort of tone.

You can't wait for confidence to magically happen. You have to sack up and do something. Just pretend you're not nervous and do it anyway.

You don't change your behaviour by changing your mindset. You change your mindset by changing your behaviour.

Why would a wife of football superstar cheat on him?

10 upvotes · 1 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

He has money, abs, fame, power & bright future ahead of him. Logic says, he is at his peak SMV.

SMV is insufficient without game.

And Chad has indifference game, which is good for picking up chicks, but when you are in a relationship, you need control game.

Chad has no control game.

The Problem of Marriage

10 upvotes · 22 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP is not for tourists. You have a right to express your opinion, but not on the platform I made for another purpose.

You're either:

1. Here to help men gain control over their sex lives.
2. Here to get that help.
3. Gone.

Welcome to option #3.

Men are losing jobs, women most affected

10 upvotes · 27 April 2020 · /r/MensRights

This is why you don't get married in the first place.

LTR won't send nudes because it's not exciting anymore

10 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Never compliment on woman on something she didn't actively do. Focus most on the things she did at your command.

Don't neg a woman who just got naked for you unless she's super hot and has everyone telling her so (models, etc)... she'll be feeling insecure enough already.

So if you don't compliment or neg, what do you do? Here, there's a crossroads... you have two choices depending on your judgement of the lay of the land. You can either establish sexual intent ("I'll tear that off you later."), or play it cool, implying that receiving nudes is a regular occurrence for you ("Acceptable.").

The first is more sexually aggressive, but risks coming off as a compliment. The second is the reverse.

The decision has to be based on what your estimation of her estimation of you. If she thinks you might be either an alpha mate, or a beta source of attention/flattery, play it cool and withhold the attention. If she already thinks you're better than her and wants to attract you, throw in some sexual interest.

Remember that you want to keep a woman's self-image in the sweet spot, not too high, not too low. If she feels inferior and awkward and is hoping she has a shot with you, let her know that Daddy Likes. If she thinks she's hot, and has a bunch of orbiters, be hard to impress.

Do people actually see the red pill as an ideology?

10 upvotes · 7 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's okay, I understand. I was young once, too.

What you're doing here is taking the very correct observation that words can be weaponized, that he who controls language controls how plebs think (because he controls the lego blocks they build their thoughts with), and you bundle that with the assumption that words have absolute meaning which exists independently of those who use them.

Words are defined by consensus. This is why it is immaterial whether we call Red Pill an "ideology" or not, because the word means different things to different people, and if the dictionary agrees with you, or with me, it just means that someone who happens to own a printing press thinks like we do.

So instead of a fruitless semantic argument, I elect to address the question of whether TRP actively seeks to change society or humanity. Just as I tell people that their actions define them, so do TRP's actions define it.

And my answer is, no, we are not the "save society" movement. And if you wish to launch a "save society" movement, be my guest. I'll be over here with the popcorn.

But why are you after such a thing? Well, here you give us an answer:

The bourgeois are self centered and are incapable of totalizing according to Henry Lefebvre. This is plainly evident here. Next the Red Pills opposition to divorce laws, title 9 and alimony put it firmly in the political camp.

... you're confusing desire with agenda. Every single human being with a functioning brain wants a great many things. Wants are limited only by our imagination. However, humans tend to invest their actual effort where they believe it will bear the most fruit.

Young and/or idealistic people tend to think in terms of absolutes and universals. They want to fix the universe, for whatever their definition of "fix" might be... and they tend to end up diving on a metaphorical (or literal) grenade for the sake of "society", or if they survive that self-destructive impulse, they tend to end up as slightly older idealists who urge young ones to do the grenade-diving for them (e.g. Jordan Peterson).

What they tend to be blind to, whether because their IQ is only one or two standard deviations above the mean, or because their intellect is in service to their desire to rationalize... is that society is an emergent property. It is a result of the collective behaviour of those in it, and it cannot be directly steered any more than an ant colony or a forest or the Lesser Magellanic Cloud.

They ascribe purpose and intent to the trends of history, and thus they believe not only that they can alter history with their purpose and intent (maybe), but that they can do it in the precise way that they intended, according to their purpose (probably not).

In short, they subscribe the Conspiracy Theory of History, while I subscribe the to Fuckup Theory of History. Why? Hanlon's Razor. Public figures and so-called elites, when we have an opportunity to examine their actions closely, are revealed to be just as much a troupe of incompetent clowns as your average Saturday night club crowd. They couldn't conspire their way out of a paper bag... they just act stupid, and their stupidity is both the effect and the cause of similar stupidity in others.

Drag them down and a fresh set of morons will replace them. Usually draw from the morons that pulled them down.

The belief that we must fight to save society is part and parcel with the Conspiracy Theory of History... with the belief that trends in recent history which the speaker dislikes are part of a shadowy collusion on the part of nebulously defined foes to screw everyone, but most especially them. This is, of course, paranoid... in the sense that, at its core, paranoia is an ego-preserving coping mechanism. The belief that powerful people are out to get you is the belief that you are important, and the belief that your misfortunes are the result of their plotting is the belief that the universe is an orderly place, easily understood, where single effect follows single cause in a Newtonian dance back to the very beginning of time.

You are a passive nihilists hedonist

Yep.

and you want to keep ejaculating into whores until the very end

Among other things.

Anyone asserting that words have meaning threatens your worldview a worldview where life is meaningless.

"Meaning of life" is a phrase so hackneyed that people, even thoughtful ones, tend to let it spill from their lips or keyboard without ever really taking the time to examine the words literally.

Of course life doesn't have a meaning. How could it? Symbols have meaning. Because they represent other things that are not symbols. Well, life is not a symbol. It is the thing itself. How could it possibly have a meaning?

Of course, what people really mean by that phrase is "what is the purpose of life?". But the answer to that is obvious as well: "Pick one." Tools are designed for a purpose... but we're not tools, and more to the point, we're not designed. We're here by accident. So we get to pick.

You, for instance, like tilting at windmills. Well, have fun. I hope they catapult you up to the stars rather than down to the mud.

But I'm not keen to help you recruit young bros to join you (or be sent by you) in a Petersonesque rush to dive on some grenade or other. Because they get to chose, too. And other thing I have chosen, solely because I like it, is helping them to have the freedom, the power, and options to chose what life's purpose is for them.

You might like collectivist ethnic neofascism, with or without a dash of Marx and Engels (or God and Angels). Cool. That's your jam. Me, I like freedom... even if it's the freedom of retards to be retards, and get hoist by their own petard.

Will i find a girl like this again or is it very rare?

10 upvotes · 4 January 2020 · /r/askTRP

Aw, you're so cute. I just wanna pinch your little cheeks.

Now go corrupt a Mormon girl.

Women are just as horny as men. It's just that women don't show this to low value men.

10 upvotes · 21 November 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's difficult getting at women's real sex drive for the same reason it's difficult getting at men's real desire for relationships.

In each case, they can derive real joy from it, but they must pretend to a certain indifference in order to "gatekeep" out unworthy members of the opposite sex. Women who don't do this are sluts, men who don't do this are orbiters.

How many of you stopped believing in love?

10 upvotes · 4 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Love exists, it just doesn't work the way they told you.

You can have it, but you have to stop believing what they told you.

About to leave my husband for the new man

10 upvotes · 17 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

He isn't cheating. You are.

Monogamy is an agreement between two people. He is neither one of those people. You broke your vows with him. He didn't break any vows, because he didn't make any.

The point is not whether he is trustworthy, but whether you are.

And to figure that out, you need to understand that this situation didn't just fall on you out of the sky. You fucked up. And you also need to understand when and how you fucked up.

See, you didn't fuck up by falling for some other guy. That's just female nature, and it's not a fuckup because all women are like that, and it is silly to blame a woman for being like every other woman. Any woman can fall for another man if she is married to someone she doesn't love.

No, you fucked up eight years ago when you defrauded the man you married. You told him you loved him, and you didn't. You feigned commitment to him you didn't feel.

This is just the fallout from that fuckup.

Men are romantics pretending to be pragmatists, and women are pragmatists pretending to be romantics. But to find happiness, men must overcome their romanticism and become pragmatic, and women must overcome their pragmatism and become romantic.

Let's "Steel-Man" Both Positions

10 upvotes · 7 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Marriage 2.0 is just one example of what happens when the female submissive instinct is suppressed, but the male protective instinct is not. There are others.

One can think of this a little like a game of "prisoners' dilemma", played on the level of entire societies.

The general welfare of all players in the sexual marketplace is best promoted if men are protective of women and women are submissive to men. But the welfare of any individual player can be greatly enhanced if he or she suppresses that instinct unilaterally and quickly... so long as he or she is the only one to do so. If everyone starts doing it, then the benefits of it go away... but everyone is also forced to keep doing it even without the benefits, because being the first one to stop suppressing just gets you hosed even worse.

TRP/RPW style long-term relationships actually involve forging a separate peace with a single member of the opposite sex, in the midst of an arms race where everyone else is spiraling down into lex talionis.

However, this is difficult from both sides.

For men, it is difficult to find someone who is self-aware and feminine enough to even be teachable for such an arrangement, since the process whereby female instincts are suppressed is much more advanced in our culture, and consequently women are much more damaged and distorted than men.

For women, inspiring male protectiveness requires what feels like an incredible leap of faith, which they have to take unilaterally and first, because men have lost whatever inclination they once had to trust (arguably for good reason). And this is being required of the sex that is evolved to be cautious and risk-averse.

TRP isn't intended to save society or the sexual marketplace. The sexual marketplace cannot be saved, because the male protective instinct is the very thing being used to destroy it. (When you are dying of cancer, antibiotics don't help.) It is instead intended to help individuals survive the apocalypse, and the subsequent wasteland full of cannibal mutants and really cool spike-covered dune buggies. Is it better for them? Worse? Hard to say... some people are warlords at heart and can only truly achieve their potential when the world is overrun by giant radioactive cockroaches and there's nowhere you can get a decent boba tea. Others would really rather exist in a Norman Rockwell painting.

Doesn't matter. The wasteland is coming, whether we like it or not, whether it's good for us or not. The sexual marketplace is just going to keep getting more and more cutthroat, until and unless it brings about economic collapse, at which point women would suddenly discover that they really like long dresses, and babies, and baking cookies, and most importantly not freezing or starving to death, or having to pick up a gun or shovel herself.

But I don't that happening soon. For the remainder of my life, and probably yours, things will just continue to fall apart, the center will hold less and less, and the rude beast will continue slouching toward Bethlehem to be born.

Should I keep eye contact with a girl if she "catches" me starting at her?

10 upvotes · 20 July 2019 · /r/askTRP

Yes.

"The Believers" vs. The Empiricists

10 upvotes · 5 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, pretty much. This is basically the difference between beliefs and values. Beliefs are what you think is true. Values are what you think is important.

People with different beliefs can have productive discussions. People with different values cannot, because they can't even agree on what to argue about.

Man why the fuck i cant cum?!?!?

10 upvotes · 25 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Shut up until you have something intelligent to say.

Is there ever a reason a girl would leave you due to insecurity?

10 upvotes · 14 May 2019 · /r/askTRP

Absolutely yes. This is chapter and verse from the Bitch Management Guide by the great /u/humansockpuppet.

Bitches must be kept from having a self-esteem so high that they don't respect you... but also from having a self-esteem so low that they feel they have no chance with you.

The more I ascend in power, the more I find myself having to boost instead of neg. You will most likely see the same.

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

10 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Not psychology. Psychology is simply a form of junk science that eventually serves as a cart horse for every crank political theory out there.

When you examine the spread of an idea or fad, you have to ask two questions; where did the idea come from, and what were the factors that allowed the idea to take root and spread.

The first is simple: Feminism is the application of Marxism-Leninism to the family unit. This can be hard to understand until you realize that both feminism and Marxism must be understood via observation, not via what they say about themselves. Then the commonality of form and function can be seen.

The second has a great many more factors involved.

How to handle MLTR logistics when you are a (semi) public figure?

10 upvotes · 17 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

My personal take on this is that, if you have multiple women, make sure they know they're not the only one. Then the response to any accidental encounter becomes simple: "You knew the job was dangerous when you took it, babe."

Why?

Because a girl will forgive you ten times for being evil, before she forgives you once for being weak.

And hiding other girls is a show of weakness... the only possible reason for doing it is fear of what they might say or do. Right from the get-go, it's gotta be your way or the doorway. That'll get you rejected more, of course, but who gives a shit? More girls will be along shortly.

Q4M: Are any of the users here 8/10 or higher (very attractive) ? If so, what is your sex life like?

10 upvotes · 5 April 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

If you are a physically attractive woman, men want to give you things and do stuff for you.

If you are a physically attractive man, women want you to do things for them, and give them stuff.

Being good-looking got me a lot of attention, and a lot of temper tantrums out of the blue, but didn't help the conversion rate all that much until I learned game.

Always Be Sure to Tie a Live Duck to Your Right Ankle.

10 upvotes · 29 March 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

The problem is with "common sense" is that half of it isn't common, and the other half isn't sense.

Women have it especially tough in this regard (and I'm not being at all sarcastic here), because everyone sets being nice to you at a much higher priority than telling you the truth. Which means that you spend most of your lives surrounded by a perfect storm of misinformation and outright bullshit, generated both by dudes who want to get into your pants, and by just people who don't want to look like big meanies.

So woman end up thinking horseshit like "men enjoy the chase", and "if I am sexually enthusiastic he'll think I'm a slut", and "confidence is sexy".

It's super easy to mistake nonsense for common sense if everyone is saying it.

The amount of misinformation about how to attract men and keep them interested is vastly greater than the amount of good information... and even here, that's true, because new people come in already infected with that misinformation, and they repeat it here.

Most of what I spend my time here doing is pushing back against myths. I seldom have time to get to talking about good practices.

Ex-boyfriend of girl I am seeing vandalized her room when she was spending the weekend at my place.

10 upvotes · 25 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

What should I suggest or do to help this girl?

Why would you help her? What is she to you that you should be her unpaid bodyguard, or lawyer? Plates are for fucking. If they have problems in their lives, they can put on their big girl panties and deal.

Don't protect a girl unless she's earned LTR status.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

10 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/asbiko/shit_test_wife_suggested_i_go_elsewhere_for/egtfowm/

LTR to study abroad in Europe this summer. Advice?

10 upvotes · 18 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

If you're going to shit test someone, put on a cute little skirt first.

Why are women obsessed with Horoscopes and Zodiac Signs?

10 upvotes · 17 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

Children like make-believe.

Why should women reject the “princess mentality”?

10 upvotes · 16 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Why should a woman add value when she can be a “princess”?

Because spoiled princess types have high-conflict relationships and are unhappy.

The "All your other girls" shit test

10 upvotes · 15 February 2019 · /r/askTRP

"I bet you say that to all your girls"

"Yep."

"If you want custom lines, they cost extra."

"Nah, I like to vary them randomly."

(Pretend to count on fingers) "Yeah, most of them."

"Jennifer Lopez said men are 'useless' before 33 — and she's actually not wrong"

10 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't aspire to be "useful" to Jennifer Lopez (whoever that might be).

I want to be useful to me.

6”2 roided chad called me nigger behind my back don’t think he would have a problem doing it again either. What to do in future if it happens again?

10 upvotes · 27 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

Hmmmm.

I have an answer for this. But it's so generally useful I'm going to make it into an article.

Be patient, and wait a day or three.

I don't have interest in the majority of girls. Is it a problem?

10 upvotes · 23 January 2019 · /r/askTRP

You're new around here, aren't you?

People don't get what they deserve. They get what they get.

Is it possible to be a RPW and not want a RP (or any) relationship? Long post, tldr included!

10 upvotes · 9 January 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

...

Being too obliging and "surrendered" too early?

10 upvotes · 13 November 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Pretty much every single one of the mods and ECs are in stable LTRs (marriage or LTR for so long it might as well be) with men they slept with very quickly, much more quickly than it is "politically correct" around here to advise.

This is because high-SMV men, guys with "game", are by definition able to get to sex quickly.

RPW readers saying they will "make" a man wait months, or "make" him commit to her first, is just as much empty bravado and stupid chest-beating boastfulness as TRP readers claiming they will never say "I love you" to a woman again at all, ever. It all makes you sound very impressive and high-SMV and in control, and it all gets thrown out the window the moment someone comes along who you really really like.

Both groups of novices need to focus less on "what is my cunning plan to get what I want from this {guy/girl}?" and more upon "How am I going to transform myself into someone the opposite falls for... hard?"

That way, when the Object of Ultimate Desire comes along, you are the right person, not just some sperg with a bunch of {pickup lines/sex teasing tactics} that you think are the key to getting what you want without having to undergo any of that nasty, time-consuming, and painful self-awareness, transformation, or growth.

I gave an unlikely match a chance

10 upvotes · 31 October 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

There's a reason they say all the good ones are taken. It's because they are... by women who are able to put aside their desire for a gorgeous social media prop and get to know an actual person.

+1

/u/pearlsandstilettos

How to act if she denies me a kiss?

10 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/askTRP

Judge if it's disinterest or ASD.

Always isolate before kissing, unless actually is a slut.

Three academics just proved the nonsense of Gender Studies that led to our quarantine

10 upvotes · 3 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

Men will be men?

10 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

However, I think men in a relationship should be given the freedom to be who they are as individuals

You do not "give" men freedom. It already belongs to them.

You simply choose whether to accept that, or pick a fight with them by trying to take it away.

Men will be men?

10 upvotes · 15 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

What men talk about with their male friends is none of your business.

Is your bf more popular and accomplished than you?

10 upvotes · 11 September 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I'm focusing on the second one here.

What I'm seeing is that she doesn't know what she wants to improve, because she doesn't know what makes her valuable. I think that comparing herself to him is a sort of transference from an actual, possibly subconscious, concern about "what do I bring to the table?", "why does he even want me?", etc.

It's a question I've heard a lot.

Women want their men to someone they can see as superior to them. In fact, they demand it. If they can't, the passion in the relationship dies.

But a failure to understand what value you provide not only causes anxiety and fear of abandonment (as well as "low self-esteem"), it also prevents you from focusing on and refining the qualities that are attractive about you. How could it do otherwise, if you don't know what they are?

So, instead of asking the question "What do you want to improve?", I might take a slightly different angle:

"What does he like about you?"

"What is it that really seems to make him happy when you do it?"

"What needs of his do you think that addresses?"

When you understand what constitutes femininity, and how and why men like it, then you understand not only why they like you, but how to make them like you, and how to do things in your relationship that feel worthwhile.

Seeking harsh truth about a girl

10 upvotes · 21 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

If you are promiscuous, you can't stop her from being promiscuous.

That's where you're wrong, pal.

Favorite plate broke down crying after sex

10 upvotes · 4 August 2018 · /r/askTRP

What should I do with her now?

Same as before.

You are not the emotional support guy, you are the sex guy.

A Beginners Guide To Using Steroids Safely

10 upvotes · 21 June 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

So, in other words, you have no idea what you are talking about, but you just thought you'd share your vague sense of uncertainty and trepidation with the world.

TRP is not a democracy. Your ignorance is not of equal value with someone else's domain-specific knowledge, or personal experience.

15M I am Scared of girls.

10 upvotes · 3 June 2018 · /r/askTRP

Act like you are not afraid.

Just white-knuckle your way through it. The fear will never go away until you push back against it.

Badly alpha widowed. What can I do?

10 upvotes · 29 May 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

And stop fishing for sympathy.

It's up to you to find some way to be passionate about a man you can get with.

Indifference and Control: Why You Don't Wanna Be Chad

10 upvotes · 21 April 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you have a wife or LTR?

Folks around here who have their noses to the wind know my LTR status.

Does it bring you more happiness than when you were spinning plates?

Yes, but what do you mean, "were"?

Seems like its a good idea to spin plates for a time when your young or just learning trp, but successful men who have already finished that phase seem to want that 1 good woman can you compromise on marriage?

It's a matter of individual preference. Some guys never want to sleep with the same woman twice. Others can't get it up for any woman they haven't known for a couple of weeks at least.

10 upvotes · 24 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

The male perspective on this would be that marriage keeps your options open, but not his.

While it is directly beneficial to you to get this sort of deal if you can, one cannot simply proceed on the assumption that men are totally stupid.

While many men are still willing to get married, more and more are becoming more and more reluctant over time. So when you say to a man

I can't compromise

... then a certain percentage of men are going to ask themselves why they would want to give a unilateral guarantee of security to someone who just isn't into that whole "compromising" thing.

Marriage is a dying institution. And while it's certainly smart for a woman to jump on that train if she can before it leaves the station, RPW isn't just about you. It's about what advice we give to younger women who are looking to secure relationships.

"Insist on marriage" isn't girl game, in the same way that "insist on blowjobs on demand" isn't male game. Both of these are goals, things you might be able to get if your game is good enough to motivate it... not things that you get stuff by doing.

Ultimately, the only leverage a woman (or a man) has in a relationship is the ability to walk away. Saying "I will walk away unless you give up your ability to walk away" is only something you can do if you establish yourself as irreplaceable, and him as not irreplaceable.

Submissive Behaviour as Strategy

10 upvotes · 1 March 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I don't want to see the world burn.

Neither do I, but being objective means accepting that "what I want" and "what I think will happen" can be two very different things. The universe doesn't really care what we want.

The most important underpinning of my thoughts on this was the realization that feminism didn't kill marriage, technology did. That's a game-changer, because feminism might be reversible, but technology certainly isn't.

Marriage 2.0 is terrible for men, and I of course advise them to avoid it at all costs.

But most men on TRP don't even want Marriage 1.0 back, and I don't blame them... not merely because it's impossible (technology, etc, etc), but because it had gotten to be a bad enough deal (Marriage 1.5?) that the Baby Boomer men were willing to help pull it down for the promise (mostly false) of a little hairy free-love snatch.

Hardly a sterling recommendation for its contribution to male happiness.

In the long run, no civilization can survive unless it ties male happiness to male productivity. Every civilization is not only created, but maintained on a daily basis, by male effort. And effort doesn't just mean labour, but also creativity, innovation, and leadership. But men don't keep the lights on for money, or the love of climbing a pole to work on high-voltage lines... they do it, if they do it, for the sake of being loved, respected, and laid.

If male efforts are rewarded with none of those things, civilization slowly winds down, because women sure as hell ain't gonna take up the slack.

So what do I think will happen?

I think that marriage and the family has been redefined twice before, and this will happen one more time in the near future.

Marriage/Family 0.1: A family is a man, his children, and the mothers of those children.

Marriage/Family 1.0: A family is a man, a woman, and their children.

Marriage/Family 2.0: A family is a woman, her children, and whatever man she is currently having sex with. <-
-----we are here.

Family 3.0: A family is a woman and her children, supported by government mandated taxes and child support on the lone, wandering adult male population.

The problems with this last bit, of course, are twofold. First of all, boys need fathers to teach them how to be men. Second, men don't like being voiceless ATMs, and will retaliate by becoming deadbeats. Couple of generations of this, no more western civilization.

No major political or cultural force has a realistic solution to this problem.

Liberals: "What problem? Fathers are obsolete! Single mothers can raise children just fine! We'll just tax men to pay for all of it, and everything will be fine, because men are money trees! What do you mean, 'perverse incentive'? What's that?"

Conservatives: "This problem is horrible! Civilization is in grave danger! Men, you must immediately dive on a grenade to save it! Man up and get married! You might not lose everything you worked for and still die alone! What do you mean, 'perverse incentive'? What's that?"

People keep asking me if this situation can be saved, but not one of those people has any suggestion whatsoever for a new model that has something in it for men. They want to leave figuring that out to the young, unmarried men. But young, unmarried men have no incentive to come up with such a model, because their options are:

- Come up with such a model, then fight an uphill battle to establish it, when young unmarried women are aghast that someone is telling them they can't have all the cookies, and older married men and women are aghast that they are being so heartless and mean as to demand that women give up some of the cookies.
- Learn game, bang sluts, and be happy right now.

In other words, no one is going to come up with a plan, because:

- Young unmarried women ain't gonna come up with jack shit.
- Older married people don't care because fuck you, they've got theirs.
- Young unmarried men have no incentive to save civilization because it none of it belongs to them, and it doesn't give a crap about them.

This is what TRP means by "enjoy the decline".

My girlfriend wants a break. I don't think it's a good idea. What do I do?

10 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

My girlfriend wants a break.

This is all I read. This is all I needed to read.

The moment a girl "wants a break", it's over.

How do I convince my friend to stop being an orbiting cuck?

10 upvotes · 20 February 2018 · /r/askTRP

You don't. You let him get on with his life, and you get on with yours.

How to approach sex when dating

10 upvotes · 18 February 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

Are you saying that it's better just to have sex and hope that what I've learned about him over two dates is genuine?

You're not reading very carefully, are you? I'm saying there is no safe strategy.

When things get heated, you have a choice. Roll with it, and risk your sexual history, or pump the brakes, and risk your relationship with him.

No one can sit here on reddit and tell you what you "should" do in situations like this, because there's no one universal answer. It's a judgement call.

What you can't do is half measures. Because from the next man's point of view, blowjobs and such increase your partner count, too. So at this point, you might as well give him what he wants, although he already seems kind of hurt that you pumped the brakes, so damage already done there. From my read on this, it seems like he figured out pretty quickly that you were being tactical rather than passionate with him.

Dunno why so many women try to find the best, sharpest, and most strong-willed man they can, then assume they can easily fool him.

I really don't like deadbeat dads

10 upvotes · 14 February 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Responsibility and power go together.

A man who has no power to avoid parenthood isn't going to take responsibility.

Cry about it if you want. Ain't gonna change.

On unplugging all the way: You need to chew before swallowing.

10 upvotes · 8 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Long story short that Peterson Lobster lesson everyone loves comes from the European Occult tradition and had nothing to do with conventional peer reviewed science or medicine.

Neither does clinical psychology.

It derives not from any sort of medical research or understanding of the structure of the brain (gross or fine), but from a tradition of bullshit approximations about the human mind which originated in Sigmund Freud's tiresome obsession with the human anus, and bounced randomly through the writings of a bunch of pseudo-philosophers, all serving the purpose of allowing overeducated losers who would otherwise be unemployable to charge neurotics two hundred dollars an hour to listen to their whining.

It derives almost nothing from research psychology, which is a research science that knows a whole lot about how we remember strings of nonsense words and nothing about how we remember the birth of our first child or how to drive a car.

It's the societal equivalent of what you would get if homeopaths, dowsers, and tarot card readers were held in high esteem... and if you watch them for long enough, you can understand how ancient societies respected astrologers and haruspekes despite their total inability to get anything right.

So Jordan Peterson isn't a special sort of fruit loop who believes in stupid stuff... he's an ordinary sort of fruit loop who believes in stupid stuff, because they are all like that.

The Cuddle Effect

10 upvotes · 30 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you're beta-ing to get her to leave, you need to beta hard and beta early.

It's useful for psycho chicks who might turn into bunny-boilers if you dump them.

Healing from past relationships and sexual behavior, any advice?

10 upvotes · 23 January 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

See, this shit right here is why I made you sit through a long takedown of feminism.

Because you are basically infected with wrong ideas, some of which are so basic to your worldview that you aren't aware of them as "feminism", or as something that might be questioned. They seem obvious.

But who ever told you that you should be held to the same standard as men?

What if a "double standard" was entirely healthy, right, and natural?

Just about every "redpill" idea can be derived from this one simple truth:

Eggs are expensive. Sperm is cheap.

From the moment you were born, you were a container with a fixed number of costly and irreplaceable eggs.

From puberty, your ex-boyfriend was a factory that constantly churns out cheap and replaceable sperm.

So now why is it surprising that humans are instinctively hardwired to judge you differently for how you handle those costly eggs, than they do him for how he handles that plentiful sperm?

Because he contains cheap sperm, instead of valuable eggs, society sends him to war instead of you. They make him do the dangerous jobs instead of you. They don't give a shit about his problems. Because he doesn't contain anything valuable.

Because you contain valuable eggs, society protects you and cares about you. It gives a shit about your problems. Because you contain the bottleneck for population replacement.

If he fucks a lot of women, its an accomplishment. He convinced them his cheap sperm was special. This required capability.

If you fuck a lot of men, it's just poor judgement. You accepted cheap and unvetted sperm on a whim. You didn't have to do anything other than part your thighs.

This is why his high number didn't bother you at all, and your high number bothered him. Because both of you are instinctively hardwired to judge men's and women's sexual behaviour differently.

It's not hypocrisy. It's his natural instincts protecting him from a bad choice in ways he can't consciously articulate.

Men don't give a shit about their hookups' partner count, because they are only investing cheap sperm in her. It doesn't matter if she is a profligate egg-mishandler.

Men do very much care about their girlfriends' partner count, because they are investing their time, care, and labour in her. It matters very much if she is irresponsible with eggs.

Women aren't turned off by high partner counts, because there is no such thing as "irresponsible" handling of an abundant, renewable resource.

This is the root of every double standard for men and women. They are pretty much all instinctive, and pretty much all justified.

And you can't mend your behaviour until you accept that, because otherwise you would see it as bowing to an injustice, and you would resent it. You have to stop resenting it. It's part of the same package deal that gets you the first spot in the lifeboat.

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

10 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You truly don't believe the men here are capable of delineating the good from the bad and relegating the later to down-voted oblivion?

Yarp.

Source: Experience.

TRP is 80% percent losers, and that's how we like it. Because TRP is for helping losers. And thus if there aren't a lot here, it must be failing to reach those who need it.

However, reddit is built around the idea that everyone's opinion has equal value, which works fine for cat pictures, but not so great for TRP. If we could stop people from voting on posts for a year after subscribing, we would.

As it is, we have to play dictator, which we are not at all reluctant to do.

Anyone who doesn't like it is free to create a competing alternative.

When a Girl Tells You Whats Wrong

10 upvotes · 29 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

So what?

She's crying over something silly. Chide her for it. Laugh at her.

You must suppress your protective instinct, because women have suppressed their submissive instinct.

LTRd celebrity girl, how to not slip into old habits

10 upvotes · 12 December 2017 · /r/askTRP

You have oneitis.

Sure, you are attached to her a status symbol, rather than a vagina. So what? Still oneitis.

When she cheats on you, go find an equally hot girl who's a waitress, date her, wake the fuck up and realize that celebrity women are less desirable mates.

Unless you particularly like dating whichever basic bitch gave Harvey Weinstein the best blowjob.

Is boyfriend embarrassed of me - thoughts?

10 upvotes · 7 October 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen

He should love you for who you are Bullshit.

No one loves anyone else for who they are. People are loved for what they are.

Attraction is not voluntary, attraction cannot be negotiated, and "should" is just a weaselly synonym for "I want".

Is there any proof at all that the Endorsed contributors know what they're talking about?

10 upvotes · 28 June 2017 · /r/askTRP

I'm not a 400 pound virgin. I am a very clever Labrador retriever who has learned to type with his nose.

Look, if you're not testing this stuff for yourself, and generating your own proof (or lack thereof), then you aren't using trp as intended.

How To Boost Your Testosterone Naturally

10 upvotes · 9 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Put needle in vial.

Put testosterone in needle.

Put needle in thigh.

Put testosterone in thigh.

Put barbell in hands.

Put food in mouth.

How to act when your LTR is out drinking?

10 upvotes · 3 November 2016 · /r/askTRP

Downgrade to plate or hard next.

LTR material doesn't go to drinking parties except with her man.

Traditional masculine behaviour is overtly punished and covertly rewarded in North America.

10 upvotes · 11 October 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's the main pillar of red pill thought.

We express it as "don't listen to what women say, watch what they do".

All the disapproval for masculinity is contained in (some) women's words. But the approval of it is displayed by their actions.

What TRP gets wrong about "assholes" and getting laid

10 upvotes · 5 July 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

My asshole is awesome. It gets rid of shit for me.

Unless you never have to deal with any shit ever, you need to have some asshole in you.

Anyone notice how if a biological aspect is found in women that advantages them more than men it's an automatic sign of their superiority but if men are found with a biological advantage then it "must" be socially constructed?

10 upvotes · 26 June 2016 · /r/MensRights

I wonder how much Colette Dowling can squat.

CMV: Female incels have it worse than male incels

10 upvotes · 23 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Then do what you have always done.

And get what you have always gotten.

Do Not Marry Or LTR Any Woman Over 24

10 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

~~Do Not Marry Or LTR Any Woman Over 24.~~

Fixed that for you.

How feminists view the manosphere

10 upvotes · 6 May 2016 · /r/MensRights

/r/theredpill

... rustling jimmies we didn't even know existed.

Rule #6a

10 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

their weird twisted brand of love doesn't really benefit a man

A woman who feels this kind of love will do whatever you tell her to.

Is caring for my girlfriend the wrong thing to do?

10 upvotes · 3 May 2016 · /r/askTRP

Caring is how you feel, weakness is what you do.

There would be a lot less joy in life if you couldn't allow yourself to love someone. But loving someone doesn't mean you have to be her slave.

Goldilocks and the Three Metabolic Pumps. (Trigger Warning: Science!)

10 upvotes · 26 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Watch the first video link. Alcoholic drinks and sugar-sweetened drinks are pretty much the same thing.

Not surprising, because alcohol is fermented sugar.

Sugary drinks are alcohol without the buzz (which happens because the brain can metabolize the alcohol form, but not the sugar form).

Has "seeing the matrix" made you cynical?

10 upvotes · 23 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

Cynic is a word an optimist uses when he means "realist".

The world hasn't suddenly become bad. The world isn't bad. The world was always this way.

The only thing that was wrong were your expectations.

Theory Friday - No Stupid Questions Thread

10 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Kino should start quickly, but accelerate slowly.

DiCarlo Ladder Concise and Emphasized

-Eye contact is key at outset

-Under each class first points are incidental, second are overt

Class 1

- Shaking hands, tapping on shoulder, touching to emphasize points, high five
- Holding hands, arm in arm escorting

Class 2

- Legs touching while standing and sitting, brushing abdomen while talking, touching back with palm while pulling in
- Hugging, escorting with hand on back, putting her legs over yours while sitting, holding her tummy on the side while sitting and talking, placing her hand on your thigh

Class 3

- Brushing something off her face, talking while touching her face to yours because loud etc, touching necklace, pinching cheeks
 - Placing head on your shoulder, smelling her neck, stroking face with finger looking in her eyes, running fingers through hair looking in eyes, holding side of her neck looking in eyes
-

Brief points to remember:

- Touch to emphasize points, brush abdomen while talking, touch back while walking, brush something off face, pinch cheeks. When seated: put her legs over yours, hold her tummy on the side, place her hand on your thigh. Place head on shoulder, smell neck, stroke face, run fingers through hair, hold side of neck.

Ramp, to be done in an isolated location:

- Kissing from close, move in as to kiss then pull away to say something else, builds tension. Place finger under her chin and pull mouth towards.
- Kiss neck gently while holding her close, possible biting.
- After kissing mouth & neck, move hands under her shirt on her back.
- Move hand to front under shirt, lift her shirt, lift your shirt as well and touch abdomens.
- Start kissing abdomen with shirt exposed, along sides and move up. Gauge if can move toward breasts.
- If kissing body position in-between legs so midsection rubs against vagina. If kissing mouth position thigh to stimulate vagina. Can also plant hand on bed below her, using forearm to stimulate vagina.
- Slip hand inside panties and touch naked ass. Move hand all the way down and reach vagina. Start touching area around it. Finger from behind.
- Undo front of pants with other hand. Move to the front, use "come-hither" motion pulling forward on front wall.
- Keep fingering while removing pants.

Notes: Higher rungs unlock lower rungs of classes. Do not start ramp with intention to finish later.

asked my gf for a bj she said "help yourself out", what is the appropriate response?

10 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/askTRP

I find it hard to know when to draw the line sometimes

That's where practice comes in.

The scale is between "not demanding enough, appears weak and unassertive", and "too demanding, appears needy and easily upset".

She went off on me later that night thinking I was hitting on them, compared me to her ex saying he'd never do that. I told her I wouldn't tolerate comparisons after the first couple times she did that, so I told her to leave. She tried to use sex as a apology right there but I just kicked her out Correct move again.

If you had accepted sex as an apology, you would have been implying that sex was a benefit she gives to you, rather than a mutual activity which is a crucial part of any healthy relationship.

She doesn't "earn" anything by having sex with you apart from sex with you.

Instead, the issue was that she disrespected you by trying to police your behaviour, with the implication that she is an authority over you.

- Don't punish not doing something (sex). Simply withdraw, implying that if she doesn't do it, someone else will be glad to take her place.
- Punish doing something (disrespect). Tell her what she did wrong, and dismiss her from your presence. Do not allow her back until she shows contrition.

- If she does the same thing again after expectations are clear, that's deliberate. That is punished by permanent dismissal, or demotion to plate, without the possibility of being promoted again, ever.

Gender Equality in the USMC

10 upvotes · 20 March 2016 · /r/PussyPassDenied

Seconded. Pugil sticks are not about skill. They are not there to train any sort of skill. They are a huge blob of padding on the end of a fucking stick. There's no way to use that skillfully. They are for training sheer, naked, raw, screaming aggression.

Women who have never faced a man in a physical contest get seduced by all the left-wing rhetoric and girl-power movies into thinking that the male physical advantage isn't all that great, and they can bridge that gap with spunkiness, determination, and plot armor.

If they actually test this, they very quickly find that they don't actually have plot armor, and that men are not only vastly stronger, they are also more determined as well.

And that the only thing you can accomplish with girl power is to talk about girl power.

The guys on TRP don't actually do that well in terms of "getting around" and guys who want to sleep around should stay off TRP, here is why I think so.

10 upvotes · 12 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I suspect that their fallback position would be "he is naturally attractive, and TRP didn't cause his success. All the other TRPers are basement dwellers."

Why are (some) men so concerned with who and how many men an adult woman sleeps with?

10 upvotes · 2 March 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What is this hardon you people have for Elliot Rogers?

Does it bother you that he was one of you?

Do you think if you repeat the lie often enough, it will become truth?

X-Post from TBP: why TRP has to radicalize to stay on top

10 upvotes · 23 February 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think that he is the materialization of male fear - they sense their power is waning and that is frightening. This would never happen in the climax and heyday of male power, like in the 50s and early 60s, as their oppression were never questioned much less challenged. You'll see more and more whiners, trying to demonize and objectify women; you see the objectification in the narco culture and underground economy (illegal arms dealing, and trafficking drugs, sex, children, and human organs), or with extremist religious groups (Christian and Islam come to mind) and these males will side with this sector of the society in order to stay true to their convictions: to uphold male power and supremacy.

This foolishness results from the flawed assumption that men are an immortal hive mind.

Most men on the internet aren't anywhere near old enough to remember the 80s, much less the 50s. They cannot be "reacting" to a loss of a "privilege" which they never experienced. If they are reacting with anger to a loss of power when they have never experienced any alternative, then they must be reacting to conditions becoming in and of themselves intolerable.

Your friend's hypothesis would predict that the backlash against feminism would be strongest at the beginning, and grow weaker. My hypothesis would predict that the backlash against feminism would be weak at first and grow stronger over time.

Which set of conditions do we see?

AskWomen on n-count and poor marriage: mods deleting comments that show correlation

10 upvotes · 14 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Now, this is not to say that men don't follow the herd... they certainly do.

However, when there is no herd, most men do not go to pieces. And when the herd goes in a direction they cannot stand, most men will shrug their shoulders and strike out on their own.

2.5 million men 'have no close friends'; Lets Brainstorm How to Make Friends post-College

10 upvotes · 8 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly.

Have you read my article on the four levels of social cooperation?

Here at TRP, we teach men to lie, cheat, and manipulate, but lying, cheating and manipulation are a strategy. Whether it's a good strategy to use depends on who you are using it on.

We try to break men of the habit of behaving morally towards a society that acknowledges no reciprocal obligation to them, but to have brothers, a man must be a brother. How you behave towards some random ho is not the same as how you treat your tried and tested bro.

Someone who lies and cheats with everyone will fail because he has no friends. The amorality we teach here is about reserving honourable behaviour for those who repay goodness with goodness, and honesty with honesty.

So, yes, I agree that telling this small lie can be a big problem.

Poor chick manipulated into doing porn does AMA, gets called out

10 upvotes · 21 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

A whore is someone who sells sexual favours for money. Strippers, porn girls, prostitutes, camgirls, models, all whores. Whether they're getting paid to be looked at, or to suck dick... whores.

Women generally only sell sex in one of two cases:

- They are so attractive and mind it so little that it beats working. (Mostly models and high-end prostitutes.)
- They are losers who have nothing else of value to sell. If they were men, they would starve.

This is the story of a girl who didn't want to work for a living. She thought she was category one. Turns out she was only good enough to be category two.

So now she is making up excuses... "I didn't mean to do it, they tricked me!", "I had a scholarship, I could've gone to college, I'm not worthless!"

If she had any character, she would have gone to college, and gotten a job. Or said, "I don't want a job, I'm willing to suck dick. What's my best price per blowjob?"

No one, in the history of the universe, has ever accidentally sucked a dick.

One man's experience with domestic violence. Attempted vehicular homicide at 3:20.

10 upvotes · 12 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

If you are not celibate, or gay, you are sticking your dick in crazy.

Victim blaming is not a solution.

Statutory rape victim is told to pay child support

10 upvotes · 12 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

"Child support is essentially a form of strict liability," says the law review article, "with the justification being that the child is an innocent party"

Except that child being an "innocent party" doesn't make an iota of difference when mom wants to abort it.

Enough with the bullshit rationalizations. Here's the real story:

Woman > Child > Man

TRP members regularly claim "The Red Pill doesn't hate women". Well here's a conversation between a RP Vanguard and an EC. Thoughts?

10 upvotes · 11 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

You're more fun that way. In fact, it's the only way you're any fun at all.

So you can continue to shake your tiny fist and stomp around feigning outrage that I don't take you seriously, or you can stop trying to win stupid games for stupid prizes, and ask me an open-ended question, one that you haven't anticipated an answer to.

Why don't more women help guys become more attractive?

10 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Because women think that being "naturally attractive" is something that can happen to both sexes.

And men know better.

There is no such thing as a naturally attractive man. All male sexual value requires planning and effort. Women simply do not realize this because they only see the results.

If the Red Pill is wrong, where is the Blue Pills counter dating guide?

10 upvotes · 23 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

A better TRP would be hated just as much.

Because what people hate about it is that it works. It shifts power in sex and relationships from women to men. This runs against the feminist agenda of switching power in all areas of life from men to women.

TBP would hate any alternative that worked, and any alternative they didn't hate, wouldn't work.

CMV: It's better to be born a woman than a man in a first world country.

10 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men have more hardships and heavier burdens, but this makes us mentally tougher and more emotionally stable.

For example, when women talk about walking in the streets at night, and being afraid, that's strange to me. The actual real-world data tells me I am in much more danger walking alone at night than a woman, because men are much more likely to be attacked.

So the question is, would you rather be afraid, but not in danger, or in danger, but not have to be afraid? Is it better to be privileged and weak, or despised and strong?

I know which one I'll take, but it might be a tougher call for some people.

CMV: When Red Pillers show their true beta side some months into the relationship and get dumped the problem isn't that they are beta, the problem is that they got into the relationship under false premises.

10 upvotes · 15 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Yes, but there is a bit more to it than that.

The whole point of evaluating male appearance and behaviour, from an instinctive standpoint, is to evaluate the quality of his genes. Self-improvement improves the self, not the genes.

"Be yourself" serves women's agenda, not men's. It means "express your genes as clearly as possible, so I can reject you as quickly and easily as possible if everything isn't to my liking".

Women can always catch another dick, so false negatives bother them not at all. If they accidentally reject a man because his good genes were hidden by poor learned behaviour, they give zero fucks. After all, how can they know for sure? Why take the risk? Better to hold out for Chad.

False negatives hurt men. False positives hurt women. Therefore, anyone who serves the female agenda above the male agenda will advocate for avoiding false positives at all costs, and regard any number of false negatives as acceptable collateral damage.

That's what "be yourself" means. It means "Serve women's ends, rather than your own."

The 1 in 3 women Debate.

10 upvotes · 12 December 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, it has always been 1 in 3. And we have always been at war with ~~Eurasia EastAsia~~ Eurasia.

Insanity.

10 upvotes · 8 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Furthermore, I'm certain that whatever amount of money Whisper (deservedly so) earns from bitcoin donations would make an 8 year old Chinese kid laugh when converting it to hours spent vs. money acquired.

That's pretty much it.

I put in a bitcoin link because after reddit introduced "gild this post", I really don't have a choice about passing the tip jar.

Reddit is passing the tip jar after every speech I make, whether I want them to or not. And then they are walking off with the jar.

I pass my own tip jar to starve them, not to feed me.

Does this make me a blue-pill bitch?

10 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/askTRP

It means you want a relationship with a good woman, rather than a string of psychologically damaged sluts.

Pumping and dumping sluts is second prize. It's better than being an incel, but it's not as good an LTR with an LTR-worthy woman.

You should pump and dump sluts when an LTR-worthy woman is not available. This may be often, as you have no control over how LTR-worthy women around you are.

"To continue to ensure that the University of Missouri campus remains safe, the MU Police Department (MUPD) is asking individuals who witness incidents of hateful and/or hurtful speech or actions to: Call the police immediately"

10 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, and it's not just about being called a shitbag.

It's about a political conversation that simply doesn't have anything in it for you, that doesn't understand one single thing you want, address one single problem you have, or talk about one single value you care about.

The political left and right wings both have one thing in common: neither sees men, especially young men, as anything but a source of valuable loot, a vein of ore to strip-mined in the most efficient way possible.

This is why young men have stopped going to college, and started majoring in weed and console video games instead. And when they become sick of that, they begin to search for something that speaks to them, a philosophy that can concretely identifying and address their discontent, that can name the demon.

A Message to Men's Rights from Red Pill

10 upvotes · 19 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

MGTOW would be more powerful if they took care of themselves. If the George Cloonys walked away people would care.

When discussing whether MGTOW has "power", we need to look at it on both an individual and a societal level.

On an individual level, anyone's "power" in the sexual marketplace is how attractive they are, regardless of what they choose to do with it. A 9 is a 9, a 7 is a 7, and a 4 is 4, regardless of whether he spins plates, gets married, has a girlfriend, or goes celibate monk mode for a year.

The only thing that changes his power is raising or lowering his SMV.

On a societal level, a bunch of men going MGTOW changes the equation, even if their SMV is low. If the fedora fellas drop out of the dating game, then the fat corset-over-tshirt girls can't get boyfriends. If rock stars and NFL players refuse to get married, then underwear models have marry business owners. Supply and demand functions at every level of the sexual marketplace, and scarcities spill over into adjoining levels.

Is this quote accurate? 'SubSMV8 males are subhuman to women'

10 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

No, all men are subhuman to women. Women do not generally acknowledge men's humanity in the same sense that men are aware of women's.

"Humanity", in the ethical sense, is the quality whereby if X has humanity, a good to X is an inherent good, which requires no other justification.

Men acknowledge women's humanity in the sense that a benefit to women is seen by men as worthwhile. Women do not see a benefit to men as worthwhile, unless it goes on to indirectly benefit a woman or a child.

Women care about the utility of 8+ men, not their humanity.

This is natural. Men are hardwired to protect women, women are hardwired to protect children. (Children do not acknowledge the humanity of anyone but themselves... not even other children.)

I can only bang a woman a few times before not wanting to bang her ever again

10 upvotes · 17 September 2015 · /r/askTRP

After a man ejaculates in a girl, he meets her for the first time. Because he is no longer seeing her through the lens of mystery, novelty, and sexual desire. Now he knows if she is truly fun to be with, or if her every mannerism is just some annoying shit he put up with to get laid.

A girl who has no girl game gets boring quickly.

It sounds like you either want a relationship, and are quickly turned off by girls with no game, or you don't want anything right now so much as you want sexual novelty.

TRP is not a cult. I know what they are now more than ever, and TRP isn't it. Toxic Religion is.

10 upvotes · 24 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Little defensive are we?

Yeah, you'd almost think that a bunch of shrill moral busybodies had been repeatedly accusing him of being a cult member.

Cuddles and yapping are tools of dogs, not men

10 upvotes · 21 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

People have virtues and capabilities because they are forced to develop them. It is demands upon us that make us grow.

The proliferation of zero-talent, zero-capability women we see around us is a consequence of the rise of the zero-responsibility woman. If everything you need is a "right", and anything that might be expected of you in return is "oppression", then what capabilities do you need in order to survive and prosper?

Our bodies and brains evolved under conditions of scarcity, and they are miserly. Any unused capability will be deemed unneeded, and never developed at all.

CMV: There is no alternative to r/theredpill or PUA.

10 upvotes · 21 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Precisely.

Eventually, everything women need from men becomes a "right" (so men must provide it for free), and everything men need from women becomes a precious gift which men must "earn" (without being able to trade anything for it, because everything they could trade for it is a "right" that women are already owed).

CMV: There is no alternative to r/theredpill or PUA.

10 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I said "feminists", not "women".

How to prove to your ex, you are NOW an Alpha after going through a BB phase.

10 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

You can't. Women believe male strength, confidence, and value is genetically destined at birth.

That's why their dating advice is "be yourself". It means "be yourself so we can easily sort you into the category of worthy or unworthy".

Any woman who has seen your transformation from beginning to end will always think of you as the person you were at the beginning. You could win an MMA match against an angry lion, become Sultan of the Western Milky Way Galaxy, and have a harem of 5000 flawless women, and she would just think that you had become really good at fooling people.

If she doesn't love you now, she will never love you again. Give it up.

I dont want my lasting image being a BB...

You still care what she thinks of you. That's a weakness. Women love a man who can take them or leave them. That is the man of abundance. Not a man who cares what they think. That is a man of scarcity.

Question: How long do you keep 'plates' for? And when it comes to an end, who is more likely to end it?

10 upvotes · 2 July 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I don't do plates much.

Here's my heirarchy:

- ONS: You're good for novelty sex, and that's it. Once I've tapped that, I no longer want to put up with your bullshit.
- Plate: We're "dating" from your perspective, but I can see it's not gonna last. The sex is good enough to ride it out until it does, though.
- FWB: I like you, you're fun to hang out with when we have our clothes on. But you don't inspire feelings of romantic attachment or pair-bonding. So we hang out socially and screw.
- LTR: I am emotionally invested in you. I still have sex with other women, sometimes, if I want to, but they're disposable. You're not.
- ~~Exclusive LTR~~ Not available. I'm not going to allow you to tell me what I can't do with my penis, not matter who you are.
- ~~Marriage~~ Not available.

"Plates" don't really do it for me. If a woman doesn't have FWB potential at least, then she's probably not going to make it past the first night.

My reputation

10 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

her: he's a male whore with everyone but meeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeee

♂

Reporting this comment so it get awarded.

sub like trp for women, but not like trpw

10 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There's no need for a sub like that, for the same reason there is no need for /r/howtositinchairs .

[AskTRP] Isn't it un-American to be against equalism?

10 upvotes · 17 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What are you going to do, report me to the House Un-American Activities Committee?

It's not anger. It's not hate. It's pain.

10 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And here, class, we see a primary example of sort of mental gymnastics people engage in when they are unable or unwilling to see, and thus take into account, their own biological programming.

The subject does not experience empathy with the target, on account of the target's maleness. Thus, quotation marks are employed tactically to imply that it is questionable that the target had a problem at all. Thus minimization is achieved.

Additionally, the target's opinion or emotional experience is characterized as an action which can be morally judged, and cast in a negative light ("dehumanizes an entire group of people"). This helps to reframe the target as a wrongdoer, and further rationalizes the subject's lack of compassion.

Finally, the phrase "Cry me a river" is employed for two reasons. First, to minimize and trivialize the target's emotional experience as being less valid than that of others. Second, to imply that the target is weak. This attempts to invoke the same lack-of-compassion instinct in listeners which the subject is simultaneously attempting to ignore the existence of.

It would involve less effort for the subject to simply be aware of being naturally inclined to be less compassionate to men. However, this would create cognitive dissonance between this image of the self, and the ideals of fairness which the target employs to other purposes.

The extra effort (mental gymnastics) in which the subject engages is an attempt to avoid the pain of this cognitive dissonance, as well as the possible social ramifications of revealing the disconnect between the 'ideal self' and the 'real self'.

This process is likened to, in common TRP metaphor, the process of a hamster running on a wheel... activity directed no purpose external to the subject, but which mimics purposeful activity, and which is intended to preserve the subject internal equilibrium state.

Defining Alpha characteristics: Robert Baratheon vs Lord Tywin

10 upvotes · 16 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Trying to precisely define "alpha" always results in failure, because who's on top always depends on how the box is being shaken.

Relax and understand it for what it is, a generalized metaphor for talking about human behaviour.

I usually avoid these chicks, but how would some of you seasoned guys handle this?

10 upvotes · 3 June 2015 · /r/askTRP

By approaching another woman instead. The only positive thing you have said about her is that she's good-looking. The rest are all red flags, straight across.

The only reason you would even consider this is because of your eyes. Eyes are treacherous. Eyes can temporarily turn budding players into pedestalizing betas again.

Be honest with yourself. If you were talking to this woman wearing a blindfold, would you think she was a horrendous bitch?

The idea that 80% of women are only interested in the top 20% of men. What's your opinion of it?

10 upvotes · 2 June 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Indeed. We often use the vernacular "alpha/beta/omega" to talk about this.

The first get laid often, frequently "when they choose to", and don't have to devote much time, effort, money, etc, in chasing additional sex unless they want to.

- If you can go hit on a bunch of women, and know that within a short space of time, you're going to find one who says "yes", you're an "alpha".
- If you have a wife or girlfriend who puts out whenever you initiate (whether out of obedience or because she always wants to), you're an "alpha".
- If you fuck whores not because you have to, but because your time is so valuable, and money so easy to come by, that picking up girls just doesn't make sense, you're an "alpha".
- If you can get sex with little effort from a 5+, but spend a lot of time and effort on chasing sex because it gets you the most and hottest women, you're an "alpha".

The second get laid occasionally, but not as much as they'd like, and have to put significant time, effort, and money into it.

- If hitting on women doesn't generally work for you, but every once in a while you meet a woman you just kind of "click" with, and sex happens, you're a "beta".
- If you have a wife or girlfriend who has sex with you only when she feels like it (which she sometimes does, and sometimes doesn't) you're a "beta".
- If you fuck whores, not because you can't get laid, but because they fill the gap between the amount of sex you get, and the amount you want, you're a "beta".
- If you have chase to get laid by plain women, you're a "beta".

The third do not get sex except under extraordinary circumstances.

- If the only women who show interest on you are desperate or broken, you're an "omega".
- If you don't have a girlfriend, not because you don't want one, but because you desperately want one and can't get one, you're an "omega".
- If you are in a dead-bedroom relationship, you're an "omega".
- If whores are your only option (not the "easiest option", not the "best option", but the only one), you're an "omega".

And here's the funny thing. In the vast majority of cases, the difference between alpha, beta, and omega is entirely behavioural.

- Alphas are not all tall, ripped, square-jawed hunks of brooding manhood.
- Betas are not all average joes.
- Omegas are not all fat neckbeards.

Instead, each man unconsciously signals what category he belongs to by behaviour that reveals what he is used to getting out of life.

- Omegas signal their omegahood to women by staring at their shoes and mumbling, or making dopey and pathetic displays of devotion in the hopes of being rewarded.
- Betas signal their betahood by immediately investing large amounts of time and attention in "prospects" (women who display attraction to them).

- Alphas signal their alphaness by expecting sex, and ignoring any woman who doesn't give it to them (because they know that the next one will).

Women judge which category a man falls into by this behaviour, and this decides how much attraction they feel for him. However, they have very finely evolved senses for distinguishing between someone who actually has these attitudes, and someone who's putting on an act.

Thus, the climb towards the category every man wants to be in is not an immediate set of step-by-step instructions, but a slow process of deliberately altering one's habits and personality. Faking a certain attitude is part of that habituation project, but the real results only come when the change starts to become more real and permanent.

RPW are you comfortable discussing sex and sexuality? BPW are you?

10 upvotes · 31 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It isn't being sexually explicit that's good, it's being unafraid to talk about sex and sexually explicitly in the presence of other women that's a noble endeavor. This isn't the 1950s and we should celebrate that. Instead of remaining hush hush about sex, we should be open about it, especially sister to sister.

She isn't your sister.

You don't know her. You haven't earned her trust, and you certainly haven't earned the trust of her man. Why on earth would she let you into confidences which are a natural part of a pair bond?

You seem to think that anyone reluctance to engage in sex talk with total strangers is prudishness. Au contraire. People who are good at intimacy understand that it comes from shared secrets. Things that are no one else's business are part of what a relationship is.

FleetingWish is too polite to tell you this, but your unsolicited sex advice is both arrogant and presumptuous. You are neither her equal at sexual intimacy within a relationship, nor at relationship skills. If you were smart, you would be asking advice, not trying to give it.

But giving patronizing advice is often women's way of bullying other women, in that oh-so-plausibly-deniable manner of "only trying to help".

Mind your manners.

Alright BPer! I'm open to your ideas - step up and show me what you got! :)

10 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'd tell him to find someone else to fuck

As one of the founders of TRP, that's what I'd advise, too.

We call it "dread game". In our collective experience, women's libido experiences an amazing resurgence in the presence of competition.

What should women do ?

10 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

And we should care what you want because...?

Double standards [x-post /r/TumblrInAction, u/ArtGamer]

10 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

Wow... hook, line and sinker.

Lemme explain something to you, son. GLO is playing you. And he's playing you to prove a very specific point. You see, when he presses you and gets you rattled, how you chose to respond reveals something about you. In this case, you accuse him of being a "misogynist" who "doesn't see women as human", and a "psycho".

Does that sound familiar at all?

It should. Because those are exactly the weapons that feminists have chosen against /r/mensrights. Which supports what he said, in a deliberately inflammatory style, right up front: You are imitating the feminist movement even as you think you oppose it.

Your opposition takes the same form as the feminist movement, you see. It is a public appeal for understanding and fairness. Unconsciously, /r/MensRights is aping the feminist movement, because it desires the same sort of results women got: sympathy and support, and a dismantling of their roles and responsibilities.

You "dream of women feeling your feel". You collectively believe that, if only you can be persuasive enough, you will gain sympathy. The whole reason that /r/MensRights feels a need to exist in the first place is because feminists fucked things up, but you are proceeding forward using their exact strategy.

I foresee a future where the two movements vie to dive onto the turf and writhe in the most convincing pain, trying to get the referee to issue the other a red card. In fact, I don't need to foresee it, because it's the present. And what has been pointed out to you, which so far you have missed, is that the fact that you are engaging in this particular kind of contest is a result of a deep emasculation of the soul, self-inflicted upon our culture by the men of previous generations who gave in to feminism.

Why on earth would you look to women's example for how to win a culture war? What worked for them will not work for you. Instead of writhing on the turf and shooting meaningful glances at the referee, laugh at the women who are, as you run past and keep scoring goals.

Do you believe women should be lead by men?

10 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There's two meanings to the word "should".

I only use one of them.

- "Should" can mean "this is a moral imperative". But morals are a human invention, so there are no absolute moral imperatives. So this is just a bullshit way of saying "I want".
- "Should" can mean "this is the course of action I recommend for accomplishing this goal".

So when I say that women "should" be led by men, I am not invoking some nebulous moral imperative out of thin air. I am saying that in my experience, from my observation, and from the scientific data I am aware of, peace, harmony, productivity, and happiness, both in sexual relationships and in society in general, are maximized when the male is the clear leader, as opposed to when the woman is the clear leader, or when there is no clear leader.

The Roosh Straw Man and the Arguments He Failed to Make

10 upvotes · 30 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wish he hadn't been foolish enough to do it.

Clearly, his history of dealing with a friendly audience has given him an exaggerated idea of his ability to control a crowd.

Never engage with someone who controls the communication channel you are debating in.

The Guide to Accepting Yourself (even when women don't)

10 upvotes · 11 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I dunno man - that "accept yourself" mindset seems like an easy path to complacency.

It both is and is not.

To improve you have to admit where you are. To accept as fact the measure of the distance between where you are and where you wish to be. "Progress" is the name of the narrow zone between despair and complacency.

Is /r/PurplePillDebate totally heteronormative?

10 upvotes · 26 February 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TRP is about heterosexuality.

TBP is about TRP, and thus about heterosexuality.

There's /r/altTRP, but there's not a lot of traffic there.

Gay men just don't need to study and talk about human sexual dynamics. They really are trying to mate with someone whose brain is just like theirs. They already understand, all they have to do is think.

There's nothing for you here, not because we have nothing to offer you, but because you just plain don't need us.

What do you think would happen if TheRedPill had to do verification posts like GoneWild subs.

10 upvotes · 29 January 2015 · /r/PurplePillDebate

It's still a risk. I do get the occasional death threat.

And, like not wearing your seatbelt, it's a risk with no counterbalancing gain. People who verify do so to gain credibility. I don't need credibility, because TRP is not a religion, and I have no desire to convince you of its veracity or utility. I don't debate here to convince you of anything. I do it to check my thinking, sharpen my rhetorical skills, and amuse myself.

I simply want the information to be available, so people who read it and decide for themselves that it's useful and/or true can discuss it with me. None of that requires making myself a target.

On the absolute necessity of patriarchy for women's long term welfare.

10 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Let me see if I can extract a coherent thesis from what appears to keyboard spew.

Are you perhaps theorizing that patriarchy creates the problem as well as the solution? That without a patriarchy, good, responsible men would be happy to "wife up" sluts who are exiting the cock train at age 30?

If so, the empirical evidence disagrees with you.

You know how we mock posters about the whole "Her husband might hurt you" observations? Yeah... about that.

10 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Displays of constant violence shouldn't get non-loser types wet.

"Should" is just a one-word synonym for "I want".

If a woman requires that to get hot, she's got some fucked up hormones. Her dopamine and serotonin receptors require too much to get "excited".

AWALT.

Guy is best friend with girl for 10 years. She has a new boyfriend that threatens to beat his head in. Guess who she sides with?

10 upvotes · 3 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Mr 10 year guy isn't her friend, he's her orbiter. They have never been friends.

[FR] She doubled down on polyamory and has been summarily nexted.

10 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is what a good field report should be. Straight, to the point, illustrate the principle.

And the principle, in this case, is that you only have any relationship you are willing to walk away from. If you are not, that relationship has you.

♂

Sexual Strategy Is Amoral/Everything is Permitted (RE: GayLubeOil's cuckolding post)

10 upvotes · 25 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a woman can be persuaded to cheat, she shouldn't have been your girlfriend.

Sex doesn't just happen. She doesn't trip and fall onto his erect cock. Girls know when they feel attracted to someone, and they make a choice. That choice is either:

- "I am attracted to this guy, and I am going to fuck him, I don't care if I have a boyfriend/husband."
- "I am attracted to this guy, and I'll just... hang around with him for a while, alone. At his apartment. After 9pm. It's not like anything's going to happen, I have a boyfriend/husband." (She will end up fucking him. This is just her way of not admitting what she is doing.)
- "I am attracted to this guy, and I will stay the fuck away from him, and never be alone with him, because I have a boyfriend/husband, and I am not a cheating ho."

Number three is the only girl you should be in an LTR with.

If you get cheated on because you LTRed a woman who made choice 1 or 2, then you shouldn't have LTRed her, because she is a cheating ho. Take a lesson and move on, sever all contact, and move on.

Worthy women do your mate-guarding FOR you. Any woman who doesn't mate-guard herself for you is unworthy of an LTR. She is a plate.

Bill Burr and more simple truths (How have feminists not gone after him yet?)

10 upvotes · 7 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

- Because he isn't open about having taken the red pill.
- Because he uses a few key words like "simplistic" to disguise male virtues (which you are not allowed to talk about) as male flaws (which you are).
- Because he is a comedian. In sick societies, only those wearing a jester's motley are allowed to tell the truth.

Medical student dumped for being 'too chubby' becomes professional bodybuilder

10 upvotes · 3 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The stages of gaining muscle, told in girlfriend quotes:

1. "I don't like those musclebound meathead guys, they're so vain."
2. "It's nice that you're losing weight. Just don't get carried away."
3. "Ooooooh."
4. "I like muscles, I just don't like those guys who are, like, huge. A nice, athletic body is good."
5. "Take me right now."
6. "I guess the reason I don't like most bodybuilders is they're so vain. But you're not vain. You just look good."
7. "You deserve to show off a little. You've worked so hard."
8. "I could never date a man who didn't take care of his body."
9. "I've always liked big muscles."

Outrage porn isn't going to help you in the long run

10 upvotes · 20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure, but it already exists.

Mensrights is about a (hopeless) battle to fix the anti-maleness of our society.

TRP is about personal survival in that declining society.

Zoe Quinn and Anita Sarkisian aren't relevant to that unless they are being used as examples to teach some principle that will be useful to better the lives of people reading TRP.

Who cares if Quinn manages to get a bunch of manlets in a manlet-dominated industry to sell their influence for sex with a substandard-looking woman with an unfeminine attitude? We could help the manlets if they came here and read, but it's up to them to take that first step. We are not a religion, we don't need converts.

It's not our responsibility to rescue people from themselves.

The woman who thinks reducing the male population by 90 percent will done everything.

10 upvotes · 14 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This would actually work if the sexual marketplace existed in a vacuum.

Men who were outnumbered 9 to 1 by women would be automatically considered desirable, and this would cause them to become objectively desirable, too, as they would be brimming with confidence. And since women are generally happy to share alphas so long as it's socially acceptable and not shaming for them to do, most of them would be okay, too. Only ugly women would lose out (which they do already).

However, the sexual marketplace does not exist in isolation. It's also men who do all the heavy lifting, all the risk-taking, all the competing, and all the inventing. We can't do without those. We can't afford an 80% reduction in them.

And, no, the women will not "step up". They've had forty years of feminism running the show, and they haven't "stepped up". Women too young to remember a time when feminism wasn't the dominant paradigm still haven't "stepped up".

If it hasn't happened by now, odds are it's not gonna.

4chan successfully pranks twitter by behaving -exactly like- feminists. Media revises history by pretending that nobody was ever fooled.

10 upvotes · 20 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

If feminists were reasonable, they would have led the charge to condemn this message, even if they were fooled into thinking it was sincere.

Can you imagine how r/mr would react if some started #rapeallwomen ? Outrage and disgust, and a rush to distance themselves from it. A reasonable response. If you find something disgusting, you recoil from it.

Feminists didn't recoil. They didn't all chorus agreement, but they didn't recoil.

Doesn't this movement have more pressing matters to deal with aside from fake SJW twitter movements and attacking feminists every chance they get?

Well, here's the thing.

Men's advocates are united by the problems we are concerned about, not by the solutions we advocate. That means we react to the same issues in different ways. We have no unified platform, only unified concerns.

Many people here, and I suspect that you probably fall into this category, see the men's movement as parallel to the women's movement... an attempt to achieve what women achieved, the destruction of the defined role of their sex in society, so they would be free to act however they pleased.

Adherents of this idea would therefore be inclined to see feminists as trailblazers, not enemies. Their goal would be to emulate the progress of the feminist movement, using more or less the same tactics, so that men roles, burdens and stereotypes can also be destroyed, and we can achieve some vaguely-defined nirvana people call "equality".

They see tradition as the major enemy.

But, see, I'm not one of those people.

I see male and female roles, burdens, stereotypes, expectations, etc, as part of the dimorphism of the human species. That is to say, something which it is neither possible nor desirable for us to abolish. To me, men's rights doesn't mean freedom from the expectation to be masculine. It means freedom to be masculine, because we are naturally inclined to do so.

The enemy is not traditionalism (although that by no means got everything right), but feminism in its effort to abolish masculinity. That's why we have a men's movement now. Because what women did made it necessary.

Feminism isn't a distraction on the road to our goals. It is the one true enemy.

Graduating with a Mrs degree

10 upvotes · 12 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"If you listen to the tone of the conversation, it has improved over the last 30 years. First, the underlying tone of the articles/conversations were 'everyone isn't that way' and then it transitioned to 'I'm not that way' then 'I'm only that way because I was taught it, but I'm working on changing it' (etc, etc)

Listening to the "wisdom" of 19 year olds is a dubious proposition at best, but this is worth looking at because it helps us notice the major problem with feminism.

The third statement implies, perhaps even contains, the a priori assumption that there are some ways we should and shouldn't be, and that these are so obvious they don't bear talking about.

In other words, feminism is a prescriptive school of thought. It deals out directives rather than observations, and does so from a moral rather than an objective standpoint.

However, you can't get "ought" from "is". Nor can you get "is" from "ought". Which makes answering the inevitable "why" that follows the "should" very difficult indeed.

Feminism clearly takes the stand that women should prefer the diploma to the ring. What it fails to answer is why.

The Most Important Lesson I've Learned from TRP

10 upvotes · 1 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I actually find that TRP ultimately gives license to everyone, male or female, to do whatever the hell they want whenever they want and be completely justified in all the actions that show a lack of will power, as long as it's confined to sex, with no moral consequences whatsoever.

I think you somewhat misunderstand what TRP is meant to be. It's descriptive, not prescriptive.

In other words, it's not about "men should do this, women should do that"... it's about "people usually do this", and about "if you do this, this will be the result".

Now, this is an understandable confusion, because a lot of TRP advice is very prescriptive indeed:

"Don't let your date control the frame."

"Be outcome-independent."

"Lift weights"

"Don't wait until you're thirty to find a man for an LTR."

"Don't cut your hair short."

...and so on and so on and so on.

But all of these things come with the assumed "... if you want success in the mating/sexual marketplace."

It's not a moral prescription. It's advice for achieving a generally desired result.

Female privilege is being able to talk about gender issues without being called a "Crying Diaper Man-Baby"

10 upvotes · 12 April 2014 · /r/MensRights

Men need to learn to ignore shaming.

But we also need to learn the fundamental premise.

Scorn for complaining men isn't personal. And it isn't cultural. It's instinctive. It's hardwired into the human genome. It is instinctive human behaviour to throw a man under the bus at the first sign of weakness. Humans, especially women, but men as well, will only tolerate a show of vulnerability from men they personally know and are emotionally invested in. And from those men, they will tolerate less than they would from a female stranger.

You're not going to talk people out of it by pointing out the double standard. They are aware of the double standard. They like the double standard just fine. In fact, they cannot do otherwise.

The men's rights movement cannot succeed by aping the women's movement, which was basically decades of whining. But when women whine, no one thinks less of them. That's how human beings are wired.

Men must get our rights recognized, not by making a display of our powerlessness, but by making a display of our power. Power that women need to survive. We make civilization and keep it running. Women just get to come along for the ride. Does anyone think the lights would stay on if all the world's men took a holiday? Nah. They'd be back to grass huts right quick.

The men's right movement needs to take the form, not of an appeal for sympathy, but of a strike.

Don't get married.

Don't give women money.

Don't pay for their stuff.

Don't enable them or put up with their bullshit.

Don't be their shoulder to cry on.

Don't rescue them from criticism, danger, or the consequences of their own irresponsibility.

So "Walker Hansen" called you, me, and everyone else who won't roll over for feminism, a "man-baby".

So fucking what? Who exactly is "Walker Hansen"? What has he, she, or it produced, apart from blog posts on "thoughtcatalog" (Top Story: "The 10 Types Of Naps You'll Experience In Your Lifetime") ? Its opinion carries about as much weight as a puff of warm hydrogen.

But in general, the insults are only going to intensify as more men wake the fuck up. That's okay for feminists and their tame scruffy-bearded vegan mouthpieces, though. So long as men are fighting a war of complaints for a prize of public sympathy, we will always, always, always lose. Because vagina. That's just how it is.

What they truly fear is not a male protest, but a male strike. The Walkerhansens of this world publish articles. That's what they do. They can't keep the Internet they post on running. They can't program or fix the computers they use. They can't run the generators that keep the power on. They can't mine or smelt the materials it's all made from.

Real men do all that. Feminists and their pet Walkerhansens will never respect those real men, or give them anything, so long as they can take it for granted that people will pay them for writing bullshit articles, and that someone else will keep the lights on.

It's time to starve these upholstered parasites out.

woman nearing the wall tells safe beta about her time riding the carousel and wonders why he isn't "proud" she chose him.

10 upvotes · 7 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/bhavini_married pretty much nailed it. Thread over.

What would have happened if Kayla Bourque was a man? (BC Woman arrested for videotaping herself naked torturing/killing dog, having a kill kit and plans to kill homeless, and for possession of child p

10 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

That is specifically a psychopath.

Sociopaths are different. They have no conscience, but they aren't subject to the same kinds of violent urges.

A sociopath will kill you because he's robbing a bank and you're trying to stop him. A psychopath will kill you because he wants to play with your dismembered body.

Men and women do not have different brains, claims neuroscientist

10 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Neuroscientist Prof Gina Rippon claims male and female brains only differ because of the relentless 'drip, drip, drip' of gender stereotyping

So why are male and female chimpanzee brains different?

Batten down the hatches, more TRP publicity brought to you by the White Knights, Omegas and Feminists of Reddit

10 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Checked /r/whiterights. Less than 4,000 subscribers. You lie.

TBP chick hates RP guys but spends her birthday being treated like shit by one who also cheated on her. The irony is sublime.

10 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Unicorn" isn't a woman without the tendencies that TRP describes. There's no such thing.

"Unicorn" is a woman who admits these tendencies and becomes aware of them, instead of hamsterbating.

"Men hold jobs, marry spouses, co-parent children, belong to families, and make up half of our adult population, without raping ... given the number of children who are raped and tortured by adult men

10 upvotes · 10 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Most child torture is carried out by women.

23 year old virgin posts to CMV that he's frustrated and considering TRP. Helpful redditors assure him it's a bad idea. I posted a response to one such redditor and I wanted to share.

10 upvotes · 4 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

P.S To really see how much these rabid cunts care that this guys is 23 and a loser, hop over to TBP where they make fun of him for being a virgin (and everyone in that thread defending him).

Idealists usually think they are good people. In reality, they are vile, because they care more about principles than people.

32 Year Old Virgin doctor shows that a job is no substitute for game.

10 upvotes · 2 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, for one thing, total strangers aren't my bro.

And for another, if my actual bro bangs my lady, then he tells me about it, and I thank him for helping me find out the truth about her, so I could dump her cheating ho ass.

Getting divorced turns men into slaves

10 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/MensRights

People start caring about men paying excessive child support when it hurts the women they are with.

Our culture's definition of problem is "something that hurts a woman".

Red Pill subscribers: What exactly does taking The Red Pill mean to you?

10 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I read that one. "Life ruined" is probably a bit of an exaggeration, but his social circle certainly will be.

And it's because he allowed a woman to cheat on her SO with him, because that kind of thing happens all the time, and TBP doesn't appoint themselves the "monogamy police". No, the reason is that he expressed values opposed to the only ones they find culturally acceptable while doing so.

If he had acted ashamed and wept that he had only done it because he "really loved her" and "she was THE ONE", many TBP regulars would probably be touched by the romance of it all, and encourage him to try to persuade her to leave her SO.

One of the primary reasons TRP gets the hate it gets is because one of the major "red pills" is the fact that the word "love" the way we use it in this culture essentially describes something that does not exist. People are very attached to the notion of romantic love. It makes them feel all tingly and happy.

So when TRP says that romantic love doesn't really exist as such, people get mad, because, to them, we are trying to take their tingly happy feelings away.

Whereas the truth is that "love" is a word that means

- 1 Strong preference for. (I love bacon.)
- 2 Strong enjoyment of. (I love sex.)
- 3 Psychological or biological investment in. (I love my children.)
- 4 Sexual infatuation with. (I love this woman.)

It is confusion of the third and fourth items that TBP is trying to protect. But doing that in your own life will probably get you hurt.

That's because number 4 doesn't last forever. It lasts about six months to three years. What lasting long term relationships need is number 3. But because the blue pill is all about confusing 4 and 3, they get mad when

- TRP types tell them they slept with a woman (4) without caring about her long term welfare (3).
- Someone says that just because you fell in love with someone (4) doesn't make cheating on your husband (3) okay.
- TRP types want women for sex (4), but don't always think every one of those women is a good prospect for commitment (3).
- TRP types say that having sex with a woman (4) doesn't mean we think she's trustworthy (3), and so we dispose of condoms carefully.

... and so on.

It's all an effort to sustain the hopeful illusion that the endorphin high of infatuation can last a lifetime if you just "find the right person" who is "the one".

But is chemically, biologically, physically impossible. Infatuation is an endorphin high. It's drugs. Drugs wear off. For every stimulus, X, that gets you high, you can only really get off on it Y number of times. Life's a bitch that way.

So, you have to choose. You can either spend your life loving one or a few people (3), or you can spend your life being in love with a series of people who have to be replaced every couple of years, because tolerance has occurred.

And saying things like this, that's the kind of sexual realpolitik that makes people hate TRP. Because, like five year old who thinks you're a bad man because you told her Santa Claus wasn't real, they blame us for trying to take away their dreams.

Feminists want chivalry back.

10 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

The only reason chivalry isn't dead to me is that I haven't finished curbstomping it yet.

The only difference between a hero and a sucker is whether his deeds are appreciated and rewarded.

Red Pill subscribers: What exactly does taking The Red Pill mean to you?

10 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have had a Red Pill moderator tell me multiple times that The Red Pill is just about guys becoming better at sex and the attainment thereof. That's never sat too well with me, since a cursory glance at /r/theredpill[1]'s front page shows about six or seven posts that are actually about sex, and the rest are about how women make terrible friends, women doing bad things to men, feminism doing bad things to everyone, and men being a subjugated class.

The metaphor of the red pill is a convenient term for "seeing things how they are, not how you were told they were, or how you would like them to be".

Now, the reason to "take" this "pill" is to have a better life, because you're making decision based on reality, rather than on a consensual illusion. That's where phrases like "sexual strategy" come from.

But the metaphorical "pill" itself is really some information. Specifically, it that subset of information which is:

- Accurate
- Useful
- Flies in the face of popular, politically correct, or "safe" beliefs.

That's why pretty much everything on TRP shocks and offends you. If it didn't, there would be no need to go to TRP to say it. TRP is a haven for saying true things that would get you lynched (figuratively or literally) anywhere else.

The sub was originally started because this information was useful for sexual strategy, but the way the scope has grown reflects people's frustration with not being able to speak truth for fear of retaliation. You may not agree about the "truth" part, but it is not in dispute that the threat of retaliation is real. SRS regulars have attempted repeatedly to discover and reveal the actual identities of TRP posters for the express purpose of inflicting physical and/or economic harm on them, directly or by proxy.

An example of how this works would be the relative scarcity of female engineers. Everyone who talks to women, engineers, and women who are engineers for little while knows perfectly well that women stay away from STEM in droves because they don't like it, and they don't have to do it.

But suggesting that this is because women don't like math, rather than because of the evil sexist Svengalis that secretly run everything, is a career-ending move. Just ask Larry Summers.

In a society where people are punished for expressing opinions contrary to a defined orthodoxy, truth becomes the province not of scientists and scholars, but of comedians, jesters, eccentrics, crackpots, outcasts, and novelists.

And this is the case regardless of what you think the truth is. Even if you think every word in TRP is inaccurate, you must still deal with the problem of how people are threatened with harm for saying them.

This is, in fact, the role of jesters. The court fool is the only man who can criticize the king, because his motley is a robe of office and a license to say what he will. Calling him "fool" regardless of whether he is foolish or wise may soothe egos wounded by his words, but I, personally, have little patience for those who cannot endure to be questioned.

German court: Man must share lottery win with ex-wife [english article]

10 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Friends don't let friends get married.

As Bouncers See It

10 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In other words, sluts are only good for sex. If you want anything else that women can provide, don't expect to get it from a slut.

A wise woman discusses how she feels about being "the most mature teenager in the house".

10 upvotes · 21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The idea is women are incapable of being mature

Perhaps that is the conclusion, but the cited evidence only supports the lesser conclusion that they aren't mature.

It's not possible to show that women are generally incapable of maturity, because that's statement that something can't happen, which means you have to test under all possible conditions.

Showing that most women currently aren't mature is possible, because that's simply a matter of looking at their current behaviour. '

The examples cited in support by the sidebar article, which we all agree have some general validity because we've all seen them again and again, are all about the behaviour of women which we actually see. Not about all possible behaviours.

The reason many people are tempted to draw the stronger, more sweeping conclusion (that women cannot be mature, instead of simply that they aren't being mature), is that we wish avoid the appearance of white knighting, or watering down the message, or that we fear that it will tempt us to make unwarranted individual mental exceptions for this or that women in the course of developing oneitis ("most women are immature, but not Jane! It'll be perfectly okay to marry her without a preup!").

While these fears are of real dangers, we cannot stave them off with intellectual dishonesty. We have no evidence, hard or anecdotal, that women are incapable of maturity. We only know that they don't seem to have a lot of it.

FleetingWish argues that this is because people only become mature when they have to be, and men have protected women from this responsibility. She goes on to argue that immaturity has some benefits, and this isn't necessarily a bad thing.

This argument is sound, but I would add that immature people, while they may indeed be to provide real benefits to others via that very immaturity, also cannot be allowed to be charge. Women who avail themselves of men's protection and providing behaviour in order to remain childlike (and enjoy the benefits of this state) are implicitly accepting the authority of the people who have to do the growing up and toughening up.

This means that men should not, must not, protect or indulge women who choose to remain "the most responsible teenager", but insist on receiving the respect, deference, and autonomy of adults. Left on their own, women will either grow the fuck up and be mature, cease their demands for adult respect, and thereby purchase more indulgence from men, or sink into elderly spinsterhood, accompanied by poverty and cats, at which point we can simply ignore them.

Don't fuck a girl like it's porn... yeah right!

10 upvotes · 19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Except that there some you forgot:

- "Quit slut-shaming, you slut-shaming slut-shamer!"
- "If you really loved her, you would forgive her for this one mistake."
- "She's probably changed now, and has put all that hookup stuff behind her."
- "Have you considered an open relationship?"
- "Tell her how much she hurt your feelings. If she sees you cry, she'll know she made a mistake, and work to do better."
- "You should be happy for her!"
- "She obviously prefers you, really. After all, you're the one she holds hands with while watching romantic comedies. You're the one who holds her purse while she shops for scented candles. You're the one she tells all her problems to. "
- "You wanting to do this thing with her is rapey. Just because she did it before doesn't mean she wants to do it again."

Preselection As Applied to Venture Capitalists: Investor Herd Dynamics

10 upvotes · 13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

if you don't know the answer, copy someone else.

This certainly could explain a lot of the foolish bubbles that investors create... when you have a room full of people, who don't know the answer, trying to copy someone else, then odds are the someone else they're copying doesn't know the answer either. Effectively, everyone begins following the first person who acts like he knows what he is doing.

Is Feminism a Gender Identity Disorder?

10 upvotes · 9 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She said this is inherently misogynistic, because it's considered "negative" or "humiliating" for a man to be feminine. If it's negative or humiliating for a man to be "feminized" then femininity must be inferior to masculinity, and women must be inferior to men, otherwise it would be something positive for a man to be feminized. It would be an ego boost, not humiliating or bad.

Indeed. Whereas the truth is that it is negative or humiliating for a man to be feminine AND negative or humiliating for a woman to be masculine.

No misogyny. Just an expression of instinctive preference for sex roles and traits.

Domestic Discipline

10 upvotes · 31 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

Is it really just a cover up used by abusive dominant men who enjoy smacking their lady around?

From what I've read of the subject, relationships of this kind are often suggested by the submissive, rather than the dominant partner.

I remember in particular reading the firsthand tale of one woman buying a book on this in secret, spending weeks mustering the nerve to present it to her husband, and immediately rushing out of the room in embarrassed tears after doing so, to hide in the bedroom and bury her face in a pillow.

Does that sound like an excuse for abuse to you?

Because to me it sounds like an excuse for BDSM.

I think this kind of thing manifests among the ranks of religious conservatives alone, not because the desire is only found there, but because they are the only ones who need an excuse for BDSM. Everyone else who likes BDSM just does it.

The reason most DD practitioners take such care to separate themselves from the BDSMers is precisely that there is little difference, and they don't wish to have people noticing that. (Some DD practitioners admit this, though.)

As an active BDSMer myself, I fail to see what all the fuss is about. Perhaps most people don't realize just how damn many women are into this on some level. Once you learn to spot this, it's all over the place, and there'd be a lot more of it still if there weren't so many of those women ashamed and thinking they are the only one, or curious about it and scared to try. Seriously, some of you reading this (and I know there are some of you), you are not alone. If you have sexual fantasies about your man taking charge in the bedroom and being rough and forceful with you, you are in the majority. If your fantasies are more specific, about being tied up or spanked, or dominated by a controlling man, or if you have ever had a fantasy about being raped, then you may not be quite the majority, but there's a lot of you. Certainly more numerous than the gays.

Among those with these urges, it's not uncommon to find emotional fulfillment and satisfaction in moving that dynamic of control beyond the confines of the bedroom. It's not always merely a sexual turn on.

I plan, very soon, on writing an article here entitled "The Distinction Between Male Dominance, and Male-on-Female Relationship Abuse".

Found this in r/cringe pics. It made me pretty angry.

10 upvotes · 28 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

S'okay. She can recite it every day to her 7 cats.

Please don't feed the (Manhood Academy) trolls.

10 upvotes · 4 June 2013 · /r/MensRights

You got something amazing to say, that everyone needs to hear? Say it right here. Otherwise, I'm just going to suspect you're trying to get traffic, not make a point.

This, right here, is the forum for debate. But so far, all I have heard is tantrums. Come on, what have I got to teach me that isn't either total bullshit, or something I already know?

Tell me one thing. One thing whose insight impresses me. One. Thing.

Let's see what you're made of.

Motion to Condemn MRA groups because MRA groups condemn feminism as violent. (PDF) see p.17, first entry.

10 upvotes · 30 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

That's not an open forum. I am not going to debate scientologists on the church of scientology website, either. A debate where one of the participants controls the medium of communication is not an open debate.

Motion to Condemn MRA groups because MRA groups condemn feminism as violent. (PDF) see p.17, first entry.

10 upvotes · 30 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

No one wants to shut you up. They want you to stop spamming links to a non-discussion forum.

If you have something to say, say it here, and we will openly debate it.

AskWomen finally notices people talking about the hamster. Contributor makes whole thread devoted to hamsterizing how there is no hamster.

10 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And banned.

This message brought to you by the Department of Irony Obliviousness.

Moderator on /r/lgbt laughs and says misandry is not real.

10 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

Gay rights = "Leave us alone so we can be gay in peace".

Women's rights = "Give us stuff, protect us, provide for us".

Hard to see how anyone could think of these two ideas as "allies".

Sedit

10 upvotes · 20 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Eternal September.

If a community experiences a sharp rise in growth too quickly, the uninitiated can outnumber the experienced, and the group can no longer spread its values effectively within itself.

That group's defining values then die a slow, painful death.

"Porn scares me because I can't compete"

10 upvotes · 10 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When you are actually so ugly, uncouth, and unfeminine that a living, breathing you cannot compete with an image on a screen, then you should not only be scared, you should be ashamed.

Yes, men should find women more attractive than their computers. But that means women should be more attractive than their computers.

I used to think men who preferred masturbating to porn to hitting on women were just cowardly habitual-beta herbs. Now I'm not so sure. I think a lot of them have just decided that modern first-world women aren't worth the trouble, and it's sometimes hard to disagree.

4chan gets it right and femist erasure of male issue.

10 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

When does this actually happen? How often do 3-4 people actually get together and make a profitable game that actually becomes relevant to the games industry as a whole?

All the time.

You're moving the goal posts. But I can still hit them. CounterStrike. Team Fortress. Portal. Minecraft.

Yeah, Notch did it. One person, out of dozens or hundreds of failed attempts, and meanwhile EA cranks out another Call of Duty title and everyone immediately knows about it because they are EA and everyone pays attention whenever they release anything.

So, the gist of your complaint is "If women tried to build things, it would be hard, and some of them might fail. Women are entitled to the same level of success right out of the gate as EA, a company that built its brand over three decades."

Apex fallacy, all right.

Let's cut to the chase, instead of arguing about how much success women are entitled to.

Which of these statements do you disagree with:

- Once, there was no games industry.
- Then some people built one.
- These people were male.
- Building a game, a game company, or an entire games industry is a large task.
- This large task can be broken into small tasks.
- Women are generally capable of the same tasks as men.

What have men done here, that women can't? What form of charity do the poor dears need so they can catch up to us? Which obstacles are the ones they cannot overcome by themselves?

What is the first you personally experienced sexism with real consequences?

10 upvotes · 6 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

/r/Feminism makes me so sad. I went there before I found SRS and was like "wtf". I was looking for some soul cleansing after falling into that shittiest of shitholes, MensRights.

Apparently you felt the longing to dirty your soul again.

Feminist: Why the War on Men Doesn't Matter: "If men are frustrated by their inability to placate my anger, know that I am frustrated by your inability to placate my insecurity."

10 upvotes · 1 December 2012 · /r/MensRights

Interesting. Unlike the usual screed, this rant, while wrong in so many ways, is actually worth reading.

I am a white, heterosexual woman in my mid-twenties with a graduate degree who grew up in the suburbs. I was taught to expect everything. I was taught that I am smart, that I am beautiful, that these are gifts.

Like many women in our culture, she has been raised on constant praise and reinforcement of her "self-esteem".

For as long as I can remember I was learning how important it was to be assertive, to speak up for myself, to think critically. I may not know everything, but I honestly believe that I have the tools to learn anything that I may one day want to know.

She has been told that the world is her oyster, and she believes it.

No matter how happy I am with myself, when I am reading this article I believe that I am unlovable.

And inevitably, this has led to a sense of failure. If women are awesome, and can do not only anything men can do, but everything men can do, then when they don't, it's their fault. It must be something wrong with them personally, or a vast and shadow patriarchal conspiracy to keep them down.

Feminists have overhyped both feminism and women, and are left in crisis when they cannot deliver on that hype.

That any man who may love me will be doing so despite and not because of my passion, articulation and drive.

Passion, articulation, and drive applied to careers (or feminism itself) are the only kinds that seem to be visible to her.

When we talk about misogyny, rape culture or violence against women, they shut down. The message is usually pretty clear: "I will listen but not act. I feel like you are making me the bad guy just because of my gender. I am uncomfortable with your sadness and anger, and I am paralyzed and helpless because I don't know how to fix it."

Like most feminists, she has asked for independence, empowerment, and leadership roles, but has not truly understood what what these things are.

To be independent is not to depend on others (in this case, especially men) to solve or even sympathize with your problems. To be empowered is to act effectively on one's own behalf, and achieve results thereby. To be a leader is to tackle problems on one's own initiative, without appealing to authority figures for help.

This is, in microcosm, the inherent contradiction of the feminist movement, a contradiction not in philosophy, but in action. Feminist gains and progress have largely taken the form of women complaining to men, and receiving concessions. While asking authority figures for help is not inherently bad, it is a submissive act, and certainly not aligned with the stated goals of feminism.

If feminists truly wish to be empowered to be CEOs, they must start their own companies, rather than demanding 40% representation on the boards of the ones men have built. If feminists are truly unhappy with the portrayal of women in computer games, they need to inspire a new generation of women to major in computer science and make their own game companies, rather than paying internet bully Anita Sarkeesian to harass men about what they create with their own companies, their own time, their own passion, their own hard-earned skill.

When we talk about my relationships, insecurities and sense of worth, they come alive. This message is also pretty clear: "I can't believe that somebody like you would not recognize how desirable you can be. This feels like a problem that I can fix, so I will compliment and reassure you. Unlike anger, I know how to respond to insecurity."

And here we see the root of the problem. Raised on praise constantly given for being who they are, rather than doled out sparingly for accomplishments, women's sense of self-worth has actually suffered. Because praise is worth what you had to go through to it.

The solution to her insecurities is not more pets and cuddles and reassurance and unearned praise. It's for the people around her to have some expectations of her.

Suzanne Venker is pitting us against each other.

No, lass. We were pitted against each long ago by Andrea Dworkin. It's just that you didn't notice until the men started fighting back.

students told to disavow 'american-ness, maleness, whiteness, heterosexuality'

10 upvotes · 29 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

r/TeachMeToBeOffended is looking less like satire every day.

[NSFW] Banner image of the feminist protest group, "Femen". No, they don't hate men at all.

10 upvotes · 19 November 2012 · /r/MensRights

Don't get me wrong, Bobbit's husband was undoubtedly an asshole

It's possible, but we don't know that. We have only her word. And how trustworthy is she?

Good Guy _____

10 upvotes · 18 June 2012 · /r/MensRights

The problem isn't that you're all like that.

The problem is that, if you are, the law is on your side.

Even if I live a life of "privilege", I am not going to feel guilty about it. All that should matter to others is how I treat others.

10 upvotes · 20 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

No, what matters is how people who look like you treat others. That's how we're going to eliminate stereotyping and prejudice!

Men are victims of reverse sexism, according to new book. David Benatar argues that "more boys drop out of school, fewer men earn degrees, more men die younger, more are incarcerated" and that the issue is so under-researched it has become the prejudice that dare not speak its name.

10 upvotes · 15 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

Women also are much less represented in corporate management and the last time I looked at Congress or many First World parliaments, women are severely underrepresented.

This is what confuses so many people. A representative isn't someone who looks like you, it's someone who works on your behalf.

If my lawyer is a small Asian woman, and the other guy's lawyer is a 6'2, 200 lb Nordic man who likes martial arts, cooking, and computer games... then the one who represents me is still the former.

Congress may be full of men, but it is full of men serving the interests of women. And that's what really matters.

The Lonely Life of Julia: In Obama's ideal world, men are replaced by bureaucrats.

10 upvotes · 4 May 2012 · /r/MensRights

I like all of these programs, and one of the reasons I like them is that they benefit everybody.

Oh, really? What about the people footing the bill?

Government spending is a zero-sum game.

I tackled a female into a ditch so she wasn't mortared and now I'm being brought up on charges for it (from today's O&A show) NSFW language. Also a good discussion early on about men's only clubs and HR/workplace issues.

10 upvotes · 7 April 2012 · /r/MensRights

What the actual fuck? I hear it, and I still can't believe. Who the hell thinks someone is going to cop a feel in the middle of a rocket attack?

What the... I don't even...

...my brain is full of fuck!

Had A Painful Conversation With This Girl Today

10 upvotes · 13 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

How does supporting a rational choice by pointing to relevant evidence... correlate with voting for a loony Jesus-freak?

"A runaway slave is the worst kind of slave - one that absolutely refuses to serve his massa. My reasons were simple... if the state forces me not to be a father than I will not pretend to be one. I will certainly not pay 75% of my take home pay to someone who hates me"

10 upvotes · 5 February 2012 · /r/MensRights

This is the old "rights of the child" argument in another guise.

What you are saying is that he should put with absolutely anything, if it might somehow benefit his children, because it's not their fault this happened to him.

This argument totally denies men's humanity. It says that men's personal experiences and quality of life do not matter. That men are only worthwhile to the extent that they serve others.

Well, fuck you. He has a right to pursue happiness. And while his children do have certain claims on him, he is not the one hurting them. The people who placed him in this impossible situation get that honor.

Let's play a little game: Reframe the person above you.

10 upvotes · 25 January 2012 · /r/seduction

[Raise eyes to meet hers. Put finger to lips.]

Shhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh.

[Look back to breasts, gesture between my eyes and her breasts.]

We're having a moment.

NEW: I'm just here to dance.

All this goodness is killing me

10 upvotes · 21 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Saying that a man is a "good man" (unless you simply mean "good person") is a way of saying that men are not, by default, good. And that a man must be measured, not a human being in his own right, but as an instrument for serving others.

And feminists talk about "objectification"!

If a girl uses a toy to masturbate and this is considered normal, why does a guy using a fleshlight make him perverted or lonely? [Probably NSFW] [AskReddit XPost]

10 upvotes · 6 January 2012 · /r/MensRights

Because women are our culture's beauty and sexuality ideal. Anything that sexualizes them is seen as attractive, because they are considered to be sexy as a trait of their very existence and femaleness.

Men are sexualized only by their ability to pay, perform, and pursue. A man engaging in sexual release without a partner is seen as man who can't secure a partner, and thus, an unsexy man.

This, of course, is bullshit. I have several different sexual partners, and still masturbate a lot... because I don't always have time to go visit one.

Why the "Good men project" is worthless

10 upvotes · 9 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

It's pretty obvious that Hugo is a sexual submissive.

While there's nothing wrong with that per se, male sexual submissives have a nasty tendency to believe, and try to insist, that everyone should share their sexual dynamic, that all men should somehow be submissive to all women... as opposed to just the ones who get off on it.

If Hugo wants to be paddled by a dominatrix, fine. Let him. There's certainly a lot of women out there who like to be handcuffed to the bed and spanked, and that's okay, too.

But instead of keeping his fetish in the bedroom where it belongs, he has embarked on a crusade to align the entire world with his individual sexual tastes.

Why Does Hollywood Think Men Caring For Children Is Hilarious? | Nerve.com

10 upvotes · 6 December 2011 · /r/MensRights

I'm not sure that it's possible to say anything about the personality of "women as a group"... they're too diverse.

But women, as a group, control most household spending (source: Warren Farrel's The Myth of Male Power).

This means that is not safe for advertisers, or those who wish to sell ad space to them, to offend women, or to risk offending them. It doesn't really matter whether women will be offended by this or that, or whether they won't... there's no profit in taking that risk. The only time you see modern, mainstream television offending women is when the author had no idea whatsoever that it might do so.

By contrast, men are quite safe to insult. Not only do they represent a lot less spending power, they also have a cultural tradition of not taking things personally (something they need to tone down if they wish to change today's anti-male climate), and it is not generally socially acceptable for them to complain or express distress on their own behalf.

This means that there's one gender that is a safe scratching post, and one that isn't. What do you think is going to happen?

There is probably also some validity to the idea that women enjoy being told that their traditional responsibility and typical domain (child care) is "the toughest job on the planet"... something men could never, never do, because they aren't as capable, organized, or resourceful as women.

One can understand this appeal to the ego. Men might perhaps enjoy being told that women could never build a business, fix a car, design an aircraft, run a crab fishing vessel, or fight a war. (If that were safe to say, which it is not.)

And both these statements have about the same level of truth to them; they describe a sort of general trend in gender capabilities, but not the specific capabilities of individuals, who deserve a chance to be evaluated on their own merits.

The truth is that everyone appears capable, responsible, and brilliant when doing what they know how to do, what is important to them, and what they are talented at, while everyone appears to be a buffoon when forced outside their field of expertise or experience.

I would certainly appear to be a buffoon if asked to care for a small child, in much the same way that a woman selected from among daycare center employees would appear clownish if asked to discharge my responsibilities (writing cryptographic software, teaching martial arts, and so on).

The misandry is not the acknowledgement that most men have little interest in, or skill at, caring for the children of others... it's the gender-exclusive practice of depicting males, and only males, outside their zone of competence, as figures of fun. Can you imagine what an outcry there would be if someone remade "Flight of the Phoenix" with an all-female cast, as a comedy about how women couldn't fix anything, or endure harsh conditions?

Now, whether the solution is for women to be less sensitive to every last portrayal, or for men to be more so, that's up for debate. But there needs to be some parity.

Warn men: "if your wife decides to divorce you for another man, there will be well respected Christians lining up to justify her decision and place all of the blame on you"

10 upvotes · 9 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

If you marry someone who believes the universe was handcrafted by an invisible wizard, who become very angry at humans when a rib-woman was tricked into eating magic fruit by a talking snake, so angry that he had to become his own son and then kill himself to appease his own wrath...

... and then you're surprised when she does something crazy...

...then I don't know what to tell you.

Are you all incredibly angry, delusional, hateful, depressed, violently upset, hate your wife (or hate women because you don't have one), support rape with false statistics, ... or is there some kind of smear campaign against r/mensrights?

10 upvotes · 2 November 2011 · /r/MensRights

The charge of being "misogynistic neckbeards who cannot get laid" is certainly the most common one.

While it's transparently obvious that this would be crass, lowbrow, irrelevant mudslinging even if it were true, I think we still owe it to ourselves to examine this charge and talk about it.

Part One: The general answer... an answer for all men

The idea is that our motivation for objecting to the status quo is that we must be failing to thrive in it, rather than that it is unjust. And one may suppose that in every revolution there are some malcontents whose grievances are personal failings projected onto the system.

But if we look at the statistics for things like education, net worth, the divorce rate, and so forth, for most of the western world, we see that men in general are failing to thrive the way they used to. So we're left with two possibilities:

1. Men are inherently, biologically, inferior and cannot thrive unless they are societally advantaged. (The "all men are neckbeards" argument.)
2. Men are failing to thrive because they are being treated in ways that harm them. (The "men's rights" argument.)

Number 1 doesn't pass the laugh test. If men were inherently inferior, how could they possibly have secured this systematic societal advantage?

Number 2 is what we are on about.

I will give a personal answer to the same question as a reply to this post.

Being called "Creepy" ostracizes people, usually men. If you're a creep shamer, fuck you!

10 upvotes · 26 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

It can't be accurate because it's too general to mean anything. An attractive, relaxed, confident guy could have used that same line on you, and it would have been witty.

The word "creepy" really just means "makes me uncomfortable". Unless you go on to explain how or why, you can't expect it to stop... because you haven't explained what "it" is.

Why do you deserve to know if the woman you're fucking is trans?

10 upvotes · 12 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Not this shit again.

Look, you don't get to decide what someone else's priorities or sexual tastes should be. No one died and made you king of anything.

"Want more women in open source? Try paying them." Oh feminists, if you want women to be equal you should probably stop suggesting they require spoon feeding.

10 upvotes · 12 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

Meanwhile, the article next door suggests that there aren't very many men bloggers because they are too busy with all the sports and drinking and porn

These people are their own parody.

I need help explaining why circumcision is bad...

10 upvotes · 11 October 2011 · /r/MensRights

told me that she would "be a good mother and have her boy circumcised", and then explained how men only want to not be cut so they can enjoy sex.

That's funny, it's also the main reason why women don't want to be "cut".

Those crazy heathens, wanting to enjoy sex...

Hugo Schwyzer's latest idiocy: women are the "new Jews" being held back because they are too bright

10 upvotes · 25 September 2011 · /r/MensRights

The numerus clausus (artificial restriction on the percentage of Jewish students admitted) was a real phenomenon in America and Europe in first half of the 20th century. It was a gross injustice that deprived humanity of many potentially excellent scholars, diplomats and technical professionals.

Upvoted you for this (I love comments that teach me something new)...

Women are half of humanity. Men are half of humanity. If your college is not admitting humanity in roughly equal measure, then there is something seriously wrong with your college's recruitment procedures

But I have to disagree with this.

Two populations, equal in numbers, will only produce an equal number of scholars if they are roughly the same in both ability and desire for scholarship.

This is why there are so many Jewish Nobel prize winners. While talent seems to be roughly equal in distribution between ethnic groups, the desire for academic success is certainly not equally distributed among ethnic cultures.

Equal of opportunity does not imply equality of outcome, and therefore inequality of outcome does not imply inequality of opportunity.

I think we have to look not only at the ways that universities are still bending over backwards to admit more women (despite their majority), but also at the ways in which a university education has become less attractive to men.

A university education used to be a man's route not only to financial security and respect, but to mating privileges and a family. Now, feminism has to a large degree removed all of these incentives.

Why Women Think That 80% of Men are "Below Average"

10 upvotes · 15 July 2011 · /r/MensRights

simple creatures that we are

No. Nonononono. Bad blogger. No cookie.

Stop perpetuating the stereotype that women are subtle, sophisticated, and nuanced creatures, and men are a bunch of stimulus-response apes.

Women may weigh physical appearance less than we do, but what they do weigh instead, they apply with even less sophistication and self-understanding than men do.

According to those who ought to know, the one type of person with the least understanding of what women find attractive is... a woman.

One of the reasons that women consider themselves "too good" for the vast majority of men, ignoring the realities of the marketplace, is that writers like you keep repeating myths like this about how we are all a bunch of monkeys.

Cut it out.

Find out how to conquer jealousy...

10 upvotes · 29 June 2011 · /r/seduction

Jealousy is not about love. It is about fear of loss.

With an abundance mentality, this fear is at least greatly reduced.

Just a heads up to r/Mensrights: This redditor is spending hours every day actively running a campaign against you, try to bombard you with downvote brigades

10 upvotes · 19 June 2011 · /r/MensRights

Aerik is reddit's resident ultrafeminist troll. She/he/it/they has been around for years. In any large enough community, there will always be some who aren't all there.

The Secret to Success with Women...

10 upvotes · 17 May 2011 · /r/seduction

Demonstrate value.

Sex Premarital, Casual and Otherwise

9 upvotes · 10 May 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Slut-shaming is the only part about RPW that makes me uncomfortable

You've misunderstood.

RPW has no moral stances. There is no position here that a slut is a "bad person". Hell, we have a literal prostitute who reads this stuff, and comments occasionally, and no one's interested in kicking her out.

RPW doesn't recommend for or against things because they are "right" or "wrong". Instead it does so because they are good or bad strategy for getting what you want.

The women here don't care if you banged 65 dudes. They're telling you that dudes care if you banged 65 other dudes.

The use of the word "mansplaining"

9 upvotes · 24 March 2022 · /r/MensRights

Just tell her not to womanterrupt you.

Does doing that stop false sexual harassment claims?

9 upvotes · 3 January 2022 · /r/AntiFeminists

I missed the part where this is my problem.

What skill has helped you the most? Formerly awful person here.

9 upvotes · 8 December 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

We've gotten into a rut of no sex as I've gained tons of weight

Lose tons of weight.

Do some men in the manosphere want to "turn back the clock" and dislike the modern world?

9 upvotes · 25 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Don't mistake redpill for tradcon. Redpill isn't about changing society. It's about learning to navigate whatever society you find yourself in.

Everyone's feelings are valid (unless you're a man who was just rejected by a woman) [vent]

9 upvotes · 24 August 2021 · /r/MenSupportMen

If you are male, not gay, and sexually active or trying to be, you will get rejected a lot. Even very very expert "pickup artist" types will usually be rejected by more than 50% of women, if they just approached them all. Most people who complain a lot about "niceguys" taking rejection poorly are not quite understanding that they are seeing a reaction, in a single incident, to many accumulated rejections.

And it's that last part that tells us how to address this problem in our lives. If we are hearing "no", over and over and over again, and never "yes", then there is probably something about our approach we need to change, not for anyone else's sake, but so we can hear "yes" more often.

Because that is the real antidote to the hurt of rejection. Not being soothed, not venting, but hearing "yes". Women's pickiness about mating is built into their DNA, but if it wasn't surpassible, we wouldn't be here. And if your ancestors weren't attractive enough to mate, you wouldn't be here.

So, sometimes, what we really need to do is reject the cultural standard of advice about how to approach women (which wasn't written by people who care about you), and take a long hard look at what they actually respond to.

What We Saw In Afghanistan Today is Proof That Men Don't Even Protect Submissive Women

9 upvotes · 17 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Why is this relevant? Do you somehow need my permission, or the permission of the US armed forces, to go help women?

How young is too young to be in a committed relationship?

9 upvotes · 13 August 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I am wondering if I am too young to be in a committed relationship.

That depends on you. It's not about how old you are, it's about what you are and are not capable of.

People tell me that dating is about discovering yourself

People say a lot of stupid things which are intended to sound wise, but are actually meaningless.

when does that switch to finding a husband?

When you are ready to work on building a permanent relationship.

People Who Advocate For The End Of Monogamy Never Talk About The Downsides Of Its Alternatives, But There Are Many

9 upvotes · 13 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I'm hearing a lot about what poly relationships are like from a lot of people who have never been in one.

What happened to r/mgtow is a wake up call for r/mensrights

9 upvotes · 4 August 2021 · /r/MensRights

I am glad you enjoyed them. I shall continue to write regardless of whether out-of-touch Bay area tech nerds approve or not.

How do I (F20) tell my boyfriend (M25) that I would like him to cover the expenses during a date?

9 upvotes · 16 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, in other words, you want your boyfriend to bankroll you so you can look cool to your friends?

What is "red pill"?

9 upvotes · 15 June 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

What are the origins of RP? In your opinion.

Well, presumably you know who I am, so it's not just my opinion.

Here are the basic facts:

It started with the pickup artist (PuA) phenomenon. On reddit, discussion of this subject took place in a now-largely-defunct group called r/seduction. Obviously, the material was much different back then (more focused on what to say and do in the moment, and less on how to shape yourself into the sort of man women desire), but this was early days and we were still figuring stuff out.

At this time, some of the guys who would become the RP founders ("Vanguard" flairs) were simply a bunch of guys who hung out on r/seduction, and tended to notice and comment on each others' posts. We were sort of a clique, but not explicitly so, with a few exceptions (/u/humansockpuppet and I have known each other in person for longer than reddit, let alone TRP, has existed).

After a while, something happened which would eventually destroy r/seduction. It was invaded by people who were not really there mainly for the group's primary purpose. Instead, they wished to police the group to ensure it did not say unflattering things about women, or teach pickup tactics that might make them sad. As you can imagine, this diluted the group's primary purpose, and it began to lose the ability to effectively discuss what it was supposed to be about. Not completely at first, of course, but we could see the writing on the wall.

So one of our number, the now-departed /u/pk_atheist, created another community, which he chose to tag with the metaphor of the "red pill", from an old science fiction movie, and he invited the rest of us to join him, both in posting there, and in figuring out just what we wanted to do with that community.

In early discussions, we decided that we wished to hyperfocus on the goal of exploring what worked, without regard to pleasing the sensibilities of observers. We realized that a hunter who chases two rabbits at once will catch neither.

Additionally, we decided that the group needed to have a structure and culture that would be not just resilient, but antifragile against the sort of outside interference that eventually ate /r/seduction.

So we did two things to accomplish this:

First, we created a custom (which I eventually codified as a rule) that alleging moral imperatives was verboten. We took this so seriously that it even applied to moral imperatives that we and everyone else agreed on. Even if someone were to say "You shouldn't eat babies, it's wrong.", we'd socially punish, or even possibly ban, them. This allowed us to keep the focus to tactical imperatives: "You shouldn't eat babies, because they are hard to get, it tends to invite retaliation, and they don't actually taste better than veal".

Second, we encouraged misogyny. Our goal there was to make the group SO unpleasant for moral busybodies that they wouldn't want to hang out there.

This later one was the anti-fragile aspect we designed in. We fully realized and intended that the more the group was criticized for "misogyny", the more it would develop a sense of being a community under siege, and the more it would bond and radicalize.

In fact, having an opposition group was always part of the plan. We were hoping that TBP would arise spontaneously, but, if it didn't, there were plans in place to create something like it.

One of the things we very quickly discovered was that the misogyny was the secret sauce that made TRP effective, orders of magnitude more effective, in fact, than the old seddit/PuA material. We didn't understand why, at first, but the more misogynistic we got on TRP, the more women wanted to touch our junk in our physical lives.

We were... stunned, at first, really. It was bizarre. It was like having cheat codes for life. We stared at each other in metaphorical consternation, unable to believe the shit we just got away with. I fully understand people calling the field reports "lies", because I wouldn't have believed it, either, if that I hadn't seen shit like that go down, with my own eyes.

I've made girls get down on their hands and knees in public, and used them as a footrest. Just to prove that I could. And they'd giggle and get turned on. Not freaky, broken, drug addict women... ordinary girls from religious upbringings with loving, supportive parents. I know you don't believe me. That's okay, I didn't believe me.

Eventually, however, we figured the misogyny thing out. It's pretty simple, really. Humans have a powerful protective instinct towards females of their species ... and men who are in the grip of that instinct are unable to effectively treat women as if they were made of the same selfish goo as the rest of us. They cannot learn seduction until and unless they learn to selectively suppress it.

That's why every attempt to water down TRP, make it palatable, or make "TRP without the misogyny" has failed. Because you need to first break that surface tension of indiscriminate protective instinct.

Men who don't do that end up dealing with women who are putting their own interests first, by also putting the women's interests before theirs. And most women not only take advantage of them, but despise them, because they mistake that decency for weakness (since they, themselves, feel no protective instinct towards men, and are thus unaware that men have one for them).

It is only when a man makes this protective instinct his servant, rather than his master, that he is able to adopt the behaviour of a high-value man, who is indifferent to women rather than protective, because of the sheer abundance he experiences of their attention.

The surprising thing, then, is that there was really no ideology at any point. Everything we did was simply following where our explorations led us.

What a long, strange trip it's been.

Husband sends me pictures of Instagram models daily, need some advice

9 upvotes · 7 June 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's very hard to interpret his intent or mindset from this small description.

Could you give a more detailed description of how the conversation goes when you try to talk to him about this?

The existence of all red pill ideology highlights one big issue: Why do we tell people looks/money/personality type doesn't matter when it does?

9 upvotes · 26 April 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

So, what is the point of all this? I am not sure, I am just thinking.

You're thinking out loud. Thinking out loud is how I stopped being just some guy and became Whisper.

Though I don't really love that this is the way the world works, I am fully aware that this is a system I CHOOSE to participate in, one that I will be a part of for the rest of my life.

The red pill is the simple realization that What I want to be true and what actually is true have no relationship to each other.

I'm not sure how I will ever tell my children that this is the way the world works

The choice you have is whether you wish to prepare them for life as best you can, or whether you are selfish enough to sabotage them merely to avoid the momentary discomfort of giving them bad news.

Looks like my boyfriend is RP and I don't know what to do

9 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Following this conversation, I told him I need more in terms of communication. I need to know how he feels about me and I need him to communicate with me when we aren't together. I don't need him to check in 24/7 but a couple times during the day would be sufficient to show he's thinking of me.

You brought him your solution, not your problem.

A break up ahead. The end of 3 years with my best friend and life partner. The only man I've truly known.

9 upvotes · 30 March 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

Don't give unsolicited advice, and you're much less likely to have serious arguments.

Female Dating Strategy subreddit doesn't offer any actual strategy to find and keep HVM (High Value Men)

9 upvotes · 23 February 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

This mental model only really works if men are inert lumps who do not respond to the world around them in any meaningful way.

It is absolutely true that women are interested in attracting fewer men, so narrowing down the choices is important, but it's important to narrow down the choices in such a way that she is not left with the worst ones.

Any woman can very easily drive men away by developing an entitled attitude. But which ones will be most easily driven away?

Why, the ones with lots of other options, of course.

The real trick for a woman is how to remain warm, kind, and approachable, while putting off undesirable or unsuitable men without drama.

That is a very tall order, and anyone who can teach that can do women a great deal of good.

I don't think FDS does or can teach that. It seems to be more focused around emotionally comforting women who have been unlucky in love, by telling them they are high-value, and that all of their problems are men's fault.

Is it just me or is there a lot of feminist viewpoints in this sub?

9 upvotes · 17 February 2021 · /r/RedPillWomen

I do not think a 30 year old woman who is not married is a red pill woman

There are no red pill women.

There are no red pill men.

The red pill is a set of strategies and observations, not of people. The advice here is available to any heterosexual woman, whether she is over 30, under 30, married, dating, single, whatever.

If you are going to fuss about advice being available to those who need it most, then I am not sure you understand the whole concept of "advice".

"don't treat men like humans" - endorsed by FDS

9 upvotes · 11 February 2021 · /r/AntiFeminists

This is because women don't treat men like humans unless they are attracted to them.

This Article Will Infuriate You

9 upvotes · 6 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Judging from the comments this is an issue that I'm sure everyone can admit at least requires more investigation. I too believe people are sleeping on fasting. Having been fat I can definitely attest to the fact that simply being fat has all sorts negative effects on your hormones, energy levels, and so on, it creates a self reinforcing trap where your problems are dealt with by doing things that make you even more fat and thus your problems become even worse. It is a truly horrific way to live and most people don't know any better. There is so much misinformation and commonly accepted falsehoods about food, to make matters worse diets themselves become pseudo religions just like atheism/wokeism where people are extremely hostile and dogmatic.

That's exactly why I wrote this. It's all information already out there, but it's not being spread very well, because there is a critical mass of people who don't want to hear about it, nearly to the level of putting their fingers in their ears and saying llalalalalalalalalalIcanthearyou.

Food companies that are getting rich off poisoning us, I can understand. Doctors who don't want to face the embarrassment of realizing they spent their whole careers actively making things worse, I can understand.

What I can't understand is fit people who spout this nonsense about how the body is just a passive box for calories. It's like, great, okay, you're a pro-am bodybuilder who's been counting his macros for twenty years so you can be five percent when you get on stage in your posing pouch, congratulations, you have a healthy metabolism, you're a pepper, we wuv you very much... but you know absolutely jack and shit about how to help fat sick people.

I don't write articles to jerk off the egos of people who don't need my help. They can go look in a mirror or something and stop fucking demanding headpats from me for not having this problem, because they are getting the way of helping people who do.

Your experience, as someone who was sick, and got healthy, is infinitely more valuable to people, because you can speak from experience about what worked and what didn't.

The majority of my calories consisted of soda, and after replacing it with diet soda/water my calories dropped drastically down to 1500 or less per day, a drop that I did not even notice for months, my hunger did not increase for some reason.

Yes, exactly. Because soda is sugar water: glucose and fructose. Those two substances, in the absence of any fat, protein, or fiber, don't trigger satiety signals. They don't make you feel "full" no matter how much you drink. So that portion of your diet contributed nothing to how full you felt. Take it away, no subjective difference.

I tried eating more to attempt to reset my metabolism, I tried intermittent fasting with an 6-8 hour feeding window, tried different diets, and so on. The only thing that eventually worked was extended fasting.

Yes. Time window eating is good, but for some people, their metabolism is damaged enough that it simply isn't strong enough medicine for them. The closer you are to diabetic, the longer you need to fast before your insulin goes low and allows you to start unpacking.

Fasting works because no matter how fucked your metabolism is, once you're in a fasted state your metabolism actually increases for awhile, it is as if it is hard coded to operate a certain way when you're fasted.

Because it is. If you think about it, how fucked would primitive man be if his metabolism slowed down when he couldn't find food? That would make finding food even harder.

A fat body is a body with a full gas tank. You're not going to panic and start throwing the cargo overboard until the needle gets close to "E".

I would say that if CICO works for you

Indeed. It's not that the laws of thermodynamics don't hold. Of course they do. The problem is with the passive-calorie-box hypothesis is not that insulin is a mysterious substance that creates energy out of nothing, but that the body is an active engine that responds to stimuli. It can burn things slowly or quickly. It can make you move or make you stay still. And it can force, literally force, you to eat.

If you can absolutely control your eating and exercise behaviour, then, congratulations, your metabolism is already healthy, and you don't have a problem. Stop getting in the way of people who do, by spewing misinformation.

And even if you can absolutely control your eating and exercising, you still can't control your basal metabolic rate, which is how most of your energy is used. That's why I can inject you with insulin while giving you less to eat and you'll still get fatter.

Start small with intermittent fasting and build yourself up from there whilst making sure you establish a new outlet for your stress, for me it was powerlifting and 1-2 hour walks, whatever works for you.

Readers, pay attention to this guy. He's not just theorizing, he has been there and done that.

Why do I keep attracting such damaged women?

9 upvotes · 8 January 2021 · /r/askTRP

We all attract a lot of damaged women.

The trick is to value yourself to a degree where you don't take bad deals. Any baggage she has, she has make up for with things she brings to the table.

Sound familiar

9 upvotes · 3 January 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Wait, my slaves have personalities.

Am I doing misogyny wrong?

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

9 upvotes · 30 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm less concerned about him not reading early 20th century intellectuals than I am about his basic lack of cynicism.

Unless people learn to think in terms of incentives, they can't learn to understand why things happen the way they do.

All of human mating behaviour derives from the fact that eggs are expensive and sperm is cheap, which in turn derives from human babies having giant heads. This is just an explanation of biology in terms of the incentives that drive evolution.

Similarly, institutional behaviour can be understood the same way. Institutions that act in accordance with their stated goals are those where individual incentives align with those goals. Institutions which do not are those which have individual incentives which do not align.

This isn't so much philosophy as it is basic common sense... every human being acts in what they believe to be their own personal interest, regardless of whether they are consciously aware of that, or have simply rationalized enough to believe they are serving a higher purpose.

People who don't acknowledge this will forever fail to predict even the most obvious future events. But generally, these people are not failing through stupidity (inability to understand) or ignorance (lack of exposure to examples or explanations). No, they are failing through wishful thinking (the blue pill).

In other words, the mental distress they will experience at realizing that their "leaders" do not represent them, and that societies do not exist to care for their members, is a disincentive to them that outweighs whatever benefit they hope to get from understanding why things happen and being able to predict what will happen next. They want to inhabit the nice matrix.

So, whether you can "redpill" someone or not, by talking to them, is less dependent on what information and insights you are able to expose them to, than is upon their emotional resilience in the face of bad news.

Girlfriend became "asexual" after 4 years of relationship

9 upvotes · 20 December 2020 · /r/askTRP

There's two possibilities... either she's just not that into you, or she has developed a health problem.

Which of these it is can be told by how she deals with it. If she is distressed by this, wants her libido back, is eager to get blood tests to see what's wrong, and is willing to suck you off even if she is not in the mood, then she is probably telling the truth.

If she is content like this, and expects you to just stop wanting sex, then either she is lying, or she is telling the truth, and is the sort of entitled chick you don't want to be in a relationship with.

Mouth too small for blow jobs

9 upvotes · 20 December 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

You get it.

+1

/u/pearlsandstilettos /u/luckylittlestar

Do NOT shame onlyfans creators

9 upvotes · 15 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

+1 /u/crazyhorseinvincible

TRP has an End Game

9 upvotes · 23 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Isn't interesting how the working class is the darling of the left, and the producer of all value, when the left wants to speak on their behalf, but the moment they speak on their own behalf they become a bunch of hicks who just fell off the hay wagon?

Is not being college educated a dealbreaker?

9 upvotes · 20 September 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is why men avoid women with fancy educations... they know that such women frequently don't respect anyone without.

I recommend some introspection. What do you really think of people without degrees? Can you respect him?

If the answer is "No", then you don't have to make some half-assed excuse like "he lied!".

Attraction isn't voluntary. Not attracted to him because no degree?

Fine. Write in your profile "You must have a college degree, preferably at least a master's."

Be upfront about what you want.

Apart from sex, I dread spending time with gf

9 upvotes · 15 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

You got any advice for me?

Read the Bitch Management Hierarchy.

Would it be okay to get a girlfriend a gift once in a while out of the blue ?

9 upvotes · 1 July 2020 · /r/askTRP

Out of the blue is the best time. They don't develop expectations.

The other day one of my girlfriends got the other one a face mask with a red panda snout printed on it. There was much excited squealing.

Just got a knife pulled on me

9 upvotes · 10 June 2020 · /r/askTRP

You live in Texas and don't carry a gun?

I need to write another article, don't I?

CMV: It is a myth that society is anti-male and anti-masculinity

9 upvotes · 3 May 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

So, if the perception of victimhood isn't empowering for women, why are you clutching at it so eagerly?

Living with my girl for a month, bad idea or no?

9 upvotes · 26 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

I have two live-in girlfriends (supplemented with the occasional side piece when it's not pandemic time), "FunSize" (because she's built on the scale of a pixie) and "FanGirl" (because I met her when she wrote fanmail to the "Whisper" account).

How to not have oneitis

9 upvotes · 20 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3ip7vv/beating_infatuation_the_most_common_form_of/

How do you guys stay so disciplined?

9 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

Any time you're having trouble with something, try imaging it in a different way. Words are the building blocks we make our thoughts out of, and they carry all sorts of implications which change the way we think.

You have trouble building discipline. But do you have trouble getting into a habit?

How to get over revenge fantasies?

9 upvotes · 11 April 2020 · /r/askTRP

It's not revenge you are fantasizing about, exactly. It's "I will show them all". That means you still care what they think. It means you still measure your success by their opinion of you.

You surrender power over you to everyone you need something from... including their good opinion.

Should I message him?

9 upvotes · 10 March 2020 · /r/RedPillWomen

I would be interested in revisiting but feel like he should reach out first considering he was the one who ended things.

"Should" means "I want".

You want to be with him again. You want him to reach out to you.

Well, it's good to want things, but if you try to navigate your life by wanting things and silently waiting for others to give them to you, you're going to be disappointed... not regularly, but constantly.

I had to call in an air strike on a lot of comments telling you that you shouldn't initiate contact with men because you are a woman. Of course, since "should" means "I want", that really means they don't want you to. They don't want you to because the idea of you having to do anything to get what you want clashes with their worldview, and the idea that women might have to take any sort of responsibility for doing something in order to get a good outcome... well, that makes them uncomfortable.

But they are just watching your life. You are the one who has to live it.

There is no other person in the universe who is willing to put as much energy into getting you what you want as you are.

If the amount you are willing to put in is zero, guess what that means.

Single Motherhood, Vetting, and why Redpill should be taught to young man at school

9 upvotes · 20 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Redpill, should be adapted to be appropriate for middle school and high school kids. They should learn these facts.

"Should" just means "I want".

While this kind of learning is very good for young men, the education system is not interested in being good for young men. It is interested in making young men good for those whose interests it serves.

Who is that? Well, look at who makes up that education system and who makes decisions within it. HmMMM.

Ladies, what would you say most guys you have rejected have in common?

9 upvotes · 27 January 2020 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The trick is having a calibrated sexuality to one's approach.

Being completely non-sexual shows lack of confidence, and dishonesty about one's intent. You look like a "Niceguy".

Being overtly and demandingly sexual (unless you have some special social proof or status to back it up) comes off as thirsty, desperate, and socially clueless.

The art of the innuendo is useful here. Done right, the implication of sexuality without overt pushiness gives the impression of confidence and even classiness and wit.

Why this total disregard for boys and their right to genital integrity? Infant boy lost his penis head during circumcision, but apparently its no big deal because they created a fake penis out from his scrotum and he can urinate just fine. Wtf?

9 upvotes · 23 December 2019 · /r/MensRights

The boy also didn't lose the glans/head during the act of circumcision, but as a result of necrotic gangrene, following a surgical site infection 2 days prior.

I didn't kill that busload of nuns by driving drunk, the impact of my car and the subsequent fuel tank explosion did it.

FWB is very attracted to me but doesn't want a relationship. I just want to see if I can.

9 upvotes · 25 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

Her reason for not wanting to be ltr is because she likes attention, she doesn't know what she wants, because she wants to experiment with girls in college (she is 20), she doesn't want to settle down at 20, and because she is scared of hurting me (I've treated her well so far).

No, no, no, no, no, and no.

Do not listen to what women say is the reason they do or want things. Do not listen to what they say they want.

Women are the most perfect liars ever born. Women's entire social matrix consists of bullshitting one another and themselves. It wouldn't even occur to most women to tell the truth, and if they wanted to, they couldn't, because after all that, they have no idea what truth is.

Every single post on RPW that I respond to with advice, the first step is to cut through the bullshit and get at the real story. If women always lie to me, and other women, at the very moment they are asking for help, how much more do you think they will lie to you when it's in their interest that you be deceived?

Never trust anything a woman says to you unless and until her actions prove it to be true.

Ex-plate hits me up now that she's 29

9 upvotes · 24 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

It's not important whether you seem butthurt or not. If you don't want anything from her, then her opinion doesn't matter.

Either say nothing, or go with simple honesty, phrased in a non-spiteful fashion: "I no longer find you attractive."

What happened to AskTRP and TRP?

9 upvotes · 22 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

They should have either hired someone, sought professional advice, or something.

Have you donated? That costs money, you know.

We're not making a dime off this. We're in the red even before you consider the many hours of our time we have given.

Why? Because we never tried to monetize. We were always about the message. And we know you're a bunch of broke-ass college kids. Honestly, some of you young bros even complained when I put up an entirely voluntary bitcoin tip jar.

So, no, we're not going to hire a web designer unless you guys can cough up what that costs. And let's be honest, you're not going to. I don't think donations even cost hosting costs.

LTR still wants to text ex-boyfriend. What to do?

9 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/askTRP

So I gave her another shot.

There is nothing I can say to you that will magically make you not a fucking retard.

Good luck out there.

'An Essay for Women,' by Rollo Tomassi

9 upvotes · 1 November 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

Men listen to messages, women listen to messengers.

Before one can tell a woman hard truths, things that are going to hurt, emotionally, to hear... she has to trust you. To believe you choose your words and actions with her long-term welfare as a real factor. This requires things like time, proven competence, a show of understanding of where she's coming from, etc, etc.

But once you have done this, you can say almost anything and she can take it. Women can take quite a roughing up, literal or metaphorical, if they know their interests are being looked out for by the person doing it.

TRP Men after break-up go back to spinning plates, what should I, as a woman, do?

9 upvotes · 27 October 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen

We broke up.

The same night I made a mistake by checking his Instagram and I've noticed that girls from club (he met 2 weeks ago but I was mad about it) followed him. I watched their stories and I saw one of them is with him in a room. Casual selfie. But obviously they slept together. Now I'm shattered.

That's because there's something you don't understand about men.

