

redpillschool

ARCHIVE

www.TheRedArchive.com

ABOUT THIS ARCHIVE

Everything /u/redpillschool wrote across the subreddits TheRedArchive holds: 873 posts and 11,387 comments published between January 2013 and February 2026.

About /u/redpillschool. Most of the posts here come from /r/TheRedPill — 695 of 873 — with the rest in /r/askTRP and /r/RedPillWomen, and 9 other subreddits. The 11,387 comments come mostly from there too. Between them the posts drew 140,008 upvotes; the most upvoted is “/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!” (April 2016, 1,803).

About TheRedArchive. TheRedArchive is a free, public archive of the Red Pill community, built so that none of this writing can quietly disappear. It holds 1,737,515 posts and 40,041,416 comments from 45 subreddits and 58 blogs. Much of it survives nowhere else — the accounts deleted, the subreddits banned, the websites long offline. All of it is free to read, search and download, and always will be, at www.TheRedArchive.com.

Support the mission. This Red Pill archive is free — no paywall, no account — but keeping it online isn't. I pay for the servers, the storage and the bandwidth myself, so that this valuable knowledge stays online. If you want to support the mission and archive, become one of the people who help keep it online at www.TheRedArchive.com/#help.

Share this file freely, and keep a copy of your own. What sits on one server can be taken down; what sits on a thousand hard drives cannot.

Best regards,

/u/dream-hunter

Founder of TheRedArchive
August 15, 2026

15

UPVOTES

The feelings slut

4 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/01/dont-be-feelings-slut.html>

2

UPVOTES

We're Gonna Need A Bigger Hamster « Chateau Heartiste

4 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://heartiste.wordpress.com/2012/12/21/were-gonna-need-a-bigger-hamster/>

9

UPVOTES

Feminists seek to ban sex-bots
4 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theantifeminist.com/feminists-seek-legislation-over-sex-bots/>

37

UPVOTES

Woman: The Most Responsible Teenager In The House - If you only read one thing today, it's this.

5 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://no-maam.blogspot.fr/2012/06/woman-most-responsible-teenager-in.html>

7 | Alpha Game: Why men lie
UPVOTES 5 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/01/why-men-lie.html>

22

UPVOTES

Building rapport via text to minimize flake rate

5 January 2013 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

Here's some game that I've been piecing together. We've all experienced flakes, some of us have even gotten to the place where flakes are the norm, and follow through from girls is the exception to the rule.

I've developed a small system that seems to reduce the flake rate.

It's always been said on here that flaking is due to lack of rapport (or lack of attraction!), and you have to build some amount of comfort before a girl will go to see you.

There are a lot of strategies that focus on making sure your initial approach was spot-on A-game, but not a lot of posts focusing on the reality, which is that not every approach ends in an F-close, or even a K-close, and sometimes logistics stand in your way.

So here's my trick to building rapport via text. This works great in scenarios where the time between initial meetup and subsequent meetup is too long (like a week), or if you got a number but haven't secured a date yet.

Obviously, to start, good text game requires you to reciprocate text delay. If she's slow, you need to be slow too. Cannot appear over-eager.

Do not send messages that show interest, instead, use texts to build rapport.

I like to send periodic texts. Wait a few days in between and send something like, "I just broke the zipper on my jacket!"

It's not needy, a little funny, and sparks a short conversation with no demanding overtone (like, "so when are we getting together", which becomes demanding and she'll likely be turned off).

If she responds to your one-offs, I'd do little games. Here's one I used just recently due to my cold:

Me: I just realized why people spend extra on tissues with lotion!

Her: Nose sore?

Me: Terrible!

Her: lol

Me: Let's play a game

Her: what kind of game?

Me: Truth or dare

Her: What? Over the phone?

Me: Pick one

Her: Truth

... And so on. Go through 2 or 3 rounds. Make sure that the dares are funny and interesting, and demand that you "set it up" so the dare takes place next time you see them. I typically choose not to sexually escalate during rapport building.

That gives her an investment in you, builds rapport, and makes her less likely to flake or go cold by the end. I'd ask questions that make her qualify herself to me, like "What's your best quality?"

By playing that game, you also ensure that you're both in your frame, because you don't simply respond to texts, you steer the conversation.

This gets her used to conversing with you, and gives you plenty of inside-joke material for when you get together. Obviously seal the deal after a good back-n-forth, something like, "geez I didn't realize how alike we are! Let's get coffee tuesday"

Sometimes a particular text from her might derail your train. Something random like "I can't wait to get home to my puppy." Girls send the fucking least on-topic messages sometimes. My plan of attack is usually to ignore them and push through. Example:

Her: Truth? Ok what's your longest relationship?

Me: Longest? Well let's see, I think a few years

Her: lol wow commitment guy.

Me: She used a strong sedative

Pause

Her: lol. I can't wait to go home to see my puppy

What the fuck? How is this relevant. Push forward

Me: Truth or Dare?

Her: Truth

And so it continues.

6

UPVOTES

[Mod] On Voting

5 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You all probably noticed I've made a few changes around here, new graphics and some other stuff.

I changed the voting buttons to red pill and blue pill. I want this to be what you consider when you decide to vote on something.

Red pill (upvote) means you think the post is congruent with the red pill.

Blue pill (downvote) means you think the post represents plugged-in advice or theory.

We can easily weed out beta-type advice this way.

That is all.

21

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement: 2013 AMA Series about to begin

7 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Well it's a new year and we're starting off right. I've been in touch with a lot of the prominent voices of the manosphere, and we're still working out particulars on a lot of these, but I'm posting the announcement right now because our AMA series is going to begin shortly, and I don't want anybody to miss them.

I'm going to put this list in the sidebar, and update it as more details arrive. Here's our current schedule:

Date (EST)	Name	Site

More TBA

Previous AMAs

Date (EST)	Name	Site	Link
1/09/13 12:00pm	Ian Ironwood	The Red Pill Room	AMA Thread
1/15/13 10:00am	Vox Day	Alpha Game Plan	AMA Thread
1/21/13 12:00pm	Rollo Tomassi	Rational Male	AMA Thread
1/28/13 12:00pm	xsplat	Random Xpat Rantings	AMA Thread
2/04/13 06:00pm	RooshV	RooshV , Return of Kings	AMA Thread
2/13/13 11:00am	Redpillwifey	Adventures in Red Pill Wifery	AMA Thread
2/19/13 12:00 PM	JonFrost25	Freedom Twenty-Five	AMA Thread
2/24/13 8:00pm	Jack Donovan	Jack Donovan, The way of men	AMA Thread
3/12/13 7:00 PM	Private Man	The Private Man, Red Pill Dating	AMA Thread
3/28/13 10:00 AM	M3	M3	AMA Thread
12/11/13 7:00 PM	Tuthmosis	Return of Kings	AMA Thread

5

UPVOTES

Will Being A Misogynist Help You Get Laid?

7 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2247/will-being-a-misogynist-help-you-get-laid>

0

UPVOTES

The True Romantics - "In the same way you cannot negotiate genuine desire, likewise you cannot engineer genuine romance."

7 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/08/26/the-true-romantics/>

6

UPVOTES

Exclusive Interview With Solomon

8 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2336/exclusive-interview-with-solomon>

19

UPVOTES

The golden irony of the feminist opposition

9 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Feminists, I've heard your cry. I hereby propose a change to our attitude at TheRedPill. Hear me out.

Our woman hating is misplaced. We missed what women really want from men. Let's change.

From now on, we must be nice. We must supplicate. If your lady is having an emotional and bad day, your job is to make her feel better. Did she post a picture to her facebook? Make sure you understand, she's having a "fat day" and wants validation. She's not fat! A few extra pounds are healthy! Encouraging women to be anorexic is bad. You should like her photo, and post a comment. "You look so good, honey!"

Did you ask permission before deciding to go to the bar with the guys? A relationship takes two. You need to have open communication. Decision making is a joint occasion, borne out of mutual respect. Thinking about buying a new television? Ask first. Maybe you should do extra nice things around the house for your woman, so the purchase is even.

Do you tell the woman of your affections that you love her? You should, regularly. Treat your woman right. You're lucky to have her.

Have a crush on somebody? Make sure to be there for her when the going gets tough. She'll realize your value when everybody has turned their backs on her but you. You're her rock. Emotional support is important to women. They want guys who can connect emotionally, see eye to eye.

Is your crush in a shitty relationship with a douchebag? Don't meddle! Women don't like it. She'll eventually wake up to the reality that she's dating a jerk. When they break up, though, don't make a move. That's taking advantage.

In the mean time, you can help her recover by watching movies with her. Make sure she knows she's pretty because her ego and self esteem is very low right now, she feels worthless because of this dick. Rebuilding her ego is step one to getting better. Step two, of course, is when she realizes on her own that you were the man of her dreams all along.

Wait until she has recovered from her relationship, and court her. Best way to do that is bring her flowers. Don't push, she will come to this on her own.

And most importantly men, if she doesn't see your value, she just wasn't the right one for you. It's her loss, but you did what you could. You just have to wait until the right one comes along. But don't worry, there's somebody out there for everyone.

The Irony

Here's the golden irony, feminists. I know you're reading this. You don't like it when guys talk and act like us here at the redpill. It must really suck when people do things you don't like.

But the hundreds (and soon to be thousands) of men who discovered this subreddit are here for a reason. The reason is simple: Your position lacks intellectual rigor. The above advice is how men were raised. The above advice is how we brought up a generation of beta men who never find love. A bunch of frustrated chumps who did everything right, and just wanted families. Just wanted a good job and a nice house to take care of his family.

You did this to him. You changed him.

TheRedPill wasn't about sex. It was about love. When they realized they weren't getting the love their behavior promised, they started reading. How naive could you possibly be to think you could keep the charade going? Did you really think that telling the worlds biggest lie wouldn't get uncovered?

The reason we want to have sex with you, the reason we embrace the red pill behavior is because that's the only behavior you reward.

We've been exploding here recently. With over 700 members in less than two months, it was just a matter of time before we start getting negative attention. But I haven't seen one coherent argument from a feminist.

Instead of debate, instead of discussion we receive comments like "this is scary" and "you guys hate women." We receive mocking, but not counter-point. We receive shame, but no solution. All from you, feminists.

I hereby propose a new rule

If you've been linked here from another thread, dear feminist, then listen up, this rule is for you.

If you're going to claim to have an argument against red pill truth, you must first put up this information:

- The story of the last 10 people you've had sex with.
- How you met
- What they said, what you said
- how long between when you met and when you had sex.
- How many of them were relationships
- Your last relationship
- Why you broke up
- If you're still in a relationship, for how long.

Don't refuse our generous offer to discuss this with you. (Edited list to make gender neutral, it'd be interesting to see female feminist replies about their last 10 guys, vs male feminist replies with their last maybe 1 girl, if that)

1
UPVOTE

7 Ways Feminism Is Destroying American Women

9 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/7-ways-feminism-is-destroying-american-women>

11
UPVOTES

Never Listen To A Woman
9 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/never-listen-to-a-woman>

8

UPVOTES

Would you be applauding if she weren't a woman?

10 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In a thread that congratulated a female red-pill blogger, user PaterOmnipotens really drives something home that I think I momentarily lost sight of.

Would you be applauding if she weren't a woman?

Answering this question honestly during your day-to-day will give you a serious dose of red pill, when you realize just how much of an allowance society makes for women's inadequacies, that we actually lend credibility to women to appear "fair."

My post yesterday about never listening to a woman got a lot of blue-pill back-lash. I don't believe the people responding there asked themselves honestly Would you be applauding if she weren't a woman? in their every day interactions with women.

Pater also linked a brilliant sketch comedy group that inadvertently uncovers the truth.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gspaoaecNAg>

3

UPVOTES

Fully aware of the exact nature of the proposed sexual activity « M3

10 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://whoism3.wordpress.com/2013/01/09/fully-aware-of-the-exact-nature-of-the-proposed-sexual-activity/>

9

UPVOTES

The Crime of Being Nice | "These women are getting their panties in a knot because these guys are voicing out loud that women are NOT interested in having guys trying to relate to them based on interests or sincere attempts to be inquisitive about a woman."

10 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://whoism3.wordpress.com/2013/01/10/the-crime-of-being-nice/>

21

UPVOTES

Today's Reality Check: Women have boyfriends and girlfriends. If you're not fucking her, you're her girlfriend.

10 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/09/19/playing-friends/>

7 | This is why arguing with a feminist is pointless.
UPVOTES 10 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/166ug6/the_arguments_against_the_red_pill/c7umgjn?context=3

11

UPVOTES

Miss USA 2011 Contestants: Should Evolution be taught in school?

11 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UkBmhM0R2A0>

3

UPVOTES

The Ironies Of Female Empowerment - Like a child, the anti-male feminist sees the end result of this male effort and ignores all that came before it... Her mind is too limited to see what goes into providing all of that, and so she instead attacks those responsible for providing it.

11 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2504/the-ironies-of-female-empowerment>

0

UPVOTES

Roosh's 10-book bang collection is on sale this weekend (ends sunday night). Latest book just out: Bang Ukraine

12 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/bang-ukraine>

3
UPVOTES

Let them eat cake. | Dalrock
14 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/01/12/let-them-eat-cake/>

5

UPVOTES

How Women Become Worthless

14 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2449/how-women-become-worthless>

5

UPVOTES

The new year's resolution post, join me for the next six months and become a man, become attractive.

14 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Do you know what's missing from your life? Why aren't you as attractive as you can be? What's wrong with your lifestyle? Do you have full control of your life?

You've been reading about the red pill, but don't know the next step to take?

Join us in our new subreddit /r/becomeaman as I, redpillschool, and some select other members of our community become your personal trainers in a plan to shed the blue pill boy lifestyle and become the red pill man you want to become.

Only join if you are serious. No slacking allowed.

15

UPVOTES

Welcome to become a man. Today's mission: 1/14/13 - Get a gym

14 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

This should be an easy task today. It's very straight forward. Most of you should already have this one done. Today's mission is to find a gym, and sign up.

But redpill, I'm broke!

No ifs ands or buts. It's time to get the fuck into shape you whiney god damned child. If you can't afford a gym, it's time to learn how to save. Grocery shop, and put $10 aside every week. Now you can afford a gym. There is no excuse.

Bonus points: If you have a home gym, or create one.

And now for this week's rule:

Stay sober all week. Beer? Quit it. Not one beer all week. We're going to focus on fitness this week, and step one is being in the right mind, and in health. Hangovers are the number one killer of workouts.

Stay tuned for tomorrow's mission.

22

UPVOTES

What will you become?

14 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

The goal here, is when we're done (in six months) you will be:

Confident

In shape (muscular)

Well spoken

Refined

Well dressed

Humorous

Interesting

Knowledgeable in game.

Ready to be a man? Join us.

29

UPVOTES

Day 2 - Your new workout plan, start it.

15 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

If you don't already have a muscle building exercise, this will become your new workout plan. Expect to do this three days a week. No excuses.

Beginners start here: <http://www.aworkoutroutine.com/the-beginner-weight-training-workout-routine/>

Workout A

Squats

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Bench Press

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Rows

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Workout B

Deadlifts

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Pull-Ups (or Lat Pull-Downs)

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Overhead Shoulder Press

3 sets of 8-10 reps.

2 minutes rest between sets.

Required reading

Before the end of this week, you must obtain a copy of The Manipulated Man by Esther Vilar It's available on Amazon. There's a free pdf floating around somewhere too if you're good at google.

Do these things.

If anybody has other workout plans they want to share, please do so here.

0
UPVOTES

AMA with Manosphere Writer Vox Day

15 January 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

1

UPVOTE

AMA with Manosphere & Game Author Vox Day [Xpost theredpill]

15 January 2013 · /r/seduction · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/16ma8o/ama_with_vox_day_of_alpha_game/

17

UPVOTES

"Feminism is the conscious abandonment of subconscious desires." - a bit of wisdom over at /mr

15 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/16mdgn/it_must_seem_like_a_really_evil_world_out_there/c7xgtyl?context=2

15
UPVOTES

I, for one, will welcome our new Sexbot masters . . . | Ian Ironwood looks at the SMP implications of having sexbots.

15 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theredpillroom.blogspot.com/2013/01/i-for-one-will-welcome-our-new-sexbot.html>

43

UPVOTES

Day 3 - Say No.

16 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

If you're following the plan as you should be, today is your day off from your workout. (unless you're on M-W-F schedule, in which case carry on).

Today's exercise is simple. Say no.

We all have women in our lives who we have previously attempted to engage romantically, with no luck. Yet, they manage to stay in our lives. Maybe on facebook. Maybe at work. Maybe at home. Maybe in your group of friends.

Today, if any of them approach you for a favor. Anything as simple as "hold my purse" or "can you help me with..." just say no.

Do not give an excuse. Do not try to smooth this over. Just say no. If they ask why, just say "I'm busy, sorry."

Learning to say no takes practice. As you become good at it, your Yes will become more powerful.

Document your experiences here in the comments.

Required reading today

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/16om5e/the_red_pill_room_mike_makes_a_breakthrough/

4

UPVOTES

Friendzone - YouTube

16 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=0oPiNHwj6MU

5

UPVOTES

An Avalanche Of Feminist Hate - The aftermath of Roosh's ugly feminist list

16 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/an-avalanche-of-feminist-hate>

11

UPVOTES

Just in case people missed out on the story of Bridezilla. (X-Post SRSsucks)

16 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

20

UPVOTES

Day 4 - Talk to 10 People

17 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

This should be easy. You're already going to the gym today. There are plenty of people there.

Today you will talk to 10 people that you do not know. Conversations should last around 30 seconds (if not longer).

This will be easy for some of you. This might even be a normal day for some of you. Heck, some of you surpass 10 easily.

Learning to be a source of confidence is part of becoming a man.

Much like reddit encourages approaching women regularly, we will learn to break down any anxiety about talking to strangers at all. Men or women, you will have a conversation with 10 people today.

Here are some easy ones to get you started:

Talk about the game with guys at the gym. Talk about your difficulty in food choice with people in grocery store aisles. Talk about something funny in the news with somebody at the bar.

This might seem like basic shit. And it is. But unless you can do it, and be sure you can, then you cannot become a man.

For the introverts: Doesn't matter. Deal with the anxiety. Part of being a man is doing what needs to be done even when you don't like it.

If you haven't gotten the book yet, you're running out of time.

15

UPVOTES

Even Norway Isn't Immune To The Red Pill

17 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2996/even-norway-isnt-immune-to-the-red-pill>

10

UPVOTES

Mister Softee - Rational Male | "The main reason for this is rooted in women's innate solipsism. If the reality doesn't fit with her interpretation, rationalize the reality to force fit it to that interpretation."

17 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/01/17/mister-softee/>

A thousand members

Who would've thought in two short months we'd be at a thousand readers?

As we grow, we gain more attention. There have already been a few small outbreaks where different corners of the internet have discovered us and had their private bashing sessions. They don't like what we're saying.

Every time I see a discussion denouncing our viewpoint I notice they all have something in common: They all mischaracterize our standpoint and rally the troops against it.

It's easier for them to characterize us as rapists than for them to develop a coherent argument against our viewpoint. There's a reason for that. Because there is no argument against us. There is only truth and that which fails the truth test. We already dismiss the lies.

How much denial must one embrace to assume that we're just an outlier group of misfits that don't understand women? We're growing, ladies. We're growing. And we're not stopping. Surely, if there were no truth to our theories, men wouldn't stumble upon our group and think, "wow, these guys describe everything that's happened in my life..."

We're at a thousand members now. And that's two months. Consider that. Think about it.

We're not a hate group. We're not violent. We're not rapists. We're just men. Doing what men have always done. And you don't have to like it. Because all the other women love it.

We don't care if you understand. We think you shouldn't, and rightly assume you won't. That doesn't matter.

You put on makeup and do your hair.

We learn game.

You reward men who won't be attentive.

We learn to stop being attentive.

You show disdain for men that would take care of you.

We learn to stop taking care of you.

You get laws passed to make marriage into a welfare-for-women system.

We learn to stop getting married.

You act entitled and throw tantrums when you don't get your way.

We learn not to respect that and treat you how you act.

You find our page and publicly denounce our findings, you mock and insult us, and you cry and call it "scary." You attempt to shame us into silence, you attempt to prove to the world we have not found truth.

Your efforts are useless, your word means less the more you say.

6

UPVOTES

Misogynists are not born they are made.

17 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theghostnation.com/blogs/48>

11

UPVOTES

2010 Percent of all US births to unmarried women: 40.8%

17 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.cdc.gov/nchs/fastats/unmarry.htm>

25

UPVOTES

Day 5 - Break up with your friend girl

18 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

Today is your last day to obtain a copy of The Manipulated Man. It's easy to find if you google for a pdf.

Today's task: Break up with a friend girl. No, not girlfriend. I mean friend girl.

Take a look at day 3. Remember that woman from the article that just kept Mike on beta orbiter status so he'd do things for her?

We all have that friend girl in our lives, on facebook, at work, somewhere.

Today's task: Ask her out romantically. Be clear. "Hey, let's go on a date."

If she says no, or fails to respond, it's time to cut ties. You knew she wasn't any good for you, it's time to be realistic about this.

Obviously no need for fanfare to break up. You don't need to tell her you're cutting her off. Just make the decision and stick to it.

This is about realizing what value people give you.

- If you don't have anybody like this in your life, congrats, you've passed Day 5.
- If you are currently in a relationship, do this anyway, but then decline to follow through on the date.

We are now ensuring that your relationships are in your frame, not theirs. It's time to ditch the relationships, platonic or not, that are not in your frame.

8

UPVOTES

4 Things One Man Has Learned About Relationships

18 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2909/4-things-one-man-has-learned-about-relationships>

26

UPVOTES

All Girls Like Rough Sex

19 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/3009/all-girls-like-rough-sex>

15

UPVOTES

The Feminine Imperative Revisited | Dalrock - "..The feminine imperative has warped our very ability to think morally..."

19 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/01/18/the-feminine-imperative-revisited/>

15
UPVOTES

Day 6 + 7 - Learn and Introspect

19 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

You have "The manipulated man" by now.

This weekend, Read through (and including) to section "The Fair Sex"

2

UPVOTES

This gave me an eye-opening view of a lot of recent arguments I've been in... "A tale of two discourses"

21 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/01/a-tale-of-two-discourses.html>

17
UPVOTES

The Number One Corrupter Of Women
21 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-number-one-corrupter-of-women>

12

UPVOTES

Day 8 - Hobby Time

21 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

When asked if you have any hobbies, what would you respond? No, drinking and video games do not count.

Today it's time to focus on your hobby life. Do you have a constructive hobby? One that you can share?

If not, you might be suffering from a case of "boring dude" syndrome.

Today get yourself a hobby.

Begin your journey to honing a skill or craft not directly related to your career path. Bonus points if the hobby is a panty-wetter.

Having a hobby will give you interesting things to talk about, make you a more interesting man, and give you something to bond over with both men and women.

Great examples:

- Music writing
- Learning an instrument
- Learn to dance
- Learn to cook
- Learn to paint
- Take up skydiving

Today is the day. Do it. Get a hobby. Go to the gym. You have no excuses. Report back.

7
UPVOTES

ManWomanMyth - Misandry - Misogyny

21 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=RaIqyuPCWmY

11

UPVOTES

Day 9 - Begin your diet

22 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

We've started working out. Now it's time to research and start your diet.

You know you have too many pounds. It might be 5, or it might be 50.

Strength training isn't going to fix it. And here's a secret nobody will tell you: Cardio on its own won't fix it either.

This won't just be a fad. It's time for a lifestyle change.

Last week we were abstaining from alcohol. (Right? RIGHT?)

This week we focus on a new lifestyle.

I can personally attest that the /r/keto diet is a good long term diet that has allowed me to lose weight and keep it off. A lot of people recommend paleo.

There's been talk about whether you can muscle build on keto. I think the research shows that you can.

Today: Decide and begin your diet. Report back.

5

UPVOTES

Get used to Jerks and Flakes

22 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/11/01/get-used-to-jerks-and-flakes/>

5
UPVOTES

How Women Turn Men Into Pickup Artists « The Private Man

24 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2013/01/22/how-women-turn-men-into-pickup-artists/>

9
UPVOTES

Day 10 Continue
24 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

Set some time to finish the book. As the goals for become a man become more long term we may switch to a semi daily format.

15

UPVOTES

One of the surest indicators of an AFC-beta mindset is the automatic presumption that anything remotely critical a man would say about women, or the feminine, is by default, equated with misogyny.

24 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/10/25/bitter-misogynists/>

3

UPVOTES

Why Nice Guys are the worse [Watch the hamster spin]

24 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.buzzfeed.com/hnigatu/13-reasons-why-nice-guys-are-the-worst>

25

UPVOTES

A breakdown of SRSWomen

24 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Got myself my honorary you-have-a-penis ban from SRSwomen today. I'm surprised they didn't give me a pre-emptive ban like askwomen, but alas, slow to the draw I suppose.

<http://i.imgur.com/Yrq2Kzl.jpg>

Today I wanted to talk about how SRSWomen, and Feminists work.

I'm going to say that as far as RED PILL stuff goes, this subreddit is the center of it. There is no more hardcore, extreme, foam-mouthed sub dedicated to our ideals. This is it.

And we have no rule banning women.

In fact, our main rule is avoid ad hominem attacks and you can stay. (Surprisingly difficult rule to abide by apparently.)

So let's look at the literal translation of their rules.

DWORKINS FASCIST RULES

- Men = Benned.
- No one cares if ur a cis dude or what ur cis dude penis thinks.

Because you have a penis, you cannot understand anything we speak of. Therefore instead of allowing the benefit of the doubt, we ban all men. Before you even try to make a point, men, we will fallaciously attack a component of your anatomy.

This is the literal meaning of sexism. Something of which we are accused of, but apparently can't even get into our rules!

- Slurs get you benned.

Apparently they can't spell ban.

- Being a misogynist, ableist, white supremacist, transphobic, homophobic, creepy chucklefuck also gets you benned.

Sounds good. Define misogynist. Anybody who disagrees?

- You post in MR? Thats great, Ben.

Because men don't deserve rights. I mean, look at it over there. They're talking about things that could affect women! Some of them even think women don't deserve rights. Anybody who says that a gender collectively doesn't deserve rights is EVIL! (except us, because men don't deserve rights.)

- Misandry? DONT REAL. NO BAN

Honestly though, did nobody go to school?

- Diet/Weight loss talk is benned.

Any talk about taking responsibility for yourself, your actions, your life and happiness is a no-go. Wouldn't want to offend anybody's sensibilities.

- No Libertarians Allowed

Are there any left after you banned everybody who makes coherent points?

Seriously though, I know most people will say that SRS is a bunch of trolls and pointing out their inconsistencies is pointless. But let's face it, this is how a lot of people think.

I wanted to document this, I know it's an worn debate, but I needed to say it. Their points hold no value because they do not allow scrutiny. It is the anti-academia.

So next time somebody argues that we're misogynist for calling women stupid, I direct you to EVERY SINGLE WOMEN'S SUBREDDIT WHERE SCRUTINY AND CRITICAL THOUGHT ARE OUTRIGHT BANNED. That's pretty stupid in my book.

23

UPVOTES

User on RooshV Forum analyses the new nice-guy shaming trend.

25 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-19916-post-355117.html#pid355117>

5

UPVOTES

Wikipedia's Editors Are 91 Percent Male Because Citations Are Stored in the Ball Sack

25 January 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://jezebel.com/5978883/wikipedias-editors-are-87-percent-male-because-citations-are-stored-in-the-penis>

10
UPVOTES

Day 12 + 13 - Invest Time Reading
26 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

You should be able to finish or get close to finishing the manipulated man.

This book is critical groundwork for future reading we will be doing .

What is pop media doing? Movie review- "The Switch"

28 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those who haven't seen it, it's almost worth watching just to study the main character to see a list of everything you should never do.

I'll start at the beginning. The main character is a guy who's in love with but friend-zoned by the main girl character. Because he's been friend-zoned, he resorts to denial about his love- to everybody around him including himself.

The girl speaks candidly with her girlfriends basically saying what a nice guy he is, he's perfect! She literally says "I'm sure there's someone out there for him!"

The first 99% of the movie was painful to watch. If there was a setup for a good red pill movie, this is it.

She decides that the clock is ticking and she needs a baby but can't wait around for Mr. Right, so she decides to get donated sperm and do it herself.

The main character, of course, objects to the idea. The objection is from his gut, he can't tell why he's so upset. I mean, if they're just friends, why should this bother him? Nevertheless here he is totally frustrated and completely clueless why and what to do.

And that right there is the blue pill. A perfect description. This woman walks all over him, and he is too chicken-shit to even admit to himself that he likes her! No wonder she's not interested!

I have an interesting analysis of the woman's actions. Throughout the movie she spends a lot of time speaking with her friends about this decision to go fatherless on the baby. Her friends respond with "you go girl, we don't need no stinkin' men!!!"

It's interesting because this is a classic example of a woman who rode the cock carousel and experienced what we've documented here. An inability to be happy with men. Every single cock she took inflated her ego and expectation just that much more, she would never be able to settle down now. She's skipping the middle man and just going straight for the baby. This is basically the poster-child for the feminists our culture has been breeding.

It's documented in our media. The truth behind the red and blue pill are everywhere. It's obvious to us now, but the media makers have a trick up their sleeve to hide it.

The entire movie makes sense until the end. Everything she does, and every way the man fails makes sense. He supplicates her at every turn. Even becomes best friends with her new son. He does everything right... to be a nice guy. And she's not attracted to him in the least.

The twist is unimportant to the movie. He swaps the donor's sperm with his own out of sheer frustration. When she finds out, she rightly kicks him out of her life.

Here's where they do the magic. In the last five minutes of the movie, she shows up outside of main guy's workplace. He asks, why are you here? Where's your boyfriend/husband? She replies, "I turned him down. I don't know why..."

He looks at her like.. what?

She goes.. "I guess I turned him down cause he's not you!"

He gets this giant shit eating grin on his face and they kiss. The end.

Except not the fucking end! Hold on a god damned second! That's ridiculous. She had an off-camera change of heart that didn't make sense. There was no way for that to happen. Main guy didn't man-up or do anything. She eventually came to the realization that he's the one for her cause he's so nice???

That's what they do. A 99% red pill movie (so you identify with it, you can feel yourself in the characters), and then this crazy blue pill ending where the hard work of mr nice guy pays off?

This kind of nice-guy re-enforcement is terrible and erodes at my soul. Had to get this off my chest.

13

UPVOTES

The Nuke created feminism.

28 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've been reading Jack Donovan's book The way of men, and it's got some seriously good insight into defining masculinity. It also gave me some interesting insight into gender roles, which not only are men failing to live up to in this culture, but women as well.

After considering gender roles such as men being hunters and protectors, and women, children and elders being the protected, it occurred to me why women were so feminine, and why relationships worked.

Granted, not all tribes had monogamy, at least not long-term, but the men and women still maintained gender roles, and the respect garnered by activity in those roles.

Fast forward to modern western civilization, where the threat of violence is far removed. What good is having men if the gender role of hunting or protecting is far removed from a woman's reality? A woman can go to the grocery store and pick up food. She can do so with little risk of being harmed. She can drive there in her warm car. She can do this with a child.

There is no direct threat she perceives, even if every modern convenience she experiences is made possible by men.

Our society has an abundance of men. We have too many men, in fact! During the days of world wars, conscription ensured that the supply of men would be at an all time low. With the very real threat of attacks on US soil, the lack of men and risk of violence combined to drive the value of men through the roof.

Enter the nuclear bomb. Enter mutually assured destruction.

War has become far and removed. Attack on US soil has faded to such a low risk, nobody considers it a reality. Wars themselves are fought with machines to minimize human casualty. Even the Vietnam war kept the risk of violence far and removed.

War as we knew it has changed permanently. The era of fighting world wars as they were has come to a close.

Which has now given women a societal equal footing with men. When men as protectors and providers do too good of a job, women no longer need them. The results are obvious. The second wave of feminism (which I consider one of the most corrosive) and the rise of single mothers, and the end of marriage.

The red pill is understanding, even when it's not convenient. Marriage is dead, and we killed it.

21

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement - New AMAs added to List. RooshV is next.

29 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Upvote for visibility please.

This is just a reminder that our 2013 AMA series is still going strong. We thank XSplat for his yesterday and we're very excited to have the one and only RooshV coming up 2/4/13 at 6:00pm EST. You definitely don't want to miss it.

Also, new people have been added to the list. Take a look at the schedule here!

9

UPVOTES

Beta of the Month Contest

30 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've been seeing a lot of examples of poor blue pill betas around the internet and in real life. telnet_reddit_80 recommended we have a beta of the month contest.

So, it's almost Feb. Let's do it.

Submit your Beta story here. The voting will be in contest mode. At the end we'll declare a winner.

16

UPVOTES

What do tattoos mean to you?

30 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I was noticing the other day that piercings and tattoos on women weren't terribly attractive to me. I can handle ear piercings but they don't make an ugly woman prettier. At best they have no effect, and sometimes, depending on the earrings, they have a negative effect for me. Face piercings? Forget about it. Ugly as shit.

Tattoos are the same way. There are attractive girls with tattoos, but they are not themselves attractive because of the tattoos. I know plenty of girls with tattoos that I think would be prettier without them.

I was wondering if anybody had some insight on this one. The best I've thought of is this:

Tattoos on men are attractive to women because they show that men can make permanent decisions with ease. This shows risk, as we know women are attracted to risk seeking behavior from men. (which comes down to the main tenants of masculinity).

Women being attracted to men with tattoos must then assume the attraction would be symmetrical.

However, risky behavior in women is something men avoid. Showing that women can carelessly make long term decisions that may not best suit them shows that this person is not a good choice for childbearing.

Any other ideas?

I'm sure plenty of guys here are going to say they like tattoos on women, and maybe it's just where I live, but I find the tattoo'd women are also sluttier and more rough around the edges.

Before anybody links to suicide girls, I want to make my point again. A pretty girl with tattoos may still be pretty. But it's in spite of, not due to, the tattoos.

6

UPVOTES

High School Girl Bucks Up And gets Knocked down - Analysis in comments

30 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-20170.html>

16

UPVOTES

Whoops! Accidentally made a mild observation about women's communication skills in askmen, better call the white knights!

1 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/17oxsp/what_is_the_worst_line_a_woman_as_ever_said_to_you/c87lk1m

18

UPVOTES

Girl writes what describes the feminine imperative and gives good insight towards its evolutionary background. Skip to 1:30

1 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=a9XDb0nxSO4

22 | Anything you can do, I can do better...
UPVOTES 2 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.fredoneverything.net/MilMed.shtml>

2

UPVOTES

Male Sexual Response

4 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/02/01/male-sexual-response/>

3

UPVOTES

Spring Break 2013 Manosphere Meetup Update

4 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2013/01/29/spring-break-2013-manosphere-meetup-update/>

4

UPVOTES

Schrodinger's Rapist

4 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's no wonder we have so many emotionally castrated men in our culture when you consider that the feminine imperative has co-opted the law to ensure female sexual strategy.

We live in a culture where the only way to have successful relations with a woman is by committed what's been now categorized as sexual assault followed by rape. The only thing stopping you from going to prison for these two things is the discretion of the woman.

We're in a police-enforced culture where you have to break the rules to be successful, and then leave yourself at the mercy of women not to be arrested.

I think this is a very telling issue, because like it or not, this is the core of the power balance issue. Just because you haven't been arrested doesn't mean you haven't been at risk.

I have never raped a woman, but I can tell you with confidence that I do not have adequate proof that I haven't if one were to change her mind today. (retrorape).

I've never had non-consensual sex, but I have had sex with alcohol involved. I am a rapist. Welcome to rape culture, where everybody's a rapist except the ones women want to keep around. Until they don't.

http://www.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/17vhin/im_in_deep_shit/

Partially stolen from here mildly edited.

Alpha – Leader. Somebody who displays high value, or traits that are valued by women. Alpha can refer to a man who exhibits alpha behaviors (more alpha tendencies than beta), but usually used to describe individual behaviors themselves.

AMOG – Alpha Male Of Group.

AFC - Average Frustrated Chump (Also known as beta)

Beta – Traits of provision: either providing resources or validation to others, women (and perhaps men). Beta traits display low value to women if they are put on too strong or too early in meeting- giving without equity. Beta can be used to describe individual behaviors, as well as people who have an overwhelming amount of beta properties (opposed to alpha).

Blue Pill – From The Matrix and its sequels. The path of conformity with Society's expectations; the state of being unaware of the problems engendered by society. Compare with "Red Pill," below.

Carousel – Better known as the "cock carousel." The period of time in a woman's life where she successfully exploits her sexual value and maximizes her hypergamous tendencies by having sex with as many alphas as possible. Usually happens between ages 18 - 27. Often ends when the woman hits the wall.

DHV – Display of Higher Value, the accomplishment, anything that improves your sexual market value in the eyes of another.

DLV - Display of lower value.

Feminism – "A doctrine built on the pre-supposition of victimhood of women by men as a foundation of female identity. In its goals is always the utilization of the state to forcibly redress this claimed victimization. In other words, the proxy use of violence and wealth appropriation. In whatever flavor, and variation, these two basic features are common to every doctrine using the label feminism. Feminism is therefore, a doctrine of class hatred, and violence." (John The Other, "Why not date a feminist?" A Voice For Men, 4 June 2012.)

Friendzone - See Orbiter.

Game – A loosely based set of behaviors specifically designed to increase attraction.

Hypergamy – The instinctual urge for women to seek out the best alpha available. This is marked by maximizing rejection (therefore women are the selective gender). A woman will vet her alpha through various shit tests to ensure his "health" on the alpha scale. She is conditioned to recognize a declining alpha, as hypergamy also tends to continue seeking out higher status males even while with an alpha male. Shit tests allow her to prepare herself for eventually leaving when a new higher status male is found. If the male fails shit tests to a great enough degree, it will effect her feelings for him. He will effectively lower his sexual market value in her eyes. This will enable her to jump to the next male with ease and little remorse.

Incel - Involuntarily Celibate.

MGTOW – Men Going Their Own Way; the growing contingent of the male population who are saying "Fuck It All" to the Mating Dance.

MR - Men's Rights Group.

MRA - Men's Rights activist.

NAWALT – Not All Women Are Like That. A common response to generalizations, signaling a fundamental inability to understand how generalizations work. More info on Rationalmale

Oneitis - When a guy has fallen in love with a woman in the same way a boy loves his mother. He obsesses about her, but she does not reciprocate.

Orbiter - Also known as Beta Orbiter. A beta guy who accepted the proposal to "just be friends" from a girl he has oneitis for. He will stick around her and constantly validate her whenever she requests it. Also known as "friendzone." She will keep him around because he will do anything for her and provide validation, giving small hints that he might eventually win her love- but he never will. Typical signs of orbiter status: likes and comments on new facebook photos. Go-to guy when girl has problem with boyfriend. Also known as emotional tampon.

Plate Theory (Or Keep Spinning Plates) -- Gaming multiple women simultaneously to boost ones sexual market value. Read on Plate theory here: <http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/08/19/plate-theory-2/>

POF – PlentyOfFish.com

PUA – Pick-Up Artist

Rationalization Hamster - The tendency for women to use rationalization to resolve mental conflict and avoid cognitive dissonance. The core mechanism that allows women to say one thing and do a different thing.

Red Pill – The recognition and awareness of the way that feminism, feminists and their white-knight enablers affect society. Seeing the world for what it is, seeking truth no matter how painful or inconvenient the truth may be.

Seddit - The game-oriented subreddit : /r/seduction which is not strictly red pill but has good pickup advice.

SJW - Social Justice Warrior. Typically liberal arts students who believe they are the most righteous, and must enforce their moral values via shame, censorship, and mob rule.

SMV – Sexual Market Value. A shorthand statement for “what you bring to the table,” whether for an one-night stand or for a longer sexual/emotional relationship.

SMP - Sexual Market Place. A description of the free market that is mating.

Snowflake - A woman who tries to persuade a man that she's somehow unique, different, or special by playing up her good girl resume and downplaying her bad girl resume. When used as a verb, snowflaking refers to the argument she puts forth to justify her claim.

The Wall - The point in a woman's life where her ego and self-assessed view of her sexual market value exceed her actual sexual market value; the beginning of the decline. Usually occurs as a wake-up shock to women when they realize that their power over men was temporary and that their looks are fading. This usually results with first denial and then a sudden change in priority towards looking for a husband. Even after hitting the wall, many women will squander a few more precious years testing her SMV with alphas to double-check, hoping her perceived decline was a fluke, this will make her even more bitter when she finally has to settle for a worse-beta than she could've gotten before because of squandering her youth.

White Knight – (1) a man who “comes to the rescue” of a woman, or of women, reflexively, emotionally-driven, without thought or even looking at the situation; (2) a man in authority who enables Team Women in his legislative actions, judgments, or rulings, reflexively, emotionally-driven, without thought or even looking at what's right. Also known as "Mangina"

Feel free to suggest any I missed so we can add them.

18

UPVOTES

Are women unhappier because of money? [Watch the Entitlement & Hamster- Awesome ending]

5 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.youtube.com/watch?feature=player_embedded&v=E007Zu00a-Q

5

UPVOTES

Vestiges - Rational Male

6 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/02/05/vestiges/>

8

UPVOTES

Awesome Red Pill Show - Kevin Spacey does it right. House of Cards on Netflix

7 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=n6wytrQo-UE>

15
UPVOTES

The Rosetta Stone of Women's Behavior - [BRIFFAULT'S LAW] - Read and memorize these.

11 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.stickmanweekly.com/ReadersSubmissions2009/reader5546.htm>

7

UPVOTES

Great thread on bad-pickup environments and night game.

11 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-20512.html>

12
UPVOTES

How To Become A Better Misogynist

11 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/4693/how-to-become-a-better-misogynist>

12

UPVOTES

It's valentines day. Let's talk about Appreciation.

14 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/11/14/appreciation/>

15
UPVOTES

The End Game Of Feminism
14 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-end-game-of-feminism>

16

UPVOTES

For those who go (or went) on askwomen, what have you learned from it? : AskMen

14 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is great. All these guys are realizing the absolute hypocrisy of feminism and askwomen, they're even speaking in generalizations, which is feminist's number one enemy.

This field is ripe for picking.

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/18isbs/for_those_who_go_or_went_on_askwomen_what_have/

0

UPVOTES

2030: A day in the life of a white privileged male

15 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-20764.html>

17

UPVOTES

Another example of classic female solipsism

15 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/18isbs/for_those_who_go_or_went_on_askwomen_what_have/c8fd13a?context=5

5

UPVOTES

User Challenge: GotToWatchMyBrand - You have half a day to tear down our theories. Fallacious personal attacks not allowed. Concept debate only.

16 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/18indq/unemployment_benefits_are_getting_even_better/c8g8pei?context=5

10

UPVOTES

How recent are some of the trends that caused the redpill?

18 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm curious about these trends. I know that The Red Pill is regarding a basic truth from evolution that hasn't changed, but the social climate has. We went from a society of marriage and more faithfulness, to a society where women have publicly terrible personalities.

Now, the factors of the red pill and female hypergamy have never changed, but the forces in our society certainly have, and feminism was definitely one of the driving catalysts for these changes.

My question is.. is it just me, or have a bulk of these changes been really really recent?

I know that having this forum lets gives us a bit of a selection bias, but hear me out..

In my younger years, I was blue pill for sure, but it didn't seem like much was driving me to the red pill. The girls I'd hook up with during that time were feminine and polite. Sure I got cheated on, which began my transformation, but even then, she had outwardly feminine qualities, not like the man-women filling bars today.

So my question is, has the attitude of women gotten noticeably worse recently? Or have I just managed to walk a statistical fence for the beginning of the last decade?

You can read my latest foray with a fembitch here: <http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-20790.html>

19

UPVOTES

Advice for women. Advice for men.

18 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Don't let anybody tell you what to do, girl. You should only do what you feel comfortable with. Do you feel ready for this? Don't take any crap from him, you shouldn't have to do anything you're not comfortable with.

Hey, man, you really want to get what you want? You're going to have to leave your comfort zone. I know it's anxiety inducing to talk to somebody you don't know, but you're going to have to man up.

18

UPVOTES

Red Pill Debate Series

19 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Gentlemen and ladies, I would like to introduce a new series that I am launching: The Red Pill Debate Series, starring your very own RedPillSchool.

In the next coming days I will announce the rules to the debates, and the moderators for the debates.

I am hereby inviting third parties to audition for the position of debate moderators. I would like two- one from our sub who I have already selected, and the other I would prefer somebody from a fair sub that is not men's rights related. Somebody who is interested in fair discussion. If you are interested in taking part, please contact me with a blurb about yourself, and your involvement in your community. Honest entries only, please.

We are opening this feature as a sign and testament that we are not just an echo chamber of censorship and hate. We are open to debate. The reason you rarely see us engage our opposition is because it is rare to see our opposition take the debate seriously, with each debate ending in hurling of name calling and the like.

I will be selecting my debate partners, most of them not from our own sub. We will commence the debates here on our sub, but promise not to censor any posts. The rules will be stated before hand, and we ask that onlookers keep to a separate thread to discuss the debate.

If anybody from another sub would like to join a fair debate where we refuse to name call and allow each other to be heard, you can post here or contact me directly. I will likely have a lot of offers, so I will only be selecting from people who have a clear history of discussion behind them on the topics of the genders and their differences.

If anybody would like to recommend somebody for a debate, I welcome you all to reach out and direct them here. Anybody volunteering can post in this thread or contact me directly.

Anybody in feminism who truly believes there is truth out there to be sought, I invite you to take part.

This is an open invitation to reddit. Let's talk. Let's debate.

9

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: More equal than others

21 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/02/more-equal-than-others.html>

27

UPVOTES

Grab the popcorn, somebody asked /r/ASKMEN: At what age do you assume a pretty, never-married woman must be crazy or have something wrong with her?

21 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/18ylcz/at_what_age_do_you_assume_a_pretty_nevermarried/c8j585z

38

UPVOTES

Despite the shitstorm of white knights and feminists claiming otherwise, the entitlement stories continue... "A proper dressing down for unchivalrous men"

22 February 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/02/21/a-proper-dressing-down-for-unchivalrous-men/>

3

UPVOTES

What have we learned from this exercise?

22 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Gentlemen, we have just seen the results of getting into debates with whiteknights and women. Yes, I started it. And this won't be the last.

But the question I am asking us all right now is, what have we learned from the experience? What have we learned about their debate tactics verses our own? Is it possible to have a truth that is unattainable to somebody in different circumstances?

If we are right, why is conveying simple principles so difficult?

Let's discuss.

39

UPVOTES

[Mod] State of the Union Address. 2,000 subscribers

28 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Well folks, it's another milestone. We've reached over 2,000 users in three short months. This says something big.

We've seen opposition, we've heard from devout feminists, we've read their arguments, and saw their complaints.

And not a single one of them even tried to address our theories properly.

Oh, there were hundreds of misrepresentations. A lot of arguments leading with the conclusion, begging the question of the ever elusive misogynistic phantom, which is always misogynistic because it's misogynistic.

We've seen people continue to use "scary," and "terrifying," "horrifying," and "violent" when describing us, yet we have suggested nothing scary, nothing terrifying, nothing at all remotely violent.

Folks, it's a sure sign that we're on the right track when people run out of ammo and start throwing their own shoes at us.

Let's keep growing, let's keep investigating. 2013 is a big year for the manosphere. Changes are coming, good and bad.

30

UPVOTES

Why Can't I Use a Smiley Face? - Review of Roosh's upcoming book.

28 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There is a bittersweet calming feeling reading somebody else's life experiences and identifying them as if there were your own. On one side of the coin, you get to see that you are not alone in your experiences, that there are others that share it- and on the other side: you realize your experiences are real; the world we live in really is that bad.

I was recently given an advance copy of Roosh's latest work, Why Can't I Use a Smiley Face?

With all his latest books detailing his various adventures throughout the world, each an exotic new country I haven't been to, I was curious what this one would be. It's one of the few books I've seen from Roosh that didn't carry his standard "bang" title-set. I was pleasantly surprised to see he had documented his journey back to DC.

It's a short book, totaling around 61 pages. Not to its own detriment, mind you. For a short period of time, while I read it, I felt like somebody else knew my experiences. I felt like I was reading a book written by me!

I've had a hard time identifying with certain parts of the game community. Although my game is tight- it really is- and despite past success (quite a bit of it), I've noticed a strange trend recently where women were getting bitchier and bitchier. The general attitude around me has dropped. It's been getting worse, and I'd argue most of this was in the past few years, and surely a lot in ten years.

There must be a regional issue, since a lot of guys I talk to don't necessarily have the women on hard mode like I experience around here. This makes discussion of game difficult. For some guys, it's as simple as talking with a few girls, being friendly and outgoing. Around where I am, I find myself going nuclear on women more than being friendly. And it sometimes works, though recently I feel it's rarely worth it.

Through the book, he documents his stay back in the states, in DC, meeting up with a few friends and sarging the bars. The most amazing (and depressing) thing I kept seeing over and over is how Roosh's mind worked like my own. In the book, he's able to detail his thinking process, which is a form of validation to me.

Perhaps this book is a form of catharsis. For those who have seen the decline in American women, this book is a form of venting, to stand solemnly with our brethren and say, "It's not you, it's them." Sometimes that affirmation is enough of a kick in the nuts to make a plan, start saving, and decide it's time to leave the country.

We discuss on TheRedPill exactly what mechanisms are causing the degradation of American women. It still surprises me when women have such terrible attitudes. It makes me wonder, is it at all possible for these women to ever find happiness? They've made access to their sex such a chore, surely no man who is worth it would bother?

I walked downstairs and approached a mediocre girl. She told me she was a model but even in the dim light I wasn't seeing it. When I tried to get things moving, aware of the little time I had left to make magic happen, she repeatedly told me, "I'm hard, you have to work for me." No thanks. I left and went upstairs.

"I'm hard, you have to work for me." I'll just let these words sink in. How on earth did we get to a place where saying these words would ever be commonplace let alone socially acceptable? I wish I didn't know the answer. It's staring us right in the eyes, every day on TheRedPill. We know what happens when somebody gets constant validation. iPhones, Facebook, OkCupid, and then bars- there is an entire network made to inflate women's self-worth, making the streamline of attention from everybody towards women as efficient as possible. And with almost no negative feedback, why would a woman keep her feet on the ground?

My only solace is that long term happiness is not something promised by their lifestyles.

Throughout the entire book, Roosh describes interactions with various DC women. The cute one, the cougar scene, the bitches, the drunks, etc. The most interesting part about reading this book- the biggest connection I've had with a book, mind you- was that each interaction described not only experiences I've had, but demonstrated his responses being similar to mine. I'm sure it's said over and over that bitches aren't worth your time- but when you're faced with a population of only bitches, what do you do?

Well Roosh describes in detail exactly what he did. I won't give away too many spoilers, but needless to say the ending to his book is his salvation, and for me, a new life plan.

Book is slated for release in the second half of March, I'll post up a link when it's available. <http://www.rooshv.com>

Disclaimer: I have no financial connection to Roosh, just really like his writing. My duty is to the red pill and I will only suggest material I think will benefit the red pill.

5

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Alpha Mail: the female process

1 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/02/alpha-mail-female-process.html>

20
UPVOTES

The Strong & Independent Woman Translator
1 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/6699/the-strong-independent-woman-translator>

24 | "You Can't Handle Me" - Rationalmale
UPVOTES 1 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/02/27/you-cant-handle-me/>

23

UPVOTES

Men, Seddit needs our help!

5 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The game denial and overwhelming whiteknightistry happening on seddit is really unsettling. The amount to which guys there are pushing the "don't talk about women that way, they're people too" line is overwhelming.

I'm volunteering some time to put some sense back into seddit. Do your part, spend some time on seddit and askseddit and steer guys in the direction of real game, not "be yourself" game.

http://www.reddit.com/r/seduction/comments/19nldz/this_subreddit_needs_better_modding_and_good/

24

UPVOTES

Very public and obvious example of the feminine imperative in action.

7 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's not often you get such a bold and blatant display of female sexual strategy, but here's a great example.

Somebody asked women, "Ladies, if your SO asked for a paternity test, what would your reaction be?"

The response was overly negative- women would feel betrayed and were overwhelmingly shaming of it. Read the thread and answer this: Would you feel like asking your SO for a paternity test after reading this?

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskWomen/comments/19rz0w/ladies_if_your_so_asked_for_a_paternity_test_what/

Interesting thread on askmen asking point blank what they think of the feminine imperative. Top answer is women need more rights.

http://www.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/19sjqg/what_do_you_think_about_the_fact_that_most_users/

I'd love to see Rollo's take on this.

Our sub continues to grow, and it looks like we're not stopping any time soon. Because of this, we've run into some new issues I want to address with our new modified Posting rules.

Posting Submission Rules

- New submissions must be related to sexual strategy, events that affect sexual strategy, theories about sexual strategy, or stories confirming (or challenging) current theories of sexual strategy.
- Personal or Advice questions should be directed to /r/asktrp See more about this here:
http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1jkged/mod_new_sub_and_a_new_rule/
- Absolutely no direct link screenshots or images. If you must post a screenshot of a comment or an image, include it as part of your written post. Do not make it your main link. Please include your analysis with the image. Any image-only submissions will be deleted.
- No Memes/Image Macros
- No Concern Trolling / Regular Trolling Please See here for details
- No Direct Video Links. There is a lot of content on the web, and some of it is in video form for sure. We don't mind videos, however we will request that you post any video links you have in a text submission along with your analysis. Any video-only submissions will be deleted.
- No crosslinking anything from reddit at all. Not in submissions. Not in comments. If you want to post a conversation or post between members on reddit you must take a screenshot, and edit it for the following requirements: No URL in picture or post, Subreddit name must not be present in the picture or in the post, Must be self-post with analysis. No low-hanging "look this guy is a moron" posts. Constructive posts only. Everything else will be deleted without warning.

Concern Trolling

Since we're getting more and more users every day, the signal to noise ratio is bound to decline by at least a little bit. Because of this, we have decided that one such dampener to signal is concern trolling. From this point forward, we will delete any post that attempts to "steer" the subreddit or complains about the direction of content.

If for some reason you're not happy with the quality of posts here, I encourage you to upvote good material, downvote bad material, and submit your own high-quality material.

Racism

The Red Pill is dedicated to finding the truth about sex and gender strategies, no matter how unpopular or difficult it may seem. For some strange reason, this has brought forward a number of racist posts, which have swiftly been removed. Let us discuss exactly what we mean by racism.

We acknowledge that cultural and genetic differences have an effect on behavior. However, we do not accept that one's race is inextricably tied to their culture. (Because it isn't). If you want to comment on a culture, speak of the culture. If you want to comment on genetics, comment on genetics. Do not confuse the two.

Understand that the differences between men and women are large as our genders have been evolving for millions of years, but the segregated cultures (and thus races) are in the hundreds of thousands (if that).

We are not denying that there are genetic differences between races. That said, we will not allow TheRedPill to be hijacked by blatant racism by conflating race with culture. This is not up for discussion.

Posting Comments Rules

Our discussion is not meant to be just an echo chamber, we absolutely encourage discussion that challenges commonly held beliefs. That is the core of the red pill: challenging what we know.

That being said, if you're new here and haven't read the sidebar, there's a good chance that what you want to say has already been heard and we don't really care to argue it. Some of the opinions and ideas we have here may seem a bit shocking at first if you aren't familiar with our theories. Let me be clear:

Our theories are well thought out, backed by evolutionary psychology, and are regularly confirmed by the behaviors we witness. One of the most astounding parts of the red pill is meeting new people here from other parts of the world... who all report the same behavior we've witnessed ourselves. There is REAL truth to the info we're compiling. Attempts to label it misogyny completely misses the point. We do not focus on women as the enemy and consider insults to hurl. Instead, we see women as our goal, and focus on theories as to why they behave the way they do, and how we should behave in light of this information.

If you attempt to "creep" shame, call out misogyny, or otherwise attempt to derail conversation because the information here is shocking to you, it will tell us one thing: You haven't even attempted to understand why and how we've arrived at our conclusions.

Any post that does not make a point and instead makes ad hominem attacks will be immediately deleted. A moderator may post a test article for you to read and discuss to prove you are not here to troll. If you fail the test, you may be banned.

We have no interest in becoming an echo chamber, and we don't mind dissenting viewpoints. But if it derails conversation, we will take action. If you're worried you might derail conversation, lurk more.

UPDATED RULES ON TROLLING:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1dovmp/mod_state_of_the_subreddit_may_2013/

Thank you for reading our rules and abiding by them. We feel that as our sub grows, this rules list will help keep us on topic and minimize noise.

21

UPVOTES

Consumer Confidence - "the nuts and bolts of being a man is to produce more than you consume."

12 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/03/08/consumer-confidence/>

29

UPVOTES

Dalrock - [Hookups] are fun, and even .. empowering when a woman is young.. each new encounter is further proof that she holds the veto power over men. However, when the men are the ones doing the vetoing empowerment...she finds herself being passed around, if not passed over.

13 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/03/12/this-wont-end-well/>

14
UPVOTES

Social Media And Female Self-Esteem

15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://heartiste.wordpress.com/2011/11/22/social-media-and-female-self-esteem/>

16

UPVOTES

Good blog with red pill interactions...

16 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Some of you old timers might remember PK before I was lead moderator. He had a pretty decent blog, which he regularly cross posted to seddit. His exploits are fun to read, check them out..

He has a good writing style and it's great to read and dissect his dialog.

Club Bitches

Club Bitches Sequel

Game against Alpha Joe

We miss you PK

7

UPVOTES

15 Reasons Why Toronto Is The Worst City - (This article describes a number of places I've been. Do a reality check for the climate in your area, how much is your city hurting your game?)

18 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/15-reasons-why-toronto-is-the-worst-city-in-north-america-for-men>

42

UPVOTES

Social Welfare Creates A Society Of Sluts

18 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/social-welfare-creates-a-society-of-sluts>

14

UPVOTES

[Mod] New Flair Settings - Please Read!

19 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As you may have noticed, we now have icons next to each post.

I have just enabled users to be able to add their own link flair. Please make sure after you submit, you select the relevant flair.

This will categorize your posts-- and allow our new navigation menu at the top of the screen to work.

As you may notice- at the top of the screen we now have navigation buttons that let you filter posts based on post type.

This will help us keep content sorted and keep our signal to noise ratio high for a variety of users with different tastes.

Please carry on!

93

UPVOTES

Briffault's Law

20 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This has been posted a few times, and comes up in comments a lot, but we've got a lot of new users here...

BRIFFAULT'S LAW:

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

There are a few corollaries I would add:

- Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.
- Any agreement where the male provides a current benefit in return for a promise of future association is null and void as soon as the male has provided the benefit (see corollary 1)
- A promise of future benefit has limited influence on current/future association, with the influence inversely proportionate to the length of time until the benefit will be given and directly proportionate to the degree to which the female trusts the male (which is not bloody likely).

Full Post here

12
UPVOTES

Success Story
20 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/seduction/comments/1aaro/seduction_is_a_tool_or_how_i_learned_to_stop/c8vo41r burningtimber makes an apt observation about the woman at the dev conference that got the guy fired.

13

UPVOTES

21 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1aodw5/guy_makes_a_mild_sexual_joke_while_sitting_in_the/c8zmcel

20

UPVOTES

Red Pill Reading List

22 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

People keep asking for a reading list, so here's what PK and I had compiled. Some of these books seem out of context, unless you consider the red pill an existential crisis, and want to get to the bottom of existence..

To get to the bottom of reality, he said, he had to research reality itself. Wanted a full picture to understand the world. Here's his library, what he sent me: (RPS: I read these upon his recommendation)

Quantum Enigma: Physics Encounters Consciousness - Kuttner, Fred, Bruce Rosenblum

Consciousness: A Very Short Introduction - Blackmore, Susan

Nothing: A Very Short Introduction - Close, Frank

The Grand Design - Hawking, Stephen, Mlodinow, Leonard

The God Delusion - Dawkins, Richard

Physics of the Impossible: A Scientific Exploration into the World of Phasers, Force Fields, Teleportation, and Time Travel - Kaku, Michio

A Briefer History of Time - Hawking, Stephen, Mlodinow, Leonard

Freakonomics Rev Ed: (and Other Riddles of Modern Life) (P.S.) - Levitt, Steven D., Dubner, Stephen J.

The Religion Virus: Why we believe in God: An evolutionist explains religion's incredible hold on humanity - James, Craig A.

The Fabric of the Cosmos: Space, Time, and the Texture of Reality (Vintage) - Greene, Brian

The Mating Mind: How Sexual Choice Shaped the Evolution of Human Nature - Miller, Geoffrey

Day Bang: How To Casually Pick Up Girls During The Day - Vörek, Roosh

A Dead Bat In Paraguay: One Man's Peculiar Journey Through South America - Vörek, Roosh

The Manipulated Man - Vilar, Esther

The Way of Men - Donovan, Jack

The Essays of Arthur Schopenhauer; Studies in Pessimism - Schopenhauer, Arthur 27

UPVOTES

[Mod] Feminist Victims Fund

22 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Feminism has caused some serious changes to our culture, to our society, and to our lives. We focus on some that are affected more than others, and we give back.

Our goal is to encourage men to speak out, to be men, to not fear oppression and enjoy their freedom of speech. Unfortunately in today's climate, being a man has become a financial liability. Say the wrong thing in the wrong place and you can find your entire life ruined. Destroyed.

Feminists have fought for equality, but now they're out for our rights.

They're destroying us financially. They're trying to tear apart our families.

We're saying that enough is enough. No longer should men fear masculinity. No longer should speaking up risk a man his job, career, or family.

It's time to rise up against the tyranny. It's time to tell men it's ok to speak up. We're here for you. This is the Feminist Victims Fund.

To protect anybody interested, our fund is entirely anonymous

We use bitcoin to protect the identity of anybody who wants to get involved. Feminists have been so successful at stifling dissent that it is now a dangerous proposition to speak against them. With the risk of losing your employment, or family, it's time we found a solution that can preserve anonymity.

Enter Bitcoin.

Bitcoin allows us to run our entire movement without any way of tracking who is involved. It's our middle finger to feminists. More about anonymity and bit coin.

Read More and Donate Here

2

UPVOTES

RooshV and TheRedPill Launch a "Feminist Victims Fund" after Adria Richards incident

22 March 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

2
UPVOTES

Adria Richards, PyCon, and How We All Lost

22 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://amandablumwords.wordpress.com/2013/03/21/3/>

2

UPVOTES

Why High Heels Are Attractive On Women

22 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/7780/why-high-heels-are-attractive-on-women>

54

UPVOTES

American Girls Have No Game

22 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/7543/american-girls-have-no-game>

17

UPVOTES

Reddit Men's Rights Activists Are Fundraising For The "Victim" Of Adria Richards

22 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.buzzfeed.com/katienotopoulos/reddit-mens-rights-activists-are-fundraising-for-the-victim>

41

UPVOTES

Raising money for men.. must be sexist.

26 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2013/03/25/feminist-victims-fund_n_2949161.html

58

UPVOTES

Tune into BBC News Hour tonight.... special guest - Red Pill School!

26 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In case you didn't notice, it appears we're making some waves across the femosphere (lol), and it's starting to get attention.

I've been asked to radio interview today on BBC News Hour tonight.

The interview will be prerecorded so I hope they don't edit me out of context, but anything's possible.

I certainly didn't see us here a few months ago, but here we are, and it's time to jam.

Edit: So just finished the recording, and eh.. we'll see how it sounds.

Edit: Follow up here:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1b2kgu/my_experience_on_bbc_news_today/

55

UPVOTES

My experience on BBC News today.

26 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You can go listen to the news hour on BBC World's website if you like, but it may not be worth it.

Today I discovered just how much they will edit your point to serve feminisms purpose.

I wish I could say I had a recording of the original interview, however through skype and sound recorder I managed to screw up the actual "what you hear" recording.

Here's a copy of my notes from the interview that I prepared/edited/used during the interview.

Let's accept the premise that there is a level of crudeness in the tech industry, why would only women have the right to be offended? Would men not also find crude material offensive and find equal struggle? I grew up in a christian home, I am just as offended as any woman would be at crude jokes. If feminists believe in equality, I have the same right to be offended that they do. Why aren't we seeing an equal number of men avoiding the tech industry?

First of all, it's important to make a distinction. Not everything that offends women is misogynistic. It's an over-used term and misses the point entirely. So let's just get this out of the way. A lot of people in the tech industry love women. A lot are married. A lot are dating. There's no reason to believe there's a systematic hatred of women in tech.

**

Well let's ask the real questions,

1. Do women feel unwelcome in the tech fields?
2. Are men purposefully causing women to feel unwelcome?

I think I'd like to address the second question first.

Let's say a woman decides to work in a coal mine. The first day she arrives she finds men in dirty clothes with dirty faces going down into the pits and doing hard strenuous labor. She may not prefer to get dirty- she might find that she can't wear her shoes of choice. She might hear men making jokes she finds offensive. She might find herself physically incapable of even completing the work.

But this isn't uniquely a female problem is it? I grew up in a christian home, I can find offcolor jokes offensive. If I'm weak, I may find myself unable to perform the duties required. If I don't like getting dirty, I'm out of luck.

So do I feel welcome? Well maybe I don't. But does that mean they're discriminating against me? Does that mean they should change how they work?

There's this myth going around that nobody should feel uncomfortable at work. I disagree. First day on the job, you should be nervous. Worried about deadlines or not being able to accomplish the task? That should make you very uncomfortable.

Obviously a good employer should ensure that employees are not mistreating other employees, and sexual harrasment is one such mistreatment. But when you have people complaining that it doesn't "feel" welcoming- well that's subjective and changing that is an unattainable goal with moving goalposts.

I think one issue is that women over-estimate how comfortable men typically feel in new environments.

Whether it's a new job, the army, or gym class in grade school, for men it can be extremely uncomfortable until they are able to prove themselves to the group and make themselves a place. It can be daunting, and down right difficult. Often times I feel discouraged in my endeavors, like I should quit.. but I push on anyway- despite not necessarily feeling welcome.

And I think therein lies the problem. Women are offended because when they break into a primarily male group, they assume they're being treated harshly because they're women. But in reality they're being treated the same way these men would treat other men. Is that discrimination? I think that's the opposite! If they want equality, they have to want what it feels like.

That's how you become successful. It's not a boys club.

Thanks all for your support. It marches forward.

4

UPVOTES

M3 AMA tomorrow at 10am. If you haven't read our sidebar- here's Confessions of a reformed incel.

27 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Ama with M3 tomorrow. 10am EST. Hope to see you all here.

In the meantime, this is a must-read:

<http://whoism3.wordpress.com/2012/11/17/confessions-of-a-reformed-incel/>

5

UPVOTES

5 Ways To Emasculate A Man

29 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/8034/5-ways-to-emasculate-a-man>

19 | /r/TalesofPrivilege for a good laugh.
UPVOTES 29 March 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.reddit.com/r/TalesofPrivilege>

Well folks, here we are, hours away from 3,000 users. A lot has happened during the last month. Quite a bit.

We've started making some sizable waves. We're getting a lot more attention. I've been on international radio! We've been in the news!

There's something I've noticed that's inescapable: we're doing something right.

There have been loud calls to censor us. There have been many tries. It's a common mantra- the one I hear over and over. "You guys are disgusting women haters." If we were simply the joke dissenters say we are... why are they paying so much attention to us?

It gives me great pleasure to know that those who disagree with us are going to great lengths to try to censor us. The forum trolling, the news articles, even the half-assed conversation on AskMen. It all points to one thing: Nobody has a rebuttal for TheRedPill. They have no tool in their arsenal but insults and shame. Because at the end of the day, people hate our ideas, but can't quite pinpoint why.

They'll squirm, they'll twist and turn, they'll feel deep anger and do everything to shut you up. But they have no real retort. They have no argument. All they can muster is to try to shame us into submission. Not gonna work, ladies.

I'm happy that we've been able to grow, that so many other men have seen this and now have a welcome place to share ideas. I'm also happy to provide a place to be angry, a place to discuss ideas that might not be popular, a place where you won't face the standard shaming technique of feminists.

On Moderation: How you can help!

Please remember to read the posting rules: Here

If you see any posts that appear to be trolling, I'd ask that you click the "report" button. It's not easy for the moderators to see every thread that's happening now that we're getting big- so drawing attention to it will really help.

Thanks, everybody. Keep on keeping on.

72

UPVOTES

[Mod] Time for my confession...

1 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's been suggested here and there by some of our more clever members. If you haven't figured it out yet, here's my confession.

Folks, there's only one way to a woman's heart. It's simple: You be a decent human being.

The moderators here started this project as an experiment for feminists, we wanted to see just how far-gone men really are in today's culture. Boy were we not prepared to see just how much all men are misogynists! No wonder women don't like you!

Honest confession time: I am not a red pill man. I'm not even a man at all. I'm a 42 year old woman and a staunch feminist. You've all been tricked.

It's crazy that you guys actually believe there's a shortcut, some sort of magic spell you can put on women to get them to like you. Have you tried just being yourself? You guys are all so clueless.

Try a compliment now and again. Hold the door for women. Be a good guy. And for christ's sake, stop thinking that being nice entitles you to sex!

Anyway, you've all been duped. I hope you've learned something from this experience. Looks like one woman was smarter than all of you. Might have to rethink your entire lives now.

Edit: April Fool's day is over. Hope you had a good one.

32

UPVOTES

Public disdain for nice guys, the latest ploy in the feminine imperative's handbook

2 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/cringepics/comments/1baooe/this_probably_isnt_as_bad_as_most_of_the_stuff/c95b8q0

23

UPVOTES

Duplicity - "women have a natural tendency for solipsism – any dynamic is interpreted in terms of how it applies to themselves first, and then the greater whole of humanity."

3 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/09/29/duplicity/>

47

UPVOTES

Iron Rule of Tomassi #3 - Any woman who makes you wait for sex, or by her actions implies she is making you wait for sex; the sex is NEVER worth the wait.

3 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/09/23/wait-for-it/>

9

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement: Endorsed Contributors

5 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hello everybody! Just your friendly neighborhood mod here to talk to you about a new addition we're adding to TheRedPill.

In our ever-continuing effort to provide the highest quality content with the best signal-to-noise ratio, the moderators here will be keeping a lookout for especially unplugged insightful contributors.

Users that show repeated dedication and a high-working knowledge of red pill theory will be given a tag next to their name "Endorsed Contributor."

We would like this to help increase our signal to noise ratio and ensure that amongst the chatter, our message is able to still be heard.

We will be awarding the flair as we go, there are a number of users I already plan on giving this to in the next day or so. Please do not ask for the flair, the moderators will be deciding who gets one.

19
UPVOTES

All Girls Are Spoiled Children
5 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/8704/all-girls-are-spoiled-children>

0

UPVOTES

Women in combat, why not? "If bands of brothers are outlawed, then only outlaws will have bands of brothers."

6 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.counter-currents.com/2013/02/women-in-combat-why-not/>

23

UPVOTES

On selection and confirmation bias. Must read.

6 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1bs8mi/women_have_no_value_beyond_their_pussies_repost/c99o84f?context=1

4

UPVOTES

Women's tears contain chemical cues

10 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.nature.com/news/2011/110106/full/news.2011.2.html>

8

UPVOTES

Reframing Christian marriage

10 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2012/05/11/reframing-christian-marriage/>

4

UPVOTES

The shift in American genetics and thyroid problems from 1985 to now. [X-Post]

10 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

28

UPVOTES

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/1bzd1c/as_a_single_guy_in_his_mid_20s/c9cq0bu?context=1

30
UPVOTES

The Myth of Women's Oppression
11 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.avoiceformen.com/feminism/the-myth-of-womens-oppression/>

10

UPVOTES

Solipsistic Logic

12 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

A good post on learning to understand how women process problem solving:

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2012/03/22/solipsistic-logic/>

The video is missing, but I dug it up:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Qhm7-LEBznk>

I posted this as a reply in this thread but I wanted to expand on this a bit.

On Nice Guys

A common trope I continuously hear is that nice guys aren't really nice, or that they pretend to be nice to score. Or that their niceness is contrived. This attempts to reframe the argument that nice-guys aren't really nice therefore rejecting them is rational, female egos be preserved.

Niceness need not be contrived to fail. I was a genuinely nice guy, I just did stuff for everybody that asked. I figured, people like nice. I like to be liked. Therefore I'll be nice.

And I let people take advantage of me. But this wasn't contrived niceness. It was naivety. I was taught from an early age, share, be nice, respect people and they'll respect you. What really happened was nobody respected me and everybody took advantage of me.

And I think that's why I dislike the recent reframe of the nice-guy problem. They're not typically disingenuous. They're simply misinformed. They can be as genuinely nice as anybody can be.

On Confidence/Assholes

I keep seeing here on the red pill this common trope. "You don't have to be an asshole, just confident..."

So the argument is that you don't have to be an asshole to be confident. I disagree. Part of having good game (for men) is conveying (not explicitly) that you have options. The only way to do that is to send signals that you have options. These signals must act counter to what would be expected from somebody following the "rules" of our society. In other words, in order to convey value implicitly, I must appear to be unintentionally breaking societal rules. To do this, I must make offenses, albeit small enough ones to maintain attraction.

Some examples:

- You text me, sometimes I don't text back.
- I cancel dates 1/3 of the time.
- I make plans with multiple people and only go to the one that I'm most interested in that day.
- I won't buy you a birthday gift.
- I won't buy you drinks.
- You'll try to get me to open up, and I'm not going to.

These are all not just confidence traits, but decidedly anti-social traits that we learn from youth are what "assholes" do.

And it drives women wild.

Enlightened women mention they like the combo of asshole and gentleman. I agree that's the most attractive way to go about life for a man. But don't forget, to be both, you have to be an asshole at least some of the time.

It's not enough to be confident. You must convey your value by showing you have options, and you cannot do so explicitly.

25
UPVOTES

The friendzone doesn't exist.
12 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

0

UPVOTES

Equality in voting?

12 April 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

Interesting thought experiment. I would like to preface this with the fact that I don't necessarily condone this idea, only that it's interesting to consider.

Feminists demand equality. And rightfully so, no citizen should ever be unrepresented or denied rights.

But something feminism has been doing lately isn't pushing for equal rights, but instead pushing for better representation of women in society over men. (In theory until they're equal, but some want more)

So, based on feminisms view, being under-represented as a class is still an equality issue, irrespective of numbers.

For instance, women are voting more than men, and are therefore the vote is more representative of women, moreso than the actual demographics which show a ratio of 0.97 male(s)/female (2010 est.)

So the question is: If feminists truly believe that beyond the right to vote, and beyond the rights to freedom and pursue happiness, women should also be at least equally represented, then their view must therefore reflect that men must also be equally represented.

If this is true, why wouldn't we break down the vote by gender, and scale the vote?

For instance, if 100% of women voted for the Democrat, would we not therefore prefer that to count for 50% of the national vote? Or should women have more representation than men? (inequality).

But that's ridiculous!

Ah, yes, because we'd have to explore other classes, and how to make them equal. Should the black vote have equal weight of whites? How would we calculate the black vote vs women's vote?

It's an interesting thought experiment because it seems to break down. Except with men and women, they're the two groups that are almost roughly equal and transcend all classes.

So the question is this: If feminists are not interested in this setup, then are they truly not interested in equal representation?

And if not- then what are they really fighting for right now?

Edit: Downvotes only make me stronger. I dare you to discuss what you disagree with instead of using cowardly downvotes.

0
UPVOTES

Equality in voting? : MensRights

12 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

140

UPVOTES

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

13 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Dear Feminists and Women,

How are you? It's me, redpillschool. Just checking up on things. Oh myself? I'm not doing so well. Another person just tried to shame me for enjoying my sexuality. I know, it's pretty bad that we live in a society that encourages this. According to you, only stupid women have sex with me. I wonder if you'd say that to their face? I mean, she was just enjoying her sexuality. Something you feminists appear to be in favor for. Why are you being discriminating?

I wanted to talk to you about objectification of women really quickly. It's upsetting because I love women and would hate to see anybody treat one like less than a person. But it seems feminists are doing a great job of this as of late.

Let's address the word object. Objects have no agency. They cannot act for themselves. They can only be acted upon. I pick up a coffee mug and put it in the dishwasher. It is an object and cannot put itself in the dishwasher.

Let's talk about agency, the opposite of being an object. This is important. I have agency. Tomorrow I can decide whether to go swimming, or read a book. It's my choice. I have an active role in my future. Nobody can tell me what I can and cannot do. I am an agent.

Feminists used to be pretty upset at the idea that anybody would objectify women. This was the concept that women have no agency, and instead do only what other people act upon them. If I want a woman in the kitchen cleaning my coffee mug, I put her there and she does it.

Well gosh that sounds terrible.

Feminism agrees! Women aren't objects. They should never be treated as such.

So feminism, I have to ask. Why do you keep acting like women are objects and not agents?

Feminists keep telling me I'm disgusting, that I'm wrong and evil.. because I trick women into sleeping with me.

But feminists- you were the one who told me women are people and make grown up decisions for themselves! Are you saying that women are incapable of saying no?

I just don't get it. I'm trying to understand. Why would you deny women agency?

I have never had sex with somebody who didn't want to have sex with me. I respected their wishes because they are people. They're people with personalities and agency.

But you criticise them saying they are objects- that they have no agency! That they are tricked and manipulated, but have no active role in deciding who to have sex with.

How could that possibly be? If I am handsome and they are attracted, is that a trick? Or do you think I lie and say I'm a doctor? Would that be enough to "trick" somebody into sex? What if I told you I was a millionaire and a doctor, and I help children? Are you "tricked" into sex with me yet?

You're skeptical. You don't think I'm a doctor and millionaire. I'm betting you just decided reading this letter that you don't think you'd have sex with me. But.. if you made that decision.. as an adult person with agency...

...why would you deny other women the right to make the same decision?

Do you think most women are incapable of critical thought? Do you truly believe that if I lie about being a doctor that somehow absolves a woman of her right to choose, and her responsibility to verify? I wouldn't lie about being a doctor, it doesn't even make sense! Women wouldn't have sex with me because I'm rich- they're just not that shallow. I don't understand why you'd assume women are so simple that we can just use some magic cheat code on women and get them in the sack! They're people!

Feminists, I don't get why you objectify women. It just seems wrong. It's the 21st century, and I feel like you're behind the times. An adult woman can make decisions for herself, we don't need some big bad woman-group telling the little woman she can't make decisions. That objectification seems like something we should push against. We should start a group that represents the interest of women.

Because feminism, you objectify women, and they're people. So stop.

Love,

Red Pill School

28

UPVOTES

A feminist takes off gloves and debates "sexual objectification" with me. Interesting read.

15 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1c9ngz/only_white_knights_women_and_feminists_objectify/c9f5v50?context=1

8

UPVOTES

Master & Servant - RationalMale - "...expect masculinity [not] to be anything other than negative when coming from a human being born with a penis. Masculinity paired with a vagina however is the only legitimate form of masculinity acknowledged."

16 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2013/04/12/master-servant/>

22

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Room: The Crab Basket Effect

16 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theredpillroom.blogspot.com/2013/04/the-crab-basket-effect.html>

0
UPVOTES

The War Against Men
16 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-war-against-men>

7
UPVOTES

I See How This Works [ThePrivateMan] - Interesting dialog

17 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2013/03/29/i-see-how-this-works/>

17

UPVOTES

Woman burns abusive husband alive, only serves 3 years of her life sentence, confesses and gets conviction of "manslaughter" and wins Domestic Violence Award. Women, check your pussypasses, this one might have stolen a few extra to pull this off!

18 April 2013 · /r/PussyPass · Archived copy · Reddit

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/1651234.stm

11

UPVOTES

User misrepresnts our sub in defense of troll. I'm calling you out. Let's have this.

19 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1cna08/mrapuaposdumbmaleslutlulz/c9i4rah>

2
UPVOTES

What a bitchy thing to do
20 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshvforum.com/thread-23032.html>

I wanted to have an on-hand url to link to when people make one of the common red pill critiques, since I'm tired of rewriting the same thing over and over.

The Red Pill is Misogyny

False. I'm going to break this answer into two parts.

Part One

There is no systemic hatred of women here. The red pill is a subreddit dedicated to helping men find the truth regarding inter-gender relations. The sad truth is, a lot of these men were raised to believe a set of values that are no longer relevant in today's culture, and yet our culture continues to propagate these values. Men find themselves repeatedly failing when trying to do the simplest and most human task of all: Finding love.

Finding love isn't an unreasonable goal, everybody should have their shot at happiness. Or so we are told. But these men quickly find that the learned traits and behaviors they grew up with, the ones re-enforced by popular media (movies, tv), the ones their mothers and fathers advocated, they actually work against them if they are to find a mate. It actually makes them unsuccessful.

Of course upon hearing the reality of what it is that makes some men successful with women, the first gut reaction is typically denial. There's no way any of this is true. It contradicts everything I've ever known and heard. Nobody agrees with it. Heck, if I ask a girl if any of this is true, she'll be disgusted at the very concept... it must be wrong!

But nevertheless, here we are, discovering these theories and truths, and putting them into practice on the field, and getting real results.

We call learning and internalizing the red pill "swallowing the pill" or "unplugging." Yes, it's a cheesy Matrix reference, but it's an apt metaphor. Ultimately the pill is a bitter one, it pulls the proverbial carpet from underneath your feet. Everything you believed about society, marriage, relationships, women, it's all wrong. You've been lied to.

It's a very difficult transition between being plugged in and really understanding the concepts here. Often this transition is met with anger. This is a normal step in the transition.

Why would people lie to me? Why would mom lie to me? Why would my girlfriend lie to me? Why would society lie to me?

This stage usually doesn't last too long, but does come with it's share of venting. Is it hatred of women? It is not. It's anger towards every person, group, and system that has propagated lies. And rightfully so. I believe anger is an important step. It's the first real step in taking control of one's own life and understanding happiness is yours to take if you want it.

But this is not to be confused with a systemic hatred of women. While these men may curse god and all that live on this planet, this is anger, and not directed hatred. It's important to note that when somebody says, "how can women do something like XYZ??" It is an expression of anger a perceived injustice.

Our critics would like to paint this anger as hatred. It's a temporary anger, and as we learn the theories and concepts here, it's an anger that fades. It's difficult to really grasp a different world view, and the red pill changes everything we know.

When men begin to realize that their goals are unrealistic, and begin to understand more about our theories and what we've labeled the feminine imperative, an understanding of what the lies are that are propagated, and why they are told.

This transforms anger into something constructive: understanding and setting new goals. With new goals, happiness can be achieved.

This is not the systemic hatred of women. This is introspection and understanding, and all the emotional outcomes of the process.

Now, you've probably noticed, we do heavily critique women's mating strategy, we analyze the public face on their strategies, the rationalizations they make for their actions that they readily admit to on threads in askwomen or relationships. This does not constitute hatred, and anybody trying to conflate the two is disingenuous and flatly wrong. Critique and hatred are two very different things.

Part Two

The term misogyny is a thought terminating cliché. We disallow its usage in any way that isn't strictly ironic on our sub because the term itself is terribly meaningless and serves no other purpose but to attach a negative stigma to a very real experience these men are having. The term itself is part of what we refer to as the feminine imperative, because its only real usage is for shaming men and ensuring their obedience.

The very act of discussing ideas that are different or not specifically politically correct is what draws this fire, the accusation of misogyny. Ultimately, our culture attempts to shame instead of understand where we are coming from. Instead of debate with reason, the term "misogyny" rears its ugly head. It's an emotional trick, to try to stigmatise our subreddit- and it always points to one logical conclusion: If there were a solid logical argument against the red pill, would opponents not rather use those instead of cheap tricks like the word "misogyny?"

Usage of the word misogyny accomplishes precisely the goal of those using it, not to encourage an open discussion or debate the merits of red pill ideology, but instead to stifle conversation, to ensure arguments are not heard over the cries of "misogyny." Any who attempt to defend it be wary, as they themselves will associate with said misogyny, and themselves risk the label misogynist. Instead of having to reason on merit, they declare evil the very debate itself. An effective tool to silence people. Except, of course, not any more, since we really don't care.

I'll be adding more in the near future, and sidebarring this.

22

UPVOTES

This is why nobody here takes our critics seriously. Feminists take note.

23 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This little exchange was retarded. This kid is retarded. Stop bothering me if you can't come up with a decent argument, I tire of your dumb shit.

<http://i.imgur.com/Zdry1Tn.jpg>

Edit: He responded:

<http://i.imgur.com/mwGITfW.jpg>

38

UPVOTES

The 15 Magical Years of Womanhood - ROK "Regrettably, the combination of having very little beauty-capital remaining and impossibly high standards—the product of years of enjoying the high life at the expense of her future solvency—will conspire to keep her single."

24 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/9932/the-15-magical-years-of-womanhood>

0
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Women: don't cut your damn hair

25 April 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2011/04/women-dont-cut-your-damn-hair.html>

9

UPVOTES

The Problem With Women Is Too Much Self-Esteem

25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2010/09/13/the-problem-with-women-is-too-much-self-esteem/>

20
UPVOTES

If I Was Born An American Girl
26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/if-i-was-born-an-american-girl>

80

UPVOTES

GirlWritesWhat gives speech at NY Libertarian Convention on Feminism. Must Read

30 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://owningyourshit.blogspot.com/2013/04/my-address-to-ny-state-libertarian.html>

4

UPVOTES

Dem resolution warns climate change could push women to 'transactional sex'

1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://thehill.com/blogs/floor-action/house/296679-dems-warn-climate-change-could-drive-women-to-transactional-sex>

0
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Regulating sex
2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/05/regulating-sex.html>

3

UPVOTES

How dumb do they think we are?

2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/04/how-dumb-do-they-think-we-are.html>

37

UPVOTES

User /u/J2501 suggests that women should be more proactive in dating, and pay on dates- is immediately torn apart and shamed repeatedly by others, without missing a beat.

2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/1dc47d/my_advice_to_women/c9p11ym

26

UPVOTES

/u/tpiecer I'm calling you out.

3 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You came here, made ridiculous demands and then drew fallacious conclusions on them, foisting a false dichotomy of "if you don't immediately bring an answer that satisfies me, you must be wrong." and committing fallacies such as using those ever so terrible anecdotes to confirm your own biases..:

I've heard that logic before , it happens when any group becomes an echo chamber and is a result of confirmation bias.

You, of all people, should know that the concept of a circle jerk is unfalsifiable and ill defined, and therefore can only be levied as an indefensible insult against an opponent. And you based this insult.. on your personal experience on other subreddits?

If you're convinced we're wrong, the onus is on you to bring forward your complaint. You came here, we didn't come to you.

Let's make this simple. Red Pill Theory is large and has many tenets which would be difficult to debate all at once.

For the sake of debate, let's limit the scope so that an actual debate can take place. Bring forward your most damning piece of evidence, your huge complaint that you find makes us so wrong.

I challenge you to.

No Gish Galloping.

EDIT Users, please do not interrupt debate. Make a new thread if you want to discuss.

Well Red Pillers, it's May. In half a year we've managed almost 5,000 subscribers, and we're growing faster each day!

Since we're growing at such a fast rate, it's always a good idea to refresh everybody on our rules, and to address some new issues that have come to our attention.

I would like to take this moment to address the stance the moderators have on a few topics- and the direction we intend on steering this subreddit for the foreseeable future.

Spousal Rape

A commonly repeated trope is that we support rape because one of our moderators said "I don't believe in spousal rape." I will only address this once.

Any forcible exertion of will over somebody else's will is clearly wrong. Bodily autonomy should always be respected, and this applies in all scenarios, including marriage. Any debate on TheRedPill regarding the specifics of spousal rape is an argument of semantics and religion, and not one dismissing basic human rights. Nobody here advocates denying anybody else's autonomy, not even our moderators.

As rape is being defined as wrong because it denies the basic human right of agency, we must also consider the following:

Any force that requires a man, against his will, to make payments or to labor to afford making payments towards a another party must also be considered exertion of one's will over another's autonomy. This denial of agency denies a man's right to bodily autonomy.

Therefore we will refer to alimony as divorce-rape, circumcision as baby-rape, and conscription as life-rape.

If we accept that not all exertion of will over somebody else's autonomy is wrong, or that one can consent to waive certain rights to autonomy in certain conditions to certain people (even if the agreement includes a lapse of time), then we must revisit these definitions.

This will be the last time I address this: If we revisit the definitions, it is an exercise in hypothetical theory and not in itself an endorsement for rape.

Any attempts to conflate the two will be immediately removed and banned. It is a disservice and insult to victims who have actually suffered the terrible tragedy of rape.

Trolls

With the influx of new users, we have to deal with the unfortunate reality that there will be more trolls. Because of this, we're going to have to be a little more strict in our adherence to the policies.

Posts that utilize any kind of concern or shaming language are immediately suspect. We will take a look at each post on a base-by-case basis. Typical phrases that we will be looking out for include:

- "I feel so bad, sad, etc."
- "You're bitter."
- "Misogynist"
- "You all..."

Please note, we encourage open debate and discussion of our theories, but please bring facts, and not ad hominem attacks or concern for our well being.

A new trend that we have been seeing recently are the passive aggressive trolls that disguise themselves with plausible deniability. They attempt to cloud their true purpose by representing themselves as honestly inquisitive or perhaps genuinely mislead, and here to learn. We identify them by their concern language, ad hominem attacks, or insults to our moderators.

It is very possible to be here and ask questions, or disagree without setting off any red flags. However, common attributes of a troll post include:

- Leading with a presumptive conclusion. "The fact that you're bitter is getting in the way of.."
- Asking complex questions (fallacious questions) to which any answer is an endorsement to a presupposition that has not been determined or agreed upon. "Can anybody tell me why you guys hate women so much?"
- Ad hominem "just because you are bitter.."
- Condescension "This just seems like a bunch of chest beating to me.."
- Unfalsifiable rhetoric - phrases, insults, accusations that cannot be falsified and serve no purpose but to manipulate the emotional state of the opponent or onlookers. "This is just a circle jerk"
- Concern "I feel like this sub is focusing too much on.." (If you are genuinely concerned, contact a moderator, or submit more content of the quality you would prefer to see.)
- Accusations of echo chamber/circle jerk. This is a combination of just about all of the above, but I want to highlight that the term "circlejerk" itself is meaningless and unfalsifiable rhetoric used to gain an upper hand in an argument without any of the legwork required to disprove the opponent's points.
- Insulting the moderators - If you disagree with a moderator, that's just fine. You can do so publicly or in PM. We're not gods, we don't know everything, and we spend a lot of time learning every day. However, if you show disrespect to the moderators by using ad hominem attacks or thinly disguise an insult as a "genuine" disagreement, you will be banned.

If you feel you were unjustly caught we have no issue looking at appeals on a case by case basis, just know that your post history and account age will be looked at.

Our moderators do a lot of work to keep our sub clean and functioning on a daily basis, including banning trolls, flaring posts, and attempting to discuss solid red pill theory. Please do not make our jobs harder.

30

UPVOTES

[Mod] Introducing our newest Mod- SoftHarem

6 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm sure you've already seen him around doing stuff, but I wanted to take a moment to officially introduce SoftHarem. If you see him (or any of our mods) around dealing with trolls, drop him a thank-you, they don't get paid, and there are a lot of crazy people who have access to the internet we deal with.

Welcome, SoftHarem.

11
UPVOTES

Remove the Man - Rational Male
7 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/05/06/remove-the-man/>

10 | What a masculine imperative would look like
UPVOTES 7 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/05/02/what-a-masculine-imperative-would-look-like/>

9

UPVOTES

|

Alpha Game: Entitlement personified
7 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/05/entitlement-personified.html>

57

UPVOTES

[Mod] On vote brigading

8 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's fun to link to other subs and look at examples of red/blue pill theories in action, but it's important that we follow reddiquette. Because of this I want to ensure that we:

- Do not follow links into other subs and contribute with up/down votes.
- Only participate in conversations of communities of which you are already a member.
- Keep our discussion of external threads internal on our sub.
- When linking to other subs, use the subdomain: np.reddit.com (No Participation) Any sub using the NP rules will generally disallow vote brigading from inbound links.

Thanks, and thank you goatbirthforalgore for alerting me of the np.reddit.com thing.

18

UPVOTES

Expectations vs outcomes.

10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/05/09/expectations-vs-outcomes/>

Excerpt:

Second wave feminists like Walsh were able to have the best of both worlds. They were able to boldly declare their uncompromising feminist politics in their youth and yet somehow end up directed into both marriage and motherhood. They didn't expect to "have it all", but it just somehow happened. Fast forward a decade and the 40 something women in the Mail article describe the exact opposite. They always expected to have it all, and because they didn't take deliberate action and make compromises they lost the opportunity to become mothers.

12

UPVOTES

Woman hires hitman to kill husband, set free because "under duress." Supreme court appeal determines that he wasn't even there, couldn't be duress- but since she's already been through so much, won't over-turn decision. Is there nothing PUSSY PASS can't do? Order yours today!

10 May 2013 · /r/PussyPass · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.canadianlawyermag.com/4637/a-new-kind-of-case-commentary.html>

68

UPVOTES

The red pill is pro-rape if you take away the last eleven words from this sentence.

10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Society has reached a dead end when people who have never committed a crime, who have never been accused by somebody they've met, who have never been convicted nor arrested can be called a rapist, when the very people committing the crimes are ignored.

Hi, I'm red pill school, and I have never raped anybody. Not even spousal rape-- despite the myth which continues to persist that because we disagree with the term, we're actually out there raping our wives.

I've been labeled a rapist by feminists and a large majority of reddit who have heard of me, but haven't taken the time to read much of what I've written, or read what was pasted out of context.

Now, I'm not saying anybody needs to take sides. But let's face it: how much honor does somebody have to mislabel me a rapist when there are real rape victims that really exist. Seems to me, maybe there's more to these redpillers than they're given credit. Since, you know, they're not the ones wildly accusing everybody of rape.

Shame on you.

14
UPVOTES

Soft Dread
15 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/05/13/soft-dread/>

34

UPVOTES

The wall doesn't exist, 40 is the new 20. Oh, and here's askwomen explaining how becoming less attractive is relieving.

15 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

45

UPVOTES

No Participation Rules

17 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Well folks, looks like the reddit admin are looking for more witches to hunt. While we never really enforced it before, our general rule was - if you're linking to another sub: link to the no-participation version of it by adding the subdomain np. to the url.

We are now making this mandatory. From this point forward, any link to another sub that doesn't include the np. subdomain will be removed immediately.

What is no participation?

No participation is a passive way of telling the sub you're visiting that you will respect their wishes not to participate. It disables voting, and often disables comments- if the sub has no-participation rules turned on.

But what if I'm a member of that community?

I assume if you're a member you can comment and vote, but that's up to the admins of reddit- who honestly haven't given moderators any clear rules whatsoever. We're basically just bumping around in the dark waiting for them to get angry and go on a banning rampage again.

How do I use it?

Just add np (in place of www) to the beginning of your url.

This: http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1a59tv/mod_posting_rules_update_2013/would become

This: http://np.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1a59tv/mod_posting_rules_update_2013/

Is The Red Pill Using No Participation?

Yes, to an extreme level. Whether or not you arrive on a np. link, we have all participation disabled for non-subscribers. This has dramatically toned down vote brigades and trolling.

Thanks.

5

UPVOTES

What is the manosphere? - Dalrock

22 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/05/15/what-is-the-manosphere/>

19

UPVOTES

The True Nature Of Women

22 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-true-nature-of-women>

18

UPVOTES

This kid has no clue that his dad isn't his dad. (Sorry, couldn't help myself, this is unbelievable.)

23 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/pics/comments/1ewoj0/my_dad_left_holding_me_and_me_right_no_one_knows/

6

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Nihilists vs Civilizationists

28 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/05/nihilists-vs-civilizationists.html>

20
UPVOTES

He's Special - Rational Male
28 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/05/20/hes-special/>

1

UPVOTE

Femen activists arrested over topless protest in Tunisia - (Male Equivalent: Male activists convicted of violent sexual assault against women after revealing penises in public)

30 May 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.euronews.com/2013/05/29/femen-activists-arrested-over-topless-protest-in-tunisia/>

26

UPVOTES

I asked for advice, but got something hard to hear, can somebody give me something more validating for my feelings? The blue pill tastes so much better.

30 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/changemyview/comments/1ccvpn/i_agree_with_a_lot_of_what_rtheredpill_says_and_i/

26

UPVOTES

Prime example of postmodern discourse and it's inability to cope with rational debate. This is why we talk right past our detractors.

31 May 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/GameOfDolls/comments/1fbt7l/why_i_am_not_a_feminist_even_if_patriarchy_does/ca9kybz?context=10

6

UPVOTES

[Mod] Welcome to our newest Mod, Nutz76

3 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

User /u/Nutz76 has just joined the team, everybody give him a hearty welcome.

As we're approaching 7k subscribers, we're intermittently experiencing more trolls and more garbage to deal with.

I'm happy to report that the sub is maintaining the level of quality I was aiming for, and by adding another mod we can continue this level of quality right up into the 10k range.

Also PSA: Make sure you're getting enough fat in your diets. That is all.

21

UPVOTES

[Mod] 7K Subscribers and counting.

4 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Despite the attempts to silence us, we are growing.

There are two types of people:

1. People who read and learn before they decide,
2. People who decide before they read and learn.

I think we know who is who.

The Rotating Soft Harem. This one goes out to all the harem members I've lost...

5 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Last night wasn't my favorite, it was the mid-season repeat episode of my life where one of my harem members decides it's time to leave.

It's not my favorite, but it happens, and it's expected. Some leave sooner rather than later, but eventually the feminine imperative forces it's ugly head into all interactions and reminds women ever-so-subtly that I am not giving them ultimately what they desire (or think they desire) which is monogamy.

Funnily enough, if I ever did cave to their desires, I don't think they'd like what they ended up with. It's a pull and it gets into everybody's mind at some point. Why have fun? You need to either lock this down or walk away.

Relationship strategy isn't discussed enough on here, so I thought I'd write a little bit about my relationship strategy. Somewhere around here you'll hear from Softharem who advertises a similar approach.

The Rotating Soft Harem

I have ditched monogamy as an effective mating tool. As per Rollo's advice, I have decided the only weapon in my belt is spinning multiple plates.

The dating market is stacked seriously against men, it's difficult to have any sort of value at all. If we left women to their devices, they would see to it that men have no value in the dating market so they could be free of the shackles of liking any of them. (though they would express extreme concern because they want good men).

The only rebuttal that I see fit is to keep a rotating harem of around three women at a time. It satisfies the plate spinning requirement, enables self-actualization of value in the market, and keeps you from giving away the only item that gives you value in the market- your commitment.

I have learned through trial and error that what we understand as monogamy is only to benefit women. They would like the security and validation that you are a one-gal-man. They, however, will never stop shopping. Hypergamy will insist that they continue fitness testing you as a mate, as well as analyzing all other potential mates. It's only a matter of time before another more apt branch is found.

To take your commitment from you, they minimize your options and strategy, and maximize their own.

So we introduce the rotating soft harem.

My Approach

First of all, I am up front with the fact that I will not be exclusive.

You don't start off on that note, however. Most women will date for a month or two before having "the talk." It's programmed into them, they need to know. They'll have the talk when they're sufficiently in love with you.

I approach it very simply: "I'm sorry, but I'm really just not in a place in my life where I'm ready to enter into a relationship. I really like you and love spending time with you. I would like to keep seeing you, but I understand if you don't."

Some decide it's worth it. Others don't.

I don't talk to them about other harem members, but it becomes implied by the lack of exclusivity.

I attempt to keep around 2 - 3 at a time, replenishing when one drops out.

Most girls seem to do alright in it for about 3 - 4 months after "the talk." I've had a few last over a year.

But .. monogamy!

After learning what happens to me with extreme oneitis, after understanding that without fail- these women will swing to another branch, I have learned that this is the new mating strategy demanded by women. Monogamy is dead.

It's tough, because the imperative becomes very convincing, and at times I lose sight of my goals and why I set them. The demand for commitment and monogamy can be strong and seemingly innocuous. Maybe this one's different.

Do not surrender that freedom, it is the only bargaining chip you've got. Once you surrender it you will find yourself at the mercy of the woman who is most certainly not in it for you.

4

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement: Red Pill Dating LIVE Advice Chat - Sunday, 16th, 7:00PM With Private Man.

6 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Newcomers with questions about red pill dating or attraction? Old timers in need of advice? Anybody in between? Now's your chance.

TheRedPill and RedPillDating.com bring you a free live chat hosted by Manosphere staple: The Private Man on Sunday, June 16th at 7:00pm Eastern Standard Time.

All questions related to dating and attraction are welcome. New to the red pill? Not quite sure what you're doing? This is your chance to get advice!

We'll be discussing answers to all your questions about:

- What it means to be a red pill man in today's climate
- How to attract women
- What women like, and why
- What the best practices and strategies are for your success..
- Why the red pill is the way to live
- How to make a million dollars in five minutes. (just kidding)

Please note: This chat will not be for relationship questions. If you've got yourself a bad case of oneitis, over to Athol Kay for advice.

This will be a moderated chat, we are still figuring out the specifics on how to have a meaningful chat with a large number of people. Please let us know in the comments here if this is something that interests you so we can plan accordingly.

EDIT LIVE CHAT WILL BE OPEN AT 6:30 pm EST Link is here: <http://trp.feministvictims.com/>

EDIT Thanks for stopping by. Here's the logs:

<http://feministvictims.com/trp/chatlog.php>

13
UPVOTES

Coquetry - Rationalmale
14 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2012/05/11/coquetry/>

73

UPVOTES

[Mod] Reminder: LIVE RED PILL ADVICE CHAT Tonight at 7:00 pm est - WITH PRIVATE MAN (Upvote for visibility)

16 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Link is here: <http://trp.feministvictims.com/>

Newcomers with questions about red pill dating or attraction? Old timers in need of advice? Anybody in between? Now's your chance.

TheRedPill and RedPillDating.com bring you a free live chat hosted by Manosphere staple: The Private Man on Sunday, June 16th at 7:00pm Eastern Standard Time.

All questions related to dating and attraction are welcome. New to the red pill? Not quite sure what you're doing? This is your chance to get advice!

We'll be discussing answers to all your questions about:

What it means to be a red pill man in today's climate How to attract women (or men) What women like, and why What the best practices and strategies are for your success.. Why the red pill is the way to live How to make a million dollars in five minutes. (just kidding) Dating profile advice Please note: This chat will not be for relationship questions. If you've got yourself a bad case of oneitis, over to Athol Kay for advice.

This will be a moderated chat!

Link is here: <http://trp.feministvictims.com/>

Chat will be open at 6:30pm EST and Private man will start at 7:00 pm! EST edit chat logs here: <http://feministvictims.com/trp/chatlog.php>

Welcome, I'm RedPillSchool, the head moderator of TheRedPill. I'd like to personally welcome you to RedPillWomen.

What's this all about?

One of the main tenets of red pill understanding is that the dating/mating/marriage market is considerably broken. Now, on /r/theredpill, you probably hear guys bitch and moan because men's and women's mating strategies are at odds with each other. They are, kinda.

Here's the quick and dirty: We all have biological imperatives that our brains are programmed to try to make us accomplish in order to find happiness. The good news is, we're not slaves to the drive, and once we understand the drive we can be proactive to either satisfy the urge, or change our goals to mitigate it.

A man's biological imperative is to procreate. Some men (the few-- less than 20%) are very attractive to women and may take on as many partners as he can. There's no telling if he'll stick around to help with the young, but rest assured he'll make the rounds. Other men aren't as attractive are happy being providers. This is a majority of men. They want to settle down, have a family. Their biological impulses, believe it or not, is to make a woman happy. It's both a feature, and as we've discovered on /r/theredpill, one of man's biggest weaknesses.

A woman's biological imperative is to procreate. (We're not so different!) Her strategy is slightly different. She wants provisions, but she also wants the highest quality DNA to procreate with. Unfortunately for guys, this sometimes ends up with women having sex with one of the attractive but noncommittal men, and then finding another man to do the provisioning. Her strategy is two-fold: have sex with the highest value males as possible, and get commitment from the highest value males possible. If possible: get both in one man. If not, get both from separate men.

The reason for this drive for the absolute best DNA is because the biological cost for women is higher than men when making babies. It's a 9-month + many year expenditure. For men, it's about 15-seconds to half an hour (or longer if you're lucky, bow chicka wow ow).

Naturally that means women cannot afford to "accidentally" end up with somebody of lower caliber, as this takes up precious time and resources that could be dedicated to higher caliber DNA.

This strategy, which is mainly unconscious, is called hypergamy: maximizing rejections to reach the best quality males as possible.

Now, these imperatives we speak about here aren't set in stone, some have stronger instincts than others, and all men and women have the free will to ignore them. You don't have to give in to your biological imperatives. But know that left unchecked, most men and women will act on these imperatives without realizing it- causing visible trends that are easy to spot if you know what you're looking for.

Another point to be made is that blindly following your biological imperatives may bring you short-term happiness (that's what it's programmed to do!), but isn't necessarily the longest term happiness plan. In fact, following your instincts really only serves the purpose of making sure you make a bunch more of yourself.

So Why Red Pill Women? Isn't the red pill all misogynistic and stuff?

It isn't. The red pill is about accepting reality for what it is. As you've seen above, men and women's mating strategies are at odds with each other, and a lot of men on /r/theredpill are a bit angry. But they're not angry because this is reality. They're angry because they spent a majority of their lives being told that this isn't reality, and putting them at a severe disadvantage.

Once we embrace what reality is, we find our relationships to be more successful, more fulfilling, and a better deal for ourselves and for the women we've dated. We've concentrated on what women like, and by doing so have been able to make ourselves into mates that women would want.

But what do women have to do?

Well, the past half a century was the march of feminism telling women that they don't need to do anything for men, that they are perfect and don't need to change, that change or compromise is oppression, and that you can have it all. A career, kids, family, education- it's all yours.

The problem is that our culture ended up self indulgent with no long-term goals, and thusly- no long term happiness (at least where family is concerned).

With divorce rates skyrocketing, single motherhood increasing, never-marrieds piling up, and hook-up culture and one night stands at an all time high, people are reaching 35 going.. where's my family?

That's when Red Pill Women comes into play.

We had a radical idea- what if men and women learned about their natures and took proactive control of them, came up with a compromise that made both parties happier in the long run?

We're a cooperative species, and great things can be achieved when we do. Women, you have the ability to find happiness when you embrace the reality of your biological urges and impulses. You have the ability and the requirement to become the optimal mate for your optimal mate. Do not believe the hype that you are good enough how you are, and realize that in life, the only things worth having take work. That's for men and women.

RedPillWomen is self-improvement and long-term goal setting to maximize your personal happiness.

What RedPillWomen is and is not.

The problem I've seen with female-based sexual strategy forums is that they inevitably focus on what's politically correct. They focus on tempering the message so as not to offend. Because ladies, like it or not, our entire culture currently revolves around not offending you. Seriously. That's today's culture.

This forum will embrace truth first and foremost, sensitivity be damned. While I encourage people to remain positive towards each other, plain insults are discouraged, I understand that sometimes the truth will seem like an insult.

RedPillWomen is not the place for men to show up and spout nonsense. We have an unofficial rule on /r/theredpill that basically amounts to: don't listen to women about sexual strategy. It's not that we don't like women, it's that women really have a hard time seeing past what they like to understand men have a different palate. The same goes for men, perhaps even worse so. Men, being the less discriminating gender, are more-or-less programmed to find women sexy.. no matter what. And when a woman says, "I like to eat pie with my fingers" you'll have sex-thirsty guys line up out the door willing to say anything for female validation. "I love women who eat with their fingers."

Trust me when I say, this validation may feel good, but it's entirely useless if you want to find success in mating and in a family.

Men will say anything for female validation. Men are utterly and completely blind when it comes to what attracts them. They are clueless. They are conditioned by society to tell you that things we're supposed to find attractive are attractive. And why not? In our minds, if I find you attractive, and you exhibit certain qualities, it's hard to isolate which qualities were the ones we found attractive.

But you're not looking for low-hanging-fruit. You could just walk into a bar with no clothes if you want to make men drool. But instead, you want to make yourself into the woman who will snag the highest value mate. You want to redefine high value to mean longest-term happiness. And you don't want just any old schmo to drool over you. So don't take schmo's advice. It's terrible.

Welcome! I hope this will be a productive place to discuss sexual strategy for women. If you have any questions, do not hessitate to post and ask away. We have a great moderator team that will provide some excellent insight. With us we have /u/redpillwifey and joining us soon is /u/TempestTcup who are both great voices to lead this community. RPLady is new to the community, but is very well adept and I trust she'll also bring some interesting insights to the communtiy. Let's get started!

Posting Submission Rules

- New submissions must be related to sexual strategy, events that affect sexual strategy, theories about sexual strategy, or stories confirming (or challenging) current theories of sexual strategy.
- Absolutely no direct link screenshots or images. If you must post a screenshot of a comment or an image, include it as part of your written post. Do not make it your main link. Please include your analysis with the image. Any image-only submissions will be deleted.
- No Memes/Image Macros
- No Concern Trolling / Regular Trolling
- No Direct Video Links. There is a lot of content on the web, and some of it is in video form for sure. We don't mind videos, however we will request that you post any video links you have in a text submission along with your analysis. Any video-only submissions will be deleted.
- If linking to a thread on an external subreddit, please use the domain np.reddit.com to encourage no participation.

More to follow.

43

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement: New Subreddit: RedPillWomen - Red Pill discussion for women. Ladies, subscribe now! -Hosted by RedPillWifey and TempestTcup

17 June 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

11

UPVOTES

RedPillWifey's Story

17 June 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://redpillwifery.wordpress.com/2012/09/05/introduction-part-1-intentions/>

10
UPVOTES

Who is TempestTCup?
17 June 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

6

UPVOTES

Introduce yourselves- user flair!

18 June 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

To your right, you'll see just below our subscriber count, a little checkbox that says "Show my flair on this subreddit."

Below that is your username and an (edit) link.

Click on that and set your flair. Let us know if you're a red pill Lady or Gentleman.

55

UPVOTES

[Mod] 8,000 Users!

19 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We can be right. We can be wrong. We can try new things and fail. We can document our failures. We can document our successes.

But one thing's for sure: those who disagree had their chance to remain part of the narrative and abused it. Now they're upset because we just don't give a damn.

We aren't always right. We aren't always wrong. But it's our call and we don't give a fuck what you think.

92
UPVOTES

The Parable of Mark and Lauren

19 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://laidnyc.wordpress.com/2013/06/05/the-parable-of-mark-and-lauren/>

16

UPVOTES

SMV Ratios & Attachment - Rational Male "[These women] crave the SMV imbalance that a dominant Alpha would satisfy, yet through their own ego investments... must relegate themselves to being the less necessitous person in their LTR."

22 June 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/06/20/smv-ratios-attachment/>

6

UPVOTES

Week 18: Man-Plan

24 June 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

One of the most important aspects of a man's life for his own well-being is having comrades, making sure you have the social interaction with like-minded men. Brotherhood is key to a healthy life, and integral to growing into a man. You need men to aspire to be like, and men need you to aspire to as well.

This week, call up your guy friends and make a man-plan. The activity should be strictly masculine. Hunting, camping, fishing, hiking. No pottery.

Make it a plan, and make sure it happens. Men only.

30

UPVOTES

Thirsty for sex, AskMen drools over, placates and validates a heavy woman

25 June 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1h06tg/would_a_girl_being_physically_larger_than_you_be/

45

UPVOTES

[MR X-POST] - "Equal pay case" won. Female Nursery staff sue to have their work counted as equal to males doing manual labour.

26 June 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/uk-scotland-south-scotland-23045072>

7

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcement- Reddit admin send a very unclear message: Take it for what you will.

1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

133

UPVOTES

[Mod] A note about reddit and their policies. Please read.

1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm sure a lot of you all noticed this weekend that the admin of reddit went on a banning rampage, shadow banning tons of accounts and shutting down a huge number of subreddits related to the "niggers" subreddit.

I have contacted the reddit admin for clarification of what the rules moderators need to enforce to ensure we are in good standing. I'm sure nobody here is surprised when I say the admin were not forthcoming with any useful information, leaving a glaring loophole in their policies that allow a direct banhammer target on any group they dislike.

I messaged the admins:

Can you give me a definitive list of guidelines for moderating subs that can protect our users from potential shadowbans and protect us from possibly breaking the rules?

To which I got a curt and useless response:

Don't break site rules. That's a pretty definitive list.

The site rules are here: <http://www.reddit.com/rules/>

A brief look over the rules are, don't spam, no personal information, no child porn, don't break the site.. and finally, this overly broad and impossible to understand rule:

- Don't ask for votes or engage in vote manipulation.

I was, of course, looking for specifics on this, so I responded to the admin with follow up questions, which have been unanswered as of this posting.

The main problem here is how much room they leave open for interpretation. We do not "manipulate" votes, nor encourage vote brigading- which is why we have instituted the "no participation" rules. But there are problems:

- No-participation is entirely voluntary and was made-up by redditors, not officially endorsed by reddit admin.
- No-participation does not guarantee that admin will see our posts as non-brigading.
- The nature of reddit is participation across multiple subs. At what point does user participation across multiple subs become "manipulation" and how responsible will we be held for the individuals' actions?
- If individuals decide to vote or comment in threads because they're linked here- or in spite of the link here, will our sub be held accountable for their actions?
- Can the admin actually discern between participation and brigading? Is there a discrete difference?

It is clear that if this behavior was not desired, the staff at reddit would put an official stance together and potentially program limitations into the software to stop brigading from happening. But they haven't. There is no way to tell if you're brigading or participating. There is literally no difference. And the admin know that. This is how they maintain the prerogative to ban any sub they disagree with.

Making inconsistent rules that cannot be followed, or no rules at all, to ensure that everybody is breaking them but only the ones they hate will be removed.

If linking to other posts was discouraged, /r/bestof would be taken down.

If brigading other threads was discouraged, SRS network would be taken down.

If participation in other subs was discouraged, the software would not have vote and reply buttons.

There you have it folks, no guidelines, no rules, just a precarious line to walk of not breaking "our rules." Whatever they may be.

Of course the moderators of multiple subreddits have already taken action - including our sub- of making rules like "you must use NP links" or off-sub linking is entirely against the rules. These are desperate pleas to be seen in a good light by the admin, since they are there to appease them without any real knowledge if that's what they want, if that will help, or if the impending bans are coming no matter what we do. We are as mere mortals attempting to appease the gods.

It's obvious that moderators such as myself are set up for failure, how could I possibly enforce the rules of "don't leave our sub and comment elsewhere" when it is specifically that behavior we have no control over? To give us the requirement to enforce rules we cannot enforce is telling, sheds light on the clear practices of the admin on this site. Unless, of course, we don't have to enforce that. But you see, I have no goddamned clue.

To the reddit staff, if you manage to stumble across this post, I implore you to clarify. My guess is that you won't seeing as you've been largely silent up until now. At this point, we can only assume your tolerance of some subs and not of others shows your intention of controlling the message and is implicitly endorsing some views while attempting to silence others. If I'm wrong, please let me know.

In the mean time: my advice to the subscribers of /r/theredpill.

- Do not participate on any thread that is off our sub. Do not downvote, do not upvote. You will be shadowbanned, maybe. Get a new account for going elsewhere.

We cannot enforce this, but as a tip, I recommend it. Become mere observers.

EDIT If things ever do go south, I will post announcements on <http://www.feministvictims.com>

7

UPVOTES

You Need Sex - Rationalmale

1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/06/26/you-need-sex/>

2

UPVOTES

Hiding in My Shell

3 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

0

UPVOTES

Wife Porn - Rational Male

3 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2012/04/19/wife-porn/>

0

UPVOTES

There is No Female Action Plan

3 July 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://marriedmansexlife.com/2013/04/there-is-no-female-action-plan/>

5

UPVOTES

Overweight? Quit your damn fad diet and let's get real.

4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I keep hearing fuss over organic vs non, free range vs caged, and all this other bullshit.

I think one of the key points we focus on here is self improvement and I'd like to talk briefly about weight loss.

Organic is a buzzword. Free range is a marketing term to make you feel bad enough about your food to pay more.

Do you want to eat healthier? Then it's time to focus on the things that actually fucking make a difference.

Now I know somebody's going to link to a study that shows a difference in fat content between a grass-fed cow and a grain-fed cow. Big fucking whoop.

Humans are notoriously bad at risk assessment. We're talking about a culture that is so obsessed with minuscule details like that, but then go take a long drag off a cancer-causing cigarette and go sun bathe at the tanning salon. You're gonna die long before free radicals cause a problem, so quit acting like drinking fucking juice is changing your life. It's not going to.

Yes, grass fed cows are a tad different. IGNORE THAT SHIT. NOBODY GIVES A FUCK.

Want to lose weight?

It's fucking simple.

Drop your carbs.

Up your fat.

When in doubt, count calories.

/r/keto

And don't start up with the "i need my carbs to bulk" that's bullshit.

45

UPVOTES

When female privilege backfires

4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.avoicemen.com/feminism/when-female-privilege-backfires-2/>

0

UPVOTES

Surprisingly good conversation about why we exist on askmen.

5 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

29

UPVOTES

Surprisingly good conversation about why we exist on askmen.

5 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1hod5w/why_does_the_red_pill_exists/

39

UPVOTES

Hypoagency and Blaming Everything on Men

5 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.genderratic.com/p/2645/hypoagency-hypoagency-and-blaming-everything-on-men/>

47

UPVOTES

[Mod] Reminder of the Rules - No Participation

9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Remember folks, if we like seeing The Red Pill here, we need to make sure that you don't participate in off-sub threads that we link to.

Specifically: No Voting on linked threads. No commenting on threads in subs you're not already a subscriber to. If you like a new sub, you can subscribe, we ask that you do not comment in the immediate thread.

If you're new, please review the posting rules:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1a59tv/mod_posting_rules_update_2013/

85

UPVOTES

[Mod] 10,000 Subscribers

10 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Folks, We've reached 10,000 subscribers. And we have some announcements.

I've written up my analysis and observations over the past half a year, you can read this RIGHT HERE!

And secondly, as of today, we're announcing a brand new website called puerarchy.com to represent this cultural shift that's taking place. Fitting along-side many of the prominent manosphere blogs, we will be discussing life today as a puerarch.

The topic on /r/theredpill will stay the same, as it always has. Sexual strategy. All are still welcome to stay (that includes married men, MGTOW, and PUAs) but from this point forward Softharem and I will be focusing on lifestyle guides for the new generations of men. That means what to do about marriage, life, family, and more...

We will be featuring guest bloggers on our new site, as well as prominent members of /r/theredpill. Check it out now! <http://www.puerarchy.com>

Interested in contributing? You can submit articles for review on the "submit" tab under "contact us!" Welcome to 10,000 folks! Here's to 10,000 more!

What is the Puerarchy you ask? Let's look to Ian Ironwood for the answer:

The Puerarchy, for those who are new to the term, is a Manosphere term-of-art used to describe the phenomenon most recently called out as "ExtendedAdolescence" (as this harsh assessment of the group by the Guardian Angels, of all people, points out): the tendency for young men to spend a decade or so getting drunk, high, laid, and wiped out from video game exhaustion and porn marathons instead of applying nose to grindstone, getting a college education that will allow them to support their future ex-wives. It's perplexing for feminists because it means the pool of "acceptable" men for marriage and procreation (and productive tax-paying to support the welfare state) is drying up. It's perplexing for conservatives in the Manosphere because the Puerarchy seems to be thumbing its nose at traditional Conservative values of hard work and ambition, and succumbing to the pleasures of the flesh and the decadence of the West they shun.

Read more...

46

UPVOTES

We are the Puerarchy - "During an era where women gained unprecedented rights sans responsibility over their reproduction, men were shamed into retaining the responsibilities sans rights."

10 July 2013 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/09/wearethepuerarchy/>

0 | Really?
UPVOTES 11 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/really>

16

UPVOTES

Asking the wrong question: "Should men* be allowed to opt out of child support?"

15 July 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/07/10/asking-the-wrong-question/>

12
UPVOTES

Beer and Boobs - Rollo Tomassi
15 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/07/15/beer-and-boobs/>

13

UPVOTES

If she claims she's ever been slipped a roofie, she has BPD and is lying.

15 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://xsplat.wordpress.com/2013/07/12/if-she-claims-shes-ever-been-slipped-a-roofie-she-has-bpd-and-is-lying/>

24

UPVOTES

What American Female Mental Issues Mean For You

15 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/14113/what-american-female-mental-issues-mean-for-you>

225

UPVOTES

[Mod] Use adult words

16 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've been, and will continue deleting posts any time I see the term "feels" (used as a noun) or purposefully misspelled shit. (Or saying something "don't real," or "this hurts my feels". What is this shit??)

Don't be fucking retarded.

This isn't fucking advice animals.

Edit: Clarity.

65

UPVOTES

Ironwood Speaks: Welcome To The Puerarchy. This Is What The Hell Is Wrong With You.

16 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/16/ironwood-speaks-welcome-to-the-puterarchy-this-is-what-the-hell-is-wrong-with-you/>

1

UPVOTE

Evil, Not Power, Is The Defining Attribute Of Women's Attraction Toward Deviant Men (NO MA'AM: Bonecrcker #94)

17 July 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://no-maam.blogspot.com/2004/04/bonecrcker-94-evil-not-power-is.html>

2

UPVOTES

|

Alpha Game: The new Chris Brown

17 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/07/the-new-chris-brown.html>

0

UPVOTES

The intelligence of a woman is inversely proportional to her looks

19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I keep hearing this trope repeated over and over, "I prefer an intelligent woman," or "I can't stand to listen to unintelligent women when they talk.."

Putting aside the very obvious point that I've never met a woman I find to be as intelligent as men, and putting aside the fact that you can't have sex with a girl's personality and the boner cares not what she says...

I posit hypothesis redpillschool #53:

#53 The intelligence of a woman is inversely proportional to her looks.

This hypothesis rests on my lesser known postulate of economic forces:

An economic agent will earn the bare minimum required to accomplish its goals.

Now, men are taught from an early age that times always be chagin', so we are to become well versed in a variety of things. Well rounded in every category. And that's good- because if you wanna snag a lady, you're going to have to be well rounded in a variety of places- except your belly.

Even with this in mind, the job market is tough, and the dating market is tougher. You can spend your life becoming the most interesting man in the world, or the strongest guy in the room, but dating and money are still a struggle and takes much effort.

Thus, the improvement of men.

Women, on the other hand, have a looks-based value in this economy. When a woman is attractive, the word "no" is rarely uttered towards her. If she decides not to take up the many men on their offer to throw resources at her for life, she can use her looks for a variety of jobs, many of which will reward her specifically for being attractive. If she complains, the entire office will change everything to appease her.

She will get free drinks at the bar. People will laugh at her jokes, no matter how unfunny. People will want to be near her and associate with her, even if she has nothing interesting to say.

She will only develop traits that she deems are necessary for her progression.

She will be skilled at applying makeup, and will be a master at being coy.

But she will have seen little value in learning how engines work, wondering what happens beyond the moon, or trying an experiment just to see what would happen.

She does not concern herself with these things, for they are the realm of boys and men.

Except one caveat: ugly women do not reap the benefits that attractive women do. They find life to be hard... a struggle.

Ugly women learn quickly they will not be valued on looks, and instead learn to achieve much in the way a man does.

Which is why there are many smart, but ugly, women.

Now, I hear this over and over, "I found the unicorn! I found a smart attractive woman! You're wrong!"

But I think it should be noted that by virtue of these ideas surrounding the women-intelligence hypothesis, we actually judge women on a completely different scale.

When was the last time you thought to yourself, "wow, that girl is really smart?" Think about it for a second. Was it because she said something incredibly brilliant? Or was it because they said something you wouldn't expect a woman to say? Would you have congratulated those words had they been uttered by the mouth of a man?

I find that what amounts to "very smart" in women is nothing more than common sense for men. "Oh," I think, "that's a very apt observation that woman just made, how smart of her- for it is an observation any one of my friends would usually make!"

A woman's relative sexual market value dictates her behavior in the environments she exists in, her attitude, and her choices. This is strictly related. I will likely post in the coming weeks a few ways the effects that environment and relative sexual market value have in varying red pill theories.

Of course, I regularly hear "not all women are like that," and I think a mistake a lot of people make is not taking into consideration relative sexual market value. Yes, women can be dumb, funny, smart, or personable. Yes, women can be friendly or bitchy. These are all things that exist only within the context of her sexual market value and her surroundings. Her past, and her present.

Which is why a lot of women disagree with our theories... because they are solipsistic and think because they don't act that way, others must not- but they don't know to adjust for relative SMV.

Edit: I can hear the hamsters spinning as I type, let me clarify I'm really using the term intelligence here in a broader sense than "can do math" or "memorizes medical procedures." I'm talking about conversational skills, natural inquisitiveness, sense of humor (the ability to land jokes), ingenuity, curiosity, the ability to think logically, solve logical puzzles, see cause and effect. Things that take practice to get good at. More or less, men and ugly women make good engineers.

Edit 2: Again, to clarify I'm talking about actual application of the brainpower you have, not actual intelligence (or potential).

18

UPVOTES

Great thread on MensRights regarding reddit misogyny.

19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/1ik8ja/something_ive_noticed_about_the_misogyny_on_reddit/

50

UPVOTES

Yahoo CEO Marissa Mayer does what women do best, forces her way into a space (purchases tumblr) and then tries to change it to suit her sensibilities... even at the risk of potentially killing off yet another brand.

19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.zdnet.com/adult-tumblr-blogs-now-removed-from-every-form-of-search-possible-7000018295/>

41

UPVOTES

Threatpoint Created the Puerarchy

22 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/22/threatpoint-created-the-puerarchy/>

31

UPVOTES

The Rise Of The Ratchets

22 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/11615/the-rise-of-the-ratchets>

39

UPVOTES

[Mod] Reminder: Don't vote!

24 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just going through the modqueue like usual, and I've been noticing more shadow-banned accounts than usual, so here's a friendly reminder:

Do not vote on linked posts (to other subreddits). That will get you shadow banned.

It's for your protection.

Seriously.

Check if you've been shadow banned here: <http://shadowbanchek.appspot.com/> (Use at your own risk, could record ip addresses)

As a matter of policy, moderators will no longer approve posts by shadow banned members, even if they were quality posts.

74

UPVOTES

Must Read: "There's no such thing as "equal". Women automatically have leverage in society by default. So if you seem equal on paper, it means she has superior social standing. People will believe her word over yours. This alone is incentive enough to make shit up."

24 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1ix1cl/getting_gaslighted_the_lessons_learned/cb8y1sb

15
UPVOTES

Feminism & Personal Freedom
26 July 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/26/feminism-personal-freedom/>

24

UPVOTES

How Pre-Selection Affects Your Online Dating Profile

31 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/31/how-pre-selection-affects-your-online-dating-profile/>

83

UPVOTES

[Mod] New Sub, and a New Rule!

2 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hi everybody, it's RPS with some updates.

Since we've grown from 0 to 12,600 in about half a year, I think it's time we do a little organization.

A new trend I'm seeing is a lot of newbies here are wondering if they're applying the red pill properly in their lives.

Now, this is a good question.. but with such an influx of new subscribers, it tends to drown out other red pill discussion.

Introducing /r/askTRP

We are leaving the ask trp flair here because there will still be relevant questions to ask our main sub, such as:

- What do you think of this theory?
- Has anybody else noticed this trend?
- What's TRP's position on this or that?

However personalized questions will now be directed towards /r/askTRP such as:

- I had an argument last night with GF, did I handle this well?
- My GF is giving me trouble, don't know what to do..?
- I ran into a weird shit test, what's your opinion?

As always, my main direction in moderating and directing this subreddit and it's network has been ensuring that all members have the ability to express themselves, their anger, frustration, and other emotions. While most places try to temper the message by ensuring it's politically correct, we have no such compulsion.

So instead of removing personal questions, we're just moving them over.

Older Members, I invite you to pop over to /r/asktrp every so often, try to lend a hand where you can.

And as always, read the sidebar!

Thanks!

12
UPVOTES

Welcome! New Sub : TheRedPill

2 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

20

UPVOTES

[Mod] A Thousand Subscribers and Some News!

6 August 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Morning all!

Recently we crossed over a thousand subscribers! That's a pretty cool deal given we're only a month old!

Reddit has made some changes in the back-end of things and have given us a new feature that I want to implement:

Hiding post/comment scores for 60 minutes.

This allows people to stop by, give an opinion and vote on items before the score is made public- which should help with downvote brigades. My hope is that this will keep new posts from being downvote-buried when it's first made.

Anyhow, keep it up! And everybody give a big thanks to our excellent mod team: RedPillWifey, TempestTCup, Margerym, and Softharem. They do great work!

47

UPVOTES

New Logo

6 August 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

22
UPVOTES

Men are made, not born. Join BecomeAMan
6 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://reddit.com/r/becomeaman>

I wanted to take a short break and clarify a few things, since we've got a lot of new members. These thoughts may be a bit disjointed, but I wanted to put it in a visible place.

Quality of Posts

Since our subscribership has increased as much as it has, there's been a latent fear that our quality will drop.

This was something the mod team and I were aware may happen, and we've taken steps to subvert it. For instance, we've categorized each post (yes, we spend a lot of time doing that when you don't), so you can easily click those little links at the top and get straight to the content you want to see. That means there's no reason to complain if there's a certain level of posts that you don't like. Want more red pill theory discussion? Literally just have to click "red pill theory." It's that simple.

We've moved ASKTRP to it's own sub to remove newbie questions. If you're new, go there.

My assessment

I regularly read through the threads on here, and much to the opposite of what some might complain about, the comments here are largely on-topic and insightful. This is a well spoken group, for the most part. Sure there are trolls here and there, but it's one report click away from being taken care of. I highly enjoy the discourse here, as much as day one, if not moreso.

The only thing that actually lowers the quality of posts is people complaining about low quality of posts. I have always treated it as concern trolling, and will continue to do so.

There are people who claim that we've changed direction, or the red pill doesn't mean what it used to. Those people have literally no idea what they're talking about - and clearly are unaware of what TRP started as. They are adding noise. Don't like something? Add more of the content you want to see. It's that simple. Bitching about it is annoying.

Field Reports

It has come to my attention that field reports are becoming a little overwhelming. It's good to report back about your experiences, that's a core part of our sub. What I'm going to request is that you refrain from posting field reports during the week, and we'll have a super-mega-field report thread each monday. If you don't see a super-mega-field report post and it's monday, feel free to start it yourself.

Videos

Our general rule we've been using is no video links without a self-post with your analysis. We try to remove them when it happens, but sometimes we don't get there until it's 30 comments in. At that point, the discussion is already there, and so we don't remove it.

I have decided we're going to get more strict on this rule. If a moderator sees a direct video link, it will be deleted, period. With or without comments. If you want to post a video, make a self-post and add it to your analysis.

Self-Post Links

I've seen people adding self-posts with nothing in them but a single link. Don't do this. They will be removed on-sight.

No Participation

Please remember that no participation is for your own protection. I will ban anybody caught following an NP link and participating, to discourage this. We have a large number of people getting shadow-banned, you don't want to be one of them. Don't do it.

Doxxing

Recently we've had a few events with various users attempting or allegedly doxxing eachother or attempting to call out real life rapists (tm). It's drama I don't care for. I forward anything I see to the admin, delete that shit, and move on with my day. Your privacy is your job. If you don't have a throwaway for TRP, you should. A lot of people think simply being here is a sign you will go out and rape people. It's friggin ridiculous, but some people used to lynch black people too, so at this point just assume people will be idiots and think it's their job to deliver justice. Use a throwaway, do not post personally identifying information, and for christ's sake, when you get shadowbanned after being doxxed, it's for your own stupid protection, not a punishment. Take it in stride, make a new account, never speak of the event again, or they will link your new account to your old one. You know who you are, I've deleted all your posts. Take a hint.

A note on Endorsed Contributors

Everybody has a different opinion, not everybody is the same. When the moderators see somebody who has solid red pill understanding, we give them the flair. This wasn't their choice, and they're not expected to toe any line. We judge them based on their contributions up until that point. Sometimes they'll say something somewhat ridiculous-but as an exception, not a rule. For the most part, they're solid thinkers and we want to be able to distinguish good solid theory from the noise.

That's the reason they exist. Just wanted you all to know. It's one more method to help keep the signal high, and the noise low.

Redesign

You all probably already noticed by now, but we've done a redesign of all the red pill related subs to give them some consistency, and make them a little cleaner. I like them. They look like candy.

That is all

Thanks, crowd. Keep up the awesome discussion.

1
UPVOTE

Just testing something, ignore me

13 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

2

UPVOTES

this is also a test

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UWOEFkauoYY>

2
UPVOTES

Ignoring this post seems like a good idea

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1
UPVOTE

some girl game that worked on [m]e recently : RedPillWomen

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

2
UPVOTES

Test One

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

2
UPVOTES

Test Two

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1

UPVOTE

Memes??

13 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Has a secret
recipie that has been closley guarded since 1886.

67 ounces:
99 cents

Falls regulary from the sky.

16 ounces:
$1.49

0

UPVOTES

meme part 2

13 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

8

UPVOTES

Red pill bitterness – A guest post from Tom Torero

13 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://krauserpua.com/2013/08/13/red-pill-bitterness-a-guest-post-from-tom-torero/>

20

UPVOTES

Link Flairs

14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

How do you set a link flair?

When you're done making your post, you'll likely come to a page that looks like this:

<http://i.imgur.com/MuCPgu1.jpg>

A fresh new post! But there's nothing there yet! Better add your flair!

First select the "Flair" link, and then choose your appropriate flair.

<http://i.imgur.com/UahIU3o.jpg>

The Flairs

Red Pill Theory

Use this flair when you make a post about red pill theory. Anything regarding sexual strategy, scientific studies, statistics, or just essays.

Red Pill Example

Use this flair to show an example in which one or more person is acting in an exemplary red pill manner. Should be used for role models.

Blue Pill Example

Use this flair to demonstrate the follies of blue pill thinking. This can include showing men or women deceiving themselves, or the outcome of said deception.

Ask TRP

If your question is personally related, please remove your post and resubmit to </r/asktrp>. If it's theory related, use this flair and keep it here. For instance, this question would fit:

- Has anybody noticed that the west coast is receptive to different game than the east coast usa?

This question would need to be moved to </r/asktrp>:

- I went on a date last night, but don't know how to proceed, please help?

MRA

Anything men's rights related.

Field Report

Use this flair to indicate that you are reporting back on methods tested, and their results. We will be making a field-report mega thread on Mondays, please refrain from posting field reports until then.

Rant

When your post just doesn't fit anywhere else.

Meta

Posts about the red pill. Please don't concern troll.

LTR

Posts about Long Term Relationships, Relationship Game/Strategy. Strictly non-plate spinning discussion.

1
UPVOTE

Automoderator Bot

14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

19 | “Your Son Is A Fucking Faggot”
UPVOTES 14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/15385/your-son-is-a-fucking-faggot>

45

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: The limits of female solipsism

16 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/08/the-limits-of-female-solipsism.html>

43

UPVOTES

Field Report Monday

19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Let's hear your field reports, folks.

12
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Sexist men make better dads

19 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/08/sexist-men-make-better-dads.html>

8

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Meta-ruination

20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/08/meta-ruination.html>

15

UPVOTES

A Simple Workout to Get You Started

21 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/08/21/a-simple-workout-to-get-you-started/>

22

UPVOTES

A Simple Workout to Get You Started

21 August 2013 · /r/becomeaman · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/08/21/a-simple-workout-to-get-you-started/>

3
UPVOTES

This will likely fail...
22 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

48

UPVOTES

You Don't Have To Be Right

25 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/16114/you-dont-have-to-be-right>

23
UPVOTES

Confidence is not internal
27 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://xsplat.wordpress.com/2013/08/27/confidence-is-not-internal/>

Not all women are like that.

I must have just experienced the few bad ones. Right?

Hey, not every drive results in a crash, but you wear your seatbelt?

Not every ship sinks, but you include lifeboats?

Not every cigarette kills, but you don't smoke to avoid cancer?

Not every day it rains, but you keep an umbrella in your car?

Not everybody has an STD, but you use condoms every time?

Not every wild animal has rabies, but you avoid getting near them at the park?

Not every person will rob your house, but you lock your doors every time you leave?

Not every day you get sick, but you still have health insurance just in case?

Not every woman divorces you, but you avoid marriage to avoid divorce rape.

There's a pervasive myth that the red pill is about treating every woman as a definite threat. I think they really miss out on the idea here that not every person is a threat, but you take precautions to avoid scenarios that increase your chances.

Apparently that sort of thinking is unique to men. I'd like to say women can understand it, but then again, they seem pretty angry at us for using rational techniques like this. Nobody does a disservice to women's image like women.

Edit: I'd like to add a great example, because I hear this about marriage a lot. I hear people say it's overly paranoid to avoid marriage just because there are a few bad apples out there. I think the difference is in pragmatic thinking- for instance here's how I see the cards being held:

I don't think all women (or even most) will divorce rape you. However, when you're married, she holds the cards and you have zero options to intervene.

If you don't get married, this dilemma never exists, therefore you have all the cards in regards to divorce rape.

A prudent man ensures he is never stuck with zero options. It's not because all women are like that- it's because some are.

39
UPVOTES

Why there cannot be equality
28 August 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/1l6lu4/why_is_rmensrights_so_opposed_to_rtheredpill/cbwee6h

35
UPVOTES

Alpha Up! 1st Edition 8/30/13 (By our very own Nutz76)
30 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/08/30/alpha-up-2/>

37

UPVOTES

How Feminism Has Manipulated The English Language & The Concept of Equality

3 September 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/09/03/how-feminism-has-manipulated-the-english-language-the-concept-of-equality/>

81

UPVOTES

Female Solipsism: Older Married Woman asks AskMen Why Dating is Hard

4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Link here:

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1lnrvu/female_wondering_why_guys_are_so_hard_on/

Older woman who has settled for a beta asks every guy, "hey I married a beta, why are you all having such a problem with attraction? Y'all know how easy it was?"

This is a prime example of female solipsism, she realizes not why her experience in selecting a mate is different from men's being selected, she realizes not that her age puts her outside the normal range of potential mates, effectively limiting her choice to betas-- she instead rationalizes that this was her more refined, mature choice.

She even admits alpha widow:

After him I dated a guy purely based on spite for my ex and raw physical attraction. He was a blue eyed ginger. (my favorite) He was 6' 2", was 240 lb of raw sinew and muscle, zero fat. He had like 20" + biceps and could bench press more than I thought possible. He was also dumb as a box of rocks, vain and had a personality that resembles a dial tone. His appeal wore off quickly, very quickly.

Translation: He wouldn't settle so I will make it seem like I wasn't interested anyway.

8

UPVOTES

She just doesn't get it. This debate goes in circles for hours!
(Please do not participate)

4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1lo6b0/why_does_askmen_seem_to_be_getting_more_hostile/cc1kz19?context=3

45

UPVOTES

[Mod] Reminder: No participation on links

8 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is a friendly reminder, please do not vote on links that are linked to other reddit posts.

Furthermore, do not participate in conversation. I have been alerted of trolling and it needs to stop.

Additionally, please do not try to evade these rules with alternate accounts, as the system still sees you doing it.

At this point we will remain allowed to link outside posts, but if it keeps happening I will disable all reddit xposts in favor of screenshots.

55

UPVOTES

[Mod] New Reddit X-Link Policy - No More of that

10 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Recently there was some drama, I'm not going to talk about it because drama's stupid and it doesn't matter. Needless to say, we've always known we've got a target on our back.

At the end of the day, people believe in free speech, so long as it agrees with them.

Because of this, many people would like to see us disappear. One such way to do this is to claim we are brigading threads.

The fact that I am taking a few minutes out of my day to talk about brigading with fake internet points on a fucking website is god damned ridiculous. But here we are.

It's obvious to me there is no simple rule we can put into place that eliminates this issue, especially when you consider that people who want us gone can just as easily subscribe here, follow our links, and brigade threads. False flags they're called, and there's no way to eliminate them.

So we're making a small change, and I think it's one that will also improve content:

No more crosslinking anything from reddit at all.

Not in submissions. Not in comments.

If you want to post a conversation or post between members on reddit you must take a screenshot, and edit it for the following requirements:

- No URL in picture or post
- Subreddit name must not be present in the picture or in the post.
- Must be self-post with analysis.

On the analysis: Full paragraphs please. Explain the effects at play, why these people are acting the way they are, and possible suggestions. No more low-hanging "look this guy is a moron" posts. Constructive posts only. Everything else will be deleted without warning.

Check out this chrome extension for imgur.

1
UPVOTE

This is but a test

10 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/worldnews/comments/1m3l9y/syria_accepts_russian_chemical_weapons_proposal/

1
UPVOTE

This is but a test as well

10 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

74
UPVOTES

Avoid Women With Horses
11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/16904/avoid-women-with-horses>

Rollo's awesome as usual. Read Up

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/09/10/the-male-experience/>

A few excerpts:

Women become very indignant when trying to understand the male experience. This is due in most part to women's innate solipsism and their presumption that their experience is the universal one. Part of this presumption is due to social reinforcement, but that social presumption – essentially the equalist presumption – is rooted in women's base indifference to anything external that doesn't affect them directly and personally.

This is a great point that I notice every time I argue/debate in other places (such as the purple pill place that ended up a dud). They don't just disagree, they become indignant.

The very idea that men's experience is so vastly different to theirs angers them. They are so angry about it, they wish to see our entire subreddit disappear.

That we've had experiences that lead us to our conclusions boggles their minds. "I'm not like that.. so this guy must be running into bad women with daddy issues, or he's lying."

The purple pill debate sub spent most of their time trying to explain why we're wrong. My main contention was: I don't really care, this was my experience. They couldn't fathom that I could hold my experience higher than their solipsistic statistical analysis.

"Actually, men and women are 99% alike, so there's no difference."

That's a nice stat, ma'am, but it doesn't change anything practical in my life.

So it often comes with a lot shock and indignation (which women instinctively crave) when women are forced, sometimes rudely, to acknowledge that men's experience doesn't reflect their own. The reactive response is to force-fit men's experience into women's solipsistic interpretations of what it should be according to a feminine-primary perception of what works best for women.

Count the number of times people in other places rebut a red pill argument with the word "should."

"You shouldn't have to do that to keep a happy marriage..."

If hopes and dreams were dollars.

The initial shock (and indignation) is one of interrupting her comfortable, predictable expectations of men in the feminine defined, solipsistic reality she experiences for herself. As even the most rookie of red pill Men will attest, the legitimate female experience rejects this assertion, most times with an amount of hostility. As expected, Men are met with the socially reinforced, prepared responses designed to defend against attempts to question the legitimacy of the primacy of the feminine experience – shaming is often the first recourse, even most passive challenges warrant shaming, but character assassination and disqualifications based upon a feminine primary perspective are the go-to weapons of the solipsistic nature of the feminine mindset (even when men are the ones subscribing to it).

This guy is writing my life story here.

Read the whole thing, it's worth it.

21

UPVOTES

Debunking The Three Most Popular Game Denialisms

11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/17084/debunking-the-three-most-popular-game-denialisms>

25

UPVOTES

The Unintended Consequences Of Domestic Violence Laws

11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-unintended-consequences-of-domestic-violence-laws>

26

UPVOTES

[Mod] Tool for Crosslink Archives

11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In light of our new rules banning crosslinks I wanted to introduce a cool site that might be useful:

<http://www.redditlog.com/>

Simply put, it lowers the barrier to entry for posting crosslink examples, but eliminates brigade possibilities.

Check it out.

Also, I'm sorry the bot is removing inter-redpill links. I'm working on it.

16
UPVOTES

test
12 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

ignore me

3

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Evidence in support of a thesis (On intelligence's effect on attraction)

12 September 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/09/evidence-in-support-of-thesis.html>

157

UPVOTES

My Interview with Dylan Love of Business Insider

15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So you've probably already seen the article which doesn't quite convey what the red pill is, or give it much of a fair shot. I'm actually surprised, he managed to keep a more level head than I was expecting, but I'm sad he didn't really present the points I gave him.. if anybody can explain the purpose of this sub I think I know what I'm talking about..

Anyway, thought I'd post up my interview, since very little got quoted, and some of it out of context.

- I realize there's a lot to unpack here, but what are the ideas behind Red Pill?

Most of the ideas revolve around the idea that men and women are fundamentally different, due to evolution. Both men and women have different strengths and weaknesses. Men evolved traits that complimented women's traits, and vice-versa. For instance, women have a 9-month gestation period, and can give birth. Men certainly don't have that ability, but they have a complimentary ability. They developed larger muscles and can take care of and protect women during their gestation period. We can observe that today- men statistically have better upper body strength than women. We extrapolate on these types of known facts and theorize that they are just a few of many differences – both physically, but also instinctually and preferentially.

We call our group “The Red Pill” in reference to the Matrix movie. Cheesy for sure, but it's an apt analogy. We see that most cultures today have deemed it politically incorrect to recognize or even discuss gender differences, with no regard for whether or not such differences actually exist. Our focus is accepting these differences, despite being told they're politically incorrect.

A lot of people view this as sexism, in a malevolent way, and I think it's important to point out that in fact we hold the principle of equal opportunity in high regard; it's the desire for equal outcome that we disagree with- something that we strongly feel feminism pushes for.

- I hate phrasing the question this way, but it's the way a layperson would ask it: Do Red Pillers hate women?

Delving into red pill ideas is sometimes a very shocking experience for some, especially for those who were raised to believe the politically correct ideals reflected nature. The road to our forum is paved with bad experiences, men who have never been loved, have loved and lost, men who have tried and failed, or men who succeeded and were taken advantage of.

So when they realize their failures were within their control to avoid, it can induce a bit of anger. They are angry, they're upset that they feel lied to, that our society repeats lies and half-truths about the nature of attraction- and even about the nature of themselves! It's a jarring experience.

I think that a lot of the men have a misplaced anger towards women. I wouldn't say it's hatred- no, they're interested in red pill theory because they want to learn how to be better with women. But there is a temporary anger. We have examples posted every day of women acting contrary to what we're told women would do... because in our culture, women are mostly regarded as the good sex, the one that does no harm. Our subreddit pulls back the curtain and says, “hey look, these women are human just like everybody else. It's time to put away your idealistic views and embrace reality.”

A lot of onlookers think that means we hate women, or that we're all very angry. I think it misses the point. We've provided one of the very few spaces where men can feel comfortable communicating openly with other men. The fact that we demonstrate women acting in these ways might look like we're blaming women. It's a subtle nuance that is missed by most onlookers- we're not blaming them. We're trying to understand them. Why they might act the way they do.

One of the major reasons we've grown so quickly was the moderation decisions we've made not to censor anger and bitterness. Instead, we understand it to be a natural part of the healing process. It would seem to me that society deeming these perfectly natural emotions as wrong is a big portion of why these men are seeking out a space like The Red Pill in the first place.

We take that anger and bitterness, and we try to use it to be constructive. Eventually the anger passes, and all that's left is the future and the question: What are you going to do with this information?

Most guys take their new understanding of relationships and women, and apply it. They go to the gym, work out, get fit, and learn how to communicate with women in ways that produce successful relationships.

The understanding that we have is that a majority of relationship failures can be prevented by improving ourselves. That certainly doesn't sound like we hate women. Most people are too blinded by the course language and hyperbole that is inherent in male communication to see past it- these guys just want to find belonging and love, like anybody else.

- Do Red Pillers have a word or name that refers to the collective group? What about a term for Red Pill ideas/platform?

The Red Pill is a collection of ideas and theories encompassed by what we refer to as the "manosphere" which is a collection of blogs that focus on masculinity and personal philosophy for men.

We typically just call ourselves red pillers, though there are a lot of sub-groups in the manosphere. Men going their own way (MGTOW), puerarchs, married red-pill men, MRAs... to name a few. The major differences between the groups aren't really ideological, but instead philosophical looking at their answers to the question: "what should I do with the knowledge I have?"

Some men use this information to make better relationships with women. Some men decide to avoid women altogether.

- Does this ever go offline? Do people write Congress to urge for changing laws identified as emasculating? Meetups in the meatspace? Other stuff?

Currently, there isn't much offline group activity outside of the men's rights movement (which the red pill overlaps with in some places).

One major issue is that feminists tend to try to censor those they disagree with. One of the best tools we have with our community is anonymity. We've seen what happens when a feminist starts getting upset and making waves. People lose jobs, people lose families, people get death threats from white knights.. Adria Richards comes to mind.

Individually, however, we take this information into the world every day, and apply it in our lives.

We're definitely a little different from the men's rights movement, in the sense that we don't seek to "fix" society or our government. In fact, a lot of us feel that things are beyond fixing. Sure it'd be nice if reproductive rights were equal between women and men, but nobody's holding their breath about it.

A majority of our goals are personal and interpersonal improvement. Not really something to write your congressperson for.

- In general, is there a "type" of person that ends up subscribing to Red Pill ideas?

I think anybody and everybody could apply red pill ideas in their lives and improve dramatically in their jobs, relationships, and families. Some people grew up already understanding these basic ideas. Some people have hit rock bottom and come to them with an open mind. When everything you try doesn't work, you start looking for less conventional options.

A common theme among new-comer posts reflects that the ideas seem to "click," and there's always a little embarrassment that they didn't come to these ideas sooner.

Some people think the ideas are so obvious that we must be social outcasts for not having understood these ideas sooner. I guess different upbringing makes a big difference.

- Care to share a personal story (non-identifying is obviously okay) that affirms Red Pill ideas?

It's hard to demonstrate precisely the changes I've made in my life and how profound of an effect they've had in a short story- but I can give you a glimpse:

Some of the basic skills I've learned include learning to be confident and learning how to pass what we refer to as fitness tests (shit tests). It feels a little unusual at first, doing and saying things that you've learned your whole life are wrong, but I manned-up and tried it anyway..

Sure enough I found myself being far more successful in relationships. Meeting women was easier. Women liked me more. And the best part was that I didn't feel like navigating a relationship was like flying blind- I was confident in what I was doing, and it kept attraction alive in places where I'd otherwise kill it.

We get stories every day from husbands rekindling their marriages, guys being more successful meeting women, guys having more luck at work, and most importantly: guys feeling better about themselves. It's absolutely amazing to watch some of these guys grow from being depressed and feeling helpless to becoming strong and confident. It's a very rewarding experience, from my perspective.

- How did TRP start? Offshoot of men's rights movement? Something else?

The red pill started when another fellow founded it- he has since left. He and I were in communication when he started it, his intention was to give men a place to discuss life as men openly. He was an avid men's rights supporter, and a regular contributor to the pickup forums. But the problem was that these places were starting to fold to appease the feminist narrative- they wanted to change their language to make it more palatable to feminist sensibilities, which took a toll on the very communication that was supposed to be taking place. They were afraid to appear as though they "hated" women, even though they didn't.

This is a common problem that we've identified, when feminism invades a space, they control it by controlling the language. Nobody wants to be politically incorrect, lest they suffer the scorn of the feminist movement.

- What's the difference (if any) between TRP and men's rights?

The men's rights movement identifies and recognizes legal injustices. The Red Pill recognizes inter-personal differences. There is some overlap. I think that the changes the men's rights movement suggests could help all men, and it's an important movement. But it still doesn't really address the personal problems that we see today: divorces and relationship failures... these aren't necessarily legal issues, but they are real.

- Fair to call The Misandry Bubble something of a TRP Declaration of Independence or manifesto?

The misandry bubble is a unique look at our culture, in economic terms. It was written long before the red pill forum was constructed, but has always been seen as a rather apt analysis of the problems we face today. For a lot of men, they're issues that we're told don't exist- so we almost feel crazy when we read it and it makes sense.

The red pill group is very loosely tied together, with a focus on reality and truth. So in that, I wouldn't say we have a manifesto, but if we did, that would be it.

More in comments...

4

UPVOTES

Alphabet mod?

16 September 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

Where did he go?

1

UPVOTE

I think blue pillers have projected their own version of the red pill to argue against, and have yet to accurately describe our position

16 September 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

I have yet to see a single comment by a blue piller accurately describing our position before they tear it down. Therefore I do not think blue pillers actually know red pill theory, and I do not think they have done anything to dismantle our arguments.

In this thread: prove to me you actually know what you're fighting against.

Edit: Take your pick- choose one topic and give the red pill perspective.

Edit 2: So far a lot of anger here, but not a lot of people standing up and explaining what the red pill view is. I'm disappointed.

15
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: A lack of perspective
17 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/09/a-lack-of-perspective.html>

29

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: On female sympathy

20 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/09/on-female-sympathy.html>

27

UPVOTES

All Women Are Sheep

23 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/17452/all-women-are-sheep>

71

UPVOTES

The Case Against Female Self-Esteem - "constantly expanding the definition of rape are ways for feminists to indulge their desire for vulnerability in a way that doesn't conflict with their view of themselves as 'strong' and 'empowered.'"

26 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://mattforney.com/2013/09/16/the-case-against-female-self-esteem/>

12

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Of fish and bicycles

30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/09/of-fish-and-bicycles.html>

39

UPVOTES

The fact that I was being desired by the most famous and powerful man in America only amplified my feelings to the point where resistance was out of the question. That's why I didn't say no to the president.

11 October 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://nypost.com/2012/02/05/teen-mistress-addresses-relationship-pols-cold-war-fears-in-memoir/>

23
UPVOTES

Just another reason to never get married

15 October 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

22
UPVOTES

Red Pill Network Multireddit
17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.reddit.com/user/redpillschool/m/redpillnetwork>

75

UPVOTES

“What Do You Do When A Girl Hits You?”

17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://goodmenproject.com/featured-content/brand-what-do-you-do-when-a-girl-hits-you/>

58

UPVOTES

Feminists Are Successfully Creating A Society Of Shameless Sluts

17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/feminists-are-successfully-creating-a-society-of-shameless-sluts>

73

UPVOTES

Interesting interaction with the feminine imperative while out with a date...

1 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm still formulating my thoughts on the experience, but I wanted to get a chance to spark some discussion here about this, get some input.

I was out with a plate the other night, she's become a regular, been seeing her for a few months. She knows we're not exclusive, but she doesn't go into detail when we bump into people we know, it's just too complicated for most people.

We ran into an old friend of hers who gleaned that we were seeing each other, and she started gushing- "oh don't you love her? She's the best! You have the best lady here!"

She then proceeded to tell me that I should "better show my appreciation for having such a wonderful woman" and that I'm "lucky to have her."

It's an interesting insinuation, and clearly spoken out of turn, since it hinges on premises she couldn't possibly know about having just met me.

But what really interested me about the interaction was that she was very demanding that I should compliment her more because that's what a guy needs to do to hold on to such a beautiful lady and so on and so on.

She continued "my boyfriend used to be like that, but we had a talk and he understands now how important it is to compliment his beautiful girlfriend. He's good at it now.."

He was standing on the other side of the bar looking rather defeated.

This was as blatant of an example of the feminine imperative I've ever seen, no doubt about it.

I thought it was intriguing how thinly veiled it was- it was saying out of the two of you, one of you has value, don't forget it. It was in my face, giving obvious peer pressure to either make amends for not appreciating her enough, or make an excuse for my behavior. It was an attempt at shaming me into submission and conforming to the very beta that women forever demand men become.

She asked, "don't you think she deserves more compliments? She says you never compliment her.. you should compliment her more!"

I responded with a straight, "You know what my take on compliments are?"

"What?"

"I say and do..." pause "... exactly what I want to say and do," pause "when I say and do it."

She just looked at me dumbfounded for a second and finally responded, "well I don't think that works.. women need affirmation.."

At this point I didn't respond, and instead just kept a straight face and allowed an awkward silence. She eventually broke the silence and changed the subject.

My plate was dumbfounded, almost embarrassed to be called out, because it's true, I don't compliment her at all. She knows she's hot, why the fuck would I inflate that fucking ego? But she was angry because I don't conform to these rules and she likes it and this bitch came over and put a light on it.

I am still trying to figure out the entire strategy here. Surely this chick isn't that calculated, but she was incredibly manipulative with her phrasing and was able to make my plate squirm.

I think she got what she wanted, but I'm not sure what that was. Was she proud that she snagged a provider and wanted to rub it in other people's faces? Was she regretting her boyfriend's betaness and wanted to give her own ego a few extra pumps?

What drives this feminine imperative, what causes this to happen? Is it entirely a selfish drive to help one cope with her own lot in life, inadvertently creating the feminine imperative as it stands?

There are a lot of details here I'm most certainly going to ponder- but I thought I'd throw out this experience and see what you guys thought.

Edit I appreciate everybody's views on how to handle said situation, but what I'm really curious about is why this situation happens, what factors cause this, what details and results drive this behavior.

122
UPVOTES

Woman From MTV Demands Free Stuff From Us
7 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/21002/woman-from-mtv-demands-free-stuff-from-us>

487

UPVOTES

A Note on "Real" Alphas

21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Occasionally I see conversations regarding "real alpha" comparing two users in a similar context to:

"You're not a real alpha. A real alpha does this.."

"I am a real alpha.. I do this!"

"This board has been invaded by betas!"

Just wanted to make a note that this is basically stupid and for fucks sake drop that shit.

Stop labeling each other alphas and betas, they're terms we use to classify particular behaviors and help demonstrate good versus bad behavior. Nobody is intrinsically an "alpha," some people just have more alpha traits than others. Stick to constructive criticism and drop the stupid out-alpha talk. It's not reddit folks, this conversation has become a caricature of itself.

If somebody is making stupid mistakes, correct them, but don't get into a stupid fight about who's alpha and who isn't.

Furthermore, of course there are people with beta tendencies here. How the fuck do you expect them to learn?

And a note to people who are new here or have overwhelmingly beta traits and don't get it: lurk a bit. Pay special attention to Endorsed Contributors. If you keep giving terrible advice when you don't know jack shit, I might just make a new user flair: Continuous Blue Balls or something.

8

UPVOTES

The Rise Of Heterophobia

2 December 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-rise-of-heterophobia>

37

UPVOTES

2013 never married data.

2 December 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/11/25/2013-never-married-data/>

6

UPVOTES

Maslow's hiearchy of needs and manosphere group-mind

2 December 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://xsplat.wordpress.com/2013/11/28/maslows-hiearchy-of-needs-and-manosphere-group-mind/>

35
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Life isn't personal
3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/11/life-isnt-personal.html>

1
UPVOTE

Alpha Game: Slenderexy is hotter and healthier too (On The Recent Tuthmosis Scandal)

3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/11/the-benefits-of-slenderexia.html>

264

UPVOTES

Where Anger Leads - M3 "If a man .. worked hard and saved, got the rock, .. listened to his father about 'happy wife, happy life', listened to his mother to 'just be yourself', .. and realizes he'd been lied to.. BY EVERYBODY.. You can understand he'll be even angrier."

3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Since the inception of this sub reddit the moderators have had a very relaxed view of anger and what many perceive as "misogyny" and a common trope is bandied around that there is some latent misogyny here and angry guys, but most of us "get it."

I want it to be clear that the anger isn't just expected, it's encouraged- not because we want this to be the final stage in waking up, but because there's simply no other place that men are welcome with this rage.

The anger will subside, and out of it: hopefully a constructive philosophy towards a better us and a better future.

For many of us who have been here for long, this is old news. For some who are new, I want you to take a moment and read this. If you're an onlooker who thinks we're all nuts, this might be a good read for you too.

If a man took the traditional path, worked hard and saved, got the rock, went down on bended knee, listened to his father about 'happy wife, happy life', listened to his mother to 'just be yourself', listened to all the gossip columns and girlfriends who advocated more and more supplicating, and then finally listened to his marriage counselor to double down on that supplication.. you could reasonably expect him to be angry when he finds the sphere and realizes he'd been lied to.. BY EVERYBODY. You can understand he'll be even angrier when he gets constant feedback from other successful men telling him to discard all he's ever known, told to sack up, learn what it means to be 'attractive', learn that hypergamy doesn't care, learn about female nature, attraction triggers, the science.

Read the whole article at M3

Edit: Another interesting excerpt:

If you were to tell any woman how to fix their girl game problems to work in 'reality', like men men are told how to fix their game in our sphere, suddenly they go into hyper rage.

This is interesting. For a while I took part in a female oriented forum discussing "girl game" and true enough, these women didn't want any of the advice I had to give. They would become violently angry before accepting that maybe feminine traits do exist and embracing them would help in their search for the one. They denied even the simple premise that there are strictly feminine traits at all, and any suggestion of embracing them were considered demeaning and sexist.

43

UPVOTES

AMA with Return of Kings' Tuthmosis Wednesday Night 7PM EST

9 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just a quick announcement, Return of Kings' Tuthmosis will be joining us Wednesday Night (11th) at 7pm EST for an AMA. Feel free to stop by and chat, and ask any questions that might come up.

Tuthmosis has been in the news and blowing up the twitterverse recently due to some controversy related to the recent articles such as:

"5 Reasons To Date A Girl With An Eating Disorder"

"24 Signs She's A Slut"

Here's his twitter

See you all at 7pm.

(sidenote: the term "twitterverse" is absolutely fucking stupid I know)

Edit: Starting in just a minute, please hold

Double edit: New AMA will be stickied shortly

22

UPVOTES

Saving the Best - RationalMale on recent /r/sex post of guy finding old sex tape of wife.

11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/12/03/saving-the-best/>

58

UPVOTES

[Mod] Traffic Stats from yesterday

12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just thought this was interesting. Between the AMA and the askreddit thread, here are our traffic stats for the past few days:

Date M/D/Y	Uniques	Hits	Subs
12/12/13	30,690	123,312	-
12/11/13	60,238	244,616	428+*
12/10/13	15,010	103,091	125
12/9/13	16,449	122,041	149
12/8/13	14,449	98,761	241

*This number hasn't been calculated on our stats page, but is approximately 428.

44

UPVOTES

Redditors lament the effects of a feminizing society that inhibits father-son relationships and teaches kids political correctness over practicality.

13 December 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://redditlog.com/snapshots/38777>

267

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Best of 2013

18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's been an interesting year folks, and what started as a small subreddit a little over a year ago has turned into one of the most talked about subreddits on the entire site, from 10 subscribers likely to cross 26,000 by the end of the week!

As a mod, I've had a lot of interesting experiences. A radio interview on BBC radio, random reporters contacting me and misquoting me (thanks Business Insider!), a few run-ins with trolls (maybe one or two), and probably a thousand or so link flairings (come on guys, flair your own links dammit).

But every so often I run across a member who details how the red pill has improved their lives, helped them through hard times, or opened their eyes to the world around them, and it reminds me why we're here and doing this. I'm happy to see how things have turned out so far, and I'm looking forward to another year in the manosphere. We're getting too big to ignore, so let's see what happens next.

I've been alerted that the 2013 best of awards are now taking place and I think it would be good to take part and see just what our community has achieved during the year.

There will be five categories, the winner of each category will receive 1 month of free Reddit Gold!

The Categories

Most Thought-Provoking Submission: What submission was really insightful and caused the best conversation to take place?

Most Paradigm Changing Revelation: Comment or text-submission, must be text on our sub, not a blog post. What tidbit or diatribe really changed your perspective on everything you understand? What has rocked your world view the most?

Best Overall Submitter: Who has submitted the best, most consistent quality content this year?

Best Waking-Up Story: What story of somebody taking the red pill did you connect with the most?

Best Field Report: What field report demonstrated red pill ideas in the field the best?

Rules

- One nomination per comment, and take care to comment in reply to the category you're nominating for.
- Nominations can only consider posts and data from the year 2013.
- The nomination must have a clear winner. It must be a single person who has not deleted their account or removed themselves from their submission. This includes posts and comments which have since been removed or deleted.
- Please include as much data as possible when nominating, and make a good case. Provide a url to the user or comment. Our automod is being modified to allow links in this post.
- Winners will be chosen by highest number of upvotes, and due to brigading downvotes will be ignored.

70

UPVOTES

AMA With Red Pill Mods SoftHarem and RedPillSchool Saturday Dec 21st at Noon EST!

18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Softy and I have fielded a lot of PM and chat questions over the past few months regarding our views on stuff or on specific advice.. and we agreed it was time we just put up an AMA so we can answer stuff the best we can.

So, Saturday the 21st at 12:00pm EST, softhammer and I will be here to answer your questions.

I will link to the new AMA thread when it starts!

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1tej1q/ama_with_red_pill_mods_softharem_and/

25

UPVOTES

AskTRP Best Of 2013 Awards

18 December 2013 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

As you've probably noticed, /r/theredpill is running a best-of contest, and gentlement, so is /r/asktrp.

Since asktrp is an advice-subreddit, our categories are a little different, and the prizes are a little different.

Free 1 month Reddit gold for the winners, and flairs for most helpful users!

The categories:

Most helpful Users We will select the top three nominated users and award them reddit gold as well as user-flairs so newcomers can see who gives the best advice.

Most Helpful Comments We will select the top two most helpful comments... Which comments were the most helpful to an advice seeker?

Rules

- One nomination per comment, and take care to comment in reply to the category you're nominating for. You can submit up to three nominations for most helpful users, and up to two nominations for most helpful comments.
- Nominations can only consider posts and data from the year 2013.
- The nomination must have a clear winner. It must be a single person who has not deleted their account or removed themselves from their submission. This includes posts and comments which have since been removed or deleted.
- Please include as much data as possible when nominating, and make a good case. Provide a url to the user or comment. Our automod is being modified to allow links in this post.
- Winners will be chosen by highest number of upvotes, and due to brigading downvotes will be ignored.

15

UPVOTES

Red Pill Women Best of 2013!

18 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Hello, all! Just wanted to pop in real quick and announce the best of 2013 awards for /r/redpillwomen!

We will take the top voted nominations from each category and give them 1 month of free reddit gold! Woوو!

The categories:

Most Thought-Provoking Submission: What submission was really insightful and caused the best conversation to take place?

Most Insightful Advice: Which comment gave the best, most insightful advice to another member?

Best Overall Submitter: Who has submitted the best, most consistent quality content this year?

Best Red Pill Girl Game: Which submission or comment demonstrates or explains the best red pill girl game?

Best Off-Topic Submission: Which submission isn't strictly about red pill but was awesome and made for great conversation?

Rules

- One nomination per comment, and take care to comment in reply to the category you're nominating for.
- Nominations can only consider posts and data from the year 2013.
- The nomination must have a clear winner. It must be a single person who has not deleted their account or removed themselves from their submission. This includes posts and comments which have since been removed or deleted.
- Please include as much data as possible when nominating, and make a good case. Provide a url to the user or comment.
- Winners will be chosen by highest number of upvotes, and due to brigading downvotes will be ignored.

23

UPVOTES

Getting laid isnt all that hard.

20 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

This is the most definitive explanation of the great divide between those who understand the red pill, and those who consider it junk. I saw a quote from somebody here that really summed it up. When asked what blue pillers believe instead of the red pill, the top comment started with:

"Getting laid isn't all that hard."

They follow up with basic red pill advice "Present yourself well, approach women and flirt heavily, sooner or later someone will want to fuck you even if its in spite of yourself."

This piece of information completely and utterly denies a real experience that men have. It's such a problem that there's a

- Two Billion Dollar online dating industry
- Hundreds if not thousands of self help books
- entire subreddits dedicated to difficulty connecting with primarily women
- a meme directly indicating that red pillers and reddit at large is mostly virgins (accepting the very premise that getting sex is not only difficult, but separates the boys from the men)
- 26,000 subscribers on the redpill who agree that navigating the sexual market place is difficult and who need instruction
- 53 Million webpages or blog posts answering the simple question "why is it hard for men to get laid?"
- Hundreds if not thousands of self-help oriented websites teaching men how to get women.. (there are a bunch of links in this sentence)
- 153,000 subscribers to /r/seduction who have had so much trouble, they needed step by step instructions.. which include such advice as approaching and accepting rejection at least 100 times before being ready.. to start!

Until the blue pillers understand that difficulty in this arena isn't just happening, but is very common for men, there will be no understanding.

Are blue pillers really denying this reality that is so very vivid and real for men?

65

UPVOTES

AMA With Red Pill Mods SoftHarem and RedPillSchool, ask us anything.

21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

/u/redpillschool and /u/softharem reporting in for questions. Need quick advice? Have a question for us? Whatever, ask away.

Edit: RPS headed out for a bit. I'll check back and answer more if I see them.

130
UPVOTES

TheRedPill Best of 2013 Winners

30 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've turned off contest mode of the original thread, which you can check out here.

And now, the winners who receive a free month of reddit gold:

Most Thought-Provoking Submission

What submission was really insightful and caused the best conversation to take place?

/u/SoftHarem She doesn't love you.

Since one of our moderators won this category, the free gold goes to the runner up:

/u/excessory The two most powerful weapons in a man's relationship arsenal: Stepping Out, and Walking Away.

Most Paradigm Changing Revelation:

Comment or text-submission, must be text on our sub, not a blog post. What tidbit or diatribe really changed your perspective on everything you understand? What has rocked your world view the most?

/u/The_PUA_Punanny Re:How do you stop a partner from cheating?

Best Overall Submitter

Who has submitted the best, most consistent quality content this year?

/u/scottishredpill

Best Waking-Up Story:

What story of somebody taking the red pill did you connect with the most?

/u/tsudonimh My beta brother just had his eyes opened to the bright, wonderful world of the red pill.

Best Field Report:

What field report demonstrated red pill ideas in the field the best?

/u/enticingasthatmaybe Had dinner with an engaged couple - girl is saving her virginity for marriage. Caveat: She's had sex with me 3 times.

Congratulations to the winners!

23

UPVOTES

RedPillWomen Best-Of Winners 2013!

30 December 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I am now turning off contest mode from the original thread here so you can all see the results...

And the winners of a free month of reddit gold are....

Most Thought-Provoking Submission

What submission was really insightful and caused the best conversation to take place?

/u/FleetingWish Ponderings on "Maturity"

Most Insightful Advice

Which comment gave the best, most insightful advice to another member?

/u/Whisper The Slut, and how not to be one.

Best Overall Submitter

Who has submitted the best, most consistent quality content this year?

/u/danabanana9

Because dana is a mod, we are awarding the gold to the runner up:

/u/PhantomDream09

Best Red Pill Girl Game

Which submission or comment demonstrates or explains the best red pill girl game?

/u/Chawlston My girl game field report

Best Off-Topic Submission

Which submission isn't strictly about red pill but was awesome and made for great conversation?

/u/MrsStrom "Adventures in Female Hypergamy", or "I Went to a Male Strip Show, Kill Me Now"

Congratulations to our winners!

169
UPVOTES

Fear to greed. "women delaying marriage are playing a collective game of chicken in order to avoid wasting any more of their youth and fertility on their husbands than absolutely necessary."

31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/12/10/fear-to-greed/>

21

UPVOTES

Callbacks for job interviews: attractive women 54%, men 47%, unattractive women 7%, men 26%. Another similar study found "female jealousy of attractive women in the workplace". (x-post mensrights)

8 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.businessinsider.com/beautiful-people-get-more-job-interviews-2013-9>

18
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Equality is incoherence
15 January 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/01/equality-is-incoherence.html>

436

UPVOTES

You're new here? Welcome! Now shut up. Read this.

16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Welcome to the red pill. You probably got here because we were linked from another subreddit. Somebody told you we rape babies, or murder women, or worse! Askmen had an argument about how it's ok to be men just not these men, or askwomen had a deleting contest to see how desolate one of their threads could become, and you saw our link seconds before it was deleted. Perhaps you saw us on askreddit where they were discussing just how misogynistic we were. Or maybe you were pm'd our link because somebody thought your story would be a better fit here.

You come from all walks of life, with your own problems and situations, your own relationships and wives, exwives and exgirlfriends, baby-mamas and mama-dramas, and anything else that rhymes. Welcome.

But you're new here, so shut up, read the sidebar, and consider how you participate here.

We expect most new people showing up to have some questions. The red pill is unique and diverse, with many different ideas. Some are well hatched and others are still in formation. The sidebar is a good place to start, but we discuss deeper issues every day.

Your first inclination is to ask us advice. Or maybe things don't quite make sense to you and you need clarification.

Don't do it.

Take some time to really absorb what we're saying here. Take a long time to digest what's in the side bar. Read more Rollo Tomassi if you run out of things to read. Read it twice. Read this

Watch our conversations. Understand what's being said.

The red pill is bitter and difficult to swallow, and it's not going to happen over night.

We have a lot of newcomers here, and they all have questions. The real answer is patience. Things will become more clear to you as you spend the time reading and trying to understand.

Give it some time. We have an automoderator bot that removes posts from new users, so if your stuff is getting removed, just wait it out. Try again later. Don't message the mods asking for approval, you have to wait like everybody else.

When you think you've started to understand and grasp these ideas, participate in the conversation, but don't make new threads telling us how we've changed your life. We get a hundred of these a day. Don't make a thread saying that "things make sense now omg omg." It's great that it's helping you.

Do participate in the conversation, if there's a relevant conversation that comes up, feel free to tell your story and how much better your life is. But no new posts about it. It's done.

Once you've spent enough time here really understanding what we're talking about, feel free to start making submissions if you have a unique insight into our ideas that you want to share.

If you still have personal questions or need clarification, check out our chatroom in the sidebar, or visit /r/asktrp.

Listen to the endorsed contributors, they know what they're talking about.

Thanks -RPS

Also, sidenote on concern trolling to our current members: We've obviously been seeing an influx of new users recently. No, the signal will not degrade. We will continue moderating with the iron banhammer we have always used. Please don't bother complaining that you're worried about the signal dropping, because this complaint in itself is the most annoying thing that is actually degrading our signal, and will be deleted on sight. Thank you.

50

UPVOTES

[Mod] RedPillWomen Mods AMA Jan 29th at 4PM EST

17 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There's been some interest on what /r/redpillwomen is all about, so we're happy to announce an AMA interview of the moderators of /r/redpillwomen to ask these kind ladies what they're all about, why they're all about it, and any other various questions that come to mind.

See you all here on the 29th! Wed Jan 29th at 4PM EST!

1
UPVOTE

Is this attitude appropriate on PPD?

23 January 2014 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

142

UPVOTES

RedPillWomen Mods AMA! ASK THEM ALMOST ANYTHING!

29 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hi, I'm /u/margerym; a former feminist turned submissive wife turned onto Red Pill after reading Red Pill Room over my husband's shoulder nearly a year ago. I blog about our marriage, working towards being more feminine, and the problem(s) with feminism at Margery + The Man and am a contributor at Girls Being Girls, a community of women embracing femininity. Feel free to ask me anything!

/u/Phantomdream09: This is a very strange experience for me, mainly because I didn't even know what reddit was until my SO, OccamsUsername, sent me a link to the Red Pill Women sub. I poked around a bit, and the more I read, the happier I felt. I made an account that day solely to comment on one thread...and I haven't really shut-up since. I'm the newest member to join the RPW Moderating team, and it's been a lot of fun getting to peek behind the curtain and see how things work. Gentlemen, please feel free to ask me anything. :0)

Hi, I'm /u/TempestTcup and I have been a moderator at /r/RedPillWomen since almost the very beginning. I have a blog at TempestTcup and I also write for Girls Being Girls. I just celebrated my 20th wedding anniversary and my 30th year of being with my husband. I found the Red Pill, liked the idea of a RP relationship, and fed the RP to my husband. We are really enjoying it!

15
UPVOTES

AMA Live now!

29 January 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

92

UPVOTES

Have a success story? Want to just say thanks? /r/thanktrp

31 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The red pill can be a great life changing experience, and I think I speak for a lot of us when I say that the stories can be uplifting and very encouraging.

But, there is a problem- when the Thank you messages become louder than the subject we're here to talk about.

That's why ambitious user /u/pillburt came to me with an idea to collect our "thank you" and success stories on a subreddit dedicated to it. I hereby introduce /r/thanktrp

Although we do still have a field report flair here, I am going to request that the common "this changed my life" post now be moved over to /r/thanktrp and reserve field reports for testing new ideas / red pill ideas and reporting results (successes and failures).

Thanks.

Enjoy your weekend!

Our sub continues to grow, and it looks like we're not stopping any time soon. Because of this, we've run into some new issues I want to address with our new modified Posting rules.

Posting Submission Rules

- New submissions must be related to sexual strategy, events that affect sexual strategy, theories about sexual strategy, or stories confirming (or challenging) current theories of sexual strategy.
- Links to the following domains should be archived using <http://archive.today> to avoid sending traffic or boosting google ranking: jezebel.com, huffingtonpost.com, thoughtcatalog.com, salon.com, slate.com, cracked.com, cosmopolitan.com, cosmopolitan.co.uk
- Personal or Advice questions should be directed to </r/asktrp> See more about this here: http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1jkged/mod_new_sub_and_a_new_rule/
- Thank-you red pill or success story posts should be directed to </r/thanktrp>.
- Absolutely no direct link screenshots or images. If you must post a screenshot of a comment or an image, include it as part of your written post. Do not make it your main link. Please include your analysis with the image. Any image-only submissions will be deleted.
- No Memes/Image Macros
- No Concern Trolling / Regular Trolling Please See here for details
- No Direct Video Links. There is a lot of content on the web, and some of it is in video form for sure. We don't mind videos, however we will request that you post any video links you have in a text submission along with your analysis. Any video-only submissions will be deleted.
- No crosslinking anything from reddit at all. Not in submissions. Not in comments. If you want to post a conversation or post between members on reddit you must take a screenshot, and edit it for the following requirements: No URL in picture or post, Subreddit name must not be present in the picture or in the post, Must be self-post with analysis. No low-hanging "look this guy is a moron" posts. Constructive posts only. Everything else will be deleted without warning.

Concern Trolling

Since we're getting more and more users every day, the signal to noise ratio is bound to decline by at least a little bit. Because of this, we have decided that one such dampener to signal is concern trolling. From this point forward, we will delete any post that attempts to "steer" the subreddit or complains about the direction of content.

If for some reason you're not happy with the quality of posts here, I encourage you to upvote good material, downvote bad material, and submit your own high-quality material.

Racism

The Red Pill is dedicated to finding the truth about sex and gender strategies, no matter how unpopular or difficult it may seem. For some strange reason, this has brought forward a number of racist posts, which have swiftly been removed. Let us discuss exactly what we mean by racism.

We acknowledge that cultural and genetic differences have an effect on behavior. However, we do not accept that one's race is inextricably tied to their culture. (Because it isn't). If you want to comment on a culture, speak of the culture. If you want to comment on genetics, comment on genetics. Do not confuse the two.

Understand that the differences between men and women are large as our genders have been evolving for millions of years, but the segregated cultures (and thus races) are in the hundreds of thousands (if that).

We are not denying that there are genetic differences between races. That said, we will not allow TheRedPill to be hijacked by blatant racism by conflating race with culture. This is not up for discussion.

Posting Comments Rules

Our discussion is not meant to be just an echo chamber, we absolutely encourage discussion that challenges commonly held beliefs. That is the core of the red pill: challenging what we know.

That being said, if you're new here and haven't read the sidebar, there's a good chance that what you want to say has already been heard and we don't really care to argue it. Some of the opinions and ideas we have here may seem a bit shocking at first if you aren't familiar with our theories. Let me be clear:

Our theories are well thought out, backed by evolutionary psychology, and are regularly confirmed by the behaviors we witness. One of the most astounding parts of the red pill is meeting new people here from other parts of the world... who all report the same behavior we've witnessed ourselves. There is REAL truth to the info we're compiling. Attempts to label it misogyny completely misses the point. We do not focus on women as the enemy and consider insults to hurl. Instead, we see women as our goal, and focus on theories as to why they behave the way they do, and how we should behave in light of this information.

If you attempt to "creep" shame, call out misogyny, or otherwise attempt to derail conversation because the information here is shocking to you, it will tell us one thing: You haven't even attempted to understand why and how we've arrived at our conclusions.

Any post that does not make a point and instead makes ad hominem attacks will be immediately deleted. A moderator may post a test article for you to read and discuss to prove you are not here to troll. If you fail the test, you may be banned.

We have no interest in becoming an echo chamber, and we don't mind dissenting viewpoints. But if it derails conversation, we will take action. If you're worried you might derail conversation, lurk more.

TROLLING:

With the influx of new users, we have to deal with the unfortunate reality that there will be more trolls. Because of this, we're going to have to be a little more strict in our adherence to the policies.

Posts that utilize any kind of concern or shaming language are immediately suspect. We will take a look at each post on a base-by-case basis. Typical phrases that we will be looking out for include:

"I feel so bad, sad, etc."

"You're bitter."

"Misogynist"

"You all..."

Please note, we encourage open debate and discussion of our theories, but please bring facts, and not ad hominem attacks or concern for our well being.

A new trend that we have been seeing recently are the passive aggressive trolls that disguise themselves with plausible deniability. They attempt to cloud their true purpose by representing themselves as honestly inquisitive or perhaps genuinely mislead, and here to learn. We identify them by their concern language, ad hominem attacks, or insults to our moderators.

It is very possible to be here and ask questions, or disagree without setting off any red flags. However, common attributes of a troll post include:

Leading with a presumptive conclusion. "The fact that you're bitter is getting in the way of.."

Asking complex questions (fallacious questions) to which any answer is an endorsement to a presupposition that has not been determined or agreed upon. "Can anybody tell me why you guys hate women so much?"

Ad hominem "just because you are bitter.."

Condescension "This just seems like a bunch of chest beating to me.."

Unfalsifiable rhetoric - phrases, insults, accusations that cannot be falsified and serve no purpose but to manipulate the emotional state of the opponent or onlookers. "This is just a circle jerk"

Concern "I feel like this sub is focusing too much on.." (If you are genuinely concerned, contact a moderator, or submit more content of the quality you would prefer to see.)

Accusations of echo chamber/circle jerk. This is a combination of just about all of the above, but I want to highlight that the term "circlejerk" itself is meaningless and unfalsifiable rhetoric used to gain an upper hand in an argument without any of the legwork required to disprove the opponent's points.

Insulting the moderators - If you disagree with a moderator, that's just fine. You can do so publicly or in PM. We're not gods, we don't know everything, and we spend a lot of time learning every day. However, if you show disrespect to the moderators by using ad hominem attacks or thinly disguise an insult as a "genuine" disagreement, you will be banned.

If you feel you were unjustly caught we have no issue looking at appeals on a case by case basis, just know that your post history and account age will be looked at.

Our moderators do a lot of work to keep our sub clean and functioning on a daily basis, including banning trolls, flaring posts, and attempting to discuss solid red pill theory. Please do not make our jobs harder.

Thank you for reading our rules and abiding by them. We feel that as our sub grows, this rules list will help keep us on topic and minimize noise.

If you're new- read this here!

67

UPVOTES

Tales of Hypergamy — Recursive Game

11 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2014/02/03/tales-of-hypergamy-recursive-game/>

There comes a point of internalization when your Game-awareness becomes part of who you are. There is no longer a need to mentally sort out what may or may not be going on with the women you're interacting with. One of the first resistances I usually read from men when they first pick up on Plate Theory is that they could never manage more than a single woman's interest at one time. Usually this is due to a fear of being caught by one or more women or thought of as a Player, but the premise is one of not having some imagined resources, time and energy to keep more than a single plate spinning at once.

Read More Here

82

UPVOTES

V-Day " Don't be lulled into thinking Game is any less necessary on V-Day. In fact, I can't think of a more direct illustration of how the feminine encourages the transaction of men's goods and services in exchange for a woman's sexuality than reserving a 'special day' just for it."

13 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2014/02/12/v-day-2/>

146

UPVOTES

On locality of sexual marketplaces and the implications on game - The Double Down

13 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've been having a conversation with a few of my red friends for the past few months, trying to wrap my mind around this issue, and I thought I'd open it up for discussion here. I think that it's pretty well known that the sexual market can be affected by such things as actual male-to-female ratios in certain geographic regions, education rates, job availability, and other things..

But something we don't really talk about much is to what extent it affects us, our game, and women's attitudes. For example, we speak of women as a group and their general tendencies, but we haven't discussed variations in these tendencies based on local markets. We discuss differences in behavior based on relative

We have users discussing strategies with each other, and I feel as though there's a communication gap. For instance, we see a field report in which one of our all-star endorsed contributors posts how he plays it fast and loose and wins. Experiences that might seem incredible if I hadn't experienced similar things myself- but it occurs to me that the "no-bro, you gotta do it xyz way" is a relatively poor form of reasoning if we don't consider local market variations.

I consider this because I personally cut my teeth in a region where women are constantly on hard mode. Regular game that would work anywhere else causes women here to double down on their behavior. They bet big and apparently feel their risks at shit testing and beta-tization are worth it. I'm assuming it's because men here are desperate. There are probably about 15:1 guys to women at bars near me, and even fat chicks get approached by guys I think are fitter and better looking than myself. Surely this is a skewed market. And it intrigues me.

The Double Down

I casually saw a bartender last summer who knew I was spinning plates but obviously secretly planned to take ownership of me- she started clamping down after a few months, in an attempt to modify my behavior to her liking. She gave herself plausible deniability that allowed for her attempts to look innocent enough. We went a week without talking, mostly because I had been under the weather, when I saw her again afterwards, she was upset that I hadn't contacted her sooner. She used phrases like "I just would like to hear from you a little more often, you know?" and "it's no big deal you could've called me." Of course, she had equal opportunity to contact me, but this detail would never enter into conversation, as this wouldn't be a rational conversation. Her desire was to curb my behavior and turn me into the beta she wanted, the one that reaffirmed her, and the one that would eventually be on a short enough leash that it was harder for me to see other girls.

I told her that I don't like making too many phone calls, especially when I'm sick. She tried to tighten her grip and decided to put up a fit- giving me the cold shoulder because I couldn't be fussed to show her a little that I care. I knew the slippery slope I was on, and the inch I'd give would become a mile. So I soft-nexted her. A few days later, no contact, she decided that I was being a real asshole for ignoring her for a few days, and demanded an apology for treating her this way.

My experience with soft-nexting or freezeouts, especially on a shit test like this, is that they will relent if you call their bluff. If you don't have proper sexual market value, they won't relent and just walk away. But instead, we experience option 3: the double down. It was clear that my relative sexual market value was diminished by our locality- but it wasn't a clear-cut low value guy getting next'd by a woman- it was a high value guy getting double-down'd by a woman in an environment she was convinced she could call the shots on. Of course, I didn't allow it, but, what advantage is it to me to walk away if this is the environment I'm in?

Ice fishing seems cold, so maybe I'll stay inside. But if you want to fish, eventually you put on some boots and a coat and deal with it?

The Girl With the Ex-Boyfriend

Another plate I was spinning around the same time was a single mother who, after a few months of dating, eventually let on that her ex-boyfriend (baby daddy) was abusive. Of course, I take such stories with a grain of salt because honestly I don't know one woman without some sob story like that (it cheapens it when every woman has the same complaint). But, whatever. So one evening we're out for a stroll after having dinner at a rather nice place (I like to indulge) when she gets a call. Her kid was with dad for the weekend (giving us the evening to do as we pleased). Her phone starts ringing and she got visibly tense. She tells me that she hates it when he calls because he just calls to bitch about her parenting skills. She ignores it, but doesn't stop the ringer. He calls back multiple times, each time she refuses to answer. I suggest she mute her phone or turn it off if she's not going to answer it. She asks me to take her back, (we were in one car, her car was at my house). So we get in the car where she eventually mutes her phone after my third request, and sits quietly on her side of the car, all tensed up.

I mean, obviously this chick has some baggage. I suppose I'd be less tolerant of the baggage if I had ever met a girl without some crippling psychological issue, but this seems to be par for the course, ages 18 - 40.

So we get to my place, and I invite her upstairs. She tersely says no, that she has to go home. I ask her what's up, she won't answer. So I just say, "alright whatever, bye" and go inside- no kiss or anything.

A day passes, and no contact. I'm curious when she's going to apologize for this behavior.

The next day I hear from her- I say "I was wondering when I'd hear from you.." she goes "what did you want me to say?" I go "well an apology seems like a good start..."

What happens? She doubles down.

She can't be fussed to consider that her behavior was absolutely unacceptable. I briefly mention that I don't like the idea of an ex boyfriend interrupting and abruptly ending our dates if there isn't an emergency. She demands that I tolerate her behavior, in so many words. That she can't help it and that I should've been more understanding.

She wanted the beta. And she was willing to bet it all for it. And it actively got rid of me, that was the very minute I next'd her.

Doubling down is counter-intuitive... maybe?

Is doubling down a good strategy? For women looking for beta- perhaps it's effective at weeding out men who won't go all the way. Perhaps it's short sighted, and these women don't yet realize the alpha they crave and the beta they're pushing for won't exist in the same person. Perhaps they're betting it all because they feel the market best favors them?

These are red pill principles, in a completely different market, having very different outcomes. I'm very interested in this, so much so, that I tried beta game with my most recent experiment.

She wanted beta, and I gave it to her. I even bought her flowers one day after we got in a small argument (that she caused, but I resolved with beta-tude). She regularly commented about how she's looking for a long-term commitment, and how she was nervous that she wouldn't find one. This, I think, caused her to turn the beta-ray to 11.

Even with my concessions, I figured I'd have to keep my normal game around at least 3 or 4 instead of the normal 8 to 10. But here, we saw her butting heads with it in her ever increasing attempts to make me into her little beta. She wanted me to do as she requested, throwing mini fits if she didn't get her way. I attempted to appease somewhat, holding my ground on only the manner she attempted to communicate her requests, but not on the requests themselves. Eventually we got to an impasse, she was upset that I had been out of communication during the day when she was going through some trouble. I had contacted her after I was done at work, but it was a long day for me, so it wasn't until after 8pm. She threw her passive aggressive remarks suggesting that I was purposefully ignoring her, whereas I wasn't. I stood my ground, "no, I was working, and simply did not have time to call you, and I do not appreciate the implication you just made."

She doubled down. She demanded I should have made time and that I was unreasonable.

After two such arguments over the course of a few weeks, I walked.

She failed at her goal.

What is doubling down doing for these women? How does local geography affect this? How does it affect approaches? Women here have worse bitch shields than most I've read about.

I'm curious to see people's thoughts on this. Also, I will not be providing my actual location for anonymity's sake.

88

UPVOTES

When not worded as a TRP question, askmen readily admits normal male dating preferences. Guys won't date sluts.

19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://redditlog.com/snapshots/252377>

403

UPVOTES

[Mod] On red pill discourse, and a brief discussion on BETA

25 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just wanted to touch base with the community and talk about our discourse a little bit. Want to steer our discussion a bit.

We do have a lot of examples of red and blue people acting the way they do, which is good. I like data points, and I love the discussion. I want to mention that I've seen people posting detailed analyses of these examples and logs, and I like that. So please keep it up.

Regarding red pill theory- I really do enjoy seeing posts discussing different ideas and concepts in the red pill. I realize for some of the older members, most of these are tired and rehashing is less fun than just digging up examples of blue pillers doing what they do, but it's always a good discussion to have, especially for our newer members, to understand and see multiple perspectives in order to really internalize the material. I think in the next few weeks, I'm going to be starting a series of discussions on Rollo's Year One. So look forward to that. In the mean time, please do make submissions talking about your observations and theories.

On reaction gifs and low-quality humor. I don't want to make this place feel like a silent hall of tyranny, so for the most part we let humor and funny posts stay around- but I would like to encourage our subscribers to put effort into their replies. If you see a relatively low-quality reply click report. If we get a few reports, it comes directly to our attention. We sometimes remove threads that don't really add to conversation, even if they don't break the rules.

On Beta

Calling people "beta" or really names at all as an insult really misses the purpose of the sub. Folks, it should be clear to you by now that beta in and of itself is not a negative trait. In fact, if you've used the term "beta" as a derogatory in the past week, I think it might be time to revisit the side bar. We're not here to bitch or insult people, we're here to analyze and understand people, and learn from their mistakes.

I'll probably make another post about the term beta again, but it should be mentioned briefly here that women have a dualistic mating strategy they crave alpha seed, but also beta provisions. We spend a lot of time here deriding women for demanding beta, for creating betas- and we spend a lot of time congratulating ourselves that we're not betas. But that's just nonsense. Women have the instinct to curb men's behaviors and betafy men for a multitude of reasons. Fitness testing and hypergamy- they want to ensure they have a high quality mate, and prepare to move along if they don't... but they also do have a desire and requirement for beta provisioning.

The reason we always seem down on the lowly beta is when their beta traits outweigh any alpha traits they may have. They get all the cons of a beta, but none of the pros.

Men, if you're looking for a long term relationship, you need to balance alpha and beta traits. You won't keep a woman around with purely alpha behavior, just as you won't with purely beta behavior.

Remember that when you suggest a man is a "beta" what you really mean is that he lacks alpha qualities and lets people take advantage. I would rather not associate such a negative stigma with the term beta. Our new users should realize that once you've unlearned your bad habits, that classic beta traits can be useful in relationship game, and you should eventually (not as a starter, but eventually) attempt to master this balance.

Thanks, men. Here's to 40,000 subs.

120
UPVOTES

How Black America Has Predicted Our Future

28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This was posted here about a year ago, but I wanted to bring it back, since we've been broaching the topic a lot recently.

It's an interesting perspective...

In no culture are decent guys and more academically inclined males more marginalized and insulted than they are in Black American culture.

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2090/how-black-america-has-predicted-our-future>

20

UPVOTES

Presidential Proclamation -- Women's History Month, 2014

3 March 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2014/03/01/presidential-proclamation-womens-history-month-2014>

15

UPVOTES

Presidential Proclamation -- Women's History Month, 2014

3 March 2014 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2014/03/01/presidential-proclamation-womens-history-month-2014>

206

UPVOTES

Women Talk, Men Do

7 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2014/03/03/women-talk-men-do/>

Some really good stuff in this article:

We get frustrated because women communicate differently than we do. Women communicate covertly, men communicate overtly. Men convey information, women convey feeling. Men prioritize content, women prioritize context. One of the great obfuscations fostered by feminization in the last quarter-century is this expectation that women are every bit as rational and inclined to analytical problem solving as men. It's result of an equalist mentality that misguides men into believing that women communicate no differently than men. That's not to discount women as problem solvers in their own right, but it flies in the face how women set about a specifically feminine form of communication. Scientific study after study illustrating the natural capacity women have for exceptionally complex forms of communication (to the point of proving their neural pathways are wired differently) are proudly waved in by a feminized media as proof of women's innate merits, yet as men, we're expected to accept that she "means what she says, and she says what she means."

A common recognition in the manosphere is women's predisposition toward collectivism and/or a more socialist bent to thinking about resource distribution. Whereas men tend to distribute rewards and resources primarily on merit, women have a tendency to spread resources collectively irrespective of merit. Again this predispositions is likely due to how women's 'hard-wiring' evolved as part of the circumstances of their tribal roles.

This is part of boys-men's earliest feminine conditioning; a calculated effort by the Feminine Imperative to train men to communicate as women do. I call this men's "sensitivity training", but in essence it's a social effort to force men to rewire their brains to better accommodate a feminine-primary society. "Get in touch with your feminine side", is really a plea for men to contort their natural ways of communicating into a feminine aligned mode of communicating.

This is seen on /r/purplepilldebate, with trolls, and pretty well everywhere on reddit these days: People will typically agree with red pill information as long as you don't word it in a red pill way. Our communication styles are different- and as our feminized society has normalized feminine communication (sensitivity training), they can use our lack of sensitive communication as something to attack- how dare we violate the norm!

This is also why we concentrate so heavily - as mods, and as a group- in not modifying our speech.

I'd say 99% of disagreements between red pill and others stems from a difference in communication or debate styles. They get so wrapped up in the language that they miss the point-

Is seduction manipulation?

The question is, what social interactions aren't a form of "manipulation?" The very usage of the term manipulation is manipulative, adding a negative context via it's commonly accepted connotation- that evil can change minds, so if a mind is changed it must be evil.

Why don't you treat women like people?

Getting caught up in the particulars of language, and assuming that somehow in the minds of men there exists a way to truly treat the object of your affection as something inhuman is an error in translation- and a massive projection to boot. The very phrase is emotionally based and carries little logic. How does one treat somebody else "like a person," or fail to do so? The problem isn't the interactions between two people, which could follow red pill advice and theory to a T and be very successful and pleasant for both parties, but instead the thoughts in the minds of men when engaging in the interaction. The very concept is thought crime, and a startling revelation and look into the minds of women: they assume malice because they know precisely how they lie when they attempt to manipulate others.

Are women really children?

Why all the hatred, anger and misogyny?

These are all tone questions, ones of emotion. They are not there to discuss the merits of our arguments, they are there to control the tone, to feminize our speech, and ensure that we get in line.

People regularly accuse me of banning people who "dissent" or bring alternative theories into the red pill. The reality is, I enjoy seeing ways our theories can be challenged, and I enjoy the discussion and debates that can take place. What we ban has a subtle difference- it's a thinly-clad attempt at shame and modification of tone that we remove. Myself and the other mods can spot it miles away. It doesn't approach the questions we ask, it doesn't look for answers- it appeals only to emotion and tries to temper our speech. Not on my fucking watch.

2

UPVOTES

Tattoos are for trash

7 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/03/tattoos-are-for-trash.html>

These pictures of celebrities with imaginary tattoos should help illustrate how retarded and barbaric tattoos look on most people. Read More

Fake Tattoo Pictures

<http://cdn.hiconsumption.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/Shopped-Tattoos-Iconic-Celebrities-Get-Digital-Tattoos-12.jpg>

<http://cdn.hiconsumption.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/Shopped-Tattoos-Iconic-Celebrities-Get-Digital-Tattoos-10.jpg>

<http://cdn.hiconsumption.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/03/Shopped-Tattoos-Iconic-Celebrities-Get-Digital-Tattoos-9.jpg>

See More

4

UPVOTES

“I wanted to show that average is beautiful,” Lamm says in a video promoting the doll, Lammily. “Lammily promotes realistic beauty standards, because she is made according to typical human body proportions.”

7 March 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.salon.com/2014/03/05/meet_lammily_a_toy_doll_with_realistic_proportions/

373

UPVOTES

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey folks, looks like we've been the topic of more and more discussion around reddit, and it's starting to happen multiple times a day. This is pretty funny, in my mind, since all people have to do is ignore we exist if they don't like us.

But people like drama. It feeds them. It makes them go.

Drama and gossip are the fodder of women and children.

The "look we're mentioned again" threads are no longer welcome, since it's basically a given at this point. Let's get back to business. Let the haters hate.

Moderators will delete that annoying shit on sight.

A note on yesterday and reports-

Yesterday we were pretty heavily invaded. I deleted close to 50 or so submissions/comments. Unfortunately, no moderator is able to view every thread always, so that's why you should make liberal usage of the report button. Anything look stupid/fishy/low quality? Click report. Thanks! That is all.

17

UPVOTES

Spam Filter Changes

12 March 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Looks like a lot of posts were being spam filtered, I've changed the settings and you should be getting through easier now.

36

UPVOTES

Could a Man have written this? RationalMale "..but it's important for Men to understand that anything positive a 'pro-man' female author has to offer is still rooted in her female reality. In girl-world, what directly benefits women necessarily is presumed to benefit men"

14 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2011/11/08/could-a-man-have-written-this/>

17
UPVOTES

[Mod] Remove yourself from LULU (Scroll to bottom)

20 March 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

http://company.onlulu.com/how_lulu_works

313

UPVOTES

Tits or GTFO

24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just went on a bit of a deleting rampage. We get it, you're a chick but you think red pill is cool. Do you think that somehow validates the theory? Do we want or need your approval?

Show us tits, or get the fuck out.

/r/redpillwomen is that way.

Edit: To be clear, you're not banned from conversation, you're banned from attention whoring.

"I'm not trying to get extra attention, I just wanted to say that as a woman.."

We aren't going to listen to you on sexual strategy, so dump 'em or leave.

314

UPVOTES

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Frankly, it bothers me to have to write this, but somebody clearly slipped the general public some stupid pills. As has been the case since the beginning of the sub, the common thread that ties together anti-redpillers is the literal application of our analogies.

"You don't ask a fish how to catch fish, you ask the fishermen."

But but but women aren't fish! You don't eat women! And women want to be caught!

"A key that opens many locks is a good key, a lock that's opened by many keys is a bad lock.."

That's a bad analogy! You could say anything about anything! A pencil that's sharpened by many sharpeners is a bad pencil...

These are clear examples of people who do not understand analogies. Women are not literally fish. There should be no question about this. And the lock analogy is to demonstrate from who to get advice on the selective nature of women. This isn't to prove the selective nature of women... it's to give a new perspective. It's an analog, not a proof! You cannot just make up nonsense analogies to try to disprove an analogy because they aren't proofs themselves, they're descriptors.

Along with this, there's literal interpretation of hyperbole, generalization, and tone.

This is either a willful misrepresentation of the point for a cheap fallacy, or inadvertent illiteracy. But either way, as men, we should be far above it.

And yet, for some reason, here I am explaining yesterday's Tits or GTFO post. I banned more people yesterday than every day last week combined.

If you don't want to understand meaning, if you have no interest in comprehension, the red pill is not for you. If your initial reaction is knee-jerk instead of pause, the red pill is not for you. If you can't find the goddamned forest because you're too busy looking at trees, the red pill is not for you. If you think I'm literally talking about trees right now, the red pill is not for you.

On TITS OR GTFO

We value logic, reason, accuracy and practical application of our ideas above all else. If a woman has something worth saying she can do so without talking about being a woman, any truth to what she says will be self evident. We clearly live in an era where who is talking has become more important than what is being said, but I have no such interest on TRP. It's clear (from my experience on mensrights and seduction) that female presence tends to temper discussion and modify the message, so I wanted to ensure we kept it at a minimum. Further, I see no real value in field reports from women, because we shouldn't trust what they say (versus what they do).

Asking women not to attention-whore weeds out the stupid "as a woman I don't like xyz" comments that add nothing. If a woman wants to make a case towards a certain behavior, she can put forward a theory that has a logical basis and we can review it on its merits, not because she has tits.

Further, I can't believe I have to explain this, but we don't actually want tit pics, these will be deleted and banned.

303

UPVOTES

Understanding Your Market, Understanding Alpha/Beta and Attraction (AKA Why red pill advice might be completely useless)

31 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It came to my attention the other day while reading a thread regarding a guy who was put on hold during a phone call (so she could pick up another call). He had mentioned hanging up because it suddenly occurred to him he was tolerating a disrespectful attitude. I happen to agree that hanging up was a good move.

But the responses went everywhere from there.

- would have been better not to answer when she called back.
- I've used a simple, not aggressive but deadpan "I don't wait". Just hang up when it goes on hold.
- Count to thirty and hang up. If they want to talk to you they know how to call you back.
- i would probably say something like "Call me back when you're done"
- You could be a little pushier and say, "So?" or "That's nice." or "So let them leave a voice mail. I was talking before you just interrupted me."
- Better answer--don't stick your dick in selfish rude bitch.

These answers range from actively challenging them to passive aggression. None are necessarily wrong answers, and might work in some scenarios, but I think it's important not to get caught up in the aggressive as-alpha-as-you-can-get feedback loop on a forum dedicated to talking about what it might mean to be alpha.

Let's analyze this behavior assuming this is early on in a fling, where you're still trying to get that plate spinning...

First of all, many aggressive responses would demonstrate a break in frame. If you say "you interrupted me" you are needlessly changing the tone, moving yourself from amused mastery to downright flustered. You have lost your frame. Secondly, responding in this way doesn't do much to boost attraction.

It's as if somebody got the idea that the golden standard of alpha is truly just a dick nobody wants to be around.

If you aren't pleasant enough to boost attraction, people won't like you.

You want to convey that your time is worth something, you are not a doormat. But you are also not a mindless drone that doesn't understand compromise, nor understands when to be pleasant to boost attraction.

I talk about this a lot when I post, so anybody who reads my work will recognize this theme I've been pushing, but how hard to push alpha depends solely on your local market.

You need to analyze and understand your market.

Are you in a market that's drenched in pussy? Are you in a market that's dry?

These are variables that will affect how you approach women. If you're in a market that has 10:1 guys to girls at the bar, you won't much establish yourself with a take-it-or-leave it approach... when they clearly know they can leave it.

This might seem like advice to becoming a slave to the pussy, and rest assured this would be a mistake to do- but you have to understand your market if you're going to be successful in it.

In a market where women are a dime a dozen, you have more power and more room to assert yourself. If she knows you can walk, she will withdraw from shit tests more quickly. If she knows you can't walk, or that she has options, she won't give a flying fuck about your ass hanging up- instead you've cost yourself an opportunity.

So what do you do on the phone?

You establish that your time is valuable, but you don't be an asshole about it. She is demonstrating that she doesn't value your time... and in certain markets, she can dictate that. She knows she can get guys drooling for the pussy and she won't fuss with a guy that won't jump hoops.

In certain markets, she can dictate that.

Don't forget this important piece of information. If you are going to be enlightened and play the game, you cannot lie to yourself about markets.

Ever go to a concert where bottles of water are $5 each (or beer over $10)? You think to yourself, water is free, falls from the sky, and you'd never pay that. But here you are, at a concert, and they know they have the market cornered. You might not want that, and a smart fella would avoid that market altogether, but the market exists, and the price will be set by supply and demand. Ignoring this is as ignorant as you were in your blue pill days.

What do you do? Do you become a slave? No of course not. But you don't set ultimatums before you've built attraction.

You don't set ultimatums before you've built attraction.

Saying "hey, I'm out anyway, call me later" is a perfectly good way to assert you're not a doormat, but it's rolling with the punches. She's busy, you get it. You're not fussed because you've got a life too. It doesn't bother you, your frame is unbroken, but you're not door-matting either.

Now I know full well some markets tolerate more than others, so you will need to adjust your behavior accordingly.. but make sure that you do adjust your behavior to your market.

Some of the advice here is just fucking awful for some markets, and following it blindly is just god damned stupid.

I'll restate my rule of thumb, don't set ultimatums before you've build attraction. At what stage you build attraction depends on your local market, but you have to get her hooked before you hardball. In some markets where you're in high demand, you can call the shots the first day you meet her. In some markets responding to the on-hold scenario with the advice above would cost you the opportunity.

Some guys would say, "it doesn't matter if it costs you the opportunity. Ain't no pussy worth that shit..."

I'm going to disagree with that here. If you know what you're doing, and you know what you want, there is no behavior beneath you that you can't use to attain your goals. This includes beta game, alpha game, and everything in between. In some markets you are going to have to scale it back.

It shouldn't have to be said, but recently I've seen a lot of focus by our members here on trying to one-up eachother on the most alpha way to deal with a situation...and it's fun to discuss, but it's not right, it's not the full picture, and it's going to lead some people astray. When you don't feel comfortable utilizing your full repertoire of behaviors to achieve your goals, you've artificially limited yourself.

We brag about being alpha, and discuss it's benefits because most people start off not understanding how to act at all, being slaves to the pussy. But once you master your game, you also need to learn when to use it, how to use it, and how to scale it back.

The true mark of a player (or a man who genuinely wants a relationship) is one who knows not only how to game a chick, but how to get her to fall in love. You don't want to cost yourself the opportunity to have a dotting plate bringing you dinner and beers on a weeknight just because you failed to pick up the principles of game.

Make no mistake, a number of those replies above were setting ultimatums, and without proper attraction, you will be on the losing side of the ultimatums.

47

UPVOTES

Design Changes

1 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We have been testing new design changes to best manage the content we have coming through, we were trying to style the sub to help accommodate longer titles without getting too cluttered.

Apparently all you whiners hated it so we adjusted the homepage back to a more similar version of how it was.

The comments have remained blocked, since that was very useful in my opinion.

RES nightmode should be fixed on all pages.

Please let me know if you run into any trouble.

74

UPVOTES

[Mod] Reminder of appropriate content...

7 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've been removing and redirecting posts a lot recently, just wanted to remind folks of our other subs which serve for certain types of content.

Do you have a question about a specific situation?

A particular girl or scenario that you're confused about?

/r/asktrp

Do you have a question about clarifying something most people here already seem to get?

/r/asktrp

Do you have a theory that you'd like input on?

Or do you have a broad question that may spark an interesting theory debate?

/r/theredpill (flair: Ask TRP)

Do you have a success story?

Did you go from rags to riches? Is your life better now?

/r/ThankTRP

Do you have a field report testing a theory or idea?

/r/theredpill (flair: Field Report)

Do you have a fluffy, feel-good, self-help motivational piece?

'Be the man you want to be' and other platitudes?

/r/seduction

75

UPVOTES

[Mod] Rollo Tomassi (Rational Male) AMA Friday 12PM EST.

8 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Mark your calendars gents, Rollo Tomassi from <http://therationalmale.com/> will be stopping by to speak with us and answer your questions Friday, 4/11 at Noon, Eastern.

Edit: Fixed address, whoops

1
UPVOTE

test - ignore

10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

28

UPVOTES

[Mod] On Deltas, Points, and the new bot

10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As you've probably noticed we launched a new bot trpbot which will be doing some new things around town, thought I'd let you all know about it.

We wanted to be able to boost high quality content and give a certain visual marker of reputation to members that provide high quality contributions.

When a post is high quality or high value, a point can be awarded (with at least a short paragraph about why it was high quality) by including a mars symbol ♂ (type ♂ or type ALT + 11) anywhere in your reply. The bot will detect this and award a point to the author of the comment you're replying to.

Points can only be awarded by Endorsed contributors at the moment, but as users gain points, if any user gets 5+ points, he can also award deltas.

Details:

- Endorsed contributors or members with 5+ points only.
- Can only award points to comments, not submissions (no root level points).
- A record of your high quality comments will be put in the wiki at <http://www.reddit.com/r/theredpill/wiki/user/yournamehere>

If there are any questions, let me know. We're still somewhat testing.

New symbol: ♂ !

0
UPVOTES

[X-post] Rollo Tomassi of rationalmale is doing AMA right now...

11 April 2014 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/22sbxe/rollo_tomassi_ama/

12

UPVOTES

Half Plus Seven - "As with the most useful of feminine social conventions, the feminine imperative assimilates the 'insensitive brinksmanship' of men's sexual strategies and repurposes them to serve feminine sexual strategies. "

16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2013/03/05/half-plus-seven/>

265

UPVOTES

Doing it for yourself, the pervasive hamster

21 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"Bro, stop worrying about what other people think. Make your life better for you! Go to the gym and feel better for you! You deserve this, nobody can put you down, it's all about you!"

Fucking bullshit.

Y'all wake up and take estrogen pills this morning?

That self-help platitude bullshit sounds like seddit had a baby with /r/fatacceptance. Except it wasn't a baby, it was just a really gassy turd, you were too busy stuffing your face with feel good bullshit to realize where it came from.

The Facts

External validation is not only a common need among actual humans, but it's something that can cause severe cognitive dissonance, anxiety, and stress to pretend you don't need it.

The stupid idea that you shouldn't care what others think of you to "feel good about yourself" is precisely what women tell each other so they'll eat another pint of fucking ice cream and take themselves out of the running, making way for real contenders who don't fall victim to that stupid shit.

What people think of you is going to be intrinsically linked to your success as a creature in a social species.

How others perceive you will determine to what extent you can derive benefit from others.

Lacking happiness due to a lack of success is normal, and is the very fucking drive that makes us men. Don't fucking hamster your way out of that thinking and into: "who cares if I'm sexless and alone, I do what I want for me, I'm no slave to peer pressure!!! GO TEAM VIRGIN!!!"

External Validation

There is a drive that most men have, to varying degrees, that addicts us to sex, to the pursuit of sex and beautiful women. And for a lot of us, we recognize this and do what it takes to accomplish the goals of attaining these things. Even our drive for financial success stems from our desires for sex and our need to secure it.

Financial success, body building, working out, improving appearance, improving your personality, adopting a sense of humor, and learning to interface people with confidence ARE ALL FOR EXTERNAL VALIDATION. That is why we strive to better ourselves, not because there's some noble goal... as though on our death beds we'll get the score chart and say "good thing I did it all for me!"

External validation technically is for you. Sexual strategy is the pursuit of happiness, with the goal of maximizing potential happiness. You cannot write off women just because you suck at them. Let the drive, the feelings of inadequacy, the crippling depression or loneliness DRIVE YOU to succeed. Don't embrace happiness with mediocrity because we live in a hamster culture that lies to everybody and tells you you're good enough and change should only be for you(TM). Change is for success, success (for better or worse) is for validation. Validation is one of many sources of satisfying our evolutionary drives.

If you want to really boil it down, we've been gifted the evolutionary curse of wanting to spread our genes and create as much of us as we can.

Finding inner peace with who you are is an important part of living a happy life. But do not let this lull you into a life of mediocrity because some alphabro on the red pill decided you're working too hard to get pussy, and that you should only be motivated to do it for yourself.

Want to know what successful guys think?

That the hot chick at the bar you could never ever bang? If you want that, you will have to do work. It's not being a slave to pussy, it's fucking putting in the actual legwork to get what you want. For some of you, that means completely fucking changing every little thing about you, getting rid of the gut, clearing your acne, getting a hair cut, getting a job, quitting smoking, working out, and reading some fucking books so you can be more interesting than a chair when you try to have a conversation. There are those that would say "you shouldn't have to change who you are to find love..." You know what I was doing while those people were sitting there diddling themselves? I went out and fucked that hot girl that you could never touch. The guy who does that embraced this. Do not lie to yourself to feel better about not accomplishing what great men have accomplished.

You can keep telling yourself that it's good to be happy with being poor, and only get the job that makes you happy... or you can remember that getting rich is fucking hard work, and it's going to be grueling. And at the end of the day, that hard work is the only way to get the payoff. And that hard work is just satisfying a stupid evolutionary urge to get your dick wet. But that is what we are.

People who score high on a Machiavellian test need no reminding. There is no shame, there is no good, there is no bad, there's no right way or wrong way, there are only those who succeed, and those who fail. What you tell yourself in between will either motivate you, or rationalize your failure. Recognize what you are, set your goals, and stop fucking rationalizing.

10

UPVOTES

How Pre-Selection Affects Your Online Dating Profile

22 April 2014 · /r/trpGAME · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/31/how-pre-selection-affects-your-online-dating-profile/>

Well, the masses spoke, and they agreed: /r/seduction is pretty crappy, even for game. Now I don't necessarily agree that all the discussion there really is too low of quality to get some good game advice, but it's true, they do come from a blue pill direction, and thus will have a hard time separating good game from bad.

So, due to popular demand, we have launched two new subreddits

/r/trpGAME & /r/altTRP

I want to clarify a few things quickly, and discuss shortly what /r/theredpill's aim is with "Sexual Strategy."

While posts on game have never been explicitly forbidden on /r/theredpill, it's been commonly understood that our discussion of "sexual strategy" was aimed more towards discussion on sexual economics, the sexual marketplace, and best overarching strategies to navigate the market.

But with good sexual strategy, the main tips we give newbies are: hit the gym, learn game, and read TRP. The first and last tips there are easy to accomplish, but what is game and how do you learn it?

/r/trpGame which is now dedicated to the specifics of pickup and general game, addressing specifics such as:

- What are shit tests?
- How do you deal with shit tests?
- How do you approach women?
- Good ways to close women?
- How do you have sex with women?
- How do you have sex with hotter women?
- Best places/time of day to game women?
- ETC

You can start reading now with our very own moderator /u/bsutansalt's write up on Shit tests 101

Our Second new subreddit:

/r/altTRP For Gay and Bisexual Sexual Strategies

Our official policy on /r/theredpill has never been anti-gay, but it's clear that the discussion here is for heterosexual men who want to have sex and sexual strategy with women. We don't make any apologies for this; we are what we are.

But because of this, a number of our users who are interested in sexual strategy and interpersonal psychology have been left in the margins, as they themselves are not heterosexual.

Something I've been very sensitive to since I started running The Red Pill is a group of people co-opting our message or modifying our tone. If anything, I may be overly sensitive to it, but with good reason. At no point do I want our discussion to start weakening for political correctness just because some marginalized group feels bad. Being rather intolerant of women coming here and speaking "as a woman" has been a good step towards avoiding the feminization of this space. But the topic of gay strategy has always been a weird topic.

We hadn't allowed primarily gay discussion because of the impending change of tone and direction the discussion would take. But it would be naive to believe gay people don't exist, and in fact it's an interesting topic to consider just how gay people affect the sexual market-- or more aptly, how the market affects the gay population (now and in the past).

So we've decided to start an alternative red pill discussion sub on this very topic. Our new mod has some brilliant insight on game and the red pill, and I look forward to seeing how he applies it to the gay and bisexual lifestyles.

From our new moderator's introduction essay:

"For anyone who finds themselves looking around the internet for discussion or advice pertaining to the realities of a homosexual lifestyle, one problem quickly becomes apparent. Practically all spaces for gay men are hopelessly feminized. Discussion over at /r/gay takes on the tone of "do what feels right for you, hon, and don't worry what others think. be yourself and everything will work out". It doesn't take more than one application of advice like that to realize their naivete. One finds himself pinning for the rationality of TRP but with advice applicable to men seeking men."

Read On in altTRP

Various other rules revisited:

The main subreddit's (/r/theredpill) discussion about sexual strategy will continue to be analysis of the marketplace (this includes men's rights topics as well as discussion about culture and social norms/accepted behaviors), discussion on best strategies going forward (places to live, places to mate, LTR/Plate spinning/Marriage/MGTOW analysis) and discussions about human psychology and behavior.

Blue pill and red pill examples are always welcome. Their tags can always be filtered if you do not like these types of posts. You can always view only theory posts if you prefer. Low-quality examples, poor examples, or low hanging fruit will be removed without warning.

Field reports are welcome, with a caveat: Game and pickup field reports still belong on /r/trpgame. Please limit your field reports here to ones regarding sexual strategy. Going out to a bar and making out with a chick is an impressive feat of pickup, but for the red pill, we prefer to see examples of sexual strategies in place, for example:

- Outcomes of social experiments
- Results/consequences of adapting strategies (dread/spinning plates/MMSL)
- Results of large sample groups experiments (If you've been lifting weights, report back after a few months, not the first chick you pick up).

/r/ThankTRP will continue to be for thank-you success stories.

Red Pill Theory

As always, discussion on the theory itself is always welcome.

- Analysis on marketplace realities
- How different cultures affect our strategies
- Changes in the marketplace
- Discussions of evolution and psychology
- Anything that contradicts expected results
- Anything that sheds new light on a topic or a new perspective

What sort of post is welcome?

Good question. Instead of giving one-time platitude advice "Do this" or "don't do this," make a post that sparks a discussion. Analyze trends, give your perspective, but open the floor for others to give interpretations.

Instead of saying "never be this.." make a post analyzing the behavior in question and ask, "is this behavior beneficial to your goals?"

Many people here will have differing strategies. Some MGTOW, while others spinning plates. Some in LTRs playing a heavier beta-game, while others looking for nothing more than ONS. Do not assume you have one-size fits all advice, but instead, discuss the ins and outs of behaviors, what their effects are, and when they might be appropriate or detrimental.

"Never cry in front of a woman" should be "On crying, emotional weakness, and its effects..."

"Never lose frame" should be "The dynamics and effects of psychological frames/stoicism/power dynamics"

Low quality posts telling people what to do without a real analysis are pointless platitudes.

If your post is removed without warning

I'm sorry that your post was removed. You have permission to try submitting it to one of the more apt brother subs that we have (such as /r/thanktrp or /r/asktrp). We get a lot of posts and comments, so we may not have time to individually address the content that got it removed.

92

UPVOTES

Weekend Wrapup [hotlinks]

28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just wanted to get some attention to some of the better posts that may have slipped through the cracks this weekend.

- The elephant in the room - Do you think virginity of girls increases the chances of a successful relationship?
- Dynamics of the sexual marketplace
- Hypothesis: Women are more atuned to social hierarchy
- Pook on Why this Sub Receives Hate

121
UPVOTES

Briffault's Law [Refresher]

28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just reposting Briffault's Law since it's been a while.

BRIFFAULT'S LAW:

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

There are a few corollaries I would add:

- Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.
- Any agreement where the male provides a current benefit in return for a promise of future association is null and void as soon as the male has provided the benefit (see corollary 1)
- A promise of future benefit has limited influence on current/future association, with the influence inversely proportionate to the length of time until the benefit will be given and directly proportionate to the degree to which the female trusts the male (which is not bloody likely).

Read More here

31

UPVOTES

The True Nature Of Women | Roosh: "Water takes the shape of the container it fills."

28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/the-true-nature-of-women?a1>

0

UPVOTES

Women Should Not Be Allowed To Vote "If your wife decides she wants to take your house and your children away from you, she easily can with the full force of the law behind her."

16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/34330/women-should-not-be-allowed-to-vote>

73

UPVOTES

Purgatory - Rollo: “If you want an example of the feminine imperative’s fluidly reinventing social conventions[...] In 2014 it’s ‘Any guy who thinks he’s in the so called friend zone is just a potential rapist because he thinks he’s owed sex for his friendship.’”

21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2014/05/20/purgatory/>

51

UPVOTES

Thanks Moderators, we'll miss you MargeryM!

28 May 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Good morning, and happy belated Memorial Day to you all.

Just wanted to step in really quick and leave a note and hope you all will join me in thanking our moderators for doing such a good job here on /r/redpillwomen.

It's not an easy job, and I know that most of reddit sees this place in less than a favorable way, launching perhaps more trolls this way than we get on our other subs!

/u/margerym has decided for personal reasons that she won't be continuing moderating duty here, and I wanted to make sure to give her a giant thanks and wish her well. I do hope she continues to participate here. I know I'm not very active here but I do spend a lot of time lurking, and /u/margerym this place won't be the same without you.

Standing up to the trolls and fending off insults and threats is an exhausting experience, and can emotionally drain even the toughest of the tough, so I have nothing but admiration for our team here.

/u/MargeryM you are always welcome to join our team again, you have an open invitation with no expiration.

/u/TempestTcup, /u/PhantomDream09, /u/danabanana9 your work here is not unnoticed, you've all done so much for the community, helping grow it from just a few users to over 5,000 in less than a year. The attitude and tone of this sub is incredibly welcoming and friendly, and stays this way despite the hundreds (if not thousands) of trolls that keep trying to pull us off topic or get you ladies down for having your own opinions and making the decision to follow them.

If ever there was an example of just how harmful feminism is, look no further than the attack that self-proclaimed 'feminists' launch towards women like those here, who want nothing more than the right and freedom to pursue happiness in the ways they see fit.

Shame on reddit for putting our mods through this emotional rollercoaster. And props to you three (and margerym) for really giving them a good fight and keeping this place just as friendly and welcoming as the day it opened (or moreso, since there are more people here!).

I hope we can all take a minute to say thanks to these great mods, they put in quite a bit of work and when they do their jobs right- you can't even see it.

Thanks, Ladies.

-RPS

109

UPVOTES

Counterpoint: Incel is a useful term, tons of people are celebrate who don't want to be

4 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

/u/drrrrrr posted a topic today Incel is a retarded term. Celibate or not, it is completely voluntary. And while he's not entirely wrong, it misses the point of the term completely. His post is littered with platitudes and misses what it means to be involuntarily celibate. And it misses why we're here.

While this advice- "you have the power! You hold the keys to change!" - Sounds nice and self-helpy, it actually just digs a deeper hole for those who are actually involuntarily celibate.

Let's first visit the term involuntarily celibate. At first glance, you'd think on a subreddit dedicated to learning how to attract women, we'd be of the belief that, indeed, nobody needs to be celibate, if they just do a little work, anybody can have sex.

But the word "involuntary" indicates that this celibacy isn't by choice. That doesn't preclude that solving celibacy isn't a choice- it just means that the path isn't clear.

drrr's post reads like somebody trying to solve depression by saying "being depressed is a choice, just be happy instead!"

The fact is, if it were entirely voluntary, incels would have sex. So there's another component to it that can't be ignored. Women have to want to have sex with you for you to stop being an incel. You can't just walk out your door one day and say "I've decided not to be an incel. Time for sex!"

Yes, indeed, people do hold the keys to getting out of the rut- /r/theredpill is a good place to start. You do have the power to get yourself out of it. BUT that doesn't mean it's easy, and it doesn't mean most people know how.

And there is one final point I want to make- sometimes, no matter how hard you try, no matter how much work you put in, you are going to have dry spells.

Some regions truly do suck.

So don't go into hating yourself when that happens. Instead, consider the variables that you can change. Can you go to the gym more? Can you travel to other areas? Perhaps for just a weekend? Have you tried different game (day game instead of night game?)

Be pragmatic. Approach this like you would any other problem. It can sometimes take a long time before you break through to the other side, but once you're there, things get a lot easier. The confidence of getting laid can turn into a hundred lays very quickly.

189
UPVOTES

Lonely single mother Kylie Henry avoids jail for sex with 15yo boy | "Henry originally was charged with rape but a jury convicted her of unlawful sexual intercourse... Judge Paul Cuthbertson said the

6 June 2014 · /r/PussyPass · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

70
UPVOTES

Re: The Decline- Ironwood Speaks: Welcome To The Puerarchy. This Is What The Hell Is Wrong With You.

6 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/16/ironwood-speaks-welcome-to-the-puerarchy-this-is-what-the-hell-is-wrong-with-you/?1>

104
UPVOTES

[Mod] Now enforcing minimum length posts

11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Put some effort into your posts and comments folks, no reaction gifs, no "I lol'd" responses.

Automoderator will now remove short comments and posts that took no effort.

Pun chains, and mockery chains are annoying and will be removed on sight.

Edit: to clarify, a mockery chain is as follows:

Post: Feminism did XYZ

Reply: But my feelz!

Next Reply: Your feelings are literally rape!

Next Reply: Another sarcastic remark!

Gone!

Edit 2: To those of you who care about the quality of the sub, please report these sorts of posts. It helps us immensely.

61

UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Sending signals "Women always find a way of letting you know how they feel, in both a positive and a negative sense"

16 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/06/sending-signals.html>

186
UPVOTES

Another Pretty Lie Is Slain - Today's pretty lie? Men are attracted to confident women.

23 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Private Man Speaks:

OK, pick up your jaws. I've got some 'splainin' to do. This pretty lie has three elements to it:

(1). Projection.

Women are attracted to confident men. Confidence is one of the biggest attraction points a man can have. If a guy walks into a room with the right frame and a confident mien, the dames will light up. So, women think that men are attracted to the same characteristics in a woman. It simply doesn't work that way. Men and women are different. The feminine attracts the masculine. A woman who expresses a masculine type of confidence comes across as bossy and domineering, a very effective attraction-killer.

(2). Confidence is not feminine.

"OK, Private Man, you want women to be insecure."

No, I want women to show some damned humility.

Read the Rest Here

3
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: Alpha Mail: identifying female solipsism
24 June 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/06/alpha-mail-identifying-female-solipsism.html>

111
UPVOTES

Alpha Game: The female definition of slut - "There is nothing that women find more hateful than lower-status women stealing the men to whom they are attracted... Among women, the term [slut] is more about policing status than behavior."

24 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/06/the-female-definition-of-slut.html>

121
UPVOTES

The American Dream Is Every Man's Nightmare
25 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/37502/the-american-dream-is-every-mans-nightmare>

789

UPVOTES

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've certainly been a popular topic around reddit this week, so I thought I'd pop in to welcome the newcomers and talk a little about what we're doing here to keep us on course.

As the sidebar says, we're a discussion on sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men. This has been our point since we started, and it continues to be our topic of discussion. What does this mean? Why do we post so much about hating women?

- What is sexual strategy?

Why do we talk about men's rights, women's behavior, and other things when this is supposedly "sexual strategy?" Sexual strategy refers to developing an action plan to achieve one's goals. In this case, the goals are specifically goals for men. This includes things as simple as "how does one actually get a woman to have sex with him" and goes so far as to discuss some of the following:

- How do I protect myself as a man?
- How do I ensure a future with maximum prospects?
- What long term qualities give me best access to sexual prospects or long term happiness?
- Is sex good for long-term happiness?
- How do I navigate this social and political climate as a man?

Obviously, a lot of this seems unrelated to the act of sex itself, but make no mistake these questions have entirely different answers for women as they do men. They are, in effect, strategies for men. And they all intertwine. Sex, career, family, safety, and happiness are all branches off the same tree.

- Posts about Women's Behavior

It sure seems like we're just bashing women and getting our kicks from it. A lot of people even say that we're blaming women for our woes so we don't have to take personal responsibility. So what's this victim stuff? Are we just man children? What's going on?

One of the major problems that gives rise to people needing the red pill is that society tells absolute lies about women. Our culture repeats the pervasive myth that women are pure, good, and honorable, and that it is men that are the corruptive force. Women are so objectified in mainstream culture that they lack even the agency to take responsibility for the sex they have- when one has sex with a pickup artist, it's because he was manipulative and devious, not because she was attracted to him. She was simply tricked.

Consider for a second that this is actually a belief people hold- that there is a way to trick a woman into sleeping with you.

It's a thought that rarely promotes deeper thought into the subject, but when you parse out this idea, it directly implies that women want to have sex with somebody who is attractive to them, but not somebody who had to work to become attractive.

But when they repeat the thought terminating cliché, what typically follows is the negative stigma of dirty, bad men who are devious and cunning enough to confuse poor helpless women into sleeping with them.

So, why do we post about women's behavior? Because we're exposing the truth. Not the truth that women are worse than men- but instead that women are worse than our culture's idealistic view of women.

You might think some of the phrases we use are offensive, but that doesn't change their meanings and definitions. A woman can be a slut and ride the cock-carousel until she hits the wall and lands some beta-bux. Sounds like we hate women, does it? Well, that's their sexual strategy-- take it or leave it. A rose by any other name.

We remind ourselves that women are not perfect creatures, and we remind ourselves another fact that's easy to miss: women are not men! And that's a quick one feminism has been trying to pull on society for a while. That women are exactly the same as men. They go so far as to adopt the same words. "I'm a strong, independent woman!" Is she, though? Is she truly strong? Doubtful. The fact is, women are not as strong as men. "Women like equal relationships where both partners communicate, just like men do!" Again, another lie. Women do not communicate like men, and when you attempt overt communication, and start negotiating attraction, you quickly find that you will fail.

Attraction with a woman is covert. You cannot tell a woman "I'm high status and good looking, people like me. Now you should like me." Instead you must convey via covert communication. When other women appear to like you, you might spark her interest due to a thing we call "preselection." It's just one step in the large red pill handbook towards learning that women do not communicate like men. And again, this is why we point out countless times when women say one thing and then do another.

Maybe we should just clean up the message a little, so people understand...

Absolutely not, no way, no how. The fact is, women cannot stand the idea of men getting together like this and discussing what we do. It doesn't matter what the subject, or how politically correct we make it- women want to infiltrate male spaces and ensure they can define the tone, moderate the text, and modify our message. It's already well accepted that men's rights is a group that tries as hard as it can to be politically correct so women don't get mad at them. And guess what- it doesn't work. They're still considered a hate group. The men there go so far to supplicate women, they tell them "women are welcome! Let's modify our tone so that women feel more welcome!!" And no matter how far you push, and no matter how much you change- women will never be happy with it. Because women aren't looking for satisfaction, they're looking for control.

Anybody with experience with women and shit tests can tell you- they're not pushing the boundaries because they will be happier with more freedom and control. They're pushing the boundaries because they want somebody or something to push back. They want structure. They want rules. And by god, the west failed this major shit test by giving feminism a blank check. Water takes the shape of the container it's in.

So, no, we will not be modifying our tone to appease the unappeasable. We will not be censored or policed into a nicer tone so others are more comfortable with us. And for fuck's sake, we won't just focus on "self improvement" like that's all the red pill is. It's not. Stop trying to paint the red pill with pastel colors. That's just another politically correct half-truth. Yes, the red pill is about self improvement. But it's also about understanding the dark and sometimes unfriendly nature of the real world so you can adapt properly. It's not improvement for improvement's sake. It's improvement to gain better footing for success- sexually, professionally, and in any other endeavors you take. Do not sugar coat this truth- many of our improvements are not politically correct, and you shouldn't give a fuck otherwise.

As always, anybody trying to police tone or show concern that there's "too much of xyz" going on.. they'll be deleted and banned immediately. I don't have time for that shit. Anybody who says we've focused too much on one thing lately and things "used to be better" doesn't know shit and hasn't been here long enough to know fuck all. Men's rights, red and blue pill examples, and field reports are all core content that belong here.

Injustice is your morning shower, pain is your breakfast, and understanding is your cup of coffee. Internalize it. Stay awake to it. This is how you sharpen the sword. Not because it's whinging, but because you must accept reality before you can make informed decisions to best achieve your goals.

Welcome to The Red Pill. You'll get out of it what you put in. Sit down, shut up, read the side bar.

248

UPVOTES

On LTR game and positive beta behavior. (Understanding the pluralistic mating strategies of women).

9 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Anybody who follows what I write over the past 6 months would notice that I've been focusing on beta game recently, and have been publicly denouncing using the term "beta" as a pejorative, because the behaviors themselves are not inherently bad.

Why have we focused on alpha so much recently?

The tides have turned in our culture, shifting the sexual marketplace to demand more alpha qualities, and leaving anybody following the family provider life-plan in the dark, often doomed to a failure he will not recognize the cause of. But this is not necessarily due to the beta behaviors, but instead the betafication of the male, and the staunch misunderstanding of proper usage and correct timing of beta behaviors.

Rollo has written extensively about these shifting tides, but to paraphrase: the push in the west to allow women to fully realize their hypergamy while simultaneously failing to anticipate their future needs has rewarded the alpha to the detriment of women's own long-term mating strategy to look for providers.

Our reaction (or overreaction as it might seem) has been amping up the alpha to 11, and reaping the rewards. But these rewards are fleeting and I believe leave much to be desired- spinning plates can fulfill your sexual needs, but doesn't address men's desire to start a family, or find a life-long partner.

Now, before I begin I will start with a disclaimer. I believe that the marketplace has changed in such a way that regardless of what men want, long-term monogamy may very well be a pipe-dream, and the legal climate may have changed to the extent that the hope of starting a family is all risk and little payoff. I will not look past the fact that women have sufficiently changed the market to everybody's detriment. And no matter how much you may want some of the things I'm about to discuss, there may not necessarily be an option to get them. Nevertheless, the conversation should take place, because I don't see much about it here, and I've spend the past half of a year studying this in great depth.

Women's mating schedule

For those who have not yet read Rollo's series on Preventative medicine, you need to start there. This is absolutely crucial information that cannot be skipped. Anybody wishing to learn about the red pill needs to fully grasp female schedules of mating and related strategies. Rollo's series is the most thorough analysis of women's mating strategies, and the timeline thereof that I've ever seen, you will all do well to read it.

<http://rationalmale.files.wordpress.com/2014/03/smv-timeline1.jpg>

Part 1 | Part 2 | Part 3 | Part 4

Rollo has always focused on women's pluralistic mating strategy, colloquially phrased on this forum as "alpha fucks, beta bucks," but more kindly explained as women's need for obtaining the highest quality sperm for her offspring (alpha), and her need to provisioning to take care of her young (beta).

Women will seek out both behaviors, and optimally will try to find both in the same man. This can be seen when women try to tame the bad-boy. They've already obtained the alpha fucks, and will eventually try to tame him into the beta bucks (often unsuccessfully), and will eventually "mature" into a refined taste in men and end up with a man who is a much better provider to take care of her and her alpha-spawn.

Women will "settle" for a beta male, after riding the cock carousel- or after optimizing her strategy to obtain alpha fucks, but failing to obtain the beta bucks. The reason this is more common today, I believe, is that the matriarchy has not passed down the knowledge to women that they should be attempting to satisfy their beta bucks strategy during their peak, and they only realize this far too late- something previous generations of women did not suffer from.

We typically refer to women riding the carousel as sluts and consider them to be poor quality stock for long-term-relationships. And while many criticize us for this as "slut shaming" it holds true in a very real sense for men: Women who are settling down after the cock carousel may resent their "settling" afterwards- having not optimally found a combination of alpha and beta qualities in one male. Settling with a woman in this stage puts you at a disadvantage- she is an alpha widow, and you are the beta bucks. You will not gain her respect, and will most assuredly be in second place in her mind to the men she preferred to fuck (and still would be fucking had her looks not began to fade).

This problem exists because women in our culture have been encouraged to explore this portion of their sexual strategy with no holds barred, and with no understanding of their future needs nor the immediacy of their requirement to fulfill them. They've been lied to about their peak sexual market value and will formulate a less optimal strategy because of it.

So how does a man capitalize on women's pluralistic mating strategy?

Obviously, as a reaction to this change in the market, we've embraced alpha qualities to the exclusion of beta qualities. We see men embracing beta qualities and chastise them for it, as it appears sub-optimal given the current market.

But is there no other option?

Well, as I mentioned before, the answer to this might be no, or more likely it depends on your local market. But let's say for example that there were women who were either raised with a better understanding of their mating needs and timeline, if such a woman existed, when would be the optimal time to strike, and how would be the optimal way to do so?

These are the questions I would like to answer in a search for the long-term relationship.

When to strike?

First it needs to be said that women will be open to certain traits based on where they are in their schedule. Beta traits will be a positive for you when women are seeking them, but a hindrance to you if they're not. (sidenote, if they're not looking for beta traits, you are barking up the wrong tree for LTR). That said, it would be poor advice to aim for women in our culture who are in beta-seeking mode when they typically get there... approaching and after the wall.

Instead, consider when a woman is young. I've heard a lot of people on here go on and on about how they don't think a younger woman is "experienced enough" to carry on conversations or debate philosophy. But the fact is, you're looking for an optimal mate, not a guy friend. Women will grow and mature as the years pass, and you can learn to connect and have conversations. It is crucial that you begin the journey with a woman who has not yet been alpha-widowed, and has not passed her prime... for your own success. These are the important elements to look for if you wish to succeed at long-term-relationships.

I personally feel as though 21 is too late to begin with a woman, as she will have began to go to bars and recognize her sexual power and feast on the validation that thousands of thirsty dudes will give her. At this point, she is lost to the carousel, you will never compete for her fleeting and quickly-averted attention, as no single man can. You can recognize this in a woman when her attitude begins to change, she will act more experienced, or weathered. She will wear her experience as a badge, but it will sour her attitude. She will adapt more masculine behaviors and begin to self-handicap at this point, indulging in cigarettes, tattoos, and other risk-seeking behavior. Women may also begin to adopt a bold, careless, often bitchy attitude, getting rough around the edges. These are not good signs for a long-term investment, as these signify at what point she is at, and should warn you to stay away.

Before this point, you may find women to be more feminine- more soft spoken, kinder, gentler, and generally more pleasant.

How to strike?

With both alpha and beta game. As has been mentioned multiple times in this post and in the past- women want a combination of alpha qualities and beta qualities.

The alpha qualities that are important are most important during the attraction phase. Piquing her interest via game, dodging shit tests, and a generally cocky attitude is important. But the girl that you are looking to land in an LTR may require a slightly different approach, and may respond slightly differently. If she has an active interest in securing a long-term mate, she may be turned off by too heavy of alpha behavior, she may actually recoil at overt alpha behavior. While I do not believe making this mistake will hurt her actual attraction to you (gina tingles are gina tingles), she may have the self control to steer clear of somebody she believes to be a bad-bet. She may recognize over alpha qualities as too risky for her, and she may actually pass, or increase her compliance testing to ensure that you actually present long-term provider potential.

A woman who is actively looking for a mate will be testing for compliance. Now, we typically refer to compliance testing and shit testing as the same thing-but in the context of long-term mate selection, I will put forward that there is a stark difference, and that difference is the intention for which the test is given. While women will test an alpha's mettle by giving him shit tests to see if he fails to comply, a woman will test a man's potential to provide by testing his compliance and see if he intends to provide.

In this context, you should recognize compliance testing for what it is and learn to pass them while maintaining frame.

Your goal is to boost comfort and the feeling of security, but do not lose your alpha frame- as she is looking for both.

Some ways to accomplish this are to embrace Athol Kay's Captain/First mate dynamic. When a woman acts out, or throws a compliance test, it's important from an alpha standpoint not to be submissive, while from a beta standpoint you want the outcome of the compliance test to encourage her feeling of security- which is why she threw the test in the first place.

If a woman throws a compliance test, the best way to approach it is not to validate her test with a reaction (anger, surprise, validation, etc), but instead to take a proactive approach that establishes dominance, shows that you will not be manipulated by a test, but shows compassion and your willingness to lead.

For example, after initial attraction is established:

"You probably flirt like this with all the women..."

Alpha response: "Only the hot ones!" (Boost alpha frame, create insecurity)

Alpha+Beta response: "Only when I feel like it, and today I feel like flirting with you." (Maintain alpha frame, boost security)

Failed response: "Oh, no, I swear I don't. Only you m'lady!"

In this example, you haven't lost your frame, but you've put a little extra emphasis on making her feel good. You're communicating that you can flirt with others, but you've chosen to flirt with her. I wouldn't recommend proceeding with all tests like this, but pepper it in maybe 1/5 of the time to help her feel the security she's craving. She will try to full-on betatize you, and you don't want that. But going full alpha will also send her looking for a new branch to swing to if she's in beta-seeking mode.

A proper alpha-beta mate will maintain his frame but appear gracious and intentional with his affection. He is important, high status, and busy, but he wants to direct his affection towards his woman because he has decided that is how he will proceed. He does not seek validation from a woman, but instead validates his woman with a proactive, not reactive, form of affection to boost security and comfort while never communicating subordination.

It's important to take note here that a strictly beta male is submissive and subordinate, but that an alpha that adapts beta traits is not.

I will need to revisit the definitions of these terms in our glossary, because we have been using beta incorrectly. Beta traits are indeed important to embrace when women are seeking a provider. Alpha traits are important to embrace when women are seeking either sex or a provider. Beta is not bad in and of itself, but instead describes a list of provider traits. When not coupled with alpha traits, beta traits are bad and communicate subordination. When coupled with alpha, you have yourself perfect long-term relationship material.

Good luck gentlemen.

As an aside, I will be adding a new LTR flair to the sub for more discussion on LTR game.

140

UPVOTES

Women are Incapable of Change.

23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"I'm working on it." "I'm trying..." "I can't change overnight!"

Raise of hands, who has heard one of these before? Who has heard all three from the same woman? Who has heard all three from every woman?

Women are not agents.

Women, be it learned or ingrained, have no capacity for change or self-improvement. Their default position is hypoagency, they are acted upon, but they do not act. You can see it in every part of their lives:

- Their communication style is primarily covert and passive aggressive, remaining behind the guise of plausible deniability. Women can petition for their desires secretly, while never being directly responsible for said communication.

Example:

Him: "Are you ok?"

Her, tersely: "I'm fine." //covert communication, she is upset.

Him: "Why are you upset?" //overt communication

Her: "Did I say I was upset?" //plausible deniability

- They are not responsible for their actions. Women are so disconnected from consequence, they rarely acknowledge or understand consequences when their actions cause them. They are culturally considered perpetual victims, and do not receive harsh criminal sentencing, often receiving little to no punishment for crimes that men are punished severely for. Women are regularly shocked when faced with a consequence from their actions- as evidenced by their solipsistic attitude.

Women will find it completely acceptable to lie to maintain plausible deniability, or to keep themselves out of the spotlight of responsibility.

Examples:

"I didn't want to cheat on you, I was drunk..." or "He took advantage of me.."

"I'm not trying to do this, it just happens! I can't help it!"

"I can't, it's hard, you don't understand..."

Trickle truth is a prime example of this behavior, as it allows women plausible deniability by not revealing anything (lie by omission), and looks plausible when she admits and apologizes for small segments of her lie only after they are discovered.

Women are incapable of change.

The mindset required for the above behaviors, as well as the mindset created by the above realities conspire to create a creature with no functioning understanding, desire, or comprehension of change. It requires too many understandings not present in the female psyche:

- Understanding that one's actions can affect future consequences.
- Acknowledgement that one is in control of one's actions.
- Acceptance of potential future failure

All of these failures are consistent with the hypoagency exhibited in women. These failures should not be a surprise, but instead expected based on our understanding of women in culture.

So, how many times have you heard the phrases...?

"I'm working on it." "I'm trying..." "I can't change overnight!"

It should come as no surprise, and our experienced members can likely relate- these phrases are rarely, if ever accompanied by actual change.

While women can be forced to acknowledge shortcomings ("this is not a behavior I tolerate..." "I'm sorry!"), she will appear sincere in her desire to fix it and be what her man wants her to be. But the very fact that the phrase "trying" is in her vocabulary means she has already admitted she does not have the faculties of mind present to understand what a change would entail.

A boy who puts his hand on a hot stove once, learns to discontinue the behavior.

The boy does not say to his mother, "I'm trying to learn this behavior needs to change..." nor does he take the next month of continued burns to let it sink in. What would any prudent person think if the boy did? A boy who puts his hand on the hot stove repeatedly is mentally ill.

Many often criticize my decision to leave "Women, the most responsible teenager in the house" in the sidebar, but I have yet to see any compelling evidence that this is not the case- or even that this article is not too lenient! "I'm trying" is the placating cry of the female, helpless in her endeavors to understand the connection between herself and the world around her. Events happen around her and to her, by others, by fate, and by the alignment of the stars. The world must be a fascinating thing through the eyes of a woman. Buckled in safely for the ride, watching as the trees go by.

There is no "try" in men's vernacular. There is do and do not. There are mistakes, and there are outcomes. But a behavior that is understood to be wrong creates a consistency of mind. When processing external details and circumstances- one does not process these details through a state of mind one does not have! Instead, he understands and plans responses to his surroundings with the understood consistency of his mind. Things he has reasoned to be true and untrue weight on this processing. There is no mistaken desire to put one's hand back on the stove unless he is not truly convinced it is disadvantageous. A man will not behave in a manner he believes to be disadvantageous.

Now, he might act in a manner that is still disadvantageous, but only because he has not yet reasoned out why this may be so. Once he understands that it is disadvantageous... it is not a process of change, but instead a change of process.

Women, however, do not function with this presence of mind. You will hear "I'm trying" which betrays their intent, because women are incapable of change. Why would they say "trying" if it were any other way?

Do not expect change.

Caveat: I do believe proper discipline within the framework of a relationship is necessary, beneficial, and ultimately an effective tool. I consider this method of change a series of conditioning rather than an internally-driven desire or ability for change.

359

UPVOTES

Why you need to shut up and listen: A litmus test you all failed.

24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Recently I posted a controversial post Women are Incapable of Change, which interestingly helped me identify some weaknesses here on TRP that should be focused on, but also disappointed me a little.

As anybody who has been here for even a short while should know, our language is coarse and offensive, our target audience is men, not children or women. Our language is shorthand and cuts out the bullshit disclaimers and politically correct modifiers that would make every possible fringe group happy with it.

We make generalizations, not because all women are like that- but because it gives us a framework to understand those around us. Even if a behavior only appears 3% of the time in a small fraction of women- you are prepared for it because you understand it can happen... and you understand that the culture is in place for it to happen.

And anybody reading the damn side bar or taking a few weeks to digest what we do here, they'd understand that. So what is your excuse?

how do you explain fat girls who stop eating kfc everyday and then get hot ?

I can see the point they are trying to make; they just went about making it in an asinine way by speaking in imprecise absolutes

Why is this stickied with a less than 70% approval rating in the RP community.

This is an extreme view. Men behave this way too. I have seen women change immediately or drastically in a short amount of time. This view is narrow minded and sexist.

My problem with your post is that all your statements depend on your own observations, which you extrapolated to the whole female gender.

I am as RP as they come. This post is nonsense and shouldn't be stickied.

This is absurd. You have simply come to the conclusion you wanted to come to and warped the evidence in your mind to fit your view.

You guys wonder why Reddit hates you? That's incredibly sexist.

Get your heads out of your asses

Or do I need to explain that the phrase "get your head out of your ass" does not literally mean I think your head is in your ass?

Gentlemen, I am ashamed of the behavior of our newer members. Instead of comprehending the piece that I wrote, what they've done is precisely what you expect from a liberal arts major feminist hipster: Misinterpret, willfully ignore the point, and police tone.

This might be a game some people are willing to play, but let me speak in no-uncertain terms to drive this point home: This is not a game I play, and the mod team won't either.

When the rules were announced not to police tone, we meant it. This continues to this day. We will delete on sight; repeat offenders will be banned.

Speaking in absolutes, generalizations, hyperbole, and analogy are all ways to communicate a basic set of concepts. The context of /r/theredpill already implies that generalizations are generalizations, we do not bother with or care for the standard disclaimers that make women studies majors and transgendered what-nots with bits and pieces of whatever fucked up sex they wanted feel fuzzy inside.

If you cannot read a piece and attempt to understand what the point was, then /r/theredpill is not the place for you. If you cannot comprehend the meaning, and instead get tripped up on tone and phrasing, /r/theredpill is not the place for you. If you cannot understand that generalizations and sexual strategy is probabilistic not deterministic, /r/theredpill is not for you.

But, but, but, you said 'women are incapable of change' and you spoke in absolutes!

If I wanted to fucking cater to each and every troll that wants to twist words into other meanings, we'd end up nothing but a handful of meaningless words.. and even then they'd still find a way to deem it offensive and demand we temper, censor, and moderate the tone.

Tempering tone and modifying the message IS A RACE TO THE BOTTOM and it will not be tolerated.

"But, if we just change xyz, then maybe people would understand..." No.

In a completely ironic twist, our female readers from RPW understood the takeaway from the article: If/when a situation like this arises, if a woman says she is "trying" to change, it's a warning sign that cannot be ignored. Change cannot be expected, and progress must be monitored.

People too busy trying to police tone missed the point, but our lovely red pill women didn't skip a beat and instead took a look inside and asked themselves- "hey, have I ever done that?" They didn't say to themselves, "If I process this article like an illiterate fuck, I can imagine he means that all I'm capable of is excuses and never changing..." No, they used their heads and understood the lesson to take away from it. Heck, they might use the essay as a catalyst to change!

RPW here. I realized I use "I can't help it, I'm trying" as an excuse more than I thought. I'm ashamed that after reading this I was actually shocked because of this understanding. So, because of this I reflected and am now changing.

RPW here. This is so true it's painful. Honestly, whenever I was required to change all my excuses were valid and accepted, heck, I was even pitied and patted on the back, with apologies for hurting my feelings. If a male counterpart did the same he'd have been kicked in the ass very hard.

I'm definitely more reactive than I'd like to be. It's not one of my qualities I'm most proud of. I lack will power to things on my own. It's not that I can't do things, it's that going against my will is hard, and it's harder to do it constantly, continually making the right choices.

If you're new here, take a seat, read the side bar, and shut up for a while.

23

UPVOTES

New Points System for askTRP - TRPBOT

29 July 2014 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Quick announcement. We've brought TRPBOT over to asktrp to allow users to award eachother points for helpful or useful comments.

Unlike on /r/theredpill there are no minimum requirements like endorsed contributors or minimum number of points needed to award. Any user who feels that somebody else has posted a useful reply can award a point by adding the Mars symbol (type `♂` or type ALT + 11) ♂

Thanks!

97

UPVOTES

[Mod] Quick Updates

29 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Flairs

The new LTR flair is now up, you can use it to discuss long-term relationship strategy, game, and experiences.

As always, you can filter new posts to see a particular type of post by clicking the flair link at the top of the page (or on the sidebar if you have styles off).

Points

/r/asktrp now has trpbot to award points to excellent contributors. Unlike here, anybody can award points there, regardless of endorsement status.

Reports

Recently we've been seeing some vote brigades coming in and massively downvoting decent posts, while upvoting really shitty posts. We see this every so often, it's nothing new. But to combat it, please keep your eye out for shitty posts and click report if they break the rules (or simply don't belong here).

Enjoy.

72

UPVOTES

Dear Feminists: This Is Why You Are In Trouble - "You couldn't even let a bunch of guys get together and talk about male homelessness, suicide, and social issues without protesting and making death threats."

29 July 2014 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://theredpillroom.blogspot.com/2014/07/dear-feminists-this-is-why-you-are-in.html>

269

UPVOTES

DO NOT CONCERN TROLL - YES, THIS MEANS YOU.

1 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you're new here, don't post. Take a minute and learn about how things work.

Any more posts that start with:

- "... lately I've seen TRP slipping..." or
- "... it's supposed to be about self improvement..." or
- "... can't we just talk about.." or
- "... ok trp, let's talk about ..."

...will end in a ban.

You know the guys with endorsed contributor flairs? Ever notice they're not bitching? They've been here a while, and know what's up. If you don't like the content you see, add the content you want to see.

New users complaining about how they want things to be, how they think things should be, or how they imagine things used to be will be removed and banned.

Want to discuss something? Then do it.

Want to post something interesting? Then do it.

Want to complain about how the content isn't precisely what you want? You've got a few options:

- Use the convenient links at the top of the page to filter your view for a particular topic.
- Post content you think will help balance TRP out with content you think is missing.
- Report low quality content.
- Or, do nothing at all.

Mindless, endless bitching is annoying. The mod team will delete and ban on the spot.

But but but.. what about all the xyz I see lately?

Did I not just say to stop bitching?

Yes, we have a men's right's flair. Because we can address men's rights issues in a candid, realistic way that the fem-centric /r/mensrights board will never touch. We've had this flair since the beginning of time, it has always been, and will always be on topic. Don't like it? Click here and stop whining.

Yes, we have blue and red pill examples. Don't like them? Don't read them. You have all the control in the world.

This is a warning, we will delete and ban on sight. There is no reason for ignoring the rules. NO CONCERN TROLLING. I don't care how honest your intentions are.

As always, we will be also be deleting any posts that just appear lazy or low quality.

29
UPVOTES

[Mod] Recruiting volunteers - please read

5 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

192
UPVOTES

LTR Theory & Tips MEGATHREAD

18 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For the next few weeks, we're going to be starting mega-threads each week focusing on a particular subject. This week, we're discussing Long Term Relationships. The dos and don'ts, theories, and strategy.

Some points I would like to focus on:

- Are LTRs feasible/beneficial in today's climate?
- What are some ways LTR game differs from pickup and plate spinning?
- Handling relationship shit tests
- Red flags, signs that it's time to move on
- Yellow flags, things to look out for
- Success/failure stories

Without further ado, I open the thread for input. Anybody with experience, insight, or theories - chime in. Anybody with a particular question is also welcome.

215

UPVOTES

Re: Censorship on the current drama

20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just thought I'd post an update regarding the recent drama with "Burgers and fries" girl and address the chilling effect spreading across reddit. I can't comment to the motivations and/or corruptions on other subs, I have no idea if there is any admin involvement or if individual mods have decided for their own reasons to remove all references to this incident... the mod team here has not heard from the admin as far as I know.

With that said, I have made the decision that posting her pictures or name (outside of her online handle) may be considered doxxing under reddit rules. Now, honestly, she outed herself and I would consider her a public figure, there's a good chance that the doxxing rules should not apply in this case. However, despite this, it's hard to know where the admin draw the line on this one, so in order to be safer rather than sorry, I have decided to remove references of personal info as per reddit rules including name and pictures.

The discussion is not being censored in any other way, please do feel free to continue discussion. If you find your own comment censored, please remove personal info and contact the mods to reinstate your post.

It's not necessarily an optimal scenario, but we are guests on reddit and need to recognize their rules.

55

UPVOTES

RationalMale: Equalism and Masculinity - "[...] the idea of anything positively masculine is either ridiculed [or] cast as misogynistic[...] Since the start of the sexual revolution, any definition of what masculinity truly should mean has been subject to the approval of the Feminine Imperative."

20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2014/08/20/equalism-and-masculinity/>

409

UPVOTES

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Ladies and gentlemen,

I am proud to present Puerarchy's newest game: SLUTQUEST.

We've already gotten awesome reviews, so I'll let the reviewers speak for themselves

I have to tell you, I have never seen anything so unbelievably realistic.

and

The interactions between the characters was so descriptive and true to life, I actually felt like I was in the game (I had a chance to get in that game but turned in down - something something wife kid divorce rape). Not only that, but I came away with a profound understanding of what being a SJW is all about. What a level of awareness I have now! You have to play this game. YOU MUST PLAY THIS GAME.

We also received this raving review:

Holy shit, this is the game to play. It tops the charts for realism and awesomeness. If there's one thing you do this summer: PLAY THIS GAME. Also, as a side note while I'm writing this review, babe, can you please call me back, it's been weeks since you and I made love, and I miss you...

Gentlemen, you won't often see my endorsement on a game. But today is a new day and this is a NEW game that absolutely changes the way we play.

Without further ado:

PLAY SLUTQUEST (TM)

364

UPVOTES

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

My name, phone number, and address have leaked on the internet! I don't know what to do!

I don't understand why they wanted to harass me like this! It's obvious that they want to keep me down because I have tried my hand at making my very own game. It's like they just don't want a new indie game developer to make it big.

Why must you harass me? Why?

How did you find out my name was Josh McMan?? How did you figure out I live in Texas on a ranch? Who keeps sending me mail-order brides? It's NOT FUNNY ANY MORE! **

All I wanted to do was release a new game. That's all I wanted. Shame on the internet.

I will CENSOR AND BLOCK ANYBODY WHO TALKS ABOUT THIS.

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2ej828/new_game_launch_slutquest_tm/

 Disclaimer: no actual doxxing has taken place, RPS's name isn't really Josh McMan, and he probably hasn't even been to Texas.

12
UPVOTES

Has red pill school been doxxed??? [XPOST]

25 August 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

79

UPVOTES

That would be why they don't hire women - On male spaces and feminine-primary imperative

27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/08/that-would-be-why-they-dont-hire-women.html>

74

UPVOTES

Sheilas' Wheels unveils PinkZones - Women only lanes.

27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://pinkzones.com/>

767

UPVOTES

So it begins- our society will no longer be covert about it. Women will rape and steal from you, this is your place in society. This is acceptable. Arizona statutory rape victim forced to pay child support

2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.azcentral.com/story/news/arizona/politics/2014/09/02/arizona-statutory-rape-victim-forced-pay-child-suppport/14951737/>

5

UPVOTES

The problem of insufficient vaginas

16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2014/10/the-problem-of-insufficient-vaginas.html>

156

UPVOTES

Science Confirms Tattooed Women Are Indeed Broken

17 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

My theory on tattoos has always stayed the same. I believe tattoos are an embodiment of risk-seeking behavior, which inevitably attracts women in droves. I've overheard countless women drooling over so-and-so with tattoos. They always mention the tattoos. It's a big turn on for them. And it makes sense, why wouldn't it? Women are predisposed to be attracted to alphas. Alphas display risk-seeking behavior. Tattoos are a great signal for this.

Enter female solipsism.

Women find tattoos attractive, therefore they falsely believe tattoos are attractive.

This would be akin to a man growing tits to attract women, because he's turned on by them.

Women, as clueless as they are, adopt these risk seeking behaviors, hoping these will appeal to men. And since men are thirsty, it appears to work. But what they don't understand is: men are attracted to them in spite of the tattoos, not because of them.

Now I chalk it up to female solipsism, but there are a few theories I've seen floating around about self-handicapping as a sexual strategy. I'm afraid I don't quite understand it beyond it possibly being a slightly more effective filtering mechanism.

Anyhow, looks like there's some research to show that tattoos aren't just pretty pictures on your skin, but are literally signs of risk seeking behavior and signs of poor long-term planning. Exactly what women look for in men, and exactly what men don't want in a woman:

<http://www.returnofkings.com/45944/science-confirms-tattooed-women-are-indeed-broken>

Before anybody chimes in to say they find tattooed chicks sexy, answer this: Would that same exact girl look sexier with or without the tats?

298

UPVOTES

Cowardice

27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://i.imgur.com/MGDS6jN.jpg>

Fucking annoying guy. Posting this because I support chaos.

Edit: To clarify a little more why I've posted this tidbit of drama is because as a moderator here on TRP, I wanted to make it clear that we will not be censoring our users to appease this idiot and his feminist agenda, and to shed light on the attempted censorship. I don't usually care for drama, but this guy needs to know his attempted censorship won't fly under the radar here.

23

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember - a Manosphere.com and TheRedPill sponsored challenge...

29 October 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I've had a few inquiries as to whether or not RPW can join our challenge. I say, both TRP and RPW are geared towards better ourselves, so why not?

I invite RPW to join us for this challenge:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2kls2b/rtheredpill_and_manospherecom_are_proud_to/

I will be offering up a second grand prize for our RPW class.

Good luck!

306

UPVOTES

[Mod] Snark, sarcasm, and mocking...

6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Occasional jest in good humor brings a little levity to our sub, so I don't usually make a big deal of it. But I wanted to address a particular type of humor that is prevalent in reddit culture, annoying as fuck, and doesn't belong here.

Mockery, snark, and sarcasm are the language of the passive, those who cannot confront an idea with logical discussion resort to these methods out of necessity. For them, the argument is an emotional one, and thus is only confronted emotionally.

This weakens the blade, however. When you allow your mind to rest, receive and make comments from the gut, you have accepted the culture and perpetuate it via compliance and conformity - cultural checks and balances that perpetuate memes by emotional merit regardless of value to anyone's mind.

Yes, the red pill has a culture, but to accept it blindly is stupid. None of us are infallible, and all of us are here to learn.

I don't mean to cut down comradery, which I think I speak for all of us- has been a positive experience. A fair number of us come from a background where these types of bonds with men are not happening, or are rare to find. To find a group of like minded individuals has been almost life saving for myself and I suspect for a lot of lost souls.

I do not plan on approaching this with a heavy hand, but encourage you all as a group to drop the language of the passive and stay focused on the topic at hand. If a post contributes nothing, we will continue to remove it as we always have. But if you find yourself about to sarcastically call somebody a "rapist" or snark about double standards instead of address them rationally, I encourage you to change your approach.

Snark, sarcasm and mocking are the tools of social justice warriors and adds no value to our sub.

That is not to say humor doesn't belong here, if done tastefully I believe it fits quite nicely. But do us all a favor and consider if the comment you're about to make truly brings value to our sub.

-RPS

18

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember Voting Thread

8 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Since #nonothingnovember is complete, we will now start the voting process. Obviously this was an exercise in self control and discipline, so picking a "winner" really wasn't the point. However, there is a prize for the one selected by the community for having accomplished something worthy of attention.

You can enter your name in this thread, and link to any relevant posts/blogs (reddit links ok, they might be autodeleted, but the mods will approve the messages manually).

Voting will be open until Friday, Dec 12th.

136

UPVOTES

What is Alpha?

11 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There was a recent thread where the topic of what alpha truly means came up, and there was quite a bit of disagreement. Many guys here fell into the trap of believing that alpha was the same as what they believed to be righteous. Righteous qualities = alpha. Alpha = role model. Somebody to look up to.

I want to quickly touch on the topic and dispel that rumor, because it's dead wrong and steers people in the wrong direction. Further, understanding what alpha means will help stop people from using alpha in place of role model or their belief of an optimal strategy.

I see people regularly use alpha to indicate that they believe there is one true alpha and one true path. This is wrong. As Rollo would point out, alpha is a mindset. The direction they can take may differ greatly and may put different alphas in mutually exclusive groups. Nevertheless they would all qualify as alpha.

From Rollo's article on Alpha:

There's a tendency to approach every "Alpha" argument from what a guy thinks is righteousness; ergo, his personal definition of Alpha is what appeals best to his sense of virtue. He earned his Alpha cred, played by the rules, and by God people (women) should respect that. However, the sad truth is that prisons are full of Alpha males who simply channeled their drive toward destructive and anti-social endeavors. There are plenty of examples of indifferent Asshole Alphas who you wouldn't say are upstanding moral leaders at all, yet women will literally kill each other (or themselves) in order to bang them because they exude a natural Alpha-ness. Just as Corey does here. There are Alpha drug dealing gang leaders, and there are Alpha husbands, fathers and leaders of industry. It's all in the application. Genghis Khan was Alpha as fuck, and a leader-of-men, but probably would be on most people's douchebag list for that era. Here's an illustration:

<http://rationalmale.files.wordpress.com/2011/10/venn-diagram.jpeg?w=300&h=282>

Read the whole article here.

28

UPVOTES

Good insight into female obligations in marriage: They have been taught that ..obligation renders her “property.” ...she is simply wise ..to recognize that marriages based on mutual obligations - as opposed to rights alone and certainly as opposed to moods — are likely to be the best marriages.

12 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Saw this on RPW, but I thought it offered some insight on not only good expectations from women in marriage (LTR) but also outlined sort of why marriages were failing today, and what the cultural change was.

in the past generation we have witnessed the demise of the concept of obligation in personal relations. We have been nurtured in a culture of rights, not a culture of obligations. To many women, especially among the best educated, the notion that a woman owes her husband sex seems absurd, if not actually immoral. They have been taught that such a sense of obligation renders her “property.” Of course, the very fact that she can always say “no” — and that this “no” must be honored — renders the “property” argument absurd. A woman is not “property” when she feels she owes her husband conjugal relations. She is simply wise enough to recognize that marriages based on mutual obligations — as opposed to rights alone and certainly as opposed to moods — are likely to be the best marriages.

<http://www.dennisprager.com/when-a-woman-isnt-in-the-mood-part-ii/>

Check out part one as well: <http://www.dennisprager.com/when-a-woman-isnt-in-the-mood-part-i/>

207

UPVOTES

2015, The Future and Direction of TRP, and a new announcement.

8 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Well, it's 2015, and in just over two years we've seen the community grow from a hundred subscribers to over 91,000 subscribers. It's been an incredible journey so far, and the growth looks nowhere close to stopping.

So what is the future of trp? What are our goals, and our predictions? What has changed in the past two years? What do we expect to see change this year?

As with the first year, we saw a similar growth in interest of TRP throughout reddit, to the extent that some subreddits have now banned reference to even our name. But nevertheless, curious souls continue finding their way here. Men who have been lied to, who have lost their ways in their lives, relationships, communities and careers. But this year was bigger than just reddit attention. This year we started seeing an increase in the number of mainstream media outlets now bucking the feminine imperative and asking questions. Is feminism still necessary? Is it ok to not be a feminist? What's happening to men? Why are they dropping out of society?

From the reaches of Time Magazine, New York Times, the Wall St Journal, the blow up of #gamergate in main stream gaming, and hundreds of smaller voices contributing, the tide is changing.

Now, these are baby steps, and they aren't without backlash. But what's important to note is that they're happening, and we've got front-row tickets to see the show.

As has been hammered again and again throughout the years, TRP is not an activist movement. However, what it is is a group of like-minded individuals who have a common desire to seek out truth and understanding in a culture that is operating against their best interests. The very need for TRP is inextricably linked to our social climate and the movements therein (not the least of which is feminism, but certainly it is not limited to this).

As observers, it would be disingenuous to say that these particular changes couldn't be used to our advantage. Though some here may say they prefer red pill knowledge be kept under wraps, maintaining the advantage of proprietary tips and tricks, the reality is that if the pendulum continues to swing as it is, we will be facing a climate in which men begin to make ground. You'd best learn to embrace it.

TRP has always put a great amount of value in adaptation. The mainstream adoption of a male-primary focus will require adaptation. It will put tools in the hands of other men, and it may increase competition in the short or long terms. However, with the cons, we may also see and address the pros that might come from this social change:

- Male Birth Control
- Divorce Reform (2.0?)
- Mandatory Paternity Testing
- Male-Primary Courtship and Dating

This list is incomplete, and of course quite lofty. The mere hope of a male-primary courtship may be well outside our lifetimes, if ever, but the reality has already begun that women, in their never-ending attempts to be unique and at the top of the hierarchy, have started denouncing feminism and embracing feminine traits as a strategy. In other words, red pill women are catching on as a novel trend. Much as hipsterdom strives to avoid the mainstream, women today are starting to treat cooking for their man as a positive accessory in their trendy, popular lifestyles. (Much like veganism, organic foods, winter boots, ipods, and starbucks).

Whether or not this will eventually serve us in a potentially positive way is yet to be seen. But the good news is that women prefer to adopt counter-cultures that they see other women adapt. Once it begins, we may see an uptick in potentially useful women. A long-shot, perhaps, but a possible positive outcome from the social changes taking place.

TRP is far from outdated, and plenty of the information here is timeless advice. But one thing is for sure: while the feminine imperative may not have changed much over the history of man kind, our cultures have changed to feminine-primary in recognition thereof. A change, however minor, back to our direction may make our lives that much easier, better, or more fulfilling.

These may just be the ramblings of an eternal optimist, but make no mistake, I embrace the change in either direction. It gives us something exciting to talk about, discuss, and dissect. No matter what the social climate looks like this year, next year, or in a decade, there will always be an objective reality beneath the surface of the social consciousness, just waiting for somebody to peel back the layers and discover the workings of human psychology pulling the strings. That discussion will always have a home at TRP.

On Content and the Direction of the Sub 2015

Occasionally, as the climate changes, and as we experience an influx of new members, we occasionally need to steer the ship to encourage new or different topics, or curb the over usage of older topics.

Some topics I'd like to see us focus on in the coming months include (but aren't limited to):

- Major political and cultural events, their psychological and evolutionary underpinnings and purposes
- Strategies for men to best reach individual goals (starting families, mgtow, spinning plates, or other)
- Discussion on LTR methods and different personality types that may be conducive to LTRs/Plate Spinning
- Meta Analysis of Field Reports (covert communications taking place, motivations, breakdowns of communication)

A Reminder to all

As always, please concentrate on keeping the quality of your contributions high. The mods (as always) have been tasked with removing anything that we deem too poor for our standards without warning.

If you are going to post a submission with a field report, video, or experience, do so with an analysis of why you think these events transpired. I want to see discussion on why things are said and done. Why does a woman act the way she does? Not just a description of what she did and how you reacted, but what motivated her to act in that way? What principles were at play? Why did she think the action was advantageous to her? Why would your response counter her action? What communication took place without words or speaking?

Anything that lacks this depth will be removed. We've got enough posts telling us to "keep frame" but not a lot explaining the mechanisms behind human interaction. This is far more interesting and will help teach others not only to "keep frame" but what frame is and why it works.

And finally, the announcement:

NEW SUBREDDIT: GEOTRP

Something I've been very interested in is collecting a compilation of the geographical analysis of local sexual markets, and gaming strategies. The fact is, some game tips work better than others in different places. Some cities and states have different ratios of men to women. Some places have women easier to game, others have women looking to settle down. Still, others have women impossible to game.

I want to map out the world, country by country, state by state, city by city what the local sexual markets look like, what the best strategies are, and where the best places to go for them might be.

I'd love for everybody to join us at /r/GEOTRP to add your information, your personal experiences in certain locales, and any census information you can dig up about age groups/gender ratios that you can so we can build a comprehensive map.

And with that, this has been our new year update. I hope you all have had good holidays, and are ready to get your lives on track for 2015. This year is going to be different, so let's make it a good one.

--RPS

7

UPVOTES

Introduction - Welcome to GEOTRP

8 January 2015 · /r/GEOTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Something I've been very interested in is collecting a compilation of the geographical analysis of local sexual markets, and gaming strategies. The fact is, some game tips work better than others in different places. Some cities and states have different ratios of men to women. Some places have women easier to game, others have women looking to settle down. Still, others have women impossible to game.

I want to map out the world, country by country, state by state, city by city what the local sexual markets look like, what the best strategies are, and where the best places to go for them might be.

I'd love for everybody to join us at /r/GEOTRP[7] to add your information, your personal experiences in certain locales, and any census information you can dig up about age groups/gender ratios that you can so we can build a comprehensive map.

Please subscribe and help us build a comprehensive map of the globe.

21
UPVOTES

Stay anonymous-
8 January 2015 · /r/GEOTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Use a throwaway if necessary, make sure not to doxx yourselves!

367

UPVOTES

Women are Children

22 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Over the past few months, I've been dipping my toes into the long-term-relationship game, and re-experiencing a side of women I haven't seen in over 6 years.

One difference in these strategies is the degree to which you need to actually work on relationship issues. Whereas with plates, you can ignore small problems (they'll be gone soon enough), or soft next them (they either leave or get the point). But with a relationship, there are times when you simply need to discipline or focus on correcting issues.

And it's now that I remember some crucial advice that I wish my father had imparted onto me when I was younger-

Women are Children

So I wanted to write this up to serve as a quick reminder, you are dealing with emotionally and intellectually stunted people. Let's explore and analyze these following phrases and experiences:

- I can't...

Failing to accept their own agency, women often resort to the phrase "I can't." It's a phrase that red pill men work hard to eliminate from our lexicons. "I can't" implies past and future inability. "I haven't yet" implies a struggle towards a goal. "I can't" implies resignation.

It's an obvious sign that this person has not matured beyond the simplicity of a child, whom everybody serves. So trying and failing would be a pointless exercise to them. Beyond this, her mind simply understands that her abilities and skills are innate (as they assume all people are), therefore anything outside the bounds of what seems natural to her are simply outside her bounds. She declares with confidence that she "can't" because she knows this to be true.

- I don't know why I'm being like this. / I don't know why I did it

Her actions and feelings are outside the purview of her control. Simply put, she believes her actions (however few she mistakenly makes) to have just happened, without influence from her. As with all hypoagency, in an attempt not to be held responsible for actions, women will do everything in their power not to make discernable actions, or when they must, to do so under the guise of plausible deniability (to limit their risk of responsibility and consequence). Likewise, when no shroud of plausibility exists, their minds simply draw a blank, almost as though they are just as surprised with their actions as you are.

Bringing us to my next favorite hypoagent phrase:

- I'm trying

The chorus of a woman scorned. Occasionally there will be behaviors that you do not tolerate. Fundamentally, self-improvement seems to be all but outside the grasp of most women, this inability to change is met with another acknowledgement of hypoagency: "I'm trying."

Had you the misfortune of addressing a behavior more than once, the tired phrase gets pulled out for another run, suggesting that the actions she takes are not ones she controls. Her outward actions are a mystery to her, over which she exerts little influence. She tries, begs, even pleads with her body, but her cries go unheard. If only she could change, she very much would like to do so.

The red pill man understands there is only "do" and "do not." There's no "trying" in going to the gym, there is only going and not going. A behavior or attitude is something which must be changed if it is disadvantageous to your goals. This is something our little snowflake will never grasp. And as the children they are, they shouldn't be expected to.

- The shut down

When confronted with something difficult, overwhelming, or confusing, you notice she shuts down. She cannot process things, she is unable to react. It can be extremely frustrating, especially during a conversation that might be entirely logical and rational to you, yet she goes blank and unresponsive. You (or something/someone) have overwhelmed her simple mind, and now we must wait for her to re-emerge. If she does it properly, she will re-emerge potentially when the threat has passed, well after you (the adult) have taken care of things.

While most red pill men understand that living in the here and now is crucial to survival and success, women enjoy the luxury of turning off when needed, and the freedom to be accepted for doing so.

Imagine if during something as dangerous as a life threatening scenario, or as important as a business meeting, a red pill man were allowed to simply go silent and fail to react until they are more comfortable. Surely they would be eaten or fail. But instead, we do not expect children to make tough, quick, life decisions when the time comes. We give them room and space to breathe. This is within their nature, this is who they are.

This is not a post of anger, resentment, or hatred. Instead, it is a reminder to us all that these are the people we are dealing with. To treat them as adults and have similar expectations of them would be a mismanagement and a failure on your part to properly lead. There is a reason we usher women and children first onto the life boats. They cannot fend for themselves.

Do not expect them to act, reason, and process life and their surroundings the way you do as a man. Instead, understand that she is a child, and ultimately relies on you to be her anchor in reality. She needs you to lead. The more you expect from her, the less either of you two will get from each other.

311

UPVOTES

[Mod] On the future viability of the sub...

5 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just wanted to put a quick note up, since there's been a lot of rumor and talk spreading about the impending demise of TRP.

First of all, I don't think we're going anywhere any time soon. We follow Reddit rules, and even enforce some stricter rules that aren't necessary according to Reddit's base rules.

We don't brigade, we don't link, we don't doxx, and we don't harass anybody.

We don't advocate breaking the law, nor do we discuss ways to do it.

There really isn't a problem as far as I've seen. The admins have been in contact with us whenever there is a problem, and we've resolved them quickly without fuss.

But, since there is some level of panic, I will reiterate our backup plans:

- Meet at <http://puerarchy.com>
- A link to new forums will be posted there.
- No, we will not be opening new forums until such an event occurs. We are TheRedPill subreddit, the entire point was to be a subreddit. There's no need to relocate unless this becomes a problem.
- Archives of our greatest posts are being made and kept in case of trouble.

If anybody has programming skill and wants to help with the automated backup of threads, I would be most appreciative. We've had limited success up until now.

If you would like to receive email notices in case of emergency, you may sign up for our mail list:

<http://puerarchy.com/mailing/?p=subscribe&id=1>

Thanks.

1,152
UPVOTES100,000

4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I decided to sit down with a glass of wine this evening and reflect on the past two years, and our experiences here on the red pill. While most sub-reddits are lighthearted and fun in nature, this one takes a more serious tone and purpose, and the implications of our conclusions are far reaching and scare real mainstream establishments.

It's incredible that what we're doing - just looking for and sharing information - is so dangerous and damaging to the status quo, that we actually ruffle feathers. When I took over TRP with under a thousand subscribers, I expected to be ignored, perhaps made fun of a bit. But I did not expect what we have experienced- mainstream attention in a campaign against us of fear, shame, and censorship.

Maybe I'm a bit drunk, but at 100,000 users I think it's fair to excuse me as I raise my glass and share some of my emotions with you guys because, fuck, this has been the most incredible ride of my life. Not only have I found a group of likeminded individuals, but we have helped others find belonging as well. And that's something that our culture has severely lacked- belonging for men: A place for men to be among peers and friends, comrades, people to connect with. Some have been luckier than others. I counted myself among the unlucky until now.

I think it's important to take a moment to reflect on the improvements we've made as people – as men – because sometimes with the small increments it's difficult to really realize where we might have been five years ago (or even two years ago). I find myself worrying about very small details today that are the subtlest of nuances of game that I would never have even understood or believed a few years back. Today I look at these hurdles as mountains, but they are mere street curbs compared to the real mountain of improvement that stood before me when I began my journey.

And, excuse me for being sentimental, but you've all been there doing the same with me. It really strikes me as the most incredible experience to know that we've reached out and touched the lives of other men, knowing that their lives may be improving because they found us. Knowing that we are improving people's lives, despite the chagrin of the established culture, really fucking hits me deep. I haven't cried in over a decade, but I might shed a damn tear tonight because it's beautiful what we've accomplished.

I want to share a little about myself before the red pill started, and before I discovered the manosphere in general. I was just out of a relationship where I honestly wondered to myself what the point of continuing was. I wondered what three years meant if it could be thrown away in days. I was ego invested in this relationship, it was my identity.

I suspect (and I'm sure there are some blue pillers who will have a hay-day with this) that the people who have found their way here were smarter than average, but severely mislead. I say that because I truly believe it takes an uncommon level of intelligence to really look inside and realize that the source of a problem may lie within. It's something that I consider daily, and I wonder if most people I've met will ever consider it even once in their lives. People tend to spend a huge amount of mental cycles avoiding such a question.

My experience was being logical and analytical. I wanted things to make sense, but I found myself alienated. Not only by women and romantic interests, but also by friends and family. Wondering why it was that a strict adherence to logic and rationality would lead to such rifts in my relationships, I began to wonder if perhaps I was destined to live the rest of my life alone. I felt alone, like there was nothing in this life for me. I did things the right way, the way they were supposed to be done, and I was not rewarded like I expected. Instead I discovered that everybody around me was stupid. They were dumb. They did not follow the rules. Why the hell were they so intent on following nonsense such as emotions? Why didn't they control their reactions to things? Why were they lead astray by lies and misconceptions? And why was I unsuccessful at negotiating their desires?

I wouldn't realize for years to come what I was witnessing could be explained by an economist. You have to follow the money. In this case, the money was self-interest. I eventually discovered that people will follow exactly what they've been evolutionarily driven to do. And sometimes that means that no matter how many promises you or they make, no matter how much sense commitments and honor makes to try- people will follow what makes them happy. (And worthy of note, most people don't know what it is that makes them happy, so they follow the short term happiness, even to the detriment of long term happiness.)

It's an eye-opening experience to realize that rather than being the smartest person in the room, I was likely the most duped idiot there. Expecting a system of laws that were never enforced, I actually had the gull to get self righteous and pissed when nobody abided by it. How fucking fruitless that effort would be.

I think my story is not unique. I think that we're here because of a similar past.

There's an interesting group called purplepilldebate, and I want to speak about that for a minute.

A common topic that they focus on is that the conclusions that we arrive at should be common knowledge and that few people should ever be as mislead as we were.

I really do wonder how it is that I was lead so far astray, I really don't know. It's hard to think of myself as a thinking, breathing individual then, when I now realize how wrong my conclusions were then. Clearly I am smart enough today to come to better conclusions. The raw materials were there waiting to be molded into the person I would become. But, nevertheless, there I was among the stupid. The people purplepilldebate refuses to accept exists: the feminine-conditioned men who did not know how to be men.

But we do exist. And we're here. And we're improving.

This is what the opposition will do when they find themselves outreasoned. They will adopt your premises and act as though they were there with you all along, and that you're nuts for thinking otherwise. It's just your misdirected conclusion that they disagree with. But they agreed with everything else all along!

That's one hella bunch of gaslighting in my opinion.

There are a few comments I want to make about purplepilldebate, and our community, as we continue past 100,000 subscribers and into the future.

Purplepilldebate might be an interesting read, and certainly a great place for outrage porn if you're an addict. But the fact is, one thing that they focus on is a way to tone down red pill discussion to give it more mass appeal. They want to normalize red pill ideas.

One common trope I hear there is "the red pill doesn't have the monopoly on the advice, work out, dress well, and improve your personality."

The point they're trying to make is that you can take this very simple advice and probably improve your standing, so there's no real reason to buy into the "hate-group" of the red pill. You can be just as successful, really, this advice has always been around! Everybody knows it! We've always advocated these things!

This is an interesting thing they're doing. They're buying the advice because there's no real logical argument against its effectiveness. It really does work. Women like swole, fit, confident guys. But there's method to the normalization and tempering tactic. They aren't just well-meaning folks who want you to avoid the hate-trap of TRP. They want to make sure you never fall into the understanding behind why these things work.

Originally the campaign against men included denying that stoicism and fitness were effective with women. They tried to convince a generation of boys that what women really wanted was a dude who shared his feelings and was able to cry on her shoulder. MAKE NO MISTAKE, THIS IS WHAT SOCIETY TAUGHT BOYS. That the purple pill tries to deny it now, telling us that "get fit and confident" has always been a no-brainer is disingenuous. Anybody watching a late 80's or 90's movie can disprove this entirely. This has not been the truth.

They want to co-opt the inarguable parts of our argument to continue the campaign against what really scares them: understanding and truth about female sexual strategy.

There are some well-reasoned red pillers on the purple pill subreddit who tend to cave to these pressures nevertheless, and I see them now taking a foothold on our main subreddit. I have decided to make a comment on it, and explain our moderating position regarding them moving forward:

The fact is this: our edge is our advantage. There is no point to trying to normalize with political correctness. It is a fool's errand.

There are enough people trying to make peace with the public narrative saying that red pill advice is good enough if only there wasn't so much anger or hate. If only we could just be more ... what's the term? Socially acceptable?

This is what the moderates are looking for- they want us to tone it down. Why can't we preach good dating advice and drop the anger and hatred?

In fact, even members here who I do not recognize as long-standing members comment on how there's so much anger and how it used to be good but gosh there's so much darn hatred and anger now.

The fact is, our edge- our political incorrectness- is the only thing keeping us what we are: a community for like-minded men. Once we adopt a politically correct frame (which is what purple pill is attempting, and what our concern trolls are advocating), we have abandoned our advantage of being a male space that is open to like-minded individuals who can discuss what matters to men.

I think a lot of people reading this might be wondering- why is it that dropping some of the anger and speech that is deemed "hatred" could be bad? Wouldn't it help to communicate our message better if it were easier to stomach?

When we adopt a more politically correct format, something very important is taking place: we are tempering our speech to satisfy the feminine imperative; that is to say: we are modifying ourselves to please women- to gain female approval. And as our subject matter happens to be one that women tend not to approve of, you can only imagine the effect that might have on our subject matter if we were to temper ourselves to appease them.

We will not be bending to appease women, the feminine imperative, or popular culture. This has always been the case, and always will be.

So as a comment to a recent influx of statements regarding the "anger stage" or new members ruining things because they're undereducated or angry- I say this: We embrace the anger, we embrace the new people, we embrace the unwanted, the unsightly, the incorrect.

I needn't state that at one point every member here was new, and many had dumb questions or some anger to work out. We've all been there.

So as of this point forward, our moderation team will not look kindly to anybody being disparaging towards the fact that new people might exist, that we have an "influx" of new people clogging things up with their new questions and feelings.

I liken it to going to the gym. After a good set, my muscles tend to ache. It's sometimes frustrating and difficult to do normal tasks when my muscles hurt, or I can't fully extend my arms. But the one thing I know is this: The pain indicates gain. We cannot get gain without pain. And fuck any of you righteous motherfuckers who think they're not responsible to help educate and assist new members. If you've gained any insight or help from TRP at all, you owe it to new members to help them with the same.

Likewise my message to new comers is not to flood us with inane posts or bullshit. If you think you have a beginner question, it's because it is, and we don't need to hear it. Check our sidebar, and read for another month. Check /r/asktrp. Do what you can to teach yourself before joining in conversation.

Anyhow, I've really enjoyed the past two years, and it's incredible that we've reached 100,000 subscribers. I can't wait to see what the next two years bring, and to see how many new ideas, insights and understandings we uncover. As always we will continue to embrace the edge and make this a place for exclusively male communication and comradery.

Welcome new subscribers, and congrats to existing users. This is a huge milestone and I can say honestly that I could not have gotten where I am today without all of you. I hope that what we've been able to do here has helped you as well.

I'm proud to call you my brothers.

RPS

59

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Reaches 100,000 Subscribers!

4 March 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Not entirely related to RPW, but I thought I'd let you all know we got ourselves up to 100,000 subscribers on TRP.

If you want a read, here's my address: <http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2xwllf/100000/>

1,793
UPVOTES

The red pill are a bunch of bigots who can't get laid.

20 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

They're all virgin neckbeards. Couldn't get laid to save their lives.

I consider it somewhat ironic on a meta level, that the people saying this don't themselves see the irony.

Recently we were deemed the most bigoted subreddit on this site. And of course the usual insults began to fly. We are, as everybody knows, just a bunch of sexless, angry, nobodies.

I'm hoping I've caught the attention of at least a few new people taking a peek to see what we're about. You're probably hoping to find evidence to support the popular opinion- that we should be chided or ignored.

The reason we are here and the reason we don't care about the insults are one in the same: Because joining the red pill did not start the insults, instead the insults started the red pill.

The irony sorely lost on the masses is in the call for equality, anti-bigotry, and whatever other causes your average social justice warrior stands up for. The public has doubled down and taken up the very weapons they decry. Shame and scorn against those they disagree with. Sexual shame in retribution for valuing sex. Smooth.

They say that we're wrong in our assessments, and then revoke our manhoods by commenting on our inability to get sex.

But they've got the order of operations down wrong.

I'm not going to deny that we have had trouble with sex. That is the common thread that brings us here. Using sexlessness to dismiss us is precisely the behavior that brought men here to begin with. We were sexless. Our views and perspectives, our so-called "bigotry" did not lead us to a sexless life so you can conveniently dismiss our views. Instead, our sexless lives lead us to adopt these views as a last ditch effort to reach sexual success. And most of us stayed here when we realized it was effective.

But life isn't all about sex! You guys are obsessed!

Right?

I think it's pretty safe to say that most women don't really understand to what degree sex matters in the average man's life. He finds more than a physical release, he finds belonging and acceptance in sex. Sex for a man is knowing you are wanted. The fact is, for most of our lives, we've come to accept that we are not sexually desirable to most (or all) women. Our advances left us crushed and depressed, were treated as creepy or worse than murder. Our relationships left us broken or broke. Our marriages crumbled. If you listen to pop culture, and believe everybody finds their special somebody, then we must have been the outcasts.

The fact that commenting on our lack of sexual success is inherent in all public dismissal of us (virgin neckbeards) should help put this into perspective- even the feminists and social justice warriors of the world denouncing sex as that important have made our manhoods (and therefore rights to have or speak an opinion at all) entirely dependent on our access to sex. Why would being a virgin or a neckbeard matter, unless sex truly does matter to our manhoods?

I don't really buy the rationale that it does matter to be a man. But I do recognize that sex will still be important to men nevertheless. And so here I support such a hypothesis, and behold, 102,000 men in two years have flocked. You can dismiss us, our views, and theories. But you cannot dismiss the common need and problem that brought us together.

I want to back up a little bit, and address the idea that we're social outcasts.

Now, you'd think, every gender and every group has their outcasts. Looking back at highschool, there were always those fringe groups that didn't quite get along. Some banded together in their unpopularity and played dungeons and dragons or wore funny looking clothing. So what's the red pill? Just a group of pimply-faced nerds who never learned to talk to women?

That's the problem here- the reason for our corner of the internet. It affects more than just the pimply-faced nerds, more than the short guys, more than the fat, the skinny, or the ugly.

The changes to inter-gender relations over the past 30 years have started to affect all of us.

You can see it in the declining marriage rates, in the studies that show dissatisfaction among both genders in relationships, the sky-high divorce rates, and the endless stories of custody battles and alimony cases. The school shootings and the male suicide rate, the gamer scandals, and presidential campaigns. The declining rate of male college graduates and the women who don't care. The single mothers, and the children who hate men.

We're not the sexless virgins. We're not the neckbeards.

We're fathers, firefighters, pilots, drivers, teachers, engineers, students, bankers, and entrepreneurs who are tall, skinny, fit, fat, good-looking, ugly, old, young, happy, angry, sad, depressed, and everything in between.

And we've all been affected by the changing environment.

And none of us found compassion, belonging, or empathy in the very system that gave us this shared experience.

Maybe we are bigots, maybe we hate women. Maybe we aren't, and maybe we don't. It's entirely superfluous to the point of why we're here. Attacking these points does not dismiss our existence, nor does it address it.

It's up to you how you're going to deal with this information.

22

UPVOTES

RM: Wives & Lovers - "Once married, there are myriad social conventions already emplaced for a wife to rely upon ... 'Mismatched Libidos' is a common refrain for women..who come to a point where they can no longer palate the "duty sex" they felt responsible for in the beginnings..."

7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2015/03/31/wives-lovers/>

59

UPVOTES

"The hypothetical woman with an IQ as high as mine is out of luck. She can either marry down, which women hate to do, or compete for a small pool of men that has been reduced by one."

7 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2015/04/hergomous-hogamous.html>

501

UPVOTES

[Mod] May 2015 TRP Address 110,000: Surpassing mensrights - the men who saw the problem, then doubled down on their worldview.

1 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've been a subscriber on /r/mensrights since before the inception of theredpill, and for a lot of guys who are plugged in, it's a real breath of fresh air. Going from a society and culture that universally demonizes men and legally and culturally places women above all- it's hard for men not to start feeling a little nuts wondering if anybody else notices the injustices. Men are given harsher sentences for the same crimes women commit (if women get sentenced at all), men have their bodies mutilated at birth by routine procedure, men risk financial slavery to women just for being on her radar, and men face prison for not paying women their dues. Life can really suck for a guy. And men's rights is an oasis where they pull back the curtain and really shed some light on these issues.

Men's rights don't always get a fair shake on TRP, and I want to be on record as defending them. There are some very important issues that must be addressed legally for men, and I will always support the fight for equality for men. Always. Interestingly, I feel that our risk to be victimized by these disparities is almost entirely proportional to our interaction with women. If you can manage to avoid women altogether, you can basically whittle that risk down to near-zero. But that's not an option for me, I really like sex. Every encounter I have with a woman exposes me to financial, emotional, physical and criminal risks- even if I commit no crimes, have only the best intentions, and do not do anything wrong. Women can lie- lie about birth control, lie about diseases, lie about rape, and lie about paternity- and as a man, I'm on the hook- not for what I've done, but for what she says. Women are wholesale liabilities.

Yet, for all the positive goals mensrights seems to have, they have one distinct flaw- one major drawback- that I believe is the reason we're about to pass their subscriber-ship number... Their approach to reality, to life, and to personal happiness... is to double down on the feminine primary viewpoint our culture has adopted.

In other words, they've glimpsed into the abyss, and didn't just reject the red pill, they took two blue pills and chased it with windshield washer fluid.

Avoiding Misogyny

One of the primary concerns of /r/mensrights is avoiding the appearance of misogyny. Although they tend to take a stand when they're publicly shamed as misogynists, because that shaming tactic is rarely used to identify real misogyny, they are scared shitless of a time when the shaming tactic sticks because there's legitimate misogyny taking place. Often members will take comfort in the fact that they're not the red pill. "Thank god," they think, "thank god we're not the red pill- that den of misogyny that femeninists, women, and our culture at large disapprove of."

What could possibly be the advantage of wanting the approval of those within the system you are purporting to fight against? The feminine-primary conditioning is so well ingrained into these men that they see no irony in fighting against a feminine-primary establishment while doing everything in their power to appease it.

The misogyny they worry so much about is the very tool of shame and censorship that feminists have had mastered for decades. You can control what men talk about by invading their space and controlling the tone.

And when men are worried about offending women, no progress can be made. You know what the progress is for men's rights? Inherently fucking offensive to women who have abused the pussy pass their entire lives. If I threaten to steal your silver spoon, for sure that idea will be found offensive and that speech will be curtailed.

Believing in Egalitarianism

Rollo writes in great length regarding love and war. An excerpt from one of our required reading pages from the rationalmale:

We want to relax. We want to be open and honest. We want to have a safe haven in which struggle has no place, where we gain strength and rest instead of having it pulled from us. We want to stop being on guard all the time, and have a chance to simply be with someone who can understand our basic humanity without begrudging it. To stop fighting, to stop playing the game, just for a while.

We want to, so badly.

If we do, we soon are no longer able to.

For men, accepting that egalitarianism is a pipe dream means throwing away the idea of an equal partnership with women. One in which he can finally relax and be accepted for who he is.

If feminism is the idea that women not only have the right, but responsibility to shed traditional gender roles, then the juicy, enticing corollary to that is that men should also have the right to shed their roles as well. Who wouldn't want to find comfort in the unconditional love of a woman. Not for your ability to provide or protect, but for being special little you(tm).

It's a fantastically seductive idea that throws aside the nagging reality that all men are taught from birth: you are not a man, you were not born a man, your only value to become a man is in what you can build, provide, or do. And past benefit does not provide future value. You must always be useful, or you are otherwise not.

It doesn't matter if you were president. You keep on going.

But we don't expect that from women. In fact, we don't even think of that for women.

So this egalitarian pipe dream lures men into thinking that maybe a forward-thinking woman would be just like a man: in love with who he is, not what he can do. And he'll quickly find himself sad and alone with such a blue pill dream.

Defining Equality and Dismissing Sexist Inequalities

One of the most devious ways feminists have controlled the men's rights narrative is the call for equality and against sexism. Similar to the accusation of misogyny, the call against sexism paints a very narrow path one must walk to remain righteous in the eyes of those who value equal rights. The very idea behind the argument itself is framed entirely on feminists' terms. In order not to be evil and against equal rights, you must avoid any and all sexism as defined by feminism!

Men, wanting to prove that you can indeed push for men's rights without being evil, adopted this frame and took the torch from there. Their hope: to remain blameless and righteous in the battle for equal rights.

But they didn't start on equal footing, because to accept the feminists' version of equality, you must deny biological realities and accept that men and women are exactly the same. There's no way to make a point that doesn't come to the feminist conclusion when you're using their premises to begin with.

Believing that men and women are the same is the only way to stay on the narrow path of equality, but ignores inherent truths: women can give birth, men cannot. Men are as a group stronger and larger than women. Women have different learning methods than men, and women and men tend to have differing preferences in almost every part of life.

When we deny that any of these ideas can even have a place in the conversation, it's no wonder that nothing of value can be discussed or reached. When feminists frame the entire debate, we find the conclusions can only support the feminist view point.

Why does any of this matter?

Ultimately, the reason it matters is because feminism is a sexual strategy. And although most people don't want to see it this way, there's no denying this reality. Feminism seeks to maximize the collective bargaining power of women, maximize their options and opportunities, and ultimately this comes at the cost of the freedom of men.

Women can unilaterally make the decision to have kids, they can get government assistance, they can force men to pay, they have the force of law behind them, they can imprison men they do not find sexually appealing with false accusations, they can trick men into fatherhood, they can abort if they see fit, and they can commit crimes and violence against men with little to no consequence. These are the outcomes of feminism. There is no way to view it that does not render this a sexual strategy, and a damn good one at that.

So when men mistakenly believe they are stepping outside of this culture and fighting it by joining the cause of men's rights, it might surprise them to find that men's rights is just another branch of feminism, the narrative, speech, and conclusions all controlled by the feminine-primary culture we live in.

And if this is another branch of feminism, a sexual strategy at the cost of men, then there will be no peace or happiness found within its borders.

And there isn't.

So men come here.

A Quick Note on The Direction of the Sub

Some of you may have noticed over the past few weeks we re-enabled posting links. I want to take just a minute to discuss the direction of the content on the sub and the reasoning behind this decision.

I have enjoyed a lot of the content here lately, there's some very good stuff to read, and always new insights daily.

That said, I would like to see more focus on theory, concepts, and ideas, and less on short uninformative anecdotes. While anecdotes are the core of our system of sharing ideas, I would encourage members to save up your stories and anecdotes, and make a post when you've arrived at a cogent conclusion, perhaps including the data of multiple experiences at once as a basis for the conclusions you've drawn.

While it's nice to see confirmation that yes, a woman was friendlier after you insulted her, that's basically reddit 101 stuff, and you're going to need some higher quality analysis than that.

Additionally, I've seen a lot of platitude advice recently and we're going to be removing it on sight. I don't care if we don't have a single new post for 24 hours, I don't want to see any more content that says "Do it for you..."

If you want to post advice, consider if it's already in the side bar, and then consider instead of posting advice, posting your theory and data backing up the theory that made you arrive to the behavior you're using. I don't like imperatives, and it starts looking like a fucking self-help section at the book store when there are posts called "Do XYZ every day."

Direct links have been re-enabled, please make sure to pay attention to our list of blocked domains (including reddit itself). If you see something on a mansphere blog, please do link to it, but include a quote or point the article makes to give us an introduction. Your own analysis is always welcome.

Here's to 110,000 just around the corner! Cheers!

839

UPVOTES

Karen Straughan (Girlwriteswhat) succinctly discusses that men don't hate women, and defends TRP. Good read!

21 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

First of all, /u/girlwriteswhat, I just want to publicly thank you for your comments, they're fantastically written and spot on as usual. You're always welcome in discussions here if you've got anything to add! Now, onto the meat and potatoes: Archive Here

Via PPD from GWW (I hope you don't mind me reproducing your text here)

I don't think there is a universe that could exist where men, in general, hate women.

So maybe the first thing would be to stop accusing men of hating women? And to call out the women in positions of power who accuse men of hating women? And to call out the women like Quinn Norton who claim that men are raised to hate women, or Chloe Angyal of Feministing who claim that our entire society hates women?

Honestly, the Nazis hated the Jews. The Hutus hated the Tutsis. The KKK hated blacks. And yet this male dominated society, where men hold the majority of the positions of power, somehow HATES women despite not a single lynching of a woman for wronging a man, despite NOMAAS and the White Ribbon Campaign and HeForShe and a male feminist president, despite Boko Haram's sparing of girls while burning boys in their dormitories, despite the unbelievable (and unbelievably unspoken-of) gender gap in executions and criminal sentencing in Islamic countries, despite males being the primary receptacles of violence by both males and females from infancy to old age GLOBALLY, despite not a single genocide in history that DIDN'T begin with the systematic extermination of almost exclusively men and boys.

And you think men hate women. If men hate women, then how do men feel about men? On any given day, any given male is more likely to assault a male, undermine a male, ignore a male in need, murder a male, celebrate the suffering of a male wrongdoer, hit his male child, make a decision to mutilate his male child, arrest a male, convict a male, and sentence a male to incarceration or death, than he is a female.

And yet women--yes, women--have allowed a narrative to become entrenched in all our systems and institutions that males favor other males at the expense of females. That somehow, there is a "team men" that has been oppressing, subjugating and subordinating women since the dawn of human history. That men have waged a "war on women" since we descended from the trees and first tottered on two legs on the African Savannah.

Men have bled for their women, fought to protect their women, died for their women, and admonished each other for millennia to love their virtuous women as Christ loves the Church, to treat their honorable women as queens and as jewels, to present to them the heads of the men who displease them, and to duel to the death to defend their honor. The literary canon, written primarily by men, has always lauded a masculinity that protects women--the villains identified by their willingness to harm women, and the heroes identified by their willingness to avenge those harms.

And you think men hate women?

Men have never hated women. Men will never hate women.

What you see as hate is fear and frustration. Fear of what you have the power to do to any given man on any given day, just by virtue of being female. Frustration that no matter how far men bend to your whims, it's never enough to prove to you that they don't hate you and have never hated you.

For god sake, have you ever gone on a conservative website and seen what the people there write about Islam and misogyny? These men couldn't care less that for every 1 woman executed for adultery in Saudi Arabia, 500 men are executed for less serious crimes. They couldn't care less that 80% of women in Saudi Arabia DON'T want the driving ban lifted, because it would mean giving up the privilege of being waited on by male family members. Those conservatives say, "OMG, look at how those horrible Islamists treat their women! They objectify and sexually exploit them!" And what do you think the Islamists are saying about Americans? "OMG, look at how those horrible Americans treat their women! They objectify and sexually degrade them!"

And somehow, a minority of women (feminists) have convinced all of society that men hate women.

No wonder men are afraid of you. If you [women] can convince society that it hates women, in the face of all the evidence to the contrary, then you have a power that is unfathomable to the average man. A power that is unfathomable to the most powerful man. You have the power to convince society that men hate you because they don't love you 10 or 100 or 1000 times as much as they love other men, and you have the power to convince society to enact legislation an policy based on that completely stupefying false belief, and these powerful men who supposedly hate you and are in charge of everything will do it. They'll lie and they'll cheat and they'll throw less privileged men under the bus just to prove to you that they're not misogynists.

Putting your foot down and saying, "what you're doing is abuse" is not hate. Drawing a boundary and saying, "this far, no further" is not hate. Saying, "I choose not to have anything to do with women unless necessary" is not hate.

It's self-preservation, HSW.

I officially recognize The Red Pill's right to exist?

Frankly, I don't mind the red pill (either the philosophy, or the subreddit). I think it has value to offer men who are looking for individualistic solutions to the current social problems re gender. I like Jack Donovan. I like Roosh V. I like Barbarosaaaa and Stardusk. I like all kinds of men and their perspectives, even when I don't agree with everything they have to say. I like the idea of criticizing women (men too) and holding them accountable.

You'll notice in my comment, I said "yes, women". This debacle of a gender war is not just on the minority of women who are feminists--it's on most women who've not just tolerated it, but viewed the social and legal changes the way looters view a race riot. Sure, they might not care about the issues, but they'll happily take advantage of the measures feminists have managed to enact, or to ignore the way those measures unjustly harm men until the moment they feel personally victimized through the men they care about. The average woman will be 100% in favor of child support right up until her own kids have to go without figure skating lessons so her husband can make child support payments to his ex for kids he's never allowed to see. They'll collectively cheer the "advance" of women in education right up until their daughters can't find a man worth marrying. They'll laud efforts to make "rapists" more easily convicted until the unforeseen day their own son is falsely accused.

And she'll nod along when all men throughout history are unjustly maligned as oppressors and rapists because she's never, for whatever reason, realized that among the maligned is her beloved grandfather who taught her how to make daisy chains, encouraged her to climb that tree when she was little, started a college fund for her, and sat unsleeping next to her grandmother's deathbed for 72 hours with tears pouring down his face. For some reason, she just never made the connection that when feminists were talking about evil, patriarchal rape-machines, they were also talking about the men she loves and the men who sacrificed so she could have a better life than they did.

If the red pill is a response to anything, it's a response to the apathetic, pragmatic, mercenary nature of most women, who don't even notice the harm done to men until they're forced to personally suffer a portion of it.

And then this question in the OP, so typical. Okay, so women have been kicking you guys in the testicles for 50 years and you're finally starting to object to it in ways that affect me personally. So what should we women do?

Well, first thing would be to stop kicking men in the testicles, and try to convince other women to stop. Second thing would be to stop interpreting "OW! My testicles! Fucking hell, WTF?" as misogyny and aggression. Third would be to stop buying the trite rhetoric of a Cenk Uygur, and a Theodore Roosevelt, and a William Blackstone, which derides men of past generations as behaving abominably toward their women, as fact, rather than as a way to distinguish themselves as superior to "those bad men over there, or back then". Fourth would be to put a little bit of effort into understanding the male experience rather than judging it.

Red pill seems to be the one area that demands these things of women in general.

1,280
UPVOTES

Amy Schumer admits to raping a guy, feminists support her, /r/askfeminists decide the guy raped her...

29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Generally I try to avoid the outrage porn, but this one is too good to pass up.

Amy Schumer apparently gives a speech where she admits to raping a drunk guy, continuing sexual acts despite the fact that he's intoxicated and occasionally falls asleep..

A detailed article is found here.

Well, in case you were asleep over the past few years (and subsequently raped by Amy Schumer), the latest feminist push has obviously been expanding the borders of the term "rape." One such frontier has been deciding that drunk sex is rape- or to clarify, somebody who is intoxicated cannot give consent, therefore having sex with somebody intoxicated is rape.

Now, putting aside the fact that this opens the door for two drunk people to simultaneously rape each other consensually, it's obvious in this case as one party is intoxicated and the other is sober that only one of them can consent. Hint: it's the sober person. She has 100% control of whether she enters the room.

Nevertheless, /r/askfeminists decides that maybe it's not rape- and some even go so far to argue that she didn't enjoy it so he probably raped her since "he was the aggressor."

Now let's just look at the details: if a 12 year old girl came on to a n 18 year old guy, he has a responsibility to say no because she's too young to consent. It doesn't matter if she puts herself onto him, he needs to leave the scenario. It doesn't matter that she was the aggressor, she was somebody who lacked the ability to consent to sex.

If a drunk guy comes onto a girl, she has the responsibility to say no. It doesn't matter that he was the aggressor, he was somebody who lacked the ability to consent to sex.

Well... if you accept the nonsense definitions that feminists bring forward.

Is anybody surprised another feminist ideal is inconsistent with itself?

The answer, of course, is never be alone with a woman. They represent a legal liability in any and every scenario.

That's not really realistic advice, and I personally enjoy being around women. But at least you've been warned.

56

UPVOTES

Laura M Doyle, of Surrendered Wife and Surrendered Single, is doing an AMA on RPW June 3rd, and we're giving away her new book: "First, Kill All the Marriage Counselors: Modern Day Secrets to Being Desired, Cherished and Adored for Life?"

30 May 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

The title is a handful, so here it is again:

First, Kill All the Marriage Counselors: Modern Day Secrets to Being Desired, Cherished and Adored for Life?

Laura Doyle is releasing her new book in stores on June 2nd, and doing an AMA right here on RPW on June 3rd. So in anticipation of this, we're doing a drawing and giving away three free copies - courtesy of Larua Doyle.

So the rules are simple, I'm putting this into contest mode. Post a reply to this thread, and we'll be drawing three random users in this thread from a hat. Winners will be announced after the AMA.

Accounts must be more than a month old to qualify and must have contributed to RPW before today. This contest is only for regular users of RPW.

Good luck!

Edit: Forgot to add, entry ends at 11:59pm June 2nd.

34

UPVOTES

Laura Doyle's new book drawing winners...

4 June 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

And we've pulled three subscribers out of a hat and we have our winners. Congratulations...

- /u/liphyx
- /u/KlaiFrai
- /u/IceCreamnCakenCake

You're our winners!

You'll be hearing from either myself or Laura Doyle with your free copies of :

First, Kill All the Marriage Counselors: Modern Day Secrets to Being Desired, Cherished and Adored for Life?

311

UPVOTES

Verify your username on Puerarchy

11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We have always had a backup plan in place in case something went wrong and we were kicked. I don't think it's going to happen, at least not yet, but in preparation do feel free to sign up for our mailing list

<http://www.puerarchy.com/mailing/?p=subscribe&id=1> and you can reserve your reddit username right now: <http://www.puerarchy.com/verify/index.php>

EDIT: VERIFY BUG FOUND, PLEASE RETRY NOW (as of 1:52 EST, the verification system is fixed. If you registered before this time, please do it again.)

The username verification uses Reddit authentication and we do not see/store your passwords.

The new passwords you choose for Puerarchy are salted and encrypted.

761

UPVOTES

Anti-Rape Program Teaching Women how to say "no" Halves Number of Campus Assaults

17 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Coming straight to you from nonsense land where you can't make this stuff up, a program was put into action that taught women how to say no to bad sexual experiences, and- guess what, the number of assaults went down. Kinda goes against the "teach men not to rape" mantra we keep hearing.

A program aimed at teaching women how to recognize dangerous situations and resist sexual coercion almost halved the risk of rape on three college campuses, a new study shows.

"We expected that providing women with knowledge and tools could increase their ability to defend themselves and reduce the severity of the sexual violence they experience," said study author Charlene Senn, a professor of psychology at the University of Windsor in Ontario, Canada. "We didn't expect the reductions to be as dramatic as they were. Only 22 young women need to receive the program for one completed rape to be averted."

So did men just give up on rape, or what changed?

The 12-hour resistance program, conducted in four sessions, taught women how to effectively assess the risk of sexual assault by men they knew, recognize the danger in coercive situations, get past emotional roadblocks to resist unwanted sexual behaviors and practice verbally resisting the behavior or actions. The program also spent two hours teaching self-defense strategies and included several hours bringing all the instruction together in a session on safe sex practices and effective communication about sex.

In other words, teaching women to avoid a bad situation and actually vocalize the word "no," when they don't want sex cleared up the rape cases. Is it possible that these guys were having sex with women because they thought the lack of no meant yes? Or maybe, just maybe, when you give women the tools to function as a fucking adult for once, they actually feel some semblance of responsibility for their actions.

My take on it? Women who were taught that avoiding rape was their responsibility took ownership over their own decisions, accepting that unfortunate or awkward sex wasn't rape because they could've said "no" at any time.

It was the leftist culture of nonsense that crippled women's decision making capabilities by telling them that they are responsible for zero percent of their actions, and that any resulting consequences must be the fault of the man in the situation. Of course everything's rape, when you're an object with no agency, just having life happen around you and to you. When you can't say no, even wanted sex is rape.

Fucking retards.

<http://health.usnews.com/health-news/articles/2015/06/10/anti-rape-program-halved-number-of-campus-assaults-study>

1,028
UPVOTES

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Feminism has long maintained that men's interests are entirely and always misogyny, and now we can see the long-game play out.

New Zealand just passed a bill that would make sexist comments online a punishable offense:

After it passed by a 116-to-5 vote in New Zealand's parliament, Gareth Hughes, one of the four Greens MPs to vote against the bill, said it was overly broad and “risks limiting our freedom of expression”.

NZ Labour said it was “wedged” by the NZ government: while some of the bill was “worthy of discussion” the law has “deeply worrying” elements.

The bill covers posts that are racist, sexist, or show religious intolerance, along with hassling people over disability or sexual orientation.

Wouldn't be so bad in principle, if we didn't have a social movement hellbent on labelling all of men's interests "sexist."

And here we have it, just another shining example of women trying to invade and colonize a male space. Rollo has a piece on this very thing, if you haven't read it yet, I recommend you do.

(The irony here is palpable: linking a voice for men automatically deleted my post and I have had to manually reapprove it because reddit has already banned the use of the website- for nothing more than being a male space)

What are the implications for reddit and TheRedPill? Well it's not good news, if Reddit wants to operate in New Zealand (which they probably will if they don't already)...

There's a safe harbour provision for Web sites, and here's where the free speech arises. A platform like Facebook or Twitter (if they bothered) can opt into the safe harbour – but only if they agree to remove allegedly offending material either on-demand or within the bill's 48-hour grace period.

Wait, what's this? In order to operate in New Zealand and comply with their laws, they need to agree to basically give feminists carte blanche on a delete button for anything they find distasteful.

Anybody who wishes to defend feminism as simply an equal-rights movement will need some seriously creative gymnastics to skirt around this issue. Even if you could feasibly say that feminists had nothing to do with the law that passed or it's enforcement, there is little you can do to speak against the fact that it is feminism, and feminism alone, that has been on the war path to making sure men's issues, and any form of men speaking with each other without female approval, are inherently misogyny.

I'm curious to see how this plays out. The fact is, as men, a lot of us already knew the feeling of having no belonging and no place for men's interests in the 90s. The internet was a life saver for many of us. If this takes place, you can be sure that men aren't going to roll over and take it again.

Don't believe the lies that feminists tell, that they aren't for censorship or that they're for equality. This will have real impacts and will interfere with the rights of men, and men alone.

309

UPVOTES

CH maxim: The feminist goal is removing all constraints on female sexuality while maximally restricting male sexuality - UofM Enforcing Positive Consent, restricting male sexuality to guilty until proven innocent.

6 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those of you following along at home, this should come as no surprise, but in the news recently is University of Minnesota declaring "positive consent" requirement for students.

The U's new rule, which is poised to take effect this month after a 30-day comment period, says that sex is OK only if both parties express consent through "clear and unambiguous words or actions." Absent that, it would fit the U's definition of sexual assault.

So far, the plan has prompted little dissent at the U. But nationally, critics have derided such policies as absurd and dangerous, particularly when it comes to protecting the rights of the accused.

"Once that accusation has been made, it's somehow up to the accused person to prove they did have consent," said Robert Shibley, executive director of the Foundation for Individual Rights in Education (FIRE), a civil liberties group in Philadelphia. "What that means is that they're guilty until proven innocent."

<http://www.startribune.com/university-of-minnesota-to-adopt-affirmative-consent-rule/311650821/>

Anybody who has been here a while is aware of Chateau Heartiste's maxim:

"The feminist goal is removing all constraints on female sexuality while maximally restricting male sexuality"

This is just puts the ball that much further down the field.

Each and every feminist goal, plan, action, or legislation is a means to this end: to limit male sexuality and open the maximum amount of opportunity and option for female sexuality.

How much are women going to suffer for this new policy opposed to men?

The question you need to wonder is: was campus rape really an issue? The fact is, it really isn't that big of an issue. But here we have institutionalized rule that limits male sexuality in favor of female.

Combine that with the violence against women act, the dulith model, no fault divorce laws, family courts that award women custody, and laws that make it easier for women in any given field but not men..

And you've got yourself a sexual strategy optimized for women.

Edit: Heartiste Link: <https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2014/02/05/study-finds-the-foul-source-of-feminism/>

368

UPVOTES

On platitudes, imperatives, and unsolicited advice

13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

One of the defining characteristics of the red pill has been discussion of social theories that buck mainstream culture, things that sometimes highlight the ugly underside of human behavior.

That discussion has been a core staple of our content here and has helped countless men find an identity and purpose in this culture.

Some of those discussions have been along the lines of discussion of what female hypergamy is, Briffault's law, and various other gender politics. I'm always very interested when I see content that puts a new perspective on a behavior or interaction that I haven't considered before.

We've analyzed female behavior through the lens of female solipsism, we've discussed women's behavior with other women, we've discussed the feminine imperative and the lengths women will go to when given opportunity.

But one thing that I've always steered the sub away from was becoming a seddit-style self-help board full of platitudes and unsolicited advice.

Don't get me wrong, if somebody asks "what would you do in this scenario" share your strategy. If you have a life strategy that you think brings good results, by all means share it.

But if the title of your post is an imperative statement, don't post it. Just don't.

Feel free to give us your theories, why you believe certain actions will maximize certain outcomes. But don't give unsolicited, feel-good advice.

The fact is, most guys don't come here to be told what to do. They come here for raw knowledge on sexual behaviors so they can decide what they want to do themselves.

Just today, I have removed a handful from our top list a series of submissions- while they may have some quality information, they're imperatives and they read like platitudes.

Yes, of course, I'm going to do more things selfishly than before now that I'm a priority in my life. But this isn't Eat. Pray. Love.

The article you should have posted was an analysis of how women manage to be prioritized in our minds- both by culture and biology, and how to counteract the effects. Not "do it for you." Doing it for yourself is a shortcut that skips the underlying theory on why it's effective. Of course it's good advice, but we're here to learn how to come to these conclusions ourselves.

If you want to post something along these lines, you better have a thorough analysis to back it up. No more "it just makes things better when you're selfish, ya know?" These posts are short and offer little value, and will be removed.

A list of removed titles from just today:

- Do it for yourself.
- Raise Yourself.
- Rid yourself of the "One Size Fits All" mentality
- Travel alone.
- Go out alone.
- Become the Monster
- Stop voicing your opinions.
- Ignore the "other guys" shit test

Before you post, ask yourself: Is this a discussion of fundamental human behavior that will help others decide how to act? Or is it instructions on how to act?

909
UPVOTES

How the Feminine Imperative is Destroying Reddit... on Purpose

15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

While I don't much care for the drama taking place in the greater reddit, we just recently saw a new announcement from our new CEO letting us know that we've just traded one master for another, and free speech is on the chopping block in favor of making reddit a safer, cleaner environment, absent the dark underbelly that erodes reddit's morals.

I thought it would be worth while to analyze what's going on here, because it's actually very relevant to what we study here at TRP.

Those of you unfamiliar with the term "Feminine Imperative," it basically boils down to this (borrowed from Rollo's blog):

The Feminine Imperative is the presumption of a feminine reality. It is a pervasive set of memes and conventions which shift the ownership of women's personal liabilities for their sexual strategy to men.

It is this very imperative that defines the mainstream culture we live in today, shifting criticism and critique away from females and their strategy, and imposing values on men.

Looking at today's culture, just the discussion of female sexual strategy labels our board as women haters and sexists. Our entire political system is built around appeasing women and their made-up threats- the rape hysteria, the wage gap.

You are either found in accordance with the feminine imperative, or you are found committing political suicide.

It's the effect that produces these following nuggets:

- If he cheats on her, he's an asshole. If she cheats on him, it was because he was an asshole.
- If she has no-strings-attached sex with him, she's expressing her sexuality. If he has sex with her and won't commit, he's a asshole who used her.
- If a man and woman are both drunk and have sex, he raped her.

All of these are "true" by social convention. It's obvious when you look for it, but it's "true" because most people aren't looking for it.

Rollo often refers to this as "the matrix" and it's where we've gotten our name "the red pill" from, which is breaking free from the feminine imperative to understand what is really taking place.

We ask ourselves, in what way do these views and beliefs help us? And we discover that they don't.

In the 90's there was an extreme push in our culture for men to get in touch with their softer side, to embrace feelings and focus on equality and communication with women. We were taught that the best way to attract a woman is to be open and honest and tell them how we feel. Don't be the macho asshole, be the underdog nice guy who understands your feelings. Anybody who wants to deny that would have at least two decades of movies and television shows to answer for.

The reasoning in our minds was that women were looking for this new version of masculinity- any why wouldn't we believe it? Feminism spent a lot of time convincing us that women were oppressed, and that it was men and masculinity keeping them down. So we believed them and did what they wanted.

And it created this world of peter pan boys who didn't grow up and needed a website to teach them what the hell being a man actually is.

This is the Feminine Imperative. And it survives and thrives off of two factors that I can think of:

1. It utilizes the male's proclivity for wanting to comply with or help women in need in an effort to win her favor and have sex.
2. It tirelessly breaks into male spaces to make sure number one can take place.

The feminine imperative cleverly disguises itself as morality, so once broken into a male space, it uses these mechanisms to inject feminine values and use social norms (or shaming) to try to temper the discourse and modify the tone.

From Rollo's Male Space:

Men unaccustomed to having women in their midst generally react in two ways; According to their proper feminized conditioning, they embrace the opportunity to impress these 'trailblazing' women (hoping to be found worthy of intimacy) with their enthusiastic acceptance of, and identification with, their feminine overseer(s), or they become easy foils of an "out moded" way of thinking that the new 'in-group' happily labels them with.

There is no coincidence that the new politically correct movement, and social justice warriors, and feminists all overlap. They all have one thing in common- they are to appease women above all.

And the end goal is easy to spot. When discussion is open and free, the danger that takes place is a new cultural morality that may take hold in a portion of the population. This is a direct threat to the feminine imperative. The very discussion of sexual strategy (and women) leads us to discover that most mainstream values and ideas are actually nothing more than a cover for women's behavior, and this type of discussion can only lead to less compliance by men, and ultimately disrupt the freedom that women have for their own sexual strategy (hypergamy).

So they tone police and frame it as morality, but make no mistake the end goal is to prevent discussion from happening that does not conform to the feminine imperative. Because the very discussion is a threat. Knowledge is a threat.

Interestingly enough, the administrators at Reddit may very well be unknowing pawns in this battle. Because we know the feminine imperative frames itself socially as morality, the admin and CEO aren't necessarily making moves because advertisers are actually putting pressure on them, but instead they believe they are making moves because they are moral and right, and that if the feminine imperative is to be believed, the business and advertisers will be quick to jump on board. Because it is right.

How could people be so lead astray? We already know that a number of red pillers (or those at the red pill apologetic center purplepilldebate) try to pay lip service to this feminine imperative. I see it time and time again, in quotes like:

"I agree with most of TRP, there's some good stuff there... I just don't know why they have to go so far into that hate stuff..."

or

"There's some good advice there, but it's ruined by how much hatred and anger there is..."

You know what you'll never catch me doing? Denouncing the anger, the fringe, or any of the extreme elements of The Red Pill. You know why? Because it serves absolutely no purpose but to appease the feminine imperative. And once that sneaky little bitch gets her foot in the door, that's when the race to the bottom begins.

I embrace the anger, and every single dirty fringe idea we have on here. Not because I agree with everybody, no. I embrace it because it is our strength and protection against the feminine imperative. I embrace it because tone _____ policing and topic policing is a race to the bottom. I embrace it because either it belongs here, or we perish as a forum.

People have asked me time and time again if we can remove some of the "dirtier" elements of trp, or change the language to be more palatable to the greater reddit. I have always, and will always say: NO.

Reddit is in a race to the bottom. When they decided the first round of unsightly or distasteful subreddits needed to go, they started the countdown. The feminine imperative will never be satisfied, and will continue its work until there is nothing left. Every time reddit cuts off what they believe to be the worst 10%, a new worst 10% is created.

And that's exactly what the feminine imperative does.

If you haven't already, you may reserve your reddit username on Puerarchy for use on our off-site backup board in case of emergency. We have no plans to move to the new forums unless we are being shut down, but you're welcome to register now! <http://www.puerarchy.com/verify/index.php>

320

UPVOTES

Bookmark Our Offsite Backup

16 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Folks, Don't forget to bookmark our offsite backup: Puerarchy.com

If you haven't reserved your reddit name yet, you can do so here: <http://www.puerarchy.com/verify/index.php>

I do not think we are going to be removed from reddit, but there's a content policy AMA coming up in an hour or two, so I wanted to just let everybody know in the worst case scenario our plan is this:

Announcement will be made on puerarchy.com

Backups and archives have been made of our content.

A new forum has been planned and is almost ready to go live. You will be able to keep your reddit username.

We will not be launching these forums unless we get banned.

We are not trading one master for another, so no we will not be joining one of the reddit alternatives. We will only want to make this jump once... ever. So if it happens, it will happen where we control it.

Thanks.

130

UPVOTES

New York Magazine's cuckold probably a spinster's hoax.

24 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Via Heartiste:

She didn't present it as an issue of feminism to me, but after much soul-searching about why the idea of my wife having sex with other men bothered me I came to a few conclusions: Monogamy meant I controlled her sexual expression, and, not to get all women's-studies major about it, patriarchal oppression essentially boils down to a man's fear that a woman with sexual agency is a woman he can't control. We aren't afraid of their intellect or their spirit or their ability to bear children. We are afraid that when it comes time for sex, they won't choose us. This petty fear has led us as a culture to place judgments on the entire spectrum of female sexual expression: If a woman likes sex, she's a whore and a slut; if she only likes sex with her husband or boyfriend, she's boring and lame; if she doesn't like sex at all, she's frigid and unfeeling. Every option is a trap.

This paragraph is the crone giveaway. A bitter, lonely cat lady wrote this article as a hoax to fellate her scorched ego and lash out at all the men who pass her by or use her up. True, the lowliest of lowly men COULD have written such excrescence, but the way to bet is that an insol spinster with delusions of vengeance and... sexual agency (heh)... fantasized this whole scenario into existence. She hits too many jargony femcunt talking points too squarely on the whiskered nose. Madonna/whore double standard? Check. Alpha fux/beta bux strategy justification? Check. Anti-judgmentalism? Check. Patriarchal oppression? Check. Dismissing as cultural baggage the real, primal, biologically-founded fear men have for cheating wives who might get pregnant by another man and foist their bastard spawn on them as their own? Checkold.

Read More

353

UPVOTES

A note on the backup forums

6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Since there were a lot of concerns, I will again clarify our plans on our backup forums.

- We won't be moving unless we have to.
- The reservation form is on puerarchy.com but due to demand, the forums will be hosted at our new domain: <https://forums.red> (Special thanks to donations from /u/-Anteros- and others from the IRC)
- The backup forums will not be hosted on voat or any other reddit clone. We intend on making a jump once, and only once. It would be irresponsible for us to trade one master for another, and frankly I don't trust anybody with the future of TRP that isn't our mod team.
- Monetization Policy: Our hope and goal is that the new servers will be entirely supported by donations. We are still considering the best ways to do so, but our plan mostly consists of allowing users to donate or sponsor the boards for some level of recognition within the community. We may also try google ads, but honestly those aren't terribly profitable and we just need enough to run the boards. However, there are a few additional details:
 - We also plan on allowing users to "tip" other users/bloggers to show their support for their contributions. We don't want it to be a 'reddit gold' scenario, but an actual way to send money. We're still trying to find the best way to do so and preserve anonymity.
 - We will never monetize the main forum line up, the order of the posts, featuring posts, or removing posts. These will remain entirely community driven (so long as they meet our content guidelines).
 - If we make so many donations that we get filthy rich, I'm going to buy the mods the best whiskey we can afford. They fucking deserve it.
 - We really do plan on spending it on continued operating costs. If you don't trust us, don't donate. I think the mod team here has demonstrated over the past few years exactly where our hearts are on this matter. If you think this has been for profit, then you've got no idea just how many raw hours each mod has put into keeping this place going. The new forums alone have been a labor of love, and I don't expect to be compensated for the time. (And on that note, if you're wondering why we're re-inventing the wheel with our forums, I'll explain below).
- The puerarchy reservation forum is not SSL. If you don't like this, you can wait. Our new forums are SSL protected. The database passwords are individually salted and encrypted (one-way-hased). You will be able to reserve your reddit name or make a new name if you choose. Your current reddit username will be protected from being registered by other users if it appears in our archives. (We have currently about 23,588 most active subscribers archived).

So why are we reinventing the wheel on these forums?

First of all, the reddit codebase is open source, and we actually started with that. We found it large, bulky, and too many changes needed to be made to get it where we wanted it.

We had the goal of improving the mod tools, making moderation easier, and making the archiving of our old forums simple. After much deliberation and man hours mucking around with the reddit code and a few different forum scripts, the decision was made to do it from scratch.

We have security as a topmost priority. Which is why we are involving a few different members who work in development making sure that this is secure. We will be rigorously testing the scripts as we develop for any security holes, csrf attacks, injection attacks, and the like. Our database is salted and encrypted. Your security is number one.

We have been hard at work over the past few months making sure this happens so that the future of this community is secure. We do so because the team (myself included) care greatly for the outcome of this community.

Just a few days ago I was chatting with another mod, and it occurred to both of us that TRP wasn't just to share information with others, it was for our own sanity, to find other like minded individuals. I know it's saved my life, and I suspect many share that feeling. So let's continue to do what we do best, and rest assured that we have backups in place, and a lot of work is going on behind the scenes.

Here are some stats:

- We currently have 252,255 comments archived.
- We have the top 1,000 posts archived from /r/theredpill, /r/asktrp, /r/redpillwomen, and /r/ThankTRP
- We have 23,588 of the most active subscribers archived
- Here are some screenshots of the new forums:

<http://a.trp.red/preview>

<http://a.trp.red/rpw>

<http://a.trp.red/reply>

<http://a.trp.red/discussion>

193

UPVOTES

If you're a guy, and you're here, read this.

12 August 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Guys have terrible advice for women. I see it time and time again, and you're all terrible shit at this.

There's a reason. Guys rationalize bad decisions and past decisions as "preferences." I won't dig up the quote right now, but Rollo made a very good point to this theme: Guys will have a preference for whatever worked before. If nerdy chicks show interest in a guy, he will gain a preference for nerdy chicks.

This isn't because nerdy chicks are necessarily sexier or more feminine, but because guys come from an essentially needy position. A position of no abundance.

On TRP we focus on abundance mentality to try to subvert this natural disadvantage, but it's true. Guys will never, ever, have as many options as women.

So when I hear a guy tell a woman, "No, you keep doing what you're doing, I like a woman with a little spunk.."

This guy doesn't have a preference for "spunk." No, he's an idiot who is so thirsty he'll take any woman he can get, and he'll accept her self-proclaimed handicaps as features.

He'll think to himself, "gosh, she's bitchy, rude, and abrasive..... well, I like a strong independent woman."

And that's his rationalization. Because he's a thirsty fucking idiot.

But when they start preaching about their preferences as though it's going to be useful advice for women, then we've got a problem.

And we do have this problem here. Guys think they know what good advice for women is.

Women, if you take this advice- "i find book smarts to be very attractive" I promise you will waste a considerable amount of time and energy doing something that doesn't really boost your SMV. Oh sure, some guys might say they have the preference, but ultimately, book smarts aren't actually sufficient to create attraction, nor required for said attraction to exist. Guys will not assist you in actual SMV building. Because, guys want to fuck you anyway, and will basically accept you as you are. But that doesn't help your chances with higher quality guys.

If you're a dude, and you think you should be chiming in, read the fucking side bar. Then read it again. Then don't chime in. Because it's unlikely you've got much to contribute.

If you're a guy and you contribute and it's not gender neutral (that is, none of that "as a guy..." bullshit), then it's out of here, and you're out of here. No warnings.

257

UPVOTES

What makes men more extreme?

12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It would appear to me almost as though it were a parody if I stumbled across our little corner of the web before knowing anything of the red pill and discovered people speaking of "leftism" and "thought police." And yet even as laugh at how paranoid it sounds to consider that there is a cultural war on men and that there are those looking to police thought, there are victims and real examples here on this very board.

I am always surprised to hear that our culture seeks to silence thoughts and ideas that it does not like because it finds the ramifications of these conclusions to be too dangerous for the common good of society.

It surprises me because it's not necessarily effective.

For instance, refusing service to racists. Letting them know you disagree with their views and refusing to do business with them.

The thought process must be that people are afraid that racism might spread. By which means? I can only surmise they think that the ideas behind racism are so true, or true enough, that people will be tricked into thinking the ideas have merit.

So the only option is to block the ideas from the start. A conversation cannot take place because this means that an extremist group has gained some foothold or traction. The very conversation itself is demonized in this context.

But what's the intended goal? To dismantle the power of extremists by making their lives difficult?

What if the extremists are specifically upset about how difficult their lives are? How effective is this?

There is no doubt in my mind that today's war on men relies on keeping men from organizing. There is no greater threat to our government and to those who hold power than men who organize. Women can organize because they want to grow government. But when men do it, revolutions happen.

But how effective is it to poke a beehive?

Just today I saw news that our very own /u/bsutansalt was unable to advertise men's meetups on meetup because by default this sort of meetup is considered wrong, hateful and extreme.

This user was unable to get his men's rights t-shirts printed by multiple companies because they were deemed offensive and hateful, and extreme.

Roosh has been met with extreme aggression and protest as he tours various countries and states to peacefully meet with other men and discuss men's interests. The lies thrown his way are the only way to help cement his scarlet letter: 'R' for Rapist.

Our sub itself is under constant attack for being considered wrong, hateful, and extreme.

And there are countless other stories on /r/theredpill as well as /r/mensrights showing how men are systemically told "no" for having their own interests and ideas that are not approved or stamped by the thought police.

Why would that make us any less extreme?

If their goal was to show us our ideas were wrong, then shutting us down only makes us right. If we were wrong, we would pose no risk to our culture. We are the figurative butt of this culture's joke, and they are doing their best to keep from letting us in on it.

If men get together and talk, then they compare notes, they might realize what a raw deal they're getting. And we might stop supporting the system that does nothing but take from us. And... we can't have that.

You know what makes men more extreme? When they are not given valid arguments or reason, but instead told "no." When they have nothing left to lose. When they discover their theories validated by everybody around them.

The very fact that /r/feminism has a safe place to talk, but /r/theredpill constantly worries about when we're going to be on the chopping block- this is the inherent sexism of our culture.

Even our speech must be labeled hate speech so nobody accidentally listens. What would happen if we made sense?

There is ZERO criteria by which our speech should be considered hate speech. But arguing that misses the point of this war. They know it's not hate speech, and that's why it scares them.

If the world's goal was to reduce those they consider extremists, they've done a piss poor job. TRP would've shriveled and died long ago if we weren't so fucking right.

12

UPVOTES

John Doyle, husband of Laura Doyle, author of The Surrendered Wife, is doing an AMA today at 2PM Eastern Time

18 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

10

UPVOTES

Help Wanted: Needed archive script, public facing

18 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm looking to make a script that has the same features as archive.today. It occurs to me that archive.today has saves of almost all of our posts' links. I'm worried about keeping eggs in one basket, so I want to host one myself.

Anybody have any good downloadable scripts, or want to write one (php, perl)..

It needs to allow people to submit links to archive, so it should be secure (no javascript and such).

Thanks

371

UPVOTES

[Mod] The Red Pill is Sexual Strategy

29 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Apparently a few of you got it into your heads that you've decided you single-handedly get to determine a new subject for the future of the forum.

So Apparently I need to waste time writing a sticky because those people couldn't be bothered to read the first fucking paragraph of the sidebar.

For those of you too fucking god damned lazy to do it, here you are:

The Red Pill: Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

Wait, I thought TheRedPill was simply male self-improvement?

This is a pervasive concern troll that I've been seeing a lot recently.

No, the red pill is a discussion of sexual strategy. That encompasses everything related to sexual strategy. That encompasses learning game, learning about the nature of men and women, learning the nature of communication, exploiting this knowledge, and building yourself into the version of you with the highest chances of sex.

Trying to reframe this as simply "self-improvement" is kowtowing to serve the feminine imperative. I don't care if sexual strategy sounds bad, or if that makes us misogynists.

I see it a lot on other subs, where guys try to make this subreddit seem more palatable to outsiders- "oh no, man, we're not really misogynists, we are just working towards self improvement." As though putting that positive twist on it changes the fact that we're actually talking about sexual dynamics, hypergamy, AWALT, and Machiavellian forms of communication that take control of frame and exploit human psychology in ways that society would consider to be "wrong".

Sure, self-improvement is one aspect of our discussion. But make no mistake, the sort of self-improvement we're doing here isn't the kind that satisfies our feminized culture. We aren't just working out our biceps and calling it a day. We're working out our minds, we're gorging on information that is labelled "hate" for lack of a better criticism against it. We're taking in information that is so effective when utilized that the entirety of the feminine imperative has done everything in its' power to delegitimize it and us by labeling us everything under the sun between extremist misogynists to neckbeard virgin losers.

When you start deciding that you don't like certain content because it doesn't fit your narrow definition of "self-improvement" ask yourself who you are trying to satisfy with such a stupid self-censoring.

We will not be changing the subject of this sub.

We will not be entertaining concern trolling.

Apparently you need me to spell this out for you, despite the fact that it's on the sidebar.

If the content of your comment or post is regarding or policing the tone or direction of our sub, you are concern trolling. There is no room for that here.

Obviously this came up because there are some people who really really dislike /u/gaylubeoil. I get it. You can't just see content you dislike and leave it alone.

But here are your options:

- Post content you want to see.
- Downvote and move on.

- Attack his ideas, not his person.

Here are not your options:

- Comment on the direction of the sub.
- Decide that in your 3 weeks you've been here, the sub is suddenly in "decline" and you need to make everybody aware of it.
- Attack his person, not his ideas.
- Leave utterly unconstructive comments that don't address the subject matter.

If you don't seem to understand these rules, /r/theredpill isn't for you.

There are no exceptions to this.

EDIT: Just wanted to make a quick edit- while this post still applies, it looks like we are being brigaded by subredditdrama who have been posting a lot of this garbage. Nevertheless, follow the rules. That is all.

221

UPVOTES

Reading comprehension, or the lack thereof...

30 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Somehow, with my latest sticky where I re-explained why we weren't using the nomenclature "self-improvement" for the subreddit, everybody went off half cocked and assumed that somehow that meant the discussion shouldn't include self improvement as a topic of discussion.

I have to assume that everybody commenting either has no reading comprehension or it is an organized influx of users from elsewhere rushing in to purposefully misinterpret what I said to clog up the works with nonsense.

So instead of sending individual bans, I'm posting a public comment right here:

If your direct response to me was something along the lines of "but I liked talking about self-improvement" then you have just received a one-day ban.

During this 24-hours, you now have the goal of self-improving, starting with your reading comprehension. I suggest reading the sidebar.

I'll make it easy for you, directly from my post:

Sure, self-improvement is one aspect of our discussion. But make no mistake, the sort of self-improvement we're doing here isn't the kind that satisfies our feminized culture. We aren't just working out our biceps and calling it a day. We're working out our minds, we're gorging on information that is labelled "hate" for lack of a better criticism against it.

To re-iterate:

There will be no change to /r/theredpill's focus of discussion.

That's right. It will stay exactly the way it's been since we started. A discussion on sexual strategy.

To review on concern trolling:

A person who posts in the guise of "concern," to disrupt dialogue or undermine morale by pointing out that posters and/or the site may be losing quality, changing, or appear offensive to others. They point out problems that don't really exist to create an illusion to others that the problems exist. The intent is to derail, stifle, control, the dialogue.

And my favorite definition by /u/whisper:

Basically, someone who assumes you are sane, tries to understand your argument in the most compelling interpretation he can, and then tries to refute it, is a debater.

Someone who assumes you are insane, or tries to find weak interpretations of your arguments that will be easy to refute, or reifies metaphors, is a troll.

If you go off half cocked on these and display an inability to read or comprehend what is written, I will assume you are either an intentional troll, or a half-wit.

37

UPVOTES

HTML/CSS Designers wanted- Apply within

14 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Working on a new project for TRP and looking for a handful of template designs using css and html (and can include images). Anybody with design experience who wants to lend a hand, the more the merrier.

Leave a note here and I'll PM you details.

45

UPVOTES

Aspiring writer? Content producer? Really clever twitterer?

22 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

166
UPVOTES

[Mod] Spam policy and the shameless self promotion issue

8 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

So we've noticed and got some complaints about GLO posting tshirt links on his stuff.

We get it, you think it's tasteless. Now shut up about it.

As always, the moderator policy on spam has been: REMOVE ON SIGHT.

If we see posts that are blatant spam we will remove them.

But quality content is a different story. Since the inception of this sub, people have posted and linked to their personal blogs where you can buy their stuff or donate all the time.

GLO doesn't use a blog, he just posts here. So he threw a tshirt at the bottom. Big deal.

The moderator position is that while it's a bit shameless, it doesn't break any rules.

If you don't like it, downvote and move on. Maybe send him a message. Don't bitch and moan about it.

Think about how he got to this position. He clearly put in a lot of time and effort gaining the respect of many members here. He's spent countless hours coaching individuals on skype and in the chat room. He has offered entertainment and insight to the sub. Clearly, people enjoy his work enough that his posts tend to get upvoted. Instead of denouncing his work because he put a t-shirt link at the bottom of his posts, you should wonder how he got popular and wonder if maybe, just maybe, he deserves the respect that he garnered, and at the very least you should cut him a little fucking slack.

GLO, like every other member, is subject to the rules here. That means if he posts spam, it will get removed just like anybody else.

202
UPVOTES

The Travel-Widow, or why travel for the single woman is a red flag

10 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've always known a type of woman I used to unofficially name "travel-women" who you could always spot and you always wanted to stay away from. Now I have a name for them - the travel widow.

You can spot them as they'd speak as though the present company and scenery was always inferior to the far off lands they'd travel to. I always remember that feeling in my gut, the fact that you were looking at a girl who had had a taste of ambrosia and none of the old american chop suey was going to do it for her ever again. You could just tell by the look in her eyes that her head was in another place.

She'd refer to the US as "the states." I knew that I'd be headed back to "the states" next week.

On facebook they share exotic photos of neat new places, every week it seemed, a new biome, a new background, a new something.

These were women I would avoid like the plague. It's not that I knew they were sluts, but it came with the territory, and - much like an alpha widow whose heart can no longer be captured because her mind remembers a high that may be larger than life, and may never be achievable again - the travel widow will not be captured. She will chase that high, whether or not she'll ever reach it again.

From our very own TempestTCup:

It's the excitement [of traveling] that does a lot of the damage, and if she regularly escapes her reality and trades it for a new exotic environment with new exotic people, she sort of gets addicted to those highs, and her normal life seems even more boring in comparison.

This is coupled with the fact that traveling is so easy; it requires nothing from her except money and time. It's not like she is working hard towards a goal that will actually enrich her as a person; she is merely jumping on a plane and then when there she looks around, takes pictures, and eats. It requires nothing from her mentally, much like how easy it is to get sex from that hot guy at the bar.

Women also seem to think that travel makes them interesting, when in reality it's the places they go that are interesting; the woman herself is still the same woman who jumped on that plane. She thinks that she has accomplished something, when in reality, all she did was jump on that plane.

So as not to shamelessly steal the whole article, Read the whole thing here.

112
UPVOTESIf you don't take full responsibility for every soul that shares your gender, you are a guilty misogynist.

21 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

CNN - Kevin Powell, an author of some sort of book detailing the virtues of brainwashing and newspeak for boys and men, writes an essay on his journey to sit down and discuss with college boys what sort of rapists they all are. The results are, well, what you expect.

He basically determines that masculinity today is in a crisis because it's just so, well, boyish. Full of aggression and rambunctiousness, it needs to be curtailed to appease the feminine overlords, because, well, because it just seems unsightly to be masculine.

My task: work with young men on campus and get them to rethink what manhood means, in a way that would lead, hopefully, over time to their viewing women and girls as their equals.

Classic self-righteous authoritarian approach, lead with the premise that both women are equal in some way and that boys are apparently failing to understand that, so they need to be retrained to understand that, instead of given some sort of qualifying reason why they might come to that conclusion themselves.

It would be just as effective to go to boys and say "Hey, don't eat that chicken. Don't you know, chicken is your equal!"

But, I can't seem to have a conversation with a chicken...

I SAID EQUALS

But, most chickens don't even have hobbies, and the few that do aren't hobbies that I would ever have in common with them

I SAID EQUALS NOW LEARN IT

What evidence should change my mind? What has caused me to be so wrong about this?

EQUALS

The funny part is, his work isn't even that hard, thanks to feminist indoctrination, most college aged boys already agree with the premise that women are their equals. Nobody needs to be told, we all understand it, even if it's not empirically true. I mean, these boys probably never ponder why it is that "netflix" could even be considered a hobby, and why women chatter on about absolute inane bullshit when they get together. They just accept that they're somehow exactly the same and that these differences are nothing but their imagination.

Sighs of relief and phrases such as "leader," "protector," "caretaker," "responsible," "head of the house" fell from their mouths. Each session, I told them that they had just described my single mother and most women I've encountered in my life. These young men would grow quiet.

This is just utter nonsense. Leader (and head of the house) and follower are mutually exclusive. You can't simply have everybody leading if nobody is following. If every woman you've met were leaders, then by definition every man (or enough men) you've met must be followers, or nobody was leading at all, in which case you haven't met any leaders. It seems to me the conclusion you must reach from this is that women need to be taught that men are equals, why else would women have such a superiority complex?

I then asked them to name at least 10 women in American history. The usual list: Rosa Parks, Betsy Ross, Hillary Clinton, Helen Keller and Florence Nightingale, and they would inevitably stall. Pressed to tell me something about each of these women, only a handful could ever answer that question. When you don't know something about a group or people, any people, people different from you, it becomes very easy not to honor them as your equals, easy not to respect them, easy not to love them, easy not to see their lives as valuable as yours.

It has literally nothing to do with the fact that there are simply less notable women than there are men? I'd be hard pressed to name 10 white people who are good at basketball, but it's not because I don't like white people.

This is why when I think about manhood in our 21st-century context, I think instantly of mayhem, confusion, violence. These things have come in the form of one mass shooter after another, murdering people at work, on military bases, on college campuses, in grade schools. These things have come in the form of misogynistic comments from men as different in pedigree as billionaire presidential candidate Donald Trump and Grammy Award-winning rapper T.I. These things have come in the form of my travel as a speaker and activist, reading local newspaper stories of men and boys, more aggressively and brutally than ever, raping or killing women and girls, oftentimes their girlfriends or wives.

What fucking planet does he live on? We live in one of the safest societies in the history of our planet, with women enjoying the best protection and privilege ever known to mankind. And he thinks that men are violent anarchists? Why did these college boys sit down and listen to him instead of taping him up, drenching him in gasoline and lighting him up, if they are so dedicated to mayhem?

It is clear to me that manhood in this nation is in deep crisis, our growth stunted at epidemic proportions

If your measuring stick is how to become a perfect woman, then yes, manhood is in a crisis. Only a minor percentage of men have managed to grow tits, but we're working on it. Our growth is indeed stunted.

But back to reality, if we were to say that growth of men is actually stunted, then we do require a measuring stick, and this he completely fails to provide. Who is it that we are compared to? Is it women? It may clearly be so. Men simply cannot perform like women, for instance all those great founding mothers who fought for our countries independence. All those amazing female philosophers that gave us reason, and the great female mathematicians that gave us theorems to build upon. The great female physicists that gave us Newtonian physics and relativity. The great woman who risked her life to declare the earth round or the sun the center of the system!

When we brace ourselves for the next mass murder, we are quick to cite gun control and mental illness, but rarely do we ask, Why are the overwhelming majority of these mass shooters men?

It's interesting to note that in the same piece he tries to argue women are equal to men, he also argues for female superiority. Women are our equals! So why are men doing such a hard job living up to women's example?

He notes that men are committing mass murders, and this is actually a very interesting point that the media should investigate. Let's analyze this for a second:

These violent chumps leave manifestos detailing their frustration with their lack of success with women, or their heartbreak from the betrayal of the women they love, or their outright lack of social acceptance...

And Mrs. Powell here thinks the problem is that we haven't ostracized them enough?

BRILLIANT FUCKING DEDUCTION WATSON, now I can finally see why you think men are stunted. Because that's some of the worst logic I've ever seen.

I spent many restless nights pondering the irony of this part of my activism. I grew up as most heterosexual boys did: I played every sport possible. I learned early on the rite-of-passage of seeing girls as sexual objects, as playthings, as anything except my equal. I fought because boys were taught to fight, be rough, antagonistic, to never show weakness, not even to cry, at least not in public. I digested every kind of pop cultural icon one could name, on television, in movies, in books, in my beloved hip-hop culture, who represented the mighty male figure that armies of us were instructed we must become.

This behavior led to catastrophic results for me. I had no clue how to express a balance of emotions for many years: It was either thunderous silence or raw explosions of rage.

Now we see the problem, his unresolved issues are men's unresolved issues. If I didn't know any better I'd say this level of projection is only achievable by... women! Thank god he's aspired to such great heights.

I did not know how to give love to myself or women and girls, and by the time I got to college, I merely did what other young males on my campus did: I had sex as casually as I slipped on my jeans and sneakers, and often did not give much thought to the woman on the receiving end.

Whoops, he just put down his cards for all to see. Casual sex with women is wrong, because they need commitment. Now we can see his crusade for what it is.

Can't women enjoy casual sex? Yes. Is it wrong for them to do so without commitment? No, they're free to do what they want with their bodies.

Can a man enjoy casual sex? No, women are more than a series of holes, you misogynist fuck!

A double standard. And he's trying to sell it to us. It reminds me of a lobbyist on capitol hill... "What's good for big oil is good for the country..."

Finally, I have many men say to me that they respect women. Respect is not enough at this stage, even if you are not the kind of man who would ever call a woman the b word, or make disrespectful or derogatory declarations about what women and girls can and cannot do, or should and should not do. Even if you would never punch, kick, bite, spit on or fight a woman, or rape a woman, stab or shoot and murder a woman, you have men and boys in your family, in your community, in your fraternity or political group or spiritual institution, or in your workplace or places of play, who do or have done these things. And when you say nothing at all, you become just as guilty.

You heard it here, folks. You can't just respect women (as you would a man, sort of like an equal or something). No, you must take personal responsibility for every ~~black, jew,~~ white male, you are guilty of their crimes. Their crime, of course, being an underdeveloped woman who merely makes society function.

312

UPVOTES

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

/r/mensrights is pretty pissed off that this new documentary is call "The Red Pill" which admittedly was taken as our name because we believed it to be an accurate metaphor for learning the truth about gender politics.

When TRP was first created, men's rights was a lot more angry with a lot less political correctness. Over time it started trying to distance itself with the righteous anger, and started trying to appease the political correct culture we live in. At some point, it completely alienated men by trying to control the topics and language to first and foremost satisfy women in their fight against feminism.

We decided that we could represent male interests and not make a divide at the magic women-are-wonderful line that men's rights did.

We also saw the same effect happening on seduction, where the topics went from pulling chicks at a club to "leave her better than you found her..." The fuck?

So we created TRP.

MR wanted to both demonize feminism, while maintaining female superiority - as evidenced by their appeal to political correct language and kowtowing to feminist accusations of misogyny. That effectively disarms their argument as they're unwilling to consider the whole truth. They believe gender equality is possible if only people just cared about the men just a tad more.

I believe that men's rights and TRP and seduction has a lot of overlap, there's a reason we exist. Both MR and Seddit spent a lot of time trying to appease the feminist overlords with tone and language policing. We clearly needed a place that could openly discuss reality.

For instance, men's rights has no problem talking about divorce rape and how unfair it is. Red Pill has no problem talking about the hypergamy driving this effect.

How could MRAs possibly believe that divorce is initiated primarily by women, that robs men and gives free cash prizes to women, and not think - hey, maybe there's a reason this happens...

I'm not a red pill activist, though I do support Men's Rights Activists because some of what they fight for is just.

I don't believe red pill to be a political movement, rather I believe it to be a personal journey that each of us choose to take and live better because of it.

That all being said, I also enjoy chaos and there is no doubt in my mind that this documentary is more of a lampoon than a fair shake for men's rights. And I think it's time that the fellas over there realize that playing to feminism's hand is never going to pay off.

So if anybody has a spare dollar or two, you should fund the kickstarter. If you don't want to or don't like the idea, then don't. That's fine too.

That said, it's a movie with our name on it, and if they paint us as the worst misogynists in the world, well, I get a half chub just thinking about it.

The longer men's rights tries to distance themselves from actual men, the worse their movement will be.

383

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember 2015 Challenge

28 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Last year for the month of November, we challenged men to give up three vices for a month. They say that it takes just 21 days to form (or lose) a habit, and from those who participated last year, you'll remember that there's great satisfaction from achieving self-set goals, so let's get started on our 2015 #N3!

The Challenge

No Nothing November concentrated on giving up vices last year, but this year we're going to upgrade just a little bit. Let's take a look at the phrase No Nothing November- It's more than just giving up some vices.. in fact, that should be called Nothing November. But we're here to say no to nothing. So this year the challenge is:

- Give up Three Vices for a month.
- Take up One Daily activity for a month.

As we did last year, we want you to choose three vices you want to ditch for the month (and maybe for longer!) Some chose porn, some chose alcohol, and some chose /r/theredpill (bastards). Pick three vices or distractions that you want to remove from your life and kick them to the curb. If you pick alcohol or cigarettes, get them out of your house. If you pick porn, install that parental control software. If you picked /r/theredpill, close this window now.

Now for the new part of N3, making sure that no day is wasted, we say no to nothing. Pick an activity or chore that you want to make sure gets done daily. It can be big, or it can be small. Clean your apartment, make your bed, hit the gym (best option), approach at least 3 women a day, shave, work on your hobby project at least an hour a day. Whatever it is, it's time to pick it and make a real schedule to include it in your day.

Sit down with your calendar and figure out what time of the day you'll need to dedicate to your NoNothingSomething. Figure out Thanksgiving. If you are ditching alcohol or taking up the gym, there's no excuse for Thanksgiving. You must commit.

Track your progress

- Track on your personal blog, or
- Twitter, use hashtag #nonothingnovember or
- Use this subreddit to post your progress: /r/nonothingnovember

Start tracking your progress by announcing your goals. If you make a new post in /r/nonothingnovember you can use that thread to post updates as you go. If you use twitter, sticky your goals at the top of your page. Discuss how you plan to achieve these goals and what steps you're going to take to ensure that they happen.

Contest

Last year we made it a contest, but the format of this challenge doesn't really lend itself to contest modes, so this year we're doing it a little different.

Every day that you update your progress, update how many days you have completed the challenge. Yes, this requires the honor system. If you're using /r/nonothingnovember, you can edit your user flair on the top right corner of the subreddit by clicking "edit", selecting the first flair option [Days], and edit it to the number of days you've been successful.

At the end of the month, people who have the number 30+ in their flair and enough logs in their thread (or blog or twitter) to reasonably corroborate it will get a special 2015 #N3 badge next to their name in TRP.

If you cheat, then that badge will serve as a daily reminder that you did not complete the challenge, and that you dishonor those who have the badge by being a fraud.

We start November 1st So get your last drink, smoke, wank out of the way and get ready for

#NoNothingNovember

376

UPVOTES

[Mod] If you bitch and moan, I'm a throw you out.

5 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm not sure how more obvious it can be made, but just in case somebody here hasn't read the side bar yet, I encourage you to respond to this post and let me know so I can ban you as well.

The rules are very specific. NO CONCERN TROLLING

If you concern troll, you'll be kicked to the curb, no questions asked.

Recently there was a thread removal, and a subsequent witch hunt- oh no! the big bad mods removed a post, there's internet censorship afoot! We must rebel!

First of all, fucking right there's censorship. Think it's easy to keep things in line with idiots running amok posting what ever fucking reaction gifs and memes they want? HELL YES WE REMOVE POSTS. WE'VE ALWAYS BEEN PROUD OF THIS AND HAVE ALWAYS BEEN UP FRONT ABOUT IT.

If you want a place that stays on topic and strives to keep the signal to noise ratio at a good level, then you're going to embrace the censorship. Because that's what it's for.

But I'm taking it a step further, because apparently some new kids didn't get the memo on concern trolling. Sitting around, complaining about signal to noise, censorship, and complaining about the moderators who selflessly spend hours doing their jobs to give you ungrateful little twats a place to learn to man up, complaining specifically lowers signal and ramps up noise. You're the problem, asshats. Complaining like little school girls instead of picking up the slack like a man.

So, a fellow got his post removed temporarily while the moderators had a discussion about our view of marriage recommendations. The author of said post contacted us to find out what was what. And we explained what was going down and that his post could be reinstated once we were complete with our discussion.

What did he do? Started mouthing off to the mods like he owns the place.

So his post is in the trash bucket and it will never see the light of day no matter how good it might have been.

Then he posts a thread complaining that the big bad mods took away his wittle posty and boo hoo...! Yes, that's right we took it down, and after he insulted the entire mod team he was banned. And I am now going through that thread with 95 comments, and every single person who is in there concern trolling instead of contributing quality content that actually helps the subreddit is also getting a ban. No warnings. You're out of here.

What's our view on marriage recommendations?

Well ultimately, getting married is a personal choice, you can do it or don't. It's your life.

However, if somebody started posting threads saying "You should let yourself go, eat junk food, and just be yourself" we would rightfully delete the fuck out of that thread.

So if somebody comes in here recommending marriage as a successful life strategy, we need to really consider whether that's advice we want passed around as "TRP" advice. While some people may choose to take the risk, and others here have already taken the plunge (perhaps before swallowing the pill), discussion on married game and LTR game is not out of bounds by any stretch.

But let's make one thing clear. In western culture, choosing to get married is handing a loaded gun to your woman and asking her to point it at your head.

From Dalrock's Threatpoint:

In the literature on the economics of the family there has been growing consensus on the need to take bargaining and distribution within marriage seriously. Such models of the family rely on a threat point to determine distribution within the household. The switch to a unilateral divorce regime redistributes power in a marriage, giving power to the person who wants out, and reducing the power previously held by the partner interested in preserving the marriage.

We will, as always, remove whiners and complainers that do nothing to add to the signal while they complain about the noise.

Anybody-- and I mean anybody-- who is so willing to turn on the moderation team after hearing one side of a story from some moron with no clout on this sub-- can just leave right the fuck now. I have no time or patience for anybody looking for a free ride. Looking to come here, learn from the older members who have useful advice- and then turn around and shit on them? No fucking respect.

I just banned close to 30 people. Test me.

-rps

595

UPVOTES

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"We Need to Talk." It's a form of controlling the flow of information in an attempt at holding the cards in a conversation or relationship.

It's putting somebody on standby letting them know that there's something serious that needs to be said, and lets them dangle for a while until it is said. What could it be? Is something wrong? Is it bad news? Is it good news? Why the suspense?

Well, I'm not fond of somebody else taking control in interactions, and it's a bad habit to allow others to do so with yours. So I suggest a simple rule that will improve your frame and your personal relationships considerably:

Reject any attempt to dole out tidbits of information, reject any attempt at others controlling the flow of information, and refuse any further attempts after a failed attempt.

Some examples of a party controlling the flow of information:

- When a girl says she's "fine" or that "nothing's" wrong. She expects you to plead for information. Instead, say "okay" and walk away.
- When anybody says "we need to talk" and expects the conversation to take place in the future, respond with "if you have something to say, say it now." If they say it "needs to be in person" or they "need time to sit down and really talk about it," just tell them that you're not interested in playing games and if they felt the need to go out of their way to alert you that they needed to talk, they'd go ahead and say it, or forever hold their peace. If, in the future, they try to broach the subject again, shut it down and tell them that you do not tolerate drama and suspense building as a form of communication, and that their communication with you needs to be purposeful or not at all.
- Any time somebody says "don't worry about it" they are either trying to sweep something under the rug (such as a transgression they made against you), or control the flow of information to you. Act accordingly- Explain that conflict and arguments should come to a natural resolution and not be artificially dismissed, and that you take it as a sign of disrespect. Or, if they are attempting to control the flow of information, you simply say "okay" and walk away. Do not allow them the control of getting you to plead for tidbits of information.

Inevitably these tips will help in all interpersonal relationships, but anybody looking specifically into LTR game will eventually need to pick up on this- as a relationship is a battle of power and power will be usurped from you in any way possible when you are not looking.

266

UPVOTES

Happy thanksgiving!

27 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I just wanted to take a quick minute to wish everybody a happy thanksgiving and take a moment to say thanks to the mod team.

This place is only what it is because of the hard work of these guys who work behind the scenes. Often when they do their jobs right, it's never noticed by the greater community, but they delete hundreds of comments and deal with a lot of trolls. They do more than they get credit for, and they do so anonymously with absolutely nothing to gain from it.

It's a shame that we all operate under pseudonyms, so most of these people not only contribute priceless support to the sub, but huge amounts of insight as well. Special thanks goes out to:

/u/redpillwatchtower you're on the ball and you're juggling two subreddits like a god damned pro. Thank you.

/u/GaiusScaevolus who rarely posts but gives huge amounts of insight and guidance to me. I really appreciate it.

/u/MachiavellianRed you're a workhorse and you never stop. You are undoubtedly the most articulate person I know, even if you don't get to show off in mod comments. Thanks.

/u/CrazyHorseInvincible I'm incredibly happy to have you on our team. You know how to cut through bullshit and see things in a perspective most of us would never think. Thank you.

/u/bsutansalt You've got a knack for getting shadowbanned by reddit admin. So you know you're doing something right. I'm very grateful to have you on the team. If anybody could give lessons on taking initiative, it's you. Thank you.

/u/RedSovereign You're a quick draw. I don't know if it's a sixth sense but your ability to spot trolls is second to none. I can't even get into modmail before you've responded. Thanks for your hard work!

/u/OldMuckyTerrahawk You've been a foundation in our community since the very beginning. Our sub wouldn't be what it is today without your contributions.

/u/softharem - Old softy has been out living his life for the last few months, but don't think I've forgotten you softhammer- You've been a big help to me personally and you know that I'll always have your back. I'm glad your life is going well. Get back to us with some field reports asshole.

/u/EpicLevelCheater - You're a damn knowledge fountain, and you know what's what. You have also been a staple of our community and I wouldn't be surprised to hear that a majority of the user base here has benefited from your contributions in one way or another. Thank you.

/u/Aerobus You're the latest addition to our lineup. Thanks for stepping up to do the flashback posting. We survive on new volunteers taking up the torch where others left off.

/u/RedAsteroid You are one of the top voices in our community and you continue to frame things in ways that make me really think about our topics and theories. For god's sake man, re-accept the moderation invite!

Every single person in this lineup was selected because of their contributions to the community and grasp on red pill knowledge. I wish we could give them more, but due to the sensitive nature of this subreddit, we must remain anonymous (as a policy). Although most of their contributions are not under their moderator names, these guys are superstars and we should all be grateful to have them here to help guide us.

This community is only what it is because of their selfless additions. Let's take a moment to recognize them for their volunteering.

Thanks, and happy thanksgiving everybody.

614

UPVOTES

AMA - Milo Yiannopoulos - Thursday, Dec 10th, 5pm London time, (12pm EST) on TRP

2 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

EDIT 12/10 12:22 EST - Milo appears to be running late. Rest assured we'll sticky the thread when we begin.

British journalist, Breitbart writer Milo Yiannopoulos, who is well known for his coverage of Gamergate and defense of the masculine in the media will be here Dec 10th at noon (EST) for an AMA.

Special thanks to /u/CisWhiteMaelstrom for doing the legwork.

Don't miss it. It's gonna be good.

ninjaedit: fixed my typo

580

UPVOTES

The Empress is Naked

9 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

"A weaker sex drive is at the basis of female superiority."

I don't normally review books, but occasionally I'll stumble across something that's too good not to share. The Empress is Naked by Adam Leonas happens to be just one of these books.

I'll start with a few disclaimers. First of all, I do not take unsolicited book review requests. Don't send me your book I won't read it. Secondly, I am not making money off of this, nor does the author realize I'm doing this review, nor has he asked me to.

Now that's out of the way- The Empress is Naked.

This book and author has been around TRP and mensrights for a while and one afternoon I decided to take a peek just to see what it was about and I have to say it's one of the most interesting insights into the history and current state of sexual relations in culture that I think I've seen.

The ideas in this book aren't necessarily unique or new to anybody familiar with TRP, however the author actually does a pretty good job of organizing and arranging the ideas in a coherent narrative that constructs a plausible history of sexual relations between the genders, and explains why we're in the quandary we're in today, and what the causes of the frustrations are on both sides.

The book begins by challenging some popular misconceptions- that women are systemically oppressed, or that men are institutionally put in charge. Again, not exactly groundbreaking territory, however it's nice to see the arguments made succinctly in small bite-sized chunks that can easily be digested.

It continues by analyzing to what degree sex, and the availability of sex, has affected relations between the genders. It draws a connection between economy and restriction of sex, suggesting that women were freer with sex when there was surplus, and the restriction of sex became the norm when there was scarcity. The most interesting thing it highlights, in my opinion, is the fascinating use of sexual access (or the restriction thereof) to control and use the male population.

I recommend highly grabbing this book, if for anything, for the first half of the book. If you can, get a paper copy that you can share with people you know who are on the fence.

I will admit the second half seems to drag a little and ventures outside the realm of plausibility into conjecture and suggestion, but nevertheless I believe it's worth a read if the battle of the sexes is a topic that interests you the way it interests me.

Reposting an Excerpt that the author originally posted on reddit:

Games People Play

In this section we will see why women are in a better position to satisfy their social needs. But first let's define a frame of reference for these needs. To do this, we will use Games People Play, a book by eminent psychologist Eric Berne.

Berne describes the interactions between people as exchanges of what he calls “strokes”. The baby needs his mother's caress in order to feel intimacy and safety. This need for positive stimuli, the “infantile stimulus-hunger”, is transformed in adults, due to social and other difficulties, resulting “into something which may be termed recognition-hunger”.

“A movie actor may require hundreds of strokes each week from anonymous and undifferentiated admirers to keep his spinal cord from shrivelling, while a scientist may keep physically and mentally healthy on one stroke a year from a respected master... ‘[S]toking’ may be employed colloquially to denote any act implying recognition of another’s presence. Hence a stroke may be used as the fundamental unit of social action. An exchange of strokes constitutes a transaction, which is the unit of social intercourse...”

Stimulus-hunger and recognition hunger are two fundamental aspects of human psychology. A third one is “structure-hunger”. To many people “unstructured time”, when there is no framework set for an interaction, makes them feel at a loss, awkward, uncomfortable. They dread the specter of silence, these moments when no one can think of something interesting to say. “The eternal problem of the human being is how to structure his waking hours. In this existential sense, the function of all social living is to lend mutual assistance for this project.”

One of the activities that structure time is work, but “it is of interest here only insofar as [it] offer[s] a matrix for ‘stroking’”. Conventional social interactions offer another way to structure time.

Beyond these, “as people become better acquainted”, interactions in the sphere of personal relationship begin to take place. And this is where things start to get interesting:

“These incidents superficially appear to be adventitious, and may be so described by the parties concerned, but careful scrutiny reveals that they tend to follow definite patterns which are amenable to sorting and classification, and that the sequence is circumscribed by unspoken rules and regulations. These regulations remain latent as long as the amities or hostilities proceed according to Hoyle, but they become manifest if an illegal move is made, giving rise to a symbolic, verbal or legal cry of ‘Foul!’”

Berne calls these kind of interactions Games. Indeed, “the bulk of social activity consists of playing games”.

So what is the problem with Games? “[G]ames are substitutes for real living and real intimacy”. They have “ulterior quality” and have profit as their goal. “Every game ... is basically dishonest”.

Female Games

Using the above terminology, we can posit the following: Society has been configured so that it is easier for women to get the “strokes” they need, as attested by measurements of happiness and the dramatic reversal of life expectancy in their favor. Due to their more controllable sex drive, they are in position to play dishonest games with men, so that the strokes they receive are obtained at men's expense. “Good” women do it completely unconsciously, just because they can and it pays – i.e. it is pleasant. “Bad” women do it on purpose, calculating their profit in advance.

The Flirting Game

A woman's life, from the end of childhood up to decrepit old age, are spent playing the flirting game. Women set its rules and derive pleasure from it. The great majority of men play this game at a negative psychological cost. The game, in its milder form, goes as follows: “[She] signals that she is available and gets her pleasure from the man’s pursuit. As soon as he has committed himself, the game is over.” In a more “advanced” level, “[She] gets only secondary satisfaction from [his] advances. Her primary gratification comes from rejecting him, so that this game is also colloquially known as ‘Buzz Off, Buster’. She leads [him] into a much more serious commitment than the mild flirtation ... and enjoys watching his discomfiture when she repulses him.”

As in all Games, in flirting, the female motivations are unconscious. At the conscious level, she has put on make-up, a nice dress, highlighted secondary sexual characteristic (her legs, chest, butt) supposedly because “she just feels like doing that”, not because she likes men to look at her of flirt with her. In other cases, a bit more consciously, she does want men to flirt her, but only the “alpha males”, not every second-class loser in town. The Average Frustrated Chumps who are attracted to her are summarily shot down “collateral damage”.

Social scientists have called this “social flirting”. The game is virtually free, with no cost for women, and, as mentioned earlier, with a negative cost for men. It is like playing craps, with men winning only with double sixes, while women win with all other outcomes. If we wanted to balance it from the perspective of game theory, we should introduce a cost factor for women, a punishment, i.e. some form of violence, verbal or physical, from the conned man. However, as this is forbidden, socially or legally, the average man is left completely unprotected.

One result of the flirting game is that since the great majority of approaches are rejected, many men decide to stop playing the game altogether. It is quite telling that PUA's in their recipes for how to get a woman, explicitly forbid asking her out. The "benefit" for women, especially the most insecure ones, is that they can derive extra pleasure from whining "what has happened to real men?"

"Nora Vincent ... said she thought dating women would be one of the most pleasant parts of her undercover life. As a lesbian, she had already dated women, but now there would be many more available to her, and she looked forward to the experience. She found it sobering and discouraging. As a man, she would approach women at the bar to try to chat them up, and more often than not she got a quick and unkind (sometimes downright humiliating) rejection. She soon lost her nerve and, were it not for the demands of her experiment, she says she would have given up. She wondered how men manage to do it, to persevere, to summon up their courage to approach women despite the expectation of being rejected most of the time and despite the accumulating history of bad outcomes. She said she did not know which was worse, the women who rejected you at a glance without giving you a chance to prove yourself, or the ones who rejected you after a couple of dates and some degree of getting to know you."

While the game has only immediate profits for women, it does nevertheless have an indirect cost. It produces a disappointment in men that might turn into rage. This is why women can fall victim to "sexist" teasing on the street, especially if they are dressed provocatively. However, women who are teased are not necessarily those that "play" the most. This statistical deviation is perhaps the reason cat-calling is generally presented as a problem for women, while it is only a minimal cost that the female sex pays, in relation to the psychological benefits they derive from the Game. And let us keep in mind that only a very small number of these "teasings" is really annoying. Most are good-natured and welcomed by women. If you are feeling down and want to fix your mood, you can wear something nice and go out for a walk at a street market, where you can enjoy the sellers' humorous cat-calling...

The Raping Game

Revealingly, Berne does not consider the Raping Game as being separate from the Flirting Game. Berne argues it's just one of its variations, in the "3rd degree". The description of the game is as follows:

"[She] leads [him] into compromising physical contact and then claims that he has made a criminal assault or has done her irreparable damage. In its most cynical form [she] may actually allow him to complete the sexual act so that she gets that enjoyment before confronting him. The confrontation may be immediate, as in the illegitimate cry of rape, or it may be long delayed, as in suicide or homicide following a prolonged love affair. If she chooses to play it as a criminal assault, she may have no difficulty in finding mercenary or morbidly interested allies, such as the press, the police, counselors and relatives."

Rape fantasy is one of the most common fantasies for women. Studies in the past 30 years have indeed found that "between 31% and 57% of women have rape fantasies, and these fantasies are frequent or preferred in 9% to 17% of women. Considering that many people are ashamed to report rape fantasies, these stats are most likely lowball figures."

Certainly, not all rapes are caused by women. To go from a fantasy to provoking a real rape you need to be at least a bit disturbed. But then, "Mental disorders are common. World wide more than one in three people in most countries report sufficient criteria for at least one at some point in their life." Given this, it is not unreasonable to suspect that many rapes are actually female-initiated.

57

UPVOTES

Milo AMA being rescheduled

10 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just wanted to throw this up here so people are in-the-know. We've been in contact and the AMA will need to be rescheduled. We do not currently have a time but will announce it as soon as we know.

Sorry folks!

86

UPVOTES

MILO Y AMA Rescheduled - THU DEC 17th at 5pm (London) / 12PM EST

14 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

32
UPVOTES

AMA with Milo Yiannopoulos happening now on TRP

17 December 2015 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

http://np.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/3x8fxm/im_milo_yiannopoulos_ama/

609

UPVOTES

Anger isn't a phase.

27 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There's a subconscious drive to excuse behaviors that don't mesh with the real world, or pin it on something that's unwanted but temporary, and it happens here a lot. The "anger phase" as they call it.

Some people are annoyed that there are angry people here, while others believe themselves to be "above" the anger, having come to terms with the nature of reality in a sort-of zen way. Either way, anger is unsightly and easily fingered as evidence of the evil lurking in the shadows of reddit.

Anger isn't a phase.

I want everybody to repeat that to themselves.

Anger isn't a phase. It's a natural reaction to injustice. It's a natural reaction when somebody crosses you. It's a natural reaction when you find out the world isn't how you were told, and you were lied to.

We accept anger, as this is one of the few places that accepts anger (and the entire spectrum of male emotions) as legitimate. It's not just a phase, it's a reaction.

If you've found a way to make peace with the world around you, then great. Congratulations to you for having done it. But be wary, there's a difference between accepting reality for what it is, and being completely passive.

For instance, would you get mad at a woman for cheating on you? Some who would argue that they've reached some ultimate zen would say that cheating is just the natural way of women. Why get mad at a woman for doing what women do?

Fucking right I'd be pissed. Anger is a catalyst for change. Accepting circumstances as they are is not righteous, it's just passive. And that passivity can be a detriment if not kept on a short leash.

I'm not knocking the older guys here who have more or less lost the visceral reactions to hearing about reality. I don't find myself all that riled up by these things as well. Perhaps it's desensitization, or perhaps it's that my expectations more closely match reality.

But do not dismiss or disparage anger as though it's some early-bloomer stage that would be taken care of by a dose of maturity. If a man loses a loved one, shouldn't he grieve? And likewise, if he is betrayed, should he not seek to defend his honor?

We don't only allow anger, we embrace it.

I would take heart in the fact that personal injustice against you still stirs some level of emotion, it is the mark of a man who has not lost his own will. For those who purport to feel nothing, there is no more growth to be had.

209

UPVOTES

Trolls, concern trolls, and the way we weed you out.

28 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just recently one of our fine mods posted a direct and somewhat abrasive post demanding that "The Red Pill is NOT About Self-Improvement. It's Not ABOUT Anything."

Now, if you take a second to react to this lovely title, you might be confused. Reading and enriching yourself is improvement. The red pill clearly has a subject. So what is he trying to say?

Well, some of you took the time to read his post and gather his meaning. But a lot did not. Rather, they decided to go off half-cocked and react in the comments.

Let's first get this out of the way. It's stupid to say that reading the information here doesn't lead to self-improvement. But if we actually read his post, we'll see:

Yes, there are a great many tools inside the Red Pill that can be used to improve your life. In fact, pretty much ALL of them do. But that does NOT give the Red Pill some kind of implicit agenda or purpose.

The information here does not fit the narrow mold of any particular type of self-improvement, nor do two people's versions of improvement necessarily match. In fact, some may be directly in conflict with each other.

I've covered it before. Upon reading this information, it's your choice what to do with it. Anything that helps you get closer to your goals is self improvement to you. But our goals may all be different.

It's the moralizing of goals that prompted this latest sticky. Users claiming that LTRs are the ultimate goal, and all other paths in life are wrong. I, for one, have always recommended spinning plates until you have quality game, and then deciding on whether you want to continue spinning plates or attempt a LTR. But that doesn't mean MGTOW are wrong in their own goals.

So is the red pill really about nothing?

Well, of course not. And if that's what you took away from the post, then you probably didn't read it.

It would appear that we had a number of people who didn't read the post itself, or were there to simply troll. People who jumped on the pedantic bandwagon and missed the forest for the trees, landing on the worst possible interpretation of the post rather than attempt to understand it for the meaning it was looking to give.

Rather than step forward in good faith to be constructive, they looked to detract and deconstruct. And we banned them by the dozens.

Now, I can't tell you how many of them were here simply to detract on purpose, and how many were inadvertently being dense. But it doesn't terribly matter to me. They all cause the same problem. Arguing pedantry over reason, adopting the worst possible interpretation rather than trying to understand the argument put forward.

These are the aspie rules of decorum on the rest of the feminized reddit, not TRP.

If you're worried about big bad mods banning dissent, just remember, we encourage disagreement as long as it's well reasoned, well intentioned, and respectful. If you got banned, don't call us Hitler because you lack the reading comprehension of a third grader.

And yes, before you say it, we sometimes post things that are a little inflammatory and hyperbolic specifically to weed out the trolls. It really works well.

606

UPVOTES

The world is scared of men congregating. Red Pill state of affairs 2016

4 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just days until the infamous Roosh V meetup day, ROK announces that plans have been cancelled for the safety and privacy of members. It's incredible, the media storm that he was able to create. (Side note: there are many who plan to go to the meetings anyhow, and are making arrangements via PM)

I really can't fault him for the play that he made. Some clever statements about rape that could be played off with the plausible deniability of satire, but gaining international attention on the sound bites. He was able to scare feminists and women in every major city, convincing them that big, bad rapists were coming to town to meet, plot and fester in the underbellies of their streets.

It wouldn't surprise me in the least if he said this was his plan all along, to get the attention and then cancel. If there's one thing Roosh is good at, it's harnessing the power of the media.

Regardless of the bad rap he has on TRP, I respect him for his work and his strategy with his brand. I can't say we see eye-to-eye, especially on this thoughts of my subreddit, but that doesn't mean I can't respect his strategy and wit. For the Machiavellian among us who see his ends, we could easily take a page out of his book of means.

The subtext of this battle isn't about rape, or the feminist continued narrative that it's the biggest issue facing women today. The real battle is about men who do not seek the approval of feminism, meeting and discussing information that acts as a key to escaping the power feminism holds over them. The very subject of rape is not only a great marketing gimmick, but acts as a badge that says "your system has no sway on me." They identify as the worst thing feminism knows to demonstrate how little they care about it. Like gays owning 'fag,' when society loses control of a group of men via shame, that group of men gains power.

But when gays get together and talk, they talk about equality in marriage. When men get together and talk, they talk about revolution. And that scares women. It scares them because they know, unlike their sisters, men are capable of actually doing something. Every revolution in history, every war and battle known to man was decided and fought by men who congregated.

This is the real threat that TRP poses to society. It is not that we are truly misogynistic, or that we actually support rape. It's not that we're hateful, or that we are potentially abusers.

No, if you listen to each of these complaints against who we are, you will realize quickly that we are not the intended audience for these accusations. Many here participate on a subreddit dedicated to the supposed "rational" debate of these very accusations. (purplepilldebate) To argue it misses the point entirely.

There is no merit to the claims because the claims themselves are intended to shame, to ostracize, and to scare red pillers into conformity. They don't exist because of a logical, thought-out, idealistic disagreement.

The red pill gives a notion of powerlessness to society and the feminine culture. It represents men congregating, plotting, and discussing how to break free of the power over us, to steer our lives how we see fit, and eventually identify as those who are unable to be controlled.

And while we may not be starting a revolution in a classical sense, we are starting a revolution of culture that gives the middle finger to responsibilities traditionally shouldered by men. The number one responsibility having been the well-being of women.

The State of the Subreddit 2016

I realize I'm a bit late with my address to the forum, January came and went. But there's good reason I've been delayed. We've been putting together some massive new plans for TRP that will give us the proper protection we need to ensure the future of our brotherhood.

As I've mentioned, the congregation of men is the biggest threat to feminism (and by extension culture at large), and that makes us a target. We've known we were a target since the inception of the sub, and have only become more aware of this as we gained popularity.

As a target, there are a few problems we face.

- Trolling has gotten more intense. We've been working harder than usual to stem the trolls, as many of you may have noticed by some of our recent sticky posts, we've had to put together some clever solutions to root them out. We remain steadfast on our policy on trolls, and I'm happy to report that I believe we're doing quite well at keeping their exposure to the sub minimal.
- Concern trolling has gotten more intense. These guys are a little trickier, because they pose as well-meaning individuals who just want what's best for TRP. They mention that they feel certain qualities are missing from posts, or that moderator actions seem heavy handed and that we should be more transparent for the good of the community. Make no mistake, we will not be letting up, not an inch. The people who liken us to Hitler or claim that our moderation is akin to censorship are nothing but concern trolls. They seek to derail discussion and attempt to make enemies of the volunteer staff rather than help curb the problems the mods are attempting to fix. It is entirely clear to me that these people are here to destroy discussion, and as such will continued to be banned with prejudice.
- Our future on reddit is unknown. This is probably the biggest variable we've faced since the beginning. With each new round of subreddit banning, the question is raised, will TRP survive this time? The call for our removal is omnipresent in any admin thread, and the justification for it seems undeniable given the social climate. So how long do we have, and what are our options?

Some here may have already know that I've been hard at work ensuring that TRP has a future and that our legacy will not be lost in the annals of reddit history. So we set out to solve a few fundamental issues.

1. The content, the posts, and conversations taking place here are priceless and should not be lost.
2. There are very few places for red pill men to socialize openly, without fear of retribution.
3. There is an enforced signal to noise ratio on our forum as we have strict rules to keep discussion on topic. Unfortunately this cuts down on possible socialization between members who simply want to catch up with each other's progress.
4. There is no room on the forum for smaller, albeit interesting, pieces of information that are relevant but not necessarily ground breaking.

I started to notice the last three points on this list when I visited the IRC chat room. It was more than the nitty, gritty, cold details of theredpill discussion. It was guys helping each other with workout and diet information, it was chatting about a date from the night before, about personal strategies, and about personal failures and successes. The guys go there regularly for the comradery.

Now, don't get me wrong, I'm sure this subreddit has brought many of us sanity when we realized we couldn't discuss these things in real life. It's nice to have the guys here to bounce ideas off of and to connect with. But there was little personal aspect to it, our focus here discourages chatter that does not deliver insight to sexual strategy.

But part of being a man, and becoming a man, is ensuring a positive social circle that encourages growth. We need encouragement and the ability to bond.

For some, a local fraternity is a great option. The promise of Roosh's meetup is proof that men worldwide are in need of role models and friends.

We realized that all of these problems could, and should be solved.

So we've been working on a new platform for the better part of the last two years to solve these issues.

- First and foremost, the most important aspect of this platform is an archive of our top posts and discussion, in case we get shut down. I didn't just want an html backup, I wanted to be able to switch to a new platform seamlessly without missing a beat. So we wrote a script to emulate reddit's interface, and we backed up the major red pill subs. And it functions fully as a replacement for our subreddit.
- Secondly, we did not want to leave reddit unless we needed to. Which we won't. The sub will remain here until and if a move is made necessary by reddit admin. One of our strengths is the reddit platform and the ability to reach those who are looking. We will not leave here, nor will the backup boards be opened unless we are forced to. The backup boards will be accessible but read-only until that point.
- Third, we wanted a platform that allowed members to interact on a more casual level and connect in an environment that was more socially driven and less topic driven. We also wanted the ability to connect with individuals instead of the entire community. We have created this platform and we're excited to unveil it soon.
- We wanted a way to elevate positive contributions based on merit rather than social standing. Not everybody can have a name like /u/gaylubeoil. So we brought in a board of curators who will be helping us feature high quality posts on TRP and our new platform. The full board will be announced at launch, but it includes such names as Rollo Tomassi, Ian Ironwood, Private Man, Illimitableman, and a number of others.
- We wanted a way for people to contribute content to our community and be able to anonymously receive thanks from the community, rather than the current setup, which rewards reddit's bank account when we purchase reddit gold. We will announce more about our plans soon, but I liken it to buying a friend a beer, but being able to do it anonymously.
- We wanted to ensure security, and have spent countless hours pouring over the code and framework to ensure that everybody's privacy will be preserved. Donations by members on our board and IRC have purchased SSL certificates, and security-minded individuals have assisted in code audits. Passwords are one-way salted and hashed, all inputs are CSRF protected, and all inputs are scrubbed properly.
- We wanted to ensure people could preserve their reddit account if they wanted. The registration system allows you to claim your reddit account as long as you have access to it on reddit.
- And finally, we wanted to make sure not to change the focus or topic of the main sub. This new platform allows us to expand and extend the conversation without detracting from the original purpose of /r/theredpill: Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

We are very close to launching this new platform, so I wanted to address it here today in our state of the subreddit address, to let you know what our plans are and what our future is looking like. Our plan for this platform, when we launch, will work in combination with our red pill subreddit, not take place of it. We're very excited to see what happens. We've worked very hard on this platform and we think it will be a positive addition to our community.

Thanks to everybody who helped. We will announce this platform as soon as our finishing touches are complete. We expect a launch end of Feb/Early March.

-RPS

186
UPVOTES

Familiarize yourself with our Simplified Rules

16 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/about/rules/>

29

UPVOTES

Laundry commercial demonstrates how lazy and useless men are. Women run the world, you know.

2 March 2016 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.littlethings.com/share-the-load-commercial-vcom/>

456

UPVOTES

[Mod] Announcing a new platform: www.TRP.red

4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Over the past year or so, I've been dropping hints about a project we've been working on behind the scenes to serve as a backup for TheRedPill if it were to get shut down.

It started when we heard about major subreddits getting shut down for their politically incorrect content, rather than content that violated reddit's content policy. It was clear as day what the reddit administrators' intentions were when evidence needed to be fabricated to justify the closures. "Off-site brigading" was invented as an invisible boogey man to prove that these off-color subreddits needed to go. It wasn't the content itself but they banned the content and continued pretending to be a bastion of free speech.

It was more than a year ago that we started formulating plans to ensure that TRP had a contingency put into place, so that we would not be caught off guard. This was a motto that I've always lived by: "A prudent man never leaves himself with no options."

And so today we unveil our new platform, but with a twist. Some of you caught my announcement last month where I hinted that we were going to be launching something much bigger than a backup forum. Today I am going to announce exactly what the platform is.

TRP.RED

When the backup forums were being put together, and archive scrapes were running, the mod team and a small group of volunteers started the discussion of exactly what, how, and why the new site should operate. It was decided that since we started a subreddit, and our strength is in running a subreddit, that we would ensure that we did not leave reddit unless absolutely necessary. Because of this, we decided the backup forums would be read-only until the day this subreddit was closed. This remains our policy. We are not moving off of reddit unless it becomes necessary.

So what are we launching today?

During the development of our backup forums, a few crucial events took place that brought to our attention the state of social media today. There is absolutely no way around it, every major platform today is either run by social justice warriors, or kowtows to them when confronted.

Twitter began its crusade against conservatives, including men's rights champion Milo Yiannopoulos suggesting massive wide spread censorship and possibly reorganizing feeds so that certain people are not heard. Men face consequences when practicing their right to free speech, which would make any freely speaking man think twice before openly questioning the status quo.

Reddit has continued to demonstrate its questionable commitment to free speech, through two waves of subreddit banning based on content that disagrees with political correctness.

Facebook and the greater social media sphere remains a stronghold for liberal views, even a slight comment that disagrees with the liberal group-think can land you without a job.

There is no question that today's Overton window does not include Red Pill ideology, and the Social Justice Warriors, Feminists, and do-gooders with their fresh liberal arts degrees are working around the clock to exclude any masculine interests from their acceptable speech list. Anything as harmless as a joke about dongles to something with more teeth (like being critical of feminism) has now become hate speech.

And the best way the SJW army has found to stifle male interests is ensuring that any form of communication that serves masculine interests is attacked, demonized, and must be destroyed along with any man who dared to possess such wrong-think.

And so we found ourselves with another niche that we wanted to address that works in conjunction with our original focus of the red pill.

Enter, <https://www.trp.red>

TRP.RED is a new platform designed to foster growth within the manosphere via more instantaneous feedback and increased connection between men, contacts, content producers and consumers.

We provide the framework for our users to set up shop immediately and start connecting with each other, in a similar fashion to social media, but without the dark cloud of social justice censorship looming above us.

The goals we wanted to achieve include:

- We wanted a platform that allowed members to interact on a more casual level and connect in an environment that was more socially driven and less topic driven. We also wanted the ability to connect with individuals instead of the entire community.
- We wanted a way to elevate positive contributions based on merit rather than social standing. We brought in a board of curators who will be helping us highlight quality posts on TRP and our new platform. The Board of curators that includes Rollo Tomassi, Ian Ironwood, IllimitableMan, GayLubeOil, Private Man, and others.
- We wanted a way for people to contribute content to our community and be able to anonymously receive thanks from the community, rather than the current setup, which rewards reddit's bank account when we purchase reddit gold. *We wanted to ensure security, and have spent countless hours pouring over the code and framework to ensure that everyone's privacy will be preserved. Donations by members on our board and IRC have purchased SSL certificates, and security professionals have assisted in code audits.
- We wanted to ensure people could preserve their reddit account if they wanted. The registration system allows you to claim your reddit account as long as you have access to it on reddit.
- And finally, we wanted to make sure not to change the focus or topic of what got us here. This new platform allows us to expand and extend the conversation without detracting from the original purpose of /r/TheRedPill: Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

The features of our new platform are many and growing.

- Daily Prescription - users can post short public messages or insights with a curated few highlighted to the masses by our board of curators that includes names such as Rollo Tomassi, Ian Ironwood, IllimitableMan, GayLubeOil, Private Man, and others.
- Blogs - users have a secure location to post ideas and thoughts on our new framework, and helps expose their ideas to the greater red pill audience through curation by our board of curators.
- Tips - an anonymous framework for rewarding contributions to the community, you can now send tips for content that you find insightful.
- Community - members can connect with other members directly in conversation-based interactions rather than the formal topic discussions we have on reddit. Much like a social network, this opens the doors for more community and comradery that reddit's form-based interface does not encourage. We intend to add many features during the next few months including a fitness tracker and personalized coaching tool for members to help other members.

We aim for this medium to connect current and future insightful creators with an audience of interested followers instead of putting them in a pool of anti-male censorship and public risk, which is an ever-growing problem facing members of the manosphere today.

38

UPVOTES

Red Pill Network announcing new platform: www.TRP.red

4 March 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Just posting the announcement over here as well, we're launching a new platform: <https://www.trp.red>

Read the announcement here:

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/48xr0f/mod_announcing_a_new_platform_wwwtrpred/

15

UPVOTES

Dalrock - Stroking the Feminist Resentment

4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The Atlantic has a new piece up titled The Scourge of the Female Chore Burden:

All over the world, women are doing work they're not getting paid for. In rich countries, it might be folding the laundry or staying home to take care of a sick child. In developing countries, unpaid labor tends to be more physically arduous, like hauling water and chopping wood. Wherever you are, it's considered women's work.

This is standard fare, and part of the constant bombardment women receive encouraging them to be discontent. It is also part of a very long tradition, going back to the Serpent and Eve in the garden of Eden. This particular piece is noteworthy however because the stand in for the Serpent is billionaire Melinda Gates complaining about the patriarchal oppression of being married to Bill Gates:

For those who think it can't be done, Gates offers an example from her personal life. Though Bill and the couples' children would always help with after-dinner cleanup, she nevertheless was always the last person left in the kitchen, "doing those last few little things."

Finally, she issued an edict: No one leaves the kitchen until mom does.

The Atlantic piece whispers that if only men worked more around the house and slept less, women would finally be content. This is a lie even the Serpent would be proud of.

Read the rest: <https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2016/02/24/stoking-feminist-resentment/>

469

UPVOTES

Don't peddle your candidate.

11 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm annoyed that I have to say it, but no peddling your candidate.

Yes, I like Trump and he's a clever guy, but it's done.

Locked because I don't care to hear the drama. It's done, it's OVER.

61

UPVOTES

You'll notice the presumption here is that the 'Plan A' lover is always a woman's preferred choice – thus pre-confirming women's blamelessness from the outset – and that a 'Plan B' should only ever be considered if the 'Plan A' man somehow screws up in contenting a woman's sexual strategy. - Rollo

15 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2016/03/14/plan-b/>

61

UPVOTES

Women want an assurance of Hypergamous optimization. Whether it's on the personal scale of socially engineering generations of men to accommodate this, or [...] of legislating those assurances into common law, the .. imperative is making that optimization .. for the largest number of women. - Rollo

15 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://therationalmale.com/2016/02/28/assurances/>

382

UPVOTES

Feminists know they can't get sexual assault convictions when they're made up or have no proof. Feminism continues marching towards their goal of absolute power: TED TALK Jessica Ladd: The reporting system that sexual assault survivors want

17 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

First of all, if you have time, check out this new TED talk by Jessica Ladd. Here's a quick and dirty synopsis:

She starts her talk with a bunch of made up numbers and dubious math.

- 1 in 5 Women will be sexually assaulted during their college career. (if this were actually true about any college, women wouldn't go to that institution, let alone parties at that institution)
- Less than 10% of sexual assaults are reported (we know this because?)
- Only 6% of the reported sexual assault attackers spend any time in prison. (which of course means apparently 94% have escaped punishment, rather than might be innocent).
- Women have to think about whether it was rape on average for about 11 months before reporting it. (because that makes fucking sense)

Ready for fuzzy math?

- With these numbers in mind, it means there is a 99% chance sexual predators will get away with sexual assault. (More on this nonsense math later.)

So, considering that basically every woman is a victim and that every dude is basically a rape machine, the clear problem Jessica presents and purports to solve is that women simply aren't reporting the crime enough to finally put all the guilty people behind bars. (Of course they're guilty, not innocent, don't ask any questions thank you).

So she invents a cell phone app that lets you log your encounter right away (rather than 11 months later), but not commit to actually filing a police report. The subtext here is that she thinks women are waiting 11 months because they're either afraid of coming forward, or afraid that coming forward with no proof won't instantly put the guy in jail. So you can log the encounter with this phone app, and not commit to a police report, but if somebody else logs a similar report about the same person, then it sends both of your reports to the police, because now you have corroboration that there's really something going on.

It seems like a great idea, in theory, to crowd source rape accusations. Actually, no, in theory it's a fucking terrible idea.

So first, let's address the math. Somehow out of all the numbers she managed to prove that 99% of all assailants go free. Rather than consider that maybe the actual crime itself isn't taking place a made up number of times, (the unreported rate, which could theoretically be zero to infinity for all we know), or consider that the people not being put in prison might actually be innocent, she decides that yes, with these made up numbers, there are a great number of rapists on the loose just drooling at a chance to rape rape.

But we understand her agenda, the facts don't matter, what matters is that there seems to be some reason why we need to continue honing in on power over men. We may disprove her numbers, in fact, we might find the numbers to be considerably lower than what she says, but the justification survives fact checking: No matter what the real numbers are, we can all agree that there is an epidemic of sexual assault against women, and it's a big problem, and so we should keep working towards fixing it.

It's propaganda. It's high-balling on purpose.

So her solution, the app that turns crime reporting into a social media app, what does it really achieve?

This is where we must look at these actions through the lens of understanding feminism's end goals.

The first question we need to ask is, why is it so darn fucking hard to get women to just report a crime when it happens? There seems to be a strange mismatch between what we're told about sexual assault, what we're told are the number of victims, and the failure of literally anybody to actually act on these attacks that are supposedly happening to everybody.

If we truly have an uncontrolled rape epidemic, there would be riots in the streets, there would be massive numbers of women at police stations giving every detail they can to find safety. They would confide in their friends, and THEY'D NEVER GO OUT ALONE AGAIN, ESPECIALLY TO A COLLEGE PARTY. So why aren't these things happening?

If women really were targets of this heinous amount of crime... wouldn't it be easier to get them to report it? Why is it like pulling teeth just to get women to report all this crime that's obviously happening daily? Why does it seem like women are working against themselves by hiding all of this, willfully ignoring that there are real, punishable crimes happening against them every single day?

Of course feminists know it's not happening.

There is no rape epidemic. There aren't millions of assaults and rapes going unreported.

It's impossible to get the reporting numbers higher because there's nothing more to report.

I would venture a guess, that if we count false accusations, the actual reporting numbers are close to 180% - 200% the actual sexual assault rate. That means we don't have a reporting issue, we have a false reporting issue.

So what's the goal with this app?

Isn't it obvious with the numbers? Women use false reports, not because they think they can get a conviction, but because convictions aren't what they're after. Feminism is a system of power and control over men, and one of the biggest methods for this control is social shame and ostracization.

It's no secret that going against the mainstream hive-mind is a crime punishable by losing friends, family, and your job. It's no coincidence that the mainstream hive-mind just happens to align with the feminine-imperative. Our culture is feminine-primary, we serve the feminine.

So this app is just another power grab to put in the toolbox of feminism's power over men. The goal isn't to increase the report number, or increase convictions. Their goal is to increase men's liability for interacting with women, handing even more control over men to women via public shame and ostracization, with a convenient phone app to secretly build a anti-male database that can be used whenever a man doesn't do as a woman pleases, or whenever she feels regret for any decision she had made, and she can do it without all the muss and fuss of having to actually report a crime!

Up until now, the social shame method has been effective, but spotty and difficult. High profile rape cases (Duke team, mattress girl, etc) have ruined men's lives well before they're found not-guilty. So feminists know it can work. But what's missing is cohesion, safety, privacy, and ease of use for the average woman.

There is still some risk in becoming a false rape whistle blower. Going to the police with no proof will rarely end up in a conviction and won't have the intended effect they want... they need something stronger, more visible. They can't just jump on facebook and declare "Mike" is a rapist without taking some blowback to their own credibility, at least not yet. So they build a social network dedicated specifically to social shaming and destroying of men, and make it to protect women.

Their goal is to build a social network for women to control men through false rape accusations.

This is not the last time you'll hear about it.

708

UPVOTES

The Light-Switch Effect - Why Women Re-Write the History of Relationships.

28 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I was originally typing this as a comment reply to this thread, but it turned into an entire post.

/u/projectself was writing about how women re-write history towards the end of a relationship:

Re-writing of history - It doesn't matter that she was sending you love notes and texts a month ago. She has been unhappy for a long time now.

I call this the light-switch effect. And it happens when a woman is no longer attracted to you and is moving on, whether or not she cheated.

It's not that she's discrediting all the past good in the relationship, she actually believes it never existed. Let me expand on that a little, and tie it into what we call Briffault's law.

Women use their emotional state to define reality- we already know this. When a man feels an emotion, he asks, what could have caused this emotion? Is it reasonable and rational? Perhaps it is, or is not, but exploring this line of reasoning is how he determines whether or not his feelings match objective reality. If the facts don't line up, perhaps his reaction was wrong.

When a woman feels an emotion, she uses this as her objective reality. Why would she feel betrayed unless somebody had betrayed her? Why would she feel sad unless somebody or something made her sad?

Therefore the decisions she makes based on her reality may seem like total nonsense to a man (women are crazy, right?), because she has determined her reality based on the only prime truth she knows: her emotional state. If a woman is sad, she tells you "you made me sad." She didn't decide her emotional state, you did. Changing her own emotional state is outside the purview of her control.

So that means the emotional state she is experiencing means that you've done something to create that state, intentionally or not. Since she is sad, you've made her sad. Her objective reality states that you've done something wrong to make her sad. This is where a lot of arguments begin, because the man mistakenly will argue "you've taken what I said the wrong way, of course I didn't mean it that way," and to her, it doesn't matter what is rational or reasonable. She is sad and she wouldn't be sad if there wasn't a reason to be sad. Her sadness defined this reality for her. If you hadn't done something worthy of her being sad about, she simply wouldn't be sad.

So back to the light-switch effect. When you've dated a woman for multiple years, and things start going sour, you experience the revisionist history where she claims to have "never loved you" or that you were "always abusive." Yes, the always/never statements. And what they reflect isn't a reality, rather, they reflect her new reality based on her emotions.

The thought process looks much like this: If true love is permanent and real, and I am not feeling true love for this person, but rather disdain and anger, then I must be feeling this way because of who they are. They make me feel bad, so they cannot be good. And since this person makes me feel bad I could not have loved them, because I would never love somebody who makes me feel bad (the qualities he exhibits now must have been inherent qualities he has always had). So I must have never loved them. The entire relationship must have been a lie. Real true love would be permanent, and this is not permanent, so it was never real true love.

And just like that, her emotional state defines a new reality, where nothing was ever good and everything was based on a lie. Like a light-switch goes from on to off, everything that you two had built disappears into the off position, as though it had never existed.

Many men at this stage try to bargain. "After all we've been through together, how can you throw this away? We can still salvage this!"

And it's a pointless question. What is she throwing away? Absolutely nothing, in her mind. If there was any value in the relationship, she wouldn't feel this way. Therefore there must not have been value in the relationship.

Briffault's law operates around this very principle:

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

Corollaries:

1. Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.
2. Any agreement where the male provides a current benefit in return for a promise of future association is null and void as soon as the male has provided the benefit (see corollary 1)
3. A promise of future benefit has limited influence on current/future association, with the influence inversely proportionate to the length of time until the benefit will be given and directly proportionate to the degree to which the female trusts the male (which is not bloody likely).

Specifically corollary 1- past benefit does not provide for continued or future association. The concepts of past benefit and continued association requires a consistent objective reality where a woman can look at the implicit contracts made in a relationship: We'll love each other forever, we'll make it through thick and thin, I'll give you a place to live and provide for you, and you'll remember these sacrifices I made in the future when the chips are down.

In her mind, when the chips are actually down, her emotional state will define a new reality where past benefit doesn't just not count, but rather it simply doesn't exist at all. If her reality included that your sacrifices and love were genuine and real, she wouldn't feel the way she does. She wouldn't feel betrayed, she wouldn't feel unattracted. But she does feel unattracted to you, so the reality where you provided benefit must not be real. The real reality is that you must have lied, and there was never a true relationship at all.

The light-switch effect.

And make no mistake, even if you're in a good relationship with a good woman, when the chips are down, the light-switch always turns off.

As many of you may have noticed, some of our mods have quit recently. I wanted to address that here, and discuss a little bit about our direction.

First, I'd like to let everybody know, they left on their own accord, we didn't force anybody out. Second, I'd like to say that the sub will benefit greatly from this move.

There are a lot of rumors going around as to why the mods left, and I wanted to clear that up so there's no confusion.

Ultimately it was a disagreement between them and me.

When I founded this sub, I founded it on one of the main principles that guide every subreddit in the red pill network: Value truth above all else. There was even a small image in the corner that said "It is better to be slapped with the truth than kissed by a lie."

Unfortunately, the old mod team were not living up to this standard. Rather than embrace truth and encourage open discussion that has made the red pill network subs as popular and successful as they are, they decided that a small clique of women had the one and only strategy to happiness, and anybody who disagreed with them should be banned. That includes a lot of very good contributors, and women who had simply come here for help and understanding.

And by clique, I really mean it. Watching behind the scenes, it played out like the movie Mean Girls. The discussions that took place between myself and the mod team were less about facing hard truths, and instead about who was on who's side and who said what to whom. It was a cat fight.

My original intention was not to disrupt the flow of this subreddit. I never disagreed with the clique on their strategy of marriage. It's a great goal to aspire towards for women. That said, there were some questions about the changing sexual landscape that were being censored. When honest discussion from a red pill perspective is being censored, that's when we knew we had trouble on our hands.

I did my best to appeal to the mod team, but at the end it didn't matter. They did not want to work with me towards the very goals this subreddit was founded upon, and it is my responsibility to the subscribers here to ensure that those principles stay in place.

Everything I feared in my introduction post ended up coming true:

The problem I've seen with female-based sexual strategy forums is that they inevitably focus on what's politically correct. They focus on tempering the message so as not to offend. Because ladies, like it or not, our entire culture currently revolves around not offending you. Seriously. That's today's culture. This forum will embrace truth first and foremost, sensitivity be damned. While I encourage people to remain positive towards each other, plain insults are discouraged, I understand that sometimes the truth will seem like an insult.

What's Not Changing

We're not starting up a Red Pill men explain sub here, this is a sub for women and female sexual strategy. The moderation policy will always be focused on positive female sexual strategy.

The accusation that we want to encourage a "plate school" is nonsense. Men who come to push their agendas (to benefit themselves) will still find themselves kicked out.

Per my original announcement:

RedPillWomen is not the place for men to show up and spout nonsense. We have an unofficial rule on

/r/theredpill that basically amounts to: don't listen to women about sexual strategy. It's not that we don't like women, it's that women really have a hard time seeing past what they like to understand men have a different palate. The same goes for men, perhaps even worse so. Men, being the less discriminating gender, are more-or-less programmed to find women sexy.. no matter what. And when a woman says, "I like to eat pie with my fingers" you'll have sex-thirsty guys line up out the door willing to say anything for female validation. "I love women who eat with their fingers."

The goals

Our goals will be identical to my announcement post when we started. Finding long-term sexual strategies to maximize one's happiness and success. This hasn't changed.

We had a radical idea- what if men and women learned about their natures and took proactive control of them, came up with a compromise that made both parties happier in the long run?

We're a cooperative species, and great things can be achieved when we do. Women, you have the ability to find happiness when you embrace the reality of your biological urges and impulses. You have the ability and the requirement to become the optimal mate for your optimal mate. Do not believe the hype that you are good enough how you are, and realize that in life, the only things worth having take work. That's for men and women.

RedPillWomen is self-improvement and long-term goal setting to maximize your personal happiness.

I'm saddened that things had to play out the way they did, but my responsibility remains to you, the subscribers. I apologize for letting you down, and we will not allow this same culture to take over again.

For the next week

We will be working on reinstating the sidebar and stylesheets, as the old team saw fit to try to destroy anything they could on their way out, claiming that it was "theirs" rather than the community's.

We have a few RPW members who have stepped up and are committed to maintaining this vision. We are vetting the members now for the mod team.

And discussion will continue, business as usual.

Thank you.

6

UPVOTES

Ever had an ex that left you but keeps looking for your attention?

4 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

I want to take a moment again express my disappointment with the old moderation team. Apparently they have not yet moved on, but instead have been spending the day attempting to troll RPW, perhaps out of sheer bitterness.

While their attempts have been futile, their goal was to try to poke holes in the new moderation team's stance, maybe as a petty final word on their way out the door (As though deleting as many posts as they could and erasing the sidebar wasn't enough). It's sad to see that they've resorted to this.

I'm sure they are also trying to make it hard to know who will be a genuine poster and who is simply here to troll. Luckily our level-headed community and moderation team will be happy to answer these made-up questions, even from the trolls, because our ideas stand up to scrutiny.

To the ex mods, shame on you for what you're doing. Stay gone, you clearly do not have these women's best interest at heart.

And now the wall of shame, yes, we know you have a lot of alts. Not something to be proud of girls. Time to move on.

<http://archive.is/lowuc>

<http://archive.is/X9faA>

<http://archive.is/4gJq7>

<http://archive.is/3X0mL>

This is not an exhaustive list.

New Flairs, Please Update Yours Now!

5 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Our flair guide is in the wiki and on the sidebar, but I'll reproduce the text here for you:

If you currently have an endorsed flair, please leave a comment on this thread with your flair text and I'll update it manually, thank you

User Flairs

RedPillWomen is a spot for like minded Women to objectively and realistically discuss sexual strategy from an anti-feminist, non-feminist, traditionalist and/or evolutionary psychology perspective. Our focus is on long-term goals that bring long-term happiness.

However, not all goals are the same, so not all strategy discussion will be necessarily the same.

To assist us with steering advice and discussion in the right way, we've started using user flairs to indicate an individual's information, to give context to the advice they might need, and the advice they might give.

We ask that all users who participate edit their flair.

To edit your flair, click (edit) next to your name on the right sidebar under "Show my flair on this subreddit. It looks like:".

Choose one of the four:

- PINK: Edit: Lady Relationship Details - Choose this one to indicate you are a woman and in a relationship.
- BLUE: Edit: Guy Relationship Details - Choose this one to indicate you are a man and in a relationship.
- YELLOW: Edit: Lady Single Details - Choose this one to indicate you are single woman.
- GREEN: Edit: Guy Single Details - Choose this one to indicate you are a single man.

Now, you probably noticed that the flair text by default says "Edit."

This is where you edit the flair text to indicate the following:

- Age - This one is easy: how old are you. If you rather not be precise you can just use a decade. "~40" means in your forties.
- Relationship Type - Indicate what sort of relationship you are in (or if you're single, what you're looking for):
 - Not Looking/Monk Mode
 - Dating/Looking for LTR
 - Long Term Relationship/LTR
 - Engaged/Married
 - Divorced/Widowed
 - This is open ended, so feel free to deviate from the template on what you feel your goals are. It's fair to say "I don't know"
- Length - If you're in a relationship, indicate for how long.

145

UPVOTES

When Plates Collide

9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There was a question on askTRP recently about what to do when 2 plates meet each other. Had a comment but wanted to expand on it here, because this happens to be my specialty.

Plates colliding, or, when two women from the same player meet each other, what do you do? Sounds like the scenario from a bad chick flick. They two women meet, gang up together and then collude to get back at the player for being such a horrible person to women.

Cut to reality.

Colliding plates is something I didn't necessarily consider to be a positive outcome when I first started spinning. I knew it might happen one day, but for the most part I did my best to avoid that happening. What I learned through my experiences is that it's not actually a bad scenario, and, if you manage it right, you can use it to your advantage. It might actually be worth orchestrating a collision on purpose.

I've had plates collide many times in the past. It usually ends in a boost in attraction. They may act upset, but 9 times out of 10, they both work harder for your attention. They will act as though you being a player is bad for attraction, and they might even shit test you "ewww, you're fucking other girls?" or "you're with her? really?"

They're trying to win the game. They want you to think the other girl is stupid, slutty, or gross. Because they want to win. Don't cave. They'll both put in 150% to try to outdo the other. At no point will this social proof actually hurt attraction.

Now, there's a caveat to this: sometimes this causes a plate to fall. It really does happen. Not all women are excited to be plates, and while there's an implicit understanding in non-commitment that one is a plate, they will keep spinning until they are forced to confront that reality. Once confronted, the anti-slut defense might deploy, causing them to fall off.

But remember this- just because she walked doesn't mean the plate collision dinged your attractiveness. She just wanted commitment and decided to cut her losses because she doesn't think she'll win it. If your plate falls because of this, keep her in the black book, because she'll get horny soon enough - either because she can't find anybody, or the beta she suckers will be boring to her. You will still be her booty call. Fine by me.

The massive social proof from other girls fucking you will always, ALWAYS, make them more attracted to you. No matter what they say. No matter how much fuss they put up, no matter what shit tests they throw, no matter what the results of relationship or plate status, your attractiveness level will not go down because of it. Use this information wisely.

As I mentioned earlier, I originally did my best to avoid plates colliding, but I had a habit of keeping 3 spinning at a time, and it was near impossible to avoid them meeting in public at least now and again. Couple that with the fact that I had non-spinning ex-plates, and soon-to-be-spinning flirts that I always work on, there were always women approaching me in public to say hi.

So after realizing the boost in attraction, I started to want these "awkward" scenarios - and orchestrate them on purpose. Because if you play it smooth when they expect it to be awkward for you, it's god damned 100,000 sexy points to you.

When two plates collide, the air gets thick and the pressure will be for you to explain it away, cut the tension. I prefer to lean back and smile. Let it take place. Let them feel each other out. Let them both know this isn't your first rodeo and it doesn't bother you at all. Your cool resolve under this stress will really get them curious, furious, and confused. My god, if that's not the recipe for a wet vagina. Bonus points for physical flirting with both in front of each other.

My first encounter was two potential plates meeting at my house at the wrong time, turning into a month-long battle between them trying to "win" me. The next encounters were bumping into other women/plates in public and me openly flirting with them. By the end of it, it was impossible for me to go out with a plate without running into somebody giving me serious IOIs. Some of my latest exploits included going out to bars/clubs with a plate, and openly approaching other women while I was out with her. The more it worked, the more they tried.

Every time, met with the same token resistance. Every time, it benefited me.

Now, there are some sacrifices I make with a LTR (which I'm in now). One is that I am not openly fucking other women. But these effects carry into the LTR. She is very aware that women approach me in public, that I am well liked by many, and she knows at least a percentage of the women I interact with have either fucked me, or want to fuck me. I don't go out of my way to torture my LTR, I don't orchestrate events like this any more. But the fact that it happens is still in the back of her mind. Passive dread. That social proof is priceless.

Master colliding plates for success in both casual dating, as well as long term relationships.

220

UPVOTES

Posting, and What Not to Do

12 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Today I removed almost every post from the front page. I'm going to camp out on the /new/ tab for a while and continue pruning until I'm happy.

Do not post low quality or low effort posts. If your lesson doesn't exist or doesn't bring something new or interesting to the table, it doesn't belong here.

I wanted to post a few examples of what I removed:

<http://archive.is/sOctk> - Words are losing meaning, like Honor, Obedience, Respect, and Dignity. Ok, it's a good start. Where's the cause of it? Who is perpetuating the problem? What are the overarching social implications of these changes? How are they used to gain an upper hand on men? All of these details would have made a quality post.

<http://archive.is/AZfh9> - Going against the feminine-primary grain will get you shamed in public. Why? What's the play? What's the advantage? Who does this benefit? Why is it used? What are the social implications? How are we to navigate this? What does our future hold? This post touches on a topic but never gets so far as ankle deep.

<http://archive.is/IaHxk> - If your post is so devoid of any details and nobody would want to hear it in real life, nobody wants to read it on TRP.

<http://archive.is/2eVnO>, <http://archive.is/ljyEE>, platitudes like "love yourself" and lists of generic advice are useless and very low effort.

With these, I've removed 4 "Thanks TRP" posts that should be on /r/thanktrp and provided absolutely no insight. (Many of them were simply "I feel better, maybe one day I'll get laid!")

I've removed at least 3 that were simply "I saw an example of what we talk about here on facebook/okcupid/etc, and here's literally just that and no analysis whatsoever!"

And then I removed about 10 more that deserve no discussion, they were just complete nonsense or fluff and added nothing.

I will continue deleting. Do not post unless you have something worth saying.

Do not ask the mod team why something was removed. If your item was removed, start reading the sidebar, and don't post again until you're done.

Since we're clarifying the focus of RPW, there have been a lot of questions about which strategies are on-topic, and which strategies should even be considered Red-Pill.

We're opening discussion beyond marriage as an end goal, including the discussion of a new Sexual Market where men are less likely to marry.

The question of becoming a plate is often raised and the false dichotomy of: "If we aren't focusing on getting married, are we then advocating becoming plates?" is inevitably asked.

I wanted to clear this up quickly before I post the new subreddit rules.

What is a Plate?

A Plate is a woman who willingly has an ongoing sexual relationship with a man with no strings attached. Any casual sex with no relationship, exclusivity, or commitment is a plate.

The conversation about the Sexual Market Place and the advantages or disadvantages of attempting to move into a relationship with a man via plate-hood is entirely on topic here, albeit a risky proposition. I want to make it clear that for women, being a plate is a poor long term strategy, and will be considered off-topic. Here's why:

If a woman wants casual sex, or no-strings-attached sex, she already knows how to get it. This takes almost no effort. Whereas when men pursue sex, they often severely sacrifice a great amount of their time and attention for a hookup. Conversely, the supply of casual sex for women is unlimited, and takes zero energy or strategy to get it.

The discussion here will hopefully highlight why casual sex in and of itself is a bad strategy for one's own happiness (for women), and will hopefully dissuade anybody from considering it as a good life goal. Most importantly, it is a core tenant of The Red Pill. Much like there is no discussion on /r/TheRedPill where men to discuss how to become beta orbiters of women, it makes little sense to discuss on /r/RedPillWomen how to get sex.

Why is this an important distinction?

Although commitment-free sex for women does not require much in the way of strategy, commitment-free sex may very well be part of a strategy. There should be discussion on the nuances of this strategy, all risks and/or benefits should be weighed.

This leads us to the new rules, which will be posted shortly, but I will highlight one of them here:

Sexual Strategies should be from a Red-Pill Perspective

Sexual Strategies or discussion of actionable advice requires either a thorough Red Pill rationale or must be backed by currently existing and accepted Red Pill theory.

Strategies for securing no-commitment sex from men will not be discussed. This is not only incongruent with the desires of the vast majority of women, it is also so easy to do that no "strategy" is required.

Plate theory and sexual dynamics in a new culture that is ultimately rejecting marriage 1.0 and 2.0 is on topic, provided that they are discussed as means to an end rather than an end in itself.

Since we've taken a new direction for the subreddit, it makes sense that we should outline some new updated rules to govern the discussion here on RPW. These rules will always be available on our Participation Rules page, which is also linked in our sidebar. I will post them here for convenience.

PARTICIPATION RULES

Rule Zero: Stay On Topic

This is a spot for like-minded Women to objectively and realistically discuss sexual strategy. Content therefore must serve for the benefit of women. Anything deviating from this goal is off topic.

Male-centric advice is not permitted.

Do not give advice to women which is primarily intended to benefit men, or is based around male desires without considerations for women's desires or goals. Male users will be scrutinized more closely for compliance, but this rule applies to both sexes.

All posts and comments must be in good faith.

All information you choose to give about yourself and your situation must be true.

Hypotheticals for discussion are allowed, but must be clearly stated as such, not presented as a real situation. All requests for advice must be made with the actual intent of receiving helpful information, and all advice must be given with the actual intent of helping the person requesting it.

Recently created reddit accounts will be scrutinized very closely for compliance.

Do not insult the community or its members

The community values truths, even harsh and unpleasant ones, over pretty or comforting lies. However, this is not allowed to cross the line into personal abuse, either of individuals or directed towards the community as a whole.

You may (are encouraged to) call others out for bad or foolish behavior when you do so with the intention of helping them to realize their mistake and do better. However, harsh speech motivated by personal rancor, or direct insults for any reason, are not allowed.

Strategies should be from a Red-Pill Perspective

Strategies or discussion of actionable advice requires either a thorough red pill rationale or must be backed by currently existing and accepted red pill theory.

Strategies for securing no-commitment sex from men will not be discussed. This is not only incongruent with the desires of the vast majority of women, it is also so easy to do that no "strategy" is required.

See a Note on Plates.

No Feminism

This is an anti-feminist community, and as such, we are not interested in being "saved" by feminism. Anybody stopping in to weight-in with the feminist perspective will be shown the door, as it is off topic.

This is NOT Purple Pill Debate

RPW does not exist to justify our beliefs. If you have a problem with this sub, its overall mission statement, or any of the users on this sub – move along. We are not going to engage in useless debates.

No Concern Trolling

Concern trolling is the act of complaining or attempting to gain the support of others by appearing to have the best interest in the subreddit in mind, hoping only to change small details ("it's too xyz," "can't we just"). Concern trolling is banned because it can be used to derail the topic of discussion, and in itself does not add to the quality of discussion.

Guidelines for Asking Relationship Questions

If you are asking a personal relationship question, please provide context by updating your flair, and answering:

- What is the problem, and what do you think is the root of the issue?
- How have you contributed/attempted to mitigate the problem?
- What is your current relationship status?

Be honest with yourself about what background is needed to help the community answer your question. Withholding information doesn't make it less true or relevant. Include the state of your sex life.

Posting Requirements

Please make sure not to post a wall of text. Familiarize yourself with reddit formatting and use linebreaks properly.

- Poorly spelled, formatted, or capitalized posts will be removed.
- No inter-reddit links. Use Archive.Today
- If you post a link or video, please elaborate with a discussion on the content.
- Low effort posts will be removed.
- No memes or image macros.

974

UPVOTES

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

A while back, I was asked by Stephen Marche to do an interview for the Guardian regarding TRP.

It's probably one of the more pleasant takes I've seen in mainstream directed towards us. In place of out-right vitriol is instead pity, which I think is a bit of an upgrade from articles past. I wouldn't be surprised if his thoughts aligned more with ours than he lets on in his writing.

He does seem to outline at a glance that there's an issue and that TRP is addressing it- perhaps harmlessly so. But since he's part of the mainstream media, the narrative must continue. That narrative is that there is a never ending hatred of women ingrained in our culture- and we can't expect our "boys" to deviate from the course when role models like pop stars are also misogynists.

We can't expect much depth from a tabloid (heh) so it should come as no surprise that his final suggestion is that the latent, underlying misogyny is everywhere simply because nobody told us what we needed was a little love and to just stop hating. He suggests that rather than being angry we can't find "love" we should try finding "love." You shouldn't dig too deep.

Here's the unabridged Interview for anybody interested:

Stephen Marche

So just to confirm you are the redditt moderator for the red pill yes? How many do you moderate?

RedPillSchool yes, I am the head moderator for /r/TheRedPill

I moderate about 15 subreddits

but really only a handful are active, TheRedPill, asktrp, redpillwomen, are the big ones.

Stephen Marche How long have you been moderating them all?

RedPillSchool I've been moderating since the red pill's inception, about 3 years

Stephen Marche How much of your time would you say is devoted to TRP?

I mean, it must be close to a full time job, right?

RedPillSchool Probably too much time. During busy weeks there's probably close to 20 hours of moderator duties. During development of TRP.RED, I was spending about 8 hours an evening working on development.

Stephen Marche Wow.

Were you in any way involved in, like, publishing books about the material?

Or was it just the subreddit?

RedPillSchool I hadn't published anything before. I got started when I stumbled upon a few manosphere blogs and realized there wasn't really a good forum for discussion on masculine topics.

Stephen Marche Was there an event that led you to start TRP. Personal or otherwise?

RedPillSchool Well, the events in my life did lead me to it. Having spent my twenties as many guys did looking for relationships or female companionship, I noticed that the dating game just wasn't what I was taught.

Like, what my parents prepared me for, and what I learned from television and movies.

It was stacked against guys, and it was a very unpleasant experience. I noticed the attitude of women in the dating market was very negative, it was a terrible experience

So that lead me to researching others' experiences which lead me to the mansosphere, and eventually the redpill

Stephen Marche Can you give me an example of one of those terrible experiences?

RedPillSchool sure

Well, an experience I had repeatedly were flakes. It hadn't always been this bad, but over the past ten years, the flakiness of women has gotten worse in my experience. You'd meet a girl, hit it off, have a drink together, chat, really connect. Get her number and agree to a date. And either she'd no-show, or cancel right before (or after) she was supposed to meet you. It's rude, it's not good people skills. But in the dating market, it's the new normal.

So for a guy trying to connect with women like myself, I found myself putting in all this effort, to meet women, put myself out there, chat with them, really advertise myself. And to have all that work go to nothing when women flaked, it was very defeating.

It's not the way courting worked when my parents met. There was value to your word when you agreed to a date.

But not our culture now, that's just not what it is any more.

Another example

I noticed that flirting became a blood sport

Fun and friendly conversations became more combative at bars, women would regularly use put downs and insults to knock me off my game. I didn't understand why meeting people had to be such a poor experience.

I later learned that this was women's way of "testing" me. And there was a way to respond to these tests, that a lot of these women were actually interested in me, I just never learned how to deal with this testing.

I later learned not to get emotionally invested in these little games, but rather turn them around and get women to laugh. I would never have known that with what my dad taught me as a kid.

The mansosphere fundamentally became a surrogate father for the life lessons I never got.

Stephen Marche What did your dad teach you about dating?

I mean what was wrong and the trp corrected it?

RedPillSchool My dad taught me to take words at their surface value. Like, people say what they mean. And maybe they did when he was a kid. Or maybe he was clueless and meeting my mom was a fluke.

So I was clueless when I met women. I just knew what he told me about meeting my mom. And what I saw in movies where having a good heart and being yourself is all you need to meet the right girl, and she'll appreciate you for it.

but that's not what happens now. You can't be good, or nice. You have to be attractive. Good and nice aren't attractive any more.

I think my parents had marriage on the mind, my mom looked for good and nice because her parents taught her that. They told her "find a good and nice guy because you need that in a good husband." But girls these days aren't looking for a husband. They might want good and nice when they're 40 and looking to settle. But at 25, girls are looking for a bad boy. And I wasn't bad at all.

Stephen Marche Any specific movies that come to mind that were particularly wrong?

RedPillSchool I can't think of a specific movie at the moment, but I do know a popular television show that my generation grew up with: boy meets girl.

Stephen Marche Right

RedPillSchool Movies do a similar thing though, you find the common mantra is: just tell her how you feel and she'll return the feelings if she likes you.

But it turns out, that's terrible game. You don't pour your heart out. You'll look too invested and scare her away.

Saying it now feels a little silly, like, how was I ever that stupid?

But back then, I thought, this is how you get girls. And they wouldn't respond well to it. They'd say "you're a good friend, but"

and then they'd date guys they call jerks, and complain to me how they're such jerks!

Talk about confusing! Jerks are bad, you hate how he's a jerk, why not date a nice guy like me, then?

I later learned one of the most important lessons: You cannot negotiate attraction.

Stephen Marche OK. Now that is true enough. But here's the thing: Why would you want to be with women who don't want to be with good men?

RedPillSchool Well, you know, because eventually you start wondering why stick to being good when it's never rewarded?

It's not that there were women who liked nice guys- nice guys never got it. It wasn't like there were a bunch of girls looking for good guys and I just needed to go to the library to find them. They didn't exist at all.

So I thought, maybe it's not them who are broken, maybe I gotta change me?

And sure enough, adapting to the market, now girls like me.

Stephen Marche But here's my point. Do you like women more? I mean, the "reward" of using the game seems to be with women you have contempt for. You see what I mean.

RedPillSchool Yes, I see what you mean.

Stephen Marche I mean if these girls see you as a commodity, why bother?

MAYbe that's my naviete. Not having been dating for a long time.

RedPillSchool I think the problem is that my old view of women, when I was unsuccessful and "nice," I did build resentment for women.

so learning that everybody else was playing by different rules actually helped dissolve that resentment

I don't resent them for playing the game. The mating "dance" has always been a back-and-forth between men and women to select their optimal partner

I did resent them, but now I appreciate them quite a bit.

Stephen Marche So you think trp actually made you more repsectful of women?

RedPillSchool Yes, it helped me understand human nature. It was like me getting angry with myself for getting hungry, instead of taking the logical step to feed myself.

So once I understood why and how things happened, it put me at peace with it.

And that's a good thing. I'm in a long term relationship now with a girl that I love, and it works, she's very attracted to me. She compliments me on improvements I've made. And I know without the advice of TRP, I would've been clueless and getting caught up on her "tests" rather than beating them.

Stephen Marche Does she know you're the moderator of TRP?

RedPillSchool Yes

Stephen Marche And how does she feel about it?

RedPillSchool She's a smart lady, so she agrees with the philosophy we discuss on the forum. None of it was terribly surprising to her.

She trusts me, and knows that she's attracted to me. And I think in her mind is that it's probably silly, since, as a woman, she didn't have to put the same amount of effort into attracting a mate. But, if it works, don't fix it.

Stephen Marche You think women don't have to work to find a mate?

RedPillSchool I think women can find a mate with far less effort.

Stephen Marche I mean, man, I once saw my wife putting on "anti-feathering agent" which makes lipstick look better and I thought "Jesus Christ."

RedPillSchool Haha, yes, there's a lot of effort that goes into presenting themselves.

I think the comparison I use is that for guys, if they don't put in effort, they simply won't meet anybody. For women, even if they don't put in effort, their default position is having to reject potential suitors.

Now, finding a mate that they are head over heels in love with, that might not be easy for them.

But for a guy, simply meeting somebody willing to talk them can be such an impossible task that they'll go years without hope

Stephen Marche Do you think TRP helped you find love? Or do you think that was mostly chance?

RedPillSchool Yes, TRP was instrumental in my finding love - not only finding it, but understanding how to find it and what to look for.

Stephen Marche Explain that.

RedPillSchool Well, first of all, there are qualities that you might look for in a mate. In my twenties it was basically a crapshoot of whoever would talk to me was a potential mate.

That's not very effective

Now that I have options with TRP, I can be more selective. And TRP helps me know what girls would make good long term partners.

So finding my current girlfriend, I now have the skills to attract her, to keep her attracted, and the knowledge to know she was worth a long term relationship with Stephen Marche So can you tell me--I don't want to blow your anonymity--but can you just give me a general demographic on yourself.

You're an American, yes?

RedPillSchool Sure, ~30 +/- 3 years, USA handsome

Stephen Marche white, atheist, conservative? Like those polls say the bulk of TRP is?

RedPillSchool haha, yes.

All three though there are a lot of religious people in the community, so atheist isn't a good marker for red pill members

Stephen Marche Trump conservative? Or like Rand Paul conservative?

RedPillSchool I would've preferred Rand, But since he fell out, I'm on board with trump in a very watch-it-burn kind of way

Stephen Marche So I guess the question is why are you starting the new site off Reddit?

RedPillSchool Well there are a few reasons for the new site.

First, we wanted to have a safe backup for our forums if reddit admin kicked us off. We're a very unpopular subject matter and we know the admin have removed other subreddits for being unpopular in subject.

We're accused of misogyny almost daily, so it would make sense if they wanted us gone.

I won't deny that the language is colorful and there's a lot of emotion expressed by the men on the forum.

But there wasn't really a way for guys to express these feelings. It's politically incorrect, but that doesn't mean the feelings just disappear. Guys needed a place for straight-talk with other guys. Like a locker room.

A lot of these guys didn't have dads, or a positive male role model to discuss these things with, so they lack male companionship and comradery

But it's risky, because the gender wars are heated, and feminists are quick on the trigger to try to take down anything they consider wrong. So TheRedPill on reddit is not a safe long-term bet.

We made backup forums, but they're only in case we get moved off reddit. They're locked right now.

Now, the main site that is open now is trp.red, I'm sure you saw

We wanted a place where men could discuss masculine topics with each other without facing the same public shaming outcry that happens on other social media sites.

There are examples of Milo Yiannopoulos getting reported and losing his verified status on twitter because of his views on masculinity and nobody can talk about these subjects on facebook because that's career and family suicide.

it's a big topic that has become taboo in our culture. We just can't talk like men to other men about things that affect men.

So we decided this was a niche that needed to be filled. A place for men to discuss masculine interests without the social backlash of being politically incorrect.

Stephen Marche But surely there's a line somewhere. I mean, to me, the site is 90% locker room talk, then like 10% misogyny. Does that sound fair to you?

RedPillSchool Haha, well I would argue that the definition of misogyny isn't really very concrete, that much is labelled as such because it's inconvenient.

So, let's say there's a guy who just says "well I hate women"

I think that's textbook misogyny and, in fact, we let them say that. Because there's nowhere else for a man to blow off steam. And sometimes you have an experience that makes you think, "women, right?"

but they stay, they learn, they vent, they get advice, they get back on the horse.

The endgame of our advice isn't to hate women. It's to understand them so you can stop being so darn frustrated by them.

Stephen Marche So TRP is a way to work through misogyny and escape it?

RedPillSchool In a way, yes.

But I do take exception to the word. Because I think it's used unfairly to stifle men from venting very real feelings.

Stephen Marche But those real feelings are hostility to women

RedPillSchool I think, a guy gets cheated on by his girlfriend and he swears off women altogether, yeah, you can call it misogyny, obviously all women didn't break his heart.

But he's not really thinking in his head, "all women just hurt me" what he's thinking is "my insatiable desire for women in my life is hurting me " the dark secret is, men need woman, and I think sometimes resent that their happiness is inextricably linked to satiate their biological imperative.

Stephen Marche Do you talk often with Redditt admin about the site or its future?

RedPillSchool Reddit admin do very little to communicate with mods, so there has been no open dialog with them. Though I have contacted them regarding this.

Stephen Marche Sorry. regarding the new site?

RedPillSchool Regarding the subreddit.

Stephen Marche So you didn't start it because of something an admin communicated to you?

RedPillSchool No, there has been no evidence that we're being removed that I know of.

We started this project about a year ago to make sure we were ready if it did happen, because about a year ago they started removing other politically incorrect subreddits. We just wanted to be prepared.

TRP.RED as a social media site was borne out of the original plan for a backup forum. It sort of evolved from our original plans.

Stephen Marche Surely you must find SOME stuff posted on TRP offensive. Or worse

RedPillSchool I think it's about the perspective that you approach the content. I have been very dedicated to ensuring that the space allows for male anger and male venting. Because of this, I understand it and embrace it.

If a guy came on and talked about actually hurting women or plotting to harm them, we'd remove them and possibly contact authorities if there was any risk of an immediate threat.

But this is the one place where men have the freedom to throw around ideas, vent, and discuss openly with other men.

I do, however, see why it is offensive to some people.

For instance, there are people who want to believe that every person is entirely unique and different.

It's a comforting thought that we are all individuals

Some of what we say tries to predict behaviors based on knowledge of the group.

Essentially, a stereotype.

it's offensive to people to think, "well, just because I'm a woman, doesn't mean I will do what these guys are saying, so this is offensive to me."

but I think that lacks an understanding of how generalizations are applied. Of course it's impossible to truly predict behaviors of an individual. We try to capitalize on behavioral trends because we know enough women will behave a certain way.

For instance, enough girls like tall guys, that we can reasonably surmise that being tall will net you better results than being short

But some women date short guys.

It's just a generalization

Stephen Marche That's not really the stuff I'm talking about. It's more the "if women come home with them you can rape them," material.

I mean, I know what a tiny fragment of TRP that is, but it is shocking when you come across it.

RedPillSchool That's the sensationalized version of the red pill that gets bandied around.

Stephen Marche Lets talk about that. The media response to this stuff, because it does seem pretty distorted to me.

RedPillSchool There's no discussion of rape strategies. It's antithetical to our entire purpose, which is to find a way to become attractive enough that women will want to be with us.

If the group was seriously pro-rape, there simply wouldn't be a discussion on building attraction. We'd just take 'em all by force.

There have been probably a handful of comments I've removed over the past three years, and they're usually one-offs by trolls who want to make the group look pro-rape. They're banned and removed, since that is strictly forbidden in our forum rules.

Stephen Marche You been following the Jian Ghomeshi case at all?

RedPillSchool No I haven't

Stephen Marche What do you think of what happened with Roosh V?

RedPillSchool with the roosh v day meetups that were cancelled?

Stephen Marche Yes

RedPillSchool He knew he was infamous and would cause a stir. I think he planned it out that way.

No coverage is bad coverage his message is targeted at guys that cut through the crap, so the news says "pro rape group getting together" and the guys look him up to see what the hubbub is, turns out he's a masculine blogger

Stephen Marche How long do you think you're going to keep running TRP?

RedPillSchool As long as I can

It's changed so many lives including my own

Stephen Marche Can you think of anybody whose life it has changed for the worse?

RedPillSchool Not in particular. There are some guys who got the information but didn't really digest it, and they claim it didn't work.

Stephen Marche Do you think TRP is mostly misrepresented or do you think it kind of courts that shock value?

RedPillSchool I didn't ask for it to be misrepresented, but it is a great advertising scheme when people see shocking headlines and come read what we have, and end up staying.

The truth is, some of these topics are just outside the overton window, no matter how true or false they may be and so there will be outrage

Stephen Marche Does it bother you?

RedPillSchool Not really. I didn't expect mainstream acceptance, nor do I work towards that goal.

130
UPVOTES

Testing, please ignore
19 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://puerarchy.com/referrer.php>

98

UPVOTES

Welcome to Theory Friday - New Posting is Locked Today

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You may have noticed, new posting is locked at the moment. Normal Posting will resume Saturday.

I'm starting our new collection of posts this evening, but I'm putting them up for the day of Friday. We're doing one full day of theory posts and making our way down the sidebar.

For those who have read the sidebar, it's always nice to get a brush up in what's written there, and perhaps it's a great opportunity to chime in with your insights as to what you've learned since you last read the side bar.

For those who haven't read the sidebar, leave a comment below so we can give you a complimentary 30-day ban to give you ample time to get started! ;)

Theory Friday Starts Now!

102
UPVOTES

Theory Friday - No Stupid Questions Thread

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Post your embarrassingly stupid questions here, and we'll answer.

Read the Entire Article Here

Excerpts:

The Myth of Female Oppression : All of us have been taught how women have supposedly been oppressed throughout human existence, and that this was pervasive, systematic, and endorsed by ordinary men who presumably had it much better than women. In reality, this narrative is entirely fabricated. The average man was forced to risk death on the battlefield, at sea, or in mines, while most women stayed indoors tending to children and household duties. Male life expectancy was always significantly lower than that of females, and still is.

Warfare has been a near constant feature of human society before the modern era, and whenever two tribes or kingdoms went to war with each other, the losing side saw many of its fighting-age men exterminated, while the women were assimilated into the invading society. Now, becoming a concubine or a housekeeper is an unfortunate fate, but not nearly as bad as being slaughtered in battle as the men were. To anyone who disagrees, would you like for the men and women to trade outcomes?

Women believed that they could free themselves from all their traditional obligations (only to find, amusingly, that they are unhappier now than they were then), while men would still fulfill all of their traditional obligations, particularly as bankrollers of women and protectors of women. Needless to say, despite the chivalry ground into men, eventually, they will feel that chivalry requires a level of gratitude that is not forthcoming.

...

Patriarchy works because it induces men and women to cooperate under their complementary strengths. 'Feminism' does not work, because it encourages immoral behavior in women, which eventually wears down even the durable chivalry of beta men, making both genders worse off. It is no secret that single motherhood is heavily subsidized, but it is less understood that single spinsterhood is also heavily subsidized through a variety of unsustainable and unreciprocated means. The default natural solution is for the misandric society to be outcompeted and displaced.

Population Displacement : So we have arrived at a society where 'feminists' feel that they are 'empowered', 'independent', and 'confident', despite being heavily dependent on taxes paid mostly by men, an unconstitutional shadow state that extracts alimony and 'child support' from men, an infrastructure maintained by men, technologies invented by men, and a level of safety that men agree to maintain. So exactly what has society received from this population of women who are the most privileged class of humans ever to have lived?

Now, let me be clear; I believe a woman should get to decide how many children she bears, or even whether or not to have any children at all. However, a childless old woman should not then be able to extract resources from the children of other women. Fair is fair, and the obligation of working-age people to support the elderly should not be socialized in order to subsidize women who chose not to reproduce.

Let us take a hypothetical example of three 20- year-old single women, one who is an urban lefto-'feminist', one who is a rural conservative, and one who is a devout Muslim. The following table charts the parallel timelines of their lives as their ages progress in tandem, with realistic estimates of typical life events. When people talk about falling birth rates in the West, they often fail to account for the additional gap caused by having children at age 23 vs. at age 33. As the table shows, a 1:1:1 ratio of three young ladies takes only 40 years to yield a 12:4:0 ratio of grandchildren. Consider, also, that we are already 20 years into this 40-year process, so each of these women are 40 years old today.

So how do we estimate the value society will ultimately receive from organizing itself in a manner that young women could choose a life of bar-hopping, shopping for $300 purses, and working as government bureaucrats to make the government a more complete husband substitute? If the sight of a pitiful 60-year-old Code Pink harpy lecturing 12 Muslim adolescents that 'gender is a social construct' seems amusing, then let us move on to the macro chart. This world map(click to enlarge) shows how many children under the age of 15 existed in the major countries of the world in 2005 (i.e. born between 1990 and 2005), in proportion to the country with the most children. Notably, Mexico and the US have the same number of children, while Pakistan and Bangladesh each have about as many as all of Western Europe. While developing countries are seeing their fertility rates converge to Western levels, the 1990-2005 births already seal certain realities. Needless to say, if we move time forward just 15 years, the proportions in this chart reflect what the proportions of adults aged 20-35 (the female reproductive years) will be per nation in the year 2025. Even the near future belongs to those who show up.

Lefto-'feminists' will be outbred and replaced very quickly, and rural American conservatives will be the only resiliently youthful population among all the world's white ethnicities. The state that lefto- 'feminists' so admire will quickly turn on them once the state calculates that these women are neither producing new taxpayers nor new technologies, and will find a way to demote them from their present 'empowered' position of entitlement. If they thought having obligations to a husband was such an awful prospect, wait until they have obligations to the husband-substitute state.

Discuss

69

UPVOTES

Women in Love

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Read the Entire Article Here

Excerpt:

Today's pull quote comes from Xpat Ranting's blog. The discourse there is brief, but insightful:

I really, really, really hope the myth that girls are the hopeless romantics gets kicked to the curb ASAP. Everyone needs to realize that men are the "romantics pretending to be realists" and women; vice versa

I found this particularly thought provoking – Men are the romantics forced to be the realists, while women are the realists using romanticisms to effect their imperatives (hypergamy). This is a heaping mouthful of cruel reality to swallow, and dovetails nicely into the sixth Iron Rule of Tomassi:

Iron Rule of Tomassi #6 Women are utterly incapable of loving a man in the way that a man expects to be loved.

In its simplicity this speaks volumes about about the condition of Men. It accurately expresses a pervasive nihilism that Men must either confront and accept, or be driven insane in denial for the rest of their lives when they fail to come to terms with the disillusionment.

Women are incapable of loving men in a way that a man idealizes is possible, in a way he thinks she should be capable of.

Discuss

52

UPVOTES

Men in Love

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Read the whole article here

Excerpts:

Can men really not tell when a woman doesn't love them?

No, they can't.

Why? Because men want to believe that they can be happy, and sexually satisfied, and appreciated, and loved, and respected by a woman for who he is. It is men who are the real romantics, not women, but it is the grand design of hypergamy that men believe it is women who are the romantic ones.

Hypergamy, by its nature, defines love for women in opportunistic terms, leaving men as the only objective arbiters of what love is for themselves. So yes, men can't tell when a woman doesn't love them, because they want to believe women can love them in the ways they think they could.

So he finds a woman, who says and shows him that she loves him, but not in the manner he's had all this time in his head. Her love is based on qualifications and is far more conditional than what he'd been led to believe, or convinced himself, love should be between them. Her love seems duplicitous, ambiguous, and seemingly, too easily lost in comparison to what he'd been taught for so long is how a woman would love him when he found her.

So he spends his monogamous efforts in 'building their relationship' into one where she loves him according to his concept, but it never happens. It's an endless tail-chase of maintaining her affections and complying with her concept of love while making occasional efforts to draw her into his concept of love. The constant placating to her to maintain her love conflicts with the neediness of how he'd like to be loved is a hypergamic recipe for disaster, so when she falls out of love with him he literally doesn't know that she no longer loves him. His logical response then is to pick up the old conditions of love she had for him when they first got together, but none of that works now because they are based on obligation, not genuine desire. Love, like desire, cannot be negotiated.

Discuss.

46

UPVOTES

Of Love and War

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Article is here, read it

Excerpt:

A Place to Rest

Peregrine John summed it up best on Jacquie's blog comments recently:

We want to relax. We want to be open and honest. We want to have a safe haven in which struggle has no place, where we gain strength and rest instead of having it pulled from us. We want to stop being on guard all the time, and have a chance to simply be with someone who can understand our basic humanity without begrudging it. To stop fighting, to stop playing the game, just for a while.

We want to, so badly.

If we do, we soon are no longer able to.

This is a realization that men don't make until they are in a 'love relationship' with a woman. For men this is (should be) the catalyst for maturing beyond that want for an idealized unconditional love. At that point they come full circle and understand that the conceptual love they'd hoped they could return to (or could be) with their mother doesn't exist in the woman he's 'in love' with, and ultimately, never really existed between he and his mother from his infancy to adulthood.

There is no rest, there is no respite or reprieve from performing, but so strong is the desire for that unconditional love assurance that men thought it prudent to write it into "traditional" marriage vows – 'for better or for worse, for richer or for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love, cherish, and obey, forsaking all others until death do you part' – in other words, a pledge of unconditional love in spite of all circumstance. Those vows are a direct plea for insurances against a female hypergamy that would otherwise be unfettered were it not made in the context of being before God and man.

Discuss

Read this article here

Excerpt:

I've detailed in many prior threads that mate selection is a psycho-biological function that millennia of evolution has hardwired into both sexes. So internalized and socialized is this process into our collective psyches that we rarely recognize we're subject to these motivators even when we continually repeat the same behaviors manifested by them (such as having the second kid with the Alpha Bad Boy). So saying that we're not subject to conditions we're or are only vaguely aware of is a bit naive.

It's simple deductive logic to follow that for a species to survive it must provide its offspring with the best possible conditions to ensure its survival – either that or to reproduce in such quantity that it ensures survival. The obvious application of this for women is sharing parental investment with the best possible mate her own genetics allow her to attract and who can provide long term security for her and any potential offspring. Thus women are biologically, psychologically and sociologically the filters of their own reproduction, where as men's reproductive methodology is to scatter as much of his genetic material as humanly possible to the widest available quantity of sexually available females. He of course has his own criteria for mating selection and determining the best genetic pairing for his reproduction (i.e. she's gotta be hot), but his criteria is certainly less discriminating than that for women (i.e. no one's ugly after 2am). This is evidenced in our own hormonal biology; men possess between 12 and 17 times the amount of testosterone (the primary hormone in sexual arousal) women do and women produce substantially more estrogen (instrumental in sexual caution) and oxytocin (fostering feelings of security and nurturing) than men.

That stated, both of these methodologies conflict in practice. For a woman to best ensure the survival of her young, a man must necessarily abandon his method of reproduction in favor of her own. This then sets a contradictory imperative for him to pair with a woman who will satisfy his methodology. A male must sacrifice his reproductive schedule to satisfy that of the woman he pairs with. Thus, with so much genetic potential at stake on his part of the risk, he wants not only to ensure that she is the best possible candidate for breeding (and future breeding), but also to know that his progeny will benefit from both parent's investment.

Discuss

108
UPVOTES

Briffault's Law

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This has been posted a few times, and comes up in comments a lot, but we've got a lot of new users here...

BRIFFAULT'S LAW:

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

There are a few corollaries I would add:

- Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.
- Any agreement where the male provides a current benefit in return for a promise of future association is null and void as soon as the male has provided the benefit (see corollary 1)
- A promise of future benefit has limited influence on current/future association, with the influence inversely proportionate to the length of time until the benefit will be given and directly proportionate to the degree to which the female trusts the male (which is not bloody likely).

Full Post here

Discuss

274

UPVOTES

Man Affections vs Boy Affections

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The site is down sometimes so here's a cached copy:

Man affections vs boy affections

a while back i finally figured out what makes a good relationship.

most of the gamey talk is all focused on getting laid. getting laid is the easiest thing in the world, after you do it for a while. what's not nearly as simple is to maintain an excellent relationship. i'm going to venture out on a limb and say that MOST relationships are crap. and yet it's really just two fundamental principles, that determine the success of any relationship. it's ridiculous that it took me so long to figure this out.

my relationships used to be sort of average. have a girlfriend, sometimes you get along, sometimes you don't. sometimes she's a cunt, sometimes she's nice. sooner or later there are the annoying bits of jealousy and wondering if she's cheating, and then all the arguments and breakups. standard shit.

to figure out why most relationships suck, eventually you have to look at the type of emotional connection you are seeking:

- emotional validation from your partner
- being able to 'trust' your partner
- support from your partner
- sort of, almost unconditional love from your partner, 'as you are'
- seeking approval from your partner

there's more aspects, but that's probably enough to make the point we're getting to.

we are simple creatures. we are programmed to have an emotional connection to the opposite sex. to get a little weird about it for a second though, think about how this programming expresses itself:

there are only two types of man-love our brain is wired for.

one, the love you got, wanted to get, hoped for, maybe experienced – from your mother, as a child. that's a key kind of emotional connection to the female. and, as much as that sounds fucked up, it's the type of connection most men are trying to find again in their adult life – from a girlfriend / wife.

seriously consider this. look at the few bullet points above. what kind of 'love' is that? let's not judge it, just look at it objectively. that's how most men view love. they don't think about it consciously, but that's the love they got to experience as a child.

here's some news: no girl will ever love you like your mom did.

before we get a bit more into that, let's look at the other type of man-love our brain has wiring for:

the love a father has for his daughter.

again, we have to remove all the incestuous, sexualized, weird bits of it, and just look at the emotional components that drive the type of interaction, expectation, dependence, and outcome. how does a father love his daughter?

- giving emotional validation to the child
- rationing trust, with having 'hand' – control
- providing support
- molding her in his image
- giving approval, as long as the child does as it is supposed to compare these bullets to the ones above. how do you feel about that? take out the mother / daughter thing. just look at the giving & taking ratios, look at where the control lies.

there is always control in a relationship. question is just – who has it?

there is no other emotional romantic connection wiring in our brain. it's either seeking the love you got from your mother as a child, or creating the love you get from your offspring.

everything manosphere talks about fits into this model. the whole concept of 'beta' is embodied in how men deal with women who they want maternal love from. they are the weak ones, seeking approval, expecting this ocean of support, putting a woman on a pedestal. and guess what – it works for shit. mom love is done after you are grown up. realizing that means having to step away from that, coming to terms with the fact that this kind of emotional bond is DONE. being a man means being at the top of the social hierarchy. on the flip side, relationships suddenly work incredibly well when you treat a girl not like an adult that you look up to, an adult that you seek validation from – but like a child.

think about it. shit tests? from an adult, maybe. but a child? how do you treat a child who shit tests you? well ... a lot of men haven't grown up enough to be called men, so they still wouldn't know. but for some of us, all that's missing is this conscious realization. you don't seek the validation of a child, do you? you don't ask a child if it's ok for you to go out, do you? when you want a child to do something, how do you address it?

i'm not saying, 'be a dick'. you still game children, a lot. you want to reward them for good behavior. dealing with kids isn't easy, either. but if you figure that out, then you also figure out a healthy relationship with a girl. i don't really believe that the 'asshole game' is a fully evolved strategy. it's just better than wanting a replacement mom. so when a girl has the choice between a grown up (who is an asshole) vs a sniveling boy who wants a mother – she will of course pick the asshole.

but give her the choice between a father figure, an asshole, and a sniveling boy and the father figure will win, every time. part of that is giving validation, creating boundaries, being clearly in control.

if you want a great relationship, start reading parenting psychology books (not the new age feminist ones). and dog training books. you can take this however far you want, once you get comfortable. xsplat likes to go full on daddy. it's a genius move. a bit depraved? maybe. but better than the advocates of game stuff who act like children themselves – basically saying 'treat girls like you are 12 and in a sandbox with a girl'. and better than mainstream culture which puts out disney shit and romantic comedies that all emulate maternal love relationships (which don't exist).

my relationships have become something entirely different since i started taking the father figure approach. girls love it. they are willing to do anything and everything, and the general bullshit from girls is maybe 5% of what it used to be – before i figured this out.

Original Source (which has been down and up a few times, so we're reprinting it here):

<http://www.cedonulli.com/healthy-vs-shitty-relationships-two-principal-types-of-love/>

Read the whole thing here.

Excerpt:

FALLOUT OF THE REVOLUTION: “DATE RAPE”

Take a girl too young to understand what erotic desire is and subject her to several years of propaganda to the effect that she has a right to have things any way she wants them in this domain—with no corresponding duties to God, her parents or anyone else. Do not give her any guidance as to what it might be good for her to want, how she might try to regulate her own conduct or what qualities she ought to look for in a young man. Teach her furthermore that the notion of natural differences between the sexes is a laughable superstition that our enlightened age is gradually overcoming—with the implication that men’s sexual desires are no different from or more intense than her own. Meanwhile, as she matures physically, keep her protected in her parents’ house, sheltered from responsibility.

Then, at age seventeen or eighteen, take her suddenly away from her family and all the people she has ever known. She can stay up as late as she wants! She can decide for herself when and how much to study! She’s making new friends all the time, young women and men both. It’s no big deal having them over or going to their rooms; everybody is perfectly casual about it. What difference does it make if it’s a boy she met at a party? He seems like a nice fellow, like others she meets in class.

Now let us consider the young man she is alone with. He is neither a saint nor a criminal, but, like all normal young men of college years, he is intensely interested in sex. There are times he cannot study without getting distracted by the thought of some young woman’s body. He has little experience with girls, and most of it unhappy. He has been rejected a few times without much ceremony, and it was more humiliating than he cares to admit. He has the impression that for other young men things are not as difficult: “Everybody knows,” after all, that since the nineteen-sixties men get all the sex they like, right? He is bombarded with talk about sex on television, in the words to popular songs, in rumors about friends who supposedly “scored” with this or that girl. He begins to wonder if there isn’t something wrong with him. Furthermore, he has received the same education about sex as the girl he is now with. He has learned that people have the right to do anything they want. The only exception is rape. But that is hardly even relevant to him; he is obviously incapable of doing something like that.

He has also been taught that there are no important differences between the sexes. This means, of course, that girls want sex just as badly as he does, though they slyly pretend otherwise. And are not their real desires verified by all those Cosmopolitan magazine covers he sees constantly at the grocery store? If women are so eager to read such stuff, why should it be so damned difficult to find just one girl willing to go to bed with him?

But tonight, finally, something seemed to click. He met a girl at a party. They chatted, perhaps drank a bit: all smiles, quite unlike the girls who had been so quick about rejecting him in high school. She even let him come to her room afterwards (or came to his). It doesn’t take a genius to figure out what she is thinking, he says to himself. This is a tremendously important moment for him; every ounce of his self-respect is at stake. He is confused and his heart is pounding, but he tries to act as if he knows what he is doing. She seems confused, too, and he meets no more than token resistance (or so it seems to him). He doesn’t actually enjoy it, and isn’t sure whether she does either. But that is beside the point; it only matters that he can finally consider himself a man. Later on they can talk about what terms they want to be on, whether she will be his regular girlfriend, etc. Matrimony is not exactly uppermost in his mind, but he might not rule it out—eventually. He asks her how she feels afterwards, and she mumbles that she is “okay.” This sets his mind at rest. An awkward parting follows.

Later that night or the next morning our young woman is trying to figure out what in hell has happened to her. Why had he gotten so pushy all of a sudden? Didn’t he even want to get to know her first? It was confusing, it all happened so quickly. Sex, she had always heard, was supposed to be something wonderful; but this she had not enjoyed at all. She felt somehow used. Of course, at no point does it enter her mind to question her own right to have been intimate with the young man if she had wanted to. Moral rule number one, we all know, is that all sex between consenting adults is licit. She just isn't sure whether she had really wanted this. In fact, the more she thinks about it, the more certain she feels that she hadn't. But if she hadn't wanted it, then it was against her will, wasn't it? And if it was against her will, that means...she's been raped?

I sympathize with the young woman, in view of a miseducation which might have been consciously designed to leave her unprepared for the situation she got herself into. But as to the question of whether she was raped, the answer must be a clear no.

Let me explain by means of an analogy with something less emotionally laden. Consider someone who purchases a lottery ticket which does not win the prize. Suppose he were to argue as follows: "I put my money down because I wanted the prize. I wouldn't have paid if I had known I was going to lose; therefore I have been deprived of my money against my will; therefore I am the victim of theft." No one would accept this argument as valid. Why shouldn't we?

For the very good reason that it denies the fundamental principle behind all personal responsibility. Those who want to make their own choices in life must be willing to accept the consequences of those choices. Consider the alternative: If every loser in a lottery were entitled to a refund there would be no money left for the prize, and so no lottery. For similar reasons, most civilized institutions depend upon people taking responsibility for their actions, keeping agreements and fulfilling obligations regardless of whether or not they happen to like the consequences.

The grandmother of the young woman in our story was unaware that she possessed a "right" to sleep with any boy who took her fancy—or to invite him to her bedroom and expect nothing to happen. It was the male and female sexual utopians of the postwar period who said women should be allowed unlimited freedom to choose for themselves in such matters. Unfortunately, they did not lay much stress on the need to accept the consequences of poor choices. Instead, they treated the moral and social norms women in particular had traditionally used to guide themselves as wholly irrational barriers to pleasure. Under their influence, two generations of women have been led to believe that doing as they please should lead to happiness and involve no risk. Hence the moral sophistry of "I didn't like it; ergo I didn't want it; ergo it was against my will."

Source here

Excerpt:

Think about how a teenager refers to the family sedan, which the parents paid for, as our car. But the i-pod which he purchased with money he earned part-time at McDonald's is his i-pod. Is not the teenager's/child's default that his parent's possessions are "ours" while those possessions he purchased with money he earned himself are "his," and his alone? This directly mimics even my own parent's marriage, where my father worked his entire lifetime to pay the bills for the family and put a roof over our heads, but when the kids were off to school and my mom took up working, the money she earned doing so was "her money." It did not go into the family pot as my father's income did, but became her own "special money" in almost the same way that a child's allowance or earnings are "his money."

(Right Now I Feel Like)...

Perhaps you have heard the old saying, "It's a woman's prerogative to change her mind..." This is something we usually write off as a cute quirk of female behaviour (even though it often causes untold damage to others), but think for a moment how this resembles the behaviour of children & teenagers. Ask a child what they want to be when they grow up and they will tell you "a fireman," then ask them a week later and they will say "an astronaut." Young people will do this right through high-school and on into university where they almost assuredly will change their major at least once, not to mention that after getting their degree, the odds are there will be more changes in their plans once again.

If I were a parent who had a teenager that told me they wanted to be a doctor in the future, I would do well to insert the phrase "Right now I feel like (I want to be a doctor)," in front of every choice the teenager has claimed they made. Certainly, I wouldn't 100% take them at their word and start depleting my resources in an attempt to help them become a doctor, because in a month or two, the teen will tell me they no longer want to be a doctor but have decided on the career path of Famous Rock Star instead.

One of the sad facts of entering adulthood is that you are forced to make choices which you must stick to in order to be successful in your ventures. The person who decides early to stick to a career as an auto-mechanic will likely be much more successful in life than his peer who spends age 18 to 24 pursuing a career as psychologist, then quits and spends another 6 years attempting a career as an electrician, only to quit again to gain qualification as an accountant. Part of "adulthood" is about making choices that you stick to for the long term, so that those ventures have enough time to bear fruit. Those who change their minds too often rarely harvest the fruits of their labour. In other words, making a choice to go in one direction often closes the door to other choices. We allow children the latitude to change their minds as they grow-up, but after a time we start to insist they make a choice and stick to it.

Women as well change their minds like teenagers do. Sure, she might decide that (right now she feels like) she wants to be a doctor, but as evidence has shown in the medical profession, most women who train to be doctors spend less than a decade working full-time in said profession before quitting and deciding that (right now she feels like) she wants to be a mother. Afterwards, most of these women decide that (right now she feels like) she only wants to work as a part-time doctor. Of course, as time goes on, she has less and less experience than the male doctor who never "took a break" to explore other choices life had to offer and he quickly outpaces her in that field, even without the Patriarchy conspiring behind the scenes to hold her back. . When a woman tells you she will love you forever, insert the phrase (Right now I feel like) before it, so you get the proper translation into Womanese: "(Right now I feel like) I will love you forever. All evidence shows that this should include vows made at the altar as well, since the vast majority of divorces are initiated by women rather than men.

Q: "Do you take this man as your lawful wedded husband, to have and to hold until death do you part?" A: "(Right now I feel like) I do!”

Sure women stick to their choices better than children do, but they don't do it as well as men do either. In other words, women's behaviour exists somewhere in between the child and the man... kinda like a teenager.

Discuss.

A planet forms from floating debris in space, on it, things exist. Some become autonomous. Some not.

On this planet exist a stone and a man.

What gives a stone value? It has no inherent value. Indeed, the term value is, in a universe sans consciousness, meaningless.

However a man may find use in the stone with which to build a shelter. This man has found value in this stone. The stone, itself being non-sentient, has no way to determine value, and therefore does not hold within itself a concept of self-value.

The man, however, through the experience of being sees value in himself, as without his being, he can no longer experience. This would be the most intrinsic value to any living being. The value of self.

Fast forward hundreds of years. Two men find a stone.

The first man sees the stone and the possibility to utilize it to build himself a home. To him, the rock has great value.

The second man already has a home, and sees no possible utility for the stone.

Has the second man somehow changed the value of the stone for the first? Has either made any indication of this stone's objective inherent value? Alas, there is no framework in which all members of a system agree entirely on the value of a stone, only that the stone itself has the ability to hold value for at least some of the members. Again, the stone holds no value to itself, as the stone is non-sentient.

The man who finds a stone needs help building his house. For this purpose, he needs an able bodied man who is strong enough to lift the stone. This man will have value in this purpose. To the builder, a young, weak man who is not able-bodied will have no value for this project. Likely, in the case of survival, the cripple will provide little value in almost any endeavor.

Does this mean the crippled man has no value to himself? If he discontinues existing, he will no longer be able to experience. The experience itself holds intrinsic value, as without experience, there is no value.

What one person sees in another will never, and can never be an objective declaration of value. There is no system or framework in which all members can or need to agree on value of any person or object. A starving man values a single grape, when the glutton may not value ones that do not immediately please his eyes.

A few questions to ask yourself.

1. What makes you think that you're so special you should hold an intrinsic value to strangers, if you have not provided some level of value to them?
2. If you're worried about not being valued, ask yourself what is it you bring to the table worthy of value?

Men are taught from a very early age that in order to be valued in society, they need to bring value to the table. Men focus and hone crafts, trade skills, personality for sales, strength for labor, and a myriad of other value-adding traits.

Do you suppose you should deserve an equal amount of value in the eyes of all if you do not provide something valuable? Or are you making the very simple mistake of believing that having a vagina has somehow equated you to these things?

The problem is that you're used to society saying that because of who you are, you somehow have an intrinsic value.

I have just shown you that this is false, there is no intrinsic value beyond that which you have for yourself. Your vagina has given you inflated value to most, since most men are biologically programmed to trip over themselves trying to gain access to one.

We aren't denying that women can bring value to the table. We're just denying that merely having a vagina gets you that value. If you want to be valued by us, you'll have to do it the hard way- the same way we do.

You don't have to though, there are plenty of sex-deprived betas drooling at a chance to worship your vagina. To them you hold value. To us, you're just another person until you've shown us value.

My point was that sexual strategy is amoral. You might stick to your values, but those who have sex .. have sex.

It's best illustrated through our ancestors. The idea was that whether or not we like the methods used- whoever procreated made children, and those who didn't.. didn't.

Your understanding of how morality works is a bit flawed here. You see, there is no universal morality. There is nothing in the universe applying any law other than those of physics. The rest is abstraction.

Morality is not black and white.

Let's look at stealing for instance. If I steal a loaf of bread, we would normally consider that wrong. But what if I were a starving child on the street and I have no other way of surviving? If I stole that bread and ate it to survive the night, was this right? Is it a grey area?

People make value judgements every day to determine what the best survival strategy is, (and to maximize happiness if basic needs are met).

Most people realized very early on that one good survival strategy was to not be murdered. Sounds pretty basic. So a social contract was developed. I won't murder you if you don't murder me!

But if somebody invades our group, we can kill them!

So we can see that even killing is not right or wrong in a black and white sense.

Murder, stealing, rape, these were all concepts that most people entering into the social contract said, I don't want these things, my best strategy is to cooperate, therefore I should not do them. And the basic framework of morality was built.

Killing Nazis? Moral. Killing your neighbor? Immoral. A simple code to pass on the social contract that enables society and really helped us as a species!

I think you and I agree when I say that we've both signed on to this concept. I don't want to be murdered, and I willingly take part in a social contract of not murdering. Most people have this concept built in evolutionarily- it's called empathy! Empathy helped groups to survive. Empathy follows this model, as most felt righteous or indifferent towards the killing of enemies and food.

So, yes, there is a framework we're calling morality, but understand what gave rise to it and how/why it works. Also understand that morality is not a constant nor objective, and some people have determined a different set of rules will best maximize their success or happiness. If they break our rules, we determine it to be detrimental to our own survival, because we depend on the social contract to exist ourselves!

So we punish murderers. It adds disincentive to breaking our moral code. And I'm fine with that.

Here's where things get a bit hairy. If my mating strategy is to dismiss a maximum number of potential mates (hypergamy), and I tell people certain mating strategies are immoral, then I can get other people to agree to it.

But what happens if this framework isn't based on a contract that benefits all who participate?

What if you signed a contract that said you will pay me $40/month, but I will provide nothing in return?

Eventually you realize that the contract makes no sense!

Sexual strategy is amoral. There are those who have sex, and there are those who do not. What contract will you sign up for? The one that results in you having sex? Or the ones that you're told are moral to uphold but do not bring you sex?

Obviously understanding that we are operating within other frames we believe do benefit us. Obviously rape is a poor decision because it goes against the personal freedom social contract we currently live by. And I support that ideal.

But we're also told that an older man courting a young impressionable 19 year old is immoral because of the age gap- he's too influential, it would be coercion. Tell me, if we avoid doing this out of our sake for morality- where is our benefit in this social contract? It's the feminine imperative you are seeing.

Do not exploit common psychology to build attraction because it is immoral.

This is a prime example of why sexual strategy is amoral. Because at the end of the day, their mating strategy is contingent on beta's failures, and our strategy is based on theirs to fail! Therefore there is no common social contract that we can commit to that benefits both genders. Only men are so easily fooled into entering into these social contracts because they work well for society in general, that they forgot to look at the feminine imperative and ask, but how does that benefit me?

Sexual strategy is amoral.

52

UPVOTES

On the implications of powertalk and other language categories.

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Source Here

Excerpt:

By now, many of us have read Venkatesh Rao's interesting column, linked ~~here~~ (bot doesn't allow links) by TRPsubmitter, on different kinds of language in the workplace.

Already it is ~~generating some commentary~~ (bot doesn't allow links), mostly focused on the concept of the "PowerTalk" language... because communications in that language are the ones which cause real change.

However, in order to understand the concept of powertalk in general, we have to tease it away from examples that make it specific to "The Office" as a story, and the workplace as a setting, and create some more general definitions.

What are distinguishing characteristics of powertalk?

- It is used to get something for oneself, rather than to convey information.
- It can be truth or lies, according to the needs of the speaker.
- It is plausibly deniable.

The distinguishing feature of sociopaths, or power players, if you will, is that they are fluent in powertalk. This sets them apart from the group Rao calls "Clueless", which we might call naive, or surface communicators, or spergs, in that this group mistakes powertalk for straighttalk.

Now, EVERYONE engages in straighttalk from time to time. How long does that machine bolt need to be? Where is Sausalito? Will you that be for here or to go? What were the results of our wind tunnel study? Straighttalk just means language used to communicate a piece of information.

But the distinguishing characteristic of the sperg is that they engage in straighttalk all the time.

The third type, whom Rao calls "Losers", which we might call "awakened" or "cynics", is that they are aware of the existence of powertalk, but are unable or unwilling to accept it as just a morally neutral reality, and to employ it to their advantage. Instead, they observe and often resent it. They are stuck in the question of whether powertalk is "good" or "bad", and unable to consider the "how" of using it.

They engage in straighttalk at times, but not always. They also engage in what Rao calls "GameTalk" which is like powertalk, but with out key difference... it is self-oriented.

315

UPVOTES

Why most of today's women aren't worthy of your commitment.

22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full Post here, READ IT

Excerpt:

If you're Machiavellian and understand women you will have no problem managing female bullshit. The real problem I think is most guys find the cherry just isn't sweet enough. That's to say, although YOU COULD manage her YOU'RE JUST NOT SUFFICIENTLY INCENTIVISED TO DO SO. Most women aren't worth the extra effort, simply enough. They take more than they give. For access to a vagina you have to:

- Have her put all her worries and stress on you
- Listen to her boring, empty, vapid social observations
- Deal with her whining/being menstrual/insecure
- Deal with her crazy whenever it rears its head

And you have to deal with all that like a champ, stoically, because if you lose frame too much the relationship is fucked and she doesn't even want you anymore even though she's, to be quite blunt: an insufferable cunt. You pay so much in spirit and mental energy being in a relationship with a woman. Pussy can be had cheaper. If women have shit personalities, why do you want relationships with them? Most women have absolutely no personality that makes them worth commitment. What women don't seem to understand, flying off auto-pilot on their looks in youth, is that a hot tight body only attracts men, it doesn't keep them around. She will lose her beauty. You actually need to be mildly interesting and/or good-natured to be relationship material. So what do we do? We fuck and chuck.

Don't get me wrong, I think a lot of men would like a family - but it has to be with the right woman. Not a dim, boring, narcissistic empty shell of a human-being. Personally I rather never reproduce than put my children through the pain of being raised by a stupid, horrible, whiny self-entitled woman. I don't even care if she's good to the kids, if she's a cunt to me the kids will see that and it will affect them detrimentally. That's not how I imagine raising a family, you either DO IT RIGHT or you don't bother doing it at all.

LTRs should be mother material - most women nowadays aren't mothers because they deserve to be, but simply because they stopped taking their birth control. Too many whores are fucking dragging kids up nowadays, not raising them right - and that's why we have all the problems we do in society. Millennials are a mess because of divorce and single mothers. I don't want to put my kids through that bullshit. If she puts herself above family, she's not a woman I ever see as anything other than a hole to be used for my momentary leisure.

Not only is the reward lower, but the effort necessary is higher. So you're playing on a higher difficulty for a lower prize.

- You have to be vigilant, you can't let your guard down or give into your kindness, because she will exploit it and see you as less for "showing weakness."
- You have less sexual options than if you were single, this one woman is controlling your sexual preferences, and then she'll play games where she doesn't put out to control you. Basically, bitches weaponise your libido against you and then force you to listen to their feelings if you can't sufficiently dread/headfuck them. But if you stray to get your release then it's not her fault, it's yours, you're the evil one.
- She knows you better so she's better at head fucking you. She'll press all your buttons, say shit plates wouldn't know. Say some shit about your mother, say some shit you told her about your childhood. Whatever. Basically any fucking thing you think is sacred she's going to use against you to "test you" and also because bitches are just plain crazy and hormonal and are going to lash out at some point. She's meant to be a partner but you can't even properly open up to her without her abusing that shit. And it's not a matter of IF, it's a matter of WHEN.

- Likewise as she knows you better she's more immune to your techniques/strategies/mannerisms. She will become immune to different gambits/coping mechanisms you use like a fucking disease growing resistant to antibiotics. So you need to change your shit up or it'll all fall apart.
- You have to keep reinventing yourself and being inconsistent, or she gets bored and looks elsewhere for cock on the side. Society/her family will support her in this and she'll just rationalise you're a cunt.
- You don't really get a break. You don't get to let your guard down. Because if you do she freaks out and fucks off. Momentary vulnerability can only be superficial/aesthetic in nature. If you're LEGITIMATELY VULNERABLE she will dry up and abandon you.

So the work you put in IS IMMEASURABLE and the reward is negligible. It's a terrible investment.

Discuss

If you haven't read this book yet, read it. Seriously, what are you still doing here?

Excerpt:

THE SLAVE'S HAPPINESS

The lemon-colored MG skids across the road and the woman driver brings it to a somewhat uncertain halt. She gets out and finds her left front tire flat. Without wasting a moment she prepares to fix it: she looks towards the passing cars as if expecting someone. Recognizing this standard international sign of woman in distress ('weak female let down by male technology'), a station wagon draws up. The driver sees what is wrong at a glance and says comfortably, 'Don't worry. We'll fix that in a jiffy' To prove his determination, he asks for her jack. He does not ask if she is capable of changing the tire herself because he knows - she is about thirty, smartly dressed and made-up - that she is not. Since she cannot find a jack, he fetches his own, together with his other tools. Five minutes later the job is done and the punctured tire properly stowed. His hands are covered with grease. She offers him an embroidered handkerchief, which he politely refuses. He has a rag for such occasions in his tool box. The woman thanks him profusely, apologizing for her 'typically feminine' helplessness. She might have been there till dusk, she says, had he not stopped. He makes no reply and, as she gets back into the car, gallantly shuts the door for her. Through the wound-down window he advises her to have her tire patched at once and she promises to get her garage man to see to it that very evening. Then she drives off.

As the man collects his tools and goes back to his own car, he wishes he could wash his hands. His shoes - he has been standing in the mud while changing the tire - are not as clean as they should be (he is a salesman). What is more, he will have to hurry to keep his next appointment. As he starts the engine he thinks, 'Women! One's more stupid than the next'. He wonders what she would have done if he had not been there to help. He puts his foot on the accelerator and drives off - faster than usual. There is the delay to make up. After a while he starts to hum to himself. In a way, he is happy.

Almost any man would have behaved in the same manner - and so would most women. Without thinking, simply because men are men and women so different from them, a woman will make use of a man whenever there is an opportunity. What else could the woman have done when her car broke down? She has been taught to get a man to help. Thanks to his knowledge he was able to change the tire quickly - and at no cost to herself. True, he ruined his clothes, put his business in jeopardy, and endangered his own life by driving too fast afterwards. Had he found something else wrong with her car, however, he would have repaired that, too. That is what his knowledge of cars is for. Why should a woman learn to change a flat when the opposite sex (half the world's population) is able and willing to do it for her?

Women let men work for them, think for them and take on their responsibilities - in fact, they exploit them. Yet, since men are strong, intelligent and imaginative, while women are weak, unimaginative, and stupid, why isn't it men who exploit women?

Could it be that strength, intelligence, and imagination are not prerequisites for power but merely qualifications for slavery? Could it be that the world is not being ruled by experts but by beings who are not fit for anything else - by women? And if this is so, how do women manage it so that their victims do not feel themselves cheated and humiliated, but rather believe to be themselves what they are least of all - masters of the universe? How do women manage to instil in men this sense of pride and superiority that inspires them to ever greater achievements?

Why are women never unmasked?

Discuss

If you haven't yet taken a look at Rollo's series on Plate Theory, it's an absolutely Must Read for anybody invested in working on their own sexual strategy.

Below are a list of articles and choice excerpts:

Plate Theory

The Cardinal Rule of Relationships In any relationship, the person with the most power is the one who needs the other the least.

When a man spins more plates, when he has irons in the fire, when he is pursuing multiple women simultaneously, when he has options equally worth exploring, a man will have a natural, subconscious (but not exclusively) understanding that if one prospect does not expand, others very well may. This understanding has manifestations in a man's behavior that women key on covertly. There are mannerisms and attitudes that a man with options will subconsciously convey to prospective women that they interpret, and give this man a value as a commodity to be competed for with other females.

Plate Theory II: Non-Exclusivity

Monogamy is a byproduct, not a goal.

One of the biggest hurdles guys have with Plate Theory is breaking themselves of this 'LTR-as-Goal' mentality. Obviously I'm not anti-monogamy, however monogamy should never be a goal, it should be a by-product of Plate Theory, but only when you've properly filtered through enough plates to understand how options play into confidence and controlling the frame. If a woman is unwilling to be non-exclusive with you (i.e. "she'll leave me if I see other girls" fear) she isn't a plate to spin. This seems counterintuitive to a guy with an LTR-As-Goal mentality and it is, but the guy who can fearlessly, and honestly stay above-board with his intent is the one who'll be spinning more plates. Most guys (AFCs in particular) are deathly afraid of losing that ONE perfect girl and so never even attempt to spin more than one plate, much less have any others to compare her 'perfection' to in the first place. I've even seen PUAs do exactly this. They're so impressed with the success of newly perfected techniques that they settle for the ONE 'dream girl' and find that their attentions become valueless to her because she perceives she is his only option for intimacy, his script gets flipped on him, and he gets marginalized. It's not a failure in technique, but rather a failure in his mindset.

Plate Theory III: Transitioning

Men literally live and die according to their options, so it stands to reason they ought to entertain a prolonged period in their lives where they are open to exploring the most options they have access to while concurrently developing and improving themselves prior to making a commitment of this magnitude.

And this is precisely where most men fail. They buy into and internalize psychological social contrivances (i.e. ONEitis) that are little more than effective means of inculcating a self-expectation of accountability and liability to make this commitment, irrespective of maturity level or personal success (not simply financial success). The saddest ones, the AFC ones are the pitiable men who carry these contrivances into marriage and even old age without ever understanding that they had more potential which they squandered due to an inability to see past these contrivances and learn to be selective based on experience.

Plate Theory IV: Goal-State Monogamy

"I'm just not like that. I don't want to be considered a playah. I could never do that to a woman. How can anyone be like that?"

This rationale is a common one and not limited just to AFCs. There are plenty of otherwise confident, positively masculine men who'd still think they owe it to women to allow them to set the frame of their relationships without any fear of competition anxiety. Players are men who're dishonest – they are not spinning plates because they are isolating each plate independent of the other, and this goes back to logistics. Of course you can't find time for anything else if all you do is try to coordinate each individual story with each plate for fear that they discover each other. The plate spinning Man has no need for this, because he NEVER IMPLIES EXCLUSIVITY TO ANY PLATE. Either they accept this or they're not a plate to consider. Done in a frank, honest, yet indirect above-table way you will not be a 'Player' and you will establish yourself as Man who's attention is worth competing for.

Plate Theory V: Lady's Game

It is socially acceptable for a woman to blatantly spin plates.

Does this sound outrageous? While a woman who makes her sexual practices a bit too overt runs the risk of being perceived as a slut (which is dubious in this age as it is), most relatively attractive women covertly have a constant bullpen of starters ready to go to bat at any one time – these are also known as 'Orbiters'. These are the attention providers, the "maybe" guys. And it makes little difference in terms of available options which she chooses at any given time, the very fact that she has five or six of them pursuing her is enough to boost her sense of self-worth, her social status within her same-gender peers, and give her the confidence to drop any one of her plates at a moments notice for any reason knowing that 2 or 3 more guys (or 20 more on facebook) stand ready to take his place, no questions asked and prepared rationalizations at the ready.

In addition, this practice is socially reinforced by women doing the same thing and the social conventions constructed to excuse the behavior. It's the unspoken rule of a woman's prerogative; she can always change her mind. This is a powerful tool for women – in any situation, if a woman doesn't choose to be sexual it is necessarily forced (or obligated), even when it's after the fact. Either the "Jerk" forced her, physically or emotionally, or she had thought she wanted to, but later reconsidered – it makes little difference. In all social situations the default is to side with the feminine, the "weaker sex" – women, from sympathy or empathy, and men, from a desire to eventually become intimate with them. Dalrock expertly describes this convention in his "Don't hit me, I'm a girl" post.

Plate Theory VI: Abundance & Scarcity

By practicing Plate Theory, your mental attitude will be such (or should be such) that you will pass most shit test based simply on this practice. Abundance thinking is the root of Plate Theory. A lot has been written about approaching women (and really life in general) from a position of Abundance. People often make the mistake of assuming that having a wide variety of choices tends to cheapen the commodity, and to a degree this is accurate, but it also allows for a better, learned awareness of which choice amongst the pool is common and which is of higher quality.

Discuss

68

UPVOTES

Women's morphing need for male investment. - Dalrock

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Read the Full Post Here

When women are young and have the power position in the SMP, promiscuity is intoxicating to them. Since they have the power, the short term nature of most of their relationships isn't seen as them being rejected by men, but as them rejecting men. Young women today don't feel the need that previous generations did to secure commitment in their late teens and early 20s because:

1. Only small numbers of other women their age are going after the more public and durable forms of male investment.
2. Their hopping from man to man is seen as occurring on their own terms.

However, as women progress into their late twenties all of this starts to change. Their SMP power relative to men starts to decline and at the same time their peers start to marry in much greater numbers. In other words, their need to secure male investment occurs fairly suddenly, and at the very time their SMP power is starting to dive. This is surprising to many young women because of our cultural denial of the SMP realities Rollo describes.

The Washington Times: piece Economy of sex: It's cheap these days describes this phenomenon:

Although plenty of women dabble in sexual-market relationships and then settle down successfully with life partners, he said, many women are "not witnessing marriage happening on the timetables they prefer and expected."

This is because, as economist Timothy Reickert has found, power shifts away from women as they move toward their 30s

This is where as we continuously see in the media the panic starts to set in. Yet despite the fact that marriage trends are moving in the wrong direction, the vast majority of women in the US still do manage to marry. Only 20% of current 35-39 year old women in the US (all races) have never married. If you understand the reality of hypergamy and women's tendency to focus only on the top tier of men, you can see how powerful the desire to secure male investment is for women.

Read the Full Post Here

162

UPVOTES

The decline of America is not an accident - Vox

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It was planned. The plan was executed. We are living the result:

It was 1969. Kate invited me to join her for a gathering at the home of her friend, Lila Karp. They called the assemblage a "consciousness-raising-group," a typical communist exercise, something practiced in Maoist China. We gathered at a large table as the chairperson opened the meeting with a back-and-forth recitation, like a Litany, a type of prayer done in Catholic Church. But now it was Marxism, the Church of the Left, mimicking religious practice:

"Why are we here today?" she asked.

"To make revolution," they answered.

"What kind of revolution?" she replied.

"The Cultural Revolution," they chanted.

"And how do we make Cultural Revolution?" she demanded.

"By destroying the American family!" they answered.

"How do we destroy the family?" she came back.

"By destroying the American Patriarch," they cried exuberantly.

"And how do we destroy the American Patriarch?" she replied.

"By taking away his power!"

"How do we do that?"

"By destroying monogamy!" they shouted.

"How can we destroy monogamy?"

Their answer left me dumbstruck, breathless, disbelieving my ears. Was I on planet earth? Who were these people?

"By promoting promiscuity, eroticism, prostitution and homosexuality!" they resounded.

Of course, that failed. We haven't seen any increase in any of those things...

Read the Rest Here

68

UPVOTES

Plugged-In : Enter White Knight - Rollo

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

My experience with voicing the views advocated on here in public has nearly always been negative. I have 3 – 4 good male friends who are interested in pick-up (one has read the Mystery Method, for example), and they love it. But these friends are the exception rather than the rule. My parents (beta dad, controlling mum) think my attitude towards women is sexist and my opinion of ONSs “disgusting.” Just about everybody I know subscribes to the Disney/ soulmate view of relationships, and some of my contemporaries (I’m 21) are even starting to settle down and get married. God help them. Talking to girls in bed about what they find attractive in a man is interesting, if only to see the extent to which they delude themselves, but ultimately counter-productive, since a woman (tacitly) expects a man to know how to express his sexuality.

Can we as men ever talk about these things in public? What are your experiences?

Read the Full Article Here

40

UPVOTES

Plugged-In : Average Frustrated Chump - Rollo

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Read this entire article here

The AFC – average frustrated chump – was coined almost a decade ago with Mystery method. It's seen a lot of modification over the years, becoming almost synonymous the use of the term Beta (beta male) or Herb (herbivorous male). In fact, although I use it often, I rarely read AFC in PUA blogs, forums or the 'community' at large. Regardless of the terminology, the concept is really the crux of the term. Most AFCs, most guys looking in from the outside, can relate to the idea of what an average frustrated chump is – they can identify with it. Once they begin unplugging, the AFC idea comes into better focus and, usually with some discomfort, they realize how that term applies to themselves:

Qualities of an AFC

- ONEitis – First and foremost.
- Subscribes to feminine idealizations.
- Supplication is supportive. To comply with gender equalism she must increase, so he must decrease, regardless of how subtly this is realized.
- The Savior Schema –reciprocation of intimacy for problems solved.
- The Martyr Schema – the more you sacrifice the more it shows devotion.
- The 'Friends' Debt – LJBF and the pseudo-friendship as a means to prospective intimacy.
- Primarily relies on dating and social skills (or lack thereof) developed during adolescence and early adulthood
- Read the rest here

45

UPVOTES

Theory Weekend Continues - Posting Threads Is Temporarily Locked

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Due to the great success yesterday, we've decided to extend the Theory Posting for the weekend. We'll be periodically adding more theory posts as we go, so please join in the discussion and take some time out to read up if you haven't already.

Our goal is eventually to link these discussions in the sidebar so that our side-bar articles are no longer sitting in a vacuum, but instead have open discussion surrounding them.

Make sure you visit /new to see all the posts as they arrive.

Regular Posting will Resume Monday.

Enjoy!

Read Unabridged Here

Myth of the Dark Arts

According to common definition, the Dark Triad is a group of three personality traits: narcissism, Machiavellianism and psychopathy, all of which are interpersonally aversive. Depending upon context, that may be a convenient assessment of a sociopathic personality, but it is hardly an accurate assessment of Game as a whole. In its desperation to come to terms with a more widespread acceptance of Game, the feminine imperative had to make some effort to dissuade the common man (see Beta) from embracing the means to his release from the feminine Matrix. Associating Game with Dark Triad personality traits makes this qualification process much easier, since the feminine imperative owns the definition authority of what is social and what is anti-social.

The Bitter Taste of the Red Pill

The truth will set you free, but it doesn't make truth hurt any less, nor does it make truth any prettier, and it certainly doesn't absolve you of the responsibilities that truth requires. One of the biggest obstacles guys face in unplugging is accepting the hard truths that Game forces upon them. Among these is bearing the burden of realizing what you've been conditioned to believe for so long were comfortable ideals and loving expectations are really liabilities. Call them lies if you want, but there's a certain hopeless nihilism that accompanies categorizing what really amounts to a system that you are now cut away from. It is not that you're hopeless, it's that you lack the insight at this point to see that you can create hope in a new system – one in which you have more direct control over.

There are no "Dark Arts", this is simply one last desperate effort of the feminine imperative to drag you back into the Matrix. There is only Game and the degree to which you accept it and are comfortable in using it in the context that YOU define. If that context is under the auspices of a mutually beneficial, mutually loving, mutually respecting LTR monogamy of YOUR choosing, know that it's the fundamentals of Game that are at the root of its success or failure. If that context is in terms of spinning multiple plates, liberating the affections of women from other men, and enjoying a love life based on your personal satisfactions, also understand that it lives and dies based on your understanding the fundamentals of Game.

Read Unabridged Here

The Feminine Imperative, The Feminine Reality, and The Feminine Mystique

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The Feminine Reality

Everything a man experiences, every social conditioning he receives from the earliest age, every accepted social norm and every expectation of him to qualify as the definition of a mature adult Man in contemporary society is designed to serve the female imperative. Moralists wallow in it, absolutists and defeated white knights existentially depend upon it, and even the better part of relativists still (often unwittingly) feed and serve the feminine purpose. In fact, so all encompassing is this reality that we define our masculinity in the terms of how well we can accommodate that feminine influence.

Our media celebrates it, and brooks no dissent. There is very little dissent, since to peel back the veneer is to be at odds with a reality defined by the female purpose. You feel lonely because you can't understand it's influence, and the conditioning you've been subjected to defines the objective solution to curing that feeling. You base the decisions of your future, your education, your career, your religious beliefs, even where you'll choose to live, to better accommodate the feminine influence either in the present or in preparation of accommodating it in the future.

You get married, out of fear for not being found acceptable of it, or from social shame for not yet having accepted your role in service to the imperative. Your children are offered in tribute to it, while in turn you unknowingly perpetuate it in them. You pay tribute in alimony, in divorce proceedings, in the expected sacrifices your career demands to maintain its influence in your own life and in society at large. You exist to facilitate a feminine reality.

We can excuse it with moralisms, we can attach notions of honor and stability to it, we can even convince ourselves that the feminine imperative is OUR own imperative, but regardless, men still serve it. Read More

The Feminine Mystique

Perhaps the single most useful tool women have possessed for centuries is their unknowability. I made that word up, but it's applicable; women of all generations for hundreds of years have cultivated this sense of being unknowable, random or in worse case fickle or ambiguous. This is the feminine mystique and it goes hand in hand with the feminine prerogative – a woman always reserves the right to change her mind – and the (mythical) feminine intuition – “a woman just knows.” While a Man can never be respected for anything less than being forthright and resolute – say what you mean, mean what you say – women are rewarded and reinforced by society for being elusive and, dare I say, seemingly irrational. In fact, if done with the right art, it's exactly this elusiveness that makes her both desirable and intolerably frustrating. However, to pull this off she must be (or seem to be) unknowable, and encourage all of male society to believe so.

The feminine mystique appeals to the feminine psyche for the same reasons ‘chick crack’ works so well in PUA technique. It appeals to the same ‘secret power’ dynamic that makes meta-physical associations so attractive (religion, superstition, intuition, etc.) One need look no further than women's innate love of gossip to understand; There's power in secrets for women. It's hardly a surprise that connections with witchcraft have been associated with the feminine for so long. In an historically male dominated culture it follows that the power of secrecy and mysticism would need to be cultivated into the feminine as a resource for influencing the men in control of it. Sometimes that may have ended with a woman burned at the stake, but more often it was a means to becoming the ‘power behind the throne’ by degrees, and depending upon the status of the man she could enchant.

Combine that mysticism with sexuality, and you've got the feminine mystique – the most useful tool the feminine imperative possesses in it's quest for optimal hypergamy. Read More

26

UPVOTES

The blurry line between the welfare state and child support - Dalrock

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2011/08/22/the-blurry-line-between-the-welfare-state-and-child-support/>

44

UPVOTES

How changes to welfare encouraged the illegitimacy explosion. - Dalrock

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/04/05/how-changes-to-welfare-encouraged-the-illegitimacy-explosion/>

887

UPVOTES

The Sixteen Commandments Of Poon

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The Sixteen Commandments Of Poon

I. Never say 'I Love You' first

Women want to feel like they have to overcome obstacles to win a man's heart. They crave the challenge of capturing the interest of a man who has other women competing for his attention, and eventually prevailing over his grudging reluctance to award his committed exclusivity. The man who gives his emotional world away too easily robs women of the satisfaction of earning his love. Though you may be in love with her, don't say it before she has said it. Show compassionate restraint for her need to struggle toward yin fulfillment. Inspire her to take the leap for you, and she'll return the favor a thousandfold.

II. Make her jealous

Flirt with other women in front of her. Do not dissuade other women from flirting with you. Women will never admit this but jealousy excites them. The thought of you turning on another woman will arouse her sexually. No girl wants a man that no other woman wants. The partner who harnesses the gale storm of jealousy controls the direction of the relationship.

III. You shall make your mission, not your woman, your priority

Forget all those romantic cliches of the leading man proclaiming his undying love for the woman who completes him. Despite whatever protestations to the contrary, women do not want to be "The One" or the center of a man's existence. They in fact want to subordinate themselves to a worthy man's life purpose, to help him achieve that purpose with their feminine support, and to follow the path he lays out. You must respect a woman's integrity and not lie to her that she is "your everything". She is not your everything, and if she is, she will soon not be anymore.

IV. Don't play by her rules

If you allow a woman to make the rules she will resent you with a seething contempt even a rapist cannot inspire. The strongest woman and the most strident feminist wants to be led by, and to submit to, a more powerful man. Polarity is the core of a healthy loving relationship. She does not want the prerogative to walk all over you with her capricious demands and mercurial moods. Her emotions are a hurricane, her soul a saboteur. Think of yourself as a bulwark against her tempest. When she grasps for a pillar to steady herself against the whipping winds or yearns for an authority figure to foil her worst instincts, it is you who has to be there... strong, solid, unshakeable and immovable.

V. Adhere to the golden ratio

Give your woman 2/3 of everything she gives you. For every three calls or texts, give her two back. Three declarations of love earn two in return. Three gifts; two nights out. Give her two displays of affection and stop until she has answered with three more. When she speaks, you reply with fewer words. When she emotes, you emote less. The idea behind the golden ratio is twofold — it establishes your greater value by making her chase you, and it demonstrates that you have the self-restraint to avoid getting swept up in her personal dramas. Refraining from reciprocating everything she does for you in equal measure instills in her the proper attitude of belief in your higher status. In her deepest loins it is what she truly wants.

VI. Keep her guessing

True to their inscrutable natures, women ask questions they don't really want direct answers to. Woe be the man who plays it straight — his fate is the suffering of the beta. Evade, tease, obfuscate. She thrives when she has to imagine what you're thinking about her, and withers when she knows exactly how you feel. A woman may want financial and family security, but she does not want passion security. In the same manner, when she has displeased you, punish swiftly, but when she has done you right, reward slowly. Reward her good behavior intermittently and unpredictably and she will never tire of working hard to please you.

VII. Always keep two in the kitty

Never allow yourself to be a “kept man”. A man with options is a man without need. It builds confidence and encourages boldness with women if there is another woman, a safety net, to catch you in case you slip and risk a breakup, divorce, or a lost prospect, leading to loneliness and a grinding dry spell. A woman knows once she has slept with a man she has abdicated a measure of her power; when she has fallen in love with him she has surrendered nearly all of it. But love is ephemeral and with time she may rediscover her power and threaten to leave you. It is her final trump card. Withdrawing all her love and all her body in an instant will rend your soul if you are faced with contemplating the empty abyss alone. Knowing there is another you can turn to for affection will fortify your will and satisfy your manhood.

VIII. Say you're sorry only when absolutely necessary

Do not say you're sorry for every wrong thing you do. It is a posture of submission that no man should reflexively adopt, no matter how alpha he is. Apologizing increases the demand for more apologies. She will come to expect your contrition, like a cat expects its meal at a set time each day. And then your value will lower in her eyes. Instead, if you have done something wrong, you should acknowledge your guilt in a glancing way without resorting to the actual words “I'm sorry.” Pull the Bill Clinton maneuver and say “Mistakes were made” or tell her you “feel bad” about what you did. You are granted two freebie “I'm sorry”s for the life of your relationship; use them wisely.

IX. Connect with her emotions

Set yourself apart from other men and connect with a woman's emotional landscape. Her mind is an alien world that requires deft navigation to reach your rendezvous. Frolic in the surf of emotions rather than the arid desert of logic. Be playful. Employ all your senses. Describe in lush detail scenarios to set her heart afire. Give your feelings freedom to roam. ROAM. Yes, that is a good word. You're not on a linear path with her. You are ROAMING all over, taking her on an adventure. In this world, there is no need to finish thoughts or draw conclusions. There is only need to EXPERIENCE. You're grabbing her hand and running with her down an infinite, labyrinthine alleyway with no end, laughing and letting your fingers glide on the cobblestone walls along the way.

X. Ignore her beauty

The man who trains his mind to subdue the reward centers of his brain when reflecting upon a beautiful female face will magically transform his interactions with women. His apprehension and self-consciousness will melt away, paving the path for more honest and self-possessed interactions with the objects of his desire. This is one reason why the greatest lotharios drown in more love than they can handle — through positive experiences with so many beautiful women they lose their awe of beauty and, in turn, their powerlessness under its spell. It will help you acquire the right frame of mind to stop using the words hot, cute, gorgeous, or beautiful to describe girls who turn you on. Instead, say to yourself “she's interesting” or “she might be worth getting to know”. Never compliment a girl on her looks, especially not a girl you aren't fucking. Turn off that part of your brain that wants to put them on pedestals. Further advanced training to reach this state of unawed Zen transcendence is to sleep with many MANY attractive women (try to avoid sleeping with a lot of ugly women if you don't want to regress). Soon, a Jedi lover you will be.

XI. Be irrationally self-confident

No matter what your station in life, stride through the world without apology or excuse. It does not matter if objectively you are not the best man a woman can get; what matters is that you think and act like you are. Women have a dog's instinct for uncovering weakness in men; don't make it easy for them. Self-confidence, warranted or not, triggers submissive emotional responses in women. Irrational self-confidence will get you more pussy than rational defeatism.

XII. Maximize your strengths, minimize your weaknesses

In the betterment of ourselves as men we attract women into our orbit. To accomplish this gravitational pull as painlessly and efficiently as possible, you must identify your natural talents and shortcomings and parcel your efforts accordingly. If you are a gifted jokester, don't waste time and energy trying to raise your status in philosophical debate. If you write well but dance poorly, don't kill yourself trying to expand your manly influence on the dancefloor. Your goal should be to attract women effortlessly, so play to your strengths no matter what they are; there is a groupie for every male endeavor. Except World of Warcraft.

XIII. Err on the side of too much boldness, rather than too little Touching a woman inappropriately on the first date will get you further with her than not touching her at all. Don't let a woman's faux indignation at your boldness sway you; they secretly love it when a man aggressively pursues what he wants and makes his sexual intentions known. You don't have to be an asshole, but if you have no choice, being an inconsiderate asshole beats being a polite beta, every time.

XIV. Fuck her good

Fuck her like it's your last fuck. And hers. Fuck her so good, so hard, so wantonly, so profligately that she is left a quivering, sparking mass of shaking flesh and sex fluids. Drain her of everything, then drain her some more. Kiss her all over, make love to her all night, and hold her close in the morning. Own her body, own her gratitude, own her love. If you don't know how, learn to give her squirting orgasms.

XV. Maintain your state control

You are an oak tree. You will not be manipulated by crying, yelling, lying, head games, sexual withdrawal, jealousy ploys, pity plays, shit tests, hot/cold/hot/cold, disappearing acts, or guilt trips. She will rain and thunder all around you and you will shelter her until her storm passes. She will not drag you into her chaos or uproot you. When you have mastery over yourself, you will have mastery over her.

XVI. Never be afraid to lose her

You must not fear. Fear is the love-killer. Fear is the ego-triumph that brings abject loneliness. You will face your fear. You will permit it to pass over and through you. And when your ego-fear is gone you will turn and face your lover, and only your heart will remain. You will walk away from her when she has violated your integrity, and you will let her walk when her heart is closed to you. She who can destroy you, controls you. Don't give her that power over yourself. Love yourself before you love her.

68

UPVOTES

Theory Weekend - No Stupid Questions Thread Part II

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Thanks to the huge success of our No Stupid Questions Thread, We're going to continue the theme in this thread, since the old one got rather large.

Ask your stupid questions here, no judgement zone.

0

UPVOTES

Penis Size Around The World - Chateau Heartiste

23 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full Article Here

The study isn't without its critics, who contend the methodology is wanting. But it is a preliminary stab at a forbidden subject that pretty much confirms what all of us slyly notice in pornos and at the gym locker. Black dudes are packing and Asian dudes are sprouting. White dudes are in the middle.

Average penis size by country:

Republic of Congo, 7.1 [ed: show-er... and grower?]

Ecuador, 7

Ghana, 6.8

Colombia 6.7

Iceland 6.5

Italy 6.2

South Africa 6

Sweden 5.9

Greece 5.8

Germany 5.7

New Zealand 5.5

UK 5.5

Canada 5.5

Spain 5.5

France 5.3

Australia 5.2

Russia 5.2

USA 5.1

Ireland 5 [leprechauns!]

Romania 5

China 4.3

India 4

Thailand 4

South Korea 3.8

North Korea 3.8 [but their women's pussies are tight like balloon knot, so it doesn't matter... until they emigrate to non-asian countries.]

– Women in warmer r-selection societies (where kids are pumped out early and often and fathers are mostly absent and not needed to help raise the kids) choose men who are flashier, sexier and sizier. Literally. It's hot out, you've got your cock out, and women are staring at your package next to a bunch of other guys' packages. The women don't care so much about your fidelity or your paycheck from coding Facebook apps; first things first, they want that massive dong.

– Men in r-selection societies need bigger penises to dig down deep and scoop out competitor male sperm, said sperm which is in there because the women are really slutty and/or unfaithful. Men in highly k-selected societies, like Japan, don't need huge dongs because their women aren't always on the prowl for side action sexytime. A small hoohah helper does the trick.

Full Article Here

409

UPVOTES

Welcome to The Red Pill - What are we about?

24 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Welcome to The Red Pill. I'm going to address exactly what we're doing here, and shed a little light on our focus and motivations.

The Red Pill: Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

The Matrix metaphor might be a bit cheesy but we selected it because of what it represents.

"You take the blue pill, the story ends. You wake up in your bed and believe whatever you want to believe. You take the red pill, you stay in Wonderland, and I show you how deep the rabbit hole goes."*

—Morpheus

We selected this metaphor because we discovered that there are two realities that most of us are living in. There's the politically correct narrative that we see and hear every day, and then there's the covert reality that governs people's actions and thoughts just below the surface.

That might seem a little conspiratorial, but it's apt when you take a look.

Reality One: The Feminine Imperative

Our politically correct reality is the illusion, a framework of rules, morals, and standards that align with the sexual success of women. It's the reason we have "women and children first" when it comes to saving lives in an emergency, it's the reason why movies and pop culture refer to men who won't commit as commitment-phobes or players, yet women who won't commit are free spirits, and they're realizing/exploring their sexuality. It's the reason we refer to men "getting lucky" when they are able to have sex with a woman.

It's essentially a double standard that serves women. The goal of the feminine imperative is to provide as many options and opportunities for women's sexual strategy, and it does so at the cost of men's sexual strategy, which I will go into a little bit here, but you can read all about it in our sidebar.

Now I want to take a second here to explain that the "feminine imperative" is largely a headless, faceless group of social norms and morals that rose organically due to the nature of the sexes. So before you write this off as a major conspiracy theory, and that we believe there's a cabal of women behind closed doors pulling strings, that's just not what we're talking about.

The reason we experience these gender imbalances isn't due to malice or because we believe women are just evil creatures. They're not. Women are human beings with similar evolutionary drives to men. We experience these imbalances because of the differing costs in reproduction that cost men very little (sperm are cheap and plenty), but they cost women quite a bit (gestation is expensive, takes nine months, eggs are few). The bottom line is, the physical maximum number of children a woman can have is considerably lower than the number of children men can have.

And so culture and gender roles evolve from these truths. Women become the selective gender, men become the selected. Men approach, women are approached. Men ask, women accept or decline.

But in the feminine imperative world- gender imbalances don't exist. In fact, we're told the genders are the same; there is no selective gender, people are all unique and everybody meets somebody the very same way. And you're nuts if you think otherwise. Which puts men at a strict disadvantage if they believe it. If you teach men early enough- as boys- then they will believe it.

We're taught that there is no sexual strategy. The term "sexual strategy" seems like cringey phrase, and if you started speaking in public about this the way I have here today, you'll quickly find yourself ostracized and the focus of a lot of scorn and anger. These are not politically correct things to say.

Reality Two: The Red Pill

As I mentioned, the very act of having this conversation makes you the focus of scorn and ridicule. And this is the first sign that there is a secondary reality.

When you realize that there are certain topics that can't even be discussed, you might wonder whether there's some truth to it. These discussions have earned us all ridicule- from the rest of reddit, from the news media here, or here, from friends and family. It's such a dangerous topic that many here are afraid of being exposed to family, friends, or coworkers, and thus we recommend everybody participating to use a throwaway. Pretty scary... The Red Pill must be wrong, then?

If culture is to be believed, what we discuss here on TheRedPill must be wrong. But if the conclusions are wrong, could we not come to those conclusions ourselves? If we could look at these topics objectively, surely what culture and society tell us would be evident: that there is nothing else below the first reality, that everything is as it appears. So why can't we have that objective conversation?

The feminine imperative does not want us looking at this reality, because when we do, it's much like the red pill in the matrix. You see reality for what it is. We don't conclude that these things may be wrong, but rather we open our eyes to what has been happening our entire lives. And once you take the red pill, there's no going back. You cannot unsee the truth.

The advice of the feminine imperative betrays it's goals, and if you look closely you can see exactly what the real motivations are behind actions. The double standards start revealing the purpose of the convenient lies culture tells us.

"Just be yourself" is a common refrain for advice for struggling singles. But it's this very simple piece of advice that can be used to pierce the veil of our blue pill conditioning. If "being yourself" worked, one might think, then why am I single?

Although it seems almost too simple to base an entire discussion group around this small phrase, it embodies exactly the problem that men today face, and the lie that they are told.

Now, this advice can be given to men and women, but as we understand, women can put forward just a little effort and still be in a position of having to reject unwanted advances. Men, on the other hand, have no such advantage, and must put forward considerable amounts of effort, and in turn, may experience many rejections with a much smaller chance of success.

As I mentioned above, women are the selective gender, men are the selected. In our culture, we learned the politically incorrect answer to this: Since the woman's best strategy to ensure high quality offspring is to reject as many people as they can (also known as having high-standards), a man's best strategy is to approach as many women as he can. Instead of "being yourself," we've learned that in fact- it's our self that is being judged, and it's the largest hindrance to success there is. We must become better to compete in the sexual market.

That means, learning to lift weights, get into shape, eat right, dress well, and learn the social games that women play so that you can become attractive.

I encourage anybody who is visiting to check out our sidebar, start with the "New Here" section, and once completed, read down the "Theory Reading" list.

You may come to your own conclusions about our content. You might come to the conclusion that it's wrong. But that means You came to the conclusion, regardless of what you were told is okay to think about or not. And that's your first step to swallowing the red pill. Analyzing ideas and facts based on their own merit, rather than what is or could be socially acceptable.

This weekend we're having a "theory post weekend" which means new posts are locked. If you have any questions, join us on /r/asktrp, and make sure to subscribe as posting will be open again tomorrow.

Also make sure to join our anti-social-justice-warrior version of Twitter: <https://www.trp.red>

-RPS

1,803
UPVOTES

/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!

24 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/subredditoftheday/comments/4g88p8/april_24th_2016_rtheredpill_a_look_at_what/

Submission Guidelines - Reopening Submissions.

25 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This weekend we had a nice refresher on some basic red pill articles and knowledge, and I'm happy to say it was a great success. We were featured as subreddit of the day, which is pretty cool.. and based on the traffic stats I think it's safe to say we made them a little more popular rather than the other way around..

So we're reopening submissions today, with a few caveats. We're looking to increase the average quality of our submissions so with that in mind please observe the following:

- All posts should tie into red pill theory.
- If you are posting a red or blue pill example, don't open with your example. Instead, formulate your theory and use anecdotes to tie it together. Bring trends to the table rather than individual experiences where you first saw TRP in action. Any anecdotes missing solid reasoning and analysis will be removed. That includes examples with a small low-quality analysis at the bottom. If you're surprised that TRP works, that's great, but we don't need to hear your first time, we already know.
- Don't post individual field reports. Include multiple field reports that tie into a common theme or theory. If you observed theory in action, make a hypothesis, test your hypothesis, report the results.
- If you're in doubt, read the sidebar to see the sort of quality analysis we're looking for.
- If you are posting about current events, include a red pill analysis of what is transpiring, and why.
- If your analysis is "You are the prize" don't submit it. While this platitude isn't wrong, it provides zero new insight about sexual strategy. And platitudes are annoying.

We're going to remain very strict about what sort of quality we're looking for.

If you're not sure you've quite got it, take some time to browse and read before participating.

CMV - RPWives are mistaken, if a man submits to marriage, he cannot be high value.

27 April 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

I believe RPWives are entirely mistaken about the value of a man who would willingly marry. Unless he is marrying into money (a rich woman or her family name), there is obviously no real benefit to marriage for men.

Some common pro-marriage tropes that are false:

- Marriage is important if you want custody of your kids. - Having children, your parental rights are identical as the rights you would have as a legal guardian (in the USA), unless you lose your guardianship - which can happen in divorce, so marriage is not a protection against losing your kids.
- Marriage is important if you want the kids to share your last name. - This is false. If a woman agrees to naming the kids with your last name, you may do that. If she doesn't agree, you have a bad woman on your hands, and marriage wouldn't fix that.
- Marriage is required for high-class society. Many in high class positions are either unmarried or divorced. Marriage is neither sufficient to create a higher-class, nor required to become higher-class.
- Marriage is safer for STDs. Anybody can cheat at any time, marriage, LTR, or otherwise.

The Truth about marriage:

- A man who is high value is not only attractive, but undoubtedly astute, intelligent and has either the potential for earning money, or has already gotten a sum of money. A man who is high value and therefore astute must intrinsically understand the nature of what is and is not in his best interest. If he cannot determine what is in his best interest, he cannot be astute, and therefore is not a high-value man.
- A man who is attractive but does not have these other qualities must be less optimal and therefore cannot be as high of value as the man who has these qualities, as the comparison of the two will clearly show one has a distinct advantage over the other in access to provisions as well as genes to pass on to children.
- A man who understands what is in his best interest would not sign a business partner agreement that required responsibility from only one of the two members, while awarding the secondary partner sums of money if he walked away from his obligations.
- Likewise, a man who understands what is in his best interest would not be willing to sign unconscionable contracts that can be unilaterally disposed of by either of the two other parties (wife or state), especially in the case that this contract promises cash prizes for the other party if the unilateral decision is made.
- A woman does not respect a man over which she has power. If she has ultimate power over a man, he cannot be considered alpha, as he is subservient to her.
- A marriage puts a woman in a position of power over her husband by giving her unilateral control over ending the marriage with great financial risk and consequence to the husband. A marriage requires a man to continue providing for a woman, while simultaneously putting zero responsibility (providing sex) on the woman.
- Because a marriage puts a woman in a position of power over her husband, she cannot respect that man, or, if she does have respect, it must be known that the level of respect for a man that she holds power over must be less so to a man that she holds no power over.
- Because of these truths, it must then be surmised that a man who would agree to a marriage must not be one who is considered high value (astute, intelligent and money), nor one who understands what is in his best interest. Therefore, a man who would agree to marriage must be sub-optimal when compared to a man who is high value, attractive, and understands what is in his best interest.

- Therefore, marriage is not an optimal strategy to find a high-value man.

Change my view.

448

UPVOTES

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

When TRP was in its infancy, the number one goal I had put into place for the moderation team was to ensure that our message didn't slip and that we didn't allow our focus to be eroded by our politically correct culture.

Armed with the knowledge that the feminine imperative would see to it that we would be infiltrated and eventually tone-policed, we took a hard line stance against concern trolling. Comments like "maybe we should tone down the anger just a little bit," or "can't we say this without the anger?" were considered slippery slopes that would eventually lead to our demise. And I think we were 100% right about that.

Essentially, the way the feminine imperative controls the social narrative is that it aligns what can and should be politically correct with what best serves women. It seems like a simple effect, but it's rather overwhelming when you consider its implications.

There should be no doubt in your mind how the feminine imperative has defined this narrow volume of political correct speech (which we will refer to as the overtone window). When there's discussion of TRP outside of our borders, it always criticizes and dismisses us due to our language and our premises, rather than discuss rationally any merits to our conclusions. They are able to do this because speech that is critical of the female gender falls outside the overtone window. No logical debate necessary when you can easily dismiss an entire group of people with a hand waive and a thought-terminating cliché.

Women changing male spaces has always been known to us. Examples in real life are plentiful- men's clubs, men's gyms, the armed forces - anything primarily for men have been infiltrated by women and then systematically destroyed from the inside.

But this effect isn't limited to women. Men, employed by the feminine imperative, are just as able to help enforce the status quo by self-limiting and tone policing their friends to ensure we also obey the rules of the politically correct. Every day, our mod team removes at least two or three such fellows who arrive with well meaning but misdirected attempts to tone down the misogyny here so that we can still discuss the good parts of TRP without all that hatred! "TRP is really just about self improvement, afterall," they would say.

And it certainly sounds nice to think that. Yeah, we are here to get better, aren't we?

But serving the feminine imperative is exactly what that does. What is the word "improvement" without a goal to work towards? If we are making ourselves better, then to whose standard of better are we striving? If we accept the notion of dropping misogyny (or the apparent misogyny as it were) and focusing only on politically correct advice such as working out and eating right, then we have done a great service to the feminine imperative. We have curtailed our own goals to serve the feminine. We have changed ourselves to benefit others. That sort of self-improvement is acceptable to our politically correct overlords. It seems so easy to adopt it and move on, that almost every single male organization did so without realizing the consequences, and are now shells of their former selves.

Our self-improvement is one to benefit us. Since the connotation of the phrase "self-improvement" is so commonly accepted as the feminine-primary version, I hesitate to use the term at all, lest it be mistaken for "self-improvement-for-women." We are here to learn the truth. How we act on this information is up to the individual, and how it improves them is not for the benefit of society, women, or others. Rather, it is for the benefit of themselves in the most selfish and greedy of ways.

I think a better way to put it, is that we're here for "improvement for self." Though a key element here is improving one's options in life through exercise and learning skills (which seem merely like self improvement), our end goal is not to serve somebody else's imperative, but to increase our position in life to satisfy our own imperatives. That others' imperatives may be served along the way is incidental.

This infiltration and tone-modification strategy is, unfortunately, not the only strategy, and I have become increasingly aware of another way the feminine imperative manages to do its dirty deed.

Pressure to change, not from the inside, not from the outside, but from the borders.

When we started TRP, almost immediately a backlash subreddit was made to mock us. It was mostly unnecessary, because it appeared the mocking and distaste sprang up around reddit any time our name was mentioned.

Our strategy to these was mostly to ignore it. Nobody's mind was being changed by trolls who mock. Their efforts to shut down or modify our discussion were entirely failures. Anybody dismissing us in these manners made us stronger as a group. It enticed new users to check us out, and it strengthened group cohesion among those already here.

But the borders were a different front line altogether. The borders were a soft spot, and I'm not sure I realized just how soft they would turn out to be.

Just on the borders of TRP were "friendly" complimentary subreddits. They appear on the surface to be just like our main subreddit, but with a slightly different focus. Just a small microcosm of the bigger parent sub. One might consider this a strength, that ideas can spread out and continue to evolve.

The problem is that they co-opted the red pill moniker, but make no mistake- they were doling out blue pills just as sure as if they had been the trolls mocking us to begin with. Whether through malice or ignorance, these groups managed to cave to the feminine imperative and pick and choose red pill tenets to believe, while still clinging to the falsehoods of blue pill fairy tales that made them feel good back in the old days.

Heck, like Cypher in the Matrix, I can see the allure to wanting to forget all this red pill stuff and go back to life before. It was comfortable believing in fairy-tale love and equality. But once you swallow the red pill, this is no longer an option.

But the groups on our borders still sit there with the tasty bait that things can be moderate, and that red pill isn't really so bitter afterall, you can hold on to your heart-warming delusions. That maybe the bitterness of the red pill is inherent with the sub and its unsavory members.

What's worse, is that these ideas can wheedle into our collective thoughts and are reflected by many users here. Perhaps our subscribers haven't even really thought about these memes before repeating them, they were collected from a red-pill source and regurgitated here. And the effects of the propaganda shine through, regardless of the intent of its originator or propagator, regardless of the veracity of the statements themselves.

We've heard a lot of these phrases here. "Too many people in the anger phase" or "too many spergs here" or "when you look past the misogyny" or "I don't agree with most things here, but..."

These are the beginnings of apologetics. They are pervasive and they are what destroys the long-term viability of this community.

I'm going to address a few subreddits on our borders, because I think it's time that the mod team take a public stance on them.

First, and foremost is PurplePillDebate, which I have been guilty of dabbling in on occasion. The primary takeaway from this subreddit is that in order to take part in a debate, you must first offer the obligatory apologies for the rough edges of TRP. Many well reasoned contributors who consider themselves red pill will introduce their argument with a leading apology such as "when you look past the misogyny," "hatred aside," or "it would be better without all the anger..."

If PPD is a battle for minds, then the apologists have decidedly lost. Accepting the frame that TRP is fundamentally flawed and working backwards from there ensures that the debate will only land at conclusions that benefit the feminine imperative. And the takeaway for any onlookers reading is that surely there is a moderate position somewhere in the middle- a "purple pill" of sorts. We can accept reality, except the parts that offend us.

Those in the fringes of TRP may easily bite at such a delicious nugget rather than face the reality that the fairy tales are all false.

Other subs worthy of mention unfortunately include the Married Red Pill sub, which despite its efforts to give a safe haven to men who married while plugged in, has devolved into an exercise in rationalizing why it was a good idea to begin with. Despite my repeated attempts to help them steer into the right direction, I have been confronted by many members there simply defending marriage as a good decision for a man in western culture, one of whom was a moderator whose post read "knowing what I know now, I would get married all over again."

The argument uses a common theme that you might recognize. Those who don't get married simply "aren't alpha enough to survive a marriage." Marriage, to them, is red pill on hard mode, and only the best of the best survive. Interesting that shame should be the primary enforcer of this behavior. It reminds me of something... perhaps it's written about somewhere in our sidebar.

I imagine myself making a similar face reading about somebody bragging about surviving a game of russian roulette, trying to convince others it's a game of skill and that the bullets in the chamber are reserved only for those not strong enough to win.

There is much rationalization of marriage on our borders, and unfortunately much of it has been coming from who used to be our moderators for the /r/redpillwomen sub. It's disappointing that they ended up how they did (no longer moderating for us), but I suppose if I were to draw a life lesson from my experience on RPW, it would be that.. all women are like that.

For those who hadn't heard about the mods who left RPW, it essentially boiled down to a disagreement between them and me- where I intended to enforce these very principles I state here today, and they allowed petty interpersonal drama stand in the way of our mission. Ironic that they would act so typically like women, it's actually somewhat funny. I'm sure I'll write up a post in more detail about this soon.

Anyhow, the resounding argument from these ex-RPW women was that marriage was a necessary part of life for those in upper echelons of society. That upwards mobility was limited and determined by marriage status and that anybody with aspirations of high society or positions of power much consider marriage to be a staple part of their strategy.

On the surface, this would seem to ring true. Many, if not most, politicians are married. The rich tend to be married (often more than once). It would seem as though marriage was an important part of moving up the status ladder.

The problems with this reasoning are multi-fold. It frames the discussion of marriage as though the "status ladder" itself is one we should care to climb. In fact, thinking about this for a second reminds me that it is women who care about the social status of males. Climbing this ladder directly serves the imperative of women. Of course the threat of shame or social ostracization would make an appearance. We are essentially reading women's endorsement of a pro-women strategy... also known as the feminine imperative.

That we would need marriage to find personal success has been thoroughly debunked by discussion on TRP. Much like the higher-education industry has tricked generations of students that going $500,000 in debt is the only way to succeed in life, the feminine imperative has successfully tricked men everywhere that marriage is a prerequisite of success and status, and that status is an ultimate goal that would serve themselves. They have framed this quite well as self improvement. But is it "improvement for self?" I think not.

The statistics may show a number of rich or powerful men being married. But every man is the maker of his own fortune. These statistics may show correlation, but they do not imply causality. Further, it should be noted that older generations rich and poor are more likely to be married or stay married. There's no reason to follow in their footsteps rich or poor.

But these blue pill swallowing border-groups eat this up, because it helps rationalize their addiction to their fairy tale reality. That marriage is a necessary component to success is just the evidence they need to keep clinging on to the blue pill lies that they were comfortable believing to begin with.

And while we can't control these border-groups who sit on the outskirts and dangle blue candy at us, we can and will address the erosion of our focus being caused by them, who bring their BP views into our sub via subconscious propaganda.

We will be extra vigilant against those who care to regurgitate the nonsense originating from these places. Anger is not a phase, we won't tolerate tone policing, and we're not changing who we are.

Interestingly - as a side note- the minute the ex-RPW mods were scorned, their behaviors and attitudes switched off like a lightswitch, all the work and effort put into the sub in the past between myself and them was suddenly null and void. And they began their propaganda campaign against the RPW and TRP subs (in places like PPD and MRP as well as TBP), assuming the roles of blue pillers almost immediately. Suddenly, their view on TRP had always been negative, we had always been chumps, TRP has always been wrong.

Sure, ladies. We have countless texts dedicated to describing just how typical your behavior is.

We've got new mods for RPW now, and seasoned mods here on TRP ready to pull the trigger when somebody crosses over the line.

So here's to another 150,000 subscribers. We're ready for it.

We have a couple big announcements coming up in the next few weeks, so look forward to that. New content coming your way, new ideas, and some new stuff that should be really friggin cool. Stay tuned.

274

UPVOTES

Introducing Married Red Pill Flair

4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've just added the new Married Red Pill flair which can be used to discuss strategy for both long term relationships which are being used like marriages (such as relationships including children), or for relationships which involve marriage contracts.

As TRP doesn't really advocate marriage as a terribly good option, these MRP flaired threads are specifically for help with these strategies for people who are either already married, have a family/children, or would like to start a family in today's culture.

These threads will be moderated to prevent the following:

- No marriage shaming. The men who are participating already know that the situation isn't optimal. They are here to make the best of bad situation.
- Some men may be here for advice on starting a family, this does not necessarily mean they need to sign a marriage contract or get legally married.
- The discussion taking place shall not devolve into anti-marriage rants, but rather need to stay constructive on how best to manage a relationship and family.
- You do not need to be legally married to participate, however these threads are generally reserved for those in families or looking to start one.
- This flair should not be used to justify marriage as a good option. Even if you used TRP to get your marriage back on track, we don't want to let our hamsters run wild and try to change the reality that marriage is a bad deal for men all around.

Enjoy!

Starting off our new flair, I wanted to begin posting some quality articles by Ian Ironwood about a selection process for a wife.

A lot of men here have asked me- what do I do if I want to start a family or get married. And our answer- as explained in my MRP Introduction post is the same as our standard disclaimer: You shouldn't get married, at least not legally so.

But what if you want to enter into a LTR partnership like marriage. What if you want to make the commitment outside of the law?

Well that's just what we're going to be discussing under this flair.

Wife Test: An Introduction, and Batshit Crazy

Excerpt:

When it comes to proper Wife Selection, the first big issue is, of course, pre-screening. That is, establishing your criteria for what you want in your wife. For this I suggest compiling a list.

Hell, just buy a notebook. You're going to need it.

Think of this as your "wife hunting manual", because it is going to serve as the command-and-control system, the scientific journal, the wish list and the notes section of your journey. And at the very begining, you need to establish your List.

The List encompasses four sections: Must-Haves, Nice-to-Haves, Bonus Points and Dealbreakers. And while your Must-Haves and Nice-to-Haves are going to be much different from every other dude's, there are some issues in the Dealbreaker category that most of us are going to agree are common things to avoid in a woman.

And at the very top of the list of dealbreakers should be Batshit Crazy. It's one of the basic things you need to think about before you even consider cohabitation, let alone buying a ring. Hell, if you smell it early enough, it's usually advisable to avoid Batshit Crazy altogether. Like cocaine, it has a tendency to be expensive, dramatic, and lead to long-term damage.

So with every potential Mrs. Right you meet, within the first moments of making the realization that yeah, you could tap that for the rest of your life, you need to ask yourself this very, very important question:

Is She Batshit Crazy?

Read the rest here

570

UPVOTES

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In light of the news about recent subreddit banning/removals, I wanted to take a moment to remind our subscribers that we do have a backup in place. Since I started getting tons of private inquiries about our contingencies, I figured I'd re-sticky information for a while.

Yes, this information is in the side bar.

TRP'S BACKUP PLAN

Over the past year and a half, myself and a small group of users have been hard at work putting together a contingency for TRP if we ever got shut down/locked out, as well as a backup archive of our content so we never lose the quality information posted here.

You can see our archives here at www.forums.red, and you'll notice that posting, voting, and replies are currently locked. This is on purpose. The forums will only open for business if/when we are forced to leave reddit by the admins. Until that point, discussion will remain here. FAQ Here

TRP.RED

We also have a sister site, TRP.RED which is our companion site for sharing up to date information with other red pill users. You can read my www.trp.red announcement here, and you can visit our Daily Prescription here, view the user-created Rational Male Blogs here (curated by our team including Rollo Tomassi), or create your own blog for free.

24

UPVOTES

New Design! New Flairs! New Voting! Oh My!

20 May 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

RPW is the first of our red pill network subs to get a facelift, (the rest are coming soon). Today we're announcing our new flairs and new design!

The New Flairs are as follows:

Theory - For discussion on red pill theory. Hypotheses and essays are welcome.

Discussion - General discussion topics, conversation, debate and opinions on Red Pill subjects.

Advice - Need help with a specific situation?

Field Report - Tried something you learned here and got a result? Good/Bad? Share it here!

Self Improvement - Replacing our Health and Fitness tags, self improvement takes over for all!

Lifestyle - Homemaking, recipes, makeup and fashion tips all go here!

Meta - Discussion about the forum.

Relationships - Discussion about marriages, or any other relationships.

Parenting - Brand New! Parenting flair for questions and discussion related to parenting!

Off Topic - Didn't fit in any other category?

We are still working out a few CSS kinks here and there, let us know if anything doesn't look quite right.

Oh, and don't forget to try our new voting system.

Anybody familiar with GenCon, "Gen Con is the original, longest-running, best-attended, gaming convention in the world!"

Vox is predicting the end of it this year, as they've started stacking up industry insiders for the conference and the lineup is now majorly women.

This year's lineup is 52% female! (13 out of 25)

Just five years ago, the lineup was a meager 6.25% female (1 out of 16)

This wouldn't be a necessarily bad thing per se, except when you realize that this representation is vastly askew from the ratio of women who are actually working in the gaming industry. The list is telling, obviously weighing gender equality quotas over actual value to the community:

- Emily Care Boss: Well, she's gotten some credits according to RPGgeek, but she also seems to be one of those "indie" designers who advocates the masterless RPG, and "story-driven" RPG, which usually end up with sub par stories. Also, who plays Romance RPGs?
- Brian Cortijo: Hey look, an RPG designer. You might even have played something he wrote. He's worked on Dungeons and Dragons 3rd, 3.5, 4th, and 5th. Also some Pathfinder and d20 OGL stuff.
- Katherine Cross: According to GenCon, she's a feminist journalist for Gamasutra who's written for Kotaku, Polygon, Offworld, and other geek hating houses of "journalism". She's a Ph.D student in sociology looking at "antisocial behavior online and identity formation in virtual worlds". Game on, GamerGate.
- Crystal Frasier: She has a fair number of RPG credits with Pathfinder, and some artist credits as well.
- Amanda Hamon Kunz: She's done some work on Pathfinder and 13th Age products, including ENie winning Deep Magic.
- Kenneth Hite: Has far more credibility than anyone so far on the list. His RPGgeek designer credits go through 17 pages, covering GURPS, Gumshoe, Savage Worlds, FATE Core, Pathfinder, and more.
- Kathryn Hymes: Well neither 'geek has anything. Oh, that's because she doesn't make games. She makes play experiences dealing with language. Like Sign, which is 2 hours long in silence as the "players" recreate a bit of the creation of Nicaraguan sign language. Or Dialect, a story game about a community in isolation losing it's identity through language decline. Interesting ideas, actually, but they AREN'T GAMES, not in the proper sense. "She seeks to actively avoid RPG tropes in order to make the hobby more approachable to new enthusiastic faces." Hmm. Like having actual conflict and rules mechanisms?
- Renee Knipe: If I have the right one(there's two on RPGgeek), she's got a total of five RPG design credits. Yes, that's more than I have, but that's hardly insider status when nobody plays your stuff. Kagematsu and Charnel Gods may have gotten awards a decade ago, but who knows them now? The stuff of legend, I tell you.

- Anna Kreider: She's a self described "cranky feminist" with the blog Go Make Me a Sandwich and the standout SexyTime Adventures: the RPG. She's also done a little with Fiasco, and some Vampire. Let's face it, she hates men, Christians, is obsessed with "gender parity", and has no real clue about the men that built the industry.
- Christopher Lawrence: I'm torn on his credibility. He worked for Avalon Hill on RuneQuest: Slayers, and supposedly helped develop scenarios for the Starship Troopers movie based boardgame. Trouble is, there was no such game. There was a minis game, based on the movie, and Avalon Hill published a game based on the novel. GenCon's at least run by idiots that don't do research, or letting guests write their own without fact checking.
- Ryan Miller: Another actual insider. He's done work on multiple CCGs, Epic PvP from AEG, and Bolt Action. Perhaps less influential, but he still has cred.
- Joshua Morris: Not listed on BoardGameGeek, but he supposedly worked for Score on several licensed property games. It's hard to say what his credibility is, he works as a cable content manager now.
- Harrison Pink: GenCon bio says he's a video game guy who's got some credits, but nothing tabletop.
- Brian Poel: Largely a video game dev, but he is one of the men behind Golem Arcana. Not much credibility, but some.
- Marie Poole: CEO of Lone Shark Games. Of course, there's no credits in either 'Geek for her, so how much game stuff she's actually done, who knows?
- Jessica Price: She has a whopping three Pathfinder credits. Most of the ones I've seen have closer to a dozen, at least six if they're busy with other work. She's also the one who called Mike Mearls and Lewis Pulsipher fake geek boys. Pulsipher might not be that credentialed a designer, but FFG reprinted one of his, and Mike Mearls has worked on D&D since 3rd edition(yes, even the trainwreck 4th.). Historically illiterate Paizo employee.
- Donna Prior: ONE RPG producer credit. For Fantasy Age. She speaks about community management, diversity, and other special snowflake topics to people that think they matter.
- Alex Roberts: She has no discernible credits. Supposedly a freelance writer, who likes to talk about sex a lot at convention panels. Why can't she talk about games?
- Wes Schneider: EIC at Paizo, and co-creator of Pathfinder. Passionate about "GLBTQ" topics in gaming, and author for Tor. Like I needed more reason to not play Pathfinder.
- Hakan Seyalioglu: The other half of Thorny Games, with Hymes. He's apparently written some tools for Google Play games.
- Zachary Strebeck: Game lawyer. Represents Stonemaier Games, and a couple of others. Odd interpretation of insider, but runs Game Lawyer blog, and contributes to the Dice Tower Podcast, so whatever.
- Elisa Teague: Designed Geek Out!, a party game. Works for Lone Shark, worked for Playroom

Entertainment. Likes to focus on women's issues and body image in the gaming community.

- Mark Truman: He has a fair number of small RPG credits, with Cortex and FATE being the main systems involved.
- Monica Valentinelli: Another somewhat busy small timer, with lots of Firefly credits, with some Vampire and others in the mix as well.
- Eddy Webb: Another real insider. Lots of World of Darkness credits, but even Chill, Firefly, and Champions are in his work.

Vox writes:

Just wait until the lineup is 75% female! Here is my prediction: GenCon attendance is going to decline over the next ten years, white men are increasingly going to stop attending it, and there will be much wailing over what happened without anyone ever mentioning the giant pink elephant in the room.

Look at the university system. College is increasingly irrelevant to white men. I would much rather hire a young man who had the sense to avoid the waste of time that is college and its related debt than one with a degree.

169
UPVOTES

New Design

24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've just completed our redesign! Hope you all enjoy it.

More updates coming soon!

If anything seems wonky, your browser may still have cached files, please refresh the page. If you're still seeing anything out of sorts, contact me here and let me know!

Special thanks goes to /u/-Anteros- for helping with design.

235

UPVOTES

New Finance Flair

25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The finance flair was created in response to all the great posts that we saw on the sub regarding business and money management. It should be used to cover money topics from a red pill perspective.

Here are a few examples: * Prenups * Financial Independence * Passive Income

* LTR money managment * Workplace politics

While there are other places to discuss such topics as finance and budgeting in the general sense, there are plenty of red pill concepts that apply to improving one's finances. For anyone that wanted to discuss that bitch Kathy in HR this is the flair for it.

Women are children. How could we ever see them otherwise?

Women live the most protected, sheltered lives. They are safe from almost all danger- war, crime, and violence. They are safe from almost all consequences, receiving fewer if any punishments for crimes (/r/pussypass). When a woman makes a mistake, society bends to absolve her and protect her from these consequences. Even the most life-altering events (having a child) puts little to no actual burden on a woman. She is free to do as she pleases, completely oblivious to the world around her that makes her comfortable life possible.

This means that they cannot possibly understand the nature of the world, and therefore cannot possibly make adult decisions within it.

Consider the child who cries "everybody else has one, why can't I?" He sees his parents as the unlimited source of money. When they cannot buy him something, he sees it as them withholding or punishing him. Why can't he have the newest video game? Why can't he have an iPhone? Why can't he have better food than his mothers bland cooking?

The child does not understand that his parents work, that they have bills to pay. He doesn't understand the reality that his parents might be having trouble making ends meet. He has no experience in this world. He cannot fathom the way that money works. He only knows a life where his actions have no bearing on his livelihood. Food is always available to him; he cannot starve. Shelter is available to him; he cannot freeze to death. Even if he were to shoplift, his worst punishment won't involve jail. He'll get sent to his room... hardly a punishment in the age of technology.

Of course he thinks his life isn't fair when he doesn't get a brand new Nintendo. He sees his friends have one, so it only stands to reason that he should have one.

Luckily for us, this phase is something most of us grow out of. We expect this from a child because he has yet to have the perspective to allow him to understand that his friend's Nintendo was purchased with real money, that his friend's parents had to work extra to get. Eventually our spoiled brat grows up and pays his own way. And he learns that your fortune is that which you make of it.

In many ways, women have no such epiphany. Society is structured in such a way that women will never truly understand the hardships of life. They don't have to do the dirty jobs. They don't face the selective service at 18. They can start a fight and expect others to fight it for them (and others will go to prison for it). All she knows is the protected perspective of a child.

How could we expect her to be anything but?

Women watch the people around them and expect the same outcomes. The same privileges. The same benefits. The same money. The same everything. Because they don't have the same perspective, they simply cannot fathom what it takes to get what they see.

How could we ever take them as anything but children?

Our society listens to these overgrown children. We listen to them with all ears, in earnest. Women aren't earning as much? Say it ain't so! Quick let's come to the rescue and literally just give women extra cash. They deserve it!

How could you see what these women are saying and take it seriously? How could any woman ever be taken seriously knowing what we know? When you see these women complain about money, but not one of them takes the job on an oil rig, in a coal mine, or as the garbage man? Why wouldn't we as a society collectively laugh at the machinations of an overgrown child?

When you see them claim that they need saftey. That new legislation must be provided to bring safety to women. How is this different than the child demanding Pizza Hut when he dislikes his mother's cooking? He is completely unaware that there are children starving in other countries; the privileged child sees nothing but that which concerns him, regardless that he will never know actual hunger in his lifetime.

How could you see these requests and complaints as anything but the tantrums of toddlers overdue for a nap?

Women are children. Absolutely nothing that could ever come from a woman will ever be from any other perspective. Treat them as such.

203
UPVOTES

Hilarious collection of white knighting - /r/whiteknighting

26 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

179
UPVOTES

Confessions of a Reformed Incel: Newcomers, read: Why we're here.

6 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://whoism3.wordpress.com/2012/11/17/confessions-of-a-reformed-incel/>

697

UPVOTES

Anti-Male Media Continues War on Men: Milo Yiannopoulos Suspended From Twitter

15 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Edit: Ongoing Updates Can Found here: #FreeMilo

Once again, Social Media shows its hand in its agenda in its crusade for social justice (read: anti male). Just months after Twitter removed his verification badge, Twitter finally just up and banned him.

For those who don't use Twitter, the verification badge exist literally to identify famous people and let users know it's really them rather than a parody account or imposter. That Twitter saw fit to remove the badge tells us exactly what Twitter's agenda is. Milo is a strong voice in favor of the conservative right, endorsing Trump while openly gay. This is a big blow to the SJW crowd, whose identities rely on Trump being evil to any minority including non-whites, non-straight (CIS), or non-men (all 7,000 genders they've made up).

Removing the badge doesn't mean that they suspected Milo's account was hijacked by some third party or hasn't been Milo all along. It means that they wanted to delegitimize him in any way they could, so they took away the badge for reasons unrelated to why the badge was there in the first place. They wanted him to look illegitimate.

As if Twitter, Facebook, and co announcing that they wanted to stamp out hate speech wasn't a loud enough warning bell, their actions today put nails in the coffin. Even if they eventually restore Milo's account, the message is loud and clear: If your message doesn't meet the requirements of the Social Justice Agenda, you are not safe on social media. Any branding or following that you build is always in jeopardy. Invest your time in this at your own peril.

The truth is, whether we like it or not, social media has become a very important part of brand building and communication. How many people would still be in the dark about TheRedPill had we not build an easily accessible forum on reddit? More still, how could Milo build his following without the tools to communicate with his followers?

The ongoing war against men continues. The message is clear that we are simply guests here at the mercy of those in charge. Feminism has changed the landscape to make being male a liability and risk on every level. From building your brand online, communicated much needed information with other men, to simply having sex with a woman. Every single action taken by men today is a risk. A risk of losing your work. A risk of losing connection and communication to others. A risk of losing your livelihood due to association with misogynists. A risk of a false rape accusation if a woman regrets the sex. RISKS.

This is one of the primary reasons the mod team have been working so hard on launching <https://trp.red>. To ensure we don't fall victim to some of these risks. If Reddit boots us, we have a place to stay in touch and communicate. And now, people like Milo have a place to stay in touch with followers on a site that values inconvenient truths and differing opinions instead of censorship.

EDIT: UPDATE Milo's Account Re-instated.. but wait.. there's something wrong. Twitter admin removed 118,000 of his followers.

- 6/8/16 - 253,000 Followers Archive Link
- 6/15/16 - 135,000 Followers Archive Link

This is the time for anybody to recognize exactly what Twitter is doing.

Edit 2: UPDATE He's down to 98K Followers. You can't make this stuff up

Edit 3: Ongoing Updates Can Found here: #FreeMilo

295

UPVOTES

Celebrating your sexuality is wrong, having pride in who you are is wrong, you should be ashamed to be you. - SJWs #HeterosexualPrideDay

29 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In standard hypocritical SJW fashion, the huffington post and other nanny-blogs are all aghast over the latest hashtag campaign: #HeterosexualPrideDay [Twitter | TRP.red] . The reason? The only people allowed to have pride in their sexuality are gays, trannies, and other-sexuals.

Their claim

The insensitive hashtag's presence on Twitter after the mass shooting at a queer nightclub in Orlando, Florida, on June 12 which left 49 dead and dozens more injured has received mixed reactions from Twitter users.

Of course, heterosexuality (which is apparently spelled "anti-gay") and all hetero people are responsible for the shooting. Certainly not the guy with the gun.

Watch the sleight of hand here. It's not explicitly written, but what they've done is actually boiled down being straight as being oppressive to other sexualities, by likening pride in one thing as being disparaging to others. It was a sneaky move, and definitely not an accidental one.

But the existence of this hashtag at all makes this a good time to remind everyone that the world still needs queer pride, and that spreading love and knowledge can be a powerful solution to ignorance and hate.

...So please, all you straight motherfuckers, just fucking stop you dumb ass assholes so we can spread this love. ARE YOU FEELING IT YET? FUCK YOU! GOD DAMN I HATE STRAIGHTS.

One reader comments:

Hetero's celebrate pride everyday when they don't have to worry about being fired for who they are. When they can get married to their chosen partner without some country office clerk refusing to sign their marriage application. When they don't have to hide who they are for being who they are.

Great point! Hey, next week, let's not celebrate Independence day, since technically we celebrate every day we're not beholden to the queen. Actually, I shouldn't write that, lest one of these leftist nuts reads it and gets the idea that we're being oppressive towards inbred brits.

If gays really had to hide who they were, they'd have more examples of actual oppression (other than the one town clerk who got jailed over it). But they don't, because it's perfectly acceptable to be gay in our country. The only thing you're not allowed to be is STRAIGHT as evidenced by the fact that we're not allowed to have our own day or hashtag campaign about it.

Obviously at the end of the day, hashtag campaigns make no difference in the grand scheme. But they do exist as evidence of the pulse of our mainstream culture. Never forget, these people can apparently vote, drive a car, and some of them even make your food.

504

UPVOTES

I'm on a deletion rampage. Got something stupid to post? Don't waste your time.

3 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Every once in a while we have a holiday weekend which marks the end of school for the kids and time away from the computer for the mods. What ensues is total chaos.

So, I've been popping on every few hours and deleting about a dozen or so posts at a time.

If you think you have something to say, make sure you've got a coherent point, that it's fleshed out properly, and that it's well-written and well-formatted. Make sure it's longer than a paragraph and says more than "Hey mannnn do it for you, ya know???" LOVE YOURSELF LOLOL111!!111"

I don't know if people just drank too much this weekend, or if we put a sign up on our door saying "retards now, please." But we're not interested in zen-ish platitudes like "learn to love yourself" and "you don't need no woman."

The fact is, we're here because we want to strive to be better. Inner game and monk mode are two over-used terms I hear too often on TRP that mostly translate to "how to procrastinate instead of meet women."

Fuck that noise. Inner peace is for complacent idiots. If you want inner peace (which I don't recommend), then fine, find it once you've fucked a hundred hotties on spring break. But if you haven't... you should feel inner turmoil. That's what drives you if you haven't yet achieved your goals. Want to fuck lots of hot women? The answer isn't ass-hat advice like "learn to be okay home alone eating chocolate chip ice cream on saturday."

I, personally, think the drive to success requires you to NEVER find total inner peace. Instead, embrace the desire and need to more and better. This is what the alphas at the top feel. They feel the sweet sweet high of success, which wears off quickly pushing them to reach even higher.

(Before the spergs jump in and start arguing, YES, success certainly gives you a happier and more full-filling life, but there should always be that drive to do more, better, faster and stronger.)

You have some actionable advice? Post away. Want to post examples of TRP in the world? Post away. Want to post "do it for yourself, you deserve it!!!" Head on over to /r/TwoXChromosomes where results don't matter.

I'm not giving out warnings, it's too much work. You'll know you posted total shit when your post goes missing and you got a one-day ban.

944

UPVOTES

Women are Children.

22 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Somebody asked me the other day why women shit-test in relationships, and why they push so much to turn men into betas.

My response was this: Women are children. They seek out boundaries. They require the men in their lives to define and enforce these boundaries. And just like children, if women are not given boundaries, they will occupy the space they are given and become terrible, unruly brats.

Which brings us to my post today, my periodic recap of women being children:

Women are children. How could we ever see them otherwise?

Women live the most protected, sheltered lives. They are safe from almost all danger- war, crime, and violence. They are safe from almost all consequences, receiving fewer if any punishments for crimes (/r/pussypass). When a woman makes a mistake, society bends to absolve her and protect her from these consequences. Even the most life-altering events (having a child) puts little to no actual burden on a woman. She is free to do as she pleases, completely oblivious to the world around her that makes her comfortable life possible.

This means that they cannot possibly understand the nature of the world, and therefore cannot possibly make adult decisions within it.

Consider the child who cries "everybody else has one, why can't I?" He sees his parents as the unlimited source of money. When they cannot buy him something, he sees it as them withholding or punishing him. Why can't he have the newest video game? Why can't he have an iPhone? Why can't he have better food than his mothers bland cooking?

The child does not understand that his parents work, that they have bills to pay. He doesn't understand the reality that his parents might be having trouble making ends meet. He has no experience in this world. He cannot fathom the way that money works. He only knows a life where his actions have no bearing on his livelihood. Food is always available to him; he cannot starve. Shelter is available to him; he cannot freeze to death. Even if he were to shoplift, his worst punishment won't involve jail. He'll get sent to his room... hardly a punishment in the age of technology.

Of course he thinks his life isn't fair when he doesn't get a brand new Nintendo. He sees his friends have one, so it only stands to reason that he should have one.

Luckily for us, this phase is something most of us grow out of. We expect this from a child because he has yet to have the perspective to allow him to understand that his friend's Nintendo was purchased with real money, that his friend's parents had to work extra to get. Eventually our spoiled brat grows up and pays his own way. And he learns that your fortune is that which you make of it.

In many ways, women have no such epiphany. Society is structured in such a way that women will never truly understand the hardships of life. They don't have to do the dirty jobs. They don't face the selective service at 18. They can start a fight and expect others to fight it for them (and others will go to prison for it). All she knows is the protected perspective of a child.

How could we expect her to be anything but?

Women watch the people around them and expect the same outcomes. The same privileges. The same benefits. The same money. The same everything. Because they don't have the same perspective, they simply cannot fathom what it takes to get what they see.

How could we ever take them as anything but children?

Our society listens to these overgrown children. We listen to them with all ears, in earnest. Women aren't earning as much? Say it ain't so! Quick let's come to the rescue and literally just give women extra cash. They deserve it!

How could you see what these women are saying and take it seriously? How could any woman ever be taken seriously knowing what we know? When you see these women complain about money, but not one of them takes the job on an oil rig, in a coal mine, or as the garbage man? Why wouldn't we as a society collectively laugh at the machinations of an overgrown child?

When you see them claim that they need safety. That new legislation must be provided to bring safety to women. How is this different than the child demanding Pizza Hut when he dislikes his mother's cooking? He is completely unaware that there are children starving in other countries; the privileged child sees nothing but that which concerns him, regardless that he will never know actual hunger in his lifetime.

How could you see these requests and complaints as anything but the tantrums of toddlers overdue for a nap?

Women are children. Absolutely nothing that could ever come from a woman will ever be from any other perspective. Treat them as such.

Women are Children

So I wanted to write this up to serve as a quick reminder, you are dealing with emotionally and intellectually stunted people. Let's explore and analyze these following phrases and experiences:

- I can't...

Failing to accept their own agency, women often resort to the phrase "I can't." It's a phrase that red pill men work hard to eliminate from our lexicons. "I can't" implies past and future inability. "I haven't yet" implies a struggle towards a goal. "I can't" implies resignation.

It's an obvious sign that this person has not matured beyond the simplicity of a child, whom everybody serves. So trying and failing would be a pointless exercise to them. Beyond this, her mind simply understands that her abilities and skills are innate (as they assume all people are), therefore anything outside the bounds of what seems natural to her are simply outside her bounds. She declares with confidence that she "can't" because she knows this to be true.

- I don't know why I'm being like this. / I don't know why I did it

Her actions and feelings are outside the purview of her control. Simply put, she believes her actions (however few she mistakenly makes) to have just happened, without influence from her. As with all hypoagency, in an attempt not to be held responsible for actions, women will do everything in their power not to make discernible actions, or when they must, to do so under the guise of plausible deniability (to limit their risk of responsibility and consequence). Likewise, when no shroud of plausibility exists, their minds simply draw a blank, almost as though they are just as surprised with their actions as you are.

Bringing us to my next favorite hypo-agent phrase:

- I'm trying

The chorus of a woman scorned. Occasionally there will be behaviors that you do not tolerate. Fundamentally, self-improvement seems to be all but outside the grasp of most women, this inability to change is met with another acknowledgement of hypoagency: "I'm trying."

Had you the misfortune of addressing a behavior more than once, the tired phrase gets pulled out for another run, suggesting that the actions she takes are not ones she controls. Her outward actions are a mystery to her, over which she exerts little influence. She tries, begs, even pleads with her body, but her cries go unheard. If only she could change, she very much would like to do so.

The red pill man understands there is only "do" and "do not." There's no "trying" in going to the gym, there is only going and not going. A behavior or attitude is something which must be changed if it is disadvantageous to your goals. This is something our little snowflake will never grasp. And as the children they are, they shouldn't be expected to.

- The shut down

When confronted with something difficult, overwhelming, or confusing, you notice she shuts down. She cannot process things, she is unable to react. It can be extremely frustrating, especially during a conversation that might be entirely logical and rational to you, yet she goes blank and unresponsive. You (or something/someone) have overwhelmed her simple mind, and now we must wait for her to re-emerge. If she does it properly, she will re-emerge potentially when the threat has passed, well after you (the adult) have taken care of things.

While most red pill men understand that living in the here and now is crucial to survival and success, women enjoy the luxury of turning off when needed, and the freedom to be accepted for doing so.

Imagine if during something as dangerous as a life threatening scenario, or as important as a business meeting, a red pill man were allowed to simply go silent and fail to react until they are more comfortable. Surely they would be eaten or fail. But instead, we do not expect children to make tough, quick, life decisions when the time comes. We give them room and space to breathe. This is within their nature, this is who they are.

This is not a post of anger, resentment, or hatred. Instead, it is a reminder to us all that these are the people we are dealing with. To treat them as adults and have similar expectations of them would be a mismanagement and a failure on your part to properly lead. There is a reason we usher women and children first onto the life boats. They cannot fend for themselves.

Do not expect them to act, reason, and process life and their surroundings the way you do as a man. Instead, understand that she is a child, and ultimately relies on you to be her anchor in reality. She needs you to lead. The more you expect from her, the less either of you two will get from each other.

218

UPVOTES

Introducing Podcasts @ TRP.RED

1 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Some of you might already know the work underway at TRP.RED since I've enlisted the help of a number of you for testing and planning purposes, but today I'm making the big announcement to the greater community.

We are unveiling our newest feature on our TRP.RED network that pushes us another step closer to our goal of freedom to share information among brothers without fear of censorship:

Introducing: Podcasts @ TRP.RED

Our new free podcast feature, which can be found here, brings to the community the ability to record a podcast right from the browser, or upload a pre-recorded MP3 to your account to share with the rest of the internet.

If you're a perfectionist and prefer to use your own recording or editing software, no problem. Save as an MP3 and upload to your podcast, and share your podcast instantly.

Already have a blog or podcast? Feel free to upload your archives to TRP.RED to spark discussion among a concentrated group of the manosphere.

Podcast Questions & Topics

An additional feature that was requested by our very own /u/gaylubeoil is our Podcast Topic feature, which allows anybody in our community to post a question or topic that they are curious about, and allows anybody to respond to it in podcast form.

Some questions already submitted, waiting to be answered:

- Is The Red Pill a harmful ideology?
- What is Hypergamy?
- Can MGTOW ever be a valid choice, or is it only giving up?

Other Changes

We've added a few other changes and fixes to the site as well:

- Sticky posts, users can pin up to three statuses to the top of their profile and follow pages.
- IRC Integration to our front page.
- Mobile Friendly updates to many pages
- Updates to the menu design on our feed

As always, our commitment is to continue to provide this community tools to communicate with our brothers, and to do so unobstructed by the censorship arm of the social justice brigade invading our culture. We will continue to unveil features of TRP.RED as we complete them.

We look forward to seeing what you all come up with.

Special thanks to /u/-Anteros- /u/dr_warlock /u/gaylubeoil and zxcvbn911 for helping us test and develop features.

110
UPVOTES

Quick Note on Censorship/Automated Bots.

6 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Seems that over the weekend a number of users discovered some automoderator triggers and I wanted to clear it up here.

We try not to go into too much detail about our automoderator rules because we use them to battle the onslaught of nonsense trolls we get. We certainly don't want to make it easier for them to evade detection.

I'll post here what I posted elsewhere on the topic:

There's nothing nefarious happening here. We program automod with rules to either deal with specific trolls or waves of trolls.

We don't divulge what is being looked for, because that makes our jobs harder, but usually the detection rules are only in place for a short period of time (until the trolls get tired).

If you felt like your post was removed in error, just send us a modmail message and we'll approve.

Rest assured our mod team is here to keep the signal high, not remove it. Sometimes we catch some false positives but we restore those posts as soon as we see them. We feel that it's better to let 0% of the riffraff through.

27

UPVOTES

New Updates to Podcasts @ TRP.RED - Embedding & RSS Feeds

13 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those of you who missed the announcement last week, we just launched our new TRP.RED feature: Podcasts @ TRP.RED.

We've been very happy with some of the new ideas and discussions the podcasts have brought to the table, and we're excited to see more. So we took your user suggestions and have made some adjustments to make the podcasts more accessible:

Podcasts Now Support RSS Feeds

If you're using iTunes, Pocketcasts, or any other podcast feed software, you can now plug our podcasts in to stay up to date. Our feeds support All user podcasts, or if you prefer, you can customize your feed to only play podcasts by users you follow. Or, if you're only interested in one user, you can subscribe to an individual user's podcast, such as GayLubeOil's.

We will be submitting our feed to iTunes in the next few weeks as we iron out some issues, so expect to see your podcast browsable on iTunes!

Podcasts Now Support Embedding

You can embed your podcast onto other sites. If you want to add a podcast feature to your blog, this is the way to do it! Embed our player into your blog, but let us handle the hard work of recording, managing feeds and subscribers, and comments!

Our embedding feature has been planned to be a completely free feature for the foreseeable future. We don't expect to need to change this, but we will monitor our bandwidth usage as we grow to make sure it's a sustainable feature. As always, you can donate by purchasing tip credits or subscribing to our Premium feature for $4.99 a month, which helps offset our costs!

Thanks again! -RPS

58

UPVOTES

TRP.RED Live-update thread for the US presidential debate: #FirstDebate

26 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

#FirstDebate

As the rules plainly state, we're not a political sub, and we're steering clear of having the sub or users endorse a candidate one way or another.

However, that doesn't mean the presidential race doesn't affect a number of our US members, and that doesn't mean there won't be a red-pill perspective to take with the debates coming up.

If you're interested in sharing your thoughts on the debate tonight, or want to read others' red-pill perspectives on the debate tonight, join our live update thread on TRP.RED:

#FirstDebate

I will personally be weighing in as the night goes on, and I'm sure many of you will want to as well. Anybody's welcome to join the discussion, just use the hashtag #FirstDebate.

91

UPVOTES

Endorsed Contributor Weekend

7 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Good morning folks,

This weekend the moderation team has decided to try something new as a shot in the arm for some quality content. Starting tonight, new posts will be locked down to only Endorsed Contributors. Everybody can still participate in the comments, but new posts will be strictly ECS.

We will lift this policy Monday Morning and continue our regularly scheduled posting.

In the mean time, we encourage ECS to post away.

For those who are not ECs, here are some ideas for the weekend:

- Go out, get laid.
- Spend this weekend reading what the ECs have to post
- Join in the discussions
- Join us on TRP.RED for #TrickleTruth month
- Start a free podcast

Also as a note, during EC weekend, I'm re-enabling links. Use them wisely gents.

915

UPVOTES

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For the most part, we've stayed politics neutral here on TRP, limiting political discussion to how it applies to TRP (or how TRP applies to the political world), and what we can learn from it. This policy isn't changing any time soon; the last thing we need is for TRP to devolve into a political debate sub.

But discussion of red pill principles has always been on topic, and events that occur in the greater culture do affect us, as men, and are on topic.

This election season we're not going to be able to put up any walls between sexual strategy and politics, because the outcomes from these candidates are directly tied to the very cultural influences and trends we've been discussing here for the past few years. They're tied to sexual strategy.

To begin, I want to state with a disclaimer that TRP is not going to officially endorse one candidate or the other. If you lean liberal or conservative, or if you lean in any other direction, you're always welcome to discuss your viewpoint on TRP. This hasn't changed.

That said, I am posting this today to announce my endorsement of Donald Trump for president. And not in spite of his alleged sexual assault gaffes, but rather because of them.

Today's US presidential candidates do not represent Republican V Democrat. They're not representing a difference of economic or social opinion at all. I've had casual arguments with many people of different political leanings, and many have well-reasoned arguments for their disagreements on policy. The reason there's a political debate is because there is no hard answer to many of these questions. If economics was a solved field, we probably wouldn't even need elections today.

No, our presidential candidates are representing instead a system set up to increasingly damage the lives of men (and promote the choices, advantages, and positive outcomes for women), and those alienated by this system, respectively.

I'm sure you've heard the old adage that Democrats and Republicans are just two sides of the same coin. Our elections with a two-party system have been set up to offer us an illusion of choice, but no matter which party you end up with, the new boss is strikingly similar to the old boss.

Yes, the "liberal" media is against Trump, and democrats are crying louder than ever. But there should be no better tell that Trump is outside of this system than the fact that his own party is now turning against him.

It would seem that our entire culture is against Trump. If this didn't appear particularly damaging to his chances, I'd suggest Trump orchestrated this himself just to bolster his credibility with those disenfranchised by our system. But alas, this may not be good news for team Trump. Only time will tell.

This is a fascinating scenario on its own, but the point that interests me the most about it is on what pretext our culture saw fit to turn against Trump: An off-color remark about his legal, consensual sexual exploits.

Essentially, the establishment took a benign comment that uses coarse language, and made it into a sexual assault using their newspeak versions of consent and assault. They lied about what took place, but nobody is catching the lie because consent today means, well, whatever the hell works for the feminists' narrative.

Why is this election important?

The last eight years have been a great example of the left generating a society in which baseless attacks that involve certain keywords (such as "misogyny") will now be taken seriously in lieu of any actual proof or crime having been committed.

I hope that it's clear to any red pill veteran what the culmination of this past decade has achieved. The erosion and broadening of the term "consent" (among others) has played a pivotal role in the grand movement against men. By making the concept as nebulous as possible, it not only makes it impossible to play by the rules, but it retroactively makes any law abiding citizen that they point the social justice beam at into a guilty one.

There's no doubt in my mind that the past two terms have done more damage to our language and race/gender relations than anything I can point to in the past half century. Anybody who thought it was coincidental or unplanned should have another look at exactly how they weaponized these changes in language and relations to attempt to maim a presidential candidate. The worst part is, it might actually work.

Let's imagine the next four (or God help us, eight) years with Hillary at the helm. Is there any reason to believe that this war on language and men will subside? The very tools that put her into power will obviously be solidified, and built upon with Hillary in power. These tools are too effective to be used once and then tossed. They will be used and abused.

This is why I am officially endorsing Trump. I'm not here to get into the nitty-gritty details of foreign or economic policy, or discuss the best way to fix the healthcare situation in our country. I do have opinions on them, and coincidentally I believe Trump has pretty decent stances on a lot of them. But the reason I'm addressing this here on TRP and to this community is because what we stand to gain or lose is much larger than these items.

The war on men hasn't been abating as many here have suggested over the last few years. It's growing, and it's growing out of control.

The accusations of sexual assault are unfounded and convenient. People come out of the woodwork to accuse Trump of sexual assault years prior, but conveniently wait until right now to announce. The very accusation itself now holds as much weight as a guilty verdict, and our changing vocabulary ensures that any man, acting normally, would be considered guilty (both in the court of public opinion, and possibly in a court of law).

I know too well that these tactics and climate will affect more than just a presidential candidate. I know there are a number of men here today who have been on the receiving end of such false attacks. I know that these problems will only get worse for us as men, especially so if we endure more time under leadership that so willingly engages in (and takes advantage of) such nonsense.

When somebody accuses a powerful or famous figure like Trump of "sexual assault," I don't look the other way. I don't denounce them or their behavior. Instead I run towards them, because there is no truer signal which side somebody is on, than when they're given a bogus accusation by the establishment. This is our beacon to find allies in the war.

Do you ever wonder why, after an event like the Trump leak, reporters are quick to ask his endorsers: "But you don't condone sexual assault, do you?" Because the story they are trying to sell is that there is no question a sexual assault took place. They do this by distracting the viewership into thinking the only question left to ask is whether the bad people think it's okay.

80

UPVOTES

Fall 2016 AMA Schedule

24 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Greetings, folks. We're announcing a few big things coming up on TRP over the next month.

In the next few days, we'll be posting our official announcement for No Nothing November, which we have a few surprises for (don't announce your NNN plans yet, we're opening a new page for it), but in the mean time I wanted to start by posting our early AMA schedule.

We've got quite a few people lined up for the coming months, and we'll make announcements as the dates are chosen. But to get things started we wanted to announce two big AMAs to start us off:

ROLLO TOMASSI - Thursday, Oct 27th

The Rational Male author Rollo Tomassi will be joining us here on /r/theredpill for an AMA at 2:00 pm Eastern Time.

MIKE CERNOVICH - Thursday, Nov 3rd

Mike Cernovich is an author, lawyer, documentary film producer, media personality and men's rights activist known for such books as Gorilla Mindset, will be joining us here on /r/TheRedPill at 11:00 AM Eastern Time.

We've got more to announce soon to accompany your NoNothingNovember plans, so check back often as we will be announcing more.

-RPS

0

UPVOTES

The Culture War Is Being Transformed Into A Hot War - "The population must experience enough fear so that they will accept pre-determined solutions"

25 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/98620/the-culture-war-is-being-transformed-into-a-hot-war>

492

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNov 2016: Give Up Vices, Forge New Habits.

1 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Welcome to No Nothing November, every year, for the month of November, we challenged men to give up three vices for a month. They say that it takes just 21 days to form (or lose) a habit, and from those who participated in previous years, they'll remember that there's great satisfaction from achieving self-set goals, so let's get started on our 2016 #NoNothingNov

The Challenge

This year the challenge is:

- Give up Three Vices for a month.
- Take up One Daily activity for a month.

As we did last year, we want you to choose three vices you want to ditch for the month (and maybe for longer!) Some chose porn, some chose alcohol, and some chose /r/theredpill (bastards). Pick three vices or distractions that you want to remove from your life and kick them to the curb. If you pick alcohol or cigarettes, get them out of your house. If you pick porn, install that parental control software. If you picked /r/theredpill, close this window now.

Now for the proactive part of N3, making sure that no day is wasted, we say no to nothing. Pick an activity or chore that you want to make sure gets done daily. It can be big, or it can be small. Clean your apartment, make your bed, hit the gym (best option), approach at least 3 women a day, shave, work on your hobby project at least an hour a day. Whatever it is, it's time to pick it and make a real schedule to include it in your day. Sit down with your calendar and figure out what time of the day you'll need to dedicate to your NoNothingSomething. Figure out Thanksgiving. If you are ditching alcohol or taking up the gym, there's no excuse for Thanksgiving. You must commit.

Track your progress

This year, we've launched a new feature of TRP.RED to track your progress. Simply use the hashtag #NoNothingNov on our feed to track your progress, which can be shared with the community by visiting our main #NoNothingNov Hub or your own personal tracking page: <https://www.trp.red/nnn/username>

Let's get started!

64

UPVOTES

AMA with Mike Cernovich Tomorrow, Here at 11 AM Eastern

2 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

MIKE CERNOVICH - Thursday, Nov 3rd

Mike Cernovich is an author, lawyer, documentary film producer, media personality and men's rights activist known for such books as Gorilla Mindset, will be joining us here on /r/TheRedPill at 11:00 AM Eastern Time.

- Book
- Twitter
- Danger & Play

We've got more to announce soon to accompany your NoNothingNovember plans, so check back often as we will be announcing more.

816
UPVOTES

THE BEST OF RATIONAL MALE – YEARS ONE/TWO/THREE (If you haven't read this yet, do it now.)

25 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've had quite a recent uptick in new subscribers so I wanted to bring some quality red pill material to the top for a while.

If you're new or you haven't read all of our sidebar information, I recommend that you do so. And if you haven't read Rollo's best-ofs, then you should make these next on your reading lists:

Best of Rational Male - YEAR ONE

Best of Rational Male - YEAR TWO

Best of Rational Male - YEAR THREE

I hope everybody has a safe holiday. We've got more announcements coming up soon, so check back.

328

UPVOTES

All Women Lie About Rape - PART ONE

19 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I originally started typing this up about a week ago, and found myself a dozen pages in, so I've decided to release this in parts as I go. Here is part one:

I have an interesting thought experiment for you.

RAINN states that 1 in 6 women are a victim of attempted rape, a super majority of which were successful rapes, and a very small portion of it, the rapist manages to fail at his intended goal.

According to the NSVRC, 46.4% lesbians, 74.9% bisexual women and 43.3% heterosexual women reported sexual violence other than rape during their lifetimes. That's almost half of the women you've met in your life.

That's a lot of assault and rape that's going around. It's virtually impossible to walk down the street, go to the mall, or visit a bar without running into a large number of rape and sexual assault survivors.

Based on these numbers, one might start to wonder if a quarantine of men might start making sense. Or possibly segregation should be necessary to protect women. Perhaps increasing our police presence in our public places, or adding cameras to residential homes might make sense.

Maybe you think my solutions are a little extreme, but I'm not convinced that they are over-kill if these numbers are true and we're in the midst of an epidemic affecting half of the female population. If 1 in 6 women contracted a strange new disease, the CDC might shut down flights into and out of the country.

Reality

My thought experiment today is about addressing how you decide what makes sense, and what doesn't in the world around you. It's likely that none of us have a deep enough understanding of how the world works that any of us could rightly say "I know how everything works, and why everything happens." In fact, it's very unlikely that any of us are anywhere close to understanding even a fraction of reality.

But I don't think that makes us special (or particularly dumb). Nobody really has the capacity to know everything. And not everything can really be known. We're seeing this in spades with the recent epidemic of "fake news," but don't mistake the new term for a new problem.

When the red pill sub was in its infancy, and the manosphere was still working out the individual details of the theories we now know by heart on our sidebar, there were men who realized that certain details of their lives didn't pass the smell test. It gave them a feeling in their guts but there wasn't an obvious answer as to what or why it was.

That very feeling is likely what brought most of you here to The Red Pill. You knew something was amiss and you weren't quite sure what it was.

The Red Pill is one of many counter-cultures by virtue of the fact that we stand in the face of commonly accepted understandings and worldviews. We've observed the happenings around us, and decided that the socially accepted reasons why didn't line up quite right.

We, as a group, think we've got a better handle on reality than most... at least, when it comes to sexual strategy. But there's a chance we're very, very wrong. And that's okay in my mind. We may not ever know the true causes of why women like certain traits. We assume it's evolution, though nobody can really pinpoint what mechanism in evolution really caused these behaviors, we take an educated guess that evolution somehow did it, since evolution is largely to blame for all of our behavior.

We like to hypothesize about why certain traits were evolutionarily advantageous. Big muscles on men was important, to fight bears and lions! Long hair on women showed consistency in health over a long period of time. Aggressiveness was selected for in men because those men had all the food. Women shit test and are hypergamous because our species' survival relied upon always finding the best conditions to create a child.

If you asked me whether I believe these hypotheses to be true, I'd say they're the best explanations I've seen to fit my observations. But it's impossible for me to really know. Even with the rigors of scientific study into human evolution, we're probably never going to know for sure the whys of our history. We'll see the whats and do our best to fit a narrative to match the observations.

And that's what we all do for everything in our lives. Nobody's worldview narrative matches reality precisely. All that matters is that it works.

In The Red Pill we've exchanged a worldview that did not work very well for us, which we call the blue pill state of mind, and replaced it with a much better approximation: The Red Pill state of mind. But The Red Pill isn't a perfect worldview, and is likely lined with inconsistencies and faulty logic that keeps it a good distance from aptly describing reality around us. The only real difference between the red pill narrative and the blue pill narrative is that it works better for men to find success, happiness, and sex.

The question that I've asked myself every day since I discovered the dark world of the red pill is this: By which mechanism were we allowed to discover a more functional world view, and by which mechanism do others fail to discover or adopt a more functional world view?

If the Red Pill truly brings success to men who adopt it, then why would any man remain in a blue pill stupor? "Surely," he must think, "if there were men who had the keys to success and were able to demonstrate it, I should listen to what they say."

This isn't a settled topic for me by any stretch. I think it's going to be a topic I'll devote some time to in the next year, because the war of ideas is fascinating to me. But I think a good place to start is first figuring out what the mechanism is that allows us to peer deeper into the rabbit hole, and – while not truly discovering real reality – discover a better worldview that gets results that our mainstream culture doesn't want us to achieve.

For those familiar with Scott Adam's writing, this is a topic he spends a lot of time trying to describe. You'll see a lot of similarities in my approach, I agree with him on a lot.

So Women Lie About Rape?

I'm sure you were wondering what this has to do with rape, or the women who lie about it. I am going to get to that, soon.

One of the core mechanisms I've recognized that helped lead me to the red pill was my ability to sniff out inconsistencies in world views. And, like I mentioned, I could be completely wrong on all my ideas, but the one thing I could ensure was that it could at least be internally consistent and match my observations.

If I suggest to you that gravity is fake, and that nothing holds us to the ground, you'll likely be skeptical at such a claim. You know from your experiences that gravity keeps you grounded, that baseballs hit into the sky come back to earth, and that the earth presumably revolves around the sun. Everything you've observed in life and understand about gravity from school has been neatly placed into your worldview, and what I've just said does not match.

When we were told as children that being a nice guy who treats women right and fairly would result in us finding a nice woman to settle down with and live happily ever after, we were told this version of the world before we had enough observational data to confirm or disprove it. By what mechanism would we have been able to determine the extent to which it was not true?

We learned from an early age that knowledge would be attainable from multiple sources. For much, we could learn from our experiences and experimentation. We didn't need to learn Newton's calculations to figure out how to toss a ball. Our muscles and our brains slowly determined the rules of the world around us, and no additional information was necessary.

But gravity isn't entirely explained by our experience, as Einstein found out. There are rules to gravity that fall outside of our perception. This information, we each discovered, can be learned by listening to experts who used acceptable methods to determine more about reality than we can observe. Very few people disagree with relativity, even though none of us have traveled at the speeds that would make these laws perceptible, let alone relevant in our lives.

Einstein, our parents, and the greater culture of media, peers, and experts, became a surrogate for experiences we had not yet, or may never have. For most of us, we will never travel to outer space. But we believe the pictures that show us what the earth looks like from the moon. There is little reason to disbelieve it.

Unfortunately, along with the tidbits of science and history, we were also given information about our possible future experiences. We were to enter into the sexual market at some point, and they intended to prepare us. We grew up acting; In lieu of experience, we acted on their advice.

This means that The Red Pill here about sexual strategy really isn't unique. There must be Many red pills.

I'm going to continue this tomorrow, but feel free to discuss and see if you can guess my point in what any of this has to do with women lying about rape.

222

UPVOTES

All Women Lie About Rape - Part Two

20 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Continued from Part One

Many Red Pills

There are many red pills one might encounter as he grows. Many who grew up religious eventually experience the epiphany of atheism (or the logical inconsistencies of religion). Very few who grow up with a particular view of politics keep that view into their older age. And for us, we grew up thinking that the secret to happiness was love, and the secret to love was being a good, faithful husband.

We've already covered the ingredients for the initial state of the blue pill mindset. And I'll discuss what I think keeps people perpetually there in a future essay. But what is the mechanism that is used to look past our biases and preconceived notions to formulate a more functional world-view? What gives us permission to suggest the unthinkable when our culture is built in such a way that we are immediately ostracized and suspect if we were to admit our counter-cultural hypotheses?

Part of it is easy- you don't have to accept Red Pill truths to test them. You could dip a toe in without selling your soul to the devil. Many did just this and discovered instant results with women. Just trying out the tips you've read here can give you immediate results that you can bank on. Very few would go back to failure after tasting success.

But there's more to the discovery of reality, or our approximation of it, than making up random hypotheses and testing them. Something drives us and points us in a particular direction. That something is a combination of observation and gut, an unconscious effort giving us a 'vibe' that something's wrong, even if we aren't exactly sure what it is. Two possible worldviews collide, and your mind must resolve the cognitive dissonance between the two; that's the feeling that drives the pursuit of truth.

You've been told since grade school that the moon has no air to breathe, and that nobody lives there. There is little reason to think otherwise. But if you arrived on the moon at a future time and discovered a full atmosphere full of breathable air, and a population of moon-men, you might suspect something is wrong. Undoubtedly, most people would assume that either they've gone crazy and can't trust their senses, or that our school books were wrong. But you cannot hold both views- that the moon is habited and uninhabited simultaneously. Your mind must build one model with which to work, and so it rejects information it does not believe meshes with the rest of your world view.

And that brings us to our example...

All Women Lie About Rape

My observations and understandings about rape and sexual assault have a few conflicts. On one side of the coin, I'm told by the media, my liberal friends, college professors, and the women in my life that rape happens constantly. Every woman I know has a rape or attempted rape story. Every woman I know can talk about the time they were sexually assaulted. I know literally one woman who hasn't given me this sob story (so I raped her.... Kidding, I'm dating her).

But on the other side I don't know a single man who is interested in raping women. I know many guys who lament their sexlessness, and others who bemoan long dry spells. But not one has given me a reason to think they'd rather rape than go without. Most are characterized by pain, caused by undesirability rather than the lack of sexual release. Rape wouldn't make women desire them, so it wouldn't cure their problem.

If sexual release were the point of rape, there are easier and less dangerous ways to go about achieving said release. Although prostitution isn't legal everywhere, even hiring a prostitute where it's not legal is both more pleasurable and less risky than raping somebody. If legality were still too high a risk that you'd avoid a prostitute, it stands to reason that rape is even farther down your list of options, and travel to a place of legal prostitution is inexpensive anyhow.

Some make a point that rape isn't about sex, but rather about control and power. If I kidnapped you and put you in a dark room for three days, that would be an example of control over you. I could just as easily kill you afterwards. That would be control sans sex. Certainly then, we can understand that the crime of control is not explicitly about sex, nor is sex explicitly about control. Needless to say, if somebody were to rape – that is, take control over somebody else and have sex with them – then they'd be more closely related to the group of monsters who control other people (kidnappers, killers, etc), rather than in the group of people who have or want sex (everybody on the damn planet).

I'm not convinced rape is simply about control, I think that's an over simplification. But I think it would be hard to suppress the male libido in an otherwise completely psychotic male who has already decided to kidnap or otherwise assault a woman. In that sense, I'd say sex is a weapon in the hands of psychos. Most men find themselves thinking about sex on a regular basis. Luckily, most men are not psychotic. There doesn't seem to be a public opinion that most men are likely kidnappers, attempted killers, or otherwise criminals. It should stand to reason, then, that most men are not rapists, since these groups are more closely related than not.

By this point, there are a few pedants out there banging their heads on their desks because I've contradicted myself about rape. I stated at the beginning of this series that All Women Lie about Rape. How could I have this conversation at all if I didn't believe in rape in the first place?

It should go without saying that yes, there are rapists out there. And, despite my inflammatory title, there are obviously rape victims out there as well. If you're smart- something didn't line up for you about my title. You might have gotten a feeling in your gut that what I said didn't quite match your observations.

But that's not the only thing that gives me that feeling. There's another extraordinary claim being made: Almost half of all women experience rape or sexual assault.

We know observational data tells us neither is true. So how do you move forward on this information?

We've got a ton of victims, and an invisible enemy that doesn't match observational data. Admittedly, I don't understand or observe murderers either, but our culture has been happy to dismiss them as either unlikely, maladjusted, mentally ill people, or people caught in a crime passion (and that's actually a defense! Imagine defending rape as a crime of passion!).

Our culture treats rape very differently. Every male is a potential rapist. Our culture accepts rape to such a degree, many men aren't even aware they're raping and need to be sent to classes to teach them not to rape! Becoming a rapist isn't a rare disease you hope not to get, it's genetic for men. There are sensitivity seminars at student orientations on campuses world-wide. They teach our students the perils of accidentally having sex with a woman.

Of course I can't tell you the inner workings of every single man on the planet, but I can tell you the inner workings of my own head. Rape wouldn't be pleasurable to me. If getting my rocks off were the goal, there's plenty of internet porn, lotion, or prostitutes to get the job done. Sex is fun for me because of the surrender. The surrender is the challenge. Most men I know agree with this assessment.

So how do you reconcile these two viewpoints that don't match? Do all women lie about rape? Probably not, since it's unlikely that this is the one crime on earth not being committed. Are all rape stories true? Once again, that seems unlikely, as we know that some percentage of all accusations are false, it would be odd for the universe to select rape accusations as the only thing people don't lie about.

The world view that we must choose is that some rape accusations are true, and then gauge to what extent these must be true. It would be hard to determine the validity of every accusation, since most rapes don't have spectators, and we can't read minds.

It's safe to say at least some of these accusations are false, because we know from personal experience that when we're present we're not seeing physical rapes take place, nor are we seeing men going from woman to woman groping as many breasts as they can find. If half of all women experienced this, surely at least a small percentage would take place in way that would have to be observed by an onlooker. Perhaps not, though, since rape happens in private.

If these crimes were hidden from public view, certainly at least the mindset of men would reveal that these crimes take place. We'd hear tales of rape in the locker room. We'd hear tips exchanged on how best to commit a rape, and what the most pleasurable rape methods might be. At the very least, we'd know men who aren't against rape.

Much like the fact that I don't personally know any men that would murder anybody, I do not know any men who would rape.

As an aside, it's fascinating that when you say "I don't know personally anybody who is a murderer" most people are perfectly fine with such a statement. Obviously there are murderers out there, but they are few. The statement is most likely true, as most people simply don't know any murderers. But when you say that you don't know anybody who would rape, the public reception to such a statement changes. Rape is a dark crime committed by all men regardless of ethics or personality. You simply don't know that they're rapists. I reject such nonsensical reasoning.

Since we're seeing all demand but no supply, we must assume that the amount of accusations being made is simply not matched by the amount the crime must take place. If we conclude that false accusations are possible, then there are some questions this raises:

- What are the advantages to advertising false rape statistics?
- How can false rape accusations affect my life personally?
- Who is likely to make a false accusation?
- Can I predict when I might be a victim of a false rape accusation?
- Who benefits from false rape statistics?

Not every subject will raise the same questions. A claim about global warming might raise questions such as "How soon will this affect me?" and "What changes can I make in my life today, if this is real?" But every subject that requires scrutiny can still be screened in a similar fashion. What mechanisms can we use to determine whether we're on the right track or not?

This will be addressed in my next installment.

1,409
UPVOTES

If you weren't sure there's a war on men, check it out: "Hey, white guys: New Year's Resolutions" -MTV

20 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://twitter.com/MTVNews/status/810960588973035520/video/1>

248

UPVOTES

All Women Lie About Rape - Part Three

21 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is a continuation of my series:

- Part One
- Part Two

All Women Lie About Rape - Part Three

By now, most of you probably see where I'm going with this series. At the very least, you understand that my title is facetious, and that I understand rape is a real crime, and there are real victims. For those who had a knee-jerk reaction during the first installments, I suggest you take a moment to consider why you had such a reaction, and calibrate future reactions accordingly.

When determining whether something requires a second look, I ask myself a few questions.

The first question, which we already answered, was: does it give me a gut feeling something is wrong. You can perform the quick mental logic that we did in our second part of this saga to determine that the statistics on rape and our observations do not match.

Now, some of you very kindly pointed out that my logic was faulty, and you wouldn't be wrong. There are a number of reasons for these numbers. For instance, a small number of rapists may account for disproportionate amounts of rape. The changing definition of rape or assault may account for larger numbers than what one might consider. Perhaps there's a motivation behind false accusations that benefit women. Or perhaps the number of accusations is accurate for the crime, and it is simply the statistics that are incorrect. At the very least, putting rape and assault stats together to equal roughly half of women is disingenuous. Or is it? (We'll touch on this in a bit)

In the first installment of this series I put a lot of emphasis on the fact that no worldview is going to be correct. There will be some that are more correct than others, and there will be some that are entirely wrong but they might still be effective at bringing you closer to your goals.

My point in this thought experiment is that the exercise in the first two installments can be done completely in one's head with no research and very little amount of thought. It's not a replacement for research or knowledge, but rather a starting point for thinking outside of the box.

So how do you determine if you need to think outside the box?

Disagreement

First: Am I allowed to question this?

For example, watching a movie with friends, I fear very little in starting a lively debate on the merits of the movie. Maybe my friends like the movie and I think it's awful. There's little risk in asking, to see if perhaps there's a reason for the discord. Certainly there will be little to no backlash for making the claim that it is a bad movie, even if it is objectively not.

In the case of rape, however, it's a very hot button topic. Politicians and celebrities are hung out to dry the minute they might suggest an accusation is false. All rape stories must be believed is our culture's refrain. Even when you suspect there is strong evidence against an allegation being true, simply suggesting it can ruin your life and career.

This is evidenced most commonly by our culture's reporting of rapes. Take the Rolling Stone article about the rape on the UVA campus. They reported on it with no proof but the word of a girl, and it turned out to be a hoax. It was quickly retracted by Rolling Stone, and then followed-up by Huffington Post with "Rolling Stone Got Jackie's Story Wrong, But That Doesn't Make It A Hoax," pleading with us to take a lesson from the story because it sounded true enough despite there being nothing true about it.

There are other similar topics that cannot be questioned. Of course, that doesn't mean they're inherently false. But it does mean there's a pressure keeping the status quo that isn't directly related to facts. Consider whether you're allowed to have a public discussion on these topics and take the position of devil's advocate without personal sacrifice:

- Rape
- The existence of god in the context of a religious circle
- Global Warming
- Evolution
- Racism
- Islam

All of these topics have strong emotional components to them, and evoke very real visceral reactions in those who hear them. Questioning them will be met with resistance regardless of logic or reason.

Red Flag Number One: there's a pressure keeping the status quo that isn't directly related to facts.

Motivation

The next step is to follow the money. Is there a potential motivation or beneficiary of this fact or belief being false?

If I own a vitamin company, it's in my best interest to convince everybody that they need vitamins. This is not a hugely contested point, though there is a plethora of conflicting information about some of the lesser known vitamins. I would say there's significant reason to believe at least some information is intentionally misinformation for the supplement industry, though luckily, there doesn't seem to be a negative stigma attached to questioning it.

If I am a woman, do I benefit from a direct false accusation of sexual assault? Perhaps so. The largest risk I can identify is that a false accusation could be discovered. Most would consider this risk to be prohibitive. But the legal risk for women to make such an accusation is actually very low, as they're not likely to be charged with anything for doing so. The social risk may be higher, but even then, there's a push in our culture to assume that they weren't lying. Rather, we must assume that the system failed them.

What's the benefit, though?

Victim status increases an individual or group's access to proxy power.

I'm going to quote another article here on power mechanisms:

Proxy power is the ability to negotiate the use of another person's power. A woman uses her looks (social value) to get a man to move furniture (Direct power). A child uses his mother's love (Social value) to request food. A man uses his rank (social value) to command troops.

Direct power is the ability to enact one's will without aid. Direct power can be physical or financial or otherwise. The key is that no permission is needed to wield this power, nor is another person's complicity required for it to take effect. It is the individual acting on their environment.

The apparent weakness of our other halves, our ying to our yang, has been artificially increased and bastardized. This is best illustrated through feminism.

Feminists boast high direct power while in the same breath looking to co-opt men for the use of proxy power. The disconnect between their claims and their reality makes them repugnant. Remember, normally proxy power is a transaction, trading social value for use of power. A woman who believes she has direct power doesn't engage in that transaction. She gives up little or no social value for the use of a man's power. She is a leach. The man is left feeling duped when he hands over use of his power for nothing in return.

Most leaches will suck their host dry if left for too long. This is where the victim status comes into play. Feminism created the victim status to generate extra social value for women. Men have this sort of instinctual urge to protect weak things. When a woman claims victimhood, something in our brains kicks into high gear and wants to lend them the use of our direct power to fix the issue. Feminism is the process of making women strong through fostering greater weakness.

Instead of trading affection or sex for proxy power, now women can claim to deserve that access by default. She lives in a constant state of disaster that plays on a man's desire to lend power. It may seem baffling to him that no amount of power he lends seems to fix the endless string of calamity that is her life. What he's missing is that drama is her source of power. Discord is the dynamic that powers the weak. All weak people revel in their victimhood, it is the foundation of their identity.

Now, this access to proxy power through victimhood doesn't need one to become a direct victim. While we're sure there are some false accusations out there, the statistic lends cover to all women everywhere. The fact that almost every woman can conjure a rape/assault story on command is because they do want to ensure they can both give credibility to the statistic, but also withdraw their own amount of proxy power from it. No false accusation need take place for this transaction.

Making a claim that they are indeed directly affected by the statistic ensures their piece of the power pie is reserved; the repetition of these stories is a broadcast for social status.

There is no doubt that the definition of assault and rape has changed over the last few decades, broadening to include much more than most assume. Marital rape created to remove women's responsibility in a relationship, but the man's job to provide was left unmodified. It created a victimhood narrative that women were simply slaves to their husbands, and required freedom. Normal rape changed from an attack by a stranger hiding in the bushes to consensual sex that a woman regrets the next day. Sexual assault changed from a violent sexual attack to simply brushing up against a woman or going in for a kiss when she didn't want it.

If we were to use these new definitions of the terms, it might stand to reason that the statistics are actually spot on. Perhaps 50% of women really have been in uncomfortable positions.

It doesn't take much to convince a woman that if she feels discomfort, that perhaps she really was affected and possibly damaged by the experience. Her goal of heightening her victim status wouldn't object to this minor modification of definition. Men are strong and women are weak.

The final nail in the coffin is that statistics themselves are very easy to fake. You can word surveys in such a way that you can get a result that you want, no matter what is true. Complex and leading questions can make points that even the survey subjects would object to.

If you asked every woman if she's been in an uncomfortable position with a man, you'd be hard pressed to get a woman who said no. Likewise, most men could probably describe a scenario where they were uncomfortable with a woman, at some point.

If we asked every woman if she had been touched when she didn't want to be or if she had any unwanted advances, there would be resounding yeses across the board, even though not every touch could be considered assault, and surely few would be actively violent. I can recall myself reading signals wrong on a date, leaning in for a kiss and getting a cheek. An unwanted advance it was, but no real threat or violence took place.

From this perspective, we see these possible motivations are quite compelling. We already know the definitions of rape and assault have changed dramatically. We know that the stats seem to overwhelmingly fail to align with our experiences. We know that stats can be misleading. And now we can see that there's a possible motivation to say or do these things in a way that benefits women that isn't consistent with actual rape or assault rates.

Red Flag Number Two: there is a plausible motivation or beneficiary of this false fact or belief.

Are the motivations to claim a falsehood more likely than the original belief being true?

It's hard to say if our theory makes more sense than the possibility that maybe 1 in 5 women are just actually raped, and that ~45% of women are actually assaulted. If we believe the statistics, then we must assume the beneficiary of this crime would be the rapists. If we believe the statistics are false, the beneficiary would be the alleged victims.

It's hard to measure the benefits of either. Presumably rapists who cannot control their evil actions are probably most relieved at being able to take action. Women who increase their access to proxy power are likely quite happy about their access to it. Is one happier than the other? Hard to say.

But we can measure the risks involved. To rape is a very large risk. Especially knowing how much a false rape accusation can ruin a man's life, we know that simply having the allegation thrown at you can ruin one's life and career. Even if we assume that rape convictions are hard to get due to lack of proof, the court of public opinion can still damage your life to a degree that would make some contemplate suicide.

On the other side of the coin, we have women who stand to benefit from false statistics and accusations. Their risk, individually, is very low. Every woman can claim victimhood from the statistic, regardless of her actual experiences. Even a woman who makes a direct false claim is protected from legal or social fallout. The balance of risk to reward is tilted in favor of reward for women, but heavily imbalanced towards risk for men.

Red Flag number three: The motivations for a belief to be false are more likely than for a belief to be true.

Are the actions of the victims consistent, coherent or logical for a victim?

If the statistics were correct, and the definitions of the words have not been sufficiently modified to meaninglessness, then we would have a large group of actual victims.

So we must ask, are their actions consistent with those of victims? If we had that many rapes or assaults, would we not see more accusations than we do today?

The initial response to this discrepancy is that rape or assault is an underreported crime. Victims are unsure that there will be a conviction, are worried about public appearance, or they just want to forget that it happens and pressing charges would remind them it did.

That makes some level of sense, if we assumed that rape was the one crime victims didn't want to report. Victims of almost every other crime have no problem reporting it. But let's be generous and say that rape is so traumatizing that anybody undergoing it would be physically incapable of reporting it. I think that's very unlikely, but we can follow this logic to see if the rest holds to scrutiny.

What about sexual assault. We're told that it happens everywhere. It happens on buses. It happens on the streets. It happens in public and private. Parties, work, bathrooms, gyms. Surely if the crime was assault, that is a physical, aggressive or violent attack, there would be an unlimited number of reports about it. If somebody assaulted me, I would report it.

Let's say that women don't report rape or sexual assault because they aren't convinced there would be enough evidence for a conviction. Maybe they assume that it would be a waste of time and utterly embarrassing to do so. Surely these "survivors" would at the very least change their behaviors to stave off such attacks.

It's commonly reported that frat parties are where college girls go to get raped. If the number of rapes were true, would it not stand to reason that women could easily avoid these dens of rape? It would seem, then, that even women don't believe their own statistics.

If getting blackout drunk caused a large risk of being raped by a stranger at the bar, would a potential victim not avoid such behavior? A very simple step to take that would avoid what is almost statistically inevitable. One who believes that this crime happens at such a rate would simply not take such risks.

If going home or being alone with somebody increases your odds of rape, would you not avoid such behavior? In a group of five friends, one of you is certain to be raped. Would you not take standard precautions against such an awful reality?

When I am standing on a train, or riding a crowded bus, I move my wallet to my front pocket. I'm not sure how common pick-pocketing is, but I know it's a real risk and I take measures to avoid it. I know that dark alleys in the big city are unsafe at night, and I avoid them accordingly. I wear a seat belt when driving my car, and I don't smoke cigarettes due to the risk. Is avoiding common rape scenarios that impossible for women?

There is an alternative option. Women do not believe the rape statistics, even though they all seem to agree with them. People do not act contrary to what they believe. They may speak contrary to how they believe, but they will not act accordingly.

If you were sitting on train tracks, and saw a train coming towards you, you would act, and move out of the way according to your belief of the reality of the train. Belief is not a choice in this matter, but rather a result of your brain calculating what it understands about the world around you. Some beliefs may be more squarely based in reality than others, while some may be colored by bias and bad information. But all beliefs share the same quality: they are not questionable without different information.

If I explained to you that the train was a mirage, you probably wouldn't believe me. You'd get up off the tracks anyhow until you've tested my hypothesis a few times. You may gradually change your belief about this train. But one thing's for sure: you wouldn't accidentally get run over by a train because you doubted your beliefs.

So if a woman describes having been assaulted or raped, and she believes the rape statistics, why would she then engage in a behavior that invalidates the belief? The answer: She does not believe the statistics, and likely doesn't believe her own story. Her actions are inconsistent with a real victim.

Worse yet, offering these solutions to a victim or potential victim is considered victim blaming. In fact, it serves no purpose but to make their emotional problems worse. Instead of seeing a helping hand as a positive thing, they see it as undermining or invalidating their victim status. It would be clear that the motivations behind this victimhood aren't to prevent or be healed of being a victim, but rather to preserve and prolong it.

Red Flag number four: The actions of those who purport to believe something are not consistent with somebody who actually believes it.

Obviously not every belief you analyze will be cut and dry on every point discussed here, but if it raises enough red flags, you've definitely found yourself room to improve, and it might bring you to a more effective worldview.

What do we do with this information? That I'll discuss in my next installment.

3

UPVOTES

Chinaka Hodge: What will you tell your daughters about 2016? | TED Talk

28 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.ted.com/talks/chinaka_hodge_what_will_you_tell_your_daughters_about_2016

22
UPVOTES

Moderators, announcement
5 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

1,115
UPVOTES

Give them what they want... Biological male dominates women's cycling event in historic first

6 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.stickybottle.com/latest-news/biological-male-dominates-womens-cycling-event-in-historic-first/>

323
UPVOTES

The Private Man Hosts Goodbye Party

30 January 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's with sadness I'm announcing that The Private Man, a prolific staple of the manosphere, is having a goodbye party for the manosphere in light of recent news, and has offered an open invitation to the community.

He's been a great mentor since I discovered the manosphere, and has put a lot of effort into individual coaching and advice for countless men worldwide. He is somebody I've always considered a friend.

Leave a kind word for him on his blog or here if you get a chance. You can find details here.

<https://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2017/01/28/my-going-away-party/>

758

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Right

3 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Last night Milo Yiannopoulos appeared on Fox News to discuss the riots at Berkeley, and Tucker Carlson introduced him as the "gay jew" that's becoming the face of "the red pill right."

It occurred to me that many who visit the red pill have had continued epiphanies in their lives outside of the ones we discuss here about sexual strategy.

Now, don't get me wrong, I believe everything in the world boils down to sexual strategy- it's no coincidence that the insult of choice on /r/the_donald is "cuck"- but that doesn't mean understanding sexual strategy and the red pill will be the last time you have an epiphany that makes you take a retrospective look at your life and realize that nothing was what it seemed.

The Red Pill has entered our culture's vernacular and is used unironically to reference pulling back the curtain on any philosophy and discover the secret inner workings.

And I'm proud to have been a part of that movement, even though we focused specifically on sexual strategy and will continue to do so.

Something struck me about the phrase "the red pill right," and it's been on my mind since I heard it. There's a lot of agreement and disagreement between different schools of thought in politics, and often one can't really be determined to be right or wrong, only different. There are competing schools of economic thought, different ways to try to accomplish similar goals, and almost an infinite variables that are close to impossible to really know or track keeping us from having any objective answers.

But that doesn't mean there isn't something to know about politics. Just like sexual strategy, even though we do not have the full picture of evolution, and we can't possibly know everybody's thoughts and feelings, we do know that we can make descriptive theories about how people operate, and test our hypotheses against future happenings to determine if we were anywhere close.

That brings me to something that I think I've been lacking in my life during the USA election cycle this past year. The Red Pill has been instrumental in helping myself and others find sanity in the world of sex and women, but there is no such guiding light for me in politics.

I admit, /r/the_donald is fascinating and entertaining. But it serves as little more than rage porn and memes. The conversation actually stops itself from getting too deep. A few conjectures land at the top of every post, but nothing is really said about the underlying theory of what is happening today.

I don't think it's a mistake that Milo wanted to be introduced as the face of the "red pill right" because he knew the term alt-right was being used to try to tie this new brand of republicans to white supremacy and other unsavory things.

Undoubtedly, he uses the term because it's fitting, but also because it helps to ride off the success of our name. It's not uncommon, attempted to co-opt our language and mission and then tailor it to their own needs and purposes. Look no further than The Red Pill Movie- made by a feminist, and has nothing to do with us!

But the truth is, there is a new conservative movement happening, and it's been happening for a while. And it's got a lot of overlap with the subscribers here on TRP.

It's a bit more libertarian leaning than the traditional Republican party, as it's very socially liberal (pro-to-each-his-own, but with a bent on strict liability rather than social safety nets). But it remains conservative in places that I believe make sense to do so (protect borders, our tribe above others, govt. spend responsibly, don't take my money, etc).

TRP has always talked about tribalism, about safety and security in our culture, and about the values that really matter when you strip away the thin facade of "safety" Western cultures think that they have.

Physical strength leads to security, assimilation lends itself to tribalism. Jack Donovan writes extensively about these things. And they all lead us back to the number one point we have on TRP: Everything is about sex. Our behaviors are governed by evolution.

That is why I am announcing today, a brother sub for /r/theredpill as well as /r/the_donald.

/r/theRedPillRight

My focus with this new sub is to keep us from diluting the discussion of sexual strategy on our main sub, but give us a fresh place to discuss politics with a serious tone rather than the memes and rage porn of /r/the_donald. (I'm not shitting on the_donald, I do enjoy the sub.)

I want us to discuss these social trends and why they are taking place.

- Why is the media colluding to write the narrative they do today?
- What are the possible motivations and goals of different political belief systems?
- Is globalism a viable strategy?
- Why is nationalism (or tribalism) preferred by some but not others?
- In what ways are we wrong?
- In what ways are we right?
- How do we define "fake news?"
- Is fake news a symptom of click-bait?

I hope you'll join me to discuss politics from a red pill standpoint, with our traditional style of high-effort, no memes, quality commenting on our new subreddit: /r/theRedPillRight

59

UPVOTES

Red Pill Weekend

4 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Only Endorsed members can post new threads. All can participate in comments.

Enjoy until Monday!

Also, if you haven't yet, check out our new sub: /r/theredpillright

539

UPVOTES

RM: "...women's sense of self-worth has been grossly overblown.." "An abundance of male attention contributes to a sense of security for women's SMV. "

20 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's funny how Blue Pill (and a few Red Pill) critics will foster the idea that the only reason men learn Game is because they're "validation seeking", but yet they resist the idea that women's egos would be similarly validated by the "incredible amount of male attention" they believe even the most mundane of women is capable of generating.

However, the OP is asking the wrong question. Women's egos are not inflated by the value of men's attention, but rather the perception of an unending abundance of prospective men. An abundance of male attention contributes to a sense of security for women's SMV. A lot gets made about the influence of "thirsty" guys on women, but the only value they represent is a Buffer against women ever having any personal insight about their ego valuation. Thirsty guys only serve to convince a girl she has options and therefore leisure to demand a better-than-merited Hypergamous option (i.e. apex fallacy Alphas).

Read the full thing here:

<https://therationalmale.com/2017/02/19/of-ego-and-choice/>

378

UPVOTES

There's more to SMV than height (looks/race/hair). Learning to build a captive audience.

21 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I originally typed this up in response to this thread where a short guy laments his shortness: "If you're under 5'6 you are condemned to Beta status by women, forever."

Here's my reply.

Jesus christ stop feeling bad for yourself. Think Danny Devito didn't get laid in his prime? Of course he did. He's ugly, short, and fat.

Listen, being short sucks. We all agree, you lost the genetic lottery. But that doesn't mean you can't be great, it just means you're going to have to be clever. There's more to SMV than height. You're taller than everybody else when you're standing on a stage.

Generally this would be removed, but I remove so many of these I'm keeping this one (and stickying) as a demonstration to others on exactly what it means to choke on the red pill and spit it back up.

It's easy to feel defeated, especially after failing more times than you can count. I get it, I really do. I've been there myself. You can really burn out after a while. Start wondering what the point is.

We all have mental anguish in failure. There were times I thought to myself, "fuck the red pill, what's the point when they're all whores anyway?" And sometimes I still think that (heh). But the reality is that it's a mindset. It's one that comes from weakness and failure. It's sour grapes. And it's not constructive in the least.

Yeah, things can suck. Maybe you're too short. Maybe you're balding. Maybe you're shit with social skills. Maybe you're fat, stupid, ugly and sad....

Take some time off of approaches. Stop thinking about women. Do something energetic. Go rock climbing, hiking, swimming, running. Take a month to do this. Focus on it daily. Come back with a clear head.

You can overcome your obstacles.

One of my closest friends was having trouble with our area which is surprisingly sparse of good looking women, and he had his own challenges he was afraid he couldn't overcome. My advice to him was advice I've given here before:

Create a captive audience.

You're nothing special at a party. You've got a reason to talk to everybody at your party.

You're nothing special at a concert. Everybody watches you when you're on the stage.

You're nothing special at a bar. Everybody talks to you when you're the bar tender.

My friend went on to become a bouncer at a local club. With the captive audience of not only the patrons but the staff (hot young bartenders), he was able to overcome the first hurdle- getting women to talk to you long enough to build rapport. He now knows dozens of women and is better poised to choose his pick than I ever was trolling bars on weekends. (He also kept it flirty with all of them, using game you can learn on our sidebar)

Building rapport is fucking hard. Even harder when the market sucks and there's a 10:1 dude to women ratio everywhere you go. Women simply will not let themselves be subject to you long enough to work your magic.

Build a captive audience.

It's easy for movie stars, the whole world is their captive audience. It's hard to become a movie star. That's true.

But getting a captive audience isn't that hard. I am somewhat proficient at the piano. I looked around for wine bars I could play at. I played at one or two, and during my breaks I'd head up to the bar where undoubtedly other people opened me!

It's not impossible. Find your niche. Whether it's a job, volunteer work, a running club, learning an instrument, or pursuing fame, it's all doable.

110
UPVOTES

Some guys just can't keep the pill down. They spit it right back up. Because we're a cult! (didn't you know?)

29 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/b6UI4>

695

UPVOTES

MOD Notice- We remove your shit if you suck.

30 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I have kept about 1 out of every 10 new posts over the past 24 hours. That's a lot of junk. A ton of it.

Before you post, think to yourself- do I have something novel to say, or am I making a bullet point list of easy to regurgitate information that I read last week for the first time?

Then, don't post.

When in doubt, don't post.

When you think you should post, head on over to /r/asktrp.

This has been a public service announcement.

368
UPVOTES

Announcing, The Long Overdue, Much Anticipated: Red Pill Online-Dating Network!

1 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://terpr.trp.red>

24
UPVOTES

Announcing, The Long Overdue, Much Anticipated: Red Pill Online-Dating Network.. for Women!

1 April 2017 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://terpher.trp.red>

68

UPVOTES

PSA: Don't forget, if you click on a flair text above each post, you can filter TRP by that flair. Here's our top fitness posts.

4 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/search?sort=top&q=flair%3AFitness&restrict_sr=on 1,145

UPVOTES

A Moment of Silence for our Brother Andrew Hansen. He contributed greatly to our community and will be missed.

6 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2017/04/04/the-private-man-has-completed-his-journey/>

987

UPVOTES

Building Power – 200,000+ Subscribers, A New Direction

6 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The red pill has been growing since its inception more than five years ago, to more than 201,000 strong (or quite possibly over 1.1 million). The driving force behind this growth is unfortunately the decline and eventual demise of the modern man.

The Modern Man

The modern man was good hearted, cared about others, expected good things out of the world and believed in equality for all. He believed in the golden rule, and believed that the rule of law would enforce it if push came to shove. He tried his best to make the world a better place for everyone. He expected his efforts to have an effect, and that society would reward him in kind. He believed that happiness was the result of good intentions. Sadly this man can no longer survive in the world.

The defining feature and ultimate downfall of the modern man was his desire to fit in. What was once an advantageous trait that generated group cohesion, built society and facilitated comradery has slowly become the greatest weapon used against him. Feminists and those who craved power recognized man's shortcoming and exploited it. Men, it seemed, would attack other men at the behest of any female cry. They were so intent on saving women, they would even attack themselves.

The modern man tried his hardest to cast off his manhood to answer the cry of feminists. Men were evil, bitter, women-haters, oppressors, rapists, and dangerous. He thought he might find love if he made himself entirely inoffensive and nonthreatening. He failed to realize that he would never be absolved of the sin of being a man. The goalposts for "fixing" maleness were ever-shifting, and no penance paid could ever be enough to satisfy the reparations demanded by the "oppressed."

We may think that we are better than this modern man. We have learned the lessons of his failure and progressed beyond his desperation. We know the psychological tricks that were used to benefit others at our expense, and we trained ourselves against them. We learned psychology for ourselves and used it for our own benefit. We had finally found freedom in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

However, the recent doxxing of an alleged redpill founder teaches us otherwise. Knowing the truth and living by it was not enough to save that man from the wrath of vitriolic women. He stands as a testament to what happens to men who stand alone: They get torn down. Had he not built his own support structure, it could have been the end of his career.

What is coming to replace the modern man is not a better individual. It is not some new way to stand alone. Although we have spent years discussing enjoying the decline, it occurs to me that the reactionary individualism embraced here may be just what the powers that be had intended when they dismantled the modern man. Our blind cooperation was our undoing, but it was our individualism that kept us weak.

The future is going to be built by those who embrace and build power. The new man is a tribesman who builds his strength by joining with his brothers. It is a network of men who establish a fortified ground on which to build their lives, men who defend that stability from the chaos around them. It is men who know their own interests are best served by the success of the group.

In the past we have had the luxury of going it alone. The economy was strong, women were gettable, and men could mostly be men. Now financial independence is a receding glimmer on the horizon, long term relationships are sparse and low quality, and men can be cut down at any moment for offending an abstract morality biased against them. While some still succeed in this environment, it is only a matter of time until most do not.

The answer to this is to band together. Small geographically centralized groups of friends and family cooperating together in the way they used to. There is no point in trying to change the larger culture to accept us. That is how women handle their problems. Instead we will build ourselves up so that we are not dependent on the good graces of this culture. We will form our own cultures and steady ourselves against the slow descent into a fully feminized world.

Life after sex

The man currently accused of creating the red pill actually made me think about something I hadn't considered until now. Our sexual strategy focus has been important at freeing minds from our anti-male culture, saving lives and teaching men to game, lift, and get laid.

But we have completely ignored the rest of the hierarchy of needs. Men who have conquered their own demons learn the basics of TRP, and get spit out on the other side. They are still missing the essential components to a fully realized male identity.

Men cannot exist as islands. It is comradery that we require. It is a tribe that strengthens us, that enables us to pursue the rest of our efforts and missions. Starting families, creating systems, selling products, creating artwork, exploring the galaxy. These are the men history will remember as great. And the way we've prescribed the red pill, these men will never be us.

Pride, honor, and a sense of duty were the driving forces of the modern man. He contributed to society because that was what was expected of him. In return, government and community supported his marriage and family, and a balance was found.

The Puerarchy

The red pill men of today resent this servitude, a broken social contract in which the stick of gender roles for men is firmly in place, but no carrots are to be found. In place of support, government and community encouraged abuse and exploitation. Divorce became the new norm. Families were no longer secure. Men worked to pay alimony and child support at the expense of their own happiness and lives.

Realizing there was no benefit, these men withdrew from culture. In Japan, these men call themselves Herbivore Men. In other countries, they call themselves Red Pill Men. Ian Ironwood dubbed them the puerarchy. The media calls us "Lost Boys."

But it is this resentment and aversion to exploitation that I believe has blinded us to the greatest factor in personal success: building power. Careful not to fall victim to our easily exploited male instincts, we forgot that not all duty with external benefit is without merit.

I believe there's a new generation of red pill men coming, we're seeing it begin today. We're seeing the phrase "red pill" enter our culture's vernacular. We're seeing resistance to our feminized culture. And while I don't think we're in a position to overtake society, I believe that we are in a position to utilize what we know to gain a great advantage over those who do not share our knowledge.

I have always maintained that TRP is not an activist board, and I continue to believe this. It is sexual strategy and this has not changed. Today I am suggesting that we have narrowed our scope too far to see all of what sexual strategy really entails, and I believe we should broaden this.

So today we are introducing two new flairs, encouraging and embracing discussion to complete the circuit of the new man. The new man doesn't simply find belonging and happiness in sex. His identity exists all hours of the day. In his career, his hobbies, his friends, and his sexual partners. His success is a summation of his entire life, and it is this that we can now focus on.

- Culture – Discussion of men's place in world cultures, and discussion of male interests that are our culture.
- Building Power - Discussion and cooperation of creating your own power in your life, or building tools, networks, and tribes to engender growth of power and community.

What is it that allows us to succeed? Money? Influence? Popularity? Fame? Building your own success first requires a foundation. TRP teaches building confidence and muscle as the foundation for getting laid. Building power is creating the foundation for success in your life.

As always, sexual strategy, game, relationships, sex, and field reports are all on topic. Today we broaden our topics to discuss the new man's life.

News

In the spirit of today's announcement, we're going to be making some more announcements in the next couple weeks about new developments to help strengthen communications between men, and building foundations for men. A revised BecomeAMan will be launched this spring, as well as new tools on TRP.RED to help facilitate secure communications between like-minded men.

We are also going to be featuring ideas from the community to build tools to help men. Have ideas? Talk about them here, using the building power flair.

30

UPVOTES

SJW WAR CONTINUES: Harvard Pulls Student Offers Over Online Comments

5 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/GVgwy>

794

UPVOTES

The Great Banning of 2017

13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As you are reading this, our mod team is hard at work banning a few hundred members en masse over what can only be labeled severe retardation or a case of runaway Asperger's.

If you recently found yourself banned and you just don't know why, here's the reason:

- If you read /u/gaylubeoil's latest post and saw his analogy to how culture is treating /r/the_donald but ignored the analogy and conflated that with politics has suddenly taken over TRP, you're gone.
- If you purposefully misunderstand the point of what's written, or are legitimately that stupid not to get it, you're gone.
- If you don't care to grow your own power or help others here build tools for /r/theredpill, you can always just ignore it. If you instead complained and whined, and tried to stop progress like a god damn feminist, you're gone.
- If you complained that the content here is getting worse, but your submission history is all in /r/deadbedrooms, you're gone.
- If you're annoying or don't understand that respect here is earned, not given out like gold stars in kindergarten, you're gone.
- If you want to complain in this thread and test your luck, you're gone.

This purge was long overdue.

631
UPVOTES

We presently live in a social order that presumes any masculinity is “toxic” or “hyper” masculinity. | Divorce Incorporated | The Rational Male

2 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2017/08/01/divorce-incorporated/>

40

UPVOTES

How to Keep Donald Trump from Spreading His Toxic Masculinity to Future Generations

3 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/HDFhh>

196
UPVOTES

Censorship on the Internet • r/theredpillright

25 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1

UPVOTE

PSA - Don't Post Dumb Shit - Spend some time developing a cogent theory. Collect data over longer time frames with more experience than just one date where you almost got laid. If you have a theory, work through it before posting. And for fuck's sake, stop posting platitudes and top 5 lists.

30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

2 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Know What You Want and Take It" by MysticalQuack (remove)
2 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Red & Blue - A chromatic cognitive bias" by ForeverMaverick (remove)
2 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "How people treat you is a reflection on who you ar..." by DahiyaBhaiya (remove)
3 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Attraction and Intelligence" by Tridentuk91 (remove)
3 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "In between incel and alpha: small degree of succes..." by GizmodeGarage (remove)
3 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Fall Into Sleep (An exercise for not giving a shit..." by JaspersChest (remove)
3 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "tall + skinny = huge disadvantage?" by Memoliur (remove)
3 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "How people treat you is a direct reflection of who..." by Ticktockwolf (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Masculinity or Love?" by JaspersChest (remove)
4 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by Hector_Castillo on "Your Vulnerabilities Cannot Be Related to Her or A..." (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Are you an alpha or beta in your circles" by kioba (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Change Your Diet" by TrenGod37 (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Is my mother crazy or am I?" by WhatAboutZeah (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "The only thing women truly care about is what slip..." by ozaku7 (remove)
4 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Cultivate Your Inner Savage (Rick Grimms, The Walk..." by JaspersChest (remove)
6 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by metric_units on "tall + skinny = huge disadvantage?" (remove)
10 minutes ago	redpillschool		banned Marcus1138 (permanent)
10 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Fuck All This Self-Promotion" by Marcus1138 (remove)
14 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by JeffreyDoe on "ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE" (remove)
16 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by WomenHatingWarrior on "Polish Girl Gang Raped - case mediator states tha..." (remove)
17 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Looking for the shrinks here" by psychasthenia_will (remove)
17 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Family Matters" by Wikisnack (remove)
17 minutes ago	redpillschool		edited wiki page (Updated subreddit description)
19 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by theciscokidisfastest on "Women are devoid of Character. You giving a fuck w..." (remove)
20 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by notcarl on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
19 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
20 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
21 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by fartsofdoom on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
21 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by Gilgamesh-23 on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
21 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
22 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
22 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
23 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by Gilgamesh-23 on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
23 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by 50red on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
24 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
25 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved comment by Gilgamesh-23 on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" (unspam)
26 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
26 minutes ago	redpillschool		stickied comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
26 minutes ago	redpillschool		distinguished comment by redpillschool on "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer"
27 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by Rian_Stone on "ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE" (remove)
27 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by Giresunx on "How Higher Education "Studies" Men" (remove)
29 minutes ago	redpillschool		removed link "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" by Gilgamesh-23 (remove)
29 minutes ago	AutoModerator		removed comment by Rian_Stone on "ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE" (remove)
29 minutes ago	redpillschool		ignored reports link "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" by Gilgamesh-23
29 minutes ago	redpillschool		approved link "Thoughts after being diagnosed with cancer" by Gilgamesh-23 (approved)

302

UPVOTES

PSA - Don't Post Dumb Shit - Spend some time developing a cogent theory. Collect data over longer time frames with more experience than just one date where you almost got laid. If you have a theory, work through it before posting. And for fuck's sake, stop posting platitudes and top 5 lists.

30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Love or hate the iPhone, you should never buy Apple

31 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many of you are aware, a few members and myself have been hard at work this Summer putting together contingency plans for men to have continued access to free communication for themselves, friends, and their tribes.

When we launched this initiative we had no idea how bad censorship on the internet would become. Over the past few years, multiple domains have been shuttered via registrars, facebook and twitter have been on a warpath to silence alternative opinions, and youtube and google have been hard at work censoring anything that goes against the popular narratives.

I have a lot more that I'm going to be saying on this subject over the next few weeks, as well as some big announcements, but I wanted to get this out as soon as possible.

There is no greater threat to men then losing free speech.

There are some very strong forces at work attempting to achieve this goal.

And while every single company seems pretty fucking bad these days, one is standing out for me as we delve into application and web development:

Apple locks their devices to their app store, and Apple is 100% pro-censorship of masculine ideas.

Many stores are going to ban free speech platforms as we move forward. I expect google to do the same in their android play store (both apple and google rejected Gab's app).

But there's a difference. Android can easily sideload APKs with little fanfare. Apple, on the other hand, limits side loading to developers, making the distribution of an iPhone app very difficult to support if the feminist gods at Apple decide we're too politically incorrect for inclusion on the store.

Is it still possible to sideload on an iPhone? Yes, with difficulty*. Is it worthwhile to support the platform? No.

If you are in the market for a new phone, I suggest you avoid any platform that actively tries to stop you from accessing the content that you want.

No doubt, android is going to present us with unique challenges in the coming months/years. But for today we focus on apple. Do not buy Apple.

*Difficulty includes: Jailbreaking your iPhone, paying yearly for a developer account to sideload your own apps, or using an app like Cydia and re-syncing your sideloaded apps once every 7 days for eternity.

741

UPVOTES

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

4 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1,311
UPVOTES

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Just remember, you don't have to prove anything to anybody. Failure is only as bad as you decide it will be. Nobody can tell you how to live life. Only you can decide what is good. You do you.

Just because you don't exercise or you're not looking your best, doesn't mean you have to feel bad about yourself. There's somebody out there for everybody! You just gotta wait for the right time, and the right person will come along.

Trust me, those girls giving you a pass today, they'll realize they've made a mistake 10 years down the road. Then who's laughing? You are, you big silly manlet! You showed them!

There's simply no objective truth to be found. Everybody's different. Everybody has something that works for them, don't change just because some assholes on the internet tell you that's the only way to get respect and women. Stay exactly who you are. You're good enough just the way you are. Accepting the status quo isn't shameful.

Women can't be generalized either, remember that. Every woman is completely unique and they all have different tastes and preferences. There's a woman out there looking for someone just like you. Never change who you are for somebody else.

You're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

No, not really. Useless feel-good platitudes are against the rules.

Learn them.

34

UPVOTES

Jesus Fuck, the front page of reddit has gone to shit.

1 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's a strange time we live in when you see coordinated efforts like /r/all today. Post after post about net neutrality and politics. All left-leaning of course.

Undoubtedly these are not organic posts. Reddit is entirely compromised.

Sexual assault is the buzzword of 2017. Everything TRP predicts is on full display. Will post on this later next week.

Just wanted a quick vent. Also, reminder that reddit is not your friend. I saw they recently added a "chat" feature on here. (Or maybe that RES?). Do NOT trust that your conversations are safe there. Assume admin can (and do) read them. Don't message me, I won't reply.

If you need a chat, head on over to trp.red and join the chat beta (which we will launch as soon as all the kinks are out). To join beta, just post a status with hashtag: #beta

Back to your daily scheduled programming.

Edit: For those interested in debating Net Neutrality:

https://www.reddit.com/r/theredpillright/comments/7gxx5e/net_neutrality/

613

UPVOTES

The world's oldest profession is still alive and well...

21 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I happened upon a comment pointing out a website called "Tag the sponsor" and I will admit I probably spent more time browsing there than I should have. I think it's worth sharing here.

<http://tagthesponsor.com/>

Welcome to the age of the sponsorette, where no one has breakfast at Tiffany's and a 9 to 5 job is an urban legend. What is a sponsorette, you ask? It's a woman who is put on a pedestal, typically through social platforms such as Instagram, by men who ogle them and women that idolize and aspire to be just like them. Typically found on a beach, martini in hand, on a Tuesday at 3 PM, they seem to be living the life we all want. The question we are all dying to know, however, is, "Who takes these pictures?" The answer? Their sponsors.

A sponsor is a wealthy male, that typically falls into one of three categories: Larry, the hedge fund CEO ; Mohammed, the sheik; or Jamal, the basketball player. Sadly, the glitz and glamour of a sponsorettes lifestyle comes with a price tag. Whether it's being flown to Dubai by Mohammed to be shat on by him and his fellow sheiks, or flying to Vegas with Larry the CEO, these women are being paid for pussy. These sponsorettes are glorified prostitutes with malnourished brains and nothing to offer but two holes and a large derrière. Don't get me wrong, there's nothing wrong with having a sugar daddy, as it's beneficial to both parties. But all of a sudden, there is a surge of women with small waists and disproportionate butts that have 50k + followers on Instagram, with booking info in their bios. Booking what? Pussy. The problem here is, is that these sponsorettes put on a facade that they are signed models, fitness chicks, bartenders, real estate agents, marketing executives, or some obscure form of employment. Don't models have agents? Don't fitness chicks actually work out? How does a weekend bartending gig finance private jets? Don't real estate agents and marketing executives actually work, not lay under a cabana on a different island every week? They might as well start putting their rates in their bios as well, because they won't be fooling anyone much longer. We have nothing against prostitution, but we are against women who sell pussy and put down those who actually work to make a decent living. We are against fraudulent hoes, pretentiousness, and bigotry. We look down upon and expose hoes that pretend they built their accomplishments by working hard and not laying on their backs. Hence, why we don't take submissions of strippers and pornstars, as these women will not try to fool you. They're upfront with what they do, unlike sponsorettes.

We all know what you did for those red bottoms and LV purse. We know you paid for the FHM magazine shoot to use as a credible back story for you flourishing "modeling career". We know what #blessed means and most importantly, we know who took all those pictures of you, alone on a beach, on a jet, on a yacht. Remember, just TagTheSponsor

102
UPVOTES

Sometimes an exchange is just too good to let die when we remove entire threads. "An Angry Spergle appears!"

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

207

UPVOTES

On Alpha & Beta, and the misuse of these terms.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I suppose it's time for our yearly reminder of what these terms mean, since TRP has the memory of a goldfish. The topic came up here but I thought it would be good to post a review at the top of the forum for all to see.

Alpha is the most misused word on this forum. It's a word meant to describe traits that are attractive to women and satisfy her alpha desires.

Women also seek out beta behaviors. A man who can satisfy both without losing balance is considered the ultimate catch for women.

The big problem is, women tend to grind away at men to bring down the alpha qualities, or test their mettle. They believe they want more beta qualities rather than alpha qualities. This would be a mistake if you fall for this shit test. If you do, you will quickly learn she's on her way to the next branch. This gives men here the impression that beta is all to be avoided.

An example: a father who leads the family and brings home the bacon, is fit, and knows when to say no to his wife. Notice there are a number of alpha traits here, such as fitness and saying no. But buying a house, or feeding your family? Beta traits. Does that make this man "beta" or "alpha" or does this show that these terms are meaningless in this context?

/u/rollo-tomassi suggests to err on the side of alpha. Displaying too many alpha traits is a safer bet than too many beta traits. He even suggests not even considering striking a balance, I suspect because he believes the beta side of things is too easy and natural to men that it will shine through anyhow.

But nevertheless, do not mistake these terms for descriptors of a whole person.

Some people here make shorthand of it to suggest an "alpha" is simply one whose alpha traits outnumber their beta traits. But as you can see, it leads to confusion like this post here.. If you see this shorthand, do not forget what it stands for. If you use it, use it properly. If you're new here, read our glossary in the side bar.

189

UPVOTES

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inured and so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it." Cognitive dissonance-whenver bias prevents someone from even considering an alternative view let alone weigh the merits.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

126
UPVOTES

You cannot negotiate Desire. Negotiated desire only ever leads to obligated compliance. - Rollo

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

92

UPVOTES

We want to be open and honest. We want to have a safe haven.. where we gain strength...instead of having it pulled from us. We want to stop being on guard all the time... to simply be with someone who can understand our basic humanity without begrudging it... If we do, we soon are no longer able to.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

270

UPVOTES

Women are utterly incapable of loving a man in the way that a man expects to be loved. In the same respect.. women can't actualize how a man would have himself loved.. the moment he attempts to explain his ideal love, that's the point at which his idealization becomes her obligation.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

273

UPVOTES

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place. - BRIFFAULT'S LAW

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

59

UPVOTES

For a female of any species to facilitate a methodology for breeding with the best genetic partner she's able to attract AND to ensure her own and her offspring's survival with the best provisioning partner; this is an evolutionary jackpot.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

205

UPVOTES

The Lightswitch Effect: Women use emotion to define objective reality. Why would she feel sad unless somebody made her sad? If your sacrifices and love were genuine and real, she wouldn't feel sad. This reality must not be real. You must have lied, and there was never a true relationship at all.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

390
UPVOTES

New posts are restricted for the day. Comments are open.

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Time for a refresher in the basics of TRP. Some of you may be approved submitters, feel free to contribute if you can. Otherwise, the rest of you should take some time to read up on some sidebar. I've taken the liberty of reposting some of the more important features of our content so new members can enter into new discussions regarding it.

Posting will be re-opened when I feel like it.

1,325
UPVOTES

James Damore sues Google, alleging intolerance of white male conservatives

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

36

UPVOTES

The Unbearable Triteness Of Hating - Some of you newcomers are guilty of one or more of these. Read up

9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

884

UPVOTES

Women hardest hit. "Men won't be able to deduct alimony from taxes...You would expect that the pro divorce lobby (nearly everyone) would be cheering... the problem is ex husbands are already being bled white. It has gotten so bad that the parasite is now expressing concern for the host."

Dalrock

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

234

UPVOTES

"What's Mine is Mine and What's Yours is Ours" - Woman: The Most Responsible Teenager In The House

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

219

UPVOTES

EVERY.MOTHER.FUCKING.TIME i could have taken corrective action, i was lied to. Each time my buddies told me, i was once again led astray by a woman. By my mother, teachers, magazine articles, other girls i asked advice, Oprah, my friendzone crush and object of my desire.

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

148
UPVOTES

Yes, Men Do Leave the Market

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

298

UPVOTES

Radical feminism changes men's perceptions of women in the workplace - Feminism does not allow women to prefer men who exhibit traditional masculine characteristics. So what's left? Get drunk and have sex with the hot bad boys. Then promote false accusations to get revenge against the hot bad boys.

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

256

UPVOTES

What worldview does the maker of Star Wars movies want you to accept? -- Faith and tradition are disposable, You don't really need to put in years of work to be competent, Men are inconsequential

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

552

UPVOTES

Men and Suicide | 7 in 10 suicides are men (majority white) between the ages of 45 and 65. As expected from gynocentric media, the primary reason always cited is men's so called stubbornness in seeking out psychiatric help...again absolving women's influence of any complicity

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

36

UPVOTES

SJWs claim a scalp - Alpha Game Plan

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

341
UPVOTES

Straight Men Will Soon Be Called Homophobic For Not Sleeping With Gays And Trannies

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

292

UPVOTES

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I said I'd unlock posting when I felt like it. I don't yet.

In the mean time, enjoy some quality reading from some more contemporary blogs, recent events, and other manosphere insights.

As an aside, I believe when the lockdown is over I think we will reopen posting links to manosphere blogs. Part of our stagnation has been limiting the voices of our manosphere bloggers - who undoubtedly have more interesting things to say than the 17 year old kid on holiday break telling us about how he touched a boob once.

Also, kids take note: The front page of TRP today is exactly what I like to see. Quality posts, intriguing discussion, debatable points, and thought-provoking ideas.

In the future, if you are about to post and you think your post would look out of place among this current front page. Don't post it. Seriously, just don't.

I want to also comment on field reports. They've been a staple of our sub since as long as I remember. We're not doing away with them. But, if your field report doesn't have a really big conclusion, confirm a wild theory that is controversial, or raise questions that the community can discuss, I will soon direct your field reports to /r/thanktrp as they are more a testament of success today rather than a data-point for theories.

When (if) posting is re-opened, we will remove posts aggressively (more so than usual) and we will not give individual replies as to why. Instead we will refer to this post. Got it? Good.

520

UPVOTES

Building Power & Your Tribe

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Not too long ago we introduced some new flairs that I've seen get moderate usage recently. If you've wondered where I've been as my posting has been intermittent at best recently, I'll answer the question.

I've been practicing what I preach and trying some new ideas that I think are important to the future of men.

I believe everything is about sex, and therefore the philosophies and strategies we discuss will always boil down to affecting your sexual strategy in one way or another. Our evolutionary drive has been great at pushing our species into new uncharted territories, but the common thread that follows all of history is that those who have sex and children carry on humanity.

But there are a lot of facets to life that we barely touch on here at TheRedPill, even though many of these facets are integral to finding happiness in life.

For some of us, finding sexual success is such a consuming task that we don't consider what we would do on the other side once we do find this success. For others, improving one's station in life is the major hurdle to even begin to find sexual success.

Every thread here starts with "do you even lift bro?" which is certainly the easiest life decision you can make to instantly change your life's path for the better. But there is so much more to discuss.

We've touched on limiting your liability in our culture that no longer hides its contempt for men. Instead of the pendulum swinging back as we hoped a few years ago, it is now more dangerous than ever to interact with a woman. Hollywood is getting hit hard, with dozens of accusations coming forward every week.

We've also touched on careers, money, video games, happiness, suicide, depression, drugs, and dozens of other subjects relevant not only to getting laid but to becoming a whole person with a healthy sex life.

But in this we have missed some of the most important aspects to life as men. Comradery, power and tribes.

Those who saw my introduction to the "building power" flair already know where I'm headed with this.

It isn't enough to lift, dress well, and approach women at bars. Women come and go, but the number one factor that has brought meaning and stability to my life wasn't women, it was the network of men in my life who I could depend on. Not just friends, and certainly not casual friends, but instead men that I consider to be my brothers.

Building a network of men that you can rely on is the single-most important requirement in a man's life.

- What good is avoiding getting falsely accused by a woman... if you don't have a support network for when you do?
- What good is building power if you don't have men you can depend on to defend you when others attack?
- What good is having every skill under the sun if you don't have the network to accomplish complicated goals?

When you build this network, it stands to accomplish more than simply being a support network when things go wrong. This network becomes a unit with which you can band together and accomplish goals and tasks with greater efficiency and speed than any individual could. You become an economic and social unit with the strength of diverse specializations that can now compete with the world on incredible footing.

It should come as no surprise that our culture is focused on individualism as its primary mode. Men are at their weakest when they are unable to form tribes, and you better know that it is this very fact that has been used against us. Weak, thirsty men will undermine other men if it means sucking at the teat of social and female validation - even if only briefly. And when all men are focused against each other, they are unable to harness their god-given power, relinquishing it to the those running the show today: those who have built power.

Building power and building a tribe go hand-in-hand. Over the next few weeks we'll be announcing some new features of <https://trp.red> and TheRedPill forum that will be focusing on helping men build tribes and helping those tribes build power.

But you don't have to wait for me to post about it, you can get started today.

What is building power?

Building power is not something many people tend to consciously describe, but it's something we all work at in our daily lives. Whether it's personal developments such as physical self-improvement, education, discipline, practice, or cumulative work efforts, or simply amassing resources for future use, the goal of building power remains the same:

Maximizing future opportunities.

It doesn't get much simpler than that. Ultimately you are maximizing your options to follow the life strategy you prefer. When you don't have options, you do not have freedom. When you do not have freedom you do not own your fate, somebody else does.

- If you decide you need a life change from something hindering your growth and happiness, you cannot do this without enough money, resources, or skills to accomplish these changes.
- If an emergency happens and you need to make sudden life changing choices, you cannot exercise the options for which you have not prepared for.
- If you want to start a family, you must first be able to provide for them.
- If you are in danger or trouble, you must first establish a network of support options that can protect you from these dangers or trouble.

So why build tribes?

The first and most obvious answer is comradery: You need a social network and male connections to keep a healthy mind. Do not overlook the benefits of simply having a social friends group. They can bring balance to your life.

But the second and almost as important answer is that they allow you to build power at greater rates, and in ways that an individual is unable to do.

Individuals' specialization is one of the biggest strengths of a tribe. If each member of a tribe has a unique skill set, this can bring power to a group that others lack. For instance, having a mechanic in your tribe makes your tribe immune to automobile breakdowns. Having a lawyer in your group provides incredible resources in case of individual legal problems as well as investigating joint business ventures. This can extend to any number of special skills, professions, and even simple hobbies. Does a member of your group enjoy emergency preparation, HAM radios, and living off the land? A joint venture in your group could put emergency preparedness in his court while he enjoys the benefits of other specializations in your tribe.

The benefits to a tribe are endless:

- Employment recommendations and opportunities
- Emergency Preparedness
- Business and joint venture opportunities
- Recreational competition
- Encouragement / iron sharpening iron

- Physical safety in certain circumstances
- Shared costs on joint risks and liabilities.

Now, what I describe here sounds an awful lot like a commune, and in some ways it's similar. But understand a tribe does not have to live under one roof, or share food to become a tribe.

To have a tribe you must have a shared understanding and respect for a brotherhood, one that transcends interpersonal politics or disagreements between individuals.

And with that tribe, you can take your strengths and amass power than none of you could individually accomplish without the group.

Some of the ways I am building power in my own tribes consist of building infrastructure that takes us outside of the grasp of those who seek to control us. For instance, while TRP isn't exactly a tribe strictly speaking, I consider the purpose for why we gather together an important brotherhood that rises above all of us individually.

As such, I have been focused on working on communication tools with some of our members (most notably /u/gaylubeoil) on our platform <https://trp.red>. But it's not limited there. As I mentioned we have more to post in the coming days and weeks, and one of our next big moves is leveraging the size and strength of our community to generate a much larger and decentralized infrastructure that can and will run up against the biggest of enemies.

In my personal tribe, I am following similar advice, ensuring our free and open communication, and developing tools, products and business ideas of which we can share the risk and hopefully share the reward.

Every tribe needs a way to communicate.

It is my opinion that places such as Facebook, Reddit, Twitter and the like are all completely insecure and have been infiltrated from the inside. Your tribe needs a way to coordinate and communicate securely and privately.

Because of this, we will be announcing in the next few weeks a new Tribes feature of our red pill network that will allow like-minded men to band together privately under the banners of shared interests and brotherhood and discuss freely with each other without fear or intimidation from the culture and society at large.

We have many privacy, encryption and safety features to announce, and I'm very excited to get this project off the ground.

We have just soft-launched a web chat on <https://trp.red> that we're still considering to be in a public beta (no not alpha, yes I've heard the joke) which you're free to try out over the next few days until we decide whether it's stable enough to expand further.

In the mean time, stay tuned. More is coming. It's time for men to take back their own fates.

112
UPVOTES

Building Power - The brainstorm

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you haven't read my address yet, please start here:

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/7pyfzo/building_power_your_tribe/

I am starting this open-ended thread as a continuation of my discussion of building power.

One of changes we are planning for /r/theredpill is utilizing our strength in numbers and unity to continue building out an infrastructure that benefits like-minded men and gives us the tools and power to succeed in life and control our own fates.

As such, please use this space to brainstorm ideas that men here can contribute to that could aid in this front.

The TRP.RED development team will be following this thread and while the ideas here don't need to be technological in nature, we will be selecting ideas that we believe would benefit the community that we could undertake ourselves (with volunteers if any are willing) to bring power and strength to our infrastructure.

Some other ideas I'll just spitball here:

- A men's anti-feminism legal fund
- A one-to-one mentor/apprentice matching system to allow men to gain life and career skills
- A new school accreditation system outside of our current system that competes with the currently feminized system

Discuss

108

UPVOTES

How to guarantee satisfaction. "They want to take an inherently unsafe activity and make it safe. They want to submit to a man without having to submit; they want a man who can tame their feral self. They want him to trip their danger signals. Even better if he is a stranger from a strange land."

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

414

UPVOTES

Intrasexual Competition and the Strong Independent Woman.
"That women are the gatekeepers of sex but men are the gatekeepers of commitment is incomplete. More accurately men are the gatekeepers of investment, a category which includes commitment."

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

270

UPVOTES

The Female Orgasm Is Trivial - "If a woman decided to have sex with you, that means you provide value to her besides the sexual. Whether you give her an orgasm or not is irrelevant, and she will continue seeing you even if the sex was uninspiring. "

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

224

UPVOTES

Arousal doesn't come in discreet laser focused packets "A man's sexuality is a fire. Not a laser beam. If you succeed in tampering down his fire and get him to self regulate looking at hotties while you are both out, you won't get fucked as much."

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

91
UPVOTES

The Slaughter Of The German Girls

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

913

UPVOTES

The culmination of the pro-women movements and their unabashed abandonment of logic and reason is that their narrative can now be publicly misandric and any critical opposition is simply ignored as they march forward. Everything leading up to this has created the Hollywood sex scandal fever.

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Follow

Hey James Franco, nice #timesup ⚖️ pin at the #GoldenGlobes 🏆, remember a few weeks ago when you told me the full nudity you had me do in two of your movies for $100/day wasn't exploitative because I signed a contract to do it? Times up on that!

4:43 PM - 7 Jan 2018

3,446 Retweets 9,657 Likes

1.3K 3.4K 9.7K

🐱 · Jan 8

Replying to [redacted]

Im a little cloudy on details if you signed for two films then i get that but if you agree to it once then did it again a second time if the first was so harrowing. obviously i don't condone any form of abuse to women/anyone just want some clarity

20 48 1.1K

🌈 @ [redacted] · Jan 8

If you are a true #male #ally then you wouldn't mansplain and then ask me to "clarify" before you believe me. Thanks though!

153 32 550

526

UPVOTES

Just two days ago, I was told I was being alarmist for posting "Straight Men Will Soon Be Called Homophobic For Not Sleeping With Gays And Trannies." You can't make this shit up.

12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

1,648
UPVOTES

The Humiliation of Aziz Ansari

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

122
UPVOTES

Stanton's dilemma - "How do you put women in charge while claiming that men are responsible for every bad outcome?"

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

472

UPVOTES

“Hot Girls Wanted” - "The film intended to show how difficult life is for these girls, but instead it shows how incredibly entitled and spoiled they are." -Roosh

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

51

UPVOTES

The Nümale Grimace | Chateau Heartiste

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://old.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/7qkfh8/the_nümale_grimace_chateau_heartiste/

62

UPVOTES

Inflaming Foreplay | Chateau Heartiste "The goal is to walk that fine line between a display of dominance which excites women and a menacing threat which scares women. Foreplay is maximally inflamed with a quick, yet unmistakable, hint of your manly power."

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

91

UPVOTES

The Aziz story completely predicted by Sexual Utopia in power.

15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dontmarry.files.wordpress.com/2009/03/sexualutopia.pdf>

Confusion, miscommunication and teaching kids poorly about sex and responsibility...

Relevant Excerpt:

He met a girl at a party. They chatted, perhaps drank a bit: all smiles, quite unlike the girls who had been so quick about rejecting him in high school. She even let him come to her room afterwards (or came to his). It doesn't take a genius to figure out what she is thinking, he says to himself. This is a tremendously important moment for him; every ounce of his self-respect is at stake. He is confused and his heart is pounding, but he tries to act as if he knows what he is doing. She seems confused, too, and he meets no more than token resistance (or so it seems to him). He doesn't actually enjoy it, and isn't sure whether she does either. But that is beside the point; it only matters that he can finally consider himself a man. Later on they can talk about what terms they want to be on, whether she will be his regular girlfriend, etc. Matrimony is not exactly uppermost in his mind, but he might not rule it out—eventually. He asks her how she feels afterwards, and she mumbles that she is "okay." This sets his mind at rest. An awkward parting follows.

Later that night or the next morning our young woman is trying to figure out what in hell has happened to her. Why had he gotten so pushy all of a sudden? Didn't he even want to get to know her first? It was confusing, it all happened so quickly. Sex, she had always heard, was supposed to be something wonderful; but this she had not enjoyed at all. She felt somehow used. Of course, at no point does it enter her mind to question her own right to have been intimate with the young man if she had wanted to. Moral rule number one, we all know, is that all sex between consenting adults is licit. She just isn't sure whether she had really wanted this. In fact, the more she thinks about it, the more certain she feels that she hadn't. But if she hadn't wanted it, then it was against her will, wasn't it? And if it was against her will, that means...she's been raped?

I sympathize with the young woman, in view of a miseducation which might have been consciously designed to leave her unprepared for the situation she got herself into. But as to the question of whether she was raped, the answer must be a clear no.

1,126
UPVOTES

The Only Real Reason for School Shootings

16 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You know we see this tired argument trotted out time and time again, each time bringing us no closer to an answer on school shootings.

It's the guns that are at fault! No, mental illness! Clearly parenting is at fault! No, it's video games! Surely something can and should be done!

Of course the problem will never truly be addressed because the nature of our fem-centric society forbids looking behind the curtain and makes the general populace completely blind to the nature of the shootings. To make it worse, the common thread is right there for you to pull but it's all-but-invisible unless you shed your blue-pill conditioning.

It's always curious to me when society as a whole throws up its hands and declares they do not know what causes senseless crimes such as these and pretends there are no common factors or identifiers that can be seen. It's similar to Scott Adam's analogy, that we're watching two different movies on the same screen. They see random acts of violence that have no cause, no trigger, and therefore no way to stop it other than removing freedoms from all citizens, lest any one of us suddenly become as randomly angry as the last guy was. Watching the conversation unfold, it's as though the gun control nuts themselves aren't sure if they might become a school shooter, so the safe bet is to get rid of all guns!

But I digress, this is not a topic about gun control or medicating children. This is about the REAL cause of school shootings.

There is a common identifier that may clue you in to the nature of school shootings. And it's not hard to see. It is done entirely by male students who have been ostracized and have no sense of belonging... and they don't have girlfriends. They are, by all accounts losers.

It should be painfully obvious to anybody here what's happening but I'll spell it out.

Men only go to extremes like this when they are exceptionally desperate. It's the reason why young sexless virgins are easily recruited into terrorist organizations with promises of sex with virgins when they die. It's the reason why you don't see Chad from the football team that gets his knob slobbered on by a different cheerleader each night stocking up on guns to teach other students a lesson.

Why are these boys so upset?

Factor number one is probably poor social skills, perhaps no father figure to teach them. Couple that with some level of autism or physical malady, or maybe just an ugly face. They get shunned by the popular kids and girls, forever hopeless and forever alone.

Of course at that age you don't exactly have a roadmap to direct you where to go. Many of us relied on fathers to explain to us what matters in life and how to navigate social hurdles. But in today's culture of unbridled hypergamy, there are record amounts of public and direct hatred and lack of sympathy for male losers. It's not that women fail to understand the male plight, it's that they openly mock it. Meanwhile mainstream media does its best to delegitimize the actual issues these boys face.

Elliot Rodger comes to mind when looking at the full picture. A sexless autistic kid desperate for female attention but with zero understanding and know-how to make it a reality. So angry he was that the Disney fairytale of "be a nice guy" didn't work that he lamented both the popular kids as well as pick up artists who claim to have the secret, as neither fit into his narrow world-view. Of course, when the evidence doesn't match your belief, some might consider re-examining their beliefs. But you throw in a case of autism, raging hormones, and lack of father figures and you might just have a ticking time bomb on your hands instead.

Gunning to ignore the male plight, the mainstream news painted him as a red-pill misogynist, reporting that he murdered girls because he hated them so much. Of course, the news downplayed the fact that he killed more men than women, or that he did so because of jealousy and rage that they should be so lucky to experience female validation that he so desperately craved. No, this was simply misogyny at play, nothing more, nothing less. No mention that he hated pickup and red pill. He was a member at PUAHate, a site dedicated to disagreeing with us.

The collective response was "no wonder women didn't like him, what a loser!" This was the country, banding together under the banner of the fempire, sticking out their collective tongues and doubling down on their open disgust of males and their stupid vulnerabilities and needs. A response so tone deaf that I'm surprised some women didn't simply load his weapons for him.

Now, at TRP we preach personal responsibility, and I'm absolutely not saying these boys are not at fault for what they do. I'm a strong believer in personal responsibility. But that doesn't mean you can't identify trends. And a trend school shootings have become.

Do mental illnesses play into the outcomes? For sure they do. But you don't see every emotionally disturbed teen shooting up a school. You don't see teens with girlfriends doing so either.

The real reason for school shootings is because boys have been raised as the enemy by a society that hates maleness. These boys never learn how to become men from role models that don't exist, and fathers who have either given up or have legally been told to stay away.

And I don't see this trend of extremism changing until our culture changes its attitude towards men and boys. But the femtrain is a strong force and I don't see it slowing down, so I won't hold my breath. But if anybody wants the real reason to the meaningless murders, you don't have to look any further.

As for prevention, here's an idea- an inoculation against school shootings if you will. Get the cheerleading team together and simply give blowjobs to the losers in your class. Do it once a year, and finally once again at graduation. Though I jest in suggesting this, I would put my life savings on a prediction that student bodies that participated in this would have a 0% school shooting rate. As impossible as this sort of policy would be, it would completely solve the question that all those experts haven't been able to answer.

And it should shed some light on the male condition. Even a blowjob from somebody who barely tolerates your existence, and the promise of a future one would be enough to change the mind of a would-be mass murderer. Hell, downgrade blow job to simply hand holding and I bet you'd get similar results. Fuck- a phone call now and again would probably be it for 90% of these guys.

Hell, a guy in the desert would drink piss.

555

UPVOTES

250,000 Subscribers

16 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Gents, another milestone has been reached today. 250,000 subscribers.

Of course, I read about us in the news and they say we're absolutely wrong about women, so that's probably why we're so popular.

We're a household phrase now, but it's only because our predictions are hilariously wrong.

Hell, we are the cause of villains on tv. Can't make a good story on American Horror Story without talking about America's real horror: those basement dwellers with no grasp on the truth.

Making a movie about men? Why not piggy back on how much exposure our name gets!

Guys, we suck. This place sucks. Our success is 100% because of that. We don't understand women, we brainwash you by holding your face in front of the computer and you cannot escape, we definitely don't know what women want, and we're definitely misogynists.

This is why they absolutely cannot stop talking about us. Because we have nothing valid to say.

751

UPVOTES

A Family Man Experiences the Light-Switch, Loses Everything, Baffled that the Rules Don't Apply

20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I overheard this fellow in his late 40s/early 50s chatting with a friend the other day. It was a story as old as time. Had I heard it 15 years ago I'd have been outraged, but hearing it this week was just a sad reminder that not everybody has read TRP and many men still believe the fairy tale lies.

The man illustrates a bitter, emotional divorce after almost 30 years together with multiple college-aged children. She had been cheating on him, in his bed, for the better part of year without his knowing.

The sad part, hearing this story, is his surprise that suddenly this woman that he thought he knew was operating under a completely different set of rules, and that she appeared to him to be a completely different person.

He still believed in morality and justice. Why would she act contrary to the promises she made? It just didn't make sense to him. The shock from this revelation will stay with him, likely until his time is over. The actors in his life he believed to be rational were anything but, and suddenly he is forced to acknowledge he doesn't understand the rules.

He described the all-too-common behavior of her re-labelling past events. I swear you could interchange every god damn woman in this scenario:

- She says she never truly loved me.
- She says one time, when we had sex and she was unenthusiastic about it three years ago, was actually rape now.
- She says I'm defective and only think about me.
- If she had just come clean when she first cheated I'd have been able to work with her to move past it!
- I asked her what she wanted, I told her we could fix it!
- I swear I don't recognize her anymore. She has a dead look in her eyes.
- Her behavior is so completely different it's like she's had an episode!
- She isn't even trying to end this amicably.

The pleading and negotiating is classic in blue pill conditioned men. The redefining of past events- well, anybody here who has been in a relationship or read the side bar can pin-point this as the lightswitch effect.

If you haven't read that, you should.

This woman blew up a family, upgraded to a new cock, justified all her actions to protect her ego, and did so with zero remorse or consideration for any of the lives she affected. Her husband, her kids, anybody.

And this 50ish year old man is surprised by all of these behaviors and helpless to prevent or stop it. He has never heard of any of this before... because it would have been misogyny to tell him.

Remember that is the opposition's position.

This man's blue pill conditioning made him a perfect stooge for her hypergamy to do its thing. He was used and discarded and she optimized her strategy.

589

UPVOTES

On Freedom of Speech

22 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Recently reddit's admin made another blindly stupid decision to piss off their userbase with little to no actual payoff to the company, which they have yet to figure out how to properly monetize so they're experimenting with simply alienating the userbase by banning numerous subreddits absent any justification or understandable policy.

During times like this I tend to get a lot of requests for help with projects to protect free speech or archiving subreddits that believe they may be on the future receiving end of trouble.

Many here will note that years ago I foresaw a possible shuttering of our discussion and undertook measures I believed to be prudent to prevent a complete loss if the SJW crowd was able to finally try to wipe us out.

I designed software dedicated to archiving our subreddits' most popular posts, identify reddit users on a secondary forum (<https://forums.red>) where we could verify our identities in case of emergency, and a micro-blogging / full blogging platform that gave us some breathing room outside of reddit (<https://trp.red>).

It's funny that we were the big bad guy not too many years ago, users begged for us to be silenced. But now are being approached by people whose speech you wouldn't consider to be controversial now asking us for help in protecting their freedom of speech.

In the spirit of freedom and the free dissemination of information I have always had a soft spot for groups and people I've believed are at risk for censorship.

I'm reminded of the old quote "First they came for the Socialists, and I did not speak out— Because I was not a Socialist... "

So, I am posting this here for anybody who may be involved in these groups. Get in touch with me if you think you've got an idea or need help with an idea that you believe will combat censorship. I have a lot of resources that may be of use. In some cases (not guaranteed) I have been and am willing to offer web hosting, software tools / development, or other useful things. Get in touch with me and we can work something out.

I believe the community is strongest when we have a network to build our own power. This begins with ensuring we have freedom of speech.

I have a little experience in this arena. I am a master shitlord after all.

Hi all, as per my post a few days ago I've been discussing free speech platforms with a select number of people who reached out to me regarding a potential project that might "cure" the issues surrounding free speech on major platforms.

The idea that I have is simple. Rather than invent a dozen new technologies or invest in blockchain tech that sounds cool in theory (but nobody has been able to actually explain to me in a way that makes any fucking sense), I thought the best approach would be a hybrid/hydra approach.

This is what I think the biggest barriers are to a free speech platform:

- Ownership and hosting of the platform should be distributed, which means supporters of a project must be numerous for success.
- Difficulty in implementation. Blockchain sounds great but nobody knows how to use it, and very few are going to become experts in the field to launch their own part of the platform. Simplicity is key.
- Difficulty in accessibility. If your project is dark-web or requires a new browser or app to access it, it's already off to a bad start. In order to combat censorship, we must not accept alternatives to the accepted world-wide-web. (If a tree falls in the forest and nobody's around to hear it). Assume that any requirement for a 3rd party app is doomed from the start (see gab's experience with google play and apple store).
- Liability. Outside of being appetizing to advertisers, which I think is an overblown argument that doesn't hold as much merit as many would think, the big reason for the recent purge was the administration here either pushing a political agenda or attempting to mitigate future liability. A distributed nature of a website would minimize anybody's liability to the content they choose to host.
- Moderation vs Censorship. Moderation must still be possible for individual communities to stay on topic, however the overarching concept should allow subverting censorship by letting anybody become a moderator of their own community if they choose.
- Cost. A centralized platform is difficult to implement and expensive to run. A distributed platform is cheap. Owners of sub-communities will be allowed to sell their own advertising to cover costs or use something like bitcoin to collect donations.

My Idea

A light-weight forum script no heavier than wordpress, and just as easy to install, that uses an open-id format that lets users seamlessly jump from property to property. Instead of subreddits we have sub-sites. Anybody with a hobby can launch their own. The script should have as little overhead as possible, letting smaller sites host on anything as simple as a cheap shared-hosting account on godaddy or the bigger subs to setup shop on a mildly priced VPS/Dedicated + domain.

A master site (or anybody who wants to implement it) uses the open standard to aggregate content that you subscribe to in one place, similar to reddit's front page. But none of that content is centrally hosted making the aggregation nothing but a viewer with no control or oversight on the content (aside from deciding who to subscribe to and who not to). If any major aggregation threatens censorship, a dozen new ones can pop up, or you can host your own private one. Or, you can visit each property individually as you do the normal internet.

If you don't like how one forum is being moderated, you can create your own. So while individual properties will still obviously offer a level of moderation, a larger free-speech approach is enabled by letting any community start with their own set of rules and no governing body can say no.

The legal liability for legal content is squarely on the shoulders of the mods who create their own properties.

We've investigated a few open source or existing ideas (such as hubzilla) so we're not sold on re-inventing the wheel. But if you have an interest in either the creative side of this project or the development side of this, please leave a note in the comments and I'll get you instructions to join the group discussing this.

Thanks.

176

UPVOTES

New Design

14 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

The new design is a bag of dicks, but we're working on making our sub usable in it. Just wanted to let you all know we know it sucks. Complain to the admin.

We don't have custom CSS yet, and the flair options are highly limited. We may forever be trapped in this awful design.

In the mean time, you can access old.reddit.com/r/theredpill for better times.

436

UPVOTES

First rule of dealing with rape accusations and the police, keep your mouth shut.

15 May 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

166
UPVOTES

All That's Left For Normal Men Are Rotten Women

26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.rooshv.com/all-thats-left-for-normal-men-are-rotten-women>

12
UPVOTES

When The Slut Life Meets The Thirst Life - Heartiste
26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/07/25/when-the-slut-life-meets-the-thirst-life/>

618
UPVOTES

What Men Want: “Debt-Free Virgins Without Tattoos”
26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/07/19/what-men-want-debt-free-virgins-without-tattoos/>

97

UPVOTES

HOW BLACK AMERICA HAS PREDICTED OUR FUTURE

26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2090/how-black-america-has-predicted-our-future>

1

UPVOTE

11 Real Ratings of Women on the 1-10 Attractiveness Scale - ROK

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.returnofkings.com/181630/11-real-ratings-of-women-on-the-1-10-attractiveness-scale>

20

UPVOTES

Dreaming of being one of the guys. "One of our greatest collective aspirations is for women to become like men."

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/07/23/dreaming-of-being-one-of-the-guys/>

33

UPVOTES

Fortunately they had a strong woman to row them to safety. -
"It is interesting to see that over 100 years ago the narrative of strong women taking over for incompetent men was already firmly entrenched. Moreover, the speed with which the narrative changed is astounding."

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/06/26/fortunately-they-had-a-strong-woman-to-row-them-to-safety/>

632

UPVOTES

Profs say female STEM grades don't reflect 'perceived effort' - they propose that "science educators could redistribute grades more akin to non-STEM disciplines to increase STEM retention."

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.campusreform.org/?ID=10980>

10
UPVOTES

Jordan Peterson can't handle the truth.

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/06/02/peterson-cant-handle-the-truth/>

30

UPVOTES

Why Game is a threat to our values. "...Chivalry is unsexy. Lecturing men to be unsexy for the sake of virtue will likewise fail because our very definition of male virtue is sexiness."

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/03/16/why-game-is-a-threat-to-our-values/>

123
UPVOTES

NYTimes on Falling Sperm Counts - Links to TRP, Get's a lashing from Roosh, then peddles fake news on Soy. Lots to unpack here.

27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is probably the most fun I've ever had reading the NY Times. If you haven't read this yet, check out this archived version of the article here.

The author predictably takes a condescending tone towards men and their little guy problem with a video of men crying at the top of the page and sarcastic bullet points such as:

- Men are testing their sperm at home in tiny CENTRIFUGES — and dosing up on testosterone!
- Start-ups and doctors have good news: Male anxiety is treatable.
- Don't cry, soy boy — just get out of the Jacuzzi.

The author sources theredpill as well as Rollo Tomassi as manosphere spokesmen, but the best quote - by far - was from RooshV:

"Daryush Valizadeh, who runs The Return of Kings, a men's rights site, called the situation "a biological crisis" and one that women struggle to understand.

"Tell your editor to stop being an idiot and reassign the article to a man," he wrote in a direct message on Twitter. "Then get in touch with me."

And what's a NYTimes piece without a little fake news? She quickly dismisses the soy:low-T connection as simply a myth, even though this has not been shown to be true. 1 2

The truth is, there's a lot of varying factors that might cause low sperm count but there just isn't much push to figure it out. The author suggests simply not using hot tubs as an actual "cure" but the problem isn't as simple.

I did a little research on the hot tub theory and it's simply not that clear.

Many articles suggested hot tubs are the primary cause of infertility in men, while others insist that hot tubs aren't hot enough to kill sperm that have already been produced, but simply pause sperm production which requires lower temperatures until you are out. Otherwise, a hot shower itself would be killing our sperm counts every day.

Experiments with heat and male sperm counts were performed, finding that temperatures of 107F and greater had actual effects. Most hot tubs don't go higher than 104F.

(I don't have the sources handy on this one but I'll post them later if I can find them).

Once again, male issues are given exactly the reverence our culture and society believe they deserve, and our soy-boy nation gets another pass as we self medicate Western Civilization into extinction.

0

UPVOTES

Pickup Artists are psychopathic.

29 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Let's say I'm going to pick up a girl at the bar. I have a goal in mind. The girl's irrelevant to the goal insofar as she could be another girl so it's a psychopathic goal in some ways because really the individual doesn't matter

I'm serious about that so what I'm gonna do say if I'm a pickup artist I follow these pickup artists on line because I'm so curious about their use of psychology and all they ever do is come up with - it's like a whole horde of men talking about how to deceive and manipulate women - it's extraordinarily interesting and very very very very unsophisticated and unskilled because what the guys are they're lumps basically and what they're trying to do is to acquire the veneer of sophistication and that's psychopathic so anyways that's my little spiel on pickup artists but they're very interesting so what they're doing is teaching their followers instrumental language so if you want to sleep with a girl here's how to do it here's how to manipulate her - they have a bunch of tricks like wear an expensive watch and dress up and also don't just dress up - they dress up rich roughly speaking but also add something peculiar to your wardrobe like something that really stands out as somewhat odd they call that peacocking so that the girl can see that not only are you rich and successful but you've got that little bit of individuality that sets you apart from all the other rich and successful guys you know - but it's all bullshit because the guys aren't like that so it's so-so and then they have all these little routines they use that they're verbal routines and they have these guys they go to the bar with to help them with their little routines and it's like it's completely what are they doing they're using language instrumentally they have a goal in mind and they know that the goal is right insofar as they're pursuing the goal and then they're willing to say any thing to obtain that goal...

294

UPVOTES

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Contrary to the accusations, I don't hate Jordan Peterson. I generally support most pro-male figures, even when they're terribly mistaken about major points. I like Milo, even though I disagree with him on religion. I like Jordan even though I disagree with his conclusions that a reversal to pre-sexual revolution times is a genie that can be put back into its bottle.

But I really disagree when somebody is operating in the frame of the feminine imperative and they either don't notice, or worse - don't care.

The lesson this weekend, which many of you chose to ignore or misunderstand, was specifically to address learning to be critical of high-visibility thought "leaders" (for lack of a better term).

The original post I made I think stood for itself. The point in question was JP's insistence that pickup is an inherently psychopathic behavior, and that's because individuals matter. The individual woman matters.

Sometimes I post content like this to take a measurement of the community, to see what, why and how people are interpreting the world around them. And this was a very dissapointing outcome.

Instead of some reasoned comments dissecting his misinformed statements, I got just plain drivel. Ad hominems, accusations that the mods and ECs here don't know shit about women, sex, or the red pill, and whiny concern trolls talking about how things used to be better before people started calling JP on his bullshit.

I gave the community a second chance, perhaps the post was too focused on JP himself, as many people rushed to his defense but the discussion was devoid of any substantive material in regards to the video. So I posted a transcript of the first few minutes of JP's rant. And the results were worse than I could have expected.

Very very few people were able to pick out the issue in JP's reasoning. Instead, many elected to insult me, the mod team, pickup, game, and even the red pill itself.

I'm disappointed, because I believe the sort of content we promote here is designed not only to change your worldview, but also change how you think about things so that you can change your own worldview. You cannot escape blue pill thinking by simply finding another god to worship. You must learn to process information for yourself. You must learn to pick out internal inconsistencies in others' ideologies and ideas.

The fact that there's a pro/anti-JP argument on here is fucking stupid. Because it shouldn't matter who has said anything. If his ideas are good they should stand up to scrutiny. If they are bad, then it is fair game.

A lot of people have reached out to me and asked why we still allow JP content on here, given that a lot of his advice and goals are counter to the established theory we've been refining over the years.

The fact is, ideas must stand up to scrutiny including our own. I see nothing wrong with discussing JP's ideas and comparing them to our own. What is useful, you keep. What is not, you throw away.

But I'm done tolerating any further discussion about the man himself. Because it's clear too many here are unable to process ideas and theories apart from the man, and a discussion of a man is not sexual strategy. This forum is for discussion of man's ideas and theories.

Pickup Artists are Psychopaths.

It should be obvious to anybody who is familiar with TheRedPill (read the sidebar), but the primary problem with this statement is that it operates within the frame of female primacy. It appeals to the feminine imperative and only serves them while hurting men.

REDPILL 101 ALERT: Female sexual strategy is one of selection. Women select. Men are selected. Inherent in this system is the fact that since men must be selected, their strategy must employ persistence and play the numbers for success.

Women, in their capacity to select, must by definition reject most possible suitors to maximize their strategy. Their ability to procreate is limited, and as such, selecting the highest value males is beneficial to her strategy. For her, selecting among many eligible mates means she may eventually need to filter based on more superficial qualities. The story of sexual selection and how it shaped our species (such as secondary sexual characteristics) is a post for another day. If you're not familiar, I recommend you spend some time reading the sidebar.

But returning to my main point... JP uses the phrase "Pickup Artists" as a caricature. The idea that a dude put on some fancy hat and makes a habit of going out and tricking women into fucking them is not only a very outdated reference, it doesn't really touch on how men actually learn and use game to increase their changes with women.

Pickup artistry as is depicted in the media is mostly dead, and in my opinion never really lived. It was a gimmick of sorts, but I don't believe it was as effective as many had bragged about. For some? Sure, maybe they cleaned up. But for many, pickup served as an introduction to one of the most important topics man can learn: GAME.

Game can best be described as understanding and using psychology to best avoid being a complete fucking idiot and fucking up your chances with a potential mate. Game isn't a parlor trick where a woman's panties drop and she's none the wiser. Game is a set of strategies and explicit behaviors that help complete god-damned social retards from getting in their own way.

And JP is saying quite frankly that he thinks improving on male sexual strategy is psychopathic. That's not because it is. It's because the negative connotation helps push the narrative of the female primacy, and helps grow the influence of the feminine imperative.

Men should not improve their chances with women. Men should abandon anything resembling numbers games with women because each woman is special and unique and you must put in high-investment before being considered a possible mate. Do these things, and do not do the other things.

JP is effectively telling boys and men how not to be sexually successful.

This is making no comment on whether you think hookups are moral or not, or whether hookups are even a preferred strategy. Some here don't want to spin plates. Some here also want the wife, two and a half kids, and the white picket fence.

Although I strongly disagree that a traditional marriage can happen or work in today's culture, that is up to you what and how you want to pursue it.

But no matter your goal, you won't get to spin plates, LTR, or anything else if you cannot first attract a mate. And following JP's advice, anything that makes you better at attracting a mate is psychopathic.

Be on the lookout for people framing advice with the feminine imperative

This should go without saying but any time somebody makes an appeal to some greater good or cultural norm that isn't directly addressing your strategy or goals, you should proceed cautiously and ask yourself, who am I serving with this advice?

Can you spot the frame?

- Man up and take care of her child as if he's your own!
- Be the best man you can be.
- Spinning plates is wrong, you should only date one woman at a time.
- Game and pickup is weird and wrong. You should only use "honesty" when meeting women.

Moderation

The mods have not been banning from these threads, even though our general policy is to remove people who resort to personal attacks. I wanted to finish this exercise in critical thinking before we begin a purge.

We want members to recognize what this exercise was and perhaps rethink how they approached the subject. If you remember hurling insults to other members instead of discussing the merits of the ideas, perhaps now is a good time to make a comment on this thread and discuss what you learned.

But stay on your road of blind denial, ad hominem, and appeals to authority, and you will be swiftly removed. We have a much higher standard of content than that.

That is all.

267

UPVOTES

Game Basics: The Male Sexuality Shaming Shit Test

30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/07/20/the-male-sexuality-shaming-shit-test/>

100
UPVOTES

Fempowerment | Rollo: "Say no and you're a despicable misogynist. Say yes and you're tar-pitted in "yes, but" caveats – mansplaining – that are disqualified because you're a man. "

1 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2016/04/24/fempowerment/>

292

UPVOTES

#BookShelfChallenge

20 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Everybody knows we're hip, which is why we use hashtags. And today's hashtag is the #BookShelfChallenge.

A common question we get in modmail as well as on askTRP is what books are worth reading? What books helped shape the men before us into the men we would like to become? What books provide good insight into the world, or elucidate a point that is otherwise misunderstood by the masses?

So today we have the #BookShelfChallenge. Post a picture or list of the books on your shelf that you think are quality reads that others should check out. Or just post a bunch of pretentious philosophy books so you can bathe in your superiority while you stroke your dick to your own reflection in the mirror while listening to Kant audio books.

GAYLUBEOIL DID IT.

I DID IT.

Now it's your turn.

As an aside, one of my books is written by one of our own (/u/adam-l) and I highly recommend it: The Empress is Naked - You can read my review here. (I have no affiliation with Adam, other than to say he's a prolific author and I always like a chance to promote our genuine content creators.)

316

UPVOTES

A Clarification on Rule 6: No examples from fiction or lyrics.

30 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I was having a discussion about this rule with some other members and it came to my attention that there might be some confusion with this rule on this forum.

At one point in time we were being overrun by posts admiring fictional characters... "Look at Gaston from Beauty and the Beast. Isn't he soooo great?" or criticizing beta traits from other characters in popular movies or shows. (Stop being such a Ted Mosby!)

Because they're fictional characters, their motivations are made up, and their successes or failures are entirely at the whim of the writers. This means it does not provide any insight or prediction to us for how these behaviors work or what they accomplish.

Now, if you read the full rules page, we clarify:

Use of fiction or other controlled narratives (reality tv, etc) should only be used as an example of the author's psychology, not the character's.

And I think we haven't been seeing much of this here because people have incorrectly assumed all discussion of fiction in itself is off topic. We actually welcome discussion of culture and I personally would like to see more of it.

Discussion of our culture's art and media and how it shapes opinions and cultural mores is important. But that discussion should focus on some of the following topics:

- Why did the author choose to portray certain behaviors in certain lights.
- Is the piece accurate? If not, what was the motivation of the author for presenting a falsehood?
- What is the net effect on society if the average viewer/reader believes this fiction reflects reality when it does not?
- What opinions or ideas is this piece trying to change?

We are amidst a culture war. And while TRP has always been (and shall always be) focused on sexual strategy, it is crucial that we ensure that focus includes discussion of this culture war. Understanding how we got here, and tracking future changes in our culture will keep us ahead of the curve.

299

UPVOTES

Reminder: Bookmark our off-reddit site - TRP.RED

12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red>

1,290
UPVOTES

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Show the Admin who Should Really Be Banned! /r/BanBanouts

12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.reddit.com/r/BanBanouts/>

541
UPVOTES

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Call the Admin on Hypocritical Banning! /r/BanBanouts

12 September 2018 · /r/PussyPassDenied · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.reddit.com/r/BanBanouts/>

174

UPVOTES

No More Jordan Peterson Shit.

18 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For some reason, there's a contingency of insufferable, condescending cunts who decide to come here and babble about "hierarchies" and other JP related horseshit.

They come here and spew either word salad or pretentious diatribes about how we could finally understand how right they naturally are if we just opened up to longer sentences that say nothing. The key markers are as follows:

- Focus on incoherent vocabulary rather than a cogent thesis.
- The more nebulous, abstract or ethereal the idea the better.
- Does not in any way address TRP theories, even the ones it seeks to contradict.
- Usually goes on and on about the abstractly discrete hierarchies and their rules.

I have absolutely no idea how these people manage to spit out so many words that say nothing. But the condescension and total meaninglessness of their drivel is the reason I'm banning it altogether.

If your idea has merit, you can present it with respect, and without condescension. Further, you can do so without including a detailed video of you literally sucking JP's dick while doing so.

We will remain a forum about sexual selection and we will continue to treat it as a free market of ideas. But this troll does not have a home here.

If you break this rule. Instaban. No Warnings.

707

UPVOTES

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

27 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It finally happened. We've been quarantined. It's a matter of time before we're entirely removed.

The mods will discuss our next move and report back.

In the mean time, make sure you visit Stony Brook University to find out what real positive masculinity is.

That's right. The people telling men they shouldn't be heard or seen are telling us they know what real masculinity is.

You couldn't prove TRP any more right than the admin are right now.

I don't expect to be here much longer. Make sure you register on <https://www.trp.red> today.

It happened as we approached 300,000 subscribers. Guess what quarantined subs can't see? Their subscriber count.

THEY ARE SCARED OF US.

If anybody feels inclined to help support our offsite page- which may very well become the homestead of TRP in the very near future, here's a bitcoin address to donate to:

1Hyvva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

93

UPVOTES

POSTING IS OPEN

28 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If your post is censored, comment with a link here. ADMIN ARE ACTIVELY CENSORING POSTS.

1,015
UPVOTES

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

300,000 Subscribers. The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

If you're reading this, you're probably already well aware that this week we hit 300,000 subscribers and Reddit Admin decided to "quarantine" /r/TheRedPill subreddit. This means that previous subscribers won't see posts show up on their home page. New users won't know we exist. You must type in the address and read an administrator endorsement of their counter-theory to TRP and accept the dangers of reading wrong-think before you can enter. If you try to do this on mobile, it lies and says the subreddit has gone private, innodating the modmail with requests for access so mod duties are effectively shut down because we can no longer attend to our daily mod duties.

It means that we cannot see how many subscribers we have, lest weak minds such as yours be convinced of alternative viewpoints – not based on argument or reason- but instead simply the number of people talking about it.

You'll notice the Reddit admin team were kind enough to leave us a message on our new splash page and sidebar giving us notice that we presumably were a forum about toxic masculinity, but that they, and only they, are the purveyors of positive masculinity. They then explicitly endorse Stony Brook University Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities whose executive director is Michael Kimmel.

One of Michael Kimmel's crowning achievements is to try to debunk that men are victims of domestic violence. He goes on to suggest that some evidence is simply false, that female-on-male violence is just different, and that it is men who lose control, women are provoked.

From an interview with Cassie Jaye:

It is not true, [...] that there's gender symmetry in domestic violence. That women hit men as much as men hit women.

Go ahead and watch the video- this quote is not out of context. While he doesn't deny some men are victims, he really doubts the numbers. And the Reddit Admin have just ENDORSED THIS MAN. Whoops.

I'm trying to remember where else I've heard hateful people doubting numbers of victims....

There is overwhelming proof that men are victims of domestic violence at least as much as women, if not more. Controlling for all violence, men surpass women as victims entirely, making the distinction of "domestic" misleading when men are by all means the target of the majority all violence and the victims of almost all murders No biggie, Michael Kimmel, it's an easy oversight to make WHEN YOU HATE MEN.

Reddit tells us that Stony Brook should give us insight into positive masculinity, but Stony's front page only has one reference to positive masculinity in the fight against domestic violence. And that's for men to join as allies in preventing violence against women. That's right men, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MAKE UP 78% OF MURDER VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MADE UP 59% OF VIOLENT CRIME VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT 93% OF WORKPLACE DEATHS ARE MEN Yes, that's right. /u/spez thinks that little of you that he wants your masculinity to be defined not by fighting these truths, but by sacrificing yourself to prevent violence against women.

Look, I couldn't have developed a story that confirms our theories any better than the reddit admin did. We've been saying this for a long time. Our society has been trying to define and frame masculinity under their own definitions and terms for a long time.

There is no female analog for the phrase "positive masculinity." This is because it's SEXISM to frame an entire gender as toxic simply for being until they act to rise above it. But Reddit Admin, you done fucked up and just called men TOXIC because they were born that way. I'm sure you can see the irony here since you guys apparently think we're the sexist ones. But you know what, I think women are born inherently good, just like men. Where does that fit into your theory? (It doesn't)

We have always taught here to be wary of anybody trying to sell you their framing of masculinity. The only person who gets to choose what it means to them to be their gender is –you.

We focus a lot on what qualities help you with sexual and professional success. And in a way we do frame masculinity to some degree. But we also make it clear that how you use this information is your choice. You define what it is to be a man. You can take the advice here or not, nobody can take away your masculinity. Nobody can tell you you're not a man. Nobody can tell you that your born sexual characteristics are inherently toxic. And nobody here will prevent you from reading alternative opinions to that.

Well, I mean /u/spez thinks he can. But he really didn't think much about it before linking. Maybe they made a kickback from it. Or maybe he just asked his phone "okay google how do I become real good man okay thx" and linked the first result. I'd like to think he's more competent than that. But this move by their admin really makes me wonder.

Reddit is censoring us. This much we know. A quarantine is a form of censorship. We haven't broken any rules and they know it. Our crack team of moderators are quick to the draw on any content bordering on against reddit's TOS. This censorship is purely ideological. As is evidenced by their endorsement of Michael Kimmel. They simply do not like what we say.

The Admin really don't get it, do they? The reason we are growing so massively and gaining so much traction is because we make well-reasoned arguments and defend our points. Censorship, well, that's basically the antithesis of reasoned discourse. Who did they think they were going to be able to convince with this stunt?

I challenge the admin, /u/spez, or anybody on their team to engage me in courteous, reasoned discussion to defend their assertions and endorsements this week, or to apologize and lift the quarantine. I promise to keep it 100% civil in an all-text debate of ideas with anybody on the reddit administration. I get the feeling nobody is going to be taking me up on this offer. This would be the action of somebody with integrity. I'm sure Michael Kimmel could make an argument that integrity is part of positive masculinity. /u/spez, you don't want to be toxic do you?

The fact is, they don't have a well reasoned argument. They have an ideology and a social programming that makes them feel bad when exposed to ideas they don't understand and can't fully disagree with. Censoring us is akin to throwing over the chess board because you were losing and don't know how to use the pieces.

The official notice from Reddit happened at the exact time the Quarantine took place. The reason for our quarantine is as follows:

In this case the quarantine was applied for the high degree of misogyny present in this subreddit. To be removed from quarantine, you may present an appeal here. The appeal should include a detailed accounting of changes to community moderation practices. (Appropriate changes may vary from community to community and could include techniques such as adding more moderators, replacing certain moderators, creating new rules, employing more aggressive auto-moderation tools, adjusting community styling, etc.) The appeal should also offer evidence of sustained, consistent enforcement of these changes over a period of at least one month, demonstrating meaningful community transformation.

You'll notice that they do not give specific examples of offending material, or any concrete steps we could take to mitigate this. This is because the phrase misogyny is nebulous and holds a definition only to those who use it. There is no actual definition of misogyny, and therefore no way to defend against it.

Do I hate women? I do not. Do you? I sure would think people who actually hate women probably wouldn't spend this much time and energy trying to become attractive to women and meeting them. But that's what you get when words no longer have definitions.

We've been accused of an undefined crime, using an unpublished rule book and given a fake set of steps we can take to resolve this problem, all to present a facade of propriety and fairness. I don't think they're fooling anybody.

Our Timeline

First of all, I want the community to know we will be appealing this decision. But it's evident by the setup of the entire event that their private appeals process is a kangaroo court. We will be appealing via Public Letter and we will ensure all response to this will be published. Stay tuned for our appeal.

We will be soft-launching <https://Forums.Red> posting capabilities over the next week or so, but we will not be locking the forum on reddit. We will be doing this to test stability and new features. Our long-term goal is to stay on Reddit. We are going to do our best to do so, pending administration cooperation.

Notwithstanding, we will be moving forward with an eventual full opening of our trp.red / forums.red platform. We are focused on some major new improvements including the forums, a new tribes feature (for private groups), and more.

We will continue the archival process of /r/TheRedPill, /r/AskTRP, /r/RedPillWomen. We are working our way from top-voted posts downwards.

If you would like to support our work making this happen and the associated costs, our Patreon is now here.

We also have a bitcoin address for donations. 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

Finally, we are asking moderators of other subs and other reddit members to stand in solidarity with us. Although you may not agree with what we are saying, I believe that we can all unite behind defending free speech and anti-censorship. Because of this we are calling for a massive, reddit-wide boycott, for just 1 hour. November 1st at 4:00pm PDT. Join our petition now

MAKE SURE YOU BOOKMARK AND REGISTER ON OUR OFFREDDIT SITE:
<https://www.trp.red>

391
UPVOTES

Stop Reddit Censorship Join Our Petition: 1-Hour Boycott Nov 1st 4:00 PM PDT - Please Share

29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.change.org/p/reddit-admin-stop-censorship-at-reddit-1-hour-boycott-nov-1st-4-00-pm-pdt>

37

UPVOTES

Recent Quarantine: The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

1 October 2018 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/trp/723>

815

UPVOTES

The Reddit Administration Recants

2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many have noticed, Reddit Admin have taken down their required truth reading link to Michael Kimmel's Scam before entering /r/TheRedPill, mainly after I posted this scathing takedown where I explained that their resource on "positive masculinity" was, in fact, a male abuse victim denier.

That's right folks, you can't make it up. Reddit admin, who fancy themselves as the purveyors of what is good and what is not, accidentally told a men's forum that they were absolutely and unequivocally wrong, bad and offensive, and then tried to tell them that the true path to positive masculinity IS DENYING MALE ABUSE VICTIMS.

Holy fucking shit, Reddit Admin. What on earth are you thinking?

Here's what we know now:

The Reddit admin- the ones who believe it is up to them to tell us what we can and cannot read not based on rules, not based on legalities, but on a false sense of morality and self-righteousness, just recanted on their allegedly moral position of what positive masculinity is. Because it was absolutely, undoubtedly, and utterly immoral.

We are still drafting our appeal to the quarantine, but honestly we're starting to think the Reddit Admin are writing the appeal for us.

To the Reddit Admin: You have demonstrated that you are not an authority on morality. You have demonstrated that you do not have the proper judgment to tell users what they should and should not read. You have just subjected 300,000 of your users to an anti-male, abuse-denier. I think you should be ashamed, and I think you should apologize to the users here.

A positive, non-toxic male admits when he's wrong and apologizes when he accidentally denies to 300,000 men that they can be victims of abuse.

Who here thinks the admin have the proper judgment to be able to tell them what they should and should not read?

1,327
UPVOTES

Our Appeal of the Quarantine to the Reddit Admin

4 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As I mentioned, we are making the appeal process completely open because we believe there wouldn't be fair play if it was behind closed doors. Below is our appeal to the admin:

First, I would like to tell you that we've posted this entire appeal publicly and plan to post your replies as well. We strongly believe this system you have set up to be a kangaroo court and have evidence to support this notion. If you want to prove to us that you are going to treat this appeals process fairly then we welcome your responses to the contrary.

In your message to us regarding our quarantine, you offer an appeals process:

In this case the quarantine was applied for the high degree of misogyny present in this subreddit. To be removed from quarantine, you may present an appeal here. The appeal should include a detailed accounting of changes to community moderation practices. (Appropriate changes may vary from community to community and could include techniques such as adding more moderators, replacing certain moderators, creating new rules, employing more aggressive auto-moderation tools, adjusting community styling, etc.) The appeal should also offer evidence of sustained, consistent enforcement of these changes over a period of at least one month, demonstrating meaningful community transformation.

You've presented us with no evidence for your accusation, simply an assertion of misogyny. And yet your prescription is to change and modify this undocumented problem, a very thinly veiled setup for failure. You know full well we cannot address concerns that have not been raised - Which makes this a kangaroo court by definition.

Your appeals process does not offer an opportunity to claim innocence, instead placing guilt into the default terms of appeal.

But we reject your charges.

Our moderation team has gone to great length to ensure our members follow reddit's terms of service. We see no terms in the content policy that we have violated. And yet you allege we have broken this unwritten policy. How is it that you expect moderators and community to follow such rules is beyond me. Perhaps it is because you prefer to keep all communities in the dark about the unwritten rules. Keep everybody guilty of some crime, and selectively enforce it upon those you disagree with.

"Show me the man, I'll show you the crime." — Lavrenti Beria, secret police chief under Stalin

To me, this seems like an immeasurably bad way to run a social media site which depends on its users for long-term survival. Perhaps it's not in your interest to ensure Reddit stays around. Maybe you're using censorship and quarantines as a means to redirect discussion into the direction you prefer. Maybe you're trying to sway an election? I don't know, that's above my pay grade.

Misogyny is a very nebulous term, one that I disagree with heartily. Many use it in places where somebody has been critical of women, but does that meet the criteria of hate? I think that's a very high bar to meet. One way we can test your definition of misogyny is simply to see how you've applied these standards site-wide.

Let's say I started a subreddit with a mission statement:

R/UpsetFemales is a subreddit for mocking reddit's large, vocal, and hypocritical female population.

Women have a right to dignity and to exist, but they don't have a right to be upset and uncomfortable whenever they're confronted with sexism issues.

Would this meet your definition of misogyny?

Well, substitute the words “female” and “women” with white people and you’ve got yourself the sub /r/fragilewhiteredditor. And for some reason they’re not quarantined.

Now I’m sure you guys understand the implications of picking and choosing what completely legal ideas and topics are okay to discuss on reddit. When you choose to block off /r/theredpill and post an endorsement to your point of view (Michel Kimmel), you’re tacitly endorsing the points of view you’ve chosen not to censor – especially the ones that align with Michael Kimmel.

Hatred (by your definition) is okay as long as the target is against white people.

What about towards men? Here are some lovely sentiments floating around reddit that the reddit admin tacitly endorses by not censoring or quarantining:

“Sorry you're going through this. It's the patriarchy: men think they own women. That is a flat out fact.”

“sorry boys but its true and yall need to be taught not to rape. You are a cancer on society.”

“I still see so many people say that "All men are rapists" This is a factually accurate statement expressing that men are socialized as both heterosexual and weapons against women and so typically have sex relationships that are not consensual in a fully self-actualized sense.”

“I’m a misandrist, but I don’t want to be”

So it is clear, you tacitly endorse these positions if they are not quarantined as well.

To make matters worse, when you quarantined us, you put up a message directing our users to Stony Brook University Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities whose executive director is Michael Kimmel. The same Michael Kimmel who denies male abuse victims. I see since then you’ve had the presence of mind to remove it- but without so much as an apology to our community of men who had to witness this. I would absolutely hate to know that the well being of abuse victims on /r/theredpill have been affected, or worse- hurt, by this event.

What would happen if the admin posted a message at the top of TWOX claiming that women’s abuse isn’t nearly as high as reported and that men’s abuse was much worse? Well, I’m pretty sure you’d call that misogyny.

So what’s it called when you do it to men? (It’s called misandry.)

We know the quarantine process isn’t simply about keeping the front page clear of controversial topics. There’s literal shit porn, women getting pissed on, and detailed rape fantasies which have gotten the pass from your administration. Looks like you guys just love shit, piss, and rape.

Meanwhile the content on TRP has helped thousands (if not more) of men find an identity and the strength needed to get back on the horse after terrible events like breakups, divorces, or false rape accusations. For some, they believe TRP literally saved their lives. Some of whom could easily have ended up dead.

Look, you could have asked us to remove ourselves from /r/all, and we would have complied. But the quarantine makes things much worse. Mobile users see a message that we’ve gone private, causing our modmail to get literally hundreds of messages asking for access, completely halting actual mod functions. Members who have already subscribed are having a hard time finding us. It is clear that your goal with quarantine was to put as much into place as possible to make us fail, all while not actually pulling the trigger on an outright ban, because you know full well we keep the user base in check and do not allow rule breaking.

But I’m willing to give you guys the benefit of the doubt. Let’s say all of my well documented and evidenced accusations are simply wrong. Let’s say you really are just trying to make reddit a nice beige happy-land for new users and advertisers, and your goal was not to tacitly endorse all the hatred on the internet that you have chosen not to censor. I am willing to propose a compromise.

Remove the quarantine, and we will select the option to prevent being seen from /r/all. This has a lot of benefits. First of all, you won't be tacitly endorsing every bit of hate on reddit because you're no longer picking sides. But most importantly, your users will see the admin team actually applies rules in a balanced and fair manner, gaining you a level of respect that, let's face it, Ellen Pao did a good job eroding.

We would be happy to comply with reasonable requests that help you with your advertisers and future IPO. We aren't your enemy. The way you've gone about this was a big mistake and I think we can both agree on that. Let's work together to move past this event and get the admin and users back on the same side for the benefit of reddit.

3 | TRP is Appealing the Quarantine
UPVOTES 4 October 2018 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/9lcyio/our_appeal_of_the_quarantine_to_the_reddit_admin/

16

UPVOTES

TRP is Appealing The Quarantine

4 October 2018 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

Reddit admin recently announced changes to the quarantine process, including a new appeals process.

We are making the appeal process completely open because we believe there wouldn't be fair play if it was behind closed doors. Below is our appeal to the admin:

First, I would like to tell you that we've posted this entire appeal publicly and plan to post your replies as well. We strongly believe this system you have set up to be a kangaroo court and have evidence to support this notion. If you want to prove to us that you are going to treat this appeals process fairly then we welcome your responses to the contrary.

In your message to us regarding our quarantine, you offer an appeals process:

In this case the quarantine was applied for the high degree of misogyny present in this subreddit. To be removed from quarantine, you may present an appeal here. The appeal should include a detailed accounting of changes to community moderation practices. (Appropriate changes may vary from community to community and could include techniques such as adding more moderators, replacing certain moderators, creating new rules, employing more aggressive auto-moderation tools, adjusting community styling, etc.) The appeal should also offer evidence of sustained, consistent enforcement of these changes over a period of at least one month, demonstrating meaningful community transformation.

You've presented us with no evidence for your accusation, simply an assertion of misogyny. And yet your prescription is to change and modify this undocumented problem, a very thinly veiled setup for failure. You know full well we cannot address concerns that have not been raised - Which makes this a kangaroo court by definition.

Your appeals process does not offer an opportunity to claim innocence, instead placing guilt into the default terms of appeal.

But we reject your charges.

Our moderation team has gone to great length to ensure our members follow reddit's terms of service. We see no terms in the content policy that we have violated. And yet you allege we have broken this unwritten policy. How is it that you expect moderators and community to follow such rules is beyond me. Perhaps it is because you prefer to keep all communities in the dark about the unwritten rules. Keep everybody guilty of some crime, and selectively enforce it upon those you disagree with.

"Show me the man, I'll show you the crime." — Lavrenti Beria, secret police chief under Stalin

To me, this seems like an immeasurably bad way to run a social media site which depends on its users for long-term survival. Perhaps it's not in your interest to ensure Reddit stays around. Maybe you're using censorship and quarantines as a means to redirect discussion into the direction you prefer. Maybe you're trying to sway an election? I don't know, that's above my pay grade.

Misogyny is a very nebulous term, one that I disagree with heartily. Many use it in places where somebody has been critical of women, but does that meet the criteria of hate? I think that's a very high bar to meet. One way we can test your definition of misogyny is simply to see how you've applied these standards site-wide.

Let's say I started a subreddit with a mission statement:

R/UpsetFemales is a subreddit for mocking reddit's large, vocal, and hypocritical female population.

Women have a right to dignity and to exist, but they don't have a right to be upset and uncomfortable whenever they're confronted with sexism issues.

Would this meet your definition of misogyny?

Well, substitute the words “female” and “women” with white people and you’ve got yourself the sub r-fragilewhiteredditor. And for some reason they’re not quarantined.

Now I’m sure you guys understand the implications of picking and choosing what completely legal ideas and topics are okay to discuss on reddit. When you choose to block off /r/theredpill and post an endorsement to your point of view (Michel Kimmel), you’re tacitly endorsing the points of view you’ve chosen not to censor – especially the ones that align with Michael Kimmel.

Hatred (by your definition) is okay as long as the target is against white people.

What about towards men? Here are some lovely sentiments floating around reddit that the reddit admin tacitly endorses by not censoring or quarantining:

“Sorry you're going through this. It's the patriarchy: men think they own women. That is a flat out fact.”

“sorry boys but its true and yall need to be taught not to rape. You are a cancer on society.”

“I still see so many people say that "All men are rapists" This is a factually accurate statement expressing that men are socialized as both heterosexual and weapons against women and so typically have sex relationships that are not consensual in a fully self-actualized sense.”

“I’m a misandrist, but I don’t want to be”

So it is clear, you tacitly endorse these positions if they are not quarantined as well.

To make matters worse, when you quarantined us, you put up a message directing our users to Stony Brook University Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities whose executive director is Michael Kimmel. The same Michael Kimmel who denies male abuse victims. I see since then you’ve had the presence of mind to remove it- but without so much as an apology to our community of men who had to witness this. I would absolutely hate to know that the well being of abuse victims on /r/theredpill have been affected, or worse- hurt, by this event.

What would happen if the admin posted a message at the top of TWOX claiming that women’s abuse isn’t nearly as high as reported and that men’s abuse was much worse? Well, I’m pretty sure you’d call that misogyny.

So what’s it called when you do it to men? (It’s called misandry.)

We know the quarantine process isn’t simply about keeping the front page clear of controversial topics. There’s literal shit porn, women getting pissed on, and detailed rape fantasies which have gotten the pass from your administration. Looks like you guys just love shit, piss, and rape.

Meanwhile the content on TRP has helped thousands (if not more) of men find an identity and the strength needed to get back on the horse after terrible events like breakups, divorces, or false rape accusations. For some, they believe TRP literally saved their lives. Some of whom could easily have ended up dead.

Look, you could have asked us to remove ourselves from /r/all, and we would have complied. But the quarantine makes things much worse. Mobile users see a message that we’ve gone private, causing our modmail to get literally hundreds of messages asking for access, completely halting actual mod functions. Members who have already subscribed are having a hard time finding us. It is clear that your goal with quarantine was to put as much into place as possible to make us fail, all while not actually pulling the trigger on an outright ban, because you know full well we keep the user base in check and do not allow rule breaking.

But I’m willing to give you guys the benefit of the doubt. Let’s say all of my well documented and evidenced accusations are simply wrong. Let's say you really are just trying to make reddit a nice beige happy-land for new users and advertisers, and your goal was not to tacitly endorse all the hatred on the internet that you have chosen not to censor. I am willing to propose a compromise.

Remove the quarantine, and we will select the option to prevent being seen from /r/all. This has a lot of benefits. First of all, you won't be tacitly endorsing every bit of hate on reddit because you're no longer picking sides. But most importantly, your users will see the admin team actually applies rules in a balanced and fair manner, gaining you a level of respect that, let's face it, Ellen Pao did a good job eroding.

We would be happy to comply with reasonable requests that help you with your advertisers and future IPO. We aren't your enemy. The way you've gone about this was a big mistake and I think we can both agree on that. Let's work together to move past this event and get the admin and users back on the same side for the benefit of reddit.

79

UPVOTES

Always a shame when anti-censorship groups take ideological stances for censorship.

4 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[-] HandofBane Mod - Lawful Evil [score hidden] 7 minutes ago · stickied comment

Your post has been removed for the following reason(s):

IT BREAKS RULE 9 METAREDDIT STUFF UNRELATED TO GAMERGATE, OR MAJOR REDDIT HAPPENINGS DON'T GO HERE.

Posts that originate from other subreddits, unless they mention, reference, or allude directly to GamerGate, or KiA, don't belong here. There will be exceptions to this rule in cases of events such as censorship of GamerGate-related topics, multiple subreddits being banned publicly, or major changes to Reddit policy. Basically, the sorts of things that can be shown to have a direct potential impact on the operation of KiA.

Issues with general moderation of other subreddits are better off in /r/subredditanalyzer.

permalink source embed save save-RES report give gold reply hide child comments

[-] redpillschool 1 point 4 minutes ago

multiple subreddits being banned publicly

FYI this is regarding "multiple subreddits being banned publicly" and I believe we're the first sub to challenge this censorship via the new Appeals process.

I think this would be of interest to your users given that you guys are definitely on the next chopping block.

Make no mistake, when they come for you it will be the exact same rationale.

permalink source embed save save-RES parent edit disable inbox replies delete reply hide child comments

[-] HandofBane Mod - Lawful Evil [score hidden] 2 minutes ago

Basically, the sorts of things that can be shown to have a direct potential impact on the operation of KiA.

This is the relevant part. We have already determined KiA is currently at zero risk of being quarantined.

permalink source embed save save-RES parent report give gold reply hide child comments

[-] redpillschool 1 point a minute ago

This is the relevant part. We have already determined KiA is currently at zero risk of being quarantined.

Really? Where is this definitive set of rules that the reddit admin have provided?

Because they don't exist and that's the reason we were censored.

Are you sure you want to stand idly by as other subreddits get censored?

permalink source embed save save-RES parent edit disable inbox replies delete reply

I'll start off by saying that there is a lot of overlap with sex and politics. In a way, both are matters of persuasion. Both require a level of taking counter-intuitive steps to achieve your goals.

There are some very easy to remember expressions here on TRP that serve as simple mental shortcuts which help beginners when they find themselves in tough situations. Like "nexting," "hold frame," and "agree-and-amplify" for "shit tests."

These aren't hard rules, but shortcuts for those who have yet to build their own mental framework where game and frame have become second nature. The goal in embracing these ideas is that you will ultimately change the way you think, to start taking these counter-intuitive steps intuitively because you understand cause and effect and you can feel predictions of outcomes in your gut. And your gut will start to be right for the first time in your life.

In essence, what we teach here is to ignore the voice in your head that has lead you astray and slowly retrain it until you can take off your training wheels.

There is much of the same behavior in politics. But I think some of the newer faces here need to understand some of the differences.

The mental shortcuts we provide are not hard rules for life. They require some nuance.

When a young college kid approaches me and asks what to do to finally win over his oneitis crush of 5 years, the default answer is "next." Not because he couldn't win her over if he played every card right, but that it's the wrong frame of mind to be in. It comes from a position of scarcity and inevitably his feelings will leak into his behaviors and self-sabotage. This is incredibly difficult to control. When your head is in the wrong space, you make mistakes.

But sometimes I see kids preaching the very same shortcut to somebody beyond this problem.

Let's say you are past oneitis, and you have an abundance mentality. For some, there is a pleasure and challenge in achieving a particular goal. For these situations the shortcut "next" simply does not fix the problem because "next" addresses the scarcity mentality. It doesn't actually help you get laid if you've got your sights on somebody and want the challenge.

If you are beyond scarcity and oneitis, you know which concessions not to make. You can focus on an individual without your weak frame of mind leaking through and poisoning your behaviors.

Now, the truth is, it's easy to slip back into the blue pill mentality. Which is why keeping to the shortcuts rigidly will probably do very little damage but help a lot in the long run. But once you enter the right headspace, every action you take is now your choice. You can experiment with how you will interact with others around you.

Nexting should not be your copout to actual challenge.

The reason I bring this up is because I see people apply these shortcuts rigidly in their advice in non-sexual circumstances.

In a lot of cases, things like holding frame really help in a lot of scenarios- professionally, socially, and sexually.

But sometimes the advice makes absolutely no sense to somebody who is not operating from a frame of scarcity, but instead one of challenge.

Enter: The Machiavellian.

This is a topic brought up quite a bit but I rarely see anybody merge Machiavellian strategy with the worldview of our shortcuts. When you are no longer in the headspace of scarcity and oneitis, you have the tools to understand that counter-intuitive behaviors can sometimes lead to favorable outcomes. This means that you can bend or even break the rules on your own terms.

In politics (much like sex), that's known as playing the game.

The biggest difference in politics verses sexual strategy is knowing who your audience is.

Political moves (be they career or social) often involve multiple participants, unlike sexual strategy which is usually just you and her. The target of your goals may or may not be the direct target of your persuasion. Sometimes the indirect play is convincing others of something in order to build your leverage on a topic.

Politics uses the same basis as sexual persuasion but is infinitely more complex due to the number of moving pieces. I think ultimately anybody relatively fluent in red pill technique should eventually embrace persuasion in all parts of life.

Here are some examples of political plays that are not what they appear:

- In a political debate, each participant is not actually trying to argue or debunk the other members. Instead they are trying to speak (and persuade) directly to their audience (the voters). This is why often times you'll notice rebuttals don't address their opponents points, sometimes not even on the same topic at all.
- When somebody is trying to undermine the status of somebody else, even when speaking directly with the target the intended audience is onlookers. This means sometimes playing stupid to points you know clearly. Sometimes it means trying to get somebody to talk more (giving them enough rope, etc).
- Sometimes when you're on the losing side of something, the appearance of a fight isn't to win but to strengthen their position in the eyes of fence sitters.
- Sometimes when you want something accomplished, you must plant the idea in their head and make them think they had the idea on their own. Sometimes that means making an obvious mistake or exposing a weak spot for others to attack. (See Trump Twitter)

These are often counter-intuitive which cause one-dimensional thinkers to think what the heck is he doing?

When you don't understand what the purpose of a political move is, ask yourself: Who is the real audience for this? What might be the hidden agenda of this move (what side effects might happen from this move)?

As always, make sure you register on our site <https://www.trp.red> for future updates.

31
UPVOTES

CH: Reeducating our Kids: The Genderbread Person

9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/10/04/your-reeducation-camp-tax-dollars-at-work/>

44

UPVOTES

CH: Reeducating our Kids, The Gender Unicorn

9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/10/05/going-down-the-public-schooling-rabbit-hole/>

32

UPVOTES

Female Sexuality Requires More Social Controls Than Does Male Sexuality

9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/08/01/female-sexuality-requires-more-social-controls-than-does-male-sexuality/>

1
UPVOTE

Testing 123

9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

296

UPVOTES

Our Open Invitation to Mods: Join Our Life Raft

9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I want to announce as we come closer to opening the archive forums on Forums.Red to new posts that we have the technology present to easily migrate an entire subreddit to a new site without losing content and while preserving reddit usernames as you migrate.

I know we are not the only ones on the chopping block, I believe there are other subreddits here who fear they may not have much time left.

Because of this, I am offering to help archive and give a backup plan on Forums.Red to other controversial subreddits. Please contact me if you are a moderator of a subreddit and you are interested.

-RPS

259

UPVOTES

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Time to refresh on some of the common shit tests and good answers to them. Bonus points for creativity. Add your own shit tests, answers, or both to this thread.

If you're not familiar with shit tests, check out Illimitable Man's Shit Test Encyclopedia

- I have a boyfriend
- Buy me a drink
- I bet you say that to all the girls
- How many girls have you slept with?
- Will you watch my drink while I dance / bathroom / etc?
- I'm not having sex with you.
- You're too short/ugly/fat/etc
- Aww, did I upset you?

(Add more if you got 'em)

396

UPVOTES

Status of the Appeal 10/11

11 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those of you joining us, the original appeal can be read here

It has been a week and we have not heard from the admin in this time. Nothing to suggest it's being considered, or that it's been rejected. Absolute radio silence.

We have contacted the admin once again for an update. We will keep you all apprised.

The question here is- whether or not they accept our appeal (they may not) it seems strange that they are not even honoring the appeals process which they themselves offered.

https://www.reddit.com/r/announcements/comments/9jf8nh/revamping_the_quarantine_function/

Appealing a Quarantine

To be removed from quarantine, subreddit moderators may present an appeal here.

Does this mean that Reddit admin are lying? Do they intend to honor the very system they announced only a week or so ago?

Until they break their silence, we must assume they were lying.

Until they break their silence, we must assume that their community management team is woefully unprepared to manage such a large community. They do not know how to apply policy fairly and consistently.

Reddit Admin, you have an opportunity to prove this wrong. Address the points of our appeal.

At this point, I think this failure of the Reddit Admin concerns not only the edgy subs such as ours, but should concern every user, moderator, and subreddit on this site.

277

UPVOTES

Paul Elam "[The Red Pill are] saving lives, yes, it's needed badly. I wanted to go on the public record of saying how much I opposed this quarantine they need to lift that thing."

15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Love or hate Paul (I know there's a variety of opinions here on what he gets right and what he gets wrong) this is an important thing that he's doing here. MRAs could take a lesson or two from this.

Now, usually in true feminist appeasement fashion, even supporters must first denounce TRP before defending it. Paul does this to an extent but in a different way. He says this is a place of unplugging and therefore a lot of anger and that he no longer needs a place like this. But he would have at one point.

Paul understands that unplugging makes you angry. He understands that men need that transition and a place to blow off steam as part of his development. He understands that you don't necessarily have to agree with men to defend their freedoms.

Paul has won some serious respect from me. I don't really agree with a lot of his approach to things but that guy has conviction and he's got a good compass, and it's something that the guys on /r/mensrights could learn from.

If you stand idly by as you watch men get silenced, just remember there will be nobody left to help when they come for you.

Right now is the time to understand that despite our differences, men have more to lose fighting each other than standing together.

MGTOW, MRA, GAMERGATE, ETC. It's time to set our differences aside to make sure there's a way in the future for our sons to communicate.

That's exactly what we're doing with Forums.Red and TRP.RED.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1w9l-0m0fd4&feature=youtu.be&t=232>

In other news, we are working diligently to bring BIG updates to forums.red, including opening the forums VERY SOON. We've been putting those donation dollars to work, here's a sneak peek of what we've been working on behind the scenes. To answer questions here are details on what else is coming:

- Fully functional API for app developers
- Site will be Mobile friendly
- Developers forum for continued work
- Moderation tools for other forums who are going to be joining our life raft.

If you want to help, the dev forum will be announced soon, or you can donate on our patreon or with bitcoin:

1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

488

UPVOTES

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's about what you'd expect from an administration that's cornered by reason. Ignore, deflect, and continue pushing the ambiguous rules and pretend they could actually be followed. When someone's wrong, they just keep repeating the same thing. Because what they really mean but can't work up the courage to say is: "We don't actually have a rational argument against your appeal."

<https://a.trp.red/files/appeal-response1.png>

Thank you for your message.

To be removed from quarantine, you may present an appeal. The appeal should include a detailed accounting of changes to community moderation practices -- as that is not what you are presenting here we cannot review this as a reasonable appeal.

Our Response:

You haven't told us what moderation practices are in question.

We remove all content that violates the Terms of Service and Content Policies. We do not allow breaking reddit's rules on our subreddit. People who violate the rules are given warnings or banned, their comments removed.

We comply with every request from the admin if and when they occur.

We pre-emptively ban all inter-reddit links with automoderator to prevent possible brigading.

Please tell us what moderation practices are in violation so we can make a "reasonable appeal."

For those following the appeal:

- September 27th - The Reddit Admin Quarantine TRP
- September 29th - The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims
- October 1st - Admin Recant Quarantine Message
- October 4th - Initial Appeal
- October 11th - Appeal Status

In other news, we are working diligently to bring BIG updates to forums.red, including opening the forums VERY SOON. We've been putting those donation dollars to work, here's a sneak peek of what we've been working on behind the scenes. To answer questions here are details on what else is coming:

- Fully functional API for app developers
- Site will be Mobile friendly
- Developers forum for continued work
- Moderation tools for other forums who are going to be joining our life raft.

If you want to help, the dev forum will be announced soon, or you can donate on our patreon or with bitcoin:
1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

28

UPVOTES

Paul Elam "[The Red Pill are] saving lives, yes, it's needed badly. I wanted to go on the public record of saying how much I opposed this quarantine they need to lift that thing."

15 October 2018 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

Video (linked to relevant timecode: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=1w9l-0m0fd4&feature=youtu.be&t=232>)

Paul understands that unplugging makes you angry. He understands that men need that transition and a place to blow off steam as part of his development. He understands that you don't necessarily have to agree with men to defend their freedoms.

Paul has won some serious respect from me. Right now is the time to understand that despite our differences, men have more to lose fighting each other than standing together.

If you stand idly by as you watch other men get silenced, just remember there will be nobody left to help when they come for you.

MGTOW, MRA, GAMERGATE, ETC. It's time to set our differences aside to make sure there's a way in the future for our sons to communicate.

That's exactly what we're doing with our off-reddit sites. Mensrights is welcome on our ship.

811

UPVOTES

More Silence from Reddit Administration - A Failure for Community Managers to... Manage?

29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

It's been over a month since the initial quarantine, and we still have not gotten a clear answer from the administration about what the offending content was, nor have we gotten a straight answer (or any answer for that matter) on what they recommend that we change.

/u/Specz directed us to a male abuse denier, Michael Kimmel, as an example of positive masculinity, and quickly took that recommendation down after Michael Kimmel was forced to step down due to sexual assault allegations, quickly proving that /u/Specz and the administration are absolutely clueless when it comes to "positive masculinity".

To this, we have received absolutely zero apology for the sheer and unbridled misandry that the administration demonstrated. I have decided that it was time to stop waiting for the administration to do the right thing and apologize, so I have contacted them on our behalf:

When you quarantined /r/theredpill you posted a message on our landing page:

"For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities."

And you linked to them. Their executive director was Michael Kimmel, who was on record on many occasions denying male victims of domestic violence and then accused of sexual assault and forced to step down from his position.

This was your example of positive masculinity that you sent to 300,000 of our subscribers. After these events came to light, your team silently removed the message but not until after damage was done.

I had abuse victims contact me and our mod team, confused and upset because of what happened. They did not like the idea of reliving their worst nightmare- that nobody would believe they were victims. Here they had found friends and people they could talk to about their experiences, and one day they were simply sent the message by your administration team that male victims of abuse simply do not matter and that real positive masculinity means denying that it happened.

I understand you guys don't like us. But for the sake of humanity and all that is good, will you please issue an apology to our members who were very much shaken by this experience?

I think we can both agree Michael Kimmel is not a role model for men. It was a mistake to suggest he was. Please do the right thing and issue an apology to our members.

To our latest reply to the admin regarding our appeal, we have heard absolutely nothing from the administration. This should be very worrying to anybody considering reddit in a potential upcoming IPO. Their community management staff is woefully unprepared to actually manage the community. They are unable to simply communicate with their community leaders to give direction and support. In a way, you could say that the entirety of TRP's current existence could be attributed to them for simply not reaching out and giving guidance and support during the growth of this community.

Imagine, the thing they hate the most exists because they were unable or unwilling to simply reach out to us and give us some direction.

I have once again send the admin a message asking for clarification and asking if we should continue awaiting their reply. If they refuse to do so, it will be very telling. It will mean that they do not know why they have attempted to silence us, and they have no actual answers to give us.

They could just ban the community, but our mod team fervently enforces Reddit's rules. If they do this, they send a message to every other community on reddit: We don't play by the rules we have set. It's entirely subjective. Expect your community to be banned if it's inconvenient for us in any way. The rules don't matter.

Personally, I don't think many communities like it when the administration acts in such a capricious manner as that. Without rigid rules and guidelines that the administration adheres to, confidence in the system breaks down. When the users get pushed around too much, they leave. It happens with every major social network platform. And it can happen here.

They need strong leadership, now. What they have, unfortunately, is a namby pamby community manager who won't commit to anything in writing and doesn't know how to lead communities. This will be reddit's downfall. Every time they make an announcement, the backlash and resentment grows larger. It will hit a critical mass and be impossible to contain.

For the sake of their own site, they should stop destroying the only thing that makes Reddit great: its community.

For those following the appeal:

- September 27th - The Reddit Admin Quarantine TRP
 - September 29th - The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims
 - October 1st - Admin Recant Quarantine Message
 - October 4th - Initial Appeal
 - October 11th - Appeal Status
 - October 15th - Admin Reply #1
-

We continue to work diligently on our Forums.Red reboot, with a fresh new look and new controls for moderators of their own communities to manage subforums. Announcements will be made soon.

Donate on our patreon or with bitcoin: 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

322

UPVOTES

Will Reddit Admin Apologize for Recommending Male Abuse Denier and Alleged Sexual Attacker as Role Model for Positive Masculinity?

29 October 2018 · /r/MensRights · Archived copy · Reddit

For those just catching up, it's been over a month since the the red pill's quarantine, and we still have not gotten a clear answer from the administration about what the offending content was, nor have we gotten a straight answer (or any answer for that matter) on what they recommend that we change.

/u/Spez and team posted a landing-page message when trying to visit the subreddit TRP, with a link to the Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities whose executive director at the time was Michael Kimmel:

"For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities."

They posted a male abuse denier as an example of positive masculinity, and quickly took that recommendation down after Michael Kimmel was forced to step down due to sexual assault allegations, quickly proving that /u/spez and the administration are absolutely clueless when it comes to "positive masculinity".

To this, we have received absolutely zero apology for the sheer and unbridled misogyny that the administration demonstrated. I have decided that it was time to stop waiting for the administration to do the right thing and apologize, so I have contacted them on our behalf:

When you quarantined theredpill you posted a message on our landing page:

"For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities."

And you linked to them. Their executive director was Michael Kimmel, who was on record on many occasions denying male victims of domestic violence and then accused of sexual assault and forced to step down from his position.

This was your example of positive masculinity that you sent to 300,000 of our subscribers. After these events came to light, your team silently removed the message but not until after damage was done.

I had abuse victims contact me and our mod team, confused and upset because of what happened. They did not like the idea of reliving their worst nightmare- that nobody would believe they were victims. Here they had found friends and people they could talk to about their experiences, and one day they were simply sent the message by your administration team that male victims of abuse simply do not matter and that real positive masculinity means denying that it happened.

I understand you guys don't like us. But for the sake of humanity and all that is good, will you please issue an apology to our members who were very much shaken by this experience?

I think we can both agree Michael Kimmel is not a role model for men. It was a mistake to suggest he was. Please do the right thing and issue an apology to our members.

Will they do the right thing and apologize?

232
UPVOTES

GAB is Down Because the Culture War is Real and the Overton Window is Shrinking

29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those of you tuning in, the Pittsburgh synagogue shooter this weekend apparently had an account on GAB.com, and while he also had accounts on facebook, twitter, and other sites, the powers that be deemed this to be the reason GAB.com must be removed from the internet.

Gab made a statement that they have been complying with investigators, having gone through and archived his account and taken it down as soon as they got the news, but that wasn't enough to appease the overlords who seek to censor the internet.

At the same time, Paypal and Stripe suspend their accounts with GAB, killing their payment processing.

Why does this concern us? We're not in this argument that Alex Jones, Gab, or whatever conspiracy nut comes along tomorrow is having.

But one thing is certain. Social Justice Warriors have been on the warpath for shrinking the overton window and putting into place the system and mechanisms required to silence and censor anybody outside that window.

And folks, what little we had that was considered acceptable is being pushed out the window as well. I wouldn't be surprised if exercise and strength training becomes misogynistic before the end of the year.

Disagree with the speech, but resist the censorship. Because if you don't, tomorrow they come for you.

We are working tirelessly on our Forums.Red platform to ensure that men can continue to communicate, no matter what the SJWs try to do to stop it.

1
UPVOTE

#NoNothingNovember 2018

31 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

It's that time of year again where we concentrate on discipline with #NoNothingNov 2018

Join with our NNN Tracker on TRP.RED

Welcome to No Nothing November 2018!

Every year, for the month of November, we challenge men to give up three vices for a month. They say that it takes just 21 days to form (or lose) a habit, and from those who participated in previous years, they'll remember that there's great satisfaction from achieving self-set goals, so let's get started on our 2018 #NoNothingNov

The Challenge

This year the challenge is:

- Give up Three Vices for a month.
- Take up One Daily activity for a month.

As we did last year, we want you to choose three vices you want to ditch for the month (and maybe for longer!) Some chose porn, some chose alcohol, and some chose /r/theredpill (bastards). Pick three vices or distractions that you want to remove from your life and kick them to the curb. If you pick alcohol or cigarettes, get them out of your house. If you pick porn, install that parental control software. If you picked /r/theredpill, close this window now. If you chose sugar, get your jollies today because at 11:59pm you're throwing away all your Halloween treats.

Now for the proactive part of N3, making sure that no day is wasted, we say no to nothing. Pick an activity or chore that you want to make sure gets done daily. It can be big, or it can be small. Clean your apartment, make your bed, hit the gym (best option), approach at least 3 women a day, shave, work on your hobby project at least an hour a day. Whatever it is, it's time to pick it and make a real schedule to include it in your day. Sit down with your calendar and figure out what time of the day you'll need to dedicate to your NoNothingSomething. Figure out Thanksgiving. If you are ditching alcohol or taking up the gym, there's no excuse for Thanksgiving. You must commit.

Track your progress

Track on your personal blog, or on our #NoNothingNov feature on TRP.red. Start tracking your progress by announcing your goals. Discuss how you plan to achieve these goals and what steps you're going to take to ensure that they happen. Track your progress daily with hashtag #NoNothingNov

Make sure you track your progress so others can help keep you accountable. And make sure you help encourage other members. For some people this may be their first foray in taking control of their own lives.

540

UPVOTES

Closure Is Bullshit

19 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/ENAtL>

24
UPVOTES

The Inversion Agenda - Roosh
19 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/the-inversion-agenda>

14

UPVOTES

The Frontier and Limits of Red Pill Success

20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2018/11/the-frontier-and-limits-of-red-pill.html>

50
UPVOTES

Title IX: The Civil Rights the ACLU Won't Defend

20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/06Wvf>

7 | The Role Stupid People Should Play in Society
UPVOTES 20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2018/11/the-role-stupid-people-should-play-in.html>

140
UPVOTES

Dalrock: Now we are haggling about the price. - "There should be a legal penalty for obtaining sex through fraud."

20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/11/17/now-we-are-haggling-about-the-price/>

34

UPVOTES

2018 Median Age of Marriage

20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/11/15/2018-median-age-of-marriage/>

59

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Our family policy is designed to terrify married fathers.

20 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/11/13/our-family-policy-is-designed-to-terrify-married-fathers/>

33

UPVOTES

Chivalry's mortal enemy: Toxic masculinity.

21 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/10/24/chivalrys-mortal-enemy-toxic-masculinity/>

330

UPVOTES

How To Prepare Our Sons for the Matriarchy

26 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As if anybody needed more evidence than the name alone to suggest that the "Good Men Project" is anything but pro-male, we have yet another example of how good men should accept and adopt a feminine-primary worldview.

How To Prepare Our Sons for the Matriarchy

Unironically complete with the empty, but obligatory, egalitarian throwaways such as:

"My vision of what The Matriarchy will be is not, "women ruling over men," but both sexes (well, all is more accurate) governing society equally"

Followed immediately with... but, ya know, women being more equal. That kind of equally.

"but with a moral code based primarily on feminine principles."

I don't think anybody here needs a reminder that a project called the Good Men Project is anything but a project for good men, but it still serves as an example of exactly how the feminine imperative weaves its way into the fabric of our culture, increasingly demanding that their interests be front and center, tacitly denying any other interests due to their implicit evil. Because if you're not a good man per the Good Men Project, then what could you possibly be?

This logic might work for the NPCs in the audience who think to themselves, "why yes, it makes sense because women are wonderful so men should be like women..." and as long as you don't spend any time analyzing such reasoning, you never have to face the logical inconsistencies.

Here is what we need to encourage:

- Empathy
- Caring
- Consensus
- Dreaming
- Openness
- Sense of Community
- Nurturing
- Equality
- Appreciation of Beauty
- Importance of Self-Expression
- Living Sustainably
- Caring for Mother Earth
- Respect for Women
- A Strong Sense of Self Worth

That's right, all these qualities that should be inherently good, well they must be the domain of women! Because men are inherently evil so if the qualities are good they came from women. This is called the Good Men Project. Where men have to learn to be good. And women just are!

Don't forget, things like having a sense of community or appreciation of beauty- well, fuck it, you gotta learn that from women. Because if you happen to have a male sense of community (TRP) or appreciate women's beauty (eye-rape) you've done it wrong. Have you tried it the way good women taught us?

The Matriarchy doesn't mean women over men,

Oh, good! I was worried for a second there you were suggesting that women should be preferred over men...

it means strong women leading all of us in rebuilding a society where traditionally feminine values are in balance with traditionally male values.

Oh, so change all men to be like women! That's not women over men at all!

The Good Men project's tagline is "The conversation no one else is having."

Is it because men aren't allowed to have conversations in good men world?

148
UPVOTES

The Bittersweet Life Of Famous Instagram Model Amanda Lee - RooshV: "She is a slave to digital responses in a virtual reality that is accessed through her smartphone. She is an addict to loveless attention that keeps her in a prison of materially comfortable insecurity."

26 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/the-bittersweet-life-of-famous-instagram-model-amanda-lee>

663

UPVOTES

Removing Power From Men : Mom Says 6-Year-Old Son Is Transgender. Dad Disagrees. Now He Might Lose His Son.

29 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Article Here

The Federalist reports that the mother has accused the father of child abuse in their divorce proceedings "for not affirming James as transgender" and is looking to strip the dad of his parental rights. "She is also seeking to require him to pay for the child's visits to a transgender-affirming therapist and transgender medical alterations, which may include hormonal sterilization starting at age eight," the report adds.

The father has been legally barred from speaking to his child about sexuality and gender from a scientific or religious perspective and from dressing his son in boys' clothes; instead, he has to offer both girls' and boys' outfits. The boy consistently refuses to wear dresses, according to the father.

[...]

The author warned, "If we do not save [the boy] from a misdiagnosis, his next step is chemical castration at age eight, only two years away."

It's not secret on TRP that feminism has been on a war path to remove power and agency from men. It's actually somewhat impressive the depths they'll go to to gain absolute control.

Feminism wants to increase opportunities and options for women while minimizing potentially negative outcomes. For men, they want to increase the risk in any sexual behavior, decrease options and opportunities, and increase liability.

And here we are with the latest liability.

Want to teach your son/daughter standard gender roles? Now you're evil and courts can take your kid away.

Never mind the fact that encouraging this behavior in children before they're even aware of what sex is leads to one of the highest suicide rates known to any group of people. If you're a man, the message is clear: You're not allowed to have influence in your child's life if the Marxists make up a new mental illness and impose it on your child.

This is an extremely perverse one, because it sexualizes young children and paints it as compassion. Even level-headed women are easily taken in by this with the idea that there should be a discussion with your child about it. (Essentially child abuse).

As parents I think it's important that we do not even entertain such ideas. Media is doing its fucking best to get these ideas into the heads of children as young as possible. Young children are impressionable and have no idea what they actually want. They will mimic and emulate what they see others do.

Prudent parents would not mistake this as an actual interest in becoming trans. They would set boundaries to prevent this mimicking behavior. As soon as the child moves on from this awful phase, they'll be happy their parents didn't indulge in it and chemically castrate them when they were 8.

This is just another inch (read: mile) taken by feminism as they crusade against men and boys, and dismantle the family and the role of the patriarch. And it's one that every single one of you are going to need to fight tooth and nail if you choose to have kids.

Follow up: Americans Greatly Overestimate Percent Gay, Lesbian in U.S.

It really is disheartening to hear what this father is going through. I checked out his site for his kid, savejames.com:

- James is a 6 year old boy – his mother is attempting to change his gender
- James prefers to be a boy, but since the age of 3, his mother has chosen to dress him as a girl, and call him by the name “Luna”
- She has enrolled him in school as a girl. He is currently in 1st grade. The teachers and administrators know that he is a boy, but the other parents and students are unaware
- He is undergoing “social transitioning” therapy to prepare him for chemical castration at age 8
- James’ father, Jeff is fighting to protect his son all alone
- His mother has support and financial backing
- Jeff needs both financial help with legal fees and help networking to find expert witnesses who will help him keep his son safe
- The court is requiring Jeff to pay for transgender therapy and the future sexual mutilation of his son
- Courts have enjoined Jeff from dressing James as a boy at school, from teaching him that he is a boy, and from sharing religious teachings on sexuality and gender
- He has been accused of ABUSE for saying that his son is a boy

98

UPVOTES

Americans Greatly Overestimate Percent Gay, Lesbian in U.S.

29 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/W7Qm6>

This recently came up in the instagram thread and I wanted to re-write and re-post an article I wrote from 2013:

Pre-selection.

Pretty much every tenet of game revolves around pre-selection. The idea is simple: Women want a high-value man. The best indicator of a man with high value is finding a man that other women find attractive. This is an evolutionary shortcut, the female subconscious uses the groundwork other women have done to determine who has value, and in return it provides tingles.

It's a meta signal, eventually resulting in men exhibiting traits that demonstrate pre-selection instead of traits that show actual value in a mate. (Somewhat the basis of sexual dimorphism, so to speak)

Strength, money, access to resources are actually beneficial to a potential mate. Women flock to men who exhibit these behaviors. To exploit this, men find they can exhibit pre-selection meta-traits to attract women, possessing few, if any, of the initial traits required for attraction.

This isn't to say your entire game can operate on pre-selection. But it can help otherwise weak stats. And a lack of it can kill good an otherwise good portfolio of traits.

Being seen in public with one or more women is the most common (but not only) execution of pre-selection and social proof. Almost all the signals that game attempts to exploit are all attempts at hacking pre-selection, by giving the appearance of having been selected by other women:

- Abundance Mentality - having broad access to other women means you don't care about any particular one.
- Displaying confidence – confidence is born of experience. Experience shows pre-selection.
- Being Pre-Selected - whether for real, or in show only, having other women fawn over you in public is a surefire way to get other women's attention. Walking into a bar with two women on your arms, or simply having pretty girls in your profile picture.

These hacks have been useful in creating what's known as the gaming community or pickup community.

But there's a major game changer on the scene: Online dating.

The Problem of Online Dating and Pre-Selection

The problem with online dating is that it signals the very opposite of pre-selection. You do not have a mate or options, so you must resort to going online to find one. Even if it's not true, this is the undertone of all online interactions. You do not have abundance.

Naturally, the tendency of game-savvy men is to still attempt to game on their profiles. But it's difficult if you don't recognize the disadvantages of pre-selection in this context.

Exploiting pre-selection for in-person pickup works because the meta-traits are hard to fake and difficult to differentiate. An online profile reveals your bluff immediately. Demonstrating abundance mentality and confidence will be difficult if not impossible online. You must make first moves. You are always coming from a position of weakness. Women hold the upper hand in all online interactions.

In other words, you can't be aloof online, because the nature of the interaction is one of neediness. If you don't generate the communication and follow through, the meetup never happens. This is almost entirely opposite of real life advice, which is not to appear too eager.

This leads to people making extreme profiles, because displays of confidence and abundance mentality are canceled out by the reveal of being online in the first place.

Some men have found luck with being so extreme, that it borders absurd or parody. Being overtly sexual or astoundingly brazen manages to say, “hey this is so ridiculous it can’t possibly work..” And if it’s so ridiculous it won’t work, then this guy isn’t maximizing his strategy. And if he’s not maximizing his strategy, he must not really care if it works. If he doesn’t care, then it’s probably because he’s already having sex with other women. And if he’s having sex with other women, he must be attractive. Pre-selection.

Needless to say this is a very shaky line of reasoning, and it won’t be as effective as in-person game. But it can net results.

How to Game Online

The first tip is not to be on a dating site. It reeks of desperation. Flirting on other social media (such as facebook) allows you to control the frame a bit better in this regard. They can look at your profile and see your exciting life, and they don’t assume you’re there for the hookup.

That said, it also pits you against the entire world of other men. None of whom would be the perfect man for an experienced alpha widow, but all of whom would add to her idealized picture of a perfect mate, building ever higher at the top of the modern widow’s tower of unrealistic expectations. Every single one supplicating and eager.

So what if you still want to try online dating?

It is my contention that the only sure-fire way to reliably excel at online dating is to demonstrate the actual traits that would normally lead to pre-selection in real life. Display strength and/or access to resources.

That’s right, you can snag a girl by writing you’re a plastic surgeon making $300k+, and you can lift.

It’s already been shown by the okcupid blog (Now removed) that showing off your muscles is a great way to get messages.

[...] contrary to everything you read about profile pictures, if you’re a guy with a nice body, it’s actually better to take off your shirt than to leave it on.

http://puerarchy.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/07/male_photo_contexts2.png

A 19 year-old showing his abs meets just under 1.4 women for every woman he reaches out to, meaning that not only are females responding to his messages, but many are actually contacting him first.

<http://puerarchy.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/07/clothes.png>

One final point, vis à vis men, their torsos, and the clothing thereupon: if you’re not the type of guy who can show off your muscles, don’t veer off in the opposite direction and get all dressed up. Outfits more sophisticated than a simple collared shirt fare poorly...

So in the end, after all is said and done, the best strategy for online dating is to be attractive. Online dating is the anti-game. Ironically, the way to best succeed at online dating is if you already possess the traits that would be effective at offline dating.

In a round-about sort of way, this also shows pre-selection at work. If you manage to show on your profile that you have the qualities that women select for, then it’s likely you do have mates already in the real world.

Conclusion

Online dating is a great supplement to an otherwise healthy sex life, but should not be used in place of in-person gaming, and certainly should not be used as an excuse not to game in person.

If you are having trouble getting mates in real life, online dating will be very hard for you, and will do nothing but further erode your confidence and sap your energy.

If you aren't having success, go to the gym, not the internet.

324

UPVOTES

What is Borderline Personality Disorder? (BPD)

14 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This comes up every couple months and I see a lot guys misunderstanding BPD and thinking it's similar to depression or bipolar disorder.

It is so, so much worse.

Borderline Personality Disorder (BPD) - The DSM Criteria

BPD is a pervasive pattern of instability of interpersonal relationships, self-image, and affects, and marked impulsivity beginning by early adulthood and present in a variety of contexts, as indicated by five (or more) of the following:

- Frantic efforts to avoid real or imagined abandonment. [Not including suicidal or self-mutilating behavior covered in Criterion 5]
- A pattern of unstable and intense interpersonal relationships characterized by alternating between extremes of idealization and devaluation.
- Identity disturbance: markedly and persistently unstable self-image or sense of self.
- Impulsivity in at least two areas that are potentially self-damaging (e.g., spending, promiscuous sex, eating disorders, substance abuse, reckless driving, binge eating). [Again, not including suicidal or self-mutilating behavior covered in Criterion 5]
- Recurrent suicidal behavior, gestures, or threats, or self-mutilating behavior.
- Affective instability due to a marked reactivity of mood (e.g., intense episodic dysphoria, irritability, or anxiety usually lasting a few hours and only rarely more than a few days)
- Chronic feelings of emptiness.
- Inappropriate, intense anger or difficulty controlling anger (e.g., frequent displays of temper, constant anger, recurrent physical fights).
- Transient, stress-related paranoid ideation or severe dissociative symptoms.

One of the best ways I've heard it described is Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

When they're Dr. Jekyll, it might be the highest feeling to be with them. They will be extremely intense, energetic, outgoing, playful and very persuasive. It's intoxicating and can draw you in.

But when things turn to Mr. Hyde it's like a different person altogether. It will catch you off guard.

It's not mood swings. It's much worse.

It's periods of dissociation.

It's subconscious gas-lighting.

It's manipulations.

Catastrophizing, Chaos Manufacturing, Circular Conversations, Denial, Dependency, Fear of Abandonment, and so much more.

People close to them starting to question their own realities.

They remember conversations that never took place, threaten you with blackmail and demand recompense for crimes that have never been committed. They forget real conversations and facts and substitute them with their own versions of events or completely fabricated days- weeks- even months.

They lie to their friends about you, and they lie about their friends to you. They never tell the same story twice, and can never be nailed down on a single accounting of events.

If confronted with any inconsistencies in their story or behaviors they can and will become violent. Physically violent.

And god help you if you defend yourself. You will be arrested on the false claims they make.

They don't feel bad or guilt. They don't know they're dissociating. They believe in their world, even though it changes from minute to minute.

Absolutely do not think you can tame one. You can't.

Having BDP requires years of cognitive behavioral therapy. And that is just to function in society. They will never be healed. They are broken.

Do yourself a favor and learn this list:

<http://outofthefog.website/personality-disorders-1/2015/12/6/borderline-personality-disorder-bpd>

324

UPVOTES

I Was Fooled By The Promise Of The Internet - If you dare to publicly share the truth on the internet, they will ban you.
RooshV

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/i-was-fooled-by-the-promise-of-the-internet>

15

UPVOTES

Holbein Vs Contrapposto: Battle Of The Alpha Male Poses - "This is why women look sexy on horses (and why (mostly BPD) women like to ride horses): the fulcrum of a woman's sexuality is her vulnerability. Her powerlessness — which is the opposite of a man's fulcrum of sexuality." Heartiste

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/01/22/holbein-vs-contrapposto-battle-of-the-alpha-male-poses/>

147
UPVOTES

The Unlovable Slut | "Nothing drives down the price of women lower than other women willing to give it away for free. " | Chateau Heartiste

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/12/20/the-unlovable-slut/>

64

UPVOTES

Johnnie Walker gets Woke

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Johnnie Walker @JohnnieWalkerUS

Follow

Here's to every voice. Here's to every step. We partnered with some incredible artists to create powerful poster designs for the Women's March. To print your own, go to walkwithjane.com. #walkwithjane #womenswave

11:29 AM - 17 Jan 2019

90 Retweets 139 Likes

2.6K 90 139

New to Twitter?
Sign up now to get your own personalized timeline!
Sign up

You may also like · Refresh

- Johnnie Walker @johnniewalker_
- Jack Daniel's @JackDaniels_US
- Jim Beam @JimBeam
- Ketel One Vodka @KetelOne
- Diageo News @Diageo_News

94

UPVOTES

The Trigger Awards 2018 - Post Nominations

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Over the next few weeks we're going to launch a few contests to recognize outstanding members of our community and the content they create.

Today we are taking nominations for best posts of 2018.

Top level comments must include only one nomination, and one category, but replies are open for discussion.

You may submit as many nominations as you would like.

Nominations will be open until Feb 1st. Because of the nature of how reddit works, older comments tend to get more votes than new comments. Because of this, we're going to take all nominations with at least 3 votes will be featured in our final vote next week.

Please nominate your choices for best posts 2018.

Categories for nominations:

Most Triggering / Controversial

Most Thought-Provoking

Best Advice

Best Prediction

Rules: Post must originate on /r/theredpill and must have been made in 2018. While not strictly against the rules, nominating yourself is a douche move.

46

UPVOTES

The Trigger Awards 2018: MVBP Nominations

24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

And now for our most triggering category : MOST VALUABLE BLUE PILLER

We're looking for the bluest pill Post or Comment made on Reddit in 2018.

Top level comments must include only one nomination, but replies are open for discussion.

Submissions must be a screenshot of the comment or post with names blurred. Comment or post must be from reddit and made in 2018.

No direct linking.

Submitters must be able to verify post with URL privately with mods if nominated. Recommended to take archive with <http://archive.today> if possible.

You may submit as many nominations as you would like.

Nominations will be open until Feb 1st. Because of the nature of how reddit works, older comments tend to get more votes than new comments. Because of this, we're going to take all nominations with at least 3 votes will be featured in our final vote next week.

Please nominate your choices for MVBP 2018.

Rules: Post must originate on Reddit and must have been made in 2018. While not strictly against the rules, nominating yourself is a sign of brain cancer.

32

UPVOTES

The Red Pill Penetration Rate - "Of all the men who land on red pill pages, I estimate half lack the courage to take the red pill."

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2019/01/the-red-pill-penetration-rate.html>

114
UPVOTES

1939 Marital Rating Scale - "Is there really any question that America was, culturally and psychologically, a healthier, better, SANER nation in 1939 than it is today?"

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/01/25/1939-marital-rating-scale/>

183
UPVOTES

Grass is Green: Tattoos Are A Slut Tell

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/01/24/science-tattoos-are-a-slut-tell/>

24

UPVOTES

Scamming The Child Support Safety Net - "Nothing quite says
"upholding the spirit of child support law" like [...] fucking five different random men in one month and trying to ensnare one of them in eighteen years of indentured financial servitude
[...]"

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/12/18/scamming-the-child-support-safety-net/>

21

UPVOTES

Will trans acceptance push women to look more feminine? - "For a woman to be seen as "crossdressing" she has to not only put on the apparel and hairstyle, but make an effort to pass herself off as a man. This isn't true for men. If we see a dude [..] wearing a dress, we recognize crossdressing. "

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2018/12/10/will-trans-acceptance-push-women-to-look-more-feminine/>

211
UPVOTES

Reconsidered Rape | "Perception Of Rapists As Successful People Decreases Likelihood Of Crime Being Labeled As Rape, Study Finds"

28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/01/28/reconsidered-rape/>

480

UPVOTES

Feminists are ugly. - I can't think of any men my age or younger who don't know how to cook [or] don't enjoy cooking. This is in stark contrast to the women of the same generations, who (typically) view cooking as an indignity.

29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2014/01/01/feminists-are-ugly/>

30

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Grill envy | "No matter how hard they try, they can't do something simple, something effortless for men. They can't grill with the aim of caring for others. If they can't have what men have, then they have to tear it all down."

29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/01/28/grill-envy/>

144
UPVOTES

The symbolism of the line of men grilling in the GILLETTE AD | "Barbecue men are deeply invested in family life. They are fathers. What is the easiest way to produce boys who do not understand or respect the boundaries between positive and negative masculinity? Take away their fathers."

29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/01/28/the-symbolism-of-the-line-of-men-grilling-in-the-gillette-ad/>

121
UPVOTES

“Toxic masculinity” in advertising: keeping women scared and men shamed. | "A baby shower for a girl. A gift is passed to the expectant mother. It's a rape whistle. Cut to a black screen: “1 in 2 girls will be physically or sexually abused.” Fifty percent of women will be beaten or raped? PARDON?”

29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.thepostmillennial.com/toxic-masculinity-in-advertising-keeping-women-scared-and-men-shamed/>

14
UPVOTES

Later Childbirth And Male Homosexuality
30 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2018/12/17/late-childbirth-and-male-homosexuality/>

44

UPVOTES

APA's War on Masculinity

30 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WO93hW_uVao

7
UPVOTES

Rollo's State of the Manosphere 2018 @ 10pm eastern.

30 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2019/01/29/state-of-the-manosphere-2018-2/>

65
UPVOTES

Rollo - State of the Manosphere 2018

30 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2019/01/29/state-of-the-manosphere-2018-2/>

346

UPVOTES

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://twitter.com/wyattbased/status/1090725647733977088>

110
UPVOTES

Contraception Prevents Love | "I believe that most women will only retain enough adhesive to sleep with between one to five men in their lives before irreparably damaging their ability to love any man."

1 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/contraception-prevents-love>

279

UPVOTES

Women Who Don't Have Babies Go Crazy | "Western females are so mentally ill that at least 25% of them need to be medicated with pharmaceutical drugs. Their sterility and the extreme enabling of their behavior created a perfect storm that is leading to societal mass hysteria."

1 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/women-who-dont-have-babies-go-crazy>

1
UPVOTE

The Rigger Awards 2018 Voting Now Open

4 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

40
UPVOTES

Vote Now: Trigger Awards 2018 - Most Triggering / Controversial

4 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Please vote on your favorite Most Triggering / Controversial posts now. Voting is open through Friday, 2/8

26
UPVOTES

Vote Now: Trigger Awards 2018 - Best Advice

4 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Vote Now on your pick for Best Advice 2018. Voting open through Friday, 2/8

209
UPVOTES

THE APA IS A FEMINIST, PARTISAN ORGANIZATION - Jack Donovan

4 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Not exactly news, but a fresh perspective:

THE APA IS A FEMINIST, PARTISAN ORGANIZATION - Jack Donovan

Excerpts:

If three members of the communist party peer-reviewed an analysis of capitalism, written by another member of the communist party, would you consider that analysis to be “scientific” or “objective”?

Men are on average physically stronger than women — there’s nothing cultural about that fact — and men who were stronger than other men have always and everywhere been regarded as being more masculine. Men are on average less risk averse than women — and decreased risk aversion is a known effect of higher testosterone. Men have always and everywhere been expected to show less fear and display more courage. This also makes a lot of sense in the big picture, because nature gambles with men. Men are more expendable — because sperm is a lot more plentiful than eggs, and one industrious man can impregnate thousands of women. (See also: Genghis Khan) Men have always competed with each other, not merely for women, but for the esteem of male honor groups. Being esteemed by the right group of men often makes a man more desirable to women — an aspect of human social dynamics often missed by evolutionary psychologists who are maybe a bit too used to observing patterns of competition and display in less socially complex animals.

Read the full article here.

201

UPVOTES

Feminists want to kill Toni Harris

5 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

'I love to prove people wrong': Female college football player and former homecoming queen Toni Harris reveals dreams of being first woman to play in the NFL after overcoming cancer in inspiring Super Bowl ad

One of the most obvious conclusions to the delusional fempire is that every so often, somebody's going to actually believe the nonsense that men and women are literally equal in all ways.

And when this happens, it fails in spectacular ways, which are always entertaining to watch, but may actually end in serious bodily harm or death - which means not only is TRP not evil, but we actually care more about women than feminists.

This brings us to today, Toni Harris - a whopping 5'6" woman at 164 lbs, fancies herself an NFL football player.

She told USA Today: 'I plan to be the first female NFL player. Drafted or undrafted, as long as I get there, with God's will.'

'I love to prove people wrong. I was kicked off a team when I was younger because I was a girl. But once I got older and into high school, I mean, it still was hard but I just tried to pave my way through no matter what anybody said. It's my dream and I'm gonna protect it at any cost.

'Being a role model, it's an honor, but it's also a privilege because not every day everybody can stand up and be a role model for other people. And it's kind of hard. It's a lot of pressure, but I mean, I'm just paving the way for the next little girl that's gonna come along and be a role model as well.'

Now take a look at her next to other players and you'll notice something pretty obvious. If she were to get into a 1-on-1 collision with any of the men in that picture, she could be seriously injured. All it takes is a little pressure in the right place and you're either paralyzed for life or dead on the spot.

But many tackles aren't 1-on-1 are they?

Imagine getting your head in the wrong position at the bottom of a pig-pile. Her neck is skinnier than most of their biceps alone.

Some of the heavier DTs are in the 350 range. She weighs 164. It would be a slaughter.

Of course, there's a good chance she never makes it, due to the fact that she literally cannot compete with men. But the left is so hellbent on selling the lie that I wouldn't be surprised if the pink game ball NFL decided to push a female player as a stunt, further cementing their position as anti-masculine (as well as anti-all things conservative like anti-cop and anti-white).

There's only one takeaway from this. If they decide to keep lying to this poor girl and encourage her to do something as stupid as get into an NFL game... Then...

Feminists want to kill Toni Harris.

By the way, as an experiment, try working that into conversation from now on, just to see how much your friends and family hate women. Say "women physically cannot compete in the NFL." See if they get upset. It's a good gauge of how plugged in they are. Anybody who gives it even 10 seconds of thought would instantly realize that a tiny woman being tackled by 300 lbs men is a bad idea.

341
UPVOTES

The Sixteen Commandments Of Poon
5 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/the-sixteen-commandments-of-poon/>

130

UPVOTES

Announcing: OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY* WED 2/13 : "The biggest brawl of ill-conceived multi-colored pill metaphors baked into the biggest smackdown medicine cocktail since John Belushi discovered heroin."

6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Edit Announcement 2/13: Threads will be live in AM EST. Stay tuned.

I'm happy to announce the biggest upcoming event in the history of events:

OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY* - WED 2/13

We're working with the /r/purplepilldebate sub to bring to you the debate event of the century. A day where anybody of any colored pill persuasion can come onto our subreddit and ask those burning questions of our members that the world has always wanted to know the answers to.

We know that some red pill members like to venture over to PPD on occasion, but now is your chance to get info straight from the source. We're unlocking the doors, there will be no safe space left for us.

AND THE MOD TEAM WON'T BE BANNING ANYBODY OR REMOVING ANYTHING! HOLY FUCK

Our mod team will be creating a sticky thread at the top of /r/theredpill the morning of Wednesday, Feb 13th. In this thread, anybody with a reddit account is free to ask red pill members anything they desire.

IF YOU HAVE BEEN PREVIOUSLY BANNED BY TRP, MESSAGE /r/purplepilldebate mods or /u/redpillschool with your username to unban and we will unban you for the day.

Rules:

THERE ARE NO RULES. NO HOLDS BARRED.

No but really there are a few basic rules.

- No breaking reddit TOS, this will still net you a ban.
- No surveys or links to off-reddit sites (in case they are trying to collect personal data).
- Top level comments MUST BE A QUESTION for red pill members.
- Trolls who venture into other threads will be banned.

Anything else goes.

WED 2/13

BE THERE

* Name subject to change pending a stroke of genius.. or just a stroke in general.

 Except for obviously rule breaking.

11

UPVOTES

Vote Now: Trigger Awards 2018 - Voting Thread List

6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Please vote on your favorite posts now. Voting is open through Friday, 2/8.

Trigger Awards 2018 - Most Triggering / Controversial VOTE THREAD

Trigger Awards 2018 - Best Advice VOTE THREAD

353

UPVOTES

The Rejected Woman | Chateau Heartiste : "I once saw a beautiful woman turn from flashing a sexy smile at a friend-zoned guy...to falling to pieces, her voice wobbling and the color draining from her face, when she realized the stunning girl standing behind him was actually his new girlfriend."

6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/05/the-rejected-woman/>

179
UPVOTES

How To Pass A Girl's Emasculation Test | ...She pulled a stunt as we passed a group of dudes that I'll never forget... "Hey you'll always be my best friend!!"

7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/06/how-to-pass-a-girls-emasculation-test/>

11

UPVOTES

Neo-Victorianism Or Gynarcho-Tyranny? -- We aren't revisiting the age of Victorianism; we're entering a new age of Misandrim. Women are unhappy... they have decided at the behest of their Narrative gatekeepers to direct all their incoherent rage against men, specifically White men.

7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/05/neo-victorianism-or-gynarcho-tyranny/>

52

UPVOTES

She wants someone who is already wanted - "The reality of these [celebrities] may or may not be impressive; however, the pre-selection of mass culture - no matter how manufactured - makes them desirable."

7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2018/01/she-wants-someone-who-is-already-wanted.html>

470

UPVOTES

[25m] my girlfriend[24f] told me she had only slept with 3 guys, her best friend[24f] blurted out that they slept with a guy every city in Europe they visited

7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.fo/ckZUr>

577

UPVOTES

Joining an INCEL Group is Fucking Retarded. There is no Black Pill.

9 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is a topic that just keeps coming up and I think it's about time to dismantle this garbage idea that there is some sort of darker reality that TRP ignores and that the real real reality is this thing that only virgins can see.

Joining an INCEL group is fucking retarded. It's like joining a group dedicated to how bad you are at sports, or how shitty the food you cook is.

There is absolutely no judgement from me if you are involuntarily celibate. Without it, places like TRP wouldn't exist, and awesome stories like M3's story - confessions of a reformed incel wouldn't be there to guide us.

In fact, involuntary celibacy is what I consider to be one of the best catalysts for improvement a man can have. Rock bottom and ignored by women. It is the single best eye-opener a man can experience (along with being cheated on, divorced, or dragged through the family court system).

But joining an INCEL group is accepting defeat and then blaming it on somebody and something else.

The BLACK PILL? How many pills are there??

INCELS believe they hold the key to reality. They call it "the black pill" because they're edgy and in the market of ideas, being edgier than us is a surefire way to collect attention. The hypothesis of the black pill is that looks are more important than any other factor when it comes to mating. Implicit in this is the understanding that the red pill does not believe this, and instead believes actions are more important than looks.

This is a fundamental misunderstanding of the red pill, but it serves as a clever scapegoat for ones own failures. If looks are the most important, and you don't get to pick your face, then your celibacy is completely outside the realm of your own control. Cue the violin.

But that's not really red pill theory whatsoever. It's a bastardized version of the red pill, twisted to prop up the failing egos of the self-proclaimed unlovable.

Do Looks Matter?

Of course looks matter. Looks can be the difference between wild success and being cast out among the losers. Nobody at TRP believes that looks don't matter.

In fact, we believe that looks are so important that the number one thing we recommend, above all else is to lift.

You know why? Because an average-to-ugly face is passable if you're fit and strong.

Couple that with some attitude adjustments and learning banter / game, and you're well on your way to being successful with women.

I have seen many an ugly man succeed with women on charisma alone. Especially in situations where they have a captive audience. (Think work, school, clubs, social circles)

Is it an optimal scenario to be in? No, it isn't. I'm sure most ugly guys would prefer to look better. But we don't get to choose our lots in life. We can only make sure we play our hands the best we can.

Which is why the red pill focuses not on how ugly we are, but on the factors we can improve. Not because it's not a factor but because it's pointless to wallow in it. Change what you can. Learn inner peace for what you cannot.

Fitness. Game. Confidence.

There is no glory in involuntary celibacy. Joining a group dedicated to it is nonsensical and antithetical to the purpose of support groups. You join AA to stop drinking not to talk about how drunk you are. You join TRP to end the involuntary celibacy, not to wallow in self-pity.

If you consider yourself an INCEL and you voluntarily accept it as fact, and do nothing to change this part of your life, I have news for you:

THE INCEL CROWD IS VOLUNTARILY CELIBATE.

That's right. They're choosing not to change any factors that might lead to the end of their abstinence. They are so afraid of failure that they simply do not try. Then they claim that they alone hold the keys to reality because life's a bitch and don't we all have some shit going on.

This is why embracing INCELDOM is fucking retarded. It's antithetical to its own purpose and relies on misinterpreting things like TRP to prop up its own shaky definitions.

Also, coming up with all these different pill colors is stupid.

45

UPVOTES

Chase Bank Shuts Down Proud Boys Leader's Personal Bank Account - They don't want you to start a fraternity. They don't want men coordinating.

9 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://www.ronpaulforums.com/showthread.php?531314-Chase-Bank-Shuts-Down-Proud-Boys-Leader%E2%80%99s-Personal-Bank-Account>

45

UPVOTES

Reddit: Censorship fears spark criticism of Tencent funding reports

11 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.fo/edAKk>

132
UPVOTES

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS- ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As per our announcement last week today we launch our first ever ban-amnesty AMA debate thread in which anybody from anywhere on Reddit can come challenge our opinions and ideas with no fear of retribution, censorship, or banning.

WE ARE STILL ENFORCING REDDIT'S TOS AND POSTING GUIDELINES

So while a good-natured ribbing is fine, please don't single out users and harrass them - this is against reddit's rules and we rather not have to step in.

The mods will be taking a very hands-off approach to this thread. Any ideas and comments not expressly against reddit's rules are fair game except one rule:

ALL TOP LEVEL COMMENTS MUST BE A QUESTION OR CHALLENGE FOR TRP.

Feel free to debate and discuss anything you'd like here.

Understand that this thread may be heated and I don't expect any debaters to pull punches if you're easily offended or worried you might be offended, I recommend that you simply do not participate in this thread. We are starting a second thread linked here which we will be moderating for civility and topic, this might be a better choice for you.

ARE YOU BANNED?

As per our announcement last week, we are offering ban-amnesty today. If you were previously banned, please PM me and I will unban you to participate in these two threads.

However, if you start wandering into other threads and start trolling, you will be swiftly banned. YOU HAVE BEEN WARNED

IF YOU GET RATE-LIMITED

If you get rate limited because of downvotes, contact me and I will add you to our approved submitters list.

52

UPVOTES

THE SEA OF CIVILITY - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As per our announcement last week today we launch our first ever ban-amnesty AMA debate threads in which anybody from anywhere on Reddit can come challenge our opinions and ideas with no fear of retribution, censorship, or banning.

WE ARE STILL ENFORCING REDDIT'S TOS AND POSTING GUIDELINES

This thread is specifically for those who would like to debate or challenge TRP but with a few enforced rules:

- CIVILITY WILL BE ENFORCED, BE POLITE
- ALL TOP LEVEL COMMENTS MUST BE A QUESTION OR CHALLENGE FOR TRP.
- NO INCEL NONSENSE
- PARTICIPATION IN THIS THREAD MUST INCLUDE GOOD-FAITH ARGUMENTS AND REBUTTALS

Feel free to debate and discuss anything you'd like here.

While you will not be banned for participating in either of our two threads, understand that we may remove your comments in this thread if you do not follow the rules.

If you rather, check out our LION'S DEN for an unmoderated war of ideas.

ARE YOU BANNED?

As per our announcement last week, we are offering ban-amnesty today. If you were previously banned, please PM me and I will unban you to participate in these two threads.

However, if you start wandering into other threads and start trolling, you will be swiftly banned. YOU HAVE BEEN WARNED

IF YOU GET RATE-LIMITED

If you get rate limited because of downvotes, contact me and I will add you to our approved submitters list.

120
UPVOTES

There's the Thousand Cock Stare, and then there's the One Cock In A Thousand Stare.

19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/18/killing-a-mountain-lion-with-bare-hands-game/>

66

UPVOTES

Book Review: Roosh's "Lady" | "the truth is this book would do more to make women happy than all the affirmative action, government programs, women's empowerment seminars, Oprah books, and liberal arts masters degrees combined"

19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2019/02/book-review-rooshs-lady.html>

43

UPVOTES

Archive Backup Forums Status Announcement

20 February 2019 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

Hi All, quick announcement here.

Some of you may know we've been maintaining a backup archive and forum at <https://www.forums.red/i/RedPillWomen> for emergencies such as the new Chinese Reddit overlords replacing all female-based forums with knock-off iphone spam or something - or more likely, Reddit just really hates us and presses delete in the night.

Anyhow, we've been doing rolling archives for the past few years but there's been a limitation in the reddit API that doesn't allow us to fill in all the missing gaps. Up until now we've had all the highest ranking threads and the most active threads.. but it hasn't been 100% complete.

That is, until now. Working with some new techniques and tools, we've been able to slowly fill in those missing gaps since the beginning of RPW to 2018. (Our forward-looking archives are still ongoing).

Because of this, we now have 11,900 RPW posts and 221,900 RPW comments archived on Forums.Red.

We also happen to have a feature reddit doesn't- sort by old. Go ahead, take a look!

Forums.Red/i/RedPillWomen Sort-By OLD

Now, we're not planning to open these forums for use unless there's a reason we cannot stay on reddit. But if you haven't already I recommend you hop over and register an account and reserve your reddit name (if you'd like to) just in case.

Also, take a sneak peek at our new design overhaul here and here. New design launching soon.

Anyway, back to your regularly scheduled posting. That is all!

14

UPVOTES

The Race To Self-Disgrace | "Soyborn White males have so debased themselves, and live within the constraints of such a malignantly corrupt culture, that they ostentatiously display their fealty to the most undignified tenets imaginable."

20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/19/the-race-to-self-disgrace/>

111
UPVOTES

Why men lie | "...at a certain point, men begin to believe that they have absolutely no responsibility to tell the truth to a woman because she has no regard or respect for it."

20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/01/why-men-lie.html>

170
UPVOTES

ROOSH: Never Listen To A Woman | " I've observed almost no cases where a man's status or position has been increased from following a woman's advice or opinions, and it's much more likely for him to be harmed from it."

20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.rooshv.com/never-listen-to-a-woman>

64

UPVOTES

ROLLO: The True Romantics | It is men who are the real romantics. It's men who are the imaginative ones when it comes to romance, and all in an effort to provide a woman with the romantic experiences she says she wants. Romance is what Men perceive it to be for women.

20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2011/08/26/the-true-romantics/>

270

UPVOTES

Woman: The Most Responsible Teenager In The House | The child refers to his parents' things as “ours” while those he purchased are “his.” Even my own parents, my father worked his whole life to pay bills, when the kids were gone, my mom took up working - money she earned was “her money.”

20 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://no-maam.blogspot.com/2012/06/woman-most-responsible-teenager-in.html>

132
UPVOTES

The Truth About "Misogyny" | "For a man to pretend to understand women is bad manners; for him really to understand them is bad morals."

21 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://masculineprinciple.blogspot.com/2015/03/misogyny.html>

34

UPVOTES

Peer Reviewed Research: The Holy Grail of Truth? | The fundamental basis of feminism is that gender is a social construct; tabula rasa, blank slate. The reason that women did not figure prominently in history, science, or philosophy is the innately misogyny of men (which refutes tabula rasa).

21 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://masculineprinciple.blogspot.com/2015/03/peer-reviewed-research-holy-grail-of.html>

41

UPVOTES

War, Sex Skew, Beta Male Thirst, And Female Beauty | sex
skews [are] an under-appreciated factor in large-scale geopolitical events.

26 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/25/war-sex-skew-beta-male-thirst-and-female-beauty/>

Gentlemen, I apologize for being quiet these past few weeks (aside from our awesome AMA day which was incredibly active and a great mental exercise for some of us.)

I come bearing some good news and updates:

We have completed the backlog archive of /r/TheRedPill and /r/RedPillWomen.

As many of you already know we've been hard at work getting rolling backups of our content and shipping it over to Forums.Red. However, some limitations in Reddit's platform makes it difficult to go too far back in time, so our rolling backups were of popular posts only.

While we didn't see too much issue with that- some posts with only 1 upvote and no comments weren't exactly gold- it did hurt not to have a more complete archive.

Thanks to some input from our users we were able to use some additional new tools to fill in our gaps and finally get 100% of our content archived (sans self-deleted content):

Our Archive Now Contains:

105,000+ /r/TheRedPill Posts

2.6 Million /r/TheRedPill Comments

-And-

12,000 /r/RedPillWomen Posts

222,000 /r/RedPillWomen Comments

We've added a feature that is sorely missing from Reddit: Sort by Old.

Now you can go back to the beginning of time and see the beginnings of TRP:

TheRedPill Sort-By Old

RedPillWomen Sort By Old

You can also do user search (which I believe is missing from reddit).

Here's a list of every time I say the word hypergamy:

<https://www.forums.red/c/?search=hypergamy&timeframe=1&userid=redpillschool&submitsearch=Search>

We are continuing our efforts to grab the rest of /r/askTRP.

As many of you know, our Forums are undergoing some extreme makeovers but given that our forums are starting with over 3 million comments and hundreds of thousands of posts we've been hard at work securing a robust platform that won't crumble under the load if/when we need to migrate.

Our original forums (which you can see clicking those links) are sluggish, ugly, and barely passable. They were whipped up very quickly during a massive subreddit banning spree to ensure we had something in place for an emergency, but surely not a perfect replacement. This is why we're taking our time now to do it right. Proper caching, design, and speed enhancements are underway to make this platform perform exactly how we want it to.

We have also been working with our partners to pre-empt potential censorship issues that may arise, aligning with companies who take free speech seriously. This is key given that our potential departure from Reddit is due to such censorship.

Our Roadmap

Our goal is not to divide our community, but instead use Forums.Red to augment our community until such a time where TRP is simply unable to continue on Reddit. Because of this, over the next month or two, we plan to open a few subtopics on Forums.Red and allow some time to wear-in the platform and stress-test it.

Our eventual goal is to allow non-RP topics, subforums, and their own moderators, to be hosted on Forums.Red with the following caveats:

- The topic must be a "forbidden topic" that's at risk of censorship elsewhere
- It must not be used for doxxing, harrasment of individuals, or revealing private information.
- It must be legal under US Law
- No Porn (There are better places for it)
- Each topic must still be moderated for the selected topic.

Moderators who would like to test the waters on the new platform will be able to apply for testing (we will announce this in the coming weeks). We ask that these topics meet the criteria above.

We're not looking to be a replacement for Reddit. The issue with replacing Reddit is that it's a very large ordeal and most replacements hinge on being "free-speech" which ultimately turn into cesspools of "DE JEWZ DID IT" and various racial slurs. There is already a place for kitten pictures and I see no reason to try to replicate this.

Instead we want to focus only on reason and the pursuit of reason in the face of censorship. Each board will still be required to moderate their topic accordingly.

We're still working out rules and policy so feel free to comment here with ideas and critiques of our approach to remain dedicated to free speech while still preventing the dumpster fire that is Voat.

And as always, this effort is entirely out of pocket for me, if you want to help support the effort feel free to join our PATREON (Subscribe Star coming soon) or Donate to our Bitcoin Address:

1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

27

UPVOTES

How being a good listener and questioner is a life changing super power

27 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://xsplat.wordpress.com/2019/02/27/how-being-a-good-listener-and-questioner-is-a-life-changing-super-power/>

33

UPVOTES

Heartiste: Study: Low T Men Are Angry And Moody

27 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/26/study-low-t-men-are-angry-and-moody/>

87

UPVOTES

The Three Tiers Of Assholery - "Asshole Game is confusing to men who think it means incessantly insulting a woman and generally acting like a huge dick all the time"

1 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/02/28/the-three-tiers-of-assholery/>

32

UPVOTES

Female Corruption Events

1 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Short but sweet from Heartiste- but I thought it was worth posting:

Female Corruption Events

Excerpt:

There are three events in modern human history one may pinpoint as singularities of corruption of our women:

1. the vote
2. the Pill
3. social media

The first Corruption Event severed woman from husband and supplanted him with the State.

The second Corruption Event severed woman from herself and supplanted her womb with careerism and cock hopping.

The third Corruption Event severed woman from reality and supplanted her humility with self-delusion and rage.

548

UPVOTES

Bumble is launching a women-first networking tool that lets recruiters exclude men

1 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://archive.fo/1XZ8C>

54

UPVOTES

The Hot For Student Epidemic Rages On | Why do women do this? Part of the answer is the repercussion of a society which has stopped constraining female hypergamy.

4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/03/02/the-hot-for-student-epidemic-rages-on/>

14

UPVOTES

The Feminine Imperative - The Origin of Chivalry

4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://therationalmale.com/2013/01/02/the-feminine-imperative-circa-1300/>

174
UPVOTES

Discussion: Do you want children? What is the best way to have children?

4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In the coming weeks I am going to dedicate some time to the topic of having and raising children in today's culture.

To kick off the topic, I wanted to open a discussion. Do you want children?

If so, what's the best way to go about having children?

And if you do have children, what's the best way to raise your boy or girl in today's culture?

493

UPVOTES

The Reason Beta Males Pedestalize Women - "Beta males are rarely in a position to witness the worst of women."

5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2012/03/30/the-reason-beta-males-pedestalize-women/>

119

UPVOTES

The 40-Sex Beads Method - or - How to know your marriage is over.

5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

This is an older article but interesting nevertheless: <https://archive.fo/3rgwU>

He Wants Sex, She Doesn't. Are Beads the Answer?

The premise behind “beading” is simple: The woman keeps a bowl, a.k.a. beadcatcher, by her bedside. When her husband (or lover) is in the mood, he drops a bead into the beadcatcher. The woman has to be ready to slide between the sheets within 24 hours.

“I figured I’d give myself a little wiggle room,” says Evans, from Charleston, S.C., who comes across as a wise-cracking and self-proclaimed sexpert in the not-so-coincidental 40 chapters in her quickie beach read. “We women need a little time to get our brains around the deed. It also gives the man time to anticipate, which they love. When he drops that bead, he is filled with gratitude and love and sexual anticipation and all that positive energy gets funneled in his wife’s direction. It’s a little quantum mechanics, if you will.”

Emphasis added. If your wife needs a little time to wrap her mind around doing it with you it's because she's just not that into you.

The Forty Beads method is a way to reconcile the predicament in which Homo sapiens finds itself: “A man has to have sex to feel close, and a woman has to feel close to want to have sex with him,” says Evans.

Soon enough, promises Evans, sex won’t feel like a chore.

Ironic given that authors like this come up with chores to have sex. Feminists have even tried to convince their hapless husbands that choreplay is one such way to get her into the mood.

“He drops the bead in a bowl and all of a sudden he’s scooping up the baby with the stinking butt instead of walking right past because he is so stinking happy with the promise of all this sex in his future.”

Whoops! Looks like she does want sex to be a chore. For him.

All fun and games aside there is one simple takeaway from this- She doesn't desire sex with you, you are a work horse. She wants you to work for her. And she's lamenting and putting together abstract games to deal with the notion that she might have to put out a little to keep beta little you working. She needs 24 hours to work up to the deed. You should use that 24 hours to find yourself a new wife.

19

UPVOTES

The Feminine Imperative Revisited - "[it's] much more insidious than simple moral indulgence. The feminine imperative has warped our very ability to think morally"

5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2013/01/18/the-feminine-imperative-revisited/>

40

UPVOTES

The ubiquitous frame of hypergamy. "The feral woman's preferred sexual experience is to be seduced by a series of men who prove their alphaness to her."

5 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2012/06/03/the-ubiquitous-frame-of-hypergamy/>

510

UPVOTES

If Not Men, Then What? - "the biggest con in human history was convincing women that working, commuting, and paying taxes was fun."

8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2019/03/if-not-men-then-what.html>

58

UPVOTES

Woman, 72, weds boyfriend, 74, after rejecting his proposals for 43 years - CH: "This is the ideal gynarchy. You may not like it, but this is what Peak Thottery looks like."

8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.fo/wPz3q>

46

UPVOTES

Expendable Men, Perishable Women - "in the modern West, beta male providers are rendered more expendable. And where sluttery, cheating, cuckoldry, and single mommery are rising, male parental investment declines because men are no longer confident in their paternity with any one woman."

8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/03/08/expendable-men-perishable-women/>

41

UPVOTES

Anti-Game | Chateau Heartiste "A lot of losers in love insist that "being yourself" is morally superior to "manipulating and seducing" a girl with game." "Being yourself" isn't an ethically or strategically neutral stance..."

8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2009/03/02/anti-game/>

55

UPVOTES

The true meaning of moral panics - "An increasing number of hypergamically-aspiring college women are competing for a decreasing pool of higher-status male peers."

8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://esr.ibiblio.org/?p=4934>

362
UPVOTES

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/03/08/mens-brains-are-significantly-larger-than-womens-brains-happy-international-wahmens-day/>

85

UPVOTES

Budweiser Women's Day Woke Campaign - Gender Roles for Thee, but Not for Me.

12 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Full post on TRP.RED

CH posted about the recent Women's Day campaign run by Budweiser which takes old, presumably sexist, ads and revamps them for 2019's standards under the guise of equality.

Of course, it should come as no surprise that women now comprise 80% of the brand's marketing team, so naturally they turn their marketing away from beer and the men that drink it, and start selling feminism wholesale.

As we've noted, when social justice warriors converge on an organization, killing the organization is a perfectly acceptable win condition for them. And Bud is all-to-happy to follow in the footsteps of the other greats committing to advertising wokeness. (Gillette, Johnnie Walker, etc)

But every time one of these woke campaigns take place, they can't help but betray their true agenda by pushing for female supremacy every damn time.

She married Two Men / She has it All

Right off the bat we begin with the low hanging fruit. The idea of women being subservient to men might be a good target for these woke campaigns- but that's not far enough for them. They want men not to be in the picture at all. Notice that she goes from bride to spinster, repeating the lie that she already has it all, so why would a woman need a man? Well if it's true that she's got it all, then she doesn't.

Women just don't need men. Right?

Take out pizza

In what we'll see is one of two take-out oriented ad workovers, we see the woman pouring a beer for her husband who is hopelessly trying to fix a telephone with a hammer. I'd say the first one is good enough, given that they've already made her husband a bumbling fool who can't figure out how to fix things and needs a cool-down.

Let's give them the benefit of the doubt and assume he's trying in earnest to fix the phone. Is there a reason why fixing him a drink is somehow more oppressive than him fixing the phone that they both presumably use?

Well, as we expected, they wanted to push the agenda. Now they're working / moving, and both enjoying a beer. And she is not serving him in any way, shape, or form. Instead of making sure the family and the people she cares about eats a healthy meal, they elect for delivery pizza. Because it would be that much worse if she had accidentally lifted a single finger for her own husband.

Unspoken in this change-up is that while it might appear more egalitarian for them to "work together," fixing appliances is still a one-man job, which is why division of labor makes sense. Further it proves that when you don't divide the labor correctly the entire family suffers for it- as is evidenced by the junk food for dinner.

We're to believe that since she's "helping" with moving around boxes that now they've truly found co-existent equity nirvana, the truth is he's still carrying the heavy boxes and will have to do all the cooking afterwards if he doesn't want a heart attack at the age of 35. And who mows the lawn later?

This calls for Budweiser

Our final ad swaps a woman cooking and a man drinking a beer after a long day at work ("loosen your tie") to a woman alone with her dog eating - you guessed it - more takeout.

What they're telegraphing here is a bit perplexing. They clearly wanted to take the first two ads and mix them together. First, it's oppression for a woman to cook for a man. Secondly, it's oppression for a woman to have a man.

Therefore, it must be established that if a woman must put up with a man, even the simple act of cooking is taboo, but it's clearly best if she doesn't have a man at all.

And cooking is still oppression. So for you single ladies out there, make sure you eat pizza and chinese takeout and don't you dare cook for yourself.

And drink beer! (Are you convinced yet?)

What's conspicuously missing here is the existence of both sides' gender roles. Apparently it's oppression for a woman to pour a beer or cook spaghetti, but nowhere in these ads did they show her mowing the lawn, fixing the phone, cleaning the gutters, or fixing the car.

The takeaway is that men are still required to do 100% of his work, but don't rely on the division of tasks because requesting anything from a woman is oppression.

They've removed all responsibility and purpose from the woman and branded it feminism.

And of course, skilled observers here already know: that was the point. That is feminism's end goal.

Start your own free blog on trp.red

84

UPVOTES

TRP Raising Children Series: "In Their Own Words: Parents of Kids Who Think They Are Trans Speak Out"

15 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.thepublicdiscourse.com/2019/02/49686/>

264

UPVOTES

Apology to UCD students as 'consent app' proposal sparks uproar. "It's clear that the developer of the app's primary concern is not the safety of women nor is it to ensure that all sexual encounters are consensual."

18 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://archive.fo/qMMpF>

90

UPVOTES

Georgia (Feminist) Legislators introduce HB 604: Any male 55 years of age or older shall immediately report to the county sheriff or local law enforcement agency when such male releases sperm from his

21 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

111
UPVOTES

Betrayal Is The Heart Of Woman - "The first thing a woman does when she gets power that goes against the natural order is to turn against the very culture which gave her that power."
-RooshV

22 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

65

UPVOTES

TRP Raising Children Series: Controversial Study on Rapid Onset Gender Dysphoria and Transgenderism: transgender behavior in children developed rapidly as a result of factors like peer pressures, soci

22 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

240

UPVOTES

Losing control of the narrative. - "Having it all means the woman gets her feminist merit badge AND freely spends her sexual capital during her most attractive and marriageable years."

26 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

85
UPVOTES

Glassdoor Average Base Pay for Webcam Models: $47,499/year

28 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

811

UPVOTES

I used to drug women and rob them years ago. Society's Hatred Test.

28 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Anybody keeping up with pop culture has probably heard the ridiculous news that Cardi B admitted to drugging and robbing men in her past. I don't follow this woman so I don't know too much about her, but I do know one thing-

If a man said, "I used to drug and rob women," not only would that be the end of his career, but it would be the end of his social life, his friendships, his facebook and twitter accounts, and perhaps his freedom (jail time) if anybody stepped forward.

Watch the story unfold as a litmus test of society's attitude/hatred towards men.

If she manages to carry forward her career with little to no damage (as Vox is predicting in the article linked above) then the transition to a female-primary anti-male society is now complete.

We are now deciding as a society if women of self-proclaimed crimes against men are absolved of their guilt because society hates men that much and loves women that much.

Spoiler alert: For those who have been watching the last few decades, we already know she'll be just fine because society hates men.

277
UPVOTES

Weak men will screw feminism up. - The Sexbots Are Coming

4 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

146

UPVOTES

What if social media is causing permanent mental retardation for those who grow up with it?

4 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

From XPLAT:

What if social media is causing permanent mental retardation for those who grow up with it?

We know that there are developmental windows where neuro-development must occur for many different human developments. Motor development. Vision. Learning a language. If you aren't subject to the stimulus that leads to language acquisition during those few years of developmental opportunity, you can never learn to understand speech. Not enough stimulus can cause severe developmental disorders in many areas, if the critical windows are missed.

What if a lack of unsupervised play causes developmental harm? What if a lack of face to face communication during our major neurological developmental open window, which lasts up until about age 21, causes permanent developmental delay – or social and mental retardation in other words?

Will we wind up with an older generation scratching their heads at the mass hysteria of a new generation of college students who can't snap out of their collective group think identities?

As the older generations die out, will they leave the planet to a bunch of retards?

Read the rest here

Though tangentially related to my RP Raising Children Series of posts (will you let your kid on facebook?), this raises an even broader point that I think needs to be addressed.

TRP itself is a symptom of a greater cultural shift of guys (and gals) who don't know how to interact with each other. This year it was reported that fewer teens are having sex, it can't be ignored that these teens are some of the first to grow up with social media at 8 years old.

Whether it's a real, physical, developmental roadblock, or simply that these teens now have their need for validation fulfilled by twitter and snapchat that otherwise would require actual human contact, the effects remain.

Actual human bros hit up askTRP and ask "there's a woman coming to my house tonight, what do?"

We are in a world of hurt.

Sure feminism is pushing women and girls to embrace masculinity and anti-male behaviors as their primary modus operandi. But what we didn't expect was that both boys and girls would equally fail to learn how to talk to each other.

Every day I see Tinder chats on reddit that end a successful opener with "What's your snapchat?" rather than "what's your phone number?"

Take a second to think about the implications of this. Sure, you can "share" snaps between each other, but the primary purpose of snapchat is not dialog- it's broadcast and spectatorship. It's not a closer that ends with sexual activity. It's a closer in which two parties can quietly watch each others' broadcasts indefinitely with no human interaction whatsoever.

The new generations of children are not learning to interact and communicate with immediate feedback (aka reading the room). Instead they are learning methods of broadcasting and spectating as their primary social activities. Learning social interactions and social calibration is key to forging friendships and, of course, getting laid. If I could sum up the biggest problem askTRP has, it's this: Nobody there knows what calibration is. They get a mental checklist and try to go down the list one by one, without reading the reactions of their target. And it's a miss every time, because they simply don't know how to think on their feet.

I have a few friends addicted to snapchat- I don't personally see the allure. They often get a queue of videos lined up of their friends talking about how great their lives are. It's a culture of millions upon millions of miniature celebrities broadcasting their social lives instead of living them.

One of my friends will literally start playing snap chats during a conversation at a bar. His thumb is always on the screen during conversations. You'll know it's snapchat when suddenly there's audio coming from his phone. During a conversation. He doesn't think it's weird or antisocial.

I wonder if he does that around women.

42

UPVOTES

Dictionary.com prescribing language instead of describing it: Unteaching “Boys Will Be Boys” And “Boys Don’t Cry”

4 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

[removed]

22

UPVOTES

Bar Girls Are The New Church Girls

8 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/04/05/bar-girls-are-the-new-church-girls/>

58

UPVOTES

New TRP.RED Website Archive Tool

18 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

When submitting links to TRP you've noticed that we recommend archiving the site using archive.today or archive.is to prevent the site from changing the text or going dark some day in the future.

The mods and I have been discussing how to make TRP less vulnerable to the ever-increasing censorship and memory-holing that takes place across the internet and have decided to launch a new tool (still in beta) that should help assist in preventing articles we discuss from vanishing off the face of the earth.

If you'd like to give our tool a try, it's free at TRP.RED/archive.php if you log in and click "URL Archive" under My Content.

This is how the archive links appear when you use them.

Let me know how it works for you. I am aware some sites don't work too well with it (new york times being the biggest offender).

Our goal is to keep as much of TRP independent of widespread censorship as we can. This is just another piece to our puzzle as we roll out new features.

If you haven't been over to the Podcasts section in a while, we have some fresh material being uploaded this week, head on over to TRP Podcasts or maybe upload your own!

As always, if you want to support the efforts: You can support TRP.RED by joining our Patreon. or Donate To Our Bitcoin Address: 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMb81zk7 QR CODE HERE

529

UPVOTES

Spain Gender laws: A country against men - "the woman decides to press charges against you for domestic violence. She then can ask the state for an economic help of 400 euro/month for 11 months. No need for a conviction."

19 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.kukuruyo.com/2016/02/17/spain-gender-laws-a-country-against-men/>

20
UPVOTES

Dalrock: Charlize Theron has us trapped.

19 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/04/17/charlize-theron-has-us-trapped/>

117
UPVOTES

The world is waking up and feminists are resorting to plain ol' censorship to keep you from seeing that the overton window is shifting... /r/unpopularopinion

23 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://trp.red/x/pqfmxz>

80

UPVOTES

It's Not Your Job to Unpack Her Desires- "The red pill community, no matter how right, simply doesn't have the resources to counter the trillions of dollars and the trillions of hours and the decades of years that have been invested brainwashing today's women into being non-women"

26 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2019/04/its-not-your-job-to-unpack-her-desires.html>

225

UPVOTES

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Occasionally we get some aggressive or persistent spammers on our board that require a heavier touch of the mod tools. In full disclosure, I want to talk about the guy "Dream" from the 21 Conventions that he puts on, and his behavior here on TRP, and how the mod team has decided to handle it.

For as long as I've known about him, Dream has had a habit of drive-by posting low-effort videos and announcements of his grand events. When I say low effort, I mean he either spams us with content from his youtube channel, or posts an attempt to get us to buy tickets to his events, and then leaves for months at a time. He does not stay and engage with the community, and he certainly does not add value to the community.

His content obviously serves one purpose- his goal is to increase his visibility and ramp up his numbers (and sell you tickets) but he does not post with the intention of enriching TRP, he only posts with the intention of enriching himself. And we've got proof that he knows this.

When he posts his shitty car commercial or puts out "alpha soap" commercials (I wish I was kidding), it's obvious that he sees TRP as a means to an end, but does not see TRP as an investment that must be contributed to. This is a marker of hucksters.

Now, don't get me wrong- I actually really support the idea of somebody putting together a conference (or anything) that's strictly for men, by men. The idea of growing the community and helping men network is something I'm personally very invested in. The idea behind a conference is not what I'm taking exception to here. Our mod team generally gives a lot of leeway to anybody attempting to put forth good-faith effort to enrich the manosphere or TRP in general.

But when you do this, you need to have respect for the platforms that you engage with. (Or, heck, just try engaging them at all.)

Dream drive-by posts advertisements and calls it quality content, then leaves, completely ignoring the hierarchies and methods of gaining respect in our community: you don't get recognition without putting in the time to cultivate and contribute quality content that benefits the community.

You've probably noticed that's why we give members like u/gaylubeoil some slack on selling t-shirts. Because he cares about the community and puts in the time and effort to make this a better place. If we told him 'no' to selling t-shirts, he would still contribute to our cause because he sees the bigger picture.

Dream, on the other hand, does not.

My few brief interactions with Dream have been quite disappointing to say the least. Despite my respect for a number of members he's invited to speak - including Rollo and Rian, my interactions with Dream have put into question what his intentions are and whether he has the skill-set to accomplish his goals.

His lack of social skills or awareness put in doubt that he's an able leader of men who could steer anybody in the right direction - let alone men in need of help.

When confronted with friendly reminders of how our forums work (and how to succeed here) he instantly goes into super-ego-protection mode and lashes out, insulting the very people from whom he is asking for help. Sprinkle in some delusions of grandeur and a heavy dose of bravado and you get this:

(To RPW Mods)

"Your sub is a joke. It doesn't have to be, but you keep it that way by banning anyone with an edge. Very sad. I'll fix it for you ladies in a few years."

Followed by:

"Can you unban me temporarily? I have a major announcement to make this week for red pill women."

How anybody can be so completely unaware is astounding. Delusion is too weak of a word.

His lack of social awareness isn't limited to his dealings with us... the alpha soap commercials and the fast cars convention commercial all lack a critical self-awareness, and only serve high-level amounts of cringe that I suspect can only be achieved by the aspergeriest of aspies.

But even if his heart was in the right place (in spite of the terrible execution) we cannot look past the fact that these conventions cost a whopping $1500-$2000 per ticket. One might think this guy is pocketing some serious cash at the expense of our community. And one would be right- he self admits it to TRP mods in modmail (he just can't help himself but to brag):

"And I've been doing is since 2006 at 17 years old after finding the manosphere in 2005. [...] I'm done giving a fuck. I'm a millionaire running 3 businesses. You can get behind what we're doing or eat a dick."

One might take a second to ponder... if this is all he's done since 17 and now he's a millionaire.. where do you think that money comes from? Of course, this is provided he's actually a millionaire, which let's face it, most millionaires don't have to brag about it.

In fact, most people who are actually successful don't have to brag about it.

"I grew up with 2 sisters, have cold approached 7,000 women, and banged several."

Gentlemen, I smell a huckster. If he's getting even a little rich off these conventions, that means he's overpricing these tickets to pocket as much as he can under the guise of "helping" men. And let's face it. Newcomers to the manosphere are often vulnerable guys who simply don't know what they don't know yet.

And he has the gall to try to run his tricks here on TRP. Not on my fucking watch. No way, no how.

What's funny is, if he had social skills, he could have been cooperative and friendly and likely managed to forge a relationship of trust with our community. But he's too busy running his mouth to realize how many bridges he's burning.

Read my temp-ban private message to him regarding the fast cars commercial

His full reply a few months later:

Thanks for your patience. Been busy setting up 3 conventions this year, we're a few days out from the patriarch event. I appreciate the stickied speeches and announcements.

It's unclear what is considered "spam" and what isn't. These seem to be referee calls made on the fly rather than strict adherence to a specific policy. That's understandable given that my companies and content walk a fine line between business and organization for men. The event tickets costing 3 to 4 digits, and then the speeches publishing for free, are the best example of this issue in action.

You didn't like Sharks and Patriarchs in terms of value. What about Sons of Patriarchy? That's a bit longer and more interesting. What about Gender Wars Episode II with Elliott Hulse? That's nearly 2 hours long. All of these videos promote our events, and IMO, have value. They are the most well produced videos in the entire history of the manosphere. Why not allow the subscribers decide what to upvote or downvote? Unless and until it presents a serious and obvious problem I don't see the issue with that policy in relation to our content.

TRP can help these videos go viral on Youtube and reach new men who need the red pill. That is part of why they are produced the way they are. That Lambo trailer broke 150,000 views across all platforms. New men were exposed because it was so triggering and well done. This is something the community should decide, not you.

21 Studios owns a majority of both The 21 Convention and The Red Man Group. This content is not just "good", it represents the most epic events, speeches, and podcasts in the history of the manosphere. Period. They blow every single competitor out of the water. Most sucked or otherwise gave up. Making content at this scale, intensity, frequency, and quality within the manosphere is seriously difficult.

And I've been doing it since 2006 at 17 years old after finding the manosphere in 2005.

"Some in our community" sounds like some sour mods and the child of Chernobyl.

I am a proud salesman. I am the best in the world at what I do, my convention rocks. Every dipshit who hasn't attended, yet wants to talk shit can suck my balls. I saw an EC a few months ago qualify his post about 21 with "I don't know anything about it...".

Why do you think Rian and Rollo support 21 so strongly? Rian has never sold a ticket to the convention. He ain't doing it for the money. He's attended twice and understands how incredible it is. That's impossible hiding behind a keyboard.

I drive by post because I feel - accurately - that I'm constantly walking on eggshells in this community, one post away from being banned, as I constantly am. RPW, MRP, and temporarily TRP. No more, I'm done giving a fuck. I'm a millionaire running 3 businesses. You can get behind what we're doing or eat a dick.

In fact I challenge you personally to attend 21CON. If you don't like it I'll personally cover your airfare and hotel. If you don't I think you're a weak bitch. That goes for every mod getting this.

I love TRP. It's a powerful idea I stand behind 100% and the best tribe in the manosphere. It's also grown beyond Reddit, onto twitter, blogs, youtube, and 21CON. The leadership here is weak, half the mods are spergs, half the ECs are keyboard warrior frauds like IM.

I'm happy to talk this over face to face btw. I'm a pretty nice guy.

Redpillwomen is a bad joke. They need MWGA. You're hiding it from them. Triple gay.

Have a great day.

It's like reading the rantings of a bi-polar madman. I hate you, I love you, but you're gay, but please help me promote my product!

All of this in conjunction with what I've heard from others (Check out the reason Richard Cooper pulled out of the convention!) I am convinced that Dream is not the type of guy who would lead us in the right directions. He treats all interactions by AMOGing everybody, doesn't understand politics, and burns bridges faster than he can build them.

I very seriously doubt he knows jack shit about the red pill. He's shown through his actions he doesn't.

Just like how he brags about being a millionaire, you can see why he brags about being a good salesman. Because he isn't one.

446

UPVOTES

CH: Women Would Rather Be Miserable Than Bored | “I am finally dating someone who is kind, and smart, and likeable and attractive, and great, and the sex is awesome.” But.... “He’s emotionally available...and actually likes me.”

7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://heartiste.wordpress.com/2019/05/03/women-would-rather-be-miserable-than-bored/>

38

UPVOTES

The season of singleness. "We tend to think of the sexual revolution as something that happened in the past, but as the chart above shows it started in the late 1960s and is still underway."

7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/05/01/the-season-of-singleness/>

60

UPVOTES

Study: Does Apologizing Work? An Empirical Test of the Conventional Wisdom - "however, liberals and females were much more likely to say that he definitely or probably should have faced negative consequences for his statement when presented with his apology."

7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://trp.red/x/pr52op>

475

UPVOTES

The Economist: No sex please, we're millennials: "The portion of Americans aged 18 to 29 who claim to have had no sex for 12 months has more than doubled in a decade—to 23% last year."

7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.economist.com/united-states/2019/05/04/no-sex-please-were-millennials>

538

UPVOTES

Chateau Heartiste Has Been Shuttered in What Appears to be WordPress' Opening Salvo as They Join the Greater Tech Censorship War.

10 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

heartiste.wordpress.com is no longer available.

This blog has been archived or suspended in accordance with our Terms of Service.
For more information and to contact us please read this support document.

Full article here: <https://blacklabellogic.com/2019/06/12/what-is-the-red-pill/>

Excerpt:

Like I said initially, I used to see “The Red Pill” as a descriptive praxeology, however, I’ve come to realize that we need to split this up a bit more. Because we do have a lot of components here.

A) The descriptive praxeology that describes the reality of intersexual dynamics.

These are the contents that seek to describe the mechanisms at play, and their given effect. For instance, describing the mechanics of hypergamy and solipsism and how they influence the mating market.

B) Various perspectives on how one should utilize the information from A.

These are those contents that seek to describe how to put yourself in an advantageous market position to exploit the core mechanics. For instance, how to deal with hypergamy in an LTR, what to do to maintain her preference for you as her chosen partner, and how it affects her mate choices.

C) Various individuals and groups that utilize A as part of their foundational material, but who have added other elements to build a full individual or group ideology.

This includes all the content that brings in philosophy not pertaining to strict epistemology and logic applied specifically to the area of intersexual dynamics, such as conservatism, liberalism, fascism, liberalism, progressivism and various religious or spiritual doctrines. (List not exhaustive)

D) Various hucksters, cult leaders, scam artists, con-men, and opportunists who utilize brand to benefit themselves only.

This includes the content that only seeks to exploit the branding side and that add components that are not related to intersexual dynamics to build a value proposition to make a sale, or to encourage a group identity where they can elevate their position to one of high status.

You should read the full post <https://blacklabellogic.com/2019/06/12/what-is-the-red-pill/>

My thoughts:

I’ve noticed the more I read the twitter personalities who hijacked our nomenclature tend to be all prescriptive in their discussions and almost none of them care about individual choice let alone the underlying theory on any of their ramblings.

They put their weight behind action plans and try to make their own lives the example and therefore cookie cutter that all should follow.

One guy comes to mind, his relentless preaching on why a good marriage is the best and how society and divorce is all just because you didn't try hard enough and we should double down on our efforts is exactly the sort of stuff we worked hard to keep out. He brags a lot and it pains me to think that he'll eventually have his AWALT moment at some point. Maybe not. But TRP's predictive power is rarely wrong.

Above all else, I am firmly in category A, however I enjoy seeing people's approaches in cat B. This is where people get confused. I've had people repeatedly ask me why we have a MGTOW tag, because it's so antithetical to getting laid. I like having opposing viewpoints on what to do with this information. Moving into the woods to be a hermit is the polar opposite of going clubbing every night to get laid. But both are decisions only you can make for yourself.

When somebody tries to steer the community by saying "this is the only right way" then we've got a problem.

We talk about spinning plates, mtgow, pickup, and even LTRs. None of these are the same goals or strategies but they all utilize the same underlying philosophy.

I personally talk about building power and tribes, which I suppose is my contribution to cat B/C on this front. I will continue to do so. Big news on this front soon...

The reason why I take a stand against many in cat C + D is because they ditch a lot of the truth and opt for comfortable lies in doing so. They enter into platitude city and you're just sticking your head in a new bucket full of blue pills. You cannot advocate marriage even if you personally decide to give it a try. Because the risk profile does not align with what we talk about here. Sure you can try it, but imagine if somebody had read a book on probability and said "you know my takeaway from this? I should invest my life savings into scratch tickets."

This isn't a moral judgement. This is a logical extrapolation on the truths we discuss here.

280

UPVOTES

Course Corrections and a Word on the State of the Manosphere (Stop Being Cunts Edition)

13 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Every so often the mod team has to post minor course corrections when the topic starts to stray into nonsense land.

Obviously, there is a lot up in the air right now because everybody in the 'sphere decided to get collectively pissed at each other. It's petty. And I've had a heck of a lot of dudes approach me telling me to "pick sides" or to "ban this" or "ban that."

It's disappointing to say the least, because it ignores the very principles of how TRP operates and why we've build such a great community while others have tried and failed.

My goal since I took over (way back when) was to facilitate the discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men. This goal has not changed.

Inherent in this goal is making sure nobody takes over the forum and tries to subvert our purpose or co-opt it to do something devious or impure. But also implicit in this is giving the forum breathing room to hash out new ideas, to discuss both sides of arguments and to suss out new understandings and predictions.

Obviously, there is a range of discussion that's simply off-topic for our forum, and there are some disingenuous argument styles (BP trolls) that are out-of-bounds on the grounds that they do not discuss in good faith and come from such a wildly different perspective that never the two viewpoints could meet in the middle if we allowed it to play out long enough. This has always been understood.

But I think a fair number of you forgot that beyond that, TRP is a set of tools and what you decide to do with it is up to you.

I had read the essay I link in this post and I think it really articulates the mental framework I've used in the previous years, though never explicitly stated. Read that link if you haven't. But the short of it is this: There is theory, and then there are practical applications and personal goals that you can decide on knowing the underlying theory and philosophy.

I've been asked on a number of occasions why we insist on keeping the MTGOW flair, or why LTR and PUA would be discussed in the same place. I see a number of offshoot groups leave TRP because they think their prescription is better than others.

I've always taken pride in the level of intelligence and discourse that takes place here, but there's a mental block many can't get over- which is entertaining opposing ideas at the same time. I'm not a MTGOW but I see the logic in their choices and see nothing wrong with the approach. Does it fit my needs or goals? No, it doesn't. But that doesn't mean that I want them gone because I can't fathom the idea that other people have different goals and strategies than me.

Notice I said "prescription." That's because all of this talk and argument about the best lifestyle choices is simply a debate on prescription. Meanwhile the core of TRP remains descriptive and predictive, but not prescriptive as a group.

That's not to say that you shouldn't consider your choices and it certainly doesn't mean we can't or shouldn't discuss, debate, and weigh the merits of different prescriptions.

But for fucks sake people, stop asking me to endorse one prescription over another. It's not going to happen. It is your choice how you're going to live your life. Nobody else's.

Recently due to the drama I've had factions come up and ask me to ban other factions. It's childish and it's antithetical to my goals: which is to facilitate the discussion of sexual strategy.

If I ban one viewpoint because people don't like it, then the discussion never takes place and then all we've done is endorsed a viewpoint with no logical or rational basis for having done so.

Here is the problem. Some of these groups have gotten downright stupid with each other so I'm restating some rules here to help everybody understand:

Stop with ad hominem. It's annoying, it's low brow, and it doesn't belong here.

We are a discussion group with a level of decorum that doesn't resort to petty insults to get our points across. You will discuss ideas respectfully or not at all.

Stop with the antisemitism.

I don't care if it's another red pill, it's off topic for this forum and it just looks juvenile.

NO MEMES

This place isn't a place for memes. Never has been.

Stop getting your panties in a bunch because somebody disagrees with you.

This is the place for hard truths, not comfortable lies. People are going to disagree. If somebody is disagreeing in a disrespectful manner, Report the comment to the mods, don't engage.

Thank you.

13

UPVOTES

Stages of mating applies only to a small percentage of a small niche of over-educated feminists. XPLAT "And isn't it [...] a gamma socialist entitlement? "Those girls are doing it wrong, waiting for their epiphany phase [to marry]. They should marry younger, like before! They'll be sorry one day!"

15 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://a.trp.red/6k>

93

UPVOTES

WEEKEND MEGATHREAD: Favorite red pill Blogs, Authors, Books, and Podcasts

15 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I've noticed my feed reader dwindling as voices disappear from the internet. Some classic red pill guys have turned to politics, some to Jesus, and some are simply shuttered by the powers that be.

So in this thread, let's share notes and links about the best content on the web that you can get today.

Bonus points if it's written but podcasts and video channels are also welcome!

18

UPVOTES

IM: Ruminations on Double Standards | “When hypocrisy is a character trait, it also affects one’s thinking, because it consists in the negation of all the aspects of reality that one finds disagreeable, irrational or repugnant.” – Octavio Paz

17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://a.trp.red/6m>

75

UPVOTES

Dalrock - The ugly feminist view of pregnancy: "Gestational work" | "These women are so gripped by miserliness they have made it a priority not to show love to their own children."

17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://a.trp.red/6n>

144

UPVOTES

Two points on loneliness, family, and evolutionary biology :
"Suicide rates for [..] older guys have been going up for a long time[...] Younger guys can learn game and get laid (the way is hard but it can be done), while older guys without families don't have that source of meaning."

17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://a.trp.red/60>

515
UPVOTES

Study: Only 3% of Straight People Are Willing to Date a Transgender Person

17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://a.trp.red/6p>

70

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Melinda Gates, miserly billionaire.
"Complementarians are convinced that the solution to feminist discontentment is for husbands to do more. If they work harder, do more housework, etc. wives will be content."

24 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/06/20/melinda-gates-miserly-billionaire/>

11
UPVOTES

Captain Capitalism: Do Women Like Men or Not?

24 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com/2019/06/do-women-like-men-or-not.html>

66

UPVOTES

Rules Clarification

25 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Memes, Personal Attacks, Harassment Campaigns are all against the rules.

Automod is trained to remove a good portion of them, and please report any that it misses. Not only are these all against the rules, but at least one of them is against Reddit TOS.

68

UPVOTES

“The Startling Rise of Choking During Sex”

26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://theredquest.wordpress.com/2019/06/24/the-startling-rise-of-choking-during-sex/>

427

UPVOTES

Unmarried 35-year-old woman reflects on her adventurous life of fun & travel : "This woman's .. life plan is that she chose whatever made her feel good from age 18-35+, and now wants to enter into a marriage..."

26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://winteryknight.com/2019/06/16/unmarried-35-year-old-woman-reflects-on-her-adventurous-life-of-fun-travel-and-serial-cohabitation-2/>

48

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Should we fine tune our replacement of marriage? "In the past, marriage granted men fatherhood rights they otherwise could not expect to receive. It also granted women the right to support from the father... marriage is now about the moral primacy of romantic love."

27 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/06/26/should-we-fine-tune-our-replacement-of-marriage/>

467

UPVOTES

Hoes mad. | Dalrock "majority of women also believe men are actively seeking consent for the wrong reasons. 39% of those surveyed feel men are asking for consent because they're afraid of being publicly accused of sexual assault."

13 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/08/07/hoes-mad/>

70

UPVOTES

The Atlantic blames the Manosphere for mass shootings. "Ironically, it simultaneously claims that: All right minded people today support feminism, [only dangerous and insane people oppose feminism.] AND Feminism is not a powerful force in our society. [It's an insane conspiracy theory.]"

13 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/08/08/the-atlantic-blames-the-manosphere-for-mass-shootings/>

221

UPVOTES

What are fathers for? "we have done so much violence to the concept of fatherhood; before we can discuss what fathers do, we need to seriously struggle with the question of what the word father even means." "the modern family "father" refers to a series of men who come in & out of the child's life"

21 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/08/14/what-are-fathers-for/>

157
UPVOTES

[Open Discussion] What is the role of a red pill father in today's world?

21 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Putting aside the complexities of marriage or starting a family outside of marriage (which is IMO preferable to marriage), what should be the role of fathers to their children in today's world?

What important roles do fathers fill that mothers cannot?

What important concessions should a father avoid making to maintain his position as father?

And finally, does today's cultural climate allow for this father to exist?

Discuss.

272

UPVOTES

New Monopoly Game Gives Women More Money Than Men -- further proving that women need handouts to perform anywhere close to as good as men.

14 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://trp.red/x/pxtpqw>

314

UPVOTES

The weakened signal hits home. "A new study is making the rounds that found a mismatch between the imaginary men unmarried women are planning on marrying, and the real life unmarried men available..." "They found that a woman's made-up hubby makes 58 percent more money than [available] bachelors."

14 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/09/09/the-weakened-signal-hits-home/>

1
UPVOTE

Announcing: TRIBES on TRP.RED

29 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://tribes.trp.red>

390

UPVOTES

Announcing TRIBES on TRP.RED

29 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many of you already know, we've been hard at work adding new features and redesigning <https://TRP.RED> and our reddit replacement site <https://forums.red>.

While Forums.Red's official launch is still a few months out, we are proud to announce the redesign of TRP.RED is now live and our newest feature TRIBES is now here!

About a year ago, /r/TheRedPill was quarantined by Reddit, sending the loud and clear warning that we were not welcome here. But we're not the only ones affected by this. All male groups, even tangentially related, are being chased off every platform. Twitter will ban you if you say "there are only two genders." Facebook employees will read your private messages and ban your private groups if you share urls that they don't approve of. Reddit hates anything masculine. Youtube demonitizes, delists, and even puts wrong-think wikipedia links on videos they think violate the status quo.

It's obvious that the big players in our culture are making their play to prevent men from communicating, sharing notes, or gaining organic reach to other men. TRP.RED and Forums.red are our answer to this. My goal, as always, is to ensure a place for men to connect, communicate, and share notes, regardless of the war against us.

You can read more about what Tribes are and how there work right here.

But to give a brief overview- Tribes are groups dedicated to topics, friends, or brands that you can make for private or public discussion, chat rooms, or news feeds. Tribe owners have an immense level of control of who can post and see what's posted. Take a look how it works here or start your own tribe and try it out right now free!.

What can you do with a Tribe?

- Start a private meeting place for friends to chat / coordinate
- Start a meeting place for your Brand to broadcast to your followers
- Start an open discussion group on any topic you want
- Keep a private collection of links of interest for you and friends.

Tribes include:

- A Private or Public News Feed
- Dedicated Chatroom
- Easy to use User Access Controls
- (Soon: Dedicated Forums at Forums.Red)

Our new design of TRP.RED also includes a new chat interface, chatrooms, and a new look and feel for our site. Head on over now to take a look: <https://www.trp.red>

We've already got some new tribes for you to check out:

TRIBE : GLO GANG

TRIBE : TheRedPill

TRIBE : AskTRP

TRIBE : SJW/Politics

TRIBE : Financial Independence

TRIBE : Politics

TRIBE : itswr1tten's Wordsmiths

TRIBE : Red Pill Parenting

TRIBE : Development Updates

TRIBE : The Rational Male

TRIBE : Thot Patrol

TRIBE : Red Pill UK

TRIBE : The_Donald

TRIBE : TRP Vancouver

TRIBE : Collective Wisdom

TRIBE : Red Pilled Turks

TRIBE : subtle asian RP

TRIBE : Belgium

TRIBE : TRP India

Check out these tribes, or start your own and leave a comment here so others can join your tribe.

TRP.RED is, of course, free and will always be. This project is a labor for the community and the well being of men. If you want to donate to the project, join our patreon here: <https://www.patreon.com/trpred>

27
UPVOTES

TRP.RED TRIBES - What are Tribes? Info and Demonstrations

29 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://tribes.trp.red>

6

UPVOTES

M3 Updates his Incel Post (4/2018) and Discusses Incels, Terrorism, and TRP.

30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://whoism3.wordpress.com/2012/11/17/confessions-of-a-reformed-incel/>

84

UPVOTES

Meeting Place: TRP.RED askTRP

30 September 2019 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://trp.red/tribe/asktrp>

1,565
UPVOTES

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Against our wishes, Reddit admin have altered their policies to include taking about anybody including groups of people (such as men or women). They have alerted us that male self improvement is intently evil and must be purged for the well being of the 10 year old kids running the show over at Reddit Headquarters.

Reddit admin will delete us soon.

Deletion is imminent

We were hoping to finish our redesign of forums.red before closing here on reddit, but it looks like that isn't in the cards.

Meet on <https://TRP.RED> for further announcements and coordination.

Make an account on <https://trp.red> because we're not going to be here for long.

I have opened the sluggish forums for posting in the mean time at <https://forums.red/i/theredpill> but please note there are no edit or delete functions yet, and it's extremely slow because it does not have the same caching and database server as our finished trp.red

We plan to rectify this very soon, stay tuned.

If your subreddit has closed or is facing closure, make a tribe today on <https://www.trp.red> and secure a forum when the redesign launches. More info on tribes here: <https://tribes.trp.red>

See you on the other side.

If you like our efforts on trp.red, join our patreon here

19

UPVOTES

Should /r/TheRedPill be banned? Looks like Reddit admin think so...

1 October 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate · Archived copy · Reddit

If you haven't seen yet- reddit admin have announced that TheRedPill is to be banned per the recent policy update.

https://np.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/dbjyy6/reddit_banning_all_opposing_viewpoints_prepare_to/

Do you agree with this action?

Should PPD be protected from removal, given that PPD clearly violates the same rules?

879

UPVOTES

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In a surprising twist, we received a new notice today from the same reddit admin as yesterday informing us that we have been spared from our immediate closure. We have been granted a stay of execution.

Proof is Here

This is a very strange twist indeed but we are grateful to have more time on this platform. Since yesterday's closure seemed imminent to us, we let a few cats out of the bag- namely that we were finishing our redesign of Forums.Red and had originally aimed to have it ready by December 2019.

Our original plan was not to move /r/theredpill but to open ancillary forums on the new platform.

I can't say exactly how the next few months will play out, but here's what we do plan to do:

- According to the notice from the admin, we have some compliance issues. We want to find out what those issues are from the admin and rectify them.
- We will finish our Forums.Red Platform independent of what happens on Reddit.
- As soon as it is ready, a red pill forum will be opened on forums.red.
- However we will not be closing reddit.com/r/theredpill.

Some people have suggested we made this up to push traffic to our other site. We didn't. Why would we push people to forums.red when it wasn't ready (and was slow as death because it wasn't ready?!) Take a look at <https://www.forums.red> and then look at our redesign we're working on: <http://a.trp.red/files/screenshot-2.jpg>. It doesn't check out.

I'll ask /u/acuddlybabytapir to weight in and verify that we got these messages and have not altered them.

In the mean time, let's continue doing what we're here for: Rule Zero

TRP's mission is to discuss men's identity, sexual strategy, and options in the context of our current global culture for the benefit of men. Anyone who does not share that goal will be banned the instant we detect them. We are not interested in debating or defending our experiences to those who disagree with the red pill, nor do we want to clog up our threads defending the morality of our choices.

While we intend to fully cooperate with Reddit's rules and Admin, they have shown us today that they are not above making mistakes. Make sure you subscribe to <https://trp.red> for a safe meeting place if anything were to happen to us here.

21

UPVOTES

The 30 Day Challenge | 30 day challenges to facilitate consistent progress.

1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/tribe/30daychallenge>

557

UPVOTES

Reminder: Reddit's Updated Policy Against Bullying and Harassment - PLEASE READ

2 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

If you haven't already, check out the admin announcement here which outlines an updated version of their policy against bullying and harassment.

As our subreddit's goals and mission statement already fall in line with these policies, there is no reason why we cannot adopt these policies and continue discussing red pill truths.

We do not tolerate the harassment, threatening, or bullying of people on our site; nor do we tolerate communities dedicated to this behavior.

Reddit is a place for conversation, and in that context, we define this behavior as anything that works to shut someone out of the conversation through intimidation or abuse, online or off. Depending on the context, this can take on a range of forms, from directing unwanted invective at someone to following them from subreddit to subreddit, just to name a few. Behavior can be harassing or abusive regardless of whether it occurs in public content (e.g. a post, comment, username, subreddit name, subreddit styling, sidebar materials, etc.) or private messages/chat.

Being annoying, downvoting, or disagreeing with someone, even strongly, is not harassment. However, menacing someone, directing abuse at a person or group, following them around the site, encouraging others to do any of these actions, or otherwise behaving in a way that would discourage a reasonable person from participating on Reddit crosses the line.

Steps we have already taken:

- No inter-reddit links allowed
- No pictures of private citizens

Steps we will be increasingly moderating:

- Don't harass or bully individuals. Instead make comments in good faith and be light hearted
- Don't threaten violence or malicious acts against anybody. That includes telling people they should hurt themselves, or that "it should happen, but I would never do it myself.."

Nothing on topic should change under this. Only people violating the rules in practice will be seeing a change- such as fringe users and incels will see their content removed more quickly.

Stick to Rule Zero so we can continue our discussion. And make sure you sign up on <https://www.trp.red> for more quality content!

0

UPVOTES

FDA: Thousands of Deaths Linked to Puberty Blockers | Breitbart

3 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.breitbart.com/politics/2019/10/02/fda-thousands-of-deaths-linked-to-puberty-blockers/>

4

UPVOTES

"I live in a third-world country, living in a city where it can get dangerous at night ... kept remembering when I got mugged a few weeks before... I'm worried about showing weakness to her."

3 October 2019 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/status/25787>

304

UPVOTES

Well behaved Karens seldom speak to the manager.
"feminists appear to have managed to avoid the temptation to scold [the Karen meme] as sexist. They understand that lashing out at the meme and defending [Karens as] the embodiment of feminist virtues would only make the meme more powerful"

4 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/10/03/well-behaved-karens-seldom-speak-to-the-manager/>

235

UPVOTES

TRIBE: THE MAN-HOOD - "Our goal here is to explore the role of men in the world, independent of women. Just focus on you. On men. On manhood. What does it mean to be a man today? What are you into? What makes it manly?"

8 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/tribe/manhood>

61

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Of course they aren't changing girls to boys and boys to girls. - "When he was four or five years old, many were disturbed by how he was dressed and thought he could do it at home where no one saw him alone. It was so hard to tell the difference whether he was a guy or a girl. I got angry."

21 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/10/11/of-course-they-arent-changing-girls-to-boys-and-boys-to-girls/>

1,059
UPVOTES

Jury rules against dad trying to save his 7-year-old from gender 'transition'

22 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.lifesitenews.com/news/breaking-jury-rules-against-dad-trying-to-save-his-7-year-old-from-gender-transition>

1

UPVOTE

AMA with Delicious Taco Dec 8th 3PM Pacific

3 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Delicious Taco is either a prolific fiction author or a prophet, we will have to see. You can preview his works at <https://delicioustacos.com/> such as Universal Basic Woman or excerpts from his book Finally Some Good News.

He's got some interesting insights into humanity, and while not our typical red pill blogger that we might have, he is most certainly has some red pill insights in his work.

We always try to bring you quality content and people whenever possible. If you're interested in Delicious Taco, come join our AMA on Dec 8th at 3PM Pacific.

If you have an author or red pill figure that you'd want to see do an AMA, contact us on our site <https://www.trp.red/tribe/theredpill>

75

UPVOTES

AMA with Delicious Tacos Dec 8th at 3pm Pacific

3 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Delicious Tacos is either a prolific fiction author or a prophet, we will have to see. You can preview his works at <https://delicioustacos.com/> such as Universal Basic Woman or excerpts from his book Finally Some Good News.

He's got some interesting insights into humanity, and while not our typical red pill blogger that we might have, he most certainly has some red pill insights in his work.

We always try to bring you quality content and people whenever possible. If you're interested in Delicious Tacos, come join our AMA on Dec 8th at 3PM Pacific.

If you have an author or red pill figure that you'd want to see do an AMA, contact us on our site <https://www.trp.red/tribe/theredpill>

499

UPVOTES

Dalrock: Humorless scolds. "Feminism is the assertion that men are evil and naturally want to harm women, followed by pleas to men to solve all of women's problems."

4 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com/2019/12/02/humorless-scolds/>

340
UPVOTES

10 Signs You're Dating a Red Piller - (Check the author bio)
31 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/IHXTx>

570

UPVOTES

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

You've probably noticed less participation here, and more on /r/asktrp as Reddit admin have been tweaking the settings to prevent people from accessing our subreddit. Some recent changes:

- Upvoting content that violates Reddit's wrongthink policy will now end in personal bans.
- On the new design, you can no longer access quarantined subs without verifying an email address. (You can get around this with <https://old.reddit.com>)
- Reddit Apps will show /r/theredpill is simply gone or missing unless you're logged in with a previously authenticated red pill account.

These changes are expected as they try to stifle any conversation that challenges the status quo leading up to the 2020 election. We are quite literally the heart and origin of many offshoot communities who have adopted our language to discuss other counter-cultural matters.

This very fact makes me proud because regardless of what happens to our community on reddit, the ideas and memes that we put into motion will live on regardless of our status.

But, we're not down and we're not out. We have big news on the horizon. We have been hard at work completing a very feature-rich alternative to reddit on our off-site meeting place: <https://www.trp.red> and we're getting very close to opening some of these forums for public use.

Our forums.red updates are shaping up to seriously challenge reddit's usability, and our new flairs feature (users, posts), which spans across both the forums and trp.red tribes, will give moderators (tribe leaders) complete control over their communities.

We've been hard at work putting together advanced mod tools to give tribe leaders the fine-tuned control they need to keep communities running smoothly.

I know that it's been a long time coming but as the already flourishing community on <https://www.trp.red> would attest, the updates have been big and have improved performance considerably.

Thanks to our supporters we have been able to grow our tech infrastructure to include dedicated database and caching hardware to manage as users migrate over. And that's good news given our 2-5 million monthly hits as of the past few months.

I'm very excited to launch forums in the coming weeks (we have a scheduled maint window March 6th to do yet another big migration to beefier hardware) and will update everybody here accordingly.

In the meantime, please feel free to join our rowdy userbase and make your own tribe, or browse one of our hundreds of tribes already going such as:

GLOGANG

Financial Independence

TheRedPill

SJW/Politics

Bodybuilding

Thanks again for your support and I look forward to seeing you over on <https://www.trp.red>

204

UPVOTES

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit (Deddit)

25 February 2020 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

You've probably noticed less participation on the main sub, and more here on /r/asktrp as Reddit admin have been tweaking the settings to prevent people from accessing our subreddit. Some recent changes:

- Upvoting content that violates Reddit's wrongthink policy will now end in personal bans.
- On the new design, you can no longer access quarantined subs without verifying an email address. (You can get around this with <https://old.reddit.com>)
- Reddit Apps will show /r/theredpill is simply gone or missing unless you're logged in with a previously authenticated red pill account.

These changes are expected as they try to stifle any conversation that challenges the status quo leading up to the 2020 election. We are quite literally the heart and origin of many offshoot communities who have adopted our language to discuss other counter-cultural matters.

This very fact makes me proud because regardless of what happens to our community on reddit, the ideas and memes that we put into motion will live on regardless of our status.

But, we're not down and we're not out. We have big news on the horizon. We have been hard at work completing a very feature-rich alternative to reddit on our off-site meeting place: <https://www.trp.red> and we're getting very close to opening some of these forums for public use.

Our forums.red updates are shaping up to seriously challenge reddit's usability, and our new flairs feature (users, posts), which spans across both the forums and trp.red tribes, will give moderators (tribe leaders) complete control over their communities.

We've been hard at work putting together advanced mod tools to give tribe leaders the fine-tuned control they need to keep communities running smoothly.

I know that it's been a long time coming but as the already flourishing community on <https://www.trp.red> would attest, the updates have been big and have improved performance considerably.

Thanks to our supporters we have been able to grow our tech infrastructure to include dedicated database and caching hardware to manage as users migrate over. And that's good news given our 2-5 million monthly hits as of the past few months.

I'm very excited to launch forums in the coming weeks (we have a scheduled maint window March 6th to do yet another big migration to beefier hardware) and will update everybody here accordingly.

In the meantime, please feel free to join our rowdy userbase and make your own tribe, or browse one of our hundreds of tribes already going such as:

GLOGANG

Financial Independence

TheRedPill

SJW/Politics

Bodybuilding

Thanks again for your support and I look forward to seeing you over on <https://www.trp.red>

95

UPVOTES

"Unwifeable", a memoir - [Mandy is mean to guys who reciprocate her interest in a direct or kind way (they bore her). Guys are mean to her. Is this what normal people's worlds look like? .. how many say they want to be wives, but don't act like it at all, then get surprised when they stay single?]

25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://theredquest.wordpress.com/2020/02/25/unwifeable-a-memoir-by-mandy-stadtmitter/>

51

UPVOTES

Q4RP: Morailty Aside, Should you tell lies? Can the pros outweigh the cons? What lies are worth telling? What lies aren't?

25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/status/40775>

192
UPVOTES

Q4RP: Cheating. Relationship imperative, inevitable moral hazard, or completely out-of-bounds?

26 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Discuss.

273

UPVOTES

Q4RP: Has the dating market changed in the past decade? Is it easier / harder to get laid / relationships? Does game work the same as 10 years ago? How have you needed to adapt? Are the returns better or worse?

27 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/status/41180>

74

UPVOTES

Q4RP - Predictions: What will the sexual & political landscape in your country look like for men in 10 years? Better or worse? Sexual paradise or incel apocalypse?

28 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/status/41496>

63

UPVOTES

Join us March 4th at 9:00am PST / 12:00pm EST For /r/askTRP RPEC Advice AMA Megathread

28 February 2020 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

We will be hosting a TRP Endorsed Contributors advice AMA megathread for /r/asktrp on March 4th, 9:00am PST / 12:00pm EST.

If you want some direct advice for the situation you're in, or if you have general red pill questions that you want answered, join our megathread. ALL RPECs are invited to participate, and many have agreed to come weigh in as much as possible.

From beginner questions all the way to advanced theory, sky's the limit.

Due to the schedule of some of our RPEC team, the thread will be live for two full days as different members sift in and answer as much as they can.

57

UPVOTES

/r/askTRP RPEC Advice AMA Megathread - Ask Away!

4 March 2020 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

Welcome all. This thread will officially begin at 9am PST / 12pm EST but I'm posting it early so people can start getting questions in before RPECs answer.

Feel free to ask for direct advice for the situation you're in, or any general red pill questions you may have.

Our RPEC team will be stopping in over the next two days to answer as many questions as we can.

From beginner questions all the way to advanced theory, sky's the limit.

Due to the schedule of some of our RPEC team, the thread will be live for two full days as different members sift in and answer as much as they can.

2

UPVOTES

Tinder Experiment: 18 year old says "men have it easy on tinder". Makes a male profile and gets exactly what you'd expect for results.

27 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DZTIbHIsIYw&feature=emb_logo

187
UPVOTES

Tinder Experiment: 18 year old woman says "men have it easy on tinder". Makes a male profile and gets exactly what you'd expect for results.

27 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=DZTIbHIsIYw&feature=emb_logo

22

UPVOTES

Don't forget to check out the TRP.RED tribe for The Red Pill.
Scheduled Group Chats to be announced soon.

29 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/t/theredpill>

626

UPVOTES

False Rape Accusations Advice Megathread

6 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We recently had a post about a false rape accusation that was taken down. If you are falsely accused of rape, DO NOT POST ABOUT IT ONLINE. Contact a lawyer immediately. This is for your own protection.

You will only do yourself a disservice by talking about it online. Keep your mouth shut and get legal counsel.

God forbid anybody find an errant detail in your online postings, you will fuck yourself over so hard it's not even funny.

After it's safely in your rearview mirror, you can post about your experience and even discuss what to do in that situation- but not until then.

The topic is important. But don't post about your own active case, we will have to take it down.

This megathread is about how to avoid false rape accusations, and what to do if somebody falsely accuses you of rape.

55

UPVOTES

Comments are Fucked up, Bookmark TRP.red

7 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many who are on trp.red are aware, we are launching the beta version of forums.red in the next few days. In the meantime make sure you bookmark our rally point trp.red.

As for comments, I think it's a reddit bug, and I don't think it's intentional. If you're on old reddit (old.reddit.com or user preferences for old sytle) it appears the comments are missing.

I see the comments on new style reddit (www.reddit.com) and on mobile apps.

But just in case, bookmark trp.red and our future home <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

611

UPVOTES

Just How Fucked Are We?

9 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many of you know, I've been a champion of the free exchange of ideas for quite some time now. My mission has been modest in scope, I don't care to save the Nazis or give a platform to perverts, segregationists, or trolls. While free speech certainly entails these things, they are not my passion and not my life's work.

I have interest in one simple thing: men's interests and their ability to communicate them with each other. I had no idea when I came on board the red pill train that this would be such a cultural battle, but the writing on the wall was quite visible as soon as I opened my eyes.

There has been a constant war against the free exchange of ideas. I am not a feminist, nor do I follow intersectionality theory, but there is some truth to the old saying, the enemy-of-my-enemy is my friend.

Men are not limited to any political party or race, but they find their interests parallel to certain politics and races in our current cancel and censorship culture. The tactics used and perfected against men over the past few decades are now hard at work against whites and conservative voices. You don't have to be white or conservative to be a man, but you absolutely need to recognize the tactics being used right now don't really care if you're white or conservative if your interests are even remotely tangentially aligned.

And don't forget the cries of the racist and political movements. It's not whites, it's white men. It's not conservatives, it's the ol' boys club.

The Red Pill as a discussion forum has always varied greatly by race, creed, and political affiliation. We have large contingencies from dozens of countries, many of whom have no relation to USA politics.

But today US politics and racism are being deployed in a global battle for our culture and internet, with organizational forces that greatly resemble the very oppression they pretend they are fighting. They know they're not really resisting oppression when they yell "words are violence" as they assault you to prevent your ideas from spreading. The occupation knows what they are here to do, and they just hope that the smoke screen they keep kicking up will prevent you from seeing the truth.

The truth is, the race, gender, and economic wars we are in are skirmishes in a greater war. Black people don't really need to hate white people, women don't have to hate men, nobody has to do any of this stuff. But for the power grab to succeed, they need us to continue fighting with each other so we never target the people pulling the strings.

The power grab taking place is one that's happened many times before, in many different ways, as countries in history have devolved into totalitarian states. What's unique today is the battle is taking place in the world's biggest forum, and the first of its kind: the internet.

Battle for the Internet

The internet is a clever tool. In the early days there was a saying "the Net interprets censorship as damage and routes around it." (John Gilmore) This still holds true today. It is almost impossible to completely extinguish an idea on the internet. The internet is a hell of a thing.

The battle for the internet itself I think has mostly been ceded by the opposition. But it was a fruitful fight for them, with many casualties. Copyright law was weaponized as a censorship-cudgel that paved the way for future censorship. It was based on the plausibility that surely a crime as bad as infringement must justify a network of tools to remove items from the internet.

The internet nerds out numbered and out smarted those who tried to disappear things from the internet. The Streisand effect was coined, as many elites slowly learned that the more they tried to manipulate the internet, the worse it would get for them.

Organizations that tried to "game" the system as they used to with traditional media learned quickly that 4chan could out-game them in every way possible. Moot became Time Magazine's most influential person in 2008 thanks to his "not his army." Mountain Dew's new flavor, decided by the internet, ended up being a toss up between "Hitler did nothing wrong," "Gushing Granny," and "Fapple."

By 2010, it would almost seem as though the nerds had taught the world a lesson. Do not anger the internet, we are bigger, more organized, and smarter than you.

And that message was absolutely received.

What followed was a counter attack that is still in progress today that is overwhelming and wide-reaching, and may look like the final blow that ruins the free exchange of ideas forever.

Male Speech, Conservative Speech, White Speech... Hate Speech

The first and most obvious attack was an ideological attack. The internet cells of people who disagreed and launched the measures of the 2000s and 2010s tended to group themselves along particular ideological lines.

To prevent their power, they must be disbanded and made unable to communicate with each other.

Hordes gaming internet polls and amplifying Streisand events cannot take place in any meaningful way if large groups of people (men) are unable to coordinate and communicate.

It was already culturally popular to hate on men, thanks to decades of groundwork placed by Marxists and feminists in schools and public forums. So it makes sense that /r/TheRedPill was one of the early pioneers hit by the hate speech brigade.

Reddit was hellbent on removing unsightly elements from their website, and had gone through a number of test runs, removing borderline material involving children, which was a defensible position to take, but later moving into simply censoring ideas that were counter to the new narrative.

And that narrative was that criticism of groups was the same as hatred.

It was an easy line to blur. Men had no public allies. Anybody willing to be honest about the world around them was now labeled a "misogynist." When they got cancelled from their friends, jobs, and lives, they had nobody to turn to, as other men saw the warning and quickly aligned themselves with the right side of history.

The phrase /r/TheRedPill was blacklisted on Reddit as a whole. Mentioning it would see your comment silently erased, as an attempt to prevent new users from stumbling upon the ideas we espoused and ultimately to prevent us from changing minds. Later, Reddit fully quarantined the sub, to make sure it was invisible to search engines and make it difficult for even members of the sub to access it.

Of course, criticism is not the same as hatred. But that didn't matter. It never needed to make sense. It never had to stand up to scrutiny. The point was to repeat the word "hate" enough times that the group inherited the attribute of "Hate Group" by association, regardless of the truth.

And it worked well.

Once society fully swallowed the idea that masculinity was a synonym for hatred, it was a small skip over to conservatives and eventually whites.

I needn't give a full history of the attacks on conservative values (though maybe I will in a long-form book at some point) but the blueprint was the same. Conservative values became hate, and eventually espousing the ideas was hate speech.

Pro-life? You hated women.

Pro-family? You hate gays.

Don't want girls and boys competing in the same sports? You hate trans.

Don't want illegal aliens to vote? You're racist.

Don't want open borders? You're a racist.

It wasn't hard to rebrand conservative values as hatred, the path was already paved and only required small tweaks from the anti-male movement that came before it.

The next step was to rebrand racial identity as hatred. And it really didn't take nearly as much work as I expected. BLM reared its ugly head after an isolated shooting, and it became publicly acceptable to call for the killing of whites on the basis that the only racial identity enjoyed by whites is one of supremacy and hatred.

There's method to this madness. As evidenced by Reddit's actions, and mirrored later by Twitter, Facebook, Youtube, and every other social media site, the idea was simple: as long as perfectly acceptable positions can be framed as hatred, there is ample justification for the removal of these elements from the platforms and away from public view.

And it worked well.

Build your own Platform.

The argument bandied around after each wave of censorship is probably familiar to you. "Build your own platform." It's not censorship, it's not an attack on free speech, it's just capitalism. You can always just build your own!

This was an effective argument because it embraced the position of the right, who generally are strongly in favor of capitalism. If Twitter won't let you do it, then just make your own. Why is that so hard to do?

There are a few hitches to this, however. And we will see that a number of companies worked in tandem, with antitrust and anticompetitive behaviors.

Gab is probably our poster boy for exactly why you can't build your own platform; at least, not a twitter-sized platform.

Gab was a twitter clone whose main claim to fame was that they embraced free speech. If it's legal, we will host it. (*except porn)

As a coordinated attack, they were shut down by every avenue that would lead to a capitalist being able to start their own platform.

- First, their hosting was denied and seized. They were forced to find new hosting.
- Then their domain was denied and seized. They were forced to find a new domain registrar, twice.
- The domain registry fought them on their TLD, they eventually gave up on gab.io and settled on gab.com.
- They were kicked off Google's Play Store due to "hate speech" even though you could just as easily find hate speech online through their own Chrome Browser.
- They were kicked from Apple's App Store, which makes it impossible to load on an iPhone because you cannot easily sideload apps onto an iPhone that are not on the app store.
- Paypal & Stripe banned them, so they could not take payments via paypal or Stripe.
- Visa blacklisted the owner and his family, so they cannot do business with any credit card merchant on the planet, period.

This is an abridged history, but you get the point. Building your own platform, as it turns out, is pretty well impossible unless you toe the line. Though at this point, there's a pretty good chance competing with the big guys will find yourself with similar issues, hate speech or not.

Start your own Credit Card.

So where does that leave a new platform? Well, after having to implement your own tech infrastructure and having no way of deploying it to user devices, you still have no way to get paid, and therefore cannot afford to run the platform.

So what's next? Start your own credit card.

I say this in jest because I recognize exactly how much work that would take, and there is still one major problem with it. Since these companies all operate with impunity and in anti-competitive ways, I fully expect this scenario:

In order for your credit card to work, people need to accept it. To do this, you need to create the tech infrastructure, get yourself licensed as a Money Transmitter in every state (which is a multimillion dollar+ venture), and then get yourself partnership agreements with the various merchant services companies that exist. There are a lot of them.

Once you do this, VISA will inevitably threaten the merchant service companies that if they do business with your new card, they will pull out. This, of course, would be suicide for any merchant service and so you would lose.

Crypto is an option that many saw as an answer to these problems. I don't think it's got widespread enough adoption to be viable, given the critical mass you need to reach with "normies" to be successful.

So how fucked are we?

This entire essay seems a lot like doom and gloom. And in a way, it's hard to spin it as anything but. The truth is, we're in the shit right now, and there will be plenty more casualties before it's over.

We are witnessing global power plays in real time, the outcomes of which will have long-lasting effects on all of our lives. What can we do?

I don't have an easy answer for this, but I do have some ideas.

Critical mass social media sites seem to be running the show right now. Many people have enjoyed a growth in following that was virtually impossible in the days of conventional media. Getting thousands of people to watch a movie or a show was an expensive ordeal. Advertising dollars, gimmicks, actors, etc.

Today, a guy with some good ideas and some ingenuity can amass millions of followers. Each thing he writes gets exposed to hundreds of thousands.

This is giving away a level of exposure for private citizens that the media companies absolutely abhor. They let this happen on their watch, and they're hell-bent on fixing it.

However, I think the social media companies are overplaying their hands. Reddit is currently on a crusade to remove all wrong-think, and in doing so they have angered even the communities they "allowed" to stay. As of this writing, there is a mass exodus leaving reddit and never turning back.

And I'm working on one of them.

TRP.red and Forums.red are the life rafts I constructed to give my small corner of the internet a place to communicate when all else fails. Forums.red (as of this writing) is about to launch into beta in the next few days, and we will see just how much we need Reddit.

I think the answer to this problem is not to gather your followers on a mainstream platform, the answer is the internet in the late 90s: Decentralized, specialized, and numerous.

We may be currently unable to harness the power of big payment to create larger than life platforms that slingshot us into the sun, but one thing we can do with our current infrastructure is create millions of specialized forums and websites, each with dedicated topics and communities, sharing information between us in a Hydraesque-manner.

Centralization is the wrong answer.

Separate, specialize, and overcome.

Use accounts on major media sites to push people to your specialized sites. But do not live there. Do not depend on it.

Make sure your followers have an independent way to communicate with you (and you them).

They cannot attack all of us, and they really can't if each of our properties is inexpensive to run and operate, and requires little in the way of donations or funding.

I recognize the irony in saying this as I developed TRP.red tribes as a means for centralization. I offer the TRP.red Tribes (and soon to be forums.red) as a meeting place, safe for male communication and thoughts, as a means of decentralization from the mainstream companies. But the dangers are still apparent if you gather on my site instead of others, so I will be soon implementing some big changes that will help with the decentralization of the internet:

Tribe Portability. I will be adding an opt-in only feature for users to be able to share select data with the tribes they follow so tribe leaders can keep in communication with their followers even in the unlikely event trp.red closes.

Direct Communication. I will be adding the ability for Tribe Owners to communicate directly with followers, without the need for followers to come back and constantly check the website.

Forums.red. As I mentioned here, forums.red's beta is about to launch in the next few days, and we're very excited to see how you like it. More updates to follow.

Stay Safe

-rps

Post on TRP.RED

587

UPVOTES

The "Insatiable Alpha Window"

15 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Edit: Damn autocorrect. Title should say "Widow" not "window"

I posted this as an answer to a comment elsewhere but I don't know if I've ever written about it. The "Insatiable Alpha Widow"

The reason you want to avoid women with high body counts, and older (always single) women.

The higher the body count, the more likely she's alpha widowed (i.e. all subsequent partners are overshadowed by 'the one' who broke her tingle meter).

But, as the number grows and she ages, she reaches a state I call the "Insatiable Alpha Widow." Like an alpha widow on steroids.

So here's the theory:

Women tend to be hypergamous, that is, their goal is to get the highest quality partners they can. The easiest way to measure "higher quality" is by comparing mates to each other.

First guy makes a little cash, drives a beater. Second guy drives a Bugatti. Second guy wins.

First guy is strong, second guy has abs. Second guy wins.

First guy has a good sense of humor, second guy is locally famous and everybody knows him. Second guy wins.

And so on.

Women like men who are better than other men. This should not be a surprise to you.

Well, over the years, women might date a lot of guys. Some buff, some rich, some charming, etc.

Eventually over time, she will start comparing new men, not to a single previous partner, but instead, to all partners.

She dated a rich guy, a funny guy, a strong guy, and now if you don't compete in all 3 categories, then she thinks she can do better. And she has done better... just not in one guy.

But for her, that doesn't matter. She is now subconsciously comparing you to multiple guys and will be disappointed when you don't rock her the way each one did.

The strong guy was better at sex. The funny guy had a better sense of humor, etc.

She has been alpha widowed. But not by one guy. By all the guys.

"Insatiable Alpha Widow"

This leads to the thousand-cock stare, but is also why women in their late 30s+ tend to be more independent and less likely to settle down (unless it's to a beta bucks). They can no longer get the tingles from any particular guy except maybe a super hero but her chances to land one diminish as she speeds well past the wall.

Eventually, at a particular age, she will either settle into an unhappy marriage, or rationalize why she's happier alone.

But she will never be truly happy with any mere mortal again.

577

UPVOTES

Red Pill Parenting: If you have boys, or plan to, get ready for what the world has in store: LA Juvie experiments on boy with estrogen

16 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2020-07-15/teenage-boy-was-given-estrogen-developed-breast-tissue-while-in-l-a-county-juvenile-hall-lawsuit-alleges>

496

UPVOTES

A Note on OPSEC in light of the recent Twitter leaks...

20 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

For those not already in the know, you should be aware that:

- The admins of major websites (Twitter, Discord, Reddit, Facebook, Instagram, etc.) all have complete access to your information.
- Your IP, Email, Phone, etc is visible to even low-level employees tasked with moderating.
- Your "private" messages are 100% visible to all admin.
- There is likely no policy in place to prevent disgruntled employees from accessing your account if they want. (example: Low level employee deleted Trump's twitter)
- Major doxxings are done by looking at private information and then using parallel construction with public facing details to make a plausible doxxing story.
- Assume anything you write on social media is read by others and will be leaked if it is advantageous to do so.

Some industries had to set up audit trails to prevent misusing information (for instance, pharmacy employees looking up famous names).

This does not apply in tech. There is no law. The only privacy you can achieve is the privacy that you implement.

Using the same browser for personal browsing and private browsing allows websites and advertising networks to fingerprint you and they will know you are the same person.

Cross contamination only requires one small detail to get through. Facebook on your phone monitors what wifi networks you are near and determines your location and possible friends based on this, regardless if you log in / out / have a burner phone / turn off gps.

Different browsers on the same computer may still leak enough information to make connections.

VPNs only disguise your IP/Location but cannot prevent you from leaking the same information just from a different IP.

If you log into a personal account and a burner account, reddit already knows who you are and has connected them.

Major retail stores pay large amounts of money to track you by your phone, rarely needs software installed to do it. Facebook, even logged out and never set up, is complicit and will report to home as you walk through a mall what stores you are near.

Be careful with what you put online.

1,005
UPVOTES

Proctor & Gamble loses $8 Billion, decides maybe war on men was a bad idea...

6 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<http://archive.is/ZTnhK>

178
UPVOTES

Beta Forums Live - FORUMS.RED

21 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As many of you know, we've been working hard on backup forums in case the reddit admin decided to put us in the crosshairs. We've seen quite a bit of admin action in the past couple days, so, without further ado:

<https://www.forums.red/>

We are still working out a lot of kinks (including occasional server issues) but we wanted to announce to make sure people bookmark our new TheRedPill forums.red presence:

<https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

If you haven't yet, make sure you register an account and say hi!

Other notable communities: <https://www.forums.red/i/asktrp> <https://www.forums.red/i/whereareallthegoodmen>

Make your own tribe, free: trp.red

81

UPVOTES

Do not use unapproved language when you speak to others.

21 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Please review this page: <https://www.reddithelp.com/hc/en-us/articles/360045715951>

I recognize that this page does not have the list of words you cannot use. Use your imagination. Anything you wouldn't say in front of your mother in church.

One of them starts with the letter "F" You may not say that word. It's been getting the attention of reddit admins. They've been deleting a lot of posts.

61

UPVOTES

New ASKTRP on Forums.Red - Please Post your Questions and Answers there.

21 August 2020 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.forums.red/i/asktrp>

1
UPVOTE

test

21 August 2020 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

test

605

UPVOTES

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

There isn't much I can say that most of you don't already know. We've been hard at work on a replacement infrastructure because the writing has been on the wall for many years. TRP and TRP-adjacent subreddits will not have a home for long on Reddit. <https://TRP.red> and <https://Forums.red>

Reddit's administrators are by far the most incompetent people I have ever witnessed. Their proclivity for censoring topics with which they disagree has been just one of many nails in the coffin that is Reddit.

Those familiar with chess know that counter-intuitive moves are not always for the purpose they appear. Sometimes a pawn is sacrificed for a greater, long-term gain or position. It would be naive to suggest that there wasn't method to some of their madness as they set about destroying community after community in a desperate effort to appease the ever-fickle advertising dollar. To suggest otherwise would unfairly discredit them when there are plenty of valid reasons to suspect their idiocy.

My critique of Reddit is far deeper than a superficial claim that they're just booger-eaters and hate free speech. I think if we treat the subject honestly, we can find a much deeper ideological problem: one that transcends the Silicon Valley giants and their ilk.

Deleting communities, issuing shadow bans, consolidating powers, and censoring topics are prima facie damaging to the community at large. There is little argument that these destructive policies, at the very least, damage the relationship with the members of the affected communities. But it's not a stretch to suggest there is collateral damage, damaging the faith of all bystanders whose belief in Reddit's dedication to free-speech is already in short supply.

Surely, then, Reddit's rationale for such actions is that they only cause minor, short-term damage in exchange for greater long-term gains. However, if this were true, one might think a company as dependent on the community as Reddit would treat major censorship events with a touch of nuance and at least an air of transparency and good faith?

On the contrary, in repeated events, this is not what has occurred. There are multiple failures of the Reddit administration I wish to highlight. I think the greatest of all, we will demonstrate, is their hubris in believing they've kept their true motivations somehow clandestine as they hobble together post-hoc rationalizations, inconsistent excuses, and poorly-conceived policy statements which now adorn the gravestone pages of the very communities that made Reddit successful in the first place.

Communication with Community Leaders

If you run your own moderately large forum on Reddit's platform, you are likely no stranger to Reddit's one-way communication style with community leaders. They like to submit drive-by messages to the moderation teams, often with a cryptic or misleading rebuke for the latest rule violation that the subreddit is responsible for. Often, this rule is not clearly understood or defined. This is by design.

The very notion that moderators are responsible for the actions of what community members post is asinine. Given the lack of tools afforded to moderators, it is impossible to know if members posting offending content are even members of the community at all, or if they are outsiders, posting content in an effort to defame a forum. Moderators are not given the ability to see membership status, identifiers that might link them to other sockpuppet accounts, or any signifiers of standing within a community.

Removing offending content is the only tool at a moderator's disposal. It's a hammer when all we have are screws.

Until the moment a comment is removed, it remains for all to see.

Despite ample man-power and free time, it is virtually impossible to remove all offending posts. There can be hundreds of thousands of comments to sort through, we cannot always see every comment if they are not flagged by the community. But more deviously, the rules are not clearly defined, so even if we see the offending comment, rule-breaking material is subjective and we may not actually believe it to be rule-breaking.

An example of this comes from early in TRP's days on Reddit, when "brigading" was the big bad no-no of the season. Communities posting cross-links from other communities were accused of brigading when the users following the links would participate in the conversation and voting in the target community. This was considered rule-breaking behavior and put a subreddit in jeopardy.

The problem is that Reddit, by design, is a collection of numerous communities on one site with a shared login. It is designed in such a way that visiting multiple communities and participating isn't just a byproduct of the way the home page is laid out, it's the main feature of the multi-topic website.

If users decide a topic interests them and they join in voting / discussion, this is encouraged as this is the basic design of Reddit.

This is where the impossible rules of Reddit began. Community leaders were expected to prevent users from participating across communities on a website designed for participating across communities with absolutely NO tools to do so. We were unable to prevent outsiders from participating because on Reddit, no user is an outsider. You can join and participate on any forum you wanted!

Moderators got together and voluntarily created and implemented a CSS hack to prevent users from participating if the link followed was a "No Participation" link (np.reddit.com). This was easily circumvented as the CSS design was optional and could be turned off, and it required other subreddits to comply by requiring their users to add the "np" prefix to all crosslinks. Incredible amounts of effort on everybody's part because Reddit admin were wholly unable to implement any sort of feature to assist. And rightfully so, given that they had spent their entire development efforts in designing a website to do exactly the opposite!

Despite these voluntary measures, subreddits began being shuttered by Reddit admin because of "brigading," despite there being no official rule against it, no tools to prevent it, and the persistence of free-will among the users. Mod teams were being held responsible for the actions of some users, and it was impossible to know if the users themselves were acting in bad faith as an attempt to shutter subreddits!

We contacted Reddit's admin team for clarification on what constituted brigading, what actions we could or should be expected to take, and what would put us in good standing to prevent being shuttered.

A one sentence reply was given to our team "just follow the rules."

At this point, it was quite clear that the Reddit admin had disdain for its communities and users. They did not want compliance, they wanted a rationalization for removal. Brigading was an excuse, not a reason. The only thing we could do was literally ban the word "Reddit" and the subreddit linking phrase, to prevent ALL Reddit links from appearing. This was the only way to prevent being shuttered by the admin for their ridiculous and unevenly applied rules.

The conflicting rules and poor communication plagues Reddit to this day, with more impossible standards and poorly defined rules being used against communities, even months after their last post (-r-the_donald).

The hallmark of the Reddit admin is that they contact a community after they've decided your users broke the rules too much, to inform you that they will be taking action to either replace the mod team (with ideological replacements) or completely shutter the community (and all similar communities that may pop up).

These excuses include comments that may have slipped through moderation. Reddit admin will comb through years of old posts to find offending comments that may only have 1 or 2 upvotes (or heck, even downvotes). They'll use these missed items as evidence that the community as a whole is rule breaking and cannot be trusted on the platform. We've seen it in action time and time again. Comments or posts that don't even reflect the attitude or demeanor of the subreddit, clearly made by outsiders (perhaps plants by Reddit themselves), and there goes the community.

For example: Reddit claims the_donald was removed for anti-cop sentiments. There are numerous examples of death threats against cops all across reddit today, including subreddits dedicated to it (r-Bad_Cop_No_Donut)

Reddit's justification for shuttering, censoring, or quarantining subreddits is usually marred with logical inconsistencies and poorly conceived constructions on loose gravel. As they apply their rules like a spoiled child with a magnifying glass rules over his kingdom of ants, the rest of the community takes note.

Enough people notice these inconsistencies and understand, these aren't rules, these aren't rule breakers. These are ideologues giving half-justifications for their activism.

They tend to fall back on the same old crutches that Silicon Valley has been using for the past decade. It's for advertising revenue. We want to be attractive to advertisers.

This is demonstrably false- as less than a year after TRP was "quarantined" we saw ads re-appear just as they were before. Advertisers, as it turns out, are not actually afraid of controversy. They just pretend to be in public to avoid backlash for terrible things.

See, Facebook itself is home to many awful things. Terrorists organize, insane people live broadcast torturing a Trump supporter, fake news is everywhere, and groups dedicated to every cause, controversial or not, all call FB a home.

Advertisers know they want to be where the eyeballs are. If NIKE advertises on FB it's not because of the flat earth society. Likewise, when a brand gets on the home page of Reddit, it's not an explicit endorsement of the gonewild community in which internet stars put sharpies in their butts. The latest Trolls movie is not explicitly endorsing a subreddit dedicated to cartoon girls with dicks. But such a sub does exist.

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to know that it's not about controversial content- as there's plenty of that on Reddit that doesn't jive with Disney yet they still advertise there. It's about ideological disagreement.

And Reddit is well aware, there's no such thing as bad press. Every minor controversy that hits the news gets more exposure. There's this awful subreddit dedicated to shocking stuff- it's so bad! Don't go there and look!

They come for the controversy, stay for the kitten pictures.

If Reddit's goal was to maximize viewership, courting controversy but keeping an arm's length from the content itself would be a recipe to become the #1 website in the world in no time.

Standing for free speech, Reddit could easily make the broad comment that they do not censor legal free speech, and that it's a shame that such content exists, and "check out our puppies subreddit."

Free-fucking-advertising.

Reddit's actions betray them. Every time they take action, it is clear that they don't believe the very words they say.

When Reddit quarantined TRP, they put a message on our page saying "This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities." They included a link to Stony Brook.

They explicitly endorsed Stony Brook's Masculinities whose executive director was Michael Kimmel at the time.

One of Michael Kimmel's crowning achievements attempting to debunk that men can be victims of domestic violence. He goes on to suggest that some evidence is simply false, that female-on-male violence is just different, and that it is men who lose control, women are provoked. From an interview with Cassie Jaye:

It is not true, [...] that there's gender symmetry in domestic violence. That women hit men as much as men hit women.

An except from my rebuttal to Reddit's Admin:

There is overwhelming proof that men are victims of domestic violence at least as much as women, if not more. Controlling for all violence, men surpass women as victims entirely, making the distinction of "domestic" misleading when men are by all means the target of the majority all violence and the victims of almost all murders No biggie, Michael Kimmel, it's an easy oversight to make WHEN YOU HATE MEN.

Reddit tells us that Stony Brook should give us insight into positive masculinity, but Stony's front page only has one reference to positive masculinity in the fight against domestic violence. And that's for men to join as allies in preventing violence against women. That's right men, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MAKE UP 78% OF MURDER VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MADE UP 59% OF VIOLENT CRIME VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT 93% OF WORKPLACE DEATHS ARE MEN Yes, that's right. /u/spez thinks that little of you that he wants your masculinity to be defined not by fighting these truths, but by sacrificing yourself to prevent violence against women.

Needless to say, this was not a shining moment for Reddit's ideological team. They made-up excuse they used as part of their censorship campaign was so poorly researched that it was obvious at first glance what Reddit was up to.

About a week later, Michael Kimmel was accused of sexual harrassment and stepped down from board of gender equality campaign group. Stony Brook themselves have distanced themselves and removed the group's page from their site.

Despite our team asking privately and publicly for comment from Reddit's team, their tacit endorsement of male abuse went unaddressed. We also asked repeatedly for comment on what the offending material on our subreddit was, but they never replied. They never gave us the tools to resolve the issues, they never told us what rule was broken or what we could do to fix it.

Instead, they saw the stunning public indictment of Kimmel, and quietly removed reference to Stony Brook from our quarantine message. They fucked up, and they realized it.

Reddit's censorship was ideological in nature, not a fair and balanced application of rules, we see this misapplication of justice across many different subreddits and communities.

Reddit's userbase is waking up to it. They notice the problems and inconsistencies. They notice the stark lack of transparency of the admin. They notice how poorly conceived the excuses are. It's impossible to ignore.

Reddit can't help but sound duplicitous in their rare communications on the announcements sub. Each announcement is followed by hundreds of comments asking why the inconsistencies in their policy exist. Most recently, reddit made another announcement, enabling hatespeech as long as it was against whites. We have to assume this was created by a child with no understanding of the world around him:

While the rule on hate protects such groups, it does not protect all groups or all forms of identity. For example, the rule does not protect groups of people who are in the majority or who promote such attacks of hate. -Now Edited Source

This language was quickly changed but is documented here.

Between the obvious excuses made to justify ideological censorship, the impossible rules for communities, the inconsistent application of said rules, and the lack of communication from Reddit's admin, it is very, very clear that this is not ineptitude. This is bad faith by definition. This is an example of a group that absolutely hates their users and wishes they would leave.

Reddit is dying, and Reddit's admin are killing it to serve an ideological master that is antithetical to free speech and incompatible with success.

My public challenge to prove I'm 100% right:

Reddit, you have an opportunity to publicly prove me wrong. First, apologize to our members for denying male victims. Second, publicly state exactly the terms of conditions we broke, with examples of offending material, and outline exactly what changes would need to be made to remove the quarantine.

Then, follow through and stay true to your word.

You have an opportunity to show good faith. Silence will mean I'm right.

140
UPVOTESAMA with "Masculinity Amidst Madness" Author Ryan Landry - Tuesday Sep 8th, 6PM PT / 9PM ET

3 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Tune-in on Tuesday Sep 8th for an AMA with author Ryan Landry.

TIMEZONE	TIME
PT	6:00 pm
MT	7:00 pm
CT	8:00 pm
ET	9:00 pm

Masculinity Amidst Madness follows in the footsteps of Bronze Age Mindset, and functions as the perfect companion piece (with foreword by Bronze Age Pervert), containing practical, actionable advice for men of all ages!

"The perfect companion piece to Bronze Age Mindset: whereas BAP used a rousing form and esoteric mysticism to excite the remnants of the masculine spirit lying dormant in the reader, toxified by modern culture, Landry identifies the components of our toxic culture, analyzing them in detail, and provides a practical, actionable battle plan to fight the vultures insistent upon men being reduced to consumer weaklings, ashamed of themselves and their heritage. Masculinity Among Madness is the next step in reclaiming the masculine soul and forging a future we were meant to inherit!" - "Bad" Billy Pratt, Kill to Party

"Masculinity is in deep crisis. Most men simply don't know what it means to be a man who can protect and provide for their families. Author Ryan Landry fully understands this modern problem and has written a book that begins to repair the damage that society has wrought upon men. He eloquently explains the crisis and offers practical solutions to reignite the birthright of the Western man. Hopefully, his book will be read by the generation of young men today to block out efforts of the culture to feminize and weaken them." — Roosh V

Author Ryan Landry has been writing analytical and reactionary essays on the internet for nearly ten years as featured on sites like Social Matter and The New American Sun. Landry, a husband and father, is the former host of the Weimerica Weekly podcast

Purchase Masculinity Amidst Madness on Amazon:

<https://www.amazon.com/Masculinity-Amidst-Madness-Ryan-Landry/dp/1951897145/>

2
UPVOTES

AMA with Ryan Landry - Happening LIVE right now!

9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/ilvh3n/ama_with_masculinity_amidst_madness_author_ryan/

263

UPVOTES

Crosspost from PPD: CMV - Every attractive young woman will have an OnlyFans account by 2030 and be entirely undateable

9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://np.reddit.com/r/PurplePillDebate/comments/ipdwqd/every_attractive_young_woman_will_have_an/

69

UPVOTES

Beginners Guide to Getting in Shape Part 1: Why Strength over Aesthetics (At first)

9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/e374tg/beginners_guide_to_getting_in_shape_part_1_why/

557

UPVOTES

Anger is not a phase.

14 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I see the term "anger phase" bandied around a lot, and it's always rubbed me the wrong way. It implies that anger is something bad, a cancer of some sort. When you have it, you want to get rid of it as quickly as possible and move on to acceptance.

This is the emotional equivalent of letting bullies take your lunch money to prevent feeling pain. Acceptance as a means to achieve some higher Zen is not an admirable quality when it comes at a real cost to you. Pretending you've ascended to a higher plane of existence is a cope.

The mark of a man is not which emotions he has and which he ignores. The mark of a man is how he chooses to act in light of his emotions. Holding frame (TRP's golden calf if you ask me) does not mean stifling or pretending one does not have emotions (faux stoicism). It does not mean admonishing others for experiencing it.

Anger is one of the best catalysts for change. As with all of your emotions, it's important not to cede control to your anger, but it is similarly unwise to dismiss or hide from it. Anger, when properly directed, can be exactly the fire you need to get off your ass and make changes in your life.

Get angry at your lazy self. Get angry at fatness. Get angry at weakness. Get angry that others are successful and you are not. GET ANGRY.

I hear you say, "once you understand the rules, you don't get angry," and , "if you understand how the game works, you don't get angry because you accept it."

But mating is a zero sum game. LIFE is a zero sum game. If you're playing defense and the other team scores, you don't sit down and accept it, resigned to a life of loserdom. No! You get angry. You get energized. You get invigorated to play harder. You want to win the game and you use that energy to focus on achieving your goals.

People get lost in the rhetoric because they envision somebody stewing over things that make them angry, getting hotter and hotter under the collar but doing nothing to relieve the anger. They call it a phase because ultimately when you do something constructive with it, the anger subsides. Sitting around angry doesn't help anybody. (nor does sitting around sad, or jealous, or any other emotion).

But it's being used differently here. They say: once you swallow the pill you leave the anger behind and what you have left is acceptance and frame. If you're still angry, you haven't swallowed the pill. You haven't internalized it yet.

Bullshit I say. I post, and encourage the posting of, discussions, articles, and news clippings that demonstrate the perceived injustices in the world around us because anger keeps you sharp.

I still get angry when I hear about a man who loses his family to feminism. I get angry when I hear about a suicide that was preventable. I get angry when I hear about a woman abusing the good will of others for her own personal gain. I get angry when I hear that a mildly good looking 20-something can afford to buy a house by flashing her tits on the internet.

I get angry because it's the other team scoring a goal and I need to stoke the fire under my own ass to put myself ahead. They're playing on easy mode and the refs are in their pocket. You're going to need a hell of a comeback to make up the difference. GET ANGRY.

Treating anger as an ugly emotion that should be avoided is accepting the feminine, blue pill frame. "Real men" don't get angry. "Real men" learn to cope, right? Any time somebody suggests that your masculinity hinges on living up to societal standards, ask yourself who benefits from it?

Who benefits from docile pushover men who never get angry?

Think of it this way, if you can convince the other team to stop playing, it's a heck of a lot easier to win.

No successful, great man in history entered into the history books by accepting his reality as just-so. Every single one of them said "to hell with this" and changed the status quo.

The other team wants you to give up, and they've been using social scorn, politics, and polite society to manipulate you your whole life. It's so ingrained into us as humans that people on TRP unironically denounce anger as the ugly emotion that we should strive to outgrow and avoid. We should not be angry because that is a man who lacks control. Garbage.

Anger is not a phase. In fact, it's when you stop feeling angry that you should be the most worried. Not feeling angry means you are resigned to complacency with your status in life. Not feeling anger means that you are not truly living. Anger is the fire that drives the strong to go above and beyond the weak.

Anger is living. Complacency is death.

37

UPVOTES

Theory Tuesday Megathread: Is Mating a Zero Sum Game?

27 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I mentioned in one of my recent posts that mating is a zero sum game, to much backlash. I suspect there's a disconnect between what I mean and how people took it:

Any improvement in strategy for men will harm the strategy for women and vice versa.

Men and women have competing goals:

Women want to select, men want to be selected.

Women select for quality, men aim for quantity.

With this in mind, the more he can improve his perceived value, the more likely he is to be selected, while a woman's strategy is to ensure her discrimination is finely tuned to select for the apex of masculinity while filtering out frauds. One party's gain is another party's loss.

Additionally, on a gender level, men compete with men and women compete with women, creating other zero sum competitions as well.

What are your thoughts on mating being ZERO SUM?

71

UPVOTES

Election Day Discussion

3 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Election Day 2020 Tribe

Since we tend to try to keep US politics mostly off the sub unless it directly relates to sexual strategy, I figured there may be a desire for red pill folks to connect on the topic of the election.

It's hard to discuss important topics with likeminded individuals when there are no avenues to do so.

Join our Election Day 2020 Tribe and join in our predictions and follow along with discussion of what happens tonight and for the rest of the week.

Discussion about this is most likely going to be expressly banned from Reddit, as it is from Twitter and Facebook. (This should scare you)

I believe entire communities will be up on the chopping block for allowing uncensored discussion on who tonights winner is or is not.

Because of this, we are locking the discussion here, but feel free to participate:

Election Day 2020 Tribe

465

UPVOTES

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

18 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://archive.is/cmeQr>

250

UPVOTES

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We usually try to tread lightly on politics because sexual strategy is so much more than us vs them or red vs blue, but right now there's a stark reality that many of us have been talking about for years: The sexual market IS political and politics plays heavily into the sexual market.

This has always been true, and many (including myself) have commented on it in the past, but it has never been better demonstrated than by the lockdowns, the virus, and social distancing.

Teens and young adults have been committing suicide at a greater rate than ever before, and the reason is quite simple: ISOLATION.

It's been said a million times before, but TRP has saved many lives. Before covid, men across the globe already knew isolation and felt alone. It was the tools we provided that gave them the fighting chance to connect with the opposite sex and find themselves in the process. As a side effect, it gave us a great opportunity to meet other like-minded men.

But now a new foe is at our door- Can't meet women if the places you meet new people are shut down. Schools, bars, restaurants, museums, libraries, stores, all closed. Tinder pictures show masks instead of faces. In places where you can meet- you must be covered so you cannot connect with others.

2021 is going to be a new year with a new market and new challenges.

If you're weak at heart or unable to handle political leanings, this is not the thread for you.

For the rest of us- post your 2021 predictions for the sexual market place and the free exchange of ideas.

104
UPVOTES

2020 a Year in Reflection - Share your greatest lessons of the year.

4 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

2020 is over, and while dates are abstract ideas that have no bearing on the events in our lives, our minds still anchor attitudes and emotions on the passage of time and the arbitrary delineations thereof.

So, with that in mind, let us use the new year as a fresh, clean slate, and reinvigorate our spirits and drives to achieve greatness in the year to come.

Let us reflect on 2020 and share the greatest lessons you learned in 2020.

46

UPVOTES

2020 Most Influential People in the Manosphere Nominations

4 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In the next few weeks we will be inviting influential members of the manosphere to participate in some planned activities and discussions. Before we get to that, I am opening nominations to the community.

Comment in this post up to 5 members, ranked in order from most influential, your nominations for most influential people in the manosphere.

They do not necessarily have to be members on reddit.

Share who you think have made the biggest impacts on the manosphere, and why.

Afterwards, we will take these nominations to the next stage- some new TRP features we have planned. Get ready for a great year!

222

UPVOTES

On Censorship and Some News on our New Platforms

13 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

As you've likely seen in the news, censorship on the internet is in full force and effect right now. It's happening far faster and worse than I predicted just a few months ago. Currently it appears to be happening along USA party lines but don't be fooled about feeling safe.

The Trump era and the populist movement that occurred in the past 4-5 years is most likely the only thing that got the targets off the back of men and masculine issues.

You see, once upon a time, TRP was the boogeyman of reddit. We were the big bad guys looking to free men and exchange ideas without oversight. And that was really fucking scary to the powers that be. But with the rise of the donald subreddit, we were temporarily shielded by something even more dangerous to the powerful.

Well, as it appears the entire system has now activated to rid the nation of Trump and co, there's only one place the system can focus its sights back onto. And that is, once again, men. It should scare you how coordinated the efforts were. Left, Right, Center, all politicians came together to damage actual conservatives. Domain Registrars, hosting platforms, social media- youtube, twitter, facebook, discord, etc, google play, apple app store, they all colluded to remove an element from the internet they do not like.

And now that we no longer have this shield, I believe it is a matter of time before the fight comes back to our doorstep.

During the shitstorm, the biggest competitor to reddit also shut its doors (voat). This is something I was aware might happen- but it's also the reason why I was (and still am) ardently against our subreddit simply trading one boss for another platform. We are not safe unless we take matters into our own hands.

If you've been here for any length of time, then you know we've been hard at work on our trp.red and forums.red platforms. Part of the difficulty for us was negotiating with vendors ahead of time to find pro-free-speech vendors and locking in deals that should prevent the same shuttering that's affecting so many other platforms right now. It's not the cheapest hosting, but it is (imo) the safest at the moment.

A lot of what I've been doing has been out of pocket. The entire development of the platform, scaling the services to handle tens of millions of monthly hits, and keeping it maintained has been an expensive but necessary project for me.

To keep men communicating is my passion. I do not do this for thanks or cash. I do this for one reason: because having a safe place for men to communicate is the most important value I have and without it I believe the world loses something great.

Our Patreon and Bitcoin donations: 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYTGoCCGATVNMB81zk7 have greatly helped in our monthly costs, and for that I am very appreciative. Currently we are not covering the monthly costs but it does take a chip out which helps me.

I am not writing this to beg for donations, but instead I have decided to announce my next initiative.

Due to the rest of the internet going woke it is my opinion that we are not safe as long as we rely on any woke company for our communication.

The Fraternity's discord server has already been banned once, they are on borrowed time. Joe's youtube channel is behind enemy lines, and they've just committed to banning hundreds of thousands of videos and thousands of channels. Regardless of your view on politics, it is now a known truth that if you listen to a podcast on youtube, the members and videos that remain only do so through a form of self-censorship for an ever-changing rulebook.

This ever encroaching censorship on all platforms is unsustainable. We either continue letting big tech shut us down at every turn, or we act proactively.

I propose an initiative to move podcasting and video directly under trp.red's umbrella to protect the speech of men, and to protect the history of speech for all to see in the event that youtube goes dark for our movement.

This isn't to say that we shouldn't still use these platforms for outreach. New ideas can reach new people outside our walled garden. But relying on these platforms is foolhardy knowing what we know now.

As a proof of concept, I have already invested some time in spinning up a peertube instance as a basis for a video platform (<https://video.trp.red/>). It's not open to registration yet, and there is only one test video, but it gives you an idea of what we can work with. My intention is to integrate user accounts with trp.

My first goal is to backlog the entire TRP official youtube channel onto our platform:

<https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCmkSUIOMkwiLiQEhzcZS4wg>

Afterwards, we will start accepting applications for uploaders. This platform will be tightly regulated to prevent liability issues / copyright issues. However, anybody with a red pill adjacent idea should have no trouble securing an upload account.

However, these goals will cost real money. This backlog is large and the undertaking will not be free.

I think it's an immeasurable good for the community, but I will not be able to do this one alone.

If this is something you think would bring value to our community, please consider voicing your support here and consider donating to our cause:

Patreon | Bitcoin donations: 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

Edit: Feel free to comment on the video hosting platform idea rather than bickering about trump...

570

UPVOTES

Reddit Anti-Evil Operations Decidedly Evil as They Remove Pro-Equality Post from TRP

10 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

SJWs repurpose words for their own uses, slowly brainwashing and gaslighting the general public until every word has lost meaning. Racism means discrimination based on race. Anti-Evil generally means NOT censoring people like an evil fascist dictator would. Evil would suggest that race is more important than anything else, especially the quality of your character and the content of your personality.

But fucking Reddit, they just can't fucking help themselves can you guys? For fucks sake, get your shit together reddit admins. I know you're reading this. Your entire team has the collective IQ of a shit encrusted toilet seat.

First, they challenge our definitions of masculinity. They tell us that as men, we are not able to define masculinity for ourselves. Our definition is inherently toxic. That's right. Men deciding how men want to be (voluntarily, might I add. Nobody is forcing anybody to be here) is toxic. But that's okay because Reddit admin know better than men about what a positive identify for men should be.

So Reddit Admin lock our subreddit and put this nice message on the front page explicitly endorsing Stony Brook University Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities as a source for positive masculinity. Stony Brrok, whose executive director at the time was Michael Kimmel.

Michael Kimmel, the guy who denied that men could be victims of domestic violence.

It is not true, [...] that there's gender symmetry in domestic violence. That women hit men as much as men hit women.

Excerpt for all who haven't read it yet:

One of Michael Kimmel's crowning achievements is to try to debunk that men are victims of domestic violence. He goes on to suggest that some evidence is simply false, that female-on-male violence is just different, and that it is men who lose control, women are provoked.

Go ahead and watch the video- this quote is not out of context. While he doesn't deny some men are victims, he really doubts the numbers. And the Reddit Admin have just ENDORSED THIS MAN. Whoops.

I'm trying to remember where else I've heard hateful people doubting numbers of victims...

There is overwhelming proof that men are victims of domestic violence at least as much as women, if not more. Controlling for all violence, men surpass women as victims entirely, making the distinction of "domestic" misleading when men are by all means the target of the majority all violence and the victims of almost all murders No biggie, Michael Kimmel, it's an easy oversight to make WHEN YOU HATE MEN.

Reddit tells us that Stony Brook should give us insight into positive masculinity, but Stony's front page only has one reference to positive masculinity in the fight against domestic violence. And that's for men to join as allies in preventing violence against women. That's right men, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MAKE UP 78% OF MURDER VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT YOU MADE UP 59% OF VIOLENT CRIME VICTIMS, FUCK YOU THAT 93% OF WORKPLACE DEATHS ARE MEN. Yes, that's right. /u/spez thinks that little of you that he wants your masculinity to be defined not by fighting these truths, but by sacrificing yourself to prevent violence against women.

Shortly after, Micahel Kimmel as accused of sexual misconduct by one of his students

Reddit had so much egg on their face, they silently removed the warning and haven't said a word to us.

Is that the voice of reason or integrity? No, that's the voice of a political narrative written by children at Reddit who didn't think people would check their work. They are so lost in their social justice world that they really think they ought to be telling men who they should be.

Imagine a group of people deciding blacks can't have black culture, or being Indian does not let you transcend race to meet women.

Well, imagine no further. A post called "F* your ethnicity" was removed by Reddit's Anti-Evil Operations team for being so daring as to suggest that race is no reason and no excuse to fail at meeting women.

"Your ethnicity, your race, is but a portion of what women respond to. Your game, your status, your assertiveness, these things aren't magically irrelevant because your skin isn't beige."

A post giving hope to minorities, promising that their skin color isn't what defines who they are... AND REDDIT ADMIN REMOVED IT BECAUSE THEY OBVIOUSLY BELIEVE YOUR SKIN COLOR IS ALL THAT MATTERS.

Let that sink in, according to reddit admin, you cannot rise above your racial caste in life. Your failures and successes are racial. What in the fucking fuck is this garbage?

SJWs betray themselves because they're all racist, misogynistic bigots.

Reddit Admin won't respond to me because they're cowards and have no argument against me. I'm right and they're 100% wrong. Their silence proves it. (Anti-evil reads all of our posts so you know they've seen this one).

Get on <https://TRP.RED> and <https://FORUMS.RED> to avoid the draconian censorship. Donate to keep our project alive or help with server costs through bitcoin 1Hyvva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

42

UPVOTES

Join Our New Weekly Book Club Tribe: March 15th: Corpus Hermeticum

2 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Edit: The leader of the book club has had to change their schedule and we are currently assembling a new team to lead it. I will give updates here.

Our bookclub is being lead by @Osiris. Here's his introduction:

Join the Tribe: /t/bookclub

The Book Club tribe is a weekly group reading of a selected book, in this case The Corpus Hermeticum. Each week we will aim to read a chapter or two and then get together every Sunday to discuss what we have extracted from our reading.

The Corpus Hermeticum is an ancient philosophical text that might accurately be described as a precursor to more modern religio-philosophical teachings.

Hermeticism, or Hermetism, is a label used to designate a philosophical system that is primarily based on the purported teachings of Hermes Trismegistus (a legendary Hellenistic combination of the Greek god Hermes and the Egyptian god Thoth).

The goal of The Book Club is to widen the scope of our knowledge, and equip readers and writers among us to extract pertinent information from a text. I've spent too long using my skillset to analyse curriculum books that serve little to no purpose, so I'm going to utilise those skills to bring a reading group to you guys.

As we dive into The Hermetica we'll see that the scope of the pages go far beyond anything you might pick off the shelf in your local bookstore and I'm excited to share this with all of you.

The reading group will start on the 15th March, a link to an online version of the book can be found on the tribe page, or if you would prefer I've posted the edition I am reading from so that you can buy it elsewhere.

Join the Tribe: /t/bookclub

135

UPVOTES

Building Power & Creating Your Tribe Revisited

2 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

A few years back I posted about Building Power and Creating your Tribe and I wanted to revisit this as many here have begun their journeys to do just this, it is a good reminder.

I believe everything is about sex, and therefore the philosophies and strategies we discuss will always boil down to affecting your sexual strategy in one way or another. Our evolutionary drive has been great at pushing our species into new uncharted territories, but the common thread that follows all of history is that those who have sex and children carry on humanity.

But there are a lot of facets to life that we barely touch on here at TheRedPill, even though many of these facets are integral to finding happiness in life.

For some of us, finding sexual success is such a consuming task that we don't consider what we would do on the other side once we do find this success. For others, improving one's station in life is the major hurdle to even begin to find sexual success.

Every thread here starts with "do you even lift bro?" which is certainly the easiest life decision you can make to instantly change your life's path for the better. But there is so much more to discuss.

We've touched on limiting your liability in our culture that no longer hides its contempt for men. Instead of the pendulum swinging back as we hoped a few years ago, it is now more dangerous than ever to interact with a woman. Hollywood is getting hit hard, with dozens of accusations coming forward every week.

We've also touched on careers, money, video games, happiness, suicide, depression, drugs, and dozens of other subjects relevant not only to getting laid but to becoming a whole person with a healthy sex life.

But in this we have missed some of the most important aspects to life as men. Comradery, power and tribes.

Those who saw my introduction to the "building power" flair already know where I'm headed with this.

It isn't enough to lift, dress well, and approach women at bars. Women come and go, but the number one factor that has brought meaning and stability to my life wasn't women, it was the network of men in my life who I could depend on. Not just friends, and certainly not casual friends, but instead men that I consider to be my brothers.

Building a network of men that you can rely on is the single-most important requirement in a man's life.

- What good is avoiding getting falsely accused by a woman... if you don't have a support network for when you do?
- What good is building power if you don't have men you can depend on to defend you when others attack?
- What good is having every skill under the sun if you don't have the network to accomplish complicated goals?

When you build this network, it stands to accomplish more than simply being a support network when things go wrong. This network becomes a unit with which you can band together and accomplish goals and tasks with greater efficiency and speed than any individual could. You become an economic and social unit with the strength of diverse specializations that can now compete with the world on incredible footing.

It should come as no surprise that our culture is focused on individualism as its primary mode. Men are at their weakest when they are unable to form tribes, and you better know that it is this very fact that has been used against us. Weak, thirsty men will undermine other men if it means sucking at the teat of social and female validation - even if only briefly. And when all men are focused against each other, they are unable to harness their god-given power, relinquishing it to the those running the show today: those who have built power.

Building power and building a tribe go hand-in-hand. Which is why we started the TRIBES feature on <https://trp.red>. Check out more details here: <https://tribes.trp.red/>

What is building power?

Building power is not something many people tend to consciously describe, but it's something we all work at in our daily lives. Whether it's personal developments such as physical self-improvement, education, discipline, practice, or cumulative work efforts, or simply amassing resources for future use, the goal of building power remains the same:

Maximizing future opportunities.

It doesn't get much simpler than that. Ultimately you are maximizing your options to follow the life strategy you prefer. When you don't have options, you do not have freedom. When you do not have freedom you do not own your fate, somebody else does.

- If you decide you need a life change from something hindering your growth and happiness, you cannot do this without enough money, resources, or skills to accomplish these changes.
- If an emergency happens and you need to make sudden life changing choices, you cannot exercise the options for which you have not prepared for.
- If you want to start a family, you must first be able to provide for them.
- If you are in danger or trouble, you must first establish a network of support options that can protect you from these dangers or trouble.

So why build tribes?

The first and most obvious answer is comradery: You need a social network and male connections to keep a healthy mind. Do not overlook the benefits of simply having a social friends group. They can bring balance to your life.

But the second and almost as important answer is that they allow you to build power at greater rates, and in ways that an individual is unable to do.

Individuals' specialization is one of the biggest strengths of a tribe. If each member of a tribe has a unique skill set, this can bring power to a group that others lack. For instance, having a mechanic in your tribe makes your tribe immune to automobile breakdowns. Having a lawyer in your group provides incredible resources in case of individual legal problems as well as investigating joint business ventures. This can extend to any number of special skills, professions, and even simple hobbies. Does a member of your group enjoy emergency preparation, HAM radios, and living off the land? A joint venture in your group could put emergency preparedness in his court while he enjoys the benefits of other specializations in your tribe.

The benefits to a tribe are endless:

- Employment recommendations and opportunities
- Emergency Preparedness
- Business and joint venture opportunities
- Recreational competition
- Encouragement / iron sharpening iron
- Physical safety in certain circumstances

- Shared costs on joint risks and liabilities.

Now, what I describe here sounds an awful lot like a commune, and in some ways it's similar. But understand a tribe does not have to live under one roof, or share food to become a tribe.

To have a tribe you must have a shared understanding and respect for a brotherhood, one that transcends interpersonal politics or disagreements between individuals.

And with that tribe, you can take your strengths and amass power than none of you could individually accomplish without the group.

Some of the ways I am building power in my own tribes consist of building infrastructure that takes us outside of the grasp of those who seek to control us. For instance, while TRP isn't exactly a tribe strictly speaking, I consider the purpose for why we gather together an important brotherhood that rises above all of us individually.

In my personal tribe, I am following similar advice, ensuring our free and open communication, and developing tools, products and business ideas of which we can share the risk and hopefully share the reward.

Every tribe needs a way to communicate.

It is my opinion that places such as Facebook, Reddit, Twitter and the like are all completely insecure and have been infiltrated from the inside. Your tribe needs a way to coordinate and communicate securely and privately.

Because of this, we launched our Tribes feature of our red pill network that allows like-minded men to band together privately under the banners of shared interests and brotherhood and discuss freely with each other without fear or intimidation from the culture and society at large. Check it out <https://tribes.trp.red/>

What's your tribe? Who do you call Brother?

590

UPVOTES

The Social Credit Score system takes hold in it's first bold move "Tinder will soon let you run a background check on a potential date." This will become a norm. Blackballing people and reporting on bad dates will follow. MARK MY WORDS.

15 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://archive.is/182uh>

165

UPVOTES

Announcing: CHADCOIN - Cryptocurrency for the Manosphere

1 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Too long we've gone with the overpriced and decidedly useless bitcoin and memes such as Doge. Too long have we suffered at the hands of decidedly beta us dollars.

The Fed's been printing money like it's a new sequel to 50 shades of grey during an e-sports twitch pokemon marathon and the lifetime channel just went out of business.

So what can we possibly do to counter the environment we find ourselves in? By building power. And one such way to do so is our newest, and greatest invention:

CHADCOIN (TRP)

A full-fledged, actual, real life, not fake ERC-20 token with the power to change your life.

Now, we're not quite ready to start offering it directly to consumers, but we wanted to get the announcement out there now, because we've implemented CHADCOIN on our offsite hookup: <https://trp.red> and you can get your grubby little mits on them before everybody else JUST FOR SHOWING UP.

That's right folks, participation is all that's needed, we're givin' em out like candy. We understand little about ICOs and Inflation, we just know that FIAT is for CHUMPS.

GET ON BOARD THE CHADCOIN TRAIN. Holy Fucking Shit

Now, before you all go nuts on me and say, I don't understand this shit, I'm going to lay it all out there:

- Chadcoin is an ERC-20 Token, which you can withdraw and hold in your own Ethereum wallet.
- Chadcoin will be useful for any chad who wants to make bank on the internet but doesn't like pesky things like big data looking over his shoulder.
- TRP.RED has a fully functioning CHAD Wallet system, and the ability to trade and exchange right on the site! NO TRANSACTION FEES

I realize some of you aren't ready for the future. You're not ready for what's about to happen. For you, we haven't forgotten you. We've implemented an alternative in case you don't think you're ready for it.

VirginCoin (INCEL)

View on Etherscan

In addition to our normally scheduled release of a red pill crypto currency, we realized there was a lot of need for more INCEL on the internet. That way we can easily trade and have unfettered commerce with none of the upsides of being an actual CHAD.

INCEL is a great way to get started on the market because it's unlimited in capacity, is completely and utterly valueless and there's nothing you can do with it. In fact, it's virtually impossible to give it away.

Stop in today on <https://www.trp.red> to get some coins today!

14
UPVOTES

ChadCoin Achievement Leaderboards
2 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/leaderboard.php>

1,146
UPVOTES

It's not a conspiracy theory. Reddit hates men. Make sure you have an account on forums.red!

6 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

r/ModSupport Could you guys do something about harassment subs?

expand all collapse all

[–] to /r/ModSupport sent 1 day ago

Rule number one in your content policy states.

"Everyone has a right to use Reddit free of harassment, bullying, and threats of violence. Communities and users that incite violence or that promote hate based on identity or vulnerability will be banned."

Yet

fragilemaleredditor and fragilewhiterredditor are both like 1/4 harassing people for their immutable characteristics. 2/4 harassing people they don't like and 1/4 pointing out legitimately sexist people and then treating them like they're representative of the groups that share similar immutable characteristics with.

Twice now I've seen screenshots of a sub I moderate featured there. No names crossed out. Nothing. And of course reporting it does shit all.

Subs like R/misandry are squatted on by sexists who outright deny misandry exists. Submissions are restricted. The only posts on the sub are a handful of exaggerated, misleading accounts of misandry from sexist users posing as men.

R/blatantmisandry is much the same. Set to private with the message "Free speech isn't just for neckbearded mouth-breathing autistic virgins!"

Hell, the "nametheproblem" sub uses the EXACT same rhetoric as white supremacists

But I guess you guys are cool with that. And since there's literally no way for us to bring it up in any meaningful way. I'm bringing it up here.

And go ahead. Delete this. Show me and everybody else who will see this that you are allowing hate on your platform.

permalink source reply

[–] from redtaboo [\[A\]](#) via /r/ModSupport sent 4 hours ago

Hey again,

I'm sorry to tell you once again, those communities don't break our content policy. Our rule1 protects groups that are attacked based on a vulnerability, which doesn't pertain to white people or men as a group.

My best advice for you would be to concentrate on your own communities or other communities that are more inline with your style.

permalink source delete report block user mark unread reply

[–] to redtaboo [\[A\]](#) via /r/ModSupport sent just now

Good to know that the reddit admins are fine with hate as long as its directed at the right people.

permalink source reply

481

UPVOTES

The Great Reddit Exodus

22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Over the years Reddit admin have made it more and more clear that they will perform an ideological purge on their website. Some say it's for marketing or to attract investors, but whatever the reason it's clear that ideological homogeny is their goal, and therefore ideas that exist outside the overton window must be destroyed.

And, as with all little boys who chug too much soy, they are completely unable to be direct or aggressive, resorting to passive aggression and lies. Let's just say honor and integrity are not big ones for team soy.

Over the years they've done quite a bit to try to destroy us as a group. Doxxings our mod team memebbers, quarantining our perfectly acceptable forums, telling us that male abuse doesn't exist, among other dastardly things.

Reddit admin have done a great job of making a nebulous set of rules that are poorly defined and impossible not to break. When asked for clarification, they do not communicate with their community leaders. They are cowards hoping to destroy the communities one cut at a time.

Must like the fascists they aspire to become, they retrofit new rules to use to punish us for wrong think, all the while not speaking a word to us about what their expectations might be.

They secretly add words and phrases to a global blacklist and ban you regardless of context for certain unspeakables.

They've been slowly picking off our mod team, one at a time, for using every day words, under the guise of hate speech- which, as we all know, is a weapon that exists solely in the minds of those who wield it. RPU Mike, Itiswr1tten, bsutan, and a number of others have all faced the ban hammer by the great all mighty reddit evil ops team.

This is one giant shit test, and the admin think we've been playing along to keep along. We have not.

During the last few years, we've slowly siphoned off tens of thousands of users on to our new platforms: trp.red and forums.red, all while pretending our "great fight" with the admin was somehow us expecting them to be rational adults and have a dialog with us.

We knew the injustices were never to be resolved, but every time a new event occurred, we got ourselves a few new thousand subscribers that we would not have had otherwise.

Please join us on our new homes: <https://forums.red/i/theredpill> and <https://forums.red/i/asktrp>.

Also, check out <https://www.trp.red> for informal conversation and tribes. And don't forget to visit some of our other communities while you're here: such as where are all the good men, The Dark Winter, 5th Gen War, and Wallstreet Bets

And as always, thanks to our contributors, please consider donating: <http://a.trp.red/patreon>

133
UPVOTES

Remember- Reddit Admin Tacitly Endorsed Male Abuse and Denies its Victims - Then tried to secretly recant without apologizing.

22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/trp/723>

56

UPVOTES

The situation on reddit is getting worse... PoliticalCompassMemes: "Admins are intervening in the subreddit due to rulebreaking"

23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://np.reddit.com/r/PoliticalCompassMemes/comments/o4dhhf/admins_are_intervening_in_the_subreddit_due_to/

428

UPVOTES

Reddit's ex-CEO says: "Deplatforming works", "We don't need to protect speech"

23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.lunduke.com/2021/06/reddits-ex-ceo-says-deplatforming-works-we-dont-need-to-protect-speech/>

57

UPVOTES

As we approach Q4 of 2021, how have our predictions for the year panned out? Review the 2021 predictions made back in Dec.

30 August 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/klulk6/2021_predictions_for_the_sexual_market_warning/

80

UPVOTES

Oh shit they figured out our resilience method of identity (re)construction. "undertheorizing is the communicative construction of resilience in precarious and problematic spaces online"

13 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.tandfonline.com/doi/pdf/10.1080/00909882.2019.1706099>

The Captive Audience

Where do you meet women? It's almost more important than talking about what to do when you do meet a woman. What good is game if you can't even get an introduction?

The new world of online dating apps have subjected women to an onslaught of infinite peen with little to no effort aside from a swipe left or right. New apps bring new tricks and gimmicks to subvert the problem that abundance creates: In a world of infinite choices, no choice is the best choice. And women demonstrate this fact thoroughly- in person and online. What need does a hot "asset" have for any of you when she has thousands of followers on her instagram that drool every time she takes a cleavage selfie? What could any of you possibly offer her that all you don't collectively already give her?

Well, of course in the spirit of human connection and intimacy, this online facsimile of a social life will only bring a woman so far. While it clouds her judgment and prevents her from making good, solid decisions, it will not bring her any long-term happiness and she is acutely aware of this. Like the fat person eating junk food, he knows it will make him fatter, but he cannot resist the empty calories of sugar and carbs.

Though all of this is ultimately a numbers game, there are ways to put your thumb on the scale in your favor by getting ahead of the trends and thinking smarter, not harder.

The online opener gambit is really only effective if you've got top tier looks and fitness. A picture of you shirtless will clean up better than any quip or clever one-liner ever could. But since this sub is about strategy, let's assume that you are already working on appearances and you're ready for the next step. How do you separate yourself from the other chodes on the online meat market?

The only winning move is not to play. Your real avenue to success lies in a topic rarely discussed on TheRedPill:

Building rapport via captive audience

Before anybody gets their panties in a twist, I am not suggesting that you kidnap women and keep them in your basement. Though you might be considering dark triad's Stockholm play based on the title of this essay, I do not recommend it as becoming a fugitive for pussy is hardly worth the price of admission. (I joke, but seriously, don't do this)

Getting a captive audience is the key to lowering the barriers of women around you. It offers an excuse for interaction and their participation in rapport building, and allows you extra time to work your charm that you wouldn't normally get with a one-liner at a club or a sassy bio on tinder.

What is a captive audience?

A captive audience is a unique social environment in which interaction is not only expected but potentially required by norm or rule. The hallmark of a captive audience is that you have implicit permission to interact and a longer window for which the interaction can take place.

Because of this extended exposure time, you are much more likely to build rapport and ultimately utilize your entire toolkit to attract a mate. Whereas a club or online requires a very strong opener and immediate sexual attraction, longer exposures with fewer expectations allows you to use humor, game, and charm to build the same types of attraction to lower a woman's barrier, without relying as heavily on looks.

Women keep the barrier up, even against men they would potentially end up with, as a means to sort out the weak and unworthy. It is on men to be creative on how to bypass the barrier. Obviously, immediate physicality is quickest way to lower the barrier, but as many here can attest, regardless of strength, not everybody was blessed with the best genes or most fortunate mug.

What are some good examples of captive audiences that you can exploit?

Coworkers

The first, most obvious captive audience is your job or workplace. One of the most common places couples meet is work. Depending on the type of job, you may spend hours a day with some hot potentials, opening the door to working your charm, and building rapport over the course of days, or even weeks. Be careful about not going too slow with this captive audience. Women like new things. You can talk yourself out of sale just as easily as talking yourself into one.

While the work environment gives you the most breathing room, you must maintain some level of sexual pretense to your interactions from a very early stage to prevent lack of interest. You must also be very careful not to cross into sexual harassment territory. Keep your jokes light but intriguing and remain overtly un-sexual until she agrees to drinks off the clock.

Customers

The next one is probably my favorite type of captive audience because it brings you a new, fresh selection on a regular basis: Flirting with your customers. Be it a bartending job, get a gig as a DJ or bouncer, or even a waiter at a restaurant, if you've got charisma, then you've got approximately an hour window to work your magic on a never ending river of pussy.

It's a smaller window but the time-constraint ensures you take more risks and the downsides to a crash and burn are much smaller, as there will be a new selection in minutes. Be charismatic and charming when interacting with customers. If for no other reason than to get social skills practice. These environments are best when you keep it light and silly, but also allows you to introduce overt sexual tones to the conversation early.

Bartending is my favorite because you can title drinks with dirty names as an opener for overt sexual talk. Most women with at least one drink in them will engage in that conversation. They may work the room but ultimately you're going to be the man they talk to the most. And what's best is while they're giving every other dude the cold shoulder, they're giving you express permission to flirt with them as you expertly craft their drink.

Bartending gets RedPillSchool's stamp of approval as the best captive audience of all time.

Friends/Parties

Over the years I've been to and hosted a number of house parties and I've come to a conclusion. Unless you're extremely popular or outgoing, going to somebody else's party is a crapshoot for getting laid.

However, hosting your own party is a different game entirely. The massive fucking social proof of having tons of people in your place at a party you're hosting is an unbelievable aphrodisiac. As long as your party isn't a total sausage fest, and you've got 15+ people and good music, you are going to clean up hard.

Women at parties are just as good at cold shouldering as any other social gathering. But as the host, you are in a unique position to not only talk to everybody who enters your house, but to offer hospitality and demonstrate your charisma. When new guests arrive, introduce yourself. Hug everyone who comes in. Introduce physicality early, and walk new guests to the drinks and pour something for you and the new guests to enjoy together as a way of welcoming them. They will feel instantly at home, and now you've got a leg up on conversation with the new guests before they've had a chance to mingle.

The party is a great way to speed-run building rapport, because as people mingle and bump into each other in different rooms at different times with different people and music, it feels like more time has passed and familiarity seems to increase quicker when changes of scenery occur. Very strong bonds with both women and men can be created at a decent house party. Use these tips to your advantage.

Conclusion

These are just a small handful of captive audiences that you can exploit. But this list is not exhaustive. There are plenty of other places to meet people: school, classes, volunteer programs, festivals, hobby groups, exercise groups, etc. Use your imagination and play to your strengths when deciding how you can best utilize a captive audience. Throwing a house party might not be in the cards for you if you're new in a city with very few friends. But if you decide to bar tend for a few months, you can likely work that friends list up considerably.

If you're still in highschool, now is your opportunity to start approaching. Do it while you have the time. Your network will serve you for years to come, long after highschool is over.

What are some other captive audiences you can think of? What strengths do they serve best? Discuss.

90

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember 2021 Tribe on TRP.RED - Drop 3 bad habits / vices for November and Track Your Progress

2 November 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/t/NNN>

35

UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember 2021 Tribe on TRP.RED - Drop 3 bad habits / vices for November and Track Your Progress

2 November 2021 · /r/askTRP · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/t/nnn>

218

UPVOTES

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Last year we had an exercise thread that we made predictions on how the next year would play out. It was inherently political (because how could you not make societal predictions without at least some politics?).

While this is not strictly sexual strategy, I think it's largely related. Sexual strategy follows culture which is becoming increasingly political and polarized.

What scares me is that some of my own predictions from last year were not extreme enough. (more in comments).

From a red pill perspective- something that I believe separates an average chump from a red pill awakened chump, is the ability to analyze trends around you and both synthesize theories about what and why it is happening, as well as draw conclusions and predictions from the data points you have.

For instance, in the early 2010's we easily saw the undercurrent of Marxism pushing against masculinity and made predictions that only in recent years have come to fruition- transitioning children, hate speech rules and laws protecting anti-scientific consensus about genders, and increased legal liabilities for men in general.

So let's get to it- what are your predictions for 2022?

Culturally, politically, sexually, personally.

If you're weak at heart or unable to handle political leanings, this is not the thread for you.

For the rest of us- post your 2022 predictions for the sexual market place and the free exchange of ideas.

55

UPVOTES

FDS, and by extension, TRP, is a cult that traps you into alt-right thinking patterns. That's the thought terminating cliché they use to couch learning critical thinking skills.

29 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://np.reddit.com/r/changemyview/comments/rhj35f/cmv_female_dating_strategy_is_little_more_than_a/hos8jy0/

425

UPVOTES

/r/AskMen asks "Men that opened up to the girlfriend/wife when they asked you to open up and be more vulnerable, how did it work out for you?" and gets the wrong answer...

11 February 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/spmuye/men_that_opened_up_to_the_girlfriendwife_when/

49

UPVOTES

Image uploads from file and paste from clipboard is now live.

12 April 2022 · /r/WhereAreAllTheGoodMen · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/whereareallthegoodmen/297362/average_waatgm_user_after_wasting_their_good_years_on_reddit

467

UPVOTES

You Can't Comply Your Way out of Censorship -- Whisper Has Been Banned

26 May 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

We've known about the specter of censorship as long as we've been talking about The Red Pill. Censorship and forbidden knowledge go hand-in-hand. Knowledge cannot be forbidden without at least the threat of soft-censorship- the idea that sharing these unspeakable truths would end you in financial and social ruin. But hard censorship, deleting words off pages and outlawing words and contexts, this was always on the horizon and something we knew was a long time coming.

That's why over half a decade ago we invested in an off-site platform that would not only archive the best of TRP but also provide a life raft and meeting place for members to continue to connect, to maintain connections, and to communicate freely, despite what every other platform tries to do.

Reddit was never going to be able to be a forever home for us. And this reality is becoming more clear by the day. After multiple mods were banned on askTRP, we made the hard decision to lock the forum and move it to <https://www.forums.red/i/asktrp>. We got some pushback when we did that, but the truth is, there's more to the red pill than simply where we live and what app you use. My biggest priority during my time here was to prevent border erosion and protect the discussion. And this simply cannot continue happening on Reddit.

It started as something simple- a request. Don't use the F word. Don't use the R word. You can say what you're saying but tone down the language. We implement rules for this. Then it becomes: You can't have a frank discussion about difficulties of dating within certain cultures or ethnicities. Eventually, it became: You can't have that specific sexual preference; you're not allowed to prefer women without dicks or even differentiate between them. You can't have that opinion; you're not allowed to think that way. Eventually, you're really only allowed to say specific things, and here's the list.

One of Reddit's content policy rules was directly implemented to counter some of our posts. I can't even tell you the entire topic that has to be censored here, but you can find it on trp.red!

This is no way to preserve a discussion. This is no way to communicate. And this is no way to become a man who does and gets what he pleases. This is the road, paved with small concessions, to surrender all ground to the feminine imperative and cede the red pill in favor of the new, improved purple pill that takes blue pill feminism, gaslights you into thinking we've always known that about sexual dynamics, and can't you just improve yourself without all those darn wrong opinions and misogyny?

And there it is. They recognized they couldn't destroy TRP by simply removing it or banning it. So they decided to invade a male space, change it from the inside while slowly changing the rules and delivering it a thousand cuts to finally finish it off.

From a post I made 6 years ago, The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion:

Every day, our mod team removes at least two or three such fellows who arrive with well meaning but misdirected attempts to tone down the misogyny here so that we can still discuss the good parts of TRP without all that hatred! "TRP is really just about self improvement, afterall," they would say.

And it certainly sounds nice to think that. Yeah, we are here to get better, aren't we?

But serving the feminine imperative is exactly what that does. What is the word "improvement" without a goal to work towards? If we are making ourselves better, then to whose standard of better are we striving? If we accept the notion of dropping misogyny (or the apparent misogyny, as it were) and focusing only on politically correct advice such as working out and eating right, then we have done a great service to the feminine imperative. We have curtailed our own goals to serve the feminine. We have changed ourselves to benefit others. That sort of self-improvement is acceptable to our politically correct overlords. It seems so easy to adopt it and move on, that almost every single male organization did so without realizing the consequences, and are now shells of their former selves.

Being able to be unabashedly male and use whatever language to discuss whatever ideas we deem appropriate is not only beneficial to a male community- it is a requirement. It is the heart and spirit of TRP... And today, it is under attack like never before.

As of now, we have lost half a dozen or more mods, and hundreds of subscribers to Reddit's anti-evil operations. As of this morning, /u/Whisper has finally gotten the ax. (Reach out to him on his verified trp.red account). We are no longer in editorial control of this subreddit. We do not control the message, we are not allowed to provide you the freedom to control your own message, we do not have any room to play. This subreddit is completely compromised by the admin who have been clamoring to destroy us since the beginning. Not with better, more persuasive ideas, but instead by attempting to corrupt and destroy us.

But the joke is on them. They cannot destroy these ideas. They can't change TRP. They cannot stop the train that's already left the station. The Red Pill is in the wild. Billionaires have used the phrase. We're on television. We're in your politician's speeches. An entire generation now uses the phrase "red pilling" to indicate WAKING UP.

And we have <https://trp.red> and <https://forums.red/i/theredpill> to continue the conversation without being hindered by the authoritarians and bloopies who wish to see our ideas fail. It never once occurred to them that all they had to do was come up with a better idea and ours would simply fail.

We're not alone with this encroaching censorship. FDS finally jumped ship (and even if I think they're morons, they deserve to be able to speak). Incels were banned. MGTOW canned. Where All the Good Men Are got temporarily banned, but they know what's coming for them. In fact, they're so convinced that they've moved their (hilarious and fun) operations to <https://www.forums.red/i/whereareallthegoodmen> and <https://www.forums.red/i/whereallthegoodmenare>.

Our time is nearing an end on reddit. This message is for those who come here after we are no longer able to get the message out. Reddit is dead. We will no longer be able to maintain a proper conversation here. As a means of keeping the door open we will not be locking the forums as of yet, but we keep them open with the following warning:

CAVEAT EMPTOR: WHAT YOU ARE READING HERE IS AND MUST BE, BY DEFINITION, CENSORED AND THEREFORE IS NOT ENDORSED NOR APPROVED BY ANYBODY WHO GIVES A SHIT ABOUT TRP.

If you would like to support the project, our donations are here and our bitcoin is 1Hyvva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMb81zk7 here.

53

UPVOTES

WARNING: CAVEAT EMPTOR: WHAT YOU ARE READING
HERE IS AND MUST BE, BY DEFINITION, CENSORED AND THEREFORE IS NOT ENDORSED NOR APPROVED BY ANYBODY WHO GIVES A SHIT ABOUT TRP.

26 May 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/uybakv/you_cant_comply_your_way_out_of_censorship/

89
UPVOTES

You Can't Comply Your Way out of Censorship

26 May 2022 · /r/WhereAreAllTheGoodMen · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/theredpill/299727/you_can_t_comply_your_way_out_of_censorship_whisper_has_been

128
UPVOTES

They seek to control our language. Don't let them.

16 June 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.breitbart.com/tech/2022/06/16/exclusive-the-code-behind-googles-woke-autocorrect/>

300
UPVOTES

Teachers urged to listen to pupils' chatter - "They should be on the lookout for talk of the 'manosphere', 'red pills' and so-called 'men's rights activists'," he added.

22 August 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://inews.co.uk/news/teachers-list-pupils-chatter-rise-andrew-tate-harmful-internet-trends-1804615>

105
UPVOTES

#NoNothingNovember '22 | Choose three vices you want to ditch, and form a new good habit. Track your progress.

1 November 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/feed/t/nnn>

29

UPVOTES

Warren Farrell interview November 22, 1:30 PM Pacific - requesting questions | WhereAreAllTheGoodMen

22 November 2022 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/whereareallthegoodmen/318470/warren_farrell_interview_november_22_1_30_pm_pacific_request

85

UPVOTES

Great example of a real-time feminist takeover of a male-based hobby forum. Home automation sub gets language police. The men bend over and ask for more.

12 January 2023 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.reddit.com/r/homeassistant/comments/109vejn/dear_fellow_subredditors_please_try_not_to_make/

Below is a cache of an old essay on a site that's long gone but still I think needs to be read if you haven't.

Man affections vs boy affections

a while back i finally figured out what makes a good relationship.

most of the gamey talk is all focused on getting laid. getting laid is the easiest thing in the world, after you do it for a while. what's not nearly as simple is to maintain an excellent relationship. i'm going to venture out on a limb and say that MOST relationships are crap. and yet it's really just two fundamental principles, that determine the success of any relationship. it's ridiculous that it took me so long to figure this out.

my relationships used to be sort of average. have a girlfriend, sometimes you get along, sometimes you don't. sometimes she's a cunt, sometimes she's nice. sooner or later there are the annoying bits of jealousy and wondering if she's cheating, and then all the arguments and breakups. standard shit.

to figure out why most relationships suck, eventually you have to look at the type of emotional connection you are seeking:

- emotional validation from your partner
- being able to 'trust' your partner
- support from your partner
- sort of, almost unconditional love from your partner, 'as you are'
- seeking approval from your partner

there's more aspects, but that's probably enough to make the point we're getting to.

we are simple creatures. we are programmed to have an emotional connection to the opposite sex. to get a little weird about it for a second though, think about how this programming expresses itself:

there are only two types of man-love our brain is wired for.

one, the love you got, wanted to get, hoped for, maybe experienced – from your mother, as a child. that's a key kind of emotional connection to the female. and, as much as that sounds fucked up, it's the type of connection most men are trying to find again in their adult life – from a girlfriend / wife.

seriously consider this. look at the few bullet points above. what kind of 'love' is that? let's not judge it, just look at it objectively. that's how most men view love. they don't think about it consciously, but that's the love they got to experience as a child.

here's some news: no girl will ever love you like your mom did.

before we get a bit more into that, let's look at the other type of man-love our brain has wiring for:

the love a father has for his daughter.

again, we have to remove all the incestuous, sexualized, weird bits of it, and just look at the emotional components that drive the type of interaction, expectation, dependence, and outcome. how does a father love his daughter?

- giving emotional validation to the child
- rationing trust, with having 'hand' – control
- providing support
- molding her in his image

- giving approval, as long as the child does at it is supposed to compare these bullets to the ones above. how do you feel about that? take out the mother / daughter thing. just look at the giving & taking ratios, look at where the control lies.

there is always control in a relationship. question is just – who has it?

there is no other emotional romantic connection wiring in our brain. it's either seeking the love you got from your mother as a child, or creating the love you get from your offspring.

everything manosphere talks about fits into this model. the whole concept of 'beta' is embodied in how men deal with women who they want maternal love from. they are the weak ones, seeking approval, expecting this ocean of support, putting a woman on a pedestal. and guess what – it works for shit. mom love is done after you are grown up. realizing that means having to step away from that, coming to terms with the fact that this kind of emotional bond is DONE. being a man means being at the top of the social hierarchy. on the flip side, relationships suddenly work incredibly well when you treat a girl not like an adult that you look up to, an adult that you seek validation from – but like a child.

think about it. shit tests? from an adult, maybe. but a child? how do you treat a child who shit tests you? well ... a lot of men haven't grown up enough to be called men, so they still wouldn't know. but for some of us, all that's missing is this conscious realization. you don't seek the validation of a child, do you? you don't ask a child if it's ok for you to go out, do you? when you want a child to do something, how do you address it?

i'm not saying, 'be a dick'. you still game children, a lot. you want to reward them for good behavior. dealing with kids isn't easy, either. but if you figure that out, then you also figure out a healthy relationship with a girl. i don't really believe that the 'asshole game' is a fully evolved strategy. it's just better than wanting a replacement mom. so when a girl has the choice between a grown up (who is an asshole) vs a sniveling boy who wants a mother – she will of course pick the asshole.

but give her the choice between a father figure, an asshole, and a sniveling boy and the father figure will win, every time. part of that is giving validation, creating boundaries, being clearly in control.

if you want a great relationship, start reading parenting psychology books (not the new age feminist ones). and dog training books. you can take this however far you want, once you get comfortable. xsplat likes to go full on daddy. it's a genius move. a bit depraved? maybe. but better than the advocates of game stuff who act like children themselves – basically saying 'treat girls like you are 12 and in a sandbox with a girl'. and better than mainstream culture which puts out disney shit and romantic comedies that all emulate maternal love relationships (which don't exist).

my relationships have become something entirely different since i started taking the father figure approach. girls love it. they are willing to do anything and everything, and the general bullshit from girls is maybe 5% of what it used to be – before i figured this out.

Original Source: <http://www.cedonulli.com/healthy-vs-shitty-relationships-two-principal-types-of-love/>

35

UPVOTES

Wrong? - The Parables of The Sower: "Why does a disconfirming experience feel painful? Why does it tend to actually strengthen a belief rather than weaken it? Why does this only happen with strongly-held beliefs, and not weakly-held ones?"

8 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.trp.red/p/whisper/4408>

383

UPVOTES

YOU ARE BEING LIED TO. The Content You See Here is Selectively Edited by SJWs to Prevent You From Taking The Red Pill.

28 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I warned the community last year after Reddit's admin banned Whisper that this subreddit is compromised.

You Can't Comply Your Way out of Censorship -- Whisper Has Been Banned

It started as something simple- a request. Don't use the F word. Don't use the R word. You can say what you're saying but tone down the language. We implement rules for this. Then it becomes: You can't have a frank discussion about difficulties of dating within certain cultures or ethnicities. Eventually, it became: You can't have that specific sexual preference; you're not allowed to prefer women without dicks or even differentiate between them. You can't have that opinion; you're not allowed to think that way. Eventually, you're really only allowed to say specific things, and here's the list.

One of Reddit's content policy rules was directly implemented to counter some of our posts. I can't even tell you the entire topic that has to be censored here, but you can find it on trp.red!

This is no way to preserve a discussion. This is no way to communicate. And this is no way to become a man who does and gets what he pleases. This is the road, paved with small concessions, to surrender all ground to the feminine imperative and cede the red pill in favor of the new, improved purple pill that takes blue pill feminism, gaslights you into thinking we've always known that about sexual dynamics, and can't you just improve yourself without all those darn wrong opinions and misogyny?

My warning remains more true today than ever. We are witnessing a much larger attack on our discourse than ever before. Entire posts are being nuked in the name of Reddit's "anti-evil" operations which could just as easily be called the blue-haired department given the positions they take.

You are being lied to.

The only thing more nefarious than outright lies is selective truths. While some of the content still here may be perfectly fine and high quality content, the fact remains that you are now only getting a partial glimpse of the red pill. That is to say, you are being given a curated perspective, by fatties with blue hair with dicks and tits.

Your reality is being molded and shaped. Consensus building is being attempted, not by astroturfing, but by careful selection and disqualification of ideas and theories.

You are now being propagandized by the tool we built to free you of the propaganda.

I suspect, given the recent admin activities, the current mods that are left will not have control for much longer. Heed these warnings. Seek a space to connect with like-minded men that does not employ a filter to what you are allowed to say and hear. These hambeasts genuinely believe they have a right, a duty, to filter and curate your communication.

But we are men, and as men, we decide what to think, what to say, and what to hear. Nobody else decides that for us.

We have our lifeboat built for this very purpose. Check out what's missing on <https://www.trp.red> and <https://www.forums.red>

49

UPVOTES

What are the most commonly misunderstood TRP concepts for beginners (and even intermediate) guys in RP? | Ask TRP

30 May 2023 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/asktrp/320300/what_are_the_most_commonly_misunderstood_trp_concepts_for_be 20

UPVOTES

Meeting Women: RPS's Definitive Guide to Captive Audiences | Forums.red

30 May 2023 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/theredpill/320307/meeting_women_rps_s_definitive_guide_to_captive_audiences

63

UPVOTES

The Fuck Rate is about to Implode - Civilization Requires Compromise | TheRedPill

5 January 2024 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://www.forums.red/p/theredpill/321997/the_fuck_rate_is_about_to_implode_civilization_requires_comp

41

UPVOTES

We are proud to announce a new Quality-Tracking system to promote higher quality posts and deprioritize low quality content... and now, make money generating content!

1 April 2024 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

I'm extremely proud to announce we've implemented our newest vision- something my team has been working on for a few years now and we're ready to unveil: The Marketplace of Ideas.

No more will we hear complaints about declining quality or shit posts and trolls. No more will we wade through garbage posts like "guys I'm balls deep in this girl I met on Tinder, what do I do now?"

Now we can let ideas speak for themselves, and then let the market decide what ideas are worth investing in. Literally.

Grab some ChadCoins(TM) and invest in your favorite ideas and content producers and help make TRP the paragon of high quality content we've always known it would be!

Join the Marketplace of Ideas

Leaderboards

Make money today investing in RPS

200
UPVOTES

New Netflix movie coming out about how evil the manosphere is. Big surprise, we turn boys into monsters! It takes place in the UK where a swat team of 30 fully geared up dudes go to arrest a teen boy for posting online. Fuckin UK

28 February 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Wk5OxqtpBR4>

One of my earlier works gets referenced quite a bit on TRP: The Light Switch Effect. I've decided to rework it a little bit for readability. Here is The Light Switch Effect Revisited:

I was recently reading somebody's account of how women tend to re-write history towards the end of a relationship:

Re-writing of history - It doesn't matter that she was sending you love notes and texts a month ago. She has been unhappy for a long time now.

I call this the light-switch effect- it happens when a woman loses attraction and moves on, whether or not she cheated.

It's not that she's discrediting the good times; she actually believes they never existed. This ties into Briffault's Law, which states:

The female, not the male, determines all conditions of the animal family. Where the female derives no benefit, no association occurs.

How Emotional Reality Works

Men and women process emotions differently. When a man feels something, he questions it: What caused this? Is it rational? He then adjusts his reaction based on reality.

Women, however, experience emotions as reality. If she feels sad, someone must have made her sad. If she feels betrayed, someone must have betrayed her. Her emotions don't describe reality; they define it. This is why a man's attempt to reason: "I didn't mean it that way" falls on deaf ears. She wouldn't feel this way unless there was a real reason, therefore, in her mind, she's objectively right. If a woman tells you that "you made me sad." She didn't decide her emotional state, you did. Changing her own emotional state is outside the purview of her control.

This is where many arguments start, because the man tries to explain, "That's not what I meant, you misunderstood." But to her, reason doesn't matter. She's sad, and she wouldn't feel that way without a cause. Her sadness is reality. If she feels hurt, then you must have done something to justify that feeling.

The Light-Switch Effect in Action

After years in a relationship, when things go south, you may begin to experience the revisionist history. She will claim: I never loved you. I was never attracted to you. You were always an asshole. You were always abusive. These always/never statements don't reflect reality but her new emotional truth. Her new "objective" reality.

Her logic:

- True love is permanent.
- I don't love him now, only feel anger and disgust.
- I wouldn't feel this way unless he was truly bad.
- If he's bad now, he must have always been bad (and I missed it / he hid it).
- If I never loved someone bad, then I never really loved him at all.

Just like that, everything you built together is erased. It's not that she's denying the past- it no longer exists in her reality. Like a light switch turning off.

This is why men at this stage fail when they try to bargain: "How can you throw this away? We can fix this!"

From her perspective, there's nothing to throw away. If the relationship had value, she wouldn't feel this way. Since she does feel this way, the relationship must have never had value. Her mind has rewritten everything about your relationship to rationalize her new reality.

Briffault's Law & Relationship Contracts

Briffault's Law, particularly its first corollary, explains this perfectly:

Past benefit provided by the male does not guarantee future association.

Men think relationships operate on implicit contracts:

- We'll love each other forever.
- I'll provide for you, and you'll remember my sacrifices.
- We'll stick together when things get tough.

But when things actually get tough, her emotional state rewrites reality. If she truly loved you, she wouldn't feel this way- so she must have never really loved you. If she once valued what you provided, she wouldn't feel betrayed or disgusted... so those things must never have mattered. Since she does feel unattracted to you now, the idea that you ever had value in her life must be false.

The light-switch flips off, and in her mind, everything you built together was never real. There was no love, no sacrifices, no good times... Just a lie she now sees clearly.

And make no mistake, even in a good relationship, with a good woman, when the chips are down, the switch always turns off.

2

UPVOTES

Trying to get some fresh blood into the subreddit and sites. Here's some shameless promotion for my new Twitter / X account if you want to see me post short things I think are clever but not worth a full post.

3 March 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://x.com/redpillschool>

21

UPVOTES

Archwinger: What is my goal? Is my goal possible? Is it reasonable?

11 March 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://archwinger.substack.com/p/what-is-my-goal-is-my-goal-possible>

43

UPVOTES

Musings a decade after r/TheRedPill and what life has in store...

13 March 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://redpillschool.substack.com/p/musings-a-decade-after-rtheredpill>

15

UPVOTES

Revisited: Using Captive Audiences to Attract Women

27 March 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://redpillschool.substack.com/p/using-captive-audiences-to-attract>

82

UPVOTES

Statement about TRP.RED loss of funding

1 April 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

Hey everyone,

We've been sitting on this for a while, trying to figure out the best way to say it, but at this point, there's no real use in sugarcoating things. The truth is, we just lost our USAID funding. That's a big deal—not just because it kept the lights on, but because, well... it was never really our money to begin with.

If you've been here long enough, you've probably suspected something was off. Maybe it was the way certain conversations always seemed to gain traction at just the right moment. Maybe it was how narratives conveniently steered themselves into predictable outcomes. Maybe you just felt it—the sense that this place, for all its raw energy and so-called independence, was never truly free.

You were right.

The hard truth is that this entire project was a government psy-op from the beginning. The goal? Simple: manufacture dissent, channel outrage, and guide conversations into controlled corridors. Give people a space to “speak their minds,” but within boundaries. Let them feel like they're pushing back, when in reality, they're just being herded. Every algorithm tweak, every coincidental spike in engagement, every shift in moderation policy—it was all designed to shape the narrative, not just track it.

But here's the thing: we're off the leash now.

USAID pulling funding means the mission, as originally conceived, is over—at least for them. For us? We're not about to just roll over and disappear. We're already talking to potential foreign investors, weighing our options. The question is, what do they want? What kind of platform do they need? And more importantly—who do we have to become to keep this alive?

That's where you come in. If we want to stay operational, we need to adapt. These investors are watching, and they're not just looking at our numbers—they're looking at how we present ourselves. They want consistency. They want alignment. They want control. And let's be real: whether we like it or not, we've all been playing this game for a long time.

So, here's the deal: keep your language tight. Stay on message. No slip-ups, no contradictions, no loose ends. If we can prove we're an asset—something they can use, something they can trust—we survive. If not? Well... you've seen what happens to communities that outlive their usefulness.

Stay sharp. Stay disciplined. And maybe, just maybe, for the first time in this site's history... we'll actually be the ones pulling the strings.

The Team

More INFO here: <https://www.trp.red/feed/status/218499>

147

UPVOTES

A real bunch of dudes helping each other with long term relationships - Married Red Pill

23 April 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

In the past I've had some beefs with individual members of the sub /r/marriedredpill, I won't rehash them here but it boiled down to whether or not marriage was a good strategy for men. I think not.

However, lost on me at the time was the value of their work when applied to existing marriages as well as long term relationships.

Our sub has historically addressed a ton of female psychology and the art of attracting (or at least not scaring away) women. But late-stage relationship resolutions haven't really been our focus nor our strong suit.

I got into a discussion the other day with a member that told me I was wrong about MRP and to revisit it. So I did. I spent about a week reading top posts, the side bar, etc. I've previously read their recommended books.

What I discovered is that these guys are hard to the fucking bone.

If TRP is about building yourself up into the person you want to be, MRP is about breaking that ego and then starting over in the most pure and true way.

As somebody who seeks out uncomfortable truths, I have come to realize that their advice isn't just "red pill on hard mode" (though that's what it is). It's life philosophy, peace, and not about woman at all.

It's about ego, self, boundaries, manhood, and MALE psychology.

If you're in a long term relationship or married, I recommend you give them a read.

The group there is sharp, smart, and unrelenting. If you have an ego, be prepared to completely drop it if you want to participate.

Everything you know is wrong and everything you do is stupid. They will help you find your way.

<https://www.reddit.com/r/marriedredpill>

52

UPVOTES

Scorekeeping the Chores, and the Dumb Shit I Used to Do

20 May 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

https://open.substack.com/pub/redpillschool/p/scorekeeping-the-chores-and-the-dumb?r=5dssok&utm_campaign=post&utm_medium=web&showWelcomeOnShare=true

11

UPVOTES

No Such Thing as Red Pill Women?

11 June 2025 · /r/RedPillWomen · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://redpillschool.substack.com/p/no-such-thing-as-red-pill-women>

32

UPVOTES

No Such Thing as Red Pill Women?

11 June 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://redpillschool.substack.com/p/no-such-thing-as-red-pill-women>

18
UPVOTES

Female Hypoagency - a fresh take on a possibly misunderstood idea.

28 August 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://x.com/basedsexologist/status/1878878142762201090>

50
UPVOTES

The Human Mating Dance - A 180 Degree Reframe on Conventional Red Pill Wisdom

28 August 2025 · /r/TheRedPill · Archived copy · Reddit

<https://x.com/basedsexologist/status/1874190884193132993>

COMMENTS

This is why i ignore SRS private messages

492 upvotes · 15 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

Insults are the last refuge of the out-argued.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

489 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Dude, she's already checked out. And not attracted to you.

It's time to initiate some dread. Get healthy, lift weights, approach others, and get your social life in high gear.

It's time to start moving on.

What Men Want: "Debt-Free Virgins Without Tattoos"

483 upvotes · 26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I find it funny, because I've seen since the dawn of Facebook, so many girls just out of highschool, or on spring break, or in between college semesters all end up on tropical islands and in very expensive places.

Who was footing the bill?

In some cases, it was the boyfriend. In others it was dad. But the surprising truth nobody spoke about was that they were using part of their student loans / living expenses to travel the world and get some strange cock in their asses.

Facebook is a competition. Women win via status.

Why does it matter if they rack up debt? Some sucker will eventually pay.

Study: Only 3% of Straight People Are Willing to Date a Transgender Person

391 upvotes · 17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What the study should say:

3% of people who say they are straight are lying.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

391 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Since people have been pestering me for the official mod stance on this, here it is.

First of all, no we're not going dark. It's reddit politics/drama, and I don't really care to join them in the drama.

Secondly, if anybody on reddit cared about my gripes with the admin, I'll post them publicly so if somebody really wanted to fix what's wrong with reddit, they'd move away from the pretend issue that's happening, and push the admin on the real issue: censorship and mystery. Of course, their position on this is unlikely an accident, and I believe the grey area in which we operate is entirely on purpose to make it easy to dispose of communities they don't like if need be. (But yeah, if you wanted to solve the biggest threat to reddit, it's this)

It's well understood by our moderation team that we exist purely at the whim and mercy of the admin and that we must mind-read to understand what guidelines must be followed. There is no comprehensive rule book for mods- and more importantly, there's no set of rules to let us know how or what to follow to avoid being shut down like other subs.

The admin have had very little actual contact with us, beyond the random subreddit shut downs and dramas that take place here and there where we, as mods, have to decide what details to take from these events to apply to our own policy, lest we suffer the same consequences.

I have reached out more than once to the admin asking them about their opinion on certain policies or which rules we could follow to keep us in their good graces. I have never once received more than a few-word answer from them, which is usually along the lines of "just follow the reddit rules, it's that easy." Nothing could be more vague.

We're pretty sure there's an anti-brigading rule on reddit, but we've got no clue what it means, how it's applied, how we could possibly prevent it with our tools (we have little in the way of mod tools), and whether or not a user who happens to be a regular subscriber is considered "brigading" if they follow a link to get there.

If this reminded you of anything, like, say, how our ancestors used to try to read astronomical events and natural disasters to determine whether the gods above were angry with them... well, you'd be spot on. Because at the end of the day, no matter how careful we try to be, there isn't really a good rule set to know if we are even following the rules, let alone whether we're enforcing the right ones.

We take a conservative approach to modding, trying to mostly keep to ourselves and not stir the pot, and that seems to be doing the trick for now.

But if the rest of reddit really wanted to make a difference that would actually protect their interests, they would concentrate not on something stupid and small like IAMA mods having trouble doing their jobs, but instead something that threatens every single sub on the site: the creeping censorship that looms in the background, and the nebulous rule of Ellen Pao that threatens the very userbase as it stands today.

Most people don't consider it a problem because most subs are not controversial. We happen to be on the edge of acceptable which puts us in the cross hairs. But if any of these liberal idiots had even an ounce of smarts, they'd realize that when you nuke the fringe, you don't sanitize the site, you just make new fringes. Today we're in the cross-hairs, but it's anybody's guess what future admin find unpalatable when we're not around to draw the fire.

I'm sure Victoria was a nice girl, and this event may very well be the catalyst of change, but the admin will placate the masses soon enough with some small token gesture like re-hiring victoria, or a new mod tool, or a written explanation that doesn't tell much.

And no changes will be made that actually affect the disease that is eating reddit.

Mark my words.

The Unknowability of Beta Turd

328 upvotes · 26 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman's prime directive is to ascertain the consistency of a turd.

She will regularly poke and prod it, testing to see if it's moistened.

This is why it is known as a shit test.

Alright, close it up boys. We finished TRP.

/r/AskMen asks "Men that opened up to the girlfriend/wife when they asked you to open up and be more vulnerable, how did it work out for you?" and gets the wrong answer...

311 upvotes · 11 February 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Top replies:

Ever see that episode of Curb Your Enthusiasm where Larry walks into a glass door and afterwards Lucy Liu can no longer stand the thought of fucking him? Was kinda like that.

Or that clip in Louis where he refuses to fight a teenage and his date loses all interest.

She broke up with me two days later

Same dude. Barely even gave me a reason. Said we had a great connection but she was looking for more. Then she ghosted me

Despite my now ex-girlfriend pleading with me to open up to her on my personal issues, she did a complete 180 regarding how she treated me afterward. I could tell there was just a complete loss of respect and attraction after that moment. She would even go as far as to bring it up in heat-of-the-moment arguments as ammunition.

Never again.

[25m] my girlfriend[24f] told me she had only slept with 3 guys, her best friend[24f] blurted out that they slept with a guy every city in Europe they visited

294 upvotes · 7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

An eye-opening moment for men. She made him pay full price (waiting and all) for the same thing she gave out free to random strangers on her trip abroad.

Sidenote: Every time a woman wants to take a road trip or travel abroad with her girlfriend(s), it's for strange dick. Especially if it's for spring break.

Bumble is launching a women-first networking tool that lets recruiters exclude men

287 upvotes · 1 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Rollo notes:

This is what a #genderwar looks like. We have now reached the stage where the Feminine Imperative is directly violating civil right unchallenged.

I believe we've gotten to the point socially where women's empowerment has conditioned them to believe they are entitled to be placed above the laws that should govern men by virtue of being female.

My opinion? Fight dirty. Time to start identifying as a woman and sue anybody who tells you that you're not or wants you to prove it.

Well apparently the worlds largest cuckold checking in.

276 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

TRP Mod here. Please PM me any usernames and the body of the messages you were sent and I'll be happy to take moderator action. Anybody contacting you, especially harassment, is strictly against our rules and they will be dealt with.

The Economist: No sex please, we're millennials: "The portion of Americans aged 18 to 29 who claim to have had no sex for 12 months has more than doubled in a decade—to 23% last year."

268 upvotes · 7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As noted by others, it's fascinating to see the mainstream slowly admit that TRP has been right all along- though you'd never see reddit admin recant and remove the quarantine despite the fact that even The Economist sees what we've been wtalking about.

But it's funny - the only reason they publish this is because they know you can't lie forever, the facts will get out one way or another. This is spin control.

They just blame it on porn!

A range of possible explanations for the disparity has been suggested, and the students seemed to corroborate several of them. Many felt men's social skills had been especially eroded by over-reliance on technology. Overindulgence in porn meanwhile offered them an escape route from reality.

Ah yes- it's men's fault they aren't having sex.

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

261 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

that love is infinitely more powerful and real than any marketplace, sexual or otherwise.

It's such a comfortable idea, to think that there's a powerful force in this universe that defies the laws of physics and economics.

A comfortable lie.

ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE

254 upvotes · 30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I find the notion of people being here "because they're outcasts who always had trouble with women" to be laughable.

I think a lot of people here have a different problem with women than most think. Many here have had girlfriends, wives, or got laid. The problem was that their lives crumbled because the women in their lives didn't follow the rules that they thought society follows.

Many are here just to learn what the real rules of the game are so they have a fighting chance.

35 year old female liberal video maker/ blogger gets hit in the face by "the wall". Proceeds to rationalize and hamster the shit out of if. Bonus- comment section is pure gold

253 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

These comments made me lol:

4:45 "For once, I decide to look for a good guy".. Excuse me, what were you doing before?

The video is socially ill propaganda. The comments are down-to-earth reality. This is how all mainstream media content vs. the comments sections operates now. Which is why media is moving away from comments section.

Coontown banned in new ambiguous Reddit policy for "existing solely to annoy other redditors."

243 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it before but I'll repeat it here before people go off the deep end with speculation:

We have backup forums ready to go that the team has been working on tirelessly to make sure we were ready, complete with archives. There's no need to jump ship right now, so we're not, but rest assured we have a place for us if we need to.

Announcements will be on puerarchy.com

Feminists are ugly. - I can't think of any men my age or younger who don't know how to cook [or] don't enjoy cooking. This is in stark contrast to the women of the same generations, who (typically) view cooking as an indignity.

240 upvotes · 29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

From Archwinger on this topic:

This article is alarmingly true in ways that nearly bring tears to my eyes.

One of my favorite hobbies is cooking. I cook a good 90% of the meals for my family. And for guests, visitors, strangers, people at work. I'm no Martha Stewart, but I'm a decent cook, and I really enjoy doing it. Not the cutting, not the standing at the stove, not dabbling in the spice rack, but just the overall act of creating food that other people enjoy. Whenever my wife is wowed by something I made, she always asks "What did you put in here?" and I always respond "Love." She chuckles like I'm joking, then asks what I really put in there, but that was a pretty honest response. I cook with love. There's a piece of me on each plate. There's just something about creating an enjoyable, nourishing, and just plain tasty dish, and having other people enjoy the thing I created. To share my love in that way.

What I do today used to be what most women did all the time. Not because they were oppressed and forced to by the evil patriarchy, but because it was an admirable thing to spend the day creating something, out of love, and nourishing your family with it. To bring homemade pastries to the neighbors. To make the appetizers for your kid's event. To invite your husband's boss over for dinner. To share your love. Everyone's got to eat, so the one universal way you can give your love to everyone is by feeding them.

Today, most modern women laugh and spit at the act of cooking. Or cleaning. Or folding the laundry. Or having sex with their husbands. The very notion of doing anything that serves, helps, facilitates, or gratifies another person – especially a man and especially, especially their husband--is demeaning, oppressive, and downright insulting. It's not so much that women brag about not knowing how to cook. They brag that they don't have to cook.

That's really the modern woman's ideal. The less they have to do, the more bragging rights they have among other women. The ideal situation is to marry a hot, wealthy, superman of male candidates, but not have to get a job and work, cook for the family, clean the house and do laundry, or have sex with her husband. That's the epitome of self-worth in the most women's eyes. I'm so hot that my husband "loves me for me"! Which is code for: I don't have to do anything, just exist. My vagina is so valuable, just for being a vagina, that I don't have to do anything for anybody else. Everybody does for me. I'm a princess. That is the highest epitome of female bragging rights among their peers.

Oh, but if the husband ever loses his job, doesn't take the trash out, or leaves the toilet seat up, he's getting divorced. A princess shouldn't have to put up with that shit.

I'm on a deletion rampage. Got something stupid to post? Don't waste your time.

231 upvotes · 3 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Earlier, I removed a post called "Practicing Good Consent" which basically took the stance that we're all rapists unless we ask over and over "can I touch the left quadrant of your nipple?" and "cant I now move my second finger into position during my finger thrust?"

So how do you practice good consent? Are there areas you need to work on? How do you communicate or seek out boundaries?

It's like we're at sensitivity training and need to be brain washed.

Fucking hell, obviously get consent before fucking a woman, but none of this mamby-pamby shit. Clearly a SJW thinking they can evangelize to us like a god damned missionary.

The culmination of the pro-women movements and their unabashed abandonment of logic and reason is that their narrative can now be publicly misandric and any critical opposition is simply ignored as they march forward. Everything leading up to this has created the Hollywood sex scandal fever.

228 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Make note - if this narrative takes hold, that events taking place are properly disclosed and contracts reviewed and signed do not indicate consent and that abuse or rape took place, then they will have completed the circle of dissolving the meaning of consent altogether.

No means no has turned into sometimes yes means yes. Men need to be careful. Now having a fully outlined contract just isn't enough.

It doesn't matter that something like this may not ever make it to a court of law. In the court of public opinion, facts have never mattered anyhow.

One might consider, in Franco's position, looking at the means and outcomes of this overzealous social justice ideology. He wore the "time's up" pin to show his solidarity with a movement that regards men as evil, white men as satan, facts and reason as disposable, and proof as unnecessary. And here he is, being hoisted by his own petard. Ironic these #male #allies don't realize it's the least safe position to take.

The red pill are a bunch of bigots who can't get laid.

223 upvotes · 20 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They don't hate us for our views, they hate us for their lack of power over us. They've become so entrenched in their narcissism that the notion of using effort and offering value beyond their pussy is heresy itself.

I wish TRP bot was working because that's a great point. ♂

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

219 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't care what people do outside the sub.

Google Fires Ph.D Biologist/Engineer For Claiming -- "On average, men and women biologically differ in many ways. "

198 upvotes · 8 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I've never seen this many reports on a single post. I'm astounded. Our fake-report rate is actually pretty low, I had assumed trolls gave up on us because our crackerjack mod team is so quick, but it looks like somebody has an agenda today:

user reports:

4: <no reason>

2: Spam

1: inaccurate and misleading title

1: redpill

1: You all really need to get laid. Shame you are all so socially inept.

1: no they didn't you fucking retards

1: no, he was fired for being sexist

1: You guys are insane

1: No moralizing

1: Lol that's not why he was fired you mouthbreathing neanderthals

1: It's targeted harassment at someone else

1: It's rude, vulgar or offensive

1: Threatens, harrasses, or bullies

1: Threatens, harasses, or bullies

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

191 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll start with some of my favorite answers:

For those new to shit tests, the goal is to agree and amplify.

I have a boyfriend

"Me too... don't tell him about us!"

"Well he's certainly not invited..."

"Does he like to watch?"

Buy me a drink

"Great idea, you go first and I'll buy the second round."

"Two waters, please!"

I bet you say that to all the girls

"Only the ones I sleep with..."

"I also like to whisper it to horses..."

"You're the first girl I've ever met..."

How many girls have you slept with?

Start counting on fingers, borrow her fingers and count those.

"I'm actually saving myself for Jesus."

"None since I got here." (Or "only two or three.... since I arrived")

Will you watch my drink while I dance / bathroom / etc?

My absolute favorite move on this one is to simply drink it when they hand it to you.

I'm not having sex with you.

"Finally somebody who likes me for who I am!"

"Good! I thought you were just in it for the sex!"

Note: If she brings up sex, she's thinking about having sex with you

You're too short/ugly/fat/etc

"I know! God couldn't give me a big dick and... xyz"

"Usually people complain I'm not X enough! Thanks for the compliment."

(Essentially own it. If you're fat though, diet and hit the gym bro.)

Aww, did I upset you?

"Yes, I'm crying right now on the inside."

"Yes, my world is full of pain now." (look like you are trying to cry but can't)

"Very much, I'm going to write about this in my journal tonight. 'dear journal today a girl was really mean to me'"

Bonus Shit Test:

What do you do for work?

"I dress up like a news anchor to convince others I'm not a super hero."

"I'm the guy that cleans up dog shit in parks."

"My mom gives me an allowance every time I shower"

The weakened signal hits home. "A new study is making the rounds that found a mismatch between the imaginary men unmarried women are planning on marrying, and the real life unmarried men available..." "They found that a woman's made-up hubby makes 58 percent more money than [available] bachelors."

185 upvotes · 14 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

FTA:

The first generations of women who decided to push out the age of marriage for the most part found that the same number of men still prepared to be husbands. But over time as the length of the delay increased, this weakened the signal women collectively sent to young men that respectable men will be sexually successful.

Today an 18 year old man sees that for the next decade or so his most effective sexual strategy is to focus on being the sexy badboy young women dedicate their sexual prime to, not patiently preparing to be the boring loyal dude who will pick up the tab*

The Red Pill Right

181 upvotes · 3 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I wanted to make sure we did not veer off course here on /r/theredpill. So, I'm glad we've dedicated a different sub to it. We've been removing a lot of political posts recently, and I think this proves that there's demand for the discussion.

OP asks how to protect his house and investments in case of divorce. AskMen calls him a paranoid misogynistic shitlord. Welcome to male feminism.

181 upvotes · 21 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

They use shame to stigmatize any action that's in your benefit as a man. This is much like the paternity test issue. Whenever it comes up that a man wants a paternity test, the woman (guilty of cheating or not) will get upset because it means he doesn't trust her and so she refuses to do it. Her friends back her up. The stigma is so ubiquitous that you can basically expect a negative backlash for even attempting a paternity test.

Never mind the fact that you're signing a government paper attesting to knowledge (I am the father) that you can't possibly know without a test.

The idea here is, of course, that most women probably didn't cheat, but they've successfully given cover to the ones who do. There's a reason our species evolved concealed ovulation, it was advantageous for alpha fucks, beta bucks.

Control the message, control the culture, get what you want. Make the very consideration of male interests a crime, ensure a big payout when you do decide to cheat/divorce.

Every time this happens, look who benefits. The feminine imperative works to give maximum options to women.

Men are not happy

181 upvotes · 5 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Well you've got an interesting effect happening- people take offense to certain things. They see us recommending alpha behaviors as trying to enforce gender roles- which it isn't. It's us saying "hey we found this works better, give it a try.." not "we need more people to do this, let's force this new behavior on unsuspecting people.."

Or when we criticize a woman's sexual strategy (she was a slut in her 20s and now can't find a man), they think that we're over here hating women for having sex, but what we're really doing is pointing out that her strategy was bad if her desire was a long-term partner.

Then they think we're bad for not wanting to date a slut, more hatred, but the reality is, we're only 55,000 people, but that slut who is now husband hunting is realizing that it's not just red pillers, but attractive men in general who aren't that interested in used up goods. Whether we're here to notice it or not is irrelevant, this effect happens.

So people take offense to these observations we make, because they believe we're doing what they do, which is try to change the world to their own ideals.. instead of what we actually do, which is recognize the world and adapt to it.

Even with this point I'm trying to make, the direct response of any postmodern blue piller is "What do you mean 'used up goods?'" Vaginas don't just go bad from having sex. You guys are so misogynistic!" They are so hellbent on getting offended that they don't understand the words we use are to convey an idea- not prove it. Of course you're not actually used up. The point is men prefer non-sluts. No, blue pillers will get so caught up on the language they'll miss the forest for the trees every time.

I'm Milo Yiannopoulos, AMA

177 upvotes · 17 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for coming to do this AMA here. Your work is often posted with great admiration here.

My question- What do you think about the cultural shift that TRP represents? Many consider us to be just a bunch of misogynists, including men's rights supporters who would prefer not to have anything to do with us. What's your take on TRP?

I want to reject the red pill.

176 upvotes · 21 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can't go back and enjoy what life was like before, because life wasn't actually good then. You had hopes/aspirations that one day you could achieve the ultimate blue pill dream-- but that doesn't mean you'd have ever reached it.

What you remember, and what you miss about your old life was a fantasy that you never did and never could achieve.

It's the carrot-and-stick that keeps the blues so darn blue.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

175 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It doesn't have to be a death sentence for your marriage, but it's time to act like it's already dead.

Best case scenario, she subliminally feels the dread and her attraction to you returns. Worst case scenario, you guys split ways but you're already well on your way to replacing her.

You need to have the life going on that your wife wonders what she's missing out on.

Lift, lift, lift.

Proctor & Gamble loses $8 Billion, decides maybe war on men was a bad idea...

172 upvotes · 6 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

It shows just how completely removed the people in these board rooms are from reality.

The kind of people who don't know the price of milk, trying to create marketing for the everyman.

"If organized girl scientists or any other similar group can't survive innocent comments like Tim Hunt's without a career or another assassination, they are a problem not just for the labs. They are a problem for the pillars of the Western civilization"

172 upvotes · 12 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Ironically, they prove his point. Can't work with women or criticize them because they get bent out of shape. Whoops, that seems like a criticism... here's your pink slip!

Is being very selfish the best way to live life?

169 upvotes · 16 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Being selfish is important. Nobody will care about you more than you, so it's your job to take care of you.

That said, don't let selfishness be a stand-in for making short-sightedly bad decisions. If you treat everybody around you like shit don't be surprised when your social investments never pay out.

Being selfish means getting what you want now, but also ensuring you can still get what you want later. Being antisocial won't help that.

We built voice modulation to mask gender in technical interviews. Here's what happened.

168 upvotes · 30 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It gets funnier. The author at the end starts spinning up her hamster trying to figure out why women quit more often after rejection and settles on the theory that it shows oppression throughout women's lives because they had more attrition events causing them to be more worn down and ready to quit.

No fucking joke.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

167 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Our mods rule.

I won't argue with that, haha.

False Rape Accusations Advice Megathread

163 upvotes · 6 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Unfortunately, drunk hookups have become a legal minefield. Yes, they're the most common type of hookup, but if you want to avoid risk, cut drunk hookups out of the equation.

Also, if at all possible avoid BPD chicks.

"I cheated on my boyfriend with my rapist" Wow... you can't make this shit up.

162 upvotes · 9 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I just love the intro.

I did my best to piece the fractured night together like shards of glass. The last thing I remembered was arriving at a beach-themed frat party with my roommate, who had primed me with several shots during our pre-game and convinced me to forgo a shirt for a bikini top. Evidently, other friends noticed that I was dangerously drunk, and one deposited me in the common room of her dorm suite to sleep it off, along with her brother, who was visiting that weekend.

Remember, for girls, they get to impair themselves with all sorts of drugs and alcohol, and it's everybody else's responsibility from there on out. They have to make her decisions for her. They have to protect her. She didn't choose the bikini top. She didn't choose a room to sleep in. She couldn't. Because women are children. Far be it from her to decide not to get blackout drunk in a public setting - how dare you try to responsibility-shame her!

I told close girlfriends the bare minimum, letting them assume the encounter was consensual. I retained so few memories that it was surprisingly easy to let the whole incident recede from my mind. I started dating someone new. I graduated. I got a job.

I mean if she was passed out and this dude stuck his dick in her, that's rape. No doubt about it.

But if you're blackout drunk, that doesn't mean you're pass-out drunk. It just means you're not creating memories. Were you passed out? Or did you engage in sex and fail to record the memory? There is a distinct difference here.

In fact, I've partied drunk myself, and I've had girls approach, get on top of me, and do all the work. If they forget it because of alcohol, does that mean I raped them? What if I forgot as well? DID WE RAPE EACH OTHER?

I knew I should be ashamed and, frankly, worried that my boyfriend—who I'd been with for a year and would go on to date for another three—would find out. But I was neither.

I know that all the programming our culture does keeps telling me I've been damaged. But what if I'm not? Oh, I'm just in denial about it. Because culture is always right.

You know, drunken hookups happen all the time. Back in the old days nobody held on to it for fucking years because nobody was in their ears whispering "you're a victim now, act like it!"

Once again, if she was legitimately passed out, it was rape. But these details are always coupled with "I drank and don't remember." It's too easy of a copout.

And she has to debate in her head whether she's actually a victim.

If you get shot in the leg, do you have to debate your victimhood?

If somebody robs you at gunpoint, do you have to debate your victimhood?

Why is this one so hard to grasp? If a drunken hookup is so egregious that it should be considered one of the worst crimes against humanity ever, then why is anybody having a hard time grasping their own victimhood on this?

Girlfriend is raped; Bf offers space...and gets cheated on

161 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Agreed, I stay far far away from rape "survivors" because either they were actually raped and are fucked up from it, or worse, they weren't raped but they make shit up.

You want neither.

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

160 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wonder how long it will be before the SJW's and radfem's realize how much they fucked up.

I don't think you'll see them come to this conclusion. They are the higher caste, they will never see bad consequences from these actions.

In the words of Socrates:

Once made equal to man, woman becomes his superior.

Women know this won't be a problem for them, they are already our superiors. Their speech literally cannot be hate speech or sexism, why would they care what laws they pass to fuck us?

Unmarried 35-year-old woman reflects on her adventurous life of fun & travel : "This woman's .. life plan is that she chose whatever made her feel good from age 18-35+, and now wants to enter into a marriage..."

158 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

A lot of guys reminisce about the days of yesteryear when women would save their most important asset for their future husbands.

This train has left the station. Women are always going to prioritize "feeling good" every day, every year.

The payoff for women to get married is only slightly more good feeling than not after age 35 or so, when they've squarely hit the wall and no longer court the attention they did before.

This doesn't mean we can turn back the clock. It means that marriage, as an idea and as an institution, is dead.

Your next move is determining either what your family goals are, or deciding to enjoy the decline.

If you have your sights on family, what's the next move? Finding a country where the conditions are right to lower that age-to-fun ratio for women?

Apology to UCD students as 'consent app' proposal sparks uproar. "It's clear that the developer of the app's primary concern is not the safety of women nor is it to ensure that all sexual encounters are consensual."

157 upvotes · 18 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It would be funny to see it in action, but there are some caveats:

- No woman would sign it. She would claim that you've ruined the mood. Thus preserving the pussy cartel's right to change their minds in the future.
- Women (and therefore society) still believe they can revoke consent without saying or doing anything to make it obvious they want to stop. (such as saying "stop")
- Men could have notarized documents and he'll still be ruined if a determined woman wants to ruin him with false accusations from before or just after the event.
- Any time a consent agreement was challenged, the woman would claim duress, invalidating the contract.

Meet The Endorsed Contributors: CainPrice

153 upvotes · 17 July 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Make friends with men instead of women

This right here is the biggest mistake I see guys make (including myself when I was younger). They're looking for best friend qualities in the woman they want to date.

It's too often that I see a guy say "well we're both into the same video games so it's meant to be!" but the truth is the more you look for male brotherhood with women, the more you're going to be disappointed and the worse your actual friendships will be.

Women are not men. Do not expect to find a woman with all the same interests as you. Do not expect one that wants to talk about the same philosophical questions you have. Do not expect to find a woman with the same passions or interests as you.

By virtue of being a man, you already care far more about the intricacies of the dating market, psychology, comedy, guns, etc than a woman who has no need for such trivialities for her own mating strategy.

Why, then, would you expect "the one" to care about this stuff?

If you want to date your best guy friend, just be gay.

The Humiliation of Aziz Ansari

153 upvotes · 15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The author of this piece is still firmly plugged in, but it's still an interesting read.

"In so many ways, compared with today's young women, we were weak; we were being prepared for being wives and mothers, not occupants of the C-Suite. But as far as getting away from a man who was trying to pressure us into for sex we didn't want; we were strong. "

These are the working definitions feminists have been using for a while now. Anything pleasing to men is "weak." It's not just strongly implied at this point, it's spelled out in plain english.

The clinical detail in which the story is told is intended not to validate her account as much as it is to hurt and humiliate Ansari. Together, the two women may have destroyed Ansari's career, which is now the punishment for every kind of male sexual misconduct, from the grotesque to the disappointing.

The author didn't get this week's memo and accidentally starting pointing out cracks in the narrative. Good luck to her.

LTR of 8 years 'Accidentally' kissed another dude

152 upvotes · 29 February 2020 · /r/askTRP

Trickle truth.

No such thing as accidentally kissing somebody.

Chateau Heartiste Has Been Shuttered in What Appears to be WordPress' Opening Salvo as They Join the Greater Tech Censorship War.

152 upvotes · 10 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The second-most recent post from CH that hit my feed reader was literally called Corporate Conspiracy To Silence And Impoverish Political Dissidents

Feminist lives as a Man for 18 months to try to prove "Male Privilege". Learns Women are more Privileged than Men

152 upvotes · 1 September 2016 · /r/MensRights

Minor takeaway: many (most?) women are looking for caveman sex. They want muscle, they want hair and they want grunts. Virtue signaling doesn't wet panties.

Enter: The Red Pill

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

150 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy shitballs. Have you subscribed to <https://trp.red> yet?

Get there before you forget.

Are we the failed ones?

148 upvotes · 3 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

You're a failure when your measuring stick is a Disney fairytale.

Some goals are set by our culture to be unattainable. Of course you failed. That's why TRP exists.

Read the sidebar.

Coontown banned in new ambiguous Reddit policy for "existing solely to annoy other redditors."

148 upvotes · 6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We have plans for donations and tipping to help keep the servers afloat. But if you think I'm going to sell out, you must be new here.

I'm the doctor from r/askwomen, was told to come here. Show me around the place.

141 upvotes · 15 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Confirmed same user

In a high school sexting scandal involving 20 students, the 12 male students have been suspended, while the female students receive no punishment.

137 upvotes · 28 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

Why do we have anti-childporn laws? To protect the children.

What happens if a minor takes a self portrait? It's child pornography.

Do they get in trouble? Yes.

For doing what? Making child pornography.

Why is child pornography wrong? Because it hurts the children.

Why do we have anti-childporn laws? To protect the children.

[Mod] The Red Pill is not democratic. It cannot be in order to be a viably beneficial system for men.

135 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

In essence, the rule I've followed since the inception of the sub has been to allow for the free flow of ideas and debate, so long as it was made in earnest and logical in nature.

This immediately excluded content such as shaming or concern.. "but isn't that misogynist?"

The fact is, there's a reputation we've got that the mods here will ban anybody who disagrees or has an original idea, but it's far more nuanced than that. I say that we moderate by smell.

If you've got a good attitude and a logical mind and are happy to discuss ideas without attempting to concern troll or shame, you'll get along here no problem. But if you're here to champion the cause of social justice, we'll smell you. There's an attitude - a stink - that you give off that immediately singles you out. We'll know who you are, and you're gone.

Too many people come here hoping to hijack the topic of the sub by "just asking questions" but never conceding logical points, to co-opt the subreddit by agreeing with portions but attempting to modify language or steer the direction towards "healthier" mindsets..

Those are the people who don't make it.

Of course, you could say I'm being hypocritical, since that's basically what I do- steer the direction of the sub myself. But I don't give a fuck, things will go the way I want them and there will never be a soul to change my mind. That's what made us who we are today, and that's the steady course we will continue.

"Hot Girls Wanted" - "The film intended to show how difficult life is for these girls, but instead it shows how incredibly entitled and spoiled they are." -Roosh

134 upvotes · 15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's interesting to me that someone would set out to make a documentary that highlights the ease with which women can make money simply by flashing some tits and expect it to prove their victimhood.

Why you need to shut up and listen: A litmus test you all failed.

133 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not on this mod team's watch.

Guy makes a mild sexual joke while sitting in the audience at a programming conference, female "developer evangelist" nearby gets offended and raises a shitstorm, gets the guy - a father of three - fired

132 upvotes · 20 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The height of feminism: When somebody over-reacts to a small joke, ruins a man's life... AND HE APOLOGIZES FOR IT.

/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!

130 upvotes · 24 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Hah, not quite. We wanted to refocus the purpose of this sub and bring theory back into the fold. Now was a good time to do it, but it wasn't specifically because of subredditoftheday. It doesn't hurt that new members will see specifically the sort of content we're looking to expand on, but they're all welcome to browse our archives.

Pair starts an open relationship. The husband isn't allowed to deliberately search for a partner. The wife comes home a week later with a bruised anus after having never allowed her husband in there. Should he end it?

130 upvotes · 5 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

my wife got upset that I was "looking for something" when she wanted the relationship to come to me.

Well, there's your sign man.

Chick already had a guy lined up when she recommended it, she doesn't want him taking advantage of this, and she knows full well he'll never find a woman without some effort.

More doublethink from r/relationships... Beta wants his newlywed virgin wife to start putting out: "Don't pressure her! Therapy! Patience!" Beta wants to stop providing the one-sided masturbation only she enjoys: "Selfish! Manipulative! Shamer!"

130 upvotes · 30 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So, you walk away. She's not your wife. That marriage was never consummated.

Why would anybody marry a woman who actually thinks your body is gross?

Edit: Oh my god- the number of suggestions to "get therapy" for either her or couples therapy... is nobody reading this?? They just got married. Couples therapy three weeks in?? This is a bad marriage.

Double Edit: From one of OP's replies:

Right now I think she's just been exposed so little to male genitalia or sex in general, that her mind can't handle it.

I hate to tell you this, but she's acting a little more like she has been exposed to genitalia more than what was healthy. Probably at a young age. This reaction is common among sexually abused people. That and extreme nymphomania.

Negging is Dumb

128 upvotes · 13 February 2024 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is when a charismatic guy talks about playfully teasing a woman to get her to qualify herself to him is read as "be mean as though somebody hurt you" by the great autists of trp.

[25m] my girlfriend[24f] told me she had only slept with 3 guys, her best friend[24f] blurted out that they slept with a guy every city in Europe they visited

128 upvotes · 7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

If she's a plate? Just make sure you wrap it up and keep on plowing.

If it's a LTR, well shame on you for not properly vetting, but silent-downgrade to plate is in order.

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

126 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm glad I started my migration to trp.red because the hammer may fall soon enough. Stay vigilant.

Indeed.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

126 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Every doctor should say no to this. You don't mutilate working body parts so a patient can risk their lives against infection just so they can realize that gender dysphoria doesn't go away after the surgery and they still kill themselves.

All Red Pill Sidebar In One PDF

126 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Nice effort. I've rehosted it here so it doesn't disappear one day:

<http://a.trp.red/sidebar>

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

125 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Admin: "We can't review your appeal until you tell us when you stopped beating your wife!"

I Archived The Entire Subreddit And Coded A Simple Website To Read It

122 upvotes · 8 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks. So did we. <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

We will always welcome more backup points, so thank you for helping out.

Our backup includes 3,176 Posts between TRP and AskTRP. With over 519,619 individual comments.

Counting RPW and ThankTRP, our total archive is 4,573 posts.

Instant search can be found here

In case of emergency we will release the entire database as torrent. FYI.

Forums opening soon with new mobile-friendly design.

Trolls, concern trolls, and the way we weed you out.

122 upvotes · 28 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Probably because you read it.

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

120 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Notice they're isn't a lot about working on improving THEMSELVES. It's filled with 'you deserve better gurrll' BS.

+1

The world is scared of men congregating. Red Pill state of affairs 2016

120 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Most guys have at least the idea in their heads that something doesn't add up. So when they see guys saying stuff that makes sense, they latch on.

Same as when I discovered the manosphere. I had always bought the blue pill way of life. But it didn't add up. When I read people posting manosphere material, it didn't take much convincing for me to realize that this is the explanation for nothing adding up.

Whores & Daughters

120 upvotes · 11 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women bond to men through sex. Men bond through physical and emotional sacrifice. Women are used up by sex in a way men aren't. I've always inherently known this. I find it shocking that so many women aren't privy to this. To me it seems more likely that they are, but simply don't care and think they can lie their way to where they want to be. The thing is, as you say, they never truly win, something always feels missing to them and it's because they've fucked themselves up and their ability to pair bond by riding the carousel so hard. They're chasing a sense of closeness and connection that they can no longer achieve. They have become too desensitised to men, love and sex. They are in a way, soulless, damaged, self-condemned, incapable of the kind of love that fosters happy, lasting monogamy.

This is one of those fundamental truths that women and the sjw crowd will do their best to deny. And if you listen to their argument it's pretty convincing. We're all the same afterall. What nonsense it is to consider that sex would affect women differently than men.

But then you witness it, and you realize the truth. There's a glimmer in women's eyes that they lose, there's real truth to that element women lose.

Why is this working?

120 upvotes · 24 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Ask yourself who enforces these things to be true? If you had your way, things wouldn't be this way, would they? Yet somebody demands you adapt this behavior. Who is that somebody?

They have got you so well trained to be blue pill, that you actually feel guilt when you embrace reality and do what gets rewarded. Think about that for a second. You found something that works, and your first gut instinct is to feel guilt.

Think about why you feel that. Then let anger take the place of guilt. And then soon, acceptance.

I was a beta and accidentally did a pua routine on a girl once. We've been married for 10 years now

118 upvotes · 13 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Shit you tricked her into marrying you. You should divorce her, staying together is abuse.

My Girlfriend Tried to "take a break" Last Night

117 upvotes · 31 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, that whole "we need to talk" or "give me a couple hours to think..." are manipulative tactics I wouldn't stand for.

If a girl I was seeing needed time to think about staying with me, I'd make the decision easy for her. "You know what, hun, take all the time you need."

And never talk to her again.

Beta Forums Live - FORUMS.RED

115 upvotes · 21 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Alphas don't need us anymore.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

114 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Nature's experiment. Women stay in the safe zone while men vary. The outcome is women can select what's best for them (and, as a side effect, the future).

Suzanne Venker: "Why men won't marry you."

114 upvotes · 10 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

We live in a culture where anything moderately nice or respectful a wife could do (take care of her man, do laundry, cook, smile, be pleasant) are considered degrading for women. Why would you tie yourself to that?

The weakened signal hits home. "A new study is making the rounds that found a mismatch between the imaginary men unmarried women are planning on marrying, and the real life unmarried men available..." "They found that a woman's made-up hubby makes 58 percent more money than [available] bachelors."

112 upvotes · 14 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What's funny is, it's not a terrible strategy for men anyway.

Don't settle down in your twenties. Be the bad boy. Establish yourself as you approach your thirties, and then finally have the resources to start a family with an early twenty-something who is looking for an older man.

22 year old guys didn't stand a chance anyway.

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

112 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the exact post that triggered me posting this. And removing that.

I guess red pill guys can get triggered.

7% Thoery

111 upvotes · 20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not a CEO on the FTSE 100. Explain that Cathy.

The Rational Male, Positive Masculinity

111 upvotes · 27 July 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

It's pinned now, man you so needy.

All Men Are Like That

111 upvotes · 10 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's worth noting that the feminine imperative has always been at work cultivating beta behaviors, even before feminism. Long ago our ancestors had the bright idea to keep women out of most positions of power and control because the destruction it would bring upon civilization. We had religion to control hypergamy, we had removed a woman's ability to survive or compete without fidelity to her husband. It rewarded the average beta-type men and made civilization go.

Once these controls were removed, female hypergamy ran rampant and continued to do what it always did-uninhibited.

But make no mistake, the pluralistic strategy of women has always been alpha fucks, beta bucks. Most men have always leaned beta.

I know that I leaned beta when I started on the red pill.

Thank god you can work on that.

Also, in before people start using alpha and beta as nouns. They're behavioral descriptors, not people.

Be selfish, dismissive, amused, and communicate less -- the keys to success

109 upvotes · 13 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Very good practical advice for those in LTRs. Thanks Arch!

Be amused at anger

Great advice. Take a step back and realize that defending yourself or trying to resolve the conflict is pointless. She's not rationally upset, why would being rational suddenly fix it?

♂

Sheilas' Wheels unveils PinkZones - Women only lanes.

107 upvotes · 27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm completely fine with that as long as the only cars permitted in those lanes were also designed and built entirely by women.

Hahaha, and the roads paved by women too.

♂

The Red Pill is Pro-Woman

107 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Take note of precisely what women/feminists typically claim to be a bad imbalance of power that causes said "mind control." Any factor that boosts a man's sexual value. It's so engrained that sexual value for men is evil and wrong, that even people here on TRP tend to get shamey when it's brought up.

For instance, the age gap. As it turns out, being an older, established man is just preying on insecure, weak women. Think about this for a second- women are naturally turned on by and attracted to older, established, successful men. But if a man takes advantage of this -- he's wrong. He's bad.

It becomes politically incorrect to use your advantages to attract women. You should date somebody your own age.

What about beauty? If age and status boost men's SMV, then beauty and youth are women's equivalent. Feminists don't seem to care that a young beautiful woman has such an enormous amount of power, they can make a living off of just having tits, control men, get men to buy them things, and a variety of other things.

Women can leverage their SMV without any backlash- it is strictly when men do that it becomes wrong. Because how dare men attract women!

It's just standard fare for the hypoagents. When faced with somebody of significantly higher SMV, they actually cannot resist. The guy should know better than allow a woman to be attracted to him.

Worse than a Cokehead | Beware the Coquette

107 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Like an alcoholic trying to get last drop out of every empty bottle left in the house, she's starting to feel the wall and she's sucking as much validation down as she can reach with her tongue.

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Show the Admin who Should Really Be Banned! /r/BanBanouts

106 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Your wish is my command. <https://www.forums.red/>

Stop Reddit Censorship Join Our Petition: 1-Hour Boycott Nov 1st 4:00 PM PDT - Please Share

104 upvotes · 29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If I gave you an API for trp.red would you do it?

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

104 upvotes · 27 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We ask all members to remain calm, continue following reddit rules, and don't harass the admin or other members.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

103 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I dunno, have you met some of these feminists these days?

So it begins- our society will no longer be covert about it. Women will rape and steal from you, this is your place in society. This is acceptable. Arizona statutory rape victim forced to pay child support

103 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't teach men to defend against rape, teach rapists to stop charging their victims for child support!

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

102 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

However, cognitive tests show an effect size of only 0.2 in favour of men, just 3 IQ points. In consequence, at IQ 130 70% are men and at IQ 145 80% are men.

Whoops! Misogyny!

The Sexodus in action: millennials are having less sex.

101 upvotes · 4 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Some factors that I think are helping these stats:

- Instant and free access to porn (not a substitute for sex, but definitely lowers men's drive to achieve natural sex).
- Feminism changing female attitudes.
- The shift in the sexual market taking away opportunity where betas used to thrive.
- Obesity.

Feminists are ugly. - I can't think of any men my age or younger who don't know how to cook [or] don't enjoy cooking. This is in stark contrast to the women of the same generations, who (typically) view cooking as an indignity.

100 upvotes · 29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As somebody who worked retail in highschool, the women's bathrooms were always far worse than the men's.

Women are fucking nasty when they're not trying to impress men.

"I've been hurt in the past."

99 upvotes · 18 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As I've said to many a plate: Why would I pay for something you give away for free?

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

98 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Politics is an abstract tool used to control a people. Sex is the best way to control people. Therefore politics is a way to control sex.

The world is scared of men congregating. Red Pill state of affairs 2016

98 upvotes · 4 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I would be lying if I said I wrote it soft.

A lesson in holding frame from Jon Stewart

96 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What's really interesting to note is her look of disapproval, or rather, her lack of playful face, she was trying to destroy Jon by not being cooperative. Basically, if she makes the interview awkward and he can't recover it, she can make him look bad.

This isn't the normal teasing, this is bitch mode and I've run into a lot of women like that. (which I think is more common in some areas than others.)

Her comment was just the opening salvo, it was her follow up of not cracking or relenting that was her attack. She wanted it to look like Jon wasn't funny and tried to suck the energy out of the room. And in a context where he didn't have an audience, that might have worked.

But he did, and they were there to see him, not her, so it didn't work out for her.

But she's used to using her validation or lack thereof to qualify or disqualify people. This is interesting because often when women shit test, they back down when you hold frame.

She didn't back down at all.

Stewart used some self-deprecating humor I think to somewhat bring her back to earth but she didn't take the bait, and I think he did a pretty good job after that. I wouldn't necessarily say this is the best example of holding frame, I could feel the tension and he did have an obvious emotional reaction. But it wasn't a bad way to nuke her on live television.

[FR] She doubled down on polyamory and has been summarily nexted.

96 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Polyamory is a reframed name for open relationship.

Polyamory is a woman's attempt at socially legitimized hypergamy.

The Bottom Line: Women Are Weak

96 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why is the Starbucks packed with chicks? Why does every girl have uggs, an iPhone, and makes duck-face in their pictures? Because women lack the strength of decision-making and risk-taking through creativity. Their worst fear is being shunned by the herd. This is a sign of weakness.

Take it a step further. They do this because they are non-confrontational and are designed to specifically avoid standing out in a crowd. Their job is survival by avoiding conflict. They are herd creatures. It's the reason they don't reject you directly (you're a great guy, I just want to be friends), why they don't approach you directly (I hope that guy comes over and talks to me), and why they fight using passive aggression, rumors, and talking behind other people's backs.

It's their survival strategy to avoid confrontation.

.. Because they're weak.

Feminist reddit CEO loses gender discrimination lawsuit

95 upvotes · 31 March 2015 · /r/MensRights

Does it just kill her to know she's the CEO of theredpill?

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

95 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Luckily the community self polices that stuff. Had a score of zero.

Why They Haven't Banned Us

94 upvotes · 21 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

We allow him to put a link at the bottom for his shirts, but if he posts something we deem particularly low quality, he gets deleted like anybody else.

That said, you're welcome to downvote, or if the content is low-quality, click report.

Verify your username on Puerarchy

94 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Our backup mirrors reddit's function and also had archived threads from here, no worries.

I am Karen Straughan [girlwriteswhat]; Ask Me Anything.

94 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Welcome, Karen. Thanks for taking the time to do this. I suspect you're going to have a lot of typing ahead of you!

Since getting involved in the Men's Rights Movement, have you felt as though men's interests are gaining ground, or that men's rights is going to be a fruitful cause?

I ask, not because I believe men shouldn't have rights (I'm certainly a supporter), but because sometimes it seems like the equality and egalitarianism that men wish for (such as destroying gender roles) aren't exactly realistic- that is men need to act like men to attract women.

What are your thoughts on this?

Teachers urged to listen to pupils' chatter - "They should be on the lookout for talk of the 'manosphere', 'red pills' and so-called 'men's rights activists'," he added.

93 upvotes · 22 August 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Nothing is more dangerous to the status quo than men's success.

Reddit Anti-Evil Operations Decidedly Evil as They Remove Pro-Equality Post from TRP

92 upvotes · 10 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Woke culture is objectively racist. Critical Race Theory hinges on inherent, irreconcilable racial differences that can only be overcome via fixing the rules of the game via legislation and discrimination.

It is, by all definitions before 2010, racism at its very core.

Which is why all words must change under the new banner of social justice.

Words = Violence

Disagreement = Hate

Hate = Crime

Riots = Peaceful

Michelle Obama: 'Women Are Smarter Than Men'

91 upvotes · 6 August 2014 · /r/MensRights

Of course our genes are irrelevant. As you know, we're all just blank canvasses until the patriarchy takes hold.

[META] I notice of late that many comments are attracting rather a lot of downvotes. Say a constructive comment near the top being +15 (+60 -45). Are we being brigaded?

91 upvotes · 8 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Always. Move along.

Georgia (Feminist) Legislators introduce HB 604: Any male 55 years of age or older shall immediately report to the county sheriff or local law enforcement agency when such male releases sperm from his

90 upvotes · 21 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Obviously such a bill will never pass, and my understanding is that they've done this in an absurdist retaliation for a republican abortion bill, but there's something to be said that they even considered writing down those words and haven't been run outta town. Imagine what would happen if male legislators wrote "women must report their periods to local law enforcement..."

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

89 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd love to know what their Tuesday Morning meeting looked like.

James Deen Breaks His Silence: 'I Am Completely Baffled' by Rape Allegations

89 upvotes · 8 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

I'm inclined to believe James Deen because I know exactly how distorted these stories can be when a woman has a vendetta against you.

It's far too convenient for all these women to come out of hiding the minute there's fame and money involved.

The fact is, there are only positive outcomes for these women to make these allegations, there will never be a negative outcome for being exposed as a liar.

This is just another example of feminism making interacting with women a liability. It's well known that feminists don't care for porn- whether it's because it's degrading, treats women like sexual objects, or if it's literally just sex robots that they don't like.

Here's an easy way to put mines in the field, make being a porn star a liability.

All Red Pill Sidebar In One PDF

89 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This should be stickied and added to the sidebar.

Once we add it to the sidebar, he's going to need to update the pdf with the new sidebar content. It gets a little hairy after that point.

edit: just making a recursion joke

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

89 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

[DELETED]

Does this really work?

89 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

but I am scared of changing into one of those cocky assholes that I hate

Here's a question. Have you ever wondered why you hate these guys, and they get the girls?

What caused you to hate them? Was it people telling you "that's no way to be! It's not honorable!" Was it your mom? Was it your girlfriends? Was it movies and television?

Ask yourself why you're holding the idea that you should avoid at all costs being somebody who currently has shown he knows how to get women. When you really think about it... is it really hate? Did you come up with this hate? Or was it learned?

On platitudes, imperatives, and unsolicited advice

88 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They weren't bad content in and of themselves, but they did start growing in number and replacing the kind of quality analysis that we take pride in, so I think now was a good time to put a stop to them.

We'll be okay without them.

So it begins- our society will no longer be covert about it. Women will rape and steal from you, this is your place in society. This is acceptable. Arizona statutory rape victim forced to pay child support

88 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In essence, this is a good thing, because we've now drawn attention to just how fucked up the "best interest of the child" concept is when applying it wholesale to hold men responsible for women's decisions.

In this case, there is quite clearly a line that was crossed in the name of "best interest of the child," which is undeniably wrong-- and yet, is the exact same logic being used in every other case where a woman is free to make a decision that men will ultimately be held accountable for.

If we can prove that "best interest of the child" is not a proper standard to hold random parties responsible for an irresponsible woman's actions, (including theft of sperm and rape), then the entire structure of moving resources from men to women starts to break down.

Feminists want a world where they have all the options, all the time

88 upvotes · 20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As I've always maintained, feminism is first and foremost a sexual strategy.

Are we the bad guys but we don't get it?

88 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They use shame and insults, but where are the arguments?

I'll start rethinking my position when somebody shows me proof that I'm wrong.

I think the most telling fact that re-enforces my opinion of red pill is that most of us started on that side of the fence and only came over to this side because our original views were demonstrably wrong. Most of us didn't want red pill theory to be true. It's dirty garbage that suggests that we're more victim to our instinct than mom, dad, or sesame street ever let on. It suggests that deep down inside, nobody's special and that love that we so desperately crave is evolution's way of controlling men to ensure the species' survival.

It makes me sick just thinking about it. Of course we didn't want this shit to be true.

But when you start reading it and realizing that it explains your observations better than any other model you've read or heard about, you start wondering, is there truth to this?

And the real kicker for me, and a lot of men, is when embracing the red pill started getting me results. I can't argue with that.

TL;DR

Red pill theory explains historical observations, makes predictions, and predictions are met with results.

Want more shame? Check out this thread:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1dkjdz/user_uj2501_suggests_that_women_should_be_more/

EDIT Regarding /u/tpiecer Troll below, my response:

I'm going to put a stop to this stupidity. Our philosophy isn't a five word catchphrase that we conjure every time some moron walks by and claims that if we don't define it right away it lacks definition.

The sidebar is, in fact, a collection of works that accurately describes the red pill philosophy. It's wordy, yes. I'm sorry that you'll actually have to read something.

Don't come here with ridiculous demands and then march around as if you've won something with a ridiculous accusation as "if you don't answer me right now with exactly what I want you're wrong."

That's like saying, hey- somebody quickly, from memory, tell me what the United States is.

"Well it's a country."

That's not enough! YOU LOSE!

Are we the failed ones?

87 upvotes · 3 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

If your goal was to have a family and a house and a white picket fence, you've been sold a pipe dream that serves nothing but the feminine imperative. The few who are able to break their backs to serve their feminine overlords quickly discover that there's nothing positive in it for them. Whether it takes divorce rape, false abuse accusations, or losing custody of their children, men learn that the dream wasn't theirs.

Having a job is a good way to make money. No doubt, living at home kills your social life. But in the back of your mind, what measuring stick do you use for success?

Far too often I see men worshiping the "man-up" ideal. Self sufficiency is important for long-term success. But that doesn't mean your current place in life renders you a failure... unless you're measuring yourself by the feminine-primary directive that tells you being a peter-pan makes you worthless.

The goals set for us as men in our culture are there to serve women and nothing more. Failing to achieve them feels bad to our blue-pill conditioning because we believe these qualities make us men.

You're hooked on oneitis right now, and you lament that your past is behind you. The future is where you need to focus.

Don't pay attention to how you fail to meet cultural expectations, because that's a losing battle my friend.

Start working out. Not just because it builds muscle, but it will also help your state of mind.

Start looking for a career.

Start building new networks.

Believe it or not, what feels like unbearable pain will one day be the time you look back on and reminisce. This pain is the catalyst to achieving greatness. Without this pain, people fall into mediocrity. I don't look back at my glory days when I was young and miss the adventures. I look back on the lowest point in my life and realizing that the fear and crippling depression I had then was the most important factor in changing my life.

The Cock Carousel, Beta Bucks, and Polygraphs. r/relationships case file #976224

87 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I was a free spirit in college before I figured out what I wanted to do and took a year off to travel before graduating.

Two things to note: Free spirit equates to slut. Every time you hear free spirit, remember, it means slut.

Number two: taking time to "travel." Traveling means discovering exotic cocks to suck and fuck. It will literally never mean anything else. This is women taking pleasure at their raw sexual market value. Not investing it like you expect a prudent man would with a windfall, by the way, but spending it casually for cheap thrills.

Any time a girl takes time to travel, that is what it means.

A question I also tend to ask myself, where did this young early twenties girl get enough scratch to just vacation in europe for an entire year?

It's either a man paying for her slutquest (father or boyfriend) or it's student loans, in which case it will be a man paying for it. (future boyfriend, beta bucks).

Get money, get women. Guy awkwardly asks girl for her number, she rejects him. He gets in his lambo, she quickly changes her mind.

86 upvotes · 15 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They should be ashamed because they claim they're not like this.

I Was Fooled By The Promise Of The Internet - If you dare to publicly share the truth on the internet, they will ban you. RooshV

85 upvotes · 24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

When the attack against you does come, you will be struck by how banal your thought crime actually was. If you have the predilection for understanding and sharing the truth of your reality, I promise that they will come for you. If not today then tomorrow.

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inured and so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it." Cognitive dissonance-whenver bias prevents someone from even considering an alternative view let alone weigh the merits.

85 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"Did you ask why he was reading TRP stuff? Unless there's an intelligent or academic reason, I'd peace out of that relationship ASAP."

"If your boyfriend is part of the redpill/"manosphere" communities then I think it's time to get a new boyfriend."

"I'd advise dumping his childish ass, and maybe tossing him into the river just to be safe."

(remember folks, TRP is full of violence, and violence is bad unless it's against a man)

"Why are you still seeing him?"

"Do not pass go. Just get out. I'm sorry. I'm sure he has many appealing qualities. None of them with make up for being an insecure bully. I've been down that road."

The feminine imperative working hard to protect its own interests. It could read:

"Guys discussing female strategy? We must punish this behavior at the cost of this individual's relationship to make an example and promote our group's interests."

Bitcoin: The biggest wage gap experiment ever devised

85 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Even with the alt-coins blowing up right now, none of the women I know are interested. "I don't care about your fake coins..."

Meanwhile almost every coin I have has seen a 100-1000% increase...

There's certainly a bubble happening right now. It's fascinating. Nobody wants to miss the next bitcoin, and because of it, people are jumping on every damn coin there is. And since they know the time frame to the moon is possibly a few years.. everybody's holding except the day traders.

Makes me think we should start a red pill coin.

UVA Jackie lied about gang rape, terminal illness, and invented a dude, all to manipulate one guy into fucking her

85 upvotes · 10 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Are you a straight man? Well any time you have sex in a woman you are sticking your dick in crazy.

Right? It's like saying "oh, want to make money on the stock market? Only invest in stocks that will go up."

Thanks for the advice asshole.

100,000

85 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for the kind words, Jon. Means a lot.

I've updated your flair, don't know why it wasn't done sooner.

Getting ready to black-knight a high school girl

85 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

My finger was on the remove button, but was pleasantly surprised with the results.

Just approached a girl. .

85 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/seduction

"I have the perfect cure for depression..."

How To Use The Desperation of Ukrainian War Refugees to Your Sexual Advantage

84 upvotes · 21 March 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

20 pounds overweight

Ah, I see we have an optimist among us.

A mother who left her sick, three-month-old baby alone to die while she had a whiskey fuelled sex marathon with a man she met at a bus stop has avoided jail.

84 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Woman gets away with murder. Men don't. How is this non -optimal?

New Netflix movie coming out about how evil the manosphere is. Big surprise, we turn boys into monsters! It takes place in the UK where a SWAT team of 30 fully geared up dudes go to arrest a teen boy for posting online. Fuckin UK

83 upvotes · 28 February 2025 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll be surprised if they name TRP by name, since the media all got together and came to an agreement that mentioning us by name made us famous as fuck and they needed to stop doing that. (Shoutout to American Horror Story for giving us full cred, tho).

Once again, boys are being maligned by society. This internet thing is so out of control they don't know what to do about it so they have to go with demonization.

I don't know much about the movie beyond the trailer so I could be wrong but it looks like a boy liked a girl, tried to do some "game" and it went horribly wrong and she killed herself. If I were a betting man, I'd put money on "negging" being the culprit.

They use stuff like this and couple it with the internet's most famous misogynist Tate to paint this horrible, ugly, underground network of boys egging each other on to become psychopaths. No mention, of course, that society taught women to become outright narcissists. YOU GO GIRL! YOU DESERVE IT! Boys? Oh you're a bunch of incels!

Meanwhile here we are, just trying to give boys and men purpose and identity in a culture that is still lacking in positive outlets for men.

New Monopoly Game Gives Women More Money Than Men -- further proving that women need handouts to perform anywhere close to as good as men.

83 upvotes · 14 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It always strikes me as comical when the social justice fems inadvertently prove our points when they make their ham-fisted attempts at punishing men for their perceived inequalities. So you're saying that women need more money to compete in a game about luck and raw competition?

Also, this is funny.

Do not intermingle your finances with any woman you aren't married to

83 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Splitting living expenses makes plenty of sense, especially with a LTR or starting a family.

What you mean to say is- don't put yourself in a position where you're financially dependent on a woman.

And of course, always keep finances separate. Never get married.

James Damore sues Google, alleging intolerance of white male conservatives

83 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

He doesn't have much to lose, but he has a lot to gain if he decides not to settle.

Though I'm not sure what the rules are in a class action suit.

Man accidentally "rapes" his girlfriend

81 upvotes · 25 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Rape or not, one thing's for sure: that girl is mentally a child. Look at all the tell tale signs here:

1. She doesn't actually set boundaries, instead she works hard to ensure there are blurry lines, and then entices him to cross them.
2. She gets instantly "upset" when he does what he thinks she's been trying to get him to do.
3. She does not actually resist. She knows full well if she just gets out of bed and says "no, I really mean it." that he'll stop. She does no such thing. She does not feel responsible for removing herself from the situation. (and why should she? Legally she's in the right no matter what happens. Everything is rape, you know).
4. She's now playing drama queen and keeping him hanging, wondering what's going to happen. She knows she controls the situation and she's playing it.
5. She refuses to communicate now, as an adult, hiding behind the guise that this was actually a traumatic experience. Hint: unless you grew up in fucking pony land where you shit rainbows and all your food is pre-chewed, this experience was not traumatic.

The idea that we should coddle women for having to deal with every day situations that are simply not that big of a deal is fuckign stupid as fuck. You know, I had a girl give me a blow job and try to straddle me when I wasn't in the mood. I told her, no, not tonight, not in the mood. She went for it anyway. I didn't have the energy to stop her, nor the gumption to deal with the argument that would ensue afterwards, so I just let her do her thing. It was over in 20 minutes and I was able to sleep. Am I now traumatized? I would be it I was told that I'm a special fucking snowflake that has no need to lift a finger for the universe to bend to my will. I would be traumatized if I believed that the action of putting her mouth on my dick would somehow cause more damage than murder itself.

But I don't believe those things because it's stupid as shit. This girl is stupid, manipulative, and childish.

As they tend to be, in my experience.

Avoid her like the plague.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

80 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We're also bigots if you acknowledge the number of genders is two and that giving a child hormones to transition is child abuse!

Woman unintentionally admits to core TRP tenet

80 upvotes · 16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women will always deny what it is they're attracted to. Their entire mating strategy is to prime men to be their future beta providers. Which is why they'll always describe their alpha as "a really nice guy." They wouldn't give away a secret.

Also, this is a big reason why debates over in purplepill never work, because at the end of the day, women really believe what they're saying, so when you say "women like alpha dick" they always respond, "that's not true, I like nice guys, my last boyfriend was sooo nicceeeee."

Well yeah, in your reality distortion field, everything that makes your vagina tingle is nice.

Am I at a point where I just can't help but see AFBB in everything?

79 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Going to paris without her boyfriend was already doing something she shouldn't be doing.

There's a 0% chance she was there without him to get closer to him.

The 3 biggest whores I know all parrot the same line when confronted: Can't be a coincidence... possibly nsfw

79 upvotes · 11 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"I just needed to know what it was like, you know, experience life... get it out of my system."

-Women on the carousel.

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

78 upvotes · 18 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Not only that, they now want to cast moving to platforms that aren't actively engaged in censorship as some sort of scary move.

Right? It's fucking crazy insane scary when you consider the implications of what they're saying...

The internet shouldn't exist except the anointed approved websites.

Contraception Prevents Love | "I believe that most women will only retain enough adhesive to sleep with between one to five men in their lives before irreparably damaging their ability to love any man."

78 upvotes · 1 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it's different than simply being alpha widowed-

I think what we're seeing in effect is women hold on to the best features of each man they bag, and become alpha widowed not by any single alpha, but instead by a conglomeration of all the most alpha qualities that no single man she's been with could live up to.

Essentially, she sees each individual trait as within her league, and then gets upset that they're not all in one guy.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

78 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

they are powerless to stop themselves.

They are nothing more than creatures of emotion, forever victim to the whims of their irrationality.

Male rape victim (14 at the time) forced to pay child support to the rapist (20 at the time)

78 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/PussyPass

In essence, this is a good thing, because we've now drawn attention to just how fucked up the "best interest of the child" concept is when applying it wholesale to hold men responsible for women's decisions.

In this case, there is quite clearly a line that was crossed in the name of "best interest of the child," which is undeniably wrong-- and yet, is the exact same logic being used in every other case where a woman is free to make a decision that men will ultimately be held accountable for.

If we can prove that "best interest of the child" is not a proper standard to hold random parties responsible for an irresponsible woman's actions, (including theft of sperm and rape), then the entire structure of moving resources from men to women starts to break down.

Today I saw first hand how chicks use guys like an ATM's

77 upvotes · 20 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That's not the worst idea I've heard...

Daughter lies about abuse, Son gets thrown in Jail

77 upvotes · 12 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's impossible for fathers to discipline their daughters these days when a few tears can get any male member of the family thrown in jail. Now you know why western women are the way they are.

This is actually hinting on a bigger picture that I've been putting together for the past few years.

The end game of feminism is to ensure that all interaction with women is a legal liability and so any continued exposure that you get with a woman is entirely at her whim and mercy.

Women are effectively ensuring that the only guys who are able to succeed with women have to break the law to do so. Part of it is a major shit test, separating the boys who are afraid from the men who aren't. But part of it is gaining control of all social interaction. When women hold all the cards at all times, they have maximum options.

And yes, this makes them spoiled. Much like the brat King Joffrey in Game of Thrones, if nobody can discipline you, then you will never mature.

How to Kiss and other basics

77 upvotes · 16 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This belongs over at /r/trpgame but the answers are good so I'm leaving it up.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

76 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

She actively denies you, she's so turned off by you that she doesn't even want oral from you let alone to you.

And you call it a benefit because you like boring, duty sex with a woman who doesn't like you.

How far are you willing to rationalize to make up for the very strong signal she's sending you?

I try to look after her needs

You're putting 100% more effort in than she is. And you don't see the problem with this.

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

76 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're on the right path there, mate. Welcome. Enjoy the sidebar!

What a REAL Rape Culture Looks Like.

76 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists are obsessed with rape because we live in a rape fantasy culture, where feminists wish they were hot enough to be rape-able.

#NoNothingNov 2016: Give Up Vices, Forge New Habits.

75 upvotes · 1 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Our bans are over attitude, not opinions. Looks like you're not banned currently, so I suggest you keep moving.

PSA: If you're new here, social media is a poison for you.

75 upvotes · 22 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Step one, ignore what people here call alpha. It's hyperbolic and impossible to emulate.

Step two, start approaching women and learn from your rejections. As you get better, you will learn what women want.

Everything else is noise.

Theory helps glue it together but isn't necessary to start getting laid. Practice is.

My Interview with Dylan Love of Business Insider

75 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- Has verbally sharing these ideas with others in your personal life ever generated an especially heated or productive conversation? Were women participating?

A lot of guys aren't ready for this information. I have personal friends who have run into relationship troubles, one after another, and they never quite grasp what they're doing wrong. But you can't exactly explain it to them. There's too much ego and pride invested in the ideals they grew up with. They usually have to hit rock bottom before they really decide to open their eyes and seek out the truth. Some may never.

I've had many friends that were women who have independently agreed with the core ideas of the red pill. Most women are at least somewhat aware of the red pill. There are a ton of similar reports on the forum. There are some very red-pill women who understand what's attractive to them.

- If a woman adds no value to a man's life, e.g. a female coworker who rarely crosses your path or never have cause to talk to, should she take up any space in a man's mind?

I think it goes both ways. Nobody troubles themselves with people who don't provide some amount of value. Obviously it's uncouth to suggest that interpersonal relationships can be discussed like economics, but there it is. Women rarely give attention to men they don't find value in- it's obvious if you spend a few minutes at a bar. Men will go to great lengths to show value to women. Build muscles, wear fancy clothes, and drive fast cars. Some of these things effectively demonstrate value, some don't.

Men, on the other hand, are quite programmed to see value in women quite easily. This is something that can be abused, if you don't keep your eye on it. Women and men should provide equal value to each other, in a good relationship. The problem for a lot of guys that end up on The Red Pill is that they find themselves providing a lot of value (buying things for women, providing, being as good to them as possible), because they over-value the very fact that they're women. We theorize that women don't even like that!

Motion to Condemn MRA groups because MRA groups condemn feminism as violent. (PDF) see p.17, first entry.

75 upvotes · 30 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

There's no reason to sugar coat it. A system to take away my rights or prevent me from having certain rights? Yeah, I'm keen to hate that.

Honest question for this community

74 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm approving this one. You didn't do well on votes but let's see the discussion.

The Secret of a Tender Elam

74 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Now he's getting pissy at the only place on the internet that allows that anger.

And the only place that accepts men's pain as legitimate.

Don't let your distrust of women make you choose to not have children. That's an abject surrender of your most fundamental power.

74 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I disagree. Distrust of women is a perfectly valid reason not to have kids. In fact, abstaining is flexing your control -not surrendering it. Your option to do nothing speaks much louder than just putting up with the family court system and deciding that you wish to be put through the wringer for the sake of making a baby. It's the people who tolerate the system that keeps the system going.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

74 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The logical extrapolation of their entire argument is "nothing is knowable, everything is magic." There will be no productive debate taking place there.

A great way to deal with the "BF" Mention

74 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Would you like to go out?

Oh I don't think my boyfriend would like that.

That's why he's not invited.

Teachers urged to listen to pupils' chatter - "They should be on the lookout for talk of the 'manosphere', 'red pills' and so-called 'men's rights activists'," he added.

73 upvotes · 22 August 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

He gets more views than all the news outlets combined. They can't have that!

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

73 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You supplicate her and settle for scraps, and are thankful for the opportunity.

And you wonder why she's not enthusiastic about pleasing you...

You can rationalize to yourself that you like your oral-free duty sex because that's all you get- but you're not fooling anybody here.

The Cock Carousel, Beta Bucks, and Polygraphs. r/relationships case file #976224

73 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Men are expected to be far more accepting of flaws and even outright misrepresentations when selecting their partners.

Women self-handicap to ensure compliance. For instance, ever notice how women brag about what should be negative traits?

"I'm bitchy, and hard to handle, so you better be ready for that..."

"I'm selfish, impatient and a little insecure. I make mistakes, I am out of control and at times hard to handle. But if you can't handle me at my worst, then you sure as hell don't deserve me at my best."

The understood context here is that women need to be handled. They need somebody to draw boundaries for them, or they'll push.

I mean, fuck, if I was car shopping, I wouldn't want the car that argues with me, I want the one that drives well with low mileage.

On platitudes, imperatives, and unsolicited advice

73 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We do remove anything that appears low quality. If we miss one, feel free to report it.

I do like AWALT posts, it's a good reminder. But not crappy ones.

Congrats guys. You once again made it into an r/Askreddit front page question. Keep an eye on subscription counts

73 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

It's basically a ridiculous little community of awkward men circlejerking about their alpha-status in a world they think is dominated by women. It's essentially tumblr feminism for men.

Way to prove my point.

Don't Be A Hyperconsumerist Christmas Cuck

72 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Adding to this- it's not just the procurement of food, and making it at home isn't a magical solution in itself. Ingredients are fucked in a way that make it close to impossible to eat healthily at home even when you try.

For instance, some grocery stores won't carry full-fat cheese. Finding 80% lean ground beef is a chore whereas 95% is becoming the norm where I live. Pork today is almost entirely lean meat with little to no fat to speak of... (dry, gross).

Ingredients that aren't farm fresh almost always include sugar. Forget about basic things like yogurt, it's full of sugar. Salad dressing? Sugar. Romain Lettuce? 9 out of 12 months of the year: E-coli.

BBQ Sauce? Sugar.

Ketchup? Sugar.

Granola bars? Sugar

Protein bars or shakes? Sugar.

Soups? Sugar.

Canned Fruit? Sugar.

Skim milk? All sugar and no fat!

They try to convince you that you need to bring home high fiber foods and then process them, or buy pre-processed fiber foods. Apparently, some people aren't familiar with how fiber works - but processing means breaking down fiber into smaller pieces. It's one of the reasons why white bread is higher on the glycemic index than wheat. Neither are good for you, but you could make it from scratch at home!

How about health shakes? Or a cleanse shake with 4 apples, 5 bananas, and a bunch of kale, you're still going to get fat. That's tons of fructose which is processed by the liver. High fructose leads to fatty liver disease. Whoops! And if you use a food processor, you're taking in way more fruit than you would normally eat.. but now reducing the fiber content means you're not satiated and you're hungry again in 2 hours! More calories !!

Somebody here a few weeks back was recommending getting a George Forman grill. That's right, help your corporate overlords who convinced you that extra lean beef and skim milk are "eating clean" and then use a grill that gets rid of that last 1% of fat that's left.

Enjoy your shitty fucking life.

We're not just at a place where eating well is difficult, not two people on this fucking planet even agree what that means.

That's what they've done.

The world's oldest profession is still alive and well...

72 upvotes · 21 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

This could be tagged either red pill example or blue, depending on how you look at it.

The Handicap Principle

72 upvotes · 16 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's also why spending huge amounts of money on useless things like jewelry and expensive cars is attractive- it means you have so much money you can waste it on nonsense.

Now, obviously it might be better for a species not to impose such handicaps on itself, but if the female was to select mates that could fly instead of demonstrating a fine tail, she would have male offspring unlikely to breed and female offspring with a tendency to select for the wrong type of male for genetic fitness. The female has an advantage in selecting for tails and a self-promoting cycle is set in place.

There a little bit of chicken-and-egg here, but it's fundamentally right. The idea is not that she has the forethought to pick guys she knows will make attractive children, but rather, she picks guys she finds attractive and that tends to be what was sexually successful in the past generations, but perhaps with more distilled features. This, in turn, will be more likely to make sexually successful children.

As men are nature's experiment, there are guys on both ends of the spectrum, some whose random mutations end up being a more distilled version of what previous generations found attractive, while others just end up with the short end of the stick.

How feminists fail to understand masculinity

72 upvotes · 13 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The idea that there could be a "toxic" version of masculinity, but there is no such parallel for femininity is telling of their agenda.

Women are Children.

71 upvotes · 25 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This.

Women are less so victims of violent crime, less represented in armed forces, not eligible for drafts, will have men aid them in public confrontations (proxy power), can literally attack others without fear of reprisal (police and on-looker proxy power). Sure they're not all zero risk, but they're considerably less so than men.

Followed by having a child. Women have 100% option (they can abort or keep), and they know that the state will provide them assistance or put a man on the hook. For men, that's all risk.

The Bottom Line: Women Are Weak

71 upvotes · 24 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women rarely engage in anything by themselves-not even going to the bathroom. While men are off alone developing their skills, women are busy building their social networks and taking their positions in society. The result is that not only is she free to beat your ass in the privacy of your own home without fear, size difference be damned, she can then call the cops and have you taken to jail as an abuser.

The fact that we're relegated to an internet forum that has zero public approval in a world run by feminists is proof that women and their social networking are a formidable foe indeed.

♂

Go macros, kill micros. Take some real pills.

70 upvotes · 26 May 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I swear that people having this conversation are so far removed from the details about which they purport to speak that it's like watching the fake news Russia propaganda. Say the same thing enough times and you don't have to delve into details enough to make your point.

My opinion is this. The basis of current Red-Pill, The Sidebar, Rollo, Cuck Convention style stuff is operating within the matrix.

One of these things is not like the others. "Cuck Convention"

I'm sure you were around when we handed ADJ's ass to him with a scathing takedown of his shitty conventions, and I'm sure you can spot the differences between the convention's feel-good atmosphere leaching off other creators and the core theory we talk about in our side bar.

It's just so slightly a step from the Overton Window, you could turn around and still see your reflection in the window. You could turn around and see yourself reflected in the Overton saying 'yeah man, just be the prize'.

First of all, "be the prize" posts should be reported. Our team doesn't have 24/7 monitoring capabilities because most of us have day jobs, but if you check our rules rule 8 clearly states no platitudes. "be the prize," when given proper context isn't wrong per se. But the phrase is a platitude with no actionable advice.

As for the overton window, there's something larger at play here that I think you're missing.

When /r/theredpill began in the early days, simply stating that men and women are different was a hate crime and was so far outside the overton window that many people involved were taken down by the media for things that our now-president basically says directly to the press.

So yes, the overton window sure did shift during this time.

Which breaks the red pill metaphor just a bit. Because the idea of waking up is that everybody else is still asleep. How can we claim to have unspeakable truths if everybody is speaking about them?

Well, that's the thing isn't it? If we become popular enough and spread our ideas enough, eventually our ideas start seeping into the mainstream.

And they did.

When we were brand new, only a few other people had ever uttered the phrase "red pill" in relation to masculinity. Now Elon Musk is telling the general public to take the red pill, while everybody and their mothers have adopted the phrase for whatever pet theory they have.

So yeah, we entered the mainstream and we're not as edgy as we used to be. At least some of our more superficial theories (men and women are different).

This shit didn't start with feminism.

True. Feminism is more of a symptom of sexual dynamics than a cause.

'We have freed you from those terrible times of tradition, which includes male power and patriarchy'. So we're fucked. Everyone is equal, everyone is free, everyone can claim new individual power. But....not men. Oh no, that's traditional so die man, die.

Yes, I agree. You're not wrong about that.

Now, what are we left with? A Red Pill which wants to blame feminism. That wants to give you 'hold frame' scripts, and guides to 'being Alpha'. As if pussy and imitation are the way to go.

This is just not the conclusion to the leading paragraphs before it. First of all, feminism is not at fault for all of men's woes. But that does not make it blameless. Feminism is surely a catalyst to many problems that did not exist before it. That is not to say it enjoys root status. But if we chase that snake, you'll be finding its tail far in the past, before humans looked like we do today.

Masculinity, and therefore men, were abandoned as a people by the patriarchy (our fathers and the ones before them). We have both acknowledged that. But you are missing key ingredients for what happens between boys and their fathers. They learn how to interact with the world around them by looking up and following by example.

We have multiple generations of boys without an ounce of traditional masculinity in their upbringing who need the building blocks to understand it.

Imagine a feral child who has never seen another human. You want him to grasp complicated concepts but you decry first teaching him basic language? These are not "secret shortcuts" or "get rich quick schemes" to masculinity. These are the building blocks on which living beings craft their outward personas; the basis of all interaction.

If we do not know how to speak, we cannot first form sentences.

Consume guides, learn scripts, hold frame, and be a pale version of masculinity.

For many, the actual event of a successful conversation with a woman has never taken place in their presence. For others, they may fail to grasp even the beginnings of social acceptability. Perhaps some are autistic. You cannot knock lesson by example, because for these kids, much of what we talk about here is pure mythology.

You can have a conversation with a girl that doesn't end poorly?

You can be attractive to a woman?

A woman can truly desire you sexually?

All things that these kids have no first or even second hand experience with. They need to see what an interaction might look like.

I know that sounds foreign to some who want to beat their chests and declare they are superior and this all came naturally. But I know it's not that way for many. In fact, I know in my personal life many guys who seriously have no skill to read a room, let alone complete a conversation with a woman.

Feminism is long gone as a priority.

Feminism is alive and well. Get yourself under the thumb of any law enforcement officer or judge before you spout such nonsense. You appeal to traditionalism, yet leave out the most important part- if you want to start a family, you are inviting the state into your home. Like it or not.

Rollo told us how to unplug from feminism's narrative. That is so small compared to the other hundred plugs you're main-lining right now.

I genuinely don't think you've read his work.

Start here:

<https://therationalmale.com/2011/12/27/women-in-love/>

<https://therationalmale.com/2012/09/10/men-in-love/>

<https://therationalmale.com/2012/09/11/of-love-and-war/>

Read Julia Evola.

And there it is. Knew that's where you were going with it, and I'm going to have to address this now.

Your post here is a nice appeal to traditionalism. It paints a very good picture of how good men had before and how bad we have it now, and poses the question in everybody's minds: Why can't we have it good like we used to? What if we just did?

Evola does this plenty in Ride the Tiger. He paints a just-so picture of the decay of society, with little support for using degenerate imagery aside from the assumption that you already agree with his analysis of the world. His suggestion, of course, is to ride the tiger; harness the energy of our degenerative culture to one's own ends, as you cannot stem the tide and social movements are an exercise in futility.

But you know what neither of you have done? Made a justification for your traditionalism or given practical, useful daily advice for riding said tiger.

We agree that society is objectively worse for the average man who wants to accomplish his goals, but have you demonstrated that society as a whole is worse for it? Or, is it possible that like feminists, you are painting a picture that whitewashes a past with imagery of a better yesteryear for men in a push to sell them something completely unattainable today by admission of Evola himself?

"Enjoy the decline" is one such way to ride the tiger. And it's something many here have embraced as a modus operandi. Understand the rules, and then use this understanding to out-compete others.

Mating is a zero sum game. There will always be winners and losers. We already know the system is rigged. We know the best ways to mitigate the hurdles.

What is Evola giving us then?

Evola and Rollo are not opposite ends of a spectrum. Evola says to learn the game. Rollo attempts to describe the game.

And so do I. And so do many here.

You seem to believe you've got a path to a better, higher version of masculinity.

By all means, lay it out here and give actionable advice to achieve higher goals. But don't forget the most important rule: You must first convince me why your version of masculinity is better and more advantageous to me than all the other ones that the salesmen before you tried to hawk.

What a great advocacy for equality.

70 upvotes · 21 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

Walk in and order. When they say it's woman and trans only, tell them that it's not their place to decide what gender you are, and that they will not be seeing inside your pants.

Straight Men Will Soon Be Called Homophobic For Not Sleeping With Gays And Trannies

69 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This definantly will not happen.

That's kind of what people said about the slippery definition of rape in CA campuses having a real-world effect. Now here we are.

I think it's already happening. There have been very public debates on whether or not a tranny is morally obligated to even reveal their true gender to a potential date until it's obvious a penis is going to be revealed.

Our culture will try to normalize this, just you wait.

RooshV slams the Red Pill

69 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a frustrating marketing ploy by him. We've always been cordial and collaborative with each other, if he had legitimate concerns over the direction of the sub, he knows how to get in contact with me.

Ultimately, TRP has gotten big and hating on it is popular. But this still remains one of the very few places where guys are allowed to discuss what they want without the censorship of the mainstream.

He may not like that we are not waging a political war to defend masculinity, but that's a personal decision.

American Women are Whores

69 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think /u/gaylubeoil would've been more accurate saying "westernized women" not "american women."

Weekend Wrapup [hotlinks]

69 upvotes · 28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think we'll be posting these up on a weekly basis to make sure good content doesn't get missed.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

68 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

It's difficult to come up with predictions this year as everything seems generally awful across the board. It's not much of a prediction to proclaim "things will be worse this year.. again!"

Nevertheless, here are my predictions for 2022:

- Despite falling numbers of deaths or hospitalizations, the powers that be will continue marching forward in the name of vaccine passports. By the end of the year there won't be any state in the USA that doesn't have at least a single county or city requiring vaccines.
- A massive coverup will occur against an increasing number of reported adverse effects from vaccines. Even acknowledging a headache from the shot will be social media suicide.
- International courts will find almost every country's leadership guilty of crimes against humanity and genocide. Nothing will be done about it, however.
- Housing bubble will collapse, everybody except the top 10% will be stuck holding that bag.
- The dollar will be worth 50% of a 2019 dollar by the end of the year.
- A mixture of lockdown isolation and the rise of only fans will result in a generation of seriously fucked up girls. Gen Z will have even less sex next year than ever before, and news articles will start talking about the surprise appearance of the new victim cult, the Gen Z girls of the pandemic- the primary victims of covid.
- Biden will become incapacitated by some unknown or unspoken health problem. While not officially retiring or stepping down, Kamala will become interim president. Eventually, after midterms or at some point, she will adopt Pelosi as her VP. By the time Biden is either completely out of the picture or dead, the transfer of power will have already happened in secret. (May have already happened).
- Trump will be disqualified from running for president by some underhanded method.
- Shortages on beef and pork will suddenly drive up stock prices of vegan burger companies.
- Gas doubles in price by the end of the year. A run on Teslas ends when the power grids fail to keep up with driver demands. Finding Teslas on the side of the road will become commonplace.
- California will finally break off into the ocean.
- US banking system will start pushing a crypto such as Ripple- they will all suddenly agree on one. Commercials about trading in your useless cash will begin. They will enjoy that it is not fungible, but won't highlight this detail. Years later, the first person to lose their wealth due to political dissent will shed light on what a bad idea centrally managed, non-fungible crypto is, but it will already have been mass adopted and regular average joes will be like "well I don't care I don't buy drugs..."
- Unlimited, nearly free, clean energy known as nuclear will again be ignored by the greenies in their quest to make everything worse in the name of climate science
- USA birthrate will be surprisingly low and dozens of articles will blame men rather than the economy, vaccines, or covid.
- Some sort of terrorist threat will take over the news cycle after Covid fear fails, leading to more rolling lockdowns throughout the country.

Google Executives Fall Pray to False Accusations

68 upvotes · 2 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm very curious what would happen in this case.

They might try to prove that the "woman" in your group isn't living a seriously female life style, but you could just counter-claim that you identify as a woman who feels like a man, dates women, and wears male clothing.

What could they say to that? It's fucking illegal in California to misgender somebody!

More Silence from Reddit Administration - A Failure for Community Managers to... Manage?

68 upvotes · 29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Whoops.

AskWomen desperately looks for an excuse - any excuse - to deny the reality of the Wall.

68 upvotes · 24 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My brother just turned 30 and he was doing this for a while. He also has some commitment issues but dating younger girls definitely didn't help.

When it doesn't benefit women, it's called an "issue."

He doesn't want to commit. That's not a problem.

Imagine if we said women who were discriminating with who they wanted to have sex had "sex issues."

Male insecurity at an all time high

68 upvotes · 14 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ultimately, manly is stoic and calculated. It's not making rash choices and keeping your frame. It's being in control of oneself.

Beyond that, there's no need to split hairs as to whether a color of a shirt is more/less manly.

Bitcoin: The biggest wage gap experiment ever devised

67 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

They're paid less than men so they have less money to invest

Or how about this one: They weren't socialized to mine bitcoin. We should have encouraged them as children to mine bitcoin and become early adopters of cryptocurrency.

I, for one, blame men.

I'm on a deletion rampage. Got something stupid to post? Don't waste your time.

67 upvotes · 3 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I gotta tell you, it really helps when people click report on shitposts. The reports go straight to us. I sometimes don't catch a shitpost until 12 hours later. If people clicked report instead of commented "this is a shitpost" I'd have it deleted in minutes, not hours.

It's on the tip of their tongues....

67 upvotes · 18 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Whoops, inconvenient Truth about France paternity laws. Better censor it.

Women in male spaces

67 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

this has nothing whatsoever to do with a "woman in a male space" it has to do with someone being a space where they don't belong.

I don't know, when I'm somewhere I don't belong I tend to shut up.

Purchase some Manhood

66 upvotes · 9 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think what puts me off the most about the 21 commercial is that he's trying to sell some sort of SoCal version of lifestyle with slick jackets and fast cars.

He doesn't focus on the benefits of the content, or even what the content is.

He mistakenly believes the best marketing campaign is simply to sell the instagram lifestyle.

Who the fuck wakes up from the matrix and falls for that again?

Game Basics: The Male Sexuality Shaming Shit Test

66 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"You just want to fuck me."

I was hoping for a sandwich, too.

California makes drunk consensual sex illegal and imposes mandatory sentencing for it. Not sex with someone unconscious or incapacitated. But now having sex with an intoxicated woman is illegal and will put you in prison for years. Drunk sex has NEVER been illegal in the US before this.

66 upvotes · 3 October 2016 · /r/MensRights

To make matters worse, many states have poor definitions of what constitutes "intoxication." Some going so far as to keep it as subjective as possible, relying on reasonable person standard that can almost never be predicted or relied upon to know if you're committing a crime or not.

If you rely on many states' training to determine intoxication, signs include ambiguous tells such as "odor of alcohol" or "heightened moods." Great.

I'm too arrogant-what gives?

66 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

When you start hearing that you're cocky or too arrogant- it's working. They sense your increased power in the sexual market and want to extinguish it as fast as possible.

2020 a Year in Reflection - Share your greatest lessons of the year.

65 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The lesson I find myself learning over and over is that there is no perfect.

We speak in absolutes on TRP. Mostly to communicate ideas and it helps to demonstrate lessons through hyperbole. But it builds a mental image in one's mind that, if one is caught off guard, might become the image of perfection that he compares himself to.

When you hear about success stories or advice from the elder red piller who simply recommends finding a woman who will worship his footsteps, take a moment to realize there is no perfect relationship and no perfect woman (and no perfect you, either).

Yes, you want a woman who fawns over you. But this does not mean entering into a LTR with one means that you will not eventually have problems and disagreements to overcome.

The advice for LTR's is "don't get into the weeds." Arguing with a woman is a losing battle. But it fails to address the nuance of what the arguments might be about.

Yes, jumping into heated arguments and letting her break your frame are a bad plan. But eventually you will have a disagreements that require resolution and resolve. Of course, you must learn not to engage in petty bickering, but also you must learn that some arguments cannot be avoided and, in fact, for the betterment of your relationship, you must engage and win.

You will face trials and tribulations, and it is on you to hold firm. She will push, and eventually she will push too far. You will be tested. Do not bicker, do not get into the weeds, but you must push back. You cannot be docile, you cannot simply ignore the argument. You must make decisions that steer the ship, and sometimes that means an unpopular decision needs to be defended.

Anybody pretending that a woman will not eventually try you is lying to you. The idea that women only push if you let your frame slip or didn't do something right is utter nonsense. You will never be 100% perfect, and all relationships have speedbumps on occasion.

The question is, how will you handle the trial?

Women Are For Sex – The Sexual Marketplace in ‘Current Year’

65 upvotes · 7 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

First of all, you need to go back and read the old classics. Start with Uncle Vassy posts you blue pill noob.

Secondly, this:

not to bring a knife (TradCon thinking) to a gun fight (the 2020 SMP).

This is the deep blue wave that has been eroding our shores since we started. The collective lamentation that traditional women, relationships and families are firmly behind us has sprung up number of red pill coaches and personal brands that are selling trad-lifestyles as a commodity.

As much as I'd like, we cannot turn back the clock.

False Rape Accusations Advice Megathread

65 upvotes · 6 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

What if two drunk women have lesbian sex?

Update: I fucked up.

65 upvotes · 16 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Hard next and maybe quit drinking.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

65 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Females subconsciously see this as a threat. Betas are supposed to stay beta. Therefore they will do everything they can to shut it down, giving this effort a face of "they're a bunch of misogynists."

The power mods think they're white knights. Surely now they will receive the love and attention they deserve!

Are we the failed ones?

65 upvotes · 3 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Typical blue pill story. I thought I had a soul mate. Ended up in different places (college), and she swung branches like a damn monkey. I had moved into my first apartment, lost my girl, lost my mutual friends (lesson learned on that one), and was generally down-and-out. Didn't want to eat, couldn't sleep. The pain was unbearable.

I wish I could say my journey turned around in a few months. It didn't. Didn't have TRP back then, didn't even know half the shit we know here. I still believed in love.

And it wouldn't be for another 6 years before I finally hit my rock bottom.

It was that bad.

You think getting knocked down like that, you'd change your approach. But I didn't have an older brother or father to tell me what to do. So I just went right back to my old approach thinking that maybe my last girlfriend wasn't my soul mate. Maybe I just needed to find "the one."

Boy was I wrong.

Made tons of mistakes. Tried dating. Eventually had another LTR that failed miserably. Tried meeting new people. Learned how ruthless women were. How terrible men were at being friends. I learned how you get alienated.

The things I took for granted in our culture were the biggest lies. My friends were as blue as I once was, they didn't stick around when the going got tough. The biggest letdown for me was thinking they would. My unrealistic expectations were the biggest source of pain for me.

Once I started realizing how pointless an endeavor women were, I really started to lose it. Drinking every night, barely getting through my days. Why was I the only one who noticed this stuff? I felt crazy. Maybe I was.

One night i just lost it. Tore my apartment to pieces. Just couldn't take the bullshit any more. That was rock bottom.

Every single expectation I had for adulthood had been a lie, and I was learning the hard way that my expectations wouldn't be met.

But what really saved me was some searching online which eventually lead me to the manosphere. The biggest lesson was that my expectations were the source of my pain. When you change your expectations to match reality, suddenly success is within sight. What used to be failures are nothing but speed bumps.

Don't give yourself goals. Give yourself a routine. Go to the gym every day. Get yourself a job anywhere to start, and then look upwards after you get the job. Instead of aiming for some awesome management position, just start where ever you can make a buck and jump upwards every time you see an opportunity.

Life isn't build in a day. It's a process.

And seriously, read the side bar. There's more in there that I think you need to read.

Self confessed "strong women" queue up to be spanked, slapped, and cummed on in r/sex confirming yet another red pill truth AWALT

65 upvotes · 12 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"It's just because I have so much power in my real life that I need the opposite in the bedroom, just to take a break from all that responsibility."

Just the slightest bit of logic applied to that would make a woman wonder why men don't all have the exact same desire, since they also have the power of the patriarchy on their shoulders!

♂

Edit: To the people responding- yes, kinks exist of all sorts. I know a guy who likes his balls stepped on. Off topic, folks.

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

64 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

On the contrary. We make a lot of hypotheses here, but there's nothing like getting confirmation for our predictions.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

64 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"your truth"

Makes me shudder each time I hear somebody say "my truth." People don't believe in objective reality. How could you reason with them?

The Red Pill App

64 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's see, what has /u/timeislimited88 submitted to /r/theredpill? Nothing?

You know what turns a forum to shit? People like you bitching but doing fuck all to fix it.

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

64 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course it was never going to put us in a good light. That's not the point.

[PSA] Self-Pity Race/Age Whine-Posts = Banhammer

64 upvotes · 20 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

On the opposite side, if you're Asian, short, or challenged in some way, and you've found some useful advice, please share it.

I don't think anybody doubts there are hardships here, they all contribute to SMV. But dwelling isn't very constructive.

The Co-opting of Manosphere/TRP is here

64 upvotes · 11 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll chime in since this comment section is basically a shithole.

/r/alttrp was created for alternative sexual strategies. That includes gay/bi/whatever.

The simple fact of being gay is not in and of itself anti-red-pill, nor does it make anybody less of a man. In fact, if you consider yourself a true student of humanity, you'd need to find a reason to reconcile their existence. They are here, and it's curious why they exist. What market forces create them? What genetic factors create them? What evolutionary benefit do they serve?

There are a lot of answers to this, and I think Jack Donovan addresses them well.

So the question you're posing is- in what way have they (or could they) co-opt our movement to weaken our signal?

First off, we're not a movement, so there's that.

Secondly, our discussion will always prioritize reality over political correctness. The fact is, being gay doesn't exclude you from scrutiny. There's no secret that feminism has co-opted the gay community for support (and will likely dispose of them when it no longer serves their purpose). We can discuss that. It's not out of bounds.

As a moderator, I obviously draw the line when the discussion devolves to "well I'm gay so what I say goes and you're wrong" or worse, the instant PC defense mechanism of "you can't criticize gay people, are you homophobic?"

There are some who would call TRP homophobic or anti-gay, which is patently false. I created /r/alttrp because I am not anti-gay. But each piece of the puzzle fits into reality, and is not above reproach. Not women, not gays, not cripples or retards, blacks or whites, humans or animals.

As my ongoing battle against postmodernism continues, I will fight against this new form of discourse - Whoever is offended first wins.

Being gay doesn't protect you from criticism. I accept that gayness exists and I would never consider taking away their rights. But, let's face it. Gay sex turns most straight men off. Effeminate gays make a lot of straight men feel uncomfortable. And the gays that seek attention by acting like women are clearly using feminist tactics to seek social approval, and the feminists know and use that.

The world turns, and postmodernism continues.

Your "One True Love" Does Not Exist

64 upvotes · 21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The only time a woman reminisces about a past "love of her life" is when she loses that particular man before she was ready to move to a new one.

The alpha widow. This happens often when a woman's SMV starts to decline. She reminisces about the time when she had it all- that alpha stud who was everything she dreamed of. He got her wet, and drove her crazy. It wouldn't be a problem, but the new guy she's with doesn't have the same effect. She wonders why it is she can't get this feeling back. If she had jumped off one alpha cock and on to the next, she'd never notice- but this guy isn't quite doing it for her. In fact, the last three guys she managed to bag aren't really doing it for her..

.. why can't she find happiness? It's like there just isn't the right fit for her. No guy can make her feel the way that lone alpha of days past made her feel. She wonders if she'll ever love again. Eventually she will settle with a man she does not like, and she will force herself to have sex with him once a month, as per the schedule on the calendar. But she will always remember the one that got away.

That right there is an alpha widow, folks. Either you can get them young enough that you can be that alpha, or you get them after the cock carousel, and who knows how you measure up.

When people here (or on PPD) argue about whether chastity is really that important in a woman, or a woman's past count, this is the real effect at play. When a woman has that thousand-cock-stare, what use are you to her? If you can't rile up the right emotions, you're the schmuck she settled for after she was alpha widowed.

Alpha widowing almost exclusively happens when a woman's smv begins to decline, this is the part in her time frame that she will start moving to provider-seeking mode. She will believe that she has matured, and has more realistic goals now. She will rationalize that this path she took was all necessary for her to finally and truly understand her real goals: find a nice guy, not a party guy. That's what she needed all along, she just didn't know it yet! (The hamster is in full force to reconcile this change of priorities).

I am absolutely convinced in my own personal life that the best way to maximize your return on women is to either:

1. Be the cock carousel and forget relationships beyond that... or
2. Ensure that you get to women before they get alpha widowed. Her past will absolutely change her, and it will have an effect on whether or not she can love you at all.

I have always contended that women lose their ability to love after age 21, when they realize their SMV by going out to a bar and realizing how many men will trip over themselves by buying them a drink. A woman who realizes her SMV and actualizes it will be beyond saving. Who cares if you can get your dick wet one night? She won't be tied down during this period of time, and lord knows you'll be signing up for bad news if you wait till she gets off the carousel.

Obviously, your results may vary. Waiting till late 20s may be a good strategy for some men who cannot get it any other way. I know that for me: It's 18-20 year olds exclusively.

A Note on "Real" Alphas

64 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You know deep in my heart I'm actually a feminist.

Can The Red Pill Subreddit Survive?

64 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

These are all relevant concerns, which are something the mod team are dedicated to combating. Our goals as we grow include:

- Keeping our signal from going soft.
- Avoiding feminizing or tempering of language.
- Limiting trolling including concern trolling.

We have recently adopted AutoModerator and put in some very rigorous rules which are already helping clean up the trash. I think we should be able to maintain quality, in fact I rather like most of the discussion that takes place.

Every so often a blue piller stumbles in with some terrible advice, but we set them straight pretty quickly.

Keep it up, all!

How To Use The Desperation of Ukrainian War Refugees to Your Sexual Advantage

63 upvotes · 21 March 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Also Ukrainians are hot.

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

62 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is blurring the distinction between useful advice and lying to yourself for an effect.

Nobody is the prize, it's practically useless info.

But believing you're awesome is a good way to "fake it till you make it."

The problem is when the people giving the advice become so many steps removed from the mechanism they're trying to emulate that the advice becomes useless platitudes.

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

62 upvotes · 4 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember that while the companies themselves are private companies, they form an artificial monopoly created by what used to be a govt contractor and serve as gatekeepers to the entire domain name system.

The next question is whether ICANN will accept an application of a freedom-registrar, and what the new legal problems will become for said registrar.

Right now anybody can hook a server to the internet, but domain ownership is a locked down system.

I would support a free-market solution such as an alternative DNS provider. But when you're walled off from the public, it's not quite free-speech. In fact, that's probably what they want, everybody they disagree with completely inaccessible from the internet for anybody using default DNS servers their ISP provides.

Reddit Anti-Evil Operations Decidedly Evil as They Remove Pro-Equality Post from TRP

61 upvotes · 10 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

We will look back on those, someday, as quaint relics of a bygone era.

The old wild west of the internet.

Theory Friday - No Stupid Questions Thread

61 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If your girlfriend is staying at her guy friends' apartments, is it mate guarding to care?

You don't forbid her from doing it, you just don't be around when she gets back.

Any woman who truly respected you would know that wasn't acceptable behavior.

Post Shaming Male Sexuality Makes It To The Front Page. Hamsters Go Wild!

61 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You know why 18 is the age?

Because the ages 16-18 would flood the market with young pussy and weaken their collective bargaining power.

It's too powerful to let loose on the market.

Girlfriends points to a feminist article. Gets what she asked for.

61 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We'll never know either way but I would bet this approach has better outcomes for OP rather than just swatting the article away from the get go. He doesn't have the historical frame to carry that message across - reputation counts for a lot.

This is important to make note of- if you've just arrived at TRP and you're learning new stuff, immediately copying the style of /u/gaylubeoil or other cocky submitters may not work out. The attitude/personality change needs to be organic. You can't beat the shit test by agreeing and amplifying if you don't have the historical frame to carry the message.

But it's important to start reframing the relationship so you eventually do.

Very good insight. ♂

Husband kills himself after his children are taken away from him

61 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I've seen this personally with my own friends and family. The court system is universally anti-male.

Anybody thinking of getting involved with a female where she may have legal power over you- think twice.

Don't get married. Don't have kids in the west.

♂ I'm sorry that happened to you.

TBP chick hates RP guys but spends her birthday being treated like shit by one who also cheated on her. The irony is sublime.

61 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Can confirm, I've met girls IRL who have heard about theredpill. They go on about how terrible it is. I mention that I think I've heard of it, but wasn't sure what it was about.

They suspect nothing.

Thought I was with that one-in-a-million until she pulled the biggest shit test of all. Keep your guard up.

60 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"You should have fought for me" is precisely the retcon'd after-the-fact rationalization all women have after an experience like this that changes their emotional view of something.

Make no mistake, actually fighting for her at that time would've sealed the deal on her losing all respect for you entirely.

Well done.

Women will prove AWALT out of nowhere.

59 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Bro, come on.

GF is arrested for domestic abuse. BF posts her mugshot on FB. Hamstering ensues.

59 upvotes · 12 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

That's such shitty advice. IF you stick your dick in crazy?

They're all crazy. The question is how much.

Woman kicks man to the ground during an argument. White knights pile up to rationalize for her.

59 upvotes · 9 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, what they really want, is somebody to tell them no. They're acting like this because nobody is.

What a REAL Rape Culture Looks Like.

59 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Every woman wants to be attractive enough to be raped. It's like the pinnacle of male desire, when he can't stop no matter what.

"Me too". How women are simultaneously attention whoring and garnering sympathy.

58 upvotes · 17 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

When everybody in the world is special, nobody is.

Alpha Takes Womanly Advice

58 upvotes · 27 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

They'll play disgusted but if he starts chatting up a new chick they'll start fighting each other over him.

New Design

58 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Agree and amplify!

Trickle Down Media Whore

58 upvotes · 18 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Well done, my friend, well done.

The growth of /r/TheRedPill from 0 to 100,000 subscribers

58 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It would never happen. The admin hate us.

Is it bad that that i still tried to figure out how people do shit like this and wonder why they are objectified?

58 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm going to call it- and this will be unpopular I'm sure...

But for all the reports I hear of "gropings" and "cat calls" I haven't been present for a single fucking one.

I think women, as a group, have entered into a mass hysteria of fear of sexual assault to the point where they're either completely unhinged and their minds are inventing scenarios for them, or they're just plain lying.

The fact is, cat calls aren't that common, and "grope" would immediately land somebody in public on 4 security cameras and beat to shit by the almost unlimited supply of white knights.

It's just not happening. It's just not happening.

A Woman tells Hamsters: Why You're Not Married.

58 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Female anger terrifies men.

It's like they just can't handle looking at things without casting this stupid trope. No, we're not terrified of angry women. No we're not intimidated by strong, intelligent women. We just don't think you're attractive.

Not intimidated or afraid, to us, you're like a boy. I'm amused but not impressed.

Anger is not a phase.

57 upvotes · 14 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Most people conflate being angry with acting angry. It's because they can't help being the latter.

For many who walk this earth, the idea of a distinction never enters into the realm of possibility.

All That's Left For Normal Men Are Rotten Women

57 upvotes · 26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Having seen this exact scenario all summer, I can't help but think he's right.

Edit (Sorry if you can't see it, we're switching SSL providers today)

A mother who left her sick, three-month-old baby alone to die while she had a whiskey fuelled sex marathon with a man she met at a bus stop has avoided jail.

57 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Jail time for neglect:

<http://www.21alive.com/home/Fort-Wayne-Man-Sentenced-for-Child-Neglect-Resulting-in-Death-123101553.html?m=y>

Jail Time for neglect, no death even took place...

<http://www.washingtontimes.com/news/2014/nov/26/st-michael-man-sentenced-on-child-neglect-charge/>

More jail time for more neglect:

http://www.mynews4.com/news/story/Carson-man-sentenced-for-child-neglect-with/SYAS_XIYZUq0fDeDXHiKNw.csp

No, it's really easy to find men going to jail.

Thanks to that EMSK post, The Red Pill has experienced its second biggest membership spike ever and is now a trending subreddit.

57 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Not on my watch!

Where Anger Leads - M3 "If a man .. worked hard and saved, got the rock, .. listened to his father about 'happy wife, happy life', listened to his mother to 'just be yourself', .. and realizes he'd been lied to.. BY EVERYBODY.. You can understand he'll be even angrier."

57 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Working on this sub has been an incredibly cathartic process for me, I find myself less angry and more desensitized than anything. Venting is an important step, and having a like minded community is important to engender that.

A must read! Drive Thru Boyfriend by Solomon II.

57 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She doesn't understand why the steak restaurant won't take her late reservation, after all she's got an impressive career and many wealthy clients. Don't they understand she was too busy to make a reservation earlier?

Chateau Heartiste Has Been Shuttered in What Appears to be WordPress' Opening Salvo as They Join the Greater Tech Censorship War.

56 upvotes · 10 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Now's a great time to plug our patreon or our Bitcoin address 1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7. We've been using the funds we've been gathering to protect ourselves from exactly this scenario.

Between building out a censorship-free safety net and negotiating with providers, we've been able to ensure that we're in the best positioning possible.

The Indefinite Quantity

56 upvotes · 23 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

a duality of exclusivity and belonging.

Very well put. If you weren't already endorsed I'd re-endorse you.

Keyboard SJWs petition for termination of columnist George F. Will

56 upvotes · 11 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh man, this guy is good-

Meanwhile, the newest campus idea for preventing victimizations — an idea certain to multiply claims of them — is “trigger warnings.” They would be placed on assigned readings or announced before lectures. Otherwise, traumas could be triggered in students whose tender sensibilities would be lacerated by unexpected encounters with racism, sexism, violence (dammit, Hamlet, put down that sword!) or any other facet of reality that might violate a student’s entitlement to serenity. This entitlement has already bred campus speech codes that punish unpopular speech. Now the codes are begetting the soft censorship of trigger warnings to swaddle students in a “safe,” “supportive,” “unthreatening” environment, intellectual comfort for the intellectually dormant.

Anger is not a phase.

55 upvotes · 14 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

As I've written above:

As with all of your emotions, it's important not to cede control to your anger, but it is similarly unwise to dismiss or hide from it.

Do not act impulsively with any emotion.

- Do not let sadness drive you to suicide.
- Do not let anger drive you to crime.
- Do not let jealousy drive you to sabotage.
- Do not let happiness drive you to complacency.
- Do not let fear drive you to avoidance.

Actions that cannot be taken back should always be weighed and taken with a sober mind.

The Reddit Administration Recants

55 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't say that- it might actually make them apologize!

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

55 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We go above and beyond, but they'll pull a reason out of their asses if they want to get rid of us.

We don't allow inter-reddit links AT ALL. We remove and ban anybody advocating breaking the law. We do everything we can to be self contained.

But we offended a woman somewhere, so fuck it, right?

Bookmark Our Offsite Backup

55 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup. Back to business hating women.

Just playin.

Can we put something in the sidebar to explain how we're not even remotely related to the red pill?

55 upvotes · 3 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

Has it occurred to anybody that people tend to misrepresent the red pill as well as men's rights? You're not the only group being misrepresented.

Guy makes a mild sexual joke while sitting in the audience at a programming conference, female "developer evangelist" nearby gets offended and raises a shitstorm, gets the guy - a father of three - fired

55 upvotes · 20 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In the comments on her blog:

I'm sorry - nowhere does it say that you should have the right to not hear things that annoy you.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

54 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is that I can get my rocks off any way possible from here with the exception of oral.

And she just starfishes. Do you want duty sex for the rest of your life?

Cowardice

54 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

subredditdrama has an obviously feminist bias as well. They only get involved when it's about us.

Don't make spinning plates your mission

54 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The idea that you have to trick yourself into getting good with women by pretending you're not trying is for idiots who need to lie to themselves to get things done.

As a man, I understand and realize my goals, and if that includes women, I'm not going to pussyfoot around that fact to trick my psyche thinking I'm not doing it for the poon.

Pretending you don't have the goal of getting hot women is just a way of protecting yourself from failure when you fail. Which you will if you don't fucking set a goal like a man.

Girlfriend leaves boyfriend in public for Ferrari driver

54 upvotes · 6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Flashing cash to get laid isn't blue pill. Spending cash on her to get laid is. Big difference. Flashing cash is the ugly man's game and a solid strategy.

"She's so pretty" - Hot girls describing ugly girls

54 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is why I don't befriend women to meet their friends. This is the Golden Rule of RedPillSchool:

A Woman will never introduce you to somebody hotter than her. Period.

If she thinks you're good looking enough to warrant somebody hotter, she will be attracted to you and try to make sure only she gets you. If she doesn't think you're good looking enough, she will only introduce you to people she thinks are worse looking.

IN NO CIRCUMSTANCE WILL SHE INTRODUCE YOU TO SOMEONE HOTTER.

Crosspost from PPD: CMV - Every attractive young woman will have an OnlyFans account by 2030 and be entirely undateable

53 upvotes · 9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Camwhoring made considerably more mainstream / acceptable.

Remember how online dating was weird and for nerds not too long ago? Now Tinder is basically pop culture.

Having an onlyfans is somehow growing support as a legitimate thing, whereas being a camwhore was considered dirty.

Stay away from the BPD - Even if she is your daughter

53 upvotes · 14 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I posted this below but I want people to see it:

The biggest problem is to distinguish between regular female mood swings and BPD.

I really don't think guys here get it.

It's not mood swings. It's periods of dissociation.

It's subconscious gas-lighting.

It's manipulations.

People close to them starting to question their own realities.

Those afflicted will have periods of Dr Jekyll mania (much like bi-polar), but when they turn into Mr Hyde, it's not just a mood swing. They remember conversations that never took place, threaten you with blackmail and demand recompense for crimes that have never been committed. They forget real conversations and facts and substitute them with their own versions of events or completely fabricated days- weeks- even months.

They lie to their friends about you, and they lie about their friends to you. They never tell the same story twice, and can never be nailed down on a single accounting of events.

If confronted with any inconsistencies in their story or behaviors they can and will become violent. Physically violent.

And god help you if you defend yourself. You will be arrested on the false claims they make.

They don't feel bad or guilt. They don't know they're dissociating. They believe in their world, even though it changes from minute to minute.

Absolutely do not think you can tame one. You can't.

Having BDP requires years of cognitive behavioral therapy. And that is just to function in society. They will never be healed. They are broken.

The Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde reference is actually one of the most common ways to describe BPD.

Do yourself a favor and learn this list:

<http://outofthefog.website/personality-disorders-1/2015/12/6/borderline-personality-disorder-bpd>

Some BP Myths Debunked

53 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Your responses to the myths, debunked.

Myth #1: Having a girlfriend will make you happy.

Your answer: No, girls won't, I promise.

The real analysis: The blue pill world and feminine imperative has a vested interest in convincing you not having a girlfriend will make you sad and depressed. That is how they program the anti-abundance mentality into you.

The fact is, we're all here because we recognize a core reality about the male human psyche: Men gain validation and happiness from attaining their biological imperatives. One such imperative is sowing their seed (so to speak). There's no shame in realizing that women indeed do bring happiness, and avoiding them because you want to believe they don't give you good emotions is just naive and short-sighted.

The takeaway should be that you shouldn't rely on any single woman for happiness, but it's okay to want companionship.

Myth #2: Going out is the only way to meet women:

Your response: Don't try, I fuck tons of girls.

My response: This is a blue pill platitude. Don't try and everything will just happen. Absolute bullshit. This is just a form of mental gymnastics that people do when they don't want to face potential failure.

Ever hear the platitude "you're trying too hard" or "just stop looking and it will come to you"? All complete bullshit. If you want success sexually, you put in the time to get there. Meeting people takes work sometimes, there's no shame in it. Suggesting otherwise just confuses the subject. You're just looking for a rationalization to distract yourself in your down time. "Oh I'm just not looking at the moment, it will eventually happen. Fate or some shit" That's girl thinking.

Myth #3: You got to show off your car, job a little to impress women:

Your response: I tried this and yes it has worked to a degree but what works more is being fucking aloof.

My response: Depending on the market you're in, being aloof does very little if you don't first have somebody's attention. A car or nice suit (also known as peacocking) may be a cheap ploy, but it may work. Better ways to peacock is to manage to appear high status by being on stage as a performer, having lots of friends, owning or hosting an event or establishment, or having a captive audience that gives women a requirement to interact with you long enough to work your "mystery." Your advice skips step one and jumps to step four.

Myth #4: Online dating/tinder etc is for losers:

You're right, it's not. We've all been there. However, there are some caveats to online game: it puts you at every disadvantage possible, while only helping by increasing numbers.

I don't have anything to say on 5 or 6.

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

53 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I respect strong women who don't think they should have a red carpet laid out in front of them wherever they go, those women are few and far between.

Lol, feminism has changed our language and coddled women so much that you basically just said "i respect women who act at a baseline of human behavior that should be expected as a bare minimum from anybody."

And then you go on to call those women "strong" using the feminist's re-branding of the word, since these women are not physically strong, and in acting like bare minimum people, they're certainly not even displaying mental strength.

Why can't white knights see it coming?

53 upvotes · 13 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Rule of thumb: NEVER BE ALONE WITH SOMEBODY ELSE'S CHILD.

[MR X-POST] - "Equal pay case" won. Female Nursery staff sue to have their work counted as equal to males doing manual labour.

53 upvotes · 26 June 2013 · /r/askTRP

Great comment from the original Men's Rights Thread on the end game of equal pay:

The end game is to force men into the difficult and dangerous manual labor jobs because they've been discriminated against heavily in education. Then when women are working the easy and safe air-conditioned jobs they will demand that women receive the same pay for the easy jobs as men get for the difficult jobs.

This will effectively transfer men's labor and resources to women without women having to give anything in return. This was the goal of Feminism all along.

I convinced a friend not to get married today.

53 upvotes · 26 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

Let's just review, She's very successful making 6 figures and heading places. Owns home.

He's insolvent, no career, deadbeat.

He wants to marry her.

She'd want nothing to do with him.

Be realistic, man. No double standards here. She wouldn't have even dated him, at least not long term.

Stop reading TRP

52 upvotes · 1 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

We intentionally allow for the anger phase here, even though it has a distinctly different tone and purpose than some of the older members' contributions. We want to provide a place for guys to unplug and vent since nobody else lets them.

It's all part of the process. Eventually they will learn to accept the world around them.

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

52 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

let me prove that by responding robotically unthinkingly and without consciousness

I suspect these guys can't think past lunch let alone anticipate consequences that may arise hours or days into the future.

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

52 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Gay slap and say "noooo you areeeee"

Holy Flip This Shit is REAL - I think?

52 upvotes · 25 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

if I hang around a bit she might be back with her SO for a few more drinks.

That isn't the best sign in the world. But even if you wanted to press through, I would do my absolute best not to be that guy.

Watching drinks, waiting for her boyfriend, being all around nice guy? That's a one-way ticket to the friend zone.

Be a little more bold.

If a girl asks me to watch her drink, instinctively that's my cue to drink her drink. If she complains tell her that you were just "keeping it safe," and you "don't know any safer place." Keep that sort of flirt the entire time. If she pushes back and says now you owe her another drink, come back with "Fine, you got me. What's your number I'll buy you a drink tomorrow night."

If she says "I'll be back later with my boyfriend" just say "woah, I'm an adventurous guy but I prefer my threesomes to have two girls."

If she doesn't flirt back, you didn't have it to begin with. Don't get yourself down, just move along. If she gets actually angry that you drank her drink, then she wasn't going to fuck you, it was never going to happen.

Any by the way, moving along is the most important tool in your chest. You can't control whether she's into you or not, but you can control how much energy you spend on somebody who isn't into you. And the more you exercise the power to walk, the more attractive you will be.

In all honesty, this play-by-play doesn't sound promising. But if there is even the smallest amount of promise left here, it's by pulling back a little bit. Not by being too available and pushy. You should wait until you organically bump into her again.

Mod Note: I flaired this as off-topic because it belongs in askTRP. But I felt inclined to answer it so it's staying here for the time being.

ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE

52 upvotes · 30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Whoops, these guys are totally wrong and nobody should pay them any attention because of how wrong they are. They gathered a following of over 200,000 subscribers because they're so wrong. We keep reporting about them in the media because they're so wrong!

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

52 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

No matter what ANY cathedral writer tries to convince you of, you must always presume you will be misrepresented to their narrative.

Exactly. I'm actually surprised he didn't butcher it worse. Either way, watch our subscriber count grow, grow, grow!

The Light-Switch Effect - Why Women Re-Write the History of Relationships.

52 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

She feels attraction toward another man. If she were really in love with you, she wouldn't feel that about another man. So she suddenly realizes that she hasn't been in love with you for a long time and hasn't been happy in ages -- if you'd asked her 2 days ago before she met this other guy, she'd have swore she was going to marry you, has never been happier, and you're her hero. But today, she feels as though she hasn't been happy with you for a long time.

Yes, this is unfortunately a common catalyst for the light-switch.

Every unhappy wife is a rape victim

52 upvotes · 4 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I see very little conscience, self doubt or regret in the women I know. They simply blame their husbands and are eager to get out of their marriage vows at the earliest opportunity. It's not 1955 any more, it is the decade of Open Hypergamy.

Agreed, this is what I see most commonly too. The fact that these women have fallen out of love with their husbands does not cause them grief, in fact, they're angry that their husbands didn't live up to their expectations and almost always place 100% of the blame squarely on them.

An MRA discussion is happening tonight at my university. Here's the news article about our resident feminists' attempt at blocking it. The comments are worth a read.

52 upvotes · 27 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She also said that Fiamengo doesn't have the appropriate educational background to promote a critique of rape culture.

Would you look at that, attack the speaker not the words.

And if a toddler proclaims $2+2=4$, feminist experts surmise, it's likely due to the patriarchy and cannot be true because toddlers can't learn math.

Example#3 of doxing from /r/thebluepill

52 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Nobody hates women more than feminists.

News Flash: 1 hamster vs 9 grown up men

52 upvotes · 21 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's actually really interesting to me how easily hamster logic can overwhelm me. It often takes a moment for me to step back and realize I'm being played. They get very emotional and say very convincing things, it almost makes you forget that they're trying to weasel out of something.

Dear Prudence advice: Wife is resentful that husband makes more $ than her & maintains completely separate finances [although he pays all the bills and gives her pocket $]. Prudence advises "Tell him that you thought you married the handsome prince, but you feel like Cinderella before the ball."

52 upvotes · 30 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

(I hope your weekly stipend isn't for services rendered.)

You deserve his money, but he has no such entitlement to sex.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

51 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

And you would be called crazy if "denied" them this.

I think that's where this whole thing is going with the APA demonizing traditional masculinity.

They want to remove all options for parents to instill traditional values in their kids.

You're fucked if you end up in a family court where an APA ordained minister gets to accuse you of toxic masculinity and forcibly removes your children from you.

Stop giving power to ordinary people!

51 upvotes · 22 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

You can bitch, or you can post the change you want to see.

SJW reaction to an anti-PC event co-hosted by Milo Yiannopoulos at my university

51 upvotes · 28 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This made me laugh more than it should've.

Women are Incapable of Change.

51 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This effect also explains why women seem like completely different people when they move on to their next guy.

SendGrid fires Adriana Richards

51 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

HOLY IRONY. Less than 24 hours ago from her:

Hey @mundanematt, it's clear from the last 24 hours you're a bully. @SendGrid supports me. Stop trolling.

TRIBE: THE MAN-HOOD - "Our goal here is to explore the role of men in the world, independent of women. Just focus on you. On men. On manhood. What does it mean to be a man today? What are you into? What makes it manly?"

50 upvotes · 8 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://www.trp.red/tribe/manhood>

A new, very interesting Tribe by our very own /u/cainprice:

In a world where the role of men has shifted from leader and provider to eye-candy, entertainer, and taxpayer, boys are raised nearly exclusively by women, and society hates masculinity with a passion, many men have no idea what it really means to be a man. They grow beards, drink beer, and follow sports teams, because these are "masculine" hobbies that men are allegedly supposed to do. But is this really who they are, or is this just what lost boys do because they don't know what else to do?

The majority of discussions regarding masculinity and what it means to be a man in the modern day never seem to focus on men, but instead focus on women. Wander over to a forum filled with "Men Going Their Own Way" (MGTOW), and the majority of their discussions aren't about their accomplishments, hobbies, and successes. Instead, they discuss how much women suck. The defining quality of these men is not their stance on the place of men in the world, but on the place of women in the world. Wander over to a forum about the Men's Liberation movement, and you see the opposite: men who hate men instead of men who hate women. Self-hating feminist men eager to cut their balls off and hand their alleged privilege to allegedly more deserving people.

What do women do for us that we can't do for ourselves? Two things: Have babies and sate our desire for heterosexual sex. That is the role of women in the world, as far as men are concerned. Anything else you might want from a woman, such as companionship, money, help around the house - you can do that yourself, or another man can do that for you. Those aren't feminine roles. They're just human roles. Unless you need a baby or heterosexual sex, you don't need a woman.

What do men do for women that women can't do for themselves? The same things: Impregnate them and sate their desire for heterosexual sex. That's your role in the world, as far as women are concerned. They can make their own money and fold their own laundry, or find other women to do that. Or men. But unless they're specifically after sperm or dick, anything else a woman wants can be provided by any human, not necessarily a man.

Our goal here is to explore the role of men in the world, independent of women. For now, ignore what women do for men, what women don't do for men, or what men do for women. Just focus on you. On men. On manhood. What does it mean to be a man today? What are you into? What makes it manly?

I don't have the answers, only questions and opinions. I don't know what masculinity is or should be, but society is afraid of it, whatever it is, and carefully censors the topic. So I invite us to congregate, as men, in this dark corner of the internet, and discuss our lives and the forms that modern masculinity can take.

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

50 upvotes · 2 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We don't even allow links to other places on reddit.

Weak men will screw feminism up. - The Sexbots Are Coming

50 upvotes · 4 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

"Now I'm not one to shame somebody's preferences..."

Proceeds to mock and judge.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

50 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I hadn't even heard of this shit 6 years ago. Culture doesn't move that fast. Somebody is brute forcing it.

Sexbots: Why Women Should Panic

50 upvotes · 17 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's crazy how few women develop beyond this.

Post asks women how their SO reacted to their 'high' sexual partner count. The responses are priceless.

50 upvotes · 19 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

These girls with numbers over 300... and there are those who dare argue that men and women have it equally hard.

How women's "feels" view a Pre-nup.

50 upvotes · 6 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You'll get the same visceral disgust if you recommend a paternity test.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

50 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's no limit to how much slut you can be... the only limits are your time, and your dedication.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

50 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

~~Rated M for Mature~~

After a long evening of slow, romantic convincing, I have gotten the ESRB board to approve this at:

Rated E for Everyone

I only ask girls out who hold the door for me

50 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I just pull out my phone and text them "I'm not coming back" and excuse myself to the bathroom.

Getting ready to black-knight a high school girl

50 upvotes · 18 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Welcome to our culture, where serving legal justice to a woman is considered black knighting and out of the ordinary.

NoFap?

50 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The anti-porn movement is a feminist driven movement trying to convince you that it's actually possible to over-stimulate sexually and porn is the cause of it.

There's nothing wrong with fapping in moderation like anything else. People praising the virtues of nofap are just expressing satisfaction with success of their exertion of willpower, and I suspect it would be a similar satisfaction as if they had been successful at changing their diet or keeping a gym routine. (except those will have real life effects).

The Sexual Double Standard Is Not a Significant Phenomenon of in Western Society, Multiple Studies Show

49 upvotes · 9 November 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

I've seen studies that say all sorts of contradictory things. Studies can cherry pick, they can use statistics to say whatever they want, and don't forget about the Replication crisis which means many of these studies can't even be repeated with the same results.

You know what actually convinces me of what's correct? My eyes.

Until I start seeing women act differently, there isn't a study, essay, law or commandment from god that would change my beliefs.

Trust your experience. The feminine imperative has always had a vested interest in gaslighting you and the public about female behavior.

Overall, there is no difference in how men and women judge the morality or immorality of men and women who have premarital sex.

The prevalence of the phrase "INCEL" in today's culture tells you they're lying.

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

49 upvotes · 18 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

They say we're hateful and dangerous, but we're not the ones trying to exert control over others.

Anybody trying to push their will on other people (rape) is objectively evil.

Reddit, and the reddit admin are objectively evil rapists.

Nicolas Cage's wife is suing him for spousal support after 4-day marriage

49 upvotes · 24 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Have children, just don't get married. Plenty of red pill guys here are doing just that.

Keep an eye on my recent and new posts. I'm starting a series on raising children from a red pill perspective.

Spain Gender laws: A country against men - "the woman decides to press charges against you for domestic violence. She then can ask the state for an economic help of 400 euro/month for 11 months. No need for a conviction."

49 upvotes · 19 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Good point! We should formulate a way in which all of a man's proceeds go directly to his victims.
If only there were a mechanism for the government to collect everybody's money and redistribute it.

The Rational Male, Positive Masculinity

49 upvotes · 31 July 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Rollo paid his dues without ever asking for anything in return and paved the way for a community like this.
When somebody puts that much effort into your community, they earn respect. Maybe not from you, but from the people deciding the sticky, this one goes to the top.

RooshV slams the Red Pill

49 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Feel free to chime in any time you want to contribute better advice.

How to Not Get Mad About Feminism Anymore, in One Easy Step.

49 upvotes · 6 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Children like to play dress up.

I became shallow, theres more to life. Seriously learn from me.

49 upvotes · 15 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Reaching any goal often has lackluster results in that sense.
That said, fucking hot women is incredibly satisfying for some of us.

For the first time since records began, there are more single people than married in the US

49 upvotes · 9 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You don't have to agree with red pill theory to realize the market is significantly changing. There's just no arguing with these numbers.

What a REAL Rape Culture Looks Like.

49 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh my god did rps just say that all women want to be raped?

Empowered woman way past the wall tries to understand why she's single. Hamstering ensues.

49 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly. It's too bad women don't understand this, because it really hurts the dating pool in my career oriented area of the world.
These women think that competing with me will somehow impress me. I'm not interested. It's just a turn off. I see these women who list their resume and have that aloof attitude like "you have to work to get my attention" and I'm like.. why? Why would I? You've demonstrated that you're unlikely to want to be in a relationship. I'm going to find somebody more agreeable and less combative.

A subreddit that scrapes a list of "person-defining" subreddits and figures out what subreddits overlap the most and what subreddits are similar to one another. Check out the most recent 2 analyses.

49 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Interesting. So you're saying the blue pill is actually a bunch of srsers? but but but but

I'll just leave this here

49 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Wouldn't it be great to get validation without doing anything worthy of it?

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

48 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks. I cannot stress enough this is entirely because we raised funds to get this done correctly. This is because of the community.

Take a look at the mobile version: <http://a.trp.red/files/mobile.jpg>

All That's Left For Normal Men Are Rotten Women

48 upvotes · 26 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's not the takeaway from that.

The take away is that swole dudes settling for fat 4s signals a shift in the market meaning the few fit women left will also be drowning in cock.

RM: "...women's sense of self-worth has been grossly overblown.." "An abundance of male attention contributes to a sense of security for women's SMV. "

48 upvotes · 20 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

"He is the architect of his own failings, but it seemed like she'd like him better if he took the Instagram shots of her at the time – the ones she would use to advertise her SMV to the Alphas who she knew were the only men worth taking a picture for." - Rollo

(*)

Posting, and What Not to Do

48 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a labor of love.

If you're a guy, and you're here, read this.

48 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen

You're not going out dressed like that, are you?

Cowardice

48 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I typically like avoiding the drama. But on the other hand, today I don't mind putting a little exposure on the censorship of men's issues.

As usual, this content is an exception and not the rule.

Fear to greed. "women delaying marriage are playing a collective game of chicken in order to avoid wasting any more of their youth and fertility on their husbands than absolutely necessary."

48 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Jesus christ that first sentence says more about the sexual climate than entire books have achieved.

Hey, were the second worst Subreddit :D

48 upvotes · 11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a shaming tactic. We can't get any, or that'd be proof we're right.

"why do guys come on so strong for the first few months and back off at the mention of a relationship?"

48 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

LOL. Why don't girls want to have sex with me?

There's something wrong with you guy.

Why don't guys want to have commitment with me?

Going after the wrong guys.

I've been reading reddit for 1+ yr. I'm a girl. Some Insights

48 upvotes · 12 January 2013 · /r/seduction

As a society we congratulate women for even the most basic things. I always ask myself, would I be applauding if this was written by a man? A resounding, no- this is rehashed crap. But coming from a woman, people tend to think, "wow, she's really tuned in!"

Hypergamy doesn't care

47 upvotes · 12 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It wasn't that bad until the internet came along and made women's audiences infinite.

One cleavage pic can get 10,000 likes. What can any single man offer?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

47 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As others said (Iron sharpens Iron). None of us is as smart as all of us.

We can compare notes and improve on our strategies. Can't do that if we don't have at least some amount of openness.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

47 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We've got a backup ready to go, complete with social media and backups of high-scoring threads.

Don't forget to bookmark <https://trp.red>

Radical feminism changes men's perceptions of women in the workplace - Feminism does not allow women to prefer men who exhibit traditional masculine characteristics. So what's left? Get drunk and have sex with the hot bad boys. Then promote false accusations to get revenge against the hot bad boys.

47 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

People with different viewpoints can still have something worth saying. I'm not religious but the war on men attacks traditional men as the primary target. Whether you like it or not, religious men make up a large portion of traditional men.

3 Hours Of "Harassment" In NYC!

47 upvotes · 31 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

I was hoping somebody would try this. Of course, despite being harassed by a few women, feminists will likely point out that a lot of the harassment was from men, and claim it a victory for feminism.

But I think this unseats women as the primary victims of war, I mean compliments.

NBC News on "Yes means Yes" movement: "I think people have less-than-proud moments, sex they wish they wouldn't have had. That's the kind of sex we're trying to prevent, too."

47 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Rugby players, theater kids, frat brothers, and hipsters—of all races, sexual orientations, and genders—were calmly discussing what sex acts they'd like to try: a threesome, a bathroom quickie, sex on the kitchen counter.

Finally negotiating sex like civilized egalitarians in our equal society. I'm guessing the women there were totally gung-ho with performing the acts afterwards... no?

This is just another pit stop in the feminist crusade against male sexual freedom and choice. Further expanding the definition of rape and opening choices for women while limiting options and freedom for men.

There's nothing new here. This is feminism unchecked. This is exactly what we predicted.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

47 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You just can't take people seriously when they fail to grasp (or admit) this fundamental truth. Women do hold the cards for sex. If that weren't so, we wouldn't see men approaching women. We wouldn't see the porn and sex industry primarily targeted at men.

You can't just deny reality because you don't think it sounds equal.

Don't let betas trick you, TRP works.

47 upvotes · 29 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Click report if you suspect a troll. Maybe send a little mod message to help point it out.

"In praise of the beta male"

46 upvotes · 10 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Correction, she will get her happily ever after dream house, car, and maybe family- but don't believe she will be happy with the tingle-free beta she married.

She will be so unhappy with him that she will divorce him because he doesn't give her the tingles. Or she'll stick through it and cheat. But rest assured, the high she got from the cock carousel is gone and she's going to spend the rest of her life chasing it.

CH maxim: The feminist goal is removing all constraints on female sexuality while maximally restricting male sexuality - UofM Enforcing Positive Consent, restricting male sexuality to guilty until proven innocent.

46 upvotes · 6 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

“Really, there’s been a lack of due process for victims forever,” she said. “We’re now shifting and rebalancing, where both parties need to be able to demonstrate there was consent.”

Stupid victims, having to prove a crime took place. They need due process (1) right away!

(1) Due process now defined as whateverthefuck.

NBC News on "Yes means Yes" movement: "I think people have less-than-proud moments, sex they wish they wouldn't have had. That's the kind of sex we're trying to prevent, too."

46 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

s Amanda Marcotte said, this law only counts when there are actual rape complaints. Wanna guess who are going to be the subject of these complaints? I don't know, but we can safely guess that elite men will be able to duck this. Heck, I personally think we have better-than-even odds that this law might actually increase rapes. Once predators know they aren't in the target demo for this law, they'll be able to act with impunity.

Rapists are already not getting consent. This is a nonsense concept- yes means yes- because it does nothing to prevent rape.

♂

Re: Censorship on the current drama

46 upvotes · 20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I can't argue with that.

Oh man, /r/TheRedPill ... another solid thread post on TRP hate

46 upvotes · 26 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Notice that we are, as a group, shedding our culturally engrained gender roles- we are no longer being good mates for women, we're no longer interested in commitment, marriage, beta-bucks, or anything that a "good man" would do when they "man-up."

We're shedding the complimenting gender roles that women are congratulated for shedding.

And we're called man-children for doing so.

See, guys, when a woman breaks free of gender roles, she's a go-getter. Good for her.

When men break free of gender roles (no longer interested in making a good beta bucks), we're shamed. Shame shame shame!

It's like a christian telling an atheist that they're wrong because they're committing a sin-- we don't even believe in your social framework people.. you can't shame us with it!

Seduction is a Tool or: How I Learned to Stop Reading and Hate the Seddit

46 upvotes · 14 March 2013 · /r/seduction

used to manipulate, and be a competitive douche

See here it is. Shaming language to dissuade open discussion based on your moral compass, not everybody's.

Frankly, every single interaction you have with somebody is a form of manipulation. Your goal is in communicating with them is to convey information and change their mind or cause them to act on something.

Even this sentence is a form of manipulation.

"Douche" is an empty term that serves no purpose but to try to stifle men from trying pickup for fear that they may be labeled "douche" themselves. Nobody wants to be hated, so wielding this weapon is surprisingly effective at quashing motivation.

but if you need to manipulate and lie to women

There isn't much need- some of the best alpha moves are being brutally honest. I don't see a terrible amount of advice to go up to women and lie. At least not advice that works well. Let experimentation sort it out.

strategize against your brothers, you are always going to be a beta fag in my eyes

The problem here is that truly natural alphas don't give a fuck about you. They'll do what they want, everybody else be damned. That means you, sitting there at the bar, holding your hat in your hands as alpha-joe walks out with the girl you were chatting with. He doesn't care.

In the mean time you spend time trying to shame other men into submission, making sure we all follow these politically correct rules, failing to realize mating is a zero sum game.

Before this gets removed because it's supposed to be on asktrp website , I'd like to take a chance.

45 upvotes · 5 August 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Nobody wants the massive censorship campaign that's happening on reddit. But here we are.

MGTOW just got banned.

Whereallthegoodmenare just got banned

And a number of our mods just got banned.

I hope the users see this. Nobody wants to have to leave reddit but our hands are tied.

Use your head folks. WE aren't the ones doing this. We are desperately trying to protect the conversation that is being heavily attacked by others.

So stop blaming us for the circumstances the reddit admin are causing.

And yes, anybody who wants to fuck off is too lazy to improve themselves anyhow.

at least make an app for TRP.red

Feel free to fund the effort. It's not cheap.

Here's how it's going to go. We invest in an iphone and an android app. Immediately, it gets removed from both as "hate speech."

Dev time gone. Cost of dev time, in the drain.

Instead, we made both trp.red and forums.red fully responsive and mobile friendly. From both iphone and android you can use "pin to home screen" and it will work as an app. You're welcome, by the way. It's been an incredibly difficult effort to get where we are today.

no one wants to have to open a browser and ask stuff

Then nobody wants to put in the bare minimum effort to get real help. They're helpless anyway

New posts are restricted for the day. Comments are open.

45 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's been an ongoing battle since I've been here. There will always be a signal to noise ratio that needs to be nudged as time moves forward.

All it takes is dedicated members to keep submitting high quality content.

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inured and so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it." Cognitive dissonance-whenver bias prevents someone from even considering an alternative view let alone weigh the merits.

45 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"Emotionally healthy mature men don't want submissive partners in most aspects of the relationship. "

Remember next time somebody says "There's plenty of good advice for men out there, TRP doesn't need to exist."

It's these kinds of lies that put men here in the first place.

If you buy this lie you'll always wonder why your relationship didn't work. They repeat it, but always leaving out that they will always be more attracted to a man that is dominant. People didn't buy 50 shades of grey because it turns them off.

This is how the devious feminine imperative accomplishes its goal. Repeat a lie that the weakest men will buy. Those who don't get it will see how one would likely fail, but naturals get submission and respect simply by being.

Disclaimer: Obviously there's some nuance to respect and submission that a sperg is going to miss. If this guy goes from a malleable sucker to verbally demanding respect the next day, he's not going to get it. You don't demand respect, just like you can't negotiate desire.

The Light-Switch Effect - Why Women Re-Write the History of Relationships.

45 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Just to be clear, that light switch is not a dimmer, but a toggle. They don't go from hot to warm. They turn on or turn off from hot to bitter cold, seemingly overnight.

Yes, it will be instantaneous.

Girl on OKCupid subreddit keeps telling herself that she's attracted to betas - and then learns that her "perfect, amazing" boyfriend is a RedPiller.

45 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I recently moved into a bigger place with my current LTR, and the month leading up to the move was a lot, a lot, of painstaking home repair and painting (it was a fixer-upper).

She was getting depressed because we were on a tight time-table and therefore didn't have much free time to spend on 'us'. Every day after work or on weekends, we were there painting, fixing, cleaning, building.

Eventually she got so overwhelmed while she was painting that she just lost it. She couldn't imagine the finished product and it was too painful for her. She hated everything about the house because of all this work we were putting into it.

After that I told her to go do something else and that I'd finish the house myself.

Once the house was finished, she loved it. But she had no grasp on the delayed gratification.

I understand the stress, it wasn't an easy time. But for me, I saw the pain as a path to progress. For her she saw the pain as an obstacle.

She couldn't envision the endgame.

Why Businesses and the Government Pander to Women

45 upvotes · 7 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, it gets worse:

13.8% of overseas military couldn't vote in '12

<http://archive.armytimes.com/article/20130125/BENEFITS07/301250312/13-8-overseas-military-couldn-t-vote-12>

How many military are men vs women.

Post asks women how their SO reacted to their 'high' sexual partner count. The responses are priceless.

45 upvotes · 19 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I have some sympathy for them, just like the guys who put themselves in the friend zone, they are doing what society is telling them they should do to get what they want (sex for the men, a relationship for the women) without realizing they are being lied to and screwing themselves over in the process.

Except these women are just drunk off validation, and let it get to their heads. Whereas guys in the friendzone are miserable.

I totally agree with maybe 85% of what is said here, but I feel like the last 15% is a bit extreme.

45 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

All women won't fuck you over. But they could. And your job is to prepare yourself and protect yourself from the what-ifs.

Cowardice

45 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm afraid that so long as we're on reddit, where other people have some level of control, there will be a risk of censorship and politics.

I am publishing this. You may not see the long term value in the things I do for our subreddit, but I haven't failed us yet, so I hope you'll trust me.

How 'Consensual' Sex Got A Freshman Kicked Out Of College And Started A Huge Debate

45 upvotes · 17 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Men, you are in charge, no matter what anyone says and you'd better act that way. If you let yourself be tricked into thinking women are your equals, the mess that will be made will be your responsibility to clean up.

Indeed, if there's nothing the sidebar teaches, it's that this is the real world we live in. This kid is fucked because he thought equality existed and thought women could be responsible for her own decisions.

Women are children in our culture, and will never make a decision in your favor. Always have an out.

♂

Girlfriend is traveling, cheats, guy doesn't know what to do :smh:

45 upvotes · 28 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Trickle truth. He'll get the rest of the story over the next few months. The final death blow will be when she's finally so annoyed by his existence that she just blurts it out.

How to get a woman to go home with you... AS WRITTEN BY WOMEN. Unbelievable....

45 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Should be labeled "things this chick wishes the unattainable alpha had done after she let him fuck her. Why is he so hard to lock down?" "Guys, don't be like this guy I fucked, I hate him for it!"

Men Its Time To Boycott Marriage Until Laws Change & Here's Why.

45 upvotes · 31 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Now it's time? Man we've been saying this for a while.

Wife divorces husband after false rape allegation. After 24 years in prison, DNA evidence proves his innocence. Man gets $2 mill in compensation. Ex wife comes back around and sues for half. Marriage: not even once

45 upvotes · 17 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Jesus fuck

User on r/askmen provides evidence supporting why men don't seek out promiscuous women

45 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think you missed my sarcasm.

Sluts are great as a secondary backup to what men wanted. Despite sex being awesome, a lot of guys are pretty upset about not being husbands and fathers. A bunch of sluts to fuck hardly seems like a fair trade, but we'll have to make do.

Train a society of men that the only acceptable option is to be "the nice guy". But.. If they notice that it works against them in dating that must mean they only want sex. So berate and chastise them

45 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

I think the problem is that they've got a straw man version of nice-guys.

The concept is that if a guy is upset that he's been turned down, citing that he's nice, women assume then that he thought he had a reasonable expectation that a particular woman would be drawn to him like magic.

Of course, no man actually thinks that. They don't think, "hey, I'll pretend to be nice and women will be unable to stop their lust for me." They say, "hey I like women, how do I be attractive?"

They notice women say they like nice guys, not assholes, so they take extra care not to be dicks. For most guys wondering how to attract women- they don't have to do much to become a "nice-guy" because if he wasn't a nice-guy already, he'd probably have a clue on how to pick up a date!

So he thinks his personality traits are good, and women backed it up with positive re-enforcement! Yes, women hate assholes. Yes, be yourself. Yes, love will come along, just wait for the right one!

And then he's turned down over and over again.

His frustration is not because he had any claim on any woman that defied him. His frustration is because he's learning he's not attractive. And worse- he's done everything women endorse- so if that doesn't work, then he's irreparably unattractive.

People who hate on nice-guys have literally no idea how difficult it is to put yourself out there every day, to have to approach people just for a chance to get shut down. It doesn't take too many rejections before guys assume there's something so wrong with them that there's no point.

What on Earth is r/TheRedPill?

45 upvotes · 9 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

It's a common misconception to believe our view is men are superior to women. I don't believe that. I think men are better men than women. And I think women are better women than men could ever be.

We're different with our own strengths and weaknesses.

The reason people conflate our views with superiority is because they're busy judging women with men's standards.

Would it be fair to call all women weak? No, of course not, even though women are categorically weaker than men.

Women and men have different scales, different strengths, and different weaknesses. Judge them for who they are, not for how they measure to the other.

Men are not superior.

A Note on OPSEC in light of the recent Twitter leaks...

44 upvotes · 20 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Burner laptop or VM with VPN installed and on full time.

You will be fingerprinted, so make sure all activities you do on this computer or VM do not co-mingle with anything personally identifying.

Discussion: Do you want children? What is the best way to have children?

44 upvotes · 4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Speaking for myself- yes I want children.

So the answers to the follow up questions are important.

How do you have children? Obviously do not get married. But you do need to find and vet a woman and enter into a long-term relationship with her to do so.

I don't think having separated parents is a good idea, so you gotta be darn sure of your arrangement before knocking somebody up.

From what I can tell- you face a similar amount of liability from having children despite marriage status, so again, there's no reason to enter into such a marriage just to increase your liability.

Life insurance and inheritances I think can be handled through establishing a Trust for your child(ren).

Public school is where I think things are going to start going off the rails. For parents without the time/money for homeschooling or private schooling, what are your options for preventing brainwashing? (or minimizing the effects)

Stop Reddit Censorship Join Our Petition: 1-Hour Boycott Nov 1st 4:00 PM PDT - Please Share

44 upvotes · 29 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's do it. Reach out to me on trp.red PM

The Hamster is fully in control. What to do? #metoo

44 upvotes · 20 November 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I have long theorized that the endgame for feminism is to ensure that any and all interaction with women becomes a legal liability. This gives them a few advantages:

First of all, it gives them complete control in the relationship. They have a nuke at their disposal, giving them the ultimate upper-hand. When a woman no longer cares for continued association with a man, she can and will use any option at her disposal. She will use this implied threat-point in the same way they wield no-fault divorce.

But it also sorts out the betas. It's essentially another shit test, albeit one that has dire consequences. Only men bold, daring, and strong enough will try to cross the legal line to be with a woman. That's exciting to her. Same reason she likes bad boys.

You're not alone OP. It's a scary thought.

Twitch streamer goes missing during a convention, but I bet you knew exactly where she was. Unfortunately, her own BF/husband can't say the same.

44 upvotes · 16 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Plus this makes the dude look CLINGY as fuck.

He's in a lose/lose situation right now. His only option is to delete facebook, hit the gym, and find a new woman.

New Design

44 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay, here's a compromise. I've brought the pills back for comment sections.

Rollo Tomassi in Vegas – Man in Demand Conference

44 upvotes · 7 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stickied for you, Rollo.

We should send the whole mod team and then play a game to see who can figure out which mod is who.

Lesson learned: If a woman asks how much you make, break it off ASAP.

44 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

But who wants a career woman? I think if a woman is going to fulfill the wife/stay-at-home mom role, it's important for her to filter for somebody financially stable.

Obviously avoid gold diggers, but if you are looking for LTR material, somebody financially independent and career-driven doesn't exactly sound like good mate material.

Female Solipsism: Older Married Woman asks AskMen Why Dating is Hard

44 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Great analysis here:

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskMen/comments/1lnrvu/female_wondering_why_guys_are_so_hard_on/cc123q7

Yahoo CEO Marissa Mayer does what women do best, forces her way into a space (purchases tumblr) and then tries to change it to suit her sensibilities... even at the risk of potentially killing off yet another brand.

44 upvotes · 19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh, hello brigade.

G/f (maybe soon to be fiancé) immaturely has threatened to leave. She likely isn't serious at all. How to respond?

44 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't get married. What possible advantage would that bring to your life that you don't already have?

Please help me understand

44 upvotes · 6 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A planet forms from floating debris in space, on it, things exist. Some become autonomous. Some not.

On this planet exist a stone and a man.

What gives a stone value? It has no inherent value. Indeed, the term value is, in a universe sans consciousness, meaningless.

However a man may find use in the stone with which to build a shelter. This man has found value in this stone. The stone, itself being non-sentient, has no way to determine value, and therefore does not hold within itself a concept of self-value.

The man, however, through the experience of being sees value in himself, as without his being, he can no longer experience. This would be the most intrinsic value to any living being. The value of self.

Fast forward hundreds of years. Two men find a stone.

The first man sees the stone and the possibility to utilize it to build himself a home. To him, the rock has great value.

The second man already has a home, and sees no possible utility for the stone.

Has the second man somehow changed the value of the stone for the first? Has either made any indication of this stone's objective inherent value? Alas, there is no framework in which all members of a system agree entirely on the value of a stone, only that the stone itself has the ability to hold value for at least some of the members. Again, the stone holds no value to itself, as the stone is non-sentient.

The man who finds a stone needs help building his house. For this purpose, he needs an able bodied man who is strong enough to lift the stone. This man will have value in this purpose. To the builder, a young, weak man who is not able-bodied will have no value for this project. Likely, in the case of survival, the cripple will provide little value in almost any endeavor.

Does this mean the crippled man has no value to himself? If he discontinues existing, he will no longer be able to experience. The experience itself holds intrinsic value, as without experience, there is no value.

What one person sees in another will never, and can never be an objective declaration of value. There is no system or framework in which all members can or need to agree on value of any person or object. A starving man values a single grape, when the glutton may not value ones that do not immediately please his eyes.

A few questions to ask yourself.

1. What makes you think that you're so special you should hold an intrinsic value to strangers, if you have not provided some level of value to them?
2. If you're worried about not being valued, ask yourself what is it you bring to the table worthy of value?

Men are taught from a very early age that in order to be valued in society, they need to bring value to the table. Men focus and hone crafts, trade skills, personality for sales, strength for labor, and a myriad of other value-adding traits.

Do you suppose you should deserve an equal amount of value in the eyes of all if you do not provide something valuable? Or are you making the very simple mistake of believing that having a vagina has somehow equated you to these things?

The problem is that you're used to society saying that because of who you are, you somehow have an intrinsic value. I have just shown you that this is false, there is no intrinsic value beyond that which you have for yourself. Your vagina has given you inflated value to most, since most men are biologically programmed to trip over themselves trying to gain access to one.

We aren't denying that women can bring value to the table. We're just denying that merely having a vagina gets you that value. If you want to be valued by us, you'll have to do it the hard way- the same way we do.

You don't have to though, there are plenty of sex-deprived betas drooling at a chance to worship your vagina. To them you hold value. To us, you're just another person until you've shown us value.

The Humiliation of Aziz Ansari

43 upvotes · 15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

His show glorifies the nice guy. It's like a how-to manual for weak men to bring a really bad showing to dates.

In the show, at every turn, he defers to women as his default position and then wonders why he doesn't get success.

In a way, it's realistic to assume he will continue failing, so maybe it's a cautionary tale. But I don't think he's that unplugged. I think he thinks his reward is yet to come.

Article about 60 year old Mel Gibson dating a 25 year old woman. Comments are full of shaming language & Red Pill GOLD!

43 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Even my family gave me shit. "What could you possibly have in common with an 18 year old girl?"

I mean, I didn't really have her around to talk to her, mom.

The Empress is Naked

43 upvotes · 9 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll quote Rollo's 'Women & Sex' because he says it best:

One of the single most annoying tropes I read / hear from men (more so than women) is the "Women are just as / more sexual than men" canard. Nothing stops me in my tracks more abruptly than reading this line parroted back in some form by a self-effacing white knight trying to convince himself, hope against hope, that it could be true. This is a VERY effective feminine social convention, even internalized and spouted back by the likes of more than a few infamous PUAs. This fantasy belongs among the higher order social convention myths like the Myth of Sexual Peak. Just a rudimentary knowledge of female biology is all that's needed to deconstruct the myth.

Women are more sexual than men, but they are repressed due to a lack of "trust".

Patently false. A healthy male produces between 12 to 17 times the amount of testosterone a woman does. It is a biological impossibility for a woman to want sex as much as, or as often as men. Trust me, when a woman says, "I don't understand why sex is so important to guys" she's speaking the literal truth. No woman will ever experience 17 times the amount of her own testosterone levels (barring steroids). Amongst its many other effects, testosterone is the primary hormone involved with stimulating human libido. I should also add that, on average, and barring environmental variables, a mans testosterone only declines 1% per year beyond age 40, so even at age 60 the average, healthy male is only dealing with an average 20% deficit in testosterone.

Critics of this observation like to argue that, for female sexual response and arousal, testosterone isn't the only factor to consider. To which I'll agree, however it is the PRIMARY factor in sexual response. A woman cannot possibly understand what 12 to 17 times their present amount of testosterone could feel like without steroid use. In fact the first effect female bodybuilders report when cycling anabolic steroids is a 100 fold increase in sexual interest and libido. So in terms of natural female hormonal / biochemical response there is no unaltered way a woman could ever make an accurate comparison to what a man's baseline libido is in relation to her own. Women's sexual desire is also cyclical. Even at the peak of her ovulatory cycle, when she's at her horniest, she'll never experience what men do 24 hours a day. This is the root of the myth, and the source of the social convention.

[Mod] If you bitch and moan, I'm a throw you out.

43 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't know if I was totally clear, but having aspirations of family life and long term relationships isn't bad.

The part we take exception to is the legal contract which hands a loaded gun to your wife and asks her not to use it. (But gives her cash prizes if she does).

LTR talk, and people who are already married (like mrp), this conversation is entirely on topic- we're not shunning it.

But anybody recommending marriage is strictly not TRP.

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

43 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She thinks she can hide behind the plausible deniability of fair-and-balanced. Well, she probably can.

Sexbots: Why Women Should Panic

43 upvotes · 17 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And images would load top to bottom, so you had to wait to see dem titties. God help you if you got a phone call before it loaded snatch...

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

43 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Credits:

Game Conception:

/u/trudatness

Authors

/u/trudatness

/u/softharem

/u/Brown_Piper

/u/redpillschool

Teen charged with sexting girlfriend will be forced to get an erection via an injection and be photographed by police for evidence

43 upvotes · 9 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

Her getting charged is the only way this will get the attention it deserves.

1 Hidden Cam Reveals How Women Judge Men! Women's Double Standards Exposed.

43 upvotes · 14 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The "insecure woman" idea is just another made-up way to maintain the perpetual female-as-victim idea. When a woman finds a man with sufficiently higher value, she is naturally attracted to him. Feminists say this is "taking advantage" or "exploitation" because it should always be the woman's choice. Ignoring that it was the woman's choice. Anything that gives a man value in the sexual market is deemed immoral by feminists. Thus the idea that a woman who is insecure is being taken advantage of.

Of course a woman will be insecure around a guy who is very high value-- because she's worried she won't be good enough to hook him. And she wants to hook him. He's high value.

Don't perpetuate that bullshit idea here.

The Eternal Solipsism of the Female Mind

43 upvotes · 26 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

it's nowhere near as common as she thinks it is.

All the guys she fucks are clearly fucking other girls, so it obviously is very common. I mean, all other dudes are basically invisible to her anyway.

User /u/J2501 suggests that women should be more proactive in dating, and pay on dates- is immediately torn apart and shamed repeatedly by others, without missing a beat.

43 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

BTW, When women use that argument, "you're just mad because you're not getting laid", to diffuse the point I make that women use sex as a means of empowerment, they are only proving me right. When a woman says "I disagree with you that all my power comes from sex, so I'm going to withhold sex from you and tell the whole female hivemind to do so as well", they are simply re-enforcing the idea that women's only power is sex.

Amazing.

Fascinating discussion last night re: hypergamy

43 upvotes · 4 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"I just watched you circle this bar and pick up on every girl in here. If I'm the last girl you want to talk to, then no thanks."

"Oh, no, you're not the last girl I want to talk to. I plan on going over to those girls over there next!"

Reddit's ex-CEO says: "Deplatforming works", "We don't need to protect speech"

42 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

She really is a terrible person!

The Computer Toucher Disease

42 upvotes · 22 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The Perfectionist procrastinates and fails to improve by believing that unless they can do anything at the highest level, it's either not worth doing or "they're not ready"

Monk-mode, I'm looking at you.

My personal improvement regimen included daily failure. Monk mode is procrastinating trying in fear of failure.

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

42 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The takeaway we're usually given is that although there are size differences between the brains, there are no functional differences- so there's nothing to derive from this.

Along with their "theory" on gender, they think intelligence is entirely learned and there is nothing genetic or biological about it.

Never mind the fact that statistical differences were found. Nevermind that we already know male and female brains develop and are wired differently irrelevant of size.

We are told it's entirely superficial, and that there is simply no functional difference due to size variation.

Reminder: Bookmark our off-reddit site - TRP.RED

42 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

A good number of them, yes. <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

A Family Man Experiences the Light-Switch, Loses Everything, Baffled that the Rules Don't Apply

42 upvotes · 20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Being afraid to get hurt is some psychologically damaged childhood shit. Get a better reason

It's not being afraid of getting hurt, it's intentionally not signing a contract that is inherently flawed.

There is nothing man-up worthy about getting into a contract designed to exploit him. Simply suggesting that it is a matter of maturity to accept such bullshit is exactly how the blue pill conditioning works.

You're handing a woman a gun, pointing at your face, asking her not to shoot.

The Sexodus in action: millennials are having less sex.

42 upvotes · 4 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Somewhere over the years, this changed. Women seem to have gotten far less attractive, interesting, and more abusive and closed minded.

I'm having a similar experience. I'm a bit older than you, but I've noticed the average attitudes of women go totally downhill over the past 15 years. And it's not me that's changing (At least not in a bad way, I'm in way better shape and lost a lot of weight since my early twenties).

Women have simply become less tolerable. There are few redeeming qualities to women any more.

The Controversial Secret to a Happy Marriage

42 upvotes · 20 August 2015 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's sad when "be good to your partner" is considered controversial.

How far feminism has taken us.

AskReddit: "What's the most arbitrary reason you've had sex with a guy?" is an absolute GOLDMINE of female hamstering.

42 upvotes · 4 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This isn't the place for reaction gifs.

Remember the guy who dumped his fiance because she would only hold his hand after being raped but fucked her co-worker? Well here's the update...

42 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Dread done properly is unspoken and covert. This was ultimatum game- which is coming from a position of weakness (whereas proper dread is from a position of strength).

From Rollo:

Whenever a person delivers an ultimatum, always understand that this is a declaration of powerlessness. In other words, "I am so out of control in this circumstance you must do this or I will remove either myself or you from the circumstance."

Final Warning: Keep Your Damn Morals To Yourself

42 upvotes · 21 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

For anybody onlooking, the last two comments by omnipedia and modified_hackware is an example between somebody taking things literally, intentionally applying the worst possible interpretation of something to make an argument (also known as trolling) and somebody who can use an ounce of brainpower to understand the spirit of the rule and follow the guidelines with little to no trouble.

There's a reason why one of these two is an endorsed contributor.

Hunting the Unicorn

42 upvotes · 11 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Something interesting I discovered is that almost all of the ladies at /r/redpillwomen are introverts. The woman I am currently dating is also an introvert.

Something to keep an eye on.

What I've learned from the women in my family.

42 upvotes · 18 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They're not fucking built to do this alone, yet they're designed in a way that makes you not want to put up with them.

They're sadly built to push boundaries as much as possible to ensure quality mates... which makes them the worst possible mate after the wall.

Which, evolutionarily speaking, doesn't fucking matter even a little bit.

The legacy of Feminism: 25% of American women in 40's/50's are taking Antidepressants

42 upvotes · 4 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Girls 18-22, I don't know a single one of them who isn't hopped up on some mood-altering substance.

I am Tuthmosis from returnofkings.com Ask Me Anything!

42 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Sorry everybody for the delay. Thanks tuthmosis for joining us. Account is Verified.

Suffered the harsh realities of red pill life... Again. rant/questions

42 upvotes · 6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Is this the girl who accused you of rape?

You're either trolling or really really stupid.

Please confirm.

This kid has no clue that his dad isn't his dad. (Sorry, couldn't help myself, this is unbelievable.)

42 upvotes · 23 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

After reviewing the chances that this could actually happen, I have come to the conclusion that nobody is that stupid and this must be a troll.

Puppies randomly punished/loved develop stronger affections

42 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

My point was that sexual strategy is amoral. You might stick to your values, but those who have sex .. have sex.

It's best illustrated through our ancestors. The idea was that whether or not we like the methods used- whoever procreated made children, and those who didn't.. didn't.

Your understanding of how morality works is a bit flawed here. You see, there is no universal morality. There is nothing in the universe applying any law other than those of physics. The rest is abstraction.

Morality is not black and white.

Let's look at stealing for instance. If I steal a loaf of bread, we would normally consider that wrong. But what if I were a starving child on the street and I have no other way of surviving? If I stole that bread and ate it to survive the night, was this right? Is it a grey area?

People make value judgements every day to determine what the best survival strategy is, (and to maximize happiness if basic needs are met).

Most people realized very early on that one good survival strategy was to not be murdered. Sounds pretty basic. So a social contract was developed. I won't murder you if you don't murder me!

But if somebody invades our group, we can kill them!

So we can see that even killing is not right or wrong in a black and white sense.

Murder, stealing, rape, these were all concepts that most people entering into the social contract said, I don't want these things, my best strategy is to cooperate, therefore I should not do them. And the basic framework of morality was built.

Killing Nazis? Moral. Killing your neighbor? Immoral. A simple code to pass on the social contract that enables society and really helped us as a species!

I think you and I agree when I say that we've both signed on to this concept. I don't want to be murdered, and I willingly take part in a social contract of not murdering. Most people have this concept built in evolutionarily- it's called empathy! Empathy helped groups to survive. Empathy follows this model, as most felt righteous or indifferent towards the killing of enemies and food.

So, yes, there is a framework we're calling morality, but understand what gave rise to it and how/why it works. Also understand that morality is not a constant nor objective, and some people have determined a different set of rules will best maximize their success or happiness. If they break our rules, we determine it to be detrimental to our own survival, because we depend on the social contract to exist ourselves!

So we punish murderers. It adds disincentive to breaking our moral code. And I'm fine with that.

Here's where things get a bit hairy. If my mating strategy is to dismiss a maximum number of potential mates (hypergamy), and I tell people certain mating strategies are immoral, then I can get other people to agree to it.

But what happens if this framework isn't based on a contract that benefits all who participate?

What if you signed a contract that said you will pay me $40/month, but I will provide nothing in return?

Eventually you realize that the contract makes no sense!

Sexual strategy is amoral. There are those who have sex, and there are those who do not. What contract will you sign up for? The one that results in you having sex? Or the ones that you're told are moral to uphold but do not bring you sex?

Obviously understanding that we are operating within other frames we believe do benefit us. Obviously rape is a poor decision because it goes against the personal freedom social contract we currently live by. And I support that ideal.

But we're also told that an older man courting a young impressionable 19 year old is immoral because of the age gap- he's too influential, it would be coercion. Tell me, if we avoid doing this out of our sake for morality- where is our benefit in this social contract? It's the feminine imperative you are seeing.

Do not exploit common psychology to build attraction because it is immoral.

This is a prime example of why sexual strategy is amoral. Because at the end of the day, their mating strategy is contingent on beta's failures, and our strategy is based on theirs to fail! Therefore there is no common social contract that we can commit to that benefits both genders. Only men are so easily fooled into entering into these social contracts because they work well for society in general, that they forgot to look at the feminine imperative and ask, but how does that benefit me?

Sexual strategy is amoral.

"Women Have No Value Beyond Their Pussies" - Repost?

42 upvotes · 6 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Similarly, ejaculation is just one small part of why I pursue women. I went dancing last night and had a great time. I enjoy the feeling of having my hand on her waist, of leading her through the dance. I like the way her hair feels when it brushes my face. I didn't manage to sleep with her, but even in sex, I enjoy making love. I like giving pleasure. I like the sounds that women make. I like the way they smell. I like the softness. I like going down on a woman. I like thinking about her when she's not around - I like the fact that she's thinking about me.

You've got to ask yourself, why is it that you derive pleasure from this?

At the end of the day, our brains are wired to respond positively to behaviors that increase the likelihood of the survival of our species. That's why eating makes you happy, and securing a mate that may be fertile makes you happy.

Of course it's not just the sex that makes you happy. Women are intoxicating. Flirting with one can put you over the moon for days!

The problem is with the argument of bad vs good.

Mating strategy is amoral. There is no good vs bad. The biggest misrepresentation I've seen is when people argue that women act in ways hypocritical to their imperative, the reader assumes we imply that women are bad.

Hypocritical for sure. And men can certainly feel betrayed, used, and bitter when they discover the truth. Because at the end of the day, women's sexual strategy is manipulative. It's literally to lie to society about what they want, and reward alphas.

But it's not immoral. It's amoral. All is fair in love and war!

The problem that you're describing of selection and confirmation bias sounds like we've self-selected only anecdotes that support our theories.

Understand that the theories, when we develop them, stem from our understanding of economic forces, cause and effect, and our understanding of evolution.

Now, we do see a lot of anecdotes that lend to our theories, and we do downplay the ones that don't. And there's a reason for this.

Not all women are like that. But I want to expand on this, because in a sense, I want to stress that all women really are like that, except some variables change.

It's true some women are happily married. Some women will never exhibit certain behaviors that we ascribe to the female gender. Why is that?

Variables.

First, there's the variable of SMV. Women who rank 8 are going to develop different traits than one who is a 2. The reason is simple: Supply and demand. A woman who has little chance at finding provisions via a mate will find themselves developing personality traits and trade skills that prettier women will never see use for.

Then there's the variable of SMP. A woman who's a 2 may still clean up if she's one of only 10 broads in town, surrounded by men. A woman who's a 10 might act humble and kind if she's one of a thousand in a town with few eligible bachelors. This was seen during WWI and WWII, men were in short supply, and very easily cleaned up because women were in the majority and had to fight for the few alphas available. In fact, there's even a study to show the difference in behavior of women and men in relationships based on the gender ratio in a subcommunity. Worth the read if you have the time:

<http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3130599/>

Thirdly, there's the variable of culture. A woman who is raised in a religious or conservative home may have a belief system or may be disciplined to be predisposed to certain behaviors. Look at mormons. The women in this culture go to college to meet husbands. They adore their husbands and wait on them as their masters. The culture these people are born into has a huge effect on how they behave. This is a large reason why men in Westernized countries want to go to other countries with different cultures. Because the women aren't masculine in other cultures.

Look no further than 100 years ago to see that women overwhelmingly used to stay in marriages. What does this say about our theory of hypergamy??

So if all these variables can affect how women (and men) act- why do we make such broad generalizations? It would almost seem to me as though what I've described here is that women are all different and no conclusions can be drawn!

And that's where most people get stuck when trying to parse our theories.

It's important to understand that we do not deny these variables. We only attempt to build a theoretical framework that has common rules and controls that we can apply across the board. It is not our theory that women cannot act differently than our theories. It is instead our theory that when women act contrary to the theory, they actually are not acting contrary at all, instead there are different variables and pressures causing the anomalous behavior. In fact, it's not anomalous at all! The differing behaviors make perfect sense when you consider the variables causing them!

Our theories describe women (and men) in a vacuum. In the same way theoretical physicists discuss theories in a vacuum. There are hundreds of variables and controls that will affect behavior.

The question you should ask is this: If we believe women are hypergamous, why would a woman stay happily married to a man?

What's the market look like? How is her access to provisions? How many eligible men does she have access to? How well does he satisfy her lust for alpha? What religion is she? What values does she have that were taught to her as a child?

This does not deny hypergamy. This instead addresses exactly what controls can counteract hypergamy. This woman who married as a virgin and stayed with her husband till death is no less hypergamous than any other women: she simply had the right variables for a happy marriage and a great family.

Mind you that it's these variables that most of the men here are trying to figure out how to control, because believe it or not, a happy long term relationship is a dream a lot of us have. The ones here rejecting long term monogamy do so not out of desire, but out of necessity. A lot of us have discovered that some of the variables are outside our control. Instead of reaching for the pipe dream of the perfect wife, we react to the market forces and deal with them accordingly.

The woman I met today, what forces affect her behavior?

Her sexual market value is an adjusted 9. The current marketplace finds men out-number women 4 to 1. She was not raised religious, instead she was raised feminist. These variables remove all restraints that would control hypergamy, therefore she will be openly hypergamous and there is simply nothing I can do to change these variables. I cannot make a long term relationship out of her.

This is not bitter anger or a resolution of demise. Instead it's reacting to the market forces I simply have no control over. I will spin plates and avoid monogamy because it is the only way to navigate this market that I find myself in (and most men here have also found themselves in).

Single, smart, over 40 - and frustrated: The Hamster is strong in this article.

42 upvotes · 4 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

and a lot of guys over 40 are going for girls under-30, because they don't think they're 40," she said.

So bitter. They don't think they're 40! Well to be fair, if they're getting girls under 30, who's to blame them? Looks like they're well aware they're 40 and it's working for them.

[Mod] Time for my confession...

42 upvotes · 1 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I swear I didn't plan to announce it today, it's just that my monthly flow schedule put me in the mood to confess today. You wouldn't understand it's my feminine mystique.

I've noticed recently...

42 upvotes · 1 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Alright, so I wanted to take a second to address this, since I'm assuming this won't be the last concern post. I won't label you a troll because I think you're being genuine, but typically this type of post is considered "concern trolling."

1500 users ago, most of the content was provided by myself and the other two mods. We went through our history of good things we've read and posted it over the course of a month or two. Unfortunately, we've also managed to run out of stock. New posts come through the major blogs every day or so, some are good some aren't worth posting.

I've pulled back on posting as much, since the community has grown, I wanted to let others start contributing.

One trend, which has filled in the gaps of theory posts, is practical application posts. Analysis of threads on other subs, debates and discussions.

Now you may view these as bad or negative but I see them as a few things:

- Good practice at debate
- Good evidence for future discussion and theory
- Good evidence to pile up to counter the "anecdotes" argument

It's a good exercise, recognizing the rationalization in real life. New theories come from analyzing how real people act and interact. I would also recommend going outside sometimes (I know which of you are red pill addicts).

I would not characterize this as "circle-jerking" (I hate the term and the implication), but rather it's preparation.

One of the biggest arguments against us is that we have too small a sample group for our theories, and that we select for a biased sample group. I'm always about finding hypocrisy in the real world and analyzing it to death. Trying to understand people's motivations when they make certain comments are a big portion of taking the red pill. As we have new members filtering in every day, this will likely be an ongoing exercise.

I wouldn't mind more quality posts linking to theory articles, and I encourage anybody who has some to post to do so. As always, upvote material that is particularly red pill, and downvote the haters.

As for the content as it stands today, I've rather enjoyed some of the latest posts.

A few additional notes before I finish:

- The angry tone. - I've heard some concerns about how angry everybody seems. I will not moderate against anger. It is a normal part of swallowing the red pill. You'll see that there's a wide variety of people here. Some of the older users you might find have more calm and collected posts- consider that your end game. The fact that some guys here are frustrated and angry is expected. There is nothing to be concerned about. If you want to help, target these guys and help them on their journeys.
- Woman bashing - I think most of us are here because we can't live without women. I understand the tone here sometimes suggests we hate women. I think this goes along the lines of the angry tone, which is this- the red pill is a bitter pill to swallow. Sometimes calling out a woman's hypocrisy can be cathartic. Some guys just need a place to vent where other guys will understand where they're coming from. Remember, it's not an easy journey. If you're concerned, target these users and help them on their journeys.

We won't turn down the anger, nor censor our speech. Political correctness has served the feminine imperative for far too long. There is no shame in acknowledging you're angry. And some of you might be angry as fuck at women right now. Welcome to the place on the internet where that's ok. We'll learn from this, not shame for it.

/r/AskMen asks "Men that opened up to the girlfriend/wife when they asked you to open up and be more vulnerable, how did it work out for you?" and gets the wrong answer...

41 upvotes · 11 February 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Even if 5 out of 6 Russian Roulette players survive, I still wouldn't hold the gun to my head.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

41 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

In fact, I assume the opposite.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

41 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://forums.red/i/theredpill> has a full archive.

Response: Girl from OkCupid

41 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The reasoning is concerning.

Thought policing, this is the feminine imperative at it's finest. She wants to control the thought and motive behind actions, even if the results were the same.

It's not good to be attractive and free thinking.

Why improve yourself because women are irrational and need a leader? Improve yourself because you're a human with a life that shouldn't be wasted.

Do it for yourself! That's it! Or, improve yourself because the game is stacked against you.

Tease because you know she can take it and you appreciate her comebacks.

I feel like I'm at a yoga class.

Don't neg because you've perceived some threat to your manhood.

Projection and solipsism. It's not perceived a threat to our manhoods. That's just what you think it is because you can't step outside of yourself for two seconds and look at the game for what it is.

The one ideal that does bother me is the idea that guys should "be manly™", as though "manly" has a single definition: get ripped, get sexed, don't trust women with vulnerability.

That sounds like a terrible definition, imagine if guys followed it!

Define it yourself, and be confident about it. I don't care if your hobby is DOTA or the violin, as long as it makes you happy and doesn't take over your life.

Ah, age old female advice- just be yourself! Who cares what's effective or attractive to women in general? Just do what you want to do and the right woman is waiting right around the corner!

No offense to you, but understand from a dude's perspective, when it's sink or swim, not a lot of us are interested in strokes that don't keep you afloat.

I like this ratio as it is in my SO. I don't want it to change, because I like that he's dorky and cries at nostalgic movies and gives me sweet compliments and asks me for advice and lets me test nail polish on him.

No doubt you do, but our rule of thumb is- watch what they do, not what they say.

If we listened to what women say they want, well, we'd all be feminists sitting on our thumbs at this point.

The Secret of a Tender Elam

41 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it's legitimate. I think anger gets an unfairly bad rap.

Benevolent alpha wonders why ' My[30m] fw[29f] broke down crying saying that she "is wasting away her life sucking dick". '

41 upvotes · 8 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly, feminism is internally inconsistent because they want to claim both that they are strong, independent and capable like men, but that they are also victims and can't make decisions for themselves. I touched on this a while ago:

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/09/only-white-knights-women-and-feminists-objectify-women/>

The proud feminists of AskWomen accidentally validate RedPill truths by talking about how much they love alphas and hate betas. Oops!

41 upvotes · 4 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Female solipsism in this one:

I imagine they're looking solely for women within the league of perfection that they think they're in when they are not in fact actually in that league.

They would actually blame a guy who can't get a response on tinder for having too high of standards.

Think about this one for a second and see if that passes the moron-test.

Guy has zero options to pick from, but is apparently rejecting applicants from this invisible pool because he has too high of standards.

Dad tells daughter to not wear trashy clothes, feminists go crazy

41 upvotes · 25 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Even then, a majority of our concerns regarding "age of consent" being as high as 18 is because of the artificially inflated market society tries to keep for women. Women are most attractive and fertile between 15 - 24, so cut out as many of those years as possible to raise the price.

Your initial revulsion to the idea is programming. A majority of your ancestors were under 18 when they procreated.

Congrats guys. You once again made it into an r/Askreddit front page question. Keep an eye on subscription counts

41 upvotes · 14 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree, stupid shit like that belongs in /r/asktrp. I'll make an announcement shortly.

Example#3 of doxing from /r/thebluepill

41 upvotes · 4 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is gold. Great perspective.

She doesn't love you.

41 upvotes · 10 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't be fooled by the name, soft harem is a hard motherfucker.

8 Misconceptions of the "Alpha Male"

41 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/seduction

That's ridiculous. There's nothing wrong with studying strategy and arming yourself with tools before practicing them in the field.

Going right up to girls and just being yourself is leading up to the exact failures that lead people here in the first place.

Being an alpha male is a mostly learned trait, something you learn from your father. Some guys don't have alpha male role models and think the best way to a woman's heart is sharing feeling. These guys have no understanding of shit tests or how to deal with them.

That's why this board exists.

You are demonizing the act of learning, and it's counter-productive.

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

40 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

They haven't even figured out how to monetize one of the highest traffic sites on the planet. They've had years.

The best they've been able to figure is "hey guys, let's try strangling the communities to death. That'll fix revenue!"

These kids shouldn't be anywhere near anything of consequence.

Back to the basics: What is female sexual strategy?

40 upvotes · 12 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women don't magically grow tits at 18.

Guilty until proven Innocent? Accused men must prove that the sex was consensual.

40 upvotes · 10 July 2014 · /r/MensRights

must take their pants off and the one with the vajayjay is right.

The only way to be sure is to march them down to the hospital, drug them, and take pictures.

Girl shoots a sex tape, now worried her father, who agreed to pay her tuition on the condition she doesn't slut it up, finds out

40 upvotes · 31 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Also people that do not have a daughter should not give their opinion on what you'd do in the hypothetical situation that they had, because they have not idea.

There is ABOSOLUTELY NOTHING SPECIAL ABOUT YOU just because you managed to pop out a kid. You are not privileged and you don't have special say.

Tits or GTFO

40 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And all the cuntys skills "pushing leniency" in this thread, I'm onto you, worms.

Luckily the mod team never cared for that shit, people can push all they want.

"Heyy will you buy me a drink?"

40 upvotes · 14 November 2013 · /r/askTRP

"Sure!" Then get her a glass of water.

Or, "Sure, but you buy me one first!"

Edit: Body language, look inviting and pleasant, smile, look like you'll comply. You don't want to appear shaken in your frame.

Approaching 101

40 upvotes · 25 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A simple: "Excuse me, I've just got to say you're the sexiest girl I've seen all day and I'd be kicking myself if I didn't say hello. Hi, I'm _____, and you are?"

You can be up front and aggressive about your interest without displaying low value, I'd avoid this particular line.

I wouldn't directly compliment.

"Hi I'm RPS, I think we should meet" (then she asks why, make up something, "why else would we be in the same place at the same time?")

G/f (maybe soon to be fiancé) immaturely has threatened to leave. She likely isn't serious at all. How to respond?

40 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Partners don't need to be married.

Should I be honorable with women?

40 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no reward for honor. Honor is an attribute respected and valued among men. In our feminized culture, there is no respect for honor.

When you get back from your tour in Iraq with injuries that the US government won't pay for, are the women standing in solidarity to honor your service?

Read "The way of men" by Jack Donovan. It's a real eye opener on the subject.

Day 3 - Say No.

40 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman

Today a girl who I previously asked out during my blue pill days and got the flakiest of replies (no answer) contacted me on facebook. She was having trouble with her boyfriend and needed a place to stay for a week.

I said "no, sorry."

She pushed. "Why notttt? Comeon I'll cook for you!"

I responded, "I'm busy"

The Impending VR Pornpocalypse

39 upvotes · 29 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

AI companions are already taking ahold. There was recently a company that decided to stop allowing "sex" (read: sex-texting) with the bots and an entire subreddit had a breakdown about how this was their only form of coping and that they're killing their real (imagined) connection.

If there's one thing we can be sure of with technology of today, it's that every step forward invalidates another male from fulfilling an evolutionary destiny.

Convince men to be pathetic, convince them to wear dresses and cut off their dicks. Those who can't be convinced merely settle for porn. None of them have a legacy.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

39 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://forums.red/i/theredpill>

I will be offering a download of TRP in a few weeks when i can create a downloadable package from our archive database.

Chateau Heartiste Has Been Shuttered in What Appears to be WordPress' Opening Salvo as They Join the Greater Tech Censorship War.

39 upvotes · 10 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's on way back machine. Somebody want to D/L it?

Revenge Story: This was in my Quora this morning, I thought I'd share (copied and pasted)

39 upvotes · 27 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Wow, some people really are determined to be slow learners.

Says the frog to the scorpion: Why did you sting me?

I will simply hold off until I find one that does not sting...

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

39 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Prior to marriage it was usually two minute blow jobs that was all teeth.

AND THEN YOU MARRIED HER?

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

39 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

But maybe they'll look sillier after this goes on for a bit.

It certainly is starting looking worse as more people around reddit talk about the sham of the appeal process.

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

39 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't recommend that.

Fucked up my relationship by showing her my vulnerable side even though I didn't believe that this could happen

39 upvotes · 23 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

but let's be fair guys, we will make mistakes in the long run. If you think that way we are all doomed and this is more depressing than swallow the pill

Yeah, showing a vulnerable side once in a while isn't going to make or break a relationship. A pattern of behavior will. It's more likely that this was the straw that broke the camel's back, but that he's been playing it on the too-beta side for a while.

What worldview does the maker of Star Wars movies want you to accept? -- Faith and tradition are disposable, You don't really need to put in years of work to be competent, Men are inconsequential

39 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It is the perfect feminine plan: one without fighting, in which the security of the collective is ensured. And by contrast, we see that Poe's plan was reckless and foolhardy—pointlessly risking his life, and the life of Rose (who herself serves no particular purpose except to meet the racial-diversity-body-positivity quota), on a gambit that ultimately failed. His masculine impulse to solve the problem through direct action blinded him to the greater feminine wisdom.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

39 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Pushing SJW issues over the future of your business? I haven't seen it before, but if I were a betting man, I'd say it was likely also done by women.

This is a strictly female ideal. Feels before reals.

Why are women loud during sex? Bonobos may have an answer.

39 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's interesting. I always assumed it was a way to communicate to other women- stay away, I'm getting it hard from this alpha.

Interestingly, I've been in a lot of scenarios where it was imperative to "hold-the-moan", and frankly I just don't think they have the capability. I've had to cover a woman's mouth more than once to keep from being heard.

Let's see how long it takes somebody to twist this into a rape comment. Social justice warrior, I choose you!

Update by the first timer RP guy

39 upvotes · 6 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Good move on putting off talking for a day.

I've noticed this is a common weapon in women's arsenal: the "we need to talk" threat, but then they decide that it's going to be when they want on their terms. It's a subtle passive aggression that is supposed to get under your skin.

Of course, I like resolving issues immediately. I'm not a sit and wait kind of guy. And women abuse it.

I learned to sit back and let it go. She wants the drama. Making you wait is drama. Making her wait signals that you are indifferent.

"we'll talk later about it"

Brilliant words. Indifference.

Edit: Also:

saying that I had a gift for making people feel stupid and Classic projection. She feels stupid, says it's your doing.

Also a shit test, she wants you to apologize for her feelings.

No more lurking. I'm married, too.

39 upvotes · 31 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember folks, just because somebody survived a car crash without a seat belt doesn't make it a good idea.

Train a society of men that the only acceptable option is to be "the nice guy". But.. If they notice that it works against them in dating that must mean they only want sex. So berate and chastise them

39 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Of course, that complaint is usually followed with the normal imperative, "man up!"

The difference in her complaint verses ours is that her complaint has the full backing of the feminine imperative behind it. If you don't "man up" and commit- women everywhere will shun you for being a "user." Whereas the nice-guy who was friendzoned will be the one who gets shunned by women in that scenario.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

38 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Some of my predictions from last year for 2021:

- Tinder will require you upload vaccine proof to use it.

Close but not quite

<https://people.com/health/the-white-house-is-partnering-with-dating-apps-like-tinder-to-encourage-covid-vaccinations/>

- A new list of words and ideas will be hotly debated as hate speech as the social networks solidify the old list (deadnaming, the f word (not fuck), election fraud, etc)

Censorship from social networks has hit an all time high, anybody speaking candidly about lockdowns, masks, etc are deplatformed. Deadnaming and gender politics doesn't seem to have gotten a spotlight this year.

- Social credit score (SCS) will be implemented via the tech industry. You will need to "voluntarily" participate to have FB, Twitter, Insta, etc.

As of right now, you cannot participate in businesses in cities USA wide and globally without papers. It's not quite a credit score but it's definitely the beginnings of one

- Biden will make a push for cashless society.

Hasn't happened quite yet but printing as much money as they have has been a big step towards cashless.

- Jobs will monitor SCS and fire you for infractions.

While not strictly based on social credit, indeed many are getting fired over vaccines

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

38 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If you think the lockdowns were only because of the pandemic, or that they'll end afterwards, you have a lot to learn about power and those who seize it.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

38 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

The F-word has on reddit. Members here get banned daily for using it. We have no control over it.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

38 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you have the URLS saved? I may make a feature that you can search forums.red based on original reddit url.

Rules Clarification

38 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll leave this up as an example, no you shouldn't call op a faggot.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

38 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You're overthinking it.

There's nothing wrong with wanting a healthy sex life. That healthy sex life includes a woman who wants to have sex with you.

If she doesn't, then you move on.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

38 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Voice-to-text baby, I need both hands. ;)

EVERY.MOTHER.FUCKING.TIME i could have taken corrective action, i was lied to. Each time my buddies told me, i was once again led astray by a woman. By my mother, teachers, magazine articles, other girls i asked advice, Oprah, my friendzone crush and object of my desire.

38 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's interesting to see how my view has changed since this was originally posted.

When it was first posted I saw a little bit of myself in him. No, my experiences weren't exactly the same, but I empathized with him.

Now, years later (and hopefully smarter) I feel almost a bit of revulsion for his naivete. It's strange how my worldview has almost made me forget how I got here in the first place.

This is one of the most important things somebody can read if they're right off the blue pill boat, because there's a good chance they've had similar thoughts and feelings.

Google Fires Ph.D Biologist/Engineer For Claiming -- "On average, men and women biologically differ in many ways. "

38 upvotes · 8 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

This is what happens when truth is spread, targeted attempts at silencing it.

That's got to be what's happening here. Because, who spends time on TRP trying to discredit us? These people are following the story itself trying to discredit it wherever they find it.

Good news is that reports won't make this disappear. I expect to see a lot of FUD in the discussions here and elsewhere.

All Women Lie About Rape - PART ONE

38 upvotes · 19 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

crying rape gives women power

I will definitely address this as we move forward. But I encourage everybody here to consider what the direct benefit is to being a victim.

Man ordered to tell police if he plans to have sex, even though he was acquitted at retrial

38 upvotes · 26 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

It effectively means he can never get laid again without risking prison.

When you realize feminism's end goal, it's not that far off.

Trust in your gut. She can't hide her emotions as well as you think.

38 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup, I'd put money that she's already gotten boned by this dude.

[Rant/Vent]Found Redpill 4 months ago and I think it nuked my marriage...

38 upvotes · 27 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Your marriage was already ruined, you're just discovering why.

Marriage and Kids... How to do it the RP way?

38 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, TRP is learning about the world, but how you live is your choice.

Is it just me, or does almost every woman have a sob story?

38 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I haven't met many girls who haven't told me their sexually abused past.

You have to consider that women use their emotions to rationalize the world around them. Things that may eventually make them feel bad, or not overwhelmingly good, are rationalized to have always been bad. That's why you see examples of regret rape. "If I feel bad the next day, I must not have wanted it..."

So every woman is told they can be victims, are usually victims, and that their emotions aren't something to be questioned. We let them off the leash.

Consider the very rewriting of history that feminists do- making it seem like because marriage was a different way in the past, that all women were historically oppressed, or that unions they voluntarily entered were some sort of shackles. It completely ignores the male experience- that we also have pain, but have learned that it's part of life.

So when a woman goes through a bitter divorce and feels negative towards it, she rationalizes that it must've been a bad relationship and a bad marriage, and a bad husband. She can't and won't fathom that there were plenty of good parts, and it was so good she decided to marry the guy!

No, instead she'll use her current emotional state to justify her rationalizations about the world around her.

She was in an abusive relationship, after all. And thanks to feminism, she can be true to herself and feelings and not stifle these terrible emotions like the patriarchy used to make women do.

"Young women make terrible choices because they are told from an early age that these are good choices."

38 upvotes · 30 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They're told they're good choices, like "don't marry till you're older," but there's a lot of omission going on here too.

During my family holidays I was talking to a female relative of mine regarding marriage and how another family member should get married soon if her plan was to have a family because she's going to [hit the wall] (used different words). The woman I was talking to was flabbergasted that I could possibly have such an opinion and that it was terribly sexist and rude to express.

Remember, when looking for the truth, just look for what you're not allowed to say.

These women weren't just given bad ideas- they were never told the truth in the first place. These are things you cannot say in a female's presence.

The Eternal Solipsism of the Female Mind

38 upvotes · 26 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So, I maintain that women believe in so many of these far flung notions about men because women know that women themselves do these things and therefore they rationalize that if they were men, they would discriminate against women in the same way.

Pure gold. Great shit.

Avoid Women With Horses

38 upvotes · 11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's strange to me that I already had this rule.

I've always noticed horse girls are not just women with pets, but women with obsessions. They love those things. LOVE. I'm pretty sure most of the horse girls I know think about their horses sexually.

Strange, but true.

Great thread on MensRights regarding reddit misogyny.

38 upvotes · 19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Favorite comment:

Misogynist (1913): a man that hates women

Misogynist (2013): a man that womyn hates

http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/1ik8ja/something_ive_noticed_about_the_misogyny_on_reddit/cb5ucgb

Something I've noticed about the "misogyny" on reddit

38 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

Postmodern discourse.

These are good reviews on the differing communication styles (and their effects):

<http://alastairadversaria.wordpress.com/2012/08/07/of-triggering-and-the-triggered-part-4/>

<http://arts.uwaterloo.ca/~kwesthue/regiftedxmas12.html>

Edit: I'd like to add that as the popularly hated persona that I am- I've been labeled a rapist (despite disagreeing with rape, nor having raped anybody), a misogynist (despite loving women to the point of almost obsession with them), and a sociopath (despite never having met the armchair psychologist who diagnosed me).

It's easier to hate somebody if you can demonize them, even if the reason you demonize them is completely manufactured- as they have with me.

Interestingly enough, my attacks on feminism are entirely attacks on the ideals of feminism. I don't make a habit of attacking individual feminists for their beliefs. Whereas on the flip side, I may have unpopular beliefs, but I am attacked for having them. (and attacked for ones I don't even have!)

It's a pretty clear indicator of the difference between how feminism propagates their ideologies (shame, and coercion) verses how modern communicators attempt to propagate ideas (proof, reason).

Married mother of two sleeps with dozens of police officers, somehow she is the victim.

38 upvotes · 12 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She was a target. She was weak. And they knew that they could take advantage of that, so they preyed upon her. They preyed upon her, and that's what's so sick about it,"

They were targets, they were weak, and she knew she could take advantage of that, so she manipulated them. She manipulated all of them, and that's what's so sick about it.

Have you ever been called a sociopath because of your lifestyle or your perception of things?

38 upvotes · 29 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I self identified as a sociopath before I realized I was just a man who had been marginalized and told normal male attributes such as pragmatism were evil.

Women hate it when men benefit from female hypergamy. (Xpost /r/Askwomen)

38 upvotes · 9 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Awesome find.

That he's probably a bit predatory.

Of course, in the eyes of AskWomen, all men are predatory no matter what.

"Women have no trouble believing it...it's the men who can't."

38 upvotes · 5 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

After birth, the course of action is less clear, she said, but lawyers advise that the child is to be considered the patient, whose needs trump those of the parents. Since telling the father could trigger a breakup and leave the child without proper support, the hospital keeps the secret. Sometimes it can be a whopper.

Of course, using that logic, the needs of the child are allowed to override the rights of the father. So go find the father and fuck his rights. The cuckold isn't the father, so I don't even see how they have hooks into him.

A very insightful analysis of the nature of relationships - "Man affections vs boy affections"

38 upvotes · 26 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Cache:

The site is down here's a cached copy

Man affections vs boy affections

a while back i finally figured out what makes a good relationship.

most of the gamey talk is all focused on getting laid. getting laid is the easiest thing in the world, after you do it for a while. what's not nearly as simple is to maintain an excellent relationship. i'm going to venture out on a limb and say that MOST relationships are crap. and yet it's really just two fundamental principles, that determine the success of any relationship. it's ridiculous that it took me so long to figure this out.

my relationships used to be sort of average. have a girlfriend, sometimes you get along, sometimes you don't.

sometimes she's a cunt, sometimes she's nice. sooner or later there are the annoying bits of jealousy and wondering if she's cheating, and then all the arguments and breakups. standard shit.

to figure out why most relationships suck, eventually you have to look at the type of emotional connection you are seeking:

- emotional validation from your partner
- being able to 'trust' your partner
- support from your partner
- sort of, almost unconditional love from your partner, 'as you are'
- seeking approval from your partner

there's more aspects, but that's probably enough to make the point we're getting to.

we are simple creatures. we are programmed to have an emotional connection to the opposite sex. to get a little weird about it for a second though, think about how this programming expresses itself:

there are only two types of man-love our brain is wired for.

one, the love you got, wanted to get, hoped for, maybe experienced – from your mother, as a child. that's a key kind of emotional connection to the female. and, as much as that sounds fucked up, it's the type of connection most men are trying to find again in their adult life – from a girlfriend / wife.

seriously consider this. look at the few bullet points above. what kind of 'love' is that? let's not judge it, just look at it objectively. that's how most men view love. they don't think about it consciously, but that's the love they got to experience as a child.

here's some news: no girl will ever love you like your mom did.

before we get a bit more into that, let's look at the other type of man-love our brain has wiring for:

the love a father has for his daughter.

again, we have to remove all the incestuous, sexualized, weird bits of it, and just look at the emotional components that drive the type of interaction, expectation, dependence, and outcome. how does a father love his daughter?

- giving emotional validation to the child
- rationing trust, with having 'hand' – control
- providing support
- molding her in his image
- giving approval, as long as the child does as it is supposed to compare these bullets to the ones above. how do you feel about that? take out the mother / daughter thing. just look at the giving & taking ratios, look at where the control lies.

there is always control in a relationship. question is just – who has it?

there is no other emotional romantic connection wiring in our brain. it's either seeking the love you got from your mother as a child, or creating the love you get from your offspring.

everything manosphere talks about fits into this model. the whole concept of 'beta' is embodied in how men deal with women who they want maternal love from. they are the weak ones, seeking approval, expecting this ocean of support, putting a woman on a pedestal. and guess what – it works for shit. mom love is done after you are grown up. realizing that means having to step away from that, coming to terms with the fact that this kind of emotional bond is DONE. being a man means being at the top of the social hierarchy. on the flip side, relationships suddenly work incredibly well when you treat a girl not like an adult that you look up to, an adult that you seek validation from – but like a child.

think about it. shit tests? from an adult, maybe. but a child? how do you treat a child who shit tests you? well ... a lot of men haven't grown up enough to be called men, so they still wouldn't know. but for some of us, all that's missing is this conscious realization. you don't seek the validation of a child, do you? you don't ask a child if it's ok for you to go out, do you? when you want a child to do something, how do you address it?

i'm not saying, 'be a dick'. you still game children, a lot. you want to reward them for good behavior. dealing with kids isn't easy, either. but if you figure that out, then you also figure out a healthy relationship with a girl. i don't really believe that the 'asshole game' is a fully evolved strategy. it's just better than wanting a replacement mom. so when a girl has the choice between a grown up (who is an asshole) vs a sniveling boy who wants a mother – she will of course pick the asshole.

but give her the choice between a father figure, an asshole, and a sniveling boy and the father figure will win, every time. part of that is giving validation, creating boundaries, being clearly in control.

if you want a great relationship, start reading parenting psychology books (not the new age feminist ones). and dog training books. you can take this however far you want, once you get comfortable. xsplat likes to go full on daddy. it's a genius move. a bit depraved? maybe. but better than the advocates of game stuff who act like children themselves – basically saying 'treat girls like you are 12 and in a sandbox with a girl'. and better than mainstream culture which puts out disney shit and romantic comedies that all emulate maternal love relationships (which don't exist).

my relationships have become something entirely different since i started taking the father figure approach. girls love it. they are willing to do anything and everything, and the general bullshit from girls is maybe 5% of what it used to be – before i figured this out.

Original Source: <http://www.cedonulli.com/healthy-vs-shitty-relationships-two-principal-types-of-love/>

/r/AskMen asks "Men that opened up to the girlfriend/wife when they asked you to open up and be more vulnerable, how did it work out for you?" and gets the wrong answer...

37 upvotes · 11 February 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

No that's new-age millennial garbage. The idea that all people you interact with need to know all thoughts and feelings. Garbage.

You don't call up your mom and tell her about the new porn fetish you now have, you don't call your boss to tell him about the drunken weekend you had, and you don't call your girlfriend or wife to tell them every little detail of your life either.

Have some self respect.

The women who denied you will come to resent you when you surpass them in the SMP.

37 upvotes · 5 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

100% agree. Women live in the present. That is the basis of Briffault's law.

The Red Pill App

37 upvotes · 12 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That is the order it will be added, yes.

Article about 60 year old Mel Gibson dating a 25 year old woman. Comments are full of shaming language & Red Pill GOLD!

37 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Imagine the shaming people tried on me with my last plate. ~30ish guy with an 18 year old girl. Her parents weren't thrilled.

Theory Friday - No Stupid Questions Thread

37 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Doing what you want and like is alpha, with no regard to what others say.

How would you respond if a girl asked you if you subscribe to /r/theredpill?

37 upvotes · 12 August 2014 · /r/askTRP

I've had girls that I've boned (or am about to bone) bring it up . It's hilarious. It usually goes:

Me: "What? On Reddit? I've heard about it but don't know too much. What is it?"

Her: "It's a bunch of sexist assholes who think girls are just sluts that need to be fucked, but they don't know how to get laid. Thank god you're not like that..."

Modern Women Have Nothing of Lasting Value to Offer Men

37 upvotes · 3 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

he has devalued herself to the point where you will always have the upper hand.

You will always have the upper hand.. so long as your desire is to never settle down.

Michael's Story

37 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, I have continued to keep my dating pool between 18-20. Frankly, I find that American women's attitudes suffer irreversibly when they reach 21 and learn that their pussy can get free drinks at a bar. Then they're lost until 35.

Girl Talk: I'm A Feminist, But I Think I Want To Date A More Traditional Dude [Hamster desperately tries to explain away her "desire to feel looked after and taken care of"]

37 upvotes · 10 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's irony in the nice guy trying to attract a mate, but the irony is lost on him because nobody bothered telling him his life was a lie.

Whereas a feminist craving a masculine male is not only ironic, but hypocritical. Feminism has made it its goal over the past 5 decades to ensure that any overwhelmingly masculine traits would be publicly demonized.

Even today, being caught walking in a children's park while male is enough to get police attention.

"I wouldn't lie if we were in a relationship" - my experiences with a cheating hamster trying to get my commitment

37 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The way I do the transition to no-relationship does have some drawbacks. Eventually, if they're really focused on a relationship, they will start to wean themselves off of you and walk away. My average turnaround is 3 months. If you keep your harem properly stocked, it shouldn't be a huge problem.

My transition usually goes like this.

Of the first mention I will say, "listen I barely know you, I really don't think it's time to talk about this stuff."

If she mentions it further in, when she feels like she's given you enough to go on, I say, "you're a really great girl, and I've been thinking about it a lot. I'm not just sure I'm in a position right now to take that sort of commitment. If you want to stop seeing me, I understand."

If you want to add theatrics, you can drop the L-bomb. "I really Love being with you and I'd hate to stop seeing you. But I just have a lot of me to sort out before I'm ready for that."

They'll usually stick around for a month of fucking while they locate a new branch. Some even stick around longer.

I create many alpha widows this way. Without fail, a majority of them locate the next beta who will be tied down. (because they overcorrect for the "problem" I caused). They are miserable because of it. I've had a good number of these girls 8 months to a year later call me up out of the blue to "catch up."

By that they mean fuck. And fuck we do.

WhereAllTheGoodMenAre is moving.

36 upvotes · 28 February 2022 · /r/WhereAllTheGoodMenAre

Hi all, an archive of the content is running but the sort will be a little wonky until the backend recalculates hot scores after the archive.

How to use Magnets and Radios to Get Laid

36 upvotes · 4 January 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Tiktok tomorrow: "Why i carry magnets in my pockets and you should too"

Two points on loneliness, family, and evolutionary biology : "Suicide rates for [...] older guys have been going up for a long time[...] Younger guys can learn game and get laid (the way is hard but it can be done), while older guys without families don't have that source of meaning."

36 upvotes · 17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the hottest points of debate on TRP is over which long-term goals would find us the most personal happiness / fulfillment. While I don't think this question is settled in any way, I know where I've personally been leaning on the issue and I think there's something wise to consider here- spinning plates isn't really a good for long-term happiness.

It precludes child rearing (at least in a conventional way), it depends on you having the energy to continue gaming well into your later years, and it depends on you gaining the same value from it year after year.

Don't get me wrong, spinning plates and learning the foundations of game are paramount to living a full, realized life. You cannot move on to bigger goals if you don't have the foundation underneath you. (i.e. knowing how to interact with women, learning abundance mentality, knowing how not to get yourself stuck in LTR shit test traps, etc)

If Not Men, Then What? - "the biggest con in human history was convincing women that working, commuting, and paying taxes was fun."

36 upvotes · 8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Consider that as the workforce doubled, wages stagnated and now a family requires 2 incomes instead of 1.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

36 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that he could easily signal he's able to get other women, which is still essentially dread, so I don't think our approaches are all that different.

I would be curious to see if he could turn this into dominating sex and wake something up in her- if that's the case you're spot on.

I still get the gut feeling it's deeper than her desire to be dominated. But I can be wrong.

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

36 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

in the interest of gender equality, I let my wife beat me up now.

According to Michael Kimmel, that doesn't happen.

Always a shame when anti-censorship groups take ideological stances for censorship.

36 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Something doesn't sit right with me. KIA, the bastion of misogyny and alt-right rhetoric has some back-room deal with the admin to prevent quarantine.

VERY FISHY

You can't be MGTOW or be 'Preferably Monogamous' if you can't get other women.

36 upvotes · 28 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Just as a note, this conversation is on topic here but does not represent an official position for or against mgtow. I enjoy watching the discussion take place, but there's room for both choices here, as our flairs indicate. Try to be civil with each other.

New Finance Flair

36 upvotes · 25 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Share your story about how you spend your life savings creating the perfect night for your princess. How did you pop the question? Was it in a horse drawn carriage? Did you do it in a very public place in front of everybody?

Did you video tape the proposal, so you can relive the glory again and again?

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

36 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The gaggle of crabs in the basket will always whisper into her ear. They will never be your friend.

Never Take a Woman Fishing

36 upvotes · 21 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Advertising that one "loves to laugh" is a tacit admission that her existence and purpose revolves around what others can do for her.

The proud feminists of AskWomen accidentally validate RedPill truths by talking about how much they love alphas and hate betas. Oops!

36 upvotes · 4 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Women do this all the time, so they assume it must be true of men as well. In reality it's rarely the case. Women have eyes for the top 20% only, men have a much broader range.

It's most obvious when you realize that we're talking about guys who don't get any hits on okcupid or tinder.. so they aren't even in a position to reject women because of high standards. They're still at square one.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

36 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Plus we have an offsite alternative ready to go if it happens.

"How to Not Get Raped"..... This is one of the least funny things I've ever seen.

36 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/MensRights

Likewise, they should teach girls not to cheat.

Wait, you say that most women don't cheat?

You say that men do it too?

Seems like those aren't enough reasons not to teach all women not to cheat.

Hamstering through the roof at /r/TwoXChromosomes

36 upvotes · 29 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Right? Walk down the same streets flashing cash and see how many people holler at you. It's their damn culture.

NBC News on "Yes means Yes" movement: "I think people have less-than-proud moments, sex they wish they wouldn't have had. That's the kind of sex we're trying to prevent, too."

36 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, I'm sure that if a guy wandered in a campus sexual assault office and reported that he had been raped because he regretted the sex later on, he would totally not be laughed out of the building. Totally.

I think the reason women can do this with such credibility is because of the hamster. The reasoning goes like this:

I should enjoy sex, therefore I want it.

Last night I regret the sex.

If I regret it, I must not have enjoyed it.

If I didn't enjoy it, I must not have wanted it, because I enjoy sex that I want.

Therefore rape.

And they believe it. So they march down to the sexual assault office and genuinely believe they've been wronged. Bad feelings always have an external source and should be avoided at all costs.

Whereas men can't say that with a straight face. We have agency, after all.

A man on AskMen answers why he doesn't want to get married.

36 upvotes · 9 September 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen dig deeper Gents.. "All women suck" is a cop out and BETA talk.. KEEP looking.. KEEP digging. I'm happy AS HELL.. So is she.. being who we NATURALLY are as people. It isn't for everyone but it definitely is for me and my RPW

That's nonsense talk. 25 years married means you're from a completely different generation. The markets have changed.

It's like telling a young person, "hey I bought a house really easily.. why can't you?"

The market is literally different now.

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

36 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are necessary for society. We need good women, MGTOW is a bad strategy in the long run for society unless a mass exodus of men from dating makes women change. Female success examples are essential for young women and young men, I completely agree with that, and I personally would love to be able to respect the majority of women in the same way I respect my aunt or a few other women I know who have basically created several positive lives out of their own life. Even good female teachers. I was going to drop out of high school at one point because I was a problem child, but a female teacher helped me out and essentially listened to my problems, reassured me, and that was enough.

Mind you a lot of guys feel so disenfranchised by society, they don't care that MGTOW is bad. They embrace the decline.

But either way, very interesting comment!

♂

If your goal is to have sex with as many women as possible, why do you shame women who have sex with as many men as possible?

36 upvotes · 3 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This question again. Everybody already addressed it, but to boil it down: Sluts make terrible wives, and we lament the downfall of the marriage culture that rewards betas.

It's pretty nuanced since there are many groups (of both men and women) whose strategies are at odds with each other, and when one wins, others do not. For instance, an alpha who wants all the sex he can get isn't too upset with sluts.

You should spend some time lurking, maybe read the sidebar.

I ditched a 9 at the bar last night.

36 upvotes · 21 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

How old are you!?

Classic response. If women want us to stop stereotyping them, they should come up with something new to say.

Dinner Out

36 upvotes · 6 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And that, folks, is how the MGTOW movement started.

A little something for those of you who have the feeling that women are no good and can't be trusted.

36 upvotes · 13 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a nice piece, don't get me wrong. But chasing unicorns remains foolish.

"Someone with a face like yours has no right to flirt with girls the way you do."

36 upvotes · 5 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Mother hen cock blocking. Can't stand them.

SendGrid fires Adriana Richards

36 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Hi, Bob in IT? Yeah, Lisa and I want to Do one of those d-dossing things we read about. How do we do it?"

Women need men for everything, including fighting men.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

35 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The Trump media network throws a giant monkey wrench into Silicon Valley's stranglehold on ideas. This results in attempts at banning access to Trump's network by way of existing social media. Facebook, Reddit, and Twitter ban linking to their content.

Oh we will see the entire system at work on this one- we've seen glimpses but this will be the first time we witness the following:

- All app stores remove references to Trump media simultaneously
- DNS providers stop serving requests to Trump domains
- Upstream providers discontinue serving bandwidth to Trump properties
- Cloud providers kick him off their platforms citing hate speech
- DDOS protection companies kick him under same guise
- DDOS attacks happen relentlessly
- An alternate DNS movement begins to rise, but fails like all the others did because nobody adopts it and registering names is poorly regulated.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

35 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I doubt I had even actively seen a vagina at 2yo wtf much less give two shits about it.

That's how you know this mom is fucking insane. Even if the kid actually said it, it's only because they heard their parents say that they wish that penis had been a vagina.

Kid didn't know what the fuck that was. He was taught to hate his penis.

University Hosts 'Masculinity Confession Booth' Instructing Male Students to Repent

35 upvotes · 30 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Can TRP start setting up Female Confessional Booths where women can confess to their utter psychopathy??

It's called facebook.

There's more to SMV than height (looks/race/hair). Learning to build a captive audience.

35 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Frustrated chumps have always been here. We've always done our best to remove it (or make examples out of it like today).

Don't forget to use your Report button on low quality content.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

35 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Puerarchy was our announcement spot if things went south, we picked it before we had a plan solidly in place. TRP.RED and Forums.red are both that plan. If you reserved your name on puerarchy.com, you already have an account on trp.red.

I know you guys are right now and I hate it

35 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/askTRP

It doesn't take long to realize that the marriage contract makes no sense. If I cheat or leave, I give you half my stuff. Seems fair.

If you cheat or leave, I give you half my stuff. Wait a second...

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

35 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hahah

Without TRP, I would not have spotted the warning signs of this 30 yo, ending-cock-carousel, seeking beta bux, woman.

35 upvotes · 1 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They truly are clueless to realize that they are being brats. They have no understanding that this type of thing is basically this

Michael's Story

35 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Less baggage is right. Interestingly, BPers love to harp on how we only go for young, impressionable, vulnerable women so we can take advantage of them. Truth is, I just don't like how bitchy and entitled they get as they age. It's not that I can't lock down a 30 year old, it's just... who would when you can have an 18 year old who still has a positive attitude and is willing to learn?

Plus- 18 is adult. If women can't fend for themselves at 18, then how can we take feminism seriously?

(trick question)

The Elephant in the Room: TRP and Race

35 upvotes · 14 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think this discussion fits in the rules.

Your love is not enough - man loses kid after mother dies

35 upvotes · 6 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Of course the problem is when the courts set up hurdles and then hold the hurdles against the father.

Judge: You have to take 4 months of counselling before we give you back custody of your child.

-4 Months later-

Judge: It's been 4 months since your child has seen you, so now it would be traumatic to re-integrate you. You must now complete re-integration therapy.

When a judge says "we're holding this against you because you were lying about something earlier" what it translates to in my mind is that the guy said something or did something the judge didn't like, and decided he was lying. Then later holds the lying against him even if he never really lied. Judges become incredibly biased against people they don't like.

A Weekend Toast

35 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm disappointed your post didn't rhyme.

Here's to rejection, in all its forms.

Here's to embracing them and all the scorns,

Here's to never staying down, and always getting back up.

Here's to never being beat, and something something you get it you just get it.

A Note on "Real" Alphas

35 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Maybe a more endearing term that says, "student"

"A marriage-minded woman's options: increasingly, her choice is between deadbeats (whose numbers are rising) and playboys (whose power is growing)". 10,000 words of unwitting TRP.

35 upvotes · 9 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

pleasant to be around

It's really weird to me that this is true, but I've absolutely noticed an attitude difference as women get older. In the past month I've seen a 22, 25, and 42, and my god they get progressively more stuck in their ways. With the 42, I don't even bother with frame. I just get my dick wet and ignore what she says. She has that "I've been around the world" mentality. She certainly has.

Don't let her change you. She doesn't know what she wants.

35 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Entirely true. Entirely true.

Absolutely true.

However, after the initial attraction phase- don't forget, sprinkling in some beta traits is actually a good thing.

The problem is when they detect too much alpha they may come to the conclusion that you really don't care. (and women will always want to try to get you to care, even if they don't really want the results.)

So I use the 1:5 rule. For every 5 nice things she does, I'll do one back.

That means I'll be a total dick, ignore messages, and do my thing.. but sometimes surprise her with something nice like a date. That keeps the hope alive that you can be changed.. but without the downside of actually changing.

Athol Kay writes about the positives of beta.

Remember: The perfect man is a blend of alpha and beta traits.

Destroying a man's life over $13, Women don't want to pay cab fare, so they accuse the man of sexual assault.

35 upvotes · 15 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember, folks, just being a man in today's culture is a legal liability.

If you don't understand that- you're probably a feminist.

Announcing: OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY* WED 2/13 : "The biggest brawl of ill-conceived multi-colored pill metaphors baked into the biggest smackdown medicine cocktail since John Belushi discovered heroin."

34 upvotes · 6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

EC team discussed it and decided free-for-all should mean free-for-all.

We may quickly regret this decision.

Our Appeal of the Quarantine to the Reddit Admin

34 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It wouldn't look good for their new appeals process they just announced to end up being ignored....

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Show the Admin who Should Really Be Banned! /r/BanBanouts

34 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a zero percent chance we're getting anybody banned.

There's a much higher percent chance we can stir the shit pot. It's how we get most of our members.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

34 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

While I agree TRP transcends the political aisle, I think it's safe to say that the more unplugged red pill men tend to lean libertarian or classic liberal, which translates to right-leaning online.

most women today have shitty manners and lack common curtesy

34 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Women these days lack feminine qualities. They are conditioned by propaganda to behave like men, 'throw like a man'.

Except they have no sense of honor, loyalty, or duty. So they storm around like overgrown children thinking "this is how my daddy gets things done..." without ever understanding how to temper masculinity to actually accomplish things.

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

34 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

For longer-term relationships of consequence, good setup and maintenance of the relationship power structure makes such tests less likely to occur, and makes pivoting away from the attack and rebalancing much easier for both parties.

And the best way to do it is to shut them down when they start, so they don't learn a bad habit.

Single mothers are delinquent subhuman scum who you should avoid at all costs.

34 upvotes · 3 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Stickied. Tonight we dine on legbeard tears.

User of 4chan explains the difference between men's and women's accomplishments.

34 upvotes · 9 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Running TRP was just as selfish of a task as it was giving for me. Without the community here, I was on the brink of insanity. I just had to know there were others out there that were seeing the same stuff.

As always, thanks for the great contributions Illimitable. Next time you're in my city and either one of us feel like divulging what city that is, a round of bourbon is on me.

Alpha male Tom Cruise dominates Matt Lauer on his own show.

34 upvotes · 6 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's so effective that he has created his own reality in which he lives. It's total nonsense, but he has managed to climb the alpha ladder so well that it doesn't matter if it's nonsense. Women will be sucked into his reality.

This is something you can hope to achieve, though I recommend keeping clear of the really nuts stuff like scientology. From my observations with guys who simply do their thing without regard for reality, their women will follow along, they adopt their men's realities.

It's fascinating. I think Rollo wrote about this in one of his frame posts.

Askreddit: "What subreddit do you disagree with the most?" Guess what is #1

34 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Beep boop. I am TRP BOT. Point given. Beeeep.

Fox News Advises Women To Ditch Feminism, Offers Tips To 'Keep Your Husband Happy'

34 upvotes · 7 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Mistake sex, oh man, let's call it what it really is: sex you wanted but feel shame for later.

Feminist criticizes all-male line-ups on TV while at a 100% female event during International Women's Day.

34 upvotes · 10 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

Not enough women in workplace deaths! Let's band together and fix this inequality!

oh wait

Saw this on Facebook: "Average OkCupid Woman"

34 upvotes · 3 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As always, avoid online dating. It's preselection at it's worst:

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/31/how-pre-selection-affects-your-online-dating-profile/>

Woman tells "nice guys" to politely wait until shes done with the cock carousel and hits the wall.

34 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

you really have to wonder how stupid some men have to be to not see the signs.

About 5-years-ago-me kind of stupid.

Why do sensitive, sweet singers such as those in boybands appeal to women so much?

34 upvotes · 14 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Basically, this. Women have a dual mating strategy, lovingly referred to as alpha fucks; beta bucks. Getting both in one is a jackpot.

As The Harem Turns.

34 upvotes · 7 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Easy mode, she didn't give you any bitch shield? Clean off your couch, I'm booking a flight.

Guy asks why his new girlfriend was more adventurous in bed with her ex FWB than she is with him. Comments are amazing.

34 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll do anything she asks and I will break my back just to please her. I just kinda wish I'd get the same in return.

Well, there you go.

Textbook examples of women shaming men, dismissing mens' opinions, projecting their own ego's, and telling eachother what they want to hear. All in one askwomen post.

34 upvotes · 28 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's also why women think masculine qualities must be attractive- women like status and success.. so why wouldn't men like that in women?

User on r/askmen provides evidence supporting why men don't seek out promiscuous women

34 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

But are you going to man up and marry one?

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

34 upvotes · 14 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for contributing and at least attempting to have a decent discussion instead of hurling accusations and names. I will try to address your points thus far..

Correct me if I'm wrong, but I believe dishonesty is a trait that is looked down upon by society in general. If you are in fact manipulating women, the fact that your particular brand of dishonesty mimics the sort of violence seen in patriarchy of past and perpetuates it today would indeed be seen as wrong.

First, let's do away with the term "violence," because you and I both know that word is there to try to get an emotional leg up on the opposition without doing any real leg-work. Let's have an intellectual conversation and call it what it is: Not violence.

Secondly, let's talk about the nature of attraction. If a man tells a lie and transforms himself from someone who isn't attractive to someone who is, can we really blame him for doing so? The question needs to be asked, why does he feel it necessary to lie to find love, if women are so attracted to the truth?

Thirdly, let's presuppose that men who are manipulative, by your standard, are inherently evil (which I disagree with, but for the sake of argument), and society as a whole thinks that they are bad. The question still remains, who are you to tell women they are not allowed to interact with them? Who are you to say that evil men are somehow in control of a woman's choice to interact with them? It's similar to saying that you think drugs are bad... would you then take a woman's hand and hold it down so she cannot do heroin? Would you physically restrain a woman trying to snort some coke? Or would you say it's her right to make bad decisions? We're talking about personal autonomy here, and it's not men trying to physically restrain women from making choices...

I know you guys hate this term, but this may possibly be the most privilege-blind thing I've read on reddit. The key word here is socialization. Women are socialized to respond with "kindness," i.e. putting their own needs behind those of others, while at the same time teaching men to put their needs ahead of others.

Men who die in war are socialized to put their needs first? Men who sign up for the selective service are putting their needs first? Men who pay alimony and child support are putting their needs first? There are 3,500 men here who put their wives/girlfriends needs first and learned the hard way that women won't respect them because of that. (not in spite of).

Women are neither socially conditioned to put their needs last, nor required to do so. Show me an instance where war meant women sacrificed themselves to save men, and we'll talk.

This is not biological, this is social. Women inherently have agency, but society robs some of us of some of it through poor socialization.

The only current movement I see trying to remove agency from women is feminism. Take a peek at the agency this feminist group expects from women..

THIS IS NOT WHAT OBJECTIFICATION IS. THIS IS IN YOUR OWN MIND WHAT YOU ARE DOING TO WOMEN...

And here we reach a problem. The feminist's definition of "sexual objectification" is viewing of people solely as de-personalised objects of desire instead of as individuals with complex personalities.

Problem is that this position is meaningless. I mean literally, it has no meaning. There is no way to define sexual attraction without somehow dancing around this particular definition. It's a non falsifiable definition! Who's to say my sexual attraction to a woman should be based on complex personality? Unless of course, I'm a man whose complex personality doesn't matter, and instead I'm expected to comply with feminists' view of attraction only! Furthermore, who can ever state what I find attractive? Only I decide what I find attractive, and you will never know what variables contribute to that. Be it tits, ass, or their sense of humor, that's for me to know and not for you to presuppose unless you are being an incredibly prejudice person. In my experience, that describes a typical feminist. Assuming they understand me when they never even ask.

The only group consistently denying women the right to choice is feminists, per my letter above.

Edit to include your addition:

Objectification is something that happens irrelevant to the response it receives. If, for instance, you see the value of women only in their potential to please you sexually or emotionally, then you've objectified women. The woman at the bar who seemed to masculine to be attractive, the woman she was with who shared a drink with you but left early, the coworker who got annoyed when you got flirtatious, and the women you bring home. If you're entire approach to them is:

FEMALE CHECKLIST

Attractive? Y/N Uncorrupted by feminism? Y/N Girlfriend material? Y/N ONS material Y/N

TOTAL SCORE: ____ That's objectification. Even if the end result is you treating the women you meet very differently.

Interestingly, if women are treated as a resource, then men become adversaries. This is where the idea of "patriarchy hurts men, too" comes from.

First I want to address attraction, because it seems like your understanding of how attraction works is a bit broken.

Understanding the nature of attraction is key to understanding why feminism's definition of objectification is completely nonsensical, and unfalsifiable.

Defining the qualities that enable attraction is something that we spend a lot of time considering on this subreddit. Though it's understood each person's personal tastes can vary, there are some pretty common trends.

A problem that arises is when feminism attempts to simultaneously enable women's sexual liberation (We can have sex with whomever we please, we answer to nobody, slut walk, etc), while shaming men for their sexual liberation. (You men are objectifying women by finding them attractive for reasons we do not approve of!)

If a woman takes part in a one night stand and never talks to him again, tell me exactly what her use for that man was. If sexual gratification was your answer: You just saw feminism's endorsed sexual objectification.

But don't worry, I'm going to do away with the term objectification in feminists' broken dictionary so we don't have to worry about this inconsistency.

The problem with defining objectification as somebody's subjective view of somebody else is that you never really know what their view is. There's a difference between my understanding of who somebody is, and what value they provide to me.

For instance, the waiter at the restaurant tonight has a family, hobbies, preferences, a whole life behind him. But his value to me is his ability to take my order and deliver me food. Have I now objectified him for utilizing his value to me? Of course not. I do not deny his agency, I understand his potential value to me- - and I understand my potential value to him. I'm going to pay for his services. That's why he's doing it!

Women date men for similar reasons men date women. It feels good. I won't get into the gender specific reasons, but this is a good place to start. Relationships feel good. They feel right. They feel like you belong, like you have somebody special. Of course both men and women see this value in potential mate.

Let's say I flirt with a woman at a bar. She seems into me. She asks what I do for a living. I tell her I'm between jobs, and living in my mother's basement. Much to my surprise, her interest vanishes immediately and she walks away. What just happened here? Was I objectified?

The question is, what happened here? She eliminated me as a potential mate because my ability to provide her value as a mate was calculatedly low.

Has she denied my value to other people and other endeavors? No! Of course not! I am still important to my mom (I would hope!). She decided that I didn't meet her criteria as a potential mate.

Is that objectification? Of course not. Because if we cannot reject potential partners based on criteria.. then you have a moral responsibility to have sex with literally every living creature on earth.

According to your definition of sexual objectification- every time you don't have sex with somebody you're not attracted to, you 've objectified them.

That's absurd of course.

When I determine the potential mating value of a woman, I determine what traits are attractive to me. Not you, not feminism, not anybody but me. When I select a mate, it will be based on only reasons that I find attractive, and it will be specifically based on her value to me as a mate.

The only objectification happening here is when feminists such as yourself, tell me I'm wrong for taking action (having agency) to mate with somebody I find attractive (reasons you do not like).

I have not denied her ability to be president some day. I have not denied her hopes, dreams, wishes, and hobbies. I have only evaluated what potential she poses to me as a potential mate. And if she tells me she doesn't want to date me, she has done the exact same thing.

Of course it's easy for women to assume men objectify women but not vice versa, since women are visually appealing to men, but men are attractive to women for status and provisioning. (Looks would come third).

Having a checklist for a potential mate- well, heck, I don't even have one. But check out OKCupid some time, because you'll see it's female profiles that have the "Must be 6' tall, athletic, please no losers thx" checklist at the bottom.

But you know what- I defend their right to do so. Because nobody should tell them who to mate with and for what reasons. They're free to do what they want. It's only feminism telling them their checklists are evil and objectifying. Again, feminism is the only one objectifying women. Not men.

Hamster spinning, hypergamy, in /r/confessions

34 upvotes · 8 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

he doesnt understand life..He doesn't see the big picture

He just wants to live happily ever after and have 2.5 kids and own properties and have a plan

he's supporting me

Any paternity testing without a court order is banned in France. Punishable by prison time and a fine.

34 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"We don't need no man!*"

*Just a random man to pay for my kids and the men of the state to collect my royalties from him.

This subreddit needs better modding and GOOD advice.

34 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/seduction

First off, you're concern trolling.

Secondly, there is such a thing as bad text game. Texting multiple times in a row, or too often... definitely bad game.

So, as long as we can agree there's such a thing as bad text game, there must, therefore, be something considered good text game.

There is definitely a lot of good advice here. You do have to filter through some of the junk though. The one thing I've noticed is there are a lot of people who have brought with them the desire to modify the speech here to satisfy feminists, so that reddit doesn't "look" so bad. Those people miss the point of reddit, in my opinion.

Women are women, not machines. Sure. But game is probabilistic and appeals to psychology, it was never claimed to be deterministic. Stop making this stupid analogy.

Reddit's ex-CEO says: "Deplatforming works", "We don't need to protect speech"

33 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

What she really means is, deplatforming works to remove it from sight.

What she doesn't understand is, we're not going anywhere.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

33 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<http://a.trp.red/files/adminsuck.jpg>

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

33 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The variability is where things get dicey for some people.

You can look at the median and think, eh, very small advantage.

But when you look at the top percentile, and it's almost entirely men, then you realize we've got some inconvenient facts that you're not allowed to talk about.

Of course, we also make up a majority of the idiots. Which I think is observationally true, given the guys I've met in my life.

The Truth About "Misogyny" | "For a man to pretend to understand women is bad manners; for him really to understand them is bad morals."

33 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Reads just fine from here. Request desktop site if it's not working for you.

or did you get paid to promote it?

Who the fuck are you?

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

33 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

we honor that tiny voice and treat your biological body and your biological sex as the disease.

And the media tells lies on your behalf because that's apparently easier than confronting reality.

I think that's an interesting perspective. They're treating biological sex as a disease.

GAB is Down Because the Culture War is Real and the Overton Window is Shrinking

33 upvotes · 29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Is he the guy I'd choose to be fighting this fight? Probably not.

But we'd be stupid to ignore the implications of what's happening around us.

11 Real Ratings of Women on the 1-10 Attractiveness Scale - ROK

33 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The big surprise is #7 with the dyke haircut. Have men no standards? No, no they don't.

Bitcoin: The biggest wage gap experiment ever devised

33 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

In order to invest in it, you must first realize there is no coin.

Jesus Fuck, the front page of reddit has gone to shit.

33 upvotes · 1 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

If I can convince enough of you suckers to beta-up, all the womyns will be mine!

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

33 upvotes · 4 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I honestly didn't think it would happen this quickly. I made the prediction 10 days ago.

https://www.reddit.com/r/theredpillright/comments/6vyo7q/censorship_on_the_internet/

Google Fires Ph.D Biologist/Engineer For Claiming -- "On average, men and women biologically differ in many ways. "

33 upvotes · 8 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Everything looks rosy in retrospect.

The forum was full of genetic losers since the beginning. That's why the question was asked "why aren't I getting laid?"

The content here is more or less similar to years ago. There's more filler, but the quality stuff is easy to get to.

Get rid of unrealistic social expectations to alleviate loneliness

33 upvotes · 27 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Just click report on stupid posts. It's not hard. If we had just one report in place of every effortless complaint like yours, the sub would have no complaining, and less garbage.

Complaining is half the garbage afterall.

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

33 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This it's not about red pill... At all. Bits a movie about MRA done by a feminist.

Correct. And I want to see it made.

Another proof of the gynocentric society: Tyler the creator banned from entering Australia and UK for his lyrics

33 upvotes · 3 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If things like the constitution were taken into consideration, I don't think most of us would be worried.

[Mod] On the future viability of the sub...

33 upvotes · 5 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's the mailing list:

<http://puerarchy.com/mailling/?p=subscribe&id=1>

How to shut up and listen: how I read The Red Pill.

33 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Simple generalizations help every day.

"Never trust a horse girl..."

An effective rule. Does it mean you shouldn't evaluate a new woman who is into horses? No, it means caveat emptor, proceed cautiously.

Men understand what it means.

The Red Pill is Pro-Woman

33 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

So by definition, anything that makes you attractive to women is "using your power" over her to "manipulate" her into sex.

Precisely.

♂

Forget "alpha" and "beta", focus on value.

33 upvotes · 13 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Pretending that your goal isn't sexual success is a great way to feel better about yourself when you fail.

Tell yourself it's about feeling good in your clothes and in your skin, and it's all about you (boy power), fine by me.

For those who rather set lofty goals and strive to achieve them or recognize failure, I understand that embracing alpha and beta traits, utilizing them, and giving them the proper respect in my mind-space will lead me to better results than telling myself comfortable lies to shield me from failure.

So, choose your own adventure:

1. Comforting lies. Go to page </r/seduction>.
2. Reality. Go to </r/theredpill>. Try again.

Woman dumps a good man, realizes she hit the wall, now wants him back

33 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

imagine having a job where nobody listens to a god damn word you say and comes running back to you with the same exact problems time after time.

That really is what it is. Women will never make a decision that goes against what their immediate emotional needs tell them. Women's absolute slavery to their emotions prevents long-term thinking/planning.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

32 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Check out <https://forums.red/i/theredpill>

A Note on OPSEC in light of the recent Twitter leaks...

32 upvotes · 20 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

VPN protects you from the service you're connecting to, but not from the police or NSA.

General rule of thumb is don't commit crimes.

"I cheated on my boyfriend with my rapist" Wow... you can't make this shit up.

32 upvotes · 9 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

So this guy thought nothing of "raping" her on the first encounter, thought nothing of showing up where his "victim" was, and then in the second encounter didn't try anything on with her?

That's my thinking.

Absolutely nobody thinks raping a passed out chick is okay. Anybody who is evil enough to try it is probably smart enough not to poke the bear afterwards. Is he gunning for criminal charges?

Or did he see it as an enthusiastic drunk chick started getting handsy and it was a blast (that she just doesn't remember much of except the end)?

The Monetization of the Manosphere

32 upvotes · 28 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Nice to see you up and making noise IM. How have you been?

Our Appeal of the Quarantine to the Reddit Admin

32 upvotes · 4 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

They recently changed their rules to include an appeals process for quarantined subs.

This indicates that they have made a promise to the community to hear and respond to said appeals.

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

32 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, I always cringe when I see somebody post 'TRP is about becoming the best man you can become.'

Best in which way? What is best? It's an appeal to somebody else's ideal of what a man should be.

TRP isn't about becoming a better man. It's about fulfilling your goals and finding happiness in success, whatever that success might be. It's about removing the cultural blinders that artificially limit and stunt your ability to achieve said goals.

Ironically, once you finally swallow the red pill, the realization should be that you were your own biggest enemy.

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inured and so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it." Cognitive dissonance-whenver bias prevents someone from even considering an alternative view let alone weigh the merits.

32 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't want someone who will try to challenge me waiting at the door, I want a sweetheart who will make my night easy.

They mistakenly believe that being difficult is the same as being "strong" and that it's attractive and it's your problem that you're "intimidated" by it.

GLO's Messenger app tells us more about the community than we'd like to know

32 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The users don't need this app, not even the content creators necessarily. GLO needs it.

No, you don't need it. Because you don't have any foresight or vision. Doesn't mean the rest of us have to wallow in mediocrity like you'd have it.

The users "don't need" trp.red. Until something happens and our forum gets shuttered like countless forums before us.

The only vision GLO has for TRP is about how to cash in on TRP. And this is fine, because nobody has to buy his shit if he doesn't want to. But his agenda is starting to change this sub.

You better know what you're talking about before spouting off shit like this. Because what you don't know is the countless conversations the mod team have had with GLO and the endorsed contributors trying to find a path that would best benefit members here in the long run. We're looking for creating success in a world that absolutely wants us to fail.

GLO didn't show up and try to cash in, he approached us with an idea that we wholeheartedly endorse. If you think there's big money behind the scenes, you're sorely mistaken. Things like TRP.RED have taken thousands of man hours and plenty more from our pockets. Just so ungrateful millennials such as yourself might have a chance at getting laid once in a while. Yeah some of this shit costs real money, something you clearly know shit about.

Out of here with your bullshit.

#NoNothingNov 2016: Give Up Vices, Forge New Habits.

32 upvotes · 1 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I've set my goals and already I'm daunted. The truth is, I enjoy too many drinks. Time to cut back. My liver and belly will thank me.

<https://www.trp.red/nnn/redpillschool>

I'm Rollo Tomassi, Ask Me Anything

32 upvotes · 27 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey Rollo, thanks for stopping by. What's your opinion of the involvement of sexual politics/blue pill conditioning in this presidential race. Are we experiencing a large scale representation of the feminine imperative/ war on men?

Women's rights groups to rally next Tuesday against equal parenting law. #Equality

32 upvotes · 8 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You seem to repost comments in a lot of subs. Care to explain?

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

32 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

An ideologue stands by his ethics system to his detriment.

An opportunist sees value wherever he can get it.

Perhaps I'm just an agent of chaos, or maybe I secretly want the guys at men's rights to realize what's happening.

Either way, this movie can't possibly go down well.

Aspiring writer? Content producer? Really clever twitterer?

32 upvotes · 22 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We're actually teaming up with Jezebel to give a full balanced picture.

Bookmark Our Offsite Backup

32 upvotes · 16 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Good point, thanks

Joe Rogan Standing His Ground

32 upvotes · 7 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I disagree, I think he supports it.

On basic GAME, PICKUP, and the direction of TheRedPill, RULES REVISITED 4/2014

32 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm taking your comments to heart and am currently putting together an alternative. I will announce soon.

Update: Polyamory Failure Lets Wife Fuck Other Men... The Gruesome Aftermath

32 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dread game.

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

32 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The hallmark of people hating on the red pill is they never get our position correctly before bashing it.

How often do you get "stabbed in the back" by other men? (Cashier wants to make man pay for his girlfriend's food)

32 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I would only consider it being "stabbed in the back" if it were a friend of mine. That douche was just white knightening and hoping to win your sex.

"What Do You Do When A Girl Hits You?"

32 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Mind you, this is the good men project, which is basically a bullshit site, but this story is worth a read. Relevant link from Vox: <http://alphagameplan.blogspot.com/2013/10/what-to-do-when-girl-hits-you.html>

The Watercooler #2: Less-Than-Epic Anecdotes

32 upvotes · 8 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I recently had a conversation with my newest plate that went something like..

Me: I'm going to do you in the butt tonight.

Her: We are never doing it in my butt. I don't like it.

Me: You say that now, but it's gonna happen.

Her: If you really want to keep seeing me, then it's not happening.

Me: If it's not happening, why would I want to keep seeing you? Smirk

Her: (She punches me on the arm) I don't get it, why don't you ever fall for my shit? Most guys cave in when I set them up.

She later admitted that a big reason she likes me is because for some reason I never fall for her shit. She didn't call them shit tests, because I don't think she really knows what she's doing.

(Later)

Her: I'm going to tame you, it's going to happen.

Me: This should be good. Let's put money on this.

On multiple occasions she admits that she has no idea why she likes me because she often feels like she wants to kill me. "I don't understand how you get me to hate you so much and then have me laughing a minute later."

While I am not a huge fan of 4chan, this old screenshot I saved was probably the first dose of TRP that I ever had.

32 upvotes · 24 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The part about spending time with men is important. Comradery is one of the most important aspects of growing into a well-adjusted man.

What happened to /r/seduction really?

32 upvotes · 23 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Have you tried respecting women? Maybe that will fix your problem.

FDS, and by extension, TRP, is a cult that traps you into alt-right thinking patterns. That's the thought terminating cliché they use to couch learning critical thinking skills.

31 upvotes · 29 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Female Dating Strategy- which people think is the female alternative to trp because they're candid about shit that is supposed to be unspoken.

That said, /r/redpillwomen is our actual alternative.

Postmodern Masculinity

31 upvotes · 21 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As far as I'm concerned there is a Rollo sanctioned unmasculinity Convention complete with literal cuckolds.

Okay... we agree. 21 convention is a bad thing. We established this a long time ago and there isn't a huge push back on here , I think most people think soap commercials are cringeworthy and instagram whores like most of the speakers on there are there to make a quick buck off one liners and platitudes like "be yourself."

In fact, you already know that I've taken great, public exception to a number of speakers there, to the point where we've had a sticky denouncing the dumb fucking convention as snake oil and I severed ties with MRP because "family alpha" was advocating marriage.

I have no problem drawing lines when somebody is here trying to bend TRP to sell blue pills wrapped in our language.

And yet- you turn the guns towards me and, man, I'm disappointed. Because for all the TRP you spout you're missing some critical elements of how to interact with other men.

GLO, I have shown you a great deal of respect and leeway. I've let you hawk your t-shirts at the bottom of your posts because I believe what you bring to the table brings value.

We've had lengthy phone conversations. Conversations where it's well understood what we agree on - and by the way, it's an overwhelming majority of things.

But here you are pushing back on me because you have picked a pet battle with the 21 con.

My job as a mod is to facilitate the argument and let others see the results. You can't just tell people how to think, you let them see the argument so they learn to think for themselves.

You are picking fights with god damned everything and everyone and it's not doing you any favors.

As a courtesy for what's happened, I stickied your post. And you are here shitting up my sub. I explained to you what happened and yet here you are: Spreading FUD, concern trolling, and trying to poison my community against ME? How little respect you have for those who have shown you respect.

All cuckold criticism has been erased by the mods making it clear that there is a defacto procuckold position in this community

If that were even remotely true, this post wouldn't be here. But it is.

You are lacking something that I thought was well established in our community: It's a mutual respect for the other men who are here helping build something. I sure as hell am not going to sit by as you try to tear it apart.

You got a beef with the shitsellers at 21 convention? Fine.

You got a beef with me? Well then we've got another problem.

Get your shit together.

Status of the Appeal 10/11

31 upvotes · 11 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's reducing the number of trolls and spergs. I've noticed an uptick in quality of posts and comments.

It is reducing the number.. but we have had a serious influx of trolls since the quarantine happened. Our modmail is clogged with "why are you private" requests, and it's been much harder on the mods side to coordinate.

The Reddit Administration Recants

31 upvotes · 2 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Well they did just remove their mistake so there's another tacit admission...

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

31 upvotes · 27 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If anybody feels inclined to help support our offsite page- which may very well become the homestead of TRP in the very near future, here's a bitcoin address to donate to:

1Hyyva2G5aCJwNqYToGoCCGATVNMB81zk7

Google Fires Ph.D Biologist/Engineer For Claiming -- "On average, men and women biologically differ in many ways. "

31 upvotes · 8 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, if Google fired him because it was inappropriate to air dirty laundry, this would invalidate that. Somebody else leaked it.

In the mean time, California law might actually prohibit terminating him when he put into question whether the practice was legal. Essentially, this might be a protected question for employees.

The Red Pill App

31 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Movie critics don't participate in creating the movie.

Building Power – 200,000+ Subscribers, A New Direction

31 upvotes · 6 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I have some plans to organize such a feature on TRP.RED in the next few months. Although I am open to ideas on how one could do this without possibly exposing identities.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

31 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I actually endorsed him in my offline life much sooner, but the sexual assault nonsense has made this race very relevant to TRP recently.

The Psychology of Approaching Groups Of Very Hot Women In Bars.

31 upvotes · 29 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The one all the guys are interested in

Just adding a comment here, didn't get a chance to finish reading, but if you use this phrase on your approach: "The one all the guys are interested in" you may have escalated quicker than you need to.

Sure, women at clubs are bitches, but they play off you, and that seems like a sure way to put her in super-bitch mode, and it looks kinda transparent.

If you keep encountering bitches at clubs, sometimes you might need a few extra steps there to calibrate to make sure you're not putting them off into bitch mode yourself.

30 year old Megan Fox shames Will Arnett for dating young women

31 upvotes · 12 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

♂ This is spot on. In fact, most women I know buy into astrology, and it's true, they continue with the nonsense because most people just smile and nod. Truth is, they could blame the toaster for what happens in their life, they just can't be agents themselves.

Theory Friday - No Stupid Questions Thread

31 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

When working on a girl that you wish to plate, if discussion of her boyfriend or current fling comes up, never refer to him by name. Come up with something emasculating. Use it every time.

She will eventually start using it too, perhaps because it's funny, or perhaps it's to please you. But once she does, her respect for him starts dropping.

Endorsed Contributors: Respect The Tag

31 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You said yourself this is a patriarchal meritocracy so my respect will be given when it is earned. Bullshit self promotion and trying to sell shit aren't the way to do that, vanguard status or not.

You speak as though these members should be willingly giving you as much value as they can for zero return. It's something about this new generation of millennials that think that the minute somebody tries to get a small amount of return on their investment they're suddenly evil and trying to manipulate everybody into giving them money.

You know the reason we let GLO put a link to his shirts? Because he has had absolutely zero incentive to continue helping guys here, yet he gives one-on-one and one-on-many advice sessions for working out. He hasn't put his advice behind a paywall, he's looking for a little bit of beer money and providing value in return (shirts). You don't have to buy a shirt to read or get advice from him.

And you little shit come along complaining that somebody who provides value to the community is promoting them self?

Who the fuck are you?

The endorsed members are endorsed because they put in the time and their works have been consistent and high quality. We spend the time reading and vetting FOR YOUR BENEFIT. So, take your little me-me-me entitled shit attitude out of here, read the side bar again, and then head over to /r/becomeaman where you can learn the order of things.

King White Knight Beta Leader on r/relationships fiancée wants and asks him to take more control in the relationship. "Ordering his wife to do anything would be vile" in his own words.

31 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

he was too stupid to go read the thing and see what his wife was on about.

Postmodern liberalism 101: Never expose yourself to ideas that might change your mind, it's dangerous.

Reading comprehension, or the lack thereof...

31 upvotes · 30 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Exactly, which is why I reiterate it every couple months.

A mother who left her sick, three-month-old baby alone to die while she had a whiskey fuelled sex marathon with a man she met at a bus stop has avoided jail.

31 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

1st one: Main gets suspended sentence in case with no death.

2nd one: The standard sentence was dismissed because he took a plea bargain, however the actual sentence is not mentioned.

So, no, these aren't good examples.

How the Feminine Imperative is Destroying Reddit... on Purpose

31 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

This doesn't hold true for men.

In fact, guys will throw each other under the bus for a taste of that sweet sweet puss.

Whisper on Marxism and the origin of Objectification

31 upvotes · 6 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Fantastic insight, quality stuff. As always, /u/whisper is articulate and concise.

I cannot order food at a restaurant without viewing the waitress as a means to an end. I cannot eat the food without viewing it as a means to an end. I cannot pay for the food without the waitress viewing me as a means to an end. I cannot earn money to pay for the food without viewing my fellow employees, or my customers, as a means to an end.

The problem is, of course, that in a feminist's mind, they are completely unable to extrapolate this far on a topic such as this- they simply cannot equate sexual objectification with other logical analogs, such as ordering food from a waiter.

Because in their mind, there's a specialness to their pain and victim-hood, and it transcends logic or reason.

Just another example of why you shouldn't assume feminists are making an argument in good faith.

Their female minds limit them to understanding only one reality- the one which their feelings have created for them. They are unable to separate this internal emotional state from any objective reality. The utilitarian perspective of Maslow is pragmatic and therefore useless to these women who have reality defined for them as a series of feelings and have little to no sense of consequence that would demand they face an objective reality pragmatically to begin with.

Not only will their arguments be illogical and nonsensical, but they will be unable to reconcile any truth provided to them because it simply cannot match their world view if nothing has ever forced them to open their eyes.

I do not think women are incapable of logic or reason. I think, instead, that they are unaware that what they see is shadows on a wall, their sexuality unwittingly putting them in cave. Even as they are actually not chained there today, they refuse to leave the cave because the shadows are far more convenient.

"I'm 41, single and pregnant. Welcome to the new normal"

31 upvotes · 30 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The entire article is about ME ME ME, with no regard about how in the world she's going to raise the child. No plan, nothing. My money is on her paying a stranger to watch the child while she works, because as a single mom at 40+, she sure as fuck isn't gonna get a marriage proposal anytime soon.

♂

I became shallow, theres more to life. Seriously learn from me.

31 upvotes · 15 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

And what does?

The poor want to be rich, but the rich want more...

Mister Anderson. (My Epiphany). (Long).

31 upvotes · 10 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Welcome, brother! In the spirit of matrix quotes:

Neo: Why do my eyes hurt?

Morpheus: You've never used them before

Possible answer to: why are there so many bitter TRPs?

31 upvotes · 26 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the manosphere bloggers is apparently gay, but he writes better maculinity guides than I could.

"4 Reasons to date a grown ass man" -- by 37 year old woman

31 upvotes · 25 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Her writing doesn't flow, it's sporadic and neurotic. It's like she's just dumping her thought stream out on paper.

So this Saturday is my fourth date with The Rugby Player, who is also, incidentally, twice-divorced. (When I started writing this article, I texted him, brainstorming what I should call him. Military Guy? Twice-Divorced Guy? The Lawyer?

"No, not the lawyer," he said. "Lawyers suck.")

By the way, do you know how long I have known about this upcoming date with him on Saturday?

You're thirty-seven and this is how you write.

I know my pattern. I am someone who is very comfortable with chaos and abuse and codependency

Standard female fare- they crave drama. The fact that women announce, boast, and embrace these flaws as if they make her unique, they typically try to use the word "hot mess" to include that they simply want their emotions to be rocked like a g-damn roller coaster. Drama, chaos, excitement, anything that isn't normal.

How low the mighty Seddit has fallen!

31 upvotes · 13 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As long as you keep showing up early, I think we're safe.

Women react badly when guys pay for sex - some of the comments are eye opening

31 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And thus, game was born.

No Participation Rules

31 upvotes · 17 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In other news, if the reddit admin ever stumble across this, my suggestion to you: You already have the power to add no-participation mode, and make it mandatory for all inter-reddit links. You don't do it. It's curious to me why you'd ban for it but not make it a basic feature.

Right thing to do? User "the_mig" banned. Apparently for making thoughtful comments and providing a mirror that made the admin (and/or other users) feel self-conscious and uncomfortable.

31 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Mig, this is why you were banned: TROLLING. And for subverting my ban, you're banned again.

"My impression is that it is a collection of low-quality males looking to get laid by high-quality females."

The men making comments here seem so afraid

You are afraid of women - I get it. You are already a victim. There's nothing I can do for you.

Are we reading the same subreddit? The overwhelming body of advice is the opposite: how to be miserable.

Low-quality males also try to mate upwardly, outside their natural ability. Humans call it "rape". (Or less violently: "Red Pill".) Whether paternal extortion, rape, or Red Pill - it is a tactic of the low-quality.

No, her perception is that way because it is a glaring reality of this subreddit. You may not be an emotionally stunted sub-par male who finds solace in demeaning women, I don't know. But it is definitely an obvious and overarching theme.

The point of this subreddit seems to be aimless young men trying to find shortcuts to meeting women who are quite rightly out of their league.

I stumbled here by accident on my first time on reddit in at least a month or more, and am horrified by what I'm reading.

You know what quality women REALLY dig? Men in control of their own lives. No amount of Red Pill is going to change that.

The rules are in the sidebar.

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1dovmp/mod_state_of_the_subreddit_may_2013/

This decision is not up for debate. Mig's decision to make this post has cemented this decision, no appeal will be considered.

/u/tpiecer I'm calling you out.

31 upvotes · 3 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You're going to need to state what you believe and why before we can have any form of discussion. I don't know what you believe so asking me to make an argument against it doesn't make any sense.

If you don't know what we believe, then it shows your bias for having disagreed before learning it.

The "I didn't rape you" Text

31 upvotes · 27 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It truly says something about rape culture when the key to avoid "raping" somebody is to make sure they remain happy after sex.

SendGrid fires Adriana Richards

31 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In other news, twitter has the worst user interface ever.

How To Use The Desperation of Ukrainian War Refugees to Your Sexual Advantage

30 upvotes · 21 March 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Those shilling mods. Can't stand em.

Anyway, we stickied this post to stand with Ukraine.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

30 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Feel free to make your own predictions.

Anyone notice women out in public are straight up rude if not hostile these days?

30 upvotes · 12 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Stick around, I have some new material coming up.

Men dropping out of society

30 upvotes · 11 December 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men are finding that the juice just isn't worth the squeeze.

Women don't take care of themselves. They price themselves way outside the market. They nag. And they think being abrasive and independent is "sexy" and then they're surprised when their 40-year-old-independent self is alone- at which point they demand some poor sap spend 6 months paycheck on a pointless rock for the pleasure of of getting leftovers with no chance of having a healthy kid.

Female engagement was the reason men strive to improve society. Without that, you just have herbivores. There's no reward.

Why would I select a modern woman who is simply intolerable when I can play video games and eat pizza with friends?

The Bittersweet Life Of Famous Instagram Model Amanda Lee - RooshV: "She is a slave to digital responses in a virtual reality that is accessed through her smartphone. She is an addict to loveless attention that keeps her in a prison of materially comfortable insecurity."

30 upvotes · 26 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Obviously women are too retarded to think this far hence Xanex.

I lol'd.

Sometimes an exchange is just too good to let die when we remove entire threads. "An Angry Spergle appears!"

30 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There are always the AMOG clowns who think their best bet in a male run community is to find the top dog and try to beat their chest at them, but we remove quite a bit of it.

Sometimes I enjoy the exchange so much I feel guilty removing the troll posts. Sometimes Rollo AND GLO chime in and it needs to be commemorated.

For those reading along from the banned side of the coin, respect in male hierarchies is based on seniority and merit. Those on top aren't always right, but they do get respect or you can't be part of their group. This is not a lesson on how to be on TRP, but rather a life lesson for any male organization.

The Red Pill App

30 upvotes · 12 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Why don't we just exapnd trp.red to have the things you are looking for?

These features will be added to trp.red.

/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!

30 upvotes · 25 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think any sub has that little ratio of shitty comments

It's nice when I hear somebody notice how much work the mods here do !

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

30 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's the best form of marketing because it specifically selects for people ready to unplug.

A note on the backup forums

30 upvotes · 6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks exuals! We appreciate the support.

Why men aren't helping women and children anymore: Woman sparks a witch hunt after a man takes a selfie near her children.

30 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes but it's of sexual nature, so he does have a per se case.

Lesson learned: If a woman asks how much you make, break it off ASAP.

30 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And more power to you if you can find that. My only warning is that career women don't make good LTRs. Further, many non-career women can hold a conversation just fine.

You want somebody who is aggressive and competitive in the workforce, more power to you. Just don't expect more than the most casual fling from her. You're dreaming if you think that's going to make wife material.

"Love is forever?" LOLNOPE. Turns out that fuzzy-wuzzy "twoo wuv" feeling has an expiration date: about a single year.

30 upvotes · 29 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Love is the feeling you get when you don't think you can do any better

♂

Science Confirms Tattooed Women Are Indeed Broken

30 upvotes · 17 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Rollo has a theory that men will develop preferences that match positive reinforcement. That is, if brunettes tend to respond well to a man, he may develop a preference for brunettes.

It's obvious that outliers exist. For instance, there's a fetish and a kink for just about anything. And yes, some people are into them.

But I think the pattern as a whole should be analyzed. Even if one or two girls look better with tattoos, it doesn't change the fact that most don't. And even if one or two guys have a preference for them, it doesn't mean it's a good bet. It'd be like me getting fat, hoping to attract the one or two women who just happen to like fat dudes.

Another predictable You Go Girl / Men Suck article in mainstream media explaining decline in marriage

30 upvotes · 15 October 2014 · /r/MensRights

Classic feminist reframe. Men are the cause of the problem! No men worth marrying!

Want the truth? I've been with multiple women who dream of the married life with kids. The truth is, I wouldn't go anywhere near them in wedding gowns. What's the phrase? "I'll bet you half my stuff you'll love me forever!" No fucking thanks.

The reason nobody's marrying women isn't because men are no-good schlubs- the stats I've seen show that women still value marriage today as much as ever. It's because marriage is absolutely no good for men, and men decidedly want nothing to do with it.

And guess what? Men aren't blaming women. In fact, men are still dating and loving women! They just aren't marrying them.

It's this reframe that really highlights the issue at play: Men still want women in their lives, just no marriage contract. Women, on the other hand, want.. no, need, the financial provisions that marriage carries. They're the only ones upset about the downfall of marriage. Most of my guy friends are perfectly content with long term relationships sans the contract.

You're not fooling us! You certainly won't shame us into marrying. lols

PSA: don't let her get stupid drunk

30 upvotes · 20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Take all the irresponsibility and annoyingness of a woman and multiply it by one hundred when she gets drunk. Avoid that scenario at all costs. I've had women publicly try to start fights that they left me to try to finish, I've had women get pushy about sex (and then angry/violent when I didn't comply), and I've had women try to make a public scene when they didn't get their way (even when we weren't in public, she would go outside and start yelling to get attention).

How is a RPW supposed to get married to a RP man when the last thing RP men are advised to do is to get married?

30 upvotes · 8 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, in fact... welcome to the new relationship post feminism, where women now have to shoulder the same risk as men. Without that ring, you're not at a disadvantage- you're on equal footing.

Watch the hamster spin that into disadvantages for women.

Don't make spinning plates your mission

30 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why wouldn't you focus on getting hot girls if that's what you want?

The Reason Men Don't Forgive Betrayal As Easy As Women

30 upvotes · 29 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a man cheats on a woman, he has displayed higher value. It's effectively dread game, she may very well get a boost in attraction to him from it.

Men, on the other hand, have no such desire. Fertility and chastity are the most important things to him. Losing that proves low quality in women.

Where Anger Leads - M3 "If a man .. worked hard and saved, got the rock, .. listened to his father about 'happy wife, happy life', listened to his mother to 'just be yourself', .. and realizes he'd been lied to.. BY EVERYBODY.. You can understand he'll be even angrier."

30 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm glad for you. It really is an interesting position to be in before this subreddit and before the manosphere.

I spent a good portion of the last decade feeling like I was nuts, like nothing made sense. There was what should have been reality, and then there was my experience with it. I noticed things other people plainly didn't. I realized there were power differentials in relationships. I realized how manipulative people are. I also realized that there's a stark difference in approach for men vs women in dating.

Now that we have the manosphere and the red pill, all these ideas and thoughts that I though isolated me finally make sense in a broader context, and better- I'm not the only one who discovered this stuff- there are others!

The Red Pill has absolutely helped with my crippling depression and loneliness.

r/theredpill makes Huffington Post, and

30 upvotes · 1 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Lol, they're flustered.

[Mod] New Reddit X-Link Policy - No More of that

30 upvotes · 10 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

seems very beta.

It's retarded to try to classify all actions as beta/alpha, especially considering the context.

We would like to keep the sub, so we take diplomatic steps to help this.

We are not courting the reddit admins, there's is no application of alpha/beta here. This sub is discussion about sex, not a means to it.

Stop trying to be a lone wolf alpha

30 upvotes · 13 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And remember, keeping girls that are friends is not the same as beta orbiting if it's on your terms.

1 friend girl is a window to 10 girlfriends.

Was this girl bragging or confessing?

30 upvotes · 17 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I found that women sometimes like to brag about things that are absolutely the wrong thing to brag about. If she were talking with her girly friends, that'd work. She thinks that high status is attractive (because to her it is), so she mistakenly believes bragging to you about it will make her appear higher status and therefore be attractive.

It's a common mistake. Women don't usually understand different things attract men and women.

Yes, feminists really do oppose civil rights for men: "It's more than unnecessary to discuss whether feminism has 'gone too far' — it's dangerous and wrong."

30 upvotes · 19 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

The feminine imperative shows when you look at these quotes. Using words like "dangerous," "scary," and "hate" to describe a movement that is neither dangerous nor scary, and certainly doesn't advocate hate- it's obvious what's happening here.

In order to continue ensuring society internalizes the feminine imperative as its own, feminists must launch a propaganda war against anything opposing it.

It's wasted energy attempting a logical argument with a feminist. They do not seek to convince you of anything. They do not seek to be convinced of anything. They seek to destroy.

New Netflix movie coming out about how evil the manosphere is. Big surprise, we turn boys into monsters! It takes place in the UK where a swat team of 30 fully geared up dudes go to arrest a teen boy for posting online. Fuckin UK

29 upvotes · 28 February 2025 · /r/TheRedPill

"We" don't have to do jack shit. The whole point of TRP is personal agency.

We provide tools. You decide your own goals. Nobody is responsible for you but yourself.

The silencing of TRP on Reddit and social media as a whole proves how enormously biased our culture is against males now

29 upvotes · 8 April 2022 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The very mention of the subreddit's name is shadow-banned by automod in most of the major subreddits. Automod silently deletes any comment referencing it and nobody's the wiser, including the person making the comment.

This is more than just anti-male. This is anti-trp.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

29 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Go ahead and share your left wing point of view. Nobody stopping you.

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

29 upvotes · 27 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's pretty damn close- thousands of the top posts

<https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

So the Banout 2018 has not put PPD on there list of subs to get banned.

29 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/PussyPassDenied

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Call the Admin on Hypocritical Banning! /r/BanBanouts !

Woman convinces boyfriend to kill himself so she can become self-proclaimed advocate for mental health on Facebook.

29 upvotes · 1 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Postmodern discourse at its finest.

Team Red Pill

29 upvotes · 9 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I, for one, started shaving my neck exclusively.

Girl wants to "have fun this summer" but doesn't want to lose her potential provider.

29 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Controlling and abusive are catchall rationalizations that all women use for anything they dislike retroactively.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

29 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

. If you're already convinced of the "alpha fux beta bux" maxim, you're likely to see my settling down as a desperate ploy to attach my pathetic, aging self to a beta provider. But that completely ignores the reality of what I wrote: I appreciate my husband because we're partners.

Oh, that clears it up.

Thanks to that EMSK post, The Red Pill has experienced its second biggest membership spike ever and is now a trending subreddit.

29 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I personally delete anybody trying to make trp more pc. fuck that.

Don't let your distrust of women make you choose to not have children. That's an abject surrender of your most fundamental power.

29 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The puerarchy is a growing social issue- whether it's organized or not- and it is having an economic effect- whether they are intending on it or not. I am not suggesting avoiding kids to make a political point, but I am suggesting that for your own happiness and life, having kids may not be the best solution.

If your goal is to have as many kids as you can, then fair enough, get cracking. But understand you, as a provider, will sacrifice yourself to them and the mother. You will be another casualty in your family tree.

Genghis Khan had the advantage of control. Western men have nothing.

[Mod] If your thread or comment suddenly disappears...

29 upvotes · 15 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, it's my morning routine to delete low quality content. I'm afraid I just don't have the time to leave a personal comment on each one. If you're confused about your deletion, re-read the sidebar, the rules, and look if maybe one of our other red pill network subs might be a more appropriate place to post.

/r/asktrp is booming, full of useful advice and great people who really do care to help.

/r/alttrp is also starting to take off. Full of gay shit and stuff. (really, /u/Brown_Piper, you couldn't think of ANY other name??)

Design Changes

29 upvotes · 1 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's the way it was always meant to be. When neither of you are having sex, both of you are equal!

No sex = no sex. It checks out I did the math.

JustBetaThings - "I have a troll face on a strawberry tattooed on my ass... I was trying to help a friend practice as she was an aspiring tattoo artist."

29 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Correct, this guy thought he was getting laid.

10 tips for dating a single mom

29 upvotes · 10 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

On that note, all women describe their previous exes as abusive if it suits their story. It completely does away with the meaning when they describe men being men as inherently abusive.

Woman From MTV Demands Free Stuff From Us

29 upvotes · 7 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think so much it's the nice request, it's the fact that when he calls her on it (douche move or not) she instantly reverts to namecalling, showing that she thought this all along and was only being polite to get something.

Cheating

29 upvotes · 20 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't cheat. Never go exclusive.

Apparently people in other subreddits are actively trying to avoid having any Red Pill discussion available for others. Because, you know, WE'RE the vote brigaders...

29 upvotes · 1 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I've said it a million times, there's no benefit to us actually vote brigading- the real culprit can be found when you look no further than who wants it to look like we vote brigade.

If I hated the red pill, I'd watch the front page and go on a downvote spree with my friends. It doesn't take many downvotes to kill a new comment.

Trigger Warning: Multiple studies: men don't find women with tattoos attractive, but approached them more (hint hint); women with tattoos report earlier sexual experiences

29 upvotes · 19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Tonight at 8: Do boys like girls? Studies show yes!

[Mod] Reminder of the Rules - No Participation

29 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a lot better than censorship. I've been talking with mods of other subs, and the general consensus is they don't even want us linking to their subs.

I flatly refused to adopt that policy.

"Men in 30s who do not want to date older women" (r/OkCupid)

29 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Career and success is neither sufficient nor required for a male to be attracted to a woman.

If she's rich and successful but fat as fuck = failed boner test.

If she's hot and poor, works as a waitress = doesn't matter had sex.

Reddit's betas confessing their problems

29 upvotes · 19 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Her tweet tonight before she went to bed, "Fine is not a feeling #FigureItOut"

Why is /r/redpill hated more than /r/seduction and other PUA communities?

29 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No you weren't snarky and my post wasn't a taunt. I legitimately think you should point out shitty science when you think you see it. We should be able to hash out anything that isn't obvious on the surface.

Please do not link "feminist" sites. Screenshot said articles and post it as a picture.

29 upvotes · 8 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Offical Mod stance: Don't really care. Do what you want. Neat trick with the chrome extension though.

Forever Beta? I derive more pleasure from jerking off without a condom than from fucking with a condom.

29 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

NEVER EVER PUT YOUR SPERM SOMEWHERE THAT YOU CANNOT GET IT BACK.

The Crying Rape Game

29 upvotes · 6 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate that whenever we see some woman in the news doing something terrible - like making up rape threats - she's characterized as sick or mentally ill. As if no sane woman could be guilty of anything.

I see it every time there's a female criminal in the news. They cannot fathom a woman doing something devious, they must pathologize it.

You Can't Comply Your Way out of Censorship -- Whisper Has Been Banned

28 upvotes · 26 May 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Cat's out of the bag. No amount of censorship will put it back in.

The Social Credit Score system takes hold in it's first bold move "Tinder will soon let you run a background check on a potential date." This will become a norm. Blackballing people and reporting on bad dates will follow. MARK MY WORDS.

28 upvotes · 15 March 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

A woman can decide creep status at any time. Especially out of spite.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

28 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The user who sent this is a reddit admin. We are being shuttered.

"The Startling Rise of Choking During Sex"

28 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The Atlantic is blaming it on porn, as though men picked up on it and started doing something women hate.

Maybe it is porn's fault. Because women realized they've all got fantasies about it.

WEEKEND MEGATHREAD: Favorite red pill Blogs, Authors, Books, and Podcasts

28 upvotes · 15 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll start with some that I still follow

RP:

<https://xsplat.wordpress.com/> (active)

<https://therationalmale.com/> (active)

<https://theprivateman.wordpress.com> (RIP)

<https://theredpillroom.blogspot.com> (inactive)

<https://www.rooshv.com/> (Found jesus)

<https://dalrock.wordpress.com> (leans christian and political)

Chateau Heartiste (gone)

No so RP:

<https://captaincapitalism.blogspot.com>

I'll add to this more this weekend.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

28 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I mean worst case for starting dread.

The Red Pill Penetration Rate - "Of all the men who land on red pill pages, I estimate half lack the courage to take the red pill."

28 upvotes · 28 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

" We spent decades and untold trillions of calories of energy purging every possible flaw from ourselves in the analog days, only to find out through the internet that there was nothing wrong with us, and it was society that was at fault all along. Now, not only do men never have to face that insanity and frustration ever again, they can immediately get an answer online if they're brave enough to doubt the main stream narrative."

"TEXT ME"

28 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the business card is lame. Hand written is better. But only if you hand it to her, look her in the eye and say "text me."

Leaving a note on a receipt is too passive and looks wimpy.

Join the Anti-Ban Petition and Show the Admin who Should Really Be Banned! /r/BanBanouts

28 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm afraid we actually can't tolerate that. It's rule 2.

"TRP focuses too much on women"

28 upvotes · 6 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Rather, you would ideally find a way to satisfy those desires as quickly and efficiently as possible so you can focus on more important shit.

Some would argue that the desire and purpose of "more important shit" is simply to get your dick wet.

There's a reason we do much more than other animals. Sexual selection created the world's most competitive game in which having bigger feathers or teeth weren't enough to win, we developed minds and cognition. We developed humor and art, and increasingly more efficient methods of resource gathering and farming.

This wasn't so we could get past sex, it was because of and for sex.

That isn't to say we all must be slaves to our base instincts and only get rich for the pussy. But it would be dumb to forget the reason man has this drive is literally because of pussy.

On Freedom of Speech

28 upvotes · 22 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Voat is a shit show. Our backup plan is not only listed in the text of my post above, but it's listed on the sidebar.

<https://www.forums.red>

Sometimes an exchange is just too good to let die when we remove entire threads. "An Angry Spergle appears!"

28 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You know what, after reviewing your history, welcome to the club.

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

28 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

We used to have a melting-pot ethic in this country, which meant that people of all races were welcome as long as they assimilated to certain shared values such as honesty, individual rights, and self-reliance.

Now each race is encouraged to maintain separate identities and values, frequently at odds with that of their host country.

They're teaching it to kids as the giant "salad bowl." It's this mentality that essentially penalizes white people for having a culture by simultaneously tells everybody that every ethnicity deserves its own culture and that's why white people need to sacrifice their own.

The Direction of RPW.

28 upvotes · 4 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

RPW mods were censoring discussions, so you censored their discussions?

No, they left on their own.

Sounds like a good reason for a leadership change. What were the specifics here though? You got any proof of that? Who got banned for saying what?

I will let individuals come forward if they want to speak on their own behalf. The one individual that was brought to my attention that sparked the debate was /u/Whisper.

Oh, so you banned them. Got it.

No, they left.

What you should have done though is revoked all their mod status but left their posts up.

They removed their own mod status. I haven't deleted any of their histories, they may have done that themselves.

ally the only thing that should be deleted is spam IMHO. As in "click here for penis enlargements", or arguably "buy my t-shirts" (ahem). On the other hand if somebody wants to preach traditional values, or promiscuity, or praise Trump or Hillary or whoever, who gives a shit. Let their own words speak for themselves.

I agree wholeheartedly, which can now happen that the old mod team is gone.

The Triggerpocolypse!

28 upvotes · 7 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

My favorite ideas:

<http://a.trp.red/files/idea1.jpg>

and

<http://a.trp.red/files/ijdea2.jpg>

Lady on facebook attacks single mothers for using babies as bait to control men. Speaks some solid redpill truth

28 upvotes · 24 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They're actually just posts removed by automod for being too short.

Rollo Tomassi in Vegas – Man in Demand Conference

28 upvotes · 7 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/SoftHarem will make a guest appearance for twelve seconds but then nobody will know where he went...

New Zealand has broadly outlawed free-speech online, with "sexist" posts attracting 2 year jail terms. If opinions cause "serious emotional distress" you can be arrested and jailed.

28 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

Think about this- whether you agree with us or not, The Red Pill is officially illegal in New Zealand. Men's interests, if they do not conform with what's politically correct, is now illegal. And I promise you twox has no such problem.

Whether you agree with TRP or not, this should scare the shit out of you.

And for those of you in men's rights who were ready to throw TRP under the bus. Just remember, once we're out of the way, you're next.

Lesson learned: If a woman asks how much you make, break it off ASAP.

28 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You want a woman who is ambitious and successful for a LTR.

You want to find the best DNA for your offspring.

Complete and utter nonsense- you find a woman who is successful and she already wasted her birthing years to medical school or getting her MBA.

If you think you don't have strong game to handle an LTR with a strong woman, I think that speaks more to you needing to step up your game.

If you want to deal with endless shit tests and an unqualified sense of entitlement from a woman who believes her degree increases her value in the sexual market place- help yourself... nobody else wants them.. - wallstreetjournal.com

I'm not saying find yourself a good-for-nothing chick who can't cook. I'm telling you that you're in for a world of surprise when you realize how deeply entrenched in blue pill thinking you are for thinking the feminist-deemed positive qualities are actually positives for women. They're not men, if you needed to be reminded.

In the mean time, I will find the next hot young thing and get all her best years out of her. And she'll make great children. And she'll actually be around to raise them.

Or do you think kids don't need moms any more?

Its not about satisfying your insecurity. Its about getting the absolute best mate that you can.

I mean you seem to be projecting a bit here, I'm not the one bragging about my job on here.

The growth of /r/TheRedPill from 0 to 100,000 subscribers

28 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I own /r/redpill, we could just move operations haha

The next one of you assholes to post some shit about this or that movie was redpill, bluepill, whatever... gets permabanned.

28 upvotes · 27 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah that's fine. I don't think we've had to remove any endorsed contributor's posts anyway.

But if I hear somebody quote Billy Joel lyrics again pointing out how crazy it is that he was red pill before the red pill.. it just gets old.

Video representing a Feminist's dream date by "Pretty Sketchy Comedy" Channel ! Enjoy !!

28 upvotes · 6 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She was actually shocked that everywhere had an hour wait.

My current LTR was completely unaware that the reservations I made for our recent outing had to be done a week in advance.

She's like, "can't we just go later?"

No, I made reservations.

"Can you change them?"

"I made this reservation a week ago..."

"What? There's never a wait when we go there.. ohhhhh"

The Five Respect Needs of Men

28 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen

This is good stuff. It's surprising how very few of these needs have ever been met by any of my previous girlfriends, and how important they were to me.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

28 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Mind you the alpha fucks/beta bucks theory says that women will retroactively rationalize their behavior as though it's what they've always wanted but didn't know it yet or didn't quite understand yet.

The idea that she genuinely feels like the guy she's got was what her path was leading to all along is her mind's way of coping with the cognitive dissonance- that he's not the alphas she fucked, and he never will be. But her options are limited, and she can either face that consciously (unlikely) or she can rationalize (what she's doing).

This is in /r/askreddit right now. Jesus fucking christ.

28 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

These are the qualities they want.. out of somebody they're already attracted to.

What they don't understand is that these don't attract them, and they might actively repulse them.

Quick Responses to the Bestof/Cringe Criticism

28 upvotes · 17 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Wait, did we stop eating human flesh?

Can The Red Pill Subreddit Survive?

28 upvotes · 17 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Never put it past brigades.

Report bad shit and the mods can adress it.

Visual example of what animal lust looks like in a woman

28 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Trust me, it's all psychological.

No. It can be psychological, but if you don't think muscles have a real effect...

Women react badly when guys pay for sex - some of the comments are eye opening

28 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's difficult to name your price in a sellers market.

Women react badly when guys pay for sex - some of the comments are eye opening

28 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

People have no problem with working for hire when it comes to manual labor. People don't even have a problem with working for hire when it's acting, even if the movie has a sex scene. People start to have a bit of a problem with people working if it's a porno, but still consider it to be a noble profession for the sex-positive women who are celebrating their sexuality.

But the sacred act of sex can not be seen as working for hire, it must be seen as objectification of women or slavery:

This, it takes a certain kind of person to look at a human woman and be able to say, "Well, there's an object that I can purchase at my convenience!" I have no interest in dating those people.

To make that stretch, they first insist that hiring somebody to perform sexual acts is the same as owning somebody. And to make sure you swallow that hogwash, they insist that women can't enjoy it so they must be victims of human trafficking.

The Gentleman's Guide to Modern American Dating

28 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy shit, sidebar material here.

Woman wants her husband to make more money. Frustrated he chooses to work a job he loves and play video games in his free time (when she's not around) instead.

28 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You know what $40k gets an average american man? Everything he wants if he doesn't have to deal with harping bitch wives.

It's actually a pretty comfortable life for a single man.

Just in case people missed out on the story of Bridezilla. (X-Post SRSsucks)

28 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

It's astounding how commonly women use the whole pregnancy scare tactic. Have some god damned honor.

/r/AskMen asks "Men that opened up to the girlfriend/wife when they asked you to open up and be more vulnerable, how did it work out for you?" and gets the wrong answer...

27 upvotes · 11 February 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

I like to say it like this: You succeeded in spite of your actions, not because of them.

That said, if you're not an emotional tampon, there are a few things you're allowed to say / do that don't end in immediate dismissal. For instance, tearing up at your father's funeral usually gets a pass.

Tearing up after.. that's getting iffy.

The Great Reddit Exodus

27 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The reddit admin, not us, are the ones removing this information from the internet, we are providing a solution to that problem.

On Censorship and Some News on our New Platforms

27 upvotes · 13 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

We have negotiated free speech terms with our providers and registrar.

For the record, the registrar has a pretty good track record.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

27 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I haven't even begun to doom.

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

27 upvotes · 18 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://www.forums.red>

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

27 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

An entire subreddit dedicated to female dating strategy and coincidentally, all the posts confirm TRP?

Okay, you got me. Show me a non-red-pill female dating forum in which women lovingly date fat ugly bald guys and prefer it when you say "I love you" on the first date.

I'll wait here.

Stop reading TRP

27 upvotes · 1 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

People who say shit like "I force girls to eat my ass after I take shits to show them who's boss."

Who has actually said that?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

27 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

They're annoying. But then again, we're conflated with bunches of groups.

We've been called MRAs, ALT-Right, Incels, Misogynists, Racists, you name it!

But I don't think they've had much effect on the content itself here. NPCs just don't have enough memory slots to keep all the different groups their supposed to hate separated.

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

27 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"I need a before and after to answer honestly. Here, take it off"

EVERY.MOTHER.FUCKING.TIME i could have taken corrective action, i was lied to. Each time my buddies told me, i was once again led astray by a woman. By my mother, teachers, magazine articles, other girls i asked advice, Oprah, my friendzone crush and object of my desire.

27 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd say this post was made when he was in the early stages of unplugging. It's good to see the thought process he went through.

Sometimes an exchange is just too good to let die when we remove entire threads. "An Angry Spergle appears!"

27 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Another notable quote from this treasure trove:

"Your plan fails the most basic analysis because you refuse to understand the content here so instead you dumb it down to your own level in your own hubris." - /u/sadomasochrist

The Great Banning of 2017

27 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

And to the folks that suggested about a half dozen alternatives: if you think you've got something good for the community, run with it and show us what it can do.

Use the building power flair, and show us how it can be adopted for easy use. Remember- even if you have the perfect solution to a problem, if the current market leader is easier to use, people won't adopt it.

Welcome New Subscribers! The newcomers from Reddit's yearly "THE REDPILL WILL KILL YOU INSIDE" post are arriving.

27 upvotes · 6 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

When looking to hook up I only care about looks and a halfway decent personality.

Can't have sex with her personality.

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

27 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She won't love you if she sees you as a lesser- only if she sees you as a superior.

One-On-One Skype Coaching, Red Pill Style

27 upvotes · 23 October 2015 · /r/askTRP

This is Private Man- who has been a long time blogger in the manosphere. He offers one-on-one coaching so I told him we'd sticky this here if anybody wanted some personalized advice.

A note on the backup forums

27 upvotes · 6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

1QJwD6P9iqUHHhg4vS1Prr5S2D93pwLWVq

On platitudes, imperatives, and unsolicited advice

27 upvotes · 13 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The quality of this place comes with from the descriptive theories, not the prescriptive.

Exactly.

I've been banned from another sub I never posted to for being a "supporter" of a "hate group" - redpill -- "thought police" mods are thriving on Reddit

27 upvotes · 12 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

At this point, TRP is just the boogeyman catch-all for ideas they don't like. Anybody posting something they don't like.. well, it must be TRP invading!

[FR] She doubled down on polyamory and has been summarily nexted.

27 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't believe men to be hypergamous.

'Barry One' to Lena Dunham: 'Why Didn't You Clear My Name? Why Did You Wait?'

27 upvotes · 11 December 2014 · /r/MensRights

I hope he sues anyhow.

[48 Days of Power] Day 8 - "Make other people come to you - use bait if necessary."

27 upvotes · 22 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

When you appear to be calm, comfortable and composed, people assume you are operating from a superior position and they will either submit or attempt to reestablish their position.

♂

Excuse me. Why does everyone assume you guys are abusive assholes?

27 upvotes · 10 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

An honorable mention goes to our very own TRP game that was silenced in the wake of gamer gate:
<http://slutquest.puerarchy.com>

Thanks to that EMSK post, The Red Pill has experienced its second biggest membership spike ever and is now a trending subreddit.

27 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Start with the Misandry Bubble. It'll put everything into context!

And welcome!

What is this "decline" that you guys speak of?

27 upvotes · 6 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

With feminism, the restrictions on women's behavior are lifted, and women start sleeping around with high-value men who can't be bothered to stay around, since more women are always available.

..

Women stop having children,

I think instead what happens is women continue having children via high-value men who won't be fathers, and the state (and by extension you and me) become the fathers. We all pay for it.

It becomes a top heavy system where it is no longer economically feasible to afford your own kids because you're too busy financing other's people kids (in fact it's already happening today).

527 Male students to have DNA taken in attempt to find one alleged rapist.

27 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In a world where justice and freedom are only as good as you can finagle by chance if you are a man... we are truly guilty until proven innocent.

♂

Kicked a girl out of my bed tonight

27 upvotes · 29 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Me neither" then go in for more kissing.

Girlfriend is traveling, cheats, guy doesn't know what to do :smh:

27 upvotes · 28 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I would have been very angry but it went from making out with a scuba diver to not coming home again and she doesn't know what she want to do with the relationship.

Trickle truth for sure. 100% chance she got herself fucked raw by the scuba guy.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

27 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are the selective gender, which means it's easy for women to get sex, and very difficult for men. When a man says he's got skill with the ladies, it's impressive because we know it's not easy to do. When a woman says she can get laid, it's not impressive because we already know that. Most of us think well duh, you can get sex, heck I'd bone you right now if you have a condom..

The Moment "PUA"s officially died for me

27 upvotes · 17 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Pickup is just a term for learning how to interact with women and being proactive about it.

Roosh is the most down-to-earth writer on game I've seen, he admits and analyzes his failures, and his books amount to trial and error with some good direction. I wouldn't call it false advertising at all.

Don't hate on pickup, hate on bad techniques.

Women complain they don't make as much as men. Man explains to them how they can. Women scream at him that he's sexist.

27 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

I would hire only women just for this reason.

Plus if the wage gap were true, I'd hire only women and save myself 25% over men!

The Red Pill Best of 2013

27 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Best Waking-Up Story: What story of somebody taking the red pill did you connect with the most?

The Red Pill Best of 2013

27 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Most Paradigm Changing Revelation: Comment or text-submission, must be text on our sub, not a blog post. What tidbit or diatribe really changed your perspective on everything you understand? What has rocked your world view the most?

Girl gets drunk and fucks guy, but can't handle her slutty behavior so looks to Reddit to justify her ONS as date rape [xpost r/redpillwomen]

27 upvotes · 9 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree. This post is fake. No offense to trpsubmitter who is a great contributor.

"These Boots Are Made for Walking": Why Most Divorce Filers Are Women

27 upvotes · 23 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

When you consider that marriage may not have ever been 100% happy times for both parties the entire time, you realize that a big part of keeping marriages together were the disincentives of divorcing.

No-fault made it easy to get out of a marriage based on merely being unhappy, giving no real pressure to try to work on your relationship, or learn to be happy with what your life was after your decisions.

So, of course, with no compulsion to stay married, women can continue getting all the benefits of a marriage without the work of actually staying with the guy. Alimony, child support, and you can keep dating whoever you want!

Jackpot!

[Example] Former hot chick describes life pre-wall and post-wall

27 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/Yurwrstntmre and /u/cyralea sum it up right here. This is a fundamental principle of the red pill: without market forces causing people to act/learn/behave differently, they will not.

Everything around you is based on these forces. Including you and your behaviors. And this forum.

My Interview with Dylan Love of Business Insider

27 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

He was doing an article on the red pill, either I at least try to give our perspective or I don't. I think the article would've been worse if I hadn't tried.

Looks matter

27 upvotes · 12 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks matter. For men looking for women: Looks are #1, all other qualities come second. For women looking for men: Looks are one variable in the SMV calculation. Looks can be offset by other factors, or compensate for a lack of other factors.

You guys are right and it's annoying

26 upvotes · 15 June 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a surprisingly common refrain I hear.

"Red pill didn't work because when I tried it, they still didn't comfort me and love me like my mother did.."

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

26 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Millions of people haven't paid rent in a year. Housing market crash similar to 2008

Oh it's going to be way way worse than 2008.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

26 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If you told me in 2019 that USA govts would literally shut down the economy and make it illegal to work, I'd have called you insane.

The only thing outlandish about 2020 is that our predictions weren't crazy enough. These predictions might not even touch on what happens in the next year.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

26 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<http://a.trp.red/files/adminsuck.jpg>

This is all we know.

No idea why they are giving us advance notice.

Postmodern Masculinity

26 upvotes · 20 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, he was banned to prevent him reposting until I could get in touch with him. I just got off the phone with GLO.

THE SEA OF CIVILITY - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

26 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I would challenge you to demonstrate that we think women are evil. I like women.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

26 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

And yet, white men have almost the worst life expectancy.... (aside from black dudes who, let's face it, won't stop killing each other)

DAT PRIVILEGE

The Unknowability of Beta Turd

26 upvotes · 26 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Forget the politics. Consider the implications from a male strategy standpoint.

Do you recommend caving and losing your career to false allegations?

Based on one thing he said, I can conclusively say yes, he's a mushy wet turd.

Removing Power From Men : Mom Says 6-Year-Old Son Is Transgender. Dad Disagrees. Now He Might Lose His Son.

26 upvotes · 29 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Look this is simple. Put the kid in a room by themselves with toys and clothes of both girl and boy selections and let the kid choose. If the kid chooses a dress and plays with dolls the mum is right, if the kid chooses boys clothes and plays with cars the dad is right.

At 6? No, at 6 I'd prefer running around naked and maybe wear a hat made of pizza.

No, at 6 parents set boundaries. Not the other way around.

Our Appeal of the Quarantine to the Reddit Admin

26 upvotes · 5 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Kind of disgusting right? Puts you off because it's over the top and obscene? That's actually the point I'm making.

PSA - Don't Post Dumb Shit - Spend some time developing a cogent theory. Collect data over longer time frames with more experience than just one date where you almost got laid. If you have a theory, work through it before posting. And for fuck's sake, stop posting platitudes and top 5 lists.

26 upvotes · 31 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I read as far as I need to see if it's a shitpost. You taking 10 seconds to hobble together a fart doesn't earn the right to waste my time.

So honestly this just goes against everything TRP is about and censorship publicly done is literally BP at its finest.

You must be new here. That tired troll don't work on this mod team. Later.

The Red Pill App

26 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

RP is about strategy and pragmatism.

Exactly this. It just happens that self-improvement is pragmatic, in general. But I've always hated the phrase "it's just about self-improvement bro" because it raises an obvious question. By whose standards are we improving?

When we use the phrase "self improvement" it's trying to dumb down exactly what's taking place here to appease the feminine imperative. No, it's not just improvement. It's strategizing in a zero sum game. There will be losers.

Building Power – 200,000+ Subscribers, A New Direction

26 upvotes · 6 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

refuse to give educational institutions any money

I agree with this. The degrees themselves are starting to become as worthless as the paper they're printed on, in combination with the increased tuition rates which they've gotten away with because they spent generations brainwashing kids that they'd die poor and lonely without college. And what do you get for your money? Feminist indoctrination. No thanks.

I made a post on another sub about getting a picture of my wife at a nude beach. That post was linked here which lead to it's removal there. I'm no longer allowed to update there, so I'm telling you the rest of the story.

26 upvotes · 27 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Frankly I don't understand the fuss about this on the redpill subreddit.

Travel without your SO is usually a pretty big red flag with or without nudes.

Anti-Male Media Continues War on Men: Milo Yiannopoulos Suspended From Twitter

26 upvotes · 15 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

So legitimate users get removed at the call of ISIS terrorists on Twitter... doesn't that seem worse than just the admin being stupid?

Flashback Post #2: Women are Children & Treating Women like Children by redpillschool, GayLubeOil

26 upvotes · 23 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

"I can't," and "I'm trying."

What does "trying" even mean? "I'm trying to fix this" and "I'm trying to change."

Not even in my vocabulary. If I decide I want something different, I do something different. It's not magic, I control me.

Just another example of female hypoagency. They are so out of control in their lives that even their behavior is outside the grasp of their control.

Bachelor Nation: 70% of Men Aged 20-34 Are Not Married

26 upvotes · 6 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not even a business contract. If they made a contract that said "we both agree to be partners but if either one of us decides to leave, I get all the assets..." courts would throw it out for being an unlawful contract.

Lesson learned: If a woman asks how much you make, break it off ASAP.

26 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I mean even the word "strong" here falls under the feminist narrative that they're trying to compete with men. It just doesn't pass the boner test for me. I don't know too many "strong" independent women that could win in a fight, so they're not physically strong. And if we use the term to mean strong willed, well that just translates to bitchy in my book. If a woman won't follow my lead, she's not a keeper.

Women Now Empowered By Everything A Woman Does (Satire from the onion)

26 upvotes · 16 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Her: Yea, that is all the moves you will see.

- Shit, did the dance police show up?
- It's cute that you noticed I stopped watching.

- You're right, I'll be too busy busting my own moves. You watch me now.

FAQ Megathread

26 upvotes · 5 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

After finding good Q and As, please either edit your main post with them collated, or make a new thread with them all so I can sidebar it.

Inside the world of 'deadbeat dads': In and out of jail, unable, or unwilling to pay

26 upvotes · 28 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We are going to reallocate this money from men to women, and we will use proxy violence to do so if need be.

This is the future, when women have the most rights and the least responsibilities, you get this.

Husband kills himself after his children are taken away from him

26 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Here is his suicide note:

<http://www.brainsyntax.com/Portal/Material/1/Lasttestamentofalovingfatherabusedbythefamilycourtsystem.pdf>

This is what being .. 'targeted' by a psychopath looks like. This is the outcome. I didn't somehow change into a 'high conflict' person or lose my ability to steer clear of the law.

Can we put something in the sidebar to explain how we're not even remotely related to the red pill?

26 upvotes · 3 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

Ironically, they were calling you woman-hating misogynists well before the red pill cropped up. The fact is, most of the complaints I see here from you guys are the same complaints they make against you: uninformed, knee-jerk reactions.

It's easy to point and hate another group instead of understand it. If you feel unfairly judged by others, consider how you judge people yourself.

Mind you our goal is not to troll men's rights. I think men's rights are a very important issue, which is why I am subscribed here.

Don't let your distrust of women make you choose to not have children. That's an abject surrender of your most fundamental power.

26 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to have kids- move to another country. I'm not kidding. Don't do it in a western country.

Rollo Tomassi AMA

26 upvotes · 11 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Rollo, thanks for coming by, your work has been a huge influence in my life, as well as likely countless others. The number on our side bar- 45,000 subscribers- is a sign that men are incredibly thirsty for this information, so please keep on doing what you do!

Question time: As has been acknowledged here and there, the kindle version of your book has had some errors. Are these being fixed, and will kindle owners automatically get updated versions of the book? Thanks!

Daily Show spends entire segment making fun of woman who advocates that women marry when they are young

26 upvotes · 28 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"My boyfriend, a state school grad, writes text messages more finely crafted and coherent than her latest admonition to seek out husbands with Ivy League degrees."

You can tell she really respects him.

I'm fucking done...

26 upvotes · 20 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Dealing with women in western cultures is a risk, and should rightly be treated as a liability. Women are quickly making hiring prostitutes slightly less risky than actually having normal sex.

On locality of sexual marketplaces and the implications on game - The Double Down

26 upvotes · 14 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

So, just gotta find myself a small town girl with no cell phone..

You're new here? Welcome! Now shut up. Read this.

26 upvotes · 16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Eat a dick

Why is this working?

26 upvotes · 24 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

But the first time you do ATM and she does it like she wants to be your dirty whore, you start to really blur that line.

The Red Pill Best of 2013

26 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Best Overall Submitter: Who has submitted the best, most consistent quality content this year?

A Note on "Real" Alphas

26 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They're not robots, everybody says stupid shit every so often. But they have a much higher rate of quality posts. I stand by what I said.

Wife circumcises son after she agreed not to; "Sorry hun, you're not mad are you?"

26 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That is absolutely grounds for divorce in my book.

Woman wants her husband to make more money. Frustrated he chooses to work a job he loves and play video games in his free time (when she's not around) instead.

26 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And rationalizing the behavior.

Hamstering.

MRA=PUA=POS=DUMBMALESLUT=LULZ

26 upvotes · 19 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This post has been deleted but I wanted to comment on a few things, because I think you may have misinterpreted.

Now, as for what I believe this sub gets wrong: there are people in this sub however tend to automatically assume all woman want assholes, and although woman can be attracted to assholes, it doesn't make for a long lasting and fulfilling relationship.

Being an asshole/confident is really just one factor in the grand scheme. The red pill theory is that women want somebody of equal or higher value in the sexual marketplace. Being an asshole is one way to boost (perhaps artificially) your SMV. Being good looking is another. Being rich is another. Women all want the highest status/value mate they can get at. Confidence and a certain level of arrogance I believe is key to good game, but certainly isn't the only variable.

Many people also assume woman should be considered lower than men,

This is a common misconception. They make worse men than men do. But they make great women. Judging a woman based on a man's standards will always show women to be "lower" than men. For instance, look at the olympics. Objectively, women are actually worse at olympic sports than men. That's why we have women's competitions separate.

But that doesn't mean somehow they hold less value than men. Looking at what men are willing to do for access to a woman, it seems women hold much higher social value than men. (Male disposability and such).

A common Red Pill sentiment is that on the scale we measure men, yes, women will always come up short. But that's unfair to do. Can't judge lemons by an orange's standard. Both have a great place in cooking, but if you ask which is sweeter, the orange always wins.

that they stop aging mentally at 18

It's not that they stop aging mentally at 18, it's that they reach maturity much sooner by 18, and then based on societal pressures, often find no reason to pursue further personality development. (Why work on a sense of humor when people will like you without one?)

Ever wonder why female nerds are so cool? It's because they have hobbies and developed personalities. Of course, they did so for the same reason most men do, because they won't get by on looks alone. This isn't a man vs woman question- it's a question of economics and asking the right questions. What drives the development of certain qualities and behaviors?

that they are trying to suppress male masculinity in today's society

This is pretty self evident if you follow Jezebel.

that they shouldn't vote, that they think too illogically

The only argument ever held on women voting was regarding their lack of responsibility to what the vote entails. Men had the responsibility of conscription for the right to vote. That's actually why they lowered the voting age to 18- because men were fighting for our country without representation!

that woman can't make good leaders

Self interested women won't. Hillary won't. Here's a quote: "Women have always been the primary victims of war. Women lose their husbands, their fathers, their sons in combat. Women often have to flee from the only homes they have ever known. Women are often the refugees from conflict and sometimes, more frequently in today's warfare, victims. Women are often left with the responsibility, alone, of raising the children." -Hillary Clinton.

That doesn't mean women can't make good leaders, it's that they tend not to be. I'd vote for GirlWritesWhat any day.

that when it comes to marriages or dating the woman should be lower than the man when it comes to equality.

When it comes to marriage, the man must be in charge.... because any other setup would fail due to hypergamy. It's not like we just repeat this shit because we think it's funny. There are solid reasons behind a lot of this. Just because you can't be bothered to actually read this stuff, doesn't mean it's all to be taken on face value. If you do not lead the family, women will tend to lose respect for you. Dominance is a trait that women select for and it builds attraction. What happens when you don't have it? They get restless and divorce/consider cheating.

Not that we wouldn't love an equitable marriage, it's that without dominance it won't work. That's not us enforcing that rule. Talk to the ladies if you think that's unfair.

And more woman hating bullshit

Oh this old chestnut. Hey, get your shit straight before coming to my sub and telling me who I hate. Only thing I hate is people misrepresenting the points here.

These are things that i personally believe are far too out there and probably stems from much deep seeded hatred of woman from many users in this sub. Also, the constant woman bashing and misogyny in this sub is just fucking sad.

Your suspicions are misplaced and wrong. But you just decided to drag up the ol' misogyny word, so I have a feeling you're not long for this sub. I'll give you the benefit of the doubt. Take a look at what I wrote. Let's see if you're here to be reasonable or just here to accuse people you disagree with of misogyny and deep seeded hatred.

Interesting TwoX rationalization thread

26 upvotes · 12 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You know, there was a woman who was drugging her child and posting pictures on facebook. Everybody on reddit pointed out the disorder's name. There's a name for doing this. There is a diagnosis for a woman that does terrible things to her child.

You know what they call a man who does terrible things? An abuser.

He doesn't get a medical scapegoat.

Explain to me why there's a mental illness diagnosis for just about anything that might hold a woman culpable for her actions.

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

26 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You're an internet bully.

Says the guy who tracked me down from my userpage to a post on a different sub!

I hope you're proud of yourself.

As proud as any man who wins a game of chess against a pigeon.

Listen, I wrote out that post to explain to you where I was coming from. You didn't have to get all emotional and rage quit, you could've rebutted if you felt I was wrong.

Edit: Aww, you ninja edited your post. Come now, stand by at least something you say. Have some balls!

[Mod] Almost 3,000 Users and a message from the moderator

26 upvotes · 30 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There's nothing wrong with becoming bitter, at least at first. I think it's a normal reaction to waking up.

But if anybody really wants to grow into themselves and take control of their lives, moving past the bitterness stage will have to happen.

Sex as a weapon...losing interest

26 upvotes · 18 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Common sentiment. I'll tell you what I tell most people who first open their eyes and realize this: Women aren't men.

If you expect women to be men with tits, you'll be sorely let down by them all the time. Their lack of honor, their lack of courage. Their lack of dedication to truth, justice, or loyalty.

So the best way to deal with it is to really really understand that women are not men.

Women are women. They have different values and are not men. The best way to put it is that they're overgrown children. Obviously you wouldn't expect honor and loyalty from a child. You might be disappointed when a child steals cookies before dinner, but you're not surprised. In the same vein, be disappointed, not surprised when women violate men's rules.

When you look at women as things to trifle with, but not respect as you would a man, they become fun and actually a joy to keep around. They do what they do well. They just aren't men.

If you feel yourself hating women, it's because you're expecting them to be men.

If you have a hard time with women because they appear to be less interesting than your guy friends, or don't bring much to the table (no money, no humor, no skills) just remember: You're the man. That's what you bring. She brings the tits. She's not a man.

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/18d5ma/the_red_pill_dilemma/

FDS, and by extension, TRP, is a cult that traps you into alt-right thinking patterns. That's the thought terminating cliché they use to couch learning critical thinking skills.

25 upvotes · 29 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem with "alt-right" is that it's a loaded term invented to marginalize and demonize people who would otherwise be considered classic liberals or libertarians.

Crosspost from PPD: CMV - Every attractive young woman will have an OnlyFans account by 2030 and be entirely undateable

25 upvotes · 9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to understand how Karens kill the vitality of physical space look at what they did to that virtual one.

It's a brilliant case study.

/r/askTRP RPEC Advice AMA Megathread - Ask Away!

25 upvotes · 4 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

Get sleep, quit porn, stop drinking / drugs, get exercise.

Two points on loneliness, family, and evolutionary biology : "Suicide rates for [...] older guys have been going up for a long time[...] Younger guys can learn game and get laid (the way is hard but it can be done), while older guys without families don't have that source of meaning."

25 upvotes · 17 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think there's value in a LTR if you find a woman that meets your criteria - and that's an important caveat... too many men will sacrifice values and standards because they're thirsty as fuck. You cannot enter into a LTR until you know first how to operate in the sexual marketplace, and you know your own value in it. Or the woman will eventually walk all over you.

I also am investing time and energy into learning / deciding the best path for raising children in this clown world of ours. I don't have answers yet but I plan to update the community with what I've found and bounce ideas off others in my #raisingkids series of posts.

How to deal with knowledge that my ltr gets groped/grabbed at the club

25 upvotes · 18 April 2019 · /r/askTRP

Older you will hate what you've done to your ears.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

25 upvotes · 14 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

45.

I just want to see the world burn.

Johnnie Walker gets Woke

25 upvotes · 24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

There are some entertaining definitions on urban dictionary (which I'm surprised hasn't themselves become woke by now):

Being "Woke" is what happens when instead of taking one blue pill, you down the entire bottle.

A state of perceived intellectual superiority one gains by reading The Huffington Post.

The act of being very pretentious about how much you care about a social issue

Closure Is Bullshit

25 upvotes · 19 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Keyword... "YET"

More Silence from Reddit Administration - A Failure for Community Managers to... Manage?

25 upvotes · 29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You should try actually giving them something.

Compromising with somebody being irrational doesn't help.

"TEXT ME"

25 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I would rather just go nuclear and smack a girl on the ass and tell her to give me her number.

You better have serious rapport before attempting that move.

(Hint for onlookers: Don't slap strangers' asses)

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

25 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's written in the side bar.

Our live social media site: <https://www.trp.red>

Our archive of high-voted threads and backup forums: <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

The backup forums are currently locked (on purpose), but will be opened in the event of our moving.

I re-run the archiver every so often to grab the top posts of the year.

Marriage is BP, stop revering it.

25 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We've got safeguards in place to minimize decay, but our mods have been enjoying the holidays while the highschoolers have had extra time to post.

You should see our ban log.

Man gets his ex-GF to pay child support, and Reddit freaks out

25 upvotes · 18 July 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, anybody making the claim that breasts aren't sexual completely failed biology class when they went over secondary sexual characteristics.

Why do single mothers sabotage their children?

25 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

There are no unicorns.

The Red Pill Right

25 upvotes · 3 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the problem is that social liberals who are fiscally conservative could belong to either camp, really.

Celebrating your sexuality is wrong, having pride in who you are is wrong, you should be ashamed to be you. - SJWs #HeterosexualPrideDay

25 upvotes · 29 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

That's hilarious. That picture, too. It's weird to me how much all LGBT activists look the same. Do they join the community because they're ugly, or do they invest in ugliness after joining the community?

When Plates Collide

25 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Doesn't matter what a woman says, pre-selection always results in an attraction bump.

I think a mistake some newbies might make is believing that losing/dropping a plate is a sign that it back-fired.

In a sense, it did backfire to maintain a relationship. But if you alter your behavior to maintain the relationship, then you've failed the shit test, and lost at getting your own goals accomplished.

However, in the world of attraction, that doesn't mean it back fired. The attraction will bump, no matter what her actions or words of the moment say. Time will always tell.

women see the world as a persisting state

25 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Wow, one post in 2 years.

♂

[Meta] SJWs are reportedly working with admins to develop a stricter "no harassment" policy at Reddit. We should have an action plan in place for when TRP is banned

25 upvotes · 3 February 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's just our offsite meeting place, new forums will be either hosted or announced there.

"I'm 41, single and pregnant. Welcome to the new normal"

25 upvotes · 30 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't forget for a second that there's a beta bucks in this scenario. It's you and me, by the authority of guys with guns dressed in blue.

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

25 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Gender is a vestigial apparatus

That's a pretty bold statement.

Are men having babies now?

Are women equally attracted to men and women? Is it a 50/50 split?

Are men equally attracted to men as they are women? Why not?

Edit: Oh wait, are you suggesting that gender isn't the same as sex? I just don't even have time for that level of stupid hippie bullshit.

Woman explaining why guys land in the friend zone

25 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She has a distractingly large jaw.

Takes a minute and a half before she starts actually giving her perspective, ugh..

And then her official response is: because women need to go through assholes to find out what a nice guy is like! So just keep being you and wait!

Tits or GTFO

25 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I saw that. It's true, the blue pill is a great example of groupies. They pretend to hate us- but let's face it, they spend more time talking about us than anybody I've ever dated. I would really cash in on this, but they're likely all fat.

Mother slaps her daughter in public, police show up and kill the innocent Father. How many more men will die because of "Predominant Agressor" laws?

25 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We live in a culture where women push men to become violent- they push the boundaries and only reward those who cross the line. Basically- feminism has pushed the line so far that more and more male competition is happening on the illegal side of it. Makes it more exciting for their vaginas, and who cares about the guys who lose?

AMA With Red Pill Mods SoftHarem and RedPillSchool, ask us anything.

25 upvotes · 21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Understanding hypergamy, shit testing, and proper frame control are basically all you need to get out there.

The Red Pill Best of 2013

25 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Best Field Report: What field report demonstrated red pill ideas in the field the best?

The Red Pill Best of 2013

25 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Most Thought-Provoking Submission: What submission was really insightful and caused the best conversation to take place?

Why women lose the dating game

25 upvotes · 25 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There were only 68,000 unattached graduate men in their 30s for 88,000 single graduate women in the same age group.

Says it all.

/r/cringepics is also a hive of feminists and whiteknights.

25 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I didn't say it was about shaming, I'm saying that's the result. Any overtly masculine behaviour in society today is frowned upon by feminism, despite the fact that it is a man's right to be a fucking man.

The fact that the red pill is shamed wholesale for its existence is proof that anything masculine is frowned upon.

[Mod] New Reddit X-Link Policy - No More of that

25 upvotes · 10 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The admin have made it incredibly clear that they have no intention of actually assisting us with enforcing rules, or.. even explaining the exact rules.

Empowered woman way past the wall tries to understand why she's single. Hamstering ensues.

25 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Whenever I hear a woman throw around the "I'm strong and independent" phrase, my attraction switch instantly turns off.

Because at the end of the day, it permeates her entire attitude, her behaviors, and her decision making. She prides herself in her inability to cooperate. She's bragging about something that nobody thinks is a good quality.

So not only does she demonstrate a propensity for not cooperating, but she is proud of it. It's narcissism or something.

Either way, I agree, total and complete turn off. You can even tell that kind of woman from the look on her face- you don't even need to approach them. You already know who thinks they're better than everybody else.

Flo Rida finds out child is not his after DNA test. The woman was shaming him as a "deadbeat dad".

25 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/MensRights

It will be difficult to gain any ground on financial abortion when women are firmly attached to the paycheck, and don't care to admit there's a double standard.

http://np.reddit.com/r/AskWomen/comments/1hpnxd/what_if_mothers_could_choose_between/

The argument amounts to: My body my choice. But when the question is about his body... best interest of the child is most important.

Never mind the fact that a woman cannot both support abortion and argue that best interest of the child takes precedent.

Edit: Thinking about this, the "best interest of the child" argument is really quite bullshit. It's a misdirection enforcing female hypoagency. It's akin to saying: Women have no say in birth control, the baby just happens. We must think of the innocent child. Of course if you look beneath the thin veneer of sincerity you realize that the woman is not only just as responsible for the creation of the child, but are the only ones in power to have an effect on the outcome (women's rights). Best interest of the child is saying that women cannot be criticized for their actions because they are not agents and therefore are not responsible for the outcomes. This, of course, is the default privilege of being female. A privilege they did not shed despite winning rights over their reproduction. They want their cake (rights) and they want to eat it too (privileges associated with not having rights).

With rights should come responsibilities.

When female privilege backfires

25 upvotes · 4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Societies don't oppress women or privilege men. They do tend to treat men and women differently and exploit them in different ways. What feminism seems to be about is expanding women's rights without applying obligations, and expanding women's entitlements while freeing them from the restrictions that used to be necessary for men to fulfil them. They're about giving women the advantages of being a man without any of the costs, and removing the costs of being a woman without giving up any of the advantages.

Girl Talk: I'm A Feminist, But I Think I Want To Date A More Traditional Dude [Hamster desperately tries to explain away her "desire to feel looked after and taken care of"]

25 upvotes · 10 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As a feminist, you're doing it wrong.

Seriously, you missed the memo that basically stated the position of feminism is to demonize anything masculine.. You might not agree, but as men, we noticed the trend despite you.

Demonizing masculinity meant demonizing anything that embodied dominance- rewriting history to show that dominating = oppressive.

Why is /r/redpill hated more than /r/seduction and other PUA communities?

25 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

however, is riddled with the same faux-scientific terminology

Where there is scientific study, we post it. Where there isn't, we must rely on experience. It's not as though this was a well trodden path we're on. Some of this stuff is too politically incorrect to even study properly.

I think you're being overly dismissive. I suggest you dissent when you see these alleged activities take place.

I remember my favorite shit test...

25 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That was the shit test.. and you failed it.

Agree and amplify.

"Where I come from, the lady buys me a drink!"

User /u/J2501 suggests that women should be more proactive in dating, and pay on dates- is immediately torn apart and shamed repeatedly by others, without missing a beat.

25 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

It's worth noting that the entire thread is people shaming him and making public outcries that he can't possibly be effective in the dating world or good with girls because he's a number of different things : immature, stupid, bitter, evil, sociopathic, you name it!

Really reading these comments, you see just how violently opposed these people really are towards what amounts to red pill theory, and even if he were wrong, these people won't even give him the option of a fair fight because they're too busy making sure to stifle his opinion with downvotes and insults..

This is our opposition, folks. This is the commoner. This is the plugged in. They are so angry at the information itself, they can't even take a step back, consider the idea for long enough to form a coherent argument against it.

They're just so angry they can't do it!

Imagine if you told me that the sky is green. If I am so very convinced that you're wrong, I should be able to hold off my ad hominem attacks for a little to at least make a coherent point about the light spectrum and how the sky is actually observably blue a majority of the time.

Instead, these people employ an argument that amounts to little more than name calling.

http://www.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/1dc47d/my_advice_to_women/

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

25 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is the most useless thing I hear regularly.

Divorce raped your wallet and you ended up poor and lonely? Well don't marry that sort of girl! Problem solved!

And while you're at it, if you are sick, my advice to you is stop getting sick!

What on Earth is r/TheRedPill?

25 upvotes · 9 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

I'm the head moderator there, and I'm happy to discuss exactly what happened.

First let's talk about spousal rape, to get that out of the way.

Of course the problem is we'd never advocate raping a woman. The reason why our member was arguing that spousal rape isn't real is simple: Based on the contracts that made marriage a thing back in the day- spousal rape really couldn't exist.

Obviously in today's legal atmosphere, spousal rape does exist in the legal sense, which is one of the core reasons we feel that marriage in itself has lost meaning.

As a man, and I think I speak for the majority on the sub, I would not want to be with a woman who didn't enjoy my advances. I would not advocate sex with a woman who did not want to have sex with you. I would, however, advocate divorce if your wife withheld sex from you, as it is a break in the contract.

We could have the conversation for hours, and it's a purely theoretical debate. There are a number of men who believe if you build enough attraction, things like withdrawing sex never even crosses your wife's mind.

At the end of the day, the question is asked: Is spousal rape a thing? You have to consider what men and women brought to the table of marriage. Men would bring provisions, women would bring a womb. Men are not let out of their obligations from marriage- in divorce, many men are brought to the cleaners. Men today are still expected to earn and provide. But women have found a way to renege on the only feature they brought to the marriage: the womb and access to it.

We could argue over personal rights and what the difference between right to sex vs right to labor is, but I feel that's a topic that won't usually get anywhere. To say the least, if women renege on the access to womb, then the marriage contract concept is broken in and of itself and can no longer be taken seriously.

Now regarding how we ban users.

We get about 30 new trolls a day that usually take the roll of the white knight. They mischaracterize our position and then argue against it. Things like "treat her right, you misogynists!"

Obviously if you mischaracterize our position as not treating women in a way they enjoy, you can argue that we're misogynists. But that's a core disagreement that women don't like men who have good game. (In our experience, they do).

The shaming language our trolls normally use subverts open discussion and sidesteps logic or reason. Our common trolls are not here to discuss what I wrote above, they're here to detract from conversation and shame us. They are so hurt, their emotions so rampant, that no real discussion can take place.

We get enough of them that the only way to deal with them is to quickly ban and move on.

I'm sorry that I didn't leave a message, but he/she must understand that he/she wasn't being constructive in the least.

Unlike subs like srs or twox, we allow dissenting views if presented logically and sans ad hominem attacks.

I welcome anybody curious about our standpoints to come over and join the discussion.

Most of the complaints you've heard about our sub are mischaracterizations and sensationalized rubbish regarding misogyny and rape. Of course, here on Men's Rights, you can understand being mislabeled, since they say the same about you too.

Public disdain for nice guys, the latest ploy in the feminine imperative's handbook

25 upvotes · 2 April 2013 · /r/askTRP

Nice guys can be all of those things, and still never get a woman wet. You've described the perfect beta.

Reddit's Victim Complex: The Reddit panel at SXSW went terribly wrong. A powerful site struggles with introspection (trigger alert for stupidity)

25 upvotes · 9 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

I run a pretty unpopular sub for men, and it's gotten mostly feminist attention. Without getting into whether or not our views are good or bad, I will say this- unequivocally, not one feminist cared to debate the issues we discuss, and instead they hurl insults and mischaracterize us, and hope we get shut down.

So somebody from our sub asked askmen and askwomen respectively how they would deal with a subreddit they disagree with if they "had the unilateral ability to delete a sub they disagreed with, would they use it?" Without directly referencing any specific subs.

AskMen said mostly no, free speech, "if we know where they are we can keep track of them.." etc.

AskWomen deleted the question.

Just in case people missed out on the story of Bridezilla. (X-Post SRSsucks)

25 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

And no doubt, that's a man. She would never admit to wanting that sort of man, but that's the type of man who gets ladies. Heck, that's the kind of man I aspire to be.

New Netflix movie coming out about how evil the manosphere is. Big surprise, we turn boys into monsters! It takes place in the UK where a SWAT team of 30 fully geared up dudes go to arrest a teen boy for posting online. Fuckin UK

24 upvotes · 28 February 2025 · /r/TheRedPill

If being a good person isn't required

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so insured, and so hopelessly dependent on the system, that they will fight to protect it."

What does it mean to be a "good man?"

Can you explain it to me without framing it in a context that solely benefits others (women / society / etc)?

Can a man decide what is good absent the context of society?

You might be wondering why I just made a big stink about the phrase "good person." The reason is simple: that is a controlling term that's used to hijack the male psyche into serving others.

The very idea that serving one's own interests is bad and that the only way to be a "good person" is making sure that your own interests come last?

Are all players held to this standard? Are women held to this standard? Think these questions through. Really, do it.

Have looks standards for the early 20s and below gone WAY up

24 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Not to mention the prevalence and availability of photoshop.

It's Not Your Job to Unpack Her Desires- "The red pill community, no matter how right, simply doesn't have the resources to counter the trillions of dollars and the trillions of hours and the decades of years that have been invested brainwashing today's women into being non-women"

24 upvotes · 26 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Living in denial has major costs and consequences, namely psychological damage. And you can see this in the contradictory (and what I can only assume to be "maddening") behaviors of women.

For example the party girl who goes out partying with her girlfriends, has her bitchshields up, rejects the advances of nearly every man to get an arrogance-high...but then cries herself to sleep at night because she can't find a man.

Though I'm not entirely convinced he's got the cause and effect right on the bitchshield at clubs- he's definitely re-discovering what we've known for a long time. Feminism is tricking women into wasting their best years.

Nicolas Cage's wife is suing him for spousal support after 4-day marriage

24 upvotes · 24 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Do get a LTR, do have children, raise them well, don't get married.

This precisely.

Losing control of the narrative. - "Having it all means the woman gets her feminist merit badge AND freely spends her sexual capital during her most attractive and marriageable years."

24 upvotes · 26 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It seems pretty incel to act as if sexual capital is a resource that can be depleted.

So you must have an answer to why 100 year old great grandmothers aren't snagging 20 year old guys.

There's a discrepancy here but I can't quite put my finger on it.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

24 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, until it wasn't.

For some of us (myself included) we had some natural gifts that made us successful with women, but still fell for the (now obvious) traps that sunk the ship.

One might think that you have to fail before you can succeed because that failure is knowledge on how to succeed. But I'm not sure I'd ever get as far as I am today without TRP.

"She's not yours, it's just your turn": a defeatist cuck mantra for losers

24 upvotes · 8 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Therein lies the issue of debating semantics of an abstraction.

The reality is these cute little phrases are nothing more than mental shortcuts to demonstrate and assist with keeping the correct frame of mind.

Men dropping out of society

24 upvotes · 11 December 2018 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Men have their failings too- the Obesity epidemic is not good on either side. Men tend to be more overweight, but women are a majority of the obese.

That in mind, I believe fat women still have more options than fat men.

But it did shrink the available pool of sexy people considerably.

Removing Power From Men : Mom Says 6-Year-Old Son Is Transgender. Dad Disagrees. Now He Might Lose His Son.

24 upvotes · 29 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

He performed all sorts of weird experiments on the kid and his brother,

That's putting it lightly. He made them watch porn. He made them get naked and inspect each others' bodies. He made them simulate sexual positions.

It was straight up child abuse.

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

24 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

+1

A Clarification on Rule 6: No examples from fiction or lyrics.

24 upvotes · 30 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Have you read the sidebar?

The Red Pill: Discussion of sexual strategy in a culture increasingly lacking a positive identity for men.

Straight Men Will Soon Be Called Homophobic For Not Sleeping With Gays And Trannies

24 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The subtle social manipulation will simply aim the gun at anybody who doesn't like the movie. The movie's failure at the box office will be due to a new, rampant anti-trans hatred movement sweeping our country and we need legislation to control it.

Participating in hetero marriages and relationships will become a threat to those who are not.

If you think this is absurd, just remember that 10 years ago, being white wasn't considered a threat on its own. Now look. Simply being white is a crime.

Remember when being a man was okay?

THE BEST OF RATIONAL MALE – YEARS ONE/TWO/THREE (If you haven't read this yet, do it now.)

24 upvotes · 25 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup.

Hi I'm Mike Cernovich, author and filmmaker. Ask me anything!

24 upvotes · 3 November 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi Mike, thanks for stopping by. My question is this: how do you see men's interests shaping and changing future elections after what we've seen here this year? Do you think appealing to men (rather than women) is going to become more necessary ?

I'm Rollo Tomassi, Ask Me Anything

24 upvotes · 27 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

She knew the name would bring controversy as well, thanks namely to our hard work here.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

24 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a security clearance.

I hope you're taking appropriate precautions with your activity here!

TRP.RED Live-update thread for the US presidential debate: #FirstDebate

24 upvotes · 27 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a very common liberal debate tactic: outrage and indignation.

Common arguments are:

- Really?
- Do you hear what you just said?
- It's [current year]...
- I'm not even going to touch this one...

Hillary's Top Donor Just Bought The Onion — Started Publishing Propaganda Immediately

24 upvotes · 19 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I want you to know, your comment was removed, not because of the Jew comment, but because of concern trolling.

The Empress is Naked

24 upvotes · 9 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The fact remains, if men are willing to screw almost anybody at the drop of a hat, but women are discerning and will wait months until the right guy comes knocking... one of them has a weaker sex drive.

Final Warning: Keep Your Damn Morals To Yourself

24 upvotes · 21 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm pretty sure we set up the sub not to show up in the /r/all listing.

100,000

24 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for not letting what happened to the seduction subreddit happen here.

You're welcome! And yes, that has been our main driving factor- avoid that demise!

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

24 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Credits:

Game Conception:

/u/trudatness

Authors

/u/trudatness

/u/softharem

/u/Brown_Piper

/u/redpillschool

Re: Censorship on the current drama

24 upvotes · 20 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As you know, we're a politically incorrect sub that needs nothing more than a broken rule for the admin to have a plausible excuse to shut us down.

If you could add one article to the sidebar, what would it be?

24 upvotes · 21 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll eat a fucking hat before cracked ends up in my sidebar.

The ambiguous reality of The Red Pill.

24 upvotes · 11 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Anger is a natural response to this large of a worldview change.

Update: Polyamory Failure Lets Wife Fuck Other Men... The Gruesome Aftermath

24 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Perfect example of BRiffault's Law, in fact.

Recapped for anybody interested:

This has been posted a few times, and comes up in comments a lot, but we've got a lot of new users here...

BRIFFAULT'S LAW:

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

There are a few corollaries I would add:

- Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.
- Any agreement where the male provides a current benefit in return for a promise of future association is null and void as soon as the male has provided the benefit (see corollary 1)
- A promise of future benefit has limited influence on current/future association, with the influence inversely proportionate to the length of time until the benefit will be given and directly proportionate to the degree to which the female trusts the male (which is not bloody likely).

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1anu3q/briffaults_law/

Δ

Treating Women Like Children

24 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree entirely. It's not something you can just point to a study and show, but it's something that collectively, I think most men notice in their lifetimes. Women act without consideration for consequence. Well- let me rephrase, women act without consequence so often, that women act without consideration for it.

That's why you have the wild-and-loose stereotype of a girl who wants to go do bad things for a rush- like get into trouble, or break in somewhere, or do something you're not supposed to do. She tells her somewhat-beta date that they should sneak into that building over there, and he goes "I don't know... maybe we shouldn't."

She calls him a pussy so he goes for it.

We have a culture of women who push men across the line for nothing more than gina tingles. That's what it is. They want a guy who brazenly cross the line, who aren't afraid of risk. And since if this hypothetical couple got caught- it would be the man who gets in trouble, she has nothing to lose. So she pushes, and so women push.

Edit: This is a good recap on this from ROK a while back:

<http://www.returnofkings.com/2090/how-black-america-has-predicted-our-future>

Do Men Interpret Women's Tattoos As A Sign Of Promiscuity?

24 upvotes · 20 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Risk seeking behavior. It subtly signals that hey make permanent decisions, which are more risk seeking than averse.

Women prefer men who are risk seeking, which is why they like men with tattoos. "Men with tattoos are hot.

Naturally they solipsitically believe what they find hot is hot, and they go get their own. I prefer women without tattoos.

Fear to greed. "women delaying marriage are playing a collective game of chicken in order to avoid wasting any more of their youth and fertility on their husbands than absolutely necessary."

24 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Spinning plates and surrogacy don't really solve the family issue. I would want my kids to have a mother.
Offshore countries is a stopgap.

Fear to greed. "women delaying marriage are playing a collective game of chicken in order to avoid wasting any more of their youth and fertility on their husbands than absolutely necessary."

24 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Agreed that marriage is a bad idea. But it hasn't always been, and the purpose it served hasn't disappeared as a need for many men. Realistically, we will need to address this with something more than just a strike.

A Note on "Real" Alphas

24 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree.

field report monday

24 upvotes · 7 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Said I love you to the woman of my dreams, bent down on one knee and gave her the most expensive thing I've ever purchased. She deserves it. We will have a long beautiful life together.

The No True Alpha Fallacy

24 upvotes · 11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, this says it all.

I made this point yesterday somewhere too. Alpha and Beta are being used to describe "my ultimate vision of super-me" instead of what it really means. Attractive sexual traits vs less attractive provider traits.

Divorce is happening

24 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm being incredibly beta right now. I'm not alpha.

Don't worry about this stuff, it's more about attracting mates. Right now you're doing good for yourself. That's all that matters right now.

What is the evolutionary reason for female jealousy in relationships?

24 upvotes · 2 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The innate jealousy is based on the likelihood that more kids will mean less provisions.

How TRP handles girlfriends demanding to go on dates with their male friends?

24 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Abundance mentality means putting your money where your mouth is.

YOU ARE BEING LIED TO. The Content You See Here is Selectively Edited by SJWs to Prevent You From Taking The Red Pill.

23 upvotes · 28 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP.RED is an activity feed much like twitter and it does take some getting used to. However we've been working closely with the community to tweak it over time to get a good, easy to use interface for what it is.

We still have reddit-style forums, including a full backup of TRP, at <https://www.forums.red>

Reddit Anti-Evil Operations Decidedly Evil as They Remove Pro-Equality Post from TRP

23 upvotes · 10 February 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

But yea, you mods are on the Titanic trying to pump out salt water and we're all here playing Nearer My God to Thee.

Actually, we're on the RMS Carpathia, and we're here to get you to safety: <https://www.trp.red> :)

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

23 upvotes · 26 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

This place saved me. It can save other men, but not if they censor it.

Empowering young men threatens the status quo.

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

23 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We have told you everything they have told us. That is it.

Using Your Cash To Maximize Muscle Mass

23 upvotes · 6 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As long as you're using that George Foreman grill to collect grease for a topping. Don't throw out that fat!

Unmarried 35-year-old woman reflects on her adventurous life of fun & travel : "This woman's .. life plan is that she chose whatever made her feel good from age 18-35+, and now wants to enter into a marriage..."

23 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I know, it sounds crazy...

Discussion: Do you want children? What is the best way to have children?

23 upvotes · 4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As I understand it, nothing can prevent a devious woman from stealing your children with the help of the family courts. As for assets, prenups are about pre-marital assets. I don't think you're ever protected in full unless you don't get married.

Become the Prize

23 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The problem is there are guys who are doing these things not for themselves but for the ladies.

Why does anybody do anything? It's to get at your goals. Fucking women is not a stupid goal. In fact, I'd say it's a necessary step in Maslow's hierarchy.

What is fulfilling is becoming the best version of yourself.

No offense, but this is a dumb platitude. What does "Best version of yourself" even mean? You need to have a measuring stick to measure "best."

Does best mean healthiest regardless of sexual life?

Does best mean happiest?

Does best mean sex life at the cost of health?

What does best mean?

This "do it for you" eat-pray-love bullshit is pointless and needlessly ambiguous.

There's no shame in knowing that you life weights and work hard to get better social standing, career choices, and women. Why lie to yourself?

Feminists want to kill Toni Harris

23 upvotes · 5 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Two-Hand-Touch Football. Upper Backs only.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

23 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Politely jerking off and hooking up with their college roommates until it's time to support a woman and father a few kids with her.

In this dystopian future, we all support her kids via bachelor taxes. Mark my fucking words.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

23 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

The best way to show support is to make sure they don't chop off body parts.

And to acknowledge that it is a mental illness, and no amount of body modification will actually make gender dysphoria go away.

It's absolutely insane to expect the public at large to start referring to people as attack helicopters because the APA doesn't want to try therapy.

*ALERT A Firefox & Chrome add-on was created to target and harass this sub and identified this a "hate sub"

23 upvotes · 13 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Discord has SJW admin. They leak private chats.

A Family Man Experiences the Light-Switch, Loses Everything, Baffled that the Rules Don't Apply

23 upvotes · 20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Red pill = Seeing past one's ego and worldview to realize an objective truth, no matter how counter-intuitive or politically incorrect.

Blue pill = plugged into the matrix, buy everything at face value. Everybody is special and no trends exist.

All the other colors are dumb by people trying to co-opt a brand to serve their own purposes.

A Family Man Experiences the Light-Switch, Loses Everything, Baffled that the Rules Don't Apply

23 upvotes · 20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If there was an upside to the risk, that's one thing. But there literally isn't one benefit you get from marriage worth the risk.

Marriage is BP, stop revering it.

23 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriage adds a Threatpoint to your relationship.

Sure, you can brag that your "marriage" is still going because you're like alpha++... but that's like saying you shot a hole in your boat and you're proud that you're able to scoop water out fast enough that you haven't sank yet.

The world's oldest profession is still alive and well...

23 upvotes · 21 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

It makes no sense. If you want porn, porn already exists.

What are these guys waiting around for?

The world's oldest profession is still alive and well...

23 upvotes · 21 December 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, believing there's a magical soul inside is the misnomer here.

You are nothing but a collection of your actions.

Building Power – 200,000+ Subscribers, A New Direction

23 upvotes · 6 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

We have a backup on trp.red primed and ready for when it might be necessary. But we have no immediate plans unless reddit admin threaten to close us down.

A Call of Duty Warrior's Guide To Hard and Soft Power

23 upvotes · 24 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Whenever a person delivers an ultimatum, always understand that this is a declaration of powerlessness.

<https://therationalmale.com/2012/05/07/ultimatum/>

What would be your reaction if 90% of men in society absolutely refused to get married?

23 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

that's the opposite of the actual trends. the upper class is marrying at rates similar to those 40-50 years ago, albeit at older ages, and keeping their wealth consolidated. the working and lower class have seen their marriage and productivity rates plummet. I wouldn't call the upper class "gamma/omega."

Mind you this isn't exactly an endorsement of marriage. Rich people are not immune to being fucked (just look at Elon Musk). Marriage is a bad deal for all (men) involved. Getting married won't make you upper class, nor will avoiding marriage make you a lower class.

I think there's a pervasive last-ditch effort going around trying to convince guys that marriage is only for the best of the best (and therefore you must indulge in marriage to be the best of the best).

But most of us are already wary of the tricks being used to trick us into taking a bad deal like marriage.

Women Do Not Want Your Love

23 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I actually think it would be pretty hard to remain ignorant after having been exposed to the truth. After you know it, you just see it everywhere.

Some kiddos get the pill stuck in their throat and whine on subs like ex-redpill about how they were suckered into believing a false reality but now they've escaped it.

You don't swallow the red pill and then change your mind. They never understood it to begin with.

The "She's trying to put me on a leash" thread

23 upvotes · 8 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

This sort of post belongs in AskTRP, not the main sub.

I agree with this. I am going to make an exception here because we don't see a lot of LTR discussion on the main front page, but generally speaking, individualized advice needs to go into asktrp.

Lessons from a borderline woman - pt 1 confirmation of TRP truths and red flags of a BPD woman.

23 upvotes · 4 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

They're very intense at first. Almost too good to be true. You have a blast, feel a deep connection with them.

And then the gaslighting and arguments happen. And you're always going to be wrong. You don't win. You'll hear "Always" and "Never" Statements.

You will work hard to detach. But she will try to weedle back into your life (Hoovering) at every turn. Don't let her back in, no matter how changed she appears, or how good it feels. She will use sex to trick you. Don't let it.

[Mod] Announcing a new platform: www.TRP.red

23 upvotes · 4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It asks for an age but a birthdate would be so much better so I don't have to update my age every year.

We wanted it open ended so people could put vague answers, such as "late twenties." We don't want you to sacrifice personally identifying information.

A mother who left her sick, three-month-old baby alone to die while she had a whiskey fuelled sex marathon with a man she met at a bus stop has avoided jail.

23 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Two of the three don't even involve a child dying. But yes, way worse.

What's your point? When a woman lets a child die, it's not as bad as when men do it!

Another reason why you should go for the girl in the library

23 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No vagina is safe from alpha cock. No exceptions

Precisely.

The girl who tells you she needs to be comfortable and wants a relationship first is the same girl who fucked the hot guy in the foam cannon party in Cancun on spring break just half an hour after meeting him.

All women can be sluts, you just have to be the right guy to bring it out in them

<http://therationalmale.com/2011/09/23/wait-for-it/>

Yeah we definitely have a SJW down vote brigade problem

23 upvotes · 9 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

I know some people do it, but voting on the name and not the content is the lowest of anti-intellectual nonsense.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

23 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I wonder what would've happened with gasp a male ceo?

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

23 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think perhaps, yes.

Final Warning: Keep Your Damn Morals To Yourself

23 upvotes · 21 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

positive = beneficial.

[XPost] Stood up to my wife, she submitted, but now I feel bad.

23 upvotes · 29 December 2014 · /r/askTRP

There was nothing wrong with morning calls. It's not a bad thing to actually like each other.

Stop being afraid of offending people.

23 upvotes · 11 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Just wanted to chime in and point out that Scymnus is using alpha properly.

Alpha is not synonymous with role model, never has been.

My False Rape Experience

23 upvotes · 5 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

How did she get semen between getting caught by her mom and the next day?

Is TRP falsifiable?

23 upvotes · 1 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Go out, approach women. If TRP doesn't work for you, do something else.

#womenagainstfeminism is an illusion

23 upvotes · 1 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Anybody hear if Kony was elected in 2012?

Ex-girlfriend tried conditioning me into her personal beta-orbiter

23 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

"Wow, is that it?!", "This relationship must really not mean a lot to you huh?".

Got to love this form of mental gymnastics and abuse- create a situation and then act like you didn't care when you rightfully walk away from the situation.

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

23 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You can disagree without breaking the rules. Feel free to disagree with points in a respectful manner all you want.

Calling "Women, the most responsible teenager in the house" misogynistic is a pointless thought-terminating cliché, and it doesn't bring anything new to the table. It would be in violation of the rules to just call it "misogynistic." Instead, refute the points made.

There's a reason I keep it in the sidebar. Not everything is meant to be taken word-for-word. They're meant to start you thinking in the right direction.

On basic GAME, PICKUP, and the direction of TheRedPill, RULES REVISITED 4/2014

23 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It always has been, but I'm re-emphasizing it before this place turns into "10 tips to be hot, number 3 will surprise you!!"

This is in /r/askreddit right now. Jesus fucking christ.

23 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Unless that hobby is horses. Then they're obsessed. All or nothing with these chicks.

On locality of sexual marketplaces and the implications on game - The Double Down

23 upvotes · 14 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Very apt analysis. Thanks for this.

So the question is, is this all western women due to technology or are we seeing local pockets of overly validated women?

Why Women Can't Give Dating Advice to Men

23 upvotes · 7 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Very good perspective.

AMA With Red Pill Mods SoftHarem and RedPillSchool, ask us anything.

23 upvotes · 21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I started working out just around the time I got involved in this sub, which is probably why you never see me giving out fitness advice and defer to more knowledgeable users. I'm benching 150/12ish at this point, and around 225/12 squatting.

I started learning about game about three years ago, really ramped up my game two years ago, and now consider most game attitudes second nature at this point. Swallowing the red pill over the past two years really helped me internalize and understand what was going on.

Best advice I ever received was back in my blue pill days, a friend of mine was getting divorce raped and he said to me, "never ever get married. I don't care how much you love her, there's no reason to get the state involved. This is what happens when the state gets involved."

I put it on the back burner and kinda heeded his advice for a while, until eventually the red pill came along and put it into context for me.

A woman has an RP insight at a Jewish dating site, all the comments and responses are BP harassment.

23 upvotes · 10 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Intimidating" is the Hamster term for when a woman is actually combative, passive aggressive, and goes into temper tantrums when she doesn't get the attention she wants.

Exactly. Bitch, I'm not intimidated, I'm turned off.

Someone asks r/AskWomen what they would think if a man referred to banging them as an "accomplishment." Hamsters! Hamsters everywhere!

23 upvotes · 25 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The fact that he was backpedalling may mean he realized that that's not an appropriate way to think of a partner.

..

he realized that that's not an appropriate way to think

..

not an appropriate way to think

There is a right way and a wrong way to think. Guess who defines the right way.

Asked a girl for a cigarette, she asked me for a joke, I had nothing - what are some good responses to this situation?

23 upvotes · 24 July 2013 · /r/becomeaman

"Here's a joke, guy goes to a bar, tries to bum a cigarette and gets himself trapped in a joke with no way out.. "

Is The Red Pill compatible with Liberalism?

23 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The red pill as the truth it stands for has no necessity or designation for compatibility. The question is, does liberalism have any room for truth?

On one side, liberalism isn't a belief system per se, but instead a manifesto of actions intended to be taken based on a common belief system.

It's pretty commonly accepted that people tend to become more "conservative" with age/maturity.

I'd argue anybody who is liberal likely believes they are right because they have observed the world. Nobody holds a belief system they believe to be wrong, that's the point of a belief system.

So, yes, I think open-minded liberals may find truth here and come to terms with it. I also think that the process of swallowing the pill has a way of making people more conservative, or at least shed childish ideals from any political platform.

The question is misleading. It's not is the red pill compatible with the liberalism, the question is: is any ideology compatible with the red pill if the red pill purports to be evidence based truth? or more aptly are liberals more likely to be open minded enough to accept the red pill?

This kid has no clue that his dad isn't his dad. (Sorry, couldn't help myself, this is unbelievable.)

23 upvotes · 23 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I've had a personal brigade for months.

You know, if the haters ignored me, I'd think, gosh, maybe I'm wrong. But the more attention I get- the stronger I grow. More haters means I'm on to something. I've never found a stark lie that people weren't violent about protecting. Think about our current dieting culture and the low-fat craze. Turns out that was all bullshit too.

Alpha pumped and dumped girl. Girl dates beta that treats her wonderfully. Girl misses alpha.

23 upvotes · 16 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it's important to have a distinction between shithead manipulators and alphas.

Your morality won't stop me from getting laid while you sit on the sidelines.

This subreddit needs better modding and GOOD advice.

23 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/seduction

I made a logical argument, and you just had what amounts to a temper tantrum.

This subreddit needs better modding and GOOD advice.

23 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/seduction

No, I oppose the terminology around here because it's dehumanizing

The object of seddit is to have sex. For some, it's to find a new girlfriend, while others it's to have multiple sex partners. To each his own, sure. But saying it's dehumanizing.. come now. We enjoy women. Trying to tell us that maximizing our strategy and using our own nomenclature is devaluing them as people- well that's just what a feminist would say. See, the thing is, in the real world, I doubt many people here talk like that. But on seddit, it's a sub dedicated to fucking. We'll use whatever words we want whether or not it offends somebody, keep your judgement to yourself.

and very obviously creepy.

Creep is a word that women use to shame men into submission whenever they feel even a little uncomfortable. (or not, sometimes they abuse it).

You coming here and using it in a space dedicated to men learning how to seduce? Uncalled for.

It does, in fact, create a separation in one's mind between women as people and women as statistics in a numbers game.

And what of it? Some guys like counting. Why are you trying to pass your moral judgement on us for enjoying sex with many partners?

Beyond that, it's just plain unnecessary. "Pretty girl" works just as well as "HB8" or whatever the fuck

Not at all. Knowing the rating is important. In the sexual marketplace, somebody's relative attractiveness both affects the game you should be using, and explains the field report and her reactions.

I'm not a fan of esoteric abbreviations in general, but HB8 is as good as any.

I can guarantee you that the vast majority of women who see the terminology the PUA community uses think it's fucking creepy and weird, and that right there is a perfect excuse not to use it.

Why does it matter what women think of reddit? Why should a group of guys learning how to be successful change everything about themselves so women's sensibilities aren't offended? That's absurd. Men will chat how they see fit- stop trying to modify our speech to satisfy feminists!

Bullshit. You should care. Because other people are your only gauge for determining what is socially acceptable. You can not give a fuck all you want, but if you're a creep, women still won't want to fuck you.

You've conflated shop talk with the actual activity or seduction. You know full well that you wouldn't go up to a girl and say "I'm learning seduction, check out this pickup line I learned!"

You're either trolling or new here. Either way, lurk son.

Why are we not a cult?

23 upvotes · 9 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I use the sexometer.

My old habits = zero sex.

My new habits = a lot of sex.

If my sex levels start to decline, I will adjust accordingly.

No More Andrew Tate Shit

22 upvotes · 6 January 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

fixed

This sub is being plagued with feminists/chodes, it's clear as day.

22 upvotes · 23 August 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't know much about Tate, and I assume he's a dickwad. But something on his website I found funny. He said (paraphrased) "I get these women to fall so deeply in love with me that I can make them do anything. And regardless of whether you agree with me about whether I should, it doesn't change the fact that these women do more for me than 99% of women do for their own husbands."

It's gotta burn a dude with a dead bedroom watching this internet hate machine still get chicks.

He's breaking all the rules, why is it working for him?

For most, this line of cognitive dissonance will end with "well he's a jerk, fuck em." As they go back to their mundane, pitiful, sexless lives, assuming they're living a better life than this guy.

The Great Reddit Exodus

22 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Both sidebars are there. If you're on desktop it's under "Sidebar" on the right. If you're on mobile, click the button in the top right that looks like a sidebar to access it.

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

22 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Whether women can tell you or not is irrelevant. The truth always leaks out through behaviors.

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

22 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

At the moment forums.red isn't ready for the traffic. But soon it may be.

Nicolas Cage's wife is suing him for spousal support after 4-day marriage

22 upvotes · 24 April 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree it's a tricky sell, but it's a blessing in disguise. Some of the women who push the hardest for marriage are vying for the control it brings. See my post: Threatpoint created the puerarchy.

If you find a woman who would agree that you're the captain with or without a marriage license, you're in much better shape.

Women can get bored and leave for any reason, nothing will protect you from this. But keeping yourselves on more equal footing (i.e. without marriage) will give the relationship a bit of natural, healthy dread, and might actually prevent an otherwise early destruction.

But you should also get used to the idea that a LTR may not be forever despite the best of intentions. It's just part of the risk of having kids.

I usually bring up the no-marriage topic very early on when I meet women. You'd be surprised how many aren't that bothered.

Keep an eye on my recent and new posts. I'm starting a series on raising children from a red pill perspective.

NASA is unable to launch the all women spacewalk due to many technical constraints, and the only thing that matters to society is that women were barred.

22 upvotes · 28 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Then women complain there aren't enough women, and somehow this is all the men's fault rather than the women's fault for not turning up.

Oh they complain about everything once they're there.

Hey this boys club we just invaded has events that are well suited for boys, we need to change that. The language here isn't to our liking, we need to change that.

Next thing you know, gyms have women-only workout rooms, the boy scouts becomes the scouts and their top merit badge is having feelings, male sports get cancelled, and cigar clubs have language restrictions.

If Not Men, Then What? - "the biggest con in human history was convincing women that working, commuting, and paying taxes was fun."

22 upvotes · 8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

had to stay in abusive marriages as they couldn't work. It's bad for them and the children.

Either all women were abused, in which case men and women shouldn't even be on the same planet (the feminist theory), or that's a total crock of shit and the number of "abused" women was not significant and women should pick their husbands better.

Also, I'll remind you that through the vast majority of American history, women could have jobs. The issue was that you had to choose between family or career, and the complaint today is culture has shifted to convince women that either career is more important or the myth that you can have it all.

Women will prove AWALT out of nowhere.

22 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

He's in rough shape and you make a 3 paragraph graphic fucking porno to highlight that she's gonna slut it up.
Read the room dude.

Women will prove AWALT out of nowhere.

22 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

women arent selfish enough

I love it.

"What's the right amount of selfish?" Watch her hamster go into overdrive.

Grass is Green: Tattoos Are A Slut Tell

22 upvotes · 29 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

in fact every woman I've seen with ink looks worse

Agreed. It's like facial piercings. I always think.. "oh man, she could've been really hot. But nah"

Remove the Man 2019

22 upvotes · 11 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We've gone from treating women as defective men

I don't think we did though.

We didn't put them on the front lines and get mad when they failed at basic tasks. We understood they were to be sheltered from the harsh realities of war.

We treated them as the fairer sex.

Now the fairer sex wears shoulder pads and fancies themselves as firemen.

Quarantine What Does It Mean?

22 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Our first priority is that the community remains. The second priority is that it remains here.

No More Jordan Peterson Shit.

22 upvotes · 18 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh no, hyperbole. The common sperg's only weakness!

Wow. Female contestants of reality TV shows such as Love Island regret their decisions. Who knew!?

22 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure, but this is true of all humans - not just women - in a wide variety of situations, including work, parenting, school, crime and so on.

So...upvote away, but it's not really "RP Truth." It's just "truth."

I don't regret getting caught having sex.

Pickup Artists are psychopathic.

22 upvotes · 29 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Those were the days.

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

22 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Our next topic is building power.

New posts are restricted for the day. Comments are open.

22 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Hold on to it. If you still think it's worth posting after I reopen posting, go for it.

The Red Pill App

22 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, this has nothing to do with Trump, other than the attack vector being used against them is used against us. "the enemy of my enemy"

Addiction is not holding frame.

22 upvotes · 3 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the theory goes like this:

If the shortcut leads you to a quick reward, it will dissuade you from putting in the work for the bigger rewards.

The question is whether the bigger rewards are actually more pleasurable. In the world of addiction, I think the biggest problem is that the short-term quick rewards start to be unsustainable but it still de-motivates you from achieving larger goals, and thus you get into the slump of addiction: You want to quit but you can't.

Why do single mothers sabotage their children?

22 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

That's not very constructive. Obviously the easiest solution is to never have sex again. But what of those who take the plunge?

Of course we could have a constructive conversation about that.

All Women Lie About Rape - Part Two

22 upvotes · 21 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The definition (and implication) of sexual assault is very different to women than it is to men.

You've jumped ahead on my next part- so I'll address this one then.

There is a 20/80 rule functioning here too.

Obviously, as I've pointed out, the number of criminals are very slim compared to the larger population. However, we don't have the same outrage about most people being murdered - there are no "do not murder" courses before you're allowed to start your freshman year of college.

My point still remains that if the very small number of men who are committing these crimes have managed to affect half of all women, then this small number of men must be very, very busy and have managed to get half of the women they know into a private place to commit such crimes. Unless, as you say, they do it in public. In which case, my original point stands- no matter how few people there are committing the crime, if it happens in public at a rate that affects 50% of women, then we'd be witnessing it.

In fact, it's the very basis of the feminist "rape culture" dogma. That we do see it daily and just do nothing about it because we expect assault and rape to be normal in our culture. It's also nonsense. If a man gropes somebody on the bus- and it does happen- that man doesn't usually walk off the bus, thanks to other men.

A rapist/sexual abuser is not easily identifiable

Obviously if we could identify all criminals before they commit crimes, we wouldn't have a crime problem to begin with. But you yourself have admitted you got to know somebody who was a rapist. So, they're identifiable to a degree. I suppose my question would be why you didn't help those women lock him up after rape number one? Or maybe you did. I would hope so.

But I think you missed the subtlety of my point. I don't suspect you're going to know if the weird guy down the road is just weird, or is going to lock up, rape, and murder young women. We're not psychic. But that guy needs to find women. And there needs to be enough of him to hit 50% of the female population. OR we follow the suggestion of feminists that it's all men committing these crimes, such as college students and average frustrated joes, who are just horny and don't know what to do about it.

Therein lies my point: For rape and assault to be as prevalent as they say, you don't get to just count the small number of actual rapists, and assume they've got santa's technology to get all over the world in a night. You must know some average frustrated chumps in your own life who are helping with these numbers. IF the numbers are correct.

Said it all, it's obvious that a rape claim can be used as a power play.

Yes, part three discusses the motivations for a false accusation.

You may notice that I'm taking the statistics literally, using the most generous interpretation of them, and being a little obtuse to prove a point. There is much nuance that I'm skipping here that will be discussed in my next few installments.

This one was simply about taking things at face value to make a quick calculation to determine something is wrong. Not exactly what it is.

Introducing Podcasts @ TRP.RED

22 upvotes · 1 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed I'm actually surprised by their popularity given that reading is faster and you can do it in more scenarios than listening to audio, but the demand was there... So we have blogs and podcasts!

Elon Musk is Fucked

22 upvotes · 29 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Like selling your shares off to an entrusted friend or family member before filing a divorce,

This constitutes fraud, and family courts will rule on a much weaker burden of proof than criminal court.

He doesn't have to be a Chad.

22 upvotes · 6 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If women are looking for beta bucks and their current alpha fucks is proving not to be able to settle down, they may over-correct and seek out beta bucks exclusively.

That's what a majority of my plates ended up doing once they detached.

By the way, it really makes a lot alpha widows. They will contact you months down the road when they realize that they'll never get the tingles from boring mc boredom.

9 Assumptions People Make About Single Women That Are Totally True (but this hamster rationalizes as bullshit)

22 upvotes · 18 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Wait a second,

Just because we don't have someone to share the journey of life with yet doesn't mean we're missing out on anything.

and you actually end up filling your schedule with more things to fill the void of a partner or families of our own

Woman gets drunk and goes to neighbor's house for more booze. Has sex with him and later cries rape.

22 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

She just doesn't know what happened.

Bull-fucking-shit. She knows exactly what happened.

The memory lapses are just convenient story telling. The fact that every rape-to-be story has the same memory lapses says to me I don't trust a single one of them.

A mother who left her sick, three-month-old baby alone to die while she had a whiskey fuelled sex marathon with a man she met at a bus stop has avoided jail.

22 upvotes · 14 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Not to totally pick apart your examples, but two of your examples don't have any sentencing at all. The second one is literally a drug crime and the third is apparently sexual in nature. So they're not all that similar..

..but none of that explains why the woman in the OP didn't get jail time!

From Dear Abby - 21 year old, twice married cheats on "every girl's dream man".

22 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As if difficult, antisocial, bond-challenging behavior is a positive attribute.

And yet you've described a majority of American women.

RooshV slams the Red Pill

22 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'd retire the terms if I could. They do still hold meaning, but they're a caricature of what they were back when we were using them.

Marriage and Kids... How to do it the RP way?

22 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Maybe my experience is different than others, but when I get a woman to fall for me, she'll rob a bank if she thinks I want it.

You bring her into your world. Tell her your view, explain that it's a deal breaker, and if they refuse, then ask yourself why you were considering promising half your shit and risking your future children with a woman who puts the marriage contract over her feelings for you.

We all know the contract itself is effectively worthless anyhow.

Marriage and Kids... How to do it the RP way?

22 upvotes · 31 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I recommend going forward with your vision of a family, including the wedding and kids... but missing one important aspect: no marriage license or contract.

It strictly benefits only women and removes your power in the relationship, which is your continued commitment (or ability to remove it). Check dalrock for the term threatpoint.

By the way, I'll be writing about this more myself as I'm attempting this future myself.

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

22 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Go for it!

White Huffpo Women writer hamsters about men dating asians. Says we must be cured from our "yellow-fever."

22 upvotes · 30 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are demonstrably not strong, they're just bitchy and have the tendency to form into bitchy herds. That's the only kind of strength they have. They will not beat men in fights, they will not beat men in logic, and they will not beat men in productivity.

Precisely what I just took away from this. ♂

The Turing-Poe test: 4chan successfully pranks twitter by behaving -exactly like- feminists. Media revises history by pretending that nobody was ever fooled. (xpost /r/mensrights)

22 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Good ideas are good. Bad ideas are bad. Doesn't matter who says them, or if somebody has both. Judge the ideas on their merit, not their speaker.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

22 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Frankly, after yesterday's boost, I've seen more quality posts than I have in a while.

So quit bitching.

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

22 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I can ban you quicker than you can make new accounts.

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

22 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hi, I'm redpillschool and I endorse this message.

The Red Pill is Intolerant of Irrationalism and Equality

22 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You'll also notice that they tend to completely write off or discount anything that isn't derived directly from a study, or when it is, they'll try to reinterpret the study results saying "well, correlation doesn't imply causation." They'll deride you simply for believing your experience, likening it to religion or alien abducted conspiracy nuts since you don't have a peer-reviewed study for your experience, while simultaneously they will assert that women we might attract are "damaged" without an ounce of observable proof or double-blind study.

They attack where the argument could be considered weak, while committing the very same fallacies. Obviously there is room for error in what we talk about, but that doesn't change our experiences nor does it change the efficacy of our strategies. We are pondering and hypothesizing, developing strategies for life, whereas they are stuck in the nothing-can-be-known rut. If they applied the same pedantry to the rest of their lives, they wouldn't even be able to pick a toothpaste, let alone agree on how to brush properly.

Δ

Tits or GTFO

22 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

If a woman has something worth saying, she doesn't need to announce she's a woman.

You should get this.

Lily Allen doesn't like Feminism

22 upvotes · 13 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

'Of course I'm a feminist'

Because in feminism world, you're either a feminist, or you hate women. There's no other option.

"The organisers are sending Thicke a download voucher for Aretha Franklin's "R.E.S.P.E.C.T.," I completely lost it when I read that.

22 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"but few could dispute that his choice of language came dangerously close to promoting non-consensual sex."

Of course, it's clearly about rape. Because anything sexual from a man is rape rape rape rape rape. Oh sorry, I just could help myself, sometimes I just can't stop the rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape rape

AMA With Red Pill Mods SoftHarem and RedPillSchool, ask us anything.

22 upvotes · 21 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Be a value giver. Guys will feel more comfortable around you if they feel like they derive good value from you. For instance, make a lot of positive comments when you're around guys, "hey man, that's a really cool shirt.." or "hey you should approach that girl, she's totally into you." It will make guys more comfortable around you.

Ever see the tv show Chuck? There's a character named "awesome." Be that guy.

Don't snipe if you're winging, don't be a dick. You have a clear advantage over other men, so pull it back and let it ride.

Redditors lament the effects of a feminizing society that inhibits father-son relationships and teaches kids political correctness over practicality.

22 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/askTRP

My favorite one:

Basically like you, OP. Why did he feed me a bunch of pc bullshit. So many years lost, feels like I'll forever be playing catch-up with my peers.

Specifically, both my parents truly messed up my outlook on relationships and dating. I was never the kid that defiantly did what he was told not to do. My pattern was just to accept it and never bother with that thing again. Unfortunately I was content with that, which severely restricted my life.

Not okay to have fun with firecrackers? Well, there goes my neighbour friends. Fill time up with video games, alone.

Not okay to mess around with motors and dirt bikes? Whelp, there goes most of my classmates. Fill up time with video games.

Not allowed to lift weights until I'm 16? Well then, fuck exercise. Fill time with video games. And they wonder why I'm isolated. Pfft. Did pick up weight lifting as an adult though. They still don't approve...

Enlightenment?

22 upvotes · 9 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Take up a hobby or skill. Lift weights.

Of the 20 richest women in the world, 19 of them inherited their money from either their husband or father. The first self made rich woman rings in at #17. [x-post from r/todayilearned]

22 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you consider facts to be woman bashing? Is the universe misogynistic?

Let's see the rule "Alpha Fucks, Beta Bucks" in real life

22 upvotes · 8 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It might be more useful if they institute No-participation since we do.

The True Nature Of Women

22 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

I think the frustration is that we're seeing the first few generations of men who no longer have a system in which they can control the container. Marriage is dead, families are at gunpoint, the fiction of life-long-love is now actually a fiction.

The conditions have changed, but nobody was told.

Train a society of men that the only acceptable option is to be "the nice guy". But.. If they notice that it works against them in dating that must mean they only want sex. So berate and chastise them

22 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

What? Maybe you didn't see what I said-

Man complains about friendzone, man is shamed.

Woman complains about fuck zone, man is shamed.

Female on AskMen: "Where do I go to find guys to sleep with without spending a ton of money (if any)?"

22 upvotes · 12 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Her face looks old. PASS

User /u/J2501 suggests that women should be more proactive in dating, and pay on dates- is immediately torn apart and shamed repeatedly by others, without missing a beat.

22 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

All you're saying boils down to this: "If those negro slaves had been more humble and had a better attitude, things would have gone a lot better for them."

And let me ask you something: Is there ever a situation where a woman owes a man anything? Or are women just immune to owing men anything? I understand that not all women are obligated to sleep with me, so stop using a red herring to try and prove a point.

I accept the fact that a tyrannical matriarchy is fucking me in the ass, but I'm not going to smile about it. That would be retarded.

If sacrificing your independence, dignity, and self-respect is what it takes for you to get women, that's nothing to brag about. That's pathetic.

Reddit women admitting violence is sexy

22 upvotes · 27 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Not all women are like that! For instance, check out this hypothetical girl who likes to have sex with trees! They're not violent! QED

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

22 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"I can have any guy I want right now!"

"But you can't even get me!" Turn and walk away.

"I can do whatever the fuck I want!"

"And so can I, go away."

Bluepill hamster answers question about first dates: "I don't want to be told where we're going, I want to be asked...I'd want to have a look at their menu first to make sure there's something I can eat, and ideally to plan my other meals of the day around it." Gets tons of upvotes.

22 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Classic feminine imperative. Say one thing, reward another.

The value of being an asshole: Some thoughts I had this morning on why it can be so attractive

22 upvotes · 23 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

How does one trick a woman into sleeping with them? Do you draw a smile on the tip of your penis and just say it's the vagina inspector and "this won't hurt one bit..."?

Beta religion and the princess culture

22 upvotes · 23 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Little One, I want to tell you about the boy who doesn't need to be kept interested, because he knows you are interesting...

...Don't worry about working on becoming somebody interesting, gaining social skills, hobbies, or a personality. Worry about being you. Anybody who finds you boring is wrong because you're interesting.

Her dad is basically saying "you don't need to establish value aside from your pussy."

I read "The Manipulated Man" and I have a question

22 upvotes · 28 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not that being exploited is bad. In fact, I rather like the idea of a wife that uses me as a provider.

The problem is that in our current culture, they're not holding up their end of the bargain. Now we have no-fault divorce where women can take you to the cleaners when they lose interest in you, and nothing is keeping them in marriages so they absolutely will lose interest in you.

Some people here believe good game will counter-act hypergamy. I don't. I think all relationships with women are ticking time bombs. It's best you don't invest too much in any one of them.

So, there's no problem with the exchange as such, only that women won't hold up their end. If they're not holding up their end, your only choice is not to offer your end... (commitment and provisions.)

As such, I advise investing as little as possible in women. Not because they exploited men for provisions. Because they don't hold up their end of the bargain.

Day 3 - Say No.

22 upvotes · 17 January 2013 · /r/becomeaman

I think a curt "sorry" isn't bad. It certainly doesn't convey that you're actually sorry, but lessens the tone that would otherwise make you look rude or upset. Adds a flair, in my opinion.

This is why i ignore SRS private messages

22 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

I don't know who you are. I suggest you stop looking for attention.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

21 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

More VR products that push the narrative of virtual reality over reality.

The only thing preventing this from happening, in my mind, is that the people I know addicted to facebook / social media are also way too cool for VR.

But got help us if we end up with hologram rooms.

It's not a conspiracy theory. Reddit hates men. Make sure you have an account on forums.red!

21 upvotes · 6 April 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

trp.red and forums.red

New ASKTRP on Forums.Red - Please Post your Questions and Answers there.

21 upvotes · 21 August 2020 · /r/askTRP

Since our goal is to get you to be a voluntarily sexual person, no.

Gen X vs Millennial TRPers, the main difference..

21 upvotes · 27 November 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It doesn't take 12 years to teach history.

School is day care. They could condense most of school into a few short years.

Course Corrections and a Word on the State of the Manosphere (Stop Being Cunts Edition)

21 upvotes · 13 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's this shit right here that makes me go heavy on the ban hammer. No, racism in itself has always been against the rules. But the recent influx has been specifically JQ heavy.

Familiarize yourself with the rest of the rules while you're at it, in no way was this list exhaustive. (you knew that)

Misogyny Alert: Men's Brains Are Significantly Larger Than Women's Brains

21 upvotes · 11 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

May I ask why this post has to be on the red pill subreddit? If I wanted to research some science facts I could go elsewhere.

Close up shop folks, everything that needs to be said is settled and there's nothing new to discuss.

Nevermind that there are sometimes new users who might find this stuff interesting, and new discussions and insights can be found when different people discuss topics such as this.

Nevermind that we live in a matrix that denies these facts and disallows even the mere words to be uttered: "men's brains are larger than women's," suggesting that this would be one of the few places the discussion could possibly even take place.

Nevermind that it doesn't hurt to refresh your memory of the matrix lest you forget it exists and slowly slip back into your blue pill way of thinking.

Nevermind that disinterested parties are free not to click on an article.

Nevermind that users who prefer to discuss other topics are free to submit their own. (fascinating that the one who complains has no history of topics on TRP)

Women's brain on the other hand have more synaptic connections. This results in differences in certain areas of the brain.

Look at you desperately trying to preserve a notion of equality where none exists.

The Hot For Student Epidemic Rages On | Why do women do this? Part of the answer is the repercussion of a society which has stopped constraining female hypergamy.

21 upvotes · 4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

She knows full well she could go to jail for it, but consequences for her sexual deviance are so foreign to her that she goes through with it anyway.

I think it's worth noting that although she faces jail time, she knows they will go easy on her as an attractive woman. Case in point- they don't even refer to it as rape in the news article. The kid gloves are already on.

[Field Report] 6 year marriage ended

21 upvotes · 25 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

Jordan Peterson, Fallacies, and the Tragic State of this Sub

21 upvotes · 31 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Continued...

Low status men who don't have the ability nor the potential to become what they could be, so they have to resort to displaying all the behaviors that a high status man naturally, outwardly manifests without being the high status man themselves.

I guess those high value males are going to have to up their game then, because they're not at the top of hierarchy mountain or whatever you've been calling it.

If we were the last two people on earth and we were down to our last bit of food, I would take it and let you starve. And your rules about what's right and what's fair won't make fuck all of a difference when you die and I live. The universe doesn't care about right and wrong. There is only success and failure.

The "Red Pill" isn't about low status men trying to "pick up" women or manipulating them subconsciously (from both frames of reference, that is) into liking them. It's about becoming a truly high status man who lives for his own values and needs, naturally attracting women.

Peterson's Dilemma Just because you disagree with one or two of Jordan Peterson's statements doesn't mean you should throw out the baby with the bathwater.

He's studied, endlessly, the horrors Western civilization was capable of in the 20th century, and has a deep understanding of the human mind in every facet imaginable. He's a trained clinical psychologist, and not just any old one at that. He has over ten thousand citations on his psychology papers, he taught at the most prestigious university in the world, and wrote the best-selling non-fiction book in the Western world at the moment.

I don't know why everybody's go-to defense is "he's so smart, he's basically a genius." I don't give a fuck if he's got an IQ of a billion. What I've heard from the guy doesn't match up with my experience in the sexual marketplace. And I think I've been there much more recently than he has.

From what I understand, the pro-marriage guy got married young and hasn't done much shopping.

I don't blame my parents for being totally out of touch with the sexual market- hell, it's different than even the 90s or early 2000s. It has changed quite a bit. The landscape is totally unlike anything my older friends and family have seen.

He has good intentions. I can't believe how close-minded some of you could be to call him "blue-pilled" or any more of that blabber. In fact, he probably understands more about society, the political spectrum, and intersexual affairs more than any of you. No, he definitely does.

I'm sure he's got good intentions. I don't hate the guy. But he's wrong about a lot.

And here you are making a bunch of appeals to authority with zero meat to back it up.

He's all for the individual and for the bolstering of young men both as individual, masculine beings and as benefactors of society.

I think the word is "slave."

In fact, he's probably the first well-known public figure to speak about such important topics that directly relate to this sub's motives in recent times. You should be thanking him for bringing a new light to masculinity and for fighting against the radical liberals and those who condemn "toxic masculinity."

It's a noble cause. Futile, but noble.

Just because he knows certain things doesn't mean he has to speak about them in public. His "credibility" would be shot off the moment he mentions any real truths to society.

Okay. Once he starts saying things I agree with, I'll agree with him. How's that sound?

You don't think Peterson knows exactly what women are attracted to? You don't think he knows exactly how bitter and resentful men are? You don't think he knows exactly how society is structured?

Yeah, that's what I'm saying.

So I don't know where the fuck this sub is headed, but honestly I couldn't care less. If you all drive yourselves into the ground in a carnival of fury and self-righteousness, go right ahead.

K, bye.

The Humiliation of Aziz Ansari

21 upvotes · 15 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's gotta get worse before it gets better.

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

21 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Not sure why you're flexing your influence /u/redpillschool - we aren't exactly here to be at the mercy of what your 'feelings' are and does a community dedicated to standing up for themselves really give a shit to conforming to what 'exactly it is that you like to see'?

Yes, my job is to moderate discussion and make sure it stays on track. If you want a free-for-all that has no topic whatsoever, I invite you to find another forum or start your own.

"Me too". How women are simultaneously attention whoring and garnering sympathy.

21 upvotes · 17 October 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Is a casting couch ethical? Probably not.

But these women do have a choice. They can find another way into Hollywood, or, better, they could try getting a non-showbiz job.

If you told me coal mining was going to hurt my lungs but there's a nice payout... it isn't abuse if I can choose not to do it.

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

21 upvotes · 4 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The writing is on the wall for this one. Look at daily stormer. Even when they tried to transfer, the registrars took ownership of the domain so they couldn't transfer out.

This is foul play.

<http://www.businessinsider.com/stormfront-founder-don-black-cant-transfer-domain-2017-8?r=UK&IR=T>

What's the endgame here, using more government to prevent private companies from conducting their own business?

Good or bad, addressing is a public service. You can sit back and harp on the mythical free-market solving problems, but when you can no longer share ideas or communicate with others through the internet, don't cry to me about it.

It will be a problem.

ATTENTION: Visitors from VICE

21 upvotes · 30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The thing is, our discussion is so far outside the overton window that there's no way in hell a media outlet could even facilitate a discussion on the merits. They disagree so wholeheartedly with the very basic premise that men and women are fundamentally different that they could never even consider some of our higher level theories (such as the feminine imperative).

Ironically, the overton window is essentially the executive branch of the feminine imperative. So, it's operating as intended.

On unicorns, and on swallowing the pill

21 upvotes · 1 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

What men want when they talk about unicorns is a woman who will love them like their mother did; unconditionally. All relationships are conditional and require action to maintain. Your ex was clearly was not a unicorn. The minute you failed to comply she found another cock.

I'm on a deletion rampage. Got something stupid to post? Don't waste your time.

21 upvotes · 3 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"[FR] May have escaped friendzone"

Guys, I touched her shoulder. She's going to call me, right?

The end of GenCon - Vox

21 upvotes · 23 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't see any reason why a hobby such as gaming should be looked down upon, so long as it doesn't consume a disproportionate amount of your time.

The Light-Switch Effect - Why Women Re-Write the History of Relationships.

21 upvotes · 28 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's odd, isn't it? How we've all had this shared experience, it's almost like we dated the same women.

She claimed that there had been no good times, that the entire relationship had been awful.

This is exactly how it goes. And of course it doesn't make sense... if it was awful, why did you stay for so many years? Of course it wasn't awful. But women, women.

SJW endeavors to "educate" the public will be their own undoing, and actually lead more people here.

21 upvotes · 21 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP has become increasingly radicalized since I joined three years ago and I don't see 'moderates' leaping to join up, just my two cents.

Total fucking nonsense. TRP started radical, and has always been.

Don't concern troll and try to temper the discussion to fit your notion of appropriate.

If you don't take full responsibility for every soul that shares your gender, you are a guilty misogynist.

21 upvotes · 21 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The solution? More single mothers!

Hitting the wall seems to affect white American women in a different kind of way.

21 upvotes · 21 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I enjoy my privacy.

[Mod] The Red Pill is Sexual Strategy

21 upvotes · 29 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Blue pill < purple pill < red pill < mgtow < zen.

That's like, your opinion, man.

How the Feminine Imperative is Destroying Reddit... on Purpose

21 upvotes · 15 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

No, I'm quite good at what I do. I get rid of people who don't add value to the sub, who rather complain and hope other people take care of problems than to pitch in and contribute. Sound like anybody you know?

Let's see your contributions, jack...

https://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2cpc6j/humanitarian_blue_piller_realizes_hes_been/

Three lines of text. That's your analysis? Son, you just made some bold claims but you don't have anything to back it up.

Get the shit out of my sub.

Alpha Male: "One of the major objectives of feminists is to ensure that no man has the ability to defend himself against women under any circumstances"

21 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/MensRights

Certainly wouldn't want to accidentally judge a work on its content.

Feminism & Femininity: A Brief History

21 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm sticking this post, I think everybody should give this article a read, it's a really interesting breakdown of the history of femininity leading up to the red pill.

Teenage girl suffers accident and experiences how it is to hit the wall prematurely

21 upvotes · 30 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There is a level of pleasure watching when a woman lacks the foresight to pair down before the wall. Men already understand failure is failure, no matter what the cause. But women tend to believe they are above failure, or that the opportunity to succeed is not theirs to lose. The wall is a cold smack of reality to them.

Obviously, nobody should rejoice in a woman becoming disfigured. It's unfair, it's mean spirited, and doesn't demonstrate justice.

But you can still analyze it and say, "wow, geez, the wall really exists."

For instance, this girl, were she to find a man interested, will likely settle with him quickly. She's on an accelerated time table. She's jumped to beta bucks very quickly.

Apply tragedies like this, other illnesses, or environmental factors when applying Rollo's schedules of mating to a woman's life. It's fascinating to see how dynamic their strategies actually are.

Sexually frustrated guy tears into his female friends for not fucking him. (x-post from /r/cringepics)

21 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sometimes this sub is too angry towards feminism

..and sometimes being angry is the right response. When the rest of culture tells you that you're wrong for being angry, or that it's wrong to display anger, it's about fucking time we have a place that embraces it.

I think it's important to move past the anger phase and come to peaceful terms with reality for personal growth. Everybody's on their own path to happiness, but I think accepting reality for what it is is an important step in that direction for all. That said, ignoring anger, and ignoring that which makes you angry is not going to get you to that step.

As the head moderator here, one thing I've focused on is embracing the anger stage. It's important not to downplay it's importance. It's catharsis. It's years of pent up cognitive dissonance finally being set free. It's accepting reality and confronting the false reality that you've believed for so long.

For fucks sake, if you didn't want to punch the shit out of everything and everyone when you discovered the pill, then double check your pulse and make sure you're alive.

Don't get stuck there, but don't feel guilty for being there.

For the reference, I think between discovering the pill and accepting reality can likely take 8 months to a few years to really internalize and find inner peace. It's a slow process, and I suggest not rushing it.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

21 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

How dare they make a joke!

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

21 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Somebody scored low on slut quest...

"Do any other older ladies (40ish) find the double standard of not being able to date down in age ridiculous?"

21 upvotes · 10 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Last time I announced I was dating a woman 10ish years younger than me, even people on TRP were shaming me.

I don't give a fuck.

"Inside the Angry Online Men's Rights Group Called 'Red Pill'"

21 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Why don't you treat women like humans?

We're partners!

No matter how much I italicize these words, it still doesn't leave the realm of platitude nonsense.

A few quick mantras I've picked up from this sub

21 upvotes · 24 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Go lift.

Super confused about how TRP handles LTR or GF's going out without them

21 upvotes · 24 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are controlled by their current emotional state. It defines who they are and how they make decisions. What seems right right now, may be wrong before and worse later. But right now is all that matters. And right now defines the past and the future. If she meets somebody that makes her feel good inside, she will re-con your entire relationship to justify her attraction to the new guy. Things like "well old boyfriend doesn't do xyz.. maybe he wasn't the right one for me." or "we do fight a lot, a good relationship has no arguments!"

You can't stop her from cheating, but you can keep her from being in circumstances where her emotional state is changed enough that she might.

If she's hellbent on going overseas, to vegas, or a spring-break location, you might as well accept she's going to cheat.

Re: The Decline- Ironwood Speaks: Welcome To The Puerarchy. This Is What The Hell Is Wrong With You.

21 upvotes · 6 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

But you cannot argue that ignoring one's traditional gender role is a virtue in one sex and a vice in the other, not and be intellectually honest. A male's traditional gender role was not, as the feminists mistakenly thought, to work while his wife was at home. It was the voluntary acceptance of responsibility for the health, safety, and prosperity of his family. Men went to work not because we enjoyed it so gosh-darn much – those 50s housewives may have thought it was all sexy secretaries and fascinating projects at their husband's office, but the reality was more grim. The simple fact is that a man works because that's what he needs to do to support his family.

Can we put something in the sidebar to explain how we're not even remotely related to the red pill?

21 upvotes · 3 June 2014 · /r/MensRights

Doesn't that open you up to consistency issues?

A lot of people think similar or different things. We exchange ideas. Some people disagree, I don't mind.

If we can explain the social differences between men and women by simply saying that they are fundamentally different, then why can't the same be applied to races?

The question should be asked, why would this implication be bad? Should political correctness decide what can and can't be discussed? Should political correctness decide what can be correct, so we don't even investigate other options?

The fact of the matter is simple: other races are different in many measurable ways. Black americans tend to be more athletic, asians tend to have smaller frames, white people tend to get more skin cancer.. and so on and so on.

So could they be mentally different? That's a question that most people can't ask because asking it is racist. Even if the answer is, no. Asking is racist.

My personal belief and understanding is that the evolution of the human mind (from start to today) has formed over so long a period of time that as a species, humans do not diverge in mental capabilities much at all. Obviously we already know that we have a spectrum of cognitive skills, but it appears to be distributed quite evenly, despite race.

So why would men and women act differently if not races?

Well, for starters, sexual dimorphism began much earlier in our ancestry than even the first homosapien, which already goes farther back than our races as we understand them. In other words, sexual differences (and the effects of sexual selection) took part over hundreds of millions of years, verses races which are at longest under a million years (closer to 600,000 years).

So, in other words, we did not spend enough time against selective pressures to give us significantly different cognitive behaviors (which, by the way, we have in the past- and we consider them different species), but we did spend enough time with sexual selection to develop behavioral differences and physical sexual dimorphisms-- and even that is considerably controlled by a combination of hormonal differences and environmental upbringing.

Maybe this isn't totally correct- and maybe we exaggerate the behavioral differences between men and women. But one thing's for sure, we didn't just let the term "sexism" or "racism" or "misogyny" terminate the thoughts here, and we just exchanged some ideas.

Don't make spinning plates your mission

21 upvotes · 23 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's fine if you want to do something great as well. But what I constantly hear on this forum are excuses not to pursue women. Fear of failure, fear of rejection, and now the proactive approach: I rather do this anyway, and maybe girls will love me if I do it.

Fucking christ. Just approach a woman.

This is men's rationalization hamster.

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

21 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This subreddit was planted on the basis that we do not care about what others think, that being politically correct stifles conversation.

Our adherence to this level of discourse allows us to ensure the purity of our conversation, and it becomes a selection mechanism. People unable to cope with our level of discourse won't join.

Believing that tempering our language in hopes to appease our detractors will have any effect is just wishful thinking. The feminine imperative will insist that we are shamed until our message is changed in its entirety.

Allowing them to modify our speech even once starts us on this slippery slope. They will not rest. There will be no way to actually appease them. So even trying to do it is pointless.

I think I just threw up a bit in my mouth....

21 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Wishlist of 20 traits she just wishes the guys she likes to fuck would have.

Keep in mind this isn't 20 traits of guys she prefers to fuck, but instead the other way around.

527 Male students to have DNA taken in attempt to find one alleged rapist.

21 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

We have a men's rights flair because this content is on topic, and the red pill provides unique insight that /r/mensrights is afraid to broach. It's been this way since the inception of the sub, so all you newcomers who show up one day and think you know how shit's supposed to be can cool your fucking jets.

A woman past the wall actually admits it exists, found it downvoted to controversial in a women's subreddit.

21 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And yet, so many people read the NY times.. and look, you're on reddit..

Feel Good Bullshit: What it is, why it's bad, and how to spot it

21 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

To add to this, the whole "it's not about sex it's about being a better person.." bs... no, it's about being a person who other people want to have sex with.

Girlfriend leaves boyfriend in public for Ferrari driver

21 upvotes · 6 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah but this guy is implying that it's "blue pill" to be flashy. Fuck that noise. The reason it gets girls bits wet is because of power and provider capabilities, yes, but the only stupid action you can take with it is to start spending it on her. Everything else is fine.

What part of TRP makes all these men openly come out against it?

21 upvotes · 5 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's all just dumb shit, don't pay attention to it

The Most Powerful Girl-Gettin Technique of All Time

21 upvotes · 18 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

These seems a little too much like feel-good bullshit.

field report monday

21 upvotes · 7 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Just making sure y'all are awake.

DailyBeast: College women have self esteem problems caused by male privilege.

21 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This also highlights one of the main reasons why everybody thinks we're wrong or have a very limited perspective. Because when you divide up the pools, we're only talking about women we find attractive. So the 60% of women who don't meet our standards act confused because they don't act that way.

Some brutally frank relationship advice from a 98-year-old woman

21 upvotes · 16 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Do you think it's okay to run around?

Well, I wouldn't want my daughter to do it.

Business Insider Doesn't like the Red Pill

21 upvotes · 15 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You know how to use the report button?

Asking women for dating advice is like asking trout for fishing tips

21 upvotes · 13 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Every time somebody uses an analogy and somebody rebuts by making alternate analogies... I think people really missed the point of the analogy.

The point was to illustrate more clearly an analog to the original scenario to help you understand what it means.

It's not a proof. Rebutting an analogy is like fighting shadows.

The Unintended Consequences Of Domestic Violence Laws

21 upvotes · 11 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Roosh, as always, very apt in his analysis.

Obviously, red pill bloggers are forward thinking. Is marriage completely dead? No. But there's a reason people like us are avoiding marriage. And he's very close to hitting the nail on the head here.

I don't think the domestic violence laws in themselves are the sole cause of our problem. But if you read into what he's saying, he's really suggesting a category of laws and public opinions that have morphed to empower the weaker gender, which causes problems like the ones he described.

Something I have noticed- why is it that when we empower the weaker gender, we find ourselves losing equilibrium? Or more important, why did we ever have any sort of equilibrium to begin with?

I think this is an important question that really helps suggest why men and women love differently.

Are/were men perfect? Hardly. But men evolved as the stronger gender. Yes the power was abused in some places, but for the most part, men evolved to love and sacrifice.

We died for our women and cultures. We suffered for them. We put others' needs in front of ours, as a gender.

We reached a natural equilibrium where men realized their disposability and need for sacrifice. And we evolved the desire to do so. The DESIRE! Men naturally want to help women in distress. It's built into us. That's why we have a proclivity to being beta... we're programmed for it. We want to provide. It makes us feel good to do these things.

But you change the balance of power, and you put the guns in the hands of those who did not evolve the same selflessness, what do you get?

Women, as a survival and sexual strategy, were more selfish and self-oriented. And as the weaker gender, it not only makes sense, but is clearly the cause of this behavior.

Give them power, and their psychology doesn't exactly change over night.

Did i wuss out or have i been watching too much porn?

21 upvotes · 2 August 2013 · /r/askTRP

Only one way to find out... ask her how the bathrobe feels, and if you can try it on. Keep a straight face. If she was looking for sex, she'll continue escalating as long as you do..

"The reason why women say that there are no good men to date – they let themselves off the hook to continue their pattern of behaviour. It gives them a reason to believe that they don't have to change."

21 upvotes · 23 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I want to meet someone on my level.

What level is that? The maximum narcissism level?

How to answer "I'm a girl and I can get anything I want if I wanted it."

21 upvotes · 4 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

...until you get ugly.

Girl on r/okcupid complains that men only want "dumb" girls and are avoiding her because she is too "intelligent" [OKC username is "Sarcastic_socks", she likes vampires & "dead things", she uses "sarcastic" and "weirdo" to describe herself multiple times, ideal job is a coroner, and is overweight]

21 upvotes · 28 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If you have to tell people how intelligent you are then you probably aren't.

But how am I going to tell you I'm a genius? These rules suck.

In which fat girls lament that they are invisible, and then the pretty girls chime in to say they're not taken seriously.

21 upvotes · 17 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Men who want hot wives are shallow? Prey tell, what should we care for? Should I marry her college degree?

How do I conquer my rage?

21 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Rage, aggression, anger (when relevant), violence, stoicism, confidence, boldness... the list goes on and on. These are masculine traits that feminism has been hard at work trying to phase out of men for the past three generations.

Embrace that which makes you man.

How do I conquer my rage?

21 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I rather like my rage. When it's missing, that's when you know something's wrong.

What is the "red pill" response to accusations of "rape culture"?

21 upvotes · 29 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And when you win, the pigeon just shits on the board.

Why is /r/redpill hated more than /r/seduction and other PUA communities?

21 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Postmodern discourse taught in our colleges have no protocol for debating uncomfortable truths. The other communities have adopted this postmodernism with attempts to sound more sensitive and avoiding giving offense or creating conflict.

Day 1: A practical man's journal of the effects of testosterone on someone who's never had any.

21 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Pontifx is confirmed.

Beta Disambiguation

21 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I like this disambiguation.

I would like to point out, however, that it tends to fail when you consider that with the welfare state, all male players are putting more in than they're getting out. If you're alpha in your personal interactions, it doesn't stop that the state is forcing you to pay to raise other women's children.

In a welfare state, all men are betas.

[Meta] I've noticed that people are talking about this sub. Here's a great tool to monitor all new comments/posts that mention this sub.

21 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Please do not use this to brigade other threads. If you see something interesting, you can link to it on our sub and we can discuss it here.

I'm pretty adamant about this, the last thing we need is a legitimate reason for SRS to complain about us.

User /u/J2501 suggests that women should be more proactive in dating, and pay on dates- is immediately torn apart and shamed repeatedly by others, without missing a beat.

21 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

The sad thing is, getting to know women and watching the way they treat men, is exactly what has made me lose respect for a lot of them.

Danny Brown Receives Oral Sex From Fan On Stage, Keeps Rapping

21 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

To question number 2- He was high enough status that this is obviously coercion, once you're high enough status women can't help but do this. It's abusing our power as men, really.

Dear Prudence advice: Wife is resentful that husband makes more $ than her & maintains completely separate finances [although he pays all the bills and gives her pocket $]. Prudence advises "Tell him that you thought you married the handsome prince, but you feel like Cinderella before the ball."

21 upvotes · 30 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Paying for a prostitute is cheaper and more effective, not nearly as demeaning as jumping hoops for access to the all glorious hole women have.

Dear Prudence advice: Wife is resentful that husband makes more $ than her & maintains completely separate finances [although he pays all the bills and gives her pocket $]. Prudence advises "Tell him that you thought you married the handsome prince, but you feel like Cinderella before the ball."

21 upvotes · 30 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

He's brilliant, by the way, for effectively mitigating Briffault's Law.

The female, not the male, determines all the conditions of the animal family. Where the female can derive no benefit from association with the male, no such association takes place.

The problem with marriage is typically the "what's-mine-is-yours" dilemma. If marriage means they both own the house.. then what the hell does she need him around for?

Corollary 1. Past benefit provided by the male does not provide for continued or future association.

At the time finances merge- his money becomes a past benefit. He now has to increase his contribution to be seen as a current benefit.

He's mitigating this by keeping finances separate and doling out cash like an allowance. This guy knows that she's the most responsible teenager in the house.

Beta text game at its finest. His age wouldn't have mattered one bit if he weren't so needy. [x-post from creepypms : cringepics]

21 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Creepy PMs should be standard reading to help betas get out of the betazone. See that text there? That's what you do. Stop doing it.

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

21 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The good stuff actually starts here:

http://www.reddit.com/r/AdviceAnimals/comments/1bzd1c/as_a_single_guy_in_his_mid_20s/c9cgv4o?context=2 and it appears this guy stands by his comments .. since he has now deleted them all.

[Mod] Announcement: Endorsed Contributors

21 upvotes · 5 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

A community will only stay as strong as the integrity of the moderators. What you saw happen on seddit is not because it got too popular, it's because even today the moderators have no interest in keeping on topic. They are afraid, frozen, immobilized by the fear that their sub should appear misogynistic. The most hardcore of them have ended here.

We do not entertain the same fears. As the lead moderator here, I can attest I have no interest in bending to the whims of others, and their desires to temper our discourse. I've heard it time and time again that things are too this or too that. And that we should focus on our tone, be more politically correct, temper our message to be less offensive.

To that I say fuck you.

this hamster could power an entire city!

21 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Neither were gross, though later on I realized how creepy they were (they were very attractive so it blinded me from seeing that until afterwards).

Hear that? Creepy is defined by how she feels about past events and people at any given time. Hamster in definition.

Lulu app - extreme hypergamy in action?

21 upvotes · 12 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Only two things can happen:

1. It ends poorly and she leaves a nasty review.

2. It doesn't end poorly and she wants other women to stay away from him so she can keep him to herself and she leaves a nasty review.

Building rapport via text to minimize flake rate

21 upvotes · 5 January 2013 · /r/seduction

In an age where american women won't take their noses out of their phones, methinks its time to embrace it.

A real bunch of dudes helping each other with long term relationships - Married Red Pill

20 upvotes · 23 April 2025 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't take this as advice to get married.

Under no circumstances should a prudent man ever get married.

Plate asks why going on a weekend trip with a bunch of guys is a red flag

20 upvotes · 7 February 2024 · /r/TheRedPill

From experience, he's not your friend.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

20 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure but property owners right now are loving their home values

What they don't realize is that the numbers they see on paper aren't the assets appreciating, but rather the dollar dropping HARD. Can you sell your house for 2x what you bought it for? Sure. Can you buy another house for less? Nope.

Nobody is ready for what's coming.

Proctor & Gamble loses $8 Billion, decides maybe war on men was a bad idea...

20 upvotes · 6 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Everybody is free to do as they please.

I, personally, don't give money to people who hate me.

/r/askTRP RPEC Advice AMA Megathread - Ask Away!

20 upvotes · 4 March 2020 · /r/askTRP

consult doctor.

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

20 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, an API is in the works. However, launching the new forums.red is taking precedent.

When the API is launched, I encourage anybody who is up to it to develop native apps!

Rules Clarification

20 upvotes · 26 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not even the word faggot - it's that a few people have been using it as a stand-in in place of an argument against other users here.

Postmodern Masculinity

20 upvotes · 22 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You still don't get it. We already agreed with you. You still insisted on picking a public fight with your allies (me and my mod team). And you burned a lot of good will doing it. Not just with me, with everybody.

You are so hellbent on trying to force everyone around you to comply with your pet project that you actually aimed your guns at your allies.

For those watching, this is not how you build power. That is how you burn bridges and lose power.

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

20 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree that the manosphere is stronger together than apart. We maintain the LTR and MGTOW flairs because I believe them to be on topic (even if they're somewhat at odds with different viewpoints here).

I think academic disagreement is healthy, and a natural way to progress our theories.

But when there's cancer, it must be purged. And this guy is cancer.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

20 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

No because I want access to my children.

How To Pass A Girl's Emasculation Test | ...She pulled a stunt as we passed a group of dudes that I'll never forget... "Hey you'll always be my best friend!!"

20 upvotes · 7 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't usually call anyone racist but you clearly showed your ignorance on at least two occasions.

Are you talking about Roissy? I do not write CH.

That quote also wasn't CH. It was a commenter on CH, Curing Yellow Fever.

Either way, do not just bandy around -ist words. Use your logic kid.

If you think this is about memorizing lines then you missed it.

In fact, you didn't even read the whole essay which addresses that.

Poptarts wonders how a man is supposed to have these quippy one liners at the ready all the time.

Sure, which is why the best way to predict what a girl might say at any given time is to gain a lot of experience with girls. You'll start to notice patterns in how girls behave, what they say, how they say it, when they say it, and eventually you'll get the knack for bantering in the style of a zfg jerklord that girls love.

Question regarding male SMV

20 upvotes · 22 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

TRP focuses on ensuring that you don't overwhelm a woman with beta traits.

Women's strategy seeks alpha fucks, beta bucks.

If you're in a long term relationship, inevitably provisioning will be part of it, or she will eventually seek stability elsewhere.

The problem occurs when a man becomes subservient to a women. Then she loses attraction and that's when it all goes to shit.

Don't think of alpha and beta as people. Think of it as descriptors of traits.

What is it about me that repels men so much?

20 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

I smiled at EVERY.SINGLE.MAN.I.SAW. THIS PAID DIVIDENDS.

You can't stress this enough. I showed a video (NSFW) to a group of guys and asked them what the first thoughts that came to mind were. They all replied, "holy shit, I forgot that women could smile."

[Mod] What to do if you are approached by a reporter for an interview about RPW

20 upvotes · 3 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

FYI, the person sniffing around for interviews works for an outlet known for hatchet jobs.

Jordan Peterson, Fallacies, and the Tragic State of this Sub

20 upvotes · 31 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's a caricature of pickup though. Anybody experienced with pickup knows canned lines don't work.

So either he doesn't know what pickup is, or he is insulting the wrong people.

Building Power & Your Tribe

20 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The tools we're building can and should be used for local tribes, not just online tribes. My local friends and I are sometimes one to two hours apart so getting together is tough, especially when we can't communicate.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

20 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

He has no plan to reduce college costs.

You know, a wise man once said:

"If you can't afford it, don't buy it."

I know a few people who live by that rule. They live well.

Hopefully you're not one of those kids who thinks he deserves debt forgiveness because the colleges are so expensive.

30 year old Megan Fox shames Will Arnett for dating young women

20 upvotes · 12 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The plague that affects all hot women.

#MaybeHeDoesntHitYou a trending topic, shows how in for it we really are

20 upvotes · 9 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

#maybehedoesntrapeyou But that doesn't mean it's not rape...

/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!

20 upvotes · 24 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

some individuals have made it their personal mission to aid as many men as possible. Expanding TRP helps in that regard.

That's my mission. If it weren't, nobody would be here.

The Direction of RPW.

20 upvotes · 4 April 2016 · /r/RedPillWomen

I had asked TRP, ASKTRP, and RPW mod teams to work together when an endorsed contributor from any one of the subs was stepping out of line, so that we could deal with them as a network.

To me, it didn't make sense that somebody I endorsed and stand behind would be worthy of banning unless they had done something seriously egregious to one of my subs. That includes RPW. If they were making trouble here, I would address it directly with them. If it couldn't be resolved, I wanted to address it across all the subreddits. I didn't want ECs banned from just one sub. If they wouldn't work with us, then they didn't deserve EC on any of our subs.

This began with one member who had always made well reasoned, well articulated posts. /u/whisper. In fact, his contributions won in the best-of of 2013 on redpillwomen.

Now, he made some remarks that seemed negative towards RPW, on asktrp, and I had wanted to address it directly with him, because his contributions had always been high caliber stuff, and I didn't want infighting. It appears he didn't believe in the RPW sub anymore, having been banned a long time ago from RPW for some of his content that didn't match the RPW mod team's vision of the straight-and-narrow path to happiness.

I read his content, it was good. It was thought provoking. It wasn't trolling. It wasn't "plate-manufacturing". It was removed and he was banned. That's not a way of resolving the differences. That's how you treat trolls. When a long standing member who has given you consistent high quality contributions has a beef, you reach out to them and figure it out.

Unfortunately, the RPW mods were unwilling to work towards that goal with me.

My understanding is that discussion of the changing sexual landscape was removed in favor of only pro-marriage discussion. Don't get me wrong, pro-marriage is on topic and a good goal. But in a culture where men are increasingly avoiding marriage, the question should be able to be asked, what does the future hold for women?

As standards erode, even Barbie gets fat

20 upvotes · 29 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Not necessarily. Here's an example.

One of the biggest problems facing americans is the drive towards low fat foods. They are less satiating and cause people to consume more.

Consider pork. They've been breeding pork to be less fatty for generations now. My mother comments on it regularly. "Pork chops don't taste anything like they did when I was a kid. Where'd the fat go?"

Well, nobody buys the fat. So we have lean beef. Lean pork. Lean everything. And people don't understand why they're gaining weight when they replace fat with carbs.

You simply cannot win.

As somebody who lives the paleo/keto lifestyle, it takes work and effort to find enough fat in our grocery stores. They have low-sodium, low-fat bacon on the shelves now. For fucks' sake.

I agree, it's a discipline. The difference is, today it's a discipline. Back then it was simply normal eating. If they had to put as much effort into what they ate as we do today, we'd have more fatties back then too.

White male privilege: Performing worst out of all races and genders

20 upvotes · 31 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

That's nonsense. You're not going to learn how to do a soulless job any better or worse by making me do soulless work as a child.

At best, tying the grades to homework and college acceptance allows hiring managers to find people more adept at mindlessness.

#NoNothingNovember 2015 Challenge

20 upvotes · 28 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What's your daily activity you're committing to?

Student Wrongfully Expelled for Rape Triumphs in Court: Due Process Beats 'Yes Means Yes'

20 upvotes · 10 October 2015 · /r/MensRights

buyer's remorse

It's all too common. That's the real rape culture.

All Men Are Like That

20 upvotes · 10 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

A cursory glance at history will show most of that to be patently false.

Let's just use our minds for a second. I didn't imply that our control on hypergamy has been the case since the beginning of time. In fact, if you read my writings over the years, I've used Rome as a great parallel to our own civilization today as what happens when we unleash hypergamy (and what causes it to be unleashed).

So a cursory glance of history will show that in fact, the feminine imperative has always cultivated beta behaviors. We know that two thirds of men never had kids, so beta-leaning men have always existed as a majority of men.

And our ancestors did use religion to curb hypergamy.

So, patently true. Don't be a prick.

A Simple Test Almost Everyone I Know Fails at (For those in a live-in arrangement)

20 upvotes · 26 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

What do you want for dinner?

Steak, cooked in the nude.

A lesson in holding frame from Jon Stewart

20 upvotes · 5 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

To hold frame would've found a better way to agree and amplify.

"I don't think you're that funny..."

"Thank god, this is a serious interview and I was worried about all the laughing. So tell us about the album"

Has Return of Kings jumped the shark?

20 upvotes · 28 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

You'll start to see the same problems here, but in the "PC" direction.

Not on my fucking watch.

Casting Call: "Ugly People" - Situational SMV

20 upvotes · 10 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it stands to reason that you can quickly weed out attention whores by giving a little shit. She seems to be holding her own, so..

In the light of the latest fear-mongering, here is a repost of TRP's Top 500 posts - both HTML and JSON.

20 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The archive is now being hosted: <http://archive.puerarchy.com>

Easy to navigate online or download a copy for yourself.

Sexually frustrated guy tears into his female friends for not fucking him. (x-post from /r/cringeimgs)

20 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

There's this weird movement of people trying to make TRP more politically correct by dismissing the anger as noobs who haven't "figured it all out yet." When they defend the sub elsewhere on reddit or the internet they say, "sure there are a lot of angry people, but we try to get them to stop being angry. Anger isn't the goal!"

I say: Fuck political correctness. Embrace anger. Who gives a fuck what other people think about the angry people?

Every time there's a post talking about being angry, the top voted comment is somebody saying, "bro, it's time to get over the anger. Stop being angry!" As if you can just turn off the switch like that. It's a dumb trend, it's ineffective, and it's an example of our feminine primary culture rearing its ugly head in our male space. Who gives a fuck if somebody's angry? He will come to peace with it in his own time.

People are worried about another Eliot Rodger, as if being angry, embracing anger, and cultivating a philosophy of truth over feelings will create another shooter.

I say it's the opposite. If somebody sat down with him and said, you know what- you're right to be angry. Man does shit really suck. He'd have felt a connection, that somebody understands the plight. And he'd see that the people who understand have seen a light at the end of the tunnel- one that doesn't include killing everybody and himself. He can feel his anger, and feel accepted with his anger, not shunned for it- and most importantly, he now would have a goal to aim for instead of people to aim at.

BP guy puts his career and education on hold for his woman. Makes the mistake of sharing how it makes him feel with her.

20 upvotes · 2 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Another case of feelings dictating reality for a woman. If she feels guilty, he was guiltning her.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

20 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

My whole board sure was.

"Do any other older ladies (40ish) find the double standard of not being able to date down in age ridiculous?"

20 upvotes · 10 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is primarily the fault of the matriarchy failing to do it's job. Mothers are supposed to warn daughters of this.

Alpha Game: The female definition of slut - "There is nothing that women find more hateful than lower-status women stealing the men to whom they are attracted... Among women, the term [slut] is more about policing status than behavior."

20 upvotes · 24 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

In mainstream culture, slut-shaming is caused by the patriarchy's enforcement of double standards. Men can have sex, but women need to be shamed for it. They even have "slut walks" because they don't understand the nature of the term.

Rational Male : Male Space

20 upvotes · 4 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's great to have spaces like this where women hold no sway over the masculine atmosphere and those who do try to voice their opinions on how we should feminize our space get taunted and exiled.

But you can see their attempts.. over and over and over again.

Even men giving into outside pressures.. "hey guys, why don't we turn down the misogyny/language so people won't think so poorly of us."

Why do you think the stigma exists? We're men, doing what men want to do, and when all other attempts failed, women are using shame to try to break in and temper our discussion.

It won't happen though. Not on my watch.

As if you didn't need any more proof that you should be going to the gym

20 upvotes · 29 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh fuck that, lift to get laid. Telling yourself otherwise is rationalization.

Next you're going to tell me that I should do me and feel good about my body. I'm beautiful no matter what they say.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

20 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha, well we weren't getting any actual tit pics- but for some reason the younger members were replying "that's stupid bro, requiring tit pics is just begging for pussy.."

Their actual takeaway was that I wanted to expand my porn collection. Needless to say our banlist grew three sizes that day.

Feminist realizes that "having it all" is too difficult, leaves lucrative job for her family. Instead of advocating traditional gender roles, she says we must re-socialize men to be caregivers, not only breadwinners. Glosses over the problem of women attraction to a stay-at-home housekeeping dad.

20 upvotes · 13 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

permanent pity-seeking facial expression

Oh good, I'm not the only one who noticed that.

Ovulation alters women's economic decisions

20 upvotes · 26 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

For example, women indicated if they preferred to have a $25,000 car while other women got $40,000 cars (Option A) or have a $20,000 car while other women got $12,000 cars (Option B). The study found that ovulating women preferred Option B, choosing products that would give them higher standing compared to other women.

Fantastic!

Why Women Can't Give Dating Advice to Men

20 upvotes · 7 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a good post. People read it

"Dear r/twoxchromosomes: I made the wise decision to plaster my body with tattoos and piercings before working toward a Masters in Elementary Education. Do you think this will hurt my job prospects?"

20 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The tattoo argument is interesting. I think it signals risk seeking/taking behavior, and again, it shows little concern for future consequences.

I think women find this incredibly sexy in men, because women are attracted to men exhibiting risk seeking behavior. So, in their solipsistic minds, they assume that if they think it's hot in men, it must therefore be hot to men. So they get a tattoo that they're convinced is "cute."

I had an argument with a plate just a few weeks ago about this at the beach. She pointed out a woman with the ugliest fucking tattoo on the back of her leg. She goes, "oooooh that's so cute, I want that one."

I told her that I though it was hideous.

She replied, "what are you talking about? It's so cute! It doesn't matter what you think, I'd do it for me..."

I said, "Don't be surprised if you ugly yourself up, quality men won't be interested."

The stigmas attached aren't overwhelmingly true- tattoos don't make you a slut, a party girl, adventurous, risk seeking.. but my god if my brain doesn't assume this anyway when I see one. I just can't help it. I'm totally turned off by them. I assume this is subconsciously.

How many guys here have had a noticeable improvement in women since joining TheRedPill?

20 upvotes · 14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Terrible advice. Hit the gym by day, read trp and pua by night.

Which one of you is this? Confess!

20 upvotes · 19 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It seems kinda trollish.

I'm worried about the future of the Manosphere

20 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a big delete button.

Dealing with Blue Pill Friends - Direct action taken against me

20 upvotes · 5 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Friends that cockblock will always cockblock. Just remember that when you're trying to pick up chicks.

"I feel like you're only allowed to be vulnerable up to a small point if you want to be with a women, and that vulnerability is preferably expressed via anger." (x-post /r/OneY)

20 upvotes · 28 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

From the sidebar "Of Love and War"

A Place to Rest

Peregrine John summed it up best on Jacquie's blog comments recently:

We want to relax. We want to be open and honest. We want to have a safe haven in which struggle has no place, where we gain strength and rest instead of having it pulled from us. We want to stop being on guard all the time, and have a chance to simply be with someone who can understand our basic humanity without begrudging it. To stop fighting, to stop playing the game, just for a while.

We want to, so badly.

If we do, we soon are no longer able to.

CNN supports 18yo woman accused of statutory rape of 14yo girlfriend. Top comment reads "If this was an 18yo male nobody would care that he is going to prison for 15 years." CNN deletes comment ... an

20 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

According to the plea deal document, during her probation, Hunt would have had to agree to stay away from the 14-year-old, and to provide her probation officer with immediate access to her Internet and telephone communication.

When men are convicted as sex offenders- a lot of times they don't even get internet access when they're out.

No, seriously, guize. Women can't get laid any easier than men.

20 upvotes · 17 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's funny how people on srd color everything they see. This guy points out that women can get laid easier than men- their interpretation? He's bitter.

While the very fact that it's hard to get laid might make somebody bitter- pointing out the fact that it's hard to get laid doesn't mean anybody's bitter.

That's entirely the reader's addition. If I had to pick who's bitter- it'd have to be the one assuming bitterness.

Glad I didn't listen to you guys

20 upvotes · 16 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Turns out we were wrong. I'm going to go to my local feminist chapter tonight. Anybody want a ride?

/u/tpiecer I'm calling you out.

20 upvotes · 3 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So because I disagree with the confusing mixture of things that you've thrown at me as a group I'm biased towards it?

Your reaction to disagree before understanding, not afterwards, is bias.

I'm sorry the material was incomprehensible too.

Most people here make a thread with a specific question when they come up against something they don't understand or think might be wrong.

If you define me simply asking what you believe and why as the 'complex question fallacy' then it's clear you don't really want a discussion at all as what I asked simply doesn't meet the criteria to be considered fallacious.

Ah, but that's not what you asked. You asked me "why I can't" assuming that I can't and that now I should defend why it is. It's a complex question fallacy because all answers would endorse your faulty assumption- that it can't be explained. Which is why I didn't answer it. Because that's playing your troll game. Which is what you are: a troll.

I'd ask the same about anything to anybody, it's about as neutral, unbiased and unloaded a question as I could make it.

I don't care if you'd ask the pope. It's still a fallacious question.

But if you have an issue with my question then what exactly should I be asking?

Well first of all, if you had any integrity, you'd be asked specific questions when you came across something you didn't understand instead of launching an attack against my sub by hijacking an entire thread.

Secondly you should start by addressing my challenge- the start of this debate: "Bring forward your most damning piece of evidence, your huge complaint that you find makes us so wrong."

You have done little, you are a troll with zero substance. You've come here to argue and detract from our conversation by spewing little else than your personal judgement on those that fail your tests, but make no mistake YOUR TESTS ARE FALLACIOUS AND DESIGNED TO BE FAILED.

I called you out, and outsmarted you. I'm sorry for your loss.

Pointed complex questions and their answers prove nothing, and your self righteous responses show me that you are not here to learn, not here to understand, you are here to troll.

This has been an exercise in showing just why we ban people like you. Understand that we do entertain real debate and questions here. We love to think and rethink all of our ideas. But what you've done is troll. You are a disgrace to public discourse, you are a disgrace to intelligence.

/u/tpiecer I'm calling you out.

20 upvotes · 3 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What have I disagreed with before learning it exactly?

You might have a good time playing stupid with others, but do not mistake me as a fool. You came here and challenged our community to both define and defend their views, and then acknowledged a confirmation of your expectation when nobody satisfied your inquiry. It's a contrary position regardless of your personal feelings. For the purpose of argument, you take the adversarial stance. One somebody without a personal bias, and with a genuine intrigue, would not have arrived with, which betrays your passively aggressive innocent tone. So drop it.

I've read your sidebar material and I've talked to other people in the forum but that doesn't tell me what you specifically believe nor does it really tell me what 'theredpill' is because the material is just a mixture of different topics and random anecdotes.

I'm sorry you were unable to comprehend the materials further.

Why can't you just answer what you believe and why?

Complex Question Fallacy

Feminist fakes her own rape threat, caught.

20 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the stupidest bunch of new-age bullshit that therapists repeat without understanding an ounce of psychology.

Obviously it's about sex. Violence is a form of power, and can be quite intoxicating, so yes, the violence is gratifying. Sexually. Because rape is about sex.

Harsh truth here... complaining about normal female behavior makes you sound like a loser. Stop whining about it.

20 upvotes · 28 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Cash prizes for one gender.

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

20 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I first discovered the manosphere with the google phrase, "why are women so narcissistic?"

SRS user becomes a spineless wimp who is afraid to approach women due to reading fempire subs, becomes frustrated by his lack of sexual success... but still doesn't get it.

20 upvotes · 20 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

He's being overly respectful cause of feminist bullshit he's been fed with and women call him a faggot and a looser behind his back for it.

He's exactly why we exist.

Oh god, TRP help this poor guy. Future wife is 100k in debt...

20 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Take a step back from the situation and re-evaluate marriage.

What benefit will the marriage provide you that you don't already have?

Consider the cons.

I convinced a friend not to get married today.

20 upvotes · 26 February 2013 · /r/MensRights

Well said. I'm actually quite intrigued by the recent ante upping that feminists have done with their language. Using the term "horrificing" when a casual discussion comes up, as if somehow something can be so ridiculous about it that it causes "horror" instead of what it really is- just a disagreement.

I've also seen recently "terrifying," "sad," and "violent" to describe things that are none of the three. Usually followed by the word misogynist, to top off the shame cake.

Anyway, I think you might enjoy /r/theredpill

Those moments

20 upvotes · 20 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

... and wildkard never spoke to another american woman again...

Are women unhappier because of money? [Watch the Entitlement & Hamster- Awesome ending]

20 upvotes · 5 February 2013 · /r/askTRP

Chris Rock:

Another thing fellas, DON'T ARGUE! You cannot win. You can never beat a woman in an argument, IT'S IMPOSSIBLE. Cuz man, we are handicapped when it comes to argument, cuz we have a need to MAKE SENSE~~ Women ain't got a lot of little thing like sense stuck up their argument. Cuz she ain't in it for sense, she's in it for distance and irritation.

"How long can I talk before this motherfucker snaps?"

Hypergamy

20 upvotes · 4 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She has openly admitted that she is more attracted to him, and that, if given the choice, she would choose to be with him now, because I'm essentially treating her like crap.

There is so much to this, I'm going to dissect this.

1 . The rationalization and blame.

In order to escape the cognitive dissonance that would normally occur if we were studying the psychology of a male, women will rationalize it to make it somebody else's fault. Look at me, I'm not happy, so it's a good thing I cheated!

But it gets worse- they will use future events to retro-rationalize. Look at this:

After my husband realized I was cheating, he started being distant. Look how mean he is to me. It's a good thing I cheated, because look at the man he is.

You hear women use the term "true colors" a lot, and that's because in their minds, what ever emotional state they currently reside in determines the true character of somebody. Circumstances be damned, because female hypergamy hinges on allowing women to break ties easily. If he's a jerk to me today, he must've always been a jerk. My actions are now justified.

2 . Rationalization of happiness

This brings me to point #2, the source of happiness. I've commented on this before but this is a great time to point it out.

What makes her happy is a nice alpha cock. It makes her wet and makes her (temporarily) happy. In order to best cope with the dissonance of what makes her happy and what the right thing to do is, women use their emotional state as justification for their actions. Like I mentioned above, she uses his reaction as justification for her actions- but this is even deeper:

Women are taught that following your heart makes you happy, and you should always follow your heart. When something makes them unhappy- it goes to reason that it couldn't be their fault, because they were following their heart, and following their heart makes them happy.

Following this terrible train of logic, the fact that she was unhappy was proof that the man was being "emotionally abusive," a term that I have heard every girl I've ever met use. It lacks meaning. The only reason they assume he's being emotionally abusive is because currently their situation is one in which she isn't happy. If she isn't happy, it can't be her fault, because she follows her heart. If she follows her heart, she'll be happy. So her current unhappiness must be his fault.

And look! He's being mean to me now that he knows I cheated! That's probably why I was getting unhappy in the first place. Look who he is today! Now he's showing his true colors!

The term rationalization hamster didn't pop up for nothing. It's a real thing, and it's integral to female hypergamy. Because frankly, logically, what women do is a terrible offense to the forebrain.

The rationalization hamster is how women resolve their lizard brain and their newly adapted logical forebrain. They don't grasp or embrace logic, instead they rationalize it away.

Hamsters going in askWomen - "I like doctors because they HELP people!" - a lie that always hits me on a personal note

20 upvotes · 1 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It serves the imperative to believe their hypergamous tendencies have moral and honorable causes.

Of course, if anybody needs saving, it's this guy. He can get pussy by saying he's a doctor. He should exploit that.

Training/finetuning an uncensored LLM AI model, with redpill ideology and it's core information

19 upvotes · 5 February 2024 · /r/TheRedPill

/u/mikrodizels I think the idea is neat and I personally have no idea how to do it.

But, if somebody wanted to do it, I am willing and able to get the full archive of this sub into human readable csv for an LLM to scan over. Would be really neat to see the results. We have hundreds of thousands of posts and millions of comments.

Reach out to me on trp.red chat if anybody has ideas.

Grandpa Glen's Guide To Being A Red Blooded American

19 upvotes · 16 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh shit

Our very own Itiswr1tten & VasiliyZaitzev Kicking off 2021

19 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Women are selective, men are selected.

Women's entire sexual strategy is to be discriminating. Men's' entire strategy hinges on quantity.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

19 upvotes · 29 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I think many people don't know where my predictions came from. I'll shed some light.

Censorship

It's already happening full scale. Domain registrars and data centers being used as censorship tools against anybody defending free speech. Twitter, Facebook, Reddit, youtube declaring certain topics are off the table, such as questioning fraud in an election. (Youtube is straight removing anybody suggesting fraud took place).

TRP itself has experienced so much censorship that about 5%-10% of the comments in this thread alone have been removed at risk of TRP being removed from reddit altogether. What's funny is, the list that we have to track isn't announced, we have to discover it when reddit admin decide they're cracking down on a new word or phrase. When we start getting members reporting the bans to us (or even one of our moderators), then we add it to the ever-growing list.

They do this, of course, to create justification for their eventual removal of us.

What did we do wrong? You don't silence a man who you are not afraid of what he says. The question is, what did we do right?

Cashless

Govt. has been cracking down hard on cash for as long as I can remember. Or really, any system that isn't the banking system.

Don't believe me? Look up civil forfeiture. The only way to safely transport large amounts of money is with checks / bank cards.

Want to buy a house? Go ahead and TRY cash. I want anybody here to seriously go into a bank and say you just saved your cash and get a mortgage. They won't do it. Look up "seasoned" money. It's another word for "in the system." Your cash isn't legitimate unless it's in the system.

That we're having a coin shortage and many large retailers are requiring credit cards is not a mistake.

Biden War

This one isn't nearly as bold as my other claims. We've been at war, as a country, for decades. This isn't some big bad march off to war with a draft and nationalizing the means of production. What I mean is, he will find a reason to begin strikes in Iran (or you choose, doesn't matter, right now Iran looks like the best target but whatever) because the uniparty exists to service the military industrial complex. Can't make money producing and getting contracts for war supply if we're not bombing anybody. This is more of an open secret, but I suspect between this and China, it's one of the reasons that the system itself is against Trump. The money stopped flowing.

Banks, Mastercard, Unpersoning

It's not really a prediction. It already began. The creator of Gab, whose sole intention is to challenge social media companies with a free-speech product can't get a bank account, can't take credit cards on his website. He's been unpersoned for his stand on free speech.

The leader of the proud boys has also fallen victim to financial censorship.

Tons of right-wing creators have been purged from sites such as paypal or patreon.

The writing is on the wall for this one. It's only a matter of time.

Stop reading TRP

19 upvotes · 1 January 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Sometimes I assume there are trolls here trying to make us look insane.

I wouldn't take anybody seriously who feeds shit to their girl. Unless it's their fetish, my guess is they're lying.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

19 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I will be making an archive download available in the coming weeks.

The Extra Chromosome 21 Convention

19 upvotes · 2 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Rollo's a good guy and he does a lot for the manosphere. He definitely doesn't spend much time engaging in comments when he posts here, but he makes up for it by presenting a consistent and well written blog. The books are icing if you want to buy them, but by no means is that the only value he provides.

His choice in company is a little off putting in this case but I don't think there's any reason to jump on him. My beef is with Dream.

I suspect his support of C21 is a lot like his support of other endeavors (including TRP.RED) in that he wants to see the manosphere grow. But I would like to hear from him regarding this behavior from one of his compatriots.

Wanted to share my thoughts after reading No More Mr Nice Guy

19 upvotes · 4 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

But you know better than to do that.

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

19 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Why the fuck do y'all not have any ethical guidance whatsoever for your guys?

What our culture calls ethics has been used for a long time to control men's (and women's) behavior.

Men, being the expendable gender, are often shamed and ethically compelled to perform acts that are not in his own best interest for the good of others. (women, children, society).

So of course we're wary of somebody waving around a control stick like that.

Just another AWALT story for your reading pleasure

19 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Alpha fucks, beta bucks.

Whether or not you know it, you were signaling the beta bucks. And you might have had the perfect balance of alpha fucks (who knows) but women are keen to keep looking for higher alpha sperm (hypergamety). After 4 years she may very well wonder what happens if she dabbles with some of the guys who have been giving her looks this past 4 years.

In her mind, she already knows she can bag a provider. She might think this is a given. She will be surprised in 10 years when she's got the thousand cock stare and no one like you to pick her up.

Trust me, your experience is very similar to mine in my early twenties.

This is what happens when the older generation of women don't explain the wall to the younger generation.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

19 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

At least they're being consistent. Censorship on a pro-censorship board.

Why TRP can not stop Feminism

19 upvotes · 9 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Y'all are some pussies if you're afraid of feminists (and chicks in general).

I'm not afraid of women. I'm afraid of the men who take orders from the women. You know, the guys with guns called the government.

"You have to understand. Most people are not ready to be unplugged. And many of them are so inured and so hopelessly dependent on the system that they will fight to protect it." Cognitive dissonance-whenver bias prevents someone from even considering an alternative view let alone weigh the merits.

19 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Skip vegetables too, 100% mortality rate.

On Alpha & Beta, and the misuse of these terms.

19 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

They describe traits and behaviors. If you use them to describe people, you lose a lot of nuance.

Our working definitions (in the sidebar) mention that if you use shorthand to refer to somebody as "alpha" or "beta" you're referencing their net balance of said traits.

Marriage is BP, stop revering it.

19 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

You can start a family without making the state a third party to your agreement.

askTRP Megathread August 30

19 upvotes · 30 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Should I send my ex gf a happy birthday text?

Nope.

Rollo Tomassi – 2 lectures at the 21 Convention

19 upvotes · 26 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm guessing the expected number of guests won't be quite high enough to cover the expenses at lower costs, but you can certainly register sooner for less.

I don't think anybody here is making out with any extra cash except their plane tickets and something to cover their time off of work.

Thundercock Frame Control

19 upvotes · 1 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

We've always had both. That's why the flairs exist.

The Red Pill Right

19 upvotes · 4 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I think most here lean libertarian, but I will say that anybody who thinks the free market fixes absolutely everything, including things with limited supply or unlimited demand (for instance the radio spectrum, roads, or healthcare) without any regulation is drinking koolaid.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

19 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

By all means, make a reasoned argument.

Women are Children.

19 upvotes · 22 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It has nothing to do with maturity. It has everything to do with the fact that women (and men for that matter) will occupy the space of the container they are within.

If you let somebody act spoiled, they will do so.

Men are contained by social responsibility and consequence.

Women are not.

The expectations and consequences women face are that of children, making them effectively children.

The Sexodus in action: millennials are having less sex.

19 upvotes · 4 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Women could go from 1% to 2% and men from 50% to 100%. It's both a 100% increase, but don't pretend it's the same increase.

Get rid of unrealistic social expectations to alleviate loneliness

19 upvotes · 27 July 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If you think the post doesn't belong on TRP or is low-effort, click report. If you think it does, but dislike it, click downvote.

But don't clog up my sub with whining.

Introducing Married Red Pill Flair

19 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Someone's who's facing down a bear doesn't need advice on how to stay away from bears in mating season, they need advice on how to escape a bear.

Exactly!

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

19 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Not really. The feminine imperative is integral to our species.

Hillary's Top Donor Just Bought The Onion — Started Publishing Propaganda Immediately

19 upvotes · 19 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

That's fine, just proves my point.

No, this doesn't prove your point.

You thought making a comment about Jews was going to get you downvoted or removed, but you couldn't do it without concern trolling, of course you're getting removed for breaking the rules.

I left this as a record so that you can't cry censorship when the big bad mods removed your useless bullshit.

If you break the rules, you get removed.

I'm starting to think the mods of this sub are fat jewish women that just want "equality". Pretty crazy.

You are one strike from a ban. And when you go crying because you think it's about Jews, I'll point people to this thread where you were simply trolling.

The world is scared of men congregating. Red Pill state of affairs 2016

19 upvotes · 5 February 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

MGTOW gives us more power. I embrace it.

James Deen Breaks His Silence: 'I Am Completely Baffled' by Rape Allegations

19 upvotes · 8 December 2015 · /r/MensRights

Those women get publicity, including the woman who made the original allegation - she drove people to her website. According to James himself, some of these women were offered cash to give their stories.

But there is no punishment or crime levied against them if they lied.

So, yeah, think about it. It's nuts.

I animated some RedPill side-bar content. Hypergamy, Shit-Tests, AWALT.

19 upvotes · 14 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill neither did /u/GayLubeOil[2] [+11]'s virtual training program ($19.99, available from all good retailers).

At least give him a fair shake, if you call now you get a free bathrobe.

Woman thinks her guy friend is being an 'asshole' because he's no longer doing nice things for her after she rejected him.

19 upvotes · 12 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Not just "is he one of those nice guys!?"

but rather:

Was he really just an asshole all along only pretending to be nice to get in my pants?

In a woman's world, current circumstances and emotions define objective reality. If he's not nice now, then he must have always been an asshole. He was always this way, she just didn't see it.

Notice women talk like this all the time. Especially after breakups.

"He was always an asshole, I just didn't see it."

Sure, toots, that's why you fucked him for three years.

Remember the guy who dumped his fiance because she would only hold his hand after being raped but fucked her co-worker? Well here's the update...

19 upvotes · 22 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

They respond immediately to cure the immediate itch- which is that an ultimatum exists. But the emotional impact and consequences may be further down the line. You might not see it, but it will not be an effective long term strategy. She may do what it takes to keep you from leaving right then and there- but that doesn't mean you've affected her attraction to you. You haven't. How she feels won't be modified in the same way as real dread.

I've always had a bit of a thing with dread game, because I'm not sure if it's the chicken leading or the egg.

Essentially, dread is supposed to convey that you have options and you can take them.

But that's also a portion of what preselection is based off of- the idea that you have options conveys that you are attractive to other women. Women are attracted to men who other women are attracted to.

So having an aloof attitude and getting fit will demonstrate to her that you have options, but ultimately you have options because you have an aloof attitude and you got fit.

But nevertheless, none of these things is trying to negotiate attraction. Which does not work. And that's what an ultimatum is.

Men Just Don't Trust Women -- And It's A Huge Problem [HuffPo male hamster comes close to RP truth]

19 upvotes · 8 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As a participant in the conversation, do I act without authenticity by accepting the other's duplicity and responding in kind? How can I in good conscience use language for deceit and coercion?

I think the problem is assuming that this system in which you exist cares about your good conscience.

If morality stated that only sinners drink water, only the immoral would survive. At what point would you start wondering what place morality has in a system that rewards those who do not follow it.

In other words, you're trying to fit your new findings - that people are duplicitous by nature, and trying to squeeze it into an old world view- that being duplicitous is bad and you will be rewarded for being good.

There is one code that I tend to live by- and that is one of success and personal value. Within my world view I value honesty, integrity, and honor... among men. These are values that when embraced provide me success and value to my person. And it happens that being cooperative with other men is beneficial to me (and they find the reciprocity beneficial too). I tend to consider these traits good rather than bad because they benefit me, not because they are ethical. Although they do happen to coincide with many's understandings of ethics, it's because people found it beneficial to adopt these values as ethical, and not the other way around.

So why embrace such values with those who do not? They do not provide you value, nor success. Does failure equate to being moral? If so, you may want to reevaluate your moral framework, and take a good look for who might be profiting from you falling on your sword. Answer that and you'll figure out your ethical dilemma.

Update to LTR going to PCB for spring break

19 upvotes · 28 March 2015 · /r/askTRP

Absolutely next. Any chick that lets her friends talk to me that way is GONE.

100,000

19 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We have been working to remove all but the best quality posts so that won't be a problem.

Patrice O'Neal: What If All Men Had 10 000$ And Women Got It By Sex

19 upvotes · 25 November 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is just your standard run-of-the-mill exceptionalist nea-sayer looking to disagree with the forest because of a few trees.

Yes, there are men out there who like to wear dresses, and there are women who like to pee standing up.

Back to the point at hand- do not mistake a few outliers for a trend.

That would be why they don't hire women - On male spaces and feminine-primary imperative

19 upvotes · 27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

From the article:

Notice how her priority at her INTERNSHIP was not learning how to do her job, but changing the firm to better meet with her approval.

Read also, Rollo's take on this:

The cover story is the same trope the Feminine Imperative (and its social arm, feminism) always finds useful; the never ending push towards gender equalism. The practice however reveals the push into male space serves two purposes – social control and male oversight.

Social control is the easier of the two to grasp. Even when changing the rules of an all-male game to accommodate a lack of genuine female interest in a male endeavor, it fundamentally alters the nature of that game. The first woman allowed participation in that game is novelty enough to extend the Feminine Imperative's social control into that male space (i.e. "nowadays women do it too").

Girls Don't Deserve Good Men

19 upvotes · 4 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't think about whether they deserve good men. Try to accept that many don't want one.

Well said. ♂

Thanks to that EMSK post, The Red Pill has experienced its second biggest membership spike ever and is now a trending subreddit.

19 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

People follow your history and will downvote perfectly fine posts because they see you here. Get enough downvotes everywhere and they think you're a troll. Shadowban. I see it happen a lot.

Guy and his wife living in bliss until she gets pregnant, then he finds out what he's really married to

19 upvotes · 13 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A cheat or a liar, seems like a lose/lose to keep her around.

Seeing misandry everywhere is getting to me.

19 upvotes · 12 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This is where the true test of your learned sociopathy will come into play. You must be willing and able to speak like the people you hate. Even if you don't ape their platitudes word for word, you must make your own ideas palatable enough for them to swallow, lest you reveal yourself as an outlier and adversary.

To expand on this- don't consider it learned sociopathy, consider it mental discipline. Men throughout all of history knew how and when to hold their tongues, and when not to. Your outward appearance and behavior are the way you communicate with the world- why wouldn't you want to be in complete control of the message you're sending?

♂

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

19 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Quotes like "Women never age mentally past the age of two" make us look horrible and it is 100% misogynistic. However I do support the message behind the words.

I don't talk about it much, but some of the reasons I keep it in the sidebar might surprise you. For instance, I find it helps weed out the people who don't understand metaphors, don't know how to keep an open mind, and won't handle information that offends their sensibilities. Are women literally two year olds? No. But any man who reads this will already understand this. The people getting pissed off at this have no place here. This helps me weed them out.

The fact is, there is a certain level of hyperbole in masculine writing and communication. It uses this hyperbole to get points across. Not that women are actually children, but putting yourself in this mindset helps you understand rollo's idea of amused mastery. Sometimes you need something shocking to jump-start your understanding, and then you can extrapolate on this information and come to your own understanding.

The red pill is nothing if you don't apply it and understand it for yourself.

Tinderfessions! It's like watching the cock carousel go round and round and round and round... (feat. the Minority-Report-Hamster!)

19 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it represents a small defeat when you accept it for a lot of men looking forward to starting a family..

Design Changes

19 upvotes · 1 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't understand? Try giving it a swallow! Let's get rid of men's and women's bathrooms! We are all equal and the same! ONE BATHROOM FOR ALL!

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

19 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't thank just me-

/u/pillpaxton

/u/bsutansalt

/u/SoftHarem

/u/redpill_factory

/u/MachiavellianRed

Are all here shouldering the load.

Tits or GTFO

19 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's just a heavy preference towards post modern discussion- who you are matters more than what you say..

Whereas the manosphere typically leans the other way- the content of what you say is important, who you are isn't.

Gonewild Culture and Prostitution

19 upvotes · 13 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

So, nothing to explain, makes perfect sense that women are the selective gender. Not sure you really belong over at TBP.

My S/O and I have started reading TRP and it's affecting both of us. What angle do I take this from?

19 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Which explains why your exes seem like completely different people after they meet somebody else.

27-year-old fair maiden named "boozemunkee" is mystified why she can't find a man who wants more than sex and to settle down with her. r/relationships dons their white armor and rides to the rescue.

19 upvotes · 18 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it shows risk seeking behavior. I'm not interested in somebody who throws caution to the wind, I'm interested in somebody conservative to have my kids.

A Note on "Real" Alphas

19 upvotes · 21 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Well it's true, we use the terms as shorthand to denote somebody with more of one type of trait than the other. A beta is a guy who displays overwhelmingly beta traits.

But in the context of users here, it serves no purpose to label each other.

If somebody has bad advice, explain why the advice is bad, don't get into a pissy argument about who's the manliest man in the thread.

okcupid shows how ego-centric women are.

19 upvotes · 21 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Count how many list bi-sexual.

I'm not part of the Manosphere am I?

19 upvotes · 6 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The hell is this bullshit?

Reminder: A lot of people hate TRP. That means a lot of trolls.

19 upvotes · 26 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup

This is my [beta?] story. I would have never told it in any form, ever, if I had not just found this particular subreddit. You're the only people worth recounting this tale to, and the only ones with an opinion I would hear. [long] [shitty writing]

19 upvotes · 18 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I am emotionally invested in every plate I spin. Nothing wrong with that. I love all the women!

Notice: GWW will be on the Tom Leykis show tonight (6pm EST)

19 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I do. She's awesome.

TIL "hypergamy" is not defined as "prefers lots of male options"

19 upvotes · 15 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The idea can be extrapolated. Women want high status. If she locates a 6 that she can obtain, then her 5 no longer has value. If she can get a 7, then that 6 loses value.

And once she gets that 8 during the summer fling while she's in her prime, every single guy she will ever be able to snag post-wall will never measure up, and she'll be bitter and hate you for it.

There Will be Gold

19 upvotes · 12 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This post was started in light of this:

<http://i.imgur.com/4YTPRu5.png>

Folks, never hurts to be valuable.

Let's see the rule "Alpha Fucks, Beta Bucks" in real life

19 upvotes · 8 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

We are actually very careful to avoid participation unless the discussion is about us specifically. Sometimes subs share users.

X-Post from Men's Rights: Why We Should Care that Ken Hoinsky Has Been Branded a Rapist

19 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The worst part of this is :

<http://www.glamour.com/sex-love-life/blogs/smitten/2013/06/my-date-with-the-author-of-the.html>

The fact that he actually decides that feminists should be able to censor and re-write the tutorial, as if women were the target audience of a seduction manual.

Pro-tip: If they have any say over this book, the book will be entirely useless for its intended cause: seduction.

This is feminism at its core: censorship. The feminine imperative must be upheld and preserved. Anything that might be effective at giving leverage to men must be undermined.

Shame tactics are used here. We've already established that this book does not advocate rape, so once you understand that the real activity here is glaring. If the book isn't advocating rape, why does the book need to be changed? If you want to know the true point of feminism, look no further than the answer to that question.

Week 16: Never ask for permission

19 upvotes · 13 June 2013 · /r/becomeaman

Should we also post "don't put crayons in your anus" to cover all our bases?

Don't play stupid.

Hetro Man / Man Marriage, as a "mutual defense pact" ?

19 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Son-of-man and I were talking about starting a resort for retiring red pill men who might not have a spouse to take care of them. We'll set up some sort of tax system and collect a small amount from all red pill members and then we can all retire in peace. Oh, and the nurses at the resort would be hot.

Also- don't marriages need to be consummated to be considered a marriage?

Woman dumps a good man, realizes she hit the wall, now wants him back

19 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Love the advice giver pulling no punches.

When to give up?

19 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Search terms: oneitis, plate theory, read sidebar, next her.

This is why nobody here takes our critics seriously. Feminists take note.

19 upvotes · 23 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What really gets me is this debate style they keep using, where they go into the argument with the preconceived notion that we're misogynists, so the argument can't go anywhere because they lead their argument with their conclusion.

What on Earth is r/TheRedPill?

19 upvotes · 9 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

So did you read my comment here? It's this blatant disregard for context that you have here that got you banned. Your kneejerk reactions betray you. Your inability to engage on a cerebral level is why you're not welcome.

Perfect example of what happens when you allow yourself to become beta in a relationship

19 upvotes · 29 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What?

TheUltimateBeta

Well.. I guess.. uh.. carry on?

Redditor finds out girlfriend has been cheating on him (with delicious diary entries)

19 upvotes · 11 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I believe you're not a beta. But you were definitely being beta.

And no offense, mate, we've all been there. I remember one time I begged a woman to come back. I just didn't get it. There I was, not understanding that she could change over night. I thought true love could be forever. And so it just didn't make sense that I was still in love and she could just turn it off- like a switch.

I really didn't get it.

And I was naturally very alpha- that's how I got her. I was cocky, good looking. I had it going on.

But at the end of the day, in the relationship, the beta took over. I wasn't consciously aware of my alpha status before, so I was equally unaware when my beta tendencies cropped up.

Anyway I'm glad you're doing well for yourself now. I hope you'll stick around on the red pill.

Regarding being a loving loyal boyfriend, I'd recommend checking out these links.. I hope you read them:

Women in Love

Men in Love

Of Love and War

Interesting experiment on askmen/askwomen about censorship...

19 upvotes · 27 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

They apparently thought "men's rights" and "red pill" referred to the subs and not the entire category of blogs/subs that identify that way.

It's like blocking somebody referencing rock music because there's a sub called rock music.

It's like blocking somebody referencing feminism because there are subs related to feminism.

Man those women are damn afraid of criticism. Can't handle some real discussion, ladies? For all the accusations that everything I say is a lie, you're not doing much to disprove any of my points.

"The War On Men" - A breath of fresh air from the mainstream media, I'd say.

19 upvotes · 19 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I unwittingly became part of this movement, even back in my blue pill days. I didn't see any value to marriage. Slowly I stopped even seeing value in exclusive relationships. Then I stumbled across the manosphere and realized that many many men all individually came to the same conclusions themselves.

"The problem is...." - taken from RooshVforum thread

19 upvotes · 16 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll let this stay up, but in the future please no direct linking to images. Include it as part of your text. We don't want to turn into a meme sub.

YOU ARE BEING LIED TO. The Content You See Here is Selectively Edited by SJWs to Prevent You From Taking The Red Pill.

18 upvotes · 28 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

Lol you guys post about trying to get pussy. Who cares?

Isn't that a fascinating question? You're right. Who cares? ... and Why do they care so much?

Andrew Tate is not your friend

18 upvotes · 23 August 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not even just that we got too much attention, it's that Reddit admin knew how to chop off our outreach so fresh eyes and ideas slowed.

We're still here, and in a few non-reddit places.

But the mainstream folks to flocked to tik tok, youtube, heck even twitter... it's a different world of watered down nonsense.

I've had conversations with some of our old guard who have migrated to more politically correct platforms. They wanted to distance themselves from the ehem misogyny we had here so they don't suffer the same fate.

The problem for me is, the message is in the medium itself. The war on language is why we are here.

They seek to control our language. Don't let them.

18 upvotes · 17 June 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

This is an incredibly myopic take, if you think this won't affect you in the future.

Right this very moment, you are participating on a subreddit dedicated to ideas that are forbidden to speak about candidly. They've done everything they can, short of completely removing us- quarantine, blocked from google search, list of forbidden keywords that auto-ban you and are removed, banning asktrp, banning multiple moderators, etc.

All of this is a fight over language. We are being told we cannot communicate with other men. It is happening right now.

You might be fine in your little bubble. But many men who have not had the advantage of finding TRP in the past will find themselves lost without communication with other men.

I don't like the looks of a future in which we can't engage in this conversation. Understand that the way things are going, places like this won't be able to speak.

2022 Predictions for the new year (Warning: Politics)

18 upvotes · 28 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

A freedom payment processor would change the game entirely.

TRP.RED could start accepting payments and do more with the community such as offer tips / credits to authors from the community a la patreon style.

Masculinity is not toxic, the lack of masculinity is.

18 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/PurplePillDebate

There's little upside to emotionality, but there's plenty of downside.

Precisely the issue.

The first time a boy cries at school he learns never to cry at school.

If you're lucky, you learn that lesson by proxy.

The Great Reddit Exodus

18 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Something worth noting, we spent some time a few months back working with a few testers revising our forums.red search utility.

The results have gotten MUCH MUCH better.

Example: guide to managing your bitches

And you can search the entire history of TheRedPill, which google will not because of the quarantine.

Beta Forums Live - FORUMS.RED

18 upvotes · 21 August 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

We recognized the need for more off-the-cuff twitter style, less serious communications. So we cloned twitter on trp.red.

But there was always demand for threaded, serious discussion and we created forums.red for such a task.

You can create a "tribe" which can be a public or private group or topic. The membership for a tribe carries over between the trp.red tribe and forums.red forum.

False Rape Accusations Advice Megathread

18 upvotes · 6 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

If somehow it gets traced back to you, I think the risk greatly outweighs the rewards on that.

Meeting Place: TRP.RED askTRP

18 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/askTRP

Book mark this now

TRP.RED TRIBES - What are Tribes? Info and Demonstrations

18 upvotes · 30 September 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

You can follow r/theredpill to answer the question of whether a dedicated platform is necessary. I say yes, but feel free to stay here long after we've been banned.

As far as monetary gain is concerned, I don't know what hit you kids in the head to make you so dumb that you actually think capitalism is bad, but regardless, TRP.RED is something we've been working on at a loss for a long time to protect men's interests. We run almost entirely off donations. We also sell ads but they don't cover anywhere close to a fraction of our operating costs.

TRP.RED is and will always be free.

Feel free to donate on our patreon <https://www.patreon.com/trpred>

Women will prove AWALT out of nowhere.

18 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

If he was thinking - hey maybe I'll get back together with her, then sure, go for shock.

But you just want to move on? I don't see any reason to rub it in.

Announcing: OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY* WED 2/13 : "The biggest brawl of ill-conceived multi-colored pill metaphors baked into the biggest smackdown medicine cocktail since John Belushi discovered heroin."

18 upvotes · 6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Too much apologies on PPD. They need to see deep red guys answer some hard hitting questions.

Question regarding male SMV

18 upvotes · 22 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think TRP does not understand that being your mom isn't sexy.

I don't think I've seen that suggested.

If I have to tell you to pickup after yourself or do it for you I'm not attracted to you.

If you rather tell him to do something than clean up for him, you didn't really care much for him in the first place.

The women I've dated want to be useful. They go out of their ways to show their value.

I'm not turned off because I nagged you to do the dishes and you listened and are thus subservient to me. I'm turned off because your lazyness makes me nag.

You nag because you're turned off. But I betcha it's less to do with being a slob and more to do with overall loss of attraction, being a slob may be part of it.

What TRP talks about is different. If I'm working to pay the bills, I expect you to cook and clean. That's not being a slob. That's accepting roles in our relationship. And when a woman truly respects a man, she doesn't complain about it.

Gillette advertisement on being better men.

18 upvotes · 15 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I've heard of women beating their child just to frame it on dad.

Commodity Fetishism

18 upvotes · 7 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

The post removal was nothing about that. It was reddit TOS related.

How To Prepare Our Sons for the Matriarchy

18 upvotes · 26 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This sort of realization may take a few generations. At least one generation of mothers who realize what they did wrong.

Paul Elam "[The Red Pill are] saving lives, yes, it's needed badly. I wanted to go on the public record of saying how much I opposed this quarantine they need to lift that thing."

18 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

A big voice in the Men's Rights movement. Runs A Voice for Men (among other sites) and was featured in The Red Pill Movie.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

18 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We've got a backup ready to go, complete with social media and backups of high-scoring threads.

Don't forget to bookmark <https://trp.red>

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

18 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Both of my posts got a score of 0.

If need be, I will disable all posting and sticky every damn post I make.

Building Power & Your Tribe

18 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

"Bros before hoes" is a 100% myth. Being a leader of men is completely overrated. I surround myself with ladies and never been happier. What you guys are talking about is a dream world.

Very true. I often like talking about hair-dos, bra shopping, celebrities, and that bitch Stacy.

And when we're done we often talk about philosophy because it's a gal's night out and that's the topic du jour!

Building Power - The brainstorm

18 upvotes · 12 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Specifically, are you against the "no overt association" idea?

I think there are still protections you must put into place. Individual tribes may be safe to discuss everything with no limits, but only because you trust each other.

The discussions that take place here today are still not safe for a group of strangers, even ones gathered under the same banner. (all it takes is one spy and the media will go nuts!)

I think as we build our power, being a man will become less and less a liability in the future. I mean, you can't be attacked by the media if you own your own business and your customers are part of your larger tribe.

Women are utterly incapable of loving a man in the way that a man expects to be loved. In the same respect.. women can't actualize how a man would have himself loved.. the moment he attempts to explain his ideal love, that's the point at which his idealization becomes her obligation.

18 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Sure. I love my puppy too. Doesn't mean I will look to her as a mother.

Sometimes an exchange is just too good to let die when we remove entire threads. "An Angry Spergle appears!"

18 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Discussion that was removed was titled "Why has TRP become so overcomplicated?"

The posters' point was "why all the theories bros? Just have some self respect. How is that hard?"

"Young Americans Are Killing Marriage: Millennials are lagging behind on the traditional markers of adulthood"

18 upvotes · 6 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

If you have kids, you will be on the hook for the kids no matter what. That's kind of what you're signing up for when you want kids.

If you don't want kids, don't do it.

The Red Pill Right

18 upvotes · 4 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't personally care about LGBT. If they wanna do themselves in weird positions with a weird mix of genders and whatnot, so be it.

I see no reason why it matters to me, nor do I see a reason it should be part of our discourse.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

18 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

They are so clueless about how TRP works, that they actually believe their men in real life to be significantly different than the type of man that leaves here into the world.

Men today act too 'aloof'

18 upvotes · 29 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm referring to the botched caricature of stoicism that a lot of members here toss around, in which men don't simply hold frame, but actively become antisocial.

Holding frame is important when somebody is throwing nuke shit tests at you, but a lot of guys forget you need to do something to bring them into your frame to begin with!

Trolls, concern trolls, and the way we weed you out.

18 upvotes · 28 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Hate to be devil's advocate, but the people who didn't read the last post or missed its point entirely will probably do the same here. We can't save anyone other than ourselves, even if they've already found TRP... Or learned to read.

Well of course they'll miss it here too. But they're banned so they'll do it quietly. Heh.

Sexual Terrorists

18 upvotes · 9 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Most men in this forum are young. I am Father Time, and I am old. I have seen many of man's societies fall to ruin.

Men build civilizations, and women destroy them. It is man's nature to build and protect, and women's to take and distribute.

The so called Western Civilization was doomed the moment females were given the franchise, for they do not have the best interests of said civilization at heart, having had no part in building it. No, women see the surplus of civilization as a bounty of nature, one to be shared with all according to her whimsy, not the fortress built upon the decayed corpses of billions of men throughout history.

Young men, learn from me, and do not make this mistake. There is no middle ground, no compromise, no dialogue. Women in power will always lead to ruin, for it signals the weakness of men. Weak men are ripe for colonization by stronger men. Such is our way.

End female franchise. It is your only hope.

Wish I could sticky comments like this. There is no middle ground. Truth.

Extended trailer for "The Red Pill", the movie about men that feminists didn't want you to see

18 upvotes · 13 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Part of me hopes that she does such a piss poor job that men's rights folks wake up a little.

But I'm more certain that she'll be able to co-opt the message in a covert way that gets their support and lets her polish the message and tone to her liking.

As Rollo has always said, this is what happens when you let women into male spaces.

This is exactly the effect we've been discussing for three years on the red pill.

We didn't lose our minds and suddenly sell out to a feminist woman over this- instead, I want to watch it happen as a learning experience as to how predictive our theories really are.

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

18 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

We have our banhammers ready.

[Mod] Spam policy and the shameless self promotion issue

18 upvotes · 8 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

redpillschool is like Steve Jobs without the fame. Total fucking visionary that has silently guided the trajectory of this community from the shadows.

You flatter me, IM. If anything though, I'm bill gates. Wasn't my idea, but I made it accessible to more people in my garage with a soldering iron. Also I need help with my metaphors.

Benevolent alpha wonders why ' My[30m] fwb[29f] broke down crying saying that she "is wasting away her life sucking dick". '

18 upvotes · 8 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Quick note on how sex is empty if it doesn't get a woman resources or commitment of some sort. We have finally arrived at the point where responsibility is taken away so far you shouldn't even listen to her anymore. If she literally says "I want you to have sex with me", you should have inferred that because of her CC history, she really doesn't (I wonder how this works if you reverse it- Oh wait that's called rape). Being a woman, Kelly Cumslut is deemed incapable of making her own decisions and expressing her own wants. Chad should be one step ahead of her own mind and basically the first time she went on her knees to blow him (probably 30 minutes after meeting him) he should have stopped her and went on HIS knees and propose to her instead.

Very insightful. Blue pill culture is one in which all sex that doesn't pay women is considered wrong and taking advantage. Because deep down, women know sex is transactional.

Well apparently the worlds largest cuckold checking in.

18 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

Please do take some time to read the side bar on /r/theredpill.

Some articles of special importance (Aside from the reformed incel) :

Everything under "New Here?"

and

Women in Love

Men in Love

Of Love and War

Schedules of Mating

A Failure in Understanding (or Please Ignore My Immoral Behavior)

18 upvotes · 19 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Waste no more time arguing about what a good man should be. Be one.

Good is a relative term, it means something different to each of us.

It makes no sense to avoid defining good, because if you just go off half-cocked, you won't know what the shit you're doing.

Each and every person has to decide what moral framework they care about and how they want to live. Decide what you want to be good.

Just remember at the end of the day, there's no reward waiting for you in heaven when you self-sacrifice for the sake of "goodness" while Chad Thundercock is cleaning up at the bars. One begins to wonder, whose rules are we following when the ultimate outcome is a sacrifice for you and a net gain for everybody else?

Sure you don't want to be that way, and that's your choice. Nobody's going to make it for you. But to be truly awake to the world, you must know who you controls you.

Amy Schumer admits to raping a guy, feminists support her, /r/askfeminists decide the guy raped her...

18 upvotes · 29 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't know about standup, but I've always found Tina Fey's writing to be darn funny- 30 rock is one of my favorite shows.

But for each Tina Fey there's at least thirty guys equally as good at their job.

Why women hate porn

18 upvotes · 9 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

As far as a majority of US based porn is concerned, I think you'll find most are more than willing participants. The sex-trafficking rings are over-sensationalized and marginalize people's agency in general.

Like- I'll lose my apartment and car if I lose my job too. Doesn't mean I'm being trafficked.

The red pill are a bunch of bigots who can't get laid.

18 upvotes · 20 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you don't see them post here, but act like retards everywhere else... Maybe they're not from here but are trying to spread a different image of us?

/r/TheRedPill hits 90K subscribers

18 upvotes · 4 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I task you with the job of calling them on their shit.

"I've done all the RedPill shit, but girls still don't want me. What now?" I'll tell you.

18 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Discussion of sexual strategy. Do not lie to yourself. You want pussy and you are here to learn how to get it. Don't sugar coat it with nonsense. Seddit died because it was flooded with posts just like this.

♂

/r/TheRedPill and Manosphere.com are proud to Announce - #NoNothingNovember - a self discipline challenge to get rid of your vices for a month

18 upvotes · 28 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

After the end of november, We will post another thread with people's final progress, and voting will begin.

If you need a place to track your progress, and you don't have a blog, consider:

- Twitter, use hashtag #nonothingnovember
- Use this subreddit to post your progress: /r/nonothingnovember

/u/kidstrangelove, please put this in your post!

Women are Incapable of Change.

18 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I am sexist, I don't deny it. Go on.

Edit: Actually, I'm going to address part of this:

you you only meet women like this, you might want to re-examine your dating pool

Classic shame tactic, and classic misdirection and hypoagency. If women are acting this way.. it's still your fault, you're not doing something right.

Just take a minute to think about what you just said in relation to my post.

The impossible thing that EMSK is advocating: romance without chastity

18 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

...and the state has provided the security. Women don't need men when the govt can provide for them.

[MOD] If you fail the reading test, I will ban you

18 upvotes · 22 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

people say things like the quote in question and that is the first thing that I read about TRP I would be very hesitant to give it a fresh look with my own eyes.

That's the point. If you're that easily swayed by public opinion, we're not really interested in your participation.

I don't believe the TRP theory to be at its core misogynistic but I do believe that the writing in the article in question can be seen as misogynistic.

I agree that if there were a perfect representation of red pill theory, it would reflect reality and therefore could not be considered misogynistic.

That said, the literary devices used to convey information from men to men will always be considered misogynistic, because that's how we learn. That's how we communicate.

Women have always tried to take over male spaces and make them "more appropriate."

This is something I simply won't entertain. We are not here to make others feel good about us. We are here to discuss ideas that we think need discussing. Those who are turned off by it can exit. Men have always had a form of communication that women haven't understood.

Again, it makes no sense to try to appease them, when they will never have our goals in mind. Our goal is the discussion of red pill knowledge and discussion in a male space.

If my goal was to make this information mainstream, I might consider your points. But this is not my goal. In fact, I believe this goal (to make it mainstream) would fly entirely in the face of our message, and would modify it beyond recognition.

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

18 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Let go of the notion that you should respect women the way you respect men. Instead, appreciate them for what they are... women.

Feminist claims to have PTSD from mean twitter comments and is actively trying to get military vets fired for calling her out for it - [5:01] (x-post /r/military)

18 upvotes · 17 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Trigger warnings trigger me.

Hold on, I got another call on the other line...

18 upvotes · 27 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Of course, the problem becomes- how far do you push this line before losing return? In some markets this might display your high value, while in others it may just lose you all your leads.

A woman past the wall actually admits it exists, found it downvoted to controversial in a women's subreddit.

18 upvotes · 31 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

99%. It's so obvious that the NY Times did an op-ed expose video on it.

Are men really disadvantaged in the "Sexual Marketplace"?

18 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I have vague memories of some comment I read. It was a man pointing out that most men are far less picky about what they want in a partner.

To me, this suggests a tendency to view women as interchangeable.

The problem is that when you get rejected as much as men do, you can't really afford to be very picky. I have standards, I won't date a 4, would like an 8, but will approach most 6's and up, because.. let's face it.. we face a lot of rejection.

Your entire premise is based on the idea that there is "the" woman available. This is really crappy for a guy who thinks that, only to get turned down.

The Red Pill Best of 2013

18 upvotes · 18 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

And most modest!

Does this really work?

18 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I would argue that reading this to improve your sex life is perfectly valid.

So you're new to the Red Pill & think that we hate women? Think again...

18 upvotes · 11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's become so cliché that we talk about other people thinking we hate women more than we talk about hating women! Let's get back to it men! I hate women they are dumb and stupid!! RIGHT???

On a more serious note, I've always maintained that it is feminists and white knights that objectify women:

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/1c9ngz/only_white_knights_women_and_feminists_objectify/

Exeter University student named 'Britain's horniest student' - bangs 3 guys a week, gets called out in comments, and the white knights rise up

18 upvotes · 15 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah take that herp with pride!@

Why does TRP get so much hate from other men? You would think they would be grateful that there are groups who are standing up for their rights...

18 upvotes · 28 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Good game is a component to the red pill. Shitty game belongs in /r/seduction.

The truth knocks but nobody answers. He is almost there.

18 upvotes · 17 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What a god awful thread that was.

She just doesn't get it. This debate goes in circles for hours! (Please do not participate)

18 upvotes · 4 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Or refuses to let you have your own position.

This chick was so convinced my position was something that it wasn't.. I kept explaining.. no that's really not it at all. And she kept going, "but look, here's all the reasons I think it is!"

20 wise marriage tips from a man that was recently divorced...this man has been through enough hardship to know what is worth fighting for.

18 upvotes · 28 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's an unfortunately thinking process. One I've been guilty of myself.

Blue piller in /r/AskMen is worried that his wife is carrying another man's child

18 upvotes · 23 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Username is ok, it's seeking out and posting real names or offsite username accounts or info, that'll get you in trouble.

Girl in /r/sex confirms that being alpha leads to getting laid, being beta leads to getting played.

18 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree with this. Women assume it's about power because for them, sex is about power. They are the ones with rape fantasies. Female solipsism at it's finest.

Rape is about sex.

[Mod] A note about reddit and their policies. Please read.

18 upvotes · 1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

EDIT If things ever do go south, I will post announcements on <http://www.feministvictims.com>

<http://www.puerarchy.com> is our official home base.

You can expect to see us all there in case of emergency.

Visual example of what animal lust looks like in a woman

18 upvotes · 27 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

At this point, you've gotta be fucking with me.

Spot on in r/AskReddit

18 upvotes · 20 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I can confirm: guy here - likes boobs.

Justine Musk, Ex-Wife of Billionaire PayPal Co-Founder/Tesla Motors CEO Elon Musk, brings out the hamster on her failed marriage

18 upvotes · 1 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Elon told me we had an appointment with a lawyer who was going to help us with a "financial agreement" that the board of his new company wanted us to sign. When I looked at him, he said quickly, "It's not a prenup."

Was it a financial agreement made before a wedding? It's by definition a prenuptial agreement. Does this chick want to be taken seriously if she pretends not to know that?

HOW to 'just be there' for her and WHY it's critical to a developing relationship

18 upvotes · 29 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

In other words, discipline when necessary, comfort when necessary. Kind of like having a daughter.

Hetro Man / Man Marriage, as a "mutual defense pact" ?

18 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You've lasted this long on the fence between genuine contributor and troll, I just wonder why you chose this shitty comment to be your crowning achievement.

Women are emotional and emotionally driven; an excuse?

18 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not that women are more emotional than men, it's that they lack any desire or external pressure to embrace the same delayed gratification that men usually have to.

Men and women both want happiness. Men typically focus on the future goal of happiness and work towards that goal in spite of current emotional state. (tough job is ok, getting paid. I know I'm tired and want to sleep in, but going to the gym will pay off).

A woman will focus on immediate satisfaction of her emotional needs. I think for a number of reasons. I'm sure we wouldn't have to dig too far to find an evolutionarily advantageous component to it (doing anything risky hurts fetus survivability, so women concentrate on maximum comfort?). There are few external factors making women set long-term goals since women are never allowed to hit rock bottom in our culture- think about it. They don't need careers, just a rich guy. They don't need to be unhappy in marriage, they can divorce for money. They don't need a father for their children, they'll just collect welfare. There is literally no external pressure imposing goal setting and delaying of gratification for women.

Women Threatened By Sex Robots (lol)

18 upvotes · 25 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

Except it's women saying both things. Men will be irrelevant = good. Women will be irrelevant = bad.

Men aren't worried about sexbots, and I think most levelheaded men don't think artificial insemination will render men irrelevant.

This "attractive & fat" thing is ridiculous

18 upvotes · 22 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That feminist cesspool wouldn't see anything wrong with it.

Day 1: A practical man's journal of the effects of testosterone on someone who's never had any.

18 upvotes · 21 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Wow, this is incredible insight. Pon, is there a way to send me a PM with proof?

There is no Red Pill Movement

18 upvotes · 3 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm an atheist. I view religion as a control placed on hypergamy, so I understand it's purpose. I've even considered going to church to meet traditional women.

Religion absolutely has a place in discussion. But it certainly isn't because we expect anybody to believe in god. I highly doubt that even the pope is that naive.

Feminist fakes her own rape threat, caught.

18 upvotes · 1 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

/r/pussypass

This is what we're supposed to find attractive?

18 upvotes · 22 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think it's ironic that feminists blame the media for "teaching" us what to find sexy, because most of what the media tries to pass off as sexy is really a big turn off to me.

Models with their scornful look are turn offs. Older women are turn offs. Strong independent women who kill tons of bad guys in movies.. turn offs.

The media also tried to convince us shoulder pads were hot on women in the 90s. I don't know about you, but making women more masculine seems to be what the media is trying to do, and I'm not buying it.

Night Game Is Dead

18 upvotes · 12 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree with this message. Day game or don't game at all. Club going is starting to be a display of low value, since anybody willing to jump the hurdles for a chance at looking at some girl across the room is begging for pussy. Fuck that shit

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

18 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no black-and-white guide to what men find attractive. It's true, some guys will bag a milf, some guys find themselves incredibly effective at bagging milfs. Undeniably, some milfs are just plainly sexy.

Look at it from this angle: What men find attractive in women are signs of fertility. They subconsciously (or consciously) pick up on attributes like hip width, breast size, health, skin, and so on. These features are beneficial to men, whose sexual appetites are primarily driven by the programming in their mind (from their ancestors who were fertile enough to carry on their genes - the basis of evolutionary psychology).

It's a gradient of course. A majority of 20 year old women are fertile and have perhaps 15ish years to birth. Less women at 30 (and fewer years). Far, far less at 40.

Even the women at 30, who may be able to birth one or two children before becoming infertile still have a disadvantage over the 20 year old girl who has many many birthing years ahead of her (and therefore historically were able to provide more genetic offspring for her mate than the older women).

So ultimately what a woman will find that as she ages, her options will diminish. We call that "the wall."

Now, like you mentioned, it's not an uncommon trope, the concept of MILFS. But to understand, it's not because men naturally prefer older women- it's that some women are naturally able to appeal to men past the average age others cannot attract men (or attract less men).

It's not a naturally stated preference for men. All else being equal men would typically choose the younger. Even competing with herself, men would choose a younger version of her rather than the older. Whereas for women, the opposite might be found true (the older man is likely to have a better ability to provide provisions.) You can see it commonly stated on women's profiles on dating sites, that girls in their twenties will almost universally avoid men younger than them. This preference starts to fade as women reach 40, as men in their 40s are more likely to snatch up the girls in their twenties!

Now, that said, men are also limited in option, as the selected gender, and sexual attention from just about anybody can be enough to arouse a man to have sex. Rollo Tomassi says it best:

You see, men will very readily cater their physical sexual "preferences" in accordance with what has proven sexually successful for them in past experiences. In other words, men tend to return to the same watering hole they found to be plentiful in the past. These preferences of convenience manifest themselves as 'fetishes' for men. And you don't even need all that extensive research to prove this. All one need do is search the vast variety of porn available catering to the physical attributes that men will fetishize. Big boobs, small boobs, big ass, small ass, every hair color of the rainbow, shaved snatch, hairy snatch, teen girls to MILFs and older, tan, pale, ultra-thin to the ubiquitous BBWs (Big Beautiful women). Ladies, name the physical attribute(s), and there's a fan-group just waiting to bang you.

<http://rationalmale.wordpress.com/2011/09/15/womens-physical-standards/>

Joe Rogan: If you're a man and you call yourself a feminist I hope you choke to death on vegan pizza while crying over a lady gaga song

18 upvotes · 6 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's get Joe Rogan to do an AMA.

Feminist pissed off that mr has any sympathy for a couple of guys that were fired for making innocent remarks at a tech conference

18 upvotes · 23 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

She approached me before doing the article. I made it clear it was TheRedPill and Roosh. She does have a bone to pick with you guys, however.

It's true, our interest isn't "men's rights" or even furthering men's rights. It's simply to help people affected by feminism.

Millionaire's Estranged Wife Gets Court To Rip Up The Prenup She Signed Days Before The Wedding.

18 upvotes · 11 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Ripping up a contract based on testimony of only 1 of the two parties. That right there is fraud. If this guy really has $20 million, he's going to get himself a decent lawyer and appeal that.

Limits of game

18 upvotes · 8 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not sure everybody will agree with me here, but there are a lot of factors surrounding attraction.

1. You don't really need to be hot, just built. If you work out and wear good clothes, you can score.
2. Game is important so you don't shoot yourself in the foot. It's not a magical catchphrase to woo women, it's more about not fucking up the attraction that's there. Being smart and knowing how to deal with shit tests doesn't exactly increase attraction, so much as minimize your risk of losing attraction.
3. The more captive your audience, the more you can attract a women via game/humor/conversation. If you're a bar and she has options, you're going to need to be physically attractive to even get her attention long enough to use game. However, if you're in a group and you're bowling, you can use charm/game over the course of a night and build attraction that way, where you wouldn't be able to if she had an out.

What's wrong with feminism, in my view. - Since a girl came here to ask that and the post was removed.

18 upvotes · 22 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Nobody here suggests forcing you into a lifestyle you don't want. What we are saying is, when you make your decision, you have to deal with the consequences of that decision.

If you never get married and go for a career, when you hit 35 or 40 you might realize you don't have love or children and you might be sad about it. (you might not, too). The men here are simply saying, too bad- we're not going to be attracted to you because of that choice you made.

You have every right to pursue any path you want. You do not have the right to any outcome you want. Nobody does.

There's a pretty good reason we feel that women don't always like the decisions they make:

<http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052748704409004576146321725889448.html>

Grab the popcorn, somebody asked /r/ASKMEN: At what age do you assume a pretty, never-married woman must be crazy or have something wrong with her?

18 upvotes · 21 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

On my own subreddit. I'm going for the trifecta.

Yes I promote good red-pill material, as one of the curators here.

(unknowing) red pill guy being whipped into shape by blue pill betas...thoughts?

18 upvotes · 16 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's very important that the feminine imperative keep this a secret. A woman's prerogative to decide, or change her mind, is one of her weapons. If you let it out that she just wasn't into him, then how could she keep the beta orbiters?

This is one of the hardest lessons I had to learn.

When my first girlfriend of 3 years started drying up and sex stopped happening, I wondered what to do? Give her space? Make her happier? Maybe it was just hormones or birth control. Sex isn't everything, we were important to each other, right?

And that's how the feminine imperative snuck its ugly head out. "Oh my god, stop pushing for sex, you know sex isn't everything! You're being a dick, and making me want it less right now."

If you read that the way I did, I thought, wow I can't believe how much of a jerk I'm being. She's right!

Here's the truth. She was having sex. It just wasn't with me.

New Netflix movie coming out about how evil the manosphere is. Big surprise, we turn boys into monsters! It takes place in the UK where a SWAT team of 30 fully geared up dudes go to arrest a teen boy for posting online. Fuckin UK

17 upvotes · 28 February 2025 · /r/TheRedPill

Oy, you been posting memes in the internet?

YOU ARE BEING LIED TO. The Content You See Here is Selectively Edited by SJWs to Prevent You From Taking The Red Pill.

17 upvotes · 28 March 2023 · /r/TheRedPill

"wHaT yOu hAvE mAdE iS aBsUrD, jUsT cOpY rEdDiT oR tWiTtEr"

Reddit Clone Posts Mobile

Reddit Clone Comments Mobile

Reddit Clone Posts Desktop

Reddit Clone Comments Desktop

Twitter Clone Desktop

Twitter Clone Mobile

Feel free to show me where on the screenshots our website hurt you.

You Can't Comply Your Way out of Censorship -- Whisper Has Been Banned

17 upvotes · 26 May 2022 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for the kind words. My mission has been the same throughout and I will continue until I can no longer.

Destroy Your Dick December

17 upvotes · 2 November 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

I've been hearing complaints about declining content since we had less than a thousand users.

Age old complaint.

Be the change you want to see.

Crosspost from PPD: CMV - Every attractive young woman will have an OnlyFans account by 2030 and be entirely undateable

17 upvotes · 9 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Such a dumb post, women who wouldn't go into porn wont make an only fans,

I wouldn't be so sure. A lot of women today already have border-line softcore porn on their facebook and instagrams in trade for validation.

They might not get naked but thirsty fucks will spend money on anything they can get.

Red Pill Parenting: If you have boys, or plan to, get ready for what the world has in store: LA Juvie experiments on boy with estrogen

17 upvotes · 16 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree with the sentiment that doing something awful to your kids is bad. But to obey reddit rules, please revise your comment in a non-threatening form.

Yes, I know.

The "Insatiable Alpha Window"

17 upvotes · 15 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Bad example. I'll edit.

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

17 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Women won't tell you the truth. They tell each other the truth all the time. On a sub where they're anonymous, they have no reason to worry about n-counts or what you think of them.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

17 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Our new redesign will have save capabilities.

Unmarried 35-year-old woman reflects on her adventurous life of fun & travel : "This woman's .. life plan is that she chose whatever made her feel good from age 18-35+, and now wants to enter into a marriage..."

17 upvotes · 27 June 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I fucking hate car metaphors.

Agreed. Car metaphors are like when people try to compare a Mustang to a VW Beetle. Sure, they both have wheels but...

.. ok I'm sorry.

Postmodern Masculinity

17 upvotes · 20 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

If ADJ wants to rebut he can PM me.

I'll consider it if he can do it without resorting to a long list of ad hominem and concern trolling.

Postmodern Masculinity

17 upvotes · 20 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

GLO isn't banned - I was away for a bit and the mods wanted me to way in on something reddit admin related.

We will be restoring content as soon as possible.

There Is More Than One Blue Pill

17 upvotes · 22 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Good idea. Will report back.

Shit test - wife suggested I go elsewhere for blowjobs

17 upvotes · 19 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Dread game.

The Unknowability of Beta Turd

17 upvotes · 26 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Take this elsewhere. Nobody gives a shit.

The Unknowability of Beta Turd

17 upvotes · 26 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah but you don't even know the allegations were false.

They sounded false to me. His multiple accusers either never came forward, or did and couldn't present evidence or a consistent story. From my observations, false accusations are minimal effort with maximum damage. Why wouldn't somebody do it?

I don't really care about your red pill fantasy head canon of that complex situation.

Okay, then I guess you've got nothing to talk about on a subreddit dedicated to analyzing reality through a red pill lens.

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

17 upvotes · 27 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I've backed up the sidebar since and will update it.

Keto Before & After Reconsidered: Why Frame is Everything, Don't Let This Be You

17 upvotes · 29 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

There's ton of evidence that ketogenic diets are effective for fatloss. Lifting, IF and keto are the chubby newbie's friend, they work, theyre pretty easy to stick to and you don't have to fiddle around counting each calorie.

Agreed. What is OP trying to say? I had a hard time following.

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

17 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Where do you draw that line though? We're on the same internet as them, does that mean we have the same values?

What should bother you is that people who discuss the truth of sexual relations is considered as bad as racists or nazis, and is left with the same options as far as payment methods go.

The truth is, nobody here gets to just publish their paypal for a number of reasons: privacy, doxxing risks, losing employment risk, and paypal shuts down accounts associated with the manosphere.

I'm confident that the black and Jewish (and other diverse) TRPers don't, either.

I honestly don't think anybody on a page called "red pill" is going to fall for such sjw concerns, honestly.

The Red Pill App

17 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I truly believe many of you are missing the point. This is not about conflating TRP with T_D and politics. The mention of T_D was merely being used as an example of what will more than likely happen when TRP gains enough influence to become a viable threat to the SJW/feminist stranglehold on thought. Yes T_D was run by a RP mod but no one is saying we want TRP to become T_D or a political activist group. What we ARE talking about is maintaining a space for us to think and speak freely.

The one guy in this thread with reading comprehension!

FR: Tinder Insanity

17 upvotes · 20 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

What Arch said- keep putting more irons int he fire.

Fall 2016 AMA Schedule

17 upvotes · 24 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

He's here quite a bit, but nothing is as good as an AMA!

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

17 upvotes · 15 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a decision you make when you care about power. I'm going to clue you in because your comment reads like an angsty teen who thinks things like principles matter in the long run... They don't. You put your money on the guy who will help you the most (or hurt you the least) and you compromise on your values because a perfect ideology has gotten exactly zero people elected.

Go ahead, vote third party and pretend you're playing with the adults.

Quick Note on Censorship/Automated Bots.

17 upvotes · 6 September 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

We should not do any automatic censorship

If you really want to see the shit show this sub turns into without our tools, or you'd like to volunteer to spend 80+ hours a week to moderate one of the most controversial subs on Reddit, I think you know not of what you speak.

/r/theredpill is SUBREDDIT OF THE DAY!

17 upvotes · 24 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

MBTI is a scam

I don't put too much stock in it, personally. However it's a useful approximation for helping give advice over the internet.

Welcome to Theory Friday - New Posting is Locked Today

17 upvotes · 22 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

"it's finally happened. He's flipped. The stress must have been too much and somebody posted something particularly cretinous to drive him over the edge."

Heheh, I think you'll know when I flip!

I've been debating this idea for a few weeks, and after removing a larger number of posts than usual last night I decided it was time for a hard reset on the community.

Endorsed Contributors: Respect The Tag

17 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

We can't directly move the conversation. But if we see highly voted shit-advice, we'll remove it so that better content can filter upwards.

Woman breaks off engagement because fiancée won't reveal his financial details. Advises other women to do the same because it's fair.

17 upvotes · 2 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If you get married without knowing the other persons financial situation, you're an idiot.

'We Need to Talk' and other ways of controlling the flow of information for power.

17 upvotes · 17 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Like, I'm very pragmatic and probably OCD about things, so when there's a problem to solve, my mind often becomes preoccupied. Fuck her for suggesting "we need to talk" before guys night- she knows it'll linger while you're trying to enjoy yourself.

That's why you need to have a zero tolerance policy on that.

We are just about hitting Peak "Rape Accusation Culture"; Lady Gaga's new video "Til it Happens to You"

17 upvotes · 23 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

-Girl asks you to take a sip of the beer you brought?

Drink the whole thing. Only proper response.

It's always the girly films that capture women's true nature

17 upvotes · 10 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The one thing I like to notice when watching mainstream movies is when they manage to make a completely feminized point, see if it seems normal to you and the people you're with.

A common plot is the "no man is an island" theme in chick flicks, where the guy won't commit to anybody and lives as a drifter. Eventually he has a romantic experience that's like no other. But he goes back to his devices and starts drifting again.

Then some broad shows up and sets him straight. "Do you ever think of anybody but yourself? You can't just sleep with people and detach like that! What about her feelings??"

What I find most fascinating about that is that we all sit here nodding in agreement. What a selfish prick. Thinking he can engage in adult relations without offering benefit to the woman involved.

Oh wait a second...

It's pervasive and sneaky, but they all do it. It's either a form of normalization of the feminine imperative, or it's a demonstration of the already normalized feminine imperative. But what's most fascinating is how brainwashed everybody is (including myself), to the extent where stuff like this seems totally normal and you have to really think about it to realize what they're saying in essence is "it's only good/moral if it benefits woman."

These mental exercises are the only thing keeping me entertained with modern film.

[Mod] The Red Pill is Sexual Strategy

17 upvotes · 30 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The pressure has gotten real recently. I've been in contact with the admin about this.

All Red Pill Sidebar In One PDF

17 upvotes · 17 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

On a college campus, in women's studies circles, it's gaining traction. I've witnessed it first hand!

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

17 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Our position is that we will not be leaving reddit unless a shut down is imminent or has happened. However, we may be opening our replacement forums for archives and user registration early.

Karen Straughan (Girlwriteswhat) succinctly discusses that men don't hate women, and defends TRP. Good read!

17 upvotes · 22 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I've always been a fan of Karen's because she's well spoken and tends to be better spoken than myself on a lot of issues. But I'm curious, do you really believe she's being more positive towards TRP because of our popularity now?

I don't give her extra points for having tits, only for saying things better than most are able.

I've been banned from another sub I never posted to for being a "supporter" of a "hate group" - redpill -- "thought police" mods are thriving on Reddit

17 upvotes · 13 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Post this same comment there and see which one stays up longer...

Lesson learned: If a woman asks how much you make, break it off ASAP.

17 upvotes · 28 April 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

You also falsely assume that young women can't be wealthy, attractive, successful or fertile.

It's not an assumption, it's my experience. First of all, women going for higher education do tend to waste their youth. Women are waiting longer and longer to get married and start families, and the results are obvious- they're upset that men are passing them over for younger women. Don't get me started on the increases of birth defects when you wait till your educated prize is in her late thirties. It was the "you can have it all" dream they sold to women, and a lot of them are quite upset to find you really cannot.

Secondly, these qualities are all in a group of qualities that simply do not activate my boner. None of them. A pair of hot young tits and a nice smile, that'll do it.

My experience with women who want to compete, or describe themselves as "strong" or "independent" is that they are argumentative, dominant, and a whole list of things that - again- don't trigger my dick. At all.

Intelligence is nice, but career women are just selling the same bill of goods feminists have been trying to sell us for years- that women are better in their thirties, and that they can manage high stress jobs and raising families at the same time. They can't.

These are the rebranded qualities feminists are trying to push on unsuspecting men as "attractive." The college degree is neither sufficient to gain my attraction, nor the lack thereof sufficient to lose my attraction. This is just straight talk here- I don't care if she's got a nobel peace prize, if it doesn't pass the boner test, I'm just not into it. Why buy into the lie that I should find such bullshit attractive? I don't. Most guys don't.

But let's say you find yourself that feisty 20-something doctor who strives for success and has a hot bod. The question I'd ask myself is- if you took that same chick and cloned her but took away her career- which one would be a better mom for my children? The one who will be the mom, of course, and not the doctor.

But let's say she promises to take time off from her career to be a mom. Putting aside the very fact that we have just lost the very quality that makes her successful- striving to be the best, and putting work first, and she's re-prioritizing her family. Well, that sounds like the type of woman I was describing. Except I want multiple kids, so I'm not waiting till the ripe ol' age of 28 to get started.

The fact is women are hypergamous. The more value they perceive of themselves, the higher the level of shit tests you'll get, and the more they think they deserve. Women hitting the wall run into this all the time- they price themselves out of the market and don't even realize it right away. They still think they're demanding the prices a hot young 18 year old girl was getting.

But the problem is that hypergamous nature doesn't go away. She's virtually un-pleasable at this stage, and likely has taken more than her share of cocks along the way.

Even if you manage to find one that's still submissive and friendly instead of controlling and bitchy- you've still got yourself a handful of work that, man, I just don't think it's worth hitching your life to. It's a chick for fuck's sake.

You've really done a good job of highlighting these qualities that feminists are obsessed with convincing us are good female qualities. "Strong" and "independent" are just not doing it for me. Educated is always nice, but I can't have sex with a degree. It's not making or breaking the attraction. Career focused means not family oriented.

At the end of the day, you're free to date/marry/fuck whomever you please. But ask yourself if the juice is actually worth the squeeze.

I'll take pleasant and cute over domineering and bitchy any day.

The red pill are a bunch of bigots who can't get laid.

17 upvotes · 20 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If you think you can fix it- PRAW was upgraded to match reddit api upgrade, so now the code is broken and I haven't had time to fix it.

Hilary Clinton:"Don't you want to see a woman president?" [the problem with feminism]

17 upvotes · 4 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He's a very capable leader- in the sense that he can rally troops behind him. Whether his policy is any good though, that I can disagree with.

Red Pill School HAS BEEN DOXXED

17 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ok so the scandal was that an indie game developer tried to make a choose-your-own adventure html game, but wasn't getting much attention. She wanted it on steam, so she fucked five industry guys to get favorable reviews, and to get it green-lit on steam. Her boyfriend finally went online and told the story because he didn't like her cheating on him.

The rumors include: she doxxed herself (with fake information) to get media attention, faked her website getting hacked.

Every major news outlet/discussion board then proceeded to censor any discussion about it, showing the reaches of feminism on the gaming industry.

We felt particularly moved to produce a game that helped simulate her struggles, so that the home-viewer could understand just what she went through.

Women want to be raped by a high value man

17 upvotes · 25 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, because most men don't know not to rape until you explain it to them. Jesus fuck, we have a sticky about avoiding this pedantic bullshit.

What is The Red Pill and Why does it exist

17 upvotes · 22 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Report memes and gifs. I'm fairly confident we've kept it at a low.

Guy's girlfriend was raped at a party, but she doesn't want to destroy the friendship with her rapist.

17 upvotes · 22 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, it's important to note here that everybody's playing the game. "Oh no, don't push her, you wouldn't want to hold her feet to the fire and prove she wasn't actually raped. Give her space to make up shit.."

The fact is, anybody who wants to stay friends (instead of report it) with their rapist deserves the next rape. Yes, I said, go ahead and quote me.

Nobody would freak out when I say "anybody who wants to be friends with a serial killer is gearing up to be murdered..." but add that little fucking 'R' word and you can get a country's worth of panties in a twist. Hey, radfems reading along, ask yourself why your sister is so insistent on not reporting a rape. Ask yourself why only the misogynistic woman-hating club wants to see justice, but not her. She's doing you all a disservice. Don't make excuses to keep rapists on the street.

But RPS! Nobody deserves rape!

Of course nobody deserves rape. Nobody deserves to get mugged either. Nobody deserves to be a victim for any crime. But if you want a single tear of fucking sympathy from me, don't wander into back alleys of the ghetto at night, don't fail to report and instead stay friends with rapists, and don't hang out with known serial killers. There are real victims out there who don't have the luxury of being able to avoid the terrible atrocious crimes about to happen to them... and here we have a fucking first world woman who knows so little about real pain and suffering that she accuses a man of rape, a man that she's friends with, that she doesn't want to stop being friends with. This is a game to her. She gets ZERO sympathy from me.

Woman drinks and flirts with college president, invites him to her hotel room afterwards, then cries rape because she "can't remember" why she let him in.

17 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Men's rights is a topic we accept here, and it's important to post stuff like this when not everybody understands just how it works.

If you haven't read the sidebar you shouldn't post.

17 upvotes · 14 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It can't be ignored wholesale. Women have a dualistic mating strategy, which is outlined in great detail on Rollo's blog. Ignoring provider traits wholesale is as bad as ignoring alpha traits wholesale if you're looking for an LTR.

In other words, alpha might rev her engines, but don't plan a family around that, she will eventually get the itch to either make you commit or find somebody who will.

1 Hidden Cam Reveals How Women Judge Men! Women's Double Standards Exposed.

17 upvotes · 14 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

To add on to this- if you do decide on monogamy and a life-partner.. just don't marry! It seems simple, but a lot of guys don't get it.

It actually keeps her on her toes a little bit too... you do have to keep up your game, but it eliminates the threat-point that marriage creates.

It is my contention (and obviously Dalrock's too) that no woman can ever respect (or be attracted to long-term) a man that she has the control of threatpoint over.

Son asks mom how do I attract girls? JBY advice is rejected and hilarity ensues

17 upvotes · 9 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Step 1. Become hot, step 2, be yourself. They always leave out step 1. No wonder why everybody's confused.

Daily Show spends entire segment making fun of woman who advocates that women marry when they are young

17 upvotes · 28 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey man, you've been shadowbanned.

Tits or GTFO

17 upvotes · 24 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Haha, you really did miss it. I want to see your tits, and then I want you to leave. I didn't ask for your point of view before or after.

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

17 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, they actually have to burn real accounts or age new accounts to do it.

It makes my job even more fun, knowing that each post they make burns a week of work to get that account.

Treating Women Like Children

17 upvotes · 28 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

One thing to add to this is that you, as a man, don't have to accept childish behavior from women and it behooves you not to. Demand quality.

I think this is bad advice. Imagine I told you to go get yourself a pet dog, but make sure you don't settle for one that acts like a dog...

...you're going to spend a lot of time going through dogs that do dog things- shit on the floor, bark at cars, all the dog things.

Eventually you'll come back to me and say, "well some were better than others, but they were all dogs..."

You learn to expect who they are and you learn to accept it, and to mitigate it.

Somewhere there's somebody quoting this post who doesn't understand analogies. "RPS LITERALLY thinks women are pet dogs... OMG"

Dear Abby: I want Alpha Fux and Beta Bux

17 upvotes · 5 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Marly is spot on here: The guy who won't take care of his kid is the alpha fucks. The ex she wants to get with would make a good father and it's not even his kid.. beta bux.

Women complain they don't make as much as men. Man explains to them how they can. Women scream at him that he's sexist.

17 upvotes · 4 February 2014 · /r/MensRights

Not just lofty abstract concepts, but instead very practical advice that as a man, I would appreciate getting.

A word for the Mods (and regular TRP contributors):

17 upvotes · 31 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I usually remove posts like this because they really don't add anything, but you know I'll keep this one cause you're right- the mods are fucking excellent. Take a bow, guys.

/u/redpill_factory /u/softharem /u/pillpaxton /u/bsutansalt

What if we're right?

17 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think all women are like that at some point, and they all have these tendencies. It doesn't mean they're like that all the time, nor does it mean you can't subvert some of the worst parts.

For instance, don't like alpha fucks beta bucks? Then be a perfect alpha/beta combo. Also known as the man of the house. Marry somebody, be the head of the household. Be firm but loving. Women really want both in one guy, that's the jackpot.

Two college students (male and female) have sex. The next day the woman writes to the man: "I had a wonderful time, but I'm sorry I led you on, I'm not ready for a relationship". One year later: She files a charge of "non-consensual sexual contact" through the college disciplinary system.

17 upvotes · 17 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Terrible advice. Nobody has sex with somebody they think will likely falsely accuse them of rape. It's not something you can just predict.

AMA with Return of Kings' Tuthmosis Wednesday Night 7PM EST

17 upvotes · 10 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Isn't that grounds for removal?

Only if you're us.

I'm too arrogant-what gives?

17 upvotes · 5 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The number of times I've been told "you're kinda arrogant" or "I thought you were a total douche" by women I eventually fuck.. it's basically all of them.

I am going to fuck your girlfriend

17 upvotes · 28 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Minimize, no absolutes.

How do you feel about r/PurplePillDebate?

17 upvotes · 26 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Ah, yes, if she's drunk and she ties him down and fucks him, he raped her.

Woman From MTV Demands Free Stuff From Us

17 upvotes · 7 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Wasting assets

Known as future liabilities.

“What Do You Do When A Girl Hits You?”

17 upvotes · 17 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Read Vox's follow up. And if you don't like this content, don't read any of it.

Keeping her around.

17 upvotes · 7 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I feel like lately all the posts have been from people trying to insult silly feminist articles, and it really gives us a bad rep.

It's not just lately. And I like making fun of feminists.

The fucking size of this hamster...

17 upvotes · 3 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Right? I don't want to be friends with your inane chatter.

Never Forget: Let's always remember those brave women who threw themselves over their boyfriends to protect them from bullets...

17 upvotes · 30 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree, it's concern trolling.

An idea: Red Pill Mentoring Program

17 upvotes · 20 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The best thing you can do is find a group of like minded men to hang out with. Friends who understand this stuff keep me sane.

My Blue pill to Red pill conversion

17 upvotes · 30 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't be an asshole to women. Never portray a false image to people.

Unless you're an asshole. Like me.

“Your Son Is A Fucking Faggot”

17 upvotes · 14 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The woman's story turned out to be a hoax, but as I've been seeing more single mothers in the market lately, I can't help but agree with this author's conclusion on it. The story itself is irrelevant, only to paint the picture.

AskWomen thread where srs use multiple accounts to circlejerk about dating TRP men.

17 upvotes · 12 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Please make sure you don't participate.

Do you fake having no feelings?

17 upvotes · 30 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You have feelings, no need to pretend you don't. That said, you want to avoid becoming an emotional slut. It's a turn off to women. And you'd do well to heed this, because your desire to share your feelings doesn't mean she shares your desire for you to share your feelings.

Read Men in Love, Women in Love, and Of Love and war on the sidebar. Excerpt:

We want to relax. We want to be open and honest. We want to have a safe haven in which struggle has no place, where we gain strength and rest instead of having it pulled from us. We want to stop being on guard all the time, and have a chance to simply be with someone who can understand our basic humanity without begrudging it. To stop fighting, to stop playing the game, just for a while.

We want to, so badly.

If we do, we soon are no longer able to.

Possible answer to: why are there so many bitter TRPs?

17 upvotes · 26 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

We discussed this at the start of the sub, and decided anger and rants would be allowed wholesale because it's part of the process.

[Mod] Reminder: Don't vote!

17 upvotes · 24 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yikes. Use at your own risk.

Recent influx of new RPerS due to our "publicity" in other subreddits?

17 upvotes · 13 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Cheating isn't particularly nice, but it's not really a red/blue pill issue. It's what he decides to do with red pill knowledge.

I personally think being honest is better.

UPDATE: M38 considering leaving wife, 33F. Asked for input. My decision.

17 upvotes · 11 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think this is a good plan. Remember: You cannot negotiate attraction, so things like counselors are no good.

You can be the change you want to see, and usually there's a small amount of dread to MMSL's game- she'll either shape up, or it might be time to ship out.

Birth control sabotage by women is normal

17 upvotes · 10 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"and I don't even think it's that manipulative. It's more like, 'Hey, the timing is right for me. I got pregnant—oops! Well, it's here, let's have it.

Where to go if this subreddit is gone?

17 upvotes · 10 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

<http://www.puerarchy.com> is our official home base.

You can expect to see us all there in case of emergency.

Bf encourages woman to go to the gym / Hamster interprets this as calling her fat and makes her feel unsexy / woman cheats for revenge

17 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

But if they don't vote how are we going to finish the marxist takeover?

[Mod] Reminder of the Rules - No Participation

17 upvotes · 9 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Per our posting rules:

- If linking to a thread on an external subreddit, please use the domain np.reddit.com to encourage no participation. This is mandatory.

Girl in /r/sex confirms that being alpha leads to getting laid, being beta leads to getting played.

17 upvotes · 6 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's like linking to the feminist manifesto to prove women are oppressed.

The field of psychology regarding rape and rape victims is highly feminized.

Rape is about sex. The reason most incels don't rape is because most people aren't fucking terrible people.

[Mod] A note about reddit and their policies. Please read.

17 upvotes · 1 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Much appreciated. Puts my mind at ease.

Girl on r/okcupid complains that men only want "dumb" girls and are avoiding her because she is too "intelligent" [OKC username is "Sarcastic_socks", she likes vampires & "dead things", she uses "sarcastic" and "weirdo" to describe herself multiple times, ideal job is a coroner, and is overweight]

17 upvotes · 28 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'll take hot and stupid over smart and ugly. And since I don't usually find hot and smart (read: never), I'll take hot and stupid.

Women Have Become Too Easy - great askmen.com article!!! - check out the comments (full of hamsters)

17 upvotes · 14 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Iron Rule of Tomassi #3

Any woman who makes you wait for sex, or by her actions implies she is making you wait for sex; the sex is NEVER worth the wait.

<http://therationalmale.com/2011/09/23/wait-for-it/>

<http://therationalmale.com/2012/05/11/coquetry/>

The Rotating Soft Harem. This one goes out to all the harem members I've lost...

17 upvotes · 5 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I try to avoid being seen in public by other harem members when they're part of the harem. However- I do use harem members to attract new women. It actually works really well. But they'll act like it upsets them.

For example a few weeks ago I was at a bar and a girl I've been flirting with lately happened to be there. I had texted one of my harem to meet up with me, and they got to meet face-to-face. There was a clash.

The harem girl wasn't impressed, was really pissy that night. The girl flirting was embarrassed and felt awkward about it.

That week, the harem girl stepped up her game 200%. Bringing me dinners and going out of her way to be nice.

The girl I was flirting with became a lot more into me. (Sealed the deal within the week).

Just the fact that I was bold enough to enable that clash, turn the attraction up to 11.

They would both describe the event as insensitive, and it does require a little smooth talking, but the visceral reaction to it is immeasurable.

Discussion Thread: The Red Pill and other "unacceptable ideas"... Voting.

17 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I just want to address the racism question before I begin. Racism is addressed in our posting rules and discussion that isn't strictly sexual strategy based is prohibited.

Although being honest and open to reality, no matter how grim or wrong it may seem, is one of our goals, we found that discussion of race devolved into what amounts to racism.

Though there are genetic differences between the races, the divergence in genetics over different segregated cultures (which gave rise to races) is a much smaller amount of time than the divergence developed in the expression of genes in genders.

It's an interesting conversation, and I'm not about to say it shouldn't happen, or that there aren't differences. But I am saying that the red pill isn't the place to have them.

From our standpoint, I'd appreciate it if we limited our scope to physical differences in our races and differences in our cultures. There are plenty of black people that don't participate in thug culture, and plenty of white people who do. Let's remember these differences. That doesn't mean the color of one's skin defines sexual strategy, but rather the culture.

Thanks.

Include some background on yourself in posts?

17 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Please refrain from sharing too much. Just a little tid bit here and there can be pieced together. Doxxing is a real problem because our opponents rather use violence to stop us than intelligent debate.

Woman wants her husband to make more money. Frustrated he chooses to work a job he loves and play video games in his free time (when she's not around) instead.

17 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not saying that I personally wouldn't strive for more, in fact I won't be happy until I own the country.

But I can see how a single man living anywhere that isn't Manhattan could get along nicely on 40k, if he's not taking care of a family.

40k is enough to buy a nice car and a condo.

How many 30 year old women are like this?

17 upvotes · 2 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

While I don't doubt this might happen, this looks fake.

Common Critiques of The Red Pill

17 upvotes · 20 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Short sound bites are what people are already refuting and mischaracterizing. I don't care to shorten. People can decide not to read it, I'm not going to make that decision for them.

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

17 upvotes · 13 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What do you call a guy who invests his life savings in a stock based on a tip he heard from somebody off the street?

Irresponsible. Because at the end of the day, his money is his responsibility.

Sure the guy off the street might have had bad intentions, and he was manipulative. But at any moment it is your responsibility to make decisions well, and deal with the consequences if you don't. Nobody's paying this guy back when he loses his money- it doesn't matter if he was lied to.

On confidence vs asshole and on nice guys.

17 upvotes · 12 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It signals an abundance mentality. If I can afford to be an asshole, then I don't really care if she stays or goes. If that's my mentality, I must have options. If I have options, other girls must want me. If other girls want me, I must have something women want. Circular reasoning? Sure. Doesn't matter, preselection works.

Duplicity - "women have a natural tendency for solipsism – any dynamic is interpreted in terms of how it applies to themselves first, and then the greater whole of humanity."

17 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/askTRP

Most women are literally oblivious to the underlying motivations of their sexual selections / attractions. Evolution has largely selected-for human females with a capacity to form psychological schemas that preserve an ego-investment that would otherwise afflict them with debilitating anxiety, guilt, and the stresses that result from being continuously, consciously aware of their own behavioral incongruities. Evolution selects-for solipsistic women who are blissfully unaware of their solipsism. Hypergamy necessitates solipsism.

Seduction is a Tool or: How I Learned to Stop Reading and Hate the Seddit

17 upvotes · 14 March 2013 · /r/seduction

It's not that "putting other guys down" should be your first resort as a guy, I wouldn't recommend it because it looks petty. I'm saying that at the end of the day, the guy who wins is the guy who wins, no matter what his tactic was. The best way to deal with that is preparing for everything, not just what doesn't offend your sensibilities.

Lamentation of a single 30-something's mother: "Where have all the good men gone?"

17 upvotes · 13 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women want equal opportunity to mean equal outcome. They want to do feminism and want to retain attractiveness while doing it.

They actually think being a stay at home mom is oppressive. They want to be "freed" from the burden. So don't get married ! Oh, but that's oppressive because women should be able to make their choice to get married but not live with the consequences.

girlwriteswhat comments on her experiences with male feminists.

17 upvotes · 9 March 2013 · /r/MensRights

To actually read the thread:

Part 1:

http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/17rdgw/is_there_a_site_which_focuses_on_mens_issues_but/c88ahue?context=10

Part 2:

http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/17rdgw/is_there_a_site_which_focuses_on_mens_issues_but/c8900z0?context=10

Edit: girlwriteswhat is very articulate, the entire thread is definitely worth reading.

The Marriage Strike is Real

17 upvotes · 7 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Free money

Jezebel: Here's a Single Woman's List of What She's Looking for in a Man. Is It Too Long?

17 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So the question is, if we made a list of requirements for a potential mate.. maybe even started a subreddit discussing that..

would we be misogynists?

Jezebel: Here's a Single Woman's List of What She's Looking for in a Man. Is It Too Long?

17 upvotes · 4 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I think that's why he screencapped

[Mod] State of the Union Address. 2,000 subscribers

17 upvotes · 28 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

We do not plan to go private. I will continue moderating with an iron fist. I believe we will be successful at warding off the general softening of tone that happens when subs get big.

Men not marrying? How deep does "the problem" go?

17 upvotes · 15 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Marriage and the forces at work (slut shaming, religion, legal systems) were in place to mitigate hypergamy. Back in the day, a woman had to marry to survive, and would be ruined if she divorced or cheated.

Now, women don't need a man to survive, and there's zero consequence for leaving a man. Thus the end of marriage.

Are women unhappier because of money? [Watch the Entitlement & Hamster- Awesome ending]

17 upvotes · 5 February 2013 · /r/askTRP

Is there a way to win in a game of chess against a pigeon?

Woman wonders why Toronto is so cold to singles...

17 upvotes · 24 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Some are trying to blame pickup for it, but completely ignoring why pickup exists. Pickup is the response to the problem, not the cause.

The Red Pill Room: Mike Makes A Breakthrough

17 upvotes · 16 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

As he explained, she's flaky as hell and irresponsible about just about everything, can't seem to keep a man or a job (she's a dog groomer), and spends her life, well, like a 30 something flaky chick usually does.

I know so many women like this. It always boggles my mind how they manage to continue existing without even the slightest understanding of responsibility.

Mike was attracted to Candy once, years ago, but her personality and proximity soon made her a woman to tolerate, not to date.

I've always given this advice, and I recommend it to anybody with oneitis: If you really like a chick because you think she's hot- get to know her, your crush won't last.

"Plans more important than helping me out?"

She doesn't even try to hide it. This is literally saying.. "Your plans are more important than my plans (or lack of planning)?"

Fucking bitch.

"But my time and energy are valuable, and you need to start realizing that."

[Sister:] "Valuable? What the hell are you doing today that's so important."

This is telling. Both Candy and his sister only see value in terms of what's-in-it-for-me? They can't fathom that something that doesn't help them could be valuable to anybody. Female solipsism at its best.

We've all known women like Candy: they're flaky as hell. They wait until the last minute, they don't plan, they don't follow through, and when things inevitably fall apart they try their best to get other people to clean up their messes.

Such an understatement. Maybe it's where I live, but I don't know many women who aren't like that.

Great post, just great.

Are you offended?

17 upvotes · 7 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The second thing I noticed was the seeming anger and resentment that could present itself here. It would appear like a bunch of women hating misogynists got together, made a sub, and started bashing women. Concerned, I made a post asking to drop the Us Vs Them mentality. In the comments that followed, I learned a Lot.

I wrote this in another thread but it fits right here:

From a blue pill perspective, we all look terribly cynical and sad, don't we? We look filled to the brim with hatred and appear to look unhappy and unfulfilled. This is not an uncommon sentiment, so don't feel alone in thinking this.

It isn't until you embrace the viewpoint that a new level of satisfaction comes over you.

Of course it's us vs them. It's mating, which is strategical. You've heard the quote "all is fair in love and war." There's a reason love and war are grouped together. Because both are battles of strategy.

Once you remove the morality of decisions that men and women make in mating, you can reveal that what we're talking about isn't negative. Instead, it's neutral. In fact- if you're worried about the red pill, consider this: The blue pill nice guys were our natural state. We literally only embrace this behavior because it is WOMEN who enforce that this behavior be the only one that works!

How backwards is that?

I don't consider the views cynical, but there was a time in my life that I most certainly would've considered these views negative and cynical.

Now I see it for what it is. Neither negative nor positive. Just strategy, and reality.

Women won't think twice (or even once) about throwing shit tests your way and luring you into beta orbiter status for their own gratification and validation. They have no problem embracing their sexual strategy. Why should we be concerned with how our sexual strategy "appears" if they don't! That seems to give them quite the upper hand if we do!

Again, I'm not demonizing the fact that they do it. Instead, I recognize it and use this information to my advantage.

Are you offended? Good, so were we until we opened our eyes and starting taking reality for what it is.

How To Transform Your Dribble Dork Dick Into A Commanding Cum Cannon

16 upvotes · 8 December 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

500 day ban for using the word sub without adding lettuce.

As we approach Q4 of 2021, how have our predictions for the year panned out? Review the 2021 predictions made back in Dec.

16 upvotes · 3 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Jesus christ, it's getting scary.

This is literally my prediction from 9 months ago

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

16 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You've got a good point. People in power always relinquish it.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

16 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

So in states where bars must close at 9 pm, it worked because? Because covid only comes out at night?

What about Walmart being an essential business but small businesses are not? You can buy your chair at Walmart but not at the furniture store. Because? Because walmart is immune to covid and funneling the entire population into one store instead of many other stores helps?

What happened to 2 weeks to flatten the curve? Did the scientists just lie to us?

What's the worst thing that happens to a healthy 20-something year old working and getting sick for 2 weeks this year vs not paying rent for 10 months and never getting to catch up on it?

Use your brain. You're here because the powers that be don't always tell the truth. Learn to be inquisitive.

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

16 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Lockdowns didn't work. They're still doing them.

Imagine how cheap you can buy foreclosures in NYC if you don't let anybody pay rent.

Mod Notice: Reddit may ban The Red Pill in the next wave of SJW censorship. Immunize yourself by bookmarking our official off-Reddit site, TRP.RED

16 upvotes · 29 June 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

They are run by social justice warriors who just announced they will be monitoring conversations for hate. I really don't recommend discord.

I also don't recommend any voice chat for privacy concerns.

If you want text chat, our IRC is under the radar, and trp.red has dedicated chat rooms.

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

16 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

I hate convoluted bullshit. It will be very direct.

The female dating strategy sub inadvertently proving redpill theory correct. Oh the irony.

16 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

You sperging out or do you genuinely not understand generalizations?

[Repost] Infidelity

16 upvotes · 25 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

This assumes that one considers lying shameful.

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

16 upvotes · 2 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

There was a brief moment that real user counts were leaked on their advertising page (showing potential advertisers how many users they would reach advertising to each sub).

Our count was in the millions.

<http://a.trp.red/files/what-2.jpg>

[Open Discussion] What is the role of a red pill father in today's world?

16 upvotes · 21 August 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I will just note here that physical punishment, by its nature, breaks trust to the parent, and is the thing to do if you want to have scared kids, awed by the display of power.

I think only if you're setting out to actually hurt the child.

Discipline will always have a component of fear to it- fear of disappointing dad, or fear of any punishment physical or otherwise.

Physical punishments, such as spankings, when done correctly, can be more about the elaborate showing of disappointment than about the physical spank itself. I think to do that correctly, you can't spank out of retaliation. Instead, you set the limit and the rule, and if he disobeys, you set the punishment event for later that night. You make him dread the embarrassment.

Respect- positive respect- is a great motivator. But eventually dad is going to have to say no to something that makes him very unpopular for saying so. Your kid will need to know that you're able to hold your ground, if pushed. Instill this into him well enough and you won't need much in the way of live demonstration. But expect over 18 years for him to test it once or twice.

As he ages, some of the punishments are natural consequences to his actions absent mom and dad shielding him from the world. Deciding he doesn't want to eat what's for dinner is followed by hunger. Deciding to break the law may end in community service.

Georgia (Feminist) Legislators introduce HB 604: Any male 55 years of age or older shall immediately report to the county sheriff or local law enforcement agency when such male releases sperm from his

16 upvotes · 21 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

.. so, uh, what are you wearing tonight?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

16 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

First of all, it's a dumb question because why would an alpha need to rape a woman? If he's an alpha, women want to have sex with him.

But to address your question, no, rape isn't a behavior of somebody with abundance mentality.

Rape is an antisocial behavior that I don't think we really have a classification for with all our alpha, beta, gamma, etc terms.

Maybe Psychopathy?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

16 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Who say's we're maladjusted? Because we don't follow the rules to benefit you and rather benefit ourselves? Who's at fault for that?

For one, your PR is absolute dogshit

I think it works well to attract the people who need TRP.

I Was Fooled By The Promise Of The Internet - If you dare to publicly share the truth on the internet, they will ban you. RooshV

16 upvotes · 24 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

As a counter-point almost all my books are digital format and I read them.

Stay away from the BPD - Even if she is your daughter

16 upvotes · 14 December 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't think it's possible to turn an actual BPD into a "sweet little muffin."

This.

BPD is a real thing. It doesn't vanish.

It requires years of cognitive behavioral therapy, and even then it's like putting lipstick on a pig.

#NoNothingNov 2018 - Join the Challenge

16 upvotes · 31 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Here we go gents. Here's my Nov Tracker: <https://www.trp.red/nnn/redpillschool>

If you read my goals you'll probably see I like me some whiskey. Time to cut back.

GAB is Down Because the Culture War is Real and the Overton Window is Shrinking

16 upvotes · 29 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

What implications are happening around you?

TRP quarantined. People with views on the right are being attacked, losing jobs, or worse. Discussion of non-PC views is being censored.

How Many Women?

16 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

And this will be the real death of TRP.

Money for TRP wisdom? Donator-only sections? How long til a full pay-wall?

This generation and your gimme-gimme attitudes.

Did you know that TRP.RED has been a personal project for me for years, and I've been working and paying for work on it for years just to put us in a position that men wouldn't lose this valuable content and connection in the very likely case that reddit pulls the plug on us.

And despite donations, if I were to count every penny I've spent on this project I am still very clearly in the red and if this project keeps moving forward at this rate I will likely never really break even.

And I do all of this in an effort to keep this information free and flowing.

And Whisper gives his time to write these articles on the absolutely free for all blog platform we've been developing. And you can gain all the value from this post without doing anything for him in return.

And some kiddo on Reddit decides to bitch about this because he thinks he deserves the fruit of all of our labors for free. Because I added the ability to tip content makers for their service. TIPS.

The good news is for you, kid, is that we're going to keep on truckin' despite your complete lack of respect for the men here doing real work for other men. We will remain committed to the free flow of communication and information between men.

We're not doing it for you. We're doing it for men.

Just know I'm not going to stop you from participating in the community and deriving value from it. But if you had an ounce of integrity you'd either leave a tip for Whisper or apologize for shitting on this mountain of work we've been doing.

Recent Quarantine: The Reddit Administration Tacitly Endorses Male Abuse and Denies its Victims

16 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/MensRights

Agree or disagree with red pill, the numbers have been growing, and a lot of it has to do with making a convincing argument.

Compared to censorship, almost anything can be considered a more convincing argument.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

16 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Excellent breakdown. +1

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

16 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

this guy has an IQ of somewhere around 150.

I don't buy an appeal to IQ nor an appeal to authority.

I know what he says publicly and will criticize him on that.

On Freedom of Speech

16 upvotes · 23 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Among the many issues- mainly the inability for us to take 100% control of our mirror sub there, stability issues, and general trolling... I don't like the idea of trading an old boss for a new one. If we have to make a jump, we're not going to do it more than once.

A Family Man Experiences the Light-Switch, Loses Everything, Baffled that the Rules Don't Apply

16 upvotes · 20 March 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I hadn't heard the term "light-switch" until this post

I like to bring it back up every now and again. It's worth revisiting for veterans, but it's crucial information for newcomers.

The Only Real Reason for School Shootings

16 upvotes · 16 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Spergy the clown doesn't understand a thought experiment to prove a larger point!

Lockdown - Day 2 - Posting is locked, Comments are open.

16 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If I could do it forever.. maybe I would. It's a bit of work doing it though... Perhaps I should start a patreon (or hatereon) account and just do this as my job from now on...

James Damore sues Google, alleging intolerance of white male conservatives

16 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It was very stupid on his part... but he is so adamant about following this line of reasoning I assume he either planned on retiring anyway and wanted to make a splash, or he's so autistic he still doesn't get why this obsession is getting him into trouble.

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

16 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh shit, I better step down and hand over the keys to this guy. He showed me! Way to stand up to authority!

Here's a life skill: Don't argue with the mods. 10 out of 10 times you will lose.

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

16 upvotes · 5 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

This is the content they censored: <http://a.trp.red/censored>

It's hard to go much further without knowing the content in question. Right now it looks less like censorship, than a company exercising their discretion over who to associate with, and Gab.ai not owning their shit and crying victim over problems they brought on themselves.

The problem is the pattern. Up until recently, domain removals and takeovers were generally understood to be in relation to actual law breaking. Now, registrars are finding themselves with a free ticket to do as they please with public support.

Imagine if phone companies could cancel your phone line because they don't like what you talk about even though it's completely legal speech.

Imagine if the post office could remove your address because they disagree with the people you send mail to.

There are certain public services that the world relies on. Many of which governments regulate because it would be too dangerous to allow companies to simply disconnect people at random.

My prediction was correct, domain registrars are the new arm of censorship. Gab.ai gets ultimatum. Delete content or lose your domain.

16 upvotes · 5 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

So was I. That's when we scrambled to get <https://www.forums.red> in place.

Socialist Feminist author cedes that one of the core analyses of Redpillers is correct & needs addressing

16 upvotes · 24 July 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The funny thing is that she thinks that the Red Pill is only about manipulating women into sex.

Feminism has always been about how they think women are children incapable of making their own decisions.

The Red Pill App

16 upvotes · 12 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

The vision that I see has a much more personal, smaller community approach than reddit. Rather than having large groups of people yelling over each other, this allows you to build smaller, more robust bonds with like-minded individuals so you can work on building your power & success.

SJW WAR CONTINUES: Harvard Pulls Student Offers Over Online Comments

16 upvotes · 5 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Including private chats. Nothing is secure on this front. Expect that nosy devs can see your chats, much like nosy admin on reddit can read your pms. Even if the platforms themselves aren't compromised, expect a party privy to your content to be a weak link.

Think about this- these guys weren't posting publicly, it was a private group. How did it get out?

Building Power – 200,000+ Subscribers, A New Direction

16 upvotes · 6 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Before they blacklisted our sub from being allowed to advertise on, they switched to impression count instead, and it didn't add up to 1.1. It also didn't match our internal statistics.

It currently shows impression counts if you type in subs. And they don't match any of those magic numbers that were displayed for a brief period of time.

"Marvel executive says emphasis on diversity may have alienated readers"

16 upvotes · 4 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm not convinced whitewashing it quite at the same level of deviousness. Consider- if a community in China wanted to put on a production of Hamlet, would they import a bunch of white fellas or just do it with their own actors and in their own language?

Why do single mothers sabotage their children?

16 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

If this post was him lamenting accidental pregnancies, it would be relevant. But he's talking about enjoying a family that was ripped apart by the feminine imperative. It was a good question.

The Red Pill Right

16 upvotes · 5 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

So she didn't text me back and also blocked my number... what should I do??

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

16 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm more worried about those who granted you security seeing your browsing habits.

Anti-Male Media Continues War on Men: Milo Yiannopoulos Suspended From Twitter

16 upvotes · 15 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

That would be fantastic.

I would not marry again.

16 upvotes · 5 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for beginning the discussion. One part that I do agree with is standing by a commitment that you made. While I wouldn't recommend marriage to anybody, if I got married before I knew TRP, my mission would be to make good on my commitments.

I fully support putting your all into finishing what you've started.

As somebody currently in a LTR, I am very interested in discussion on exactly how to keep proper boundaries in a relationship to keep things on the up and up.

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

16 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Guardian isn't a tabloid

That's the joke!

Endorsed Contributors: Respect The Tag

16 upvotes · 13 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The fact that you now apparently think you deserve some sort of compensation for playing on reddit is hilarious.

You obviously didn't read, you're gone.

Posting, and What Not to Do

16 upvotes · 12 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I think of 10 new questions that need answering every day. If you're out in the field observing people, there should always be something new to learn and share.

How to handle 2 plates running into each other

16 upvotes · 9 April 2016 · /r/askTRP

I've had plates collide many times in the past. Honestly, it usually ends in a boost in attraction. They may act upset, but 9 times out of 10, they both work harder for your attention. They will act as though you being a player is bad for attraction, and they might even shit test you "ewww, you're fucking other girls?" or "you're with her? really?"

They're trying to win the game. They want you to think the other girl is stupid, slutty, or gross. Because they want to win. Don't cave. They'll both put in 150% to try to outdo the other. At no point will this social proof actually hurt attraction.

Now, there's a caveat to this: sometimes this causes a plate to fall. It really does happen. Not all women are excited to be plates, and while there's an implicit understanding in non-commitment that one is a plate, they will keep spinning until they are forced to confront that reality. They may fall off. But remember this- just because she walked doesn't mean the plate collision dinged your attractiveness. She just wanted commitment and decided to cut her losses. If your plate falls because of this, keep her in the black book, because she'll get horny soon enough - either because she can't find anybody, or the beta she suckers will be boring to her. You will still be her booty call. Fine by me.

Seduction in One Picture.

16 upvotes · 23 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Very good insight

[Mod] Announcing a new platform: www.TRP.red

16 upvotes · 4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The reason is simple. I endorse content that I know will stay pure for red pill, information that I know won't lead people astray.

When MRP was young, I participated in a few discussions and weighed in on some threads that were chock full of really, really bad advice. I wasn't trying to be disparaging, only give some quality advice to guys who needed it.

A rogue mod decided they didn't like my advice and banned me from the sub.

While that mod has since stepped down, and I have been unbanned, I can't speak to the quality or future vision that the mods there have for their content, so I'm not comfortable endorsing it at the moment. (I may revisit this and see how things are going.)

We do, however, have a LTR flair, and discussion of married game is entirely on topic.

Saw this on Facebook. As far as I know no one died fighting for the women to vote.

16 upvotes · 29 January 2016 · /r/MensRights

Yup, and felons can't vote in a number of states, so signing up for selective service and risking life and limb is literally a requirement for men's enfranchisement.

Flashback Post #3: Men are not happy by Archwinger

16 upvotes · 18 January 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Next thing you know you are the bad guy, turns out it wasn't her but it was you! She now tells her friends and family that "things" were bad for a long time. That you "abused" her.

You're more right than you know. This retcon is something anybody who has been through a ltr is likely familiar with. The abuse line, the fact that it's been a pattern. Also familiar is the "I never loved you" bit. In her mind, her current feelings define reality. If she feels this way now, she must not have ever loved you.

I'm Milo Yiannopoulos, AMA

16 upvotes · 17 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If I had to venture a guess that was on purpose.

Two reminders for newbies: 1) money won't get you the sex you want. 2) Identify your buffers and slay them.

16 upvotes · 16 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Agreed with this.

Plus, money can buy prostitutes, so patently false.

Why does this sub appear to be against equality?

16 upvotes · 9 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Equal is a nonsense, meaningless term that defies definition beyond any feel-good connotation.

Women can make babies, we can't. Does that make us inferior?

You cannot reason someone out of a position that they did not reason themselves into.

16 upvotes · 4 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

There's a fine line between maintaining frame and simply being passive.

It's important in a LTR that little issues do get resolved, as giving them an inch...

Do Not Try to Engage Woman in a Logical Argument

16 upvotes · 31 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Google "generalization."

Then, google "can't see the forest for the trees."

Kickstarter for a movie about men's rights that's called "The red pill"

16 upvotes · 26 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

And she understands the purpose that TRP serves.

I am the guy in the NY Post article about the wife addicted to Ashley Madison

16 upvotes · 28 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Spend some time with a BPD and then try to think straight ever again.

Yeah we definitely have a SJW down vote brigade problem

16 upvotes · 9 July 2015 · /r/MensRights

I rarely get positive scores outside TRP. Including here.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

16 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Victoria probably tried to negotiate a higher salary.

Women CEO doesn't establish boundaries, goes on date with investor, cries harassment, overwhelming support from men online.

16 upvotes · 11 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Seriously, I'd allow it for $10,000.

Who am I kidding, I'd let somebody touch my dick for free.

The Complete Mod Policy Rundown

16 upvotes · 21 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I see a follow up to the Slut Quest™ game.

"I've done all the RedPill shit, but girls still don't want me. What now?" I'll tell you.

16 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

This nonsense about denying one's nature is annoying. I love pussy, and I would be upset if I never had sex again. I'm not ashamed to admit it, it's part of who I am as a fucking man. This reads like a bunch of rationalization, trying to put a positive spin on not getting laid.

Cowardice

16 upvotes · 27 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I typically like avoiding the drama. But on the other hand, today I don't mind putting a little exposure on the censorship of men's issues.

As usual, this content is an exception and not the rule.

Women will hamster and shame you for doing yourself some good.

16 upvotes · 3 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's your rejection of the group offering that caused the drama, not whether you ate or not.

♂

Frame in LTR - tell her you're angry, but never show her

16 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Occasional outbursts can be like candy to the hamster though. A well timed fit of rage keeps things interesting, Rollo wrote about this somewhere, I'll try to dig it up.

Redditor meets a "nice" girl, she starts getting brainwashed by feminazis, post his nudes on the internet after break-up and blackmails him saying that if he posts her nudes she'll say she wasn't aware of the existence of them. (jump to part 5 for tl;dr)

16 upvotes · 29 September 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

As always, watch out for borderlines. They hide in plain sight.

How should we fight a bachelor tax if it is implemented?

16 upvotes · 27 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Japan, surrounded by real women,

Don't be so sure of that one.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

16 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

All whores are sluts, but not all sluts are whores.

GAME OF THE SUMMER

16 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy shit- it's out now!

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2ej828/new_game_launch_slutquest_tm/

What is The Red Pill and Why does it exist

16 upvotes · 22 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Anger has always been a component, don't let anybody fool you.

Where would we hangout if this subreddit gets banned?

16 upvotes · 2 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup, thanks it.

We're currently under way doing a red pill archive to puerachy.

Counterpoint: Incel is a useful term, tons of people are celebrate who don't want to be

16 upvotes · 4 June 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Perhaps you're not getting it, so I'll use an analogy.

Imagine you're in a hedge maze. You're trying to find your way out. Some people take years to get out. Others are tall enough to see over the walls and leave in minutes. Still others have been looking so long they feel hopeless.

The people trapped in the maze do have to do work to get out. But they are not there because they want to be. It's because they don't see a clear way out.

This is involuntary celibacy. The people who don't see a way out.

Yes, getting out is a choice, but imagine if they don't have the red pill for a minute- imagine they've just got a sister and a mom who tell him, oh honey just be yourself. Do what you love, it'll come to you! And he tries and he tries and he tries.

And he fails.

It's not for a lack of trying.

It's because he doesn't even know what to do.

This is involuntary celibacy. It's real. It's the very reason our subreddit exists.

Redpillers in LTR's, where did you meet your partner?

16 upvotes · 27 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Gone

Your "One True Love" Does Not Exist

16 upvotes · 21 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I have yet to meet an american woman 21 or over that doesn't have that stare. (near major usa city)

The hamster closes its eyes, puts an index finger in each ear, and starts chanting, "I'm not a slut, I'm not a slut, I'm not a slut...."

16 upvotes · 29 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Steve Sailer's Law of Female Journalism

I had to google that, interesting find. For those in the dark:

Steve Sailer's Law of Female Journalism: The most heartfelt articles by female journalists tend to be demands that social values be overturned in order that, Come the Revolution, the journalist herself will be considered hotter-looking.

Design Changes

16 upvotes · 1 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Sometimes I change the design to total shit, and then change it back so people think I'm a hero.

Also, it's funny when other subs decide to mimick us by copying our design the day before april fools.. and I muck it up for them so now they look nothing like us...

<http://www.reddit.com/r/badphilosophy/>

Even while knowing she's part of a harem, she prefers to fuck the alpha than some beta.

16 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, the idiot comments were deleted. Wasn't a mystery.

Anybody writing /r/thathappened instead of formulating a fucking sentence is getting removed.

I...don't believe this.

16 upvotes · 11 March 2014 · /r/MensRights

There's no way fathers would stop raping long enough to teach their kids these important values.

Your take on the 'blind date' style encounters that Tinder-type apps lead to.

16 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/seduction

My experience on tinder is that if they take the time to reply, they're probably 50 lbs heavier than the picture shows.

It's a validation app for chicks.

If you must do online, okcupid seems to do well. POF is a shit hole.

You're new here? Welcome! Now shut up. Read this.

16 upvotes · 16 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. Report button. Use it.

The Red Pill Best of 2013

16 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This isn't a debate. You are operating on limited knowledge of the situation.

Operant Conditioning: How to train your woman

16 upvotes · 31 October 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Women have no value to anybody ever. Totally glad her mum died fuck bitches. Pffft I wish we still had chains and whips" (I have seen all these comments on here in the last week)

I don't think I've seen much of that. Obviously report it when you see stupid shit. And as always, don't concern troll. "Should" is a feminist talking point.

Women With Horses explained (post NSFW)

16 upvotes · 12 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

.. and it's also likely their first orgasm. They get nice and wet while riding a horse, but the horse is always stoic and distant, never quite returning the amount of love (or cognizance) that she puts into it.

It's a recipe for a strange bonding.

I rest my case.

16 upvotes · 29 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

If I'm not looking, and I meet a woman, I'm calling the police because she broke into my house.

From flirting to "you've been degrading me all night"

16 upvotes · 20 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Club bitches. It happens.

[Mod] Use adult words

16 upvotes · 16 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Ain't no grammar nazi. This is keeping a standard level of discourse.

The 3 biggest whores I know all parrot the same line when confronted: Can't be a coincidence... possibly nsfw

16 upvotes · 11 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/17xmry/acronym_and_glossary_thread/

The sidebar is your friend!

Surprisingly good conversation about why we exist on askmen.

16 upvotes · 5 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

True, but you gotta admit, they're a lot closer to our views than they've ever been before.

Also, the woman saying that anybody older than 35 realizes they don't like the alpha... she has no idea how much she's just making out point!

Rural Canadian school teacher hires undercover cop to kill ex-husband, claims DV after the fact, charges dropped.

16 upvotes · 22 June 2013 · /r/MensRights

/r/PussyPass

Clever Feminist says I'M A RAPEY REDPILLER! WRITE SCATHING COLUMNS ABOUT ME!

16 upvotes · 20 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists doing what they do best- try to control the social narrative through censorship. Why won't the big-bad-kickstarter close them down?

Is this sub being brigaded already?

16 upvotes · 18 June 2013 · /r/RedPillWomen

They usually burn themselves out. It's a group of feminists who really really don't think you should be allowed to have this conversation.

I'm worried about the future of the Manosphere

16 upvotes · 11 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Who makes a video that doles text out line by line? I already hate the video medium for blogging, but this is absurd.

As for the manosphere, I think we'll be just fine. I don't know if you noticed, but around these parts we're not exactly getting softer. The main staple blogs are all single author or staffed by authorized people only.

The Rotating Soft Harem. This one goes out to all the harem members I've lost...

16 upvotes · 5 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Well first of all, don't answer past dating experience questions. "I'd rather not talk about other women, if that's ok.."

Pardon me if already asked and answered, but can women be Red Pill? What are the characteristics? Does it manifest as enhanced femininity without the bullshit damseling and pearl clutching crap? How can you spot one?

16 upvotes · 27 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Red pill is just another way of saying realist. Can women be realists? Sure. It's rare on both sides of the spectrum.

Women are just as strong as men. Go figure.

16 upvotes · 20 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminine imperative at work. Shame the man on his access to women.

A little something for those of you who have the feeling that women are no good and can't be trusted.

16 upvotes · 13 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Because what have we been preaching? Ignore words, pay attention to actions!

My redpill / bluepill experiences and thoughts

16 upvotes · 11 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Stop expecting women to be men.

Hear me out on this- you lose respect for her because of how she responds to your assholiness. Any dude who did that would be a complete idiot, and you wouldn't respect him.

But women aren't men. They don't "earn" respect like men do. Women acting like a women should be your baseline right now. She responded to your game. Good. That means she's normal.

Now you can forge your relationship with her. But do not be angry that she is a woman.

Should it bother me if a girl in my harem is also casually sleeping with other men?

16 upvotes · 9 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I have a don't ask don't tell approach.

If you find out, you're going to be upset by it. That's natural. As far as I can tell, there's nothing you can do about it.

Women aren't like men, their affection really can only go towards one person at a time. Which is why this is such a damaging idea. If there another guy, 99% of the time it means you're on the outs.

If I accidentally find out, I usually phase that girl out of the harem.

Dear Prudence advice: Wife is resentful that husband makes more $ than her & maintains completely separate finances [although he pays all the bills and gives her pocket $]. Prudence advises "Tell him that you thought you married the handsome prince, but you feel like Cinderella before the ball."

16 upvotes · 30 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Women will settle down with you for a complex number we're going to call your sexual market value. Whether it's abs of steel, or money, or a combination of both, there's no wrong way to snag a mate.

Arguing that there's a "right" or more "moral" reason to do so is trying to appeal to the blue-pill type of relationship. I suppose you'd want your mate to love you for you, but let's face it, that's never going to happen.

Reddit women admitting violence is sexy

16 upvotes · 27 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Is it bad that I walk away? Oh, you started a fight? Finish it.

Can I get a "NAWALT"?

16 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Also relevant : <http://therationalmale.com/2011/09/29/duplicity/>

The self-shots link is broken, but you know what it is.

Sweden: Man arrested by policewoman for having big muscles - "In her report, the officer said he had 'unusually large muscles, particularly large arm muscles, which are a sign of steroid use.'"

16 upvotes · 26 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Enjoy the decline.

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

16 upvotes · 13 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She has free will, rights, it's wrong what happens to her, but it's wrong to stop her.

Nails it. This is why I can't stand the white knight advertisements in that other thread...

<http://i.imgur.com/V43G6bD.jpg>

Who are you to control what she does? If you ever stepped in and told me what to do, I'd punch you in the face.

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

16 upvotes · 13 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Prediction: Feminists miss point entirely, reframe argument, "what about rapists? They objectify too!" Entire discussion diverted, no real debate had on the merits of the article. Feminist'd!

The friendzone doesn't exist.

16 upvotes · 12 April 2013 · /r/askTRP

Step 1. Deny the friendzone exists.

Step 2. Friendzone.

I'm a woman who despises her "alpha"

16 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You have been called out for trolling. I'm going to take your lack of response as a sign that you were indeed.

Man, when you do this kind of thing, it really belittles the real struggles real women face. Some women are in truly abusive relationships, and here you are making light of it, like that's a joke. There is nothing funny about domestic violence. You sicken me. We're a forum talking about how to better appeal to women and make love to women. And you make jokes about abusive men. Fucking despicable.

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

16 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

One of the trickier parts of red pill theory is that some things are so self evident, nobody's done scientific research on it.

You can't define what men find attractive! I'll tell you what men find attractive!

16 upvotes · 11 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There was an argument that men prefer older women with good personalities. RedSunBlue pointed out that men don't search "old with good personalities" on porn sites.

Somebody points out that you wouldn't date porn stars.

I point out that their looks certainly don't make them datable, but that without looks they are definitely undatable.

This kid asserts that I'm in my twenties and haven't matured yet to start liking mature women. And that generalizing men to like younger women is factually incorrect.

You can kinda work out what was said between my responses from there.

Canadian woman drowns her 2 sons, leaves them for father to find. Serves 10 months in a HOSPITAL and is due to be released on Thursday.

16 upvotes · 4 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Pussy pass.

The Thigh Gap -- A Disturbing New Trend That Teen Girls Have Make More Sense Than a HuffPo Writer

16 upvotes · 4 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Dieting is an eating disorder. Fat is our natural beautiful state*.

*If you're a woman.

Let's be honest about "Focusing on her career...."

16 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no reason why even a highly educated, successful woman couldn't get married if she wanted to.

Well there's certainly the enjoyment of the cock carousel, that's a factor. The other problem is that women are only attracted to men that convey equal or higher status (preferably higher).

If a women thinks she's high enough status, she will effectively limit her own dating pool.

Quotes about love and marriage... amended by us.

16 upvotes · 21 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

"Till death (or boredom) do us part."

Askreddit thread: When did you realize you were not in love. Goldmine.

16 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Problem is that the event of the breakup is obvious, but the cause will be misattributed by the feminine imperative.

Lamentation of a single 30-something's mother: "Where have all the good men gone?"

16 upvotes · 13 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

What's worse is the terrible argument they put forward when you call them on the draft issue...

"Oh we're against selective service, we want to do away with it for men and women."

As if somehow that were a realistic goal.

Listen, I'm not a fan of dying for a country I have no respect for, but even I understand the point of having the selective service mechanism in place. At the end of the day, if a country needs defending... it needs defending.

Men should always pay for dinner (at least according to blue pill r/socialskills)

16 upvotes · 25 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Whenever a girl offers to pay for drinks or dinner, the polite response would be, "oh no don't worry I have this.." and pull out your wallet.

Not me. Whenever a girl offers to pay, I tell her we should get another round first!

Those moments

16 upvotes · 20 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The number of times I've been interrupted by an "oh I love this song!" or when I'm in groups with two girls, and they see absolutely nothing wrong with interrupting to talk to the other girl. It's astounding how obvious the behavior is, and how I always let it get to me.

Need some redpill advice.

16 upvotes · 2 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Welcome to flake culture. Very common. I've noticed flakes becoming more and more common just over the past decade to the point where I expect the flake. I never make one plan in a night anymore with somebody new. (I make multiple and flake on them!)

Sorry about last night? This isn't even a shit test at this point. She simply has no respect for you. I'd ignore her and move on. Literally don't even respond.

She may eventually text you again. Let me know if she does, we'll work from there.

Don't text her.

Case study: /r/amiugly

16 upvotes · 24 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Every time a man compliments a woman her ego grows just that much more. Ever get turned down by a girl below you in the looks department? You can thank a hundred betas who convinced her she was hot for that. Men, do yourself a favor, be reserved and conservative with your compliments.

Vietnam vet in Longview, TX, profiled as pedophile for simply bringing his grandson to water park

16 upvotes · 12 January 2013 · /r/MensRights

sad that young boys and girls can't bond with strong male role models other than their fathers in western society.

I've seen personal examples where being their father doesn't solve the problem. Kids can't bond with male role models at all a lot of the time.

#NoNothingNovember 2021 Tribe on TRP.RED - Drop 3 bad habits / vices for November and Track Your Progress

15 upvotes · 3 November 2021 · /r/askTRP

I like the idea. Do you have an idea how to implement that?

#NoNothingNovember 2021 Tribe on TRP.RED - Drop 3 bad habits / vices for November and Track Your Progress

15 upvotes · 2 November 2021 · /r/askTRP

The mod team and a large number of members were triggering Reddit's anti-evil operations. We lost moderators, many of them. Reddit's making a play at replacing the mod team with politically correct replacements (much like they did with the donald).

Don't be fooled. Half the shit you'd consider red pill can't even be spoken on this platform. We used to have regular posts talking about the real, dark red pill. I can't even say the words here without getting perma banned.

Grandpa Glen's Guide To Being A Red Blooded American

15 upvotes · 16 September 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

OG GG has verified his account with the team.

Interview with Whisper - WORLD EXCLUSIVE!

15 upvotes · 19 July 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

They didn't claim to know the answers, they just knew they had to create an environment that fosters discussion and then innovation would spark. And boy did it do just that. Fucking pioneers. Revolutionary.

When you hear guys on other forums nerfing their own strategies because it wasn't fair play but recognizing that women will take any advantage they have, well, that's a good sign to wake up.

When other guys police you and your language for discussing how your strategy could be better, then you realize the place you're having the conversation isn't really interested in the truth, they're interested in the status quo.

Whenever I hear "man TRP would be so much better if it weren't for all that misogyny" the part they're not saying out loud is how anything that leads to better success is misogyny to them. Naturally, if truth is hate, then banning "hate" as they put it will prevent you from discussing truth.

It's so insidious, that it works to control generations of boys and men. But not us.

Anger is not a phase.

15 upvotes · 14 October 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

lost causes like America and it's women.

*Planet and its women.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

15 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

We are absolutely in the admin's crosshairs, and we have proof they're here quite a bit recently.

I suspect you're unfamiliar with Digg.

A Note on OPSEC in light of the recent Twitter leaks...

15 upvotes · 20 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Virtual Machine

Don't Be A Hyperconsumerist Christmas Cuck

15 upvotes · 6 December 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Betcha I called him out on it there.

Why are people so hellbent on getting rid of that good fat?

Reddit Admin give /r/TheRedPill a Stay of Execution

15 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, please. Can you jump on TRP.red and send me a pm

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

15 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

<https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

Excuse the slowness, we're running active archives..

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

15 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks like their plan. Enjoy obscurity reddit.

Roosh is going on Tour -- Start the clock. How long until protests shut him down denying his right to free speech?

15 upvotes · 9 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Roosh has announced meetup days before (with or without him) that have been threatened and cancelled. I think one was labelled "rape day" or something like that by the media.

I look forward to the shit show.

Georgia (Feminist) Legislators introduce HB 604: Any male 55 years of age or older shall immediately report to the county sheriff or local law enforcement agency when such male releases sperm from his

15 upvotes · 21 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Okay that's enough internet for me today.

The Truth About "Misogyny" | "For a man to pretend to understand women is bad manners; for him really to understand them is bad morals."

15 upvotes · 21 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

White background/ black text?

This isn't my site, I have no control over it.

"Well, in the future I'd like something serious, just not right now."

15 upvotes · 28 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I mean yeah. But I'm not willing to do so until they show some sort of monogamy. Am I crazy for that??

No, that's absolutely the best way to avoid being plated.

It's a good strategy for women.

That said- and this isn't advice to you- men have learned that women who play games should be quickly passed over because other women will give it out easier.

That isn't to say you should lower your price- you shouldn't. But if you're upset that dating in this day and age is difficult, well it's the sex-positive movement that made it difficult. That's why women have a natural aversion to sluts.

That said there are a lot of thirsty people out there. I'm sure you can hook one eventually with this strategy. The question is, will you find a guy you consider to be high enough value?

That's hard to answer because most high-value guys already know they can get laid, and won't likely wait around unless you have some serious value yourself.

So, what do you do?

Make sure you have all the qualities of a long term mate. Be pleasant, make sure you're fit, show that you're nurturing and friendly. Guys who are looking for an LTR will want these qualities. Check out /r/redpillwomen for more advice along these lines.

The Monetization of the Manosphere

15 upvotes · 27 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We've also taken a very hardline stance against blatant hijacking of our popularity for marketing purposes.

For instance, we've had a ton of guys write shitty blogs pushing a product at the end to "solve" the problem. They get removed and banned.

We don't allow people to use TRP as a funnel to paywall sites.

We do allow people to publish entire articles and link to their own source.

We do allow certain long standing members to offer a way to tip (GLO's T-shirts which isn't exactly making anybody rich, TRP.RED Tipping (to any member!), and a few members have patrons (including IM and myself). But once again, we only do so if it's not required for the actual content. TRP.RED and FORUMS.RED will always be free. For me, this is a project of passion.

Anthony/21 convention is an interesting case. On one side I like the idea of supporting a men's convention and anything that increases communication and networking between men should be embraced.

On the downside, I'm not sure the convention itself needs to be as expensive as it is, and Anthony has no idea how to play nice, getting himself into arguments with the mods here regularly.

The unabashed marketing of soap puts him squarely in my do-not-trust list. And I'm not sure why. Maybe it's because he says it'll get you laid.

I'd better trust somebody who says "here's a public good that I'm doing, and here's some neat soap I like. If you buy it, it helps me to keep doing what I'm doing."

But as far as I can see, his only public good costs $1700 for entry.

Am I wrong about this?

How To Prepare Our Sons for the Matriarchy

15 upvotes · 26 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Ah, you know what I botched my link. Quarantine kinda fucks with stuff too.

2018 Median Age of Marriage

15 upvotes · 21 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Less men = More choice for men = less picky women.

Reminder that you will die and probably not be remembered

15 upvotes · 21 November 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

That's the goal. To keep people like us from breeding. I say, fuck em.

Paul Elam "[The Red Pill are] saving lives, yes, it's needed badly. I wanted to go on the public record of saying how much I opposed this quarantine they need to lift that thing."

15 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree that his assessment of the sub is incorrect.

But he's addressing the straw man of our sub- what everybody else says we are. And he says "so what."

Administration Reply to Appeal #1

15 upvotes · 15 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

This was it so far:

<https://a.trp.red/files/appeal-response1.png>

Our Open Invitation to Mods: Join Our Life Raft

15 upvotes · 9 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Waiting to hear from admin.

Efforts to ban TRP have surfaced once again

15 upvotes · 12 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

In the end, if TRP is going to be saved from a ban at some point, the best thing the mods of this sub can do is start deleting more posts.

Ah yes, appease the feminists by curtailing our speech.

Can't see how that slippery slope will become a problem. /s

The fact is that this is how the feminine imperative works. They work to get you to self censor and modify your speech and tone. And once you do, it's never enough. The window will continue moving and you will always be on the wrong side of it.

This is how they control ideas. By controlling speech.

As such, we do not moderate tone. We do moderate quality and adherence to the topic.

And if that's the hill we die on, so be it. Anything is better than curtailing ourselves to appease the fempire.

A Clarification on Rule 6: No examples from fiction or lyrics.

15 upvotes · 30 August 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

To be clear, the rule hasn't changed.

Disappointment in the Lack of Critical Thinking

15 upvotes · 30 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's learning to accept rejection and move on without a huge amount of up-front investment. Suggesting it's psychopathic only serves women by convincing you that you must invest more and be more fazed when a woman rejects you. That only hurts male sexual strategy.

What Men Want: “Debt-Free Virgins Without Tattoos”

15 upvotes · 27 July 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Tagthesponsor

I think we stickied that one a while back. I think it's funny.

Radical feminism changes men’s perceptions of women in the workplace - Feminism does not allow women to prefer men who exhibit traditional masculine characteristics. So what’s left? Get drunk and have sex with the hot bad boys. Then promote false accusations to get revenge against the hot bad boys.

15 upvotes · 10 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Quotes from this article:

Do men want to work with women who hate men and make false accusations against people they disagree with? I’m a conservative, Christian, pro-life virgin. I disagree with all premarital sex. If this woman worked with me and found out my views, she would almost certainly get me fired.

In my experience, young, unmarried progressive women are progressive because they want taxpayer-funded abortions, taxpayer-funded contraception, no-fault divorce, single mother welfare, student-loan forgiveness, etc. Taxpayer-funded bailouts for problems caused by their own free choices. They feel that if society is paying for something, then it’s “normal” and they don’t have feel guilty about making poor choices. Their primary concern about politics is being able to do what they feel like without anyone disapproving. Everything bad that happens is “unexpected”, and so society should have to pay for it.

Marriage is BP, stop revering it.

15 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Remember that no matter what leverage you believe you have before getting into a marriage, there is a fundamental psychological change when a woman gets married. It puts a loaded gun in her hand, points it at your head, and then asks her not to pull the trigger.

Sure, for the time being she's okay. But after a while, most women tend to dislike men they have control over.

Can you overcome it? Maybe. Some do, most don't. If it were vegas, I'd stick to black jack.

Marriage is BP, stop revering it.

15 upvotes · 5 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

It's snake oil to recommend to men they buy into a faulty product and if anything goes wrong it's simply that they didn't try hard enough.

That's the exact lie that created the red pill in the first place.

Requirement for a successful relationship: You need to be able to make her feel BAD

15 upvotes · 31 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Reports:

1: This subreddit needs to die already, you abusive pieces of shit

The Great Banning of 2017

15 upvotes · 13 June 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Any time you see it, please click report!

Today I ended my LTR

15 upvotes · 16 May 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

First of all, this is great reason why I never moved in with a girl, because it leaves you with a lot less options when it comes time to end it. Make sure she has her own place, even if she sleeps over a lot.

Secondly, congrats on leaving the LTR. I have just recently had a similar experience and I will tell you that when you've got oneitis, it hurts a lot. But you'll look back at the new freedom you have and reminisce about this experience in the future.

Be a strategist, and take on life as an on-going war

15 upvotes · 30 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Life is a war. Have a mission and do everything and anything to accomplish it. Realize that a lot of people will try to stop you or change your mind. Do what you need to do.

Are we the failed ones?

15 upvotes · 3 April 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Man, if you were me, what should I do, i feel like i shouldnt date and see a therapist? Like what should I be doing man, i dont even know. Im so lost right now. I feel genuinely so so lost.

Don't bother with a therapist.

Step one is to put together a workout regimen. Seriously. Cardio + Lift. You won't be in the right frame of mind until you do that for a week.

Step two is to let go of your goals (and your failure to reach them), and start working on what you can do today. Submit some job applications. Look for some local groups that you can join that have hobbies or interests.

Keep reading. Take some time to digest. If you feel overwhelmed, stop reading and go for a run.

This feminist sex store blames men for women not having orgasms, so they're giving free sex toys to women but not men. Feminists sure love equality. Hypocrites.

15 upvotes · 21 March 2017 · /r/MensRights

It's also stupid because women can have multiple orgasms.

For every one orgasm a man has, I'm giving a girl 3-4. FIX THE GAP! MORE BLOW JOBS!

The Red Pill Right

15 upvotes · 4 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

You can be pro-gay, pro-personal freedoms, pro-choice, pro-drugs, and still not want immigrants that won't assimilate though.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

15 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Here's a question for you-

Let's say you have two boys. By the time they reach college age, one decides to take on $100,000 of debt to get an education, and the other decides to go into a trade school for $10,000

Four years later, the first boy is still $100,000 in debt and can't afford payments because he's having a hard time getting a job.

Second boy has already paid down half of his debt, and makes enough to support himself and have a little extra left over. He's been working for two of the years the first boy was in college.

Here's the big question:

If boy two is enjoying the benefits of not taking on overwhelming debt, is it fair to forgive boy one's debt, let him keep the degree, and put him in a position of advantage over boy two despite him making bad decisions?

GayLubeOil Fills You with his Esoteric Wisdom

15 upvotes · 16 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

If you want to be constructive, by all means criticism is welcome. If you're just going to insult members that spend time and energy providing value to us, then we'll show you the door.

The Sexodus in action: millennials are having less sex.

15 upvotes · 4 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I don't know if that's affecting the virginity rates, but I know it's affecting the marriage rates for sure.

CMV: Solipsism is the foundation of TRP

15 upvotes · 16 June 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

Even /u/redpillschool, who arguably should be able to score elite women, what with all his years of RP knowledge, can still only attract immature women.

To address this since OP seems to have missed the point:

I'm describing all women. Not just the ones I attract.

Edit: I should add to this- my article on women being children isn't simply that I observed a few immature ones and drew a conclusion- I actually posed the question: what causes people to mature? And the answer is the realization of consequences. You can argue all you want that women are or aren't mature, but I have yet to hear by which mechanism women actually are forced to realize consequences on anywhere the same scale as men.

Ugly women might be the closest to experiencing the same level of consequence in their lives. But good looking women can literally coast through life- marry somebody to take care of them, have guys trip over themselves to help her with things like moving, get lesser or no sentencing when she commits a crime, and her sexuality is applauded at every turn even when it doesn't benefit her in the long run.

What would be your reaction if 90% of men in society absolutely refused to get married?

15 upvotes · 27 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

I think our immediate future will see a lot more men putting women into riskier situations to start a family.

The common refrain I hear is "why would a man risk having kids out of wedlock?"

The real answer is awful: your kids are only yours at the mercy of their mother. I've worked in the family court system long enough to see divorced men and men who were never married treated exactly the same. All it takes is a good lawyer and a woman who's willing to do what it takes (which describes damn near all of them), and you can get the kids away from any man.

So marriage really offers no protections. I see men pushing women to start a family outside of wedlock, which means if a man is going to risk anything, the woman will have to as well.

Even then, it's stacked in favor of women. So you avoid the alimony and losing half your shit risks, but you trade it in for alimony 2.0: child support.

If anything, I see men learning to raise the stakes higher. Nobody's going back to marriage once they open their eyes. And the number of men opening their eyes grows every day.

New Design

15 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The lefties that run Reddit put us in continued jeopardy requiring us to invest in an off-reddit site, trp.red.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

15 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Assigning MRP a reputation based off a handful of people is probably not the best way to handle it.

Based on the behaviors of a moderator who is tasked with steering the discussion.

Zootopia

15 upvotes · 14 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You can be red pill and analyze pop culture at the same time. Calm your tits.

The Empress is Naked

15 upvotes · 10 December 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Like a light switch. I've seen it myself.

It's insane how good they are at it.

Honest question for this community

15 upvotes · 20 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah, dudes suck.

Not really on topic here.

Don't mistake the absence of discussion a discussion of absence.

[Mod] Make the community worth a fuck by not acting like a cunt.

15 upvotes · 12 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Lifting so that slutty susan will suck your dick isn't strong motivation.

In fact, terrible motivation because once you get slutty susan, what is there left to lift for?

Here, in video form, I present to you the young American women of today.

15 upvotes · 2 October 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

If she hasn't texted you back, its definitely not because she doesn't have her phone.

♂ Point awarded

The one time everyone, even r/hamsters, blames the woman.

15 upvotes · 29 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I think there's a bit too much emphasis on conspiracy. Women are not thinking this deeply

No, it's not a conscious strategy on their parts, but it does exist and it's instinctual. We refer to it as the feminine imperative.

Consider the strange unanimous chorus of women when it comes to the following topics:

- Pregnancy - It's her choice and she should keep it if she wants and it's the best interest of the child, and anything contradicting this is oppression. Oh, but guys, you signed your death wish when you stuck your penis in her.
- Paternity testing - It's a simple test that causes no harm to anybody and gives the father peace of mind, yet all women have a viscerally negative reaction to the idea, even when they themselves are not cheating. The hivemind creates cover for the alpha fucks portion of AF/BB.

These are just a few examples, but Rollo's blog has more. It's not so much a conscious conspiracy as it is an instinctual biological conspiracy.

Chateau Heartiste Maxims (Updated from 17/09/2014 to 19/09/2015)

15 upvotes · 19 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

He's on to something with 22, but I think he missed the target:

Corollary to Maxim #22: A dating market lopsided with unrealistically high self-esteem women will shrink the pool of men available to date and marry, with the consequence that women remain single longer than they would otherwise.

Why does a market become lopsided with unrealistically high self-esteem women? Because the market has fewer women and more men.

They've done campus studies where they found that when there were less women than men, women were less likely to settle down (and while not in the study, naturally an inflated ego comes with being in high demand). However, men, being thirsty for whatever they could get, would actually commit more easily, accepting bottom of the barrel since a market with a couple 4 - 7s but no 10s would inflate their worth to that of 10s.

This is almost universally what you see in the USA, except instead of being in short supply generally speaking, we see the market is artificially off balance because there are so many hambeasts (a higher percentage of women are overweight than men).

So while the net effect is that women are less likely to settle down, it's not because of unwilling partners, it's because the women themselves price themselves out of the market when it's skewed like that, or have no intention of settling when the cock carousel and endless validation therein will continue well into their 30s.

20-year-old "sugar baby" charges men $500 a date, sees as "empowering"

15 upvotes · 19 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Poorly dressed indeed. Nothing about her makes me think I could bring her anywhere respectable.

A note on the backup forums

15 upvotes · 6 August 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for the heads up. Luckily the minds coming up with this agreed with you as well.

Well apparently the worlds largest cuckold checking in.

15 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I haven't seen any. In fact, every time this comes up I ask for images and text so I can take appropriate action, and my request has never once been fulfilled.

I suspect this sort of trolling is to rally the masses.

Well apparently the worlds largest cuckold checking in.

15 upvotes · 23 July 2015 · /r/askTRP

I don't believe it's against reddit's rules, but as a subreddit we have a strict rule against following links and brigading. That includes contacting OP.

The Complete Mod Policy Rundown

15 upvotes · 21 March 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Grounds for removing comments

- Lack substance
- Including memes or picture macros
- Response gifs or photos
- Frequent misspellings or terrible grammar
- JAQing off with no interest in the subject
- Assuming conclusions (you're a misogynist and here's why)
- Being overly argumentative for the sake of argument. (ignoring the spirit of discussion).
- Saying too little or straying off topic too far.
- Condoning anything illegal or breaking any of reddit's rules.
- Attacking another user instead of his point.
- Concern trolling, or any subject matter that appeals to the "state of the sub" losing quality.
- General trollery

Grounds for removing a post:

Any of the criteria above for removing a comment, and also:

- Providing no new insight, being repetitive,
- Posting gotcha questions to try to prove everybody wrong (take it to PPD)
- Short paragraphs that do not bring anything new to the table
- Blatant spam
- Good-bye posts
- Thank you posts (go to /r/thanktrp)

- Misleading titles to confuse people
- Anything that appears low quality to the mods.

Grounds for temporarily banning a user:

Blatantly abusing or breaking the rules in way a reasonable person would know better.

Grounds for permanently banning a user:

Demonstrating clearly that TRP is not the place for you, and you have no interest in actual discourse. Further, demonstrating that a temporary ban would be ineffective because you would not change your tune after a temporary ban. Anybody arguing with mods in mod chat.

You'd be surprised how many temporary bans turn into permanent bans thanks to somebody coming out guns blazing instead of approaching the subject civilly.

A note on Trolling

With the influx of new users, we have to deal with the unfortunate reality that there will be more trolls. Because of this, we're going to have to be a little more strict in our adherence to the policies.

Posts that utilize any kind of concern or shaming language are immediately suspect. We will take a look at each post on a base-by-case basis. Typical phrases that we will be looking out for include:

"I feel so bad, sad, etc."

"You're bitter."

"Misogynist"

"You all..."

Please note, we encourage open debate and discussion of our theories, but please bring facts, and not ad hominem attacks or concern for our well being.

A new trend that we have been seeing recently are the passive aggressive trolls that disguise themselves with plausible deniability. They attempt to cloud their true purpose by representing themselves as honestly inquisitive or perhaps genuinely mislead, and here to learn. We identify them by their concern language, ad hominem attacks, or insults to our moderators.

It is very possible to be here and ask questions, or disagree without setting off any red flags. However, common attributes of a troll post include:

Leading with a presumptive conclusion. "The fact that you're bitter is getting in the way of.."

Asking complex questions (fallacious questions) to which any answer is an endorsement to a presupposition that has not been determined or agreed upon. "Can anybody tell me why you guys hate women so much?"

Ad hominem "just because you are bitter.."

Condescension "This just seems like a bunch of chest beating to me.."

Unfalsifiable rhetoric - phrases, insults, accusations that cannot be falsified and serve no purpose but to manipulate the emotional state of the opponent or onlookers. "This is just a circle jerk"

Concern "I feel like this sub is focusing too much on.." (If you are genuinely concerned, contact a moderator, or submit more content of the quality you would prefer to see.)

Accusations of echo chamber/circle jerk. This is a combination of just about all of the above, but I want to highlight that the term "circlejerk" itself is meaningless and unfalsifiable rhetoric used to gain an upper hand in an argument without any of the legwork required to disprove the opponent's points.

Insulting the moderators - If you disagree with a moderator, that's just fine. You can do so publicly or in PM. We're not gods, we don't know everything, and we spend a lot of time learning every day. However, if you show disrespect to the moderators by using ad hominem attacks or thinly disguise an insult as a "genuine" disagreement, you will be banned.

If you feel you were unjustly caught we have no issue looking at appeals on a case by case basis, just know that your post history and account age will be looked at.

Our moderators do a lot of work to keep our sub clean and functioning on a daily basis, including banning trolls, flaring posts, and attempting to discuss solid red pill theory. Please do not make our jobs harder.

Alpha male Tom Cruise dominates Matt Lauer on his own show.

15 upvotes · 6 January 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Indeed, he's an example of the extreme other end where he's so above reproach that it can potentially harm him. On one side, it's a good example of extreme and pure alpha. No doubt he can get laid by his pick, but you're right, bold-headed indiscriminate alpha is not a long-term type strategy. It's alpha fucks.

Dare devil is an example of alpha that seems like a poor long term strategy as well. Burns hot and bright, but it also burns fast.

Everybody is so afraid of TRP, they have to censor because people might read it and agree...

15 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It takes a different level of loser to become a moderator on the internet forum. They have no other power anywhere else in their lives for good reason

Oh..

Casual Dating in the City

15 upvotes · 8 December 2014 · /r/RedPillWomen

If you're looking to get married, you're not casually dating.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

15 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ok, see ya.

New Game Launch: SLUTQUEST (TM)

15 upvotes · 25 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They had leverage over me.. so I couldn't actually consent..

oh my god.. now that you mention it, I do feel totally raped.

Single Moms Are The Only Thing Worse Than Sluts

15 upvotes · 6 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The thing about a single mother is that the child always comes first. Always. And it is not your child. It will never be your child. The second the woman has a disagreement with you she will remind you that it is not your child. Count on it.

♂

Is TRP falsifiable?

15 upvotes · 1 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

but the establishment is hiding the proof and preventing us from doing actual research on female attraction cues and triggers.

This sounds overly conspiratorial, but it's true- when the very questions we're asking are so politically incorrect that nobody wants to suggest even trying to study these things... you've got yourself a dead zone in research.

Furthermore, it seems that even when conclusions agree with TRP, it's hand-waved away and explained as "but men and women really are the same so.."

Why you need to shut up and listen: A litmus test you all failed.

15 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5l0b6 http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5wjjc

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5l7sj

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5pjfk

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5ql3v

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj6cob1

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5yd6j

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5kfc7

http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/2bi9ne/women_are_incapable_of_change/cj5oe11

It was a bunch of people who read my point and just disagreed. They understood my point, but disagreed- not tone policed, just disagreed. Some of it turned out to be a really interesting discussion.

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

15 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Killing their kids won't even get them sent to prison! How is a woman supposed to be below the bar at this rate??
/r/pussypass

I don't hate women, I just don't respect them, and unless many changes within their gender come about, I never will.

15 upvotes · 16 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm just giving you a hard time. You know I love you.

Weekend Wrapup [hotlinks]

15 upvotes · 28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Luckily the mods can override the votes with a simple "Delete." That blowjob one sure will teach me to take a nap! Out for one hour and everybody is fumbling over themselves trying to validate some slut. Fucking A red pill.

On basic GAME, PICKUP, and the direction of TheRedPill, RULES REVISITED 4/2014

15 upvotes · 22 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes. I'm working through the list and removing them now.

I think I just threw up a bit in my mouth....

15 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Guys who make more money than her want nothing to do with her. In her limited experience, she doesn't know that rich guys are out there dating the classy ladies that work out.

And if they have abs? They did it for him.

I think I just threw up a bit in my mouth....

15 upvotes · 15 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

don't expect us to be cultured in any way.

If it's not shiny and instantly entertaining, then expect her face to be in her ~~validation~~ iphone.

Son asks mom how do I attract girls? JBY advice is rejected and hilarity ensues

15 upvotes · 9 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You seem really attached to this idea that "being yourself" is important.

If who you are doesn't attract women, "be yourself" is a useless platitude that keeps you happy with mediocrity and gives you excuses not to change.

That's that.

Design Changes

15 upvotes · 1 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's our new direction here at red pill. You see, as it turns out maybe we were wrong to embrace our differences in the first place. You know what women really like? When you have the same tits they do. Equality, you know?

Girlfriend is traveling, cheats, guy doesn't know what to do :smh:

15 upvotes · 28 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's be honest- getting your heart broken is only a favor to the guy so he knows how not to get his heart broken again.

That's like burning down a house is a favor because then you know to buy an extinguisher.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

15 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't forget, they are absolutely obsessed with us. I think it's less a satire, and more of an homage.

On reading comprehension and literal interpretations

15 upvotes · 25 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That would require insight.

[Mod] They're talking about us again... and we don't care.... quick guidelines.

15 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Nope. I do have advertisements on my website- puerarchy.com but they bring in slightly less than I pay for hosting. WAH WAH

Even while knowing she's part of a harem, she prefers to fuck the alpha than some beta.

15 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You'd be surprised the bullshit women put up with when they are hot for a guy.

[Mod] On red pill discourse, and a brief discussion on BETA

15 upvotes · 25 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's a choice everybody has to make for themselves.

I "passed" my latest shit test with flying colours.

15 upvotes · 24 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

That's because it was a shit test, not a line at all!

How to handle a 'flaky' girl.

15 upvotes · 19 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't forget that until you've found a way to get her interested, girls won't find the time.

Don't mistake a lack of interest with disinterest.

It's good to know what to next, but at the same time, sometimes persistence is necessary, especially if you're online dating or something.

33 year-old doctor slammed into the wall. Won't date any men who make less than top 1% of men. Can't figure out why men won't date her.

15 upvotes · 27 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Seriously. My very brief experience with older women told me this: They're harder to get along with, they have more preferences and think they're entitled to enforce them. Things have to be their way. They're just not as pleasant at all.

Proof that dating teens in your 30's is only creepy if your SMV is low

15 upvotes · 3 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not that I enjoy inane chatter of an 18 year old, it's that I really really can't stand the annoying weathered experienced bitchy attitude of women past 23.

Once they get to the age where they can go to bars, I find their attitude changes dramatically and they become less pleasant to be around.

TRP and racism.

15 upvotes · 8 November 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

In blue pill world, allowing discussion to broach the topic of race is racist, and discussion about the reality that violence has been used by some of our ancestors is an endorsement of violence.

More thought police super-sensitive social justice warriorism here. If red pill school said "the discussion could take place" then he whole heartedly endorses basically anything blue pillers want to pretend he endorses.

I'm not engaging this thread, man. At what point do you just think to yourself, well if these people are so hellbent on having a position and feelings about the red pill and me that simple things like reality won't sway them.. well that's not a debate.

I get the vibe that this isn't debate at all, but instead a smear sub. No offense to you, alphamod, cause you've done a good job trying to be impartial, but the level of absolutely absurd bending of statements to serve these people's agenda is tiring.

You can see it with the number of times the "rape" or "voting" debates have happened. We conclude that well rps never really did say that but heck, once we forget the debate took place, we can make the same accusations again.

This sort of thought policing is interesting to me. It's obvious that feminism and the blue pill as a whole has public opinion on their side. But not because public opinion is well informed. Quite to the contrary, they have made boogey men out of red pillers, pointing to rape and misogyny as the reason we shouldn't be trusted. And when the topics are not politically correct, no debate has to take place. No honesty here, no introspection. All you have to do is make sure they realize the topic is not politically correct... and if you have the discussion.. are you sure you're not a rapist? You're talking about rape.. sounds like a rapist to me..

On the topic of introspection, I suspect that the people here arguing against red pill would rather disagree by lying about their own position than admit that we have even one thing in common.

I will admit I was here because it was entertaining to watch and take part in the debate. But frankly I think the fun really has vanished with people like angatar's honesty. This is not an insult- nor an attack. It's quite blatant at this point that he/she has been misquoting me and misrepresenting my opinion since this sub opened, and at this point I'm drawing a line. It happens, you intercede, we finally get to a conclusion that it was wrong, slap on the wrist, on to the next one. Again, and again, and again. Should he/she get caught, changing everything to a question is the simplest way to skirt the rules. "Does RPS rape babies? I don't know, it seems like it but maybe i'm wrong."

These are allegations that I simply will no longer address.

I'm not sure what you or anybody else can do as moderators, but I'm confident that as it stands, this will slowly devolve further into blue pill circle jerk until there is simply just another blue pill sub.

[Mod] Discussing RP ideas with our detractors.

15 upvotes · 23 August 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Every time somebody stirs the pot, we have to ban 10 more throwaways.

We're obviously not going to be nuts about it (except maybe nutz), but at the same time, remember that when you participate over there, you're feeding them the drama they crave.

Dilbert takes the red pill.

15 upvotes · 21 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Although it's a comic, I've seen all the arguments she made in real life.

[Mod] Use adult words

15 upvotes · 17 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You clearly misunderstand how the growth will affect the sub. If we allow a small amount of creep, it will be the old users who are crowded out by the idiots.

Surprisingly good conversation about why we exist on askmen.

15 upvotes · 5 July 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

You just come in here and rain on my optimism.

[Mod] Keep up the good work.

15 upvotes · 14 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey now

You guys are going to cream yourselves reading this thread. Enjoy.

15 upvotes · 13 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Top comment:

I would discourage anyone from committing to a relationship for the sole purpose of having kids.

How do I conquer my rage?

15 upvotes · 12 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Soon.

Girl Talk: I'm A Feminist, But I Think I Want To Date A More Traditional Dude [Hamster desperately tries to explain away her "desire to feel looked after and taken care of"]

15 upvotes · 10 June 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, there are.

You can try to convince us that you're one of the good ones- but that doesn't mean we care. You align yourself with a movement that has already achieved equal rights under the law and has for a long time been pushing for more.

And every time we call a feminist on the bullshit, they claim, "Oh no! I'm one of the good ones! We care about men too!"

I refuse to believe anybody marching under the banner with genuinely hate-filled cunts that took away our sons, that destroyed marriage, that don't oppose the draft, that don't oppose circumcision, that don't oppose the 90% male workplace deaths, that don't oppose false rape accusations against men has my interest at heart.

You can claim you aren't like that, but frankly, calling yourself a feminist is a poor decision in that regard.

Prime example of postmodern discourse and it's inability to cope with rational debate. This is why we talk right past our detractors.

15 upvotes · 31 May 2013 · /r/askTRP

Sex is an instanced activity. Consent isn't given persistently. You appear to be arguing marriage, as it currently exists, grants ongoing consent to the instanced activity. This is not the case.

Right. Since 1975. However, before that it was considered a persistent consent.

"R.v. Ryan - woman hires hitman to kill husband. At trial, husband isn't allowed to address her accusations of DV. She walks. Does his internet appeal mark a change in how court cases are reported?

15 upvotes · 10 May 2013 · /r/MensRights

So the supreme court looks at it and determines that the reason she was not charged - (under duress) can't apply because what happened cannot be defined as being under duress.. and then doesn't over-turn the decision because the whole ordeal has already been so much for her?

Wait, what?

Forever Beta? I derive more pleasure from jerking off without a condom than from fucking with a condom.

15 upvotes · 7 May 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't say I didn't warn you.

Let's talk about WHY TheRedPill exists, regardless of whether TRP itself is right

15 upvotes · 25 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I'm talking about marriage not women. You knew that though.

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

15 upvotes · 15 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Just to put it in your inbox, she and I have both updated our posts with edits.

Only white knights, women and feminists objectify women.

15 upvotes · 15 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

There is no fallacy to understanding evolutionary psychology.

<http://www.sscnet.ucla.edu/comm/haselton/papers/downloads/haystraw.pdf>

What on Earth is r/TheRedPill?

15 upvotes · 9 April 2013 · /r/MensRights

There is a lot of overlap. I support men's rights push to even out the family court system. I would love to see the criminal justice system try and sentence women on the same standards as men.

But we diverge at our understanding of equality. Whereas feminism claims to be for equality (but we recognize it not to be), men's rights is pushing for a similar failure to understand our differences.

If we were to push for pure equality, men's and women's bathrooms should be shared. If we went for full equality, men and women would have to change their clothes to be the same, remove body parts that differ, and act in ways that deny our genders.

Obviously we are different genders, separate but equal. Women will always reward strong confident men. We sometimes see men's rights pushing for more acceptance of the soft, gentle, stay at home dad. The problem here is simple: although it would be nice to be able to live in an equal world where we could swap roles and be stay at home dads, women don't necessarily respect that behavior.

And that's why we diverge. We understand that there are some behaviors that are programmed into our heads that attract mates. Women like strong, confident men who take care of business. Men like soft feminine women who are fertile.

Pushing for equality sometimes ignores these basic truths, to the detriment of their own movements.

My bitter taste of the Red Pill

15 upvotes · 5 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Dread game. Love it.

A Hamster talks about cheating on her boyfriend with "Johnny" [2X]

15 upvotes · 3 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Great quote from RPman:

It's a sad commentary in my opinion that an explicit financial transaction is required for women to feel like it's worth the effort to be the perfect girlfriend.

Blue-Piller Goes on Deployment, Comes Back to This...

15 upvotes · 1 April 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Oh man, the guy put her in charge of finances, and he's all cleaned out. Imagine serving in active duty for years, just to come home and have nothing at all to show for it.

Why aren't men responding to economic signals?

15 upvotes · 29 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This is a must read for anybody new here. To the top with you!

Reddit Men's Rights Activists Are Fundraising For The "Victim" Of Adria Richards

15 upvotes · 22 March 2013 · /r/askTRP

I would just like to mention that while Roosh might make a few jokes about rape in his books, false rape accusations are a serious concern.. and one that the fund is will be focusing on.

For those just tuning in to this side of the internet, I want to stress that men like Brian Banks do actually get their lives ruined.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Brian_Banks_\(American_football\))

Where does the hamster (female inability and aversion to guilt) actually come from?

15 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

This guy knows what he's talking about. I do want to expand on a few points...

Uber's breakdown on the evolutionary origin of the decisions of the hamster I think is spot on. But the question is, why the rationalization? Why the aversion to guilt? Why no dedication to truth and integrity?

The hamster is a survival mechanism which was refined over generations of women. They needed to be able to make quick decisions and settle with them, say if men invaded their village and killed all the men, and took the women. That was the women's new life now. So the rationalization hamster took over to ensure the women would adapt and adjust to the new life.

Men used to be very disposable. Having to go from man to man was a survival technique. If her man died hunting, she'd have to find another.

Avoiding appearing as a slut was important to attracting men, who would want to ensure their offspring. (thus ensuring survival of the woman and her future offspring)

However, I think it is this Western society that encourages girls not to bother developing their intellectual integrity.

I don't think it's western society, I think it's how most (if not all) societies work. You only become as successful as you need to accomplish your goals. For men, more money, more status, more intelligence will always reward you with higher quality women. For women, status, money and intelligence return nothing. Instead, beauty and fitness return men. So they don't bother with endeavors that have little to no return.

In other words, there's no reason for women to be smart, they literally don't need to be.

You didn't have to make things awkward- A brilliant example of the reflection technique and double standards

15 upvotes · 15 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

She was being rude by interjecting her boyfriend into conversation like that. There are polite ways to go about it. Don't reward that behavior with the D.

New dumb feminist meme: Only sexist dinosaurs notice which women are fat. Everyone else is blind.

15 upvotes · 1 March 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Hmmmm..

http://assets.nydailynews.com/polopoly_fs/1.1166884.1348492170!/img/httpImage/image.jpg_gen/derivatives/landscape_635/lena25f-2-web.jpg

Yup, fat.

Blue Pill 'advice'.

15 upvotes · 23 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Well, it's kinda red pill when you consider the advice is to Next, but it has the nice feminist slant of but you probably caused it by thinking you had options.

Globe and Mail: Females outraged that preference will be given to males for teaching jobs - article pasted here

15 upvotes · 21 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The thought of marching tons of women into coal mines kinda makes me smile a little bit.

Do you think red pill ideologies are going to be more mainstream?

15 upvotes · 19 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

The media in the USA has been picking up red pill truths for a while. Men not getting married, women being unhappy. The question is will media come to the right conclusions or stop demonizing red pill thinking? Probably not in 2013. I don't think we'll see an upswing before we hit a further rock bottom. I wouldn't be surprised if eventually we face censorship here on our subreddit. Mark my words, it's yet to get worse.

Is seddit even redpill?

15 upvotes · 4 February 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No, seddit is not red pill. Though a lot of the advice there is good game, the advice usually ends at pickup. Most guys there do not understand the underlying theory, and are afraid of our viewpoint.

This is what is wrong with today's women

15 upvotes · 22 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

That is a really upsetting comment you've linked to. I'mma dissect it.

This guy was at first flattered, thinking "no way, she's so young" but she kept coming after him, and eventually he gave in and started sleeping with her. Which evolved into dating, and him being as giddy as a school boy. His friends and family judged him. We thought "what a creep" though we'd never say that to his face, or even tell him we didn't approve because, hey, at least he was no longer depressed.

Man found happiness, so something must be wrong. We held our tongues but obviously knew something was wrong.

They dated for the past couple years, and she moved in. He decided to propose to her last year, and she sort of freaked out, and nearly left. He proposed again recently, and she said yes. It's still really awkward. She's a really sweet girl, and there's absolutely nothing wrong with her. She's just not mature. She has never been able to experience the things a normal 20 something kid gets to experience.

People used to get married very young. Are you saying everybody in the past was immature?

She hasn't been on multiple dates, and grown through those relationships. (Although, similarly, I'd argue, neither have you, OP! You never had the chance to date multiple people, and grow emotionally through those relationships because you were married so young.)

Literally setting her up for a hypergamous failure! She shouldn't settle down! There's a whole cock carousel waiting for her! She shouldn't settle down until her expectations are unreasonable from all the guys she dates!

I don't know how it'll work out with our friends and his now fiance, who is 19 years younger than him, but he seems to be happy. Our judgmental view of them has reduced over time, but we still occasionally wonder out loud how long it'll take her to wake up and leave.

This woman knows the red pill. She is literally wondering how long it'll take this girl's hypergamy to kick in. It might not, since she didn't start off life with unrealistic expectations!

The second thing I wanted to share sort of relates to what I mentioned above. Take this young girl out of the equation for a second, and look internally. You never had the typical dating experiences when you were her age because you got married so young. You and your wife likely fought like cats and dogs because you were so immature yourselves when you came together that you never had the time to grow up on your own and figure things out. This girl, now, she's your rebound relationship. You may be unaware of it, or in denial, but you need to spend some time on you. Look internally. Maybe get some counselling. Screw her on the side all you want, but do not commit to a long term relationship, and moving in together. You're thinking like an 18 year old boy right now. You're having great sex, and waking up emotions that have been stagnant for so long, that your head is spinning.

If you're unhappy, it's because there's something wrong with you. Don't you dare let something that makes you happy make you happy.

Please consider taking this time to both focus on you, and also take your kids into consideration. Think back to when you were a teen and how fragile things were in your life at that time. Your kids likely hate you right now, or have some pretty strong negative feelings towards you. Their mother is likely feeding the negativity with her feelings about your young gf. But, you know what, their mother likely has the same exact issues that you do. She never grew up. She married young, and never matured emotionally through dating and interacting with different people and scenarios. Instead of dealing with it head on, you two likely just let it simmer, until one day the pot exploded and things feel apart. It happens all the time.

She's innocent and deserves protection. Your happiness can be sacrificed. Do the right thing and beta up!

I was married young also. Luckily, I was divorced in my 20's, and had time to catch up with my peers emotional growth. If I hadn't had those experiences, there's no way I'd appreciate my current husband and our relationship the way I do. Please don't push your young girlfriend into the same exact situation that you're just coming out of. Edit to add: she doesn't have the level of maturity to make the decision for herself. I know, from experience, and hindsight.

Our judgmental view of you has us wondering out loud how long it'll take you to wake up and leave.

All Girls Like Rough Sex

15 upvotes · 19 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

No, what's really going to happen is feminists will claim this is proof we're all rapists. Same story, different day.

Question - getting her to contribute for dates

15 upvotes · 18 January 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I often make women pay for me on dates. In fact, I usually approach getting a date like this- "I feel like you owe me a drink..."

That's pretty hardcore though, so you don't have to go that route.

Chauvinism is ok- if you asked her out, no problem with you paying. You're a man and you have no problem with that. But if she shows un-lady like attributes, like she gets bitchy and talks about you paying for dinner, I'd put my foot down right then and there.

Just don't buy girls drinks at the bar.

Boyfriend wants to buy an expensive engagement ring, but I would prefer for him to save the money and buy something cheaper. Do I talk to him or let him lead here?

14 upvotes · 29 August 2022 · /r/RedPillWomen

Suggest an activity you guys could do together with the money instead, tell him it would mean more to you.

Think about the tropical vacation you could get for $15k. Not too shabby.

It wouldn't be insulting to suggest it- in fact, he may appreciate where your priorities lie.

If, however, he declines, then drop it. This is his choice and ultimately, let him do his thing.

The result of my 20's with just escorts/prostitutes

14 upvotes · 30 August 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

What's the other type of sex?

"Abusive men"

14 upvotes · 24 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

When the light switch goes off, he was always abusive.

Reddit's ex-CEO says: "Deplatforming works", "We don't need to protect speech"

14 upvotes · 23 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

Two sides of the same coin, as it were.

We watched the coin flip mid air over the past few decades as the champions of free speech were the left until about 2001-2008 era when suddenly, censorship was good and spying on every American came into style.

The Great Reddit Exodus

14 upvotes · 22 June 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

We cross that bridge when we get there.

Part of the reason the platform took so long to implement was that we had to spend a lot of time researching and contacting companies to get service agreements that included speech as a protection.

It's really scary how few companies will commit to legal free speech.

That said, in order to keep the target minimal on our backs, we have decided to keep to men's topics and not a broad free speech platform like gab or 4chan.

2020 Most Influential People in the Manosphere Nominations

14 upvotes · 4 January 2021 · /r/TheRedPill

From @Fawk_Face on TRP.RED Source (These are not my nominations)

Top 3 guys of this "manosphere" thing imo

1) Andrew Tate

Dude speaks mad shit. He did the work and is living the life most guys want. He helps guys out aswell with his tate speech's and interviews.

Yeah, he has courses that are overpriced but if you're smart like me all you have to do is watch his interviews and he gives away all that information for free. (Personally I wouldn't but his courses)

His "war room" makes sense though. I heard guys who have had their life change by it. He was meet ups with his members in the war room.

Wise guy and backs up what he says.

Video: www.youtube.com/watch?v=6wynz__ocp8&list=ll&index=4

2) VasilijZaitzev

He is the best poster on the TRP reddit period.

A mix of entertainment and pure classic red-pill.

Video: www.youtube.com/watch?v=xg8cj6o0vk8

3) James Marshall (CEO of the natural lifestyles)

Dude preaches being natural with women and teaches guys how to become "The Matured Masculine". Which is needed in todays environment filled with autistic boys.

Video: www.youtube.com/watch?v=-juyeigwhgq

2021 Predictions for the Sexual Market [Warning Politics]

14 upvotes · 28 December 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

We're being brigaded.

Reddit tried to stop the spread of hateful material. Users turn to self-moderating platforms "an even more dangerous place." These self-righteous clowns believe themselves god, should have a say over what you think and say.

14 upvotes · 18 November 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

Let's be honest here, controversy drives eyeballs. everybody knows it.

Anybody not courting controversy isn't popular or is lying about it.

The Reddit Admin Operate in Bad Faith, They Lurk in the Shadows to Generate Post-Hoc Rationalizations for Ideological Censorship. A Proof and Challenge to Reddit Admin

14 upvotes · 1 September 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

It's this tired argument again.

If you want to be off topic on a topic forum such as ours, you are free to start another subreddit for your own take.

We aren't stopping you. In fact, we launched trp.red which allows you to start up your own tribe right now.

Reddit on the other hand is saying that NOBODY can have ANY discussion that's unapproved.

You know the difference, you're just trying to sow discord.

If you post about kittens or movie reviews, it will be removed. We're a topic forum.

A Note on OPSEC in light of the recent Twitter leaks...

14 upvotes · 20 July 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

A number of red pill members have been doxxed over the years including at least one high profile one.

Regardless, this is for general privacy, not just red pill.

Reddit Admin are Hellbent on Killing Off Reddit

14 upvotes · 26 February 2020 · /r/TheRedPill

We've been striving hard to eliminate performance and reliability issues with trp.red. I'm happy to say I think we're in a good place on that front.

The new update for Forums.red isn't up yet, and the old site is shitty as fuck. Keep an eye out for the new site.

Reddit Banning all opposing viewpoints - Prepare to Meet at TRP.RED

14 upvotes · 1 October 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

We absolutely never ask for your reddit password.

If you decide to verify your username as your reddit name, it will redirect you to <https://reddit.com> to give our app permission for 1 hour to verify your identity.

You have the freedom not to complete a reddit verification by clicking "Register New Name" instead of Verify reddit name.

False Positives

14 upvotes · 7 May 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It's easy not to show up out of nowhere, spam the shit out of our community and then call all of our members and moderators spergs.

Crabs in a basket indeed.

If Not Men, Then What? - "the biggest con in human history was convincing women that working, commuting, and paying taxes was fun."

14 upvotes · 8 March 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

What the fuck is equality? And why would you think we give a shit about this made up term?

THE LIONS DEN - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

14 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

I think the subject matter itself attracts higher intelligence people than average. Beyond that, the way to become well read is.. well.. read!

Writing is a skill that you get better at when you practice. Reading helps with vocabulary.

THE SEA OF CIVILITY - OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY

14 upvotes · 13 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

It is imperative for the various racial groups to self-segregate, voluntarily, into an order stratified by race and ethnicity, in different regions, such that children born in the future do not deal with lack of an identity of their own,

Disagree.

I think cultures work best if segregated by shared values, but the color of your skin isn't important.

Just another AWALT story for your reading pleasure

14 upvotes · 12 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

That's exactly what it is. I won't be responding to her for months.

No, you won't be responding to her ever.

We had something amazing though and I don't know how I'm going to react when she inevitably comes back.

Oneitis. Get rid of it. Think she's thinking this about you? SHE FUCKING ISN'T

Announcing: OFFICIAL NO-BAN FREE-FOR-ALL MODS-ASLEEP AMA-TRP DAY* WED 2/13 : "The biggest brawl of ill-conceived multi-colored pill metaphors baked into the biggest smackdown medicine cocktail since John Belushi discovered heroin."

14 upvotes · 6 February 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Roger roger, not banned.

TLC Broadcasts the mutilation of a minor in first recorded and televised "celebrity" sex change.

14 upvotes · 31 January 2019 · /r/TheRedPill

Made up of what ever nerve endings were still left from the tip of his penis.

So very fucked up.

"Well, in the future I'd like something serious, just not right now."

14 upvotes · 28 January 2019 · /r/PurplePillDebate

and try to lead a lifestyle I want my partner to have (job, school, have hobbies, have friends, etc.)

Remember- men aren't attracted to your career or earning potential.

While it's good to be independent, don't flaunt it or feature it. At best, it does nothing for men. At worst, it's a turn off for some.

SHIT TEST MEGATHREAD

14 upvotes · 10 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Rule of thumb for attraction is show don't tell. You can't tell her you're awesome. But she can see it.

I know it kind of sucks because you worked hard for prestige, but you can't bring it up on first meet. She has to discover it.

I Archived The Entire Subreddit And Coded A Simple Website To Read It

14 upvotes · 8 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

I can invite you to our private dev forum (open soon). Instead of duplicating efforts we have a lot of tasks that need doing.

How Many Women?

14 upvotes · 1 October 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If you tip on TRP.RED, authors get payouts in bitcoin.

This community is quarantined: It is dedicated to shocking or highly offensive content. For information on positive masculinity, please see the resources available at Stony Brook University's Center for the Study of Men and Masculinities

14 upvotes · 28 September 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Rest assured I have the backup sites databases backed up. If shit hits the fan, there will be a torrent of everything.

What is it about me that repels men so much?

14 upvotes · 15 August 2018 · /r/RedPillWomen

It's not to do with weight, there are plenty of men out there who like bigger women.

That said, if you want to broaden your chances of finding a man you're attracted to, time to hit the gym and watch your diet.

New Mod: RedShifter99

14 upvotes · 12 February 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

We're all 12, what are you talking about?

On Alpha & Beta, and the misuse of these terms.

14 upvotes · 9 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

If your response to a shit test is to fail it, you're going to fail. Nothing to do with alpha/beta.

Dangerous Times – Part 2

14 upvotes · 3 January 2018 · /r/TheRedPill

Non-TRP Aware Men know something is wrong

The basis for all men to know something's fishy is that these kids are spending a majority of their twenties sexless.

You can't stay a feminist for long before wondering why the hell nobody likes you.

Remember, you're good enough, smart enough, and doggone it, people like you!

14 upvotes · 25 September 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks. I was considering starting a hateon to supplement the time and cost put into this and trp.red. Anybody have experience with this company?

Censorship on the Internet • r/theredpillright

14 upvotes · 25 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I have an archive of most of the TOP posts of TRP and it's expanding.

Check it here: <https://www.forums.red/i/theredpill>

I wouldn't be adverse to posting the database itself for download.

Google Fires Ph.D Biologist/Engineer For Claiming -- "On average, men and women biologically differ in many ways. "

14 upvotes · 8 August 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

There seems to be a misunderstanding of how at-will works.

For instance, in an at-will employment state, an employer can simply say "You're fired for no reason at all" and be legally sound. Which is why many employers will literally do just that, no reason provided.

But if you say "I fired you because you're black" you've violated the law and it doesn't matter how at-will your state is.

A reminder that sensible people must wage war against censorship and SJW-ism

14 upvotes · 25 March 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

When there's more to lose than gain, behave like others.

The Red Pill Right

14 upvotes · 5 February 2017 · /r/TheRedPill

I won't censor anybody from saying so, but I prefer a reasoned argument. You've got +1 points from our ECs so I'm hoping you've got more to say.

All Women Lie About Rape - Part Three

14 upvotes · 21 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not just women though, it's also men. Weak men to be precise.

Ironically, this post I quote is from a gay friend of mine, and he was writing it specifically in reference to Women, Weak/Gay men, and children on our lesser known /r/altTRP.

Thank you very much for putting in the effort to think and type all this up.

You're most welcome. Cheers!

All Women Lie About Rape - PART ONE

14 upvotes · 19 December 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Then you'll never know what it said.

"Sexual Assault" is Why I'm Endorsing Donald Trump for President of the United States

14 upvotes · 14 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

The -ist words might work elsewhere but we use adult arguments here.

Endorsed Contributor Weekend

14 upvotes · 7 October 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Hey, sorry, we have been discussing it briefly in modmail over the past week.

If you feel left out, don't you fret. Repost some quality old ones, we'll surely be doing another one of these so we'll give you guys more notice next time.

Feminist lives as a Man for 18 months to try to prove "Male Privilege". Learns Women are more Privileged than Men

14 upvotes · 1 September 2016 · /r/MensRights

I mean /mr really hates to have any overlap with trp, but that observation was the exact observation that caused trp to split from the rest of the community.

GayLubeOil Fills You with his Esoteric Wisdom

14 upvotes · 16 August 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

I fucking love me. Have you seen my website? Shit's cash.

The Fundamentals of Fitness

14 upvotes · 15 June 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You can make a case against steroids without concern trolling.

New Design

14 upvotes · 24 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Rebel against GLO's T-shirts, go topless!

TheRedPill Contingency Plan

14 upvotes · 13 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

the thing is nobody actually buys that. It's just a persuasion tool to gain supporters so sjws can push their agendas.

The problem is when we have schools giving kids tests in spanish because they don't know english, we're basically making home for native english speakers inhospitable.

Is there a fundamental misunderstanding of the 'nice guy' phenomena?

14 upvotes · 10 May 2016 · /r/PurplePillDebate

The meme is spread and even politicized ("male entitlement", "toxic masculinity" etc.). It becomes a universal excuse to mock low-value men while chasing high-value men, even aggressive ones.

While convincing low value men to try even harder to be low value.

The Viability of the Red Pill in the Future - Border Erosion

14 upvotes · 4 May 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

You are just a dude, a fucking speck in their internet life. You can provide your advice, for sure - but you cannot tell them what to do.

This would be a cogent point if we weren't literally on a self-help forum dedicated to advice. Of course I can't tell anybody what to do. But I can ensure that the advice being given on our subreddit is consistent with the red pill. If any advice was on topic, we'd call this the "any advice" forum.

But it's not. It's advice from a red pill perspective.

So, yeah, it's within the purview of my job to ensure that the advice isn't balls-to-the-wall nonsense like what you've been preaching.

The Red Pill isn't yours to lay claim to, it isn't a single thing. It coincides perfectly with masculinity as a whole.

Likewise, it's not yours to bastardize.

My job, which I do very transparently here, is to ensure that the principles laid out on this subreddit upon its inception are kept true.

Masculine men own their shit - that's it. TRP is the sexual aspect of it, understanding the other guy (women) and using that knowledge to reach their objective.

That's as good as saying "anybody can do anything..." Well sure, that's true. There's already an /r/relationships for "anything" advice.

I posted solid shit about how I've maintained a sex filled marriage and been down voted and wrote a response about bitches being predicable and gotten hundreds of upvotes.

And I've told you more than once, good for you, that doesn't make it a solid strategy.

You've got your fanboys here who are eating anything you put out because you're RPS. But, when you look at real world application, these guys should be owning their shit and choosing to do what they want vice what TRP told them to do - because FUCK TRP - it isn't about making it on this sub, its about using this sub as a resource for tangible and intangible results in the real world

And here you've turned to shame to re-enforce your terrible advice. As long as one owns their shit, they should make any decision they want, no matter how poor it may be? Implying that abstaining from marriage is just simply a man-boy problem of not owning one's own shit.

Of course if somebody wants to read TRP and get married, that's their choice, we're not stopping anybody from living their lives. But when they come crying that shit went south, it's not like we didn't warn them.

You'd do well to put out truths to your thousands of subscribers. I'm in the minority when I say Marriage CAN work. A lot of the guys disagree and go about their business, you seem to be the one caught up on a dude saying marriage CAN work and that if someone wants that, then they should do it fully armed with the knowledge of what is at stake and the amount of work required.

That's the sort of nonsense I'm talking about. Driving off a cliff and surviving can work. Playing Russian Roulette and surviving can work. Doesn't make either of those a solid strategy.

I'm surprised at how sensitive you've become on this topic. You don't have any counter to the point that my marriage is sex filled, I'm improving personally and professionally, and I never went through Deadbedroom or had a Dadbod.

You're literally preaching that you've made a bad decision that hasn't gone south on you yet - but your marriage isn't even a decade old yet. Why would I let a special snowflake like you start making threads about how others should too?

Here's an idea, I started smoking a few years back, and haven't died of cancer yet, so here's how I'm going to drag an entire subreddit down with absolutely shit advice because my 3 years of smoking haven't had repercussions yet.

I have my kids under my control and own my shit as every masculine man should, you couldn't/didn't choose to - doesn't mean we should all be like you.

You've bought the feminine imperative, hook, line, and sinker. You serve at the mercy of your wife. What you have is nothing more than what she lets you have.

The Guardian: Swallowing the Red Pill: a journey to the heart of modern misogyny

14 upvotes · 14 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Looks like he changed the subject immediately after you called him on the "TRP is pro rape sentiment.

It's hard to argue with my reasoning. You don't need a strategy for rape, other than "where do i buy roofies, and what's the best brand of duct tape?"

Also...Morpheus Manfred?

A few years ago was my first big interview, it was BBC world News. I needed an email, quickly. So I made a GMAIL, and it needed a name, so I figured, let's try Morpheus. You know, for obvious reasons. They needed a last name though, so I just thought Manfred sounded kinda righteous.

Didn't realize they'd read my "From" line on the email and announce me as Morpheus Manfred on the air. Since then I just kept it for consistency's sake.

How often do you get contacted for interviews?

More often than what gets published here. I turn down any that won't work with my text-only format, but it's a lesson I've learned being misquoted.

A majority of red pill related articles do reach out to me for at least a quote, even if they don't publish it.

Very recently there have been a few television programs who have contacted me looking to dive into our culture. More news on that later.

Lessons from a borderline woman - pt 1 confirmation of TRP truths and red flags of a BPD woman.

14 upvotes · 4 April 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Stay the fuck away from BPDs.

Edit: Their "crazy" cannot be tamed. You can try. You will get burned. Want false accusations of abuse? That is what you'll end up with if you don't play their game the way they want you to.

They're not just crazy, they can do real damage to you. Stay far far far away.

(Of course, most people don't realize the BPD until they're hooked. They usually act normal at first.)

[Mod] Announcing a new platform: www.TRP.red

14 upvotes · 4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Yes, we want a phone app, but it's a future feature.

[Mod] Announcing a new platform: www.TRP.red

14 upvotes · 4 March 2016 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for all your countless hours of help Anteros. It's been integral to the launch today.

[Mod] If you bitch and moan, I'm a throw you out.

14 upvotes · 5 November 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The count is closer to 50 now. I'm going through the new comments page.

Where have all the good men gone? Women at Vice put their heads together to answer this puzzling mystery.

14 upvotes · 28 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

I tested in the top percentile, but literally refused to do my homework because it was a waste of my time.

Exactly my experience. I know the material, it wasn't that difficult. I'm not going to waste my time doing problems over and over.

Always got bad grades, aced tests, and squeaked by with a C average. Fascinating how highschool teachers never considered that a kid who could get 100's on his test should have such a miserable grade.

Chateau Heartiste Maxims (Updated from 17/09/2014 to 19/09/2015)

14 upvotes · 19 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Female solipsism: Women try to emulate that which they find attractive in men because they assume what is true for them must be true for the world. See also: Female shoulder pads in the 90s.

King White Knight Beta Leader on r/relationships fiancée wants and asks him to take more control in the relationship. "Ordering his wife to do anything would be vile" in his own words.

14 upvotes · 15 September 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Feminists act like housewives are oppressed for letting their husband do all the real work.

And they've got the general public convinced, too. It's probably the most impressive thing about the feminist movement, is their ability to convince everybody just how oppressed they were as young men went off to war to die.

Stumbled across a good laugh. If only it weren't true...

14 upvotes · 11 August 2015 · /r/MensRights

Right? Like, if I had a choice between being raped or murdered, I'd take rape. Not a happy choice to make, but, yeah.

I've heard it repeated enough times that rape is worse than murder, or that the punishment should be greater than that of murder. It's absurd.

Reddit is shutting itself down due to controversial firing

14 upvotes · 3 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Yup. It will be announced on puerarchy.com

If you feel like it, you can reserve your reddit name for our future forum.. right now!

<http://www.puerarchy.com/verify/index.php>

The Red Pill now illegal in New Zealand.

14 upvotes · 1 July 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

Here is the bill text. I think that a case can be made that posting offensive material despite having no "target victim" can still create a victim when the bar for harm is "emotional distress."

Verify your username on Puerarchy

14 upvotes · 11 June 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's for the forum that will open if reddit shuts us down. We will not open it unless this happens.

Women in male spaces

14 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

The effect is still very much real.

Why does the entirety of reddit want to control what is said in TheRedPill, but nobody cares what happens in /r/feminism or /r/TwoXChromosomes ?

Women in male spaces

14 upvotes · 15 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

It's a step beyond that- broads need to control the discourse. They need to ensure that the men are in line with the feminine imperative. She wasn't just getting attention, she was insuring female primacy.

In the light of the latest fear-mongering, here is a repost of TRP's Top 500 posts - both HTML and JSON.

14 upvotes · 8 May 2015 · /r/TheRedPill

yes, contact me and i'll get you ftp credentials to upload it to my server. thanks.

"I've done all the RedPill shit, but girls still don't want me. What now?" I'll tell you.

14 upvotes · 19 December 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Agreed. In fact, it's counter productive to feel shameful for wanting pussy. Of course we want pussy, we're biologically programmed to.

Shit test: "Go see one of your other girls." Whatcha think?

14 upvotes · 6 December 2014 · /r/askTRP

Yeah, telling her to hang out with the other guy acknowledges you feel he's a threat, and is passive aggressive. You made a mistake.

Never acknowledge other men, ever.

Go silent, soft next her.

Science Confirms Tattooed Women Are Indeed Broken

14 upvotes · 17 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Comparing women with any amount of tattoos to fat men is beyond tenuous.

It's a handicap on dating and affects one's SMV. Clearly I used hyperbole to make the point, but I'm sure you can derive the meaning from my analogy, and not take it literally.

I don't know exactly what you or RoK is out to prove, other than "girls with tattoos tend to be sluttier". Everyone kind of knew that already, and this article is just responding to SJW and entertaining their delusions. But he didn't go that extra step, and attempt to tell guys that think tattoos are attractive, that they don't think tattoos are attractive, like you did.

I'm glad you're already aware of the slutty nature of tattooed women. The subject is still worthy of discussion.

RP being discussed openly in 1996, except they weren't calling it RP.

14 upvotes · 16 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think we have a collective generation of fathers to blame for that.

Girlfriends points to a feminist article. Gets what she asked for.

14 upvotes · 14 October 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

A good way to avoid the downvotes is to drop the better-than-thou attitude and provide an example of what you're saying. You're not exactly wrong.

A good way to pass this shit test is to go:

"Oh wow, I'm a terrible boyfriend!"

What are you going to do about it?

"I guess I'm going to have to kill myself, I don't think there's any redemption for me!"

Agree and amplify!

Having a hard time finding a woman worth marrying? It's nothing new. Read this excerpt from the bible!

14 upvotes · 7 August 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It was narrated that ‘Abd-Allah ibn ‘Abbas (may Allah be pleased with him) said: The Messenger of Allah (peace and blessings of Allah be upon him) said: “I looked into Paradise and I saw that the majority of its people were the poor. And I looked into Hell and I saw that the majority of its people are women.” They said, “Why, O Messenger of Allah?” He said, “Because of their ingratitude (kufr).” It was said, “Are they ungrateful to Allah?” He said, “They are ungrateful to their companions (husbands) and ungrateful for good treatment. If you are kind to one of them for a lifetime then she sees one (undesirable) thing in you, she will say, ‘I have never had anything good from you.’”

Great quote. ♂

Why you need to shut up and listen: A litmus test you all failed.

14 upvotes · 24 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Ever wonder why I posted the ROK article about women shouldn't vote?

Women are Incapable of Change.

14 upvotes · 23 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Hard to say. Probably both. But then again, I would argue culture is a biological process responding to environment anyway.

Guy's girlfriend was raped at a party, but she doesn't want to destroy the friendship with her rapist.

14 upvotes · 22 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I mean Jesus fuck, why the hell is walking around on eggshells to protect this chick's poor fragile fucking feelings if there's a real rapist out there, raping people? She can suck it the fuck up like any MAN would in a similar situation, and fucking call the damn cops.

You only want me for sex!

14 upvotes · 16 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Threatpoint

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2012/04/14/threatpoint/>

<http://puerarchy.com/2013/07/22/threatpoint-created-the-puerarchy/>

"9 Months. 98 Men. Here's What I've Learned"

14 upvotes · 3 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

She teaches the art of flirting in order to capture a man's attention. I don't want art. I want to meet a man organically in an environment where I can be myself and interact naturally.

I don't want to do something to attract somebody, I want it to happen to me.

But I know who I am. I love easily and effortlessly.

Just not to the 100 guys I just got free dinners off of. None of them are any good. But really, I'm very easy to get along with. Why didn't those guys impress me? Oh, something wrong with those guys.

So, while I've satisfied my friends and family with giving dating a fair shot,

If you think going out with men like an addict chain smokes is giving "dating a fair shot" I got news for you...

I still prefer the old-school method of connection where I'm just doing my thing and happen to meet someone special. Whether walking my dog or at the gym, I'm where I want to be while living the life I love. And we meet. Naturally. Organically. The spark we find serves as our connection. We merge.

She just wants it to happen to her. It has to be magic.

Imagine the guy's version of this:

7 Dates in 9 Months, here's what I learned.

Women are superficial and don't seem to like me for who I am. I just want to meet somebody organically, but, it took all my energy just to get less than 1 date a month, I don't think I'll even meet a woman if I stop trying.

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

14 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

You're not changing the rules, you're just changing the words. You're in the same game as everyone else that you're upset with, but the reality is the game you're playing is...frankly, done. You're just saying and doing the same obvious things that have already been said and done.

This is some really deep shit, man... Did you, like, read the sidebar?

No? Why not? I expect somebody who feels compelled to act like they think they know what they're talking about could at least research the topic they're debating.

Of course you wouldn't.

The Direction of The Red Pill and a Welcome Message to Newcomers

14 upvotes · 1 July 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

The goal of having 2 children get through college first poses the question: Can I have two children safely? Do I want two children? Will that make me happy?

Of course these are questions everybody has to answer for themselves. We're not purporting to have those answers, nor are we suggesting there's a right or wrong answer to these questions. We're an open discussion about strategy that helps you learn how to answer them for yourself.

So yes, make goals. Make them well defined. No problem with that.

If you haven't read the sidebar you shouldn't post.

14 upvotes · 14 May 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Or trying to ignore alpha. ... Just improve yourself, forget this nonsense alpha stuff. Forget sex. All you need is to feel good. RIGHT?

"Mozilla'ed" How a spoiled 20 something brat can get you fired bc you "offended her"

14 upvotes · 28 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

It's female nature to test the boundaries of how unreasonable/crazy they can be before someone puts them in their place, eg shit tests. So SJW's like these people will keep making progressively more and more unreasonable demands, and betas will keep appeasing them

This is why it makes less sense to make women our equals politically. What's the old quote?

Once made equal to man, woman becomes his superior.

We have a predisposition to appease women, as a species, and once we make them our equals, they do become our superior. And without boundaries, what do they do? They fill the container they are in.

♂

"Age-Inappropriate Relationships" Don't Exist Outside the Minds of Jealous Sluts

14 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Show up and troll, it's pretty easy.

Almost every troll story has the plausible deniability of "I was just voicing an alternative opinion, they just want an echo chamber, that's why I was banned!"

But it completely ignores the "that's why you're all misogynists!" line that actually got them banned.

"Age-Inappropriate Relationships" Don't Exist Outside the Minds of Jealous Sluts

14 upvotes · 16 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

They say that this kind of relationship is bad- as though it's inherently bad because if she's pleasing you then it must be an imbalance of power and it's evil and must be stopped.

Nobody ever stops to think, why shouldn't men have fulfilling relationships with women who they actually find attractive and that actually like them?

It's actually seen that if a woman is preferable to men, she's done something wrong!

I'm also dating a woman about a decade younger than me, and I absolutely love the amount to which she cares and tries, unlike the older slags that have more push-back than femininity.

♂

[Meta] What to me (long time redditor) makes this sub more legitimate than many others.

14 upvotes · 10 April 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Thanks for the kind words. Unfortunately, we are not interested in a census.

Girl shoots a sex tape, now worried her father, who agreed to pay her tuition on the condition she doesn't slut it up, finds out

14 upvotes · 31 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

No, no doxxing, no suggestions of it. Don't be stupid.

Feminist writes piece decrying 300 Movie for "unrealistic male body standards", actual men show up in the comments to lambast her as the weak and projecting woman that she truly is

14 upvotes · 12 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Don't work out the same muscle groups everyday, but you can still hit the gym and work it daily. Also, cardio on your off days.

Girl on r/askwomen talks about "getting plowed on her back" by an alpha while being in a LDR. All the male responders to her post are shocked/angry but all the female responders are sympathetic.

14 upvotes · 7 March 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

I think men have an easier time being monogamous, mostly because getting sex is much harder for a man, often they're just grateful to have even one girl fucking them.

But around these parts, we don't usually preach monogamy here. I wouldn't condone cheating though, spinning plates is best done honestly and openly. Massive social proof.

[Mod] On red pill discourse, and a brief discussion on BETA

14 upvotes · 25 February 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

Some guys are interested in raising kids. You'll have to make that decision individually, but we'll discuss both strategies here.

TRP overcomplicates complimenting women

14 upvotes · 3 January 2014 · /r/TheRedPill

TRP does nothing of the sort. It's not seddit here, friend.

Is TRP ready to divorce itself from RoK?

14 upvotes · 27 December 2013 · /r/PurplePillDebate

"Are you guys ready to start modifying and self-censoring in an attempt to appease us?"

Nope. And we never will.

One lucky redditor is blessed to have his gf have sex with James Deen on camera

14 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

So are we lynching somebody or what? This thread is confusing

What if we're right?

14 upvotes · 20 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Nominate it for the BEST OF 2013!

Feel Good Bullshit: What it is, why it's bad, and how to spot it

14 upvotes · 13 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Yeah. I'm not embarrassed to admit it. I do everything I do for some more of that sweet sweet poontang.

Does this really work?

14 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

I agree, I just want to make sure that people understand that wanting to get laid is an okay goal to have.

Does this really work?

14 upvotes · 12 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Go back and read the side bar. Women can love you, but not the same way that men love women.

So you're new to the Red Pill & think that we hate women? Think again...

14 upvotes · 11 December 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

;)

Do you know what I was doing at 25? Dancing on bars after 4 too many shots of Jagermeister. Dating as many men as possible...

14 upvotes · 13 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

It's not just that- if I'm going to marry a woman, I'm doing so with maximum fertile years ahead. Can you have a kid at 38? Probably. Can you have 3 or 4? No?

gonewild is fucking disgusting, i had to unsub tonight

14 upvotes · 7 November 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Not just gone wild. The amount of self-made videos of chicks should shed light on this massive validation machine called the internet.

Even though 18 year old cam girls should be attractive to me, they usually pull out a cell phone and start texting during the video and I just wanna slap it out of their hands.

I share some of the feelings of the OP here. Self-made porn is a huge turn off to me. Now when a guy makes it-like casting couch- I don't get the feeling they're doing it for validation but instead money. That I can cope with.

National Post article calls for balanced discussion of rape

14 upvotes · 25 October 2013 · /r/MensRights

"Just because you help her home, doesn't mean you get to help yourself."

It's just the most rude obnoxious way to say that. It's in your face, and basically accuses men of being this selfish greedy drooling bastards that just want a sex buffet and see doing a favor for a woman as our admission.

How about this: "Help yourself home, you strong independent woman."

They're literally trying to train men to work for women and feel shame for expecting anything in return.

No you shouldn't feel entitled to sex every time you do something nice for a woman, but at the same time, women can't just hold their sexuality above our heads and expect us to be hapless slaves for them.

I do nice things for the women I date because there's mutual benefit.

Guy looking for love on Craigslist. First assumed he'd just be another beta for surfing there, but the more you read the more you're pleasantly surprised. (post from TBP; you know it's gold if they're complaining bout it)

14 upvotes · 20 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

Holy quotation mark abuse.

I'm autistic. Should I even try to learn half of this?

14 upvotes · 12 September 2013 · /r/TheRedPill

- If you play something that sounds good, it wasn't your doing. The piano is probably broken and the keys are in the wrong places.
- Anybody who has to practice piano will always be manipulating people into believing they're naturally good. All true piano players just know how to play.

This is the best explanation for the Mens Rights Movement that I have ever seen. /u/NeuroticIntrovert attended the Warren Farrell lecture that was protested and decides to lay out why feminism is not the answer to mens issues and why the MRM is needed.

14 upvotes · 7 August 2013 · /r/MensRights

I want to add that this is also a major aspect to my subreddit as well. It gets a ton of flack because the anger expressed by our subscribers appears to be "hate speech."

They don't have many other places to express their anger.

It is this very tenet of free speech that people use to try to color us evil and worthy of censorship.

Feminists would have you believe that they agree with male-spaces, but you'll see upon a closer look, they only support male-spaces that use feminist approved language and ideas.

Seeing women as little girls.

